

pk_atheist ARCHIVE

compiled by /u/dream-hunter

May 15, 2023

www.TheRedArchive.com

Table of Contents

Scam website allows anybody to post people as potential predators, offers name removal for $100. Site is full of men.	4
Welcome to the Red Pill	5
The Questions that Need to be Asked (and answered!)	6
Is marriage beneficial to men?	7
"The one" vs "my one and only" (Feminism is not a good sexual strategy)	8
Open letter to nice guys [Read: Hey betas, please wait till I'm done on this cock carousel and I've finally hit the wall!]	9
How smartphones killed love--	10
The Fem-Centric Pickup Community	11
I'd like to try this without getting arrested	12
Almost a hundred subscribers! Welcome newcomers.	13
The misconception that red pill is just misogyny.	15
Understanding the transformation into taking the Red Pill	16
The comedy of female hypergamy [NSFW - Nudity]]	17
Shedding unnecessary weight..	18
The Female Self-Esteem Crisis « The Private Man	19
Focusing on strategy - What do we do in light of the Red Pill Truth?	20
Rules for Single Women (Somewhat humorous, but pretty accurate)	21
Feminism is the dominant ideology of our age, and learning that women are attracted to men who lead them is tantamount to crimethink. It doesn't matter that it is true; entertaining thoughts which counter feminism is a terrifying prospect.	22
Women are the victim, no matter who the victim is!	23
The Broken Gender Social Contract - "The masculine attracts the feminine. The feminine attracts the masculine. Red Pill men know this."	24
One of the most effective social conventions the feminine imperative ever established was disqualifying those critical of it from ever having credibility about it.	25
Mother puts baby up for adoption, father has no idea. Father wants the child back, gets court order, adoptive Utah family won't abide by it. Says this adoption is "a righteous desire blessed to fruition by God". [x-post from atheism]	26
Guy wants to qualify for girl's intimacy, girl knows this, but isn't attracted to the guy for the exact reason he is qualifying himself...Girl plays 'friend'...Guy...initiates intimacy and girl falls back on Let's Just be Friends. Guy believes he still needs to qualify more and the cycle repeats.	27
Feminism isn't the only group doing damage- Men's Rights encourages feminizing men in the name of equal rights... ..	28
There's a reason to be angry « The Antidate	29
My list of preemptive steps I take to avoid legal trouble - By a man in the dating scene	30
Conversation on /MensRights about protecting yourself against false rape allegations, response is "If you don't want to get in trouble for rape... make sure you don't rape anyone." WTF?	31
The Decline Of American Women	32

What do we find attractive? « The Antidate	33
Guy gets cause on "kiss-cam" with woman who isn't his date, he handles it well, redditor gives full red pill breakdown.	34
Thread about what the "dark" part of "dark side" PUA is removed from /r/askseddit. There will be no red pill discussion today, seddit.	35
[Mod] Posting Rules Discussion	36
"Women willfully create the beta class of men, and willfully keep them in the dark about there even being another class, and work hard to deny class mobility.... they make a coordinated concerted effort to do so, and strongly oppose any countermeasures."	38
Dennis took the red pill, "It's always sunny in Philadelphia"	39
How the feminine imperative "just happens". Dalrock	40
Ask Women Experiment	41
/r/askreddit: "Reddit, how many people have you slept with? Do you find this number to be low or high?"	42
What if hot whores were cheap, legal, and clean? « Random Xpat Rantings	44
A very insightful analysis of the nature of relationships - "Man affections vs boy affections"	45
An Amazing Manosphere Blog You've Never Seen	46
This is too painful to read...Somebody asked askwomen about The Solomon Group pdf..	47
How Black America Has Predicted Our Future	48
[Mod] 550 Subscribers in just over a month	49
Friends, I am stepping down.	50
Do PPD Debaters miss the point of personal philosophy?	51

Scam website allows anybody to post people as potential predators, offers name removal for $100. Site is full of men.

314 upvotes | October 4, 2012 | /r/MensRights | Link | Reddit Link

<http://www.potentialpredators.com>

Welcome to the Red Pill

12 upvotes | October 25, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

I'm going to discuss briefly what my intention is for this subreddit.

I'm Desmond, and I've been active in both the Men's Rights and the Seduction subreddits. They're both wildly popular subs, but both have major failings that I've slowly identified. They both operate subtly under the feminist imperative. Group-think at both tend to fail to grok the importance of coming to terms with objective reality - something the manosphere has termed "taking the red pill."

