You can then say, â€œOh, Vanessaâ€¦ I remember now! My ex girlfriendâ€¦ yeah, I remember you. I really liked you as a girlfriend, until you started cooking for me. Thatâ€™s when everything went downhillâ€ and have a laugh with her about that.

When you use humor and get her smiling and laughing, she canâ€™t stop herself from feeling attracted to you for having the balls to joke around with her in a moment that may have previously made you feel unsure of yourself.

When she senses your confidence and notices that youâ€™re being a good guy (i.e. youâ€™re not being an asshole when joking with her), she wonâ€™t be able to maintain negative emotions for you in that moment.

Her guard will come down and she will then become more open to interacting with you again, meeting up with you in person, reconnecting with her feelings of love for you and getting back together.

3. Be confident and emotionally masculine around her, even when sheâ€™s being cold and unfriendly towards you

When a woman breaks up with a guy, she will usually make it difficult for him to interact with her from then on (e.g. by ignoring his texts, messages or e-mails, refusing to answer his calls, ignoring him on social media, blocking him on her phone or social media).

Naturally, that makes it a lot more difficult for a guy to get her back and he might start thinking, â€œThis must mean itâ€™s truly over between us. She wonâ€™t talk to me or even answer my texts. Itâ€™s hopeless! Iâ€™ve lost her foreverrrrrr!â€

Itâ€™s not over.

There is always a chance to get an ex back.

I know that because Iâ€™ve personally helped 100s of men to get ex women back and many of those cases started out when the woman hated the man and didnâ€™t want anything to do with him anymore.

Why?

Feelings arenâ€™t set in stone.

You can literally change how a woman feels about you.

So, when a guy thinks that there's no chance of getting his woman back, he has become insecure, which is going to turn his ex off (e.g. she will sense his insecurity when she talks to him) and turn off other women that he meets as well.

Where Guys Go Wrong

Just as easily as you can reactivate your ex's feelings of love, respect and attraction for you, there are certain behaviors that can cause you to become insecure and then turn her off when you next interact with her.

So, if you want to succeed at getting her back, try to avoid making the following mistakes!

1. Stalking her social media posts for clues about whether she is over him

Sometimes a guy might say to himself, "I still love my ex and want her back. I need to know if she is truly over me or not."

He may then start checking all her media posts in the hopes that he will pick up some hint that she still cares about him (e.g. because she mentions his name somewhere, or she still has photos of him posted on her profile, she talks about being sad, she posts a sad song on her profile, she likes a photo that talks about losing the one that got away).

Here's the thing though!

Women often post things on social media and feel certain about it at the time, but then feel completely differently 10 minutes later or the next day.

Women tend to make decisions and act based on the emotion that they're feeling at that point in time, but they don't always take what they say and do so seriously.

and that there is one of the most important things that you need to understand about women.

Don't take them so seriously!

Women don't want you following their lead and hoping that they give you clear signs and clues about their feelings.

This principle applies when picking up women, being in a happy relationship and getting an ex back.

Women are always the same in this regard.

What they want is a man who doesn't get caught up in their emotional outbursts, random expressions of interest in things and how often they change their mind.

A woman wants a man who believes in himself and his attractiveness to her (and other women) no matter what she says or does.

She does want or need him to tell her that though.

She wants to see evidence of that based on how he talks, behaves, takes action and reacts to her and the world around him.

That's what really counts.

So, don't waste time spying on your ex's social media posts in the hopes of finding some sign that she still cares about you.

Instead, make her care.

Interact with her (e.g. via text, social media, e-mail, on a phone call and especially in person) and actively reactivate her feelings for you.

That is what works when getting a woman back.

Another classic mistake that guys make isâ€¦|

2. Thinking that his only chance is to wait and hope that she sends him a signal that she wants him back

A guy might sometimes waste a lot of time waiting for a signal from his ex that will show him that sheâ€¦s still not truly over him and wants him back.

He might then give her a lot of space (i.e. where heâ€¦s not interacting with her in any way for weeks or months), in the hopes that she will realize how much she misses him and then contact him and tell him that she's ready to give the relationship another go.

Yet, that rarely happens and in most cases, rather than send him a signal that she wants him back, a woman usually just assumes that heâ€¦s not interested in her anymore and she moves on.

What you need to understand is that most women donâ€¦t give clear signals of interest when a guy is trying to get them back.

Even when a woman isnâ€¦t truly over her ex and is still missing, she might not give him any signals to let him know how she feels.

Why? Se doesnâ€¦t want to look desperate or as though sheâ€¦s being too easy about getting back together.

She wants to keep the pressure on him, so there is a higher chance that he will actually change and become the kind of man that she could stick with for life this time.

So, if you want to get your ex back, donâ€¦t waste time waiting for a clear signal from her that's she not over you and is hoping to get back with you.

Instead, be emotionally courageous enough to take the lead by contacting her and beginning the ex back process, rather than waiting around for signals from her.

Donâ€¦t wait for her to make it easy for you.

Women don't respect or feel attracted to guys who need women to guide them along and make things easy for them.

She wants you to be emotionally courageous like a real man and get her back, even though she might act a little cold and distant initially as a way of testing your confidence and not making herself seem too eager.

Another classic mistake that guys make isâ€¦|

3. Not improving his ability to attract her in the ways that she really wants

This is probably one of the biggest mistakes that guys make.

For example: A woman might break up with a guy because she feels more emotionally dominant than him and as a result, she doesnâ€¦t respect him anymore.

To get her back, he might say to her, â€¦Please give me another chance. I promise to change.

I'll do whatever you want me to do to make you happy. Just tell me what you want and it's yours. I will do or change whatever you want as long as I can get another chance with you.

He's hoping that she'll feel flattered and happy that he's willing to do anything for her.

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that he's behaving in the exact same way that turned her off in the first place (i.e. submissive and needing her to lead him).

That's not what she wants from him.

She wants him to be more emotionally dominant and have the balls to stand up to her like a real man.

Standing up to her doesn't mean being mean or disrespectful towards her.

Instead, it's about being more emotionally masculine than her so that she can relax into being a feminine woman around him.

So, if you want to get your ex back, you have to attract her in the ways that she really wants, not in the ways that you think she wants.

For example:

- If you were too insecure, needy and clingy in your relationship with her, start being more confident and emotionally strong.
- If you stopped making her feel attracted to you, start attracting her in new and exciting ways.
- If you lacked drive and determination on your life, set yourself some big goals and make progress towards achieving them.
- If you allowed her to walk all over you, decide to be more emotionally dominant around her from now on.

Fully understand the real reasons why your ex broke up with you in the first place and then immediately begin to change those things about yourself.

When she can see for herself that you're now the kind of man she can look up to respect and feel attracted to, her walls will come down and she will then say something like, "You know, I was never truly over you. I saw you as the one that got away. I'm glad we're back together now. I love you."

That's what you can look forward to.

She's waiting.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Keep Your Ex in a Relationship Once You Get Her Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to keep your ex in a relationship once you get her back is to deepen her feelings of love, respect and attraction from now on.

You can achieve that by not making the same old mistakes that you used to (e.g. taking her for granted, being clingy and needy, being jealous and controlling, not making her feel feminine and girly in your presence) and being a new, improved man who now makes her feel what she always wanted to feel with you.

For example: If you were too emotionally sensitive before, you are now an emotionally strong, more masculine man who doesn't get upset, hurt or insecure no matter how difficult she behaves.

You're strong now, so she can relax and trust you to really be the man from now on.

Where so many guys mess up is that they get a woman back, but are still pretty much the same guy and don't know how to get rid of their insecurities or communication issues, so the break up happens again.

Don't Bring Old Baggage to the New Relationship

[image: Don't bring old baggage into the new relationship]

You've got to see the previous relationship you had with her as being an experience you and her went through to get to this new, fresh, happy point together.

Both you and her have grown and become better versions of yourself, so when you start a new relationship, it will be better.

The sex will be better, the love will feel stronger and the intimacy will be more honest, meaningful and enjoyable.

Of course, that is if you (not her) really have changed.

For example: Sometimes, a guy will get his ex back by putting on an act of having changed (e.g. he pretends to be more confident than he really is, he pretends not to be jealous and controlling anymore, he acts more loving and caring).

However, deep down he's the same guy as before and once he gets his ex back, he gradually falls back into his old pattern of thinking and behaving.

When his woman notices that he really hasn't changed and is actually still the same guy she broke up with, she will break up with him again.

He has secretly carried the old, problematic baggage into the new relationship and now expects her to just carry it with him like she used to.

That's not what a woman wants when she gives her man another chance after a serious break up.

She wants him to truly change and become a new, improved man that she can respect, feel attracted to and love for life.

If he has tricked her by putting on an act, she's going to be more determined to keep him out of her life the next time, because he obviously doesn't care enough about her to put in the work required to be the kind of man she needs him to be.

On the other hand, if you get your ex back and she sees that you've put in the effort to change and become a better man, she will not only respect you and feel attracted to you even more than ever before, but her heart will also fill up with new, exciting emotions and she won't want the relationship to break up again.

She will feel like you and her have reached a new level together and everything about the relationship will be so much more special now.

She will enjoy the sex more, love hugging you more and feel happy to be spending time with you.

She will also feel confident and safe about your future together, because you've clearly started to become the man she always wanted you to be and she can see that you will continue improving.

So, the secret of how to keep your ex in a relationship with you is to

- Fully understand what caused her to break up with you in the first place.
- Honestly change or improve those things about yourself.
- Get her respect and attraction back by interacting with her on a phone call and in person.
- Hook up sexually and start the relationship again.

Once that happens, your woman will begin to fall deeply in love with the new you and then the idea of losing you will seem like the worst thing that could ever happen to her.

Things That Will Ruin the New Relationship

[image: Things that will ruin the new relationship]

Once you've gotten her back into a relationship, you've got to make sure that you are able to build on her feelings of love, respect and attraction over time.

Watch this video for more info

You've got to take control of the dynamic of the relationship and cause her to be a good woman for you.

That's what she really hopes you will do.

She doesn't want to treat you badly, be a mean girlfriend or wife or end up having to break up or get divorced.

She wants a man who will make her be a good girl and happily love him and be devoted to him for life.

That's a dream scenario for almost all women on the planet, but most guys simply do not know how to provide that experience, which is why there are so many break ups and divorces.

In terms of keeping a relationship together once you get her back, here are some classic mistakes to avoid:

1. Being way too nice to her when the relationship gets back together

Some guys don't feel worthy of their ex woman when they get her back.

For example: A guy may think, â€œDon't screw this up again. She's given you another chance so you better make sure that you make her feel so happy to be with you, that she never wants to leave again. Be on your best behavior! Treat her like a princess. Don't stuff up! Be nice!â€

He might then be extra nice to her, agree with everything she says, always give in to her wishes and demands, let her make all the decisions and possibly even let her disrespect him, without ever standing up to her.

He hopes that will make her happy.

Yet, it doesn't.

Of course, there are some insecure, domineering women out there who love the idea of bullying a guy and making him cater to her every beck and call, but the majority of women don't want that.

Most women don't like the idea of being more emotionally dominant than their man, even though they will act like they want to be in charge.

In most cases, a woman seeming like she wants to be in charge is just a test of the guy's confidence.

- Will he laugh (in a loving way) at her for attempting to boss around a man, or will he cower and do whatever she wants?
- Will he remain calm and take the lead, even though she's acting like she wants to lead everything and decide on everything?
- Will he let her make some decisions at times without feeling like he's losing control, or will he get insecure and think that he needs to decide on everything and lead everything at all time?

Women test for these traits in men because it shows her how he will handle himself out there in the world.

A woman doesn't want to get stuck with a guy who will get bullied at work, picked on by friends and ignored or looked over when promotions are available at work.

She wants a man that others respect, which then makes her feel safe.

When a woman begins to feel more dominant than her guy and feels like she can push him around, she stops respecting him as a man.

Her instincts kick in and let her know that she's potentially with a guy who won't be able to stand up for himself in everyday life.

Secretly, she begins to think, â€œHe's such a wimp. No matter what I say or do, he's always putting up with it. I wish he would just stand up to me once in a while and be a man. His emotional weakness is just so unattractive to me.â€

She then loses interest in having sex with him and tries to end the relationship before it's too late (i.e. before she gets pregnant to him).

Even if a woman doesn't want children, hates children or says she too young or too old to have children, she is still controlled by the same instincts that affect women who do want children.

Women are instinctively wired to feel attracted to and stick with a man that they can look up to and respect.

If your woman loses respect for you, everything else starts to fall apart after that, which is why getting her respect back is the first thing you need to do.

You can do that by briefly apologizing and then immediately switching to being the sort of man that she can look up to and respect (e.g. emotionally strong, honest, driven, confident).

After that, you need to focus on making her feel good around you by attracting her.

Her feeling attracted to you is the most important part of turning her around and changing her mind about you.

Okay, so let's assume that you do it right (see video above) and get her back.

From then on, you need to continue being a man that she can look up to and respect.

Don't make the mistake of handing all your power over to her and being super nice because you think it will make her happy.

Instead, just be a good, loving man and treat her well, but don't go overboard with how nice you are being.

If you go overboard with it, she will see it as being fake or forced and it just won't feel right to her.

So, simply be a good man, be the more emotionally dominant one and lead both you and her into deeper feelings of love, respect and attraction over time.

Note: While you are doing that, she will almost certainly act like she doesn't care, like it's not having a positive effect on her or that she won't ever change her mind.

Yet, she will secretly be changing how she feels.

As a result, her guard will come down and she will be more open to interacting with you in person and getting back together.

Another mistake to avoid once you get her back is

2. Taking her for granted once again

One of the biggest reasons why a woman breaks up with a guy is because he has fallen into the habit of taking her for granted.

For example: At the beginning of the relationship, a guy will usually be very loving, attentive and caring.

He may notice his woman's efforts to look good for him, all the things she does for him (e.g. making him a coffee, making the bed in the morning, cleaning up the kitchen) and how good she is to him.

Yet, over time, he might become neglectful and stop noticing and commenting on the effort she puts in to look good for him.

Alternatively, he may begin assuming that it's okay for her to run around and do everything for him, because she loves him or because she's his girlfriend or wife.

Naturally, when this happens for a long time, the woman will likely start thinking, Why do I have to do everything? He never pulls his weight around the house and always expects me to clean up after him. At least if he noticed me once in a while and gave me a compliment, I'd probably be able to handle his laziness, but I just feel like his slave these days. I'm miserable. What am I sticking around for? This isn't going to get better over time like a relationship should. It's *probably just going to get worse. I need to get out and find myself a man who will treat me with the respect and love I deserve,*â□□ and she then breaks up with him.

If the guy realizes his mistake, he will make some adjustments to his thinking and behavior and successfully get her to give him another chance.

Then, their relationship will get better and better over time, because he is one of the rare guys who learns from his mistakes, makes changes and becomes a better man as a result.

However, not all guys do that.

Sometimes, a guy will get his ex back after taking her for granted, by making her a whole bunch of promises about things he will change.

He might say, â□□*Please baby, I know that I took you for granted, but I've realized that was wrong. I promise if you give me another chance, I will treat you better. I promise to help around the house and Iâ□□m going to be the loving, caring man that you deserve.*â□□

Yet, after he gets her back, he slowly falls into his old pattern of taking her for granted.

Why?

Mainly because he hasnâ□□t really made any improvements to his way of thinking.

Heâ□□s still the same guy she broke up with.

He simply promised her to change, but deep down everything about him is still this same.

It was an act.

Naturally, when his woman realizes that sheâ□□s been duped, she will break up with him again and then try to find a replacement guy to give her the attraction experience she really wants.

So, don't let that happen to you.

If you get her back, make sure that you do things right this time.

Be one of the rare men who sincerely change and improve as a result of a breakup, by going beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you.

Then, when you get her back, it will be forever, rather than being for as long as it takes for her to realize that youâ□□re still the same guy she broke up with.

3. Not giving her the attraction experience she secretly wants

Gone are the days where a woman would stay in a relationship with a man regardless of how miserable she felt because she was expected by society and family to only have one man for life.

In todayâ□□s world, a woman will quickly break up with a guy if canâ□□t give her the attraction experience she wants from him.

For example: A woman might want her guy to be more ballsy and stand up for himself to her and to other people, rather than being so shy, hesitant and soft spoken.

Yet, if he just continues to go around being a pushover and allowing himself to be emotionally dominated by people, then heâ□□s not giving her the attraction experience she wants from him (i.e. a confident, emotionally dominant man that she can look up to, respect and feel attracted to).

So, for a guy like that to keep his ex in a relationship once he gets her back, he needs to show her that heâ□□s now emotionally strong and able to stand up for himself.

It's not about him become aggressive or acting like a thug or anything crazy like that.

Instead, he should remain being a good man, but just have a bit more balls.

He should be able to talk with confidence, look people in the eye and take action with confidence to achieve what he wants to achieve in life.

She doesn't want him putting on an act of being confident to please her and then quickly giving in to her demands if she gets annoyed and throws a tantrum to test him.

She wants his newfound confidence to be real and if he can do that, her love and devotion for him will be real.

Another example is if a woman wants her man to be more goal-oriented in his life.

She wants him to have a big life purpose and direction outside of his relationship with her (i.e. something big that he's striving towards achieving in his life other than being with her).

If he gets her back and she realizes that he's only talking about his dreams, but never actually doing anything to make them a reality, she will just break up with him again and find herself a man who isn't all talk and no action.

Note: A man does not need to have achieved his goals before a woman can fully love and respect him again.

Instead, he just has to show her that he's putting in the effort to become a bigger and better man to ensure a safer and more secure future for both of them.

As a man, you've always got to be making progress towards your biggest goals in life.

Little, standard goals (e.g. getting a job, buying a new sofa, exercising) are not big goals and ambitions. That's just the standard mechanics of life.

I'm talking about your biggest goals, dreams and ambitions.

Make progress towards that.

So, with your woman, do you know what part of the overall attraction experience was missing in the relationship?

- Were you not enough of a man for her?
- Were you not following through on your big goals and ambitions?
- Did you become too emotionally sensitive?
- Did you give her too much power and as a result, prevent her from feeling like your girl and being able to look up to you?

If you want to keep your ex once you get her back, you've got to understand what part of the overall attraction experience was missing and adjust those things about yourself.

When she can see that you get it now and she doesn't have to silently feel angry and frustrated at you anymore, she can relax and allow herself to fully trust you, respect you, feel attracted to you and fall in love with you again.

4. Falling back into your old insecurities

One of the main reasons why a woman will break up with a guy is because of his insecurities (e.g. he doesn't believe he's good enough for her, he's afraid of losing her, he's insecure about his future prospects, he's insecure in the bedroom, he's insecure about other people).

Why?

It all has to do with a woman's natural instincts of needing to be with a man who is strong enough to take care of her and their offspring should they have any one day.

Unlike in the past where a woman wanted the physically strongest man (i.e. because she needed protection from wild animals and, in later times, from being abducted or raped), today's woman wants a man who is emotionally strong.

Essentially, because modern women are no longer under threat of being eaten by wild beasts and can rely on the police, courts and government for protection, they no longer need a man who has big muscles to protect them physically.

Of course, there's nothing wrong with having muscles or being physically strong of course, but it's just not that important to most women anymore.

Some women place importance on it, but most women know that a nervous, insecure guy with muscles doesn't guarantee her a safe, happy future.

A woman knows that modern life is challenging and requires emotional strength (i.e. confidence, self esteem, assertiveness, determination to succeed) in order to survive, thrive and prosper.

She needs a man who will remain emotionally strong, regardless of how difficult things get in life (e.g. he's faced with financial problems, taking on the responsibility having a family and raising children, dealing with difficult coworkers, dealing with friends who are creating problems in their life).

So, if a guy is plagued by insecurities and expects his woman to be gentle with him, she will quickly start losing respect for him.

She will feel turned off by his emotional weakness and then the idea of sticking with him for life just won't feel right to her anymore.

She may love him as a person and cherish the memories they've shared, but her instincts will be telling her to get out the relationship before it's too late.

So, if insecurity was one of the main reasons why she dumped you the first time, to keep her in a relationship when you get her back, you need to show her that you really have changed.

For example: No matter what your ex says to you, how she treats you (e.g. pulls back her attention to see what you will do, is mean towards you, throws a tantrum, insults you), or how much she tries to get you to react in your old ways, you need to remain confident and emotionally strong.

[image: Keeping the relationship together once you get her back]

When she can see for herself that things really are different now and that you are no longer falling into your old patterns of insecurity, she will relax into being a feminine woman around you, knowing that you are now the kind of man worth sticking with.

By the way...

Once you've gotten her back, she may test your confidence and emotional strength by bringing up the past and complaining about the mistakes you used to make.

Don't take it seriously and feel like you need to apologize over and over again.

Just turn it into something to laugh about together and then move onto the next conversation.

For example: “Yeah, it’s pretty funny to think about...I mean, what was I thinking?” and then have a laugh with her about that, rather than allowing her to turn it into a serious thing or a negative thing. Remain confident and guide you and her into deeper feelings of love, respect and attraction in the new relationship.

If you do that, everything will be fine.

The relationship will literally get better and better every day, week, month and year that you’re together.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Build Sexual Tension With Your Ex

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you are looking for ways to build sexual tension with your ex, here is what you need to do.

1. Reactivate Her Feelings, But Don't Try to Get Back With Her

Before you even think about hooking up with your ex sexually and getting her back for real, you first need to use every interaction that you have with her as an opportunity to reactivate her feelings of respect and sexual attraction.

If you don't do that first, she won't really be open to the idea of talking to you, meeting up with you or having sex with you again.

Instead, she will likely be saying things like, "Please stop contacting me. I just don't have feelings for you anymore," or "I can't forget what happened between us. I just don't think I can feel love or attraction for you again. It's over okay."

On the other hand, if you reactivate some of her feelings for you first and then build the sexual tension between you and her (e.g. via flirting, by making her laugh and smile), she simply won't be able to stop herself from wanting you to release that desire inside of her.

Of course, right now you may be wondering, "How can I reactivate my ex's feelings for me? What must I do?"

Watch this video for some examples!

The truth is, reactivating a woman's feelings is actually pretty simple.

The main thing you need to do is to interact with her (e.g. via e-mail, text message, social media and most importantly, on the phone) to make her laugh, smile and feel happy and excited to be hearing from you again.

The more sexual attraction you make her feel during interactions, the more the sexual tension will build up between you and her.

So, when you ask her to meet up with you in person, or if you move in for a hug or kiss when you see her, she will be much more likely to go along with it and enjoy it.

What is sexual tension?

Sexual tension is where a man and a woman are attracted to each other, but there is a block or obstacle in between them having sex (e.g. they work together, he already has a girlfriend, they have just met in a bar and she's not sure if it will look good to her friends if she goes home with him, so her friends are the block).

Sexual tension also happens with happy couples.

They flirt with each other in the morning before heading off to work for example and know that sex is going to happen that night, but there's still an entire day ahead of them before it happens.

So, during the day, they are thinking about having sex with each other and the tension is building.

When they get home, they both have a cheeky smile on their face and the flirting continues.

Later that night, the sex happens and it's a beautiful release of built up sexual tension.

The same principle of sexual tension applies with an ex.

You and her aren't together anymore, so the block or obstacle is the imaginary notion that ex's are supposed to remain broken up.

She probably doesn't want to go back on her word when she said, "I don't want to be with you anymore. It's over" and she might not also want to disappoint her friends.

Whatever the case, there will be a block or obstacle in between you and her hugging, kissing, having sex and getting back into a relationship.

The block or obstacle is actually a perfect opportunity for you to create sexual tension by making her feel attracted during interactions, but not trying to get her back.

She then feels attracted to you and wonders why you don't want her back, so you become the block.

Warning: Don't play too hard to get though!

Remember that you are broken up and if you play too hard to get, she might just give up on you and move on.

Watch this video for more info! [\[link\]](#)

It's important that you actively make her feel sexually attracted to you and then have the confidence to just relax and know she is attracted and that you don't have to rush to get her back.

Don't leave it too long though.

After you've built up some sexual tension, just get her back.

She will be so happy to be in your arms again because it will be a huge release of exciting sexual tension.

Yet, most guys either don't know how to do that or are too afraid to give her that experience in case she moves on.

For example: A guy calls his ex woman and says, "Hi Tanya! I just called to ask you if you would like to meet up for some coffee sometime. I need to talk to you about getting back together again."

There's no block or obstacle in between them wanting each other.

He's saying that he wants a relationship, before he's even made her feel any sexual desire or wanting for him.

As a result, he's going to kill the sexual tension and she's going to just close up and say, "No. I don't think that's a good idea."

On the other hand, if you say something like, "Hey Tanya! how you doing? I'm just enjoying a nice cappuccino here and it suddenly made me think of you."

She will likely ask, "Why?"

She may even think to herself, "Oh, I bet he's just saying that as a way of asking me out for coffee."

You can then say in a joking way, "Well, I was remembering how every time you drank a cappuccino you managed to give yourself a foam mustache. You're the only girl I know who could pull off a cappuccino mustache and still look good.â

At this point, she will probably be laughing and feeling a little self-conscious.

She'll also be feeling some respect and attraction for you, for having the confidence to tease her in that way even though you and her have broken up.

You can then say, âAnyway, I thought Iâd give you a call to say hi as a friend. How have you been ex girlfriend?â

Referring to her as "ex girlfriend" creates an obstacle between you and her.

She's not your girlfriend anymore, so if she feels like she wants to be your girlfriend again or at least still be thought of as your girlfriend in your mind, it will create some sexual tension.

She will want to flirt with you, show you interest and make you want her again, so you stop thinking of her as your ex girlfriend.

In the process of trying to get you to want her again, she will naturally begin to think of you in a more positive light, focus on your good qualities and try to impress you.

This actually makes her fall back in love with you and want you again.

You become a challenge to her.

She wants to get the power back and if she has to meet up with you, make you want her and then try to break it off with you again, most women will do that.

Yet, she's not going to break up with you again if you properly attract her at the meet up!

So, after you've built some sexual tension by flirting with her (e.g. telling her she looks good, even with a cappuccino mustache) and creating an obstacle (e.g. referring to her as your ex girlfriend), you can either end the phone call or suggest a meet up if you think she is ready.

If you think she is ready to meet up, you can say something like, âAnyway, Iâve got to go now, but how about we catch up and say hi in person sometime this week? Of course, itâs only as friends because I accept that you and I have broken up. I just want to see if you still look as cute as you used to with that foam mustache.â

She will most likely be laughing, smiling and enjoying the conversation with you, while at the same time, noticing that there's a bit of flirting and teasing going on, which will be exciting to her.

Women know what flirting is and they love it when a guy has the confidence to do it, especially when they are being cold, distant or even mean towards him.

She will begin to think, âTalking to my ex actually feels good again. Maybe meeting for a cup of coffee isn't such a bad idea. I actually want to see him. It seems like it might be kind of funâ and she will then agree to meet up.

As long as you focus on making her feel good feelings when she interacts with you (e.g. respect, attraction), without putting any pressure on her to get back together again, the idea of meeting up with you will be something she really wants to do.

2. Attract Her in Person, Hug Her, Kiss Her and Then Leave to Do Something Else You Had Planned

[image: Build up the sexual tension and then leave]

Another great way to build sexual tension with your ex, is to let her experience and feel attracted to the new and improved you in person and then leave, rather than hanging around until she says that you should go.

What you need to focus on in terms of attraction, will depend on what your ex broke up with you because of.

For example: If a guy got broken up with for being too emotionally sensitive and insecure, he needs to show her that he's now emotionally strong and confident.

If she tries to test him by being cold and distant during conversation, rather than reacting like he might have in the past (e.g. get upset, give up on the idea of getting her back, plead with her for another chance), he instead remains relaxed and uses her coldness to build up the sexual tension (e.g. by playfully teasing her for being cold, making her laugh, playfully acting even colder than her).

Another example is if a woman broke up with a guy because he was too nice and she felt more emotionally dominant than him.

A good way to show her that he's changed, while at the same time build sexual tension between them, is by standing up to her (in a loving way) when she tries to dominate him during conversation.

For example: If she says, "Don't say another word" he then acts as though he is taking her seriously, covers his mouth with his hand, removes his hand and says, "I have to go take a piss" whoops, I wasn't supposed to talk and then have a laugh with her about that.

When she sees that he's the one who is control of the situation, she naturally feels sexually attracted to him again.

That's how it can work for you too.

When your ex sees that you're being so confident, charismatic and emotionally masculine with her now, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling sexually attracted to you again.

Attraction happens automatically and isn't something that either men or women can stop feeling for each other.

When traits are displayed that cause attraction, it just happens whether we want it to or not.

So, when she is attracted to you again and the sexual tension is building, you can say something like, "This coffee tastes great, but what would make it taste even better is if you come here and give me a hug."

As long as you've been sparking her feelings of attraction for you during the interaction, she will most-likely laugh and say something along the lines of, "Oh really? Okay," and she will come over to give you a hug.

When she's in your arms, lean in and give her a kiss.

Then, when she's feeling really exited and turned on and possibly even thinking, "I wonder where things are going to go from here. Maybe we're going to have sex again!" you need to pull away and say something along the lines of, "Well, anyway this has been fun, but unfortunately I've got to get going now. I've got an appointment that I can't be late for. Let's do this again though, okay? Iâ€™ll call you sometime. Bye,â€™ and then leave.

Be casual and relaxed about it.

Don't rush to leave and make it all weird.

Just have an appointment that you must go to and then leave to go and attend that.

[image: Build up the sexual tension and then leave]

Then, when you contact her again, she will be keen to meet up with you, hug, kiss and have sex to release the sexual feelings that have been building up inside of her.

3. Have Sex With Her, Blow Her Mind and Then Let Her Know That You Will Be Unavailable For the Next 3-4 Days Afterwards

If you successfully spark your exâ€™s feelings of respect and attraction at the first meet up, it is likely that the sexual tension between you and her will be quite intense.

Chances are high that she will even be the one who calls you and suggests you get together again (possibly even at her place).

When you meet up with her again, itâ€™s up to you to continue building her feelings of desire, to the point where she simply canâ€™t wait for you to release those feelings inside her via kissing and sex.

The way it works is that when you build up a womanâ€™s sexual desire for you by creating sexual tension, she will feel as though she is going to explode if she doesnâ€™t have sex with you.

I've dealt with ex back cases where the woman has even admitted to her ex guy that since interacting with him again, she has masturbated in the shower and in bed when thinking about having sex with him.

Your ex might not admit that, but women masturbate over actual sex that they can have with their existing man or with other men that they might fantasize about.

Of course, some modern women do look at porn, but the majority of women are fantasizers.

They just close their eyes and imagine sex happening and masturbate to that.

So, when you re-attract your ex, it's highly likely that she will be masturbating to the idea of having sex with you again.

When you cause her to feel that way, she then wants to seduce you, rather than waiting around for you to take things to the next level with her.

That's not the end of it though.

Once you finally release the sexual tension with sex and you blow her mind, pull back and don't chase her for a relationship.

You can do that by saying something along the lines of, â€™This was great. Iâ€™ve really enjoyed being with you again. You're sexier than ever. Iâ€™ve got to go now and I want you to know that Iâ€™m going to be caught up with a big project at work for the next 3 or 4 days, so I wonâ€™t be able to call you. When Iâ€™m finished, Iâ€™ll definitely give you a call so that we can catch up again.â€™

Then leave and don't call her for a few days to build the sexual tension with her even more.

Remember: She will be sitting at home replaying all the great moments she shared with you, thinking about how much you've changed as a man and remembering how great the sex between you and her was.

When she gets into bed at night, she will almost certainly masturbate about you and imagine having sex with you again.

By the time you contact her again, she will be desperate to see you and from there, getting her back into a relationship with you will be something she will be hoping for as much as you.

Make Sure You Don't Make These Classic Mistakes

As you can see, building sexual tension with your ex is actually pretty easy.

As long as you focus on sparking her feelings of attraction every time you interact with her (e.g. on a phone call and especially in person) and then pull away a little bit, your ex will be at boiling point in no time.

Where some guys go wrong though, is by making the following mistakes!

1. Thinking that romantic gestures will build up sexual tension when there is no sexual attraction to begin with

Sometimes, a guy might make the mistake of thinking that romance equals sexual tension.

He might even say to himself, I've seen how women react in romantic movies. All the guy needs to do is buy her flowers and arrange a romantic, candle-lit dinner and by the end of the evening she is so sexually turned on that she just can't keep her hands off him. So, that's what I'm going to do. I'm going to romance my ex with flowers, dinners and gifts, until the sexual tension between us reaches boiling point and she can't keep her hands off me.

Yet, what a guy like that usually doesn't understand is that even though he means well, romance only works if the sexual attraction is mutual.

If she doesn't feel sexually attracted to him anymore, she might appreciate his romantic gestures, but it's not going to make her feel sexually attracted to him.

Why?

He's trying to build sexual tension with her with traits such as niceness, politeness and gentlemanly behavior, which don't even make a woman feel sexually attracted and turned on.

A woman only feels cares for those nice traits if he has reactivated her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for first.

So, if you want to build sexual tension with your ex, don't waste time making grand romantic gestures in the hopes that this will make her throw herself back in your arms like women do in the movies, music videos or romance novels.

Instead, just build up the sexual tension with her by triggering her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you, but don't try to get her back right away.

Then, you will most likely get a text, call or social media message from her telling you that she wants to see you again.

If she's shy or likes to play hard to get, she might just send you a, "Hey" text or, "How are you?" which is code for, "I miss you. Get me to meet up with you."

From there, you can meet up with her again and get her back.

Another classic mistake isâ€¦!

2. Trying to build up sexual tension with text messages and e-mails

Sometimes, a guy will waste a lot of time texting or e-mailing his ex in the hope that it will gradually make her want him (i.e. the sexual tension will build).

Yet, if he doesn't do anything to spark her feelings for him first, it's unlikely that a woman will feel seduced by what a man has to say via text or e-mail.

In most cases, she will just be feeling annoyed and wondering, "What does he want? Why is he texting me/e-mailing me all the time?"

Here's the thing!

When a woman can't hear the tone of your voice, or experience your confidence, she can only guessing at your state of mind when you sent the text or e-mail.

In most cases, she's going to be thinking of you the way you used to be before (e.g. insecure, needy, self-doubting), not the way you are now (e.g. confident, emotionally masculine, determined).

So, if you want to build sexual tension with your ex, you've got to get her on a phone call with you, where you can get her smiling, laughing and feeling good to be talking to you again and let her experience the new you.

Then, arrange a time to catch up in person.

In person, you will be able to fully reactivate her feelings of sexual attraction for you by flirting with her, making her smile and laugh and showing her that you're now a very different man than the one you were before.

You can create real, exciting sexual tension that both you and her want to release by kissing and having sex again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

3 Reasons Why Caring Too Much About What Your Ex Thinks of You Will Actually Turn Her Off

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Women always test men.

One of the ways a woman tests her ex man is by showing interest one minute and being cold and distant the next.

She will also complain, remind him of how badly he treated her, blame him for the hurt she is feeling and so on.

In most cases, she is testing to see if you are going to buckle under her pressure and lose confidence in yourself and your attractiveness to her.

[image: Why is she creating drama?]

She wants to see if you can maintain your self-esteem and confidence no matter how cold, mean or bitchy she is trying to be.

Her words and behavior may seem serious, but deep down, she is open and ready for you to reactivate her feelings and bring back her sweet, loving, good girl side that she used to share with you.

She won't openly admit that and, if she's inexperienced with relationships, she probably won't even know that it's possible for her to go from hating you to loving you again.

Yet, she can.

You have the ability to cut through all the drama and bring the situation between you and her back to love, connection and happiness again.

How can you do that?

Start by understanding the following 3 important things about your ex...

1. Her Dramatic Emotional States Are Usually Fake

[image: Most of her drama is fake]

Women often create drama purely as a way to test a man's confidence.

They don't actually want you to take it seriously.

In most cases, the best response is to simply laugh at her and her attempts to create a negative situation (e.g. when she throws a tantrum, starts blaming you for everything that is going wrong in her life), rather than getting dragged into the drama.

Here's the thing! □

The more feminine and girly a woman is, the more likely she will be to get very emotional and moody from time to time.

For example: A woman might be very successful in her professional life and generally be able to keep her emotions under control at work.

Yet, when she is at home with her man or interacting with friends, she might let her emotions go to create some drama (e.g. by crying when she's feeling stressed, throwing a tantrum over something seemingly insignificant, making a big deal out of nothing and getting upset about it).

Feminine women love to create drama because it allows them to express their wild, random emotions and it also gives them an opportunity to locate and lock onto a man who has the ability to remain confident, calm and in control amidst the storm she is creating.

When a feminine woman meets a man who doesn't buckle under her fake pressure, she locks on and doesn't want to let go.

So, even though you and your woman are now broken up, she's going to naturally continue creating drama and testing you to see how you react.

For example: She might be even more unpredictable with her behavior (e.g. answers your calls or texts in a friendly way and then ignores you for days or even weeks. Sounds like she's enjoying talking to you on the phone and then suddenly starts an argument over nothing. Seems to be having a good time hanging out with you and then goes cold and wants to leave. Starts having sex with you and then stops right in the middle of it, cries and says that she doesn't want to continue).

When a guy is experiencing that kind of erratic behavior with his ex, it's only natural that he might feel a bit confused and he may even get upset at her for being so annoying, frustrating or inconsistent.

If he blames himself, he may think, "What am I doing wrong? Why does she act all nice and friendly one minute and then suddenly she's being cold and distant, or angry and telling me to leave her alone? I don't understand. She's acting like a crazy person."

What some guys don't understand is that a woman will usually create some sort of drama around her (e.g. by starting an argument, being open and friendly one minute and cold and distant the next), to test how he will respond.

- Will he remain silent and put up with her bad behavior (i.e. because he fears that he won't be able to convince her to give him another chance if he says anything that might annoy her)?
- Will he respond like a woman by losing control of his emotions (e.g. get upset or annoyed with her, begging and pleading with her, crying)?
- Will he lose confidence in himself and his attractiveness to her and give up completely on the idea of getting back with her altogether?

If he doesn't respond like a real man (i.e. remain calm, laugh at her drama in a loving, easy-going way or use humor to get her to laugh at herself), she will sense his insecurity and lose even more attraction and respect for him.

For example: A guy might be having a good conversation with his ex on the phone, when all of sudden she says something like, "You really stuffed up you know? I can't believe you have the nerve to talk to me after everything you put me through. Who do you think you are? Do you really think I would ever want to get back with you after all you put me through?"

Naturally, he might feel confused and even hurt by her seemingly harsh comments and questions.

He might say to himself, "Huh? Why is she being like this all of a sudden? I thought we were both enjoying talking to each other. What did I do to set her off like that?"

He may then become very guarded around her and try to say and do whatever he thinks will please her (e.g. he will be extra nice, considerate, caring, generous, thoughtful).

Yet, here's the thingâ€¦|

If he pays too much attention, gives too much importance or tries too hard to understand the emotional states she goes through, he will be missing the point.

In most cases, a woman doesn't really care about what she is saying when she is being emotional because it's only a fleeting, feminine expression.

Although she wants you to respect her right to feel those emotions, she doesn't expect you to take it all so seriously and think that it's the end of the world.

This is where so many guys mess up with their ex and with women in general.

They just take women way too seriously.

In the case of an ex, rather than make her think, â€œAmazing! My ex is being so sweet to me because I threw a tantrum. Heâ€™s really trying so hard to please me. Heâ€™s such a good guy! Wow! I must give him another chance! I simply cannot lose him. He is my Prince Charming!â€ she will instead be thinking something like, â€œHe doesn't get it. Heâ€™s just not man enough for me. Heâ€™s always getting so emotional over everything that I say or do. He just can't relax and accept that Iâ€™m a woman and sometimes I overreact about stuff and don't even care about it. I don't want him to feel intimidated by me after I have an outburst like this, or to tiptoe around me and think that he has to be on his best behavior. A real man would laugh at the situation and put me back in my place by not taking it so seriously. He'd make me laugh and take away the seriousness of what I was saying. He'd make us feel happiness and love again, rather than getting dragged into my drama. I guess I made the right decision by breaking up with him.â€

Women rarely admit those private kind of thoughts they have about men and attraction, so most guys in the world go through life completely clueless about how they really should be behaving around a woman.

So many guys take the emotional outbursts of women too seriously and as a result, the woman feels disappointed that she's attracted yet another guy who doesn't know how to be a man and put her back in her place in a loving, but dominant way.

As a result, she just breaks up with him and hopes that the next guy she meets will understand what women really want from men, but will rarely, if ever, go around admitting.

Why don't women admit it?

Imagine if women admitted that they didn't want men to take them so seriously.

That would be a total disaster in the workplace and in general life because guys would take it the wrong way and start disrespecting women everywhere.

What women want is for a man to not take their emotional outbursts so seriously when in a relationship.

Not at work, not in general life, not anywhere else but in a romantic relationship.

Why?

Not taking her BS so seriously allows her to look up to you and respect you as the man, while she naturally slots into her place as being your feminine woman.

In today's world, many women are embarrassed to admit that they want to be a man's woman, so they will rarely, if ever, admit what you've just learned here.

You just have to know this and then act on it.

When you do, you will see a happy, shocked look in a woman's eye and she will lock on to you and not want to let you go.

She will realize that you are one of the rare men who actually has the ability to allow her to be a feminine, girly woman.

That's a dream scenario for most women, even though they are usually embarrassed to admit it when asked.

So, if you find yourself getting frustrated every time your ex gets emotional, it could be because you're making the mistake of wanting her to behave more like a man (e.g. react in a predictable, consistent way, be more logical and serious, be more in control of her emotions).

She doesn't want to be like you.

She wants to be able to be a woman and create drama, change her mind like the weather and be moody, without it negatively affecting you.

If you can allow her to have that experience, she will never want to leave you.

It's so damn rare for women to be able to find a man who gets it.

So, the next time your ex gets overly emotional with you (e.g. starts crying, throws a tantrum), the best way to react is to just laugh at her and the situation, rather than getting sucked into the fake drama she is creating.

Initially, she might act shocked that you're not reacting the way she's expecting you to (e.g. you're not getting upset or annoyed with her), but even if she doesn't show it, she will actually be feeling a tremendous amount of respect and sexual attraction for you for having the balls to guide the interaction back to laughter and love, rather than getting sucked into her fake drama.

From there you just need to continue making her laugh and smile so that you can build on her initial feelings for you.

The more respect and attraction for you she feels, the less she will be able to stop herself from reconnecting with her feelings of love for you.

2. Her Texts Are Usually Meant to Test Your Confidence

For example: A guy might text his ex woman and ask her to meet up with him for a coffee.

She may then respond with something like, â€œSorry, Iâ€™m really busy right now. I donâ€™t think I can meet up with you at the moment.â€

A confident man won't suddenly lose confidence and think that he no longer has a chance with her.

He will accept that she is busy and text something like, “Okay, no problem. Iâ€™ll text you next week to see if your schedule has cleared up a bit.â€

On the other hand, an insecure, self-doubting guy will start wondering, â€œIs she just trying to avoid me? Maybe she said sheâ€™s busy because she doesnâ€™t want to tell me that she doesnâ€™t want to see me again. Maybe sheâ€™s got another guy and isnâ€™t telling me! I've lost her! I have no chance now! It's overrrrr!â€

Then, when he eventually interacts with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) and she gets the sense that heâs insecure and worried about what she thinks of him (e.g. she picks up on the insecurity in his voice or notices it in his body language), she will feel turned off.

So, when youâre interacting with your ex, whether itâs via text, social media, e-mail, on the phone or in person, you need to remain confident no matter what she says or does to test your confidence.

You canât fall into the trap of reading into everything she says and wondering, âWhat does she mean by that?â or âWhat does she think of me right now?â

Instead, you need to remain confident no matter what she says or does and focus building her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Thatâs the real secret to getting an ex woman backâ|

When you have the confidence to calmly do whatever it takes to get her back regardless of what she says or does, youâre tapping into her instinctive nature that tells her, âHeâs a real man. Heâs in control. Heâs calm, confident and loving. Nothing makes him lose confidence or get emotional at me. Heâs a keeper. Heâs the kind of man that I can look up to, respect, love and feel attracted to.â

She then drops her guard and then getting her back becomes a matter of you taking the lead and making it happen.

Finallyâ|

3. Most Women Don't Want to Guide You Back Into a Relationship

If you break up with a woman and she really wants you back, she will happily take on the leadership role to guide you back into a relationship.

Yet, that doesn't apply to you, right?

You want her back and she isn't interested, right?

If so, you need to be the emotionally strong one who has the courage to take the necessary actions and guide her back into a relationship with you.

Right now, your ex might be making it very difficult for you to interact with her and she may even be saying things like, âLeave me alone. Just get it in to your head that itâs over between us. Nothing you can say or do is going to make me change my mind.â

This might make you feel like you have no hope with her anymore and you may want to give up. Donât give up.

Regardless of how difficult the situation might seem to you right now, the main thing to remember is that, generally speaking, a woman doesnât want to make it easy for you to get her back.

It's a test of your confidence, manhood and love for her.

She wants to see what you're really made of, now that you're under extreme pressure and are potentially going to lose her forever.

To test you, sheâs going to play hard to get, create drama and throw tantrums.

She will wait and see if you have the emotional strength and confidence to respark her feelings of respect and attraction and then guide her back into a relationship with you.

For example: A guy might think, â€œMy ex said thatâ€œs itâ€œs over between us. What will she think of me if I try to get her back? Will she think Iâ€œm a great guy for not giving up on our love, or will she think Iâ€œm being desperate?â€œ

He might then decide to do one of the following thingsâ€œ

- Act extra nice to her (e.g. agreeing to everything she says, not standing up for himself when she puts him down) in the hopes that she will see what a great guy he really is and give him another chance.
- Cut off all communication with her (e.g. via text, social media, e-mail, over the phone and in person) as a way of making her miss him and come running back.

Yet, neither one of these approaches usually works. Why?

In a case where a guy is being extra nice and sweet to his ex, it will usually turn her off and she will lose respect for him.

She will see that his niceness is coming from desperation, not from the fact that he is always like that. He's putting on an act.

Women hate it when men act like something they're not.

Women love it when men are authentic and simply remain confident, calm and in control around them.

Likewise, if a guy decides to ignore his ex woman (to avoid coming across as being needy or desperate), she will usually just forget all about him and move on.

Why?

When a woman doesnâ€œt have feelings for a guy, not hearing from him for a long time isnâ€œt going to matter to her all that much.

Instead, sheâ€œll usually just use that time to get over him and move on.

What you need to understand, is that to get an ex back, you need to be a man about it.

You canâ€œt sit around worrying about what your ex thinks of you and whether itâ€œs 100% okay with her for you to want her back.

As the man, you need to take the lead and not wait for her approval to start the ex back process.

Instead, you need to actively focus on rebuilding her feelings of respect and attraction for you every chance that you get from now on (e.g. via text, e-mail, social media message, on a phone call, in person).

Regardless of what she says and does (e.g. throws a tantrum, tells you to get lost, is being cold and distant towards you), you need to show her via the way you think, talk, behave and interact with her, that youâ€œre the kind of man that she can now look up to, respect, feel attracted to and love for life.

For example: When a woman has lost touch with her feelings of respect and attraction for a guy and then breaks up with him, she may say to him, â€œYouâ€œre just not what I need at this point of his life. I donâ€œt know if I have feelings for you anymore.â€œ

Naturally, when a woman says something like that, a guy might feel defeated and he may lose confidence in himself as a man.

He may say to himself, “Well, I guess that’s it then. She doesn’t have feelings for me anymore, so there’s nothing else I can do.”

Yet, that’s not the case at all.

In fact, caring too much about what your ex thinks or says, actually only confirms to her that you’re not the confident, emotionally bulletproof man she needs you to be.

So, don’t let what she says or does put you off getting her back.

It’s up to you as the man to be the more emotionally strong one and show her that you have complete confidence in yourself and your attractiveness to her.

Don’t tell her that; show her by how you talk, behave and react to her.

Even if she’s being cold, distant or telling you to leave her alone, you have to have the balls to continue reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction for you (e.g. by making her laugh, making her feel girly in your presence) whenever you interact with her.

[image: Let her experience the changes in you for herself]

The more you can remain confident (no matter how she behaves), the more she will feel naturally attracted to you, whether she likes it or not.

Attraction is an automatic, unconscious reaction that happens to humans and it cannot be turned off by thought.

Even if she tries to fight it, she cannot stop attraction from happening.

So, don’t waste another day filling your head with doubts about whether or not it’s possible for you to get her back.

Be the man and get her back now.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Will Proposing Marriage to Your Ex Make Her Get Back With You?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Proposing marriage to your ex to make her get back with you, will only work if you don't do it in a needy way.

For example: A guy who proposes marriage to get his ex back in a needy way will become desperate after getting dumped.

He might say to himself, â€œItâ€™s all my fault!! I took too long to ask her to marry me and she got tired of waiting. Iâ€™ve blown my only chance at happiness in life because she is what makes me happy. I need to get her back not matter what. Iâ€™m going to ask her to marry me right now. I will buy her the best ring I can. I will sell my car if I have to. I must show her how much she means to me. When I do, hopefully sheâ€™ll forgive me for not asking before and will get back together with me. It has to work! This is my only chance!â€

He may then go out and buy her a big, expensive ring and give it to her with all the romantic fanfare that typically goes with proposing marriage (e.g. champagne, flowers, getting down on one knee).

Heâ€™s hoping that when she sees the ring, she will throw herself in his arms and say something along the lines of, â€œYes!!! At last! This is what Iâ€™ve wanted all along. Of course I will marry you. I love you so much,â€ and then everything will be okay again.

Essentially, he is hoping that the ring will change everything because he doesn't realize that she's breaking up with him due to how he has turned her off in the relationship.

So, when a guy desperately tries to win his ex woman back with a ring, it doesn't work.

Why?

He needs to remain calm and reactivate her feelings for him, so she feels respect, sexual attraction and love again.

Then, and only then, will she be happy to accept his marriage proposal.

Watch this video for more info on how the ex back process worksâ€|

Unless a guy reactivates his exâ€™s feelings of respect and attraction for him before proposing marriage to her, she will usually say something like, â€œSorry. Itâ€™s too late. I just donâ€™t have feelings for you anymore.â€

Sheâ€™s not saying something like that because sheâ€™s being stubborn or cold-hearted.

Instead, sheâ€™s saying it because she can see that he hasn't changed the things that turned her off about him (e.g. being insecure, not knowing how to be man enough for her, giving her too much power in the relationship) and that he doesn't even know what to change.

Heâ€™s just hoping that a marriage proposal and a shiny ring will make her forget that there are deeper reasons why she broke up with him.

Then, they get back together and live happily ever after without any more problems.

Yet, a ring doesn't equal a happy relationship or guarantee that a woman will want to stick with a man for life.

What does?

Watch this video

Unless you have the correct relationship dynamic in place, your woman will get bored and want to cheat or leave you.

It's just how it works these days.

Back in the 1800s and early 1900s, it was shameful for a woman to leave a man, so she would stick with him, even if she wasn't happy.

Not anymore.

You've got to have a great relationship and it's not all about getting her a ring.

She will be in a relationship with you, not the ring.

A marriage only lasts if both the man and the woman feel mutual respect, attraction and love for each other.

If it's one sided, it's not going to last.

2 Reasons Why She'll Say, "No" if You Propose to Her in a Needy Way

When a man who rushes into proposing marriage as a solution to getting his ex woman back, he usually makes the following two mistakes

1. He doesn't understand her secret reasons why she lost respect and attraction for him

A woman won't always tell a guy her secret reasons for breaking up with him and may only say something like, I need some space or I just don't feel the same way about you anymore.

So, right now, you may not know your ex's real reasons for falling out of love and breaking up with you.

However, if you want to get her back and possibly even consider spending the rest of your life with her, you've got to understand her real, most secret reasons for losing respect and attraction for you (e.g. you were too soft and wimpy with her, you weren't confident around other people).

If you don't, you may offer to fix the wrong things about yourself, which will make her think, How annoying. He just doesn't get me. He thinks he can promise me anything and I'll magically forget about the real reasons I'm turned off by him.

Additionally, even if your ex decides to give you another chance, there's nothing stopping you from repeating your past mistakes (and causing her to break up with you again), because you just don't know what she really wants.

and she's not going to tell you.

Women hate to admit their most private, secret reasons for being turned off.

You have to discover that without asking her because if she's like most women, she's just not going to tell you.

Here are some of the main reasons why a woman will lose respect, attraction and fall out of love with a guy:

- He became too insecure and clingy in the relationship (e.g. he constantly needed her to reassure him of her love, he stopped having interests or friendships outside of his relationship with her, he tried to spend every spare minute with her, he became over-protective and even jealous if she wanted to go anywhere without him).
- He stopped making her feel feminine and girly in the relationship with him and made her feel more like his friend, big sister or one of the guys.
- He took her for granted (e.g. he stopped making her feel loved and appreciated, broke his promises to her, treated her disrespectfully in private or in front of other people, didn't help her around the house, became annoying just to get a reaction out of her and make her feel like crap).
- He allowed her to wear the pants in the relationship and dominate him with her confident personality.
- He lacked purpose and direction in his life and was either stuck in a dead-end job, or was just drifting from job to job without any clear plan for the future.

By fully understanding what caused your ex's feelings for you to change, you can then make some improvements to the way you think, talk and behave and show her that you've learned from your mistakes and become a better man since the break up.

When she sees the changes in you and experience renewed feelings of respect, attraction and love for you, she will begin to believe in a future with you.

Saying yes to a proposal will seem like it's going to be good for her too, rather than just being good for you.

So, make sure that you truly understand what turned her off and begin to really change those things about yourself.

The second mistake guys make is

2. He doesn't fix or improve the things that were turning her off before proposing

There's no point in figuring out the real reasons why your ex lost respect, attraction and love for you, if you're not going to use that information to become a better man.

Sometimes a guy might say to himself, "I just need to get her back and then I'll fix whatever she wants me to fix. If we get married everything will be okay. I don't have any time to waste."

It's true about not having a lot of time to waste, but you don't need to develop yourself for months or years.

All you need in 7 days.

In a week, you will be able to transform yourself, overcome insecurities and learn how to give her the kind of attraction experience she really wants.

If you give her too much space, you may end up losing her to another guy, so you need to act fast.

Watch this video for more info

You've got to use the time apart to truly make some changes.

Don't expect her to just want you back because you really want her back.

So many guys make that mistake and attempt to get their woman back because they need her, but they don't even know how to offer her the attraction experience she really wants.

[image: Just marry me and everything will get better. I promise!]

A guy like that might say to his woman, "Look, we can fix this. As long as weâre together, we can fix anything. Letâs get married. You and I are meant to be together. Please honey, I promise you that when we are married it will be different."

He might be 100% sincere, but it doesn't matter to her because she knows that he still doesn't either know what has been secretly turning her off, or he has no clue how to change it.

So, rather than make her think, "Okay cool! Heâs promising to change when weâre married, so I have nothing to worry about. Everything is going to be fine now!" she will think something like, "Does he really think Iâm going to get married to him in the hope that things will be different then Iâd be a fool to get married only to get stuck with a guy that I canât respect, feel attracted to or love. No thank you. I donât want to be another divorce statistic. He doesn't understand me. There's no way I'm getting dragged into an unhappy marriage."

She will then say, "No" and ask him to leave her alone, give her space or even completely get out of her life so she can heal and get over the break up.

That's not how you want your ex reacting, right?

If you want to make your ex get back with you, simply focus on fixing and improving the things that caused her to break up with you first.

Then, when you next interact with her (e.g. on a phone call and especially in person), you can show her that you really have changed in the ways that are important to her.

For example: If a woman dumped a guy because he was insecure and emotionally sensitive, he now needs to show her that heâs become more confident and emotionally stronger since the break up.

Another example is if a guy got broken up with because his woman felt emotionally more dominant than him, to get her back he needs to show her that heâs now more emotionally masculine, thereby allowing her to be more feminine in response.

When your ex can see for herself that youâve moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you, she will naturally begin to feel some respect for you again for making the effort to become a better man.

When she feels respect, she can then begin to feel sexually attracted to you again and when that happens, she becomes more open to the idea of reconnecting with her feelings of love for you.

Then, if you ask her to marry you, she will be able to say, "Yes" because she will see that youâre a different man now.

On the other hand if you ask her to marry you without fixing or improving the things that were turning her off, she will likely just keep saying, "No" because she knows that it will be more of the same or it will simply get worse.

So, what should you do instead?

The Non-Needy Way to Propose Marriage to Your Ex

The best way to get an ex back is to remain calm after the break up.

Rather than panic and make a bunch of desperate mistakes that most guys make (e.g. begging and pleading with her to give him another chance, promising her that heâll change, proposing marriage to her in the hopes that this will make her change her mind), just relax and focus on re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you first.

Use every interaction you have with your ex, especially on the phone and face-to-face to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

One of the best ways to do that is by making her laugh and smile when sheâs with you.

For example: Imagine youâre having a cup of coffee with your ex and she says something like, âI donât know if I can give you another chance. I need you to change.â

A common reaction that a lot of guys might have, is to get upset and start saying things like, âI will change. I promise you. Iâll do whatever you want me to do. Please, just give me a chance.â

Yet, thatâs unlikely going to make her feel respect and attraction for him in that moment.

So, if she says something along the lines of, âI donât know if I can give you another chance. I donât believe you can change,â you can simply remain calm and confidently turn it into something to laugh about.

If you do, she will struggle to hold on to her negative feelings for you, her guard will come down and it will actually start to feel like a good idea to maybe get back with you.

[image: Make her laugh at the meet up]

An example of how you might respond is, âNo problem. I can change, but Iâm telling right now, even though I love you, Iâm not going to do anything like dye my hair or get new shoes. Iâll get a crazy new hairstyle, but Iâm not getting new shoesâ and then have a laugh with her about that.

