

Men can fight back against the workplace #meeto trend - withdraw ALL male attention at work

December 1, 2017 | 752 upvotes | by [\[deleted\]](#)

This bullshit has finally hit my job. Not me personally (as I know better than the other suckers) as I won't go into details but there is now an "investigation" going on and a high profile (meaning big spender) customer has been banned from doing business with us because a woman has opened her mouth saying that she felt bad because he was making "inappropriate" (in her mind) comments.

This is bullshit and it's time that we men fight back. We do it by withdrawing all male attention from all women at work. From now on, no female co-worker will get any attention from me outside the scope of what's required to do my job. Why am I doing this? Because my job is high profile and I could end up on the fucking 5pm news if this shit catches me or one of my male colleagues.

*No saying hello to women (they may take it wrong)

*No socializing with women in any way shape or form

*No joking with women

etc, etc etc. You know the drill.

Good luck trying to get a date from now on bitches. Fucking women shoot themselves in the foot.

It's a god damm shame too as I've been "harassing" these women, joking with them, they've been slapping my ass, and they've been giving me fuck me eyes for years and I've been enjoying leading them on giving them just the slightest thought that I may actually fuck them someday. Now I have to cut them off cold turkey.

God fucking dammit.

Female boss didn't do any of her work. I didn't know, I had my own stuff to do. 10 mins before deadline she pulls me into 1on1 meeting. Tells me "I refused to do any of the work she assigned me, and she is going to the CEO about it". I was outraged, I had helped her so much the previous 4 months and worked evenings and weekends on my own stuff. I was offended and I said I needed to leave to process this. She said "No" and then said I was sexist as I wouldn't listen to her like I listened to male coworkers. Its never happened before but my fight or flight response kicked in, as I'm being directly threatened by someone more powerful than me in a tiny room. I said I urgently needed to go to toilet to be sick (half-true). She refused and tried to block the door but I was already out. Didn't touch her or enter her space or anything (thank God).

Next day I have disciplinary hearing. I'm told she begged me to do my work and I shouted "No", threatened her physically. She cried during the meeting saying "why wont you please do the work?". She's had nightmares all night, been crying. I proved some of it wasn't true (you can easily hear shouting through the walls), but she had all the lawyers, CEO and everyone already believing her side of events before the hearing, which was just a formality. It was crazy as it was the most ridiculous story that didn't even make sense. But it was my word against hers.

Entire thing cuts me deeply tbh but I keep head down. I don't even discuss it with coworkers but they figured it all out from another guy who sat in on meeting.

2 weeks later she comes to me upset asking why nobody is talking to her. I am dumbfounded. She really didn't know why people didn't want to be around her, trust her, like her. She asks why people are ignoring her "just because she is a woman". She says "boys club" at some point. She also wants to know why me and her never "hang out" at lunch.

I thought it was a power-play at first, but then I realised she genuinely did not know.

hodltaco • 126 points • 1 December, 2017 06:16 PM

For any of you SJW's/ladies trolling TRP this example IS EXACTLY why I avoid you in any professional setting even to my detriment financially. My future is not going to be decided on a whim.

sigma272 • 197 points • 1 December, 2017 04:35 PM

| she genuinely did not know

It's scary how a woman's mind works. They are simultaneously master manipulators who pick up on every social cue and also pure innocent victims who have no idea what's going on. Their ability to gaslight themselves is terrifying tbh

GreenCasualty • 27 points • 1 December, 2017 08:07 PM

I've had male coworkers do this sort of thing to me too. It's amazing what people do to convince themselves that they are always the victim.

Hillarysdilddo_2016 • 35 points • 1 December, 2017 11:25 PM

Well what's the difference between a beta male and a woman?

Nothing.

Nothing at all.

vengefully_yours • 22 points • 2 December, 2017 12:39 AM

Plumbing. Indoor vs outdoor.

Hillarysilddo_2016 • 6 points • 2 December, 2017 12:45 AM

Yeah, but their T levels and ball size are probably the same. Lol

StrayEnglishman • 2 points • 3 December, 2017 07:48 AM

I'm guessing that beta males have 2 inch boy clits and always love receiving anal, whereas some women aren't huge fans of it.

markdumte • 8 points • 2 December, 2017 01:08 AM

This is narcissistic behaviour. This level of delusion is not all women.

TheNextMilo • 1 point • 3 January, 2018 09:39 AM

Tbh, men are more violence. True, it could be emotional abuse mixed in, but there is a strong physical superiority that's being insinuated.

bsutansalt • 38 points • 1 December, 2017 07:48 PM

I was outraged, I had helped her so much the previous 4 months...

Need I remind you of Briffault's Law and its corollaries?

Drumcode-Equals-Life • 26 points • 1 December, 2017 07:53 PM

2 weeks later she comes to me upset asking why nobody is talking to her.

aaaaaaaand there it is, the lack of personal responsibility and self-reflection I've come to expect from every woman I meet nowadays. AWALT

engine1321 • 17 points • 1 December, 2017 10:10 PM

The solution to this is simple. Never have a "1 on 1" with a female co-worker, especially a supervisor.

culper89 • 13 points • 1 December, 2017 05:38 PM

Thanks for sharing your experience with this. There really is something to be said about someone who can keep their cool in that type of situation. I can only imagine the weight that must have been lifted off your back once everything came full circle and she was basically ostracized by her own actions. Some people get a shred of power or authority and then become so detached it is just insane how different they end up. It's almost impossible to empathize with that, but you still were the bigger person anyway. Your post serves as proof.

harkrank • 1 points • 1 December, 2017 04:47 PM [recovered]

Your mistake: having a female boss.

There's no dignity in that whatsoever. Would you have a 13 year old child as your boss also?

hodltaco • 30 points • 1 December, 2017 06:20 PM

That's a difficult one-sometimes they just show up. I had one for a short time 10 years younger than me replacing an old-timer (long story). Typical story, she was a tough ass for no reason, productivity went down, she left to get pregnant before she got fired we surmised and I never saw her again. We had to cover for her for 3 months until she quit (paid maternity leave). This has happened twice in my career with female leads that go off to get pregnant leaving others to cover.

Jake420Blaze • 1 points • 1 December, 2017 06:06 PM [recovered]

I don't even see how you guys can work professionally with women. I'm an engineering student ATM and there isn't a single competent women in my graduating class. Anytime a female student speaks to another student its to ask for help or for solutions to problems. When I get assigned to work on a project with one all she'll do is make mistakes and try to slow our progress by complaining that I don't explain every little thing to her. Literally is like working with a child.

[deleted] • 56 points • 1 December, 2017 06:29 PM

I'm in engineering as well and the top performer in my class academically is a woman. She's rank #1 every single term. I've also worked with talented females in my co-op placements.

But for every 1 talented female engineer, there's 10 who are dead weight, entitled and somehow think "chivalry" ought to apply in the workplace. I worked with one who refused to empty the acid waste from her tests because it was "too heavy to carry" (its less than 10 pounds) and she got this beta dude to do it for her.

adirp • 1 points • 2 December, 2017 03:29 AM [recovered]

I teach vector calculus and I haven't noticed much difference between men and women in engineering. They seem to be equally capable, with some very intelligent outliers in both groups. But naturally men outnumber women.

[deleted] • 7 points • 2 December, 2017 03:38 AM

Academically speaking, yea you wouldn't notice any difference between male and female students. That's because all of your students had to meet the same academic requirements in order to get into that university program. The reason the men outnumber the women is because only the top 95th percentile (for example) of women make the cut, whereas you could be 80th percentile as a man and make the cut.

[deleted] • 32 points • 1 December, 2017 06:10 PM

some of the women in physics have impressive intellects... but they are few and basically unsexable. i didnt meet any in engineering.

engine1321 • 3 points • 1 December, 2017 10:14 PM

Ours are either incompetent, hurt in some way, or incompetent AND hurt

boy_golden1 • 2 points • 2 December, 2017 02:29 PM

I agree with you. I'm in college and taking an engineering course. Every time we are required to partner-up in a Laboratory, I always make sure that I have a male partner. These girls act like children, always complain when shits are not done even though it's their fault. Jesus

CaptainDouchington • 14 points • 1 December, 2017 06:24 PM

I bet the 13 year old is more rational.