I haven't seen serious discussion on sexual strategy that goes beyond the pickup.

We've heard the common trope in many men's subreddits: "Not all women are like that"

That's true. Don't get me wrong. But something it undermines is honest discussion about evolutionary psychology, and society in terms of what a sexual life is like for a man.

"How is that?" I hear you ask. It's simple. Let's describe a problem. Let's say, for example, When I shower my girlfriend with gifts, she breaks up with me or cheats on me.

The men's rights approach: She was a bad egg, find a better one.

The seduction approach: You were displaying unattractive qualities, no shit she left you.

Ok, score one for reddit.

But wait- Let's say I game properly, and maintain an alpha stance, and keep my girlfriend in my frame. We eventually get married and have kids. She later divorces me and takes everything I've got.

The men's rights approach: The law is against you.

The seduction approach: She was a bad egg, find a better one.

Who scores this time? I argue neither. I argue that love is the myth here- more on that later. But it's important to note, in neither scenario was there decent advice to actually move forward in my life. Both ignore the systematic issues that present themselves in relationships, they ignore the reality of psychology, the reality of the law, and the reality of men and women and their subtleties.

Both subreddits appear to still be operating within the frame that feminism put forward. That the one for you is just around the corner, and that courting can work, just so long as you find her and know game.

It's false, and disingenuous.

Let's open discussion here. Let's talk about exactly what it means to be a sexual man in the era of feminism. How do we fulfill our needs sexually? Emotionally? How do we do so without taking unnecessary risks?

In a culture where the only thing standing between you and prison is whether the last girl you fucked decides to lie about rape, these are REAL questions that I think are being ignored.

Welcome.

The Questions that Need to be Asked (and answered!)

2 upvotes | October 25, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

I have yet to see a serious discussion on sexual strategy that goes beyond the pickup. And although I find men's rights to be eye-opening on a moral and legal ground, I have yet to see serious discussion on how to operate in light of the red-pill information they discuss.

The questions that need to be asked, (and answered) are along these lines:

Should you focus on relationships and/or sex? Is there benefit to exclusivity? How do you keep a marriage together in light of hypergamy? Is there love?

Is marriage beneficial to men?

6 upvotes | October 26, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

I was debating this question last night with a friend. I had bumped into her at the market, and she commented on a mutual friend we had. One that I have a casual sexual relationship with.

She said, "you know Susan really likes you, you should stop being afraid to commit."

I didn't expect much more from this girl, since this feminist imperative has been a staple in our social diet since at least when I was born. But it made me wonder, because guys did used to value marriage and commitment. So I considered my options:

If I don't commit, I can have sex with whomever I please, including Susan.

If I do commit I can only have sex with Susan.

Evaluating these two statements, I'd argue not committing is in my best interest.

If I commit, I can potentially have children, maybe a family.

If I do not commit, I might still accidentally have children and be responsible for them, but I won't have a family unit.

I considered these two statements, then realized the first statement was missing something:

If I commit, I can potentially have children, maybe a family, until she determines she can leave, then I have the financial responsibility but no family.

When you consider both, it seems like having kids is a crapshoot- it works or doesn't, but commitment seems to have very little bearing on the outcome.

So considering that a commitment like marriage is incredibly risky and a financial risk to boot, it would make sense that the risk involved with a marriage completely outweighs the benefit- which in itself isn't terribly different than the benefits of avoiding marriage altogether. Whereas the benefit to avoiding marriage is clearly measurable and involves little risk due to the volatile nature of marriage in the first place.

Is marriage or monogamy beneficial in today's market? Or are these feminist imperatives constructed to ensure maximum benefit for women, secretly shaming men for wanting benefits of their own?

“The one” vs “my one and only” | (Feminism is not a good sexual strategy)

6 upvotes | October 29, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

<http://dalrock.wordpress.com/2012/10/28/the-one-vs-my-one-and-only/>

Open letter to nice guys [Read: Hey betas, please wait till I'm done on this cock carousel and I've finally hit the wall!]