Obviously, itâs not your shoes or hair color that she wants you to change and because you will be saying it in a joking manner with a smile, she will get it that you are joking.

She will likely laugh (or smile if sheâs playing hard to get) and she may begin to wonder about your ability to remain so confident and relaxed at a time when sheâs trying to make you doubt yourself.

Thatâs sexy to a woman.

Women love guys who can remain confident under pressure and never, not even for a second, doubt themselves and their attractiveness to a woman.

Women love that.

So, when you can show her that you have the balls to joke around with her in that way, it demonstrates that you donât doubt yourself.

You know that she has felt attracted to you in the past and can feel attracted to you again and youâre simply making it happen by being confident, charming and funny.

From there you need to continue building on that initial spark of respect and attraction for you, until sheâs willing to get back together again.

[image: Get her back first before proposing]

Once you and her are back together again, itâs perfectly okay to talk about your plans to propose to her.

For example: You might say to her, âIâm glad weâre working things out between us. I want you to know that I really love you and if our relationship continues to get better within the next 2 weeks, Iâm going to ask you to marry me. Iâm not asking you to marry me right now, because that would be too soon. We both need to be sure that weâve fixed all our issues first. Then when we get married, it will be because we both know that our relationship will be for life.â

Thatâs how to do it.

Now, are you ready to re-attract her and get her back?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Stop Your Ex From Canceling Her Dates With You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex keeps canceling her dates with you, here is what you need to do to make her stop...

1. Don't Refer to it as a Date

If your ex has broken up with you, she won't like the idea of going on a date.

Why?

Mainly because the word date implies a new, romantic courtship between a man and a woman, where they go out with each other (e.g. for dinner, to the movies, on a picnic), with the intention of hooking up sexually and then falling in love.

So, when you say something like, Let's get together for a date, she may wonder, Why is he calling it a date? I don't even know for sure if I want to get back together again and he's already talking about dating. Huh? We've just broken up and I just don't have feelings for him right now. I'm not ready to start dating him again. Doesn't he understand that? No way am I going on a date.

To stop your ex from cancelling dates, you need to stop thinking about catch ups as dates and stop calling them dates.

Instead, just think about it and refer to it as catching up as friends to say hello, or meeting up to have a coffee instead.

For example: A good way to ask your ex to meet up with you in a way that won't scare her off, is by saying something along the lines of, Hey Tania, how about we get together for a catch up to say hello in person as friends sometime this week. I accept that we're broken up now and I'm not asking for us to get back together at all. I'm just asking to catch up and have a quick cup of coffee between friends. Us catching up as friends isn't about getting back together, it's just being able to be two mature adults who can talk to each other one last time after a break up and be civil to each other. I promise that if we get together and you decide that you never want to talk to me again, I will leave you alone. So, what do you say? Monday and Tuesday are busy for me, but Thursday and Sunday are good. Which of those days would be better for you?

When you say something like that rather than asking her to meet up with you for a date, it takes the pressure off her and she can relax because she's not feeling like you're trying to push her into something she's not ready for yet.

Then, when you meet up with her for coffee, you've simply got to make sure that you're saying and doing the types of things that will spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, rather than making the type of mistakes that will turn her off (e.g. being too nervous and insecure around her, letting her dominate you and the situation, being too nice to her so that she will want to see you again).

When you respark her feelings for you at the meet up, it suddenly makes her see you in a different light.

She stops looking for ways to avoid you (i.e. canceling meet ups with you) and begins looking forward to meeting up with you again and again.

As long as you are re-attracting her properly, the meet ups will actually be dates, but you just won't be talking about it in that way.

There will be a silent understanding between you and her that the relationship is back on and it feels better than ever.

Before you know it, you'll be back together and going on dates again as a couple.

Another way to stop your ex cancelling dates is to

2. Make Her Laugh and Smile On the Phone Before Suggesting a Catch Up

[image: Make her laugh and smile on the phone before suggesting a catch up]

On a phone call, you can spark your ex's feelings of respect and attraction for you by making her laugh and smile and letting her experience the new and improved you.

The more you make her smile, laugh and feel happy to be talking to you again, the more she will be thinking, "What's going on here? My ex is so different from the way he used to be. I was expecting him to be nervous and insecure on the phone, but instead he's so calm, relaxed and confident. He's making me laugh and smile and it really feels good talking to him again. Maybe seeing him in person won't be that bad after all. It could be fun. I'm interested."

So, make sure that when you call your ex on the phone, you don't get caught up in a serious conversation with her and end up talking about all the mistakes she feels you made in the relationship.

If you allow the conversation to get serious like that, it will usually just bring up all her negative feelings for you and then, if you ask her to meet up with you she will be feeling so annoyed that she will say, "No way! I don't want to see you again. It's over. You need to accept it."

On the other hand, if you make a woman smile and laugh, she can't stay mad at you for long, even if she initially tries to act cold or distant towards you.

The more light-hearted, happy and relaxed the interaction between you and her is, the less she will be able to hold on to her negative feelings about you.

She will drop her guard and open herself up to the idea of meeting up with you in person.

3. Don't Ask Her Via Text to Meet Up With You

After helping 100s of guys to successfully get women back after a break up, I've found that pretty much every guy who can't get a meet up with his ex is asking her via text.

Most guys are worried that their ex won't want to talk to them on the phone, so they stick to text messages.

Yet, it's just too easy for a woman to say no to a date via text. Why?

Look at it this way

When a woman receives a text from her ex, all she's seeing is a bunch of words (and possibly emojis and emojis) on a screen.

In the back of her mind, she's usually going to keep thinking about all the negative things she remembers from the relationship and how badly he messed up.

[image: She will remember what you were like when she broke up with you. This is why you shouldn't ask for a date via text. Get her on a phone call, so she can experience the new and improved you]

So, when he asks her for a date via text, she will think something like, "Really? Does he honestly think I'm going to go out with him after everything he put me through? Well that's not going to happen."

In some instances, a woman might respond by saying something like, "Yeah, sure. Let's go on a date," (e.g. because she doesn't want to get into a big text discussion with him about why she doesn't want to meet up).

Yet, she already knows that she's just going to cancel on him at the last minute.

So, don't waste time trying to get your ex to meet up with you via text.

It rarely, if ever, works with ex back situations because the woman can easily mess you around.

Instead, simply get her on a phone call so she can experience the new you and so you can make her laugh and smile.

If she is laughing and smiling with you on the phone and then you ask her to meet up with you in a confident, easy-going manner, she is much more likely to say yes, because she's feeling good while talking to you.

She will assume that a catch up with you won't feel awkward or tense and may actually be quite fun, so she is much more likely to attend.

Mistakes to Avoid

It's only natural that a guy might feel frustrated and even annoyed, when he's desperately trying to meet up with his ex to try and get her back and she keeps canceling on him.

He may then make some of the following mistakes, which will turn her off even more!

1. Trying to make her feel guilty for not meeting up

Out of frustration a guy might resort to playing the guilt card on his ex.

For example: He might say to her, "Why are you doing this to me? Why won't you meet up with me? Why do you keep canceling your dates with me? I put in the effort to make plans for us (e.g. get movie tickets, book a table at a restaurant) and then you don't show up and I'm left with the bill or the embarrassment of having to cancel reservations at the last minute. Does messing me around like that make you feel good?"

Secretly, he's hoping that if he makes her feel guilty enough for standing him up, she will actually show up the next time he asks her out.

Yet, trying to make a woman feel guilty for not wanting to meet up with you rarely makes her change her mind.

Women hate it when men put too much pressure on them to be consistent and follow through as promised, especially when dealing with a formerly needy, jealous or controlling ex.

So, rather than trying to guilt your ex into meeting up with you (which even if it works doesn't guarantee that she will even consider getting back together again), just focus on attracting her into wanting to see you again.

Watch this!

The more attraction she feels for you (i.e. because you've successfully sparked her feelings for you over the phone by making her laugh and smile), the more willing and even happy she will be to meet up with you.

Another classic mistake that guys make when trying to get an ex woman back is

2. Trying to make her feel pity for him because he's lost without her

For example: He might say to her, "Please baby, stop torturing me. Can't you see I'm hurting here? Please, let's just go on one date together. I promise I will make it worth your while. I know we can make things right between us. I just can't cope without you. I can't sleep or eat properly without you. I'm a mess. All I'm asking you for is one date. Have a heart. Please. I'm dying here. Just give me a chance."

He's hoping that if she sees how much he's suffering without her she will feel sorry for him and then agree to go on a date with him.

Yet, just like in the previous mistake, making a woman feel pity for the emotional pain you're experiencing, usually only turns her off even more.

Why?

A woman doesn't like to feel like she's being manipulated for feeling the way she's currently feeling (i.e. angry, unhappy, turned off), simply because her ex can't cope without her.

Watch this!

Additionally, when a woman has disconnected from her feelings for an ex, she stops caring about how he feels or what he wants.

When he tries to make her feel pity for him, she will think something like, "Well, you didn't worry about how much you were hurting me when we were together, so why should I care about how you feel now? It serves you right. I hope you suffer. Leave me alone!"

So, forget about making her feel sorry for you and focus instead on doing what really works, which is re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Another classic mistake guys make is

3. Coming across as though he's got nothing else to focus on in life except getting a meet up with her

When a guy is constantly texting, e-mailing, messaging and calling his ex and asking her to meet up with him, it's going to make her feel as though he doesn't have much else going on in his life other than her.

Women hate that.

A woman doesn't want to be a man's main reason for living or his main sense of identity or purpose in life.

So, rather than have her think, â€œAwwâ€! *My ex must really still love me. Heâ€™s putting everything into seeing me. I feel so flattered. Seeing as though he has nothing else going on in his life besides me, I should definitely go on a date with him,*â€ she will think something like, â€œWhy is he bothering me all the time with texts, e-mails and calls? Doesnâ€™t he have anything else to do in his life besides meeting up with me? Does he really think that a date with me will solve all our problems and then we can get back together and live happily ever after? It doesnâ€™t work like that. His needy, desperate behavior is actually making me feel good about my decision to break up with him now. I want a man who doesnâ€™t need me to be his purpose in life. Being his purpose in lie is way too much responsibility for a womanâ€! *doesn't he know that? Doesn't he know that a woman wants a man who has a strong purpose other than her? Doesn't he know that women want to follow along with a man, rather than lead him? I want to be able to depend on him, not have to take care of him like a little child because he canâ€™t cope without me. He just doesn't get it. I have to remain broken up with him.*â€

Even though a woman likes the idea of being with a man who loves her, takes care of her and is devoted to her, she doesnâ€™t want to feel like sheâ€™s the only thing heâ€™s got going on in his life.

If your ex gets a sense that all youâ€™re doing day in and day out is thinking about her and trying to get her to meet up with you, she will feel turned off by what she perceives as your emotional weakness and lack of purpose and direction as a man.

So, even though itâ€™s important that you actively focus on making your ex feel respect and attraction for you by calling her on the phone and getting her to meet up with you, just make sure that you also spend time getting on with your life (e.g. following through on your big goals in life, going out with friends to have fun, pursuing your fun interests).

Then, whenever you interact with your ex (e.g. on a phone call) and she notices that you are emotionally strong, happy and getting on with your life without her, she begins to see you in a more positive way.

She likely stops dreading the idea of meeting up with you (e.g. because sheâ€™s afraid youâ€™ll become all emotional on her and beg her to take you back) and she opens herself up to the idea of seeing you again in person to see if youâ€™ve really have changed.

Another mistake that guys make isâ€!

4. Making the meet up sound too serious and like he's going to get all deep and meaningful with her

Sometimes, when a guy is trying to get his ex to meet up with him, he comes across as being so serious about it that she fears he will try to push her into something she doesnâ€™t feel ready for.

She might think to herself, â€œIt sounds like my ex is going to ask me to start again and give the relationship another chance. Iâ€™m not ready for that yet and I donâ€™t know if I ever will be. Heâ€™s being too forceful about it by focusing on having a relationship again, rather than just talking to each other in person. If he just relaxes a bit and allows me to deal with some of the negative emotions Iâ€™m feeling, I might feel like I'm ready to see him again. Yet, right now I donâ€™t feel like meeting up because I know he's going to pressure me into having a relationship.

Lâ□□m just going to cancel on him because I donâ□□t want to deal with this right now.â□□

So, donâ□□t get serious on her (e.g. by calling a meet up a date, or making it seem like a date without even calling it that) and just focus instead on making her feel so happy and excited to be talking to you over the phone that meeting up feels like the logical next step to her.

Finally, another mistake that guys make isâ□□|

5. Not telling her and making it clear that the meet up isn't about getting back together

[image: Make it clear that the catch up is not about getting back together]

If you want to stop your ex from canceling her dates with you, one of the best ways to do that is by making it clear to her that itâ□□s just a meet up and nothing more.

For example: You might say to her, â□□How about we get together for a cup of coffee and a chat? No strings attached of course. I donâ□□t expect you to get back together again with me just because youâ□□re agreeing to have coffee with me. Itâ□□s just a meet up between friends. We can do that. We can be friends and see each other from time to time. It doesnâ□□t have to mean anything other than a simple hello. So, letâ□□s catch up for 10 minutes and have a cup of coffee this week as friends. It's not about getting back together. We're just going to say hello. If you don't ever want to talk to me again after that, just tell me and I will accept it and never contact you again. You have my word on that.â□□

When you state it like that, it takes the pressure off the situation.

She then feels more relaxed about meeting up with you because thereâ□□s no fear in her that youâ□□re suddenly going to put her in the uncomfortable position of begging her to get back together with you again.

Then at the meet up, focus on rebuilding her feelings of respect and attraction for you, by showing her that youâ□□re at a different level as a man now than you were when she broke up with you.

When she sees that youâ□□ve changed and starts to feel good around you, her guard naturally comes down.

She becomes more open to meeting up with you again and again because she knows that it's fun and that it makes her feel good.

Thatâ□□s how you stop your ex from canceling her dates with you and get her back.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Using Loving Dominance to Get Your Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Loving dominance means that you assertively take the lead in a loving way, to get her back.

This is what women actually respect and want in a man.

It's not about pestering her, being demanding or bombarding her with phone calls or texts to get her to meet up with you and give the relationship another chance.

Instead, you just relax and confidently, calmly and lovingly guide her back into a relationship.

For example: Imagine that you're talking to your ex on the phone with the intention of asking her to meet up with you for a quick cup of coffee.

After a bit of chit chat, you can then say something like, "Hey Laura, it's been good talking to you again" and then pause to let her say something like, "Yeah, you too."

You can then say, "Well, seeing that everything's cool between us and we're not enemy ex's who absolutely hate each other, how about we meet up for a coffee sometime this week to catch up and say hi?"

If she says, "Yes," just arrange a time to meet up and re-attract her at the meet up.

However, if she says something like, "No, I'm not ready to meet up with you in person," or "No, I don't think seeing each other again is a good idea" don't panic.

Don't let her initial, "No" put you off trying to meet up with her.

You've got to be strong and lovingly guide her back into a relationship, rather than hoping that she makes it easy for you or guides you back into a relationship.

As a man, you've got to be the more dominant, emotionally courageous one and guide you and your woman into deeper feelings of love, respect and attraction for you.

So, rather than panicking and thinking that you've blown your chance to meet up with her, just make her laugh (because you're a loving guy) and then when her guard is down, ask her to meet up with you again.

[image: Making your ex feel attracted over the phone]

For example: You might laugh (important) and say to her in a joking way, "No! No! You said that all wrong. You were supposed to say, 'Yes please! I'd love to meet up with you for a cup of coffee' or, 'Sure my handsome ex! I would be happy to meet up with you just as friends. I know that we are both mature enough to do that.' That's what you were supposed to say!" not give me some lame excuse. Okay, let's try that again: "So, how about we get together for a quick cup of coffee?"

She will likely laugh and chances are, she will start to feel curious about the changes in you (e.g. that you're able to be lovingly dominant and joke with her like that, even though she's being cold towards you) and she will begin to feel some respect and attraction for you again.

However, if she still says no to meeting up with you, don't worry about it.

Laugh and say, "Okay, I'll give you some space and then call you again in a few days or a week. Hopefully then, we can agree to catch up for a coffee as friends."

If she still says, "No" to that, just say, "Hey, look I understand that we're broken up now, but it's just a coffee. If you are that concerned about it, then this is what I'll do for you: If you will meet up with me for this coffee, I promise to never contact you ever again after that if that's what you want. You have my word on that. So, what you do say? Let's catch up for a quick coffee to say hi sometime this week."

Essentially, you don't take no for an answer, but you're still being a loving, good man.

You're not becoming needy and desperate about it (e.g. begging and pleading with her and saying things like, "Please meet up with me just this once!!" or "I really need to see you. Please just say yes to meeting for coffee. I can't live without you"), or getting angry and aggressive with her (e.g. saying something like, "Why are you being such a bitch? I'm trying to be nice here and you're just being a hard case. Why are you playing hard to get? It's just a damn coffee. Meet up with me!!").

Instead, you are confident, relaxed and masculine and are simply being the more emotionally courageous one of the two of you who has the strength to get the relationship back together in a loving way.

That's what using loving dominance is all about and women love it when a man has the ability to do it all the time.

Women just want to relax and be lead into deeper feelings for you, based on how emotionally strong, relaxed and confident you are around her.

That's a dream scenario for a woman and when she meets a man like that, she never wants to let go. So, the more you take the lead and guide her through the ex back process, the less she will be able to keep pushing you away.

While guiding her back into a relationship, be sure to avoid the following classic mistakes that many guys make!

1. Doing the opposite of being lovingly dominant and turning into an emotional wimp

If a woman says to a guy, "I'm not sure if I want to meet up with you for coffee. I don't know how I feel about you anymore," he might decide that the only way to convince her that they are meant to be together is by repeatedly expressing his love and need for her, to the point where he comes across as being desperate.

Watch this video for more info!

He might say to her, "I know that you're not sure if you want to see me again, but that's because you don't understand how much I love you. When you realize that my love for you is more powerful than anything you can ever experience with another guy, you will change your mind. All I ask is for you to meet up with me so that I can show you that things really can be different between us this time. If you loved me even just a little bit, you will at least grant me this one thing. Please baby, I need you. You mean everything to me. Don't push me away anymore. All I ask for is one chance to make things right between us. Can't you see that there's nothing that can make me stop loving you? Please meet up with me. Please"

Yet, here's the thing!

If a woman has pushed her feelings of love, respect and attraction into the background (and her ex hasn't done anything to respark those feelings other than plead with her) she's not going to care that he's still in love with her.

Instead, she'll be thinking something like, "Why is he acting like this? Doesn't he realize that him being needy and desperate only turns me off more? Even if I was willing to change my mind about meeting up with him, I'm now convinced that I made the right decision by breaking up with him. I need a man I can look up to and respect, not an emotional wimp who can't even take no to meeting up for a cup of coffee without falling apart. He's just not a man yet. I don't have time to waste hoping that he'll grow up one day and become one, so I'm moving on."

So, if you beg and plead and try to get your ex back by telling her how much you love and need her, she will perceive you as not being man enough for her and will keep rejecting you.

On the other hand, when you use loving dominance (i.e. being in control of your emotions, while confidently and lovingly guiding her back into a relationship), she will begin to see you with different eyes.

The idea of seeing you again in person will feel good to her.

She will want to be around you because you're now offering a dream scenario for a woman that is so rare.

Most guys out there simply don't know how to continually be a loving, dominant man and women know it.

So, when your ex senses that you've suddenly developed that ability, she will naturally feel drawn to you, even if she is trying to talk herself out of it.

Another classic mistake that guys make is

2. Letting her dominate him and the situation

[image: Don't let her dominate you and block the ex back process]

If a guy can't maintain his confidence, it's very easy for a woman to get the upper hand and dominate him and the situation.

For example: One of the ways a woman might do that to her ex is by constantly bringing up past mistakes and trying to make him feel bad about it.

She might say things like, "You really stuffed up. Do you honestly think I'm just going to forget about everything you put me through and forgive you just because you said that you're sorry? Well that's not how it works. You were such a jerk to me. I can't believe you want me to just forget about all of that, rush over and meet you for coffee so we can be best friends forever."

If he keeps saying things like, "I'm so sorry. How many times must I apologize before you can forgive me?" she will lose even more respect for him for not standing up for himself.

When a woman dominates a guy in this way, she can't look up to him and respect him.

If she can't respect him, she also can't feel real sexual attraction for him and without these two things it becomes difficult (if not impossible) to have a relationship.

So, to get your ex back, it is important that you remain emotionally dominant when interacting with her to regain and then maintain her respect.

If your ex keeps bringing up all your past mistakes and talks down to you like you're a child, you need to use loving dominance to show her that you're more of an emotionally mature man than sheâ€™s giving you credit for.

For example: You might say to her in a gentle, loving way, â€œYes, youâ€™re right. I did stuff up. However, thatâ€™s in the past. Iâ€™ve apologized sincerely to you, so thereâ€™s no need to keep bringing it up. Iâ€™m not a little boy that needs to be put in his place. Sure I made a mistake or two, but thatâ€™s over now. Iâ€™m not that guy anymore and I would appreciate it if you wouldnâ€™t keep bringing it up all the time.â€

You can also laugh (important) and say in a joking, easy-going way, “Okay, enough! That’s probably the 50th time you’ve said that to me. How many more times do you want to say it? Are you aiming for 100? Maybe when you reach 100, we need to get you a medal or a trophy and congratulate you for being a broken record” and then laugh with her about that.

Then, you might say something like, “Okay, how about we try this just for a minute or two. Pretend that weâ€™ve only just met and we weren’t together before. You can get to know the new me, rather than keep thinking about the old me and feeling angry or annoyed at him. You might actually be surprised that the new me isn’t like the old me.”

By saying something like that to her, youâ€™re establishing your role as a loving, dominant man, which will shock her and surprise her in a good way.

She wonâ€™t be able to stop herself from feeling feminine and girly in contrast to your masculine approach to the interaction.

She will then drop her guard and open herself up to the idea of meeting up with you in person.

Another mistake to avoid isâ€

3. Referring to her as being stubborn

When a woman refuses to meet up with her ex, he might get a bit annoyed with her, or in some extreme cases, even get angry at her.

He might say to himself, â€œWhatâ€™s wrong with her? Why is she being so stubborn? All I want to do is to see her again. She doesnâ€™t have to be such a bitch about it. After all we’ve been through, she could at least do this for me. She’s like a completely different person now. She’s so damn stubborn now.â€

However, she’s not actually being stubborn.

Sheâ€™s only being that way because he lacks the balls to lovingly dominate her and isn’t strong enough to pass her tests of his confidence.

The fact is, a woman wants to know that if sheâ€™s going to take the risk of getting back together again with her ex, heâ€™s not going to be the same guy, making the same mistakes that she broke up with him for.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was insecure and self-doubting in the relationship with her, she now wants to see that heâ€™s confident and self-assured now matter how cold, distant or difficult she is being with him.

Another example is if a guy got broken up with for being too nice and being a pushover who she walked all over, controlled and belittled.

For the woman to open herself up to him again, she needs to see that he is now more ballsy and can stand up for himself in a loving, but dominant way.

Whatever the case is for you, calling your ex stubborn isn't going to make her come running back.

Instead, she will likely just act even more stubborn to see if you will crack under the pressure of her rejection.

That's what women do.

They want to see how confident you really are because they have an instinctive need to be with a man who makes them feel safe, due to his ability to handle challenging situations and people.

So, if you want to get her back, don't waste time worrying about her every reaction, reading into her texts or wondering what she meant when she said this or that.

Just focus on using every interaction you have with her (e.g. via text, on social media, over the phone, in person) to renew her feelings of respect and attraction for you by being a loving, dominant man.

Remember: Being a loving, dominant man in a relationship isn't about being in control of everything all the time and bossing your woman around in a demanding way.

Instead, you simply need to show her that you now have the ability to be lovingly dominant and emotionally masculine in a way that makes her feel feminine.

When she sees that, she can then relax and trust that you really are the man now.

When that happens, she will start to respect you, become open to feeling attracted to you again and naturally begin to reconnect with her old feelings of love for you.

So, to get your ex woman back, it's essential that you confidently take charge and lead the way, thereby allowing her to relax into being an emotional, feminine woman around you.

That's what women want.

Many women act like they want to be in charge or in control, but secretly, they just want a man who has the balls to be a loving, dominant man no matter what she says or does.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Break Up Your Ex's Rebound Relationship

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to break up your ex's rebound relationship, here's what you need to do!

1. Understand Her Attraction For Him and Then Beat Him at His Own Game

[image: Did I make the right decision by breaking up with him?]

When a woman breaks up with a guy, it's usually because certain things about him have been turning her off, to the point where she just doesn't want to deal with it any longer.

For example: He's too insecure, she feels more emotionally dominant than him, he doesn't know how to make her feel like a real woman or he's too emotionally sensitive.

In most cases, her rebound guy will be the opposite of her ex in those areas, which will naturally make him more appealing to her.

However, that doesn't mean that her new guy is a better man.

It simply means he's not making the same relationship mistakes that her ex was making.

So, if you want to break up your ex's rebound relationship, you have to show her (via the way you talk, think, behave, interact with her and react to what she says and does), that not only have you improved on the things that caused her to break up with you in the first place, but you also have qualities that are lacking in her new guy.

For example: A woman broke up with a guy because he was too insecure in the relationship with her and that caused him to become clingy, over-protective and jealous.

Over time, she got fed up with constantly needing to reassure him of her love and commitment to him and having to deal with his emotional outbursts, so she just broke up with him.

Now, all her new man has to do is be more confident around her and she will automatically see him as a better option than her ex.

However, although the new guy might be more confident, he might also be making other things that turn her off (e.g. he's lazy, he's going nowhere in his life, he doesn't really love her, he spends too much time playing video games).

Initially, a woman might overlook this because she will be telling herself, At least he's not as needy as my ex. Sure he's not doing anything amazing with his life, but that can change. I will inspire him to be a better man.

Yet, if he doesn't change, she will start to doubt her feelings for him and wonder whether she should be single again or give her ex another chance.

For her ex to get her back, he needs to show her that he's now a confident, emotionally strong man around her (e.g. if she tries to make him jealous, he just stays calm and relaxed and laughs it off).

He should also let her see that he is reaching for his true potential as a man by making progress towards achieving his purpose.

He's not just some lazy, fearful guy who hides behind video games to avoid actually doing something with his life.

He's making something happen, unlike her rebound guy who isn't really striving to achieve anything and doesn't truly love her.

Over time, she will begin comparing her rebound with her ex and may start thinking, â€œMy ex is really different now. No matter how much I push him and try to make him feel insecure or jealous, he doesn't get upset like he used to. He's so much more confident than he used to be. If he had been like this when we were together I would never have broken up with him in the first place. He's actually a really great option for me in so many ways. Now, he's also so hard working and is clearly motivated and determined to succeed at something in life. Of course, my new guy was definitely more confident than my ex used to be, but he's so lazy. He's not interested in doing better in his life. I'm confused. Everything I thought I wanted in my new guy is actually what my ex now has and even more. I don't know what to do. I don't know what this new guy means to me anymore. Maybe I did mess up by leaving my ex. Maybe my ex is the one for me. I don't want him to be the one that got away. I have to see him!â€

That is what you have to do your ex's mind while she's in a rebound.

You have to beat your ex's guy at his own game by letting her see that you offer a more complete attraction experience compared to him.

In other words, you need to discover the real reasons why your ex broke up with you (e.g. you weren't man enough, you took her for granted, you became too emotionally dependent on her for your sense of identity in this world, rather than having a life purpose that you were following through on in addition to being with her) and then make some adjustments to the way you talk, think, behave and interact with her and make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new, improved you.

You need to show her that not only have you changed the things that were turning her off, but that you've become a better, all round man now.

When you do that, she won't be able to stop herself from wondering if she made the right choice.

The more respect and attraction she feels for you, the more that the hidden negatives and flaws of her new guy will become visible to her.

While you're trying to beat him at his own game, make sure that you don't make any of the following mistakes!

- Asking her what she sees in him.

[image: What do you see in this new guy? I am clearly better than him]

Sometimes a guy might try to his ex woman to see her new guy's flaws.

For example: He might say, â€œWhat do you see in your new boyfriend? Can't you see that he's just using you?â€

Although his intentions might be good, a woman is unlikely to see it that way.

Instead, she will just assume that he's secretly jealous and feeling inferior compared to her new guy and she will lose more respect for him as a result.

When she thinks in that way, she will feel drawn to her new man even more and the idea of getting back with her ex will start to feel like it would be a mistake.

So, don't put yourself in that situation.

Just relax and know that you are a better man than him and she will realize that soon enough.

Another mistake to avoid when attempting to beat the new guy at his own game isâ€

- Continuing to turn her off in the ways you always used to.

Albert Einstein was reportedly quoted as saying, â€Insanity is doing the same thing over and over again and expecting different results.â€

So, if you keep saying and doing the types of things that were turning your ex off in the past (e.g. being emotionally insecure and sensitive, not being emotionally masculine) and hope that she will suddenly dump her new guy and come running back to you, it's not going to happen.

If you want to break your ex's rebound relationship, you need to make sure that you understand and change the things that caused her to break up with you.

If you're not sure what those things are, ask yourself

- Was I an emotionally strong and confident man with her, or was I a bit insecure, needy and self-doubting?
- Did I make her feel feminine and girly in my presence, or did she feel more like my friend or big sister?
- Did I take the lead in the relationship, or did I just sit back and allow her to call the shots?
- Did I have a clear purpose and direction in life, or was I just sitting around passing the time because I was too afraid or too lazy to reach for my true potential as a man?
- Was I the kind of man that my woman could look up to, respect and feel attracted to, or did she feel a bit ashamed to be associated with me?

Once you fully understand where you went wrong, you can then make the necessary adjustments to your thinking and behavior that will actually have a positive impact on her.

Then, when you interact with your ex (e.g. on a phone call, or in person), you will correctly respark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, by letting her experience the new you.

- Not being able to attract her in the ways that the new guy can.

Your ex is with her new man for a reason (i.e. he's giving her the attraction experience she always wanted, but never got from you).

So, to get her back, you need to:

1. Continue saying and doing the things about you that she always loved and felt most attracted to about you (e.g. you were caring and loving, you were ambitious and determined to succeed).
2. Attract her in the ways that you couldn't before, but her new guy is doing now (e.g. you lacked confidence in yourself, you didn't know how to make her feel like a feminine woman in your presence).

Watch this video for some examples of how to re-attract your ex when you interact with her

Make sure that you believe in yourself when you interact with her.

You've got to know that you are a better man than her new guy.

He's nothing compared to you.

You are the man.

Ironically, that's actually how women want men to think, but they rarely, if ever, openly admit that.

Just relax and know that you are better than him, without even having to say it to her.

She will pick up on it by how you talk, behave and react to her while you interact.

Another mistake to avoid isâ€¦|

- Trying to make the other guy look bad compared to you.

A common mistake that guys make when they see that their ex has hooked up with another guy, is to try get her back by making the other guy look bad.

For example: A guy might go around badmouthing his ex's new man to friends, co-workers, family members and to her directly.

He might say things like, â€œHave you seen the way that guy dresses? He looks like a real geek,â€ or â€œI saw a haircut like that on a poodle once,â€ or â€œHe's so broke. Have you seen the car he drives? I'm surprised that anyone would have the courage to step into it. That car looks like it's ready to fall apart any minute now. What a heap of crap. He's a loser compared to me and you know it.â€

He's likely hoping that by highlighting the new guy's faults, his ex will suddenly realize that she made a big mistake and break up with him.

Yet, rather than changing her mind about her new guy, a woman will likely think, â€œMy ex is being so childish and immature. Does he really think behaving like a jealous brat is going to convince me to take him back?â€ and she will usually then try to cut off all communication with him.

So don't do that to yourself.

Don't waste time trying to get your ex back by competing with her new man and instead focus on rebuilding her feelings of respect and attraction for you, based on the man you have become now.

2. Get Her to Meet Up With You So She Can Experience the New You Don't worry if the new guy might get upset about you and her meeting up.

She's your woman, so he can think or feel whatever he wants.

It doesn't matter.

What matters is you and her getting back together.

To get her back, you must interact with her on a phone call or in person (not via text) and make her feel so much respect and attraction for the new you that the idea of not having you in her life makes her feel miserable.

You can't make her feel that way if you're not interacting with her over the phone or in person.

So, even though your ex might be avoiding you right now (e.g. because she doesn't want her new boyfriend to get upset), you have to get her to meet up with you.

Call her on the phone and trigger her feelings for you again by making her smile and laugh.

Then, once you get a sense that she's happy and having fun talking to you again, ask her to meet up with you in person.

She might initially be resistant to the idea and she may say something like, I don't think it's a good idea, or My new boyfriend won't like it.

Don't let that put you off.

Instead, stay calm and say in a joking way, Hey, it's just a quick catch up as friends. I'm not asking you to run off to Vegas with me and have a laugh with her about that.

Then say, Seriously though, it's just an innocent catch up as friends over a cup of coffee. People do that all the time. It's perfectly fine and normal. We can catch up and say hello without it having to be a big deal. I know you're seeing someone else now. I respect that. However, we can be friends. Besides, if we meet up and you then decide that you never want to see or hear from me again, I will accept it and never contact you again if that's what you want. So, how about it? Let's catch up for a quick coffee and say hi.

In most cases, a woman will likely respond by saying something like, Okay, maybe just this once.

Then, just go ahead and make plans to meet her at a time that suits you both.

Remember: When you meet up with her for coffee, you need to let her experience the new and improved you (i.e. via the way you talk to her, behave and interact with her), so she can begin to feel respect and attraction again.

When she does, her guard will automatically come down and she will begin to feel sparks of love for you again.

A common mistake that guys make is meeting up with their ex and wasting the opportunity because they're afraid to flirt with her and make her feel attracted again.

For example: At the meet up, a woman might be cold and distant towards her ex.

A guy will then feel unwelcome to flirt with her and he may say to himself, Well that's it then it's over. I tried, but she's clearly not interested. No matter what I say or do she's just cold and unfriendly towards me. She's just not giving me a chance and isn't interested.

Yet, here's the thing!

A woman is not going to make it easy for her ex just because he wants her back.

Instead, she's usually going to wait and see if he's emotionally strong and confident enough to flirt with her and make her feel attracted, even when she's being cold or distant.

If he can hang in there and stay confident, she will naturally begin to feel a renewed sense of respect him and feel attraction for him.

On the other hand, if he just gives up and acts like a nice, sweet friend and lets her dominate him with her confident personality, she will leave the meet up and say to herself, Well, that was a disaster! What a waste of my time. I'm not doing that again. I'm going back to my new guy *and will now focus on forgetting all about my ex.*â€œ

So, if you want to break up your exâ€™s rebound relationship, you canâ€™t be afraid to flirt with her when youâ€™re interacting.

No matter how cold and unfriendly sheâ€™s being towards you in the beginning, if you stay confident and focus on making her laugh and smile around you, she wonâ€™t be able to stop herself from dropping her guard, even if she doesnâ€™t want to.

3. Optional: Hook Up With Her to Mess With Her Feelings

Once youâ€™ve reactivated some of your exâ€™s feelings for you again (e.g. by making her smile and laugh, flirting with her), she will start to look at you in a more positive light.

The more you make her feel respect and sexual attraction for you, the less she will be able to hold onto her negative perception of you.

She may even start thinking, *â€œMy ex is so different now. Iâ€™m having such a good time with him. If I was meeting him for the first time today, Iâ€™d actually be falling for him right now. Heâ€™s a lot sexier than before. I like it.*â€œ

So, if you get a sense that sheâ€™s feeling attracted to you (e.g. she keeps touching you, she talks plays with her hair, she keeps telling how she canâ€™t believe how different you are now), get her to give you a hug.

For example: You might say something like, *â€œThis is actually fairly enjoyable. I thought youâ€™d be quite a drag to meet up with but youâ€™re actually quite fun.*â€œ

She will likely laugh and maybe punch you in the arm playfully.

You can then say, *â€œOw! Youâ€™re so mean. You owe me a hug for that. Come here, bring it in for a hug.*â€œ

In most cases, a woman will give you a hug and you can then relax and give her a quick kiss.

If the kiss goes well, you can then try to get her to go home with you and hook up sexually, so that she will begin to doubt her feelings for her new guy.

However, even if she doesnâ€™t want to hook up with you sexually, donâ€™t worry about it.

The main thing that you need to focus on is using every interaction you have with her from now on (e.g. text, e-mail, social media, on the phone, or in person) as an opportunity to spark her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you again.

If you are at least doing that, then you are in the process of breaking up her rebound.

Nextâ€¦

4. Show Her That You Are Happy and Living a Fun Life Without Her

Sometimes, when woman gets into a rebound relationship, her ex will feel shocked, disappointed and even a bit betrayed.

For example: He might say to her, â€œHow can you do this to me? How can you hook up with another guy so quickly after breaking up with me? Did what we had together mean nothing to you? Did you ever really love me, or were you just passing your time with me until you found someone else? I don't believe a person who is truly in love can get over it that quickly. Can't you see that I still love you? Doesn't that even matter to you anymore?â

Secretly, he's hoping that she might take pity on him and break up with her new guy for him. Yet, that rarely (if ever) happens.

Instead, his behavior turns her off even more, because women are not attracted to the emotional weakness in men (e.g. neediness, insecurity, self-pity).

Women are attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, drive and determination).

So, if you want to break up your ex's rebound relationship, one of the best ways to do that is by showing her that you're an emotionally strong and independent man with or without her.

Yes, you definitely do want her back, but you don't need her back in order to be happy and live a good life.

You're happy and fulfilled regardless of being with her.

Some of the ways that you can show your ex that you're getting on with your life and are not sitting around pining for her and feeling sad and lonely is by getting on with all the things in your life you've always wanted to do.

For example: You might

- Learn something new (e.g. how to cook, dance, skydive, do a certain martial art or mixed martial arts).
- Go traveling on a group tour, so you automatically make new friends and are around new people.
- Go out with existing friends to have fun, do outdoor activities and party.
- Hook up with other women (optional).

By focusing on improving yourself and being fulfilled without your ex, not only do you become a better man and have a happier and more successful life, but you also become more attractive to her (and to other women).

Then, when your ex sees that you haven't been a lonely, sad and depressed guy who hasn't moved forward in his life since she broke up with him, she will naturally begin to feel more respect and attraction for you.

For example: You have posted photos on social media of you having fun with other people and your attitude and body language is so much more confident and mature.

All of a sudden, she will begin to see you in a more positive light and will start to wonder whether her new guy is the right man for her after all.

It's then up to you to show her that she made a mistake and guide her back into a new and exciting relationship with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Is it Needy to Want Your Ex Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

No, itâ€™s not needy to want your ex back.

It's only needy if you absolutely need your ex back for your emotional security and stability.

If you are confident, happy and moving forward in life without her, but you want her back because you love her, then there's nothing wrong with that at all.

In fact, it's the way a real man approaches a relationship break up.

Watch this video for more infoâ€¦!

A real man doesn't need to feel ashamed of loving his woman.

However, if a needy guy is desperate, lost and depressed without his ex woman, then he should become emotionally independent before attempting to get her back otherwise he will turn her off.

Sometimes a guy may wonder, â€œWhy would a woman feel turned off by a guy who is completely unhappy and lost without her? Wouldn't she feel flattered that she means so much to him that nothing else matters in his life?â€

In most cases, the answer is no.

Most women want to be loved and appreciated by their man, but they don't want to be his main purpose in life.

There are some insecure women that love the idea of a guy who can't get on with his life without her, but the majority of women understand that a real man is someone who can be devoted to her and love her, without needing her to feel fulfilled and happy.

So, if right now you're thinking, â€œI really need my ex back!! I just can't live without her!!â€ chances are she's not going to want to hear from you.

Women don't like the idea of getting back with a guy who needs them to regain his emotional stability and sense of identity in this world.

Women want a man who loves them and wants them, but doesn't act like a needy, desperate wimp while doing it.

Watch this video for more infoâ€¦!

If a woman has lost respect for her ex, him being needy and desperate around her is only going to make her think something like, â€œWell, I clearly made the right decision by breaking up with him. He's just too needy and insecure. I want a man who is emotionally strong enough to cope without me. Someone I can look up to and respect, not someone who needs me to mother him and reassure him that things will be okay.â€

A much better way to get your ex back, is to re-spark her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you by showing her (via the way you talk, think, behave and interact with her) that you are sincerely content and fulfilled in your life without her.

Yes, you want her back, but you don't need her back for your emotional sanity, sense of identity or feeling of worthiness as a man in this world.

Your life won't grind to a standstill just because she's gone.

You are happy and getting on with becoming an even greater man than you are right now.

That's what you've been doing, right?

If not, that's what you need to do starting from today.

Interestingly enough, when you realize that you can have a great life without your ex woman, your mindset changes and you start being the sort of man that your ex can actually look up to and respect again.

Then, whenever you interact with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) and she notices that you are confident, happy and moving forward in life without her, all of her old positive feelings of respect, attraction and love that she's pushed into the background suddenly get woken up and she feels drawn to you again.

This is why it's important that you get to the point in your life where you want her back, but you truly, honestly, sincerely know that you don't need her back to be okay.

5 Ways You Can Become More Emotionally Independent

If you don't know how to feel happy and content in life without your ex, here's what you can do:

1. Find out what your purpose in life really is and go after it

[image: Make progress with your purpose]

Every man needs a big purpose in his life that he's working towards.

It's so important because it stops you from focusing all of your attention on your woman and ending up becoming insecure, jealous, controlling or needy.

Women love a man with purpose and they naturally feel attracted to it because they instinctively know that he will be much less likely to become a wuss in the relationship and will be someone that she can look up to for life.

Yet, not every guy knows what that purpose is.

If you don't already know what your purpose is, a good way to find out is by thinking about what you often daydream of doing or becoming.

For example: Which fields of interest have you always been most attracted to (e.g. law, medicine, engineering, journalism, sport, entertainment, education, research, science)?

What have you imagined you might accomplish in any of these fields (e.g. to improve the justice system in your country or local community, to build housing for disadvantaged people, to be a great sportsman, to be a famous musician, to make a scientific breakthrough, to change the world or your local community in some way)?

If you think about the future, what do you want to be remembered for by those who knew you or knew of you?

Your purpose doesn't have to be something that will change the world in a big way.

It simply needs to be something that is important to you.

By discovering your purpose in life and then making progress in that area, you will realize that you don't have to rely on your ex for your sense of identity in this world.

You become and be your own man.

As a result, when you interact with her (e.g. on a phone call or in person) and she sees that you're not sitting around moping about losing her, she will be able to respect and admire you for the hard work that put into being the man you know that you can and should be.

2. If you already have a big purpose, set some goals around it and start achieving them right away

If you already know what your purpose in life is, but have been neglecting it because of your relationship with your ex, now is the time to pick up where you left off.

All that energy that you've using thinking about how much you miss your ex and how badly you want her back can be channeled into accomplishing your goals and dreams.

Use it to inspire you to become and be an even greater man than you are, so you can truly impress her.

Not only will you discover that you're finally getting the things you always wanted done, you will also discover that you're missing your ex much less too.

This is important, because it allows you to become emotionally independent, which is attractive to women.

Then, if you decide that you really want her back, it will come from a place of emotional strength, rather than weakness due to still being needy and being unable to cope without her in your life.

Another way to become emotionally independent of your ex is to

3. Start doing all the things you've been putting off

It's easy for a guy to get lost in a relationship with a woman and begin to neglect things that he used to love or still has an interest in, but doesn't want to do because it will take time away from her.

Before they met, he might have been thinking things like, I want to travel the world and become a travel writer, or I'm going to go back to school to improve my level of education so that I can get a better job, or I'm going to learn to speak Spanish, so I can work for that company who needs multilingual people with my skills.

Yet, once in the relationship he might have started to say to himself, Those things can wait. Nothing is as important to me as my woman. I don't want to spend any time away from her.

If you can relate to that, now is a perfect opportunity to pick up on those things that you've been neglecting in your life.

The more you do and accomplish, the more emotionally independent you'll become.

4. Challenge yourself to do something different

One of the best ways to become emotionally stronger is by doing things that are a little bit more challenging than your usual interests.

For example: If you're the type of guy who prefers to hang out in bookshops, play chess and only walk for exercise, you can challenge yourself by joining a cooking class, taking up rock climbing and possibly even taking up kickboxing as a way of staying fit.

The more you step out of your comfort zone, the more you grow in emotional strength.

Why is this important?

Essentially because women are mostly attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. his confidence, masculinity, his ability to take risks, his determination to succeed) and are turned off by the emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, neediness, fear of the unknown).

So, when you make yourself emotionally strong, you automatically become more attractive to your ex because you are displaying the behaviors and personality traits that are naturally attractive to women.

She will pick up on that without you having to tell her.

When you talk to her on the phone or interact with her in person, she will sense the changes in you. It will come through in your energy, how you talk to her, your behavior, actions and how you react and respond to her.

That's what really matters to a woman.

A woman judges a man mostly based on how he makes her feel as he interacts with her.

For example: Is he confident or insecure? Is he relaxed and easy-going, or is he tense and awkward?

Finally, another way to become more emotionally independent (as opposed to being needy) of your ex is to

5. Reconnect with old friends, or make new ones

[image: Catch up with friends, or make new ones]

Sometimes, a guy gets so involved in his relationship with a woman that he gradually starts neglecting his friends.

For example: He might say to himself, What is the point of hanging out with those guys when I have a beautiful woman right here who loves me? If she can't come with me, then I don't want to leave the house without her.

He may then refuse to catch up with his friends if his woman doesn't go with and over time, he might stop seeing them altogether.

So, if you've been neglectful of your friends, now is the time to make amends and pick up on your old friendships.

If you feel like you don't want to do that, start fresh by meeting new people.

Join local interest groups, hobby groups, meet ups, catch ups, group exercise clubs or get involved in a sport that involves you interacting with other people.

Then, when you and your ex get back together again, you won't fall into the trap of smothering her with neediness because you will have friendships and interests that are independent of her.

When you have a life purpose, goals, dreams, interests and friendships that are separate from your relationship with a woman, it is less likely that you will ever feel needy, because your relationship is not the number one thing that defines you.

You are more than just a boyfriend, fiancé or husband to her.

You are a well-rounded, self-actualized man who is making progress on his goals, with or without the support, reassurance or encouragement of his woman.

Itâ€¢s Not Over Unless You Want it to Be Over

As you can see, itâ€¢s not needy to want your ex back if you are a confident, emotionally strong man who is happy and moving forward in life without her.

Unfortunately, most people automatically assume that if a relationship ends, it means that it's over forever.

So, if a guy decides that he wants his woman back, he will usually be told to just walk away.

For example: Well-meaning friends and even strangers might say things like, â€¢Forget about her and move on. You canâ€¢t fix a broken vase, the crack will always be there. So, you canâ€¢t fix a broken relationship. If it was meant to be, then she will come back to you. If she doesnâ€¢t come back, then it was obviously better for both of you that you broke up. Donâ€¢t waste your time wishing for the impossible. Besides, there are plenty of fish in the sea. You can find yourself another woman better than your ex. Itâ€¢s for the best. Just be patient. You will find a nice girl one day.â€¢

That is ridiculous.

Most relationships have a break up or two and if the man becomes a better man and the love, respect and attraction deepens, the relationship will be even stronger than before and potentially last a lifetime.

What a lot of people don't realize is that falling back in love after a break up is one of the most amazing feelings a couple can experience in life.

Thereâ€¢s just something about having made it through a difficult patch together and then fixing things up to the point where both you and her are happier and more in love now than ever before.

It binds a couple for life.

Thatâ€¢s not a fantasy.

Itâ€¢s actually something that millions of couples do every year.

So, it's not just you who has gone through a break and wants your ex back.

Likewise, it's completely normal and common for couples to get back together after a break up.

People break up and get back together all the time and you can be one of those people.

Donâ€¢t listen to what other people say when they tell you that there you are wrong or needy for wanting to have another chance with your love.

They donâ€¢t know what youâ€¢ve just learned here about re-attracting an ex woman, or the fact that the love is even more amazing when you get her back.

They only know what they know based on their limited experience.

The fact is, when you trigger your ex womanâ€¢s feelings of respect and attraction for you again, she stops focusing on the negatives of your past relationship and she starts to think about the way you are making her feel right now (e.g. sexually attracted, happy, excited, respectful).

She then feels drawn to you and from there you can build on her feelings for you and show her that the love between you and her will be different now.

Watch thisâ€¦!

You are going to make her have such strong feelings for you now, that not only will she want to get back together again, she will also try her hardest to keep you happy so that the relationship will stay together this time.

In most cases, getting an ex woman back happens very quickly, but sometimes if the break up was messy, it might take a few weeks before the woman feels ready to fully let go of her negative feelings and allow her new feelings of respect and desire to come through.

So, if you want to get your ex back, donâ€™t let anyone tell you that you canâ€™t do it.

You can.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Stop Your Ex From Falling in Love With Her New Guy

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To stop your ex from falling in love with her new guy you need toâ€¦!

1. Give Her the Missing Pieces of the Attraction Experience That She Didn't Get With You

When a woman breaks up with a man, itâ€™s usually because there are certain aspects of his thinking and behavior that are causing her to lose respect and attraction for him (e.g. heâ€™s too insecure, he doesnâ€™t make her feel like a real woman, he takes her for granted).

So, when she then hooks up with a new guy after the breakup, she will often choose a guy who is the opposite of her ex in the areas that she felt were most lacking in her relationship with him.

For example: If her ex was too emotionally sensitive, got upset about setbacks in his life and whined about his feelings to her, then her new man will usually be more emotionally strong and better able to handle his emotions around her.

Another example is where a guy stopped making his woman feel feminine and girly in his presence and instead fell into the habit of treating her more like a friend or worse, making her feel like she was more of “the man” in the relationship.

In a case like that, her new guy will be more emotionally masculine in the way he thinks, feels, behaves and interacts with her, which will allow her to relax into thinking, feeling and behaving like a girly, feminine woman around him.

Essentially, your exâ€™s new guy is simply filling in the missing pieces of the attraction experience that she didnâ€™t get with you (e.g. her new guy is more emotionally strong, he makes her feel more feminine and girly, he makes her feel more loved and appreciated).

However, that doesnâ€™t mean that your exâ€™s new guy is perfect for her, or that you canâ€™t get her back.

You can.

When you make some attractive adjustments to the way you think, act and behave, you will be ready to properly re-attract her.

Then, the next time you interact with your ex (e.g. on a phone call or in person), you can start giving her the attraction experience she always wanted from you, but never got.

For example: When interacting with her, ask yourselfâ€¦!

- Am I turning her on right now (by being confident, charismatic, masculine or funny), or am I turning her off (by being insecure, soft, hesitant, needy or weak)?
- Am I making her smile and enjoy talking to me, or does she sound cold and distant because I'm being too serious?
- Am I making her feel like a feminine woman in my presence, or do I make her feel more like a neutral friend?
- Does she feel respect and sexual attraction for me based on how I interact with her and talk to her, or does she still feel that sheâs getting a better attraction experience from her new guy?

If you are doing it right, those things will make her start looking at you in a more positive light.

She might then start comparing you to her new guy and possibly begin seeing the missing pieces of the attraction experience that sheâs not getting from him (e.g. He might be more emotionally strong, but heâs also selfish and self-centered. He might make her feel feminine and girly in his presence, but he doesnât have any focus and direction in his life).

When this begins to happen, she wonât be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you again, because you are now giving her the attraction experience she always wanted from you, as well as highlighting to her the new guyâs shortcomings.

She then starts to wonder, âWhat am I doing with this guy when my ex is now being everything I always wanted in a man? I was a fool to break up with him. Maybe I should just start seeing him againâ and then getting back together again with you begins to feel good to her.

The next step is toâ|

2. Show Her That You Have Already Transformed Yourself

[image: Making your ex feel attracted over the phone]

Right now, if your ex is in a relationship with a new guy, it may be difficult for you to have many (or any) interactions with her.

However, she may still be open to hearing from you now and again.

So, to stop your ex from falling in love with her new guy, you need to actively interact with her (via text, on a phone call and in person), so that she can see for herself that youâve changed all the things that were turning her off before and have transformed yourself into a new man.

Whatever the case is for you, the most important thing that you need to do is use every interaction that you have with her as a way of actively sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you again, by showing her that youâve transformed yourself and that youâre no longer the same guy she broke up with.

To get her back, you need to actively make her feel something for you again, so her guard comes down and she opens herself up to talking to you in person again.

This means that you canât just sit back and assume that if you wait it out for long enough, her new relationship will be just a rebound and when itâs over she will come running back to you.

Yes, her new guy might just be a rebound guy and she might break up with him eventually, but thereâs no guarantee that they will break up unless you stop it.

Thereâs also no guarantee that she will come running back to you after she breaks up with him either.

Ultimately, if youâre not actively interacting with your ex to stir up her feelings for you again, itâs very unlikely that she will break up with her guy and then think, âWell it's over with the new guy, but my ex is a different matter altogether. Yes, I know that I havenât heard from him since we broke up, but Iâm sure if I call him and tell him that my rebound relationship is over, we can get back together again and everything will be perfect between us this time.â

Unfortunately, that's not how it works in most ex back cases.

Some guys do get their ex woman coming back after she breaks up with her rebound, but most (I've dealt with 100s of ex back cases via my phone coaching services) don't see her come running back.

Instead, she just continues to date new men and then moves on, unless he stops it from happening and actually gets her back.

Watch this!

Essentially if you stay out of the picture long enough, she's going to start to forget about you and lose any motivation to want to get back with you.

So, if you want to stop her from falling in love with her new guy and get her back, the most important thing that you need to do is to interact with her via text, social media, e-mail and especially over the phone and in person if she's open to it, so you can let her experience respect and attraction for the new you.

You need to show her via the way you talk, think, behave, interact with her and respond to what she says and does, that you have transformed yourself and are no longer the same guy she broke up with.

For example: If you were insecure before, you are now confident and self-assured. If you were too nice before and allowed her to dominate you emotionally, you are now more ballsy and stand up to her.

When she experiences the new you, her guard comes down and she starts to reconnect with her original feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

She also experiences new, more exciting feelings for you based on the fact that you can now give her the kind of attraction experience she really wanted from you all along.

Then, she becomes more willing to see you in person.

From there, you just need to continue showing her that you've transformed yourself into the kind of man she can look up to, respect, feel attracted to and love, until her walls come crashing down.

[image: Did I make the right decision by breaking up with him?]

She then begins to ask herself, â€œDid I make the right decision by breaking up with him? Is my new guy really the right guy for me after all? Should I just give my ex another chance? I miss him.â€

3. Make Her Laugh, Smile and Feel Good Whenever She Interacts With You

[image: Laugh at your previous mistakes]

One of the best ways to make your ex drop her guard is to make her smile and laugh when you interact with her.

It's very difficult for a woman to keep thinking, â€œI hate this guy! He broke my heart and ruined our relationship. I'm never going to forgive him for what he did,â€ when she's smiling, laughing and having fun in your presence.

So, rather than waste the interactions you have with your ex (which will likely be limited now that she has a new guy) by being too serious and going over what went wrong in the relationship, just use the time to create new, positive, happy feelings inside her by making her smile and laugh.

For example: If she says something like, “Look, I’m seeing someone else now. I don’t think we should be talking to each other. It just wouldn’t be fair to my new boyfriend,” rather than get upset and give up, you can turn it into something to laugh about with her.

You might respond by saying something like, “Okay, no problem. I promise to stop talking to you right away. I’m just going to silently mime everything from now on. I don’t know how well that will work over the phone though, so you’re just going to have to meet up with me instead, or else you’ll miss the whole conversation and then I’ll have to start my miming from the beginning.”

She will most likely have a laugh with you about it, or at least smile and she will feel some respect and attraction for you again for having the confidence to make a joke in a potentially tense moment like that.

When you make her laugh, it’s difficult for her to keep thinking of you in a negative way because she starts seeing you as the more confident, brave and emotionally strong man that you are now.

She then drops her guard and allows herself to feel respect and attraction for you again.

When that happens, she begins to wonder, “Did I make the right decision to break up with him? Is my new guy really the right guy for me? Do I really love my new guy or am I still in love with my ex? Why am I feeling like this all of a sudden? Is it a sign?”

That’s what you want her to be experiencing.

When you do that, she automatically stops falling in love with her new guy and starts to question her feelings for him vs. you.

4. Show Her That You’re Moving Forward in Life Without Her

Sure you can sit around pining over your ex woman and wondering, “What can I do to stop my ex from falling in love with her new guy?” but that’s unlikely going to get her back on its own.

Also, if your ex interacts with you and senses that you’ve just been sitting around feeling sad and lonely without her, she will feel turned off by what she perceives as your lack of emotional independence.

Women hate it when a guy needs her to feel good about himself or to have a sense of identity of purpose in the world.

On the other hand, women love it when a guy wants her, but doesn’t actually need her to feel happy, make progress in life and feel worthy as a man in this world.

So, don’t be the sad, depressed ex who just ignores life and keeps to himself now that she’s left you.

There’s nothing wrong with missing your ex, but if you want to re-spark her feelings for you and get her back, you need to show her that you’re the kind of man she will feel proud to come back to.

A good way of doing that is by moving forward in your life without her.

Now is the time to go ahead and make progress towards fulfilling your goals, dreams and desires in life.

