

Post-post-wall single women figure out that when they're old enough to have gray hair, men don't find them attractive anymore. Wow, who knew? Now they call it "gray-shaming" and pretend it's another way that "society" is being sexist to women.

May 2, 2018 | 908 upvotes | by Comicus

---

<https://twitter.com/attn/status/990981603374616576>

Correct me if I'm wrong, but this is like the ultimate hamstering. These women had all the time in the world - literally decades - to settle into a stable relationship and build families, but decided to spend an extended period of time riding the cock carousel instead. It never occurred to them that their one good quality that made guys desire them and allow them to have high standards, despite their shitty personalities, had an expiration date. Now that it's faded away and nobody wants them anymore, maybe it's time to reflect on poor life choices? Maybe admit that they should have settled for one of the guys they thought they were too good for when they were younger and still had a chance? Wrong! They're the victims, and it's everyone else's fault but theirs!

The gray haired woman complaining about "the dating apps" was the best part. Sweetie, if you're that old and still using dating apps, you're the one who fucked up. Also, how much do you want to bet the preferences she states are identical to what she wanted when she was 21? "I still deserve a guy who's over 6 feet, fit, rich and has no kids...even though I'm older than dirt, have saggy tits and have kids who have kids."

And naturally, their examples of how men have it better include guys like George Clooney and Anderson Cooper who've aged abnormally well, ignoring the majority of single men their age who are balding and have pot bellies and extra chins and are probably not doing any better than their entitled female counterparts.

---

Archived from theredarchive.com

---

Comments

---

bunkmacleod • 635 points • 2 May, 2018 11:46 PM

The funny thing is that they say it's harder for older women to get dates than older men. Well it's harder for younger men to get dates than it is younger women but that's no problem right ? The Maximum Effort hypocrisy.

Ganaria_Gente • 120 points • 3 May, 2018 04:45 AM

Hypocrisy is precisely why it's so damn easy to destroy the gynocentrist's arguments.

Everytime they open their mouth to bitch about something, it's easy to point out the double standards

Of course, not that the Marxists would care to be so consistent. ....

[deleted] • 53 points • 3 May, 2018 12:39 PM

Seems if you point out double standards / anything to do with reality it's dismissed as 'shaming', 'mansplaining', or you 'just don't get it'.

Unrealenting • 49 points • 3 May, 2018 02:28 PM

Truth is treason in a society built on lies.

[deleted] • 26 points • 3 May, 2018 02:46 PM

"In individuals madness is rare, in society it is the rule" -Nietzsche

GodOfDinosaurs • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 01:02 PM

What the hell does this have to do with Marxism??

[deleted] • 14 points • 3 May, 2018 01:35 PM

"well, we couldn't get them to bring equality between economic classes... So how about other classes? Let's get the genders and races equal!" or something like that. Postmodernism, which was born out of the failure of Marxism, is a heavy influence on modern feminism.

GodOfDinosaurs • 4 points • 3 May, 2018 01:57 PM

But Marxism and postmodernism are totally antithetical. Marxists HATE postmodernism because it's heavily critical of dialectical materialism, which is the essence of Marxism. I don't see the connection.

VickVaseline • 8 points • 3 May, 2018 03:28 PM

...but postmodernists love Marxism, and that's all that matters.

GodOfDinosaurs • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 03:55 PM

Which postmodernists? I don't think it's possible to be a post-modern thinker and accept the core principles of Marxism.

RPAternate42 • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 02:46 PM

Start watching some Jordan B. Peterson

aslak123 • 1 point • 5 May, 2018 07:00 AM

Jordan Peterson himself even points out that marxism and post-modernism is incompatible.

GodOfDinosaurs • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 03:03 PM

I've seen his lectures and he doesn't have a firm grasp on those concepts. His archetypal psych stuff is interesting, although he relies pretty heavily on Jung. Also seems to be a big evopsych advocate, which is probably why he's popular here.

He's pretty incoherent when he starts talking about Marxism, postmodernism, etc. Seems to rely on pop conceptions of these subjects rather than a thorough understanding. Hence, the conflation of Marxism and postmodernism.

[deleted] • -1 points • 3 May, 2018 03:08 PM

Ah yes the true anti-establishment hero. /s

Ganaria_Gente • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 10:30 PM

But Marxism and postmodernism are totally antithetical.

then you should go talk to the far left supremacists who taught my uni. they were all explicitly postmodernist Marxists

GodOfDinosaurs • 1 point • 4 May, 2018 01:25 AM

I would like to speak to them. I don't know how you can be a materialist and historical determinist and still hold a post-modern perspective.

mallardcove • 28 points • 3 May, 2018 01:28 PM

Cultural Marxism, look it up

virusofthemind • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 07:56 PM

It's cultural Marxism. You break up functioning society by setting its members against each other; in other words "divide and conquer".

GodOfDinosaurs • 0 points • 3 May, 2018 08:16 PM

Who advocates that and what does that have to do with Marxism?

[deleted] • 0 points • 3 May, 2018 03:09 PM

The fact that you think idpol is Marxist means we are just beyond fucked.

Not_Another_Inch • 14 points • 3 May, 2018 03:22 PM

Anything that splits group a into oppressed and oppressors is Marxist by its very nature. You can certainly argue that it isn't what Marx himself originally had in mind, which would be correct, but also irrelevant. It's what the Marxists of the 60's decided to turn towards as their economic oppressed vs. oppressors argument lost steam as its failures became too apparent to most. Whether Marx himself would have approved is simply not relevant. Saying "but that's not true Marxism!" is correct but pointless.

[deleted] • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 04:16 PM

I mean, we have definitions for a reason. Marxists themselves, ever heard of Berniebros, hate Idpolitics as a diversion from real topics.

War splits groups, is it Marxism? Was the Civil Rights movement Marxism? Anti-slavery? Do you not see how fucking garbage your logic is?

If it isn't what Marx had in mind, it is not Marxism, and economic oppression arguments have not lost their steam, hence the popularity of economic populism both seen with Bernie (and alluded to by Trump).

The fact that your understanding of Marxism is limited to youtube videos from right wing Youtube personalities, and that you speak like an authority still, means we are so fucked.

[deleted] • 0 points • 3 May, 2018 06:45 PM

The concept of "Unite the oppressed against the oppressors" can and does take many different forms. Sure, "Marxism" that we know is typically used as a term for communist/socialist, but to argue that a core (possibly THE core) principle of that ideology can't be used as the ideological starting point for other movements is intellectually dishonest, especially if you want to claim they have nothing to do with one another.

The Oppressed vs Oppressors ideology can be applied to more than just economics.

GodOfDinosaurs • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 08:29 PM

That's not the core principal of Marxism. That would mean TRP is "Marxist". TRP views men in modern society as oppressed under the feminine imperative, and that we ought to fight against that etc etc. The foundational principals of Marxism are dialectical materialism and the labor theory of value. Right wingers on here and other corners of the internet just use Marxism as a scary buzzword for things they don't like.

[deleted] • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 10:04 PM

/u/mm1255 ^ What he said, moron

[deleted] • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 11:52 PM

Well that's a false comparison; I don't think most TRP would say men are literally oppressed in the west today. Yes there are certainly many systemic issues that work against men in today's society but that doesn't rise to "oppression", and most TRP would agree with that.

Economic Marxism as it exists today in relevant culture very largely draws on the premise that an economic system of oppressors have generated their wealth and wellbeing at the expense of those less fortunate/the poor, and accumulating this wealth (privilege) inherently is at the expense of the rest of society. You're telling me that there is no common principle of an oppressed/oppressor dynamic between Cultural Marxism and Marxist economic theory?

GodOfDinosaurs • 1 point • 4 May, 2018 01:21 AM

One of the main sidebar texts, The Manipulated Man, is all about how men are oppressed by modern society, the feminine imperative, marriage, etc. That's core TRP thought. Yes, Marxism is focused on the exploitation of the proletariat by the capitalist class. Namely, the difference between value produced and wages paid. This all depends on the LTV.

That doesn't mean oppression is the "defining" principle of Marxism, it's just a common feature with whatever you're calling "cultural Marxism". The abolition movement was explicitly about the oppression of slaves, suffrage about the oppression of women, civil rights the oppression of colored people, and so on. None of these movements are "Marxist", they just share the common feature of oppressor vs oppressed. Defining THAT as the core feature of Marxism would mean any social movement that happened ever was "Marxist". The American revolution would be Marxist. It's worth drilling down into what things actually mean before using them as a pejorative for things we don't like.

blister333 • 25 points • 3 May, 2018 11:49 AM that was great, or when the chick whos what? 70? complained about dating apps? bitch imagine being a 70 year old man on tinder. good luck even getting matches

Snazzy_Serval • 13 points • 3 May, 2018 01:07 PM

Actually men who are 70 and single do quite well. Around that age there are a lot more single women than single men, because all the single men are dead.

Arie_R • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 05:13 PM

You're forgetting that when women are 70, their life partners may have died (often a few years older) and that's why they are single again. So the pool of single women in their 70's is probably much larger than the pool of single men of the same age. The few men who make it into really old age will have the pick of the litter ;).

Snazzy_Serval • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 05:20 PM

You're forgetting that when women are 70, their life partners may have died

No it's included. You just went into more detail and made a good point about women with older men.

That's why in the 50+ there are more single women than men, it's because the men are either married, or dead.

ntvirtue • 1 point • 4 May, 2018 02:33 PM

When I hit my 70's I hope to be banging 20/30 somethings.