BluepillProfessor • 18 points • 1 December, 2017 08:11 PM

Probably not. The young girl just listens better, doesn't know everything, and will shut her yap long enough to listen once in a while. Most important, the 13 year old is not smart enough to bitch, moan, complain, whine, and counteract every suggestion and argument you make.

This gives the 13 year old the appearance of being more rational- but in reality she is just more pleasant and tolerable.

vengefully_yours • 11 points • 2 December, 2017 12:52 AM

I had them in the military. While there are strong and weak NCOs with wide ranging leadership abilities, the females were nearly all exactly the same. Demanding rather than commanding respect, "because I said so" particularly when it violates regulations, and the uncanny ability to fuck up massively then get a job with less responsibility and zero consequences. They rarely knew the job, couldn't do it with the rest of us and were mostly in the way. Girls in charge invariably led to far more work, most of it redundant or busy work, safety violations, accidents that were covered up if a female did it, and a net loss in productivity.

Yes there were male NCOs who were far worse, but they didn't last long. One fuck up as a man and you were relegated to second hand even if you were the ranking NCO. Fuck up as a girl, it's covered up, ignored, not punished, and you have to fuck up at least 3 times before the chain of command does anything about it. Then she had to keep fucking up, and the most she gets is moved to a make work job where she can't fuck anything up. Men get kicked out long before that.

It's not like you can choose where you're going out who your boss is in the military. I had several excellent leaders and a handful of the shit ones, the bad ones seriously fuck up everything around them. None of the quality enlisted leaders were female. Had one female captain who seemed to have her shit together, but at her level I'd never know about her fucking up, unless she somehow managed to get someone killed.

OneRedYear • 37 points • 1 December, 2017 08:03 PM

One of my best bosses was a woman. She knew her shit inside and out and ran our department well. She wasn't a micromanager, wasn't prone to emotional thinking when it came to running a tv production department. There are women who can do the job and do it well and to deny that is to be completely stupid. My current male boss is emotional, flighty and incompetent. I'd take my old lady boss over this jackass any day.

Temprament • 8 points • 2 December, 2017 12:28 AM

This is why I record every conversation I have in 1 on 1's. The state I live in requires only 1 party to know it is being recorded (I count as 1 party).

Story time! My boss took me to HR for the way I treated him in a 1 on 1. Saying I was being verbally abusive and blah blah. Well in the meeting where he was required to attend since he was my boss.

I let them go through their entire spew being polite and what not. Right before they force me to sign the write up because it is my word against my bosses. I inform them I had recorded the entire conversation and proceeded to play it. HR tells me to go back to work and keeps my boss behind. Dumbass....

EDIT - We no longer have 1 on 1's :)

Peter_B_Long • 7 points • 1 December, 2017 07:46 PM

BluepillProfessor • 1 point • 3 December, 2017 04:59 PM

When you live life with no consequences and no matter how bad your behavior half the population works overtime to fix any problems for you this is hardly a surprise. Why would they care about or even comprehend consequences for bad behaviors!

MentalOnslaught • 74 points • 1 December, 2017 04:44 PM

Happening at my job right now. I work law enforcement. A female officer initiated playful/sexual banter. Male officer reciprocated and now is under investigation for sexual harassment. Everyone wants to rag on MGTOW...but.....

Walkebe • 220 points • 1 December, 2017 03:10 PM

If this moral panic of alleged sexual impropriety means women are less able to use their sexual value to garner employment advantages and instead have to rely more on actual productivity, then it should be a net positive for the male workforce given the differences in ability between the two sexes.

hodltaco • 35 points • 1 December, 2017 06:29 PM

Great point. A net gain indeed and a hopefully a hard message to beta's trying to pull some cringy shit. If you don't have game walk the fuck away and for god's sake don't troll women at work.

DiceX2Found • 10 points • 2 December, 2017 12:29 AM

Some people are well read and actually speak and think using multi-syllable words. This often results in more interesting and accurate communication. I would suggest an improved vocabulary is a better solution than asking people to avoid using an effective skill.

PoseidonsNutsack • 4 points • 2 December, 2017 03:41 PM

destraht • 39 points • 1 December, 2017 04:43 PM

Yeah I hear women say "I deserve it" 10x more than men. They seem to need to talk up their value on a daily basis.

Throwawaysteve123456 • 6 points • 1 December, 2017 11:41 PM

If you had been told you deserved X your entire life, you'd grow up, thinking you were entitled to X. It's no different for spoiled children.

destraht • 1 point • 4 December, 2017 01:22 AM

I hear men saying "I could really use a (beer, etc.)" and women saying "I deserve a (pedicure, ice cream, drink, bubble bath, etc)". Maybe its just a cultural thing. I don't know since even though I've lived a crazy amount of places my language skills are never good enough to pick up the casual dialog. For myself I like and even really need deep tissue massages once in a while due to office work. I imagine that women in a similar situation tell themselves that they deserve it due to all of their hard work. I think that guys just realize that the world is a son of a bitch and that deserve has nothing to do with it.

[deleted] • 6 points • 2 December, 2017 12:31 AM

It's not just us. I don't even think it started here. Take a good long look at what's happening in Europe right now. They have it worse. Arguably so does Australia. It's a cancer. And it's far more pervasive than just the US.

Drezzzire • 20 points • 1 December, 2017 06:02 PM

I do agree with you.

It's infecting a lot of countries. I also think Europe was one of the first.

Europe?

UK, the continent, scandinavia , eastern, southern?

All of these are very distinct and UK is way closer to USA than others.

WiseMonkeyGoodMonkey • 3 points • 2 December, 2017 06:05 PM

Considering the pervasiveness of what's being discussed, this is a distinction without distinction. But if you have to ask - Spain up to the top of Scandinavia. Ireland to where the eastern block countries start. Pretty much anything under the EU umbrella. They are currently collectively (but very quietly) fucked.

Why Women DESTROY NATIONS * / CIVILIZATIONS - and other UNCOMFORTABLE TRUTHS
Rome and the Arab Empire both had sorts of feminist movements in their later days, and this contributed to their downfall.

An increase in the influence of women in public life has often been associated with national decline. The later Romans complained that, although Rome ruled the world, women ruled Rome. In the tenth century, a similar tendency was observable in the Arab Empire, the women demanding admission to the professions hitherto monopolised by men. 'What,' wrote the contemporary historian, Ibn Bessam, 'have the professions of clerk, tax-collector or preacher to do with women? These occupations have always been limited to men alone.' Many women practised law, while others obtained posts as university professors. There was an agitation for the appointment of female judges, which, however, does not appear to have succeeded. Soon after this period, government and public order collapsed, and foreign invaders overran the country. The resulting increase in confusion and violence made it unsafe for women to move unescorted in the streets, with the result that this feminist movement collapsed.

When I first read these contemporary descriptions of tenth-century Baghdad, I could scarcely believe my eyes. I told myself that this must be a joke! The descriptions might have been taken out of The Times today. The resemblance of all the details was especially breathtaking—the break-up of the empire, the abandonment of sexual morality, the 'pop' singers with their guitars, the entry of women into the professions, the five-day week.

Sir John Glubb - The Fate of Empires

Oxdada • 18 points • 1 December, 2017 06:45 PM

Hypergamy makes women naturally liberal toward immigration and social "dilution," because it enlarges their option pools. The result is a weakening of borders, both physical and social, with the inevitable result that the institutions and territories become indefensible and are ultimately over run, first by women, then by the invaders they invite.

Typically, these invaders aren't run by women, and the reason we don't see much evidence of societies run by women is that they tend to be destroyed or absorbed completely.

iLLprincipLeS • 30 points • 1 December, 2017 11:56 PM

Currently, there is a very high birth rate in Africa and in Muslim countries, the average total fertility rate is 4 in Africa and 3,1 in Muslim countries. Africa is projected to have 4 billion people, and MENA 1 billion people. Nigeria alone is projected to have 400 million people in 2050. In most Latino countries, there is a positive birth rate, with the exception of Brasil. Birth rate is positive in India as well. On the other hand, white female TFR in the US is 1.75, in Europe 1.5, in Canada 1.5. The replacement rate is 2.1, and in the event of race mixing, you will need more than 2.1 in order to simply sustain the white population at one level. Even in western countries with relatively high birth rates, the people who are having kids are usually non-white women, as more than 50 percent of US newborn and more than 38 percent of French newborn are already non-white. White female TFR is negative in all western countries. Therefore white people will disappear if they do not change their behavior.