For example:

- If you have a big purpose in life that you neglected because of your relationship, now is the time to pick up where you left off and make things happen.
- If youâve never had a life purpose, find one and then go after it with all your might (e.g. What is your biggest dream, goal or ambition? What do you wish you could do with your life? What do you want to achieve, be or become? What is the most challenging, but meaningful thing that you want to work on for your entire life?)
- If youâve wanted to go traveling, then pack your bags and get going (just make sure to take lots of great photos of you having fun with other people to then post on social media where your ex can see them. Don't post photos up of you on your own. That does not work. You have to be having fun with other people).
- If youâve wanted to learn a new skill (e.g. how to skydive, boxing, mixed martial arts, how to dance), then go for it.
- If youâve always wanted to get a degree or better qualification, start doing it now.

The world is your oyster and you can choose to do whatever you want and be whoever you want in this life, so do it.

As a bonus, when you move forward in life and get to the point where you have big goals, dreams, ambitions, interests and friendships separate from your relationship with your ex, you actually become more attractive to her.

Why?

You become the kind of man she can look up to, respect, feel attracted to and feel proud to come back to.

Women love and feel attracted to a man who knows who is and what he wants in life, outside of just wanting a woman.

So, when your ex sees that youâre emotionally independent and have a life without her, she begins to look at you with different eyes.

She starts to feel concerned about losing out on being with a great guy like you and this makes her drop her guard and open herself up to interacting with you more.

From there, you just need to keep focusing on rebuilding her feelings of respect and attraction for you and before long, she will find herself doubting her feelings for her new guy.

5. Optional: Hook Up With Her Sexually and Blow Her Mind, So She Feels Confused About Who She Wants

Once youâve successfully reactivated some of your exâs feelings of respect and attraction for you, get her to meet up with you in person (e.g. invite her out for a cup of coffee to catch up and say hello as friends).

At the meet up, keep making her feel sexual attraction and respect for you by showing her via the way you talk, think and behave that youâve transformed yourself into a new man.

Continue to use humor as a way to keep things light, drop her guard and erase any negative feelings she may be holding onto about interacting with you again.

Then, if she seems to be open to and is giving you signs that she's attracted to you (e.g. touching you on the arm or leg, licking her lips, playing with her throat) lean in and give her a kiss.

If she doesn't pull away, deepen the kiss and keep turning her on.

From there, if she's still open to it, hook up with her sexually at your place or hers and blow her mind.

If you don't think she will kiss you in public, just get her to give you a hug when you're parting ways at the end of the catch up.

Say, "Okay, good catching up. Bring it in for a hug goodbye."

If she sticks with the hug and is being warm, lean back and look her in the eyes and then lean in for a kiss.

Then, head to her place or yours to "hang out" and then get it on.

The more you make her feel attracted to you, the more doubts she will have about her new guy.

From there, you just need to continue showing her that you've transformed yourself into the kind of man that she can now look up to, respect and feel attracted to.

As you do that, she will naturally begin to fall deeply in love with you all over again.

When she realizes that you're now the man she has always wanted, she will likely drop her new guy and come running back to you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

4 Reasons Why Your Ex Keeps Texting You, Even Though She Doesn't Want You Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Some of the reasons why your ex might keep texting you are thatâ€¦!

1. She Wants to Check if You're Moving On Without Her

Sometimes a woman will worry that her ex man will hook up with another woman and move on before sheâ€¦s had a chance to hook up with another guy first.

So, to keep tabs on him, she will continue texting him and asking things like, â€œHey, what are you up to today?â€ or â€œHow've you been? Are you seeing someone else yet?â€ or, “How was your day?”

She's essentially trying to find out if she still has time to move on before he does.

2. To Boost Her Self Esteem

A woman will often enjoy knowing that even though sheâ€¦s no longer interested in her ex, he on the other hand still thinks about her, misses her and wants her back.

So, she will keep texting him and allowing him to possibly tell her about how much he still cares about her, which she will then use to feel good about herself.

She will go out into the world and feel confident that she is in the position of power, she is loveable and that her ex wishes he could get another chance with her.

This then allows her to feel good about herself when she meets new guys or goes on dates.

3. She Still Misses You, Even Though She Doesn't Admit it

[image: She misses him, but won't admit it]

In most cases, a woman will continue to miss her ex from time to time, even though she won't openly admit it to him.

For example: She might think to herself, â€œI miss the way he used to look at me when we were together,â€ or â€œI miss how good it felt to be in his armsâ€ or “I miss having a boyfriend.”

Yet, in most cases a woman won't admit it to her guy. Why?

Some of her reasons might be becauseâ€¦!

- She does miss him, but she doesn't really feel like it's a good idea to get back with him (i.e. because he probably hasn't changed).
- She doesn't want to make it obvious that he has a chance with her because she's embarrassed about looking uncool, needy, lonely or unattractive.
- She misses him, but she doesn't believe that he give her the attraction experience she really wants.

- She's afraid that he might make her fall in love with him again and then break up with her to get revenge for dumping him and breaking his heart.
- She doesn't want to make it easy for him to get her back because she wants to see if he has the confidence to do it without her help and reassurance.

So, there's a good chance that your ex is missing you if she's continuing to text.

This is why I always recommend that a guy take control when getting his ex woman back, rather than waiting and hoping that she does it.

In most cases, a woman will wait and hope that her ex has the courage and skill to get her back, but if he doesn't, she will just try to move on.

Another reason why your ex might still be texting you is

4. To Give You Hope That She Might Want You Back, So She Can Eventually Break Your Heart By Saying That She's in Love With Another Guy

Sometimes a woman might feel angry or bitter about the break up with her ex.

Then, to get revenge, she might string him along for a while by texting him back and forth, in the hopes that he will believe she is considering getting back together again.

When he's fully back in love with her and stops moving on with his life, she can then quickly hook up with another guy and let him know that she is no longer available.

When he is shocked and disappointed, she can then say something like, "Did you really think we would get back together again? I told you it was over. Anyway, I'm in love with another guy now and he treats me like a princess. He's not a jerk like you were to me. It's over. Bye," to hurt him for causing her pain.

You Have to Be Confident Enough to Guide Her Back Into a Relationship

[image: Be strong enough to guide her back into a relationship]

Don't waste time looking for hidden meanings in her texts, or waiting around her to give you a clear go ahead by saying something like, "Call me! Let's get back together. I love you."

That would be nice and it probably happens to about 1% of guys, but hoping for that is like hoping to win the lottery.

What you need to do instead (to have at least an 80% chance of getting her back, based on all the cases I've dealt with) is reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction, whenever you interact with her (e.g. via text, e-mail, on social media, on a phone call, or in person).

Then, confidently guide her back into a relationship.

That's what works.

Where some guys go wrong is by getting caught up in a cycle of texting an ex woman for weeks or months and not meeting up with her to actually get her back.

When a guy get stuck in that cycle, he will often make some or all of the following mistakesâ€¦

1. He only texts her like a friend and doesn't include any flirting

For example: He might pretend that heâ€™s only interested in being her neutral friend by being on his best behavior when he interacts with her and avoiding any flirting.

He will hope that it makes her feel comfortable and not feel pressured into getting back together with him.

Yet, in most cases, rather than make a woman think, â€œWow, my ex is being so sweet. Heâ€™s being such a reliable friend and heâ€™s not even pushing me to get back together again. He is so sensitive and nice and considerate of my feelings. Thatâ€™s just so attractive to me. Maybe we should get back together again,â€ she won't be feeling attracted, so she will just move on with her life and hook up with a guy who actually flirts with her and makes her feel attracted.

So, donâ€™t do that to yourself.

If you want to get your ex back, donâ€™t make the mistake of acting like a good friend who isnâ€™t allowed to flirt with her and make her feel attracted again.

By all means, be her friend, but just donâ€™t be an innocent, reliable, neutral friend.

Watch this video to understand what I meanâ€¦

If you are going to be friends with your ex, you need to make sure that youâ€™re using every interaction you have with her (via text and especially on the phone and in person) to actively make her feel respect and sexual attraction for you again.

Donâ€™t pretend that you donâ€™t find her sexually attractive anymore, or that youâ€™re not interested in getting her back.

If you only focus on making her feel neutral, friendly feelings for you, she probably wonâ€™t see any reason why she shouldnâ€™t hook up with another guy instead.

She may even say to herself, â€œNow I have the best of both worlds...a nice, sweet friendly ex that I can rely on if I ever need someone to talk to and a sexy new guy that I can have sex with and fall in love with. Ahh, life is good.â€

So, make sure that you flirt with her and make her feel attracted, rather than acting like you're just a friend now.

2. He instantly replies to all of her texts no matter what time of day or night it is

When a guy is desperate to get his ex back, he will usually try to be on his best behavior when he interacts with her.

We will try to avoid saying or doing something that might annoy her.

So, whenever she sends him a text, he may think, â€œI need to get back to her right away. I donâ€™t want to take too long and give her the impression that sheâ€™s not important to me, or that Iâ€™m out with another woman. I donâ€™t want to blow my chance with her.â€

He will then text her back immediately regardless of whether itâ€™s night or day, or if heâ€™s busy or not.

He's hoping that she will think, â€œWow, I'm so lucky. My ex must really care about me. Look how quickly he responds to texts. He must be dropping whatever he's busy with just to get back to me! that's just so sweet of him.â€

Yet, in most cases, she's thinking something like, â€œWeird. Doesn't he have a life? It seems that all he's doing is sitting around waiting for me to text him. When does he hang out with friends, or focus on work, or actually do anything else other than rush to text me back?â€

She then feels turned off by what she perceives as his desperate, needy behavior.

She may continue to text him to lead him on until she finds another guy, but she will definitely be feeling turned off by his snap replies to her every text.

So, no matter how badly you want to instantly respond to everything your ex texts you, just don't do it.

If you're at work, driving, or out with friends, simply wait until you're home and relaxing before you get back to her.

She's not going to decide whether or not to ever give you another chance with her if you don't get back to her immediately.

In fact, not responding instantly may even make her wonder, â€œWhat is my ex doing? I wonder if he's with another woman,â€ and she might even feel a bit jealous about it, which is a good thing.

Of course, that doesn't mean you should ignore her for hours or days just so that you don't come across as being needy, or worse, to try and make her jealous by talking about being with other women.

Why?

If you haven't properly sparked her feelings for you yet, she will assume that you're trying to mess with her head and make her miss you, which will cause her then to do the same back to you.

So, just mix things up between replying immediately, a few minutes later, hours later or even the next day if you can't get to her text because you are busy.

Another ex back texting mistake that guys often make is!

3. He writes too much in his texts because he's trying hard to impress her

Sometimes, a guy will hope that if he sends her a long text explaining to her what he's been up to and how much he's changed since the break up, she will be impressed and decide to give him another chance.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because she felt that he was stuck in his life, he might try to impress her by texting something like, â€œI have changed so much since we broke up. I'm really focusing on my work now and my boss is very impressed with my progress. He's saying that there might even be a promotion coming my way soon. It's really cool and I'm so excited about it. You always wanted me to do more with my life. Well now I'm doing it.â€

He's likely hoping she will say, â€œWell done. I'm so impressed with you now. Okay, now we can get back together again.â€

Yet, here's the thing!

If she has lost respect and attraction for him, sheâs not going to instantly believe everything that heâs saying.

Instead, if she currently perceives him in a negative light (e.g. believes that he is insecure, lacks the kind of confidence she wants in a man) sheâs likely just going to think that heâs desperately trying to impress her and she will feel turned off by him even more.

So, rather than try to impress your ex in a long text message, get her on a phone call instead.

Why?

On a phone call, she will be able to hear the tone of your voice, experience your confidence and assess your state of mind by listening to how you speak and noticing how you react to her.

I recommend that you only send your ex a quick text as a way of getting her on a phone call with you, where you can then actively make her laugh, smile and feel happy to be interacting with you again.

From there, get her to meet up with you in person and actively work on rebuilding her feelings of respect, trust and attraction for you via the way you talk, think, behave and interact with her.

When she can see for herself that youâre no longer the man she broke up with, her guard will naturally come down and you can then quickly guide her back into a relationship.

4. He thinks he can get her back by hiding behind texts

A guy might sometimes decide to play it safe by sticking to only texting his ex and never calling her.

He might think, âThis is okay. At least my ex keeps texting me, so itâs not all bad. She must feel something for me, even if right now she says she doesnât want me back. If I play my cards right and keep texting back and forth, she will probably let me know when sheâs ready for me to call her up on the phone. Besides, I donât want to make a mistake by calling her too soon and scaring her away. Iâll just stick with text.â

However, that ex back tactic rarely (if ever) works.

Why?

If a guy doesnât do anything to actively spark a womanâs feelings for him on a phone call in person, she will often continue texting back and forth, while at the same time focusing on meeting a new guy to move on with.

In most cases, a woman wonât wait around for a guy when she doesnât have feelings for him and heâs not doing anything to make her have feelings for him.

So, if your ex keeps texting you even though she doesnât want you back, donât wait for her to make it easy for you and tell you that sheâs open to you calling her.

Instead, you need to be emotionally courageous enough to make the first move.

Remember: If you want her back, itâs up to you to re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction and get her back.

Donât expect her to take the lead.

To get an ex back, you need to be a man about it and lead the way.

So, stop the texting and get her on a phone call right away, where you can spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you again by making her laugh and smile.

The more you make her feel good when sheâs interacting with you on a phone call and in person, the less she will hold on to her negative feelings for you.

She then drops her guard and then itâ□□s up to you to guide her back into your life and into your arms again.

Then, rather than just texting, you'll be kissing, having sex and enjoying each other's love and company once again.

Even though it might feel safe to hide behind text, don't do it.

Get her on a phone call and meet up with her in person.

That's how to get her back for real.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

4 Things to Say to Make Your Ex Wife Begin to Want You Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Right now, you might be thinking, â€œIs there anything that I can say to my ex wife to make her want me back?â€

The answer is yes.

So, here are 4 things to say to your ex wife to make her begin to want you back:

1. Tell Her What You've Changed About Yourself, But Don't Ask For Another Chance

One of the quickest ways to make your ex wife begin to see you in a more positive light, is by telling her (in a relaxed, non needy way) that youâ€ve understood her reasons for divorcing you and have made changes to your thinking and behavior to fix those things.

For example: Imagine that a man got broken up with because he had no drive and ambition and was just drifting through his life, expecting his wife to put up with the fact that their future seemed uncertain or boring.

To show his ex wife that he understands why this was a problem in their marriage and that he has already changed, he might say something like, â€œLooking back, I now see why you left me. I now realize that itâ€™s the manâ€™s responsibility to take care of and provide for his wife and his family and thatâ€™s something I was clearly not doing in our marriage. I see how that must have made you feel uncertain about the future and caused you a lot of stress and worry. I was clearly not the husband you deserved. I let you down and Iâ€™m sorry for causing you pain and stress. Of course, Iâ€™m not that guy anymore. Our divorce was like a slap in the face for me, but instead of feeling sorry for myself, I just made changes. You might not care to hear this or you might be happy to know that I finally quit my dead-end job and Iâ€™m now working at a better company for more money. Iâ€™m actually in a management position now and Iâ€™m already working towards another promotion, which is enjoyable and what I should have done before when we were together. Iâ€™ve even started investing for the future and am developing an investment portfolio. I bet you never thought youâ€™d see something like that happen hey? Look thoughâ€¦I know itâ€™s probably too late for us, but at least I can now sincerely apologize to you and let you know that I get it. I understand why we split up. I wish I had figured it all out sooner, but thatâ€™s water under the bridge. I'm not expecting you to want to get back together at all. Yet, can we at least be friends from now on?â€

Another example is if a woman divorced a guy because he took her for granted.

In a case like that, the guy might say something along the lines of, â€œItâ€™s clear to me now how much I took you for granted. I just assumed that because we said â€œI doâ€ all those years ago, it was enough and that I didnâ€™t have to put much effort into the relationship anymore. I didn't have to put in the effort to show you just how important you were to me. That was really immature of me and Iâ€™m truly sorry for making you feel like you were second or third best in my life behind my work (or friends). I know that if you had treated me the way I treated you, I would have hated it and would have been complaining to you just like you complained to me for so long. The fact that you put up with me for as long as you did is proof that you're an amazing woman and that I really did stuff things up between us. I just want you to know that I'm sorry for everything that I put you through. I'm not asking you to care about me apologizing or give me another chance or anything like that. I just want to let you know that I mean what I say when I say that I love you, I'm sorry and I was a total jackass in our marriage. For example: I was in the habit of making a mess all over the house and just expecting you to clean up after me no matter how busy you were. Well, you might laugh at how I am now, or you might get angry because I have changed all too late. I'm actually quite a neat freak now and I make sure that I clean up as I go. Looking back, I can't believe how messy I was and how patient you were with me. I know it might sound impossible for you to believe I've changed, but feel free to come check up on me any time and have a laugh at how tidy my place is. I don't expect you to believe me that I have changed and I'm not asking you to get back together again. However, I do want you to know that I'm not that guy anymore and I'd like it if we could at least be friends again.

Essentially, by being confident enough to admit your mistake to your ex wife and then telling her what you've changed about yourself, it shows her that you're no longer the same guy she divorced.

So, even though she might initially have thought, "A leopard doesn't change its spots," your new, more mature attitude makes her see you differently (even if she doesn't openly admit it to you).

When that happens, her walls come down and she begins to feel some respect and attraction for the new you.

2. Turn Cold Conversations Into Something to Laugh About Together

[image: Turn cold conversations into something to laugh about together]

It's understandable that a woman might not be very open towards her ex husband.

She might be cold and unfriendly and it may be difficult to talk to her because she is so being distant and uncooperative.

Naturally, the ex husband might feel frustrated, or even a bit angry towards her because he just wants to have a chance to talk to her and clear things up between them.

Yet, getting angry or annoyed at her in any way is only going to make matters worse.

Women are naturally attracted to men who can maintain composure and guide a conversation into feelings of laughter and love, especially when a woman starts out being cold.

On the other hand, women are turned off by men who expect women to help them emotionally by being nice, compliant and easy-going at all times.

So, if her ex husband gets annoyed or angry in any way, she will pick up on his frustration and may think to herself, "See? Nothing has changed. He is still reacting like a child every time things don't go his way. He still hasn't even worked out how to be a real man. No way am I giving him another chance. It will just be more of the same. ❑❑

She then starts to close up, which makes him feel even more annoyed and emotionally, which turns her off even more!

It's a vicious cycle that only leads to further separation and negative feelings towards each other.

So, rather than letting your ex wife's coldness get to you, focus instead on making her laugh and feel good to be around you again.

For example: If your ex wife is accusing you of hurting her in the past, rather than react in the usual way (e.g. by defending yourself, telling her that it was her fault, apologizing for the 1,000th time) turn it into something you can both laugh about instead.

Note: Turning it into something that you can laugh about together doesn't mean that you don't take her feelings seriously or that you disrespect her.

It simply means you're taking a difficult situation and looking for something positive to laugh about together, rather than getting sucked into the negative feelings and becoming even more disconnected from each other as a result.

In other words, you're being the man by using your emotional strength to bring the interaction back to love, rather than letting her control things and have you get dragged into her unnecessary drama.

When you make your ex wife smile and laugh, it naturally causes her drop her guard around you and it then becomes more difficult for her to stay stuck on the idea of hating you and remaining divorced.

3. Ask Her to Forgive You For Her Own Benefit

Getting your ex wife to forgive you is a very important step if you and her are going to start over with a clean slate.

However, just asking her to forgive you will rarely result in her sincerely forgiving you.

She might say that she has, but that's different to actually forgiving you for real.

Additionally, if you just ask her to forgive you because you need it, she might say something like, â❑❑No. I will never forgive you. What you did to me was unforgivable. I will never, ever forgive you for that. â❑❑

So, a better way to ask her to forgive you is by telling her that forgiving you is for her own benefit.

Explain to her that if she doesn't forgive you, she will always be going through life carrying the baggage of her relationship with you and it will likely cause her problems if she tries to have another relationship someday.

Don't worry – it's not about helping her move on.

Instead, forgiving you for her own benefit makes her stop looking at you in a negative way because she has forgiven you for what happened.

When she goes through that emotional transition, she naturally starts to feel better about interacting with the new and improved you.

She finds it easier to clearly see that you have changed and you're no longer the same man she separated or divorced.

So, you might say something like, â❑❑You and I are both mature adults and if we can honestly forgive each other, both of us will be able to properly move forward without allowing the negative things that happened between us to cloud future relationship. If you forgive me, you will feel better about your future without me. You won't have to go around feeling that knot in your stomach every time you think of me. You will feel lighter knowing that even though I made some mistakes in the marriage, it's over now. I'm not that same man anymore because I have changed. We've grown from the experience, we are better people and forgiving the past is part of the process of moving on for real. I made some mistakes, but that's not something you have to keep holding on to for the rest of your life. If you keep holding on to negative feelings of anger and resentment, it will just cause you to have unnecessary emotional baggage. So, what do you say? Can you honestly forgive the old version of me? Can you see that I did make mistakes, but that is in the past? Can you let that part go by honestly forgiving me for making the mistakes I did back then?

Important: Saying something like the above to her is not about encouraging her to move on and have another relationship.

Instead, when you're mature enough give her the freedom to not have baggage in a future relationship with someone and she then forgives, she automatically stops looking at you in a negative way.

She stops thinking about all the mistakes that you made in the past and she begins to look at you with respect.

Her guard starts to come down and she becomes more open to talking to you, seeing you and even thinking about you in a romantic way (even if just a little).

Remember: Forgiveness breaks down her walls and opens her up to seeing the new you in a more positive light.

Without forgiveness, she will likely just keep going over the negative things about you and your relationship in her mind and she will think of you as the man she left.

So, make sure that you aim to get her to forgive you (for her own benefit).

When you do that, her guard will come down and she will be much more open to you.

From there, you just need to make sure that you are sparking her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you again whenever you interact with her.

Another thing to say to make your ex wife begin to want you back is

4. Say That You Accept the Break Up, But Still Miss Her From Time to Time

It's not weak to tell your ex wife that you miss her sometimes.

In fact, being able to tell her that you miss her, even though you accept that you're broken up, is a sign of emotional strength (which is attractive to women).

So, don't be afraid to say it.

However, something to bear in mind is that you can say "I miss you" in a way that will spark your ex wife's feelings of respect and attraction for you and make her drop her guard and there's also a way of saying it, that will cause her to feel even more turned off by you.

So, here is an example of the right and wrong way to tell an ex wife that you miss her:

The wrong way to say “I miss you” is by being emotionally weak and needy when you say it.

For example: A guy might say, “I miss you so much! I just can’t get through my days without you! My life is a mess now! I can’t eat or sleep properly. Please give me another chance. I need you back. You are the only thing that is important to me. You mean everything to me. I need you. Please!”

The right way to say “I miss you” is by being confident, mature and emotionally strong when you say it.

For example: You might say, “I definitely do miss you from time to time. I would have to be a very shallow man to not miss the woman I promised to spend the rest of my life with. However, I’m not dwelling on the past. Life goes on. I’m focusing on my career and I’m busy making progress with my business/job. That doesn’t mean I don’t think about you or miss you from time to time, but I accept that we’re divorced now.”

By being open and honest with your ex wife in a strong, emotionally masculine way (rather than a needy, insecure way), you’re building on her feelings of respect for you.

The more she respects you, the more she will feel attracted to you and the more respect and attraction she feels for you, the more she will be able to reconnect with her feelings of love for you.

That’s how it works.

Respect comes first, then attraction and then her love for you begins to flow back into her heart.

She suddenly starts thinking, “I actually kind of miss him too now. If only he was like this when we were married, the divorce probably wouldn’t have happened. I know we had a lot of problems that aren’t fixed by him being emotionally strong by saying that, but what if he really has changed? What if we can make it work the second time around? Maybe we should give our relationship another try. After all, we both clearly still love each other. So, why not? Who cares what other people might think? I have to follow my heart here. I want this.”

4 Things Not to Say to Your Ex Wife if You Want to Get Her Back

[image: 4 things not to say if you want to get her back]

Now that you have a better idea about what to say to make your ex wife begin to want you back, here are some things to avoid saying if you don’t want to turn her off and ruin your chances with her.

1. Asking her to start over and begin dating again

When a woman is at a point where she’s not interested in even thinking about getting back together with her ex husband, she’s not going to like hearing about the idea of “dating” again.

If you want her to be open to that, you must re-attract her first, so she actually has feelings for you and wants something to happen.

When a man goes straight for the kill and asks to begin dating his ex wife again, she will often think something like, “No. I can’t just put away all my negative feelings and pretend that we’re like a couple who has just met, going on nice, romantic dates together. It just doesn’t work like that. He doesn't get it. I don't feel attracted to him anymore and he doesn't even know how to make me have those feelings again.

So, forget about dating and focus instead on letting her experience the new and improved you.

That way, she will want to start dating you again naturally and that will then lead to you and her getting back together.

The more she can see for herself that you're not the same man she divorced, the more quickly her negative feelings about you and the relationship will fade away and be replaced by positive emotions such as respect, attraction and love.

Then, the idea of getting back together again starts to sound good to her.

However, if you just ask her to start dating again without renewing her feelings for you first, she's just going to keep saying things like, No. We're divorced now. Let's leave it at that.

2. Saying that your life isn't worth living without her

Getting divorced isn't fun, easy or anything nice.

It's a disaster, an emotional rollercoaster and one of the worst things that can ever happen to a man.

Even when a couple truly believe that they would be better off without each other, it doesn't mean both of them won't feel the pain of loss once the reality of the divorce sinks in.

The marriage is over.

Your identity as a married couple is broken. You're on your own now and it sucks.

So, it's only natural that a man might find himself feeling desperate as he worries about losing his wife forever and never being able to get her back.

He may even think to himself, My life is ruined! I've got to get her back. This isn't how I imagined my life would be. We are supposed to grow old together. I need her back! I can't cope without her. She makes my life having meaning.

He might then decide to try and convince her to get back together again, by saying things like, Please honey, this isn't right. You and I are meant to be together. I just can't go on without you in my life. You are my reason for living. Can't you see that? You are everything to me. Yes, I stuffed up, but we can make it work. Don't throw away our love. I need you. Please.

He's secretly hoping that if she hears his heartfelt plea, she will suddenly realize her mistake and want to get back together again.

Yet, here's the thing!

Rather than convince her to change her mind, telling a woman that life is not worth living without her, actually turns her off even more.

Why?

Even though most women like the idea of being with a man who loves, appreciates and wants her, she doesn't want a guy who can't be a happy, forward moving man without her.

For a woman to feel attracted to a man, she needs to be able to look up to him, respect him and feel proud to be with him.

So, when a guy tries to get her back by saying that he can't live without her, a woman will usually pull away because he is turning her off with his emotional weakness.

The fact is, most women want a man who:

- Is emotionally strong and can face the problems in his life head on, without seeking pity from her or others in his life.
- Has more to his life than just her (i.e. big dreams, goals and ambitions that he is following through on and making progress with).
- Is reaching his true potential as a man, rather than hiding behind the comfort of being in a relationship and feeling like he doesn't have to strive to achieve anything any more.
- Is loving, devoted and emotionally supportive towards her, but isn't a pushover who essentially does whatever she wants.

So, don't put yourself in a position with your ex wife where she perceives you as being emotionally weak and insecure.

The best way to prove to her that you're the kind of man she can look up to and respect, is by re-sparking some of her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

The way to do that is to show her (via the way you talk, think, behave and interact with her) that you are being an emotionally strong man who can live a happy, successful life with, or without her.

3. Being too nosey about what she's been up to in her personal life

Sometimes a man might feel worried that his ex will move on without him, before stopping to give him another chance.

He might say to himself, What if she meets another guy? What if she's having sex and falling in love with a new guy right now? I will lose her forever. I need to find out what she's up to.

He might then look for ways to find out what she's doing.

For example: He might:

- Call her friends and family to ask them if she's seeing anyone else.
- Stalk her social media accounts to see if he can pick up any conversations that will tell him what she's doing, or find pictures of her with other guys.
- Follow her.
- Regularly text or call her and ask what she's been up to.
- Show up at her place of work unexpectedly to catch a glimpse of who she's hanging out with.
- Drive past her house to see if there's another car parked in her driveway.

Although, you might feel justified in wanting to know what your ex wife is up to (after all, she is your wife), don't make the mistake of becoming a snoop, being too nosey or acting like a jealous ex husband who is losing it.

There's nothing wrong with asking her how she is and what she's been up to since the divorce, as long as you are being easy-going about it.

If you seem tense and are putting pressure on her to give you lots of little details about what she has been up to, it will simply make you look jealous and insecure in her eyes and she will feel turned off.

4. Asking if she's changed her mind yet, even though you haven't changed the things that turned her off

As tempting as it might be to want to ask your ex wife if she's changed her mind about being divorced, don't bother doing it if you haven't really changed any of the things that caused her to divorce you in the first place.

For example: Imagine that a woman divorced her husband because he was stuck in his life and had no future direction or purpose.

He stayed in a boring, dead-end job and in his spare time, he usually just sat around watching TV, hanging out with his friends and generally avoiding moving forward in his life.

So, his wife eventually got fed up waiting for him to be a man and take charge of his future.

She began to feel unsafe with him when she imagined their future together.

Over time, after many arguments and disagreements where she kept trying to get through to him in the hopes that he would change, she finally divorced him.

If he now wants her to change her mind and give him another chance, he needs to have made real changes himself.

He needs to show her that he's now set some big goals in his life and he is actively working towards achieving them.

He doesn't have to have already achieved the goals to be able to convince his ex wife that he's changed, but he does need to at least have made some initial progress so that she can see that he is for real.

If you try to get your ex wife back without first changing the things that have been turning her off, she will likely just say no.

So, if you want to make your ex wife begin to want you back, the best way to go about it is by sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you and showing her that you really are a different man now.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Should You Walk Away From Your Ex if She Keeps Rejecting You?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

No.

You shouldn't walk away from your ex if she keeps rejecting you.

Instead, you should give her 7 days of space and use that time to improve your ability to attract her.

If she has been cold and distant when you've tried to talk to her on the phone or in person lately, you must prepare to be able to get her to smile or laugh, so her guard comes down and she opens back up to you.

For example: If a guy got dumped by his woman and was begging for another chance and not accepting the break up, he can change his approach and surprise her.

After giving her 7 days of space, he can call her and if she answers, he can say something like this in a playful, easy-going manner, "Hey ex girlfriendâhow's things?"

She will most likely smile and may possibly even laugh that he's referring to her as his ex girlfriend and it will be a surprising change from how he was when she dumped him.

"Please baby! Don't do this. I love you! I will do anything. Please give me another chance."

Remember: A woman's attraction to a man is based on how he makes her feel when she interacts with him.

So, if you have been turning your ex off with your approach lately, you need to change your approach to change how she feels.

Watch this video for some more examplesâ

Using humor is the easiest way to stop her from being so closed off and start making her feel like you're not so bad after all.

So, if you are serious about making your ex stop rejecting you and getting her back, you have to improve your ability to attract her and using humor is a great place to begin.

Women love it when a guy has the confidence to make her smile and laugh when she is being cold and distant.

It takes balls to do that and women respect it.

However, if you decide to "play it safe" and just talk in a nice, polite, reserved manner when you call her next, she's probably just going to keep rejecting you.

Why Walking Away Could Be the Biggest Mistake of Your Life

Many people assume that to get an ex back, all you really need to do is get the heck out of her life, give her some time to forget about how bad things were and hopefully start to miss you.

Yet, that doesn't work in most cases.

Watch this video to understand whyâ

Walking away can work if the woman still has strong feelings for her man, but if your ex has been constantly rejecting you, then the chances are high that she is pretty turned off by you right now, true?

So, walking away isn't going to make her come running back.

Of course, it's understandable that some guys get to the point where they think that walking away is the only option.

He might say to himself, It's hopeless. My ex won't give me a chance to explain to her, or even apologize. She just keeps rejecting me. I guess it really is over between us. I probably should forget about her and walk away. Maybe then, when she realizes that I'm really gone, she might start missing me and want me back.

Yet, walking away doesn't work on a woman who doesn't have feelings for her ex anymore.

After all, why is she going to come running back when she's completely turned off by his unattractive approach?

Watch this video for a common, unattractive approach the guys use when trying to get a woman back!

Have you made the mistake covered in the video above?

Don't worry you can recover from it.

Just don't be that guy anymore.

Your ex will begin to see you in a more positive light when you truly do change and become the man that you know you should be.

That's what she is waiting for.

She might be pissed off with you and annoyed right now, but that will settle down if you give her 7 days of space and use that time to improve your ability to attract her.

Don't wait longer than 7 days though because the whole, "ignore her for 30-60 days" trick just doesn't work on most women.

Of course, sometimes a woman might feel curious that her ex isn't contacting her after he tried so many times to get her back, so she may decide to call him or contact him after a few weeks to a month to find out what he's up to.

However, if she calls him up and experiences the same old guy making the same old mistakes that caused her to break up with him in the first place, she will just think, Yeah, I thought so. Nothing has changed here. He's still the same jerk that I broke up with, and it will probably be the last time he'll ever hear from her.

In most cases, when a guy walks away from his ex, she will use the time to fully get over him and move on.

She may even hook up with another guy and fall in love with him, while her ex is still alone and pining for her and thinking, I wonder if she misses me as much as I miss her? I wonder if she'll finally realize that we were meant to be together and call me? Maybe I just need to wait a few more weeks and she will really miss me and then call me.

Meanwhile, she is totally fine and getting on with her life without him.

So, if you want to get your ex back, don't waste time walking away and giving her the silent treatment in the hopes that this will make her come running back to you.

The only proven way to quickly make an ex change her mind is by changing how she feels as you interact with her in a more attractive way.

For example: If a woman has been able to dominate her ex and make him feel insecure by the way she talks and interacts with him, to open herself up to the idea of getting back together with him again, she is going to need to see that he now remains confident and emotionally strong now matter what she says or does.

He now has the balls to turn her tests into something that they can laugh about together, rather than crumbling at the first sign of resistance from her.

So, if in the past when she said something like, “I don’t want to be with you anymore. How many times do I have to tell you?” he reacted by getting upset, or begging and pleading and saying things like, “Please baby! I know you’re really mad at me right now, but don’t push me away. I’m so sorry for the pain I caused you. Please give me a chance to make it up to you,” he now remains calm and turns it into something to smile and laugh about together.

For example: If your ex says, “I don’t want to be with you anymore. How many times do I have to tell you?” you can jokingly ask, “Well, how many times have you said it already? Maybe 50, or is it 100 times?”

Then you can jokingly say, “Well, let’s see if we can get to 200 and then I’ll consider taking a hint, but until then, I’m going to call you and see if you’ve changed your mind, even by a few percent” and then have a laugh with her about it.

You can add in, “I’m hoping that by tomorrow or the next day, you will like me at least 5% more and then you’ll stop saying no and will meet up with me so we can have a laugh” and then have a laugh with her about that.

By approaching a serious conversation in a funny way, it decreases her anger and annoyance and makes her start to see you in a different (more positive) way.

Even if she tries to fight it, she won’t be able to stop herself from beginning to feel even just a little bit of respect for you, for having the confidence and the social skills to make her laugh and smile in a serious moment like that.

However, that doesn’t mean making a joke is going to wipe the slate clean and make her forget about everything that happened between you and her in the past.

It’s just a great way of making her drop her guard and open up to interacting with you again.

So, after you make her smile and laugh, you then need to be a bit more serious and show her that you respect her decision.

You might say to her, “Okay, look, I get it...we’re not getting back together ever. I accept that, so don’t worry. However, I think that we are mature enough to catch up and say hello and have a laugh. What do you say? How about a coffee tomorrow or the next day?”

Most women will then agree and meet up with you.

If she doesn’t, then change your suggestion to just be friends who can say hello from time to time, so her guard comes down and she is more open to meeting up with you the next time you suggest it.

You can say, “Okay, well how about we at least stay in contact as friends from time to time. We’re not going to ever get back together, but we can at least be nice to each other, right?”

She will then say something like, “Yes, I suppose so,” or “Okay, I guess we can be friends.â□□

Thatâ□□s what you want.

It's an opening, a window of opportunity for you to bring her guard down further and show her that you really have changed.

From then on, every time you interact with her (e.g. via text, on social media, over the phone, or in person), you need to use the friendship to re-attract her and get her back.

Donâ□□t Act Like a Nice, Supportive Friend Who Has No Sexual Interest in Her

The point of staying friends with your ex is because it gives you a good reason to interact with her and build up her sexual and romantic feelings for you again.

The mistake that some guys make, is that once they decide to be friends with their ex, they fall into the trap of thinking, â□□ Friends means friends. I canâ□□t then do anything other than be a nice friend, otherwise I will jeopardize our friendship. If I try to flirt with her or show her that I still want to get back together again, she might get angry and cut me out of her life completely. At least by being her friend, I have an excuse to be around her. Then, if Iâ□□m really, really nice to her and make myself an important of her life, she will hopefully realize that she canâ□□t live without me. She will then suggest that we should get back together again.â□□

He might then make himself available to his exâ□□s every beck and call, help her out with whatever she needs (e.g. run errands for her, lend her money, fix things around her house) and maybe even become her shoulder to cry on when she gets dumped by another guy.

Secretly, heâ□□s holding on to the hope that if she gets hurt by some other guy, it will open her eyes to the fact that heâ□□s the only guy who truly loves her and the only one who will treat her right.

She will then come running back to him.

That's how it works in Hollywood movies, but it rarely plays out that way in real life.

In real life, if you are not actively making your ex feel sexually and romantically attracted to you again, then sheâ□□s probably never going to look at you and think, â□□ Wow, my ex is being so nice to me! Heâ□□s such an awesome friend. Heâ□□s sweet, reliable and nice. Thatâ□□s all I really want in a man. All that sexual desire and romantic passion stuff is overrated anyway. Boring is good! I just need a nice friend.â□□

It just doesn't work that way.

Women need to feel that tingle downstairs and want to be with you sexually and romantically, rather than just feel nice and comfortable in a friendly way.

So, donâ□□t put yourself in the position of being her nice, supportive, non-sexual friend.

If you waste your time being neutral around her (e.g. because you donâ□□t want to scare her away, or you want to show her how much you care about her and that youâ□□re prepared to do anything for her), then she might keep you around as a friend.

Yet, that doesnâ□□t guarantee she will ever want to get back with you, or that she will stop seeing other guys just because you and her are good friends now.

If another guy comes along and makes her feel the way she wants to feel when she's with him (i.e. turned on, excited) and has the confidence to make a move on her, she may hook up with him without giving her friendship with you a second thought.

Don't let that happen to you.

You can't expect your ex to change how she feels about you if you don't make her feel new positive emotions (e.g. respect, desire, love) to replace her currently neutral or negative emotions about you.

If you and your ex are going to be friends, focus on reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction for you, by displaying some of the traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. confidence, emotional masculinity, humor, maturity, determination,) every time you interact with her.

Don't suppress your attractiveness.

Be the kind of guy that makes her smile and have that twinkle in her eye because she's feeling sexually attracted.

The more she experiences the new, more attractive version of you, the more difficult it will become for her to keep thinking of you as only a friend.

Even if she tries to stop herself from wanting you, thoughts like, Why am I feeling like this about him? or Why do I feel so excited when I'm around him? begin to flood into her mind.

She will feel drawn to you in a way that feels interesting, exciting and exciting to her.

So, as you can now see, there is a much better option to get your ex back than simply walking away and hoping that she cares.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

8 Things That Will Make Your Ex Begin to See You in a More Positive Light

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 8 things that you can do to change the way your ex currently feels about you!

1. Make Her Laugh and Smile, Especially When She's Being Cold Towards You

Sometimes a woman will make it difficult for her ex to interact with her after a break up, by being cold and distant towards him.

For example: A guy calls his ex on the phone and she says something like, What do you want? or Why are you calling me? Have you forgotten that we've broken up? We have nothing to talk about.

Naturally, a guy might feel upset and even a little bit dejected if his ex is treating him in that, so he may think, This is it. There's no hope of getting her to change her mind about me now. I'll never get her back.

The good news is that you can change how she feels.

One of the best ways to do that is to focus on making her laugh and smile every time you interact with her.

Watch this video for some examples!

When you make a woman laugh and smile, you are helping her to get over the pain, anger and resentment that she feels towards you.

Even if she tries to fight it, she can't help but relax, open up and want to interact with you more.

The more she interacts with you, the more she likes how things feel between you and her now and she becomes open to getting back with you again.

So, rather than spending a lot of time trying to convince her to give you another chance and feeling put off by her coldness, just use every interaction you have with her (e.g. on a phone call, in person) to replace her negative perception of you with new, happy memories, by making her laugh and smile. She then drops her guard and becomes open to seeing you in a more positive light again.

2. Become Emotionally Stronger

[image: Become emotionally stronger]

In a relationship, a woman wants to know that her man is emotionally strong enough to handle whatever life throws at him.

Regardless of whether he has lost his job, is going through a tough time with family, or has been broken up with, she wants to know that he will remain confident, emotionally strong and calm under pressure.

If he can do that, she will naturally feel a profound respect and attraction for him as a man.

By the way!

This is why women will always test your confidence in a relationship by randomly throwing a tantrum, saying “No” to your requests or being demanding.

A woman wants to see that you don’t crumble under her pressure and are one of the rare guys who can always remain confident, calm and in control no matter what life throws at you.

So, when a guy becomes insecure, anxious, loses his confidence and gives up hope if he is facing a tough situation or challenge, she will perceive him as being emotionally weak and her respect and attraction for him will begin to fade.

She may then begin to wonder if she’s gotten herself involved with a wimpy guy who isn’t ever going to be emotionally strong enough for a woman like her.

Deep down, she feels the need to be with a guy who will remain emotionally strong and in control because she doesn’t want to have to be the strong one in the relationship.

She wants to be a man’s girl, even though she might not ever openly admit that or even fully realize it herself until it happens.

Yet, if a guy is emotionally weak, she will know that something just doesn’t feel right to her and she will want out.

So, when you’re interacting with your ex, you can show her that you are emotionally stronger than her now.

That doesn’t mean you treat her badly and act tough or tell her that you’re emotionally strong now.

It simply means that you remain confident, calm and in control no matter what she says or does, or how much she tries to throw you off.

When you can do that, she will feel attracted to you whether she likes it or not.

She may act like it’s not having an affect on her initially, but she won’t be able to hide her change in feelings for you for too long.

All of a sudden, she will text you, call you or just be much more open to reply to your texts, answering your calls and meeting up with you in person.

Another way that you can make your ex see you in a more positive light is to!

3. Make Progress in Areas of Your Life That Have Been Lacking

[image: A real man is clear on his purpose in life]

Sometimes, a guy might get so involved in his relationship with a woman, that he will begin neglecting other areas in his life.

He stops caring about the world and what he always wanted to be and do, just so he can spend more and more time with her.

Eventually, he becomes a very typical guy who from his dreams behind the safety and comfort of a relationship with a woman.

Does this sound like you?

Don't worry about it if you made that mistake â most guys do.

Besides, that was the old you.

The new you can start making your big goals and dreams become a reality.

You can start making progress and becoming the man you know you can and really should be in life.

You know that you're better than you who you are right now.

You know that there are things that you've been putting off because of your relationship with her, or because of a fear of failure!

For example: Ask yourself!

What is my purpose in life?

Every man needs a big, long-term purpose (or ambition) that he's working towards achieving in life.

If you've neglected your purpose or still don't have one, now is the time to start.

You don't have to achieve all your goals to make your ex begin to see you in a more positive light.

Instead, you just have to make some progress so that she can see that the changes in you are for real.

Another question to ask yourself is!

What are the things I've always wanted to do, but have been putting off because of my focus on her?

Now is the time to do all things you have been putting off because you didn't want to leave your ex behind (e.g. go back to university and improve your education, start your own business, join up a martial arts class, develop a new skill, learn something new, go on an adventure, make some new friends, follow through on a goal you set a long time ago, but forgot all about).

Have I been holding myself back from becoming a better man?

Every man can always improve himself in some way.

In many cases, a man who has been dumped by a woman will usually need to improve his ability to attract women, keep a relationship together and maintain a more balance lifestyle.

How about you?

What are some things that you could really improve about yourself to become an even better man than you are today?

Have I allowed myself to become a lonely guy?

Did you neglect your friends because of your relationship with your ex?

You now have the opportunity to renew your old friendships or pursue new ones.

You could join in on some group activities in your area (e.g. group exercise, martial arts, hobby groups, meet ups) and instantly make a bunch of new friends.

By answering the above questions, you will likely realize that breaking up with your woman is actually a great opportunity for you to quickly become a better man before you get her back.

When you do that, not only will you be happy and fulfilled (regardless of whether you are in a relationship or not), but you will actually also become more attractive to your ex.

Women are naturally attracted to a man who is emotionally independent, mature and knows what he wants in his life.

Women love it when a man enjoys life with or without the reassurance, support or encouragement of his existing or ex woman.

It allows a woman to “go along for the ride” so to speak, rather than having to be the stronger one who is always leading the way and keeping their spirits up when in a relationship.

Important: Don't spend any more than a week making improvements to yourself before you get her back.

Why?

Watch this video

If you give her too much time away from you, a woman will usually just move on if she doesn't have strong feelings for you.

So, make some improvements and get ready to interact with her.

When you interact with her and she experiences the new you, she will begin thinking, He has really changed. He's become a mover and shaker in life. He's so confident, driven and emotionally strong now. I like the new him, and she then opens herself up to the idea of getting back together again.

Another way to change how your ex sees you is to

4. Get Her to Forgive You, So She No Longer Looks at You as Being the Old Version of You

To make your ex begin to see you in a more positive light, you have to get her to forgive you for real.

For example: You might say something like, I now understand why you broke up with me. I made some mistakes and I'm truly sorry for hurting you in the process. It was silly and immature of me to behave like that. I'm definitely not that guy anymore. I don't expect you to believe me right away, but I know that if you can forgive me, you'll actually feel better about yourself. You'll have less baggage to carry around with you in the future if you honestly forgive me. If you don't, you will probably end up not fully trusting other guys in future, which won't be good for you. So, can you forgive me? Can you let the past go, so we can both move forward in a mature, positive way, rather than holding onto old negativity and grudges from the past? I'm not asking you to take me back, I just want you to forgive me so that we be friends and leave what happened behind us.

If you can get her to the point where she really does forgive you, it makes her drop her guard and allows her to see you in a more positive light.

She stops seeing the old version of you and starts to look at you as being the new version of you. When that happens, she allows herself to look at your positive qualities and feel respect, attraction and love for that, rather than just focusing on the things about you that caused her to break up with you. This allows her to open back up to the idea of being with you, because you're no longer the same guy she broke up with. Another way to change how your ex feels is to

5. Allow Her to Look Up to You and Respect You, Rather Than Trying to Make Her Pity You

Sometimes, a guy might try to make his ex feel pity for him based on the pain he is going through as a result of being dumped.

He hopes that she will feel sorry for him and then agree to give him another chance to get rid of the guilt she is feeling.

Yet, in most cases, a tactic like that usually just turns a woman off even more.

She will think, "I can't believe that he's trying to blackmail me with a guilt trip. Does he really think I'm going to get back with him just because I feel sorry for him?"

She will then look at her ex as being emotionally weak, insecure and lost without her, which are all traits that turn women off about men.

All of a sudden, she will find other guys more attractive even if they are just a slightly more confident than her ex.

She will then usually hook up with a guy who is really confident and sure of himself, to experience the complete contrast of attraction compared to what she had with her ex.

If her ex isn't able to snap out of his "pity me" approach, she just won't be able to feel enough attraction for him to be motivated to want to give him another chance.

Why?

A woman wants to be with a man because it feels right, not because she's doing him a favor.

So, if you want to make your ex begin to see you in a more positive light, avoid playing the pity card and focus instead on making her look up to you and respect you as a man.

Another way to change how your ex feels is to

6. Stop Trying to Convince Her to Give You Another Chance and Start Making Her Feel Like She Wants to

One of the most common reactions that guys have when they get broken up with is to try to convince their ex to give them another chance.

Watch this video to understand why it doesn't work on most women

For example: A guy might say things like, "After everything we shared, the least we can do now is try to work things out between us. Don't just throw away what we had. Pleaseâjust give me one more chance.â

A guy might also say something like, “Babeâyou are my whole world. Iâm prepared to do anything to make you happy. Do you really think you will be able to find another guy who feel the same way about you as I do? I love you more than anything. Please forgive me. I promise that I will make it up to you.â

Yet, a woman rarely becomes convinced to change her mind based on explanations, especially when the guy is being desperate and panicking as he tries to get her back.

So, what should he do instead?

Starts making her feel the way she wants to feel when sheâs with him (e.g. respectful, excited, attracted, like a real woman).

It has to be about how she feels, not about how much you want her or need her.

If she has broken up with you, then she cares about her feelings right now and isn't going to be too worried about how you're feeling.

So, if you want to make your ex begin to see you in a more positive light, donât waste time trying to convince her with mere words.

Instead, focus on rebuilding her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you by showing her (via the way you think, talk, behave and interact with her) that you are a new man now.

The more respect and attraction she feels for you, the more she will be convinced that giving you another chance is actually a good idea and will be fun, interesting and enjoyable for her.

Another way to change how she feels is toâ

7. Improve Your Ability to Attract Her During Interactions

[image: Improve your ability to attract her during interactions]

To make your ex see you in a more positive light, you need to improve your ability to attract her during interactions (i.e. whether itâs via text, on social media, e-mail, on a phone call, or in person) and show her that you really have changed.

A mistake that guys often make is to use low success rate ex back tricks like the No Contact Rule (i.e. ignoring a woman for 30 to 60 days after a break up) as a way of attracting her back.

A guy might think, âIf I ignore her, she might start missing me. Then, when we interact again, she will feel attracted to me because she will have realized how much she loves me and how bad she felt without me.â

Yet, it rarely plays out that way with ex back cases where a woman has little to no feelings for her guy anymore.

If a woman is still in love with her ex and wants him back, then yes, ignoring her might make her feel more attracted to him when he finally gets in touch with her after a long silence.

However, in most cases, when a woman just doesnât have enough feelings for her ex to care that he is ignoring her and she simply moves on.

Another mistake that a lot of guys make when attempting to re-attract their ex woman is to focus on their physical appearance.

A guy will spend a lot of time and effort trying to impress his ex with superficial things like new clothes, change in body shape (e.g. lose or add on some weight, build some muscles) or a new hair style.

However, a woman's attraction to a man's physical appearance isn't as powerful as her emotional attraction to him (i.e. the way she feels when she is around him, based on how he thinks, talks, feels, behaves and reacts to her).

How a guy makes a woman feel when he interacts with her is what matters the most to her levels of attraction.

For example, when they are talking on the phone or in person:

- Is she feeling turned on, or is she feeling turned off?
- Is she feeling happy, or anxious, bored or annoyed?
- Is she feeling like she can look up to him and respect him, or does she look down on him?
- Is she feeling feminine and girly, or does she feel neutral, or worse, like a big sister around him?

That's what really matters to a woman.

So, if you're serious about getting your ex back, make some attractive changes and improvements to the way that you interact with her, rather than wasting time trying to re-attract her with superficial changes to your physical appearance.

Finally, another way to change how your ex feels is to

8. Let Her See That You Love Her and Want Her Back, But Don't Desperately Need Her Back For Your Emotional Security and Stability

[image: Show her that you want her back, but don't need her back]

To make your ex begin to see you in a more positive light, you need to let her see that even though you do still love her and want her back, you don't actually need her back to feel emotionally secure and happy again.

Essentially, you have to get to the point in your life where you honestly feel that you will be happy and fulfilled with, or without her.

Yes, you want her back but you don't need her back.

Then, when you interact with your ex again (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) and she senses that you are confident and happy and getting on with your life without her, she begins to see you in a more positive light.

She begins to feel respect for the man you have become and she starts to think, âI never imagined that he could be so mature and emotionally strong. I thought he'd become a wreck without me, but he's actually better than he was before. I really respect the way he's made an effort to improve himself as a man. That takes balls. I can see myself falling in love with him again.â

She then stops thinking about you in a negative way and opens herself up to the possibility of finding true love in your arms once again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What Does it Mean if Your Ex Likes Your Social Media Posts?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

3 common reasons why a woman will like your social media posts after a break up are that:

1. She Wants to Show You That She's Still Interested

[image: She wants to show you that she is still interested]

If a woman has lost a lot of respect and attraction for a guy, she's usually not going to make much of an effort to stay in contact with him, or be nice to him in any way after a break up.

She will try to cut off all contact, make it clean break and move on.

However, if a woman still has feelings for her guy and is secretly hoping that they can patch things up between them, she might take the initiative by clicking like on his social media posts in the hopes that he'll make a move.

Essentially, she's giving him an excuse to message her or call her and open the lines of communication between them again.

So, if right now your ex is clicking like on most or all of your social media posts, it can be her way of letting you know that she is still interested.

Despite her signal of interest, some guys worry, What if I contact her and she ignores me? What if her liking my social media posts doesn't mean that she's still interested? I'd just be making a fool of myself if I message her and she ignores me or rejects me. So, I will just wait for a more obvious sign that she's interested like her contacting me directly.

Here's the thing though!

At the end of the day, it doesn't matter why your ex is liking your social media posts.

What matters is that, if you want her back, you must to have the confidence to make the ex back process happen regardless of whether she's giving you clear signals or not.

Just contact her and start the ex back process, so you and her can hook up and get the relationship back together.

If you waste too much time waiting around, she might get bored of waiting for you and just hook up with or fall in love with another guy.

So, if you want your ex back, don't wait around hoping she will make it clear to you that she really wants you back.

Be man enough to take the lead and make the first move to begin the ex back process, regardless of whether she's giving you super clear signs that she's interested.

Remember: Women are naturally attracted to the fundamental qualities in men such as confidence, self-belief, determination and calm perseverance in men.

The more you display these qualities to your ex (i.e. by being fearless in getting her back), the more respect and attraction she will feel for you.

I'm not talking about being needy and bombarding her with calls or texts to get her back.

I'm talking about being confident, relaxed, easy-going and persistent (in a calm way) as you guide her through the ex back process.

When she sees that you are confident enough to lead the way, even though she isn't giving you super clear signals, she will feel respect and attraction for your manhood.

When that happens, her guard comes down and getting back together again feels like the right thing for her to do.

She realizes that you have already improved so much since the break up and are much more of a man than you've ever been.

She also appreciates the fact that you're not fearfully hiding away and waiting for her to become the more courageous one and lead both of you back into a relationship.

As a result, she feels drawn to you and feels excited and being guided back into your arms.

On the other hand, if you wait around feeling insecure, nervous and unsure of yourself, she will likely think, "Why isn't he doing anything? I've given him an opening and he's not making a move. Maybe he's just not interested in getting back together again. Maybe I need to make him jealous by starting to move on with another guy."

Another reason why your ex might be liking your social media posts is that

2. She's Just Being Nice and Wants to Help You Feel Better

[image: She is just being nice and wants to help you feel better after the break up]

Most women are fairly nice people, so even after a break up, a woman might continue to make an effort to make her ex feel good about himself as they drift apart.

For example: A woman might like his social media posts as a way of letting him know that she's not holding a grudge against him for what happened between them.

Alternatively, she might be letting him know that they can still be friends even though they're no longer together.

Whatever the case is for you, it's important that you pick up the opening she has given you (by liking your posts, following you on social media or watching your Snapchats) and get her on a phone call so you can meet up with her in person.

In person, you will be able to fully attract her back, hook up with her and get another chance.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was too gentle, soft and reserved around her, he needs to now show her that he's more confident, ballsy and assertive (without going overboard and trying to show off).

He needs to let her see that he has transformed and she can now feel attracted to him in the ways that are secretly important to her.

Alternatively, if a woman broke up with a guy because he took her for granted and was treating her badly for way too long, he needs to now show her that he's not that guy anymore.

Of course, it's not that simple though, so don't get me wrong here.

If you got dumped for treating her badly, she's not going to rush back into your arms if you panic and desperately started treating her like a princess.

Women are turned off by desperation in men, so if she dumped you for not treating her well enough, you have to relax and be calm as you begin to treat her better.

Don't try to suck up to her because she will see that as desperate and feel turned off.

Just relax, continue being the cool guy that you are, while also being a bit nicer to her.

Don't become a super nice guy who worships the ground she walks on because she will see it as desperate and you will lose that cool edge you've always had as a guy.

Just relax and be a better man, but don't go overboard.

Okay, so let's get back to her liking your postsâ€¦|

Even if your ex is a nice person and is only liking your social media posts to make you feel better, it doesn't mean you have to sit back and do nothing about it.

Open the lines of communication between you and her.

For example: You might message her and suggest that you and her can be friends.

You: Hey Rebeccaâ€¦|just thought I'd say hi. How's things? Miss you.

Her: Heyâ€¦|I'm good. What's up?

Then, just call her.

Don't waste time texting back and forth and potentially turning her off or getting into a text exchange where you are trying too hard.

Just call her, get her smiling and laughing on the phone with you and then suggest catching up to say hi.

If she is secretly open to getting back with you, she will say, "Yes" and meet up with you.

If she doesn't want to meet up with you, then since she is looking at your social media posts, start making her feel jealous by posting up photos of you having fun with friends.

Many guys are worried about posting up photos like that because they don't want to piss off their ex.

Yet, you have to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works.

When she sees him looking confident around other people who like him and want him to be there, it makes her feel more attracted.

Likewise, if there are women in some of the photos, she then gets worried that some of those women might like him and he will then move on.

This motivates her to want to meet up with him and see how things go, before it's too late and he moves on.

Of course, she might pretend to be angry and say, "I see that you're having fun with all those girls" (and not even mention that the photos mostly included guys), to see if he panics.

If he panics and says, "No, I don't like any of those women. I didn't even want to be there that day because I was thinking of you" she then loses all the attraction that she was secretly feeling for him as a result of the photos.

A better response is to laugh and say something like, "Why? Are you jealous?" and then laugh at her and with her about it in a playful way.