Snazzy_Serval • 3 points • 4 May, 2018 02:42 PM

Well sure that would be great.

Though banging women in their 50's and up is more reasonable.

ntvirtue • 2 points • 4 May, 2018 02:46 PM

Not having any experience as I am still 30 some odd years away from my 70's.....I think its like fat chicks....It takes just as much effort to bang a fat chick as a hot chick so why not bang the hot one?

VickVaseline • 10 points • 3 May, 2018 03:29 PM

Don't forget, it is also harder for most younger men to get dates than it is for most older women, and that's a shocking truth.

BelligerentTurkey • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 09:41 PM

Well it seems supply just found demand...

[deleted] • 5 points • 3 May, 2018 08:44 PM

If you think about it that way they definitely have it harder. When you're 20(or however old you were at the time) your brain is still pretty plastic and you can still learn. Not being super attractive to woman have made me a pretty interesting person. Now after college with a decent job and unattached, girls don't understand how I'm single and to be honest I get confused why they think so because of all the formative years. She on the other end is on the downward hill and man it must suck, it's what I imagine loving music and losing your hearing is like.

"There's few things valued less than a young man or an old woman" ~ TRP

TheReformist94 • 20 points • 3 May, 2018 08:44 AM

Grey hair is easily remedied by dying of the hair on the woman's part. It's easy for them to go on dates as people date in their own age brackets. They have plenty of options,I don't see any of them single with men their age are dating 24year olds.

I've seen it here in my office,the MILFs rele rate themselves and men in their 30s are drooling over them. Same Pareto principle applies,90% of the men in their 30s are invisible, and the MILFs eye up the good looking Tom Hardy's and the chads in their 20s.

Never heard of grey shaming

handklap • 41 points • 3 May, 2018 12:22 PM*

Grey hair is easily remedied by dying of the hair on the woman's part.

Also, don't forget how women love to shame men who dye their hair. A guy with gray hair shows up at the office one day with dyed hair and the entire female staff snickers behind his back about his "mid-life crisis".

The "silver fox" is another lie. What women mean by this is a good looking man (like George Clooney) continues to be good looking with gray hair. When they lie to themselves, "I like gray hair" what they mean is, "I like gray hair on men that are already very attractive".

Infiltrator92 • 17 points • 3 May, 2018 12:58 PM

Can't we say the same thing about anything about a man? A women can say, "I like men who dress "nerdy""

No, you like attractive men who dress like stereotypical nerds.

tempolaca • 7 points • 4 May, 2018 01:40 AM

Same with bald men. Women only like already good looking, shredded bald men. He would be hot with hair anyway.

Rick_OShay1 • 2 points • 5 May, 2018 08:23 AM

The "silver fox" is another lie. What women mean by this is a good looking man (like George Clooney) continues to be good looking with gray hair. When they lie to themselves, "I like gray hair" what they mean is, "I like gray hair on men that are already very attractive".

Not to mention "rich and famous".

TheReformist94 • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 09:32 PM

It's a double standard that exists just like the slut stud one. women can dye their hair. men can't. Silver foxes won the genetic lottery (read: looks).

If a woman don't wanna fuck u when u were 21 she doesn't want to fuck u when u are 21. That's called settling. AFBB

Arie_R • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 05:14 PM

I doubt 90% of men in their 30's are invisible, since many men this age will be in a relationship and thus weren't invisible. This is the age many women and men want to settle down to have children.

TheReformist94 • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 09:30 PM

Yeh u answered ur q. They got settled on. rest assured they're getting cheated on in after work drinks. AFBB on steroids

IronJohnKwando • 346 points • 2 May, 2018 11:37 PM

"We are just... disposable". Ah, to live the life of a man.

VasilyZaitzev • 270 points • 3 May, 2018 02:08 AM

The most brutal thing you can do to a woman demanding "EQUALITY!" is to give it to her.

They only want the "good parts" of being a man, they want none of the sacrifice, responsibility or work. What we do isn't easy, we just make it look easy.

Illbe10-7 • 1 points • 3 May, 2018 04:54 AM [recovered]

When you've had privilege your entire life, equality feels like oppression.

calicotricket • 73 points • 3 May, 2018 05:48 AM

Yep, look at how many cried on Twitter when women could be drafted in the US. Their responses were actually "I don't want this kind of equality".

Equality in a nutshell - take the good bits, but you know, the bad bits for all is literally oppression!

Infiltrator92 • 22 points • 3 May, 2018 01:00 PM

"I don't want this kind of equality".

My god, I just laughed out loud when I read this.

exit_sandman • 11 points • 3 May, 2018 12:11 PM

...and criticism feels like hatred.

(that one actually is a feminist saying as well IIRC. Funny how these always work both ways)

Rick_OShay1 • 1 point • 5 May, 2018 08:25 AM

When you've had privilege your entire life, equality feels like oppression.

Being experts at projection, women use that saying ALL the time.

thewrecker8 • 35 points • 3 May, 2018 09:41 AM

They only want the "good parts" of being a man, they want none of the sacrifice, responsibility or work. What we do isn't easy, we just make it look easy.

There was a movie with Jack Nicholson where he was a writer and he did women's book's. In the movie, a woman he was dating asked him "how do you write women so well? " He said "first I start with a man, then I take away responsibility and accountability".

pennynotrcutt • 13 points • 3 May, 2018 02:43 PM

He says "reason and accountability"

Zelthia • 6 points • 3 May, 2018 01:15 PM

Is that called "Better impossible" or smth like that??

CosmicSpiral • 7 points • 3 May, 2018 07:27 PM

As Good as It Gets

SKRedPill • 26 points • 3 May, 2018 04:03 AM*

Idealism is the oldest form of politics. The easiest way to gain a king's privileges is to demand the king's treatment, but none of the responsibilities

Ganaria_Gente • 14 points • 3 May, 2018 04:47 AM

Yep. I made an entire thread about it on the MRA sub but basically:

Most bad jobs are taken by men. But of course the supremacists don't want them.

And how about health statistics? The supremacists don't care about making that equal, either.

All the good stuff only. For women only abc69 • 5 points • 3 May, 2018 09:49 AM

they want none of the sacrifice, responsibility or work

Tom Leykis said those same words back back when he was on the radio. I'll see if I can find an audio clip of it

mattzie • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 02:43 PM

He was great to listen to. I listened to a fair few of his shows on youtube.

Is he still going or has he finally hung up the gloves?

Comicus[S] • 37 points • 3 May, 2018 04:13 AM

I was so tempted to say just that. "Oh, you mean guys no longer want to put your needs and feelings at the forefront, support you whenever you're in need, and reward you for your very presence everywhere you go? Welcome to being male!"

ShotgunTRP • 12 points • 3 May, 2018 06:46 PM

They outright do not understand that men don't get this same treatment

My mother used to always say "tell everyone about being depressed" and encourage me to splurge my feelings to literally anyone who would listen

My guess is she assumed people would treat me how they treated her. By offering infinite support and no judgement

My experience with sharing feelings was weird looks, no support, cold shoulders and losing friends

It didn't take me long to realise that this method was a losing one and there's a reason men throughout history kept their shit to themselves

Women just do not understand that men get completely different treatment socially.

blister333 • 6 points • 3 May, 2018 11:50 AM i chuckled at that. same with the part about hiring older women- older men struggled their too. its apparent in tech for sure

MachoMug • 0 points • 2 May, 2018 11:51 PM

On point!

thewrecker8 • 332 points • 2 May, 2018 11:15 PM

I love how anything that doesn't fit a woman's narrative is some kind of "shaming". So far we have: fat shaming, slut shaming, gray shaming. Whats next? I can't help the odor of my vagina so stop smelly pussy shaming...

redpillchill • 116 points • 2 May, 2018 11:51 PM

yes. i've literally had that conversation with a woman last year (she was a friend of my ex girlfriend).

"Vaginas are all like that. Men just don't get it."

dont_fear_the_raper • 68 points • 3 May, 2018 03:49 AM

As if cock smells like fresh peaches from the garden of eden

HobbitForest • 16 points • 3 May, 2018 04:14 PM

It does if you take a shower jeez.

[deleted] • 34 points • 3 May, 2018 04:48 AM

Adam's peaches were fresh before woman made them smelly

moroi • 31 points • 3 May, 2018 06:08 AM

Well... those tasty freshly shaven and washed bits of my teen plates would definitely beg to differ.

[deleted] • 6 points • 3 May, 2018 04:27 PM

"So I can not wash my cock and have it stink. You would be okay with that, right?"

Of course they wouldn't. The way to deal with these types of arguments is to expose the hypocrisy.

blindface • 1 point • 4 May, 2018 08:57 PM

To be honest, though, I don't think that's what's happening. I think women with smelly vaginas usually either have some kind of infection or they're washing with soap instead of just warm water, which strips away the natural bacteria and lets the nasty stuff fester.

Sonos • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 07:09 AM

No they fucking aren't.

13thPlayer • 36 points • 2 May, 2018 11:50 PM

That last one is meant to be hyperbole but I can clearly see that happening

BewareTheOldMan • 50 points • 3 May, 2018 01:47 AM

...anything that doesn't fit a woman's narrative is some kind of "shaming"

Hence - women's frustration. Despite numerous attempts, shaming men is completely ineffective.

Every now and then, you get the dutiful Beta Chump to sacrifice himself for the obese, financially-strapped, Single Mother of 3 kids with daddy issues, and that pesky little "past drug habit."