In all feminist countries, you have negative birth rates that could lead to the disappearance of the native population if birth rates are not raised. Whites in the US are projected to disappear in 300 years. In all feminist societies you have massive third-worldization, lowering of IQ, race mixing with blacks, conversions to Islam, etc. The most feminist country in the world – Sweden, is dying right now due to third world/Muslim immigration. Muslims are outbreeding Europeans in almost all European countries.

Barbarism, to paraphrase Lenin, is the last stage of feminism. Sparta, where women became very influential, died due to low birth rate. In decadent Rome, they were ultimately forced to tax single people in order to get them to marry and have kids. Remember what happened to the late Roman Empire - low birth rates, people did not want to get married, men thought that women became unmarriageable, infanticide, depopulation, extreme promiscuity, easy divorce, repeal of anti-luxury laws, etc.. Those masses of low IQ people swarming the Europeans are merely the symptom, not the cause. They are just like the opportunistic infection that takes advantage of an already weakened organism. The real cause though, is the weak immune system of the organism.

Luxury corrupts. Feminism is decadent behavior that can only occur in rich and powerful countries, who feel that they are not threatened by anything, and can therefore engage in various types of decadent behaviors that are actually weakening them. J. D. Unwin found that after a nation becomes prosperous, it becomes increasingly liberal with regard to sexual morality and as a result loses its cohesion, its impetus and its purpose. The effect, he says, could be irrevocable. The British historian Sir John Glubb noticed that proto-feminism emerged in the later stages of various civilizations, before they collapsed. These are the stages of civilizations:

1. The age of outburst (or pioneers).

2. The age of conquests.
3. The age of commerce.
4. The age of affluence.
5. The age of intellect.
6. The age of decadence. (We are here. Decline could also be observed, as the western share of the world's economy and population is constantly declining, while at the same time the West has become the most indebted region of the world). The age of Decadence is marked by: Defensiveness (for example by building border walls), pessimism, materialism, frivolity, an influx of foreigners, feminisation, the welfare state, a weakening of religion. Decadence is due to: too long a period of wealth and power. Selfishness, love of money, the loss of a sense of duty.
7. The age of decline and collapse.

This is how feminism destroys itself:

It destroys itself due to its low, negative birth rates, leading to population decline of the feminised group. (You could clearly observe this in Europe, where there is Islamization going on and European cultures and peoples are dying). In the US, liberal white women are the group with the lowest birth rate and republican states have higher birth rate than liberal states. Coincidentally or not, the white women with the highest birth rate are from countries that banned abortion (Argentina and Ireland). One of the reasons why German women do not want to vote for their anti-immigration party (who wants to increase the german birth rate), is because they don't want to be mothers or to have more than one kid.

It destroys itself because it is dysgenic (dumb women have more kids, while smart and career women are often childless). For example 40 percent of German college educated women are childless. This leads to IQ drop. Right now the IQ of western populations is dropping, and east Asian students are now outperforming western students according to PISA surveys, with some eastern european countries now outperforming western countries as well.

It destroys itself because according to various studies, women are less xenophobic, and more foreigner friendly, compared to men. They will welcome everyone. In other words, hello refugee crisis. Sweden, the most feminised country on the planet, willingly took more refugees per capita (who are mostly young single black and Islamic males) than anyone else in Europe. And many people are calling Germany crazy for taking lots of Muslim refugees. Well, Sweden is even crazier than Germany. 75 percent of western converts to Islam are women, as well as the vast majority of whites who mix with blacks. In Sweden, the more feminist the political party, the more it wants to open the borders. Feminist groups allied themselves with muslims to protest against Donald Trump. Feminist groups such as FEMEN and Pussy Riot are also known to support open borders. Recently, it was found that British women travel to Calais to help refugees and to have sex with them in the "Jungle" migrant camp. This is happening in other european countries as well. Do you think that women in Europe do not know that it is mostly young migrant males coming in?

When low IQ people move to more feminised countries, they find an already existing parasitic environment (created by women) that is particularly well suited for people like them. Women there already complain that they are victims, that they are oppressed, that men are privileged, that they deserve special quotas and affirmative action, that they should be given stuff via the welfare system, via special (without competitive bidding) government contracts and loans, via special grants and scholarships for women and minorities, or via alimony and divorce. Obviously that environment will be great for low IQ "Give me, Give me, I'm Victim" people as well and they too will join the party and start behaving that way (until there are too many takers and the whole redistribution system collapses). In contrast, low IQ migrants won't find a parasitic environment like that in Turkey, Israel or Japan. No one there feels guilty, could be made to feel guilty, or is going to give them anything.

Men evolved to protect the perimeter against males from other (mainly patriarchal) tribes (chimps do the same). Having women involved in decisions about the perimeter (think of Merkel or Swedish feminists) results in what we see – open borders, multicultural, diversity, “tolerance”, border chaos.

In nature, when you weaken the local males, then other males move in and replace them. You can observe this among lions, among primates, or among europeans. After feminist women (with the encouragement of jews) weakened their own men, then other men (muslims) started moving in. Males are the immune system of society. The nationalism that they create is the wall. Without them, there is no nationalism or resistance to foreigners. Weaken them, and then other foreigners, often males, start moving in.

Thus, we can expect any ethnic group with large female influence and female leadership to self destroy, as the female leadership will not care about preserving their own ethnicity or group cohesion, leading to the feminised group opening their borders, trying to help anyone in need, accepting anyone in, and eventually becoming a minority in their own country.

Women, for the most part, care about resources and smoothing conflict over. They evolved to fill that role. Women are less likely to support military action even against ISIS, a group known for enslaving women and using them as sex slaves, and are less likely to support ban on muslim immigration. Stockholm Syndrome is more pronounced in females . Women were frequently taken captive by (or in some cases traded to) other groups, and so they evolved to smooth things over with distant groups (whereas their male kinfolk were simply killed). The survival of their genes, unless they were exceptionally ugly, was more or less guaranteed – whichever tribe they end up being with. That is why they are more accepting of foreigners and foreign rule. Men form tribes. Women join tribes. So, women tend to vote for resource redistribution (from men) and being nice to everybody (including those who aren't in their group), and for helping anyone in need, regardless of their group.

Theory is that if you want to destroy an ethnic group, simply increase female influence in that group. Increase it a lot. And voila. Since females don't care about ethnicity that much, and are less xenophobic, the country will open it's borders, will try to help anyone in need, and will welcome everyone. As a bonus, you will also get a negative birth rate for the feminized host group.

All kinds of other ethnic, religious and racial groups will move in, and will start vying for dominance; as for the feminized host group, its fate is to become a minority in its own country, to mix with the foreigners, and then to ultimately disappear.

My theory is it has more to do with retarded intellect and lower abstract reasoning ability.

Essentially they are worse at threat recognition because they are generally under less threat than men--read war brides--coupled with what I said above they fail to model future outcomes based on their current positions. We all know it's "what they feel right now" as opposed to a rational position. Couple this with social appeasement, motherly instincts and hypergamy as you mentioned explains their social / political positions.

Furthermore, a lot of women just want the strongest males possible. If you are invading then you are obviously stronger than the current cuck stock.

hodltaco • 11 points • 1 December, 2017 06:24 PM

I'd say it's Trump's fault. After all the "pussy grab" crap and then him getting elected all I've heard since (west coast) is non-stop vitriol from women. The ladies are pissed and they're going after ALL MALES not just the beta's.

Fraternize/joke/flirt at your own risk. Holy hell I think I'm more MGTOW than RP these days. I am not thinking about getting laid at all.

Hillarysdilddo_2016 • 12 points • 1 December, 2017 11:47 PM

Let's assume you are correct.