Alternatively, you can say, "Hey, not that you would care anyway, right? We're broken up remember. I still love you, but I've accepted your decision to not want to be together anymore."

If she secretly wants you back, saying that to her is like a knife to the heart, which is most likely how you felt when she broke up with you.

She then starts to want to you back so she can feel better about herself.

Another reason why she might be clicking like on your social media posts (or viewing your Snapchat posts) is thatâ€¦!

3. She's Trying to Mess With Your Head and Get You Wondering What Her Clicking Like Means

Sometimes, a woman might feel very angry or resentful about what happened between her and her ex and want revenge.

So, she will lead him on and pretend to be interested, while she secretly tries to find a replacement guy.

For example: She might think to herself, â€œIâ€™m going to get revenge for the pain he caused me. Iâ€™m going to mess with his head by liking his social media posts. He will then be wondering what it means and maybe even start hoping that itâ€™s a sign that I want him back. I'll confuse the crap out of him. That'll serve him right for treating me the way he did!â€

If he then tries to contact her, she might ignore him altogether, or respond with something like, â€œWhat do you want?â€ or â€œWhy are you contacting me? Itâ€™s over between us. Just because I like some of your social media posts, it doesnâ€™t mean all is forgiven and that I want you back. I was just being nice. Please leave me alone and give me the space I asked for.â€

He might then lose hope and give up on the idea of getting her back.

Yet, hereâ€¦s the thingâ€¦!

Even when a woman has lost respect, attraction and love for a man, to the point where sheâ€™s trying to mess with his head to get revenge on him, it doesnâ€™t mean he canâ€™t make her change how she feels.

Feelings change all the time.

For example: Think about how your ex went from feeling neutral towards you, to liking you, loving you and then not loving you anymore.

Her feelings literally changed several times.

In the same way, you can change how she feels again.

When you trigger her feelings of attraction for you (e.g. by being confident and determined, making her smile, laugh and feel good to be interacting with you again, making her feel feminine and girly in contrast to your emotional masculinity) it becomes difficult for her to hold onto thoughts about you.

She stops wanting to mess with your head and she starts wondering what it would feel like to be in a relationship with the new and improved you.

When that happens, she canâ€™t stop herself from wanting to interact with you via text, social media, on the phone and in person, even though she previously thought that she was over you.

She feels drawn to you and from there, you can build on that initial spark of attraction and confidently guide her back into a relationship with you.

3 Social Media Mistakes to Avoid

When a woman likes your social media posts, it's very difficult to determine her exact intentions. Sure, you can speculate, but you will likely never know the exact truth.

So, it's usually better to just go ahead and focus on re-sparking her feelings for you, rather than wasting time trying to figure out what she really means.

Where some guys go wrong is by making some of the following mistakes:

1. Over analyzing her actions on social media

Sometimes a guy might follow his ex's every move online in an attempt to understand her feelings for him.

He's hoping that she might say or do something that will clearly tell him that she still cares about him.

For example: A woman might post comments on social media like, "Sunday nights are the loneliest," or "I'm having so much fun these days."

He ex might then read her comments and start wondering, "What did she mean by that comment? Could she be hinting that she wants to get back together again because she is lonely without me?" or "If she's happy being single, I probably don't stand a chance with her again, right?"

If she clicks like on one of his posts on Facebook, is continuing to follow him on Twitter or Instagram or is watching his Snapchat videos, he may then begin to imagine what it could all mean.

He might say to himself, "She clicked like...so, does that mean she is interested?" or "She watched my video. Does that mean she is missing me?" or, "She didn't like this/that photo, what does it mean? Could it be because she doesn't like the photo, or is it because she doesn't like me anymore?"

Yet, here's the thing!

You will drive yourself crazy are always trying to understand what your ex means when she likes your social media posts.

You need to forget about what she means and focus instead on actively making her feel respect and attraction for you again.

That's what really matters.

Right now, she might be clicking like, but that doesn't mean she has strong feelings for you, or that she is sitting at home thinking, "I'm so glad we're broken up. I hate him. I don't want thing to do with him."

Her click, follow or view of your social media activity could mean a whole bunch of things, but what really matters is this!

Does she feel attracted to you?

Is she feeling an increasing desire to get back with you?

Do you know what to say and do to get her back if you call her and meet up with her?

Are you just wasting precious time giving her lots of space and hoping that she comes back?

If you're not doing much to actively get her back and are simply hoping that she contacts you via social media, text or calls you, then you might be waiting for a long time and she may just move on without you.

Alternatively, if you call her on the phone and trigger her feelings for you again by making her laugh, smile and feel good to be talking to you again, it won't matter what she really means by liking your posts because she will be feeling attracted to you right then and there.

Her guard will come down and she will be open to catching up with you in person, where you can then get her back for real.

Another mistake to avoid is

2. Posting up things that turn her off

For example: A guy might post "pity me" type posts or status updates, as a way of getting her attention.

He may post a status update like, "This has been a tough year for me. I never thought love was so complicated," or "What do women want? I have no clue. Maybe I doomed to be single for life!"

He may hope, "If she sees how badly I'm hurting, she will feel sorry about the way she treated me. She then will contact me to apologize and we can get back together."

Another example is when a guy uses social media to rant about women or relationships and generally complain about his life.

Once again, he may be hoping that his ex will pick up on his state of mind and feel bad for what happened or how she treated him.

Yet, that's not usually how it works.

A woman doesn't want to be with a guy out of a sense of pity or guilt.

Instead, she wants to be with him because it feels good to be around him (i.e. she feels respect for him, she feels sexually attracted to him, she loves him).

So, if a guy tries to get his ex's pity via social media, rather than make her think, "Awww, my ex is really hurting. I'm being such a bitch to him. I should call him up and see if we can work things out between us," she will usually just block him from her social media accounts and try to move on.

Another mistake that guys make is

3. Posting up photos of himself alone

This is the most common mistake that I see men make when they are in the process of trying to get a woman back.

He will want to show his ex that there are no other women or people in his life and he's essentially just sitting around waiting for her.

Yet, women don't feel attracted to loneliness and desperation in men.

Women feel attracted to men who are liked by other people and who have the confidence to get on with enjoying life, with or without her around.

So, acting like you are patiently waiting for her and have nothing else going on in your life isn't going to help you get her back.

Important: It's not enough to post up photos of yourself doing fun things alone (e.g. taking your first flying lesson, going to the beach alone, taking photos of the food you are eating).

She needs to be able to see you around other people, so she can believe that you aren't just sitting around feeling lonely and sad without her.

That's what really makes a difference and allows a woman to relax and open back up to her man, rather than being afraid that he's obsessing over her and desperately needs her back ASAP.

Additionally, some guys think that posting up good looking photos of themselves alone will do the trick.

He will assume that if he looks good physically, his ex will feel jealous and begin to worry about losing him to another woman.

Heâs hoping that sheâll think something like, âWow, my ex looks really good. Iâm sure heâs got women lined up wanting to date him now. I'd better get in touch with him right away before some other woman snaps him up and I lose him forever.â

Yet, rather than feel jealous, his ex will usually feel turned off by his lonely, poser photo.

Why?

She has to wonder why he is alone.

Why isn't he around other people? Do people not like him now because he's lost so much confidence after being dumped? Has he lost his social confidence after being dumped and can't work up the courage to get out and have some fun? Is he lost without her?

If she thinks those types of thoughts about him, she will lose even more respect and attraction for him.

So, what should you do instead of posting up lonely photos of yourself trying to look your best?

Focus on genuinely having fun in your life and post up photos on social media to let her see that (e.g. having fun with friends or other women, traveling, doing something daring like bungee jumping, going for a daytrip somewhere with friends, partying with friends, trying a new outdoor activity with friends).

Note: If your ex unfriends you from Facebook, just make sure that you set the photos to "public" so she can see them from the outside anyway.

I've helped 100s of men to get their women back and what I've found is that just by being around other people (rather than being alone) and showing her that you're happy without her, is usually enough to make her contact you or be open to meeting up with you in person.

However, if she sees that you are alone all the time, or that nothing special or new is going on in your life, she will fear that you will desperately try to get her back if she meets up with you or shows too much interest on a phone call.

Make it Happen, Before it's Too Late

Sometimes, a guy can waste a lot of time waiting for clear, obvious signs from his ex that sheâs interested in getting back together again.

For example: He might say to himself, “I know that my ex has been liking my social media posts, but what if she’s just doing that to be nice? I need to be sure that she wants be back 100% before I risk contacting her. I don’t want to jump to conclusions and then find out that I was wrong. That will be humiliating. So, I’m going to wait around and see what happens. I’m sure that she will eventually give me a really obvious sign that she wants me back and I will then make my move.”

Unfortunately, most women won’t do that.

In most cases, when a woman is open to the idea of getting back together with her ex, she won’t tell him that she wants him back or give him a crystal clear sign because she doesn’t want to seem too easy.

She also wants to see what kind of man he is (i.e. does he have the balls to get her back, even though she’s not giving him 100% clear signs?)

If her ex doesn’t have the confidence to simply pick up the phone and arrange a meet up with her, she will usually just move on and forget about him rather than trying to help him through the ex back process.

So, if you want to get your ex back, you must be emotionally courageous enough to contact her, meet up with her and begin the ex back process, rather than waiting around for signs from her that she wants you back.

The sooner you get her on a phone call with you and trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you again, the faster she will be back in your arms.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Did Your Ex Break Up With You Because the Relationship Wasn't Going Anywhere?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

5 possible reasons why your ex may have said, “The relationship isn’t going anywhere,” and then broke up with you are:

1. You Lacked Purpose in Life Outside of the Relationship

[image: You lacked purpose outside of the relationship]

A lot of guys believe that a woman will be flattered when her guy needs her so much that he makes her the centre of his world.

A guy like that might give up interests and hobbies in his life that don’t include his woman, so that he doesn’t have to spend a minute apart from her.

He may also stop hanging out with his friends, unless he can bring her along too.

Eventually, everything that he does revolves around her and he doesn’t make a move in his life without her.

In his mind, he may be thinking, “By showing her that she is the most important thing in my life, my woman will feel loved and appreciated. That’s what women want, right? I will make her the center of my world and care about her more than anything. Then she will realize how lucky she is to have a guy like me who loves her, adores her and puts her first in his life. She will then never want to leave me.”

Yet, in most cases, the opposite is true.

What a lot of guys don’t realize is that making a woman your purpose in life is the fastest way to lose her respect.

Naturally, that doesn’t mean that a woman wants to be disregarded, treated badly, or taken for granted.

However, a woman wants to be with a man who is loving, caring and devoted to her, while at the same time being emotionally independent and making progress in life without needing her to hold his hand along the way.

Essentially, your woman should be the most important person in your life, but not the most important thing.

What should be the most important thing?

Think about the kind of men that women look up to and admire the most.

What do they all have in common?

They have a big life purpose (i.e. big ambitions, goals, a dream to accomplish or achieve something) outside of the relationship with their woman.

Their whole life is not about her.

So, to keep a woman happy (and to be truly happy yourself as a man), your woman should be the most important person in your life, but your life purpose should always be the most important thing. You should be pursuing your life purpose with or without her reassurance, approval, guidance or support.

If you do that, she will feel respect, attraction and love for you for life for being your own man, rather than hiding behind her and the safety of the relationship.

On the other hand, when a guy makes his woman his sole purpose for living, she usually just feels smothered by what she perceives as his insecure, clingy, needy and immature behavior.

Here's the thing!

If a woman stops feeling respect and attraction for her man and he doesn't recover those feelings and build them back up, she will eventually decide to break up with him.

When that happens, a guy might instinctively try to change her mind by pleading with her.

For example: He might say to her, "Please baby! Please don't do this to me. You know that I can't live without you. You're my main reason for living. Everything I've ever done is for you. You mean the world to me. Please give me one more chance. I'll do anything you want. I just can't face the world without you by my side."

He's hoping that if he explains just how much he cares for her and needs her, she will change her mind and think, "I'm so lucky because I have a man who is completely focused on me!"

Yet, in reality, he's simply highlighting the things about himself that have been turning her off (i.e. he lacks purpose) and that have caused her to want to break up with him.

So, if your ex broke up with you because you lacked purpose in life outside of your relationship with her, to get her back, you need to show her that even though you still love her and want her back, you now have a purpose in life that is separate from her.

You have big goals, dreams and ambitions of your own and you are working towards achieving them. It's not just a dream or a goal.

You are actually making progress towards it now.

You have begun to take real steps along the path of becoming the man you know you should have been all along.

This changes you and automatically makes you more attractive to her and other women because you become and be your own man.

She then notices that you want her back, but don't need her back to have a sense of identity and purpose in this world.

As a result, she can look up to you, respect you and feel attracted to you once again.

All of a sudden, she stops thinking, "I'm wasting my time with this guy. Our relationship is going nowhere," and she begins wondering, "Did I make a mistake by breaking up with him? Have I let the best thing that ever happened to me go? Maybe we should get back together again."

However, be warned!

Do not go to her and say, "Okay, I have a purpose in life now. Are you proud of me? Do you like me again? Do you approve? Can I get another chance now."

Women hate that.

Why?

It makes her feel like she is guiding you and helping you grow up and become a man, which makes her feel like she is your mother, big sister, teacher or mentor.

That's not how a woman wants to feel about the guy that she is in a sexual, romantic relationship with.

She wants to feel like your girl who can look up to you as her man.

She doesn't want to feel as though she is above you in terms of dominance and maturity.

She wants you to be the emotionally stronger and more emotionally mature one in the relationship, so she can look up to you and be your girl.

That's a dream scenario for women, even though most women don't admit it and even though some women don't even realize it (i.e. because they've been brainwashed by society into thinking that they should think, behave and act like men).

So, if you made the mistake of making your woman your purpose in life, start getting clear on what your biggest goals and ambitions for life are and take steps along that path.

As you do, you will realize that life becomes increasingly interesting, amazing and enjoyable for you and you automatically become increasingly attractive to your ex and other women.

Another reason why your ex may have said that the relationship wasn't going anywhere is thatâ

2. Her Friends Were Married or Getting Married, But You and Her Were Still Just Boyfriend and Girlfriend

[image: Why doesn't he want to marry me or start a family?]

If a woman reaches the point in her life where all her friends around her are moving forward in their relationships (e.g. getting married, starting a family) and she isn't, she may begin to wonder if her relationship is worth sticking with.

She may think, âHow long must I wait for my guy to take things to the next level between us? Iâm not getting any younger and I don't want to carry on going through my life feeling uncertain like this. If heâs not interested in getting married (or starting a family), I need to get out of this relationship and find a guy who is ready to commit to me in the long-term. This relationship just isn't going anywhere.â

She might initially hint at her unhappiness by saying things like, âIâm the last one of all my friends thatâs still single,â or âGee! Another one of my friends is getting married. I wonder if Iâm going to spend my life always being the bridesmaid but never the bride.â

Sheâs hoping that her guy will realize what she wants (i.e. to get married) and that he will be man enough to take the lead and guide them to the next step of their relationship together.

However, if the guy doesn't pick up on her hints, she may eventually get to the point where she feels the relationship isn't going anywhere and she will usually break up with him.

When that happens, the guy might react in one of two ways:

1. Ask her to tell him what he needs to do to make her happy

A guy might say something like, â€œWhy? What have I done? I thought we were happy together. Please don't break up with me. Just tell me what you need me to do and I will do it. I'll do anything for you!â€

Yet, in most cases, a woman doesn't want to tell her guy what he needs to do to please her.

If he simply follows her instructions and does whatever she wants, it takes the romance out of it.

That's not what she wants.

She wants to see that he wants for himself and is not doing it to simply please her or shut her up.

If he can sincerely adapt and make a change, it will reignite a lot of her original respect and attraction for him and she will start viewing the relationship in a different light from then on.

Another bad reaction a guy might have is toâ€

2. Rush a marriage proposal out of desperation

When she breaks up with him a woman might say to her guy, â€œLook. I've had enough. I'm tired of waiting for you to get serious about us. You weren't willing to commit to me, so I'm moving on. I can't wait for you forever.â€

Out of desperation he might then say, â€œNo, please don't go! You and I were meant to be together, I was just too slow to realize it, but now I see where I went wrong. Let's get married. I love you and I want you to be my wife. We can do this. I don't want to lose you. Be my wife! please! I will buy you an amazing ring. I will sell my car if I have to so I can afford to buy you a ring right away. I will get you the best ring that I can. Please don't give up on us. You mean everything to me.â€

Yet, although he really does mean well, it's not what a woman wants.

Women are completely turned off by desperation in men.

So, desperately proposing because you're afraid of losing her (even though you don't even want to get married right now), can quickly backfire on you.

Firstly, if you get married when you're not fully ready to commit to one woman, all sorts of problems may arise that can tear you apart (e.g. you may start resenting her and treating her badly, you might start behaving like a single guy again by hanging out with friends, partying, getting drunk, flirting with other women).

Secondly, if your woman gets a sense that you only want to get married to stop her from breaking up with you, she will lose even more respect for you based on your lack of authenticity.

Essentially, she wants to feel as though you and her sincerely want the same things in life and are moving forward to a better future together.

If that's not really the case, she will usually just prefer to move on and find another guy who wants to get married because he's ready, not because he feels that his hand is being forced.

Another reason why your ex may have said that the relationship wasn't going anywhere was thatâ€

3. She Felt Like You and Her Were More Like Friends Than Boyfriend and Girlfriend

[image: Feeling just like friends in a relationship with no spark]

In a relationship, it's the man's responsibility to maintain and grow the love, respect and sexual attraction between him and his woman.

Sometimes though, a guy might become so comfortable in his relationship that he falls into the habit of treating his girlfriend more like his best friend or "one of the boys" rather than like his feminine, sexy woman.

For example: A guy might stop noticing her efforts to look sexually attractive for him.

If she asks him, "Does this dress look nice?" or "Do I look okay?" rather than making her feel sexy and feminine in that moment by saying, "Oooh, yeah, sexy, I like it" or, "Yes, I'll be tapping that tonight for sure," he instead says something like, "Yeah, you look fine," or "Why don't you just wear your jeans instead?"

Women don't go around telling men that they want to be spoken to in that way, but if a man doesn't do it for them, they get frustrated.

Once again, she doesn't want to give her man too many instructions on how to talk and behave because she will then start to see his behavior as forced or insincere, which takes the romance out of it.

A woman wants to see your raw attraction coming out of you freely and openly, rather than hiding it away or suppressing it because you don't think it's appropriate or nice.

She wants you to make her feel sexy, attractive and wanted by you.

You don't have to go overboard with it and say things like that everyday, but it does need to be included into the attraction experience of being in a relationship with you.

If you don't, she will begin to feel the desire to seek that attention and validation from other men, which will lead to cheating or a break up.

So, it's always important to treat your woman like your woman, not like your friend or a buddy.

Likewise, it's also important to continue adding some romance into the relationship (e.g. going out to dinner, going away together for a romantic weekend) to let her see that you're not seeing her as one of the guys or as just a friend that you live with now.

She's your woman and you love her, appreciate her and feel sexually attracted to her.

So, if a guy just expects her to hang out with friends all the time, sit at home watching TV together or get out of his way while he plays video games every weekend, she will eventually get to the point where she thinks, "This relationship isn't going anywhere."

He might think, "This is great. My girl and I are so comfortable together that we can just relax and be ourselves. I don't have to put on an act and try to impress her."

Yet, what a guy like that doesn't realize is that although there's nothing wrong with being totally comfortable in a relationship with a woman, for her to stay attracted to him, he needs to keep her feelings for him alive and well.

If he just sits back and assumes that because she loves him she will stick with him no matter what, heâ□□s in for a shocking surprise that will shake him to his core.

That moment when a woman says, "We need to talk" and then proceeds to break up with him.

Here's the thingâ□!

In todayâ□□s world, a woman doesnâ□□t need to stick with a man if he stops making her feel the way she wants to feel in a relationship.

Modern society allows her and even encourages her to break up with a guy who doesn't appreciate her and make her feel like a real woman in a relationship.

So, if a guy starts treating his girlfriend more like his friend than his woman, she may start thinking, â□□I didnâ□□t sign up for this. I want a man who can make me feel like a sexy woman around him. I don't want to be with a guy who thinks that Iâ□□m his roommate or best friend. Clearly this relationship isnâ□□t going anywhere,â□□ and she will then break up with him and try to move on.

The guy might then feel shocked and ask, â□□What? Why? What did I do wrong?â□□

The answer is this: The less feminine and girly a woman feels around her man, the less sexual attraction she feels for him and the less she wants to stay with him.

So, if you want to get your ex back, make sure that every time you interact with her from now on, youâ□□re triggering her feelings of attraction for you and are making her feel girly and feminine, rather than being a nice, neutral friend to her.

Even though you are broken up, you still can talk to her in a way that makes her feel sexy and wanted.

Don't be afraid to talk to her in that way.

If she senses that you are afraid to own your attraction for her in a masculine way and are instead feeling like you're not allowed to flirt with her and show interest, she will lose respect for you for being intimidated by her.

A woman does not want to feel more dominant than you.

Of course, there are some women who like that (i.e. a dominatrix, an ugly woman, a masculine woman who is confused and doesn't know if she wants to be a man or a woman).

However, pretty much every other woman wants to feel less dominant than you.

So, don't be afraid to say something like this when you next see your ex, "Hey, you're sexyâ□|watch outâ□|look at those legsâ□|nice jeans girl."

Let her see you allowing your raw attraction for her to flow freely without fear.

She might say, "Hey, you can't say that. We're broken up," but that will be just her testing to see if your confidence is fake.

So, just laugh and say, "Relax girlâ□|you're so serious aren't you? We can say whatever we like to each other."

She will automatically feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and will feel like your woman again.

Another reason why your ex may have said that the relationship wasn't going anywhere is thatâ□!

4. She Didn't Feel Excited About How Her Future Would Turn Out With You

A woman likes the idea of being with a man who is rising through the levels of life, rather than hiding from his true potential as a man.

She wants to see that he either has or will have the ability to take care of her and a family, if they decide to have one together.

So, if he is just going through life without a clear purpose or direction (e.g. is stuck in a dead-end job, relies on his woman for financial support, lives at home with his parents, wastes most of his free time playing video games or watching sports), it will cause her to feel insecure about her future with him.

A woman will often tolerate a relationship like for months or years, because she is secretly hoping that he will eventually grow up and give her what she wants.

She may even say to herself, “He’s not that bad. Sure, things aren’t perfect right now, but I’m sure he’ll eventually stop being so immature and change.”

Yet, if she always feels insecure and anxious about their future together, she will begin to respect for him and will eventually decide to break up with him.

A woman just doesn't want to feel as though she has to always be the emotionally stronger or more emotionally mature one in a relationship with a man.

She wants to be able to relax, knowing that he's got things under control or he is in the process of getting things under control.

If he can give her that piece of mind, she will stick with him for life and always be cheering him along, supporting him and caring for him along the way.

Finally, another reason why she might have said that the relationship wasn't going anywhere is that

5. She Hoped You Would Change and Improve, But You're Still Making the Same Old Mistakes

[image: You kept making the same old mistakes]

Most women don't just break up with a guy at the spur of the moment.

It might feel like that at the time, but trust me she has been thinking about it for a while and slowly building up to it.

Most of the time, a woman will give a guy multiple opportunities to change and improve himself before she finally gets to the point where she says something like, “It’s over. I’ve had enough of this! No matter how many times I’ve asked you to change, you still keep doing the same old things that turn me off. I’m not going to put up with that one minute longer. I am breaking up with you. I’m sorry, but I have to do this.”

When that happens, a guy will usually desperately try to make her change her mind.

For example: He might say to himself, “I can’t lose her! I still love her! I don’t want some other guy being with her! So, if she wants me to change Iâll do it.â

He may then work hard to change things about himself that don't really matter to her (e.g. shopping for lots of new clothes, working out hard at the gym to lose some weight or gain some muscle).

Yet, thatâs not what a woman really cares about when she breaks up with a guy.

Of course, most women will appreciate a guy who improves himself physically.

However, a manâs physical changes are not whatâs going to make her change her mind about him.

If he wants her back for real, he will need to improve himself mentally (i.e. have a more attractive attitude), emotionally (i.e. be emotionally stronger and more mature) and in how he behaves and interacts with her.

Why?

What matters most to a woman is how a guy makes her feel when sheâs interacting with him in person.

It's based on how he thinks, feels, talks, behaves and acts, not how much muscle he has built in a gym or his new hairstyle.

Sure, a woman can appreciate the superficial, physical things about a guy, but only if she already respects him.

If your ex currently doesn't look up to and respect you, she's not going to care about superficial changes that you make to your appearance.

So, if you want to get your ex back, you need to first change and improve the things she really cares about (e.g. become more emotionally independent, make her feel feminine and girly in your presence, become emotionally masculine, be purpose driven).

However, just remember: Don't make changes and then go to her and look for a pat on the head for doing so well.

She wants you to change because you want to do it, not because it will impress her.

So, just start being the kind of man who will be naturally attractive and appealing to her and then guide her through the ex back process.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Should You Act Aloof Towards Your Ex When She Contacts You?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

No, there's no need for games like that.

The best approach is to make her laugh, smile and feel good when talking you to, so she is willing to communicate further and meet up with you.

Making her laugh and smile also gets rid of most of the negative or awkward tension between you, which doesn't actually need to be there just because you're broken up.

After all, you and her used to be really into each other and had a lot of fun times together, so don't mess with that memory.

Just be the kind of guy that she can actually like and want to be around.

[image: Talking to your ex on the phone]

If she makes the effort to contact you, it usually means that she's still interested and is hoping that something happens between you and her again.

Yet, she won't always come out and say that directly.

For example: Before a woman contacts her ex, she might feel a bit nervous and wonder, â€œIs this really a good idea? Maybe I should just wait for him to contact me first. What if I call him up and he doesn't want to talk to me, or he's cold and aloof towards me? I'd just be making a fool of myself.â€

If she then contacts you and you're being aloof and acting like you don't even care to be speaking to her again, she might decide to get revenge on you by hooking up with another guy or simply ignoring you and never answering one of your calls or texts ever again.

Unless your aim is to punish her for breaking up with you and then move on without her, there's no need to be aloof.

If you want her back, you should make it easier for her to talk to you, rather than trying to push her away.

This is why I recommend that guys accept a so called "friendship" with their ex, so the lines of communication remain open and she is willing to meet up with him in person.

When you make her feel relaxed and happy to be talking to you, it becomes a lot easier to wipe away any negative emotions that she might have been holding onto about you.

She then drops her guard and begins to wonder why she broke up with you in the first place.

On the other hand, if you're cold and aloof towards her and pretending like you're not interested, she becomes more defensive and closes herself off even more.

She then thinks something like, â€œWell, that was a huge mistake! I knew that I shouldn't have even bothered with him. He's too immature at this point in his life to get me back by being a man about it. Well, I gave it a shot and now I know that it's just not going to work out between us now. So, it's time to find myself a new guy.â€

So, if you don't want that to happen, don't play mind games with her by acting aloof or pretending that you don't care about her anymore.

For example: Some guys think that acting aloof will make her feel attracted to him because heâs playing hard to get.

Hope hopes that it will make her want to get back together again even more.

Yes, that can work if the woman still has strong feelings for her ex, but if your ex doesn't feel much or anything for you right now, then acting aloof is almost certainly not going to work.

Instead, it will backfire and she will either move on or completely ignore you from now on.

Of course, most guys don't realize that and simply hope that it will be an easy trick to use to get her back.

So, he mightâ

1. Ignore her texts to seem less needy

Some guys are worried about seeming needy, so they ignore an ex even when sheâs reaching out to him (e.g. by sending him a text, e-mail, or a message on social media).

A guy might say to himself, âI donât want my ex to think that Iâm a needy guy. If she gets a sense that Iâm really happy to hear from her, she will just think that Iâm desperate to get her back (which I am), but I donât want her to know that. However, if I ignore her for a little while, not only will she see that Iâm not needy, she will hopefully realize how much she still loves me and she might even start to worry about losing me. Then, she will want to get back with me really quickly.

So, when he gets a text from his ex, rather than using it as an opportunity to open the lines of communication and re-attract her (e.g. by making her laugh and smile) he instead decides to ignore her.

Secretly, heâs hoping that if she doesnât get a response from him right away, she will perceive him as being emotionally strong (i.e. because heâs not being needy) and she will then feel attracted to him again and quickly text him back saying something like, âWhy wonât you answer me? I really miss you. Please, can we meet up somewhere so that we can talk about our relationship? I really need to see you.

Wouldn't it be nice if human psychology were that simple?

Well, it's not.

Unless a woman is very young and inexperienced with relationships, she's not going to fall for the old "ignore her and she'll come running back" trick.

Rather than make her think, âWow, my ex is so cool! Heâs clearly not needy and desperate like other guys. He didnât even jump at the chance to talk to me again when I contacted him. Thatâs really amazing! Wow! That makes me respect him so much because heâs not being a needy guy. I want him back NOW! she will usually just feel disappointed and turned off by his immaturity.

Of course, she might wonder why he isnât contacting her, but since her feelings of respect and attraction for him arenât very strong, she will just say to herself, âI canât believe I bothered to reach out to him and now heâs ignoring me, especially after everything that happened between us. I hope he doesnât think that Iâm sitting around pining for him, or that I desperately want him back. That's what I get for trying to be nice. Well I'm definitely not chasing after him anymore. I can get a dozen guys to go out with me right away. He's messed with me for the last time! I will show him who can play games. I will break his little heart when he finds out that I'm happy with another guy and don't want him back anymore. I'll show him.

So, don't play hard to get with your ex.

If she's texting you, it could mean that she still has a small spark of feelings left for you in her heart and by ignoring her, you actually cause that spark to go out.

The best way to show your ex that you care without seeming needy is simply not to answer her texts right away.

Waiting for 5 minutes to a few hours is enough time to not be coming across as needy, while at the same time not turning her off by making her feel like you're ignoring her.

You can instantly reply to some of her texts of course, but just make sure that you relax and leave some space in between some texts.

That way, she will be thinking, "Huh? Why didn't he reply to that? Did I say something wrong? Is he with someone else?" and she starts to imagine you with another woman.

She then starts to feel like she needs to get you back quickly, otherwise you might just move on without her.

However, just make sure that when you're texting her, you're not acting at all.

Don't act aloof or pretend that you don't care.

Instead, be someone that she can like and want to be with again.

Focus on making her smile and laugh and then get her on a phone call with you, where she can sense that you really have changed, matured and are no longer the same guy that she broke up with.

Actively sparking a woman's feelings of respect and attraction for you almost always works better than simply ignoring her.

In most ex back cases, all it takes is one small spark of respect and attraction to make her start thinking of you in a more positive light and open herself to getting back together again with you.

On the other hand, if you ignore her texts to seem less needy, it will usually backfire and by the time you reach out to her she will likely say something like, "It's too late. When I texted you, you decided to ignore me. I've moved on. I'm seeing someone else and I'm really happy."

It's over between us. Please leave me alone.

Another way that a guy might try to appear less needy is to

2. Say that he isn't available to meet her on the day she suggests, because he wants to seem like he doesn't care

Sometimes, a guy might try to hide his feelings from his ex (e.g. because he doesn't want to appear desperate, he can't cope with the pain of being broken up, he is worried that she will play hard to get) by pretending not to care about her any more.

So, when she contacts him and suggests getting together for a catch up on a certain day, he might say, "Sorry, I can't meet you on that day. I'm really very busy. How about another day."

He's hoping that if he doesn't make himself readily available to meet up with her on the day she suggests, it will trigger her fears of losing him and she will then come running back to him.

However, this tactic rarely (if ever) works.

I've heard from so many phone coaching clients who tried to act busy with their ex and she then never, ever wanted to meet up with him again.

So, don't play games.

Just meet up with her so you can properly re-attract her in person.

Remember: If a woman isn't feeling a lot of respect and attraction for her ex, him acting like he doesn't care is usually not going to make her think, â€œOh no! My ex is so busy that he doesn't want to meet up with me. Could this mean he's met another woman and that he doesn't care about me anymore? I can't let that happen! I need to do something to get him back before I lose him for ever. He's mine! All mine!â€

Instead, she's usually just going to think something like, â€œIf he's too busy to meet up with me, then that's fine by me. I tried to be nice and he doesn't seem to care, so I'm not going to lose any more sleep about it. I'm moving on. There are plenty of guys who are interested in me.â€

Even though her ego might feel a bit bruised at the thought of him being over her, if she doesn't have strong feelings for him, it just won't matter that much to her.

She may even use his rejection as motivation to get over him fully and find another guy who can make her feel the way she wants to feel.

So, what should you do instead?

If you want to get your ex back for real, you simply need to re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, by behaving in ways that are attractive to her (e.g. being confident and charismatic, making her smile and laugh, making her feel feminine and girly) rather than by trying to trick her into wanting you back by pretending that you don't care about her or the relationship anymore.

The Mature Approach Getting a Woman Back

[image: The mature approach to getting her back]

Actively making your ex have feelings for you again is the quickest, most mature and most effective way to get her back.

If you resort to playing games when a woman doesn't have strong feelings for you, she will usually get revenge by completely ignoring you from now on or hooking up with another guy.

So, rather than acting aloof towards your ex when she contacts you and hoping that this will spark her feelings for you again, focus instead on using every interaction you have with her as an opportunity to reactivate her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

For example: If your ex sends you a text, rather than ignore her, make sure that you respond in a way that will make her laugh.

If she texts something like, â€œHey you. How are you?â€ rather than respond in the usual, boring way by saying, â€œOh, I'm fine, thanks. How are you?â€ which will do nothing to spark her feelings for you, you can make her laugh or smile by texting something along the lines of, â€œMy *day was pretty boring up to now, but things are definitely looking up.*â□□

She will likely assume itâ□□s because of her and she may even ask, â□□*Why is that?*â□□ and you can then reply, â□□*My pizza order just arrived. Pepperoni and cheese! Yum! Lol*â□|â□□

At this point, she is going to smile and probably feel a bit embarrassed that she thought you were talking about her.

She will also feel attracted to you for being confident enough to joke around with her like that, even though you and her are currently broken up.

Thatâ□□s a much better approach to making your ex open herself up to the idea of getting back together again, compared to acting aloof towards her.

You are being a guy that she can actually like and enjoy spending time with, rather than trying to act cool by being Mr. Aloof.

From now on, I recommend that you stop playing mind games with her and start making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new you.

When you approach the ex back process in a confident and mature way, your ex will be less guarded and will be much more open to getting back together again.

So, forget about the minds games.

If you want to get your ex back, do it like a man and get her back for real.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

3 Possible Reasons Why Your Ex is Saying That She's Confused About Whether or Not to Get Back With You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a woman is saying, I'm confused about whether or not to get back with you, it can be because!

1. She Doesn't Think You Can Change and Give Her the Attraction Experience She Wants

[image: She doesn't think you can change and give her what she really wants]

In most cases, a woman doesn't just decide to break up with her guy at the spur of the moment for no reason at all.

Instead, she has usually spent a long time thinking about it and debating with herself by thinking things like, I still care about him. Maybe if I give him another chance he will change this time, and then No! I've had enough. I've given him plenty of chances and he never changes. I don't believe that he will ever change, or even that he knows how or what to change. It's better if I just break up with him and find myself another guy who can give me the attraction experience I really want. He just doesn't get it and probably never will.

So, when she finally breaks up with him and he tries to get her back, she may end up saying things like, I don't know, I'm confused about whether or not to get back with you. I haven't decided yet because deep down, she's still going through the same debate in her mind (i.e. that she still cares for him vs. she doesn't believe that he can change and give her what she really wants).

Most women don't want to be that girl who is unlucky in love and is always getting in and out of relationships, so they try to hang on if they can.

It's embarrassing for most women to have to go to her friends and family and admit that yet another relationship has failed, because she doesn't want to look like she's hopeless at selecting guys or at keeping a relationship together.

Yet, even though she doesn't want the relationship to end, she doesn't want to have to help her guy understand how to be the man she needs.

Not knowing this, a guy will usually make the mistake of saying something like, Why haven't you decided yet? What is making you confused? Just tell me what you want me to do and I will do it. I need you to explain exactly what you want, so that I can give it to you. Then, you won't have to be confused anymore because I'll be giving exactly what you want. Believe me, I am willing to do whatever it takes. Just tell me what I need to do and I will do it.

Yet, that's not what a woman wants.

When she gets to the point of wanting to break up, she will be stressed out and tired of trying to help him become the man that she needs.

Instead, she will be hoping that he can figure it out on his own or get some help and then start being the kind of man that she wants and needs.

Additionally, if she has to explain to him what he needs to change to make her happy, the changes in him won't feel as real compared to if he did it on his own.

She will always suspect that he is just faking the change to make her happy, rather than being his true self.

She then won't know who he really is and if he will someday change back and disappoint her again, especially if she gets pregnant or if they get married and she is then stuck with him.

Here's the thingâ€¦|

Women don't want to be totally responsible for shaping a man and changing who he really is, especially when they have gotten to the point where they've decided that enough is enough and it's time to end the relationship.

When a woman gets to that point, she just wants him to figure it out on his own, so that she can start looking up to him and respecting him as a man.

She doesn't want to have to continue looking down on him or feeling like she will have to continue helping him grow up and become a real man for the rest of her life.

So, the first step to getting your ex back is to renew her feelings of respect and attraction for you, by showing her (via the way you talk, think, behave, interact with her and respond to her) that you have figured out what you need to change about yourself and have already taken action to become a better man than before.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was too needy and insecure in the relationship with her, to convince her to get back with him, he must show her that heâ€¦s now more emotionally independent.

He has to let her get the sense (by talking to her on the phone and in person) that he wants her back, but he doesnâ€¦t need her back to be happy.

He is already happy.

He is confident, happy, emotionally strong and is enjoying life with or without her around.

He wants her back, but doesn't need her back.

When she can see for herself that he really has changed and no longer needs her for his emotional well-being, she will be a lot more open to getting back together again.

On the other hand, if heâ€¦s just saying things like, â€œPlease give me another chance. I miss you so much. I canâ€¦t eat or sleep without you,â€ it simply highlights to her that heâ€¦s still the same guy she broke up with and that nothing would change if they got back together.

Another example is when a man got broken up with for being too emotionally wimpy to the point where he usually fears standing up for himself to her and to people in general.

To make her want to get back with him, he has to show her that heâ€¦s more emotionally strong now and that he can stand up for himself.

If she then tests him (e.g. by being cold or bitchy towards him, by pushing him around) he now laughs at her attempts to mess with him, rather than taking it so seriously.

For example: If she says, “I want to come around to your place and pick up the rest of my stuff,” rather than just giving her a, “Yes Mam!” kind of answer, he can say, “Your stuff? Well, I threw that out already. I sold the good stuff to a pawn shop, but the rest I just threw out. Sorry!” and then have a laugh.

She will then see that he is not only standing up for himself, but he's also able to do it in a way that makes her smile and even laugh.

Suddenly, she realizes that something really has changed about him and she automatically starts to feel respect and attraction for him again.

From that moment onwards, deciding whether or not to get back together again becomes a lot easier for her, because she now feels attracted to the new version of him.

When your ex experiences the new you, it makes her drop her guard and she begins to think, â€œWhy have I been so confused about whether or not to get back with my ex? Heâ€™s nothing like the guy I used to know. This new version of him is how I always wanted him to be. I would be crazy to let him go.â€

From there, you simply need to continue building on her feelings of respect and attraction and guide her back into a relationship with you.

Another reason why your ex might be saying that she's confused about whether or not to get back with you is thatâ€¦

2. She is Being Influenced By Her Single Girlfriends

[image: She is being influenced by her single girlfriends]

Sometimes, when a woman is young and inexperienced with relationships, or has a very close relationship with her girlfriends, she might become easily influenced by their opinions.

For example: A womanâ€™s friends might not like her boyfriend (or husband) very much, so when she breaks him they might then say things like, â€œFinally! He was all wrong for you girl. You made the right decision to break up with him. He was just too serious and uptight around us. At least now you can have some fun and relax. There are plenty of hot guys out there for you to meet, so don't worry about him. Let's just have some fun.â€

Then, if he tries to get back with her, she will likely tell him that sheâ€™s confused about whether or not to get back with him because the opinions of her friends will be weighing her down.

Alternatively, a woman could also think that sheâ€™s just too young to settle down and she might feel jealous of her girlfriends who are enjoying the single life and are free to go out to bars, get drunk and pick up guys if they want to.

This will make her feel uncertain about getting back together with her ex because she will be feeling drawn to the single girl lifestyle and all the fun she could have with her friends.

So, if you want to get her back, you need to make sure that the relationship she has with you from now on feels better to her than the single life and is more important than anything her friends might say about you.

If she is happy in her relationship with you and she feels respect, attraction and love for you, she will be much less influenced by what her friends are saying or doing.

At this point though, some guys hope that giving their ex some space to hang out with her single friends will result in her eventually getting bored of it and coming running back to him.

For example: A guy might say to his ex, â€œDo what you need to do. Take some time to think things over and then when youâre ready we can hook up and see where things go. I will wait for you for as long as it takes.

He might then stop interacting with her for 30 or 60 days (in some cases even longer than that) and hope that everything simply works out between them again.

Yet, when he doesnât hear from her, he starts asking, âWhy isnât she calling me? Does she need more time? Is she still confused about whether she wants to get back together with me or not? Has she met another guy? Is she in love and has now forgotten about me?

In most cases, a woman will just move on if her ex ignores her for too long.

After all, itâs pretty easy for women to get sex.

All she has to do is go out to a bar or nightclub and there will loads of guys who want to stick it in. Likewise, if she gets on an online dating app or site, she will instantly have 100s or even 1,000s of guys lining up to meet her in person.

So, hereâs the thing!

Telling a woman that you will wait for her as long as it takes, usually wonât get rid of her confusion and make her say, âYou know what? Iâve changed my mind. Since you were willing to wait so patiently, it must mean that you are the one. I am going to stick with you.

Of course, in rare cases a woman will say that, but in most cases she wonât.

If getting her back was that simple, you wouldnât be here reading this and learning from me right now, would you?

Youâd just give her some space and sheâd come back.

Yet, your gut instinct is telling you that giving her space probably isnât going to work with her this time.

Something doesnât seem right and you know that sheâs most likely going to try to move on without you.

So, what should you do instead?

Make her feel attracted to you again.

Really attracted.

By making her feel attracted to you in the ways she really wants (e.g. by making her feel feminine and girly in your presence, being more emotionally dominant than her, making her laugh and feel excited to be around you) will cause her to automatically change her mind about the break up.

So, donât waste time waiting for her to make up her mind and run the risk losing her completely.

Instead, to get her to stop feeling confused about whether she wants to be with you or not, you have to actively spark her feelings of respect and attraction again.

When you make her feel attracted in new and exciting ways, she will realize that her love for you is stronger than she ever thought possible.

Then, the thought of losing you worries her and she becomes the one who wants to get back together with you before you decide to move on without her.

Another reason why a woman will say that sheâs confused about whether or not to get back together with you is that!

3. She is Leading You On While She Secretly Tries to Find a Replacement Guy

[image: She is leading you on while she secretly tries to find a replacement guy]

In some cases, a woman might say to herself, “I’m going to keep my ex around for a while until I can find myself another guy. That way, if I don’t meet someone else and I get tired of being single, my ex will always be around as a backup” or, “I will keep him around until I find a new guy. That way, I won’t have to be the one who gets hurt by seeing him move on faster than me.”

She might then give him mixed signals (e.g. being friendly and making him think that she’s interested in getting back together. Then, going cold and saying things like, “I’m confused about whether or not I want to get back with you. Please stop pushing me to make a decision. I still need more time, please respect that”) while she continues to actively look for a new man behind his back.

Some guys don’t want to accept that this might be her ploy and may even say, “My ex is not like that. She’s going to stay loyal to me even though we’re broken up because of the amazing love we used to share. She’s a good woman, so I know she won’t just go and sleep with some random guy. The love that her and I used to share will remind her that we are meant to be together. That alone will prevent her from looking for another guy until she’s ready to get back together with me.”

Yet, thinking like that is naïve and is dead wrong in most cases.

I’ve helped so many phone coaching clients to get their ex woman back and men often say something like, “She’s different. She doesn’t sleep around easily” or, “She wouldn’t do that. She said that she’s not interested in dating anyone else right now.”

He literally believes what she says.

Unfortunately, in most of those cases, the woman was secretly trying to find herself a new guy behind his back, or was already seeing a new guy and kept it completely hidden from him.

So many clients have contacted me back to tell me things like that.

Here’s the thing...

Many women can look you straight in the eye and say, “This doesn’t mean that I want another guy or that I’m going to move on. I’m not interested in dating other guys. I just feel confused right now and need some more time to think. Can you do that for me? Can you just be a little bit more patient?”

She might have been a really good, loving, honest, caring and kind woman during the relationship, but the sad thing is that women change when they decide to break up with a guy.

After all, she is an individual and because of that, she’s going to look after her feelings before yours.

You might be still thinking of her as being the kind, loving, honest woman that she was, but she has to change her approach to you in order to protect herself from getting hurt.

In most cases that I’ve seen, the woman will already be meeting up with one or two other guys who are interested in her (e.g. coworker, friend of a friend, ex boyfriend, random guy she met while she was with you, her boss).

Then, while youâre waiting around for her to make up her mind, she is getting ready to tell you something like, âIâm sorry. Iâve met someone else. I know youâve been waiting for me, but itâs over between us. I was confused before until I met this new guy. I probably should have told you sooner, but I didn't want you to get angry.â

So many of my phone coaching clients have said things like, “She has become a completely different person. She was never like this before. She was just so cold towards me. How can she change and become so selfish?”

Simple.

She was an individual before she got into a relationship with you, while in a relationship and is still an individual now that you and her are broken up.

The same applies to you.

Just because you and her were in love and enjoyed a great relationship for a while, it doesn't mean that you and her have become one.

You have always been and still are two individuals.

The only difference is that when you were in a relationship, you were two individuals who decided to be together.

Now, you are an individual who wants to be with her and she is an individual who is confused about whether or not she wants to be with you.

So, what should you do?

Watch this videoâ|

You've got to start making her feel attracted to you in the ways that are really important to her.

Donâ make the mistake of assuming that just because you and your ex once shared an amazing love, sheâs going to be 100% faithful to you now that you are broken up.

Unless she has strong feelings for you and is leaning towards getting back with you, she simply wonâ feel honor-bound to say âNoâ to another guy if he comes along and makes her feel attracted in ways that really matter to her (e.g. he makes her feel feminine and girly, whereas you slipped into the habit of just making her feel like a friend or “one of the boys” around you).

So, rather than giving her the opportunity to hook up with someone else and potentially move on, you simply have to get her to reconnect with her old feelings of love for you by making her feel respect and attraction for the new and improved version of you.

For example: If a guy had become annoying in the relationship (e.g. always pestering her to get her attention, criticizing her, being silly way too much to get her attention, arguing with her all the time), he will need to show her that he has changed and is now a more charismatic, charming, likeable man. If he was too controlling, he needs to show her that he no longer worries about what she might think, feel or do when he's not around.

When you make your ex feel the way that she really wants to feel (e.g. respectful, attracted, excited, in love) every time you interact with her from now on (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) the thought of hooking up with another guy will vanish from her mind.

She then begins to think, âWhy am I bothering looking for someone else when my ex is actually the man I really want? The only reason I thought I wanted another guy was because my ex wasnât being the kind of man that I wanted him to be, but thatâs definitely not the case any more. He has definitely changed and I really like the guy he has become. Iâd be a fool to lose him. Iâm not confused now. I want him back.â

Once she starts thinking that way, she opens herself up to giving the relationship another chance.

Then, you and her can get back together and get on with being an even better couple than youâve ever been before.

There are great times ahead for you and her.

She is most likely waiting for you to make it happen.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Does Your Ex Feel as Though You Are Trying to Manipulate Her?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

These days, most women who dump their man go online and search for advice on how to get through the break up, which means they usually come across all the standard tricks and techniques that guys use to get an ex back.

So, when he behaves in one of the tricky ways she read about online, rather than just assume that heâs dealing with the break up in his own way, she starts thinking, âI see what heâs up to. Heâs trying to manipulate me into getting back with him. Well, Iâll show him who can play gamesâ and she then becomes (even more) cold and distant towards him.

For example: Some of the tricks that guys use to manipulate an ex woman back into a relationship are:

1. The No Contact Rule

The No Contact Rule is essentially about ignoring a woman for 30-60 days after a break up in the hope that she misses him and comes running back.

Of course, not all guys are trying to be manipulative when they use the NC rule.

Most guys are good guys, so when they use the No Contact Rule on an ex woman, itâs simply because they donât know what else to do.

A guy might have already tried to convince her that he would change and has asked for another chance, but sheâs saying no.

So, he goes online and searches for “how to get an ex back” and finds out that pretty much everyone (except me) recommends that he should use the No Contact Rule to ignore her.

Watch this video to understand why I donât recommend it for guys who want to get a woman backâ!

Ignoring an ex with the NC rule usually doesnât work if she has little to no feelings for you anymore.

Instead, it just helps her have time and space to move on without you.

Of course, not every guy is able to think that clearly when heâs been dumped by the woman he loves, so he will usually just go ahead and try the NC rule.

For example: When she is being cold, distant and stubborn about not giving him another chance, he might then say to himself, âMaybe if I give her some space, she will calm down. Hopefully the time apart will make her realize that she really does miss me and then she will start talking to me again. In fact, she will probably be so impressed that I gave her time to figure things out without harassing her that she will want to get back together with me again. Well, thatâs what everyone says works, so why not. I donât know what else to do.â

He then avoids interacting with her for 30, or even 60 days or more, while he patiently waits for her to contact him and tell him that all is forgiven and she wants him back.

Yet, that rarely happens and in most cases, rather than miss him, the woman is feels more and more annoyed with him and starts putting in extra effort to get over him and move on with someone else.

If he then tries to contact her after 30 (or more days), she will suspect that he has been using the classic NC rule.

She may then think, "Oh, are you finished using the No Contact Rule on me now are you? Do you think Iâ€™m stupid? I know what youâ€™ve been up to. Well let me tell you, I havenâ€™t been sitting around waiting for you to come back, Iâ€™ve moved on. So, you can take your manipulative self right back to where youâ€™ve been for the last month and leave me alone. Iâ€™m over you!"

Of course, she won't necessarily come out and say that because she doesn't want to give the chance to say, "No, I was just giving you space like you asked me to" or, "No, I wasn't. I needed time to think about where I went wrong. I thought it would be best if I didn't try to contact you until I was ready to be the man you need me to be."

She doesn't want him to be able to talk her back into being with him for one of those or many other reasons or excuses he will use for ignoring her for 30-60 days.

Hereâ€™s the thingâ€¦

Even if a woman still has feelings for a guy and secretly wants to get back with him, she doesn't want to feel as though her guy is manipulating her.

Trickery always backfires and in most cases, it just makes it more difficult to get her back because she stops trusting you.

Then, no matter how sincere youâ€™re being with her from then on, she will always have to wonder, "Is this another one of his tricks to get me to do what he wants?"

Alternatively, if a guy ignores a woman for a long time when she doesn't have feelings for him, she will then likely lose even more respect and attraction for him for not having the balls or the skills to re-attract her and reconcile the relationship.

As a result, she might hook up with another guy just to get emotional revenge on her ex for what she believes is his attempt to manipulate her.

Donâ€™t put yourself in that position.

The best approach to getting an ex back, is to be active, rather than inactive.

Essentially what this means is that you need to stay in limited contact with her, so that you can re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you on a phone call and in person.

That's what works to get a woman back.

Sure, in some cases, ignoring a woman does work, but it's only when she still has feelings for you and secretly wants you back, or if she can't deal with the pain of the break up and move on without you.

Yet, if she can deal with it and doesn't really care about you anymore, she's just going to move on.

Likewise, if youâ€™re nowhere to be seen or heard for weeks or months, youâ€™re giving her time to stew in her negative feelings for you and at the same time, find a new guy to fall in love with and move on with.

If she feels as though you are trying to manipulate her by using the NC rule, her negative feelings for you will intensify and she will try even harder to get over you and get revenge on you for attempting to trick her back.

So, what should you do instead?

If she needs it, give her 3 to 7 days of space to allow for things to calm down between you and her before you contact her.

Don't wait any longer than that because there is no real benefit to you (i.e. she will just have more time to get over you and move on).

Remember: You have to stay in touch with her so you can reignite her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you, rather than just sitting around hoping that she comes running back to you when the 30 days are up.

When she can see that you're handling the break up in a mature way, she drops her guard and begins to see you with different eyes.

You then just need to show her by the way that you behave around her that you're no longer the same man she broke up with.

When she sees that, her guard will come down, she will open up to you and you can then guide her through the rest of the ex back process.

Another technique that guys might use to manipulate an ex woman back into a relationship isâ€¦

2. Sending her texts about the good memories they shared together

Quite often, a guy might make the mistake of thinking that by reminding his ex about all the good times they shared together, she will suddenly realize that their love is too precious to lose and come running back to him.

He might then send his ex a text saying something like, â€œI was in the mall today and I saw a woman wearing a knitted pink hat just like the one you used to wear. It made me think of you,â€ or â€œI was watching TV last night and they were showing â€œThe Conjuringâ€ again. It made me think of the time we watched it together and you got so scared that you jumped in my lapâ€ or, â€œI just passed by the restaurant we went to on our first date and thought of you. Hope you're having a great day. Maybe we can chat sometime?â€

He is hoping that by bringing up some good memories they shared together, she will respond by saying something like, â€œWe sure did have some good times together didn't we? Maybe we should forget about the bad stuff that happened between us and try to make some new memories together. I miss you so much. Let's start again!â€

It would be nice if that was how a woman would react, but human psychology just isn't that basic.

Women can see through attempts to manipulate them and in most cases, she will just get annoyed and think, â€œOh please! Does he really think he can sweet talk me into forgetting what really happened between us by bringing up some good times we happened to have together? It's not going to be that easy. He stuffed up and I'm not going to forget about it just because he is bring up good memories.â€

Then, if she also happens to search online and discover that guys use the â€œgood memoryâ€ text method to try and trick their ex back, she will get very annoyed with him for trying to manipulate her.

She may then think, â€œI can't believe he's trying to manipulate me like this. Does he think I'm so stupid enough to fall for the 'Look how great things used to be between us' routine? Well, he can forget about tricking me into giving him another chance. It's not going to happen!â€ and she closes herself off even more.

[image: Why is he sending me a text like that?]

In other cases, a woman will just roll her eyes and think, “Lame. He got that text message from the internet. If that’s all he can do, then he ain’t getting another shot with me. No thank you and good bye!”

So, what should you do instead?

Be real and give her what she really will respond well to.

What is that?

A new and improved you who is not making the same old communication and behavioral mistakes that causes her to break up with you in the first place.

That’s what works.

When you spark her feelings based on letting her experience the new and improved you, she starts to pay attention.

She will then begin remembering some of the happy times that you and her shared and it will actually make her feel good.

She will then start thinking, “We did have some fun times. Maybe we can do it again. He is different now, so it would be different. Should I? Maybe I should. I like who he is now.”

On the other hand, if you don’t spark her feelings for you first and just send her a “remember the good times” text that she’s read about online, it will just make her close off to you even more.

Additionally, what you need to understand is that a woman has to be able to feel respect and attraction for you who are now, not who you used to be.

She has broken up with the guy you became and is going to think of you in that way until you show her the man you’ve become.

It’s Always Better to Be Real

[image: Give her the attraction experience that she really wants]

If your ex feels as though you are trying to manipulate her, it could be because you’re trying to get her back by using widely known tricks found on the internet, rather than doing it properly by giving her the attraction experience that she really wants from you.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was too nice, too sweet and lacked balls around her, she’s going to need to see that he is now more of a real, authentic, ballsy man who isn’t afraid to joke around with her in a ballsy way.

If she being stubborn and not listening to his suggestion to meet up for example, he needs to show her that he doesn’t react like her used to.

If he would normally say something like, “Please give me a chance to explain” or “I’ll do anything to make it up to you,” he needs to remain calm and make a joke about her behavior by saying something like, “Whoa! I’ve met bulldozers that are less pushy than you,” or “I think you missed your calling in life. You should have been a drill sergeant in the army. You want everything your way. Yes Mam!” and he can then have a laugh with her about it.

Another example is if a guy became insecure in the relationship and was dumped for that.

To open herself up to the idea of getting back together with him again, she's going to need to see that he is now emotionally secure, confident and can handle her confidence tests during interactions.

She might test him by pretending to be interested in getting back together again and then pulling back her interest to see how he will react.

If he gets upset about it and starts begging or pleading with her and saying things like, â€œPlease baby! Just give me one more chance to make it up to you. Please don't push me away. I really need you,â€ she will see that he's still the same insecure guy that she broke up with and will remain closed off to him.

On the other hand, if he just remains confident and relaxed and doesn't let her get to him, she will start believing that he really has changed.

Her feelings of respect and attraction for him will come flowing back and then the idea of getting back together again will begin to feel incredibly appealing to her.

Soâ€¦

Just Give Her What She Really Wants

As long as you give your ex what she really wants (i.e. the kind of attraction experience that was missing in your relationship with her), it's not manipulation because you're being a loving man who has listened, adapted and is now able to give her what she wants.

Yes, you might have made some mistakes in the past, but that was the old you.

You are not that guy anymore.

You are new man today and you will be an even better man tomorrow.

So, don't beat yourself up over the mistakes you made with her.

You have become a better man as a result of making those mistakes and you can hold your head up high as you go through the ex back process and get her back.

You have nothing to feel ashamed of and nothing to fear.

If a relationship breaks up, it doesn't mean that you will never be able to get your woman back.

Guys all over the world get their women back every day.

You can do it too.