However, more often is the "Hard No" based on fat acceptance, slut acceptance, Single Mother acceptance, etc. - especially Top 20% Men. Top Tier men scoff at the idea of "man-shaming" in ANY form and a lot of other males as well.

When women readily accept obese, financially-strapped, divorced fathers/Single Fathers of 3 kids with mommy issues, and that pesky little "past drug habit" on a large-scale basis, they might have basis for their argument.

TheSelfGoverned • 10 points • 3 May, 2018 10:04 PM*

It wasn't long ago (2015?) that feminists had a huge push to get this entire sub banned. Amazing how quickly people forget that they attempted to squash freedom of speech itself in the name of protecting their victim (and male oppressor) narrative...and men almost bent to their wishes. Thankfully enough of us had a minor backbone, and now, it all almost seems like ancient history.

And their narrative is so transparent...when men aren't even allowed to anonymously speak to each other, in their own spaces, on the internet...then who is the real victim, and who is the real oppressor? Feminism really is one giant culture-wide shit-test.

smailnaill • 15 points • 3 May, 2018 03:16 AM

Yes, there is a sketch in the vagina monologues about covering up the odor of vagina with fragrances. Quote: "Pussy is not supposed to smell like fruit. Pussy is supposed to smell like pussy!"

scissor_me_timbers00 • 14 points • 3 May, 2018 04:25 AM

A little fruitiness won't hurt

SirKolbath • 1 point • 6 May, 2018 01:25 AM

If I find out you willingly saw that shitfest, I'll have you beaten with reeds.

idontevenlift37 • 9 points • 3 May, 2018 07:46 AM

Bruh I bet you're accurately predicting the future with that, calling out a girl who has a smelly vagina from all the diseases she has from riding the cock carousel will probably become shaming pretty soon smh

MaxWyght • 23 points • 3 May, 2018 06:49 AM

I can't help the odor of my vagina so stop smelly pussy shaming...

Literally saw a post on instagram about that:

"Vaginal discharge is normal. Vaginas aren't supposed to smell like rainbows and sunshine. Yeast infections are common."

Vaginal discharge and unpleasant scent are symptomatic of yeast infection.

Yeast infections are only common in vegan females, who consume higher amounts of carbs.

Women with proper diets have a much harder time getting their vaginal yeast breed uncontrollably.

eccentricrealist • 4 points • 3 May, 2018 02:33 PM

That's because shame is their weapon of choice shitlord

Sp0kySc4rySk3l3t0n • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 08:37 AM

If it weren't for Eve Adam wouldn't be tricked into eating the fruit

blister333 • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 11:51 AM

the funny thing is, they showed what looked like photos from an US/People type of magazine. who do you think buys those? who writes them?

GroundhogLiberator • 192 points • 3 May, 2018 12:18 AM > ignoring the majority of single men their age who are balding and have pot bellies and extra chins and are probably not doing any better than their entitled female counterparts.

These men don't exist, my friend. They don't enter a woman's mind, period.

blister333 • 42 points • 3 May, 2018 11:52 AM unless they need help- flat tire, moving, homework, doing anything they dont wanna do...

reluctantly_red • 5 points • 3 May, 2018 07:03 PM

unless they need help- flat tire, moving, homework, doing anything they dont wanna do...

Which is why its not a good idea to own a pickup truck. :)

red_matrix • 104 points • 3 May, 2018 12:09 AM

The media caters to women. Gotta sell 'dem ads.

Dmva100 • 1 points • 3 May, 2018 12:36 AM [recovered]

Soon well have 'Just for Women' grey hair eliminator, not in California though, gotta be genderfluid.

Fuckers

Ivan_The_Reddish • 17 points • 3 May, 2018 05:44 AM

'Just for Xir', you transphobic pig!

red_matrix • 14 points • 3 May, 2018 12:48 AM

I've thought about moving to California a lot, I came close a few years ago. It's so sad what's happened to that place.

alucidexit • 4 points • 3 May, 2018 11:33 AM

I'm leaving California. Gonna miss the weather, food, and certain clubs... Not much else.

red_matrix • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 12:36 PM

The weather and landscape is what I love. The cost is insane

Dmva100 • 1 points • 3 May, 2018 12:54 AM [recovered]

California = Black and Latino terrorists

bowhunter6 • 12 points • 3 May, 2018 01:54 AM

Oh, the white people there are fucking it up just as bad, my friend.

numchux53 • 7 points • 3 May, 2018 02:51 AM

They did now they are leaving. So many California based business are moving their HQ to Dallas.

Darkone06 • 5 points • 3 May, 2018 04:18 AM

Built a wall around Texas and make California pay for it.

red_matrix • 5 points • 3 May, 2018 12:58 AM

I thought it was progressive terrorists?

reluctantly_red • 1 points • 3 May, 2018 07:05 PM [recovered]

California = Black and Latino terrorists

Bye white trash -- we'll miss you -- NOT!

cuteman • 4 points • 3 May, 2018 03:14 PM

Have you been into one of those stores like Sephora and Ulta?

It isn't men seperating people into 800 different colors.

PutItAllOnRed • 2 points • 5 May, 2018 02:31 PM

As a professional ad seller, you're god damn right. Baby needs new shoes, so I'll sell your wife even more expensive new shoes!

The_Lightskin_Wonder • 78 points • 3 May, 2018 01:30 AM

That's like a homosexual person calling me out for not finding them attractive, my brain can sort out a good looking woman in a crowd instantly, I don't choose this. It's not like I choose to find younger woman attractive, and they're are probably a few grey haired women I would fuck , you're just mad you're not one of them.

[deleted] • 36 points • 3 May, 2018 03:20 AM

Trans people are doing this. If you don't want to fuck their mutilated penis stub that means you are discriminating.

Andgelyo • 30 points • 3 May, 2018 03:40 AM

They could go fuck themselves, nothing wrong with a straight man denying someone he does not find attractive.

Reptilesblade • 1 point • 4 May, 2018 11:28 PM

Yeah this is the thing some trans people don't get. I'm a man and I have just as much right to chose to engage in sexual activities with a natural woman instead of a mutilated man just as they have the right to mutilate themselves.

My free will and how I exercise it is entirely up to me and they if can't handle that then they can go fuck off because the problem isn't mine, it's theirs.

n-esimacuenta • 1 point • 6 May, 2018 02:15 AM

Nothing that good ol' social engineering cannot change

Reptilesblade • 0 points • 6 May, 2018 03:59 AM

Not even going to happen a little bit.

warhawk109 • -5 points • 3 May, 2018 06:14 AM

Trans have no problem getting laid. Maybe the really gross manish looking ones. Tons of dudes that will fuck them.

Andgelyo • 10 points • 3 May, 2018 11:42 AM

Low status dicklets probably, I for one wouldn't ever go near one.

[deleted] • 1 point • 7 May, 2018 08:03 PM

The ones that you are thinking of who do porn or work as escorts are like the top 1%. They are basically just satisfying a niche fetish market. The other 99% are hideous freaks.

Even the top ones will never have real interactions with men besides being fetish objects though, for obvious reasons.

blister333 • 9 points • 3 May, 2018 11:52 AM

bro not gonna lie, i thought Moneypenny was quite attractive for an older, gray haired woman

meowgoesdog • 130 points • 3 May, 2018 12:30 AM

The whole thing is ridiculous as fuck but what is the funniest thing is that they are somehow trying to blame men for being called attractive even with grey hair

A "silver fox" or whatever is a term used by women so how are they even gonna blame us for that?

Overall I think it makes very much sense that we don't find grey haired women attractive since it very much screams out "this woman is no longer a potential mother", no1 likes brown bananas

And it makes sense that women themselves despise it aswell since women hate not being wanted, can we just not accept that certain things are meant to be harsh and mean, that's just life, modern age women want life to be filled with happiness and rainbows, they are really just big babies

truedemocracy3 • 49 points • 3 May, 2018 01:49 AM

Once again it's women denying the natural truth. Men value fertility. Women value status/power. I feel bad for the ones that actually bought this lie and are now late 30s, single, and in trouble on the dating market

WiseMonkeyGoodMonkey • 5 points • 3 May, 2018 10:52 PM

I don't. At all. I don't wish it on anyone, but I understand that everyone gets a share. It's just a matter of timing. Men get it early and women get it late. I don't even understand why there's a discussion.

truedemocracy3 • 4 points • 3 May, 2018 11:28 PM

I think it depends on the situation. If "be nice and kind, a woman who loves you for you will come around. "the one" will happen when you least expect it! Personality over everything!" is the Blue Pill in dating for men then the equivalent for women is "You can have it all! Chase that career and party around while you can in college and your 20s! Dont worry about settling down! You will get Mr. Right because you deserve it!". Both of these encompass a Blue Pill mentality.

If someone is a decent person, and the vast majority of humans are, then they simply bought into the lie and never realized they were playing against the clock. I take no pleasure in seeing a woman in her early 30s with emerging wrinkles, grey hairs, extra weight, etc. who badly want kids but is having no possible outlet to achieve that struggle. However, if there is one benefit to being a man it's that our pain comes early while for a woman it comes late. And pain is how someone finds this sub. So a woman can find the equivalent if she truly wants in her 30s but by then - too late

WiseMonkeyGoodMonkey • 1 point • 4 May, 2018 01:00 AM

I take no pleasure in it either. That being said, people are generally aware of being lied to. They just roll with the lies they like or agree with. So no pleasure in their pain. But no real sympathy either. I am pretty chock full of I don't actually care.

truedemocracy3 • 1 point • 4 May, 2018 05:45 PM

Oh same - I don't lose sleep or cry at night for those women. I know they've had their opportunity and their chances. But don't take pleasure in the revenge fantasy aspect of it either.

