

If a woman doesn't date short guys, that's okay because that's a preference. But if a man doesn't date obese girls, he's shallow.

The irony is short guys can't do anything to change it, fat people can improve their circumstance.

I see fat guys with thin, petite girls all the time.

Personality is actually everything. Most guys who want a girl to love them for his "personality" have a personality that's repulsive.

Speaking from personal experience, improving your attractiveness dramatically improves the level of girls you'll get IOIs from and the success rate of your approaches.

After that, frame is everything. If you don't have it, the approach won't go anywhere.

If you're unattractive (and I spent a while as a dumpy dude wearing poor fitting clothing with a beer gut), as long as you can deal with the reduced amount of IOIs/failed approaches, you can still bang plenty of hot chicks as long as your frame is strong.

Do I advocate being dumpy and flabby? Absolutely not. But I think it's worth underscoring just how important strong frame is.

I agree men are more hypergamous with a focus solely on looks whereas women are hypergamous both about looks, but also about other factors as well. My personal hypothesis is that physical attraction is what initial interests women, but after that other signs of high value are required for a woman to maintain interest. Guys will general maintain interest based on attraction alone, even if no other signs of a high quality woman are present.

I used hyperbole when I said "all the time". I meant "more than I expect", which would be zero. It's definitely non-zero.

My personal experience is I've scored pretty attractive lays or LTRs when I, frankly, did not find myself at my most attractive. My best theory is that other things are going on, or else that I found women with unusual tastes. (Maybe I'm rating myself too low. I think I'm a 7 or 8, and I think I was a 5 or 6 at my worst.)

Ironically, you can make yourself less fat by not being a fat fuck. The only way to make yourself taller is to use lift shoes or bone extension surgery.

Both of which are considered weaknesses by society...

Its way more painful and expensive to get your bones lengthened. To not be fat, just stop eating so much. They choose to be fat anyway

Yes, same thing for facial aesthetics, which appears to be so beloved by women. I really hate this, because too many women are attracted by characteristics that cannot be changed without substantial investment of money and substantial sacrifices, or just impossible to change.

This fucking world is unfair now. Can't wait until we start becoming Cyborgs, which will throw the fucking genetics out of the window.

[deleted] • 9 points • 21 April, 2014 06:01 PM

About facial aesthetics, are you saying you dont judge women based off their facial structure?

elevul • 3 points • 21 April, 2014 07:07 PM

I do, but it's not a main priority. Plus, as NihilisticAnarchist has said below, the value of a woman is 90% aesthetics, something that shouldn't be for a man, which is supposed to be judged for other characteristics.

Parrtech • 2 points • 21 April, 2014 09:48 PM

I think the point of this post is that everyone is entitled to their own preferences, but women have a tendency to get offended when men's preferences don't include them.

Like it's cool for shorty to only wanna get smashed by tall dudes. But it's also cool for dudes to not want to bang her chubby ass.

Duderson • 3 points • 22 April, 2014 12:04 AM

Right to judge? Morally speaking? Excuse me...hahahahaha.

macsenscam • 1 point • 21 April, 2014 11:12 PM

Not following your logic, also I think that there are plenty of seemingly non-physical elements to attraction. For me when a friend says "what a hottie" I usually think "ewww, robot woman!" I mean, I'm sure they're hot underneath all the make-up and crap but I just don't see it. Throw some dreadlocks and dirt in there and I'm all over it.

Stinkfist101 • 5 points • 21 April, 2014 08:01 PM

[deleted] • 19 points • 21 April, 2014 11:45 PM

Meh - I've been rolling 2 1/2" lifts for last 4 months to bump up from 5'9 to 5'11. Haven't been called out on it, even by a 5'11 plate who can clearly see the difference between dressed and barefoot. Of course, when I'm barefoot, shes just been fucked, so there is that.

[deleted] • 16 points • 22 April, 2014 04:30 AM

Im 5'8 but could never wear lifts. Fuck that noise dude, be happy and accept who you are. That doesnt mean not be the best person you can be, but lifts just scream insecurity.

[deleted] • 11 points • 22 April, 2014 10:47 AM

Well that's not really fair. Self-confidence doesn't change shit about the fact that some traits are just more preferred in society than others. Are women insecure who wear makeup to make it seem like they have better skin/facial features than they actually do or are they just playing a card they have in their hands?

