The majority of men want a beautiful woman who is caring, loving, loyal, intelligent, down to Earth and trustworthy. Yet, there are some men who want a badass bitch, a manipulative woman, a controlling woman or a dominatrix type of woman.

What you need to understand is that there are some weird women out there, but if you want to be successful with women in general, you need to focus on the majority of women who just want a confident, good guy.

So, if you're one of the many good guys who gets frustrated and asks, Why are women attracted to jerks? just accept that some women like bad guys, but the majority of women like good guys who are confident.

If you are a nervous nice guy around women, it's only natural that they are not going to feel sexually attracted to you.

Why? Women are sexually attracted to the emotional strength in men and turned off by the weakness (e.g. nervousness, self-doubt, social anxiety, low self-esteem, etc).

Two Important Traits That Will Attract More Women to You

[image: Traits that will attract women to you]

You can attract women in more than 100 different ways with your personality (e.g. charisma, humor, charm, etc) and we teach all of those ways in our programs here at The Modern Man.

2 out of the 100s of ways to attract women are...

1. Relaxed Confidence

Relaxed confidence comes through in how you think, behave, act and move wherever you are (e.g. in bed with a woman, at a party, walking through a shopping mall, etc).

A guy who has relaxed confidence doesn't need to behave in a loud, overly confident way (like a jerk) to attract a woman's attention. He knows that he is more than good enough for women and as a result, he is relaxed and doesn't need to be anything other than his natural self.

There's no acting coming from him. He's real, authentic and his relaxed confidence gives him an effortless air of power and dominance.

On the other hand, a jerk will usually try to get a woman's attention by acting up, being loud and causing some trouble, but that insecure social strategy is not the answer to success with women.

Success with women is much easier and requires much less effort than most guys realize. However, to get to a point where you have genuine, relaxed confidence, you first need to get rid of your insecurities about women and develop a belief in your ability to attract women.

Watch this video to understand how any guy can become more attractive to women and stop feeling insecure and unworthy around women...

As you will discover from the video above, most women (not all women) are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a man than most guys realize.

From the outside, it may seem like women all want jerks, assholes and bad boys, but those guys are simply getting results because they are attracting women in some ways (not all) and then have the balls to move things forward to kissing, dates, sex and into a relationship.

You don't have to be like them to be successful with women. All you need to do is be the good guy that you already are, but simply display personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women.

When you do that, most women will feel as though they've hit the dating jackpot by meeting you, because will have finally found a good guy who also turns them on. When that happens, you will realize how little competition there is for hot women. Most guys are absolutely clueless about how to attract women and what women really want from a man.

2. Mental and Emotional Masculinity

A lot of guys make the mistake of thinking that to be seen as masculine, they need to be tall, have a square jawline, build loads of muscle in the gym or act like a tough guy.

Yet, the type of masculinity that women are most attracted to is your inner masculinity.

For example: A guy who lacks inner masculinity will feel nervous in social situations, doubt himself when interacting with attractive women and lack confidence around confident men.

Imagine This...

You approach a woman and make some polite small talk in an effort to get a conversation going, (e.g. What's your name? or What do you do for a living?).

You ask her many questions about herself and then hang on her every word as she replies. You take every opportunity to compliment her and you try to agree with everything she says because you really want her to like you.

She then makes an excuse to get away from you (e.g. I have to go to the bathroom. Bye!) and you are left wondering if she's ever going to come back and talk to you again.

Later on, you see that she's trying hard to get the attention of a guy who seems to be dividing his attention between her and a few other girls. From your perspective, he is behaving like a jerk and is being a selfish prick who is taking all the women.

Yet, from her perspective, he is probably offering her the type of challenge that she has been craving to experience when she meets a guy...

As you will discover from the video above, most women feel bored by the instant, "YES!" that they get from most guys they meet.

If a woman is attractive, most guys are willing to have sex with her (and many are willing to start a relationship with her), even though she hasn't done anything to impress him other than look good.

For most guys, they don't care what a woman thinks, what she does for a living or what kind of cat or dog she has. They are willing to have sex with her simply based on what she looks like.

This is why many women get bored of the approach that most guys use and then end up being attracted to guys who are more of a challenge.

From the outside, it may look like the guy is a jerk, but he's probably just another good guy (or fairly good guy) who understands the reality that women live in and is simply giving women what they want.

How to Move on From a Break Up

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When you're going through a break up, most people will say, "Don't worry, there are plenty more fish in the sea" or "better things are just around the corner."

Yet, that doesn't really help to fix the problem.

Yes, there are many other women out there, but what is the real secret of how to move on from a break up after losing a woman you love?

Essentially, you need to regain confidence in your ability to attract other women and then hook up with a woman who is more attractive to you than your ex-girlfriend.

Are you confident in your ability to attract a new, beautiful woman?

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use it to move on from a break up, attract a beautiful woman and become an even better man than you are right now...

As you will discover from the video above, you can attract women in many different ways.

To be able to move on quickly, you need to have confidence in your ability to attract other women and then follow through on that by attracting and hooking up with a new, beautiful woman.

The Best Way to Move on

Most people will tell you, "Give it time. You will find a nice girl" or "Don't worry...time heals all wounds. You will be fine."

It's very easy to say something like that, but it's not as easy for a guy to live through the emotional pain of losing a woman and not being able to find a replacement woman who makes him feel like she did.

No matter what anyone else tells you, the best way to get on with your life is to have sex with another woman who, in your eyes, is more attractive than your ex.

Hearing that, you might be thinking, "Okay, that sounds good, but my confidence is at an all time low because of the break up, so I don't see why a beautiful woman would want to sleep with me" or "Sounds great, but my ex broke up with me because I wasn't good enough for her, so why would an even hotter woman be interested in me now?"

[image: The Dumped Guy's Dilemma]

This problem is what I call the, "The Dumped Guy's Dilemma" and it goes like this:

Women are mostly attracted to a guy's confidence. Yet, a dumped guy usually has a lack of confidence around women due to the break up, so most women that he meets aren't interested in him.

Feeling lost and desperate without his ex, he pines/yearns for her when he realizes that she was a great woman and it is going to be difficult for him to find another woman like her.

He might go out on dates with less attractive women (because that's all he can get now due to his lack of confidence), which just reinforces his desire and need for his ex.

In this state, most women aren't going to be as appealing as his ex. He'll look at other women and triggers of pain and rejection will be set off in his mind, but when he thinks of his ex, he will feel safe and want to get back with her.

So, what is the solution?

You've got to rebuild your ability to trigger feelings of sexual attraction in the women you meet. If you don't do that, you will likely go through the next few years of your life wondering why women don't like you and coming up with all sorts of reasons and excuses why it might be happening.

Yet, it will all come down to one, simple thing, which is explained in this video...

Pitfalls to Avoid When Trying to Move on From a Break Up

[image: Pitfalls to avoid when trying to move on from a break up]

The truth is, you can become the type of guy that other women really want to be with.

To quickly get to that point, make sure that you avoid the following classic pitfalls that cause a lot of guys to get stuck in years of depression and loneliness following a break up...

Pitfall #1: Focusing on all the positives of the ex-relationship

When I had to break up with my girlfriend a couple of years ago, it was one of the most difficult decisions I had to make in life.

She was perfect in almost every way except for the fact that she would lie to me sometimes.

She wanted to start a family with me and get married, but something in my gut told me to get out of the relationship. When I got the point of truly wanting to break up with her, I created a list of Pros and Cons (Positives and Negatives) about her.

There were so many positives (e.g. she was beautiful, we had amazing sex, she got along well with my friends, etc), but the negatives were enough to make me question whether I should truly commit to her (e.g. she lied sometimes, her parents weren't nice people, she cheated on her ex boyfriend, etc).

To be able to break up with her and then move on after the break up, I had to consciously focus on the negatives and ignore the positives.

I didn't want to start a family with a woman who had a history of telling lies to people. So, I dumped her.

The next night, I was having sex with a hot woman and then I went through a phase of dating multiple women at once until I finally met my new girlfriend who I am still with to this day.

Now, I can look back and see that it was a smart decision to break up with my ex. I have no doubt that her lack of integrity would have caused problems for us in the future.

My new girlfriend is squeaky clean. Not only is she a woman of integrity, but she is also beautiful, classy, sexy, cool, intelligent, down to Earth and comes from a good family.

So, if you want to be able to move on from your break up, make sure you don't sit around thinking about all the positives traits of your ex girlfriend.

Make a list of her positives and negatives and have a good hard think about the negatives.

Not sure what to list as a positive or negative about her? Answer the following questions and you will:

- Is she trustworthy?
- Did she have habits that seemed cute at first, but then started to get on your nerves?
- Did she always treat you with respect?
- Did she always make you feel good about yourself, or did she “play games” and make you doubt yourself at times?
- What are the worst things about her character?
- What does she lack that you expect in a girlfriend?

When you switch your focus away from the positives, it probably won't take you very long to come up a list of negatives.

From there, you will need to keep those negatives at the forefront of your mind until you feel like you're happy to move on from that relationship and find a better woman.

Focusing on the positives will keep you stuck in the “good old days,” but if you believe that she wasn't the right girl for you, try to remember that by staying focused on the negatives for now.

Later on, when you've moved on without her and are happy, you will then be able to look back on the positives without wanting her back.

Pitfall #2: Adopting a defeatist attitude

[image: Giving up and being a defeatist]

Asking, “Why would an even hotter woman be interested in me?” is a great example of a defeatist attitude.

If you adopt that type of attitude, you are expecting things to go wrong. Sure, your relationship broke up, but that doesn't mean that other beautiful women won't be interested in you.

Here's the thing...

Women are attracted to confident men who believe in themselves and are turned off by insecure men who doubt themselves. So, if you're thinking that women aren't going to be interested in you, women will pick up on that and reject you because of it.

A big part of the process of how to move on from a break up is to ensure that you get rid of any defeatist or negative attitudes. A defeatist attitude will slow you down and make the recovery process longer and more painful to go through.

What is Pillow Talk With a Woman?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The way you pillow talk with a woman can result in her feeling completely turned off the idea of having sex with you, or it can make her excited and full of feelings of lust and blooming love. So, it's definitely a skill you should focus on improving.

[image: Pillow talk before sex]

With that said, what is pillow talk with a woman?

Pillow talk is essentially about having an intimate conversation with a woman in bed, before or after you've had sex.

[image: Pillow talk with a woman]

It is a way to get to know each other better on a more intimate level, determine who has the power, establish limits, discuss sexual likes and dislikes and even lay a foundation for a potential relationship.

Pillow Talk: Before Sex

Women will use it almost like an entrance exam and test your confidence and state of mind. Why?

A man's confidence and ability to remain composed is extremely attractive to women. Likewise, a man's insecurity and emotional weakness is sexually unattractive and may result in a woman completely losing interest in having sex with him.

She may say things like, We're not going to have sex you know? or Just because I have my bra off, it doesn't mean we're going all the way.

She will then watch the guy's facial expressions and general body language, to assess whether or not he is losing confidence and becoming nervous. If he remains composed, relaxed and confident, she will become turned on even more.

To some men, this may seem like an unnecessary game that women play, but it is simply a case of women trying to get themselves more turned on by your confidence.

Women do the same thing when they first meet a guy, on a date and 20 years into a relationship. So, learn to accept it so you can then enjoy the tests and appreciate the fact that a woman is attempting to turn herself on while interacting with you.

Some guys feel annoyed by the way that women think and behave in relationships or before sex, but there are perfectly good reasons for it, as I explain this video...

Pillow Talk: After Sex

Women will often use pillow talk as an exit interview to see how much you like them, whether or not you still find her sexy and how confident you are feeling about yourself after your performance. So, she might say something like, Anyway, I probably should get going. I've got to get home so I can feed my catsâ€¦ or â€¦ Look at you! Haha, you look all satisfied with yourself!â€¦ and see how you react.

How to Be Good at Pillow Talk

To be good at pillow talk, you basically need to:

- Be a confident guy who doesn't allow himself to be dominated by women.
- Relax in the moment and not take things too seriously.
- Embrace your attraction for the woman in the moment. Just swim around in it and let your attraction for her turn you on and make you feel truly happy to be there.
- Not be concerned if she wants to delay sex.
- Not get sucked into her games and tests. Instead, know that she just wants to feel more turned on by your confidence.

Pillow Talk Helps Establish a Relationship

[image: Pillow talk]

If you are looking to have a serious relationship with a woman, pillow talk with a woman is just as important as the sex. It allows you to connect on many levels and begin to intertwine together as a couple. You can both pillow talk about all sorts of subjects, such as:

- What you think about the world today.
- Your thoughts about life in general.
- The things you're passionate about in life.
- Interesting things that have happened to you in the past.

Those types of conversation are â€œheavyâ€ pillow talk, whereas â€œlightâ€ pillow talk is more about flirting with the girl, joking around about stuff, talking about partying or going out with friends, discussing your favorite foods and other things you like, without getting too deep about it.

Iâ€™ve personally had sex with more than 250 women and have had so many one night stands that I can barely remember most of the women's names.

I'm now in a committed relationship with my perfect girl (Photo above: that's me picking her up from a nightclub).

However, whenever I began a sexual relationship with a new woman (or when I'd pull a one night stand) in the past, I would keep the pillow talk â€œlightâ€ and wouldn't get into deep and meaningful conversations about my past, my present and my future.

I would just play around with the girl, laugh, talk about fun stuff and then have sex again.

Why? Talking about all the deep and meaningful stuff together helps to establish a serious relationship and back then, I was happily dating multiple women at once.

However, when I met my girlfriend, I did both light and heavy pillow talk and we relaxed into the fun, loving and committed relationship that we're in now.

Pillow Talk Mistakes

As with everything to do with success with women, there are also numerous mistakes that a guy can make during pillow talk that will either kill the mood or cancel out the chance of a second date.

Mistakes that guys can make include:

1. Being too romantic for too long

Romance is the domain of women and pillow talk is the perfect time for being romantic.

Whispering sweet nothings in her ear can be cool; however this is not the time for poetry, saying cutesy things or being sappy.

It is good to be romantic, but if a guy is romantic for too long, it can be a big turn off for her.

Personally, I will only say one or two "romantic" or "sweet" things in a row, but most of my conversation will be a mix of everything else.

I don't use that as a "conversation trick" on women; it is simply who I am. I use an approach with women that is based on being completely real at all times, so being too sweet and romantic for too long doesn't feel right.

As I have always said, "Any extreme personality type is based on insecurity" so if you're an extreme romantic or super nice guy, then you are doing that as a result of certain insecurities.

Since women are attracted to the strength in men and turned off by the weakness, your insecurity will turn them off.

2. Revealing too much too soon

Although talking with a woman in bed after sex is the perfect time to open up and explore each other's sexual likes, dislikes and preferences, you don't have to talk about everything right away.

3. Bringing up his personal issues

Just because a woman is in bed with a guy and has just had sex with him, it doesn't mean that he has won and her tests of his confidence are now finished.

It also doesn't mean that she has decided to establish a relationship with him and wants to have even more sex with him. So, if a guy begins bringing up his personal issues and insecurities as a way to pillow talk with her, he is going to be ruining the chance of a relationship with every extra word he says.

Examples of issues and insecurities include: "I didn't have a girlfriend until I was 21" or "I used to be very shy with women" or "Was I good?" or "Does size matter to you?" or "I used to have pimples and braces and all the kids laughed at me in school" or "My father was a drunk and used to treat me badly."

At the end of the day, a woman doesn't care or need to know about the issues you've overcome in the past.

All she needs to know is that the man she is with now is a strong, emotionally secure man who is worth investing time, love and energy into. So, telling her about all your problems (past and present) isn't going to make her see you as that man.

4. Telling the girl how much he loves her

If a guy has been attracted to a woman for a long time and finally has sex with her, it is easy for him to lose his composure and suddenly blurt out how much he loves her; even though she might still be evaluating him as a sexual, or potential relationship partner and is not ready for confessions of love.

This can make him look needy and will be a major turn off for her.

My girlfriend (and many women before her) told me that most guys would say, “I love you” on the first night and would ruin the opportunity for the woman to wonder, “How much does he like me?”

Women want to feel as though they are lucky to be snatching a man like you away from other women who would love to be with you. A woman doesn't want to feel as though she is way more valuable than you and that she's basically doing you a favor by being with you.

Watch this video to understand why...

5. Telling her too much about his previous women

With all the relaxing pleasure hormones that are released during and after sex, it is understandable that some guys will start talking freely and will end up telling a woman a bit too much about himself and his previous women.

When pillow talking with a woman, you should avoid sharing tales about your previous sexual conquests, your stock portfolio, your real estate deal or a funny password for your safety deposit box downtown...

How to Attract a Woman at the Gym

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Although it's not the perfect place to meet women, the gym can be a great place to find a compatible woman who is also into working out and staying fit.

As long as you have the confidence to approach her in an easy-going manner and be friendly, while also triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you, it will be fairly easy to get some phone numbers and set up some dates.

However, you've got to make sure that you approach this with an understanding that your results are not going to be the same as meeting a woman in a bar or nightclub. Some women are open to being picked up in gyms, but there will usually be less single women in a gym compared to a bar or nightclub or at a speed dating event for example.

As long as you are cool with that, then let's get started.

The first thing you need to be able to do is make her feel attracted to you.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to pick up women at the gym...

As you will discover from the video above, you can make a woman feel attracted to you in many different ways (e.g. by displaying confidence, being charismatic, being charming, using humor, etc).

As long as you are triggering a woman's feelings of attraction for you, she will be interested in you.

Don't Get Sucked Into the Serious, Lonely Vibe That People Often Have at a Gym

People tend to base their behavior on what everyone else is doing. If people normally remain quite and look serious in a gym environment, you will find that most people just copy that vibe and go along with it.

However, there is always room to lead the way to a different vibe.

It is always up to you how you feel in any given situation and if you are smart enough to be the cool, easy going guy, then the gym is going to be a great place for you to attract and pick up women.

Here's what you need to do...

Focus on your workout, but also have an easy-going, open vibe. If you are standing around waiting to use some equipment and someone (a man or a woman) is waiting around as well, just be the cool, confident, easy-going guy and say, "Hey...how's your workout going?" and have a casual, easy going chat.

You don't have to talk for a long time. It might only be 10-15 seconds, but just be the guy who isn't afraid to be awake and alive in the gym, compared to everyone else who has gone into their shell and is feeling alone amongst all the strangers in the gym.

It's not about forcing conversation on people, but simply being open to say a quick hi or have a casual exchange of a few words. No-one likes the idiot who wants to have long conversations with people who don't like him, whether it is in a gym, at a bar or at party.

However, if you're a cool, confident, easy-going guy and you're just saying something casual without expecting a serious conversation, then people will respect that.

More importantly, it will put you in the right frame of mind to be able to talk to and attract women in a much more natural, easy-going way.

Mistakes That Guys Make When Approaching a Woman at the Gym

Ben and Stu from The Modern Man worked as personal trainers in gyms for over 7 years.

They don't have huge muscles, but they get laid by hot women all the time.

[image: Ben, Stu and Dan - The Modern Man coaches]

Here are some classic mistakes that Ben and Stu have seen guys making in an attempt to attract women in a gym environment:

1. Trying to impress her by lifting a lot of weight

This type of guy lifts way more weight than he can handle and thinks that by showing his strength, she will be impressed and attracted to him.

In his mind, he thinks, "She'll see how masculine and strong I am and it will turn her on" and will believe that he is standing out from the crowd. Yet, in reality, most people don't give a crap about what other people are doing during their workout and are simply focused on themselves...women included.

Some guys will even go so far as to exaggerate the amount of reps they are doing, in order to impress nearby women. When a woman walks past, he'll start counting his reps aloud from 100 (101, 102, 103, etc) and hope that his apparent stamina will impress her.

What guys like that don't realize is that women actually lose interest in guys who feel the need to impress them. Most women want to find a guy who knows that he is good enough for her and doesn't need to put on a big show to make that known.

If a guy wants to pick up a woman, he needs to interact with her and trigger her feelings of attraction for who he is (e.g. by being confident, charismatic, funny, etc), rather than hoping that she will say, "WOW! You're so strong! Let me suck your..."

2. Thinking that it's all about the muscles

Some guys think that a woman at a gym will only be attracted to them if they have big muscles and a perfect physique that resembles something like The Rock or a young Arnold Schwarzenegger.

This idea started with Charles Atlas a little less than 100 years ago who encouraged young teenage boys to start working out and developing their muscles so that "they don't get sand kicked in their face" and lose the girl to the bully with the big biceps.

[image: Charles Atlas - don't be half a man]

Many guys bought into Atlas's idea and spent YEARS of their life working out and building muscle, even though they weren't experiencing any more success with women.

Guys may have gotten a little boost of confidence initially (from their new physique), but they still lacked the ability to attract and turn women on with their personality.

The fact is, most women (not all) place less importance on a guy's physique and more importance on his personality...even in a gym environment. If a guy has muscles, but comes across in a way that turns her off, a woman isn't going to say, "Well, I'm turned off by your personality and you bore me to tears, BUT you have big muscles, so okay, I want to suck your..."

It's just not how it works.

Yes, some women definitely do want a guy to have muscles, but the majority of women place much more importance on a guy's personality and how it makes her feel.

Want some proof?

Watch this video and you will see what I mean...

As you will discover from the video above, most women are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a man than most guys realize.

There's nothing wrong with having muscles or working hard to stay fit, but the truth is that you are already good enough for most women you meet. That's a fact.

3. Disturbing her workout have a long conversation

Some women are very serious getting in shape or staying in shape, so when they are at a gym, they tend to be focused on burning calories and toning their body.

When a guy walks up to a woman and tries to have an in-depth, ongoing conversation while she is exercising, he is being inconsiderate and she will most-likely show her frustration by ignoring him or walking away to continue her workout.

The right way to approach her is to wait for her to take a break in between sets, or talk to her when she is waiting around to use equipment.

Simply smile, be confident and easy-going and have a quick chat with her and add in some humor (which will attract her) if you get a chance. For example:

You: Hey, how's your workout going?

Her: Good thanks and you?

You: Horrible.

Her: [Shocked and thinking "Huh?" and may even ask you, "Why?"] You: Just kidding. I was having a great workout today, then I saw you and now it's an awesome workout. You've made my day with your cute smile.

Her: [Most-likely laughing and thanking you for the compliment] You: I'm Dan by the way, what's your name?

Her: [Gives you her name e.g. Rebecca] You: Cool, well nice to meet you Rebecca...I'm going to get back to my workout, but be afraid to come over and help me lift some weights. You might be skinny, but you look strong.

Her: [Most-likely laughing].

See how it works?

You're being confident, easy-going and you're adding in humor to get her laughing, which will make her feel attracted to you. You're also not trying to stick around and talk to her for a long time and are respecting the fact that people are at the gym to work out.

She might want to stop and keep the conversation going with you, but if she wants to keep working out, at least you've sparked her attraction for you and now have an opening the next time you see her. For example:

You: Hey Rebecca...the girl with the cute smile. How've you been?

Her: [Tells you] You: You're looking even more toned and in shape than last time.

Her: [Thanks you for the compliment] You: [Smile and jokingly ask] How about me? I look really good, don't I?

The question about you looking good is meant as a joke and will show her that you don't take your physical appearance as seriously as other guys do. You know that you look good enough for most women (no matter what your body shape is), so you are simply having a laugh with her and getting her to smile.

Getting a woman smiling and laughing when interacting with you (even if just briefly for 5-10 seconds) is worth more than an hour of boring, nice, polite conversation that doesn't spark her feelings of attraction.

4. Acting like her personal trainer when she hasn't asked for it

A guy like this will think he is being cool by telling a woman how she should do the exercises. "Hey, you're doing that wrong...you're going to hurt yourself" or "Hey, if you want to get better results, you should..."

He will shower her his workout tips and believe that by showing her how knowledgeable he is about the gym, she might like to use him for a while and be his girlfriend. Yet, she is more likely to thank him politely and then get rid of him as quickly as possible.

5. Being a really polite, nice guy

This type of guy thinks that if he is the perfect gentleman to a woman, she will be impressed by his manners and want to give him her phone number and go on a date with.

That's not how it works. Here's why...

As you will discover from the video above, sexual attraction is the glue that connects a man and a woman together and without it, they might as well be work colleagues, friends or family.

Women definitely like it when guys are polite and well-mannered when appropriate, but if a guy attempts to use politeness to impress her and doesn't build any sexual attraction between them, she's not going to be interested in anything sexual.

Sexual attraction has to come first and everything else flows on naturally after that. You can make women feel attracted to you in more than 100 different ways when you interact with them (e.g. by being confident, charismatic, charming, funny, etc).

Getting the Results With Women That You Want

Your level of success with women ultimately comes down to your ability to trigger a woman's attraction when you meet her and then deepening her feelings of attraction, respect and love when in a relationship.

Most women will not be interested in a guy purely based on his muscles or the fact that he is a nice guy. You've got to be able to make her feel turned on by who you are and when she feels that, she will then appreciate everything else about you that is appealing...

How to Be a Distinguished Gentleman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

People will consider you to be a distinguished gentleman if you are:

- Confident and charismatic in social situations.
- Charming when you interact with ladies.
- Well dressed in the appropriate fashion for whatever the occasion is.
- Successful in your career or business endeavours.
- Always well groomed.
- Well mannered and courteous, but also assertive and strong.
- Have the kind of money that allows you to live a luxury lifestyle.

As you can see from the list above, it's not easy to be labelled as being a distinguished gentleman, is it?

[image: When will I be good enough for women?]

Let me ask you something...

Why are you interested in becoming a distinguished gentleman? Is it because you think women will like you more and it will be easier for you to get laid, get a girlfriend or find yourself a beautiful wife?

Yes, being a distinguished gentleman will make it easier for you to attract women, but you don't have to go to those lengths to be attractive to most women.

[image: Being a distinguished gentleman]

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to get what you want with women, whether you become a distinguished gentleman or not...

As you will discover from the video above, most women don't require you to be an amazing, distinguished gentleman to qualify as a potential lover, boyfriend or husband.

Likewise, you don't need to go to those lengths to be liked, respect and admired by other people.

Of course, if you want to become a distinguished gentleman, then go ahead and follow through on that goal by all means, but if your real motive is to hopefully impress women, you might end up wasting half your life to be "good enough" without realizing that you are already good enough for most women right now.

[image: Most women don't expect you to be a distinguished gentleman]

The truth is, most women don't expect you to be an most amazing, utterly perfect gentleman and are simply looking for a good man who treats her well. You are most-likely already a good man right now, so as long as you know how to make women feel attracted to you, they will love the fact that you're also a good guy.

Cultural Trends Always Come and Go

[image: Distinguished gentleman]

Have you ever noticed the way that culture always changes over time, even if people don't want it to? Yet, when the cultural trend is happening, pretty much everyone believes that it is the best way to live life and how things will be forever.

The men who were trying to be distinguished gentleman way back in 1900, wouldn't have been able to imagine the world that we now live in. Internet, porn, sex before marriage, TV, movies, video games, virtual reality and women wearing mini skirts.

[image: Modern dating life]

Back then, people had a very innocent way of looking at life. Yet, the world has changed, as it always does.

[image: Modern dating life]

Just because it used to be cool to be a distinguished gentleman, it doesn't mean that it is a cultural tradition that the world must keep alive. Most people don't even know what a distinguished gentleman is and they really don't care.

It might have been important 100 years ago, but in today's world, people are more open minded and tend to laugh at old cultural ideas that enforce strict rules of behavior.

Of course, there's nothing wrong with living the life of a distinguished gentleman if you want, but if you're doing it to hopefully be wanted by women one day, you're probably going to waste a lot of your time trying to be good enough for women who would like you as you are right now.

Where Guys Go Wrong

Practicing good manners and being a gentleman to a woman is a great thing to do, but a modern woman will only appreciate such a gesture if she is sexually attracted to you.

In the past, women were dependant on men for their survival and men usually took on the role as the sole breadwinner and protector of the household.

A woman had to find a nice man, marry him and she would then lose her virginity, raise their children and take care of the cooking and cleaning.

[image: Getting married to a gentleman]

Back then, it made a lot of sense to marry a man who seemed like a distinguished gentleman, because it would usually mean that he would be able to support her and would hopefully treat her with respect as well.

In the old days, men would get away with mistreating their woman and no matter how badly she was treated, she had to stay married to him because divorce was shameful.

Fast forward to the present day and it's a completely different story altogether.

[image: Modern women]

Women can now earn their own money, have pre-marital sex and break up with or divorce men if they are not happy.

So, in today's day and age, it's not a man's gentlemanly status that makes a woman select him for a husband. Instead, the majority of women now select a man based on how much sexual attraction he makes her feel and, after they've taken each other for a sexual test drive, she will then see how she feels about having a committed relationship with him.

According to a USA study, 55% of couples admitted to having sex on their first date and a European study found that 70% of women admitted to having had experienced a one night stand (sex on the first night) before.

It's definitely not 1900 anymore.

There's nothing wrong with approaching a woman with the air and graces of a gentleman, but you have to make sure that you begin by making her feel sexually attracted to you.

If you don't trigger her feelings of sexual attraction first and simply expect her to like you for being a nice guy, she will feel turned off by the fact that you're acting like a man from 100 years ago and haven't caught up with the times.

Why Do Women Reject Some Guys Who Act Like a Gentleman?

[image: Rejected for being a nice gentleman]

Have you ever noticed how women get excited when some guys behave like a gentleman, but then reject other guys who do the same thing?

The reason is pretty simple.

The guy who makes the woman feel excited about his gentlemanly behavior will have made her feel attracted to him first, whereas the reject will have been hoping to be liked for being such a nice gentleman.

You Are Good Enough Right Now

Distinguished (adjective): made conspicuous by excellence; noted; eminent; famous.

Having an air of distinction, dignity, or eminence.

The label of being a distinguished gentleman is something that may take you a lifetime to accomplish (e.g. it usually takes a lot of achievement and excellence to be known as a distinguished scientist, author, actor, businessman or public figure).

Some guys make the mistake of taking the "distinguished gentleman" dream way too far and end up wasting most of their lives trying to be like James Bond or become a mega rich business tycoon.

As a result, they rarely, if ever, reach the point where they feel good enough around beautiful women and successful people. No matter how much they achieve, they always feel like they need to do more to be truly impressive and hopefully, one day, be seen as a distinguished gentleman.

Here's the thing that you must realize though...

THE MAN YOU ARE RIGHT NOW IS GOOD ENOUGH FOR MOST WOMEN.

If you decide to put more time and effort being more of a gentleman, then by all means go ahead and do that, but just make sure that you don't waste any more time thinking that you're not good enough for most women and most people in this world.

The truth is, you are already good enough for most women and most people will like you if you just believe in yourself and believe that you are good enough. Think about the cool guys that you know who believe in themselves and their value to other people, even though they are not a man of high status.

It's great that you want to be seen as a gentleman, but in today's world, it doesn't count for much if you're just being a nice, well-mannered man to people. If you want women to desire you and men to respect you, it requires more than just being seen as a gentleman...

Does She Like Me More Than a Friend? How to Know

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a guy asks, “Does she like me more than a friend?” he’s often looking for some kind of failsafe way to know for sure how she feels, before making a move or asking her out on a date.

That way, he can rule out the potential for rejection and not ending up ruining his friendship or professional relationship with her.

So, what is that failsafe way?

Attraction.

When you make a woman feel sexually attracted to you, she will naturally like you more than a friend.

She will begin to look at you in a sexual way and if you build up enough sexual tension between you (this can be done during a 5-10 minute interaction), she will feel like she needs to release that sexual tension by kissing you and having sex with you.

Do you know how to make women feel sexually attracted to you during an interaction? Do you know how to build up the sexual tension between you and a woman?

Watch this video to find out...

As you will discover from the video above, you don’t have to worry about whether or not this woman likes you. You can literally make her feel attracted to you in more than 100 different ways.

For example: You can attract her by being confident, charismatic, making her laugh, having a masculine vibe that makes her feel girly around you, etc. There are so many ways that you can turn her on and make sure that she likes you more than just a friend.

Should You Tell Her That You Like Her?

[image: Should you tell her that you like her?]

Only if you have made her feel very attracted to you first.

When a guy tells a girl that he likes her and want to date her, she will usually play hard to get if he hasn’t made her feel a lot of attraction for him beforehand.

If she only “kind of” likes him and isn’t sure whether she wants anything more than friends, she will usually say something like, “I don’t want to ruin our friendship” or “Sorry if I gave you the wrong idea, but I’m not looking for a boyfriend right now” or “Thanks, but I think we’d be better off as friends.”

So, what is the solution?

To make it 100% certain that she likes you, first make her feel a lot of attraction and then be a challenge for her to win over. Watch this video below to understand how that works and why women prefer guys who are a challenge...

As you will discover from the video above, if the woman that you like is attractive, she will be bored of how easily guys like her without her having to do anything other than look good.

Most guys refuse to give a woman the experience of winning him over because they think it is wrong, rude, mean or silly mind games to be a challenge.

Yet, as you will discover from the video above, you will actually be giving a woman an exciting, highly desired gift if you attract her and then make her have to impress you to win you over.

Liking You as a Friend Doesn't Mean That She Wants to Be Your Girlfriend

[image: Being the friend]

Some guys make the mistake of thinking that a woman liking him as a friend is the same as a woman being romantically or sexually interested.

Here's the thing...

A woman can like a guy as a friend without feeling ANY sexual attraction for him or having any reason to want to be his girlfriend. So, don't make the mistake of being a woman's "best friend" and thinking that being a "likeable" guy will make her want to be in a romantic relationship with you.

That kind of fantasy storyline plays out in Hollywood movies and TV sitcoms, but in real life, women simply hook up with guys who make them feel attracted and turned on...even if the guy isn't the nicest guy in the world.

[image: Why did she hook up with that guy? I thought she liked me...!]

Of course, there is nothing wrong with being nice to women, but if you want to get laid or get a girlfriend, you've got to be willing to say and do the types of things that turn women on, rather than just expecting that women will want you because you're nice.

Many guys mistakenly think that when a woman says, "I want a nice guy" it means that she wants a really nice, polite guy who will treat her like a princess. Yet, what it really means is that she wants a good guy who also makes her feel sexually turned on.

When a guy doesn't understand that key difference, he will waste a lot of time and energy trying to show women that he's a nice, trustworthy guy who is willing to wait as long as it takes to finally get a chance to be with her.

Yet, no matter how nice he behaves around women, how well he treats them, they just keep rejecting him and laughing at him behind his back.

[image: I'm a nice guy. Why are women so mean to me? Can't they see that I'm a good guy and will treat them well?]

In his mind, he might think that women are crazy bitches and only want bad boys, but what is really going on is that he's missing the point of what women are REALLY saying.

He may think, "I'm a nice guy. Why are women so mean to me? Can't they see that I'm a good guy and will treat them well?"

Yet, what he doesn't understand is that women don't want an ass-kissing nice guy who is overly polite to women in the hope that women take pity on him and give him a chance for being such a doormat. What women want in a good guy who ALSO makes them feel sexually attracted and turned on.

It's not enough just to be nice; you've also got to turn her on.

Women know that just because a guy is nice in the beginning, it doesn't mean he will be nice later on in a relationship.

Common Mistakes That Guys Make When Trying to Get a Female Friend to Like Them

If you just want to be her friend, then go ahead and do whatever you want for her. Be the best friend she's ever had.

However, if you want to have a sexual relationship with her, I would recommend that you avoid making the following classic mistakes...

1. Being at her beck and call

When your friendship with this woman has led to you always being "on call" for her and being available to run to her whenever she needs you, then she is definitely not looking at you as a potential boyfriend.

In fact, she's most likely using you to boost her self-esteem (because she knows how much you like her), so she can feel more confident in herself and her value as a woman when she is around other guys who make her feel attracted.

It's the "always-there-for-her" guy in the movies who eventually gets the girl when she realizes that she has been in love with him all along. Yet, it rarely works out that way in the real world.

Real women are attracted to men who are in demand by other women, men who have lots going for them (i.e. they are on their way to success or are already successful) and have cool things going on in their life.

A guy who has his pick of women doesn't have to try too hard to be liked by being on call for a woman as her "helper friend."

He might be generous enough to help her out every now and then, but if he usually isn't going to have any spare time to be her errand boy because he will be having sex with other women, rising through the levels of whatever he is trying to achieve in life or hanging out with his friends and enjoying life.

Here's the thing...

The harder it is for a woman to get a guy's attention, the more she will work at chasing him down and making sure she gets his attention. Guys who understand what really attracts women don't have to waste time wondering, "Does she like me more than a friend?" because he will already know that she wants him.

2. Being a shoulder to cry on

In the same way that being at her beck and call will make you less attractive as a man, being a shoulder to cry on will usually have the same effect.

Being the person she turns to when she's upset (e.g. about being dumped by a bad boys) makes you the guy that she can rely on to always be there for her, even though she's not always there for you or is not giving you what YOU want from the relationship (i.e. sex).

If you're the guy that she uses to complain about other guys and cry to when she gets dumped, then you feel like one of her girlfriends or gay guy friends, rather than the guy that she wants to sex with. The mistake here is in thinking that being the guy that she turns to will eventually lead to her realizing that you're the one for her.

If you're making that mistake, then wake up. You're not a fictional character in a Hollywood movie. If you want to have sex with her now, simply start turning her on when you interact with her and then when you've built up enough sexual tension, she will either tell you that she likes you or she will make it completely obvious that she does.

If you see yourself as a "nice guy," the idea of not being available to a female friend may worry you. You might think that she will see you as mean, selfish or accuse you of not caring about her anymore and then want to end the friendship.

3. Being extra nice in the hope that she will "like" you for it

A lot of guys make the mistake of trying to get women to like them, instead of getting the woman to feel sexual attraction. Liking you doesn't make her want to take her panties off, but sexual attraction does.

Be a Good Guy, But Be a Strong Good Guy

It's a fact of nature that women are attracted the emotional strength (e.g. confidence, determination, etc) in men and turned off by the weakness (e.g. nervousness, insecurity, anxiety).

If you are a good guy and you want women to desire you sexually, you have to display emotional strength when you interact with them. As long as you do that, most women will feel naturally attracted to you.

If you want to make sure that a woman feels attracted to you, simply trigger her feelings of attraction in other ways (e.g. charisma, humor, masculine vibe, etc). The more ways that you can attract a woman, the more irresistible you become.

How to Bring Up Sex When Talking to a Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The best way to bring up sex when talking to a woman is to smile and confidently say, â☐☐*Youâ☐☐re sexy. I like you.*â☐☐

Before you tell her that you like her and find her sexy, make sure that she feels sexually attracted to you first.

If a woman isn't attracted to a guy and he says that he likes her and thinks she is sexy, she might thank him for the compliment, but she isn't going to think, "WOW! He likes me!"

On the other hand, if a guy has made a woman feel attracted to him first and then says that he likes her and thinks she is sexy, she will then feel lucky to finally met a guy who not only turns her on, but is charming and authentic.

[image: Bring up sex when talking to a woman]

Telling a woman is sexy cuts through all the mind games that tend to go on when a man and a woman aren't being totally honest about how they feel about each other.

If a woman is interacting with a guy who is just acting like a friend, she might decide to play hard to get with him to see if he will chase her. When he begins to chase her and show lots of interest (even though she isn't attracted), she then loses interest because he is being so desperate and clueless.

So, to cut through all the BS games and get right to the point, start by making her feel attracted to you (e.g. by being confident, charismatic, funny, having a masculine vibe, etc) and then tell her that you like her and think she is sexy.

[image: Bringing up sex when talking to a woman]

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use that to make her feel excited and happy when you bring up the subject up sex...

As you will discover from the video above, you can attract women in many different ways at once.

When a woman is attracted to you, she will then be much more open and interested in having a sexually charged conversation with you.

Most Women Are Insecure About Their Sex Appeal

[image: Women insecure about their looks]

Most guys have no idea how insecure women really are.

For example: According to the global study carried out by Dove cosmetics, 96% of women do not consider themselves to be beautiful.

Crazy, right?

Well, it is nuts, but it's also a huge opportunity for you to get what you want with women.

When you are the confident, charismatic guy who makes a woman feel attracted and then ALSO give her a sexual compliment, she then feels excited to be interacting with you (because she feels attracted to you) and feels confident that you like her (because you've given her the direct compliment).

Of course, almost all women ACT like they think they are extremely beautiful, sexy and desirable. However, statistically speaking, most women are insecure.

I know this from my personal experiences of picking up and having sex with more than 250 women. While some women are very confident in their sex appeal, they always have something about their physical appearance (e.g. nose, hair, skin, hips, etc) that they wish they could change.

So, make sure that you don't hide behind the act of being an innocent nice guy when you talk to women. Be direct and after you've triggered her attraction for you, go ahead and tell her that you find her sexy.

By the way...

Here's why being a super nice guy often results in rejection...

As you will discover from the video above, there's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but niceness isn't the thing that makes her wet.

Women really only appreciate a guy's nice behavior when they are attracted to him. If a guy makes a woman feel attracted to him (e.g. by being confident, charismatic, funny, etc), she will then look at his nice behavior as being charming.

Most guys don't know that simple difference between being seen as a charming guy rather than a nice guy. Now that you know it, make sure that you use it to your advantage the next time you talk to an attractive woman.

Talking About Sex With a Woman You Already Know

If you don't have the confidence to pull off a statement like, â€œYou're sexy. I like youâ€œ then simply focus on flirting and creating sexual tension between you and her instead.

Watch this video to understand how to use flirting and why women love it so much...

Flirting is a subtle language that is spoken between a man and woman, which essentially communicates, â€œHey, I want to sex with you. Do you want to have sex with me?â€œ without EVER having to say that or ask that type of question.

You can flirt with a woman via your body language, behavior, words, vibe and actions.

A classic example of using words to flirt with a woman and bring up sex while talking to her is when she says something in a conversation like, â€œI'm good with my hands.â€œ

To flirt with her, your response needs to be a confident smile and a bit of a laugh, then say, â€œOhhhh, okayâ€œ and then just let her realize what has just happened.

[image: Creating a sexually charged conversation with flirting]

If she is attracted to you and is open to flirting with you, she will continue on with the joke about being good with her hands and will become sexually suggestive.

For example: She might then say that if you play your cards right, you might be able to see what else her hands can do.

Taking the Next Step

Once flirting has opened up the channels of sexual communication and you both know where the interaction is heading (i.e. to kissing, sex or at least the exchange of contact details), talking about having sex will naturally begin to happen, because you will both know that it is now appropriate and fun to talk about sex with each other.

However, don't make the newbie mistake of just talking about sex, sex, sex. Although she has given the "green light" to begin talking about sex, you will still need to be classy about it, by being discreet and subtle.

Some women are very open to talking about sex, but most are a bit shy about admitting how much they want it. So, you should only talk about sex sparingly and then get back to connecting with her and moving towards a kiss and then actual sex.

Mistakes That Guys Make When They Try to Bring Up Sex When Talking to a Woman

[image: Why is she being so harsh? I thought she liked me]

1. Thinking he has to talk about sex to get sex

Some guys assume that if they talk about sex with a woman, it will turn her on and they will then get sex.

A guy might get this idea from watching too much porn, observing how women behave in music videos or watching too many Hollywood movies and confusing fantasy with reality.

In the real world, most women (not all) are much more subtle about how they express their sexual interest in a guy and prefer to use flirting to get the message across.

Sometimes, a guy will make the mistake of bringing up something sexual with a woman at work, at university or in front of friends and to avoid looking slutty, the woman will reject him in front of other people.

She might have actually liked him and wanted to have sex with him, but she can't always be so obvious about it. In most cases, women have to be very subtle and use flirting, otherwise people will think she is too slutty and easy to have sex with.

2. Being too pushy about it

[image: Being too pushy about wanting sex]

When a woman shows sexual interest in a guy, he might make the classic mistake of becoming so eager to close the deal that he becomes pushy and demanding about it.

If he is like most guys who don't have much luck with women, he will know that he is just getting lucky, so he wants to make sure that he acts fast before she changes her mind. Although she might be interested in having sex with him to begin with, if he pushes and she feels his desperation, she will be turned off immediately.

3. Not using sexual body language to turn her on Sexual body language is a vital component of the human mating dance; too little and she won't respond, too much and sheâ€¦ will feel threatened or feel like the guy is being too sleazy.

Knowing the right amount of sexual body language to use is a subtle art.

Likewise, touching a woman in a confident, charming way is sexy and will turn her on, but touching her in a nervous, tense or hesitant way will usually cause a woman to either reject the guy or retreat from him because she feels uncomfortable.

4. Putting her on a pedestal and expecting her to take the lead

If a guy lacks confidence in his sex appeal to women, he will usually believe that most women are better than him and that he will have to get lucky if he's ever going to get a chance with an attractive woman.

When a guy like that talks to an attractive woman and she happens to show a bit of sexual interest, he will usually mess it up by doubting himself and waiting for her to make it even more obvious that she likes him.

He will show lots of interest in her and hope that she leads the way to kissing, sex or an exchange of phone numbers. Yet, when the attractive woman realizes that he's yet another low self-esteem guy who is intimidated by her, she will instantly lose interest.

How I Bring Up Sex With a Woman

Above: That's me picking up my sexy, 22 year old girlfriend (she's 15 years younger than me).

The way that I bring up sex with a woman is â€¦ however the heck I wantâ€¦ because I am a confident guy and no matter how challenging a woman may become in an attempt to Â test me, I never flinch or get nervous.

When I bring up with sex when talking to a woman, I have the confidence to talk about their tits, butt and anything else I want to talk about...even if I have only just met her.

I am not afraid to say whatever I want to say because I know that women like me.

How do I know that? I am skilled at making women feel attracted to me (e.g. by being confident, charismatic, charming, funny, etc), so I know that when I show interest in a girl, she will usually be excited and hoping to get a chance to be with me.

What do I say to bring up sex?

Example: I will look the woman up and down, smile and say, "Look at you...you're a sexy little thing aren't you?" and she will then gush and feel all girly around me.

I will often then tell her to "turn around...let me see your butt" and she will turn around. Why? I make women feel girly and they then respond to my masculine direction. They love it.

Some guys might see the above statements as being sleazy, rude or chauvinistic, but here's the thing...

I've had sex with more 250 women. How many women have they had sex with?

If you want to get laid and get a girlfriend, don't put on an act of being an innocent nice guy. Be a good guy, but also be authentic about your sexual interest in women. There's nothing to be embarrassed about or hide away from.

Sexual attraction is normal and women welcome your interest in them as long as you make them feel attracted to you first.

How to Get a Girl to Ask You Out

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To get a girl to ask you out, you need to make her feel intense attraction for you to the point where she feels turned on by you and wants to have sex with you as soon as possible.

Then, to make her be the one who asks you out, you need to ensure that you are a challenge for her to win over.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, a woman will begin to chase you and try to get you to take her out, kiss her or admit that you like her if you can be a challenge to win over.

However, being a challenge is not about acting or pretending to be a challenge (e.g. acting disinterested, avoiding her, telling her that you don't like her).

The right way to be a challenge is to make her feel a lot of attraction for you and then only show real signs of interest when she impresses you (e.g. she dresses well, she says something funny, she does something nice for you, she laughs at your jokes, etc).

If she isn't presenting herself in the way that you want, you have to hold back from being fully interested in her. Only decide to give her a chance to be with you when you feel like she deserves it.

Why Don't Girls Ask Me Out?

[image: Why don't girls ask me out?]

Some guys waste half their life hoping to be asked out by girls, but it never happens for them.

Why?

Is it because the guy isn't good looking enough, rich enough or tall enough?

No.

Here is the real reason why so many good guys fail with women...

As you will discover from the video above, most girls (not all girls) are much more flexible about what they find attractive than most guys realize.

Most of the guys who never get asked out by girls are simply making the mistake of being too much of a nice guy and not doing ANYTHING to spark the girl's feelings of sexual attraction for him.

Making it Happen

[image: Getting a girl to ask you out]

If a girl is going to ask you out, she will first have to be feeling SO MUCH attraction for you that she simply can't stop herself from saying something that suggest she likes you and wants something to happen between you and her.

What will she say?

Don't expect her to say, â€œHey I like you and want to date you. Do you want to go out on a *date with me and be my boyfriend?*â□□

Why? Most girls aren't that direct and will instead hint at how much they like you or hint at wanting to catch up with you one on one.

For example:Â She might say, *â□□So, do you have any plans for this weekend?*â□□ or *â□□Are you going to the party on Friday night?*â□□

Girls do this to give you hints and then they hope that you have enough confidence in yourself to know that she really is interested.

Girls also hope that you have enough masculinity to take charge of the situation, rather than hoping that she is "the man" in the situation and guides you through the process by kissing you first, undressing you and having sex with you..

If you want her to ask you out,youâ□□re going to have to be so irresistible that she feels powerless to stop herself from saying something or, at the very least, she feels that she canâ□□t help but make it completely obvious that she wants to go out with you. So how do you do that?

Simple.

Trigger her feelings of sexual attraction for you. You can do this by displaying confidence, charisma, charm and making her laugh during a conversation.

Watch this video to understand where guys mess up when talking to girls and what you should do instead to succeed...

As you will discover from the video above, most guys ruin a girl's attraction when they talk to her, which is a huge opportunity for you.

When you are the guy that effortlessly turns girls on during conversation, you are the guy that they line up to ask out. The more girls that are interested in you, the more attracted other girls become. It's really cool how it works.

3 Traits That Will Make Her Attracted to You

You can attract girls in more than 100 different ways and literally make girls go crazy over you.

Here are 3 examples of ways to attract women:

1. Confidence

A guy with genuine self-confidence knows how to talk to girls in a way that makes them feel relaxed and comfortable in his presence, whereas a nervous, self-doubting, shy guy makes girls feel uncomfortable.

Unless a girl is mean, she won't want to feel responsible for making a guy feel nervous and anxious when talking to her. So, rather than continuing to talk to him, she will usually reject him, ignore him or be cold towards him in the hope that he will go away.

When a confident guy talks to a girl, she not only feels attracted, but she can relax because she doesn't have to be gentle with him. She can be nice or challenging towards the confident guy and he will always remain confident. This allows the girl to be herself and as a result, she feels happier around the confident guy.

Women are also attracted to confident guys because life is often very challenging and women feel safer when with a confident guy compared to a nervous, self-doubting, shy guy.

2. Masculinity

Girls are instinctively attracted to guys with masculine traits (e.g. confidence, drive, assertiveness, determination, presence, masculine vibe, etc).

Girls automatically know when they are in the presence of such a man because they suddenly feel feminine and girly when around him. Most of the guys that a girl meets won't be able to make her feel that way because guys mistakenly suppress their masculinity to be nice and to hopefully get along with her like a friend.

If you want girls to feel sexually turned on by you, don't suppress your masculinity.

Just like you feel instantly attracted to a girl who is physically beautiful, a girl will feel instantly attracted to a guy who is masculine in his thinking, behavior, vibe and attitude.

However, don't make the mistake of acting like you are tough or too cool for her or anyone else. That is insecurity, not masculinity.

A real masculine guy doesn't need to put on any act. He's the man and he knows it.

3. Social intelligence

A guy with social intelligence is able to get along with people easily, make people respect him and if he is a good guy, he is also respectful to others.

With social intelligence, you are a guy who makes friends easily and you are completely relaxed just being yourself in any social environment.

A confident, masculine guy with social intelligence is very attractive in a girl's eyes and is the type of guy that she would be willing to ask out if she had to.

Avoiding Rejection if You Decide to Ask Her Out

If you don't want to wait for her to ask you out, there's a technique that I call a Half Date, which ensures you won't be rejected for asking her out on a formal date.

Examples of Half Dates are:

- Inviting her to a party that you're already going to.
- Inviting her to join you and some friends who are going to a bar on a Friday night.
- Inviting her to a house party at your place.
- Inviting her to join you to go watch your favorite sports team with some friends.

[image: The Half Date]

Sometimes you can't get a girl to join you for a traditional first date (just you and her), so you will need to invite her to a party or get her to meet you and some friends at a bar/club.

Essentially, it's about inviting her to an event or place that you are going to be at with friends. That way, it's not a 1-on-1 date and both you and her don't have to be worried about getting rejected.

When she attends the Half Date, simply ensuring that you are making her feel attracted to you. Then, when the moment is right, get alone with her and move in for a kiss or invite to come and "hang out" at your place after the event.

How to Court a Woman: Courting Vs. Dating

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Courting a woman today is a quick and fairly simple process.

In the past, a man would need to court a virgin woman for months or even years and then ask her father for permission to marry his daughter.

Once he got that blessing, they could get married and then begin having sex and living together.

Today's world is clearly different...

[image: Sex on the first night or first date]

According a study in the USA, 55% of couples admitted to having had sex on their first date and a European study found that 70% of women have had a one night stand before.

In other words, sex usually happens very quickly during the courtship process.

The Steps of a Successful Courtship

To court a woman into a committed relationship, you need to:

1. Make her feel sexually attracted to you.

In the past, a man would need to mostly focus on showing a woman (and her family) that he was capable of providing for her.

In today's world, most women select men based on how much sexual attraction he makes her feel first. They will take a guy for a "test drive" by having sex with him and trying out a relationship and if it makes her happy, she will stick around.

Many of the women you will meet will not be looking to immediately settle down with a guy and commit to marriage on the first date. Initially, all that most women are interested in is whether or not they feel sexually drawn to you.

After sex has happened and she's got a feel for what a relationship with you seems like, she will then make her decision on how serious she wants to get with you (e.g. just date for a while, be boyfriend and girlfriend for a few years and then break up, get engaged and see how it feels or begin talking about and planning your future together as a married couple).

Do you know how to make a woman feel sexually attracted to you when you interact with her?

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to ensure the courtship flow smoothly from one step to the next...

2. Take things to a sexual level.

When guiding a modern woman through the courtship process, you usually can't waste too much time "dating" without actually having sex.

If you wait too long, a woman may end up going out with her girlfriends and having sex on the first with a guy that she meets in a bar or nightclub. Once they've had sex, the relationship will begin and you will probably be left behind.

Just because you are courting her into a relationship, it doesn't mean that kissing, sex and sexual attraction are not part of the equation.

Watch this video to understand what happens when a guy acts like a friend and doesn't include the sexual side of the courtship...

If you want the courtship to feel amazing for her, you must include sexual attraction and when it is appropriate, you should move in for a kiss and get to sex.

Women today are open to having sex very quickly. It's not 1900 anymore where a man and a woman had to wait until the wedding night to have sex.

These days, almost all couples have plenty of sex during the courtship process to test each other out and see how they feel.

3. Treat her like a potential wife.

If you are serious about courting a woman into a committed relationship or marriage, you shouldn't treat her like yet another girl that you're dating.

Once you and her have talked about wanting to be serious with each other, you need to get rid of any other that you're dating and treat your chosen woman as the one.

4. Take the relationship to the next level.

After being together for a while, you will either gradually progress through the 5 stages of a relationship and into a marriage, or you won't.

Sometimes, a man and a woman will be against marriage and will instead take things to the next level by moving in together, having children and getting a mortgage together for example.

Whatever it is for you is fine, but if you're serious about courting her into a lifelong relationship, always make sure that you are moving towards higher stages of your relationship and commitment together, rather than getting stuck at a certain point and then eventually getting bored of that type of relationship.

Personally speaking, I eventually decided to accept my girlfriend's marriage proposal because it just seemed like the right thing to do. We got married back in April and I now look at it as one of the best decisions I've ever made in life.

The type of love, respect, attraction and commitment you will have for each other when you get married feels nothing like the experience of being in a dating relationship or a boyfriend/girlfriend relationship.

I used to look at marriage as being out of date and a dying tradition, but now I know that it's one of the best things you will ever do in life. The feeling of peace, security and deep love that you feel like is like nothing else in life.

Of course, marriage isn't for everyone, as this live poll shows...

Courting 101

Before we go any further, let's have a look at the dictionary definitions of courting vs. dating to make things clear:

Courtship (noun): The act, period or art of seeking the love of someone with the intent to marry or stay together for life. The wooing of one person by another.

Dating (noun): The act of spending time with another person for fun, sex or a casual relationship.

As you can see by the dictionary definitions, courting means that you're in this for real and dating means that you're just having some fun, learning and experiencing what a relationship is like.

Courting a woman is about committing to her and the relationship with a view to making it a solid, loving and lasting one.

Back when I was living the playboy lifestyle of dating and having sex with multiple women at once, I rarely got into "courting" mode because I didn't want to give a woman the impression that I was serious about her and ready to settle down.

Instead, the impression that I gave her was that it was just a bit of fun for now. To make that clear, I would often have to say, "I am not looking for a serious relationship right now, but let's just see where this goes" or "I don't have time for a full time girlfriend right now, but I'm happy to see where this goes" and the woman would then get the point.

However, other times, I wouldn't even have to say anything like that because both the woman and I would know that it was just about having sex and some good times together and if things got more serious between us, we'd think about that then.

Yet, when I came across my girlfriend (who recently became my wife), I switched from dating mode to courting mode. Her and I could both sense that we were open to a full commitment.

We instantly began going on lots of interesting dates, spending quality time with each other and didn't want to be apart. I had escalated to sex as quickly as I usually did with other women, but we both sensed that this wasn't just going to be about having casual sex or a bit of fun.

After about a week, she asked me if I wanted to be exclusive with her and only her and I said yes. I then contacted the four other women in my life (who I had stopped seeing since meeting my girl) to let them know that I wasn't going to be available anymore.

Then, two and half years into our relationship we got engaged and then married. Now, we're in the process of starting a family.

Here's thing though...

The relationship between her and I would have never worked if we met many years ago when I still hadn't worked out how to attract women or how to deepen a woman's feelings of respect, love and attraction in a relationship.

Prior to discovering what I now teach here at The Modern Man, I was basically going through life hoping to get lucky with women and when in a relationship, I would just hope that the woman stuck around because I was a good guy.

Yet, that isn't how it works.

If you want to get yourself a beautiful girlfriend (or wife), you've got to be able to attract the women you meet so you can have your choice of women, rather than just accepting whatever you can get and then trying to make it work with an incompatible woman.

You also need to be able to deepen a woman's feelings of love, respect and attraction for you over time, rather than expecting that she will stick around for life because things felt good at the start.

In today's world, where it's unfortunately no longer very shameful to get divorced, most women will leave a man if he isn't able to make her feel the way that she wants to feel in a relationship.

[image: Don't try to get lucky and then hope that everything magically works out]

So, if you're interested in courting a woman into a relationship and you want that relationship to last for life, make sure that you don't make the mistake of trying to get lucky and magically find a perfectly compatible woman who will stick around because things were good at the start.

Some guys do get lucky in that way, but with a divorce rate of around 50% in most of the developed world, their luck eventually runs out.

Does She Only Want to Have Some Fun With You For a While?

[image: Does she only want to have some fun with you for a while?]

These days, a lot of men and women confuse courting with dating and end up feeling wronged in the process.

For example: A woman may date a guy for a while and have sex with him just because she feels like having a man in her life for a while.

She never intended it to be anything more than that, but a guy who doesn't understand how differently a woman will behave in a courting vs. dating relationship, he may assume that they had been courting and were going down the path of marriage or a lifetime relationship.

He will then feel wronged or betrayed by her when she eventually says something like, "I need space to find myself. I think we should take a break for a while" or "I don't want to be in a relationship anymore. I want to be single like my girlfriends. I'm too young for this."

The guy might then feel confused and frustrated with women for a long time after that, wondering whether or not he'll ever be able to secure a woman into a lifelong relationship.

[image: Will I ever be able have a successful relationship?]

When you're out there dating women and experiencing relationships, just know that not every relationship will result in a lifelong commitment.

The more mature and modern way to approach things is to simply be real about your intentions. These days, most people have a number of dating relationships or even serious relationships until they eventually find the right person to settle down with.

You might get lucky and meet your perfect girl right away, but statistically speaking (according to several related studies), you are probably going to kiss, have sex with and enjoy relationships with several women before settling down.

Speeding Up the Courtship Process

[image: Speeding up the courtship process]

Courting may be termed as "getting serious" or "going steady" in today's times, but essentially, it means that both you and your woman (not just you) are choosing to commit to one another exclusively and are looking to a possible future together.

However, if you want to enjoy easy success when you're courting women into a relationship, you should turn the tables on her and make her try hard to impress you and secure YOU into a relationship.

This is called, "being a challenge" and it will apply if the woman you want is beautiful and can easily attract other guys. Watch this video for more info...

As you will discover from the video above, some guys make the mistake of trying really hard to get a chance with a beautiful woman, even though he isn't doing anything to make her feel sexually attracted to him.

There's nothing with courting a woman in a way that suggests you are hoping to secure her into a relationship, but I've found that beautiful women prefer to be the ones trying to secure you into a relationship.

If it is only the guy who wants a serious relationship and the woman isn't sure yet, she will often make him jump through all sorts of unnecessary hoops to impress her (e.g. expensive dinners, gifts, being patient about sex, etc).

He might try to court her for months and she may then decide that she isn't interested and will hook up with another guy (who is getting to the point and making her feel sexually attracted) instead.

In her heart of hearts, a woman wants to be with a man that she feels lucky to be with (i.e. he can have other women, but he is choosing her), rather than feeling like she is settling for a guy who wants her way more than she wants him.

If you want things to flow easily from one step to the next, I recommend that you go into courting mode, but try to genuinely create the dynamic where she is trying to get you to commit more than you are trying to get her to commit.

In other words, only commit to a serious relationship if she treats you well, impresses you with her character (i.e. she is honest, loyal, caring, etc) and you feel like she deserves it. Don't commit to a woman who isn't treating you well, is of bad character (i.e. she is dishonest, untrustworthy, selfish, etc) or who isn't really your perfect girl.

You don't need to settle for second best and in today's day and age, you really shouldn't be. To keep a relationship together for life, you really have to be a perfect match, so don't risk getting seriously involved with a woman (i.e. moving in, having children, getting married, etc) if you don't truly believe that it will last for life.

How My Wife and I Courted Each Other

[image: Dan Bacon at a nightclub with girlfriend]

When my wife and I first met (photo above), we both stopped dating other people and immediately went into courting mode.

She began to cook big dinners for me, she dressed herself up in sexy ways, massaged me after I'd been working all day and generally looked out for my happiness and well-being.

She also talked about things we could do in the future together. We didn't have to say, "Hey, you and I are going to commit for life" because we both knew that we were interested in a serious commitment.

It took us about 8 months before we both sincerely began to talk about a lifetime commitment and pretty much agreed that this was it – we'd found the right person and were ready to settle down.

I made sure that we were going out to lots of interesting places and experiencing fun times during the first year. We were building a history of fun, positive, relaxing and enjoyable experiences together, instead of just casually dating and seeing where things would go.

Back when I was dating multiple women at once, I would go to fun places with certain women, but not as frequently as I did with her.

When I was living the playboy lifestyle, I would just be answering my phone (I didn't have to call women) or replying to texts (they'd always text me first) and saying â€œYes or â€œNo to women's requests to come over to my place and see me.

When a woman would come over, we'd have sex, hang out and watch a movie and usually go out to grab a bite to eat. It was all about having fun and enjoying the sexual tension between us.

However, there was no discussions from me about having a future with any of the women. They would often ask me to commit to them, start a family with them and many even asked me to marry them, but I would always say no.

How to Court a Woman Properly: Establish the Correct Relationship Dynamic

Going into courting mode means that you both have the intention of staying together, whether that means marriage, a lifetime relationship or a serious, long-term relationship with the option of getting married later.

However, intending to stay together for life doesn't guarantee that you will. What does? The correct relationship dynamic.

If you are doing it correctly, your relationship dynamic will be one where your woman is trying to impress you and maintain your interest, MORE than you are trying to impress her and maintain her interest. Anything other than that is usually a recipe for disaster in today's world.

Unfortunately, a lot of guys get that wrong and tend to gradually lose the woman's respect and attraction during the first few months or years. Eventually, the woman gets to the point where she's had enough and she decides to cheat on him or leave.

Over the years, many guys have asked me things like, "Dan, if I was doing things wrong, why couldn't my girlfriend have told me? I would have changed whatever she wanted me to. She didn't have to break up with me in such a cold way. Why don't women just speak up and tell us directly?"

Yet, what these guys don't realize is that a woman doesn't want to be your teacher about how to be a man. A woman doesn't want to have to take on the role of your mother or a big sister and âbabyâ you through the process of being a strong man for her. A woman wants you to work out how to be a man on your own and then just BE that man for her.

Guys who don't understand this will contact me and say that their girlfriend or wife has suddenly dumped them âout of the blue.â Yet, what many of these guys unfortunately haven't realized is that her decision to leave him was something that was in development for a long time.

In a serious relationship, women don't just decide âovernightâ to dump a guy; they give him plenty of hints and signals and hope that he recognizes them, changes and becomes a better man in response.

If he does improve, her reasons for wanting to break up with him will go away and the relationship will usually continue on.

Switching From Dating to Courting the Woman in Your Life

Okay, so let's say that you're currently dating a woman and you want her to switch from that to courting.

You know that you're ready to commit to her and you want her to feel the same way. So, how do you do it?

Simple.

You need to focus on becoming and then BEING the type of man that she would LOVE to commit to. Watch this video for more info...

As you will discover from the video above, you can be the man that a woman desperately wants to secure into a committed relationship. It is completely within your reach and you do not have to end up as another divorce statistic or another guy searching for help online about how to get an ex back.

You can be one of the success stories and have the type of relationship that becomes more enjoyable, fulfilling and rewarding over time.

Alpha Male vs. Beta Male: What's the Difference?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Being an alpha male is pretty simple.

You essentially have to believe in yourself and go after what you want in life and with women.

When life gets tough or you encounter a challenging situation, you will be considered an alpha male if you remain strong and keep pushing forward to victory or to an alternative solution that gets you to a place that you're happy with.

Rather than trying to kiss everyone's ass to hopefully get them to like you, as an alpha male you simply know that you're good enough, cool enough and worthy enough for whatever you want. If you have to learn, improve or adapt in anyway, you do that, but at the end of the day, you get to where you want to be one way or the other.

Alpha Male, Beta Male and Omega Male

Here are some general examples of differences between three types of human males...

1. Alpha male

[image: Alpha male with women]

A very high level of social confidence and self-assurance.

Determined, not held back by fear, comfortably takes the lead.

Takes a masculine approach to women, which makes them feel feminine and girly in response.

Women respect him and remain attracted to him.

2. Beta male

[image: Beta male]

Mild levels of social confidence and self-assurance.

Mild levels of insecurity, nervousness and fear in social situations. Follows the lead of the alpha male because he is either too afraid or lacks the confidence and belief in himself to be the leading male.

Usually misses out on hooking up with women or getting a girlfriend when an alpha male is around because he makes the woman feel less attracted and he steps out of the way as the alpha male goes after what he wants.

Takes a neutral approach to women, which makes them feel like more of a friend. Women might respect him, but they are unable to remain sexually attracted to him for long because the masculine/feminine dynamic is missing due to his neutral approach.

To keep the sexual spark alive in a relationship between a man and a woman, the man has to take a masculine approach, which in turn allows the woman to feel feminine, girly and emotional around him.

3. Omega male

[image: Omega male with women]

Low to very low levels of social confidence and self-assurance.

High levels of insecurity, nervousness and fear in social situations. Follows the lead of the alpha male and beta male because he is too afraid and lacks the confidence and belief in himself to be the leading male or even the second in command.

Tends to use the “innocent nice guy” approach with women and hopes to be liked enough to be given a chance with a woman. Women neither respect him or feel attracted to him.

Of course, there is nothing wrong with being a good guy to women, but the omega male approach of being an ass-kissing nice guy simply doesn't work with women. Here's why...

As you will discover from the video above, there is nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but niceness isn't what turns her on.

Being an alpha male to a woman doesn't mean that you need to be a bad boy, jerk or asshole who treats her badly. What we teach here at The Modern Man is how to be a good guy alpha male, which essentially means that you're a good guy who has balls.

Rank and Hierarchy

Essentially, an alpha male is the leader or most dominant man (mentally or physically) in a situation.

A beta male is the male below him (or second in command) and an omega male is the lowest ranking male. Since women are more attracted to alpha males than any other type of guy, if you're not an alpha male then you are less attractive to women than you could be.

One thing I want to point out right away is that being an alpha male is not about being a bad boy.

A lot of guys avoid expressing their inner alpha male because they are confused about the difference between a good guy alpha male and a bad boy, assuming that to “be alpha” means to be mean, selfish or bad to others.

So, to help clear up that confusion, let's take a look at the difference between a bad boy and a good guy alpha male...

1. Good guy alpha male

Confident, mentally and emotionally balanced and strong, able to lead situations when needed, assertive and masculine in his thinking, behavior and the way he takes action.

Caring, loving, compassionate, charismatic, considerate and friendly. Loves people with an open heart, accepting them for who they are and hoping that they feel just as happy as he does with life.

2. Bad boy alpha male

Aggressive, selfish, often emotionally unbalanced, devious. Prefers to see people get hurt (emotionally, mentally, physically). Can be loving, but only if it suits him.

No doubt you will have come across many good guy alpha males and bad boy alpha males in your life.

As you would know from those experiences, the good guy alpha males are usually those who have the respect of most people in a group, have their pick of women, have loads of friends and are generally successful in life.

Bad boy alpha males may be shown respect by others (out of fear), but they are usually not the most liked or successful in life. They are able to attract hot women due to being confident and masculine, but if a good guy alpha male is available, a woman will go for him instead 9 times out of 10.

Alpha Males on TV and in the Movies

Alpha males are often shown to be bad boys in movies because it makes it fun for the audience to watch the good guy character eventually beat him in the end. The good guy will save the day, save the world or save the girl and they will then live happily ever after.

Often, the nervous, shy, awkward guy will eventually become an alpha male by the end of the movie, which will impress the woman and attract her to him.

Yet, here's thing...

In real life, you will rarely get a chance to save the world to impress a girl. Luckily, attracting women to you by displaying some alpha male traits is a lot easier than you might imagine.

You don't have to save the world, save the day or save her from a bad boy. All you've got to do display SOME attractive personality traits and behaviors (being an alpha male is just one of those) and she will feel attracted to you.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to be her alpha male...

As you will discover from the video above, there are many different ways that you can make a woman feel attracted to you.

To attract beautiful women, you don't have to become the number one alpha male in the world who can beat up all other guys or rule the world.

Instead, you simply need to display some personality traits and behaviors that are attractive (e.g. confidence, charisma, charm, humor, masculine vibe, etc) and then guide the woman from a conversation to kiss, sex and into a relationship.

So, don't go wasting your life by thinking that you're never going to be good enough for women because you're not the biggest, most powerful alpha male in the world.

Being alpha is a lot more simple and easy to do than most guys realize. As long as you display some alpha traits, women will feel attracted to you. Of course, the more alpha male traits you display, the more naturally attractive you will be to women, but the truth is that most women are lot easier to attract and pick up than guys realize.

Many women put on an act of being hard to get, but when they meet a guy who makes them feel attracted and then has the balls to move the interaction forward, they usually just go along with it.

Alpha Males in the Animal Kingdom

In the animal kingdom, the alpha male is the "top dog" (or cat) and the leader of the pack.

He is the one who mates with the majority of females in his "pack," so that his strong genes will be passed on, thereby helping to ensure the survival of the species by making it stronger.

In the human world, an alpha male also has his pick of â€œmatesâ€œ because women are instinctively drawn to a man with qualities that mark him out as a â€œbetter survivor.â€œ

Even though we now have supermarkets, police, hospitals and governments, women are still ruled by their primal instincts to find a guy who is going to be more capable of surviving, thriving and prospering in this world.

An alpha male is not guaranteed to survive, thrive and prosper, but a woman's instincts will make her feel more attracted to him rather than a beta or omega male. If a woman meets an omega male who has a lot of money and can clearly survive well financially, it's not going to stop her instincts from making her feel turned on by the personality traits and behaviors of an alpha male.

She might be worse off (financially) with the alpha male, but she will feel horny and want to have sex with him way more than she wants to have sex with the omega.

After all, for most of human history, an omega could be stripped of his resources and wealth if a bad boy alpha male came along and decided to take it.

If you are serious about wanting to understand a woman's attraction for a man, you have to come to terms with the fact that a woman's attraction is directly linked to her survival instincts.

It may seem a bit outdated in our modern world, but women can't turn off their primal instincts just because we now have supermarkets, police, hospitals and governments.

Watch this video to understand why women think, behave and act in ways that many guys consider strange, weird or even wrong...

As you will discover from the video above, women often SAY one thing and then DO the complete opposite.

For example: Just because a woman says that she was a nice guy, it doesn't mean that she feels turned on by nice guys. What she is really saying is that she wants a nice guy who can also turn her on and make her feel girly in response to his masculinity.

Beta Males

The beta male is essentially #2 and the alpha male is #1.

Unlike an alpha male, a beta male might slip into trying too hard to make sure that his qualities are noticed by others. He may do this by bragging, telling stories that highlight his qualities or changing his personality or opinions on the fly to hopefully fit in and be liked by everyone.

Much of what he says and does is designed to hide his insecurities and deflect attention away from his number two status, but people can see right through it. It's an instinct that we have; we know who the true alpha is in any given situation and no matter what the beta says or does, it remains perfectly obvious who is number one and who is number two.

Omega Males

The omega male is the lowest ranking male in a situation, group, pack, etc.

In the animal world, the omega male is the one who picks at the food scraps left behind by the alpha and beta males. When it comes to breeding with the females, he usually misses out completely or is killed by the pack when trying to breed with a female in secret.

Amongst humans, the omega male is the type of guy that nobody really notices, especially in social settings. He lacks self-confidence and usually comes across as being insecure, desperate and of low social value when he interacts with women.

He lacks masculinity, which makes him feel weak and wimpy to women and thus turns them off sexually.

From his perspective, he will usually see confident guys as being bad boys, jerks and assholes because they are not as nice, innocent and polite as he is. He will feel as though women are crazy for not seeing how much of a good guy he is and will think that women are making a mistake by hooking up with guys that he sees as being bad boys.

He will hope that one day, people will notice that he is a good guy and deserves respect. Yet, waiting around like that will simply result in him wasting his life hoping for something that will never happen.

Women cannot stop themselves from feeling more respect, attraction and love for guys who display alpha male traits and characteristics. It's simply how nature works.

Being an alpha male does not mean that an omega male has to become a bad boy, jerk or asshole. Instead, he just needs to become more confident in himself and be a pillar of strength in this world, rather than expecting everyone else to take pity on him and be a pillar of strength for him.

The Deeply Rooted Instincts of Women

A woman's search for an alpha male is driven by her instinct to find a man who can protect her and provide for her.

It doesn't matter if she makes her own money or is successful in her career, her instincts are still going to urge her to find an alpha male.

A woman's instincts are the primary driver of her attraction to men and if you want to tap into that, you have to become more of an alpha male. You don't have to be the number one alpha in the world, beat up other guys or boss people around.

It's a lot easier than that...

How to Ask Out a Friend: Mistakes to Avoid

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to ask out a friend, you need to ensure that she is sexually attracted to you first.

Most women are not willing to go on a date or get into a sexual relationship with a guy that they only see as a friend.

You've got to start turning her on by way of your vibe, body language, conversation style and behavior around her. When she is attracted to you, she is almost certainly going to be excited to say, "Yes!" when you ask her out.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use that to ensure your friend says, "Yes!" when you ask her out...

Some women (i.e. unattractive women, desperate women) will agree to go on a date with a guy that they don't feel much attraction for, but that doesn't mean that the date will feel comfortable rather than awkward and will lead to kissing and sex.

If you want to effortlessly go from being in a friendship to being in a sexual relationship, you've got to make sure that she is feeling turned on by you.

What to Say When You Ask Out Your Female Friend

[image: How to ask out a female friend]

Okay, so let's assume that you do know how to make her feel sexually attracted to you and she's hoping that you now ask her out.

What should you say?

First, you need to get rid of the friendship act that is currently playing out between you and her. Change the dynamic to a man and a woman who are sexually attracted to each other and wanting to take things further.

What can you say to establish that? As long as she is attracted to you first, you can tell her that you find her attractive. However, how you say it depends on how confident she is about her attractiveness to you.

If she is shy and is insecure about her attractiveness:

You: [Immediately after you and her have a laugh together] Hey, by the way....I want to let you knowâ€¦I like you...I like you more than just a friend...thereâ€¦s something about you that I really like.

If she is confident and knows that she's hot:

You: [Immediately after you and her have a laugh together. Look her up and down in a masculine way where you are checking her out and then smile and say] You're sexy...

Essentially, what you need to do is cut through all the BS friend acting that is going on between you and her at the moment.

If she is attracted to you, then she's going to be hoping that you have the balls to ask her out. So, don't hide your sexual interest in her behind the act of being a nice friend.

What to say to ask her out:

You: Anyway, I was thinking...we should catch up sometime soon just you and me. I'm going to be busy on Friday, but what are you doing this Saturday or Sunday?

Then arrange a time for you and her to meet up just the two of you (e.g. for lunch during the day, for drinks at night, or even at your place or her place to "hang out" and have something to eat).

What if You Ruin the Friendship By Asking Her Out?

[image: Worried about risking their friendship if he asks her out]

You won't.

As long as she is attracted to you, she is going to be happy when you ask her out.

If the worst case scenario happens and she says, "Sorry, I just want to be friends" you can use that response to make her feel attracted to you. How?

Simply remain confident in yourself, smile and say, "Yeah right...I know you like me...I can see it in the way you look at me." She will then smile or laugh and you can then say, "See...you're doing it again."

Here's the really cool thing about saying that...

Women are automatically attracted to guys who display confidence in themselves in that way. A woman may act like she isn't attracted, but she will be. Confidence is universally attractive to women, so make sure that you always remain confident in yourself around this girl you like.

She might try to make you feel uncomfortable or to doubt yourself, but that is simply to test your confidence. Women always test a guy's confidence in himself and if you are the type of guy who can remain confident no matter what a woman says, you will laugh at how easy it is to attract women.

Are You Just a Nice Friend to Her?

Some of the guys who ask me for advice on how to ask out a friend, usually have a secret crush on a woman they've known for some time.

In these cases, the guy will have been "just friends" with her for a while, but will have secretly hoping that she eventually develops feelings for him and makes it obvious that she now wants to be his lover or girlfriend.

Here's the thing though...

If she really liked you and wanted to be in a sexual relationship with you, she would have already made that pretty obvious by now. So, if you've just been a nice friend to her, then you will need to change her perspective of you by making her feel sexually attracted BEFORE you attempt to ask her out.

Otherwise, it will just feel awkward and she will most-likely reject you because of that awkwardness.

Watch this video to understand why being too nice to a woman often leads to rejection...

As you will discover from the video above, you haven't done anything wrong by being a good friend to this woman you like.

However, you can't expect a woman to have strong, sexual feelings for you if you've only been a nice friend towards her. Niceness is not a sexual turn on for women.

If a woman is sexually attracted to a guy and he is ALSO nice to her, then she will see his nice behavior as charming and she will feel excited about their budding romance. However, if she isn't sexually attracted to a guy and only sees him as a friend, she will see his nice behavior as nothing more than polite, nice gestures that a nice friend would make.

Real Life vs. Hollywood Movies

In the movies and on TV, the nervous, shy, extra-helpful male friend will usually end up making the beautiful, intelligent, confident woman fall in love with him by the end of the movie or TV series.

Yet, in real life, if a woman doesn't feel sexual attraction for a guy and only sees him as a friend, she isn't going to rush over and kiss him like the girls in the movies always seem to do.

Basing some of their dating behavior on the fictional characters from TV and the movies, some guys make the mistake of trying too hard to be "liked" by a woman they're interested in.

[image: Hey, but I'm nice like the guys in the movies. What's the problem? Why don't you like me?]

He hopes that by being super nice and doing favors for her all the time (like the "loveable losers" in Hollywood movies do), she will eventually fall madly in love with him and they will then live happily ever after.

That sort of crazy stuff happens in movies and TV sitcoms, but real life is not like the movies.

Some women (i.e. unattractive or desperate women) will accept a guy who is essentially kissing her ass and hoping for a chance, because she knows that the majority of guys aren't interested in her and would leave her after having sex once or a few times.

However, if a woman is attractive, she will almost always reject a guy who is trying hard to get a chance with her, even though he isn't doing anything to make her feel attracted.

Why? Watch this video to understand why women reject guys like that...

As you will discover from the video above, if a woman is attractive, most guys will be willing to have sex with her simply based on her appearance.

It's very easy for women to get guys interested in them because we men initially select women based on appearance. If you want to be the guy who stands out, you've got to make HER feel attracted to you and then only allow her to get a chance with YOU if she impresses you enough.

Does She Feel Turned On By You?

Regardless of whether a woman is only interested in casual sex, a brief relationship or a lifetime commitment, she is going to feel the most attracted to you when she notices that you have the kinds of traits that offer the best benefit for her survival, prosperity, happiness and protection.

Why?

A woman's attraction is directly linked to how capable a man is of surviving, thriving and prospering in this world. This is why many good looking guys often go years without having a girlfriend, while average looking guys are able to hook up with hot girls all the time.

While it is true that some women pick men purely based on looks, the majority of women pick a man based on how much sexual attraction he makes her feel for reasons other than looks (e.g. his confidence, charisma, attitude, personality, etc).

Want some proof of that? Watch this video...

As you will discover from the video above, the majority of women are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a man than most guys realize.

If you want your female friend to feel excited and hopeful that you will ask her out, try to make sure that you are at least displaying these attractive qualities around her...

1. Confidence

A man with confidence stands out as a man who feels secure in who he is.

He is relaxed and comfortable just being himself and doesn't have to try hard to be liked, or pretend to be someone he's not in an effort to impress anyone because he knows that he is already good enough.

Being shy and nervous around women does not make you the confident guy that they're looking for as a potential lover or boyfriend, but they might take you "under their wing" as a friend.

Sometimes, a nervous guy will put on an act of being confident in the hope that it will trick women into liking. However, women are looking for genuine confidence and they can spot it a mile away.

If you like your female friend in a sexual way, you've got to be confident enough to show that to her. Being a super nice "best friend" to her when you are really interested in having a sexual relationship makes you seem like someone who can't fully be trusted.

If a woman feels like you are putting on an act, she will put her guard up and play hard to get or will reject you when you try to ask her out in indirect ways (e.g. "What do you look for in a boyfriend?" or "Do you think that you and I could ever be anything more than friends?").

You've got to have the confidence to be honest and say, "You're sexy, I like you" in a moment where you and her are laughing and having a good time together.

Reminder: Don't try to ask her out before she is sexually attracted to you. You've got to make sure that she feels sexually attracted to you first, otherwise she will most-likely reject your advances because she will only see you as a friend.

2. Masculinity

True masculinity is a quality that makes women effectively feel "weak at the knees" and marks you out as a strong, alpha male who has what it takes to provide for a woman, protect her and make her feel like a real woman.

A woman will feel like a "real woman" when she feels girly, feminine and free to be emotional around you. On the other hand, if you make her feel like "one of the guys" around you or like a nice, neutral friend, then you're not making her feel like a real woman.

These days, a lot of guys are confused about what it means to be masculine. Not knowing what else to do, most guys go to the gym and try to build up their physical masculinity, never realizing that muscles on a nervous, self-doubting guy is as appealing as lipstick on an unattractive woman.

Sure, her lipstick might get your attention, but once you get a good look at the rest of her, you realize that she's not attractive.

Likewise, a guy's muscles might get a woman's attention, but if he doesn't have the inner qualities (i.e. confidence, emotional masculinity, charisma, etc) that women place most importance on, then most women are not going to find him attractive.

Most women are not impressed by guys who think that masculinity means to act tough or put other guys down to make himself look good. They see right through that and know that the guy is insecure and that being his girlfriend or wife would most-likely lead to a life of trouble and conflict.

In today's world, the most important part of your masculinity are how you think, behave and take action around others and in the world. You can have big muscles if you want to, but a woman is not going to be interested if you lack the inner qualities that are so important for a man's ability to survive, thrive and prosper in today's world.

If you lack emotional masculinity, your friend may be able to feel a bit of attraction for you due to other traits (e.g. you're funny, intelligent, etc), but if she is beautiful and could easily get other guys interested, she will most-likely say, "I think that we should just remain friends" when you ask her out.

3. Social Intelligence

A guy who has the ability to socialize and make friends with others is a guy who has what it takes to provide for a woman and protect her through his ability to connect with others.

In other words, he's not a loner and if times get tough, he will be able to turn to his wide group of friends or people he's just met in the situation to help him, her or their offspring.

Social intelligence sparks an instinctive sexual attraction in women that they cannot control or turn off. They feel drawn to "cool" guys, popular guys and guys with a lot of friends because attraction is directly linked to a woman's need to find a guy who will be able to survive, thrive and prosper in this world.

Being socially intelligent suggests to her (but does not guarantee) that a guy would be better at surviving, thriving and prospering than another guy who lacks the social intelligence to get other people to like him and support him.

When a woman notices that a guy is socially intelligent, she instantly realizes that he would be in demand by other women. She knows that she will have to impress him and may even need to compete for him with other girls and since women love the thrill of the chase, this makes him even more attractive and appealing.

If your female friend or coworker thinks that you are shy and find it hard to get along with others, it will dampen her feelings of sexual attraction for you.

Of course, some women do like to accept weak men for a relationship or marriage, but that doesn't mean he won't be dumped, divorced or cheated on when she eventually gets bored of pretending to love him and want to be with him.

Some women also want to have a weak man who will devote himself to her and will never want to leave, because she is afraid of being dumped and feeling the pain of rejection.

As nice as that may sound to some of you guys reading now who are thinking, â€œYes!! I want a girl like thatâ€ here's the problem...

A woman like that is more-likely to cheat on you and leave you if she meets a better man. Getting a woman into a relationship is the easy part, but deepening her love, respect and attraction for you over time is another story altogether.

Stop Trying to Be Her Nice, Innocent Friend and Start Turning Her On in a Sexual Way

If you don't stop acting like a friend towards her, you run the risk of ending up being friend zoned and replaced by another guy who gets right to the point and makes her feel sexually attracted.

[image: Asking out a female friend]

It's not the year 1800 or 1900 where you need to slowly court a woman into a sexual relationship with you.

[image: Old standard dating procedure]

In today's world, sex happens very quickly, so you need to get to the point or you will be sidelined by another guy who understands how to get things done with women in the modern dating environment.

If your female friend is attracted to you right now, then she will be hoping that you have the balls to ask her out or at least move in for a first kiss.

If she is attracted to you, she will rarely reject any moves you make on her, but if she does play hard to get, it will usually just be her way of testing your confidence and confirming that you really do like her before she opens up and says that she likes you too.

The best ways to meet women are often seen as the worst ways to meet women for some guys.

36. Chat sites

As you can see from the big list above, there are endless ways to meet women, but believe me â the LOCATION is not the most important part. What matters is whether or not you make the woman feel attracted to you when you meet her.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use that to get quick and easy results when you go out to meet women...

As you will discover from the video above, you have a lot of control over how much or little attraction a woman will feel for you.

If you display the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women, most of the women you meet will like you and be interested in talking to you and hooking up with you.

Bars and Nightclubs Are Often the Best Place to Meet Women

[image: Places to meet women - bars and nightclubs]

I've had sex with more than 250 women and I've found that bars and nightclubs are usually the best place to get yourself a girlfriend.

Some guys mistakenly assume that a girl from a bar or nightclub won't be "marriage material" will cheat on them or dump them later on. However, some of the nicest, most loyal women I've ever met where in bars and nightclubs.

As for my girlfriend who met in a nightclub when she was 20 and I was 35 (photo above), I've never met a girl who is more "marriage material" than her.

She is honest, has great family values, truly cares about me and doesn't believe in divorce. Some guys believe it's impossible to meet girls like her in a nightclub, but from my experience, I've found that it easy because most guys are afraid of the hotties or simply don't know how to pick them up.

Often, the women you see on the street, at cafes or walking through a shopping mall are the same types of women who are at bars and nightclubs on the weekend. They may look more "innocent" when in a bookstore, restaurant or cafe, but they are pretty much all the same.

3 Facts About Meeting Women

The truth is, meeting women is a LOT of fun if you do it correctly (i.e. you begin interactions by making the women feel attracted to you, rather than trying to be nice to them and hoping that they are nice back).

Meeting women is a source of fun, excitement and happiness that you simply can't get anywhere else as a man.

[image: When will I meet a nice woman?]

You might try to dull your built up sexual desire by regularly masturbating to porn, but you will eventually realize that you need to grow a pair of balls and actually meet REAL women.

So, if you are at the point where you're sick of not having any real women or sex in your life and are willing to get out there and meet women (rather than hiding behind endless masturbation), take note of the following...

Fact 1: Women Do Want to Be Approached

When I was afraid to approach women, I would go to places (like bars, clubs and social events) and hope that if I dressed up well enough, maybe a woman would make it really obvious that she wanted to talk to me (e.g. wave me over) or she might even approach me herself.

Back then, I didn't know that women are completely open to being approached in social environments as long as a guy comes over in a confident, easy-going way. I thought that women didn't want to be bothered by guys and were simply out having fun.

Man, was I wrong.

Iâ€¦d spend most of the night just looking at the women and imagining what I could say or do to get them to have "Wow!" reaction and really like me. Some women would look my way and I would try to maintain eye contact with them or smile, but nothing would ever happen.

Eventually, when Iâ€¦d had enough drinks and was feeling drunk to the point of not caring about rejection anymore, I would muster up some courage to walk over and talk to some women, only to have them reject me for being drunk or coming across as nervous or awkward with them.

In the movies, standing alone at a party usuallyâ€¦ makes the male character seem â€¦mysteriousâ€¦ and a beautiful, female character will then becomeâ€¦ curious to meet him.

The woman will oftenâ€¦ be shy herself (but really beautiful and innocent) and they will go down the path of the typical movie love story, where she rejects him initially and then he gets her in the end by being a good guy and saving the day, saving her or saving the world.

In the real world, women rarely approach men and being the guy who â€¦ saves the dayâ€¦ or does nice favors for women doesn't get you laid.

If you want to be successful at meeting women, you have to approach with confidence and then trigger the woman's feelings of attraction for you. These days, women play hard to get and if a guy doesn't know what he's doing, he will usually get rejected or ignored by women when he tries to meet them.

Are you confident enough to approach the beautiful women that you really want to meet? If not, watch this video...

Fact 2: Shyness Doesn't Turn Women On

In the movies, a shy, nervous male character will often have a beautiful, confident and sexy female character interested in him.

The script will play out and he'll get her in the end and they'll live happily ever after. In real life though, women are sexually turned OFF by shyness, nervousness and anxiety in guys. Why? Women are attracted to the strength in men, not the weakness.

It is our mental and emotional strength as a guy that represents the most benefit for a woman in terms of her chances of survival, prosperity, happiness and safety.

Regardless of the advancements that some of our societies have made, a woman's instinctive attraction to a confident guys still remains and I don't expect it to ever change. If a guy goes through life being shy around women or doubting himself when talking to attractive women, he shouldn't expect everything to magically fix itself like it does in the movies.

A man has to fix his issues (e.g. insecurities, anxieties, etc) about women and improve his ability to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for him, rather than expect that women will be gentle with him and accept his flaws when they could easily get a more confident, emotionally balanced man.

Movies and TV sitcoms always seem to show the beautiful leading woman eventually falling madly in love with the shy, anxious and socially awkward guy. In the movies, he'll stutter and stammer when he's around her because he's so intimidated by her, but yet she finds this "sweet" and "flattering" and feels very attracted to him.

In the real world, women are not turned on by shy, awkward behavior and they do not feel sexually attracted to guys who lack confidence in themselves.

To be successful with women, a guy needs to drop the "shy guy" act and be the confident that women are desperately looking for.

Fact 3: Most Women Do Not Choose Men Based on Looks

Yes, it is true that some women are picky and will only accept a guy who looks like a male model and has loads of money.

However, the majority of women are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a guy.

Want some proof?

Watch this video to see the types of guys that women are willing to have sex with and even marry...

As you will discover from the video above, many guys make up all sorts of excuses about why they aren't successful at picking up the women they meet.

However, the real reason they fail is that they simply don't know how to trigger a woman's feelings of attraction during an interaction and are instead hoping to be liked for being nice, dressing well or looking good.

Some guys make the mistake of thinking that one of the best ways to meet women is to make themselves look like a body builder or like a well-dressed male model.

Based on this strategy, a guy will spend thousands of hours in a gym or will spend endless money dressing himself up in the latest designer gear, wear the "best" colognes and style his hair "perfectly," but he still won't get laid.

Why? Success with women is not about looks. Yes, looks can help a guy attract attention from women (and some women will have sex with him simply because he's handsome), but that doesn't mean that a guy who isn't good looking can't get laid, get a girlfriend or get married to a hot woman.

Even though you will hear women say, "Oh! He's good-looking" or "Oooh, he's hot" it doesn't mean that success with women is all about looks.

Think about it...

Most guys that you have seen with a beautiful girlfriend or wife have been average-looking, below-average looking and even UGLY. They have been bald, short, fat, skinny, poor and unfashionable. Yet, they have a hot girlfriend or wife.

Why?

You know the answer already: It's not about looks for most women. Most women are just looking for a man who makes them feel girly because he is so confident and masculine and who makes them laugh because he has a good enough level of social intelligence to ensure that he can survive, thrive and prosper in this world.

It doesn't matter if you spend thousands on buying the latest designer clothes, none of that will help you meet women if you lack the confidence and conversation skills to pull off the pick up.

A woman might say, "Oooh, you have great fashion sense" or "Oh, I like your shirt!" but that doesn't mean you need to be a pretty boy for women.

She is just saying that to you because it looks good. However, that doesn't mean she wants to have sex with you. Instinctively, she knows that a man's clothes do not mean he will be able to survive, thrive and prosper in the world. It may look nice, but it's superficial and she knows it.

Of course, there's nothing wrong with a guy presenting himself well by wearing good clothes, but a guy's outward appearance won't hold a woman's interest for long if he's unable to make her feel attraction and respect for him as a man.

Contrary to the message put across by all the marketing hype in magazines, on TV and on billboards, most women are not completely focused on how a man looks. Instead, most women (not all) are more interested in who the man is on the inside, rather than what he represents on the outside.

Time and money spent on dressing up is simply wasted effort if behind the window dressing you don't have the inner qualities that women are looking for in a man.

If you want to be successful when you're out there meeting women, you've got to be able to attract women with your personality, confidence, charisma and charm....

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

As a man, if you're looking to experience dating success after the age of 40, then today is the day that you will begin to make it happen.

[image: Dating success after 40]

The secret to success is to understand that women are lot easier to attract and have sex with than most guys realize.

According to a USA study, 55% of couples admitted to having sex on their first date and a European study found that 70% of women have had a one night stand.

In other words, you're going to get laid. It's going to happen.

If you want to get some action, you've got to first focus on improving your ability to attract women when you interact with them. If you have that skill, attracting and picking up women will be a relatively simple process for you.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, most women place more importance on how a guy's personality and confidence makes them feel, rather than what he looks like.

Yes, some women are very picky and only want a guy who looks like a male model, has a perfect body and loads of money, but the majority of women are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a guy than most men realize.

Life Begins at 40?

If you've reached your 40s, you will probably the saying, "Life begins at 40" and "You're only as old as you feel."

Yet, if you've reached your 40s and are single and looking for love, there can be no denying that being on the "wrong" side of 40 can make you feel old, right?

Dating is usually looked as something that only "young" people do and this belief is often by so many of the online dating sites that are geared towards younger people who just beginning to find their feet in the dating world at large.

So, where does that leave you if you're looking for advice on dating after 40? It leaves you right here, reading an article from a true dating expert that will help you, irrespective of your age.

Personally speaking, I'm 37 and I recently married my sexy, 22 year old girlfriend. I attracted her with my confidence, charisma and charm and then deepened her feelings of love, respect and attraction for me as the relationship continued.

Despite that she is young, sexy and has a perfect body, I picked her up even though I spend no time in the gym at all. I do a bit of running and bike riding to keep healthy, but I don't have time to work out in the gym...and I haven't needed to that to attract women.

Dusting Yourself Off and Getting Back Into the Dating Scene

[image: Getting back into the dating scene after 40]

A lot of the guys who contact me looking for advice on dating after 40, have found themselves single again after 10 or 15 years of marriage, or many years in a long-term relationship.

A man may have been away from the dating scene for practically half of his life and will often be terrified or depressed about having to get back out there and find a woman. Often, it simply comes down to the man losing a lot of confidence over the years and not knowing how to get his mojo back with the ladies.

Other times, it's a question of not knowing where to start because the guy met his wife in high school and never really dated any other girls before getting married. In effect, men like this have based a lot of their identity around the long-term relationship and have forgotten who they actually are as an individual.

The good news for you is that, while the world has changed at lightening pace over the last few decades, the qualities that a woman looks for in a man have remained unchanged.

You don't need to do anything other than improve your attractiveness to your personality and confidence then simply get back out there to mingle with some beautiful women. Whatever you do, just make sure that you absolutely understand and remember that...

It's Not All About Looks

It's no surprise that men in their 40s often get caught up in the advertising world's hype that says a guy has to look a certain way, smell a certain way, wear a certain brand of clothing, and drive a certain car to be attractive to women.

If you look at the Just For Men hair dye ads, they will tell you that women HATE any signs of grey hair or ageing on a man, when in fact many women LOVE it.

For most of human history and still to this day, women are instinctively attracted to older men because they usually represent a better chance of survival, prosperity and protection.

However, since most guys are clueless when it comes to women, they are susceptible to getting tricked into thinking that putting a color in their hair or wearing a face cream will get them the girl.

If you want to be successful at dating after 40, you must realize that you already have the best asset of all: You are a man.

If you don't think that you're good enough for women, you are probably going through life making up all sorts of excuses as to why you're not successful with women.

Yet, as you will discover from the video below, there is usually only one, simple reason why men fail with women...

As you will discover from the video above, most guys who fail with women make up all sorts of excuses about why women don't find them attractive. Yet, a man's attractiveness to women is mostly based on the personality traits and behaviors that he displays to her during an interaction, rather than on his looks.

Yes, some women only want a young looking guy with muscles, money and a full head of hair, but most women aren't that shallow and you will realize that if you watch the entire video above.

What Do Women Find Attractive About You?

There are many different personality traits and behaviors that you can display to women to trigger their feelings of attraction for you.

Three examples are:

1. Confidence: You are confident when interacting with her and other people. You don't come across as nervous or self-doubting.
2. Masculinity: You think, behave and take action like a man. You're not afraid of the world around you. You handle challenging situations with the power and self-belief, rather than crumbling under pressure.
3. Social intelligence: You get along well with her and others. You're a cool guy, even now that you're in your 40s. You understand people and don't make the classic social mistakes that other guys make.

None of the above traits can be achieved with hair dye, special creams or the latest car, but they are qualities that can be developed when you choose to invest in improving yourself as a man.

Most women (not all) are not eternally impressed by guy's outer appearance or his material possessions. Sure, that might attract some women initially, but most women are more impressed and attracted to who a guy is as a man, which is an attraction principle that holds true whether a guy is in his 20s or 40s.

Don't Worry About the Baggage That You Are Carrying

I often get contacted by men in their 40s who want to know if they should tell a woman right away about how much "baggage" they are carrying from previous relationships.

Baggage can be anything from on-going divorce proceedings, having children who live with them or commitments related to an ex-wife or family.

Honesty is always the best policy, if not for the fact that when it comes to dating after 40, most women are looking for the real deal. However, a mistake that some men make is "off-loading" their entire life story onto a woman they're supposed to be getting to know on a date.

A woman who is attracted to you and interested in dating you won't always see everything that comes with you as being unattractive baggage.

Instead, she will see it as part of who you are and will respect you for it, as long as you come across in a way that shows you are balanced, have everything under control and you're able to live a fun, interesting lifestyle as a result.

On the other hand, if you talk non-stop about your past and come across in a way that suggests you feel depressed, unattractive or miserable about your other commitments in life, then she is going to feel turned off by your inability to deal with life.

Women feel respect and attraction for men who have their life under control, even if there are many moving parts that he wishes he could cut off or leave behind.

Your past has certainly helped to make you the man you are, but itâs the man that you are when you interact with her and the man that youâre aiming to be tomorrow that makes you attractive to a woman. Donât make the mistake of dwelling on what has already happened in your life so far; dating after 40 is no different to dating after 20.

While a woman will be interested to find out about your past, itâs what is happening between you and her right now and what may happen in the future that is most interest to her.

What Do You Need to Improve About Yourself to Be Successful With Women?

It doesnât matter what age you are; it is never too late to learn how to be the kind of man that women are looking for and it is never too late to improve on who you already are.

You can always become an even better version of the great man that you are today, but donât make the mistake of thinking that you will find the solution in a bottle of hair dye or the latest car.

Do Women Judge Men On Looks?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Yes, women do initially judge a man based on his looks, but for the majority of women, a man's looks are not the most important thing about him.

About 10% of women only want a male model looking guy, but the remaining 90% all women aren't as picky about looks and will happily hook up with a confident good guy who is average or below average looking.

[image: Ugly guy has a baby with a beautiful woman]

[image: Guy with big ears with beautiful girlfriend]

Women do judge men based on a whole set of criteria, but here's what most guys don't realize...

If a guy can attract women in other ways (e.g. by being confident, charismatic, funny, having a masculine vibe that makes her feel girly in his presence, etc), a woman will begin to look at his appearance in a more positive light.

He might not have the typical male model features (e.g. looks, height, square jawline, etc), but because she is feeling attracted to him, she will focus in on things that she does like about his looks.

For example: He might have a big nose, be bald or be a big overweight and she will actually see that as acceptable because it is a part of him and he is the guy who is making her feel attracted.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, most women (not all) are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a guy than most men realize.

Most men waste their life feeling as though they aren't good enough for women because they don't look like a male model, while also ignoring the fact that they see average and below average looking guys with hot women.

[image: Fat men marrying beautiful women]

As you can see from the photos above, many women (not all) are open to being with guys who do not look like a male model and do not have a perfect body.

The truth is that you can attract women in ways OTHER than looks (e.g. being confident, charismatic, funny, etc) and when you do that, most women (not all) will look at your physical appearance in a positive light and see it as appealing because it is a part of you.

Some women do judge a man on superficial things such as his looks, height or financial status, but the vast majority of women judge a man on how his confidence, personality and character makes her feel.

If you refuse to accept that simple reality of human attraction and only want to focus on the good looking guys that you see with beautiful women, you will continue to think that women judge guys on looks.

You will tell yourself that to have a beautiful girlfriend, you must be a good looking guy. When you see a beautiful woman with an ugly, short, fat, bald or skinny guy, you will probably assume that she is with him because he has a big penis, is rich or for some other reason that you simply cannot compete with.

Yet, here's the thing that you have to realize...

[image: You are already good enough for most women]

YOU ARE ALREADY GOOD ENOUGH FOR MOST WOMEN.

Yes, some women are very picky and will only accept a mega rich, male model with a huge penis, but the majority of women are much more flexible and open about what they find attractive in a guy.

Adding Fuel to the Fire

[image: He must be better looking than me]

When a guy believes that all women judge men on looks, he will then look for evidence to justify his belief.

If he gets rejected by a woman for another guy, he will usually tell himself that she likes him because he is better looking.

When he looks at advertising on TV and magazines, he will see male models with beautiful women and conclude that beautiful women want to be with good looking guys.

If he really wants to believe that women judge men on looks, he will keep adding more and more fuel to the fire of his insecurity, until it becomes so powerful than nothing he does in his life (e.g. getting a better job, nice clothes, building muscle, etc) will get rid of his lack of confidence around women.

Whenever he interacts with an attractive woman, his insecurity will be burning away in the background and telling him, "Don't kid yourself. She wants a good looking guy. You're not good enough. Women like her only go for guys who have male model looks."

The woman will then notice that he is doubting himself around her and she will reject him because of that. Yet, he will then conclude that he got rejected for not being good looking and the unnecessary cycle of insecurity will continue.

When he notices an ugly, short, fat, skinny or bald man with a beautiful woman, he'll tell himself that she must be with him because he has a lot of money, a huge penis or drives a luxury car.

He will refuse to accept the fact that it is possible to attract women in ways OTHER than looks, money and dick size. In his mind, women are shallow and they only want good looking, rich or well hung guys.

Yet, unless he happens to stumble across this page and watch the video below, he probably won't ever realize the real reason why guys like him fail with women...

As you will discover from the video above, you are already more than good enough for most women. You have to stop making excuses for your lack of success with women and switch your focus to making women feel attracted to you when you interact with them.

For example: Attract women with your confidence, charisma, charm, conversation style, humor, vibe, attitude, etc.

How I Overcame My Insecurity About Looks

Personally speaking, I used to think that beautiful women didn't like me because of my average to below-average looks (I have a bent nose from a childhood accident, I have small eyes, a high hairline, etc).

Yet, as it turned out, women were rejecting me because I wasn't saying or doing anything to trigger their feelings of sexual attraction. I was just being nice, friendly and hoping that they would like me because of that.

Sure, some women were open to talking to me because I was a friendly guy, but friendliness and niceness isn't what makes a woman wet. So, rather than picking up women, all I got was a brief conversation before they lost interest and either told me to go away, or suddenly stop paying attention to my attempts to converse with them.

It was very confusing.

Back then, my confidence with women was on a steady decline and the more that I got rejected, the more I believed that I just wasn't good looking enough for women.

Whenever I turned on the TV or paid attention to advertising, it was telling me that I needed to be tall, handsome, have six-pack abs, drive a sports car, wear the latest designer clothes, shoes and sunglasses and be so rich and popular that I was holding regular cocktail parties with friends. Only THEN would I be good enough for women.

...and I bought right into it.

I started working out a gym 3 times a week, getting nice haircuts and buying expensive clothes and shoes.

Yet, women still didn't like me.

Sure, some overweight and unattractive women liked me, but I didn't want them, I wanted a beautiful woman who was in shape.

Yet, whenever I spoke to a beautiful woman, my fear about not being good looking enough would make me nervous and I'd often go red in the face, become dry mouthed and run out of things to say because I simply doubted that I would have a chance with her.

If there were any silences in the conversation, I would feel awkward and the women would notice and then lose even more interest in me.

It was a horrible, lonely experience to go through, but when I finally discovered how to display a more attractive personality to women, I started to get laid and before I knew it, I was dating multiple women at once.

It was a very easy and seamless transition from rejection to success because I simply became attractive to women. Rather than hoping to be liked for being the nice guy that I am, I instead began to make women feel attracted and turned on by displaying personality traits and behaviors that trigger those feelings inside of a woman.

That's when I realize this fact of human attraction...

If You're Not a Male Model, You Have to Make Women Feel Attraction For You in Ways OTHER Than Looks

Before a woman has a chance to interact with a man, she has to judge him about something.

If he hasn't yet made her feel attracted to his personality (e.g. by being confident, charismatic, charming, funny, etc), she will have to base her attraction on superficial things like his looks, fashion sense, popularity, body language, etc.

If a guy isn't good looking and isn't making her feel attracted in other ways, a woman will usually overlook him and focus on the good looking guys instead. She might see a good looking guy and say, "Ooh, he's good looking," but that doesn't mean she will approach him and pick him up.

Some good looking guys do get approached, but usually not by the types of women they really want. In most cases, the only women who approach good looking guys are unattractive, drunk, desperate or slutty.

Why?

Almost all women see it as a man's role to approach. Instinctively, women want to find a confident man who has the balls to approach her because it suggests to her that he has the type of social confidence that will potentially allow him to survive, thrive and prosper much better than a guy who is afraid to talk to women.

So, rather than walk around approaching guys and potentially ending up with a good looking guy who will be more of a burden than a benefit to her survival, most women just wait to be approached.

...and that is a huge opportunity for guys like you and me.

If you're not a male model and are not getting approached by random women, then you need to build up the confidence that will allow you to approach women that you find attractive.

When you do approach, you simply need to trigger a woman's feelings of attraction for you by displaying the types of personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women.

The more ways that you can attract women, the higher quality of woman that you will have access to. If your personality is only mildly attractive, you can expect to pick up 6/10 and 7/10 women, but if you're personality is sexy to women, you can expect to get the 8/10, 9/10 and if you're really good, 10/10 women.

My Good Looking Male Friends

I have some male friends who are considered good looking (two of which have done some modeling from time to time).

Back when I was still picking up women (I recently settled down with my sexy, 22 year old girlfriend. I'm 37) and would go out on the town with my good looking male friends, I would notice women bumping into them on purpose or starting a conversation with them while ordering drinks next to each other at a bar.

On some occasions, women would even approach them and say, "Wow, you're hot."

This bugged for a while and I thought, "Women are never going to like me as much as they like good looking guys, so why even bother?"

However, as I developed my confidence and created the attraction techniques that I now teach here at The Modern Man, I began picking up hotter women than my good looking friends were scoring.

When we talked to a group of women, the women would usually (not always) be trying to pick me up, even though my friends are considered to be 8-9/10 on the looks scale, while I am considered to be a 6-7/10.

How was I able to pick up beautiful women in their presence?

Simple.

Attraction is not all about looks for most women. Some women felt more physical attraction to my friends when we first walked over to talk to them, but they almost always ended up lusting after me and competing with the other women in the group to get my attention.

My good looking friends would often just get the leftover women that I didn't want and we'd laugh about it later.

When I taught them my techniques, they instantly began picking up women as well as I did. Yet, I was better at it because I was using techniques 100% correctly, while they were only "half" using them most of the time because they were still getting used to it.

By the way...

I got the same results when I went out approaching women with my UGLY friends too.

Most of the time I went out approaching with a friend (or friends), they were the type of guys who would be considered ugly or nerdy in appearance. I have friends of various races/nationalities and it didn't matter if I was with them either - women still liked me.

Why? Your attractiveness to most women (not all women) is about who you are as a man. It's about how you make the woman feel when you interact with her.

Many of my "ugly" male friends have the hottest girlfriends out of anyone I know. Obviously, they didn't attract their girlfriends because of their below-average or ugly looks...and no, they didn't attract those women by having loads of money either.

Most guys in this world are just earning an ordinary wage or salary and many are just getting by and living pay check to pay check, but they are still able to attract hot women for sex, relationships and even marriage.

Beauty is in the Eye of the Beholder

Have you ever heard the saying that, “Beauty is in the eye of the beholder”?

It’s true.

I often explain this to guys by saying that if a group of men looked at a photo of a group of female models, the men would have different opinions about which woman is the most attractive.

Check out the example below and vote for which woman you think is the most attractive.

As you will see after voting, your vote is going to be different to other guys. Why? Beauty is in the eye of the beholder and while you might find some things about a woman to be unattractive, other guys will see it as attractive.

Was your answer the same as every other guy?

Of course not, because beauty really is in the eye of the beholder.

That is why you will hear a woman saying, “My husband is so handsome” and when you look at him you think, “Huh? I actually think he’s kind of ugly.”

Why does she see him as being handsome?

Simple.

He is attractive to her in other ways (e.g. he’s a confident, masculine man, he makes her laugh, he makes her happy, they are in love, etc) and as a result, she looks at his physical appearance in a positive light. She sees his unique appearance as handsome or appealing because it is part of the man that she loves and respects.

It’s weird, but that’s just how attraction works.

Big Boobs or Small Boobs?

[image: Different breast sizes]

Have you ever noticed how men can feel attracted to different types of women, with completely different physical traits?

For example: Some men LOVE women with big boobs, while other men HATE big boobs. Some men are attracted to tall women, short women, women with big noses or small feet.

Personally, I love black women and tanned exotic women (like my girlfriend) more than I like white women (of the more than 250 women I've had sex with, about 180 were white), whereas some guys don't feel any attraction for black or tanned women.

When it comes to feeling attraction for women, we are all a little bit different in our tastes.

Some guys are even attracted to anorexic or massively obese women. Yes, those are extreme cases, but the fact remains – every pot has its lid.

[image: Mixed group of couples]

In the same way, women are also attracted to different types of men: Short men, tall men, bald men, men with long hair, thin guys, men with muscles and chubby men. The bottom line is: Beauty really is in the eye of the beholder.

Not all women will accept a guy who doesn't look like a perfect male model, but the vast majority will.

Traits That Turn Women Off

[image: Traits that turn women off]

Many guys behave in ways that turn women off and then assume that women are rejecting their physical appearance.

The fact is, no matter how good looking a guy happens to be, if he behaves in the following ways, most women will lose interest...

1. A lack confidence

A guy who lacks confidence will usually come across in a nervous, insecure way when he interacts with attractive women.

If he is rich or is the type who will buy a woman lots of gifts, she may decide to use him for a while, but she will never feel attracted to him in the same way that she would with a confident guy.

Why?

Women are sexually turned on by the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, drive, assertiveness, courage, etc) and turned off by the weakness (e.g insecure, nervousness, anxiety, etc).

2. Low self-esteem

A guy with low self-esteem will see most women as being too good for him.

To him, a beautiful woman would almost be making a mistake by deciding to be with him rather than a rich, male model.

No matter how hard he tries to his low self-esteem, it will always come through in his behavior, conversation and body language. As you you will have experienced in your life, you are able to sense when people lack confidence and self-esteem. No matter how hard they try to hide it, you can still see it.

When a woman detects that a guy lacks self-esteem, she will almost always rapidly lose interest in him even if he looks like a male model.

3. Fake social persona

This type of guy will put on an act of being a certain type of guy (e.g. acting like the "cool guy" or the aloof guy who doesn't care about anything), in the hope that it impresses women (and people) enough that he is liked and accepted.

Women find it difficult to relax around guys like that because they don't know who they are really interacting with. A woman's gut instinct tells her that something doesn't seem quite right with the guy, so she keeps her guard up around him.

The more he tries to impress her by putting on an act of being something he's not, the more suspicious and weird she feels around him. Something just doesn't add up, so rather than potentially opening herself to a nightmare of a guy who is hiding all sorts of insecurities, she remains closed off to him.

4. Unable to handle a woman's tests of his confidence

Women always test men.

Why?

They have to find the real men amongst the wimps.

Women know that it's very easy for a man to put on an act of being confident, but true confidence is not something that can be faked forever.

To make sure that she is interacting with a truly confident guy and not a wimp, a woman will put him through various tests to see how he reacts.

For example: She will stop contributing to the conversation to see if he panics and assumes that she is no longer interested, or she will talk about other guys who like her to see how he reacts. Does he feel threatened, does he feel like he's being rejected or does he not see other guys as competition?

Is he truly confident in himself, or is he just putting on an act and trying to trick her into thinking that he believes he is good enough? How mentally tough is he? Is it just a show, or is he for real?

When a guy crumbles under the pressure of a woman's test, she realizes that he's not strong enough to handle a girl like her. He also possibly lacks the emotional strength to handle other challenging people in life and therefore, will probably get picked on by people or overlooked for promotions at work.

Good Looking Guys With Ugly Women

[image: Hedy Lamarr quote]

Hedy Lamarr (1914-2000) was an Austrian and American actress.

Have a look at her quote above.

She is essentially saying that a lot of hot women don't even get hit on by handsome guys, because the handsome guys don't think they are good enough.

It was true back in her time and it is still true to this day, which is a HUGE opportunity for you. All you've got to do is walk up and attract women with your personality and many of them (not all) will happily hook up with you, get into a relationship with you and even marry you.

You don't have to be a male model to get a hot girlfriend. You've just got to be able to attract women to who you are as a man, rather than what you look like.

Think about this...

How often have you seen a good-looking guy with an unattractive woman?

Fairly often, right?

Why does it happen?

Many good looking guys are insecure about their attractiveness to women, so they end up accepting lower quality women instead. If women judged men solely on their looks, you wouldn't see so many good-looking guys with unattractive women.

Yet, you do.

For example: I was at a market with my girlfriend last weekend and I saw a guy, who had clearly been working out and building up his muscles for years, but he was walking along with an obese girlfriend.

This guy was more than 6ft tall, had a good-looking face and an athletic body. Yet, his girlfriend was a mess. Her face was unattractive, her body was fat, her hair was dry and her fashion sense was horrible.

My sexy, 22 year old girlfriend (I'm 37 years old) turned to me and said, OMG. What the? and I shook my head in agreement.

I genuinely felt sorry for the guy and I still do right now as I type this. He had so much going for him, yet, in his head, he clearly didn't see himself as being good enough for a physically attractive woman who was in shape.

My girlfriend asked, Why is he with her? and I replied, Well, that's what he thinks he deserves.

How about you? Do you feel as though you deserve an attractive woman? Or, are you another brainwashed guy who thinks he needs to be perfectly good looking to have an attractive woman like you?

More Than Just a Pretty Face

So, do women judge men on looks?

Yes, they do, but most women place much less importance on a guy's look than most people realize.

If that wasn't true, you wouldn't see so many ugly, poor, bald, short, skinny or fat guys with hot girlfriends. It just wouldn't be possible.

Yet, it is.

So, what should you do?

Let go of any insecurities you have about your looks and accept that most women want more than just a pretty face or six pack abs from a guy.

I'm definitely not saying that an ugly guy can pick up every beautiful woman. Instead, I'm saying that most women (including many beautiful women) place less importance on a guy's looks and are more interested in how a guy's personality makes them feel.

If you can attract women with who you are, rather than what you look like, you will be able to pick up most (not all) single women that you meet.

How to Be Cooler as a Guy

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Cool guys get laid easily and have a lot more friends than guys who aren't cool.

One of the main traits of a cool guy is that he will display the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women, such as confidence, charisma and charm.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a guy works and how you can use it to quickly become a lot cooler as a guy...

As you will discover from the video above, guys who aren't cool often display the personality traits and behaviors that turn women off, such as nervousness, insecurity, self-doubt and a fake "nice guy" persona.

Being a Cool Guy

[image: Being a cool guy]

Let's face it, there's nothing wrong with being a cool guy and if you're honest with yourself, you like it when people think you are cool.

Cool is a modern term used to denote someone who is socially intelligent and gets along with people better than the average person. In many cases, the guy will also be popular amongst his group of friends or coworkers, will be at ease with himself and his surroundings, great with the ladies and generally envied by all those who are regarded as being un-cool.

In an attempt to emulate this coolness, many guys will mistake cool as having all the trimmings; in other words they think coolness comes down to what they own, wear and use/eat/drink around other people.

These are the guys who go out and buy the latest men's fashions in shades of pink and mauve, wear the newest and most expensive colognes on the market, drive the biggest, shiniest cars and wear the flashiest bling they can lay their hands on.

[image: Why don't people think I'm cool?]

Unfortunately for these guys who are trying hard to work out how to be cooler, they haven't yet realized that coolness isn't something that you can wear or eat. Coolness is an attitude it you are either allowing that to come through in how you express your personality, or you're not.

Realize That You Are Already Cool

One of the biggest steps to truly being seen as a cool guy by others is to believe in yourself. One of my golden rules of conversation is to know that whatever you say is cool. Don't go around hoping to be seen as cool by people; just know that you already are.

That said, some guys do need some work in the areas of confidence, conversation and general social skills. If they don't fix that first and go around thinking they are cool, it won't make them appear cool to everyone they meet, but it will in some situations.

[image: Guys who don't know how to be cool]

You will have to be the judge of that and if you need to improve your confidence, conversation skills and general social skills, then make sure that you click around and learn more while you're here at The Modern Man.

Reach For Your True Potential as a Man

Think about this...

Aren't the coolest guys that you know (or know of) the ones who are rising through the levels of life (or who have risen through them already and are now enjoying success) and reaching for their true potential as a man?

Aren't the coolest guys the ones who are confident in themselves and going after their true purpose in life, instead of hiding themselves away in fear or dressing themselves up like a pretty boy and trying to be seen as "cool" based on what they wear?

If you want to be seen as a cool guy by other guys, what you need to do is rise up and reach for your true potential as a man.

If you have big dreams and ambitions and you follow through on that with unrelenting confidence and determination, you will definitely be seen as a cool guy by other guys and you will also be attractive to women.

Being Able to Attract Women is More Important Than Simply Being a Cool Guy

While "being cool" will get you some bonus points with women, it is not the answer to success with women.

If you want to be successful with women, you've got to know how to trigger their feelings of sexual attraction for you when you interact with them and then deepen a woman's feelings of attraction for you when in a relationship.

Most guys don't know how to do that to women, so even if a guy is acting cool, it usually isn't going to be enough to make a woman want him or want to stay with him when in a relationship.

Watch this video for more info...

If you want to be cooler because you want to be more successful with women, focus on improving your ability to attract women first.

If you try to act cool, but you make subtle or obvious mistakes that turn women off, it's not going to work for you.

However, if you are skilled at attracting women and they feel turned on by you as a result, they will then perceive pretty much everything that you say and do as being cool.

Triggering Her Survival Attraction

[image: Being the cool guy that women want]

Women feel attraction to men based on instinctive triggers that are directly linked to their need to survive and feel protected.

In other words, the attraction a woman feels for you will be automatically triggered based on whether she perceives you as being beneficial or costly in terms of her survival, happiness and general quality of life.

If you meet a woman and you appear nervous around her and other people, will her instincts tell her that you will be beneficial or costly for her to hook up with?

Likewise, if you meet a woman and are confidently around her and other people, the assumption that she will instinctively make is that you would be better at surviving, thriving and prospering in this world and therefore, her attraction for you will be triggered.

On the other hand, if a woman meets a nervous, self-doubting guy who isn't able to get along well with others, her survival attraction mechanism will cause her to feel turned off by him.

Having to carry an emotionally weak guy like him through life will cost her dearly in terms of mental and emotional energy and happiness. It may also mean that he gets bossed around by alpha males (good guy alpha males and bad boy alpha males) and, as a result, he will probably struggle to provide for her, himself and their offspring.

You see how it works?

Being truly attractive to women is not about what baseball cap you might be wearing or what shoes you just bought, it's about who you are as a man.

For a woman to see you as a cool guy, she's going to be instinctively assess what your overall personality represents for her in the immediate and long-term. In other words, would it be beneficial to her survival to hook up with you and then stick by you for life, or are her instincts telling her that you would be more of a burden than a benefit?

You can trigger her survival attraction for you by being confident, charismatic, charming, having a masculine vibe and being able to get along well with her and others.

On the other hand, if you're nervous and lack the ability to get along well with her and others, her survival attraction switch will be set to "off" and she will feel turned off by you on a deep, fundamental level that is completely outside of her control.

Attraction is automatically switched "on" or "off" based on the personality traits and behaviors that you display around women.

Being nervous doesn't mean that you can't make earn a living or provide for her, but for most of human history, it meant that you would be less-likely to survive and prosper in a challenging environment around alpha males.

Our world may be different now (i.e. we have supermarkets, police, media, government, etc), but the attraction instincts of women are still the same. Attraction is an automatic reaction that happens when we perceive traits in the other person that will be beneficial for our survival.

This is why, when it comes to a woman's attraction for a man, it is not all about looks.

Some modern women will only accept a perfect, male model who has lots of money, but the majority of women still select men based on survival based attraction triggers.

If a guy is good-looking, it does not automatically mean that a woman will have an easy time surviving, prospering and being protected by him throughout life. It just means that he is good-looking.

If you want to be seen as a cool guy, start by improving your ability to attract women with your personality, behavior and confidence. Doing that will have the most powerful and long lasting effect on your coolness to others and your value to women.

Do Women Like Fat Men? The Truth

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Not all women will accept a fat man, but some women will.

Why?

Many women (not all) are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a man than most guys realize.

If a fat man is able to make a woman feel attracted to him in other ways (e.g. he is confident, charismatic, charming, has a masculine vibe, makes her laugh, etc), then some women will stop caring that he doesn't have a perfectly fit and toned body.

[image: Can a fat guy have a hot girlfriend?]

How is this possible?

When a woman feels attracted to a guy for other reasons, she then starts to look at his physical appearance in a more positive light. Instead of saying, "Ewww, gross – you're fat" she will say, "I like your belly, it's sexy" or "I like how cuddly you are."

[image: Can a fat guy have a beautiful girlfriend?]

To guys who have been brainwashed by the media into thinking that they have to be tall, handsome and rich to attract hot women, this will come as quite a shock.

Most guys will waste their entire life thinking that they have to look perfect to attract hot women, but the truth is that you can attract women in ways other than looks, money, height and social status.

It really is true.

[image: Fat guy with sexy girlfriend]

Yes, there are some fat men out there who only get laid because they are mega rich, but think about it...

Most guys in this world are not rich and are either working a normal job or working a fairly low paying job and just making ends meet. The reason why they can attract a hot woman is that women CAN be attracted in other ways.

Some women are extremely picky and will not accept a fat guy, but the vast majority of women are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a guy than most men realize. It really is true.

Attracting Women as a Fat Man

[image: Attracting women as a fat man]

If you're a fat guy and you're looking to get laid, get a girlfriend or find yourself a wife, what you need to do is improve your ability to attract women when you interact with them.

For example: When you're interacting with a woman, your style of conversation, your vibe and your behavior is either going to be turning her on or not. If you don't know how to turn her on during an interaction and are actually turning her off in subtle ways (e.g. being nervous, putting on an act of being an even nicer guy than you really are, being too polite, etc), then she will begin to look at your weight in a negative light.

However, if you are turning her on during the interaction (e.g. by talking to her in a confident way, making her laugh, being masculine, having a subtly sexual vibe, etc), then she will look at your weight in a more positive light.

So, if you've been getting rejected by women lately and are struggling to get a date, don't put it all down to your weight. In almost all cases, the real reason why a guy will get rejected is explained in this video...

As you will discover by watching the video above, the reason why you see other fat guys with women is that most women (not all) judge a man on his personality and confidence, rather than his looks.

If women selected men purely on physical appearance then most guys in this world wouldn't be able to get laid or get a girlfriend, because most guys are tall, handsome male models with a perfect body.

Most guys are either fat, thin or have an average body type and they are still able to get laid, get a girlfriend or get married to a hot woman because it really is true that women can be attracted in ways other than looks, money, muscles and social status.

[image: Good looking guy unable to get a girlfriend]

Here's the thing...

If a good-looking guy is nervous around women and doubts himself, most women won't feel much or any attraction for him. Women will see him as being "good-looking," but since he lacks confidence (the most important thing to a woman) and isn't very masculine (in the way he thinks and behaves), most women just won't be very interested.

Why? Women are attracted to the strength in men (e.g. confidence, masculinity) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. nervousness, shyness, insecurity). Some women (usually unattractive, drunk, old or desperate women) will accept an insecure good looking guy, but most women won't.

I know that it's hard to believe, especially when all that you see on TV commercials are messages suggesting that you have to be tall, good-looking and have six pack abs to be attractive to women, but if you want to stop wasting your life thinking that you're not good enough for women, you have to accept that most women do not solely judge a man on his looks.

When a fat guy asks me, "Do women like fat men?" it is usually because he is self-conscious about being overweight and feels as though he doesn't fit the stereotype that is pushed by TV commercials and magazines.

In fact, most guys who ask me "Do women like fat men?" already believe that their weight (not their inability to attract a woman during a conversation) is what has been preventing them from enjoying the success with women they want.

True Attractiveness

If you're asking, "Do women like fat men?" because you have insecurities about your weight, then it is clear that you currently don't have the number one trait that women look for in a man: Confidence.

Likewise, if you are a guy of normal weight with insecurities and a lack of self-confidence, then you are not any more attractive than an insecure fat guy.

Almost all women (excluding unattractive women) are turned off by insecure men. Women instinctively feel attracted to confident men because we live in a challenging world and it often takes confidence, courage and strength of character to push onwards to success.

Guys who lack confidence in themselves make a woman's instincts trigger feelings of repulsion. Instinctively, she doesn't want to get stuck with a guy who will crumble under pressure if life gets tough, or who will become insecure and controlling in a relationship.

A guy might look good on the outside, but if is shy or nervous around women, then he simply doesn't have the qualities that women instinctively feel attracted to in a man.

If you want to go through life believing that women don't like fat men, then you are going to have to lie to yourself EVERY TIME you see a woman with a fat man from now on.

You are going to come up with an excuse like, â Oh, he must be rich or â He must be well hung instead of accepting the truth that women can be attracted to men for a variety of reasons that have nothing to do with looks, money or social status.

Instinctive Attractiveness

The world may have changed beyond all recognition over the last few thousand years, but women are still looking for a man who can protect them and keep them safe.

Whether a guy is short, tall, thin or overweight, the main thing that a woman looks for is whether or not he will be able to keep her safe and gather enough resources to survive and live a good life.

In other words, her instincts will be telling her whether or not you'd be good at surviving, thriving and prospering in this world. If she gets the sense that you lack the mental and emotional strength to make her feel safe and protected, she will naturally feel turned off by you whether you have a fat, thin, average or athletic physique.

Some of the traits that trigger a woman's instinctive attraction for a man include...

1. Confidence

A man with the type of confidence that is attractive to women is a man who knows what he wants, how to get it and will stop at nothing until he achieves it. He believes in himself and pushes forward with unrelenting confidence and determination until he achieves his goal.

Women are naturally attracted to men like this because they give a woman a feeling of safety and protection, where she can relax into being the woman and let him lead the way as the man.

A truly confident guy doesn't need to pretend to be anything other than himself â he knows who he is and he is confident in himself. So, faking confidence as the "larger than life" happy, fat man won't wash with women if it doesn't truly match up with your body language, thinking, words and actions.

If you want to attract women with your confidence, it has to be authentic. You have to truly believe that you are good enough for her and you will be able to achieve whatever you want to achieve in life.

2. Masculinity

Genuine masculinity isn't about loud, chest beating, macho and over-the-top behavior; it's about how you think, behave, speak and take action as a man.

Being masculine means that you display the type of alpha male qualities that make other men respect you. When you have true masculinity, women literally feel "weak at the knees" around you and that is a feeling they simply cannot resist.

It doesn't matter if you are fat, short or bald if you can make a woman feel that way, she will be unable to stop herself from feeling attracted to you. A woman's attraction to a man's masculinity is automatic and instinctive and cannot be turned off.

Of course, there are some women out there who like wimpy, feminine guys, but as you may have noticed, those women are usually very masculine or unattractive. If you want to attract a beautiful, feminine woman, you need to display masculinity when you interact with her.

3. Social Intelligence

In today's world, being successful at life has a lot to do with your ability to communicate and get along with other people. Without a high level of social intelligence, you are usually less favored by people, get promoted less often and have less friends than the average person.

To a woman, this makes you a much less attractive man than one who has the social skills needed to get along well with others and be a better protector and provider for her, yourself and any offspring that you may have together as a couple.

On the other hand, when you can display the type of social intelligence that naturally attracts women, you will find it incredibly easy to get laid or get a girlfriend...

Why Are Women So Stuck Up?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

What has gotten into women these days?

It seems that no matter where you meet a beautiful women, whether she works with you, attends the same class at college or university as you, or even if you meet a woman in a nightclub or bar, most of them seem to be stuck up and arrogant, right?

Whenever you approach women or talk to them, they give you the cold shoulder, ignore you or generally just look down on you, right?

[image: Stuck up women]

After experiencing that sort of reaction from women for a while, it's only natural that you would begin to wonder, Why are women so stuck up?

For guys who find themselves in this situation, they will often turn to their friends for some advice, but since most guys fumble their way into relationships and are not experts at attracting and picking up women, they will likely just agree with you that women are stuck up and too difficult to pick up these days.

Some people may even make the mistake of telling you that women are only interested guys with looks, money, cars and height and that you need to be fashionable, cool and in to get any attention from them, but they would be wrong.

The Truth

[image: The truth about why women are stuck up]

Women are not stuck up; they simply have a very effective screening system in place to determine whether or not you are compatible with them.

If you approach a woman and she tests your confidence by acting uninterested and sees that you squirm and get nervous in response to that test, then she knows that you're not strong enough for her.

She doesn't want to end up accepting a guy who will be weak or wimpy in a relationship, or won't be able to handle the challenges of life. We live in a very challenging world and women rely on the strength of us men to make them feel safe when times get touch.

If a woman meets a guy and he can't even handle her initial tests of his confidence, how is he going to handle the challenge of competing with people at work?

When it comes to sexual attraction and a woman submitting and opening herself up to be penetrated by you, she wants to feel as though you are mentally and emotionally stronger than her. In other words, she doesn't want a wimpy guy pumping away at her and potentially getting her pregnant.

Coming to Terms With the Fact That Women Want You to Be Strong

Some guys get really pissed off at how women expect men to be confident. It really annoys the insecure guys who just want to be liked, loved and appreciated for how nice they are.

Yet, there are very good reasons why women want and need men to be strong.

Watch this video to understand why women are attracted to guys who are mentally and emotionally strong and turned off by guys who are insecure, nervous and self-doubting...

As you will discover from the video above, women are not crazy, mean bitches for wanting a strong guy.

It's just how nature works and you will either accept that, become stronger and get on with enjoying success with women, or you will fight against it and expect women to like you because you're a nice guy.

There's nothing wrong with being a nice guy (I'm nice and I've had sex with more than 250 women and I recently got married to my sexy, 22 year old girlfriend who is 15 years younger than me), but you also have to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for you.

Watch this video to understand why being nice is not enough to turn a woman on and make her want to begin a relationship with you...

As you will discover from the video above, women do want a good guy, but they don't want a nice guy who refuses to turn them on and expects to be liked, wanted and desired simply as a result of being nice.

The Downward Spiral

[image: The downward spiral]

When a guy begins to get rejected by women due to his lack of confidence around them, he begins to head along a downward spiral that makes his problems even worse.

He goes through life with ineffective and harmful thinking patterns (mindsets), such as:

- â€œWomen are so difficult to talk to.â€œ
- â€œSheâ€™s going to shoot me down in flames. Why even bother trying to talk to her?â€œ
- â€œIâ€™m wasting my time; women are all the same! They are all stuck up bitches.â€œ
- â€œIâ€™m not good-looking enough for these women.â€œ
- â€œI always get nervous around beautiful women. Maybe I donâ€™t deserve a beautiful woman and need to settle for an unattractive woman. At least she won't reject me or leave me.â€œ
- â€œI will probably be single and lonely for the rest of my life.â€œ
- â€œWhy donâ€™t women like me? What's wrong with me?â€œ

Women pick up on these insecurities by observing a guy's body language, behavior, conversation style and the way he takes action.

Since women are mostly attracted to a guy's confidence, when they detect this weakness they proceed to shoot him down in flames (as he predicted would happen), leaving him to walk away, licking his wounds and asking people, “Why are women so stuck up?”

To make matters worse, a few minutes later, he might see another guy approach the same woman and notice that she is laughing, flirting and touching the new guy and they are getting along beautifully.

[image: Why are women stuck up?]

Suddenly, she isn't being the stuck up bitch that he encountered and she's being all nice and friendly. The rejected guy will most-likely conclude that it's because the other guy is better looking, has more money or is better dressed than him.

No, no, no!

Let's be honest, there are many average looking, or even ugly guys, who are married to, or dating and having sex with, really hot women.

The woman was most-likely attracted to the new guy because he triggered her feelings of sexual attraction, whereas the other guy was just being nice and friendly. Success with women is not about having more money, driving a better car or wearing more fashionable clothes or being even nicer than you already are.

Likewise, getting rejected by women is not due to them being stuck up.

If you want women to desire you sexually, you have to trigger their feelings of sexual attraction. You can't expect women to want to have sex with you simply because you're a nice, intelligent guy.

That is not how the human mating dance works and you need to come to terms with that, otherwise you will continue to experience rejection from women and will likely conclude that they are all stuck up bitches.

“It is not enough to have a good mind; the main thing is to use it well” Rene Descartes,
French philosopher, mathematician and writer

Use Your Intelligence to See the True Reality

If you've read this far into the article and if you are smarter than the average guy, then you've probably already worked out that women are not stuck up and are simply trying to reject guys who are not compatible with them.

Attractive women don't want to be nice to wimpy guys who aren't compatible with them, because the guy will get the wrong idea and think that he has a chance.

Most guys don't even know how to make women feel attracted to them, which is one of the things that beautiful women hate about single guys.

It might piss you off that women hate things about single guys, but if you watch this entire video, you will understand why they behave like that and what you can do to get a positive reaction from them from now on...

As you will discover from the video above, if a woman is attractive, pretty much every guy is willing to have sex with her at least once.

Most guys are too easily impressed by attractive women, which is boring for those women. If a woman is attractive, she wants to meet a guy who makes her feel attracted and then makes her feel as though she will only be able to get a chance with him if she plays her cards right.

Most guys cannot give an attractive woman that type of experience because most guys are 100% interested in a woman immediately, just because she looks good.

When a woman encounters a guy who doesn't understand the reality she lives in, she will try to get rid of him as quickly and painlessly as possible by acting like she is stuck up or disinterested.

If she doesn't coldly reject him or act stuck up to make him feel uncomfortable enough to leave her alone, she will be encouraging a clueless guy to think that he has a chance with her, when all she was doing was being nice and not trying to hurt his feelings.

Not all women will act uninterested or cold though.

Some women don't like to be mean, so they will chat to the guy and be nice to him, even though they have absolutely no intention of ever having any kind of sexual relationship with him.

However, if the woman is attractive, she will eventually get to a point where it is easier (for and the guy) to just brush him off by acting stuck up or mean. This may piss some guys off, but I hope you can now understand where she is coming from.

Women Behave in Response to How You Behave

While it is true that some women are bitches and enjoy rejecting guys for the fun of it, the majority of women are nice and friendly when a guy approaches them to begin an interaction.

Most women are feminine and don't to have an aggressive interaction with a random guy. Instead, they would rather be nice, friendly, feminine and just see what happens.

Here's the thing though...

You will only experience that nice, friendly side of women when you approach with relaxed confidence and immediately begin to trigger their feelings of attraction for you (e.g. by being charismatic, funny, charming, masculine, etc).

Many women will test your confidence by initially playing a bit hard to get, but if you can remain relaxed, confident and easy-going, they will eventually drop their guard and open up to you. You have to be prepared to stay in there though and not expect that women be gentle and nice with you when you approach.

If you're approaching attractive women, they will need to check to see whether you are truly confident or have just worked up a bit of initial courage to approach them and are hoping that they are gentle and nice and give you a chance.

So, make sure that you really do work on building up your confidence to approach women before you head out there trying to meet hot girls...

As you will discover from the video above, you have a lot of direct control over how much or little confidence you feel. Much of it comes down to what you think about yourself and women.

For example: If a guy approaches a group of women already thinking that they are arrogant bitches and will quickly reject him, the women will sense that insecurity in his body language, tone of voice, attitude and conversations style.

Women can sense it when a man is insecure and nervous and to avoid wasting their time with a guy like that, they will simply behave in a stuck up and arrogant manner to turn him off and let him know that he is not a compatible match.

Itâ€™s not because women are evil, mean-spirited, bitches or that think they are too cool for anyone else â€“ they are just trying to find the right guy for them.

Instead of looking for reasons why you will fail or why women are too difficult to pick up, focus on reasons why you will succeed and why women would love a guy like you. Then, use that confidence in yourself to spark attraction in women when you first meet them.

Common Mistakes That Lead to Rejection From Women

Attracting women is pretty simple when you understand what types of personality traits and behaviors turn women on and off.

Essentially, you’ve got to be confident and then simply add in any number of other ways of attracting women (e.g. being charismatic, charming, funny, having a masculine vibe, etc). The more attractive personality traits and behaviors you display, the more attractive you will be to women.

Unfortunately, most guys never get taught how to be attractive to women, so they end up making some or all of the following mistakes that lead to women behaving like they are stuck up or simply rejecting guys who attempt to pick them up.

1. Displaying a lack confidence or self-esteem

A woman can spot a guy with low self-confidence and self-esteem from a mile away.

She sees it in the way he walks, stands and in the way he needs to get psyched/pumped up before he can approach her. A confident guy won’t even think of the possibility of being rejected by her and will simply walk right up to her and start chatting and flirting.

The woman will naturally feel an instinctive attraction to his confidence and the conversation will flow smoothly, aided by the all-important element of attraction. Without attraction, conversations with women you like will be boring, closed and without any â€œsparkâ€ to them.

2. Being nervous or tense around attractive women

When a guy approaches a woman and displays nervous behavior such as fidgeting, tense or darting eyes or being too hesitant, it makes her feel uncomfortable and she will reject his advances by being arrogant or behaving in a stuck up manner.

3. Using a shy or guarded conversation style.

Some guys feel as though if they can just show women how polite, well-mannered and shy they are, women will take pity and give them a chance.

4. Being overly polite or accommodating.

Have you ever seen a guy being extra nice, polite and accommodating to a woman that he secretly liked?

His thought process may have been something like, â€œI’ll be super nice and do everything for her and THEN she will like me.â€

Unfortunately for him, that is not how it works. Women have to feel sexual attraction for you and THEN they will consider having sex with you or being your girlfriend. Niceness is only exciting to a woman after you have triggered her feelings of sexual attraction.

She thinks, “Wow, this guy is not only sexy, but he’s also a good guy. I’ve hit the jackpot.”

However, if a guy is just nice to a woman and doesn't do anything to trigger her feelings of attraction, she might like him as a person and be open to having a polite conversation with him or being his friend, but she won't feel much or any desire to have sex with him.

Don't Fight Against the Nature of Women. Learn to Love Women For What They Are

Instead of fighting against a woman's natural instincts to test whether a guy is mentally and emotionally strong enough for her, learn to love it and see it for what it really is.

If you are the kind of guy who keeps asking, Why are women so stuck up? and thinking that they are all bitches who need to stop being so difficult towards you, then you are missing the point.

We live in a challenging world and women seek to breed strength and courage into humanity via men, while we men seek to breed healthy and beauty into the human race via women.

Women want your strength and one of the best ways to find out if you have it, is to test you by acting stuck up or playing hard to get.

If you squirm and get nervous, you fail the test, but if you remain confident, relaxed and can appreciate why women do that, you pass the test and women feel respect and attraction for you.

How to Be Sexually Attractive to Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to be sexually attractive to women is to display the personality traits that women are naturally attracted to.

For example: A guy who is confident, charismatic, charming, funny and has a masculine vibe will make a woman feel attracted to him based on those five traits.

However, a guy who is nervous, suppresses his natural charisma because he's afraid to be himself, lacks charm, is afraid to use risky humor and has a neutral vibe will make a woman feel turned off by him based on those five traits.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to be sexually attractive to women...

As you will discover from the video above, you can attract women in more than 100 different ways.

To be sexually attractive to women, you don't have to trigger all of the 100 different attraction triggers that she has, but if you trigger more than 5, you will be sexually attractive to a lot of women.

Your Masculinity is a Huge Turn On For Women

[image: How to be a sexually attractive guy]

When a woman interacts with a confident guy who thinks, behaves and takes action in a masculine way, she can't stop herself from feeling sexually turned ON by him.

However, when a woman interacts with a guy who is nervous and thinks, behaves and takes action in a hesitant, shy, self-doubting or feminine way, she can't stop herself from being sexually turned OFF by him.

This doesn't mean that you can pick up every woman by being confident and masculine, because not all women are single. However, it does mean that you can spark feelings of attraction in pretty much every woman you meet by being confident and masculine.

What is an example of being masculine?

A guy who has big ambitions in life and is following through on them with unrelenting confidence, drive and belief in himself is masculine.

In contrast, a guy who is afraid of rising up and reaching for his true potential as a man, lacks mental and emotional masculinity. In other words, he lacks the balls to push through challenging situations and overcome obstacles on the way to success.

Women Are Attracted to the Strength in Men and Turned Off By the Weakness

The reason why women feel sexual attraction for confident guys and feel turned off by wimpy guys, is that women are naturally attracted to the strength in men.

This preference for tough men has allowed the human race to become stronger over the generations.

Sexual attraction is triggered when we detect certain things in the other person that would be beneficial to our life in general, our happiness, our survival and the survival of any offspring we may have.

A man's weakness is not beneficial to a woman's survival and doesn't make her feel protected and safe.

When we men see a physically beautiful woman, our attraction instincts are automatically turned on because it would be beneficial to breed with her (e.g. better looking children, favorable treatment from others, more enjoyable sex, a feeling of pride for having a beautiful woman, etc).

On the other hand, when we see a physically unattractive woman, our attraction instincts remain off because there is no benefit to breeding with a woman like that.

For a woman's attraction to a man, it's not about looks. Why? A man's physical appearance is NOT the most beneficial thing to her survival.

For most of human history and still to this day, a man's level of confidence, masculinity and social intelligence directly impacts his ability to survive, prosper and to protect himself, her and any offspring they may have.

A good-looking guy doesn't mean that she will be protected or that he will be able to succeed in the world. It will just mean that he is good looking.

So, when it comes to your sexual attractiveness and the all-important topic of how to be sexually attractive to women, FORGET what the TV and magazine advertisements are telling you. It's NOT about cologne, suits, haircuts, muscles, cars, money or penis size; it is about confidence, masculinity (how you think, behave and take action) and social intelligence.

An Alpha Male vs. a Lower Ranking Male

The human being is a special creature and clearly the most intelligent being on the planet (in terms of how we judge intelligence anyway).

That said, we do share a lot in common with animals when it comes to selecting a mate and breeding.

We may have a "dating scene" and be able to sleep with many women before deciding to breed, but if you take a closer look at our behaviors and attraction mechanisms, you will see that we're not very different to animals when it comes to selecting a woman to breed with.

For example, a female lion will select the most physically strong lion that dominates the other males.

To her, he represents her best chance of survival in a world where animals attack and kill each other to rule a territory.

However, a human female does not need a man to go around beating up, biting or killing other men to show her that he can take care of her, himself and any offspring they may have. Instead, she needs to see that he is mentally and emotionally strong enough to handle the challenges of our complex human society.

Sexually Unattractive Behavior

[image: Sexually unattractive behavior]

Every guy has the potential to be sexually attractive to women.

However, if he displays the following behaviors and traits, women will naturally feel turned off by him...

A lack confidence and self-esteem

A guy who lacks confidence and has low self-esteem will automatically come across as insecure and nervous in his interactions with women.

His low self-esteem will cause him to doubt himself and the woman will instinctively pick up on it. She will sense that he doesn't feel as though he is good enough to be with her and she will reject him because of it.

Why? Women don't want to feel as though they are doing you a favor by being with you; they want to feel lucky to be with you.

2. Being too nice

There is absolutely nothing wrong with being nice to women. In fact, I recommend that you be a good guy if you want to experience lifelong success with women and in life in general.

Women DO like men who are nice, but they don't like a nice guy who is shy, nervous and anxious. They want a good guy who is confident, masculine and socially intelligent (i.e. a cool guy) in addition to being nice because that is attractive.

Watch this video to understand why nice guys usually get rejected by women and what you can do to succeed with women, while still being a good guy...

As you will discover from the video above, there is nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but you ALSO have to make her feel sexually attracted to you.

When a guy is just nice to a woman, it doesn't trigger her feelings of sexual attraction and therefore, there is no reason for her to want anything more than a polite conversation or friendship.

3. Being mentally or emotionally weaker than the woman

Women play all manner of mental games to test if a guy is an alpha male.

For example: She may snub him, act offended or act uninterested, interested and turned off all in the same day just to see how he will react.

A guy who cannot weather these tests with strength and confidence will reveal himself to be emotionally and mentally weaker than her. Since most women dream of being with a guy who is mentally and emotionally stronger than they are, a guy like this will get rejected almost every time.

4. Being neutral or feminine

A woman can only feel like a real woman (i.e. feminine, girly, free to be emotional) if the guy thinks, behaves and feels like a masculine man.

If a guy cries at the movies or gets overly emotional if his car gets scratched, then he's not behaving like a real man.

A man who is more in touch with his feminine side than a woman is definitely not going to inspire any lasting sexual attraction in her. Although some women will put up with it for a while (before breaking up with the guy or cheating on him), they do not want to feel as though they are the dominant, masculine one in the relationship.

5. Being too afraid to flirt or show sexual interest in a woman

Flirting is essential for interacting with a woman all the way from the first conversation through to a lifetime relationship.

If a guy does not know how to flirt appropriately with a woman he will struggle to create sexual chemistry between himself and a woman during a conversation. He may get lucky one day and meet a woman with whom the sexual chemistry happens automatically, but it will fade away when the initial lust of the relationship wears off.

6. Being too polite and reserved when talking to women

Great conversation skills are a sign of social intelligence and that is a quality that modern women definitely look for in guys.

When a guy approaches a woman, bores her to tears with polite conversation or asks her a series of questions that make her feel as though she's being interrogated, he's not going to be getting laid anytime soon.

A guy like that will be wondering how to be sexually attractive to women and since he doesn't know what you are now learning, he'll likely get sucked into thinking that it's all about looks, money, height and muscles.

7. Placing women above him in terms of dominance

Women want to be with a man who feels like "the man" around her. Although women may behave as though they want to boss men around when you see them on TV shows, music videos, etc – that is not what women really think or want.

Women behave that way around guys to test how confident and alpha the guy really is. If a woman can dominate a guy during a simple conversation or interaction, how is she going to feel dominated in the bedroom?

Women don't go around admitting that they want to feel submissive around a guy, but if you pay attention, you will see that it is the men who make women feel girly (and submissive) around them who are the ones that women chase and lust after. It's not the super nice, polite, fearful guys who feel intimidated by women.

Be Sexually Attractive to Women Right Now

If you sincerely want to know how to be sexually attractive to women, then stop wasting money on colognes, cars, body building supplements, expensive clothes and shoes, creams and lotions.

Take some time to improve your ability to attract women with your confident, masculinity and personality. When you do that, it won't matter if you are bald, overweight or wearing non-designer clothes, women WILL feel sexually attracted to you.

Don't believe it is possible for to easily attract women?

Watch this video and you will see that it doesn't matter what excuse a guy makes up for his lack of success with women, it always comes down to one, simple thing...

Attraction is an automatic reaction that humans (and animals) experience and if you're not making women feel attraction to you now, then you are doing it wrong – it's as simple as that.

Learning how to set off a woman's feelings of sexual attraction is a quick and simple process. Once you know it, you're set for life and can get on with enjoying sex, love and relationships with beautiful women.

Are you willing to give this a try?

How to Pick Up Women Who Work in Clothing Stores

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

We've all been in that situation where we walk into a shopping mall and see a hot woman working in a clothing store or other retail outlet.

To be successful at picking up a female shop assistant, what you should focus on doing is:

1. Creating a sexual vibe between you and her.

Rather than only sticking to friendly customer to assistant conversation, you need to add in some flirting.

Watch this video to understand how flirting works...

2. Taking your time before getting her phone number.

In most cases, you will need to establish a bit of a connection between you and the shop assistant, before she will be comfortable giving out her number.

She likely gets a few guys every day coming in and having a chat with her, so to stand out you either need to make her feel a lot of attraction for you, or you need to go into the store 2-3 times to let her get familiar with you and feel more comfortable giving out her number.

3. Quickly making her feel attracted and creating a connection and then leaving

Sometimes, a woman won't have much to do because the store will be quiet and her boss won't be around.

However, in most cases, she will be under pressure to serve other customers or impress her boss by continuing to work hard.

You need to make an assessment of what is appropriate for her and the store she works in and then go from there. If she seems busy, take some time to look around the store until she has a couple of minutes to talk to you.

If she can only talk to you for 10 seconds before getting back to her work, make sure that you make it count. How? Use humor to get her laughing and feeling good when interacting with you, so she then remembers you the next time you come in.

The Single Life

One of the greatest things about being single is the freedom to go anywhere and meet a new beautiful woman to have sex or a relationship with. Personally speaking, I've had sex with more than 250 women and three of those women I met while they were working at a clothing store.

I've met and successfully picked up women in all situations and places such as cafes, bars, nightclubs, at house parties, while buying food from a take away store, in a supermarket and so on. The reason I was able to pick these women up was simply by using the attraction techniques that I teach here at The Modern Man.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it pick up female shop assistants...

As you will discover from the video above, you have a lot of control over how much or little attraction a woman will feel for you.

If you're displaying the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women, then she's going to be feeling attracted to you.

Most of the Women Working in Clothing Stores Usually Go to Bars and Clubs

[image: How to Pick Up Women Who Work in Clothing Stores]

For some guys, the thought of approaching women in bars and nightclubs makes them feel nervous because they've already tried it before and have failed, or because they think that women who go to bars and clubs are not the same as the "innocent looking" women who work in clothing stores or office buildings.

Over the years, I've lost count of the amount of times a guy has said to me, "Dan, I'd prefer to meet a nice girl, not a girl who goes out partying to bars. How can I pick up women who I see on the street or at malls? They seem like nicer women."

What these guys don't realize is that most women who go to bars are not sluts or bad girls or mean, bitchy women but they are (in 95% of cases) normal, everyday women who just happened to go out partying with some friends.

[image: Why learn from me?]

I've picked up all sorts of women in bars and nightclubs and they're usually just a girl next door type girls who are simply dressed up in a more sexy way than usual.

I've picked up women who work as lawyers, dental assistants, models, office managers and so on. So, don't ever think that picking up women in bars means that you'll end up with a slutty girlfriend; they are (in most cases) the same type of women that you see walking around shopping malls, drinking coffee at cafes and heading home on public transport.

That said, I understand that not all guys want to pick up women in bars, so they will often wonder how to pick up women who work in clothing stores, chat to women in cafes or stop women on the street and get their phone number.

It definitely is possible to pick up women in any environment and it is easy when you know what to say and how to make the right first impression on a woman. To pick up a woman who is working in clothing store, you need to:

- Start the conversation in a positive and relaxed way.
- Be confident and display confidence.
- Have an easy-going attitude.
- Use humor and flirting whenever possible.

Mistakes to Avoid When Picking Up Women in Clothing Stores

1. Chatting her up while she is busy.

You've got to be patient and not feel awkward about browsing the store for a couple of minutes and waiting for the best time to chat.

If a guy engages a woman in a long conversation when she is working, when her boss is around or when customers are waiting, not only will she feel uncomfortable and even embarrassed, she may even get into trouble because of it.

If she does get into trouble or loses her job, he can be sure that heâ€™s not going to get anything from her other than anger and resentment.

Engaging a woman in a long conversation while sheâ€™s working shows a lack of social intelligence, so she will be naturally turned off.

Most guys donâ€™t realize it, but women are extremely attracted to men who have higher social intelligence than other guys. Social intelligence is essentially about your ability to get along with, understand and work with others.

2. Escalating too fast.

You canâ€™t try to get a number too quickly because it will usually feel awkward.

If a guy moves too fast and tries to get her phone number or set up a date in under a minute, it will usually make the woman feel annoyed or confused at the speed of the pick up.

After all, she is working and not in an environment where she would expect to be picked up like a bar or nightclub. If he doesnâ€™t establish attraction between them first and build a bit of a private connection, she will most-likely turn down his attempts to get her number or date.

3. Behaving in a nervous way.

Youâ€™ve got to be confident.

For women, confidence is the most attractive thing about men, so donâ€™t think you can sneak your way to true success and happiness with women without being truly confident and free of insecurities.

If a guy lacks confidence in himself around attractive women, he will come across as nervous and hesitant, which will be an instant turn off for the woman.

Being nervous around her makes her feel stronger, mentally and emotionally, which is one of the main reasons why a woman will reject a man.

Although some women (who feel insecure themselves) like to have a guy whom they can dominate (mentally and emotionally) for a while just to boost their own confidence, he will be dumped as soon as she gets bored of the games or gets lucky and finds a real man.

4. Attempting to â€˜buyâ€™ her attention.

You canâ€™t buy things from the clothing store as a way to impress her â€˜it doesnâ€™t work.

Some guys will go to the clothing store in the hopes of impressing her by â€˜redoing their wardrobeâ€™ (most-likely after seeing some advice from a woman on a â€˜dating adviceâ€™ site) and the salesgirl will happily sell him every item in the store if heâ€™ll buy it.

To attract women, you have to make them feel your confidence, experience your masculinity (how you think, behave and take action) and witness your social intelligence in action. When you can do that, you can basically have any woman you want. Guys who do this can be ugly, poor, short, bald and unfashionable and they will still get laid!

Ever since creating the attraction secrets that I teach here at The Modern Man, Iâ€™ve never had to waste money buying expensive dinners or gifts to get laid. Women want to have sex with me because the approach that I use with them makes them feel irresistibly drawn to me.

You can have that effect on women too. It's actually a lot easier than you might think. Most guys who learn from us here at The Modern Man are shocked at how easily they get hot women attracted to them.

5. Not creating any attraction.

You have to make the woman attracted to you; don't expect it to happen without you doing anything.

We men feel automatic attraction for a woman's looks, but women need to experience us and feel our confidence, masculinity and overall personality before they feel true attraction.

If a guy wastes her time and his time by being too nice and polite with pointless conversation, she will get anxious and want to get rid of him as soon as possible because he could cost her job, or money, if she is paid on commission.

When it comes to picking up women, just remember this: They don't care about you before feeling attraction for you.

Failing to create attraction before you try to do anything else will result in you getting rejected in 99% of cases.

What to Talk About When You First Meet a Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

What to talk about when you first meet a woman will depend on where you meet her.

For example: If you meet a woman at a house party and she's standing alone.

You: Hey, how's it going? So, are you having a good time at the party?

Her: [She will respond]

You: [Then talk about how you know the host of the party, or who you know at the party and then ask her how she knew about the party].

Another example is where you meet a woman in a shopping mall.

You: Hey, how you doing? I was just walking along and was going to do some grocery shopping and I saw you. I thought you looked cute, so I thought I'd come over and say hi and introduce myself before we never see each other again. My name's Dan, how about you?

Her: [Tells you her name]

Another example is when you're sitting on public transport (e.g. bus, train) and you really want to talk to the girl sitting next to you. You notice that she's reading a book. So, what can you say?

You: How's the book?

Her: [Responds]

You: I haven't read a good book in a long time. The last great book I read was [insert the name of the book you read] and it was awesome. How about you? What is this book like? What it is about?

Another example is where she is browsing Facebook on her smartphone.

You: Hey, did you click like on the photo I posted on Facebook? I just posted it a couple of minutes ago. [Then, smile so she knows you're joking]

The Most Important Thing You Need to Do When Talking to a Woman For the First Time

[image: Attracting a woman during a conversation]

When talking to a woman for the first time, the most important thing that you need to do is make her feel attraction and respect for you as a guy.

It's not enough for you to just be nice and friendly and expect that she will be interested in you because of that. For a woman to become interested in you in a sexual way, you've got to trigger her feelings of sexual attraction for you.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, it's great to know what to say, but if you're not coming across in an attractive way, most women just won't be interested.

When you first meet a woman, your number one aim should be to make her feel sexual attraction and respect for you as a man as you interact with her.

If you fail to do that, it won't matter what you talk about when you first meet her, because she usually won't be interested in what you have to say other than to be polite and friendly with you for a while.

In the past, you may have tried talking to a woman and noticed that, even though you were being nice and friendly, she just wasn't interested in and the conversation dried up. Why?

Simple: You didn't make her feel attracted and turned on by you. Instead, you probably made her feel boring, standard emotions that have nothing to do with dating and beginning a sexual, loving relationship with a man.

The Magic Conversation Script That Amazes Women and Makes Them Want to Suck Your...

[image: The magic conversation script that amazes women]

There is no magic conversation script of exact words that you should say to every woman that you meet.

The most important thing is that you are triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you.

Watch this video for some examples...

When a guy doesn't understand how to talk to women in a way that causes the woman to feel sexual attraction and respect for him as a man, he may begin to think that there must be some sort of magic opening line, phrase or word for word script that will get any woman in bed with him.

He hopes that when he utters the magic words, the woman will fall into his arms and say, "Your place or mine?" and they will live happily ever after.

Aww, how sweet.

Wake up!

To be successful at talking to and picking up women, you don't need to know magic lines (they don't exist) or tricks (women will sense that you're up to something, so just be real and authentic).

If you want to be successful, just focus on being attractive to the woman during the conversation (i.e. be confident, charismatic, charming, funny, etc) and get her to feel respect for you as a man. Nothing else matters.

Don't Try Hard to Impress Her

When you try too hard to impress a woman during a conversation, she will usually make you try even harder by playing hard to get.

She will enjoy all the power you are giving to her and try to get you to jump through as many hoops as possible, to bring your confidence down and allow her to gain mental and emotional control over you.

That is the LAST thing you want to allow a woman to do.

If a guy does that, he is asking for trouble and can expect to be dumped. Why?

1. Although it might feel like a bit of fun for her initially to have a puppy dog for a boyfriend, she will eventually become deeply turned off by how he lets her walk all over him.

2. When she eventually dumps him, she won't feel much pain because she won't have allowed herself to truly love him.

He will most-likely have jumped through so many hoops to try to get her to like him and give you a chance to be with her that he will have fooled him into thinking that she is the one for him and that no other girl can compare.

He may think, "If I feel this strongly about her, she MUST be the one" and he'll then do anything that he can to keep her.

Yet, all along, she never really respected him as a man and doesn't feel much or any sexual attraction for him, so she isn't going to be interested in giving him another chance unless he suddenly learns how to make her respect him and feel attracted to him enough to justify giving the relationship another chance.

3. Women want to feel lucky to be with you, rather than feeling as though they are doing you a favor by being with you.

If a woman feels like a guy isn't good enough for her, it won't last long at all. She will begin to pull back her interest and affection, which will usually cause the guy to become insecure and clingy, which will turn her off even more and she will then dump him.

Making a woman feel lucky to be with you can be achieved by being a bit of a challenge for her to win over.

Watch this video to understand how that works...

As you will discover from the video above, it's only natural that attractive women want a guy who is more of a challenge to impress.

If a woman is attractive, most guys on the planet are willing to have sex with her (at least once) just based on her appearance, which is boring for her.

Don't Over-Prepare What You're Going to Talk About

[image: Don't over-prepare what you're going to talk about]

One of the rules of being an alpha male (i.e. the type of guy that women feel the most attracted to) is to know that "Whatever you say is cool – that's the golden rule."

If you over-prepare what you're going to talk about with a girl, then you are not thinking and behaving like an alpha male and will thus be less attractive to her.

An alpha male will simply say whatever he feels like saying and know that whatever he wants to talk about will be more likely to be considered cool and interesting because it is coming from a confident guy who believes in himself and his value to others.

If you doubt yourself and your value to others, people will pick up on it. Beautiful women are not attracted to self-doubting, nervous guys who don't think that they're good enough.

Some beautiful women do accept a guy like that for a while, but it doesn't mean that he's not going to get dumped or she won't divorce him and take half his money 5 years into a marriage.

If you want to be able to keep a relationship with a beautiful woman together for life, you've got to be able to attract women when you meet them and then deepen your chosen woman's feelings of love, respect and attraction for you over time.

It's easy to do once you have been educated in the art of attraction, but if you never learn this stuff and try to guess your way through interactions and relationships, it's only natural that you're probably going to make mistakes that lead to you being rejected or dumped.

Some guys are naturals when it comes to women, but most guys need to learn a thing or two.

Watch this video to understand where guys often mess up when talking to women and what you should do instead to be successful...

If you want to be successful at talking to women, you've got to believe in yourself and what you have to offer to women during a conversation.

The moment you begin to doubt yourself and worry about whether or not she likes you is the moment when you become less attractive to her. The more belief you can have in yourself, the more attractive you will be to her and then anything you say will be all the more interesting to her.

The next time you're going to talk to a woman, just trust in yourself that whatever you're going to talk about is going to be cool enough or good enough and just be yourself in the moment. Be proud of who you are and women will respect and admire that.

Why Do Women Like Guys With Muscles?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

While it is true that a guy's muscles can make a woman feel attracted to him, it is not the most important thing that a woman looks for in a guy.

Some women are totally into guys who have muscles, but as you will discover by watching the video below (it includes photo proof), most women are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a guy and do not require you to have big muscles to qualify for sex or a relationship.

There's nothing wrong with building up muscles if you enjoy doing that, but if you're motivation to get ripped is to get laid, you should stop wasting so much time and energy in the gym.

Yes, some women will only accept a male model with big muscles, but most women are more attracted to a guy's inner qualities (e.g. confidence, charisma, social intelligence, emotional masculinity, etc) than his outer qualities.

“But, I’ve Seen Guys With Big Muscles and They Usually Have a Hot Girlfriend!”

If you're at a shopping mall or walking down the street and see a guy with rippling muscles who happens to have a beautiful girlfriend on his arm, you might start to wonder to yourself, “Why do women like guys with muscles?”

Then, if you listen to the clever advertising messages of fitness centers or weight-lifting supplements, you might begin to think that to “get the girl” you first need to get the muscles.

However, if you take a moment to actually think about what you see in everyday life, you will realize that you always see beautiful women with boyfriends or husbands that do not have a perfect gym body.

[image: Ugly guy has a baby with a beautiful woman]

[image: Asian guy with white girlfriend]

[image: Ugly guy with hot cheerleader girlfriend]

[image: Fat men marrying beautiful women]

So, no matter what bullshit the body building advertisements are trying to tell you, always make sure you stop to think about what actually happens in REAL life.

Again, there is NOTHING wrong with working out and building muscle if you enjoy it, but seriously – you don't need mega muscles to attract and pick up the majority of women in this world.

The Big Muscle Myth

Celebrities such as Dwayne Johnson, Hulk Hogan, Sylvester Stallone and Arnold Schwarzenegger have immortalized the body builder image via movies and wrestling TV shows.

Thanks to the use of steroids and TRT (Testosterone Replacement Therapy), these men have been able to build huge amounts of muscle. They have used drugs to grow bigger muscles that will get them more attention in the media for looking like a monster of a man.

If you watch a lot of TV and movies that feature men with steroid-based muscles, you might start to feel as though you need to be like them.

Yet, if take an honest look at the real world around you everyday, you will notice that pretty much every guy with a hot woman is just an "average Joe."

He will have an average build (or even be skinny or very overweight), average looks (or even be below-average in looks) and will be experiencing an average amount of success in life (or no real success at all).

Why is that?

Why do most women have a boyfriend who doesn't have big muscles?

Why do most women lust after guys who are just normal looking guys? The answer is: It's not about the muscles. It's not about money. It's not about height or penis size. It's about CONFIDENCE.

If you don't believe that, then you will likely feel insecure and inadequate for the rest of your life – and guess what? Women don't want you to feel inadequate; they want you to be confident.

If women liked guys with muscles and only chose a guy based on that, 80% of the male population would be single.

Yet, in most developed countries, 30-65% of the men are overweight...and they have a girlfriend or wife or are dating multiple women at once.

Likewise, if women only went for tall men, then most of us guys wouldn't be able to get ourselves a girlfriend. So, don't go through life believing that success with women comes down to height, muscles, money or looks.

Success with women about confidence and being a man, not wasting thousands of hours in a gym to get an extra few centimetres on your biceps.

There's nothing wrong with working out in the gym and building muscle if you enjoy it, but if the main reason you spend so much time in a gym is to impress women, then you're doing it wrong.

Women Want an Alpha Male – With or Without Big Muscles

When you really pay attention to what is going on, you will see that what women really want is a guy who is more alpha than the other guys available at the time.

This is why you will see women hooking up with guys who really aren't that cool or who are jerks, but who are more alpha than the other guys in the situation.

Of course, the secret to success with women is not to be a jerk alpha male, but to be a good guy alpha male. That way, you are not only loved and liked by women, but by people in general.

Being a good guy alpha male is what we teach here at The Modern Man. If you're interested in learning our simple secrets for success with women, make sure that you click around the site before you leave.

Not All Women Like Guys With Muscles

[image: Not all women want a guy with big muscles]

Don't forget the fact that most of the guys you see with a girlfriend or a wife do not have big muscles.

I know a lot of hot women and many of them have told me that they are actually turned off by guys with muscles because, in most cases, the guy will be insecure and lack confidence in himself.

To hopefully impress the ladies, many guys will spend hours in the gym every week pumping their muscles as big as they can. Yet, when they talk to girls, they lack the type of strength that is most important to women: Mental and emotional strength. In other words, confidence, assertiveness, remains calm and in control when challenged, etc.

Of course, there are some women who do like men with big muscles, just like there are some men who like strippers. Yet, those women are not the majority.

It might seem like the majority if you don't know many women or haven't hooked up with beautiful women, but believe me – muscles are not the answer. I don't work out to build muscle, but I do exercise sometimes.

[image: Dan Bacon - girlfriend]

Picking up my sexy girlfriend in a nightclub, even though I don't have big muscles...

When I met my current girlfriend (shown in the photo above) I didn't have big muscles, but I still picked her up even though she has a sexy body that is in shape (Update: Her and I recently got married after a short engagement. She's 22 and I'm 37).

I picked her up because I'm confident and know how to make women feel attracted to my personality (i.e. by being charismatic, charming, sexual, etc).

If I had muscles, it would have been the same pick up process and I would have got the same results. You don't pick up women because of muscles, you pick them up by making them feel attracted to you, building up the sexual tension and then releasing that tension with kissing and sex.

What matters to my girlfriend is that I am a confident, alpha male who is moving forward in life.

Yes, I could spend the time to put on muscle and have a gym body, but it's not the answer to success with women. Having big muscles just a nice bonus that most women will happily go without if you are a confident man.

Besides, I have better things to do with my time (i.e. write more articles for The Modern Man, bang my sexy bitch of girlfriend, hang out with friends, etc) than lift weights up and down in a gym.

The Body-Building Craze is a Hollywood Inspired Trend

The body building trend, as we know it today, was a fad that came along in the Arnold Schwarzenegger, Hulk Hogan, Rocky era.

Just because that trend came along and stuck due to companies spending money to advertise gym equipment and body building supplements, it does not mean that body building has been going on for 1,000s of years. It's just a trend and it doesn't mean ANYTHING. It's just a thing.

What does mean something is whether or not you're a real man. If you're an insecure guy who lacks confidence around attractive women, then it doesn't matter if your biceps are bigger than the next guy's.

Women aren't going to drop to their knees and ask you to unzip your jeans because you have muscles; they only do that if you're actually alpha and make them feel like a real woman.

You can't make a woman feel like a real woman if you're not even a real man. It doesn't matter how big your pecs are; if you're insecure and doubt yourself around her, she will perceive you to be as small as an ant.