11 upvotes | October 30, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

How smartphones killed love--

10 upvotes | October 31, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

It's a bold statement, but most of anything Roosh posts is usually a bit sensationalist.. But in this case he's got a good point. I wouldn't say it's limited to cell phones per se, but the internet culture we live in today as a whole. Here's his post:

Women who own iphones lose the ability to love

<http://feedproxy.google.com/~r/dcb/~3/L-53OIBEH7M/women-who-own-iphones-lose-the-ability-to-love>

And then here's a video I found that might be a bit preachy, but I thought it was an interesting view of this in effect. (not really pointed at game though)

<http://vimeo.com/channels/staffpicks/42857970>

The Fem-Centric Pickup Community

15 upvotes | October 31, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

One of the reasons I created this community was because I saw that the /r/seduction community was losing heart. Now, I don't mean to be one of those people who posts "Guuuyyyzzzz, we're losing ourselvssss!!!" posts, so I didn't. That's lame.

I spoke with somebody else who had been in the community a long time, he mirrored my fears, but didn't have an active solution.

I created the red pill because I didn't see a good reddit community to discuss the reality behind game. Game is a direct response to feminism in our culture. We have to exploit evolutionary psychology because courtship and relationships are out the window, and our culture is teaching the young boys to be servants and the young girls to be men.

But game is not impervious to this feminist imperative. Something I've noticed recently is a continuing trend to re-frame game as self-improvement.

It literally frames the idea of game as "you are not at your best, you need improvement," which appeals to an authority.

If I am not at my best, it needs to be gauged based on a scale. How am I not the best man I can be, unless somebody has a definition of man that I am not living up to.

Which brings me to my point. Game improves a man's ability to navigate the sexual market place. But it got bad stigma.. because game it not in the best interest of feminists' sexual strategy, and since they control public perception (at the moment), they can stigmatize things they don't like.

So some white knights decided, hey- pickup isn't bad. It's not about manipulating women* it's about improving ourselves. It's about making us into guys who are better.

..

..better at pleasing women. We're improving ourselves in the eyes of women. If I were judging my quality, I'd say my beta traits were damn good. But I'm not. So by self-improvement, what they mean is that the world revolves around women and we can't even have a definition without the feminist imperative. That imperative being that we are defined by and serve women.

*Manipulation: Let's face it. Pickup is manipulating women. It's exploiting evolutionary psychology to achieve an end: sex. I would argue that this should not have a negative stigma because wanting sex from the opposite sex is common ground that both genders share. Why would being successful at getting what you want be a point of shame? Ah, yes, feminism says so.

ALL INTERACTIONS ARE A FORM OF MANIPULATION. Every time you speak with somebody you intend on having an effect on their opinion. Right now I am attempting to sway minds or inform you of something. EVERY INTERACTION IS MANIPULATION. Let's bin that word from now on.

I want what I want, and I'll do what it takes to get it. Not because it makes me a better man, but because I have every right to pursue what I want, and fuck you if you want to shame me for it.

I'd like to try this without getting arrested

964 upvotes | November 3, 2012 | /r/MensRights | Link | Reddit Link

Almost a hundred subscribers! Welcome newcomers.

5 upvotes | November 8, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

Greetings, everybody. Welcome to the red pill. We've got almost a hundred subscribers, in exactly two weeks! This is incredible.

Why have we grown so quickly?

Because there's truth in the red pill. Because men are realizing that the sexual marketplace has shifted away from what we've been taught. Men who grew up over thirty years ago are discovering the world has changed. Men who are still growing up- from the 80s, 90s, and even the last decade, they're starting to realize that what their parents taught them, what television and chick flicks taught them, what church and sunday school taught them... it's all wrong.

Our culture has become a feminist culture. A president cannot be elected today without succumbing to the feminist narrative and paying them tribute. How many times has Obama given credit for his manhood to his wife? How many times has the debate hinged on women's pay gap - which is a myth that gets lip service because if you don't you're a misogynist!

I'm not here to parade the concepts of Men's Rights- nor am I here to discuss self-improvement tips that /r/seduction now purports are to make you a better man, not get laid more often.

I am here to say, for better or for worse, the frame around public discourse is a feminist frame, and we've lost our identity because of it.

But this isn't the end of the world. The world is changing, but men are still part of it. We just need to make sure we're changing with it.

It's too easy to blame feminism for our troubles.

Men, our happiness is our responsibility. Culture has always shifted, it's dynamic and fluid. It has never and will never stay still.

Feminism was inevitable. Equal rights are something I strongly am in support of. For men and women.