This just proves is how stupid and immoral these women really are.

IE they turned a blind eye to raping bill and splooging Weinstein, al franken for decades until someone got elected that they didn't like. Only then did they make it an issue. Think, they were gonna vote for a woman married to a rapist (and associated with all of the rapists being brought down today).

Trump was nothing more than a curious wealthy guy who showed up occasionally on tv and silly movies 28 years ago when I adopted this "do not talk to bitches at work" method.

This is my standard operating procedure when I've got something to lose.

[deleted] • 14 points • 1 December, 2017 11:04 PM

Nah. Trump is pretty much the best thing to happen to us. He showed us how to fight these people - dirty.

[deleted] • 5 points • 2 December, 2017 12:32 AM

I'm not a hater, but his talk before the election was better than his complete inaction subsequently. How is he fighting dirty? How is he draining the swamp? He is the fucking swamp.

[deleted] • 0 points • 2 December, 2017 05:45 AM

Wrong on pretty much every level. Both parties are against him because he was never supposed to win - he is a wild card. And he would argue he did more than Obama did in 8 years in less than 1.

[deleted] • 0 points • 2 December, 2017 08:50 AM

He;s not a wild card at all. He's utterly predictable. He hasn't done dick.

[deleted] • 1 point • 2 December, 2017 01:46 PM

Don't you dare think that for one second. Ask about how Bill Clinton's trial is going. Capisce? It's the big boys, and Weinstein, Spacey, Lauer, et al fucked the wrong people over. You think that actress X was only harassed by Weinstein? The big named ones probably fucked at least 10 of the players, but, Ol' Harve just forgot to pay his tribute to the Big Boys, or WTF, and now, HE's the goat.

It most definitely is not that these women were above blowing a producer for some role in some big $ movie.

OneRedYear • 31 points • 1 December, 2017 08:06 PM

It's not standard when you are a thirsty beta. I work with 14 women. I say hi and bye and keep the conversation about projects. [deleted] • 5 points • 1 December, 2017 08:13 PM

I suppose. I just look at it as a return on investment type of thing. The return I get from half an hour of socializing per day is immense compared to if I had spent that half hour doing work.

Even in engineering companies where you might expect more of a meritocracy, the social butterflies still advance faster than the people who are good at their jobs (I try to be both of course). Can't avoid the politics anywhere you go. I'd rather learn to play the game than get beaten by it.

I'm not even looking at girls at work anymore. Been accused years ago of harassment simply for asking a girl if she wants to go for coffee after work. That's how bad it's gotten, a simple coffee excursion can be construed as sexual harassment if she deems your SMV not up to par.

I've done line maintenance in the Alberta oil patch and most of the crew was dudes. It the most fun I've ever had at a job. There were only two girls that worked there but they were on the opposite shift to me. The stuff we would say on a daily basis would get you fired in an office environment with a zealous HR department.

Don't shit where you eat. Peers, subordinates, and especially clients. One of my current clients has a HB8 daughter who models. Everytime she drops off contracts to me all the guys hit on her. I can tell she wants me to ask her out but I won't touch it because my paycheque and reputation is on the line. Thankfully her dad is very RP and lets me bust his balls over her.

MrAnderzon • 14 points • 1 December, 2017 05:16 PM

Don't forget that if the girl likes you, you can act as an asshole and ask her out for coffee. But if she says no and she's at work she can/will use harassment just because she's at "work". Whereas out on the street or online she can just ignore or say no.

youkickmyd0g • 0 points • 2 December, 2017 09:24 AM

Whereas out on the street or online she can just ignore or say no.

I have a distinct name and live in the capital of the tech industry... recently deleted my LinkedIn account, feels like one of my balls grew back. People have found me easily before, by first name. My circle works in big big cos like Apple/Google/Facebook/Tesla in independent contributor or low management capacity, so not having one will be distinct too. But now I feel more safe, since I have been a magnet for opportunistic allegations.

Johnnyvile • 0 points • 3 December, 2017 07:15 AM

It's "harassment" because people should expect to go to work without being hit on/flirted with. Work is not a hook up place from the companies point of view.

Guys should think this way too, work is not a hookup place. Too many things can happen. Rumors, revenge, beta guy's jealousy resulting in rumors and revenge, etc. Dont fuck with your career. Make money and go out somewhere else.

Also have you ever worked with a couple? It's fucking annoying.

“Bust his balls” = “bust a nut”

The first means “give him shit”, the second means masturbate. Big difference. And if you thought you were being funny, you thought wrong.

buddhadarko • 57 points • 1 December, 2017 12:49 PM

Feminism is rearing another one of its ugly heads. This is where things are now because society takes every arbitrary thing women say to be fact and true, with absolutely NO regard for objectivity, context, or anything logical. This is just a wave...it's a scary wave, but a wave nonetheless. Men really do need to take heed to what OP said.

I feel bad for anyone who has actually been abused or forced to do something against their will, and I believe that men that do those things are very, very small and BP.

The rest of these cunts making shit up for attention can jump off a cliff.

taxandstuff • 52 points • 1 December, 2017 09:27 AM i been doing this for years. that's why my former and current female coworkers think i think that they're stupid. one even said "you didnt say it, but i know you thinking it." that was hilarious because it was true.

i just focus on building my skillset at work so that i build enough leverage for the next position i want. i want a great next position, not a good next position, so i actually am very busy at work working and learning.

You will not look at each other.

You will not touch each other.

You will not talk to each other.

There will be no jokes, no banter, no flirting.

There will be no gossip.

You will keep all personal interaction and contact with each other strictly related to business, and business only.

There will be no behaviors or activity in this business that can be construed in any way as inappropriate behavior or harassment.

You are welcome to turn in your resignation if this new code of conduct is unacceptable to you. All who remain here will abide by these new rules."

I recall from a documentary that Wayne Gretzky always had people with him and was afraid of being caught somewhere, like an elevator, with a woman alone and her accusing him of sexual advances or something. He had others around so this could never happen. He knew it happened to other famous people and he didn't want anything fucking up his career. Gretzky is one of the best athletes of all time, stand up guy, and not one bad incident of anything can be brought up against him. He knew how to keep his legacy intact.

monsieurhire2 • 18 points • 1 December, 2017 06:34 PM

WARNING:

Do NOT do this.

How do I know?

Personal experience.

This will be viewed as passive aggressive, and they will complain to whoever. Also, good luck getting every guy to go along with it, because the white knights, enlightened AMOGs, and others will not care enough to demonstrate solidarity, and will use it to other you, cut you out of the herd, and replace you with someone else.

Work experiences:

To begin with, NEVER shit where you eat. It doesn't matter if she appears to be a unicorn. She's not. You are just thirsty because you lack abundance. If you had a supply of women outside of work, you wouldn't bother giving women you work with a second thought.

Anyway, these stories come pre-TRP from many, many years ago:

1. Reprimanded for basically not flirting with a client because I was too busy and in a rush to make small talk. I was completely blindsided by this one.
2. Co-worker upset that I didn't hit on her; ultimately led to a pretext for me being fired when I hit on her as a JOKE in a completely non-sexual way; I didn't care about the shitty service job, but this kind of thing can cloud you if people call the employer; it was total trumped up bullshit; hell hath no fury....
3. Ignoring a girl that rejected me because I realized she was just using me for favors and that my energy was better spent elsewhere was viewed as "sexual harassment!" This was when I was starting to get a clue, even before TRP. I still shouldn't have asked her out, nor should I have engaged in a covert contract with her. But what I learned is that once you "befriend" a girl, they really hate it when you withdraw the benefits of your friendship. She whined and complained to people and I was othered.

So, the moral of the story is: maintain a veneer of "normalcy" at work. Don't hit on your co-workers, but don't ignore them. Treat them all as asexual beings.

biglaughingcock • 5 points • 1 December, 2017 08:01 PM

This is actually the best answer. The more you seem like you're trying to alienate yourself from females the more strange you seem which is really bad in the work place. Just act below the radar, be as normal as possible. In fact, pretend to be less competent than you actually are.

Yeah, because being aloof and indifferent towards women makes them dislike you, right? I've tried this with women I've worked with and [SPOILER ALERT] they just became attracted to me.