The entire illusion that the movies magazines, advertisers and gym chains have created about women being attracted to buff and well-built male bodies with rippling muscles is based on lies.

Asking, Why do women like guys with muscles? is like asking why do all men like women with big boobs; some do and some don't. Big boobs are not the answer for women to attract any man and big muscles are not the answer for you to attract any woman.

Big Muscles, But Still Single and Lonely

Gyms are full of guys who are single and wondering why they don't have a girlfriend.

You might even have some friends (or this might apply to you) who have spent a LOT of time in the gym, hoping that it finally get women interested, yet nothing changes.

Why? It's all about confidence, being alpha and being a man. If you've got muscles, then good for you and some women will see that as a bonus. Yet, it is absolutely, without a doubt, NOT essential for success with women.

When a guy fails to attract a woman for sex or a relationship, it is NOT due to him not having muscles. It will be due to more fundamental problems that he needs to fix, such as:

1. Lacking confidence and having low self esteem

When a woman first interacts with a guy, she will test him to see if he is an alpha male and when he fails their tests, she will lose interest or outright reject him.

Unfortunately for the guy, this rejection will usually result in an even greater dip in his confidence. He might decide to go to gym and pump up his muscles, then spend $1,000s of Dollars/Euros/Pounds/Etc on clothes, cologne, professional haircuts, skin cream, shoes and so on. He hopes that all that external stuff will get him the girl, but it doesn't.

If you're one of the many guys who spends lot of money trying to make yourself look nice, then you will know that it doesn't fix your issues with women.

If you want to be successful with women, you have to get rid of your insecurities and become more confident and alpha. Anything less than that will result in you having no women, have lower-quality women or getting lucky with a quality woman only to potentially have her dump you later on.

2. Lacking conversation skills

If you aren't good at making conversation with attractive women, it won't matter to them whether or not you have a perfect gym body.

They might say, â€œOooh, I like your biceps!â€ and genuinely feel a fleeting bit of attraction for you in that moment, but if they then notice that you lack confidence around them and can't keep a conversation going and keep it interesting, they will quickly lose interest in you.

Being a great conversationalist is like having the keys to a woman's locks. You simply unlock them, her guard drops and she is yours. It's a beautiful thing to experience.

Watch this video to understand where guys mess up when talking to women and what you can do instead to ensure that you succeed with the pick up and get the result you want...

3. Not flirting enough or not even knowing how to flirt at all

This is an extension of the above point. Flirting is absolutely essential for success at picking up women. During a conversation, flirting builds up an invisible attraction between a man and a woman and creates the all-important â€œsparkâ€ between them.

Flirting is a means of showing the other person that you like them in a sexual way, without ever having to say, â€œI like you, let's have sex.â€

By their very nature, alpha males are comfortable to flirt with women right away, because they know that most women automatically feel attraction for their confidence and alpha male behavior and thinking.

On the other hand, lower ranking males like to play it safe and try their best not to offend women, which (in their naive opinion) means avoiding any kind of sexual innuendo or suggestiveness.

I've lost count of the amount of times a guy has said to me, â€œbut, Dan – I don't want her to think I'm being too forward. I want her to know that I respect her.â€ Funny stuff.

The poor guy (hey, I used to be like that myself) thinks that women are like innocent little angels and would never, ever think about having sex. Therefore, showing any kind of sexual interest is wrong or "too forward" and will result in him being slapped or humiliated in front of others when she reacts badly.

4. Not understanding sexual body language and how to use it

Sexual body language is NOT about being sleazy. When you do it correctly, you will come across like George Clooney does when he interacts with women.

As you may have noticed, he comes across as classy, charismatic and socially intelligent. He doesn't come across as a sleazy jerk; so don't ever worry about showing your sexual interest in a woman. Doing so doesn't mean that you will be perceived as a jerk.

Instead, sexual body language literally makes a woman feel turned on and excited to be interacting with you. In her mind, she can't help but think of having sex with you, just as right now, you can't help but think of a bright, yellow elephant.

Why are you thinking of a bright, yellow elephant? It's simply how the human brain works. When it is presented with a piece of information to process, the brain will process it, regardless of what the information is.

When you begin using sexual body language with her and she automatically begins feeling turned on, she won't be able to stop her brain from thinking about having sex with you. She will start visualizing it and thinking about it.

Your Inner Qualities Are the Most Important to the Majority of Women

When it comes to success with women, it is not your OUTER qualities (e.g. muscles, looks, clothes) that guarantee success, but rather your inner qualities (e.g. confidence, personality).

Yes, some women place more importance on superficial things about a guy (e.g. his looks, money, clothes, etc), but the majority of women are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a guy and place more importance on a guy's inner qualities.

You know this is true because you always see short, bald, fat, poor or weird looking guys with beautiful women. If success with women was based on a man's outer qualities, most of us guys (me included) wouldn't be able to get ourselves a hot woman.

As a man, you should be thankful that most women will choose to be with you based on your inner qualities.

However, if you believe the BS that you see in the media everyday, you may come to believe that women choose men based on looks, muscles, money and penis size. Yes, some women choose men based on outer qualities, but the vast majority of women do not.

Approaching Girls Alone

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret to approaching girls alone is to:

1. Approach with confidence

Girls don't want you to feel nervous. They are hoping that when you approach them, you will remain confident even if they test you by acting like they're not interested or by not contributing much to the conversation.

So, if you approach girls alone, just make sure that you allow them to experience your relaxed, easy-going confidence. Don't expect them to make it easy on you by being really nice to you as soon as you approach though.

Most of the girls you approach alone or with friends will initially test your confidence by playing hard to get. So, make sure that you're prepared to weather that storm by remaining confident in yourself no matter how they try to test you.

2. Immediately trigger their feelings of attraction for you.

[image: Approaching girls on your own]

If you approach girls, the most important feeling that you have to give them is attraction.

A lot of guys make the mistake of approaching girls and hoping to be liked for being so nice or friendly. That's not how it works.

If you want girls to respect you, like you and want to continue interacting, you have to make them feel attracted.

3. Stay in there until you get a result

[image: Stay in there until you get a result]

No guy can pick up every girl in the world, but most guys give up way too easily before they get a result.

I've found that if you just stay in the interaction and continue building up the girl's attraction for you, she will eventually crack and open up.

Some girls are a lot easier than others, but if you want to pick up hotties, you've got to have the courage to stay in there and wait for the attraction to build up to a point where she finally stops playing hard to get.

Going Out Alone

[image: Going out alone]

Most people go out to social environments with at least one friend or in a group of friends. Women and girls in particular prefer to do things with a friend; they'll even go to the bathroom in pairs or in a group.

This makes approaching girls alone feel quite intimidating for guys who are on their own because most of their friends are already in relationships, or for guys who don't have many friends at all.

Guys also tend to go out with friends because it usually feels a lot easier and safer to approach a group of girls when you have a wingman to back you up. However, if you don't have guy friends to go out with, you might need to start getting used to approaching alone.

From my personal experience of overcoming my fears of approaching women and then coaching guys and showing them how to approach women, I've found that it's easier for most guys to improve their approaching skills with a wingman.

However, if you don't have many friends or if all of your friends are already in a relationship, then you might be keen to give it a go on your own anyway.

If you are keen to approach girls on your own, try to avoid making the following mistakes...

Common Mistakes That Guys Make When Approaching Girls Alone

[image: Approaching with the wrong vibe]

As long as you approach with confidence, trigger the girl's feelings of attraction and then stay in there until you get a result, you will succeed on most approaches you make.

However, not all guys get it right. Here's where they often go wrong...

Being out of tune with the vibe of the place

Every environment has a unique vibe and if you want to be successful when approaching girls, you've got to be in tune with the vibe. If your vibe and energy doesn't match the environment, girls will put their guard up and play hard to get with you.

For example:

1. A group of girls are on the beach may be relaxing, sun bathing, having fun and maybe even playing in the water or some kind of beach ball game. What vibe do you think a guy should have when he approaches girls like that? Should he use the same type of vibe no matter what the girls are doing?
2. A group of girls are in a library and are there to study, read and get work done. What vibe should a guy have when he sits next to them and starts a conversation?

If a guy approaches girls and doesn't match the vibe of the group or the energy of the environment, the girls will usually feel like he doesn't belong in that environment and then reject him or ignore him.

2. Approaching in a hesitant or tense way

If a guy approaches a group of girls and behaves in a nervous, tense, hesitant or insecure manner, he will either be dismissed, or simply ignored by the women. Why? Women are naturally attracted to confident guys and are naturally turned off by emotionally weak or wimpy men.

3. Asking for permission to speak to them

Following on from the previous point, if a guy asks for permission to talk to the girls then he is already showing a lack of confidence in himself. A confident, alpha male will assume that the girls want to talk to him and he will just begin talking to them in an easy-going way.

4. Only focusing on one girl in the group

When a guy approaches a group of girls, it's totally fine that he will like one of them more than the others, but that doesn't mean he should ignore all of her friends.

If he approaches the group and singles out one girl while ignoring the rest of the group that she is with, not only will she feel uncomfortable and even think he's being rude, but the rest of the group will automatically dislike him for disrespecting them and some will try to get rid of him.

5. Coming on too strong

A guy who approaches a group of girls and immediately begins coming on too strong (e.g. taking the whole conversation very seriously and trying to get the girl to commit to being in a relationship with him ASAP), then he is likely to be snubbed.

Women don't like to be rushed into showing that they want to be in a relationship with a guy, so this type of behavior will not be welcomed.

6. Behaving way too â€œniceâ€œ

This type guy is really sweet; he says the right things, jumps up and volunteers to fetch more drinks, he buys ice cream for all the girls or offers to find a reference book on the History of World War II to help them with their assignment.

All the girls in the group like him because he is â€œsafeâ€œ and they all think that he could be their friend, but unfortunately for him, none of them feel sexually attracted to him. Why? Niceness is good and you should be a good guy, but it is not what makes women feel attraction.

Watch this video for the full explanation...

7. Asking her out in front of her friends

Asking a girl out in front of her friends is a sure way to increase your chances of getting turned down or making her play hard to get.

A girl does not like to be put on the spot in front of others and prefers to make her decision privately and without feeling rushed or pressured. Additionally, asking a girl out before you are sure that she is attracted to you is a courting disaster.

8. Lacking sufficient conversation skills

One of the biggest mistakes a guy can make when approaching girls alone, is to have no conversation skills to back him up. If he doesn't flirt or asks too many personal questions, the girls (and especially the girl he is trying to impress) will switch off and may also feel tense and uncomfortable being around him.

Watch this video to understand where a lot of guys mess up when talking to girls and what you can do instead to be successful...

Approaching Girls Alone is Easier Than You May Think

When you do it correctly, approaching girls alone is easier than you may think.

Contrary to what you see on TV or at the movies (where a guy will be slapped or ridiculed for approaching), girls in real life are actually quite willing and open to meeting guys. If you approach with confidence and behave in an authentic, easy going manner, pretty much any girl will be happy to have a quick chat with you.

If you can make her feel sexual attraction for you, then she's going to want a lot more than a quick chat and will want to exchange numbers or escalate things to a sexual level that day or night.

Approaching women whenever you feel like it is a liberating experience for a man.

If you go through life feeling afraid to approach women whom you find attractive, then you will be sitting around hoping to get lucky, which usually means that you'll be single and lonely for years and will likely have to accept a lower quality woman because the beautiful ones don't usually throw themselves at guys who are afraid of approaching women.

Common Insecurities About Approaching Girls Alone

Do you suffer from any of the following common insecurities with regards to approaching women?

You are afraid or worried that:

- The women will not want to be approached.
- You may be interrupting them.
- The women might humiliate you in front of everyone.
- The women may snub you or ignore you.
- The women might make fun of you or laugh at you with their friends.
- You might freeze up and not know what to say when you stand in front of her.
- You might make a fool of yourself.
- You might run out of things to say.
- The women might find you boring.

Overcoming your insecurities is a process of getting a proper education on women and socializing. For instance, most guys don't know that when women get dressed up and go out to a bar or club and then stand around, they are usually waiting to be approached.

If guys don't approach them, the women usually worry that they may have worn the wrong dress, don't look pretty enough or will complain about the lack of confident men who have the courage to approach.

Finding Your Life Purpose and Making it Happen

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Finding your life purpose is the most important thing you will ever do as a man.

[image: No purpose or direction in life]

Without a clear purpose in life, you will be floating around in the wind like a plastic bag. You will have no direction and will be easily swayed.

When you are a man of purpose (i.e. you have a mission and you're following through on it), you glide through the air like a bullet and head directly towards your target.

Even if there is a bit of wind (i.e. obstacles that come up along your way to your target), you have such force and determination that you stay on target and reach your destination. If you get knocked down, you get right back up, reload the gun and shoot for the target once again.

Men of Purpose Are Attractive to Women

Another reason why finding your life purpose is important as a man, is that a man of purpose is very appealing and attractive to women.

Women are naturally attracted to guys who have mental and emotional strength to follow through on their biggest goals and ambitions and never give up. This attraction is directly linked to a woman's need to align herself with a man who will be able to survive, thrive and prosper in this world.

Throughout human history and still to this day, survival has always been a challenge for humans. In the past, we had to hunt and gather our own food and now we need to work and compete in the workforce or business world to be able to survive, thrive and prosper.

When a woman meets a guy who is a man of purpose, her natural instinct of attraction kicks in.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use your clarity of purpose and your determination to achieve it as a way to make her feel attracted to you...

As you will discover from the video above, having purpose in life is just one of the ways that you can attract women to you as a man.

What is Your Life Purpose?

[image: What is your life purpose?]

Every man has a purpose in life, but finding your purpose is not always an instant or an obvious discovery.

Some guys are lucky enough to grow up knowing what they want to do and they then follow that path throughout life and live it out to its fullest potential.

However, for most guys, the idea of having a life purpose seems to make sense, but they just can't seem to work out what it is for them and where they fit into the world.

As a result, they often go through life hoping that one day, the idea for their life purpose will come to them in a flash of inspiration. Unfortunately, that doesn't happen for the majority of guys and they end up wasting much or most of their life waiting for that elusive flash of inspiration and insight.

How Do You Know if You've Discovered Your Life Purpose?

You'll know that you've found your life purpose or are on the path to realizing your life purpose, when it is the thing that gets you out of bed in the morning more than anything else in the world.

Years into working on it, you still feel excited and still have an unrelenting passion about it. You're always thinking of ways that you could improve your skills in the area or improve the area (of life that you're focused on) for other people.

From all my experience with the topic of having purpose as a man, I've found that if a guy simply follows his gut instinct and heads along down the path that he feels will lead him to achieve his life purpose, then he will either:

1. Stick with the path he chose, rise through the levels of his true potential in the area and achieve his life purpose.
2. Grow from the experience and then realize that his life purpose can be even bigger than he once imagined. He will then begin heading down the path of his new aspirations and dreams.

When finding your life purpose, you won't always have a crystal clear picture of what you will achieve and how. Sometimes, you just have to trust your gut instinct and take several connecting paths to reach the point where you realize your life purpose.

During that time, you will be building valuable skills and acquiring knowledge that will prepare you and help make you ready to begin achieving your true purpose in life.

However, if you don't trust your gut instinct and instead hide away from doing what you really want to be doing in life, then life will get pretty gloomy for you. Over time, feelings of regret, emptiness and disconnection from the world around you will increase and you will feel unfulfilled at your core.

Have You Been Ignoring What You Really Want to Do With Your Life?

Ask yourself, what do you really want in life? What do you really care about doing in this life more than anything else? Be honest with yourself.

What would make you happy?

What would make you feel totally satisfied with life, even if it means following a path that others might think is silly or impossible?

If you can answer those questions easily, then you will know where you want to head in life. You don't have to have a complete, step by step plan on how to get there, but you do need to trust your gut instinct and then build a vision of how it could play out.

You then need to have an intense desire to go after it with unlimited determination.

The Difference Between a Hobby and a Life Purpose

When the subject of life purpose comes up, many guys will make the mistake of thinking that their hobbies and general interests are their purpose in life.

An example is when a guy thinks, “Okay, well, I love cars. That’s what makes me happy. I want to make enough money to buy a Ferrari or a Lamborghini one day. That’s going to be my purpose in life.”

Yet, working hard and saving up to buy an expensive car is simply a goal based on acquiring a material object. Achieving that will not deliver him total life satisfaction for his entire life, unless he’s a shallow person with very limited dreams.

There’s nothing wrong with aiming to acquire material possessions, to live a comfortable life or to become wealthy. However, those things are not your life purpose and they are not what life is all about.

Material possessions and wealth are simply added luxuries in an already amazing world. There are so many documented stories of business people who only ever got into business to make money or to “escape the rat race,” thinking that it would satisfy them and make them eternally happy.

Yet, all they ended up with was numbers in a bank account and an empty feeling about life. Instead of having a real desire to contribute to the world, change the world or achieve something amazing, they worked hard to get money and to get away from the world.

Unfortunately for them, they didn’t know that a fulfilling life purpose is something that brings you closer to the world, not farther away from it.

Turning a Hobby into a Life Purpose

In the example of a guy really loving cars, he could turn that into a life purpose by getting deeply involved in the automobile industry.

For example: He might become a car collector, start or join a club for car enthusiasts, continually improve his knowledge on the subjects related to cars or even write a book about the complete history of cars.

He might also try to get a job with a company who are designing cutting edge cars and use his passion and knowledge to help make the project a success.

He might even start a business of his own. If his love for cars is going to be a fulfilling life purpose and not just a hobby, then it needs to go beyond the car itself.

To make it his life purpose, he should delve right into the industry, topic or area and contribute in the best way he can, rather than just buying a car and feeling proud of himself.

A Man with Purpose

Felix Baumgartner, the Austrian man who jumped from the edge of space in a supersonic free-fall in 2012, is a man who knows all about pushing his limits and reaching for his true potential as a man.

Millions of viewers watched his record-breaking jump on YouTube and held their breath as he attempted to become the fastest man alive.

His success inspired a lot of people, not necessarily in terms of wanting to go out and take up extreme base jumping, but in terms of giving them a reason to think, What am I doing with my life?

Before jumping from the edge of space, Baumgartner had already made over 2500 death-defying jumps from some pretty extreme locations, including one from the iconic Christ Redeemer in Rio.

He started skydiving at the age of 16, honing his skills as a member of the Austrian military display and competition team before joining Red Bull in 1988. He describes himself as born to fly, but by the 1990s he felt he'd gone as far as he could with traditional skydiving, so he started pushing his boundaries with base jumping.

You could argue that Baumgartner didn't have to find his purpose, he knew from an early age what he wanted to do with his life, but it's not that cut-and-dry.

At the age of 16, he didn't set himself the target of jumping from the edge of space; he set his sights on pushing himself to the limits of what it was humanly possible for him to achieve and the Red Bull Stratos project came into his life as a result of following that purpose.

If he'd been thinking small or just thinking about skydiving to amuse himself for the sake of a hobby, he would have stopped pushing himself after any one of his 2500 jumps.

In 2003, he achieved something no man had ever done before when he crossed the English Channel with a carbon wing; he could have stopped there, but he didn't. Always following his gut instinct desire to do what he loves to do, he followed a path that lead to a point where he jumped into the record books from the edge of space.

Will he stop there?

Not at all.

He's now pushing his potential as a pilot to the next level. In a recent interview he said, "You can't keep me out of the air. I have already been flying as a commercial helicopter pilot in Europe, and now I will have the time to take that aspect of my career to the next level. I'm really looking forward to it."

What is Your Gut Instinct Telling You to Do?

Finding your purpose is about listening to what your gut instinct has been telling you all along.

Many guys will waste decades working in an industry they're not even passionate about, while always knowing what they'd really love to be doing. Often, the excuse will be, I can't afford to leave my job and pursue what I love, because I wouldn't start earning money from it for years.

Yet, that isn't a valid excuse because when it comes to achieving your true purpose in life, you don't reach the top of the mountain on day one.

You need to get involved in the industry or profession in some way, rather than thinking that glory will happen on day one.

Work your way up and make a promise to yourself that you'll keep going until you get to where you really want to be in life.

How to Tell if a Woman is Attracted to You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Even if a woman is very attracted to you, she will almost always wait for you to make the first move. Rather than saying that she likes you, asking you out or attempting to kiss you, she will give you signs that she is attracted and hope that you have the confidence to do something about it.

[image: How to tell if a woman is attracted to you]

For example, she might:

1. Try to keep conversations going with you: She will make an effort to keep conversations going between you and her, even when it feels awkward and there's nothing much to talk about.
2. Display sexual or submissive body language She might occasionally lower her chin down while looking up at you with a smile during conversation to show that she feels feminine and girly in response to your masculinity...and it is turning her on.
3. Play with her necklace She might regularly stroke her necklace and fiddle with it while talking to you. She will do this to show you that she's feeling something when talking to you and she's hoping that you pick up on that.

To a woman, these are pretty obvious signals that show her attraction and interest in you, but for a guy who isn't very sure of himself around women, he will either not notice the signals or misinterpret them as her just being friendly or playful.

As a man, you need to accept your role as the one who has to make a move. It's not a woman's role to have to lead you as a man. If you don't have the confidence to lead the way when you meet a woman you like, then most women will simply walk away from the opportunity.

Watch this video to understand why many women would rather miss out on being with you, rather than have to lead you...

Whatever you do, just don't ever expect that a woman will suddenly want to "be your man" and guide you through a sexual courtship and into a relationship with her.

A woman wants to meet a guy who has the confidence to take on that role for her. That way, she can relax into your masculine direction and feel as though she is being swept off her feet by a masculine man.

When a woman is attracted to a guy who isn't making a move, she will usually give him all sorts of signals in the hope that he will get the message and take a risk to move things forward between them.

Do you know how to make a woman feel so much attraction for you that she starts giving you obvious signals of interest? Watch this video to find out...

Does She Like Me?

[image: Approaching women and making them feel attracted to you]

Imagine that you're at a bar right now and you suddenly see a beautiful woman who you'd love to meet.

She's sitting nearby you with her girlfriend and you notice that she keeps looking over at you. The next time she looks your way, you quickly turn around and make eye contact with her. She smiles and then looks away immediately.

You say to yourself, â□□She keeps looking over...and she smiled. Does that mean she likes me? Maybe she's just in a good mood. What if I approach and she says that she has a boyfriend?â□□

So, you decide not to approach her because you're not 100% absolutely sure that sheâ□□s actually attracted to you or interested in meeting you. After all, sheâ□□s beautiful, so you might also be thinking to yourself, â□□Why would a woman like her be interested in a guy like me anyway?â□□

If you've ever had an experience similar to that, don't worry â□□ it's very common.

Most men make the mistake of thinking way too much about approaching women, instead of actually approaching and then triggering her feelings of attraction.

If you're not sure whether or not a woman is attracted to you, then simply start an interaction with her and trigger her feelings of attraction for you. She will then be attracted. Don't sit around wondering if she is attracted enough yet; just get in front of her and make her attracted to you.

If She Feels Your Confidence, She Will Feel Attracted to You

The number one thing that women are attracted to in a man is his confidence.

When a guy walks over to talk a woman, the best way for her to find out if he is truly confident is to be a bit challenging to talk to. She will play hard to get and not contribute much to the conversation to see how he reacts.

If she notices that he squirms and becomes nervous and anxious under the pressure, she knows that he lacks the all important self-confidence that she is looking for in a man. However, if he remains calm, confident and easy-going, she will naturally feel attraction for his confidence and open herself up to the situation.

Most guys around the world see a woman's initial challenging behavior as a rejection, so they walk away with their tail between their legs, so to speak.

Yet, if the guy had just waited a bit longer to give her a chance to feel his confidence, she would have opened herself up and shown the easy-going and down to earth side of herself that she usually only shows to men whom she's attracted to.

By the way...

One of the best ways to deal with women who are playing hard to get, is to be a bit of a challenge yourself. Here's why...

Being a challenge isn't about putting on an act. Instead, it's about having real standards about what you will and will not accept in a woman.

The way that I approach it is that I make a woman feel intense attraction for me and I then only allow her to have a chance to be with me if she plays her cards right. If she doesn't think, behave and act in the ways I like, I simply begin to lose interest and she then tries to adapt and change in the moment to suit me.

If She's Attracted, Begin to Develop a Unique Connection With Her

Sometimes, you can have sex with a new woman you've met purely on mutual attraction, but in most cases, a woman will also require that you and her actually share a connection first.

Many guys feel as though they can go to the gym and pump up their muscles or wear a nice shirt and cologne to attract women and then "the job is done." The woman will see his big muscles or say, "Wow, nice shirt" and then they'll fall in love and live happily ever after.

It sounds comical that guys would think that way, but a lot of guys actually go out to meet women and believe that a woman will like them over superficial things such as his hairstyle, shirt, cologne or muscles.

What women are really attracted to in a man is his confidence, social intelligence and masculinity. If you display those traits to women, they can't help but feel a natural attraction for you.

Once a woman is attracted, you then need to develop a real connection with her and then escalate to kissing, sex and guide her into a relationship. It's very easy to do as long as you start out by making the woman feel a lot of attraction for you in the beginning.

Make a Move

Even if a woman is attracted to you and is enjoying an amazing connection with you, she will almost always still wait for you to make a move.

To get to the next level and begin a relationship or to have sex with a woman, you must believe in yourself and show her that you're confident enough to get her phone number, set up a time to meet, escalate things to sex or begin a dating relationship.

When a woman is attracted and interested in you, she will rarely reject your advances to move things forward to another level. Don't sit around wondering if you should make a move. Just remember to be the man and confidently guide both you and her to the next level.

How to Be a Real Man

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want women to see you as a real man, you need to:

- Be confident in who you are and what you've got to offer women and the world.
- Go after your biggest dreams and ambitions in life with unrelenting confidence.
- Love and accept people for who they are.
- Love and admire yourself (i.e. have high self-esteem).
- Be masculine in how you think, behave and take action in life.
- Make a woman feel girly and feminine in response to your masculinity.

[image: How to be a real man]

When you are what women refer to as a real man, you will effortlessly make women feel attracted to you when you meet them and you will easily deepen a woman's love, respect and attraction for you during a relationship, to the point where she never wants to leave you.

Do you know how to attract women when you meet them and then deepen the woman's feelings when in a relationship?

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it become the real man that she is desperately looking for...

As you will discover from the video above, you don't have to be tall, good looking, rich and have a perfect body to be considered an attractive man by the majority of women in this world.

Some women are superficial and will only accept a man who is good looking, tall, rich, drives a luxury car and has a perfect body, but the majority of women are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a guy.

You can be the real man that women are looking for and it all begins with your ability to be attractive to women based on your inner qualities (e.g. confidence, masculinity, charisma, ability to love, etc).

“Where Are All the Real Men?”

Have you ever heard a woman complain and say, “Where are all the real men?” when she is referring to the quality of men she has to choose from in the dating scene?

It's an increasingly common complaint from modern women because the amount of available real men is rapidly declining.

Why?

More and more men are falling victim to the brainwashing they receive via the media about what women want. For example: Men are told that they need to be tall, handsome, rich, drive a luxury car, have a huge dick and have a perfect body...and THEN they will be worthy of an attractive woman.

It's crazy.

Most guys go through life never knowing the REAL reason why they get rejected by women. I reveal the real reason in this video...

As you will discover from the video above, guys make up all sorts of excuses for their lack of success with women, but it really comes down to one, simple thing: Their inability to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman during an interaction.

When you know how to attract women with your confidence and personality, most women will feel enough attraction for you to want to have sex or begin a relationship. Some women are very picky, but most are happy to secure you as their man if you're able to make them feel enough attraction and have some (the more the better) of the qualities of a real man.

If you are serious about understanding how to be a real man, you have to stop believing what TV commercials have been telling you about what women really want in a man.

Being a real man is not about driving the latest car, wearing an expensive shirt or spraying on a designer cologne. You can do those things if you want to, but being a real man is deeper than that and you know it.

Can Any Man Become a Real Man?

[image: How can I be a real man?]

Yes.

Being a real man is a way of thinking, living and taking action and it all comes from who you are deep down.

Some guys think they can get a few quick tips and pretend to be a real man, but if you are serious about being the real man that women want, you have to go a little deeper than just a few quick tips.

When you approach this part of your life properly, you will enjoy:

- High self-esteem.
- Respect from others.
- Your choice with women.
- A sense of fulfilment, pride and satisfaction that comes from following through to achieve your biggest goals and ambitions in life.
- Happiness for life.
- Love and great relationships with beautiful women.
- Lots of great of friends and lots more people wanting to be your friend.

Being a real man is within your reach. When you follow the path of a real man, your life literally gets better every day.

I know because I've been walking the path for more than 12 years now and after having sex with more than 250 women, I recently got married to my sexy 22 year old girlfriend (she's 15 years younger than me) and I'm a role model for men all over the world via The Modern Man.

If Women Want a Real Man, Why Do Some of Them Hook Up

With Bad Boys?

The truth is, women really don't want a bad boy, but because there are usually no real men available, bad boys are often seen as the next best thing.

Why is a bad boy better than a nice guy to most women? In most cases, a "nice guy" will lack confidence and be nervous or anxious around people, so women end up feeling stronger than him, mentally and emotionally.

Then, when it comes to sex, she won't fully enjoy herself and open herself up to the guy because he's emotionally weaker than her. It just doesn't feel right to surrender her heart and mind to a weak guy.

However, in most cases, a "bad boy" will be very confident and dominant, so it will feel right for her to open up and surrender (body, heart and mind) to him during sex.

Women know the real thing when they see it and "bad boys" get dropped like hot potatoes when a woman realises she has finally met that rare breed...a real man.

If she can't find a real man, she might eventually fall pregnant to a bad boy and then break up with him later, or marry a nice guy and then divorce him later. However, real men are the type of men that women do not cheat on, do not want to leave and will never let go of.

Watch this video to understand more about why nice guys usually get rejected by women and what you should do instead if you want to be successful with women now and for the rest of your life...

As you will discover from the video above, there's nothing wrong with being a nice guy, but you also have to be sexually attractive to the woman. Being nice is not what triggers a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for a guy.

If you trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for you and you are ALSO nice to her, she will be happy to have finally met a good guy who turns her on. However, if you're just being nice, there usually won't be any reason for her to want anything more than a polite conversation with you.

Myths About How to Be a Real Man

[image: Myths and facts about being a real man]

It's time to bust some common myths about how to be a real man and free you from the brainwashing that you've likely been receiving via TV sitcoms, TV commercials, movies and music videos.

Myth 1: A real man is a man who has it all Cash, cars, and model looks

It's no wonder that most modern men think that women are attracted to guys who have it all because that's the sort of message they're bombarded with daily via TV commercials and billboard campaigns.

The guy who gets the girl is the guy who wears a certain brand of clothing, drives a certain make of car, wears a particular cologne or watch, styles his hair with a certain product, holidays in a certain location and so it goes on, right?

Well, it's a total myth fuelled by nothing more than the product manufacturers and their advertising think tanks. Real men know that looks, material possessions and an image are not the main attraction for women because none of those things can make her feel like a real woman.

Wearing a nice watch or styling your hair in a certain way is no replacement for confidence, masculinity and the many other traits of a real man.

The world has changed a lot since the days of the old Hollywood heart-throbs, where a man was shown to be able to sweep a woman off her feet with a tuxedo and a diamond necklace. Modern women really aren't that shallow and you've got to believe it.

In today's world, women are much more independent; they have their own careers and their own cash, so they can buy their own cars and shop for as much bling as they like.

Yet, because of their independence, they are also much tougher in terms and don't allow themselves to be lead around by anything other than a real man or a bad boy. They have to be that tough, because they have to be able to hold their own in everyday life.

The downside of this for women is that they lose the freedom to just be a woman and be girly. Yet, that doesn't stop a woman yearning for it though.

Believe me, no matter how intimidating a woman might appear on the outside, on the inside she's longing to be able to let down her guard and just be the natural woman she is; to be girly at times, to be emotional and to relax into your masculine direction.

When a woman meets a real man, she meets a man who has the masculine qualities that allow her to relax into being feminine. She meets a man with real mental and emotional strength that she can surrender to and be her real self in the bedroom. When it comes to the subject of how to be a real man, it's not something that you can fake or do superficially.

So, don't let any billboards or TV commercials tell you that all you need is the latest men's moisturiser or sports car. The truth is, all you need is you. As long as you demonstrate the mental and emotional qualities of a real man, it doesn't matter what material possessions you do or don't have.

You're a real man and that's that.

Myth 2: A real man is a metrosexual man

Once again, the notion that women are attracted to beautiful men who take great pride in their appearance is a total myth perpetuated by clothing and cosmetic manufacturers.

Sure, just as guys scan a room full of people to pick out the most attractive women, it's only natural that women should do the same to pick out the best-looking guys. But, and it's a big but, good-looks are not the be-all-and-end-all as far as women are concerned.

It's fine to make the most of your appearance, but if a guy lacks self-confidence and struggles to strike up an interesting conversation with her, or even worse, tries to attract her attention with a lame pick-up line, she's not going to be impressed by how well dressed or well-groomed he is, she's just going to see him as a social loser and want to get away from him.

Good looks can only get a guy so far; if he doesn't have the masculine qualities that make her feel like a woman, he's not going to hold her interest for long.

If you think women aren't going to be attracted to you because you don't have good looks,â□□ then youâ□□re missing the point. Likewise, if youâ□□re wasting a lot of time, effort and money into â□□perfectingâ□□ your appearance, then you're also missing the point.

Women want a man who can make them feel like a real woman (i.e. feminine, girly, free to be emotional). Itâ□□s inner character that shows what a manâ□□s made of, not outer appearance.

You can have a perfect gym body and still be virgin because women don't care about your body unless you have the more important qualities, such as confidence, masculinity, social intelligence and so on.

If you're a pretty boy who lacks confidence, you're also going to be lacking sex as well. You might be able to get laid with women who throw themselves at you (and let's face it, they're usually not that attractive), but as a guy, looks will not solve your problems with women.

Being a pretty boy is not how to be a real man. So, don't get sucked in by the advertising from cosmetics companies who are trying to sell women's products to men, by relabelling them as â□□men's moisturiserâ□□ and so on.

I remember seeing a Nivea commercial for â□□men's moisturiserâ□□ and it said that women will think you look â□□tiredâ□□ if you don't wear moisturiser. What a joke! Women don't care about how a guy looks unless he actually has the mental and emotional qualities they're looking for in a man.

Sure, women might point out the â□□good looking guysâ□□ but that doesn't mean those guys get laid or that they can keep that woman interested. Women aren't as shallow as TV commercials make them out to be, so don't get sucked in by that.

Myth 3: A real man is a â□□new manâ□□

Back in the 1990s, a new type of man was being promoted via TV because women had more of a voice...and men were listening. They talked about the â□□new man,â□□ which was an afterthought of the failed type of man called the S.N.A.G (Sensitive New Aged Guy).

With the S.N.A.G, women had said they wanted men to cry and be more sensitive, so men did it and they got dumped. Then, after millions of people got divorced or became so depressed that they started the Prozac (an anti-depressant) craze, women started to say that men shouldn't cry and they should be strong.

Yet, still high on their new sense of equality and voice in society, women went on to say that they wanted men to let women run the show too. They said, â□□Relationships should be 50/50. No man should be able to tell me what to do.â□□

It was a case of one confused woman after another, followed by men who were looking to impress women (and impress people by being politically correct) who said that, â□□Yes, relationships should be 50/50.â□□

It's no surprise to me that people around that time were consuming more anti-depressants than ever before. Sales went through the roof for pharmaceutical companies because men were pretending to be half-man and half-woman (a â□□New Manâ□□ or â□□50/50 Manâ□□ as they were being called) and women were trying to be half-man, half-woman.

It just isn't right and the unhappiness and divorce statistics from around that time reveal it as a mistake.

A â□□new manâ□□ was to be a man who played an equal role in a relationship, or put another way, a man who no longer played a traditional male role. The "new man" was touted as a man who shared responsibility for household chores; breaking away from the tradition of certain tasks being viewed as "men's work" or "women's work."

Yet, when a team of researchers studied the effects of men sharing the housework with women in marriage, they discovered that divorce rates went through the roof. "These days, I get so many messages from guys who desperately want help to save their relationships."

Despite doing everything a "new man" is meant to do, they're having less and less sex and their woman seems to have no respect for them anymore. The problem is, playing an "equal" role in a relationship takes away the all-important sexual dynamic that is needed to keep the sexual spark alive between a man and a woman.

Just because women now work and they can speak their mind on TV or in pop songs, it doesn't mean that what they say is now the way things should go.

In most cases, women don't say what they really want from men because it would be embarrassing for them.

Why? If you don't know the answer to that, then you definitely have a lot more to learn about women and how to be a real man. The fact is, what women say they want in public and what they do behind closed doors or away from prying eyes are two, completely different things.

When you get rid of the doubt and insecurities that have been brainwashed into your mind by advertising and marketing campaigns and you instead turn your attention to developing and living your true self as a man, you're going to learn that women really do want you.

When a woman is around a real man, she senses his supreme sexual confidence and naturally feels the desire to surrender to him sexually.

Instinctively, she knows that she has found a rare man amongst so many guys who simply lack the wisdom and awareness of how to be a real man.

Where to Find Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Anyone can tell you where to find women; that's the easy part.

For example, you can meet and pick up women in places like a:

- Bar or nightclub.
- A park during the day or on the weekend.
- Coffee shop.
- Speed dating event.
- House party.

Here's the thing though...

Being in the same place as women isn't quite the same as meeting and then having sex with those women, is it?

[image: Where to find a woman to date]

If you want to meet and have sex with women, it's not about knowing where to go, but what to do when you get there that is important.

For example: If you're going out to meet women, you're going to need to have the confidence to approach them...

Additionally, when you approach women, you're going to need to know how to attract them...

As

As you will discover from watching the videos above, women will be happy and excited to meet you if you can approach and trigger their feelings of sexual attraction.

If you're planning on going out to meet women and hoping to be liked because you're such a nice guy, then you will be shocked to find that most women reject you. Why? Watch this video to understand...

When you find a woman that you like, it's critically important that you focus on triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you.

These days, almost all women select a man based on how much sexual attraction he makes her feel, not how nice he is. Why? Unlike in the past, today's women don't have to settle down with the first nice, gentlemanly man that they find who has the ability to support them.

Today's women can have sex before marriage, can make their own money and can break up with guys who aren't able to make them feel the type of respect, love and attraction that they want to feel for a guy when in a relationship.

Knowing What to Say

A lot of the guys who are interested in finding a woman to date don't really know what they are going to say to the women they meet.

Typically, a guy will have a few things to say to get a conversation going, but he will then run out of things to say or make one of the following conversation mistakes that turn the woman off...

As you will discover from the video above, to have attractive conversations with women, you need to believe in yourself and not try so hard to impress women.

When you can allow your natural charisma to shine through during a conversation with a woman, she will automatically feel attracted and drawn to you. However, if you put on a social person (e.g. acting like more of a nice guy than you actually are), women will sense it and feel turned off by you.

Approaching and Attracting Women

Most guys simply don't know how to approach and attract women because it's not something that we're taught in school or by our father (in most cases).

Instead, most modern men look to TV sitcoms and movies for the answers, but find that they only end up feeling more afraid and insecure. Why? The scenes in TV sitcoms and movies are designed to entertain people by being dramatic, shocking and original.

The producers of TV shows and movies ensure that the guys who approach women usually end up getting slapped, having a drink tipped over their head or being humiliated in one way or another.

[image: Woman slapping a man for giving her a compliment]

Women are often portrayed as being mean and unapproachable because that is entertaining for women to watch. They think, â"Wow, she's so mean. I'm not like that at all. This is funny!â"

Approaching, attracting and picking up women correctly involves many "moving parts" including:

- Reading the signals that let you know a woman is open to being approached.
- Recognizing when a woman wants to be approached by you specifically.
- Confidently engaging her in a natural, free-flowing conversation.
- Being able to keep that conversation going and keep it interesting.
- Using charismatic charm to make her feel exciting and desirable emotions.
- Flirting in a fun and appropriate way to make her feel relaxed in your company.
- Naturally escalating a conversation into a phone number, a kiss, a date, or sex.

If you don't know how to do that, then you need to learn how to do it, otherwise your success with women will be mostly full of rejection and confusion about why women don't seem to like you or want to be with you.

Attracting Women by Being More Alpha

Most guys are afraid of being an alpha male because they assume that it means to be an arrogant, selfish, mean, bossy jerk who acts like the top dog all the time.

That's not what an alpha male is.

Being an alpha male is simple and it essentially comes down to you being more confident in who you are and what you've got to offer women and the world. At The Modern Man, we teach guys how to be good guy alpha males, so if you're worried that being an alpha male is about being a bad boy, stop worrying.

The fact is that women are more attracted to alpha males than any other type of guy, so if you want to effortlessly attract women, you need to embrace your inner alpha male and let it come through via your vibe, body language, attitude, behavior, conversation style and actions.

Alpha male traits and qualities generates a deep sexual attraction inside of a woman that she feels powerless to resist.

Alpha males are strong men who have what it takes to be a protector as well as a provider, but it's not about the type of strength that is demonstrated through bulging biceps and a rippling six-pack; it's about inner strength that is demonstrated via their strength of character.

Some alpha male qualities include:

1. Confidence

True self-confidence is a relaxed, inner confidence that is very different to the type of confidence that a man might display through being loud or behaving outrageously.

True confidence doesn't need to be displayed outwardly as aggression or domineering behavior. Instead, it's about being comfortable and relaxed just being yourself anytime, anyplace, anywhere.

2. Masculinity

The most important part of a man's masculinity has to do with his "inner" masculinity (e.g. being confident, having purpose in life, being driven, assertive, determined, loving, balanced, forward-moving, etc).

It's a common misconception that manly men need to enter into chest-beating types of behavior to demonstrate their superiority over other men. Yet, none of that impresses women at all...especially when women notice that men are doing it to try to impress women.

Women are impressed by men who have the mental and emotional strength to be natural leaders and to earn the respect of other alpha males, without having to resort to violence or overly-aggressive behavior.

3. Social intelligence

Men with social intelligence are men who have communication skills that allow them to connect with the people they meet, make friends and command respect.

A man's ability to get on with and interact with other people is a big part of his ability to be a protector and provider. In the far-distant past, a man living in isolation was a man who didn't have any kind of social network to help him survive when times were tough.

Remember: For most of human history, there were no supermarkets, police, etc, so it makes total sense that women are instinctively attracted to guys who can get along well with others. When times were tough, he would be able to rely on friends and allies to help him survive.

For most of human history, a man being a loner and not being able to get along with others meant that breeding with him would be riskier than breeding with a guy who had many friends or who had the respect of other men.

The world has changed and nervous, wimpy guys can now buy food from a supermarket, but the social intelligence of an alpha male is still just as instinctively attractive to a woman as it ever was.

A man who doesn't have true confidence and who lacks mental and emotional masculinity, is usually a man who often feels uncomfortable in social situations and generally feels shy and anxious around women.

Finding Women to Have Sex With

[image: Finding women to have sex with]

A lot of guys don't realize how easy the majority of women are to pick up and have sex with.

Women go around acting like they have tremendously high standards when it comes to men, but most of them are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a man than most guys realize.

If you want to find women to have sex with, you don't have to look very far at all. Just approach women that you like, trigger their feelings of sexual attraction and either kiss and have sex on the first night or get her number and hook up with her on the first date.

According to USA study, 55% of couples admitted to having sex on their first date. A European study found that 70% of women admitted to having had experienced a one night stand before.

In other words, most women will have sex with you pretty quickly these days. As long as you know how to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for you, it's pretty simple to get laid and get a girlfriend these days.

Why Am I Afraid to Approach Women?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're afraid to approach women, you most-likely:

1. Think that women don't want to be approached, so you're worried that they'll see you as a nuisance, rather than seeing it as an awesome opportunity to meet a great guy like you.
2. Don't know how to attract women during an interaction, so you're worried that they might not like you and will then reject you.
3. Aren't sure if you're going to be able to keep the conversation going and keep it interesting long enough to make a connection and get to the next level of a phone number, kiss or sex.

Of course, it could also be that you simply don't know how to feel confident before approaching women. If that's the case for you, I recommend that you watch this video...

As you will discover from the video above, you have to take control of how you use your mind. You can either use it against you and feel nervous and afraid of approaching women, or use it for your benefit and feel confident and excited about approaching women.

It's Not Just You: Most Guys Are Afraid to Approach These Days

[image: Why am I scared of approaching women?]

Over the years, a lot of guys have asked me, "Dan, why am I afraid to approach women?" or "How can I get over my fear of approaching women?" and I've always been able to answer them clearly because I too used to be afraid of approaching women.

Growing up, I didn't have any good male role models who could show me how to be confident around women. My father is a nice guy (and is still happily married to my mother), but that doesn't mean he had or has the ability to teach me or anyone else how to be confident, especially around women.

So, what did I do? I did what most modern men do and looked to TV, movies and even the lyrics of songs for the answers on how to be confident with women.

Yet, instead of teaching me how to be a confident guy who could easily walk up to women and talk to them without fear or hesitation, the media that I was consuming was making me even more afraid of women than I was before.

The more music videos I saw (especially those with confident women who would push men around or act like they didn't even need a man), the more insecure I became and the more afraid I felt of approaching women.

Over time, I become more and more afraid to approach women because according to what I was seeing in the media, they didn't even need a man. The media was telling me that I had to be tall, good looking, rich, have a six pack, wear the latest fashions, have a cool hairstyle and drive an expensive car...and THEN I would be good enough for women.

Back then, I didn't know that the media was feeding me a bunch of bullshit. I fell for it hook, line and sinker until I realized the real reason why guys get rejected by women...

As you will discover from the video above, guys make up all sorts of excuses as to why they believe women are rejecting them. Yet, it comes down to one, simple thing: His lack of ability to trigger feelings of attraction inside of a woman when he meets her.

The Crazy World Depicted in Movies and TV Dramas

Have you ever seen something like this in a movie or TV drama show?

A guy approaches a woman he finds attractive, she looks him up and down and either flat out rejects him in front of everyone (possibly even humiliating him), ignores him or tells him to go away. Hurt and embarrassed, he walks away and his friends (who are also clueless with women) sympathize with him.

Then, one of the guys will come up with an idea on how to get her attention and finally get a chance with her. Eventually, after saving the girl from disaster, saving the world or saving the day in some way, the girl will then like the hopeless guy and they will live happily ever after.

How many times have you seen that type of scenario play out on a TV show or at the movies?

What happens for a lot of guys is that they see that stuff in movies and on TV and they think that to approach and pick up a woman, he is going to have to do something AMAZING to really impress her. Yet, it's actually a lot more simple than that...

As you will see from the video above, it's actually a lot easier to impress women than most guys realize.

Most guys try really hard to impress women because they assume that women are so much more valuable than they are.

Yet, here's the thing...

A woman only has as much dating value as you place on her. If you think she is a 10/10 and you're a 6/10, then you're probably going to feel unworthy around her.

However, if you think that she is a 10/10 and you are too, then you're going to feel confident, comfortable and at ease around her.

Getting Real

If you believe that women are bitches and will rudely reject you if you approach them, then you're naturally going to feel nervous, afraid and hesitant to approach women.

After all, who wants to be rejected and humiliated like the guys in movies or music videos who are slapped (or who have drinks tipped over their head) in front of everyone? Who wants to be laughed at by women and told to, "Go away!" when they approach?

No one.

Yet, here's thing...

In real life, most women are open to being approached as long as the guy is confident, easy-going and friendly. If you are nervous and shy and fidget or talk really fast, women will reject your attempts to Speak with them.

If you're not confident (and thus not attractive), women don't want to give you the wrong idea by being nice to you and helping to keep the conversation going. Instead, they just reject you and hope that you leave and go bother some other girl.

Have Your Male Role Models Taught You to Be Afraid of Women?

The truth is, most guys can't teach you how to be confident around attractive women because most guys are afraid to approach women and they simply pass on their insecurities to other guys.

For example: Insecure guys tell other guys, "Women are all bitches" or "Women only want to be approached by tall, good looking rich guys" or "If you don't have muscles, women will reject you" and other garbage like that.

They usually reinforce what they are saying by telling stories about their failed attempts at approaching women.

"Oh, one time I approached a few girls at a bar and they actually told me to go away. I know I'm not good looking, but why do they have to be so mean?"

Yet, what guys like don't realize is that, in 95% of cases, the women were rejecting him because of his lack of ability to trigger their feelings of attraction (e.g. by being confident, charismatic, funny, etc) not because women are mean and cold like they're made out to be in the movies.

Are You an Alpha Male?

Whether we men like it or not, women are most attracted to guys who display alpha male traits and behaviors.

Why? A woman's attraction to a man is directly linked to his survival traits. Although a lower ranking male (e.g. a nervous, shy guy) might be able to survive, thrive and prosper in this world, a woman just doesn't feel as safe and secure with him.

As you may have noticed, human beings are usually just a hurricane away from being forced back into basic survival. It is because of threats like that and the fact that it's challenging and difficult to survive, thrive and prosper in today's world that women are still instinctively attracted to men who display alpha male traits.

A nervous, shy guy is ranked as a lower-ranking male and will usually be treated with disdain by women because they don't want to have to take care of him and protect him from the world.

Instinctively, women seek to find a guy who is stronger than them and who will remain strong in the face of adversity or challenge, so that she can stick to being girly instead of having to put on a masculine persona and think, behave and act like a man.

To trigger a woman's feelings of attraction for alpha male traits, you do not have to be the most alpha guy in the world. You simply have to display some of the traits when you interact with her. Some women want a guy who is very alpha, but most are happy with a guy who is just a bit alpha.

When a guy asks me, "Dan, why am I afraid to approach women?" it's pretty much always because he is thinking (and thus behaving) like a lower-ranking male. For example: He will think that he isn't worthy for the women he is approaching.

An alpha male knows that he is good enough. How? His confidence and alpha male traits consistently makes women that he meets feel attracted to him, so he no longer has to get himself in the mood to approach or try hard to remain confident when talking to a woman.

An alpha male simply thinks in a way that makes him feel confident and at ease around women. His confidence is intoxicating to women and they love being around him.

Problems That a Lower-Ranking Male Experiences

[image: The life of a lower ranking male]

Lower ranking males naturally have a difficult time attracting women (because women are turned off by their lack of confidence and alpha male traits) and dealing with confident, challenging people.

Many guys unknowingly develop serious anxiety and social fears as a result of thinking like a lower-ranking male, that they go on to poison their body with pharmaceutical drugs (e.g. Xanax, Klonopin, Valium, Ativan, Prozac, etc) that claim to "cure anxiety."

Pharmaceutical drugs do not cure anxiety, they simply dull your brain and make you less aware of what is going on around you.

Curing anxiety simply involves changing how you think. I've done it (I used to suffer from social anxiety) and so can you.

So, let's have a look at some of the problems a lower-ranking male will experience.

He will often:

1. Lack confidence and have low self-esteem

Guys with low self-esteem don't believe they deserve to have a beautiful woman. They might daydream about it, but when in front of a beautiful woman, they freeze up and can't stop themselves from feeling unworthy.

This belief becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy because no woman wants to constantly be telling her man that he is good enough for her, that he deserves to be with her and that he can achieve great things in life. She wants him to already have that type of confidence and self-belief.

Lack emotional strength

Since he lacks confidence and has low self-esteem, a lower-ranking male will often buckle under the pressure that a beautiful woman puts him through during an interaction (e.g. she plays hard to get, stops contributing to the conversation to test his confidence, etc).

After getting rejected again and again, he wonders to himself, "Why can't I find a nice girl?" because most women he speaks to seem to be rude or cold towards him.

He just doesn't realize that they are simply testing to see how confident he is. When he fails the test and the woman feels stronger than him, she will usually say something like, "Umm, sorry...I have a boyfriend" or, "I have to go to the bathroom" after which she won't come back to talk to him again.

3. Feel shy and nervous around attractive women

A guy who is shy might think he is being â€œcuteâ€ or â€œsweetâ€ by appearing vulnerable like a loveable loser in a movie, but in real life, women just don't like it. His shyness puts all the pressure on the woman to manage the conversation and keep it going. Trying to get a guy to open up can really be exhausting for a woman and when she realizes that she's just not feeling any attraction for him (because he's not confident), she will quickly lose interest in talking to him.

4. Have no idea how to make a woman feel like a real woman

A woman wants to be seduced by a man, from the moment that they make eye contact to when he finally undresses her in the bedroom and slides his dick inside of her. True seduction is not about using tacky seduction tricks or being sleazy. Instead, it's about making her feel like a woman wants to feel when in the presence of man she likes.

To make a woman feel like a real woman, you've got to allow her to be feminine, girly and emotional and you will only be able to do that if you truly understand how to think, behave and act like a masculine man.

If you're too neutral (i.e. neither very masculine or very feminine, but somewhere in between) with a woman, she won't be able to relax into her feminine role. You've got to embrace your masculinity and be the man.

If you're not willing to do that, most of the beautiful, feminine women that you meet won't feel enough attraction to justify having sex with you or becoming your girlfriend.

5. Believe that modern women must be shallow and only want looks, money and power from men

Since most guys pay way too much attention to what they get told by magazines, TV advertising, sitcoms and movies, they begin to believe that women are only interested in what clothes or cologne a guy wears, how he looks, what car he drives, the amount of money he has or by power that he wields in society.

So, if he isn't wearing his best shirt or hasn't styled his hair perfectly, he will feel afraid to approach women in fear of being rejected for his imperfect appearance. He will forget the fact that he always sees all sorts of â€œweird-lookingâ€ guys with beautiful women, who do not look like the male models from TV commercials or magazine ads.

Instead of accepting that as part of this reality, he will stick to believing that women are shallow and that they expect absolute male model perfection from guys. The longer you believe that kind of crap, the more of your life will waste away in unnecessary insecurity and fear.

Believe that all the good women are taken

Since most guys don't actively approach new women outside of the social circle they know, they eventually come to the conclusion that all the good women are taken.

After all, it's easier to say that there's no good women left to approach than to admit to themselves (and others) that they are afraid to approach the women they find attractive.

If a guy does work up the confidence to approach a woman that he finds attractive, but doesn't know how to make her feel attracted to him, he will come to the conclusion that none of the available women are interested in him.

It sucks to think like that. I know because I used to be like that. I used wonder, “Why can't I find a nice girl who will love me for who I am now? What is so wrong with me that girls aren't interested in me?”

I didn't realize how simple the problem was: I was talking to women, but I wasn't doing enough to trigger their feelings of attraction for me. In most cases, I was just being a typical nice guy and hoping to be liked for how good of a guy I was.

I didn't know that being nice wasn't enough to get a woman interested in starting a sexual relationship with me...

As you will discover from the video above, there's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but you also have to make her feel attracted to you. You have to start with attraction and everything else flows on naturally after that.

Why Can't I Find a Nice Girl?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Over the years, many guys have posted up comments asking me things like, “Dan, why can't I find a nice girl?” or “Why are all of the nice women that I like or want to have sex with, already taken or not looking for a boyfriend?”

Yet, is that actually true? Has he been unable to find a nice girl because “nice girls” don't exist, are all taken or are not looking for a boyfriend right now?

No.

This is the real reason why guys fail to find a nice girl...

As you will discover from the video above, nice girls will like you if you are able to trigger their feelings of sexual attraction for you.

For most women, it's not enough that you're a good guy with good intentions. They also want to feel sexually attracted to you. Watch this video to understand why...

Girls will appreciate the fact that you're a good guy with good intentions ONLY if you begin by making them feel sexually attracted and turned on by you.

Unlike in the past where a woman had to save her virginity for marriage and find herself a nice gentleman who could support her, today's women can have sex before marriage and can make their own money to support themselves.

As a result, girls now select guys based on how much sexual attraction he makes her feel and if he also happens to be a good guy, she sees that as a bonus. However, being a good guy is not enough for today's woman. You've got to start by turning her on.

Do You Approach Enough Women?

[image: Do you approach enough women?]

After helping guys improve their success with women for more than nine years now, I can tell you that most guys just don't approach enough women to give themselves a chance to meet a nice girl who is compatible with them and also happens to be single.

In most cases, a single guy will approach approximately 10 new women per year that he likes and wants to have as a girlfriend. Yet, since most guys don't know how to attract women during a conversation, the “nice girls” end up behaving rudely, cold or just say that they're not looking for a boyfriend right now.

If a single guy does approach a lot of women, but still can't get results then he is simply doing it the wrong way. His lack of results is not due to a shortage of nice girls in the world, it is because he is turning women off during the interactions he has with them.

For example:

1. Interacting with women in a nervous way

Nervousness is an instant turn off for women because they are attracted to the strength in men and turned off by the weakness. If a guy shows obvious signs of nervousness, it makes it difficult for a woman to feel enough attraction for him to want to take things further.

2. Asking too many questions without giving enough of himself during the conversation

Many guys find that they run out of things to say or can't keep a conversation going and keep it interesting when talking to a woman they like.

This happens when a guy closes up and doesn't say what he really wants to say.

Instead of being real and saying whatever he feels like, he will ask the woman a lot of boring questions (e.g. "What do you do for a living? How long have you worked there? Where do you live?") or just talk in a very plain and straightforward manner.

3. Not showing sexual interest in the woman

Many guys feel that showing sexual interest in a woman is "sleazy" or "wrong."

Yet, it's actually an essential part of making a woman feel comfortable to open herself up to being seduced into a sexual relationship. If a guy focuses on keeping the conversation very polite and "friendly" instead of interesting and sexual, then she will simply see him as a friendly nice guy and have little or no sexual interest in him.

Showing sexual interest in a woman does not have to be sleazy. Yes, some guys are sleazy, but what we teach here at The Modern Man is how to be successful with women while also maintaining your reputation as a good, respected guy.

When you show sexual interest in a woman the right way, she sees you as charming, not sleazy.

4. Places himself below women in terms of value

Many single guys who can't get themselves a nice girl are turning women off by behaving as though the woman would almost be doing him a FAVOR by going out with him. This is not what a woman wants to feel.

Women are naturally attracted to guys who believe in themselves and their value to women. A woman doesn't want to feel like she'd be doing you a huge favor by being your woman.

A woman wants to snag herself a guy who could have other women if he wanted to, but is choosing to be with her. That is what makes her feel special and as though she has a guy who is a "catch."

Are You Giving Yourself Enough Chances to Find a Nice Girl?

[image: At home alone again]

How many new women do you actually speak to every week? Is most of your free time on Friday or Saturday night spent hanging out with one or two friends, or even alone?

If you do go out to meet women on those nights, do you make the most of that time, or do you usually just stand around looking at women?

Often, a single guy will be hanging out with some friends in bar or club, at the gym or at the mall or any other place where women hang out and ask in a "pity me" sort of way, "Why can't I find a nice girl? Why is it so hard to meet women?"

Yet, many single women are walking past him or are within 10-20 meters of where he is. All he has to do is walk over and say hello and check whether or not he and the woman are compatible and whether there is a spark of interest from her.

A single guy like this has either not accepted that it is his role as a man to approach and talk to women (i.e. it's not a woman's role to go around approaching men to find herself a boyfriend.

She waits to be approached by a confident man who knows how to guide her through a sexual courtship. That way, she can take on the role of the woman and relax into the masculine direction of the man), or he has tried approaching women, failed miserably and is now too afraid to try it again.

When you are in a public place (e.g. a mall, city street, food court), around 35% of the women will be single and hoping to meet a guy. In a bar, the amount of single women in the venue is usually around 50%. However, that doesn't mean you can't approach and say hello to any women just because a certain percentage of them aren't on the lookout for a man.

There is no harm in going over to say hello, as long as you follow the approach that we teach here at The Modern Man. That is: Focus on being social and having a quick chat with her, rather than trying to pick her up.

Women almost always respond well to that approach because it isn't about picking them up, but just having an easy-going chat and seeing if there is a spark between you both.

Not every approach that you or any man makes will be a pick up, so you should never expect to pick up every woman you meet.

That is impossible for any man on this planet because no man is compatible with every woman he meets and if he has standards, he's not going to want every woman he meets either. When you approach a woman, you are simply saying hello and seeing how it goes.

Having that attitude is so much more fun and stress free for you and the women you meet.

Most women know that they aren't compatible with every man they meet, yet most men go around thinking that if they show interest in a woman and she doesn't want sex or a relationship, then they've been REJECTED. It's not a horrible rejection, it's just a case of meeting someone that you're not fully compatible with right now.

Yes, some women that you meet will already have a boyfriend, fiancé or husband, that doesn't mean you can't walk over to check for yourself.

It's not your fault if she is already taken and she won't be angry that you approached if you do so in a confident, relaxed and easy going way.

If she is like most women, she will be flattered by the attention and will say, "Thanks, but I have a boyfriend." There's nothing wrong with that; it doesn't mean you've been rejected. It's completely normal and natural.

As for the single women who aren't interested in you, that's no big deal either. Why? No man is compatible with every woman he meets.

Confident guys who are successful with women know that and simply talk to enough attractive women until they find the ones who are compatible with them.

Feeling pitiful and asking yourself, "Why can't I find a nice girl?" is simply an excuse and you know it. There are women everywhere you look; at the mall, at the gym, in the library, at the supermarket, in nightclubs, yoga classes, cooking classes, the list goes on and on.

You have to approach and meet them. You can't sit around hoping that your perfect woman will approach you or magically appear in your life. How long have you been waiting so far?

Have you accepted women who weren't perfect for you before, just so you didn't have to face up to your fears and approach women that you're actually attracted to and really want?

The truth is that there are millions of nice girls in this world and you just have to be man enough to walk over, say hello and give yourself a chance to meet them.

If you go through life expecting that every woman you meet will be compatible with you, then you're in for a sad, frustrating time.

What's Stopping You From Finding a Nice Girl?

[image: What's stopping you from finding a nice girl?]

Finding yourself a nice girl has a lot to do with you giving yourself the opportunity to meet her and get to know her.

You can't find a nice girl by looking at women all day like they are pictures on the internet, or extras in a TV show. You have to walk over and talk to girls that you find attractive.

Who knows, the girl that walked past you the other day could have been the perfect woman for you. Yet, you lacked the confidence (or know how) to approach to her, so the opportunity slipped through your fingers.

Single guys who wonder to themselves, â€œWhy can't I find a nice girl?â€œ are often making one of more of the following mistakes in their quest to find that one special girl:

1. He doesn't go out enough

Some guys spend most of their spare time sitting at home and watching TV, playing computer games or browsing social media and other random sites that aren't going to give them the confidence and skills to attract and pick up a nice girl of their own.

If you want find a nice girl for yourself, you've got to be prepared to get out there and meet some single women, even if it means attending a speed dating event.

2. He dulls his sexual energy with excessive masturbation

Each man goes through a natural cycle of building up sexual energy and then releasing it through sex or masturbation. The problem for a lot of modern men is that they have such easy access to amazing porn that they get sucked into it every week.

Instead of using the built up sexual energy to approach and flirt with real women, they simply jerk it out into a tissue a few times a week. Then, they sit around wondering why it's so hard to find a girl.

Instead of jerking off, a guy like that needs to get horny and then use that desire to be courageous enough to approach and talk to women he finds attractive.

If he approaches correctly, he will get himself a girlfriend and some real sex. If he approaches incorrectly, he will get rejected and fall back to the safety blanket of porn.

3. He is too shy and self conscious around women he likes

Although a little shyness can be somewhat endearing to women, a guy who is afraid to look a woman in the eyes is not attractive to almost every woman on this planet.

Guys who are self-conscious around a woman appear insecure, clumsy and hopeless. The woman gets the sense that she would be more like a mother or big sister to him, which is not a turn on. She also doesn't want to feel responsible for making him feel that nervous and self-conscious around her, so she will try to end the interaction as quickly as possible.

If she is like 99% of women, she will be attracted to the mental and emotional strength of a man and turned off by his weakness. Appearing emotionally weak by being shy or self-conscious is a surefire way of ensuring that girls (nice or not) simply won't be interested in you.

He doesn't know how to attract women when he approaches them

Approaching women sounds simple, right? Walk over, start a conversation and that's it, right? Wrong.

Approaching and successfully picking up women requires that you know how to actively trigger a woman's feelings of attraction for you during an interaction. If you don't have that particular skill, you need to learn it and then put it to use.

If you simply approach women and hope that they like you enough to give you a chance, you will be rejected by the majority of women you approach. However, if you approach and trigger the woman's feelings of sexual attraction, you will successfully pick up the majority of women you approach.

He usually can't keep a conversation going and keep it interesting when talking to an attractive woman

The ability to engage a woman and make her feel attraction for you during conversation is absolutely essential if you want to find yourself a nice girl. It doesn't matter if she naughty, nice or neutral; if you can't make her feel desirable emotions during conversation, she isn't going to be very interested in you.

He doesn't know how to flirt

If sex is the main course, then flirting is the hors d'oeuvres (appetizer) of dating. You'd be surprised at how many guys don't use flirting when they are trying to attract a woman.

When I observe a guy walking over to a woman for the first time, I can tell within seconds if he understands how to talk to women by assessing whether he is using flirting body language and behavior. You can't skip flirting because you want to be nice or you think it's unimportant.

Flirting is essential for success with women when you meet them and when you're 20 years into a relationship. It is always relevant and necessary when interacting with women—whom you want to have sex with or maintain a happy relationship with.

He doesn't take the lead

A sexual courtship with a woman is like a dance and just like with—dancing, it is the man who leads the woman.

Guys who sit around waiting for a—woman to lead them through a sexual courtship are making the classic mistake of making her feel like —the man—in the situation.

A woman doesn't want to feel like she's the one —wearing the pants,— she wants a guy who can lead and make her feel like a real woman. She wants to relax into the masculine direction of a man and be allowed to feel feminine and girly the entire way. She doesn't want to have to lead a—guy or—mother him through any—process in life.

He—places attractive women above himself—

A weak man is about as appealing to woman as a wrinkled, old woman is to a man. Women simply don't want to feel like they're the dominant ones in the interaction or relationship. Women definitely behave as though they want to be the dominant ones, but that is just a test to see how manly you are.

If you bow down to women who test your masculinity, they will not feel sexually attracted to you. Being submissive around women not only makes bad boy want to pick on you (or pick up your woman right in front of you), but it makes women dump you, cheat on you or reject you the first time you speak to them.

When you watch music videos, you will see women being dominant and the male actors being submissive in response, but it's just a music video. The same goes for TV commercials that portray women as being dominant over men and men having to be —good little boys—if they want to get some sex from their wife. It just doesn't work that way in the real world.

Fact: Most Women Are Nice Girls

Movies and television are designed to amuse and entertain so everything we see is exaggerated and misrepresented.

Women are often made to appear as spiteful, selfish, flaky, cold and patronizing bitches and men are portrayed as weak, sniveling wimps. Why? The entire industry is designed to have its viewers coming back for more, week after week, so relationships between men and women are portrayed as anything other than normal and healthy.

Characters are often strange or extreme and interactions between people are usually full of drama, which is interesting for most people to watch.

In the real world, you will find that most women are “nice girls.” Before I developed myself into a confident, charismatic guy, I too thought that women were mean and cold like they are portrayed in the movies.

Yet, then I realized that most women I met simply weren't showing me their —nice side—because I was coming across as nervous and insecure, while also trying to pick them up. So, they were trying to ensure that I didn't get the wrong idea and think that I had a chance with them.

The Good News

Fortunately, you are no longer alone in your quest to find yourself a nice girl.

I am ready to help you instantly eliminate all of the insecurities and fears that TV commercials, TV sitcoms and movies have given you about women. I will transform you into a confident, charismatic guy who has his choice with women.

When you learn from me, asking yourself, â€œWhy can't I find a nice girl?â€ will quickly become a thing of the past.

Do Women Look at Men's Shoes?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Women place much less importance on a guy's shoes if he is able to attract her in other ways.

For example: If a guy is confident, charismatic and interesting to talk to, a woman isn't going to reject him because his shoes aren't an expensive brand.

On the other hand, if a guy is nervous and puts on a fake persona (e.g. acts like a much nicer guy than he is, therefore suppressing his natural charisma and authentic personality) and isn't interesting to talk to, a woman will start to look for reasons why she doesn't like him.

Interestingly enough, he could be wearing the best, most expensive shoes and the woman still wouldn't like him. Why? Simple: She isn't feeling attracted to his personality and therefore looks at the rest of him in a negative light.

However, when a woman does feel attracted to a guy's personality and confidence, she then looks at the rest of him in a more positive light.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction works for a man and how you can make her want you, even if you're not wearing great shoes when you meet her...

As you will discover from the video above, the majority of women are much more attracted to a guy's inner qualities and place less importance on superficial things like looks or fashion sense.

Some women do place a lot of importance on a guy's fashion sense and appearance, but those women are the minority. Most women are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a guy than most men will ever realize.

Trying to Attract Women With Superficial Traits

When a guy doesn't know how to attract women with his inner qualities (e.g. confidence, charisma, social intelligence, masculinity, etc), he will often come to the conclusion that his outer qualities (e.g. looks, fashion sense, money, etc) are not good enough for women.

He may ask himself questions like:

- Do women judge men on their looks?
- Do women care what cologne a guy is wearing?
- Are women interested in money and power?
- Do women look at men's shoes?

The answer to the above questions is both yes and no.

There is a commonly used cliché that sums it all up, because it is both true and false at the same time. Let me explain; the cliché I'm talking about is: It's not what you look like, but what's inside that counts.

Why is this both true and false?

The truth is that everything about you matters, including your outward appearance and even your shoes, but it is the whole person that a woman looks at when she is determining whether she wants to get to know a guy or not.

In the end, whatâs inside (i.e. the guy's personality, confidence and outlook on life) is what counts the most. If a woman meets a guy who is wearing âbad shoes,â but he also happens to be confident, masculine and gets along well with her and others, she will overlook the shoes and focus on his other attractive qualities.

She will see his lack of fashion expertize as being cute and will secretly plan to convince him to buy better shoes after she's had sex with him or officially becomes his girlfriend.

Don't Listen to Gay Men: They Are Looking at Things From Another Perspective

[image: Queer Eye For the Straight Guy]

Many years ago, these gay guys confused the shit out of millions of modern men and helped create the Metrosexual. Gay influence on heterosexual culture still exists today and there are always new, gay TV personalities who pop up and try to convince straight men to care more about their appearance.

These days, there are so many gay men on TV that many guys get negatively influenced by them.

I'm not saying that there's anything wrong with gay guys, but if you want to be successful with women, don't listen to their advice about what is attractive to women. By listening to the fashion advice of a gay guy, you will end up thinking like him and worrying too much about your appearance.

A gay guy likes acting like a girl and spending loads of time (and money) on his outward appearance because that's what he uses to attract other gay men.

Straight men know that the most attractive thing to women is a man's confidence and masculinity (i.e. how he thinks, behaves and takes action in life and around her).

[image: Straight men who are successful with women without having to wear amazing shoes or the most expensive fashions]

There's nothing wrong with presenting yourself well by wearing good clothes or shoes, but the men that I'm friends with don't worry about their appearance like a girl (or a gay guy) and they are ridiculously successful with women. They never feel nervous, insecure or unworthy of a beautiful woman if they're not wearing amazing shoes.

They simply focus on making the woman feel attracted to their confidence, masculinity, charisma and charm and then they have sex with her. I've never heard one of them obsess over shoes, but they wear decent shoes.

Honestly, I don't know what brand of shoes they wear, how much they cost, etc, because I've never bothered to pay enough attention to that to ask. It really isn't that important.

If you listen to the gay âmakeoverâ presenters on TV, they will tell you that a man should wear a certain color shirt to be considered sexy. Often, in their gay style of thinking, they'll even say, âIt takes a real man to wear pink.â

For the record: You don't have to wear any type of thing to be a real man. Being a real men is about who you are on the inside.

Gay guys will also tell you that you âneedâ to wear a certain type of cologne and should have x amount of shoes because women won't like you if you only have 3 pairs of shoes. Yet, shoes are not the answer to success with women. It's silly to think they are.

A guy can wear all the "latest fashions" in shoes, but still be single and unattractive to women because he lacks confidence in himself. At the same time, a can be guy wearing a pair of well worn trainers, or even beach thongs, and he will be able to pick up a beautiful woman.

Although women will consider everything about a man, they are attracted to a lot more than a man's shoes or outward appearance. Heck, I've slept with more than 250 women and many of the times I was wearing runners/trainers or beach thongs.

Women like me because I'm confident and masculine in my behavior, vibe and in the actions I take. Of course, that doesn't mean I dress like a slob or don't care at all about how I present myself. I make sure that I present myself fairly well and then attract the woman with my personality and then have sex with her.

These days, a lot of men have been brainwashed by the media into thinking that they need to look neat, clean, fresh, young and fashionable to attract women. It's a load of crap.

Watch this video to understand the real reason why guys get rejected by women, even if they have amazing shoes...

As you will discover from the video above, a guy can make up all the excuses he wants (e.g. "Women only want guys with nice shoes" or "Women only want tall guys" etc), but the real reason why he is getting rejected is that he doesn't even know how to attract women with his personality and confidence.

He's trying to get women to like him enough based on his outer qualities. Yes, that does work for some women (usually unattractive or drunk women), but the majority of women place more important on a guy's inner qualities than anything else about him.

What Qualities About a Guy Will Turn a Woman Off?

At the end of the day, a woman will either be attracted to you because you display certain personality traits and behaviors around her, or she will be turned off because you don't.

No matter how good you look on the outside, if you are lacking on the inside, you will not be able to make a woman feel a lasting attraction for you. You can wear the nicest shoes in the world, but if you lack confidence or behave in other unattractive ways, then she won't feel sexual attraction for you and thus won't care what shoes you are wearing.

Some of the male qualities that women turn women off are:

1. A lack of confidence

A guy who lacks confidence in his attractiveness to women will come across as being insecure and weak (mentally and emotionally) to women.

When he tries to approach a woman, his insecurity will manifest itself as nervous behavior, which is a big turn off for women.

Unless she is unattractive or desperate, a woman won't want to waste her time with an insecure guy who doesn't believe he's good enough for her, or have to endure an annoying relationship with a guy who needs her to "baby him" or "mother him" all the time to make him feel confident.

2. A lack of self-esteem

A man who has a low impression of himself (e.g. thinks he's not cool enough to hang out with the cool crowd, thinks he's not good enough to get promoted at work or to succeed in business, etc) is not attractive to women.

No woman wants to be with a guy who constantly needs to be convinced of his own worth and potential, or who feels threatened if she has a friendly conversation with another guy.

3. A lack of social intelligence

A guy who lacks social intelligence won't be able to get along with confident, cool people or handle the tests (e.g. playing hard to get) that attractive women put him through. He will feel like an outsider around cool, confident people and will find it difficult to get or maintain the respect of alpha males.

Why is that a turn off for women?

For most of human history, food and resources were scarce and a man had to have the social intelligence to maintain friendships and respect of people who could help out if he and his woman needed it.

Today, it is difficult for a man to survive, thrive and prosper in our competitive, modern world. We might have supermarkets, police and governments who are willing to support those in need, but a woman's instinct of being attracted to a guy who has social intelligence has not gone away.

As you may have noticed, human beings are often just a hurricane away from being forced back into basic survival. A woman's attraction for a man is directly linked to his survival traits and social intelligence is one of them.

Here are some examples of how a guy demonstrates a lack of social intelligence when talking to a woman...

4. Being mentally or emotionally weaker than her

A woman wants to feel that she is with a man who is mentally and emotionally strong enough to support her. If a guy is easily influenced by the opinions of others and cannot stand up for himself and what he believes in, he comes across as being weak.

If a man is mentally and emotionally weak (e.g. insecure, very sensitive, flimsy-minded, undetermined, etc), it means that the woman will have to pick up the slack and behave as the dominant one in the relationship.

She will often have to lead the way, be the strong one and stand up for both him and her when times get tough or when they are being challenged by other people. Women do not find this appealing in the least because it forces a woman into thinking, feeling, behaving and acting like a man.

Some women may accept a weak man (i.e. because she is desperate, wants to get over an ex, needs someone to pay half the bills, is unattractive, etc), but it doesn't mean that she will ever love him as much as should love a confident, masculine man.

5. Being too serious when interacting with her

Some guys treat their interactions with women in a formal, business-like manner, rather than being light-hearted and down to Earth.

They stick to polite conversation, avoid flirting at all costs and basically behave like a concerned friend or an innocent nice guy who pretends as though he doesn't want to have sex with her and just wants to be her friend. Aww, how sweet.

When a guy can't get a woman to relax and open up to him during a conversation, she isn't going to be "won over" by the shoes he is wearing.

6. A lack of ambition and drive

A man without goals, who is not a forward thinker and has no plans for the future, is a big turn off for almost all women (except for desperate, unattractive or insecure women who want a broken man).

A typical, normal woman wants to be with a man who has the potential to look after her and her offspring if the relationship gets to that stage. However, don't go thinking that you should tell a woman all your plans and goals when you meet her. Women aren't attracted to men who try to impress them by saying how good they are.

If a woman asks you about yourself, show passion in what you are aiming to achieve in life, but don't think that it will be the number one thing that makes her want to have sex with you.

If she gets the sense that you're trying to impress her by talking about your goals and are hoping that it tricks her into liking you, she will realize that you don't feel like you're good enough for her.

If a woman is attractive, she wants to sense that you know that you are more than good enough for her, without you having rub it in her face by bragging, showing off, etc.

Watch this video to understand why attractive women want a guy who knows that he is more than good enough for her...

As you will discover by watching the video above, attractive women are bored of the approach that most guys use on them.

If you want to stand out from the crowd, you've got to make her feel attracted to you and then only give her a chance to be with you if she plays her cards right.

7. Being way too concerned about his appearance

[image: Men worried about their looks]

Some guys are so concerned about their outward appearance (e.g. the car they drive, the clothes and shoes they wear or the places they hang out at), that they lack real substance and have nothing more than face value to offer a woman. A woman may find his outward appearance appealing at first, but if he cannot back it up with other qualities she will not be interested in the guy for very long.

Shoes Are Not the Secret to Success With Women

[image: Do women notice men's shoes?]

There's nothing wrong with wearing good clothes or shoes, but don't ever think that it is the secret to success with women.

The more you worry about your appearance, the more will think and behave like a girl (or a gay guy). Although many women love having gay friends these days, it doesn't mean they want to sleep with them.

My recommendation is to wear the appropriate shoes for whatever environment you're in, but don't worry about it any more than that.

Personally speaking, I approach fashion like this: I get good clothes and shoes that suit my lifestyle and that are fashionable and then I stop thinking about it.

My sexy girlfriend (who loves wearing sexy and â□□racyâ□□ looking fashion), loves the fact that I make myself look presentable, but that I don't really care about it any more than that.

I can go out to a nightclub with her and I will be 100% confident and at ease wearing smart casual clothes, even though she is dressed in sexy, revealing clothes. It really doesn't matter and I know it.

Being the Man That Women Want

Ultimately, getting a woman to feel attracted for you is about displaying the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women.

If you also happen to wear nice shoes, then good for you, but hopefully after reading this article, you have realized that shoes aren't the most important thing that a guy needs to have to be successful with women.

Do Women Like to Be Chased?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Yes, women do like to be chased or pursued, but only if the guy that is chasing her is someone that she is attracted to.

If a woman is not attracted to a guy who is chasing her and trying to ask her out, it will simply annoy her.

[image: Do women want to be chased or pursued by guys?]

If you want a woman to enjoy being pursued by you, the first thing that you must do is make her feel attracted to you.

How can you make her feel attracted to you and want you to pursue her?

Watch this video to understand how it works...

If a woman is sexually attracted to you, she will be excited at anything you do to pursue her because she will be hoping to get a chance to be with you.

However, if she has no sexual interest in you, she won't care how much you try to pursue her – she's just not going to be feeling it and won't be interested.

Movies Vs. Real Life

Some guys ask the question, “Do women like to be chased?” because they've seen examples in TV sitcoms and movies where the guy who chases a girl eventually gets her in the end.

TV sitcoms and movies pretty much always show the “loveable loser” guy chasing a woman, even though she's not attracted to him and then he eventually gets her in the end and people high five him and everything is wonderful.

Initially, she rejects him, but he then saves the world, saves the day or saves her from some big issue or problem and then she eventually decides to give him a chance. Aww, how sweet.

In the movies, it is perfectly fine for a guy to “chase” a woman wherever she goes and he won't be seen as a stalker or weird.

For example: He can appear without warning at the same coffee shop, in the same elevator, while she is getting her hair done at a salon and even on her front lawn and the TV show or movie will play out a scene that is entertaining to watch.

In real life though, the woman would most-likely see him as creepy and weird for following her around and if he kept doing it, she might even call the police and accuse him of stalking her.

The Confusing Lyrics of Female Pop Songs

If you listen to the lyrics of female pop songs, it can seem as though women do like to be chased and that if a guy plays hard to get, he is going to miss out on an opportunity with her.

However, what most guys don't realize is that when a female pop singer is belting out a heartfelt song about some guy whom she wishes would chase her, she is referring to a guy that she is sexually attracted to.

She is referring to a guy that is a challenge for her to win over...

Most guys take what women are saying in pop songs as “advice” on what women really want. Yet, women don’t go around giving the male population the exact instructions on how to win them over.

Instead, women hint at what they want, but never give the full picture, because they don’t want to instruct clueless guys on how to get a chance with them. Instead, they just want to get themselves a guy who has the social and emotional intelligence to know what is really going on.

Not knowing this, many guys chase women and try to show their interest in a woman, hoping that she will then accept him and be his girlfriend or lover if he just declares his love and interest for her and never gives up.

Yet, women don’t want to lead a guy and choose him after he kisses their ass and begs for a chance for years on end. Instead, women want a guy who makes them feel attracted and will only give HER a chance if she plays her cards right.

What Makes a Guy Worth Chasing?

[image: What makes a guy worth chasing?]

There are many qualities that cause a woman to chase and pursue a man, in the hope of having sex with him or securing him into a committed relationship.

Essentially, if a guy is confident, charismatic and masculine, then he is going to be attractive to women. When a woman feels attracted to him, she will then begin to look at any positive qualities about him in a better light.

For example: Not only is he confident, charismatic and funny, but he is also an intelligent, good guy who has good intentions with her.

In the animal kingdom, the female is usually attracted to the alpha male and feels more attraction for him compared to a lower-ranking male.

For a human female, she also is more attracted to an alpha male more than a lower-ranking male. A human alpha male is a guy who uses his confidence and emotional masculinity to go after what he wants in life and keep pushing forward no matter how challenging life gets.

Since a woman’s attraction to a man is mostly based on his survival traits, it’s pretty obvious why women are more attracted to confident, emotionally masculine guys compared to nervous, self-doubting and emotionally insecure guys.

When interacting with men, women can detect which of the men are weaker (mentally and emotionally) than others. Apart from unattractive or feminine women who want a weak, feminine guy, women always feel the most amount of attraction for the guy who is the strongest (mentally and emotionally) amongst the group.

Guys who think and behave like lower ranking males do not get chased by women because there is no reason for the woman to chase. She’s not that attracted to him and knows that she doesn’t need to hurry to claim him as her man before another woman gets him.

On the other hand, when a woman encounters an alpha male, she will feel compelled to chase him and secure him as her own, because she knows that almost every woman he interacts with will want to be with him.

8 Things That Don't Make a Woman Want to Chase a Guy

[image: 8 things that don't make a woman want to chase a guy]

Women will chase you if you're worth chasing and they will stop at nothing to make you their man. Here are some reasons why a woman will not chase a guy!

1. He lacks confidence in his attractiveness and value to her

A woman will not chase a guy if she sees that he lacks confidence in his attractiveness and value to her, because it would make her feel like she's doing him a favor by being with him.

If a guy behaves in a nervous and insecure way around a woman and acts like he's not good enough for her when he's near or with her, she won't want to waste her time with him. A woman doesn't want to feel as though she needs to "mother" or "baby" a guy to make him feel confident enough around her.

If you want a woman to feel respect and attraction for you, it's important that you show her that you're completely confident on your own and don't need her to reassure you.

2. He has low self esteem about his place in the world and value to others

A woman doesn't want to a guy who constantly needs to be made to feel better about himself because he is lost and still hasn't worked out who he is as a man.

If a guy has low self-esteem and needs a woman to make him feel worthy about his place in the world or to others, women will not chase him.

Not only will a woman have no desire to chase him, but she won't respond nicely if he chases her either. She will make it absolutely clear to him that she has no romantic interest in him and the most she can offer him is a friendship, which she usually isn't going to want anyway.

Low self esteem guys usually love to watch movies where the loveable loser gets the girl in the end, because it gives him hope. Secretly, he hopes that if enough women see the movie, they will eventually take pity on the wimpy guys and give them a chance.

Yet, that's just not going to happen because a woman's attraction is directly linked to a guy's survival traits. Low self esteem is the opposite of what is required to survive, thrive and prosper in this challenging world we live in.

3. He lacks social intelligence

[image: Rejecting the shy guy]

If a guy is uncomfortable or awkward in social situations, he usually isn't going to be able to make a good impression on a woman (or anyone else for that matter).

A guy who is uncomfortable or awkward in their social interactions with others displays a lack of social intelligence, which naturally makes him unattractive to women. Social intelligence is an important survival trait and most women are instinctively turned off by guys who can't get along well with others.

4. He is mentally and emotionally weaker than her

A woman likes to be made to feel like a real woman (i.e. feminine, girly, free to be emotional) by the man she is with.

If a guy allows a woman to constantly dominate the conversation and interaction between them, he comes across as being mentally and emotionally weak and she will want to steer clear of him. A woman can't feel like a real woman if the man isn't being confident and masculine around her.

5. He is a bad conversationalist

[image: Boring guy]

A man who can engage a woman in an interesting, emotionally stimulating conversation has already won half the battle when it comes to charming her.

A guy who lacks conversation skills with women might assume that a woman will open up and be excited to talk to him if he asks her a series of personal questions, or if he tells her every little detail about himself.

In the first instance, she will be made to feel uncomfortable and tense because of all the questions and in the second instance she will probably be bored to tears or turned off by his attempts to impress her with details of his life. Either way he is unlikely to get the girl with that kind of approach.

Watch this video to understand where guys go wrong when talking to women and what you can do instead to be successful...

6. He lacks the skills needed to establish attraction

Since he lacks these necessary skills required to make her feel attracted to him, she just isn't interested in anything more than a conversation.

He might wonder, “Do women like to be chased?” and assume that he must not be showing her enough attention and interest, but, as you know, that isn't the answer. You can show her all the attention and interest in the world, but if she's not attracted to you, she's not going to be interested.

7. He lacks drive and ambition

A woman likes to know that the guy she is with (or is considering hooking up with) is going places in life.

It is not important whether he has already achieved all of his goals, but she definitely wants to know that he has some big goals and ambitions in life and that he is on the way to achieving them.

If a guy has no direction in his life and is not working towards creating a better life for himself in the future, a woman usually will not waste her time with him and she certainly won't chase him.

8. He doesn't have many (or any) friends

Women prefer men who have a large group of real friends (not Facebook friends) because it usually means that the guy is likeable and should he ever be in an emergency, he will have many people that he can call on for help.

This makes her feel safe and be able to trust in his ability to survive, thrive and prosper and it is therefore a quality that she will look for in a man.

Getting Her to Chase You

[image: Getting her to chase you]

The secret to getting a woman to chase you is to make her feel intense attraction to your confidence and personality and then only give her a chance if she plays her cards right.

Most women are sick and tired of how easy most guys are to impress and they want a guy who not only has standards, but makes her feel the type of attraction that she wants to feel when with a guy...

What to Say When in Bed With a Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are some examples of what to say when in bed with a woman...

1. Tell her what she's doing right

“Yeah, that feels so good. I love it when you...” is a good way to get her to do more of the same while at the same time boosting her confidence.

You can tell her what you want her change, stop doing or improve, but focus on what she's doing right first. Why? Keep the sexual harmony alive between you and don't turn it into a stressful, emotionally painful experience.

Let it be a time for both of you to enjoy yourself and feel good about yourselves.

2. Use compliments Every woman likes to be flattered. Calling her beautiful, telling her that she is sexy, telling her how nice she smells or feels is always a winner in the bedroom.

3. Tell her that you want to make her feel good

[image: What to say when in bed with a woman]

Putting her feelings first is a good way of getting her to open up and respond in kind. Ask her what she likes and go ahead and fill out her order.

She'll be glad that you had the sexual confidence to ask her what she likes and be able to give it to her.

4. Tell her how good she is and how great she makes you feel

This serves to get you more of the good stuff. In the bedroom, women love to do what they are good at and she will be happy to please you in the ways you like.

5. Tell her that you love the sounds she makes

Saying this to a woman in bed makes her feel sexy and she can relax and open up even more. The more you allow that animalistic side of her to come out, the more fun and pleasure you will have in bed with her.

6. Say things in a masculine way

Personally speaking, sometimes (about 20% of the time) I really like to be a raw, masculine man and say things like, “Fk, look at those tits...c'mere...let me suck these tits....mmm.”

Women love that sort of thing, as long as you don't do it all the time.

During sex, you can bend a woman over and say, “Yeahhhh...nice, tight pussy....yeahhhh, fk yeah...that's good.”

Since allowing myself to be that way, I've always had amazing sexual relationships with women (update: I recently got married to my sexy, 22 year old girlfriend who is 15 years younger than me).

No woman wanted to break up with me for the 12 years that I was living the playboy lifestyle and having great sex is a big part of that.

Sex is the ultimate expression of the attraction felt between a man and a woman. It is the culmination of an intricate dance that develops between the sexes, starting with a simple look and evolving into a conversation, a touch, a kiss and finally into the shared expression of this attraction...sex.

Sex is a beautiful thing and is something that you should really take care of when you're with a woman, which is why the topic of what to say when in bed with a woman is so important.

When you're in bed with a woman, what you say to her can really define your relationship in a good or bad way. Your words can cause her to feel an increased level of attraction, respect and love for you, or they can make her feel completely turned off or even hurt her emotionally. However, what is most important is your attitude.

A woman wants to see that you're relaxed, confident and totally attracted to her. The more of that she sees, the more she will enjoy herself in the bedroom with you.

Being good in bed is more about your attitude and confidence than what you say. The less worried, hesitant and tense you are, the happier she will be and the more she will enjoy the sex and her time with you in the bedroom.

The Wrong Things to Say

Things that a guy should avoid saying when in bed with a woman include:

1. Criticism of any kind

Sex is an intimate act between you and a woman that truly bring you and her closer together than any type of conversation you can have.

It's a time for connecting with each other on deeper, more primal levels as well as making each other feel amazing physically and emotionally. As such, the bedroom is no place for criticism. Focus your attention and energy on the things you find sexy about her and comment on that.

If you're not really attracted to her, you shouldn't be with her. If you've accepted an unattractive woman because you're unable to attract and have sex with beautiful women, then that is something you need to fix about yourself.

2. Talking about what your ex liked (or just talking about her at all)

Ex means past girlfriend (or wife) and "in the past" is exactly where she should stay when you're having sex with a new woman, or in the process of committing yourself to a new relationship.

Even a woman who is with a guy for a one night stand doesn't want to be compared to his ex (even flatteringly). Just leave your ex-girlfriend(s) out of anything you say in the bedroom.

Focus on the girl you're with and make her feel like the sexiest woman on Earth and the only woman in your mind at the time.

3. Pressuring her to orgasm quickly

Asking her if she's come yet after every few thrusts is not cool. Just let her relax and fall into the emotional experience that leads up to her being able to orgasm.

A guy who is good at sex knows that a woman's ability to orgasm with him has a lot to do with how he makes her feel mentally and emotionally. If she can fully let go and surrender during sex with him, then she's more likely to orgasm a lot quicker and easier.

Don't Talk Too Much Though

Sex is one of the greatest pleasures that can be experienced between a man and a woman and does not need to be burdened with too much talking.

You don't need to go overboard with lots of commentary as you have sex. Just get into it and let yourself express whatever you're feeling in the moment. Women love it when you can just relax and be a confident, masculine man who isn't trying to be perfect.

Why Are Women Offended So Easily?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a woman appears to be offended by what you're saying, she's usually just testing to see how confident you are.

[image: Woman testing man by acting slightly offended]

If you respond by remaining confident, smiling and even laughing at her or the situation, she then feels more respect and attraction for you.

However, if you react by becoming nervous, apologizing to her in a panic, feeling rejected and losing confidence in yourself, she then loses respect and attraction for you.

Think about it...

Women need to find themselves a confident guy who has the social and emotional intelligence to handle the challenges of life in the modern world. As you may know, success at work (or at university if you're still studying) doesn't get handed to you on a silver platter.

Instead, you've usually got to work hard, overcome a lot of obstacles and challenges and keep pushing forward to eventually succeed.

As a result of this, women have an instinctive need to find themselves a guy who doesn't buckle under pressure, especially from women. If she puts you on the spot by acting like she is offended and you buckle under the pressure, then you are showing her that you're not yet strong enough to handle the tests of life.

When she notices that, she instantly loses respect and attraction for you on a fundamental level. The only way to get her respect and attraction back is to start being the strong, capable guy that she will instinctively feel attracted to.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to your advantage to get what you want with women for life...

As you will discover from the video above, most women are more attracted to a guy's confidence and personality (his inner qualities) rather than his looks (outer qualities).

There are women who will only accept a perfect male model with loads of money, but most women place more importance on a guy's inner qualities because that is what usually helps ensure that he can survive, thrive and prosper in this world.

Attraction is directly linked to a woman's instinctive assessment of a man's survival traits. If you display the personality traits and behaviors that trigger that type of attraction, most women will feel attracted to you and want to be with you.

Does it Annoy You When Women Get Offended?

[image: Why do you get offended so easily?]

Doesn't it annoy when you're talking with an attractive woman and no matter how hard you try to make a good impression on her, sooner or later you end up saying or doing something that offends her?

Have you ever wondered why other guys are able to talk to women so easily and without any problems, but for some reason women get offended when talking to you all the time.

After getting such a bad reaction from women for so long, it has changed you. Now, whenever you talk to a beautiful woman that you want to impress, you can't stop yourself from feeling nervous, anxious and worrying about what you're going to say.

So, how can you get past that and get on with enjoying your conversations with women and then ending up having sex or a relationship, rather than feeling rejected by women, humiliated by women or angry at women yet again?

Simple.

Understand that women are usually just testing you and to pass the tests, you have to stop trying to always say the right thing. You have to be willing to risk saying something that she might not like, she might pretend to not like or she might be offended by.

Watch this video for more info...

As you will discover from the video above, you shouldn't try to be Mr. Perfect when talking to a woman.

Most women will act like they want you to be perfect around them, but it's usually just a test to check your level of compliance or submission to simple social commands.

What will impress a woman and make her feel attracted to you, is when you have the confidence to say whatever you want, but you're also socially intelligent enough to know when you've crossed a line.

Crossing a line doesn't have to be serious though. If you say something "bad" and realize that you've made a mistake, just smile, laugh and own up to it. It's not a big deal.

It's just a simple conversation between two humans. No one is perfect and it's completely fine to make a mistake when talking and then own up to it.

Getting Over Your Negative Childhood Experiences

Sometimes, a guy's belief about women getting offended easily by what he says or does starts way back in his childhood.

For example: A boy in the first grade is sitting at his desk and talking to the boy next to him about the size of his boogers (mucus in his nose). Suzie, the girl sitting in front of them, overhears him and goes â€œEeeewwwww, disguuuusting! You're so gross! Don't you have any manners?â€œ

From that moment onwards, the boy focusses on the small amount of times that he's noticed women getting offended by something that he says or does. After a few years of paying attention to it, he can recall at least 10-15 times when girls have reacted badly to what he's said or done around them.

Eventually, he gets to the point where he actively looks for any negative reaction from a woman while he's talking with her. Little does he know, but actively looking for those reactions and being worried about them actually causes women to lose respect and attraction for him.

Women want to be with a guy who is confident in himself and doesn't need to be lead by a woman. A woman doesn't want a man looking to her for instructions on how think, behave and act in life. She also doesn't want to have to â€œbabyâ€œ him and be really nice and sweet to him all the time, just to make him feel comfortable.

She wants him to have the confidence to feel confident about his thinking, behavior and actions on his own. She doesn't want to have to encourage him to believe in himself and be nice and gentle with him so he doesn't lose confidence in himself.

When a woman notices that her offended reactions that she displays to a guy via her conversation or body language has a negative effect on him, she knows that he's not a confident man.

He might be a good guy, but to her, he is just another guy who is afraid of women and can't handle the tests they put him through.

Instinctively, she concludes that he probably doesn't have what it takes to survive, thrive and prosper in this challenging world, therefore her attraction trigger is set to "off."

Changing Your Mindset About Women

[image: Changing your mindset about women]

If you're one of the many modern men who feel that it's too difficult to talk to women these days (because they get so offended so easily), then you have to change your mindset to look at it in a more positive, constructive manner.

Thinking negatively about women or complaining about how they think, act or behave will never help you. The truth is, women aren't easily offended and it's usually just a guy's "belief" that women are offended easily that is standing between him having enjoyable conversations and interactions with women.

A guy who believes that women are offended easily, may begin to behave in the following ways:

- He becomes careful and guarded when he is around women, which then suppresses his natural charisma and likeability.
- He becomes insecure and nervous when he talks to a woman that he finds attractive, which then turns her off.
- He loses more and more self-confidence and begins to doubt himself around women he likes, which makes him become even less attractive to women.
- He avoids starting conversations when he is around attractive, confident women, which ends up making him look like a loser, outsider or yet another guy who is intimidated by hot women.
- He avoids flirting with women, which causes women to feel bored when talking to him.
- He becomes a "Yes Man" and simply agrees with everything that women say, in the hope that they will like him (and take pity on him) for being so nice. Yet, women see right through his act and neither respect him or want him sexually.

If all of the above actions fail then he simply avoids women altogether, except of course when watching porn.

Porn becomes his sad way to "get some action," but it never makes him feel fulfilled and feels even more lonely and frustrated every time he uses it.

Avoiding real women is not the solution, and neither is it necessary. If you understand why a woman acts offended in a conversation, you will realize that she's not actually offended and that she's simply testing you to see how much she can get away with and how easily she can control you.

Women Test All Men, Not Just You

The human mating ritual is organized in much the same way as other species in nature.

Women in general are attracted to the confident, easy going go-getters because they are perceived as being able to provide the best physical and emotional prospects for the future.

Over the centuries, women have developed a very sophisticated method for sorting out the men from the boys in order to test a man's self-esteem and confidence; the primary qualities that they look for in a man.

These tests are designed to test a man's mental and emotional strength and are her way of determining how much power she can have over a man. Unfortunately, most guys (who have been brainwashed by what they see on TV commercials and in music videos) believe that the more power a woman has over him, the more likely she is to choose him, but that just isn't true.

The more power a woman has over a man, the less likely he will be able to give her the mental and emotional support that she needs or will need in the future and the less likely she is to choose him as a boyfriend or lover.

Examples of Tests That Women Put Men Through

Ultimately, when a woman meets a man, she is trying to determine his level on the social scale. She wants to know if he's a real man or yet another wimp who is hoping to get lucky and be taken care of by people, rather than standing up for himself and going after what he wants with confidence.

A woman will test a guy in many ways to separate the real men from the boys.

For example:

1. Putting him on the spot in front of others:

A woman (or one of her friends) will semi-seriously joke with a guy and try to make him feel embarrassed in front of others to test if he can remain confident under the pressure.

She might make a comment about his shirt, his hairstyle or something else to try and make him feel self-conscious about himself. If he stands his ground, laughs it off or turns the tables on her in an easy-going way, then he will have passed the test.

However, if he walks away hurt and embarrassed or appears to lose confidence in himself and feel like he is being rejected, then he fails.

2. Giving him mixed signals

A favorite technique used by women to test a guy is to give him mixed signals of interest.

One minute she acts interested, flirts and sends him all the signals she says she is interested in taking things further. Yet, as soon as he shows interest back, she ignores him entirely and shows interest in another guy or says that he's moving too fast and needs to slow things down with her.

Then, when he backs off, she begins showing interest in him again. When he shows interest, she pulls back her interest to see how he will react. This type of behavior from women naturally confuses many men who do not realize how or why they are being tested.

A guy simply needs to be attractive to the woman and if she plays hard to get, he needs to remain confident in his attractiveness to her.

He can either just laugh at her for playing games or smile to let her know that he knows she likes him, but is simply testing to see how much he likes her and if he'll lose confidence in himself and give up.

3. Acting like she is offended

As we've been discussing in this post, another test that women love to put a guy through is to bring up a difficult subject in conversation and then, when the guy responds or answers, to act offended.

In almost all cases, she is not really offended and it is just another way for her to test a man's strength of character and confidence in himself.

Iâm Still a Virgin: How Do I Lose My Virginity?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Being a male virgin sucks, especially when your friends or family know about it and tease you because of it.

If you want to lose your virginity, the first thing you need to get handled is your ability to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman.

You've got to be able to display traits that actually turn women on, such as confidence (especially when she tests you), charm, charisma and humor.

It's actually very easy to attract women in that way and once you do it once or twice, you will see that most women feel SOMETHING for you. All you need to do then is go from attraction, to a connection and then kissing and sex, which is also easily to do once you do it once or twice.

Should You Tell Women That You're a Virgin?

For the guys who are wondering, "Should I tell a girl that I'm a virgin?" the answer is, "No, don't worry about it. Just get to the point of having sex with her."

When you slide your penis inside of her, both you and her are going to feel really good. Your dick isn't going to feel better to her because it has been in other women. It's going to feel just the same.

What's going to be important is that your behavior, vibe, attitude and actions are turning her on. As long as you are making her feel attracted to you, she isn't going to care about your virginity, so just get on with having sex with her and then enjoying the love and relationship that will likely follow it.

The 40 Year Old Virgin

[image: 40 year old virgin]

Hollywood immortalized the idea of modern male virgin in the movie, The 40 Year Old Virgin. It was a humorous take on a very serious problem that many guys are suffering today.

Yet, why are so many guys suffering from this problem? Watch the video below to find out...

As you will discover from the video above, the rise in adult male virginity is not women's fault or the fault of the media. It comes down to one very simple thing that I explain in the video.

Being Left Behind

[image: Still a virgin. I keep getting left behind by friends who easily hook up with women in front of me...]

Have you begun to feel like you're being left behind by friends, coworkers or fellow university students who are having sex and enjoying love and relationships?

Does it confuse you why some of your friends or coworkers are easily able to attract women, but women always seem out of your reach?

The guys who going around saying â€œIâ€™m still a virginâ€ at an age where everyone else around them is not, will usually develop a truckload insecurities, issues and anxieties issues over it. Over the years, Iâ€™ve heard from more than 350 guys who are still a virgin at 30+ years of age and almost every time, they are riddled with insecurities and issues surrounding their virginity.

For example: A guy will assume that he would suck at having sex and the woman would be disappointed, or the sex wonâ€™t feel as good for him as it would have if he was younger, or the woman will think heâ€™s a loser for being a virgin, etc.

The list of insecurities just goes on and on and it often turns into something so powerful for a guy that he avoids women altogether. He still masturbates to porn of course, but real women are just too much to deal with for him because of how his insecurities make him feel.

Itâ€™s a big deal for a lot of guys these days because premarital sex happens all the time now.

[image: No sex before marriage vs. have sex whenever you want]

Back in 1800, being a virgin when getting married was standard, normal and even looked on as a good thing, but nowadays pretty much everyone has sex before marriage...and plenty of it.

Today, in the United States for example, the average age for a guy to lose his virginity is 17. This is, of course the â€œaverage ageâ€ and includes those who lost their virginity earlier than that and those who lose their virginity later than the average, including the proverbial 40 year old virgin.

What is the Right Age For a Guy to Lose His Virginity?

In my opinion, I think that a guy should aim to lose his virginity at or after the legal age for his country and the culture contained within it.

It has been found, for example, that those who lose their virginity earlier than the legal age and the national average age are more likely to participate in delinquent behavior (i.e. commit crimes) later on in their lives.

However, the opposite is also a problem.

The longer a guy waits to have sex for the first time, the more difficult it becomes to lose his virginity because he gradually begins to develop insecurities around the fact that he is still a virgin and thus behaves â€œweirdlyâ€ around women and people when the subject of sex comes up.

He feels self-conscious about his desires for women and if he watches enough movies and TV shows where women are often portrayed as being mean and rejecting guys for showing interest, he will eventually believe that women are anti-sex and would be doing him a favor by having sex with him.

If he believes that, then heâ€™s start to behave in the opposite way that woman actually want him to behave. In other words, heâ€™ll start behaving in shy and nervous ways when women actually want him to be confident.

In fact, women need a guy to be confident so they can feel sexual attraction for him. They canâ€™t feel sexual attraction to nervousness and anxiety, unless they are the type of women who like weak men and want to abuse him emotionally.

Guys who are saying â€œIâ€™m still a virginâ€ while everyone else around him is hooking up and having sex, will often stop going out and trying to get women because it all just seem too difficult.

Instead, the guy will often bury himself in his studies, his work, computer games (or sport) and porn and resolve himself to being a virgin for life.

Porn will feel like a good release of all the built up sexual energy, but it will never give him the complex experience and set of emotions that come with having sex and being in love with a real woman in person.

There's nothing wrong with masturbation, but if you overdo it, you will often end up wasting your sexual energy on that rather than using it as motivation to approach and have sex with real women.

As you will see from the results of the survey above, a lot of guys are jacking off every day.

Here's the thing...

If you want to get laid, get a girlfriend and get on with enjoying your life with women or one woman, you've got to try to use your sexual energy as motivation and drive to approach, pick up and have sex with real women.

If you empty your sex drive into a tissue every day or a few times a week, you're not leaving much sexual energy to use to actually get real results with women.

Sometimes, a male virgin will get to a point where he accepts his sad identity as the guy who looks on from the outside while everyone else has sex and falls in love. All the while, he keeps saying to himself, â€œIâ€™m still a virgin. Why? Whatâ€™s wrong with me? Why is this happening to me?â€œ

Then, every day or a few times a week, he loads up some porn videos, jacks off and depletes his sexual energy.

Don't hide from women behind porn.

There's nothing wrong with jerking off every now and then, but if you're still a virgin, try to limit your masturbation sessions to once a week on a monday (Masturbation Monday). That way, by the time Friday rolls around, you will be full of sexual energy and motivation to actually get a result with a real woman.

If you're interested in learning how to approach and pick up women, watch this...

Is it Different For Women?

Most modern women usually lose their virginity at a young legal age and then have sex with many guys before settling down.

However, if a woman openly decides to be a virgin until her wedding night, then most people don't try to interfere or pick on her decision. Our society doesn't put too much pressure on a woman to have sex.

Yet, for guys it's different.

They have a small window of opportunity to lose their virginity and every year after that more and more pressure is added.

If people find out that a guy is still a virgin, at 25 for example, he will become the butt of office jokes and people will assume there is something wrong with him.

For the virgin male, he then has to deal with the anxiety and fear about being ridiculed by others behind his back or in person, whenever the subject of sex comes up.

The Good News

If a guy is still a virgin, it does not mean that there is anything wrong with him, which will prevent him from having sex with women forever.

Getting sex with women is easy, as long as you approach them with the right attitude. If a guy is still a virgin and everyone else around him has already begun having sex, it may be due to various reasons, such as:

- Religious beliefs.
- Moral beliefs.
- Physical disabilities.
- Mental disabilities.

Or, he may still be a virgin because he just doesn't know how to go about changing it. He knows he lacks confidence around women, but he just doesn't know how to fix it.

However, if he realizes that his virginity has no impact on how a woman sees him, he would be able to move forward and do something about changing it.

Can Women Tell if You're a Virgin?

[image: When will I lose my virginity?]

A woman cannot see a man's virginity from a distance, nor can she sense it by simply talking to him (unless he tells her) or from looking into his eyes.

What she will see however, is a guy who is either confident, easy going and at ease with himself when the subject of sex comes up or when she flirts with him. If he's a virgin or inexperienced with sex, he's like going to be nervous, insecure and uncomfortable with himself when the subject of sex comes up or when she tries to flirt with him in a sexual way.

In other words, he's probably going to come across as a typical nice guy and act like he just wants to be friends with the woman. Yet, that approach to women often leads to rejection and here is why...

Unless you tell her, a woman isn't going to know and she's not going to be worried. All she wants is a confident guy who can go with the flow of the moment and lead her to kissing, sex and into a relationship.

If you can do that, it doesn't matter if you are still a virgin. The guy who is constantly saying to himself, â€œI'm still a virgin...I'm never going to get laidâ€ can be just as successful in attracting women as any other guy because a woman will judge him by his confidence and not by his sexual history.

However, if a guy approaches a woman in an insecure manner, believing that he is not worthy of her, then she will reject him; virgin or not.

Undoing the Brainwashing that You've Been Getting From the Media

We are brainwashed by the popular media such as movies, television, magazines and the internet into believing that women want to be treated in a certain way.

We're told that they want to be put on a pedestal and made to feel in control and in charge (TV commercials are especially guilty of this). While wearing the pants in the relationship, TV commercials will tell us that women also expect flowers, romance and expensive candlelit dinners.

They want to be charmed and swept off their feet by the good looking guy with big muscles who has lots of money, power and success. Oh, and he should be a celebrity or male model too. When modern men see this sort of thing on TV all the time, they begin to believe it as being true.

I've lost count of the amount of guys who've contacted me complaining about modern women and saying that women are so stuck up these days and all they want are male models, money and fame. Yet, it's just not true. That's the TV reality, not the everyday reality.

Despite what TV commercials would like you to believe, here's the truth:

1. It's not about the car that you drive:

Yes, some women only want a guy with a sports car and loads of money. That is true.

However, those women are the minority. The majority of women just want a good guy who can make her feel attracted to his confidence and personality and then guide her to kissing, sex and into a relationship.

The advertisers, movie producers and vehicle manufacturers will tell you that your sex appeal to women is all about the car that you drive. If you have the right sports car, then every woman will line up to have sex with you.

Yet, when you meet a woman in bar or at a party for example, she won't know what car you drive and she won't ask (unless she's one of the minority of women who are obsessed with cars).

Instead, she will judge you on how confident you are and how your personality makes her feel. That's it. You can pull out your car keys and show her, â€œLook! I drive a Porsche!â€ and it will not impress her if you're unable to make her feel attracted to your confidence and personality.

If you're a confident, cool guy, then she'll say, â€œOh, cool!â€ and will like the fact that you drive an expensive car, but she already liked you anyway because you were confident and cool.

So, don't think that losing your virginity is about buying some expensive car, house or the latest smartphone.

It's about you, man.

You.

Not the fancy watch on your wrist, not your smartphone, not your hairstyle...but, YOU. Who you are overall. That's what it's about. Are you a confident, cool guy or are you a nervous, shy guy who has all sorts of issues about women and sex? That's the difference.

2. It's not about what you wear

Yes, some women only want a guy who wears the latest and greatest fashions, but most women are not that picky and shallow.

Of course, the fashion magazines will tell you that your attractiveness to women is all about the clothes that you wear. If you want to get laid, you have to spend truckloads of money on the latest fashions and get many different pairs of shoes because â€œwomen look at a guy's shoes.â€

What a load of crap.

Here's the truth...

I've gotten laid before wearing a t-shirt, shorts and flip-flops (thongs). Sure, you should present yourself well, but wearing amazing fashions is not the secret to success with women.

3. It's not about being even more of a gentleman than you already are

If you're still a virgin, then it's highly-likely that you fit into the category of being a really nice guy.

So, there's no need to become even nicer to women because that is not the answer to losing your virginity.

Politically correct people in the media (who are afraid to say what they really feel) will tell you that the perfect man is super sweet and very patient and gentlemanly towards a woman. Wait for her, be super nice and eventually she will let you have some sex.

Yes, you should have good etiquette and manners and be a good guy, but being a gentleman is not the answer. Ultimately, a woman wants a guy who is mentally and emotionally stronger than her, who is confident, has high self-esteem and who can make her feel feminine in response to his masculine vibe.

If he is also a good guy, then it is a bonus to her, but she would have sex with a guy like that even if he was a bad boy or jerk.

Why? He is attractive in so many ways to her and women know that it's next to impossible to find a good guy who is also confident, mentally and emotionally tough and can make her feel like a girly, feminine woman in response to masculinity.

Are You Ready to Lose Your Virginity?

Being a virgin can be a stressful and depressing thing that hangs over your head as a guy.

As others around you enjoy sex, love and relationships, you're stuck with that empty feeling you get after jerking off to porn several times a week.

Porn is enjoyable in the moment, but it isn't the same as being with a real woman who loves you, challenges you, makes you happy and walks with you along your path in life.

Laughing and hanging out with her, introducing her to your family and friends and going on vacations together are just a few of the real benefits of having a real woman in your life.

The question is though: Are you ready to lose your virginity?

If you spoke to a woman tomorrow, would you know how to attract her and make her feel an intense desire to have sex with you, or would you feel nervous, not know what to do and lose your opportunity with her?

How to Pick Up Women at a Wedding

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To pick up women at a wedding, you can approach it in one of two ways...

Strategy 1: Be the Cool, Social Guy

[image: Picking up girls at a wedding]

If you're going to use this approach, you should just focus on being your natural, cool, confident self and go around having fun conversations with everyone.

When the beautiful women notice that other people (including women) enjoy talking to you, they will begin to feel curious to meet you. When you approach to say hello, they will be glad to finally get a chance to talk to you.

However, if the beautiful notice that you seem to be the shy, awkward guy who isn't getting along with others, they will feel repelled by you. Why? Women are naturally attracted to confident men who have the social skills to get along with and be respected by other people.

The attraction that a woman feels for a man is directly linked to her survival instincts. A confident guy who gets along well with others is more likely to survive, thrive and prosper during hard times compared to a shy, awkward guy who isn't liked or respected by most people.

So, if you're going to use the strategy of being the cool, social guy, make sure that you focus on having fun, easy-going conversations with many people to get yourself into a confident, social mood so that when you meet a beautiful woman that you really like, you aren't feeling nervous or unsure of yourself.

When you approach and talk to a beautiful woman at the wedding, just need to make sure that you do one, simple thing: Make her feel sexually attracted to you.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to pick up women at a wedding (including a bridesmaid)...

As you will discover from the video above, you can make a woman feel attracted to you in many different ways when you interact with her (e.g. by being confident, charismatic, charming, funny, etc).

Strategy 2: Be the Confident, Alpha Male Who Simply Goes After the Girl He Wants

[image: How to pick up a woman at a wedding]

If you're a confident guy and don't need to get yourself warmed up before approaching women, then simply walk up and talk to the hotties at the wedding.

All you need to do is relax, make them feel attracted to you and keep the conversation going long enough for the sexual tension to build up between you. You can then release that built up sexual tension with kissing and sex that night.

Tapping into the Painful Emotions That Single Women Feel at Weddings

[image: How to pick up chicks at a wedding]

If you've been to a few weddings in your life, you'd know that they can be a great place to meet single women.

Whether it's the bridesmaids, the bride's sisters, her best friends or simply random invited guests; weddings are fertile ground when it comes to meeting women.

[image: Women dancing at a wedding]

With so many happy couples around them, single women often feel sad about not having a boyfriend and, after a few drinks, become completely open to being seduced by a great guy.

Women want to be in love or at least have a lover or boyfriend, so if she begins feeling like the odd one out when many other women have a boyfriend or husband, she will be very receptive to your approach and conversation.

Missing Your Opportunity

[image: Picking up women guests at a wedding]

Even though weddings are a great opportunity to meet women, some guys will let the chance slip through their fingers by making some or more of the following mistakes:

1. Trying to "get lucky" with any woman

Some guys simply try to hit on every woman they can and hope that one of them likes him. He will essentially "try his luck" with pretty much any woman who will talk to him.

Most women see what is happening and label him as being desperate, low value guy who is just hoping to score with any woman. Women want to feel as though you could have other women, but will choose her if she impresses YOU enough.

She wants to feel like you are valuable as a guy, rather than her being valuable and you hoping to get a chance with her.

Watch this video for more info:

2. Using alcohol to appear confident

Since alcohol is usually free and widely available at weddings, some guys have a few drinks very quickly to build up enough courage to talk to women.

If he still can't do it after 4-5 drinks, he will drink some more and soon enough, he will be on the verge of being drunk.

There's nothing wrong with having a drink, but using it to build up courage doesn't win women over if they notice that you're actually drunk. Women are attracted to guys with real confidence and can spot fake confidence a mile away.

3. Being too nice

There's nothing wrong with being friendly to women, but if you want a woman to feel the urge to kiss you, have sex with you or catch up with you for a date after the wedding, you have to focus on making her feel sexually attracted to you.

Friendliness or nice, polite conversation doesn't make a woman feel turned on and eager to have sex with you. Why? Watch this video to understand...

4. Dancing awkwardly

If you're going to dance, just stick to simple moves and don't try to be too impressive.

If a guy looks awkward, tense or uncomfortable as he dances on the floor, women can see it a mile away. Most guys don't know how to dance and should stick to simple moves, rather than going overboard and appearing uncomfortable and out of place.

5. Being too shy to make a move

Some guys will notice a woman they like and will spend the entire day and night looking over at her, smiling and hoping that she will make the first move.

Generally speaking, women don't like to make the first move because they don't want to feel like the dominant or masculine one. A woman dreams of meeting a guy who has the confidence to walk over and make her feel like a real woman.

This means a guy who is masculine and decisive in his behavior and actions; a guy who knows what he wants and isn't afraid to go and get it. If you stay in the background, she may eventually lose interest in you.

If a confident guy approaches her and makes her feel attracted, she will usually just forget you and become interested in him.

6. Trying too hard to be liked

Some guys try too hard to be liked by everyone at the wedding or at their table. As a result, they end up being secretly disliked by almost everyone.

This is the sort of guy who will offer to go and get everyone's drinks and generally act like the helpful, nice guy who only has friendly (not sexual) intentions. Women will think he's a nice friend, but that's usually as far as their feelings will go.

Being the nice guy who runs around doing the dirty work for everyone else is not going to impress a woman enough to feel attraction for him.

She will enjoy the attention while keeping an eye out for a real man to come and rescue her.

There's nothing wrong with being nice, helping out or even pouring some drinks for other people, but if you're acting like Mr. Nice Guy who just wants to help when your real motive is to hopefully impress a girl, people will see right through it.

Putting Your Best Foot Forward

The best approach to picking up women at a wedding is to be natural, easy-going, positive and confident when talking with people.

Just be your normal, confident, cool self and let things happen naturally. Allow your natural confidence and charisma to come through when you're walking around and talking to many people and having a great time.

When you talk to the beautiful women, they won't assume that you're desperately trying to pick them up because they will have seen you having a great time with other people. They will see you as a cool, confident, popular guy who is worth getting to know.

Of course, if you're already a confident, cool alpha male, then you don't need to anything else but walk over and make her feel naturally attracted to you.

I Like a Woman at Work

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If the woman that you like at work is beautiful or pretty, then a lot of other guys probably like her too.

So, how can you get her to like you and how can you be sure that she isn't going to reject you if you ask her out?

Simple.

Make sure that she feels attracted to you first.

As you will discover from the video above, women decide which guy to be with based on how much sexual attraction he makes her feel. If a guy only makes a woman feel friendly, platonic (non-sexual) emotions, then it will be more likely that she will reject his advances.

If you want this woman at work to like you, make sure you begin by triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you. Of course, this doesn't mean that you should be sleazy or do anything that might get you into trouble at work.

[image: Flirting with a woman at work]

Instead, simply make her feel attracted to you based on your confidence, charisma, masculine vibe and subtle use of flirting.

You have to be careful using flirting in the workplace, but it can be done as long as she is attracted to you and you then keep it subtle and light when you and her are alone or away from prying eyes.

Turning Her into Your Lover or Girlfriend

[image: Turn coworker into girlfriend]

In today's work-centric world where people usually spend most of their life working to earn a living or to build a career, it's only natural (and even expected) for you to like a woman that you work with.

I often have guys contacting me asking things like, "Dan, I like a woman at work. How do I get her to be my girlfriend without getting myself into trouble with management or the boss?" or "Dan, how can I get a woman that I work with into a relationship with me outside of the work environment?" and "How can I get her to meet me outside of the workplace, so we can have time alone and away from our coworkers?"

So, what should you do? How can you get her to become your lover or girlfriend?

Essentially, what you need to do is:

1. Make her feel attracted to you.
2. Flirt with her at "after work drinks" with co-workers or just the two of you, or invite her to a party or event that you're going to with friends on a weekend.
3. When you're certain that she is attracted to you, tell her that you like her by saying, "By the way...you're sexy...I like you" to ensure that she knows that the attraction is mutual.

After mutual attraction has been established, you need to get her back to your place (or go to her place) to “hang out,” or arrange for a time when you and her catch up just the two of you. Then, you simply need to build up the sexual tension between you and release that with a kiss and then sex.

5 Types of Guys Who Get Rejected By Female Coworkers

[image: Rejected after hitting on a woman at work]

If you watch a lot of TV or the latest Hollywood movies, you will often see office romances play out in fun, interesting and very dramatic ways. To entertain the audience, the scriptwriters will show unusual and even problematic relationships between men and women eventually end in sex, love and marriage.

However, in the real world, hooking up with women in the workplace usually follows fairly strict rules and if you fall into one of the following categories, the woman you like may be reluctant to explore sex or a romantic relationship with you...

1. The good friend

He is the guy whom she considers to be her “best friend” at work. They hang out together during their lunch break, they drink coffee together and when there’s a special project to be done, they volunteer to work together because they get along so well.

If a guy like this has been acting like her nice, innocent friend and then suddenly expresses how he feels about her, or suddenly asks her out, a woman will usually feel conned, tricked, confused and annoyed that he had been acting like a friend, but he actually wanted more all along.

Women don’t like it when a guy does this because there was no mutual attraction established between them, so he has been spending time around her under the act of being a nice guy who just wants to be friends. He has already broken the all-important trust that a man and woman need to have to sustain a healthy relationship.

The woman is then often left feeling embarrassed and uncomfortable around him because he has feelings for her, but she just sees him as a friend. Since she can’t avoid him because they work with each other, she will often become cold, distant or even rude towards him to get him to steer clear of her.

Watch this video for a deeper understanding of why acting like a nice guy and being too nice to a woman will often result in rejection...

Of course, there is nothing wrong with being nice to this female coworker of yours. You have to be nice, professional and get the job done. However, if you want her to become interested in having sex with you or getting into a sexual relationship with you, the next step that you need to take is to begin triggering her feelings of sexual attraction.

2. The boss

We’ve all seen those TV shows or movies where the boss sleeps with the receptionist or sexy office worker and yes, it does happen in real life sometimes too.

Personally speaking, I remember how many women started hitting on me when I got promoted to a position of leadership and then became the boss (I eventually left to run TheModernMan.com full time and have done so for the last 10 years).

I didn't act on the sudden interest of women at work because I was already getting heaps of action outside of the office and I didn't want to lose the respect of the people working for me by taking advantage of my position.

That said, not every woman who wanted to get into a relationship with me just because she felt attracted to me. Some of the women were just as protective about their career and reputation as I was and even though there was mutual attraction between us, neither of us wanted to act on it. Instead, we just remained professional and stayed focused on the job.

Most women do not want to be accused of sleeping with the boss, even if she is highly ranked herself and she definitely doesn't want to become the butt of office jokes and gossip. If the relationship breaks up, she will still have to face her boss every day and he may then decide to overlook her for promotions in future.

In my experience, I've found that women who have options with men outside of work and are focused on their career will be able to remain professional and not get involved in an office romance. So, if a boss starts hitting on her, she will reject his advances and may even look to complain to HR (Human Resources) or whoever else will be able to help her.

3. The office dead-beat

This one is pretty obvious, but a woman will be reluctant to date the office dead-beat.

He is the guy who has been in the same job, in the same company for the last 15 years and isn't going anywhere in the company in terms of being promoted to bigger and better positions. He has no real ambition and is going nowhere in life.

Getting into a relationship (even a casual one) with him would be a waste of her time because he has no future prospects or the desire to go anywhere with his life.

He might really like her and spend many lonely nights fantasizing about being her lover, boyfriend or husband, but she won't be interested unless he starts rising through the levels of his true potential as a man both at work and outside of the workplace.

Of course, if the woman is unattractive and has no options with other men outside of work, she might accept him out of desperation. However, if she is hot and can easily get herself a man who has more ambition and self-confidence, she will reject him.

4. The office womanizer

This is the guy who tries to sleep with every woman in the office.

He is a womanizer and goes from woman to woman hoping that one of them will eventually take the bait and sleep with him. Most professional, career focused women will be reluctant to become another one of his "trophies" and then become the office joke.

5. The office loser

Women are more attracted to alpha males than any other type of male. When one of the lowest-ranking males in her workplaces begins to hit on her or ask her out, it's only natural that she will reject him.

Mistakes That Guys Make When Trying to Hook Up With

Women They Meet in the Workplace

There are many mistakes a guy can make when he likes a woman at his workplace.

Unlike the dating game outside of the work environment, such as a nightclub, pub, bookshop or supermarket where he can simply chat to a girl and if it doesn't work out he can go talk to another girl and no-one will know what happened, at work he can find himself in a lot of trouble if he attempts to use his workplace in the same way that a man will use a nightclub or bar to meet women.

Mistake #1: He gets weird

When a guy doesn't have many (or any) options with other women who are attracted to him, his attraction for one particular woman can lead him to begin acting in strange, weird ways around her.

Soon enough, everyone in the office knows what's going on and can see that he has a crush on her. This will be absolutely fine if the attraction is mutual and if he's a guy that other people respect, but if he's a lower-ranking male and the attraction isn't mutual, it's not going to be cool at all.

The woman, in turn, wonders “If he's like this now, what will he be like if I give him a chance and go out with him? If people already think it's funny now, what will they think of me if he and I become a couple?” and as a result she steers clear of him.

Then, when she starts to pull back and not want to talk to him as much or be around him, he gets weird about it and she can see that he feels rejected, angry and hurt...even though they're not a couple.

These type of guys usually fall into the category of trying to “get lucky” with a woman and hope that, despite not being able to make women feel attracted to his personality and confidence, women will be kind and give him a chance.

Mistake #2: He doesn't create enough (or any) attraction between them

There are guys who will say, “I like a woman at work and I want her to be my girlfriend,” but he doesn't even know if she feels sexually attracted for him or not. This is one of the 3 things that attractive women hate about single guys...

If a guy wants to have a sexual relationship with a woman, he needs to begin by making her feel sexual attraction for him. It's easy for us guys to feel sexually attracted to women because most of our attraction is based on the woman's looks.

However, women place more importance on how you make them feel by way of your personality and confidence. If you can't attract women with who you are on the inside, they usually won't care if you look good on the outside.

Seducing a woman at work is similar to seducing a woman anywhere else, in that both parties have to feel mutually attracted to each other.

Guys often try to ask out a woman at work before they have established mutual, sexual attraction will be rejected around 80% of the time. 20% of women (the desperate, unattractive or inexperienced ones) will give it a go anyway (despite not feeling much or any attraction), but most women will not.

Mistake #3 – He uses inappropriate flirting and body language

Flirting, sexual innuendo and sexual body language are great tools of seduction to use outside of the work environment.

However, when at work, you should always aim to keep things professional and only using flirting, sexual innuendos and sexual body language when there is mutual attraction and you are alone or away from prying eyes.

If you're new to using attraction techniques on women, I highly recommend that you do NOT attempt to practice using those techniques in the workplace. Practice attracting women outside of work and become good at it before you attempt to pick up women at work.

For example: Awkward flirting or sexual innuendos may cause her to feel embarrassed in front of others and she may even complain to a manager or the HR department. If you are reckless and just try to get a result with her even though you aren't sure what you're doing, you will likely get yourself into trouble at work or simply get yourself rejected.

If you're not comfortable attracting women outside of work, or you don't have time to do that, at least make sure that you do a lot of learning first.

Watch the video below to understand a lot of the common mistakes guys make when they haven't ever been taught how to properly attract women...

As you will discover from the video above, attracting women can be a very easy, effortless thing that you do in life. Once you "get it," attracting women becomes one of the easiest, most exciting and most rewarding things that you will ever learn to do in your life.

Mistake # 4 His timing is all wrong

If a guy tries to get his female coworker to kiss him in front of others, (e.g. at after work drinks or a work function) or agree to go out on a date when coworkers are listening to the conversation, she will almost always reject him or play hard to get.

Sure, some women don't give a crap about their job and are more interested in getting laid and falling in love, but a lot of women don't want to be seen to be slutty in front of others.

Even if you know for sure that this woman is attracted to you, she will most-likely want to avoid making out with you or agreeing to go on a date with you when her colleagues can see what is going on. I recommend that you practice discretion by saying and doing such things away from prying eyes.

The only other exception here is when a guy is very attractive to women (i.e. he is confident, charismatic, charming, respected by others, etc) and the woman is super keen to be his lover or girlfriend.

In that case, she will often be proud to let everyone else see that they are hooking up or in the process of getting into a relationship.

Getting the Result You Want

[image: Getting the result you want]

Most women are a lot easier to seduce into a sexual relationship than men realize.

Sure, women do PLAY hard to get, but that doesn't mean that they ARE hard to get. In most cases, a woman will play hard to get when there isn't enough mutual attraction, so make sure that you aren't trying to get this woman to "like" you a lot as a person, before suddenly owning up to your feelings for her.

There is a natural flow that almost all relationships follow and as long as you stick to that path (i.e. attract her first), things will usually flow from one stage to the next.

If you attempt to go against the flow of nature by asking a woman out or showing sexual or romantic interest in her before you've made her feel any attraction for you, she will usually reject you or begin to play very hard to get.

To avoid the unnecessary games that happen when the right process isn't followed, just make sure that you turn her on before you attempt to get anywhere with her.

Attracting a woman and guiding her into sex and a relationship is easy and it's something that any guy can learn how to do.

If you're not sure what you should be saying or doing to make this woman at work feel attracted to you and want to have sex with you, click around my site and keep learning now...

What is My Life Purpose?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're asking yourself, What is my life purpose? then you've probably recently realized that, despite all the activity in your life (e.g. TV, work or study, clicking "like" on Facebook, grocery shopping, hanging out with friends, masturbating to porn, etc), your life really isn't amounting to much at all.

You see other men achieving big things in life, changing the world and pushing forward to achieve their dreams, but you're not quite sure where you fit in to the big picture of the world around you.

[image: What is the point of my life if I have no clear purpose in mind?]

Finding the answer to your very important question of, What is my life purpose? is all about discovering what really fires you up and what you feel most passionate about in life.

Sure, there are guys out there who feel passionate about ending global conflict, curing a certain disease, ridding the world of poverty and so on, but that doesn't mean you don't have a life purpose like that if you don't feel the same way. Your life purpose is whatever you feel passionate about, and every guy is going to be different.

The first thing that comes to mind for a lot of guys (especially those who aren't very good with women) when they think of their life purpose is women.

Yet, despite your passion for women and desire to have sex with many women, the truth is that women don't want to be your purpose. Women know they aren't the answer to the ultimate destiny of humanity, but are simply part of it like we men are.

Although most women don't know why, they pretty much all want you to think big in terms of your purpose in life. Enjoy their physical beauty, enjoy sex with them and enjoy the love, but that is not your purpose in life.

Think BIG

Think about it...

- Where will humanity be in 1,000 years if we keep advancing our medicinal and computer technologies?
- What will happen in artificial intelligence becomes a billion times smarter than humans (that's what experts are expecting will happen by 2100)?
- What will happen when nanotechnology is being used to keep our human bodies alive indefinitely?
- What will happen when we are able to merge our brains with computer technology?
- What will happen when virtual reality (i.e. like the games you play on Xbox for example) are just as real and complex as the world around you today?
- What will happen when we use new, advanced technology to travel through the universe at speeds millions of times faster than the speed of light?

When all that happens, do you think that life is going to be just like it is today? Of course not. Pretty much everything is going to change.

Yet, in my opinion, one thing will remain the same all the time for men who want to be successful with women. That is: Women will always want men to maintain their masculine superiority over women.

As long as women are women (I think they always will be, at heart), they are going to want you to â□□ be the man.â□□

No matter what changes happen in the future for humanity one thing is for sure: As a man, you have to be a pillar of strength in this world. You have to be a man who knows what he wants from life and goes after it with unrelenting passion and determination.

If the questions I've asked you above have gotten you thinking, then it will be easy for you to understand why I suggest to you that your life purpose not be about acquiring the material â□□ thingsâ□□ that people in aimed for 50 years ago.

Sure, you will need a place to stay, a vehicle to get around and a woman who loves you and can provide a family for you if you want, but outside of that, just know that things are totally open to change.

Lost Men of the Modern World

[image: What is my life purpose as a man?]

Hundreds of millions of modern men are confused about what to do with their life today, so don't think that by you asking yourself, â□□ What is my life purpose?â□□ that you're some sort of failure and every other guy is onto it.

Most guys I've met over the years have goals (e.g. finish university, get a certain job, buy a house, travel, etc), but as I explain in Better Than a Bad Boy, those things are merely the â□□ mechanics of lifeâ□□ and are not your life purpose.

If you think that your life purpose is the basic mechanics of life, then you're going to be feeling unhappy and unfulfilled your entire life.

Each time you get to achieve one of those milestones, you may hope that it is the thing that will finally make you happy, only to discover that the feeling of happiness and achievement was temporary. Why? It's not your purpose. Your purpose is bigger and more far reaching than that.

It's fair to say that most of us aspire to experience a continued state of happiness in life, but many guys make the mistake of thinking that happiness can be found in buying things and having all of the material possessions they've ever dreamed of.

Not realizing that money is a recent invention that was created by humans on a planet that is billions of years old, inside a seemingly infinite universe, they think, â□□ If I had loads of money I could buy a house in every country in the world and then Iâ□□d be happyâ□□ or, â□□ If I could afford to have a huge collection of classic cars, Iâ□□d feel satisfied with myselfâ□□ or, â□□ If I didnâ□□t have to go to work every day and I had enough money to just do what I wanted Iâ□□d be a happy man.â□□

I don't have anything against money and in fact, I think it's a brilliant invention that has helped humanity rapidly advance towards it's destiny by acting as the â□□ carrot at the end of the stickâ□□ for innovators and entrepreneurs, yet it's not your purpose or the purpose of humanity. Although money will allow you to do more of the things you want when you want, it's not the answer to the question of, What is my life purpose?

Thinking big means thinking in terms of what it's possible for you to achieve in your life as a man, not thinking in terms of how many material possessions you can acquire. Having every luxury you could possibly want in life is not the same as being who you want to be in life.

Discovering your life purpose has a lot to do with who you want to be in your life. You can make that discovery by figuring out what really inspires you; what makes you feel totally fired up, and what fills you with enthusiasm every time you think about it or talk about it.

Guys with purpose don't think in terms of, I'd settle for this or I'd be satisfied enough with that, they think in terms of what they really want to get out of life and what would bring them a sense of true satisfaction at having achieved their full potential in life.

Women Refer to a Man With Purpose as a Real Man

Did you know that women are instinctively attracted to men with purpose? Have you any idea why this might be? Think about it. Imagine these three men right now:

- Man #1: Knows what he wants from life and is going after it with confidence. His woman can relax into his masculine direction in life and be his woman.
- Man #2: Doesn't know what he wants from life and looks to women to lead him, take care of him and be his direction.
- Man #3: Does know what he wants from life, but is too afraid to go after it, so he attempts to hide from his true potential behind a job that he doesn't love or behind a woman who he hopes will stick by him, even though he's afraid of becoming a real man.

Man #1 is obviously the ideal choice for a woman because, with him, she doesn't have to think or behave like a man. He takes on that role and allows her to be a woman, all the time.

It doesn't mean that she can't have purpose too (many women do have purpose), but it does mean that she doesn't have to be the man in their relationship. She can relax, knowing that her man has a plan and he will stop at nothing to ensure he achieves it.

A purposeful man represents someone who potentially has what it takes to provide for a woman and (despite the fact that some women can provide for themselves or that some masculine woman on TV say they don't need a man), on a deep, instinctive level, most women are still looking for a provider and a protector in this world.

In recent times, women have been able to earn their own money and have police, media and government institutions to protect them. However, deep down, they still yearn to be with a man who knows who is, what he wants and will forever go after it with unrelenting confidence and determination.

When a woman gets that sense from you when she is interacting with you for the first time, on a date or in a relationship, it makes her feel a deep respect and attraction for you that she simply cannot feel for lesser men.

Instinctively, she begins to stick to you like glue and her mind begins to see you as her pillar of strength in this reality; as her one and only man for life.

Some guys make the mistake of thinking that â€œtalking the talkâ€œ (about having life purpose) will impress women, even though he's not prepared to â€œwalk the walk.â€œ

It is true that women are impressed by a guy with purpose, but if heâ€™s all talk and no action, heâ€™s a fake and women will pick up on it right away or near the beginning of the relationship and they'll reject or dump him.

While you certainly can get laid by pretending to be a guy who is going places and aiming for big things in life, you will eventually be found out as a fraud and left behind.

So, don't hide from your true potential in life and stop ignoring the chance for you to discover your true purpose in life...

Approaching Groups of Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Would you have the confidence and conversation skills to approach the group of women above?

If not, is it because you lack the confidence to do so, don't know what to say or are just worried about being rejected in front of others? Are you thinking that women like them wouldn't be interested in a guy like you?

If you knew that approaching them wouldn't result in you dying or being humiliated by rejection, would you approach?

Don't worry – Most guys can't work up the courage to approach women. Even though approaching a group of women won't result in death or serious embarrassment, most guys just can't do it.

If you want to build up your confidence to approach groups of women, watch this...

In most cases, the only guys that beautiful women approached by are drunk guys or guys who offer no challenge and are simply hoping to get lucky.

Single women hope to meet a guy who knows what he's doing when approaching women, but it RARELY happens. They just keep meeting the same type of guys over and over.

Watch this video for more info...

As you will discover from the video above, most women wish they could meet a guy who is more of a challenge to win over.

When you approach groups of women, what you need to do is make all (or most) of the women in the group feel attracted to you by:

1. Being confident.
2. Being charismatic.
3. Using humor.
4. Using flirting.
5. Be charming.

When a woman is feeling attracted to you and notices that her girlfriends are also feeling attracted to you, it then increases her attraction and desire for you. She wants to be the one who wins you over and in the process of doing that, she makes it easier to pick her up.

What if You Approach a Group of Women and They Reject You?

[image: Approaching groups of women]

Many guys avoid approaching women due to a powerful feeling of potentially being rejected. Other reasons that guys come up with to avoid approaching women include:

- What if I'm interrupting them?
- What if they don't want to be approached by a guy like me?

- What if I can't keep the conversation going and keep it interesting and they get annoyed that I'm hanging around?
- What if they humiliate me or make fun of me in front of everyone?
- What if they tell me to go away?
- What if I freeze up when I get there?
- What if I fumbles and embarrasses myself?

[image: Can't approach women]

When you ask yourself those sorts of questions before approaching a group of women, it's only natural that you will feel nervous and anxious about it.

Guys who can approach women simply block out any negative thoughts and either focus on positive thoughts or just go over and talk to the women without wasting time thinking about what might go right or wrong.

Rather than wasting time or making themselves feel nervous by thinking about it, they simply act on their instinct and take action like an alpha male would.

Movie Life vs. Real Life

[image: Woman slapping man]

If you watch a lot of TV sitcoms, TV drama shows or Hollywood movies, you will notice that guys who approach women usually get rejected.

A guy might get a drink tipped over his head for approaching, slapped for showing sexual interest in a woman or laughed at by people who see him approach the women.

Yet, what happens in movies is completely different to what happens in real life. In real life, most women are open to being approached because it's their opportunity to meet a guy.

Generally speaking, women don't approach men and simply wait to be approached, so they know that if a guy approaches, it is an opportunity for them to potentially find love or have some fun for a while.

In TV sitcoms and movies, women are often portrayed as mean-spirited people who go out of their way to embarrass, humiliate and ridicule any man who comes near them or shows interest in them.

It's almost always a case of a guy getting lucky and the woman eventually giving him a chance after rejecting him earlier in the movie or TV show. Groups of women are also often portrayed as being callous, cruel and unapproachable.

Why is that?

Why do TV shows and movies push that sort of message?

It is entertaining to watch for some men and women (not me!), because it's unusual and shocking to see women behave like that. If everything just worked perfectly every time (i.e. a man approaches a woman, she likes him, they have sex and live happily ever after), people would get very bored with that type of storyline very quickly.

So, for a guy who has been watching a bit too much TV or too many Hollywood movies, it's only natural that he might feel a bit turned off (or even terrified of) approaching groups of women. Instead of approaching women and getting to have real sex and enjoy real love, he sadly masturbates his desire away to porn every week.

To Approach or Not to Approach

[image: Approaching groups of women]

Of course not all groups of women want to be approached, or should be approached and assessing the situation before you approach is sometimes necessary.

For instance, there's no point approaching a group of women who are having a serious business lunch or when one of them is crying. It's just not the right time for flirting and having a fun conversation for hours on end, so either avoid that group of women or wait until you see an opening to approach much later on.

Apart from extreme cases like those though, pretty much every other group of women is open to be approached and even hoping that a guy approaches, so they have an opportunity to meet someone.

Common Mistakes That Guys Make When Approaching Groups of Women

Approaching groups of women is easy, but most guys get it wrong. That is a huge opportunity for you because when you approach in the way that women are hoping a guy does, it instantly marks you out as a man who is worth paying attention to.

Here are some common mistakes that guys make:

1. Approaching the group with obvious nervousness or fear

Nothing guarantees a quick rejection like a nervous, insecure guy. Insecurity and nervousness are perceived as being a sign of low self-esteem and a lack of self confidence and women find that very unattractive in men.

2. Crumbling at the first sign of resistance

If a guy approaches a group and he is not greeted with open arms, he will often give up too quickly and walk away. This can be perceived as a sign of someone who is mentally and emotionally weak and women find this to be a turn off.

Women want to see that you have the mental and emotional strength to stand there and talk to them, regardless of how challenging they may be behaving towards you.

3. Asking permission to sit or talk with them

Women don't want to have to boss you around, mother you or shelter you from the big, bad world. They also don't want to meet a guy who behaves like he's just stepped out of a time machine from the 1800s, where it was impolite to approach and talk to women he didn't know. In the modern world, it's one big party and everyone is invited.

You are invited by default, so there's no need to ask if you can come to the party.

This is your world and your life, just as much as it is their world and their life. Get involved and enjoy it.

Knowledge is Power

[image: How to pick up a woman]

Approaching groups of women may seem intimidating at first, but when you know exactly what to say and do to get women to like you, it quickly becomes the most exciting and rewarding thing that you've ever done in your life.

You approach a group of women and they immediately show their interest in you. Then, when you pass the tests that they put guys through, the women in the group become extremely interested and even begin to compete amongst each other for your attention. It's really cool how it works.

I remember when I first started approaching women and getting positive results. I couldn't wipe the smile off my face for days after sleeping with my first catwalk model...and she was just the first of many catwalk models, pretty girls and sexy women that I've slept with since!

How to Be a Man

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To be considered a real man by most people you meet, you should have most or all of the following qualities:

- Have a 100% belief in yourself and your ability to achieve what you're aiming for in life and in any given situation.
- Have a strong life purpose that you never give up on.
- Be loving and caring towards those around you, but not to the point where people take advantage of you or use you.
- Be a pillar of strength for those around you. When other people crumble under pressure, a real man can be relied on to remain strong so he can then fix a situation, create a solution, lead people to victory and so on.
- Be an alpha male rather than a lower-ranking male who gets disrespected by others.
- Be the kind of guy who "wears the pants" in a relationship, so the woman is able to relax into being a feminine woman around him.
- Make a woman feel protected and safe.
- Be able to make a woman feel attracted to your confidence and personality when you first meet her, rather than hoping to get lucky with a woman who will give you a chance.
- Be able to deepen a woman's feelings of love, respect and attraction for you over time, rather than taking her for granted and hoping that she will stick around because things were good at the start.

There are many important points above, but if you're aim to be a man is to be successful with women, this is the most important skill you will ever develop...

As you will discover from the video above, you can be a very nice, loving, caring and generous man to a woman, but if you're unable to deepen her attraction when in a relationship, she won't always be willing to stick around and put up with that.

Media Confusion on How to Be a Man

Due to the many different forms of media (TV, radio, print, music, websites, etc) providing mixed messages about how to live our lives, the definition of what it means to be a man has become jumbled and confused in today's world.

If you look at the dictionary definition of the word "man" it doesn't explain how to be a man:

| Man (noun): An adult male person, as distinguished from a boy or a woman.

If you watch TV sitcoms, movies and music videos, you are being told to be all sorts of different men. So, who is right and how do actually be a man other than just being an "adult male person" like the dictionary suggests?

Men You Already Know

Undoubtedly, there will be several men that you admire and look up to in life.

It might be your father, a relative, a teacher, actor, writer or celebrity. If you look up to them and see them as being more than a man than you, then they are someone who is worth paying more attention to in your question to discover what it means to be a real man. What traits do they have that truly mark them out as being a man?

Are they living the type of life that you aspire to, or do they each have different traits that you admire?

As you may be realizing now, every man is not perfect at everything and thus shouldn't be a role model for everything in your life. Each man will be excellent in certain areas of life and you should seek to learn from him about his area of speciality, rather than copying everything he does and hoping that it works for you.

Why Don't We Get Taught This Stuff in School?

The simple answer is: Most teachers don't know all the answers about "how to be a man" and are simply guessing based on what they've seen in movies and on TV.

It would be great if boys could be taught how to be men, but instead we are also left to go home and watch the mixed messages on TV and in the movies. When we watch music videos, we see even more mixed messages about what it means to be a man.

Did Your Father Teach You How to Be a Man?

[image: How to be a man - advice for guys]

If you're like most guys, then your father probably taught you many great things about life, but wasn't able to truly teach you how to be a respect, loved, wanted and successful man.

Without his guidance, you probably did what most modern men do: Looked to TV and the movies for the answers.

You might have even tried to find the answers by listening to the lyrics of your favorite musicians or bands, not realizing that most of the musicians playing music have their own insecurities, fears and issues with being a man.

Just because a musician passionately sings a song, it doesn't mean that the message they are trying to get across is correct or effective advice.

Usually, it's just a case of the musician not being able to achieve something and simply singing about how much it sucks. That's not how to be a man.

A real man assesses a situation, searches for solutions, fixes it and goes on to achieve what he wanted to achieve. He doesn't sit around crying about it and writing Help me...feel sorry for me lyrics.

Don't blame yourself for turning to movies for the answers though; pretty much everyone does it.

Before I became the confident, respected man that I am today, I too looked to the random men in the media for clues on what it means to be a man. Then one day I realized that most of the people you see on TV are not perfect and do not have all the answers.

They're simply acting on TV or doing whatever they're getting paid to do.

Just because a guy is on TV and many people like his acting or TV show, it doesn't mean that he knows the secrets of how to be a man.

He likely has all sorts of personal issues and insecurities in life and with women. To get evidence of that, all you need to do is watch a few documentaries about the private life of celebrities and you will see that most of them are a mess.

Have You Been Seeking Answers in All the Wrong Places?

In most comedy movies and TV sitcoms, there will be a "loveable loser" type of guy who is nervous, insecure, awkward, jealous and who is the butt of most of the jokes.

It's entertaining and amusing to watch for certain viewers (not me). To entertain the viewers, the writers will create a situation where the loveable loser "saves the day," has everyone wanting to be his friend and then gets the girl in the end.

It all adds up to nice little feelings of "Yeah!!! Good guys win in the end!" when the credits roll, but it's not how the real world works.

After watching countless TV shows and movies where nervous, socially-awkward men win in the end, it's no wonder that so many guys adopt a wimpy, vulnerable persona.

Many guys waste half their life hoping that people will sorry for him and say, "Heyyy! Stop being mean to Dave. He's a nice guy" and then everything will be fine like it is in the movies. In the real world, most people don't have time to take care of weak, wimpy people and will simply overlook them, take advantage of them or make fun of them.

Some kind-hearted people might give wimpy guys some compliments and stick up for him when others are picking up for him, but he won't get his blockbuster movie ending where he gets the girl and everyone is high-fiving him, hugging him and hanging off his every word for saving the day or the world.

So, if you want to be a man that others respect, love and want to be around, don't go copying what you see in TV sitcoms or movies and don't think that the lyrics of latest pop (or rock) song has the answer either.

What Type of Man Do You Really Want to Be?

Do you want to be a bad boy, a jerk, a good guy alpha male, a wimpy nice guy or none of those? If you are not clear on what type of man you want to be come, you will end up going around in circles feeling confused for many decades to come.

How to Be a Cool Guy

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to be a cool guy is to be the guy who can:

1. Naturally attract women with his personality and confidence.
2. Make other guys respect him and want to be his friend by being a good guy alpha male.
3. Be charismatic and charming around people.
4. Remain confident, focused and driven as he goes after his biggest dreams and goals in life. He is then the type of guy that others look up to and respect.

The first one on the list above is the ability to naturally attract women with your personality and confidence. Are good at making women feel attracted to your personality and confidence?

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction works...

Being a guy who can naturally attract women ensures that women like you, guys want to be your friend and people admire you because you have hot women in your life.

However, when a guy doesn't know how to attract women, he's often looked upon as a bit of loser and outsider when he's around the "cool crowd" or beautiful women. Attracting women is easily the most important skill that you need to have to be considered a cool guy by others.

Being Cool is Easy...For Some Guys

[image: Why are other guys cooler than me?]

There are some guys in this world who make everything look so easy.

They seem to have the coolest jobs, they always seem to hang out in the coolest places and they definitely always appear to have the most beautiful women on their arms.

For the guys who don't have any of those things, these guys are the epitome of "un-cool."

Understandably for guys who feel that they are "un-cool" finding a quick fix solution is at the top of their agenda. How to be a cool guy however, is not about just about how a guy presents himself physically, what he has accomplished in life or what he does for a job; it is about how he feels about himself.

What Does it Mean to Be Cool?

Being cool is not about being just like a certain guy you've seen in a movie or on TV.

Coolness means something different in every culture and to every person. For example, what some people will describe as cool clothing – others will view as weird, or a person who is a cool celebrity in one country will be considered a geek somewhere else.

However, the one thing that everyone will agree on, is that being cool is the ability to be comfortable with yourself and with who you are.

Of course advertising and TV bombard us with so many images and ideas about what they say is cool, that often the one thing that makes a person cool, their ability to be themselves, is the one thing that gets lost in all the hype.

[image: Colognes that women love]

The media is designed to sell us stuff and in their attempts to do this they will convince you that to be a cool guy you will have to:

- Wear a certain cologne.
- Drive a particular make of car.
- Wear a certain brand of clothing.
- Hang out at a specific club / bar / restaurant or holiday resort.

However, coolness is not something that you buy in a shop or wear on your body. It's about who you are as a person; your confidence, your belief in yourself and how that allows you to be your true self all the time.

[image: Confused men thinking that it's all about looks]

So, stop looking in the mirror and trying to work out how you can look cooler. Coolness comes from within. Believe in yourself and your sex appeal to women and you will naturally exude the type of vibe that attracts women and makes other men respect you.

Mistakes That Guys Make When Trying to Be Cool

Often, guys will do almost anything to be seen as being "cool" by those they are looking to impress.

Unfortunately, trying too hard in that way has the opposite effect and the guy ends up revealing that he doesn't believe in himself, doesn't think he is good enough "as is" and has to keep trying to hopefully impress others, in the hope that they might find him cool. Common mistakes that guys make in their efforts to be a cool guy can include:

1. Pretending to be someone he's not

Guys like this will put on a front (a fake or exaggerated persona) so that others will perceive them as being cool.

They might pretend to like things that they secretly hate, hang out in places where other "cool" people hang out even though they don't like to be there and act in ways that are against their personal beliefs and opinions, just to fit in.

2. Following all the latest trends in the hope of fitting in

As mentioned earlier, the media can easily convince guys that buying the latest cologne, shirt, watch or car will make him cool. When in conversation, he will continually bring up the brand of clothing he is wearing, the cool car he drives, the watch he wears (that a certain celebrity happens to wear) and so on.

People will instinctively realize that he is insecure and unsure of himself and is looking to use material possessions to prove his coolness, instead of realizing that coolness is about who he is as a person, with or without any material possessions.

3. Constantly changing his opinions to suit others

Some guys will change their opinions depending on the crowd they are with at the time; even if they secretly disagree with what is being said. When people pick up on that, they will quickly realize how uncool the guy is. He's so unsure of himself and so lacking in self-confidence that he is willing to forego who he is, in the hope of being seen as cool.

4. Being a people pleaser

Always doing what others want in the hope that they like you, is a surefire way to appear uncool. People pleasers are perceived as being mentally and emotionally weak; the exact opposite to what cool guys are.

How To Be a Cool Guy: Be Your Best, Most Confident and Authentic Self

Have you ever heard someone say, â€œJust be yourself?â€œ It's actually great advice.

Yet, most people cannot be themselves due to their fears, nervousness and anxiety brought on by their ineffective mindsets.

Unless you are truly confident in yourself around people and women, then you're not going to be considered a cool guy by most people you meet.

Sure, lower-ranking males will consider you to be cool as long as you're a little bit more confident than them, but if you want the â€œcool crowdâ€œ to see you as a cool and beautiful women to see you as a cool guy they'd love to have sex and a relationship with, then you need to have the confidence of an alpha male.

When it comes to the topic of how to be a cool guy, just don't get sucked into thinking that the latest deodorant, hairstyle, car or piece of clothing will finally turn you into the cool guy you've always dreamed of. If you want to be a cool guy for real, you've got to focus on improving YOU, not your wardrobe.

To be a cool guy, you need to:

1. Believe in yourself

Know what you want in life and believe that you can and will achieve it, no matter what.

2. Stand up for yourself

Being a people pleaser and allowing others to push you around (because you're too afraid to say anything in case it makes them not like you) is not cool and will basically make you appear like a weak-minded loser. I hate to use the "L" word (loser), but it really does apply.

3. Be assertive, but flexible

Just because you stand up for your opinions, that doesn't mean you shouldn't be open to listening to what others have to say and visa versa. A guy who is secure in himself and stands up for what he believes in, but who also respects others for their beliefs is definitely a cool guy.

4. Be loving

Caring about others is a sign of someone who is confident in himself and who is emotionally secure. Listen to people when they speak and allow them to feel good about themselves, but at the same time, don't let them push you around or overlook you.

5. Command respect

Do this in a light-hearted way without being aggressive or overly-serious about it. Let people know what you want, but also take what they want into account also.

As long as you aim for win-win situations (i.e. both of you benefit from the situation) and don't let people push you into win-lose situations (i.e. they win/they benefit and you lose/you don't benefit), you command respect in the right way.

6. Have purpose in life

If you have purpose in life, are reaching for your true potential and are on your way to success (or already successful), other guys will brag about you to their friends and will want to be around you more.

7. Be yourself

Having the confidence to truly be yourself is a sure sign of coolness. You don't have to be perfect to be cool. Everyone has self-perceived flaws, but to be at ease with them is the epitome of cool.

Are You Ready to Become Cooler?

If you're ready to become a much cooler guy right now, I am ready to show you the way...

Standard Dating Procedure

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The standard dating procedure involved with dating a woman should go like this:

1. You make her feel attracted to you when you interact with her in person, on the phone or online.
2. You exchange contact details and you (the man) then call her 1-3 days later to arrange a time to catch up.
3. On the date, you build up her feelings of sexual attraction for you, connect with her and end the date with a kiss and/or sex.
4. Once you've begun having sex, the relationship automatically starts and you will continue to be in a dating relationship until you both decide that you want an exclusive, committed relationship with each other.

The most important thing of all is that you start out by making her feel sexually attracted to you. Don't try to become her friend or pretend that you're not interested in anything sexual with her. It's not 1900 anymore.

In today's world, sex happens very quickly and after that, the couple then decides if they want to get serious each other. According to a study by Singles in America, 55% of couples had sex on their first date and 70% of women admitted to having had a one night stand when asked the question in a European study.

So, don't think that you need to court her for weeks or months before anything sexual happens. She's usually going to be hoping that it happens right away or quickly, so she can then decide how she really feels about you.

Drop the Games and Be Real

[image: Modern standard dating procedure]

When you watch movies (which are designed to entertain you, not educate you), you'll see that the standard dating procedure pretty much always consists of an elaborate game played between a man and a woman.

The dating game usually involves the guy convincing the woman that he is interested in her, proving himself to her, going out on a date (which she reluctantly agrees to), and when he finally delivers her to her door, she turns him away without a kiss because she is not "that kind of girl".

Then, after a few dates and many scenes where the guy is trying to impress her, she finally decides that she's ready to get passionate and it is the best sex ever; the bed is covered in flowers, the linen is white and the orgasms are loud and sweaty. The music is dramatic, the lighting is perfect and the characters look happier than ever.

Then, a little while later, after a small misunderstanding (or because one of them isn't ready or still has feelings for their ex), they break up; only to be reunited shortly before the screen credits roll to live happily ever after, or until the sequel.

In real life however, that is not the standard dating procedure for guys who know how to go through what I call The Flow of a natural sexual courtship.

The speed in which a couple goes from hello to having sex and beginning a relationship varies because every situation is different and every woman is different. So, while there is a flow of a sexual courtship and that is what I (and 1,000s of my happy readers) see as the standard dating procedure, you must understand that it doesn't always go like this:

| Meet > Sexual chemistry > Kiss > Sex > Love > Relationship.

Sometimes, it goes like this:

| Meet > Sexual chemistry > Phone number (or Facebook details) > The first date > Kiss > A few more dates > Sex > Love > Relationship.

So, if you're looking for a standard dating procedure that goes at exactly the same pace, you will be disappointed. Although the basic dating process is the same, the speed at which you go through it will vary.

Dating Through the Ages

[image: Old standard dating procedure]

Back in the 1800's and all the way through to the mid 1900's, dating was not an issue because people simply got married out of necessity (easier to survive together) and tradition (that's what people did). Apart from the naughty people who had sex before marriage, almost all most women would still be a virgin by the time they got married.

For the man, the standard dating procedure was pretty simple: Find a woman, marry her, impregnate her and raise the family together. The procedure went something like this:

- 1. The formal introduction: A man and a woman were formally introduced by a senior family member, or by a well respected member of the community.
- 2. The courtship: The couple would "date" by meeting at the lady's home or in a more public setting and but in most cases, they would accompanied by a chaperone to keep an eye on them and ensure that they didn't kiss or have sex.
- 3. The engagement: The man would formally ask the woman's father for her hand in marriage. If accepted, the couple would be engaged and then plan their wedding.
- 4. The wedding: The couple would exchange vows and after the wedding was over and they had time to themselves, they would have sex for the first time and consummate the marriage.

Although some modern men wish that dating still worked that way today, the fact is that it no longer does. Times have truly changed and approaching a sexual courtship with a woman with the standard dating procedure of 200 years ago is not going to make her swoon.

Sure, you can be a gentleman and here at The Modern Man, we certainly recommend that you be a good guy and respect women.

If you want to be successful with women and dating in today's world, you must understand and accept that the standard dating procedure today has changed. In most cases, a woman will want to have sex with you first before she decides whether or not she wants to be your girlfriend.

Now, that is not to say that all modern women are loose and easy, but it's just that with such a high divorce rate, modern women aren't willing to fully commit to a guy right away. Additionally, they have been told since they were young, *â"¢Do whatever you want. Sleeping with many men is okay. You don't have to get married at all if you don't want to*â"¢ by TV, movies, authority figures, teachers, friends and even family.

If you approach the dating procedure as though you're living in 1800, don't expect women to happily go along with it. They likely won't say, â"¢Hey, you're using the standard dating procedure from 1800,â"¢ but they will say, â"¢Sorry, I just don't think this will work out. I'd rather just be friends.â"¢

I'm not saying that you need to have sex with every women you date right away, but many modern women secretly want to so they can get a feel for who you really are.

If you're not comfortable with that and would rather wait until marriage before having sex, then you'd better go to groups and places where those women hang out. Don't expect other women who don't believe what you do to be happy to wait until marriage.

Heck, if they are like 95% of modern women, they will already have had sex before they are 20 years old with a few guys, at least. I know, I know â"¢ some guys find that appalling and off-putting, but those same guys love to masturbate to porn with women who've had sex with 1,000s of guys.

Deal with it, times have changed. However, as mentioned, if you want a women who will only have sex after she is married, then go and meet those women.

Obviously, standard dating procedure will be different in this case because you will have to use the approach that men used 100s of years ago. If that's what you want to do, then that is perfectly fine and you should do it.

In life, you've got to stand up for what you believe in and carve out the type of life you want to live. If you believe in no sex before marriage, then live that life.

If you believe in sex before relationship (how most modern people do it), thenÂ make sure that you start out by making a woman feel attracted to you first and then escalate to kissing and sex very quickly.

Factors That Will Speed Up the Flow From Hello to Sex

Attraction: If a guy knows exactly how to approach a woman and make her feel attraction for him, then the courtship will flow to the next level naturally and easily. However, if the guy doesn't understand how to make a woman feel sexual attraction for him, most women are going to reject him no matter how much of a good guy he is.

Confidence: A guy with the confidence to take action will get a lot further than the one who waits for the woman to give him permission to make the first move. Additionally, a guy with confidence is one who will find it easy to attract women.

When a woman notices that a guy is nervous or anxious while talking to her, it instantly turns her off and she cannot feel proper attraction and respect for him.

Body language and flirtation: These are powerful tools to have in your arsenal when approaching, meeting and dating women. With these abilities, a guy is able to direct the flow of the interaction simply by flirting and using body language to make the woman feel certain desirable emotions.

If heâs doing everything right, she will be ready to go from having a conversation, to kissing to having sex all in the space of a very short time; and more often than not, even that same day or night.

Being Respectful Towards Women

Although itâs important to be respectful towards the woman you are with, the environment, the circumstances and her specific personality will always play a key role in determining the standard dating procedure that you should follow. However, one thing that you need to accept is that most modern women are open to having sex right away or within a couple of dates.

Dragging it on for too long with certain women (who like to have sex right away so they can determine whether they really like you or not) will cause her to say something like, âI don't think this is going to work.â

So, don't do that to yourself. Don't miss out on having a loving, committed relationship because you think it's the âright thing to doâ to use the standard dating procedure from the 1800s.

How to Keep a Woman Interested

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to keep a woman interested is to maintain and build on her respect, love and attraction for you as a man.

Do you know how to do that? Watch this video to understand how it works...

You can keep a woman interested and deepen her feeling for you over time by:

- Being a confident guy around her, other people and in life.
- Being a man of your word, rather than giving up when things get challenging.
- Being the fun, positive, forward moving guy that makes her feel happy and safe to be around you because she knows that you will keep pushing forward to make life better for yourself and her.
- Loving her and accepting her for who she is, while also loving and accepting yourself.

There are many other ways to keep a woman interested, but those should help give you an introductory understanding of how it works.

Guys often contact me for advice on how to keep a woman interested during the initial dating phases and well into a relationship. More often than not itâs because the guy lacks self-confidence and as a result, he doesn't seem himself as very valuable to women.

That is a big mistake to make with women.

They don't want you to feel like you're not good enough. They are hoping to meet a guy who believes in himself and can be the challenge that they've been hoping to meet...

As you will discover from the video above, most guys react in the same old, boring way when they meet a woman they like. If you can have the courage and wisdom to be the challenge that women desperately want to meet, you will laugh at how easy it is to keep a woman interested.

Do You Live an Exciting Lifestyle, or is Your Lifestyle Fairly Ordinary?

[image: Consistent confidence]

One of the biggest mistakes that a guy can make is to think that a woman won't remain interested in him if he leads an ordinary, average lifestyle.

Based on the the amazing lifestyles that has seen other guys living on TV shows and in the movies when they've had a hot girlfriend, he may begin to believe that his lifestyle just isn't good enough for attractive women.

Of course, this is wrong because in the real world (not the fantasy world of TV and movies), itâs not what a guy does that captures a womanâs interest, but who he is as a man.

If youâre confident enough to be yourself at all times and if you have clear understanding of who you are as a man and what you want from life, then you are an interesting enough guy for most women.

Sure, you should do interesting things in life and go to interesting places when you can, but there are only so many places you can go before you've done it all. At the end of the day, keeping a woman interested when talking to her for the first time, on a date with her or 20 years into a relationship with her comes down to who you are as a man.

If you lack confidence around women, pretend to be something you're not and are too afraid to rise through the levels of life and reach your true potential as a man, then you're not an interesting guy. Instead, you're just another fearful, self-doubting who needs to a woman to be gentle with him.

When it comes to the topic of how to keep a woman interested, it's not about doing 100s of fun and exciting things that you think might be of interest to her; it's about being interesting as the man you already are right now.

Consistent Confidence

If you could work on one thing about yourself that would make it easier for you to keep a woman interested, it would definitely be your self-confidence.

If you are able to be confident when you meet a woman, when on a date with her, during sex and in a relationship, she will feel naturally attracted to you and will find it easier to remain interested in you, rather than losing interest because you're insecure.

If you are sincere about improving your success with women, you need to develop the type of self-confidence where you always believe in yourself, you always keep pushing forward in life and you never give up until you achieve what you want.

I call it Consistent Confidence and it is a key trait that women instinctively look for in a guy when they're first talking to him and while on a date.

Some guys do manage to get lucky and score themselves a woman without Consistent Confidence, but their insecurities always end up causing problems in the relationship (e.g. they become clingy or overly-protective or unable to control their jealousy) and it then falls apart.

With that in mind, let's have a look at some of the common mistakes that guys make when they lack confidence, but want to keep a woman interested...

Faking it

Guys who lack confidence and don't consider themselves to be very interesting or appealing to women, often fall into the trap of pretending to be confident and happy with their life in an effort to make themselves appear more interesting.

Fake confidence and fake happiness are not the same as genuine self-confidence and genuine happiness and women are natural experts at telling the difference.

Why?

They have to be good at it to separate the real men from the fakers. Despite the fact that women can now earn their own money, buy food at the supermarket and be protected by police, they still have the instinct to find a confident guy who will be able to survive, thrive and prosper in life while keeping her safe and protected.

So, if your body language doesn't match up to your confidently spoken words, a woman will see right through your act and will then be unable to feel true attraction and respect for you as a man.

When it comes to knowing how to keep a woman interested, what you need to focus on is consistently being a confident guy, while pushing forward in life and rising to your true potential as a man.

Don't fake it, do it.

Trying Too Hard

A lack of confidence can also lead a guy to trying way too hard to impress a woman, in the hopes of getting her interested and keep her interested.

This might mean behaving like a super nice guy and trying really hard to say the right things all of the time, but being overly-nice in that way can make a guy come across as insincere and untrustworthy. A woman is not going to remain interested in a faker and she's not going to remain interested in a guy that she can't trust as the real deal either.

A woman is looking for genuine self-confidence in a man and she knows that a man who has it doesn't need to try too hard to impress a woman.

Instead, he impresses her simply by being his natural, cool and confident self all the time. It's not an act, it is who he really is. He really is a confident, cool guy and as a result, women (and people for that matter) like him and want to be around him.

A big part of knowing how to keep a woman interested comes down to being able to relax into being your best self, all the time.

Putting Her on a Pedestal

Guys who lack self-confidence and thus doubt their ability to attract women and keep them interested, will often make the mistake of putting women on a pedestal.

This might lead to behavior such as hanging on her every word, going along with everything she says and continually telling her how amazing he thinks she is, how beautiful and how much he likes spending time with her.

Although some women will be flattered by all the attention and praise for a while, that won't last forever. Eventually (if she doesn't realize it immediately), she will pick up on the fact that the guy lacks confidence, isn't desired by other women and is basically hoping to score with her...if she will "let" him.

In his mind, he thinks it is a good idea to let her be in charge and he feels as though he's being the perfect gentleman by waiting until she is ready to like him in a sexual way. What he doesn't realize is that most modern women will have sex on the first night or first date and she will then love the guy and want to be in a relationship with him.

If the guy is also a good guy, she will say, âHe's so sweet to me. He's such a nice guy,â but she won't also say what really happened when they first met, âHe made me work hard to impress him when we first met. I felt lucky to kiss him and snatch him as mine before some other girl did.â

No...she'll just say that he is nice and sweet, which will further confuse the type of guy who puts women on a pedestal. He'll be thinking, â"¢Huh? I'm sweet to her! Why doesn't she like me?â"¢
Why do nice guys usually get rejected by women? Watch this video to find out...

As you will discover from the video above, it's a good thing to treat a woman well, but she will only truly appreciate it if you are also making her feel sexually attracted to you.

If you offer her attraction + nice treatment, she will label you as a charming guy. However, if you just offer nice treatment, she will label you as a nice guy and won't have much or any sexual or romantic interest in you.

Sexual Chemistry

[image: Sexual chemistry - keeping a woman interested]

Sexual chemistry happens when you and a woman both feel sexual attraction for each other and also get along in a way that makes you feel as though you have a unique connection between you both.

If you can approach a woman with confidence and then let her experience your confidence and flirting during an interaction, she will become sexually attracted to you. To keep a woman interested, you then need to build on the sexual chemistry between you and create a unique feeling connection with her.

This will happen naturally if you are confident and alpha and it will then build up the sexual tension to a point you both feel as though you just have to kiss and have sex with each other...

How to Tell Someone You Like Them

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to tell someone you like them (and that someone is a girl or woman), I advise you to make sure that you make her feel attracted to you first.

When a woman feels attracted to you (e.g. because of how confident and charismatic you are, how you make her laugh, etc), she will then “like” you in a sexual, romantic way as well. However, if you’re just being friendly to her (e.g. being a nice guy) then you will often get rejected.

Here’s why...

As you will discover from the video above, you need to be careful telling a woman that you like her if you’ve been putting on an innocent friend, nice guy act around her. Women don’t get turned on by niceness, but they do appreciate it when a guy who makes her feel attracted is also a good guy.