Women have the right to pursue happiness. Nobody should tell them otherwise. Maximizing happiness is the goal of every living creature on this planet.

Men, we need to recognize that since women are rightfully seeking out happiness, evolutionary psychology is more relevant today than ever in the past century. (and possibly longer). We no longer run the show. And I, for one, don't disagree that marriage had to change if we were to see equal rights.

But now it's time to get serious and realize that our strategy needs to change. Feminism is a sexual strategy. It puts women into the best position they can find, to select mates, to determine when they want to switch mates, to locate the best dna possible, and to garner the most resources they can individually achieve.

The Red Pill is men's sexual strategy. Reality is happening, and we need to make sure that we adjust our strategy accordingly.

Welcome to the red pill. It's a difficult pill to swallow, understanding that everything you were taught, everything you were lead to believe is a lie. But once you learn it, internalize it, and start living your new life, it gets better.

As an introduction to the topic, I want to outline what our focus is here at /r/theredpill.

Mastering Game

Game is an important portion of a sexual strategy. A lot of you probably came here from /r/seduction and are probably wondering why we'd need a new subreddit if one dedicated to game already exists. The reason is simple: Game is a facet of The Red Pill's sexual strategy. Determining good game is impossible to do so without first understanding the context given by The Red Pill's framework. Something I keep seeing over on the seduction subreddit is a problem taking over most relationship and sex forums: the desire to feminize the discussion (basically making it sound politically correct if read by a female).

Yes, game got a bad reputation from girls who demonize manipulation. This is because game is an effective strategy against their own sexual strategy. I believe women's opposition to game can be attributed to the unconscious factors in women's sexual strategy (Please do read Schedules of Mating). When women started becoming vocal about their opposition to game, that's when men decided it would be necessary to make game more politically correct. "Oh, we're not here to manipulate women to have sex with us- we're here to become better men!"

And thus, the female imperative took over game. When men think they must define their own sexual strategy in a way that best delivers results to the female sexual strategy, you know your own strategy will suffer! In a game of chess, do I politely not take out the oppositions' queen in hopes not to offend or win the game?

Defining the Strategy

Because of the necessity to have good game, we must define what good game is. A large portion of Red Pill discussion revolves around evolutionary psychology. Understanding the facets of this psychology are key to developing a good sexual strategy. Because this strategy is useful not only in gaining the attention of the opposite sex, but continuing relationships, having children, and maximizing your own happiness throughout life, I'm going to argue that defining the strategy outside of just "good game" is an important facet of Red Pill Discussion.

Acknowledging Reality

Finally, I think our focus should always remain on ensuring that we challenge the reality we perceive and discuss precisely and objectively whether or not our beliefs line up with the testable results we can replicate. I am a firm believer that potential success can only be maximized by maximizing your knowledge of the factors surrounding your success. Keeping your eyes closed and ignoring evidence and facts will not benefit you. Opening your eyes and acknowledging everything no matter how good, bad, or painful it may seem, is instrumental in making decisions that will lead to the happiest, most successful outcomes.

The misconception that red pill is just misogyny.

7 upvotes | November 16, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

Understanding the transformation into taking the Red Pill

13 upvotes | November 19, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

The comedy of female hypergamy [NSFW - Nudity]

10 upvotes | November 20, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

<http://theracerx.wordpress.com/2012/07/15/the-comedy-of-female-hypergamy/>

Shedding unnecessary weight..

6 upvotes | November 23, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

I realized that I keep a lot of female friends around that I would hook up with given the right circumstances. These friends remain on facebook or occasionally I see them at events or functions, and they're remnants of the old life. The plugged in life, where I thought, I'll just act cool until the time is right.

But every time I see their face on facebook, I get that frustrated urge. Every time.

So this week, during the holidays, I decided to trim down the fat.

I told each one individually point blank that I'm taking them out.

And it's funny, because most of them declined.

And I expected that. They only know the beta me. It just occurred to me that keeping them around wasn't doing me any favors. So pushing this issue solved the question:

If they say yes, then finally! If they say no, they weren't interested and waiting around isn't going to make them more interested.

Win/win, there's literally no reason not to do this.

Single men of theredpill, I challenge you, shed your unnecessary weight, break the ties that are holding you to your blue pill days.