[deleted] • 34 points • 1 December, 2017 08:32 AM

I agree. Plenty of single/married women at work I could fuck & get away with it. But I'm not risking it given the societal climate we live in.

The five stages a man goes through in order to become a "red pill man."

Denial (There's no denying we've all been there)

In psychology, we usually refer to the 5 stages of grief when talking about dealing with loss. In this journey of actualization, you lose a romanticized world view that we commonly refer to as being "blue pill." The first thing that happens in these five stages is denial. Maybe you dipped your toe in TRP by reading some of the articles and opinions on this sub and were immediately turned off to how all of the anger phase newbies were spouting hate speech about women. Maybe you were overwhelmed by what you were reading and noticing about life so you closed the book on TRP. Your denial of the truth allows you to go back to blue pill life for some time, but something may change within you. You realize you lost that part of yourself. Maybe your blue pill worldview chipped away slowly as you start to realize the truth or maybe experienced a shocking "aha!" moment all at once, and you can't un-see it anymore. If you don't get scared and fully ingratiate yourself back into BP culture, you are destined to along with many others to arrive at the same feeling...

Anger: The infamous "Anger Phase" is not as simple as you think.

When you came to this sub, you may have been going through a rough patch in your life, made primarily by your own choices and your misunderstandings of how human nature works in the context of today's society. Most people come here because of a woman or because of their continued failure with women in general; having been the "orbiter" or the "nice guy," or the one that was constantly "taken advantage of" or the one that was cheated on. Maybe you didn't even know exactly why you started reading the articles, but something resonated with you at a certain point. Maybe some of you were the ones that left for a while, but realize when you open up TRP again, you already had a couple articles dog eared. As you read more and more of the sidebar and people's own contributions to this sub, your blue pill version of reality rips apart at its seams and some of you become frustrated. Some of you become angry, and some of you become absolutely livid. You think the about time, the money, and the dedication you wasted in your pursuit of trying to land your Disney level romance with a girl you fantasized over, you think about the peers you had and how some of them were more toxic to your personal development. You unpack intergender dynamics box by box and start to notice the difference between what you saw with your blue colored lens. You start to view many things in the context of TRP and you become angry at what you have been missing out on, what you have been tricked into believing, what women can get away with in today's society, but I think most importantly you become angry at yourself. Herein lies the pivotal moment for guys that embrace TRP or pantomime being "red pill." Most people go through the motions, riding on the anger high: lift more, read more TRP articles, practice their game, etc; but the true test is understanding the difference between externalizing your anger and epiphanies vs internalizing them (are you angry at society/women/your peers or do you realize that you are angry at yourself and what you did within the context of your own circumstances?) I believe that this is the true test of TRP (the pivotal moment), which is a perfect way to segue into...

Bargaining & Depression (You either die BP or you live long enough to see yourself become RP)

Some of you will inevitably be stuck in this "temporary truce" with yourself where your main goal is to just be good enough so that you'll mold yourself to be desirable in the context of societal norms. Maybe you had the best intentions for yourself at first and made resolutions so that you would chase the best “you” that you could possibly be: so you go through the motions by exercising, practicing your game, and making yourself better until that one woman “changes everything,” (again), and you slowly devolve back into your prior state. Those of you who go this path will write a couple angry rants about women or society a couple of times, but deep down, still be hoping that there is a unicorn out there; and one day you’ll meet her (or cut the pieces off the puzzle piece to force her to fit that blue pill worldview of yours). She opens up your eyes to that “better than drugs” feeling of love and affection and once again you view life through blue colored or maybe a slight purple colored lens; but inevitably, most of you will learn the harsh truth once more. Some of you will experience extreme agony or depression with realizing red pill truths. You will eventually trade in the new worldview to go back to being what you’ve always been used to; a cog in an ever failing but ever churning machine. You’ll be chewed up and spit out only to come back to repeat the process in TRP or some other path, or you’ll be one of the lucky few that blissfully remains ignorant and makes that kind of life work until your passing. This phase is the most important phase because it is what weeds out the weak. It is what makes a person truly “RP” vs those copying RP traits to justify ends (usually it’s to land yourself a steady stream of sex/a romantic partner). For those that truly understand that TRP is a method of tools and a worldview to internalize rather than externalize this anger move on to the final stage of Red Pill:

Acceptance: No longer the sheep, you become the wolf.

You accept that many if not all of the misfortune that you faced was due to your own failures or misgivings. You were the one who decided to orbit the girl in the hopes that she’d defer to you sticking around for her. You were the one who looked away and forgave her for cheating on you, you were the one who chose to continue hanging out with your toxic friends that got you into needless trouble. You were the one who kept putting off improving your own life. You finally understand that your fate is determined by your own decisions and actions. You realize your own empty promises and words ultimately mean nothing without your actions behind them. You finally start to do something not for the sake of bettering yourself to achieve some means to an end (sex); you do it because you want to do it for yourself. You lift because you like how you feel after that workout and how you look better in the mirror every day, you learn how to do new things because of the pragmatic applications (like cooking, working to be the best at your job, survival skills, etc), you have a hobby that makes you genuinely happy devoid of outside influences, and you learn how to lead yourself along with others cause you realize there are those that lead and others who don’t know any better than to follow. You will realize that with personal improvements and a more internalized viewpoint of RP, women, better career opportunities, better income, and better friends come as a byproduct of your successes rather than being the checkboxes to your success. That’s how you truly become Red Pilled; that's how you stay motivated to be the best you can be.

I've witnessed women cry rape on a night out. People act like women never do this it's a tiny minority blah blah.

And fyi I wasn't involved in these, just a witness.

BluepillProfessor • 12 points • 1 December, 2017 08:21 PM*

60% of women claim they have been sexually harassed at work. They are out for revenge and it is NOT rare. They do it all the time in every level of workplace. Men have been fired and denied their rights for many years and it is only news when Harvey Weinstein gets the Star Chamber treatment.

APSTNDPhy • 11 points • 1 December, 2017 09:35 PM

Its crazy we live in a time where men take more precautions not be accused of rape than women take precautions not to be raped. Absolutely mental.

Cab drivers are the best example off the top of my head. Using cameras to record interactions to avoid false claims.

Archterus • 4 points • 1 December, 2017 10:03 PM*

Sad but true. I have female patients now using the 'rape' language when they give their husband token sex. 'It's coercion, it's like assault'. Poor fuckers just look back like a rabbit in the headlights. Dangerous times, be wise, be proactive, be strategic in terms of who you cultivate as contacts within the work environment. Read up 48 laws of power.

APSTNDPhy • 6 points • 1 December, 2017 10:52 PM

Read it my friend. I generally filter women very early. I did have a scare some years ago, after getting hot and heavy with a chick I 'inserted' for lack of a better word, and she said 'we can't without a condom', obviously I stopped immediately. However I text her the next day asking if she enjoyed the night and she responded 'so so', I immediately shit myself thinking we had a case of regret on our hands. How easy she could have claimed I 'fucked her' when she didn't want it. Legs aspread somehow because I went in itd be my fault. Fortunately it was the opposite and she was gagging for more and I fucked her properly a few nights later. But man, I was sooo worried for a few hours. It didn't matter what was true, only her perception of reality.

I like the tension. When she wears the pink thong and bends over deeply with her perfect squat form into her filing cabinet, in an office with 3 guys. Hulk smash. I dislike what happens when potential orbiters enter the room... she knows none of us are orbiting, so she tries extra hard. I think the carrying capacity for my employment is like 5.

MattyAnon • 32 points • 1 December, 2017 02:51 PM

Men can fight back against the workplace #metoo trend - withdraw ALL male attention at work

This happened with men opening doors and giving up seats for women. A few nasty women shouted "sexist" or "I'm not fucking pregnant" at us, so we stopped doing it.

Same in the workplace. We have to avoid all the baseless harassment claims, so we should now avoid women in the workplace as much as we can.

This type of "acting in my own best interests in the existing climate" should be encouraged.

yummyluckycharms • 28 points • 1 December, 2017 05:50 PM

Guys - calibrate. Dont go full retard - one direction or the other other.