Should You Tell a Woman That You Have Feelings For Her?

It really depends on the woman, the situation and how you say it.

Watch this video for my full explanation on what to do...

As you will discover from the video above, a woman won’t always like it when a guy says that he likes her. For some women, it’s a bit too romantic and corny compared to the excitement of feeling attracted and then the guy having the confidence to move in for a first kiss and release the built up sexual tension with passionate sex.

After sex or at least a couple of hook ups, a woman will be dying for you to tell her how much you like her. If you don’t, she will usually try really hard to impress you and hope that you say it, or she will come out and tell you how much she likes you.

Sometimes, a Woman Knows That You Like Her and is Waiting For You to Make a Move

[image: Sometimes, the woman just knows]

Some women will assume by your actions that you like her and she will then begin flirting with you and hinting at wanting something more to happen between you and her.

From there, you just need to be the man and escalate things physically and emotionally. If you don’t, a woman will often be prepared to miss out on being with you altogether, rather than have to lead you all the way through a sexual courtship.

Don’t Copy the “Lovable Losers” From TV Sitcoms and Movies

Without many or any real male role models in their life, many modern men mistakenly identify with the goofy, hopeless romantic guys who stumble romantic comedy movies desperate to win the heart of the hot girl, the cheerleader or the girl next door.

Despite all the outrageous mistakes he makes in his attempts to attract her, she eventually sees what a terrific guy he is and then he miraculously wins her heart.

The reason I say â□□miraculouslyâ□□ is because that type of guy almost never wins the heart of the stunning beauty outside of these fictional films or TV shows.

Yes, the female audience might be rooting for him to get the girl and might even briefly say, â□□Awww, he's cute...Iâ□□d date him,â□□ but once they leave the darkened theater or turn off their TV set and step outside, they'll instantly forget that they liked the lovable loser in the movies because they will feel attraction to the confident guys they see.

Unless the woman is unattractive, lacks relationship experience or is feeling desperate for some attention, women don't date and fall in love with guys who are like those loveable losers you see in movies.

Fictional characters like these, while often based on a real person or a compilation of several guys the writer might know in real life (often including himself), are written into these stories for comic relief.

The loveable loser guys are the butt of the jokes and because the screenwriter can control the actions of all of the characters, he can tweak the story and create a miracle before the eyes of the audience. The beautiful, sexy, popular cheerleader or stunning model suddenly falls in love with the type of guy that almost every other woman would never date.

Yeah right. It's simply designed to make the female audience say, â□□Awww...how cuteâ□□ and the male audience to think, â□□Cool! Maybe I can get a girl by being Mr. Innocent or Mr. Nervous around women I like!â□□

It's likely also designed by writers who are hopeless with women and wish that the world worked the way they portrayed it on screen. Sort of like a â□□Hint, hint ladies! We nice guys are cool too. Don't overlook us. Stop going for the bad boys and start choosing us nice guys.â□□

So, just remember: Using these lovable losers as role models of how to tell someone you like them in real life is going to steer you in the totally wrong direction.

In the real world, women will think you're weird and lacking intelligence if you act like those guys do. Additionally, times have changed and modern women find most romantic gestures (that men have copied from the movies) to be lame, cheesy and outdated.

If you want to know how to tell someone you like them, don't go looking to the movies. Instead of telling her that you like her, make her feel attraction for you and then guide her through the stages of a sexual courtship.

Best Buddies...Aww, How Sweet

Does this sound similar to your situation? You and the woman you like are great friends and can talk about anything together.

In fact, at times it feels like you are best buddies. You hang out together and always seem to have a great time, so surely that means you are meant for each other, right? No, it means that you are friends.

If you want to have a sexual relationship with her, you need to make her feel sexual attraction for you and being a best friend doesn't create that.

There is a big difference between friendly chemistry and sexual chemistry and that main difference is sexual attraction. So, don't think that a strategy of â€œbeing her friendâ€ for a long time is the answer.

All it will take for you to be shoved to the side and forgotten about is another guy to come along and quickly guide her through the stages of a sexual courtship. If he knows what he is doing with women, he can kissing her within minutes or hours and having sex with her within a very short period of time.

[image: How to get out of the friend zone]

After that happens, you will certainly be a friend, but for how long? If her new guy gets annoyed at you hanging around her all the time, he might just tell you to steer clear and then you've not only lost a great friend, but another guy is now having sex with your girl.

When you behave like her friend instead of kissing her, having sex with her and being her man, it makes it more difficult to escalate the relationship from friends to lovers. If you feel as though, right now, you and her are just friends, my recommendation is not to say anything about your feelings.

Is She Sexually Attracted to You?

Do you know if this woman is sexually attracted to you or not? If she isn't sexually attracted to you and you suddenly drop the bomb that you want more out of the relationship, you likely will completely lose her and her friendship.

Since she never thought of you as more than a friend, she will most-likely try to let you down easy and won't harshly reject you, but your relationship will never be the same.

Some guys will hang around a woman for months or even years, hoping that something will magically happen.

The entire time, the relationship has been strictly friends (and he's likely told her many times how he â€œrespectsâ€ that. Wooh, how gentlemanly of him), but he has always wanted more and just didn't know how to get it. Since he didn't know how to make her see him as a lover, a guy like this will usually just play the â€œnice guyâ€ role and be her helpful friend when she needs it.

Hoping to be chosen for being a good, little boy, he makes sure that he is always at her beck and call whenever she wants to see him or needs his help with something. In short, she will call him whenever she needs a man for anything but sex.

Following what he's seen happen in TV sitcoms and the movies, the unfortunate guy mistakenly assumed that when she finally realized what a terrific guy he was, she would naturally want him as her boyfriend.

He likely even spent many nights falling asleep and daydreaming about her saying, â€œI can't hold it in any longer. I love you, I've always loved you!â€ and then they kiss and live happily ever after.

If you want to avoid being that silly guy who wastes months or years of his life using the wrong strategy and eventually being told, â€œI have something to tell you! I'm in love with this guy! We've been dating for two weeks and I wanted to tell you because you're such a great friend!â€ you should never accept the role of only being her friend.

Instead, be a man and believe in yourself. She doesn't want to have to lead you through the sexual courtship. If you want what is yours, then be man enough and take it.

She wants you to take it. If she likes you too, she's probably hoping and waiting that you do guide her through the stages of a natural, sexual courtship.

Does She Like You?

If you have made her feel attracted to you and then proceed to the next stage of kissing and ultimately sex, then you won't have to worry about how to tell someone you like them because you will already be in a relationship.

How to Make a Woman Laugh

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to make a woman laugh is to use what I call Playfully Arrogant Humor.

This is where you pretend to be arrogant in a playful way. It's the type of humor that TV talk show hosts use, but it's also the type of humor that guys like me (who get laid like crazy) use on women to get them turned on and enjoying my company.

Watch this video for an example...

Here are some more examples of how to make a woman laugh...

As you will discover from the videos above, making a woman laugh is about using the type of humor that will trigger her feelings of sexual attraction.

Playfully Arrogant Humor triggers a woman's feelings of sexual attraction because you are demonstrating social confidence, social intelligence and masculinity. These are very important traits that help a man be a better survivor in this world.

In case you're not yet aware, the attraction that women feel for men is directly linked to her instinctive analysis of his survival traits. In other words, are you the sort of guy who will have an easy or hard time surviving, thriving and prospering in this world?

Women Love Funny Guys

[image: Women love funny guys]

It's common knowledge that women love a funny guy.

Yet, why is that the case? A while back, a team of scientists in the UK decided to conduct some research in an effort to uncover what makes women so interested in guys who can make them laugh.

According to the results of their study, which involved 45 women, being a "funny guy" makes a guy seem more intelligent and trustworthy in her eyes and that makes him more desirable in terms of forming a relationship.

Now, that isn't to say that the guy with the highest IQ or test scores at college will be the funniest; that is academic intelligence. The type of intelligence that women are referring to is social intelligence, which is essentially the ability to get along with people and be successful in a social sense.

[image: Women love funny guys]

Social intelligence triggers a woman's instinctive attraction based on the guy's potential ability to survive, thrive and prosper in life. She may explain it as being "trustworthy," but that's because she's not an evolutionary psychologist so she almost certainly hasn't thought it about it from that perspective.

Head of the research team Mr McCarty said, "The reason a woman wants to look for a humorous guy is because it is a sign of intelligence and intelligence gives a man the ability to provide resources for their children and survive, rather than falling down a trap and dying."

Personally speaking, I think McCarty didn't explain his point very well because I don't see any link between being socially intelligent and avoiding an animal trap.

I think McCarty failed to recognize that humans have many different types of intelligence and being a successful hunter and gatherer, doesn't automatically equate to intelligence or the ability to crack a joke.

This "study" is one of many examples you will find in the world today, where people who seem like experts (because they are the "head of a research team") are just as clueless as most people when it comes to the topic of why women are attracted to certain traits in men.

Either that or he was just trying to sound funny and as a result, he didn't get his point across properly.

An Example of How to Make a Woman Laugh

Imagine that you've just walked into a Starbucks to order a coffee.

As you go up to the counter to place your order, a pretty woman walks up at the same time. You can either be a boring gentleman and let her go in front of you (and then forget you), or you can make her laugh and feel attracted to you.

Here's how to get her to laugh:

- You: [Smile and say] Okay, little Miss Pushy, hey? How rude! ð☹☹☹ Fine...you can go in front of me, but you have to pay for my coffee and get me one of those chocolate cakes.
- Her: [Laughing].
- You: No, just kidding. You only have to get me the coffee.
- Her: [Laughing].
- You: [Smile and say] Okay, fine – no coffee, but take me out to dinner.
- Her: [Still laughing].
- You: [Laugh with her and then say] Just kidding. I'm Dan by the way, what's your name?

See how it works?

You're just being playful, but you're also being confident.

I refer to this as being Playfully Arrogant (i.e. you are not actually being arrogant. You are pretending to be arrogant in a playful way and that is what women find so funny). I give 50+ examples of Playfully Arrogant Humor in my ebook The Flow

Genuine vs. Trying Too Hard

[image: Not making a woman laugh]

Some guys go way too far with their attempts to make a woman laugh, which then causes them to come across as weird, fake or untrustworthy. The woman wonders why the guy is trying so hard to impress her, which causes her instincts to kick in and assume that something isn't quite right.

So, if you're going to add the ability to make women laugh as a part of your overall attractive personality, make sure that you don't end up like one of the following guys...

1. The Try Hard

He gets lists of jokes from the internet and tries to say them to women (and people) whenever he can.

He knows that people like funny guys and that women are attracted to guys who can make them laugh, so he tries really hard to get people to like him by listing off jokes and hoping to get a reaction. People notice his desperation and he ends up looking like more of a loser than ever before. People might not tell him that, but they will laugh at him behind his back and usually just let him continue making a fool of himself.

He might notice that some women laugh at his jokes and he will waste loads of time wondering whether or not she likes him. In most cases, no one is there to tell him that simply making a woman laugh is not the key to getting laid or making her your girlfriend.

A woman will assess a guy's overall personality and confidence and how that makes her feel. If he is funny, but pretty much everyone looks down on him as a loser, she isn't going to be feeling instinctively attracted to his ability to survive, thrive and prosper.

Instead, her instincts are going to tell her that he'd have a hard time getting along with others and therefore would most-likely struggle to survive, thrive and prosper throughout life.

Trying too hard to be liked by using humor can also lead to a guy trying too hard to say the "right" thing. Instead of being himself and saying what he really thinks in a conversation, he will focus on saying whatever he thinks others want to hear.

This can lead to him stifling his natural sense of humor and being too cautious or politically correct. Since he is not being his genuine self, his unique wit and humor won't shine through and he will come across as awkward or as having a weird vibe about him.

Watch this video to learn where guys go wrong when talking to women and what you can do instead to get women laughing, enjoying your company and wanting to be sexual with you...

2. The Uncool Joker

He isn't a very cool guy (i.e. he lacks social intelligence), so most of the jokes he cracks are lame. A guy like this needs to focus on learning more about people, socializing and attracting women before he will be seen as a cool, funny guy that people like and women are attracted to.

Guys Who Get Laid For Being Funny

Just like there are guys who get rejected by women for using humor in the wrong way, there are also guys who get it right and get laid or get a girlfriend as a result.

These guys are...

1. The Dedicated Funny Guy

He dedicates his life to being funny or even working as a comedian. If he is good, people love him and women line up to be with him.

2. The Cool, Confident Guy Who Cracks Jokes Whenever He Feels Like it

He is a cool, confident guy who doesn't put on an act for anyone. He's an alpha male and people look up to him and respect him. Whenever he cracks a joke, people laugh louder, harder and longer because it is coming from such a cool guy that they respect.

The Right Way to Use Humor to Improve Your Results With Women

Instead of using humor to put on a song and dance for women (or people), just integrate it as one part of your personality.

If you want to base your whole life on humor and being funny, then great, but if you're like most guys (me included), humor should really only be one of the ways that you attract women.

How to Get Women in Bed

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to get women in bed is:

1. Make her feel attracted to you.
2. Build up the sexual tension between you and her.
3. Kiss her.
4. Get her back to your place or go to her place.
5. Kiss, build up the sexual tension and release it with sex.

Do you know how to make a woman feel attracted to you when you meet her? Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, you have a lot of direct control over how much desire a woman will feel to get into bed with you.

The more attraction you make her feel (e.g. by being confident, charismatic, making her feel girly in response to your masculinity, using humor, etc), the more attracted and turned on by you she will become.

Where Guys Go Wrong

A lot of guys get confused over what women are looking for in a man and what it takes to be seen as a sexually attractive because they usually look for answers in all the wrong places.

[image: Colognes that women love]

For example: TV commercials will tell you that you need to wear a men's moisturizer and get a special deodorant and if you're naive enough, you'll rush out to buy the latest scent in the hope that it makes you more sexually appealing to women.

Yet, if you pay attention, you will see that guys who never spray a drop of cologne on themselves are still able to get laid like rockstars with hot, sexy women. Why? Most of what a woman feels attracted to about a guy is based on his personality, confidence, vibe and attitude.

So, be careful about believing that superficial things like colognes, shirts and shoes will be the final piece of the puzzle that helps you get women in bed.

Movies and TV sitcoms will make you believe that you need to have six pack abs, be a super hero and save the day for women to swoon and want to have sex with you. Yet, in the real world, all you need is confidence and the ability to attract women with your personality.

[image: Confused men thinking that it's all about looks]

These days, millions of confused men waste time believing that wearing certain clothes or colognes, or styling their hair in a certain way will make them irresistibly attractive to women.

It won't.

Sure, you might get some extra looks from women when you put in an effort to look good, but if you've already tried dressing well yourself and improving your appearance to hopefully get laid, you will know that a woman looking at you for a second or two isn't the same as her coming home with you for sex.

Women aren't going to desperately want to have sex with you just because you're wearing a certain designer label.

Yes, women are going to notice how a guy presents himself on the outside and make their judgements about that, but what they are really interested in is who the guy is on the inside and his behavior, conversation style and confidence around them will reveal that loud and clear.

For example: A guy might spend hours getting himself ready to go out for a night out on the town. He has a huge collection of expensive designer outfits, watches and shoes to choose from and he's made sure that he got his "image" right by trawling through the pages of his "men's style" magazines for hints and tips on the latest look.

He then goes out on the town and can see that women are noticing his sharp look. However, when approaches women in the hope of getting one of them into bed, he fails yet again because he doesn't really know how to make women feel attracted to who he is.

Women notice his self-doubt, confusion and nervousness and they can tell by what he is saying (or not saying) that he is just another low self-esteem guy in nice clothing. As a result, he's unable to hold the attention of the attractive women he approaches and none of them are showing any sexual interest in him.

Thinking that it's all about his fashion sense and looks, he has failed to work on what is really important and what really matters: Himself!

Women are not interested in having sex with a guy's clothes or hairstyle, they are interested in having sex with a confident guy, who is masculine (mentally and emotionally) and has the social intelligence to be able to keep a conversation going and keep it interesting.

The fact is, how a guy looks can only get him so far. Women might fall for "the sharp-dressed man" on TV and in the movies but you're in the real world.

In the real world, women will fall for you if you are confident, charismatic and cool, which is why you always see "ugly" guys with beautiful women. It's not about looks. Just accept it. If you think it's about looks, then you're just another confused modern man who's been brainwashed by the advertising you've seen on TV.

It's Not About Faking it Until You Make it

Have you ever heard someone say, "Fake it until you make it" as a way of getting through a situation? Sure, people say that all the time and it is good advice in some situations. However, when it comes to success with women, it is bad advice and it rarely works.

You can't fake being confident with women because they'll simply test you (e.g. by being challenging) and see that you're not confident after all. When they see that, they'll lose interest or flat out reject you.

If you want to be the challenge that women are hoping to meet, then you have to have real standards about what you will and will not accept in a woman. You will only be able to genuinely stick to those standards if you know that you can easily attract other women and don't need the specific woman that you're talking to.

Watch this video to understand how and why it works...

As you will discover from the video above, women are only going to be interested in winning your challenge and secure you for themselves if you are able to make them feel the type of attraction they are looking to experience when interacting with a guy.

Some guys make the mistake of trying to act like a confident guy that they've seen on some show or movie. At home, they practice saying the same lines as the movie character and might even practice using the same facial expressions in the mirror, hoping to be able to fake the attitude and be more like the confident, cool guy on TV.

Yet, faking it won't ever fix his insecurities and lack of ability to properly attract women, so it will rarely help him get women in bed. At the end of the day, he still lacks confidence in his sex appeal to women, so he's going to feel shy and anxious and his body language is going to give him away as a faker.

Women are natural experts at reading body language and they know how to test a guy's authenticity to find the real men amongst all the posers and fakers. Why do women do that? Think about it. For most of human history, there was no child support, no police and no media.

A guy could impregnate a woman, then simply leave her and she would have to spend the next 20 years raising a child and providing food for it. To add to that, since she was now used goods many men would lose interest in her and prefer to have a woman without any extra children to support.

Therefore, it's only natural that women instinctively look for the real men amongst a sea of fakers. A woman doesn't want to make the mistake of accidentally getting pregnant to a guy who is just pretending to be confident and who will have a difficult time surviving and providing for her and the offspring.

Sure, some inexperienced women will fall for the tricks of guys who are pretending to be confident and some unattractive, desperate women will overlook the guy's lack of confidence because they are willing to accept pretty much any guy.

However, if you want to get beautiful, sexy, hot women into bed, you need to have true confidence to pass the tests and challenges that a woman will put you through before she goes ahead with having sex with you.

It's Not About Being a Gentleman...or a Bad Boy

Some of the guys who ask me for advice on how to get women in bed are confused by the fact that they treat women right, yet women seem to overlook them in favor of bad boys.

So, let me make it nice and clear: There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but there is a problem with being too nice to her in the hope that she'll then give you some lovin'. Why? Being nice only makes her feel "friendly" emotions towards you, rather than sexual emotions.

Watch this video for the full explanation...

In romantic comedy movies, you will often see the awkward nice guy getting the girl shortly before the end of the movie, after he saves the world, saves the day or saves the girl from a bad boy.

Aww, how sweet.

In real life, those guys usually just get rejected and the woman hooks up with a more confident, well-rounded guy who is not only good to her, but also has the balls to make her feel safe and the masculinity (in how he thinks, behaves, feels and takes action) to make her feel girly and feminine when around him.

On the topic of how to get women into bed, don't make the mistake of thinking that it's all about being a nice, little gentleman or a rough and ready bad boy. Getting laid is simply about being a cool, confident, charismatic guy who isn't afraid to go after what he wants.

You've got to believe in your sex appeal to the woman and let her feel attracted to you because of that confidence. You don't need to be embarrassed or ashamed about wanting to have sex. It's natural and she wants it too.

How to Meet New Friends

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Having the love of great friends in your life makes life so much more enjoyable to live.

Without great friends, it's only natural that you might feel left out and lonely all the time. Be the type of guy that people want to be friends with and they will naturally try to build a friendship with you.

If you've ever looked for advice on how to meet new friends, you will no doubt have come across countless suggestions along the lines of joining a club or working as a volunteer in a local group charity project.

This is all well and good and it makes sense to a point, but it doesn't fully answer the question of how to meet new friends for a guy.

It's easy for women to go and join clubs and make friends because almost all of the single guys there will immediately be trying to hit on her and get laid, make her a girlfriend or at least be her friend and hope that he can eventually sleep with her one day.

Obviously, going to places where you'll meet other people is a good starting point, but to make new friends, you really need to learn how to be the type of guy that others eagerly want to be friends with.

Joining a club isn't the answer or volunteering is not the answer on how to meet new friends for a guy, because if a guy goes to a club and isn't able to attract the women there or make the guys respect him, he's usually going to have a hard time making any friends.

Sure, he might be able to befriend the nerds and unattractive women, but if he wants to be friends with the "cool crowd" and have the attractive women like him (and want him), he can't just expect that to happen because he's a nice guy.

[image: How to meet new friends - advice for a guy]

Depending on a guy's confidence and social skills, he might be someone who tends to blend into the wallpaper wherever he goes. Maybe he's the type who feels nervous, anxious or uncomfortable early on and feel that people like him more when they've had a chance to get to know him.

Yet, as you may know from your own life experience, cool people and hot women don't always give you that chance.

If that sounds familiar to you, then it doesn't really matter how many clubs you join or how much volunteering you do, because you're probably going to come and go without anyone (that you really like and want to be friends with) really noticing that you were there at all.

To change this, you need to become a guy who makes his presence felt in a way that makes others glad you are there and keen to get to know you.

Be the Guy That Women Want and You Will Automatically Meet New Friends

[image: How to meet new friends and get a girlfriend]

As a guy, there's no easier way to meet and build new friendships than to be the sort of guy that women are attracted to.

When you are able to attract women with your personality, confidence, charisma and charm, women compete for your attention and as a result, you end up getting a lot of party invites, going on a lot of dates and having a lot of sex.

When you get a new girlfriend or are dating multiple women at once, you then meet a lot of new people through those women (e.g. at parties, events that you attend together, etc).

[image: Meeting new friends by hooking up with women]

Additionally, when you are the guy who can attract women, other guys want to be around you so they can hopefully get some of your crumbs (i.e. the women you don't want or don't have time to sleep with).

So, the question now is: Do you know how to attract women with your personality and confidence? Watch this video to find out...

Wow Them With Your Charisma

Meeting new friends is not just a matter of putting yourself in a room full of other people and hoping for the best. You need to be someone that other notice in a good way.

There are plenty of guys who know how to draw attention to themselves by being loud and/or being outrageous, but that's not the sort of behavior that makes other people want to be your friend.

Likewise, being Mr. Polite or Mr. Don't Pay Any Attention to Me won't make people say, â" WOW! You're so polite, nice and unassuming. You're so nice that I want to be your bestest friend in the whole wide world! Let's hang out every single day of the year! You can be polite and shy and I'll just keep thinking that you're so amazing because of that. Woo hoo!

The type of guys that pretty much everyone wants to be friends with right away are the charismatic guys who are attractive to women, but also friendly with others.

Charisma is a trait that some guys naturally acquire as they're growing up (often because they have great male role models to show them how), but it's a social skill that any guy can learn to develop and put into practice.

Are You Charismatic?

According to most research done on the topic, charisma is only ever 50% â" natural in those who have it and the other 50% is a learned skill.

Social skills, like any other skill, can be learned, practiced and mastered, so this means that anyone can become more charismatic than they already are at any stage in life and you can become a charismatic guy who makes friends easily.

Then, and only then, does the advice of â" join a club become useful because when you arrive as a charismatic guy at any place where there will many new people for you to meet, pretty much everyone will want to be your friend.

Charismatic guys are great conversationalists because they know how and when to listen as well as how and when to talk.

Guys who are nervous of striking up conversations with others very often slip into being quiet and not saying much at all, talking too much because they're afraid of an awkward silence, or trying too hard to make conversation by firing loads of questions at the other person without truly listening to much of what is said in reply.

A guy with charisma doesn't have to try too hard to make conversation, he simply listens to what others have to say and he shows an interest in what's being said by adding his own take on the topic.

He doesn't hold back on sharing his opinions and feelings on a topic, but he also does it in a way that is cool, interesting and socially intelligent.

Being charismatic is not about trying to be the centre of attention or drawing attention to yourself, it's about drawing other people towards you by having something interesting to say and having an interest in what others have to say.

Are You Likeable?

A lot of guys who wonder why they don't have many friends are simply just not that likeable.

Due to all their nervous quirks, secret fears and anxieties, they come across as awkward, make conversations feel awkward and just don't have a very charismatic vibe about them.

It doesn't mean that the guy is a bad guy or that he is doomed for life, but it does mean that he needs to fix his issues and become a more balanced, charismatic human being if he wants people to naturally want to be friends with him.

It's not just charisma that makes you someone others are interested in hanging out with and building a friendship with.

The guys that people are eager to be friends with are also confident guys who are relaxed and comfortable just being themselves. They are genuine when they interact with other people, instead of putting on a weird, social persona to hide their fears and insecurities behind.

They are just who they are and that's it. Like it or not, this is me! while also making the people around them feel good about themselves.

It's not a case of, Like it or not. This is me! You suck if you're not like me it's like this, Like it or not, this is me. I will still love you the same and smile and be cool with you, regardless of whether you are like me or not.

Those type of guys get everyone wanting to be their friend, as long as they do that genuinely. It's not an act, it's a genuine approach to people.

Being genuine makes you someone who others feel comfortable being around. Knowing how to meet new friends really comes down to knowing how to be your true, natural, charismatic self, while allowing others to be themselves at the same time.

Just as trying too hard to keep a conversation going or trying too hard to be liked can lead to you being perceived as insincere by others, trying too hard to get people to be like you will make them feel uneasy around you. Just let people be themselves and love them for it.

When they notice that sort of vibe coming from you, they'll love being around you. However, unless you know who you are and unless you're genuinely comfortable just being yourself, others won't be able to fully relax into being themselves around you.

This, in turn, will make them want to steer clear of you. Related to the topic of being yourself and having people love you for that, a common mistake guys make is to try too hard to â€œfit inâ€œ by going along with what everyone else involved in the conversation is saying.

This might mean going along with their tastes in music, their film choices or general likes and dislikes. When people notice that a guy doesnâ€™t seem to have a mind of his own, heâ€™s not showing himself to be a genuine guy and heâ€™s not â€œlikeableâ€œ as a result.

Are You An Alpha Male?

Likeable guys are also guys with alpha male characteristics.

The perfect type of alpha male will have rock-solid self-confidence and a manner about him which commands respect, but which also shows respect to others.

Guys like that will know who they are and what they want from life, friendships and any circumstance they find themselves in.

When he comes across weak, confused and insecure guys, they will want to be his friend (for various reasons, one being: Hoping to get introduced to some of the many women who would be in his life), the alpha male won't be interested unless there is actually some benefit to himself also.

After all, he has to survive as well and he usually won't need another guy hanging off of him and hoping that he'll help him get what he wants from life. If the lower-ranking male presents some value to him too, then okay â€œhe will be open to the idea of a friendship.

Yet, if the lower-ranking male just wants to take from him, the alpha will simply reject any attempts to become a closer friend of his.

When you have alpha male qualities, the people you meet will feel relaxed and at ease in your presence. They will feel safe being around you and will be happy and open to spending more time with you, because it will be beneficial to them for various reasons.

When you are charismatic, people feel good when youâ€™re around because your approach to them, the conversation and the interaction will make them feel included, noticed, appreciated and lucky to be around someone like you.

When you are confident, it allows you to be true yourself during conversation, instead of hiding behind a safe â€œsocial personaâ€œ that you use to hide your fears, anxiety or nervousness.

Confidence, charisma and alpha male qualities are three important things that make you the type of guy that others feel eager to be friends with. When you have those traits, you are able to easily make new friends wherever you go, whether you join a club or not.

Like charisma, alpha male qualities and confidence are not just something youâ€™re either born with or youâ€™re not; they are qualities that you can learn, develop and master for yourself. If you want to know more about how to make new friends, I recommend that you focus on improving your social skills in the areas of confidence, charisma and alpha male qualities.

I also recommend that you improve your ability to attract women, which will happen naturally when you improve your social skills, confidence, charisma and alpha male qualities...

How to Pick Up Women at a Park

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

It's fairly easy to pick up a woman at a park when she's relaxing, listening to music or reading a book.

Essentially, you need to approach with a relaxed, confident easy-going attitude and understand that she may feel a bit nervous or unsure initially.

To ensure that it doesn't feel awkward for either of you, make sure that you smile, relax and just be in an easy-going mood as you start talking to her.

For example:

You: [Approach with an easy-going vibe, relaxed confidence and smile] Hey, how's it going? I know that it's not normal for random people to stop and say hello to each other in the park, but I thought I'd say a quick hello because you're cute. [Pause and let her laugh, smile or say something]. So, how's your day going?

Her: [Says whatever she says]

At this point, if she's sitting on a park bench, have a seat next to her or if she's sitting on the grass, just sit down.

[image: Pick up women at a park]

You don't need to ask for her permission. She doesn't own the park and most women prefer guys who are confident, relaxed and just do whatever they want without asking.

When talking to her, be sure to avoid the following conversation mistakes...

As you will discover from the video above, you are pretty much in control of how comfortable she will feel and how much attraction she will feel for you during the interaction.

It's Romantic

[image: Pick up women in a park during the day]

Meeting a woman in a park has been a theme in so many romantic movies that some women go through life hoping that they can meet a guy in that way.

Yet, the sad truth is that most guys have been made so insecure by what they've been told about women (i.e. that women only want a good looking guy, women don't want to be approached, etc) that they are afraid to approach and talk to women in parks because they fear being rejected, humiliated in front of others or even hassled by police for disturbing the peace.

Here's the thing...

You are here on planet Earth and this is your world just as much as it is anyone else's. We humans are allowed to be friendly, loving and open towards one another, so don't let the closed-minded thinking of random people make you think that it's wrong for you to be friendly, loving and open in this life.

If they want to think that way, then let them live the miserable life they are choosing to live.

However, you don't have to join them in that misery. Life is so much better when you have the confidence and freedom of mind to approach women that you find attractive.

If you don't have that type of confidence, watch this video...

As you will discover by watching the video above, you can take control of your confidence and use it to not only approach women that you find attractive, but also make them feel attracted to you when the interaction begins.

Women are naturally attracted to confident guys, so if you go out approaching women in a park on the weekend, make sure that you allow the woman to experience your relaxed, easy-going confidence.

You allowing her to feel attracted to you in that way is like her wearing revealing clothing to allow you to experience attraction to her legs or cleavage for example.

Don't Expect Things to Play Out Like a Movie

Real life rarely plays out as smoothly as things do in the movies.

For example: In a movie, you will often male character accidentally tipping coffee on a woman as a result of bumping into her while walking by, or she may be looking up at the trees and walking along and then bump into him and drop all of her papers.

He will then rush to help her and while doing that, they will both stop to take a few moments to look at each other in the eyes and smile.

Here's the thing...

In real life, most people feel uncomfortable in sudden situations like that and simply walk away feeling embarrassed or uneasy.

If you want something to happen between you and a woman, you have to approach and not worry about everything going smoothly. Just get over there and make something happen, even if there are some uncomfortable moments at times.

Deal with it, get the result and get on with enjoying your life with her.

Other examples of guys meeting women in parks in a movie are where a guy:

1. Buys a dog and then hangs out at the park hoping to a particular girl or any girl.
2. Jogs or runs along next to a woman he likes and tries to get a conversation going
3. Suddenly develops an interest in yoga so he can join her class.

For entertainment purposes, the movie will show a guy doing all sorts of crazy things in an attempt to get the woman's attention. He will usually stuff up the first approach, but then do something amazing for her (e.g. save her from a bad boy, save the world or save the day somehow) and she will then like him and they'll live happily ever after.

Have you ever noticed that?

Have you noticed how in the movies, the loveable loser character has to make a complete fool of himself, be laughed at and ridiculed for 75% of the movie before the woman finally takes pity on him and agrees to go out on a date with him?

In real life, I can safely say that most guys would prefer to bypass the getting â□□ laughed at and ridiculedâ□□ part and go straight to â□□ the date and sexâ□□ part. So, if you want to be able to approach and pick up women in parks during the day or anywhere else for that matter, make sure you avoid the following common mistakes...

Mistakes to Avoid When Approaching Women in Parks

Besides the obvious mistakes that some guys make such as looking like a stalker, or sneaking up on her and startling her with an awkward, â□□ Umm, hello?â□□ there are more common mistakes that a guy will sometimes make when approaching a woman in a park.

Mistake 1: Not matching his approach, vibe and conversation style to suit the environment

Approaching a woman in a park is different from approaching her in a bar or a nightclub. In a nightclub or bar, a woman is expecting guys to chat her up and she is open to being approached. She's also likely in a more chatty and sociable mood.

In a park a woman is generally not looking to meet a guy, probably has spoken to anyone is an hour or more and therefore a guy's approach, his approach and his conversation style should be tailored to put her at ease and allow her to comfortably open up to him.

If, for example a guy is interested in a woman who at a park doing yoga and meditation, approaching her with high energy and an over excited vibe will possibly disturb her concentration and jolt her into feelings of alarm and confusion and he will not receive an enthusiastic welcome because of it.

Mistake 2: Looking like he's just there to pick women up

Women don't like to be picked up, but they do like to be seduced. If a woman gets the impression that a guy is there trying to pick her up, she will snub him very quickly and won't want any part of the interaction.

If, on the other hand he connects with her through conversation and gets her to open up to him and feel attraction for him, then he will definitely leave with her phone number or even escalate their interaction to kissing, a date and even sex on the same day.

Women often fantasize about being able to tell their friends that they met their boyfriend (or husband) in place other than a bar. She'll fall asleep at night imagining bumping into a guy at a park and one thing leading to another.

Mistake 3: Appearing nervous or anxious

A guy who makes a hesitant and nervous approach is already approaching on the back foot.

A woman will not waste her time with a guy who is trying to fumble through his opening line, â□□Errrrâ□| sorry, can I, errrrâ□| talk to you? Errrrâ□|â□□

There is nothing that can cool the fires of passion faster than a guy who is lacking in self confidence. It's just not attractive to women at all and they also don't want to be responsible for making you feel any more nervous than you already are, so they'll just try to ignore you and hope that you go away.

Mistake 4: Being unable to keep a conversation going and keep it interesting

Some guys will approach a woman easily, only to mess it up when it comes to engaging her in conversation.

The art of conversation is one of the most important keys to success in picking up women, next to confidence and masculinity (emotional and mental masculinity).

Being a bad conversationalist is quick way to make a woman lose interest in you right away. Two common mistakes that guys make when talking to women are:

1. Using the "interview" style of conversation, in which they'll ask the woman a range of different, and personal, questions and have a conversation that is essentially about exchanging resumes, location details, age, etc. It's so standard, typical and unexciting that most women just switch off and want it to end.
2. The other is talking incessantly about himself and what interests him. There's nothing wrong with talking about yourself, if you're focussing the conversation on you in an attempt to impress her with your achievements, goals or stories about yourself, it won't work.

Neither of the above conversation methods will properly engage a woman and neither will draw "the real her" out, make her open up and ultimately feel attraction for him.

In most cases, a guy will just get the superficial, guarded version of a woman and he won't get to meet and experience the easy-going, down to Earth side of her that he wishes she would show him. Instead, she behaves cold, uninterested and even rudely towards him, hoping that he'll just get the point and go away.

Mistake 5: Not creating any attraction between himself and the woman

Attraction is the glue of relationships and if a guy cannot create attraction between himself and the woman, his park approach will quickly feel weird to her. She'll be thinking, "Why is this guy being so friendly? I don't know him. I don't like him...but, he keeps talking to me. What's going on here?"

However, if a guy made her feel attraction, she would be thinking, "Cool! I like this guy. I wonder where this is going to go!" You can create attraction in many ways, but one of the best is to use flirting when you're having a conversation with her.

Without any feelings of sexual attraction, a conversation will usually remain platonic (just friendly) and she might as well be talking to a family member or work colleague. As a man, you must realize and accept that you are responsible for creating attraction between you and a woman.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

As long as you can create a spark between you and a woman that you meet in a park or anywhere else, everything else (e.g. exchanging phone numbers, adding each other to Facebook, kissing, sex, dates and a relationship) will flow on naturally and easily after that.

However, you have to actively create a spark between you and a woman.

Don't think it will be like the movies where you're walking along in a park, you lock eyes together, pause for a few seconds (retaining eye contact) and then hit it off easily because she is magically attracted to you, even though you didn't do anything to make her feel that way.

In the real world, most women aren't confident enough to look at a guy in that way. Women who are confident enough to do it are also often worried about doing it because they might end up getting stuck talking to a weirdo guy.

So, instead of sending out obvious signals that may attract weirdos, they wait and hope that a confident, cool guy will approach and make it feel like they're in a romantic movie.

Mistake 6: Expecting her to lead the interaction

If a guy has often seen a beautiful woman in the park that he frequents, he can, through observing her over time and desiring to be with her, build up an unrealistic picture of her in his mind.

For example: He might imagine her to be the most wonderful, lovely, beautiful woman in the world as he falls asleep imagining them being together as a couple.

When he finally builds up the courage to approach her, he has already put her on a pedestal way above himself, which will likely make him feel and act a little inferior to her...and that is not attractive to women, at all.

When he finally makes his approach, he'll likely do so in a submissive way, putting the control of the interaction firmly in her hands. At this point, she can choose to accept or reject him on the spot because she will feel as though it is completely up to her.

She might enjoy having control over him for a short while and watching him squirm and behave in a nervous way around her, but due to his lack of confidence, she will be unable to feel proper attraction and respect for him and will simply reject any attempts he makes to get her number or date her.

Do Women Like Short Men?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Not all women like short men, but many women are open to being with a short guy. Why?

The majority of women in this world have what I call an “Open Type,” which means that they are open to being with all different types of guys, as long as the guy can make her feel attracted in other ways (e.g. he is confident, charismatic, alpha, etc).

A woman’s attraction to a man is directly linked to how capable he is of surviving, thriving and prospering in this world. So, if a nervous, self-doubting short guy approaches a woman, she will be turned off by his lack of confidence.

On the other hand, if a confident, self-assured short guy approached her, she would be attracted to his confidence and then, if she’s one of the women who have an Open Type, she will be open to being with him.

[image: Women with short men]

Watch this video to understand why a woman’s attraction works that way and how you can use it to your advantage as a short guy...

As you will discover from the video above, not all women require a man to be a 6ft, male model with loads of money to qualify for them. Many women are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a guy than most men realize.

When a guy asks me, “Do women like short men?” he’s usually asking because he feels as though his lack of success with women is due to his lack of height. Yet, it’s not.

Let’s just cut right to the chase: If you’re hung up on your height and feeling insecure because of it, women are not going to like you because they are going to feel turned off by your lack of confidence.

The most important part of what I’ve just told you is this: It’s not your height that’s the turn-off, it’s your insecurity about it. Believe me, that’s a fact and it’s a fact you need to take action on right away if you want to begin enjoying the kind of success you want with women.

Of course, I’m not saying that all women like short men. However, many women will overlook a guy’s height as long as he has the confidence and masculinity to make up for his shortcomings.

[image: A short guy with tall, black girlfriend]

It’s just like how you’ve seen 1,000s of “ugly” men with beautiful women. Why does that happen? The guy has traits that overrule his lack of perfect physical appearance, such as confidence, masculinity and social intelligence.

Most guys assume that it must be about money and the only reason why an “ugly” guy can get a girl is by paying for her or being mega rich and offering her a luxury lifestyle. Sure, that does happen, but most guys aren’t rich.

The vast majority of short, bald or “ugly” guys who attract hot women do so by displaying the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women (e.g. confidence, charisma, masculine vibe, humor, etc).

[image: Short balding guy with tall woman]

Not all women will accept a short guy who has an attractive personality, but many women. If you have to talk to 10 women to find 3 matches, that's much better than not talking to any women and continuing on in life alone with zero matches.

If you're a short guy, you still deserve to be loved, wanted and respected. You're not a freak and there is nothing wrong with you being short. You've got to accept who you are and get on with enjoying life in the ways that are possible for you.

Getting Over Your Insecurity About Being Short

[image: Women don't like me because I'm short]

If you're not enjoying the kind of success you want with women and you believe that your height is standing in the way, then you're simply mistaken.

You're not coming up short in a woman's eyes because of your height, but because of your insecurities over your lack of height. Women are attracted to confident men who feel secure in who they are and what they've got to offer.

Guys who are socially intelligent have noticed and have already realized that women go for all sorts of guys. They don't buy into the rubbish they see in TV commercial, which tells them that they need to have six-pack abs, be 6.5ft tall, have a gym body, drive a sports car and have a high status career to be attractive to women.

They are smart enough to know that confidence trumps everything and as long as that confidence is backed up by social intelligence and masculinity, he essentially has his choice with women anywhere he goes, regardless of his height.

At this point, you are likely beginning to become very clear about the answer to the question, "Do women like short men?" If not, read on and I'll help you understand why your lack of height is not something that you should use to bring yourself down even further.

For now, just understand that to change your outcomes with women, you need to take your focus off your height and onto improving your confidence instead. A tall guy without confidence is just like a short guy without confidence - neither is truly attractive to women.

Don't Believe What You See in Glossy Magazine Advertising

It's a fact that TV and glossy magazine advertising has a lot to do with modern man's mistaken belief that women are only attracted to tall, dark, handsome men.

They are also only attracted to men who wear certain colognes, watches and designer labels. Heck, according to some TV and magazine ads, you also have to have six-pack abs, a perfectly groomed head of hair, a sports car and be living a celebrity style lifestyle.

Well, time for a reality check: Just take a look around you at the couples you see out in bars and restaurants, or at the movies, or taking a walk in the park, or even just doing some grocery shopping in your local store.

The guys you see with beautiful women don't all look like they're straight off the pages of a glossy magazine, do they? No, of course not! You see guys of all shapes and sizes - and with every hair color and out with their girlfriends.

They're not all movie star look-alikes; they're not all showing off rippling six-packs; they're not all driving expensive sports cars, and most importantly, they're not all tall. Are they? Come on, admit it.

With this being the reality, getting hung up on your appearance and focussing on what you think you don't have by wondering, Do women like short men? is a complete waste of time and energy.

Apart from the guys who got lucky, the guys that you see out there in the real world (not in the glossy magazines and TV advertisements) who are enjoying the kind of success with women that you dream of, didn't sit around worrying about not being good enough.

They used their confidence, masculinity and social intelligence to make women feel the all-important feeling of attraction. Many of the guys you see with women are short, bald, overweight, dressed poorly and so on.

Don't get sucked in by the false reality pushed by advertising executives and their clever teams of marketers. Believe in the real world that you see around you. That is the world in which you can have any type of woman you want.

In a woman's eyes, it's not a guy's outer appearance that decides his attractiveness; it's not how he looks on the outside that matters but who he is as a man on the inside.

As a female friend of mine once said to me, Anxiety makes a guy look ugly. Confidence makes him look sexy. If you don't have the type of confidence needed for success with women, then learn.

Don't sit around worrying and coming up with excuses for not being confident or coming up with reasons to feel fearful and unworthy. Become confident and be confident and you will soon see that your lack of height wasn't the issue all along.

Sexual Attractiveness and The Facts

Guys ask me all sorts of questions, based on their personal insecurities. One day it's, Dan, do women like short men? the next it's, Do women care if you're bald? or What kind of clothes do women like on men?

Forget all the superficial stuff and focus on the fundamentals. When it comes to your sexual attractiveness, three essential qualities that women look for in a man are:

1. Confidence

Women are instinctively attracted to confident men because confident men have always been better survivors...and life hasn't always been so easy as it is in the modern world.

Guys who lack confidence set off a negative reaction inside of a woman and she instantly feels as though she wouldn't be very safe with him. Her gut instinct tells her that she might end up having to mother him or that he'd become insecure or unstable if they got into a relationship.

2. Masculinity

Truly masculine guys make women feel weak at the knees in their presence, not by having bulging biceps or being 7ft tall, but by displaying mental and emotional masculinity. If you want to make a woman feel like a woman, then you need to have the mental and emotional masculinity of a man. If you still haven't gotten over childhood issues to become a man or are constantly creating new insecurities for yourself (e.g. Are my clothes good enough? Should I whiten my teeth? Should I spend more time in the gym? Maybe if I do all that, THEN women will like me), women are going to instinctively feel turned off by you.

They will sense that you lack the masculinity and maturity that it takes to be an emotionally strong man. In a relationship, a woman won't be able to feel as though you're her man and she's your girl.

Instead, she'll sometimes feel as though she's more like your mother or big sister and that you need someone to take care of you, which is a huge turn off for women.

3. Social intelligence

A guy can be 6ft tall, look like a movie star and wear all of the latest designer bling, but if he doesn't have the ability to socialize naturally with other people or have the communication skills needed to strike up interesting conversations, he's not going to attract or hold a woman's interest for very long.

A guy with confidence, masculinity and social intelligence has what it takes to approach and talk to women in a way that turns them on and makes them feel excited to be interacting with him.

This is why you often see short, fat, skinny, ugly, weird-looking and even scruffy looking guys with beautiful women. It's not always about the guy being rich (99% of the population isn't rich). In most cases, these guys are getting through to women on a much more fundamental level and that is where you need to place your focus.

So, if you haven't already realized it, the answer to the question of, Do women like short men? is Yes if you are a man with genuine self-confidence, true masculinity, and social intelligence, and No if you are an insecure man who is shy, anxious and nervous around women.

The choice is yours; If you choose to remain hung up on your height and to feel insecure because of it, you're choosing to limit your success with women because you're unwilling to see the real world around you and accept it.

However, if you're wise enough to allow yourself to see the truth and begin to focus your attention on developing the inner qualities women are instinctively looking for in a man, then you're choosing to become a man who has what it takes to enjoy unlimited success with women...regardless of your height.

How to Talk to Girls at Parties: Mistakes to Avoid

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

So, you've been invited to a party and are beginning to imagine the possibility of hooking up with a hot chick there.

Yet, there's a problem â you don't really know how to talk to girls at parties.

First things first...

Your confidence.

Confidence in yourself is so important when you're trying to talk to girls at parties. If you lack confidence and start feeling like an outsider, girls won't be very interested in talking to you. So, just remember this...

You don't have to try to be liked or hope to be accepted into the cool crowd, because you already accepted. How? Simply by accepting yourself as one of the cool people at the party, the cool crowd will accept you too. Then, when women see that happening, they will feel more attracted to you and will want to talk to you.

3 Mistakes to Avoid When Meeting Girls at Parties

Parties are an awesome place to talk to girls because girls are usually already in a great mood, hoping to have a fun time and maybe even meet a guy. However, to be successful, you must first make sure that you understand and avoid these common mistakes that guys make when trying to talk to girls and parties.

1. Being Nervous and Awkward Around the â Cool Crowdâ

The cool crowd are the people who assume that they fit in and then just get on with enjoying themselves. People outside the cool crowd look on and wonder why they aren't being accepted into the group, never realizing that they have to accept themselves as a part of that crowd to be let in.

If your body language, vibe and conversation style suggests to others that you feel like a bit of an outsider, they will accept that and treat you accordingly. At a party, girls want to have fun and talk to cool, accepted people so make sure that you don't cause yourself to feel nervous or awkward around people that you consider to be cool or popular.

Sometimes, a girl might talk to a nervous guy to see how it goes, but if she realizes that you're very tense in her presence and feeling as though you're not on her level (in terms of social status), she'll eventually lose interest and talk to someone else.

When girls are interested in hooking up with a guy they are going to look for a confident, alpha male who believes in himself.

They don't want to hang around with an uptight, awkward, self-doubting guy because that behavior is not attractive or sexy to them. Girls assume (and rightly so) that if a guy lacks that much self-confidence when he's at a party, he's going to be even more nervous when it comes to sex.

2. Waiting Around and Hoping That People Include You

[image: How to talk to girls at parties]

As a boy, your family and school teachers would have thought you were cute and would have gone out of their way to include you in things.

Yet, as a man, the world doesn't offer the same type of gentle, motherly approach.

As a man, you need to show that you're confident enough and have the social skills to get along with others, without having to be looked after. So, instead of waiting and hoping that people include you in the fun, just get involved in it.

Don't worry about messing up or saying the wrong thing; everyone does that throughout the night. Just focus on having a good time and allowing yourself to get involved in what is happening. Don't try too hard though! Just relax and get involved.

As for your conversation style, don't wait for people to give you signals that it's okay to talk or joke about things. At a party (and pretty much everywhere else!), girls don't want to get stuck hanging around a wimpy guy who is too afraid to crack an risqué joke and will instead stick to very polite and formal conversation the whole time.

Girls know that his timid behavior and mindset at a party probably means that he'll be just as shy and boring in bed with her. So, why would she want to waste her time with a guy like that when she can be with a confident, cool guy who will do whatever he wants with her in the bedroom?

3. Thinking That You're Not Good Enough Unless You're Really Good Looking

[image: How to talk to girls at parties]

In the movies, you will often see the good looking guy getting the girl and the ugly or average looking guys standing on the sidelines. Yet, in the real world, women hook up with men who make them feel attracted...and looks are not the main thing that attract most women to men.

Some women are very picky about looks and will select guys based on looks, but most women are much more open about what they find attractive in a guy. Many women place less importance on a guy's looks if he is confident, charismatic, has a masculine vibe, can flirt with her, etc.

All of those traits have nothing to do with how he looks, but how his personality, behavior and communication style makes her feel.

In the movies and on some TV sitcoms, you will also see the "loveable loser" guy who is hopeless with girls, somehow getting the girl in the end. He'll be super sweet, super nervous and will make a fool of himself. However, he'll then "save the day" somehow and sweep the most beautiful girl off her feet.

Why do movies and TV sitcoms always show that sort of story line? It's entertaining for some people (not me). It's not real. If movies and TV sitcoms always showed the way things happen in real life, most people would get bored of watching.

Instead of the loveable loser getting the girl in the end, you would see what happens in real life: He goes home feeling sad and has to masturbate to porn while the confident guy gets the girls.

Girls want confident guys who are not afraid of them and who can guide them through the natural stages of a sexual courtship. Whether sex happens that night or a few dates later doesn't matter; what matters is that you know how to do it (most guys don't, which is a huge opportunity for you).

How to Pick Up Women in Coffee Shops

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret to picking up women in coffee shops is to quickly trigger her feelings of attraction for you, while also creating a relaxed, easy-going vibe between you and her.

[image: Flirting with a Starbucks girl]

The easiest way to do that is to use flirting and in the video below, I've included some examples of how to do that in a Starbucks cafe...

As you will discover from the video above, women prefer guys who flirt because it allows you and her to quickly establish your sexual attraction for each other in a discreet way.

You Have Plenty of Opportunities to Approach Women in Coffee Shops, But Will You Actually Approach?

[image: Will you approach when you get there?]

These days, there are coffee shops everywhere. No matter which country you find yourself in, you are likely to find a coffee shop...and with coffee shops comes the opportunity to meet and pick up women.

Yet, despite the interest that guys have about approaching and talking to girls in coffee shops, they often chicken out at the last moment because they lack the confidence to approach.

If you need some help to build up your confidence to approach women, watch this video...

I often get asked how to pick up women in coffee shops by guys who aren't really into meeting women in nightclubs or bars.

They see beautiful women during the day and want to know how to spark up a conversation, grab her number and then hook something up later. The good news is that getting a woman's number in a coffee shop is one of the easiest pick ups you can do, as long as you have the right attitude.

Women will often act surprised that you have started to chat to them because people usually behave like strangers in a coffee shop, but once she sees that you're a confident, easy-going guy and you're talking to her in a relaxed, chilled out manner, she will open herself up to the conversation and feel excited that she is meeting a guy in a cafe.

In many of the modern romantic movies, people meet in places like coffee shops and other public places, so women are usually very excited that it is happening to them in real life.

Having the Right Attitude

[image: The right attitude for approaching women in coffee shops]

The right attitude for approaching and picking up women in a coffee shop is about accepting that it's totally fine to chat to a random woman in a coffee shop.

It's not a crime, it's not $\hat{\square}\square$ dangerous $\hat{\square}\square$ and it won't end up with you getting a hot coffee tipped over your head.

In places other than a bar or nightclub, women often act shocked or surprised when you initially approach (because they aren't expecting it), but if you come across as a cool, easy-going guy that shock quickly turns into excitement and happiness.

As long as you can deal with the fact that most women will seem surprised and nervous when you approach and are willing to just wait 10-15 seconds for them to relax, then picking up women in coffee shops will become a fun, interesting and very productive part of your life.

Having a Strong Intention

Like with anything else worth getting in life, approaching and picking up women requires you have a strong intention, a clear purpose and a willingness to push through when things feel a bit challenging.

If you know what you want and have the confidence and self esteem to go and get it, you'll have no problems picking up women in coffee shops. On the other hand, if your approach is half-hearted, hesitant or insecure, you will almost always come away empty handed.

Women respond to the strong intentions of men and like it when a man knows what he wants and isn't afraid to go after it.

Women are turned off when they see that a man becomes nervous or doubts himself the moment she shows the slightest bit of challenge or resistance.

Women always test men to see how confident they really are, so if you can remain relaxed and confident and keep pushing forward towards your goal (i.e. getting her phone number, adding her to Facebook, having sex with her, etc) she will submit to that.

Women want to relax into the masculine direction of a man, but she needs to know that you are actually a man (they test to check this) otherwise it just doesn't feel right for her to submit to your direction.

Guys often think that picking up women is a "technique" but that's just not true; it's all about attitude. Guys who approach women with the wrong attitude end up failing and wondering if they used the wrong line or wore the wrong shirt. Yet, guys with the right attitude can basically say and do whatever they want (and wear whatever they want) and they'll still get the girl.

Here are some common mistakes that guys make when trying to pick up women in coffee shops:

Mistake #1 " Approaches with the wrong vibe

When approaching a woman in a coffee shop, it is important that the guy's energy level matches that of the environment that he is in.

If he brings the same vibe to a coffee shop that he does to a nightclub, or a beach party, he is very likely going to be asked to go away. Why? Often, the woman will not be in a talking mood, will be feeling shy or may be feeling a bit overwhelmed by her day. You need to take it easy when you first start chatting with her, but you also need to add a good vibe.

Overall, the best approach is to just be easy-going and go with the moment and allow the environment and the woman, or group, to dictate the vibe. You don't have to walk in, take over the cafe and have everyone laughing and cheering. Instead, just go with the flow and be your cool, confident self and things will naturally open up between you and the woman.

Mistake #2 – Appears nervous and tense

If the guy is nervous or hesitant in his approach, it will in turn make the woman feel uncomfortable. Why?

She doesn't want to be responsible for making him feel any more uncomfortable than he already is, so she'll try to ignore him or close down the interaction/conversation as quickly as possible.

However, if the guy leads the way and is relaxed, she too will be able to open up and relax and go with the good feelings in the moment. The guy's confidence creates a feeling of relaxation and excitement in the woman.

That last sentence you've just read is a big part of the secret of how to pick up women in coffee shops. Don't get caught up in trying to find fancy pick up lines or overly-complicated strategies.

Just learn to be confident and go with the flow of the moment. Know that the more confidence you show her, the more she will enjoy being around you and the more excited she will become as a result of her growing feelings of attraction for you.

Mistake #3 – Doesn't create feelings of attraction

When it comes to a sexual courtship, men are usually the ones who approach women and it is usually up to the guy to create attraction between them. While a man will feel attraction for a woman's appearance and quickly decide if he likes her or not, a woman will wait to get a feel for the guy's personality and confidence before she decides whether she likes him.

If you believe what you see in TV commercials, you will think that you need to look like a male model, have six-pack abs and drive a sports car for women to be attracted to you. Yet, in the real world, all you really need is confidence, masculinity (mental and emotional) masculinity and social intelligence.

Attraction is how a man and a woman know that they like each other and would like to take things to the next level (exchange phone numbers, go on a date, kiss, have sex and even become a couple).

If the guy doesn't create attraction between himself and the woman, via stimulating conversation, flirting and a sexual vibe, she will think that he is just being friendly in the coffee shop and that's where the interaction will end.

Mistake #4 – Is too polite or too nice

Guys often lack the confidence to approach women in a decisive and purposeful way. A big mistake that a guy can make is to approach a woman, or group of women, in a coffee shop and ask permission to join them. The answer will most likely be a big NO.

Being too nice and polite is a sure way to get ignored and rejected by women, because although they want you to be a good guy, they don't want to have to tell you how to behave. They want you to take the lead.

Of course this doesn't mean that a guy should be rude or forceful. What it does mean is that if he approaches with confidence and behaves as though the women do WANT him to join them, he is more than likely going to be invited to join them.

Mistake #5 â□□ BehavesÂ as though she is doing him a favor by talking to him

Guys with a low self esteem often believe that if a woman pays him even the slightest amount of attention, she is doing him a big favor. A woman doesnâ□□t want to waste her time with a guy who doesnâ□□t believe that heâ□□s good enough to be with her. Think about it: Why should she?

Example Coffee Shop Approaches and What to Say

In a coffee shop, you don't always have to approach women directly by walking right up to her table. There are many ways to do get a conversation going. As long as you have the right attitude, things will naturally flow from one stage to the next.

Example 1: Ordering Coffee at the Same Time

[image: About to order coffee]

Imagine that a woman walks up to order her coffee at the same time as you. Instead of just letting her in front like a boring guy would, try saying the following in a playful, easy-going way:

Her: [Looks at you to work out whether or not you're going to let her go first].

You:Â [Smile and say] Alright, you can go in front...as long as you buy me 3 cafÃ© lattes and a piece of that chocolate cake there ð□□□

Her: [Laughing or smiling. Possibly asking you, "Really?" or looking confused].

You: [Smile and say in a relaxed manner] Okay, nevermind the 3 coffees. Just one coffee, a piece of chocolate cake and a cookie.

Her: [Usually laughing or smiling].

You: [Smile] Just kidding [and then say like a good guy/gentleman] ...go ahead, you go first.

Her: [Will usually thank you].

Why talk to her in that way? Starting off the conversation in this way demonstrates that you're a confident, cool, easy-going guy. It shows her that you are not a desperate guy who is hoping to impress her by being all nice and polite. You're a guy who can have other women if he wants, so he's not worried about potentially saying the wrong thing to her.

The irony is that by starting off the conversation in this bold, funny, but also easy-going way, she actually sees you as a nice, charming guy. Women like men who can make them laugh and they love men who can dominate them during a conversation.

Instead of following her lead or being submissive, "Oh, you go first. Please, go ahead. Ladies first" you are playing with the moment and demonstrating that you can dominate her in many different ways.

This is extremely important because one of the keys to making women feel sexually attracted to you is by making them feel girly around you. If she feels like you are the one who is "leading the dance" so to speak, then it makes her feel feminine and girly.

When you make a woman feel feminine and girly in any way, she automatically begins to consider the idea of having sex with you and opens herself up to the possibility.

If you make a woman feel nothing (i.e. by being a boring guy) or make her feel masculine in the moment, then she will almost always feel no sexual attraction for you. She will simply forget that she ever encountered you and get on with her life.

My approach to women ensures that they always feel sexually attracted, excited and happy to be around you. After starting off the conversation in the manner suggested above, you can then switch to a more normal and easy-going style of conversation.

From there, you only need to add in flirting and humor here and there to keep the spark, laughter and fun alive.

Example 2: Turn to Face Her Table and Say Hello

[image: How to pick up women who work in coffee shops]

It doesn't matter if she is sitting behind you or beside you, just turn around or turn to her a little and say the following:

You: [Smile and say in a relaxed, easy-going way] Hey, I know that people don't usually talk to each other in coffee shops, but I saw you and I just can't help but say hello. I'm Dan, what's your name?

Her: [Smiling, feeling flattered, etc] Hi, I'm Jenny.

You: [Smile and say in a relaxed manner] Cool...Jenny from the coffee shop. I was totally into my coffee before I noticed you. Anyway, so I'm just having a coffee now and then I'm heading off to [tell her what you're up to that day. Example: Work, study, shopping, to see friends, etc]. How's your day going?

Do Women Like to Be Ignored?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Ignoring a woman only has an effect if she is attracted and interested in you or if you have other women interested in you at the same time.

If she's not attracted to you, she won't care if you ignore her or not.

Do you know how to make a woman attracted to you and then hoping that you pay attention her, ask her out, have sex with her or begin a relationship with her? If not, watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, most women who are attractive will rarely come across a guy who will offer any type of challenge.

Where Guys Go Wrong

There's a common misconception amongst guys that goes something like this: If you want to get a woman's attention, just ignore her. She'll think that you're cool and don't even want her and that will spark her interest.

So, is it true? Do women like to be ignored? Will ignoring a woman make her want you?

No.

If a woman doesn't feel attraction for you, she isn't going to care if you're ignoring her. You'll just be another random male in the surroundings who wants to bang her, but is pretending like he doesn't.

On the other hand, if she is sexually attracted to you and you are ignoring her, then yes that will get her curious and wanting to interact with you more.

Ignoring Her Isn't Always the Answer

There are certain circumstances in which ignoring a woman can work really well.

For instance: Some guys (including myself) use the "ignore technique" when they are already in a relationship with a woman.

If a woman wants more of her man's attention because she feels a lot of love, respect and attraction for him, then ignoring her will make her reach out to him. However, if a woman has lost a lot of respect and attraction for him during the relationship and he then starts ignoring her, she'll usually just begin looking for a new man.

Sometimes, a guy wants to know if a woman is interested in him, so he tries ignoring her or "going cold" to see if she'll feel desperate and worried that she's losing his interest. A guy like that mistakenly thinks that ignoring her will suddenly make her feel rejected and want to chase him.

Sure, it will sometimes make a woman curious and she will show some interest to him just to check that he was putting on an act and is still super keen on her, but in most cases she just won't care because he's not a guy that she is sexually attracted to.

[image: He still likes you and was simply pretending not to be interested]

A woman isn't going to get excited about a guy ignoring her if he hasn't yet sparked her feelings of sexual attraction.

For example: Some guys use the "nice guy" approach to women where they essentially act (yes act) like they are just interested in being nice, innocent friends. Yet, secretly, the guy is super keen to have sex with her and is hoping that he will get to be her boyfriend one day.

Yet, using that approach leads to rejection in most cases. Watch this video to understand why...

As you will discover from the video above, it's not the act of being nice that ultimately gets the guy rejected. What does? The fact that he is refusing to say or do anything that will spark the woman's feelings of sexual attraction.

So, don't waste any more time thinking that ignoring women (or any other superficial thing e.g. wearing great clothes, building more muscle) is the answer to success with women.

If you want women to like you in a sexual way, you've got to trigger their feelings of sexual attraction for you. If you currently aren't very good at doing that around beautiful women, you need to improve that about yourself or you will find that most women really aren't that interested in you.

Ignoring an Ex

In most cases, ignoring an ex girlfriend who doesn't want to be with you anymore isn't going to make her coming running back to you.

Here's why...

If you want a woman to feel attracted to you and want to be with you, the best approach is to make her feel something for you when you talk to her on the phone or in person.

Why?

You can actively CREATE feelings of attraction inside of a woman. You don't have to sit around hoping that she feels attracted; you can MAKE her feel attracted.

For example: If a girl doesn't feel much attraction for a guy and he then interacts with her, displays confidence, makes her laugh and feel good around him, she will then feel more attracted to him than before.

Guys Ignoring Girls in Hollywood Movies

Some guys grow up without a male role model who can explain what women are really attracted to about men.

As a result, a lot of the information that guys get about women tends to come via movies, TV or magazines, music videos or from random things that people say during conversation. It's a big, confused mess of fantasy, fiction and insecure ideas.

What a lot of guys don't realize is that movies and TV are primarily designed to entertain audiences. In TV shows and movies, the nice, innocent, sweet guy will get the girl in the end after he saves the day, saves the girl or saves the world.

Aww, how sweet.

If you think about it, most people probably wouldn't pay to go to the movies if there was no fantasy involved.

If it was always a case of, Boy meets girl. Boy chats to girl. Boy likes girl. Girl likes boy. They go to his house and have wonderful, passionate sex together. The end. people would get pretty bored of going to the movies, right?

To entertain the viewers, the film industry creates complex and unrealistic relationships between the men and women on screen to make people laugh, cry, say â€œAwww...how cuteâ€œ and so on.

Women are often portrayed as being mean, snobbish and flaky because that is entertaining for women to watch and scary for many men who just don't understand that it's not real...it's just a movie.

In the movies, men are often portrayed as being weak, insecure, bumbling fools who would be so LUCKY to score with a woman. The relationships and interactions on screen lead some men to think that women like to be ignored, or snubbed, or controlled in order to feel attraction for a guy.

Copying what they see on TV sitcoms or in movies, many modern men waste their time ignoring a woman when, in fact, they should just approach her and get something going between them.

A confident guy who is successful with women doesn't sit around worrying that a girl might slap him (like they do in the movies), tip a drink over his head (like they do in funny TV sitcoms) or coldly reject him in front of everyone (like they do in music videos where the female pop singer is acting all powerful).

Instead, he knows that women will be naturally attracted to his confidence and that he simply needs to guide a woman from a conversation to kissing, sex and into a relationship. It's actually a very easy thing to do when you start out by making the woman feel very attracted to you. She wants it to happen.

Be the Confident, Forward Moving Guy That Women Are Hoping to Meet

Single women want you to be confident and walk over and talk to them. They don't want you to be nervous, shy and hesitant when you approach and act like you are worried that it might not be okay to be talking to them.

They want to see that you believe in yourself and that you have the social intelligence to understand that it's a man's role to approach a woman and make something happen. There is nothing wrong with approaching a woman, so don't be afraid to do it.

Walk up to her and make something happen between you.

Do you have the confidence to approach women that you find attractive? If not, watch this video...

As you will discover from the video above, you have a lot of direct control over the way you feel. You can choose to feel nervous if you want to, but it isn't going to help you succeed with women.

As a man, you've got to do what it takes to build up your confidence with women. You will need it when approaching and talking to a woman for the first time, when you're on a date with her, having sex with her and deep into a relationship with her.

Confidence is one of the things that initially attracts a woman to a guy and it's also one of the most important traits that maintains a woman's attraction when in a relationship.

Traits and Behaviors That Turn a Woman Off

It's very easy to attract women and turn them on, but it's also very easy to turn them off. For example a guy who ignores a woman instead of confidently making a move may appear to be:

1. Lacking in self confidence

If a guy approaches a woman in a nervous, almost apologetic "sorry for disturbing you" manner, he comes across as being insecure, weak and unsure of himself. Insecurity is a sign of low self confidence and if a guy doesn't believe in himself and in his worth, a woman certainly won't either.

2. Lacking in self esteem

Some guys will have such a low sense of self esteem that when he approaches a woman, he is already expecting her to reject him. If a guy acts like he is not good enough for her, a woman will inevitably pick up on this insecurity and she will respond in kind. No woman wants to waste her time trying to build up a guy's self esteem.

3. Mentally and emotionally weak

A guy who cannot make up his own mind and doesn't know how to take action and go after what he wants, inevitably comes across as being mentally and emotionally weak. A woman cannot feel a strong attraction for a guy who is weaker than her because this means that she will have to be the dominant one in the relationship and that she will have to take the lead.

This is a turn off because a woman wants a man who can make her feel like a real woman and when she's doing all the "hard" work, not only doesn't she feel like a real woman, she also feels like she is not getting the support she needs from him either.

4. Lacking in social intelligence

Social intelligence is the ability to interact well with other people, whether one-on-one or in groups. It is the ability to conduct an interesting and engaging conversation, read body language and respond in a way that makes everyone feel connected to you and happy to be talking with you.

Despite being academically intelligent, some guys are lacking in the area social intelligence and come across as being boring, uncomfortable or even creepy.

When a guy lacks social intelligence he will be unable to engage a woman and make her feel at ease with him and then to feel attraction for him. He will appear "uncool" and her friends will let her know that he doesn't fit in with them and that she shouldn't date him.

5. Lacking in conversation skills

The art of conversation is referred to as such, because being able to have an interesting and engaging conversation with a woman (or anyone for that matter) is like creating a work of art. It's poetry in motion. You're literally painting a work of art sometimes or playing together like musicians and creating conversational music based on each other's input.

Conversation with a woman, when done right, should engage, create interest, cause suspense, create anticipation and ultimately sexual attraction. If a guy trying to attract a woman conducts an interview style conversation with her, simply asking her a series of personal questions, he will only succeed in making her feel uncomfortable and tense.

Alternatively, if he only talks about himself, complains about things or blames others (the government, the rich people, the politicians) about his problems, she will be bored and may even feel offended.

At that point, she will not feel any attraction for him and will want to get away from him as soon as possible.

6. Using an approach that doesn't fit the situation

Some guys do all the wrong things when they are attracted to a woman. They will wait for the woman to make the first move, hoping that she will choose him. They might snub her during a conversation and hope that she will respond favorably to them.

Some may indeed choose to fully ignore her. Unfortunately, if the guy has not established a strong attraction between himself and the woman, all of these approaches (or lack thereof) will only serve to make her feel angry and she will probably be giving out her phone number or going home with someone else.

Start Paying Attention to Women in the Right Way

Getting a woman to like you and want to be with you doesn't come down to you ignoring her and hoping that she runs over to you and begs to be your girlfriend.

In the real world, you've simply got to spark a woman's feelings of attraction for you, connect with her and begin the process of making her falling in love with you.

These days, many women are open to having sex on the first night or first date, so don't make the mistake of acting like you're not interested in sex.

According to a study done in the USA, 55% of couples admitted to having sex on their first date. Another study in Europe found that 70% of women admitted to having experience a one night stand before.

So, rather than ignoring women or playing complicated mind games, just make her feel attracted, connect with her and guide her to kissing, sex and a relationship...

Dating After 50: What You Need to Know

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're a man who is over 50 and attempting to date women, you might not realize the distinct advantages that you possess over younger guys.

A man of your age has had a lot of life experience and you really should be using that to feel confident in what you've got to offer women. Unlike a younger man who is still trying to work out who he is and what he should be doing with his life, you've likely past those stages and have become your true self as a man.

[image: Dating after 50 - advice for men]

So, from here, you need to have confidence in the overall value that a woman will gain (emotionally, mentally, financially, etc) by being with man like you. However, don't try to pitch it that way to women.

Women don't like it when a man tries to sell himself to her by listing off all of his great or beneficial qualities. Instead, what you need to do is trigger her feelings of sexual attraction for you.

When you've triggered a woman's feelings of sexual attraction, she then starts to look at everything else about you in a more positive light. Here's how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, it's possible for you to attract women who are a lot younger than you.

Most women (not all) are open to feeling attracted to different types of guys and if you can make a woman feel what she's hoping to feel with a guy, she will be much more open to dating and getting into a relationship with a man of your age.

Getting Past Your Age

I think it's fair to say that most people still consider dating to be something that young people do.

Despite the changes in our society, there still seems to be an unwritten law that once you've passed a certain age you're too old for dating. Yet, if you've reached that certain age and you're a single man looking for love, the fact is that you're going to find it in the same way that guys in their 20s and 30s do and that's dating.

Dating after 50 is no different to dating at any other age, because the principles of it remain the same.

After all, the whole idea of dating is to get to know the woman you're attracted to and to figure out whether she is someone that you're interested in being in a relationship with. However, with that said, the most common mistake that guys over 50 make when trying to woo a woman, is that they forget the all important element of sexual attraction.

Getting Back in to the Dating Scene

It's understandable that many men in their 50s, who find themselves returning to the dating scene after decades of being in a relationship, start off feeling a bit insecure and unsure of themselves. If this is you, I can help you.

Insecurity and lack of confidence in your attractiveness and value to women at any age is a barrier to success with women, but the good news is that any man can overcome that at any stage in their life and irrespective of age. All a guy needs is a willingness to learn.

“But, I Don’t Have My Youthful Looks...”

Something a lot of guys in their 50s say to me is, “Dan, how am I supposed to attract a new woman into my life now that I’ve no longer got my youthful appearance? Surely, most women aren’t going to be interested in an old fella like me.”

What such men don’t realise is that I also get comments from guys half their age saying, “How am I going to attract a woman without movie star good looks?”

Isn’t it all about being tall, dark and handsome? I answer everyone in the same way “a man’s looks have very little to do with how attractive he is.”

The notion that attractiveness is the way you look, the way you style your hair, the clothes you wear or even the car you drive is nonsense, but it’s the nonsense that is shoved in our faces day in and day out through TV, magazine and billboard advertising campaigns.

They want you to think that way because it makes you buy their cars, deodorants, colognes and expensive clothing.

You know the sort of thing I mean – wear a certain brand of deodorant and you’ll be irresistible to women, wear a certain brand of watch and you’ll become a distinguished gentleman in a woman’s eyes, wear a certain designer label and you’ll have soccer star status, etc.

Yet, when you go and buy those things, women still aren’t going to be interested unless you have the confidence and belief in yourself as a man to back it up.

A watch isn’t going to get you laid and a hairstyle isn’t going to make women say, “Wow, now THAT is what I’ve been looking for! The way you’ve styled your hair is perfect! Let’s have sex!”

In the real world (not the TV commercial world), women are attracted to confident men; they don’t buy into the false world of advertising attractiveness, so why should you? The sooner you let go of the idea that your not-so-good-looks are holding you back, the sooner you can get on with discovering what women really find attractive in a man.

Focussing on what you don’t have gets you nowhere, but focussing on what you do have gets you moving towards having whatever you want. Women love a man who believes in himself because he decides to believe in himself for deeper reasons.

Having temporary confidence over a new shirt you’ve just bought at a designer shop isn’t going to last very long at all. In fact, if you’re going around basing your confidence on superficial things like that, women will see right through it.

Some will even challenge you on the spot by playing hard to get, making it difficult for you to keep the conversation going and so on, so they can check to see how confident you really are. When they see that it’s just a front, boom it’s over.

You Deserve to Be Confident After 50

At this point in your life, you've no doubt experienced a lot and have done many good or even great things in your life.

You're also probably not too bad in the bedroom either.

Those and countless other things should be your reason for feeling confident.

Allow yourself to have that confidence, because when you do, women will love you for it. Dating after 50 is easy for guys who believe in themselves and know that their experience with manhood and their ability to be the man is like a drug to women of all ages.

If you don't have a lot of confidence or are lacking in the masculinity department (mental and emotional masculinity), let me help you out. I've heard back from 100s of men over 50 who are now sleeping with women in their 20s and 30s, as well as men who've found a beautiful new woman to share the rest of their life with.

Don't Believe the Lies from TV Advertising Campaigns

There's nothing that advertising campaigns like to do more than appeal to a man's insecurities surrounding his age.

Think about it; they show the sad grey-haired man and then the happy man with newly dyed youthful-looking hair. He dyes his hair and then he gets the girl. Yet, in the real world, the many women I've spoken to about men dying their hair have said the same sorts of things, It looks silly. You can tell that the guy is insecure and is trying to be something he's not.

As I've already said in this article, all women love men who believe in themselves for deeper reasons. Being a girl and dying to hair to look young is not cool and it's not attractive. If anything, it actually makes you look like a guy who secretly isn't into girls, if you catch my drift.

Hopefully you're one of the smarter men who isn't being tricked into thinking that women want you to look radiant and youthful. Hopefully you realize that men actually become more attractive to women as they age, as long as (and I repeat, as long as) the guy retains and builds on his confidence, continues to push forward in life and beyond what he has already achieved.

If you're wanting to get a date after 50, but you're lacking confidence and going nowhere in life, don't expect women of any age to be lining up to be with you.

Most women, whether they're 25 or 55, are instinctively attracted to the same characteristics in a man. What women really want is to be with a man who knows how to make them feel like a woman and who is able to consistently be the man around her and in life, and that's it.

Yes, some women are picky about looks, but many women are more flexible with what they will find attractive in a guy than most men realize.

So get over that imaginary hurdle and stop thinking that a wrinkle cream or hair dye will get you a hot lady. Stop thinking that all you need to do is spend all of your money on a sports car and THEN you'll get the girl. Just believe in yourself, be a man and make women feel like women.

As you will discover from the video above, the real reason why a lot of good men fail with women is that they simply don't know how to attract women.

When you interact with a woman, she is only going to look at you as a potential lover, boyfriend or husband if you can make her feel sexually attracted to you.

The more sexual attraction you are able to make women feel by way of your personality, confidence, vibe, body language, behavior and attitude, the more options you will have with women. It's as simple as that.

“But, Iâ€¢ve Got Baggage...”

Of course you do; you're 50!

Itâ€¢s no surprise that a man in his 50s might be carrying a little more â€¢baggageâ€¢ with him than a man in his 20s. It's totally normal, expected and nothing to worry about at all.

For instance: Maybe heâ€¢s got kids, maybe heâ€¢s got six dogs, three cats and a goldfish, but is any of that an issue? It will be an issue only if he chooses to see it in a negative way.

Sure, you might have different sets of responsibilities by the time you reach your 50s compared to a guy in his 20s, but you donâ€¢t need to consider it â€¢baggage,â€¢ itâ€¢s simply part of who you are.

There's nothing wrong with you having a past with other women, or having a dog that you love or having your children come and stay with you on weekends. Women are attracted to men who know who they are; men who have established their own set of values in life and men who have the strength of character to stand by those values and always be true to themselves.

Knowing who you are and knowing what you want from life makes you an attractive man at any age. To get over this particular hurdle regarding dating after 50, all that you need to do is realise that most women (not all) are interested in â€¢whoâ€¢ you are, not â€¢whatâ€¢ you are.

“But, Iâ€¢m Set in My Ways...”

If you want help and advice about dating after 50 because youâ€¢ve realized that the world has changed since you were last on the dating scene, you need to be prepared to learn from current experts in the field.

Trying to use advice that was applicable 40 years ago is only going to cause you trouble because, believe me, things really have changed. To master the modern dating scene, you need to be open to learning and that means being open to change. If you're too set in your ways and you're not open to change, things are going to stay exactly as they are.

Donâ€¢t make the mistake of getting locked into thoughts of, â€¢Well I am what I am, so itâ€¢s too late to change anything now.â€¢ Success with women is all about taking steps to become the best version of yourself itâ€¢s possible to be, so you can attract a quality woman and keep that woman (if you want to!).

Donâ€¢t settle for second best or worse â€¢nothing at all. You deserve to be happy and have a beautiful woman to share your life with, or if you prefer, many beautiful women to share your bed with.

If you're dating after 50 and are looking for advice, then let me help you. I'll show you the way to quickly having your choice of beautiful women...and you don't need to change a thing about your physical appearance to make that happen.

How Do You Ask a Girl Out?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to ask a girl out, you should first ensure that she feels attracted to you.

For example: If you've been nice to her, been friendly and polite, then she's probably not going to be feeling much attraction for you yet.

However, if you have been displaying the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women (e.g. confidence, charisma, humor, masculine vibe, flirting, etc), then she will likely be feeling a lot of attraction for you and hoping that you ask her out.

Do you know how to make a girl feel attracted to you? Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, you can attract a girl in many different ways. As long as she is feel enough attraction for you before you ask her out, she will almost certainly say yes.

If she says no, then she's almost certainly just doing that to test your confidence (i.e. you will now become nervous and doubt yourself around her?) and check to see how sincere your interest is in her.

Asking Her Out Before She is Attracted

When guys ask me, How do you ask a girl out? it's often about a girl that they like who seems interested in a friendship, but they aren't sure if she's interested in anything else.

Guys often make the mistake of skipping the step of sexual attraction and trying to ask a girl out simply based on nice, friendly interaction. Yet, this leads to rejection in most cases because niceness isn't what turns a girl on.

Watch this video to understand why...

As you will discover by watching the video above, there's nothing wrong with being nice to this girl you like. However, if you want her to say, "YES!" to you asking her out, you'd better make sure that she feels sexually attracted to you first.

Asking a girl out who doesn't yet feel enough attraction for you, usually makes her play hard to get. She knows that you like her more than she likes you, so it gives her a sense of having some kind of power over you and a girl will usually take advantage of that power while she's got it.

For example: She will get you to buy her things, give her lots of compliments, listen to her complaining about other guys, do favors for her, etc. Yet, none of those things will make her feel sexually attracted to you.

In fact, the more of her crap that you put up with, the more respect she will lose for you as a guy. There's nothing wrong with paying for a meal if you and her eat together, giving her a compliment or doing her a favor, but if you're doing that to hopefully get her to "like" you enough to give you a chance, then you're doing it wrong.

Make Her Do the Asking

Guys who know how to make women feel a lot of attraction for them, rarely ask women out on dates. Why? Women usually ask them out or try to arrange a time to “hang out” or “catch up” with the guy, so one thing can lead to another.

So, what is the secret that those guys are in on?

It's simple.

They make a girl feel a lot of attraction, but then let her see (via his body language, behavior, vibe and conversation style) that he's still not sure whether or not she is good enough for him. This is called being a “challenge” and women love it.

Here's why...

As you will discover from the video above, if a woman is attractive, then she will be bored of guys instantly wanting her just because she looks good. If she's had some experience with guys already, then she's going to wish that a guy could be more of a challenge for her to win over.

When you are the challenge that women wish they could find, it's no longer is it about you trying to get girls; instead, it becomes a case you choosing which girls you will allow to be your girlfriend.

When a guy learns how to make himself irresistible to girls like this, he not only gets girls competing with one another to secure themselves a date with him, he gets girls jumping all over him to make it obvious that they want him to choose her; they want to make sure that he notices their interest in becoming his girlfriend before he chooses another girl.

So, don't waste your time searching the internet for âtop tips on asking a girl out because they're usually not going to work and will only make your dating life one full of rejection, heartache and misery.

Asking girls out is only a good idea if you've already made her feel a lot of attraction for you. It's fine to do it that way, but believe me – it's a lot of fun when you have the power to get women to ask you out.

Getting to choose from many different girls who are interested in you means that you get to choose the hottest girl of the bunch, which is much better than settling for an average girl that you're going to get bored of very quickly.

You have to remember: If you ask a girl out and she's not very attracted to you, she will most-likely reject you or at the very least, play hard to get for months or even years.

In the meantime, another guy can just come along, get her super attracted, make her want to be chosen by him, choose her and then enjoy sex and a relationship with her.

So, don't follow the path that you see guys in the movies acting out where they act like a friend, be really sweet to the girl and then get her in the end.

If you want to be successful with girls in the real world, don't believe the happy little fantasy world that you see in movies, where the fumbling, nervous nice guy gets the girl in the end. In the real world, you've got to be confident and you've got to get girls wishing they could be your girlfriend. When you do that, you're life is basically awesome from then on.

Being the Guy She Wishes She Could Have

What do certain guys have got that makes women fall over themselves to secure a date with them?

They've got self-confidence, they know who they are, they believe in themselves and they're relaxed just being themselves because of it. If they are really good with women, then they'll also have a charismatic charm and an ability to make everyone they meet — men and women — feel good about themselves.

As a result of those traits, they will naturally be respected by others because they can be relied upon to always be strong, to be true to themselves and to look out for those they care about.

Girls recognise these traits in a guy and they can't stop themselves from feeling sexually attracted to him. He is displaying all of the characteristics that make him a — good catch, — so girls can't help but want to be the one to secure him into a relationship.

Don't Be Afraid to Be Choosy

Guys who are hopeless with women are usually afraid to be choosy because they fear upsetting less attractive women. They don't want to be seen as being selfish and only wanting a beautiful woman, so they will accept pretty much any woman who shows them interest.

However, if you want girls to start asking you out and hoping that you say yes, you've got to be choosy. It's not selfish. You're simply being an alpha male who goes after what he wants in life and expects nothing less than the best for himself.

Guys like that (you might have met some of them throughout your life) are usually respected and admired by others. Guys look up to them and girls want to be chosen by them.

Alpha males don't need to ask girls out because by simply being the man when other guys are too afraid to be, girls will compete with each other to be the one he chooses. An alpha male has the confidence to approach girls (lots of girls), he has the confidence to engage the girls he meets in interesting conversations and his relaxed self-confidence makes him a fun guy to be around.

This marks him out as a guy who has his pick of girls and the girls around him know it and love it. Girls love the thrill of the chase and when they realize that other girls like him and he can have his choice, they become excited at the chance of scoring themselves a hot guy. Yes, no matter what he looks like, girls will consider a guy to be — hot — and — sexy — if many other girls want to be with him.

If you approach a girl and ask her out (hoping she will choose you for being so cute and nice like a character from a romantic comedy movie), you deny her the thrill of the chase.

At this point, some guys might feel a bit confused and ask, “...but, Dan, I don't get it. Surely if I ask her out I'm letting her know that I choose her, right? Isn't that what she wants? Isn't it good to let her know that I like her by asking her out on a date?” No! What she wants is to be chosen by a man that all women want to be chosen by.

She wants to feel that primal sexual attraction. Guys who are awesome with women will make women so attracted to them that she just can't stop herself from suggesting they exchange phone numbers or catch up for a drink, coffee, etc.

However, when a woman doesn't ask him out, he will simply tell her to give her phone number to him or meet up with him. It's no big deal if he has to ask the girl out because either way, he's going to have sex with her and try out a relationship with her.

Do Women Like to Be Dominated?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Being dominant over a woman doesn't mean that you should be overly aggressive with her. Women do like being dominated, but not in the way that many guys mistakenly assume.

When guys ask me, “Do women like to be dominated?” it's often because they're somewhat confused by the mixed messages they get from TV commercials, movies and even from women themselves.

On one hand, there seems to be a clear “girl power” message these days that says women want to be treated as equals in every way and would be shocked, angry and insulted if a man tried to dominate them. Yet, and on the other hand, there's also a different kind of message emanating from the belief that women prefer “bad boys” and guys who “treat them mean to keep them keen.” So which is it: Do women like to be in “power” or do women like to be dominated?

The Truth

[image: Do women like tough men who dominate them?]

Women do like to be dominated by men, but it's not in the way that most guys think.

Women aren't desperately looking for a man who will push her around, be selfish, be overly forceful, etc. Instead, being dominant comes down to simply being the stronger one (mentally and emotionally) in the interaction, on the date, during sex and in the relationship.

If a woman feels like she can dominate you and push you around in most ways, then she won't be able to feel girly around you and truly surrender to you during sex. Instead, she is going to feel like she is mistakenly allowing a weak man to penetrate her, which is not a turn on at all.

Women are turned off by weak men (mental and emotional weakness) because they don't want to get pregnant to a weak man and have to carry and protect him and the child throughout life. A woman's natural instinct is to find a man who she can feel safe with.

That doesn't mean finding a man who is extremely dominant or forceful or who goes around beating up guys who look at her, like some guys assume. Instead, it means that she wants a man that will be strong for her throughout life. She wants a man who will be a consistent, pillar of strength in her world as they embark on the journey of life together.

Different Environments Require Different Styles of Dominance

[image: Dominant man who is also loving]

Now, just because women like men to be more dominant (or stronger than them mentally and emotionally), it doesn't mean you should begin trying to boss everyone and every woman around, no matter what the circumstance is.

When I was moving up the ladder in the corporate world, I quickly realized that while women loved men who were assertive and fairly dominant in the bedroom, it didn't mean that they wanted to be pushed around in the workplace.

In the workplace, a woman wants to be respected and to be treated as an equal, but being respectful towards her doesn't mean that you hand over your power and let her run the show.

It just means that you don't treat her like a girl or flirt with her in a sexual way and expect her to behave all girly and submissive around you, like she would in a different environment (e.g. a bar, in the bedroom, etc).

When I eventually reached a very high position of leadership in a company that had over 1,000 employees, my boss was actually a woman. She was an awesome leader and I learnt so much about leadership from her. Now, although she was a bit of a girly girl outside of work, it didn't mean that I could openly flirt with her and get her to behave that way in front of others.

Behind closed doors, she was happy to have a bit of a flirt and laugh with me, but as long as it didn't cross the line where she began to feel as though I was trying to use my ability to dominate her in that way to gain dominance over her in the workplace.

I still had to respect her position in the company and allow her to be the boss in the situation.

Now, that doesn't make me weak by allowing a woman to be the more dominant one in a work situation; it's just the dynamic of working with women who are in positions of leadership. If I'd met her outside of the office, say in a bar for example, she would have felt excited and lucky to meet a guy like me who was and would remain in the position of dominance the entire time.

No doubt, her and I would have ended up having sex that night. I know that because I met many women like her and they are extremely easy to have sex with, because they rarely meet guys who feel stronger than them, mentally and emotionally.

The majority of guys will crumble under the pressure of a woman playing hard to get, rather than maintaining confidence in themselves and knowing that they are more than good enough.

How can a guy do that? Part of the secret is to be more of a challenge for women to win over...

Sexual Dominance

[image: Sexual dominance]

When it comes to sex, women do like to be dominated, but they will only happily accept it from a man they feel deserves to have that level of power over them.

For example: A lot of guys who've let their woman have all the power in a relationship end up asking me, "Dan, why isn't my girlfriend/wife interested in sex anymore?" and they'll often say something like, "She doesn't let me have sex with her anymore."

Did you notice the key term there? The guy is seeing sex as something that she needs to LET him have. When the right dynamic is in place in a male/female relationship, it will be the man who allows his woman to have some sex.

She will be wanting it from him and he will decide how much she gets to have. She will be wanting to give him oral sex and please him, because it will feel right to her to put herself in the submissive position. However, if she has too much power over him and doesn't respect him as a man, it won't feel right for her to get down on her knees and give him oral sex.

Essentially, what a guy needs to do is understand what really attracts women. If you're not exactly sure what women want, I recommend that you don't waste your life guessing and potentially getting rejected or dumped because you still haven't figured it out.

If you want to know how a woman's attraction for a man really works, watch this video...

As you will discover from the video above, women can feel attracted and turned by a guy for many different reasons. While it's true that women like to be dominated during sex, that does not mean they ALWAYS want to be dominated.

In my opinion, overly dominant behavior should only happen 20% of the time and the remaining 80% should be a mix of loving, intimate sex. Some women are exceptions and prefer dominant sex 80% of the time, but generally speaking, being very dominant 20% of the time is more than enough for most women.

Strong Man vs. Weak Man

I often have guys asking me things like, â€œDan, do women like to be dominated?â€œ or â€œHow dominant do I have to be to make women respect me?â€œ

In many cases, such guys have been told by friends, family, co-workers or even an ex-girlfriend (or wife) that they need to â€œman upâ€œ in some way or another. In a recent comment, a guy explained to me how his ex-girlfriend had dumped him because he wasn't â€œman enoughâ€œ for her in the relationship.

He wanted to know what she meant by that and whether it meant he was going to have to hit the gym or start bossing her around and being more forceful with her. His mistaken belief that â€œmanning upâ€œ is all about bulking up with bigger muscles and becoming physically stronger is a common one, just like the belief that being manly means being overly dominant all the time.

However, those are not accurate definitions of what it means to be a man. What his ex-girlfriend wants and what all women want, is to be in a relationship with a â€œstrongâ€œ man, but it's not physical strength that matters, it's mental and emotional strength.

If you are what women refer to as a real man, then you are going to have a lot of mental and emotional strength. No matter what situation you're faced with, you're going to remain strong. You're not going to become insecure or crumble emotionally.

Instead, you will stand strong, do what is needed and push on to success. Life is challenging at times and as such, women are naturally attracted to men with strong alpha male characteristics such as mental and emotional strength.

These are qualities that make him a man who naturally leads the way in a relationship and pushes forward in life with strength, allowing her to relax into feeling like a woman. With a strong man, a woman can relax into his masculine direction and spend her time supporting him in whatever way she wants, because she believes that, in the end, he will succeed.

He will follow through on his promises and stop at nothing to achieve what he wants in life. On the other hand, with a â€œweak manâ€œ a woman feels as though she has to take care of him, plan for their future and be the strong one when life gets challenging.

So, when it comes to the question of, â€œDo women like to be dominated?â€œ just remember that the most important thing to a woman is that you are stronger than her.

She is happy for you to be the more dominant one and will trust you and relax into your masculine direction for life, if you can consistently be a strong man. However, if you are weak, unstable and insecure, she is not going to allow you to dominate her. It will feel wrong to allow a weak man to have any sort of control or influence over her.

Do You Have to Be Selfish or Mean to Be Dominant and Strong?

[image: How much dominance will a woman put up with?]

No.

A lot of guys who are unsuccessful with women consider themselves to be â€œnice guys.â€œ

Often, they'll look on at confident guys who go after what they want in life as being selfish and mean compared to how nice they are.

A nice guy like that may think, â€œI'm nicer than those guys. They are selfish, self-centered pricks while I am loving, caring and considerate of everyone. If someone else succeeds instead of me, that is fine. As long as I am nice, I don't care. I know that by being nice, I am doing the right thing. The world can go and get fked...I know that I'm doing the right thing by being nice.â€œ

[image: Fuck you bitch. I'm a nice guy]

Lol, something like that anyway. You get the picture.

The point I'm making here is that â€œnice guysâ€œ will sometimes try to rationalize their lack of success with women (and in life) as being the fault of others.

â€œIf only people knew how nice and kind I was, they'd let me be successful.â€œ

Instead of realizing that life is a challenging place and, in most cases, only the strong-willed and persistent achieve true success in whatever they are trying to achieve, a typical guy who is failing with women will believe that success with women should be granted to him because he is so nice and has good intentions. However, as you may know, life just doesn't work that way.

Life isn't all sweet, nice and perfect every day. Sometimes, you get thrown a curveball and it takes balls, not niceness to get past that and push onto success. Women instinctively know that niceness isn't enough to get through the most challenging situations or threats during life, so that is why it's not the most attractive thing about a guy.

Niceness is good, but it's not what turns a woman on and makes her instincts kick in and effectively tell her, "This guy is strong. He's a survivor. He can handle any challenge that life throws his way."

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but a guy can't expect his niceness to be enough for a woman. Here's why...

When the typical nice guy is running through all the frustrations in his head about his lack of success with women, he will often begin to look on at confident, alpha males as being mean and selfish because they just take whatever women they want.

He'll see them being dominant in situations with other people and will notice that the women like it and he'll then become even more frustrated.

â□□ *Why can't women see that I am nice? I am a good guy, but they just don't like me! They like that jerk over there who thinks he's so damn cool, but he's not â□□ he's a wanker!*â□□ What guys like this fail to realize is that women DO want a good guy, but he has to be STRONG as well.

By strong, I mean mentally and emotionally strong, not physically strong. Confidence rather than insecurity, decisive rather than indecisive, assertive rather than passive.

Women would prefer not to hook up with jerks, assholes and bad boys, but if they are no confident good guys available, they'd rather go for a jerk that settle for an emotionally sensitive nice guy who they could dominate and push around.

A woman wants to feel like a woman, which means she wants to be with a man who is mentally and emotionally stronger than her. A man who can take care of her in every way, no matter how challenging life gets. She doesn't want a man who will crumble and look to her for support when life throws them a curveball.

She will help out, but she wants the man to be the stronger one.

This is what women mean by â□□manning upâ□□ and when you understand that, you will understand the answer to the question of, *â□□Do women like to be dominated?*â□□ Yes, women do like to be dominated, but not in a way where the man pushes her around and forces her to do things against her will.

A woman is looking for a man who has what it takes to naturally take the lead in the relationship and in every interaction (including sexual) they have together. You don't have to become Mr. Dominant or Mr. Perfect to achieve that.

Instead, you've just got to know how to be an emotionally strong man who can lead the way and allow a woman to relax because she knows that you've got her back and will lead the way to a better life for you and her.

Why Do I Get Nervous When I Talk to Women I Like?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The reason why you feel nervous when talking to a woman you like is that you are thinking in a way that creates a feeling of nervousness.

An alpha male thinks in a way that creates a feeling of confidence for himself, whereas you fill your head with all sorts of doubts and worries and then feel nervous as a result.

The type of thinking that will make you nervous:

"She probably doesn't like me. I will run out of things to say. She's too good for me. I look nervous. She is cooler than me. She's out of my league."

The type of thinking that will temporarily allow you to feel confident:

"I always see beautiful women with ugly, short, overweight, skinny and ordinary looking guys. I'm a good, decent guy and I deserve a quality woman. Women feel attraction to a guy's confidence, so the more confident I allow myself to be while talking to her, the more naturally attracted she will be. This girl will probably want to have sex with me or be my girlfriend if we keep talking. I'm just going to continue allowing myself to feel confident and see where it goes."

How a confident, alpha male thinks:

"She likes me. She wishes she could have sex with me or be my girlfriend. This is so easy."

Women Are Looking For Sex, Love and Relationships Too...it's Not Just You Who Wants it

[image: Women want to get some action too]

Personally speaking, I know that women are just as keen to meet a guy as we are to meet a woman.

So, when I talk to a woman, I know that she is secretly happy about having the chance to potentially meet a new lover or boyfriend. She may act as though it's not a big deal for her, but inside she is excited and curious to get to know you and see where it goes.

As you may know, women don't go around approaching men (it is our role to approach them), so when you approach, it is her opportunity to potentially meet a guy for sex or a relationship. She knows that and she is happy that she has another opportunity to hopefully meet a confident guy who is compatible with her.

I also know that women are attracted to the strength in men and turned off by the weakness. So, when I talk to a woman, I know that she will naturally and automatically feel attraction for me based on my confidence. I worked out the secrets to confidence many years ago and haven't felt nervous around a woman since.

Confusing Movies and TV with Actual Reality

When growing up, if a guy doesn't have a great male role model to teach him how to be confident around women, he will often turn to what he assumes is the next best authority on understanding women and the media.

Guys like this assume that what women say or do in magazines, on TV sitcoms or in the movies is how they behave, think and act in the real world. For example: He might believe that women are difficult to approach and may slap or tip a drink over his head if he approaches, because that is what happens on TV and in the movies.

Why does it happen on TV in the movies? It's entertainment! It gets people laughing (not me, I think it's stupid). If TV sitcoms and the movies just showed everything going perfectly well for everyone all the time, people would get bored of watching it, true?

To make it entertaining to watch, women in the movies and on TV are usually very emotional, stuck up, aggressive, weird or mean and bitchy. They play hard to get and make it almost impossible for guys to pick them up. The male characters (usually a loveable loser type character) do all sorts of amazing things to try and impress the woman and hopefully get her to like him.

He saves the day, saves the world or saves the girl and THEN the girl likes him. After watching a lot of TV, Hollywood movies and music videos, many guys begin to confuse what they see on TV and in the movies with real life. They don't realize that most women are really nice people and will be very friendly and open if a guy approaches in a confident, easy-going way.

Why Else Do Guys Feel Nervous When Talking to Women They Like?

Guys who ask me, and Dan, why do I get nervous when I talk to women I like? are always (not sometimes) those who have been thinking, behaving and acting like a lower-ranking male, instead of embracing their masculinity and being a strong alpha male. If you think like a lower-ranking male, you will naturally feel nervous.

It's just the way it goes.

If you want to be confident, you have to change your thinking. If you are afraid to be alpha because you think it's about being a bad boy, then think again. You don't have to be bad to be alpha, you just have to be strong (mentally and emotionally).

Here are some classic problems that guys experience, which then lead to feeling nervous when talking to women they like:

1. Lacking confidence in their sex appeal to women

When a guy feels unworthy of the woman he approaches, he will naturally begin to feel nervous around her. He'll be worrying about making a mistake, assuming that she doesn't like him and will be hoping to impress her and maybe get lucky.

Women sense his mental and emotional weakness and reject him. Why? Women are attracted to the strength in men and turned off by the weakness.

The secret to overcome this lack of confidence is to improve your ability to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman. When you are able to actively attract women, you will instantly begin to see that they like you and are interested in you.

When you see that you're able to easily attract women, then there's nothing to be nervous about anymore because you know that you can get most women to like you very quickly. Here's how it works...

2. Fearing rejection

An alpha male knows that women will naturally feel attraction for him, so doesn't fear being rejected when he approaches. A lower ranking male fears rejection because he knows that most women don't feel attraction for him. He knows that if he approaches, he will be rejected almost every time.

3. Waiting for the woman to make the first move

[image: Approachable women]

Sometimes, women will make it very obvious that they like a guy and will be very open and approachable (e.g. like in the photo above).

However, 99% of the time, they don't want to make it too easy for guys to approach them. Why? If they were always open and available, nervous, self-doubting guys would feel confident enough to approach them.

Why don't women want that?

Think about it...

What would women do to the strength of humanity if they rewarded a guy's self-doubt and nervousness with sex, love and devotion? After a few generations, the human race would likely become very scared and wimpy, or women would become like men.

That's not going to happen.

Women are instinctively programmed to breed strength, courage and confidence into the human race via men, while we men are programmed to breed healthy and beauty into it via woman. Women aren't going to go against nature and start waving over nervous guys by saying, "Hey, don't be afraid. Come and talk to me!"

Sure, some women will do that to play around with a guy and make fun of him in front of her friends. Some women may also do it if they are drunk. However, when the woman senses that the guy is nervous and self-doubting, she is going to feel instinctively turned off by him.

The fact is, most women like to be approached by a guy first because they want to see that he has the confidence to do it. Some very good-looking guys will get approached by women at times, but women will lose interest if they discover that the guy isn't confident.

Other than approaching really handsome men or famous guys, women rarely approach. If you want to have your choice with women, you have to be confident enough to walk over and attract women with your confidence and personality.

4. Being completely sold on a woman immediately

Instead of using the approach that women wish that a guy would use (i.e. gradually decide whether he likes a girl or not based on her behavior, personality and looks), guys (who get nervous when talking to women they like) tend to immediately decide that they want the girl as a girlfriend before she has proven herself to be a compatible woman.

When talking to him, the woman picks up on his eagerness and notices that he is already "sold" on her. She gets the sense that he feels lucky to be talking to her. What guys like this don't realize is that women want to feel lucky to be with the guy, not feel as though they are doing the guy a favor by being with him.

If you get excited and feel like she is “the one” before talking to her or during the first few minutes of conversation, then you will likely feel nervous and worry about stuffing up the interaction.

The secret is to be more of a challenge and make her work a little to impress you. Here’s how it works...

5. Being unable to keep a conversation going or keep it interesting

One of the keys to success with a woman is being able to engage her in an enjoyable conversation that has a sexual vibe running through it the entire time.

If the conversation goes well and the woman feels sexually attracted to you, she will naturally be open to taking things further with you. However, if the conversation is boring and doesn’t make her feel the types of emotions that she wants to feel when interacting with a possible lover or boyfriend, it’s only natural that she won’t be interested in taking things further.

6. Feeling intimidated by attractive women

Some guys think that showing a woman how nervous or intimidated he is around her, will somehow impress her and make her feel flattered. Yet, women are turned off (sexually) by men who are afraid of them.

A woman might string a guy like that along (even into a relationship for a while), but she will leave him in a second if she meets a real man.

Letting Go of Your Nervousness to Become Confident Enough to Approach and Attract Women

Nervousness and anxiety are both created within your own mind. You feel nervous and anxious around women as a result of the way you think.

An alpha male feels confident, relaxed and in control around women because of the way he thinks. Confidence isn’t something that you’re born with, it is something that you create throughout your life.

If you’re the sort of guy who gets nervous when talking to women you like, you need to let go of your nervousness by getting used to thinking in a more confident way.

Do Women Care if You're Bald?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Yes and no.

Women might go around saying that they don't like a guy with a bald head, but that doesn't mean they couldn't feel attracted to him, fall in love with him or even marry him.

[image: Do women care if you're bald?]

From now on, you will notice that there is usually a big difference between what people SAY and what they actually DO when it comes to sexual selection.

For example: A guy might go around saying that he wants a nice, intelligent woman with good family values, but he secretly masturbates to the sluts and whores in porn every week. While masturbating, he will feel attraction and may even want to be in a relationship with the woman.

[image: Man looking at porn. Men are mostly attracted to the physical appearance of women]

If he goes to a strip club, he will likely fall in love with one or more of the women there even though the woman might not be nice, intelligent or have good family values.

She might be a total slut, untrustworthy, dumb and an annoying bitch, but the attraction she is making him feel is allowing him to consider dropping the requirements he thought a woman had to meet to be his girl.

Likewise, a woman might go around saying that she wants a good looking man with a full head of hair, but that doesn't mean she can't feel attraction to other guys for other reasons.

Do You Think That You've Been Getting Rejected Because You're Bald?

From now on, you will notice that guys make up all sorts of excuses for their lack of success with women. However, the reason why they fail with women is explained in this video...

As you will discover from the video above, most women (not all) place a lot less importance on minor things like baldness or weight when it comes to a guy. The most important thing for most women is how much sexual attraction you're able to make her feel with your personality, confidence, vibe and overall style of interacting with her.

In other words, does she feel turned on and excited when talking to you, or does she feel like you're just a gentle, nice guy who makes her feel like more of a friend or sister?

What Are Women Attracted to About Men?

The one thing that most of us guys have in common is a desire to have sex with beautiful women. True? Yet, most guys never get to experience the excitement and pleasure of having their choice with women.

Why?

They've been sucked into believing that it's all about looks, having a full head of hair or being rich or tall. So, when he meets a beautiful woman he assumes that she wouldn't like a guy like him.

Yet, the fact is that women can be attracted to you in so many different ways. A woman's attraction for a man is not the same as a man's attraction for a woman. For us men it is very simple: Does she look good or not? For women, it's much more complicated.

Yes, there are some women who will not accept a guy who is bald and will only have sex with or marry a guy with a full head of hair, but really – the majority of women aren't that shallow.

If you're able to make a woman feel a lot of attraction for you for other reasons (e.g. you're confident, charismatic, charming, funny, etc), then she will actually come to like the fact that you're bald. She will like it because it's a part of you and you are the guy who is making her feel so good.

If Baldness is a Turn Off, Why Do So Many Bald Guys Have a Girlfriend or Wife?

At some point in their life, pretty much every guy will ask himself, â€œDo women care if you're bald?â€ because they have been fooled into thinking that to be attractive to women, you have to be good-looking or young-looking.

Yet, if that was true, why do all those bald, fat, ugly, scrubby or short guys have a beautiful girlfriend or wife? Why? It's because women are attracted to different things in men. Women care much less about a guy's appearance and much more about his personality, confidence and emotional strength.

In today's world, the biggest mistake guys make is in thinking that their physical appearance is the most important thing to women, because the ads on TV tell them to look good, dye their hair and wear nice clothes for women.

Guys also overhear women talking about men looking good, because women can't talk about what they really find attractive about men.

Why?

If a woman talked about what she found most attractive in a man, she would usually be treated with less respect by others. For example: Women love guys who have the confidence and emotional masculinity to lead them, dominate them and make them feel girly.

Yet, if they admitted that, guys would think it was a free pass to push her around or disrespect her. So, she has to talk about superficial things like, â€œOh, he's handsome. I like handsome menâ€

The Pretty Little Peacock

[image: Peacock mating dance]

In the peacock bird species, the male attracts a female by being as pretty and colorful as he can. That works for birds, but being a pretty, youthful looking guy doesn't apply to the human mating dance.

In the human mating dance, it is the woman who needs to make herself look young and pretty. That is why you see bald, fat, short, scrubby and even ugly men with beautiful women. Those men have attracted the women in OTHER ways, all of which I teach here at The Modern Man.

Attracting women in other ways is the most exciting, rewarding thing that you will ever learn to do as a man.

When you know what I know about attracting women, you instantly get to have your choice of women.

No longer are you thinking, “Do I need to regrow my hair to be attractive to women?” or “Will women like me if I go even balder?” Instead, you will be thinking, “Which of the 5 women who want to be my girlfriend will I allow to have sex with me this week?”

New guys are finding my website every day and beginning to use my techniques to achieve those kinds of results. Check out the success stories here if you think it might be impossible for you to do. Believe me, it's so easy to do that it's strange that we men have only recently discovered how to do it.

Back to the peacock...

In their desire to attract a beautiful woman, many guys will undergo numerous physical transformations to present themselves as a pretty little peacock for women. “Look at me in my nice new shirt!” or “Heyyyy, smell my new cologne? NOW do you like me?” or “Check out my muscles...now do you like me?”

Thanks to the steroid celebrities such as Arnold Schwarzenegger and Sylvester Stallone, many men have been sucked into thinking that big muscles are required to get the girl. So, they spend years working out in the gym only to discover that they still suck with women.

[image: Why do women like guys with muscles?]

When it comes to hair, many guys have been sucked into thinking that dying their gray hair into a dark or attention-grabbing color will get them the girl, because that's what happens on the TV commercials.

Yet, no matter how much effort they put into getting rid of those “nasty gray hairs” women still aren't interested. Personally speaking, many women have told me that when they notice that a guy has dyed his gray hairs, they immediately know that he is insecure about his appearance. In case you didn't know, insecurity is not attractive to women!

Some women even laugh and say, “He's probably gay...his hair is dyed...so creepy.” Yet, the guy has been sucked in by the stupid TV commercial and by other confused men online saying that having color to your hair is essential for attracting women. It's ridiculous.

Big Muscles, But Still Nervous Around Women

Have you ever seen a guy with big muscles who just stands there in a bar looking at women, but doesn't have the confidence to approach? It's so common. Over the years, 100s of guys have told me, “Dan, when I first started working out and building muscle, it gave me a great confidence boost. Yet, now that confidence is gone. Why? How do I get it back?”

What these guys don't realize is that confidence is something that you need to build on over time through the proper use of mindsets. Getting a new shirt, a new car or building muscle might give you a temporary boost of confidence, but it's not actually how to BUILD and MAINTAIN confidence as a man.

Confused by what they are seeing on TV, many modern men have bought into the pretty peacock myth and are trying to make themselves look good to women, instead of focussing on making women feel good around them via their personality, vibe, conversation style and body language.

Millions of guys all over the world waste time and money trying to find that perfect shirt or pair of pants that will drive women wild.

They search around a store looking for the "perfect cologne" that will make a woman melt in their presence. Yet, after spraying it on and going to meet women, there is no difference in how women respond. When it comes to his baldness, some guys may even try to conceal a bald head with an obvious (and unattractive) comb over style or toupee.

When it doesn't work, he will feel confused and may begin to blame his clothes, his cologne or his looks. So, if you are asking, Do women care if you're bald?, Do women care if you have gray hairs? or, Do women care if you're wearing expensive cologne or cheap deodorant? you are missing the point entirely.

Your success or lack of success with women is not about your hair.

It's about who you are as a man and how you make women feel when you interact with them.

The Bald Guy Vs. The Tall, Good Looking Guy With a Full Head of Hair

Here is an example scenario of a woman choosing a bald guy instead of a tall, good looking guy with a full head of hair. See if you can work out why she has chosen the bald guy....

The Bald Guy

Imagine a bald guy of average height, average weight (maybe even just a little bit overweight in places) and average looking (nothing special).

He is in a new relationship with a very beautiful blonde woman, who not only has a perfect body, but also happens to be a successful lawyer. She really likes him and is hoping that they move in together soon so they can commit to the relationship even more.

Why is she with him? At this point some guys will think, Yeah! I bet he's super rich! He drives a big car and he lives in a expensive house.

How about you?

Would you assume that, or have you already realized that attraction has more to do with a man's personality and how he makes the woman feel?

Here are some additional details about the bald guy to fill in the blanks of this scenario. See if you work out why she likes him...

He has a small car, an average paying job and lives in a small apartment in an average neighborhood. He also happens to be a very funny guy; he has a great sense of humor and is an incredible conversationalist. He knows how to draw a woman in during a conversation and make her want to tell him everything about herself...things that she just doesn't share with other people.

He has perfected the art of flirting, so he is always able to create a sexual vibe between himself and a woman. His body language is alpha and assertive, but also relaxed and easy-going, so women feel attracted and at ease around him. Women feel attracted to him and men respect him.

Women who know him say, â€œHe makes me feel like a real woman when Iâ€™m with him.â€

He is confident in himself and in his abilities, has ambition and goals for his life which heâ€™s actively working towards and never complains or looks for pity from women. He has many friends who enjoy hanging out with him and who trust and respect him, so if he ever faces an emergency of any kind, he will have numerous friends to call on.

The Tall, Good Looking Guy With a Full Head of Hair

Imagine a tall guy, good looking guy who has a gym physique and also happens to have a full head of thick, lush hair.

Yet, he is single.

...and not by choice either.

He wants a girlfriend, but can't seem to get past a 5 minute conversation with most of the women he meets. Unattractive women make it easy for him, but beautiful women reject him.

Throughout his life, many people have said to him, â€œYou're a good looking guyâ€ and asked, “Why don't you have a girlfriend?” yet he never seems to get anywhere with women. Some attractive women seem interested initially, but lose interest within seconds or minutes of meeting him.

â€œHow can this be possible?â€ you might ask. “Don't good looking guys have it easy when it comes to women?”

Not at all.

The tall, good looking guy in this scenario, also happens to have very low self esteem. Despite people telling him that he is good looking, he feels nervous around attractive women and they notice it.

Women can see how tense he is, how much he is trying to impress them and how he is trying to be chosen by being a pretty little peacock. Women see that he just doesn't know how to be a man.

His lack of mental and emotional masculinity forces the woman to take on a more masculine role when interacting with him; kind of like a big sister or even mother figure for him...neither of which is attractive to 99% of the women he will meet in life.

His conversation skills are sorely lacking and will resort to asking the woman a series of questions about herself, her work, her dreams, her family or food choices.

This makes the woman feel like she's being put through an interview with a guy that she doesn't want to be giving any information to.

Women don't want to feel like they are being interviewed for a job, they want to feel sexually attracted to a guy's personality and be excited about how he is able to make her feel. Asking those work related questions is just the same old thing that every other guy has asked her.

The tall, good looking guy also gives attractive women the impression that he'd be lucky to get chosen by them. Yet, what he doesn't realize is that she hopes to be chosen by a real man who knows how to be a man. She isn't interested in having a self-doubting, pretty peacock girly man as a boyfriend. She wants a guy who is a challenge...

For guys like this, the gym often seems like the answer. “When I add 5 more kilos/11 pounds and more definition to my shoulder muscles, THEN women will like me. I’ve heard that women like confident, dominant men, so I will LOOK more confident and dominant with those shoulder muscles.”

Yet, after building more muscle, attractive women still reject him.

If the gym isn’t working, he may begin to think that he needs a better car or to embark on a career as a doctor or some other flashy job. Guys like that will go through much of their life waiting until they are a doctor (or whatever profession they think will get them the girl), until they’ve got the car or the money before they will feel worthy enough for attractive women.

Yet, when he meets an attractive woman, he may forget about his valuable job and go back to feeling insecure and unworthy around her, which will turn her off.

His emotional weakness makes the woman feel stronger than him, so she will find it difficult to feel sexual attraction for him...and if there is no sexual attraction, she isn’t going to be interested in anything other than a conversation or friendship.

Now that you’ve read both scenarios, let me ask you: Can you see why women would go for the ball guy over the tall, insecure “good looking” guy with a full head of hair?

The next time you’re walking down the street and see an “ugly” guy or a bald guy with a beautiful woman, don’t think to yourself, “WHY is she with him?”

You already know the answer.

Despite the superficial things that women might say or what TV commercials might try to convince you to think to buy their deodorant “that drives women wild” or their hair gel “that will make women say WOW,” you’ve got to focus on what happens in the REAL world.

You’ve got to realize that women do feel attracted to men for so many different reasons and having a full head of hair or being completely bald does not answer success or failure with women.

Success with women arrives when you know how to make women feel attracted to who you are as a man and feel excited about how you make them feel.

The human mating dance is not about you being being a young, pretty little peacock and hoping to be chosen by a woman.

It’s about you being a confident man and choosing a woman based on how young and pretty she looks. That is how it works in the real world.

Why Do Women Like Bad Boys?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Asking why women like bad boys is pretty much the same as asking you why you like strippers and porn actresses (i.e. bad girls).

[image: A beautiful stripper]

So, why do you look at porn actresses so often and masturbate to that, but then go around saying that you're looking for a nice girl?

Simple.

Strippers and porn actresses make you feel attracted, which is the same thing that bad boys offer to women.

So, is the answer to become and be a bad boy?

No.

The answer is to make women feel a lot of attraction for you based on how you interact with them, how you present your personality, what vibe you have, your attitude and how you take action around her and in life.

You can still be a good guy and attract women, but you can't expect women to like you and lust after you simply because you're nice. Here's why...

As you will learn from the video above, being nice to women isn't the problem. You can be nice to women, but you also must display at least some (the more the better) of the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women.

For example: Masculine confidence, charisma, the ability to make her laugh, flirtatious conversation, charm, etc. At The Modern Man, I teach guys how to attract women in more than 100 different ways.

You don't have to use all of the 100 ways on a woman to make her feel as much attraction as she would for a bad boy. Instead, it usually only takes about 5-10 attraction triggers to get a woman falling madly in love with you and desperately wanting to have sex with you.

Here's how it works...

As you will learn from the video above, it's up to you how much attraction you will allow a woman to feel for you. A bad boy does make a woman feel a lot of attraction because of his masculine confidence and "I don't care about you" attitude, but that isn't what women ultimately want.

What a woman really wants is to be able to find a real man. In other words, a good guy who can also trigger feelings of intense attraction inside of her.

Why Women Hook Up With Bad Boys

[image: Why do women hook up with bad boys?]

Think about it this...

If you could, you would probably like to have sex with some bad girls (e.g. strippers, club hotties, porn actresses, etc). However, if you're not that good at attracting women, then it's usually going to be next to impossible for you to get a chance with a girl like that.

[image: Man looking at porn. Men are mostly attracted to the physical appearance of women]

Yet, if you could have sex with her, you probably would right?

The difference for women who hook up with bad boys is that it's a lot easier for a woman to get laid because all she has to do is consent to it and the majority of men will have sex with her, at least once anyway.

So, if she meets a bad boy and he turns her on, it's easy for her to say yes to having sex with him and go along with it. However, if a nice guy who lacks confidence around hot women (i.e. that's probably you if you're reading this article) meets a hot, bad girl, then he's rarely going to be able to make her feel enough attraction to get to her to feel interested in having sex.

However, that does not mean that you cannot attract or pick up all sorts of women (i.e. hot good girls, hot bad girls, girl next door types, etc). You can, but you've got to understand that unless you can give a woman the attraction experience she is looking for, she's rarely going to be interested in anything other than a brief conversation or relationship.

Most Women Would Prefer to Find Themselves a Real Man

Just like you'd probably prefer a beautiful woman who is a good person, loyal, trustworthy, caring and emotionally stable, most women also want to find themselves a good guy.

The truth is, women don't like bad boys more than every other type of guy; they just go for bad boys when there aren't any real men around.

Most women would rather be with a good guy who is confident, or a confident guy who is a little bit bad than a nervous, shy and insecure nice guy. Why? Women are attracted to confidence in men, not nervousness and anxiety. If you're a nice guy who is nervous and shy around her, it's not as attractive as being a nice guy who is confident around her.

I get so many e-mails from guys asking, Why do women like bad boys? and they usually come from guys who describe themselves as nice guys who lack confidence in themselves and are nervous or shy around women they like.

Now, don't get me wrong: There is nothing wrong with being nice and in fact, I recommend that you be a good guy, but only being a nice guy is not the answer to success with women.

In the movies and in TV sitcoms, you will see the nervous nice guy save the day or rescue the girl and then he'll get the girl and everyone will love him and want to be his friend, before the end of the movie.

In the real world, if a guy is really nice, but lacks confidence and is nervous around women he likes, then women won't find him attractive. A woman might see him as a friend, but she won't feel much or any sexual attraction for him.

When a guy contacts me and asks why women like bad boys so much, he will usually refer to the fact that he sees jerks and guys who treat women badly with girls falling all over them.

What guys like this don't know is that sexual attraction is a key factor for a woman choosing a guy and that confidence is key to sexually attracting women. Really nice guys are often quite nervous, reserved, shy, tense and even anxious when interacting with women...and that does not make a woman feel sexual attraction!

In fact, the weakness of men is a sexual turn off for women, whereas the strength is what turns women on.

The truth of the matter is that women don't want a bad boy, they just want a man who is mentally and emotionally stronger than them. The ideal guy is a good guy who is also strong, but such guys are hard to find because they are usually already married, with a girlfriend or have many women on the go at once.

The Truth About Attraction

If you believe what pop culture is telling you, then you believe that women feel the most attraction to male models who have six pack abs, a sports car and are 6ft tall.

Yet, if you believe what your eyes tell you when you perceive the everyday world around you, then you will believe that women fall in love with all sorts of guys. Short, fat, bald, of any racial background, no job, good job, no car, nice car and so on. So, how do these guys get a girlfriend? Why are women attracted to them?

It's simple.

The guy is displaying personality traits (especially confidence and masculinity) that is attracting the woman. So, why do women like bad boys? Confidence.

A woman would rather be with a confident guy (good or bad) than be with a nervous, shy, self-doubting guy. Why? Having sex with a confident guy is 100x more enjoyable for a woman than having sex with a nervous guy who lacks confidence in himself.

The reason why women choose bad boys over nice guys is not that they want to be treated badly, it is that they want to feel strong sexual attraction.

Women dream of meeting a guy who has the confidence of a "bad boy," but who is also a good, honest, loyal, caring, genuine guy who will treat her nicely. That is what women refer to as a real man.

Due to his confidence and understanding of women, a real man can confidently approach any woman when he decides to, which allows him to have his choice of women.

He knows how to engage a woman in interesting conversation, he knows how to flirt and build sexual tension and he knows how to escalate a conversation into a kiss, a date or sex.

When a woman meets a guy who is nervous about approaching her, nervous about talking to her and nervous about escalating the conversation further, she is turned off because she feels mentally and emotionally stronger than him, which makes it difficult, if not impossible (for many women) for her to feel strong sexual attraction.

Approaching Women the Right Way

Let's have a look at a couple of scenarios of guys approaching women to see how a different approach and attitude generates a different reaction in the woman/women.

Scenario #1: The Self-Doubting Guy

A self-doubting sees a girl he likes in a bar and wants to go over and talk to her.

She and the girls she's with have looked his way a couple of times, but he's hesitant about approaching her because she's beautiful and he's not sure she'd be interested in a guy like him.

He eventually works up the courage to approach her and he puts on a confident front by coming out with a line he read on a website forum somewhere, "Do your legs hurt from running through my dreams all night?"

The woman could have rejected him then and there for using such a cheesy line on her, but being nice (as many women are) she gives him the benefit of the doubt and answers with a smile.

He then tries to think of something interesting to say, but his anxiety leads to more hesitation and he eventually blurts out, "I don't suppose I could buy you a drink?" at which point she makes an excuse to go and join her girlfriends on the dance floor and he's left on his own at the bar.

Why? The woman doesn't want to be bought. She wants to meet a guy who will make her feel sexual attraction with his personality and be able to connect with her on interesting levels.

The self-doubting guy feels rejected and thinks to himself, "Man, this is difficult. Why are women so mean? I'm being nice why doesn't she give me a chance?" He then sees a guy who is acting like a jerk or looks like a bad boy and he has women all over him, laughing together with him and enjoying themselves.

The self-doubting guy thinks to himself, "Why do women like bad boys? Why was she mean to be for being so nice to her and just trying to get a conversation going?"

Scenario #2: The Confident, Easy-Going, Good Guy

A confident, easy-going, good guy is at a bar and notices a girl he finds really attractive.

He approaches her and the group of girls she's with and introduces himself. He chats about something interesting that happened locally that day, which pretty much everyone in the group knows about and can talk about. This gets a group conversation going and he makes sure he talks to all of the girls in the group, not just the girl he likes.

The girls like his confidence and his ability to make conversation, so they begin to flirt with him to get his attention. The fun begins!

The more he joins in with the flirting, the more that the sexual tension builds. The girl he liked initially notices that her other girlfriends like him too, so she tries harder to get him to like her...and in doing so, it becomes 100 times easier for him to pick her up.

Do you see the difference? It's not about being bad versus being nice.

Most women aren't desperately looking for a bad boy, they are desperately looking for a guy who isn't afraid of them. If a woman is faced with a choice between a confident jerk and a shy nice guy she's going to go for the jerk 9 times out of 10.

What she really wants is a confident nice guy, a good man with strong alpha male characteristics, but they're very hard to find (they are usually taken or enjoying relationships with many women at once), so she settles for the next best thing a confident bad boy with strong alpha male characteristics.

Women are turned off by nervousness, anxiety, and hesitation and turned on by confidence and masculinity. If you're asking, Why do women like bad boys? then you're probably a guy who lacks self-confidence and feels nervous around women you like and it's your anxiety that's making it hard to attract women, not the fact that you're not nice.

Like v Lust!

A lot of the time when guys come to this site and ask me, Dan, why do women like bad boys? they're also asking, Do I need to be bad to get a girlfriend? The answer is, no!

Let me say it again: It's not about being bad, it's about being attractive to women. The mistake most nice guys make is trying too hard to be liked by a woman for being a nice guy, when what is most important is making her feel sexual attraction to your confidence, masculinity, presence, social intelligence and ability to create a sexual vibe with her.

There's nothing wrong with being nice, it's just that you also need to show sexually attractive sides to your personality too. When a woman feels she's in the presence of a real man, she feels virtually powerless to resist him because he is exactly the type of man she wants.

Real men have a strength of character and masculinity that goes way beyond any loud, chest-beating, or jerky displays of manliness and women can sense it at a deep level. A likeable nice guy may be someone she enjoys hanging out with as a friend, but a guy she likes as a friend is usually not the guy she is thinking about having sex with.

Women are instinctively turned on by strong, confident and masculine men, but it's inner strength that attracts, not bulging biceps or jerk/bad boy behavior.

You don't need to hit the gym to become a more attractive man and you don't need to be a bad man, you just need to lose the shyness and anxiety that is holding you back from being the confident guy you can and should be.

When you work on developing self-confidence along with mental and emotional strength, you not only become a more attractive man in a woman's eyes, you develop a confident and masculine presence that women find irresistible.

If a nervous, self-doubting guy gets lucky and scores a girlfriend, she will usually lose interest because those traits are sexual turn offs for women.

So, don't let the mistaken idea that women prefer bad boys lead you into wasting energy on trying to become something you're not.

Instead, put your energy into becoming better than a bad boy and learn how to develop your good guy characteristics to become a man that women find irresistible.

What is Your Skill Level With Women?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

You have developed a whole set of skills throughout your life.

To be clear, a skill is defined as:

| Skill (noun): The ability to do something well; expertise.

There are different levels of skill that a person can have.

Generally speaking, they fit into four levels of skill:

1. Beginner.
2. Amateur.
3. Advanced.
4. Master.

Before I talk about women, I'll talk about one of the skills that you have mastered in life.

No doubt you've mastered the skill of understanding and speaking the language of English, otherwise you wouldn't know what I'm talking about right now.

The skill that you have to understand and be able to speak English is a very complex skill, but it's not something that you were born with.

It's something that you had to learn and develop over time.

So, if you think about the example of a boy being born, he's born, he doesn't know how to speak the language, he develops a skill of being able to use the words and understand the words and understand how it all pieces together, and then he gets good at it.

Then later in he is able to speak the language, and use it, and understand it without even having to think about it. It just comes naturally and easily to him.

The boy is started out as a beginner, he was a bit of an amateur early on, then he had an advanced understanding of how to speak and listen to the language of English, and then he masters it and he can just speak it.

Like yourself now, you can understand what I'm talking about.

The same applies to women in terms of the skills that are required for a man to be successful with women.

For example: His ability to walk over and talk to women, and start a conversation, keep the conversation going, keep it interesting, connect with the woman and then move things forward. His ability to attract women when he's interacting with them.

His ability to be confident, his understanding of confidence and how to actually be confident (because if a man isn't confident he is going to be turning women off, and he is probably not even going to approaching women in the first place.Â He's going to be avoiding them because he doubts himself, he fears it, he feels anxious, he feels nervous).

Then there are the skills of relationships (i.e. being able, actually, keep a relationship together rather than having it fall apart).

There are whole bunch of skills that are involved in being successful with women, and it's a complex area of skills, but with the right training a guy can quickly master that area of his life.

It's not something like learning a language where it takes a long time.

A guy can go from being a bit of a beginner with women, an amateur, up to the advanced level very quickly, and then if he puts some work in he can reach the mastery level of success with women.

[image: Improving your skills with women]

So how can you actually tell whether a guy has a beginner level of skill with women, versus a guy who is a master (i.e. he's mastered his area of his life and is completely there under control)?

An analogy to use, before I go into details of what beginners experience and what guys who have an advanced level experience with women etc., I'll give you the analogy of sport.

With the sports of tennis, basketball, and soccer or football.

Generally speaking, if a beginner looks at someone playing tennis, it looks fairly easy.

You just hit the ball back and forth, it seems pretty easy, but if the beginner tries to do and he's never played tennis before, he misses the shot. He can't run over to the other side of the court in time to hit the shot back, and he's being beaten by a person who's got a higher level of skill than him.

The same with basketball; it looks easy, just running around a court and then throwing a ball in a hoop.

That seems pretty easy, but when playing against people who have skill, the beginner realizes, "Right, actually I don't even have this skill, I need to learn it, I need to develop it."

Same with football, just running around a field kicking a ball, it all seems very easy, but when the beginner actually tries to play the game with people who know what they're doing, he realizes that he needs to develop the skill.

Yet, when it comes to women, most guys don't realize that if they're not getting the results that they want with women, they need to develop these skills.

For most guys they think, "Okay look, I've tried to talk to women before, I've been rejected, I get nervous around women, I run out of things to say, I just can't get women interested in me, women mustn't like me because I'm not good-looking enough. You know, that's what it is."

He doesn't realize that he can actually develop his conversation skills, and be able to connect with women.

He doesn't realize that he can improve his confidence, and that will improve his results with women. He doesn't know it that there are many different ways that he can attract women when he interacts with them.

So he just thinks, "Oh, I'm stuffed when it comes to women," but when it comes to sports, or something else in life, if he doesn't have the skill, he'll say, "Okay well, I need to develop that skill," But with women, "No, no, no, you can't improve your skills with women. I'm stuffed, I'm doomed for life."

So that right there is a huge opportunity for you, because most guys don't even think that it's possible to improve their skills with women and get better results.

Most guys are going through life thinking that, "Oh well, women don't like me, I can't do anything about it," but a very small percentage of guys have realized, "Okay, you can actually improve your skills with women.Â You can actually get to the point where you can make women feel attracted to you when you interact with themÂ You can have your choice with women, you can be the sort of guy who has many women interested in him at once, and it's actually very easy once you have the skill."

Just like playing tennis is very easy once you have the skill, or speaking the language of English is easy once you have the skill.

What Can Be Improved About Your Skills With Women?

[image: Improving your skills with women]

So, what can be improved about your skills so that you don't get rejected by women, you don't get dumped, you don't get divorced, you don't get cheated on by a woman?

What can be improved so you have your choice with women, so when you interact with women they feel attracted to you, they want to be with you, they enjoy talking with you? What can be improved?

What I'm going to talk about, five different areas of skill that guys need to improve to get better results with women.

I'm going to talk about what a beginner experience is, what a guy who has an amateur level of skills experiences with women, a guy who has an advanced level skill, and a guy whose has mastered this area of his life.

Okay, let's have a look at the first one; approaching women.

- Beginner:Â Fears being rejected and rarely approaches women he likes.
- Amateur:Â Fears being rejected and rarely approaches women he likes, but can sometimes work up the courage to approach.
- Advanced:Â Can confidently approach women most the time, but sometimes feels anxious and nervous and falls back into his oldÂ ways of thinking.
- Master:Â Can confidently approach women anytime he wants. He never feels nervous or anxious, no matter what the situation is or how beautiful the woman is. He approaches at will without any fear and with full confidence in himself and his abilities.

The next area of skill, conversation.

- Beginner:Â Doesn't know what to say to start conversations, keep them going and keep them interesting.
- Amateur:Â He is okay at conversation, but often runs out of things to say and then loses his opportunity with some of the women he meets.
- Advanced:Â Can easily start conversations, keep them going, and keep them interesting. Women enjoy talking to him.
- Master:Â Can easily start conversations keep them going, and keep them interesting. Women really enjoy talking to him.

The next area of skill, confidence.

- Beginner:Â Lacks confidence around women that he finds attractive.
- Amateur:Â Has developed a new level of confidence that allows him to attract more women, but still seems to get nervous and doubt himself around very attractive women.

- Advanced: Can be confident around most women even very attractive women, but isn't able to maintain his confidence when interacting with women that he feels is out of his league.
- Master: He is always confident no matter how challenging or beautiful a woman is. He always feels completely confident, calm, and in control. Women sense his deep confidence and it turns them on like nothing else can.

The next area of skill, escalation to dates, kissing, and sex.

- Beginner: Can sometimes get lucky but his attempts to escalate to a phone number, kiss, or sex are rejected by most of the women he tries it on.
- Amateur: Can get phone numbers, kiss women, and even escalate to sex at times, but the more attractive women still remain out of his reach.
- Advanced: Can get phone numbers, kiss women, and escalate to sex with most of the women he meets. At times he will hook up with women who were previously out of his league, but his results are still not 100% consistent.
- Master: Can get phone numbers, kiss women and escalate to sex very easily. Women really want to give him their phone number. They really want to kiss him, and they really want to have sex with him on either the first night they meet him, or on the first date. He sometimes gets women asking for his phone number, kissing him first, and even suggesting having sex that night or on the first date.

The last area of the skill that I'm going to talk about here is relationships.

- Beginner: After the initial lust has faded away in the relationship, he usually becomes insecure, needy, or ruins his girlfriend's respect and attraction for him. At that point, the relationship starts to fall apart.
- Amateur: Is fairly good at maintaining the attraction, respect, and love in a relationship, but has some insecurities that cause problems and make the woman lose interest.
- Advanced: Is very skilled at maintaining the attraction, respect and love in a relationship, but still has some areas for improvement.
- Master: Knows how to guide the woman into deeper feelings of respect, attraction, and love for him. When this happens the woman doesn't want or need any other man because she feels emotionally fulfilled in the relationship.

I Wasn't Always a Master

Before I discovered what I teach here at the modern man, I didn't even know that it was possible to improve your skills with women.

I was one of the guys that thought, "Okay, women don't like me because I'm not good looking enough and that's just it. You're stuffed Dan...you can't do anything about."

I thought, "Okay, maybe I've got to buy better clothes, I've got to wear nicer clothes and look as good as I can, and then women are going to like me," but, when I bought expensive clothes I still didn't get better results with women.

Nothing fixed the fact that I wasn't confident around women, nothing fixed the fact that I didn't have the skill of being able to talk to women that I found attractive and make them like me.

I could talk to women that I didn't find attractive, but the attractive women that I interacted with didn't seem to like me. They didn't seem to enjoy talking to me and I didn't get anywhere and I felt nervous around them.

I just didn't know that improving certain areas of skill would get you better results with women, but when I did discover that and I began to create new techniques to talk to women, and be confident around women and to attract women, that's when things really started to change for me.

I started out at a beginner level, and I had to pick women up sometimes things, but eventually I got to the point where I was being an amateur, then I got to an advanced level of skill, and then I mastered this area of my life.

That's where I have been for many years since.

I've been at the level of skill where I don't have to think about this area of my life anymore because it's under control. I don't have to try to attract women because women just feel attracted to me naturally.

In the past, when I was at the beginner level of skill with women, I had to use a lot of flirting and humor to get women to feel enough attraction for me to want to have sex with me, but I eventually got to the point where I could actually stand there and look at a woman in a certain way and respond to what she's saying in a certain way, and have a certain vibe about me that made her feel turned on.

To a beginner, seeing that happen in real life doesn't seem to make any sense.

I'm standing there talking to a woman and I'm just being normal and to a beginner, it looks like I'm not doing anything really special at all, so he will be thinking, "Why are these women liking him?"

[image: Dan Bacon - Dating and Relationship Expert]

I can show you these photos of me now, out with these women having a great time. I'm kissing women within one to two minutes of meeting them, sometimes 10 minutes.

I'm able to take women home for sex, but why are women so interested in me?

What is going on there, because it seems like I'm just being so normal and natural, and not really doing anything special?

What's going on is that I am able to actively make women feel attracted by displaying certain personality traits, behaviors and inner qualities that women find attractive (e.g. confidence, charisma, charm, etc).

Yet, from the outside, a beginner will be confused if he looks at me interacting with women. It will look like I'm just being normal, so he will feel confused and think, "Hmm...maybe she thinks he's good looking" or "Maybe he's rich" and then write it off as that.

The same thing applies with sport.

Imagine an elite sportsman who has a very high level of skill playing football.

He's just running around the football field kicking the ball around, but he's doing subtle things that make him more elite than the average player. He's aware of particular techniques and he's honed his skills to the point where he's mastered that particular area of skill.

The same thing applies to women, except that it's a lot easier and quicker to develop your skills with women.

What took me years to work out, a guy can now come to my website and learn in a matter of hours. So, if he's starting at a beginning level or an amateur level of skill, he learns the techniques and learns the insights and he understands what has taken me so long to work out. He understands that within hours, then he starts using it, and he starts using it and he is at an advanced level of skill with women, not a master level of skill.

To get to the master level of skill, he's to put in the effort to really hone those skills, and get used to using the techniques and getting the results, building up his confidence and then he gets the point where he's mastered of his life, and he doesn't have to think about anymore.

What I found interesting being at the mastery level of success with women for so long, is that most guys are just not at that level at all.

Most guys are going through their life thinking, "Okay, I can't even improve my success with women, I've just got to get a better shirt, I've got to buy a more expensive car, I've got to get a better job and then hopefully, women are going to like me."

They don't even know about that it is EASY to attract women by displaying personality traits, behaviors and inner qualities that women are naturally attracted to (e.g. confidence, charisma, charm, masculine vibe, humor).

When you get to the master level of skill with women, you suddenly realize that it's just you and a small percentage of other guys that are at that level.

Guys look at you interact with women, and it just doesn't make any sense. They think, "Why do women like him so much? Like, what is going on there? It doesn't make any sense at all," but to you, it makes total sense very simple.

It's very simple and easy and natural, just like you can understand what am talking about now, and you can speak the language of English, which is a very complex skill for a human to master, but it's so easy once you get it, once you understand it.

Examples of Learning Other Skills

So, I want to give you a couple more examples now of developing a complex skill, so you can understand this very clearly.

The examples I'll give are learning how to play the guitar, and learning how to create a software program using computer programming.

From the outside, playing guitar looks pretty easy. A guy could look at another guy playing guitar and it seems pretty easy.

All you've got to do is hold the guitar, strum away, and then you're making beautiful music, right?

Well no, that's not how it works if you've ever picked up the guitar for the first time.

You pick up the guitar and it's like, "Oh right...okay, so where do I hold my fingers...oh man, this is difficult." You're making all sorts of weird sounds, and you don't know how to do it.

Yet, what does a guy do then at that point?

He realizes, "Okay, I don't have the skill of playing the guitar. I got to develop this skill." If he develops the skill, then he can play music and it's very easy and natural to him, but before it was very awkward and he couldn't do it.

The next example is with computer programming to create a piece of software.

Software can look very simple and easy from the outside, but what's going on behind the software are a whole bunch of complicated instructions that bring the software to life.

A beginner might look at a piece of a software that looks nice and clean, simple and easy and think, "I can do that," but then the beginner tries to write code and he realizes, "Okay, there is a whole bunch of stuff that I need to learn here, there is a complex skill that I need to develop."

Then if he develops a skill, he gets to the point where he can write code and make programs, and he can become a master of code and create all sorts of amazing programs that do all sorts of amazing things.

So, just like a guy can develop the complex skills required to play music or write the code of a software program, or drive a car in order to learn all the different things that he needs to do for that and it seems really awkward at the start, but then he has that complex skill and he can drive the car.

The same applies to women.

A guy at the beginner level will often feel like, "It's very complex...it's very difficult...it's too awkward. I can't do it, I've tried to talk to women before but they don't show any interest. I run out of things to say. I get nervous I just can't do it. Women don't seem to be interested in me," not knowing that he can actually develop the skill of being confident around women.

Not knowing that he can develop his conversation skills in a way that is turning women on, rather than turning them off.

A lot of guys who are at the beginner level talk to women in a way that turns them off and they don't even know it.

A guy at the amateur level talks to women is okay with it, but he runs out of things to say. He doesn't really know how to keep a conversation going and keep it interesting.

Whereas a guy at an advanced level of skill, he can talk to pretty much every woman and he gets along well, he can pick women up, it's very easy for him, but women that are out of his league, he's still just can't do it.

He gets nervous, he doubts himself and the women sense that and it turns them off.

Whereas the guy who has mastered the art of conversation, he is confident all the time, he knows how to make women feel attracted to him.

[image: Improving your skills with women]

It is natural and easy for him, just like for you, it's natural and easy to speak English and listen to me speak English, to drive a car, to play a guitar, to write computer programming, or whatever special skill you have in life.

Throughout your life, you've no doubt developed a lot of different complex skills.

Just like you've developed those skills, you can also develop the skill of being able to attract women and build on a woman's respect, attraction and love when in a relationship.

What Level of Skill Are You at Today?

Do you know what level of skill that you're at at the moment with women?

If you're at a level of skill that you are not happy with and you would like to get better results with women, are you actually interested in learning how to improve your skill level with women?

Are you interested in learning my techniques, my insights and understandings that I've developed over so many years, and just learning that in a matter of hours so you can get up to an advanced level of skill, or if you are already at an advanced level of skill, you can just step up to the mastery level of skill?

Are you interested in stepping up and into real success with women that will last for the rest of your life?

You can quickly get to that point, so you are no longer the guy that feels nervous when he wants to approach a woman, doesn't know what to say, gets ignored when talking to a group of cool people, or gets chosen last or second or third when it comes to women.

You can be the guy who is confident and is able to approach women at will. When you reach a higher level of skill and understanding, you simply don't feel any fear related to approaching and talking to women.

You've got total confidence in yourself and your abilities. You see a woman that you find attractive, you walk over and talk to her and you are not worried because you know what to say.

You know how to make her feel attracted to you.

That's not even a maybe or an if.

You know how to do it.

You've got the complex skill.

It's very simple for you, it's very natural.

Other guys look at what you're doing, they are like, "What's going on there, why did she like him?" and some guys will think, "Oh, it must be his shirt, he must be wearing good clothes, or she must like the way he looks" or something like that.

They just don't get it, it just doesn't make any sense why a girl would like that guy, because he doesn't know the sorts of things that you know.

When it comes to escalating and kissing, sex and dates all that stuff just happens naturally and easily.

You even get women trying to kiss you first, trying to suggest having sex on the first night, asking if they can catch up with you and see you and things like that.

When it comes to relationships, you are able to deepen the love, respect, and attraction that a woman feels for you, rather than it fading away, and that means that she doesn't want to leave you.

So, do you want to have that sort of skill with women?

Do you want to have that sort of power with women?

If you're willing to spend a short amount of hours to learn the things that that have taken me years to work out and to perfect and master, then you are going to be able to step up to the advanced, to mastery level of skill with women.

You will quickly get to the point where you don't have to worry about this stuff anymore.

The area of women and dating relationships is under control for you.

Then you can just relax and enjoy life and focus on other areas of your life, rather than always stressing out about, "How I am going to get a girl? How I am going to keep a girl? How I am going to be confident if I go over and talk to that girl?"

None of that stuff worries you anymore because got it under control.

What Does It Mean to Be a Man?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Being a man that women feel attracted to and other men admire is about:

- Being attractive to women, rather than being the sort of guy they look down on or reject.
- Being strong when others are weak.
- Going after your true potential in life.
- Being someone that others can look up to, rely on and respect.
- Being loving and compassionate, while also being assertive.
- Respecting women, but not being a pushover.
- Embracing your masculinity, rather than suppressing it or acting like you're more neutral than you really are.

Do you know how to be attractive to women when you meet them, when on a date and when in a relationship, or do you hope to get lucky and have a woman choose you because you're such a nice guy?

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use it to become the man that women want and other men admire...

As you will discover from the video above, not knowing how to attract women leads a guy down a path in life that is often full of rejection, depression, confusion and frustration about what women want.

Some guys never get taught how to attract women and as a result, they try hard to be "liked" by women for being a nice guy. However, as you will discover in the video below, being nice isn't the answer to success with women.

Of course, there is absolutely nothing wrong with being nice to women, but you must also ensure that you are allowing her to experience sexual attraction for you. Women resent guys who expect to be liked and to be given a sexual, loving, committed relationship as a reward for being nice.

Did You Get Taught How to Be a Man By Your Father or By a Father Figure?

Most boys grow up under the wing of their dad or a father-figure of some sort and without necessarily realizing it, they pick up on what it means to be a man by following his example.

This isn't always a bad thing because there are some men are ideal male role models, but at the end of the day it's just one man's take on what it means to be a man and that doesn't always make for a well-rounded, balanced education.

These days, some young men grow up without a dad or a male influence in their lives and they are often told as young boys that they're the man of the house by well-meaning female relatives, but no explanation of what that actually means is ever given.

Most of the time when a guy asks me, What does it mean to be a man? he's asking because something or someone has prompted him to question whether he's the man he thought he was, or whether heâ€œs â€œman enoughâ€œ for a particular task.

One guy e-mailed me a few months ago because heâ€œd been told by his friends that he needed to â€œman upâ€œ if he wanted to get himself a girlfriend.

Another guy emailed to ask what it meant to be a â€œreal manâ€œ because his female friends kept saying, â€œWhere are all the real men?â€œ So, what does it mean to be a man? Has the definition changed since the time of your father, grandfather and great grandfather?

Being a Modern Man

Being a man in today's world is very different to being a man just one or two generations ago. Planet Earth is a very different place these days and the pace of life is increasingly faster than what it was 100 years ago, or even just a few decades ago.

In the past, life was a lot more simple for a man. He knew that when he grew up, he'd get himself a job (or work on the family farm), find himself a wife, start a family, grow old and then die.

It was pretty straightforward and most men knew what they were supposed to be doing with their life.

[image: Marriage in the old days]

When your grandfather was a young man, he probably had â€œa job for lifeâ€œ and he likely only left his parentsâ€œ home when he was financially secure enough to find a wife, set up home for himself and support a family. Couples didnâ€œt live together before marriage and women, on the whole, didnâ€œt have careers or even ambitions outside of the home.

A woman's identity was based around her ability to be a great mother and keep her family well-fed, happy and loved. Fast forward to today: Men and women are now encouraged to share the roles of provider and homemaker in a marriage or long-term relationship.

Couples often live together for years before even considering marriage and women pursue their own independent careers, often choosing a career over motherhood. We have science telling us that in the not-to-distant future, we might be living for 150, 200 or even 2000 years. By that point, the technology will no doubt be available to keep people alive indefinitely.

So, what are you going to do with your life? Are you going to live like people did 150 years ago? Is the path they took, the path for you? It's no surprise that many modern men are beginning to ask the question, â€œWhat does it mean to be a man?â€œ and search for answers in older role models.

The path to the future seems hard to imagine, confusing and as though it will be filled with change. So, what is the answer?

The answer is simple.

No matter what changes happen in the world, a man, you are always going to be looked on (especially by women) to be a pillar of strength in this reality.

It is your job to be strong, mentally and emotionally and to not hide away from your true potential as a man. Every man in this world has a purpose that he can decide on.

[image: What does it mean to be a man today?]

You may believe that it is pre-written destiny and that is fine, but whatever the case may be, one thing remains: There are big dreams that you have as a man and if you spend your life hiding from those dreams, you will not be considered a real man.

A real man is many things, but one thing he is not is a coward who hides from his true potential or who gives up on his dreams when he encounters the natural obstacles to big success. As, Calvin Coolidge (the 30th president of the United States once said):

â€œNothing in the world can take the place of persistence. Talent will not; nothing is more common than unsuccessful men with talent. Genius will not; unrewarded genius is almost a proverb. Education will not; the world is full of educated derelicts. Persistence and determination alone are omnipotent. The slogan Press On! has solved and always will solve the problems of the human race.â€ Calvin Coolidge (1872 – 1933)

Calvin spoke wisdom that I speak today. If you want to be a man, you've got to push or (or press on) as Calvin said. If you give up on big things you want to achieve and try to hide behind a relationship with a woman or hide behind your hobbies or TV, then you are not what women refer to as a real man.

In today's world, being a man is no longer a simple case of being the â€œbread winnerâ€ and providing for a wife and family.

[image: Modern women]

Women can make their own money now (in most cases), so what they really need from you is your masculine strength, determination and willingness to push on and make your dreams and desires in life a reality.

When life gets tough or throws you a challenge, remember the words of Calvin or me. Don't cower like a weak child boy, be a man and be a pillar of strength for whoever is around you or depending on you.

What Things Do You Care Most About in Life?

To be respected by men and wanted by women, a man needs to be his own man.

To be your own man, you need to know who you are, what you value in life, what you stand for and what you believe in. What do you care most about in life?

If you were to think of the top 5 things that you care about and want to achieve in life, what would they be? Once you've come up with the answer to that question, ask yourself this: Am I heading directly towards achieving that, or am I hiding away in fear?

[image: What does it mean to be a man today?]

If you are going to be your own man, then you need to work out who you are exactly. However, whatever you do, don't try to work it out by watching the latest blockbuster movie, TV sitcom or TV commercial. These days, too many guys get sucked in by the random trends they see on TV and end up feeling more confused about what it means to be a man.

For instance, the amount of TV advertising that is aimed at men is huge. One commercial is telling you that you need to whiten your teeth, the next is telling you that a special, new deodorant is what you need and the next is telling you that, unless you drive the particular sports car they are advertising, you're not a cool man.

Again, it's no surprise that more and more modern men are asking, What does it mean to be a man?

If you pay attention to enough of the advertising you see on TV, you will end up thinking that in order to be successful with women and be considered a man, you need to look like a male model, have six pack abs, drive a sports car, have cool tatoos, hold cocktail parties with 50 friends at your cool pad, wear the latest fashions and bright white teeth.

It's crazy, yet a lot of guys get sucked into thinking that women want men to be freshly shaven, smelling like a bottle of cologne and wearing perfectly clean, ironed clothes.

These guys then spend $1,000s of dollars (or Euros or whatever) on clothes and the latest gadgets (to look cool) and waste many years of their life trying to be what the TV advertising is telling them they need to be, only to realize one day that it actually isn't working.

Worse still, they realize that they always see guys who are ugly or who don't even have a job or nice clothes with beautiful women. All this time, the guy has been thinking that he's not good looking like the male models on TV or still doesn't have that sports car, yet ugly guys are with hot women everywhere he does.

Why is it all so confusing? Why has the idea of what it means to be a man become so vague in the modern world? Why are you wondering, What does it mean to be a man?

Simple.

You are getting messages from 1,000s of different sources on what it means to be a man and less than 1% of those sources are actually men who are what women refer to as a real man.

Unless you're one of the lucky guys in the world to have grown up with a father who taught you what it means to be a real man, most of your male role models are just as confused as you about what it means to be a man. Instead of truly knowing the answer, they are simply repeating ideas they've seen in fictional movies or TV sitcoms and trying to make sense of life that way.

Welcome to the modern world! It's a confusing place to live if you don't know what it means to be a man.

If you are not a real man and can't see through all the noise from the media machine, you will find yourself going from one idea to the next, constantly searching for answers from fictional sources and from people who are just as confused as you are.

You'll listen to a song on the radio and think you've worked it out, only to watch some TV when you get home and come to a completely different conclusion!

So, I'm going to cut through all the noise and tell you what it means to be a man. Essentially, you need to:

- Be strong.
- Have purpose in life.
- Be a pillar of strength for others.
- Be emotionally stronger than others, especially women.
- Go after your dreams in life and never give up.
- Be the type of man who can naturally attract women, rather than a confused man who tries hard to be "liked" by women and then has to settle for second best or whatever he can get.

Despite women earning their own money these days and wanting to have a career (in many cases), they have never stopped wanting a man who could protect them.

Even though our societies now include police, the courts, the media, shopping centers and all sorts of safety bonuses, a woman still wants to feel as though she can rely on you if the going gets tough. She wants to know that, no matter what happens, you're not going to crumble. If you can be that, then you will be what women refer to as a real man.

Become a Man of Purpose

Have you discovered what your specific purpose is in life? It is up to you to decide what you care about and what you want to achieve, do or be in life.

If you don't know what your purpose is in life and are floating around like a plastic bag in the wind, instead of flying through the air like a bullet towards a target, most women are going to feel turned off by you on a deep, instinctive level.

Some women (usually unattractive women or women looking for a confused guy that they can control, but whom they'll eventually dump or cheat on) like guys who don't have much of a clue about what it means to be a man.

However, if you want a quality woman and a quality relationship, you've got to embrace your role as a man here on planet Earth. Get clear on who you are, what you want and how you're going to make it happen.

All the Good Women Are Taken

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you've been meeting women lately and have found that the ones you like are already taken, then it means that you have either:

1. Been unlucky and have simply met a lot of women who are already in relationships.
2. Haven't met enough women.
3. Haven't been making women feel enough attraction for you and the single ones are saying they have a boyfriend to get you to leave them alone.

If you've been unlucky, then you simply need to keep meeting more women until you find good ones that aren't taken. If you haven't been meeting enough women, then you need to build up your confidence to approach the types of women that you find attractive.

However, if you have been meeting a lot of women, but can't seem to get them to like you in a sexual way, then you need to start improving your ability to attract women as you talk to them.

You can do this by displaying personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. confidence, charisma, flirting, the ability to make her laugh, charm).

When you display some of those traits as you talk to a woman, she will naturally feel attracted to you.

You can then build on her attraction as you talk to her and then take things to the next level (e.g. phone number, kiss, sex, date).

It's very easy to do.

Of course, it's not possible to attract and pick up EVERY woman in the world, but you can attract and pick up many women, including those who you see as being pretty or beautiful.

How Many New Women Do You Actually Meet Each Month?

[image: Stop wasting your life being without women]

I've been helping guys become more successful for more than 10 years now and one thing that I've found is that most guys who can't get a girlfriend either don't have the confidence to approach women or don't know how to attract women when they interact with them.

So, when a guy says to me that he thinks all the good women are taken, I know what is really going on.

All the good women are NOT taken. It's simply a case of the guy not meeting enough new women or making them feel enough attraction when he meets them. It can also be that he meets girls who like him, but he is too afraid to ask for a phone number, move in for a kiss or take her home for sex.

When I have asked guys, How many new women do you approach and meet every month? the average answer is anywhere from zero to three. I then ask, Of the women you know, how many of them are single? and the numbers are basically the same.

[image: All the women that I like are already taken...]

A guy will see women that he finds attractive, but he won't approach and meet them because he either fears rejection, doesn't know what to say or do, or he thinks that they wouldn't want to be bothered by him.

Yet, if a woman is single, she feels excited when a guy approaches her in a confident, easy-going way and makes her feel attracted. She feels even more excited if he then asks for her phone number, calls her up, takes her out on a date, has sex with her and then starts a relationship with her.

Women want it just as much as men do, but as a man – you have to be the brave one. You have to have the confidence to walk up and talk to the women that you find attractive.

When you know how to attract women, you won't be afraid to walk over and talk to women that you find attractive. You will know that most of the women you meet feel some or a lot of attraction for you, so there's nothing to worry about.

However, if you don't know how to attract women and are simply hoping to get lucky, you will almost certainly feel nervous and anxious before approaching a woman. You will worry about getting rejected and assume that you're probably not going to be good enough for her.

Yet, here's the thing...

You are ALREADY good enough for most women out there. The majority of guys that you see with a beautiful girlfriend or a wife are just normal guys, working in a normal job, driving an average car and banging her with an average-sized penis.

Yes, there are some women out there who will only accept a perfect looking male model with loads of money and a sports car, but those women are the minority. The majority of women have what I call an Open Type, which means that they are open to being with all different types of guys, as long as the guy can make her feel enough attraction in other ways.

This means that a 45 year old guy can pick up a 22 year old woman and have sex with her. It also means that a 22 year old guy can pick up a 40 year old woman and have sex with her.

As long as a guy knows how to make women feel attracted to him, he will be able to pick up and have sex with many of the single women he meets. No guy can pick up every woman in the world, but when you're skilled at attracting women, you can pick up most of them.

Don't Expect to Pick Up Every Woman You Meet

Not every woman that you approach will be a perfect match for you and be available, so when you approach a woman, don't pressure yourself into thinking that you have to pick her up.

You don't.

When you approach a woman, you are simply going over to make her feel some attraction for you, have a quick conversation and find out if you are compatible. If there is a spark between you and her, then keep going and get the number, kiss or sex that night.

That's how it works.

[image: Start with kissing and sex and then take it from there]

If you waste your life focussing on the small amount of women you know through work or friends, you will almost certainly come to the conclusion that all the good women are taken.

Yet, you will be basing your theory on maybe 100 women out of the millions around you in your country.

You might want to believe that all the good women are taken, but they're not. There are so many women who would love to be with you, but it's up to you to approach them and make them feel attracted to you.

If you're not willing to approach women, then you at least need to get yourself ready to attract a woman when you happen to meet a new one that you like.

How to Stop Being Insecure

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you feel insecure around women, it simply means that you don't feel like you're good enough. Yet, the truth is that you ARE good enough.

[image: You are already good enough for most women]

You are already good enough for most women and I'm going to make sure that you realize that, believe it and start using that belief to feel confident in yourself from now on.

For example: If you currently don't think that you have the looks, height, money or status to attract beautiful women, then watch this...

You Are Creating Your Insecurity...and You Can Kill it

Did you know that insecurity is self-created? By thinking in an insecure way, you will feel the effects of that, such as: Nervousness, self-doubt, depression, low self-esteem, etc.

For example: If you're talking to a woman and thinking to yourself, "She probably doesn't like me. I'm not good enough. I'm going to run out of things to say," then it is only natural that you will feel insecure.

However, if you think, "It's fun talking to this girl. I deserve to have a girl like this. She keeps talking to me, so that means she likes me and is open to this" then it is only natural that you will feel better about yourself and behave in a more confident way around her.

What is Insecurity?

Insecurity (noun): Lack of confidence or assurance; self-doubt.

Confidence (noun): Belief in oneself and one's powers or abilities; self-confidence; self-reliance; assurance.

As you can see from the dictionary definitions, insecurity is the opposite of confidence. So, if you want to stop being insecure, you have to start being confident.

For example: If you don't have the confidence to approach women that you find attractive, watch this video and see how you can use a change in your thinking to begin feeling more confident...

Do You Feel Insecure Around Beautiful Women?

[image: Insecure around women that I find attractive]

Imagine this...

You are at bar at night and you notice a beautiful woman that you would love to meet, have sex with and possibly start a relationship with. All around you, people talking to each other and they all seem to be having fun within their groups.

As you look at the beautiful woman you've spotted, you begin to think, "Wow...she's beautiful. I'd really like to go over and talk to her..." but, you don't because you convince yourself that you're not good enough for.

You tell yourself that it's all about looks, height or some other excuse that you use to avoid approaching women. You hate yourself for being so insecure and wish you could just be confident enough to go over and meet her, but you just can't seem to do it.

Moments later, a confident notices her and thinks, "She looks good. I'm going to go over and say hi." Your heart sinks as you see them begin to flirt with each other and have a great time. You look at how confident he is and wonder, "What does he have that I don't?"

As an insecure guy, you may begin to think that he must be better looking than you, have a bigger penis than you or have loads of money. Even though you know that you're a good guy, you doubt yourself and simply don't think that you're good enough for most of the women you meet.

Yet, you are.

So, if you're not getting the kind of results that you want with women, what is the REAL reason why that is happening?

As you will discover from the video above, guys who aren't good looking, rich, tall, athletic, etc can still attract, have sex with and even marry attractive women. This is because it is possible to attract women in ways other than looks, money, height and status.

You most-likely don't realize how attractive you can be to women right now.

Psychologists Don't Always Get it Right

I once had a client who had been going to a female psychologist for five years before he sought my help to overcome his insecurities about women. He found out about me from this newspaper article and got in touch to learn from me.

I was shocked to find out what his psychologist had been recommending for him to do to cure his insecurity and fear of women. She had been him to go out and get rejected by women as much as possible every weekend.

Why did she suggest that? She didn't know what else to do, that's why!

She had learned a technique from her university studies called Desensitization (Meaning: The diminished emotional responsiveness to a negative or aversive stimulus after repeated exposure to it) and mistakenly thought that it also would work for guys who were insecure around women that they found attractive.

When I asked my client what effect her advice had on him, he said that going out to get rejected had made his anxiety and insecurity even worse. So, I took him out to approach women and taught him The Modern Man approach and he was cured in a weekend.

Why? My approach to helping a guy overcome his insecurity with women is to teach him what to say and do to ATTRACT women, not get rejected by them! When a guy knows how to attract women, he approaches and women like him right away. He then builds up their interest by making them feel more attracted.

After experiencing that a few times, a guy then stops feeling insecure and starts feeling confident.

Why? Think about what confidence and insecurity really are:

Insecurity (noun): Lack of confidence or assurance; self-doubt.

Confidence (noun): Belief in oneself and one's powers or abilities; self-confidence; self-reliance; assurance.

When you believe that you can do something and you have faith and trust in your own abilities, you don't feel insecure. Instead, you feel confident...and man is that awesome feeling to have around women!

I Overcame My Insecurities With Women and I Would Be Honored to Help You do the Same

Many years ago, I felt insecure around attractive women. It wasted many years of my life and I had sit on the sidelines and miss out on love, sex and relationships with beautiful women.

However, after a lot of thinking, testing and experimenting, I eventually worked out how to overcome my own insecurities with women. Since then, I have devoted my life to helping guys to overcome their insecurities and instantly begin experiencing more success with women.

It took me many years to work this stuff out, but you can learn it all in a matter of hours and then get on with enjoying your life as a confident guy.

If you sincerely want to know how to stop being insecure, I really can help you.

I guarantee that when you learn my techniques, you will rapidly improve your confidence and self-belief, eliminate your insecurities and transform into a confident, charismatic guy who has his choice with women. Your anxieties and fears regarding women will disappear and be replaced by confidence, self-belief and a feeling of calm certainty at all times.

Does that sound good? Well, the best thing of all is that it is REAL.

Imagine This...

- No longer being afraid to approach women.
- No longer feeling intimidated by beautiful women.
- Beautiful women feeling a deep attraction to your confidence and openly flirting with you in a sexual way.
- Beautiful women trying to keep conversations going with you.
- Having your choice of women.
- Always feeling confident in any social situation.

When you stop being an insecure guy and start being a confident guy, success with women happens naturally and automatically.

Why? Women are naturally attracted to the strength in men and turned off by the weakness, so if you are insecure, nervous or shy in social situations, women will feel turned off and even repulsed by you.

However, when you learn to think, behave and live like a confident guy, women naturally feel turned on by you. Women can't stop themselves from feeling attraction for you because it happens automatically.

How to Get a Friend to Like You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to get a friend to like you is to stop acting like you just want to be friends with her and start doing the types of things that will make her feel sexually attracted to you.

When a woman feels sexually attracted to a guy, she will automatically like him and be interested in exploring a sexual relationship.

Do you know how to make her feel sexually attracted to you? Watch this video to understand how it works...

You can make your friend feel attracted to you by displaying the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women, such as: Confidence, charisma, charm, the ability to make her laugh, masculine vibe, etc.

How Long Have You Been Stuck in the Friend Zone?

[image: Friend zone]

What type of relationship do you have with your friend at the moment? Do you hang out as friends? Are you always there for her? Do you listen and try to show her how good of a guy you are?

Well, if you answered “Yes” to those questions, I have some bad news for you...

Your friendship won't count for anything if another guy comes along, makes her feel sexually attracted and then escalates to kissing and sex. A woman's sexual desire will come first before her desire to be friends with a guy.

[image: How to get out of the friend zone]

Your friend might feel bad for you and even ask you, “Are you okay with this?” but she won't stop and coming running back to you unless you start making her feel the type of sexual attraction she needs from a lover or boyfriend.

Women want to hook up with a guy who makes them feel sexual attraction. You have to start with sexual attraction and then everything else follows on from that.

If you pretend to be her friend and hide your sexual desire for her, she may believe that you just want to be friends and then hook up with another guy who is interested in having a sexual relationship with her.

However, be warned: Do not show your sexual desire in her until you have made her feel sexual attraction for you first. Attraction comes first and everything else follows that. You have to go through the right flow, otherwise a woman will feel awkward (i.e. because you like her in a sexual way and she doesn't feel that way about you) and she will reject you.

Being a Nice Friend Won't Make Her Wet

She's human.

She has a vagina and she wants to experience sex, love and good times with a guy that she chooses to have a relationship with. However, she's not going to feel turned on by you if you're just being a nice friend to her.

Here's why...

You can be nice to your friend, but you also have to start saying and doing the types of things that will turn her on sexually. That is what counts.

Make Her Work to Impress You and Maintain YOUR Interest

If you're trying to work out how to get a friend to like you, then you're probably one of the guys who is making the classic mistake of being too easily impressed by a woman.

Yes, you find her attractive. Yes, you want to have sex with her. Yes, you have good intentions.

Yet, what you probably don't realize is that pretty much every guy on the planet would offer her the same thing. If your friend is a pretty girl, then most guys would have sex with her simply based on her appearance.

Out of those guys, probably 80% would have a relationship with her...even if she didn't do anything other than look good. She doesn't even have to impress most of the guys that she meets and that is BORING to her.

This is one of the reasons why women are attracted to guys who are more of a challenge...

When you switch things around and start making her feel attracted, she will begin to hope that you like her too. Then, if you can just be courageous enough to offer her the best gift of all, you will be a bit of a challenge to acquire.

You will make her work a little to build up your interest, maintain your interest and get you out on a date.

Most guys will NEVER give that experience to a woman because they think that being a challenge will result in losing their opportunity to have sex or a relationship with her. Yet, it's actually one of the easiest ways to get a woman chasing you and falling madly in love with you.

Instead of you doing all the work and trying really hard to hopefully get your friend to like you, the responsibility falls into her hands and she has to impress you.

Of course, you can still show interest in her, but just make sure that she always gets the impression that you're not 100% keen on her...yet. Let her feel the desire and worry about trying to impress you.

If you can do that for her, she will fall madly in love with you and won't want to let you go.

Why is it So Hard to Meet Women?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Why is it so hard to meet women?

It's not.

Many women would love to meet you, but you need to have the confidence to approach them and the skills to attract them.

Do you know how to attract women when you interact them? Watch this video to find out...

It's Not the Where that Matters, it's the How

Look around online and you will find 100s of lists of places you can meet women, but that isn't what you really need.

What you really need to do is brush up on your conversation skills, learn how to make women feel attracted to you and then have the confidence to approach them. When you know how to attract women, you don't feel nervous or worried about approaching women because the majority of women that you meet will feel attracted to you.

Are you confident enough to approach women that you find attractive? If not watch this video...

4 Common Mistakes Guys Make When Trying to Meet Women

Meeting women is simple, as long as you approach it correctly. You simply have to approach women in a confident, easy-going way and then focus on making them feel attracted to your personality. It's actually a lot easier than you may realize.

However, if you make any of the following mistakes, you may begin to wonder if there's any point at all in trying to meet women...

1. Thinking that women have all the power

When a guy tries to meet women, he has to understand that he has the power. If he behaves as though he'd be lucky to get a chance with a woman, she will usually reject him. Why? Watch this video to understand the reality that women live in...

When you make a woman feel attracted to you and then behave like the challenge that she has been hoping to meet, she will try to get a chance with you. It will be YOU who has the power to decide whether or not she gets to hook up with you.

2. Trying too hard impress women

When a beautiful woman gets the sense that a guy is trying very hard to impress her because he doesn't feel good enough, she will immediately begin to lose interest in him.

However, if he does the same thing to an unattractive woman, she will often give him a chance because she can see that he doesn't have much confidence in himself because he doesn't know how to attract women.

Many guys go through most or all of their life accepting second best or nothing when it comes to women. A lot of that comes down to the fact that those guys don't feel like they are good enough for attractive women.

Here's the thing...

You are ALREADY good enough for most women.

[image: You are already good enough for most women]

Women are just waiting for you to realize it.

3. Being too nice

There's nothing wrong with being nice to women, but if you are too nice because you are hoping to be "liked" and "given a chance" then you will almost always be rejected by attractive women.

Here's why...

Guys who don't know that they need to attract women will often worry about saying the wrong thing around a woman and getting rejected. So, they will act really nice, be very polite and try to avoid saying anything that might cause offense.

Yet, what those guys don't realize is that when a woman is attracted to a guy, she won't reject him because he says a few things that she doesn't agree with. As long as he is being easy-going and light-hearted about it, he can say and do whatever he wants and she will still like him because she feels sexually attracted to him.

When a woman meets a guy who is afraid to say something wrong, she feels bored and turned off by him. She can't respect him as a man because he has no backbone. He's a wimp and he's hoping that if he's just nice enough to women, they might find it in their heart to give him a chance.

That's not how it works though. You've got make women feel SEXUALLY attracted to you and then they will appreciate the fact that you're a good guy. However, if you're just a good guy and you're not even saying or doing anything to make the woman feel sexually attracted, then she's not going to have much or any interest in you other than to be a friend.

4.Â Boring her during a conversation

When a woman meets a man, she wants to be able to feel a spark with him and feel excited to get to know him.

Yet, most guys don't give women that experience because they simply talk to women in a serious, logical, straightforward manner. For example: "What do you do for a living?" "How old are you?" "Where are you from?"

Nothing about those questions is going to make a woman feel a spark and feel excited, unless the guy focusses on making her feel attraction for him while asking the questions. Watch this video to understand how it works...

Meeting Women is Easy

It really is.

However, if you're one of the many guys who don't know how to attract women during an interaction, meeting women will feel difficult and even exhausting. You may even begin to think that there's no point in trying and that you should just stick to masturbating to porn.

Don't think like that.

You are much better than that.

You can easily make women feel attracted to you when you interact with them, based on what you say and do. You can really can do that, so don't bury your head in the sand and think that you can't do anything about your lack of success with women.

You can...

Do Women Like Facial Hair?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Women find facial hair attractive on men who are confident and masculine.

