

Arguing with a feminist. Don't. You don't get paid for it.

August 12, 2019 | 741 upvotes | by Reformed65

---

Woman: I believe in the wage gap issue. Some yoyo: But men work longer hours, put in more effort than women and more likely to do the more risky aspects of the job. Woman: Oh, I didn't know that. Thank you for this information. I will reconsider my stance on the wage gap issue.

Never. Happened. Stop arguing with feminists, feminism- as among other ideologies- is the new organised religion. You getting paid to tell women this because it boost your view count is a different story, but most of you don't get $$$ for this.

If a woman says she's a feminist, and that she believes in concepts of feminism- there is no point in telling her a different point of view. Even a backhanded comment such as "Oh I think feminism has reached its peak" is just asking for it. A chick says she's a feminist, you acknowledge it with a nod or "Cool." and that's it.

This is really common with young men who are just starting out in life and are developing their views on life. A key point to remember is that feminism is a natural ideology for women (just as the Muslim or Jew believing that consumption of pork is forbidden) and that women take arguments to their claims personally.

Update 14/08/2019: Thank you all for your comments.

My final point, blue-haired overweight women are not the ones pulling the strings, it's the elites/corporations. For instance, we went from "Stay in your place, peasant! You are disobeying the will of God by moving about the social order we have!" to "Single motherhood, which creates soyboys who don't threaten us big people, is a very great family type that we need to encourage!"

---

Archived from theredarchive.com

---

Comments

---

AutoModerator[M] [score hidden] 12 August, 2019 11:54 AM stickied comment

Why are we quarantined? The admin don't want you to know.

Register on our backup site: <https://www.trp.red> and reserve your reddit name today.

I am a bot, and this action was performed automatically. Please contact the moderators of this subreddit if you have any questions or concerns.

ErectileDistention • 172 points • 12 August, 2019 01:23 PM

This good advise if you want to get laid, but in general this way of thinking is the reason feminism has gotten out of hand. Nobody sane wants the trouble debating brings, which leads to a free reign of terror for feminists, and it's all mens fault for letting it get to this point.

raggot_the_legendary • 36 points • 12 August, 2019 04:02 PM

True. People don't see how important the argument is even if you appear not to win it. Your words will echo in your opponents mind for a long time and have their way through the barriers more often than you will ever know.

halfback910 • 21 points • 13 August, 2019 12:52 AM

The point of a debate is largely also to convince the audience; not the entrenched opposition.

Sumsar01 • 24 points • 12 August, 2019 07:40 PM

Femenism is a shit test agree and amplify. Force her to buy the next round or agree with her and tell her how you are a femenist to and give her some story about how she should be your wage slave.

totallymanlytears • 1 point • 15 August, 2019 04:01 PM

This, I did this almost every date in college (very liberal place.) Girl I saw for longer than most, and became friends with, said I owed her 100's of dollars; I laughed and said I know.

i-am-the-prize • 1 point • 15 August, 2019 06:12 PM

I dated a women's studies + psychology double major at an IV league school - she was hot, smart, and obviously a bit crazy.

when we'd "have spirited discussions" I would insist she prove her power to me by picking up that meal's bill and then being on top when we'd fuck later, even tho i said it many times, it would stop the table-talk for a moment while she pictured us fucking - even on top, i'm the one inside her, I'm the penetrating force.... so her position in the end wasn't true power. And of course, half the time I'd flip her and finish from the top to remind her: "you like it when I fuck you like this, yes?" (moans of yes yes) ....ah, college...

empatheticapathetic • 10 points • 12 August, 2019 03:27 PM

The results of their ideology is all that's left for them.

Marsupian • 23 points • 12 August, 2019 06:34 PM

Argueing isn't the solution. If a child tells you it deserves more candy you don't argue. You laugh.

Sadly most people in positions of power have collectively failed that shit test a long time ago.

adam-l • 3 points • 16 August, 2019 10:46 AM

There is one case where arguing with a feminist has merit: this is when other people, that are on the margins, view the discussion, and you want to highlight the absurdity of the feminist. You are not arguing to change the feminist, you are arguing to make things clear for the others.

redmotive • 7 points • 13 August, 2019 12:02 AM

Feminism is just one of a few cultural Marxist tools used to corrupt Western civilisation from the inside-out. Simply blaming men doesn't address the true culprits.

xdpthrowaway9003x • -6 points • 13 August, 2019 06:39 PM

"cultural marxist" is a neo-nazi conspiracy theory that refers to anything white supremacists don't like.

redmotive • 13 points • 13 August, 2019 10:48 PM

Incorrect. Cultural Marxism, with ideals such as political correctness, and it's intention to subvert Western Civilisation/culture is a well documented reality with roots in the Frankfurt school. You can research people such as Max Horkheimer and I can give you some videos to watch if that's more up your alley.

xdpthrowaway9003x • -1 points • 14 August, 2019 12:52 AM

I'm well-versed on the topic. It's a neo-nazi conspiracy theory used to blanket label anything white supremacists do not like.

"Political correctness" itself is also a buzzword, and in general if you have to rely on buzzwords to define something you're only proving my point.

redmotive • 7 points • 14 August, 2019 01:55 AM

You're evidently not well-versed as it's not a conspiracy theory; just a conspiracy. And by no means do I need to rely on buzzwords (in short political correctness is the veil used to censor and govern speech, thought and political dissent under the guise of goodwill) as you so ironically do with terms such as "neo-nazi" and "white supremacists" - at this point I'm not sure whether you're trolling or serious. If the latter then I'll send a couple of you tube videos your way as independent research doesn't appear to be your strong suit. They will serve as a starting point to hopefully instigate further research on your end.

xdpthrowaway9003x • 1 point • 15 August, 2019 12:35 AM

I'm well-versed on the topic. It's a neo-nazi conspiracy theory used to blanket label anything white supremacists do not like. It's a conspiracy theory because there is no grand conspiracy. There is no factual basis in it besides far-right extremists taking it and co-opting it that way to refer things they dislike.