If you walk into work and talk to no one - you aren't going to get ahead. Nor should you be flirtatious and acting like gossip queen. The most successful people at work are the psychopaths that give very superficial attention to people - the reason being that even though the attention is shallow, people remember it.

Apart from hi, I have been consistently doing this, bc I hate Drama. One time I went out with 4-5 co-workers, and couldn't think for 2 days straight bc they hit me with so much drama. All had stories from past n present for almost everyone. Overweight people complaining how they didn't get promotion compared to someone who isn't overweight. And they all were saying, "PB0034, you are so quiet". Bitch what am I supposed to say, it's too much information, and I have not heard any of this before.

Polishrifle • 22 points • 1 December, 2017 05:12 PM

I stopped even glancing in women's direction at the gym. There are a couple of fitspo type people at my gym and they all tag themselves at the gym. Well I check the instagram location page to see what's being said. One of them posted about how creepy guys are at the gym and staring at girls, so I don't even casually glance in their direction anymore. I don't even look around between sets.

The results have been astonishing. Girls constantly trying to get in my field of vision, a girl that has worked out there since January that has never said a word to me has asked to work in twice (i had one more set both times so told her she could have it when i'm done).

I'm really enjoying this environment.

suxxos • 10 points • 1 December, 2017 01:49 PM

Actually, that's exactly how it should be, I don't know why you weren't doing it before. It's the way to create a healthy work envorinment (maybe except the "no saying hello" part. I mean, if they do say hello and you don't reply, this is a bit rude, actually).

GayLubeOil • 98 points • 1 December, 2017 08:54 AM

This whole meetoo thing is a symptom of a much bigger problem in the west. Wages have been stagnant at least since the 70's and career girls aren't making enough money to live the dreams Hollywood has been selling them all their lives.

So how do they bridge the gap between financial fantasy and financial reality? Lawsuits! First it was family Court now it's civil court!

Nobody is safe. Doesn't matter what the fuck you do. Gals want their money to live their delusions.

Yesterday evening I was driving and flipping through the radio. A mid 40's I'd say, definitely white woman was discussing the recent sexual harassment hysteria and advocating for the "purge" to continue.

She said, (and I shit you not) that "2017 will be remembered as the year that America became - if I may use the phrase- 'woke'- to sexual harassment."

JESUS. CHRIST. It was pretty cringe my dudes.

I've seen my fair share of articles talking about how this effecting women in the workplace. Men in power pretty much avoid their female subordinates because of what it could do to their careers. Then these women (many of which are very capable) can't move up the ranks because they don't get to develop the relationships necessary for the bosses to give the "nod" for promotion.

[deleted] • 8 points • 1 December, 2017 07:32 PM

Hence, my "shoot themselves in the foot" comment.

fromthecrypt8 • 15 points • 1 December, 2017 11:13 AM

I love this approach. Problem is it will not be effective unless most or all of us do this. And you know there will be billy betas loving female attention regardless if it increases their chances of jailtime. Perhaps over time, however, this gradual lack of attention from men will make bitches think twice about using social media as public pillories. 2017 is truly where men are guilty until proven innocent.

Captain_Sorbo • 6 points • 1 December, 2017 02:20 PM

Unfortunately I think as a whole they will just throw an even bigger bitch fit. You can't force them to change especially years of learned behavior. If anything it will become worse for those that do "fraternize" at work. The divide widens.

Sorry but this is not the answer. You cannot win. Everything can be twisted.

- *No saying hello to women (they may take it wrong)

Not exchanging pleasantries can be taken as hostility

- *No socializing with women in any way shape or form

Not a team player, not likable, no effort to connect with coworkers

- *No joking with women

You have to be fully conscious more than anyone else. Luckily if you're eating red pills you should be increasing on that scale. And as your consciousness raises, you only accept more conscious people around. And then they are less likely to see gain from making allegations. So you can say hi, and eat lunch too.

mental_models • 4 points • 1 December, 2017 07:23 PM

Don't value a woman's sexuality in the workplace.

Don't give it value in the hiring process!

Don't give it value in the need-a-favor/workload dynamics.

Easier said than done, but the goal should to treat workplace women in a merit-based frame. We are weak when we give them extra-credit for attractiveness in landing a job or advancing or doing less work than is required for a man. It goes both ways, and it's a seduction art with some women. In the moment, it feels powerful to the man. However, it's like taking out an equity loan based upon your own power.

We enter their frame of seduction and dominance/submission, and then we pay interest, be it the best-case scenario of low-productivity or worst-case of sexual harassment accusations. Don't take out an equity loan on your power at work!

I am female, and what I see some women doing right now is disgusting. One female complains, others jump in, and it becomes the latest fad. The rest of them follow the trend like little sheep. Then they wonder why nobody wants to date them. Well, duh, you are a poisonous snake ready to strike.....The stars in Hollywood? They kept their mouths shut about the supposed sexual abuse they "suffered" for their career. I don't believe for a moment that they were forced. They are following the fad because they are also sheep. I think they are claiming to be victims because they don't want to admit that they willingly slept their way to fame and fortune. To all the truly good men out there, I hope you find the good women out there who don't follow these mindless trends. Good luck!

Not the women though. I make it a point to plain ignore them. In retrospect I might have come across as rude a couple of times but.. who cares eheh trplurker • 3 points • 1 December, 2017 08:42 PM

We do it by withdrawing all male attention from all women at work. From now on, no female co-worker will get any attention from me outside the scope of what's required to do my job

This should be normal behavior anyway. At your workplace you only interact with females when it's absolutely required. Don't avoid them, as they can turn that into a HR issue too, just don't give them anymore then the minimum required attention. They say hi, you say hi back, so on and so forth.

Archterus • 4 points • 2 December, 2017 12:03 AM

Very similar idea to that of Rollo's 'sexual zoning'. Certain theatres require certain behaviours.

[deleted] • 4 points • 1 December, 2017 03:59 PM

The workplace flirt and romance is so fucking dangerous for your career and reputation.

With the OP's line of thinking, without blue pill validation and alpha tension, the #metoo trend will force women to be judged more by their output and skills in the office.

For women that work in male dominated fields, your gender and looks are now a negative attribute. In the past, this wasn't the case. But today it's different. If I'm building a team, and have to choose, I'd rather have an ugly girl that produces. Zero distractions, more profit.

Your_Coke_Dealer • 17 points • 1 December, 2017 03:24 PM

Guys, as always, get thee to the sidebar. In particular to the 48 Laws Of Power, and further focus on:

Law 6: Court attention at all costs

Law 24: Play the perfect courtier

Law 26: Keep your hands clean

This post is some MGTOW horseshit. Continue to seek female attention, but also remain playing office politics, and don't actually harass women. Withdrawing from interactions with women over some stupid hashtag movement is a cop-out.

My workplace is about 75% women at the moment, in an industry that sells primarily to women. The men in the office banter as men in any office do, and nearly everyone, male or female, regards the #metoo movement as the ridiculous bandwagon it is. Hold frame and play the game as normal; opting out is nothing more than resigning to not being good at it.

_MysticFox • 1 points • 1 December, 2017 05:03 PM [recovered]

Why wouldn't you just opt out of interacting with them? I got in trouble for some bullshit as well

Your_Coke_Dealer • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 06:10 PM

TRP is a school of thought for male sexual strategy throughout different aspects of life, not opting out of it. MGTOW is for opting out, and has its own subreddit.

TRP often does advise not to actively game while in certain settings (particularly the work setting, or when in a relationship) for the same reason as it advises you not to marry: those are risks you do not need to take. This does not, however, mean you should cease applying the strategic principles of TRP to your advantage in settings where you are advised to avoid risk. Whether or not you avoid or take big risks, you may use the principles to gain power for yourself.

Avoiding women entirely, as OP suggests, is ~~an extreme taken by the lazy or fearful~~ MGTOW, not TRP. You can practice TRP principles while not pursuing particular women or any at all, as TRP is about personal improvement using sexual dynamics, with abundance of women not being a goal but a side-effect.

askmrcia • 7 points • 1 December, 2017 05:08 PM

I'm with you, I can see op's frustration, but he's being a little dramatic.