The Female Self-Esteem Crisis « The Private Man

9 upvotes | November 28, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

Focusing on strategy - What do we do in light of the Red Pill Truth?

7 upvotes | November 29, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

We have a lot of posts here regarding the problems of today. I'm sure a lot of us follow blogs like rationalmale and dalrock, M3 ,and so on... and they're all very effective at highlighting the problem with the sexual market today (mainly being stacked against men).

But what's your strategy in light of this?

I'll share my current strategy and maybe you all can share yours. See if there are any good ideas here.

My Strategy

I am in my late twenties, great job, career, business owner, and involved in some local politics. I usually have no trouble gaming chicks when I meet them in the right surroundings (though around Boston, I'm finding chicks to be bitchier and more entitled than even 4 years ago).

My plan is to continue fucking every girl I game, keep a few good ones around non-exclusively as friends with benefits, but to NEVER settle down or be monogamous.

People are going to say my next bit here is crazy: I see commitment as the final shit test. Think about it. Girls are crazy hypergamous. I learned this the hard way. Girls have no drive for commitment, they're yours until they're not. Even top game can't avoid this truth. I don't care much for spending a lot of time gaming one chick in the hopes she won't move on to another guy. I see commitment and monogamy as one thing: Missing opportunities while the girl continues shopping. If the right circumstances present themselves, she'll be gone in a heartbeat.

So what is commitment? I think it's a shit test. Once you commit, she loses the amount of respect she'd otherwise have for you. She doesn't need to work at you, she controls the frame. Even if you're alpha as fuck, she knows she got to call the shot.

Back in the day, that was ok. Marriage still lasted, and you could still be a good husband or long term partner. But today, with no control on hypergamy, and hypergamy in our culture is more or less glorified, it takes very little for a woman to decide to move on.

Since the inevitable always happens, I have decided that staying with one girl will never work. It limits my options and puts me at a disadvantage. More importantly, never committing gives you a seriously high SMV.

I will admit there have been long-term fuck buddies who eventually 'break-up' with me when they realize I'm not going to commit. But I don't see it as a con, since I'm too busy with my harem.

I would've entered marriage if we still lived in the culture my parents were in when they got married, and I might have entertained kids. It seems today, this is too much of a risk, and so I am planning within the year to get a vasectomy.

I read this- I think on Roosh's blog, or maybe rationalmale, but it struck home. In today's culture, my parents would never have gotten married.

Rules for Single Women (Somewhat humorous, but pretty accurate)

18 upvotes | November 30, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

<http://theprivateman.wordpress.com/2011/02/18/rules-for-single-women/>

Feminism is the dominant ideology of our age, and learning that women are attracted to men who lead them is tantamount to crimethink. It doesn't matter that it is true; entertaining thoughts which counter feminism is a terrifying prospect.

20 upvotes | December 3, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

Women are the victim, no matter who the victim is!

1636 upvotes | December 5, 2012 | /r/MensRights | Link | Reddit Link shared Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, Transgender, Straight Alliance's photo.

Like · Comment · Share · 40 minutes ago ·

 So as a guy, I can't wear what I want... and you're the victim?
a few seconds ago · Like

The Broken Gender Social Contract - "The masculine attracts the feminine. The feminine attracts the masculine. Red Pill men know this."

18 upvotes | December 6, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

One of the most effective social conventions the feminine imperative ever established was disqualifying those critical of it from ever having credibility about it.

13 upvotes | December 6, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

Mother puts baby up for adoption, father has no idea. Father wants the child back, gets court order, adoptive Utah family won't abide by it. Says this adoption is "a righteous desire blessed to fruition by God". [x-post from atheism]

4 upvotes | December 6, 2012 | /r/MensRights | Link | Reddit Link

Guy wants to qualify for girl's intimacy, girl knows this, but isn't attracted to the guy for the exact reason he is qualifying himself...Girl plays 'friend'...Guy...initiates intimacy and girl falls back on Let's Just be Friends. Guy believes he still needs to qualify more and the cycle repeats.

8 upvotes | December 11, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

Feminism isn't the only group doing damage- Men's Rights encourages feminizing men in the name of equal rights...

2 upvotes | December 18, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

There's a reason to be angry « The Antidate

13 upvotes | December 18, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

My list of preemptive steps I take to avoid legal trouble - By a man in the dating scene

83 upvotes | December 18, 2012 | /r/MensRights | Link | Reddit Link

Say what you want about my life style, I enjoy hookups. Usually not one night stands, typically short flings with one or two women at a time. Doesn't matter. I'm well within my rights to do so.