If a nervous, self-doubting guy grows out a beard or a moustache, women aren't going to be looking at him and saying, "Wow! He's got facial hair. I want to have sex with him!"

They will feel turned off by his nervousness and self-doubt, which will then prevent them from feeling attractive to his superficial, masculine traits like facial hair or even muscles.

However, if that same guy was able to change and become confident and masculine in his thinking, behavior, attitude and vibe, women would then find his facial hair appealing. This is because a woman's attraction for a man is mostly based on how he makes her feel when she interacts with him or observes him from a distance.

Women can feel attracted to a man's physical appearance, but they can also feel turned off by a good looking guy if he doesn't display the type of personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women (e.g. confidence, charm, charisma, the ability to make her laugh, etc).

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works...

The Deciding Factor

There have been a number of studies in recent years that have concluded women are more attracted to men with stubble than they are to clean shaven men. However, the studies are all flawed and the results pretty meaningless because the women were only shown photos of the men. Had the women actually met those men in person, the results would be completely different.

For example: If a woman looks at a photo of a guy and says that he looks attractive and she likes his facial hair, it is based on her superficial impression of him. She does find him attractive in a photo, but if she meets him in person and notices that he is actually very shy, nervous and insecure around her, she is going to be turned off by him.

At that point, she isn't going to care whether or not he has a beard, stubble, moustache or goatee because she will be turned off by his personality and behavior, which is the most important thing to the majority of women.

What most guys don't realize is that the things that women find most attractive about men cannot be seen with the naked eye. For example: Confidence, charm, charisma, the ability to make her laugh, the ability to make her feel girly in response to his masculinity, etc.

Women Are Much More Flexible About What They Find Attractive

Just because a woman says that she likes guys who have stubble, a beard or messy facial hair, it doesn't mean that she can't feel attracted to clean shaven men. In fact, if she meets a guy who is clean shaven and he makes her feel attracted in the more important, fundamental ways then she might actually change her opinion and start liking clean shaven guys.

Men do the same thing too.

You may have heard one of your friends say how much he likes blondes with big tits, but then he falls madly in love with a brunette with little perky tits. A couple of years later, he marries her, has some children and enjoys a happy marriage for life.

If you hear women going around saying, “I like clean shaven men” or “I don’t like beards” it doesn’t mean that they can’t feel attracted to guys who don’t fall into that category.

Usually, it just means that she’s met a guy in the past who made her feel a lot of attraction for many different reasons (e.g. he was charming, confident, charismatic, etc) and she then thinks that she likes guys who have his type of facial hair.

Facial hair is a very superficial thing. You don’t need it to be attractive to women, but it can make you appear more masculine (if you’re a confident guy), which will make you more appealing to a lot of women.

Personally speaking, I always have stubble on my face (I use a particular setting on my shaver that doesn’t shave it off completely) and I’ve had sex with more than 250 women. However, I had sex with about 100 of those women when I was clean shaven.

In other words, it doesn’t really matter. If you like facial hair, then you should grow it out because you want to. Women are attracted to guys who do what they want and love who they are, not guys who are always trying to look their best to hopefully attract women.

The truth is, you are already good enough for most women as you are right now.

If you haven’t been able to attract and have sex with beautiful women lately, it simply means that you’re not saying and doing the types of things that turn women on during interactions. If you change that, women will begin feeling attracted to you regardless of whether you have facial hair or not.

What Makes a Man Attractive?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

While it is true that a woman can find a man's looks, money, height, fame and muscles attractive, those aren't the only ways to make her feel attracted.

Some women will only accept a perfect looking male model with loads of money, but the majority of women have what I call an Open Type. To a woman with an Open Type, what makes a man attractive is mostly based on how he makes her feel when he interacts with her...not on how he looks or how much money he makes.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works...

You Need to Display the Personality Traits and Behaviors That Naturally Attract Women

Attraction isn't what most people think it is.

A lot of guys assume that they can't attract beautiful women, so they end up accepting unattractive women or worse, remaining single and alone.

The truth is, you are already good enough for most women as you are right now. All you need to do is display the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women and women will then find you attractive.

For example: If you're talking a woman and you are nervous, shy, feeling intimidated and unworthy, do you think that will make her feel attracted to you? No, of course not. However, if you were to interact with the same woman and be confident, charming, charismatic and make her laugh and enjoy talking to you, then she would find you attractive.

That's how it really works.

Sure, some women will only ever accept a perfect male model with loads of money, but the majority of women are much more flexible about what they find attractive.

[image: Ugly guy with a pretty girlfriend. She finds him attractive]

Looks Can Attract Women, But They Are Not the ONLY Way to Attract a Woman

[image: Confused men thinking that it's all about looks]

There's nothing wrong with presenting yourself well and trying to look good, but it really isn't the most important thing to the majority of women.

What really matters to most women is how your personality, behavior and conversation style makes them feel when they interact with you. If a woman feels turned off by how you interact with her, she isn't going to care that you're wearing an expensive shirt or that you have the latest style of shoes.

What makes a man attractive to women is based on who he is. Looks can attract women, but they aren't the only way to attract women. The easiest way to be attractive to women is to focus on making them feel attracted to your personality, behavior and conversation style.

For example: If you're talking to a woman you like and you want her to feel attracted to you, simply add in some confident humor that makes her feel girly in your presence. When you do that, she will feel attracted to your confidence, ability to make her laugh and the fact that she feels girly in response to your masculinity.

So, if you're eating at a cafe or restaurant with a woman and she has a bit of food stuck to the side of her mouth, you can say, "Hey...there's a bit of food stuck to the side of your mouth" and point it out for her.

Then, when she clears that away, point to her chin and say, "There's some on your chin too" and let her try to clear that away. Then, point to her ear and say, "There's some on your ear too" and then laugh together with her.

She will feel like you've put her on the spot and she will feel shy and girly in response to your masculinity. This will turn her on because she will realize that you have the ability to make her feel girly and that will make it much easier for her to get into the type of emotional state that will make her orgasm more freely during sex.

The things that make men most attractive to women really can't be seen with the naked eye. It's more about what a guy says and does when interacting with a woman. He either turns her on or he doesn't.

Do You Know How to Attract Women?

Most guys never get taught how to attract women, so they end up wasting a lot time and energy trying to be "liked" by women.

How about you? Do you know how to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of woman? Watch this video to find out...

Why Do Women Give Mixed Signals?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In most cases, when a woman gives you mixed signals, she is simply testing to see how confident you really are.

If you become nervous or begin to doubt her attraction for you, she will lose interest in you. If you remain confident and believe that you are good enough for her, she will feel attracted to you.

Regardless of what a woman says or does, the most important thing that you need to do is make her feel attracted to you. When a woman feels attracted to you, she will automatically like you and be interested in having sex or even a relationship with you.

However, she won't always be clear with her signals. Some girls like to test a guy's confidence, while other women are shy and don't show a lot of consistent interest because they are afraid of being rejected.

So, whatever you do, don't waste time trying to work out whether or not a woman likes you. Simply make her feel attracted to you and then confidently take things to the next level (e.g. phone number, kiss, sex and relationship).

Do you know how to make women feel attracted to you? Watch this video to find out...

Why Do Women Have to Make it So Difficult?

[image: Huh?? I thought she liked me!]

Most guys don't understand the reality that women live in.

If the woman that you like is attractive, then most guys would be willing to have sex with her simply based on her appearance. A lot of those guys would also be happy to have a relationship with her, even if she isn't a perfect match for them.

It's because of this predicament that attractive women prefer men who are more of a challenge...

If the woman you like has been giving you mixed signals, it's important that you don't lose confidence in yourself. In most cases, she will be hoping that you can be brave enough to believe in your attractiveness to her and keep pushing forward.

When you do have sex with her and begin a relationship, you will be surprised at how madly in love she falls. A woman who likes a guy who is more of a challenge can rarely find a guy who has enough confidence to keep pushing forward.

In most cases, she has to settle for a guy who feels so lucky to be with her, but with whom she hardly feels anything for.

You've finally met the right girl for you, but the question is; does she think that you are the right guy for her?

She gives you all the signals that say she is interested in you; you have good conversations, you flirt and she's even given you her phone number. All is going well and then nothing! She starts ignoring you and suddenly she goes cold. When that happens, it's only natural that you are left feeling confused and wondering why do women give mixed signals?

How Did You React When She Started Giving You Mixed Signals?

[image: Mixed signals from a woman]

Sometimes a woman will show her interest in a guy one day and then pretend not to be interested the next day. Why? She wants to see whether or not he will chase her and how much he likes her.

If she is a beautiful woman, she doesn't want to see the guy lose confidence in himself and feel like he has ruined his opportunity with her. Instead, she wants to see that he continues to talk to her and make her feel attracted to him.

You might have heard women saying, "I like a guy who knows what he wants and isn't afraid to get it" and this is a classic example of what women really think about men who fearlessly pursue them.

However, don't get "fearlessly pursue" mixed up with "desperately pursue." A beautiful woman doesn't want to be pursued by a guy who usually can't attract other women and is now desperate to get a chance with her because she showed him a little bit of interest.

A beautiful woman wants to be pursued by a confident guy who is also making HER feel a lot of attraction for him.

It's easy for the guy to be attracted to her because she is beautiful, but if he is unable to make her feel attracted in the more important ways (e.g. confidence, charisma, charm, etc), she usually isn't going to be feeling enough attraction to warrant kissing him, going on a date with him or being his girlfriend.

A lot of guys ask me, â"¢ Why can't it just be more simple Dan? Why do women have to make things so complicated. I like her, she likes me. What's with all the games she's playing?â"¢

Yet, what these guys don't realize is that she's simply trying to find a guy who makes her feel the type of attraction that she wants. She also wants to find a guy who is a good match for her level of intelligence (emotional, social, academic, etc) and level of experience with love and relationships.

Take Charge of the Situation

Instead of wasting time thinking about all the mixed signals that a woman is giving you, simply take charge of the situation.

The guys who are naturally good with women (or those who have learnt from me) don't wait for loads of positive signals before making a move on a woman.

[image: Start with kissing and sex and then take it from there]

A guy who is good with women knows that women find him sexually attractive, so he just approaches a woman that he likes and then guides her to kissing and sex. After sex, a relationship begins...

What Kind of Clothes Do Women Like on Men?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Women have all sorts of different tastes and opinions about clothes, so there isn't one type of clothing that will attract all women.

Some women hate it when a guy wears a shirt because it looks too formal, but other women love a guy in a shirt because they say it looks smart and elegant.

If you want to be attractive to a woman, the most important thing is how you make her feel when you interact with her. Yes, she might have a certain style of clothing that she likes guys to wear, but if your personality and behavior turns her on, she will begin to look at your clothing and style in a more positive light.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use it to your advantage to attract women in pretty much any clothing that you decide to wear...

“Will Wearing Designer Clothes Get Me Laid?”

[image: Will wearing designer clothes get me laid?]

No.

If you dress very well and spend a lot of money on high end clothing, a woman may look at you and think, “Oh, he's stylish...he looks good” but that doesn't mean she is going to approach you or that she will be willing to have sex with you if you approach her.

The majority of women appreciate it when a guy makes some effort to look good, but what's most important is how he makes her feel when he interacts with her. If a guy's personality, behavior and conversation style doesn't turn a woman on, she isn't going to say, “I feel nothing for him, but I still want to have sex with him because he wears Versace.”

Of course, unattractive women usually like it when they meet an insecure, confused guy who doesn't know how to attract women with his personality and behavior. They feel less worried about losing him to an attractive woman because he doesn't know that in the human mating dance, it is women who have to look pretty...not men.

[image: Peacock mating dance]

In the mating dance of the peacock bird, the male is the colorful, pretty one and the female is the bland, plain looking bird. Female peacocks select males based on how colorful and vibrant their feathers are.

In today's world, a lot of men have been tricked into thinking that they need to be very good looking and adorn themselves in the best clothes to stand a chance with women. Yet, it just isn't true.

Yes, some women will only ever accept a male model with loads of money, muscles and the best clothes, but the majority of women have what I call an Open Type, which means that they are open to being with all different types of guys, as long as the guy makes her feel attracted in other ways (e.g. confidence, charisma, charm, humor, etc).

A woman might be going through life saying, “I hate guys who wear t-shirts and jeans...I only like guys who wear ironed business shirts and suit pants.” Yet, when she meets a confident, charismatic guy and he makes her feel attracted to his personality and behavior, she will place less importance on the fact that he’s wearing jeans and t-shirt.

In fact, the more she feels attracted to him, the more she will actually come to like the fact that he wears t-shirts and jeans. She will actually begin to find that look attractive because it’s the look that the guy she feels most attracted to wears.

Most guys don’t get this, so if they hear a woman saying that she likes something or doesn’t like something, they take it as a permanent fact. They assume that the woman cannot change her mind or feelings.

If they hear a woman saying, “I like guys who wear the latest fashions” or “I only date good looking guys” they assume that most (if not all) women think that way and the only way to get women attracted is to look good and wear the latest fashions.

Yet, it’s not.

You can attract women with your personality, behavior and conversation style. You can turn women on in so many different ways. You are not limited to making a woman feel attracted to you because of your looks because you are a man, not a peacock bird.

Look Good, But Don’t Go Overboard

A good rule of thumb to use when approaching fashion as a man is to make an effort to look good, but don’t go overboard.

Unless you’re a fashion designer or work in retail sales for fashion, it’s not something that you need to spend a lot of time thinking about.

Simply decide on what type of clothes you like to wear that also fit in with the type of crowd that you like to hang out with.

For example: If you’re into nightclubbing, then wearing dorky, nerdy clothes isn’t going to make a good first impression on women. Sure, you can attract her with your personality and get to see your fashion sense in a more positive light, but there’s no need to make things any harder for you than they already are.

Clothes Do NOT Maketh the Man

If you listen to the advertising campaigns of big brands and to the gay men on TV who push fashion, you might get sucked into thinking that, “Clothes maketh the man.”

I recently saw a gay guy on TV saying, “Every guy HAS to have at LEAST 10 pairs of shoes.” He was so serious about it and then an attractive woman appeared on the TV to back him up. Most guys will see that as real advice because the hot chick agreed.

In another show, a gay guy and an attractive woman said, “It takes a real man to wear pink” and I rolled my eyes and felt sorry for the guys who’d be watching the show. Most guys don’t realize that the gay guy is trying to make men be more feminine and tolerant of feminine men and the woman is simply agreeing because she can’t admit what she really likes about men.

Women are intelligent, but they say all sort of stupid things about what they want in a man...and then go for guys who are the complete opposite. For example: No doubt you've heard women say that they want a nice guy, right?

So, why do they often reject nice guys and go for bad boys?

As you will discover in that video, you can't always listen to what a woman says as being literal fact. When a woman says that she likes a guy who has good shoes, it doesn't mean that she won't have sex with or even marry a guy who wasn't wearing good shoes when he met her.

Likewise, if a woman says that she doesn't like chest hair on a guy, it doesn't mean that she won't have sex with or marry a guy with chest hair.

She's just being a girl and saying whatever she feels like, but if she meets a man who makes her feel a lot of attraction in other ways (e.g. confidence, charisma, etc), she will change her mind and begin to love men with chest hair because the man that she is most attracted to has chest hair.

Clothes are not the thing that make you irresistible to women. Yes, clothes can make you look good and help you make a good first impression, but they are not the most important thing to most women.

What makes you irresistible to women is when you trigger their feelings of sexual attraction with your personality, behavior and conversation style and then build up the sexual tension between you to the point where she feels an intense desire to have sex with you...

How to Get to Know a Girl: The Golden Rule

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The golden rule of how to get to know a girl is this: Make her feel attracted to you first and she will then try hard to get to know you and make you like her.

Everything starts with attraction. If you just pretend to be a nice friend and hope that she “likes” you enough as a guy to give you a chance, you will usually be rejected when you ask her out or attempt to kiss her.

Here’s why...

Let Her Know That You Find Her Sexy

After making her feel attracted to you, it’s very important to let a girl know that you find her sexy.

Did you know? Dove cosmetics did a global study on beauty and found that 96% of women do not consider themselves to be beautiful. You might find her incredibly pretty and sexy, but in her mind, she will often be focused on her flaws.

[image: Women insecure about their looks]

She will be going through life secretly thinking, “If only I had a smaller nose, then I’d be pretty” or “If only I lost a bit of weight, then I’d be sexy.”

A woman knows that she looks much better with make up than without, so she will often feel insecure about her appearance compared to other women. She will worry that her hair isn’t perfect, her clothes aren’t fitted perfectly on her body or that she just doesn’t look as good as other girls.

[image: Blonde before and after make up]

[image: Blonde before and after make up]

[image: Dark blonde before and after make up]

[image: Brunette before and after make up]

[image: Brunette before and after make up]

So, if you really like a girl and you want to get to know her, don’t pretend that you don’t find her sexy. Don’t treat her like a friend and pretend as though you don’t even look at her in a sexual way.

If she isn’t 100% clear that you find her sexy, a girl will often play hard to get to make you show lots of interest in her before she shows any interest back. Why? She doesn’t want to get rejected or seem to keen in a guy who doesn’t even think she is sexy.

To avoid all the mind games that go along with dating women, you simply have to be honest. Instead of pretending to be an innocent friend and saying, “You look nice today” talk to her like a potential lover or boyfriend would and say, “You look sexy today.”

Give her a smile and let her know that you find her sexy. Being honest like that cuts through all the bullshit and allows you and her to get on with kissing, having sex and enjoying a relationship.

Have You Been Making Her Feel Attracted to You?

If the girl that you want to “get to know” hasn’t been feeling much sexual attraction for you, then she’s not going to really care that you like her.

When you make her feel sexually attracted to you, she will automatically have an increased desire to get to know you, impress you and hook up with you.

So, the question is: Have you been making her feel attracted to you? Watch this video to find out...

If you want this girl to like you and want to get to know you, it’s not enough just to be the good guy that you are. You also have to trigger her feelings of sexual attraction for you. When she feels sexually attracted to you, make sure that you then take things to the next level (e.g. kissing, sex or a date) otherwise you may lose your opportunity with her.

Waiting Too Long to Make a Move

[image: The friend zone]

Some guys feel that it would be “disrespectful” to show their sexual interest in a woman, so they act like an innocent friend and wait and hope that something happens.

Yet, it almost always backfires because all it takes for the girl to instantly lose interest in him is for another guy to come along, focus on making her feel sexually attracted and then hook up with her.

Of course, if you only want to get to know this girl as a friend, then you simply need to find common ground and mutual interests and you will naturally get along well. However, if you want to have sex with her and you want her to be your girlfriend, don’t pretend to be a friend who has no sexual interest in her.

Sexual Attraction

[image: Get to know a girl]

The process of getting to know a girl happens very quickly if she is sexually attracted to you.

If you haven’t been making her feel sexual attraction for you, then you are just another horny guy who is hanging around her pretending to “just want to be her friend” when what you really want is stick your dick in her.

If she picks up on that, she will often pretend to be interested in you and use your interest in her to feel good about herself. Secretly, she will have already decided that she will never have sex with you, but she will enjoy all the attention and then hook up with another guy who makes her feel attracted.

Have You Been Enough of a Challenge For Her?

Most guys don’t understand the world that hot girls live in.

If a girl is attractive, most guys want to bang her. Most guys don’t care if she is smart, what she does for a living or what she studies. They just want to slide their weiner inside of her and enjoy it. If a relationship happens after the sex, fine, but it's not the main thing that most guys are looking for.

A hot girl knows that most guys would be willing to have sex with her just based on her appearance and many of those guys would also love to be in a relationship with her. After a while, she gets bored of that and starts wishing that she could meet a guy who was more of a challenge...

The best way to get to know a girl is to make her feel attracted to you first. Then, instead of immediately trying to get her into a relationship with you, offer her a bit of a challenge. Make her have to try a little bit harder than normal to impress you, maintain your interest and hopefully get a chance with you.

Most guys aren't willing to do that because they don't want to miss out on the chance to bang the girl or get her into a relationship. Yet, what they don't realize is that she is bored of how easy most guys are.

If a girl is hot, she will be hoping and wishing that she could meet a guy that makes her feel like she really wants to get to know him and hopefully get a chance with him...

Why Are Women So Emotional?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

A woman's brain chemistry is wired different to a man's.

It's just how nature works and when you look at it from a big picture perspective, you will see that the differences in men and women are a good thing for this world and also for you as an individual man.

The Female Effect

[image: Why are women so emotional?]

Generally speaking, men don't place as much importance on the things that women tend to get emotional about.

For example: A man might see that someone is feeling a painful emotion, but he won't feel an instinctive need to comfort that person like a woman would.

As long as he is achieving his goals or getting what he wants, he can turn a blind eye and not care.

I'm talking in general terms here of course.

Many men do think, feel and behave like women do.

That's not what I'm talking about here though.

I'm talking about the general differences between masculine men (i.e. men who are not like women) and feminine women.

So, back to the example...

While a typical man won't really care about the painful emotions of other people, a woman will tend to feel sorry for the person and want to do something about it.

Of course, I am saying "generally speaking" here because there are some mean, heartless women out there who don't care about anyone.

However, for the most part, what you will find is that women are much more compassionate and caring than most men.

It's partly because of so many women saying, "Hey, that's not fair!" about so many things that the modern world has become so tolerant and free.

Before women had a voice in society, men ruled the world and essentially killed anyone who didn't believe in what they did.

[image: Race mixing protest]

Of course, there have always been nice, loving, caring, feeling men who have fought for change, tolerance and love.

However, for the most part, when it was just men ruling the world, there was less compassion, tolerance and love for fellow human beings.

If you look back in history, you will see that men led the way to protest about race-mixing, men beat up homosexuals and men attacked and even killed people of different races.

Of course, some women got involved and supported those men, but in almost all cases, women never lead the way to violence and intolerance.

Generally speaking, women are wired differently than men and as a result, they look at things from a different perspective and tend to think, feel, behave and act in a different way.

Women do get caught up in the bad things that men do though.

Think of what happened with Nazi Germany.

Women supported what was going on.

Yet, they didn't initiate it.

Women tend to go along with what men are doing, unless women have a respected voice in society.

Think about how women helped to change the workplace.

Before women entered the workforce, almost all managers and bosses were men and they tended to run their companies like machines.

Employees essentially had no rights and the bosses and managers didn't care if things weren't fair for them.

As long as too many employees didn't die on the job, everything was fine.

Yet, when women joined the workforce and became respected, they started fighting for fairness, care, love, respect and a more family-like environment.

That doesn't mean that women are better than men.

Just different.

[image: The female effect]

All the changes that women have help make over the past 200 years is what I call The Female Effect on society.

It's a powerful thing and a lot of it has to do with the fact that woman's brain is wired differently to a man.

She has a different brain chemistry, which causes her to think, feel, behave and act differently than a man.

Without The Female Effect, life would be a lot colder, meaner and more ruthless.

This doesn't mean that women are better than men though.

It just means that women are just as important as men in this world.

Men have got the world to a certain point, women joined in as leaders and we are now developing the world together.

Men have always been important and still are.

For example: If it weren't for men, you wouldn't be reading this article now on the computer or handheld device that you're looking at.

Women didn't invent computers, invent cars and planes or build huge international businesses.

Men did all that and now women are able to join in and add in The Female Effect.

Men and women are just as important as each other and we both have a key role to play in the world and in our personal relationships.

For example: As a man, you must ensure that you allow your woman to think, behave and act like a feminine woman.

She might be used to acting in a more manly way to do well in her career or deal with modern life, but when in a romantic, sexual relationship, she still wants a man who has the ability to make her feel like a real woman (i.e. feminine, girly, free to be emotional).

So, bringing it all back to title of this article, “Why are women so emotional?” let’s get something very clear right now...

Always look at women as being different to men.

Women are not men.

Many modern women may act like men these days, but they are not men.

Women are still women and to have a successful relationship with a woman, you need to remember that and apply it.

For example: Some guys get annoyed at a woman’s emotional outbursts and demand that she essentially think, feel, behave and act more like him (i.e. a man).

That’s not what a woman wants.

A woman wants to feel free to be a woman (i.e. feminine, girly, emotional) rather than having to take on a more masculine energy and approach in her relationship with a guy.

So, in terms of a woman being emotional, you just have to accept that she will have her emotional outbursts at times because that is her nature.

Women are different to men.

She won’t be exactly like you and that is okay.

Don’t try to make her be like you.

She is not going to be a man for you.

Accept the emotional outbursts as part of her femininity.

The Emotional Outburst

[image: Emotional outburst]

If you’ve been asking yourself lately, “Why are women so emotional?” then you’ve probably been on the receiving end of an emotional outburst from a woman that just doesn’t seem to make any sense to you.

A woman getting emotional around a man is often her way of testing you and forcing you to grow, change and evolve rather than just stay where you are right now.

Everything in the universe is in a constant state of change, even if that change happens over long periods of time.

The way that life is designed is that it forces us to do something, rather than to stagnate and be the same thing forever.

You either go with the flow or the flow eats you up and spits you out.

It’s a woman’s nature to not let men get complacent.

For example: One minute a woman will say, "I love you...I just want to sit on the couch and watch TV with you forever" and a day or two later, she will say, "I'm bored...why do you want to watch so much TV? You're so lazy! I hate my life."

To a man, it doesn't make much sense why a woman would change her mind so easily to be so happy one minute and so bored the next.

Yet, that is the natural programming of women.

Women are designed to be restless, which is why religious monks have typically always been men.

Of course, Catholic nuns are an exception, but that was something that was forced on women in earlier times, rather than it being something they all aspired to.

I know this personally because my mother was sent away to be a nun in Ireland when she was in her teens.

She hated it and was always rebelling against the system.

She was restless and didn't want to live a life of quiet servitude.

She wanted to be free to be a woman, a mother and everything else that came along with that.

If you look at religious monks around the world, you will see that throughout history, it has pretty much always been men doing it.

The majority of women couldn't think of anything worse than having to sit along with their thoughts forever.

On the other hand, many men loved to be alone with their thoughts to ponder the deeper and more complicated side to life.

It was a dignified life to live as a man.

Since women were so oppressed and lacked rights, they often submitted to a life of servitude as a nun and enjoyed it.

However, it was never a case of women leading humanity into celibacy or social isolation.

That was The Male Effect on society back then.

Not anymore of course.

Today's world is less about philosophy and more about doing.

There are so many things to do, so many possibilities and so many options that being alone and devoting oneself to a religion just doesn't happen as much in the developed world anymore.

One of the biggest enjoyments of men is fixing problems.

It's a rewarding process for a man to see a problem, work on it and then fix it.

Hence why pretty much everything has been invented by men and why most men work in fixer jobs (e.g. plumber, mechanic, engineer).

Of course, feminist women reading this won't like what I am saying because they tend to want to be just like men.

However, it's just how life is.

Women are different to men.

Women are not men.

Some women are like men and some women want to be men, but women are women.

In terms of men being the inventors and fixers (up until recently, where women have gotten involved and become leaders and changers), it's just how nature has played out.

Throughout history and even to this day, the majority of women just want to use the fixed thing or the invented technology, rather than fixing it or creating it themselves.

Generally speaking, women don't want to spend a lot of time thinking about solutions, which is why approximately 80% of engineers are men.

The 20% of women who are engineers either have more of a masculine mind (e.g. butch lesbian, transgender), or they were raised by a father who never had any sons and showed more love for his daughter when she thought, behaved and acted like a guy.

Feminist women won't like reading that, but it's just how things work.

Most women don't want to think, feel, behave and act like men.

Most women just want to be women and in many cases, that involves a woman being more emotional and emotionally sensitive than a man.

Modern women may act like they are as tough and emotionally bulletproof as masculine men, but most of them aren't.

For example:

- Women are reported to experience depression at twice the rate of men in the USA.
- In the UK, 40% of women will require treatment for depression at some point in their life compared to only 10% of men. In other words, women are more depressed than men.
- Women are twice as likely to experience anxiety compared to men.
- 60% of the people who have OCD (Obsessive Compulsive Disorders) and phobias are women.
- Most women are insecure about their physical appearance. According to a global study conducted by Dove cosmetics, 96% of women don't consider themselves to be beautiful.

The above statistics show that although women are now an active part of leading modern society, they aren't as strong as they seem to be on the surface.

So, it's only natural that a woman will tend to be more emotional than a man.

Many women act like they are as strong as men, but the statistics don't lie.

Women are more emotionally sensitive than men and as a result, they are more emotional than men (generally speaking of course).

These days, a lot of guys have adopted a more feminine approach to life and as a result, they are finding it difficult to attract women into a relationship or keep a woman in a relationship.

Signs She Likes You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

It's pretty simple.

If a woman feels attracted to you, she will like you. The more attraction you make her feel, the more she will like you.

However, don't expect her to show all the classic signs that she likes you because all women show their interest in a guy in slightly different ways.

For example: Some girls like to test guys by playing hard to get and seeing if the guy will remain confident. If the guy begins to lose confidence in himself and doubt that she likes him, she then loses interest because she's looking for a more confident guy.

Another type of girl is the shy girl who really likes you, but is afraid of getting rejected if she shows obvious signs of interest. So, she will pretend to just want to be friends or she might even ignore you completely, but she will hope that somehow, something will happen between you and her.

So, instead of wasting your time looking for signs that she likes you, just make her feel attracted to you. If she is attracted, she will like you and you can then take things to the next level by getting her phone number, kissing her, dating her or having sex with her.

Do you know how to make her feel attracted to you? Watch this video to find out...

4 Classic Mistakes to Avoid With the Girl You Like

If you want this woman to like you and you want to begin a sexual relationship with her, make sure that you avoid these classic mistakes...

1. Showing Your Fear of Rejection

If she notices that you're afraid of being rejected by her if you show interest or attempt to take things to the next level, she will rapidly lose her feelings of respect, attraction and interest in you.

Have you ever heard a woman say, "I like a guy who knows what he wants and isn't afraid to go and get it" or something similar? Women say those things because they yearn to be approached by a confident guy who sees what he wants and doesn't hesitate for a second to go after it.

It's not about being overly confident to the point of being arrogant or being a jerk, but having the type of relaxed, masculine confidence that allows you to go after what you want without fear. You know that you're good enough for her and you are simply going to guide her through the process from a conversation to kiss, to sex and into a relationship.

2. Being Too Nice

[image: Being tense while interacting with her]

Being nice to a woman will usually make her like you as a person, but it won't make her wet.

If you want this woman to begin a sexual relationship with you, the key is to make her feel sexually attracted and turned on when she interact with you. It's not enough just to be nice to her.

There's nothing with being a good guy to women, but you also have to turn them on. If you don't, they will usually only see you as a friend and they'll reject you when you attempt to take things to the next level.

3. Agreeing With Her, Even When You Disagree

Women want to be challenged emotionally and intellectually when they speak to a guy. They don't want a "yes man" who is willing to say and do whatever she wants in the hope of getting a chance with her.

[image: Why doesn't she like me?]

Some guys are worried that if they disagree with a girl, it will upset her and they will then lose their chance with her. Yet, that's not how it works.

As long as you are being the good guy that you are and being respectful, a woman will appreciate the fact that you are also being real. You're not afraid to be yourself and say whatever you want, but you're also smart enough to remain respectful and keep things light-hearted.

4. Worrying When She Doesn't Reply to You Immediately

[image: Why isn't she replying??]

When you call, text, message or e-mail a woman that you're interested in, do you get feel worried if she doesn't immediately answer you? Do you take it as a sign that she doesn't like you anymore or is losing interest?

It's not.

Sometimes the girl will be genuinely busy and other times she will just be trying to not look so easy. She either wants to show you that she isn't an easy target and that you could trust her if you were in a relationship with her, or she is testing your confidence.

Either way, what you need to do is keep pushing forward. You need to believe in yourself, make her feel attracted and then take things to the next level.

Many Girls Have Liked You...and You Didn't Even Know it

Throughout your life, many girls have liked you and hoped that you'd be confident enough to make a move and take things to the next level.

Yet, you most-likely wasted too much time looking for signs that these women liked you. You didn't know that all you have to do is make a woman feel attracted to you and she will then like you.

It's as simple as that.

Don't make it any more complicated than it needs to be. Just make her feel attracted to you and then take things to the next level.

Don't waste any more time trying to find out if she likes you. Make her like you by making her feel sexually attracted to you.

What to Talk About with a Girl

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Talking to girls is easy.

You simply need to talk to her in the same way that you would talk to a guy, but you also need include things that will make her feel attracted to you (e.g. humor, flirting, etc). When a girl feels attracted to you, she will then be open to giving you her phone number, kissing you and having sex with you.

For example: If you're talking to a girl that you like and she smiles and touches you on the arm, you can use humor and confidence to attract her by saying, "Hey...I'll let you have that first touch for free, but if you want to touch me again, I'm going to have to start charging you."

[image: What to talk about with a girl]

To make it funny, you have to be relaxed, confident and easy-going when you say it. Make her feel like you're almost being half-serious by saying that she will have to pay to touch you. This will make her feel attracted to your confidence around her and your ability to make her laugh.

Be a Good Guy, But Don't Be Too Nice to Her

When a guy doesn't know that he needs to attract a girl and turn her on, he will often make the mistake of trying show her how much of a nice guy he is. He hopes that if he can just show her how much he respects her and that he has absolutely good intentions with her, then she might give him a chance.

The nice guy approach works in movies and on TV dramas where the nervous, super nice guy eventually gets the girl. He saves her from a bad guy, saves the day or saves the world and she then falls into him arms.

In the real world, women simply let nice guys hit on them and they then fall right into the arms of a guy knows how to make her feel attracted and turned on.

Don't Bore Her With an Interview Style of Conversation

When a guy doesn't know how to talk to girls and tends to run out of things to say, he will often fall back on asking lots of questions in the hope that it will keep the conversation going.

For example: He might ask, "So...where are you from?" "What do you do for a living?" "What do you like to do for fun?" "Do you like to play sports?" "Who is your favorite team?" "What is your favorite place to go on vacation?" and so forth.

It's fine to ask those types of questions as long as it leads to an actual conversation, rather than you just saying, "Oh, that's good" and then asking the girl yet another question.

If you focus on asking as many questions as you can, it will usually make the girl feel like she is being interviewed by you and that is NOT how she wants to feel when talking to a guy who could possibly be her boyfriend.

[image: Asking too many questions, without making her feel attracted or sharing interesting things about his own life]

When the questions come one after another without much input from the guy with his own opinions, feelings, personal stories and so on, a girl will feel more like she's applying for a job rather than chatting with a guy that she'd like to get to know better and possibly have sex with.

So, make sure you don't drill a girl with questions because you're worried about running out of things to say. Play with the conversation, expand it and explore it.

Don't Pretend to Be Someone You're Not

Girls are turned off by guys who act like they are cooler, badder or smarter than they actually are.

To make a girl feel naturally attracted to you, the best approach is to be your true self. When you do that, you will come across as more confident, charismatic and interesting, which will make her feel a unique attraction to you.

If she notices that you pretend not to be excited or happy about things that you think are cool, she will lose respect for you because she will see that you're putting on an act to impress her. Likewise, if you aren't honest about your feelings towards things you don't like, she will see that you're acting.

A cool, confident guy will say whatever he wants, without any fear of being judged by a girl. He'll tell a girl that he thinks she is sexy and beautiful and she will love it because it's coming from such a confident guy.

Believing in yourself and your value to girls is extremely important to your success. If girls get the sense that you doubt your value and attractiveness to them and don't think you are good enough, they will rapidly lose interest in you.

Make Sure That You Offer Her a Bit of a Challenge

If the girl that you're talking to is attractive, most guys want to have sex with her. She doesn't even have to be nice to them and they will still want to bang her.

This is boring for hot girls.

A hot girl goes through life and knows that pretty much every guy wants to have sex with her, at least once. Many of those guys would also be willing to have a relationship with her, just because she looks good.

This is why hot girls like guys who are more of a challenge...

When you're talking to a girl, make sure that you're not being a "Yes man" and just agreeing with everything she says or anything she wants. Be real and make her work to maintain your attraction and interest.

Give her the gift of feeling as though she would be LUCKY to be with you. Don't act like yet another hopeless guy who tries to be "liked" for being nice, rather than turning her on by being attractive and offering her a bit of a challenge.

How to Get Out of the Friend Zone

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to get out of the friend zone, you have to stop acting like a friend and start making her feel sexually attracted to you.

If your main approach to her is to be a friendly, nice guy, then you're most-likely going to get rejected when you ask her out, suggest starting a relationship or attempt to kiss her. Here's why...

You Placed Yourself in the Friend Zone

If you are in the friend zone with a girl you like, it's not her fault. She didn't place you in the friend zone; you did. You placed yourself in the friend zone by thinking, acting and behaving like you were just a friend to her, rather than making her feel turned on by you and then escalating to kissing and sex.

It's not up to a woman to lead you into a sexual relationship. If you talk to her like a friend, act like a friend and behave like a friend, then you will be a friend to her.

However, if you begin triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you by thinking, behaving and acting like a potential lover or boyfriend, she will start to open herself up to dating you, kissing you, having sex with you and potentially having a relationship with you.

Do you know how to make women feel attracted to you? Watch this video to find out...

Are You Always "There" For Her as a Friend?

Being there as a friend for a woman isn't what makes a woman wet.

If you want a woman to feel turned on by you, it's about triggering her feelings of sexual attraction by displaying the traits that naturally attract women. Some examples include: Confidence, humor, charm and charisma.

When you make a woman feel sexually attracted to you, the next step is to build up her desire to kiss you and have sex with you by creating sexual tension. When you build up sexual tension between you and a woman, she then wants to release that sexual tension with kissing and sex.

However, if you're simply being a helpful, nice friend for her and trying to show her how good of a guy you are by "being there" for her, then she's not going to get turned on. She will like you as a person, but your actions won't make her feel intense sexual desire.

Have You Told Her How You Feel?

If you've only ever been friends with a woman and you suddenly declare your love or desire for her, she will almost always reject you unless she feels the same way.

She will only feel the same way if she feels sexually attracted to you and respects you as a guy. If she only sees you as a nice friend, a woman will usually give you a classic line such as, "I don't want to ruin our friendship. Let's just remain friends" or "You're like a brother to me...I don't want to change that.”

When a guy hears that from the woman he’s been fantasizing about being in a relationship with, he feels crushed. He might also become upset and feel confused about why she would reject him and go for guys who don’t treat her as well as he does. He will wonder, “Why does she lower herself to be with douchebags, when I am right here and I would love her and treat her so much better?”

What he doesn’t realize is that acting like an innocent friend isn’t the way to quickly get a woman into a sexual relationship. If he wants to get out of the friend zone, he needs to stop pretending to be a friend and start saying and doing the types of things that will turn her on.

When she is attracted and turned on by him, her behavior will automatically change. She will start showing him many signs of interest (e.g. more frequent touching, hugging or even just phone texting and messaging over social media).

When he makes a move, she will happily go along with it. She will feel like she’s hit the dating jackpot because she’s not only attracted to him, but she really likes him as a person because he’s such a great guy.

That can be you, but you have to make her feel attracted to you first.

Making Her Feel Attracted to You

From now on, you’ve got to focus on making her feel attracted to you.

She already knows that you’re a good guy, which is great, but unless you make her feel turned on by you, she isn’t going to be changing how she feels anytime soon. All it will take for you to be slammed further into the friend zone is for another guy to come along and make her feel sexually attracted to him.

Even if you’ve been “hanging out” with her for months or years, she will instantly forget about her “relationship” with you and kiss and have sex with another guy who turns her on. You might feel angry and betrayed if she does that, but it’s how nature works.

A woman wants to be with a guy who makes her feel sexually attracted. If you also happen to be a good guy, she sees that as a welcome bonus. However, you have to start with sexual attraction and she will then appreciate and fall in love with all the other great things about you.

How to Sexually Arouse a Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The more attraction that you make a woman feel for you, the more desire she will have to be sexual with you.

To sexually arouse a woman, you need to display personality traits and behaviors that women find naturally attractive and arousing.

For example: Confidence, charisma, charm, humor and a masculine vibe.

3 Examples of How to Sexually Arouse a Woman

Women instinctively feel sexual attraction to men with alpha male characteristics. In other words, a woman will feel aroused by you if you think, behave and act like a masculine man around her.

Here are some examples of how to do it:

1. Eye contact

You can make a woman feel sexually aroused by looking at her in a confident, self-assured way. To increase her arousal, look her body up and down and then look back into her eyes with a smile that shows you find her sexually attractive.

2. Touch

When you first begin talking to a woman, touch her on the side of the arm in a confident, self-assured way. Be relaxed, masculine and powerful in your presence, but make your touch feel gentle, warm and loving.

She will feel aroused by the fact that you're such a strong, powerful man and you also know how to touch her in a sexually seductive way. This type of feeling literally makes some women feel "weak at the knees" in your presence.

3. Flirting

[image: Flirting with a woman in a bar]

Flirt (verb): To behave as though you're attracted to or trying to attract someone, but for amusement rather than with serious intentions. To court triflingly or to act amorously without serious intentions.

Flirting is essentially about showing your sexual or romantic interest in a woman, but in a light-hearted, non-serious manner.

All women love guys who can flirt because flirting is discreet and non-committal. Women know that it's not serious and they use it as an opportunity to feel sexual desire (e.g. because you're being confident when flirting with her) and to express their sexual desire by flirting back.

How does it work?

Imagine that you're talking to a woman in a bar. You find her incredibly attractive and she seems to like you too. She's laughing, giggling and enjoying the conversation with you. After a while, you ask her what she does for a living and she says, "I'm an accountant."

So, how you can flirt with her in response to that?

Remember what flirting is. It's about showing your sexual or romantic interest in a playful, non-serious manner. So, you could say, "Oh wow, an accountant. So you're smart and beautiful. I've hit the jackpot."

You can then both have a laugh and flirt with each other via your eye contact and touch, to discreetly show your sexual and/or romantic interest in each other.

Emotional Arousal

Most of what it takes to sexually arouse a woman happens in response to your thinking, behavior and actions. The way that you think, behave and take action either turns her on or it doesn't.

For example: Are you a confident guy or a nervous, insecure guy around her? Would you be able to confidently do what you want to her in the bedroom, or would she feel like you were hesitating and worried about not being good enough for her?

Could she see herself surrendering to you, spreading her legs wide open and saying, â€œYes! Give it to me!â€œ? or does she feel like having sex with you might be a fairly boring emotional experience?

Those are the types of things that really matter to a woman. She's more interested in what type of emotional experience that she is going to have with you. When you are able to turn her on emotionally, the physical side of sex will feel amazing no matter what you do to her...even if that is just missionary position and then doggy style.

Women Feel Aroused by Confidence

We men feel an intense attraction for a woman's physical appearance, which is why men masturbate to porn. A man can simply look at a woman and get an erection.

Yet, for women, it's more about who you are and what traits you are displaying around her. One of the easiest ways to sexually arouse a woman is to display confidence around her.

I'm not talking about the loudmouth, show-off, asshole type of confidence that douchebags display, but the relaxed, masculine type of confidence that cool, charismatic guys display.

When a woman notices that, no matter what is happening around you, your confidence remains completely in tact, she feels an intense for you. When you also add in some charm, charisma and humor, she is basically yours.

It's very difficult for a woman to find a good guy who has relaxed, masculine confidence and also happens to be a bit charming and charismatic. It's like hitting the dating jackpot and when a woman meets a guy like that, she does whatever she can to ensure that they have sex or at least start dating.

Make Her Feel Girly in Response to Your Masculinity

These days, women often have to compete alongside men in the workplace, which forces them to take on some masculine qualities, such as: Leadership, logical planning, strategy and dominant behavior.

Some women also find themselves wearing the pants in a relationship because these days, men and women are often encouraged to play “equal” roles in life. Yet, being a man’s equal or “partner” doesn’t allow her to relax into being his girl.

She has to lock away the “girly girl” side of herself and pretend to be more like a man, which isn’t sexually arousing because it goes against her true, sexual nature.

Although she wants to be respected and have a chance to succeed at university or in the workplace alongside men, that doesn’t mean she wants to be a man. Inside, she is still a girl and to become sexually aroused, a guy needs to be able to get her to connect with that side of herself.

Some guys make the mistake of talking to women like they are “one of the guys,” which is fine if you want to get along with a woman as a friend, but it won’t turn her on. The shortcut to turning a woman on is to make her feel girly in response to your masculinity.

How to Get to Know Someone: Secrets of the Cool Crowd

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The best way to get to know someone is to:

1. Love and accept them for who they are

Don't try to get them to change who they are in the moment to suit you. Let them express their real personality in your presence.

When people feel like you accept them for who they are, they relax around you and feel understood. They feel like they can be themselves and be appreciated for it, which is one of the best feelings in the world.

2. Love and accept yourself

If you're trying to get to know a beautiful woman or people from the "cool crowd," you have to love and accept yourself first. You can't hope that being nice, a beautiful woman will give you a chance to be with her and the cool crowd will accept you into their group.

You have to love and accept yourself and know that you're good enough. You can't seek to get that approval from beautiful women or the cool crowd. You have to give it to yourself.

[image: Hanging out with friends]

When a beautiful woman notices (via your body language, vibe, attitude, conversation style, etc) that you know you are good enough for her, it is very impressive. Most of the guys she meets feel unworthy of her, which automatically makes her raise her guard up.

Beautiful, sought after women don't want to waste time getting to know guys who feel unworthy of them. A beautiful woman wants a guy who makes her feel like she'd be getting lucky if she got a chance to be with him. One of the ways to make her feel that way is to be what women refer to as a challenge.

When talking to people in the cool crowd, they will automatically like you if you don't feel the need to seek their approval. If you hang around and hope that they take pity on you, some people in the group may use you to feel good about themselves by picking on you or making you look back in front of others.

However, if you hang out and give yourself permission to say and do whatever you want, the cool crowd will respect you. As long as you are being respectful towards others and coming from a place of love, you can't go wrong.

2. Be your absolute, real self

Don't put on an act of being someone you're not, in the hope that a person will like you for it. Be your true, raw, real self.

If you want to attract compatible friends and women, you have to be the real you. Acting like someone you're not will ensure that you attract people who don't really match up to who you truly are. You will always feel awkward, out of place and as though you're living a lie by being friends with them.

When you can have the courage to be your true self, you will find that people want to get to know you more. They feel intrigued by your unique personality and it is fascinating to talk to you and be around you. Something about you is charismatic and appealing...they can sense it and it feels good to be around.

3. Lead the way by being open, honest and fearless during a conversation

If a person gets the sense that you're not fully saying what you really want to say, or doing what you really want to do around them, they will shut off a part of themselves to you. They will always feel like they need to be on guard.

When talking to someone that you want to get to know, just be fearless in expressing yourself. Don't worry about making a mistake and ruining their impression of you. If a person sees that you're being open, honest and real, they will appreciate the small flaws and quirks that you have.

It's very rare to meet someone who has the courage to be honest, fearless and open when interacting with others. As long as you are coming from a place of love and have good intentions, you can't go wrong.

Yes, you might say some things sometimes that are a bit too much, but you and the other person can simply laugh it off and then get on with enjoying each other's company.

Being the Guy That Women Love and That Other Guys Respect

Have you ever noticed how some guys just seem to hit it off with almost every woman they meet? He meets a girl or group of girls and they all seem to like him. They laugh, giggle, touch him, hug him and want to be around him...even though he's not a male model, isn't very tall, isn't and isn't famous.

[image: Ladies man]

In addition to being good with women, a guy like will effortlessly make new friends wherever he goes and people will enjoy being around him. He will only spend time alone when he decides to or when he finally has a free day without any plans, parties or work to get done.

Yet, why are these seemingly "everyday guys" so popular with people and with women? Simple.

Guys who are in the "cool crowd" know how to attract women and they also expect to be a member of the cool crowd. Ironically, assuming or expecting that you are a part of the cool crowd actually makes you give off a type of social confidence that is attractive to women.

Women are naturally attracted to guys who have the type of social confidence that allows them to be accepted, respected and appreciated by others. Women instinctively know that a guy who is liked by more people will usually have an easier time surviving and live a happier life, than a guy who is disliked or ignored by most people.

The Ability to Attract Women

When a guy knows how to attract women, he is liked by almost all women. When other guys see that he liked by so many women, they want to be around him, get to know him and hopefully get to score some girls through him.

However, when a guy doesn't know how to attract women, he will find it difficult to get to know women because they won't fully open up to him. Attractive women know that if they open up and are too friendly with a guy who doesn't know how to attract other women, he will usually latch on and pester her for months or even years in the hope that he "gets a chance" with her.

Likewise, when a guy doesn't know how to attract women, cool guys will rarely want him hanging around. If they do allow him to hang around, it will usually only be to make themselves look better in front of any women they encounter together.

How about you? Do you have the skill of being able to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman? If you're not sure, watch the video below to find out...

When you're around the "cool crowd" do you hope to be liked and accepted, or do you assume that you're cool enough and good enough and then just get on with having a good time? If not, then it usually has a lot to do with the fact that you can't attract women.

When a guy is able to attract beautiful women and is accepted by beautiful women, he doesn't need to try to suck up to cool guys to hopefully get a chance to meet girls through them. He has plenty of women interested in him and guys then want to be his friend.

Why Do Women Like Tall Men?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Of course they do.

However, just because women like tall men, it doesn't mean that they won't accept guys who aren't very tall, or who are shorter than them.

Not all women will accept a guy who is shorter than them, but many will. Most women have what I call an Open Type, which means that they are open to being with all different types of guys, as long as the guy can make her feel enough attraction for other reasons.

For example: If a guy isn't tall, but he is confident, charming and charismatic, women will be interested in him because those three traits are attractive to women. At The Modern Man, I teach guys how to make women feel attracted to them in more than 100 different ways.

When you know how to attract women with your personality and behavior, you stop worrying about your height, looks and financial position in life. You know that you can make women feel attracted to who you are.

[image: Do women like tall guys?]

It's not possible to attract ALL women if you aren't tall, good looking and rich, but you can attract most women because most women have an Open Type. The majority of guys don't know this and they go through life clinging to secret excuses about their lack of success with women.

Watch this video to see what I mean...

The Main Benefit of Being Tall

Instinctively, women assume that a taller guy will be more capable of physically protecting her. She will also assume that he will be more respected by other guys because he is so physically imposing. However, if a woman interacts with a tall guy and finds out that he's nervous, insecure and doesn't have the presence of an alpha male, she will rapidly lose interest in him. The only exception is with unattractive women or with women who are looking for an insecure guy that they can control in a relationship.

Some guys like the idea of finding a woman who is looking for an insecure guy, but women like that almost always dump him later on, especially when he becomes insecure, clingy or needy. The kind of woman who accepts an insecure guy is much more likely to cheat or have an affair later on, when she loses respect and attraction for him.

She may be easy to pick up initially, but that doesn't mean she will stick around. The real secret to success with women is to:

1. Know how to attract women and turn them on with your personality and behavior.

That way, most of the women you meet feel attracted to you, so you can then have your choice of women. You can choose the right woman for you, rather than accepting whatever you can get. Do you have the skill of being able to attract women?

Watch this video to find out...

2. Know how to deepen a woman's love, respect and attraction for you over time.

In the past, a woman had to stay with a man for life, even if she was unhappy because it was shameful to get divorced. A woman had to find one man, get married to him, lose her virginity on the wedding night and then stick with him for life.

Not anymore.

Today's women no longer have to stay with a man if they aren't happy. To keep a relationship together in today's world, a man needs to know how to deepen a woman's love, respect and attraction for him over time.

It doesn't matter if a guy is tall; if he doesn't make her feel attracted in the deeper, more important and longer lasting ways, she will eventually lose interest in him.

Tall Men Get Rejected Too

A woman may be initially attracted by a guy's height, but it's an attraction that will be very short-lived if he doesn't display the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women.

For example: If a guy lacks confidence and is shy or nervous around a beautiful woman (who isn't looking for an insecure guy), she will instantly feel turned off, no matter how tall he is. On the other hand, if a woman meets a shorter guy who has a lot of self-confidence and the type of personality traits that make him well respected by other men, she will instantly be turned on by him.

The truth is (whether some guys want to believe it or not), most women will feel more attraction for a confident shorter guy or confident guy who is the same height as her than a tall guy who is insecure and nervous. Why? Nervousness and insecurity are turn offs, whereas confidence is a turn on.

Why Do Men Like Women With Big Boobs Vs. Why Do Women Like Tall Guys?

[image: Woman with big boobs]

Asking the question, Why do women like tall men? is just like asking, Why do men like women with big boobs?

Why? It's simply not true that all men want a woman with big boobs, but there can be no denying that it can certainly get our attention, right? However, if the woman isn't attractive in other ways, most guys are going to lose interest in her.

A tall guy will definitely get a woman's attention, but if he is unable to attract her in the more important ways (e.g. confidence, charm, charisma, etc), she isn't going to be very interested.

Being successful at attracting the opposite sex is a lot more complex than just being tall (for men) or just having big boobs (for women). A tall guy might get a woman's attention, but his height won't keep her attention for very long.

The "tall-dark-handsome" thing is one of those myths that couldn't be further from reality. Just take a look around you in the real world; Do you always see beautiful women with basketball giants or guys who more than 6ft tall?

Of course you don't.

In the real world, you will always see ordinary, everyday guys of different height with beautiful girlfriends. Why? Women can feel attracted to guys for many different reasons. It's a fact. You do not have to be tall to attract women, but being tall will attract women.

You can attract women in more than 100 different ways with your personality and behavior (e.g. confidence, charisma, charm, ability to make her laugh, etc). The more ways that you can attract women with your personality and behavior, the higher quality and quantity of women you will have access to.

You've Just Got to Be the Bigger Man

A modern woman is looking for a man who is man enough to be her protector.

To protect a woman in today's world, a man doesn't need to be the tallest, fastest and strongest man around; he simply needs to be mentally and emotionally tough enough to deal with the challenges of life better than she does.

For most women, the bigger man in a situation isn't necessarily the taller, more muscular man. Today's man doesn't have to be able to kill a woolly mammoth or wrestle with a saber toothed tiger to provide for her and protect her; he simply needs to be a man who can handle the challenges of modern life.

It's time to stop asking, Why do women like tall men? and time to start asking yourself, How can I become the type of man who makes women feel attracted?

How to Make a Girl Want to Kiss You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret to making a girl want to kiss you is to make her feel sexually attracted to you first.

If you're just being friendly with her or being a standard nice guy, she might like you as a person, but she isn't going to be feeling turned on by your approach.

Do you know how to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a girl? Do you know how to turn a girl on by the way that you talk to her? Watch this video to understand how it works...

Movies Vs. Real Life

Have you ever noticed that in the movies and on TV, women often kiss a guy first? You will see a woman giving a guy the "come here" finger and she will then kiss him, or she will walk up and put her phone number in his pocket, walk off and say, "Call me."

Why do women behave like that in movies and on TV? Simple. It's designed to entertain the audience.

Girls watching the show will think, Wow, I would never do that. That girl is ballsy! and they are entertained by her behavior. They are amazed that a woman would go against the traditional role of a woman and be the one who actively tries to pick up a guy.

Guys watching the movie or TV show may think, Wow! I wish that would happen to me! Then, they wait around hoping that women approach them and talk to them because of how they look. Yet, it rarely, if ever happens.

The only time it happens is when a guy knows how to make a woman feel INTENSE attraction for him. He turns her on in several different ways and builds up her desire for him, to the point where she just has to have him.

Here's how it works...

However, if a guy just sits around hoping that a girl will feel attracted to him because of his looks, he will be waiting a long time...

[image: Why aren't they approaching me?]

In the real world, women rarely approach men because they want a man to demonstrate that he has the confidence to lead the way. Instead approaching and leading men, women will usually send out signals to let a man know that they want to be approached.

Then, it's up to you to have the confidence to approach. If you don't have the confidence to approach girls you like, watch this...

The same rule applies to kissing...

Unless it's in a movie or TV show, women will rarely make the first move and kiss a guy first. If a girl wants to be kissed by you, she's going to give plenty of signals to let you know she's ready and if you don't pick up on those signals, she will eventually lose interest.

Some of those signals include:

- Looking at your lips and then back up to your eyes.
- Touching you softly and warmly.
- Looking at you in a submissive, girly way.
- Biting her bottom lip and looking you in the eyes.
- Playing with her necklace (i.e. twirling it around her finger).
- Reapplying lip gloss and make up, or adjusting her clothing to look more appealing to you.

If you see any of those signals, don't wait around hoping for additional signals. If a woman is attracted to you and she's giving you signals that she's open to kissing you, then it's time to make a move and kiss her.

Some women will show their desire to kiss you in a more obvious way than others, so you can't rely on getting obvious, strong signals that she's ready to be kissed. Simply focus on making her feel attracted to you and then when she gives you the signals, move in closer and the kiss will happen.

3 Mistakes That Will Kill Her Desire to Kiss You

It's actually very easy to attract a woman and then kiss her. Yet, if you make one of the following mistakes, her desire to kiss you will rapidly decrease and she may reject you when you attempt to kiss her...

1. Asking for permission to kiss her

This was a great move back in the late 1800s to early 1900s when a woman had to save her virginity until marriage. Yet, in today's world, it's a move that will make a woman instantly lose interest in you.

She will realize that you don't get what it really going on in the modern dating scene. You don't know that people are having sex all the time. For example: A recent study found that 55% of couples had sex on their first date and 70% of women admitted to having experienced a one night stand.

In other words, sex happens all the time and it happens very quickly.

You don't need to ask a girl for permission to kiss her. You simply need to make her feel attracted to you and then move in for a kiss. If a girl feels attracted to you, she will rarely, if ever reject your kiss.

If she does reject your kiss, it's not because she isn't interested in you, but because it's not the right time and place. If a girl is attracted to you, then she will be interested in you, so if she rejects your kiss, simply say, "Oh, I thought it would okay to kiss here...do you not want to kiss here or something?" to show her that you understand.

2. Trying too hard to get her to like you

If you're putting on an act of being an even nicer guy than you are, girls will feel turned off by it.

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a girl you like, but if you're too nice to her because you think it will impress her, then you will almost always get rejected when you try to kiss her. Here's why...

3. Showing signs of nervousness while you hesitate to kiss her

If a girl has given you signals that she wants you to kiss her and you appear nervous and worried, she will rapidly begin to lose respect and attraction for you.

Women are attracted to confident guys, so when you want to kiss a girl, the most important thing you need to display is confidence. Letting her see that you are nervous is the quickest way to ruin her feelings for you...

Is Chivalry Dead?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Is chivalry dead?

No.

Women still appreciate chivalry, but only from men that they feel sexually attracted to. If your main approach to a woman is to be a nice gentleman, but you're not even saying or doing anything that will make her feel sexually attracted to you, then she won't appreciate your chivalrous gestures.

Here's why...

The Real Meaning of Chivalry

Here's what the dictionary has to say about chivalry:

Chivalry (noun):

1. The medieval system or institution of knighthood. The combination of qualities expected of an ideal knight; especially courage, honor justice, and a readiness to help the weak.
2. Courteous behavior, especially that of a man towards women.

As you can see, the knights of the medieval times played a big part what it means to be chivalrous, but does that mean that chivalry has no place in modern society?

If you've recently been asking yourself the question, â□□Is chivalry dead?â□□ you may be wondering why your courteous behavior towards women is not bringing you the success that you deserve, right?

You might have even come to the conclusion that modern women do prefer â□□bad boysâ□□ and that guys who treat women well get rejected. Maybe you're starting to think that the world has gone crazy and you're not going to be able to get a girlfriend because you â□□re not prepared to give up on what you believe is the right way to treat a woman.

You want to be a nice, chivalrous gentleman and if women don't like that, bad luck to them, right? They need to wake up and realize that you are a great guy, right?

Wrong.

Women don't care that you're a good guy unless you first make them feel attracted to you. In the past, women had to select a man based on how nice he was and how well set up he was financially.

[image: The old days...]

Generally speaking, women couldn't earn their own money, so they were completely dependant on men. If she got married, she had to stay with that man for life, even if she was unhappy, because it was shameful to get divorced.

Not anymore.

[image: Modern women]

Women can now earn their own money, have sex with whoever they like and settle down whenever they feel like it. They no longer have to select a man based on how courteous and chivalrous he is. That's not to say that women no longer appreciate or want men who are courteous or chivalrous. Women do still appreciate men who treat them well and most women want to find themselves a good guy, but he ALSO has to be able to make her feel sexually attracted.

[image: Start with kissing and sex and then take it from there]

These days, dating and relationships start with sexual attraction, kissing and sex. A recent study found that 55% of couples admitted to having sex on their first date, while another study found that 70% of women admitted to having experienced a one night stand before.

In other words, you don't have to court a woman for weeks or months by being a chivalrous gentleman. Be a good guy, be respectful and treat her well, but make sure that you're not acting like a gentleman from 1895.

In today's world, you need to start with sexual attraction. From there, you need to kiss the woman and have sex with her. After that, you can both decide whether or not to have a relationship. You're essentially taking each other for a "test drive" first and seeing how you feel.

The Modern Way to Be a Chivalrous Man

Here are 3 examples of how to be chivalrous with a woman in today's world.

Important: A woman will only appreciate these gestures if you have already made her feel attracted to you. If you are only being a nice gentleman and are not saying or doing anything to make her feel turned on by you, she will most likely see your attempts to be chivalrous as tacky or uncalled for.

Make sure that you trigger her feelings of sexual attraction FIRST. Then, the fact that you're a good guy will be highly appreciated and make her feel excited to have finally met a good guy who ALSO turns her on.

1. Be nice to the people she cares about in her life

A woman will always have people in her life that she respects, enjoying hanging out with and loves. A chivalrous modern man will make sure that he gives those people attention and doesn't try to exclude them from the life that he and her have together.

Even if you don't necessarily like some things about those people and would prefer that she only hang out with your friends, you should try to be more open minded. Be courteous to her by having a more open heart and caring about her happiness, not just your own.

One day, she may not like some of those people, but while she does, a good guy will let her experience the relationship and come to her own decisions over time.

2. Surprise her by doing something nice for her once in a while

A recent example for me is with my wife.

We had a party at our house with friends for her birthday. Everyone had a great time and headed home at about 1am. I woke up at 9am and saw that the house was a mess downstairs in the living and dining areas.

So, I quickly made some breakfast for myself and spent the next two hours cleaning up all the mess. When my wife came down, I said, "Happy birthday darling" and she had to stop and look for a couple of seconds to realize what had happened.

She was amazed that I'd cleaned it all up for her and had been expecting to come down and have to clean it all up herself. I later overheard her telling her aunty how lucky she is to have a guy like me and that it was a great birthday present in the morning.

Every now and then, I do something nice for her like that and it helps to remind her that she is treated well. I don't have time to do that sort of thing more often though because I put in about 50-60 hours of work per week into The Modern Man, so she appreciates it when I do anything that is extra special just for her

3. Watching one of her favorite TV shows with her

If you're a masculine man like me, you don't really want to be watching the types of TV sitcoms and drama shows that women like.

Personally, I prefer to watch channels like H2 (History 2), National Geographic, Discovery Science, etc. I want to learn something or see something interesting.

However, my wife likes to feel the emotions that come with watching drama shows. I'll often walk into the lounge room and see her teary-eyed or wiping away some tears.

So, being the courteous, chivalrous guy that I am (haha...), I will sometimes suffer through 30 minutes or an hour of watching one of her favorite shows with her. I would rather be watching something else, but I do it so we can have a chance to talk and connect about what's going on in the show.

She'll explain all the drama going on in the show and excitedly tell me about some of the story plot lines. I will genuinely listen and explore the conversation with her, joke around about it or add in my own thoughts.

After that is done, she is always happy to see that we experienced something like that together.

However, it's not something that a woman wants to do with her man all the time. If a guy did that every day and was interested in all of her girly shows, they would become more like neutral friends, rather than man and woman.

To keep the sexual spark alive in a relationship, you have to retain the dynamic where she is the woman and you are the man. If you start to think, behave and act like each other, you will neutralize the sexual attraction and eventually, you will both feel bored of being in the relationship.

You will begin feeling attracted to more feminine women and she will begin feeling attracted to more masculine guys. So, be careful not to go overboard in your attempts to be chivalrous and courteous to your woman.

Be a good guy, but make sure that you still remain a masculine man...

How to Make Women Want You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you ask most guys about how to make women want you, they will tell you that it's all about looks, money and how tall you are.

Yet, if that was true, most guys wouldn't have a girlfriend because the majority of guys are average looking, live pay check to pay check (or have a bit of savings) and are an average height.

So, what is the secret?

Attraction.

Women want you when you make them feel sexually attracted to you. If your main approach to women is to be nice and friendly and then hope that something happens, you will rarely get laid or get a girlfriend.

What you need to do is actively make women feel sexually attracted to you based on what you say and do when interacting with them. You can attract women in more than 100 different ways (e.g. confidence, charisma, charm, etc).

The more ways you make a woman feel attracted to you when interacting with her, the more she will want you. Here's how it works...

What Qualities Make a Woman Really Want to Be With a Man?

[image: How to make a woman want you]

What qualities do you think make a man so irresistibly attractive to a woman that she does whatever it takes to be his woman? Do you believe that it's about looks, height and money, even though you often see below-average looking, average looking and even "ugly" guys with beautiful women?

Are all of those ugly guys rich? Really?

Most guys are not rich and are just working a normal job, so what is really going on? How can a guy who isn't tall, good looking or rich get a beautiful woman to want him? Why do good guys who have good intentions with women fail, even if they do look good or work in a great job?

Here is the answer...

When you see "ugly" or average looking guys with beautiful women, do you sometimes feel frustrated and ask yourself, "Why is she with him?!?"

You don't need to feel that way anymore. The answer is simple: He made her feel attracted to him and then moved it forward. Most guys don't realize how easy most women are to pick up.

As long as you know how to attract women and have the balls to move it forward (e.g. get a phone number, call her up, get her out on a date, or simply kiss her the first time you meet her), you will be surprised at how many women you are able to pick up.

Most guys try way too hard to be "liked" by women for being a nice guy. A guy like that hopes that the woman will see that he's a nice guy and is trustworthy and she'll then "give him a chance." She doesn't want to give a guy a chance if she doesn't feel attracted to him. She wants to meet a guy who knows how to turn her on and is ALSO a good guy.

Why Do So Many Good-Looking Guys Find it Difficult to Get a Girlfriend?

I recently got an email from a guy who wanted to know why he wasn't having any success with women, even though he was a good-looking guy. He told me that he had lots of female friends and they all said he was a really nice guy, but none of them showed any interest in becoming his girlfriend.

Why do you think that was?

His email was typical of the many emails that I get from guys who want to know where they're going wrong with the women. They want to know why guys who are "uglier" than them seem to get girlfriends and why women like them as a friend, but don't seem to want them as a boyfriend.

[image: Ugly guy getting the girl]

The answer is simple...

While there are some women who will only accept a guy who is good looking, the majority of women have what I call an Open Type. This means that the woman is open to being with all different types of guys, as long as the guy makes her feel enough attraction for other reasons.

When a good looking guy interacts with a woman and she isn't interested, it's because he is making the mistake of thinking that his looks should be enough to make her feel attracted. Yet, the truth is that most women place less importance on a guy's looks than they admit.

Some women will go around saying that they will only accept a handsome guy with loads of money, but look at the guys they end up having sex with, getting into a relationship with and marrying. Often, those guys are just average looking guys with an average job.

This happens because it is possible to attract women in ways other than looks, money and height. It also happens because just because women have a fantasy idea about what type of guy they want, it doesn't mean that they won't accept anything else.

It's like if you ask a guy what sort of woman he wants. He will list off all sorts of traits (e.g. I want a brunette, petite, pretty, sweet, intelligent, hard working, etc) and it will seem like he'll accept nothing else.

Yet, he will then meet a pretty blonde who is the same height as him (not shorter and more petite like he was hoping for), isn't very intelligent and doesn't work hard. He will feel attracted to her for many subtle reasons and he will hook up with her, get into a relationship with her and then marry her.

This is why you shouldn't listen to what people SAY about what type of person they want. In most cases, it's just a random, fantasy idea that they are stuck on at that time. However, if they meet someone who makes them feel a lot of attraction and they also have a great connection, they will let go of their old fantasy idea and the new person will become the ideal fantasy.

You Have to Take the Lead

If you want to make a woman want you, don't sit around hoping that something happens on its own. You've got to take the lead.

Real life is not like the movies where a girl makes all the moves and jumps all over the guy, tearing his clothes off and saying, "Kiss me!" In the real world, women prefer to wait for a man to make the first move because they want to see that he has the confidence to do so.

Women feel a lot of attraction to the confidence of men, so if you are hesitating and worrying about making a move, you are literally turning her off. If she sees that you're hoping that she makes the first move, she will begin to feel like more of the "man" in the situation.

She will feel as though if she is going to hook up with you, she will have to be "the man" and lead the way. Yet, that isn't what she wants.

A woman wants to relax into the feminine role of being a woman who gets picked up and then penetrated by a man. She wants to surrender into his masculine lead and relax into feeling like a real woman.

She wants to open herself up (body and mind) to be penetrated by a masculine force (you). She doesn't want to spread her legs for a confused, half-masculine/half-feminine guy who doesn't even know how to be a man.

You can take the lead. All you have to do is be the courageous one out of the two of you. Take a risk to make a move or suggest something. As long as you've made her feel attracted to you first, a woman will rarely, if ever, reject your attempts to move things forward.

Avoid the Nice Guy Act

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman that you like. In fact, I recommend that guys be good and treat women well.

However, when a guy falls into the trap of acting nicer than he normally is in the hope that it impresses the woman, he will often end up getting rejected. Here's why...

If You Don't Want to Be Just Friends, Don't Act Like You're Just a Friend

[image: Friend zone - no sexual attraction]

Some guys make the mistake of thinking that being a woman's friend or "being there" for her when she's going through a tough time in life will lead to her wanting more than friendship. Sure, that happens sometimes, but only with the type of guy who knows how to make her feel attracted to him as well.

However, if a guy's main approach to a woman is to be a friend and hope that something eventually develops between them, it usually won't. All it takes for him to lose her is for another guy to come along, make her feel sexual attraction and then kiss her or ask her out on a date.

When that happens, her nice friend is slam dunked further into the friend zone. He might feel confused, angry or betrayed by her, but it's a pretty simple situation...

He didn't say or do anything to make her feel sexually attracted.

In today's world, you have to start with sexual attraction and everything else flows on from there. In the past, a woman had to remain a virgin until marriage, marry one man and then stay with him for life.

[image: The old days...]

Even if the man didn't treat her well or if she was unhappy, she was obliged to stay with him for life. In 1900 for example, the divorce rate in the developed world was less than 10%, whereas it is now an average of about 50% across the developed world.

In the past, women had to choose a man based on how nice he was and how well set up he was to support her financially. This is why it made sense for men to be a gentleman and slowly court a woman in a friendly way, before eventually proposing marriage.

Not anymore.

[image: Start with kissing and sex and then take it from there]

Today's women can earn their own money, sleep with whoever they want and settle down whenever they feel like it. If she is in a bad relationship or marriage, the society around her encourages her to leave.

If a man wants to be successful with women in today's day and age, he needs to be able to attract women when he meets them and then deepen a woman's feelings of love, respect and attraction over time.

Using the outdated "gentleman" approach to women just doesn't work anymore. Likewise, expecting a woman to stay with you in a relationship if she isn't happy also no longer works.

Luckily, attracting women is a very easy and natural thing for men to do. Once you know how to attract women, you realize that most guys don't have the skill. When you meet women, they are surprised and excited to finally be meeting a guy who knows how to turn them on.

How about you? Do you have the skill of being able to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman?

How to Get a One Night Stand

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To get a one night stand (sex on the first night), the first thing that you must do is at least kiss the woman.

When you kiss a woman, it changes the dynamic from being friendly to being sexual in an instant. I've had more than 100 one night stands and I've kissed all of the women before pulling them back for sex.

Prior to a kiss, there might be a lot of attraction and flirting going back and forth between you, but that doesn't mean you are going to get laid. You have to take the next step and kiss her, so she can physically experience what it's like to be sexual with you.

4 Mistakes to Avoid When Pulling a One Night Stand

Getting laid on the first night you meet a woman is pretty easy, as long as you play your cards right. According to a recent study, 55% of couples had sex on their first date and 70% of women admitted to having experienced a one night stand before. In other words, sex usually happens very quickly. To ensure that you get your fair share of booty, avoid these 4 classic mistakes...

1. Don't wait for her to make it completely obvious that she wants to sleep with you

In the movies, you will often see women making it obvious that they want to have sex with a guy. They might say, “What hotel room are you staying in? I will come to see you at midnight” or “Your place or mine?”

In the real world, most women don't want to give you the impression that they will have sex with you so easily. Why? Although she wants sex just as much as you, she also wants to show you that she's not an “easy lay” and that if you get into a relationship with her, you will be able to trust her not to cheat on you.

In the movies and on TV, women will say cliché lines like, “If I have sex with him, will he respect me in the morning?” but in real life, women who are open to having sex on the first night don't even care about that.

Some women will SAY that they are worried about a guy not “respecting them in the morning” (i.e. he will lose interest in her after getting to have sex with her so easily), but in most cases a one night stand leads to a relationship...and women know that.

Yet, don't expect women to openly admit that or to show obvious interest in having sex with you right away. Most women will pretend as though they've never had a one night stand before, or that they would never do it.

Personally speaking, about 85% of the women that I've had a one night stand with have said, “I just want you to know: I've never done this before. I usually wait for a long time before having sex”. After we've finished having sex, a woman will usually say, “I can't believe I just did that. This is so not like me.”

Early on, I used to confront women about it and say, “Hey, it's okay...you don't have to give me that line. I will still respect you in the morning. Later on though, I realized that it was best to just smile, not say anything and then get on with the relationship.

It's not her fault that the dating scene has changed. In the past, a woman had to save herself for marriage and then stick with one man for life.

[image: The old days...]

Not anymore.

[image: Start with kissing and sex and then take it from there]

Today's women can have sex with whoever they want and settle down into a relationship whenever they feel like it. Most guys are still talking to women as though they'd never be open to having sex right away because they are using an outdated approach.

If you want to be successful with women in today's world, you've got to realize that one night stands happen all the time. Women are open to having sex with you, but don't expect them to make it obvious.

Women still have to act like they aren't interested in having sex right away because most people are still hanging on to old ideals. Yet, the sex is happening behind closed doors.

2. Don't try too hard to impress her

If you approach women and try to impress them by talking about your job, where you live, what car you drive, etc, you are coming from a weak and insecure place. Most women, especially the beautiful ones, will assume you don't feel worthy and are trying to "wow" them with your credentials.

If you want to get laid with sexy women, you've got to be the sort of guy that makes them feel turned on and excited. One of the easiest ways to do that is to be what women refer to as a challenge...

3. Don't hide your true personality

Do you wish that women would just love you for who you are? Would you prefer it if women stopped playing games with you and started respecting you as a man?

If you answered "Yes," then here is the solution: Be your real self and don't put on an act of being someone you're not, just to suit the woman you're talking to. Let her experience the real you. Let her experience your confidence and belief in yourself. Let her see that, no matter what she says or does, you remain strong and stick to who you are.

Being real is a million more times more impressive than a guy who walks over and pretends to be something he's not. The guys who get one night stands easily and naturally don't pretend to be anything other than themselves.

They know that their normal self is impressive enough and they simply make women feel attracted and then move from one step to the next until they are having sex on the first night.

Do you know how to make a woman feel attracted to you? Watch this video to find out...

4. Don't see having a one night stand as a big deal

If you want to have sex with women on the first night that you meet them, don't go around thinking that sex is a big deal and that you're attempting to do something "bad" or "wrong." Sex on the first night is normal, natural and happens millions of times every night, all over the world.

To pull one night stands, start looking at sex as the expected outcome of you and a woman feeling mutual attraction for each other. Know that after you kiss a woman, she will be feeling sexual attraction for you and the door to having sex with her will open wide...

How to Get a Girl's Number in a Bar

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Getting a girl's number from a bar is easy, as long as you have made her feel attracted to you first.

If a woman is attracted to you, she will be happy to give you her phone number so she can have a chance to talk to you again, meet up with you and either have sex or begin a relationship.

With some women, you will also need to develop a connection by talking, hanging out and getting to know her (anywhere from 10 minutes to 2 hours) before getting her number. However, you will usually be able to get a phone number purely on attraction alone.

What to Say

[image: Asking for a girl's number in a bar]

So, what should you say to ask a girl for her number in a bar?

After making her feel attracted to you and developing a connection with her (if necessary), simply say:

You: Hey, it's been cool talking to you. Do you want to talk again sometime?

Her: Sure, that would be cool.

You: Okay, sounds good. [Hand her your phone and open it to the part where she can input her name and number] Put your number in here.

Her: [Puts in her number]

You: Okay cool...I'll give you a call sometime. Maybe you can take me out on an expensive dinner.

Her: [Laughing] No! ð□□□ You have to take me out!

You: Okay, if you insist....but, my idea of an expensive dinner is McDonalds or eating at the food court in a shopping mall.

Her: [Laughing]

You: Okay, cool – I'll call and say hello sometime.

In the example above, I am playfully suggesting that the woman will need to take me out to an expensive dinner. This is an example of being what women refer to as a “challenge,” where you take on the role of the one who is more valuable.

When you make a woman feel intense attraction for you and then add in the element of being a challenge, it results in women dropping their guard and chasing you, rather than raising their guard and playing hard to get.

Note that I am also including some light, self-deprecating humor (“my idea of an expensive dinner is McDonalds or eating at the food court in a shopping mall...”) to not come across as being arrogant.

The key is to be playful with the idea of being a challenge, rather than being overly-serious about it.

Many guys are afraid to be a challenge or use any risky humor because they don't want to mess up their opportunity with the woman. Ironically, by joking around and being a bit of a challenge, it is way more impressive and attractive to a woman because she can see that you're not putting on an act of being a super nice guy in the hope that you will get lucky.

Instead, you are a confident guy who believes in himself and his value to women, which is enough to make most women want to be with you.

5 Common Mistakes That Guys Make When Trying to Get a Girl's Number in a Bar

If she is single, a woman will almost always happily give her phone number to a confident guy who is making her feel attracted. She has no reason not to.

However, if you make one of the following mistakes, she may reject your request and give you a classic line like, "I don't give out my number to guys that I meet in bars" or ask you, "Why do you want my number?" to put you on the spot and see how you react.

1. Being too serious about getting the number.

Some guys make the mistake of behaving in an overly-formal manner asking if it is "okay" to get the woman's phone number, or whether she wants to see him again. Both of those approaches usually get rejected because a woman doesn't want to feel like she is doing him a favor or is already in charge of leading the relationship.

To avoid being rejected, simply determine whether or not she wants to speak to you again and then tell her to put her number in. Ask her, "Hey, it's been good talking to you. Would you like to chat again sometime?"

Don't ask her if it's okay to get her number. Just tell her to give it to you (e.g. "Okay cool, put your number in here.")

Getting a girl's number isn't a big deal or something that you should be afraid of doing. A phone number exchange is a very normal and expected outcome of having an interaction and feeling attraction for someone. So, don't think that you're doing a bad thing or being "too forward" by getting her number so soon.

If she is feeling attracted to you, then she is going to be happy that you've asked for her number.

2. Waiting for extremely obvious signals of interest before asking for the number

All women show their interest in guys in a slightly different way.

For example: Sometimes, you will talk to a girl and she will make it completely obvious that she likes you. She will touch you, giggle at almost everything you say, look at you with loving eyes and give you a lot of compliments.

Other times, you will talk to a girl and she will play hard to get to test your confidence. She will be looking for a guy who doesn't need a woman to show lots of interest to believe in his attractiveness to her.

There are many different types of women and they all show their interest in slightly different ways, so don't make the mistake of thinking that every girl will make it completely obvious that she wants you to ask for her phone number.

You have to have the confidence to take a risk and ask for the phone number. As long as she is feeling attracted to you, a woman will almost never reject you.

3. Asking for a number without first making her feel attracted

Most guys never get taught how to attract women, so their main strategy for success is to ask out as many women as they can. It seems like a good plan to approach and talk to 100 women and hopefully one of them says “Yes,” but it’s a horrible plan.

When you know how to properly attract women, you only need to speak to one or two women and you’ll get a phone number, get laid or get a girlfriend. It’s a lot easier than most guys think.

How about you? Do you know how to attract women? Do you have the skill of being able to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman? Watch this video to find out...

4. Being too nice

There’s nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but niceness isn’t something that will mark you out as being special.

If a woman is attractive, most of the guys that she meets are going to be nice to her in the hope that she “likes” him enough to “give him a chance.” She’s not looking for another nice guy who will treat her like a princess, but not make her feel any sexual attraction. If she is like most women, she is looking for a good guy who ALSO turns her on.

So, if you’re talking to a girl in a bar and you want to get her phone number, make sure that you’re not acting like a super nice guy in the hope that it will get her to like you. You have to focus on making her feel attracted to you and then, the fact that you’re also a good guy will be another thing that she finds appealing about you.

5. Waiting too long to ask for the number

If a woman is interested, she will usually give a guy a “window of opportunity” to make a move and either get her number, kiss her, get her alone to talk one on one, or take her home for sex.

[image: Start with kissing and sex and then take it from there]

These days, most women have either experienced a one night stand or are open to having one, so if you’re talking to a woman who is interested in you and you don’t even have the confidence to get her number, she may assume that you don’t understand how the modern dating scene works and she will begin to lose interest.

As long as you have made her feel attracted to you, there is no need to worry about being rejected. If she is attracted, a woman will rarely, if ever, reject a guy who takes things to the next level...

Why Are Beautiful Women So Mean?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Attractive women often act cold and uninterested towards guys because they don't want nervous guys to feel comfortable about approaching them.

If a woman is attractive, most of the guys who see her will be willing to have sex with her, simply based on her appearance. Yet, that's not fun for her. She wants to meet a guy who makes her feel attracted and who deserves to be with her.

[image: When will I meet a confident guy?]

So, she will often play hard to get and appear to be cold and mean when a guy initially starts to talk to her. She does that to find out which guys are confident and which are nervous. Why? Women feel an intense attraction to a guy's confidence and they feel intensely turned off by nervousness, self-doubt and insecurity.

To find a guy who makes her feel a sufficient amount of attraction, she needs to make sure that only the most confident of guys feel comfortable approaching her or stick around long enough to get to know her.

She knows that nervous, insecure and self-doubting guys will give up and leave after 30 seconds of conversation unless she shows obvious interest.

Beautiful Women Want a Guy Who is a Challenge

[image: Why do women like a guy who is a challenge?]

Would you have sex with any (or all) of the women in the photo above?

Most guys would.

If a woman is attractive, pretty much every guy is willing to bang her at least once. Beautiful women know that it is extremely easy for them to attract a man for sex, or even a relationship.

After a while, a woman gets bored of having so much pussy power over guys and starts wishing that she could meet a guy who is more of a challenge...

Most Beautiful Women Are Nice, Friendly and Easy-Going

[image: Most beautiful women are friendly]

Most beautiful women are very nice, friendly and easy-going, but they only show that side of themselves to guys who make them feel attracted and pass their initial tests.

The majority of guys rarely get to see that side of beautiful women, so they often wonder, "Why are beautiful women so mean?" The answer is simple: Beautiful women who appear cold, mean or uninterested are simply screening out the guys who lack confidence, so they can find a guy who is emotionally strong enough to handle them.

If you approach a beautiful woman and she doesn't contribute much to the conversation initially, don't panic. Understand that in almost all cases, she is simply testing to see whether you will lose confidence in yourself and leave.

If you can remain confident, relaxed and continue on without worrying, she will be impressed. However, she won't fully open up to you and show you her friendly, easy-going side unless you are actively triggering her feelings of sexual attraction.

Do you know how to attract women when you meet them, or do you usually just hope that she likes you because you're such a good guy? Watch this video to understand how different a guy's life is when he actually knows how to attract women...

Just Because She's Beautiful, it Doesn't Mean She is Confident

[image: Women being insecure about their looks]

Most beautiful women feel insecure about their physical appearance, even if they act like they are perfect.

According to an international survey by Dove cosmetics, only 4% of women consider themselves to be beautiful. Meaning, 96% of women (even the beautiful ones) don't consider themselves to be beautiful.

Why do women think that way?

A beautiful woman knows that she doesn't look as appealing without make up.

[image: Blonde before and after make up]

[image: Blonde before and after make up]

[image: Dark blonde before and after make up]

[image: Brunette before and after make up]

[image: Brunette before and after make up]

She knows that with make up, she looks at least one or two points hotter. She knows that she's using a trick to make guys see that she is much more beautiful than she normally is.

As she goes through her life, she will be bombarded with advertising images from the media that show perfectly Photoshopped models. The women in the advertisements have perfect skin, are in perfect shape and look amazing.

Yet, when she looks at herself, she sees pimples and blemishes, scars, dry skin, oily skin, frazzled hair and imperfect make up. She knows that she's not perfect, but most guys don't.

The majority of guys in this world look at beautiful women as being much more attractive than them. They feel an intense attraction to the woman's physical appearance, but notice that women don't feel that way about their appearance.

Why?

Women are more attracted to things about a man that cannot be seen. Yes, women can feel attracted to a man's physical appearance, but the most powerful ways to attract a woman are based on what you say and do around her.

For example: Does your conversation turn her on or turn her off? Does she feel excited and aroused by interacting with you, or does she feel bored or awkward? That is what really counts to a woman.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use it to your advantage...

Why Are Attractive Women So Mean?

As you may have realized by now, they're not mean; they are simply testing you.

Hot women are in demand and they have to reject guys who are unable to make them feel attracted. If you can't handle her initial tests, a beautiful woman will rarely open up and show you her more friendly, easy-going side.

Some beautiful women are more friendly and open than others, but that doesn't mean they will sleep with every guy they talk to. To be able to have sex with a beautiful woman or get a hot girl to be your girlfriend, you must first make sure that you make her feel attracted to you.

The more attraction that you make her feel when you interact with her, the more she will open up to you. Sometimes that happens within seconds to minutes and other times, it takes a couple of hours. Once you know how to do it, you will realize that most guys give up when talking to attractive women and then try to get unattractive or average women instead.

When you are one of the rare guys who knows how to attract and pick up beautiful women, you will realize that there is hardly any competition. Most guys have no clue how to pick up hotties, so when you approach an attractive woman and get her to drop her guard and open up, you will be surprised at how easy it is to pick her up...

How to Please a Woman in Bed

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

What pleases a woman the most in bed is:

- Seeing that you are confident, relaxed and doing whatever you want with her.
- Feeling your masculine touch and presence.
- Seeing your masculine facial expressions when you feel pleasure or look at her with desire.
- Hearing your masculine groans of pleasure when she does something good.
- Seeing that you find her sexy and attractive and that it's adding to your pleasure.
- Feeling girly or feminine in response to your masculine behavior, energy, vibe and presence.

As long as you aren't worried about trying to perform or please her and are instead just being there in your most masculine form, she will feel a type of attraction for you that goes beyond words.

Does Penis Size Matter?

Some women do like big dicks, but the majority of women don't care.

Have you ever heard a woman say, "A man's penis size doesn't matter...what matters is how he uses it" and wondered what it meant? It's simple. It's about how you are behaving (see the list above) while you are stroking your penis in and out.

Women get turned on by your thinking, behavior, vibe, actions and presence more than your body or penis size. That's what women mean when they say, "...it's how he uses it."

Personally speaking, I have an average sized penis and I've always been able to make my women orgasm. Why? I make a woman feel turned on by my vibe, presence, touch and behavior and she then gets into the type of emotional state that makes her orgasm naturally and easily.

I don't have to use many different sexual positions or spend time trying to get her turned on. The majority of times, my women orgasm purely based on the emotional state of mind that they get into when in the bedroom with me.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use it to your advantage to attract a woman when you meet her, turn her on in the bedroom and deepen her love, respect and attraction for you over time when in a relationship...

How Long Does Foreplay Need to Be?

You don't have to engage in foreplay for any set length of time. As long as there is at least some type of foreplay between you before you have sex, a woman will be pleased.

By foreplay, I don't mean that you play with her pussy and she jerks off your dick. Foreplay can be a lot of different things that happen inside and outside of the bedroom. Here are some examples:

Inside of the bedroom: Slow kissing, passionate kissing, massage, oral sex, looking into each other's eyes for 30 seconds.

Outside of the bedroom: Laughter, flirting, tickling her, playfully dominating her physically, making her feel sexy by the way you look at her, making her feel loved by the way you treat her.

To keep the spark alive and make sure that foreplay doesn't get boring for you or her, make sure that you mix it up. If you always start sex by kissing and caressing each other first, it will eventually get boring and lose its appeal.

Should You Ask Her What She Likes and Doesn't Like?

Yes, but don't get too serious about it.

Women enjoy sex with guys who don't worry and stress about things. Women want sex to be more of an emotional experience, not an intellectual experience.

Before you ask a woman what she likes, first try to please her by being confident, masculine and doing whatever you want. That is what will be most impressive to her because she will get to experience the unique sexual dynamic that only exists when she has sex with you.

If she brings the topic up, don't try to dodge it. Talk to her about it by first telling her the things that you like about what she does during sex. Don't expect her to feel confident enough to express what she likes; most women are pretty shy and insecure about revealing their true sexual identity and desires with a guy.

If you're with a shy woman who only responds with giggling, laughter and answers like, "I don't know" when you ask her, "What do you like about our sex?" or "What else would you like me to do?" you might need to wait until you and her are drunk or tipsy one night to have that conversation.

Some women are more confident and fearless about asking for what they want and telling you what they like. If you have a woman like that, she will want you to be more confident and fearless and just do whatever you want, while also keeping in mind the things that she likes.

Most women feel turned off by a guy who is trying too hard to please them in the bedroom. A woman wants you to relax, enjoy yourself and let her experience your raw masculinity. If you can do that, you will be able to please most women in bed fairly easily.

How to Compliment a Girl: 4 Classic Mistakes to Avoid

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to compliment a girl is to make sure that she feels attracted to you first.

If a girl feels attracted to you and you then compliment her, she will see you as a charming guy and it will make her feel lucky to be getting your compliment.

However, if you are only being friendly and polite towards a girl and you then give her a compliment, it won't make her think, "Wow, this guy is so sweet! I want to have sex with him." Instead, she will just see your comment as a nice, friendly gesture and she will continue to only see you as a nice friend.

Women get turned on and feel excited about compliments from guys that they feel attracted to, not from nice guys who are trying to be liked for being a polite gentleman, a sweet guy, etc.

Here's why...

4 Common Mistakes That Guys Make When Complimenting a Girl

Pretty much everyone has an opinion about how to compliment a girl, but most of those people are guys who actually get laid. So, before you listen to random advice from anybody about compliments, check out these common myths and mistakes...

1. Thinking that it's wrong or inappropriate to give her a compliment

[image: Will she like it if I compliment her?]

Women love compliments and most women use it as the basis of their self-confidence. Think about it. Why would a woman spend so many hours picking out an outfit and doing her hair and makeup and then not want guys to think she looks nice?

[image: Women being insecure about their looks]

Women often spend hours getting ready and putting on make up even if they're just going out with other women, but why? Women are direct in competition with one another. What are they competing for? The attention of men!

Whoever looks the prettiest and sexiest will usually get the most attention. The more attention she can get from men, the more options she will have to choose from.

So the myth about women hating compliments is just wrong. If a girl is single, she wants to be noticed and she wants to be approached by a confident guy who knows how to attract her.

2. Thinking that a compliment will turn her on sexually

Some guys who arrive at my site ask me, "Dan, what can I say to get a woman into bed?" or "What compliment will make a girl like me the most and show her that I will respect her if we have sex?"

Guy like that are thinking that a few words will make a completely overlook the fact that he doesn't even know how to make her feel attracted, which is one of the 3 things that attractive women hate about most of the single men they meet...

The right way to compliment a girl is to give her that as a reward on top of feeling attracted to you AND being nice to you. If a girl isn't attracted to you and she's also being a bit of a bitch or playing hard to get, you shouldn't compliment her.

When you make a woman feel attracted to you and then give her compliments as a reward for being on good behavior around you, she will more of a need to impress you. She will feel attracted and realize that if she's ever going to have a chance of sleeping with you, she'd better be on her best behavior.

That is turn on for women because most guys are willing to have sex with a woman just because she looks good. When she meets a guy like you who is more of a challenge and who only gives her compliments when she's treating you well, she will feel a growing urge to kiss you and have sex with you before another girl takes you.

Here's why...

3. Thinking that a girl will slap a guy who gives her a sexual compliment

[image: Woman slapping man]

If you watch a lot of TV and movies, you may begin to worry that if you express your sexual interest in a girl, she will tip a drink over your head, scream and tell you to go away or slap you.

Yet, it doesn't work that way in the real world.

If you make a woman feel attracted to you (e.g. to your confidence, charisma, charm, etc) and you then give her a sexual compliment, she will LUCKY to be getting that type of compliment from you.

[image: Ben, Stu and Dan - The Modern Man coaches]

I remember a time when Ben (one of the coaches here at The Modern Man) and I got a woman to open her jacket and show us the size and shape of her boobs and she LOVED it.

Why did we get her to do that?

She started it off by pointing out a woman with big boobs and then said, â€œI don't have nice boobsâ€œ and Ben and I said, â€œShow us. Open your jacketâ€œ and she laughed and went along with it (she was wearing a tight, white t-shirt underneath).

Ben and I then gave her an analysis of her boobs, â€œNice. I like 'emâ€œ and she loved it.

However, we don't go around doing that as an opening line to women and we haven't done the exact same thing since (variations of that, but not the same). Why? It's all about timing and relevancy.

We wouldn't say that to every woman, but in that moment, it was the right thing to say for that particular woman because she was attracted to both of us and we could tell that she was going to appreciate our sexual compliment. She was also a confident, savvy woman who was hoping to meet a guy who wasn't afraid to talk to her with such fearlessness.

By the way....

I'm not suggesting that you use sexual compliments or try to be sleazy when you meet women.

For example: If you were to walk up to a woman you didn't know and say something like, â€œGee, those jeans are so tight and make your ass hot. I want to bang you. Iâ€™m wondering how difficult it would be to get them off you so I can give it to you!â€œ you may earn yourself a slap from SOME women.

95% of women (possibly closer to 99.9%) will not slap you, even if you are being really sleazy because most women don't immediately get aggressive like that. It's just not a woman's nature to want to hit a man and get into a physical fight.

In all of the years that we've been coaching guys on how to approach women, we've never seen a woman slap a client of ours and we've never been slapped ourselves. Women are a lot more friendly and open to being approached and interacted with than most guys realize.

Most women are thrilled by a sincere, thoughtful compliment even if it has a discreet or obvious sexual undertone. They just love being made to feel special, beautiful and noticed.

However, let me be clear...

Women want to get compliments from guys who make them feel attracted FIRST, not from nervous, wimpy guys who are hoping to be liked by women for being nice. If a nervous nice guy suddenly starts talking about how sexy a woman is, she will usually get "creeped out" by it and reject him.

That's just how it works.

A sexual compliment needs to be delivered with confidence and it needs to come from a guy that has already made her feel sexually attracted to him.

4.Â Trying too hard to be liked by giving her a lot of compliments

If a guy gives a girl too many compliments, she will begin to feel suspicious of him.

For example: He not only compliments her on her beauty, but also says that he think she is intelligent, cool, great to talk to, has a great fashion sense, is unique and points out other positive qualities about her.

When she tells a joke, he laughs...hard. When she talks about boring things, he compliments her by showing a lot of interest in what she is saying, rather than being real and losing interest when she drifts off into boring topics of conversation.

A guy who does that is not only going to come off as insincere, but heâ€™s also going to appear like a wannabe â€œgroupieâ€ of hers. After a few minutes of being over-complimented, a girl will usually start to feel like she is too good for the guy.

She will wonder why he looks up to her so much and sees her as being so amazing, when she knows that she's just a normal girl. She may act like she thinks she's the hottest girl in the world, but most girls are insecure about their looks and simply act that way to make guys try harder to pick them up.

How to Turn Your Female Friend or Co-Worker Into Your Girlfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you have a crush on a female co-worker or are in love with a female friend of yours, how can you turn her into your girlfriend?

Simple.

You've got to say and do the sorts of things that are going to trigger her feelings of sexual attraction. Then, when she feels enough attraction for you (this can take minutes, hours or days depending on the existing dynamic between you and her), you need to take things to the next level.

If you work with her, that means arranging for a time to meet up outside of the workplace (e.g. go for drinks after work). If you are friends with a woman, you need to arrange for her to come over to your place for dinner and drinks, or do that at her place.

Either way, you have to be the courageous one out of the two of you and take a risk to take things to the next level.

How Can You Know if She Really Likes You?

If a woman feels attracted to you, then she will like you.

It's as simple as that.

All women show their signals of interest in slightly different ways, so don't expect her to display signs such as: Licking her lips, touching her hair, touching your thigh, etc. Her signals of interest will depend on how much you've attracted her so far and what type of woman she is.

For example: If she's a shy girl who isn't sure whether or not you find her sexy, she may be worried about showing obvious signs of interest. She will act like she just wants to be friends, but she will always try to spend time with you.

If she is a confident, beautiful woman who knows that you like her, she might test your confidence by playing hard to get. As you may know, women are extremely attracted to a guy's confidence, so if you suddenly become insecure and begin doubting yourself around her when she plays hard to get, she will rapidly lose interest in you.

The best approach to use with all women is to make them feel attracted to you and then just take a risk to move things forward. If you've made her feel enough attraction for you, a woman will rarely, if ever, reject your attempts to arrange a date, move in for a kiss or take her home for sex.

Does Going to Lunch Together Means She Likes You in a Sexual Way?

It depends.

If your coworker (or female friend) only sees you as a nice, friendly guy, then going to lunch with you is just lunch. It's not a date, it's not a signal of sexual interest and it's nothing that you should spend a lot of time thinking about.

If you do go to lunch with her, you need to make sure that you say and do the sorts of things that are going to make her feel attracted to you. For example: If you're eating lunch and she gets a bit of food stuck on the side of her mouth, you can use that as an opportunity to make her feel attracted to you.

How?

Pause, smile and point to the side of her mouth and casually say, "You have some food stuck on the side of your mouth." She will then quickly try to clean it off. When she does that, point to her chin and say, "There's some on your chin too."

When she wipes her chin, say, "...and there's some on the side of your cheek" and point to her cheek.

By that point, she is either going to be smiling or laughing. When you see that, have a laugh too and tell her that you were only joking.

How does this make her feel attracted? She feels attracted to your confidence, ability to make her laugh and ability to make her feel girly in your presence. Those are 3 ways that you make a woman feel attracted.

At The Modern Man, I teach guys how to make women feel attracted to them in more than 100 different ways. If you are interested in learning more, click around and I'll continue teaching you right now.

Choosing a Sexually Satisfying Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you could choose the ideal woman for a relationship, what would she be like as a person? What would she look like? How sexually satisfying would she be for you?

Would you prefer a "Plain Jane" type of woman that other guys wouldn't ever want to hit on, or a beautiful woman that you are deeply attracted to and who would stick with you for life?

If you're worried that a beautiful woman would leave you, don't be.

You can keep a beautiful woman for life.

Here's how to do it...

So, if you could choose from the following three types of women, which would you choose for a long-term relationship?

Option 1: Plain Jane, Not Very Attractive, Low Sex Drive

She is a woman who is plain in most ways including her personality, looks and opinions on just about everything. At the end of a day, she's usually too tired or stressed from work to be a sexy woman for her man and just wants to eat, watch TV and then go to sleep.

She has a very low sex drive and rarely, if ever, initiates sex. On the rare occasion that she wants to have sex, she basically just wants it to be over and done with as soon as possible.

While she might stick by her man for a long time, it's not because she's passionately in love with him and enjoys pleasing him sexually. She will stick around because she has nothing better to do, but will always be open to being seduced into an affair after enduring years of a boring, sexless relationship.

Option 2: Very Sexy, High Sex Drive, Doesn't Care About Traditional Family Values, Marriage or Staying Loyal to Her Man

She is a woman who the man's friends and family often mistake for a hooker because of her provocative and revealing attire, her slutty behavior and the fact that she "talks dirty" and swears like a drunken sailor no matter whom she's speaking with.

This woman is not only sexually adventurous in the bedroom, but behaves in an overtly sexual way in public. If the sex ever gets boring, this woman will usually consider it to be perfectly normal to go off and have an affair behind her man's back.

She doesn't care if they've had children together and are now raising a family; if she wants out because she's bored, she'll just leave or have an affair to fulfill her sexual desires.

To her, family values are for "old people" and she just wants to have fun and enjoy herself. She may love her children and love her boyfriend or husband, but to her, love doesn't mean only being with one person.

Option 3: Very Sexy, High Sex Drive, Cares About Traditional Family Values and Keeping a Relationship Together, Being Loyal, Honest and Good to Her Man

She is a lady when in public and a sex kitten in the bedroom. She can speak intelligently on a wide variety of topics and her man knows she won't embarrass him when they're out in public because she has great social skills and is a positive, respectful person.

Everyone she meets enjoys her company and, because she is beautiful, sexy, intelligent and down-to-earth, men are always flirting with her. However, when she's in a relationship, she is completely loyal to her man and only flirts back with men in a friendly, non-sexual way.

She knows it would be extremely easy for her to have sex with the men who are interested in her, but doesn't need that to feel good about herself. She knows she is sexy and has committed herself to a man who deserves her loyalty.

She will only flirt sexually with her man and will be loyal to him no matter who is trying to hit on her. Then, when they get home and hit the bedroom, she has the confidence to let loose and behave like a porn star for him or be sweet and innocent.

She is open and ready for any type of sex her guy tries with her and will do virtually anything he wants in and out of the bedroom.

If a man was to have a family with her, she will want to stick by him through good and bad times because she believes in traditional family values. She sees other women getting divorced and cheating on their man and knows that it is an easy option for her, but she wants to do the right thing by herself, her man and her family.

So, if you met those three RANDOM women next week, which would be your best choice for a relationship? Chances are, if you're like most men, your choice is Option 3...and it should be!

If you get yourself a woman who fits the description of Woman #3, you will feel proud of yourself, remain attracted to her and be willing to do what it takes to make the relationship last a lifetime. However, if you accept less than a woman like her, you might be headed for...

The Big Mistake

Too many men make what I refer to as the Big Mistake by accepting basically any half-decent looking woman who shows them the slightest bit of interest.

They usually end up feeling unhappy in a sexless relationship or eventually hear the words, I want a divorce or I need some space. I think we should take a break or I'm in love with someone else. It's over between you and me from their woman.

This is a big mistake for a guy to make because it usually ends up costing him a lot of time and money spent on a woman who he never truly wanted or loved. Instead of attracting a beautiful woman who was truly compatible with him, he accepted a woman who just wasn't good enough for him.

In the past, a woman had to stick by her man for life even if she wasn't happy in the relationship because it was shameful to get divorced.

[image: The old days...]

Not anymore.

[image: Divorce or break up]

Women initiate approximately 66% of divorces because they are less inclined to put up with an unhappy marriage compared to women of previous generations. The percentage is even higher for college-educated couples with women initiating divorce 90% of the time.

If you're one of the guys who has been thinking, *â€œI'll marry an educated girl and we'll be happy together because we'll both be intelligent and can connect on deep and meaningful topics and have intellectual discussions for the rest of our lives,*â€œ think again!

The only thing that keeps a relationship together these days is to first choose the right woman for you and then deepen her love, respect and attraction for you over time.

If you can't attract women in person and don't know how to deepen a woman's love, respect and attraction for you over time, you can't expect to be successful with women. You will most-likely get rejected by most women you approach and dumped by women when in a relationship.

Avoiding â€œThe Big Mistakeâ€œ

To avoid ending up with a woman you're not attracted to, not in love with and regret ever meeting in the first place, you need to be able to attract women when you interact with them.

When you are able to trigger feelings of sexual attraction in most of the women you meet, you will then have your choice of women. You will have options and you will be able to choose the best woman out of the available options, compared to making the mistake of accepting any woman because you have no other options.

Imagine this...

You are walking through a steaming hot desert, you are thirsty and you are literally dying for a glass of water. Your mouth feels like sandpaper and is completely dry.

When you are feeling that desperate for a drink of water, would you reject water that was served to you in a dirty or cracked glass? Would you say, *â€œOh, no, sorry, I only drink Evian bottled water that has been chilled and served on ice in a tall, slim glass,*â€œ?

Probably not!

Almost every human being would say, *â€œPlease! Can I drink that glass of water! I'm really thirsty!*â€œ even though the glass is cracked or dirty.

The same principle of desperation applies to dating and relationships, which then often leads a gut to make â€œThe Big Mistake.â€œ

When you have no options with women because you don't know how to attract them, it's only natural that you may begin to lower your standards and be willing to accept women who aren't what you truly want.

Terrible Texts That Turn Women Off

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you recently met a girl who was all over you initially, but isn't replying to your texts anymore, the reason is simple.

You haven't taken things to the next level.

You're constantly texting her and expecting that something will happen by itself (e.g. she will suggest meeting up), but it is YOU who must make the next move.

You have to call her up, attract her on the phone (e.g. with your confidence, charm, humor, etc) and then arrange a time to meet her in person. You then have to kiss, have sex with her and take it from there.

Texts Get Boring Very Quickly For a Woman

[image: Woman getting bored of texts from a guy]

If a woman likes you, she will be excited to get your first few texts. She will wonder what is going to happen between you and her. Will you have sex soon? Will you start a relationship and fall in love? Could you be the one?

Yet, if you all you do is text, she will either get bored or begin playing hard to get. For example:

If stops texting you all of a sudden because she is bored, it means that she's not getting enough stimulation out of seeing words on the screen of her phone with smiley faces and LOLs. She wants to see YOU in person and feel you, touch you and take it from there.

If she is playing hard to get by taking a long time to respond to texts, it means that she's either testing your confidence (e.g. will you panic and think that you've lost her interest?) or she is trying to see how much you like her (e.g. are you texting her like you text all other girls, or do you actually want to bang her soon?)

What a lot of guys don't realize is that most women are open to having sex with a guy pretty quickly these days. You don't have to spend a lot of time trying to get to know a girl via text before you can meet up with her and have sex with her.

[image: Start with kissing and sex and then take it from there]

A recent study in America for example, discovered that 55% of couples had sex on their first date. Another study in Europe found that 70% of women admitted to having experience a one night stand.

Sex happens all the times these days and it usually happens very quickly. So, don't waste time hiding behind texts and hoping that she asks you out, calls you up or says that she really like syou. Simply make her feel attracted to you and then get her on a phone call, meet up with her and start a sexual relationship with her.

Good Texts vs. Bad Texts

[image: Text message comparison]

Instead of giving you a massive list of bad text messages that guys send to women, I'm going to explain where guys go wrong when texting and why it turns women off.

To simply create a list of bad texts for you would not be accurate because what may be a bad text from ONE GUY, will actually be a funny and exciting text from ANOTHER GUY. It's just like how, in person, a joke from one guy doesn't sound funny, but when another guy says it, people find it hilarious, charming and cool and they crack up laughing.

With the image above that shows the "right" and "wrong" text message example, it would only be "wrong" if it was sent from a guy who is normally nervous, shy or insecure around women.

However, if it was sent as a joke from a confident guy who has his choice with women, it would be funny and would make the woman laugh.

Understand?

So, any website that gives you a "Top 10 List" of "good" or "bad" texts is simply providing you with amateur advice. Don't be fooled into thinking that being a cool, confident and charming guy is as simple as reading a "top 10" list from ANY website.

Turn-off Texts

[image: Girl annoyed by text]

Most women don't like it when guys try to set up a first date with them via text.

Sure, some girls like it because they are too shy to talk to the guy, but most women, especially beautiful women, get annoyed by guys who try to organize everything via text.

When texting becomes a man's primary form of communication with a woman, it can make her feel that she isn't important enough for him to call her or she will assume that he's too nervous to call her.

Women want to experience the real you, not just text on a screen. When you call her on the phone, she can easily feel attracted and turned on by hearing your masculine voice and picking up on the fact that you are confident when talking to her.

Avoid Using a Childish Writing Style

Recently, a 25 year old guy contacted me via The Modern Man and asked for dating advice like this, âhey dan...i nid u 2 tel me wat u do to gt such hot chiqs.â I replied and told him that I could only help him if he wrote to me properly, instead of writing like a little boy/girl.

I also let him know that women do NOT find that style of texting impressive or attractive...at all. It's not cool or sexy. It is immature and it is a trend that was started by little girls when they first got phones and computers and were able to phone text or chat online.

If you want to attract women, don't text like a girl.

I realize that some guys reading along now might be a bit confused because they may know of some guy who write like that and still get laid. Why is that? It is NOT because they write like a little girl when they text. It is because they know how to attract women in person, so women are happy to put up with a few minor mistakes like that.

However, if you don't know how to attract women in person and then you also write like a little boy (or girl), women will not give you a "free pass" by letting your mistake slide.

To be clear here...

It's okay to use slang and abbreviations when texting women, but if you go overboard with that stuff it will make some women assume that you lack maturity. These days, a lot of guys make the mistake of using a more girly and childish style of writing texts because they think that's how women want to communicate with guys via text.

They don't.

Women are attracted to masculine guys, not feminine guys who act girly via text. Some examples of the girly, feminine style that some guys make the mistake of using when texting women:

"What r u doin? Idk wat 2 do"

"LOL....sorrreeee!!! I m late c u in 20."

"c u l8r"

"OMG....thats soooo baaaaad :O are you okay???"

Presumably, you wouldn't send a text like that to an important client or your boss at work, would you? When texting your boss or an important client, you'd want to show your maturity, right?

When texting a woman, you should always aim to be the more mature one. It doesn't matter if the girl you like is 15, 25, 35 or 45 – she doesn't want you to text like a little boy via text. Whatever age you are, always try to present yourself in a mature, masculine way while also being playful and joking around with the woman.

It is fine for a girl (or even a grown woman) to write like a girl, but it is not fine for a guy of any age. Simply write back to her in a more mature, masculine way no matter how girly she gets with you.

For example:

Do reply to her like this:

Girl: hey...wat u doin? i wana c u...do u lyke me 2?

Man: Yeah, you're alright ð□□□ I'll let you see me soon

Don't reply to her like this:

Girl: hey...wat u doin? i wana c u...do u lyke me 2?

Man (boy?): i lyke u 2. im doin nothin...i wana cu 2

The second example above looks like two girls texting each other. Don't ever reply to a woman's SMS and write like she does. Write like a man and she will feel attracted to your masculinity. For example:

Girl: hahahaha....ur so funny...u crack me up! ð□□□

Man: Your face is funnier.

Girl: Â ? ð□□□

Man: Whoops! Damn autocorrect. I meant to say your face is beautiful.

Girl: ð□□□ tanx

Man: Whoops! Damn autocorrect again. I meant to say that your face is funny, but also beautiful.

Girl: LOL

Man: Lol...

At that point of a text exchange, I would either call the girl or tell her to call me. Why? I've already attracted her with some confident humor and now it is time to take the exchange to the next level (i.e. catch up in person, kiss and have sex).

Constant Contact

[image: Sending too many Facebook messages]

If you're texting a woman that you like, make sure that you give her a chance to miss you. Don't always reply to every text she sends right away and if you're communicating with her via Facebook, make sure that you don't become annoying by sending too many messages.

There's nothing wrong with replying right away to a woman's message, but don't always do it and don't over-message her.

The most important thing is how you make her feel when she interacts with you on a phone call and in person. Messages don't have the same effect as a phone call or in person conversation.

If the woman that you like is attractive, she will usually have a lot of different guys messaging her online and to her phone. The guy who ends up having sex with her or being in a relationship with her is the guy who gets her on a phone call, meets up with her in person and then kisses her and has sex with her.

If you are just another guy messaging her, it doesn't matter how "cool" your messages are. All it will take for you to be forgotten or pushed aside is for a guy to kiss her in person.

Additionally, by constantly texting or messaging a girl, you become the opposite of what women refer to as a challenge. Most women won't admit that they like a guy who is a challenge, but if you pay attention to female pop singers, you will notice that most of their songs (which they love singing) are about guys who are challenge.

“Why Doesn't She Answer Me?!”

[image: Why doesn't she answer me?]

Often, the same types of guys who send women text after text will expect her to reply to the messages immediately. If she doesn't answer or respond in some way within minutes (much less hours or days), he will go into panic mode and start wondering what might be wrong.

He may think, “Shit! She doesn't like me anymore! Maybe she likes someone else!” He might then increase the frequency of his texts to make sure he is constantly on her radar.

He might even feel compelled to send a desperate message like, “Hey, I sent you a message yesterday. Why haven't you replied?” not realizing that some people have a life and don't have time to be messing around with text messages every day.

Guys like this will spend most of their time worrying why the woman isn't responding, not realizing that women hate guys who doubt themselves and worry if a girl doesn't message back immediately.

He might even send a text asking if he has done something to upset her or if she is seeing someone else.

If she doesn't reply and he keeps trying to reach out to her, her attraction and respect for him will dwindle away with each additional text.

Tacky Sext Messages

[image: Most women don't get turned on by a sext]

Some men don't realize that almost all women don't watch porn and of those women who do, they almost all don't watch it for the same reasons as men.

Women are more turned on by a man's behavior and personality traits than his physical parts, whereas men can be turned on simply by looking at a woman's tits, pussy and ass...or even just her face.

Sending a photo of your dick will have little or no effect on a woman. To most women, it's just as sexually arousing as looking at a foot or an ear. In other words, it doesn't turn her on and it doesn't make her want to have sex with you.

Most women are more turned on by how a man's personality and behavior makes them feel. Women can feel attracted to a man's physical appearance or parts (e.g. penis), but they are much more attracted to what you say and do when you interact with them.

For example: Does your conversation style and vibe turn her on, or do you turn her off and make her feel awkward or tense when you talk to her? Do you trigger her feelings of sexual attraction when you interact with her, or does she see you as more of a friendly, nice guy that she has no sexual interest in?

We men get turned on by a woman's physical appearance, which is why porn is so appealing to us men and why the porn industry has always been aimed at providing images and videos of sexy women for men to jerk off too.

[image: Man looking at porn. Men are mostly attracted to the physical appearance of women]

If a woman sends you a naked photo of herself, it is appealing because you're a guy and you instantly get turned on by a woman's physical appearance. However, if you send a woman a sext with a photo of your dick or abs, she will not find it arousing unless you have already attracted her in person with your behavior and personality.

Texting Guidelines

Here are some basic texting guidelines that I recommend guys follow if they want to avoid messing up opportunities with women so they can get to dates, kissing, sex and relationships:

1. After getting her phone number for the first time: Send her a quick message like, "Hey – good to meet you. Will give you a call to say hi sometime."

2. If you call to set up a date and she doesn't answer: Just send a quick text to let her know that it was you and what your basic intentions were, "Hey – it's Dan. Just calling up to say hi. Chat to you another time."

3. When you begin dating: Only use text to flirt with her a little. For example: “Hey sexy...” and then take it from there. The aim will be to get her on a phone call, or if you’re already comfortable with each other, text to arrange a second or third date.

4. After you’ve begun having sex: At this point, it’s fine to only use text to communicate with her and then only call when it’s absolutely necessary.

5. Deep into a relationship: It doesn’t matter. Call, text or leave messages anytime you want, but of course – don’t over-text or over-message. Give her a chance to miss you and be the one who texts, calls or messages first.

How Do Average-Looking (or Ugly) Guys Pick Up Beautiful Women?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The reason why an ugly guy can have a hot girlfriend is that women can feel attracted to men for reasons other than looks.

Some women will only ever accept a perfect looking male model with loads of money and huge penis, but the majority of women have what I call an Open Type, which means that she is open to being with all different types of guys, as long as the guy can make her feel enough attraction in other ways.

Some of the many ways that you can attract women are with your confidence, charisma, charm, humor and masculine vibe.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

The more ways that you can make a woman feel attracted to you while you talk to her, the more she will be willing to overlook the fact that you're not a perfect male model with loads of money and are just a normal guy.

That's the truth, even if some people don't want to believe it.

It really is true that normal, every day and even what some call "ugly" guys can make women feel attracted to them as they talk and interact.

A Really Weird Thing About Attraction

[image: Asian guy marries white girl. She finds him attractive]

Attraction (noun): A quality or feature of someone that evokes interest, liking or desire.

If a man is able to make a woman feel attracted to him in other ways (e.g. humor, charisma, charm, confidence, etc), she actually starts to look at his physical appearance in a positive light.

Even though he might have features that some people would consider ugly (e.g. big nose, bald, overweight, etc), she will look at those things in a positive light because she is feeling attracted in other ways.

She might have been going around saying, "I want a tall, handsome guy with muscles, loads of money and a baby arm for a penis...oh, and a sports car and a luxury yacht."

[image: Fat guy with sexy girlfriend]

Yet, if she meets a guy who doesn't have those things and he makes her feel a lot of attraction in other ways, she will forget about her ultimate fantasy guy and fall in love with the guy who is making her feel a lot of attraction.

Not all women will do that, but most will.

Most women have an Open Type and are willing to be with all different types of guys (e.g. looks, race, height, weight, etc), as long as the guy makes her feel enough attraction for other reasons.

When a guy who would normally be considered below-average looking or even ugly meets a woman with an Open Type, the attraction that he is making her feel will cause her to begin looking at his less attractive traits in a more positive light.

She will say things like, “I like that he’s bald...I think it’s cute” or “I like that he’s overweight...I like cuddly guys” or “I like his big nose...it’s handsome.”

Weird, I know, but that is what happens.

Most Women Place Less Importance on Looks Than Most Guys Realize

[image: Ugly man with beautiful women. She finds him attractive]

Some women will only accept a good looking guy. That is true. However, most women place way less importance on looks than most guys realize.

Have you ever been walking through a shopping mall and seen an ugly, short or overweight guy with a beautiful woman and thought, “What is she doing with him?”

Of course you have. It’s completely normal.

[image: Fat guy with beautiful girlfriend. She finds him attractive]

Yet, no matter how many times you see it, you still might be left thinking, “What the? Why is she with him?”

The reason why you think that women is that you always see beautiful women with handsome men in advertising images from the media, so it almost looks WRONG when a hot chick is with an ugly guy in public.

It looks like she is making a mistake by being with him. Either that, or he must be rich, have a huge dick or be famous, right?

Wrong.

It’s actually a lot easier to attract women than you might realize.

You can literally attract women in more than 100 different ways (I teach those ways throughout my programs at The Modern Man. Some examples are confidence, charisma, charm and humor).

Women Are More Flexible About What They Think is Attractive

We men are very strict in what we find attractive.

We can look at a woman and within seconds, we can decide “Yes” or “No” about whether or not we’d bang her. This is because our attraction for women is mostly based on physical appearance, which is why men masturbate over women in porn.

For us men, it’s about how the woman looks. Her appearance is enough for us to be willing to have sex with her...at least once anyway.

Yet, for most women (not all), a man’s appearance is not the deciding factor for sex.

What is?

How his personality and behavior makes her feel when she interacts with him. For example: Does his vibe and conversation style turn her on, or does it make her feel awkward and bored?

When a man makes a woman feel attracted in ways other than looks, she will label him as attractive and even sexy...even if you think he is ugly.

An Ugly Guy Can't Pick Up Every Woman

[image: Ugly guy getting the girl]

Let's be clear here...

I'm definitely not saying that an average looking, below average looking or "ugly" guy can pick up every woman in the world.

What I am saying is this:

1. What you might consider to be an "ugly" man, a beautiful woman may see as attractive because he makes her feel attracted in other ways.

[image: Fat guy with hot girlfriend. She finds him attractive]

2. For every picky woman who will only ever accept a very handsome man, there is always a beautiful woman who simply wants a good-natured man who makes her feel attracted and in love.

3. If a guy is ugly or below average looking, he needs to understand that he won't be able to attract every woman, but he will be able to attract many.

[image: Bald guy with pretty woman. She finds him attractive]

By the way...

It's not only the "ugly" guys who can't pick up every woman in the world. No guy can.

Why?

No man is compatible with every woman that he meets and no woman is compatible with every guy that she meets. That's how nature works.

Whether you are a good looking guy, average looking, below average looking or even ugly, what you need to understand is that you really can make women feel attracted to you for ways OTHER than looks.

You can turn a woman on with your masculine vibe, make her melt with your charismatic charm and make her feel so good by using the type of humor that women love. If you don't know how to do those things, I am here to teach you.

You Don't Have to Look Beautiful...That's a Woman's Job

[image: Confused men thinking that it's all about looks]

If you watch too many TV advertisements or look at enough magazine ads, you may start to believe that women want us men to look as pretty as they do.

Heck, I fell for that crap too, especially after seeing so women on TV talking about handsome guys and saying, “Ooooooh, he’s so handsome” and “Ooh, look at those abs...ooh, I want to touch them.”

Based on that, you can’t blame me for thinking that it was all about looks.

You can’t blame other guys too. We’re brainwashed with that crap when we watch TV or even overhear women talking about men. They always talk about superficial stuff (e.g. looks, money, fame, etc), but you really can attract women without having ANY of those things.

You really can.

You can attract women without changing ANYTHING about your physical appearance or financial situation.

There is nothing wrong with improving your physical appearance or improving your career to earn more money, but the fact is that you can still get laid or get a hot girlfriend BEFORE you do any of those things.

I know that you might want to believe that it’s all about money, looks, having a big dick and so on, but it’s not.

Some women do only want a guy who has it all, but most women are way easier to pick up than they make themselves out to be.

That’s the truth.

Before I discovered what I now teach here at The Modern Man, I was going through life assuming that beautiful women couldn’t like me because I wasn’t good looking enough.

I was convinced of it.

When I interacted with beautiful women, NOTHING that I was saying and doing was making them feel any attraction because all I was doing was talking to them in a nice, friendly way and expecting to be LIKED for it.

I didn’t even know how to attract women and thought that if I wore good enough clothes, styled my hair right and show them how good of a guy I was, they would like me and give me a chance.

Yet, I was wrong.

No one had ever told me that we men need to ACTIVELY make women feel attracted to us based on what we are saying and doing during an interaction. I thought that women felt attracted to men for the same reasons that we feel attracted to women.

I thought it was about looks.

I didn’t realize that it was possible to make beautiful women feel attracted to me for reasons OTHER than looks, so if they rejected me, I simply assumed, “Oh, well...I’m not good looking enough for them.”

That’s all I knew because I was another brainwashed modern man who believed the junk I saw in TV and magazine advertisements.

Even though I saw below-average looking guys with beautiful women, I didn’t see that as real. I saw that as the woman making a mistake or being stupid enough to fall for a guy like that. I didn’t know that she could actually feel attracted to him for OTHER reasons.

I spent a lot of time trying to make myself LOOK better to women (e.g. buying clothes, going to tanning salons, getting the latest haircuts, etc), but it didn’t work. Beautiful women still weren’t the slightest bit interested in me.

While watching TV, I would always see female hosts on shows like Entertainment Tonight and E!News talking about how handsome a guy looked because of his clothes, shoes and haircut, so I assumed that I didn't have the right clothes and that my looks still needed to be improved.

I was just another brainwashed modern man who thought he was right, but had no idea how wrong he was.

“Pick Me! Pick Me!”

[image: Peacock mating dance]

In the peacock bird species, the female is a bland looking bird and the male is the pretty, colorful one. He gets selected based on how colorful and pretty he is.

In case you haven't noticed, that is not how the human mating dance works.

You don't have to be pretty like a woman and then hope to be selected by her. You are a human man and in our species, most women (not all) choose a man based on how his personality and behavior makes her feel.

Of course, some women select a man based on looks, money and fame, but the majority of women in this world (including a lot of beautiful, pretty, sexy women) will happily hook up with, get into a relationship with and even marry a man who doesn't have ANY of those things.

Good Looking Guys Who Are Failing With Women

[image: Stop thinking that you're not good enough for women. You ARE good enough]

When a guy doesn't consider himself to be good looking, he will often use that as the reason why he is failing with women.

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that many good looking guys also struggle to attract women.

Here are just a few of the hundreds of messages that I've received over the years from “good looking guys” who can't get a girlfriend...

â□□I am 34, unmarried and lonely. All my life I have been called handsome and cute and whatever although to this date I've had sex two times. The first was with a drunk girl I lucked onto at a party and the other was a prostitute. I try talking to women and they seem interested at first but the conversation never goes anywhere.â□□

â□□Its impossible to approach women! I walk around the mall for hours on end trying to do it day after day but never doing it. I know everything about attracting women and what to say and do but I still canâ□□t do it. Iâ□□m so sick of this. Iâ□□m a great looking guy – better looking than 99% of dudes I see, I have a great lifestyle, Iâ□□m a fantastic friend and I have good intentions, anybody would be lucky to date me. No matter how psed off I get with my situations its never enough to motivate to take the plunge and just say something. It depresses the hell out of me sitting in night after night thinking â€œok tomorrow Iâ€™ll do itâ€œ Iâ€™ve come to realisation now Iâ€™m just kidding myself Iâ€™m never going to do it. I hate seeing an attractive women with some dweeby boyfriend holding hands. What am I doing wrong?? How can I change? Why aren't my looks helping???â€œ â€œI regularly get told that I am good looking and people ask me why I don't have a girlfriend all the time, but I am yet to have one single girlfriend in my entire life and I am 27. Please Dan I am asking you to help me. I haven't bought any of your products yet, but I promise I will if you help me.â€œ â€œi have very big problem and i hope you can surely help me out.most people including men and women tell me how good looking i am;muscular and very tall but my problem is,i find it very difficult to approach girls even the ugliest.AND also find it difficult too talking to guys.i cant look straight to someones face when talking to.AND this has made feel me so shy when i try to approach women and the woman can just see directly from me so i really need your help.â€œ â€œI am a very good looking guy, I work out and have a great body, I own my own business but I am am shy when I really like a girl. Where am I going wrong Dan? How can I be the man that women want?â€œ

If women select men based on looks, why aren't all those guys getting laid or getting a girlfriend? Why are they getting rejected even though women are telling them how handsome they are? The reason is that being â€œgood lookingâ€œ is NOT the answer to success with women. If it was the answer, you would never see average, below average or ugly looking guys with beautiful women.

[image: Nerdy guy with a beautiful girlfriend]

To be successful with women, you have to know how to attract women with your personality. The most important types of attraction that women feel happen when you interact with them.

For example: Are you able to make her laugh and feel aroused when talking to you, or are you just talking to her in a friendly, polite way like every other guy?

That is what counts.

If she doesn't feel attracted to how your personality and behavior makes her feel, she is going to say, "Oh well, I'll sleep with him anyway because he looks good."

Sure, some women will do that (usually the unattractive ones), but most women look for deeper, more subtle qualities in men. If women were mostly turned on by a man's looks, then women would have been buying porn magazines all these year like men have.

For most women, it's about how your personality and behavior makes her feel.

You have to believe that, or else you will go through life feeling that you're not good enough.

You are good enough.

[image: Why am I not successful in life?]

You really can attract, pick up, have sex with and even MARRY a beautiful woman without being a good looking guy with a perfect gym body.

It really is true.

Most women have what I call an Open Type, which means that they are opening to being with all different types of guys as long as the guy can make her feel attracted in other ways (e.g. confidence, charisma, charm, etc). It really is true.

If you think that you're not good enough for women and make the mistake of accepting an unattractive woman because that's all you think you deserve, then you will be making a HUGE mistake that you will regret for the rest of your life.

You CAN attract beautiful women and it is a LOT easier than may think...

As a result I have been noticing changes in her behavior toward me. As an example, when we have fun and I take her in my arms to dance she teases me and tries to lead at first before giving in, but this time, and for the first time, she let go, trusted me right away and enjoyed me leading her.

“Hey Dan, man thank you so much my life has changed a lot since i started reading your stuff last year and got The Flow and a couple of other programs from you.

I got a very beautiful girlfriend, my friends are busy asking me how i got her.

They are shocked at how she is the one initiating everything here.

I got her phone number then i used your line saying “Hey its.. don’t call me all the time on phone no. Because my wife might be suspicious” she laughed and we chatted for a few minutes I was making her laugh.

I then called her and then i arranged a meet up. She agreed we met up.

At the date she kept giving me shit tests e.g she said I look like monkey because I was not shaven, ha ha ha I just laughed and made a joke about it.

She initiated the first kiss, that’s when i knew i passed all the tests she was giving me.

Damn! Dan I understand women because of you my friends do not understand what’s going on because I was struggling with women now they are chasing me, all i do is initiate talking in a way that is naturally attractive to them. They just feel a spark and start chasing me.

So Dan after coming back from the date, I asked her for another meet up at the hotel last and she agreed, we had great sex, i made her cum.

She is more than excited and is crazily in love with me i can tell even by the way she looks at me.

I can’t believe how it all happened because she’s a 9/10 but what I do is that I use your strategy of not being smitten by her or showing her that she is above me in terms of looks even though deep down I know she is fuckin’ hot.

But I don’t compliment her too often i only complement her when it’s due so she is always feeling like she needs to impress me, when we are meeting up she dresses up and does make up.

Bro she is super hot.

Thanks very much Dan for everything man I don’t know how many times i used the lines you teach on your programs, they always work for me. FM” “Better than a bad boy has been an awesome experience. Much more than learning how to become attractive to women, this program has taught me how to live out my life in a much effective way.

It’s given me insight as to how becoming a strong person can lead to success in life. I used to be a person who gave up easily, can’t control his emotions, and crumble in the face of rejection and tests put up by women.

Without you I probably would probably still have no clue with women.

At first I only wanted to get that one special girl who was a very close friend of mine (whom I met through facebook), but nothing more. After reading the flow and applying the techniques on other women, she began to take notice and asked me out. And during that date, I escalated to kissing then sex.

And it’s all because of the modern man. Right now, I’m dating casually, and I’m never nervous or afraid of rejection ever again. Again, thanks for everything! Walter”

Hey Dan, I want to tell you that buying â□□The Flowâ□□ has given me cheat codes to girls and it was definitely worth the money!! Iâ□□m 18 and having this information feels like having google maps when trying to solve the labyrinth that is women. I wish I could give you a hug as a huge thank you. I am getting the girls I want now. It's amazing! Justin"

"Hey Dan, I purchased "Get your ex back super system" on October 25th.

I just got my X back yesterday November 1st who iv been with for 8 years and who i share a 7 year old child with.

Thank you so much for your program. I never would have been able to put myself in the positive mind set needed to get her back otherwise. Also it gave me the tools to understand her tests and mind games and the confidence that I didnt have before to let her go out partying and not be insecure about it.

Although there were ups and downs from my October 25th purchase date till November 1st when I got her back and wasn't exactly the lengthy time frame I would have liked but after relentless testing on her part that I know and understand how to laugh off and difuse the situation your program works to a tee.

I was really hesitant about buying it given the price but by far the best money Iv spent in a long time. The tools and skills on a fair value relationship your video has taught me will resonate with me for the rest of my life. Dan Bacon you are truly a god. Thank you, your truly indebted customer from Vancouver Canada, Peter"

"I got Dating Power, Better Than a Bad Boy, Alpha Male Power and your Conversation product after using The Flow to get laid three times in about 6 months.

I wasn't putting much effort into using The Flow because I am busy with my work but I think getting laid 3 times was good especially when I hadn't had sex for 2 years prior to that.

Something hit me though about 3 months ago when I saw my friends getting into relationships and I was still just getting laid and not following up to keep the girl. So I decided to keep learning from you and deepening my knowledge. I watched those 3 programs and listen to the ultimate guide to Conversation and then hit the bars in my city about 1 month ago.

I made a conscious decision to only talk to the very attractive women as you suggest and to my surprise I was able to get them attracted to me. I was genuinely surprised but I know that your advice does work so it was sort of like another confirmation that I was doing this right.

I got 2 phone numbers and a kiss that night and then had a date the following week with the woman I liked the most. She and I started having casual sex and now we are seeing each other at least twice a week.

I am not yet fully ready for a relationship though I think. Something in me tells me to keep having fun and maybe settle down in about a year or more.

So I have been going out on Friday nights and I have had sex with 2 more women and I have another few who text me and call me looking to set up dates. It is good to be able to have this power. I spent most of my life clawing and fighting to just get one woman interested enough to date me and now I have plenty of offers.

I will let you know when I have more success stories to share Dan but that is all for me now! Jake” “Hey Dan! Last night went like this.

I met a chick on the street, went back to her hotel for the hot tub, then went back to her room and had sex with her.

Went back to the bars the next night and me and my friend pulled two hotties numbers after about 2 hours of conversation and making out with them at the bar. The next morning pulled 3 beautiful 18 year old girls numbers from the restaurant we were eating breakfast at. Just thought I would let you know. DC”

“Great advice in your Make Her Love You For Life course! I did something similar to this and became very powerful with women about 15 years ago. Got lazy again though and let things slide so have been in a bad patch again with my long term partner for the last 6 months. One thing you said struck a chord when you said about your women wanting to suck you off. Thatâ□□s not happened for 3 years!! Implemented your advice and I had forgotten how powerful a magnet you can become. 5 days ago she was on her knees!! Must remember to not get lazy again. Ray”

“Thank you Dan and the Modern Man team, your teaching and guidance has massively helped me! I now have a beautiful girlfriend and maintain a great relationship thanks to what you teach – which I wasn’t able to do in my marriage – it ended in divorce. After my marriage broke down, I found the Modern Man brilliant teaching online. What you guys say helped my gain my confidence, find a beautiful girlfriend, keep the spark in the relationship and hugely helped me in life too. Absolutely superb! Every man should listen to this before getting into a relationship. Thank you Dan and the team I am very grateful! J from UK”

“I just wanted to say a quick thank you.

After purchasing your get your ex back system I successfully followed the steps and won my ex back whilst making the necessary changes.

I noticed a power shift after getting back together which was natural after I’d been a bit too controlling on some issues so I needed to ease up.

Gradually I demonstrated to her that I was a capable man who she could look up to emotionally and she’s now happy again with the relationship.

I’ve also been able to reward her good girlfriend attributes with more attention and vice verse for things I’m not so keen on without being too reactive etc.

Dean”

“Before The Modern man, I was beyond hopeless with women (actual I was the worst out there) I couldn't make them feel attracted, they hated me and disrespected me and talked behind my back and said nasty things about me.

Like what... I thought I was handsome, friendly, really hard-working, a great guy, captain of my house team, really skillful in so many different things, but women weren't interested one bit. Not even 1% interested.

It got so bad, that through feeling awfully sad, day and day out, watching loads of pornography and feeling even worse and lonely, I had eventually called a hooker. She was ugly too... not only was the sex average, but she gave me an unfair service too.

Talk about a double slap in the face right?

Lost my virginity to an ugly, desperate hooker as well. Oh what an awful time of my life. I said the night I got back home, "Enough is enough, I will have a girlfriend and she'll respect me and love me. I'll do whatever it takes, I'm sick of women treating me badly and playing with my feelings"

Searching online, I came across many sites, they all sucked because I later went on a date with an intensely desperate woman, who actually rejected my feelings in the end. (Haha, fantastic. Isn't that ironic for a first date)

After being annoyed, angry and crying for a few hours, I came across The Modern Man. Now this very site, changed my life Initially, I thought that I would not be able to pick up any women.

I thought it was impossible.

No way will any girl like me.

I experience chronic pain and have mild Asperger's syndrome.

I couldn't speak to some people properly, being mentally challenged in some areas.

But no, none of these things mattered. Dan, Ben and Stu showed me so many different things that no one, not even my mother would tell me. In fact, my mum still tells me that I need to dress well to attract women (oh please, I dress silly at the gym and women are attracted to me)

I soon realised that while I practiced the techniques that I learnt in The Flow and Better Than a Bad Boy (both wicked, awesome and incredible programs) I slowly got more appreciation from women, they seemed to appreciate my company and were interested in me.

Eventually, I had sex with three hot women (they weren't ideal marriage/relationship types though) but the fact that those women actually desired me was an incredible feeling and experience. Thanks Dan, Ben and Stu.

After months of practice, having a confident mindset and thorough persistence (though people with my condition are naturally persistent), I now have a stunning, sexy, beautiful girlfriend who liked me from the very beginning.

Flirting with her, making her attracted, connecting with her and taking it to the next level, I got a first date.

1st date in, we flirted, kissed, had sex, (oh amazing and incredible. Much better experience. My goodness, it feels like you're in a different world!)

I then started a relationship where she tries to impress me rather than me trying to impress her (like I used to do)

It's hard to believe that a guy like myself, being ridiculed and shamed by women, teased about my lack of social skills and being manipulated to look stupid from my lack of non-verbal communication skills, is now being chased, desired, loved and appreciated by women of all different races, age and beliefs.

Even outside of relationships and women, I have succeeded in so many new areas, particularly at work, the gym, goal setting, university studies. Incredible. Even that, men respect me and look up to me.

Dan Bacon, thank you for providing me with the material, the tools and the content, to help mend my broken heart over many, many years of suffering and loneliness, I seriously wouldn't be in the position I am now, without coming across The Modern Man.

Thank you so much. Will"

"Hi Dan & the gang, just wanted to let you know that after about 3 weeks of watching your videos on Youtube, and starting on the Flow & Better than a Bad Boy, I've had a raunchy 3 some, and all nighter 1 night stand.

This is huge for me because previously I'd been more or less living as a part time hermit, part time workaholic and was really, really rusty. Thanks guys very grateful and optimistic for the first time in years! J"

"Hi Dan! It is an absolute success story!

You are amazing my man!

My ex dumped me 2 months ago and i was lost when she said doesn't feel anything anymore.

I seeked for anything what could help when i found your exback system.

Mate that stuff is just amazing you literally explain how to be man.

I followed it through but i had a different situation as i was living her so I could to pick up the important information for me.

So now we got to that point she is amazed with me and the changes so now i am dating with her again ðïïï

Taking it slow and trying to make it perfect this time.

End of the end i just really wanted to say thank you mate to being out there and helping out people with your stuff.

Well appreciated. Keep up the good job. Regards, G"

"Not even a week ago, I had no confidence in myself. I was a nervous wreck even thinking about the girl I'm interested in. Then I purchased "The Flow" and watched lots of your free videos. After that I purchased "The Modern Relationship" and "Better than a Bad Boy", which I'm in the middle of right now. Not only am I no longer nervous about this girl, I'm 100% CONFIDENT that I'm going to get her. 100% confident that she will be mine. Not only that, you've helped me solidify my purpose(s) in life, and am naturally more confident in my interpersonal relationships and am no longer a wimp, nor do I show any wimpy qualities around others. And my God does it feel good. If this is the change I can make in a week, I can't imagine what the future holds. I'm looking forward to sharing my success story, if this isn't already. Todd"

I read your Flow ebook last month and got a kiss the first time I went out to try this stuff at a friend's party. I went out the next week to a bar and laid a gorgeous brunette who is now my girlfriend. Amazing information. Thank you! MC from New York"

"The Dating power product is GOLD and the personal stories of Dan, Ben and Stu (from the audio bonus product that comes with Dating Power) are ABSOLUTELY PURE GOLD. They are AMAZING GUYS. I'm already seeing results by dating the kinds of women that I previously couldn't even get past a minute of conversation with. Now they are keeping conversations going with ME! There are many things that helped me which i can't state here otherwise this email would be too long to read. SJ"

"Dan, Two years ago my wife of nearly 10 years sat me down and said "I don't love you anymore". At the time we had two kids under 6. Devastated, bewildered, numb and confused... I was floored. I signed up to your course and followed your guidance to the letter. Three months later, she's chasing me apologetic, realising the mistakes as she tries to attract me back, exactly as you hinted.... Two years later we're stronger than ever, and I've been able to help other men understand what to do. I owe you Dan, you're a legend, thank you, seriously, I'm so grateful. Also... now I know exactly what to do, I cannot lose! Thanks dude, you rock. Matt"

"Don't know if you read messages, but I had the urge to write to you, and must say, your Make Her Love You For Life video program completely changed my life.

I'm 49, divorced with 3 kids, and have a girlfriend for a few years now, that I found very hard to understand.

She was testing me all the time and corrects me, saying things like don't speak quietly, don't sit like this, don't be so insecure, etc.

Only after watching your videos I finally figured out everything and understood what she really wants from me.

I understood she loves and wants me but my insecure really turn her off, so she's trying hard to fix it. I changed thanks to the sharp explanations you provide that make everything clear. It makes so much sense and is so practical as well. Brilliant.

When I started using your techniques my self confidence went up, and the relationship with her never has been better.

That self confidence even changes how I act at work and with my kids.

I want to thank you from the bottom of my heart.

You don't know how much you actually change my life, and life of men that learning from you. YM"

Getting my ex back was a bit more complicated than other guys because of her abused past, but your system definitely worked for me.

We were spending 1 day & evening a weekend together recently having deep love making. She then rang tonight saying we were falling into our old pattern and maybe we should break up again, but I changed her mind based on my newfound confidence and understanding of how to really connect with a woman's mind.

Anyway she ended up saying she loved me multiple times and wants to be with me & address our niggles was the outcome.

In conclusion I wanted to thank you Dan as all your advice including the mistakes that guys make etc. has really helped me a lot. Thank you Dan, you're making a lot of couples very happy with your programmes.

Kind regards

M.Y

My wife of 11 years – who I doted on – suddenly left, took our kids, filed for divorce.

Turned out she was beginning an affair, felt no emotional connection, and had been unhappy for some time. I was devastated. I did not know what to do, and everything I seemed to try seemed to push her further away.

Using your methods in “Get Your Ex Back Super System”, I regained my confidence and mental and emotional strength.

I regained my masculinity, which feels amazing.

I made the necessary changes to re-attract her.

After being separated for 3 months, she's back and has been for about two months now.

She moved back in on her own. She confronted her family and friends on her own, letting them know that I've changed and she wants to be with me.

She broke off the affair and blocked communication with the other man on her own.

She has told me she doesn't know exactly what is different, but that she loves me, she is so attracted to me, and that she wants to be with me and only me for the rest of her life.

I can't thank you enough.

My wife and family have always meant everything to me, but I never realized how I was smothering her by becoming part of her emotions instead of being an emotional strength myself, responsible for my own happiness and purpose, and allowing for her to be the freedom to be her true feminine self and experience these emotions without drawing me into them.

Thank you again.

I'll send an update after a year or so, and I'm happy if you'd like to reach out for more...I think my story could be impactful for many, as 87% of separations end in divorce and many cases of infidelity do not reconcile. We've managed to do both so far, thanks in large part to what you're teaching here. Thanks again! Nick”

“I just want to say thank you to Dan for the amazing program he has put together.

The ” Make her Love You For Life” program is incredible.

I am confident that this new relationship I'm in right now is going to be the best one I have ever had. Thanks to your program I can go in with full confidence that as long as I stick to the guide lines of this program that I will not only be a better man, but have an incredible and loving relationship. So thank you for all that you do. Jeremy"

"For the people that might be wondering about a program that is literally going to make your life easier and happier... Better than a Bad Boy.

It is completely amazing, if you can afford it, if not save a bit because wiser words couldn't have been spoken from the moment I finished I felt like a different person, my confidence went through the roof it feels like you got super powers or something.

I originally bought it to be the man for my ex, but I'm having second guesses now she was really pretty but too immature and negative.

Now I feel like I can get whoever I want, but if there is one thing I want you to know is that if you feel a bit needy inside, as little as it is, I felt needy with my ex, well this program eliminated that completely.

It sounds arrogant but now I feel like the prize they need to win.

Jean Paul"

Hi Dan,

I recently purchased The Flow on Audio,

I actually feel this was a great purchase I have seen the value now from it. I haven't ever been good with women enough to be in a relationship or attract them. It's only been a short time but I've already had a date and got the first kiss it was slightly awkward she nearly head butted me haha. But today I have basically had a great conversation with another chick and without meeting her she wants to have sex this is from the building attraction by [Edit: Customer revealed important technique from The Flow on Audio] with her. She started with saying her guard was up and then I got through her guard and she says I am annoying in a good way.

So already I have value from your teachings – I hope it continues to reap rewards I will keep listening too it

Regards,

Dean

"I have 2 young boys now 5&2. Married now 7 years and have been living with my wife for almost 15 years.

Two years ago I noticed my wife had become more and more cold to me in bed hugging, making dinners and just all activities. Shortly after, I learnt that my wife was leaving me and asked for a separation (I literally lost my mind emotionally and my mojo and couldn't believe what just happened.

I did the classic guy desperation cry , ask to have her back, said I will change, and went through all her stuff to see if another man was in the picture.

Later learning that when she stopped liking me, she was having a crush on a man at her work who had a family as well.

She came across a love story blog where she started writing back and forth with an author who left her husband to to meet another man in a relation.

Months later, I learn my wife is moving into a rental house close to our house (15blocks away).

But at that time I was researching on the internet and found many websites... obviously Dan's site caught my interest after putting 100's of hours into research.

I then started to follow Dan on his free YouTube videos and saw that he actually knew what he was talking about, so I got his ex back program and followed the steps.

It worked!!!!!!

We are back together and have been living together for 3 weeks.

If I could hug you Dan and tell you I love you I would because last year was the hardest year of my life and you helped me get through it!

"I was sceptical signing up and getting Make Her Love You For Life, but out of desperation and your diagnosis of my situation being pretty much spot on through your YouTube videos I thought why not give it a go, see what I could learn.

I'm happy to say a week since I purchased things are going really well. I'd gone from being a confident, masculine, happy go lucky guy, falling in love with an absolute babe, to being real insecure, moody, feminine in response, guy who was anxious and depressed.

It was as if this relationship with this girl who I originally adored, and who doted on me had sucked the masculinity out of me, and I was then paying for it; it seemed she no longer loved me, was attracted to me or had any respect for me or what I had to talk about.

I was getting desperate, felt like I was creeping on my own girl all the time and genuinely felt unable to be in a relationship, I felt broken. Your teachings have really helped me to pull myself together and man back up.

The problem I think I had is that in previous relationships I've never shyed away from an argument, however being slightly older and more mature now, and being with a girl who behaves differently than previously, I've been mirroring her reactions to situations, too often I was sitting her down and saying "it doesn't make me feel good when you do this", or "your job is really threatening to me so I'm upset when you come home late after drinking with other guys".

Obviously these things shouldn't be brushed under the carpet, but before I was using the wrong tactics trying in to be a mature responsive partner, when in fact I was feeling sorry or myself the whole time and acting like a girl! You've given me more tools to get to a place in the relationship I want to be more effectively, and it seems to be working, I thank you for that. G"

"Dan what a journey it's been!

I think I was the first South African to purchase The Flow from you (if you remember, you mentioned that in a comment).

Just wanted to let you know that I applied techniques on a girl I had a huge crush on in highschool 10 years ago and was too afraid to talk to; and she is now my girlfriend, because I demonstrated masculinity, alpha and domineering traits, all thanks to your training.

Thank you so much! I can't believe how much difference the mindset of [Edited: Mindset removed. Customer referred to a very important mindset that we teach here] makes! I actually feel like a man now and it feels right, she feels comfortable being in a feminine role. Many thanks Dan! Matt"

"I got my ex back almost 4 weeks after the break up. And things ARE WAY BETTER than before. She is more kind to me, more girly to me and SHE WANTS to take care of me as her man now. She is also more sexually attracted to me than before. I no longer have to ask for sex again! She no longer feels the need to go to another country to find herself. That was her own words.

She now knows that I'm becoming a better person as a result of the breakup.

Thank you, Dan and the modern man. Your work is truly stellar. Johan R"

"Hey Dan, just wanted to say thanks to you and everyone else at the Modern Man for your email advice and the Flow.

The success I have been having with women since using your product has been mind blowing. My confidence is on a new level and I have become the alpha male i always wanted to be despite not thinking I could do so for the longest time.

I am dating a girl for the first time in two years and it is going great. just the other night she told me how she loves how I don't have to try and impress her and just overall enjoys how I treat her (referring to the skills taught in the flow). you guys really know what you are doing, keep up the good work! Chris"

"Hi Dan Bacon,

WOW just WOW. as I'm writing this, i think back about what happen few weeks ago.. TOTAL CHAOS bro!

My girlfriend was so mad and left me. For few days, I was lost and sad. Lost the fire in my heart, you know.

Everything I did was just listen to sad music and pray every night.

Until someday while I was working, something came up my mind "hmm maybe I should google "how to get your ex girlfriend back" "

It's like something flash up my mind to google that, maybe thats the answer to my prayers. And then lots of things shown up and the name DAN BACON.

I read the blog and I was like WOAW! This man knows !

So I stop my job and start to read, lots and lots of things.

It was like, I found a guiding book about my life from the moment. Everything you write in that blog, are really really true.

Then i watched the Youtube Videos and really got something like enlightenment from you haha..
YOU THE MAN DAN!

And i spend few days thinking whether I should buy the program or not, considering lot of things, like from price to the different culture. Im from South East Asia.

Indonesia exactly, I dont know if any Indonesian ever purchase or maybe I am the first one.

So I think, this is it, if its not working at least i try!

She is goin to be the love of my life, i can earn that money again but maybe finding someone like her is the most difficult part. So, Let's just invest on this program.

I learned from your videos, writing on my notebook about what i should improve and what i should say when we are meet up and be confident.

Before that, she always said stop trying, you will never win my heart back. And telling everybody there is no way we gettin back together.

But deep inside my heart, I know I can do it, especially on your blog you said Woman heart can change depending on what you do, or something like that. I get more confident after read that.

You really give me lot of confidence after I feel insecure for few weeks.

I call her, not rushing everything, believe in that step by step.

And just 1 week later, we make up while laughing and confess we still love each other. And she said Yes, she want me back !

Oh dear, this program work for everybody if execution is well done !

To the people out there, DO IT! I was skeptical at first too. Since most of the user are from US or European guy.

Well give it a try, I'm from Indonesia and it works! Totally different culture and jokes, but the love and the way woman think are almost the same.

Like Dan said, you want her back, dont wait anymore ! Just go for it!

And last but not least, Thanks Dan. I'm glad I found you.

Like really, it works like magic. Not just my relationship, but for me mentally.

You change the way I think and the way I should behave.

As a man to another Man, THANK YOU DAN BACON.

Best regards to you,

AS.

“Dan – not a question – just a simple thanks.

I bought the “Make her love you for life” as my marriage has been in the shitter for several years now – the worst being the last several months.

The 10 Pillars is incredible. I soaked up all 70+ videos in under 2 weeks.

And, as a result, my outlook and behavior has changed (for the better) and I am seeing near instant responses from my wife. It will take some time (years probably based on the damage I have done) to get all the pillars in place, but I am looking at this with excitement and a positive outlook.

So many examples you give, I felt like you were talking directly about me!

I now recognize all the “tests” she gives and am allowing her to be “girly” with her emotions and not responding like a girl. I am shouting your message to all of my friends.

They all say that there is a 100% improvement in my outlook, my behavior and my attitude. It’s all because you have really enlightened me on my own mistakes over the years, but more importantly, have shown me how to correct them and behave “like a man”.

I would love to be able to tell you all the things that happened that got me to find you and your work. But I get it, you are extremely busy and don’t have the time to read long histories of guys problems (with out compensation – I once had my own company as well so I know time is money and how difficult it is to reply to lots of emails).

But man, it’s been brutal the past several years. Recent talks of divorce, etc. But now, thanks to your program, I am working on the 10 pillars and seeing near instant results in our relationship. Thank you so very much!!Tony”

“Hi Dan.

I have been meaning to send you one of my success stories for some time now.

There is one in particular that has happened recently that I would like to share with you.

I was at a friends house party and there was a girl(my friends girlfriend’s sister) there that I’ve known for some time.

I have been wanting to get with this girl for quite a while, but I never had the foggiest notion on how to approach, what say to her, or have the confidence to (due to my way below average looks, etc).

Anyways, had to leave the party early unfortunately, but while I was there I merely used some of the teachings from “mastery methods and mindsets and ultimate guide to conversation”.

After applying some of the simple techniques (being real, not being too nice, nervousness, etc), the following day I got a text message from an anonymous number, that eventually turned out to be the girl at the party that I’ve been after all this time. She was asking me out!

I couldn’t believe what was happening! I literally thought that I was dreaming. The funny part is that I was simply just being myself! The same friendly guy! I honestly believe that it’s paramount that every decent man out there should know about the modern man. I have truly been struggling in my life.

All I needed (which I obviously didn’t know) was a few simple changes and a push in the right direction. I am still taking it one step at a time and these two products alone have opened my eyes in ways I could never have imagined.

I can’t wait to get hold of some of the other products and see what else my life has in store for me. I would like to say a monumental thank you to you guys. You have got me out of this dark, lonely hole that I’ve been hiding away in.

You have completely turned my life around for the better and not just in regards to relationships with women. Everything from my new job to meeting new people. EVERYTHING! I will never be able to emphasise the impact you have had in my life. So a great big thank you again and I wish only the best for you guys. Sincerely, Jonathan”

“Hello Dan Bacon, Last year I bought your video of ‘make your love your life’. After a breakup, I decided to buy this material since I felt like I was losing my manhood and didn’t want to get into another relationship and have it end in a break up. I wasn’t being respected in my previous relationship. No more Mr nice guy so I decided to take this program for a chance. I am so glad I gave your video a chance. My new gf whom I’m with, has complimented a lot with my masculinity. I feel so loved and appreciated. I can now see where I was going wrong in previous relationships. It’s so easy now. She loves me completely. Thank you! Jose”

“I just want to say that I got the Ex back super system back in November when my wife filed for divorce and I’m happy to say that she canceled the process last week and our relationship is better then ever. Thank you Dan. Cesar”

“Dan,

For the longest time, I had gone out with women but was way too nice to them so one after one, they lost interest. I couldn’t figure it out and thought I was doing everything right and was getting very discouraged to the point of almost giving up entirely.

However, I just recently bought the Confessions of a Natural series, and it has already helped me immensely. It has only been a month, and I have already found the confidence I have needed for the longest time.

Not to mention, I’ve already had sex with four new girls and am seeing one of them regularly, and I now have the ability to pick and choose which girl I want to pursue and date further.

Your advice and the personal interviews have completely changed my life for the better. Thank you so much for your help, and I’m eager to see where else it takes me! Chris”

“I bought “The Flow” on audio and have listened to it like 10 times. I highly highly highly recommend this book! Money well well spent. It’s the best and most simple well laid out content I’ve found.

The way you teach to get phone numbers and to get the first kiss is Gold. I’ve used the number technique maybe 20 times now. I’ve made out with 6 women now since I started taking action in the last 3 months. Only used your kiss technique once but it is on point.

I have bought and learned a lot of content from other sources and I mean what I said about how great “The Flow” is and how it is the simplest, well laid out and natural content I’ve found. Corey”

“Dan Bacon, I hope you read this:

I went through a bad divorce. Was in a profoundly toxic relationship that shattered my ability to speak to women let alone a waitress. I saw your video in my recommended and thought it was junk... I watched a few videos from other â€œgurusâ€œ and all of them sunk. I saw you again and thought I’d give you chance. Your first video blew me away. It helped reframe my perspective but something was missing. Iâ€™m highly analytical, Iâ€™m quiet, blah blah blah... but then you recommended your book. I did some research. I was sceptical but I was way more nervous speaking with women.

I bought your book The Flow. I read the first two chapters.

I executed it like I was in a play and all the women I spoke with were actors. I legit was stuck in the framework of my past experience but after using The scripts you provided, talking to women has never been so easy. Iâ€™m got a girls contact info + made plans to go hiking. Itâ€™s been 3 days since I bought your book.

Radical stuff. I highly recommend The Flow to anyone!!!!” Christopher “Hi Dan, Just wanted to say THANK YOU. My girlfriend and I broke up 6 months ago.

I was devastated because she was truly the love of my life.

I watched countless of “get your ex back” videos and yours resonated the most by far.

I decided to give your “Get you ex back super system” a try. I was apprehensive at first, but it all made sense. Long story short, I applied your steps to the T and was able to get my ex back within two months.

We are still together and the relationship is 10 times better than it used to be.

I’m even getting ready to propose to her and pretty damn sure she will say yes!

I never thought an online program like this would work. But your program assisted me in one of the saddest and most difficult moments of my life. I am forever thankful.

If you are ever in Charlotte NC, let me know, I owe you a lifetime of free beers! Regards, Jason, Charlotte, NC, USA” “I’ll start with a little bit about myself. I am 23 years old, a senior at a major American football university in the United States.

Growing up, I never know how to act around women â€” my dad was very shy and quiet. I love him very much, and mean no disrespect when saying this â€” but he wasn’t a great role model when it comes to being a real man or being attractive to women.

So like many guys, I grew up being shy and being afraid to talk to women for fear that they might slap me or pour a drink on my head like you seen on TV and in the movies.

So I went on the internet and looked at all the different things â€” namely, pick-up artists.

After some trial and a lot of money spent, I came to the conclusion that they were a waste of money.

And then I stumbled on the Modern Man. I decided to give it a shot, and started with the Flow. I gave the techniques a shot, and when it worked, I was instantly hooked.

I can’t thank you, Ben, or Stu enough. My life has changed completely and it’s all thanks to your courses.

They are all great, and really teach what they are advertised to teach â€” but it is the responsibility of the person watching to actually perform the simple steps required. Sometimes they take a little courage, but it’s not like you ask us to perform rocket science â€” just to have a pair of balls. You can’t find that many places these days.

I especially like Alpha Male Power and Better Than a Bad Boy. Those courses to me were more about becoming a strong, powerful, masculine man who is pretty much guaranteed success in life because of the man those courses lead you to become, and secondary for me was the attracting women part.

Although, just as you advertise, they work incredibly well when it comes to attracting women naturally solely based on the person you are.

Also, the Get Your Ex Back Supersystem worked for me as well, and I was surprised at how quickly and easily it worked.

Although, as it turned out the ex that I got back just wasn't a good girl to have a relationship with, so I broke it off with her after a while. She just wasn't honest or trustworthy. But I learned a lot more than just how to get my ex back, including how to become a better version of myself and let go of any baggage that I had.

Anyway, I no longer feel like I have any limitations in what I can do or achieve in my life and I have all the tools that I need. I can't thank you or the guys enough. Keep up the good work! I'll always appreciate what I learned from you!" Jason

Dear Dan Bacon,

I want to share personal info to know the great things you did for me with your books,

I was divorced for 5 years with depressed and deep thoughts of self heating and remained every bad memories in my Relation with x wife, after while when i was in my healing stage i just watched your channel on YouTube one after one and i realize i had many misunderstanding for the dynamic of the flow and how the attraction happen between the male and female, so i bought your Audio book The Flow and guess what..

its the best thing happen for me in this stage of my life.. i live in different country with different culture but i really understand the concept that you are talking about and adapt it in everything in my life like:

I can talk easily with any girl which i was thinking before they are out of my league including good times with some of them

I can observe and notice their behaviors and hidden meaning behind it

In my work (Am now project manger in important company in Saudi Arabia which i was not thinking to get this far)

After one month i will be master degree graduate

I met unique girl and she now my fiancée

I really appreciate to share this knowledge to make the people get back on the road.

Best,

Tariq"

"This is by far the most powerful pick up advice on the web.

Guys I suggest you check it out really good stuff.

I have been using the techniques for a few months now and ladys are acually inviting me to there houses now.

I finally got the girl I been trying to get to notice me to go out to drinks and later she went home and to the hot tub with me these skills are more than pick up advice they are life communication skills thanks DAN!!!” Brent

“I just want to thank you Dan for being awesome at what you do! I bought at least 5 of your programs, and they help me save my marriage, after my wife I told me she loved me but wasnâ€™t in love with me (because I had threatened to divorce her about 12 times because I wasnâ€™t happy, among other things), that she would be ok with or without me in her life, and that she didnâ€™t think she could love me like she used to! But now, her love is back, and our relationship is better than Ever! Thank you!” TJC

“Hey Dan,

I just wanted to follow up after a few more months. I watched Dating Power, Mastery Methods and Mindsets, and Confessions of a Natural: Interview Series. Dating Power and the confessions series really outlined how to uniquely apply the concepts from all other courses.

I am an average guy and through what you teach I now have my pick for whom I date. Recently I began dating a Brazilian-German woman who looks like a runway model. Using what I learned has made her melt like butter on a hot waffle. You werenâ€™t kidding about how happy a woman becomes through relaxing into her own femininity. She had tears in her eyes just when I hugged her. Your programs teach us men how to become better and cultivate happier women. Everyone benefits. I have to thank you guys forever!”

“Hey Dan, bought the audio the flow. I wish I can send over the emotions I am feeling. The response from women is amazing . This is what I was missing. Thank you for the social intelligence. And thank you for the flow. Vince”

Hey Dan

You’re brilliant!!! I watched get your ex back super system and it really worked and my ex fiancée begged me to take her back when the situation seemed completly impossible (Full blackout and changed her phone number and moved to another country)!!

I did all the mistakes that turned her off..drunk calls, home visits, gifts and maybe more than 30 mistakes which i didnt realize except after watching your system.

I kept doing these mistakes for over than two month then i [Edited: Removed important technique from the program that customer mentions here]. It was only 12 days from when I used that technique and then she reached out and after 3 days she begged me to take her back. You saved the love of my life!!

“Yesterday i was on the train heading to Edinburgh, and sitting across from a cute woman who i noticed several times was checking me out by giving coy smiles and checking me out in the reflection as we went through a few tunnels.

I put aside my nervousness and said internally, right iâ€¢m going to attempt to make something out of this no matter what. I followed the example in 21 great ways to get a GF (Public transport. I typed into my phone (Look i know people donâ€¢t normally talk to people on trains, but i wanted to say hi, Iâ€¢m Richie)

She was a bit deer in the headlights expression, but she took my phone and typed in (Iâ€¢m Aileen how far are you heading?) and we started chatting.

She was getting off at the next station 10 mins later and i told her itâ€¢s been great chatting to you, we should chat again, put your number in and iâ€¢ll give you a shout. An omega male was watching us and i could tell he was thinking to himself WTF?

On the way back to Glasgow i sat opposite an attractive blonde girl who i smiled at and started talking to her and got her number too. ð€¢€¢

And i was aware of a woman across was watching and listening into the conversation. I am now looking forward to travelling on the train later today because there will be opportunities to talk and get more numbers. Richard”

“Hey guys,

My first approach since I listened to ultimate guide to conversation. Iâ€¢m not even halfway through the program and I got results!

I used Stuâ€¢s approach and said two words and pause to start the conversation . The response was hilarious. Hereâ€¢s what happened:

I was grabbing a coffee at Starbucks and saw this hot woman sitting in front of me. Her back was facing me so it was awkward positioning but it opened up as I settled for abojt 5 minutes. We smiled at each other immediately and she started playing with her hair. She turned around to stretch back and I said â€¢nice shoesâ€¢. She said thank you. I said it wasnâ€¢t a compliment. She put her feet out and looked at her shoes with a smile and said they are cute. Now we are off in conversation. We talked about basic stuff what she does for work, exercise etc. I spoke from my perspective, threw in some flirting and humor and after 15 minutes of talk got her number and left. The funny thing is when I saw her I immediately started feeling anxious inside because she was so pretty. It wasnâ€¢t until I relaxed and activated confident mindsets that I calmed down and started thinking clearly and waited for my opportunity to begin the conversation.

Thanks for your products. They work!

Wes”

“Hello, I just wanted to thank you.

I’ve been back with my wife for nearly a year now.

The wisdom that you provided me is unparalleled.

We’re expecting our Second baby after almost a year apart with nearly no hope of reconciliation.

I use all your methods day in day out now, with all work and life. I have also been able to guide close friends and direct them your way. I started with Get Your Ex back super system. It worked! So thank you. Warmest, Michael.”

“Hey Dan ☐☐☐ I had an incredible experience last night! I went to my high school reunion with intentions to speak to the most beautiful girl at the celebration.

I went to the bar to get a sparkling water, and she walked up to me and started a conversation. Woah! And she wasn’t the first one either, Nearly every hot girl I was interested in, walked up to me and started the interaction.

Also, after being my confident-self around these beautiful girls, everyone else noticed that I was a cool guy to hang around with, then I noticed that seven people were facing towards me and listening to what I had to say.

Wow, I love this feeling so much.

Not only that, but I saw a girl that friend-zoned me back in high school badly and called me a wimp. She initially had low respect for me initially (hence why I said “almost all the hot girls), but as I spoke normally and expressed my attraction for the girls through my body language, she opened up and started touching my arms and even my chest.

The girls that were out of reach for me during high school, especially the smoking hot ones, never liked me, but now they consider me to be the hottest guy in the room amongst other bad boy types.

I also learnt to tone it down (the verbal flirting) with most of the girls I spoke to. I just allowed my smile and my eyes to do most, if not all the flirting. (It’s working like a dream for me, since I don’t like talking that much amongst women.)

The more promiscuous girls absolutely love it when you speak sexual all the time, and then they’ll be ready to move it forward based on attraction alone.

Throughout the party, I wanted to nail my approaches since I get nervous at times at shopping malls when doing that stuff, so when I saw a random girl I’d approach and say “hi there girls name reach out my arms and hug into her then look up and down and say “Wow, aren’t you looking fantastic” with a sexual smile and squint of my eyes.

They all melted when I did that, even girls who already have boyfriends blushed and had that thought in their mind of “omg! I feel so attracted to him right now.

He’s incredibly hot A girl that I was purely friends with at the moment (she’s shy but incredibly cute and sexy) was giving me advice on how to pick up her friend and get her to like me, and how much she likes me and whatever without even asking.

When I was at the celebration last night, she didn't even mention her friend but was instead, flirting with me and being all shy as usual. When we were talking she moved in closer and squared herself up to me. When she looked at me she had strong eye contact with dilated pupils.

She blushed as we spoke and I took her outside near her cat and hugged her tightly for about eight seconds, then she said "you're an amazing hugger Will" then I smiled and moved in for a kiss.

This would have had to be one of the best, most amazing and most fulfilling first kisses I've ever had.

The sexual tension between her and I was completely ridiculous and kissing her made us both really, really hot in the moment.

Both of us just breathed out and stared into each other's eyes and kissed a couple of more times before we both agreed to meet up for a couple of drinks at the beach.

I find it amazing how just by being a man of really strong purpose (I'm going after what I feel is important with unrelenting determination) and when you have deep, strong confidence, men and women no matter what age are incredibly drawn to you and want to be your friend or want to be your girlfriend (if they're female of course).

I really want to thank you for the advice in your programs because now I have my choice of women and now they want to impress me. From W"

"This might sound like a bit of a cliché, but after making just about every mistake under the sun (such as grovelling, getting angry, making ultimatums) and following the advice of some other programs, I applied the principles of your ex-back system exactly as specified and have been back with my wife for quite a while now after a year of separation.

I was certain at the beginning that there was zero percent probability of us ever getting back together. You could say that there is no guarantee of anything in life, but I have 100% confidence in this system working for other men if the process is followed through with faithfully.

I would go as far as to say that if it worked for me in my situation, it would work for anyone.

I'm super grateful to you in making this outstanding material available to us and think that you are an awesome guy. I would also highly recommend the Make Her Love you for Life program as well, which I apply the principles from daily, and my marriage and life has never been better. James"

Soon there after, I got a job as a bouncer at a college bar. A buddy and I would get into competitions on how many numbers we could get during the night.

As of now, I've lost count on how many girls I've met, dated, and had intimate encounters with (even while I was working mind you). These products are worth the price, and I hope any guy willing to improve their dating life make this investment.

I owe a lot to Dan, Ben, and Stu. So stop wasting time and make your lives better!!! Matt”

“Hi Dan,

I started listening to your stuff a couple of years ago. The one thing I knew I had to do was apply what I was hearing.

All I wanted was the ability to get the girl I wanted, not to get all girls. I just practiced flirting with a couple shop staff, and people I â□□sawâ□□ on the street. I was not even trying to get a girl.

One time I went out to a friendâ□□s birthday, it was so boring, I went home early, on the train I sat next to an Indian girl listening to her itouch. I decided to be bold and asked her what type of music she like, then i showed her some music from my itouch.

long story short, we got off the same stop, her phone was dead, but she took my number on her itouch. we started dating, she is 22 i am 32, but she is freak in bed. i dated her for 2 months before i decided i could not see myself with her in the long run. we had break up sex, she still wants sex with me, even though I donâ□□t want it with her.

Basically she is waiting for me to change my mind, as she said to give her a call when I am horny.

Thanks to the teaching i received, i even have girls at work wanting me. I just donâ□□t want to play the field, I just want one girl. But at least I have the tools to get her when I see her.

Thanks Dan.” Tyrone

“Thank you Dan! You made me see things in a new light. This is all the information I wish I would have been receiving when I was a young, misguided, horny teen. It was just like you said! My ex â□□baby mamaâ□□ is feeling a love on a level with me, that she has not felt before! And my perspective and outlook on my abilities and myself, and women is quickly shifting, and transforming. Thanks again & Take care! Eyal”

“I could actually see that something was wrong with my approach to women, but I could not figure it out.

My friends had it all and they were not trying hard. I was a nice guy and I thought if I was nice I will get them (woman), but no I did not get anything.

The more assertive and masculine I have become the more I get what I want. I have woman calling me now and it feels good and I choose who do I want to be with. BK”

“I purchased the flow 4 years ago when I was very youngâ□□!

I remember someone saying â□□Thatâ□□s a lot of money for an E-Book!â□□ Not at all.

Possibly the best investment of my life.

Not only did it improve my success with women but it also improved my success in life just from gaining that extra confidence.

I am now in my second year training to be a doctor after showing my confidence and nailing interviews, Iâ□□ve had some great girlfriends over the last few years and Iâ□□m only single when I want to be. Good work Dan and all the best! Jamie”

Bruh... your stuff simply fucking WORKS!!

About a month ago I thought I lost my girlfriend.

I thought that she fell out of love with me.

I think we hadn't had sex in like a month or so, but the sex before that was sooo good... It was killing me!

Her lack of interest and distance hit me hard.

I panicked, cried. I talked to her – and she kind of reassured me, but, even tho I was pretty grounded, I just dug myself into a deeper and deeper hole.