I'm not sure how else to explain this to you. If independent research was your suit you wouldn't be linking me agenda pushing Youtube videos. Anyone who watches stuff like "How PC was created to Destroy Western Civilization and Christianity" is grandma-on-Facebook tier kook who should not be taken seriously.

redmotive • 2 points • 18 August, 2019 06:34 PM

If you're not willing to entertain an idea without accepting it then by all means you are wasting everyone's time, including your own. You won't get a better perspective unless you're willing to read or watch the content from those that see different from your own.

Darth_Toenail • 1 point • 14 August, 2019 02:06 AM

Doubleplus goodthink, comrade.

xdpthrowaway9003x • 1 point • 15 August, 2019 12:32 AM

Nice argument, gesellschafter.

xdpthrowaway9003x • -4 points • 14 August, 2019 12:51 AM

"cultural marxist" is a neo-nazi conspiracy theory that refers to anything white supremacists don't like.

failingtheturingtest • 3 points • 12 August, 2019 07:43 PM

Arguing with feminists won't solve any of this. It's like saying that arguing with Isis will solve terrorism. It's not the extremists you need to get through to, and just arguing fact is never going to prevent the emotional manipulation they affect on others.

Imperator_Red • 4 points • 13 August, 2019 12:52 AM

This good advise if you want to get laid, but in general this way of thinking is the reason feminism has gotten out of hand.

That's absurd. The reason feminism has gotten out of hand is because people vote their interests (minus brainwashed middle class white males), and feminism serves women's interests. The solution is to take away their vote.

Missionfortruth • 233 points • 12 August, 2019 12:18 PM

Man... its arguing with women that's the problem. Hate to say it but its true. Of course a small minority can think like a man but it's a small minority.

p3n1x • 63 points • 12 August, 2019 02:16 PM

Wanting to 'argue' with any woman should be a red flag for the self.

Amused mastery does not argue. You come up with a positive way to redirect the conversation.

It is hard to admit the truth sometimes, but wanting/willfully allowing yourself to argue her views, is the 'truth' that you as a man have lost attraction.

Do you want to have sex with 'cheerfull dirty girl'? Or bang 'annoying grumpy bitch'?

Whopper_Jr • 47 points • 12 August, 2019 02:24 PM

Arguing with a woman is abandoning your frame and entering hers. Doubly stupid. Amused mastery is good, being uninterested and changing the subject is good, ignoring her and remaining aloof is good.

Engaging is bad

datingappro • 18 points • 12 August, 2019 09:11 PM

Not only that it makes you look bad. You can be absolutely 100% right but if you come off as an

MRA type you will lose big social points in most circles

Whopper_Jr • 6 points • 13 August, 2019 03:36 AM

An optional play for engaging the topic: after doing things that are decidedly not feminist, I tell girls "I'm a feminist" in a completely deadpan manner. Stare off feigning disinterest as you say it and then hit em with the smirking side-eye. Turns a switch boys. Usually they have that slightly agape 'I should be offended but I'm a little turned on' look, or they will challenge which is easily swatted away with another acerbic jab and waggish grin. They want to argue because GoGrrl social conditioning wants them to, but you're laughing so they short circuit. Women are so sick of BP men earnestly telling them that they're feminists (gag) that they crave a guy who will make fun of feminism in a subtle way. Can't be too direct or they will snap out of rapport and Defensive Debate Bitch springs into action. Moment ruined. You will never win an actual debate with a woman about feminism—even if you win, you lose.

TheRedPillRipper • 19 points • 12 August, 2019 08:36 PM

Woman: I believe in the wage gap issue.

My current is a feminist. When posed this issue my retort was; give me an example of ANY organisation that pays women less than men, based on gender. She couldn't.

I never argue with the current; I hit her with facts and she has the good sense to appreciate it. The trick is to frame it objectively. So she can't claim any emotional leverage. Then if she's too vacuous to accept fact; leave her on read.

Godspeed and good luck!

mega_kook • 6 points • 13 August, 2019 01:14 AM

This makes sense, but I still wouldn't bother unless I know they're cool and willing to listen. Most of the time it is best to not engage at all I would say.

throwwayhubu • 13 points • 12 August, 2019 04:11 PM

Great comment, this applies to life in general not just women. Be playfull, funny, dont take things too serious, while being an expert at everything you do. Arguing is a waste of time, either A or B gets his will or some kind of draw, but you allready know that your will shall be done so why waste time arguing? When you get proficient enough in life to adopt amused mastery, you will be high fiving trash that steps up in a club, asking the road rager if he prefers his pasta al dente and telling your girl/s that they look really cute when they get angry.

datingappro • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 09:11 PM

if its a friend and its one of those nights you want to talk politics then by all means do it, but it wont help you get laid.

Agree 9 times out of 10 amused mastery works wonders.

waeqTatch • 2 points • 14 August, 2019 04:55 AM

I dont give a literal fucking shit about getting laid. Im putting a shit eating bitch in her place, and then jacking off over it. Thats it umizumiz • 79 points • 12 August, 2019 12:27 PM

Can "appear" to think like men.

Unicorn, oneitis, etc. is what happens when we believe we've found "one of the few" who can relate.

Spez: for example, a recent plate was phenomenally fun and engaging to be with. Once she "secured" the dick, it was all gone. I learnt a lesson. The ones who seem to want relationships the least are the ones who want relationships the most, they want to convince they're "perfect" for you(the rp man). The ones who seem to want relationships the most are the ones who are trying to convince you they are "good", they only want the dick(mostly).

redmotive • 15 points • 13 August, 2019 12:00 AM

Wait...are you saying women and men think on fundamentally different terms on a variety of topics due to their biological makeup?