I guess it's easy for me to say because it hasn't happened in my workplace yet, but not even interacting with women is going overboard.

I'll say this though, five years ago a guy at my workplace got suspended for sexual harassment because he said "happy hump day" to a woman.

Yup that literally happened. I was an intern and I remember my manager sitting me down telling me to always be careful what you say around someone because they could take it the wrong way and in this industry people are always looking for reasons to claim the work environment isn't fair to them.

ioncehadsexinapool • 10 points • 1 December, 2017 03:11 PM

This sub is getting worse and worse wtf. Grow up dude. The "best" thing would be to not let that shit dictate your behavior. You can MGTOW without being a sappy cunt.

post_orgasm_mind • 1 points • 1 December, 2017 05:13 PM [recovered]

True! I can't believe so many endorsed contributors are supporting this shit. We ain't here to throw tantrums everytime a woman loses her shit. Be the rock of the relationship, even if it's professional. Many betas will die in this war against men, but that's been the case since the beginning of time.

ENJOY the decline.

ioncehadsexinapool • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 06:27 PM

I'm honestly about to unsubscribe this sub and related ones. Too many butthurt cucks retorting feminism to the extreme. Dudes need to Fucking chill and either MGTOW or stfu redditer0 • 4 points • 1 December, 2017 04:00 PM

they've been slapping my ass

Maybe you should complain to HR and say you felt "harassed".

Yeah, I know... we are not shit so we don't do that.

charnelmessiah • 2 points • 1 December, 2017 05:18 PM

I have been doing this since I started working at my job a year ago. I don't talk to women unless I have to, I don't even speak to the female manager. The result? ALL of them go out of their way to try and talk to me. Even when it's work related, I try to keep it down to one or two word responses.

Mitchell78 • 2 points • 1 December, 2017 05:22 PM

Start your own business and don't hire women would be the best way to fight back.

midimilitia • 2 points • 1 December, 2017 05:58 PM

Lol ... when did work become a dating service - go to work - do your job- if it requires addressing ANYONE - keep it work related . You're missing the entire point of why women are coming out against sexual harassment. More often than not... people want to go to work, follow their dreams , live their own lives, without someone feeling like they have to sexualized in order to be acknowledged or appreciated. If this is your response to #metoo - then it may be best you just stay to yourself.

Zchavago • 2 points • 1 December, 2017 06:19 PM

Yes! Make no eye contact.

TRP_Only • 1 points • 1 December, 2017 06:53 PM [recovered]

Shit, if the "customer" spends enough I would shit can the girl (give her a severance) NDA and keep the customer. No brainer for me here.

soulcatcher357 • 2 points • 1 December, 2017 10:49 PM

My company did this 3 times. all it took was coming to work late a few times a week for a month or so.

Art_Vandelay80 • 2 points • 1 December, 2017 11:03 PM

Shit I better think twice before asking a woman if I could buy her a drink she might scream rapeeeee! Ffs!

"Don't pitch the bitch" (I paraphrase)

vengefully_yours • 2 points • 2 December, 2017 12:59 AM

I was exactly that starting the spring of 1989. Not tall enough to say hello to a girl on base, so it was harassment to even acknowledge she existed. That ended me speaking to them at all except for what I had to in order to complete the mission. If a girl walked by, I stopped speaking. I went off base to get pussy, learned enough of the local languages to get laid, and ignored girls in green completely.

Yah 1989. This isn't new. I get tons of female attention every day I'm in public, but at work on a base with 300 single females and 6000 single men, I was simply too short at 5'8.

boy_golden1 • 2 points • 2 December, 2017 02:24 PM

This is the reason why I will ALWAYS WEAR A SOUND RECORDING DEVICE if ever I have to enter the workforce. I'm still in college but good thing I found TRP before this even happens to me in my future job.

Damn, these women are crazy

tolerantman • 2 points • 5 December, 2017 07:16 PM

This is actually a good idea, practical and probably effective too, I like it.

Starfuckingman • 2 points • 1 December, 2017 01:33 PM

You sir, get my fucking upvote. However, lets not all get into this anger wave, lets not forget that it is how its supposed to be, not all males are supposed to be alpha conscious males, that's how it looks too for the 10% in the top. Just look out for your own selves cause you got the knowledge for it and don't sweat what feminism fucks up, even if its gets in your own way, you're from the top 10%, you can always find a way to move on and dominate.

ItsYough123 • 1 points • 1 December, 2017 01:43 PM [recovered]

How does this shit get upvoted? Is this what the red pill is about? All this just reeks of bitterness and hating women. Good luck trying to change the world by looking like a sperg to your colleagues OP lol

[deleted] • 0 points • 1 December, 2017 04:32 PM

Women need to be tossed back into the kitchen for their own good. They're like children in many ways. And would you give children power over you? Of course not!

ItsYough123 • 5 points • 1 December, 2017 04:39 PM

What has that got to do with being afraid to talk or look at a woman at work? I swear half the guys on here live their lives through the media. If you're a normal, social guy you've got nothing to be fucking worried about. Stop letting the media get you so scared over nothing.

[deleted] • 2 points • 1 December, 2017 04:55 PM

So the media has zilch to do with social conditioning? Really? That's your logic? You're like that one beta dude who practically creams himself over the thought of getting married while ignoring the fact that 70 percent of them end in divorce. Ignoring reality is not something I personally would recommend.

ItsYough123 • -1 points • 1 December, 2017 05:07 PM

Oh dear. If you don't know how to act around women in the workplace then that's not my fault. Just lol at giving a crap about the media. I thought you awesome red pillers didn't let shit like that get to you except nope you're letting some woman's tv show dictate how you interact with the world lol. I have my own two eyes and I know when people are being creepy or not. The girls know who the creeps in the office are as well. If you're a normal, social guy you know what's creepy and what isn't without some media scare stories.

What are you on about marriage for? lol

[deleted] • 2 points • 1 December, 2017 05:18 PM

You're a woman. Aren't you? Your slut ass needs to be off the internet completely and back into the kitchen where you will be making our breakfast, making our lunch, making our dinner...and uh....getting us a beer whenever we demand it.

ItsYough123 • 5 points • 1 December, 2017 05:36 PM

lol Let your bitterness flow mate. Maybe bang a few women and you'll realise they're not that bad;)

[deleted] • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 05:45 PM

Shut up slut. And get me my beer.

ItsYough123 • 2 points • 1 December, 2017 05:54 PM

Get you a beer? You're barely the age to drink lol. Hope you get over your angry phase mate. Well done on thinking I'm a woman.

[deleted] • 2 points • 1 December, 2017 05:59 PM

You're a mtf transgender and clearly bitter it hasn't made you any happier.

hodltaco • 2 points • 1 December, 2017 06:35 PM

There's a lot of speculation on that word "normal". My viewpoints are from what I've witnessed/lived over the last 30 years in the workplace. There's plenty to worry about. Keep your distance.

saintgrits • 1 points • 2 December, 2017 03:03 AM [recovered]

You got your victim to drain so Who Cares about all those bitches. Amiright?

saintgrits • 1 point • 4 December, 2017 10:07 PM

You're so right. I can't wait to vow before all of our friends and family to continue to cherish and nurture his man, to continue to create meals for him, maintain our home, to care for our pets and parents, and maybe possibly someday a child, to work together and drive home and laugh until dawn, enjoying stimulating conversation about our varied interests, to travel and continue to meet amazing people while having amazing experiences together, to grow old together enjoying the same wild sex life we do now, support him in his creative career endeavors as he does me in mine, mutually, to build a partnership that will outlast either of our lives on Earth, to continue to grow in love, devotion, respect and understanding for one another.

Damn, I really conned him. And myself.

You're small, bitter and sad, and the assumptions you make about people and their lives are a reflection of your own skewed worldview. I'll pray for you.

Ha...hahahaha...hahahahaha.

HAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA HAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA HAHAHAHAHAHAHAHA

You're all fucked.