Her behaviors got worse. She hit my weakest weak spot, and she tested the hell out of it.

I felt pretty hopeless, but I figured I'll do whatever it takes. I watched a lot of your free relationship videos until I finally decided to invest into “make her love you for life”.

With your clear, simple, and powerful perspective, I got things back to how they're supposed to be.

All it took was an hour long date. Even though she made it difficult... She was late. Distant. Barely wanted to interact with me. But BAM! I penetrated right through that shit.

I know she was turned on!! Even though she tried to hide it.

YESS! Upward spiral of confidence!

She is totally into me again. It's an amazing feeling to get that back.

We've only been dating for a little over 4 months, but I can't wait to see what this relationship will be like 1, 5, and 10 years from now!!!! It's gonna be so fucking awesome! And I haven't even listened to 25% of your program yet...

What you teach works and it was easy to do, so thank you!!!

O.S.”

“Hey dan all thanks to the flow and better than a bad boy.

I managed to get a genuine babes number on the plane. Even though my opening line was do u have any panadol i never cracked under pressure when she was talking to me and stayed calm the whole time.

She pretty much talked my ear off the whole flight and i did pretty much nothing i just listened and added in a few facial expressions. after a while i started acting bored and that made her work even harder to get my attention. Thanks dan and the modern man for everything.and now we are catching up for dancing on sunday. Jesse”

“Hey i just wanted to give you some feed back. My ex left me because she didn't love me. I watched your get your ex back super system videos and it changed my life. “Dan, I just got to say yall are brilliant and thank you for sharing your secrets. I been reading â€œthe flowâ€œ quit a bit haha and listening other programs too.

Itâ€™s amazing how all things work haha. I was no good with the ladies(most was I cared to much what everybody thought of me but really it doesnâ€™t matter,cared to much how I look in public and had lil confidences) haha Now I see the big picture.

I was at a party with some mates and I saw my ex girlfriend there. I quickly started using the techniques from â€œthe flowâ€œ and other programs (using the three Lâ€™s technique, flirting, starting conversation, good mindsets and etc)

Less than a hour, we started to make-out and had a lot of fun together! It was a awesome night! Iâ€™m still working my way up to become a natural like you. Dan,Ben and Stu, thank you! Guillermo”

“Thank you modern man, at age 21 my virginity is no longer an issue and your program has helped me develop a natural flow with women so I have had plenty of sex lately.

Learning about confidence has made a difference. Recently one of the girls I am dating offered to take me out for lunch and pay for both of us. Obviously, attracting women is no longer an issue for me. Thato”

“Hey Dan!

Alright your program can work miracles! For the past four years I have been in a relationship and recently my ex broke up with me.

I was devastated and even more so as I went through you program and realized where I went wrong being so desperate, needy, weak, etc.

I have really taken all of your programs to heart and am going full on with them because I do not want to be like I have been for the past four years. Okay, so today was huge. I followed the advice in 21 great ways to get a girlfriend and I went to the mall and talked to a number of girls.

I then went out Salsa dancing tonight and applied all of the good stuff I learned in the flow, alpha male power, and better than a bad boy.

I met this waaaay hot girl (I mean in the past I would have been completely intimidated by her) and taking her through the flow by the end I had her giving me her number! She is attracted to me in a way that I have never felt in that I feel like Iâ€™m coming from a place of strength now and she can feel that.

Youâ€™re right, Dan, when you say you may not even be thinking of your ex say if you have other way more attractive women in your life.

Thanks for this life changing program. It has helped me in one of the most difficult and yet strangely rewarding times in my life. Rudy”

Hi! I'm from the USA and I've put your concepts of what to say to women and how to say it into practice.

I would say to anyone how well it works.

Women used to look through me like I was invisible.

Now whenever I choose to turn it on, women respond very positively and I get the results I want. It's like a revelation to me. This is what I've been missing all these years. Thank you. Mike

Hi Dan

I got your ex back program last week, secured a meet up with her and then did that last night.

She was very hesitant at first but I persisted as you mentioned in the program and she agreed.

We met up for what was supposed to be a quick coffee and that turned into her having feelings for me again and getting worried about it, so I suggested we go for a walk and while walking I suggested we go hang out at my place and she said yes.

To cut a long story short we ended up having sex and she said that she didn't know why but she felt differently and wanted to give us another chance!!!!

I knew at that moment that my decision to get your system was by far the best investment I have ever made in myself.

Her and I are taking things slow now but it looks good because she came over to my place yesterday and stayed the night so I am confident that I can continue to spark her feelings more. We even talked about going away for a weekend soon so it is looking very positive.

I can't thank you enough Dan. You are saving a lot of men from a lot of messed up pain and problems.

I will certainly recommend you to friends if they go through a break up!

Regards,
Paul

I was literally blown away by "Get Your Ex Back Super System"! The information on relationships is fantastic and for the first time I saw my mistakes in such a clear way. It completely opened my mind as to what was killing my girlfriend's attraction for me while I had been trying to get her back. She was saying that her feelings were dead and I should just move on and find someone new. I made some quick changes based on what Dan said and she immediately began to react differently and open up to seeing me. That was absolutely amazing! I couldn't believe it man. Then I got her feeling so attracted when we met up that we kissed and had sex in such a passionate way. So thank you to Dan and The Modern Man. You guys saved me from losing my girlfriend. PK"

"This email is basically just to say a massive thank you to Dan and all the team at the modern man. I messed up big time with my girlfriend of 14 months at the start of the year and she broke up with me.

I was devastated and thought I'd lost her for good. I purchased get your ex back super system and watched Dans YOUTUBE videos over and over because I was determined to get her back. I also purchased Alpha male power and better than a bad boy. These programs rebuilt my confidence and self belief and gave me the push to go after her and win her back. It took me 2 months of persistence and several knock backs to eventually get her to agree to meet me for a coffee. She was ice cold at the meet up and gave me no hope of getting back together what so ever. But I remained calm and confident through out and used Dan's attraction techniques, and 20 minutes after getting home I received a text from her telling me she still had some feelings for me. I quickly arranged another meet up with her which went well, and today we met up again and ended up in bed together at my house. We've spoke about where things went wrong and what needs to change, but we've reconciled things and we're back. I'm not losing her again because she means the world to me. I'm 40 in June and we had a holiday to Las Vegas booked to celebrate the milestone before we broke up – which is now back on as well. Dan, if you ever visit Scotland on holiday, send me an email and I will have a bottle of the finest malt whisky for you as a thank you for your excellent advice. Ryan”

“Your materials [Make Her Love You For Life] have made the single biggest change to my marriage of 10 years that you could imagine.

I don't take the lazy man way out and agree to do something I can't or won't deliver.

To be honest I could so on for hours singing your praises, but I'm typing this while at work, so I better get going.

“I got your book The Flow thinking that I wouldn't be able to get much of a different result than I'd had with women for much of my life. I am surprised to say the least.

Your advice is spot on and the conversation and humor and flirting examples you provide worked the first time I tried them on a woman. I got myself a phone number when I went out the first night of approaching with a friend from work.

I then went on a date with her and it was at her place for dinner and we had sex afterwards.

She wasn't my perfect woman so I kept looking and a couple of weekends later from that I went out with my friend again and met a stunning blonde.

She was getting hit on all night and bored of it and I saw that, so I used your Flow approach and got her laughing and enjoying the conversation. Next thing you know and her and I were kissing. We're now three weeks into a new relationship and I feel on top of the world.

You deserve a lot of credit for the work you have done Dan. It is spot on to say the least. It really does work and I thank my lucky stars for the day that I found your site. “I bought better than a Bad Boy and listened to it for months. I changed from being okay with women to then becoming stellar with women and attaining the ability to have my pick and choice of the hot chicks I wanted.

After some time enjoying myself (& I certainly did enjoy), I then decided on a one on one relationship with a great girl. There were some issues at the start, I got Make Her Love you for Life... And I can definitely say this shit works!

We are going amazingly well, she’s become a great woman and lover and does everything I love from dressing and making herself beautiful wherever we go to loving and pampering me.

And... I have definitely become a better Man to and for her. Which is all part of it but now I can see ahead of time if she is going to act up or be overly emotionally feminine, or testy. I cannot describe how so so good it is to know how to react, the what to do and what definitely not to do and how to respond to bring things back to where we both want to be, loving, happy and laughing.

We laugh a lot, it’s great! I fucked this up a lot in previous relationships in my life, reacting in a way that didn’t benefit me nor my lover, if only I knew what to do back then things would have definitely gone better my way...

Anyway this is no fake commentary, I just had to say that I have definitely reaped the benefits of taking the time to learn this.

My partner benefits from having a man she loves and respects. And other parts of my life down to my work, friends and family also are better than they ever have been, as this certainly has transferred into all other aspects of my life.

This worked! I only wish I’d known earlier in my life... but hey no regrets as life is so good now. Frank”

“Hi Dan

I wanted to share my experience with you guys so far.

I found Modern Man last summer when I was driving up to a coffee shop while watching a beautiful girl getting out of her car.

She saw me checking her out and I parked and got in line inside. She was directly in front of me and started giving me all the signs to start interacting with her. I didn’t know what to say, or even continue a conversation.

I froze, said hi and smiled and left feeling frustrated. I went home that day and found The Modern Man. It started with The Flow, and now I own all your products.

I don't want to sit here and say how immediately I was getting laid to try and make myself look good.

I really needed a lot of work. So I took it one step at a time. Firstly I new that I had a SOLID foundation of being a great person. I treat people well and am a great guy. Secondly, I needed better communication skills.

I based a lot of this on your TI technique. I really began improving interactions not with just women, but with everyone. I found that I'm good at this.

It came fairly naturally and quickly. So I built on these new found communication skills and began interacting with new people everywhere. Soon I was much more comfortable in my own skin because everyone I have found so far is open to friendly conversation.

I began to realize, women are easier to approach. I am now getting more phone numbers easily. More women are involved in my life, which means more opportunities. I am now in control of who I like and decide to move forward with intimately.

My desperation has depleted dramatically and my standards are continuously rising. My life and confidence (or ability to be myself around others) has increased exponentially in the last 10 months and funny enough I appreciate women a lot more. I foresee continued growth as I seek a level of comfort that you guys at the Modern Man are able to enjoy.

I was a little intimidated at first because I knew that I would eventually have to interact with beautiful women. Now, it seems I just be myself, talk with everyone, and women tend to seek out my attention. More importantly, I'm aware of it now. It may not have been the fastest method, but it works for me and I'm comfortable doing it.

I still have goals to reach and skills to refine, but it would not have been for all your invaluable advice and knowledge. Thanks Dan, Ben and Stu! I'm so grateful. Dave"

"Hi Dan, just bought your Flow book today after watching some of your youtube video's. I'm amazed.. listened to the mp3's this afternoon. First girl I approached tonight (that I would never had the guts to before) proved me this stuff works! At first she wanted to take things slow, now basically begging me to give it to her. It's simple, but amazing! Got over my breakup really quick too ð Thank you so much, well worth the investment.. Simon"

It's painful to admit, but I now acknowledge that I've wasted a good 15 years of my life doing the wrong things. I am so glad to have found this material. I've got a date lined up with a pretty girl this coming week. Michael, Canada"

Get Started

I am blown away at how quickly I have gotten results.

I expected a long road to victory but I used the conversation examples and the attraction methods from the book and it is scary how well it works. No one knows that I am using techniques but they are all asking me why so many women like me all of a sudden.

It is incredible.

I have been having sex with two women over the past three weeks and now another girl from work is all over me. Absolutely incredible. Your book is best investment I have ever made in myself. Paul, South Africa”

“Dan, after 4 long months I am happy to say I got my wife back!!! I got your system in November and started applying what you teach and worked just like you said it would. One bit of advice I have for guys out there is please please focus on making your women feel a renewed sense of attraction and respect and forget about what she may be saying or doing to discourage you. Thank you Dan! Walter”

“Hi Dan,

I have nearly everyone of your products except the Alpha Male Power and they have utterly changed my life.

My GF broke up with me on December 14th, and lets just say I cried and begged for about 2 weeks then realized it wasnâ€™t going to do anything to get her back.

So I found your series and worked on me and forced myself to interact with women. It wasnâ€™t long before I got numbers, built rapport, and moved forward to kissing and heavy petting, however no sex.

I cut off communication for 3 weeks with the EX, and then I was on a job interview in NYC about 3 weeks ago and posted on my Facebook I was at a Bar, my ex whom also lives in NYC was coincidentally 2 blocks away and we meet upâ€™

Long story short, were back together, at one point she asked me if use getting back together was a good idea and if it was a good thingâ€™. I just laughed at her and said it was the best thing for us, cause the things you told me I lack (confidence, emotional understanding of women and body language) Iâ€™ve fixed and women now love me (showed her pictures from my phone) â€™.manâ€™Danâ€™.she flipped so quickly it wasnâ€™t even funnyâ€™I told her she needs to behave and do things I like or Iâ€™ll just walk away and go to one of the other girlsâ€™I told her if she does things I like Iâ€™ll give her a reward, She was like reallyâ€™.I tease her with a reward and then giving her rewards, keeping her on her toes. When she does things I donâ€™t like she goes to time-out, but only for 5 seconds, then I tell her to give me a hug and say sheâ€™s sorryâ€™.

Iâ€™ve turned the tides in the relationship, and now she always messaging me, chasing meâ€™.I tell her every time I talk to her, â€™ Ok talk to you in a week, Iâ€™m busy the next few daysâ€™ 12 to 18 hours later she messages me wondering what Iâ€™m up tooâ€™

She says Iâ€™m different and understandingâ€™.

Right now I tell her Iâ€™m Version 2.0 with firmware 3.0 coning out soon, you better figure me out quick or youâ€™ll be learning how to figure me out all over againâ€™sheâ€™s like are you for realâ€™Iâ€™m like stop being so serious, sheâ€™s like your meanâ€™Iâ€™m like ya so??? O.o â€™she is pushed in the feminine every timeâ€™.

Your material is spot on, I keep her in the feminine , but sometimes show my feminine then go right back to be a dominant male and she loves itâ€¦!

Again thanks for your content, Iâ€¦I'll keep listening to it over and over again. Maybe sometime when Iâ€¦m in Melbourne or your in the States, we can meet up!!!

-Trevor.”

â€¦By the time I got to page 40, I had already broken the ice with a girl I had never even been able to get a smile out of.

Reading it was like flicking a switch in my head that changed my mindset straight away. I can only imagine how much easier things are going to get once I start really start to follow the techniques fully. P, Australia” â€¦Your techniques are fresh, intelligent, sincere and written in a easy to understand casual way – real life. Your 3 second look up and down followed by “Your pretty and I like your style” comment is great. I'll be using that one tonight at a party I'm attending. Lee, Canada”

“Dear Dan, I watched your ex back program regularly after my breakup in July. I was heartbroken and desperate. Since then I worked on your advice and surprisingly, in August she returned in my life. Our bonding is now stronger than ever. Everything has worked out and going smoothly. Thank you so much! Sam”

â€¦After years of enduring on with the odd bit of luck â€¦ Iâ€¦m now having sex with new women all the time, which is what I want because I think I deserve to have enjoy this before settling into a relationship.

The flow ebook was a total bargain and I can't thank you enough for the clarity of the examples and instructions you provided. Five stars from me. Brian, USA”

“I just want to thank Dan for saving my relationship!! She was engaged to another man with a date set for next month and I got her back! Wow. Keenan” â€¦Fantastic! Absolutely eye-opening. Dan â€¦ your ability to take the reader through the process of a natural courtship, while making it all so simple is amazing.

The results speak for themselves â€¦ I can actually walk up to girls now and chat to them confidently. Itâ€¦s only been a week and a half and Iâ€¦ve gotten 3 phone numbers...this is awesome. Steve” â€¦First of all THANK YOU SO MUCH, Dan!! You have helped me SIGNIFICANTLY with my life when it comes to women!

I have been dating this girl for about 2 1/2 months, and I used to have this 2 month curse when it came to women.

I never really was all that bad with women to begin with, but I had a horrible problem of trying to hard with them (like trying to impress them) and with falling in love with them too quickly. Because of your book, I have learned what I need to change in my life to get the results that I want out of life!

Thanks to your book, I have got this girl to go from “let’s just be friends” to “when are we gonna hang out again?” if you know what I mean. ð□□□ Anyway, thanks again, Dan! You are a LIFESAVER! Drew, New York”

“Hi I hope this message gets over to you. I bought the system. You saved 6 lives literally. My family was about to be broken up because my wife wanted to leave me. Not even a social science psychologist at $193 dollars an hour, $25,000 on lawyer fees, couples retreats and many others got even close to your results. You got a gift. Thanks bro thanks I got my family back. Jerry”

“I haven’t even finished all of your programs – missing the rest of 21 great ways, make her love you for life, and mastery methods and mindsets but I’m noticing rapid results.

January was the month I decided to get back out there after my divorce. I’ve hooked up with 3 girls and I seem to be managing them fine while also having others in the pipeline purposefully in different stages as I’m following your advice from 21 great ways.

Funny I just met a work mate from Adelaide, AUS, she’s pretty cool and she’s actually melting to your techniques and way of being. It just happened. These woman are really starting to boost my ego during conversation, the phone, texting, and in person. They are really opening up and being feminine, it’s like magic. Unbelievable. I have some pics, text messages and journaling to document my own experience with your material. Being a man of purpose mixed with the Modern Man program is proving to be powerful.

I can’t stress enough how important is for your other clients to utilize all of your programs into their subconscious and take action. Alpha Male power really fuckin woke me up. Better than a Bad Boy too. I finally understand the game because of the help from you guys so I really appreciate all your time spent researching and putting this material together. You are right – Life continues to get better and better with an Alpha mindset letting the rest follow. Wes” â□□Not a month after reading your book, I went out to the bar with some friends.

Well, in the past I would have hung out with my friends and thought “If I talk to anyone else aside from my friends, I’m going to get ridiculed”

I decided that, no matter how much I might trip over myself and goof things up because I’m not used to going up to strangers and striking up a conversation, I would do it that night, and let me tell you.

Its amazing how much different things were just taking some of your tips on just projecting confidence and not slinking away at first sign of resistance. Your book is like my bible now!

To this day, being Wednesday, it has been 4 days since I was out with those friends, and I have phoned a couple of the numbers, didn’t go fishing for a date, actually never asked for one in the first phone call, and THEY called ME back asking me to meet up for coffee or drinks or whatever.

Women are now calling me to set up dates, so I just have one word left for you guys....THANKS!

Jeff, Canada”

Hi Dan – I know you deal with mainly single guys, but here is some encouragement for any married guys who need to sharpen up on their relationship skills. I have read and listened to just about all of your material.

While I was already familiar with much of what you teach out of having had to get my own masculine act together the hard way, your work has filled in a number of important gaps for me and has inspired me to be much more proactive in my relationship with my wife.

Flirting, being risque, being unpredictable, being sexually adventurous, being the higher status person and so on, has my wife clawing at my clothes and literally begging me into the bedroom every night.

I can say from direct experience as a happily married man, that what you and your team teach, has great implications for married men as well as single ones. My wife will be the first person to back me up on this. Richard, Australia”

“I have gone through the get your ex back material and it is simply amazing. You should be given a medal for allowing men to be men in a relationship. I had no idea that I was not supposed to act the way that I was acting in response to her behavior. I have started making changes and she is attracted to me again. We’re back on! She was over at my place last night. Thank you!” Mike

Brilliant! I was the typical nice guy who was nervous around women but in a matter of weeks, all of that has changed.

I was chatting up a girl at a bar the first time I tried your material and I was shocked at how well it worked. I had her eating out of my hands for 20 minutes and we left the bar together that night. My confidence has gone through the roof and I’ve made a load of new friends as well. Anande, London”

Hi Dan, I am not normally one for “kiss and tell stories”, but I know that success stories are good for business, and I reckon I owe you one.

I watched Better Than A Bad Boy only a couple of weeks ago. Then I met a girl through a friend (so, in fairness, it wasn’t a completely cold pick-up), nevertheless I brought her back to my place the same night and we had sex – which I had never done before with a girl I had met only a few hours earlier.

Throughout the evening, I kept thinking “Stay confident, stay masculine, don’t get sucked into acting feminine”.

Well, as can be seen from the result, it was obviously brilliant advice which continues to work perfectly, as we have been together three times since and are going away on a “dirty weekend” together tomorrow.

It bothers me that I got suckered into the mind-set of suppressing my natural masculine traits that happens for so many guys these days.

I can see now that is a problem for many anglo-saxon men, and women clearly don't realise how much damage they have done to their own self-interests by giving out misleading signals over the past twenty or so years.

Anyway, thanks for opening my eyes. I owe you big time. Paul"

"Hi Dan, Thank you for the most interesting emotional and sexual weekend I've ever had, at the age of 48 with my ex girlfriend who is 32.

Backstory: She broke up with me coldly over the phone at 5am last Tuesday, which I took very badly.

I spent the day in a depressed mess, literally didn't see the point of being alive (and I have never been the kind of person to get depressed or even vaguely contemplate suicide).

Anyway, halfway through that day I had written all sorts of things to change her mind, remind her of what weâ□□d shared, blah blah blah, – thankfully I didnâ□□t send any of them. Just wrote and wrote and agonized. Somewhere along the line I clicked this wasn't going to work. That it was going to drive her even further and harder away from me.

So I started looking up "how to get your ex back". And found a host of stuff – including your material. The first thing I read was written by a woman and included things like: Write her a letter, telling her how you feel; Acknowledge your faults and apologize; Buy her flowers – after throwing up in my mouth a bit, I moved on to advice closer to yours.

When I first saw no contact advice, I could see the logic, but when I saw your material and what you have to say about no contact, the penny dropped.

I then decided to get your program and simply arm myself for success.

Based on your advice, the first (and hardest) thing I did was to accept the breakup.

I sent her a text apologizing for being such a pussy about things, and said that if she wanted to break up, we should break up and that there was no point holding on to something she didn't think was working – that itâ□□d still be nice to see her for dinner at the weekend, to give her the gift Iâ□□d bought her daughter and get my spare key back, followed by a wink emoji.

She thanked me and said it would be nice to have dinner, that she still loved and cared about me, and that I could decide if I wanted to remain friends or not.

I didn't reply and didn't contact her again, until she let me know on the morning of our dinner that she'd said a travel prayer for my daughter and her mom who were driving back home that day, and so I turned it into a bit of fun, and that conversation ended with her sending a LOL emoji.

That evening, by the time I walked into her apartment to pick her up for dinner (and share a glass of wine at her invitation), she was already flirting with me.

I just kept it light and distant and let her flirt.

Then I moved to pick her up off the counter to start heading out, and the intimacy exploded – we ended up kissing passionately for a bit, and then I broke it off and said, come let's go to dinner. Which we did.

The rest of the evening was super-flirtatious and fun, and we ended up having mind-blowing sex that evening back at her place.

Long story short she ended up coming to my place the next day (after morning sex), and the whole weekend was just a glorious sex-fest, with many deep and meaningful conversations, lots of laughter and flirting, no stress, just pure enjoyment of each other.

To be this attractive to a woman you really love and like, after she was as cold as ice, is a life-changing experience.

She just couldn't help herself!

And the change in me was so simple to effect.

I went from being a depressed mess of an emotionally needy wuss, to being upbeat, fine, light and humorous – and emotionally bigger than her â□□ a man – within a 48-hour period (including the watching of your program).

And the change was so obvious to her. And extremely attractive.

She told me at one point – lying in bed together that my face looked different (before she knew what I'd been through that week), to which I replied â□□ I'm not surprisedâ□□, implying that something had happened.

Later the next day I told her what I'd been through, told her what Iâ□□d learnt about myself, and how Iâ□□d helped screw things up, and jokingly apologized for forcing her to have a lesbian relationship with me, and she looked at me with glowing eyes and said â□□ You hit the nail on the headâ□□ and said how much she respected me for being able to effect that change and basically reverse our interaction.

(At another point she playfully punched me for not leaning in for a kiss, when I usually would have.)

So in a nutshell, I have gotten her back and I couldn't be happier. Thank you! Amar” â□□ I wish I ordered your ebook earlier. I just met this lady online and spoke to her over the phone, we hit it off very well and we decided to meet half way from where we live. We live 4 hours apart. It amazing how easy this is when you know what to do. Alan” â□□ Norwegian girls are notorious for playing hard to get and making guys work for months to get anywhere with them.

Well that is what I thought prior to using The Flow on them. I got laid the first weekend I went out approaching and got a serious girlfriend the following weekend. You are saving lives Dan Bacon...I was severely depressed and lost about what to do about my situation with women before I stumbled across your website. Pete, Norway” â□□ After a lifetime of women basically ‘ignoring’ me and seeing me only as a friend, I read your book and in 3 months I'd already had 8 dates.

Its mindblowing how well your stuff works...I ended up choosing one of the best women out of those 8 and she's now my girlfriend. Couldn't have done it without your techniques, so thank you! Evan, USA” “Dan, I just want to thank you for all of the help you’ve supplied to me and every guy out there like me.

I found you guys last October and immediately noticed a drastic change in myself after watching Better Than a Bad Boy and Alpha Male Power, in particular.

I discovered my purpose in life and that created much higher confidence and self-esteem in myself. I’ve never been one for bar environments to pick up women (so the Covid-19 pandemic didn’t really affect me in that regard) but I met a woman whose name I’d heard through mutual friends (and vice versa) in an environment in a place we’re at all the time.

All I had to do was display the traits you describe in great detail in your programs (and it was truly real, not just a facade). And we connected so damn well it was unreal. She told me we’re basically the same person.

And I just moved to forward...

10 days later we’re in a relationship and she told me she’s never been more in love with anyone in her life, and she’s already planning out long term plans for us.

I only met her 3 weeks ago.

I bought your program “Make Her Love You For Life” right when we started our relationship. Not because I need it. But because I know you have great information, and I know it’s gonna work.

Anyone who sees this message, I’m proof that everything Dan makes for the Modern Man is worth every penny.

I had no clue what to do and I was a nervous wreck around women that were less attractive than my girlfriend now. Thanks so much for everything, and cheers! T”

“Hey Dan, I’m amazed at how, even with so much product, you never overlap. Instead, you hit different angles which helps round out the topic, excellent. I’ve learned so much from you over the past month and my life has changed completely. I feel so much more confident and self assured, no matter where I am. Women notice me now and smile. It’s so weird. I’ve already gotten a bunch of phone numbers, set up dates and slept with 2 women this month. That may not sound like a lot, but I hadn’t had sex in years prior to this. So, I just want to thank you from the bottom of my heart. You have literally changed my life and opened my eyes to the fact that I can select women that I want...and they actually want me in return. It’s priceless. Thanks man! Mitch”

“I ordered the e-book Flow, figuring I’d blow $100 taking a girl to dinner, so what the hey. You’re right on point!

I used the conversation examples with a woman from work and we went out that Friday night for drinks. We hooked up on Sunday afternoon for lunch and then had sex that night!

Now she is my girlfriend! Getting your book was the best money I’ve ever spent on anything online. I highly recommend this to other guys out there. Trust in Dan, he is the real deal and he gets you results. Tyrone”

“So I bought all of the Modern Man products recently, and I’ve been using them quite a bit and it’s unbelievable how much it has transformed me.

Not only can I be myself and not worry about acceptance, but I have earned much more respect from guys and girls alike. I’m 19 and look relatively young, but this stuff works like magic. For example, I’m on tour right now with my band.

After one of the shows, I had a 20 year old girl come up to me and I could tell she was very attracted to me, so I talked to her a bit and then ended up going back to her place and having sex with her. She said that I was “amazing” in bed, and after the first night she literally begged me to have sex with her again.

This is only one girl, but I have 5 other girls that are all in love with me and want to go out and have sex with me basically on demand. It’s a great feeling, and I never would have encountered it if it weren’t for you and the Modern Man. Thanks Dan! Brent”

“Hi Dan! I just want to thank you so much for all your help and support! I bought and read all of your ebooks, I used your techniques and mindsets and they really worked. So far approaching women and attracting them has been a piece of cake. I met my ideal woman, I lost my virginity to her and started a relationship with her. I really appreciate it and I’m definitely gonna start spreading the word to other people. She loves how other girls take notice of me even though I’m attracted to her and feel madly in love with her. Take Care, Zee”

“My names Anthony I’m 19 years old and used to be the shy guy who didn’t have the balls to go up and talk to girls at all and when I do I had no idea how to speak to them.

Honestly I had no idea how to speak properly to anyone new I would always try to copy what my friends do and found out the hard way that it was the wrong move. The Modern Man products work not just with making you the man most women desire, but making you the man that everyone wants to be around. I used three products to help transform myself these 3 products are:

The Flow, The Ultimate Guide to Conversation and Better then a bad boy. In this economy the price for the last two are pretty expensive especially at my age but let me tell you it was the best purchase I have ever made and it has made my life more enjoyable.

Rather than just hanging out with a girl and hoping she sleeps with me I have the confidence to enjoy every aspect of our time together and escalating to that last step has never been easier.

If your looking to get with women, lose that social awkwardness, and get the confidence and knowledge to do what you truly want in life then I recommend you use products from the Modern Man. My only regret is that I didn’t use this sooner thanks Dan Ben and Stu!! Anthony”

“Hi Dan, Ben and Stu. Thanks for all the effort you have been done all this years, a true remarkable mark you have made in the history of man kind.

“Dear Dan,

My success story is that I was miserable at picking up girls and whenever I tried, I always get stuck in the friend zone. That really made me lose it.

I found your site in hope of my solution and it really works! I have bought your â€¢ The Flowâ€¢ product and I improved so much! I couldn't believe it would work for me before I tried it but it did.

Eversince I bought â€¢The Flowâ€¢ Iâ€¢ve had plenty of girls hitting on me. I always liked this girl in my class and I got her to be my girlfriend. So I am very happy to have found your website.

“Amazing! This is the only word to describe Alpha Male Power.

I emailed you guys the other day telling you that I still have approach anxiety and hesitate.

Well I watched Alpha Male Power and today I stopped women in the street who were walking towards me and things went really well. In the past I feared them walking off and not stopping.

I had a couple of other â€¢firsts for me momentsâ€¢ during the day too, but the most important thing is that it felt like nothing mattered to me.

Nothing the women or other people thinking of me matters. Other guys in the â€¢pick upâ€¢ community who I know, who have had more success than me, still self analyse and ask themselves â€¢why did she give me that bad response?â€¢.

I got none of that after listening to Alpha Male Power!!! I did start to question myself towards the end of the day saying â€¢ Na, this canâ€¢t beâ€¢! itâ€¢s too good to be trueâ€¢ but like Dan says at the very end of the program â€¢ you have to go through the transformationâ€¢.

What Dan said relaxed me and reassured that it is OK and normal for it to take a few days or weeks for it to become who I am (without having to think about it.) I have bought 6 other programs in the past, but this is the one I believe will change my life.

I already feel different, which I never felt after the other programs. I feel that everything I have learned from the other programs will come naturally while I interact with women and live my life, but I canâ€¢t praise this program enough for the instant powerful feeling it gave me. Thanks, Kaleb”

“Hey Dan!

“Hey Dan, I have been studying the Flow and this Saturday I will see the first girl that I used The Flow on.

So far I have been becoming more confident and clear of my life and the future, and I am starting to manage the stress and life of college better in the last months, and I have nobody else to thank but you and your wisdom.

It feels like if instead of feeling afraid, now that I jumped into adulthood, I feel I want to grow up and learn more, instead of feeling down because of the challenges that will come into my life, like people tend to act.

I have been successfully fighting my unhealthy social anxiety, and am overcoming and understanding the feelings of guilt from beating up the Nice Guy syndrome I lived with for years.

I haven’t had a panic attack in two weeks now, and I used to experience them almost daily! I wanted to write this post to share my progress. Thank you very much man, you have no idea how grateful I am. Kevin”

“I got your Dating Power program a couple of months ago and have been having endless sex with women I’ve been meeting in at uni, at bars and through friends. I would have paid DOUBLE if I knew that it was going to be this good. 5 stars from me!

I’m an older guy (59) who was interested in having a relationship with a much younger chick (20).

After I became single again, hitting the social scene was a shock to my system. Lost in a world of older divorcees and totally frustrated with them, I started your video sessions for a few tips to get myself kick-started and figure out how to get what I really wanted.

I found success on an internet site which promotes older men dating younger women. Once I hit my target audience it was just a matter of time before I struck gold. Even though the age difference was huge, I found and identified the perfect woman from your guide on types of women.

Sheâs an awesome girlfriend and life is great again!

Itâs really an advantage to pick â from the top of the treeâ instead of settling for those rotten apples laying on the ground. If you want to meet a quality women, you will have to work on it and have the confidence and skills to attract her to you. Thanks again Dan and the gang!

Cheers from Don”

“Hey Dan thanks for making such helpful product.

I used to think that girls like nice guys and so I was being overly nice and wimpy instead of nice but also strong and confident.

I was awful with girls, I couldnât even say hi to them I was very afraid of girls, approaching them was my nightmare but now after using the flow, mastery methods and mindsets and dating power and using it in my life I now enjoy my life with many girls in it. Girls like me and I have lost my virginity just because of you, stu and benâs products. Tarun”

“Hi Dan,

It finally feels good to be on this side of the line.

Earlier I used to read all the comments about guys getting girlfriends when they followed you and I used to think when will I be like them.

I finally got my old friend to date me after such a long time of me just being in the friend-zone. She was a bit reluctant at first but seeing my newly found confidence and alpha-male attitude, she said she too started to see me as someone else. Hope I continue the good run. Arjun”

Hi Dan, bought my first program from you early in the year. And have almost all of them. Live in Norway. But can not thank you enough. Become 47 next year but you’ve changed my life completely and are forever grateful. Have my girlfriend back, and lots of ladies who likes me all around me all the time, and the job has changed for me because of you. Continue the good work and never let anyone tell you that what you do is wrong. My son is 16 years old and very unsure. Must take him through this. Hope sometime there will be such programs that can help girls also become alpha/beta girls, and more feminine girls. Some strong girl that can start that. Thank you very much. Best regards Ed”

“Dan big beard bacon!!

I want to write a personal success story of mine after having watched the following programs over the last 7 months:

- Get Your Ex back
 - The Flow
 - Make Her Love You For life
 - The Ultimate Guide to Conversation
 - Alpha Male Power
 - Better than a Bad boy

– The Modern Relationship

Being a professional table tennis player and Olympian, I always thought I should be able to find a woman. The one I want someday soon and have a great relationship the more successful I am in my life. Since watching the Modern Man, I have finally been able to enter the true world of knowledge in how to become a real man and attract women properly, as well as even understanding how female psychology truly works!

Truthfully, I had zero idea until I stumbled across The Modern Man in a time of huge need (When my relationship with my current girlfriend was bad and I could sense she wanted to leave me due to insecurities and lack of being a man).

I have never been able to access this knowledge anywhere else! In fact.. I have been given terrible advice countless times online, and by other friends who really have next to no idea!

I'm starting to be consciously competent and I'm going to really enjoy the process of becoming the man I dream of, by implementing what I have learnt from Dan, to become a better me everyday! I strongly believe I have so much to learn and can't wait to keep watching more of your programs and learning more and more!

My current relationship with my girlfriend of 11 months has been a roller coaster with me being initially a wimp who put her on a pedestal and would do anything for her.

I now understand so much more, and she is begging at my feet for more affection and time of mine.

Nowadays, she supports me and openly expresses how lucky she feels to be with a man like me.

Last but not least, when I meet her girlfriends, I can sense how jealous her girlfriends get when I behave in a relaxed cool manner whilst still totally being myself and fearlessly showing my love towards women without being an asshole at all about it!

Thank you for removing so many problems that I would have gone through later in life and having no idea why... these programs are worth every cent!!

I love you Old man and belated congrats on being a father!

Cheers, Heming"

"I've had sex with 4 women in the last 2 months. Your techniques are gold and have worked every time I've used them. I'll be getting more of your programs soon to boost my game further.

Jason"

"Hey Dan,

You have truly opened up my eyes and I have seen and experienced what it's like to cross over from being an absolute fail with women to having most girls want me. I am starting to reach the point now where I can attract most girls that take my fancy.

I now have a beautiful girlfriend who constantly tries to impress me and also wants to move in with me. She's awesome!

Your programs helped me to gain so much confidence that I no longer feel nervous around people and I know how to handle them. Most people want to be my friend which is an amazing feeling! Just wanted to say thank you because it has really changed my life. Mark” “Guys, I can’t stress enough how well Modern Man’s products work.

I started to use M.M. while I was living in Spain to talk to the beautiful women we all hear about. It turns out, no matter where you are in the world, the M.M. approach works flawlessly. 10/10 Thanks from Taylor” “Hey, what’s up Dan, just wanted to say that I have experienced some tremendous progress after reading the Flow and watching Dating Power.

Just about every chic at my work place is into me. I’ve had sex with around one new woman every month and I want to start picking up women in many different places now. Joseph”

“Hi Dan,

I first learned about your material in my search for better information regarding women and dating. I went through college with moderate success with women, but I never had the confidence to approach the hottest girls who would even give me positive signals that I should approach and escalate with them.

At one point, I was hanging out and having dinners with a beautiful girl who would even come by herself to parties at my house and flirt with me the entire night. She gave me every signal that I should pursue her, but I felt like I was being fake and didn’t want to reveal my inner wuss by messing it up with her or getting rejected.

I also felt that there was something wrong with how I was going about this because I had fantasies of waking up with her in bed and being my girlfriend, yet I hadn’t even gotten physical. Therefore, I did nothing and this relationship fizzled.

I later learned that she had had many sexual encounters with other popular guys around my campus. Other experiences like this left me frustrated and somewhat angry.

I read the flow and watched Alpha Male Power about 6 months ago. With the knowledge and empowerment from these products, I began consciously to implement the concepts into my life. I still haven’t fully mastered them, but they have made a huge difference.

A few months ago I met a beautiful, smart girl on vacation in Miami. She was showing me positive signals, and I decided to pursue her during the trip using the concepts I learned from your material.

The knowledge and inner confidence from your products allowed me to become intimate with her on the trip and because we happen to live close to one another, start a happy, committed relationship. I thank you for helping me reverse the habits I learned from ineffective role models in order to become a more attractive, happy man. Sincerely...Will”

“I just wanted drop by and thank you.

I initially bought your products to pick up girls but in return I learned how to be a real man.

I am now able to handle any situation and talk to girls with no hesitation. In fact while on holiday I used your technique to meet this beautiful Latin girl and was able to create some great memories with her. Your videos are definitely worth every penny. KG”

“I only just got the book and I’m already on page 48- can’t put it down!

The attraction and rapport techniques seem so obvious, but I know I’ve always been doing the opposite with women and can see how that’s been sabotaging my efforts.

I’ve had the chance to practice today on my colleagues (mostly female) and I’ve already felt like there was added warmth in the way they were interacting with me as a result. I’m looking forward to fine-tuning this skill and learning more.

Mikey”

“Hi Dan – Well first of all THANK YOU!. I never thought I was going to say what im going to say but here it comes! in 4 or 5 years I was not seeing any girl! Today 6 months after buying the “better than bad boy” I have to many Girls!

I really dont know what to do, Ive gotten to many Girls and I dont wanna break their heart.

Most of them keep calling me daily and I keep ignoring because im not interested anymore. And when I tell them some stupid story of how we are not ment to be together, they keep crying everytime, every single one of them! I have what you Call a Luxury problem these days!

Even 2 of my co-workers who I happend to not be interested in keep asking me out for dates! and believe me im not attractive im just standard! Never been good with girls, But hey what you teached me have made Complete different, even all my friends now come to me for advise or tells me what to Write when they are texting some chicks, even they get laid sometimes because of me! Its really crazy!

And if you happend to know how I can turn Down this womens in a Nice way without the tears and all that stuff I would be for ever gratefull! But anyway im happier than I was. Thanks Dan! Majid”

“Hi Dan,

I had to share with everyone that you’re products have significantly changed my life- not just my love life, but my professional one as well. I feel like I have an entirely new outlook on the world, and life is just naturally more enjoyable for me.

Incredible things have been happening for me since I’ve started living my life as an alpha male. I got a huge promotion work, I’ve become much more well-respected in my group of friends, and I’ve had amazing success with women.

On top of meeting new woman, I’ve also hooked up with a really hot girl who I’ve been friend-zoned with for 7 years! She came right out and said that she has seen a huge change in me.

She couldn’t tell me what the change was, only that she has found herself really attracted to me lately. She certainly demonstrated her appreciation for the “new me” the other night!

Anyway, for all of that (and for everything to come in the future) I want to sincerely thank you.

One more thing- To anyone thinking of trying out one (or all) of these products, I would absolutely encourage you to do so. You won't be disappointed!" Andrew

"Hi Dan

I want to take this opportunity to thank you for saving my marriage. It was dead in the water and my wife had already began going on dates with a new guy that she knows from work. But I put your advice into action from the Get Your Ex Back system and boy did it work.

My wife came crawling back to me, crying and apologizing. I am now in the position of power in the relationship and we are more in love than ever before. Your tips on sex were a huge eye opener for me as well. I would rarely get her to orgasm before but now it is happening almost every time we have sex.

You are doing great things for the men of this world Dan and you deserve a lot of credit. Had I known what your program would do for me I would have happily paid double the price.

I'll be a loyal fan of yours for life. Best regards Bryon"

"Hey Dan,

I have been working on everything you have taught me and I think it's finally starting to come together.

I have visited my ex a couple times now and she seems so in love again. She now compliments me about how much more masculine I am and treats me so much better. I am so happy, thank you. We are better than ever and I feel like (with your help) I'm learning to keep the dominant role and stay in control of my emotions.

Now that I am more aware of my role in the relationship we have a deeper connection and are on the way to an Amazing relationship. Alex"

"My parents were quite worried that I still didn't have a girlfriend at age 29 and it was really getting me down. So I searched online, found The Modern Man and gave it a try. I experienced more success with girls in three months than I've had in my entire life. I now have a great girlfriend and my parents have finally stopped pestering me, except now they want grandchildren...!

"I got a girlfriend two weeks after reading The Flow.

I was out in the city with some buddies and they were too afraid to approach any girls. They tried to talk me out of approaching because they said girls are bitches and always have a boyfriend. I didn't listen to them.

I approached and they were astounded at what happened. All night I had girls interested in me and eventually snogged the girl who is now my girlfriend. Brilliant book Dan. It has been the best investment I've ever made in myself and now my buddies are asking me for advice. Macca" “Hi Dan, I purchased your program Get My Ex Back Super System for $297.00.

I started not with the first video, but rather with the video about how to contact your ex. Trying to take a short cut.

Downloaded all the texts what you should say or text when you contact your ex to set up one “last” catch up meeting. And I loved the whole structure and approach (I am a sales guy, who does not have any problems with getting beautiful women). But then I said to myself let’s check out everything from the start.

So I watched the first two videos about why women leave you and how to fix and improve yourself. This took almost 5 hours!!! But I took a look of notes in form of screen shots and replayed many sections.

So we are talking more about 10 hours just for the first two videos. All the sales stuff how to contact her became irrelevant to me, because it was clear to me how much I have screwed up with my wife and even more importantly how can I fix things with her by improving myself.

I wrote my Letter of Pain (part of the program) based on your template (almost copied it!) and my emotional state went from devastated and being an emotional wrack to let’s do it, let’s get her back. That was the beginning of a very quick recovery process which did way more for me than me going to a therapist!

With these two videos I found my inner peace and my emotional center once again. Then the events with my wife turned from horrible to good to fantastic!

My wife left me two month before, raged a nuclear war on me in the family court system, with a no contact order and even before that a restraining order and filed for divorce. So I did not even had a legal chance of contacting her unless I wanted to end up in jail.

My only way was to bump into her by coincidence twice or three times a week or so. Basically from an outsider perspective my case was hopeless!!! All my friends were telling me to move on.

I applied everything from the first two videos only in my limited interactions with my wife and it took me from the day I bought the program, 6/22 until 7/3 to finally succeed. In less than two weeks I was able to turn the worst nightmare in life around to a much better relationship than ever before.

I changed the approach a little bit because of my particular difficult circumstances, but the Letter of Pain was my winner among a few other things.

Once back with my wife on July 3 I showed her the letter and she loved it!

Yesterday July 8 she dropped everything in the family court, all the divorce actions were retracted by her, the lawyers were fired and we are living back together since July 3.

My wife is a highly educated and intelligent career woman and looks beautiful with plenty of options to get men.

So you can’t just fool her.

What made all the difference in the world were three things:

1. Understanding/Acknowledging my faults in detail and improve quickly
2. Get back to an emotional attractive state (I was able to do this in a week)
3. NEVER GIVE UP!!! (Don’t even think about to listen your friends: move on, time will heal all wounds, there more girls, give her time...)

I really suffered in the 2.5 month my wife was gone. This was not a joke at all. And I consider myself an Alpha guy. The $297.00 was nothing. Our lawyers charged that for 45 minutes.

But your advice and your thoughts and insights were everything! Screw my friends in this regard. But Dan was the one who really made a difference.

I became for $297 and 10 hours of watching the first two videos a much better man. And that was the important part for my wife.

What I am trying to say I never even needed to apply all the contact her techniques from video 5. Can I recommend the program? Hey is the pope catholic? Hell, YES!!! Thank you, Dan!

“Hey Dan.. I just wanted to take the chance to thank you and share my success story with you.

I hope you don't kill me though when you read some parts of my journey. Well I've known about you and have had you in my e-mail list for about 4 years now and I've been reading your stuff and I always wanted to get your products though I was still on a primary school kids allowance (I was in high school at the time).

Until that one day I bought the flow. And then I kept it on my phone without even touching it and decided to go P.U.A for advice...what a waste of my bloody time I tell you.

You know I've always been obsessed about being a natural with women and being a dating coach.

So on this so called pua journey of mine I had a lot of stupid shit happen until one night I decided to go back to the Flow and finally read it .Well I'm half way through it and..... I've got a girlfriend, yes I thought I'd be sleeping with every bombshell on planet earth when I got my dating game right though nah...I fucked around and got me a good women lol.

Well you did say that many of us will be starting at different levels and you were right. I started getting attention from women just after getting my mind sets right and today I'm at a point where I can be in an interaction with a woman and actually have her wanting me to take it to the next level.

I'm having so much fun with this mindset stuff sometimes I'll flash a grin and just sit back and start repeating in my head...”I am a man..a strong sexually aware man and women want me “...did that once and she started doing touching on me under the table lol good times.and the vocal exercises have been helping with my mindset.

I just twisted the exercise a bit for a two in one benefit though that's a story for another day; Though what I wanted to highlight the most was how you actually helped me take attraction to the next level.

Now I've always been practicing cocky and funyness throughout my life without knowing it because I'm the type of guy from a young age who liked cracking jokes and being cocky and making sexual jokes.

And that's what I did throughout my life even with girls I tried to date and since I started reading the Flow I now see why it never worked in the long run. I could use my natural self to spark attraction very easily and that where my downfall was.

I would just keep doing the same thing throughout the interaction with a woman just because it got her attention instead of shifting into the 3rd phase and developing an emotional connection. And that's how I always ended up as the funny guy with jokes and nothing more.

Though now Dan thanks to you I'm the MAN!!!.....and my girl knows if she messes up I can have my choice of other women. I now know and believe that.

Now I can finally focus on other parts of life. Thanks Dan

Nhlalo”

“Hey Dan! I'm 25 years old and i've been using he flow since my senior year in high school.

I've had tons of success with the flow, and recently just broke up with my smoking hot girlfriend of 2 years because it was ME who was not happy.

In the 2 weeks being single, i have already slept with 4 girls. And my phone is blowing up with hot woman, most of who'm i just don't have the time for because i have more woman than i know what to do with.

Almost every night i have a different date, and some booked days, if not weeks in advance. And it's all thanks to this life changing product. THANK YOU!!!

“I finished reading “The Flow” 2 days after I had purchased it.

On the third day, I went out into the town to put what I learned in action. It works so well! I talked to two girls, and they both wanted me! What I attempted was wayyy out of my comfort zone, and not what I usually would do, but I put that passed me and just gave it a go.

Worked like a charm.

The first girl I talked to was definitely interested, so much so that I felt taking her home was absolutely possible, but after talking for a little I decided i didn't want her. YES, I chose. Then moved onto the next girl, who was also much more beautiful.

I put the techniques I read about in the book to use, and now she is my girlfriend. It was literally so easy after you know the right things to do.

Before this book I would have NEVER talked to her. Before this book I wouldn't have even tried because I mean seriously, she seemed way out of my league. Buy this book. It is absolutely worth it.

Chris”

“I recently lost my virginity and I owe a huge thanks to you and your Flow book. I also kissed another girl at a party and have two other girls interested. I'm on fire!

“Initially I was a little put off by your prices, but I decided to give it a go anyway since you guys offered a guarantee. To say that I am happy with my purchase is an understatement. I turned my female friend of 3 years into my girlfriend with a simple conversation and a couple of your attraction techniques. Amazing!

“Good morning Dan, and thanks for all you do. I’m writing to inform you that I am back again with my girlfriend. We broke up seven months ago. I thought I had no chance anymore because of how long we had been apart, but I tried the steps in your program and it worked! I never for once thought it would be possible because she previously confessed we would never be able to talk together again. I wouldn’t know she was anticipating to hear my voice if I never come across your blog and then try your program. So thank you Dan. I appreciate all you do. You saved me from losing the love of my life, and I will always be grateful for that. Abdullahi”

“Getting your book The Flow has been the best investment I’ve ever made in myself as a man. It has not only taught me how to be confident, but has given me the type of skills with women that make my friends super jealous. I am currently seeing four different girls at once. Don’t hate the playa! Hahaaa...

Tyrone”

“I do not go out much however last night a good friend invited me out and I figured “Why not?”

I go out and have a few beers, after a few we end up at a late night bar. There this drunk douche bag introduces himself, he was wasted. Shortly after we see his girlfriend who is very attractive trying to put him into an Uber. He does not want to and the two of them get into a big fight causing a scene. I tell my friend that no woman should have to deal with that type of man, if anything the roles should be reversed.

They finally leave. 30 minutes later SHE comes back, talking about how bad her boyfriend is etc. I see this as an opportunity. I start talking to her, she needs a real man not some idiot who makes a fool out of himself and has her clean up his mess. I end up taking her back to my house and having sex her with her all night. It was fantastic pussy! She was down for just about anything! Lots of fun. I don’t feel bad about it one bit, I did not coerce her she just fell the urge for a real man, not some pussy who hides behind her, as I learned from watching your videos.

I have been surprised at how easily the techniques work on all types of women, not just single women. Women can’t stop themselves from wanting you when you approach the conversation in The Modern Man way.

It was a great time for me the other night, so just thought I would share this with you guys.

It was definitely not something that I was expecting, I am glad I went out. I see it as a huge confidence boost moving forward!

“Your products are worth every penny you charge. My experience with the ex back supper system has changed my life. Though my ex initially expressed no interest on reconciliation, she opened up to it very quickly when I used your approach. I then got her back, but eventually changed my mind and left her.

Your products have allowed me to â□□man upâ□□ on so many levels. They have allowed me to genuinely move on and experience share love moments with many different women since the break up. I appreciate your eye opening books and relationship advice, it is truly priceless as I now, with confidence can attract almost any woman I talk to.

I cannot believe how effective your advice is. Best of all, they reciprocate and share themselves with me and this is the most free I've felt my whole adult life. I may have left my wife of 17 years behind, but I'm experiencing a whole new life that I love now. Thank you for your help, stay strong. Cheers, Kyle"

"Your program [Get Your Ex Back Super System] is such a gem of knowledge. I was blown away at how many mistakes I was making in the relationship and how they basically all applied to me even though I am a woman. What I found out from your program was the catalyst to push me to give it another chance with my ex girlfriend and it worked. I was about to give up before I stumbled across your youtube videos, but I gave it a chance and we're seeing each other again. So from me, thank you. Thank you so much. G"

"I got my ex girl back and I'm a woman. I just wanted to let you know that because I know you only advertise your products for men, but it worked for me too. Lots of love, Penny!"

"After my wife and I separated I didn't know where to turn for help.

I tried a bunch of things that I'd found online, but it was just pushing her further away from me. Another guy was in the picture so I knew that I needed to act fast. A friend suggested The Modern Man, I got the Ex Back program and her and I are back together in a better relationship than we had before.

I've become a better man than I was before which has not only helped my marriage, but my standing at work where I have recently been promoted. I can't thank Dan and his team enough.

Get Started

Because of Dan Bacon's get your ex back super system, My ex wife actually set up a meet up sort of anyways.

I'll give a little back story here...

I made every mistake imaginable during our divorce. So much that at a point I was worse than where I was when she filed for divorce. I ended up on drugs and really felt sorry for myself for awhile.

Then after going to jail for violation of a restraining order with her somehow in that time of no contact and being in jail I decided to change myself. Not to get her back but just for me. To be a better person more loving and compassionate and less like the person I used to be that used people for what he wanted.

After jail the no contact order was still in effect. I worked on myself still battled with drugs for a little while but soon came to the conclusion that's not where I wanted my life to be.

Now a little less than a year of being out of jail came a circumstance where her and I had to do a drop off and pick up face to face. I came and got our son and took him back. When I got him it was very much just stay outside I'll bring him to you and I didn't expect anything more than that and was just happy to see my son for the weekend and spend time with him. However the interesting part was the drop off.

I in no way shape or form think this was an accident. I got there asked if I could smoke outside cause I was currently borrowing a car while mine was in the shop and the owner is an anti smoker. She offered for me to come in and I accepted. She then offered me a drink so I had a beer. She poured hers in a fancy glass I took mine straight from the can like a real man, lol.. Something about that actually did feel more masculine to me so I went with it.

Anyways got a tour of the house and while I was there she texted a friend. Her friend blocked me in the driveway. Now I'm stuck here but had no idea at the time. Everyone began to chit chat and have a good time but I realized I said I wouldn't keep the car for long. Realizing I'd been there a half hour longer than I expected I just simply said I needed to head out. T hen her friend who was a married woman this is how I know it wasn't an accident, said oh I think we blocked you in when we got here.

So as not to ruin the moment or pressure them into not visiting each other I said oh no worries I can wait. I end up there a half hour more before they leave. I felt like I could've stayed longer but didn't push it instead I went with the I'm busy got stuff to do routine and headed on my way.

During our visit I was asked if we could be Facebook friends again and if everything between us was straight. I said yes that I didn't hold any anger towards her so if she wanted to be Facebook friends that was fine with me.

Now this is the same woman who told me no when I asked her the exact same way for the exact same reason.

Well now I'm at a point where every tactic I tried years ago only to fail she's now trying on me. Offering a drink with her was my idea a couple years back, offering facebook friends a couple years ago, all things I did a couple years back.

She is open to me again and wants to see me. She seems drawn to me again. I have re-attracted her, despite it all. Now it's just a matter of time and patience.

Even in the worst of my struggle with drugs I hoped her and I could at least be good friends again.

Now that she actively is trying to see me again, my second chance is at my feet and because of God and this program I feel like I really do have a second chance now.

Thank you guys very much you put together an awesome program that actually let me learn a lot about women and even more about myself and who I am as a man. Anonymous"

"Girls, girls, girls.

That is basically what my life consists of now. I spent my teens and 20s playing video games and never got to socialize much at all so my social skills were quite awkward and underdeveloped.

Just a month after reading your Flow ebook, I am swimming in girls. I've been having sex with 2 girls I met through friends at work and I picked up a girl last weekend at my local bar.

I'm confident and I can vibe with any type of person in a social situation now because I know what to say and I know what behaviors to avoid to prevent any awkwardness from occurring. I want to write to you and thank you for making the process of attracting and picking up girls so easy especially for a guy like me who had never really had any attention from girls.

I will be buy more of your programs in the coming months when I get paid. I'd like to learn about relationships now because I feel like I would like to settle down in a year from now so I want to be prepared.

Quinton”

“Approaching women was a nerve-wracking experience for me until I decided to learn from Dan and his team.

How Neediness Destroys Your Love Life

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

There's nothing wrong with showing your interest in a woman when you first meet her or being madly in love with her in a relationship, but there is a problem when your love and affection becomes warped by neediness.

Needy (adj): Wanting or needing affection, attention, or reassurance, especially to an excessive degree.

Needy love is unattractive to women because women are attracted to the emotional strength and security of men and turned off by the weakness. A woman wants to feel like you want her, but don't need her.

The more neediness and insecurity you display to a woman, the quicker she loses respect and attraction for you. When a woman loses respect and attraction for a guy, she then begins to fall out of love with him and question why she is with him at all.

Being Needy is the Opposite of Being the Challenge That Women Want

[image: Why do women like a guy who is a challenge?]

If a woman is attractive, most guys in this world would be willing to stick their dick in her at least once just because she looks good. Many of those guys would also be willing to have a relationship with her, just because she looks good.

As a woman grows up and realizes that she has this pussy power over men, she begins to feel less and less excited about guys who are so easily impressed by her. Eventually, she begins to wish that she could find a guy who is more of a challenge...

A needy guy rarely, if ever, offers any type of challenge to an attractive. He is impressed and wants to be with her because she is probably the only pretty woman who has shown him any interest in months, or even years.

In all the excitement, he fails to realize that she isn't looking to score another needy guy who can't attract other women. She's hoping to meet a guy who can make her feel some exciting attraction by being a bit of a challenge to seduce.

He doesn't realize that beautiful women don't want to feel like they're doing him a favor by giving him a "chance" to be with them. Instead, a woman wants to find a guy who makes her feel like she is lucky to be getting a chance with him.

Neediness is a Major Turn Off Because it's a Clear Sign That You Lack Confidence With Women

[image: Turning her off with neediness]

Some guys can't stop themselves from being needy of their woman because secretly, they know that it's difficult for them to attract other women.

If a guy becomes needy in a relationship, he will almost always be the type of guy who "got lucky" and met a girl who gave him a chance, even though he didn't make her feel much attraction initially.

Maybe she was bored and wanted to have sex with a new guy for a while, or wanted to use the needy guy's desperation for her to make herself feel better after being dumped by a guy who she couldn't get to commit.

Whatever the case, when she begins to pull back her interest even slightly, a needy guy will react by wanting and needing more of her time, affection and reassurance that she loves him and wants to be with only him.

In his mind, he thinks that if he can just show her how much she means to him, she will realize that she's lucky to have a guy who loves her so much. Yet, it doesn't work. Why?

A woman wants to be with a guy that she can respect and feel attracted to. Neediness and insecurity is the opposite of what attracts women and maintains their respect.

“Why Does He Keep Messaging Me? Give Me Some Time to Miss You...”

[image: Huh? Why is he texting me this insecure crap?]

One of the greatest gifts that you can give to a woman is the chance to miss you.

Needy guys can't give that gift to women because without her, they feel lost, lonely, insecure and in some cases, depressed.

When a needy guy meets a woman who actually seems as though she likes him, he'll usually panic and urgently try to "lock her down" into a relationship before another guy comes along. â□□Quick, quick, quick! I've got to secure this! I will never find another woman like her!â□□

What he doesn't realize is that, these days, most women want to take a guy for a "test drive" first and see how they feel about a relationship after that. He doesn't realize that most people have sex on the first night, first date or at the latest, second date and then take it from there.

If he's the typical needy guy, he comes on way too strong with a relationship vibe and essentially tries to get a girl to commit to a relationship before kissing and sex.

That was fine 120 years ago, but not today.

[image: The old days...]

In the past, women needed to save their virginity for marriage and then stick by that man for life, which is where the old "Till death do us part" saying comes in.

These days, women can have sex with whoever they want and settle down whenever they want. Just because a woman dates a guy, kisses him or has sex with him, she isn't obliged to then get into a serious relationship with him.

[image: Start with kissing and sex and then take it from there]

Likewise, just because a woman gets into a relationship with a guy, she is no longer obliged to stay with him for life. These days, a woman will only stay with a man for life if he knows how to deepen her love, respect and attraction over time.

Watch this video for more info...

It's totally possible to stay in a relationship or marriage for life and be truly happy and in love with each other.

You've got to do it right though.

If you do it wrong (e.g. you become insecure, jealous, start arguments all the time, can't handle her tests of your confidence, ruin her attraction for you), then it's only natural that you will most likely be another break up or divorce victim.

You don't have to go through all the horrible pain and frustration of losing your woman. You can keep a woman for life, but you've got to do it right.

If you are needy or become needy in a relationship, you will never be able to enjoy true, lasting success with women.

Some Women Use Needy Guys as a Self-Esteem Booster

[image: Using a needy guy as a self-esteem boost]

If a woman doesn't reject or dump a needy guy right away, she will often pretend that she is interested and use his desperation for her as a self-esteem boost until she meets a guy who actually makes her feel respect and attraction.

When she is leading him on, she will say things like, "I don't want to ruin our friendship" or "I'm not ready for a relationship right now" or "I like you, but I need time."

Then, when he finds out that she has started dating or having sex with another guy (e.g. she posts up photos on Facebook, or even changes her status to "In a Relationship") he feels betrayed and even angry at her.

How could she do such a thing? Simple: She never felt attracted to him. She was just using him to make herself feel more confident when she interacted with a guy who she was actually attracted to.

Often, women like that will tell a guy that they are attracted to about all the other guys who like her. She will try to show the guy that she likes that she is in demand and hopefully it will make him feel like he needs to secure her into a relationship.

Crazy mind games, eh?

Well, that is what happens when you don't know how to attract women and are hoping that women will "give you a chance" because you're such a good guy.

When a needy guy gets dumped by a woman he really likes (often before they've even had sex), he will start looking for reasons why. Yet, because he doesn't even know how to attract women, he will assume that he isn't good looking enough, rich enough, tall enough, etc.

He might begin lifting weights at the gym and buy new clothes in an attempt to improve his appearance in the hope that she "notices" him. Yet, what the woman was turned off by was his neediness; not his appearance.

As a female friend of mine said recently, "Anxiety makes a guy look ugly. Confidence makes him look sexy."

That's the truth about attraction. If you're not confident, you don't look good to women. It's that simple. You can have all the muscles in the world but, if you lack confidence and are needy for attention, love or affection, women will not find you attractive.

No matter how hard you try, you can't hide your lack of confidence or desperation from women. Why? It comes through via your body language, tonality, conversation and actions.

If a woman wants to find out whether or not you are needy, all she has to do is show you some interest, seduce you by acting like she is interested in a sexual way and then pull back her interest.

If you laugh at her and let her go, you're not needy and she will be excited to have finally found a guy who wants her, but doesn't need her. However, if you panic and come across in a way where she can tell that you're worried about losing your opportunity with her, she will rapidly begin to lose interest.

It may sound like a lot annoying mind games, but women do that because it is so EASY for them to get laid. If a woman is attractive, pretty every guy would bang her. That isn't exciting for her.

She wants a guy who could easily have other women, but will choose her if she impresses him enough. Meeting a guy like that is as rare as us men meeting a woman who is a 10/10. It only happens once in a blue moon and when it does, boy does it get your attention...

Why Do Women Like Jerks and Bad Boys?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The reason why women like jerks or bad boys is that their confidence and behavior triggers feelings of attraction inside of the woman.

The same applies to you...

You have most-likely been going through life saying that you want a nice, intelligent girl that you can trust, rely on and proudly introduce to your family and friends. Yet, you are also attracted to slutty strippers.

[image: A beautiful stripper]

Strippers are bad girls are you can't stop yourself from feeling attracted to them, even though you want to get a nice, pretty girl that doesn't show off her naked body to hundreds of men every night.

Almost All Women Want to Find a Good Guy, Not a Bad Boy

If you've seen beautiful, intelligent women lust after jerks and bad boys, you might have come to the conclusion that women must prefer bad men.

Yet, it's not true.

Almost all women (99%) would prefer to be with a good guy who ALSO makes her feel sexually attracted, but if none of those guys are available (they usually aren't. Hence why you will often hear women saying, "Where are all the real men??") a woman will hook up with other guys who can make her feel attracted, which are usually the jerks or bad boys.

Why doesn't being nice to a woman make her feel attracted? Watch this video to understand...

There is NOTHING wrong with being nice to a woman (I am nice to women and I had sex with more than 250 of them, before recently settling down with a sexy, 22 year old even though I'm 37 years old), but you ALSO have to make her feel sexually attracted to you.

If your main approach to women is just to be nice and hope that they like you enough because you're such a good guy, then you're always going to get rejected and the spark is always going to die in your relationships.

Do You Even Know How to Attract Women?

Back when I had no idea how to attract women, I used to look on at women and think, "WTF? Why is she with that guy?"

I'd see beautiful, intelligent women with guys who looked like thugs, low-IQ idiots or douchebags. It just didn't make any sense. From my perspective, I thought that I was approaching the situation correctly...

I was (and still am) a nice, good guy with good intentions. Yet, no matter how much I showed that to women, they didn't care! They just rejected me. Why? NOTHING that I was saying and doing was making the women feel sexually attracted to me.

It was only years later that I eventually realized the real reason why a lot of good guys fail with women...

Women Don't Want a Bad Man

Women are not desperately seeking a bad man who will treat them like crap.

However, most women would rather be with a man who doesn't really care if he loses her, instead of being with a guy who needs her for his emotional security and sense of identity.

Why? Simple...women find it extremely easy to attract men for sex. If a woman is attractive, pretty much every guy in the world is willing to stick his dick in her at least once.

Based on this reality, the majority of women get to the point where they want a guy to be more of a challenge to impress and seduce. Here's why...

Almost all women want a good man, who also has the ability to make her feel attracted to him.

Women do NOT want a bad man who will cause them harm, treat them badly, cheat on them, etc.

If you are going through life thinking that women like jerks and bad boys because they want to be treated badly, you are wrong.

Women are not seeking bad men who will hurt them. Women are simply looking for a good guy who isn't a pushover. She doesn't want you to be instantly impressed by her and willing to have sex and a relationship with her simply because you feel attracted to her physical appearance.

She wants you to realize the reality that she lives in (i.e. most guys would bang her) and then allow her to have the experience of trying to impress you enough to get you interested. She wants to feel lucky to get a chance with you, rather than feeling like you're just another horny guy who is hoping to get a chance with her.

She Doesn't Want You to Behave Like a Sweet Guy From a â◻◻Chick Flickâ◻◻

[image: Being romantic and sweet only works if she feels attracted to you first]

In many Hollywood movies, you will see a man being super nice, sweet and romantic to a woman.

Throughout the movie, the woman will be "swept off her feet" by his niceness and generosity and after he saves the day, saves the world or saves her from danger (or a bad boy), they will fall in love and live happily ever after.

Women cry when they watch those movies and say, â◻◻Oh, he's so sweet...I wish a man would treat me that way,â◻◻ yet what most guys don't realize is that women don't find a guy's niceness appealing UNLESS they are attracted to him.

In the movie, the scriptwriters turn the sweet, romantic guy into a confident hero who saves the day, which then makes the woman feel attracted to him. In real life, you don't get to save the day and you have to attract her in other ways...

If your main approach to women is to be nice, sweet and innocent, then your main response will be rejection and disappointment. Women DO want to find themselves a good guy, but if she doesn't feel turned on by you when she interacts with you, she isn't going to care how nice, sweet and good you are.

She might like you as a friend or even lead you on and pretend that she likes you or will stay with you for life (if you happen to get her into a relationship), but she will always leave herself open to being seduced by other guys.

If you want to be successful at picking up women and then keeping a woman in a relationship, you have to offer more than just being a good guy. A woman wants to feel sexual attraction for you, not just nice, friendly feelings.

You do NOT have to become a bad boy or be a jerk to women, but you do need to start saying and doing the types of things that actually make women feel turned on. If you don't do that, you can't expect women to suddenly change their natural instincts.

Just like you can't help yourself from being attracted to strippers or sluts in porn, women can't help themselves from being attracted to the sorts of things that we teach here at The Modern Man.

These Days, You Have to Start With Kissing and Sex

[image: Start with kissing and sex and then take it from there]

In the past, women were completely dependant on men for their survival. A woman's life was essentially about growing up, finding herself a nice gentleman for a husband, raising a family and then dying.

Since it was shameful to divorce, a woman had to select a man based on how nice he was and how well set up he was to support her and their family.

[image: The old days...]

In 1900 for example, the divorce rate was less than 10% across the developed world, whereas it's an average of about 50% these days.

In today's world, women select men based on how much sexual attraction they feel. Women know that they don't need to settle down with the first guy they have sex with. Instead of saving her virginity for marriage, a woman will have sex with whomever she likes and settle down whenever she feels like it.

[image: Kiss her, have sex with her and then think about starting a relationship]

This is one of the reasons why the nice guy approach doesn't work anymore. The nice guy approach comes on too strong with a relationship vibe, whereas most women just want to take you for a "test drive" first and see how they feel.

Instead of trying to get women to give you a chance by being nice to them, you need to make them feel attracted to you and then escalate to kissing and sex. After you've had sex, both of you can then decide whether or not you just want to keep having sex or maybe start a relationship...

The Fear of Going After What You Want With Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

What do you really want to experience with women?

I'm not talking about what you tell other people, but what you really want? Do you ever picture yourself having sex with new women all the time, or is your ultimate fantasy to be married to a sexy, beautiful woman who loves you more than anything else in the world?

Whatever it is that you really want with women, why are you getting it? What is really stopping you?

If you're like a lot of modern men, it is FEAR.

Irrational, unnecessary, stupid FEAR.

Here's the thing...

Fear feeds on the power that you give it. Fear can only exist if you feed it. If you want to be a truly confident man, you have to feed your confidence, not your fear.

Some guys go through life looking for reasons to be fearful, rather than looking for reasons to be confident. They hide themselves away from women and if they do interact with women, they present a weak, hesitant, fearful version of themselves.

Instead of having the confidence to be themselves and allow an interaction to unfold naturally, they tense up and put on an act of being someone they're not.

The fear being rejected, fear saying the wrong thing and fear being embarrassed or humiliated in front of others. It's a horrible state of existence that I once used to live with, until I discovered what I reveal in this video...

Life or Death Fears Are Useful

The primal feeling of fear is a useful thing when it comes to protecting your life (e.g. running away from a tiger, keeping your home locked at night to prevent intruders from entering, etc), but for anything else it usually just holds you back from achieving what you want.

For example: Approaching women.

Many guys feel fear when they want to approach an attractive woman. All of a sudden, thoughts like these trigger feelings of fear, anxiety and nervousness:

- What if she has an angry boyfriend and he rushes over and then beats me up?
- What if she tells me to go away and humiliates me in front of everyone?
- What if I approach her and get rejected and then other women think I am a loser?
- What if something that I know from work (or university) sees me getting rejected?
- What if I run out of things to say and look like an idiot?
- What if freaks out and other people step in and tell me to go away?

Yet, what most of these guys don't realize is that the majority of women are friendly and open when approached by a guy, as long as he approaches and talks to her in a confident, easy-going way.

If a guy approaches and immediately tries to pick her up in a rushed way, or comes across as nervous, awkward and tense, then of course she isn't going to react as positively as she would to a guy who is confident, easy-going and isn't in a rush to get a phone number.

How can you feel confident and relaxed when approaching women? Start by watching this video...

When you approach women in the right way (i.e. you make them feel attracted to you and you have an easy-going attitude), things flow smoothly from one step to the next. After experiencing that a few times, you begin to realize that approaching women isn't something to be afraid of – it's something to be excited about.

There's nothing more rewarding for a single guy than being able to approach and attract women at will. Suddenly, the world opens up to him and he has his choice with women.

He's no longer the fearful guy who waits in the shadows or spends most of his time masturbating, watching TV, "hanging out" with people on social media. Instead, he's getting laid with hot girls and getting the love, respect and attention that he has deserved all along.

Yet, none of that will happen for him unless he faces up to his fears and becomes the man that he knows he can be.

"Do one thing every day that scares you." Eleanor Roosevelt, longest-serving First Lady of the United States

"We can easily forgive a child who is afraid of the dark; the real tragedy of life is when men are afraid of the light." Plato, Classical Greek philosopher

Fear Based on Previous Experiences

If you've been rejected by a lot of women and don't really know why, it's understandable that you will feel some fear, insecurity and anxiety around women that you find attractive.

However, that fear is not a permanent thing that you have to live with. You can get rid of it by learning how to attract women properly so they don't reject you.

Over the years I've heard many guys say things like, "I really do want to have a relationship with a beautiful woman, but I've been rejected so many times in the past and have been turned down when I've asked women out. I stopped trying a while back because women are just too choosy these days. You can't please them."

Yet, those guys are wrong.

What they don't realize is that they ARE good enough for women, but are simply approaching the pick up in the wrong way. For example...

Many guys use the nice guy approach and wonder why women reject them for it...

Many guys don't even realize why women like a guy who is more of a challenge...

The more you learn from me, the more you will realize that you ARE good enough for women. You can attract and keep a beautiful woman, but you have to approach things in the right way.

If you are sick and tired of missing out on experiencing the type of success with women that you KNOW you deserve, then stop fuelling your fear and start fuelling your confidence...

The First Few Minutes of Conversation With a Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you can't get past the first few minutes of conversation with a woman, you will rarely get the chance to kiss, have sex or begin a relationship.

The longer you can talk to a woman, the more opportunity you have to build up her attraction and desire for you. This is important because, unlike men who are willing to have sex with women purely based on her looks, most women need to have their attraction built up based on what the guy is saying and doing during the interaction.

Do You Make Any of These Conversation Mistakes When Talking to Women?

Don't Worry About Trying to Come Up With a Perfect Opening Line

[image: What is the perfect opening line?]

What's most important is whether or not your behavior, vibe, body language and personality is attractive to the woman.

For example: If a nervous guy approaches a woman with a great conversation starter like, "Hey, I thought I'd come over and say hi" the woman isn't going to be as interested as she would be if he was confident, relaxed and easy going.

Since most men have never been taught how to attract women during an interaction, a lot of them mistakenly assume that the opening line is the most important part.

Some guys hope that if the opening line is good enough, the woman will be magically charmed and the rest of the pick-up will be as easy as pie. Yet, as you may have experienced in your life, most women don't give men a free pass unless the woman is extremely drunk, unattractive or desperate for some attention.

Most women have standards, so if you don't know how to make her feel attracted, she simply won't be interested in you no matter what you say. However, when you make a woman feel sexually attracted to you, she then starts to appreciate the other things about you (e.g. you're a good guy, you have good intentions, you're charming, etc).

She opens herself up the conversation and interaction and actually wants something to happen between you. This is why it's so important that you know how to attract women. If you don't know how to attract women, improving your conversation skills isn't really going to change the results you've been getting.

Watch this video to understand why...

What Do You Say Next?

[image: How to Avoid Awkward Silences]

To keep a conversation going with a woman, you need to trust your gut instinct and say whatever comes to mind.

If you freeze up and start thinking too much about what to say, you will be using up valuable mental space in your brain. Instead of being your normal, cool self, you will begin to shut down and become the more nervous, unsure version of yourself.

Women don't want to meet the unsure, nervous version of you. They want you to believe in yourself and believe that you're good enough. If you can't do that while interacting with her, she will rapidly lose interest because women are turned off by insecurity.

Are Your Friends Bringing You Down?

[image: How to deal with other guys hitting on the same girl as you during a conversation]

Many guys don't have any supportive friends to encourage them as they make approaches and improve their skills with women. Instead, most guys have friends who tease them and make them feel even more insecure by providing incorrect advice (e.g. that women don't want to be approached, women only want bad boys, etc).

Personally speaking, back when I was hopeless with women and only had one friend, he would say to me, "Don't worry, Dan...they're all stuck up bitches. They wouldn't know a good guy if they met one. You can't win with these chicks. Let's just go get a coffee and grab something to eat."

No matter how much I tried to convince him to stay at the bar or club and try to approach, he would just say that women are stuck up and think they are too good for us.

He was wrong.

It was HIM who thought that he wasn't good enough.

What both of us didn't know back then was that women don't want guys to feel like they're not good enough. They HOPE that a guy has the balls to approach them and believe in himself, especially when she plays hard to get to test his confidence.

Yet, I had no-one around to tell me that. All I had was one friend who was insecure and believed that women were impossible to pick up.

As you might imagine, my friend's horrible advice messed with my confidence and self-esteem. I believed him because he was a guy that I looked up to. Thanks to him, I began to develop a perception of women as being nasty, mean and superficial and assumed they only wanted bad boys, models, rich guys or guys with big muscles and flashy cars.

So, when I wanted to walk up and talk to a woman, it was only natural that I felt anxious and nervous. I assumed that I wasn't good looking enough, so I approached with the expectation that women wouldn't really be that interested.

When women saw that I doubted myself, it turned them off and they rejected me. I didn't know what to do and I didn't know why I was failing. Eventually, I discovered the reason why and the solution to fix it...

Are You Sick of Being on Your Own?

[image: Why can't I find a nice girl?]

After experiencing many rejections for reasons that he doesn't understand, a guy will usually get to the point where he thinks, What's the point in even trying? I walk up to them, try to get a conversation going and they just brush me off. They don't even give me a chance.

It all seems too difficult and makes a guy feel like he doesn't deserve to be successful with women. After a while, guys like that often fade into the background. If he goes to a bar or club for example, he will just sit back or stand around watching everyone else talking and having a great time.

Some guys also go to bars or clubs and fall in love with a woman they are observing. He will stare at her, try to think of something amazing to say and have a few more drinks to build up the courage to approach her. Yet, he will rarely if ever approach.

Eventually, he will look on in despair as his woman leaves with a confident guy who approached, got her interested and then took it to the next level.

If you are sick of being on your own and would rather have loads of women in your life, then decide to take the next step now...

Success Isn't a Straight Line

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When most people start out on a path to success, they imagine it going something like this...

[image: Your plan vs. reality]

Yet, the reality of success is that you will often encounter challenges and obstacles along the way.

If you are willing to overcome those obstacles, you will achieve the kind of success that most people simply never reach in life.

Likewise, if you are willing to change your approach to something and try something new, you will find that you simply cannot be right about everything in life all the time.

Sometimes, you have to open your mind to other ideas to see the real truth.

Two Important Questions For YouThe Ladder of Success

Almost every man wants to climb up the ladder of his chosen field, so he can declare that his life is a success.

He wants to experience the feeling of being successful and having his dreams come true, but if he is like the majority of guys in this world, he's not prepared to climb the ladder. He wants success right now, without having to take any more steps.

Too many guys make the mistake of thinking that their rise up the ladder of success should be unrestricted because they "deserve" it.

[image: Why am I not successful in life?]

Some guys may ask questions like, "I'm a good guy and I have good intentions about my success, so why don't people just see that and help me? Why do they make it hard for me? Why can't things just work the first time I try them? Why can't I just get what I want without any effort? Why do I have to try so hard? Why is life and success so challenging?"

Here's the thing...

Success almost always comes to those who EARN it, not those who DESERVE it and simply get it for not doing anything.

Yes, some people in this world are born into a rich family and have success handed to them. Some guys are very good looking and find it easy to attract women. Some guys are naturally better at sports than others.

Yet, the majority of people in this world have to do what it takes to EARN their success. They have to climb the ladder of success one step at a time, rather than expecting to take the express elevator because they are more deserving of success than other people.

If you really want something in this life, you have to believe that you can achieve it, but you also have to understand that your rise to the top of the ladder won't always be care free.

Some guys have a naive, idealistic of success and expect that no-one will get in their way, they won't encounter any challenging situations and it will all pretty much be "smooth sailing" from one step to the next.

Unfortunately, success rarely plays out that way. On your way to the top of the ladder, you will often have to take two steps up, then one back down. With persistence, you will get there and you will be more successful than 99% of people who just aren't willing to keep going.

Keep Going and You Will Succeed

“Obstacles don't have to stop you. If you run into a wall, don't turn around and give up. Figure out how to climb it, go through it, or work around it.” Michael Jordan, NBA superstar

If you speak to men who have achieved amazing success in their chosen path in life, they'll tell you that there are always going to be obstacles along the way to success.

They'll also tell you that many of the things they discovered while overcoming those obstacles were some of the best lessons they've ever learned about success and life in general.

When it comes to success, it is the moments when you are feeling most challenged that you will either give up or learn, adapt, grow and become a stronger, wiser and a more successful man than you ever thought possible.

When you reach that point, you will be living your life from a position of power that most people will never experience because they simply give up and assume that they can't make it to the top, or even close to the top.

If at First You Don't Succeed...

Too many men try something once or twice and if they aren't successful, they give up and berate themselves for their failure.

Falling into a world of pity and weakness, men like this refuse to step back, re-think the problem and come at it from another direction or with a different approach. These men either lack the understanding that with more effort and perseverance they will eventually achieve success, or they assume that their initial approach was correct and everyone else must be wrong.

A classic example of this is when a guy uses the “nice guy” approach on women and keeps getting rejected. In his mind, he is doing the right thing and if he gets rejected enough times, he may begin to assume that everyone is crazy or that women must want bad boys.

Yet, there is a much more simple explanation why being too nice to a woman often results in rejection...

Lessons From Successful Men

The most successful men don't give up at the first sign of failure. They rethink their approach or get advice from experts and then try again.

Here are some examples:

1. Legendary moviemaker, Steven Spielberg, was rejected by his dream college, the University of Southern California several times. Not wanting to give up on what he desired, he went to another school and later created movies that have made film history.

2. When he was a child, Thomas Edison's teachers advised his parents that he was "stupid" and wouldn't amount to anything. Years later, although he tried over a thousand times to come up with a working light bulb, he eventually succeeded and brought us all out of the dark.

3. Although it may have taken Edison over a thousand attempts to create the light bulb, it took British inventor, Sir James Dyson, 15 years, his life savings and 5,127 attempts to come up with a revolutionary new vacuum cleaner system that brought him outstanding success.

He refused to give up and his efforts have literally cleaned up our lives and saved our wives and girlfriends from countless hours of sweeping and dusting.

4. "Colonel" Harland David Sanders brought his "Kentucky fried chicken" recipe to more than a thousand restaurants that rejected it saying that their patrons wouldn't like it. Now he has thousands of KFC restaurants worldwide where people line up for his "finger-lickin' good" chicken.

5. It took three of his automobile companies going bankrupt (imagine just experiencing ONE company going bankrupt or you going personally bankrupt) and iron determination before Henry Ford's car designs became one of the most successful in the world.

6. He was fired from his first newspaper writing job because his editor didn't think that Walt Disney had any imagination or good ideas. (I think Mickey Mouse, dozens of other characters and billions of people worldwide who have enjoyed his movies, cartoons, books theme parks, toys and more would probably disagree with his first employer's evaluation!)

7. When he didn't speak until after age 4 and was considered a "mentally handicapped" student, there seemed little hope for Albert Einstein. Although he may have been a "slow starter," he later went on to win the prestigious Nobel prize for physics.

8. When he applied for an engineering job at Toyota, Soichiro Honda was rejected. To help pay his bills, he started to make motorcycles which eventually brought him his initial success. That enterprise then led him to starting his own automotive company and ultimately becoming a billionaire.

Those are just a few of 1,000s of examples of famous men who failed to succeed early in life, but went on to be a huge success later in life.

I've used famous people as examples because most readers will recognize the names or things they achieved. I'm NOT saying that the type of success these men achieved is what every man should aim for (i.e. business success or success in Hollywood for example), but I am saying that if you want to be successful, don't think that it will happen in a simple, straight line.

Be prepared to drive over the hills, hang on and stick with it when going through rough terrain and use your determination, desire and intelligence to cruise on to ultimate victory.

It's fortunate for all of us that the men listed above (who could have easily considered themselves a failure and simply given up like most other men do) were confident, determined and dedicated enough to their dreams to push through to success.

They went on to become valuable contributors to humanity because for them, failure was NOT an option. Where most others would have given up, they were strong enough to keep going until they reached the top of the ladder. They didn't stop climbing because life forced them to take one or even two steps back. They pushed on.

Through courage, hard work and belief in themselves and their abilities these men went on to achieve phenomenal success in life.

How about you? Will you give up on your dreams or will you be brave, wise and strong enough to push through to the success that is waiting for you?

Wanting something is not enough. You must hunger for it. Your motivation must be absolutely compelling in order to overcome the obstacles that will invariably come your way.

Do You Have the Right Attitude For Success to Naturally Happen to You?

If you have the right attitude and the right information, the path to success will naturally unfold before you. Of course, there will be bumps in the road along the way, but if you have the courage and will to continue, the success that you desire and dream of will begin to emerge before your eyes.

Here's an example of what I mean...

Not too long ago, I watched a documentary that interviewed 25 (mostly American) character actors. I recognized them all from TV shows, commercials, movies and so forth, but if their name wasn't up on screen while being interviewed, I wouldn't have known any of their names.

These actors were often cast in character roles as a lawyer, friend of the leading man, doctor, cop, salesman and so forth. However, despite not being a well-known megastar in the movie scene, in the highly-competitive world of acting, for the most part, these men would be considered successful.

By getting those secondary roles, they had their foot in the door and at that point in an actor's career, he either will take his foot out of the door and give up trying to become a leading man or he will use his strength to continually push until he gets the door fully open and walks right into the Hall of Fame, so to speak.

The men who reach the top of their game are those who never stop learning, believing and trying. It's not enough to just believe that you can do it, you also have to learn how to do it better and then try again and again until you get it right.

Three of the actors in the documentary caught my attention because of their uniquely different attitudes and how that applied to their level of success.

One of the actors was often cast in the tough guy role because of his looks and size. The acting work he was usually hired for was as a cop, a criminal, a firefighter, construction worker and so forth.

Despite his rising success, his bad attitude towards auditions eventually became his downfall. He hated auditions because he saw himself as a big shot actor and looked at auditions as something that newer actors should have to do but not him.

After a couple of decades of acting in his typecast roles, he thought that producers should just look at his previous work and decide if they wanted him for a certain role.

If they asked him to audition, he would do it if he wanted the part badly enough, but he resented having to go through the audition process and it showed in his attitude before and after he did his scene. Producers weren't impressed by his attitude and gradually, his agent began getting less and less calls for him until the phone just stopped ringing altogether.

This is a classic case of a guy getting half-way up a ladder and thinking, *â€œWell, I've gotten this far. Where is the lift or elevator? I'm too special to have to keep climbing up this stupid ladder! I'm a VIP...the rest of this should be all taken care of for me!*â€œ and while he was living in that fantasy land, other men were climbing right past him on their way to bigger and better success.

The same applies to success with women. Often, a guy will learn how to approach women and then begin approaching women, get a few good responses and maybe even collect a few phone numbers and go out on a few dates.

Yet, when those dates don't turn into kissing, sex or a relationship, he will stop, half-way up the ladder, thinking, *â€œWhy am I not at the top of the ladder yet?*â€œ

Simple.

He stopped climbing!

You have to keep going. You can't get half way to success and expect that the rest will just unfold naturally without any effort. It would be nice if life worked that way, but it doesn't. You have to push on to victory by continuing to learn, believe and try. Eventually, you will break through to a level of success that most guys never reach in their entire lifetime.

Another actor in the documentary had the look of a â€œprofessional and he often was cast as a lawyer, a doctor, a banker or some other role that required a man who looked good in a suit or who was believable as an authoritative character.

What impressed me about him was that he was wise enough to enjoy the audition process and fully embrace the path of life that he had chosen. His thinking was that even if he didn't get the role, for those few minutes during the audition, the part was his.

He would â€œget into character and embrace the role as best as he could and enjoy the process. Not surprisingly, he often was cast in whatever role he auditioned for because he had the confidence and joy of being that â€œcharacter (if only for a short time).

As a result of his approach to auditioning, he was requested often by film and TV executives if they thought he might possibly be right for the part.

They wanted to audition someone who was willing to embrace their film or TV idea as well as the character he was auditioning for, not some arrogant guy who thinks that everyone should bow at his feet because he's been trying to get somewhere in the acting business for years.

As for the second actor who had a great attitude toward auditions, even if producers couldn't cast him for that particular part (for a variety of reasons such as scheduling conflicts, he appeared in a similar part recently, etc.), the next time they had a possible opportunity for him, they would call his agent to set up an audition for him or simply ask if he was available for a part they knew he'd be right for.

The second actor with a great attitude is a classic example of how success will unfold for you if you use the right approach and have the right attitude.

Eventually the door just has to open for you. It has to.

When the door opens and you keep climbing, you eventually reach the top of the ladder and achieve the type of success you only ever used to dream about. It's inevitable as long as you keep learning, believing and trying.

The third actor was someone who I'd watched many times before on TV and in small movie roles. In the interview, he admitted that he still gets nervous before an audition for a role.

In an attempt to calm his nerves, he said that he would learn his lines (if they were available to him), do some research on the character and get used to talking and acting like the character. No matter what he did though, he always felt nervous.

Although he still doesn't understand how to overcome his anxiety and nerves, his "be prepared" approach has allowed him to keep pushing on and on, to the point where he has been cast in about 80% of the roles he's tried out for, which is a very high success rate in the acting industry.

At the end of the documentary, there was a note saying that the second and third actor (who I described above) had recently been cast as "series regulars" for new shows that were starting the following season.

When I checked up about the first actor with the bad attitude about auditions, he had only had a couple of very small, unimportant parts in some B-grade movies and low-budget TV show pilots. For the second and third actors, much of their success has been due to their positive and productive attitude towards what they are trying to achieve.

The first actor stopped half-way up the ladder and expected everyone to make the rest of the climb easier for him, while the other two have continued on as best as they can in pursuit of their dreams and now are seeing more success.

How about you?

Are you allowing the path of success to unfold naturally before you because of your great attitude, or have you stopped climbing the ladder and feel like the world should just lift you up to the top because you're a good guy?

Do you expect women to suddenly make it easy for you and allow you to climb the ladder without you having to do a thing, or are you willing to learn what you need to learn to be more successful?

A Personal Story from Me

When I was in my first year of high school, the teachers notified us students that there would be a long-distance running competition at the school.

The winner would get a trophy and a prize and the top five runners from each year level would get to go to a forest retreat for a week-long training camp that would improve our long-distance running abilities in preparation for inter-school competitions.

On the day of the running competition at my school, I told my classmates that I was going to win and most of them laughed at me because one of the bullies shouted out, "Ha ha, Bacon thinks he's gonna win. What a loser!"

Anyway, so I won. Not only did I win, but I also came first out of the entire school beating all of the older kids in the higher year levels.

That year, I competed against other schools and even with all of the training and hard work I put in, the best I could achieve was fifth place in one event and seventh in another. Despite my obvious talent with long-distance running, I didn't know that I was lacking a key component for success – the right information.

I had absolutely NO techniques to use to help me run faster. I was just running.

My school teachers were not experts at the sport of long distance running and simply told us to run and try your best when at the training camp. They didn't teach us ANY techniques that would help us improve, but simply woke us up early each morning to run for an hour, then another 30 minutes during the afternoon and 30 more at night.

Later in life, when I had discovered that the right information is so crucial to success, I met a successful runner (he'd competed in national and world championships) and asked him what type of techniques he used for improving his running game.

As he sat there reeling off technique after technique, I was astounded, shocked and disappointed. I said to him, If only I'd known this stuff back at school, I would have won at least some of the major races. The guys from the elite private schools only beat me by a few meters, which is nothing in a long-distance race.

After our chat, I tested out his techniques and instantly added at least twice as much horsepower to my running. I felt like a running machine when I did what he recommended compared to the inefficient, clunky style that I was using, which was consuming more energy than necessary.

His techniques allowed me to make more efficient running strides with less effort and I felt like I was running in fast forward. When I experienced that, I just knew for sure that I could have won those races if I'd just been given the right advice and shown those techniques.

The moral of the story?

You can have all the talent in the world, but if you don't have good technique, you won't be successful unless you get incredibly lucky or fluke your success. The way to make success easy is to get the right information and great techniques that are used by successful people.

Just look at what Thomas Edison had to go through to create the light bulb (thousands of failed attempts because he was doing it wrong), or think about the 150+ times I had to approach women before I eventually worked out what I now teach here at The Modern Man.

If someone had just given Edison the ANSWER, he could have made light bulbs and the other great inventions he thought of much faster and easier.

Likewise, if someone had just given me the advice I needed about approaching and attracting women, I wouldn't have had to face so many cold, harsh rejections and bitter, empty feelings as I headed home alone each time without even so much as a phone number.

Back when I didn't know how to attract women, they were cold and uninterested when I approached. They didn't help and allow me to climb the ladder by teaching me what I didn't know. They just rejected me and let me fail.

I was on my own.

Even though I was trying hard to succeed, I was doing it WRONG. I didn't know the correct way to attract women because no-one was there to help me and tell me what I was doing right and what I was doing wrong.

Dating After Divorce

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

It's a lot easier for a woman to start dating after a divorce because she only has to put up an online dating profile and she will have 100s of guys willing to date her immediately.

The same rules don't apply for men though.

Why? Most men are willing to have sex with a woman simply based on how she looks, so it's easy for women to attract men for sex or dating. Men look through online dating sites and are willing to meet up with pretty much any of the women who look good enough for sex or a relationship.

As for women, they look for completely different things in a man when they meet him in PERSON, but if they are looking ONLINE, they select men based on looks and financial status. This happens because the woman has 100s and often 1,000s of men to choose from.

In person, women are more attracted to a man's personality traits and behaviors (e.g. confidence, charisma, ability to make her laugh, charm, etc), which is why it is much easier to begin dating after divorce if you actually approach and attract women in person.

If you are afraid to approach and attract new women, watch this...

What you need to understand is that MOST guys don't approach because they are scared of modern women.

That is a HUGE opportunity for you.

When you are the man who has the confidence to approach and the ability to attract women when you do approach, you will LAUGH at how easy it is to pick up women these days.

By the way...

All of the guys below are perfect examples of the fact that women can be attracted to things other than looks in a man.

Women can feel attracted to good looking, handsome men, but if an average looking or below-average looking guy knows how to make a woman feel a lot of attraction to his personality and behavior, she will forget about the fact that he doesn't look like a male model and fall in love with who he is on the inside.

Are You Ready to Meet New Women?

If you are looking to meet new women after coming out of a divorce, you need to get yourself ready to succeed.

For example:

Do you know how to attract women when you meet them?

Are you using the old nice guy approach to women?

Do you make any of these mistakes when talking to women that result in a woman feeling turned off or losing interest?

The more prepared you get before meeting new women, the easier it will be to attract and pick them up.

Once you know how to properly attract women, you will find that the majority of women that you meet feel a spark with you and see you as a charming, charismatic man.

You can do this.

You can bounce back from the divorce and become an even more attractive man than you've ever been so far in life.

You can be the sort of man that women refer to as a real man or a catch.

It's actually quite easy to do, as long as you are willing to learn how to properly attract women during conversations and interactions.

Life Without a Wife

[image: Dating after divorce]

You have already gone through the pain of a break up with a woman you love, so you know that it isn't a pleasant experience.

One minute, you feel safe in your marriage and you have the identity of being a husband and the next, you're on your own again. She turns her back on you and starts moving on with her life without you.

[image: Are you ready to meet new women?]

You're on your own now, so what are you going to do about it?

Are you going to begin having sex with lots of new women or get into a serious relationship with the next great woman you find?

Some men bounce back quickly after a divorce because they are confident and know how to attract women. However, the ones who struggle the most are those who have lost their mojo and forgotten how to actually flirt with women and attract them.

After a few unsuccessful attempts at talking to women, many divorced men feel like giving up.

It seems so difficult and they begin to think that maybe their lack of success with women is due to the fact that they are now a divorcee.

Yet, it's not.

The reason why so many good men get rejected by women is that they don't even know how to ATTRACT women during an interaction. They simply hope to be LIKED for being a nice man.

That's not how it works.

You've got to actively make a woman feel sexually attracted to you by displaying personality traits that naturally attract women.

When you know how to attract women with your personality and behavior (e.g. confidence, charisma, conversation style, ability to make her laugh, masculine vibe, etc), you will find it easy to attract women who are single and looking to meet a real man like you.

Why Did You and Your Wife Get a Divorce?

Did you:

- Marry a woman who wasn't truly compatible with you?
- Gradually ruin the love, respect and attraction she felt for you?
- Divorce because of infidelity or trust issues?
- Take her for granted?
- Divorce because of financial stress?
- Disagree with how to parent your children?
- Argue too much?

There are many core reasons why a couple will end up falling apart in a relationship or marriage, but there is one common reason that I have identified after years of research and successful experience with relationships...

Sometimes a break up can be prevented by ensuring that you deepen her love, respect and attraction for you and get the pillars back in place, while other times (e.g. when you're not compatible) a divorce is an inevitability.

In today's world, a man has to choose the right woman for him, rather than accepting whatever he can get or accepting an incompatible woman and then trying to make it work.

In a relationship and then marriage, a man has to know how to deepen a woman's love, respect and attraction for him over time or else the woman will gradually lose interest and consider leaving him.

Relationship aren't the same as they were in the past...

[image: The old days...]

120 years ago for example, the divorce rate was less than 10% in the developed world. Women had to stay with a man for life even if they were unhappy. The old saying of, "Till death do us part" was literal.

Not anymore.

[image: Modern women]

Women can now do whatever they want with their relationships. Modern society now accepts divorce and sometimes even encourages women to leave men who aren't living up to their expectations. It's a good and bad thing.

A good thing because it has forced us men to become better and a bad thing because it tears families apart that would have otherwise stayed together.

He Gave Her Flowers, So She Dumped Him...

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Imagine this...

A guy named Michael is on his way to a first date with a woman that he met through a mutual friend. He booked a table at an expensive restaurant and bought a dozen red roses to give her when they meet. He knows red roses are her favorite flowers because he asked his friend to find out what flowers she likes.

They have a nice meal, exchange some friendly conversation and then Michael begins to discuss where they should go on their second date. He says he knows a great restaurant that he would love to take her to. He then picks up the tab, of course.

He drives her home and walks her to her door, but doesn't try to kiss her because, in his mind, that wouldn't be the right thing to do on a first date. He's worried about her thinking that he only wants her for sex, so he avoids kissing her to show how much he "respects" her.

Before he walks away, he says that he really likes her and about the great restaurant he was talking about and tells her that he'll call tomorrow to confirm a date.

He calls her first thing the next morning and gets her voicemail, so he leaves a message. He tries a few more times over the course of the morning and leaves another message. He also sends a text/SMS message just in case she didn't get the voice messages.

She doesn't call back during the day, but she finally picks up when he calls her again later that evening.

In a somber tone, she says something along the lines of, "Listen, Michael, I had a really nice time with you, but I don't think it's going to work out. You're a nice guy, but I don't think it will work."

Why Did She Reject Him?

[image: Why did she reject him?]

Simple.

He didn't focus on making her sexually attracted to him. He was the "perfect gentleman" and tried to get her to "like" him as a person, rather than being a good guy who also made her feel turned on by him and attracted to him.

Instead of having a relaxed approach to the dating process, he came on way too strong with a relationship vibe on their first date, which would be fine she was feeling a lot of sexual attraction for him, but she wasn't feeling much at all.

If you go on a date with an attractive woman, pretty much EVERY guy she dates wants to get her into a relationship and then marry her. They are so nice to her because she is attractive and they want to impress her, but they don't realize that every guy is doing that to her.

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman or being a gentleman, but a woman only cares about that stuff if she is sexually attracted to you. If your main approach to a woman is to be nice to her and hope that she likes you, most women won't be interested.

Women want to feel sexually attracted to a guy and they also want to feel like they need to impress him and hopefully get a chance with him. Women refer to guys like that as a "challenge" and they love it. Women love the thrill of the chase and they love to feel like they are getting a guy who isn't easy to attract and seduce into a relationship.

Here's why...

5 Mistakes That Ruined the Date

Let's have a deeper look at where "Michael" went wrong with his date...

Mistake 1: Giving Her a Gift

Giving her roses may have seemed like a romantic gesture, but on a first date it's a gesture that seems out of place in today's world.

[image: The old days...]

Flowers or gifts were a good idea back in the time when women had to rely on a man to support them because they couldn't get a high paying job, or in most cases, any job. A gift or flowers was a good sign that the man could support her and offer her a good life.

Yet, that was the past.

[image: Modern women]

In today's world, women don't like to be treated as a possession that the man will be buying or "earning." To most modern women, a upfront gift on a first date seems desperate, tacky and outdated.

It comes across in a way where the guy is trying too hard to impress her, rather than allowing his natural personality (what women are most interested in when it comes to a man) to impress her.

Watch this video to understand why...

Women aren't impressed by guys who feel like they need to buy a woman or impress a woman with external things (e.g. gifts, boasting about his career, driving a flashy car, etc).

She doesn't want to feel like a guy is basically saying, "I don't think that I'm good enough for you as I am, so hopefully I can distract you with all these gifts, dinners and boasting about my career...and then maybe you will like me enough to give me a chance with you."

When it comes to gifts, most women want to earn the privilege of getting a gift from a man, rather than been given one immediately for doing nothing other than going on a first date.

Mistake 2: Being Ashamed of His Normal Self

There's nothing wrong with eating at an expensive restaurant, but if the woman gets the sense that a guy is doing it to hopefully buy her attraction and interest, it will usually backfire and make her lose respect and attraction for him instead.

For the sake of this example, let's say that Michael is the sort of guy who normally doesn't go to expensive restaurants. The woman wants to get to know the real him, but because of his insecurity and lack of belief in his attractiveness to women, she now has to adapt to a "high society" environment and watch Michael pretend to be something he's not.

He would have rather eaten at a local cafe restaurant that he usually goes to, but he thought that it would be impressive enough for her, so he went to an expensive restaurant that was three times the price.

These days, women don't want you to buy them. Sure, there are some women out there who are money hungry whores who are looking to take every last penny or dime from you. That's true. However, the majority of women just want to find a man who makes them feel attraction, respect and then guides them towards love.

Most guys that women meet don't even know how to make women feel attracted and hope to be "liked" for being nice, spending a lot of money on dates or being a good friend. Women want to feel sexual attraction.

If you can make women feel sexually attracted to you, then anything else you do (even just taking her out for a walk by the beach, eating a burger or watching a movie) becomes 100x more enjoyable than going on a boring, friendly date with a guy who is splurging loads of money in the hopes that it makes her "like" him.

If you want to buy a woman's affection, go and hire a prostitute for an hour. If you want a woman to love you for YOU, then make her attracted to YOU as a man. Turn her on with your confidence, charisma and charm...all of which is free and lasts a lifetime.

If the current version of you isn't attractive to women (i.e. you lack confidence around women you find attractive, you don't know how to properly flirt with women, you lack charisma, you're not an alpha male, etc), then learn how to be more attractive to women.

Being able to trigger feelings of attraction inside of a woman is the most important skill that a guy needs to be successful with women. Here's why...

Mistake 3: Making Plans For a Second Date, While on the First Date

Michael was already trying to convince her to have another date with him, even before their first date was over.

No matter how well you think the date is going, making plans for a second date while you're on a first date is not a good move. If you make it obvious that you're totally hooked on her already, you take away the thrill of the chase that a woman YEARNS to experience with a guy.

She wants to have to chase you a bit and impress you, rather than feeling like you will accept her no matter what she says or does.

To a woman, if there is no chase involved in the courtship, you're not worth catching because you are probably feeling desperate to get ANY half-decent woman. A quality woman wants a man who has the confidence and belief in himself to reject the majority of women that he doesn't want, so he can be available for minority of high quality women that he does want.

Most guys can't do that though because they don't know how to attract women. Then, when any half-decent woman shows some interest, he jumps all over it and hopes to get a chance with her.

When a guy does know how to attract women, he knows that most of the women he meets feel attracted to him. When he sees that, he can then confidently raise his standards and only accept the types of women that he is truly attracted to.

Mistake 4: Not Kissing Her

Unfortunately, Michael behaved like a gentleman from an old black and white movie...and thought he was doing the "right thing."

In today's world, if a man is attracted to a woman and wants to kiss her, he kisses her. The fact is, if a woman is attracted to you, she wants you to kiss her.

If you walk her to her door and don't kiss her, she doesn't think, "Wow! What a gentleman I'm so lucky!" she thinks, "Okay, he doesn't find me attractive" or, "He isn't confident and didn't want to risk kissing me in case I didn't like him."

In old romance novels, a gentleman may have asked a lady for permission to kiss her, but in today's world, asking a woman if you can kiss her will completely kill the moment and turn her off.

She's not looking for a fictional character from a black and white movie who will court her slowly and then eventually work up the courage to kiss her. In a recent study, 55% of couples admitted that they had sex on their first date.

SEX on the first date, not just kissing.

In other words, most women are completely open to being kissed and having sex on the first date. Personally speaking, I've always either kissed or had sex with women on the first night or first date. Only about 20% of women required a second date before we had sex.

In Michael's case, he was behaving like a gentleman from 1905 and hoping to impress the woman by being so respectful. Unfortunately for Michael, no-one had told him that the world had changed.

Mistake 5: Repeatedly Calling Her the Next Day.

In addition to signaling his eager desire for another date while still on their first date, Michael called her the next day, left a couple of voice messages and sent a text message just to be 100% sure that she knew he was calling.

From his perspective, he wanted her to know how serious he was. Yet, from her perspective, his actions not only took away the thrill of the chase, but it also made him appear totally desperate.

Here's the thing...

Women like to complain about guys who don't call them (e.g. you will often hear this in female pop songs and overhear women talking about it when discussing a guy that they can't lock down into a relationship), but in reality they instinctively crave the thrill of the chase and ENJOY it when they have to work to keep a guy interested.

If a guy is worth having, a woman knows that she's going to have to work at getting his attention. Other women will feel attracted to him and she will have to impress him enough to get him to choose her.

Yet, if a guy doesn't even know how to make her feel attracted AND he is super keen on her, she will conclude that he is the sort of guy that isn't worth the effort. She wants a guy that is more of a catch and someone that she has to hopefully get a chance with.

At this point, some guys reading this who don't understand how attraction works may ask, "Why do women want to play silly mind games? Why can't I just like a girl, tell her I like her and then she likes me and we start a relationship?"

Simple: It's not about her liking you.

You have to make her feel attracted to you and you also have to understand the subtleties of “modern romance.” It's not 1905 where women had to remain a virgin until marriage and then stay with one man for life.

In today's world, a woman can do whatever she wants. She can kiss and sleep with guys until she is 30 or even 40 years old if she likes. The society around her approves of it.

[image: Women love sex just as much as men]

Yet, deep down, she still wants to experience love and have a committed relationship. She wants to be with a guy who knows how to deepen the love, respect and attraction that she feels for him. If he can do that, she will get into a relationship with him, marry him and stay with him for life.

However, if a guy doesn't know how to deepen her feelings over time and instead says and does things that ruin her respect, love and attraction for him – she isn't obligated to stay with him for life. She can leave if she wants to.

[image: Dumped because he failed to maintain her respect, attraction and love]

In today's world, a guy not only needs to be able to attract women (so he can choose the right woman for him, rather than accepting whatever he can get and then trying to make it work with a woman who isn't compatible with him), he also needs to know how to deepen a woman's love, respect and attraction for him in a relationship.

These days, you can't just expect a woman to want to be with you because you're a good guy. You also need to be able to make her feel sexually attracted because she doesn't have to select a guy based on how nice he is and how well set up he is to support her.

You also can't expect a woman to stick around if the relationship loses its spark. You've got to be able to deepen the love, respect and attraction that you feel for each other. When you know how to do that, you will become one of those couples who are still madly in love 30-40 years into a relationship.

Trying to Make Her Feel Special in the Wrong Way

[image: Trying to make her feel special in the wrong way]

Some guys try to make a woman feel “special” by being really nice to her, buying her gifts, complimenting her, taking her to expensive places, etc. However, a woman only appreciates that sort of thing if she feels sexually attracted to him.

If a woman gets the sense that a guy can't attract other women and is hoping to “get a chance” with her, she will become suspicious about why he is being so nice. She will feel like she'd almost be doing him a favor by continuing to date him, which is not what women want to feel.

On the other hand, if a woman can tell that you can easily attract other women, she will feel special that you're being nice to her. How can she tell that you can easily attract other women? Simple. If the way that you talk to her and interact with her turns her on, she will know that many other women will feel the same way.

Most guys don't know how to actively attract women during a conversation and simply rely on hoping to “get lucky.” Women know when they meet one of the rare guys who actually knows how to make them feel attracted.

A woman wants to feel lucky to be with a guy who could have other women, but is deciding to commit his love, energy and time to her. That is what makes her feel special.

Do You Need Big Muscles to Attract Women These Days?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Muscles can make women feel attracted, but they are not the only way to attract women.

You can attract women in more than 100 different ways (e.g. confidence, charisma, being charming, making her laugh, having a masculine vibe, etc). If you can attract women in many other ways, you don't have to have muscles, money or fame.

Women will love you for you because who you are makes them feel so good. Watch this video to learn a surprising truth about what women are really attracted to in men...

[image: Ugly guy with hot cheerleader girlfriend]

[image: Fat guys with pretty women]

[image: Fat guy with a skinny girlfriend at the pool]

[image: Black guys with white women]

[image: Guy with a weird nose with a beautiful girlfriend]

[image: How is this possible?]

Muscles Aren't That Important

If you've been wondering whether or not you need to work on changing the shape of your body to attract women, something must have put that thought into your mind. What was it? A billboard ad, a comment from a woman, a line from a Hollywood movie, a TV show, a music video or comments from people online?

Somewhere along the way, you've manage to start thinking that if you just get the body, you will then get the girl.

Yet, that's not how it works.

Yes, women can feel attracted to a guy's muscles, but muscles really aren't that important to a woman. What's most important is how you make her feel when you interact with her. THAT is why you will see guys who don't have muscles, but do have a hot girl.

Watch this video to understand how attraction between men and women really works...

Does Having Big Muscles Attract Attention From Women?

Sure.

If you are bigger than other guys, women are going to notice, but it's almost always not going to be the thing that makes her want to have sex with you or be your girlfriend.

Imagine this...

A woman is talking to two guys. One of the guys has big muscles, but is nervous around her and doesn't really know what to say or do to make her feel attracted. The conversation she has with him feels awkward and doesn't create much of a spark between them.

The other guy has a normal, but slightly thin physique and when he talks to her, she is laughing, feeling good and there's a spark between them. He's confident, charming and charismatic.

Who is she going to feel more attracted to?

Simple: The guy who is making her feel a wide range of attractive emotions. The guy with the big muscles isn't really of any benefit to her life. All he seems to be good at is lifting weights up and down in the gym. Big deal.

The other guy has charm and he's going to be much more interesting, exciting and enjoyable to be around from the woman's perspective.

If you don't know how to attract women with your personality, muscles aren't going to fix that problem. Sure, some women might look at you initially and feel some attraction to your strong looking physique, but if your personality, conversation style and behavior doesn't turn her on, she will quickly lose interest.

Why Are You Really Interested in Building Muscle?

If you want to work out and build muscle because you enjoy doing it and want to feel stronger, then go ahead. However, if you're doing it because you think it will solve all of your problems with women, think again.

No matter how big your muscles are, if you lack the ability to attract women with your personality, most of the women you meet will rapidly lose interest in talking to you. They may feel a bit of initial attraction to your physique, but if you don't know what to say or do to turn them on during a conversation, it will get boring and they will lose interest.

Personally speaking, I've had sex with more than 250 women and I recently got married to a sexy 22 year old (I'm 37) who has a perfect body. Yet, I don't work out. The only exercise I do is when I bang her and when I go bike riding her and my friends.

You can work out if you want to, but just don't think that adding a few centimetres with your biceps will solve your problems with women. What is most important to a woman is how you make her feel when she interacts with you.

Does your personality turn her on or off? Does your behavior turn her on or off? Does she feel like she'd be lucky to get with a guy like you, or do you make her feel like she'd be settling by hooking up with you?

You may not know it now, but you have so much power when it comes to attracting women. You can make women feel intense attraction for you who are as a guy. You can literally attract women in more than 100 different different ways...

The Consequences of Not Being an Alpha Male

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The life of an alpha male is usually easier and less stressful than the life of a lower ranking male (e.g. beta male, omega male).

Women want him, guys respect him and he goes after what he wants with confidence, determination and an expectation that he will succeed. Generally speaking, most people accept that he will get the hottest women, get promoted at work and achieve whatever he puts his mind to.

Women open themselves up to him, guys follow his lead and the world generally gets out of his way as he heads towards the goals that he wants to achieve. If anything gets in his way, he just climbs over it or works a way around it and then continues onto victory.

You don't have to be an alpha male if you'd prefer to be a lower ranking male, but if you're not alpha, you will definitely experience some negative consequences throughout your life...

9 Negative Consequences of Not Being an Alpha Male

[image: A woman not feeling enough attraction for a guy to justify dating him]

Some of the many negative consequences of living your life as a lower-ranking male are:

1. Not being attractive enough for most women

Women are more attracted to alpha males than any other type of male (e.g. beta male, omega male). It's just how nature works.

A woman may accept a guy who lacks the alpha male mindset, but she will never feel as much attraction for him as she would for an alpha male. Most of the guys who come to me looking for help on how to get an ex back are guys who have either never been an alpha male or who lost touch with their masculinity and became a bit of a wuss, needy guy, clingy guy, etc in the relationship.

2. Feeling nervous or anxious in social situations

A real alpha male doesn't feel nervous or anxious in social situations because he fully believes in himself and expects to be liked.

He knows that he is more than good enough for women to like him and for men to respect him. Why? He decided that he is. His perception of himself is much more important than what others "might" think. He bases his confidence on how he thinks, not on how others might think.

A lower ranking male will decide that he isn't good enough, so he will feel worried about being rejected, laughed at, humiliated, overlooked or embarrassed in front of others. This type of thinking naturally makes him feel nervous and anxious.

3. Lacking the confidence to approach attractive women

[image: Afraid to approach women]

An alpha male knows that he deserves attractive women, so he simply approaches and expects to be liked.

A lower ranking male doubts himself and feels like he isn't good enough for the types of women he finds attractive. His lower ranking male thinking causes him to feel fear, nervousness or anxiety when he wants to approach a woman that he finds attractive.

4. Being picked on

Bad boys, jerks and assholes almost always look for “easy targets” to pick on, so they can feel better about themselves. They avoid picking on an alpha male because they know that he is much more confident than they are.

5. Being overlooked by women

[image: Being overlooked by women]

When faced with a choice, a woman will almost always choose an alpha male over a beta male or other lower-ranking male. Why? The alpha male’s confidence and masculinity are sexually attractive to her.

These days, most women don’t desperately need a man to provide them with food, shelter and protection because they can earn their own money and be protected by the police, government and media. So, women now choose guys based on sexual attraction.

Displaying alpha male characteristics is one of the quickest ways to make a woman feel sexually attracted to you. Instead of putting lots of effort into trying to “get to know her” during a conversation or taking her out to expensive dinners, you can make her want to have sex with you right away by triggering her natural attraction to alpha male traits.

6. Being with a woman who wishes she could be with an alpha male

[image: Wishing she could have an alpha male]

A lower ranking male may be able to get himself a girlfriend or even a wife, but she will always secretly wish that she could be with an alpha male instead.

At the very least, she will fantasize about being with an alpha male when she masturbates. Most guys don’t realize that when a woman masturbates she will think about a confident, masculine man having sex with her.

If she is in love with her alpha male boyfriend or husband, she will often imagine him. However, if she is with a lower ranking male who doesn’t make her feel the type of attraction she really wants to feel, she will imagine other men instead.

Women in this position are much more likely to cheat or have an affair when the spark dies out of the relationship. In the past, women had to stay with a man for life even if they were unhappy because it was shameful to get a divorce, so they usually just had affairs while their husband was working.

These days, it’s not as shameful to divorce anymore, so unhappy women usually just get a divorce, take half of the guy’s money and try to attract themselves a guy with more alpha male characteristics than their ex.

I see this happening often because I help guys to get an ex girlfriend, fiancée or wife back. It’s sad to see because in most cases, the guy is a really good guy, but no-one ever told him that being an alpha male is not a bad thing.

Most guys grow up thinking that the key to success with women and life is to be very nice all the time. Yet, it’s not. The key to success with women is to be a good guy who knows how to attract women when he meets them and then how to deepen the love, respect and attraction of a woman in a relationship.

7. Being overlooked for promotions

Managerial or leadership promotions (these are usually the best paying jobs) almost always go to the alpha male or the most charismatic guy. Lower-ranking males aren't usually given positions of leadership and power unless they have a lot of skill in a specific area.

However, if an alpha male comes along who has just as much skill as the lower-ranking male, the alpha male will eventually be made boss and the lower-ranking male will be his assistant and get paid less. It's just how nature works.

8. Having less friends than the average person

[image: A lack of friends]

Think about the types of guys that you've met in life and wished you could be friends with. They are more alpha than you, right?

Humans are instinctively wired to get close to alpha males because for most of human history, an alpha male offered the best protection and best chance for survival. Even in today's world with our supermarkets, police and internet, being around an alpha male is still safer than being around a lower ranking male.

Guys feel "cool" when they have alpha male friends and women feel proud and excited to have an alpha male boyfriend. No woman is excited and proud to be with a lower ranking male, except other lower ranking males who think that being an alpha male is wrong, selfish or mean.

9. Being disrespected by people

For most of human history, the alpha male could punish or kill someone for disobedience and get away with it. Even though we have police, media and courts, people still have an instinctive fear of being punished by an alpha male for stepping out of line.

On the other hand, most people don't feel the need to respect lower ranking males or grant them the full privileges that an alpha male enjoys. Some people are nice and generous to even the most wimpy of guys, but most people instinctively only give their full respect to alpha males or alpha females.

How to Be an Alpha Male

Being an alpha male simply means that you expect to be respected, you expect that women will like you and want to be with you and you expect that you will win or succeed at whatever you do. Having that type of default expectation allows you to feel confident and go after what you want without fear.

The confidence of an alpha male is irresistibly attractive to women because life is challenging and throughout human history and still to this day, it has almost always been better for a woman to align herself with a stronger minded man than a weaker minded one.

Being an Alpha Male is Not About Being an Asshole

Guys who aren't alpha usually assume that to be an alpha male, they will have to stop being nice to people. They will have to be like those jerks, assholes or bad boys they've come across so far in life. Understandably, this is a huge turn off for good guys. If you're a good guy, you most-likely don't want to have to become a bad guy to make women feel attracted to you and make men respect you.

The good news is that you don't have to become a bad guy. Yes, there are some "bad boy alpha males" out there, but those guys are the minority. The majority of alpha males are "good guy alpha males" and that is what we provide advice on here at The Modern Man.

You Don't Have to Be the One and Only Alpha Male in a Group

In tribal times, there would be one alpha male amongst a small group of men and women. He would have to be the most dominant and would often have to fight to maintain his dominance.

In today's world, there can be several alpha males in a group situation because we are no longer confined to one tribe. If you are in a group situation and other alpha males are present, it's not about competing with them and trying to show that you're the "top dog." Just be one of the alpha males.

You don't have to fight for dominance in every group that you're a part of or in every environment you spend time in (e.g. at work, among friends, eating at a restaurant).

To gain the modern benefits of being an alpha male (i.e. women want you, men respect you, your boss promotes you or your staff respect you if you are a business owner), you simply have to display alpha male traits (e.g. confidence, assertiveness, leadership, drive, fearlessness, etc).

[image: Woman feeling attracted to a guy who is displaying some alpha male characteristics]

You don't have to be the one and only alpha male in a group situation or in any environment you find yourself. You can be one of the alpha males. There is room for more than one alpha male in group situations these days, because you are not tied to one group for life like men were in tribal times.

Why Do Women Hook Up With Bad Boy Alpha Males?

I often get contacted by guys here at The Modern Man who complain to me about how they often see beautiful, intelligent women hooking up with jerks and bad boy alpha males.

What these guys fail to realize is that women are attracted to their alpha male traits (e.g. confidence and masculinity), but would sincerely prefer a good guy who was just as confident as the bad boy.

The absolute truth of the matter is that most women do NOT want to be in a relationship with a bad person, but they are so attracted to alpha male traits that they will sometimes put up with a jerk or a bad boy just so they can experience the attraction that they feel to alpha male qualities.

Here's another way of explaining it....

You probably want a intelligent, beautiful, down-to-Earth, loyal, respectable woman for a girlfriend or wife, right? Yet, probably also get really excited when you look at slutty women in porn, right?

Do you also find strippers sexy when they dance naked on stage and bend over to show you their pussy? Of course you do.

Why?

You are attracted to things about women that you cannot control. Even though the stripper or pornstar may not be a nice, intelligent woman that you could introduce to your parents, you can help yourself from feeling attracted to her.

The same applies to women.

When they meet a guy who displays alpha male characteristics, they can't stop themselves from feeling an intense, natural attraction for him even if he isn't the nicest guy in the world.

So, when you see a woman with a "bad boy" or a "jerk" just understand that she is simply giving in to her feelings of attraction.

She knows that it would be BETTER to be with a good guy alpha male who is just as confident as the bad boy, but those men are very hard to find. Good guy alpha males are almost always taken or dating several women at once, so many women hook up with bad boys and assholes just so they can experience the attraction they feel to any type of strong alpha male trait.

If you are a good guy who also displays alpha male traits, you are like a 10/10 to women. Women refer to you as sexy, charming, a "catch," a "man's man" and other labels that essentially mean that you are the guy that women dream of being with.

When a woman comes across a guy like that, she will hold on tight and never want to let go. She will always know how lucky she is to have found him, attracted him and gotten him into a relationship. She knows that her girlfriends will be jealous and her parents will be proud.

If a good guy alpha male already has a girlfriend or wife, some women will try to break up the relationship or marriage so she can be with him. Personally speaking, I still get contacted by some ex girlfriends even though I recently married my sexy, 22 year old girlfriend when I turned 37.

Do You Have to Be Born as An Alpha Male to Be One?

[image: Do you have to be born alpha to be one?]

No.

Guys become alpha either via their upbringing, life experiences or active learning later in life.

The most important alpha male traits are not physical. What's most important is how you think, behave and take action in life. You either think, behave and take action like an alpha male...or you don't.

Personally speaking, I transformed myself from a self-doubting, socially anxious guy who felt as though he didn't deserve attractive women and didn't deserve the respect of others, into who I am today.

When I made the decision to become alpha, everything else began to change in my life too. Women wanted to have sex with me, people wanted to be my friend, my parents showed me more respect and I got promoted at work into higher positions of leadership.

Life is so much easier, less stressful and more productive as an alpha male. I make things happen and they happen easily because I have the confidence of an alpha male.

How about you?

Would you like to have your choice of women from now on? Would you like to have sex with hot, sexy women? Would you prefer that life ran more smoothly for you from now on? Would you like to see the shock on the faces of friends, family or coworkers when they see you with an extremely hot woman?

Would you like to get what has been denied to you all these years because you haven't been alpha enough to attract it or take it? Would you like to feel good about yourself from now on, instead of secretly feeling like a failure?

Would you like to have women feel so much attraction for you that they confess their feelings to you and try to pick you up?

Attracting Women Who Are a Lot Older or Younger Than You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

One of the secrets to picking up older women is to make them feel as though they've still "got it."

Look at her in a way that makes her feel like she is the sexiest woman on Earth, but don't go overboard to the point where you are behaving as though she would be doing YOU a favor by being with you.

Let her see that you are a confident guy who could easily have sex with a younger woman, but you find her to be so much sexier.

If you can make her feel attracted to you and make her feel sexy, she will be extremely easy to pick up. Once you've had sex with her, she will usually be willing to pay for dinners, buy you gifts, etc, just to keep you around.

Some older women will even help you out financially or give you an allowance if you need it. However, you have to make sure that you're making her feel a lot of attraction for you and are making her feel like she has a lot of sex appeal.

Older Women Vs. Younger Women

Personally speaking, I used to be attracted to some cougars (women who are older than 35 years and are interested in younger men) until I develop the ability to pick up women between 18-23 years of age.

Before I worked out how to pick up younger women, I liked cougars because they seemed like they'd be easier to pick up. I didn't think that I was good enough for hot, young women.

I was wrong.

Picking up younger women essentially involves making them feel attracted, not being worried about any tests they throw at you (e.g. playing hard to get, changing their mind about things every two minutes, etc) and just confidently moving things from a conversation to kiss, to sex and into a relationship.

Most younger women don't want to get the feeling that you're trying to make them your girlfriend right away. They just want to take you for a test drive first and see how they feel.

If she feels a lot of attraction for you and notices that you're not immediately trying to get her into a relationship, she will almost always fall madly in love with you while she attempts to get you to want to be in a relationship with her.

I've broken in several virgins, had 18 year olds crying and begging me to be their boyfriend and also had a couple of threesomes with women between the ages of 19-23.

It's pretty easy to do. You basically have to rid yourself of neediness and not worry if you lose her. If you can do that (while also making her feel intense attraction in other ways), younger women will do anything to get you to commit.

Why? Watch this video to understand the reality that attractive women face in the dating scene...

What is Your Ideal Age For a Woman?

What type of woman do you most prefer for sex and a relationship?

Women who are:

1. Your own age.
2. A little bit younger than you.
3. A lot younger than you.
4. A little bit older than you.
5. A lot older than you.
6. Any woman I can get!

If you chose the number 6 option above, â€œAny woman I can get!â€ you are making a huge mistake with your approach to the idea of attracting women.

When you try to get ANY woman, you will usually end up with no women or only unattractive women because women are turned off by men who willing to take anything they can get.

To be a man of standards, you have to only accept certain types of women of certain ages for sex and a relationship. It's the women you reject that show other women what kind of man you really are.

Personally speaking, I reject almost all women and only accept women who make me feel intense attraction. If you accept a woman who doesn't make you feel intense physical attraction, you will regret it later and will secretly feel like a failure by being with her.

Choose a type of woman that you REALLY want and then go after that type of woman with confidence. You have to believe that you are good enough for the types of women that you really want.

If you don't have that belief, you need to build it by learning how to attract women and then getting real life evidence (when you interact with women) that the types of women you want really do feel attracted to you.

It's Normal, Natural and Common to Have a Younger Woman

Throughout human history, younger women have always been paired up with older men who have gained status in a tribe or who have power in the community.

Older men having relationships younger women is nothing new nor is it something to be ashamed of if you are attracted to youthful looking women who have reached their legal breeding age. Laws are in place in each country that define the legal breeding age, so if you are attracted to women who are legally available, it is not a problem.

Jealous guys may try to make you feel unsure about it by saying that you're too old for a younger woman, but they will secretly masturbate to 19-20 year olds when they look at porn.

Personally speaking, I was 35 when I picked up my 20 year old girlfriend from a nightclub. We recently got engaged and then married shortly after. None of my friends or family said anything bad about it because they are used to seeing me with younger women (between the ages of 18-23).

I've been having sex with 18-23 year olds for years. Initially, some of my friends and family raised their eyebrows and asked, “Isn’t she a bit young for you?” or “Aren’t you a bit old for her?” when they saw me with younger women.

I simply said (in a relaxed, self-assured manner), “No...it’s fine. It’s totally normal” and they eventually got used to it.

People will always have an opinion about the woman you are dating, but that shouldn’t worry you. Everyone has an opinion on everything. You just have to live your life, be a good person and do what makes you happy.

When people look back a man’s life when he is 80 years old, they will almost ALWAYS give him praise if he was the sort of guy who could pick up women who were younger than him. Women will smile and excitedly say, “Oooh, you must have been a charmer!” They will see him as a charming, attractive old man.

Guys will say, “What’s the secret grandpa?” and they will admire him.

Younger Women Now Hook Up With Men of All Ages

In the past, it was almost a necessity for a younger woman to find herself an older man who had money or status.

In today’s world, younger women can hook up with guys their own age because they don’t need to gain status in a tribe or in their community. In most cases, young women (18-23 year olds) just want to get laid, fall in love and have a good time.

[image: Women love sex just as much as men]

Some people think that modern women have become “slutty” or have lost their way, but they have merely adapted to a society that has changed its rules. In countries where women still can’t work or can’t take on big paying jobs, they continue to “behave like women did in the 1950s” by trying to find a man who can support them.

In countries where women can support themselves, they now do whatever they feel like, including sleeping with 20 year old guys when they are 30, 40 or even 50. For most of human history, many of the younger men who dated older women were perceived as being a guy who had a “mommy complex”.

People assumed that he wanted an older woman to “mother him” through life, the relationship and even sex. Today, those perceptions have changed and it is now acceptable for a younger guy to be with an older woman, although some people still perceive it to be a bit strange. Since today’s older women usually take better care of themselves, are more comfortable with their sexuality and are willing to go through cosmetic procedures to maintain their youthful appearance, they are often sought out for dating by younger men who don’t necessarily have a “mommy complex”.

Many younger guys simply get a lot of satisfaction out of being around, having sex with and being in a relationship with a more mature woman.

Why Do Older Men Appeal to Younger Women?

If asked the question, “Why do older men appeal to younger women?” most guys will immediately answer, “Because older guys have more money! She’s a gold-digger or simply wants a Sugar Daddy.”

While it is true that some younger women are intrigued by the idea of a Sugar Daddy or being taken care of for a while by a man of means, almost all younger women look for older men for reasons that have nothing to do with money.

One of the main reasons younger women go for older men is that they simply cannot find a guy in their own age bracket who behaves like a real man. These days, most of the guys a young woman will meet will either be too nervous around her, too shy to ask her out or too timid in the bedroom.

Many guys assume that if a younger woman hooks up with an older man she must have a daddy complex and secretly desire to be treated like his little daughter. Again, while there are some women who have that desire, almost all younger women who go for older men are doing it because they want to be with what they see as an equal in terms of sexual and emotional maturity.

Many studies have discovered that girls usually mature faster than guys their own age, so when a young woman hooks up with an older guy or man, she is often trying to be with someone who feels closer to her maturity level.

This doesn’t mean that younger guys can’t hook up with these women, but if they want to have access to the rising number of young women who demand that guys behave like men, they need to learn how to become more confident, masculine and mature. If they don’t, they will be overlooked as just another horny little boy by most women their own age.

What Type of Woman Should You Choose?

If you want to have a serious relationship that lasts a lifetime, you should choose a woman who has a similar level of maturity to you, as well as the same goals, priorities and values in life.

Choose a woman who makes you happy because she loves you, she is beautiful and she is perfect for you.

Choose a woman that you genuinely want to make happy as well. If you don’t genuinely want her to be happy for life (not just for the initial part of the relationship – that’s the easy part), you will eventually get bored of being so nice to her and you may even become a bit mean, selfish or unloving.

Don’t hide away from relationships in fear of making a mistake and ruining the love that you share with a woman. Live your life, enjoy the delicious feelings of love and experience amazing things.

[image: Stop wasting your life - attract women, choose the perfect one for you and get on with enjoying your life]

Hiding away in fear will only lead to a life of regret, loneliness and desperation. You deserve to be happy, you deserve to be loved and you deserve to live an amazing life.

Personally speaking, I have chosen the best girl that I’ve met in almost 10 years of dating and sleeping with women non-stop and I couldn’t be happier. Here’s what happened...

Is She Hitting on You or Just Being Friendly?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

All women show their interest in guys in a slightly different way.

For example:

- A shy or insecure woman may not show a lot of obvious interest because she is afraid of being rejected by you.
- A confident woman who is looking for a confident guy might play hard to get to see if you will begin to doubt yourself around her.
- A manipulative woman might pretend to be interested in you to make you treat her nicer, do favors for her, etc.

Based on the differences in how women show interest in guys, you can't rely on a set group of signals (e.g. she looks at your lips, touches you, etc) to determine whether or not a woman likes you in a sexual way.

What you can do is focus on making her feel a lot of sexual attraction for you, so she does have sexual feelings for you. When a woman is sexually attracted to a guy, she will rarely, if ever, reject his advances when he makes a move.

So, the question now is: Have you been making this woman feel sexually attracted to you, or have you been behaving like more of an innocent friend?

Watch this video to see what I mean...

Acting like an innocent friend is one of the most common mistakes that guys make with women, which results in them being placed in the friend zone or the woman pretending to be interested just to mess with him.

If you want this woman to want you sexually, you must focus on actively making her feel a spark of sexual attraction for you, rather than just being a nice, innocent, friendly guy who just wants to get to know her.

If you have just been friendly with a woman and you then try to make a move, she will almost always reject you because she won't feel enough sexual attraction to justify kissing you, having sex with you or beginning a relationship.

To make sure that a woman likes you more than just a friend, you simply must focus on making her feel sexually attracted to you first and then everything will then naturally fall into place after that.

Turn Her On and Then Make a Move...or You Might Lose Your Chance With Her

Some guys make the mistake of being a nice friend to a woman and then hoping that the friendship somehow leads to sex or a relationship.

Yet, the friendship approach usually takes weeks, months or years and requires a lot more effort because the woman will play hard to get.

For example: A guy might be “friendly” with a woman for months and think that he is getting somewhere and then another guy will come along, make her feel sexually attracted right away and she will then start a relationship with him.

[image: Turn her on and then make a move]

It doesn't matter how much she “likes” you as a guy. If another guy comes along and makes her feel sexual attraction, she will be more drawn to him. If he also has the confidence to make a move and kiss her, he will begin having a sexual relationship with her.

You have to start with sexual attraction. When a woman is attracted to you, she will then appreciate the fact that you're also a good guy.

However, if your main approach to women is to just be nice, friendly or polite, most women won't feel enough sexual attraction for you to be interested in anything other than a friendship.

If you attempt to make a move on a woman that you've only nice and friendly to, she will almost always reject you. Why?

3 of the Many Different Types of Women You May Encounter

Although there are many similarities, women are all different and come in all sorts of shapes, sizes and personality types.

For example: Some women will pretend to really like a guy even though he hasn't done anything to attract her (e.g. a typical nice guy who is acting like an innocent friend, but obviously has a crush on her), only to turn around and say, “Sorry, I'm not looking a relationship. I must have given you the wrong idea” when he confesses his feelings for her or tries to make a move.

Why would a woman do such a mean thing like that? For an insecure woman, getting lots of random guys interested in her, giving her compliments and trying to impress her will boost her self-esteem so she then feels more confident around guys that she actually feels attracted to.

It may sound like a cruel, selfish thing that a woman will do, but it's actually pretty normal in the dating world.

Here are just three of the many different types of women that you may encounter when trying to attract and date women...

Woman #1: The Friendly, Good-Natured Flirt

[image: The good natured flirt]

This is the type of woman that most guys love because she's pretty, intelligent, down to Earth and is nice and easy to talk to.

Due to her good nature as a person, she is friendly with almost every guy she meets, which means that most guys think that they have a chance with her.

A woman like this might engage in some “friendly flirting” with you (e.g. smile at you in a girly way, behave in a submissive way around you, say that you're cute, etc), but it doesn't mean that she is sexually interested in you.

If she is a friendly, good natured flirt, she is a woman who likes making people happy. She knows from experience that she can bring a smile to a guy's face by flirting, being friendly with him and making him feel attractive or at least noticed.

For her, it doesn't matter who the guy is. It can be a waiter taking her order, a coworker in the office or the delivery man who arrives at her door with a package. Whatever the case, she will turn on her charm and make him feel like he is the most important, desirable person in her life at that very moment.

A guy who lacks experience with women and doesn't know that beautiful women get hit on all the time, will often make the mistake of confessing his feelings to a woman who is a friendly, good natured flirt.

He will think that she is the only guy that she has been nice to, or that he is the only guy who sees her as being "special." Yet, if she is attractive, most of the guys that she meets will be willing to have sex with her or begin a relationship with her.

Since most guys like her, a woman like this eventually gets bored of how easy it is to get guys interested and begins to wish that she could find a guy who is more of a challenge...

Woman #2: The Starved-for-Attention Flirt

This type of woman is almost the exact opposite of the "Friendly, Good-Natured Flirt" because she doesn't flirt with men to make THEM feel better; she does it to make HERSELF feel better. She couldn't care less how it makes the man feel.

She uses her charm to make guys fall madly in love with her and then gives them hope that they might get a chance with her...one day.

Yet, that day rarely ever arrives.

In most cases, the interest she shows in you is all about feeding her ego or boosting her self-confidence.

Guys who are inexperienced with women or who are desperate for ANY female attention, will usually lavish a woman like this with compliment after compliment, gift after gift and never really get anywhere.

However, what works with a woman like this is to make her feel attracted to you and then only show interest when she is on her best behavior.

If she plays hard to get, just pull your interest back. As long as you've been making her feel attracted to you, she will worry and try harder to impress you to regain your interest in her.

Woman #3: The Confused Girl

This is the type of girl who may be genuinely interested in you in a sexual way, may respond well to your attention and flirting and may even kiss you and hug you in a loving way, but all of a sudden she will pull back and go cold on you.

In most cases, a woman like this is struggling with her sense of identity.

She goes through the world behaving as though she is an innocent girl who doesn't want to have a lot of sex, but secretly she wants to be free to do whatever she wants.

When things begin to escalate to kissing or sex, she will often pull back because she wants to maintain her superficial identity of being an innocent woman who doesn't have sex so easily.

She doesn't want to look too easy because you might then find it difficult to trust her later in the relationship.

You might think, "Well, it was very easy for me to kiss her and get her into bed, so if a confident guy meets her and she's feeling a bit horny when drunk, who knows what she might do."

Even though a girl like this may want to have sex with you immediately, she will often behave as though she isn't ready for anything to make you work for it.

When a "Confused Girl" suddenly stops showing interest, you need to remain confident and believe in your attractiveness to her.

Don't start behaving nervously around her, or trying to get her to explain why she is suddenly behaving that way...

What Women Want Men to Know

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When it comes to dating and relationships, women expect us men to know all sorts of stuff and if we don't, they reject us, overlook us, cheat on us or dump us.

That may feel like women aren't fair, but it's just how nature works. We men either know what we're doing with women or we don't. If we don't, we will suffer the consequences now or in the long run.

As a man, you're pretty much expected to know what a woman is thinking and what she wants you to be thinking at any given time simply by:

1. Observing her body language.
2. Reading in between the lines of her behavior.
3. Listening for clues in what she says...and doesn't say during a conversation.
4. Watching for clues based on what she does and doesn't do.
5. Knowing what makes a woman angry, happy, sad, frustrated, delighted, etc with a man.

The Big Juicy Mystery That is the “Woman”

If women are a bit of a mystery to you right now, you might feel a confused about where to begin on your quest to understand and conquer the big juicy mystery that is the “woman.”

For some guys, being on a date or being in a conversation with a woman that they are very attracted can be a confusing, anxiety-producing experience. He wants her to like him, but he has no idea how to make her feel attracted to him.

Trying to understand what women want can seem so difficult that some guys choose to avoid women altogether and end up going through their life feeling lonely, left out and miserable. Week after week, they masturbate to porn to dull their built up sexual desire and hope that one day, something will change.

Yet, nothing creates nothing. You've got to do something to make something happen. You've got to actively approach women and interact with women so you can attract them and have sex or begin a relationship with them.

What Makes Her Feel Like a Real Woman?

While some things about women might be more difficult to understand than others, the #1 thing that a woman expects you to know is how to make her feel like a real woman.

A woman feels like a real woman when she's in the presence of a real man.

It doesn't matter if you're 16, 26, 36, 46 or 56 – the same rules apply. You are either what women (at that age) refer to as a real man or you're not. You either make her feel girly in your presence because of how masculine you feel to her, or you don't.

The AMAZING, EXCITING, THRILLING and HYPNOTIC sexual dynamic that is created when a man behaves like a man and thus allows a woman to behave like a woman, is one of the most beautiful and sought after experiences for us humans.

Women CRAVE the experience, but most guys don't know how to give it to women. Most guys simply use the nice guy approach and hope to get lucky with a woman who is nice enough to give them a chance.

Being the Man That Women Are Desperate to Find

To make a woman feel like a real woman, you've got to be what she refers to as a real man. These days, "most guys haven't been taught how to be a real man" and aren't entirely sure how a real man talks, walks, behaves, thinks and responds to life.

Unfortunately, most fathers out there basically "learn on the job" when it comes to raising their children (my dad included!) and when it comes to their relationship, most of them got lucky and stumbled into it and usually don't understand what it takes to be successful at picking up women in the first place and then being able to maintain not just a relationship where the man and woman "put up with each other," but a relationship full of sexual passion, exciting love and heart-warming happiness.

When they "pass on" their "knowledge" to their sons, it is usually filled with all sorts of insecurities, mistaken assumptions and outdated "dating advice" like buying flowers, being really nice, asking to kiss her, arriving to the date with a gift, etc.

All women yearn to experience the exhilarating sexual sparks that ignite when they find themselves in the company of a real man. If you don't know how to be that guy, you will always be Mr.

Average to women and in the modern world, where women are more ready and willing to divorce or break up, being Mr. Average is a sure ticket to an unhappy relationship or a devastating conversation that starts with, "We need to talk" and continues on with, "I've been sleeping with someone else...and I'm in love with him. I'm sorry, but we are finished."

1. She Wants You to Know How to Lead Her

In a woman's eyes, a real man is a man who makes the rules.

She's looking for a guy who knows who he is, knows his own mind and knows where he's going in life, so she's looking for a guy who has already made his own rules and is sticking by his own rules. Likewise, a woman is deeply turned off by a man who looks to her to establish and enforce the rules of the relationship.

The same applies to an initial conversation with a woman. A lot of guys make the mistake of waiting to see really obvious signs that the woman is interested in talking to him before he feels comfortable doing so. An alpha male doesn't do that. He makes his own rules.

He does what he wants and women love and respect that. However, when a guy PRETENDS that he has the confidence of an alpha male, all a woman has to do to find out if he is a fake, is put even more pressure on him by being bitchier, colder or by not really engaging in the conversation other than short replies like, "I don't know" and "Oh, okay."

Guys who don't actually know how to be a true alpha will be revealed as a fake in those moments and the woman will be turned off.

2. She Wants You to Know That She Wants to Chase YOU

According to all available historical data and research, women have always been instinctively attracted to the men who proved themselves to be the best survivors. In earlier times, that would have meant being able to hunt and provide and in modern times it means being able to succeed in your career and provide.

Women always want to be with an alpha male because he usually offers the best chance of survival and safety. However, since he is the type of man that most women want, he can have his choice with women and is usually not an easy catch. For most women, to successfully attract and secure an alpha male into a relationship means that they have to chase after HIM and do whatever it takes to get HIS attention.

If you haven't grown up around male role models who could teach you HOW to be an alpha male (one part of being what women refer to as a real man), consider learning from us here at The Modern Man. We are the experts in this field and have been teaching guys the secrets to success with women for almost a decade now. It's not your fault that you currently don't know how to be an alpha male, but it will be your fault if you continue living life as a lower ranking male!

As I always say, â€œYou only know what you know. You can't know what you don't know if you don't learn.â€ The answers are only a few clicks away, but it's up to you to take the next step and learn the real secrets to success with women.

Being an alpha male doesn't mean becoming a jerk, an asshole or a bossy prick. What we teach here at The Modern Man is how to be a good guy alpha male. If you think about the men that you look up to and respect most in life, they will almost certainly be good guy alpha males.

Most guys go through life never feeling like they deserve the title of alpha male because they assume that the alpha male has to be the leader of the pack all the time. That's how it works for wolves and wild dogs, but not for humans.

Being a human alpha male is a lot more simple and enjoyable than that.

3. She Wants You to Know What Type of Man is REALLY Attractive to Women

Most guys will say, “Oh, you have to be tall, dark and handsome. Rich and famous. Drive an expensive car and have a big penis.” Yet, they forget to look around the REAL WORLD and see that MOST beautiful women are MADLY IN LOVE with guys who don't have any of those traits.

Furthermore, guys who make the all too common mistake of lavishing sweet attention on a woman they've just met and then being harshly rejected, will often jump to the conclusion that being “nice” doesn't work.

They then conclude that it must be true that women are only interested in “bad guys” or tall, dark and handsome guys or rich men or guys with a big penis. Wrong! She doesn't want a “bad” guy who is going to treat her mean to keep her keen, she wants a strong “good” guy. When you learn the difference between the two, you will finally understand what it is that a woman really wants and you instantly be on your way to becoming one of the guys that women are willing to chase after.

In today's world, you don't need to be able to outrun a saber-toothed tiger to be a “protector” and you don't need bulging biceps to be strong either, but you do need to have strength of character and the confidence to walk to the beat of your own drum.

When youâ€”ve got that, youâ€”ve got what it takes to let a woman know youâ€”re the â€”real dealâ€” and sheâ€”s not going to want to let you get away...but, of course, she wonâ€”t want to tell you that straight away because she EXPECTS you to know it and wants to experience the thrill of the chase.

It might seem like a pointless game to you, but that is what women want to experience when they come across a guy they like. Getting her to chase you and earn your affection allows the right type of relationship dynamic to be created and also allows her to fall in love more rapidly.

4. She Wants You to Know How Be a Man, No Matter How Old/Young You Are

The bottom-line is that women want men to be men so that they can be women and this applies whether the woman is 16, 26, 36, 46 or 56. A woman wants to feel “weak at the knees” when sheâ€”s around a guy and she wants a guy to know how to do that without having to tell him.

If she has to tell a guy how to be a man, the exciting sexual chemistry just won’t be created.

You cannot create the exciting sexual chemistry that women yearn to experience, simply by being a normal guy. You have to be what they refer to as a real man. If you’re not, it just isn’t going to happen. You might be able to get lucky and start a few relationships, but they will fizzle out over time because once a woman loses respect for you (she will lose respect for you when you fail to be a man in critical moments), she then begins to lose attraction and once she loses attraction, she begins to fall out of love for you.

A woman will never love a guy who ISN’T a real man as much as she will love as a real man. She could be in a relationship for 10 years with a normal guy and 2 months with a real man and she will love the real man 100 times more.

It’s like you being in a relationship with an unattractive or barely-attractive woman and then being in a relationship with a beautiful woman who also has all the personality traits and qualities you really want in a woman.

When a woman is as young, say 18 years old, she may not be using “real man” in her vocabulary to describe all of this. Instead, she may say “hot guy” or “sexy guy” to describe how he makes her feel. However, as women get older, you will hear them asking, “Where are all the real men??” when they talk about how guys behave these days.

If no-one has ever taught you to be what women (of your age) refer to as a real man, then I am here to help you. Click around my site and continue learning. Each article you read or video you watch will open your mind and provide you with useful ways to begin attracting women and making them see you as a real man.

Online Dating: Does it Still Work?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

BTW: Click here to see all the comments from guys on Youtube about this video. They support what I am saying in the video by sharing their experiences using online dating.

The Fastest Way to Get Laid or Get a Girlfriend

[image: Making women feel attracted is easy]

Despite the ever-increasing popularity of the internet, there is no faster way to get laid or find yourself a new girlfriend than to walk up to a woman and talk to her IN PERSON.

It has always been that way and it doesn't look like it will be changing anytime soon.

Why?

What you actually want is a woman right there with you physically and she wants exactly the same thing. Online dating simply doesn't come close to providing that feeling.

[image: Almost any guy can attract women]

When you talk to a woman in person, you make her feel attracted to you and turned on by you. It doesn't matter if there are 200 guys trying to pick her up via online, what she feels with you is real.

You're a warm, real human man with a beating heart and a penis in your pants.

The guys on online dating are just random profiles and messages. You are real.

Almost all men still meet women in bars, at work, by getting introduced through family or friend introductions or in other situations where they can actually talk to the woman in person. Despite the advertisements from online dating sites and the heavy promotion of sites like "Plenty of Fish" in Hollywood movies, almost everyone is still meeting IN PERSON.

"Always do what you are afraid to do." Ralph Waldo Emerson (1803 – 1882). American Essayist & Poet.

Approaching women in person is actually one of the easiest, most rewarding things that you will ever do. You simply need to build up the confidence to do it and then approach women and make them feel attracted to you.

Due to shyness, nervousness or simply not knowing what to say to women in person, a lot of modern men hide away and waste years of their life trying to get results from online dating.

After hundreds of online rejections, some of these men may begin to think that they are ugly or that women must be too picky about what they want in a man these days.

Yet, what is really going on is that women are much more picky online than they are in person. Online, women have hundreds if not thousands of guys hanging out, messaging and wishing they could bang her.

In person at a bar or a club, there are guys around, but the majority of them will never have the balls to approach and talk to her. In most cases, the only guys that women get approached by in person are nervous nice guys or sleazy drunk guys.

It's extremely rare for a beautiful woman to be approached by a normal, confident guy who knows how to make her feel attracted. When I first began approaching women, I was surprised to notice that most guys simply stand around looking at the women.

There is almost NO competition compared to online dating.

Online Encounters vs. Real Life Dating

If you "meet" a woman online (i.e. you are one of the hundred or more guys messaging her and trying to get her attention), you won't be that important to her until she has felt attracted to you in person.

You might be confident and witty online, but if don't meet up with her and make her feel attracted to you in person, she is going to lose interest in you pretty quickly.

It doesn't matter if you and her have exchanged messages online and she has replied with, "LOL!" or "LMAO...ur so funny!!!"; if a guy meets her in real life and makes her feel sexually attracted to him, she is most-likely going to hook up with him and forget about you.

If you want to use online dating, you have to understand that nothing happens until you meet her in person. Anything prior to that is just a maybe and can easily be forgotten if she meets a guy in person.

When a guy doesn't get much attention from women offline, he may think that a woman that he's chatted to online is thinking about him just as much as he's thinking about her. Yet, in most cases, especially if she is attractive, she has 100s of guys interested in her and messaging her.

If he doesn't get her to meet up with him in person, she will continue to remain open to dating other guys. All of sudden, she might stop returning messages and he will panic and start asking her what's wrong and why she isn't replying. Simple: She is having sex with another guy who met up with her in person.

Many Women Pretend to Like Guys Online

[image: Women pretending to like guys online]

Imagine if you have 100s of women sending you messages saying how much they liked you and wanted to be with you.

It would make you feel pretty special, right? You'd feel confident, wanted, loved and in demand.

Well, that's how women feel online. To increase the amount of guys that give them compliments and boost their ego with comments like, "You're so beautiful!" or "I wish I could be your boyfriend" women often reply to those guys and show a little bit of interest to encourage them.

For example: She might reply with a smiley face and an â□□Lol!â□□ but in person, she is actually rolling her eyes and thinking, â□□Weirdo...!â□□ or "Loser...I would never sleep with you."

Remember: You are nothing to her until you meet her in person and attract her. Prior to that, you are simply another random guy out of 100s and maybe 1,000s who are pursuing her online.

The only way to stand out as being special is to get her on the phone, make her feel attracted to you on a phone call, arrange a time to meet up, attract her in person and then kiss her and have sex with her.

Anything other than that means you are nothing to her and can be forgotten or replaced with a click of a button. It may sound cruel, but that's online dating for you. Women have 100s and often 1,000s of options to choose from.

When you approach a woman in person, it's just you and her. You are either going to make her feel attracted to you or not. If she feels attracted, she will give you her number, kiss you or begin having sex with you that night. If she doesn't feel attracted, just talk to another woman.

When you know how to attract women, most (not all) of the women you meet will feel attracted to. You will be able to talk to women in a bar, club, shopping mall or anywhere else and make most of the women you meet feel attracted to you and be interested in seeing where it goes...

6 Deadly Dating Mistakes That Can Ruin Your Chances With a Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Dating is easy when you know how to make a woman feel attracted to you, enjoy her time with you and feel like she'd be lucky to get a chance with you.

If you can do all that, most of the women that you date will happily sleep with you and get into a relationship with you.

On the other hand, if you don't really know to make women feel attracted to you on a date, you make them feel awkward or like they are probably too good for you, most of the women you date will play hard to get or lose interest after the first date.

Here are some classic dating mistakes that cause a woman to lose attraction for a guy...

Mistake #1 â◻◻ Being Too Nice

Youâ◻◻ll often hear women talking about how they are looking for a nice guy because most guys are jerks, assholes or only interested in having sex. Hearing that, a lot of guys get confused and assume that if a woman wants a nice guy, then being REALLY nice to her will REALLY impress her.

Yet, that's not what the woman means when she says "nice." What a woman means by "nice guy" is a guy who makes her feel sexually attracted to him AND is also a good guy.

Being nice to a woman isn't the thing that will make her feel turned on or become wet down there. She might like you as a person, but she won't have an intense desire to have sex with you because you are nice and polite to her.

If you want a woman to feel the desire to have sex with you and begin a relationship, you have to focus on making her feel sexually attracted to you and turned on by the way that you interact with her.

Some women are a lot easier than others though. You will come across women that will hook up with a guy who doesn't even make her feel much attraction and is simply a nice guy who has been very persistent. Yet, those relationships rarely last.

What women are really looking for a good guy who ALSO knows how to turn them on. When a woman finds a guy like that, she latches on and doesn't let go.

Mistake #2 â◻◻ Not Taking on the Leadership Role

There's nothing wrong with asking a woman for her input on things or letting her choose where to eat or where to go for some of their dates together. Women are just as intelligent as men and are perfectly capable of leading the way if necessary.

However, when a woman is forced into the leadership position too often because a guy doesn't have the confidence or desire to lead, she begins to lose respect for him. When a woman loses respect for a guy, she then begins to lose attraction for him.

Generally speaking, a woman wants to be with a man who has the confidence and desire to "be the man” in the relationship, rather than expecting her to do that. She wants to relax into her feminine role and feel more girly around him, rather than having to think, behave and feel like “the man” on a regular basis.

Mistake #3 â□□ Trying to Buy Her Affection

Taking a woman out to an expensive dinner, buying her expensive gifts or splurging money on things for a woman isn’t what will create lasting feelings of respect and attraction.

There’s nothing wrong with taking a woman out to dinner or even getting her a gift if you want to, as long as you’re not doing it as a way to make up for the fact that you don’t even know how to make her feel attracted to YOU as a person.

Some guys make the mistake of trying to buy a woman’s love, respect, attraction and affection with gifts. Yet, the woman isn’t in a relationship with the gift.

Money shouldnâ□□t play a major part in your dating life. It doesnâ□□t matter if you have a lot of money and can afford to spend it on her. The best gift you can give to a woman is to deepen her feelings of love, respect and attraction for YOU over time.

Mistake #4 â□□ Constant Compliments

Everyone likes the occasional, sincere compliment, but if you are constantly complimenting her throughout the date, she may feel like there is a huge value discrepancy between you and her or that she is probably doing you a favor by going out with you.

Give her honest compliments, but don’t try to win her over with compliments. What matters the most is whether or not she feels sexually attracted to you. If she feels sexually attracted to you, she will appreciate a compliment from you so much more.

Mistake #5 â□□ Asking Permission to Kiss Her

Imagine this...

Youâ□□ve been out on a great date with a beautiful woman. Youâ□□ve laughed together, enjoyed each otherâ□□s company and had amazing conversations where you really connect. She may have even leaned against you for a lingering moment or â□□accidentallyâ□□ stroked you softly with her hand sometime during your date.

Now that the evening is ending, youâ□□re both moving in closer and speaking more quietly and intimately. She’s looking at you in the eyes and displaying girly, submissive body language at times to show that she is sexually attracted to you.

Yet, instead of taking her into your arms and kissing her, you stop and ask for permission to kiss her. You ask, “Can I kiss you?” or “Is it okay to kiss you?”

This kills the mood.

The woman realizes that you lack confidence and need her to reassure you that she wants you to kiss her. A confident guy would know that he is attractive to her and would simply lean in and kiss her.

A woman expects you to be able to read her body language to see if she is ready to be kissed or not. If she is ready for it, she expects you to have the confidence to go ahead and do it and if you don’t, she will begin to lose respect and attraction for you.

This isn't the 1950s where boys asked girls for permission to give them a goodnight kiss at the doorstep. Today's women are much more sexual and expect that the man they're dating is going to go in for a first kiss and possibly even lead her to the bedroom...without first asking for her permission.

If a woman doesn't want you to kiss her, she will say no when you lean in. If that happens, simply say, "Oh, okay...I must have read that wrong...I thought you wanted me to kiss you."

Then, simply focus on building up the sexual tension between you and kiss her later on when the mood is right, or when she gives you more obvious signals like cuddling into you, touching you when she looks into your eyes, etc.

Mistake #6 â€• Getting Too Serious Before She's Earned it

If a woman is attractive, most guys get really keen on her right away and share their "feelings" with her.

If the girl that you're dating is beautiful, she will be bored of guys giving her the same experience every time. She knows that if she is nice to a guy, he will develop "feelings" for her and then want to be her boyfriend, or at least have sex with her.

She won't have to do anything special other than look good and most guys will want her.

Yet, that's not fun for her.

After a while, most women develop a desire for a guy who is more of a challenge. She wants to feel like she has to earn his interest, rather than getting 100% interest from him just because she looks good.

How to Get Lucky With Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're not having any luck with women lately, you may have begun to think that modern women are too picky, too difficult and oftentimes, not worth the effort.

Yet, attracting and picking up women is actually one of the easiest things that a guy can ever do in life. When you know how to attract women, you don't have to rely on getting lucky because most of the women that you meet feel attracted to you.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

It's so damn easy to attract women for sex or a relationship these days.

Most women are totally open to having sex with you to see how things go and many women are fine with starting a relationship to see if it turns into something special.

Waiting to Get Lucky is a Waste of Your Precious Lifetime

[image: Stop wasting your life]

You can actually attract women now. You don't have to sit around waiting and hoping that something magically happens one day.

Right now, you are good enough for MOST women.

All you need to do is learn how to turn on your natural ability to make them feel attracted to you. When you do that, most women like you and you can then get on with enjoying your choice of women until you are ready to settle down with your perfect girl.

Don't waste your life thinking that you're not good enough because you ARE.

Don't hope that a woman will overlook the fact that you don't even know how to make her feel attracted. She might initially accept that (i.e. you will get lucky), but the relationship almost always won't last.

Most guys in this world don't even know that it's possible to attract with women their personality, behavior and conversation style. They assume that women don't like them because they're not good looking enough, but that's not it.

This is real reason why a lot of good guys fail with women...

Some guys hope that if they just wait long enough, they might one day "get lucky" and score a beautiful woman who isn't very picky. She will overlook the fact that she doesn't feel much attraction and just love him for him.

They will then live happily ever after. Awww...sweet.

Wake up! That's not how it works.

Sure, some guys do get lucky and score themselves a hottie, but once she gets bored or finds a replacement guy, he is finished. So, why does a woman hook up with a guy who doesn't even know how to properly attract her or isn't even her real type?

Here are some of the reasons why...

1. She wants a guy that she can control

When a woman notices that a man is desperate for some female attention and doesn't believe that he can attract other women, she usually realizes that she will be able to control him in a relationship with the threat of a breakup.

She'll be the one who has the power and will end the relationship whenever she wants without any regard for his feelings or desire to be with her. Women who use this type of "dating strategy" will stay in the relationship until something better comes along.

They will even go as far as marrying a man, only to cheat on him and divorce him later when they find a better option.

2. She wants a guy that she will never truly love

If a woman hooks up with a guy who can't attract other quality women and simply got lucky with her, she will never love him as much as she would a guy who makes her feel more and more attraction over time.

A lot of guys don't realize that it's possible to deepen a woman's love, respect and attraction over time in a relationship. When you have that skill, your relationship will not break up. There is no need to break up because the feelings become more and more powerful over time.

If a guy is insecure about his ability to attract women (including her), it will turn her off on a deep level. She might love him and really like him as a person, but she will never experience the type of love that she would with a guy who is truly attractive to her.

Since the love that she feels the guy who got lucky with her won't ever become too deep and meaningful, it won't hurt her very much (if at all) to break up with him. He will be the one who is devastated by the breakup and she will move on quickly and easily without having to go through much of a grieving process.

Some women do this to guys because they have been broken up with or cheated on by more confident men in the past. Instead of having to go through that painful experience again, a woman will accept a lesser man whom she will never truly love.

She might stay with him for a few years or even for life, but she will never truly love him in the way that she'd love a man who knows how to deepen her feelings of respect, love and attraction over time.

3. She lacks experience when it comes to relationships

Some younger women make the mistake of hooking up with guys who are insecure and lacking confidence and masculinity, because they lack experience with relationships and don't yet know how to identify the real men from the boys.

At the start of the relationship, she might feel as though she "loves" him because she is enjoying all the wonderful feelings that come along with lust and sex. Yet, if he doesn't know how to build on her attraction and respect for him over time, she will gradually lose respect, then lose attraction and then begin fall out of love with him.

To show you what I mean, here's a video I made for guys who've been broken up with by a woman...

4. She is insecure and doesn't feel as though she deserves a better man

Sometimes, a woman will get into a relationship with a man that she isn't fully attracted to because she is insecure and doesn't feel like she deserves anything better.

To many guys, this seems like the PERFECT solution to all of their problems. They can be insecure, not know how to attract women and they will still get a great woman. Perfect!

Not quite.

Just because she is insecure and lacks confidence in herself now, it doesn't mean that she won't become confident later on.

Many of the guys who come to me for help on how to get their ex back, managed to hook up with a woman at a low point in her life (e.g. she had been dumped by another guy). Then, when she eventually builds her self-esteem back up again, she dumps the guy who got lucky with her and decides that she now wants and deserves a better man.

It is a very confusing, heartbreaking and annoying process for a guy to go through with a woman, especially because most of the guys that it happens to are good guys with good intentions. Yet, that's how dating and relationships work with women. You either know how to attract women or you don't...

In a relationship with a woman, nothing is certain unless you make it certain. You have to know how to make her feel attracted to you and then deepen her feelings of love, respect and attraction over time.

A woman may love you today, but she will just as easily fall out of love with you next week if you are unable to be the man she needs you to be. Likewise, she may not be interested in getting engaged or married when you meet her, but if your love evolves and it feels right to take the next step together, you need to be brave enough to take it.

The Beginning of a Relationship is the EASY Part

[image: A relationship falling apart]

If a guy gets lucky with a woman that is out of his league, things can and often do run fairly smoothly at the start.

However, when the initial buzz wears off (anywhere from a few days to a year), the woman will eventually realize that she has accepted a guy who probably doesn't deserve a girl like her.

When she has that realization, she will begin to pull back her interest in him and start focussing on her career or wanting to go out partying with her single girlfriends. The guy will then begin to feel insecure about her lack of affection and interest and in most cases, he will start behaving in a clingy, needy and jealous way with her.

The more insecure he becomes, the more respect and attraction she loses for him and the relationship spirals out of control.

To keep a relationship together (whether it began with genuine attraction or luck), a man has to know how to deepen a woman's feelings of love, respect and attraction for him. If he is unable to do that, he will most-likely become insecure when the woman tests him by pulling back her interest at some point in the relationship.

If he reacts with insecurity, rather than with confidence, the woman will lose respect and attraction for him and the problems will begin.

There's Only So Much That a Modern Woman Will Put Up With

In the past, it was shameful for a woman to break up with or divorce a man. Dating lots of men was absolutely not allowed, so women had to be very picky and select a man that they would devote themselves to.

Women would stay with their chosen man for life, even if he didn't know how to deepen her feelings of love, respect and attraction. If she was unhappy, she was stuck with him and had to put up with it by sticking to her, "Till death do us part" promise at the altar.

Not anymore.

If a modern woman isn't happy in a relationship or marriage, she knows that the majority of society no longer see break ups as taboo. Some TV shows, movies and female pop singers even make the idea of divorce, break ups and affairs seem "cool" to women.

The old days of women feeling obliged to remain with a guy for life no longer exist.

For an insecure guy who has gotten lucky with a woman, it is usually only a matter of time before the whole thing unravels (i.e. she realizes her mistake or finds herself a better man) and she then dumps him and gets on with her life. This is one of the main reasons why the divorce rate has been so high over the past 50 years.

Here's What Happened to Me When I Got "Lucky" With a Woman

Back when I had no idea about how to attract women, my main approach was to talk to as many girls as I could and then hope that one of them liked me.

I didn't even know that I could actively attract women based on what I was saying and doing during the interaction. Instead, I would simply use the nice guy approach and hope to get lucky one day with a woman who'd give me a chance.

After being single and alone for a long time, I eventually got lucky with a girl at a party (both her and I were a bit tipsy after having some drinks). While dancing at the house party, her and I managed to get close and then somehow I started kissing her.

She was the hottest girl I'd ever scored with. I couldn't believe it. I immediately wanted to begin a relationship with her and luckily enough, she was fairly inexperienced with relationships, so she went along with it.

Throughout the relationship, I always secretly knew that I'd gotten lucky with her, so my insecurities eventually began to change my nice behavior towards her into overly-protective, jealous, mean and sometimes even threatening behavior.

After losing a lot of respect and attraction for me, she eventually cheated on me and then dumped me. I was emotionally destroyed for a long time after that. I didn't feel like I was good enough for women and was alone for years once again.

After a while, I made a decision that I was going to work out how to properly attract women so I could have my choice with women. I went out approaching women every weekend until I worked out how to attract women and I've never looked back.

I've now had sex with more than 250 women and I recently got married to the girl of my dreams, who is 10x hotter than the ex who dumped me all those years ago...

Why Very Intelligent Men Fail With Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're an intelligent man who is usually smarter than most of the people you meet, it can be frustrating to realize that other guys with far less brain power than you seem to be fighting women off with a stick.

So, what gives? Why isn't your intelligence giving you a clear advantage when it comes to women?

Mr. Right?

Throughout your life, your above average intelligence has allowed you to pass tests with ease and pretty much always know the right, no matter what the question is. You've gotten used to being Mr. Right, because you usually ARE right.

So, why can't you accurately answer the question of why you aren't getting the girls?

Well, it's not for a lack of trying or due to a lack of academic intelligence. The reason why you can't answer the question of what it takes to be successful with women, is that you're looking at it with clouded vision.

Since you are so used to being right and have always been able to use your intelligence to come up with a solution, you probably think that the way you've been approaching your dating life is CORRECT and everyone else must be CRAZY for not seeing things the way you do.

For example: Some intelligent guys believe that women should choose guys based on niceness and intelligence. Yet, no matter how nice they are or how much they demonstrate their intelligence during a conversation, women still aren't interested.

This leads some intelligent men to conclude that women are crazy and must only want bad boys, which isn't the correct answer. Here's why...

As you will discover in the video above, there is NOTHING wrong with being nice to a woman, but it isn't the thing that makes her wet or turns her on. If you want to turn women on during a conversation, you have to do things like flirt with her, display confidence, use humor and make her feel girly in response to your masculinity.

Then, when she feels attracted to you, she will come to appreciate the fact that you are ALSO a highly intelligent, good guy. She will then feel lucky to be talking to you and will be love the fact that you have a brain.

Social, Emotional and Academic Intelligence

Just because a man is academically intelligent (e.g. good at maths, has a high IQ, etc), it doesn't automatically mean that he will have a high level of emotional intelligence or be good at socializing. Here are a few, general examples to help explain what I mean...

Social Intelligence

General examples

- Great at talking with people.
- Able to adapt to varied social environments and instantly get along with people.
- Makes friends easily and maintains great relationships.

Emotional Intelligence

General examples

- Great at being positive and happy.
- Able to feel confident and self-assured in any situation.
- Experiences life with healthy emotions that lead to enjoyable and fulfilling experiences.

Academic Intelligence

General examples

- Great at maths.
- Able to analyze and solve complex academic problems.
- Gets top grades in school or university.

Some guys excel in all areas of human intelligence, but they are the minority. The majority of guys don't have perfect levels of social and emotional intelligence, but the good news is that they can learn and improve it just like another area of skill in life.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

You Only Know What You Know

One of the most interesting things about life is that there is a lot for us to learn and know. In fact, it's endless.

We humans can be ignorant if we want to be, but for those of us who like to excel, grow and become more, we know that there is always another level of learning and mastery to aspire to.

The most intelligent, successful men in this world know that they don't know it all. They continually seek to uncover more of life's secrets and know that the more they learn, the more amazing this world seems.

When it comes to the topic of what women want, most intelligent men have their theories and ideas, but that doesn't mean they are correct. Everyone can have an opinion on something, even if they are stupid.

What separates guys who are successful with women from guys who are unsuccessful with women, are those who know how to attract women. For example: The majority of guys (intelligent or dumb) think that women feel attracted to men for the same reasons that men feel attracted to women.

Watch this video to understand what women are really attracted to in men...

Intelligent men fail with women because they only know what they know. If an intelligent man knew that he could attract women in more than 100 different ways (e.g. confidence, charisma, humor, masculine vibe, flirting, etc), he wouldn't be trying to get women to "like" him as a person for being so smart and nice.

He would do the smart thing, which is to focus on making the woman feel attracted. Once a woman is attracted, she will then like the guy so much more and be open to giving him her phone number, kissing him, going on a date and having sex with him.

Another example of "You only know what you know" is the remaining tribal communities who live in jungles like the Amazon...

I recently saw a documentary where the researchers visited a tribe who don't understand "time" like we do. They don't have hours, days, months or years, but they do notice the changes in the seasons. They weren't aware of the latest breakthroughs that we'd been making in medicine, how we're using the internet to help each other or how societies across the world are becoming increasingly interconnected and tolerant of each other.

Even though some of the men in the tribe might consider themselves to be intelligent, they don't know what modern society knows. Those men only know what they know.

The same applies to success with women...

If you have been getting rejected by women, if you are nervous around women and if you have no idea how to attract them, it's not because you lack the intelligence or ability. It's simple: You simply don't know what you don't know.

Until you learn how to attract women, you will be in the dark on the topic.

A Hypothetical Example

The diagram below shows a hypothetical example of an "intelligent guy" who knows a LOT about mathematics, but doesn't know much about what it takes to be successful with women, how to attract women and how to maintain a great relationship with a woman.

Just because the guy is academically intelligent, it doesn't automatically mean he will be socially or emotionally intelligent or know what it takes to be successful with women.

Note: Of course, I am not saying that all academically intelligent men don't know how to be successful with women.

This is simply an example of one type of guy and in this case, it's the cliché "Math Genius" who is good with numbers, but not girls.

[image: Academic Intelligence Vs. Social Intelligence]

In the example above, the Math Genius doesn't know a lot about how to attract women and succeed at dating or relationships, but he does know a lot about mathematics.

Despite being an intelligent guy, he still only knows what he knows...