[deleted] • 6 points • 22 April, 2014 08:06 AM

Not sure where you got insecure from - its like wearing a tailored shirt or a dress watch - An article of clothing that makes you look better.

Kudo's if your game is tight enough you can pull 9's and 10's in gym shorts.

[deleted] • 2 points • 22 April, 2014 03:53 AM

In-shoe heel lifts - rather than wearing a heeled shoe (which is obvious), I use shoe inserts... I wear boots these days (leather and basketball) to fit them in, but an easy way to buff your appearance without trying.

If cost is your concern, you might want to rethink - You'll need bigger shoes to fit the volume of the lifts plus your foot in them.

IWantToBeNormal • 3 points • 22 April, 2014 03:53 AM

Both of which also costs money and counts just as much of a status symbol as special shoes or surgery! If a man will spend money on a nice car or a house or a pair of lift shoes or surgery that done did make that there small people bigger, he'll throw money to a woman so she doesn't have to earn her own living. Don't underestimate the mind of a woman.

[deleted] • 40 points • 21 April, 2014 08:21 PM

I kinda went dark triad and put:

"I am not here to pick up for your fuck-ups because you messed around and had children at a young age and want financial support (I refuse to be sucked into that bullshit "raising a child that isn't mine" vortex)."

All incoming messages have ceased since then.

Definitely new. He sounds angry.

[deleted] • 16 points • 21 April, 2014 09:50 PM

Not angry, just stern. The number of fat single moms that roll the same routine gets annoying.

I had originally had: I don't date single moms.

The feminist would then flood my inbox. Appeal to cause and effect by giving reason, and the inner hamster has reason to take an ideal.

iKill_eu • 24 points • 21 April, 2014 11:57 PM

The problem is that it won't work.

Going full angry straight talk on women doesn't work. It shows desperation, it shows that you can't communicate through subtext, and it lets them hamster it away as you just being "some mad guy". In other words, you'll kill attraction even with non-single moms.

It needs to be more subtle rejection to pierce the hamster's body armor.

[deleted] • 5 points • 22 April, 2014 12:01 AM

What would be a great example of a subtle rejection?

[deleted] • 46 points • 22 April, 2014 12:06 AM

"I'm a professional and educated man. I have waited to start a family until I know I can raise children without worrying about the financial details. I prefer women whom also make stability a priority in their life before settling down."

[deleted] • 20 points • 22 April, 2014 12:10 AM*

I'd be interested to see how people could modify this to make it more RP.

I went light on the details.

I chose a way to express "waiting to start a family" as a personal choice.

I did mention "without worrying about the financial details", which I think could open one up to criticism. (You don't have good money NOW!?). I think one could trim the 'financial' part of this statement as well to make it a bit more ambiguous.

But it could also work in your benefit...who knows.

I originally mentioned "career stability", but I took out 'career' and mentioned just stability. This could imply stability of anything, not just job. But someone who knows how to handle being in a relationship, someone whom isn't going out to party every weekend and getting hammered in night clubs.

Essentially, you put it out there that you're not willing to take shit and you want a woman ready to enter an adult relationship.

Using the word 'prefer' rather than 'require' makes you a bit more open. "Require" is such a strong word, and I've found many women don't like strong words geared their way. It makes you sound bossy. However, you can achieve the same effect by simply stating its a preference. Nobody's going to get pissed off at you over a "preference", but they'll scream at you if you make it a "requirement".

"I don't date fat girls" becomes "I work out a few times per week. I would love a lady who can join me at the gym or go out on weekend adventures."

[deleted] • 4 points • 22 April, 2014 06:24 AM

TIL eHarmony only matches women with taller men, because of complaints from women matched with shorter men. Source.

[deleted] • 7 points • 22 April, 2014 06:09 AM

Wow, I wonder if they inform their new male clients of this little tidbit. Doesn't it seem a bit like.... fraud?

brontosaurus-rex • 2 points • 22 April, 2014 02:23 PM

How is it fraud? You think you're getting the results you searched for, but some were filtered out unbeknownst to you? Could also be referred to as a default setting to accommodate 80% (80/20) of users. Definitely discrimination against short folks at least. Found this blog entry on the eHarmony dating advice section - why women prefer taller men.