When you make some attractive adjustments to your way of thinking, talking and the way you behave and interact with her, your ex will begin looking at you with new eyes.

Even if she tries to hold back her feelings for you, they will come flooding back when she realizes that you make her feel so differently now.

Then, rather than think that you're trying to manipulate her, she will feel happy that you took the time to fully understand where you went wrong in the relationship and then made the necessary changes to give her what she really wants.

She will see that you're no longer at the same level that you were at when she broke up with you and then getting back together becomes her idea.

It becomes something that she wants and feels good about.

She wants to hug, kiss, have sex and be in love with you the new you, even if she originally thought that the break up was final.

When that happens, she might even say, â€œLet's try again,â€ or â€œI think I want to get back together again.â€

You can then make sure that this time around you do a better job of deepening your woman's respect, attraction and love for you over time, so that she will never want to break up with you ever again.

That's not manipulation.

It's real, mature, honest love.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Show Your Ex That the Relationship Really Will Be Different This Time if She Gives You Another Chance

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To show your ex that the relationship really will be different this time if she gives you another chance, you must do the following 3 things:

1. Change the Things That Turn Her Off, But She Isn't Telling You About

A woman won't always tell you the real, secret reasons why you have been turning her off.

She might tell you that she doesn't want a relationship or that she needs time apart, but that doesn't tell you what you actually need to change to get her back.

So, here are some of the real, secret reasons why a woman will feel turned off by a guy:

- He believes that because his woman loves him, he can do whatever he wants (e.g. not pull his weight around the house, criticize her, break his promises to her) and it won't matter. This causes her to feel taken for granted, unloved and unappreciated.
- He thinks that being nice and sweet and letting his woman make all the decisions is what she really wants, when in reality what she needs is for him to man up and be in control.
- He becomes insecure in the relationship (e.g. He feels lucky to have hooked up with his woman in the first place and is afraid of losing her. He doesn't believe he can find another woman as beautiful as her) and as a result becomes clingy and needy, rather than remaining confident in his attractiveness and value to her.
- He treats her like a neutral friend, rather than making her feel feminine and girly by being emotionally masculine in her presence.
- He lives day-to-day (e.g. spends most of his time partying or playing video games, drifts from job to job, still lives with his parents or shares accommodation with his single friends, doesn't really care about grown up responsibilities) rather than having big goals and ambitions and continually working towards those like a real man.
- He doesn't understand that women sometimes get emotional and throw tantrums, but secretly wish that her guy wouldn't take it so seriously. He doesn't know that, so he becomes annoyed or gets upset when she throws a tantrum, which annoys her and makes her wish she could find a real man who understands women.

As you can see, there are many subtle and obvious things that can cause a woman to lose respect and attraction for a guy and then make her break up with him.

In most cases though, a woman won't just come out and say, "I need you to change these specific things about yourself, or else I'm going to break up with you."

Instead, she will usually just hint, nag, argue, or if she feels that the guy isn't paying attention to her, throw a tantrum, in the hopes that he'll figure out what is really bothering her and make some changes.

Yet, a lot of guys just don't get it.

They don't understand that women are completely different to men and do not think, talk and behave like men.

If you want to be successful with women, you have to understand that men and women are very different.

You also have to not take what women say so seriously, because they usually say one thing and do another.

Watch this for some examples!

As you will discover from the video above, women generally don't communicate like a man does (i.e. he gets to the point, means what he says).

Instead, they say things that they have to say (i.e. to be politically correct, or test a guy's confidence), rather than what they really mean.

So, when a woman finally breaks up with him, a guy might then ask her, "Why? What did I do wrong? Please tell me. I can change if you tell me what you want me to do."

He will be expecting her to give him a straight answer, but in most cases she won't because she doesn't want to teach him how to re-attract her.

She wants a man who has it figured out or who will learn and then start doing it, not a guy who needs her to explain everything to him in clear, man-to-man language.

Additionally, when a woman has gotten to the point where she has decided to break up with a guy, she is usually in no mood to help him anymore.

So, she will think something like, "Really? You're asking me now? Don't you realize that I've already told you hundreds of times before, but you just weren't listening? Obviously you don't understand women and how we communicate."

However, she will avoid saying that to him because she doesn't want to give him any clues on how to get her back.

Instead, she will often say something like, "I just need some space," or "I just don't feel the same way about you anymore," or "I don't want to be in a relationship right now," to let him down easy and prevent a big scene (e.g. prevent him from begging and pleading with her, becoming angry or violent or trying to talk her out of leaving him).

If you want to show your ex that the relationship really will be different this time if she gives you another chance, you need to fully understand her reasons for breaking up with you and then make adjustments to your way of thinking and behavior.

Then, when you interact with her again (on a phone call, or in person) she will be able to see for herself that you really have changed and she will feel understood.

You don't have to tell her that you've changed because she will pick up on it automatically based on how you now think, talk, behave and react to her.

When she notices the changes, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling some respect for you again, especially because you figured it out and changed without her having to help you.

Another way to show her that things really will be different this time is to!

2. Laugh at Your Previous Mistakes, Rather Than Continually Apologizing For Them

[image: Laugh at your previous mistakes]

Most guys are good guys, so it's only natural that you would want to apologize to your ex for causing her pain.

You're a good man and you want to do what is right.

So, if you haven't already done so, make sure that you do apologize to your ex and tell her that you're sorry for behaving in the way you did.

However, if you've already apologized, don't make the mistake of thinking that more is better. Apologizing once is enough.

Sometimes a guy might need to apologize a few times before his ex will accept his apology, but any more than that and the apology will begin to lose its power.

It will go from being an apology to seeming like a desperate, confused ploy to hopefully get her back by making her feel pity for him.

That doesn't work because women are turned off by desperation and insecurity in men.

So, once you've said I'm sorry, to your ex in a sincere and loving way, don't waste any more time apologizing to her.

Instead, help you and her get past the old mistakes by laughing at them and seeing them as who you used to be, not who you are now.

For example: Imagine that you're talking to your ex over the phone and have sincerely apologized to her for what happened between you.

She might then say something like, It's okay, don't worry about it.

If you leave it at that, she will usually hold on to her negative feelings and possibly even think to herself, I hope he doesn't think that just because he apologized I'm going to forget what he did. Nothing has really changed between us and he can forget about getting back together again if that's what he's hoping for.

So, the best way to ease the tension between you and her is to get her to laugh at how silly you used to be before.

If, for example, your ex broke up with you because you became clingy in the relationship with her, you can show her that you've changed by making a joke about it and getting her to laugh at the things in the past that turned her off about you.

You might say something like, I can't believe how clingy I used to be. I'm amazed that you stayed with me for as long as you did, but I get a feeling you like being squeezed tight by a clingy guy and then laugh about it with her.

She will most likely laugh and see that you obviously have begun to change because you can see that your previous behavior was unattractive.

However, if she decides to be cold towards you and test your newfound confidence, she might say, No, I didn't. That's why I broke up with you, remember?

You can reply in a joking way, â€œYeah, I know. Of course. I now know that the only clingy thing that is sexy is when you wear tight, clingy jeansâ€ and then laugh with her about that.

She will most likely laugh and feel a little flattered that you think she is sexy in tight jeans and have the confidence to tell her even though youâ€™re broken up.

So, not only are you making her feel understood (by admitting you used to be clingy), but youâ€™re also taking the pressure off of the situation and showing her that you really have changed.

Then, by making a playful joke about her jeans, you are getting her to smile and laugh, which makes her enjoy talking to you rather than looking for ways to end the conversation as quickly as possible.

When you use humor and get her smiling and laughing, your ex is going to feel good around you again and her feelings of respect and attraction for you will be reignited.

She will then begin seeing you with different eyes and will start to see that that a relationship really would be different this time around if she gave you another chance.

So, donâ€™t be afraid to make her laugh because itâ€™s one of the best ways to show her that youâ€™ve changed.

Another way to show her that the relationship will be different is toâ€¦

3. Make Her Feel New Emotions With You

[image: She is now getting the attraction experience she wants]

Right now, all the decisions she has made about whether or not to get back with you are based on the things she remembers about you.

For example: If you used to make her feel sweet, calm, loved and wanted and she could always predict how you would treat her, sheâ€™s going to expect that you'd be the same again.

So, to make her see you differently, you need to now create new emotional states inside of her like:

1. Excitement

An easy way to make her feel excited is by being a little unpredictable and not reacting in the ways she expects you to react.

For example: If she is being cold and aloof towards you and is expecting you to get upset or annoyed with her because thatâ€™s what you used to do in the past, you now remain calm and relaxed and laugh about it.

Since you are no longer reacting in the same way that you used to, it becomes more exciting and interesting for her to interact with you.

2. Challenge

If you ex tries to dominate you with her confident personality (e.g. if she tries to control an interaction with her by deciding where you and her will meet up, or talks down to you) rather than accept it like you might have in the past, you now challenge her.

For example: You might say in a firm but joking way, â€œMy, myâ€¦ you really are a Little Miss Bossy Boots now arenâ€™t you? I donâ€™t like that coffee shop youâ€™re suggesting. Letâ€™s meet up at that little coffee shop we used to go to near my house instead,â€œ or â€œWow...you sound just like my 3rd grade teacher Mrs. Roberts. She was also very bossy like you,â€œ and then have a laugh with her about it.

If you were a pushover before, she will feel a bit shocked that youâ€™re standing up to her and she will like it.

As long as you are being positive, playful and cheerful when being challenging, it means that you're not being an asshole or jerk.

However, if you try to become a challenge by being aggressive, difficult to talk to or controlling, then she's not going to feel attracted to you.

So, just relax and playfully be more of a challenge for her and she will love it.

Women know that most guys who get dumped don't have the balls to stand up to their ex in a playful way and instead get on their best behavior (e.g. are extra nice to her, extra patient).

So, when she sees that you can be a challenge while also being a good man, it is very attractive to her.

She knows that other women find that kind of behavior incredibly attractive, which makes her feel like she should meet up with you and maybe give you another chance before another girl steals her from you.

Another emotion to make her feel isâ€œ

3. Submissiveness

Making a woman feel submissive around you is not about putting her down, or disregarding her opinion or her point of view.

It simply means that when you interact with her, you need to be the one who is more masculine than her.

For example: You are emotionally stronger, you are more confident, you aren't emotionally sensitive like a woman, you make decisions or lead the way by getting her to decide on some things with you.

When you do that, she can then relax into feeling like a real woman around you (i.e. girly, feminine, submissive, emotional).

Most women won't ever openly admit that they want to feel that way around a man, but just look at the women who are the happiest with their man and you will see that they feel that way.

At the end of the day, most women secretly want to be a man's girl.

They don't want to be your equal partner or friend; they want to be your woman or girl.

Making her feel submissive around you is one of the quickest, easiest ways to do that.

Of course, if she's like most women, she's not just going to submit without a little bit of resistance.

Women always test to see how real a man's confidence is, so when you suggest doing something, prepare for her to say, "No" initially as a way of testing your confidence.

She wants to see if you are going to submit to her simply because she said, "No" to one of your suggestions or if she is being cold, distant or giving you one or two word answers.

If you don't submit and instead remain confident, she will automatically feel respect and attraction for you and will know that the relationship would really be different this time if she gave you another chance.

Another emotion to make her feel isâ□|

4. Anticipation

Instead of doing what most guys do (i.e. begging, pleading and promising to change, which just turns her off even more), you need to build up the sexual tension between you and her so that she is full of anticipation of what will happen next.

For example: Interact with her, on a phone call, or in person and make sure that you get her smiling, laughing and feeling good to be around you again.

Then, pull away and donâ□□t contact her for a few days.

After about 3 to 7 days (not longer than that), contact her again and spark her feelings of attraction for you even more.

If necessary, donâ□□t contact her again for another 3 to 7 days.

In this way, you build up intense feelings of anticipation inside of her and she starts to wonder, *â□□When is he going to call me again? I canâ□□t wait to hear from him again. Whatâ□□s taking him so long to call me? I want to see him.*â□□

In most cases, a woman will then start contacting her ex and wanting him back.

However, if she doesn't, you simply have to repeat the process until she is willing to meet up with you and get back with you.

Don't Write to Her to Explain How Things Will Be Different

When a guy has reached the point where he desperately wants to show his ex that the relationship really will be different this time if she gives him another chance, he might then decide that the best way to get through to her is by writing to her.

He might then write her a long letter, e-mail or message explaining what he has learnt and how much he believes things could be different this time.

Yet, that rarely works.

Why?

Women feel bored and turned off by a guy who uses long letters, e-mails or messages as a way of communicating his feelings to her, because it shows that heâ□□s unable to gain control of his emotions and handle the situation like a man (i.e. apologize, change the things he needs to change, re-spark her feelings of respect, attraction and love and guide her back into a relationship).

Instead, he just plays it safe and uses letters, e-mails or messages to hide behind, so that he doesnâ□□t have to face her and potentially risk being rejected.

Many women also perceive long e-mails and letters from a guy as being a feminine thing to do, which makes her feel turned off even more.

Women are naturally attracted to masculine men, so if you are acting like a woman would after a break up (i.e. pouring your heart out in a long letter or e-mail), it's not going to make her feel attracted to you.

Additionally, if she's currently thinking something like, "I don't really believe that things will be different if I give my ex another chance," getting a long-winded letter, e-mail or message from you is not going to prove to her that you've really changed.

Your letter to her is just a bunch of words on a screen or piece of paper.

It's not you.

It's just words and potentially promises to change things that you don't yet have any idea how to really change.

The thing is, when it comes to convincing a woman to give you another chance, actions speak louder than words.

So what should you do instead of writing to her?

Focus on making her feel differently, by letting her experience the new and improved version of you on a phone call or in person.

For example: If a guy was insecure and became needy or clingy in his relationship with a woman, then a long letter or e-mail is only going to prove to her that he's still way too emotional.

If he is going to send an e-mail, text or letter to her, he needs to keep it short and to the point and only add in whatever will show her that he has changed.

An example of how to do that is by writing something like, "Hey Melissa, I hope you've been well. Just thought I'd e-mail you as a friend to say hello and that I hope you're having a great day. I've landed a new job at that firm I was telling you about, which has been awesome. Life is looking better each day. Of course, I still miss you and I love you, but I accept that we're not getting back together. Anyway, I hope you're well and enjoying life. Your ex, Steve."

Getting an e-mail or letter like that is much easier for a woman to handle because it's short and to the point.

Compare that to a 10-page e-mail full of emotions, reasoning, convincing and bringing up old memories in the hope that it makes her want to give him another chance.

Women hate that kind of reaction from a man and usually don't even read past 250 words before thinking, "Hhhh...he just doesn't get it. He's writing to me about all of his emotions and feelings and things that he wants to get through to me. He's like a woman. I'm not even going to finish reading this. It's over!"

So, don't put yourself in that position with your ex.

Be short and to the point if you're going to write to her.

However, if you want to get her back for real, just know that the best way to do that is by actively making her feel attracted on a phone call and in person.

The Time For Waiting is Over

If you sit around hoping that she will realize that the relationship will be different and then come running back to you, the chances of it happening are slim to none.

Watch this video to understand why!

The time to take action is now.

Interact with her (e.g. via text, on the phone and in person) and actively make her have feelings for you again, by showing her the new, improved version of you.

She will automatically begin to realize that things really could be different between you and her this time around.

She might not tell you that though, so you need to be the strong one and make the reconciliation happen.

So, make sure that you continue pushing forward and get her back into a relationship with you, where she can see for herself that things already are different now.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

3 Reasons Why a Woman Feels Turned Off When a Man Begs For Her to Come Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Most women feel turned off when a man begs her to come back because of the following reasonsâ€¦!

1. Emotional Weakness is Unattractive to Women

Thereâ€™s no doubt at all that getting broken up with can really suck.

It hurts, especially when you get dumped by the woman you truly love.

Yet, the way that a guy handles the break up is often what determines how quickly he will be able to re-spark his exâ€™s feelings for him and get her back.

For example: A confident, emotionally strong man who believes in himself and in his value as a man will quickly focus on making some attractive changes to his thinking and behavior, so that when he interacts with his ex again (e.g. on a phone call, or in person), he can show her that heâ€™s at a different level as a man.

If he had become annoying, controlling, jealous or clingy, he will quickly change and start being more easy-going, relaxed, trusting and loving and the woman will then feel relieved by the changes in him.

He will also believe that the changes he has made is enough for her to want him back, which will cause him to appear confident when he interacts with her.

As you may know, confidence is naturally attractive to women, so when she sees the changes and notices that he is confident in his attractiveness to her, she can't help but feel attracted to him.

On the other hand, an insecure, self-doubting guy will usually try to convince his ex to come back to him by begging and pleading with her and promising her that he will do whatever she wants if she'll give him another chance.

For example: He might say, â€œPlease, please, please forgive me! I know that I stuffed up, but Iâ€™m going to make it up to you. I promise that this time I will really change. Things will be different. Iâ€™m not the same guy anymoreâ€¦! Iâ€™ve learned my lesson. Please baby! One more chance is all Iâ€™m asking for. Do it for the sake of the love we shared. I promise I will do whatever you want me to do. Just tell me what you want me to do and Iâ€™ll do it. You have my word.â€

Yet, hereâ€™s the thingâ€¦!

A woman doesnâ€™t want to see her ex falling to pieces and making desperate promises that heâ€™s unlikely to keep.

At this point, some guys might be thinking, â€œWhy not? Wouldnâ€™t a woman feel flattered to see that her guy is falling apart without her? Wouldnâ€™t knowing that she means everything to him make her want him back even more?â€

That's how it works in Hollywood movies (for entertainment purposes), but not in real life.

Although there are some women who like it when a guy begs and pleads with her to take him back, in most cases, a woman actually feels turned off by his emotional weakness.

Remember: Women are attracted to emotional strength (e.g. confidence, high self-esteem) and turned off by emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, low self-esteem).

So, rather than make a woman think, â€œOh thatâ€™s so damn sweet. My guy must really love me to be reacting in this way. Heâ€™s such a great guy that heâ€™s even willing to do whatever I say just to make me happy. I think Iâ€™ve been too hard on him. Since that he loves me so much and is willing to do anything for me, Iâ€™d be crazy to let him go, wouldn't I? I've just got to give him another chance!â€ she will likely be thinking, â€œWhy is he behaving this way? Doesn't he realize that by desperately begging, pleading and losing it like this, heâ€™s actually making himself unattractive to me? It makes me feel like I have to mother him and take care of him because he can't cope by himself without me. I don't want to be his mother. Even if I had my doubts about breaking up with him before, his recent behavior has convinced me that heâ€™s simply not the kind of man I want in my life. Besides, all heâ€™s doing is begging, but he doesn't really understand the real reasons we broke up. Heâ€™s just hoping that we can sweep everything under the carpet and pretend that everything is okay just because heâ€™s sorry. It just doesn't work that way.â€

Of course, from the guy's perspective, he really is willing to do whatever it takes and so he thinks that he's being a good man.

[image: Convincing her won't work if she doesn't respect you]

He is sincere and hopes that it's enough to show her that the relationship is worth fighting for.

Yet, he doesn't understand that his emotional weakness and confusion about how to fix the problem is a huge turn off to her.

By begging for a second chance without knowing how to fix the problem, his behavior is basically saying to her, â€œI don't really understand why we broke up, so I need you to help with me that. Also, Iâ€™m too emotionally weak to cope without you, so I need you to help me with that too. Please give me another chance because Iâ€™m falling apart here. I need you to take care of me. Be gentle with me, guide me, protect my heart. I'm so lost without you. Please teach me how to be the man you need.â€

A woman doesn't want to be the one to tell her guy what heâ€™s been doing wrong, because it puts too much pressure on her to be the leader of the relationship.

She just wants to be able to relax and be his woman, knowing that he fully understands how to be the man she needs.

So, rather than begging your ex to come back and promising her that you will do anything she wants you to do, focus instead on figuring out what happened to cause her feelings for you to change.

When you better understand her reasons for breaking up and then make the necessary improvements to yourself, she will be able to see that youâ€™ve learned from your past mistakes and are now a better man.

Then, she will be able to forgive you for temporarily losing control of yourself (and begging) and she will begin to feel respect and attraction for the new and improved you.

Another reason why a woman feels turned off when a man begs for her to come back isâ€¦

2. It Makes Her Lose Respect For Him

[image: Losing her respect by begging]

For example: A guy might try to reason with his ex by explaining how much he cares for her.

He might say something like, â€œPlease donâ€™t do this to us. I love you. I will always love you. Doesnâ€™t that mean anything to you? I know that things didnâ€™t work out between us, but shouldnâ€™t love be able to conquer anything? For the sake of what we once had, please letâ€™s just try and work things out. Just give me a chance to make it up to you. Please! I donâ€™t want to lose you.â€

Yet, if a woman doesnâ€™t have strong feelings for her ex anymore, him telling her how much he cares for her wonâ€™t make much difference to her.

Instead, she looks at his actions as another sign that heâ€™s not man enough for her or is being selfish and needy (i.e. by always talking about how he feels and what he wants and needs), so her respect for him will begin to fade away.

If you want to make your ex care that you care about her, you must make her experience the type of feelings she wants to experience when you interact with her (e.g. respect, attraction, excitement, sexual desire, happiness, relaxation, love).

If you just try to reason with her without sparking her feelings of respect for you first, sheâ€™s just going to keep pushing you away and saying, â€œPlease just accept that itâ€™s over between us. I donâ€™t want to be in a relationship with you anymore.â€

On the other hand, if you spark some of her feelings for you first and then build on that, she then starts to care that you care about her.

Another reason why begging a woman to come back is a turn off is thatâ€¦

3. It Makes Her Lose Faith in His Ability to Handle the Challenges of Life Like a Man

[image: Begging doesn't work on most women]

When a guy begs a woman to come back to him (even though he doesnâ€™t know how to improve himself to be more attractive to her), she begins to suspect that heâ€™s clinging on to the relationship with her because he doesnâ€™t know how to cope with the break up.

The more he begs her to come back, the more respect and attraction she loses for him because she realizes that he is lost, confused and doesnâ€™t even know what he needs to do to fix the situation.

Instinctively, she will be wondering, â€œIf he canâ€™t cope with me breaking up with him, what else wonâ€™t he be able to cope with? What if I get back with him and something more serious happens (e.g. he gets retrenched, one of us gets ill, we experience financial problems)? Will he expect me to be the one to take care of things for him because he canâ€™t cope on his own? I donâ€™t want that. I want a man I can look up to, rely on, respect and feel safe with, not a guy who is too emotionally weak to cope with the challenges of life. I just donâ€™t believe that he is man enough to handle the challenges of life on his own,â€ and she feels turned off by him even more.

She might then actively focus on making it more difficult for him to interact with her (e.g. by refusing to answer his texts or talk to him on the phone, unfriending him on social media or avoiding the chance of bumping into him if they hang out at the same places).

When that happens, a guy might ask, â€œWhy is she being so cold towards me? Why is she being so stubborn? I love her so much and we used to have something special. Why is she being like this?â€

Here's the thingâ€

When a guy begs a woman to come back, the woman instinctively feels turned off by his emotional weakness.

Sheâ€™s not being stubborn or being a bitch about it.

She's simply turned off by his weakness.

Without her even having to think about it, her instincts kick in and warn her, â€œIf you get back with this guy, you won't be safe. He's too insecure and emotionally weak to be able to protect you and take care of you and a family if you choose to have one together some day. He doesn't yet know how to be a man. Remain broken up with him.â€

Even though she may still love him and secretly hope that things would have worked out, if her instincts kick in like that, she will try to steer clear of him.

The only way for him to get her to forgive him is to let her see that he's no longer the same guy anymoreâ€

If you want your ex to stop shutting you out of her life and give you a second chance, you have to rebuild her feelings of respect and attraction for you first, by showing her that you are now man enough to handle the challenges of life.

You can do that by thinking, talking and behaving in some of the ways that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. being emotionally strong and confident around her, being emotionally independent by getting on with your life without her, changing her mood by making her smile and laugh when she is being stubborn and cold towards you).

When she experiences the new and improved emotionally strong version of you, it restores her faith in you as a man.

She starts to see you as a man that she can now look up to and respect, which causes her to begin changing her mind about wanting to be broken up with you.

If You Begged Your Ex to Come Back, Don't Worry. Itâ€™s Not the End of the World

If you begged your ex to come back, don't beat yourself up about it.

Itâ€™s not the end of the world and itâ€™s also not an unforgivable mistake.

As long as you have already learned from your mistake and have become a better man as a result, you can hold your head up high from now on.

How you behave from now on is what matters.

Just write it off as a lesson learned and focus on being an emotionally strong man from now on whenever you interact with her.

For example: The next time you're talking to your girlfriend over the phone, or in person, you can laugh and say to her, "Wow! it's pretty funny what happened when I look back on. I can't believe I lost it like that. Who was that blubbering, begging wimpy guy anyway? I suppose I was just a little shocked at the thought of losing you and I overreacted and I guess my main reason for losing it like that was because I still love you and I didn't want you to leave me. Yet, I know now that it's not a very mature way for a grown man to behave. I know that now, so I just want to say that I'm really sorry for begging you to come back in the way I did. I wholeheartedly accept your decision to break up. I still love you and I do want you to come back, but I respect your decision."

Will saying something like that to your ex make her change her mind?

Yes, sometimes.

I've heard back from some men who've gotten their woman back after a phone call like that, but it's not enough for every ex back case.

Most of the ex back cases that guys come to me for help with are messy break ups where the woman is really turned off and starts out not wanting to give him another chance.

In cases like that, apologizing (like in the example above) is a good start because she can see that you're being emotionally mature about it, which will make her begin to feel some respect and attraction for you.

When she feels some respect and attraction, she can't help but relax her guard a little and begin to open back up to you a bit.

She starts to think of you in a more positive way, which then allows her to be open to the idea of talking to you again and meeting with you.

So, from this day forward, when you talk to her on the phone, or meet up with her in person, make sure that spark her feelings for you (e.g. by being more confident and charismatic, making her feel feminine and girly by being more emotionally masculine, taking the lead in the ex back process rather than expecting her to guide you back into a relationship).

When she experiences the new you, her walls come down and she stops holding on to her negative ideas of the man she thinks you are and begins to see you in a more favorable light.

Then, giving you another chance seems like it would be a good thing for her too because you are now the man that she always wanted you to be.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Should You Hook Up With a Previous Ex Girlfriend to Make Your Current Ex Jealous?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Whether or not you should hook up with a previous ex girlfriend to make your current ex jealous depends on a few things...

1. Does She Think That Your Ex Girlfriend is More Attractive Than Her?

If your current ex dumped you because she thought that she was too good for you, but also thinks that your previous ex is more attractive than her, then hooking up with your attractive ex girlfriend will cause her to feel jealous.

It will also make her feel a renewed sense of respect for your value as a man, rather than continuing on thinking that she is too good for you.

She might say to herself, “If he can get a hot woman like that, then maybe he is a better catch than I originally thought. Maybe I should give him another chance after all. He could attract an even hotter woman than her and then I’m going to feel horrible about losing him.”

Then, at the same time, if you focus on making her feel respect and attraction for you every time you interact with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) by making her laugh, smile and feel good to be talking to you again, she won’t be able to stop herself from feeling totally drawn to you again.

When that happens, she then drops her guard and opens herself to getting back together again because she realizes that losing you will be her loss.

However, if your current ex is insecure about her appearance, she might not want to get back with you because she won’t feel good enough compared to your hot ex.

On the other hand, if she thinks that your ex girlfriend is less attractive than her, then it will actually make her lose respect and attraction for you for hooking up with a less attractive woman.

She might then say to herself, “If she’s the best that he can do after me, then I’m better off without him. Clearly I was too good for him. He got lucky when he picked me up. Well his luck has just run out and I’m moving on. I’m going to find myself a guy who deserves a woman like me.”

Here’s the thing!

In most cases, it’s not a good idea to play one woman against another.

Rather than trying to get her back by making her feel jealous (and standing the chance of potentially losing her if she finds out), focus instead on re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you when you interact with her on the phone and in person.

When she feels attracted to you in a whole new way, she will then want to get back together because it feels good, not because she doesn’t want some other woman to have you.

Remember: If you try and get her back by making her feel negative emotions such as jealousy and envy, it might backfire and making getting her back more difficult.

Of course, if you just want to have a bit of fun and mess with her head, then go ahead.

Yet, if you want to get her back the easy way, this is how it’s done!

When you start making her feel attracted in the ways that matter to her, she naturally feels drawn to you again and wants to see you.

For example: If you became insecure in the relationship, but are confident, charismatic and charming when you talk to her now, she will naturally feel attracted to you and drawn to you.

From there, you just have to meet up with her and get her back by hooking up with her and beginning the relationship again from there.

Another question to ask yourself before you hook up with your previous ex to make your current ex jealous isâ€¦|

2. Is Your Current Ex the Sort of Woman Who Likes a Guy Who is a Challenge to Keep Interested?

[image: Does your ex prefer a guy who is a challenge?]

Some women like it when their guy quickly starts hooking up with another woman after she dumps him because she enjoys the thrill of being with a guy who can have any woman he wants.

For example: A woman like this might fear that a relationship will get boring and stale over time because she will gain the position of power and the guy will essentially do anything she wants to avoid losing her.

However, if she is with a guy who is sought after by other women then she will always have to put in the effort to look good, keep him happy and stay attractive, so she wonâ€™t lose him.

That is exciting to her.

However, not all women feel like that or want that in a relationship.

Some women hate it and see it as meaning that you are untrustworthy and unreliable.

A woman might hook up with a player guy for fun and be truly attracted to him and in love with him, but she will know that the relationship has an expiry date.

Of course, that is, unless he changes and commits to her, but still gives her the feeling that he could leave her and find another woman if she stopped being attractive and started treating him badly.

It really depends on the woman.

So, if your current ex is not the type of woman who thinks it will be a fun and interesting challenge to get you back from your previous girlfriend, then trying to make her jealous might just push her away even more.

She may even begin thinking things like, â€œIf he can move on with another woman so quickly, he obviously didnâ€™t love me that much after all. Now that I think about it, if heâ€™s back with his previous girlfriend, maybe he never actually broke up with her and was only using me to make her jealous. Maybe he was cheating on me with her behind my back and I was too blind to see it. If I ever got back together again with him, I wouldnâ€™t be able to trust him after this. Iâ€™m going to get revenge on him now by finding myself a new guy and falling madly in love with him. Iâ€™ll show him.â€

Of course, she might not be able to find a man as cool, confident and attractive as you, but hey â€¦ she might.

So, why take the risk of pushing your ex even further away by hooking up with a previous ex girlfriend to make her jealous, when there's a much easier way to get her back?

How?

Just show her via the way you talk, think, behave, interact with her and the way you respond to what she says and does that you are no longer the guy that she remembers.

You are at a different level now.

You are more attractive to her (and other women) than ever before because you have matured, are even more confident and are no longer making the mistakes that caused her (and would cause other women) to want to break up with you.

You're a new man now.

Additionally, when she sees that you are emotionally mature and confident enough to try and get her back without resorting to playing mind games with her (i.e. trying to make her jealous, pretending that you're not interested in her), she will automatically feel more respect and attraction for you again.

Then, getting back together begins to feel like the right thing for her to do, rather than her feeling that she can no longer trust you.

Another question to ask yourself is

3. Does She Currently Have Enough Feelings For You to Care?

It's all good and well for you to hook up with a previous ex girlfriend to make your current ex jealous, but, if she currently doesn't have any feelings for you, she's probably not going to care that much.

Instead, she may just think, "Good riddance! His previous ex might be a sucker to take him back, but I'm not. At least now I can move on with my life without worrying about him trying to get back with me. This worked out perfectly for me. Now, I am free to move on in peace and I will have a perfect excuse to reject him if he comes back looking for another chance."

So, if your current ex doesn't have enough feelings for you to care that you're hooking up with your previous ex girlfriend, it most likely won't work.

You will get much better results if you just focus on making her feel positive feelings like respect and attraction when she interacts with you, rather than only trying to make her feel jealous and hope that she comes running back.

You Can Make Her Change Her Mind Without Making Her Jealous

In most ex back cases, rather than a woman saying, "Oh no, I better do something quickly or else I'm going to lose my ex to another woman," she will usually feel relieved that she's found someone else to take him off her hands and will then focus on moving on with her life and finding a replacement guy.

Alternatively, if a woman realizes that her ex is only trying to make her jealous by hooking up with his previous ex girlfriend, she can lose respect for him and no longer want anything to do with him.

Then, if he tries to interact with her, either via text, on social media or by calling her up on the phone, she will most-likely just ignore him, thus making it even more difficult for him to get her back.

So, don't do that to yourself and potentially make it harder to get her back.

Of course, if you do want to just have some fun with your previous ex to mess with the head of your current ex, then that's fine.

It really depends on how serious you are about getting your current ex back.

What I've found by helping 100s of clients to get their woman back after a serious break up, is that using a simple approach to the ex back process will always get you better results than playing mind games.

You just need to reactivate her feelings during interactions and then guide her back into a relationship.

That's what works in almost every ex back case that I've come across.

Sometimes, it is important to hook up with another woman to show your ex that you're not a desperate guy who can't get any other girls but her.

However, in most cases, you just need to reactivate her feelings during interactions, hook up with her again and get the relationship back together.

One of the best ways to reactivate her feelings is by making her laugh, smile and feel happy every time you interact with her (e.g. via text, on a phone call, or in person).

For example: Imagine that you're talking to your ex on the phone and she says something like, Look, you need to accept that it's over between us. I just don't have feelings for you anymore.

Rather than giving up and ending the call, you can use her negativity as a way of making her smile and laugh, so that she begins to doubt what she is saying to you.

So, when she says, Look, you need to accept that it's over between us. I just don't have feelings for you anymore, you can respond by saying in a pretend, panicked voice, Oh no! What am I going to do now?

She may then ask, What do you mean? and you could say (in a joking way), Well, since you're so adamant about not getting back together again, I'm going to have to break it to the dog that he's not going to get anymore leftovers from your beef stew. He's going to be devastated! If he gets depressed and needs therapy, I'm sending you half the bill! and then have a laugh with her about that.

Alternatively, you could say something like, "Don't worry, I accept it. I'm so glad that we're broken up because it means that I won't have to eat any more of that horrible beef stew you used to make. I always had to pretend that I liked it and then I'd go and throw up in the toilet later on" and have a laugh with her about that.

Of course, you're only joking and you'd tell her that, but the point is that you're not taking what she is saying so seriously.

Additionally, because you're making her smile and laugh, she can't help but feel good when talking to you, which makes her doubt her negative feelings for you.

It also shows her that you're an emotionally strong, confident and mature man who can remain confident regardless of what she's saying or how she's behaving.

This makes her feel respect and attraction for you, whether she wants it to or not.

Attraction is an automatic reaction that men and women have for each other, whether they want it to happen or not.

So, when you make her feel attracted by using some humor, she will begin to think about how different you suddenly seem to be and feel to her.

She may then think something like, “This isn’t what I was expecting. I thought he was going to get angry, annoyed or insecure. This is very unlike him. What has changed? Maybe I broke up with him too soon. Maybe the break up really did change him. Maybe it could be different this time around.”

Her curiosity causes her to drop her guard and she then becomes a lot more open to at least meeting up with you again, rather than telling you that you have no chance with her anymore.

Then, when you meet up with her and you continue to trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you, she will realize that what she experienced on the phone call wasn’t a once of thing and that you really are different now.

Here’s the thing:

Sometimes, it is a good idea to focus on making a woman jealous, but other times a guy doesn’t even need to do that and can simply reactivate her feelings and reconcile the relationship.

I’ve personally heard back from so many men who have used my simple approach to getting an ex woman back and they always tell me how thankful they are for finding my site.

Before learning my simple, proven to work method, they were trying all sorts of tricks (e.g. ignoring her, sending her a farewell letter, trying to text her back) and it wasn’t working.

Then, when they simply changed their approach and started focusing on reactivating her feelings of respect and sexual attraction on the phone and in person, they got another chance with their woman.

Getting Her Back the Easy Way

[image: Start giving her the attraction experience she really wants]

If you hook up with a previous ex girlfriend to make your current ex jealous and she finds out, you stand the risk of losing her (or at least making it a lot more difficult to get her back this time).

So, why do that when there’s a much easier and more effective way to get her back?

Instead of wasting time playing mind games with her, focus on giving your ex the attraction experience she really wants from you.

For example:

- If you were too emotionally sensitive and insecure during the relationship, show her that you are now a more confident, emotionally strong and emotionally mature man.
- If you lacked purpose and direction in life, you are now more focused on what you really want and you have already started making progress towards achieving some of your big goals. You don’t have to have achieved all your goals right now of course, but she does need to see that you’re making some progress.
- If you let her dominate you emotionally in the relationship and it turned her off, show her that youâ€”re no longer a pushover kind of guy and have become a real man.

- If you were emotionally closed up and couldnâ€”t easily express your love for her, show her that you are now emotionally fearless (Note: Donâ€”t confuse being emotionally fearless with becoming a hopeless romantic who pours his heart out to her. Being emotionally fearless in a manly way is about expressing your emotions in a relaxed, easy-going, matter of fact kind of way, rather than a tense, anxious, needy kind of way).
- If you stopped making her feel feminine and girly in your presence, start attracting her in by being more manly in how you talk, behave, think and react to her.

When you take action and make the necessary changes and improvements to yourself, your ex will naturally begin to feel respect and attraction for you again because she will see that you have learned from your past mistakes and become a better man.

Then, dropping her guard and opening herself back up to you becomes something that feels good to her.

It feels right and she wants it.

On the other hand, if you attempt to get her back by playing mind games and trying to make her jealous, she may see through your plan and it can turn her off even more.

Remember: Itâ€”s always better to be real with women.

Be fearless and just get her back, without being needy or thinking that you need to apologize over and over again.

Just reactivate her feelings and get her back.

The easiest way to do that is by talking to her on a phone call and in person.

Many guys donâ€”t want to call their ex woman because they fear she wonâ€”t like it, or that sheâ€”d prefer to text.

Donâ€”t worry about what she might prefer. Just do what works.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Do if Your Ex Says That She Loves You, But Doesn't Want to Be With You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a woman says that she loves you but doesn't want to be with you, it's usually because she has lost a lot of respect and attraction for you over time.

So, what you need to do is...

Make Her Love You Again By Getting Her Respect Back and Making Her Feel Attracted in New Ways

You attracted her into a relationship at the start and most likely enjoyed a lot of good times together, right?

The sex was probably pretty awesome at the start and both you and her most likely really loved each other, true?

Well, that's all good, but it's not enough.

Watch this video for more info!

For a woman to want to stay with you for life, she needs to be able to look up to, respect and feel attracted to you as the relationship continues.

If you were able to make her feel that way at the start, but then destroyed her feelings (e.g. by becoming insecure or by taking her for granted and treating her badly), then it's just not enough to make her want to stay.

She might put up with it for a while (even years), but she will eventually get to the point where she wants to break up and try to find a new man.

So, if your ex is currently saying things like, "I love you, but I'm not in love with you," or "I love you, but I don't want to be in a relationship with you," it's likely because she doesn't feel enough respect and attraction for you right now to want to stick with the relationship.

However, that doesn't mean you can't change how she feels.

You can.

You can get her respect back for you and make her feel differently.

How can you do that?

By changing and improving the things she has been complaining about and making her feel attracted in new ways that she probably has never told you about.

For example: If your ex felt more like a friend, or worse, more dominant and powerful than you in the relationship (e.g. because you let her make most of the decisions or allowed her to push you around), you now need to make her feel girly and feminine by being more masculine.

If she says something like, "I love you, but I don't want to be with you" rather than getting upset, angry or insecure, be strong enough (i.e. be emotionally masculine) to make light of the situation and get you and her laughing.

You can say, “Cool, me too. I love you, but I don’t want to be with you because your cooking is horrible,” or, “I agree. I love you, but I don’t want to be with you because you snore so damn loudly that I can’t get a good night’s sleep. I’ve been sleeping so well since we broke up” and then have a laugh with her about that.

Of course, you’re only joking and are not trying to say mean things to her to hurt her.

Instead, you are showing her that you are masculine by being emotionally strong enough to remain strong and create a funny moment, rather than being emotionally sensitive, insecure and weak and pleading with her for another chance.

This is important because she needs to be able to see that she can relax and trust that you really are the man now.

That’s what a woman wants.

She doesn’t want to be the stronger one who is always in control of the dynamic.

She wants you to be masculine enough to lead the way and create a dynamic that leads you and her back to love.

She wants that now and when you and her are back together in a relationship.

Women always want that.

They want a man who can take control and not get caught up reacting negatively to her mood swings and changes in feelings.

If you can show your ex that you’ve become so much stronger (emotionally) since the break up, she will automatically feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Naturally, she will try to test you (e.g. by putting you into the friend zone, being disrespectful towards you, saying mean things), but it’s up to you to stand up to her (in a firm, but loving way) and show her that you’re not the pushover she remembers.

This doesn’t mean that you treat her badly.

It simply means that you don’t let her get away with trying to dominate you.

You are the man and you are the more dominant one.

When she notices that you no longer react like she expects you to (e.g. getting upset, being extra nice to her in the hopes that she will change her mind, giving in to her demands), she will begin to respect you again.

When that happens, she will become open to feeling attracted to you and will naturally begin to reconnect with her feelings of romantic, sexual love for you.

She may start to wonder, “Why am I feeling different all of a sudden? I know I said that I don’t want to be with him, but now my love for him feels different. Before I felt fine with the idea of being just friends with him, but now it just isn’t enough for me. The idea of losing him to some other woman scares me. What is going on? What should I do? Maybe I should just give him another chance and see how it goes.”

This is why it’s so important to get your ex’s respect back for you first.

The more she respects you, the more she will feel attracted to you and the more attracted she feels, the less she will be able to keep telling herself that she loves you, but doesn’t want to be with you.

You Can Quickly Regain Her Respect For You

[image: You can quickly regain her respect for you]

Respect is not something that's given for nothing; it is earned.

So, if you want to earn your ex woman's respect, you need to think, act and behave in ways that make her feel like she can look up to you and feel proud to call you her man.

For example: Some of the personality traits and behaviors that earn a woman's respect for a man are:

- Confidence and emotional strength.
- The ability to take the lead in the relationship, thereby allowing her to fully relax into being a feminine woman.
- Emotional independence (i.e. having a purpose, goals, dreams, interests and friendships that are separate from his relationship with her).
- Emotional masculinity (i.e. being more emotionally dominant than his woman, maintaining control of his emotions during challenging moments or times, not being sensitive like a woman).
- Reaching for his true potential as a man and never giving up until he achieves his biggest goals and dreams.
- Being a man of his word (i.e. someone a woman can depend on and trust).

On the other hand, some of the behaviors and personality traits that cause a woman to lose respect for a man are:

- Insecurity and self-doubt.
- Not being ballsy enough in his relationships and in life.
- Being needy and clingy.
- Not having a purpose in life outside of his relationship with her.
- Taking his woman for granted.
- Treating her more like a neutral friend or a big sister, rather than his feminine, sexy woman.
- Needing her to tell him what to say and do to be the kind of man she needs him to be.
- Being overly protective, jealous and controlling.
- Lacking confidence in his value to her and other women in general.

So, from now on, depending on how you think, behave and interact with your ex, you will either be earning her respect and making her feel sexually attracted to you, or losing her respect and making her feel turned off.

Every time you interact with your ex (e.g. via text, e-mail, on social media, on a phone call and in person) you need to ask yourself, Am I the way that I am thinking and behaving right now making her feel respect and attraction for me, or am I turning her off?

As long as the answer is Yes and you are turning her on, you are on the right track to getting her back.

3 Tactics That Won't Work on Her

Sometimes, when a woman says, “I love you but I don't want to be with you,” a guy hopes that he can convince her to change her mind by being more loving and romantic towards her. He might then try to re-spark the love between himself and her by using one of the following tactics:

1. Telling her how much he cares.

It can be very frustrating for a guy to be faced with a situation where his ex is saying that she loves him, but at the same time, saying that she doesn't want to be with him.

He may wonder, “If she really loves me, then why doesn't she want to be with me? Either she is lying about loving me, or she's just confused. Maybe she doesn't realize just how much I really love her. That must be it! I have to let her know. I have to tell her exactly how much I love her, care about her and how much she means to me. That way, she will realize that I am the one for her and that no other guy will ever love her as much as I do.”

He might then pour his heart out to her and say things like, “You mean the world to me. No matter how you feel about me right now, I'm going to wait for as long as it takes for you to realize that we are meant to be together. No other guy will ever love you the way I do. When you realize that, you will want to be with me again. I just know it. Please just do one thing for me. Remember that I love you and I will always love you.”

He's likely hoping that by telling her how much he cares, she will suddenly realize that she made a mistake and change her mind.

However, in most cases, a woman just won't care how much she means to her ex, if he doesn't know how to make her feel attracted in the ways that she secretly wants.

For example: He is very soft, gentle and nice to her all the time, but she actually prefers a man who is more confident, assertive and even a little rough (not too much) at times.

She won't tell him that of course, because she doesn't want to be responsible for shaping who he is as a man.

She wants him to be himself and if it's a match for her, she will go along with it.

However, if who he is doesn't make her feel attracted in the ways she secretly wants, she will just try to move on.

She may feel flattered that he loves her so much, but she's not going to change her mind simply because of that.

For her to care about how much he cares about her, she needs to feel like she will be winning by getting back together with him because he is now able to make her feel attracted in the ways that really matter to her.

So, if you want to get your ex back, don't waste time telling her how much you care for her, because if she's not feeling a lot of respect and attraction for you right now, it's just not going to matter to her.

She's going to keep saying things like, “I love you, but I just don't want to be with you anymore. I don't want to be in a relationship. I just want time for myself. Please give that to me. If you love me, you will respect my wishes. ”

Another tactic that doesn't work isâ€¦|

2. Buying her gifts.

[image: Trying to buy her love]

When trying to re-spark a woman's feelings some guys will lavish her gifts in the hope that she will be amazed by his generosity and want to be with him, so she can be spoiled with even more gifts.

He might say to himself, “If I buy her a thoughtful gift, or some of the things that she's always wanted (e.g. a pair of expensive earrings, a special bracelet, a new phone) she will realize that no other guy will love her and take care of her the way I do. She will then get worried that she might lose me forever and will come running back to me. I'll show her that I am willing to give her anything to be with her and that will make her realize that I am the one. I love her more than any other guy would.”

Yet, even though a woman might be very happy to be spoiled in such a way, it doesn't mean that she's going to change her mind about the break up.

Here's the thingâ€¦|

A woman doesn't fall in love with a guy because of what he can buy for her; she falls in love with a guy because of the way he makes her feel when she's around him.

Of course, some women date and even marry guys for what they can get, but most women don't.

Likewise, most women who marry rich men end up divorcing them because the man is unable to make her feel respect, attraction and love when she is around him.

He's able to buy her things, but the feelings just aren't there, so she leaves.

Most women (95%) fall in love with a guy based on his personality, behavior and inner qualities, not his money.

This is why guys who work as a waiter, cleaner, basic mechanic, engineer or office clerk can attract and have sex with hot women and get them into a relationship or marriage that lasts for life.

What really matters to a woman is how a guy makes her feel when she's around him.

For example: If a guy is confident, charismatic and emotionally masculine, a woman is going to feel attracted to him and enjoy being around him.

If he happens to buy her a gift every now and then, she will appreciate it because it's coming from him, but she won't need it to be in love with him.

On the other hand, if a guy is insecure, awkward and emotionally sensitive, it won't matter if he's spoiling her with gifts because he will be turning her off at a deep level.

So, if you want your ex back, just focus instead on saying and doing the types of things that will re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you (e.g. being confident, making her feel feminine and girly, being emotionally dominant, being charismatic).

That's what really matters and what actually gets an ex woman back.

Finally, another tactic that doesn't work isâ€¦|

3. Being really sweet to her.

A guy might sometimes think that the key to getting his ex back is being extra sweet and nice to her. He might say to himself, “Maybe I just didn’t take care of her as well as she wanted me to. If I’m really nice and sweet to her from now on (e.g. do whatever she wants me to do, always agree with her opinion, help her out with errands/homework/chores and even pitch in and help pay some of her bills), she will realize that I’m the one who loves and takes care of her. She will see that no one else in her life is as good to her as I am and then she will want to get back together again. I’ll show her that I’m the nicest, sweetest guy she will ever meet in her life.”

Unfortunately, that just doesn’t work to get a woman back because women can see right through it.

A woman can sense if a guy is just being sweet and nice to her to manipulate her.

If she senses it, her guard goes up and it becomes even more difficult to get her back.

Additionally, even though a woman may appreciate that her ex is a sweet guy, if he’s not really addressing the real issues in the relationship, it’s not going to sway her.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was a pushover and let her control him, then him being really sweet to her is just going to highlight to her that he still does not understand why she broke up with him.

Alternatively, a woman might have broken up with a guy because he stopped making her feel feminine and girly in the relationship.

So, when he’s being sweet to her as a way of getting her love, respect and attraction back, she’s not going to suddenly be going to feel more like a real woman in his presence.

She secretly wants him to be more ballsy and assertive, but she isn’t going to tell him that.

She’s going to wait and see if he has it in him, or if he’s just a soft, wussy guy that she should get rid of once and for all.

Here’s the thing!

Although there is nothing wrong with being sweet to a woman, you need to focus on doing more than that to get her back.

Feeling nice, supported and appreciated is great, but it doesn’t get her sexually excited and longing to be with you.

If you want to get your ex back for real, you have to make her respect you and feel sexually attracted to you as a man.

She has to be able to sense that you’ve quickly transformed and are now so much more of a man than you were before (i.e. by the way you talk, behave and react to her).

If she senses that, she won’t be able to stop herself from feeling some respect and attraction for you and when she does that, she will start to change her mind about not wanting to be with you.

That’s what works.

Not telling you how much you care, buying her gifts or being extra sweet or nice to her.

So, if you’re serious about getting your ex back, focus instead on using every interaction that you have with her from now on (e.g. via text, on social media, on a phone call, in person) to trigger her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you.

Some of the ways you can do that are byâ€¦

- Making some changes and improvements to the way you talk and interact with her (e.g. talking in a more masculine way, rather than being soft, gentle or self-doubting in your tonality).
- Making her feel feminine and girly in your presence (e.g. by not suppressing your natural masculinity and just letting her sense that you are clearly the man and she is clearly the woman).
- Reacting differently to what she says and does (e.g. not getting upset when she says that she loves you, but doesnâ€™t want to be with you and instead turning it into something to laugh about together).
- Making her smile, laugh and feel happy when sheâ€™s interacting with you.
- Showing her that youâ€™re at a different emotional level now.

When you show her (via the way you talk, think and behave) that youâ€™re a different man now, even if she tries to ignore it, she wonâ€™t be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to the new you.

Her mind will begin to wander and she will imagine being back with you, hugging you, kissing you and having sex with you.

If you have made her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction, those images in her mind will be appealing and will excite and interest her.

When that happens, her guard comes down and her feelings of love for you begin to come back.

She then goes from saying, â€œI love you, but I donâ€™t want to be with you,â€ to â€œIâ€™m in love with you and I never want to let you go ever again.â€

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Stop Your Ex From Wanting to Date Other Men

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to stop your ex from wanting to date other men, here is what you should do!

1. Don't Talk Badly About Other Men

[image: Don't talk badly about other men]

When a woman breaks up with a guy, she may decide that the quickest way to get over the pain is by dating some new men.

She might say to herself, "I don't want to sit around going over my relationship with my ex and feeling sorry for myself. The best thing for me to do right now is to get out and meet new guys. I need to forget about the pain and focus on finding a man who can give me what I really need in a relationship."

Yet, when a man realizes that his ex is dating other guys (or talking about dating other guys) it's only natural that he might feel a bit rejected, jealous, upset and even angry about it.

He might say to himself, "How can she move so quickly? Didn't our relationship mean anything to her? Sure we're broken up, but I want her back so we can give this relationship another chance. I have to stop her from wanting to date other men. If I don't, she'll fall in love with some other guy and I will lose any chance I might have with her."

He might then react by trying to control her.

For example: "You know that I still love you and I want what's best for you. I'm telling you that dating other men right now is all wrong for you. You can't rush into these things. Dating is difficult. Most guys out there don't care about a woman's feelings. They only want to use women for sex. You're not like that. You're special. I don't want you to make a mistake by quickly dating other men. Please don't do this."

If she happens to already be dating other men, he might begin to badmouth the other guys and say things like, "Really? Is that the best you could do after me? That guy is such a loser. Why can't you see that? Look at his car! he's obviously broke!" or "How can you date such a geek? You're such an athletic, sporty woman who loves being outdoors. I bet his idea of fun is playing video games all day," or "You can't really be interested in a guy with a nose like that, can you? How do you even kiss him? Doesn't his nose poke you in the eye?"

Unfortunately, saying bad things like that to your ex only makes her want to date other men more.

Why?

By talking badly about other men, it makes you seem insecure and as though you are worried about another guy being better than you in some way.

So, even if the guys that she wants to date are complete losers or if all they really want is to have sex with her, it's not your place to try and talk her out of dating them.

If you talk badly about the other men in her life, they will suddenly seem even more attractive to her compared to you because you will appear insecure, jealous and controlling to her and they will appear confident and in control.

So, what should you do instead?

Focus on saying and doing the types of things that will re-spark your ex woman's feelings of respect and attraction for you (e.g. make her laugh and smile when you interact with her, make her feel feminine and girly in your presence, show her that you're more emotionally mature and confident than before).

When you do that, she will begin thinking, "I miss him. He used to treat me so well. This new guy only wants me for the sex," instead of "My new guy is better than my ex. My ex is only saying bad things about him because he's a sore loser. I'm going to start posting up photos of me with my new guy to really annoy my ex. He deserves it for putting me through what he did in our relationship."

So, make sure that you focus on re-attracting her, rather than trying to make other guys seem like a bad option by badmouthing them.

Watch this video for some examples of how to re-attract her!

If you focus on re-attracting her rather than talking badly about other men, then you will be the one who seems like a better option.

If she is meeting guys who are being nice to her (just to get laid), but she can see that they are nervous around her, then you will appear more attractive if you are confident and don't even worry about other guys potentially hitting on her.

Just don't see them as competition for her.

See yourself as the man and act like it.

Know that you are attractive to her simply based on the fact that you are now a way better man that you were when she broke up with you.

If you haven't made any changes to yourself, now is the time to do it.

When a guy tries to stop his ex woman from dating other men and hasn't even become a new man himself, she's not going to listen.

Another mistake to avoid if you want to stop her from dating new guys is!

2. Don't Claim That She Won't Be Able to Find True Love Again

[image: Don't claim that she won't be able to find true love again]

Sometimes, a guy might panic when he realizes that his ex wants to date other men.

He might say to himself, "I can't let her do that. I need her to see that no other guy can love her the way that I do."

He may then say to her, "Do you honestly believe that some other guy will ever be able to love you the way that I do? It's impossible. You mean the world to me and I want to show you that I can change. Please don't do this to me. Please don't throw away the love that we shared. We can make this work. I know we can. Please don't start dating other men. I promise you that I'll do whatever you want me to do so that we can make things work between us. Please forget *about the idea of dating other men. What you and I had was special and you will never be able to find that with anyone else, I promise you. I love you more than anything and I always will.*â€œ

Of course, most women don't fall for that because it seems false and insecure.

Something about it just doesn't feel right.

This is why you shouldn't try to convince your ex to give you another chance simply based on what you're sayingâ€œ!

Of course, most guys don't want to have to change anything about themselves, so they just try to convince their ex woman with words.

If what he says doesn't convince her, he might then add on something like, *â€œYouâ€œd be betraying our love if you start dating other men without at least giving me a chance to make it up to you. What we had was special. You canâ€œt just move on. Youâ€œre not like that. I know youâ€œre a decent woman. Please donâ€œt give up on us. You used to always tell me that you loved me and wanted to be with me forever. What happened to that girl? Please don't do this to yourself. Don't throw away what we have.*â€œ

Yet, here's the thingâ€œ!

A woman usually doesn't care that you love her, unless she respects you and feels attracted to you.

If you donâ€œt make her have feelings for you first, sheâ€œs not going to care how good things used to be between you and her, compared to how bad things might turn out with other guys.

If she meets another guy and he makes her feel respect and attraction for him in ways that youâ€œre currently unable to, sheâ€œs going to value what she has with him now, much more than what you and her once had.

I know, it sucks to read something like that, but thatâ€œs how human relationships work.

I have to tell you the truth so you can get her back for real.

The truth is, if a woman doesnâ€œt feel the way she wants to feel in a relationship with a guy (e.g. sexual attraction, feminine and girly, like she can look up to him and respect him) she will usually break up with him and look for another guy who can give her what she really wants.

It sounds harsh, but that's how human relationships are.

It really comes down to a value exchange.

If she feels like she is much higher value than you (i.e. you are attracted to her, but she's not attracted to you), then she's going to feel like you don't deserve her.

However, if she feels attracted to you in new and exciting ways when you interact with her, the value exchange becomes balanced again and she opens herself up to being with you.

So, telling your ex that she will never be able to find a love as good as the one between you and her, isnâ€œt a good idea.

Rather than make her think, *â€œMy ex has a point there! I should stop looking for other guys and focus instead on getting back together with him. Our love is too precious to lose,*â€œ she will think something like, *â€œWe did have a great relationshipâ€œ and he ruined it all by being too insecure/needy/immature/emotionally weak/jealous and controlling. Heâ€œs just remindedâ€œ me more that I should date other guys so I can get over him quickly.*â€œ

This is why you shouldn't try to convince her that the love you and her shared is the only true love she will find.

Sheâs just not going to care about what used to be, until you show her (not tell her) that you can now give her the attraction experience that she really wants.