Live your life and gain value from that is IMO the best approach

Entropy-7 • 21 points • 3 May, 2018 03:28 AM

Perhaps an even harsher reality is that some guys can be attractive with no hair at an advanced age.

Dwayne Johnson is 46, but then again he is 6'5" and about 265. Jason Statham is 50 and more average sized at 5'10" (but depending on the movie, as low as 6% bodyfat). Bruce Willis, now in his 60s. Patrick Stewart, now in his 70s.

[deleted] • 17 points • 3 May, 2018 12:31 PM

Amazing how hyper-famous millionaire bald dudes overcome their chrome, i wonder what the secret might be?

Entropy-7 • 4 points • 3 May, 2018 01:57 PM

They can carry it, but it is all relative. I am not hyper-famous nor a millionaire but I have not had a problem in the last 20 years since I started going clean shaven.

Some people make curious comments like "you have the right head for it". I mean, WTF? I am not a fucking Klingon.

Celebrities in this case are merely examples of guys who don't have gorgeous hair who are still in the same league as other hyper-famous millionaires that do.

If I said I know Joe who shaves his head and slays, you have no first hand knowledge of that.

I'm not saying that every guy could work it anymore than every guy could be a "silver fox" but there are enough examples that it really triggers post-wall broads who try to identify some injustice or hypocrisy in male and female value standards.

scissor_me_timbers00 • 6 points • 3 May, 2018 04:28 AM

Plenty of older bald guys crush puss

Zelthia • 10 points • 3 May, 2018 01:21 PM

I'm heavily balding and I am definitely more successful with women than I was in my 20's with full hair. I am only starting my RP journey, but I definitely do better than I did when I was 120% BP.

Maybe it's the leaner body, maybe it's the attitude, I don't fucking know. Balding nowadays is simply no handicap. So easily overcome by frame, career, lifting...

pinkalligator333 • 3 points • 4 May, 2018 06:10 AM

Actually brown bananas are great for making banana bread, the bread just expires fast ☐

KamiNoTsurugi • 1 points • 3 May, 2018 01:44 AM [recovered]

Example of silver fox:

Greg Berzinsky.

Entropy-7 • 0 points • 3 May, 2018 03:19 AM

Greg Berzinsky.

He seems more Beard of Awesome. I was thinking more Kenny Rogers although that pic goes back to the 80s and he is now 79 years old.

Does Man From Glad count?

thecorgisleeps • 82 points • 2 May, 2018 11:45 PM

99% of women want 6ft fit guys who make 6 figures and have huge cocks and dont mind making fun or ignornrg short guys, but they dont want to do things as trivial as buy hair dye or lose weight??

[deleted] • 52 points • 3 May, 2018 01:09 AM*

The sad part is women could have that guy (6'0, 6 figures, lifts) when they're past their prime if they were more prospective in their mating.

If women settled in their early to mid 20's for a guy that has potential but hasn't quite made it yet it will pay off for them when they're post-wall and he's hitting his prime. She would enjoy a couple decades of that guy while she's on the decline (there's a good chapter about this in the first rational male book).

It never works out like that, though.

truedemocracy3 • 61 points • 3 May, 2018 01:56 AM

Yea I see this quite a bit. I love dating around (takes a lot for me to even consider an LTR) - and the difference between dating women in their early and late 20s is hysterical. For some reason women are told to 'find themselves', 'travel', 'have fun' (all code for taking dick) in their early 20s and buy into it. By about 25 - 26 they look around and shift gears to 'dating'. Many are ok with this, but man if they dont land someone then it is FULL PANIC BUTTON MODE in late 20s/early 30s. We are talking on 2nd date 'Dont waste my time', 'I want to be mutually exclusive', 'do you want kids', etc. etc.

The saddest thing is pre-RP me would have been ecstatic with this. Even understanding that 'I won in the long run! She ended up falling for me'. Sadly the truth is it's her situation that drives that decision, not preference. And for that any potential relationship is built on a lie

blister333 • 10 points • 3 May, 2018 11:55 AM

my sisters' 30th birthday party was a great example of this. her friends who were married had such better attitudes and didnt complain nearly as much as her single friends. i heard lots of complaints about being pumped n dumped, it was hilarious. i wish i recorded some of the convo's, they'd fit in perfectly here

loveladee • 10 points • 3 May, 2018 01:53 PM

That's the worst thing man for me now - is even if I want a relationship with a woman, I can't tell if she actually loves me, or if I'm convenient to that moment or need. Then I realize, there probably isn't a difference between these things

truedemocracy3 • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 11:32 PM

I'm not closed off to LTR but that's why I really dont date anyone older than 26 right now. If you hit it off with a girl and she's into her early 20s she is really into you. If you hit it off with a girl in her late 20s/early 30s she could be into you but just as likely she is looking for a lifeboat

reluctantly_red • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 07:10 PM

Sadly the truth is it's her situation that drives that decision, not preference. And for that any potential relationship is built on a lie

This!!! Sadly I had to learn this the hard way. I worked hard to change my ex-wife's situation and as repayment got dumped for a richer guy.

truedemocracy3 • 4 points • 3 May, 2018 11:30 PM

Jesus, some loyalty. And that's the severe downside of LTR/Marriages. You can be a great husband/boyfriend. You can provide, protect, maintain frame, lift etc. But if someone with that higher SMV catches an eye for your wife you can still lose it all.

reluctantly_red • 1 point • 4 May, 2018 06:09 PM

Loyalty and reciprocity are two words that far too many women don't seem to understand.

Pooch231 • 1 points • 3 May, 2018 03:37 AM [recovered]

Men are actually worse about wanting to sleep around and play the field in their youth. I think a lot of women want to settle down early but their male counterparts don't. Sure, some nerdy guys would gladly commit to women out of their league but that doesn't count.

I was in an LTR from 20-22 and then in another one from 23-24/25 My college LTR didn't want me to move for grad school even though his career had way more flexibility for location than mine. He wanted to live with his parents for a few years after graduation to save money.

My second bf was the one who didn't feel ready to settle down. He wasn't some Chad. He was above average looking (as was I) but was introverted and socially awkward.

Ime there are more women than men that want to settle down early. I would have gladly settled down with either of my two LTRs if things had just worked out differently.

I actually want to settle down less now than I did when I was younger.

BewareTheOldMan • 16 points • 3 May, 2018 05:13 AM

So... you wasted time with men who DID NOT want to marry for whatever reason and it's their fault?

PRO TIP: DON'T spend ONE SECOND with men who have no interest in marriage or make excuses NOT to marry when you have every intent to marry in your early 20s.

Women have to accept responsibility for their life-decisions - you offered empty excuses that amounts to directing blame to other people. This is a false narrative. Blame belongs directly on your shoulders.

Also - opinions don't count. I recommend using facts and statistics to support and strengthen your statement.

You started dating age 20 in college I presume. This is a bad move. At age 18, start dating for marriage ONLY and with that specific intent if you desire early 20s marriage - date for nothing else and NO OTHER reason(s) and indicate these are your terms, conditions, requirements, and standards. ALWAYS BE READY to be a wife and mother when establishing these terms, conditions, and requirements.

Also - it helps to be a virgin, wholesome, woman of character and demonstrated and verifiable integrity. Anything else is dishonest and misleading to men when women show up after having started sexual activity in their teenage years with teenage boys because...any man age 18 and higher is subject to statutory rape accusations.

You can start over, but now you have to make adjustments based on age and N-count. You have much less leverage and latitude to establish requirements than at age 18.

I recommend single, older, never-married men and be open to divorced men either with or without children - that's your recommended cohort. As a late 20s woman you have to adjust based on the type of men you can attract.

If you lack genuine attraction AND compatibility, shared interests, and shared life-goals - it's a wash. These are ALL Must-Haves.

Leave this man be as he is NOT "your guy."

More PRO TIPS - pass the aforementioned advice to young women in your family and social circles. It's good advice as women who follow this basic format have few issues - if any.

KarmaEnthusiast • 10 points • 3 May, 2018 04:42 AM

What is your point? We're not playing "who's the bigger victim". We're pointing out the flaw in logic in female reproductive strategy. You can't directly parallel male and female behaviour because guess what, we're different.

Men sleeping around doesn't have as high a negative impact on our ability to foster relationships.

Comicus[S] • 29 points • 3 May, 2018 04:21 AM

Very true, when I was younger my early 20s girlfriend that I'd been in a loving, 4 year relationship with dumped me because I didn't get a great job right out of college so she assumed it meant I was a deadbeat who would never go anywhere in life. She herself was still in college but still thought she could do better than me. Six months later, my career got into full swing and since then I've gone through several replacements for her, while she's still single, alone, and working minimum wage jobs and unpaid internships.

The_Chiselator • 14 points • 3 May, 2018 08:47 AM

Nah. You miss the point dude. She didn't dump you because you were a deadbeat. She dumped you because you now entered a population of men where you were at the bottom of the pile i.e. the working man.

Previously you were quite cool and a top tier dude compared to your college mates. She could handle that. But then you left and entered a different demographic and she realised that, comparatively, you were actually low value.

It is just her lizard brain at work. Looking out for her interests. Making sure that only the very best sperm get close to her precious, irreplaceable eggs. Does she think she made a mistake? Fuck no. Thinking that way is nurturing a revenge fantasy. She hamstered it all away long ago and in her mind you dumped her.