But here comes legal trouble. As everybody on this forum is already aware, there is a legal imbalance, and I'm putting myself at considerable risk. Here's what I've done to minimize my risk. I recommend you all do the same (no matter how trustworthy your gal pal might be).

Step 1. I tell every girl before we have sex that I have had a vasectomy. (This isn't true, but I am planning on getting one when I can afford it.) Obviously use a condom. This step prevents her from considering a false pregnancy scare on you- or, if she's banging other dudes, makes sure she doesn't consider trying to get you to pay for one of the other guy's offspring.

Step 2. After a night of coitus, make sure to ask her to text you when she's home safe. This will give you a text record of when she's no longer near you. (Cannot be intimidated physically).

Step 3. In response to the "I'm home safe" text, ask if she enjoyed last night? (via text) Add winky face. If she is ambiguous or unclear, ask another question like "what was your favorite part?"

Now you have proof that she wasn't raped, remembers the night, and enjoyed the time. With a small added benefit of lesser chance of false pregnancy allegations.

Any other ideas? Please don't say "try only having sex with people you can trust." Frankly, in this legal climate, you should trust NOBODY. Because at the end of the day, EVERY SINGLE WOMAN HAS THE ABILITY TO RUIN YOUR LIFE.

EDIT So a lot of people are saying I should just sort out the bad ones. That my selection process is to blame for false rape accusations.

To be clear, I've dated a woman for 3 years exclusively and was very close to her. During the breakup, things got bitter and she threatened to accuse me of rape.

She didn't follow through, thank god, but this is basically my point. Legally, we have ZERO protection from it, no matter what the circumstances. Trying to shame me for enjoying hookups is ignoring the point. Not to mention, it tries to shoulder the blame on me for something these women are doing. I should feel free to have consensual sex with whomever I please without the worry of a false accusation costing me my job and jail time.

Conversation on /MensRights about protecting yourself against false rape allegations, response is "If you don't want to get in trouble for rape... make sure you don't rape anyone." WTF?

0 upvotes | December 19, 2012 | /r/MensRights | Link | Reddit Link

http://www.reddit.com/r/MensRights/comments/152qgo/my_list_of_preemptive_steps_i_take_to_avoid_legal/c7j0oy9

The Decline Of American Women

17 upvotes | December 19, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

What do we find attractive? « The Antidate

11 upvotes | December 20, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

Guy gets cause on "kiss-cam" with woman who isn't his date, he handles it well, redditor gives full red pill breakdown.

153 upvotes | December 21, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

Thread about what the "dark" part of "dark side" PUA is removed from /r/askseddit. There will be no red pill discussion today, seddit.

15 upvotes | December 22, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

Putting aside that I don't really think there's a dark side (I think all sexual strategy is amoral) I assume the dark side is using pickup techniques to string along women and lie to them about pending commitment. I'm not sure that's even a real thing, because anybody with proper game neither needs to lie nor string anybody along.

But let's put that issue aside...

A Seddit Mod (same on askseddit) decided the thread needed to be deleted because it was too trollable- too politically incorrect to begin with.

This is how they deal with asking the hard questions. Seddit will only discuss sexual strategy if it does not superficially anger the feminist gods.

Do you hear that?

Seddit moderates their discussion to serve the feminine imperative. They're afraid of gaining negative attention from women and blue pill men.

Let's have a moment of silence for the fall of a great male refuge. The Red Pill has been growing steam for a while because of this behavior, but I think this is really the nail in the coffin.

Edit: Correction, it was posted and removed from the main seddit sub

[Mod] Posting Rules Discussion

13 upvotes | December 24, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

Hey all, and welcome new comers. We've seen our numbers increase steadily, which is good. There is a serious need for red-pill wisdom, and we're here to discuss.

One fear that a lot of people have as we grow in numbers is the risk of losing our signal in the noise. As a subreddit gets more popular, we do risk posts that detract from our original intention.

Some subreddits are rather open about what content they allow.

We will not be that sort of subreddit. I have already removed quite a few posts that serve only to derail conversation. So I think a list of rules is in order.