3. Start Giving Her the Attraction Experience She Always Wanted

[image: Start giving her the attraction experience she really wants]

Since almost all men feel the most attraction for a womanâs physical appearance, they assume the same rules apply for a womanâs attraction to a man.

So, when trying to get an ex back, a guy might think, âOh, I get it. I need to go to the gym, get in shape and improve my appearance to make her want me more than other men.â

He might then go out and buy himself a whole new wardrobe, change his hairstyle, or go to the gym to lose some weight or pack on some muscle.

Yet, even though a woman might appreciate a manâs efforts to improve himself physically, his appearance isnât the main thing that makes her want to be with a guy or not.

Essentially, a womanâs attraction to a man is based more on how he makes her feel when sheâs with him.

For example:

- Does he make her feel feminine and girly in his presence, or does she feel like a neutral friend, or worse, like his mother or big sister?
- Does he make her feel safe and protected, or does she feel like she has to support him emotionally because he canât cope with problems and challenges in life?
- Is he confident and emotionally strong, or is he insecure, needy and a little bit wimpy around her?
- Can she rely on him to take the lead and guide them both into deeper feelings of love, respect and attraction, or does he expect her to teach him how to be the man that she needs him to be?
- Is he someone she can see herself being with for life, or does she feel that heâs too emotionally immature for her?

These are qualities and behaviors women feel most attracted to in a man.

Sure, some women do like the idea of being with a guy who is physically attractive, but in most cases, a manâs physical appearance is of secondary importance to how his personality makes her feel when she interacts with him.

So, if you want to stop your ex from wanting to date other men, you need to begin offering her what she really wants in a relationship, otherwise she will try to find it in other men.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was too insecure and clingy, she will usually look for a guy who is more confident and self-assured than her ex.

So, if a guy wants to stop her from looking for those qualities in other men, he needs to quickly show her (via what he says and does) that he is now more confident and emotionally strong than ever before.

If a woman broke up with a guy because he was too wimpy and he allowed her to walk all over him, to stop her from looking for a man who is more dominant, he needs to show her that he's changed by being more ballsy around her and standing up to her when she tries to push him around.

Important: Don't re-approach your ex and essentially say, "Hey, I've changed. Now do you want me back?" or, "Hey, I'm confident now. You said that you wanted a confident guy. Here I am."

Approaching your ex in those ways will make her raise her guard up and feel suspicious of your intentions.

Instead, just interact with her and let her experience the changes, without trying to seek her approval.

For example: Don't say something like, "See? I'm being confident now" or, "Did you notice that I didn't get angry this time?"

She doesn't want to be put in a position where she essentially has to say, "Good boy. Yes, you did good" and give you a pat on the head.

She just wants you to change and start being the man you are destined to be.

She also doesn't want you trying to compete with other guys and hopefully make her see that you're better than them.

Why?

If she senses that you're only making changes because you see other guys as being better than you, it makes you appear insecure and self-doubting.

She wants you to change and just believe in the new, improved version of you, without worrying that she might feel attracted to random guys.

After all, you feel attracted to random women all the time, right?

Probably not as much since the break up because you're trying to get her back, but in general, you do feel fleeting attraction for women you notice, right?

Well, if she feels that kind of attraction and then forgets about the guy, there's nothing for you to worry about.

Just be the new and improved version of yourself, re-attract her and get her back.

When you begin saying and doing things that make her feel attracted (e.g. you get her laughing and smiling, you're confident, charming, charismatic, emotionally masculine), she no longer feels a strong need to want to date other men.

Instead, she begins to drop her guard and wonder whether she made a mistake about breaking up with you.

From there, you need to guide her into deeper feelings of love, respect and attraction for you and show her that things between you and her really are different now.

Finally, you should

5. Meet Up With Her and Hook Up With Her Sexually, So She

Can Fully Experience the New and Improved You

[image: Hook up with her sexually and start a new relationship from there]

The best way to stop your ex from wanting to date other men is to meet up with her, let her experience the new and improved you first hand and then hook up with her sexually.

Here's the thingâ€¦!

No matter how much it sounds like a woman is enjoying talking to you on the phone, itâ€™s not the same as her seeing you face-to-face and being able to experience the power of your confident personality, based on your body language and the way you talk and interact with her.

It's also not the same as being kissed by the new and improved you, who is so much more confident, sure of himself, charismatic and interesting than before.

The main thing to remember is that the fastest way to make your ex see you as better than other guys is to actively re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you in person.

So, don't sit around worrying about her wanting to date other men and focus instead on making her feel good to be around you again.

One of the best ways to do that is to make her laugh and smile when you interact with her.

For example: Imagine that you and your ex are meeting up in a coffee shop and sheâ€™s says something like, â€œIt's over between us. I'm ready to move on and date other men.â€

Rather than get upset about it, you can turn it into something you can both laugh about and make her feel attracted to your confidence in the process.

You can respond by saying something along the lines of, â€œSure, I totally agree. I think you should do that because you'll then realize that you will never be able to get over me.â€

She will likely get a bit annoyed and say something like, â€œWhat makes you think I can't get over you?â€ and you can then say in a joking way, â€œIt's obvious really! I give great foot massages and I don't think there's another guy on the planet who can face touching your feet for 10 minutes like I did. I had to hold my breath the whole time. It was torture!â€

She will likely laugh at how you're teasing her and she will probably begin to wonder, â€œWhy is he being so funny and relaxed? What's changed about him? I'm actually enjoying his company.â€

You can then add in, â€œand how about all that burnt toast? Remember when you made scrambled eggs for me? I don't know if any other guy would put up with that. I secretly went into the toilet afterwards and threw up. It was horribleâ€ and then have a laugh with her about that.

All of a sudden, she stops looking at you as her unattractive ex and starts wondering why she doesn't just give you one more chance.

Once she is thinking that way, getting her back and keeping her in a relationship will be very easy for you.

She loosens up and becomes more open to touching you (e.g. on the arm or leg), kissing you and even hooking up with you sexually.

Remember: The more you make her feel attracted to the new and improved you, the more open she becomes to getting back together again.

She then stops feeling the desire to date other men and just wants to hug, kiss and have sex with the new and improved you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Said That She Needs Time to Heal From the Pain That I've Caused Her

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

4 steps to follow if your ex is saying that she needs time to heal from the pain that you've caused her!

1. Stop Apologizing

[image: Don't suck up to your ex as a way of getting her back]

It's only natural that when a guy gets broken up with, he will want to apologize to her for what happened or what he did.

So, there's nothing wrong with wanting to say "I'm sorry" to your ex if you caused her some pain.

However, where many guys go wrong is that when a woman is saying things like, "No, I don't want you in my life anymore," or "I need time to heal from all the pain you caused me," he feels that if he keeps apologizing to her over and over again, it will fix the problem.

A guy like that might say, "I'm so sorry for causing you pain. I know I really stuffed up but I will do anything to make it up to you. Please give me a chance to show you how sorry I am. You have no idea how much I regret hurting you. Please forgive me."

He's hoping that if he apologizes enough times, his ex will say, "Oh okay. I know you hurt me, but I can see that you really regret your actions so I'm going to forgive you and we can get back together again."

Yet, it doesn't work that way.

Why?

In most cases, a woman doesn't want a guy to apologize to her just because he thinks it's what she wants to hear before she will give him another chance.

Instead, a woman wants to see that a guy has understood her real reasons for breaking up with him (e.g. He was too insecure and emotionally sensitive and needed her to take care of him. He took her for granted and made her feel unloved and unappreciated. He was too jealous and controlling. He stopped making her feel feminine and girly in his presence and started making her feel like "one of the boys" or a friend).

She also wants to see that he has made an effort to change and improve those things about himself, so she can actually feel respect and attraction for him again.

So, if you've already apologized to your ex, just remember that she doesn't need to keep hearing it over and over again.

A better way to get her to open up to you is by telling her that you're sorry and then briefly explaining to her what you would have done differently if you could go back in time.

For example: You might say to her, "I know that I hurt you and I'm really sorry about that. I was so crazy about you and so worried of losing you that I ended up doing all the wrong things to hopefully not lose you. I started doing silly things that made you love me even less (e.g. being too jealous and controlling, becoming clingy and needy). If I could turn back time, I would definitely do things a lot differently. I know now that when you love someone you need to relax and let it build over time, rather than being so insecure and becoming jealous and needy. It was immature of me to behave like that. Of course, I understand that you probably won't want to believe me right now and that's okay. I just want you to know that I'm not that kind of guy anymore. You might think that it's good for me and my next woman will benefit from that and I don't mind. You can think however you want, but I realized my mistake and did something about it. I still care about you and I would like us to be friends. I accept that you don't want to be together right now and that's okay. I'm not asking you to get back together again, I just want you to be able to forgive me so that we can both move forward without the pain and disappointment of what happened between us. Then we can start over with a clean slate and at least be friends again.

By saying something like that to your ex, it shows her that you're no longer the guy who caused her so much pain.

You are different now.

Something really has changed and improved about you now and if she got into a relationship with you again, things would be so much better between you and her.

When you talk to her in this kind of way, she starts to feel some respect and attraction for you again, because she can see that you have learned from your past mistakes and are taking positive steps to become a better man as a result.

This makes it a lot easier for her to forgive you.

When she forgives you, her guard comes down and she stops pushing you away.

By the way!

If you say that you want to be "just friends" with her, make sure that you don't then act like a friend.

If you want her back for real, you will need to make her feel sexually attracted to you, rather than making her feel like you and her have no sexual spark and are just friends.

Watch this!

Once you've stopped apologizing and have switched to re-attracting her (even if it's under the guise of just being "friends"), you should then

2. Give Her 3-7 Days of Space

[image: Make her feel drawn to you again]

When a woman is saying things like, "Leave me alone. I need time to heal from the pain you've caused me," a guy might decide to stop interacting with her for 30-60 days in the hopes that the time apart will erase her negative feelings for him.

For example: A guy might say to himself, "I really stuffed up with my ex. I think my best chance with her is to give her some space so that she can forgive me. They say that time heals all wounds, so maybe if I give her enough time (30, or even 60+ days) she will get over what happened between us and then she might be more open to getting back together again. Besides, I don't want to keep contacting her if she's not ready yet. That might cause her to close herself off from me even more. Also, if I keep texting her, or calling her after she specifically told me to give her time to heal from the pain Iâve caused her, she might get angry with me and then she might never want to get back together again. So, I canât afford to push her away any further. Iâve got to do what she told me to do. Iâm just going to give her the space that she needs and hopefully when sheâs ready she will contact me and we can start over again.

Yet, thatâs not how it works.

Giving a woman weeks or months of space isnât going to make her come running back to him if she doesnât actually respect him, feel attracted to him and believe that he really could be different this time around.

Rather than cause her to think, âI didnât think it would bother me this much, but not hearing from my ex is actually painful. I realize now that I still love him and that I want him back. Iâd better get in touch with him right away, before he meets another woman and I lose him forever,â she may think, âThis is perfect. My ex is leaving me alone and I can now get over the pain he caused me and find myself another guy who will treat me the way I deserve to be treated.

As the days, weeks and months pass by, she gradually completely forgets about her ex, while he is sitting around waiting and hoping that she comes running back to him.

So, if you want to get back together with your ex, donât waste a lot of time ignoring her and hoping that she will recover from the pain you caused her, forgive you and then come running back to you.

If she is demanding a lot of space, the most you should give her is 7 days in between each contact.

Any longer than that will not get her back.

Instead, she will just start to move on.

I know this because Iâve personally helped 100s of men via my phone coaching service to get a woman back.

Iâve heard all the stories where guys have used all sorts of strategies to try and get a woman back.

What works is when a guy actively makes her have feelings again, rather than ignoring her.

When a guy just gives his woman space and hopes that she comes running back, it almost always fails.

So, if you are serious about getting her back, I recommend that youâ|

3. Contact Her and Make Her Smile, Laugh and Feel Good When Interacting With You

[image: Contact her and make her smile and laugh]

After youâve given your ex between 3 and 7 days of space after apologizing, get in touch with her and actively make her feel some respect and attraction for you again.

Do it by getting her on a phone call, or by having an in-person conversation with her, not via text.

Note: Texting her is fine as a way of opening up the lines of communication (i.e. to arrange a suitable time to call her), but it shouldnât be your main mode of communication with her. Why?

If your ex currently perceives you in a negative way, seeing a text from you is likely only going to open old wounds and make her think about how you hurt her.

On the other hand, if you call her up on the phone (or meet up with her in person) you have a better chance of making her drop her guard, by showing her (via the way you talk, behave and interact with her) that you really have changed.

One of the ways you can do that is by making her smile and laugh when talking to her.

It's very important that you make her smile, laugh and feel good if she is being cold, closed off and distant when she talks to you or meets up with you.

For example: Imagine you're talking to your ex and she is being distant and emotionally closed off.

She then says something like, "I'm just not ready to be around you yet. I need time to heal from the pain you've caused me."

Instinctively, you might want to defend yourself and say, "I'm sorry. I know I hurt you, but please give me a chance to explain and make it up to you."

However, responding like that won't make her feel respect and attraction for you again and she will just feel like she has the upper hand (which causes her to lose even more respect for you because she feels more emotionally dominant than you).

So, a better way to respond when she says, "I'm just not ready to be around you yet. I need time to heal from the pain you've caused me," is to turn it into a joke and make her laugh.

You can say something along the lines of, "You're right. I'm sorry! I don't want to come across as being pushy and make you feel like I'm trying to rush you. So, how long do you need? 10 more minutes? 20? okay, how about 30 more minutes?" and then have a laugh with her about that.

She will realize that you're teasing her in a playful way and she will most-likely smile and even laugh along with you.

Of course, saying that to her isn't magically going to erase all of your past mistakes and cause her run back into your arms again screaming, "Yes! I love you! Please take me back! Oh, I need you!"

Instead, it's simply something to say in the moment that will make her smile or laugh, which will then take away some of the bitterness that she's currently feeling towards you.

It's also a way to spark some of her feelings for you.

When you have the confidence to joke with her when she is being cold and distant towards you, not only do you take the pressure off her to get back together with you right away, but you're also triggering her feelings of respect and attraction for you by being emotionally strong enough to handle the situation in that way.

Women love a guy who has the confidence and balls to create funny moments in situations where everyone else is feeling awkward, tense and uptight.

It's a very attractive trait.

Of course, your ex may act like she isn't enjoying your attempts at humor, but that's just a woman's way to test how real your confidence is.

If she can see that you don't get nervous when she isn't laughing out loud at your jokes, she will secretly be feeling a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

She will then drop her guard and she will begin to focus more on the positive things about the man you are right now, rather than focusing on all the negative things she remembers about you from the past.

Finallyâ€¦!

4. Have a Conversation About How We All Learn Things in Life

[image: Have a conversation about how we all make mistakes and learn things in life]

A big part of helping your ex heal from the pain that youâ€¦ve caused her, is to get her to forgive you.

She needs to understand that forgiving you will be just as good for her emotional well being as it will be for yours.

If she goes through life holding a grudge against you for causing her pain in a relationship, it will negatively affect her future relationships and cause her to live with a stress that never goes away.

By the wayâ€¦!

Don't worry â€¦ you're not actually getting her to go away and have a new relationship stress free.

Instead, you're getting her to forgive you because when she does, she stops thinking about the old version of you and starts looking at you for who you are now.

In other words, you suddenly appear so much more attractive and appealing to her because she has forgiven you for what you did in the past and has left that behind for her own emotional well being.

It's a bit of a psychological trick to play, but hey â€¦ you want her back, right?

If you do, then don't worry – just do what works and get her back.

From there, be a better man than you were before and both of you will then be so much happier together.

So, what you need to do is have a heart-to-heart conversation with her and explain to her that everyone makes mistakes in a relationship at times, but that doesn't mean a couple can't work things out and start over again if they both want to.

Couples who successfully break up and get back together, learn from their past mistakes, which means that their new relationship is more mature, happier and stronger than ever before.

Tell her that you don't expect her to believe you that you've changed, but you have.

Then, most importantly, let her experience the changes in you, based on how you think, talk, feel, behave, react and respond to her and take action now.

For example: If you used to be jealous and controlling before, let her see that you're not that kind of guy anymore.

If she talks about other guys that she's been seeing since the break up, or if flirts with another guy in your presence, just relax and don't let it affect you.

Know that she is sitting there with you and because of that, she does feel some respect, attraction and love and is clinging onto some hope that you and her can still make it.

When she sees that you really have changed, she then begins to see you differently and it helps her to truly forgive you.

On the other hand, if you don't let her experience the changes first hand (e.g. you just text her or you ignore her), she won't be able to get past the pain you caused her and will just keep pushing you away.

Remember: You can't just say to her, "I'm sorry. Can you forgive me?" and expect her to say "Yes" after all you've put her through.

For her to truly believe that you are a different man now, you have to get her to forgive you for real. How?

Get her to forgive you for her own benefit, as I mentioned at the start of this section.

For example: You can say to her, "Yes, I want you to forgive me for my own selfish reasons, but at the same time, forgiving me is something that you need to do for yourself too. When you can truly forgive me, you can move on if you want to, without all the negative stuff that happened between us hanging over you like a dark cloud. In that way, you will be able to remember that we actually did have some good times together, rather than only focusing on the negative things and feeling bad about it. I don't want what happened between us to mess with any relationships you have from now on. So, if you want us to have a clean slate and end as friends, the way to do that is to honestly forgive me for making the mistakes I did. After all, we all make mistakes and learn in life. I made mistakes, but as you can probably see now, I have learned from those mistakes and have changed as a man. So, do you forgive me?"

When she really does forgive you, it then allows her to stop focusing on how you hurt her in the past and start looking at the new you.

Her guard comes down and she becomes open to looking at you in a positive light and having some feelings for you.

Remember: Regardless of how impossible the situation between you and your ex might seem right now, you need to be the strong, emotionally courageous one who guides both you and her back into a loving relationship.

Even if your ex is pushing you away and saying that she needs time to heal from the pain you've caused her, don't let that get you down.

Just focus on reactivating her feelings and she will automatically feel drawn to you again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

She Said That We're At Different Stages in Our Lives and Then Broke Up With Me

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

4 possible reasons why a woman will break up with you for being at different stages in life are:

1. You Want to Settle Down, But She Doesn't

[image: You want to settle down, but she doesn't]

Sometimes, a guy might be at a point in his life where he's ready to settle down, get married and start a family.

Yet, in some cases a woman might feel like she's too young to do that, or just isn't ready to settle down yet.

She may think, "I really care about him, but I'm not ready to be in a serious relationship right now. He's always so serious and responsible, but I'm not ready to be like that right now. I want to go out and have fun like all my single friends. I want to go to clubs, travel and do all the crazy things that you're supposed to do while you're still young. I don't want to be trapped in a relationship before I've had the chance to experience life. We're just at different stages in our lives. I have to break up with him."

Here's the thing!

For a relationship to work, a couple must have a shared, long term vision that they are both happy about working towards.

So, if a woman starts to feel trapped or pressured into being in a serious relationship with a guy before she's fully ready, she will usually break up with him and find someone else who is at her level of maturity and emotional development.

Unlike in the past where a woman was married off at a really young age, regardless of whether she was emotionally ready for it or not, in today's world a woman can choose to stay single for as long as she wants.

By the way!

I met my wife when she was 20 and I was 35.

Yet, she asked me to marry her.

Why and how?

Well, we actually met in a nightclub and rather than immediately stopping her from going partying, I continued to party with her for about two months.

She then got tired of partying because her and I had fallen in love and become a truly committed couple.

So, one day she said, "I don't want to party anymore. It's good when you're single, but we're past that now."

We then stopped partying (we still do party once or twice a year if we want) and started hanging out with friends who were in a relationship or married.

She asked me to marry her many times, before I eventually said yes around the two year mark.

Now, imagine thisâ€¦!

Imagine that I picked her up at a nightclub and then immediately wanted her to stop enjoying dancing and partying with our friends.

Imagine if I told her that we must stop partying and be responsible now that we are a couple.

She would have felt as though I was taking something away from her and immediately trying to tame her into a submissive housewife.

As a result, she would have fought against it.

So, rather than forcing her to change, I allowed it to happen naturally.

I knew that her and I were falling more and more in love and that our relationship would get better and better.

â€¦and it did.

Watch this video to understand what you need to be able to do to keep a relationship together for lifeâ€¦!

As you will discover from the video above, it's not enough to just have a great start to the relationship or to end up being comfortable.

You've got to make sure that you are deepening the feelings of love, respect and attraction that you and her feel for each other over time.

You can't just expect a woman to stick around because it felt good at the start or because you really love her.

The love, respect and attraction has to be mutual.

Another reason why she may have broken up with you for being at a different stage in life than her isâ€¦!

2. She Wants to Settle Down, But You Don't

Quite often, the shoe is on the other foot and it's the man who isn't emotionally mature enough to want to settle down yet.

For example: A guy might enjoy hanging out with his friends and going to bars and clubs and getting drunk, traveling, or changing jobs regularly, rather than being serious about life and aiming to achieve long term goals that will benefit him and her.

So, when she suggests that he gets more serious about life (e.g. that he stops getting drunk so much, travel less often, stick to a job, follow through on big goals that will benefit them both in the long run), he might say to her, â€œNoâ€¦that's not who I am. Iâ€™m a free spirit. Iâ€™m not ready to get stuck in a rut in my life and become old and boring. Life is for the living. I'm not going to be like everyone else.â€

What he doesn't realize is that it's not about being like everyone else.

It's about giving a woman a feeling of security and safety about her future.

Why?

Unlike men, women can get pregnant.

Even if she hates children or doesn't ever want to have children, a woman still has a natural instinct to want to be with a man who is thinking about the future and working towards making sure that he and her will be safe, secure and able to survive and provide for any offspring.

She has this natural instinct to ensure that the man she breeds with will work hard to make sure that life will be good for them, or at least comfortable.

A woman might not ever come out and say something like that to you, but she has natural instincts that control much of her behavior, thinking and desires.

So, if you want a relationship to last, you have to work with nature rather than against it.

It's not about being like everyone else and running the rat race or having two children and getting a mortgage.

It's just about being a man that she can rely on and feel safe with now and in the long run.

This is why it's so important for a couple to have the same long-term goals and views about life (e.g. getting married, buying a house, starting a family or never get married, never buy a house, never start a family).

Regardless of what she wants, a woman needs to feel safe about her future based on what she thinks is important (e.g. she might think that being able to travel around is important, being able to have a farm and grow her own vegetables, or being able to party whenever she wants).

Funnily enough though, most of the free spirited women out there who reject society and just want to get away from everyone, end up wanting a house, a child, a car and so on, so they are drawn back into society.

Yet, free spirited women usually hook up with a guy who doesn't want to conform to society's standards and is determined to be a free spirit his entire life.

Eventually though, she starts getting jealous of her girlfriends, sisters or cousins who have a house, a family, a car and all the other things that go along with modern life and she begins to want that too.

If her guy isn't able to adapt to the changes in, she starts to want out.

At the end of the day, she is an individual and doesn't actually have to stick with him if she doesn't want to.

It's not like it was 100-150 years ago when a woman was essentially a man's property.

These days, both men and women are free to do whatever they want, including breaking up a relationship or ending a marriage.

When a woman sees that her man isn't willing to adapt and experience a different way of life or stage of life with her, she starts to feel trapped.

She may then begin to think something like, â€œWeâ€™re just not at the same stage in our lives. Iâ€™m ready to settle down and get serious, while he still wants to be like we used to be. I canâ€™t stick around anymore, in the hopes that he will change his mind someday and want the same things that I do. What if he never grows up and by the time I realize it, itâ€™s too late for me to find another guy and have a child? I think I need to move on with my life before itâ€™s too late.â€

She will then usually break up with him and begin to look for a new man who wants the same things as her.

Another reason why a woman might break up with you for not being at the same stage in life as her isâ€¦!

3. You Lack Purpose, Which Has Made Her Seek to Find One and Now She Wants to Focus on That Rather Than Her Relationship With You

Part of being a man that a woman can look up to, respect, feel attracted to and love is having a clear purpose in life (e.g. big goals, dreams and ambitions that are important to you) and working towards achieving it.

Where some guys go wrong is by making their relationship with a woman their purpose in life because they are either too afraid or too lazy to step up and reach for their true potential as a man.

For example: A guy might say to himself, â€œThis relationship is special. I canâ€™t afford to lose my woman. She means everything to me. I don't care about anything else. The rest of the world can go and get stuffed. All I care about is her and me. That is what matters.â€

He may then focus all his attention on her and neglect the other areas in his life (e.g. stop pursuing his goals, give up his interests or hobbies).

If his woman sees that heâ€™s clinging to her and avoiding following through on his dreams, she might say to herself, â€œThis isnâ€™t what I want. Heâ€™s smothering me with all of his attention. I canâ€™t live like this. I need to do something to get away from him or else Iâ€™m going to go crazy.â€

She may then start focusing more on her own dreams and goals to the point where she begins to question her reasons for staying with him.

She thinks, â€œWhy am I sticking around with a guy who has no purpose in life? Iâ€™m busy chasing my dreams and making them a reality and heâ€™s holding me back. We clearly donâ€™t want the same things in life anymore. I want to focus on my goals and he wants to hang around me all the time like a young guy would with his first girlfriend. I think itâ€™s time for me to move on. I need a manâ€ and she usually breaks up with him.

If a guy is just drifting along in life and using her to hide from his true potential, a woman will eventually start to feel as though sheâ€™s got herself a boy who hasn't yet grown up, rather than a man who she can look up to and respect.

She feels more emotionally dominant than him and as a result, she takes on a traditionally masculine role of finding a purpose in life outside of her relationship with him.

Although most women don't ever openly admit this, a woman wants to be with a man who is confident enough to reach for his true potential in life and lead the way to a better future for both of them.

She doesn't want to be his “partner” or his “best friend,” she wants to be his woman.

She wants to be able to look up to him and respect him as her man.

If he can give her that, she will feel incredibly sexually attracted to him for life.

Even just the simple act of him hugging her or looking at her in the eyes in a certain way will turn her on and make her want sex.

Yet, if he expects her to take on a more masculine role or a neutral role like a partner or best friend, the sexual spark will begin to die out.

She just won't feel like his woman, which is disappointing to her.

Although most women won't openly admit it, they just want to be a man's woman.

That's it for most women.

However, modern society is constantly telling women, "Be like a man. Have a life purpose. Don't worry about men. Just do your own thing."

Many women get sucked into that, only to find themselves depressed or constantly breaking up relationships and never feeling satisfied.

It's only when a woman meets a man who allows her to be a real woman (i.e. feminine, girly, free to be emotional) that she stops looking outside of her relationship and makes her whole life about being with him and being in love with him.

That's a dream scenario for women, but most modern women are too embarrassed to admit it, so don't expect many women to share that secret with you.

Here's the thingâ€¦!

If a woman notices that she is the one leading the way and is having to drag her guy along to new stages of life, she will gradually stop feeling respect for him, her attraction will fade and she will eventually say something like, â€œItâ€™s over. Weâ€™re at different stages in our lives. You and I used to be a great match, but things have changed. We're not suited to each other anymore. I don't feel the same way anymore. I need to be by myself. Please respect that.â€œ

Another reason why a woman might break up with you because you're at a different stage in life than her isâ€¦!

4. She Feels More Emotionally Mature Than You and Doesn't Think That You Can Change

When a woman feels more emotionally mature than her guy (e.g. she has a definite plan for her life, whereas heâ€™s still behaving like a teenager even though he is 20, 30, 40 or 50 years old) itâ€™s understandable that she may reach the point where sheâ€™s thinking, â€œEnough is enough! I need a man, not a boy. This just isn't going to work.â€œ

If she then says to him, â€œLook, we just aren't meant to be together. Weâ€™re at different stages in our lives. I'm sorry, but I have to break up with you,â€œ he might then promise to change whatever she wants to suit her, even though he secretly doesn't want to.

For example: A woman might be at the stage in her life where she wants to settle down, buy a house, get married and start a family.

In the meantime, her guy is still enjoying being irresponsible (e.g. getting drunk all the time, playing video games all weekend, racing cars, wasting time on hobbies that won't make him any money), going out partying with his friends and isn't interested in settling down.

[image: We can make this work! Why are you giving up so easily?]

So, to avoid losing her, he might say, “Please give me another chance. I can change. If you want to move in together Iâ€™m all for it. Letâ€™s do it. In fact, letâ€™s buy a house and get married. Iâ€™m serious. Iâ€™ve had enough of the single life anyway. You mean more to me than that. I will buy you a ring next month, I promise.”

Yet, even though heâ€™s going through the motions and saying all the right things, deep down he may be thinking, “This isnâ€™t really what I want right now. I like not having any serious responsibilities to tie me down. I donâ€™t want to lose her though, so I guess Iâ€™m going to have to bite the bullet and give her what she wants.”

Most women don't accept it though because when the guy is offering her everything she wants, she feels turned off by his desperation.

She knows that he's only doing it to please her, so his heart won't be in it.

He might get her a ring, but he really doesn't want to, so it doesn't feel special to her.

As a result, she just breaks up with him and tries to move on.

Another example is if a woman is at the stage in her life where she is very focused on her career and on rising through the levels of her field/industry, while her guy might be more laid back and not be very ambitious at all.

She might say to him, “Look, you might be happy taking things slowly with your career, but thatâ€™s not what I want in a boyfriend (or husband). I want to make it to the top of my field as quickly as possible. While Iâ€™m busy working late and going to meetings and business dinners, youâ€™re already home watching TV or playing video games. I know you love your job and youâ€™re happy with the way things are, but I just canâ€™t sit around forever waiting for you to get serious about your life. Weâ€™re just at different stages in our lives right now and I think it would be better if we go our separate ways. I want different things than you do. This isn't the life I want. I'm sorry, but I'm leaving.”

He might then say to her, “Please baby, just give me a chance. If what you want is for me to get more serious about my career then thatâ€™s what Iâ€™ll do. Thereâ€™s a promotion available in my department at work. Iâ€™m sure I can get it. We donâ€™t have to be at different stages in our lives. Just give me a chance.”

In reality, thatâ€™s not what he wants at all and heâ€™s just saying it because he doesnâ€™t want to lose her.

She can sense it and she won't like it because women don't want to be your leader or guide.

They want you to want to be a man because you want to do it, not because it will make her shut up and stay.

Likewise, if you do something against your will just to suit her (e.g. stop playing video games so much), eventually you will most likely resent her for making you do it.

For example: Using one of the examples above, if you move in with your ex, or get married and itâ€™s not really what you want, then every time you and your woman have an argument or disagreement, you may be thinking, “Itâ€™s her fault for forcing me into something I didnâ€™t really want to do. I hate living with her. This is so annoying.”

She will pick up on your resentment for her and she will start to think that the relationship just isn't going to work.

Additionally, if your ex senses that youâre only promising to do what she wants just to get her back, she will lose respect and attraction for you because she will perceive you as not being your own man.

She will then believe that she was right all along (i.e. that she is more emotionally mature than you and that you canât change).

So, if you are going to get her back, make sure that your heart really is any of the changes that you are willing to make.

You can fake love for life.

Youâve got to do it right and love her, respect her and want to be happy with her for real.

A Sincere, Sudden and Self-Chosen Transformation

[image: A sincere, sudden, self-chosen transformation]

Sometimes, a guy will simply try to convince his woman to give him another chance by explaining how much she means to him.

Yet, that doesnât work.

Why?

Her reasons for breaking up with you have nothing to do with your feelings for her.

She doesnât care about your feelings right now.

I know that it might sound harsh, but I need to teach you the truth so you can get her back.

What she cares about is the fact that you and her donât want the same things in life anymore.

So, no matter how much you love her, itâs just not going to matter to her if she feels that you donât want the same things in life.

A woman will only want to be with you if she can see a sincere, sudden and self-chosen transformation.

She doesnât want you too change to please her or suck up to her.

She wants you to change because itâs what you really want for yourself.

If you can do that, she will then look at you in a more positive light and she will become more open to the idea of getting back together again to see if you and her can have a future together.

You donât even have to tell her that youâve made the change.

Simply interact with her and let her pick up on it during conversation.

If you go to her with a, “Hey, I changed. Now do you like me?” approach, she will feel turned off because youâre just doing it for her.

She wants you to be your own man and do this because you really want to.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Does Your Ex Fear Getting Hurt Again if She Gets Back With You?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex is pushing you away by saying things like, “I don’t want to give you another chance because I’m afraid of getting hurt again,” here are 3 possible reasons why!

1. She Knows That You Can Make Her Fall in Love With You Again, But She Also Knows That You Will Continue to Make the Same Old Mistakes

Often, when a guy realizes that his woman is feeling unhappy in the relationship and is about to dump him, he will try whatever it takes to make her change her mind so he doesn’t lose her.

For example: A guy might start making all sorts of promises and saying things like, “Please baby, don’t give up on me. I love you so much and I promise to change. Whatever it is that you want me to do to make you happy, I’ll do it. Just give me one more chance. I promise! this time I really will change.”

[image: I promise that things will be different this time]

In most cases, when a woman really loves a guy, she will agree and give him another chance initially because she doesn’t want to lose him.

Yet, if he breaks his word to her again and again, she will begin to push her love for him into the background and allow more negative feelings such as anger, disappointment and betrayal, to give her the courage to break up with him for real this time.

If the guy then tries to get her back by making even more promises, she will push him away by saying something like, “No. I don’t want to get hurt by you again. I just don’t trust you anymore. You’ve broken your promises to me many times already. Enough is enough. I’m not going through this with you anymore.”

She knows that he can make her love him, but she also knows that he is probably going to keep making the same old mistakes and expect her to put up with it.

If she’s given him chances before, she will know that she’s just going to have to go through another break up with him if she gives him another chance.

So, to get her back, he must first understand her real reasons for breaking up with him (e.g. he wasn’t manly enough in his behavior, or he was too giving to her and she ended up feeling like she was using him), rather than the excuses she might be giving him.

If he can truly change and let her experience that on a phone call or in person, she will begin to open back up to him again because she will be able to see that things really would be different this time around.

However, if he doesn’t change, she will remain closed up and give him a vague reason why she can’t get back with him (e.g. “I need more time” or, “I love you, but I can’t be with you right now,”).

Why?

Here are 9 common reasons why a woman will give a vague break up reason...

1. She doesn't want to hurt his feelings.
2. She knows that if she gives him too much information about what is turning her off, he will easily talk her out of her decision because she still cares about him and feels attracted to him.
3. She doesn't want to have to take on the role of being his teacher and have to educate him on how to be the man that she needs him to be.
4. She, like almost all women, is afraid of a guy getting aggressive or even violent if they break up with him directly.
5. She is tired of having to explain everything and doesn't want to keep taking on that responsibility.
6. She wants to give herself some time to find a replacement guy, so she won't be the one who is left behind if he moves on before her.
7. She wants to see what it would be like to not be in a relationship. Will she enjoy being alone? Will she enjoy going out with her single girlfriends?
8. She wants to make him feel like he is fully losing her, to hopefully get him to wake up and start being the man she really wants.
9. She wants to hurt him by stringing him along and treating him badly, to get back at him for how he treated her during the relationship.

This is why most women will just give a guy a vague break up excuse and then get away from him as quickly as possible before he makes her change her mind.

The guy is then left feeling lost, confused and potentially even angry at her for leaving him like that.

If he starts begging for another chance, he will turn her off.

If he becomes extra nice, sweet and considerate to suck up to her, he will turn her off.

If he gets angry and starts calling her names or treating her badly, he will turn her off.

So, what should he do instead?

Remain calm, understand the real reasons why she is ending it, begin fixing those things, apologize and then re-attract her.

When you fully understand where you went wrong with her, you can then interact with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) and let her experience (via the way you talk, think, behave and interact with her) that you are no longer the same guy that she broke up with.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was overly protective and jealous of her, when he interacts with her and she talks about other guys, or acts cold and indifferent towards him, he needs to show her that he no longer reacts like that anymore.

Where previously he might have gotten angry or upset with her, he now just laughs and makes a joke of her behavior.

For example: She says, "I was walking around the shopping mall today and some guys whistled at me. I was so embarrassed."

To show her that he has changed and is no longer the jealous type, he can laugh and say, "Of course they whistled. Who wouldn't? You're hot. Why didn't you go and chat to them? You should have given them your phone number. You're so shy" and then have a laugh.

She will then think, "Huh? That's not what he's normally like. He would have been angry at me and we would have gotten into a fight. Now, he's encouraging me to move on without him? He's" changed.”

Since he seems to be pushing her away, it creates a gap between him and her that she doesn't want to be there.

All of a sudden, she is feeling attracted to him and considering him again as a boyfriend (or husband) and he's not even chasing her.

Yet, he is still being a good man by giving her a compliment and telling her that she is hot.

This confuses her and makes her want to interact with him more to see if he really has changed.

If he has, she will naturally feel attracted to him and want to give him another chance.

Alternatively, if a woman broke up with a guy because he took her for granted and made her feel unloved and unappreciated (e.g. by not committing to her, treating her like crap), he now needs to show her (via his actions) that he understands his mistake and that he's working towards becoming a better man and a better boyfriend (fiancé or husband) as a result.

It's not about sucking up to her and trying really hard to prove that you're such a nice guy now.

No.

Just be the cool, confident guy that you've always been, but add in some niceness as well.

Don't go overboard with it though.

[image: Don't suck up to your ex as a way of getting her back]

When a woman dumps a guy for taking her for granted, she doesn't want to see him desperately change into a Super Nice Guy and suck up to her.

She wants him to remain being the cool, confident guy that he is and just add in some more niceness, sweetness and kindness from now on.

Another reason why your ex might fear getting hurt if she gets back with you isâ€¦!

2. She Feels Like You Might Get Her Back, Make Her Fall in Love and Then Break Up With Her to Get Revenge

[image: Breaking up with her to get revenge]

Sometimes, if a woman has had a bad experience with a previous relationship where the guy tried to get revenge for breaking up with him, she might fear that her current ex will do the same thing to her.

Alternatively, if while in a relationship with her, her ex has previously said something like, “If you ever break up with me, I don't know if I will be able to stop myself from doing something crazy to get back at you,” or “I never let a woman dump me. I'm always the one who does the dumping,” or, “If you ever broke up with me, I would make you regret it,” she may feel nervous about getting back with him again.

Likewise, if he said something like that while she was dumping him, her guard will be up and she will be expecting him to try to get revenge on her in some way.

In the back of her mind, she will be thinking something like, “I remember what he said when we were together. What if he just wants me back so that he can make me fall in love with him again and then dump me to get his revenge? I know that he might really want me back, but what if he doesn't and it's all a ploy to teach me a lesson for hurting him? Do I really want to take the risk of getting hurt again?” and then she may just decide that it's just not worth it for her.

So, to make your ex believe that youâ€¢re not going to do something like that to her, you need to put her mind at ease by having an honest, heart-to-heart conversation with her about her fears.

For example: You call her up on the phone and after a bit of chit chat, you say something like, â€¢I know that youâ€¢re afraid right now of getting hurt again if you get back with me. Itâ€¢s only natural that you might feel nervous and you may even be thinking that I only want you back so that I can make you love me again and then dump you or something crazy like that. I know that you probably wonâ€¢t believe me if I tell you that I would never do a thing like that to you, so all Iâ€¢m asking is for you to give me a chance to prove it to you. Letâ€¢s just hang out as friends for a while and get to know each other again based on the people that we are now, rather than the people we used to be. We donâ€¢t even have to get back together if you donâ€¢t want. Letâ€¢s just catch up and say hi. You are in control. Iâ€¢m going to accept whatever happens, but I would like us to be able to meet and say hello based on the people we are nowâ€¢even if you decide that you donâ€¢t want to see me again after that.â€¢

She then begins to wonder, â€¢If he really wanted to get revenge on me, would he really be that honest with me?â€¢ and she then drops her guard and opens herself up to the idea of at least meeting up to see how things go.

From there, you need to use every interaction you have with her (e.g. over the phone and in person) to spark her feelings of trust, respect and attraction for you and make her want to be more than just friends.

3. She Thinks That Youâ€¢re Too Good For Her and is Worried That You Will Eventually Realize it

If a woman is insecure about her attractiveness (e.g. she thinks that sheâ€¢s not very pretty, sheâ€¢s a bit overweight, she doesnâ€¢t like her face, butt or thighs), she might fear that you will one day realize you are too good for her.

She worries that you will realize that you can get a more attractive woman and will just coldly dump her when that happens.

Alternatively, in some instances, a guy might be very successful, or from a wealthy family, while his ex is not well educated, or comes from a poor background.

She might then think, â€¢Why does such a rich, successful guy like him want a woman like me? Heâ€¢s just too good for me. Maybe right now heâ€¢s romanticizing our relationship, but when reality sinks in, he will realize that Iâ€¢m just not good enough for him and that he can get another woman who is better educated and more successful than me. Then, he will just dump me. I donâ€¢t think I can bear the pain of losing him again. I think itâ€¢s better if I just move on and find guy who isnâ€¢t out of my league.â€¢

If you genuinely love and appreciate your ex and believe that sheâ€¢s the woman you want, itâ€¢s up to you to show her (via the way you talk, think, behave, interact with her and respond to what she says and does) that you do.

Initially, she might try to push you away, but when she realizes that you want her for who she is, she will almost certainly change her mind because the idea of losing you becomes more painful to her than her fear of not being good enough for you.

You can say to her, â€¢I know that we come from different backgrounds (or have different careers or qualifications), but I love you for you. It's not about who has the better job, who's family is wealthier or the differences in our childhood or upbringing. What matters is how you and I make each other feel, how much we love each other and how much more we can love each other and enjoy a great life together."

As long as you have made her feel attracted to you again before saying that, she will be open to hearing it and excited.

However, if you try to skip the re-attraction part of the process and go straight into telling her something like that, she will remain closed up.

If You Want to Convince Her to Change Her Mind, Don't Make These Classic Mistakes

When a woman is saying, "I'm afraid of getting hurt again if I get back with you," it's only natural that a guy might try to say and do whatever he can to convince her that his intentions are pure.

However, sometimes a guy will go overboard and rather than make her change her mind, he actually scares her off even more.

So, if you want to convince your ex to try again, avoid making these classic mistakes:

1. Continually promising her that you won't hurt her, to the point where you seem desperate, too sweet and too romantic as you pour your heart out to her.

For example: A guy might say to his ex, "I know that right now you're scared I might hurt you again, but I promise you that it will never happen again. I'm going to prove it to you no matter what I have to do, or how ever long it takes. You mean so much to me. I love you so much. I am willing to do whatever it takes. Please just believe me. Please."

He may then look for opportunities to show her how much he cares and prove to her that he would never hurt her.

He might think to himself, "If she's afraid that I will hurt her, then what I need to do is be extra sweet and nice to her to make her feel safer around me. I need to show her that she has nothing to fear from me. What I'll do is take her out to romantic dinners, buy her flowers and gifts and treat her like a princess. Hopefully, she will then realize that if I wanted to hurt her, I wouldn't be wasting my time being so nice to her and spoiling her. I will show her that I care about her more than anything else and that I'm willing to do anything to make her happy."

He might also shower her with attention every time he sees her (e.g. if they happen to work together, live in the same apartment building, or go to the same school or university), while at the same time continually pouring his heart out to her by saying things like, "I really care about you. I would never do anything to hurt you. Hurting you would be like cutting my own nose off to spite my face. I just want to take care of you. I miss you. Please give me a chance to show you that our love can be even better than before."

Yet, she just feels turned off by his desperation, which confuses her even more.

She ends up wondering why she is so turned off by him all of a sudden and assumes that it must be a sign that they aren't meant to be together.

Another classic mistake to avoid isâ€¦|

2. Taking what she is saying too seriously, rather than getting rid of her fear by making her smile, laugh and feel good around you.

In most ex back cases, what both the man and woman don't know is that the woman would feel attracted to him again if he would just calm down, be confident and get her smiling and laughing again when talking to him.

When you focus on getting her smiling and laughing, she naturally relaxes and opens back up to you. As long as you are being confident and emotionally masculine (i.e. you're not being a sensitive wussy), she will naturally feel attracted to you and will be motivated to give the relationship another chance.

Remember: Just because your ex might be saying that she fears getting hurt again, it doesn't mean she can't change her mind.

Most women don't want to come across as being too eager or desperate to get back with their ex. So, don't take what she's saying right now so seriously.

The best way to melt her defenses is by making her smile and laugh when you're interacting with her and making her feel good to be interacting with you again.

For example: If you're talking to her on the phone and she says something like, "I don't know if I want to get back together again, I'm afraid of getting hurt," you can use it as an opportunity to spark her feelings for you and make her smile and laugh.

For example: You can say in a joking way, "Hey I know how you feel. I don't know if I can take the pain of your eating your cooking again either. However, I'm willing to take the risk even though I fear for my life because I care about you. You can at least give me a chance too. I'm sure we can live on burnt toast and love. They say all you need is love, but burnt toast helps as well."

Saying something like that will make her laugh and ease the seriousness of the situation.

All of a sudden, she becomes open up to the idea of at least meeting up with you to see where things go from there because she can see that it would feel good and wouldn't be as awkward as she may have imagined.

Another mistake to avoid isâ€¦|

3. Asking her what you can do to remove the fear and then obeying her often unnecessary, unreasonable, or needy requests.

Sometimes a guy might go overboard to alleviate a woman's fears about getting back together by doing whatever she asks him to do.

For example: A woman might say to her ex, "I don't know if I can back together with you. I'm afraid you'll hurt me again. You're just too easily influenced by your friends. They mean more to you than I do," or "I can't accept sitting around at home waiting for you, while you're busy putting your job before me. I don't know if I can do that again. It's just too painful."

The guy might then try to show her how devoted he is to her by getting rid of most of his friends, leaving his job and spending every spare minute around her.

He might also reassure her by saying things like, “I would never hurt you. You mean the world to me. I’ve even given up hanging out with my friends so that you don’t feel like they’re more important to me,” or “Nothing else is more important than you. I’m not going out anymore without you.”

However, if you let your ex call the shots, she will eventually start feeling more emotionally dominant than you.

Then, even though she was the one who initially made all those unreasonable demands, she may begin to resent you for not being ballsy enough to stand up to her and she will feel turned off by what she perceives as your emotional weakness.

Don’t do that to yourself.

You can’t convince her that you won’t hurt her again by becoming her puppy dog.

It’s fine for you to reassure her, but for the most part, she wants to see that you are man enough to lead the way and guide both you and her into deeper feelings of love, respect and sexual attraction.

When she is feeling attracted to you and can see that you’ve changed, her fear will go away and will be replaced by loving and wanting for you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Prove to Your Ex That You're No Longer the Same Guy She Broke Up With

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The only way to prove to your ex that you're no longer the same guy she broke up with, is to interact with her on a phone call or in person and let her experience it.

For example:

1. If You Were Insecure Before, Let Her Experience Your Confidence Now

[image: She is now getting the attraction experience she wants]

Actions speak louder than words, so don't bother trying to prove to your ex that you're no longer the same guy she broke up with by saying something like, "I've really changed. I promise you I'm not the guy you remember anymore. I'm not insecure anymore" because she usually won't believe you.

So, what should you do instead?

Show her by the way you think, what you say, your behavior and the way you respond to what she says and does.

She will pick up on the changes automatically without you even having to tell her.

It's like how you can pick up on the fact that someone is shy, insecure or nervous when talking to you, compared to when they are confident, emotionally strong and at ease when talking to you.

They don't have to tell you; you just know it.

By the way!

If you appear to be confident all of a sudden, she will test you to make sure that you really have changed.

For example: A woman might test a guy by playing hard to get, or by being cold and distant towards him.

She might say something like, "I don't know if I could ever get back together with you. I just don't have feelings for you anymore," or "Why are you bothering me? It's over between us" or, "Get a life. Leave me alone" or, "I made a mistake by being with you."

A guy who is only pretending to be more confident will usually give himself away by getting upset, or appearing to be hurt (via his body language, change in vibe, eye contact) when she treats him that way.

She then knows that nothing has changed about him and will say something like, "Look, this just isn't going to work out. Let's forget about it and move on. I'm really not interested in getting back together with you. You have to move on."

She is saying that based on how she feels about him in the moment.

He's turning her off, so she sees no reason to give him another chance.

On the other hand, if she tests him and he uses his confidence to get her laughing and smiling, she begins to say to herself, "He is no longer the same guy that I broke up with. He really has changed. Maybe we can get back together again after all.

So how do you turn a serious statement like, I don't know if I could ever get back together with you. I just don't have feelings for you anymore, into something to make her smile and laugh about?

By using humor to turn her words against her.

For example: If your ex says something like that, you can respond by saying something along the lines of, You know, you're right. I could never get back together with you again either. It would be a complete mistake.

She might get a little bit surprised or even annoyed or upset with you for agreeing with her and she may then say, Right, I'm glad you agree, or Good. At least we're on the same page.

You can then say in a joking way, Well, it's not that I don't think you're great or anything like that, because I do, but I really don't think I could handle being in a car with you again. I mean, you're a terrible driver. Every time you drive, I see my life flashing before my eyes! It's like being in a car with a blind person driving. You're all over the place. Driving up onto the sidewalk, crashing into trees, driving over pedestrians—it's like being on an amusement park ride. So, yes – you're right, I don't think I could ever get back together with you. Well, at least not until you improve your driving!

At this point, she will most likely be smiling or laughing along.

She will then begin to think, This is what I always wanted. A guy who is confident enough to handle me and put me back in my place, even when I'm being a bit of a bitch to him. Now I really do believe that he's no longer the same guy I broke up with. He's not the same insecure that I dumped. Something really has changed about him and I like it.

Essentially, when you don't lose confidence in your attractiveness to her when she tests you, she notices it and everything changes for the better from there.

She drops her guard and opens herself up to the idea of getting back together again, because she can see you really are different now.

Another way to prove to your ex that you're no longer the same guy she broke up with is

2. If You Lacked Purpose Before, You're Now Making Progress Towards Your Big Goals and Ambitions in Life

Most women like the idea of being with a man who has some kind of purpose and direction in his life.

He doesn't need to be the CEO of a Fortune 500 company, a famous surgeon or lawyer, or a successful entrepreneur to impress her.

Instead, he simply needs to have some long term goals and dreams in his life that he is making progress towards achieving, independent of his relationship with her.

Why is this important?

Even though most modern women are independent and can take care of themselves physically and financially, they still like the idea of being with a man they can look up to, depend on and who makes them feel protected and safe in a relationship.

So, the thought of being with a guy who lacks purpose, has no ambitions, is drifting through his life and using his relationship with her as an excuse to hide behind, makes a woman feel unsafe, uncertain and uneasy about her future.

As a result, her respect and attraction for him begins to decline and she starts wishing that she could attract a man who actually has big goals and is making progress towards them.

Another reason why is that most women don't want to be a man's sole purpose in life.

Of course, a woman does want to be with a guy who is loving, caring and devoted to her, but she also wants him to be his own man, with his own dreams and goals.

When a guy makes his woman his purpose and focuses all his energy and attention on her, she begins to think, "Why is he smothering me like this? Doesn't he get it that women find that a turn off? He's driving me crazy with his clingy, needy behavior. At first I thought he was sweet when he was so attentive and devoted to me, but now I can't seem breathe anymore. I realize that the reason he's stuck to me like glue is that he's got nothing else going on in his life besides me. He's going nowhere and is dragging me along with him. This is not the way I imagined my relationship to be. I want out. I've got to find a real man who will make me feel safe about our future together, rather than living in fear that my life is going to turn out to be a big, fat mess because I'm with a guy who is afraid to reach for his true potential."

So, if you lacked purpose in life during your relationship with your ex, you need to quickly get to the point where you have a life purpose, goals and interests that are separate from your relationship with her.

This will allow you to feel as though you are happy with or without her, which is actually very attractive to women (especially ex's).

A woman wants to see that you love her and want to be with her, but you're not relying on her for your sense of identity in this world.

You are your own man and are making progress towards big goals that are important to you, even if she doesn't encourage or support you.

If you can start doing that, you will be able to truly prove to your ex that she has lost a great man and is missing out.

When you interact with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) she will sense that you are now your own man and don't need her in your life to feel fulfilled and happy.

However, don't brag to her about that to make her feel bad or to hopefully impress her.

For example: A guy might say to his ex, "I just want to tell you that I've really changed this time. You always wanted me to do something with my life, well I got myself a new job and I'm already working towards my next promotion. I've also started taking night classes to learn Spanish, so that I can take that trip to Argentina I always talked about but never got around to. I'm no longer the guy you broke up with. What do you think of me now?"

Women hate that.

A woman does not want you to do things in your life to hopefully get a pat on the head from her.

If you take that approach, then you're not your own man.

Instead, you are her little puppy dog trying to do tricks to impress her.

She wants a man that she can look up to and respect (a man who is his own man), not a puppy dog that needs her and is constantly trying to suck up to her.

Women hate it when an ex tells her all about his changes and expects her to say something like, â€œWow, I'm so proud of you. Aren't you a good little boy? Well done! I want you back now.â€

She wants him to be a great man because he wants to be a great man, not because he might get a pat on the head from her.

So, don't tell your ex how much you've changed to get her approval.

Instead, just say it because you are sincere in your motivation to succeed and are genuinely happy about the progress you are making.

She will sense that you are genuinely happy and getting on with your life based on how you talk, behave and react to her.

When she notices the changes, she will begin letting go of her negative feelings for you and start feeling attracted to you again.

Another way to prove to her that you really have changed is

3. If You Weren't Giving Her the Attraction Experience She Wanted Before, You Are Now

One of the main reasons why a woman might break up with a guy is because he doesn't make her feel the way she secretly wants to feel in the relationship with him.

For example: Some guys get dumped for lacking the emotional masculinity to make the woman feel girly and feminine.

A guy might stop treating his woman like a feminine, sexy woman and start treating her more like a neutral friend.

He might even say or think things like, â€œIt's so great to have a woman who likes to do guy stuff with me, rather than all that girly stuff women like so much. She's like one of the guys.â€

Here's the thing though

Even though a woman might genuinely enjoy doing guy stuff with her boyfriend (fianc  or husband), she still doesn't want to be treated like a guy all the time.

She wants to feel feminine, girly and like she's a sexy, attractive woman.

If the guy fails to make her feel like that, she will eventually start to lose interest when she realizes that her guy simply doesn't know how to give her the attraction experience she wants.

She will then begin to want to flirt with other men to see how attracted they are to her, so she can feel feminine, girly and sexy again.

In some cases, this then leads to the woman cheating and leaving her man.

Another way that a guy makes a woman feel less girly and feminine is by falling into the habit of taking on the less dominant role in the relationship.

This often happens because the guy believes it's what will make his woman the happiest.

Yet, here's the thing

When a woman feels more dominant in the relationship than her man, she cannot fully relax and be a feminine woman around him.

She might then say things like, “I’m tired of making all the decisions around here. Why don’t you man up and take charge?” in the hopes that he will change.

However, if the guy doesn’t pick up on her suggestions, she will eventually lose too much respect and attraction for him to justify staying in the relationship and she will break up with him.

Of course, that doesn’t mean that a woman wants a domineering man to boss her around and tell her what to do.

It simply means that she wants a man who is emotionally stronger than her, so she can look up to him and respect him, which then gives her the opportunity to relax into feeling like a real woman (i.e. feminine and girly).

It doesn’t matter if she makes some decisions at times.

What she wants is a man who is comfortable, willing and happy to take on the more dominant, leading role in the relationship.

If he can’t do that, she will dump him and try to find a man who can.

She may put up with it for months, years or even a decade, but she definitely won’t be happy and will usually be open to cheating or having an affair as a way of getting out of the relationship.

Another example of not giving a woman the attraction experience she wants is where a guy takes his woman for granted (e.g. treats her badly, doesn’t care about her feelings, expects her to put up with his insecure behavior), which makes her feel unloved and unappreciated.

To prove to her that he’s no longer the same guy she broke up with, he needs to show her that he knows that he’s made a mistake and then educate her on the fact that it’s okay to make mistakes in a relationship sometimes.

He needs to get her to understand that for a couple to stay together for life, they both need to love each other patiently and continually forgive each other for making minor mistakes that can be fixed along the way.

At the end of the day, a guy taking his woman for granted is not the end of the world.

It’s not a good thing to do, but it’s not rare either.

So many men do it and women know that.

It’s not what a man should do, but it’s not the end of the world either, so it doesn’t mean the relationship has to end.

He can change his ways and she can forgive him.

Once he has explained that to her, he needs to focus on re-attracting her.

How?

He needs to use every interaction he has with her from then on (especially over the phone and in person), as an opportunity to rebuild her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him again by showing her (via the way he talks, thinks, behaves and interacts with her) that he really has changed.

So, if you want to prove to your ex that you’re no longer the same guy she broke up with, you need to fully understand what it was that she wanted in the relationship with you that you weren’t giving her (e.g. she wanted to feel feminine and girly but felt more like a friend, she wanted you to be more confident and emotionally strong, but you were insecure and needy, she wanted you to have a purpose in life, but you used the relationship with her to hide from your true potential) and quickly change that.

Then, when you interact with her, let your actions speak for themselves by allowing her to experience the new and improved version of you.

Don't Tell Her That You've Changed, Let Her Experience it For Herself

[image: Let her experience the changes in you for herself]

Sometimes, when a guy desperately wants to prove to his ex that he's no longer the guy she broke up with, he might try to convince her by saying things like, "Please listen to me. I'm really not that guy anymore. I've really changed. Just give me another chance and I'll prove it to you."

Yet, a woman will rarely change her mind based on explanations that are designed to convince her to feel a certain way.

Here's why!

The only way that a woman will truly believe that you really have changed is when she experiences it for herself when you interact with her.