LMAO! Them bitches are operating in a different astral plane. Forget the bitch. Keep working.

cornerofficemouth • 6 points • 3 May, 2018 04:49 PM

This is similar to my situation.

<Flashback> Married my wife when we were both 22. She was out of my league. I was a tall, skinny, clumsy idiot fuck. But I had just been through years of fucking brutality with an abusive alcoholic father and the worst case of facial acne you can imagine. I came out of my teenage years stoic as fuck because of all my downtime. I wasn't afraid of rejection or people not liking me. After a while, my face had mostly cleared up, which helped with my confidence. I stared down my dad after he threw a fucking appliance at me and I realized I could/should kill him in that moment. I didn't. I got up, shook myself off and it led me to realize that, not only did I not need him, but he was limiting me. Started living for myself right in that moment and moved on. <End Flashback>

<Short Background> After we were married and had a couple kids, we moved to the suburbs and I started sliding, man. Got a little chubby, a little complacent. My wife hung in there like a fucking champ. Can't believe she put up with that retard. Anyway, I started feeling restless. Like I had immense will that was not being satisfied by 9 to 5 job, hobby on weekends, riding it out killing time until I died. Started getting my shit together. Focused on one area at a time. Started with dumb motivational shit. Mindset or whatever. Didn't feel like enough. Moved on to action. Didn't take too long for shit to come together. Started looking around for other people that felt similar to me. Restless guys looking for constant challenge and improvement. Found this place. <End Short Background>

Anyway, to your point, I'm 6'4", 6 figure salary, I lift, all that shit. Don't get me wrong, I have a long fucking way to go to be close to what I want to be. But, to my wife, she knows she's with a man that has met the potential she might have seen when we were 22. She may have doubted my poor schlump ass the whole time, who knows. Probably. I don't give a fuck. It's always been my lack of satisfaction with myself that has cut the deepest. She still tests/complains/whatever all time, I think - I'm not really sure, I am just kind of amused by her crazy shit. I look at her now and I see what I saw back then, a cute girl with huge tits who believes in me. Not a bad thing to have, as long as you believe in your own chump ass first.

BewareTheOldMan • 3 points • 4 May, 2018 12:36 AM

Great story - glad you worked through your problems and came out better on the other side.

Best wishes to you, your wife, and your family.

thecorgisleeps • 12 points • 3 May, 2018 01:14 AM

And another sad thing is, many women where im at actually do go for the "bad guy" instead of a nice one who'll support them, not to say the nice guy thing is correct in every way, but they do have a point, because bad guys are exciting to women, heck even a friend i knew is pregnant now without a father.

TheTrenTrannyTrain • 13 points • 3 May, 2018 01:56 AM

They only learn the error of their ways well past their prime when they've squandered their looks and their hair turns grey.

Doubtful. Solipsism means women can't be introspective.

[deleted] • 16 points • 3 May, 2018 03:19 AM

I'm not sure I buy that women are inherently solipsistic. I know that biology can explain most female behavior such as hypergamy, but the few well adjusted women out there are actually capable of being highly empathetic. I think female solipsism is mainly a function of how women in our society are raised on piles of bullshit and held to no standards whatsoever.

wisty • 7 points • 3 May, 2018 06:13 AM

I'm not sure I buy that women are inherently solipsistic

People are inherently solipsistic, not just women.

TheTrenTrannyTrain • -1 points • 3 May, 2018 04:51 AM

Sure there are some that might not be as vapid as the average woman, but you're talking about a one in a million.

okuli • 16 points • 3 May, 2018 06:52 AM*

As a 6ft fit guy with 6 figures in late 30s, I can tell you that 99% of women still want something else.

For giggles I put in Bumble profession as Pastry Cook, and a lot of women started matching me and sending messages how lovely it is. Ugh... I have no idea why pastry cook is much sexier than software engineer at top tier company.

UEMcGill • 9 points • 3 May, 2018 02:01 PM

Because if you don't pan out they can make you an orbiter who bakes them pinterest worthy cup cakes they can Instagram #girlsnight

DragonSh1t • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 07:16 AM

Can you elaborate on the software engineer thing?

okuli • 10 points • 3 May, 2018 07:39 AM

I'm a software engineer, and no woman ever said how cool is that.

FeelTheBernieSanderz • 25 points • 3 May, 2018 08:54 AM*

Dude just call yourself an engineer, never emphasise the computer part with girls they HATE it.

There's something about 'software/computer' that (almost rightly) implies an aspie nerd/beta soyboy hunched over a monitor which is uncool.

Being an 'engineer' leaves room to maneuver and implies a more physical, mask/gloves on approach (manly).

When women probe, describe MALE QUALITIES than the technicals, for example 'I lead a team

...' or 'We do IT work for <insert well known brand she will know> .

They want to know if you can wrestle a BEAR, not a BUG!

okuli • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 07:01 PM

just call yourself an engineer

Wouldn't work, because where I live majority of population work either at Microsoft, Amazon or Google. Anytime I meet someone, they say: "let me guess... you work at Microsoft..."

DragonSh1t • 5 points • 3 May, 2018 08:28 AM

Just say you're a consultant for a high tech firm or some shit.

ApexmanRP • 3 points • 4 May, 2018 12:32 PM

"99% of women want 6ft fit guys who make 6 figures and have huge cocks"

yes they do... lights cigar..

AsmellyFinger • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 12:15 AM

Some girls like normal sized cocks, but I see what you mean bro.

thecorgisleeps • 32 points • 3 May, 2018 12:19 AM

My point being, they like guys for things guys cant control but women dont wanna do things they can control for guys.

[deleted] • 4 points • 3 May, 2018 12:36 AM*

I get the cock size and height. But you can definitely "control" your income.

thecorgisleeps • -1 points • 3 May, 2018 01:00 AM

Yeah true, but it is hard for anyone to get a grasp on getting good income in someones early 20's.

alexclarkbarry • -13 points • 3 May, 2018 06:33 AM

Not hard at all if you are in the cryptocurrency field.

VasiliyZaitzev • 73 points • 3 May, 2018 02:16 AM

The prime complainer was probably a fox when she was younger. She still has a bit of it about her. Very often such women have the most difficult time coming to grips with aging. They are used to be fawned over, romanced, taken on trips, parties on yachts, whatever.

Then they get old.

And they meet our old friend, Mr. Wall<sup>SPLAT!</sup>

Right now, the most unattractive thing about that woman is her cunt, entitled attitude. She's out in the world of men and suddenly what MEN want matters. If she was a bit more sunny and dyed her hair, then she'd probably do pretty well in the 55+ crowd.

Oh, well...I suppose her cats won't care about her grey.

Comicus[S] • 19 points • 3 May, 2018 05:39 AM

Exactly, she was so used to getting what she wanted by relying only on her looks that she never took the time to cultivate having any other good qualities, or learning how to bring something else to the table that doesn't have such a close expiration date. Evidently she still hasn't figured that out, and probably never will - can't teach an old dog new tricks, as they say.

Friendly_Jackal • 7 points • 3 May, 2018 11:19 AM

"It's MY hair and I'll dye it if I want to!!"

"Men are so worried dating a woman with grey hair will make THEM look old!"

Translation: "my wants and preferences are the only thing that matters!!"

blister333 • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 12:00 PM

newsflash lady: most people dont want to look old

[deleted] • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 10:23 PM

I saw on PBS Newshour (yeah, I know) some old crone talking to Judy Woodruff, talking about metoo.....saying "You know, they aren't exactly harassing us anymore." in a really wistful tone....the horror in Woodruff's eyes was something to behold!

Graefinator • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 03:04 AM

Was thinking the same

francisco_DANKonia • 61 points • 3 May, 2018 12:41 AM

Literally nobody shames a woman for being old. They just aren't attracted

Ivan_The_Reddish • 26 points • 3 May, 2018 05:45 AM

Other women sure do. Funny that.

[deleted] • 8 points • 3 May, 2018 04:33 PM

Ding ding ding.

heynumba2 • 12 points • 3 May, 2018 03:54 AM

The irony of her explaining how she decided to "be herself" and not dye her hair any longer once she hit 50 while simultaneously caking on makeup to make herself look more attractive is just so perfect.

fukdembitches • 38 points • 3 May, 2018 12:04 AM

It's understandable, the most vocal feminists tend to be ugly, bloated and entitled. They are solipstic and hate taking self responsibility for their actions. Feminsm is akin to an opiate for these aesthetic failures to blame others for their wretchedness.

Anyone can see that these landwhales ruined themselves.

After all how often do you see 10/10 instasluts with 100,000s of followers bitching about "the patriarchy" as an excuse for their relationship failures.

[deleted] • 20 points • 3 May, 2018 03:15 AM

Feminism is a political movement/religion designed to transfer power and resources from men to unattractive women.

BewareTheOldMan • 24 points • 3 May, 2018 01:37 AM

A good line from the video:

"Why should it matter what you do with your hair?"

The base answer is "it doesn't matter. It's your hair. Do with it what you wish."

Understand this: Men are NOT obligated to select you as a mate. After all - it's a man's choice as to who he selects for a mate.

A better question is "Why should it matter what men do as it relates to their personal choice for a mate?"

This smacks of everything certain women love to shame men for NOT doing for women. It's predictable behavior. I don't understand how women don't get that shaming men into selecting you for ANYTHING only makes it worse for the woman, but mainly for men as they suffer silently by giving in to societal pressure into "taking one for the team."