Wrong. We're exactly the same and the only difference is that one has a peepee and one has a woowoo. Stating otherwise is bigoted and sexist.

mega_kook • 11 points • 13 August, 2019 01:15 AM

STILL WRONG! A man can turn into a woman and vice versa like magic! /S

redmotive • 12 points • 13 August, 2019 02:31 AM

FUCK! I need to check my privilege.

Korrangar • 5 points • 14 August, 2019 10:34 PM

It's called a front hole you bigot

SilkTouchm • 7 points • 13 August, 2019 12:11 AM

Arguing itself is the problem. Very few people are willing to change their view point, even when they're presented with facts.

Ueberlegenheit • 3 points • 12 August, 2019 09:21 PM

Arguing in general is the problem. You almost never benefit from arguing.

Missionfortruth • 1 point • 12 August, 2019 09:59 PM

Depends how you define arguing

VegiXTV • 67 points • 12 August, 2019 01:18 PM

I don't need to get paid for it. It's sport. I do it for fun.

shaggyctes88 • 5 points • 13 August, 2019 02:37 PM

As long as you don't get mad

VegiXTV • 10 points • 13 August, 2019 03:51 PM

Never. It's entertainment watching them rage.

andyturbo2000 1 points 12 August, 2019 02:50 PM* [recovered]

Women can't argue about feminism the same way a man can argue about he patriarchy. Women cannot help but take it personally. Their emotions will not allow them to discuss both sides of the coin dispassionately. You only have to look at the comments on YouTube by women on videos of Red Pill info.

Typically, an exchange goes something like this:

RP: "so as you can see, 70% of divorce cases are instigated by women"

Women commentator: "you bald bastard, you only say that because you're not getting laid."

RP: "it's true and nine out of ten men in prison come from a single-mother household".

Women commentator: "did your wife leave you you sad cunt?"

degeneratelunatic • 7 points • 13 August, 2019 06:55 PM

It's not just women who do this either.

I've seen plenty of men act in this way, too. And many times it doesn't even matter what ideology they subscribe to; the minute you bring up a statistic or fact that challenges their world view even to the slightest degree they get defensive to the extreme and start slinging ad hominem and straw man attacks like a screaming toddler throwing his toys because he couldn't eat ice cream for dinner. Grown. Ass. Men.

I think the mass use and consumption of social media has a lot to do with it, and as a result both men and women have lost their ability to hold civil conversations about difficult and multifaceted topics, instead dumbing it down to cheap sloganisms and soundbytes they take as gospel because the latter doesn't take any intellectual effort whatsoever.

It's quite sad to see people act in this way, but at the same time there's no way to force people to better themselves emotionally and intellectually if they can't objectively look in the mirror. It's a waste of time.

Fakercel • 1 point • 15 August, 2019 09:50 AM

People who only expose themselves to a specific set of views, take any argument or criticism personally because they identify themselves with those ideas.

It's really frustrating when people look at arguments emotionally and can't dissociate themselves with their arguments and ideas.

Not worth doing if you can avoid it tbh.

BareMinimumReddit 1 points 12 August, 2019 01:45 PM [recovered]

I'll one up on that

48 Laws of Power:

Win Through Your Actions - Never Through Argument

DonaldShoupOfficial • 42 points • 12 August, 2019 03:39 PM*

Yes, exactly, status/coolness first.

You can also argue orthogonally.

Feminist: "Wage gap blah blah blah."

Reasonable human: "Could there be any other explanation?"

Feminist: "No."

Reasonable Human: "I wonder. Maybe that's something to be considered." Walks away.

redpill77 • 9 points • 12 August, 2019 10:31 PM

Yes, a gentle reminder for people to actually think critically. Even if it's only effective 2% of the time, it's something.

SKRedPill • 11 points • 12 August, 2019 02:43 PM

But when you do, do be ready for the reality of a main event. It's a tidal wave.

datingapppro • 5 points • 12 August, 2019 09:18 PM

Disagree. Debating with friends is fantastic mental exercise, as long as people can handle the discussion.

OSaraiva • 1 point • 12 August, 2019 07:28 PM

So true once you really adopt it. Works with men as well, as stated.

johncillo • 38 points • 12 August, 2019 01:27 PM

Totally with you on this. This happened to me a few weeks ago.

Feminist: "I believe men do not resolve anything, they rely too much on their moms and women in their life to resolve things "

Me: I might need to differ with you there. What about Elon Musk, Tesla, Newton?

Feminist: "What do you know about this if you are a man "

Everyone on the table including her friends looked at her like "wtf dude".

Feminist (realizing what a motherfucking sexist comment that was) : okay, it might be true what you're saying, it could be generational...bla bla bla

Not pleasant experience for anyone. Never again.

largepaycheckaddict • 16 points • 12 August, 2019 01:59 PM

Still. There's every day normal guys who hold a sense of responsibility and aren't overgrown man boys. The overgrown man boy problem actually became more prevalent as society became more feminist and basic male duties that were the common standard and expected of men became "toxic".

Greaterbird • 12 points • 12 August, 2019 04:23 PM

Oops! Accidentally showed her biases too much! Better recant!

NigerianChad • 4 points • 13 August, 2019 04:50 AM

This is a very good example. Literally no one benefits. The man already knows he's right and can prove it. The woman doesn't care if she's right because she feels right. Dunking on her makes her feel bad which automatically makes him wrong. And bystanders/social groups will see it as brutish and malevolent as if he were beating a child, because she feels bad.

Mockery is king in this situation. Forces people to go with the flow or drop the issue to avoid looking socially inept. However ignoring it is often way easier I've found.