[deleted] • 1 point • 22 April, 2014 10:50 PM

In fact I misread the Wikipedia article, for some reason (I blame the demon brandy) I read it as only matching women with men who are on the taller end of the spectrum of male height, not only matching women with men taller than the woman being matched individually. Makes a lot more sense that way, of course. As long as the company lets it be known that is what will actually be happening, then there's no deception.

As for the discrimination, as long as I knew about it and agreed to it, I might even prefer it myself. It's a waste of time to message women who aren't at least the same height or shorter than me, the vast majority of the time.

So, I'd want to know that the filtering was occurring, but even so, I might embrace it as making my own search easier. In real life I've dated lots of taller women, but in real life attraction can be established in so many other ways, and the girl has a chance to get over it, where it seems that online we are only ever a collection of numbers and canned traits, no one gets the gestalt.

If she was actually good at staying warm, those fat rolls would be fuel for her metabolism.

I'd say most RP knowledge is based around how women think, this post is relevant IMO and is a great example of the level of hypocrisy that you're sometimes going to have to deal with in the dating game.

EDIT: You're absolutely right though. What people should be taking away from this is that everyone has their preferences so stop getting down on yourself because you can't be the perfect guy and just try to become the best version of yourself possible.

Stuff like this hits the red pill a lot sense there are a good number of guys here that arent getting laid and at least partially blame their height.

A lot of bitter shorties and a lot of guys that got cheated on because they got comfortable in a relationship and got fat/disgusting.

torrentialtomato • 28 points • 21 April, 2014 03:36 PM

Fat women (scale: 5) only willing to date 8s: Shocker, yet again.

Aerobus • 40 points • 21 April, 2014 02:43 PM

K. Let's be unreasonable like them. They say 6 ft and above only, which is like what, the top 10 percentile?

Nothing more than 110lbs.

TH0UGHTP0LICE • 62 points • 21 April, 2014 02:56 PM

Nothing more than 110 pounds, BUT must also have D cups and a badonk-a-donk

Gotta keep it as real as their "Must be a 6 foot tall millionaire underwear model who wants fat, uneducated single moms"

Naw, I think it's to be as shamelessly arrogant & narcissistic as they are.

K3R3G3 • 24 points • 21 April, 2014 02:48 PM

Sounds good to me. I filled out an online personal ad once...plenty of women said stuff like "I'm only looking for an Asian guy", "Must be over 6 feet tall", "I only like really athletic guys", etc. They gave their preferences so I gave mine. Being not even as selective as those examples, my ad ended with "Non-fat, non-black". The number of angry messages I got from overweight black women was absurd.

So sorry for knowing who I'm attracted to! Please, email me so I can inevitably ask for a photo then reject you when I see it! That's the best way! /s

Just trying to avoid wasting my time and theirs.

Average height in the US is about 5'9 1/2, but I couldn't find reliable data about the height distribution. In Germany average height is 5'10", but about 43% are 6ft+ tall, so the number is likely much bigger than 10% for US citizens. source

boydeer • 8 points • 21 April, 2014 04:41 PM standard deviation appears to be around 2.7 inches, which means 6'1" and above would be about 15% of the population.

ireallyamnothere • 16 points • 21 April, 2014 05:20 PM [recovered]

I've dated many taller girls. Mostly taller girls. I've noticed that the tall preference is usually a shit test and a really difficult one to overcome, but usually a shit test nonetheless. Display other alpha traits and they won't care about height. My time as a bass player in a band proved me that. I heard "I don't normally go for short guys..." so many times but the fact of the matter is they just wanted a guy with some serious social proof. I just wish I wasn't a blue-pill retard back then because I squandered some serious opportunities back then.

The catch is that they don't want other people to know they've hooked up with a shorter guy unless he has something they can brag about. They won't date us but a hook-up is relatively easy to arrange. They wouldn't want to admit to their friends they got with us.

I'm fine with that.

If there's one thing that becomes super apparent after taking the red pill, it's that short men are stuck playing the game on hard mode no matter how much they raise their SMV. I ain't saying short men can't get laid, but fuck women are just flat out racist if they ignore short men completely like that. It's one thing to have a preference for someone your own height, but the way you hear the typical woman talk about the subject is just vicious.

I feel for the short men who have to put up with that extra layer of female entitlement. You just got to look at it as another shit test. A shit test they fail because you don't need to waste your time trying to attract women with hang ups that ignorant. If they can't get past something like height, they aren't balanced enough to be worth more than pump and dumpy anyway. Just next them and find the woman who isn't going to dare to give you shit about it because they are good people that aren't so insecure that it bothers them what other people think of their love lives.