Do You Suffer From a Fear of Dating?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Sadly, too often I hear from men who complain about their lack of a love life, but when I dig a little deeper by asking a few questions, I usually discover that the real reason these men don't have a woman is that they don't approach enough women or go out on enough dates.

Most of these men are really good guys who have good intentions when it comes to women.

Many are also intelligent, down-to-earth, honest guys who deserve a great woman (or many great women), but for many reasons (some of which I'll discuss in this article), they are afraid to approach and date women.

Afraid to Approach

[image: Fear of dating]

Women aren't going to kill a guy for approaching them, but that doesn't matter to a guy who suffers from a fear of approaching. He may know that it's silly to be worried about what might happen, but he can't help himself from feeling nervous, anxious or afraid.

He might tell himself, "Don't worry about it...just approach and say hi," but his anxiety and fear almost always feel more powerful than his desire to approach. Week after week, month after month, he sees women that he'd love to meet, but never has the courage to follow through and make something happen.

Hiding From What Needs to Be Done

Guys who have a fear of approaching and dating women will often try to avoid places where they could meet and talk with single women. If people ask why they're not out there meeting women, they'll usually come up with an endless list of reasons why they don't have time to date (i.e. busy with work, study, family commitments, community responsibilities, etc).

Yet, what is really going on is that the guy doesn't want to face the possibility of being rejected and then feeling horrible about himself for weeks or months on end. Instead, he hides away from approaching and meeting women and then masturbates often to dull his built up sexual desire for women.

No matter how many porn videos he jerks off too, the desire just keeps coming back week after week. He sees other guys happy with real women and wishes that he could have that too, but he's afraid of being hurt.

It's the potential for rejection that scares a lot of guys, but what really puts the fear in a guy and makes him avoid approaching and dating women are the horrible feelings he experiences after a rejection.

For instance, sometimes a man will contact me here at The Modern Man and explain that he built up the courage to approach a woman, she rejected him and now he's not comfortable approaching any other women at all. However, what these guys don't realize is:

1. No man is compatible with every woman on the planet.
2. Not every woman is single when you approach her and that is NOT your fault. You would be silly to take that as a personal rejection. She simply isn't available.
3. When a man is good with women and has his choice of women, he too rejects offers from women as well.
4. The main reason women reject men is because the men approach them incorrectly and go against the flow of a natural sexual courtship.

Doubting Yourself on a Date

[image: Doubting yourself on a date]

In addition to the many guys who are afraid of approaching women, there are also many guys who set up dates with women, but then cripple themselves with feelings of self-doubt about whether the girl actually likes him or not.

I've heard so many cases where a woman has happily agreed to go out on a date with a guy, but then the "voice in his head" starts giving the guy a huge list of reasons why he'll never make it past the first date. He also sits around worrying that she might call and cancel the first date before it happens.

In his mind, he doesn't feel worthy enough for the woman and sees dating as a nerve-wracking experience where he has to hopefully get lucky. Yet, that's not how it works.

[image: Doubting yourself on a date]

To be successful with women, you simply need to know how to make them feel attracted to you. When a woman is attracted to you, she is going to be interested. So, there is nothing to worry about.

Many guys make the mistake of thinking that they have to be LIKED by a woman, but what you really need to do is make her feel sexually ATTRACTED to you. When a guy doesn't realize that, he often tries too hard to be liked as a person and comes across as the typical nice guy.

Watch this video for more info...

Taking the Matter into His Own Hands

No matter how much a man decides to avoid approaching and dating women, his sexual desire for women NEVER goes away.

He can try to blank it out by burying himself in work, going to the gym excessively, masturbating regularly (or excessively), drinking or taking drugs, watching loads of TV or spending hours playing a computer game or participating in real life sports, but the missing piece of an actual real life woman never gets filled.

It's an empty feeling.

You don't have a beautiful, sweet, loving woman cuddling you and saying with heartfelt sincerity, "I love you so much." No computer game or TV show can give you the indescribable pleasure that you experience when you and a woman truly love each other.

Additionally, no porn movie can ever come close to giving you the pleasure of having a real, beautiful woman right there with you, bouncing up and down on your â□□you know whatâ□□ and screaming out your name in pure ecstasy.

Unfortunately, too many of the men who are afraid of approaching and dating women will revert to having an empty relationship with porn. As their sexual urges rise up during the week, they will â□□get rid of themâ□□ by watching porn and dulling their desires once again.

When they see a woman in real life, they will feel attraction, but their unwillingness to face their fears and become the man they really should be will ensure that they hide away from her in fear as usual.

While everyone else is living a normal, healthy life and having real sex and enjoying love and companionship, the guys who are afraid of women stay alone with their pain.

They look on with sadness and feel left out when they see couples walking along hand-in-hand, arm-in-arm or in a loving embrace and wonder, â□□*Why don't I have that? Why don't women like me?*â□□ never realizing the simple truth that I first told a client, coaching him over the phone, around five years ago. I said, â□□You can't have a girlfriend if you don't talk to women and escalate to a phone number, kiss, sex or a date.â□□

It sounds very simple, but in life, often the simplest things are overlooked by the smartest of people.

No Man is Compatible With Every Woman on the Planet

Guys who suffer from a fear of dating are worried about being rejected. They've usually made a few attempts to approach and escalate with women, but because it didn't work out they begin to assume that women don't like them and they are probably â□□doomed for lifeâ□□ when it comes to women.

The simple truth is that no man is compatible with every woman on the planet. If you want to be more compatible with more women, you have to become the type of man that women desperately want to be with.

No man is â□□doomed for lifeâ□□ when it comes to women.

Any guy can learn how to actively attract a woman when he meets her and then deepen her feelings of love, respect and attraction over time when in a relationship.Â

Here's how I turned my life around and became so attractive to women that a hot, young woman proposed marriage to me. We're now married and are happier than ever.

Don't Look Back in Regret

Over the years, I've been contacted by so many older men who have said that they wish something like The Modern Man was around for them when they were in their â□□hey-dayâ□□ so to speak. They've told me that much of their life has been spent alone or spent wallowing in self-pity after a woman broke up with them. Now that their life is slipping away and they are heading towards old age, they look back with a sick feeling of regret when they realize how much they missed out on with women.

At the same time, I've also been contacted by thousands of guys who say that they've been having the time of their lives with women since using my advice.

The question is: How will you let your life play out? Are you going to let a fear of not meeting a compatible women, EVERY time you approach a woman, stop you from enjoying all the love and sex that you deserve?

Will you be looking back in regret at the life you let slip away because you were too afraid to stand up and be the strong man you know you can be? The choice is yours.

5 Things to Avoid Saying On a First Date With an Attractive Woman...

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're on a date with an unattractive woman, it doesn't really matter what you say – she will most-likely still be interested in seeing you again because she won't have many or any options with other guys.

However, if you're on a date with a beautiful women who could easily attract other men, you have to play your cards right otherwise she will lose interest and hook up with a guy who makes her feel the way she really wants to feel.

The Most Important Part of a First Date is to Make the Woman Feel Attracted to You

It's very easy for beautiful women to make us men feel attracted because we mostly feel attracted to a woman's looks. However, women look for other things in men that aren't just about looks.

For example: Does your conversation style turn her on and make her feel excited to be interacting with you, or does it turn her off and make her feel bored? Does your body language make her feel attracted to you or turned off by you?

Will She Want to See You Again?

A first date is essentially about checking whether or not there is enough sexual chemistry between you to justify having sex or beginning a relationship.

To ensure that you hook up with her after the date or get a second date, the best approach to use is to be your true self while also making sure that you're actively saying and doing the sorts of things that will make her feel attracted to you.

It's important to be your true self, but you also need to know what not to say on a first date. Here are some conversation mistakes that some guys make on first dates, which can ruin a woman's attraction...

1: "I have an expensive car/house/boat/etc"

When a guy tries to impress a woman with material possessions, gifts or anything else that involves flashy cash or riches in her face, he is essentially saying to the woman, "I don't think that I'm good enough for you as I am, but hopefully this will make you want to give me a chance."

There's nothing wrong with talking about material things if it comes up in conversation, but just don't actively try to impress a woman with things that are not you.

2: "Where should we go?" or "What do you want to do?"

Asking a woman where she'd like to go for a first date may sound like a good idea in theory, but itâ□□s not what she really wants.

Women are more attracted to guys who have the masculinity and confidence to lead the way. You don't have to lead everything all the time with a woman, but you at least have to take the lead by suggesting a place or something to do for a first date.

A woman wants to be able to relax into your masculine direction, rather than having to take on that role herself. If she is forced to take on the leading role, she will feel less feminine (girly) and will feel less respect and attraction for you as a result.

3: “So, How do you feel about me?” or “How do you like me so far?”

Women are attracted to guys who believe in themselves, so asking questions like that is a huge turn off.

When a guy asks a woman what she thinks of him, whether or not she likes him or if he is doing a good enough job of impressing her, she will immediately lose interest in him.

A woman doesn't want to have to be gentle with an insecure guy and reassure him that everything is okay. She wants a confident guy who believes in himself and allows her to relax into feeling girly around him.

4: “Can I kiss you?”

Asking for a kiss is another big mistake. It may seem like a â□□gentlemanlyâ□□ approach to ask a woman if it's okay to kiss her, but in her mind, it simply marks you out as a wimpy guy who needs a woman to guide him through the process of hooking up with her.

If there is sexual chemistry between you, she wants you to kiss her whenever you feel like the moment is right.

5: “Do you want to see me again tomorrow?”

It's exciting when you meet a beautiful woman that you really click with. It's an amazing feeling. However, don't forget that she is a woman. If she is attractive, the majority of guys who date her really like her, want to have sex with her and want to get into a relationship with her.

When a woman experiences that over and over throughout her life, she begins to want to meet a guy who is a bit more of a challenge. A guy who really likes her, but doesn't immediately go into “marriage mode” and see her as his bride to be.

She wants to experience the feeling of really wanting to be with you and not knowing for sure that you are going to commit to her. So, by making plans for a second date the next day while still on your first date, you literally steal the challenge experience away from her.

She knows that you're smitten and can't wait to see her again. In fact, you're most-likely already beginning to fantasize about her being your girlfriend and then wife. Slow down and offer her more of a challenge and she will reward you with more love, respect, attraction and devotion than she has likely ever given to another guy before...

5 Reasons for Not Getting a Second Date

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

First dates don't always lead into second dates, even when you really want them to. Here are some possible reasons why she won't want a second date...

Reason One: Being Indecisive

If a guy is indecisive about where to go on a first date, a woman will lose interest in having a second date because women are instinctively attracted to men who can take lead.

Some guys make the mistake of thinking that it's the right thing to do to ask a woman where she wants to go or what she wants to do because she deserves to have an input. However, what a woman really wants is to follow the man's masculine direction so she can relax into being a woman and just going with the moment.

From a woman's point of view, a guy who doesn't take the lead on a first date is a guy who probably doesn't take the lead in other areas of life.

She can safely assume that he's not comfortable being an alpha male, so he will likely be pushed around in life, looked over for promotions to higher ranks in his work and so on. A woman instinctively looks for a man who can lead the way and protect her; a guy who knows how to show her a good time without her having to tell him how to do it.

Showing her a good time and taking the lead doesn't mean picking up the tab wherever you go, it means being decisive about where you choose to go and being confident in your decisions.

Reason Two: Trying Too Hard

Decisiveness and confidence are traits that women find attractive in a man, but these things have to be displayed naturally to her. Nobody likes a fake and women can spot a faker a mile off. Some guys make the mistake of trying too hard to be someone they're not, by acting overly confident or overly "cool" about everything.

They slip into thinking that they need to be a certain kind of guy to impress a woman, but what she's looking for is an opportunity to get to know who he really is. When a woman sees that a guy is trying too hard to impress her, it is very unimpressive and she will lose interest in having a second date.

A bit part of getting a second date is believing in yourself and knowing that who you are is good enough for her. If you're on a date with a woman, there must have been something about you that she liked otherwise you wouldn't be on that date.

When a guy tries too hard to be liked by a woman, he will often make the mistake of coming across as the typical nice guy. There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but if you are too nice in an attempt to be liked by her, it will often lead to rejection.

Reason Three: Making it All About You

Okay, let's cut to the chase here "women like to talk! If a guy gets so caught up in trying to impress a woman by telling her everything about himself, she's not going to be able to get much of a word in about herself.

One of the main reasons people like to talk about themselves is to get other people to understand them and know what is happening in their life and how they are dealing with it. If you don't let her connect with you in that manner, she will be less interested in a second date because she'll feel as though you don't really understand her.

Of course, she's not going to be impressed if she's forced into doing all the talking either. Sitting in silence and hanging on her every word is not helping her to get to know you, which is what she also wants to do on the date.

Getting a second date hangs on your ability to engage in natural, enjoyable and interesting conversation. She wants to feel desirable emotions when talking to you, rather than hear you rattle on about yourself and your achievements, or watch you sit there in a stunned silence because you're nervous.

Reason Four: Being Too Keen

If you're on a date with a really hot woman that you really like, it's natural that you're going to want to secure a second date, but if you come across as too keen to the point where she feels like you probably don't deserve her, then she'll be turned off.

Women recognize a good thing when they see it, but they don't like that good thing to be too easy to catch. Instead, a woman wants to experience the thrill of the chase first.

Some guys make the mistake of becoming infatuated by a woman and declaring their absolute devotion to her, even before she's had the chance to develop her feelings and experience a desire to snag you as her boyfriend, before another girl comes along and takes you.

If she gets the impress that you're desperate to get her and probably couldn't get many or any other girls like her, it will turn her off. She wants to be getting a good deal out of the relationship too, rather than feeling like she is doing you a favor by hooking up with you.

If she's an attractive woman, she will be used to guys coming along and falling in love with her instantly. In fact, my current beautiful girlfriend told me about how much she used to hate how guys would tell her that they loved her within minutes or hours of meeting her. It happened to her all the time and she always had the same reaction: End of conversation or no second date.

I've been dating since I was fifteen. I'm exhausted. Where is he? â

Kirstin Davis, Actress

Some guys even go as far as bringing a gift (or gifts!) to a first date to show their love and devotion upfront. This is a huge turn off for most women because they want to earn that type of treatment from you over time, rather than being given it all upfront just for going on a date!

Personally speaking, I never get women gifts except for their birthday and at Christmas time. Even then, I'd like to avoid it if I could because I believe that being with me is enough of a gift to a woman. I really feel that a girl is lucky to have a guy like me and because of that, girls think the same way about me.

Reason Five: Not Being Keen Enough

Okay, this seems to fly in the face of the last point, right? However, there's a fine line between being too keen and not being keen enough. If you act too keen, she will probably think you're desperate and don't deserve her.

If you don't show enough interest, she will assume you don't like her or don't believe you can have her. So, it's important to show interest, but just come across as though you are 100% sold on her and that she will never, ever have to do anything else to impress you ever again.

While this might seem like some kind of impossible balancing act or unnecessary "game" that needs to be played, it's actually quite easy to do. It's the default mating dance that humans all over the world instinctively perform to ensure they are choosing the right person.

Some guys might feel annoyed at women for wanting to play a little first, but it is simply a result of humans being an intelligent species. If a male lion wants to have sex with a female lion, he has to come into the other lion's territory and fight or kill him. This demonstrates to the female lion that he is strong and can protect her.

If a male human wants to have sex with a female human, he has to show her that he has the social and emotional intelligence that is critical for survival in the human world. This demonstrates to the female human that the guy has what it takes to thrive, prosper and survive in our challenging modern world.

Erogenous Zones: Are They Important?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

We've all heard of "erogenous zones" before, but how important are they and what do you need to know about them?

Erogenous zones are specific parts of a woman's body that are more pleasurable to be touched than others. For instance, she is going to feel more pleasure when you grab and caress her breasts, compared to her elbows.

However, what most guys don't realize is that when a woman is attracted to a guy, every part of her body becomes an erogenous zone when he touches her. So, it's not important to study the locations of erogenous zones as much as it is to understand how to attract a woman and turn her on.

You can go look up "erogenous zones" in Google images if you want, but knowing the locations of the erogenous zones is NOT important for your success with women. What IS important is knowing how to approach a woman, make her feel naturally attracted to you and then escalate to kissing, sex and a relationship (if you want one).

If you waste time trying to study unimportant things like "erogenous zones" even before you've mastered approaching women and getting laid, then the only sex scenes you will be witnessing are those in porn movies.

Approach, make women feel attracted to you, escalate to kissing and sex and THEN (if you want) learn about other things like erogenous zones, which in my opinion are not important anyway.

The reason I was able to have sex with more than 250 women before marrying my sexy wife (we met when she was 20 and I was 35. We're now 22 and 37) is that I've never been worried about trying to master my knowledge of the erogenous zones and other random things that don't really matter.

What matters is that you have the confidence to approach women, you know how to attract women and then you are able to move in for a kiss and then take a woman home for sex, or simply get her phone number so you can follow up for a date and then have sex.

Nothing big will happen in your life if you learn about erogenous zones. Knowing how to touch a woman is great, but if you don't even know how to attract women when you interact with them, they aren't going to feel very turned on by your touch and may even be rejected.

Even now, after all my success with women and my now happy marriage, I still don't care about erogenous zones. I might mess around with them one day, but thus far, I've had an amazing sex life with women and have never had to worry about it.

It's Not Just About Breasts and Butts

A woman's breasts are an undeniable erogenous zone and many women can experience an intense orgasm through breast and nipple stimulation alone. It's also true that a masculine grab of her feminine butt can really get a woman aroused. However, a woman's biggest erogenous zone is her mind.

| "The mind can also be an erogenous zone" — Raquel Welch, actress

A woman has to feel turned on mentally before she can feel turned on physically, which is why women are less like men when it comes to the speed in which they want to escalate to sex. Men can look at a woman and want to have sex with her immediately, whereas most women want to be turned on by who you are and how you make her feel.

Turn Her On During Conversation

When a woman is mentally and emotionally turned on by you, any type of touch can send rushes of pleasure coursing through her body and mind. Unfortunately, most guys unknowingly turn women off during conversation for way too many reasons that I won't go into here.

What I will say is that conversation is like the key that opens the door to a woman's heart, mind and body. When you have the ability to turn a woman on during conversation, there's no need for expensive dates or extensive dates over a long period of time, before things eventually (but not always) move towards sex and a relationship.

When you can turn a woman on during conversation and touch the erogenous zone of her mind, things just flow naturally from one stage to the next; from conversation, to kiss and to sex.

Get Closer and Closer and Closer, Until...

When a woman is clearly interested in you and attracted to you, it's a great opportunity to turn her on by being subtly sexual. A lot of guys ruin this moment by being too afraid to close the distance and get really close to her. For instance, putting an arm around her shoulder and whispering in her ear is a subtle and sexy way to get closer.

As you whisper, you can then comb her hair behind her ear with your fingers and move in even closer to whisper, with your lips gently brushing against her ear as you speak. Touching her hair like this then gives you the opportunity to gently stroke the side of her neck or kiss her earlobe or neck briefly while you're there.

The Kiss

[image: The kiss]

The lips are another well-known erogenous zone and if a woman is attracted to you, she wants you to kiss her. Don't believe what you see in Hollywood movies where guys get slapped for moving in for a kiss with a woman.

In all my years coaching guys in person and getting them to approach and escalate to kissing with women in bars and clubs, I have never, ever seen a client get slapped. The worst reaction has been the woman just moving back, shaking her head to say "No, not interested" or gently pushing the guy back a bit to create some distance between them.

That only happened because the guy wasn't good enough at sparking enough attraction. Most guys get it right on their second or third attempt though. It all depends on how much you need to learn to get to a normal level.

Don't Be Afraid to Touch Women...As Long as You Are Being Attractive

[image: Woman slapping man]

On TV shows and in movies, men are forever being given a slap on the face or a drink tipped over their head for touching a woman, so it's no surprise that a lot of modern men who are keen to make a good impression on a date feel as though they should keep their hands to themselves.

Most guys don't realize that Hollywood movies and TV sitcoms are designed to ENTERTAIN. Although some may be a bit EDUCATIONAL, they usually do NOT reflect what happens in REAL life especially when it comes to men picking up women.

Usually, for the sake of ENTERTAINING the audience, a guy will get slapped or have a drink tipped over his head for showing his sexual interest in a woman.

...but that is NOT what happens in the real world. I've been approaching for years and coaching guys in bars/clubs/malls for years and I have never seen a woman react like that. NEVER.

Touching a woman does not have to be blatantly sexual and it's the subtle, spontaneous touches that really turn her on. It is NATURAL, normal and a NICE thing to do to make physical contact with other people in everyday situations, so touching a woman during a conversation or on a date is no different.

Of course, depending on the woman, not every part of her body will be an appropriate part to reach out and touch while you're just getting to know each another. Yet, the fact of the matter is that she DOES want to experience the "spark" that physical contact brings.

Avoiding any physical contact through fear of "getting it wrong" takes away any potential to experience the thrill and pleasure of that spark and that's an opportunity that should not be missed.

In the real world, it doesn't take a slap in the face for a woman to let you know she's not comfortable with your approach or touching. Although, in most cases, a woman will pretend to be offended or taken aback by your touch to see how you will respond.

If you respond apologetically, then she's just found out that she's speaking to or on a date with a weak man who doesn't understand women. If you respond with a smile and confidently continue the conversation, she knows she's with a real man.

If a woman feels naturally attracted to you (e.g. you're a confident, masculine guy), then she will welcome your touch. Personally speaking, I've always touched women (e.g. on the shoulder, waist or outside of her upper arm) when I meet them because I assume that women will find me attractive.

After all, confidence and masculinity are naturally attractive to women, so it's pretty much guaranteed that most women I meet will feel at least some level of sexual attraction for me as soon as they notice my confident, masculine energy, body language, tonality and vibe.

How to Be a Charismatic Man

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

A big part of being a charismatic man is having the ability to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman, simply based on your body language, vibe and conversation style.

Charisma is one of those words you will often hear being used to describe amazing people, but what does it really mean to be charismatic and is it possible for any guy to become a charismatic man?

Can a guy like you be looked upon as a charming, loveable and charismatic man by women? Is it possible for you to become the man that women go â€œweak at the kneesâ€ over?

Popular culture will tell you, â€œNo! You have to be tall, dark and handsome and live a James Bond lifestyle to have that type of effect on women.â€ Yet, as history has continually shown, the masses are usually wrong.

The truth is that you, yes you, can be a highly-charismatic man that women lust after, people love and men respect and admire. You are allowed to be a charismatic man. Charisma is not reserved for celebrities, rich people or good looking people.

Don't believe the masses of people who simply don't understand how attraction between men and women really works. You can be the sort of man that makes women feel intense attraction for you and see you as being a charming, charismatic man.

Charisma is Invisible, But the Effects Are Easy to See

[image: Charisma]

Although charisma isn't something that can be seen with the naked eye, it is something that has a visible effect on the people who encounter it. People sense it and naturally react in a positive way to it.

Charismatic men have an almost â€œunrealâ€ ability to light up a room simply by being in it. People suddenly pay attention and are keenly interested to watch him, listen to him and get involved in whatever he seems to be interested in. When a charismatic man interacts with a woman, you will almost always see her smiling and showing excited interest in him right away.

You've Got it in You Too

According to the findings of various psychologists over the last few decades, charisma is thought to be only 50% natural born ability and the remaining 50% is based on a set of skills that can be learned. I tend to agree, but I have a different way of looking at it.

The way I see it is that everyone has their own natural â€œvibeâ€ and charisma about them. When they develop the additional 50% by improving their overall social skills and confidence, they create a unique type of charisma that only they can have.

[image: Charismatic conversation]

I believe that each of us has the potential to become a more amazing and charismatic version of ourselves, simply by developing a certain set of skills that all charismatic people have. This is one of the reasons why The Modern Man approach to success with women always leads guys to amazing results.

We always advise that you should BE YOURSELF, while also adding in the extra skills and socializing techniques that we provide through our programs. The end result is that you become the most charismatic, interesting, likeable, confident and happy version of yourself possible.

Women love you for YOU, not for some â€œactâ€œ that you put on. You get to be the REAL YOU and women love you for that. It's just that you're a much cooler, confident and more interesting version of you. You're not being held back by insecurities, nervousness and misunderstandings about what women really want from men.

What Makes a Man Charismatic?

[image: Charismatic approach]

According to a study carried out by psychologists in the UK, charismatic men possess three distinct qualities:

1. A charismatic man feels strong emotions.

Uncharismatic guys usually hide their emotions during conversation by sticking to polite, safe and boring conversations. They find it hard to express themselves and be real in the moment. Women feel bored when interacting with them and most people either don't notice them or don't want to include guys like that in social activities.

Additionally, guys who lack charisma feel sexual attraction for a woman, but hide it behind an act of being a really nice guy or pretending like they only want to be friends. Charismatic men, on the other hand, are confident and socially intelligent enough to embrace the emotion they are feeling and allow it to come to the surface.

2. A charismatic man compels others to feel the same emotions as he does.

Uncharismatic guys don't have enough confidence and presence to effect other people with their emotions.

An uncharismatic man might be talking to a group of people and feel excited about a topic of conversation that comes up, but even though he is excited about it, he fails to get others interested in talking about it and an awkward vibe ensues. He then wonders why such a thing keeps happening to him, but doesn't know where to turn to learn and fix his problems.

Research into the â€œcharmingâ€œ effect of charisma has revealed that individuals with an infectious personality, unknowingly encourage others to copy the body language they use and adopt the attitude and mood they represent.

This means that on meeting a charismatic man, most people will find themselves beginning to copy his body language and mimic his facial expressions. Without being aware of it, they will automatically begin to hold themselves in a matching posture to mirror his movements and expressions. When he smiles, they smile.

3. A charismatic man is his own man, uninfluenced by other charismatic individuals.

A big part of being charismatic is about having great social skills and a good understanding about people and psychology. Personally speaking, when I'm in a social situation, I'm not worrying about what other people are thinking of me and I'm not doubting myself and I'm not comparing myself to others.

I'm on a completely different level than most people in the room. Regardless if there are other charismatic men in the room, venue, bar, club, etc. it simply doesn't affect me. I'm Dan and I know that as soon as a woman begins interacting with me, she is going to feel something that she's been yearning to feel for a long time.

Recently, a new friend of mine (who is 6 feet 2 inches tall, has a gym body and would be considered by many as being "good looking") asked me, "Dan...you have a presence about you that turns heads, makes guys move out of the way when you walk through the room and makes women keep looking at you. How do you do it?"

I explained some of the essential things we teach in our programs (which I won't reveal in this article) and also added, "Basically, I don't have the insecurities that most of these guys are plagued by. I'm standing here in a state of true confidence."

I understand things that most people will never understand about socializing, psychology, attraction and being an alpha male. Knowledge is only power if used...and I use it."

Famous Charismatic Men

[image: Johnny Depp]

Johnny Depp is a great example of how charisma is not about having a specific type of personality (e.g. a bubbly, outgoing personality) or having model looks. Each man has his own unique type of charisma, yet most men don't know how to bring it to the surface.

Depp is a man with undeniable, yet understated charisma is the actor Johnny Depp. He has a likeability factor that is hard to define but, like all charismatic men, he is able to win the affection of others without any apparent effort.

Since they don't know how to be a charismatic man, a lot of men try to convince themselves that it's all about looks, money, cars and any other insecurity guys like cloud their mind with.

"Oh, but Johnny Depp isn't ugly. Look at him in Pirates of the Caribbean. People think he is good looking" guys will say, not realizing that women wouldn't be interested in Depp if he wasn't the cool, charismatic individual that he is.

I've lost count of how many times I've been contacted via the site and a guy says, "Everyone tells me I'm good looking, but I haven't had a serious girlfriend and am still a virgin" or "I work out at the gym, I'm fairly good looking, I have a great job, but women aren't interested in me when I talk to them. What am I doing wrong?" The fact is, charismatic men draw others towards them with their personality. You don't get to be charismatic because you have a certain facial structure or have built up your biceps in the gym.

Charisma is a deeper trait that is way more valuable than mere looks. If you aren't ready to accept that, then you aren't ready to become a charismatic man. You're probably going to put yourself through more years of unnecessary self-doubt, frustration, loneliness and feelings of worthlessness, until you finally can't take it anymore and want to change. If you believe that it's all about looks and money, then you have been brainwashed by what you've been watching on TV commercials, in music videos or in Hollywood movies.

Charismatic Leaders

Charisma is a quality that is often found in men who are great leaders rather than great â□□lookers.â□□ Winston Churchill, for example, had charisma; Martin Luther King and Napoleon also had a charismatic ability to attract the attention and support of others.

They weren't charismatic because they were â□□tall, dark and handsomeâ□□ – they were charismatic due to deeper, more important traits that most guys simply don't know how to develop.

One of the qualities that all three men shared in common, was the ability to communicate as a leader; as an alpha male.

When Churchill gave his famous, â□□Never before was so much owed by so many to so fewâ□□ speech in reference to the Royal Air Forceâ□□s defense of Britain during World War II, it was his posture, tone of voice and facial expressions as much as his word choice that rallied an entire nation behind him.

In all three cases, their natural charisma was probably something they werenâ□□t even consciously aware of, it was just who they were and how they expressed themselves.

If you asked them to teach you how to be charismatic, they'd simply have to guess, because studies conducted by psychologists over the years have found that charismatic people usually don't know what it is that makes other people see them as charismatic.

Think about this...

If Winston Churchill, Martin Luther King and Napoleon were not alpha, but instead were shy, nervous types, do you think they would have had the charisma and charm to achieve what they did? Who would listen to them and follow their lead, if they were too nervous, shy and fearful to charismatically state their case?

If you continue to go through your life being suppressed by your fears, insecurities and anxieties, don't expect the world to start falling at your feet. Uncharismatic men are forgettable, barely noticed and miss out on many of the joys of life.

Every man has the potential to be a charismatic alpha male, it's just that most guys don't know how to do it. You have an opportunity to be a great man.

The question is: Are you man enough to take the first step in the direction of becoming a charismatic man? Or, will you put yourself through more years of brainwashed torture, thinking that you're not good enough and could never be the man you imagine being in your daydreams?

Observing Charismatic Guys in Social Situations

A great starting point when beginning your journey to become a truly charismatic man that women lust after, people love and other men respect, is to simply become more aware of the effect that charismatic people have on you.

Most men with charisma don't know why people see them as charismatic or HOW they are doing it, but you can learn a lot by observing their communication style, the body language they use and how they approach social interactions with women.

One of the first things you may notice is that charismatic men donâ□□t try too hard. They donâ□□t try to make themselves the centre of attention, by acting like a loud and annoying person. Their true skill is drawing people towards them through being genuinely likeable. One of the most important ways to be likeable is to understand and live one of the golden rules of charisma.

A Golden Rule of Charisma

One of the golden rules of being charismatic is to focus more on making others feel good about themselves and less on trying to make them feel good about you. Stop trying to look good and start making people feel good.

It's not about you, it's about them and how they feel when around you.

This is not to say that you should become Mr. Complimentary and spend your time faking your interest in people. People who are over-complimentary and insincere are not charismatic. It has to be real.

You have to be unafraid to be there in the moment, embrace the feelings you have (instead of hiding them away in fear) and be your true self. You have the ability to be a charismatic man, with your own unique, amazing type of charisma. It is within you, but it's up to you whether you are going to be brave enough to unleash it and live it.

Body Talk: Get Her Attention Without Words

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Women are definitely impressed by a man who can engage them in an interesting two-way conversation that allows them to feel a wide variety of exciting and desirable emotions.

Yet, a good conversation isn't all about the words. A big part of having a great conversation with a woman that makes her feel attracted to you, is to include flirting. Watch this video for some examples of how to use flirting during a conversation with a woman.

Most of the Communication Between You and Her is Non-Verbal

[image: Non-verbal communication examples]

While it's true that words are a critical part of a conversation, there is an incredible amount of non-verbal communication that goes on between you and a woman as well. To be successful at attracting women when you talk to them, you also need to know:

1. What to say and what not to say.
2. How to keep a conversation going and keep it interesting.
3. How to attract a woman in many different ways during the conversation.
4. How to use tonality to show your sexual interest in her, make the simplest line sound funny, attract her and connect with her on a deeper level, etc.
5. How to use body language to get your message across without using words, show your sexual interest in her, make the simplest bit of conversation seem funny, attract her and connect with her on a deeper level, etc.

Learning what to say to make women feel attracted to you is important, but make sure that you also learn what personality traits and behaviors make women feel attracted to a guy. When you can attract women with your conversation style and your personality and behavior, you will find it too easy to attract and pick up women.

Women rarely come across guys who know how to turn them on with both their conversation style and personality and behavior. When you do it, you will literally see a woman's face light up with excitement and she will make it incredibly easy to pick her up.

About the Classic Statistics on Body Language

Way back in the 1970s, research carried out by Albert Mehrabian concluded that body language accounted for a massive 55% of communication, with the spoken word accounting for only 7% and the tone of voice accounting for the remaining 38%.

You've probably heard that (or similar statistics) before, right? What you may not know is that Mehrabian's studies focused specifically on what makes a person like or dislike someone based on their communication style.

While he didn't offer any advice on body language, Mehrabian concluded that even if a person could keep a conversation going, they would experience problems making friends or attracting someone if they were unaware of how to use body language to gain a positive response.

Unfortunately, most guys don't know that there are many things about their body language and tonality, which automatically cause many people to dislike them. As they go through life, they wonder why women are so difficult and why alpha males are often so mean to them.

Yet, these people are merely responding to the communication (the "body talk") he is sending out.

[image: Turned off by a guy's body language and vibe]

For instance, if a woman talks to a guy who, via his body language and tonality, appears wimpy, nervous, hesitant or lacking in self-esteem, she will naturally feel turned off by him because women are naturally attracted to confident men.

Attraction is an instinctive response that happens very quickly, so if you cause women to instinctively feel turned off by you, it doesn't matter what you say next — she's not going to be interested.

Likewise, if a mean-spirited alpha male notices that a guy is fearful of him, he may use that knowledge to pick on him, make him the butt of jokes in front of others, manipulate him or cause him harm in some way.

Body Talk: You Can't Turn it Off

[image: Can't turn off body language]

Body language is something you are already using in everyday life without having to be consciously aware of it. The posture and body movements that you use, all — speak — for you without you having to utter a word. Your body talk isn't something that you can turn off, but it is something you can improve.

— I speak two languages. Body and English — Mae West, actress

Body Talk: Use it Wisely

The first step in correcting your body talk is to ensure that you are — saying — what you really want to say. Some guys come across as awkward, creepy or sleazy simply by making small errors with their body language. No matter how many — funny lines — they learn to say to women, they are turning women off at a more fundamental and important level that cannot be overridden by hours in a conversation.

Here are some common examples of body language and how it — speaks — for you:

Head movements: Some guys make the mistake of nodding too much during a conversation with a woman, signaling their desperation and incredible excitement at the opportunity of being able to talk to a woman. However, other guys make the mistake of not moving their head much at all, signaling a fear to express themselves. Women can also perceive a lack of nodding or head movement to mean that the guy isn't interested or isn't interesting.

Facial expressions: A smile, frown, or — look — on your face can speak volumes about you. — Are you relaxed about the idea of making eye contact with her, or does your facial expression show that you're feeling nervous inside?

Do you maintain — a straight, plan, polite, friendly type of facial expression when talking to a woman that you find attractive, or are you one of the cool, confident guys who aren't afraid to be sexual, playful or very masculine with your facial expressions at times?

Shoulder movements: The angle and positioning of your shoulders can say a lot about your emotional state and confidence.

For instance, picture a man sitting at a dinner table with people he isn't very familiar with. His shoulders are hunched downward and he keeps looking down, instead of sitting upright or back in the chair and keeping his chin level, while making eye contact with the other dinner guests.

Handling of objects: Excessive fiddling with objects, such as a pen or a set of keys can signal to a woman that you're nervous, anxious or unsettled by the situation.

On the flip side, women often consciously (on purpose) play with their necklace, earrings and other bits of jewelery when talking to you to signal their interest. So, when it's coming from a woman, it's usually a good thing and when it's coming from you, it's usually a bad thing!

Body Talk: Get Physical

[image: Body talk - get physical]

Friends naturally get physical with one another and women are attracted to men who are not afraid to get physical with them.

Guys who are relaxed in one another's company will sometimes pat each other's shoulders, punch each other on the arm or ruffle one another's hair during the course of a normal conversation. Women reach out to touch their friends by putting their hands on each other's arms, linking arms, or putting their arms around one another.

Close contact is a normal part of being relaxed and at ease around other people and it goes a long way to demonstrating the self-confidence that attracts a woman to a man.

Confidently taking the lead in social situations by putting your arm around a woman's waist to guide her across a crowded room, or putting your arm on her shoulder to bring her closer so that you can hear what she's saying at a noisy party are great ways to send out the message that you know how to take care of her and are comfortable leading her.

That's a body language signal that gets a woman's attention during conversation in a positive way.

Women Are Always Looking Out For Clues to Discover the Real You

[image: Body language during a conversation]

A guy can only pretend to be confident for a short period of time. Before long, a woman will be able to pick up on various body language signals that tell her what his real state of mind is.

By looking at the posture, facial expressions and gestures that a guy uses, a woman can tell whether he's nervous, worried, fearful, intimidated or a variety of other emotions, without necessarily having to listen a word he is saying.

Of course, it's not just women who have the ability to read a body talk and assess what is really going on in a situation. For instance, a friend might say they like your new haircut, but you intuitively know when they're lying, right?

You can tell by the facial expressions made and the tonality of the comment, whether it was actually an honest or insincere compliment. We all have the ability to read body talk.

Body Talk: Keep It Real

Learning to understand every nuance of body language related to interactions with women, is a skill that takes years of dedicated practice (or a matter of hours if you watch our video programs), but at a more basic level, one of the most important things you need to know about using your body language to attract women is to be real.

Trying to be someone you're not is not attractive. At best, it just makes you appear awkward and at worst, it makes you feel like someone who can't be trusted. Trying to be someone you're not and attempting to "trick" women with body language amounts to the same type of reactions.

As we always say at The Modern Man, "You never need to lie to a woman" and that fundamental principle applies when you are speaking words as well as using body talk.

A guy who is clearly relaxed, confident and able to be himself is much more attractive to women than a guy who appears to be stiff, awkward, and who is ultimately trying too hard to look "okay" in the eyes of others.

Women are naturally attracted to confident guys, so if your body talk is sending out signals of nervousness, self-doubt and fear, you will always have a hard time attracting women and getting them to open up and show immediate interest...

5 Sex Myths That Make Men Feel Bad About Themselves

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

There are many sex myths that kill the confidence of men and make them feel guilty about wanting sex.

While the following sex myths may seem fairly harmless on the surface, they actually cause a lot of unnecessary problems in society for individuals and for relationships.

Sex Myth #1: Men Think About Sex Every 7 Seconds

One of the biggest sex myths of all is that we men think about it every 7 seconds.

According to a study carried out by Dr Terri Fisher at Ohio State University in the US, there is absolutely no evidence to suggest that men think about sex â€œnearly constantlyâ€œ or that men think about sex far more often than women.

The study recorded the daily thoughts of 163 women and 120 men aged between 18 and 25 years and concluded that men think sexual thoughts on average around 19 times in a day and women on average around 10 times each day.

Why the big difference?

Researchers believe that women are more likely to give â€œsocially acceptableâ€œ answers to sex questions rather than honest ones. The reason why is that women have to pretend not to be very interested in sex, otherwise most people will label them as slutty.

Additionally, if a woman is too easy and open about sex, most guys will assume that she would be untrustworthy in a relationship. So, she has to put on an act of innocence to avoid being looked down on by others and not being trusted by guys.

The reality is that both men and women think about sex often. There's nothing wrong with thinking sexual thoughts, but most women will never admit to having sexual thoughts as often as men do.

Sex Myth #2: Women Want Tantric Sex That Goes on For Hours

Have you ever heard of couples who have sex for hours or days on end?

Good for them.

However, it's not what you need to do to make a woman happy. 99% of women do not need to have sex with you for hours to feel the type of pleasure that they crave.

What you need to do is have sex with a woman in a way that makes her feel feminine in response to your masculinity. This simply comes down to your body language, vibe, movements, energy and actions.

Most women talk about, crave and want to be on the receiving end of sex from a masculine man. When she feels your masculinity coming through, she will orgasm more easily and the sex will be more fulfilling, exciting and enjoyable than sex with a wimpy man or a man who is just neutral (i.e.

not very masculine, just a kind of “whatever” type of guy).

Sometimes you and your woman might have sex for 30 minutes to an hour, but most times doing it for 5-10 minutes is absolutely fine as long as you have the right dynamic set up and she is getting deep pleasure from every moment of being sexed by you.

Sex Myth #3: Women Prefer a Man With a Huge Penis

Guys who have an insecurity about their penis size either watch too much porn or haven't actually looked at penis size statistics.

The fact is, most guys have around about the same size penis, within a 1-2 centimeter difference. Sure, there are guys out there who walk around with a “baby arm” in their pants, but they are the minority. Almost all guys are average sized.

Additionally, I have a lot of female friends and they tell me all about this stuff. Many women have told me about an experience they've had where they were unable to have sex with him because his penis was too big. It was just too painful for her, so she had to break up with him.

She didn't say, “Wow! It was so cool to hook up with a guy with such a huge penis!” Instead, she was just disappointed and explained that after trying to have sex and it being so painful, she lost interest and wanted it to be over.

If you watch a lot of porn, you will see women talking about huge penis sizes and making videos with guys who have a massive dick. However, you have to stop and realize that these women are loose women who have a LOT of sex and who like a bit of pain.

The male actors are hired because of their size and ability to perform on camera. Pornography is not normal reality. These people are the exception, rather than the rule.

What really matters to most woman is HOW you have sex with them, not how big your penis is. It's about how manly you behave, how you touch her, how you look at her and how much love you've created between you prior to sex.

Sex Myth #4: Women Don't Like Sex As Much As Men

[image: Women love sex just as much as men]

Women love sex and are almost always open to having it with you right away.

Here are some statistics to help prove that to you:

- An American study found that 55% of couples have sex on their first date.
- Durex Condoms survey in Norway found that 70% of people had experienced a one-night stand.
- Student Beans survey in the UK found that 51% of men and women admitted to having experienced a one-night stand.
- The National Survey on Sexual Attitudes and Lifestyles found that the average amount of men that a woman had sex with before marriage has almost doubled in the last 10 years from an average of 3.7 to now 7.7.

Personally speaking, I've had sex with more than 250 women and about 100 of those women have come from one night stands where I met the woman at a bar, club or during the day. Today's women are much more open to having sex than most men realize.

[image: The old days...]

In the past, women had to save themselves for marriage because pre-marital sex was forbidden. Sex was seen as something that only a married couple did and anyone who had sex outside of marriage was committing a sin.

Even to this day, most men want to feel like their woman is "untouched" and hasn't had sex with many or any other men prior to meeting him.

Based on this, many women will behave as though they aren't interested in having sex or that they haven't had much sex before, but behind closed doors, women are being banged senseless all day and night by guys who know that the act of innocence that most women put on is simply an act.

[image: Women love sex just as much as men]

Women do like sex just as much as men and in many cases, women like it even more than men do. So, don't be ashamed of your sexual thoughts. It is perfectly natural for you to want to have sex with women and for women to want to have sex with you.

Sex Myth #5: Sex Addiction is a Disgusting Trait of Men

According to the American Psychiatric Association, there is no scientific proof to back up any claims of sex addiction.

When I was a boy, my mother once said to me, "Dan...you know that actor Michael Douglas? Well, they say he's a sex addict..." She then shook her head in disapproval.

Ironically, my mother has been happy to see me have many women in my life over the past 10 years, before recently settling down with my wife.

My mother, who is still happily married to my father, would always has a big smile on her face when she saw me with a new woman. She'd sometimes say, "Good on you. Enjoy yourself until you're ready to settle down." The last time she said that I replied, "Don't worry, I am!" and we both had a laugh.

Now that I am married (I recently got married at age 37 to my sexy, 22 year old wife), I am glad that I enjoyed myself by having sex with more than 250 women. It was a lot of fun and now I've got the girl of my dreams.

Some people might look at the fact that I've had sex with more than 250 women and say that it's wrong or that I'm a sex addict. Yet, I'm just a modern man who realized that there's nothing wrong with having sex with beautiful women who want to have sex with you.

It's not an addiction, it's just a part of modern life if you want to experience it. Sex before marriage is no longer forbidden, so a lot of men and women are now enjoying themselves sexually before settling down the right person for them.

How to Be the Life of the Party ...and Get the Girl!

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

A big part of being the life of the party is trusting in yourself to go with the flow and be your real self.

When you can do that, people naturally gravitate towards you because you are seen as the cool guy who is being authentic and having a great time. When women see that others like you, they like you even more and picking them up becomes twice as easy.

Being the Guy Who is Attractive to Women

Have you ever been to a party and noticed that some guys (even though they aren't good looking, tall or rich) are liked by almost all of the women there?

Have you also noticed that some guys (even though they are good looking, tall or have a great job) are overlooked by almost all of the women there?

What is going on when that happens? Why do some guys get more attention from women than others?

Feeling Awkward at Parties

[image: Feeling awkward at a party]

Have you ever gone to a house party or social function and found yourself sinking into the background, wondering how you can join in with the “popular people”?

As you feel left out and worry that you're not making a good impression, you notice another guy who is effortlessly holding everyone's attention, having great conversations with lots of laughter and having women fall all over him.

What does he have that you don't? What makes him such a “people magnet”? How is he able to be so comfortable around all the girls and be so calm, confident and cool when talking to the other alpha males?

A big part of the other guy's secret is that he knows how to make women feel attracted to him. When he interacts with women, they laugh, smile and feel excited because he knows how to trigger their feelings of attraction.

Even if he is just being friendly to most of the women, they still feel good when talking to him because he is actively saying and doing the sorts of things that make them feel attracted.

Another secret of the guy who is popular at parties is that he also gets involved in the party. He trusts that he can handle himself and just goes with the flow. However, as for you, the more time you spend hiding away from the action and wondering what his “secret” is, the more you begin to fade into the fixtures and fittings of the house, bar or venue of the party.

Instead of trusting yourself to go with the flow and have a great time, you begin to go into your head, constantly worrying what people are thinking, assessing your “coolness” in comparison to others and trying to fit in.

What you need to realize is that people go to parties to be sociable and to have fun. They go with the expectation of mingling and meeting new people and they also go with every intention of taking part in some social flirting and funny banter that goes on.

So, if you're the guy who hides away in a quiet corner observing what everyone else in the room is doing, you're missing out on building new friendships and finding yourself a girlfriend, or at least a woman to have sex with for the night. You've got to learn to trust yourself. Trust that you can hold your own in a conversation and be confident when the attention is on you.

How to Be the Life of the Party: Go With Your Gut Instinct

The people who appear to be the most charming and interesting at a party are usually those who trust their gut instinct and be themselves. Think about the times in life when you are the most comfortable being yourself. Maybe it's when you're chatting with a close friend or discussing business with your co-workers.

Whatever the case, in those moments, you are going with the flow and trusting that you can handle yourself in the moment. You're not sitting there worrying about making a mistake or looking stupid.

How to Be the Life of the Party: Flirt with the Women

Flirting is the way that a man and a woman communicate their sexual interest in each other, without actually saying the words, "I like you and want to have sex with you." It's a discreet form of communication that takes place during a conversation or interaction between a man and a woman.

According to the Social Issues Research Centre (SIRC) in the UK, flirting is a fundamental part of human nature: "Flirting is much more than just a bit of fun: it is a universal and essential aspect of human interaction. Anthropological research shows that flirting is found, in some form, in all cultures and societies around the world."

They also go on to say that without our instinctive ability to flirt, the ability to initiate contact and express interest in members of the opposite sex would also be lost, meaning we'd become incapable of progressing to reproduction and the human race would become extinct as a result! No pressure to get your back off the wall and start mingling in!

How to Be the Life of the Party: Joke with the Men

A big part of being the life of the party is being able to talk and joke around with the alpha males in the room. If women see that you are intimidated by the alpha males, they will naturally lose their feelings of attraction for you.

If other guys see that you are intimidated by the alpha males, they will sometimes begin to treat you disrespectfully by making you the butt of jokes or excluding you from conversations.

How to Be the Life of the Party: Help People Feel Good About Themselves

If you want people to show interest in you at a party, you often need to make them feel good about themselves first. Since most people are insecure and lack confidence in themselves, they respond very positively to those who make them feel good about themselves. So, avoid being the guy who talks about himself the whole time, focuses on negative conversation topics or points out mistakes a person is making in life, in the conversation, etc.

When you say something that makes someone else feel good about themselves, you make yourself a more attractive person to be around and you instantly come across as a more "likeable" guy.

Warning: I am not saying that you should be handing out insincere compliments or loads of compliments. It needs to be sincere and it needs to be a minor part of the conversation you have with the person.

Focussing too much on saying nice things will make you come across as insincere or as an a kisser. Neither is good at a party or in life for that matter!

How to Be the Life of the Party: Talk to as Many People as Possible

The more people you talk to, the more popular you will become at the party. After speaking to people in five separate groups, don't be surprised if, on your way to the toilet/bathroom, you are stopped once or twice by people who want to talk to you again.

This is much better than feeling like an outsider and going to the toilet/bathroom to merely "hide" for a while until you recover from the anxiety you're feeling.

So, talk to everyone. Talk to the cool people, the "uncool" people, the grannies, the young people, the staff (if there is any), the host of the party and anyone else who happens to be around. Soon enough, you'll have people walking past and tapping you on the shoulder to chat to you again or calling you over to rejoin their group.

How to Be the Life of the Party: Be the Guy You Imagine Yourself Being in Your Daydreams

Every guy who wants to become more attractive to women, more skilled socially and an all-round confident guy, will spend many hours a week daydreaming about how things "could be." Don't worry about how things could be. Make it happen in reality by DOING IT.

The guys you see at parties who seem to be effortlessly holding everyone's attention, they're just mingling. They're putting themselves in a position to meet the maximum number of people and, crucially, they are trusting their gut instinct and going with the flow.

You need to learn to trust yourself and be the guy who imagine yourself being in your daydreams. People are rarely going to come looking for you if you're hiding out somewhere in a quiet area of the party, and no one is going to hang around for very long if you're not fun to be around when they do find you.

To be the life of the party, you have to trust your gut instinct and allow the real, confident and charismatic version of yourself to come to the surface.

Rejection Isn't What Most Guys Think it is...

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

No man is compatible with every woman and no woman is compatible with every man.

Just like every piece of a jigsaw puzzle doesn't fit together with any piece, nature is designed in a way where every person is not a perfect match for every other person.

If you meet a woman and it doesn't end up in a sexual relationship, don't look at it as a rejection. Instead, simply understand that no man is compatible with every woman and no woman is compatible with every man.

When you understand that, you will realize that rejection isn't the horrible, scary experience that you've been making it out to be.

Are You Afraid to Approach Women Because You Fear Being Rejected?

For many guys, the thought of approaching a woman and experiencing an interaction that doesn't go from a conversation to phone number (or kiss) and then to sex or a date causes them to feel enough fear to hide themselves away from dating altogether.

They don't like the idea of things not working out because they assume that if it doesn't work out with one woman, they are being rejected by all women.

Here's what is really going on...

If you approach a woman and it doesn't work out, it means that you're either not compatible with each other or you simply didn't say or do anything that made her feel attracted to you.

To increase the chances of a woman feeling like you are a compatible match, you have to make her feel attracted to you. If a woman doesn't feel attracted to you, she might like you as a person, but the lack of attraction will make her feel like you are romantically incompatible.

If you were able to make her feel a lot of attraction for you, she would most-likely be interested in having sex with you or giving a relationship a shot, even if she felt like the relationship might not last for a life time.

Looking at Rejection in a Different Way

I often receive e-mails from guys who have lost a lot of confidence in themselves after asking a woman out and discovering that she's not interested in anything other than being friends, or after approaching a new woman only to discover that she isn't interested in talking to him.

It saddens me to hear that sort of thing from guys because if he just understood what I know about rejection, he wouldn't have to go through such an unnecessary and painful experience.

Here are two common "rejection scenarios" that men encounter with women. I'll explain what is really taking place and why rejection has nothing to do with it...

Rejection Scenario #1: Approaching a New Woman

The Situation: This can be anywhere that you see a woman you are interested in meeting â€” nightclub, bar, store, park, party, cafe or restaurant and so forth. When you approach her, she ignores you or behaves as though she's not interested in getting to know you.

Your Reaction: You feel rejected.

Why She Didn't Show Interest: Itâ€™s very possible that the woman is already in a relationship and isnâ€™t interested in getting to know you (or any other man) at this time in her life. So, she just wants to make it clear, as quickly as possible, that she's not interested in talking to you or getting to know you. She simply doesn't want to give you the wrong impression.

Itâ€™s also possible that she might be with a group of her friends and is not looking to meet anyone that night because itâ€™s a â€œgirls night outâ€ or they are celebrating something important and she doesnâ€™t want to be rude to her friends. Her lack of interest in talking to you can be for dozens of reasons that have nothing to do with you as a man.

Itâ€™s also possible that your approach was a bit awkward. You may have appeared nervous and, as a result, you weren't able to demonstrate the essential confidence that women look for in a guy. She may also have noticed you looking nervous and tense as you tried to work up the courage to approach her.

In short, you failed to display the essential traits that women look for in a man. Because of that, she was able to quickly determine that you and her weren't compatible with each other and thus, she did not want to continue interacting with you.

That isn't rejection.

It's just a case of you and her finding out whether or not you are compatible with each other at that moment in time. Had you approached in a more confident way and made her feel attracted based on what you were saying and doing, she would have most-likely been more open to you and the interaction would have ended up with a phone number exchange, kiss or sex that night.

If your approach was good and you did make her feel attracted to you, but she played hard to get, it means that she was testing your confidence level. If a woman is attractive, it's very easy for her to get men interested in her, but it's not easy for her to find a guy who doesn't become nervous, desperate or insecure when she plays hard to get.

Rejection Scenario #2: A Woman That You Are Dating

The Situation: Youâ€™ve been out a couple of times with a woman, but she suddenly stops answering your calls or replying to your texts.

Out of nowhere, she becomes too busy to see you and doesn't make an effort to fit you in to her schedule. She might even be straight-forward and tell you sheâ€™s no longer interested in anything â€œromanticâ€ or â€œsexualâ€ and just wants to be friends.

Your Reaction: You feel rejected.

Why She Lost Interest: In most cases, the reason why a woman will go from wanting to be with you to not wanting to be with you is a lack of attraction.

You may have been able to attract her initially, but your inability to maintain a woman's feelings of attraction for you has led to her losing interest in being with you. You can get her back if you are able to trigger her feelings of attraction for you again.

How to Attract a Classy Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To truly understand how to attract a classy woman, you first must understand what attracts women to men in the first place.

It doesn't matter if a woman is rich, poor, classy or classless, the things that make her feel sexually attracted to a guy are going to be very similar.

I'm not talking about her "liking" a guy or appreciating that a guy is from the same class in society as she is, but what makes her feel sexually turned on.

How Do You Define Classy?

When a guy is seeking to learn how to attract a classy woman, he won't always be imagining a classy woman in the same way as every other guy.

Some guys might consider a very posh, rich woman with expensive taste to be classy, whereas other guys might feel as though class has more to do with her manners and attitude to life.

So, how do you define classy? In the dictionary, classy is listed as meaning "stylish and sophisticated," but does that definition describe what you're looking for in a woman?

A woman may be considered stylish because of she is wearing nice clothes, but does that really make her classy? She might seem to sophisticated because of her worldly experience or cultured tastes, but does that make her truly classy?

When it comes to defining classy in reference to a woman, there is no clear-cut answer. You could say that class, just like beauty, is in the eye of the beholder. It also depends on a person's perspective and upbringing.

For example: If you meet a woman at a party and she uses the word "classy" to describe herself, would that make you see her as classy? Most guys would say "No" because when someone claims to be classy (or cool), they are usually labelled as being a "try hard."

Class isn't something a woman (or a man for that matter) can go out and buy and then wave in the face of others. This is where some of the guys who are looking to attract classy women go wrong. They assume that to attract a classy woman, they have to impress her with nice clothes, money and means.

In my opinion, real class has nothing to do with the clothes you wear, the car you drive, or where you've just flown in from. Class is about who you are (your character), where you're going in life and how you treat others on the way to that destination.

By the way, if you're wondering what I meant by "character" in the context of being attractive to women, here's the dictionary definition:

Character (noun): The sum of features and traits that form the individual nature of a person. Qualities of honesty, courage, integrity, determination, etc.

One of the mistakes that a lot of men make when trying to convey their true character to women is to be extra nice in the hope of being liked. Yet, goodness and niceness isn't enough to impress or attract women.

Watch this video to understand why...

Classy Women Are Attracted to Men of Substance

If you are the sort of guy who knows exactly who he is and has the confidence and courage to be his true self around others, you are very attractive to all women.

If you are also fearless when it comes to love and relentless when it comes to achieving your true purpose in life, you are extremely attractive to all women. Then, if you can just add in respect, love and compassion for others, you become what most women refer to as a man of substance.

You're an aware, enlightened man who isn't hiding from his true potential in life. You love and accept people for who they are, while also being an inspiration for them to become an even better version of themselves.

You aren't afraid to think deeply and ponder the big questions of life, while at the same time being wise enough to still appreciate the simple things in life.

Who a guy is a person is what a classy woman is really interested in, not the superficial stuff that can be bought from a shop (e.g. colognes, nice shirts, shoes, a flashy car, etc).

A classy woman is looking for the real deal because she sees herself as the real deal. She will settle for nothing less than a fair exchange.

She's sophisticated enough to know when a guy is genuinely being himself and when he's trying hard to be someone that he's not. A classy woman wants a real man, so you need to be able to communicate who you really are when you interact with her.

Classy Women Can Spot a Fake

Classy women don't feel attracted to a faker who is posing in an expensive suit and shoes. They are looking for a genuine guy who doesn't feel the need to put on an act, but who can also get along with them on their level.

You have to believe that you are good enough for her and you have to allow her to feel that when she interacts with you. To attract a high quality woman, you have to have a high quality personality and character as a man.

If you are just pretending to be confident enough, cool enough or valuable enough for her, but deep down you don't believe you are, she will spot it. She will pick up on the small cues from your body language, tonality, eye contact, vibe and conversation.

She will know that you're trying to attract a woman whom you perceive to be way out of your league. When she notices that, it will turn her off on a deep level because she will feel as though hooking up with you would mean that she is losing value.

All women, not only classy women, want to feel as though they are trading up in value when they hook up with a guy. That doesn't mean that you have to be wealthier than her or better looking than her at all; it just means that she has to feel as though she is lucky to be getting a guy like you.

That will happen when you know that you are more than good enough for her. How can you know that? Simple: You learn how to attract women when you interact with them. When you do that, you will notice that almost all of the women that you properly meet will feel a lot of attraction for you. After experiencing that for a while, you get to a point where you just know that you're good enough for most of the women you meet. When that happens, you have a certain vibe about you that is irresistibly attractive to women.

Just by interacting with you for 30 seconds to a minute, women can tell that you're the sort of guy that most women want to be with. How? They feel a lot of attraction for you based on your body language, vibe, attitude and charisma and they realize that other women would feel that way too.

When you get to that level of skill with attracting women, it doesn't matter if the woman is classy or classless – she will feel attracted to you. You will know exactly what to say and do to make her want to be with you sexually.

Classy Women Aren't Attracted to Desperate Men

There are some guys out there who dream about attracting a classy woman, but at the same time – they also dream about attracting ANY woman.

If a classy woman notices that you're not only trying to pick her up, but you're also keenly interested in women who are less attractive and less classy than her, it will completely turn her off. Classy women and beautiful women prefer men who are less easy to impress.

In other words, a guy who is a bit of a challenge...

If a woman gets the sense that you're desperate to score with any woman who will give you a chance, it will turn her off on a deep level.

For example: When a party is winding down at the end of a night, a desperate guy will settle for any available woman and forget about his dreams of attracting a classy or very beautiful woman.

It may seem like a harmless act to hook up with any woman, but if you are willing to drop your standards and have sex with the "leftover" women that other guys don't want, it may make you begin to feel like that's all you really deserve.

After a while, you may come to believe that you're the sort of guy who can only get women that other guys don't want...and that just isn't true.

Classy people demonstrate self-respect (to themselves and to others) by expecting their standards be met. They know what they want out of life, they know what they value and they're not prepared to settle for anything less.

The guys who settle for any woman have no self-respect and no self-respecting woman will want to be associated with a guy like that. A classy woman wants a man who has high standards that he will stick by, rather than accepting whatever he can get.

For some guys, having sex with any type of woman feels like a better option than another night alone, but accepting junk affects your character. Think about the classy men that you've met who have high standards and only accept the best.

They have a certain air about them that is impressive. They are strong-minded and are the sort of man who get what they want out of life. Classy women pick up on those subtle cues and it is what makes him stand out from the crowd.

If you want to attract a classy woman, you have to start treating yourself with more respect. Expect the best and stop at nothing until you get it, because you really do deserve it.

The Kissing Drug

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Kissing a woman instantly releases natural drugs in her brain that cause her to consider having sex with you.

So, if there's a woman that you like and you are aiming to have a sexual relationship with her, stop talking to her or trying to get to know her and just kiss her.

[image: Just kiss her!]

Some guys make the mistake of hanging around a woman for months and sometimes YEARS, hoping that something will happen.

Guys like that will often lose sleep at night wondering if the girl likes them or not, never realizing that a sexual relationship with her is just a kiss away.

Most women won't kiss a guy first because they want to see that he has enough confidence and masculinity to do it on his own.

Women don't want to have to guide an insecure, hesitant or clueless guy through the process of hooking up with them. They want you to know when they are interested and then kiss them when the time is right.

Kissing Releases a Natural Drug That Makes Her Want Sex

Scientists have discovered that when a man and a woman kiss, it triggers the release of several neurotransmitters in their brain, such as:

Dopamine: Dopamine is directly associated with the reward system of the brain. The chemical induces enjoyable feelings in a person to help motivate them to continue performing certain activities. So, when you kiss her, the dopamine naturally increases her feelings of desire for you.

Serotonin: An increase in a woman's serotonin levels creates that feel-good mood associated with kissing. Both of you might feel that "buzz" in your heart where you suddenly feel like you have connected and there is a unique and exciting spark between you.

Oxytocin: Also known as the love hormone, oxytocin is released during orgasm, kissing and foreplay. The release of oxytocin is believed to increase the bond of attachment between couples.

No amount of talking or being nice to a woman is going to get this chemical flooding through her brain. If you want a woman to have sexual desire for you beyond her initial attraction, you have to make a move and kiss her so you can get some oxytocin flowing through her brain.

Kissing Her Changes Everything

[image: Kissing changes everything]

The end of the friendship (or a friendly interaction between two strangers) and the beginning of a sexual relationship, starts with a KISS.

No amount of talking to a woman will cause her to feel the same kind of sexual desire that will occur when you kiss her. A woman might really like you and want to be with you, but without a kiss, those feelings can fade away.

If you just talk to a girl and hope that something magically happens or that she makes the first move, you run the risk of being replaced by another guy who knows how to make her feel attracted and then has the confidence to make a move.

[image: Took too long to kiss, so he lost her]

Nothing bad will happen if you move in for a kiss and she doesn't want to. You just have to say in a confident, relaxed manner, "Oh, okay...I guess I was reading the signals incorrectly. You're not ready to kiss me yet."

If that happens, you haven't been fully rejected. It's just a temporary obstacle that you need to overcome by making her feel more attraction for you. Here's how it works...

Kissing Quickly

Personally speaking, I will sometimes kiss a woman within minutes of first meeting her.

I know that once I have kissed a woman, it instantly becomes so much more likely that I will have sex with her that night, or at least have sex with her on the first date.

The reason I am able to kiss women so quickly and easily is that I start by attracting women first. I don't talk to them like a friend who is trying to get to know them. I do talk to them in a friendly way, but I also make the interaction feel sexual in a subtle way.

The woman feels attracted to me, notices my sexual attraction for her and then a window of opportunity will open and I'll have a chance to kiss her. When I see the opening, I just go ahead and do it. If I don't see that she is open for a kiss, I usually just wait and build up more attraction first and then make a move when the window of opportunity does appear.

What Your Kiss Reveals to Her

The first kiss is very important to a woman.

When you kiss her for the first time, she wants to feel your confidence, masculinity and love.

However, she doesn't want you to go overboard with it. She wants to see that you find her incredibly sexy, but you can also control yourself.

You really like her, but you're not needy or desperate. You're very confident, but you're not trying to show off. You're masculine, but you're not trying to be overly dominant to impress her.

Instead, you're just relaxed, confident and doing whatever you feel like doing in the moment.

If a woman gets the sense that you're not worrying about trying to impress her and are just doing whatever you feel like doing in the moment, it will be deeply attractive to her. Being like that allows her to trust in your ability to be the man.

She doesn't have to continually question whether or not you are confident enough to be with her. She can see it. You are the man.

When she sees that, it allows her to relax into being girly around you, which is hugely satisfying for women. Most guys can't make women feel that way.

When she feels girly around you and trusts in your confidence, your kiss will feel a million times better than it would if she felt awkward around you because you lacked confidence.

In a study carried out by evolutionary psychologist Gordon Gallup, 66% of women reported that they had once ended a new relationship because the guy they were dating was a "bad kisser." That's a pretty big percentage and a very strong case for not just planting your lips onto a woman's face and hoping for the best.

"Any man who can drive safely while kissing a pretty girl is simply not giving the kiss the attention it deserves" — Albert Einstein

Why Don't Women Like Me?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you haven't been able to get laid or get a hot girlfriend in quite a while, you may have begun to ask yourself the question, "Why don't women like me?"

You may have also begun to believe that you're just not good enough for beautiful women and that attracting and picking up women is just too difficult.

Yet, here's what you probably don't realize: You are already good enough for most women.

Additionally, attracting women is VERY EASY once you know how to do it and have tried it once or twice.

[image: Start off by creating a spark of sexual attraction]

Pretty much any guy can instantly learn how to begin attracting women during conversation, so he can then get laid or get a girlfriend.

Yes, even you.

[image: Why don't girls like me]

You are a fairly likeable guy, right? You're not a horrible person who women hate, right?

Sure, you haven't been getting laid and women haven't been lining up to be with you, but that's not because they hate you.

Why is it happening? Why have you gotten to the point where you've been wondering, "Why don't women like me?"

Simple.

You're not actively making women feel sexually attracted to you when you talk to them...and other guys are.

You might be a good guy, but that isn't what gets a woman sexually aroused.

The difference between a good guy who gets laid and has his choice of women and a good guy who has to jerk off to porn all year long, is that one good guy ACTIVELY makes women feel sexually attracted during a conversation and the other guy just make women feel nice, friendly or neutral emotions.

In other words, you have to MAKE women feel sexually attracted to you when you talk to them.

Watch this video to learn more...

When you trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman, she will then appreciate all the other good things about you (e.g. you are a smart guy, you have good intentions with her, etc).

However, if you don't make her feel much or any sexual attraction, she won't be turned on by the fact that you're smart and that you'd treat her well if she got into a relationship with you.

Are You Being Too Much of a Nice Guy?

When a guy contacts me to ask, "Why don't women like me?" he is almost always type of guy who is too nice to women.

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman and there's nothing wrong with being a good guy, but you also have to be able to make women feel sexually attracted to you by displaying the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women (e.g. confidence, charisma, masculine vibe, charm, etc).

If your main approach to women is based on showing them that you're a nice, friendly guy who has good intentions, it's not going to make you stand out from the crowd.

Watch this video to understand why...

Most women do want to find themselves a good guy, but that guy also has to make her feel attracted. Without sexual attraction, there will be no reason for her to want to be anything other than a friend or stranger to you.

When you make a woman feel sexually attracted to you, she then really appreciates that you're also a good guy. She is excited to have met a good guy who also turns her on.

Are You Too Easily Impressed By a Woman Just Because She Looks Good?

If a woman is attractive, most of the guys who see her will be willing to have sex with her simply based on her appearance. Many of those guys will also be willing to have a relationship with her, even though she hasn't done anything other than look good.

This is a boring, repetitive, unexciting experience for an attractive woman. When a girl grows up and realizes that she doesn't have to say or do anything special to impress the majority of guys, she starts to feel more attracted to guys who offer a bit more of a challenge.

Watch this video to understand this further...

It's very easy for women to make men feel attracted because we men feel an intense attraction to a woman's physical appearance. Women can feel attracted a man's physical appearance, but the most intense types of attraction that women feel are to a guy's personality and behavior.

When a woman interacts with a guy, his personality, vibe and behavior is either going to turn her on, make her feel neutral or friendly towards him or turn her off. When she talks to him, his conversation style is either going to make her feel happy, excited and turned on or it's not.

Improving Your Ability to Attract Women

[image: Rejected yet again...]

If you want girls to like you and want to be in a sexual relationship with you, the main thing that you need to focus on is your ability to make women feel attracted to you when you interact with them.

You can't just rely on looking good or being a good guy. You have to display the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women.

When you know how to properly attract women, you will see that picking up women for sex or a relationship is actually one of the easiest things that a guy can do in life. Women are much easier to pick up than most guys realize.

Back when I had no idea how to attract women, I would talk to women for as long as I could and hope that she would “like” me enough to give me a chance with her. Women could sense the desperation in my body language, conversation and overall vibe and it turned them off.

It took me a long time to work out that guys can actively make women feel attracted to them based on what they SAY and DO during an interaction. When I worked that out and began doing it, everything changed.

Instead of trying to get women to like me, they automatically liked me because they were feeling sexually attracted and turned. Instead of struggling to keep a conversation going and keep it interesting with a woman who was rapidly losing interest, women began to eagerly keep conversations going with me.

Your current lack of ability to attract women is the real reason why women don’t like you. It’s not because you’re a guy who cannot be loved or wanted by women. You are most-likely an awesome guy and you don’t need to change who you are to get girls to like you.

What you need to do is learn how to make women feel sexually attracted to you. Luckily, it’s a very and natural thing to do.

If you’d like me to teach you how to attract women so that they automatically like you when they meet you, click below to unlock my best secrets...

How to Stop Feeling Intimidated By Beautiful Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

One of the best ways to stop feeling intimidated by beautiful women is to understand that they don't actually want you to feel that way.

Most of the guys that a beautiful woman meets will feel intimidated by her and try really hard to impress her.

Simply based on her looks, guys will behave as though she is so valuable and is something to be afraid of.

Yet, she's just a normal girl and she doesn't want you to be afraid of her.

In fact, she actually wants you to be more of a challenge for her to overcome, rather than being so keen on her just because she looks good.

If She Acts Cold, She is Usually Just Testing Your Confidence Level

Some beautiful women are open, easy and friendly when guys approach them.

Yet, the majority of beautiful women have to put up their guard and act a bit cold and disinterested, otherwise they will make it easy for nervous, insecure guys to get a chance with them.

Women are mostly attracted to a guy's confidence, so acting cold towards you is one of the quickest ways to find out if you have enough of it. You want to have sex with her because she is beautiful and she wants to have sex with a guy who has the type of confidence that she is looking for.

When a woman tests you by not contributing much to a conversation or by looking at you in a judgemental way, the trick is to just maintain your confidence. Don't think, "Oh no! I'm losing her!" and start panicking or looking nervous.

Simply relax and let the silence happen in the conversation, or smile at her judgemental look. She will so impressed by that and excited to finally be talking to a guy who doesn't panic when she offers a bit of a challenge.

She Doesn't Want You to Be Extra Nice to Her Because of Her Looks

One of the biggest mistakes that guys make around beautiful women is to be extra nice to her in the hope that it makes her "like" him.

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a beautiful woman, but it isn't the thing that turns her on and makes her want to have sex with you.

If you want to feel confident around beautiful women, you have to focus on making them feel attracted to you. When a woman feels attracted to you, she will help to keep the conversation going and will be much more open and friendly with you.

When you know how to attract beautiful women and have a few experiences doing it, you begin to feel more confident around them. You stop feeling intimidated because it's no longer a case of you trying to get a chance with her, but her hoping to get a chance with you.

Personally speaking, since working out how to attract women, I've had sex with more than 250 women.

Some of my girlfriends would be considered to be very pretty, some cute and girly, some girl next door types, while others have clearly been model material or actually working as models (I hooked up with four catwalk models over the years).

Despite the differences between each woman that I've had sex with over the years, one thing has remained the same every time – the way I treat each woman.

I don't care if she is a TV reporter (an ex-girlfriend of mine was), a catwalk model (same again) or a dental nurse (that was the one time I actually enjoyed going to the dentist), I always treat each woman the same.

They don't get extra special treatment from me just because they happen to be pretty, sexy or beautiful. In fact, that approach to women is one of the main reasons I have been able to have my choice of women.

So many women are relieved, impressed and utterly intrigued that, unlike other guys, I am not shaking in my boots because of their beauty and sex appeal.

She Doesn't Want You to Feel Afraid to Come Over and Say Hi

Most beautiful women only ever get approached by drunk guys or nervous, nice guys who are hoping to get a chance with them.

What beautiful women are hoping to experience is a cool, confident, charming guy to walk over and be NORMAL around them. Yet, most normal guys are too intimidated to approach.

...and that is a huge opportunity for you.

One of the things that amazed me when I began to approach and pick up women, was the fact that most guys just stand around and stare at the hotties in a bar or club. They are too afraid to make a move and get rejected in front of everyone because they don't even know how to attract women.

Secretly, they know that they have no idea what to say or do to get the beautiful woman to feel attracted and are just going to hope to get lucky. Yet, after a few failed approaches, most of those guys give up and just stand around looking at women.

When you can be the guy who is not only confident enough to approach beautiful women, but you also know how to attract them, you will realize that you have hardly any competition from other guys. It's basically you vs. drunk guys and nervous guys.

Most "good looking" guys don't want to look desperate by approaching, so they just stand around trying to look good. What allowed me (an average to below average looking guy) to have so much sex and choice with women was that I actually approached and also focused on actively attracting women.

So, if you are interested in approaching and talking to beautiful women, but need a bit of a confidence boost first, check this video out...

2 Ways to Feel Less Intimidated Around Beautiful Women

Here are 2 more ways to relax and feel less intimidated around beautiful women...

1. Don't Place Her Above You in Terms of Value

When a guy approaches a beautiful, he usually blows it by acting like a little boy who has just met his superhero. He's feeling so much attraction for her that he comes across as excited to be talking to her and eager to get her approval.

Yes, a beautiful woman is great to look at and she is special, but she doesn't want to be with a guy who feels like her is less valuable than her. A guy like that will most-likely become insecure and clingy in a relationship and she will then have a hard time when trying to break up with him.

She wants a guy who at least feels like her equal, but ideally, a guy who feels like he would be doing her a bit of a favor by being with her. Beautiful women won't go around admitting that openly because many guys will take it as an invite to treat her badly.

Beautiful women expect a guy to know the deal and if he doesn't, she just rejects him and waits to meet a guy who understands.

2. Remember That She is Actually Insecure About Her Looks

[image: Women being insecure about their looks]

According to a global survey on beauty conducted by Dove cosmetics, 96% of women do not consider themselves to be beautiful.

Weird, I know, but it's true.

Even though a woman will act like she is very confident and as though she thinks she is the hottest woman in the world, she will almost always be insecure.

She knows that she doesn't look as good without make up and that she doesn't look like the perfectly Photoshopped women in magazines and on TV commercials. She knows what she looks like when she wakes up and it's a lot different to how she looks after doing her hair and putting on make up for 1-2 hours.

The DO's and DON'Ts of Dating Multiple Women at Once

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

These days, dating multiple people at once is something that both men and women do to enjoy a fun and exciting lifestyle full of sex, love and rollercoaster emotions.

Some people want to settle down and get married right now, some want to start a family as soon as possible and others just want enjoy sex and good times for a while.

How about you?

If you are a man who is interested in dating multiple women at once, you may:

- Have just come out of a long-term relationship and are now looking to have some fun, before committing yourself to another serious relationship.
- Be too busy at the moment (i.e. with work or study) to devote yourself to a committed relationship.
- Enjoy having new women in your life all the time.
- Get bored after having sex with a woman for a few months.
- Have not found the right girl yet who makes you feel like you want to commit for real.
- Have recently been dumped or cheated on by a woman you really loved and now want to get some revenge by having sex with many women and breaking hearts along the way.
- Enjoy pulling one night stands from bars and nightclubs and then dating women for a while before replacing them with new girls.
- Be bored in a relationship or marriage and want to get some action on the side.
- Be tired of jerking off to porn every week and now want to have sex with hot women in real life.
- Be with a woman who doesn't want a fully committed relationship right now. SheÂ just wants to enjoy sex and good times for a while and see where it goes.

The Most Important Skill That You Need if You Are Going to Date Multiple Women at Once

The ability to make a woman feel attracted to you at will, is the most important skill you need to attract and date multiple women at once.

If a guy doesn't know how to make a woman feel a lot of attraction for him, he won't be able to pull off the lifestyle of dating multiple women at once because he will be relying on 'getting lucky' every once in a blue moon.

If you want to be the kind of guy that women date and hook up with, even though you are seeing other women, you need to be able to make them feel a LOT of attraction for you based on what you say and do when interacting with them.

You can't just make a woman feel an average or low amount of attraction for you and then expect that she will put up with you wanting to sleep with other women.

If a woman can tell that other women aren't very interested in you, she will find it easy to gain control over you.

For example: If you're trying to pick her up and she isn't contributing much to the conversation, she will be able to see that you're worried about losing her.

She will sense that you need her way more than she needs you. She will pick up on the fact that you don't really have many or any options with women.

You can still pick women up if you don't have any other options, but you won't be able to date multiple women at once because all a woman will have to do is stop calling you or pull back her interest and you will naturally begin to chase her...because she is all you have.

To get to a point where you can successfully date multiple women at once, you have to know how to make women feel INTENSE attraction for you. When you can do that, you will see that most of the women you meet feel attracted to you.

From there, you will develop a type of confidence in yourself that only a small percentage of guys have. This type of confidence is something that women notice in men and it attracts them like a magnet.

My Dating, Sex and Relationship History

[image: Dan Bacon - dating coach]

Personally speaking, I had sex with more than 250 women before settling down with my perfect girl two years ago and then recently getting married after a short engagement.

As you will see if you watch the video below, I had an amazing time having sex and enjoying fun times with many women and I'm now enjoying deep love and commitment with my perfect woman, which is just as, if not more amazing than dating multiple women at once.

If didn't have sex with so many women before settling down, I don't think I would have felt satisfied enough to settle down. I always held the view that there were way too many sexy women in the world to just have one of them. Yet, by the time I met my girlfriend, I had enjoyed more than enough women to satisfy my insatiable appetite.

How Many Women Did I Date at Once?

There were times when I had five or six women on rotation, who were all actively pursuing me and coming around to my place for sex.

Most of the time though, I just kept to three women at once because any more than that and it began to cause more problems than it was worth (e.g. It became difficult to remember who you took where, what you talked about, what movies you saw, their personal interests and so forth).

Seeing more than three women at once also eats up too much of your time, which then takes you away from achieving your life purpose or career goals, so I recommend that you limit the number of woman you are seeing to two or three at once.

When you're dating multiple women at once, they won't all be in your life full time all the time. Sometimes, you will have women who come in and out of your life every few months just to see you a few times and then they leave again because they know they can't get you to commit.

I always had those girls in the background and when they were bored or feeling lonely or were sick of meeting guys who didn't make them feel the type of attraction they were really looking for, they'd text or Facebook message me and we'd catch up at my place for sex.

Some of them wanted to be "wined and dined" before the sex because they didn't want to make themselves look cheap, which was fine by me because I love women and enjoy spending time with them. It was always a good break away from the endless hours of work that I put into The Modern Man.

With those women, I would go out to dinner or a movie, go for a drive down to the beach or go out clubbing with them and then go back to my place for sex.

That went on for many years and I never, ever got bored of it.

When I met my girlfriend (who recently became my wife), we immediately fell in love with each other.

It was weird because even though I had other women in my life when I met her, she instantly became my number one girl. Both her and I couldn't eat or sleep properly after meeting each other because we knew that this was it.

She moved in with me almost immediately (she stayed over after the first two days of knowing each other and then packed up from where she was living to come and be with me) and we've been inseparable ever since.

I sent text messages to four different women to let them know that they wouldn't be able to come around to my place for sex anymore. Two women called me up crying, another one called up and told me that should would wait until I dumped my girlfriend and the other said that I was an asshole.

Two months later, the girl who said I was an asshole sent me a Facebook message saying that she missed me and hope that we might be able to be together again one day. I wasn't surprised.

6 DOs and DON'Ts of Dating Multiple Women at Once

[image: The DOs and DON'T of dating multiple women at once]

1. Don't Call, Text or Message Her Once You've Begun Having Sex

The golden rule of dating multiple women at once is to never call them after you've had sex.

Get to sex and then don't call. The point of this is to let her understand that you're not chasing a relationship with her and will only catch up with her when she reaches out to see you.

Dating multiple women is different to dating one woman and courting her into a committed relationship. If you are courting a woman, you might proactively text her, talk to her on the phone or see her in person a few times a week.

Yet, if you're dating multiple women, you should stop calling or texting after you've had sex with the woman for the first time. It's fine to make a comment on her Facebook status update, click "like" on a photo, etc, but avoid proactively chatting with her online, on the phone or via text.

If you don't want to fall into the trap of seeing her as your girlfriend or potential wife for life, never, ever initiate a call or text with her. Always be the one who is replying. Just wait and let her be the one who calls, texts and sends Facebook messages to you.

When she does reach out to you, only answer your phone calls from her sometimes and then take your time to reply to texts and Facebook messages; sometimes immediately, sometimes an hour or two later and sometimes the next day.

If you are the one who is always calling her and texting her, she will assume you want to be her committed boyfriend, so just let her do all the chasing after sex has happened between you.

When you answer your phone (you should only answer it sometimes), keep the conversation brief and positive, but try to get her to get to the point of the call instead of wasting your time chatting about random stuff.

If she asks to see you or go out on a date again, but you're going to be busy on the day she wants to meet, just set up another time to meet her. If you are free to meet her, it's fine to go ahead with that, but just make sure that you avoid seeing her too often.

If you want to date multiple women, you've actually got to spend time with multiple women. Don't spend too much time with one girl.

Seeing her once a week is perfect. Twice a week and it starts getting too much like a boyfriend/girlfriend situation and three times a week means you're pretty much committing yourself to one girl.

If you are actually dating multiple women and have a life purpose that you are following through on, you simply won't have the time to see her more than once a week.

If you don't maintain a balance of seeing her once a week (or less), as well as having a life purpose that you're actively pursuing, then it will be difficult for you to control your emotions (e.g. eagerness to see her, feeling lonely and bored, etc) and successfully date multiple women at once.

Bonus tip: Having a life purpose that is more important to you than just a woman is an important part of being what women refer to as a real man. They won't go around admitting it in public, but the majority of women want a man who doesn't base his life on a woman.

Women want a man to love them, want them, appreciate and respect them, but they also want that man to have more to his life than just her.

Think of the men that you respect and look up to most in this world and you will realize that they are men who are on purpose. They have a big goal, mission or purpose and they are going after it with unrelenting determination.

When a guy lacks purpose in life, he is more likely to become needy, clingy and insecure when in a relationship with a woman. When that happens, the woman loses respect and attraction for him and the relationship begins to fall apart.

2. Do Be Honest When She Asks You, “Are You Seeing Anyone Else?”

Once you’ve had sex with her a few times, but are not behaving as though you want a committed relationship, a woman will usually ask if you’re seeing any other women or where you think your relationship with her is headed.

The best approach is to be honest with her.

For example:

- Her: Are you seeing anyone else?
- You: Yes, I’m seeing other women as well because I don’t want a fully committed relationship right now. I like you the most though.
- Her: Where is this going? Are we going to have a committed relationship or do you just want me for sex?
- You: All I know is that I really like you, that you’re sexy and that you’re a great woman. Right now, I just don’t want a committed relationship though. If you can’t handle that, then we won’t see each other anymore, but if you can, then we can keep seeing each other like this and see where it goes.

To lessen the blow and not bruise her ego too much, you can also reply with a bit of humor instead of immediately giving her a serious response.

For example: If she asks you whether or not you are dating multiple women, you can smile and look around the room and say, “Hmmm, let me see. Nope. It looks like you’re the only one I’m with. Only you baby...” and then change the subject. Some women will laugh and then read between the lines to determine that you’re only having sex with her and are not in courting mode.

It’s important to point out here that many women actually want you to avoid answering the question because they just want to have casual sex with you for a while. Not all women are looking for a committed relationship.

Sometimes, it’s best to turn the question back on the woman by saying in an easy-going, kind, but also assertive way, “Why are you worrying about that? I’m here with you, we’re having a great time...there’s no need to worry about that stuff...I like you...don’t worry so much about those things.”

You can then add in that since you’re not in a committed relationship with her right now, you wouldn’t think of asking her if she’s dating other men at the same time. That will make some women feel a guilty for bringing up the subject or hesitant to ask you about it again in future.

After telling a womanÂ not to worry so much about whether or not you and her are in a committed relationship, expect her to try all sorts of things to get you to commit (e.g. saying she doesn't want to see you anymore, not calling for a week, crying about you not committing to her, calling you an asshole, etc).

Personally speaking, most of my women knew that I was dating other women without me even having to say it. How? They noticed how intensely attracted they felt only after a few minutes of interaction and many would say, "Hmmm...you're trouble."

Taylor Swift sings about that sort of thing in a couple of her songs. The lyric in one of her songs that goes, "I knew you were trouble when you walked in" is about her knowing that the guy just wanted sex, but she went for it anyway.

In another of Swift's songs, she openly admits to loving guys who are players, "Cause you know I love the players...and you love the game."

Yet, in real life, Swift wouldn't go around admitting that on camera because people would think she was slutty. Instead, she puts on her happy, innocent face that people like her for and then gets on with her real life behind the scenes.

Anyway, back to my story...

After I would have sex with a woman and she got to experience my raw, masculine confidence in the bedroom, she would know for sure that other girls would gladly come around to my apartment just for sex even if they didn't get be my exclusive girlfriend or not.

It was obvious by the way I spoke to her, looked at her, touched her and behaved around her that I found her incredibly sexy and really enjoyed the sex, but I didn't need her in my life.

Sometimes, women would say, "You're baaaaad..." or they would flat out ask me, "How many other girls are you sleeping with?" and I would just laugh.

If they persisted and kept asking me about other women, I would just say something like, "Yes, I'm seeing other girls, but I like you and when I'm with you, I only think about you. Don't worry about the other girls...we always feel good when we're together, right?"

The woman would then either answer, "Yes" or try to make me feel guilty by saying, "No, you're the only guy who makes me cry. You treat me so badly. I don't know why I continue seeing you."

I wouldn't ever get sucked in by a woman's attempt to control me with guiltÂ because I know that women love being with a guy who can make them feel so much love and yearning that they cry about not being able to get him to fully commit.

In fact, when my now wife started trying to control me in other ways in the early part of our relationship, she ended up bawling her eyes out on several occasions because I would just tell her to leave. In the end, she was so happy that I never crumbled and always retained the position of power.

Why did my wife like that I was a challenge (and still am) and why do other attractive women like it?

Back to my story about dating multiple women...

After confirming to a woman that I was indeed seeing other women, I would then usually draw her into me, hug her, start kissing her neck and grabbing her butt at the same time (in other words, begin to lovingly devour her), firmly caressing her all over her body and then have sex with her.

Instead of me being pulled into drama and useless conversation about committing, I would use my masculinity to lead her and I out of that conversation and into a more enjoyable emotional state of being. I would turn her on and love her in the way that she really wanted in that moment.

She would look at me with excitement, hoping that somewhere deep in my mind, I was beginning to change and would only want to be with her. She would hope that if she gave me enough sexual pleasure, I would realize that she was the girl for me.

During those moments, a woman often try her very best to please you during sex in the hope that you will possibly change your mind and commit to her...even if she has done that 10 times over the past few months.

It's similar to "make up sex" after a break up, but more erotic because she also feels like she is being used for sex...and loves it at the same time.

3. Do Let Her Be Your Time to Unwind, Not Your Girlfriend

If you're constantly taking a girl out to expensive restaurants and trying to organize additional dates, then it means that you're most-likely trying to be her boyfriend. You are putting a lot of active time and energy into wanting to be with her, rather than just seeing her whenever she wants to see you.

If you want to date multiple women at once, you need to have a more balanced approach to how you invest your time and energy.

By going after your life purpose with unrelenting determination, you won't always have a lot of time for her. If you are man who is rising through the levels of life, you will be under a lot of pressure to continue succeeding at whatever you do.

I'm not talking about working your normal hours at a job or spending a lot of time lifting weights up and down in a gym. I'm about talking about you having huge life goals that stretch out as far as you can envision into the future and then going after that with unrelenting determination.

That is one the main things that ensures a man does not incorrectly prioritize a woman in his mind. For example: Even though I am now married and see my wife as the most important person in my life who I love one million percent, my main focus is still my mission with The Modern Man.

When I was dating multiple women at once, they had to fit into my lifestyle or they didn't get to be with me. Simple as that.

When I did have time to "hang out" with one of my girls, I'd just get her to come over to my place and then take it from there. My girls knew the deal and were fully aware that they were coming over for sex, but I still needed to be respectful and sometimes take the girl out to do something instead of just having sex with her and then watching TV.

Since I was working so hard on The Modern Man, I really enjoyed the quality time that I spent with my girls because it helped me take my mind off my work.

Seeing my girls was my time to unwind and breathe in some feminine energy after being so masculine all day long while I worked on my purpose (The Modern Man).

When I would see my women, I would enjoy doing things like going for a walk down by the river (Southbank in Melbourne), going for coffee, watching a movie at the cinema, grabbing a bite to eat somewhere, chilling out at the beach around sunset or even going out to party with her and our friends.

The same now applies with my wife; I work my ass off all day long for The Modern Man and then at night, I spend time with her. Some nights, we hang out with my friends together and other nights she will catch up with her friends and I will catch up with mine.

Maintaining a balanced life like that is important and is one part of what it takes to keep the passion alive in a relationship.

4. Don't Get Too Close With Her Family

When couples transition from casual dating to building a serious relationship, they will usually then formally introduce each other to their family.

When dating multiple women at once, you will want to completely avoid meeting her parents if possible. If she invites you to a family get together, you can go to it as long as she is already aware that you are dating other women and are not exclusive with her.

She has to know that you're not looking for a relationship. If she's cool with that, then meeting her parents isn't a big deal to her.

However, if you've been lying to a woman and pretending that you are committed to her, then she will likely be mighty disappointed and hurt when you eventually break up with her or tell her the truth.

5. Don't Give Up Seeing Other Women, Unless You Want to

Some women won't like that you're seeing several women at once because that's just not how they roll.

They will demand that you only see them and will not be willing to share you with other women. If you want to have multiple women in your life at once, you have to be willing to risk losing some of them along the way. If you aren't willing to risk losing a woman, you aren't ready to begin dating multiple women at once.

When one of your women demands that you stop seeing other women and only see her, you should only accept that if you want to truly commit to her.

If you know that you just want to have sex with her for a while, then simply laugh at her and the situation and let her know that you will think about it.

Why not tell her "No" directly? Many women (in fact, most women) only demand that you stop seeing other women so you can say, "Okay, I will only see you" and then they feel better about themselves. However, she knows very well that you will continue seeing other women and she will just have to try harder to get you to commit to her.

When I met my wife, we knew right away that we weren't going to be having an open relationship. It was serious and both of us knew that right away.

When she said to me, "I don't want you seeing other women, okay? It's just us, right?" I paused to think about it for a few seconds and then said, "Yes, just you and me" and then I stuck to that promise. I was willing to stop seeing other women because she was and still is more than enough for me.

6. Do Try to Look After Her Feelings

It's impossible not to break the heart of some women when you're dating multiple women at once.

It is just part and parcel of having many women in your life and whether most women admit it or not, most women love being with guys who make them feel intense emotions. That said, when dating multiple women, you shouldn't intentionally try to hurt a woman's feelings and you should always try to look out for her feelings as much as possible.

For example: Many women will ask you things like, "Am I not good enough for you?" to which some guys will just be an asshole and say, "I don't know..." and leave her to think that maybe that means she isn't good enough.

My response to that type of question is, "I think you're sexy, beautiful and I really like you, but I'm not looking for anything serious right now. If you don't want to see me anymore and have fun like we do, then I encourage you to go and find another man. Go for it."

Some women took me up on that offer and would call me up or text me from a bar/nightclub to say that they were out partying with their girlfriends.

I would always reply with something short like, "Have fun!" and then think nothing of it. Why? I had other women in my life and if I wanted to commit to her, I would have already done so. The truth is, the women that I didn't commit to weren't good enough for me, but that doesn't mean I should have hurt them by saying it directly.

Some people may say that I should have just said to each woman, "No, you're not good enough...I will never commit to you because you have the following flaws...", but that's not how dating works and most women don't actually want to be told those things anyway.

Additionally, women who are in demand (i.e. women who date multiple guys at once) do the same thing to men. They dump men, lead men on and they often say all sorts of hurtful things to men who really love them.

Before I worked out the attraction secrets that I now teach here at The Modern Man (and that I've been using more about 12 years now), I used to get rejected and overlooked by women all the time.

I couldn't even get one girlfriend, let alone date multiple women. Women would reject me, overlook me and basically look at me like I was nothing. When I did manage to get a girl on a date, she would dump me and leave me feeling worse off than I was before meeting her.

I turned my life around by learning how to attract women. I worked out how to make women feel so much attraction, love and respect for me that they were willing to put up with me having sex with other women, just so they could get a chance to be with me.

Yes, I broke some hearts along the way, but women who are in demand also break the hearts of many guys in their life.

Better Than a Bad Boy

Transforms you into the real man that all women are desperately looking for.

- Pass a woman's tests with ease: Today's women are more challenging, confident and independent than women of previous generations. To find a man who is stronger and more confident than they are, women have to test to see how much of a man you really are. If you can't pass a woman's tests, you'll make her feel as though she is stronger/tougher than you and it will turn her off at a deep level.
- Supreme sexual confidence: You cannot be what women refer to as a "real man" if you're not sexually confident. In this program, you'll go through the mental transformations required to be truly sexually confident. You will also learn how to treat a woman during the lead up to sex and during sex to demonstrate your supreme sexual confidence. She'll love you like you've never experienced before. Note: These techniques work even if you have plenty, little or no sexual experience at all.
- Sexual charisma: Powerful, transformational techniques that will turn you into a sexually charismatic, sexually confident and sexually attractive man. These techniques change everything. Your whole game is about to change. You will have never, ever experienced anything quite like it. These techniques are the shortcut to get to the mastery level of success with women. You will finally get to experience what it's like to be a master with women; to be the type of man that women go "weak at the knees" over and want to have sex with immediately.
- Deep attraction, love and respect: Most guys can't really capture a woman's heart. They might have plenty of sex and good times in the early part of a relationship, but once the novelty wears off the woman's attraction, love, respect and interest begins to fade. In this program, you will learn how to capture a woman's heart at the deepest level and cause her to feel the deepest level of attraction, respect and love for you possible.

- Mastery level flirting examples: Watch and listen as I demonstrate the mastery level flirting techniques that turn women on at a deep and exciting level. These flirting techniques will make women refer you to as charming and sexy and if you use them when talking to groups of women, you will notice that they compete with each other for your attention.
- Mastery level confidence techniques: Most guys know the basics when it comes to confidence and as a result, they only ever feel a “bit confident” or feel confident in some situations, but not all. In Better Than a Bad Boy, you will learn new, mastery level mindsets that unlock more of your confidence and allow you to connect with a confidence that NEVER goes away.
- Mastery level conversation techniques: To be successful with very attractive women or women who play hard to get, you need to know how to dominate the woman during the conversation and “show her who’s boss” so to speak. It’s not done in a aggressive way, but in a savvy, confident and assertive way while still being the good guy that you are. When women feel your strength during challenging conversations and moments with them, they won’t be able to stop themselves feeling deep attraction and beginning to fall for you.
- Mastery level transformations: A lot of guys who begin learning how to be successful with women never really get to the mastery level; they stop many levels short and wonder why they aren’t experiencing the success that everyone else seems to be talking about. As you watch Better Than a Bad Boy, you will feel yourself going through the final “mental transformations” required to reach a mastery level understanding of this. From there, it’s all smooth sailing and you will find success with women to be one of the easiest things in the world.
- No more awkward feelings during interactions: Some guys can approach women and start conversations, but they can’t stop themselves from feeling nervous and awkward during the interaction. Prepare to say goodbye to all that unnecessary nervousness and awkwardness and say hello to feeling confident, comfortable and totally in control.
- Core mindsets of a real man: What differentiates a “run of the mill” man from a “real man”? How does a “real man” think when it comes to approaching women, talking to women, flirting with women, having sex with women, etc? What does he focus on in life? Where does he get his passion, drive and determination? What defines him? How do women instantly know that he is a real man?

- Elite alpha male mindsets: These powerful mindsets will change the way you view your own personal power from now on. No longer will you experience periods of weakness, self-doubt or insecurity. You will feel powerful, unstoppable and always able to take on anything, no matter how challenging. As a side bonus, women can SENSE when a man has these mindsets and it is DEEPLY attractive to them on the most primal of levels. Other guys will pale in comparison to what she feels for you.
- Making women like you automatically: Imagine if the next time you spoke to a woman she liked you AUTOMATICALLY. Meaning, you did NOT have to try to get her to like you. This is not only possible, it is NORMAL and a small percentage of men around the world know how to do it. You can have this type of power over women. Just use the techniques in this program and you will experience it IMMEDIATELY. Say goodbye to trying to pick women up or hoping that they like you. From now on, women will like you automatically.
- Overcoming your “inner game” issues with women: Knowing what to say is important, but a woman can TELL if you are nervous or anxious when talking to her and it turns her OFF at a deep level. Women don’t want to feel like they are more powerful than you. So, fixing your inner game/confidence issues with women is CRITICAL if you want to enjoy the success you’ve been dreaming about. In this program, you will discover how to instantly and painlessly eliminate all of your issues with women. From now on, you will experience a life of confidence, self-esteem, power and control. No more insecurities, no more nervousness, no more fear.
- Constant confidence: Do you feel confident in some situations, but really nervous and unsure of yourself in others? Get ready to experience life with unwavering confidence that NEVER goes away. You will have to experience it to believe it because we are well aware that it sounds “too good to be true.” Try it and you will see.
- Powerful presence: Your presence and vibe is one of the top two most important things for success with women. If you’re vibe is off or you are “all in your head” because of nervousness or anxiety, women simply won’t be able to feel proper (if any) attraction for you. In this program, I talk about the four most important types of presence: Assertive presence, sexual presence, relaxed presence and loving presence. Get ready to experience a completely new level of success with women! You will be simply amazed at what happens when you use these techniques around women.
- Having sex with a LOT of women: A lot of guys dream of being able to “get laid” with a new woman every week, or even a few women every week. Yet, the closest most guys ever come to that is by watching porn. The fact is, there is a small percentage of men in the world who do most of the sexing of the available women. Discover a SURPRISING way of interacting with women that causes them to want to have sex with you IMMEDIATELY. To say that you will be AMAZED by the reactions you get from women when you use this technique is an understatement. This is going to change your life BIG TIME.

- Attracting very beautiful women: Why do so many ordinary and “ugly” looking men have very attractive girlfriends? What is going on there? Any guy can attract very beautiful women, but most guys simply don’t know what to do. In this program, you will discover the fastest, easiest and most powerful ways to attract beautiful women on the deepest level possible. You may not believe that you can do it until you use the techniques from this program and see it happening before your own eyes. Get ready to experience success with the types of women you’ve always wanted.
- Respected by other alpha males: If other strong men don’t respect you, then you will often be the butt of their jokes, will be overlooked for many promotions in work environments and most importantly – you will be overlooked by women. When women see that you are an alpha male who is respected by other strong men, they will feel attraction for you on a level that they simply cannot experience for weaker men.
- Being a powerful man: A lot of men are afraid of their true potential and shy away from positions of power and responsibility. When it comes to talking to women, many men would rather hand over their power to a woman in the hope that she will choose them and give them a chance to have sex with her. Yet, that is not how an alpha male behaves and it is NOT what a woman wants. Women are attracted to men who rise up (even slightly or momentarily) into positions of power. Don’t shy away from being the powerful man you know that you can be.
- Maximum masculinity: The fact is, the more masculine you are, the more attractive you are to women. A lot of modern men have been turned into “half men, half women” by pop culture and have suppressed much of their masculinity in a confused attempt to impress women. Women are NOT impressed by men who drop their rank and place the woman as the alpha. Women are impressed by MEN and PREFER men to be in the top position
- Making friends with the “cool crowd”: Some guys find it difficult to relate and get along with the “cool crowd,” especially if there are a number of alpha males or very attractive women in the group. In this program, you will discover how to behave, how to talk, what body language to use and what vibe to have so you easily get along with that crowd. You’ll also learn how to make them want to be your friend and want you to stick around and be a part of the group.
- Deepest level of confidence: Confidence is not finite. Your confidence can grow, build and increase as time goes on. However, most guys will only ever experience a superficial level of confidence, confidence in some situations or fleeting/temporary confidence during good times. In this program, you will discover the secrets to deepening your confidence to levels that you simply cannot imagine right now. This will not only help you with women, but in all areas of life.
- Using your alpha male power: Once you know what this elusive and highly-prized power is, how do you use it? Discover how to use your natural, alpha male power to change your life (and the world if you want to) for the better. Your Alpha Male Power will make women submit to you, make other men respect you and make you feel like a king.

- Alpha male behavior: Learn the many important behaviors that are critical to being a true alpha male. Find out the many mistakes that men make, which place them below alpha males and cause them to live the life of a lower ranking male.
- Alpha male body language: Watch as I (Dan Bacon) demonstrate alpha male body language for various situations, such as: During conversation, making eye contact with a woman to make her attracted to you, making eye contact with a man to make him respect you, etc.
- Alpha male conversation style: Listen as I (Dan Bacon) demonstrate the key tonality changes and intonations that will make everyone instantly regard you as an alpha male.
- Being a “good guy” alpha male: Some men use their position as the alpha male in a bad way, to hurt, harm or hinder others. Yet, if you’re reading this right now – you’re probably not a bad guy with bad intentions with women and the world. Most guys who arrive at The Modern Man site are good guys who want more success with women and more respect from others in general. In this program, you’ll learn how to maintain the good guy part of yourself while also rising up to become the alpha who others follow and whom women lust after.
- Mojo for life: Discover how to tap into an endless source of motivation, drive, determination and passion unlike anything you have ever experienced before. This section is quite “deep and meaningful”, but also simple and practical at the same time. From now on, you will feel like you can take on the world and will be full of confidence, drive and mojo for life. Nothing will bring you down, nothing will make you feel insecure and nothing will stop you from getting what you truly want with women and in life.
- Being alpha around women: A lot of modern women behave as though they are alpha females, but in reality it’s just a test to see if you’ll fold and hand over your power. In this program, you’ll discover many things to say and do around women to show them that you are a true alpha. You will also learn how to be a true alpha because women can spot a fake and when they do, they lose interest immediately.
- Avoiding bullying/being picked on: Bullies, bad men and mean people are ATTRACTED to weaker people as their victims. If you don’t display alpha male behavior and psychology and place yourself below other men in terms of rank, you will invite these people to pick on you, cause problems for you and harm you to make help feel good about themselves. In this program, you will discover the best way to AVOID being picked on as well as what to say (to make it stop permanently) if you are ever picked on.
- Attracting women on the deepest level: Most modern men don’t understand what REALLY attracts women, so they get caught up in what they see in TV advertisements, magazines and movies. They assume that if they wear a nice shirt, build some muscle and have a nice hairstyle, they will then be attractive to women. Yet, that is only SUPERFICIAL attraction. The most powerful type of attraction is what a woman feels DEEP down; her primal, instinctive attraction. In this program, you will learn EXACTLY how to trigger a woman's deep, instinctive attraction for you no matter what you look like, what race you are or what you do for a living. You will have to experience it to believe it, but when you do – you will smile because you will KNOW that your life will never be the same again. Suddenly, you will have the power to attract basically any woman you meet.

- No more fear: Most men experience some level of fear when it comes to women, some more than others. However, as a true alpha male, you WILL NOT experience fear around women. Whether you are approaching a woman for the first time, in the middle of a conversation, escalating to sex or in the middle of having sex with her – you will NEVER experience fear. Instead, you will be powerful, confident and calmly in charge and women will LIKE that.
- Being an alpha male: How do you actually be an alpha male? Is there a set list of things you simply must do? Discover the “blueprint” for being an alpha male and use the practical advice in this program to begin immediately.
- Being alpha in work environments: When I (Dan Bacon) first developed my techniques for success with women and being an alpha male, I got promoted to a leadership position in my office job. 6 months later, I had been promoted a total of 3 times to a high ranking position in a global company. From this, I have learnt a great deal about how to be a respected leader (alpha) in work environments and in the Alpha Male Power program, you will learn all of my best techniques and insights in this area.
- Being alpha during sex: There's nothing sexier for a woman to be with a man who is truly THERE when he is sexing her. If you're afraid to embrace your alpha position, you will never sex her in the way that she truly desires. In this program, you'll learn the deeper side to sex as well as ways to be alpha during sex. If you've been one to hold back a little during sex and hide your alpha, you are about to experience a whole new level of sexual pleasure and love with your woman.
- Alpha techniques for approaching women: What does an alpha male think before approaching women? How about while he is talking to the woman? What body language does he use? How does he talk about sex with her? How does he approach groups of women? Discover the answers to all of these questions and a whole lot more. Learn the fearless, powerful approach methods that the true alpha males use.
- Pick up ~ simplified: Approaching and picking up women can be the easiest or most complicated thing in your life. Learn the 3 most important things you need to do to be successful with women and discover how simple it really can be. I (Dan Bacon) have taught this secret to many clients over the years and watched them transform in minutes, suddenly thinking, behaving and acting like a guy who has reached the mastery level.

You will experience a rapid and remarkable transformation when you know this secret.

- Avoiding sexual rejection: A lot of guys are afraid to show their sexual interest or escalate to kissing or sex, in fear of being rejected...and they have proper reason too! Many women DO reject the sexual advances of men because the men do it incorrectly. In this program, you will learn the alpha male approach that my friend and I use to pull NEW women for sex EVERY weekend. Includes examples for: Conversation, touch, kissing, body language and leaving the bar/club. You will also learn how to get a woman (who you've met in any environment, not just a club) eagerly wanting to have sex with you, to the point where SHE makes the first move on you.
- Approaching women during the day: We all see women that we find attractive during the day, but most guys simply don't know what to say or do to pull it off, so they let the opportunity slip through their fingers. In this program, you will discover the natural, easy-going approach that I (Dan Bacon) use the pick up women in places like shopping malls, on the street and in basically any daytime environment.
- No more worrying what people think: Do you sometimes feel self-conscious in social environments because you worry about what other people think? It's a common problem and most people secretly suffer from it. If you're one of the many people who do feel nervous, self-conscious or anxious because you worry about what people think, then get ready to say goodbye to that FOREVER. We have found the cure to that unnecessary problem and you're about to step into a new world devoid of all the anxious noise that comes with insecure thinking. Get ready to experience a world of confidence, relaxation, comfort, calm, power, control and positive, easy-going feelings. Get ready to be a true alpha male!
- Making women have a "WOW" response when you approach: A lot of guys fear approaching women because they don't want to experience the dreaded response where the women don't seem that interested in talking. Or worse, they reject him and ask him to stop talking to them. Is it possible to get a WOW response from most women you approach? Yes. You would have seen normal, every day guys have that effect on women. Why does it happen for them? Can you get that type of reaction from women? Yes. Just wait and see what happens when you use the techniques in this program! It may sound impossible to some guys who really doubt themselves...and if you're one of those guys, at least give yourself the opportunity to TRY IT first before counting yourself out. There is no harm in trying, but cheating yourself out of the chance to experience amazing success with women is no fun at all.

When you watch this program, you will not only get the RIGHT advice, but you will learn how to BUILD on your motivation and drive to succeed, rather than letting it wither away and die. You will feel pumped up and inspired and that feeling will REMAIN and grow as each day passes.
- Conversation techniques: During each call, you will hear unique examples of what to say in various conversational situations. For example: Talking to a woman you already know who likes you, but is playing hard to get. Talking to a waitress and getting her to invite you to a party with her friends. Responding to challenging things that women say when you ask for their number or call them to set up a date, etc.
- New flirting techniques: Flirting is one of the most IMPORTANT pieces to the puzzle of success with women. If you don't use it properly, you will never reach the mastery level of success with women. Period. Plus, you'll notice that most guys make these body language mistakes without knowing it!

- Having multiple girlfriends at once: Not every guy wants to marry the next girl he meets. Some of us want to enjoy many women before settling down. That is the situation I (Dan Bacon) find myself in these days. Basically every girlfriend I've had wants to marry me, but I don't want that now so I've been having multiple girlfriends at once! ...and my women don't complain! In this program, I'll share my secret techniques for having multiple girlfriends at once and keeping your girlfriends happy with MINIMAL effort...in fact, less effort than you've probably put into previous girlfriends! You'll get the answers to all these questions and more in Coaching Call Breakthroughs!
- Stop her from losing interest during conversation: One of the biggest problems guys face is being able to keep the conversation interested and keep the woman interested in talking to them. Discover how to effortlessly keep conversations going, keep them interesting AND best of all – make a woman try to keep YOU interested in talking to HER.
- Rise through the levels: There are certain levels that you need to go through to reach the mastery level of success with women. Some guys get stuck at the newbie level, too afraid to take the action they need to succeed. How to Get a New Year's Eve Kiss

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

There is nothing worse than being single and alone at midnight on New Year's Eve and having to stand aside while all the happy couples kiss and embrace each other.

It's such a sad, empty feeling.

[image: New years eve forever alone]

You want to be part of all the love and happiness going on when the clock strikes midnight, but you feel like a bit of an outsider because you don't have a woman...and that just sucks.

Well, I can tell you that it won't suck this New Year's Eve...that's for sure!

In this post, I'm going to give you some of my best techniques for getting a kiss at midnight on NYE.

Getting a Kiss Before Midnight

[image: Getting a kiss before midnight]

First and foremost, you must realize and accept that on New Year's Eve, most single women are open to random a kiss for the sake of tradition and to have a little bit of innocent fun.

People wanting to kiss a random stranger on New Year's Eve has become quite a tradition, so don't think that it's just you who wants to lock lips when the clock strikes 12.

You're not desperate, you're not strange and you're not weird for wanting a kiss on NYE.

Almost everyone who is single on NYE is hoping to get a midnight kiss and maybe even meet someone special to begin a relationship with at the start of the new year.

There's nothing wrong with starting a new relationship on NYE either.

It's just love found in a fun way on a very special night of the year.

So, when you go out this NYE, just know that both men and women are secretly hoping to be able to find someone special.

You can be the man that many women are looking for, so don't shy away from the action.

In the lead up to the big countdown just before midnight, there are plenty of opportunities to meet women, get to know each other and even get an early kiss.

As the drinks flow and people start to loosen up, you'll often see a lot of new "couples" passionately kissing each other and embracing.

So, how can you get in on the action?

The Hug Technique

[image: The hug technique]

The best way to get yourself a kiss before NYE and is to use what I call The Hug Technique.

Essentially, The Hug Technique is used by walking up to a woman (or group of women) in a playful, genuinely happy mood and then initiating a hug for a certain reason.

The hug immediately gets you and a woman being physical with each other, but more importantly, it feels great for both of you and will sometimes lead to kiss right then and there, or at least get the interaction started on the right foot so that getting physical won't feel so awkward later on.

Example scenario: You see a group of women walking around and having fun on New Year's Eve. Walk up and say, "Heyy! Happy New Years guys!" with a smile.

If the women respond well and turn their attention to you (indicating that they are open to continuing to interact with you), smile, move in a little closer and say, "Come here – Give me a New Year's hug!"

Make sure to walk towards them in a calm, confident and easy-going manner. Be happy, relaxed and enjoying yourself.

If you can just relax, be confident and enjoy yourself, almost all women will go through with the hug. It's very easy to do.

Then, if the mood is right between you and a particular woman, you can transition to a kiss.

So, whatever you do, at least get to a hug hug on NYE and show women that you are a fun, confident guy who isn't afraid to have a good time.

How do you know if she wants to kiss when you hug her?

Simply continue holding her in the hug for an extra couple of seconds, but pull back from the hug a little and gaze into her eyes with a smile.

If she keeps looking at you and smiling and doesn't pull away from the hug, then go ahead and move in for a kiss.

[image: The hug technique]

Her friends will most-likely be excitedly cheering her on and enjoying the moment.

On the other hand, if she pulls away from the hug and just wants to talk or continue having fun together, then do that. Just hang out, flirt and have a fun time together and let the sexual tension build up until the moment is right.

As the night progresses, make sure that you genuinely connect with her, build on her attraction for you and focus on having a fun time.

How can you attract her?

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works...

After you have established mutual attraction, look out for signals that show she is interested in kissing you and just move in for it, or wait until midnight for the big moment.

[image: Flirting eye contact - interested in a kiss]

Signals can include her holding eye contact with you and smiling, hugging you again, looking at your lips while biting her own lip and regularly touching you in a playful and warm/loving way.

By the way...

You can also use The Hug Technique on many other occasions while meeting women, such as when a woman says it's her birthday. You can say, "Cool! Happy birthday!" and then open your arms to hug her and move in while saying, "Happy birthday hug!" with a smile. I've never had a woman reject that.

Don't be afraid to hug a woman to congratulate a woman on her birthday. Share the love. Be happy, confident and outgoing and just enjoy yourself. There's nothing to be shy about when it comes to being a cool, confident, loving guy.

When you're out meeting new women throughout the year, it is important to be in a fun, social and outgoing mood so that women feel great when they meet you.

However, on New Years Eve it's even MORE important to bring that type of energy to an interaction, because everyone wants to be having fun on that night of the year and you don't want to be seen as a downer.

When you are in a fun, social and outgoing mood, the Hug Technique will serve you extremely well and will either lead to an instant New Year's Eve kiss or you will have one lined up and waiting for midnight.

Getting a Kiss at Midnight

[image: Kissing at midnight]

If the clock strikes 12 and you still don't have a woman to kiss, look out for:

1. Women who are not being kissed

[image: Lonely women on NYE]

Many single women will go out on NYE with friends who are already in a relationship, so she will have to stand to the side while all the couples kiss at midnight.

Simply walk by and say in a positive, happy way with a smile, "Happy New Years. You look like you could do with a New Year's Hug!" or "Happy New Year! We don't have to have a New Year's kiss, but let's at least have a New Year's hug."

Say it in a confident, happy, positive, easy-going way. Be the cool, confident, happy guy who has stopped by to cheer up her night.

If you want to charm her, you can add in (with a smile and in an easy-going way), "You're easily the most beautiful women in here. I thought there'd be a line of men waiting to kiss you at midnight. Have you been rejecting guys all night?"

This will make her feel confident about her attractiveness and will give her an excuse as to why she is alone on NYE.

2. Women who are smiling mischievously and looking around at guys, but are not "with" any of them.

Approach her with a smile.

Look her in the eyes and if she holds eye contact with you and keeps smiling, just go ahead and kiss her, or begin with the Hug Technique by smiling and saying, "Give me a New Year's hug!" and then kiss her afterwards.

Don't Wait Until Midnight With Every Woman

Getting a midnight kiss is the aim of the night, but if you meet a woman at 10:00pm and she seems interested, DON'T wait until midnight to kiss her.

Why? Most women are more open to moving things forward much quicker on NYE.

[image: Waited too long to kiss her]

If you don't move things forward quickly enough, she might think, "Hmm...maybe this guy will be too scared to kiss me when midnight comes around...I should find another guy...fast!"

On New Years Eve, almost everyone wants to be having as much fun as possible NOW, before the night is over.

So, don't waste too much time getting to know a woman; get stuck into the New Year's Eve kiss bright and early if she seems flirty and open to it.

Have Transportation Sorted Out

If you are aiming to meet women on New Year's Eve, it's important to work out how you are going to get home with the woman you've just picked up.

Where I live, it is virtually impossible to get a taxi or an Uber in the city after midnight on NYE.

I remember a time when I had to get a woman (my first ever catwalk model) to walk 20 minutes to my car to come home with me on NYE.

She almost turned back and lost interest about 5 minutes into the walk, but I reassured her that we were almost there and we kept on walking...for another 15 minutes!

When I finally got her home (a 45-minute drive from where we met! I used to live outside the city, but I now live right in the city), the effort was definitely worth it. She was a very sexy woman and we ended up staying awake until 6am just getting it on. It was an awesome NYE.

I was lucky enough to not mess it up on the long walk back to my car, but the fact that her and I almost parted ways (even though we had been kissing at the bar) taught me a lesson to be better prepared next time, rather than parking my car so far away.

If you are driving, try to get to where you're going a bit earlier than usual so you can park closer to the action.

Go Out With Fun People

Go out with fun people on New Year's Eve and get involved in the party action.

Be the easy-going, happy and upbeat person that people can have a good time with.

If you are hanging out with people who are quiet or aren't open to being fun and social with others, it'll be more difficult for you to get results on New Years Eve.

On NYE, almost everyone wants to be having the best fun possible and to be hanging out with the coolest people they know or can meet on the night.

[image: Attracting women on NYE]

If you're a single guy who is looking to meet women, I recommend that you either go out with:

- A confident male friend (or friends) who can be fun, social and outgoing.
- A cool couple that you know, who are fun to hang out with and who will also be social with other people.
- Female friends who are fun, happy people.

Just remember: It's your responsibility as a man to initiate things with women. Don't sit back hoping that women will hit on you because of your nice shirt, cologne or hairstyle. Be confident, walk over to say hello and use the Hug Technique.

Have a great NYE!

Sir Richard Branson: Male Role Model

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

[image: Richard Branson: Role model for modern men]

Role Model Traits

It is his extraordinary abilities as an entrepreneur, adventurer, futurist, environmentalist, and philanthropist that makes mega-billionaire Sir Richard Branson such a great role model for modern men.

Entrepreneur â□□ Founder of the Virgin Group which is made up of more than 400 companies in the music, communication, beverage, and transportation industries.

Adventurer â□□ Branson has traveled the world by air and sea on some of the most exciting, record-breaking adventures ever documented. He is one man who is living his life to the fullest and taking risks that lead to fulfilling experiences and achievements.

Environmentalist â□□ Bransonâ□□s efforts to help rid the world of the â□□greenhouse effectâ□□ has led him to be one of the most respected environmental leaders who is working to keep our planet clean and safe for generations to come.

Humanitarian â□□ He has campaigned for the end of nuclear weapons worldwide, worked to end the genocide in Darfur, built schools in Africa and has helped tens of thousands of people worldwide through his efforts, donations and fundraising.

His Story

Sir Richard Branson was born into an aristocratic family and he could have had a very comfortable, affluent life with little effort on his part.

However, despite being born with dyslexia (a manageable but incurable learning disability), at a young age, his entrepreneurial spirit and â□□street smartsâ□□ allowed him to build a mega-billion dollar empire with a brand name that is recognized throughout most of the world.

His love of adventure has taken him on record-breaking journeys and his humanitarian passion has led him to strive to make the world a better place for all.

While his life has not been without controversy or setbacks, his philosophy to do whatever is necessary to follow his dreams can easily be recognized by the title of one of his best-selling books â□□ â□□Screw It, Let's do It. Lessons in Life.â□□

How often have you let naysayers, roadblocks, setbacks or a lack of confidence stop you from realizing your personal goals? If you have, then you should look to Richard Branson as a role model for the determination to persevere and succeed and see your dreams turn into reality. He is a interesting type of alpha male.

He uses alpha psychology and purpose to push through and “beat” other men. Contrary to the mistaken belief of many modern men, you don't have to be aggressive or overly arrogant to be an effective alpha male.

Barely into his twenties, Branson made deals with American record manufacturers to purchase some of their excess stock of music albums which he then sold out of the trunk (boot) of his car to individuals and then to retailers in England before starting a mail order discount record business.

He then opened his first Virgin record store in London. (The name "Virgin" was at the suggestion of an employee because they were all so young and new to the business.)

Although he was initially arrested for not paying his export tax on the discounted records, with his family's help, he paid off his tax debt and then set about lobbying to make changes to restrictions which had previously governed how low record sales could be discounted.

Selling highly discounted records turned his Virgin record store into a huge success which ultimately led to his opening thousands of other stores around the world.

With his growing fortune, he bought a country estate and built a recording studio where he discovered unconventional (but ultimately popular) musicians and groups that other labels wouldn't sign such as Culture Club, Mike Oldfield, and the Sex Pistols.

His diverse interests led him to start other businesses including Virgin Atlantic Airways, Virgin Cola, Virgin Vodka, Virgin Express, Virgin Mobile, Virgin Communications, Virgin Trains and Virgin Galactic among his many other enterprises.

While not all of his business ventures have been successful and he's often had to use his holdings in his more prosperous companies to support those that were floundering, he still has seen commercial triumph much more often than failure.

Branson's business interests were not the only type of conquests that he had sought. Although some adventures did not have an initially positive outcome, he persisted and has crossed the Atlantic by sailboat, floated above and around the world by hot air balloon and crossed the English Channel in an amphibious vehicle – all in record-breaking feats.

He also has engaged in a far range of other exciting escapades that most men would not dare.

No one is saying you should or even need to be reckless in your life to live each day to its fullest.

It is essential, however, that you sometimes take risks that might bring you benefit and attempt something exciting (even if it's just walking up to a beautiful woman and having a chat with her for a few minutes) to feel a rush of adrenaline and reap the rewards of knowing that you can do whatever you want to achieve in this life.

Often provocative in his approach but always inspiring and exciting to watch, Sir Richard Branson is willing to constantly strive to be better and go after all that he wants. He is quoted as saying, "My interest in life comes from setting myself huge, apparently unachievable challenges and trying to rise above them...from the perspective of wanting to live life to the fullest."

What huge challenges do you set for yourself? How do you strive to live the fullest life that you can and have the world become a better place just because you're living in it?

His Achievements

- Worked with Nelson Mandela to found and fund the Group "The Elders" which includes leaders such as Desmond Tutu, Nelson Mandela, Jimmy Carter, Mary Robinson and others whose purpose is to help solve world problems.

- Founded and raises funds for Virgin Unite, his non-profit foundation, which provides education and start-up costs for small business owners in third world countries as well as provides scholarships, funds research, educates and helps to create a better world.
- Hosted a gathering of world and business leaders including former British Prime Minister Tony Blair, Wikipedia co-founder Jimmy Wales and Larry Page of Google to discuss ways to help stop global warming along and other environmental issues.
- Was named in Time Magazine's list of the Top 100 Most Influential People in the World.
- Was awarded the United Nations Correspondents Association Citizen of the World Awards for his environmental and humanitarian efforts.
- He was awarded the Knight bachelor (which gives him the designation of Sir) by the Queen of England for his services to entrepreneurship.

Quincy Jones: Male Role Model

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

[image: Quincy Jones: Role model for men]

His Role Model Traits

Quincy Jones is more than just one of the legendary greats of the music industry. He is a pioneer, humanitarian, visionary, activist and more. His life and achievements can offer many important lessons that modern men can learn from.

Multi-Talented ■■■ As a musician, record and film producer, music arranger and composer, Quincy Jones has created a body of work in multiple genres of music that is unparalleled in the industry.

Broke Racial Barriers ■■■ With a talent that could not be denied, Quincy (or Q as he's known by his friends) literally changed the face of the music business with a wide appeal to people of all races and nationalities even during the turbulent 1960s.

Leader ■■■ In the 1980s, wanting to raise funds to help starving Ethiopians, Jones enlisted some of the world's most famous musicians and singers to produce the recording ■■■ We Are the World ■■■ written by Michael Jackson and Lionel Richie.

As a way to deal with the varying personalities of the sometimes temperamental artists, he posted a sign on the recording studio entrance that read ■■■ Leave Your Ego at the Door. ■■■ His point was well taken and the recording raised millions.

Leadership is an important alpha male quality that any guy can develop. You don't have to be "born an alpha male", rather you "make yourself into an alpha male" by adopting certain mindsets and approaches to life.

Humanitarian ■■■ Among his other philanthropic work, Jones created the ■■■ We Are the Future ■■■ project aimed at giving children in poor and conflict-ridden areas of the world resources and hope for a better future.

His Story

Born into a lower middle class family in Chicago with a mother who suffered from a mental illness, Quincy Jones (known as Q by those close to him) sought refuge from his home life by studying music and learning how to play the trumpet.

His family moved to Seattle when he was ten and it was then that he began his lifelong friendship with another boy who would also become a music legend, Ray Charles. After he finished high school, Quincy was offered a music scholarship to college but instead chose to travel as a trumpeter for jazz great Lionel Hampton.

While touring with Hampton's band, he discovered a gift for arranging music. This led to more opportunities for him to work with other renowned artists of the time such Count Basie, drummer Gene Krupa, Duke Ellington and his long-time friend, Ray Charles.

Q traveled the world playing with various groups and eventually formed his own band, the Jones Boys. Knowing that they were going to be on the road much of the time and wanting his musicians to maintain a quality family life, Quincy arranged for the musicians to bring along their families as they traveled around the United States, Europe and other parts of the world.

When youâre a single guy, itâs great if you want a job that will have you constantly traveling, but once youâre in a steady relationship or have a family, itâs important to recognize that your presence is more important to those who love you than is your paycheck.

When you decide to âsettle downâ you may find that your âtraveling manâ days are either going to be limited or that you have to make some concessions to be home more often, bring your family along when possible or connect with them more consistently (through the phone or internet chats) to ensure that your relationships last and are more meaningful.

Yes, thereâs the old saying âabsence makes the heart grow fonder,â but itâs also true that âout of sight is out of mind.â

Realizing that he lacked the necessary training to become as great a musician, Q went to Paris to study music composition and to work with other music greats as his mentors. While having a natural talent or ability is a wonderful asset, having a good educational foundation is often essential for a man to go from being merely gifted at doing something to being great.

Although Q was constantly on the road and playing to enthusiastic audiences with his band, he also discovered that his paycheck didnât match their popularity. In fact, the band wasnât making ends meet.

He was quoted as saying in âMusicianâ magazine, âWe had the best jazz band in the planet and yet we were literally starving. Thatâs when I discovered that there was music, and there was the music business. If I were to survive, I would have to learn the difference between the two.â

During the 1960s when there was a great lack of racial equality, Jones set about to improve opportunities for himself and ultimately for other black musicians.

Because of his talent and reputation, he was able to break into the predominately white world of record producing and started to work at Mercury Records. There he proved himself and eventually became the first African-American promoted to vice president of that company.

He also used his talent to help him break into another music arena where blacks had not previously had a significant influence âcomposing film scores. Producer Sidney Lumet hired Jones to write the music for his film âThe Pawnbroker.â The power of his film score broke down barriers and since then heâs composed scores for more than 30 major movies.

While working on the movie âThe Wiz,â Michael Jackson (who appeared as the Scarecrow in the movie) asked Quincy for music producer recommendations for his new album. Q suggested a number of producers but Jackson so enjoyed the work that Jones was doing on âThe Wiz,â he asked him to produce the album.

That recording, âOff the Wall,â sold more than 20 million albums and made Quincy Jones the most powerful record producer in the industry. Their next collaboration on Jacksonâs âThriller,â which remains one of the best-selling albums of all time, reinforced Quincyâs reputation. Soon musicians from around the world were begging Jones to produce their music for them.

This might seem like a lucky break that he got to work with the talented Michael Jackson, but when you are good at what you do, surround yourself with successful people and are persistent in your pursuit to become successful, the right opportunities will tend to pop up for you.

As Calvin Coolidge is famously quoted as saying, "Nothing in the world can take the place of persistence. Talent will not; nothing is more common than unsuccessful men with talent. Genius will not; unrewarded genius is almost a proverb. Education will not; the world is full of educated derelicts."

In Quincy's case, he not only used his talent for music, but he used his intelligence to seize upon an opportunity that many others could have just as easily passed by.

Jones's influence among musicians and recording executives was never more evident than when he was able to get dozens of the biggest names in the music industry to record "We Are the World" as a fundraiser for starving Ethiopians.

He used his considerable influence to get their record companies to sign waivers that allowed their artists to create this cross-over sensation.

With a simple sign he posted on the recording studio's entrance that read, "Leave Your Ego at the Door," in one unprecedented evening he worked with singing sensations and musicians such as Ray Charles, Bob Dylan, Michael Jackson (who co-wrote the song with Lionel Richie), Waylon Jennings, Billy Joel, Stevie Wonder, Cyndi Lauper, Diana Ross, Paul Simon, Whitney Houston, and many more to create a recording-breaking hit that raised millions for Africa's poor. After the tsunami in Haiti in 2010, the song was re-written and re-recorded with another group of highly-regarded singers and musicians in another historical recording feat that also raised millions for the tsunami victims.

But his humanitarian efforts aren't limited to disasters. Q has worked with Bono and U2 on many humanitarian projects. He is also the founder of the "Quincy Jones Listen Up Foundation" that connects poor young people with technology, education, music and culture and even has developed an intercultural exchange program between poor youths from Los Angeles and their counterparts in South Africa.

Jones and his foundations have worked with the World Bank, the United Nations, and major corporate sponsors to create programs that will provide help and hope for underprivileged young people around the world. Their first fundraiser was a concert in Rome, Italy before an audience of more than a half million people.

Quincy Jones has had to overcome many hurdles to become the legend he still is today. Many men have talent and passion in their field but how many men are willing to break down doors to achieve their goals and create a better life for themselves and others as Quincy Jones has done? Imagine where your talent, passion and compassion could take you.

- Has received numerous honorary degrees from multiple universities and has had scholarships and schools named in his honor.

- Named after the former U.S. President Bill Clinton, Jones has received the Clinton Global Citizen award for Leadership in Philanthropy.
- Received the Kennedy Center Honors award which recognized his life-long accomplishments and talents and has only been given to a handful of the United States's most prestigious artists.
- Was awarded the National Medal of the Arts by U.S. President Barack Obama.

William Shatner: Male Role Model

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Role Model Traits

[image: William Shatner: Role model for modern men]

What makes William Shatner such an interesting male role model is not his successes, but rather his failures and his ability to bounce back from them to become an even stronger man.

Tenacious and Hard Working â In the best sense of the term, William Shatner has always been a âworking actor.â Whether he had a starring role, a guest spot or even took some questionable parts in low-budget or low-quality projects, he has always stayed devoted to his craft. For him, âWork equals work.â Of his early career a producer said, â(Bill) became a working actor who showed up on time, knew his lines, worked cheap and always answered his phone.”

Self-transformation â Shatner has seen his acting career rise and fall many times so he constantly re-invents himself as an actor, spokesperson, singer, author, interviewer and more so that he is always able to earn a paycheck.

Self-Deprecating â Much has been made about Billâs (as his friends call him) strange staccato line delivery, most noticeable in one of his most famous roles as Captain James T. Kirk in the âStar Trekâ series and movies.

His acting style is often great fodder for celebrity impersonators and endless comedy skits have been done at his expense. But the person who generally laughs the loudest at these âtributesâ is Bill himself.

Inquisitive and Disarming â William Shatner is fascinated by people and thatâs most obvious in his series âShatnerâs Raw Nerveâ on the Biography Channel where he interviews celebrities and other notables.

He digs deep in these discussions and often asks insightful questions in such an authentic and disarming way that he gets his guests to open up and talk about their personal life in ways they say theyâve never done before.

His Story

William Shatner was born and raised in Canada and has been acting since his childhood. As a young man, he was a trained Shakespearean actor who showed much promise. It has often been said that he is as gifted as his acting contemporaries Paul Newman, Steve McQueen and Robert Redford.

It took him a long time to live up to that promise, but he worked hard to become an award-winning talent who has earned much respect in the acting community.

In his early career he suffered by making some poor choices and accepting many of the low-quality roles that he was offered. His strong work ethic and desire to support his family made him select almost any role rather than waiting until something more substantive was offered to him.

When he initially took the role of Captain James T. Kirk in the series Star Trek, Bill never thought that it would become something that he would be associated with for the rest of his life. The show was canceled after the first season due to poor ratings and Shatner was almost relieved.

It wasn't until Star Trek went into re-runs that viewers developed such an interest in the show that they demanded that the series be returned. And although he had been working steadily for decades, this is when William Shatner became so well known to the public.

For Bill (as he's called by friends and family), the return of Star Trek was a mixed blessing. It was a steady paycheck in a lead role of a popular series, but his ego soon took a big bruising when fans started clamoring to see more of the guy with the ears — Leonard Nimoy in the role of Spock.

Suddenly Bill's leading role and screen time had to be shared and he admits that he wasn't always gracious about it. Even though he was a professional on the set, he made it clear that he wasn't happy with the script changes that gave bigger roles to his co-stars.

His foul mood often caused considerable tension on the set. (He has since made public and private apologies to his castmates and, in fact, eventually developed a close friendship with Leonard Nimoy.)

Unless you're a sole-proprietor of a business, it's essential to work as a team player with the other employees. You should always do your best to encourage others to do their best work and cheer them on when they succeed.

Ironically, this type of approach will get you promoted to leadership or bigger roles more often than trying to steal attention away from other people. As the old saying goes, There's no I in the word TEAM.

Bill decided to use his new-found popularity to record albums. While not sung, they were dramatic spoken interpretations of songs such as Tambourine Man, Lucy in the Sky with Diamonds and Rocket Man. While critics blasted his efforts, his fans supported his creative endeavor and the albums became big hits.

When Star Trek was canceled, Bill was typecast as Captain Kirk and found it difficult to get acting work. At the same time, his first marriage fell apart and he and his wife divorced. He lost his home and spent several months living in his truck while still pursuing acting roles.

Eventually he was offered small guest spots in sitcoms and other shows which then led him to being cast in the lead role of the T. J. Hooker TV series. While popular with the audience, Bill didn't get enough professional satisfaction from the role.

He stayed with it because he felt the responsibility to support his children from his first marriage and his new wife and worked with the producers and writers to try to make the show better.

After Hooker ended, he took whatever jobs he could get including making public appearances at Star Trek conventions. Although he had a distain for Trekkies (loyal Star Trek fans), he was relieved to receive a paycheck.

In today's economy, modern men will often find that they have to take a job even if it isn't in their ideal profession. There's no dishonor in taking a job that doesn't meet your capabilities to support yourself or your loved ones. However, you should never give up on your true purpose. Spend your after-work hours equipping yourself with the skills to eventually work in your dream job.

When the Star Wars movie series became so popular, the Star Trek producers decided to cash in on the outer space science fiction craze and resurrected the Star Trek characters in feature-length motion pictures. Because he was such an icon in his role as the captain of the Starship Enterprise, Bill began receiving greater financial rewards. He also began to get more professional enjoyment in reprising his role as Captain Kirk for the big screen. The movies were a financial success but Bill still looked for greater artistic outlets.

He's credited with writing a series of books based on the Star Trek characters that were a huge hit with sci-fi fans. He also made numerous guest appearances on a variety of popular television shows. Bill eventually came to terms with his popularity with Trekkies and embraced their adoration. He also discovered that several young producers were also his fans and were anxious to cast him in their projects.

Although not a typically good looking man, his role in Star Trek turned into a bit of a heartthrob and many women felt attracted to him. This happens because women are more attracted to things about a man other than his looks.

A couple of years after his second marriage came to an end, he married a woman he called the love of his life. Unfortunately his new wife had a drug and alcohol addiction. Despite his best efforts to get her treatment, she accidentally drowned in their family pool after consuming sleeping pills and alcohol. He was devastated to find her body and learn of her death.

Bill was hired to do a popular series of commercials for Priceline, a discount travel website. As the website's spokesman, the commercials took advantage of Shatner's comedic ability to parody himself.

The popularity of the commercials resulted in him landing the role of Denny Crane in the final season of The Practice. His bombastic character portrayal was so well received that writer/producer, David E. Kelley, hired Shatner to reprise the Crane character in his new spin-off series, Boston Legal.

In an interview about Shatner and the series The New York Times Magazine described the casting as "William Shatner the man...playing William Shatner the character playing the character Denny Crane, who was playing the character William Shatner."

Shatner is happily married to his fourth wife who shares his love of equestrian riding and raising horses and is one of the busiest working actors in show business.

His Achievements

- Received an Emmy Award and numerous nominations for his character Denny Crane on Boston Legal.
- Recorded a wake-up call for the space shuttle Discovery as it finished its final mission at the International Space Station using the music theme from Star Trek and parodying the opening statement he made each episode of the series.
- Received the Governor General of Canada's Performing Arts Award for Lifetime Artistic Achievement. He recorded a humorous short film for the occasion William Shatner Sings O Canada.
- Raises champion American Saddlebred horses with his wife and rides in charity equestrian events.
- When he passed a kidney stone, he sold it for $75,000 on an auction website. That money, along with donations from the cast and crew of Boston Legal, built a home for

Christopher Reeve: Male Role Model

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

His Role Model Traits

[image: Christopher Reeve: Role model for men]

The late Christopher Reeve played Superman in his reel life, but more importantly he was a super man in his real life.

He was a devoted father and husband, he was well educated, philanthropic, dedicated to his work and continually displayed positive role model qualities before and especially after the accident that left him a quadriplegic.

Socially Conscious Even before his paralyzing accident which led him to work toward raising funds to find a cure for spinal cord injuries, Christopher Reeve was often willing to help various charities.

He served as a track and field coach for the Special Olympics, spoke before the United Nations on behalf of Amnesty International and appeared at numerous fundraisers for (Actors) Equity Fights AIDS as well as using his celebrity to help other causes he believed in.

Strong Work Ethic Chris (as his friends and family called him) caught the acting bug early and began working on the stage at the age of nine. Even after his debilitating injury caused him to be paralyzed at the age of 43, he continued to work on writing, acting, producing and directing.

Perseverance Although he briefly thought about ending his life after discovering the severity of his condition after the accident, with his family's encouragement he quickly resolved to do everything he could to improve his own condition.

He made enormous strides that not only impressed the medical community, but allowed him to be able to continue in his existing career and work toward finding ways to help others who suffered from spinal cord injuries.

Determined When he was cast as Superman, he had the prerequisite height and blue eyes to play the iconic legend, but he lacked the powerful physique.

Instead of wearing padding under his superhero costume as suggested by the studio, he trained vigorously for months with British weight lifting champion David Prowse to build up the necessary muscles to naturally fill out the Superman costume.

(Although James Earl Jones provided the voice of Darth Vader in the Star Wars epics, it was Prowse who actually wore the costume.) Determination is a key quality of an effective alpha male.

His Story

Most of us became aware of Christopher Reeve when he was cast as the iconic comic book hero Superman in the 1970s film, but Chris (as he was known by his family and friends) had been regularly working as an actor since he was a child.

Chris was raised in an upper middle class family, but he never let his family's affluence keep him from getting out there and earning his own paycheck. He used his acting talent to land small roles in amateur productions and also worked backstage doing anything necessary to help earn his keep.

His powerful presence on the stage eventually brought him to the attention of agents, producers and legendary actors who helped him along his acting path.

As his career progressed, he was offered a number of roles but felt that he still had much to learn about acting. He went to Europe to study and perform the classics and later attended Cornell University and was eventually admitted to the prestigious Juilliard School of the Arts where he met and became lifelong friends with Robin Williams.

His handsome looks made him a natural for soap operas and he quickly landed a role on a popular daytime drama.

Katherine Hepburn was so impressed by his talent when he auditioned for the role of her grandson in the Broadway production of "A Matter of Gravity" that she used her considerable influence to get the producers of his daytime drama to schedule his TV appearances so that he could also perform in the play to impressive reviews.

Chris's star was rising and he eventually went and won the role that would make him a household name "Superman."

While shooting "Superman" in England he developed a relationship with British actress Gae Exton. Through mutual agreement they chose not to marry, but together they had a son and a daughter and Chris was most proud of what he considered to be his greatest role "devoted father."

After filming, and with Chris's career on the rise, they moved back to the United States. While Chris's career was going well, his relationship with Exton amicably came to an end and she moved back to England with their children.

Chris was given several long-term opportunities to work in Los Angeles but he turned them down and chose to stay on the East Coast so that he could hop aboard the Concord and see his children frequently.

Not all long-term relationships last forever, but with maturity it is essential, especially when there are children involved, to strive to maintain a friendly relationship with your ex. If you take on the responsibility of fathering a child, it is essential to remember that your first obligation is now to your children.

That's why making the decision to have children or being sexually responsible to avoid unexpected pregnancies is such an important choice as a man in the modern world.

Months after his split with Exton and while working in Willamstown, Massachusetts he became attracted to a singer, Dana Morosini. Within months they were married and soon after Dana (Morosini) Reeve gave birth to their son.

Always a sports enthusiast who excelled in water sports, track and field, hockey, tennis, baseball, mountain climbing, parasailing, cycling and more, and even though he was highly allergic to horses, it wasn't surprising when Chris chose to take up equestrian riding.

As he did with everything else, he threw himself into the sport and quickly became an accomplished rider who often participated in equestrian events. It was that love of horseback riding that eventually changed his life forever.

On May 27, 1995, while participating in a charity steeplechase event, Chris's horse stopped short at one of the jumps and with his hands tangled in the horse's bridle, Chris went flying over the rail and landed on his head.

While his helmet prevented brain injury, the weight of his body crashing down destroyed his first and second vertebrae causing his skull to become detached from his spine. The result was that he became paralyzed from the neck down.

Upon hearing the news and fearing the burden he would become to his wife and family, he said to Dana, "Maybe we should let me go." Upon which she told him, "You're still you and I love you." Her words changed his thoughts immediately and he never considered suicide again. At that moment he began the fight of his life.

Finding the right woman to marry and saying vows like "in sickness and in health" and "for better or for worse" are not just words. They are promises that need to be kept. It's obvious that Chris chose well when he married Dana because she stood by him throughout his ordeal.

Over the next few years, Chris endured numerous painful surgeries to reattach his head and spinal cord and rehabilitation to keep him as physically healthy as possible. He was forced to use a ventilator to breathe which made communicating especially difficult.

As an actor who was used to having vocal command, Chris found this unacceptable and astounded the medical community when his determination and hard work through gruesome therapy was successful and he could be off his ventilator for periods as long as 30 minutes at a time.

Whether you have a physical or learning disability or an emotional hurdle you have to deal with, like Chris, you should always strive to become the best man you can be by using determination and working hard to achieve your goals.

With incredible empathy for the other patients he met in rehab he decided to use his celebrity and media coverage to help raise awareness and funds to research spinal cord injuries. He made physically difficult public appearances, worked with scientists around the world, encouraged the government to fund research and fought to have spinal injury research become a medical priority.

When he was physically strong enough, Chris returned to his first love the movie business. He made his directorial debut in the award-winning HBO film "In the Gloaming" and produced and starred in the remake of the Jimmy Stewart classic "Rear Window."

His autobiography, "Still Me," detailing his life, accident and recovery spent several months on top of the "New York Times" best seller list and his second inspirational book, "Nothing is Impossible" was also well received.

As hard as he fought, Chris endured numerous setbacks in his recovery and it was ultimately an infection and his reaction to an antibiotic that ended his life on October 10, 2004 at age 52.

Throughout his too-short life, Chris proved that he was a "super man" in the best sense of the term. He is definitely a man that any modern man can look up to for inspiration and as a positive role model.

His Achievements

- Named the Chairman of the American Paralysis Association and Vice Chairman of the National Organization on Disability.
- Co-founded the Reeve-Irvine Research Center which is now one of the leading spinal cord research centers in the world.
- Formed the Christopher and Dana Reeve Foundation with this wife to receive grants and to raise funds for spinal cord injury research. To date, the Foundation has raised over $70 million.
- Urged California voters to vote "Yes" on Proposition 71 which would establish the California Institute for Regenerative Medicine. The bill allotted $3 billion of state funds for stem cell research which is an approach that scientists believe has the best potential to help or cure those with spinal cord injuries. The bill was approved shortly after Chris's death.
- Received five Emmy awards including one for Chris as "Outstanding Director for a Miniseries or Special" for his film "In the Gloaming."
- Won a Screen Actors Guild Best Actor Award for his role in "Rear Window."
- Flew solo across the Atlantic twice (before his accident) and when he was filming the movie "The Aviator," he did all of his own flying stunts.

Bill Rancic: Male Role Model

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

[image: Bill Rancic - Male role model]

His Role Model Traits

If I was only going to recommend one male role model for modern men, it would definitely be Bill Rancic.

Rancic is the well-known winner of the first season of “The Apprentice”, who went on to marry a beautiful and famous TV personality, Giuliana DePandi. Yet, that’s not why he’s such a great role model for men.

Bill exhibits a number of admirable qualities such as leadership, masculinity, determination and much more that modern men can aspire to. These are traits that are not only naturally attractive to women, but also traits that cause men to respect and admire him.

Masculinity â□□ Although Bill is married to a strong, influential woman in the entertainment industry – Giuliana (DePandi) Rancic â□□ it’s easy to see when watching their reality TV show “Giuliana and Bill” that Bill still wears the pants in their relationship.

Although they compromise well, when a difficult decision needs to be made, Bill is generally the final decision maker.

Leadership â□□ Whether he was the designated Project Manager or if he was simply assigned tasks as part of a team, his leadership skills were quickly apparent in the first season of “The Apprentice.” Although his competitors were trying to win the title, they often turned to Bill for advice about how to manage situations or sought his help to complete complex tasks.

Confidence â□□ When Guiliana DePandi of E! television was assigned to interview Bill, you could immediately see the sexual sparks flying between them. His cheeky humor and flirting made her drop her guard and relax. Guiliana suddenly became flustered (in a good way) and briefly lost her professional demeanor as he turned on the charm and quickly won her over.

Supportive Husband â□□ Bill and his wife desperately wanted to start a family but soon discovered that their best chance for her to get pregnant was for Giuliana to go through the physically and emotionally difficult In Vitro Fertilization (IVF) process.

As much as Bill wanted to be a father, he told Guiliana that he wouldn’t push her. He said that she should make the final decision as to whether or not she was willing to attempt to get pregnant through IVF and he would support any choice she made.

They tried again and again, but were unsuccessful. Still, Bill has been supportive and cares about the health of her body and how it can become damaged by further IVF attempts.

Charitable â□□ The proceeds from his book, “Beyond the Lemonade Stand,” go to various charities and he works closely with numerous charities such as Gradient Gives Back, which helps economically-challenged families get back on their feet. Among his other charitable efforts, he actively serves on the board of the Mercy Home for Boys and Girls.

His Story

Can you remember the names of any of the other people who have won “The Apprentice”? Most people can’t, but almost everyone who has seen the show remembers Bill Rancic and it’s not simply because he was the first winner.

It’s because Bill took that initial opportunity to work for Donald Trump and went on to use the experience to create further opportunities for himself. He has milked the opportunity for all it is worth, rather than stopping at winning the title of the show.

Bill Rancic’s entrepreneurial spirit began early in his life. Coming from a humble, middle-class family (his parents were educators), he needed a way to earn money while attending college, so he started a boat detailing business.

Then, while still in his twenties and with a love of a good cigar, he started an internet-based business, Cigars Around the World, in his 400-square foot apartment that went onto become a multi-million dollar business enterprise.

Almost every successful entrepreneur started by discovering his personal passion and building on it, or finding a niche that needed to be filled and then filling it.

Bill’s early passion was great cigars and he recognized that there were others who also enjoyed the occasional quality smoke but were limited in their choices from their local cigarette shop.

So, he set about researching supplier options and started his online cigar business. Why not take a day to decide on what your true passion is or work out what niche you can fill and test your own entrepreneurial spirit?

When Bill applied for the first season of “The Apprentice,” because of his already proven success in the cigar business, he beat out over 250,000 other hopefuls.

Not only did he participate as one of 16 competitors on the new show, but he continually persevered and moved ahead as others were fired until he was one of only two finalists standing to ultimately hear the legendary Donald Trump say, “You’re hired!”

Within three minutes of hearing he’d won the title as “The Apprentice” and earned a year-long contract to work on one of Trump’s projects, Bill quickly decided to take on the task of overseeing the building of a new Trump Tower in his hometown of Chicago rather than helping to build a new Trump golf course in another state.

He felt the Tower project would be a better learning experience and would help him with his personal goal to be another real estate development mogul. This ability to make quick decisions showed yet another aspect of Bill’s leadership qualities and business insights.

Although his contract as “The Apprentice” was due to end a year later and Bill initially planned to go out and start his own company, he decided to stay on to not only further his opportunity to learn under Trump’s tutelage but to see the Trump Tower project completed and become one of the most impressive and highly-sought after addresses in the Chicago skyline.

“The Donald” soon realized what a tremendous asset Bill was to the Trump Organization and gave him many more responsibilities than was originally planned. While most men will never have a mentor with a track record as outstanding as Donald Trump’s, work toward finding a successful man or men who shares your same business or personal interests to mentor you.

If you take that relationship seriously and sincerely show a genuine interest in their teachings, you can avoid the mistakes that most people make and glean priceless ideas from the mentors to possibly enjoy even greater success than they achieved.

Bill Rancic continues to work on projects with and/or for Trump and often serves as a guest judge (and Mr. Trump's "eyes and ears") on other seasons of "The Apprentice" where his input about the competitors' abilities helps Trump to decide who should stay and who should go.

Since leaving the Trump Organization as a full-time employee, Bill has gone on to build his own highly lucrative real estate development (commercial and residential) company. He also now travels the world as a successful and well-paid motivational speaker for groups and major corporations.

He met and married Guiliana (DePandi) Rancic, a well-known TV host and producer on the E! television and Style networks. Together they've written a book "I Do, Now What?: Secrets, Stories and Advice from a Madly-in-Love Couple" and Bill has authored "Beyond the Lemonade Stand" and "You're Hired: How to Succeed in Business and Life from the Winner of The Apprentice."

Along with Guiliana, he has starred on their highly successful reality series "Guiliana and Bill" which focused on the trials and triumphs of married life.

They have also started a successful television production company, You and I Productions, which produces scripted and reality shows on several networks. Bill makes frequent TV appearances and hosts and produces a popular Saturday morning business-based TV show on A&E called "We Mean Business."

His Achievements

1. Bill's internet-based company, Cigars Around the World, has grown into a multi-million dollar enterprise showing his early aptitude for business and his ability to find a niche that needed to be met.

He acted on his passion in an uncompetitive niche and saw it through to tremendous success.

2. Is a highly paid and much-sought-after motivational speaker brought in by groups and Fortune 500 companies to inspire and inform their members or employees.

3. Co-wrote the book (with his wife) "I Do, Now What?: Secrets, Stories and Advice from a Madly-in-Love Couple" to frankly and humorously discuss what it's like when you're a newlywed (or start living together) and how to deal with all of the big and small decisions in life as a couple.

4. Wrote two additional books "Beyond the Lemonade Stand" and "You're Hired: How to Succeed in Business and Life from the Winner of The Apprentice."

The first book helps parents prepare their children for financial success by starting them to learn about money and business at an early age.

The second book deals with the hard-earned lessons about life and business that Bill learned for himself and insights shared by people in his life whose opinion he trusts.

5. Successful in real estate even during down-turns in the market. He is savvy in knowing what properties to buy, when to buy them and then how to turn them into a highly profitable venture when he sells them.

For instance, he and his wife bought an unfinished 12,000 square foot mansion for $1.56 million. Three months after they remodeled it and moved in, they sold it for $4.6 million! (Not a bad profit for less than a year's work!)

Chris Gardner: Male Role Model

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

His Role Model Traits

[image: Chris Gardner - Male role model]

Chris Gardner, whose remarkable story was portrayed by Will Smith in the award-winning blockbuster, “The Pursuit of Happyness,” started out with a life that by no means spelled future success. Yet, with extraordinary courage, a positive attitude, tenacity and resourcefulness, he became the type of man whom any modern man could look to as a role model.

Tenacious â□□ Despite his lack of education and resources, he persevered until he achieved his goal to be a successful stockbroker.

Resourceful â□□ Even though he was working in a somewhat promising sales job, he was often homeless as he started on his road to riches. Since he had his young son to care for, he always made sure to find a place for them to spend the night.

Today, his son doesn’t recall feeling homeless. Rather he says he just remembers that they moved around a lot and his father made it an adventure.

Philanthropist â□□ Remembering what it was like when he was starting out and was broke and desperate, he makes it his mission to help others who are less fortunate so that they too can achieve their own success.

He helped fund a project that provides housing and employment opportunities in the area of the city that he was once homeless in.

Devoted Father â□□ Because Chris’ father left him as a small child, he vowed that he would never abandon his children. He took sole custody of his son and daughter when he divorced their mothers.

His Story

Chris Gardner’s early life was marked by poverty, abuse, abandonment, family illiteracy and alcoholism.

However, because of Chris’ desperate situation (his father abandoned him and his siblings at a young age, his mother was arrested on several occasions and he was often placed in foster care), his mother taught him that he had to become self-reliant. He quotes her as saying, “You can only depend on yourself. The cavalry ain’t coming.”

Without any positive male role models in his life, Chris could have easily followed his family’s unfortunate pattern of poverty and problems. However, he was determined to seek a better life for himself and ultimately his family. While it wasn’t always a straight path, Chris had big dreams and was determined to pursue them.

When he left high school and wanted adventure, he joined the United States Navy. While in the service, he met a respected cardiologist, Dr. Robert Ellis, who offered him a position assisting him in clinical research.

When he ended his four-year stint in the Navy, Chris moved to San Francisco to work with Dr. Ellis and learned how to manage a laboratory and perform some basic surgical procedures. He even co-authored several articles with Dr. Ellis that were published in medical journals.

Chris decided that he wanted to become a successful doctor. However, when he realized that he would need to spend another ten years training and tens of thousands of dollars he didn't have to become a doctor, he decided that it was an unrealistic goal.

His marriage to his new bride began to fall apart when he told her that heâd given up on his dreams of becoming a doctor. Soon enough, he began having an affair that resulted in him fathering an out-of-wedlock son, Christopher Medina Gardner, Jr. The affair ended his marriage and he went to live with his mistress to help raise their son.

Chris continued to work as a lab technician, but with his small salary the couple had difficulty making ends meet. Chris then set about taking a slightly more lucrative job selling medical equipment.

One day, while out making sales calls, he spotted a well-dressed man parking his red Ferrari. He stopped the man and asked him how he got so rich.

The man told him that he was a stockbroker and from that moment on, Chris knew that he'd found his career path. He then asked Bob Bridges, the owner of the sports car, how he could become a stockbroker. Bob took Chris under his wing and introduced him to many people in the business and set up interviews for him with brokerage companies that had training programs.

The numerous interviews kept Chris from being able to keep appointments to sell his medical equipment and that drastically impacted his salary (and he simultaneously managed to rack up numerous parking tickets while he was out doing interviews and making sales calls).

Eventually he landed a trainee position with a major brokerage house and quit his sales job so he could work at his stockbroker training full time. But just when it seemed that Chris was finally going to be back on the road to success, he hit several major obstacles.

On the day he was scheduled to begin his training program, he learned that the man who had hired him had been fired. Chris was once again without a job.

His relationship with his mistress was going badly and she (allegedly falsely) accused him of beating her and he was arrested and taken to jail. In court, the judge dismissed the abuse charges but sentenced him to ten days in jail for not being able to afford to pay the $1,200 he had accrued in parking tickets.

When Chris returned home from jail, he found that his mistress, his son, and all of his possessions (including his clothes) were gone and she had moved to the East Coast. Chris was devastated.

Not willing to give up on yet another big dream, Chris went to one more brokerage house (in the casual clothes he was wearing when he was arrested) and was so persuasive that he convinced them to give him a stockbroker trainee job (with a very small salary that didn't allow him to pay for most of his living expenses).

He was determined to be the best stockbroker candidate that he could be. He came to the office early, stayed late, made hundreds of cold calls to strangers each day and eventually worked his way up to being their top trainee. When he passed his difficult securities licensing test on the first try, they offered him a full-time position.

Whether it's meeting a girl, getting a job or trying any number of pursuits, you can come up with numerous excuses about why you won't be able to succeed.

If you're like Chris and are determined enough and show enough drive and confidence, you'll eventually be able to convince others that you should be given a chance. Then it's up to you to prove that their trust in you was well deserved.

Still, as a beginner, his salary and commission schedule was extremely small and he was forced to live in a run-down rooming house. Then four months later, his mistress returned and gave him full custody of their son. While Chris was thrilled to have his young son back with him, his landlord didn't allow children and he was forced to move out. In the movie, "The Pursuit of Happyness," for dramatic dialogue purposes, Chris' son was portrayed as a five-year-old. In reality, Chris' son was only a toddler.

Without enough income to afford a traditional apartment, Chris and his son had to stay in abandoned buildings, low-rent rooming houses (often called flophouses), churches, after hours in his office in the after hours, shelters and even a locked toilet in a train station.

So that he could still work, Chris was often forced to leave his son with virtual strangers, and when he could afford it, he put Chris, Jr. in a child care facility called "Happyness" (which explains the odd spelling of the word "happiness" in the title of Chris' book and the movie). Leaving his son each day was the hardest thing he had to do.

No one at work realized that Chris was homeless and he was too proud to let them know. Yet, despite his desperate situation, Chris persisted and became such a successful stockbroker that he was ultimately recruited and hired by another firm. By then, he was able to afford proper housing for him and his son.

Four years later, Chris formed his own brokerage firm, Gardner Rich & Co., in Chicago with a $10,000 investment and one piece of furniture (a desk that doubled as a work space and dining table). His ultimate goal to be the best at something was finally coming true.

He worked very hard to build his firm and it paid off...big time. He eventually became a multi-millionaire when he sold his shares in his firm and then he went off to pursue his next dream which was to start Christopher Gardner International Holdings with offices in New York, San Francisco and Chicago.

News of his "rags to riches" success story led him to be interviewed on the highly-rated American televised news magazine "20/20." This exposure attracted much media and public attention. Chris then realized that his story could possibly help others who also found themselves in difficult situations.

It was then that he wrote the best-selling book, "The Pursuit of Happyness." The success of the book and more media attention led the book to be made into a movie of the same name. Notably, Chris didn't attend the premiere of his own life story because he felt it was more important to give an inspirational speech to a group in Wisconsin.

As a multi-millionaire Chris has turned his attention to more philanthropic pursuits that combine his knowledge of finance and his great desire to help others like him who have found themselves in financial straits.

He and his firm have raised money to build low income housing, provide career counseling and job placement services and even offer job training for the homeless and poor in at-risk communities in Chicago. Interestingly, because he understands the importance of proper attire for job interviews, he donates clothing and shoes to numerous homeless shelters.

He has gone to Africa to help create training and finance programs for the poor and he travels the world as a popular and well-paid motivational speaker.

His Achievements

- Received an Image Award from the NAACP and a Humanitarian Award from the Los Angeles Commission on Assaults Against Women.
- Worked with Nelson Mandela and received The Continental Africa Chamber of Commerce's Friends of Africa Award.
- Recognized by innumerable charitable and business organizations around the world.
- A popular guest on news and talk shows. Chris has also been interviewed by countless newspapers and magazines from around the world.
- Written two books about his experiences and his advice to help others like him â□□ "The Pursuit of Happyness" and "Start Where You Are: Life Lessons in Getting from Where You Are to Where to You Want to Be."
- Served as an Associate Producer on the film about his life, "The Pursuit of Happyness" starring Will Smith.
- Bought a black Ferrari from legendary basketball player Michael Jordan. Chris had customized license plates made that read "NOT MJ."

Aron Ralston: Male Role Model

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

[image: Aron Ralston - Male role model]

His Role Model Traits

Aron Ralston, the man that the Hollywood movie “127 hours” is based on, rose up to become a role model for modern men after his harrowing ordeal of being left for dead in a rock crevice in the middle of nowhere. His strength after his nightmare experience in the desert has shown what kind of man he really is.

Brave beyond measure – When his arm was pinned down by a fallen boulder in a rock crevice in the middle of nowhere, Aron eventually decided to cut off his arm and get to safety before he died.

How many of us men would have the bravery exhibited by Aron Ralston during his ordeal to survive at all costs? Most men would have just given up and reluctantly died rather than be willing to do something as horrific as breaking their own bones and using a crude instrument to painfully amputate their own arm.

Aron not only did that, but he then had the courage to climb out of the almost impassable canyons and rock walls, using only one of his arms, in an attempt to travel the several miles to his car and then get to a hospital.

Traits such as bravery, masculinity, confidence and emotional strength are things that women find very attractive in men. Unlike us men who select women purely based on looks, most women select men based on certain personality traits and behaviors that have nothing to do with a guy’s looks.

Masculinity – While many men would have developed a “pity me” attitude after such a horrific experience, Aron never lets his physical limitations stop him from doing what he loves – exploring the great outdoors.

He also didn’t let the fact that he was disfigured by his accident to stop him from pursuing, falling in love and marrying a woman he met years after his accident and eventually becoming a father to a son. This is key trait of an effective alpha male.

Adventurous – Aron has spent much of his life exploring the great wildernesses of the world while rock climbing, skiing, and hiking and often going solo on his journeys despite his new handicap. Although he is naturally shy, he also now travels the world as a motivational speaker.

Determined – Instead of allowing his understandable panic to paralyze him when he was trapped, Aron fought through his fears and did what was necessary to save his life. While most men won’t ever find themselves in a situation as life-threatening as Aron did on that fateful day, we can all learn from this excellent male role model.

When we are faced with a difficult situation, the only thing that matters is getting the result we need to succeed. Everything else is just “details” while you are getting there. Focus on the end result and go after what you want.

Humble – While recovering in the Intensive Care Unit of the hospital, Aron was watching CNN and saw that they were reporting on the remarkable ordeal of a rock climber who cut off his arm to save himself.

He didn't immediately associate the story with himself and when he realized that there was national and international coverage of his own story, he couldn't understand why it was newsworthy.

His Story

Aron Ralston is a seemingly ordinary man with an extraordinary spirit whose love of the outdoors and rock climbing led him to face one of the most harrowing and death-defying experiences any man could ever experience.

His story became the basis of his book "Between a Rock and a Hard Place", which was so compelling that it was eventually turned into the award-winning movie "127 Hours" starring James Franco.

Growing up in Colorado, Aron Ralston always had a love of adventure. Although he was an honor student at a prestigious university and studied to be a mechanical engineer, he gave up that career path and chose to make it his mission to climb and explore mountains.

On a fateful day in April, 2003, he decided to investigate the Blue John Canyon in eastern Utah.

When he initially set off on his afternoon hike, he brought along only some bare essentials â a few bottles of water, some energy bars, rope, a small video camera and an inexpensive pocket multi-purpose pocket tool (the type of tool that looks like an elaborate pocket knife with a screw driver, small knife, pliers and similar attachments).

Miles away from his car and the cell phone he left there, he decided to explore a crevice he'd read about in a guide book. Unfortunately the experienced climber slipped and during his fall, he dislodged a giant boulder that subsequently pinned his right arm down and pressed his body against the narrow canyon wall.

Unable to dislodge his arm no matter how much he struggled and yanked at it, he suddenly remembered his fateful mistake of not informing anyone of his hiking plans. He wasn't expected to be back at work for several days, so no one would realize he was missing. He had to work out how to rescue himself.

Despite his repeated efforts over a couple of days, he could not move the enormous boulder. Throughout scorching days and freezing nights he used his pocket tool to try and chip away at the rock to free himself, but his efforts were futile and hardly had any effect on the boulder.

His supplies were also rapidly running out. Feeling a little desperate and almost conceding that he may in fact die, he used his video recorder to document his plight and to supply his family's contact information in the hopes that if his efforts to free himself were unsuccessful and if his lifeless body was ever found, his family would learn of his fate.

On the fifth day of his captivity, dehydrated and delirious, he continued to chip away at the rock with his now dull and bent knife. During the process, his knife slipped and painlessly sliced into his thumb. He realized that his arm was rapidly decomposing and that his only hope to free himself and survive was to amputate his arm just below his elbow.

Again, using his pocket tool and through the searing pain he attempted to cut off his arm. Recognizing that he wouldn't be able to cut through his bones, he made the agonizing decision to break the bones of his pinned arm and then cut through the skin.

He painfully and repeatedly broke multiple bones and continued through the excruciating process of cutting and freeing himself until he was no longer pinned by the rock.

He then painfully worked his way back up through the crevice with one arm cut off and bleeding and was eventually able to climb out of the canyon.

Six hours after he amputated his arm, still weak and in tremendous pain, he happened upon a tourist family from the Netherlands on the way to his car. They applied minimal first aid and found help to have him airlifted to a hospital where he spent months recovering and was ultimately fitted for a prosthetic arm.

His Achievements

- Returned to the site of his accident more than a dozen times and had the courage to document his story by mentally reliving it for both his book “Between a Rock and a Hard Space” and the movie “127 Hours.”
- Became the first person to scale all 53 of Colorado’s majestic mountains. He has now also skied down massive mountain summits and continues to find other international outdoor adventures to experience, despite his handicap.
- Married in 2009 and became the father to a son in 2010.
- Has become a celebrated motivational speaker and travels internationally telling his remarkable story.

Daniel “Rudy” Ruettinger: Male Role Model

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

His Role Model Traits

[image: Daniel "Rudy" Ruettinger - Male role model]

Daniel “Rudy” Ruettinger, the subject of the popular movie, “Rudy” starring Sean Astin, offers modern men lessons about the 4 C’s he lives by – commitment, character, courage and contribution.

Commitment – Despite being told time and again that he could never be accepted as a Notre Dame student due to his poor grades (much less become a member of their football team because of his small size), Rudy never let anyone or anything stop him from achieving his dream.

In the end he succeeded and showed the world and other men that no matter what limitations others place on you, your life is in your hands and you can achieve what you dream of.

Character – Rudy’s dreams didn’t end on the football field at Notre Dame. He believed that his story could inspire others so he worked for a decade to learn what he needed to know about the movie business and kept knocking on doors and telling his story until Hollywood made a movie about his life.

Courage – Rudy Ruettinger had been literally knocked down hundreds of times on the football field leaving him bloodied and bruised. Yet, each time he was knocked down – often by much larger players – he kept getting up and fighting back. This is a clear example that you don’t need to be a big man “physically” to be an alpha male.

Contribution – Rudy continues to help others achieve their goals through his speeches, training seminars, interviews and scholarship programs.

[tab:His story]

Most men who have seen the movie “Rudy” starring Sean Astin think that Daniel “Rudy” Ruettinger is a great role model because of the story that was told about him in the film – but they would only be partially correct.

Rudy Ruettinger has devoted his life to being the best man he can be and that pursuit didn’t stop after his teammates carried him off the field after his Notre Dame victory.

The film “Rudy” depicts the life of Daniel “Rudy” Ruettinger and how he grew up the third child of 14 in a lower middle-income family.

It shows that Rudy was a below-average student who left high school, served in the military and then went to work in a blue collar job. However, when an industrial accident killed his best friend, Rudy began to re-evaluate his life and decided to do everything he could to finally achieve his life’s goals.

The thing that Rudy wanted most was to attend the University of Notre Dame and play on their football team. However, his academic history wouldn’t qualify him to meet Notre Dame’s high scholastic standards. In fact, he was barely able to get into a local junior college.

Despite almost everyone trying to dissuade him from his pursuit; he continued to try to get admitted into Notre Dame.

His poor grades weren't because Rudy wasn't smart; it was because he had a learning disability that was only discovered after he was tested in junior college. Once he understood the problem, Rudy worked with tutors and professionals to rise above his dyslexia (a manageable, but currently incurable learning disability) to make himself a more viable candidate for the prestigious university.

With great determination, he improved his grades, added community service to his resume and continued to apply to Notre Dame until he was finally accepted as a student in his junior year.

Whether your problems in life have been of your own making or were circumstances that were out of your control, you can't change your past. But with confidence, commitment, character, courage and contribution, you can change what your future will be if you want it badly enough and if you are willing to work hard enough to make those changes. Look to Rudy as a classic example of that.

Being accepted to Notre Dame as a student was only part of Rudy's dream. He and his family were lifelong fans of the Notre Dame football team and it was Rudy's greatest desire to play for the "Fighting Irish." But at 5'7 and 185 lbs., Rudy was tiny in comparison to the other football players. Still, when they had open tryouts, Rudy gave it his best effort to show that he could be an asset to the team.

His determination, persistence and "heart" eventually won over the coaches and they agreed to let Rudy be a part of the team's practice squad. In short, he was often a human tackle dummy that was hit again and again leaving him bruised and battered, but he never gave up. He felt it was his contribution on the practice team that would let the varsity players do their best in the real games.

Despite the depiction in the movie where Head Coach Dan Devine had to be dramatically persuaded by other team members to let Rudy suit up, Coach Devine says he always had planned to let Rudy run onto the field in the last game, if only to stand on the sidelines.

He was then encouraged by one of the other coaches to let Rudy actually play in the game (the only way he could be acknowledged as an official member of the Notre Dame team). And when Rudy was given the opportunity to play, he knew his dream was coming true.

In the final 27 seconds of the game, Rudy mustered all of his strength and determination and tackled the Georgia Tech quarterback and helped his team to victory.

When he made the tackle and the team won and he was carried off the field amid cheers of "Rudy! Rudy!" his former teammate (who isn't depicted in the film), legendary quarterback Joe Montana, said in an interview years later, "Oh, the guys just went crazy on the sideline. I mean, it was like we had won the national championship almost. I mean, that's howâ€¦how excited everybody was for him."

But after being carried off the field, Rudy realized that with these dreams fulfilled, he needed to find his life's next dream. And that dream was to have his story told on film.

Too many men only have one or two short term goals for their life, which end up leaving them confused, lost and depressed when they reach them.