DarkDragonX123 • 100 points • 12 August, 2019 11:56 AM

I agree... you'll just be wasting time and when they can't anything else constructive they'll just attack you personally to try and discredit you

largepaycheckaddict • 25 points • 12 August, 2019 02:03 PM*

I'll BTFO a feminist anytime I want. I am lucky enough to be in a career where a phone call to my work won't ruin my life and leave me homeless, and I'm over the high school/college popularity contests where you're trying to be on everyone's good side. Most of my good friends are red pill and woke to female bullshit.. even without that, you should never feel ashamed to speak your mind given you do it respectfully and tastefully. If you find yourself around a group of people where you can't do this, it's toxic as fuck and will slowly drive you insane.. probably why so many people are on dope for mental illness and depression today.

The feminist may not take in what I have to say but I'm gonna speak my mind and not enable their toxic bullshit for a millisecond.

failingtheturingtest • 4 points • 12 August, 2019 09:09 PM

I agree with everything you said, but you're making too little of an important part here.

"given you do it respectfully and tastefully"

Like most red pill advice, most blokes here need to follow the absolute "do not do this" rule because they don't understand moderation.

Look at all the "I love to shut the snowflakes up with my logic!" comments in the thread. These are the autists that need this advice.

NigerianChad • 0 points • 13 August, 2019 04:56 AM*

That's why you have friends. If you're tip toeing around your friends then yeah I'd agree. But most people if not all need acquaintances and friendly connections to sustain and acquire benefits. That's when having some restraint is vital.

Irtotallynotrobot • 24 points • 12 August, 2019 02:58 PM

These people cannot locate how they formed those opinions, that's why when you challenge them it causes irreconcilable cognitive dissonance. They can't face the idea that their general opinions are not supported by sound judgement, they'd rather live in a fantasy.

Treat anyone who behaves this way like a child, even men do this now too.

RedPillAlphaBigCock • 43 points • 12 August, 2019 02:57 PM

The best thing you can do to cure the cancer that is feminism is to be really nice to them. You need to be a cool attractive guy. I know an unattractive feminist girl from work. What I done was talk to her with love in my eyes, ZERO CONFRONTATION, zero argumentation. I know how to dismantle the wage gap myth. I could bury her. But that achieves NOTHING. Instead I act a bit confused, mention a few examples and pretend that I am considering her argument.

I feel sorry for some of these girls, they are just unloved, single and bitter twords men. So I just be really nice in a giving way, I even praised her and gave recommendations. I have partly cured her. She is taking better care of herself and stoped talking about the BS issues.

You need to LOVE these girls not argue. But don't get me wrong, I wouldn't touch her with a ten foot poll.

[deleted] • 14 points • 12 August, 2019 07:34 PM

Rare to see the L word here but I agree with your comment. They are hitching for guys to prove them right with aggression and 'gaslighting'. Be a courteous enough person and demonstrate a little kindness and sensitivity and they realize the crock of shit mantra that they have been worshipping.

Duxure-Paralux • 9 points • 13 August, 2019 12:36 AM

It's true, most feminists are feminista because of a lack of strong male presence in her life. Daddy issues, boyfriend issues, bullied, daughter or friend of a woman with those issues, etc.

guyau • 30 points • 12 August, 2019 12:40 PM*

You're not arguing to convince them, you're arguing to undermine the rationality of their position in front of observers, to not let them control discourse without opposition. And it's sort of working.. feminists are angrier than before because they know they're hemorrhaging symbolic capital.

redpill77 • 7 points • 12 August, 2019 10:34 PM

I've noticed less boldness by feminists in the last half year. Slightly encouraging.

sehns • 51 points • 12 August, 2019 12:33 PM

"You're a feminist? Oh that's a shame. Does that mean you don't give head and have big bushy armpits?"

PickUpScientist • 8 points • 12 August, 2019 05:40 PM

A woman not shaving is brave and noble, you fucking neckbeard!

RightHandWolf • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 06:09 PM

<https://www.google.com/url?sa=i&source=images&cd=&ved=2ahUKEwi1garD9v3jAhUHiqwKHTuJCn4QjRx6BAgBEAQ&url=https%3A%2F%2Fwww.funnybits.mobi%2F2013%2F05%2Fsometimes-men-make-strangest-requests.html&psig=AOvVaw05er1OtUNzLOa4pCuA3A9x&ust=1565719682846389>

silent_dominant • 70 points • 12 August, 2019 12:05 PM

Discussing with feminists is like wrestling with a pig.

After a while, you realise the pig enjoys it.

Unfortunately for them, I am an engineer and a ENTP (debater) so there's no greater feeling than to shut them up with logic and get mad about it.

This isn't red pill advice though, it will definitely not get you laid. But sometimes you just wanna have a little fun.

mrrooftops • 24 points • 12 August, 2019 01:29 PM

Since when did they shut up when logic was used?! Careful with the ENTP... Narcissists hide behind those letters.

SlayRevenge6 • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 01:42 PM

ENTP here. Thanks for sharing, was unaware narcissism was associated with this. But makes sense if I think about it through my past experiences...

silent_dominant • 2 points • 13 August, 2019 01:03 AM

Man I wish I thought well enough of myself to be able to be a narcissist...

RightHandWolf • 5 points • 12 August, 2019 02:52 PM

It is fun to trigger the snowflakes, but social media can act as a digital version of a lynch mob. "Lead me not into temptation, 'cause I already know the way."

p3n1x • 8 points • 12 August, 2019 02:20 PM

But sometimes you just wanna have a little fun.

NO, you just want to be "right".

no greater feeling than to shut them up with logic and get mad about it.

I am an ENTP/J, you aren't shutting them up, you are making them bigger feminists while jerking yourself off.