If the majority of your behavior, communication and attitude or vibe is turning her off, then she's not going to feel drawn to you and will keep saying things like, "I just don't believe you've really changed. It's over. You need to accept that. I don't want to be with you anymore. Please leave me alone."

On the other hand, if every time you interact with her, you focus on letting her experience the new you, she will instinctively feel attracted because she's experiencing the changes in you first hand.

When that happens, she just won't be able to stop herself from dropping her guard and opening herself up to spending more time interacting with you, to see if what she is experiencing is real, or just an act that you're putting on to get her back.

This is why it's so important to change for real.

If you were insecure, you've got to fix that.

You don't have to become perfect and have absolutely no more insecurity, but you do need to be a lot better.

That way, you will be able to continue attracting her and getting her to fully reconnect with her love for you as the relationship continues.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

5 Reasons Why Walking Away After a Break Up Doesn't Always Make a Woman Come Running Back to You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Walking away from a woman might seem like the solution to making your ex come running back, but here are 5 reasons why it usually doesn't work!

1. She Doesn't Have Enough Feelings at the Point of the Break Up to Care

[image: "Whatever! I'm outta here!"]

By the time a woman breaks up with a guy, she has usually reached the point where all of her positive feelings and emotions for him (e.g. respect, attraction, love) have been replaced by negative feelings such as anger, disillusionment and indifference.

So, when he decides to walk away in the hope that it makes her come running back, it just doesn't work on her.

Rather than cause her to panic and think, "Oh no! My ex is gone! I am going to lose him forever if I don't act quickly. I better call him up and do whatever it takes to get him back before it's too late," she's usually thinking, "Cool. He's actually making it easy for me. At least I don't have to deal with him trying to get me back and all of the begging, pleading and whining that usually comes with that. I am now free to move on without having to worry about him making things more difficult for me. This is great. I will find myself a new guy and move on."

This why I don't recommend that guys ignore their woman (i.e. walk away and don't look back) as a way to get her.

It can work on some women, but not all.

Here's why!

When a woman doesn't feel much (or any) respect, attraction and love for a guy, him walking away isn't going to be that much of a big deal to her.

She's just not going to care.

Instead, she's going to use the time apart as a way to quickly get over him, move on and find a replacement guy.

So, if you want to get your ex back, don't bother walking away as a way of making her come running back to you if she currently doesn't have strong feelings for you.

In the 100s of ex back cases that I've personally worked on with clients (where the woman had no more feelings for him when she dumped him), the woman only became interested again when he actively made her have feelings.

I've lost count of the amount of times a guy has said something like this to me, "Dan I gave her plenty of space and tried to show her that I wasn't needy by not contacting her for months, but she just moved on. Now, she doesn't want anything to do with me. I thought walking away was the right thing to do. Why didn't it work?"

Simple.

He didn't do anything to actively make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him. So, while he was giving her space, she was thinking about how much of a turn off he was near the end of the relationship and when she dumped him.

He either didn't put in the effort to transform himself and be able to re-attract her, or he thought it would make him look less needy if he didn't contact her.

Either way, she continued on with a negative perception of him.

So, what should you do instead if you actually want to get your ex woman back for real?

Focus on actively making her have feelings of respect and attraction for you again by interacting with her by text, e-mail, on social media and especially over the phone and in person.

When you spark her feelings for you again, everything changes.

Then, if you stop contacting her for a few days (i.e. 3 to 7 days) after you've sparked her feelings for you again, your chances of her coming running back become a lot higher.

Why?

Mainly because she now cares about you again.

She feels something for you.

She feels respect and attraction for you again and this makes the thought of losing you forever seem like a bad thing for once.

She starts feeling regret, loss and anxiety that she has made the wrong decision by breaking up with you and then all of a sudden, you get a text message on your phone, she calls you or she turns up at your home.

Why?

She feels something for you now.

She feels like she is losing you, rather than you just feeling like you're losing her.

On the other hand, if you don't spark her feelings for you first and you just walk away, she's just going to be thinking, "Good riddance. I'm a free woman at last. I can finally do all the things I've been putting off because of him. This is going to be great," and she will then move on.

In many cases, she will try to move on quickly to get revenge on you for walking away and trying to hurt her in the process.

She will think, "Yeah? You don't care about me? Really? Okay, I'll show you! I'll hook up with a new guy and make sure that you find out about it."

You don't want her feeling like she needs to get revenge on you.

Instead, just focus on making her feel like it would be a good thing to get back with you again.

Another reason why walking away after a break up doesn't always make a woman come running back is that

2. She is Experienced With Break Ups and Knows That the Pain Will Pass

[image: She is experienced with break ups and knows that the pain will pass]

If a woman is very young or the relationship with you was her first serious relationship, then she will find it difficult to deal with the pain of the break up.

However, if she's had plenty of experience with relationships, she will know that the pain she is feeling will pass and she will be okay.

So, when a woman breaks up with a guy, she usually knows that even though she might be currently feeling a lot of sadness and disappointment over the break up, the pain will eventually pass.

This is why walking away isn't the magic solution to get an ex back.

When a guy walks away, a woman can simply to herself, âI know that it hurts right now and it doesn't feel good to think that my ex can easily walk away from what we had. Yet, I've been through this kind of thing before and I know these negative feelings won't last forever. I just need to focus on doing the things that I enjoy doing, like hanging out with my friends and doing some of the things I've been putting off. Soon enough, I will be feeling better and I will forget all about him. I might even hook up with a guy this weekend to remind myself that there are other guys in this world and I don't need to be hung up on him.â

As you would know, it's easy for a woman to get laid.

All she has to do is say, "Yes" to one of the many guys who want to have sex with her when she's at a bar or nightclub.

Alternatively, she can get on an app like Tinder or an online dating site and immediately have 100s of horny guys willing to meet her for a date.

So, walking away isn't always the best strategy to get an ex back.

What I've found by successfully helping men to get their woman back is that you only need to give a woman a little bit of space before contacting her.

In most cases, a guy should give his ex 3 to 7 days of space and then contact her, re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction and then guide her back into a relationship with him.

If he waits too long to go through the ex back process, she will usually get over the pain and not want him back, or hook up with another guy and want to pursue that relationship instead.

Another reason why walking away from a woman after a break up doesn't always work is thatâ

3. Most Modern Women Are Emotionally Independent

In today's world, most women no longer feel that they need to be in a relationship with a man to feel fulfilled as a woman.

Unlike in the past where a woman was considered worthless if she didn't get married and have children, many modern women actually prefer to be single or to break up with guys who just aren't yet ready to be what women refer to as a real man (i.e. confident, emotionally masculine, making progress in life, loving, supportive, balanced).

So, if a woman breaks up with a guy and he then walks away, sheâ usually not going to think, *âOh no! What have I done? Iâve lost my only chance to get married and have a family! What am I going to do? I need to run after him and try and get him to take me back or else my life will be ruined. I will be so embarrassed because I don't have a guy anymore! Oh no! My life is over!*â

Instead, she will just focus on her friends, her career, her hobbies and whatever else she has going on in her life.

We're living in a different time now where women can be physically independent (e.g. she can make her own money, own her own home, do her her own DIY projects) and emotionally independent (e.g. she can have her own life purpose, goals, dreams and interests).

So, even though a woman may want to be in a relationship with a guy, she doesnât need him to be happy and feel fulfilled.

A woman will only stay with a man for life if the relationship gets better over time.

She is no longer required by society to stick around because "it's the right thing to do."

These days, you have to know what you're doing, otherwise you end up as another break up or divorce statistic.

As you may have noticed, it even happens to male celebrities, rich guys, handsome men and sport stars.

Women want a real man and aren't eternally amazed by a guy because he's famous, good looking or has money.

To keep a relationship together for life, you've simply got to be one of the rare men who can deepen a woman's feelings of love, respect and attraction for you over time.

This comes down to you.

It's about who you are as a man, not what you buy her, give to her or do for her.

What a woman wants is a man who makes her feel respect, attraction and love based on how he interacts with her and who he is as a man.

So, if a guy isn't able to give that type of relationship experience to a woman, she's not going to feel like she's missing out on much if he walks away and doesn't look back.

Instead, she will simply shrug it off and get on with her life because a relationship with him doesn't matter enough to her.

Yet, if he were to interact with her and let her sense (not tell her) that he is now the kind of man who can give her the relationship experience that women yearn for, she will then pay attention.

He doesn't have to tell her that he's that kind of man now because she will pick up on it based on how he talks, behaves and reacts to her.

Women can sense it and they know it when they come across a man who has what it takes to make a relationship last for life.

Another reason why walking away usually doesn't work is thatâ!

4. She Can Easily Fall in Love With Another Guy

If a woman is confident in herself and in her ability to get another guy, sheâs not going to feel too worried when her ex walks away.

Instead, she's likely just going to use the time where he's not contacting her, or trying to get her back, to hook up with a replacement guy and allow herself to fall in love with him.

So, if you want to get your ex back and she's the type of woman who can easily meet a new guy (e.g. she is pretty, she's a quality woman, she's bubbly and easily gets along with people), then walking away is probably not going to make her come running back to you.

On the other hand, if you're pretty sure that it's unlikely for her to meet another guy very quickly (e.g. because she's a bit insecure, she's shy, doesn't like to go out and party), then it is possible that she might change her mind and come back to you if you walk away.

However, there's no guarantee that even if your ex can't easily find a new guy, she's going to come running back to you.

Instead she might say to herself, Well I guess that's it then. If he's moving on then I'm going to have to do the same.

She will then open herself up to be hit on by guys (e.g. get on an online dating site, agree to go out with her girlfriends, agree to a date with her coworker who has always had a crush on her).

So, if you don't want to risk losing her, just focus on getting her back by actively making her feel respect and attraction for you again.

When you re-spark a woman's feelings for you, it becomes so much easier to get her back because she wants it too.

On the other hand, if you walk away and she doesn't have feelings for you anymore, she will likely just shrug it off and focus on moving on without you.

Finally, another reason why walking away from a woman after a break up doesn't always make her come running back is that

5. Many Women Won't Get Back With a Guy Unless He Makes it Happen

Even if a woman still has feelings for her ex and fears losing him, she won't always want to be the one who does the chasing.

In most cases, a woman wants to know that the guy is man enough to take responsibility and do what he needs to do to get her back.

She wants to know that he is confident and emotionally strong enough to go after what he truly wants in life (in this case it's her), without fear of rejection or hesitation.

If he can be the man and guide her through the ex back process, she will naturally be able to look up to him and respect him.

Then, falling back in love with him becomes easier and makes more sense to her because he clearly is a strong, capable man.

On the other hand, if he is insecure and just waits for her to come running back to him, she will perceive him as being too emotionally weak for her and feel turned off at a deep, instinctive level.

She will then automatically start to find confident guys attractive and will realize that her ex probably wasn't all she made him out to be in her mind.

So, if you want your ex back for real, you just have to make it happen by re-attracting her now, rather than waiting around for her to take the lead and come running after you one day.

You need to show her that you have the balls to be the man by calling her and making her feel happy to be interacting with you again.

The happier she feels interacting with you, the more open and willing she becomes to the idea of getting back with you again.

Walking Away Might Hurt You More Than it Hurts Her

Sometimes, a guy might feel so hurt about being dumped by his woman that he might decide to hurt her by walking away and not looking back (i.e. accepting the break up and then cutting off all communication).

A guy like that is secretly hoping that walking away will teach her a lesson and make her feel so much pain that she comes running back to him.

Yet, when she doesn't, it's not uncommon for a guy to gradually begin losing confidence in himself and in his value to her and other women.

He may start thinking things like, "I was hoping to teach my ex a lesson by making her miss me, but it has been months since I walked away and she hasn't even called me once to even say hello. Maybe it's because she's decided that I'm not good enough for her. Maybe being apart made her realize that she can do better than me. Maybe I wasn't good enough for her."

Then, when he thinks about moving on and dating again, he may begin to feel nervous and unsure of himself and his value to women.

He might say to himself, "If my ex won't even bother giving me a call after all this time even though she used to really loved me, what chance do I stand of getting another woman to truly want me? I don't see why a hot woman would be interested in me now. I'm just a loser who got dumped. My ex made that pretty clear when she forgot all about me so quickly."

He then spirals into a cycle of negativity and self-doubt, which eats away at whatever remaining confidence he has in himself.

He might then think that he will have to settle for an unattractive woman, or just being single and lonely for the rest of his life.

As you may know, it's easy for a woman to find a new guy just by saying yes to the many guys who would love to sleep with her.

On the other hand, a guy needs to be very confident in himself to attract a high quality woman.

Women are instinctively attracted to emotionally strong, confident men who believe in themselves and in their value to her and are turned off by men who are emotionally weak, insecure and self-doubting.

So, when a guy ruins his confidence by walking away and seeing that his ex doesn't care enough to come running back, most women (including her) will instinctively feel turned off by him and will usually reject him.

Don't let this happen to you.

You may have heard the expression, â€œDon't cut off your nose to spite your faceâ€?

In other words, “Don't cut off your nose to get back at your face/get revenge against your face because it will end up being worse off for you.”

In terms of getting your ex back, essentially what this means is that while youâ€™re playing games and trying to make her come running back, you could actually be eroding your own self-confidence and making more difficult for yourself.

Why do that to yourself when thereâ€™s a much easier way to get your ex back?

The fastest way to get your ex back is by actively sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you and showing her (by the way you talk, think and behave) that youâ€™re no longer the same guy she broke up with.

How you make her feel right now is what really matters.

For example:

- Does she feel feminine and girly in your presence, or does she feel more neutral or even turned off?
- Are you ballsy enough to stand up to her, or are you too nice and let her push you around?
- Are you the kind of man she can look up to and respect, or does she feel a little embarrassed to be seen with you based on who you've become?
- Are you confident and self-assured around her, or are you nervous and insecure?
- Can she fully relax into being a feminine woman around you, or does she feel more emotionally dominant than you?
- Are you emotionally strong and stable, or have you become emotionally sensitive and insecure?

Those are the things that really matter to a woman.

Women are instinctively attracted to confident men who believe in themselves and turned off by insecure men who doubt themselves.

So, rather than waste a lot of time walking away from your ex in the hopes that she will come running back, focus instead on becoming the kind of man that she can truly look up to, respect, feel attracted to and love.

Then, when you interact with her (e.g. on a phone call or in person) she will sense your new level of confidence, maturity and emotional strength and it will change how she thinks about you.

Suddenly, she will begin to feel lucky that a man like you actually still wants her and is calmly, confidently and lovingly pursuing her.

Her guard will then come down and itâ€™s up to you to take her in your arms and make her yours once again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Should You Ask Your Ex, “Do You Want to Start From the Beginning and Date Again?”

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

No.

You shouldn’t ask your ex, “Do you want to start from the beginning and date again?” because a woman will almost always say, “No” to that.

Why?

If she still doesn’t know whether or not she wants to give you a chance, she’s not going to commit to the idea of fully going back into the courting stage of a relationship (e.g. going on dates, being romantic and opening her heart to you).

So, rather than asking her if she wants to date you again, you simply need to activate her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

How?

Begin giving her the attraction experience that she always wanted from you, but likely never told you about.

Then, then guide her back into a relationship with you.

Of course, a lot of guys reading this might ask, “What does it mean to give her the attraction experience she wants? Do I have to get a physical makeover (e.g. buy new clothes and shoes, change my hairstyle, go to the gym and get a model body) before she will want to get back together again?”

No.

Giving a woman the attraction experience that she wants is not about being more physically attractive to her.

Instead, it’s about being more emotionally attractive to her.

Of course, if a guy improves on his physical appearance, most women will appreciate it, but it’s definitely not what will make her decide whether or not to get back with him.

Instead, a woman usually bases her decision on whether he can now make her feel attracted in the ways she really wants, or if he’s still stuck at the same level he was at when she broke up with him.

For example: If a guy got dumped for being too much of a pushover and essentially letting his woman “wear the pants” in the relationship, he will need to get ready to be “the boss” of the relationship from now on.

She may have seemed to like being able to boss him around during the relationship because she always got her way, but that’s not what a woman really wants from a man.

A woman wants to be respected, listened to, cared about and loved, but she doesn’t want to be a guy’s boss and have him look up to her as the leader of the relationship.

She wants a man that she can look up to and respect and who makes her feel like she wants to be a good girl for him.

So, if he wants her back, he needs to show her that he is now man enough to stand up to her when she tries to dominate him, while at the same time being loving and respectful towards her.

It's not about becoming aggressive, overly assertive or overly dominant.

Instead, it's just about relaxing, being the man and being the more emotionally strong one.

If he can do that for her (she will pick up on the change based on how he talks to her, behaves and reacts to her now), she will automatically feel respect and attraction for the new version of him.

She may not want to refer to it as "dating" him again or "starting from the beginning," but she will want to see him again and give the relationship another try because he now knows how to attract her in the way that is important to her (i.e. he's more of a man now).

Another example is where a woman may have seemed to enjoy discussing her feelings with her guy, so he copied her and became emotionally sensitive and needy by always discussing his feelings.

What she really wanted was for him to be open emotionally, but to not being like her (i.e. a woman) and always be talking about how he feels.

So, for him to prove to her that he's not an emotionally sensitive, needy guy anymore, he needs to show her by way of his thinking, conversation style and behavior that he is more emotionally strong now (e.g. by being confident around her, not getting upset or flustered when she is being cold and distant towards him, focusing on being a man rather than talking about how it feels).

However, if he doesn't give her that and instead asks something like, "Do you want to start from the beginning and date each other again?" she will most likely say, "No" because he doesn't even know how to give her the attraction experience she wants, so she knows it will be more of the same.

So, make sure that you focus on preparing yourself to re-attract her and reactivate her feelings when you interact with her.

That's what really matters when getting a woman back.

When she can see for herself that you're nothing like the guy she remembers breaking up with, she won't be able to stop herself from dropping her guard and opening back up to you.

She will begin to see you with different eyes and from there, you can make a fresh start together without even having to ask her for it.

First Things First

[image: First things first. Attraction]

Attraction needs to come first and everything else flows on naturally after that.

There's no point in trying to be romantic and taking your ex on dates, when she doesn't even want to think about getting into a relationship with you again because you haven't re-attracted her.

If you want her back, you have to interact with her (e.g. via text, social media, but preferably over the phone and in person) and make her experience new, positive feelings and emotions about you (e.g. respect, attraction, love) so that the negative things she remembers about you (e.g. her being more dominant than you and being able to push you around, you being needy and insecure) no longer seem important to her.

Sometimes, a guy makes the mistake of thinking that he needs to first get his ex to agree to dating again, so that he can then start building up her feelings for him.

Yet, he's got it all wrong. The ex back process is the opposite of that.

He must first re-spark her feelings and then she will be more open to the idea of dating him again.

Without her having feelings for him, she's just not going to be interested or motivated enough to want to date him because she assumes that it will just be the same as before.

[image: When she is attracted again, dating again seems like the right thing to do]

Yet, when he reignites her sexual and romantic attraction for him, starting again seems like the right thing to do for her.

So, make sure that you start with attraction, rather than going straight for the kill and asking for a relationship.

Dating Sounds Too Serious to Her

Labeling it as a date rather than as catching up or meeting up to say hello or hanging out for a bit only makes a woman feel pressured to get back together again if she doesn't feel ready yet.

So, avoid serious words like, "dating" and "starting from the beginning" and instead just be more relaxed about it.

If you're too serious and formal, she will almost certainly close up, even if you have begun to re-attract her.

Besides, you can't really start from the beginning again anyway.

You need to start from where you are right now, which is a broken relationship that needs to be rekindled through the reactivation of feelings of mutual respect, sexual attraction and love.

It's absolutely critical that you switch your focus to making her feel sexually and romantically attracted to you again, rather than trying to get her to commit to a relationship before you do that.

So, start by getting her on a friendly phone call with you and making her laugh, smile and feeling good to be talking to you.

When you make a woman smile and laugh, it makes it a lot more difficult for her to keep up her defenses, because she's not feeling threatened by you.

It also makes her feel attracted to you, especially if she is being cold, closed off or even a bit bitchy towards you.

She respects you for maintaining your cool and confidence and being able to crack some jokes and get her smiling and laughing on the phone.

It makes her realize that you are the man and she is the woman and she likes that.

She likes it when you are leading the way and not nervously checking to see how you should behave based on what she is saying or doing.

You are a confident man who is leading the way to smiles, laughter and good feelings, which is very attractive to women.

Then, when she's feeling relaxed and at ease, suggest meeting up for a cup of coffee.

So, how can you do that?

Here areâ€¦|

2 Examples Of How to Ask a Woman to Meet Up With You, Without Making Her Feel Like Sheâ€™s Committing to Dating Again

Asking your ex to meet up with you for a cup of coffee is no big deal, unless you make it out to be one.

So, depending on your approach, sheâ€™s either going to be thinking, â€œCoffee is okay. It doesnâ€™t mean weâ€™re getting back together again. Sureâ€¦| why not?â€œ and feel relaxed and eager to see you again, or sheâ€™s going to feel pressured and think â€œNo way! I can see where this is going. He just wants to meet up for coffee so that he can try and talk me into getting back together again. Well Iâ€™m not falling for that! No way am I going!â€œ

Remember: The more light-hearted and relaxed the interaction between you and her is, the more her guard will come down.

So, here are 2 examples of how you can ask her to meet up with you in a way that puts her at ease and makes her feel curious and even a little excited to be seeing you again.

1. The serious approach.

This first example doesn't use any humor and is serious, but light-hearted and easy-going.

So, imagine that you and your ex are talking on the phone.

You might start off by saying something like, â€œHey, how have you been?â€œ and she will probably just say, â€œFine,â€œ or â€œFine, How about you?â€œ

From there, chat with her for a couple of minutes while making sure to keep things light and friendly.

Once youâ€™ve gotten past the initial chit chat, simply ask, â€œSo, anywayâ€¦|how about we get together for a cup of coffee sometime in the next few days?â€œ

She might initially say something like, â€œNo, I donâ€™t think thatâ€™s a good idea,â€œ or â€œI donâ€™t think Iâ€™m ready to see you in person. Maybe some other timeâ€œ or, “No, we’re broken up now. Let’s just leave it at that.”

Regardless of what she says, donâ€™t get upset or start saying things like, â€œPlease! I just want to see you. Why are you being so stubborn? Come on, just meet up with me. Please!â€œ

Obviously getting upset or angry with her isnâ€™t going to motivate her to want to see you again.

Instead, sheâ€™s probably going to be thinking, â€œThis is what I was afraid of all along. I canâ€™t believe that he’s flipping out like this and still expects me to want to see him again. He obviously doesn’t understand how me or other women feel attraction for men. He doesn’t get it that we hate desperation and love confidence. Anyway, at least heâ€™s made my decision easy for me. Iâ€™m going to hang up now, cut him out of my life completely and move on. Itâ€™s just not going to work out between us.â€œ

So, a better way to convince her to meet up with you if sheâ€™s saying no, is to simply relax and say

(in an easy-going, but gently assertive manner), â€œHey, Iâ€™m only asking out for a quick cup of coffee and a catch up. Iâ€™m sure that you can spare 10 minutes, right? A coffee doesnâ€™t mean that we get back together. Itâ€™s just a coffee. No strings attached. Besides, these days, itâ€™s no big deal for exâ€™s to meet up and just hang out together for a bit. Weâ€™re mature adults. We can do that. I promise you that if we meet up and afterwards you decide that you never want to see me again, Iâ€™ll leave you alone and not contact you again. So, how about it? Letâ€™s get together for some coffee and say hello as friends. Then, if you want to say goodbye forever, Iâ€™ll delete your number off my phone. Okay? So, how does Sunday afternoon at 1pm sound to you?â€

In most cases, a woman will say something like, â€œOh, okay. Maybe just this once,â€ or, â€œAs long as you stick to your word and promise not to call me again if I donâ€™t want you to.â€

Then, just go ahead and make plans to meet her at a place and time that suits you both.

When you meet up with her for coffee, make sure that you donâ€™t get too serious with her and say things like, â€œI was wondering. Do you want to start from the beginning and date again?â€ which will just scare her away.

Instead, focus on saying and doing the types of things that will keep turning her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you back on.

The more respect and attraction she feels for you, the more her defenses come down and then getting back together again happens naturally all by itself.

Yet, if you push her to commit to dating again, she will usually resist you and she may then cut you out of her life simply because she canâ€™t handle the pressure.

2. The funny approach.

Imagine that youâ€™re talking to your ex on the phone.

Just like in the previous example, you will likely start off by asking her how she is and she will usually ask you about what youâ€™ve been up to.

Once youâ€™ve gotten past the usual chit chat, you can say to her, â€œOh, by the wayâ€¦ I have some really great news that I want to share with you.â€

She will likely respond by asking, â€œWhat?â€ or â€œWhat is it? Tell me?â€

You can then say in a joking way, â€œI just heard that I won a competition where the winner gets to have coffee with this really cute redhead tomorrow.â€

She will probably get a bit annoyed with you for telling her something like that and she may say something like, â€œOh! Well good for you,â€ or â€œSo why are you telling me?â€ and you can then reply by saying, â€œWell, Iâ€™m telling you because you need some time to get ready before I pick you up. Oh, did I forget to mention that youâ€™re the cute redhead?â€ and have a laugh with her about that.

Of course, she might get the joke right away without you having to explain it to her, so you can just cut right to, â€œSo, cute redhead. Are you up for a coffee tonight or tomorrow?â€

She will almost certainly laugh at your joke, while at the same time feel flattered that youâ€™re still referring to her as a cute redhead, even though sheâ€™s your ex.

If she wants to play hard to get, she might then say, â€œNice try, but youâ€™re not going to get me to meet you for coffee like that,â€œ and you can laugh and say, â€œHey! Itâ€™s in the competition rules. The judgesâ€™ decision is final. You and I have to have a coffee and a laugh, so let's just do itâ€œ and have a laugh with her about that.

She will feel curious about the new you (e.g. youâ€™re being confident and are willing to joke around, rather than being hesitant and doubting yourself) and she will naturally feel a spark of respect and attraction for you for having the balls to tease her in that way.

When that happens, she automatically opens herself up to the idea of actually seeing you again in person.

You can then say, â€œHey, I was only joking with you of course, but it would be nice to catch up over a cup of coffee though, right? Iâ€™m available on Sunday or Wednesday afternoon, so how about it? Which day suits you best?â€œ

At this point she will most-likely be feeling relaxed and happy and she will probably say, “Yes.”

If she doesn't, just be a bit more persistent, but remain being easy-going and light-hearted, rather than getting tense and annoyed.

Say to her, “Come onâ€œ|it's just a coffee. We can do that” and she will most likely go ahead with it.

When you meet up with her, simply continue building on her feelings for you and guide her back into a relationship with you.

Let Her Experience the New You

When your ex actually gets to experience the new you in person and confirms with her own eyes that youâ€™re no longer the same guy she broke up with, it becomes difficult for her to hold on to her negative feelings about you.

- If you were insecure and self-doubting before, you are confident and emotionally strong now.
- If you were immature and childish before, you are more mature and serious about your life now.
- If you were too emotionally subservient with her before, you are now emotionally dominant.
- If you were emotionally sensitive before, you are now emotionally strong like a real man.

By the wayâ€œ|

You don't have to tell her that you've changed.

She will pick up on it based on how you now talk to her, your behavior, body language, attitude, vibe and how you react to her.

[image: She senses the changes and automatically wants you back]

If she senses the changes, she will be impressed and she will be interested.

For example: If she meets up with you and expects you to be nervous around her, but instead notices that you are confident, she canâ€™t keep saying to herself, â€œI donâ€™t want to be with him because I donâ€™t want to be with an emotionally weak guy,â€œ because youâ€™re not that guy anymore.

She has to change how she feels about you because youâ€™re now displaying the types of traits and behaviors that naturally attract women to men.

Whatever, the case with you and your ex, showing her (not telling her) that youâ€¦ve changed is the quickest way to get her love back.

Her walls will come down and the idea of starting over again feels good to her.

With one differenceâ€¦!

This time around, the love between you and her will be more mature and meaningful because you are now the man that she always wanted you to be.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Should You Take Your Ex Back Even Though She's Been With Another Guy?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Whether or not you should take your ex back, even though she's been with another guy, depends on your answers to the following 5 questions.

1. Did She Hook Up With Another Guy Before or After You Broke Up?

[image: Did she hook up with another guy before or after you broke up?]

If your ex cheated on you while she was still in a relationship with you, it can signal that she is an untrustworthy woman who can never be trusted.

However, if she is a woman of good character who made a terrible mistake and is truly sorry about it, then taking her back after she's been with another guy can be okay and can work.

If you can genuinely forgive her and fully trust her again, then the relationship can actually become even better than it was before.

On the other hand, if your ex is a woman of bad character who enjoyed cheating on you and is more than likely going to do it again, then the answer should be pretty obvious.

After all, why would you want to take back a woman who has already cheated on you and is likely to do it again?

If she's like that, she may decide to get back with you, make you commit even further (e.g. have a child, get married) and then eventually cheat on you again.

That's not going to be fun.

However, if your ex hooked up with another guy after she broke up with you, then the circumstances really are different.

Basically, when a couple breaks up, all bets are off, and each person is free to move on and do what he or she likes, with whomever they like.

There's no law that states a woman can't have sex with, date or fall in love with another guy immediately after she has broken up with her ex.

Sure, it doesn't feel nice to know that your ex has been with another guy, but she's an independent, free woman and you don't own her.

Likewise, you are an independent, free man and are allowed to move on with another woman without getting her permission.

That's just how it works.

Real life is not like a romance novel or romantic movie, where the woman sits around pining over her lost love for months and years, until he finally comes back and sweeps her off her feet.

Instead, when a woman breaks up with her boyfriend (fianc  or husband) she's free to move on right away if that's what she wants to do.

That's just how things are these days because unlike in the past, modern society now encourages women to make decisions based on what will make them the happiest.

So, if she has been with a new guy since the break up and didn't cheat on you, it's actually pretty normal.

Most couples who split up end up hooking up with a new person before getting back together.

If you want her back, it's best to completely forget about the other guy and just make the new relationship that she has with you even better than it was before.

2. Do You Know How to Give Her the Attraction Experience That She Secretly Wants From You?

[image: Are you ready to give her the attraction experience she really wants?]

When a woman hooks up with another guy (either by cheating on her current man, or after she breaks up with him) it's often because she is eager to experience the type of attraction that she felt was lacking in her relationship with her ex.

For example: If a woman's ex guy was too dull and boring in the relationship (e.g. he preferred to stay home and watch TV all the time, took her to the same restaurant all the time, wasn't interested in trying anything new), then her new guy will usually be much more exciting and adventurous (e.g. he likes traveling, tries new things, takes her to interesting places).

Another example is where a guy put everyone else in his life (e.g. friends, family, his boss) before her in terms of importance and she felt unloved and unappreciated.

In a case like that, her new guy will usually be more loving and attentive towards her, which will make her feel special.

The point is, when a woman hooks up with another guy, it's usually because he is filling the emotional gaps that are (or were) missing in her relationship with her ex.

However, that doesn't mean he is perfect.

Sooner or later, he may also start having gaps of his own (e.g. he might be more adventurous, but he's irresponsible and doesn't want to settle down, or he might be more loving and attentive, but over time he becomes clingy and needy).

No guy is perfect, so the chances are high that you are a much better man than he is or ever will be.

If you want to take your ex back even though she's been with another guy, don't waste time worrying about him.

He's not important.

You and her being together is what really matters.

So, just focus on improving the gaps that caused you and your ex woman to break up in the first place.

For example:

- Did you make her feel feminine and girly in your presence, or did she feel more like a neutral friend or big sister?
- Were you the more dominant one in the relationship, or did you allow her to push you around or control you with her tantrums and mood swings?

- Were you confident and emotionally strong in the relationship with her, or did you feel insecure, worry about losing her and become too emotionally sensitive?
- Did you have interests, goals and a clear life purpose outside of your relationship with her, or did you make her the centre of your world and became clingy and needy as a result?
- Did you make her feel loved and appreciated, or did she feel taken for granted?
- Did you and her have fun together as a couple, or were you always disagreeing and arguing?
- Were you assertive and masculine (in a loving way, not an aggressive way), or were you too soft and gentle around her?
- Were you easy-going and supportive of her, or did you become aggressive, angry and critical of her?

When you understand what was really missing from the overall attraction experience, you can then make some adjustments to your behavior and the way you think, talk and interact with her from now on.

When you do that, she then starts to feel respect and attraction for you again and thinks something like, “Why did I let this guy go? I must have been crazy to think that another guy can be better than him. I need to get him back.”

From there, you just need to continue building on her feelings of respect and attraction and guide her back into a committed relationship.

3. Have You Forgiven Her and Can You Now Fully Trust Her?

Being able to completely forgive and trust your ex again (even though she's been with another guy) is a crucial part of getting a relationship back together for real.

If you're going to get back with her, only to become suspicious of her every move, then it's not going to work for either of you.

For example: If you end up doing things like checking her phone messages, social media pages or e-mail and possibly even saying things like, “I just don't trust you anymore,” or “I don't really believe you love me. How can I trust you now, when you ran off with some other guy?” then it's not going to work.

Here's the thing:

Even though you can never fully trust a woman, if you want your relationship to work, you just have to.

For example: My wife was 20 when I met her and I was 35.

Most people will think, “Aren't you worried that she will eventually get bored of you being older and dump you or cheat on you?” and my answer is, “No. Not at all.”

I trust in my ability to deepen her feelings of respect, attraction and love over time, which is why our relationship always gets better and better.

Even though it was amazing at the start, it always gets better and we're always more in love.

So, there's nothing to worry about.

Of course, I could worry about it if I wanted to, but why would I do that and ruin the relationship?

As a man, you have to be the strong one and trust your woman 100% and never worry.

You have to know that you are her man and she is going to stick with you.

Of course, in your case, you have something else to considerâ€¦

She has been with another man.

So, the question is, “Have you forgiven her and can you now fully trust her?”

If you haven’t forgiven you and you want her back, you need to do that as soon as possible.

If you can’t fully trust her and you want her back, you just have to let go of the doubt and give her your 100% trust from now on, otherwise it’s just not going to work.

Just remember: A woman hooking up with another guy after breaking up with you doesn’t mean that you and her aren’t a great match, or that you can’t have an amazing relationship if you get back together again.

It simply means that some mistakes were made (most likely by both of you).

You may have made mistakes that turned her off and made her want to cheat on you or leave you and she may have made a mistake by cheating or hooking up with a guy after you and her broke up.

However, that doesn’t mean that the love between you and her is dead.

You can bring it back to life, if you can forgive her and move forward together with an open mind and trust in the fact that the respect, attraction and love that you and her feel for each other will deepen over time.

How can you do that?

Get her to Stage 5 of a relationshipâ€¦

Most guys are unable to get a woman to Stage 5 and keep her there.

If your ex gets the sense that you can do that now (based on how you now talk to her, behave and react to her), she will open back up to you and want you back.

At the end of the day, a woman wants to be with a man that she can love and stick with for life.

The best part of a relationship is when you get to Stage 5 and keep going.

Personally speaking, my wife and I got to Stage 5 a long time ago and have kept that going ever since.

I sincerely feel sorry for any couple who doesn’t get there, or who can’t stay there because of a lack of knowledge about how to deepen feelings of love, respect and attraction over time.

Another question to ask yourself as you consider whether or not to take your ex back isâ€¦

4. Have You Hooked Up With Any Other Women Since the Break Up?

Sometimes, if a guy puts everything into his relationship with a woman, it can be difficult for him to move on and consider hooking up with other women for three main reasons:

1. He believes that his ex is his soul mate and that he can only be with her.
2. He’s afraid of opening himself up emotionally to other women, because that would leave him wide open to the potential of being hurt again.
3. He worries that hooking up with other women will make his ex never want to get back with him.

So, the question is, “Have youÂ hooked up with any other women since the break up?”

What you need to understand is that love is everywhere.

You can experience amazing love with many different kinds of women, or just one woman.

The key to success with women is to be fearless and not let one bad experience ruin you for life.

Thereâs nothing wrong with going out and hooking up with other women if you and your ex are broken up.

You can do that and your ex can do that too.

Then, if you both decide that you want to get back together again, you can choose to do that.

Besides, even though a woman might act like she is angry that her ex hooked up with another woman, it actually makes her feel more attracted to him.

Why?

Women are attracted to men who are liked, loved and wanted by other women, which is why the more famous a celebrity becomes or the more popular a normal guy becomes, the more attractive he is to women.

On the other hand, women are turned off by guys who are not liked, loved and wanted by other women.

So, if a guy is sitting around feeling sorry for himself, is low on confidence and can't deal with interacting with other women, it signals to his ex that other women will see him as low value and less attractive compared to a confident guy who isn't afraid to talk to and hook up with other women.

Of course, you don't actually have to hook up with other women to get an ex woman back.

However, if your ex woman has already had sex with another guy, it's usually the best thing to do for your emotional health and for her perception of you.

After all, if you get back with her after she's had sex with another guy and are secretly worrying that he might have been better than you, then it will come across in your conversation, body language, vibe and attitude and she will feel turned off.

However, if you have hooked up with another woman and enjoyed the sex, you will naturally feel as though you and her are even and can both forget about the other people and move on together as a couple.

Additionally, if you can't fully forgive your ex for what she did, hooking up with other women and experiencing great sex and love again will help you realize that you are liked, loved and wanted by another woman and don't desperately need your ex back.

Instead, you want your ex back.

You don't need her back; you want her back.

There's a big difference in that because women are turned off by guys who need them to feel good about themselves.

Women are attracted to men who are confident, happy and forward moving in life with or without her.

Another question to ask yourself isâ

5. Can You Easily Attract Another Quality Woman Like Her, or Do You Just Want Her Back Because You Can't Attract Other Quality Women?

If a guy is very confident, can easily pick up beautiful women and has been having sex with and dating other women since the break up, then it won't really bother him that his ex has been with another guy (especially if she hooked up with the other guy after him and her broke up).

Guys like this have their choice with women.

Watch this!

A guy who has his choice of women isn't going to worry about his ex woman sleeping with another guy, because he knows how attractive he is to her and to women in general.

He's likely had a lot of sex with many different women, so he may think, "She hooked up with another guy? Well, that's her loss, not mine, and he will then go out and hook up with other women without giving his ex a second thought.

However, when a guy lacks confidence in himself, feels insecure about his attractiveness to women, doesn't really know how to attract and pick up women and only relies on getting lucky with women every now and again, he might say to himself, "I know my ex has been with another guy, but I want her back because I can't get other girls. If I don't take her back, I'll either have to settle for an unattractive woman, or I'll end up being single for life. At least having my ex back is better than having to go out there and getting rejected. She is a quality woman and I normally can't get women like her, so I will just have to take her back."

Do you relate to the guy above more than the guy who has his choice of women?

If so, you need to improve your ability to attract your ex and other women, otherwise she's just going to break up with you again.

A woman needs to feel good about the idea of getting back together with you, rather than feeling like she's doing you a favor because she feels sorry for you.

If she senses that you only want her back because you can't get other quality girls, she will say, "No" to your attempts to get her back or give you a chance and then break up with you again.

So, if you want her back for real, you should begin improving your ability to attract her right away.

Don't expect her to go easy on you and be kind because you love her so much.

Women stay with men who make them feel respect, attraction and love, not pity, frustration and annoyance.

4 Mistakes to Avoid if You Decide to Take Her Back

If you decide to take your ex back even though she's been with another guy, make sure that you're ready to truly forgive her and start over with a 100% clean slate.

To do so, I recommend that you avoid making the following mistakes!

1. Holding a grudge against her for it.

Holding a grudge against your ex is the quickest way to lose her again.

If you can't fully forgive her for hooking up with another guy, then taking her back will only lead to another break up.

Your anger towards her will eventually erode any remaining positive feelings between you and her and will be replaced by negative emotions such as anger, resentment and mistrust.

So, make sure that if you take her back, you are willing to leave the past behind and make a fresh start where neither of you bring up past mistakes.

Just focus on now and your future together.

Look at the past as what has been and don't allow it to mix with now or the future.

Make now and the future the best it can be.

2. Planning to slowly get emotional revenge on her over time for making you feel rejected and betrayed.

[image: Getting emotional revenge for what she did to you]

Sometimes, a guy might decide to take back an ex even though she's been with another guy just to get emotional revenge on her.

He might take her back, make her fall deeply in love with him again and then begin to treat her badly (e.g. by taking her for granted, criticizing and belittling her, being aggressive, being selfish) to make her pay for the pain she caused him.

In some cases, the guy may even dump her or cheat on her to get revenge.

If that's your plan, then you can go ahead and do if you want.

It's your life and no one can tell you what to do.

Besides, you probably feel justified in getting revenge, so it's up to you if you want to do that.

However, if you want to take the high road and be a good person, I recommend that just forget all about her and focus all your energy on hooking up with an even more beautiful woman than her, falling in love with her and being extra happy and fulfilled in your life.

That's the best revenge if revenge is what you really want.

When your ex sees photos of you on social media (set them to public rather than just friends, if you want your ex to be able to see them from the outside if she has unfriended you) looking so happy with your new woman, she will regret what she did to you.

She will then begin to look at you as the one that got away and may contact you to try and get you back.

Of course, that's the long way to get an ex back.

If you want to get her back quickly, this is what you need to do!

All you need to do is focus on reactivating her feelings for you and then guide her back into a relationship.

Another mistake to avoid is!

3. Asking her if the other guy was better than you in bed.

Whatever happened between your ex and the other guy doesn't matter.

A man who believes in himself and in his attractiveness to his woman, doesn't need to ask a question like, "So, was he better in bed than me? Did you enjoy it more with him?"

Just forget about the other guy and focus on deepening the respect, attraction and love that she feels for you.

Having her in your arms, kissing you and saying, "I love you," is all that matters.

The other guy is history.

Just think about some of the women you've had sex with in the past.

You can barely remember them, right?

That's how he will be to her when you get her back and focus on deepening her feelings of respect, attraction and love over time.

Finally, the 4th mistake to avoid if you take her back is

4. Asking her if she misses the other guy.

If she's with you, then she's with you for a reason.

Whatever happened between her and the other guy has nothing to do with you and her now.

If you keep bringing up the other guy by asking her if she misses him, she may actually start thinking, "Maybe I do miss him. Maybe I made a mistake getting back together with my ex."

Why?

If she senses your insecurity and feelings of inferiority compared to the other guy, it will turn her off you and make him seem more attractive.

Why?

Women are always attracted to the man who is more confident when deciding which one to be with.

It's not about having arrogant or aggressive confidence, but instead about having a relaxed, easy-going confidence in yourself and your attractiveness to her.

If you doubt your attractiveness compared to him, she will start to miss him and want to be with him (or another confident guy) instead.

So, don't do that to yourself or to her.

You need to live in the present moment.

She is with you now and that's all that matters.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Why a Woman Says That She Doesn't Want to Lose You, But Breaks Up With You Anyway

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 3 common reasons why a woman will say that she doesn't want to lose you, but then breaks up with you anyway!

1. She Doesn't Yet Know if She'll Be Able to Get Over You and Move On

[image: She doesn't know if she will be able to move on]

Sometimes, when a woman has little or no experience with breakups, she may be more hesitant about fully breaking up with a guy.

For example: She might say to herself, "Yes, I love him, but at the same time he's just not making me feel the way I want to feel. I'm not happy with him. Yet, what if I break up with him and then I discover that I can't get over him? What if he changes by fixing the things that turned me off and I like him again all of a sudden, or some other girl takes him? I might be letting the love of my life go. I don't know what to do. I don't know if I want to lose him."

Here's the thing though!

Just because she is unsure about being able to move on without him, it doesn't mean that she's going to stay with him if he keeps turning her off.

For example:

While she is saying that she doesn't want to lose him, is he being attractive to her by remaining confident, being charismatic and making her laugh, or is he being unattractive by becoming insecure, angry, controlling or suspicious of her?

That's what really counts when getting stopping a break up.

Watch this!

What really matters is how you make her feel from now on because that will help her forget about how bad things had become between you and her, forgive you and want to give you another chance.

For example: When in a relationship, if a guy is overly protective and jealous of his woman, she might put up with it for a while because she loves him.

However, over time, she will likely begin to feel smothered by his over protectiveness, will break up with him and hope that she can move on without him.

Another example is when a guy lacks purpose and direction in life and is stuck in a cycle of self-pity and apathy (e.g. works in a dead-end job that he hates, spends most of his time watching TV or playing video games, doesn't have any big goals or plans for the future that he is actively making progress towards).

Here's the thing!

Most guys have a dream, but they simply keep it as that.

The difference between a dream and achieving it is setting goals and actually following through. Most guys just dream or talk about their dream and wish it would happen, but they don't actually set goals and make progress towards those goals.

That's the difference.

There are so many dreamers out there (many who are very intelligent), but the rare men are the ones who follow through until the dream is achieved.

That is what's attractive to women.

It allows a woman to feel safe and trust in her man to guide them to a better future, rather than her having to be the strong one and make sure that their future is secure, while he drags his feet and complains about how hard life is.

So, when a woman finds herself stuck in a relationship with a guy who isn't striving to achieve his big goals and dreams, she will begin to feel like the relationship just isn't worth it.

She might love him very much, but if she sees that she doesn't have much of a future with him because he's too disinterested in life to make an effort to improve himself, she will likely begin to consider breaking up with him.

She doesn't want to have to be more like a man and develop a toughness that allows her to compete and achieve her goals.

She wants to be a woman who is with a man who has the emotional toughness to win at life, rather than being stuck with a guy who needs her to help him feel safe and secure because he hasn't yet grown up and become a real man.

So, even though she might feel like it will be difficult to get over him and move on, she may decide that it's a preferable option compared to sitting around watching the man that she loves waste his life away.

In many cases, she will hope that by breaking up with him, it will spark something inside of him and he will become a better man.

She won't want him to come to her and say, "Hey, I'm working on my goals! Do you like me now?" because she doesn't want him to do it just for her.

She wants him to just become a better man, be the man and let her pick up on it naturally when they interact.

If she can see that he's doing it because he has decided to become a better man and wants to because he knows that it will make for a better life, then she will be impressed and will feel respect and attraction for him again.

When that happens, she won't want to lose him and will want to get back with him.

Another reason why a woman might say that she doesn't want to lose you, but then breaks up with you anyway is that

2. She's Just Trying to Keep You Around to Make You Show Interest in Her, While She Secretly Finds a Replacement Guy

Sometimes, a woman might want to get emotional revenge on her guy for the pain that he caused her during the relationship.

So, rather than just dump him, she might say something like, “I want you to know that I still love you and I don’t want to lose you. I just need a bit of time apart.”

She may then leave him hanging and wondering, “What does that mean? Is she coming back? Will she contact me? How much space should I give her?”

He might then say to himself, “I will wait for her and give her as much time as she needs. When she’s had some time to think things through, she will come back and we can get back together again.”

Yet, in most ex back cases that I’ve worked on where a guy has given his woman a lot of space, she just moves on.

Some women do come back, but if you were in a relationship like that, you probably wouldn’t be reading this article right now would you?

Something in your gut tells you that you’ve turned her off and she’s going to move on without you.

If you want her back, you’ve got to start making her feel attracted to you again, rather than just sitting around and hoping that she comes running back.

A lot of guys don’t know that though, so they give her plenty of time (e.g. 30-60 days) to think things through and get back to him.

In the meantime, while he’s waiting and hoping that she will come running back to him, she may be saying to herself, “This will teach him a lesson. He was such a jerk to me. Well, let him wait. I’m going to keep leading him on and telling him how much I can’t stand the thought of losing him. While he is thinking that I’m still interested, I’m going to find myself another guy who deserves a woman like me.”

Then, when she finds a replacement guy, she will get revenge by saying, “There’s something that I need to tell you. Don’t be angry with me, but I’ve met someone else.”

Alternatively, a woman might feel worried about not having a guy in her life who loves her and wants her, so she might say to herself, “Maybe I’ll just keep him hanging on for a while until I find the right guy for me. Keeping him around is better than having no one. If a better guy doesn’t come along, at least I’ll have an emergency guy if I need to go to a party, or a function where I need to bring someone along.”

In either case, the woman is just using the guy, because deep down she probably doesn’t believe he can change, or that he even knows how to change and make her feel respect and attraction for him again.

The only way to truly get a woman back is to show her that you understand her real reasons for breaking up with you and have already changed.

For example: She may have broken up with you and said, “I just don’t know if I want a relationship right now,” but her real reason for breaking up with you was that you weren’t manly enough around her (e.g. you were too emotionally sensitive).

Another reason why she may have said that she doesn’t want to lose you is that

3. She Loves You, But Just Isn't in Love With You Because You Don't Give Her the Attraction Experience That She Wants

[image: She loves you, but isn't in love with you]

There are many different kinds of love.

There's the gentle, nurturing love between a mother and her child, the neutral, non-sexual love between friends and then there's the exciting, sexually charged love between a man and a woman.

Often a friendship can turn into a relationship (e.g. when the guy sparks the woman's feelings of sexual desire) and a man and a woman will become a couple.

Likewise, a relationship can sometimes turn into a friendship (e.g. when the man stops giving the woman the attraction experience she really wants) and either the man or the woman will then start to feel bored and want to be with someone else.

In some cases, a couple may even fall into a "mother and child" relationship (e.g. if the guy is too insecure and needs his woman to guide him and teach him how to be a man) and the woman will start to feel very turned off by the guy's emotionally immature and inability to be the man.

This might happen when a guy falls into a comfort zone in his relationship and begins to take the love between him and his woman for granted.

He just expects her to put up with his immature approach because the sex used to be great and they said, "I love you" many times in the beginning.

In his mind he might be thinking, "Yes, we have our ups and downs at times, but I don't have to worry about my woman leaving me because I know that she loves me and she knows that I love her. We don't need anything more than that. I love her, I want to be with her and that's all that should matter."

Yet, that's not how to keep a relationship together with a woman for life.

It's the man's responsibility to maintain and build on the love, respect and attraction between him and his woman.

If he fails to do that (e.g. by treating her more like a friend than a lover, taking her for granted, sitting back and assuming that she wants to make all the decisions for both of them), she may begin asking herself, "Why am I sticking with him? Is he really the guy I want to be with for life? I don't feel the way I used to. It's boring now. There's no spark."

If she can't convince herself to stick with him anyway, she will then look for the easiest way to break up with him (e.g. by saying that she doesn't want to lose him, but just needs some time to herself).

If he doesn't even know how to attract her back into a relationship and simply tries to convince her to give him another chance, she will usually say, "No" and keep trying to move on.

Yet, you can attract her back and you can change her mind about the break up.

By making some attractive adjustments to the way you interact with her from this point onwards (e.g. making her smile and laugh, making her feel feminine and girly), you can re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

When she starts feeling respect and attraction for you again, it highlights to her all the reasons why she didn't want to lose you in the first place and she begins to see breaking up with you as a mistake.

On the other hand, if you keep behaving in ways that turn her off (e.g. treating her like a neutral friend, being insecure around her, letting her push you around) she will feel disappointed and say to herself, "Even though the thought of losing him forever makes me sad, I realize that it was the right decision to break up with him. He just hasn't changed and doesn't even know how, or what, to change about himself to make me feel attracted again. It's a pity that our relationship had to come to this, but I need to make a clean break and just move on. He just doesn't know how to be the kind of man that I need. I will tell him that I don't want to lose him, but I am going to move on."

She then tries to move on by flirting with other guys or hooking up with another guy and in many cases, she meets a guy who makes her feel happy.

Of course, there's no guarantee that her relationship with him will last.

After all, she has had a 100% failure rate with relationships so far, so he will probably end up the same way.

If you want to be the man that she has a successful relationship with, you need to be able to guide her into deeper feelings, rather than causing the relationship to gradually fall apart like other guys do.

Watch this!

When she senses that you now seem to have the ability to guide her into deeper feelings, her heart opens back up to you and she feels eager to be in a relationship with you again.

4 Mistakes to Avoid

[image: Mistakes that will lead to her moving on]

Often, a guy gets so overwhelmed by the shock of being broken up with that he might make some of the following mistakes!

1. He patiently waits on the sidelines without improving his ability to be attractive to her in the ways that she cares about.

He may think something like, "There has to be a good reason why my ex said that she doesn't want to lose me. Obviously she still had feelings for me, so if I wait patiently, she will eventually realize that she can't stand being without me. Then, she will come running back and we can be together once again. I just have to be patient."

He might then wait and wait for her to come back (sometimes for months or even years).

In some cases, the woman never contacts him again and he is left feeling despondent and asking, "Why didn't she come back? I thought she was the one. I still love her so much and think about her all the time. Does she think about me? Would we have gotten back together if I did something about it, rather than just waiting patiently for her to come back? Did she ever love me? Why didn't she come back?"

In almost every ex back case that I've seen where a guy has waited patiently, the woman didn't come back because he didn't even do anything to make her have feelings for him again, so she just moved on.

This is why I don't recommend that guys ignore their ex woman in the hopes that she comes back one day.

Ignoring an ex works well for women who want a man back, but it doesn't always work well for men who want a woman back.

Watch thisâ€¦

Sometimes a woman does come back when she has been ignored after a break up.

Yet, she usually breaks up with him again because she sees that he really hasn't changed and that is still stuck at the same level that he was at when she broke up with him (e.g. he's still insecure, still has no clue on how to attract her in the ways she secretly wants him to).

She might then say something like, "I don't want to lose you, but I just don't want to be in a relationship right now. Maybe there will be a chance for us again in future, but not now."

She will then try to move on because she knows that, even though he gave her space and appeared to be confident by doing that, he's still stuck at the same level and probably isn't going to change and improve any time soon.

Another mistake that some guys make when their woman breaks up with them is thatâ€¦

2. He pleads with her to change her mind.

When a guy is faced with the reality of losing the woman he loves, it's only natural that he might try to make her change her mind.

Unfortunately, one of the most common reactions guys have is to plead with her.

For example: A guy might say, "Please don't do this to us baby!! If you say that you don't want to lose me, then why are you doing this? You know that I love and will do anything to make you happy. Please don't go! Just give me a chance to make it up to you. I will do whatever it takes. Just give me one more chance. Please, I'm begging you."

Yet, rather than change her mind, this sort of behavior convinces her to break up with him even more. Why?

A woman is instinctively turned off by a man who is being emotionally weak, insecure or desperate.

She might not say it out loud, but inside she's usually thinking, "Oh my! if he can't cope with a simple break up, how is he going to handle the bigger problems in life? I don't want to be stuck with a guy who falls apart at the first sign of difficulty in life. I need a man who is confident and emotionally strong enough to cope with the challenges of life. He clearly hasn't yet become a man and is still thinking like a boy or young man. I don't want to waste any more time on him. I need a man."

3. He asks her if she will change her mind if he waits for her. He then promises to wait as long as it takes.

Another common reaction that guys have is to promise to wait for a woman to change her mind for as long as it takes.

For example: A guy might say to her, "You said that you don't want to lose me, so I promise you that you won't. If you tell me right now that you will someday change your mind about us, I will wait for you, no matter how long it takes. I don't want any other woman. I only want you. What we have is special and I don't want to share that with anyone else.

Although a woman might feel flattered that he's prepared to wait for her, if he then doesn't actively do anything else to re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for him (i.e. he gives her weeks and even months of space to change her mind without even contacting her and actively attracting her), she will usually just move on with her life.

Initially, she might miss him and even say to herself, I wonder what my ex is up to. I wonder why he isn't calling me, but if she doesn't hear from him and then another guy comes along who awakens her feelings of attraction, she will forget all about him and just move on.

So, if you want to get your ex back, you have to be active about it.

You can sit around on the sidelines and hope that she will change her mind all by herself, but it rarely works when a woman has fully decided to break up with a guy because he isn't able to give her the attraction experience she wants (e.g. he's emotionally sensitive, but she wants a confident, emotionally masculine man).

If you want her back for real, you have to make her change her mind by interacting with her (e.g. via text, e-mail, social media, over the phone and in person) and making her feel surges of respect and attraction for the new and improved you.

Another common mistake that guys make when a woman says, "I don't want to lose you," but breaks up with him anyway is

4. He stays in her life as a friend, but doesn't do anything to make her sexually attracted to him again.

Sometimes, a woman might say to a guy, I don't want to lose you, but I just can't be in a relationship with you right now. Let's just be friends.

He might jump at the idea and say to himself, Being friends with my ex is better than nothing. At least if I stay friends with her, I'll have a good excuse to be around her and stay in her life. Hopefully, if I'm really nice to her and show her that she can rely on me no matter what, she will realize how much she still loves me and we can get back together again.

He may then hang around his ex being her nice, neutral friend who is always available to help her out with errands, give her a shoulder to cry on when she's having a bad day and generally being at her every beck and call.

However, what he isn't doing is making her see him as anything more than a friend.

Why?

Essentially, because he's not sparking her feelings of respect for him and he's not making her feel sexually attracted.

He's just being friendly, nice and supportive, which are not the things that make a woman feel sexually attracted after a break up.

Remember: If you are going to be friends with your ex, make sure that you are actively making her feel respect and sexual attraction for you again.

Don't be her friend if you're only going to be her runaround guy who focuses on making her feel neutral, friendly feelings.

If you want to get your ex back, you need to be fearless by fully believing in your attractiveness to her.

You need to believe that she is yours and that you deserve to have her in your life.

Then, you need to use every interaction you have with her (e.g. via text, e-mail, social media, on a phone call, or in person) to make her feel respect and attraction for you and make her fall in love with you all over again.

When you do that, she will quickly or gradually say something like, “I made a mistake by breaking up with you. Please don’t leave me. I never want to lose you again. I love you.”

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Do When Your Ex Puts You in the Friend Zone

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Your ex putting you in the friend zone can actually be a good thing.

Why?

It allows you to interact with her anytime you want.

All you need to do is focus on re-sparking some of her feelings of respect and attraction and then get her back into a relationship with you.