Like when you get an older woman walking hand in hand with a 23 year old stud. Or sometimes even a white guy with an Asian chick.

[deleted] • 19 points • 21 April, 2014 03:09 PM

NO_LAH_WHERE_GOT • 10 points • 21 April, 2014 04:31 PM

We live in a cruel, unfair world. It can be entertaining to expose bullshit like this, but I think it's superior to just acknowledge that hypocrisy and double-standards are pervasive and we're not going to escape them. Once you acknowledge it, you can navigate it and seek the outcomes that you really want.

A bunch of guys cheering at the exposé... why? Are any of us individually better for it? Not really.

There's more to life than pointing out the bullshit of small-minded people. It can be fun, I guess, but it's easy to make it a habit- and that habit distracts you from actually creating value for yourself and others.

[deleted] • 3 points • 21 April, 2014 08:42 PM

I went to Tallmenshoes.com. I convinced my girl to ditch high heels as ugly and painful without telling her I wore Tallmenshoes. My sister blew out her knees with them. Then I ditched the shoes for Doc Martins and a couple of pairs of socks which give 1.5 inches.

LegalPusher • 2 points • 21 April, 2014 10:08 PM

How could anyone take life advice from a being that rejects all men below a certain height (shorter than them in 4" heels), even if he is perfect in all other areas. THAT IS INSANE. If I met the perfect woman with one minor and normal (not freakish) physical trait like smaller breasts... I'm all over that.

I'm 5'4 and in my late 40's. My current girlfriend is 5'11 and in her early 30s. I find height irrelevant. Physical condition, and confidence, make all the difference.

[deleted] • 5 points • 21 April, 2014 03:43 PM

The best part is, fat can be fixed, short can't. Not being attracted to someone who can't make themselves attractive? Sure. Not being attracted to someone who refuses to make themselves attractive? What a jerk.

Purpledrank • 4 points • 21 April, 2014 04:42 PM

What's funny is that it is more insulting personally to them to be called fat than it is for someone to be called short. For someone who is short they just accept that, there is no personal/internal shame in that. But for someone who is fat, not only are you telling them they are something bad, but that it is their fault. You are tapping into a reservoir of personal shame.

Lastly, many women choose to be fat. Believe it or not, that is there way of opting out of social pressure to look good and pressure of being a successful woman. They are shielded from being challenged or judged as a real person, so they chose to comfortably remain as a fat person. The only one thing that they can be judge for at this point is why are they choosing to be fat. And defending their fat life style is the one thing they will stand up for personally.

We_Are_Legion • 8 points • 21 April, 2014 04:07 PM*

Females are hyper-competitive with other females too. It doesn't matter if men are present. They'll behave more feminine and less bitchy when they're around, sure but whether they dress up or not is not entirely dependent on them.

They just have an instinct to be more desirable than the bitch across the floor. I think its part of the reason men aren't as affected by portrayals of desirable men in marketing and media and women are. Because they're always in an imaginary competition with the model on the billboard.

[deleted] • 2 points • 21 April, 2014 05:38 PM

Does anyone actually think men are shallow for not dating fat chicks? I think 95% of people agree that sexual attraction is critical to a relationship.

rztzz • 2 points • 22 April, 2014 05:05 AM

The difference being that men grow up constantly hearing women openly state their preferences --tall, athletic, or skinny, etc but short guys are disgusting etc - Men quickly learn that they cannot express their true preferences - fit, busty, Etc are all sort of taboo to openly state in front of women who aren't those qualities.

ImALoneWolfBaby • 1 point • 22 April, 2014 05:38 AM

I find this hilarious in how sadly true it reflects the views of so many women in society, especially the younger generations. I am not the best looking by far, but I do try very hard to keep a healthy body. Yet these women with this mindset expect prince charming to come along right out of Hollywood as they shove their face with food and think they're hot shit. If I work on myself as a human being, I at the very least deserve the same. My favourite part is when they whip out the "facts" how people are born fat and its hard to lose weight. Who said life wasn't suppose to be hard? Do I or the many many many other human beings look like we enjoy kicking the shit out of ourselves to be healthy?

the concept behind their mindset is so backwards.