Greaterbird • 5 points • 12 August, 2019 04:25 PM

you are making them bigger feminists

Funny how insecure humans work. Providing them with counter-evidence only makes their beliefs stronger.

p3n1x • 1 point • 13 August, 2019 10:55 AM

Emotions don't have context sometimes. It's better to simply change the emotion than worry about "facts".

When is the last time someone argued with their dog for wagging its tail?

Nicolas0631 • 1 point • 12 August, 2019 07:30 PM

It show that there a problem. If nobody care it show the problem is non-existant.

Original_Dankster • 9 points • 12 August, 2019 03:55 PM you just want to be "right".

I find being right to be a lot of fun.

p3n1x • 2 points • 13 August, 2019 11:01 AM

I find being right to be a lot of fun.

But, you only think you are. There is a huge difference between 'arguing' and getting someone to "think".

silent_dominant • 2 points • 13 August, 2019 01:03 AM

It's still fun though isn't it..

CoachOcelot • 3 points • 12 August, 2019 04:37 PM

Snap, dude. Engineer and ENTP, and I also enjoy doing that.

*fist bump*

Gaboyski_ • 1 point • 17 August, 2019 05:29 AM

You know, I've been trying to incorporate MBTI with Game for some time now. Everyone else says that an INTJ's cold and aloof exterior is a weakness but it's actually a strength as far as frame and DGAF are concerned, for example. My reservation is that AWALT doesn't discriminate on whatever a woman's personality type is. Even the most introverted, rational woman will get her pussy wet over the right alpha she comes across.

PoetAlcoholic • 9 points • 12 August, 2019 02:20 PM

A short post, but brevity is the soul of wit. Even beyond arguing some ideas like wage gap and equality, most new guns will want to argue trp and prove what they have learned. Don't do it. It's pointless.

Bottled_Void • 9 points • 12 August, 2019 02:40 PM

I've got to be honest, I was fine with feminism when it was equal rights. Now it's give me free stuff because I have a vagina. Most women will fall into the first group. The ones who want an argument are usually in the second.

So yes, ignore and move on.

Darth_Toenail • 1 point • 14 August, 2019 02:17 AM

I too was never fine with feminism.

BusyHearing • 8 points • 12 August, 2019 01:55 PM*

I think this issue has more nuance than OP is representing. Young men need to see older men representing the strength and positive aspects of masculinity— if this content or perspective is drowned out by mouthpiece ideology then young men are worse off.

You shouldn't argue for its own sake, or for the sake of converting the other party, but you absolutely should for everyone else's.

failingtheturingtest • 0 points • 12 August, 2019 09:13 PM

Like a lot of red pill advice, this is a case of "always follow this rule (until you know how not to)"

Most blokes here can't contain themselves and think that spouting statistics they read on the internet is going to break the minds of every feminist within earshot and make every bro cheer them on. They are the ones who are best served by this advice.

When the loudest voices of your opinion are those of bratty children, your opinion now seems childish.

[deleted] • 22 points • 12 August, 2019 01:17 PM

Feminist women are not the issue here. The issue is that all women are like children and arguing with them is like arguing with children. There is absolutely no point in it and it's just a waste of your precious time

throwlaca • 3 points • 13 August, 2019 10:36 AM

This! every time you interact with a woman, repeat it in your head "women are like children" "Women ARE children" a woman's mind development stops when she grows tits, around 16. Even if you talk to a woman in their 40, she reacts like she's 16. Men however mature up until 30 and maybe 40.

I'm 40. Most girls, even 30-40 yo, are like teenagers to me. They post inane memes, childish stories. Grown, pathetic men often do the same, and pretend to be kids, but is just that, pretending. Women, however, are children.

swampbastard1415 • 7 points • 12 August, 2019 11:53 PM

Feminism is a reaction to a society of weak men. If you hold frame - playfully and politely disagree and it will build attraction and usually they will drop it. If they see sincere strength in you - and u subcommunicate that u aren't down with her pussy hat faggotry, over time they will change or at least soften their radical views - not through logical words - women don't think like men stop expecting them to.

SKRedPill • 14 points • 12 August, 2019 02:39 PM

Women always "win" the argument at the end. Men always win it at the beginning.

Everytime a woman argues, it is about emotions ultimately, not content. Content is less relevant at the start and becomes totally irrelevant as time goes on. The mistake many men think is that women want a discussion. Nope, they just want what they want along with the emotions. Words are secondary to a woman.

Everytime someone gets emotional, they lose rationality.

Bear-With-Bit • 4 points • 12 August, 2019 07:39 PM

If there is a wage gap, companies would only hire women at 80 or 85 cents to the dollar. Women would get paid more, companies would save money overall, owners and shareholders are happy at better numbers.

If women were so enraged about rape as a national crisis, then they would also be working to get rid of in prisons amongst men, to punish female teachers who ~~sleep with~~ rape their male students and to punish women to make false rape accusations.

If women really wanted "girls night out" just to be with their female friends, there would be women-only bars and clubs.

Gender studies is a scam. Going to college to study something beyond stem may be as well.

Don't argue with women and their White Knight chump male friends. But also be aware of the bs.

Mr_Mandingo93 • 1 point • 13 August, 2019 04:01 AM i agree with all of your points except the hiring of only women at a cheaper price. yea if it was true i dont think companies would do that because ultimatley women make for terrible employees and they would end up running the company into the ground.

yungassed • 1 point • 14 August, 2019 08:17 PM

Thats oart of his point, if they did equal work and the wage gap was real, companies would be all female. Yet that isn't that case, so either they do not do equal work or the wage gap is fake.