Don't jump on that grenade guys - hold fast to your preferences. It's as if men are NOT ALLOWED to have preferences that directly conflict with women's preferences.

Seriously though - man has problems dating, finding a mate, or marrying...it's men's fault.

Woman has problems dating, finding a mate, or marrying - it's men's fault and a boatload of misogyny, male selfishness, and inconsiderate behavior.

Good grief! If a man has capacity to select a better mate, he is somehow placing women at disadvantage for not choosing the lesser, much worse option.

So... just what does a man get from either society or these women for their dutiful and selfless sacrifice?

Appreciation? Gratitude? Veneration?

I'll answer my own question with the fact that the man gets nothing and is expected to "take the loss."

No thanks - give these women a "Hard No" if they are don't fit your preference. It's the same line women use when they deem a man "unsuitable." Let's offer the same in return because...equality and stuff.

JohnIan101 • 5 points • 3 May, 2018 04:44 AM

It's as if men are NOT ALLOWED to have preferences that directly conflict with women's preferences.

This has been a long mindset among women. Only they can choose what they demand from a mate. But if a man does - it is sexist.

'Don't you know... you're suppose to worship us?'

WiseMonkeyGoodMonkey • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 11:25 PM

Agree and amplify. "You're sexist!".

"Yes. Yes I am. Now shoo little girl."

JohnIan101 • 1 point • 4 May, 2018 12:36 AM

No.

That would imply they have a sliver of their vitality - hope.

I would amend as...

'Yes. Yes I am. My right. Now shoo cat lady.'

handklap • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 12:36 PM

This smacks of everything certain women love to shame men for

They also, yet again, ignore that "gray shaming", just like fat shaming and slut shaming is overwhelmingly done by other women and it's not even close. This fact always seems to be lost in these messages.

peaceful_strong_man • 49 points • 2 May, 2018 10:50 PM

They are coming to terms with their fornicating history and overall delaying of marriage.

VasiliyZaitzev • 38 points • 3 May, 2018 02:08 AM

They don't seem to be "coming to terms" with it so much as they are getting pimp-slapped by reality.

420KUSHBUSH • -2 points • 2 May, 2018 10:52 PM

Hindsight is always 20/20

[deleted] • 20 points • 3 May, 2018 03:00 AM*

In 2016 everyone said shit is as crazy and illogical as it can get. In 2017 people said the same.

It's not going to stop folks. The natural pendulum counter-force that brings us back to sanity which many people desperately and hopefully cling to does not exist. The more women are involved in public life and decision making, the more bizarre and illogical the world will get. They will continue to reshape public opinion and the nature of our society to reflect their worldview as dictated by their biology. Women are going to continue working, voting, staying single into their 30s, and being promoted to positions of power in government, industry, and media. Buckle up.

Fedor_Gavnyukov • 9 points • 3 May, 2018 06:40 AM

i'm not worried. just as they spread information, people like ourselves spread information as well. there's a huge movement that pushed back against all this insanity. a lot of people are exposed to the red pill as well.

jm51 • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 12:45 PM

It's probably never going to stop. Neither are the most outlandish conspiracy theories.

What I have noticed is that more and more people have stopped caring about this type of drama. As an example, the YT of those women walking out because a female speaker stated the fact that on average, men are taller than women. It does the rounds, usual drama etc. but it was just 3 women. About half of the audience were women and apart from the vocal 3, those women did not object to being told a fact.

[deleted] • 19 points • 3 May, 2018 01:18 AM

Hahahaha I literally don't even know how to take SJWs/liberals anymore. Someone has to be paying you to be this fucking stupid

[deleted] • 6 points • 3 May, 2018 05:39 AM

It's mass insanity. Plenty of precedent in communist and fascist countries. This is why it's so dangerous when the government becomes at all involved in telling citizens how to think.

[deleted] • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 07:30 AM

Yeah...and it's dangerous enough that they try to tell everyone what to think, let alone the government. It's a slimy slimy movement.

lookoutitscaleb • 30 points • 3 May, 2018 12:52 AM

Why do women wear makeup and perfume?

Because they're ugly and they stink.

TheOneWhoDintCum • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 11:00 PM

Finally someone said it like it is

Dmva100 • 1 points • 3 May, 2018 12:34 AM [recovered]

Post wall slags would make for perfect sex slaves whilst you plunder their holes and lying about your vasectomy and telling them all the while you want that good ok family life.

Too bad they are ugly as fuck and nobody wants to stick their dick in their PhD

Gearski • 14 points • 3 May, 2018 02:17 AM

PhD

I think you meant community college arts degree.

therealpkg • 20 points • 3 May, 2018 01:20 AM

Don't delude yourself... These bitches are nowhere near smart enough to earn a PhD.

[deleted] • 10 points • 3 May, 2018 01:27 AM

they can't actually spell GREY

[deleted] • 5 points • 3 May, 2018 01:58 PM

Gray in America, grey in England.

[deleted] • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 02:00 PM

turns out I'm the idiot lol. now I know

therealpkg • 7 points • 3 May, 2018 03:30 PM

And unlike them, you actually learned something.

Cavannah • 1 point • 5 May, 2018 02:40 AM

...and was willing to admit his error when it was pointed out

blister333 • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 12:01 PM

i wouldnt go that far. plenty of purple haired femmi's at my school who are getting phds in english etc

TryhardPantiesON • 33 points • 2 May, 2018 11:27 PM

What a bizarre world this is.

UEMcGill • 9 points • 3 May, 2018 02:38 PM

Let me tell you a story. My cousin is in his early 50's. He's got his own place, although he's a minimalist. He's in shape. Dotes on his kids. He was divorced a couple years ago.

He's a pretty active dater. I think he uses zoosk or something like that. He was showing me the quantity and quality of women who were messaging him and how little effort it took on his part.

Was he slaying 20 year old? Nope. But he had 5 or 6 plates spinning and plenty of options. The women he dated were 7-9 in their prime.

But the point to this lady is, add value. What does some gray haired harpy bring to a guy like my cousins life? The women he showed me all had pretty much the same speel, "hey you're handsome! I like to [insert fun activity], I'm looking for someone to be a partner in crime..."

The ones that got past his filter weren't entitled nor needy. If he dates them and they start expecting shit, out to the curb. If they start asking "are you ready to be my kids new dad?" to the curb.

What this woman hasn't realized is that all her life she never provided enough value for a man to make a lifetime commitment to her. And now that her smv has drastically lowered she still doesn't realize that she has to provide value that her pussy alone can't.

Paladin2903 • 19 points • 3 May, 2018 02:16 AM

What women just can't seem to grasp is that, life isn't fair. Men age like fine wine, and many of us actually look better with gray hair (silver foxes). Women do not....EVER.

Men have tons of time to settle down, build wealth, and most of us look better as the years roll on.

Women absolutely do not. Any woman that is still single, in her 30's, did something VERY wrong.

While guys are just getting started in their 30's, and are entering their best years, the best years of the female are winding down.

maggieG42 • -18 points • 3 May, 2018 06:26 AM

No most men past 25 start to go down hill. Society is just more accepting of it. They do not age better at all.

Fedor_Gavnyukov • 16 points • 3 May, 2018 06:42 AM if society accepts men as looking great as they age, then it means they age well. they wouldn't age well by societal standards if society didn't accept it. you're retarded.

Comicus[S] • 4 points • 3 May, 2018 09:52 AM

Maybe it's because when men get to the age where our looks start to decline, it's rarely a problem for us because by then we usually have something else to show for our time (career and life accomplishments) that *might* make up for the greying of our hair (or loss thereof). And of course, many women do too. But the ones who are complaining like in this video simply didn't do shit when they had the chance, and are now doing a poor job of coping with the consequences of having spent their youth "having fun" taking as many cocks as they could and mooching off of harder working people, while developing no useful skills or attractive personality traits, or achieving career and family goals.

If there were men who did this, you wouldn't see them as victims. You'd call them losers and they'd probably be discarded from society more harshly than the women in this video think they were. Seriously, if a fat, old balding man complained about how he got everything he wanted when he was young and handsome, but now women won't date him because that's gone away and he's got nothing else, would you feel like he was a victim of women?

c_megalodon25 • 6 points • 3 May, 2018 01:45 AM

They need to think about what they can bring to the table than what they expect others to bring to them. You can be an old 55 year old woman or you can be a put together and hot 55 year old woman who respects poker night and knows that she has over 20 years of bj experience.

Entropy-7 • 7 points • 3 May, 2018 03:04 AM

I am 51 and the plain fact is that I don't find women my own age attractive. I would posit that no guy finds women my age as attractive as comparable women who are significantly younger. I guess that I why I have been doing the "half-plus-7" thing for most of my adult life.

I just watched Film Stars Don't Die In Liverpool. Annette Bening is 59 and she plays an aging Hollywood starlet from something like age 54 to 57. Great movie and I can see the attraction that a younger guy could have given their personal dynamics, but a) you are talking about a top Hollywood actress playing a top Hollywood actress who is tall - 5'8" - and slim - BMI 20 - so top what, 1%? 5% or women her age? and b) she is old now. Compare, her at 30 to her now with the latter being perhaps the most flattering picture I could find.

I suppose as a PS it is worth mentioning that she is married to Warren Beatty, who is 20+ years older.

c_megalodon25 • 6 points • 3 May, 2018 06:23 AM

I get your point, and I'm not going to defend a certain age as attractive or not because that's really subjective and depends on more than physical beauty.