[deleted] • 1 point • 22 April, 2014 05:54 AM

Setting preferences based on things you can't change is akin to racism: I don't date short guys - this is absolutely the same as saying you don't date black guys, because those are the things you can't change.

At the same time, weight is something we can and must control. If a chick is fat, it's most likely because she eats consumes more calories than she spends. Height, on the other hand, is not something that depends on your actions.

In other words, this is hypocrisy at its best/worst.

[deleted] • 1 point • 22 April, 2014 07:36 AM

[deleted] • 1 point • 22 April, 2014 09:52 AM

What is worse is that being obese is a choice, and speaks to that persons mentality and personality, there's MORE of a reason not to be attracted to an obese person than a short person because being short isn't something you can control, where as your health is.

sprookjesridder • 1 point • 23 April, 2014 07:50 AM

She doesn't mean what she says. If a short alpha with a great body and nice ride comes along, she would be on her knees, not on her heels, probably saying something like "i never done this before, you're making me crazy". I don't want to date a woman who lacks physical intelligence. It is not just the appearance, it has to do with my expectations of her mindset and her hobbies.

Felix____ • 1 point • 20 May, 2014 10:51 PM

There's nothing wrong with not being attracted to someone who is short. and there's nothing wrong with not being attracted to someone who is overweight.

raouldukeesq • -2 points • 21 April, 2014 05:34 PM

This is a classic strawman argument. I have never heard anyone call anyone shallow because they do not want to date an obese person. Never. And if someone did make that argument no one would go along with it.

TerryYockey • 11 points • 21 April, 2014 05:42 PM

Obviously, you've never visited /r/OkCupid.

raouldukeesq • 1 point • 26 April, 2014 12:22 AM

As a matter of fact, I have never visited Okcupid. I looked for 20 minutes. That I cannot get back mind you and found no examples.

Mengs87 • 1 point • 21 April, 2014 05:07 PM

Nope it doesn't belong in red pill. Red Pill is about overcoming those barriers and getting the girl's inner hamster to work for you - "yeah, he's a little short BUT he's buff/rich/hot/high SMV"

[deleted] • 1 point • 21 April, 2014 05:30 PM

This is a moot argument due to the fact that sexual preference and the search for a partner is the very definition of discrimination at its core and every human is guilty of it.

So crying about someones discriminatory behavior while choosing a mate is pretty much a giant waste of time. I would personally rate the act of telling someone who that person should be attracted to as being one of the most worthless acts in human history.

[deleted] • 1 point • 22 April, 2014 06:13 AM

No way. Anyone who discriminates should go to prison.

OK, thanks for stating the obvious but its weakness to bitch and moan about that kind of petty shit.

It isn't weakness to point out another persons hypocrisy.

The guy who runs okcupid shared a pretty interesting statistic. White women are the least likely group to date outside their race. ANY OTHER GROUP... That means that white guys, black women, etc., are more likely to date outside their race than white women.

I have a problem seeing how that's not racist. AFAIC, if that stat is representative, white women are the most racist group in America. How does that rationale play out? "I simply don't prefer niggers, gooks or sand monkeys. Just a preference... I prefer to engage in race control with my vagina. No way I'm bringing that shit home to my family. Tee hee!"

I wonder how many of them identify as feminists. What does feminism say about racism via race preferring? Shouldn't it be opposed? You know, because inequality sucks?

[deleted] • 5 points • 22 April, 2014 07:35 AM

A core tenant of feminism is that nothing women do can be opposed.

RedFlagsAreGood • 1 point • 22 April, 2014 11:22 AM

There was a survey done on /r/OkCupid about dating preferences. The numbers came out almost identical to okcupid's stats. You'd think it would have been different given that redditors are more liberal than the general population.

[deleted] • 1 point • 22 April, 2014 01:48 PM

Most white women don't want Asian men because of the stereotypes. Sand monkeys (lol) have the terrorist thing going on and not too much SMV. When a white girl fucks a black guy she usually isn't going to look for that online she'll probably just go to the club or a party for that if she's looking for a one night stand.

modawg • -1 points • 23 April, 2014 12:10 AM

Yeah. Those justifications are all racist.

The general rule is that the face of the white woman is the new face of racism. No longer the skinny bald white guy with a SS or swastika tattoo on his hands. It's your average bouncy temperamental vapid white girl.