Bear-With-Bit • 1 point • 15 August, 2019 08:08 PM

Exactly. There may be no such thing as equal work. I get it if it's something like retail or fast food (something minimum wage or close to it). But two mid-level employees with the same title and credentials can be handling completely different tasks day to day, thus they provide different value to the company. Equal pay for equal work is kinda bullshit, let alone gender wage gap.

mikkeldaman • 5 points • 12 August, 2019 02:17 PM

Arguing in general when there's nothing at stake should be avoided.

sebastianconcept • 6 points • 12 August, 2019 02:49 PM

Of course. They are postmodernists philosophically speaking. They don't care about facts, not reason, nor even logic. They only care about you being submissive to them. They want obedience and deliver hysteria. They are hysterical self-victimism poison. Do not interact with them. At all. Not even joking.

redditor67tny • 4 points • 12 August, 2019 08:28 PM

What if you're having a regular human-to-human conversation with someone, maybe older than you, and they say something I don't agree with, and we have a calm, civil discussion about it? Surely a conversation like that should be fine, right?

[deleted] • 5 points • 12 August, 2019 02:37 PM

I used to be a feminist but I've always had an open mind which is why I don't identify as one anymore. I think that the wage gap is a really lazy and intellectually dishonest idea.. I think that women are discouraged to be aggressive in day to day life so when it comes to their careers of course they're going to not want to rock the boat and ask for higher pay or do as rough things as a man would. I do think that men and women should get paid for the same work and a lot of the time it simply boils down to how men and women are socialized rather than the boss thinking, "this WAHMAN deserves less than my alpha MALE over here" like some feminists believe.

neo10neo • 3 points • 12 August, 2019 02:35 PM

Arguing with them is often like interacting with a child.

ghostlynihilist • 3 points • 12 August, 2019 03:38 PM

Only argue with anyone if you feel like it would actually lead to a productive discussion. Otherwise, even if you're right, some people don't wanna hear it, so it's best to just acknowledge their views.

[deleted] • 3 points • 13 August, 2019 03:16 AM*

About 8 years ago, in University, I dated a feminist. I was a male feminist (don't judge, I was young and blue-pilled).

Most fucked up sex I've ever had. She was really into being dominated. We're talking full bondage, blindfolds, beating up her tits, and spanking her ass bloody and raw with an instrument and then fucking her in her ass as her asscheeks bled from the beating.

I've spoken with other guys who dated feminists and they've had similar experiences. I'm convinced feminism is just a massive shit test and they all secretly want a very conventionally masculine man. Our society has failed that shit test and we are suffering for it. It will take a generation or two to correct things, if we ever manage it. My generation, the millennials, are the worst of it. Gen Z looks quite promising, though.

throwlaca • 2 points • 13 August, 2019 10:43 AM

Lol I know a ultra-feminist millennial girl and she's into rape simulation sex. Weirdest thing I ever heard.

klavijaturista • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 02:56 PM

Yeah, but this ideology has already contaminated universities and legislature. (More or less depending on the country.)

Argue in vain - no. But here needs to be some counter argument because this thing affects everyone.

youngandaspire • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 03:38 PM

Or just don't talk to them if they say they are a feminist. You don't need that bullshit in your life.

CoachOcelot • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 04:33 PM

Don't bother arguing with any feminist. Tell them, and leave. There's no need for a back-and-forth.

If you have to encounter them (at work, for example) I find the best way to deal with them is to make comments such as, "Oh, I heard [feminist] is good at making coffee..." when everybody is discussing who is getting the hot drinks for the meeting. Works a treat.

Bartand • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 05:17 PM

Arguing with a feminist is like arguing with a rat, get that out your life.

starkfuture • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 05:44 PM

And don't forget, avoid like the plague. Because that is what they are. A real plague on the society and the men they come in contact with.

wrekd • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 06:59 PM

This is really common with young men who are just starting out in life and are developing their views on life.

Yeah this is called practice. Let people do it. It's more informative that what you just said.

dat_boi_hunnit_3 • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 08:57 PM

This is correct, you never argue with hoes, you regulate them.

As a wise man once said: "You can think what you want, till I blow the back of your brains out, then we see if you can think with your front."

AV_Empire • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 09:06 PM

Learning to keep one's mouth shut is one of the many benefits of joining the military.

See your recruiter today.

Project_Zero_Betas • 2 points • 13 August, 2019 03:17 AM

Just open the argument with "Yeah well we have PZB" and walk away #micdrop

TheImpossible1 • 2 points • 13 August, 2019 04:42 AM

Just cut any open feminists off.

ucfgavin • 2 points • 13 August, 2019 10:59 PM

When this discussion comes up, I reference two things:

1. Provide me a company name that pays women differently than men that have the same job title, experience, education, and tenure at the company. So far I've received zero answers
2. Glassdoor provided a study that essentially referenced #1 and found that the % of women's salary to men's at the same level and company is about 96%. Its not 100%, and the fact that there is a shown gap sucks...but there are plenty of factors that go into, some of which are biological.

LAMG1 • 2 points • 15 August, 2019 01:01 AM

Why you even waste time arguing with them in the first place? You cannot get anything positive by arguing with them...

Fukboi1399 • 3 points • 12 August, 2019 12:29 PM

Absolutely agree. Need more posts like this!

AbrocadoPie • 3 points • 12 August, 2019 01:34 PM

Yeah but feminists can vote...

Plus I love debating (arguing for them) so I just turn dates into that. It's not like I'm gonna try get a second one after that red flag anyways

Due_Generi • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 08:15 PM

Yeah, at best, you win them over or induce a mental breakdown.

Kurokaffe • 3 points • 12 August, 2019 01:40 PM

It's a loaded argument.

You're both basically trying to "debate" the wage gap on the scale the size of society, but let's be honest, neither you nor the imaginary woman in the scenario really understand wages paid for every job out there for male vs female.