[deleted] • 2 points • 1 December, 2017 12:41 PM

I gonna start doing this in uni

Daddie0 • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 06:08 PM

Agree with what you are saying, but even that doesn't matter with women and false accusations. Look at the assistant DA in TX and the Uber Driver, and other example in the UK there was a taxi driver that ran into the same issue with a false accusation.

All it takes is being at the wrong place at the wrong time with some bat shit crazy bitch who makes a false accusation against you.

hodltaco • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 06:11 PM

I've withdrawn a lot even before all that is going on. I am very certain not to be alone with a woman whether she work for the company, a client, prospective client, vendor, literally in any capacity.

Beyond that I've actually stopped/slowed any interaction with women in a professional setting whether at work or with my private investments. Any women that I'm "forced" to meet with I do at the coffee shop in the lobby and I've borrowed a buddy just so I don't have to be alone. I simply don't want the liability this close to some big things coming up. I know it sounds petty but again the liability about what she can say to HR is too much to risk.

MGTOWManofMystery • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 06:14 PM

Men have no other choice but to do what you outline. Furthermore, we have to be robotic with any female we encounter in any way, shape or form in relation to work. Up and down the value chain. Customers, suppliers, vendors, etc. Never hold meetings alone with women - if you must, have the door open and try to get a 3rd person as a chaperone. Never have drinks or meals with women associated with work. We have to go full Mike Pence on them.

epistemic_humility • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 09:06 PM recently moved to super liberal pacific north west and wasn't sure if the recent influx of sexual misconduct allegations is related to proximity to the west coast culture. but sounds like that's the news everywhere eh? across america?

What the fuck is up with all this. Even my girl doesn't agree with how the dudes have to be so sorry and have their career retroactively shat on. I'm on the same page as you man I don't talk to any ladies at work unless I have to. I'm not fucking around that stuff.

RedPilledRoaster • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 09:29 PM

This is why I'm an entrepreneur.

suske127 • 1 point • 2 December, 2017 12:45 AM

Lmao. Your attitude is cocky af and also you're overreacting. With that said you're right and I think this is a good way to deal with the problem. In theory we shouldn't talk to women at work anyways as we shouldn't be fucking women we work with. It's a death trap.

Thanks for posting brother.

[deleted] • 2 points • 2 December, 2017 12:47 AM

Joey_Lopez • 1 point • 2 December, 2017 01:51 PM

Last week I made some girls see how all this harassment hysteria is blowing up in their faces. I was at an orientation at a new hospital with a few girls and of course they had to hammer in that showing any interest in the opposite sex is sexual harassment. At first the girls where mostly in agreement. Then while we were talking after we left I mentioned to them that if guys at work or at school can't pursue them then the only guys that will be left to pursue them were the guys on the street corner. A long silent worried look fell across on their faces.

BluepillProfessor • 2 points • 4 December, 2017 04:06 PM

The look of women contemplating consequences for their continual pushing and poking! Women are going for full victory right now but they are like Bolsheviks in Ukraine and The Famine Is About TO Start.

Useful Idiots.

[deleted] • 1 point • 2 December, 2017 05:38 PM

What you should do, is to cut feminists off preemptively.

I do it already for a few years.

That way you are not a creep, the ones that are comfortable with jokes feel being on the inside of the circle.

Feminists despise them and this it an us vs them situation if anything arises.

[deleted] • 1 point • 5 December, 2017 01:17 AM

Gonna have to disagree. What you're suggesting is a reactive effort.

The proactive effort would be to understand the source of this beta shame trend.

Women are shaming beta men for pursuing them in any sexual sense.

As there is an massive over abundance of beta men, this makes sense.

What would an alpha do? An alpha would do the same thing every time a woman I'm on a date with talks about creepy or supplication beta men in their life, agree and amplify.

And let's be honest. I don't respect a man who can't clearly express his intentions. I don't respect a man who has to rely on his power or position to fuck women.

This is less about women shaming "normal men" for making sexist comments or sexually harassing actions and more about women shaming beta men who are making non-congruent statements and actions in an effort to manipulate women.

I say to beta men, make yourself more valuable and women won't shame you. What I won't say is, fuck women for shaming low value men who attempt fake alpha behaviour to manipulate women into fucking them.

[deleted] • 1 point • 5 December, 2017 01:29 AM

I agree with you. Any other woman absolutely. Co-workers, no, which was the jist of this post.

Lunchsucked • 1 point • 5 December, 2017 03:34 PM

Before I stepped into a supervisory capacity of my current job, the first piece of advice I was given by a mentor was whatever you do, whenever having an interaction with a female co-worker, always do it in a place visible by surveillance.

RedditUsernameNo7 • 1 point • 19 December, 2017 05:15 AM

Can one of you autistic messes just ban me now so I can go to bed? I really don't need to waste my time commenting on TRP but it's so goddamn offensive I can't help myself.

Ban me please.

[deleted] • -4 points • 1 December, 2017 07:14 AM

Thus far, non-white men have not borne a fraction of what the white man has had to endure at the hands of women. To all the NW whiners, there's a pussy fire sale going on, so take advantage of this shit.

Mondi3221 • 1 points • 1 December, 2017 09:15 AM [recovered]

Women, white or POC, will protest against white patriarchy and fight for minorities all day but when it comes to dating, they'll swipe left on all the minorities and mostly match with whites, and when interrogated, they'll respond with 'It's just a preference'. At the end of the day, they are still slaves to their biology.

[deleted] • 11 points • 1 December, 2017 10:26 AM

And you're saying this because awalt isn't true right? Or because Bill Cosby isn't black? Cut the racial shit.

[deleted] • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 04:30 PM

Just another day in the Jewsa.

thedaynos • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 05:40 PM dude.

i NEVER talk to a girl unless she speaks to me first. and that is for that specific interaction only.

i have FUCKED girls I work with because they contact me first. even then, i won't talk to them the next day at work. not even eye contact. If they hit me up first THAT DAY, then ok i can talk. I want her ping over company IM or email before I make any contact.

i never message first. each day is a new day. never assume anything. if she contacts you first, on that day, over company equipment, then ok. if not, nothing.

it's worked for me. they have nothing on me and i have everything on them. i don't care if you've been fucking someone for 2 years and everyone knows about it. don't give any attention on that day until she does first. that's seriously the ONLY way i'd do this shit.

TheRealMouseRat • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 06:06 PM

This is not fighting back. This is just not being stupid.

SwoleyMoleyFrijooley • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 06:16 PM

It's a double-edged sword. You can either be attractive and be highly liked, but run the risk of this shit, or you can keep to yourself completely, but run the risk of being strongly disliked and a negative perception. You really can't win outside of "Be attractive, don't be unattractive". Be the office man-candy but just tell everyone you're clearly in love with your gf/wife (even if you don't have one). They'll give you a pass to not hit on them and it won't hurt their ego. Because women can be just as offended by NOT being "harassed" by a hot guy as they are by being "harassed" by a neckbeard.

[deleted] • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 08:34 PM

This is some full retard shit. Just be calibrated, don't flirt and take a few precautions like not setting up 1on1 meetings with female subordinates. If you develop a rep as that fucking weirdo who never talks to anyone, you might even be MORE susceptible to accusations.

yummyluckycharms • 1 point • 1 December, 2017 09:24 PM the problem with moral panics is that they often do more damage to a society, especially if they are allowed to linger or the other side totally capitulates.

In the 90s, it was all about raves - and then it died down but now you have an entire generation that has permanent brain damage due to ecstasy (sero levels are perm nuked - leads to narcissism)

In the 80's it was D&D, which by the time it died down led to the government having grown a bureaucracy that regulated the media even more stringently

In the 50's it was communism, but when that died down it led to infiltration of the universities by cultural marxists, and we've been paying the price for that for decades.

professor_mcamateur • 0 points • 1 December, 2017 10:07 AM

I regret not "taking advantage" before all this shit started coming out. Not condoning the super creepy dirty old man Weinstein shit - but for 2 kids at work after school I had nothing to worry about and didn't even know it... but of course nobody gets bonus points for not doing it.

You are wrong. Always act alpha. If you chose to withdraw and act beta you run a much higher risk of false allegations.

You are responding in exactly the way your rulers are intending with this campaign. You're the type of jew who'd voluntarily get on the train.