I will say that mental compatibility is important if you want more than a quick fling. At 43, I'm probably going to connect better with another gen x woman than a 22 year old with perfect perky tits and an ass you can bounce a quarter on. For a weekend fling, I'll go for the 22 year old.

I actually use a "beach vacation" rule. You go on a beach vacation...there is only so much time you can spend in the room fucking your brains out. Eventually you are going to want to wander around the island and sit in the cabana drinking a pina colada and having a good conversation. Pick the best woman who is good enough for all the activities including the bedroom instead of just the bedroom.

Entropy-7 • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 02:43 PM

I guess we could say that youth and looks are actually rather objective. We can argue about blondes, brunettes and red head and to a lesser extent but indicators of youth - while not the One Ring To Rule Them All - play out across ages and cultures.

Yes, personal tastes about attraction and personality and such have become more subjective because nobody in the west wants to make babies anymore and support our culture.

And the other thing is this: as a man in my 50s which I might do as a hobby is not necessarily what I want my wife to be involved in.

It's hard to explain it but you get at it with the pina colada and good conversation. The good conversation I would have with a 50 year old woman would probably be different than the good conversation I would have with a 30 year old woman, though no less qualitatively satisfying. And then I would fuck the latter.

c_megalodon25 • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 07:20 PM

Have you talked to a millennial? Something weird happened with that generation gap. The younger ones are sexually fucked up and way to close to their parents as well.

Entropy-7 • 1 point • 4 May, 2018 06:45 AM

I've been living in China for the last 5 years or so and married a Filipina 17 years younger. The fucked-upped-ness doesn't seem to have crossed the pond (I hope).

But yes, many of the Millennials I have dated (depending on your definition, that is 11 to 25 years younger) were sort of off, but I attributed that to some sort of third independent variable regarding girls who date significantly older men rather than a generational thing.

Mind you, my half brother qualifies as one of the older Millennials and he is doing all right (married, good job, living in NYC).

ApexmanRP • 5 points • 3 May, 2018 08:06 AM

I am late 40's and I am with you on this one.. Had a thing with a woman who was a few years older and she was fit as fuck, a real 1%'er, but even then I found myself being drawn to younger women again.. just.. cant.. do... it.

Entropy-7 • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 02:16 PM*

And you know what? They feel different. Even if they look the same in a photograph or in person, a 20 year old feels different than a 30 year old and so on and so forth to 40 year olds. I can only extrapolate to 50 year olds because the oldest woman I have slept with was 40 and she otherwise had the body of a teenager, but the feel was different.

I am not Warren Beatty, but he is the man with the plan. At 55 he married a woman 20 years younger who was otherwise in line with his SMV, RMV, SES and all that good stuff. And 25 years later, they are still going strong AFAIK.

At 51 I married a 33 year old (note: half-plus-7 given that we meet a year or so before and our birthdays don't line up -  $50 \div 2$ , plus  $7 = 32$ ).

Plus she's an Asian hobbit who could get student fare if they didn't check ID.

I guess the missing part of the equation is the guy. On PPD the blues and purps complain about how guys don't peak in their 30s or improve with age but rather get fatter, balder and more autistic apparently, and how older men are gross and stuff.

That is sort of like saying they wouldn't date a chimpanzee. . or a toad or some invertebrate.

I still have a lot of work that I could do and should do but when I clean my lazy ass up I pass for a decade younger. If I took lifting more serious again, got down to even 15% BF, and got some minor work on the bags under my eyes, then I dunno, 32 or 35?

Your typical BP isn't like that.

If you are late 40s and pulling (late?) 20 somethings, then more power to you because you are doing something right.

ApexmanRP • 0 points • 3 May, 2018 07:21 PM

Yeah, I know what you mean, For me its not so much the body, but the face. They age so badly compared to men.

My current LTR is fifteen years younger than me, but if we split up I am going for younger women.

The sex with the 50 year old was actually amazing (multiple orgasms/squinter), but sadly, I couldn't do it. She hit menopause and her face just melted.. harsh shit!

I am lucky genetically, 6'1, 200lbs, 16% BF, I look 10 years younger.. but it can be done, do the work, its worth it!

Graefinator • 6 points • 3 May, 2018 02:59 AM

So laughable. They showed pictures of tabloids which didn't even have malicious titles, somehow linked grey hair to job outcomes, and then tried to blame dying their hair on men. Men don't make women die their hair Jesus Christ.

Men get positive spotlight for grey hair because instead of convincing each other that our hair sucks when it's natural, we own our look and say fuck it, I have grey hair? Who cares I'm still a stud.

redd_reality • 8 points • 3 May, 2018 02:18 AM

You ever step back and think - "they" can say whatever they want, I don't give it any mind, whatsoever?

Losers gonna keep losing, winners gonna keep winning. I don't consider the intellectual introspection of losers, cause I'm too busy winning.

[deleted] • 9 points • 3 May, 2018 03:26 AM

What about "bald-shaming"? Bald men are laughed at by women and chastised by the media. Is society being "sexist" towards men? /s rooster-one4 • 14 points • 3 May, 2018 12:32 AM

Honestly, talking about any of this stuff isn't worth talking about, no offense OP. Once women harass their way into getting their way into one thing, it's off to the next made up issue.

Pandering, even by just talking about it, to these child minds validates them as much as anything. Let them have their gray hair and a life of regret, and just leave it at the grocery store where it was found....and never think about it again.

Don't give them purchase in your minds by thinking about this stuff. Get on with gettin' on.

TheDevilsAdvokaat • 4 points • 3 May, 2018 10:14 AM

As if women are attracted to gray men, or men who look old!

No-one is attracted to anyone significantly older than themselves unless they have some kind of mental issue OR are gold digging.

thewrecker8 • 5 points • 3 May, 2018 03:58 PM

What's crazy about this whole thing is they call it shaming where it's just not finding something attractive. But it's okay for women to not be attracted to guys under a certain height, or doesn't have a beard, tattoos, is hairy, isn't hairy, has a certain kind of job, or has about a dozen other boxes that need to be checked before they want them. If guys don't find it attractive it's "shaming". If a women don't find it attractive it's her choice.

[deleted] • 4 points • 4 May, 2018 05:39 AM

I SHOULDN'T HAVE TO DYE MY HAIR

... She says caking makeup all over her face

crimsonkodiak • 7 points • 3 May, 2018 12:45 AM

And naturally, their examples of how men have it better include guys like George Clooney and Anderson Cooper who've aged abnormally well, ignoring the majority of single men their age who are balding and have pot bellies and extra chins and are probably not doing any better than their entitled female counterparts.

That's Apex Fallacy. It's one of the bedrocks of these kinds of arguments.

blister333 • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 12:07 PM

i liked how they picked people who are in hollywood/media related- one of the harshest and shallowest industries in existence. of course they held up, they were very attractive to begin with. same thing with a diane keaton or soon to be jennifer anniston. you'll see them for decades because they are among the few that hold up so well.

Darkone06 • 7 points • 3 May, 2018 05:08 AM

I actually like white hair, I have dated two young girls with white hair.

One was albino (19yo) and the other one was in her mid 20s but her hair was white, white. I loved how unique it was. Turn me the fuck on.

It really isn't the hair that is their problem it is their age and how they carry themselves. The gray hair is a symptom not the cause of their issues.

BewareTheOldMan • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 05:20 AM

So... it's NOT the grey hair, but these women's attitudes?

I concur - you see that in the video.

jvgtkaty44 • 0 points • 3 May, 2018 05:23 AM

This is somewhat true. Ive met many older women i found hot because of their fun bubbly personality.

[deleted] • 5 points • 3 May, 2018 01:01 AM

I honestly can't wait until I start to get some grey in my facial hair.

truedemocracy3 • 6 points • 3 May, 2018 01:47 AM

Never think about LTRing a woman who wasnt meticulous and feminine about her appearance BEFORE you met her. Because if she isn't - shit like this, 'mom bods', no makeup, etc. will only convince her to both be unattractive but that she is fighting some 'oppression' in doing so. To prevent this takes massive frame, and one other reason why marriage sucks. Hard to say "if you dont dye your hair I'm leaving" in that situation

rebuildingMyself • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 11:14 AM

Man this headline sure as hell triggered the feminazi brigade. Strike a nerve, perhaps?

[deleted] • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 01:22 PM

Why do you guys give a fuck about this ? Show your opinion by not fucking these women. There. Problem solved.

[deleted] • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 02:18 PM

older women are a lot more shallow than younger ones.

andreas-mgtow • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 08:59 PM

"I thought just let me be me"

While I cake my face with 10 layers of fake up.

ntvirtue • 3 points • 4 May, 2018 02:32 PM

BWAHAHAHAHA the comments are GOLD!

watermelonicecream • 5 points • 3 May, 2018 07:15 AM

The most hilarious part about this is the people doing the shaming are more than likely women.

EscapeTheGoat • 5 points • 3 May, 2018 01:09 AM

Women don't like nice guys and I don't like post-wall women. At least men are honest.

Avskygod0 • 4 points • 3 May, 2018 06:45 AM

protip, women: it's not because of the gray hair

salinorum • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 03:25 AM

Feel like people just aren't comfortable with themselves no matter what and then endlessly seek validation for the enormous hole of self loathing they e created in their psyche. I know personally all my problems arise out of one cause: not valuing my self worth patrice_plz_come_bac • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 11:20 AM

Like we can not have any preference at al. We're just working cattle

sendengizledim • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 12:35 PM

Of course they will find someone who loves them, and the point is confidence is sexy. They have to be just themselves.

plentyoffishes • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 03:00 PM

Wall age is relative.