[deleted] • 1 point • 23 April, 2014 12:20 AM

To be fair, they're allowed to have their preferences. You can't force anyone to fuck someone. I just don't like it when they get mad when men have their own preferences as well (like not wanting to wife up sluts).

modawg • 0 points • 23 April, 2014 02:02 AM

Yes. It is perfectly legal to be base your dating preferences on race. No one can force another person to fuck anyone. The point is that almost every other group has grown more tolerant except for white women.

Look, brah, we could argue about this until the cows come home but there's a pretty interesting documentary on Netflix called Slanted Screen that sorta makes the argument that race based romantic discrimination by white women against Asian men was artificially constructed and reinforced. You should watch it before you nonchalantly dismiss how insidious this type of discrimination is.

[deleted] • 2 points • 23 April, 2014 03:45 AM

I agree that the portrayal of Asian men in the Western media is pretty messed up. I also agree that women (of all races) allow the media to shape their desires much more so than men. However, I don't think women are obligated to date outside their race if they don't want to. The majority of women in every race end up pairing up with their own (even Asian women in America).

modawg • -1 points • 23 April, 2014 05:17 AM

No one is saying that anyone is obligated to do anything. The KKK isn't obligated to use their right of free speech to not say positive things about minorities. It's just that when they do, it's racist. Perfectly fine. Perfectly legal. Just happens to be racist. I'm not saying they should be baked in ovens and then be given an acid bath. Just like I'm for freedom of speech I'm for the freedom to date. I'll argue for a white woman's right to say "fuck you nigger. I'm not going to let your nigger dick anywhere near me you fucking nigger piece of shit." I'm just going to acknowledge that it's racist. That's just part of swallowing the red pill. Acknowledging the not so obvious bullshit that exists.

[deleted] • 2 points • 23 April, 2014 05:32 AM*

A woman having racial preferences when it comes to her own sex life is not racist bro. People aren't entirely in control of what they are sexually attracted to. It's biology. Some people are just more inclined to date within their race than others naturally. You sound pretty blue pill and pretty bitter to be honest. If you're a black dude and you're following red pill ideology then you shouldn't have a problem fucking white sluts as long as you don't live in Texas or something. Plenty of black guys claim to be spearing white chicks with their "BBC" so if you aren't able to do the same I would say it's your problem to fix.

modawg • 1 point • 23 April, 2014 05:50 AM

I feel like I'm running in beach sand by arguing something so basic. Treating someone adversely different due to their race is racism. There's ABSOLUTELY nothing biological about it. To be honest, I think you sound like a white guy satisfied with the racist predisposition of white women because it might help your odds with white women. Perhaps we're both wrong. Maybe we should just agree to disagree.

[deleted] • 2 points • 23 April, 2014 06:16 AM

No. You sound like an imbecile who can't come to grips with the brutal nature of reality. You are not entitled to being sexually attractive to every white woman on Earth. Some of them are going to reject you for being a black man, some of them are going to ACCEPT you for being a black man. I've seen both happen. That's life. You think that every white woman should be required to give black men a chance, that's bullshit and it makes you sound like an entitled baby. If they are happy dating white men and aren't comfortable going outside their ethnic group then that's their decision. You want every white woman to have sampled black, asian, and every other kind of dick out there before making a decision on what they want. That's ridiculous. The saying "opposites attract" doesn't actually add up because in reality most stick with their own. This doesn't just apply to white women either since it occurs across all racial and ethnic groups.

[deleted] • -1 points • 21 April, 2014 07:48 PM

not just buying a pocket pussy to never talk to women again

[deleted] • 0 points • 21 April, 2014 08:41 PM

Thankfully for me, it's genetically impossible (high metabolism) for me to get fat, and physically impossible (due to me only having 20% left of a stomach from invasive adenocarcinoma surgery in my stomach.)

If that makes it to where I'm "incapable of empathy for fatties" then so be it, I wouldn't fuck one/date one to save my life. Call me shallow, it just let's me know I have standards.

This is an anecdotal story from one woman - how is that applicable to women as a whole? She's a shallow idiot, move on.

Hahah. Holy fuck though that guy was beta agreeing and exaggerating everything she said like a little dog who wants his bond. One of my best mates who gets more girls than anyone else I know is 5'7" and he's gotten with 5'10"+ girls before. Height doesn't matter if you have decent facial aesthetics and game. I don't know if the stupid woman or the beta male annoys me more here. His game is shit.