Posting Submission Rules

-New submissions must be related to sexual strategy, events that affect sexual strategy, theories about sexual strategy, or stories confirming (or challenging) current theories of sexual strategy.

-Absolutely no direct link screenshots. If you must post a screenshot of a comment, include it as part of your written post. Do not make it your main link.

-No Memes

Posting Comments Rules

Our discussion is not meant to be just an echo chamber, we absolutely encourage discussion that challenges commonly held beliefs. That is the core of the red pill: challenging what we know.

That being said, if you're new here and haven't read the sidebar, there's a good chance that what you want to say has already been heard and we don't really care to argue it. Some of the opinions and ideas we have here may seem a bit shocking at first if you aren't familiar with our theories. Let me be clear:

Our theories are well thought out, backed by evolutionary psychology, and are regularly confirmed by the behaviors we witness. One of the most astounding parts of the red pill is meeting new people here from other parts of the world... who all report the same behavior we've witnessed ourselves. There is REAL truth to the info we're compiling. Attempts to label it misogyny completely misses the point. We do not focus on women as the enemy and consider insults to hurl. Instead, we see women as our goal, and focus on theories as to why they behave the way they do, and how we should behave in light of this information.

If you attempt to "creep" shame, call out misogyny, or otherwise attempt to derail conversation because the information here is shocking to you, it will tell us one thing: You haven't even attempted to understand why and how we've arrived at our conclusions.

Any post that does this will be immediately deleted. A moderator may post a test article for you to read and discuss to prove you are not here to troll. If you fail the test, you may be banned.

We have no interest in becoming an echo chamber, and we don't mind dissenting viewpoints. But if it derails conversation, we will take action. If you're worried you might derail conversation, lurk more.

Since we're still a small group, and from what I've seen, we're all very in-tuned to the red pill, I'm opening discussion to discuss the merit of my rules, suggest new ones, or suggest changes to these. As we grow, the average focus of new members will broaden, so I'd like to get these cemented before then. Thanks!

"Women willfully create the beta class of men, and willfully keep them in the dark about there even being another class, and work hard to deny class mobility.... they make a coordinated concerted effort to do so, and strongly oppose any countermeasures."

15 upvotes | December 24, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

Dennis took the red pill, "It's always sunny in Philadelphia"

8 upvotes | December 26, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

How the feminine imperative “just happens”. | Dalrock

3 upvotes | December 27, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

Ask Women Experiment

17 upvotes | December 28, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

So we saw Tokyo's stint in http://www.reddit.com/r/TheRedPill/comments/15k7wg/its_threads_like_this_that_remind_of_why_game/

And that got me wandering through the askwomen sub.

My god, it's terrible. Nowhere else is there such a great collection of terrible advice and ideas. It's astounding how obvious it is to me now, but the guys over there are eating it up! These women will give you everything you need to hang yourself.

This goes without saying, but never ask a woman for advice. She genuinely will never give you advice that will help you. Always listen to a woman's actions, not words. (This mostly applies to matters of the heart, but on the whole, I apply it to my whole life)

But that got me to thinking. This is a great resource. What are some good questions we could ask over there to test some of our red pill theories?

/r/askreddit: "Reddit, how many people have you slept with? Do you find this number to be low or high?"

9 upvotes | December 28, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

Just saw this one over on askreddit, couldn't pass it up. (I have done some research on past comments of following users to confirm their gender)

Male

Zero. Considering my lack of sexual prowess, I'm surprised I haven't managed to fuck a negative number of people. [\[Link\]](#)

Translation: Cannot have sex, does not have say in matter.

Eight. I feel this is a respectable number for a guy recovering from hereditary Mormonism. [\[Link\]](#)

Translation: I recognize it as a low number, it would be higher if I had control (maybe sooner).

Seven. Three of which were named Kate, wtf. [\[link\]](#)

Translation: Didn't really answer how he felt about it, but it's still low

0, but, you know, I'm 15, so it's right where I want to be. [\[Link\]](#)

Translation: It's low, but blame my age! (Compared to girls' sexual activity at that age, still below average).

Female

twelve. it's not the number that bothers me, it's that half of them were gross. [\[Link\]](#)

Translation: No problem with high number of partners, upset with quality of partners. See: Hypergamy

29 year old female; 13 partners. I slept with who I wanted. I think "the right number of people" is relative. I regret nothing. [\[Link\]](#)

Translation: Average slightly above one guy a year since 18. Again, no shame for high number, perhaps even rationalization "regret nothing."