Whether it's to attract a girl you like or to be hired for a particular job, once they achieve what they set out to do, they stop dreaming and they give up on becoming and achieving even more in life.

If you want your life to have true purpose and happiness, you must always strive to do better and achieve more. You should always endeavor to be the best man you can be for yourself, your family, your woman and your community and never settle for anything less.

With no experience in the movie business, but highly determined to see his story on the big screen, he used the success of movies like “Rocky” and “The Field of Dreams” as inspiration to propel him forward.

Rudy went to Los Angeles, hung out where he heard film producers were, read the trade papers, networked and told his story to virtually anyone who would listen. For the most part, while people liked his story, they never would commit to making a film about it.

Each time he was turned down, it made him stronger and more focused and after ten years of being rejected, he was finally able to convince a producer to make a film about his accomplishments in life. It was that same dedication and commitment to see his dream come true of getting into Notre Dame and playing for the “Fighting Irish” that helped him to eventually succeed once again.

What are your dreams? How much determination do you have to see them come true? What are you willing to do to achieve your goal? How soon will you give up if you don’t see success quickly? If you are a man like Rudy, you will believe in yourself and know that you will eventually succeed, letting nothing and no one stop you from getting to where you want to be.

With the success of the film “Rudy,” which is as much a story about determination and inspiration as it is about sports, the real Rudy received much media attention and public interest.

Rudy turned those opportunities into a book, a career as a well-paid motivational speaker, and he also started a foundation and scholarship program to assist other worthwhile individuals to achieve their dreams. Today, Rudy continues to inspire people everywhere he goes.

Here’s what he had to say about dreams and the excuses many men give about why they don’t achieve their goals.

“What we’re really talking about here is commitment. Until you make a commitment to your dream, it’s not really a dream â□□ it’s just another fantasy full of excuses. Fantasies don’t come true because they’re not real; we’re not committed to them. When we make commitments, we eliminate excuses and they become dreams and dreams are definitely real.”

His Achievements

- Founded the Rudy Foundation with his wife to help other young “Rudys” to achieve their goals.
- Is the author of “Rudy’s Lessons for Young Champions.” A portion of the sale of his book goes to the Rudy Foundation and the Rebecca Wolfe Atkinson Fund for Diabetes.
- Acted as technical advisor on the film “Rudy” and appears as an extra in a scene at the stadium behind Ned Beatty who was cast as Rudy’s father.
- Was invited to the White House to watch “Rudy” with President Clinton, Colin Powell and Joe Montana.
- Travels the United States as a successful motivational speaker and has often shared the stage with former President George Bush, Super Bowl champion Joe Montana, inspirational guru Zig Zigler, the late actor Christopher Reeve and other notable men.
- Has been honored by the White House and President George Bush, received the Distinguished American Award, been awarded with proclamations from numerous U.S. cities and has been inducted into the National Speakers Hall of Fame.

Ryan Seacrest: Male Role Model

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Role Model Traits

[image: Ryan Seacrest - Male role model]

Most people think of Ryan Seacrest as a man who got lucky when he became an overnight sensation after he landed the job as host of “American Idol.” In reality, he’d been preparing for success most of his life.

Resourceful â□□ Throughout his life, Ryan had been complimented on the sound and quality of his voice. Recognizing this asset at an early age, he proactively sought out opportunities to use that talent to help him become successful.

Easy-Going & Charming Personality â□□ Although he started out as a co-host along with comedian Brian Dunkelman in the first season of American Idol, his easy-going personality and charm allowed him to effortlessly relate to the contestants, audience and judges and to then become the show’s only host from the second season on.

Confident â□□ While many people feared former “Idol” head judge, Simon Cowell, Ryan was always willing to go toe-to-toe with the often cranky and opinionated judge when he felt Simon had come down on a singer too harshly.

However, he almost always did it in a way that wasn’t too confrontational, but rather witty and relaxed. Cowell would quickly calm down and the contestants and audience would be spared from a potentially nasty verbal fight between Cowell and Seacrest.

Hard-Working â□□ In addition to his duties as the host of “American Idol,” Ryan also has developed his own successful television production company (Ryan Seacrest Productions) and hosts other highly successful TV and radio shows.

Charitable â□□ Along with his diverse philanthropic efforts, Ryan uses his influence as a popular spokesman to negotiate with major corporations to help sponsor his favorite charity, “Operation Smile,” which provides dental services to children in third world countries.

Great conversationalist and communicator – not only has he been able to host TV shows and radio shows, but is also a great interviewer when the time calls for it. If you’ve ever overheard him talking to women at parties or events, you will have noticed that he definitely knows how to put on the charm and attract women when he wants to.

Story

Most people became aware of Ryan Seacrest when “American Idol” became such a huge international hit, but his huge success as a public personality didn’t come overnight. His path on the road to fame and fortune can help you as a modern man to find your own road to success in whatever field you work or aspire to be in.

From an early age, Ryan was told how pleasant the sound of his voice was and he recognized that this was a talent that could one day prove profitable. (Each of us has a talent. You just have to find yours and decide how you're going to use it to your advantage).

So instead of playing with toys as a kid, Ryan began practicing with a microphone and was eventually asked to make announcements over the loudspeaker at his high school. Then, at age 16, he worked his way to obtaining a much-sought-after internship at a local radio station in Atlanta.

Ryan sought out the mentorship of a disc jockey veteran at the station who taught him a number of aspects of the radio business. He quickly excelled at all that he was being taught and one night when one of the regular hosts called in sick, Ryan was given the opportunity to fill in for him.

By the next day the station's managers, realizing that Ryan showed a lot of potential, decided to give him his own weekend radio show.

Finding a mentor to help you learn the ropes is always an excellent tool for getting ahead in any field. Most successful men are generally more than willing to help the next guy scale his own ladder to success. Find a mentor or two to help you learn what it takes to be successful in whatever endeavor you wish to pursue.

When you reach the top, consider helping someone lower on their success ladder to climb up and reach their goals. Helping someone doesn't diminish you nor does asking for help make you appear needy. In the end, this type of collaboration will make you both stronger.

While he initially went to college to study journalism and was keeping his options open, Ryan soon realized that he was gaining popularity and notoriety in the business so he decided to move from Georgia to Hollywood to find bigger avenues for success.

By the time he was 20 he landed a job with a highly-rated Los Angeles radio station and hosted his own program, "Ryan Seacrest for the Ride Home." The show rapidly became the station's number one program and was eventually nationally syndicated. He then decided that the television industry was the next step he should take in his climb to entertainment industry success.

Soon, Seacrest was hosting several television programs for the American cable sports network ESPN and eventually moved to NBC where he hosted several shows before being asked by TNN, then a new cable network, to host one of their original programs. All the while, Ryan maintained his work as host on his radio programs which led to even more TV projects. While not all of the TV shows were a ratings success and several were quickly cancelled, Ryan's status in the industry continued to grow.

When the new singing talent show, "American Idol," was looking for a likeable co-host to work with comedian Brian Dunkleman, they quickly hired Ryan Seacrest to be one of the main "faces" of the show. Ryan came off to the audience and contestants as being relaxed, confident, warm and relatable while Dunkleman (who quit the show after the first season amid rumors that he was going to be fired) appeared ill-at-ease and looked as if he wished he was anywhere but on the "Idol" stage.

Dunkleman has since gone on to say that leaving "American Idol" was "the biggest mistake in the history of show business." As "American Idol" took off and became a ratings blockbuster, so did Ryan's status as a rising star.

His hosting abilities were soon being desperately sought by other shows and he later signed an initial three-year, $21 million deal with the E! Network to co-host their daily evening entertainment news program and red carpet coverage of major award shows alongside Bill Rancie's wife, Giuliana (DePandi) Rancie.

Other TV hosting jobs also came his way including “Rockin’ New Year’s Eve with Dick Clark Hosted by Ryan Seacrest” (where he also acts as executive producer), a “Walt Disney World Christmas Day Parade,” a Daytime Emmy Awards broadcast and many others.

Ryan also became the new host of the internationally syndicated weekly countdown radio show, “American Top 40” (created and formerly hosted by the iconic and early Seacrest idol, Casey Kasem) and he also replaced Los Angeles radio legend, Rick Dees, to host the renamed “On Air with Ryan Seacrest” radio program.

On the later show, Seacrest not only acts as host of this internationally-syndicated show, but he also works as an executive producer. If his hosting days ever come to an end, he can still produce quality shows and continue to build on his fame and fortune.

Now that you know Ryan Seacrest’s story, you can see that his success wasn’t just luck. He worked hard to build his brand and continues to work toward creating his own career destiny. Take a few minutes to think about your own natural talents and start carving out your own path to a rewarding career and life.

Achievements

- Formed Ryan Seacrest Productions (RSP), which has produced original TV shows such as “Denise Richards’s It’s Complicated” following the life of the actress (Charlie Sheen’s ex), “Keeping Up with the Kardashians,” “Jamie Oliver’s Food Revolution” and several other series and televised specials.
- Works as the spokesman for Crest and Scope dental hygiene products. Ryan has worked out a deal with Scope so that they will match any funds he raises for his favorite charity “Operation Smile,” which provides poor children throughout the world with proper dental care.
- A partner with major corporations such as Microsoft, Proctor and Gamble, Coke and others on a series of significant projects.
- Signed a $45 million deal with “American Idol” to continue his hosting duties and earns tens of millions from other projects and contracts.
- Although he’s often called “one of the hardest working men in show business,” he still finds time to maintain a thriving romance with former “Dancing with the Stars” dance professional/choreographer and multi-season champion and now award-winning country singer and beauty, Julianne Hough.

John Walsh: Male Role Model

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Role Model Traits

[image: John Walsh - Male role model]

John Walsh took an unspeakable tragedy and turned it into hope and justice for others following the abduction and murder of his young son Adam. How he reacted to this life-altering path defines lessons of loyalty, devotion and leadership that many modern men can learn from.

Loyal â□□ When there was some media and public criticism and talk of parental irresponsibility for John's wife, RevÃ©, who allowed six-year-old Adam to play in a department store's toy section where he was abducted while she briefly shopped several aisles away, John quickly and publicly came to his wife's defense.

Family Man â□□ Enduring that sort of tragedy causes the vast majority of relationships and marriages to end because the couple can only focus on their grief and loss. Conversely, John and his wife grew even closer and chose to have three more much-loved children.

Leader â□□ Rather than allowing himself to be swallowed up by his grief, instead John became a leading activist for change regarding the human rights of missing and exploited children.

Being a leader in any way at any time is one of the many personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women. You don't have to be the biggest leader in the world or boss people around; you just need to have the balls to lead as often as you can.

Emotional Strength â□□ Although it was obvious that John and his wife were desperate to find their son, John held himself together emotionally enough to work with law enforcement to give them the help they needed and hounded the media to cover the story so that his son could be found.

His Story

John Walsh never set out to be a leading human rights activist. He was a successful, upper-middle class hotel developer with a career on the rise. But on a fateful day in July, 1981, his six-year-old son, Adam, was kidnapped and murdered. That day, his life changed forever.

In a quiet suburban area in South Florida, John Walsh's wife, RevÃ©, took Adam for a quick trip to a local department store. As was common practice with parents and children in those more innocent times, she allowed Adam to play in the toy department while she briefly picked up some household items several aisles away. When she went to look for Adam a few minutes later, he had disappeared.

The Hollywood, Florida local police department immediately stepped in and began looking for Adam and his abductor. However, since they had never encountered a kidnapping case like this, they lacked the adequate skills and resources needed to find Adam.

Not willing to let the local law enforcement agency's inexperience hinder the search, John stepped up and used all of his clout with influential friends and local businesses to help find Adam. With much prodding from John, the kidnapping was picked up by the local media and he then pushed even further until it received national coverage.

Two weeks later, just as John and his wife were getting ready to be interviewed about the kidnapping on a national morning talk show, they were told that Adam's severed head had been found more than a hundred miles from his home and the grieving process began anew.

Thousands of letters began pouring into the Walsh family home, offering sympathy or sharing their own story of loss or abduction. While John struggled with his grief and watched his thriving business begin to fail, his wife began reading the letters for comfort.

She told John about the letters and that there were many other abduction victims whose stories weren't being told and that they needed someone like John to take up their cause.

John then decided to expand his knowledge and build on the political, media and law enforcement contacts he had acquired while searching for Adam to not only continue to search for Adam's killer but to try to help other families.

He recognized that too many families were desperate, but didn't have his resources or inner strength that John and his wife has developed to help find their loved ones. He chose to step up and become their advocate.

In the garage of their home, John and his wife founded the Adam Walsh Child Resource Center, a non-profit organization dedicated to legislative reform. Later, John worked with the NBC network to produce docudramas about the Walsh's story â□â□ "Adam" and several years later, "Adam: His Song Continues."

The movies helped to raise public awareness of the widespread and growing problem of missing and exploited children and also led to legislative changes. At the end of the movies, photos were shown of missing children and 66 of them were recognized by viewers who called their law enforcement agencies and the missing children were returned home. What an achievement!

John and his wife's efforts in this area helped to pass the Missing Children's Act of 1982 and the Missing Children's Assistance Act of 1984.

The latter bill founded the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, which maintains a toll-free hotline to report missing or exploited children or the sighting of a lost/abducted child. The Adam Walsh Child Resource Center eventually merged with the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children where John serves on its Board of Directors.

If you have a cause that you are passionate about, don't let your voice end at the voting booth or think that you as a sole individual are powerless. Visit your local representatives, start public campaigns and do whatever you can to seek changes to those things that you believe need reform.

John's proactive stance and his campaign to help families like his gave him much national media exposure and when ABC was planning to produce "America's Most Wanted," to find criminals and missing persons, they sought John Walsh as their host.

With John at the helm of the highly-rated show, more than 1,100 international criminals from more than 35 countries have been brought to justice and more than 50 children have been reunited with their families. Yet, John and the show have achieved even more.

Due to the media coverage John garnered and the public campaigns he started to aid victims, punish their attackers and bring to justice other child predators, stronger legislative acts have been passed and signed into law. The world has become a safer place because of his efforts, because countries around the world are following the lead of what John has achieved in America.

John has also created plans to help law enforcement agencies both nationally and internationally to work together to help arrest criminals and find missing children.

Twenty five years to the date of Adam's abduction, at a ceremony at the White House attended by John and his family, then-President George W. Bush signed the toughest legislation in history aimed to track and apprehend convicted sex offenders who disappear after their prison release — the Adam Walsh Child Protection and Safety Act — into law.

John has written three books, is one of the most highly-decorated citizens to ever be honored by law enforcement agencies and continues to fight to find justice for missing and exploited children and adults around the world.

Achievements

- Has written three best-selling books, "Tears of Rage: From Grieving Father to Crusader For Justice: The Untold Story of the Adam Walsh Case," "No Mercy" and "Public Enemies," which talk about his family's story and the toughest "America's Most Wanted" cases he's worked on.
- Honored five times by four U.S. Presidents for his work in criminal justice and for fighting for tighter legislation on child advocacy laws.
- Named "Man of the Year" by numerous law enforcement agencies throughout the world including the U.S. Marshals Office and the FBI citing his work to pass stronger laws and his help in capturing criminals.
- Named as an honorary U.S. Marshal. This is a distinct accomplishment in that he is only the third non-law enforcement citizen in the agency's 200-plus year history to receive such an honor.

George Clooney: Male Role Model

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Role Model Traits

[image: George Clooney - Male role model]

George Clooney has always felt that his fame has given him an opportunity to use his good fortune to help others.

There are many lessons that a modern man can learn from George about loyalty honesty, compassion and how a positive attitude can help you achieve success and more.

Clooney is also famous for being a charming, flirtatious man. He is now married to Amal Alamuddin (now Amal Clooney) and he hasn't lost his flirtatious charm whenever being interviewed by women.

I reference him as an example in this video about flirting...

Loyal â□□ While George has certainly made a number of close friends with other big name celebrities during his career, the men he still considers his best friends are the guys he hung out with when he first moved to Los Angeles and was starting out as a struggling actor.

Honest â□□ He has repeatedly stated and is completely open with the women he dates that he has no intention of ever marrying again (he had a short-lived marriage to actress Talia Balsam) nor does he wish to father children.

Compassionate â□□ Whenever there is a major disaster or massive civil unrest (Darfur, Hurricane Katrina, Haiti, tsunamis, etc.), you will usually find George front and center to lead or participate in fundraising or global humanitarian relief efforts.

Humble â□□ While much is often made of his good looks and effortless, sophisticated charm, George will always deflect any such compliments with self-effacing humor. While he takes his work seriously, he never takes himself seriously.

Dedicated â□□ While shooting "Syriana," he suffered a severe injury to his head, neck and back. Despite his incredible pain, as soon as he was released from the hospital, he returned to the set to complete the film before going through two painful surgeries and a lengthy recovery to repair the damage to his body.

Charming â□□ When George Clooney looks at a woman while talking to her, it is obvious to see that he loves women for what they are. He isn't frustrated by women and all their complexity. He adores them and finds amusement in flirting with them.

It is from this mindset that he is able to â□□put on the charmâ□□ so easily when interacting with women. It seems effortless to him because it is. Compare that to a man who is frustrated by women and can't seem to understand them. Such a man will always be trying to change women into something more logical and â□□workable.â□□ George accepts women for what they are and they love him for that.

His story

The son of a former beauty queen and a respected journalist in Kentucky, George Clooney's life as a youngster was remarkably normal.

His father, a strong proponent for education, would quiz George and his brother about history and current events and even went so far as to have them research and write book reports about the topics he quizzed them on. George believes it was the efforts of his father to make his sons aware of the greater world that has led him to be so socially conscious.

While in high school, George contracted Bells Palsy, a nerve disorder that paralyzed half of his face for months. To deflect the often cruel remarks of his classmates over his deformity, George developed the self-deprecating humor he's still so well known for and deepened his compassion for others who suffer from misfortune.

When his aunt, legendary singer and actress Rosemary Clooney, and his uncle, Oscar-winning actor Jose Ferrer, were in Kentucky filming a movie, George was given the opportunity to work on the film as an extra. It was on that set that the unassuming, but charming youngster caught the acting bug.

Following a boring summer of doing a variety of menial jobs including cutting tobacco, his cousin, actor Miguel Ferrer, suggested that George come to Hollywood to try his hand at acting. With no better options in sight, he jumped at the opportunity.

He initially stayed with his aunt in Hollywood, but after overstaying his welcome, George literally moved into a friend's closet for more than a year while he continued to knock on Hollywood's tightly-closed doors.

One day while riding a bus to yet another audition, George realized that he needed to change his attitude about getting work as an actor. Instead of thinking that the studios would be doing him a favor by hiring him, he thought that they were the ones with a problem; they were the ones who had roles that needed to be cast and he was the man who could fill their needs.

His change of mindset must have worked because he quickly scored acting roles in a number of TV pilots and sitcoms. Eventually, he was cast in his star-making, breakout role as Dr. Doug Ross on the hit series "ER."

This same mindset can be used to land your dream job or dream girl. If you think of yourself as the person that an employer needs to hire and show the confidence that you will be a valuable asset to the company, you'll do better in interviews and will likely get a great job.

The same holds true for meeting women. A woman wants to feel like you are a little bit better than her. She doesn't want to feel like she is doing you a favor by going out with you.

If you approach a beautiful woman with the attitude of, "Hey, I hope you will do me a big favor and go out with me," she probably won't. On the other hand, if you approach her with the state of mind and confidence that you have everything she's looking for in a great date or boyfriend, she's going to be happy that a terrific guy like you entered her life.

The truth is, you're already good enough for most women. Women are just waiting for you to believe that and move things forward to a kiss, sex and a relationship.

George showed a strong work ethic and a loyalty to the series that gave him his big break. With his rapid rise to fame, he was offered a number of lucrative movie roles, however, he chose to act only in those movies he could do in his down time from "ER" until his contract ran out, rather than breaking his TV contract to work full time doing films.

It was the type of move that earned him enormous respect in the industry and with producers who were willing to wait until he was available because they knew he'd be as loyal to them as he had been to the producers of ER.

Too many people complain about the work they have to do, rather than doing their best at the job they have. With a positive attitude about the job you were hired to do and a great work ethic, people will take notice and will be more likely to think of you for other job opportunities and a larger paycheck.

George's acting career continues to thrive and he's also taken on the role of producer, director and/or screenwriter for several critically-acclaimed films. However, it is not simply his talent that necessarily makes George such a good role model for men.

It is what he does with his celebrity status that makes him special. Whenever a catastrophe hits home in the United States or takes place a world away, you will often find George Clooney using his clout to organize and/or support fundraisers for the victims of tragedies such as the genocide in Darfur, Hurricane Katrina, the Haitian earthquake, tsunamis and many other natural and man-made disasters. When he thinks he can help, he'll often head to the site and see if there's anything he can do or he will use his influence to bring additional help or exposure to a problem, even if heading to a location can be a risk to his own life.

No one is saying you should spend all of your time raising money for a good cause or volunteering for every charity out there, but occasionally doing something nice for someone else without wondering about what's in it for you will make you feel good, you'll help someone else out and you'll be an example to others by your mere actions.

Ultimately, while some movie stars will speak out for a cause or simply write a check; George Clooney literally puts his hands where his heart and his social consciousness are. Wouldn't the world would be a better place if we all put ourselves out there, even a little bit to benefit others?

Achievements

1. Organized a celebrity-filled telethon that raised over $129 million for the United Way, following the 9/11 attack.
2. Earned an Academy Award as Best Supporting Actor for his role in "Syriana," and was nominated for his directorial role in "Good Night, and Good Luck" in which he also acted and co-wrote.
3. Went to Darfur with his father (whom he calls his hero and role model) to make a documentary about that country's genocide. He then used his celebrity to go on talk shows to show footage of the film to raise international awareness of the victims' plight.

This led him to be asked to speak before the United Nations Security Council about the human toll in Darfur. Going a step further, he and several other celebrities including Don Cheadle (one of his co-stars in the "Oceans 11" trilogy) formed a non-profit organization called "Not on Our Watch" to further aid the victims.

This activism led to him and Cheadle to share a Peace Summit Award at the 8th Annual World Summit of Nobel Peace Prize Laureates in Rome.

4. Officially appointed as a United Nations peace envoy.

5. Honored with a Robert F. Kennedy Center award for Justice and Human Rights.

Ty Pennington: Male Role Model

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Role Model Traits

[image: Ty Pennington - Male role model]

More than being a charismatic carpenter and designer, Ty Pennington has turned his talents and personal challenges into opportunities to improve the lives of many. Modern men can learn as much about building their own character from Ty as they can learn about building a house.

Passionate and Personable â□□ Ty Pennington's creativity and outgoing personality has led him to fame and fortune, while he simultaneously used his talents and passion to positively affect the lives of others.

Courageous â□□ Dealing with the challenge of being diagnosed with Attention Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD), Ty has taken this potentially negatively life-altering disability and turned it into a positive to help himself and others like him.

Dedicated â□□ While shooting his hit series, "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition," Ty was struck with appendicitis. Recovering from surgery in his hospital bed, he continued to lead his team to complete the rebuilding of two homes.

Accountable â□□ When Ty was arrested for a drink driving incident, he admitted his wrong-doing, apologized, took his punishment like a man and now encourages others not to commit the same mistake he made.

Multi-talented â□□ In addition to his carpentry work, Ty is a popular TV host, spokesman, actor, model, author, entrepreneur and humanitarian.

Goes after what he wants – Have you ever heard a woman say, "I like a man who knows what he wants and isn't afraid to get it?" It's one of the many traits that women seek in men because men who lack confidence in themselves often find it hard to survive, thrive and prosper compared to men who are confident.

Women want to see that you are confident when you first approach them to introduce yourself, confident on a date, confident in a relationship and confident in life. It allows a woman to relax and trust that everything will be okay now that she has met you.

His Story

Born and raised in Atlanta and in nearby Marietta, Georgia, Ty Pennington is a self-taught carpenter and self-described "jack of all trades." His first big construction project as a young boy was to design and build a three-story treehouse in his backyard.

Since his father didn't own any of the necessary tools to build the treehouse, Ty gave his friends his comic books in exchange for them allowing him to use their fathers' tools to build the treehouse. His resourceful spirit showed itself early and in a unique way.

When Ty was 17, he was diagnosed with ADHD (Attention Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder) that could have negatively affected his education, career and life.

Instead, with his family, he fought hard to find treatment that would allow him to concentrate and continue to build his skills and reach his goals. Today he works with foundations, pharmaceutical companies and medical experts that are looking for more ways to help others who are stuck with the same disability.

As an art student in college, Ty realized that he could use his carpentry skills to earn extra money. He recognized that carpentry allowed him to use his creativity, which would in turn enhance his artistic training.

Everyone has a natural ability or one that can be further enhanced through education and a passion for learning. Think about what natural skills you possess that you can use to either supplement your earnings or that you can capitalize on to create your career. Ask yourself, What am I good at? What could I be the best at, or one of the best at?

Most people first became aware of Ty Pennington when he appeared as one of the carpenters on the popular TLC TV series “Trading Spaces.” It was the perfect match for Ty’s personality and imaginative skills.

Outgoing and creative, Ty was often called upon to implement the visions of the show’s interior designers on a very limited budget. While that might be a disadvantage to most craftsmen, Ty looked at it as an opportunity to make use of his inventiveness.

In one episode he used a large, metal salad bowl to make a bathroom sink. Ty, who admits that he’s not the best carpenter in the world (although he’s also stated that he has above average skills) found that the challenges he was presented made him a better craftsman because it forced him to “think outside the box” on a regular basis.

When life throws you a curveball you have two choices. You can look at it as yet another problem you have to deal with or an opportunity to get creative and find a solution that will allow you to succeed anyway. Ty’s ingenuity and his often whacky practical jokes made him an audience favorite and helped him to achieve other opportunities.

When ABC was developing the idea for a show about providing a deserving family with a totally renovated or completely rebuilt home that would be completed in a week, they pegged Ty Pennington to not only host the show and lead the eight-member design team but to also supervise the dozens of other craftsmen needed to complete the task.

“Extreme Makeover: Home Edition” was an instant hit and spawned copycat shows around the Western world.

Ty and his team quickly realized that they were doing more than rebuilding a home; they were rebuilding people’s lives. It was a responsibility that Ty and his crew didn’t take lightly. He has often said that it has made him want to accomplish even more and be able to help more people.

He’s also said he’s always impressed not only by how willing so many companies are willing to donate their products or services to the needy family, but how each community they visit embraces the show’s cast and quickly steps forward to help one of their deserving neighbors.

The show often starts a wave of giving in the communities it visits, bringing companies and people together to seek out others in their community that need their help long after the cameras and cast have moved on.

You don't need a TV show to find neighbors or causes who can benefit from your help. Deserving neighbors or charities are often featured on the evening news, on community websites or in your local paper.

Your time, your physical presence and your willingness to help is often much more appreciated and needed than a monetary donation. So, even if you can't afford to offer a person or a charity some money, use your natural talents and time to help others in person. You will both be rewarded by your actions.

Ty's success with "Extreme Makeover: Home Edition" in the States led him to be asked to host "Ty's Great British Adventure" in the U.K. He has since written two books, created his own magazine, is a highly-paid spokesman for several major corporations, has his own furniture design company and designs home furnishings for several other companies.

When Ty was 12 and built that first treehouse, he probably never imagined how far those skills could take him, but he always dreamed big and was willing to work as hard as was needed to make a great life for himself and others. Where can your dreams and skills take you?

How to Break Up With Your Girlfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Ending a relationship with your girlfriend is often a difficult decision, especially if you have shared true love and enjoyed many great times together.

Break ups can be painful, but that shouldn't make you avoid doing it. Sometimes a break up needs to happen and will be of benefit to you both in the long run.

Imagine if you accidentally get her pregnant and you then have to pay her child support for life, or have to live with her and raise the child, even though you're not in love with her.

Breaking Up a Casual Dating Relationship

If you've only dated a girl a few times, haven't met her family or friends or otherwise are involved in what would be considered casual dating relationship, the break up will be pretty simple.

Just tell her, "I think you're great, but I just don't think this is going to work out. I want us to stop seeing each other because I don't want to lead you on or for us to get more involved in a relationship that is most-likely going to end soon anyway. I wish you well and I'm sure you're going to find a great guy who's right for you."

Keep it short and sweet. If she really likes you, she's most-likely going to offer to give you some space for a while or to remain your friend. Just tell her that you think it's best that you stop seeing each other and if your feelings change in future, you will call her. If not, she should move on.

Breaking Up a Long-Term Relationship

Breaking up a long term relationship is where things get tricky, especially if you want her friends and family to still like you.

You need to be direct about what you want (i.e. for you and her to break up completely), but tell her that you still love her and respect her. Let her know that you have realized that you and her are not a perfect match and you want to break the relationship up now, rather than living a lie.

Tell her that you're willing to be seen as an asshole by her for breaking up the relationship, but you're doing it because you feel it's the right thing to do.

"We Can Stay Friends" Approach

Some guys try to use the, "We can remain friends" approach thinking that it will soften the blow. Yet, it rarely works.

Offering to be her friend simply leaves the door open for a clingy woman to think that there is a chance of reconciliation if she just plays her cards right. She may hope that you just "need a break" and will want her back if she gives you space and takes on the role of a great friend.

If you want the relationship to be over, you need to make a clean break and be firm that you want out of the relationship for good.

You have to be clear and tell her, “I don’t want this to become a messy break up for us both. I care about your feelings and mine and don’t want to give you the impression that I will change my mind.”

She will likely call you a selfish prick for breaking up with her like that and ask how you could be so cold, but really – you’re doing both you and her a favor. If you’re not a compatible match, it’s better to make a clean break than to drag things on for months or years.

The last thing you want is to accidentally get her pregnant and then be stuck with her for life, or to fall back in love with her and then have her break up with you as a way of gaining emotional control over you. If your gut instinct is telling you to break up with her, just do it.

Believe me, you will KNOW when you are truly in love with a woman. When you are in a relationship with a woman that you truly want to be with, you will not be thinking about breaking up with her. Breaking up will seem like the silliest, most irrelevant, unnecessary thing to ever do in the relationship.

So, if you have a persistent feeling that this girl isn’t for you, then she isn’t.

Don’t pretend to want to be her friend and don’t take on the role of her friend. Doing so may lead you back into the relationship if you ever start to feel lonely because you’ve been unable to approach and pick up new women.

Don’t Make Her Hate You

When a guy can’t work up the courage to break up with a woman on his own, he will sometimes begin to behave like an asshole to her. He will treat her badly, make her feel like crap and hope that she breaks up with him.

After helping 100s guys to get their ex back, I have come across many cases where a guy really wanted to break up with a girl, but then drove her away by being an asshole or rejecting her desire for him to commit to marriage or to move in together.

Then, when the woman had enough and broke up with him, he struggled to pick up new women and then began to miss her. She then had all the power and he started begging, pleading and offering the world to come back to him.

To avoid that type of messy outcome, just be a man about it. Tell her that you love her, respect her and think she is beautiful, but you just don’t want to be in a relationship with her. Tell her that you know deep down that you and her shouldn’t be together, even though you’ve had great times in the past.

Tell her that she will probably hate you for a while for breaking up with her, but she will most-likely end up thanking you for breaking up a relationship that needed to end. She may not be able to see that now because it hurts to get broken up with, but she will eventually see it.

Pick the Place

If you think she is going to behave badly (scream, cry, throw things, etc), you should likely pick a place that’s at least semi-public (restaurant, park, or anyplace where there are others around) so she’s less likely to go ballistic and make a scene.

On the other hand, if she is normally composed, then choose a more private space to end it, but preferably not in your apartment because if she doesn't want the break up it will probably take hours to get her out. If she has her own apartment, go there and do it so you can make a fairly easy exit after all is said and done.

Let Her Vent

You're breaking up with her and chances are she's going to have a few nasty things to say to you. As long as she isn't getting violent or overly crazed, let her get what she wants to say off her chest and hear her out. You owe her that much.

She'll probably tell you that you're selfish, that she now hates you, that you'll never find another woman like her, that you're ugly and all those kind of things. That's okay; she needs to vent and she'll likely try to make you feel as insecure as she can so you stick with her.

Just don't take what she is saying seriously because she will be in a highly-emotional state and will probably say many horrible things to you in the heat of the moment.

When she's had a chance to vent, you can say, "I'm sorry for making you feel upset. I understand if you want to see me as an asshole right now, but I really do love you and care about you. I'm going to go now, so if you want to scream at me some more over the phone, I will answer your call and let you vent. If not, I will just hope that you're happy without me."

Modern Day Heroes: Who Are They?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

A modern day hero is someone who fights for a good cause and positive makes a difference in the world.

There are so many things that can be improved about our great world and if you stand up to be the man who can lead the way or at least help lead the way, you will be seen as a modern day hero.

Men who have the capacity to be a hero or who take on the role of the hero, even in subtle ways, often find that women feel an intense and irresistible attraction for them. Why?

Women Love Real Men Who Aren't Afraid to Stand Up and Make a Difference

Way back in 1984, Bonnie Tyler had a hit song titled Holding Out For a Hero that included the lyrics, “Where have all the good men gone...where’s the street-wise Hercules, isn’t there a white knight upon a fiery steed?”

She was singing about the lack of available men of which women refer to as “real men.” The kind of guy that is confident, masculine, makes her feel girly and has the capacity to lead the way, make her feel safe and protect her if need be.

In today’s world, too many guys are afraid to be the man that women want because a lot of the messages we get from TV and movies tell us that women are just fine without us.

For many people, the word hero makes them think of caped crusaders or Hollywood characters with a muscular physique, square jaw line and who spend their days rescuing women from burning buildings or sinking ships.

Yet, is that a modern day hero? Are modern day heroes only found in the movies and is all about saving a woman or saving the world?

Dictionary Definition

To make sure that you are clear on what a hero is supposed to mean, according to the dictionary, let’s have a look at the definition.

Hero (noun): A person, typically a man, who is admired or idealized for courage, outstanding achievements, or noble qualities.

According to the dictionary, men are typically the ones to be referred to as heroes. Being a hero is typically not a woman’s role. Many modern women behave as though they can do everything on their own, but the truth is that they want to feel protected by a man who has the capacity to switch to “hero mode” when the time calls for it.

Heroes Past

Heroes are often associated with battle and conflict. In recent history, heroes of war are the men who displayed bravery above and beyond the call of duty, having selflessly risked their own lives in an effort to save the lives of others.

Andy Rooney, now an old man at 92 years of age, recently spoke on the 60 Minutes program and said, There aren't many heroes these days and there isn't much opportunity to be heroic when we are at peace.

He makes the point that soldiers face daily opportunities to be heroic in times of war and they so often willingly risk their own lives to protect others. He then questions whether the same soldiers would display the same bravery, courage and outright care for others in times of peace.

It's certainly food for thought, and what he's really questioning is why war historically reveals heroes, yet relatively few are ever revealed (or noticed) in everyday life.

Heroes Present

Heroes in the traditional sense may be uncommon today, but the term hero is still commonly used. Movie stars are hailed as heroes, sportsmen are hailed as heroes, and even the electricity-line repair man is hailed a hero if you've been without power for a few hours!

Yet, are any of those men courageous and are any of their achievements outstanding to the point of being heroic?

You could argue that winning an Oscar or an Olympic gold medal is a pretty outstanding achievement, but no matter how heroic they may seem to us lesser mortals, they are professional people who earn a living by doing what they do and in that sense, their achievements are no more outstanding than those of the repair man who has fixed your electricity line.

It's not what you do in your everyday job that makes you a hero, it's what you do above and beyond your normally duties in times of struggle or pressure that marks the distinction.

Reluctant Hero

In 2009, Captain Chesley 'Sully' Sullenberger became the Hero of the Hudson when he safely ditched his stricken US Airways Flight 1549 into the Hudson River, saving the lives of all 155 passengers on board.

To all those who survived the ordeal and to the viewing public who watched the event unfold on their TV screens, Sully's actions were nothing short of heroic. Yet, he sees what he did that day as nothing more than doing what he was trained to do – he was just doing his job.

It's true that he was doing what any trained pilot with over 40 years of experience would have tried to do, but it's the way he did it that makes him an undeniable hero. Additionally, the way he did it warmed the hearts of women the world over. Women absolutely crave to have a man who can handle himself under pressure and take care of a situation.

His remarkably cool head and quick thinking under extreme pressure not only led to him being able to ditch his plane successfully without the loss of any lives, he was also able to ditch it in the best location he could to maximize the potential for rescue from the freezing water.

He later authored a book about the experience titled The Highest Duty: My Search For What Really Matters, which sold and has continue to sell very well. He turned the simple occurrence of a plane crash (there are about 120 plane crashes a year worldwide) into history that people want to know about and be associated with.

Heroes of the Moment

2011 was a year that saw more than its fair share of natural disasters. The earthquake that shook New Zealand in February revealed a great many heroes as ordinary people joined the rescue effort to do whatever they could to free the people trapped under the rubble of buildings in Christchurch.

One man hailed a hero is builder Carl Stockton who managed to pull six people out of the rubble and save them. He was not the only volunteer rescuer, but his actions stand out as particularly heroic because of his claustrophobia.

Stockton squeezed through a tiny gap and crawled for several meters under the debris to reach the voices he could hear before smashing at the concrete with a hammer to make a space large enough for them to follow him out. He faced his own fear and risked his own life in an effort to save the lives of others and his courage makes him worthy of his hero status.

This year, more modern day heroes have been jumping into the national and international spotlight with their heroic efforts in life. Will you ever be labelled as a hero amongst family, friends, at work, nationally or internationally?

National Heroes

The so-called Fukushima 50 are the band of heroic men who stayed behind in Japan's nuclear power plant to attempt to prevent a full-scale meltdown after the devastating earthquake and tsunami that hit the country on March 11th 2011.

They are reported to be low and mid-level managers and it's thought that the majority of them volunteered to stay behind to prevent millions of Japanese civilians being negatively affected by a meltdown.

Once more, it's their willingness to put their own lives on the line in an effort to save the lives of others that makes the anonymous 50, believed in fact to be closer to 100 volunteers, worthy of being hailed heroes.

Andy Rooney made a valid point about the relative lack of peace-time heroes, but the heroic men who have emerged in the aftermath of the world's fight against the power of nature are an inspiration to us all.

They demonstrate that when push comes to shove, your fellow man will be there to help keep this ship afloat. Are you one of those types of men? What would you do if the chips were down?

If you want to be a modern day hero, you don't need a white horse, a suit of armor, a Herculean physique or even a square jaw line; all you need is the courage to go above and beyond to help your fellow man or woman when the pressure is on.

Going After Your Dreams

In a lot of cases, you can help your fellow man and be a modern day hero by simply by going after your true dreams in life. Do you sometimes dream of a better world? Then go ahead and help make it happen...

Is Attraction the Same Regardless of Culture?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

I'm often asked if the techniques that we teach about attracting women are universal. In other words, do all women, no matter their race, culture, nationality, upbringing or where they live all want the same basic traits in a man? The answer is "Yes!"

Culture is a superficial reaction to life that changes over time. Attraction is a deep, primal reaction that has remained the same for humans, regardless of culture.

Of course, no two women are alike and while some women might have certain cultural preferences or a comfort level with some men who have a similar background to theirs, in the end, attraction usually overrides any other considerations.

Some women even may say they have certain physical preferences (muscular/slim, tall/short, brunette/blonde, etc.) that they look for, but the fact is that the men that they often date and develop relationships with men who rarely look like the type of man they had pictured in their mind.

[image: Attraction - different races]

The same goes for men; while they might dream of being with a blonde, most will just as happily fall for a pretty brunette.

For women, if a man possesses the right personality and character traits, his looks are usually the last thing that enters into the equation when she decides whether or not she will date him.

This is why you see "unattractive" men with beautiful women. Often, to their own surprise, you'll hear one woman tell one another, "He's not at all like the type of guy I'm usually attracted to, but I really like him!"

Confidence is Key, No Matter Where You Come From

Above all else, women look for a man who is confident in who he is, which can be seen by how he carries himself (shoulders up, head held high), how self-assured he is and if actually knows what he wants out of life for himself and for those he loves.

Regardless of culture, women are attracted to men who can speak to them clearly and easily (no mumbling, speaking too softly or shyly) and who are not afraid to say something interesting, funny and/or cheeky whenever the hell they feel like it.

Men who put on an act of being a really nice guy in the hope of being liked by a woman, usually end up turning her off.

Once a relationship has formed, a woman wants to know that her man has a plan for his (and possibly their) life and that he's willing to go out and do what's necessary to achieve these goals. She also wants to see that he has the belief in himself that he capable of achieving whatever he sets out to accomplish.

True Masculinity

Despite popular opinion (usually by men), true masculinity has little to do with how a man is physically built. Masculine men come in all sizes and shapes. It's the inner masculinity that men display that attracts women.

A woman wants to know that her man can take care of himself (and possibly her) in virtually any situation. It doesn't necessarily mean that he'll start beating up any bullies that come his (or her) way. Sometimes the most masculine and mature way to handle difficult situations is to avoid turning them into confrontations or talk in an assertive but calm way with the men who are posing a threat. In the modern world, unless you need to fight to protect your life or hers, it is not a sign of weakness to avoid a fight with a random stranger who just being an idiot.

Rather it's a sign of wisdom and maturity and women actually feel safer around you because they know you don't lose your control easily.

Every woman also wants to know that while her man will treat her as his equal, when it's most important, he will take on the leadership role in their relationship and will use all of his available resources to make the best decision for them both.

Great Humor

Humor is an essential ingredient in almost every great, lasting relationship. The proper use of humor is a fantastic tool not only to meet women, but to attract them as sexual partners and to then keep them happy in a relationship.

If you can make a woman laugh by using your cheeky, easy-going charm, you will rise head and shoulders above any other male out there. Laughter is a universal language and will appeal to every woman you will ever meet regardless of her culture.

While silly, slapstick humor is occasionally fine to use around a woman, more often than not, what most women really appreciate is a man who is witty, a bit cheeky (without being offensive) and who can find the humor in the most basic daily occurrences.

Honesty, Trust and Loyalty

Honesty, trust and loyalty go hand-in-hand as traits highly prized by women in the men in their lives. It goes without saying that once you're in a committed relationship, a woman expects you to be loyal and that you won't go out with, obviously flirt with or otherwise have inappropriate relationships (in person, on the phone, or online) with other women.

Most women resent when men keep too many things from them, whether it's to protect her or because a man's done something in his personal or business life that he doesn't want his woman to know about.

Most women will forgive a man who has made a mistake, used poor judgment or behaved badly if he's honest and upfront with her about it, but if he keeps it from her and she subsequently finds out, regaining her trust will be difficult if not impossible.

The New 'Open World'

In the modern world, we are able to travel and stay in most countries. As such, more and more interracial relationships are occurring. Regardless of your background or the woman's, she will be looking for the same traits in you that she looks for in any man.

If you have those traits, she will feel attracted to you and want to be with you. It is as simple as that.

Do You Freeze Up Around Women You Really Like?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Are you confident and easy-going around women that you don't find attractive, but freeze up around women you really like?

Does your mind sometimes go blank when talking to a girl you like? Do you sometimes notice women that you'd like to approach and who seem open to you, but you freeze up and let the opportunity slip through your fingers?

If you answered "Yes" to any of those questions, don't worry – most guys experience that. So, how can you get over it and start being the confident guy around women that you know you can be?

Tip 1: Learn How to Attract Women

The main reason why guys freeze up around girls they like is that they don't even know how to make her feel attracted.

Most guys know how to get women to "like" them as a person, but making her feel sexually attracted to you is a completely different thing altogether. Watch this video to understand how attraction between men and women really works...

Tip 2: Build Up Your Confidence to Approach the Women You Find Attractive

When you know how to attract women, approaching them becomes less of a big deal because you know that most of the women you approach will be attracted and interested in you.

However, if you're like most guys, you can rarely work up the courage to approach and talk to the girls you really like. This, by the way, will become a HUGE advantage for you when you actually build up the confidence to approach women.

When you are one of the rare guys who isn't afraid of approaching and talking to pretty girls, you will notice that there is hardly any competition. Most guys just wait in the shadows hoping that women "like" them enough to approach or give a signal that they want to be approached.

Yet, women rarely do that unless a guy is really good looking. Most guys (including me), don't get approached by women because of their looks, so they have to grow a pair of balls, walk up to the girl and then make her feel attracted in ways other than looks.

Tip 3: Stop Trying to Be Liked For Being Nice

There's nothing wrong with being the good guy that you are, but being nice to a woman isn't what makes her wet.

If you want a woman feel sexually attracted to you, it won't happen by being nice to her. You have to make her feel sexually attracted to you in other ways (e.g. being confident, having a masculine vibe, making her laugh, etc).

Watch this video to understand why being too nice to women rarely works...

Tip 4: Be a Bit of a Challenge to Impress

If a woman is attractive, most guys will be willing to have sex with her simply based on her appearance. Many of those guys will also be willing to start a relationship with her, even if she doesn't have the type of personality that he really wants.

After a while, a woman gets bored of this and hopes to meet a guy who is a bit more of a challenge to impress...

Tip 5: Improve Your Conversation Skills

If you often run out of things to say when talking to women you like, most of those women won't help you out. They would rather lose the opportunity to be with you than guide you through the process of picking them up.

To be successful at picking up women for sex or a relationship, you have to be able to keep a conversation going and keep it interesting for long enough for you and the woman to truly connect with each other.

If a woman is attractive, most of the guys who see her will be willing to have sex with her. To stand out from the crowd, you've got to be able to make her feel attracted to you during a conversation and then create a unique and unforgettable connection.

Here are some classic conversation mistakes that guys make, which ruin the attraction and cancel out the chance of creating an enjoyable connection...

Being Confident Around Women is Within Your Control

If you get tongue tied around beautiful women, it doesn't mean that you can't ever get to a point where you are completely confident and in control.

The reason why you freeze when you talk to her is because you are putting more focus on the conversation going on inside your head, rather than the conversation you're having with her.

For example: You might be thinking, "Does she like me?" or "What should I say?" or "How can I impress her?" rather than just being confident, relaxed and allowing the interaction to play out.

Women are turned off by guys who are too "in their head" during a conversation because it indicates a lack of confidence. A woman knows that she will have the best type of sexual experience with a guy who isn't worried about messing up or impressing her.

When having sex with a guy, a woman wants him to not worry about a thing and just be who he is. The same applies to when you're talking to her and seducing her into a sexual relationship; she doesn't want you to be worrying a lot and trying hard to impress her.

As long as you are making the woman feel attracted to you, there is no need to try hard to impress her or get her to like you because she will already be impressed and like you because she feels attracted to you.

If you want to be successful at picking up women, you have to start everything off with attraction. If you approach and talk to women and try to get them to “like” you, most women will get bored and play hard to get.

After a while, she will either leave the conversation, reject you or simply hook up with another guy in front of you who is actually making her feel attracted...

Should You Text Her or Sext Her?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Sexting doesn't have the same effect on women as it does on men.

Think about it...

Men look at porn and masturbate to visual images of women in photos or videos. Why? Men feel an intense attraction to a woman's physical appearance and that is usually enough for a guy to want to have sex with the woman.

Yet, the same rule of attraction doesn't apply to women. Women can feel attracted a man's physical appearance, but most women are more turned on by a man's personality and behavior than his physical appearance.

Watch these two videos and you will understand why...

Texting Isn't the Way to Attract a Woman or Turn Her on

After more than a hundred years of phone calls, text messages suddenly came on to the scene and quickly developed into the main way of communicating for many people.

With the availability of camera phones, it was expected that sending sexy pictures would eventually become normal to the younger generations. As you may have noticed, this has happened. So, young, middle aged or old, should you sext or stick to text? Is sending a sext the best way to seduce a woman?

The Basic Rule

Sexting is not a necessary step before having sex with a woman, so the basic rule is that you do not need to do it to be successful with women.

When you see a guy in public place with his lover, girlfriend or wife, almost all of them have never even sent a sext. Personally speaking, I've had sex with more than 250 women and I've never sent a sext.

It's not because I'm "old" either. I'm 37 now and my wife (we recently got married is 22). I picked her up when she was 20. My girlfriend before her was 18 and I broke in a 21 year old virgin on the night of my 32nd birthday.

All without sexting. Instead of sending texts to women, I actually have sex with them. Believe me, it's much better.

However, if you are keen to try sexting or you simply want to reply to a sext that a woman sent you, here is some advice to consider...

Only Talk About Sex Via Text if She's Very Attracted to You or You've Already Kissed or Had Sex

Most guys who hide behind texts don't really know how to attract women in person.

Unless you are one of the rare guys who knows how to attract women in person and turn them on by what you say and do, don't try to turn a woman on with text. It won't work. A text is just words on a screen and if she doesn't already feel sexually attracted to you, she will most-likely look at the text as a wimpy attempt to turn her on without actually having to speak to her.

Sneaky or wimpy behavior like that shows a definite lack of confidence, which will be a major turn off to most women. On the other hand, if you've already had sex with her on several occasions and you have a certain level of comfort where she would welcome your sexts, then go for it.

When and When Not to Sext

Sometimes a text will be visible to some people within close proximity of the person getting a text. Plus, a lot of women tend to glance over and look at their girlfriends's phones to see what's being texted to them.

Women love to gossip, talk about relationships and discuss the man or men they're involved with. So unless you're positive that the woman your sexting is not going to be around her workmates or other people she has to maintain a reputation around, don't send the sext.

Can you imagine the problems you might cause your girl if your sexy text arrives when she's with her boss, clients, parents or anyone else whose ability to read your text would cause her great embarrassment?

If you want to send her a funny text, a flirty one or a quick note after a date, that's fine. Or if you want to confirm any plans you've made, that's also an acceptable text. Other than that, be cautious texting anything else. Until you've actually had sex, it is better to keep it fun and flirty, rather than sexy and sleazy.

Will a Photo of Your Dick Turn Her On?

[image: Man looking at porn. Men are mostly attracted to the physical appearance of women]

Men are sexually visual creatures which is why most pornography is aimed at men. There is a reason why women don't go searching and looking for porn pictures or videos of men to masturbate to.

It is not a mistake or an accident that most of the porn industry ignores women and doesn't waste time making videos to (try to) sell to them. While men get turned on visually, women, on the other hand, first get turned on mentally.

So texting a photo of your 'private parts' or anything else you think would be a turn-on is likely to be a major turn-off for her instead. It should, therefore, go without saying that videos of you playing with your pecker are also not necessary.

Does Sexy Talk Equal Sexy Texts?

You also have to be sure that the woman in question would be open to receive a sex talk text from you. Some women just can't handle it, while others love it and thrive on it.

Yes, your new girl might be a wild sex creature in the bedroom, but it's equally possible that she thinks she is a lady everywhere else. So make sure that you've not only had sex with her more than once, but that you've also discussed (or at least she's implied) that she'd enjoy that type of communication.

Just because she and/or you are very verbal and graphic in things you say between the sheets, it doesn't mean that she would be open to that type of language via text. Sometimes, a good indication of her receptiveness to a sext is to consider whether she would be too embarrassed to talk dirty over dinner at a restaurant while others nearby can hear what you're saying.

Pre-Pillow Talk

If you want to get her mentally ready for your next date or bedroom romp, then reach out and 'touch' her with your voice directly (and not on her answering machine). Hearing you say something provocative about your next sexual encounter is going to be a lot more effective if she hears you tell her with your own voice rather than reading it on her phone.

Since 90% of communication is conveyed by your body language and vocal tone and, since women are most turned on by how you behave around them and talk to them in person, don't cower behind the safety of a text. Make her really feel it by saying it over the phone or while looking into her eyes.

To sum it up, unless you're positive that your sext messages or questionable images would be welcomed by your woman, just avoid them altogether. Despite the ready availability of sexts, they simply aren't necessary for success with women in the modern world.

Visualization: Does it Actually Work?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Visualization can definitely help a person become clearer about what they want to achieve and more determined to follow through and make it happen.

If you aren't clear about the exact goals that you want to achieve, you will likely spend a lot of time going around in circles. Likewise, if you aren't determined enough to succeed, you might give up when things begin to become challenging.

Preparing Yourself For Success

Over the years, many studies have shown that visualization helps you to mentally prepare so that you feel confident enough to take action when an opportunity to achieve your goal presents itself. It allows you to experience what success might look like and feel like, even before you take any action.

Here's an example of how visualization helps a man build up the confidence to approach women:

To make visualization really work, you must follow through on what you've been visualizing. In other words, you have to take action and head towards the vision. Just sitting around and thinking about what you want doesn't get you very far, as you have probably already discovered in life so far.

Olympic Mindset

Jamaican sprinter Usain Bolt is the fastest man on earth.

He won gold medals in both the 100 meters and 200 meters events at the 2008 Beijing Olympics and the following year he confirmed his status as the world's fastest man by setting a new world record time of 9.58 seconds for 100 meters at the 2009 Athletics World Championships.

In a track side interview after his phenomenal performance he said, âI just visualized and then executed my plan.â So, does that mean visualization was the reason he won the race? Of course not, but it definitely would be one of the many tools and techniques that he uses in combination to perform at such an elite level.

The same applies to my success with women. I have had sex with more than 250 women because I use powerful techniques that make women feel incredible levels of attraction and lust for me. I spent a bit of time visualizing that things would go well and imagining how I would do it...and then I did it.

Muscle Memory

The term âvisualizationâ describes a technique used in sport by top class athletes, also known as mental rehearsal or imagery. It's a learned mental skill that, in a nutshell, involves the athlete relaxing in a comfortable position and thinking about their sport. It sounds very simple but, like all skills in life, it requires dedicated time and practice to master.

Scientific research has found that thinking about a physical activity literally stimulates the brain to send electrical signals to the muscles involved in that particular physical activity, even though no actual physical movement is taking place.

For example: A soccer player can visualize himself kicking the ball in a detailed image in his mind's-eye and the muscles involved in that movement will be stimulated by electrical impulses sent from his brain.

The benefit of this type of thinking is that it strengthens the neural pathways and helps promote what is termed "muscle memory." This means that by mastering the art of visualization, an athlete can mentally practice their sport and develop the successful patterns of movement needed without the need to physically fatigue the required muscles in the process.

Clear Vision

Being able to visualize a winning performance has obvious advantages in sport, but it is also a useful technique that can be used to equal advantage across all areas of life. Learning how to visualize is like having your own inner cinema screen on which you can play any movie of your choice.

You can produce, direct, and star in your very own movie and watch the story of your success unfold in front of your mind's-eye. Just as an athlete can have the starring role in a story of sports success, you can have the starring role in your own movie of your own success whether it's related to your career or your personal life.

Of course, like the athletes do, you also need to take action and go after what you are visualizing. Otherwise, it will just remain a private fantasy.

Virtual Reality

Visualizing positive outcomes under every conceivable set of circumstances is a tried, tested and proven method of coping with competitive stress in the sports world but it's equally effective in the business world.

A sportsman can visualize the precise thoughts and actions needed to secure a win and a businessman can do exactly the same in terms of visualizing the thoughts and actions that will lead to him securing an important deal.

Former British javelin thrower Steve Backley, now a motivational speaker, used visualization throughout his entire competitive career. He says he prepared himself for the high pressure environment of competitive sport at top level by imagining himself in a losing position in the last round of a major competition with only one throw left.

He then saw himself throwing a technically perfect final throw to win the competition.

Visualization is all about creating positive images so although Backley's vision began fairly negatively, the end result was totally positive. He used visualization to not only see a winning performance but also to see how a winning performance could still be achieved under less than perfect conditions.

Seeing is Believing

Champion athletes don't get to the top of their game without first believing that they are capable of becoming a champion and spending endless hours visualizing themselves at the top of their game. Most professional athletes also practice mental skills training alongside physical skills training to achieve peak fitness and the winning "edge". In sport, this is often referred to as having the "mental edge" with the winner being the athlete who has the most belief in their ability as opposed to simply having superior physical ability.

The Easy Way to Practice Visualization

Relax – You need to be comfortable to be able to concentrate on your vision, so find a quiet, peaceful place and a position that allows you to totally relax. Initially, you'll need to be in a place where you won't be disturbed or distracted but with practice, you'll be able to remain focused even when lots of other things are going on around you.

Begin at the end – Create a mental image of yourself as the success you want to become.

If it is about your success with finding a perfect girlfriend, the image might be of you and a loving girlfriend embracing and kissing, then telling each other how much you love each other. If your visualization is about your career, you might picture yourself being praised by a boss for doing such a great job while working in your ultimate dream job.

Build your story – Now that you've crafted the closing scene of your success movie, you must go back to the start and begin building the rest of the movie scene by scene. Each scene tells the story of how you are going to get from where you are to where you want to be at the end of the visualization movie.

Make it real – add as much detail as possible to each image. Go beyond simply viewing the movie, give it the 3D, cinema surround-sound treatment and bring each scene to life.

See the images and also hear everything that's going on, smell everything around you, taste the food, and feel every emotion just as you would in reality. Use all of your senses to make your visualization experience as "real" as possible.

When you first begin, you may find it difficult to maintain concentration for more than a few minutes at a time, so try to schedule short periods of time to practice every few days.

As your skills develop, you will be able to stay focused for longer periods of time and you will also be able to add greater texture to your images, allowing you to play out every stage of your journey to success in your mind's-eye.

Of course, visualization is only one element of preparation for success but being able to see a positive outcome and being able to believe in that positive outcome is essential if you are to achieve that success.

It might be unrealistic to visualize yourself crossing the finish line ahead of Usain Bolt, but you'll definitely be able to "win the race" that you're trying to win in your life "whether" that be the race to find a great girlfriend, build a successful career or live a truly fulfilling and happy life.

So, Does Visualization Actually Work?

Yes.

In my opinion, I think that positive visualization helps a person become more successful because it makes you feel more confident, more clear on what you want and more determined to get there.

I don't think that visualization is the answer to success, but it is a useful tool that I use and that I recommend to others.

3 Common Habits of Successful Men

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Unsuccessful men aren't unsuccessful by accident. Their failure in life is usually as a result of doing things the wrong way, or not doing what they need to do to be successful.

For instance, men who aren't experiencing success with women will usually have a big list of excuses and ways of blaming everything and everyone else except themselves.

Unsuccessful men often go through life thinking they know it all and don't need to learn from anyone, or they make the mistake of trying to learn from the fictional reality they see on TV and movies, instead of learning from people who are successful and are willing to teach others how to be successful in their field of expertise.

Focus on the reasons why you can succeed, not on the reasons why you might not be able to.

â□□ Dan Bacon (@Dan_Modern_Man) December 31, 2013

If you copy the thinking of unsuccessful men or hope that your life magically changes like it does for characters in a Hollywood movie, then you're most likely going to end up failing and being very disappointed in yourself throughout life.

In real life, success comes to those who don't make the same mistakes as the masses. You've to be smart and effective to succeed in today's competitive world.

Success Happens When You Develop Effective Habits of Being

Successful men are usually successful because they have learned the right habits from successful people, or they worked it out on their own. For successful men, being successful is simply a habit of being that they have developed OVER TIME, not OVERNIGHT. When something that you do or some way that you think becomes so routine that you do it automatically, then it has become a habit.

For successful men, thinking, "Oh okay, that didn't work out. What did I do wrong? What did I do right? What do I need to change next time so I get it right?" is simply a habit of being.

For unsuccessful men, they will usually think in a less productive way, such as, "See, it happened again. I always stuff up with this. I'm hopeless at it. I guess I can't be successful like those other guys."

For successful men, stopping to learn from people who are more successful at them in whatever area of life they are trying to succeed at, is a HABIT. They do it automatically.

For unsuccessful men, they tend to go around in circles, looking for the answers in all the wrong places. Often, this is because they are intelligent men who are making the mistake of thinking that they know it all already.

Yet, months or years later, they look back and realize how wrong they were and regret wasting those years of their life. We all have things that we routinely do on a daily basis, so we all have habits.

The question is, are your habits successful habits, or are they leading you down the wrong track?

â€œWe are what we repeatedly do. Excellence, then, is not an act, but a habit.â€

Aristotle, Ancient Greek philosopher

Old Dog, New Tricks?

You probably think of habits in terms of being either good or bad, and you most likely consider the majority of your existing habits to be the â€œhabits of a lifetimeâ€ because youâ€™re unable to remember a time when you didnâ€™t have them.

The habits you have are all patterns of behavior that youâ€™ve learned somewhere along the way. For many guys, a lot of their habits were picked up from their parents or from those around them in childhood without actually realizing it.

So which ones are good and which ones are bad, and can old habits be changed?

The good news is that itâ€™s always possible to change your habits, no matter how long youâ€™ve had them. Old or bad habits can be dropped and new, good habits can be established at any point in your life. The key to developing successful habits is to recognize which ones they are.

Change is always possible when you learn to focus on the positive and begin taking steps to eliminate the negative.

3 Common Habits of Successful Men

1. They create success, instead of waiting for it

Successful men create their own success, they donâ€™t hopelessly wait for success to come and find them.

American industrialist Henry Ford is a great example of a successful man who found his own success by creating it. His Model T, built in 1908, heralded the beginning of whatâ€™s now termed the â€œmotor ageâ€ as cars were once luxury items that could only be afforded by the very wealthy.

He said, â€œI will build a car for the great multitude,â€ and he did; he made a car that ordinary working people could afford and then he sold it to the masses.

[image: Muhammad Ali - Mindsets]

“The repetition of affirmations leads to belief. And once that belief becomes a deep conviction, things begin to happen.” Muhammad Ali, Former Professional Boxer.

2. They believe in themselves

Successful men know that the only way to get others to believe in them is to first believe in themselves.

Champion heavy-weight boxer Muhammad Ali is perhaps one of the sporting worldâ€™s most well-known faces and he became as famous for his, â€œI am the greatest,â€ self-belief statements out of the boxing ring as he did for his ability in the ring. He knew that self-belief was the key to achieving his dreams and to getting others to believe in him.

3. They donâ€™t give up

Successful men see lessons where others see failure. It took Thomas Edison 10,000 attempts to create the electric light bulb but he famously said, “I have not failed. I’ve just found 10,000 ways that don’t work.” Men who become successful are positive thinkers and they are certainly not in the habit of giving up.

Getting into the Habit of Being a Success in Everything That You Do

As a general rule, you should try to do things PROPERLY in life. Don’t glaze over the instructions to complete a task or ignore the rules of a game. Get into the habit of doing things properly and you will find that your success rate at almost everything will skyrocket.

It’s not about being overly serious about things, but it is about respecting yourself as a man and being able to maintain the respect of others. There’s nothing wrong with bending the rules of a game for a bit of fun, or being creative in the way you create something, but just do it properly.

If you aren’t sure how to do a certain thing PROPERLY, get into the habit of doing it the way that SUCCESSFUL people do it and then, you too, will be successful.

Most people know that if they aren’t successful at something, the fastest and easiest way to change that is to adopt some of the success habits of those who ARE successful at what they want to achieve.

“It is not enough to have a good mind; the main thing is to use it well” Rene Descartes,
French philosopher, mathematician and writer

Changing Your Old, Unhelpful Habits

Experts in the field believe that it takes 21 days to form a new habit or to change an existing habit. Once you’ve identified the successful habits of the people you admire, decide which ones you already have and which ones you most want to acquire.

You may have a list of several successful habits that you’d like to be able to adopt, but choose just one to focus on for a period of at least 21 days. Trying to do more than one at a time is a recipe for failure, no matter how keen you are to succeed.

Habits are the things you repeatedly do so to create a new habit you must repeatedly do the new thing. This means making a concentrated effort and dedicating time to repeating the new behavior every day until it becomes a part of your routine way of doing things.

Once you’ve established a habit, it’s a pattern of behavior that’s likely to stick with you even if it’s no longer something you repeat every day.

Keeping the Habit

One of the most effective ways to keep a new habit is to surround yourself with visible reminders of what it means to have that new habit. For example, if you’re dedicating time and effort to developing a positive thinking habit, hang out with people you know who can keep you motivated, inspiration and on track for success.

Additionally, when you spend time with people who already have the successful habit that you want to establish, you are reminded of why you want to adopt that habit. However, if you hang out with people who will cause you to think negatively and avoid developing the positive, new habit you need for success, it will become difficult for you to make solid progress towards your goals.

So, choose your friends and influencers wisely. There are lot of insecure people out there who think that success is too difficult and life is unfair. Make success happen by taking one step after another towards your goals.

Don't give up.

Keep going and keep taking action and then someday soon, you will stop and realize, "Hey! I did it! I'm successful at this now! I did it!" From then on, your life will have changed forever.

Don't hide away from your goals. Don't give up. Take action.

Dealing With Regret: If Only You'd Done it Differently...

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Do you often find yourself thinking, â€œIf onlyâ€ and dreaming about how things might have been if only youâ€d done things differently?

That's called living a life of regret and is totally unnecessary. A life of regret is a life spent looking backwards; looking at what could have been rather enjoying what actually is and looking forward to what could still be for you.

You can live that way if you want, but guess what? It only leads to more regret.

The type of life that leads you to feelings of happiness, pride and fulfilment is a life spent rising through the levels of your life purpose as a man, while also being successful with women.

What is the Real Reason Why You've Been Failing With Women?

Many guys go through life never knowing what it really takes to be successful with women. Lacking the answers they seek, many guys begin to come up with excuses or reasons about why they've continued to fail with women.

Watch this video to understand the real reason why a lot of good men fail with women...

No More Repetitive, Unproductive "If Only" Moments

If you find that you've been wasting a lot of your lifetime thinking, "If only I did it that way...if only I said this or that" then you're going around in circles and heading down a path that will lead to more regret.

You've got to start thinking, "Here's what I'm going to do today" or "Here's what I'm going to do the next time I have an opportunity like that" and then move forward in life. You've looked back already and now it's time to move forward, not go around in circles.

Maybe you have made some bad choices in life, maybe you have made mistakes, but here's the thing – you don't have to carry the regret around with you for the rest of your days. Regrets are like excess baggage.

Every regret or â€œif onlyâ€ is simply another item of excess baggage that you're lugging along with you through your life. Excess baggage not only slows you down, it takes up loads of space and the only way to make more room in your life for today is to let go of yesterday.

When you lighten your load by accepting the mistakes you've made and then letting go, you become free to do the things you want to do, go where you want to go, and be who you want to be, today. The only thing standing between you and a life of no regrets is you.

Live for Today and the World Will Open Up to You

The key is to live proactively in the present. If you give yourself every opportunity to live the life you want, every single day, what is there to regret? Instead, you will move through each day with a feeling of purpose and gratitude, for you are always doing what you want, when you want.

Strangely, when you really do live for today and start opening up and following through on opportunities that come your way, the world seems to respond in step with you. It's like the world has been waiting for you to wake up and live your life, your entire life.

For example: If you're one of the many modern men who are having trouble finding yourself a woman or being unable to keep a relationship together, then start working on that area of your life. Don't sit around thinking that you've stuffed it all up and can never improve your situation.

Appreciate Your Previous Experiences in Life

Try to remember the expression "nothing ventured nothing gained" and then use it to change the way you think about the events of your past. When you do, you will realize that mistakes are nothing more than experiences and the only real mistake you could ever make is to not learn from those experiences and then move on.

Most people are too afraid of making a mistake, so they settle for mediocre lives and live with regret. However, successful people are not afraid to TRY even if they make mistakes on their way to the top. Eventually they work it out and get there, but success is rarely a straight line to the finish. There are many obstacles along the way that build and strengthen your character and resolve. So, keep pushing through even if you make some mistakes along the way.

Think about it...

Every experience from your past has molded you into the person you are today so every experience you have today and, crucially, what you learn from it, will continue to influence who you are tomorrow.

Drawing a Line in the Sand

If you're carrying excess baggage with you, it's time to lighten your load. This means drawing a line in the sand and separating yourself from "regretful" events in your past. By letting go of them, you leave yourself free to move forwards into today and tomorrow without them hanging around you.

Question 1: What do you regret right now?

Figure out exactly what your excess baggage is. What are your "if only" and what do you wish you'd done differently? For instance, how do you feel about your success with women so far in life?

Question 2: Can you make amends?

Sometimes you are holding regrets about how you treated another person. So, if any of your "if only" are regrets concerning other people, make amends by apologizing to them.

Apologizing lightens your load and allows you and the other person to make a fresh start, but itâ€™s not always necessary to seek the forgiveness of others to be able to move on. In fact, sometimes dragging up old hurts from the past might do more harm than good.

In those cases, simply acknowledge your mistake, accept that you made the mistake, take responsibility for your part and then forgive yourself. Stop beating yourself up about past events that canâ€™t be changed. Learn from them and then just let them go.

Question 3: What can you still do about it?

If any of your â€œif onlyâ€ are regrets over things you didnâ€™t do, why not do them now? For example, if you regret not going on a training course that could have allowed you to make a career change, why not look into taking that course now?

That new career could still be yours. The opportunity you had to take the course first time around has gone but that doesnâ€™t mean all opportunities are now gone. New opportunities are all around you if you make space for them. Dump the â€œif onlyâ€ that are obscuring your vision and give yourself a much clearer view of what you can still do with your life.

Are You Ready to Let Go of Your Regrets and Make Something of Your Life?

If letting go of your regrets doesnâ€™t feel right at the moment, try turning your focus away from those past events that you regret by focusing on the events you donâ€™t regret. Microsoft founder Bill Gates dropped out of college but does he regret it?

Basketball legend Michael Jordan didnâ€™t make his college team at one point because he didnâ€™t play well enough, but did he sit around thinking â€œIf only Iâ€™d made the team...then I would have a better chance of becoming an NBA superstarâ€?

No.

He learned from his experience and he moved on – big time.

Look back at the past events of your life in a new light. Turn your attention to the good decisions youâ€™ve made and the positive actions youâ€™ve taken. Not every choice youâ€™ve ever made was a bad one and not everything youâ€™ve ever done was a mistake.

Recognize your successes and realize that each new day brings with it new opportunities to succeed. Each new day represents another opportunity to live your life the way you want to live it so all you have to do is make room for the new opportunities that continue to come your way by letting go of the events of yesterday.

Look at it this way; Scientific research has found that our memories of past events change over time and often become exaggerated versions of actual happenings.

Chances are, the big â€œregretâ€ youâ€™re lugging around with you is not actually such a big deal after all.

â€œWhen one door closes, another opens; but we often look so long and so regretfully upon the closed door that we do not see the one which has opened for usâ€ Alexander Graham Bell

Should You Always Be Totally Honest With a Woman?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Honesty is synonymous with truthfulness, decency and being an all-round genuine person, but is honesty always the best policy in a relationship? Is a 100% truthful answer always the best response when asked questions like, “Does my butt look big in this?”

Dictionary definition of honest:

Honest (adjective): Free of deceit; truthful and sincere. Morally correct or virtuous. Simple and unpretentious.

Little White Lies

So does this mean that to be an “Honest Joe” you must always tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, or is there room for the occasional “little white lie”? After all, everyone tells little lies from time to time – don’t they?

White lies are those little harmless lies you use to avoid hurting someone’s feelings so there can be times when it’s possible to put forward a strong case for their defense. However, you might also use an occasional little lie to get yourself out of a tricky situation, and if so, are they still harmless?

Let’s say your girlfriend asks you to post an important letter for her and you forget to do it. When she asks if you posted it you say yes, making a note of it in your smart phone to make sure you don’t forget again.

Should you have actually told her the real truth? Or, maybe you were meant to book a restaurant table for a special occasion as soon as the phone-lines were open to take reservations but you forgot. When she asks if you managed to get a table, you lie and say that by the time you got through, all the tables were taken for the day you wanted; still just harmless lies?

Pants on Fire?

If you consider yourself to be a fairly Honest Joe, it might be worth taking a moment to consider how many little lies you tell on a regular basis.

If you had to put a dollar in an “honesty box” every time you stretched the truth even a tiny bit during the course of a normal day, how much money would be in there by the end of a week? If most men were totally honest with themselves and really kept a tally, they might be quite surprised by just unnecessarily dishonest they actually are.

How many of your little lies are in fact quite big, and how do you determine the difference between the two? It’s quite possible that you’ve been telling little lies so routinely that you no longer even think about it; lying has become a habit.

“A half truth is a whole lie” Proverb

A Habit of Being Honest

Neuroscientists at Harvard University in the US conducted the first ever neurobiological study of honesty and deceit. As a result of their research, they concluded that genuine Honest Joes don’t make a conscious effort not to lie, they’re simply never tempted to be anything other than honest: Being honest for them is just a habit.

Abraham Lincoln is one of history's most famous Honest Joes. In fact, he was known as "Honest Abe".

Many years before he became the 16th President of the USA, Abraham Lincoln worked as a general store clerk. The story goes that when he was counting the takings one day after the store closed, he discovered they were a few cents over what should have been taken.

He realized he must have short-changed an earlier customer, so he walked to the customer's home, quite some distance, to give her the change she was owed. His honest reputation stayed with him in his later career as a lawyer and he became renowned for his steadfast belief that the truth was never worth sacrificing, not for any gain.

| "If I were two faced, would I be wearing this one?" Abraham Lincoln

Choose Honesty

Old habits can be changed and new habits can be established, so the habit of being honest is no exception. Changing any habit is an on-going process, but to start all you need to do is choose to be honest because there really isn't any value in lying.

For example: Instead of lying about posting the letter, own up to the fact that you forgot. Of course, you don't have to own up if you're not asked but you don't have to lie about it if you are. Sure, you owe your girlfriend an apology for forgetting but you can still post the letter, it's not the end of the world!

By choosing to be honest, you're choosing to break a dishonesty habit and choosing to become a genuine Honest Joe. Unlike living a life of a liar who always has to be on guard and tell further lies to cover up previous lies, being honest is simply less stressful and easier way to live your life..

Does My Butt Look Big in This?

So what about those potentially awkward, "Does my butt look big in this?" questions? If you'd been honest with your girlfriend the entire time you'd been with her, she would already know the answer to that question. She would already know that you find her sexier when she stays in good shape.

If she is currently working on getting back into shape and asks you that question while getting ready for a party you're attending together, you don't have to be brutally honest and kill her self-esteem before the big night.

Since she already knows how you feel, you can answer with an honest, but tactful response like, "Babe, I think you look a lot sexier in the red dress...I really want to see you in that tonight..."

Always look for a way to be positive and tactful with your honest, especially when someone else's feelings are concerned. However, remember that honesty is always the best policy even when you first meet a woman. For instance, if you think she is sexy, don't lie to her by saying, "You have beautiful eyes." Instead, be honest and say with a smile, "I think you're sexy."

Avoid any temptation tell little white lies because they have a habit of snowballing into much bigger and more complex lies. Sir Walter Scott said it best with his famous words. "Oh, what a tangled web we weave, when first we practice to deceive." Avoid the tangled mess by just being honest.

As I've said to guys since we started The Modern Man, "You never have to lie to a woman. It is totally unnecessary. Women find you more attractive when you just stop with the BS and be an honest, real man. It's also a lot easier than coming up with lies all the time!"

10 Ways Being a Man Has Changed Since 1911

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The definition of being a man has changed so much over the last 100-150 years that many men now feel confused about how they are supposed to think and behave and what they are supposed to strive for in life.

In the past, life was pretty simple...

Get a job, find a wife, build a house, have children, raise them and then die. These days, life presents us with countless paths to choose from. I could have written about a thousand or more ways that being a man has changed since 1911, but let's just have a look at 10 for now.

10. Clothing

In 1911, slacks, a collared shirt, and shined shoes were minimal attire for the outdoors. A well-to-do man could seldom leave the house without a full suit, coat and hat. There was a lot of emphasis on fitting the mold that society felt every man should fit.

Denim was reserved largely for laborers and kids and open-toed shoes for men were unheard of.

Today, most men are able to don a t-shirt over their jeans and sneakers, even when going to work. Collared shirts are typically reserved for white-collar jobs and going out. The definition of a 'well-dressed man' has changed completely to the point where many of us can look great by wearing a good pair of jeans, a t-shirt or polo and good shoes/sneakers.

9. An Even Playing Field With Women

Young women were only sometimes educated and certainly did not have many rights or much of a say in how society functioned. Most women were simply being trained to be good housewives for the husband their parents would often find for them.

Today, not only do women have equal rights, but most have a good education, a career and their own dreams and aspirations, which they are free to pursue.

Women can also pick their own suitor, or even suitors. This, as most men now know, means you have to be compatible with a woman and attract her with your personality instead of expecting to be paired up with her via an arranged marriage.

8. Dating

[image: Dating - Sex before marriage]

Dinner dates were and still are common, but premarital sex was considerably less common than it is today. In 1911, dates were usually a short precursor to marriage and had to be worked out with the girl's father.

At the end of the night they seldom led to anything other than a â€œThank you for a wonderful eveningâ€œ and a kiss on the cheek if you were lucky.

Today, we have the option of meeting as many women as we want in bars, online at singles night (speed dating) and no longer have to ask the woman's father for permission to take her out. Heck, a lot of modern women now prefer to skip the dates altogether and get right into kissing and having sex.

7. Marriage

Not only was marriage the obvious goal of dating 100 years ago, but men who did not get married were thought of as strange, gay or as a freak of nature.

Divorce was uncommon and frowned upon by the religious establishment, family and society at large. Today, most people date for many years before getting married or and many don't ever intend to get married at all.

Divorce has become a common part of modern life. Strangely, it is often even encouraged by family, workmates and even TV hosts who say things like, â€œIf he isn't treating you right, leave!â€

Understandably, this has turned most modern men off the idea of marriage completely. It no longer seems like a smart decision, especially given the high divorce rates, the legal costs of divorce and the woman eventually taking half of everything you own just for being in a relationship with you.

I used to be completely against marriage, until I realized that it was possible to deepen a woman's love, respect and attraction for you in a relationship. After enjoying my choice of women for many years (having sex with more than 250 women), I finally decided to accept my girlfriend's marriage proposal.

Here's what happened...

6. Feelings

In 1911, a strong man did not show any emotion. Emotions and feelings were left to women while men had to bottle up their emotions.

Sharing his emotions about something was seen as unmanly, whereas today it is a necessary part of our more complex dialogue as modern human beings.

After going through many different eras of change, such as the hippy movement, the SNAG (Sensitive New Age Guy) phase and the Metrosexual phase, men have finally realized that women want men to be more emotionally open, but still remain strong, stable and in control.

It is certainly okay to share your feelings with a woman these days, although some men obviously take it too far by crying or looking for pity, which is a huge turn off to women. A man these days is expected to be more complex than the average man a century ago whose job was to simply work and support the family. Complex does not mean wimpy, however.

5. Communication

100 years ago, if you wanted to speak to a woman you were attempt to â€œcourtâ€ (attract into a relationship with you), you'd have to write a letter and wait for it to be delivered up to a week later or get on your horse and ride to her home. Her parents would usually listen in, sit nearby in earshot or have many questions to ask to determine your intentions with their daughter.

These days, we've got home phones, mobile (cell) phones, e-mail and Facebook, so getting in touch is quick and easy.

Better still, a simple text message to a woman at 1am on a Friday or Saturday night can often lead to some late night sex; otherwise known as a â€œbooty callâ€. In 1911, most men wouldn't have dreamed of the communication technology we now have. Imagine what human to human communication will be like by 2111.

4. Education

In 1911, most men didn't finish school, attend any kind of university or go on to achieve formal qualifications. There was a lot less demand for white collar workers than there was for laborers. Today, the white collar workforce is becoming more competitive and more employers are now beginning to expect that potential employees arrive with a completed degree.

Luckily however, the internet has come along and is allowing people to use their available skills to find suitable work online. This trend of "working from home" is set to increase and expand over the next decade, as we move more and more of our life online into the cyber world.

3. Smoking and Drinking

100 years ago most men hit the cigarettes and alcohol pretty hard "even in the office, in restaurants, on the bus and anywhere else they felt like it. They hit it so hard, in fact, that by the end of the 1910s American women got so worried that they banded together to prohibit alcohol across the country.

Obviously it didn't last but heavy drinking and smoking has been becoming increasingly taboo over the past few decades. Certainly you cannot smoke in most places these days and many women will lose interest in a guy if they discover that he is a smoker during their first conversation. Similar is the case with heavy drinking, because it usually leads to unwelcome problems in relationships.

2. Travel

Certainly there were plenty of people who got on their horse or wagon and hit the road for the promise of a better future. In 1911, however, traveling was dangerous and many people were not able to get where they wanted.

Today, hop on the web, book a ticket and you can be across the world tomorrow morning. We no longer have to settle for living where we were born, because a century of global politics and open trading has allowed most cultures to become comfortable with the idea of mixing together.

If you are not happy with your current environment, you are just a few hours and a few hundred bucks away from almost any place in the world.

1. We Don't Die at 45

Partly because of the above mentioned decline in alcoholism and smoking, as well as lowered infant mortality rates, but mostly thanks to the advances in modern medicine and availability of nutritious food from supermarkets and green grocers, we now live much longer than we did a hundred years ago.

In 1911, the average man did not make it to 50 years old. Today, the average life expectancy for a man is near 80 years old in most of the industrialized world. In the next 30 years, the average life expectancy is set to rise to 120.

If you are 30 years or under now and can make it to 60, you might be able to stay alive to 120. However, during those extra 60 years, experts are now predicting that lifespan will increase even further to 150-170 years (or more), so don't plan on dying any time soon!

The idea of growing old and sitting with your wife on rocking chairs on the front porch is no longer applicable in the new world that is emerging before us. Who knows what the world will be like in 30-40 years time. I would suggest some things, but most people will think it is science fiction, so I will keep that out of this article.

A longer expected lifespan now means we do not need to rush to get married while we are young. Instead, we need to think about a very long retirement and be open to exploring many career paths throughout our lives.

Being a man has certainly changed incredibly over the past century, but the biggest change is most certainly in our ability to choose what path we want to take in life. We have an unlimited amount of options when it comes to jobs, women and almost everything else...

How to Be More Assertive at Work, With Women and in Life

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

There are many benefits to being assertive as a man.

Being assertive:

1. Ensures that you don't get pushed around by people who pick on the weak.
2. Reminds people that you are a guy who should be respected.
3. Makes women feel naturally attracted to you.

On the other hand, being a passive type of guy who lets people push him around:

1. Makes you the target of bullies, jerks or manipulative people who want to take advantage of you.
2. Reminds people that you are a guy who doesn't need to be respected.
3. Makes women feel turned off by you.

9 Ways to Be More Assertive

Any guy can learn to become more assertive.

Just like with any other behavioral habit in life, it takes a bit of practice and effort before it becomes natural, easy and automatic. Here are 9 ways to get you started on your mission to become a more assertive man...

1. Speak Up

Most people in this world are nice, good people, but you will always come across some who aren't. It's just the nature of how this world works.

When you come across someone who is trying to take advantage of you or is disrespecting you, don't be afraid to speak up. It's not about getting angry or aggressive, but it is about being assertive.

The key to being assertive in a way that doesn't come across as aggressive is to be light-hearted about the situation. Talk with a tone of voice suggesting that it's not a big deal, but you're going to say it anyway.

For example: Maybe someone rudely cut in front of you in a line or you were overlooked for a raise even though you'd been doing a great job.

Sometimes this happens entirely innocently and other times the person doesn't realize that you're a guy they should respect.

When this happens, the first thing you need to do is speak up and make your position clear, but be light-hearted about it.

You can smile and say in an easy-going, but assertive way, "Hey mate – I'm waiting in this line here and I'm in front of you. You can go behind me if you want, but I've been waiting here and I'm not losing my spot."

“I noticed I was passed over for a raise again. I feel like I’ve been doing a great job. Is there any reason why I have been overlooked by you again?”

If you don’t speak up, people will just assume that you are a guy who doesn’t need to be respected. The majority of people will show you respect and be considerate because they are nice people, but when you come across people who don’t give you the treatment you deserve, don’t be afraid to speak up in an assertive, but easy-going manner.

2.Â Make a Clear Decision About What You Want

If you don’t know what you really want out of a situation, you won’t know when you need to be assertive to stand up for what you want.

Before you enter a negotiation or approach a woman that you find attractive, make sure that you know exactly what you want.

Women respect guys who know what they want and go after it with confidence, so if you approach a woman and don’t feel like you deserve to have her, she will pick up on that and it will turn her off.

Likewise, if you’re entering a negotiation at work or in business and you don’t feel like you deserve a good outcome, it will come across in your body language, tonality and vibe and you will almost always get less than you deserve.

3.Â Hold Your Ground

A lot of men give up way too easily when they are faced with a challenge.

For example: Many women play hard to get when a guy approaches them because they want to see if the guy is truly confident.

So, if you are about to approach a beautiful woman and usually can’t get past the first few minutes of conversation, make it your aim to stay in there when it reaches that “awkward point” where you often run out of things to say.

Be assertive by staying in there and talking to her about whatever you feel like talking about, even if you’re worried that those subjects might not be interesting to her.

You’ll be surprised at how impressed women are that you don’t back down so easily. As women often say, “I like a man who knows what he wants and isn’t afraid to go after it.”

4.Â Show Strength and Composure in Your Body Language

Your body language is a vitally important part of your communication. You can’t turn your body language off; it is always on.

No matter how much you try to hide your intentions, fears or insecurities, they will always come through via your body language in subtle and sometimes obvious ways.Â People are always reading your body language to assess your confidence level,Â state of mind and intentions.

If you understand how to be confident on the inside, your body language will naturally display confidence on the outside.

5. Be Clear, Confident and Calm When You Explain Yourself

Not only do you need to be clear on exactly what you want from a situation, but you also need to clearly explain your position as well. If you are not clear on what you want or what you mean, the other person may misunderstand your intentions or needs.

To make sure that a person understands you, make an assertive statement like, “Okay, to make sure that you and I are completely clear on this, can you tell me your understanding of it now?” after you have explained your position.

6. Don't Be Afraid to Say No

In most negotiations, the initial offer that is made needs to be met with a counter offer before it really becomes fair for both parties.

So, if you're looking to get a proper raise at work and have noticed that other employees are getting more than you, don't be afraid to say, “Thanks for the offer, but I'm interested in seeing at least a $6,000 pay rise, considering others have gotten that and I have done an equally good job. How can we make the same pay rise happen for me?”

You may not get the $6,000 pay rise right away, but you might get a 20-30% boost on top of what you were going to get, as well as instructions from your boss on how to get a bigger raise next time. That is much better than just being passive and accepting whatever is given to you.

7. Be Assertive, Not Rude

Some guys mistake assertiveness with aggressiveness or rudeness. By being rude or aggressive when trying to get your way, you will usually only make the person want to give you a worse deal.

The key to being effective while being assertive is to be respectful, easy-going and considerate of the other person's needs. It can't all be about you. If a person respects you and likes you as a person, you will almost always get a way better deal compared to when they don't like or respect you.

8. Seek First to Understand, Then to Be Understood

When negotiating, one of the best techniques to use is to ask the other person what they are looking for from the deal. Once you know what they are willing to settle for, you can then make your offer. Often, the other person will aim pretty low, because most people just aren't that assertive in negotiations.

So, if you end up giving them a slightly better deal than what they hoped for, they will be extremely appreciative of your generosity.

Also, sometimes the other person may have to answer to someone else before making a decision and won't have the authority to grant you what you want. Listen to the other person's situation and be willing to work with them. This will make them much more likely to be willing to work with you.

When you know what the other person wants and can show that you are willing to give them that, they will be more willing to listen to your needs and give you what you want from the deal.

9.Â Don't Apologize For Wanting Success

One of the biggest keys to success is to be absolutely unapologetic about wanting it.

Think of the most successful people you know and you will see that the majority of them, if not all, feel like they deserve to be successful. They have embraced success and are enjoying it.

Many unsuccessful guys feel like they would be taking away success from others if they became successful. However, thinking in that way doesn't do anyone any good.

If you are a good guy and want to help others when you become successful, then do that. However, you're not going to have much to offer if you're just another unsuccessful guy. So, go after what you want, become successful and then do whatever kind deeds you want to do when you are in a better position to do so.

If you feel ashamed of being successful or feel like you don't deserve it, the world won't come knocking at your door to hand you huge success. In this world, you have to stand and go after what you want, otherwise you get pushed aside by others who are more assertive than you are.

Being an assertive guy and going after what you want not only leads you to having a much more enjoyable and exciting life, but it also makes women feel naturally attracted to you. Women love a guy who isn't afraid to go after what he wants.

The Blind Date Survival Guide

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

A blind date is when you go on a first date with a woman you don't know.

Usually, a friend or coworkerÂ arranges for you to meet aÂ women they know who is single and looking to find a guy like you.

It all sounds good in theory, but in most cases the woman you're set up with isn't very attractive. Why? If she was, she wouldn't need to go on a blind date.

About 20% of the time,Â you will get lucky and be introduced to a beautiful, emotional stable girl, but from all the cases I've heard of over the years, 80% of the women arriving to blind dates are unattractive or a bit on the crazy side, which explains why theyÂ can't get a date on theirÂ own.

Don't Agree to Meet Her Before Seeing aÂ Few Recent Photos

In the past, blind dates really were blind. Most people didn't have cameras and photos weren't taken as often as they are today.

However, nowadays, each women has plenty of photos of herself, so before agreeing to meet her, make sure you see a few recent photos of her. If you can, make sure you check out photos that show her full body.

Start Off With a Brief Date

If your blind date turns out to be boring, weird or unattractive, pre-planning an entire evening with her will be a mistake. Instead of committing to a long date, have an exit plan by set up a Quickie Date (i.e. a one hour date/meet up).

That way, it won't be awkward when the hour ends and you say, "Okay cool, well it's been nice to meet you. I'm going to head off now. Good luck with your stamp collecting project – that sounds interesting."

You've helped out a friend, weren't rude to your date and only had to hang out with her for an hour or so. On the other hand, if she is beautiful and you are compatible, it will be an acknowledgement from both of you that you like one another if you want to keep the date going as long as possible.

Setting up the Date

Be sure that the person who is setting you up for a blind date, first lets the woman know that you will be calling her to say hi. When you call her, simply introduce yourself and remind her about who suggested that you call her.

Have a chat with her first and get to know her over the phone for at least five minutes before setting up a time and place to meet. Don't call it a date; just refer to it as you and her catching up to say hi. Keep it casual and relaxed, rather than formal and serious.

Being the man, you should have a few ideas ready about where to meet her. Don't ask her to take the lead and suggest meet up places for you. It's usually best to choose a lounge bar or café that will be close to where you both live or work.

Just say something like, "Okay cool...so, you're working in the city. How about we meet at XYZ bar on XZY Street?"

It's totally fine to discuss different venues with her and be accommodating, but just make sure that you have location suggestions ready, rather than expecting her to think of everything. Women like to relax into the masculine direction of a man, rather than having to take on the masculine role themselves.

On the Date

The most important things to remember for any date that you go on with a woman are:

Attraction: Just like you want to have sex with women that you are sexually attracted to, a woman wants to feel sexually attracted to you. So, make sure that you make her feel attraction for you by being confident, masculine (in how you think, behave and take action) and by flirting with her.

Relaxation: Always aim to make a first date feel like you're hanging out, relaxing and having a good time. Don't ruin the vibe by turning it into a serious interview type date. Just relax and enjoy the time that you're spending together. If she feels relaxed and comfortable on a date with you, she will be much more interested in seeing you again.

Conversation: Keep the conversation fun, interesting and light. Express your real personality, rather than being overly formal or trying to be perfect.

What to Do if You Don't Like Her

If you find yourself on a crappy blind date with a woman who just doesn't interest you, simply tell her the things that you like about her as a person and then tell her that you're happy to just be friends.

For example: "You seem like a great girl. You're very pretty, intelligent and interesting. I will be honest though, I don't think we are a match, but we could be friends. I'd rather be honest with you now, so we neither of us leave this catch up wondering what to do next."

Even if you don't think she is a great person or pretty, it's good manners to at least compliment her. That way, you won't ruin the relationship you have with your friend or coworker.

If you are asked, "Why don't you think we're a compatible match?" you can simply say, "I can just sense it. I'd rather be honest with you now than pretend that I want to start a relationship. You're a great girl and you deserve an honest response from me."

Approaching and Picking Up Women That You Choose

[image: Approaching women in a bar]

Blind dates are great if you are actually set up with beautiful women. However, in most cases the woman won't be exactly what you're looking for. If you do happen to start a relationship with her, it might be cool to have sex for a while, but imagine getting her pregnant and then being stuck with her for life.

If you want to live a happy life with a woman of your choosing, I don't recommend that you leave it to chance. The best approach to success with women is to have the confidence and skills to approach and pick up women that YOU find attractive. When you're out looking for a woman in a bar or club for example, you have control over which women you approach.

If you want to end up with a beautiful girlfriend or wife (or just have sex with hot women) only approach women that you feel a lot of physical attraction for. Don't approach ugly or unattractive women because you think they are easy targets because you will end up having sex with some of them.

If you accidentally get a woman pregnant and you don't feel much attraction for her, then you're stuck with her for life. She is most-likely going to be a huge part of your life from now on.

So, choose women wisely. Don't accept a woman that you're not attracted to.

Would You Like to Have More Choice With Women?

I can provide you with conversation and attraction techniques that make pretty much ANY woman you meet want to date and have sex with you. When you use my revolutionary approach to women, you will have your choice of beautiful women.

Most of the woman that you meet will feel attracted to you and will be interested in taking things to the next level. My approach literally makes women begin to flood into your life.Â Ready to begin?

Will She Ever Want to Be Your Girlfriend?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Okay, so there's a girl that you really like, but for some reason you can't seem to get her to feel the same way about you. She is friendly with you and she likes you, but she doesn't want to have a sexual relationship with you, right?

So, what is really going on?

2 Common Mistakes That Turn Women Off Having Sex With a Guy

When a guy has a crush on a girl and really likes her, he usually makes the following mistakes that stop the girl from wanting anything other than a friendship.

1. He is way too nice to her

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but it's not the thing that will make her want to have sex with you or be your girlfriend. Why? Watch the video below for the answer...

2. He is too easy to impress

If a woman is attractive, most of the guys that see her will be willing to have sex with her. Many of those will also be willing to have a relationship with her.

Why? A man's initial attraction to a woman is mostly based on her physical appearance. If a woman looks good, most guys will be willing to have sex with her, which then leads the woman to be more attracted to guys who offer her a bit of a challenge.

Using the Wrong Approach on a Woman Almost Always Leads to a Rejection

[image: Unless you first attract a woman, she will usually reject you regardless of how much interest you show in her.]

If you don't start by making a woman feel attracted to you first, she will almost always reject you when you show interest in kissing her, having sex with her or being her boyfriend.

You absolutely have to start with attraction. Attraction comes first and everything else follows that. When a guy attempts to seduce a woman incorrectly (i.e. by being a nice guy, pretending to be an innocent friend and then eventually asking her out), he will usually get one of the following responses:

- "Sorry...I'm not looking for a relationship right now."
- "I like you, but don't rush me."
- "Give me some time. I don't know what I want right now."
- "I only like you as a friend."
- "I don't want to ruin our friendship."

So, what does she mean by those statements?

She is trying to tell you that she doesn't feel sexually attracted to you. She might like you as a person, but liking a guy in a friendly way isn't what makes a woman want to have sex with him.

Sexual attraction is what makes a woman want to have sex and unless you are making her feel that, anything that you say about "seeing each other" or "dating" or "going out" will seem weird, awkward and even wrong to her.

If you try to get a woman into a relationship before you've even made her feel sufficient sexual attraction for you, she might also say that you're "coming on too strong." It will feel strange to her that you're wanting her to commit to being your girlfriend, even though you haven't kissed her or had sex with her yet.

In the early 1900s, approaching women in that way was the right thing to do because almost all women didn't have sex before marriage. In today's world, you have to make a woman feel attracted to you and then at least kiss her (but preferably have sex with her first), before you even get to talking about seeing each other again or starting a relationship.

Today's women don't need men like women did in the past and unless you know how to properly attract women, most women will reject you. The flow of a sexual courtship HAS changed and if you use the approach that men used in the early 1900s, you can expect to be rejected almost every time.

Using the Right Approach on a Woman Almost Always Leads to Success

[image: Make her chase you]

If your current approach to the woman you like hasn't been working, you have to stop doing that and start doing what will actually work.

Here's what you need to do:

1. Focus on attracting her

Stop trying to get this woman to LIKE you as a person and start making her feel sexually ATTRACTED to you. A woman liking you as a person is not the step before starting a sexual relationship with her.

If you want this woman to feel sexual feelings and want to begin a sexual relationship, you have to make her feel sexually attracted to you. If she only likes you as a friend, another guy can come along and instantly take her from you by making her feel sexually attracted to him.

2. Adjust your interest level

It is fine to be 100% sexually attracted to a woman that you're seducing, but it is not fine to be 100% interested in her prior to starting a sexual relationship.

Instead of being 100% interested (otherwise known as "being too keen"), allow your interest level in her to rise and fall based on how well she is treating you. For instance, if you're talking to her and she only gives short answers or says, "Uh-huh...uh-huh" and doesn't even care what you're saying, then stop talking to her.

Pull back your interest and do something else.

Don't reward her bad behavior with increased interest. If she isn't behaving in the way that you want, pull back your interest. That is an example of the challenging behavior that women LOVE from guys.

3. Stop acting like a friend

[image: I've been a great friend to her for months, but she doesn't want to have sex with me. Bitch!]

Being a woman's nice friend is not the way to become her lover or boyfriend.

You've got to talk to her in a way that makes her feel turned on, as well as directly show your sexual interest (e.g. by the way you look at her) or express it, (e.g. by smiling at her and telling her that you think she's sexy).

If you act like a friend, you will be in the friend zone with her and all it will take for another guy to steal her from you is for him to attract her, kiss her and then have sex with her. If the guy knows what he is doing and doesn't make the mistake of acting like an innocent friend who isn't sexually interested in her, he will usually begin having sex with her right away.

4. Make her chase you

Women want to feel LUCKY to be chosen by YOU.

They do not want to feel as though they are doing you a favor by going out with you. To make a woman chase you, she first has to feel attracted to you. From there, you need to raise and lower your interest level based on how good she is being to you. You also need to be confident so that other women feel attracted to you and she notices it.

When women see that other women are attracted to you, their attraction for you skyrockets. It's just how a woman's brain works, so use it to your advantage.

We men usually decide if we want to have sex with a woman based on her appearance alone, but women take many different factors into account, including whether or not other women like you. If a woman senses that you are desperate and can't attract other women, she won't feel special or lucky to be with you.

She will feel as though you only like her so much because other women aren't interested in. She will then feel like she'd be doing you a favor by hooking up with you, which will turn her off on a deep level.

How and When to First Kiss a Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

For most women, the first kiss you share is something that she'll not only always remember, but something that she'll look to as an indicator of how enjoyable your sexual relationship will be.

When you have a first kiss with a woman, you need to:

Display confidence: You can do this by the way you look her in the eyes, the way you touch her body and how relaxed you are about kissing her.

Display masculinity: You can be masculine in the way you touch her (e.g. with masculine passion and assertiveness) and the masculine facial expressions you make (e.g. when you pull back and look her in the eyes).

Provide a varied experience: Don't just keep kissing or touching her in the same manner. Mix it up with gentle, light kissing and touching and then with passionate, assertive kissing and touching.

Pause sometimes to look her in the eye, or to stop kissing and just relax together (without looking her in the eyes) with a hug or just by kicking back in the chair, on the sofa, bed, etc.

Choosing the Right Time and Place

[image: First kiss]

Some women will be open to kissing you immediately, within seconds or within minutes of meeting you. This usually happens in bars and nightclubs where women tend to be more relaxed and carefree about hooking up with guys.

Women who are open to kissing you very quickly after meeting you are almost always open to having a one night stand (sex on the first night) as well. However, if you're looking to have a great first kiss with a woman you already know (e.g. a coworker, a woman you're going on a date with, etc), you will usually need to do it at the right time and the right place.

For example: During your first date, the first kiss may take place in the corner of a dimly lit lounge bar, in your car, on her doorstep, in her apartment (or yours) or anyplace else where you have enough privacy.

Most guys don't really care about what people will think if they kiss a woman in public, but some girls are pretty particular about it. Unless she is giving you clear signals that she wants to kiss you in public, just kiss her when you have enough privacy away from prying eyes.

If you do attempt to kiss her in public and she says no, just say, "Oh, okay I understand. You don't like to kiss in public, right?" and she will say yes and the awkwardness will be immediately diffused.

In most cases, her saying no doesn't mean you have been rejected. It simply means that it's either not the right type, or she is testing your confidence in yourself. She wants to feel more attracted to you, so she will test your confidence and if you maintain your confidence rather than getting nervous, it will turn her on even more.

“Chick Flick” Lessons

While most Hollywood movies will give you the WRONG idea about what women really want in a man, the kissing scenes are usually spot on.

For example: One of the things you will often see is that the first kiss appears to take place in slow motion because that's how most women like it. When a woman fantasizes about experiencing a romantic, fairy tale type kiss, she imagines a confident guy holding her, looking her in the eyes and then slowly moving in for the kiss.

It takes a lot of confidence to kiss a woman like that and if you can pull it off, she will see you as her very own Prince Charming. As you may know, confidence is the number one trait in men that causes women to feel sexual attraction. The more confidence you can display to a woman, the more she will feel attracted to you.

Don't Ask For Permission to Kiss Her

Women hate it when a guy lacks so much confidence in himself or lacks the emotional intelligence to notice her signals that he ASKS for permission to kiss her. “Can you I kiss you?” or “Do you want to kiss me?” are questions that you do not need to ask.

If she is giving you signals, then she is giving you permission to kiss her, so just move in and do it.

Yes, I know that moving in for a kiss is scary for some guys because they are worried about being rejected. Yet, if you want a woman to be amazed and feel intense attraction for you, you must demonstrate confidence.

Women are attracted to the strength in men (e.g. confidence, mental and emotional masculinity) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. nervousness, self-doubt). By moving in for a kiss, you are demonstrating that you are confident and masculine, which is attractive to women.

The reward you get for demonstrating that type of confidence and masculinity is that a woman feels so much more attraction for you than she would for a guy who is self-doubting. She feels lucky to have scored herself an alpha male who isn't afraid to take action and go after what he wants. That type of alpha male behavior is deeply attractive to women.

Do It Right

[image: Make the first kiss memorable]

Okay, so the moment has and you and your woman are standing close together, looking into each other's eyes and wanting to kiss. Gently, but firmly reach around her waist and pull her closer to you. If you're sitting, gently but firmly reach around her neck to pull her in for a kiss or if you're sitting close, cup her face with your hand(s) when you kiss her.

Look her in the eyes and smile confidently for a second or two and then lean in for the kiss. You can start by lightly brushing her lips with yours and then softly moving your mouth along her neck and/or cheeks. This will make her heart begin to race and she will become excited that her romantic fantasies are coming to life.

After the introductory kiss, you may find that you and her begin passionately kissing. If she doesn't rush to do that and instead wants to enjoy more of your sensual seduction, head back up to her lips for a soft, romantic kiss that lasts about five to ten seconds. Then pull back a bit and look her in the eyes with a completely relaxed, confident smile.

If you've kissed her the way I'm suggesting, she'll be pulling you in for another kiss immediately or at very least, she will hug you tightly as though she's falling in love. You can then turn the kiss into a more passionate, energetic kiss where you begin rubbing your hands all over her body.

The Goodbye Kiss

If you're not confident enough to move in for a first kiss, you can at least do what I call, The Goodbye Kiss.

When leaving or parting ways (e.g. at the end of a date, when you're leaving the bar or nightclub), tell her to kiss you by saying, "Okay, well it's been good meeting you. Let's have a kiss goodbye. Give me a kiss on the cheek" and point to your cheek. Lean in and offer your cheek to her.

About 85% of girls will giggle and immediately give you a kiss. The 15% who don't usually just need a bit of extra encouraging like, "Oh, it's just a goodbye kiss on the cheek. Come here – give me a kiss goodbye." By saying that, you will raise the percentage of women who kiss your cheek up to 95%.

After she kisses one cheek, turn your head and point to your other cheek and say, "Okay, and one more here." Then point to your lips, "...and one on the lips." If you have attracted her enough during the interaction, most women will give you all three kisses.

From there, many of those kisses will turn into a full on make out session or even sex that day/night.

Do Women Respond Negatively to You?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Most guys get shot down and rejected when they first start approaching women because it seems like an easy thing to do.

Yet, to successfully approach and pick up a woman, you have to have a certain skill set. You have to know how to be confident around women, you have to know how to talk to women and you have to know how to attract women. Without those those skills, you will rarely get positive results with women.

If a guy doesn't have the skill set required to approach women (e.g. doesn't know what to say, doesn't know how to flirt with women and create a sexual vibe, doesn't know how to pass a woman's tests), he will be rejected by almost every woman he approaches.

After getting rejected a few times, a guy will usually give up and begin to develop insecurities about why women might not like him (e.g. not good looking enough, rich enough, tall enough, athletic enough, etc).

Even though he often notices average, below-average or even "ugly" looking guys with beautiful women, he only wants to pay attention to the things that help reinforce his insecurities (e.g. he only remembers the times he has seen a beautiful woman with a good looking guy, or when he has overheard a woman saying that she only dates hot guys).

How about you?

Maybe you are one of the intelligent guys who understand that most women choose men for reasons OTHER than looks, money, height and muscles. You have seen average, below-average or even "ugly" looking guys who aren't successful in life with a sexy woman as a lover, girlfriend or wife.

Yet, if that is true, why aren't you getting the same positive results that other guys are getting with women?

Are those guys getting lucky, or are they using attraction techniques that you are simply unaware of? Is it possible that you may have a few things to learn about women before you can start getting the results you want?

Do Women Feel Compatible Enough With You?

[image: How to Avoid Awkward Silences]

Often, the reason why a woman will responded "negatively" towards you is that she just doesn't feel like compatible with you based on how you are making her feel. For example: If your conversation style is boring or if you are focussing more on being friendly than creating a sexual vibe via flirting, then she isn't going to be very interested.

You may be compatible with her in many ways, but if you can't make her feel emotionally turned on during a conversation, then she will find it difficult to maintain her interest in you. Something just won't feel right to her. She will like you, but since your conversation style is boring or is lacking a sexual vibe, she will assume that a relationship with you or having sex with you may be boring too.

Women in the Year 1900 vs. Today

[image: Women: 1900 vs. Today]

These days, if a guy doesn't know how to attract women properly, he will have a hard time getting laid or getting a girlfriend. Why? Women don't NEED men like they used to.

In the early 1900s for example, most women couldn't earn their own money and needed a man to support them. Back then, society expected women to remain a virgin, find a man, marry him, lose her virginity, make children, raise the children, cook and clean for the man and then die.

Today, society tells women to do what ever they want to do. Women are free to have sex, focus on a career and put off marriage and childbirth for as long as they want. As a result of this change, women play harder to get. If a guy doesn't know what he's doing in terms of attraction and escalating to sex, women will just ignore him and hook up with a guy who does.

A guy who doesn't understand how to attract and hook up with women will feel as though most women don't like him. However, the truth is that most women would like him if he approached the sexual courtship correctly. Yet, since he isn't doing it right, the woman just doesn't feel like he's a compatible match.

3 Common MistakesÂ Guys Make That Cause Women to React Negatively

Here are some common mistakes that guys make, which almost guarantee that the woman will respond negatively:

1. Being Too Nice

[image: I'll be 100 times nicer than all the other guys...THEN women will like me!]

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but being too nice to her in the hope that she LIKES you is a problem.

When interacting with a woman, you have to first make her feel SEXUAL ATTRACTION for you and then you can get her to like you as a person. The classic mistake of a nice guy is that he tries to get girls to LIKE him as a person and then hope that the woman then wants to have sex with him because of that.

[image: Fuck you bitch. I'm a nice guy]

Being a nice guy or a friend to a woman is NOT the step before sex. As you would have seen, guys who know what they are doing with women can walk up to a woman and be kissing her within minutes and then have sex with her that night. It's not about being a bad boy, being a jerk or an asshole – it's about making the woman feel sexual attraction for you, while ALSO being a good guy.

[image: I've been a great friend to her for months, but she doesn't want to have sex with me. Bitch!]

If you're just a nice guy and that's all you've got to offer a woman, 99% of women will reject you. They just won't be interested because they've experienced that boring, confused approach from men all their life.

She wants to feel the excitement and pleasure of sexual attraction. Once a woman feels sexual attraction for a guy, everything else about him that is good or interesting becomes so much more special to her.

2. Trying Too Hard to Impress

[image: I really care about you. Please give me a chance to be with you. I will do anything you ask]

Women are funny creatures. They will go around acting as though they want men to impress them, but will then lust after guys who don't try to impress them.

Weird huh?

Well, it actually makes total sense when you know what I know about women. Women don't want to lead us men, but they will act as though they expect men to bow down to them. Why? It's a test to see which guys are the alpha males.

As you would have seen in nature, females are always the most attracted to alpha males in the animal kingdom. The same applies to humans; women are most attracted to alpha males. Acting as though they expect men to try hard to impress them serves as a test to identify the lower ranking males who are willing to submit to the leadership of women in the hope of getting laid.

Alpha males simply laugh at any tests that women put them through. It's not about disrespecting women, but knowing that you are ALREADY good enough. When YOU believe that you are already good enough for the woman you are interacting with, SHE will believe it too.

She will test you (e.g. by acting as though she isn't interested, teasing you, playing hard to get, etc), but if you remain confident and continue to believe that you deserve her, she will eventually let down her guard and hook up with you.

This process can happen within 20 seconds to 2 hours, but it always ends up the same way: You kissing her, then having sex with her and then deciding whether or not to start a relationship with her. That is how alpha males hook up with women.

On the other hand, the guys who get a negative reaction from women are those who try so hard to impress them. Women instinctively know that guys who try hard to impress them are not alpha males. An insecure guy who is trying to get the approval of women (i.e. looking to women as being the leaders of the dating scene, the choosers, the alphas) is a lower ranking male.

If he was alpha, he would simply talk to a woman and KNOW that he is ALREADY good enough for her, regardless of what he does for a living, what he looks like or any other superficial thing. He knows that his confidence and masculinity (i.e. how he thinks, behaves and takes action in life) is more than enough to attract almost any woman he meets.

3. Being Nervous and Self-Doubting Around Her

Women are attracted to the strength in men (e.g. confidence, mental and emotional masculinity) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. nervousness, self-doubt, anxiety). This is why you will often see average, below-average and even "ugly" guys with beautiful women.

If the guy is confident enough, he will be able to attract and pick up many women (not all) purely based on their attraction to his confidence and emotional masculinity. However, if a guy lacks confidence, most women will not be interested in him and may even respond negatively if he persists in trying to get a woman to LIKE him, rather than feel attracted to him.

Women are always scanning a guy's body language, actions, vibe, conversation and behavior to assess his confidence level. If a woman spots holes in your confidence and realizes that you are an insecure guy who is simply putting on an act of being confident, she will reject you.

Why Do Some Women Play Hard to Get?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Two of the most common reasons that a woman will play hard to get with a guy are:

1. He's not being enough of a challenge for her.
2. He's being really nice to her and expecting to be rewarded with sex, love and relationship because of it.

Watch these two videos to understand how it works...

Playing Hard to Get is Beneficial For Her

Women aren't stupid. Well, most aren't.

When a woman plays hard to get, she knows that it will be much more beneficial to her than being too easy to pick up.

A woman will play hard to get because it will allow her to find a very confident guy (confidence is irresistibly attractive to women) and it will usually make guys want her more and value her higher than other guys.

Guys will say, "This girl is special. I really like her. She's not like other girls. I really want to be with her" because the woman will be making herself out to be the prize to be won. She is placing a lot of value on herself and because the majority of guys don't know how to counter that, they fall right into her trap.

Playing Hard to Get Protects Her From Getting Hurt Too Easily

At some point in her life, a woman will be told by friends or family members that if she agrees to go out with a guy too quickly, she might appear "easy" and the guy will lose interest.

A woman who plays hard to get will often hide her true feelings and get a guy working hard to keep her attention because she is insecure about her attractiveness. Most guys don't realize that the majority of women are insecure about their looks, even if they behave as though they are confident.

According to a global study on beauty conducted by Dove Cosmetics, 96% of women do not consider themselves to be beautiful.

In other words, women ACT like they are hot stuff and that a guy would be so lucky to be with them, but deep down, almost all women are insecure about their attractiveness to guys. A lot of this has to do with the way that women are presented in magazines, porn and advertisements.

A modern woman will look at women in magazines and porn and realize that she looks NOTHING like that unless she really puts a lot of effort in to pile on loads of make up and keep body in perfect shape. Every little pimple/blemish or bit of cellulite makes a woman feel that little bit more insecure about herself.

She will hide it by ACTING confident, but she knows that she's not perfect.

[image: Blonde before and after make up]

[image: Blonde before and after make up]

[image: Dark blonde before and after make up]

[image: Brunette before and after make up]

[image: Brunette before and after make up]

She Has Been Hurt or Tricked By Guys Before

Some women are guarded because they have been hurt by an ex-boyfriend, or may have been quickly dumped once a man was able to attract her and get her interested. For these men, they're playing the "Can I get her?" game and once they do, they lose interest.

It might also be that while a man has never showed this type of behavior to her, her friends have been the victim of men playing these types of games and she wants to make sure it doesn't happen to her.

[image: Lonely women]

To avoid being hurt by you, some women will play hard to get to hopefully make you feel more desperate to be with her.

She will attempt to make sure that you are truly interested in a possible relationship with her, before she fully opens herself up to you. Unfortunately, in most of these cases, men go too far when trying proving themselves and end up turning the woman off by becoming desperate and being too keen.

The best strategy is NOT to try to convince her to like you or pour your heart out to her and explain how much you like her. The best strategy is to get her chasing you and desperately trying to be your girlfriend.

Get her to become so attracted and interested in you that she blurts out her feelings for you. Don't let her play you with her games because if you get sucked in by it and become needy, insecure and desperate, that will actually turn her off.

She is Tired of How Other Guys Approach Her

[image: Women with their guard up]

Many women, especially beautiful women, get hit on all of the time. In most cases, they get approached by men who try to amaze them with a pick up line or by guys who are too nervous, too eager or too awkward.

After a while, they have an automatic response ready to reject guys and ask to be left alone. A woman will rarely meet a guy who can approach and talk to her in a confident, easy-going manner while also being able to make her feel attracted to him. When she does meet a guy like that, she immediately opens up to him.

If you want to be successful at approaching and meeting women, you've got to drop all the bullshit and acting. You've got to be real, easy-going and confident. Don't put on an act, don't think that women are stupid and will be amazed by a pick up line and don't put too much pressure on the interaction.

Just be the cool, confident guy that you are and have a fun, interesting conversation with the women.

She Plays Mind Games Because it Works

[image: I really care about you. Please give me a chance to be with you. I will do anything you ask]

Let's face it, playing hard to get works for many women. There are a lot of desperate men who will do pretty much anything to get some attention from women. What these guys don't realize is that women are attracted to the strength in men (e.g. confidence, masculinity) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. desperation, self-doubt, insecurity).

Begging and pleading a woman to give you a chance never works. Spending hours trying to convince her to like you doesn't work either. What works is making her feel sexually attracted to you by being confident and masculine around her.

Many women use the desperation of guys to increase their self-confidence. They eat up all the compliments offered and try to use that to feel confident enough around guys who actually make them feel attraction.

Remember: 96% of women don't think they are beautiful. They make ACT as though they are the hottest girl in the world, but they do not believe that. Most women you meet are insecure about their looks.

Give Her Some of Her Own Medicine

[image: Make her chase you]

One of the best ways to win over a girl who is playing hard to get, is to simply turn the tables on her. Get her chasing you and hoping to win you over.

How to get her chasing you:

1. Attract her by being confident and masculine.
2. Make her feel girly in response to your masculinity.
3. Flirt with her and create a sexual vibe.
4. Be 100% attracted to her, but do not be 100% interested in her.
5. Allow your interest level in her to rise and fall based on how well she treats you.
6. When she begins treating you well, don't show intense interest. Just let your interest rise slowly.
7. The nicer she is to you and the more interest she shows, the more you reward her by slowly raising your interest level.

I've used that approach to sleep with models and women who usually reject 99% of the men who try to pick them up. Women LOVE being put in the position where they feel lucky to be with you. Beautiful women are usually bored to death of guys who are desperate to get a chance with her. She wants to have the feeling that she is winning you over.

Lessons from “The Bachelor”

You might have heard of or watched the reality television show called “The Bachelor.” The basic premise is that 25 beautiful women vie for the attention of one man, The Bachelor, in the hopes of finding a husband.

During the course of the show, “The Bachelor” dates the women to find out who he likes until he’s left with two women, one of whom he supposedly proposes marriage to or at least suggests that they enter into a monogamous relationship after the show ends.

What makes the show so interesting is how these beautiful women (who would normally play hard to get in a one on one situation) behave as they try to win “The Bachelor’s” heart.

It’s a fact of nature (even if women deny it to your face) that women are more attracted to men who other liked and wanted by other women. In the case of The Bachelor show, they want to be the girl he chooses for several reasons (e.g. fame, feel special on TV, beat the other women, etc), but the fundamental instinct of being attracted to men that other women want is a huge driver.

You can have the same effect on women in the real world. Instead of being the super keen guy who hopes to be chosen by women, get women hoping to be chosen by you. Be the sort of guy that women want (i.e. confident, masculine, real) and just believe in yourself. Allow your interest in women to rise and fall based on how they are treating you.

If you are behaving in an attractive way, most or all of the women will show signs of interest in you. When a woman notices that all the other women in the group are interested in you as well, she will become desperate to win your attention.

When her friends see that, their attraction for you will rise as well. It’s pretty cool how it works. Just make sure that you remain humble and don’t get big-headed about it though.

Just smile, relax and know that most women like you and want to be with you. It’s an awesome way to live life and it makes the dating process simple and effortless...

Do Women Like Sex as Much as Men?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

I'm often asked if women enjoy sex as much as men and the short is yes, but it's not as simple as that.

We know that most men love sex and many are ready, willing, and able to enjoy sex with a variety of women. Yet with women, the answer to the sex question isn't so simple. While most women enjoy sex very much, getting a woman to the stage of wanting to have sex works differently than it does for men. And that's what we're going to explore here.

Watch this video to learn how attraction between man and women really works...

Men and Women Are 'Wired' Differently

Men are biologically hard-wired to procreate and therefore, they not only think about sex regularly and masturbate more often than women, but they are also continually on the hunt for almost any desirable woman willing to engage in sex.

Women, on the other hand, generally think about the sex act less frequently, masturbate less than men do and are more particular about whom they have sex with.

Men are primarily and very quickly aroused by the physical attractiveness of a woman. From that type of attraction, a man can decide in milliseconds whether or not he wants to have sex with her. However, before a woman can engage in an enjoyable sex act with a man, she usually needs to be emotionally attracted to him.

Generally speaking, women mentally assess their potential sex partners as possible life partners as well. They tend to mentally determine how a man would be as a possible husband and father. Not only are women wired that way, but most are often raised with a 'fairy tale' mentality where the next guy she meets might be her 'Prince Charming.'

When meeting an attractive woman, a lot of men instantly think, "You're hot! I want to have sex with you!" When women meet a guy they like, they think, "You're funny and charming. I think you might be 'the one' so let's make love and see where this goes."

A (Somewhat) More Open Society

It's been socially acceptable for unattached men to go out and have sex with as many women as possible for hundreds of years in most cultures. However, until the last few decades, any woman who engaged in pre-marital sex was shunned and in some strict cultures could even be murdered for engaging in sex before marriage.

And while for most of the world that mentality has changed dramatically and sexually active women are no longer considered to be 'sluts' or other derogatory terms (whore, an easy lay, etc.) if they have sex with a man other than their husband, there is still some social pressure for a woman to be 'a good girl' and not to have sex indiscriminately.

So some women will still play 'hard to get' just so that the man (and her family and friends) don't lose respect for her.

It's Also About 'Chemistry'

[image: Sexual chemistry makes women want sex just as much as you do]

Getting to the act of sex involves establishing a critical step in connecting with each other called 'chemistry,' which many men fail to realize when trying to attract women for sex or a relationship. In this context, it is about the physical chemistry that happens internally in the human's body with the production of testosterone.

Men and pre-menopausal women (all women between 13 to about 50) both produce testosterone but the amount of testosterone levels in women is considerably lower than men. Testosterone plays a great part in a person's libido (their sex drive). With so much testosterone running through a man's body and such a high libido, his need for sex is greater than a woman's.

Since women produce less of this drug, in addition to testosterone and estrogen, they often require other stimulants to get their libido going. And that's where their emotional chemistry comes into play, which is why a woman will often subconsciously play the "Can he be the one?" game with herself before engaging in sex with a man.

Understanding this reality of the human mating dance will allow you to approach women in a more effective manner, allowing her the opportunity to feel you emotionally before trying to escalate to sex.

Orgasm as the 'Payoff'

More than 75% of men will have an orgasm when having sex. On the other hand, women will achieve an orgasm during sex less than 25% of the time unless special care is taken by the man and woman to increase her chances to climax.

Since she understands that she likely won't reach an orgasm, when a woman enjoys sex it's often more about the closeness she may feel by the physical contact and emotional connection with a man she's mentally and physically attracted to.

But here's the interesting thing that modern men need to know. Women generally have a great ability to 'fool' themselves when determining if a man might be 'the one' her future husband, long-term lover or the like.

So if she likes a charming, funny guy she can mentally psych herself up to want to jump into bed with him by fooling herself that he can be a long or short term relationship. Although women refer to men who have this effect as 'womanizers' or 'charmers,' they certainly do not stop themselves from having sex or falling in love with these men.

The One-Night Stand

So, if a woman thinks that she might not have an orgasm and/or that a man might not be 'the one' but she's still attracted to him, why would she still be open and willing to engage in a one-night stand with him?

There are a couple of reasons for this.

Many women, even beautiful women, often suffer from low self-esteem (Really, it's true. It is a documented fact that women are twice as likely to experience depression as men.) and are flattered that a man they're attracted to would want to take them to bed and make love to them.

It can be that she's come off a bad relationship where she was treated poorly or suffered a recent heartbreak and wants to mentally 'get back' at the guy who broke her heart.

It also can be as simple as a woman being horny from a lack of recent, satisfying sex and needing sexual release without all of the drama of having a relationship. This is the most common type of woman you'll encounter when you have one night stands.

Today the majority of women have as many business, home and social obligations as men do and don't have the time, energy or desire to go out and find a guy for any relationship that lasts longer than breakfast.

So they are often ready and eager to find a bedmate that can 'do the job' for the night (or the afternoon), so she can get back to her 'real life.' And that's a huge plus for guys who also might be more interested in getting it on, getting off and then getting out without the drama.

These women just want to find guys who can literally charm the panties off of them and who appear to be someone who can give her 'a good ride' by being funny, confidently sexy, and slightly aggressive (not pushy).

These relationships can last one evening, become a perfect connection for a booty call when one or the other just wants sex or they eventually can turn into a lifetime, committed relationship if the chemistry and compatibility is there between you.

So the answer to the question of "Do women like sex as much as men?" the answer is you may have to work a little harder to get her into bed, but once you and you do it right, she'll thank you.

The Fear of Success

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Are you letting the fear of success steal your life away from you, day by day?

Are you going after what you really want with women and in life, or are you hiding from it because you're afraid of failing?

To some people, it may seem strange to think that a man could fear success so much that he avoids becoming successful in many areas of his life. After all, what man wouldn't want to have a great job, a loving relationship with a beautiful woman and achieve anything else in his life that he desired?

Although success brings more happiness and fulfilment to a man's life, fear of success is one of the primary reasons why men steer clear of going after what they really want.

In the case of a beautiful woman, a man will often avoid approaching her and picking her up because he fears that begins a relationship with her, he won't be able to keep her happy.

Instead of facing his fears of approaching women, he will wait in the shadows in the hope of "getting lucky" and will accept a woman that he isn't truly happy with.

Are You Afraid of Success?

[image: Fear of success]

In most cases, success means that you need to do things that are not familiar to you, which can make you afraid. To get what you really want, you might have to step outside of your comfort zone and talk to high status business people or to beautiful women and the cool crowd.

For you, success might mean that you have to take on bigger responsibilities, take more of a leading role at work or around friends, or you may have to do things that you've only ever fantasized about being able to do.

As you imagine being successful, you then begin to fear that if you become too successful it will then change the relationship you have with friends or family members, because you might have less time to spend with them or they may become jealous of your accomplishments and resent you.

For instance, if you suddenly become more successful at meeting attractive women or finding a great girlfriend, you may fear that your friends who don't have your level of skill with women might feel uncomfortable around you.

Perhaps if you start to earn more money, you might assume that your friends will either resent you or try to take advantage of your new wealth.

You may also believe that you don't deserve real success or that if you get that new job you want, you might not be able to accomplish everything that's expected of you. So, why even bother?

If you succeed in your love life, you may fear that you don't have the skills to build and maintain a relationship with the quality woman you have attracted. So, why even talk to her?

There are many reasons why you might fear success, but let me ask you this: Do you really think it is an intelligent thing to do to let your fears be stronger than your desire to succeed?

Do you feel as though hiding in fear is better than being a true success and enjoying all the benefits that come with it? Would you rather let this life pass you by or live this life to it's fullest?

Answering those questions is hard for someone who fears success because the fear is usually more powerful than the desire to succeed. Additionally, someone who hides from success usually doesn't know how good it feels to be successful.

One of the biggest differences between successful people and unsuccessful people is that successful people get EXCITED about any small step of progress they make towards their goal. Any little win fires them up even more and gives them more passion and drive.

Yet, unsuccessful people focus on their lack of success. Any little slip or mistake serves as additional fuel for their fear of success. They think, "See! I can't do this. I am hopeless. I will never be successful" and give life to the fear.

To kill fear, you have to stop giving it fuel. You have to give fuel to the fire of your desire. The bigger your desire, the easier it is to succeed now and in the long run.

Take the Test

If you have been making any of these mistakes, you have been adding fuel to the fire of your fear...

1. Procrastination

Do you spend too much time on unimportant things to delay doing the things that you actually need to do to be successful?

For instance, do you use your phone or computer to "check Facebook," read unimportant news or follow sports that you don't need to following all week long?

Do you watch a lot of TV or spend way too much time at the gym, when you should be putting some of that time towards achieving the long-term goals that you really want to achieve in life?

2. All Talk, No Action

Do you spend a lot of time talking or daydreaming about meeting a new woman, landing the job you want, getting a better education or wanting to live a healthier, more active lifestyle rather than putting in the time and effort to make it happen?

3. Self-Doubt

When you see a beautiful woman that you want to approach, do you sometimes think, "She'd never go out with a guy like me, so why should I even try to talk to her?"

When you think about getting a better job, do you sometimes think, "What's the point in even applying? There are so many applicants; I'll never get the job (or promotion) because they are most-likely going to be better than me."

4. Misplaced Guilt

When good things come your way, do you feel guilty that you got it and others didn't? Do you feel like you don't deserve to be successful, but you feel happy for others who succeed? When something good happens to you, does you sometimes feel like you shouldn't be that successful or lucky?

5. Laziness

Do you know what you should be doing, but just can't be bothered doing it because you're afraid that you won't succeed anyway? Have you become addicted to your laziness, to the point where you actually make yourself feel good for staying at home alone and not doing anything?

How do you think you will feel in 30 years time when you look back and realize that you wasted your life, while people around you have been getting ahead of you and enjoying life so much more?

5. Embarrassment

Do you know people who could help you to achieve your goals, but are too embarrassed to ask for their help? Have people offered to help you to accomplish something, but you then turned them down because you'd rather do it yourself?

Do you feel like you're most-likely going to fail, so you don't want anyone else to get involved because you will then let them down?

Entering the Unknown

You are always in control of how you perceive the world.

You can either look at the unknown (things you haven't done or things you don't know about) as a scary thing and then feel fearful about it, or you can look at the unknown as an exciting thing and feel exhilarated by it.

Remember when you first learned to drive a car? Getting behind the wheel for the first time was an example of you entering the unknown...but, guess what? You survived and you succeeded because your willingness to learn outweighed your fears. That's how you have to look at all of your possible success fears.

For example: This is how a guy can begin overcoming his fear of approaching women and then use his newfound confidence to approach and attract women that he chooses...

Overcoming your fear of success is simply a matter of understanding that if you have a strong enough desire to succeed, you will eventually get there and reach the level of life and experience you are aiming for.

It doesn't matter if you make mistakes along the way to success because EVERYBODY does. The most successful people in the world have made 100s, if not 1000s of mistakes to reach the success that they now feel so proud about.

The basic steps to become successful at something are:

1. Learn what you need to know.
2. Give yourself the time to practice and become better at whatever tasks are necessary to achieve what you want.
3. Don't give up at the first sign of difficulty or challenge.

No elite athlete, musician, actor, businessman or anyone you admire who is a success was born with all of the tools necessary to become great at what they do.

They learned, practiced, made mistakes, practiced some more, made whatever sacrifices were necessary and had enough self confidence and drive to eventually achieve greatness and succeed.

How willing are you to be successful?

Will you hide away in fear, or will you take control of your life and live it to the fullest while you still can?

7 Simple Ways to Achieve and Maintain a Positive Attitude

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

As you face the various challenges that life seems to throw at you, it may not feel so easy to maintain a positive attitude the entire time.

Yet, the truth is that you are in control of your attitude. You get to decide how you feel about things and the importance you place on certain events in your life.

For example: Some guys will feel negative, frustrated and annoyed while walking through a busy city, while other guys will feel positive, relaxed and happy in the same environment.

The difference between the guys is in how they think, feel and perceive the world around them.

Your attitude towards certain things is not fixed.

Think back to a time in your life when you hated something, which you then later loved or were more open and accepting of.

It doesn't matter what your attitude is right now (i.e. whether it's kind of positive or very negative), you CAN become a more positive, forward moving guy who feels more happiness and joy about life than you have in the past.

A Positive Attitude Gets You Places

Having a positive attitude is absolutely essential to achieving continued success in life.

You can achieve random successes with a negative attitude, but a positive attitude makes success a more regular, consistent part of your life.

It doesn't matter if you're looking for a job, approaching women that you find attractive or attempting a new sport or hobby; a positive attitude makes it so much more likely that you will succeed.

Women notice your confidence in yourself and potential employers feel your positivity and it has a magnetic effect. There is something about you that is more charismatic and enjoyable to be around compared to the negative guy they recently encountered.

Look on the bright side of things in life is a choice. You can focus on the negatives if you want, but it won't get you far. It may make you feel more intelligent than everyone else because they can't see the problems that you can, but you will feel like crap.

If you spend more time focusing on the negative side of life rather than the positive, you will naturally feel down and depressed. You may also feel a lack of motivation to take the action required to get the results you really want.

You just let life pass you by because in your mind, the world is all screwed up anyway. You don't understand why people are smiling so much or find reasons to be happy, when from your perspective, the world is going down the drain and we're all doomed.

If you want to get on the path to having and maintaining a more positive attitude, here are 7 ways to start....

1. Build a Mental Bridge

If you feel negative, insecure, fearful or anxious about a specific area of life, the best way to start feeling confident and positive about it is to use bridging mindsets.

A bridging mindset is where you create a bridge between your current negative mindsets and the positive mindset that you want to achieve.

For example: If you do a great job on a project at work and your boss compliments you, use that as an opportunity to add to your positive attitude about becoming successful in your career.

Negative mindset: “Yeah, big deal...I got congratulated. I’ll probably never get promoted anyway because the other guy has a degree and is better friends with the boss...it doesn’t matter how good of a job I do, I’m stuck in this position.”

Bridging mindset: “Cool! I’m great at what I do and the boss notices it. The better I do at other projects, the higher my chances are of being promoted in future. With every little improvement I make to my work, I get closer to reaching my goal of being promoted. I’m going to thank my boss for the compliment and ask him what else he would like to see from me at work.”

This type of thinking allows you to achieve and maintain a positive attitude. By using Bridging Mindsets you feel more inspired to go after what you want with more confidence and determination. After a while, you naturally think in a positive, confident and forward moving way and things really start to happen for you in life.

2. Get Positive Reinforcement From Successful People

While some men will get more benefit out of reading motivational books, others respond better to watching motivational videos, or listening to motivational CDs, radio talk shows or even online training.

Others may prefer to post positive motivational messages around their home, car and/or workplace. Ultimately it really doesn’t matter how you intake positive messages; it’s only important that you give yourself the gift of taking advantage of these helpful psychological tools because they do work.

Here are some positive reinforcement messages that should keep you focused on taking the action you need to succeed...

“Our greatest weakness lies in giving up. The most certain way to succeed is always to try just one more time” and “Many of life’s failures are people who did not realize how close they were to success when they gave up.” Thomas A. Edison (1847-1931. Inventor of the light bulb, phonograph, motion picture camera and many other important pieces of technology).

“Success is walking from failure to failure with no loss of enthusiasm.” Winston Churchill (1874-1965. Former Prime Minister of the United Kingdom)

“Believe that you can and you’re half way there.” Theodore Roosevelt (1858-1919. Former President of the United States)

“Twenty years from now you will be more disappointed by the things that you didn’t do than by the ones you did do, so throw off the bowlines, sail away from safe harbor, catch the trade winds in your sails. Explore, Dream, Discover.” Mark Twain (1835-1910. American author).

“Successful people do what unsuccessful people are not willing to do. Don’t wish it were easier; wish you were better.” Jim Rohn (1930-2009. American author)

“You may have to fight a battle more than once to win it.” Margaret Thatcher (1925-2013. Former Prime Minister of the United Kingdom)

“It is what we think we know already that often prevents us from learning.” Claude Bernard (1813-1878. French physiologist).

“Success depends upon previous preparation, and without such preparation there is sure to be failure.” Confucius (551 BC – 479 BC. Chinese philosopher).

“Live as if you were to die tomorrow. Learn as if you were to live forever.” Mahatma Gandhi (1869-1948. Indian lawyer and philosophical leader).

“All life is an experiment. The more experiments you make the better.” Ralph Waldo Emerson (1803-1882. American philosopher)

“By failing to prepare, you are preparing to fail.” Benjamin Franklin (1706-1790. Founding Father of the United States)

“The best time to plant a tree was 20 years ago. The second best time is now.” Chinese Proverb

“Life shrinks or expands in proportion to one’s courage.” Anais Nin (1903-1977. French author)

[image: Make a choice to take a chance or your life will never change]

Another source of motivation can come from your friends who are successful in life, or who have a pro-success attitude.

In life, you should surround yourself with positive, forward moving people who have a positive outlook rather than people who always seem to focus on the negative side to pretty much everything in life. Don’t ever be afraid to make new friends and leave negative friends behind until they change their ways. You deserve to have great people in your life.

3. Have a Flexible Plan

No matter how good your plan is, roadblocks are usually going to pop up and get in your way from time to time.

Success almost never, ever happens in a straight line from A to B. There are almost always obstacles to overcome along the way, which is where the majority of people give up.

They initially look at their goal as just going from A to B, but when they realize that they can’t reach B until they clear many obstacles, they change their mind about getting to B and just stay where they were. Then, years later, they regret not trying and realize that years or decades of their life have gone by feeling unhappy, lost and unsatisfied with life.

If you want to achieve big things, you have to be flexible with your plan. You can’t just stick with the idea of going straight from A to B. Sometimes, you have to take detours and then get back on the road to B to eventually reach the goal.

Simply having the wisdom that random things can unexpectedly alter your plans and then being flexible in how you deal with them will allow you to work through the obstacles in a positive, effective manner.

You won't say, "Ohh! This is too hard! I give up." You will say, "Okay, fine...an obstacle to overcome. I can do that. I'll get past this and then I'll be closer to reaching my goal. I'm not going to give up like a weak person would. I am strong. I can do this."

Don't doubt your ability to succeed. See obstacles or setbacks and perfectly normal things that happen to almost everybody. Be an extraordinary guy by remaining strong, positive and forward moving no matter what obstacles you encounter.

Paul Jeffers, who lost his hearing at age 42 and yet went on to become one of the world's best known salesmen is quoted as saying, "Setbacks are given to ordinary people to make them extraordinary."

While we all may not agree with his overly positive attitude about such a bad circumstance, if you can show that much determination and positive self-regard when you face a minor or major setback, you will definitely achieve extraordinary things in your lifetime.

4. Sleep Well

It's difficult to perform well and feel your best when you're sleep deprived.

Sure there are the occasional times when you're out partying or spending the night making love to a beautiful woman that may result in losing some important sleep. Yet, routinely sitting up watching TV or playing around on your computer is not a good enough excuse to deprive yourself of the renewing benefits of a good night's sleep.

Optimal sleep patterns require that you consistently sleep seven to eight hours straight each night so that your brain's neurotransmitters can function at their best. You can't make up for it by sleeping more on weekends your body doesn't understand that logic.

In numerous sleep studies they also discovered that sleep deprivation not only affected the study subjects' ability to think properly, solve problems, and caused certain neurological and psychological problems, but it also caused subjects to experience greater physical strain on their organs such as their heart and digestive systems, which in turn created more emotional problems.

5. Get into the Habit of Exercising a Couple of Times a Week

Exercise is one of those things many of us put off believing it to be a luxury that only people with loads of time can enjoy.

The irony is that exercise actually gives you more energy to do more with your life, whereas not exercising leaves you tired and susceptible to feeling down, dejected and depressed. You might be able to get away with it for a while, but a lack of exercise may eventually catch up with you.

Science has proven that exercise releases endorphins (natural mood elevating 'drugs') that give you a euphoric feeling making it easier to achieve and maintain a positive attitude about yourself and your life.

6. Eat Well

Just as your body needs the right types of food to work optimally, your brain also requires the same healthy diet to function at its peak and to produce the chemicals needed such as endorphins, dopamine, glutamine and serotonin to help regulate your mood and sleep cycles.

Many athletes load up on simple carbohydrates (white bread, sweets, potatoes, pasta, etc.) for extra energy before a race or a game because simple carbs quickly turn into sugar and that sugar is transformed into available energy right away.

Educated athletes also know that this type of diet is only useful in the short term and a healthy regimen of fruits, vegetables, complex carbohydrates (grains, nuts, green vegetables, etc.) and that protein is essential for their body and mind to work at their best.

Through laziness, habit or a misguided attempt to lose or maintain weight, many people will skip meals such as breakfast. However, skipping meals can be as psychologically and physically bad for you as feeding your body the wrong type of foods because it causes your sugar levels to rise and fall unnaturally which can then result in mood swings.

7. Focus on the Opportunity to be Great

If you often daydream or fall asleep to fantasies about being a greater man than you are right now, why not make those dreams a reality?

You can be an even greater man than you are right now, but it won't happen if you sit around doing nothing because you are afraid of success. You can be the amazing, respected man that you sometimes imagine yourself to be.

Work out what you really want from life right now and then go after it with passion. When you approach life in that way, you will find that achieving and maintaining a positive attitude will be natural, easy and automatic...

10 Toxic Friends That Will Bring You Down

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Toxic friends are those who continually have a negative effect on your life, no matter how nice or considerate you are towards them.

While some toxic friends can add some value to your life, they usually end up causing you more problems and misery than theyâre worth.

What makes most toxic people so difficult to recognize is that they're usually quite funny, charming or cool when you first meet them. That's how they manage to weave their way into your life, so that when their true personality is finally revealed, you are more likely to make excuses for them, cut them some extra slack or want the friendship to succeed despite their faults.

You should never hang on to a toxic friendship in fear of feeling a little lonely without him or her in your life. Having just a few great friends will bring more happiness into your life than 100 toxic friends could.

Here are 10 types of toxic friends that you should avoid or at least spend the minimum amount of time around as possible:

10. The Negative Guy

[image: The very negative friend]

There's nothing wrong with looking at the positives and negatives of a situation, but the Negative Friend will always focus on the negatives. No matter what good thing has happened to you, this type of toxic friend will always find a way to point out the downside or potential negatives of it.

Got a promotion? He'll tell you how much more work and pressure you will now have. Gotten yourself a new girlfriend? He friend will remind you of your past romantic failures and why this one is just as likely to end badly.

Bought a new car? He'll research the statistics on why the car you purchased was a poor choice and then tell you about the other cars that he thinks would have been a better choice.

In short, no matter what happy event lights a positive fire in your life, he'll be the wet blanket that puts it out. From his perspective, the world is doomed and everyone is a lying, greedy asshole who can't be trusted.

9. The "It's All About Me" Guy

[image: It's all about me]

When you speak to this type of toxic friend, the conversation always revolves around him. Whatever is happening in his life is much more important than what's happening in yours. He thinks he is cooler, better, smarter and more important than you, so you should just shut up and listen to him.

There is really no value in having "friends" like that in your life. Feel free to keep them as acquaintances, but life is so much better when you are only great friends with people who actually care about you.

8. The Compulsive Liar

[image: Compulsive liar]

A compulsive liar is someone who is more comfortable with lying than telling the truth. Lying is their automatic response to questions. They enjoy weaving big lies that go on for months and even years at a time.

This type of toxic friend will lie to you about anything and everything. It doesn't matter how important something is to you, he will get more enjoyment and satisfaction out of lying to you and deceiving you than being a good, honest friend. When you catch him out in the lie, he will have all sorts of excuses for his actions, which will be additional lies. It never ends with a compulsive liar.

Relationships are built on trust. If you cannot fully trust your friend, you will never be able to have a great relationship.

You may still be able to maintain an "on again, off again" friendship, but the closeness that would share with a real friend will never be there with a Compulsive Liar Friend. You will always have your guard up and a compulsive liar and you will never know when you will catch them in yet another elaborate set of lies.

Instead of trying to make a friendship work with a friend who regularly lies with you, keep your distance from him. Don't feel as though you can't make friends with people who are honest and stick by their word.

For every liar in this world, you will find 10 people who are honest, loyal and have your best interests at heart. Most people in this world are good people, so don't settle for liars who will stab you in the back when you least expect it.

7. The Moocher

[image: The moocher friend]

A moocher is someone who always seems to want something from you, but never gives you much or anything in return.

The Moocher may not ask you for money directly, but he always seems to have forgotten his wallet or is running low on money when it comes time to pay for something.

He never offers to pick up a bill, he complains if he pays more than you on a bill, regularly takes things refrigerator or always expects you to provide him with some form of hospitality (food, booze, a place to party or a couch to sleep on).

This toxic friend is simply a deadbeat who will drain as much as he can from your wallet. A Moocher is not the type of friend you can count on in a time of need, so don't be afraid to steer clear from his "friendship."

When you begin avoiding a Moocher, they will usually begin hassling the next easy target they can find. The Moocher will often ask to be introduced to your friends, so he has other people to mooch from. Avoid those introductions if possible, because he will do the same thing to them.

6. The Steal Your Girlfriend Guy

[image: The Steal Your Girlfriend Guy]

No matter much you love you your girlfriend, this toxic friend will gladly give up your friendship for a chance to hook up with her. He will flirt with her right in front of you, send her private messages and even try to catch up with her when you're not around.

Guys like this are usually desperate and insecure and will hardly, if ever, approach a woman that they don't know. Instead of being a man and approaching a woman on his own, a guy like that tries to steal what you have.

If you tell him to stop hitting on your girlfriend, he'll tell you that you shouldn't be so insecure. He'll explain that if your girlfriend really wanted to be with you, she wouldn't be showing much interest in him.

A great friend knows that he should only act like a friend to your girlfriend, instead of trying to attract her with every seduction trick he has in his arsenal. Friends who try to attract and pick up your girlfriend are simply not trustworthy and loyal enough to be a close friend.

Explain your concerns to the toxic friend and if he changes, keep his as a friend. If he doesn't, ditch him completely without a second thought. Friendship is nothing without loyalty and untrustworthy friends like that will always screw you over in the end.

5. The Constant Corrector

[image: Constant Corrector]

Have you ever met someone who always tries to find something to correct you about? Maybe you said a word wrong, you got the dates wrong when referring to a story or you don't know the exact details of something.

The Constant Corrector will always be there to point out where you are wrong. You might be right 99% of the time, but he will focus on the 1%. Why? He's insecure about his intelligence, competence and value as a human being.

In his insecure way of thinking, he feels that if he can just point out your faults and mistakes as often as possible, you will really need him as a friend because he seems to know everything.

Constant Correctors usually have little to no real friends because people just don't feel good when interacting with them. Until a Constant Corrector changes his ways, steer clear of him. You do not need him.

Get some more emotionally balanced friends and enjoy life, rather than squabbling over trivial details or constantly having to apologize or admit that you're wrong about little things.

4. The Malicious Guy

[image: Malicious friend]

A malicious "friend" will secretly hope, wish even plan to make you fail. Since he is unhappy with his life and lack of success, a guy like this will want to see his “friends” suffer like him.

A toxic friend like this might intentionally encourage you to do things that will cause you harm, or to make decisions that he knows will cause you pain or troubles. If he doesn’t like to see you succeeding in a particular area, he will do whatever he can to bring you down to his level.

Having a friend like that in your life is always more harm than good. The malicious friend might seem like an innocent, charming and even loyal and trustworthy guy, but deep down, he hopes that you suffer and fail so he can feel good about himself.

3. The “I Can Top That” Guy

[image: I can top that]

Whether a crisis has come your way, you’ve achieved something great or something funny has happened to you, the “I can top that!” toxic friend will talk about something that happened to him that was either worse, better or funnier â□□ at least in his mind.

That’s fine every now and then, but the “I can top that” friend will do pretty it much every time. He wants you to think that he is better than you, his life is more interesting and that you should be so lucky to know him. He is insecure about his value to you, so he will constantly try to talk himself up.

You can usually help friends like that to become more secure by talking to them about how they always seem to want to top what you are saying. Some guys will respond to that by changing their ways, but the ones who never change should be avoided. They are usually just a huge waste of time and energy.

2. The Now You See Him, Now You Don’t Guy

[image: The now you see him, now you don't friend]

This guy is only around when it suits him or when he needs something from you.

You may go for weeks or months without seeing this toxic friend or hearing from him. He won’t return your phone calls and you’ll think he’s vanished.

When he reappears (usually because his other â□□ friendsâ□□ got wise to his toxicity and no longer want to hang out with him) he’ll tell you all about the wonderful adventures he’s had since last seeing you. If you ask him why he didn’t ask you to join him, he will have an excuse for every occasion.

This type of friend doesnâ□□t really care about you and is better kept as a casual acquaintance until he matures and becomes a better man.

1. The Blabbermouth

[image: Blabbermouth friend]

Your first indication of trouble with this buddy is that he’s always talking about people behind their back. He loves to gossip, talk about other peopleâ□□s relationships and share what he thinks they’re all doing wrong in their lives. He repeats things that he was obviously told in secret (“Listen, I told John I wouldn't tell anyone about this, but I'm sure he wouldn't mind you knowing.")

If you think that you will never be the target of his type of disloyalty, think again. If it will make him feel "cool" to other people, he will tell almost anyone who'll listen about the things you've shared with him and what his true opinion of you actually is.

Great Friends Make Life So Much Better

[image: Great friends]

I'm grateful for knowing early on that I should avoid toxic friends. One of the reasons I was able to let go of so many friends is that I started going out to approach women every weekend to get myself a girlfriend. While doing so, I made a bunch of new friends and got a lot more than just a girlfriend.

I actually discovered the secrets to success with women and to having loads of amazing friends in one's life. Since discovering what I now teach here at The Modern Man, my life has been full of amazing women and friends.

The toxic friends that I used to give time to and even regularly hang out with, are now ancient history and I prefer it that way. Having great friends allows you to experience more happiness and success in life.

There's also nothing better than knowing that you have a bunch of great friends who truly "have your back" are always there to help you out if you need it.

By the way...

If you're a guy and you need a friend to help you become successful with women, then let me introduce myself. My name is Dan Bacon and I'm a dating and relationship expert.

I can teach you the techniques and give you the skills that will allow you to have your choice of women, so you can either have sex with a lot of women or find yourself a girlfriend or wife. Online Friends: How Many Friends Do You Really Have?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

These days, most people have upwards of 150 online friends, while some people have thousands. When you look at your Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn and other social accounts it may seem like you've got a lot of friends.

Yet, you still feel lonely and isolated.

Almost all of your free time is spent alone. You rarely get invited to parties and no matter how much you comment or click like on your friend's social media posts, you still spend most of your time alone.

It's like your real social life would almost be exactly the same with or without Facebook. You have an "online social life," but is that what you really want?

How many of the people that you're connected to online truly care about you? Who are your real friends and are you actually spending enough quality time with them?

True Friends

Unlike the small talk, chit-chat that you might have with an acquaintance (e.g. "How's things?" or "Having a good day?"), conversations with true friends are often about things that really matter to each of you.

With a true friend, it doesn't how much you or they change throughout life, you always still manage to share the same great connection with each other that you did in the old days.

You can share your happiness, disappointments, tragedies and triumphs with your true friends. They'll tell you the truths about yourself that they think you need to hear, even if they know you won't like hearing it. They will stand by you when life throws you a curve ball and will cheer for you when great things come your way.

True friends are loyal and trustworthy. You can share your most intimate secrets with them and know they'll never reveal anything that you've told them in confidence.

Acquaintances

Acquaintance (noun): A person one knows slightly, but who is not a close friend. A person with whom one has been in contact with or is still in contact with, but who is not a close friend.

Most people that you "know" in your life are really just acquaintances that you are "friends" with because you have to. An acquaintance can be a friend of a friend, a coworker, someone at a club or organization that you belong to or your neighbor.

You may occasionally be at a social function (e.g. drinks, dinner, party) with an acquaintance, do favors for each other such as taking care of pets when someone's away, help out with a minor problem or be there for them in a real emergency.

Yet, because they are not a true friend, your association with them is casual and your conversations are mostly superficial (e.g. “How’ve you been?” or “How’s the cat?”).

With an acquaintance, you usually wouldn’t have deep and meaningful discussions or discuss private things about your life. To become true friends, both of you would have to want to commit to a more real friendship by sharing more about yourselves with each other.

Online Friends

[image: Facebook friends]

Sites like Facebook, Twitter and LinkedIn and apps like Instagram and Vine have brought loads of people into our lives that we most likely wouldn’t have met in the real world.

We can also chat to random people on forums, hobby sites and chat sites or apps.

Yet, despite knowing a lot of people online, you really aren’t friends with someone until you’ve spent time together in real life and have the desire to spend even more time together. It may seem cool that someone online replied to your comment with “LOL! So funny,” but it doesn’t mean that they really laughed out loud or that they’d find you funny in real life.

These days, online friends also can be people that you’ve reconnected with from your past, or a mutual friend of someone that you know who asks to be connected with you on some social networking site.

It may feel like your social circle is growing, but unless you meet these people in real life to share experiences together and create positive memories that cause you to want to spend more time together, they are only an “unfriend” click away from not being in your life anymore.

The Secret to Making More True Friends

[image: Dan Bacon at home alone]

As a man, the secret to making more friends is to be the guy that women feel attracted to and men look up to and respect.

I remember back when I was single, lonely and when I only had one true friend in my life. I was and still am the good guy that I am today, but back then, pretty much no-one was interested in being my friend.

I didn’t have a clue about how to attract women, so I would be nervous around attractive women in social situations. Sometimes, I would secretly wish that I could hook up with my friend’s girlfriends because at least they seemed interested in me.

My lack of ability with women made me come across in a subtly needy, insecure way, which not only turned women off, but it also made me feel uncomfortable around the “cool crowd.”

I had no idea what women are really attracted to, so I basically tried everything from wearing expensive fashions, working out at the gym and going to tanning salons.

Yet, no matter what I tried, women just weren’t interested in me...and my lack of success with women was OBVIOUS. I was always the single guy at a party, my family would always ask me, “Dan...why don’t you have a girlfriend?” or “Do you have a girlfriend yet?” at Christmas or other functions.

[image: Dan Bacon at lunch alone - work]

At work, some people talked behind my back and a couple of women even asked me if I was gay. I remember one time, a female coworker said to me when she was a bit tipsy at a work function, “So, Dan – why don’t you have a girlfriend? Are you into girls, or?”

I was shocked. Being accused of being gay is basically the worst thing that a straight guy can ever be accused of. .

I assured her that I wanted a girlfriend, but just hadn’t found the right girl yet, which was bullshit. The real reason I didn’t have a girlfriend was that I was like a lot of modern men who had no idea how to actually attract women. I was doing all the stupid stuff like buying expensive clothes and shoes and hoping that women would like me for that.

My coworker then said in an almost condescending way, “Oh, never mind, Dan...you’re a nice guy. You’ll find the right girl one day.”

I thought that she might be right. I thought maybe I just hadn’t found the right girl. Maybe that was it. Yet, what I didn’t know back then was that being a nice guy wasn’t good enough. Why?

Watch the video below to understand why...

Have you ever noticed that when a guy doesn’t know how to attract women, he has a strange vibe to his personality?

He seems awkward. He’s often “all up in his head” rather than being present in the moment and being his true self. He tries hard to impress women and people that he meets, but something is off. Something isn’t quite right.

Not only can you sense that, but others can do. Pretty much everyone picks up on it when a guy doesn’t actually understand what women are really attracted to. The difference between his vibe and the vibe of another guy who understands how to attract women is subtle, but you can still notice it.

Being a guy who doesn’t know how to attract women (and having that strange, weird or awkward vibe as a result) isn’t type of personality in a guy isn’t something that leads to a lot of people wanting to be your friend.

Women can smell the guy’s desperation a mile away and the confident, cool guys also don’t want him hanging around trying to hit on their girlfriends or get the leftovers from women they don’t want. As a guy, you have to know how to attract women. If you don’t actually understand what women are REALLY attracted to, it affects pretty much every other part of your life. It makes you think, behave and act in a weird way around women that you find attractive.

Watch this video to learn more about why the ability to attract women is so important in a guy’s life...

The main thing that changed my social and dating life was learning how to attract women properly. When I discovered how to attract women, most of the women that I met suddenly liked me and were interested in being with me.

That success then lead to me becoming more confident with women rather than needy and secretly desperate, which allowed me to have more female friends because they weren’t worried about me trying to pick them up. To this day, women immediately get the sense that I’m not trying to pick them up and that draws them to me.

Since a woman will feel attracted to what I'm saying and doing around her and will then notice that I'm not even trying to pick her up, this leads her to see me as a challenge to overcome. As a result, she starts making it obvious that she likes me and then I simply kiss her or have sex with her.

Watch this video to understand why women like guys who are a challenge...

When I discovered how to attract women, I not only began having sex with lots of new women, but I also attracted a lot of female friends. What followed that? Loads of guys wanting to be my friend to hopefully get some of the scraps that I didn't want.

All of a sudden, I was getting invited to parties and arriving with a woman that I was having sex with or some of my female friends. Whatever happened, I would always end up having sex or at least kissing a new woman.

It's been like that for me for many years now, which is one of the main reasons why I have too many real life friends now. I literally don't even call people anymore because people are always calling me.

If you are a guy who is looking to make more friends, don't try to make friends by kissing people's ass. You are most-likely already a good guy like me, so being any more of a good guy than you already are (e.g. doing more favors for people, being nicer, listening more, etc) isn't going to make people respect you more and want to invite you to parties.

The main thing that changed everything for me was learning how to attract women. When a guy knows how to attract women, pretty much every other area of his life instantly begins to improve...

How to Survive a Breakup and Emerge a Better Man

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Surviving a breakup, whether it was your idea or hers, can be a difficult thing to go through for most modern men.

When a relationship ends, it often feels like you're grieving a death; and in a way you are – it's the death of the dream life you had with your ex.

If you start having relationships with women in your teens, you will probably go through a few break ups before you finally find the right woman for you when you're in your 20s or 30s.

When you go through a break up, it's vitally important that you grow from the experience and become an even better, wiser and more emotionally attractive man than you were before.

How can you do that?

1. Learn from your mistakes

Most guys make the same classic mistakes with women. What separates the guys who eventually succeed with women compared to those who continue to fail is whether or not they learn from their mistakes.

Do you make any of these mistakes with women?

2. Accept The Positive and Negative Feelings You Have About the Break Up

One of the best ways to get over a bad feeling is to consciously tell yourself that you accept it.

For instance if she broke up with you when you didn't want to break up with her, simply say to yourself, "I accept that I feel down right now. I don't like the fact that I'm alone without my ex, but I accept it. I also accept that I have a lot of good things to look forward to with other women, as long as I can get my confidence and self-esteem back to where it was when I was with her."

The worst thing you can do to yourself is to keep playing the relationship out in your head and focussing on all the good times. Doing so will extend your grieving phase unnecessarily because you will begin to believe that other women couldn't make you feel as good as she did.

If simply accepting it in your head doesn't ease your despair, you might benefit from writing it down. Try to write down the reasons why you accept what has happened between you and your ex. Then, write a letter to your ex (without ever mailing it to her) accepting what has happened.

Try to accept why it happened, rather than going around in circles about how bad you feel. A circle will always remain a circle – to cure your pain you need to break out of the circle by accepting what happened.

A bonus of writing it down is that it usually becomes easier to understand what you're feeling and easier to analyze where things went right and wrong in your relationship. You can then use this knowledge as an opportunity to further mature as a man and grow from the experience.

3. Accept the Reality of Modern Relationships

In the past, a woman had to stay with a man for life because it was shameful to get divorced. Not anymore.

Today's women are free to have sex with as many men as they want before settling down into a relationship. Then, when in a relationship, they can break up with or divorce a guy if the relationship isn't what they really want.

To be successful with a relationship in today's world you have to:

1. Choose the right woman for you, rather than accepting whatever you can get and trying to make it work.
2. Deepen the love, respect and attraction in a relationship, rather than taking her for granted and letting the love fade away.

4. Do New, Fun and Interesting Things With Other People

After a breakup, many men go into seclusion by watching lots of TV and movies, or by playing video games. This doesn't help and usually ends up making a guy miss his ex even more.

Instead of hiding away on your own, look upon this phase of your life as an opportunity to do things that you didn't have time to do when you were with your ex.

Take a class to learn something cool (you'll likely make new friends at the same time), catch up with old friends and do something new and interesting together, visit your parents, volunteer for something for one day (they always welcome new people), go on a weekend trip with a friend (or friends), read some self-help books by the beach or in a park, start learning a martial art or work on a hobby that involves interacting with people.

Basically, you need to focus on doing anything positive and social that will keep you busy so you can take your mind off missing your ex.

Sitting around and avoiding social activities will only make the depressing feelings that exist during the grieving phase of a break up last longer. There's no need to put yourself through unnecessary emotional pain - you can be feeling happy, positive and confident much quicker if you get out there - do some positive activities with other people.

5. Exercise

Exercise is a great remedy for sadness, stress or general melancholy because it releases endorphins in your brain that make you feel happier, more positive and more optimistic.

While exercise is not a cure for surviving a break-up, it certainly helps to pep you up and avoid you feeling miserable, melancholy and hopeless about life.

6. Don't Masturbate Too Much

How often do you masturbate?

- ☐ Once a month
- ☐ Once a week
- ☐ A few times a week
- ☐ Every day
- ☐ Multiple times per day

These days, many guys masturbate way too much.

There's nothing wrong with masturbating to get rid of some built up sexual desire at times, but if you're trying to get back into the dating scene or have the confidence and desire to approach new women, you have to tone down the jerking.

Too much wanking will deplete your built up sexual desire and mess with your perception of women. For example: When you watch porn, you will feel attracted immediately and the woman will be ready to have sex immediately. It will seem so easy.

Yet, in real life, most women don't behave that way when you meet them; they only behave that way behind closed doors. So, when you meet new women and there doesn't seem to be a lot of sexual attraction and desire from her part, you may think that you're not doing enough to turn her on.

7. Start Playing the Field

Meeting lots of new women is the best way to get over a break up and help remind yourself of what a desirable guy you really are.

You don't have to go out and get a new girlfriend, but at least start having sex with new women. Having sex with new women is the fastest way to get over an ex, especially when the new women are hotter than your ex-girlfriend.

If she broke up with you, your ego has probably taken a bit of a bruising and you need to get yourself in front of other women who will appreciate what a great guy you are. If you are too afraid to get out there and start having sex with new women, time will tick away and you will most-likely lose more power, confidence and self-esteem as a man.

However, if you can accept what has happened, learn from it and move on â□□ you will emerge a better man.

8. Improve Your Skills With Women

If you have recently been broken up with and are still recovering from the pain of being dumped, why not turn that horrible experience into an opportunity to make your life great?

If you improve your skills with women and become the type of guy that women desperately want to be with, you will see that most of the women you meet feel attracted to you. When most of the women you meet are keen and show loads of interest, you cannot help but feel happy, inspired and excited to be alive.

Yet, if you hide away from women or believe that you're doomed for life when it comes to relationships, you can really only look forward to a lot of isolation, feeling left out and reliving the bad memories about your ex over and over again.

Make a change.

Become the type of man that women desperately want to be with and you will emerge from this break up as an even better man that you are right now...

Trusting Your Gut Instinct

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

As a human being, one of the amazing powers that you have available to you is your gut instinct.

It's a strange power that can really give us an advantage when approaching and meeting women, advancing our careers or taking a chance on a great opportunity that we stumble across in life.

Women refer to their gut instinct as "women's intuition," while men refer to it as gut instinct. Women don't have more gut instinct than men do, but they like to go around saying that they have "women's intuition" and claim that it allows them to know things that men cannot.

To this date, there have been no scientific studies to prove that women are more intuitive than men. It's just that society has allowed women the freedom to use and exhibit their emotions more freely, so we hear about a woman's intuition all the time.

The media is also very careful when talking about women. While men can and often are put down, picked on or teased in the media, women are almost always spoken about in a positive light. Modern society seeks to build women up and expects us men to build and maintain our confidence and self-esteem on our own.

Based on the use of the word "women's intuition," many modern men are less likely to ever admit to using their intuition to solve a problem or come to a decision on something.

Instead, most men will confess to having a hunch, a gut feeling, an instinct or possibly even a sixth sense (and no, we're not talking about the ability to see dead people). Whatever word or label is used, they are all related terms for the concept of intuition and men use their intuition almost as often as women without realizing it.

What Exactly Is Intuition?

Intuition (noun): The ability to understand something immediately, without the need for conscious reasoning. A direct perception of truth fact, etc independent of any reasoning process; immediate apprehension.

Intuition is a higher thought process that most of us aren't trained to use and that many people don't even know that they are using. The term intuition is derived from the Latin word "intueri" which means "to gaze at, contemplate."

Brain Files

Like a computer full of random files of information, your brain is jam-packed with countless bits of knowledge that you have acquired over the years. It's not only what you've learned in books, but it's an evolving compilation of everything you've experienced throughout your lifetime.

Everything you have learnt so far goes into helping you make correct, gut instinct decisions in life. The more you learn about life, the better decisions you will make.

Using Your Brain Files

[image: Harness the power of your mind]

Often you'll find yourself in a situation and you'll make a snap judgment about something or someone without even giving it thought.

For instance, you might instantly feel a connection with someone. It doesn't matter if it's a guy you think you want as a friend when you first meet him, a woman you instantly know you want to date or just someone who immediately "rubs you the wrong way." It isn't even necessarily something that they said or did "you just got a certain sense about them. Your gut instinct or male intuition accessed your Brain Files to come up with an assessment of the situation, without you having to think about it.

Think about some more times you might have accessed this higher thought process in the past! Have you ever walked into a room full of people and had a gut feeling that a fight was going to break out and a short time later one did? Or perhaps one morning you grabbed an umbrella as you went out the door even though the weather forecast wasn't predicting rain and then there was an unexpected storm?

Are you one of those people who correctly guesses who the killer is in a movie long before you're shown obvious evidence that you're correct? Are you able to make quick judgments on a person character within minutes of meeting them, only to find out later that you were completely correct in your assessment?

And if you were asked to analyze why you thought what you did, you'd be hard-pressed to come up with a logical answer. "It's just the way I felt," you might say. And that feeling is your human intuition.

You subconsciously used the Brain Files that you'd acquired over your lifetime to instantaneously and correctly analyze a situation or a person.

Coincidence or Intuition/Gut Instinct?

A friend of mine travels a busy highway to get to work every day. One day, he was driving and noticed a truck pulling a trailer. There was nothing unusual about it. It looked just like the dozens of other trucks hauling trailers on the road near him.

However, as he got closer to the truck and trailer, he had "a bad feeling" about it and instinctively sped up and passed it. Seconds later, in his rearview mirror, he saw the trailer detach itself from the truck and flip into the oncoming traffic.

Another time, he was driving behind a moving van. Again, there was nothing odd about the truck except that my friend had a hunch that he should get out of the way and changed lanes. Within seconds the van's rear doors flung open and a large armchair tumbled out onto the highway hitting several cars.

Coincidence? Male intuition? It's hard to say, but you can be sure that when my friend's inner voice starts talking, he listens.

No doubt you have experienced similar things in your life. The big lesson to learn is that you should trust your gut instinct as much as possible, because it is usually more accurate than your logical, conscious assessment of a situation.

For instance, maybe you're buying a coffee one day and have a strong gut feeling that you should approach and talk to a woman in a cafe. Yet, you ignore your gut instinct and let your insecurities creep up and tell you not to do it. Could she have been your ideal woman?

Developing Your Male Intuition/Gut Instinct

Like any muscle, your intuition must be exercised regularly to perform at optimum levels. Here are some exercises to help develop your power of intuition/gut instinct.

1. Trust Yourself This is the most important one of all and will also help you to develop your inner alpha male. An alpha male (the most attractive type of male to women) is a guy who trusts himself and takes action whenever he wants to.

He goes after what he wants in life with the trust in himself that he will mostly make the right decisions and will correct any errors or mistakes along the way. When you have a hunch or a gut feeling, pay attention and act upon it without allowing your logical mind to dissuade you.

Approach that woman and start the conversation you're thinking of in your head, head to the gym and get into shape like you keep telling yourself to do, or stop allowing yourself to stress out over minor things.

2. Be Aware Instead of distracting yourself by talking on the phone, texting, listening to your iPod or doing anything else that alters your focus, take in everything that surrounds you as you walk, sit or drive around so that you can absorb more data for your mental computer. The more aware of your reality you become, the better your gut instinct decisions will be.

3. Keep Records Whenever you have an intuitive feeling, write it down and see how often your instincts turn out to be correct. Recording your physical reactions can be particularly effective for understanding and trusting your ability to be intuitive.

Physical reactions might include feeling the hair on the back of your neck or arms bristle, a tightening in your stomach (a.k.a. a gut feeling), your heart beats faster or you experience a sudden feeling of clarity and focus.

By documenting your physical reactions and any outcomes that turned out to be correct, you will allow your logical mind to better accept intuitive thoughts because you can prove to yourself that your feelings were accurate.

4. Meditate Most people don't have time to meditate, or they at least don't make time for it. However, if you want to develop your ability to trust your inner voice, try to experiment with meditation once a week even if it is only for 10 minutes.

Find a calm, quiet spot when at home and let your mind roam free without allowing rational thoughts to interfere with the process. Notice where your calm thoughts lead you and if you tend to keep focusing on something you want (e.g. a girlfriend), then trust yourself that you need to start putting more effort into achieving that goal.

While it's a good thing to refer to your intuition as your gut instinct, don't make the mistake of ignoring it because you think it's only for women. You have the same ability to think in this way and you should use it to better your life.

Five Must Do Buddy Road Trips

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When it comes to strengthening the friendship you have with your buddies, or even helping new friendships to develop, there's nothing quite like a road trip adventure.

Ever since the release of the classic cult film "Easy Rider" in 1969, road trip movies have been a popular theme in cinema and on television.

The Road Trip, Smoky and the Bandit, The Gumball Rally, The Cannonball Run and Road Hogs all have the idea of men on the open road meeting women, getting up to adventures and learning new life lessons.

The BBC's car program "Top Gear" has featured endless episodes where the presenters undertake crazy road trips all over the world and actors Ewan McGregor and Charlie Boorman's epic road trip "The Wrong Way Round" from London to New York has become a popular series. So given the opportunity, what are some awesome roads trips for you and your buddies to check out?

1) Route 66, USA

Mention road trips, long car journeys, the free open road and the iconic Route 66 will automatically spring to mind. Made famous in hundreds of songs, books and a bunch of movies, this road symbolises the thrill of wide-open spaces and the wind in your hair.

The original highway of America travels from Chicago to Los Angeles and covers 2,448 miles (3,940 Km). Although officially declassified in 1985 the route still draws thousands each year to follow its course.

There is plenty to do and see along Route 66. Recommendation: Add to the adventure by hiring a couple of Harley Davidson motorcycles and take turns at driving the car and riding the bikes along this scenic, iconic road.

2) Ho Chi Minh Trail, Vietnam

The Ho Chi Minh Trail was made famous during the Vietnam War as the perilous route used by the North Vietnamese soldiers to transport men, weapons and supplies southward. The Ho Chi Minh trail takes you from Hanoi to Hoian, covers dense jungle, mountainous routes and through picturesque Vietnamese scenery.

Along the tour you take in battlefields, tunnel complexes and ancient towns. There are organised trips for this adventure that use cycles or motorbikes depending on your preference. The Ho Chi Minh Trail is definitely a road trip with a difference.

3) Monte Carlo or Bust, UK and France

For classic car owners (or those willing to hire a classic car for the trip), the best run has to be the London to Monte Carlo run, made famous in the 1969 film "Monte Carlo or Bust". This trip immediately has the feel of car problems, breakdowns and mechanical failure written all over it.

While making the trip in an old classic car may not be financially possible for most people, why not add to the excitement by buying a car for £100 in London and see how far you can get? Remember to take a tuxedo with you and visit as many casinos as you can find on the way down to the South of France!

4) Machu Picchu Trail, Peru

If driving or riding the entire trip is not your style then the ultimate trekking road trip is the Inca Trail to Machu Picchu in Peru. Over four days you will cover 88 km and climb over 12,000ft (3,660m) into the Andes Mountains, through misty gorges, Inca tunnels, alpine forest and experience the challenge of altitude sickness.

They offer beginner to advanced treks, so don't be put off if you're not usually that outdoorsy. You'll most-likely walk away feeling confident, inspired and refreshed.