But also, the moment you start positioning yourself against the idea of the reality and authenticity of a wage gap, it will be interpreted as if you're starting to defend the ideology of a wage gap (and if you honestly think someone else should be paid less for the same work because of their gender or race, you're an asshole) even if that's not what you're trying to say.

niceguyputin • 4 points • 12 August, 2019 04:25 PM

This is so true. I never learn though. Keep debating with feminists and it really doesn't matter. They aren't going to change their stance and pretty much pointless. LOL!

I also read post that feminism by itself a big shit test. When I started treating it like a shit test, it started to make more sense that it is. Simple AA works when it comes to feminism.

Like they say "feminist until you're married". It's just a new level of shit test to gauge your confidence. Another way to seek the alpha Male.

journeyinward • 4 points • 12 August, 2019 12:00 PM

Spending the time to argue is validating that the ideologies might have merit and value--that they are worthy of debate and discussion--reinforcing the beliefs.

Pezotecom • -4 points • 12 August, 2019 12:16 PM

That's the most leftist statement I've read on TRP. lmal

Bama6419 1 points 12 August, 2019 05:48 PM [recovered]

A little different perspective. I am dating a self-proclaimed feminist. She is incredibly bright, self-sufficient and independent. She pays for 1/2 of pretty much everything we do together. She doesn't go overboard regarding feminist comments but they come out occasionally. I don't argue, but don't try and assuage her by agreeing with every thing she says regarding those topics either.

But the following is the noteworthy part to me. When we first started dating, we both met after work at her place and had planned on going out to dinner. I told her where I had planned for dinner. Her response was to thank me for making the decision. She stated that at work all she does is make decisions, and with her friends, she is usually the decision maker. The point was explicit in that with all the toughness displayed by her, in the end, she wants a man to make decisions and lead her in the relationship.

Now, here is the part for me, and for probably many of you, that is tough. The nice-guy conditioning is a tough habit to break. Occasionally, I will slip up and ask her: "what do you want to do?" "where do you want to go?" "is it alright if we go here?" Not surprisingly, as soon as I regress and ask one of these questions, I usually am met with a stammer and delays before answering. If I catch that quickly, then I shut down the stammering and silence by telling her where we are going to go and what we are going to do.

One of the best things about this site is not only guidance on how to act initially, but also, I come here frequently to remind myself that you have to be constantly vigilant. This is paramount for those of you like me that were indoctrinated in the nice-guy syndrome which is a harder habit to break than any other vices I have conquered.

redditor67tny • 1 point • 12 August, 2019 08:30 PM

there's value in this comment. fuck the downvotes

TigerXtrm • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 02:06 PM

Something something... idiot... something something... down to their level.

Massap24 • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 02:45 PM

Agreed went back forth with my gf for years (she thinks women have it worse than anyone else on every issue) now I just agree to make her happy and save myself some valuable time and energy.

Olga_Schmutzer • 1 point • 12 August, 2019 06:32 PM

What is this? Satire or real?

Massap24 • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 07:32 PM

Haha I wish it were a joke, all I can think about is all my wasted words and how she still believes I got my job because of some male "privilege".

failingtheturingtest • 3 points • 12 August, 2019 09:16 PM

Yeah.

Nothing wrong with your gf thinking you have no value. Hold on to her cobber, no way you could find a sheila who doesn't assume you're worthless. Right?

Massap24 • 1 point • 12 August, 2019 11:37 PM

Fair point lol I think I could cure cancer and she would probably say "well they only fund research when men are conducting it" or something stupid.

Andropomorphine • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 09:50 PM

It's no point debating with individuals with a dogmatic view of the world. Whether feminist, athiest, right wingers, left wingers, black lives matter supporters, Trump/hilary supporters or religious nuts. If they are dogmatic or adamant there is no use.

We have to stop living in this fantasy world where everyone is rational and reasonable. OP I suggest to stop wasting your time with people who are not persuaded or open minded enough to see a different perspective. Not everyone values debate. Not everyone values civility. Let them continue to get upset and outraged by political issues that the majority of people don't even care about.

max_peenor • 2 points • 13 August, 2019 01:04 AM

I'll simplify that for you: don't argue. If there is no jury and/or no panel of judges, there is no way to win. If you have a point to make, make it. If people require clarification, clarify. And leave it at that.

The only time you should go back and forth with someone is if you are baiting them to do something else.

idontmiind • 1 point • 12 August, 2019 04:00 PM

Seeing yourself from a third person view, arguing with a child should be motivation enough to hold frame if you have some respect for yourself

[deleted] • 1 point • 12 August, 2019 07:10 PM

Overall I agree but I think the final shot at Muslims/Jews kinda weakens the point.

Reformed65 1 points 14 August, 2019 12:18 AM* [recovered]

If it weakens the point to you, then you have decided to take a specific viewpoint of mine and declared that since I hold a certain view- it must mean that my entire message is invalid which is a false way of determining the value of the said message.

I was anyway, speaking from first-hand experience, growing up in a Muslim family and such. Topics that even hinted that pork is no longer unclean meat to consume given historical reasoning being no longer valid and health regulations improving the quality of pork was met with instant disapproval. Why was this? Because such a matter was unnegotiable and even if believed, was an idea clearly wasn't going to be followed upon. Likewise, even if the feminist was to believe you, it would be in her best interest to state that you are incorrect and she is right.

[deleted] • 1 point • 14 August, 2019 01:57 AM

Ok ok relax - I see your point after you spelling it out, about how it's the same sort of belief-preservation reaction in both cases.

I wasn't so much saying you were wrong; I was saying that I thought Muslim and Jewish avoidance of pork came from a completely different place than women going for feminism, so I thought it was muddying the argument. But fair enough, I haven't had the why-can't-we-eat pork discussion, it's interesting to think about how that would play out.