For example, in Asia, anything over age 27 is washed up and discarded. In the US, it depends on where you are. In the midwest, many get married by 21, so being single in a lot of places past 21 is a curse, and by 26 you are "post wall".

But in California, the wall isn't until late 30s. Go on any dating site or app. If a woman is at least semi-attractive, she will be bombarded by dudes, at any age up until about 40. I know many early and even mid-30s women that think the world of themselves, because hey look, I've got 17 guys that want to take me out this week!

JcHgvr • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 03:10 PM

In time you will know what it's like to get old. To feel so desperately that you're young yet to age all the same. Dread it, run from it, the wall still arrives.

comcain • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 03:43 PM

True. But ya always feel young. The guy in the mirror is always a surprise.

zephyrprime • 2 points • 10 May, 2018 06:35 PM

Anderson Cooper is gay so I don't know how they can even use him as an example. Also he's famous so he's not a fair comparison even if he wasn't gay.

Fedor_Gavnyukov • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 06:33 AM another leftist agenda to pussify the society and regress it into the abyss

Morphs_ • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 07:13 AM edit: ATTN as the name implies is all about attention. And they apparently deliver here.

These media outlets are just shit-tests for us. It's just nagging about something women have no control over. No amount of complaining in the media will make us attracted all of a sudden. Instead, it reinforces the fact that double standard hamstring is present on all levels, as long as a platform is given. My first reaction is to ignore this bullshit as much as we can because we frankly should not give a shit. Every day that passes, we are more able to seize what we want. That's the advantage of being the lame bloomer gender.

Whitified • 3 points • 3 May, 2018 08:17 AM

I for one welcome this push to end gray-shaming

Older grey hair men should be able to date young girls without social stigma

TDG0922 • 4 points • 3 May, 2018 03:15 PM

A comment on the video;

"C'est la vie. Women in their 20s have much greater facility in getting dates than men. It's only fair that men experience at some point that upper hand. Men "ripe" with age, women simply "rot"."

Indeed.

[deleted] • 3 points • 4 May, 2018 05:05 PM

Sure, it has nothing to do with wrinkly skin, crows feet, sunken dead eyes, more baggage than a Southwest Flight, or the fact that in your prime you most likely sucked and fucked your way through 30-40 cocks, while ignoring men who you thought were below you. What goes around comes around toots.

You listened to your feminist sisters and this is what you get.

You get nothing! You lose! Good day ma'am!

AussiecuntTRP • 2 points • 3 May, 2018 02:48 AM

Jesus christ. The total avoidance of reality in that video. Here is the reality: Older and confident men are more attractive on average to women than young, inexperienced ones. Meanwhile, younger looking women are more attractive to men. Is that right or wrong? Of course not. It's such a sense of entitlement. It's ridiculous. Just like the fat activists who want to force people to find them attractive.

If you're a woman and want to go gray then do it. Just realise you will be found less attractive to men and there is nothing fucking wrong with that.

oliviadregne • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 01:57 AM

No wonder people like this are a dying breed.

[deleted] • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 05:28 AM

Are they? I think we delude ourselves when we pretend that things are shifting back to sanity. I think we've got a long way yet to go.

[deleted] • 0 points • 3 May, 2018 05:28 AM

Are they? I think we delude ourselves when we pretend that things are shifting back to sanity. I think we've got a long way yet to go.

[deleted] • 0 points • 3 May, 2018 05:28 AM

Are they? I think we delude ourselves when we pretend that things are shifting back to sanity. I think we've got a long way yet to go.

[deleted] • -1 points • 3 May, 2018 05:28 AM

Are they? I think we delude ourselves when we pretend that things are shifting back to sanity. I think we've got a long way yet to go.

Mr_Get_Right • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 02:00 AM

That's what's on my mind. Gray hair.

KHJohan • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 06:03 AM

Almost no men become silver foxes, since almost all men get bald. I wonder why we don't hear about bald-shaming.

maggieG42 • -3 points • 3 May, 2018 06:16 AM

Because no one judges bald men except other men.

batfish55 • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 10:08 AM

ignoring the majority of single men their age who are balding and have pot bellies and extra chins and are probably not doing any better than their entitled female counterparts.

Yea, sure, Clooney and Cooper are aging abnormally well, but I think in general, dudes, just average dudes, age better than average women.

donkey_democrat • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 10:35 AM

That video in the link was literally AIDs. Of course it misses the point completely and simply states that any difference in treatment must be artificially done by men across the world.

ButtRobot • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 11:32 AM

Haha sucks for them. I get compliments on my early onset grey all the time.

SKRedPill • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 12:01 PM

That twitter link activated my Retard senses.

OilyB • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 12:02 PM

Women are in dire, desperate need of rediscovering the good old concept of simple femininity: The one thing that's immune to aging and wrinkles...

Just ask us, ladies. Just ask

Sprayface • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 02:12 PM

Society will always make fun of the fat old and weird. That's expected. That's life. And it's okay.

Rick_OShay1 • 1 point • 5 May, 2018 08:22 AM

I have a profile and ChristianMingle, and the only women to check me out are "cougars" and fatties.

The girls who are of the appropriate age, and are attractive ignore my little greets to them.

Datanami • 1 point • 5 May, 2018 06:55 PM

Rollo's comment to the tweet :

News flash: Men have found youth in women to be strongly correlated with fertility since the Paleolithic era.

tolerantman • 1 point • 7 May, 2018 03:33 PM

When an average man's hair goes gray, he's just an old man.

When a famous, rich man's hair goes gray, he's a "silver fox", huh?

RagingStallion • 1 point • 8 May, 2018 11:12 PM

I like how when they said women are under immense pressure to look young they showed a tabloid article about a woman having grey roots at 30. Want to try and guess the gender of the author and readers of that article? 0% of men give a shit if Kate whoever has grey roots.

SKRedPill • 1 point • 9 May, 2018 07:08 AM

Media and Social media is the ideal female space....

TweetTranscriber • 0 points • 2 May, 2018 10:48 PM

☐ 30/04/2018 ☐ 15:50 (UTC)

No woman should be shamed for having gray hair.

— ATTN: ☐ (@attn) ☐ ☐ 116 ☐ 154

☐ video

I'm a bot and this action was done automatically

WalterEArmstrong • 3 points • 2 May, 2018 11:02 PM

I guess the viewer of that vid is supposed to feel GUILTY?! totallya_russianbot • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 02:42 AM

SMV totally isn't a thing, you guys! Whamen have the same worth no matter who they are and what they look like!

Flintblood • 1 point • 3 May, 2018 01:33 PM

Yetttt, they “gray shame“ Chris Rock (53 m) for thinking that he could flirt with Rihanna (30 f). The hypocrisy is tremendous. She’s a 30-year-old adult, but the Twitter verse is acting like he’s a perverse old man for making a pass at someone 23 years younger than he is. When does adulthood begin?

EPArT • 1 point • 4 May, 2018 09:46 AM

This is why I dont understand when people say women arent funny. How are you not supposed to laugh at this.

turpin23 • 0 points • 3 May, 2018 04:41 AM

Pure non-sense. First, as others have said, there is no shaming happening regarding grey hair. Second, on the mate selection front, many things can be done about greying, from permanent hair dyes to henna to nutrient treatments, pseudocatalase, telomerase stimulation, herbal medicines, red light therapy, etc. Some of those things may even improve overall health and reduce all cause mortality.

Stopher • 0 points • 3 May, 2018 03:40 AM

I'm a guy with some grey hair on the side. Hey look. Seven bucks fixed the issue. Now I don't have to blame anyone for anything in my life. I feel free.

Flintblood • 0 points • 3 May, 2018 01:43 PM

CHRIS ROCK .., Recently gray shaded

Arie_R • 0 points • 3 May, 2018 05:11 PM

What makes you think they've been sleeping around all this time? Plenty of women focus on their education and career and are too busy to make dating a priority. Of course that's a choice and they should suffer the consequences, but saying they've all been sleeping around is objectively wrong.

There are people with unreasonable standards on both sides, I would guess quite a few people on this sub do.

I agree with you though about the double standard. They either need to accept less than perfect or stay single, it's irrelevant to me which option they go for.

AssumeFormlessness • -2 points • 3 May, 2018 03:36 PM

You guys are all failing the shit test by actually taking it seriously.

maggieG42 • 1 points • 3 May, 2018 06:22 AM [recovered]

I watched that and 90% of the video had nothing to do with dating. What is wrong with you. Also why should women not live their life until their ready to settle down, just like men should be able to do? I doubt any woman would want to give up her freedom to get a guy who only cares about her looks and any woman who does I can guarantee she will regret it. Do you guys actually listen to yourselves, seriously listen to the crap you come out with. You sound stupid.

Comicus[S] • 8 points • 3 May, 2018 10:07 AM

Nobody's saying what women should or shouldn't do...if you want to spend your youthful years "living your life" (i.e. riding the cock carousel) and dicking around while relying on nothing but your looks to get by, that's your choice. What we're scoffing at is that now they want to settle down and be in a loving, stable and functional relationship, but it's too late...they missed that boat by decades and are blaming it on society, as if they're entitled to have someone make the boat come back for them. It's not our fault that the one tool they relied upon to get what they want (their physical attractiveness) had an expiration date, and that they were too stupid and immature to ever make a plan for how to make up for it when it goes away.

NapalmSunshine • -6 points • 3 May, 2018 04:22 AM

Hm. I get nothing but compliments from men about my grey hair.