5) Sydney to Alice Springs, Australia

Travelling through the Australian bush is another cinematic gem. The 2776Km journey will take you through some breathtaking, desolate landscapes with places like Wagga Wagga, Narrendra, Coober Pedy and Ayres Rock/ Kata Tjuta on your way to Alice Springs.

While you can cruise through this road trip fairly unhindered on the main tarmac road, it is also possible to hire a 4WD vehicle and go across country to add to the adventure.

So, whether you want to work on developing better friendships with new friends you have, or you want to strengthen the bond that you and your mates share any of these trips will surely help.

There's just something about achieving a goal with friends that creates a lasting bond – Especially if you have a whole lot of fun while doing it!

If we have missed out your favourite road trip, we are keen to hear about any great journeys you have taken. Let us know by commenting below!

Making New Friends is Easier Than You Think

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Without good friends, life can be pretty boring, miserable and lonely!

If you and your friends have recently drifted apart or are no longer living in the same area, you might have found yourself wondering how you can make some new friends. Maybe most of your friends now have a girlfriend or are married and you are still single and looking to find the right girl for you.

Having friends in your life is especially important if you're a single guy because meeting women through friends is one of the easiest ways to get a girlfriend. With a lot of guy friends, you also have wingmen to go out approaching women with, which is definitely helpful and speeds up the process.

Whatever the reason you might be looking to make more friends right now, I am going to help you.

First, let me start by asking you an important question...

What Do You Really Care About?

I ask you that question because it is a critical step to finding the right type of friends for where you are at in life right now.

Sometimes, we find ourselves hanging around and being friends with people who don't really care about the types of things we're interested in. When this happens, it is usually difficult to have free-flowing conversations, crack relevant jokes and enjoy meaningful connections.

Whereas, when we spend time people who care about the same things as we do, it is easy to hang out and be friends. It feels good to be around each other and you know that you're in the right place at the right time.

If you find that you've been hanging out with people who really aren't helping you move forward in life or who don't really care about the things that you do, the solution get in contact with people who are just like you or who want the same things in life that you do right now.

Having common interests is one of fastest ways to become friends with someone because it gives you both a REASON to hang around each other and develop a friendship.

However, if you meet people who are very different to you and want different things than you do, it doesn't feel necessary to become close friends or spend a lot of time together. If you do manage to hang out, it will often feel forced or awkward.

To find people who have exactly the same interests as you, I recommend that you use Meetup.com. Just join a bunch of groups, attend and use your confidence and conversation skills to make a bunch of new friends. If you are currently lacking in confidence or need to improve your conversation skills, then I am here to help you.

Being the Guy That Everyone Wants to Be Friends With

[image: Friends hanging out at home]

You may have noticed that some guys have a certain knack for getting people to like them immediately. It doesn't matter where a guy like that goes, people like him. They smile, laugh and talk with him like he's an old friend. How does it do it?

Well, it's actually a complex social skill that any guy can develop. Initially, it feels awkward to do the sorts of things that a guy like that does (e.g. making small talk, showing genuine interest in people, being your real self no matter what, smiling, having an easy-going vibe about you, etc), but after a while it becomes natural.

Some of the elements that make up the complex social skill of being the guy that everyone wants to be friends with includes:

1. Being great at conversation: A lot of guys who struggle to make friends or get themselves a girlfriend aren't the best conversationalists when they meet new people or new women.

Some guys think that they are making great conversation and then end up being ignored or rejected and wonder what just happened. Unless a guy like that actually learns where he is going wrong, he will likely make the same mistakes throughout his entire life.

2. Being confident: Confidence is attractive to women, but it also makes people respect you and want to be associated with you. Generally speaking, confident guys get laid more often, are happier, make more money, live a more interesting lifestyle and are more fun to be around.

People instinctively know that and gravitate towards the confident guys. If you lack confidence in social situations or around women, people will naturally feel repelled by you on an instinctive level. You will definitely be able to make friends with other people who lack confidence, but the "cool crowd" and the attractive women will usually remain out of reach.

3. Being a cool guy: It almost sounds childish or immature to talk about "coolness," but instead of fighting against the idea of being a cool guy, think about it this way: Whenever you've been in a social situation and wished you could be friends with a particular person, you considered them to be cool, right?

You didn't hate them for being "cool," you liked them for it. The fact is that the cooler you are as a guy, the more of a friend magnet you become.

Coolness is trait that is difficult define. However, we all know it when we see it and it usually has a lot to do with a guy's confidence and social intelligence.

Guys who struggle to make friends or attract themselves a girlfriend are almost always coming across in ways that make them appear "uncool" or socially awkward to people.

Getting People to Like You Immediately

Over the years, a lot of guys who struggle with women and don't have many friends have said to me, "Dan...I'm fine once people have a chance to get to know me, but when I first people I'm shy and it takes me a while to open up."

Guess what? That's not good enough.

If you want to make friends or get yourself a girlfriend, you have to exude confidence right away and talk to the person as though you know that like you and want to talk to you. If you talk to people in a self-doubting way, most people won't want to feel responsible for making you feel that way and will try to end the interaction as soon as possible.

The trick is to automatically assume that the other person likes you even before theyâve had a chance to get to know you. Do not try to get a person to like you. Just talk to them with the belief that you are a likeable person and assume that they will like you immediately.

This allows you to display the easy-going, relaxed confidence that you need to make people like you. Itâs funny how it works, but itâs one of the biggest secrets to success when dealing with people in all areas of life.

What Would You Like to Do For Fun?

A big part of making new friends is engaging in activities that you consider to be fun, interesting and exciting. Iâm not talking about solo activities like playing computer games, watching TV or going to the gym to lift weights. Iâm talking about activities where you are interacting with other people in a fun, interesting and exciting way.

So, what do you usually do for fun that includes other people? If you donât really know the answer to that right now, what would you like to do for fun if you had the opportunity? For instance, can you imagine yourself having a cool group of friends and being at a house party on a Saturday night that is full of single women? Would that be fun, interesting and exciting for you?

How about sports? Are you a sports fan? If you want to hang out with people who are into sports, head to a local sports bar or sports club. Talking about the team who is playing works as a great conversation starter.

You can say something like, “Hey, how you doing? Who do you think will win today?” and then have a general chat with the person. Many local bars and pubs are the designated hangout for a particular team and if youâre a fan, youâll find others who will be happy to cheer along with you as you watch the team play.

Would you prefer to play a sport? If youâre more of a participant than a spectator, then join a team. Do a Google search or check out a local newspaperâs community calendar for information on neighborhood teams.

Baseball, bowling, pool, darts, martial arts, golf â whatever your interest, you will find people who share your enthusiasm for a sport or activity. As a bonus, if you join a mixed sports team (where men and women play together) you might just find your next girlfriend.

Are you into computer games? Head to a gaming conversation and approach people to ask for advice, or just make general chit-chat about something to do with the event, “Wow, there are a lot of new cool games this year...which one is your favorite?”

From sci-fi fans to sports car builders, spiritualists to woodworking hobbyists, there are conventions you can attend to meet others with your same interest. Most hobbies have associations with local chapters you can joinÂ or you can simplyÂ head over to the store where you buy your supplies.

Chances are you will bump into other hobby enthusiasts and strike up a conversation like this, “This shop has such a good selection hey? I love this place. How about you? What are you working on at the moment?”

It Only Takes One Friend to Get Things Going

Once you find one new friend, chances are that he or she will have other friends to introduce you to. With a little effort and a true desire to meet new people, in a short time you'll find that your new phone book and Facebook (or whatever app you use) is filled with many new, real-life friends.

What Type of Cougar is Right For You?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

These days, there are millions of older, divorced women who are starving for sex, love and attention

Cougar (noun): An older woman, aged between 30 and 60 who prefers to have sex with younger men.

If you feel like mixing things up by having sex or even having a relationship with an older woman, make sure you read this article to understand what you're getting yourself into first!

1. Hot-to-Trot Cougar

She is generally more interested in "just sex" rather than a serious relationship. You'll find her in clubs that normally attract a younger, hip crowd.

She will look and dress younger than her age and often more provocatively than the younger women (i.e. showing more cleavage, wearing shorter skirts and really "flaunting it" with her outfit). This type of cougar is just as likely to seduce you as you are to try to get her into bed.

Her type of man: Looks aren't important as long as you're flirty, great in bed, and can make her feel incredibly sexy, young and desirable.

2. Took the Money, Now Let's Have Fun Cougar

She's done very well in her divorce settlement and now prefers to have expensive fun with younger, more virile men. She doesn't like guys who want to sit around on the couch all weekend and she is even willing and eager to pay for your social companionship.

However, although she is willing to pay, it is always a good idea to at least attempt to pull out your wallet or credit card regularly so she can stop you. This is especially true in the beginning and occasionally later while you're dating.

If you have a longer relationship with her, you will likely travel often and dine in great restaurants. She will be very adventurous in bed and just like the "Hot-to-Trot Cougar," you will find her at trendy dance clubs, upscale hotel bars and country clubs.

Her type of man: She wants someone fun, energetic, flirty and adventurous; and while looks and attire aren't her top concern, she is looking for a well-groomed companion. Basically, she wants to live out the sort of fantasy romances that she's seen in movies and TV shows.

3. I Want Revenge Cougar

Her husband cheated on her with a much younger woman and possibly even married the younger woman and now she wants to show him that two can play at that game. If you're looking for a discreet relationship, this isn't going to be it.

She's going to want to show you off as often as possible and in as many places as her ex-husband/boyfriend or his friends may frequent.

She will discuss you with almost anyone she can to ensure that the word of her desirability gets back to her ex-boyfriend or husband. You'll find her at country clubs, on the golf course or tennis courts as frequently as you'll find her at trendy restaurants, bars and clubs that attract a considerably younger and fashionable crowd. She will be aggressive in bed to prove that "she's still got it."

Her type of man: She likes men who are young, confident, attentive, athletic and fun. You have to be a grade above her husband in all areas, or else the revenge plan won't work and she'll feel worse about herself.

4. Corporate Cougar

This cougar is well-paid, in a position of power in her workplace and busy with work. Similar to the "Hot-to-Trot Cougar," she's more interested in a quick roll in the sack than a relationship because she simply wants to get laid while she's away on a business trip, or wants to squeeze in some quick sex before she gets back to thinking about her work.

She will likely be eating alone or having a martini at one of the town's best business hotels, while she is in town for a business meeting.

She'll probably be working on her laptop or Blackberry or chatting with the bartender, but she'll also be scanning the room to see if there is any potential prey. Look out to see if she isn't wearing a marriage or engagement ring on her finger and walk up to start a conversation.

Her type of man: She likes a cub (slang for the men who cougars prey on. Also referred to as: Cougar Bait or Boy Toy) who is intelligent, articulate, and great in bed and who has a flexible schedule (or who can take a long lunch break so you can hook up and have a quickie).

She's attracted to someone who dresses in a suit or business-casual attire (in case she runs into a client or business associate). She wants you to allow her to take the lead both in and out of bed, while also being ready to take charge of her when the time is right.

5. The Society Cougar

With her, you will be as much of an escort as you will be her lover. So if you love the theatre, art, museums, music (opera, symphony, classics â not hip-hop or techno), then she's the cougar for you. She wants someone that she can show off to her friends, is articulate on a variety of subjects and can join her for a tennis match or golf game.

She will expect you to look good in a tuxedo, suit or in country club attire.

She will also usually expect you to be very attentive to her, show great social skills and etiquette and handle yourself with confidence on the ballroom floor. You need to be able to mix well with her other society friends (who could also be great business or social contacts for you) and she will assess this when you meet for the first time, so make sure you brush up on your conversation skills.

You'll find her at high-profile local charity events that deal with the arts, children, education and animals (favorite causes of the wealthy), having lunch at an expensive restaurant, playing a round on the golf course, tennis court or taking her time walking through an art show, museum or any cultural venue.

Once you've snagged your "Society Cougar," you may not have to pay for most things you do together. You may even be given an allowance or taken shopping as the relationship develops.

Her type of man: Upscale appearance, wears business or preppy attire, is knowledgeable about the arts and mixes well with a variety of people.

So, if you'd like to mix things up and start sleeping with the many available cougars, stop for a moment and work out where you fit in. Then, go on the hunt for the type of cougar who is right for you. There are a lot of divorced women out there these days that are starving for some cougar-cub sex.

How to Turn Rejection Into Success

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

[image: Turn rejection into success]

https://s3.amazonaws.com/tmm_audio/johndatingpower.mp3

Listen in as Dan and Ben from The Modern Man interview a customer named “John” who attended the Dating Power seminar.

John was rejected by a woman he worked with. He liked her, but didn’t know the difference between getting a woman to “like” him and feel “attraction” for him. He decided to learn how to attract women after a recommendation from a friend, but had no idea how much his life was about to change.

After learning the required process to become confident with women and actually following through on it (it’s easy and it is explained in Dating Power), John became confident enough to approach women during the day.

He used the conversation and attraction techniques to pick up his girlfriend and they eventually moved in together. Months prior, he was alone and hopeless when it came to women, but he changed that.

He turned the rejection that he once faced at work into success at picking up women outside of work. How about you? Interested in turning the rejections that you’ve experienced into new and even better success with women than you’ve ever had before?

Should You Date Your Friend's Ex-Girlfriend?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Sometimes it is fine to date your friend's ex, but it really depends on the type of relationship they had and the kind of friendship that you have with him. Here are some examples:

1. A woman that your friend was having casual sex with: These guys, many guys date and have sex with multiple women at once. So, if you're hanging around with friends who do that regularly, you will usually end up sleeping with a few of the same girls at times.

Personally speaking, one of my close friends slept with a woman we had nicknamed "tits" (because her breasts were so amazing.

Her tits were so unreal, they were like something out of an anime cartoon). We were fine about him sleeping with her when I got bored of it, because we both noticed her at the same time, but I had sex with her first because I am better with women than he is. See: What is Your Skill Level With Women?

2. Your friend's girlfriend from high school: Relationships that you had in high school may have felt like they would lead to marriage and "happily ever after," but they usually don't. If you want to date your friend's ex from high school who he no longer cares about or barely remembers, he should be totally fine about it.

However, if she is his "high school sweetheart" and has recently dumped him, then he's probably not going to continue thinking of you as a true friend. A true friend cares about his friend and puts "bros before hos."

If you want to hook up with his ex-girlfriend because you are too afraid to approach and meet new women, your friend will realize that and see you as an untrustworthy person who can't be relied on. Trust is the backbone of a great friendship or relationship and if you break it, the relationship comes crashing down.

3. Your friend's girlfriend who dumped him and broke his heart: As the old saying goes, "Time heals all wounds" and that is fairly true when it comes to being dumped by a woman you love and having your heart broken, but it really depends on the person.

For example: In my case, I got cheated on and then dumped by the love of my life because I became clingy in the relationship and wasn't enough of a man for her. It ruined me for years, but I eventually picked myself off the floor and transformed myself into the man I am today.

If one of my friends wanted to date, have sex or even marry my ex-girlfriend, I would now be able to say, "Go ahead!" and would be genuinely happy for him, because I've enjoyed my choice with women for many years and am now in a relationship with my perfect woman.

However, if a friend wanted her shortly after she dumped me, I would no longer consider him a true friend. His actions would suggest that he didn't care about me at all and simply went after her because he was afraid to get out there and approach and meet new women.

4. Your friend's girlfriend who he happily dumped: If she's a girl who he has happily dumped, then he will be fine about it in most cases.

5. Your friend's wife who left him: This one is a big one. I mean, marriage – come on – it's a big deal. If your friend married a woman, then he most-likely really loved her. So, if you really love your friend, you will try hard to steer clear of his wife and hook up with other women.

However, if your friend got lucky when he scored his ex-wife and they were never really a compatible match, then it is okay for you to begin seeing her (if you and her are a perfect match). If you're only sleeping with his ex-wife because you're too afraid to approach and meet new women, then you already know what you're doing is "wrong."

Either way, when it comes to telling your friend that you're sleeping with his ex-wife, the news will rarely be happily received. If you feel as though your friend needs help meeting new women, feel free to suggest that he visit my site and learn from me.

6. Your friend's wife that he happily left: If he happily left his wife and is glad to be hooking up with new women now, it shouldn't be too much of a problem. The best way to tell him is to just be straight about it.

Say something like, "Peter...just letting you know – I've been sleeping with your ex-wife Rebecca lately" and then explain what your intentions are with her. Just be matter of fact about it. Don't try to sugar coat it or hint at it. Just be real, honest and relaxed about it.

Why Do You Want Her Instead of the Billions of Other Women on Planet Earth?

What you really need to do in this situation is be completely honest with yourself about why you want to be with her. Is it because you and her are a perfect match, or is it because you fear putting yourself out there to meet a new woman like most guys do?

Sure, it's comfortable and easy to date a woman you are familiar with because you know what to expect and won't have to risk getting reject by new women you approach. Yet, how much of man will that make you feel like in the end?

Won't you feel like a snake for taking your friend's ex-girl instead of being man enough to confidently approach and pick up new women?

The truth is, with very little effort you could be dating and having sex with many new women, without ruining the relationship with your friend. Doesn't that sound like a much better plan? When you meet new women (who haven't already been sexed by your friends) there isn't any awkwardness in any of your relationships.

Your friends are also much more impressed that you've managed to pick up new women outside of the safety of your "social circle."

Value Contrast: A Potential Problem

Picture this scenario...

You decide to go ahead and date your friend's ex-girlfriend, regardless of the problems it might cause in your friendship. Then one night, you go out to dinner or drinks with your friend and his ex-girlfriend (who is now your girl).

How are you going to feel when they bring up conversations that start with, "Remember the time when we"? This is where something that I call "Value Contrast" kicks in.

If the relationship that you are having with her is not as good as the one they had, or if he behaves in a more attractive way than you (i.e. more confident, funny, masculine), then she will naturally compare you to him and may reconsider her feelings for you.

You will suddenly seem less valuable and attractive to her. However, if your relationship with her is better and you're a more confident guy than he is, then she will see you as more valuable and it will help deepen her attraction for you.

Finally, what will you do if you break up? Not only might you have to deal with the pain of losing her, but you may have also lost one of your good friends. Now that you understand some of the potential problems of dating a friend's ex-girl, what do you think when you ask yourself, "Should I date my friend's ex-girlfriend?"

If you don't want to risk ruining your friendship, then do what millions of brave men from around the world are now doing: Learning how to have their choice of women, instead of hoping to get lucky or take a friend's ex. Don't settle for scraps, don't sit around waiting to get lucky and don't hide from being the powerful man you dream of being.

Do You Make These Mistakes With Women?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

This video has now been upgraded from 5 classic mistakes that guys make with women to 10 reasons why good men get rejected by women.

1. He tries to get her to like him, before she is attracted to him.

Attraction has to come first, even before getting her to like you as a person.

Women can like many guys as friends, but that isn't the same as her feeling sexually attracted. You have to start with sexual attraction and then everything else comes after that. The fact that you're a good guy is simply a bonus to women, but the main thing that they are looking to feel is sexual attraction.

Without sexual attraction, you are just another guy who is willing to have sex with her.

2. He tries to get her to commit to a relationship before sex.

Back in the 1800s and 1900s, getting a woman to commit to a relationship before sex was mandatory. Most couples lost their virginity on the wedding night and then carried on from there.

In today's world, most women have already had sex with other men by the time you meet them and in many cases, the woman had sex on the first date or even first night.

Having sex before starting a relationship allows both of you to test out how you feel. It's essentially like taking each other for a test drive and seeing if you want to buy.

3. Being too nice.

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but it doesn't mark you out as special. Why? Most good guys don't realize that most other guys in this world are good guys too.

What marks you out as special is when you make a woman feel sexually attracted to you and you are ALSO a good guy. That is when you are referred to as a "catch."

4. Being the friend.

Being a woman's friend is not the same as being her lover or boyfriend. If you try to "grow" on a woman over time by being her friend, you risk being rejected when you eventually make a move because she doesn't feel much or any sexual attracted to you.

Additionally, another guy can come along and take her from you within minutes by simply starting off with sexual attraction. It doesn't matter if you've been her friend for years. What matters is whether or not she feels turned on by you.

5. Placing her above himself in terms of value.

Women (especially attractive women), don't want to feel like they are doing a guy a favor by going out with him, having sex with him or becoming his girlfriend or wife.

Women want to feel as though they are lucky to be scoring you, so if you place a woman above you in terms of value (i.e. by behaving, talking, thinking and acting like you're not good enough for her), it won't make her think, "Wow! He feels like he doesn't deserve me. I want him!"

Instead, the woman just accepts that you don't feel worthy and she then hooks up with another guy who does.

6. Not building up sexual tension.

Sexual tension is built up when you make a woman feel attracted to you, but you then make her work a little maintain your attraction and interest.

When sexual tension builds up to the point where she really wants to kiss you or have sex with you, the release of that tension is exhilarating for both of you.

Most good guys don't give that experience to women though because they want to be 100% clear that they like her and are ready and willing to begin a relationship ASAP, even if she is saying or doing things that he doesn't like.

7. Waiting too long to make a move.

Most women give you a window of opportunity to make a move. If you don't see the opening and make a move, many women feel turned off by your lack of balls.

8. Lacking confidence around her.

Just like we feel an intense attraction to a woman's physical appearance, women feel an intense attraction to our confidence. I'm not talking about over the top, show off type of confidence, but the relaxed, masculine confidence of an alpha male.

9. Thinking that being a gentleman will win her over.

Being a gentleman is only appreciated if you are also making her feel sexually attracted to you. If your only approach is to be a nice gentleman, you will be rejected by most of the women you meet.

Some women may give the relationship a chance because they are enjoying being treated like a princess, but they will quickly get bored of the lack of sexual attraction. You will then hear her say to you, "We need to talk," which is the classic, pre-break up conversation.

She then might tell you, "It's not you...it's me" or "I don't deserve a guy like you" or "I need time to find myself." Yet, what is really happening is that she likes you as a person, but you don't make her horny. Simple as that.

10. Pretending not to be interested in sex.

Almost every woman you meet these days has already had plenty of sex.

Women like sex just as much as men do, but they can't go around admitting that otherwise men will assume she is a slut and others (e.g. coworkers, fellow university students, etc) will treat her disrespectfully.

Most women are insecure about their looks and they actually NEED you to show your sexual interest. If you don't, many women will play hard to get as a way to get you to show a lot of interest in them. Yet, when you show lots of interest in a desperate or needy way, most women will reject you.

To cut out all the mind games, just be honest about your sexual interest in her. Show her that by looking at her in a sexual way or saying, "You're sexy...I like you," but ONLY if you have already made her feel sexually attracted to you first.

3 Funny Ways to Increase Your Popularity on Facebook

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

A couple of guy friends of mine always get loads of likes and comments whenever they post up a status update. They have girls saying, “You’re so funny” and “Hahaha! Cool” and things like that all the time.

So, I thought I’d share some of what they are doing to get so much attention on Facebook.

Personally speaking, I rarely post anything on Facebook other than photos from catching up with friends, family or attending a big event or special day (e.g. wedding, birthday, etc). I also get tagged in a lot of photos that my wife (I got married recently) posts up.

When I post up things on Facebook, I do get a lot of clicks and comments, but it’s pretty rare that I’d post something up, so maybe that has something to do with it.

What I know for sure though is that those two guy friends of mine just kill on Facebook. People click like, comment and share their stuff all the time.

How Popular is Your Facebook Profile Today?

You may have 225 friends on your Facebook list of friends, but just how many of them regularly check out your page to see what you’ve been up to?

These days, Facebook has become so influential that being popular on Facebook can actually mean being popular in the real world. If you want people to start noticing you, you need to start doing more than just adding random pretty girls as friends.

Here are 3 funny ways to increase your popularity on Facebook that I’ve seen my friends do. You won’t come off as desperate and you won’t have to wrack your brains to think of witty status updates on a daily basis.

1. “It’s My Birthday” (Every week)

Out of the 365 days a year, there is one day when most people will click on your Facebook profile. Your birthday!

Once a year, you’ll find yourself inundated with well wishes and congratulatory messages on turning a year older. It has become a Facebook tradition. I think it’s pretty annoying, but that’s probably because I am so busy online with The Modern Man and can’t be bothered replying to 100+ family and friends to say, “Thanks!” so I just click like on their comments.

However, I understand that some people LOVE the Facebook birthday attention, so if you do love it, why not try what a couple of my friends did for a couple of months? They changed their birthday every week, so it kept appearing for everyone as a reminder and they kept getting inundated with happy birthdays, confused messages and LOLs from people.

Thanks to Facebook’s birthday notifications, people you have not spoken to in years will be reminded to drop by your page and wish you a happy birthday. This includes ex-girlfriends and ex-crushes, so who knows what could happen when you start “talking” again.

Go to your account settings and change your birth date to the date for next Tuesday. Watch as traffic trickles and laugh as everyone wishes you great happiness for your birthday.

Some of your “real friends” and family will pick up on the fact that it's not your birthday, so just say “Yeh, I've decided to change my birthday to _____ (whatever date you've chosen). It works better with my schedule”

Then, do the same thing next week. You'll get a lot of “LOL!” and “WTF!” responses, but that's the point. People will be posting and you will be more popular on Facebook.

2. “Say Something Funny”

After seeing 20 really funny status updates from my friends, I began to wonder. “Are these guys making up the jokes themselves, or getting it from somewhere online?”

I searched around online and instantly saw that there are loads of sites dedicated to funny status updates (e.g. SillyFacebookStatuses.com).

Yet, that hasn't make me think any less of the guys. I still appreciate that they bring a laugh into my life every few days with a quirky or funny status update.

Some examples that I saw on a site I just looked at:

“Didn't Selfie Sticks used to be called Friends?”

“I'm beginning to think that for some of you, the wheels on your bus do not go round & round.”

“Do people with cats not know about dogs?”

“Whoever said “What goes around, comes around”, never passed around a bag of Doritos.”

Some examples from my friends:

“If I ever get arrested I am going to ask for a status update instead of a phone call.”

“It's amazing how long you can hold your farts at the beginning of a relationship.”

“If a guy wants to find out all of their flaws in under a minute, they just have to ask their girl if she has gained weight.”

“If a man says you're ugly, he's being mean. If a woman says you're ugly, she's jealous. If a little kid says you're ugly, then you're ugly.”

3. “I'm in a Relationship”

If you are single, a good way to keep your page abuzz with rumors and frivolous talk is to change your relationship status to “In a Relationship” on Facebook.

This usually generates a myriad of comments from nosy and poky friends. Sit back, relax and laugh as some of your friends open a discussion about your romantic life. “Who is the lucky girl?” “Is it Ann from high school?” “OMG who is she? I want details!”

Keep it mysterious and don't reveal too many details. The less you comment, the more prying they become. The less you give them, the more they want. You don't have to state who your girlfriend is, just say something like, “It's all moving very quickly.” “I'm actually quite shocked.” “sorry for not telling you guys earlier...”

If they ask you for details, you can then laugh and say that you were only joking. My friend wrote, “Sorry, I was just dreaming. I want a girlfriend. I am over being single.”

What happened next? People started suggesting he meet some of their single girlfriends and a couple of women said that he was hot.

Personally speaking, I've never done anything like that (the only time I changed my relationship status was when I got into a relationship with my now wife), but if you want to get a laugh and have some temporary buzz on your Facebook profile, go ahead.

If you like to joke around and don't want to take life seriously, then make sure that you embrace that. Some of my best friends in life are those who are always looking to have a laugh. People love those who can make them laugh, so if that's your thing – go for it!

10 Things That You Probably Don't Need to Post in a Facebook Status Update

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Facebook gives people an opportunity to connect with people ranging from their closest friends, long lost friends, high school teachers and former co-workers.

With Facebook, a person can follow the daily lives of these people without actually having to speak to them or meet up with them in person, which is one of the things that makes Facebook so addictive.

Yet, this is where it gets tricky. Do you really want to know everything about your friends, family and people you haven't seen in a long time? If you are like most people, there are some things you probably don't want to know.

You Can Post Whatever Crazy Stuff You Want on Facebook, But it Will Have a Negative Impact on Some of Your Relationships

At the end of the day, it doesn't really matter what you say or do in life. It's completely up to you.

You can decide to be a slob or a gym junkie, a nerd or a cool guy, a family man or a player. It really is up to you and there is no ONE way that everyone has to live life.

However, when you post up unnecessary things on Facebook, it can and will have a negative impact on some of your relationships.

For example: Women may think that if they get into a relationship with a guy who behaves in an "uncool" or weird way on Facebook, they will then become a part of the crap that he posts on Facebook.

If you don't really care about having good relationships with people that you know via Facebook, then go ahead and post up whatever you want. However, if you want to have good relationships with people and be liked, focus on being positive and keep your status updates to a minimum.

Only post up what absolutely needs to get posted up (e.g. photos of events like birthdays, weddings, hanging out with family and friends, etc) and share things that are genuinely going to help people that you know on Facebook.

To guide you through the murky waters of Facebook status updates, we've made a list of things that you should try to avoid in Facebook status updates...

Top 10 Things You Probably Don't Need to Post in a Facebook Status Update

10. Your sex life

[image: Bragging about sex on Facebook]

Bragging to your Facebook Friends (often including family and co-workers) about how great your girlfriend or wife is in bed isn't the coolest thing to do in the world.

Most people have no sex life or a crappy one that they are bored to tears with, so they aren't going to rush to your Facebook profile and congratulate you — they're probably going to resent you instead.

9. The details of your recent surgery or illness

Facebook is the place to share information about your life and if you are sick, it's okay to tell your family and friends.

However, some people take it too far and begin revealing the gritty details of bowel movements, leaking surgical wounds and other nasty details in their Facebook Status Updates. Some take even further and post pictures of their surgery online. Is this what you want to see as you check Facebook while eating breakfast?

8. Anything relating to your divorce

This is a bad idea for so many reasons.

According to the American Academy of Matrimonial Lawyers, 66% of divorce lawyers say they search Facebook for evidence on their client's soon-to-be ex-spouse. Updating your status with a description of the great time you've been having with your current girlfriend may not go over too well with the family court judge in your divorce case.

7. Trash talk about your boss

These days, many employers monitor how much time employees spend on social networking sites during work hours. Imagine their surprise when they learn that you call them Douchebag, Numpty or some other creative nickname behind their back.

Likewise, an unflattering comment about a co-worker can cause serious tension in the office or may result in you being fired.

One of the best ways to use Facebook is to just keep it simple. Post positive stuff online, click like, comment nicely and then just shut up. If you have something mean to say, don't post it online. Say to a friend in person or say it to the person's face.

6. Company trade secrets

Sometimes an innocent comment about the details of your work can give away a trade secret to a competitor. In most cases, this will be a direct breach of the confidentiality agreement you may have signed when you began work at the company.

5. Drug use

"Man that was a good joint!" or "Stoned..." or "Got the munchies"

Declaring that you smoked marijuana won't bring the police to your door instantly, but it can cause all types of problems for you.

For example: If you are going through a divorce (see #3) or fighting a custody battle over children, if you work in a drug-free workplace or you end up getting caught with drugs in a foreign country (that treats drug use very seriously) and claim to have never used drugs.

4. A sales pitch

â□□I can make you $5,000 in the next 12 months if you go to my website and sign up now!â□□

Facebook is an excellent place to market products, because you have 100s of millions of users to advertise to. However, marketing your products or services to friends on Facebook is just not cool. Create a Facebook fan page or group instead.

3. The cryptic plea for pity

While it's fine for a women to post a status update like, "Arrrrgh....what a day! I need a hug" or "Why does it always happen to me? Life sucks" a man behaving in that way looks pretty lame.

We men are expected to be pillars of strength in this world. If you want to be attractive to women, you can't behave like a little boy or girl who needs a hug from mommy to feel better. You have to deal with your problems like a man (i.e. feel the emotion and then do something about it without whining or crying out for pity...especially from women).

What's even worse in the cryptic pleas for help is when people ask, "Why? What's wrong?" or "What happened? Are you okay?" and then a guy replies, "Nothing...don't worry."

Lame. So lame.

2. Unimportant details about your life

â□□I had two eggs, toast and orange juice for breakfast. Yum!â□□

Some people use Facebook Status Updates to tell everyone the most mundane things. Most people donâ□□t care that you ate turkey or watched a certain TV show. They only really care about the important things going on in your life.

It's up to you though what you post on Facebook. If you don't care about annoying people, then go ahead and post up everything. It doesn't really matter, but it will have some negative impacts on some of your relationships with people you know via Facebook.

1. A declaration of your sadness

The last thing you ever want to do is bring attention to the passing moments in your life when you feel down, frustrated, lonely or heck – even temporarily depressed. Everyone goes through ups and downs. Part of being an effective, attractive and likeable man is staying in control of your emotions and how you display them.

It's fine to be angry, upset or annoyed at something, but Facebook is definitely not the place to show your temporary shifts in emotion. That's what girls do...

Top 10 Ways to Look Like a Loser on Facebook

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Thanks to Facebook's "Status Update" feature, some users feel the need to tell their Facebook Friends what they're doing on a minute-by-minute basis.

While a small percentage of people enjoy reading the sometimes lame status updates or comments of their Facebook Friends, the majority quietly laugh at the person for being so dramatic about their daily life.

Read the following tips to ensure you don't end up looking like a Floozier (Facebook Loser) in the eyes of your friends.

10. Copy the Girls

Have you ever seen Status Updates from girls that go something like this, "No! He didn't just say that to me!" or "Why is life so hard?! I need a hug..."

It is fine for girls to behave like that, but it is not fine for men to do it. That is, unless you want to others to think you're a sissy, wussy or pussy.

Naturally, women are more feminine and men are more masculine. One part of a woman being feminine is expressing herself in reaction to her ever-changing emotional state. This is why women make such dramatic, emotional posts so often. It is natural and normal for women to behave like that.

However, this sort of behavior is not seen as normal for men who are looking to attract women for sex or relationships, or be respected by other men.

As such, if you 'act like a girl' in this way, women will not feel attraction for you because they are naturally designed to be attracted to men. Yes, except for the lesbians.

9. Be Encouraged By Other Floozers

Just because one or two other Floozers respond to almost every one of your updates, it doesn't mean anyone else is interested. You may think that having someone else comment (no matter who it is) makes you look cool. It doesn't. People know a Floozier comment when they see one.

8. Don't Say it in Person

Airing your dirty laundry in public has never been cool. Likewise, it's not cool to use a Status Update to send personal attacks or apologies to someone. Say it in person, send a personal message or forget about it. It's tacky and immature to do it in front of everyone on your Facebook Friend list.

7. Post Everyday

It doesn't matter how interesting your Updates are if you post too often it just makes you seem like a lonely loser with nothing better to do.

Resist the urge and if you absolutely must do something on Facebook, make a comment on another person's Facebook stuff (i.e. a photo, video, comment) they'll appreciate it and most-likely return the favor every once in a while when you make an interesting update to your profile.

6. Quote Like Crazy

A recent trend is for Facebookers to quote lines from their favorite movie or song. The occasional funny quote can be a great way to add some much needed humor to the Live Feed, but being serious about your quotations is just corny and lame. Keep the serious, deep and meaningful stuff amongst your close friends in person or in personal messages.

5. Tarnish Your Work Reputation

The occasional, 'Ugh work!' might seem funny to you and a couple of like-minded friends, but if you have work colleagues (or worse your boss) on your list of Facebook Friends, don't expect them to see the humor in it.

4. Don't Think

Before you click 'Share' and reveal your Status Update to your list of Facebook Friends, think about whether you'd honestly be interested in reading what you're about to post if one of your friends did the same.

Would you really want to know that they've just had a glass of milk in the last couple of minutes and are settling down to watch an episode of CSI New York? If not, chances are that most people feel the same way. It's up to you if you want to post uninteresting Status Updates, but doing it regularly is a sure way to look like a lonely loser.

3. Post When You're Feeling Highly-Emotional (or Drunk)

The most regrettable things are done on Facebook when we are highly-emotional. If you're angry about a certain situation, or madly in love and want to tell everyone about it wait 24 hours. While it's fine for women to air their emotions on a daily basis, you need to show control as a man. You're not a woman, so don't act like one.

2. Look for Pity

We all know a person who constantly posts the worries and woes about their personal life. They're hoping to get a, 'There, there poor you' pat on the back from their friends and family. Don't do it. You're a man, not a boy, not a girl. Men don't whine and complain about their problems in life they deal with them logically and with minimal emotion.

1. Type 'Lol' all the time

An occasional 'Lol' (Laugh out loud) is fine, but including an lol in all of your comments, Status Updates and messages is one of the fastest ways to look like a girl. The funniest men are those who don't need to laugh at their own jokes or comments. They have the balls to say what they want and then let the silence or the pause after the joke to be the funniest part.

In conclusion: If you're a guy who simply must make Status Updates pay attention to these tips to avoid coming across as a Floozer and ruining your chances with women you're hoping to impress.

She's Hot, You're Not! Now What?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Most beautiful women are less picky about a guy's looks than you think.

Additionally, while you might think you don't look good enough for a beautiful woman, the truth is that you can actually make women look at your physical appearance in a more positive light. How?

When you make a woman feel attracted to you for other reasons (e.g. charm, humor, confidence, masculine vibe, etc), she will actually look at your physical appearance in a more positive light because she is feeling attracted to who you are as a guy.

While it is true that some beautiful women will only ever have sex with a perfectly good looking guy who is tall and has loads of money, most beautiful women have what I call an Open Type, which means that they are open to having sex with many different types of guys (and even marrying them) if the guy can make her feel enough attraction in other ways.

As you may have seen, even guys that you might consider to be "ugly" can and do pick up beautiful women all the time (some photo proof).

Making Her Feel Attracted to You

As long as you are confident during an interaction with a woman and can make her feel attracted to you in other ways (e.g. charm, humor, flirting, masculine vibe, etc), most women will give you a chance.

A woman would rather be with a confident guy who isn't good-looking (i.e. average looking or below average looking) than a good-looking guy who is nervous around her, intimidated by her and who would likely become clingy in a relationship.

Imagine This...

Imagine that you're at a busy nightclub and notice a very beautiful woman you'd love to meet. You would really like to approach and talk to her, but you're not exactly a male model. You're just...well...average. So, what are you going to do? Should you go over and talk to her?

"No," you say to yourself, "I can't do that. She's probably used to having handsome guys in her life and might even have a good-looking boyfriend. She'll most likely reject a guy like me in an instant. What's the point of trying?"

If you approach a beautiful woman with that attitude, then you are right — she is going to reject you. Why? Women are attracted to the strength in men and turned off by the weakness. So, when you appear nervous around her or seem to be second-guessing yourself, she will be turned off by your mental and emotional weakness.

Gift Wrapping Example

Consider this...

Two people give you presents for your birthday. One has it professionally wrapped in expensive paper and decorated beautifully with ribbons and says to you, "I didn't know what to get you, so I got you some stupid shirt. If you don't like it, you can return it."

The other person happily hands you their present with a smile. It's unwrapped and still in the plain, original department store gift box, but the person confidently says, "I wanted to get you something special and when I saw this, I knew you'd love it."

It's exactly same shirt as the other person got you, but this present was given to you with a very different approach. You don't need two identical shirts. So which one would you keep? The one that was given to you with love has more meaning, but if you're a superficial person then you might want to keep the one with the pretty wrapping to make yourself feel good.

That's about how it works when women judge men on looks. Some women want guys who "look good" because it will make them feel better, whereas most women just want a guy who makes them FEEL good.

Have you ever seen a beautiful woman reject a handsome guy after a few minutes? Of course you have. Why? In most cases, all he has to offer her is his "beautiful wrapping paper" and nothing more. He thought that his good looks should have been enough to impress her, but most women need to feel sexually attracted to a man's personality before they will become truly interested in being with him. That is why you see average and below-average looking men walking along with a beautiful girlfriend; these men attract women just by being themselves.

If a good looking guy lacks confidence, conversation skills and charisma, a woman will quickly lose interest in him. After a few minutes of seeing him awkwardly try to keep the conversation going and appearing nervous while doing it, she will begin to realize that what she is looking is little more than an empty box.

Most women will then reject him and keep looking for a man of substance.

You've Got to Believe in Yourself

As a man, most of your success with women simply comes down to believing in yourself. You have to believe that you are not only good enough, but that you are more than good enough...especially when you're talking to attractive women.

If attractive women can see that you believe in yourself and don't get nervous around them, they will be much more eager to kiss you, go on dates with you and have sex with you.

Top 10 Things Not to Do on a First Date

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

How you conduct yourself on the first date will determine whether or not you get a second one.

If you really want to keep seeing this woman that you've worked so hard to find, here are the top 10 things not to do on your first date...

10. Put on an act

Many men will acquire the skills to attract a woman, but then screw things up by trying to be someone they're not on the date. They'll act richer, cooler, more ambitious, more rebellious or anything else they think will impress the woman.

Don't put on an act. Simply be the same guy she was first attracted to when you asked her out on a date. Not only can most women see right through the act, but you'll lose her trust early on, which will destroy the foundation of your budding relationship.

9. Discuss past relationships

Yes, you have a past and so does she, but a first date is not the time to talk about or complain about your ex. Right now she is living in a fairy tale (that line is very important. I recommend you read it again. She is living in a fairy tale with you) where she's met her potential prince.

If you want to drown her dreams immediately, start trash-talking your ex. Not only will that remind her of your love for previous women, but it will show her how you might behave if you and her broke up.

If she asks you about your past girlfriends just say (in a friendly manner), "Yeah, we've all had previous relationships. Personally, I'd rather enjoy this time with you now instead of talking about other women wouldn't you?"

8. Use the "You remind me of..." line

Women like to feel as if they are unique and special to you. If you tell her that she reminds you of a woman you liked but never got to have a relationship with, it can set off alarm bells in her mind. She'll think that you obviously still like the woman and given the chance, would probably leave her for the woman you couldn't score with.

Another bad idea is to compare her to your mother, sister, aunt, or, worse, your ex. No matter how much it was meant as a compliment, it's going to turn her off.

7. Drink too much

You may be tempted to down an extra glass or two (or more) of alcohol to calm your nerves when you're on a first date, but the more you drink the greater your chances are of doing or saying something stupid that insults your date or makes you look foolish.

The only exception is if you're both having plenty of drinks together. In those cases, enjoy the drinks but make sure you're still sober enough to perform your duties later on.

6. Forget to look your best

You don't have to wear a tuxedo or a suit (unless your planned date calls for it), but you should put in some effort to look good. There is a fine-line here: We're not recommending you care too much about your appearance, but at least respect yourself by presenting yourself well.

Dress appropriately for the occasion, even if it's just a casual date. She will undoubtedly go to a lot of trouble to look nice for you. The least you can do is return the favor by being properly groomed and wearing nice enough clothes.

5. Show up too late or too early

If you make the date for a set time, make sure you are on time. Arriving late (especially if you don't call to say you're delayed) is rude.

Picking up from her place: Arriving too early will not only make you appear over-anxious, you'll likely catch her unprepared if you're picking up from her home. If you arrive earlier than you planned, wait until your scheduled arrival time before you knock on her door.

Meeting her somewhere: Walk into the venue on time, not a minute later. Walk up to her in a confident, relaxed manner and with a smile, ask her she is doing and tell her how great she looks.

4. Stick to boring, polite conversation

When you're on a first date, it's not unusual to experience a few silences where either of you don't know what to say next.

If you are worried about awkward silences or pauses, you might want to go to the date prepared to talk about a funny current event (not boring political or negative stuff), a cool new movie, TV show or a similar topic that will keep the conversation moving along or bring it back to life if it dies.

If you are stuck for something to say, the best option is almost always to get her to talk about herself and things she's passionate about. People love to talk about themselves when a great listener is present.

3. Talking on your phone for too long

Unless it's a matter of life or death, there's no reason to have a call interfere with your date and that means no texting either. Your only focus should be on your date. If you need to keep your phone on and it happens to ring, check who is calling and if it's not an emergency, hit the "end call" button and ignore it. If it is one of your close friends, feel free to answer it, say hello and let them know that you'll be back a little later.

2. Forget to listen

A lot of guys make the mistake of trying too hard to come up with things to say, when if they listened to the woman and expanded on her conversation they'd never run out of things to say. Check out this article to learn 3 ways to keep a conversation going.

If she's talking and you're really listening, you'll always find an opportunity to comment on something she's said. The conversation will flow easily and naturally and you won't run out of things to talk about with her.

1. Make a big deal out of who pays the bill

Our golden rule for paying the tab is: If you're going to date her again, pick up the tab and tell her she can get it next time. If you know you won't be seeing her again, split the bill.

However, don't make the mistake of letting the check sit on the table for a prolonged period of time. It creates an unnecessary awkwardness where she feels unsure if you're expecting her to split the tab with you, or whether you're waiting for her to pick up the bill.

If you think that by picking up the check too fast you'll look as if you're trying to end the date too quickly, simply move the check next to you so she can see that you plan to pay the bill. Then continue on with your conversation.

By avoiding these first date mistakes, you can look forward to more dates or a great relationship with the woman youâ€¦ve chosen.

Top 10 Ways to Get Rejected

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

You've spotted a beautiful woman and you've decided that you're going to approach her.

However, if you're not careful about how you handle the next few minutes, the only thing you might score is a negative response from her and the stinging feeling of rejection as you walk away with your tail between your legs.

Here are the top 10 ways to get rejected when approaching women.

10. Show a lack of confidence

If you want to be rejected immediately, approach a woman with your shoulders slumped and a nervous, almost "terrified" expression on your face. She'll be able to spot your fear and desperation and will immediately lose interest.

On the other hand, if you stand tall, smile and approach her with self-confidence and a casual attitude like you were just going over for an easy-going chat, you'll instantly make a much more positive first impression.

9. Be way too nice to her

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but if you're being extra nice and polite as way to impress her, it will usually end up in rejection. Why?

8. Apologize for your appearance

If you just came from your "work-up-a-sweat" job, have been exercising or you generally don't look your best when you spot a stunning beauty, don't use that as an excuse not to approach her. Remember, it's your inner confidence and cheeky charm that a woman will respond to, not your looks and attire.

Whatever you do "never" apologize about your appearance when you meet a woman, because you'll make her start thinking about it.

A woman wants to be positively affected by your personality, rather than have to interact with you like she would with a woman who is concerned with her appearance. If you try to make it about 'looks', she'll probably agree that you don't look good enough to be with her because 99% of guys are just ordinary-looking guys.

7. Talk softly or mumble

If you walk up to a woman and say something like, "Hi! I'm uh John, and I uh, just want to um say hello because I uh noticed you and I thought umm that maybe if you wanted, you don't have to, of course, but uh we could maybe umm"

You get the point. By this time, if she hasn't already fallen asleep you can be sure that she's going to ignore you and walk away. Mumbling and speaking softly shows a total lack of confidence and that is going to kill your chances with women. Women are naturally attracted to a man's confidence, just like we men are naturally attracted to a woman's physical appearance.

Speak loudly enough to be heard and sound upbeat, self-assured and clear to spark her interest. You have nothing to hide "you're exactly the type of guy that you are. Be proud of yourself and enjoy being you. When you do that, you will find women who love you for you, rather than for an act you put on from time to time.

6. Unnecessarily invade her space

Unless you're in a loud environment like a nightclub, you should keep about 1.5 meters between you and the woman to begin with.

Everyone has a personal space that they are comfortable with. If you invade her space by stepping up too closely for no reason when you first meet her, you'll freak her out. Keep a reasonable distance from her so she doesn't feel as though you are treating her like some gorgeous supermodel that is being approached by a desperate fan.

If you want to get closer, take her for a spin on the dance floor where touching and closeness is not only legal, it's desirable. Alternatively, use flirting to create sexual tension and she will naturally begin to get closer to you.

5. Compliment her too much

If she's beautiful, she already knows it. If you repeatedly tell her how sexy and stunning she is when you first meet her, you're going to come off like every other wannabe pick-up artist she's met. Treat her like any other average-looking girl.

She'll assume that you're used to being around beautiful women and are more interested in her as a person. That will be a turn-on for her and soon she'll be trying to turn you on.

4. Come across as too eager

Some women like to test a man's confidence level, so they'll ask him to run and get drinks for her and her friends or perform some silly task. If you fall for that type of request, she'll immediately label you needy and desperate and she will either reject you or continue to humiliate you in front of her friends.

You wouldn't run off to fetch drinks if a guy asked you to do it, so don't be so eager to please when you first meet a woman.

3. Use a bad pickup line

For some reason, many guys feel they have to come up with a line when they meet a woman. A simple, "Hi, how's it going?" or "Hey, I'm John, I thought I'd come over and say hi, what's your name?" will usually do the trick as long as you smile with confidence and take a light-hearted approach when starting the conversation.

Canned lines like, "Did it hurt when you fell from heaven?" will turn her off quicker than a flick of a light switch.

2. Think that it's all about you

When you first approach a woman, if you start spouting your resume or biography as if you were applying for the position as her boyfriend, you're not going to get the job.

Instead, simply start a laid-back, light-hearted two-way conversation. Playing tease her a couple of times about stuff she says, make some jokes on the fly, ask her a casual question or two and just talk to her like you would any other person, not as though she is someone super special to you.

Trying too hard to impress her makes you look needy and desperate, which will lead to rejection almost 99% of the time.

1. Approach her when you're drunk

We all know when we are in the process of drinking too much. However, once you get there it's not as easy to collect your thoughts and realize how drunk you are. So, take it easy.

If your goal is to meet a beautiful woman and get her interested in you, forget the liquid courage or at least, don't overdo it. A few drinks throughout the night (to join in on the fun) are fine, but clouding your fears in alcohol so you can talk to women isn't the solution and won't ever help you overcome your fears.

Approach women with the mindset of: Having a good night and enjoying some easy-going, fun and light-hearted conversations. That way you can be the interesting, appealing guy that she has been dreaming about and not a sloppy drunk that she wants to distance herself from.

Avoid these top 10 ways to get rejected when you meet an interesting sexy woman and before you know it, you'll be dialing her for a date.

Top 10 Reasons to Break Up with Her

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Romantic relationships can end for a variety of reasons.

Generally speaking, the break up will total make sense and both of you will part ways without too much heartache and drama. However, sometimes youâll get into a relationship with the wrong woman and need to initiate the break up on your own.

If you notice that your girlfriend is the wrong woman for you, the best advice to cut your losses and move on as quickly as possible. The longer you leave it, the worse it will be for the both of you...especially if you accidentally get her pregnant.

Some guys stick with the wrong woman for way too long because they either fear approaching and picking up new women or they don't know how to attract other beautiful women, so it feels easier to stay with their current girl.

Break it Off With Her Before She Breaks Up With You...or Before She Gets Pregnant

If you feel like you're in a relationship with the wrong girl, here are the top 10 reasons to break up with her fast....

10. Your personal life is no longer personal

Picture this â you're out with friends on a group date and your girlfriend suddenly says, "Hey, did he ever tell you that he wet the bed until he was 12?" and if you call her on it, she'll say, "Oh, come on. It's funny. You're being too sensitive honey."

It doesn't matter if you're humiliated; if she thinks it will make for an amusing bit of conversation, she's going to tell the world. Find a more caring woman who wants to see you happy and confident about yourself and your life.

9. She interferes with your other relationships

At first it may seem endearing when she says, "I want you all to myself," but when she gets so upset whenever you want to see your friends that you'd rather retreat from your buddies than incur her wrath, you need to realize her behavior is not normal and will most-likely get worse as the years go on.

Or, perhaps, there's a family function that you want to attend but she refuses to go with you, so you go to it by yourself. When you return, she pouts and punishes you because you left her alone. So gradually you draw back from your family. Before you know it, she has you totally isolated.

Find someone else who enjoys being with all the people you care about. If she can't do that, your relationship is going to be full of negative tension, frustration and resentment.

8. She's too nosy

She reads your e-mails over your shoulder, monitors your messages and texts, looksÂ through your personal mail and when your phone rings – you have to lock yourself away in your car or the back room of your house just to have a little privacy.

If you don't put an end to her snooping early on, eventually she'll question every purchase on your credit card bill, check your phone messages and e-mails and discard or erase anything that SHE doesn't think is essential. Remember, you want a loving woman, not a controlling parent who monitors your every move.

7. She's already planned your wedding

It's your second or third date, and she tells you all about her dream wedding.

While it's not unusual for women to dream of their wedding day from the time they are little girls, this is obviously a woman who's so enamoured with thought of being the star on her wedding day that she doesn't even care who she's marrying, just as long as she can have her dream wedding.

You want to be with a woman who is excited to spend the rest of her life with you. Whether that includes a wedding is up to the both of you and what you believe in.

6. She makes plans for the two of you without consulting you

You've only had a few dates and she calls to say she's made plans for you and her to go out with another couple.

Why is this a warning sign? You're not in an exclusive relationship and she doesn't know if you had other plans. Plus, it's apparent that she's so anxious to be a part of a couple that she doesn't care who she is coupled up with. She most-likely just wants to prove to her friends that she isn't a loser who can't get a boyfriend.

You want a woman who wants to be with you because she is attracted to you and is interested in who you are as a person. Not a woman who wants to use you to calm her trivial insecurities around friends.

5. She's everywhere you turn

Whether you've mentioned to her where you plan to be or not, she's there. It doesn't matter if it's a night out with the guys, a business meeting or a family gathering; she just happens to be in the same place you are. This is stalking behavior. It's scary and it's serious. Get rid of her.

4. She constantly lies to you

Trust is essential for the health of any relationship. The same need for truth is present in a romantic relationship with a woman as there is in a friendship with a buddy. When you notice that you're being deceived, the fabric of the relationship deteriorates and you start to question everything about the person.

If you discover that your girlfriend lies about where she's been, how much money she has or what she does in her spare time get rid of her. If she is lying to you when her sexual desire for you is at its highest (the first year of the relationship), imagine what she will do when the sexual passion begins to die away.

Don't fool yourself into thinking that she will stop lying when she falls in love with you properly. If she is a liar, she is a liar. Find another woman.

3. She's excessively jealous

It doesn't matter if you're talking to a co-worker or a waitress; she throws a fit whenever you speak to any other woman. Or, perhaps she constantly accuses you of having affairs without having any evidence to substantiate her claims. This behavior isn't going to get better with time. She's completely insecure and there's nothing you can do to reassure her.

A lot of insecure guys like this behavior from their girlfriends because they believe it will ensure that she won't cheat in the relationship and will stay loyal out of fear of losing him. Ironically, jealous women are the most likely to cheat on their partners; they want to make their man jealous and get revenge for his excessive flirting with other women.

2. She's not over her ex

Unfortunately, you're the rebound guy. She had a bad breakup that wasn't her idea and even though she claims to be over her ex, she shows signs that she's still in love with him. Trust your gut feeling in these situations 99% of time you are correct.

She talks about him often. She displays framed pictures of the two of them in her apartment. She constantly suggests places for you to go on your date where you accidentally bump into her ex. When you're there, her eyes follow him like a laser beam. She's distracted when you talk to her and more than once she's called you by his name.

Look for someone who's open to a relationship with you and is not just biding her time until she can figure a way to get back with her ex.

1. She cheats on you

Do you really need an explanation of why you should break up with someone who cheats on you? Trust and loyalty are the backbone of any relationship. When that is gone the relationship will never be the same again.

10 Ways to Make Her Reach Orgasm

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Great sex is the key to a successful, lasting relationship between a man and a woman.

Without it, the relationship feels more like a friendship and in the modern world, where it is no longer taboo to break up a relationship, many women will leave you to find a new man who can make her feel sexually satisfied.

Making a woman orgasm is mostly about getting her in the mood prior to sex by triggering her feelings of attraction for you.

You can trigger her feelings of attraction by way of your actions, touch and behavior.

Her ability to orgasm (or “come”) has more to do with her perception of you as a man, how she feels about being penetrated by you and the emotional state you get her into before and during sex.

When you create the right type of relationship dynamic between you and your woman, it will be easy for her to reach orgasm without you having to spend a lot of time on foreplay or romance.

However, if you create the wrong type of relationship dynamic (i.e. where she can’t fully look up to you and respect you as her man), most women will be unable reach orgasm and the relationship will begin to fall apart.

10. When Licking Her Pussy, Focus Mostly on Her Clitoris

Oral sex is the easiest ways to make a woman orgasm. The secret to making a woman orgasm with oral sex is to simply focus on licking her clit.

Gently lick up and down the front of her pussy for a bit in a soft and slow way and then just focus on the clit.

Putting your fingers in (i.e. fingering her), sticking your tongue in and out, or aggressively licking all around her pussy usually doesn’t make women reach orgasm, so I don’t waste my time with that. I only do it if I feel like it because I’m in the mood and want to devour her.

The thing that makes most women orgasm is to simply focus on licking her clit in consistent, repetitive patterns. Get into a rhythm and stick with it, so she can relax and begin to guide herself (mentally) towards an orgasm.

When you notice that her body starts to tense up, don’t switch to another licking pattern – just keep going until she orgasms.

If she is tensing up and appears to be close to having an orgasm, but still doesn’t have one after about 30 seconds, rapidly switch to another licking pattern and keep that going at a fast pace. In those cases, she will usually orgasm within 10 seconds after that.

When she is experiencing the orgasm, don’t switch to another licking pattern – just keep going until she pushes you away.

When she pushes you away, it means she peaked, enjoyed the orgasm and is now finished. When the orgasm finishes, her clitoris will become very sensitive and any licking or touching will usually be slightly or even very painful for her.

BTW: How do I know so much about sex? I've had sex with more than 250 and am now in a committed relationship, in which I make my girlfriend orgasm almost every time (about 95% of the time) because sometimes she doesn't want to orgasm.

Great sex is one part of what keeps us madly in love, but there is a lot more to making a relationship last that I teach here at The Modern Man.

9. Don't Rush Through the Kissing...Sometimes

For women, kissing is huge. Sometimes, a woman would rather than make out with you and experience the intimate closeness than comes with that, rather than just having sex. To paraphrase a scene out of the movie "Bull Durham" with Kevin Costner and Susan Sarandon: Women like long, slow, deep, soft, wet kisses that go on for three days.

I've been with my girlfriend since October 2012 and even though we've past the initial phase of the relationship that typically includes a lot of kissing, I have made sure that I don't deprive her of it now. I won't do it every time we have sex, but I will do it sometimes and to be honest, BOTH of us get really turned on by it.

So, whether your relationship is new or you are 20 years into it, make sure that you don't forget how powerful a kiss can be.

If you and your woman feel like you've passed the "kissing days," then I recommend loosening up with a few drinks on a Friday or Saturday night at home.

If you've been with each other a long time and no longer jump all over each other and make out, just have a shower and brush your teeth before getting into bed so you both feel fresh.

Then, when you do have sex later than night, the alcohol will make you both loosen up and the fresh breath will make you feel more open to kissing and behaving like you did in the old days.

[image: Dan Bacon with girlfriend]

That's me (Dan Bacon), chillin' with my woman. She orgasms easily with oral sex focusing on her clit and when she is on top.

8. Set the Stage For Sensuality...Sometimes

Some women really like sensual mood lighting and romance.

However, from my experience, many modern women laugh when they see that you've set up mood lighting with candles, are burning some incense and playing some soft music in the background.

It just feels corny, staged and even a little outdated to most women. However, if you remain confident, calm and in control and simply smile at her as you walk over and begin kissing her and rubbing her body, she will open herself up to the experience and really appreciate the effort you put in.

The mood lighting, the massage oil, incense and music will help her relax and get into the mood for an orgasm. This is especially useful when having sex with women who seem confident, but are actually quite insecure. In other words, most beautiful women.

To set the stage for sensuality, you might have a steamy, candle-lit bubble bath together or soap each other up in the shower with a new soap that you both selected. Get some massage oil or lubricant and use it to play with each other's genitals while kissing for a while before sex.

Play some relaxing music while burning incense. Anything like that to add a bit more romance and sensuality to the experience. However, make sure you only do this sometimes, because it will get boring and lose its effect if you do it too much.

7. Make Her Feel Lucky to Be Having Sex With You

Fact: Women want to feel lucky to be with you in a relationship; they don't want to feel as though they are doing you a favor by being with you or having sex with you.

When I realized that women wanted to feel lucky to be with the guy they'd chosen, it suddenly made sense to me why women always seemed to reject wimpy nice guys and go for confident guys who believed in themselves.

If you think it's a little chauvinistic or arrogant to feel as though she is lucky to be with you, then you've probably been brainwashed by modern TV culture and advertisements that continually portray men as stupid, incompetent, clumsy, nervous, lacking confidence and having to continually try to impress the almighty woman.

A lot of modern men make the mistake of trying to get in a woman's "good books" by being really nice to hopefully then get some action in the bedroom. However, that type of weak, submissive male behavior actually turns women off at a deep level.

The right dynamic between a man and a woman is to make her feel lucky to be having sex. It's not about telling her that she should feel lucky, but being the sort of man that she knows other women would love to be with in a relationship as well as in the bedroom.

6. Talk About What You've Enjoyed So Far

[image: What is Pillow Talk With a Woman?]

When you're outside of the bedroom in a quiet, safe zone (e.g. a quiet night in front of the TV), tell her how much you enjoy when she does certain things to you. For example, you can say with a cheeky smile, "Babe...I really enjoy the way you suck it...you're good at it. I've taught you well :)"

If you have a great relationship where both you and her are comfortable to be your true self around each other, she will laugh along with you and enjoy the moment. More importantly, she will feel more confident the next time she decides to give you oral sex.

She will feel more sexy in your eyes and as a result, will be more-likely to achieve orgasm when you give her oral sex or while you're having intercourse.

If you're still dating and haven't had sex yet, you can tell her how sexy her kissing is. You'll boost her sexual self-esteem around you and that will allow her to feel more emotionally open during sex, which will increase the chances of an emotionally-driven orgasm.

She'll think, "Well, if you liked my kissing, wait until you see what I can do to you in bed!" and will be keen to let relax, show off her skills and enjoy the sex with you.

After letting her know what you like, make sure that you also ask her if there's something she particularly enjoys. Don't cross-examine her in an overly-serious way, just casually ask her. Smile gently and look her in the eyes and ask, “So, what have I done so far that really turned you on?”

5. Turn Her on With Your Behavior

A woman’s physical appearance is what turns us men on in an instant.

However, for a woman, she gets turned on more from how your behavior, actions and vibe makes her feel. So, instead of worrying so much about how you look physically, you need to focus more on how you are making her feel.

Does she feel protected around you, or does she feel as though she needs to protect you from the world? Does she see you as a real man, or as a wimp who she will put up with until she finds a better man?

An example of turning her on with your behavior is what I call the Clit Call. When the relationship has reached the point where you are having regular sex and are comfortable being yourselves around each other, pick your moment to call her on her phone a day before a date that you have scheduled together.

Get her on the phone and say, “Hey...listen there’s something I want you to think about. Imagine this...my tongue, your clit. See you tomorrow.”

Then hang up.

After that, she will naturally begin to imagine and daydream how the sex will play out after your date. In fact, it’s very possible she’s going to want to skip the date and head straight to bed.

4. Experiment to Find Out Which Position Makes Her Come

Due to the position of her clitoris, it’s extremely difficult for most women to achieve an orgasm from the standard missionary (man on top) position.

If you’re on top and pumping inside of her, try lightly stimulating her clitoris with a moistened finger at the same time (find out if she prefers to have you play with her clit directly, or from the outside of the hood of her clitoris).

Some women are too sensitive down there and it hurts, while others love it) or get her to play with her clit while you focus on penetrating her with varying degrees of force with your penis (e.g. long light strokes, fast aggressive strokes, etc).

One of the easiest ways to make a woman orgasm is to get her on top, because it allows her to effortlessly stimulate her clitoris against your body and control the speed, penetration and length of the strokes to her satisfaction.

Her on top is the easiest position for a woman to orgasm, but you need to work out the right rhythm and technique for each woman – not all women are the same. Some women prefer sex lying side-by-side facing each other (push her head down sometimes to allow her to see you pumping her), doggy style or back to front.

Have fun experimenting and see what she responds to, but don’t change positions too often and too quickly. When you keep switching positions, she will often lose her heightened emotional state (e.g. feeling intense feelings of love for you, feeling naughty, feeling dominated and loving it, etc) which is a big part of how a woman reaches an orgasm.

Let her get caught up in the emotion and delve into the feelings, thoughts and sensations that will drive her to orgasm. Help her along by groaning (in a masculine way) with pleasure at times, breathing heavily and using your masculine facial expressions to show her how into it you are.

3. Don't Make it Your Fault or Her Fault

[image: Make her come]

Never, under any circumstances, apologize about her being unable to reach an orgasm. Also, don't make it out as though she has some sort of problem. Orgasms will have more often if you can just be easy-going about it and allow both of you to relax.

If you turn it into a huge problem, both of you will be so tense and thinking way too much during sex that it will be difficult to enjoy it. Instead, have the sort of attitude that, "No orgasm is no big deal. Maybe next time" and just be easy-going about it.

When she does orgasm, just smile and allow her to enjoy it without you interrupting with questions or comments. You can then ask her, "Nice baby?" or "How was that darling?" while smiling in a relaxed and sexual way.

It's good to acknowledge her having the orgasm because you want her to know that you know. She'll likely respond with, "Yes, that was an amazing orgasm" or "Wow, that was good" or something along those lines.

The more often she orgasms with you, the more she will be able to orgasm in future because simply by believing that she can orgasm dramatically improves her chances of achieving orgasm the next time. In time, she'll get good at going to "that place" in her body and mind that delivers her to the point of orgasm.

2. Mix it Up

Oral and hand stimulation can often provide her with an even greater chance of success of reaching orgasm. Since the clitoris is the most sensitive spot on a woman's body, it's much better to go with a light touch that isn't too prolonged and then go back to it sporadically.

When touching her clitoris, always ♡ I repeat, always ♡ ensure that your finger is lubricated by her juices or your saliva. A dry finger on her clit hurts like hell and is a big turn off. Combine light flicks of your finger or tongue on her clit and long strokes in and out with your fingers. Then, alternate by putting your penis back in and then going back to finger and oral stimulation. You'll both have an explosive sexual experience.

It really depends on the woman. As mentioned, I've had sex with more than 250 women and after a while, I became confident enough to just talk about what I liked and what she liked or wanted. Sometimes, women were too shy to say a lot, so I waited for a night when we were out partying and having a few drinks to ask her.

Either way, I got my answers and found out what she liked. Some girls liked being fingered, some hated it. Some girls wanted to be slapped on the face, while others wanted really soft and sensual sex.

Some girls loved copping it doggy style, while others loved being on top.

If you are unsure what might work for her, just ask her in an easy-going way. Don't stress out about it, just ask in a relaxed manner and then get on with what you're doing.

[image: Make her orgasm]

1. Be a Man

The most important element in making your woman able to reach orgasms with you is to be a man. From the very first moment a woman meets you and right through the entire relationship, she will constantly be assessing your level of masculinity.

Sometimes your masculinity is expressed in very subtle ways, while other times it is extremely obvious. A subtle example of masculinity is how you respond to another man when he is being pushy, or trying to undermine you.

A woman will look to see if you can remain confident or be assertive, without losing control of your emotions or getting pushed around. An obvious example of masculinity is the way you hug her (e.g. when on the couch). Do you cuddle up to her, or do you get her to cuddle up to you?

Getting a woman to reach an orgasm is both simple and complex. If you can take on your role as a man consistently, your woman will find it easy to orgasm with you (even after only a few minutes of sex). Most of my women orgasm within the first 1-2 minutes of sex, or within the first minute of oral sex.

This isn't because I have a big penis (I'm just average) or because I am using amazing physical techniques, it is because women see that I am a man all day, all night, no matter what situation I'm in. That's the big difference.

The Pros and Cons of Online Dating

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you haven't been dating in a while, if you're new to dating or if you're want to improve your skills with women, online dating can sometimes be a good stepping stone. The truth is that online dating is best used in combination with actually going out and talking to women in bars.

However, since many guys are interested in online dating these days, let's have an honest look at the pros and cons.

Online dating wasn't very popular before the late 1990s and early 2000s, but today it has become a much more viable option to make initial contact with women. Unlike in the past, you'll find that there are more women who are also looking to meet their match online.

It's no longer just the homely girls who frequent the online dating sites. Many beautiful women, especially those with busy careers, are now finding that meeting someone online suits their busy lifestyle.

After all, they don't have to get dressed or deal with the noise and crowds generally associated with the club scene and they can better fit it into their schedule.

Today, there are free sites with many active members, but sometimes paying a small fee will give you access to women aren't being flooded with messages by free users.

While you can correspond with women internationally and nationally, some sites will give you the option to search for women within a short drive from where you live.

It's a good feature, because unless you're ready and willing to move to the other side of the world if you become serious with the woman, or you simply don't want to have to spend a fortune traveling back and forth to date, you might want to limit your search to a girl who is relatively close to you; at least within the same state, country or region.

Remember, if you're going to have a true relationship with, or at the least, have sex with your new lady, you're actually going to have to be in the same room. (Online sex doesn't count for anything).

Let's cover some of the other pros and cons.

Pros

1. You can target potential women not only by looks, age and location but also by common interests.
2. Before you even begin corresponding with the woman, there is usually some information on her available on the site that will make starting a conversation easier.
3. You can talk to many women at the same time.
4. On the outside chance you don't hit it off with a woman you like; you're only a few key clicks away from your next potential conquest. No fear of rejection there.
5. You can determine how quickly or slowly you want to get to know the women. Although, due to the removed nature of online dating, people have a tendency to open up more quickly about themselves.
6. You can apply your skills of flirting online before going out into the real world to experiment.
7. When you finally do meet in person, you've already established a relationship or at least have a familiarity with each other.

Cons

1. Women aren't always honest when they put up their photo. You can't tell how recent her picture is or if it is really her. Some women feel that once you get to know them, their appearance won't matter as much so they are deceptive about the photos they upload.
2. You can easily get into the bad habit of using online dating as a substitute for going out and meeting women in person.
3. Some sites charge a recurring fee, while others are â€œpay as you goâ€œ. You could end up spending a lot of money over the course of a year.
4. The so-called â€œrelationshipâ€œ you build with a woman online (sometimes over months) might not match the actual relationship you have once you meet in person. Many guys report feeling worse when they rejected by an online love than if they got rejected by a woman they met briefly in a bar.
5. Most women use online dating to boost their self-esteem, so they are more confident when they meet guys in person. They check their online dating accounts before going out on the town to see all the adoring messages from guys (sometimes 100s of messages per day). Most guys say the same thing, â€œHi, youâ€œre beautifulâ€œ Iâ€œd like to get to know youâ€œ and boring stuff like that.
6. Online dating has to be one of the slowest ways to get a girlfriend when compared to just walking up to women in bars, shopping malls, etc and starting a conversation.

Online dating relationships tend to take many months to build up, whereas you can get a phone number in one minute by walking up and talking to a woman in person. If you fear approaching women, watch the free video to learn how to begin building up the confidence to approach women in real life.

Going on a date

If you do decide to use online dating and score a date in the real world, make sure you take proper precautions so you aren't stuck on a date with an overweight woman or a psycho chick.

Choose a public place with lots of people and plan for it to be a quick initial visit such as meeting for drinks, lunch, coffee or some other arrangement that will allow you to make a graceful and speedy exit if necessary.

You don't want to spend several hours at dinner with a woman that you have no real chemistry with. On the other hand, if you're enjoying yourself, you can always extend the time of your date.

Online dating can be a great way to meet women as long as you don't substitute online dating for the real thing. The best way to use it is in combination with actually going out on weekends and talking to women in bars.

Talking to women in bars is the fastest way to improve your conversation skills with women as well as your confidence. Women EXPECT to be approached in bars and they WANT it.

If you are a good guy with good intentions, you are almost doing women a favor by approaching and talking to them, so don't ever feel bad about it in anyway. Women don't hate good guys who are confident enough to walk over and say hello...

What Do Modern Women Want in a Man?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

What do modern women want when it comes to dating, sex and relationships with men these days? While some particulars may vary from woman to woman, most things women want from men are virtually universal and here is where you'll find the answers to this age-old question.

A Man With a Great Personality

Above all else, a great personality is what women are searching for in a man. Why? A woman wants to be with a man who makes her feel desirable emotions. The man has to make her FEEL something and behave in certain ways that will make her fall in love and stay in love.

She can't fall and love and stay in love with a pretty boy just for his looks. Both men and women eventually stop feeling the initial lust they felt for the other person, so there needs to be more substance if the relationship has a chance of lasting.

If you're the guy who can make her laugh by cracking jokes, being a little cheeky, and teasing her, you'll literally charm the pants/skirt off of her. Her natural instinct will tell her that if she hooked up with you and happened to get pregnant, at least the relationship will be fun of love, happiness and laughter. That is way more important than a fleeting bit of lust based on the physical.

A Man Who Exhibits a Relaxed, Masculine Confidence

Women also like a man who exudes a relaxed, masculine confidence when he approaches, talks to her for the first time, is on a date with her and in the bedroom with her.

A woman pays special attention to see if you carry yourself with self-assurance, whether you are at ease when you talk to her and if you are a man who is comfortable with yourself.

If you can be confident and easy-going when talking to a woman, it is very appealing and she will find it almost impossible to reject any offers you make to date her.

A Man Who is a Bit of a Challenge

A Man Who is Comfortable to Treat Women as Equals

When a woman says that she wants to be treated like your equal, she doesn't mean that she wants you to treat her like one of the guys. She just wants you to respect her, appreciate her intelligence and value her opinions. She still wants you to be the man ☐ don't ever forget that.

A Man Who is Supportive

She also wants someone who has her back, is there to support her and, when necessary, can protect her. That doesn't mean that she always wants you always to run to her rescue, but she does want to know that if she needs your help you'll be there. You ☐ have to tell her this ☐ she will pick up on it by observing your overall character as a man.

A Man Who Allows Her to be a Woman

Men are natural problem solvers and when a woman airs a problem to a man, many men often feel that it's their job to solve the woman's dilemma. However, that's not necessarily what she wants.

Most of the time (80%), she's just looking for you to lend an ear but sometimes (20%), yes, she does want your input. So how can you tell the difference? Well, when a woman comes to you with a problem, just sit there and listen. Usually that's all that she wants.

Too often you might have the natural male impulse to jump in with a solution and say, "Here's how you should handle this," or "Do you want to know what I think you should do?" Politely, she'll say, "Yes, okay" as you give her your advice.

Then, she'll likely do what she feels is best and not necessarily use the advice you offered. Some guys find this behavior from women confusing, frustrating and insulting. However, the main reason why you shouldn't take offense in these situations is that she didn't actually ask for your help. You offered it first and, being a woman (who naturally submits to the masculine), she simply listened.

On the other hand, if she's sharing a problem with you and you are actively listening, when she's finished you can ask, "So how are you going to handle it?" At that point, she will either tell you what her plans are or she'll ask you what you think she should do.

If she does ask, then she is looking to you for a possible solution. Once you give her your opinion, she very well may go with your suggestions but even if she doesn't, you can be sure that she will weigh them carefully â€" most women do have a brain.

Most importantly, the way you handled the situation will make her happy with you as a man. She'll realize that you believe she is capable of using her judgment and she won't feel as if you're forcing your opinions on her.

A Man Who Treats His Woman as Special

Women like to feel special and cherished. This doesn't mean she wants you to put her on a pedestal â€" a common mistake of the nice guy.

When you first approach a woman or are just getting to know her, she wants you to treat her like you would any other woman; not any better or any worse. She wants you to be yourself â€" your best self â€" in her presence.

Of course, once you're in a relationship, yes, she does want you to remember things that are special to the two of you (or to her) like birthdays, anniversaries, Valentine's Day, where you went on your first date, special holidays and so forth.

Women are usually very sentimental. If you can show that you understand a woman's sentimentality by remembering things that are important to her, you will be greatly rewarded for your efforts.

A Man Who is Comfortable Showing Affection and Attention

Most women love occasional, impulsive gift giving. And, no, a first date is not the time to bring candy or flowers â€" it's a surefire case of â€"trying too hard" and will turn 99% of modern women off you in an instant.

Once you're in a relationship â€" the game changes. Every now and then, do something really special for her or buy her something that you know she'll like when it's not a gift-giving occasion. Most women respond to this by becoming more loving and affectionate to the man as long as he has not been doing too many special things for her â€" that's when she takes it for granted and begins feels bored.

Speaking of affection, most women adore sudden public displays.

We're not talking about mauling her in a supermarket, but giving her a warm, affectionate kiss on the cheek or lips, telling her you love her (once you've reached that stage of your relationship) once in a while, or holding her hand as you walk down the street. These are all loving acts that when done in public will usually be reciprocated ten-fold in private by her.

A Man with Ambition

While most women aren't necessarily looking to marry a millionaire, she does want to know that you have a good work ethic and that you have at least some ambition to improve yourself.

Whether it's taking a class to advance your career or reading books that will improve your mind, women love men who aren't content to just always sit in front of the tube or hang with their friends. They want a man who actually shows a desire to improve his life and possibly their life together.

You see, it's not the grand gestures that most women want. It's the little things that tell her that she's chosen a great guy. Don't believe what you see in TV sitcoms and magazine advertisements, telling you that you need to be tall, rich and handsome to be what a woman wants.

It just isn't true. Women want you to be a man that they can feel attracted to, respect and love that is what's most important...

Sex Talk: When No Means Yes

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Women don't always make it completely obvious when they want to have sex with you.

For example: Sometimes, when a woman says, "No" to sex, what she really means is, "Not yet."

This can be frustrating for guys who don't know how to read between the lines of what a woman means, or may mean by her words.

It leads many guys to wonder, "Why can't women just say what they really mean when it comes to sex?"

Here are some of the reasons why:

1. She doesn't want to look "too easy" in your eyes

If you meet a woman and she immediately says, "Let's have sex" or makes it too easy to have sex with her, you might then find it difficult to fully trust her when in a serious relationship.

Think about it.

If she goes out to a bar or nightclub with her girlfriends without you by her side, you might think, "I had sex with her very easily, so if she has a few drinks and is feeling horny, who knows what she might do?!?"

This is why, even if a woman likes a guy, she may behave as though she isn't even interested in sex.

She wants to show the guy that she can be trusted.

She is a woman that he could invest his time and himself into to build a future with.

She's not a loose, easy woman who would sleep with any man at the drop of the hat.

She wants him to see that has control over herself and can be trusted to be a loyal girlfriend or wife.

Another reason why a woman will say, "No" to sex when she really means, "Not just yet" is:

2. She wants to test your confidence

Most women are attracted to the strength in men (i.e. confidence, masculinity) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. being nervous around women, shy around women, clingy in a relationship and insecure about his value to her).

Generally speaking, the more confident you are, the more sexually attracted a woman will feel.

I'm not talking about over the top, arrogant, aggressive confidence (i.e. being a loudmouth, angry macho guy, etc).

Instead, I'm talking about relaxed, masculine confidence that can't be broken, no matter what.

That is what is most attractive to women.

So, if a woman tests your confidence by playing hard to get during the lead up to sex and notices that you become nervous and begin to doubt yourself around her, then she will assume that you're not a very confident guy.

She may also assume that you're just hoping to get lucky with a girl who gives you a chance.

She doesn't want that.

She wants a guy who remains confident in himself regardless of what people say or do around him. If a guy can't remain confident just because she isn't jumping all over him and making him feel wanted, it will turn her off if she is the sort of woman who is looking for a truly confident guy. Instinctively, she will assume that his confidence won't be strong enough to handle challenging people in life because he's the sort of guy who needs people to be sweet, nice and easy for him in order to feel confident.

If she happens to get pregnant to a guy like that, what would it mean for her future and the future of the offspring? Would she ever feel safe with him? Would he be able to handle the pressures of life.

Of course, those are not questions that a woman literally asks herself when she's with a guy.

Instead, her instincts automatically assess a guy's attractiveness (i.e. worthiness of having sex with and potentially breeding with) based on how he makes her feel when they interact (i.e. is he confident enough for a girl like her).

Essentially, do her instincts warn her that he is a guy who lacks confidence and therefore can't be relied on to make her feel safe around other people, or do her instincts assure her that he is a confident guy who could most-likely keep her safe and handle the challenges of life?

That is what matters to most women, even though they don't go around talking about it in that way.

Instead, most women say, "He has to be confident" when asked what type of guy they want, without giving an explanation as to why.

Another reason why a woman might say, "No" to having sex when she really means, "Not yet" or "Yes" is....

3. She is fighting with her self-image

Many women go through life trying to conform to the standards that society expects of them.

In the past, that meant a woman would have to wait until marriage before having sex.

Although millions of men and women had a one night stand last night, society still expects women to be quiet about it and not go around saying that they enjoy sex so much.

Even though a woman might want to have sex with you immediately, she will often say "I'm not sure" or, "Maybe we should wait" because she's trying to conform to the superficial identity she has to live with, day in and day out, to be seen as an acceptable or classy woman in society.

4. She likes to build the tension that way

[image: Building sexual tension by not allowing sex to happen immediately]

Some women enjoy playing with a guy and making him work for it for a while.

They get turned on by the tension and anticipation of what is potentially going to happen.

She can go home and masturbate herself and fantasize about how the sex might be when it happens.

She'll fall asleep daydreaming of the first time you will have sex and will imagine herself doing all sorts of naughty things.

When the sex finally happens, it will be a beautiful release of tension for her and if you can make her orgasm, that will be a welcome bonus.

However, if you lose confidence in yourself with a woman who is playfully resisting sex to build up tension, she may begin to lose interest in you, or completely lose interest.

Most women want to see that you maintain confidence in your attractiveness to her, even though she is playing a little hard to get initially.

In most cases, a woman like that will have lost interest in many guys who weren't able to maintain their confidence around her.

The guy could have had sex and possibly a relationship with her, but she didn't want to be a part of it because she's looking for a guy who can maintain his confidence.

She wants a truly confident guy who doesn't crumble and become insecure if she isn't jumping all over him and making it obvious that she wants sex.

If you can handle the playful pressure, you will usually get to sex and she will like you all the more for it (i.e. because most guys can't handle it and simply lose confidence).

Another reason why a woman will often initially say, "No" to sex is...

5. She's not feeling enough attraction for you

Sometimes, a woman will say no to sex because she's not feeling turned on by the guy's approach.

For example: A guy might be a good guy and be having a nice conversation with her, but he may also be displaying a lot of nervousness and anxiety around her, which is a sexual turn off for most women.

Most women are attracted to the emotional strength of men (e.g. confidence) and turned off by emotional weakness (e.g. nervousness, anxiety), so when a guy displays emotional weakness, it can cause her to reject him, even though she probably would have liked him and even had sex with him if he was confident.

When "No" Really Does Mean "No"

There are times when women say "No" to sex and they really mean it.

If a woman firmly pushes you away, raises her voice when saying "No!" or is clearly serious about not having sex, then she usually isn't messing you around.

If that's the case, then obviously you shouldn't proceed any further.

Just stop.

Don't try to push anything.

If she is still open to interacting with you and hanging out with you, then you can begin to build up her sexual desire for you based on how you talk to her and interact with her, but don't try to make any moves on her.

If she changes how she feels and begins showing sexual interest in you again (i.e. touching you, initiating hugs and kisses), then you can begin to reciprocate her advances and it may very well then lead to sex.

[image: Playfully resisting sex]

When “No” Means “Yes”

Imagine this....

You and a beautiful woman are hugging and kissing each other passionately and you decide that you want to take things up a notch.

You slowly work your way up to her breasts and start to caress them from the outside.

You may even get as far as unbuckling her bra and slipping your hand under her top.

Up until now, she’s right there along with you.

She’s loving it.

She’s responding to your kisses and strokes and is maybe even stroking you back, but as your hand touches her naked skin under her top, she says, “No...we shouldn’t” or “Stop” or gives you another obvious signal that she doesn’t want you to go further, such as moving your hand away.

Does she really mean for you to stop completely?

For the moment let’s assume that, yes, she really does want you to stop and to respect her wish.

Don’t push it.

Just stop.

Kick back and relax with her on the bed, couch or wherever you are.

After a few minutes, she may begin to hug and kiss you again and begin to stroke you, in which case you may want to hug, kiss and stroke her back.

In many cases, a woman will then have sex at that point.

Why?

She was just saying, “No, we shouldn’t” to not look too easy in your eyes, even though she really want to have sex.

You didn’t push it on her.

You stopped.

She reinitiated and you then went along with it.

No problem.

On the other hand, if she didn’t push you away and simply said, “Maybe we’re rushing things...I don’t know...maybe we should wait...I don’t know” in a shy sort of way, then she is most-likely just trying to look innocent in your eyes.

Simply relax for a few minutes and then begin kissing and cuddling again.

If she is open it and you can hear her moaning to encourage you along, then proceed to begin unzipping her jeans/lifting up her skirt, etc.

If she doesn’t stop you, then sex is only a few moments away.

Of course, if she does stop you, just stop and respect her decision to want to stop.

She might not want to have sex right away, the next time or even next week, so make sure you respect that.

There’s no rush.

You and her can have sex right away if that's what you both want, but you can also wait for 5 or more dates or longer.

There's no problem with that.

Just pay attention to the signals you are getting and proceed without trying to rush things.

Reverse the Situation

Some women love the start and stop action that happens leading up to sex and how it affects a man.

Some women love it how it often turns a man into her willing slave â□□ ready to do anything or say anything that pleases her, in the hope that she will finally give in and have sex with him.

Yet, this can get very tiring for and frustrating for a guy.

So, depending on how much you like her, you need to decide whether she is worth the hassle.

The best strategy with women like that is to reverse the situation on her, so it is you who is doing the stopping and starting.

For example: Get her turned on with some passionate kissing and when she grabs your penis, tell her "Wait...not yet..." and then slow things down to a hug.

Wait a minute or two, then get started again and turn her on with some slow kissing (not passionate, strong kissing like before).

When she tries to grab your lower-regions again, say, "Okay, just for a bit, but we are stopping after a minute..."

Good luck trying to stop!

Dating a Co-Worker Dating in the Workplace

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Growing up, you most-likely made most of your friends and love connections with other kids you went to school with because that's where you spent the bulk of your time.

Following the same pattern, you wouldn't be silly to think that your workplace might be a great place to meet a woman...but is it really? Let's take an honest look at the pros and cons of dating women in the workplace.

The Pros

It's a Great Place to Practice Talking to Women

Most workplaces have a good ratio of men and women these days, so you should have plenty of women to practice your conversation skills on.

If you're a little shy, you can practice introducing yourself and experiment with being confident and funny to a wide variety of women before you go after a girl that you're truly interested in. However, you shouldn't practice flirting or engaging in sexual conversations until you are skilled at doing that OUTSIDE of the work environment.

All guys make mistakes when they first learn how to flirt with women and making such mistakes in the workplace will often end up getting him in trouble. So, just focus on practicing to TALK to women, rather than picking them up, flirting with them, etc. It's too risky of an environment to begin your practice in.

You Can Take Your Time Getting to Know Her

If you don't know much about women & dating, you might find it difficult to determine whether a woman is behaving like her true self around you when you first meet her. Very often, a woman will put on a persona to impress you initially.

She'll act cooler, happier and more popular than she really is. Ironically, most guys are put off by this and feel like they couldn't add much value to such a woman's life.

On the other hand, you'll have plenty of opportunities to spend time around a woman in your workplace to see her true personality. Since she will be mostly focused on her work rather than making a dating impression, it's easier to see her true colors much faster. You'll be able to determine how loyal, hard-working and intelligent she is before you ask her out.

It Can Speed Up the Dating Phase of Your Relationship

Spending entire work days with a woman you're in a relationship with is much different than seeing her once a week for a 3-hour date. In fact, when you work with a woman you're dating, it's much more like living with or being married to her.

So you can determine if she is the right girl for you much quicker than the usual dating process.

You'll have a Major Common Interest

When you talk to someone about your job who doesn't work with you, it's often difficult for them to relate to your situation or to care for more than 10 minutes of conversation. Without having a vested interest, knowing the work environment or the people involved, they can't truly appreciate what you're discussing.

On the other hand, if you date a woman you work with, she can commiserate with the highs and lows of your work life because she has experienced it all and knows who you are talking about. If you're having a problem, she can make more useful and relevant comments rather than just guessing about what you're going through.

However, for every situation that has a pro, it must also have a con and dating women in your workplace is certainly no exception. Let's review the reasons you might want to consider for not dating a woman you work with.

The Cons

You'll be Under Greater Scrutiny

Depending on your position in the company or organization, you will expose yourselves to closer examination from coworkers and bosses. Often, people who date in the workplace become subject to accusations of favoritism from co-workers when it comes to promotions, restructuring of teams or financial bonuses.

If youâre both involved in a joint-project that goes wrong, blaming each other could kill your romantic relationship and put serious tension on your working relationship. Worse still, if either of you is in a supervisory position over the other, dispensing discipline can be extremely awkward.

Your Personal Life Will No Longer be Personal

Office gossip spreads like wildfire, especially when itâs a chance to gain an advantage over someone else by spreading damaging information about them.

You might suddenly feel like a mini celebrity because people will be suddenly trying to pump you for information about your new relationship and/or whisper things behind your back that may or may not be true. Since these allegations are rarely favorable they can, and likely will, negatively affect your career.

It May be Against Company Policy

Many companies either frown upon inter-company dating, or absolutely forbid it by making it one of their rules.

If your company has a policy against hooking up with women in your workplace and you try to get around it, you may find that you and your lady end up be fired with cause. Unfortunately, in such cases youâre usually not entitled to unemployment benefits and wonât get good recommendation for a future position elsewhere.

You May be Subject to Sexual Harassment Complaints

If your relationship does not work out, you may find that you are the subject of a sexual harassment complaint that could not only affect the company your work for and your wallet, but also will ruin your reputation with future employers and other women.

Yes, it's often a he said/she said situation with little or no proof of wrong-doing, but with even the slightest whiff of sexual harassment, most companies would rather distance themselves from the accused worker so they aren't considered an accessory to the situation.

Whether the allegations are true or not, you and/or her likely will be let go or you both won't be considered for future promotions for a long time.

You May Have to Face an Unpleasant Workplace if You Break Up

Breakups are never fun and running into your ex is always a difficult situation, but imagine that your ex is a co-worker that you now have to see every day. Youâ€¦d have no escape from the situation and when word gets back to you that sheâ€¦s dating new men, it probably wonâ€¦t feel that good. If the break up was nasty, donâ€¦t be surprised if she cries and tells your coworkers about all the bad things you said or did to her. From there, you can expect that many of your coworkers and even bosses will start to look at you in a negative light.

Yes, finding a woman to date at work might initially feel easier than going out and talking to new women, but make sure you weigh up all of the pros and cons before choosing to date in the workplace.

If you are worried about messing up and getting into trouble by dating a coworker, you might want to try approaching women outside the workplace instead...

Foreplay Begins on the Dance Floor

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

It's no secret that most women like to dance. If you think back to school dances, girls liked to dance so much that even when the boys sat on the sidelines, girls would get up to dance with each other.

When it comes to dancing with women, you don't have to be as smooth as Fred Astaire, Usher, Justin Timberlake or be good enough to compete on one of the popular TV dance shows. But having a sense of rhythm, having confidence and knowing a few moves will help you to attract women like nothing else can.

The reality is that a guy who is a great dancer can usually have his pick of women in a club. It won't matter if he's short, fat, bald or generally not what you'd consider a stud. If he can dance well, women will gather around to dance with him. The great thing about dancing is that it's a legal touching, so you can escalate to physical touching (and kissing) naturally and easily.

Some dancing styles, like ballroom dancing require men to take the lead and be in charge – and women love that. Latin dancing requires you to press your body tightly against a woman, grind your hips against her and stroke her arms, legs, neck and back in ways that if you attempted to do this to a woman you'd met only moments before, would likely get you rejected.

Guys who master at least the basic moves of dancing and have the right attitude are considered hot and sexy by women because many women associate how well a man moves on the dance floor to how well he'll do in the bedroom.

Let's look at a couple of examples...

In the movie, "Shall We Dance" starring Richard Gere and Jennifer Lopez, there are a couple of pivotal moments in the movie that equate dancing with mating. "Yeah, sure," you might say to yourself, "What woman would turn down Richard Gere in his prime?"

Although that's probably true for a lot of women, his character in the movie isn't the one we're going to focus on right now (although we'll get back to him in a bit).

One of the minor characters, played by Stanley Tucci, is a balding corporate attorney who loves to dance. Even though he knew the dance moves, his obvious lack of confidence in himself made him feel as though it was necessary to develop a bigger persona to impress the women. The persona he developed wore a wig, false teeth (to make his smile bigger) and a really bad spray tan.

No matter how well he danced, he had trouble finding women partners who weren't turned off by his fakeness and vibe of desperation. During a dance competition where a woman had to be forced to dance with him, his wig came flying off causing him to literally lose his footing.

Moments later, when he returned to the floor without the hairpiece, he realized that the crowd was now with him and his partner looked at him in a much different light. His confidence soared and he got the girl.

Now let's get back to Richard Gere and Jennifer Lopez's characters, John and Paulina. Without going into the movie's plot, there is a scene where Paulina, John's dance teacher, wants him to learn to take control and not think about the steps.

John starts to tango with Paulina and she keeps pushing him away because he's not leading and taking command properly. When he finally begins to take control of her, they go on to have one of the “hottest” (that’s how women refer to it) dance scenes in the history of cinema.

By the time the dance is over, she’s breathless and quivering – and if he wanted, he could have had her right there on the studio’s dance floor.

OK, you’re still thinking, “Yes, but whatever the character, it was still Richard Gere.” So let’s talk about another example – Donny Osmond – King of the Nice Guys and a dorky-looking dude at that. He’s in his 50s, is the father of five and the grandfather of two.

While more than 30 years ago he was a heartthrob to pre-teen girls, sexy is not the first word that would ever come to mind for women when talking about him. Cute in an earnest, moon-faced way with a toothy grin? Sure. Sweet? Very. Sexy? Not so much.

When he was on “Dancing with the Stars,” he performed well. He was more like a good entertainer rather than a great dancer, but what no one could anticipate was what happened the night that he and his partner took the floor to do the Argentine tango.

For the first time in the competition, he was in command. He took total control. He pressed her body against his. He lifted her. He dragged her by her toes. He caressed her naked thigh and when the dance was over, women around the world, from 18 to 80, put together four words together that most thought they’d never say, “Donny Osmond is hot!”

It wasn’t that he was the best dancer that women had ever saw, but he displayed such power, such confidence, such manliness and control that women couldn’t help but be stunned and think, “Whoa! I never saw that coming.”

The point is it doesn’t matter who you are, how old you are or what you look like. If you display confidence and control when you dance with a woman, she’ll follow you anywhere.

Do you need to take dance lessons or get a couple of videos to learn some moves? Maybe, that’s up to you. If you think it will help with your confidence, go ahead. But if you can move reasonably well (with relaxed confidence) and show command and assurance on the dance floor, lessons aren’t necessary for you to attract women.

Picture this.

Caressing, stroking, pressing your body against a sexy woman and having her submit to your every whim and movement. That’s foreplay. If you want to get her to eagerly follow you to your bedroom, start by leading her to the dance floor.

How to Be a Gentleman and Still Get the Girl

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Can you be a gentleman and still get the girl? Yes, you can!

“But, I keep hearing that beautiful women like bad boys, so how am I supposed to be a gentleman and still attract the women I want?”

The first thing you have to understand is that beautiful women don't like being treated badly. They simply don't want to be put on a pedestal and treated like an unattainable goddess by a overly-polite gentleman or really nice guy.

Watch this video to understand why...

Women Love it When a Gentleman Can Also Offer a Bit of Challenge

There's nothing wrong with being a gentleman to a woman, as long as you also make her have to impress you too. If your approach is all about trying to impress her to hopefully get a chance with her, most women won't be interested.

There is a very specific reason why women love it when a guy offers a bit of a challenge. Watch this video to understand why...

Being put on a pedestal is the standard reaction that attractive women from all around the world get from desperate nice guys who are hoping to get a chance with them. After a while, that desperation and eagerness to please becomes boring and sometimes even annoying for beautiful women.

Since many bad boys have little respect for women, they often treat women poorly and put themselves on the pedestal instead.

In the beginning, some women feel attraction for bad boys because the woman assumes that the bad boy must be valuable, because he isn't as desperate to please her like all the other guys are. However, over time, most women are turned off by the lack of respect they receive from a bad boy and they dump him.

Women are not actively looking for a bad boy. What women really want is to find a guy who makes them feel sexually attracted. If that guy also happens to be a charming gentleman, then she will feel as though she's hit the dating jackpot.

The Ultimate Gentleman

The ultimate type of gentleman that women are hoping to meet is one who:

- Makes her feel sexually attracted by way of his conversation style, body language and vibe.
- Makes her feel special by giving her compliments and making her feel like the most beautiful woman on Earth.
- Gets along well with her and any friends she is with at the time.
- Has manners, but isn't an overly polite guy who is trying too hard to impress her.

However, a word of warning...

Compliments are only really appreciated by a woman if you've made her feel sexually attracted to you first. If a woman sees you as a typical nice guy who is just trying to kiss her ass and hope to get a chance with her, your compliments won't hold much weight.

The secret to complimenting a woman in a way that makes her swoon is to first make her feel turned on by what you're saying and doing when interacting with her (e.g. your confidence, humor, charisma, masculine vibe, etc).

When you make a woman feel attracted to you and then give her a compliment, she sees you as a charming guy. Then, if you have better manners than the average guy, she will see you as the ultimate gentleman.

Classic Mistakes That Guys Make When Trying to Be a Gentleman

1. Behaving like it's the early 1900s

Men in the early 1900s had to behave in a more polite, non-sexual way compared to today's men. Sex is no longer taboo in our society and most women have plenty of sex with different men before settling down with their perfect guy. So, when you meet a woman, don't behave like a gentleman from the early 1900s who treats her like she is still a virgin and would never, ever think of having sex.

2. Thinking that being a gentleman will be enough to impress her

Being nice to a woman and having manners is great, but it's not enough to attract the interest of most modern women.

If you want to be successful at getting yourself a girlfriend or wife, you have to make sure that you also make women feel sexually attracted to you. It's very easy for women to get us men to feel sexually attracted to them because we feel that mostly based on the woman's appearance.

However, for us men, we have to actively say and do things that turn women on...

20 Cheap Date Ideas

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

With the current state of the economy, many modern men would love to know the secrets to keeping their relationship exciting without having to empty their wallet.

The good news is that if you use the following date ideas, your woman won't know that she's been on a cheap date and you won't look like a cheapskate!

Here are 20 date ideas to help you get started.

First Dates

1. Head to a flea market or night market: You can have a lot of fun going through other people's unwanted products without spending a lot of money.

Plus it will give you an opportunity to laugh with your date about the odd things you'll find (toilet seats turned into bar stools anyone?). You might even discover that your date has hobbies or collections that you didn't know about.

2. Get groovy: Head to a thrift shop (secondhand shop) and take turns trying on truly tasteless outfits. (A Hawaiian print shirt with checkered shorts and knee socks, perhaps?)

3. Cruise for some brews: Many local wineries and breweries hold tours and tastings for little or no money. It's a great way to spend the afternoon and enjoy some free wine or beer. And, if you like, you can always pick up a bottle or two of her favorite to enjoy when she comes over for a visit.

Second Dates

4. See a concert or play: Colleges, universities, high schools and community theaters are a great way to see a play, concert or musical for free (or for very little money).

5. Get active: Any time of year there is always something you can do outside.

Swimming, skating, building a snowman, bicycling, sledding, hiking, walking along and kicking the autumn leaves (or rolling around in them), heading up to a mountain chalet for a coffee and cake, or just having a relaxing walk through a park or botanical gardens. A world of possibilities awaits you once you step outside your door and into the great outdoors.

6. Have an indoor picnic: Get some drinks and snacks and stretch out on a blanket in your living room. Play some music or, if you have any musical abilities, play some songs for laughs. Don't try to be romantic just do the whole thing for fun and laughs.

The best part about an indoor picnic? No ants, no flies and you don't have to worry about getting caught having sex in public!

7. Talk to the animals: Most women love animals and it will only cost you for admission and maybe some food for the animals in the petting zoo. You can pack a pre-made lunch (I'd ask her to make it if she likes cooking and preparing food) or pick up something at the zoo.

Bonus: You'll both come back home stinking of animal smells so it's a great excuse to shower together!

8. Test your haggling skills at a yard sale (garage sale): Be sure to buy her something silly that she thinks is cute so that she can think of you whenever she sees it.

9. Be quiet: Libraries are great places to visit because you can take out books, music and movies all for free. Turn it into a bit of fun by seeing if you can be in there together for an hour without using words to communicate with each other.

10. Go to an open mic night at a local pub: Watch other people perform. You'll see anything from poetry to music to comedy or perhaps you might want to head to a karaoke bar.

Admission is usually only the cost of a couple of drinks. Who knows, you might discover the next big star or a cool band you'd both like to see again.

If you're brave enough, take a turn at the mic yourself, or get up to sing a duet with your girl.

11. Pimp your pad: Almost every bachelor pad can use a woman's touch. Ask for her help in rearranging your small furniture items or picking out some inexpensive accessories.

You may need to do some heavy lifting on this date, but she'll be very flattered that you admire her taste. Plus, it's a good excuse to get her over to your house if you're finding that to be a difficult thing to do at this stage in the relationship.

12. Play tourist in a nearby city: Find a map/guide and explore places in your city that you've never been to or don't know much about.

Driving out to a little town, a beachside village or something like that can be a great bonding experience. Take turns asking local shopkeepers what they recommend you check out, or if they know of any cool places away from the main tourist attractions.

Any Dates After That

13. Pretend to be house hunting: Come up with fake names to give the real estate agent and start exploring people's homes at open houses.

You can comment on their taste in furniture, argue over where you're going to put your coffee table and disagree over paint colors.

Women love exploring other people's homes and should your relationship progress, it will give you some insight into whether the two of you could find a home that you both would enjoy living in.

14. Explore a used book store: Pick funny/wacky/weird books for each other or find one that you would both enjoy and then head back home to take turns reading from it to each other, while drinking some wine or your having some tea and biscuits (just for fun).

15. Forget the fancy club: Take her to a local pub (a good one) for a couple of beers and a game of darts or pool (snooker). Challenge the locals or each other to a 3-game duel. Just be sure to play fair and if you happen to lose, be a good sport.

16. Go to a free art show or gallery opening: If you are seriously interested in art, you can genuinely discuss it.

However, if you're like most people it will be more fun to pretend to be pretentious art connoisseurs and discuss the questionable value of the work exhibited or for sale. (But if the artist is nearby, be kind. They tend to be very sensitive people).

17. Volunteer for a day: Find a cause you both care about and spend a day volunteering together. It will give you both a good feeling and you'll be helping someone who will benefit from the time you generously donated.

18. See an outdoor show in summer: During the warmer months, many cities and towns hold outdoor concerts. Admission is often free so all you'll have to bring is a blanket or chairs to sit on, snacks and beverages (and maybe some mosquito repellent).

19. Go fly a kite: Buy one or make one (instructions can be easily found on the Internet) and have an enjoyable afternoon flying a kite on a windy day.

Then, have some lunch and go for a short walk around wherever you are (e.g. park, beach). Don't try to be romantic or overly serious about this – just do it for some relaxing fun.

20. Host a potluck dinner party: If you've been dating a while and have mutual friends, invite them over for a potluck dinner party.

This is a dinner party where each guest who attends is asked to bring food or drink to share with the other guests. Ask your friends to bring the appetizers, snacks, drinks or dessert and you and your girl can cook the main course together.

After dinner, you can all play a silly board game, charades or, if the conversation is going well – just keep chatting and having a laugh. See, you don't have to empty your wallet to keep your woman excited and having fun in your relationship.

How to Succeed at Speed Dating

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Speed dating is one of the easiest, fastest and most fun ways to meet a lot of single women in one evening.

How it Works

If you've never tried speed dating before, it's a little bit similar to the game called "musical chairs." Basically, the women are seated at tables and the men rotate around the room until each man and woman has had a chance to meet each other. You will sit and talk to a woman for about 5 to 10 minutes and then you'll hear a signal that tells you it's time to switch and you'll move to the next woman.

Each person is given a "score card" and if you like a woman (or several women) and would like to get their contact information, you will mark their name(s) on the card. And if those same women also have an interest in seeing you again, they will mark your name down.

At the end of the speed dating event or soon after, the event's organizers will compare the cards. If the women you meet are also interested in you, you will each get the other's contact information (e-mail or phone number). You then contact the woman to talk further and arrange a date.

However, if she likes you but you weren't attracted to her or vice-versa, then neither of you will receive the other's contact information. No rejection worries there. These events are often held at bars or clubs and there's usually a nominal fee to participate.

The Main Thing You Must Do When Talking to a Woman

At a speed dating event, it doesn't matter how expensive your clothes or shoes are or if you are wearing cologne.

What matters is this: When you talk to the woman, do you make her feel attracted to you? Does your conversation style turn her on or turn her off? Does she feel bored or awkward when talking to you, or does she feel happy, excited and attracted?

That's what really matters. Why? Watch this video to understand how attraction between men and women REALLY works...

Speed Dating is Quick and Easy

We recommend speed dating for guys who are:

- Too busy to meet women in other environments (e.g. bars, clubs, etc) because they work long hours or are studying hard at university.
- Don't have many (or any) friends to go out approaching women with.
- Lack experience with approaching and meeting new women.

- Want to quickly begin having sex or relationships with some new women to build up their experience.
- Only want to meet single women to ensure that the chance of being rejected is minimized.

One of the best things about speed dating is that if you're not feeling it with a particular woman, your "date" with her will only last a few minutes anyway.

Even if you have to talk to a woman you're not interested in, it's a great way to help you feel more relaxed and ready to talk to a more attractive woman.

Tips For Success at a Speed Dating Event

Since the women will be meeting many men, you'll want to make a memorable first impression. This is the perfect time to stand out from the crowd by using your sense of humor and teasing her a bit.

Just be sure not to use the same jokes and teases with each girl since you often will be sitting close to the last woman you spoke with and if she overhears you, you don't want her to think that you were giving her a line. Lines are lame.

To come up with some funny to say, you might notice what a girl is wearing and say (with a smile), "That's looks like an expensive outfit. I don't know – you look kind of high maintenance to me!" Or you might take a similar tact and say something like, "My wife forced me to do this! she's at home waiting to see how many I get!"

The point is to tease her, shock her, say something funny and throw her off her game a bit so she laughs and remembers you. The subject of what you do for a living will invariably come up. This is another chance to stand out and not give a boring recitation of what you do for a living.

For instance, if you are a construction worker, you might say something like, "I play in the dirt all day and build things..." Or if you're an accountant, you might answer, "I make sure that the numbers add up and I help people to get rich." If you're a student, you might comment, "I spend my day working on my future!"

No matter what you do, just figure out a way to discuss your occupation in an interesting and unusual manner. Remember, you're not at a job interview, so don't hog the conversation and don't be formal – it's supposed to be fun and interesting.

Get her to talk about herself and listen to what she's saying. Even if you're not attracted to the woman you're talking with and spot someone more striking a few tables over, don't keep glancing over at the other woman.

You'll get to her soon enough. Women rarely attend these events by themselves and that gorgeous gal you've been eyeing, might turn out to be the friend of the girl you're ignoring.

When they compare notes later, if the beautiful woman thinks you were rude to her friend, even if it was because she was the object of your attention, you're probably going to be a goner. So focus on the woman you're with. It's good practice and good manners.

When you've been talking to a woman you do like and you realize that your time is going to be up, smile and say, "Finally! I get to talk to someone else! That was the worst 10 minutes of my life!" Then tell you're kidding and say, "No, I've enjoyed talking to you! you seem pretty cool. We should chat again sometime" and get up and leave. It's just that easy.

Having Sex With a Single Mother

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're out there meeting women and looking to find yourself a nice girl, you will often come across single mothers who are looking for a new man for love and commitment, a one night stand or just some casual sex for a while.

In the past, a single mother would be ashamed of her position in life and would have been shunned and even disowned by her family.

In today's world, being a single mother is considered normal and acceptable and an increasing number of men are becoming open to being in relationships with these women.

Are Single Mothers Easier to Pick Up Than Women Without Children?

Not really.

If you know how to attract women, most women are easy to pick up.

However, it is sometimes easier to pick up a single mother because there's a lot less competition to date and have a relationship with her because most men don't want to end up paying to raise another man's child or have to deal with the "other man" in her life.

Since a single mom has to spend most of her time taking care of her child(ren), she usually won't have a lot of free time to spend hanging around clubs and waiting to meet a potential date.

If she's like most single mothers, she has to plan her free time in advance around the schedule of her children, as well as find and pay for a trustworthy babysitter. So when a single mom does go out on the town, she is usually doing it with a purpose â find a man, fast! She knows that she may not have another opportunity for months.

[image: Single mom sex]

This is not to say that all single mothers are an "easy lay" or desperately looking to jump into a serious relationship immediately. Many single mothers are intelligent, savvy women who just happened to accidentally get pregnant to a boyfriend, or who had a child with a guy who didn't turn out to be the right man after all.

So, don't look at these women as though they are any less special, smart or deserving of your respect than other women are. Single moms are usually just the same as other women, except they are plus one.

When you meet a single mother, the same rules of attraction apply (i.e. she will be checking to see if you are a confident, charismatic guy who would be a great boyfriend and lover or a nervous, shy or insecure guy who is just hoping to get lucky with any decent woman he meets).

Be Honest About Your Intentions

If you know that you're only going to be interested in a fling or a one night stand and definitely don't want to be saddled with the additional responsibility of paying for someone else's child, it would be unfair to pretend that you're a potential husband or father figure.

Single mothers really appreciate it when guys are honest about their intentions, as long as he still remains respectful. For example: If you only see her as a temporary lover for a while, you have to let her know that you're not looking for a girlfriend.

At some point in the conversation, she will ask you, "So, do you have a girlfriend?" to which you can reply, "No...I don't have a girlfriend at the moment. I've been really busy with work (or study) and I'm not really looking for a girlfriend right now...but, I do think you're sexy though. You're a very sexy girl."

She will appreciate your discreet honesty and your ability to maintain the positive vibe between you and her. She will know that you're a guy who will be open to having sex with her that night, but you probably won't want to have a relationship.

Funnily enough, that will usually make her want to have a relationship with you even more. Why? Watch this video to understand why many women like a guy who is a challenge...

Don't Pretend to Be Her Knight in Shining Armor...Unless You Intend to Be

A single mom will often meet guys who show a lot of interest in taking care of her and the children. The guy will act like a knight in shining armor and make promises to stick around and be a father figure for the children, only to then stop calling a week later after they've had sex with her a few times.

After she experiences that more than once, she will begin to raise her guard and feel suspicious of guys who seem too good to be true.

Unless you intend to really stick by her and help raise her children, don't even touch that subject unless she asks you. If you're unsure, simply say, "I don't want to make any promises that I can't keep. When I can promise you that, I will say it. For now, I just want us to get to know each other, maybe fall in love and see what happens."

How to Know if She Wants a Relationship or Just Sex

If she talks about her children a lot, asks if you have children of your own or questions whether you want children someday, especially early in your conversation, chances are good that she's looking for a husband/replacement father and is trying to weed out any men who won't take on that role.

On the other hand, if she doesn't mention her children until later in the conversation and acts as though she is single, then she's probably just looking to have a one night stand or a casual relationship with you.

She might be interested in something more after that, but for now – it's most-likely just about her getting some sexual satisfaction and experiencing the new love of a dating relationship.

Once you know her intentions and you have determined what you want, you need to make a move and take things to the next level. Most single moms are open to moving things along fairly quickly, so don't waste too much time trying to get to know her.

Suggesting that a single mother come back to your place for a drink (or head to her house to let the babysitter go home) will result in a "Yes" more often than other women who aren't in as much of a rush to find a guy.

If she says, "No" just remind her of how difficult it is for her to have free time like she has that night and suggest that she consider having some fun with you tonight. She will then be more likely to act on that suggestion and open herself up to having a one night stand with you.

Accept the Limitations

If you are interested in having a long-term relationship with a single mother, you need to accept that her availability will be limited. For instance, when you're dating a single mother, last-minute dates (e.g. calling her up and saying, "Hey, get dressed – let's go have dinner and watch a movie tonight") are pretty much out of the question.

If you're sincerely interested in her, you have to be willing to give her enough advance notice when you set up dates, so she can make arrangements to find someone to watch her kids. She also may have to cancel some dates with you unexpectedly (e.g. if one of her children is sick or needs her for something). If that happens, don't take it personally.

Single mothers also tend to have a lot more additional expenses than other women, so you might want to offer to pay for a babysitter on some occasions. She might reject your generosity, but she will appreciate it and consider it very thoughtful that you offered.

Dealing With Her Ex

When in a relationship with a single mother, you will have to deal with an ex-boyfriend or ex-husband at some stage. After all, someone fathered her child.

The simple way to deal with her ex is to not see him as competition for her. You have to trust her 100% that she is broken up with him and doesn't want to be with him. If you don't give her your full trust and become insecure about her being in contact with him, it will actually make him seem more attractive to her.

As you get deeper into the relationship, her children eventually will become a part of your life as well.

If you can handle the fact that you're not going to be the center of her world 100% of the time, then you just may find that the rewards of finding your perfect woman and all baggage and all is worth all of the extra effort you have to put into the relationship.

As a modern man, you can't always look to your parents or grandparents as role models of how to plan your life with a woman. Things have changed and whether we like it or not, the world will continue to change. Dating a single mother was once taboo and now it's normal. Who knows what will be normal in 20 years time.

So, if you like a certain woman – don't worry what people think about her already having a child. Go with what makes you happiest because 20 years from now, people will most-likely be doing much wilder and more "out there" things than dating a single mother...

How to Make a Woman Treat You Well and Want to Take Care of You in a Relationship

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When in a relationship, how can you make a woman want to treat you well, be good to you, be attentive, be affectionate, be loving, be caring and so on?

How can you effectively turn on what I call, The Good Girl Switch in her mind, where she loves the feeling that she gets when she's good to you?

One way to do it is to be truly emotionally independent.

This is where you do not need her emotional support or attention.

The reason why that works is that for women, there is a big difference between being in a relationship with a guy who needs emotional support in order to feel good about himself and feel okay, compared to being in a relationship with a guy who doesn't need emotional support from her and doesn't even need any of her attention.

[image: Make her want to be important in your life]

As a result of him being like that, she wants to feel needed in his life.

She wants to feel important in his life.

She wants to be a good girl for him because he is clearly a man who has got his stuff together.

He's not like an emotionally needy guy who needs a pat on the back, or a hug to feel better about himself.

He already feels good and as a result, she feels like she needs to do something to feel needed and important in his life.

So, what's an example of how that works?

Well, imagine that an emotionally needy man came home from work, he had a crappy day at work and he comes home and he meets up with his girlfriend or wife.

He then starts saying, "Yeah, I had a really crappy day at work today. Oh, my boss is being a pain in the ass. So, I really need a hug. Come here honey" and then he wants to talk about his crappy day.

He wants her to listen and essentially give him a pat on the back and tell him that everything's going to be okay.

Now, compare that to an emotionally independent man who had a crappy day at work.

He comes home and his woman asks him, "How was work today?" and he says, "Well, it was a pretty crappy day at work today, but you know, you have those days" in a way that suggests he doesn't need to talk about it any further.

She will then almost certainly want to find out more about what made the day crappy, or she might not ask any further because she may know that he has got his stuff handled.

He doesn't need her to be patting him on the back, telling him that everything's going to be okay, trying to motivate him and encourage him to keep walking and keep going in life and tell him that everything's going to be alright.

Yet, in most cases when a man is emotionally independent his woman will want to find out more.

She'll want to feel needed in his life.

She'll want to try to help and be there and give him love and attention and so on.

She will want to feel needed and important in his life, so she might ask him, "Oh, what happened, honey? Why was it a crappy day?"

He can answer that question in many different ways.

He can joke around with her and turn it into something to laugh about, so they don't have to go deeper into the crappy day that he really doesn't care about anyway.

He can let her see that he's got it handled and is already thinking about how he can get a promotion at work, or get out of that job and get into another one.

So, he has his stuff sorted.

He doesn't need her to get too involved in his life, but he can also open up and talk about the crappy day while letting her see that he has got it handled and that everything is okay.

So, with the example of joking around with her and turning it into something to laugh about, when she asked him, "So, what made the day crappy? What happened?", he can joke around and jokingly say something like, "Well, it was a crappy day because...you weren't there."

He can then laugh, give a bit of a tickle, have a hug and they can have a laugh together and then get on with the rest of their evening together.

Alternatively, if he wanted to answer the question and give her some more details, there's nothing wrong with that.

It's not emotionally needy to talk about what has gone on in your day, to talk about some emotions and so on.

The difference is when a man needs a woman to give him that support and if she doesn't give him that support, he is going to feel really sad and down and she's going to have to keep patting him on the back and telling him that everything is okay.

If an emotionally independent man were to talk about the day being crappy, he might say something like this, "Well, it was a pretty crappy day at work, because I'm already overloaded with work and my boss came over and gave me another project to work on, on top of that so on. So, it's like, 'Come on, how hard do you want to work me?' You know, I'm actually thinking about maybe getting another job or something because I think I have the type of skills now that can get me a better job. I don't need to stay at that level. I can start moving up."

She can then see that he is able to take care of himself.

Just like every other man in the world, he experiences problems and challenges and issues, but an emotionally independent man will take care of the situation himself.

So, when you're truly emotionally independent and you don't need a woman's support or attention, she wants to give that to you because she wants to feel needed and important in your life.

As a result of being like that you're doing one of the things that turn on what I call The Good Girl Switch in a woman's mind, where she naturally wants to be a good girl for you.

She treats you well.

She cares about you.

She is attentive and she loves you and wants the best for you.

Unfortunately, a lot of guys don't learn what you have been learning so far in this video and as a result, when they notice their woman losing interest in the relationship and no longer being as attentive or interested and essentially being more interested in her phone, her friends, her studies or her work than him, he will often go down one of the following routes which don't work.

He might get angry at her and start having arguments with her about the fact that she has changed.

[image: Why won't you give me the love and attention I need?]

He might start sulking and complaining and saying that she's making him feel upset because she's not giving him the attention and love that he wants in a relationship.

He might start to treat her badly because he wants to get revenge on her for making him feel the way that she's been making him feel.

On the other hand, what some guys do is that they see that their woman has changed and is no longer really in love with them and doesn't really seem to care anymore and the guy will then start to suck up to her.

He'll start buying her things.

He'll start taking her out to nice restaurants.

He'll start doing more chores around the house and will essentially try to make her life as easy and nice as possible.

Yet, no matter what he does for her, it's never enough, it never works, or he's never able to flick on that Good Girl Switch again, the way that she was at the start of the relationship.

He's not able to get her back to that state of being.

He's not able to bring out that behavior inside of her.

So, what I want you to know is that when you're in a relationship with a woman, you do not have to put in loads of effort and buy her lots of things and do loads of things for her in order to make her happy enough to treat you well.

That's not how it works.

As a man, the best way to approach a relationship with a woman is to interact with her in ways that naturally make her feel respect, attraction and love for you without you having to do loads of work, put in loads of effort, buy her things and treat her like a princess and so on.

Now, there's nothing wrong with treating a woman well in a relationship.

There's nothing wrong with being a good man, but you don't need to put in loads of effort and suck up to a woman and you don't need to stress out and have arguments with her and try to tell her to change and go back to the way that she used to be.

That doesn't work.

You've just got to interact with her in ways that naturally bring out the best in her.

What you'll find when you approach your relationship in that way, is that it becomes pretty much effortless for you.

[image: Bring out her good girl side]

You no longer have to put in loads of effort to try to get something from her.

Instead, she gives and gives and gives because it feels good to her to be like that for you.

She wants to be a good girl for you.

Learn More?

Okay, I hope you've enjoyed this video and learn something from it.

If you'd like to learn more, I recommend that you watch or listen to my program, Make Her Love You For Life.

When you watch or listen to the program, you will learn exactly how to make your woman respect you, feel sexually attracted to you and be totally in love with you for life.

You will learn my best techniques for making a woman be a good girl for you, making her be loving and affectionate and attentive and actually care about you and the relationship.

As I said earlier on in the video, being emotionally independent is one way to flick on that Good Girl Switch inside of a woman.

There are many other ways that you flick on that Good Girl Switch inside of her, so she is a good woman for you and you will learn all about that in the program.

Bring Out the Best in Her, or Some Other Guy Will [image: Bring out the best in her, or some other guy will]

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that pretty much every woman on the planet has it within her to be a good girl.

She's got it inside of her.

Some guys don't know how to bring that side out of a woman when in a relationship with her.

As a result, she doesn't ever show her loving, supportive, attentive, caring, good girl side to him.

Yet, if she breaks up with him and gets into a relationship with another guy who brings out the good girl side of her, then she'll be a completely different person in that relationship.

She always had it inside of her to be that type of good girl who is loving and attentive and affectionate, caring and actually wants to do good things for her man, but the other guy wasn't able to bring that side out of her.

What you need to understand about women is that they are the happiest when they are in a relationship with a guy who brings that good girl side out of them.

A woman doesn't want to be in a relationship where she's being a pain in the butt, she's being a nag, she isn't being affectionate, she doesn't want a hug, doesn't want to have sex and so on.

She doesn't want to be in that situation.

She wants to be in love, she wants to be happy and you can literally bring that side out of a woman.

When you do, she treats you so much better.

She's more affectionate, she's more attentive, she cares about you and she wants to do good things for you.

You deserve that type of respect, affection and attention from a woman and you can literally bring that out of her based on how you interact with her.

How to Stop a Break Up Before it Happens

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

How can you stop a break up before it happens?

How can you get a woman to change her mind and not go through with wanting to break up with you?

What you need to do is change your approach.

You need to start saying and doing things that make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

If you keep using the same old approach that you've been using, you're going to get the same old results.

However, when I say that you need to change your approach, I don't mean that you should make any of the following mistakes.

1. Asking her what she needs you to change.
2. Becoming extra nice, sweet or considerate.
3. Doing extra chores around the house.
4. Pouring your heart out to express how much you feel for her.
5. Being romantic or having date nights.
6. Ignoring her to hopefully make her realize how much she needs you.
7. Giving her an ultimatum.
8. Playing it cool and acting like everything is okay.

I will now go into detail with some of the mistakes...

1. Asking her what she needs you to change

[image: Please tell me what you want]

When a man asks a woman what he needs to do to make her stop being so distant, be more affectionate, be in love with him like she used to, in most cases, she's not going to tell them the real answer.

The main reason why is that a woman doesn't want to be a guy's teacher in life about how to be a man.

Another reason why is that in many cases she is embarrassed to tell him what she really wants.

For example: Sometimes a woman finds herself in a relationship with a guy who has become a bit of a pushover. He has become insecure and he doesn't feel very confident in his attractiveness to her anymore and he puts up with her bad behavior just so he can stay with her.

What she would like to tell him is, "Hey, I actually need you to stop being so insecure about your attractiveness to me. I need you to believe in yourself and I need you to not put up with my BS. If I get out of line, I need you to put me back in my place in a dominant, but loving, way. I don't want you screaming at me and getting aggressive, but I want you to put me back in my place in a dominant, but loving, way. I want you to make sure that you don't let me walk all over you."

Most women are embarrassed to admit that they want that sort of thing.

Likewise, most women don't actually want to take on the teacher role for a guy and say, "Alright, look. Sit down. I'll teach you how to be a man. This is what I need from you..."

She doesn't want to take on that role because it'll make her feel like his big sister or mother or teacher.

She wants to feel like she's his woman.

She wants to be able to look up to him and respect him as her man.

She doesn't want to look down on him as a boy or a little brother or a confused guy that she has to continually lift up and guide as they go through life.

She just wants a man who understands how to be a man now or a guy who is willing to figure it out and then start doing it.

So, if you're in a situation where your woman wants to break up with you, do not rely on asking her what she wants you to do because she will either not be able to tell you because she's embarrassed or she won't want to tell you because she doesn't want to feel like your mother or big sister.

The second mistake is becoming extra nice, sweet, or considerate. Third one, doing extra chores around the house.

Now, I'll go into detail with the 4th mistake....

4. Pouring your heart out to express how much you feel for her

When a woman is thinking of breaking up with a man, it means that she has lost respect for him.

As a result, she will then stop feeling proper attraction for him. If that goes on for long enough, she'll fall out of love with him.

So when a woman gets to the point where she actually says to a man, "Hey, I don't feel the same way anymore, I think we should break up," or "I don't want to be in a relationship anymore," she's not going to care about his feelings for her.

She doesn't have strong feelings for him anymore because she's fallen out of love.

He lost her respect and she stopped feeling attraction for him as a result and fell out of love.

So, if the guy actually wants her to care and wants her to stay with the relationship, he needs to change his approach and start saying and doing things that make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

In some cases, a guy can pour his heart out to his woman and get another chance.

This will happen if the woman is young or inexperienced with relationships.

Yet, for most women, when they get to the point where they actually say that they want to get out a relationship, they're not going to change their mind unless the guy changes his approach.

When you change your approach to her, she changes how she feels.

When you start making her feel respect and attraction for you, she feels that.

Then she starts thinking, "Okay, I don't want to break up with him anymore because I feel something for him now. I feel like I can love him again. I feel like there can be a future for us. I respect him again. I feel attracted to him. I actually want to be around him now."

That is what matters.

You've got to focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

When you do that, she reconnects with the love that she used to feel for you.

The reason why I say reconnect is that love doesn't actually die.

When a woman falls out of love with you, she simply disconnects from the love.

Yet, the love is still there in the background and she will reconnect with that if you make her feel respect and attraction for you again.

She will naturally reconnect with the love.

She'll start having those loving feelings for you again.

She will look at you from a different perspective.

She will respect you now.

She'll feel attracted to you again and as a result, she will start thinking about you in a positive light.

She'll start thinking of things about you that she actually likes. When that happens, she'll start to reconnect with the love.

5. Being romantic or having date nights

[image: Being romantic or having date nights to stop a break up]

Like I said, in a previous example, if she doesn't have strong feelings for you, then sucking up to her with date nights and being romantic isn't going to mean crap to her.

You can be as romantic as you want to be, put some candles out, take her to an expensive dinner, doesn't mean a thing if she doesn't actually respect you.

If she has lost respect for you and you don't get that back, nothing that you do is going to work.

You can take her on the most romantic date that the world has ever seen but inside of her, she's still going to feel like she wants to break up with you because she doesn't actually respect you.

She might enjoy the date and be laughing and happy for that time, but when the date is over and she's interacting with you and realizes that you're still making the same mistakes that caused her to lose respect for you, then she's still going to want to go through with the break up.

6. Ignoring her to hopefully make her realize how much she needs you

[image: Ignoring her to hopefully get her to realize how much she needs you]

This will work when a woman is just being a pain in the butt and she really does love and respect her man, but she just wants to mess with him by threatening to break up with him.

So, if he then ignores her and just gets on with his life without her, she's going to feel like she doesn't want to break up and she wants to be with him.

Yet, if a woman wants to break up with a guy that she has lost respect for and is not feeling attracted to anymore and is fallen out of love with, then him ignoring her isn't going to mean much to her at all.

If the woman has some experience with relationships, she's just going to use that time that he's ignoring her to move on.

She's going to go out with her girlfriends and meet some guys or she's going to let the guy who has been hitting on her at work take her out on a date or she's going to get on an online dating app or an online dating site and have 100s of guys overnight who want to meet up with her for a date.

The thing is if a woman threatens to break up with a guy and he thinks, "Alright, well, I'm just going to start ignoring her now and teach her a lesson," it can work in some cases, but if the same problems exist in the relationship when she starts interacting with him again, she's still going to want to go through with the break up.

If he's still saying and doing things that cause her to lose respect for him and she isn't able to look up to him and feel respect and feel attracted and be in love with him, then she's going to want to go through with the break up.

Additionally, if she senses that he's trying to play mind games with her by ignoring her all of a sudden, she might decide to get revenge by going and hooking up with another guy.

So, if your woman wants to break up with you, don't run that risk of pushing her into the arms of another guy.

Simply change your approach.

When you change your approach, she changes how she feels.

When she changes how she feels, she changes her mind.

She doesn't want to go through the break up anymore because she feels respect and attraction for you now.

She feels that love that she used to feel for you. She feels good around you now. She wants to be around you.

7. Giving her an ultimatum

Giving an ultimatum and saying, "Hey, you either decide to be with me now or leave," can work in some cases.

For example: If the woman is inexperienced with relationships and can't handle the pain of going through a breakup, if she thinks that she's not going to be able to move on quicker than him, or if the problems in the relationship really aren't that bad and can be worked through.

However, if a woman doesn't respect her guy and isn't feeling much attraction for him anymore and has fallen out of love with him, she's not going to really care about his ultimatum.

She doesn't have strong feelings for him at that point, so it feels like there's more benefit breaking up with him than actually staying with him.

When he gives her the ultimatum, she say something like, "Okay, cool. Let's breakup then," and she leaves.

If she's inexperienced with relationships or can't handle the pain of the break up, she'll come running back.

However, if she's experienced with relationships and can move on, she's going to move on because she's leaving behind a guy that she doesn't even respect, doesn't feel strong attraction for anymore and isn't in love with.

That is why if you want to stop a break up, you have to change your approach.

You've got to start saying and doing things that make her feel respect and attraction for you again.

You got to make her feel that renewed sense of respect and attraction.

She then starts to look at you differently. She looks at you in a positive light. She starts feeling good around you again, she reconnects with the love and then she doesn't actually want to break up with you.

There's more benefit in staying with you than breaking up with you.

8. Playing it cool and acting like everything is okay

The thing is, if a woman is considering breaking up with her man, then everything isn't okay.

What guys need to understand about women is that they don't actually want to go through a break up.

Most women don't want to be that woman who is unlucky in love. She's always getting in and out of relationships and getting hurt.

She always has to face up to her family and friends and say, "Yeah, we broke up," and be that woman who's unlucky in love.

Her friends and family members and coworkers are in happy relationships and enjoying life and she's breaking up all the time.

She doesn't want to be that woman.

She just wants a man that she can be proud of, a man that she can look up to and respect and feel attracted to and be in love with.

She doesn't want to have to go through break up after break up.

She wants to have a relationship that works, so you and her can reach new levels together as a couple.

So, if you want to stop a break up before it happens, you need to make sure that you are willing to change your approach.

For example: If a guy has become insecure in a relationship with a woman, he suddenly becomes confident. Nothing that she says or does makes him lose confidence in himself.

Another example is where a woman will throw tantrums and insult her guy and he will usually become angry about that. Suddenly, he changes and he's able to turn situations like that into something to laugh about together.

For example: A couple is driving along in a car and a woman tests her man by saying something like, "You're such a crap driver. Get in the right lane. What are you doing?" and rather than getting angry at her and feeling insulted he just turns it into something that they can laugh about together.

He might say, "Yeah, it's true. I'm the worst driver in the world. I should probably get a trophy for it" and then continues driving along.

She then looks at him as a man that she can respect.

He doesn't lose control of his emotions.

He's cool and calm and confident under pressure. Nothing that she says makes him lose control.

He's a man that she can rely on, he's a man that she can look up to and respect and he's also a man who makes her feel happy.

He's able to create moments of laughter. He's able to get her smiling.

He's able to turn situations that would make other couples get into fights into something that they can laugh about together and feel good about.

Avoiding a Break Up and Keeping Your Relationship Together

[image: Avoiding a break up and keeping your relationship together]

Okay, so I hope you've enjoyed this video and learned something useful from it.

If you'd like to learn more, I recommend that you watch or listen to my program, Make Her Love You for Life.

When you watch or listen to the program, you will learn exactly what to say and do to make your woman respect you, feel sexually attracted to you, and be totally in love with you for life.

When you start using the techniques from the program, she will not want to break up with you.

She will change how she feels and as a result, she will change her mind about wanting to break up with you.

What I want you to know is that you actually have a lot of control over the situation.

You may feel like the situation is out of control at the moment because she wants to break up but what you've got to understand about women is that they are reactive.

Women react to the dynamic that men create.

If you create a dynamic in a relationship where she respects you and feels attracted to you and is happy to be with you and is in love with you, she will go along with that.

She will react to your lead.

However, if you create a dynamic in the relationship where she doesn't respect you and she doesn't feel happy with you, she doesn't really feel attracted to you, and she's falling out of love with you and she's distant, she will go along with that as well.

In most cases, women don't want to take on the leadership role and fix the relationship themselves.

They want to be with a man who can take the lead and guide the relationship towards deeper feelings of respect, attraction, and love.

When you start doing that she will stop wanting to break up with you.

When you change your approach, she changes how she feels.

So if you want to stop the break up, just make sure that you are willing to change your approach to her.

When you do that, she will change how she feels and as a result, she will change her mind about the break up and want to stay with you.

Winning the Power Struggle in Your Relationship

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Women always test their man regardless of how happy the relationship is.

Some guys know how to handle the tests that women dish out, but other guys don't.

When a guy doesn't know how to handle his woman's tests, he will end up getting into arguments with her and destroying the feelings of love between them.

Alternatively, he will hand over his power to her in the hope that it makes her happy and makes her stop testing him and making life difficult for him.

Examples of Power Struggle Tests

So, what are some examples of the tests that women put men through to gain power over them in a relationship?

1. Saying that he has put on weight, has become too thin or is losing his hair.

A man's girlfriend or wife might say, "Oh, you have become really thin these days. You don't even have muscles."

Women often say these sort of things to see if they can gain power over you.

Are you going to become insecure or are you going to maintain confidence in yourself?

If a man becomes insecure and feels like he's not worthy of his woman, she then gains a little bit of power over him.

He feels like she's more attractive than him and that he's really lucky to have her. He may then start to treat her even more nicely and try to suck up to her and begin to fear that he's going to lose her.

2. She gives him the silent treatment.

A common reaction from a man in this situation is that he panics and worries that he's losing her.

[image: Power struggle in a relationship]

He might then begin to suck up to her and try to be even nicer to her which is essentially handing over more and more power to her.

3. Saying, "No" to his requests.

Common reactions from men: Getting angry, annoyed, or frustrated, or begging, pleading, or sucking up to her.

A guy might also decide to just let her have her way all the time so he doesn't have to try to get her to comply with his requests, yet he then loses power.

She then loses respect for him, and as a result, she doesn't really feel much attraction for him anymore and begins to fall out of love with him.

Passing the Tests to Move to the Next Level of Love, Respect and Attraction

[image: Passing her tests]

Some men know how to handle the tests that women put them through in a relationship and as a result, they maintain their position of power and deepen their woman's feelings.

They don't become flustered and get angry or insecure when their woman is testing them.

Men who understand how women think and how they operate, know that women test for a reason.

A woman is testing because she wants to make her man a stronger man.

She wants to see if he's capable of standing up for himself.

By the way: Standing up for himself in a relationship isn't about being angry and getting aggressive and intimidating his woman. Instead, it's about being assertive and dominant in a loving way.

Say for example, a man and a woman are sitting on a couch and the man says to the woman, "Come here," and wants her to essentially come and sit next to him and cuddle into him.

She then says, "No" to his request.

What should he do at that point? Should he get angry at her and be aggressive and say, "Hey, come and sit next to me!!"

Obviously not.

Should he become insecure and start to doubt that she likes him and loves him and wants to be with him? No, that's not the answer either.

Instead, he needs to be dominant and assertive in a loving way.

For example: He says, "Come here. Come and sit over here," and she says, "No," and then he just reaches over and brings her over towards him, and say, "Come here," and simply brings her over towards him.

Now, he's not forcing her against her will. They're in a relationship together. They're sitting next to each other on the couch.

She's just testing him.

She's testing to see how he's going to react.

Is he going to become insecure? Is he going to get angry at her? Is he going to start sulking?

Those are the reactions that she doesn't want to see.

She wants to see a strong man who maintains his composure and is still able to be a loving man even though he's being dominant and assertive.

If he can do that, he passes the test and the love, respect and attraction that she feels for him goes to another level.

You will learn how to make her respect you and look up to you as her man.

You will discover how to make her feel sexually attracted to you for life. You will also learn how to deepen the love that both of you feel for each other.

You will learn how to communicate with her in a way that strengthens the bond that you share and you will learn exactly how to make her only want to be with you for life.

Where a lot of you guys go wrong is that they think that a woman will stop trying to test them later on in a relationship.

Some guys think that the nicer they are to a woman and the more things they do for her, the less she will test.

He is essentially trying to suck up to her and be the best man that he can in the hope that she is gentle with him and stops trying to test his confidence by seeing if she can gain power over him.

Yet, that is never going to happen.

A woman will always test.

It doesn't matter how amazing your relationship is, a woman will always test.

So, you need to understand how to pass those tests, otherwise your woman loses respect for you.

When a woman loses respect for you, she then can't feel proper sexual attraction for you and when that happens, she starts to fall out of love with you.

Winning the power struggle in your relationship isn't about making her lose, but it's simply about being the man that she can look up to and respect.

It's about being the man that she can rely on to be strong all the time.

No matter what she says and does, you always remain strong. She cannot gain power over you.

That's actually what she wants.

She doesn't want a man who puts her down, demeans her and doesn't let her say or do anything. That is not being in the position of power in a loving way.

What she really wants is a man who maintains the position of power while also be loving, caring and supportive towards her.

Women are embarrassed to admit it when asked in public, but the truth is that a woman wants to be in a relationship where she is so in love with you, so attracted to you and so respectful of you that she feels compelled to be her BEST BEHAVIOR to please you and maintain your interest in her.

A woman WANTS to have that feeling where she is eager to impress you and make you happy.

That actually makes HER happy.

Of course, it makes you happy too because you get an awesome woman who loves you and is so good to you.

So, if you want to experience the ultimate kind of relationship, watch Make Her Love You For Life and I'll teach you my secrets right now.

How to Make Her Never Want to Leave You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

How can you make a woman never want to leave you?

How you can make sure that she always wants to be with you?

[image: The start of a relationship can easily be forgotten if the dynamic changes]

Well, the thing is, at the start of a relationship between a man and a woman, it's very easy for a woman to say things like, "Oh, I love you so much. I want to be with you forever. I want to grow old with you. I want us to be together and never break up. Give me your word that you'll be with me forever," and all that sort of stuff.

Yet, that doesn't mean anything if later on in the relationship her feelings of respect, attraction and love start to be ruined by the guy.

For example: If a guy is confident at the start of a relationship and his woman falls in love with him and they have great sex together and they go on nice dates and holidays and vacations, but he eventually becomes insecure, needy and clingy, then the promises that she made before don't mean anything.

She's going to change her mind about what she said to him before.

The way that it works is that a woman will go along with whatever relationship dynamic that you create and maintain.

[image: When the relationship dynamic changes]

For example: With the guy who became insecure and clingy and jealous, if he had remained confident and didn't turn into that guy, then her attraction and respect and love for him would have been maintained and she would have gone along with that.

She's got herself a man who is confident, she's in love with, she respects and she feels attracted to. Great, so they stay together then!

Yet, if he changes and becomes insecure and clingy and jealous then okay, she is stuck with an insecure, clingy and jealous guy.

Therefore her feelings are not going to change and she will begin to think about breaking up with him or cheating on him and then getting into a relationship with the new man.

The reason why a woman will do that is because women are not attracted and turned on by emotional weakness in men such as insecurity, neediness, clinginess and so on.

Women are attracted to confidence in men, self-belief, self-esteem, determination.

That's the sort of thing that attracts women to men in the first place and maintains their attraction.

Women Wait to See Where You Take the Relationship

What you need to understand about women in relationships is that they essentially wait to see where it goes and where you take it. They follow the man's lead.

If you think about when a woman is ballroom dancing with a man. What do women like?

They like it when the man leads.

The man leads the dance and she goes along with him.

She feels feminine and she enjoys it.

She doesn't like it if a man just stands there awkward going, "Oh, I don't really know what to do here. You lead." If he does that, she has to take the lead and the dance feels awkward for her.

Now, think about what women do when it comes to dating. They go out to bars and clubs and places like that and what do they do? They stand around looking pretty. They're waiting for the man to come over and take the lead and make something happen.

The same applies with relationships.

Women go along with what the man does and a woman is at her happiest when a man creates the relationship dynamic where she is his woman.

She's not his friend, she's not his partner, she's not his neutral buddy or anything like that. She's not 50-50 with him. She is his woman.

That's what makes a woman the happiest.

You won't hear many women admitting that in public because they're embarrassed to admit that they want to be a man's woman.

Yet, when you see a woman who is the happiest with her man and she looks at him with loving eyes, she cuddles into his arm, she kisses him, she's attentive towards him, she respects him, she does nice things for him and she is happy doing that, that's when she's his woman.

It's not when they're neutral partners in love and they're 50-50 and it's not when she is the boss and he does whatever she says.

It's also not when she's a pain in the butt and he puts up with it.

It's when she is his woman. She looks up to him, respects him and she actually gets pleasure and happiness out of being a good woman for him. When she does good things for him and is nice to him, it actually makes her happy.

Yet, a woman isn't going to give that to a man unless he creates that type of relationship dynamic.

What women usually do is they give that at the start.

They're often very passive at the start, might be a little submissive and be really nice to the guy to get him into a relationship.

Yet, if the guy doesn't maintain the dynamic of him being the man and her being his woman, then the whole thing changes.

She begins to change.

She loses interest in having sex with him.

She stops being affectionate towards him. She stops respecting him and listening to what he says. She starts being a pain in the butt.

She starts wanting to get everything her way and if he doesn't do it, she throws a tantrum or gives him the silent treatment.

[image: When she is ready to leave you]

At that point, a lot of guys will start to become angry, insecure or treat her badly because he wants to get her back for treating him badly.

Then, the whole relationship starts to fall apart.

Make Her Feel Like Your Woman

The secret of how to make a woman never want to leave you is to flip that switch in her mind that makes her your woman.

Not your partner, not your friend, not your equal buddy, none of that stuff.

That's politically correct, confused people out there repeating things that they don't really understand.

Those confused, politically people usually don't know how to maintain a relationship between a man and a woman. They simply follow along with what they hear politically correct people talking about at work, on TV and in general life.

Yet, they fail to notice that most of those people are not happy in there relationships because the man is not clearly the man and the woman is not clearly the woman.

They more like friends or neutral partners in life and their sex life dries up in pretty much every relationship they get into.

The answer to the question of, "How can I make her never want to leave me?" is to make her feel like your woman, not your friend, buddy or partner.

Being a man's woman is what a woman REALLY wants. It's not what she will usually admit in public because it's not politically correct to say it, but it's what makes her the happiest when in a relationship with a man.

Just think about those women that you see that are so happy with their man.

When she cuddles into his arms, she looks at him with loving eyes, she's attentive, she's affectionate, she treats him well, she respects him, she listens to what he says, she's his woman.

Then you think about those guys who get treated badly by their woman.

She's a pain in the butt, she puts him down, she throws a tantrum and expects everything to go her way.

In relationships like that, the man isn't in the power position and he's headed for a break up or he's headed for getting cheated on or he's headed for a divorce.

Be the Man She Never Wants to Leave

By the way...

If you've enjoyed this video and article and you'd like to learn more, I recommend that you watch or listen to my program, Make Her Love You for Life.

In the program, you'll learn exactly how to make your woman respect you, feel sexually attracted to you and be totally in love with you for life.

When you have this knowledge, you don't have to live in fear that your woman is going to cheat on you or leave you one day. You will know for sure that she is totally in love with you and only wants to be with you.

What you need to understand is that when you hear statistics like approximately 50% of relationships or marriages end in a breakup or divorce, what that actually means is that approximately 50% of relationships and marriages don't end up in a breakup or divorce!

What you need to know is that it is possible to keep a relationship together for life and it is possible to make a woman love you for life.

Unfortunately, a lot of people just don't get to experience that.

One study that I came across found that 60% of couples were unhappy in their relationship or marriage.

What do you think the problem is there?

In most cases, it's going to be that the man hasn't flipped that switch in his woman's mind and made her become his woman.

That's what she actually wants.

A woman is at her happiest when she loves and respects and feels so attracted to her man, that she gets pleasure out of doing nice things for him.

She gains pleasure from that.

She enjoys cooking for him, she enjoys sucking him off, she enjoys being nice to him, being affectionate, listening to him and being a good woman for him.

That actually makes her happy.

Yet, when you hear about men and women who are unhappy in their relationship, just take a look at the relationship dynamic.

The woman isn't the man's woman. They're equal partners, neutral buddies or the woman is in charge and is wearing the pants.

That's just not the way to have a happy, sexual, loving relationship with a woman.

What she wants and what a woman is waiting for when you're in a relationship with her is to flip that switch in her mind. Make her be your woman.

Make her take on that role where she gains pleasure from doing good things for you. It makes her happy to be a good woman for you.

That's what women really want.

Most Women Avoid Break Ups Unless Absolutely Necessary

[image: When she starts thinking about leaving you]

Another thing to point out is that women are hardwired to not want to break up with their man.

If you think about what happens when a man and woman are in a sexual relationship, it can often result in the woman getting pregnant.

So, a woman has a natural tendency to want to make a man fall in love with her and stay with her.

If they happen to have a child one day, she doesn't want to have to then raise that on her own or go out there and have to attract another guy and hopefully get him to accept the fact that she's already got a child.

She has a natural tendency to want to find a man and stick with him.

So, you need to remember that women usually try to avoid breaking up with you unless they feel that it's absolutely necessary (i.e. you don't even know what she wants you to change, so giving you another chance would just mean more of the same).

In most cases, a woman will wait and give a guy plenty of chances to change and correct his mistakes.

Even after a break up, a woman will open to giving him another chance if he truly does change and starts being the kind of man that she can look up to and respect from now on.

She wants to go back to being good to him, loving him and being happy with him.

She's not going to tell him that though. She wants him to figure it out on his own and start doing it.

So, when in a relationship with a woman, always remember this...

The best way to make a woman want to stick with you for life and never want to leave you is to flip that switch in her mind where she gets to be your woman.

Remember that what makes a woman the happiest is when you create the relationship dynamic where she wants to be good to you and please you. It actually makes her happy to do be like that for you.

Again though, you won't get women admitting that in public.

They don't want to go around saying that, but just look at the women who are the happiest with their man and that is how they behave.

Are Relationships Hard Work?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Have you ever heard people say, “Relationships take a lot of hard work. You’ve got to put in loads of word and loads of effort all the time otherwise your relationship won’t work”?

Luckily for us men, those people are wrong.

They’re completely wrong.

I’ll give you an example...

Three Different Types of a Guys and One Woman

So, there are three different types of guys and one woman who’s being moody and bitchy and throwing tantrums.

Guy 1

With guy number one, he’s in a relationship with a woman and they’ve been together for a year. Suddenly, she starts becoming moody, she’s not affectionate anymore, is being bitchy and throwing tantrums all the time.

How does he react?

He reacts by trying to make her happier through gifts and taking her out to dinner and being really nice to her, doing house work and taking her on a holiday.

Yet, even though he does all that for her, she’s still being moody and isn’t being affectionate.

She doesn’t want to have sex with him, she’s throwing tantrums, she’s creating arguments over little things and she’s essentially being a pain in the butt.

For him, he’s going to think, “Damn, relationships are such hard work. It takes so much hard work to keep a relationship together. Women are so complicated. Why are they so hard to please?”

He doesn’t get it.

Guy 2

He’s in a relationship with a woman, they’ve been together for about a year, same story.

How does he react?

He reacts by getting angry at her for being like that.

He verbally attacks her and insults her. He is really frustrated at her and is saying things like, “Why are you being like this? I’m really good to you. We’ve had a relationship now for a year and all of a sudden you’re acting like this. What’s wrong with you? Why are you being like this?”

She then closes up and when he asks her what the problem is, she says nothing or says, “Figure it out yourself. Otherwise, we’re going to break up.”

He then thinks, “Well, relationships are such hard work! Women are such a pain in the butt. Why are women so complicated and hard to please?”

Yet, he doesn't get it.

Guy 3

He's in a relationship with his woman, they've been together for about a year and the same thing happens.

Suddenly, she starts becoming moody, she's not affectionate anymore and she starts to create arguments over little things.

How does he react?

He doesn't get worried about the changes in her behavior. He doesn't overreact like the other guys have done.

Guy #1 overreacted by being really nice to her and doing nice things for her and buying her lots of things and Guy #2 overreacted by getting angry and emotional and attacking her.

Guy #3 simply takes control of the situation and changes her mood by getting her laughing and feeling good again. He cracks a joke, makes light of what's happening or he makes fun of her in a playful way.

The reason why that works is that women don't actually want to be a bitch to you.

They don't actually want to be treating you badly.

A woman wants to be in love. She wants to be happy but a woman will go along with whatever relationship dynamic that you create.

With guy number one for example, a woman will go along with the relationship dynamic of him sucking up to her and doing whatever he can to hopefully please her. If that's the relationship dynamic he creates, she will follow his lead.

Of course, she's not going to stay with a guy like that forever. She's going to cheat on him or break up with him at some point because she's going to be unhappy. Yet, she will go along with it because women react to men and follow their lead.

Likewise, with guy number two, she's going to go along with the angry, argumentative, conflict based relationship.

If the guy is being angry and verbally attacking her and turning things into a yelling match, she'll go along with that. At the end of the day, that is the relationship dynamic that he will create.

It's literally in his hands. He is in control. He is leading the relationship to that by reacting with anger, rather than being like Guy #3 and remaining in control.

So, with Guy #3, if he creates the relationship dynamic where when she throws a tantrum, or is being moody or is being difficult, he's able to change her mood with humor and get her laughing and feeling good again, she goes along with that and she's a good woman for him.

She follows his lead.

That's the way women are.

Women are so much easier to work with than most guys realize. Most guys think that they have to do so much to please a woman, but women are so easy to work with in a relationship.

She is Waiting For You to Change the Dynamic

[image: She is waiting for you to change the dynamic]

When a relationship has gone sour or is falling apart, the woman will literally be waiting for you to create the dynamic in the relationship that results in her being a good woman for you again.

That's what she actually wants.

She wants to be good to you.

She wants the relationship dynamic where it actually makes her happy to please you sexually.

It actually makes her happy to do good things for you.

That's what she really wants.

Learn More About How to Make a Relationship Easy and Effortless For You

Okay, so I hope you've enjoyed this video and article and have learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn more, I recommend that you watch or listen to my program, Make Her Love You for Life.

When you watch or listen to the program, you will learn exactly what to say and do to make your woman respect you, feel sexually attracted to you and be totally in love with you for life.

You will learn how to make a relationship easy by flicking on what I call the "Good Girl Switch" in a woman's mind where she wants to be a good woman for you.

It actually makes her happy to do good things for you and to be a good woman for you. That is what she really wants.

Of course, you won't get a lot of women going around admitting that.

Women are often very embarrassed to admit what they really want from a man in a relationship.

For example: If a woman were to go around and actually admit, "Yeah, I want to be with a man who makes me be a good woman to him," some people are going to look down on her and maybe her friends will say things like, "Hey, get him to do things for you. Don't be like that, get him to do the housework. Get him to suck up to you. You've got to be in a position of power, girl. Girl power. Women power. Be strong."

She's going to get those sort of reactions, so she avoids admitting what she really wants in a relationship with a man.

Yet, when you look at women who are the happiest in their relationship with a man, you will see that she is being a good woman for him. She loves doing good things for him. It makes her happy to be a good woman for him.

When you create and maintain that type of dynamic in a relationship, your relationship isn't a lot of hard work.

It's so easy.

Yet, if a guy creates the relationship dynamic where he has to suck up to his woman to get some action, then that's a lot of hard work. She's wearing the pants, she's in control and he essentially has to do whatever she wants, otherwise she's not happy.

Likewise, if a man creates and maintains the relationship dynamic of it being a screaming match and a war against each other, then that's a lot of hard work.

It's a constant battle of who's right and who's wrong and "You said this" and "I said that" and "This is not fair!" sort of relationship dynamic.

That's a lot of hard work.

To avoid that nightmare, all you've got to do is give a woman what she really wants and that is the relationship dynamic where she actually gets pleasure and happiness out of being a good woman for you.

Taking a Break While Living Together

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 5 common reasons why a couple will take a break while still living together, as well as what you can do to get your relationship back together before it's too late.

The first reason is due to a woman secretly trying to lead up to an actual break up or divorce with her man.

1. She hopes that the break causes him to lose interest in being in a relationship with her, before she breaks up with him for real

[image: She hopes that he will start to get over her, before she breaks up with him for real]

To avoid things getting tense, uncomfortable or even ugly (e.g. being mean and hurtful to each other, having intense arguments, having her man cry, beg and plead with her not to break up with him or divorce him), a woman will sometimes try to lead up to a break up, rather than going right to it.

So, she will ask to take a break while they are still living together, to hopefully create some distance between them and give her man the chance to potentially lose interest in being in a relationship with her.

Then, by the time she decides to say that it's officially over, he will hopefully take it a lot easier and allow her to move out without much fuss, or vice versa.

So, if you and your woman are currently taking a break up while living together and you want to keep the relationship together, don't just sink into the background of her life and hope that she changes her mind.

Instead, what you need to do is use any interactions that you have with her from now on, to reignite her sexual and romantic feelings for you.

One of the many ways you can do that, is by getting rid of some of the negative tension between you with humor, light-hearted teasing and playfulness, rather than being so serious, uptight or reserved around her.

For example: If she says, I'm going to the supermarket. I will be back in an hour, rather than just saying, Okay like an unwanted ex, playfully tease her by saying, Cool. Don't rush back though. I won't miss you and have a laugh with her.

Alternatively, you might half-jokingly, half-seriously say, Cool. Can you get the ingredients to make a lasagna? You haven't made that in a while and I'm in the mood for it and smile.

Essentially, have the balls to playfully talk to her as though things are still totally cool between you and her and you are able to get her to cook dinner for you, or whatever it may be.

Don't act like the rejected guy, or the unwanted ex who is only allowed to be around her because you live together.

Behave like a man who knows that he's attractive, worthy and lovable and who knows that women find that kind of confidence attractive and charming, so you can't lose.

That's just one example.

I can teach you so many more examples, if you keep reading and learning here.

Another reason why a woman will want to take a break while still living with her boyfriend or husband, isâ€¦!

2. She would move out instantly if she could, but she currently canâ€™t due to financial issues, obligations, lack of options or other issues

[image: She would move out instantly if she could, but she currently canâ€™t due to financial issues, obligations, lack of options or other issues]

Sometimes, a woman will feel stuck in an unhappy relationship, but wonâ€™t have the money or the options (i.e. no friends to move in with) to move out and start a new life for herself.

As a result, she might start to feel resentful and even angry towards her man because itâ€™s like heâ€™s happy that sheâ€™s still around, but has no clue how unhappy she really is.

From her perspective, they have already broken up, but she is just saying that theyâ€™re â€œtaking a breakâ€ until she can figure out a way to move out (e.g. find a better job that pays more, find another place she can afford on her own).

So, even though the man might be thinking, â€œWell, weâ€™re just taking a break. Thereâ€™s still hope that we can fix things,â€ she is secretly just biding her time before she can leave (or make him leave).

Now, the man is right though.

They are taking a break (even though they are broken up in her eyes) and they can fix things, but it all depends on how he approaches it from that point.

The same rule applies to your situation.

When you begin reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction for you, she can literally go from counting the days until she can move out, to wanting to stick around and give the relationship another chance because she feels as though she is falling back in love with you.

How can you make that happen?

Essentially, you have to change the way you interact with her and respond to her from now on, so she goes from feeling angry, disappointed or stressed, to feeling happy, relaxed and open.

For example: Rather than being too serious or being on your best behavior when around her to hopefully impress her or get her to take pity on you (which is not attractive to women BTW), turn your interactions with her into moments of laughter and light-heartedness (as often as possible), so she enjoys spending time with you again.

Another example is to not get upset with her if she gives you the cold shoulder and instead remain calm, easygoing and confident no matter how she is behaving.

If youâ€™re able to do that, she will start to feel as though you are the more mature, sensible one and she is wasting her time and energy by being a pain in the butt around you because youâ€™re not reacting negatively to it.

As a result, she will start to relax and follow your lead of being more easygoing, calm and lighthearted when interacting with you.

When that happens, her guard comes down and she naturally opens back up to the idea of giving the relationship another try.

3. She is sick and tired of having the same kind of arguments and problems over and over again

[image: She is sick and tired of having the same kind of arguments and problems over and over again]

If a woman notices that no matter how often she argues and fights with her man, nothing really ever changes, she might eventually ask for a break in the relationship to create some space between them to ease the tension and decide what she wants to do next (i.e. fix things or break up for real).

At that point, although the situation might seem hopeless to the man, he really can turn things around and reactivate her feelings of love, respect and attraction, so she doesn't want to end the relationship for real.

One of the ways he can do that, is by showing her that he's understood and fixed some of the things that caused them to argue and fight in the past and recently.

For example: Some of the changes a woman might want to see in her man, include:

- When she throws a tantrum or creates drama, rather than getting upset or angry with her, he remains calm and uses humor to change her mood.
- When she complains about a problem that she's experiencing (e.g. at work, with one of her friends) rather than give her a solution and expect her to just stop talking about it and use the solution, he instead allows her to express herself like a woman and listens and offers support. Unlike men, most women just want to vent and talk about their problems in an emotional way, without actually focusing on a solution. She is perfectly capable of focusing on a solution, but in most cases, a woman just wants to express her emotions and have her man listen, ask questions and support how she is feeling. If a man can do that, it's like a huge breath of fresh air to a woman, because he isn't expecting her to think, behave, feel and act like a man and instead, is allowing her to be a real woman around him.
- Rather than him feeling attracted to her, but not doing anything to make her feel the same way about him, he now focuses on making her feel sexy and desirable in his presence (e.g. by flirting with her, being more masculine in his behavior, being more assertive, while still being loving).

When she notices that she is feeling differently around him in a good way, she will naturally begin to question her decision to want to break up.

She will also realize that she would most likely regret breaking up with him if she went through with it, so rather than going through all that, she will just decide to stick with him and see how things go.

In other cases, both the man and the woman agree to take a break for this reason:

4. Both of them hope that by taking a break, it will give the relationship a chance to breathe and they will then get back together

That approach can work if the man is able to create a new relationship dynamic (e.g. she feels loved, appreciated and taken care of, but also feels the need to show him respect, appreciate him and be loving towards him), but in most cases, he doesn't really know how to do that, so he opts for a break to hopefully allow the relationship fix itself somehow.

Then, if he doesn't use a new approach with her during the break, she ends up feeling the same way about him, or worse, which makes her just want to go through with the break up when she can.

5. Neither of them know what else to do because they seem to have tried everything already

Yet, have they really?

For example: Here are some of the things couples will do to hopefully fix the relationship:

- Ignore each other around the house, in the hope that the spark comes back on its own because they've had some time apart. Yet, they just end up getting used to not being with each other physically and emotionally and it drives them apart further, or one of them becomes needy and begins to plead with the other to show more love, affection and interest in them.
- Have date nights to hopefully bring the spark back, but they end up feeling disconnected and don't enjoy being out together like they used to because the relationship dynamic isn't working (e.g. The man is too neutral and treats her more like a friend, the man tries too hard to impress her and comes across as desperate, the woman is moody and irritable because she's not getting the kind of attraction experience she really wants in the relationship). So, it doesn't matter where they go, or what fancy restaurant they eat at, the spark never comes back.
- Get engaged to hopefully make them feel more committed, but the woman ends up feeling trapped because she's engaged to a man that she's not truly in love with.
- Decide to have a baby to hopefully bring them closer, but end up getting stressed out over the amount of responsibility that comes with being a parent. Not to mention the crying and screaming from the baby during the day and night, changing smelly diapers, feeding the baby and having it vomit up the food shortly after and so on.
- Go away for romantic weekends, but they don't feel like being romantic towards each other, or the romance is one-sided (e.g. the man is trying to get her to love him again by being nice, sweet and romantic, but he doesn't realize that women only appreciate romance when they are sexually attracted to a man and want to be with him. He doesn't realize that he needs to change his behavior around her to be more attractive and arousing, rather than trying to win her love back with flowers, or weekend getaways).

So many couples go around in circles like that, until they eventually break up.

Don't that make mistake.

Understand that fixing your relationship is easy, when you understand how to create a dynamic between you and her where respect, attraction and love flows naturally and consistently.

When you do that, both you and her are so much happier and the thought of breaking up is laughable.

It's just not something that you or her would want to do, because you're so happy and fulfilled being together.

3 Mistakes That Can Cause Her to Want to Break Up For Real

1. Assuming that the nicer you are to her, the more she will want to stay with you

If you had been treating her badly prior to the break, then being nice to her will help a little, but itâ€™s not the answer.

The answer is a new relationship dynamic that makes both of you feel happy, in love, attracted and excited about a future together.

If you try to make the solution to the problem be about you being extra nice to her, letting her have her way, making her feel like sheâ€™s more valuable than you and so on, then you will be painting yourself into a corner.

You will create a relationship dynamic where the only way to avoid getting dumped is to continually put in loads of effort to hopefully make her happy, by doing whatever she wants, sucking up to her, putting up with her bad treatment of you and so on.

Thatâ€™s no way to live life as a man and itâ€™s also not what a woman wants from a man.

What a woman really wants is to be with a good man who is confident, treats her well and loves her, but also naturally makes her feel the need to show him respect, be affectionate, loving and supportive.

A woman will do that if the relationship dynamic is right.

For example: A woman can be a total bitch to one guy (i.e. who is sucking up to her) and be an angel to another guy (i.e. who is more of a challenge to her and makes her feel the need to impress him, while still treating her well).

Itâ€™s the same woman, but a different approach is used and as a result, a different relationship dynamic is created.

So, in your situation, donâ€™t make the mistake of thinking that the nicer you are to her, the more she will want to stay.

Nice guy fail badly when it comes to dating, get used and often cheated on in relationships before being dumped and struggle to get ex women back.

If you want her to love you again and want to stay with you, then be a confident, good man who is a challenge for her (i.e. make her feel the need to impress you and gain more of your love, rather than giving her everything of you for nothing in return).

Another mistake to avoid isâ€¦

2. Avoiding flirting with her because you assume she will get angry and want to move out faster

Some guys assume that itâ€™s not their place to flirt with and seduce their girlfriend or wife, while on a break from her.

So, the guy will act like a neutral friend around her and she will realize that sheâ€™s not feeling attracted or interested in him anymore in a sexual way, which will make her want to go through with an actual break up when she can.

If youâ€™re serious about fixing your relationship, donâ€™t be afraid to show your woman that you still find her attractive and want her back (i.e. by flirting with her to create sexual tension between you).

When you create sexual tension, she will then naturally want to release that tension with hugging, kissing and sex.

When that happens, it becomes a lot easier to go from taking a break to being a couple again.

3. Not using the time you still have with her to re-attract her romantically

A woman's romantic attraction for a man is based on her feeling sexually attracted to him and wanting to be with him.

Without romantic attraction, she won't want to be boyfriend and girlfriend or husband and wife anymore.

Instead, she will see you as a roommate, housemate or ex that she is trying to work on getting herself away from.

So, while you are still living together and have a chance to save your relationship, make sure that you focus on making her feel attracted to you in new ways, so she feels romantically attracted to you and doesn't want to go through with an actual break up.

Here are some ways that you can attract her:

- Rather than always being very serious around her, start to use more humor to create moments of laughter, smiling and happiness whenever she's around you.
- Instead of feeling unsure of yourself around her or feeling rejected by her, start displaying confidence and self-assurance, so she can feel attracted to your emotional strength.
- Instead of getting upset when she acts cold or distant towards you, remain calm, easy-going and behave as though everything is totally cool between you and her. That doesn't mean just think that everything is totally cool between you and her. It means, really feel it and talk to her and interact with her as though everything is totally cool between you and her and she's just in a bit of a mood at the moment, but that's her problem and she'll snap out of it. When she notices that her bad moods or cold behavior isn't affecting you or causing you to react negatively, she will eventually follow your lead and start being nicer, more friendly and less stressed around you.

There are so many ways you can attract her today and over the next couple of weeks to get your relationship back on track.

So, don't lose hope!

You can turn things around.

4 Reasons Why a Woman Will Hide Her Love For You in a Relationship

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

One of the things that makes a relationship feel amazing for you and for the woman, is when the love isn't hidden or suppressed.

Both the man and the woman have the courage to show each other the love that they feel.

They don't hide it.

Yet, what will often happen for guys is that they'll find themselves in a relationship with a woman who showed a lot of love initially, but gradually began to suppress that and she began to hide it.

She stopped being as affectionate and attentive as she used to be.

So the question is, why does that happen and more importantly, how can you reverse it so your woman is showing you the kind of love, attention and affection that you want and deserve?

The first reason why a woman will love you, but hide it from you is that...

1. She's worried that you might change how you treat her

[image: She's worried that you might change how you treat her]

For example: A couple will get into a long-term relationship, the woman will love the man, but she will be worried that if she shows him too much love, then he might begin to take her for granted.

He might begin to treat her badly because he may think, "Well, I've got this girl wrapped around my little finger, she's under the thumb, she's in awe of me" and so on.

It might go to his head.

She's worried about that.

So, she just plays it cool so to speak and doesn't show him too much love.

Yet, it's a bad strategy on her part because what ends up happening is that the man and the woman begin to feel disconnected.

They don't feel like they're in love anymore.

As a result, all sorts of problems begin to emerge in the relationship.

For example: The man or the woman may realize that they're not as happy as they used to be and they may begin to then blame the other person for that lack of happiness in the relationship.

Yet, what's really happening is that because she is suppressing her love for him and isn't showing that to him, it's creating a situation where both of them feel disconnected.

He doesn't feel respected.

He doesn't feel wanted and loved and as a result, in many cases, he then stops showing his love to her.

Both of them then begin to feel lonely in the relationship.

Another reason why a woman will love you, but hide it from you is that...

2. She hopes that it will lessen her pain if you and her ever do break up

This can often happen if a woman has been heartbroken in the past by a previous boyfriend, or if she comes from a family where her parents got divorced or were fighting a lot and breaking up and getting back together.

So, to hopefully avoid the pain of a breakup, she begins to hide her love for you, she begins to suppress it.

Yet, by doing that, she causes herself and the man years of emotional pain, frustration, loneliness and so on.

That's one of the things about being in love in a relationship.

[image: Both of you have to take the risk of feeling the love and showing it to each other]

You have to take the risk of feeling the love and showing the love.

If you hide it and suppress it, you end up experiencing a disconnected relationship.

Both you and the woman don't feel as happy as you could be together.

You don't feel like you're in love and as a result, a breakup will most likely happen at some point.

Another reason why a woman will love you, but hide it from you is that...

3. She's worried that you won't feel the same way in return

Now, of course, both men and women do this in relationships.

It's not just women.

Sometimes a man will really love a woman, but he will suppress that, he will hide it.

He will worry that if he shows love to her in a moment and expresses it, then she might not show it back and he will then feel rejected.

The thing is though, as a man, if you want to be successful with women, you have to have the courage to show some interest in a woman, or show some love in a woman without having that fear of rejection.

It's not about always showing how much you love a woman and putting in loads of effort.

Instead, it's about having the courage in a moment where you're feeling some love towards your woman to show that rather than hiding it, rather than suppressing it.

When you do that, it helps your woman come out of her shell and start to show you the love that you deserve.

Of course, some guys don't like that.

They don't like it that a man has to be strong emotionally and take the lead with a woman.

Yet, it's just how nature works.

We men are stronger than women and they love that about us.

They don't necessarily admit that in the mainstream media, but the reality is that men are stronger than women.

Additionally, when you embrace your masculinity, when you embrace your strength and courage and then act upon that, you enjoy an amazing life not only with women, but life in general.

You embrace your masculinity.

You use your courage to take the action that you want.

You don't live in fear.

You don't fear rejection.

You don't fear your feelings not being reciprocated in a moment when you're with your girlfriend or wife.

You don't fear that.

As a result, she feels so much respect, attraction and love for you.

She then naturally goes along with the flow of that type of relationship where it's totally fine to show each other love, to have that courage to show the love in the moment.

You and her then are so much happier together.

Finally, another reason why a woman will love you, but hide it from you is that...

4. She's worried that you might think you can do better than her and then decide to leave her

[image: She is worried that you might start thinking that you can do better than her and then leave her]

Essentially, she worries that if she shows a lot of love towards her man, then she's going to become the less valuable one in the relationship.

Her man is going to start thinking, "Well, this girl loves me. She's totally in love with me, she adores me, maybe I can do better than her. If I can make her love me this much, then maybe I can get an even harder woman. This girl doesn't deserve my respect, she loves me way too much."

The thing is, that does that happen in some cases.

Sometimes a man finds himself in that situation and then begins to think that he can do better than her.

[image: When one person loves the other person much more]

Likewise, if a man is showing loads of love towards a woman, it can, in some cases, make the woman feel as though she could probably do better than him because he's so infatuated by her and she's not feeling the same way in return.

So, what works?

What keeps a relationship together?

What makes both the man and the woman happy for life?

It's when you create a relationship dynamic that causes both of you to be in love with each other and not be afraid to show it.

It's not about going overboard and showing loads of love and affection and attention in every moment.

Instead, it's about having the courage to show some love in the moments when you're feeling it rather than hiding it, rather than suppressing it.

When you do that, both you and her feel amazing in the relationship.

You don't feel alone in the relationship.

You don't feel disconnected.

You feel connected with each other, you feel loved, wanted, adored and the relationship naturally works.

Playing it Cool in a Relationship Doesn't Work in the Long Run

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that playing it cool and hiding your love from a woman might seem like a great technique initially.

Yet, if you continue to do it throughout a relationship, or if your woman is doing it and you don't address it, then the relationship will end up feeling empty.

[image: Feeling lonely and disconnected in a relationship]

Both you and her won't feel connected.

You'll feel lonely in the relationship and a breakup will most likely happen.

The best way to approach it is to create a relationship dynamic that causes both of you to be in love with each other and not be afraid to show it.