Two, both long-term relationships. Definitely low compared with other people, but just right

| for me. [\[Link\]](#)

Translation: Long term relationships = less variety.

I pretty well stopped there, but you know where the trend is going.

Here's the point:

Women gave numbers, and excuses for the numbers (too high or just right). Men gave numbers, and expressed a desire for higher numbers that they have been unable to achieve.

Women have access to sex when they want it, where ever they want it. Women show their hypergamous tendencies though rationalization by trying to specify the quality of the guys they fuck, downplaying the quantity. In one case above, trying to use both to downplay eachother!

Men do not have this success. Men have lower counts. Men have to work for sex. Each man expresses a desire to have sex with more people but shows the inability to be circumstances outside their control.

Just interesting data.

What if hot whores were cheap, legal, and clean? « Random Xpat Rantings

8 upvotes | December 31, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

A very insightful analysis of the nature of relationships - "Man affections vs boy affections"

33 upvotes | December 31, 2012 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

An Amazing Manosphere Blog You've Never Seen

20 upvotes | January 2, 2013 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

This is too painful to read...Somebody asked askwomen about The Solomon Group pdf..

21 upvotes | January 2, 2013 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

How Black America Has Predicted Our Future

28 upvotes | January 3, 2013 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

[Mod] 550 Subscribers in just over a month

6 upvotes | January 3, 2013 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

We've been lurking in the shadows, midst all the blue pill chatter, just waiting for a place to call our own.

The surprisingly level on which new comers here are already engaged in the red pill means that this movement, these theories, are already taking hold. The red pill subreddit is newest to the manosphere, but surely won't be the least.

Gentlemen, we are seriously on to something.

A request - throughout your normal routine, keep your eyes open for a potential red-piller, somebody who might be just on the brink, just discovering something new. Look out for guys who may have just gotten shitty relationship advice from a woman, or just got dumped yet again. Watch for these guys, and kindly direct them here.

There is a lot of resistance in the world, and I find it foolhardy to engage in pointless arguments with white knights and feminists. But you can easily extract people from terrible situations and introduce them to the red pill.

Mark my words, by the end of 2013, we will have at least 10,000 subscribers.

Friends, I am stepping down.

12 upvotes | January 4, 2013 | /r/TheRedPill | Link | Reddit Link

Thanks for the great month.. this place has really grown and I'm excited for its future. Unfortunately due to circumstances I won't be bringing up here I am officially stepping down as a moderator and will no longer take part in any way with this community.

But don't worry.. I leave you in the very capable hands of /u/redpillschool

I have been talking with him over the past few weeks and he is more than prepared to continue taking the community in the same direction.

So long, and thanks for a memorable experience.

Do PPD Debaters miss the point of personal philosophy?

9 upvotes | May 23, 2014 | /r/PurplePillDebate | Link | Reddit Link

Hi there, pk here. Been on a bit of a hiatus, only to come back and discover that reddit has been taken over by this new phenomenon and there are dozens of "red pill" subs. Quite an interesting turn of events!

This sub specifically interests me, because it seems to me many debaters here really are missing the point of personal philosophies.

I was just in a small debate about what women like/don't like, and something struck me. The person I was debating was certain that I simply didn't have any proof that my assertions were correct, or that adherence to their conclusions would lead to success, citing my lack of scientific approach or peer reviewed study.

What intrigued me about this was the irony of such a suggestion. In our personal lives, we all use heuristic reasoning and deduction to make personal decisions. All of us do it. Not because we're imperfect creatures or hate science, but because we would be immobilized and crippled by indecision if we didn't.

This is a common approach, to try things and adjust your approach when results aren't as intended.

The problem I'm seeing here is an outright dismissal of red pill conclusions by the opposition because the conclusions, understandings, and beliefs are not backed by peer reviewed studies and are clearly counter-cultural.

But the problem with disagreeing with our conclusions based on this is that you've got just as little proof for any decisions you make as the proof we do for ours! Treating a woman one way verses our way are both stabs in the dark with nothing more than some recent cultural endorsements.

Can we have a conversation debating the merits of certain ideas, instead of whether or not they have the proper scientific backing?

Is it possible that this sub (PPD) exists solely because the opposition does not understand this is the greater context of the entire /r/theredpill ?