CommonFable • 1 point • 14 August, 2019 07:59 PM

Why tell him to relax? He just explained himself.

Looks like you're projecting

OSaraiva • 1 point • 12 August, 2019 07:23 PM

Fuck that, i wouldn't do it even if i was paid.

Theguygotgame777 • 1 point • 12 August, 2019 08:00 PM

You see this on 4chan with shit like "convinced my girl of this RedPill shit, how do I convince her of this other RedPill shit?"

Entirely up to your frame, and your attractiveness dude. Arguing gets you nowhere.

Managical • 1 point • 12 August, 2019 08:25 PM

I don't like their tree patting hierarchy either, "patriarchy" whatever damn hippies. Always trying to usurp the common good with their evil.

MeansToABenz • 1 point • 13 August, 2019 02:39 AM

Missing in this argument is the key fact that men do not get pregnant and need to take 16 months to an indefinite amount of time off from their job.

phoenix_md • 1 point • 13 August, 2019 03:09 AM

Ha, you just described the strategy of the modern conservative when dealing with progressives. Just move along and vote crazy out of office pacopenco • 1 point • 13 August, 2019 03:09 PM

I have convince and shift feminist positions more than once.

The idea that woman are not capable of rational thinking that is implied here is just stupid. From my experience with my close ones I have been able to make changes on their views constantly.

xoxuv • 1 point • 13 August, 2019 07:05 PM*

Wrong. Do argue with feminists, not to convince them, or to win, but to know all the bullshit they can throw around, so you are prepared.

The feminazi discourse is not static. It evolves. They know about the red pill, they are always making new layers of bullshit over layers of bullshit.

Do not argue to the purpose of having sex or an LTR.

Mouse1701 • 1 point • 16 August, 2019 03:05 AM

Guys we all know to be fair some women dont want to apply for certain jobs that have higher pay. Example carsaleperson aka carsalesman women hardly work in carsales unless they are doing car commercials aka eyecandy or helping a client sign the paperwork. Rarely do you see a woman actually work in car sales do the negotiating and making the closing sale. They are not interested. I would love to see a woman close in car sales. It would truly be gaming the game and women would be supporting real true feminism which would be helpful to society as a whole. They can negotiate sex for money as prostitutes but in general won't do a negotiation for a car sales.

GulpAndCry • 1 point • 18 August, 2019 12:48 PM

It has happened to me multiple times. Although these women tend to be very young and very submissive.

iamanalterror_ • 1 point • 8 September, 2019 08:30 PM

This applies on Reddit, too. I made the mistake of engaging anti-Jordan Peterson posters on the Jordan Peterson subreddit, but then realised how much time and effort I was consuming in actually arguing my points, even if I and the person I was arguing against were both in good faith. I also realised how dumb it was to argue about Jordan Peterson.

That's not to say robust discussion isn't good; practising developing your own points forces you to expand and mould your thinking, so is helpful. The problem I have is finding the right place, people and topics.

Thorondor_Rising • 2 points • 12 August, 2019 08:11 PM*

I just "yeah yeah yeah, hundreds of thousands, even millions of years of human evolution doesn't mean shit. You're right, because a bunch of women and faggots came to a new consensus on these things less than a decade ago. I'm convinced! Anyways, wanna arm wrestle?" slam my beer, than walk across the bar and talk to an attractive woman that isn't a 220lb landwhale.

Y'all need to start socially ostracizing these unbearable cunts instead of being scared that you might not get your little peepee wet tonight if you dare to tell them to fuck off with their Feminacism. If enough men that they are starving to fuck kick them to the curb for voicing this toxic shit, they'll stop. I have 4 daughters, think I allow this faggotry to go on unchecked under my roof?

Original_Dankster • 1 point • 12 August, 2019 03:53 PM

There's no point in trying to convince her to change her mind, but there is advantage in convincing any third party observer that she's irrational and her ideology is rotting garbage.

That said, pick your battles. The circumstances where this would come up and be worth debating are few and far between. If there's impressionable or open minded people observing the debate, intelligent and polite dissent can provoke her in to harpy mode and inoculate the observers against her ideology.

Hviterev • 1 point • 12 August, 2019 04:25 PM

Impress her, fuck her, tell her what your opinions are and watch her suddenly have a new opinion.

Tadah

istira_balegina • 1 point • 12 August, 2019 05:28 PM

If she says shes feminist maybe just say, "oh, I'm not religious."

datingappro • 1 point • 12 August, 2019 09:10 PM

if you are legitimately arguing with a feminist you are doing it wrong. mock their beliefs why maintaining frame, and fuck them later if you wish. Nothing feels better than meeting a 'feminist' only to prove how much of a hypocrite she is by sucking your trump supporting dick.

Here is an example of how you respond (assuming at a bar or social event, not a work place where you might have to be PC).

Woman: "I believe in the wage gap issue"

Men: "I do too, it's a good thing"

Woman: "what!"

(any kind of response below)

Men: "You all get to live longer, its only fair"

"yea but you need to factor in how much the wife will get out of it"

"go over there and ask that guy to buy you a drink. See it evens out"

"Well duh, I am a much better worker than you"

Any of that type of aloof response will trigger both respect in you not being a yes man (women secretly hate that behavior) while keeping the conversation fun. Unless you are in the mood for a legit serious debate you should never get into actual policy. It's very easy to look like #angrywhitemale or whatever they think and put you in a box. You do NOT want to come off as an MRA, you want to come off as a smug asshole.

[deleted] • 1 point • 14 August, 2019 02:42 AM the majority of women don't even support feminism in the us so it shouldn't be an issue

Vikingcel • 0 points • 12 August, 2019 07:06 PM

But debating feminists and other crazies is great practice for debating men here.