So, how can you do that?

Here are 4 examples of things that you can do when you ex puts you in the friend zone!'

1. Don't See Yourself as Being in the Friend Zone

[image: Don't see yourself as being in the friend zone]

Just because a woman says something like, "I don't feel the same way about you anymore, but I don't want to lose you. I just want to be friends."

Can we do that? it doesn't mean you have to become her best friend and stop focusing on getting her back.

Watch this!'

Where some guys go wrong is by accepting a friendship with an ex woman and then hoping that just by hanging around her and being a good guy, she will miraculously change her mind about him and want him back.

That's not how a woman's attraction works!

You've got to actively make her have sexual feelings for you and she will then not want you to remain in the friend zone.

She will want to hug you, kiss you and have sex with you.

Yet, many guys don't realize how easy it is to change how a woman feels, so they just listen to her and follow her instructions on only being friends.

For example: A guy might say to himself, "A friendship with my ex is better than nothing. I have to make sure that I don't do anything to push her away and make her change her mind. So, I'm going to just focus on being really nice and polite to her and help her out like a good friend would when she needs me. Hopefully she will see what a good guy I really am for respecting her wishes about just wanting to be friends. Then, she will realize how much she still loves me and we can get back together again."

Yet, in most ex back cases, it simply doesn't work like that.

Why?

If you put yourself in the friend zone with your ex and only focus on being her nice, sweet, reliable, neutral friend, that's exactly how she's going to perceive you.

She's going to look at you as being a friend and will also be sexually turned off by your lack of confidence in your attractiveness to her.

Always remember: Women cannot stop themselves feeling attracted to a good man who believes in his attractiveness to her.

Women label guys like that as being charming, charismatic and mysterious and they happily and willingly have sex, get into relationships and fall in love with guys like that.

So, if you just act like a friend and doubt your attractiveness to her, it's highly unlikely that she will start feeling sexually attracted to you again.

She might keep you around as a friend, but chances are high that she's not going to stop dating other guys just because you and her are friends.

Don't put yourself in that position where she can destroy you and break your heart some day soon by saying, "Ummm... I have something that I need to tell you. I've met someone else and we're in a relationship now. I really like him and he doesn't want you and me to continue being friends, so please respect that."

That's not the outcome you want with your ex, right?

If not, don't just be a friend to her.

Make sure that you are actively triggering her feelings of romantic and sexual attraction for you.

The best way to do that is to

2. Flirt With Her and Don't Doubt That it is Working On Her

[image: Flirt with her and don't doubt that it's working on her]

Sometimes a guy will attempt to flirt with his ex, but in the back of his mind he may be thinking, "This isn't working. I'm trying to flirt with her and she's just being cold and distant with me. She's clearly not interested in me anymore. I can't seem to make her feel the way she used to before. She just doesn't want me."

Yet, here's the thing!

If you doubt that your flirting works on a girl, it won't, because she will sense your self-doubt, which is unattractive to her.

Women are naturally attracted to confidence in men (especially confidence in your attractiveness to them) and turned off by self doubt (especially doubting your attractiveness to them).

Women don't go around telling guys that though because guys would begin acting very arrogant and hoping that women like it, but that's not the approach that women want guys to take.

Women just want a guy to have a relaxed, easy-going confidence in his attractiveness to her.

If you can do that, you will naturally be attractive to your ex and most of the women you meet.

So, what you need to do is flirt with her and believe that it's working (i.e. it's making her feel attracted, turned on and sexually interested in you again).

When you believe that your flirting is working, your ex will automatically sense your confidence via your body language, vibe, behavior, attitude and conversation style and it will turn her on because confidence is attractive.

Remember: A woman's attraction to a guy is based mostly on how he makes her feel when he interacts with her, rather than what he looks like.

If you are being confident, self-assured and are making her laugh and smile, she will automatically feel attracted to you and won't look at you as someone that she wants to keep locked away in the friend zone.

On the other hand, if you are being nervous, self-doubting and insecure when you interact with her, she will automatically feel turned off by you because she will feel more emotionally dominant than you, which means she can't fully relax into being a feminine, girly woman around you.

So, don't doubt yourself at all.

Have a relaxed, easy-going confidence in your attractiveness to her and never doubt it no matter what she says or does to try to make you feel insecure.

Women do that to guys to test their confidence and when you pass the test, you get the attraction and the girl.

Here's the thing!

The more that you believe that what you're saying and doing around your ex is turning her on, the more it will come through in your actions and body language.

You will appear confident, charming and charismatic to her and she will automatically feel attracted to you.

When you do that, everything changes.

She stops seeing you as her nice, neutral friend and begins to think, "I'm seeing him very differently all of a sudden. Something has changed. I don't want to be just friends anymore. I want more than that. What is happening to me? Why do I feel like I want to kiss him all of a sudden? He seems so much more attractive and appealing now. I'd better kiss him before another girl feels attracted and then takes him from me."

Another way to escape the friend zone with your ex is to

3. Improve Your Ability to Attract Her in the Ways That She Really Wants

[image: Improve your ability to attract her in the way she really wants]

Guys who get friend zoned simply don't know how to actively attract women during an interaction (i.e. when they are talking to her).

Most guys think that a woman's attraction for a man is based on her conscious decision that he looks physically attractive, has money or has a big dick.

Yet, her attraction is actually a result of her instinctive reaction to various personality traits, behaviors and inner qualities that he is either displaying or not (e.g. confidence, charm, charisma, humor, emotional strength).

That's what really matters to most women.

Yes, there are some women who are completely shallow and only go for a guy based on looks or money, but those women are the minority.

Most women place way more importance on how a guy makes her feel when he talks to her (e.g.

Does he make her feel awkward because he is nervous, or does he make her feel relaxed and attracted because he is confident?)

That's what really matters.

Yet, when a guy hears that he needs to attract his ex in the ways that she really wants, he sometimes assumes that it means he needs to improve on his physical appearance.

He might also remember back to when his ex said something like, â€œWhy are you always wearing shorts and t-shirts? Why do you never wear something nice like a suit or at least a pair of trousers and a shirt?â€ or â€œYou really need to get to the gym. Youâ€™re putting on weight,â€ or â€œI wish youâ€™d do something with your hair. Hanging all over your face is not a style, you know?â€

He may then go out and buy new clothes and shoes, get himself a new hairstyle, or go to the gym and workout.

In his mind, a woman's attraction is mostly about a guy's physical appearance, so that's what he focuses on.

He tries to change who he is on the surface, when what really matters to a woman is who a man is on the inside and how that comes through when he interacts with her.

Yet, he doesn't know that, so he focuses on improving his physical appearance.

Heâ€™s secretly hoping that when he interacts with his ex, she will take one look at his new and improved appearance and think, â€œWow! He is looking so great. He looks so awesome in a suit/with that great haircut/now that heâ€™s lost some weight. I feel so attracted to him. I simply must have him back!â€

However, thatâ€™s not how it works.

Although a manâ€™s physical appearance is one of the things that a woman feels attracted to, itâ€™s still not as powerful as the attraction she feels for his personality, behavior and inner qualities.

For example:

- Is he so emotionally masculine that he makes her feel feminine and girly in his presence, or is he an emotionally weak or sensitive guy who makes her feel like the more dominant and powerful one in the relationship?
- Does he have drive and determination to succeed in life, or does he sit back and whine about life like a victim?
- Is he the kind of man she can look up to and respect, or does she look down on him a little bit?
- Is he confident, emotionally strong and self-assured, or is he insecure, self-doubting and fearful?
- Is he a go-getter who faces life head on, or does he hide from his true potential as a man?
- Does she feel like she will be winning by hooking up with him again, or does she feel like heâ€™s just not good enough for a woman like her because he doesn't know how to change and improve in the ways she really wants?
- Is he man enough to take the lead in the relationship, or does he expect a woman to take the lead and make him feel safe?

These are some of things that a woman looks for and finds most attractive in a man.

So, if you want to get out of the friend zone with your ex, you need to be able to improve on your ability to attract her in the ways that really matter to her, not in the ways you think matter to her.

For example: There's no point in rushing out and spending a lot of money buying new clothes and shoes, if what your ex really wants is for you to be more emotionally masculine rather than being so emotionally sensitive.

Alternatively, if what your ex really wants from you is to have more drive and ambition in life, then if you go out and lose some weight, or get a new hairstyle, she probably won't say, âHe's still going through his life aimlessly without a plan or clear direction, but hey â he cut his hair, so let's get back together again!

Those things are superficial and a woman knows it.

Sure, she might appreciate the effort and she may even comment about it and say something like, âYou're looking nice. Good for you for cleaning up/losing weight, but that doesn't mean she's attracted to you in the ways that really matter to a woman.

If you're serious about getting out of the friend zone with your ex and getting her back, you must improve your ability to attract her based on who you are when you interact with her.

Remember: A woman is way more interested in who you are as a person and how that makes her feel when she talks to you, than how you look or what you're wearing.

Finally, to get out of the friend zone with your ex make sure that you continue on with the ex back process until you get her back.

How?

4. When Her Feelings Are Properly Reactivated, Hook Up With Her Sexually and Start the New Relationship From There

[image: Hook up with her sexually and start a new relationship from there]

The main thing you need to focus on from now on, is to use every interaction you have with your ex (whether it's via text, on social media, on a phone call or in person), to re-spark her feelings of sexual attraction and respect for you.

One of the most effective ways to do that is by making her smile and laugh when you interact with her.

The more laughter she experiences when she interacts with you, the more she will associate feeling good with you.

You will be an attractive man in her life again, rather than a lost guy who is hanging around in the friend zone hoping that she changes her mind on her own.

She will enjoy talking to you because it will make her feel sexually and romantically attracted.

When that happens, she will begin to think, âEvery time I hear from my ex, he makes me smile and feel good. I can't believe how excited I feel just talking to him again. What does that mean? Does it mean that we should get back together? I actually miss him when he's not around. Does this mean I'm not really over him like I thought I was? Maybe being just friends isn't what I want after all, and she becomes open to meeting up with you in person and having sex again.

She might not telling you that directly and will instead hint at it and hope that you pick up her signs and then lead the way to kissing and sex.

For example: She mightâ€¦|

- Constantly play with her hair or a necklace when talking to you in person. This is to show you that she's feeling girly, turned on and is looking at you as being the more dominant, masculine one.
- Touch you playfully on the arm or leg in conversation.
- Hug you a lot more often, or for a longer period of time when you are saying hello or goodbye.
- Find excuses to get you to come over to her house, or she will just show up at your place.
- Bring up past, happy experiences you and her shared together (especially moments in bed).

By the wayâ€¦|

Not all women are confident enough to give clear signs and some women don't want to give signs as a way of testing your confidence.

This is why it's always better to not pay much attention to her potentially confusing signs and just guide the interaction to a hug, then kiss and sex.

Remember: You must be confident when getting a woman back into your bed and into your life, because women are not attracted to the emotional weakness in men.

If you hesitate and second-guess yourself when going in for a hug or kiss, she will pick up on it and might then say, â€œNo. Weâ€™re just friends. Itâ€™s not like that between us anymoreâ€ because she will feel turned off by your self doubt in that moment.

On the other hand, if you confidently make a move when the time is right, she will be happy to hug you, kiss you, have sex and get back into a relationship with you because she will be feeling attracted to your confidence.

So, donâ€™t wait around letting her call the shots.

What you need to do when your ex puts you in the friend zone is take the lead and make her yours once again.

Even though she might not act like that's what she wants, it's what she is really waiting for.

She wants you to be confident, believe in your attractiveness to her and get out of the friend zone with her.

She's waitingâ€¦|

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Do When Your Ex is Being Distant

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex is being distant, here are 3 things you can do to get her to open up to you!

1. Stop Saying and Doing the Things That Are Causing Her to Be Distant

Sometimes, a guy might say, "I don't understand why my ex is being so distant. No matter what I say or do, she just pushes me away. I don't know what to do to make her open up to me again. She's being so stubborn."

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that his behavior is what's making her react in that way.

For example: Some of the things a guy will do that will cause his ex woman to pull away from him even more are:

- Begging and pleading.

This is one of the most common reactions that guys have when faced with the shock of being broken up with.

For example: A guy might say to himself, "I can't lose her! I have to do whatever it takes to make her change her mind before it's too late."

Even though it might seem like begging and pleading will show her how much you care, it actually makes her feel so turned off that she doesn't care how much you care.

The reason why is that when a man is being emotionally weak (e.g. insecure, desperate, clingy, self-doubting), it turns a woman off at a deep level.

On the other hand, when a man is being emotionally strong (e.g. confident, in control his emotions, at ease) it naturally makes a woman feel attracted whether she wants to feel that way or not.

She can't control it because it's a natural reaction.

Yet, a lot of guys either don't know that or they simply can't stop themselves from begging and pleading to their woman when she dumps them.

For example: A guy might call his ex on the phone, or meet up with her in person and say things like, "Please forgive me! I know I stuffed up, but I promise to make it up to you. I beg you. Please let me prove to you how strong my love really is. I will do whatever I have to do to make it work. Please, please, just give me one more chance."

She sees him being emotionally weak at a time when she really needs him to be confident and emotionally strong.

If he can't do that for her, he's just helping her feel like she made the right decision to break up with him.

Here's the thing!

A woman usually breaks up with a guy when her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him fade because of the way he has been thinking, acting and behaving in the relationship with her (e.g. he is too insecure, clingy, needy, emotionally sensitive).

So, to change her mind about him and want to give him a second chance, she needs to see that heâs changed those things about himself and is now at a different level as a man.

She needs to be able to see that he has moved beyond the level that he was at when she broke up with him, rather than him becoming even more of a turn off to her.

So, when a guyâs first reaction is begging and pleading, she will become distant in the hope that he will just leave her alone.

Another thing that will make her want to be even more distant with you isâ|

- Trying to convince her to change her mind.

[image: Please just give me another chance. Things will be different this time, I promise!]

When a woman doesnât feel much (or any) respect and attraction for a guy, him telling her how much he cares or giving her a list of great reasons for them to stay together just isnât going to matter that much to her.

Sheâs not feeling attracted to him, so she doesnât care.

It doesnât matter to her.

He wants her back because he feels attracted to her, but she doesn't yet feel that for him, so his words mean nothing to her.

Even though heâs trying to reason with her, explain that he cares and promise that he can change, sheâs just going to say something like, âI know that you mean well, but I donât feel the same way about you anymore. It's over. Just accept itâ or âI need some space so that I can figure out what I want from my life,â or âI just donât want to be in a relationship anymore. It's not you, it's me. I want to be alone for a while. I'm not interested in being with any guys. I just want to be alone.â

What she really means is, "I'm breaking up with you because you don't know how to make me feel respect, sexual attraction and love for you anymore. I'm only giving you vague reasons because I don't want to teach you how to re-attract me. You have to figure that out on your own, otherwise you've lost me. I'm not going to tell you that either. I'm going to tell you that it's over and you have no chance because I'm basing what I'm saying on how you're making me feel now, not on how you could make me feel if you changed your approach."

Most guys don't know that it's possible to re-attract an ex woman, so they feel like their situation is hopeless and there's no chance of getting her back.

Yet, here's the thingâ|

He's thinking that it's hopeless, but he's not even doing anything to make her feel respect, sexual attraction and love!

It's like thinking that it's impossible to drive a car without learning how to drive and then driving.

You've got to get into the car if you want to drive.

You can't just look at it and say, "No, it's impossible. I wouldn't be able to learn how to drive. There's just no way."

Of course it's possible to drive a car and of course you can learn.

Likewise, of course it's possible to re-attract an ex and of course you can learn.

You just need to know how a woman's attraction works and then start doing what works.

Here are some examplesâ€¦

Men who try to convince their ex back don't understand the power of attraction.

He just tries to convince her with words and has no idea how to make her have feelings for him again.

From her perspective, all she sees is a desperate guy who has no clue how to win a woman back.

From his perspective, he may see her as being stubborn, selfish, bitchy, mean and cold.

Yet, the only reason why she's not opening up to him is that he's not making her have feelings again by focusing on attraction.

He's just trying to convince her with words, which are not enough when it comes to getting a woman back for real after a serious break up.

Another thing that will make an ex become even more distant isâ€¦

- Seeking pity.

When a guy notices that nothing is working and that his ex is only being more and more distant, he might then attempt to make her feel sorry for him.

He will send her a text message saying something like, â€œWhy are you doing this to me? Don't you have a heart? I can't believe that you've become so cold that you're actually enjoying punishing me in this way. I'm doing everything I can to make it up to you for hurting you and you don't even have the decency to talk to me. Just give me chance. Please!â€

He's hoping that if she realizes how much he's hurting without her, it will soften her up and she will be more open to talking to him on the phone and seeing him in person.

Yet, women don't like to be emotionally blackmailed and in most cases, rather than melt her iciness, seeking pity from your ex might cause her to pull away even more.

Why?

It's unattractive.

Always remember: Women are attracted to emotional strength in men and turned off by weakness.

Seeking pity is a form of emotional weakness.

An emotionally strong man would not feel sorry for himself and seek pity.

Instead, he would remain confident in his ability to attract her and he would get on with doing that (e.g. by making her smile, laugh and feel good when talking to him).

Another thing that will cause an ex woman to become distant isâ€¦ â€¢ Being annoying.

A guy might decide that if his ex is being distant towards him, he's going to make it as difficult as possible for her to avoid him.

He might then show up at her house or workplace (e.g. he forgot something of his at her house, he's returning something of hers) just to make her talk to him.

Alternatively, he might show up at some of the places she likes to go (e.g. restaurants, bars, clubs) and act surprised to see her there.

It goes without saying that annoying a woman is only going to make her be more distant not less. So, if you feel tempted to do something that you know will annoy your ex (e.g. texting her all the time, calling her names) because just youâ€™re feeling desperate to get a reaction from her, donâ€™t do it.

Itâ€™s likely just going to make things worse.

Another distance trigger isâ€¦

- Arguing with her.

When a woman is being cold and distant towards her ex and nothing that heâ€™s saying (e.g. trying to convince her to give him another chance, apologizing over and over again, promising to change) is getting through to her, he might end up becoming argumentative.

However, arguing and fighting doesnâ€™t do anything to trigger a womanâ€™s feelings of respect and attraction.

In fact, it usually has the opposite effect (i.e. she loses respect and attraction and shuts herself off even more).

So, rather than getting into pointless arguments and debates with your ex that will push her away even further, just focus on making her smile, laugh and feel good again when she interacts with you.

Another distance trigger isâ€¦

- Expecting her to want to get back with him just because the relationship used to be good.

In the past, a woman was essentially a man's property and was expected to stay with him for life, regardless of whether she was happy or not.

In today's world, if a man can't maintain and build on the love, respect and attraction between him and his woman over time, she can now choose to leave if she wants to.

Some guys hate that women have that power these days, but it's not going away.

To keep a relationship together, you've got to make it better over time, rather than just starting out great, ruining the relationship and expecting her to stick around.

Where some guys go wrong is thinking that because the relationship used to be good at the start, it should be enough of a reason for her to want to give the relationship another try.

Yet, if a woman isn't getting the attraction experience that she wants from him anymore (e.g. heâ€™s being insecure, childish, immature, jealous and controlling), she's not going to care how good things were at the start.

In fact, talking about how good things used to be will just highlight to her how bad things are now.

So, donâ€™t waste time focusing on what used to be, because when a woman loses respect and attraction for a guy sheâ€™s not going to care about how happy and in love they used to be.

How you make her feel right now is what matters, not how you used to make her feel long ago.

Another distance trigger isâ€¦

- Wanting her back even though he hasn't changed the things that turn her off.

Many guys will try to get an ex back without even bothering to change any of the things about himself that were turning her off (e.g. he's still insecure, still lacks purpose in life, isn't manly enough when he interacts with her).

To stop your ex from being distant towards you and make her want to give your relationship another shot, you've got to understand what truly caused her to break up with you.

For example: A woman will feel turned off and want to be distant if you

- Became insecure in the relationship (e.g. by constantly asking her to reassure you that she loves you, giving up your other interests to spend all your time with her, getting upset when she wants to do something without you).
- Allowed her to dominate you emotionally (e.g. by letting her push you around, make all the decisions, not standing up to her when she is disrespectful towards you).
- Took her for granted (e.g. broke promises to her, regularly criticized her, stopped noticing her efforts to look good for you).
- Became too emotionally sensitive (e.g. by regularly telling her about your feelings, not being able to handle her tests of your confidence, expecting her to be gentle with you emotionally).
- Stopped making her feel feminine and girly in your presence (e.g. by treating her more like a neutral friend or sister).

Did you make any of those mistakes in your relationship with her?

When you understand where you really went wrong, you can then focus on changing the things that will truly matter to your ex and make her open up to you again.

On the other hand, if you're trying to get her back without first changing the things that really turned her off, she's just going to keep being distant towards you.

Remember: To get an ex woman back, you have to focus on making her have feelings for you again. She won't care that you have feelings for her until she has feelings for you again.

So

2. Start Giving Her the Attraction Experience That She Secretly Wants

[image: Start giving her the attraction experience she really wants]

One of the main reasons why a woman breaks up with a guy is because she has lost a lot of respect and attraction for him over time.

Despite that, she will often stick around for a while in the hopes that the guy will pick up on her unhappiness and change his ways.

Some women stick around for days, others for weeks, months, years and even more than a decade. It really depends on the woman and how much she's willing to put up with.

However, if she is unhappy with the attraction experience he is providing (e.g. she wants a confident man, but he is insecure), she will hope that he changes before she has to break up with him.

If he doesn't change, she will begin dropping hints (e.g. asking, "I like confident men"), making suggestions (e.g. asking, “Why don’t you get some help? You need to stop being insecure like this. I won’t put up with it forever you know?”) and sometimes even nagging him.

She might also begin to start arguments with him over seemingly insignificant things, as a way of letting him know that she is unhappy and is waiting for him to figure out what he needs to change and then change it.

Some guys who read that will think, “Why don’t women just say what they mean and tell us what they want us to do?”

The reason why is that a woman doesn’t want to feel like her man’s mother or big sister.

She wants to feel like your girl and look up to you as her man and the only way she can do that is to not take on the role of being your mother, teacher or big sister.

If you are unable to pick up on her signals of frustration, she will eventually lose interest and want to get out of the relationship, rather than having to become your teacher and guide you through the process of becoming a complete man.

For example: If a guy is too much of a nice guy, which then causes him to be submissive around other people, his woman might get to the point where she is so turned off that she constantly nags him about his inability to stand up for himself.

She might say things like, “Why do you always let everyone walk all over you? Your friends are constantly using you and you just can’t see it. Why do you have to be the one who always buys the drinks for a get together? Why are you the only one of your friends who is the designated driver when you all go out together?” or “Your coworkers are taking advantage of you. Why are you the only one who is always working late? You have a life too you know! You can say no sometimes! It’s not going to kill you to stand up for yourself,” as a way of motivating him to become more ballsy.

If he fails to take notice of her concerns and carries on behaving in the same old ways, she will start thinking, “I’m just not getting through to him. No matter what I say, he just can’t stand up for himself and be more of a man. I can’t live with a guy like that. I need someone I can look up to, respect and feel proud to present to my family and friends. He’s clearly not that guy for me. I have to end this relationship and find a man who knows how to be a real man.”

When she dumps him, he might then try to convince her to take him back by saying things like, “Please forgive me. I really love you and I will change whatever it is that you need me change. For the sake of the love we shared, please give me one more chance,” or “Please baby, you and I are soul mates. Sure we have our problems, but I know we can fix them. Please don’t break us apart. We can fix this. I love you more than anything. I promise that I will change whatever you want.”

She may then respond by saying something like, “No. You can’t convince me to get back together again. I’ve fallen for your promises and sweet talk too many times before for me to believe you now. It’s over.”

It sounds so final, doesn’t it?

It seems like he has no chance, right?

Wrong.

What he doesn’t realize is that she’s just reacting to the lack of respect and attraction that she currently feels for him.

He's not even doing anything to re-attract her and is simply trying to convince her to give him another chance based on reasons that he is providing.

Yet, trying to convince a woman to open up and give you another chance doesn't make her feel attracted and drawn to you.

So, what does?

Giving her the attraction experience she really wants and triggering her feelings of respect, attraction and love.

For example: If a guy was too nice and a push over in the relationship, he needs to show his ex that he's now more ballsy and emotionally strong now.

Another example is if a guy was too emotionally immature in the relationship (e.g. not having any big goals or plans for the future, drifting from one dead end job to another), he now needs to show her that he's more emotionally mature and is making real progress in life.

He needs to show her that he's putting in the effort to become a better man.

Of course, he can't go to her and say, "Now do you like me?" after making progress because it makes her feel as though he's sucking up to her, which is something else that women find unattractive.

He just needs to change, start being the new man that he should be and then interact with her normally.

She will pick up on the changes as she interacts with him and as they talk and if she can see that he hasn't just done it to impress her, she will be impressed.

Women want to see that you're making progress and becoming a better man because you want to, not because you're trying to suck up to them.

So, when you start giving your ex the attraction experience that she really wants (without going to her and asking, "Now do you like me?"), she naturally begins to feel more respect and attraction for you.

She then begins to ask herself, "Why have I been such a bitch to him? Why have I been so cold and distant? He's not that bad. I mean, I actually feel something for him again. So, what was I thinking? I need to give him another chance" and she subconsciously allows the walls around her heart to come down.

However, if you keep saying and doing the things that have been turning her off, she will just continue being cold and distant towards you.

Finally, you just need to

3. Guide Her Back Into a Relationship, But Don't Put Too Much Pressure On Her

[image: Guide her back into a relationship, but don't put too much pressure on her]

The best way to get your ex to warm up to the idea of getting back together with you, is by actively making her have feelings for you again.

Essentially what that means is that you need to interact with her (e.g. via text, e-mail, social media and especially over the phone and in person) and show her by the way you think, talk, act and behave that youâre a different man now.

However, if she continues to keep you at arms length and pretends not to be interested, donât worry about it.

Donât put pressure on her and cause her to pull away from you again.

Just relax and allow the ex back process to happen.

As long as you continue making her feel respect and attraction for you again, she will drop her guard and fully open herself back up to you.

When she starts to feel good when sheâs talking to you on the phone, or meeting up with you in person, she becomes open to interacting with you more often.

Itâs then up to you to continue saying and doing the types of things that trigger her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you, until she feels that getting back together again is what she really wants.

All of a sudden, she doesnât want to be distant with you anymore.

She wants to be close to you.

She wants to be back in your arms and experiencing the new and improved you who is now able to make her feel attracted in new and exciting ways.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

4 Ways to Know How Much Your Ex Cares About the Relationship

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The best way to find out how much your ex cares about you and the relationship is by doing these 4 thingsâ€¦!

1. Reactivate Her Feelings and Then Tell Her That You Miss Her Sometimes

[image: Reactivate her feelings and tell her that you miss her at times]

If a woman has lost respect and attraction for her boyfriend (fiancÃ© or husband), she will usually avoid him and try to move on, rather than calling him up to tell him how she feels about him and what he needs to do to get her back.

So, if you want to know how much your ex cares about the relationship, donâ€™t sit around hoping that sheâ€™s going to be the one to make the first move and get you back.

As the man, you have to be the one who takes the lead and actively re-sparks her feelings of respect and attraction for you during interactions (especially over the phone and in person), so that she will want to tell you how she feels.

If you donâ€™t reactivate her feelings for you first and instead rush into telling her that you miss her and care about her, rather than make her think, â€œWell okay. If he misses me, then thatâ€™s good enough for me to want to give him another chance,â€ sheâ€™s likely just going to be thinking, â€œI just donâ€™t feel the same way about you anymore,â€ and sheâ€™s going to keep pushing you away.

So, donâ€™t waste your time trying to guess your ex womanâ€™s feelings for you.

Instead, make her care about you again by reactivating her feelings for you first.

You can do that byâ€¦!

- Making her smile and laugh every time you interact with you, so that she can begin to think, â€œHmmmâ€¦! Iâ€™m having so much fun talking to my ex again. I actually look forward to hearing from him now and I feel disappointed if he takes too long to contact me.â€
- Being emotionally strong and confident around her, regardless of whether she is being nice to you, or being cold and distant towards you.
- Showing her that youâ€™ve understood her real reasons for breaking up with you (e.g. she didn't think you were manly enough in your behavior around her) and that youâ€™ve taken the necessary steps to change those things.
- Making her feel like a real woman in your presence (i.e. feminine, girly) rather than making her feel just like a friend.

When she starts to feel respect and attraction for you again, you can then tell her that you miss her and see how she reacts.

She will then either tell you that she misses you too, or that she doesn't.

However, don't ask her unless you ask in a playful, easy-going tone of voice.

If you ask in a fearful, needy tone of voice (e.g. by saying something like, â€‹Iâ€‹|ahhhâ€‹| just wanted to ummmâ€‹| say that I, ummm, miss you. Do you, ummmâ€‹| maybeâ€‹| ahhhâ€‹| miss me sometimes too?â€‹) she will likely say no, because you're not being attractive.

Remember: Women are attracted to confidence in men, not self-doubt or nervousness.

If you present your ex with nervousness and self doubt, she will feel turned off by you and then, when you ask if she still cares about you, she will say, "No" based on how you are making her feel in that moment.

You must present confidence to her.

Watch thisâ€‹|

Women thrive on a man's confidence.

It makes them feel respect and attraction, even though they might not admit it openly.

So, don't try to tell her how you feel before you reactive her feelings by attracting her first.

When she is feeling attracted to you, she will be much more receptive, open and happy to hear that you still care about her.

For example: Imagine youâ€‹ve been talking to your ex over the phone and youâ€‹re making her laugh and smile.

You can then say to her, â€‹Hey, this is fun talking again. I like hearing you laugh. Itâ€‹s one of the things that I miss about you the most.â€‹

She might then reply by asking, â€‹Well, what else do you miss about me?â€‹ and you can say in a joking way, â€‹Let me thinkâ€‹| well, I miss the way that you used to cook and clean for me and kept everything organized. Of course I donâ€‹t miss the way you used to snore at night though. I donâ€‹t miss that at all! I've been sleeping so well latelyâ€‹ and then have a laugh with her about that.

She will most-likely laugh and say something like, â€‹Hey! You were the one who snored, not me!â€‹

You can then have a bit of a laugh with her and then say, â€‹I was only kidding about the snoring. I miss all of you.â€‹

If she can sense that youâ€‹re being sincere and not needy when you say that, she will usually respond with something along the lines of, â€‹Yeah, I miss you too.â€‹

Donâ€‹t worry if she doesnâ€‹t say it right away.

Sometimes, an ex woman won't want to say that she misses you because she wants to test to see if you will remain confident no matter what.

Women thrive on a man's confidence, so they always test to see how real and how strong your confidence is.

To pass the test, just don't crumble and start doubting your attractiveness to her.

Know that you have attracted her in the past and you are attracting her now.

You are a man that she finds attractive and since the break up, you've become even more attractive by becoming more confident.

In addition to maintaining your confidence, you just need to keep saying and doing the types of things that spark her feelings for you (e.g. making her laugh, being charismatic, making her feel girly in comparison to how masculine you talk and behave).

The more you do that, the less she will be able to close herself off from you.

She will then start to miss you for real, want to be with you, forgive you and start to reconnect with her feelings of love for you.

Another way to check how much your ex cares is to ask her!

2. Post Up Photos On Social Media Of You Having Fun Times With Other People (Including Women) and See if She Contacts You

[image: Post up photos on social media of you having fun with other people]

Most guys don't want to do this because they don't understand how a woman's attraction really works.

Guys will often say to me, "I'm afraid that she will get angry and tell me that she doesn't ever want anything to do with me again," or, "I'm worried that she will seek revenge and start posting up photos with other guys."

Yet, the guys who've actually followed through on doing this pretty much always get the same result. What is that?

Their ex woman contacts them.

She might pretend to be angry or turned off, but don't fall for it.

She has contacted you because you have suddenly made yourself look more attractive to her.

How?

Women are attracted to men who are liked, loved and wanted by others, especially by other women.

So, if a guy doesn't post up any fun photos to his social media account because he doesn't want to make her angry, she just assumes that he's unloved and unwanted and is simply sitting around hoping that she calls him and wants him back.

Some guys also make the mistake of posting up photos of themselves alone at home, of their pet or of landscapes (e.g. the beach, mountains).

They are hoping to show their ex that they are alone and waiting for her.

Yet, that's not what actually works to get an ex woman back.

If you want her to care about you, a great way is to show her that other people care about you.

That's how a woman's attraction works.

So, post up photos (set them to public so she can see them even if she has unfriended you) of you having lots of fun with other people, including women.

It's not about kissing women or anything like that.

Instead, it's just about having fun with other people and making sure that there are women in the photos too.

Your ex may then say to herself, â€œI didn't think that I would mind if he started seeing other women after we broke up, but seeing pictures of him having fun without me makes me realize just how much I really do miss him. I think I made a big mistake by breaking up with him. I need to do something to get him back. I do care about him. I don't want to lose our relationship just yet. I think I want him back.â€

That's how women work.

I've heard back from 100s of guys who've been contacted by their ex woman simply by posting up photos on social media showing them having fun with other people and with women.

When a woman sees photos like that, she will often text her ex or call him as a way of opening the lines of communication and hopefully getting him back.

By the wayâ€¦!

In some cases where a woman broke up with a guy because he was insecure and self-doubting in the relationship with her, seeing pictures of him with other women on social media won't necessarily convince her that he has suddenly become confident and assertive.

Instead, she will think that he's only pretending to be having fun and dating other women, as a way of making her jealous so that she will then run back to him.

She might then test him by calling him on the phone and saying, â€œI saw your new photos on Facebook. You look like you're having fun. I can't believe you've gotten over me so quickly. I still love you and miss you and you're already in some other woman's arms. Why? Didn't our love ever mean anything to you? What was I to you anyway? Were you just passing your time with me? Didn't I mean anything to you? How could you do this?â€

If he then quickly tries to reassure her by saying something like, â€œNo, it's not like that! I'm not moving on. I still love you too. Those are just photos of some women I met somewhere. I don't even know them. I haven't even seen them again after that day. It's you who is always on my mind and you that I really want. I was thinking about you and missing you even though I was with those other people. Don't worry, they don't mean anything to me. I just want you backâ€ she will know that he was only trying to make her jealous to get her back.

So, be prepared for her tests.

If she confronts you about the photos, just say, â€œJust because I'm getting on with my life, it doesn't mean that I didn't love you, or even that I don't still love you. You have made it clear that you don't want to be with me anymore, so I'm just moving on. There's nothing wrong with that. It doesn't take away from my love for you; it simply means I'm not going to sit around feeling sorry for myself because you don't want me anymore. As you would agree, that's completely normal and natural. You and I aren't a couple, so it really shouldn't matter to you anyway, but I'm sorry if it hurt you. You know that I still love you, but I've accepted the break up. What you and I had was in the past.â€

By saying something like that to her, you are showing her that you're a confident, emotionally strong man (this is attractive to her) who isn't lost without her.

She then begins to feel respect for you again because she can see that you're a different man now. She also feels a bit hurt that she no longer has power over you now that you've accepted the break up.

When she realizes that youâre no longer the same guy that she broke up with, it becomes a lot easier for her to let down her guard and open herself up to the idea of loving you again.

However, if you are too afraid to post up photos of you having fun, then how is she going to ever feel that way about you?

How can she know that you are moving on?

Most guys try to convince a woman that they've moved on or are not trying to get her back simply by saying that to her, but women don't believe it, especially if the guy begged and pleaded with her for another chance.

If you really want to prove to her that you're not sitting at home alone missing her, you need to show it in photos.

We're living in an age of social media and it's actually one of the best tools you can use to get an ex woman back, so don't ignore it or worry that posting photos will make her angry.

Another way to check how much your ex cares is toâ|

3. See if She is Willing to Catch Up With You in Person to Say Hi

You'd be surprised at how many ex woman are secretly hoping that their ex guy contacts them and asks to meet up.

I've personally helped 100s of men to get their woman back and I've lost count of the amount of times a guy has admitted to me that he's been ignoring his ex and hoping that she comes back on her own.

Here's why that strategy rarely works on womenâ|

So, don't waste time ignoring her and hoping that she magically comes running back to you.

Most women don't, especially if they dumped you at a point where they no longer felt respect and attraction for you.

Even if she broke up with you and is missing you, it's still a better strategy to contact her and meet up with her so you can get her back before she falls in love with another guy.

For example: Imagine youâre on a phone call with your ex and youâre having a fun, light-hearted conversation with her where youâre making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be talking to you.

After a couple of minutes (or even sooner if the call is going really well), you can say something like, âIt's been fun to talk to you again" and let her say, "Yeah, you too" or something like that.

Then, ask her, "Anyway, so how about we meet up for a coffee tomorrow or the next day to say hi and carry on this conversation?â|

If she cares about the relationship, she will be open to it and will say something like, âOh, okay,â| or âSure, why not?â|

However, not all women are that easy when a guy is trying to get them back because they want to test the guy's confidence.

So, she might say something along the lines of, âI don't think thatâs a good idea,â| or â€œIâ€™m not ready to meet up with you right now,â€ or â€œI need more time to think about it.â€

If that happens, donâ€™t worry about it.

Itâ€™s not the end of the world.

It simply means that if your ex is not open to meeting up with you right away or is testing your confidence, so you need to focus on further reactivating her feelings for you first.

Just continue to interact with her by calling her on the phone and focus on making her smile and laugh when talking to you, while also displaying some of the personality traits that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. confidence, charisma, emotional masculinity, charm).

The more that you make her feel attracted to who youâ€™ve become as a man, the more likely she will begin thinking, â€œHe seems so different from the way he used to be. I actually want to see him in person again. If he asks me again, Iâ€™m definitely going to say yes this time. I hope he asks me again.â€

In most cases, all it takes is 2 to 3 interactions (on the phone) where you are sparking her feelings, before a really stubborn woman will begin to drop her guard and agree to meet up with you to say hi. Another way to check if she cares is toâ€¦!

4. Reactivate Her Feelings and Then Ask if She'd Be Open to Hanging Out and Seeing How Both of You Feel Now

[image: Hang out with her again and get her back]

The main reason why itâ€™s important to reactivate a womanâ€™s feelings for you first before you try to find out how much she cares about the relationship, is because if you donâ€™t, she will likely only focus on the negative things about you that she remembers.

She will then just say something like, â€œI donâ€™t have feelings for you anymore,â€ or â€œI know youâ€™re hoping that I will say I care about the relationship, but the truth is that I donâ€™t. What we had is over and you need to accept it. I don't feel the same way anymore. It's over.â€

So, make sure that every time you interact with your ex, you say and do the types of things that will turn her on (e.g. be confident and charismatic, make her laugh and smile, make her feel feminine and girly in your presence), rather than saying and doing the types of things that keep reminding her of who you used to be in the past (e.g. being insecure and needy, letting her dominate you, making her feel more like a neutral friend or big sister around you).

Once youâ€™ve successfully re-sparked some of her feelings of respect and attraction, you can ask her if sheâ€™d be open to hanging out again.

For example: You might say, â€œSo, what do you think? Would you be cool with us hanging out once to see how we both feel now? No pressure. We can just hang out as friends and get to know each other all over again based on the people we have become since the break up. Then, depending on how we both feel, we can decide to get back together, or never see each other again. It's up to you. You'd be in control. I think it'd be fun to see how we feel based on who we are now.â€

In most cases, if youâ€™ve sparked enough of your ex womanâ€™s feelings for you for her to want to interact with you, she will most likely say yes to your suggestion.

From there, every time that you meet up with her in person, you need to make her feel attracted by showing her (via the way you talk, think, behave and react to her) that youâre no longer the guy she broke up with.

Most guys get their ex back right away, but your case is a really bad one (i.e. it was a messy break up and you've turned her off ever since the break up), she may need a couple of meet ups before she's fully convinced that you have changed.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was too nice and she felt more emotionally dominant than him, to show her that heâs changed, he now needs to be able stand up to her (in a dominant, but loving way) and not let her get away with being disrespectful towards him.

Itâs not about him becoming a jerk and treating her badly.

Instead, he just needs to maintain a relationship dynamic where she knows that is the man and sheâs the woman.

It's not about telling her that he's the man or asking her to be more womanly.

Instead, he just needs to be more manly in how he talks, behaves and reacts to her.

Another example is if a woman broke up with a guy because he was too childish and immature (e.g. he had no plans or goals for his future, he spent most of his time hanging out and partying with friends, he didnât take things seriously in life, was addicted to video games, drunk way too much too often).

To convince his ex that heâs changed, he needs to have made some plans for his life and show her that heâs taking his future more seriously.

He doesnât need to become Mr. Serious and spend all his time working (or studying), but he does need to be more focused and working towards some long-term goals.

When a woman can see that her guy has made an effort to become a better man, it automatically changes how she feels about him without him having to plead with her or ask her to change how she feels.

Rather than focus on how badly he stuffed up in the past, she now starts to look at him with different eyes.

She drops her guard and then the idea of hanging out and seeing where things go actually sounds good to her.

Donât Ask Her if She Cares. Make Her Care

Asking a woman how much she cares is a needy thing to do.

Being needy is essentially about focusing on your feelings all the time.

Women hate that.

A woman wants you to be happy, confident and forward moving in life with or without her assurance.

So, rather than asking your ex, "Do you still care about me?" make her care by causing her feel a renewed sense of respect and sexual attraction for the new you.

Of course, not all guys are confident enough to do that.

Sometimes, a guy feels nervous to interact with his ex on a phone call or in person because he's afraid that he won't be able to handle it if she rejects him.

So, he might send her an e-mail, letter or text where he explains his feelings (that is needy) for her and asks her if she feels the same way.

For example: A guy might write something like, "Hey Laura, I just wanted to tell you that even though we're broken up, I still care about you. I miss you a lot and now that we're broken up, I've realized how special you really are to me. You mean everything to me. I'm sorry for how I behaved in our relationship and I really want to make it up to you. I care about you so much. How do you feel about me? Do you think we can work things out and give the relationship another try?"

Yet, here's the thing!

When a guy hasn't done anything to reactivate a woman's feelings first, she's going to reply based on how she feels, which will most likely be negative.

She's also going to see his approach as being selfish, because he's so focused on how he feels and getting what he wants.

He hasn't even reactivated her feelings yet and most likely doesn't even know how to.

She then thinks something like, "After everything he put me through in our relationship, now he has the nerve to ask me how I feel?! What the?! Has he forgotten how he took me for granted/was so clingy and needy/all the fights we had? Does he think that I'm just going to forget that because he's telling me how he feels?!"

Remember: If you want her to care, you need to make her care by giving her the attraction experience she wants and by showing her (not telling her) that you really have changed the things that turned her off about you.

For example: You can do that by!

- Showing her that you've already changed or improved the things that she broke up with you for (e.g. insecurity, an inability to make her feel feminine and girly in your presence, a lack of ambition, taking her for granted).
- Focusing on sparking her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you by using humor and making her smile and laugh around you, flirting and making her feel like a real woman around you.
- Confidently guiding her back into a relationship.

When you make her feel good to be interacting with you again, she just can't stop herself from connecting to her feelings of attraction and love for you again.

It happens automatically and she has no control over it.

All of sudden, she begins to care about the relationship and about you.

The idea of losing you becomes painful to her.

It hurts her to think that what you and her had was so special, but it was ruined and now there is a chance to save it.

She then wants to stop acting like she doesn't care and just give you another chance.

On the other hand, if you don't reactivate her feelings for you first, she won't see the point of repeating past mistakes.

She won't care about you or the relationship and will just move on.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How Available Should You Be to Your Ex if You Want Her Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

You should be easily available and accessible as long as you are using the interactions to attract her, rather than just acting like a friend or worse, turning her off with the same old communication and attraction mistakes that lead to the break up.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was being insecure, self-doubting and clingy in the relationship, she is going to want to see that he has changed.

If he tries to get her back by begging, pleading and saying things like, “I just can’t cope without you. I need you so much. Please forgive me. Please give me one more chance. I can’t bear the thought of losing you forever,” she will see that he’s still being the same and will continue trying to move on without him.

[image: She wants to see that you really have changed]

Alternatively, if she broke up with a guy because he allowed her to dominate him with her confident personality (e.g. by making him do whatever she wants, making all the decisions in the relationship), if he then says to her, “Just tell me what you want me to do to make things right between us,” she will assume that nothing about him has changed.

Another example is where a woman broke up with a guy because he didn’t follow through on his promises to her and she lost her trust in him.

If he then tries to get her back by saying something like, “Please baby, just give me one more chance and I promise you things will be different this time,” she will usually just think, “Yeah, really? How can I believe you when you’ve lied to me so many times before? This is just another promise you’re not going to keep. I’m not falling for it again. No thanks!” Here’s the thing though!

[image: Just give me one more chance]

If you try to get your ex back without first making some changes and improvements to your communication style with her, she will naturally keep pushing you away and breaking up with you.

For example: Some of the changes that a woman likes to see are that:

- You remain confident and self-assured if she is being cold and stubborn towards you, rather than becoming insecure and giving up.
- You stand up to her if she tries to push you around or keeps bringing up past mistakes, rather than letting her treat you badly in the hopes that it will please her and make her change her mind about you.
- You are easy-going and joke around when talking to her, rather than being so serious and emotionally sensitive.
- You playfully dominate her during conversation rather than being timid, hesitant or being too nice.

If you change, she will change how she feels.

She won't always tell you that she has changed how she feels and she may even act like nothing has changed, but it has.

She will feel a spark of respect and attraction for you and begin to imagine getting back with you.

However, if you don't change, she will remain closed off and might say something like, "How can you expect me to take you back when you're still the same guy I broke up with? Nothing about you has changed. Just leave me alone."

A woman will keep pushing a guy away until he fully understands her real reasons for breaking up with him (not the excuses she gave him to avoid a messy break up).

For example:

Some of the excuses a woman might give a guy when breaking up with him, which don't actually reveal her real reasons for breaking up with him include:

- I just need some time for myself.
- I don't feel the same way anymore.
- I want to figure out what I want from life.
- I need some space to understand how I feel.
- There might be a chance for us in future, but for now I want to be alone.
- I don't want to be in a relationship with anyone right now.
- I don't know what I want anymore.

Those are just vague excuses that women give to guys when they don't have the courage or just don't want to explain their real reasons.

So, before you make yourself available to your ex and focus on getting her back, make sure you first understand what really caused her to break up with you.

This is usually different to what she actually told you.

Once you understand her real reasons (e.g. she wanted you to be more manly, but you've been mistakenly thinking that you need to be even nicer to her), you can then make the right changes.

You can then focus on giving her the attraction experience that she really wants, rather than continue making the same old communication and attraction mistakes and hoping things will be different this time.

Make Yourself Available to Her, But Not Before You Do

This!

Not all guys are confused about why they got broken up with, but some guys are.

If you're one of those guys who got the, "I need some space," or "I just don't have feelings for you anymore," speech from your ex, you might not be 100% sure what her real reasons for breaking up with you were.

So, if you want to give your ex the attraction experience that she really wants when you interact with her from now on, here are some questions to ask yourself to help you better understand where you might have gone wrong!

- Were you a confident emotionally strong man that she could look up to and respect, or were you insecure, self-doubting and clingy around her?
- Were you emotionally masculine around her allowing her to relax and be a feminine woman, or did you allow her to wear the pants in the relationship?
- Did you make her feel attracted and turned by how you talked to her and interacted with her, or did you end up making her feel neutral or bored?
- Were you emotionally independent (i.e. you didn't need her to make you happy) or did you become clingy, needy and insecure and need her constant reassurance that she loved you and wanted to be with you?
- Did you have big goals, dreams, friends and interests separate from your relationship with her, or did you make her your reason for living?
- Did you make her feel loved, taken care of and appreciated, or did you take her for granted (e.g. did you become critical and demeaning towards her? Did you fall into the habit of expecting her to be nice to you, while you treated her badly?)
- Did you and her have the same long term goals and dreams for the future (e.g. to get married, buy a house, have children, go traveling), or did you want different things?

By answering these questions for yourself, you should have a clearer idea about what really caused your ex to break up with you.

By understanding what your ex really wants in a relationship with you (e.g. that you are confident and emotionally strong, rather than insecure. You have a purpose in life, rather than whining about life like a victim. You make her feel feminine and girly in your presence, rather than making her feel like your boss or mother), you will then be able to offer her what she actually wants when you interact with her.

When she can see for herself that you've understood her real reasons for breaking up with you and have taken steps to improve on those things, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling respect and attraction for you again.

When that happens, her guard comes down and you can then guide her back into a relationship with you.

However, if you don't get to the point where you fully understand what was turning her off in your relationship and make some adjustments to your thinking and behavior, you will simply keep making the same old mistakes in your communication style, and she will just keep saying, â€œSorry. It's just too late. I'm not interested in you anymore.â€

It won't matter how available you are to your ex, she's just not going to be feeling it.

So, figure out what she really wants (don't ask her. Women don't want to have to explain it) and then start being that man.

If you do that, she will naturally open up and want you back.

Avoid Playing Mind Games With Her

When a guy is sitting at home alone after a break up and is thinking of ways to make his ex want him back, he will often try to think of a trick he can use.

A common trick that guys try to use these days is to ignore their ex for 30 to 60 days in the hope that it makes her want him back.

Yet, it doesn't work for most ex back situations and here is why!

If a guy focuses on ignoring her to get her back, he may miss out on discovering the real solution to get a woman back.

What is that?

Focus on re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction by interacting with her on a phone call and in person.

That's what you really need to do.

Yet, most guys don't realize that it's actually that simple, so they search for some kind of trick to use on her.

For example: A guy might try to make his ex want him more by!

1. Ignoring her texts

Whether a woman still has some feelings for her ex, is just a nice person and cares about his well-being, or she simply wants to be friends with him for a while after the break up, she might text him to say hi.

Naturally, that's great news for any guy who wants to get his ex back.

However, not all guys take it that way.

Sometimes, a guy might think, "This is great. She's clearly still interested in me. The best thing to do now is not to come across as being too eager to get back together again. So, what I'm going to do is make myself unavailable to her and ignore her texts. In this way, I will build up her desire for me and then eventually when I do respond to her, she will be so desperate to get me back, that she will be the one begging me for a second chance."

It sounds like it might work, but it just doesn't work in most ex back cases.

Why?

When a woman's feelings are uncertain (e.g. she still feels hurt because of the break up, or she doesn't feel much respect and attraction for the guy, she's starting to become interested in being with other guys instead), then when he ignores her texts, she will start to close up.

She will think something like, "After everything he did to me, he's actually got the nerve to ignore me. Who does he think he is? Does he really think I'm going to fall for his silly mind games? If he doesn't want to talk to me, then fine. It's actually a good thing that he's ignoring me. Now I can see what kind of man he really is and I can stop wasting my time thinking about him and trying to be nice to him. If I had my doubts about breaking up with him before, he has now helped me make up my mind. It's 100% over between us and I'm not going to waste another minute thinking about him. I'm getting on with my life. Goodbye!" and she then closes herself off from any feelings she might still have for him.

She might also try to get revenge by quickly hooking up with a new guy and moving on.

So, if you want your ex back, don't ignore her texts and hope that it will make her miss you and want you back.

That only works if you broke it off with her or if she still has strong feelings for you.

However, if you got dumped and she doesn't want anything to do with you anymore, then reply to her text.

After a couple of texts, just call her and she will almost certainly answer.

On the phone call, focus on re-attracting her by getting her smiling and laughing and letting her experience the changes in how you now talk and react to her.

Then meet up with her in person.

Don't play games with a woman who is on the edge and is almost over you.

Get her back.

If she is texting you, it usually means she's open to being friends with you at the very least and possibly interested in getting back together again.

Yet, if you ignore her, you're potentially ruining your chance of getting her back.

So, make sure that if your ex texts you, you take advantage of that to renew her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you, rather than playing hard to get.

Okay, another way a guy might try to make his ex want him more is by

2. Refusing to meet up with her on the day that she is available

Sometimes a guy will get to the point where his ex is open to meeting up with him, but instead of jumping at the chance to meet up with her in person so that he can spark her feelings of respect and attraction for him again, he plays hard to get.

He might say to himself, "If I say yes to meeting up with her right away, she might think that I'm desperate. So, what I'll do is say that I'm too busy to meet up with her and then wait for her to ask me again. In this way, I'll make her miss me even more."

However, that approach almost always backfires and he completely misses out on the opportunity to meet up with her and reactivate her feelings.

I've personally helped 100s of men via my phone coaching service to get their woman back and at least 20 guys have made that mistake.

The woman then refuses to meet up with him and tries to get revenge on him by being unavailable. He then tries to suck up to her, apologize and go out of his way to meet her, which makes him look desperate.

She then feels turned off by him.

It's a total mess.

So, don't try to play mind games with her.

Just get her back!

When a woman opens herself up to meeting her ex again, she's basically giving him a chance to show her that he's no longer the same guy she broke up with.

If he however, decides to play hard to get, she might decide that she's wasting her time and will likely just move on.

Here's the thing

In most ex back cases, a woman only has a tiny bit of feelings left for her ex and when he decides to play games with her (i.e. by ignoring her texts, or by not making himself available to meet up with her), she seeks to get emotional revenge by hooking up with a new guy.

She might say to herself, “Who does he think he is? Does he really think Iâm that into him that Iâm going to chase after him and beg him to get back together again? Well heâs sadly mistaken. Iâm going to find myself another guy who will treat me the way I deserve. Iâll show him!”

Alternatively, she might simply get fed up, refuse to ever speak to him again and then block him on social media or block his number, which then makes getting her back a lot more difficult.

You donât want that to happen to you.

If you really want your ex back, donât waste time playing games.

Instead, focus on making yourself available to her so that you can then re-spark her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

Thatâs what really works.

Think of it this wayâ

The more she gets to see you, talk to you and interact with you, the more chances you have of making her laugh, smile and feel good to be around you again.

On the other hand, the more you ignore her, the more time she has to meet a new guy, fall in love with him and forget all about you.

The Best Approach is to Be Available

[image: The best approach is to be available]

If your ex is open to interacting with you (e.g. via text, on social media, over the phone, in person), then donât waste that opportunity by playing hard to get.

Instead, focus on staying friends with her.

Watch this video for more infoâ

Being friends doesnât mean that youâre going to be really nice, sweet and helpful to her, in the hopes that sheâll one day realize what a great guy you are and then want you back.

Being friends with your ex is simply a way of using the time that youâre interacting with her to re-spark her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you.

You can do that by making her smile and laugh and feel good when youâre interacting with her.

You can make her feel excited every time she hears her phone ring and make her think, “I hope itâs him!”

The more respect and attraction she feels for you, the happier she will feel to be interacting with you and the more her defenses will come down.

She becomes open to the idea of getting back together again.

On the other hand, if you make yourself unavailable to her, youâre just giving her time to get over you and find herself another guy who makes her feel exciting lust and new love.

So, if you want your ex back, then donât play mind games with her.

Make yourself available to her, re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction and get her back.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

4 Things That Will Drive Your Ex Further Away From You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you don't want to drive your ex further away, here are 4 mistakes to avoid making!

1. Not Changing the Things That She Really Wants You to Change (Usually Different From What She Tells You)

[image: Not changing the things that she really wants you to change]

Wouldn't it be nice if women just said what they really mean all the time?

A woman would say something like, "Here is an exact list of the things about you and your behavior that are making me unhappy. Please study it and make sure you make the necessary changes. If you don't change those things about yourself, I'm going to break up with you, okay?"

Yet, that's not how most women work.

In most cases, a woman will just hint at what is bothering her (e.g. if he's being insecure, she might nag him about not being more confident), or make some well suggestions in the hopes that the guy will catch on and then improve on his attitude or behavior.

For example: A guy might be at a point in his life where he's stuck in a rut.

He has a dead-end job, spends his evenings and weekends watching TV and is generally not doing much to improve himself as a man and secure a better future for him and her.

For most women, a guy who lacks ambition in life is a turn off because it doesn't make her feel safe.

She feels as though she won't be able to fully rely on him to take care of her and a family if they ever decide to have one together.

So, to motivate him to change, she might say something like, "I was going through the paper this morning and I saw a job that would be perfect for you. I think you'll love it. Why don't you take a look and see if you like it?"

If he picks up on her hint and makes an effort to get out of his dead end job and become a bigger man, she will feel a lot of respect for him and her feelings of attraction and love will deepen.

On the other hand, if he just ignores her and carries on being the same old unmotivated guy that he's always been, she will become increasingly frustrated and annoyed.

This may then lead to fights and disagreements, until finally one day she decides that enough is enough and just breaks up with him.

Here's the thing though!

A woman will usually avoid giving her real reason for breaking up with him and will instead say something like, "I just don't have feelings for you anymore," or "I don't feel like I want to be in a relationship right now. I need some space to be myself" or, "I want to be alone to focus on what I want from my life."

Essentially, she is turned off by his lack of direction and feels like she has to be more responsible and start working towards a better future for herself.

So, why doesn't she just say that?

Why don't most women just come out and say exactly what is bothering them and what the guy can really do to change?

The main reason is because most women don't want to be a guy's teacher, mother or big sister in life and have to teach him how to be the kind of man she can look up to, respect and feel attracted to.

A woman doesn't want to feel like she has to take care of her man and guide him through the steps of manhood because he doesn't know how to do that by himself.

She wants him to figure out how to be the man that she needs him to be, without her having to hold his hand and guide him along.

So, before you attempt to get your ex back, make sure you know her real (secret) reasons for breaking up with you.

If you don't, you will be offering her the wrong things and that will drive her further away from you.

For example: A woman might break up with a guy because he's fallen into the habit of criticizing or belittling her (in private as well as in front of other people) for any mistakes she might make.

To get her back, he might then say something like, "Please give me another chance. I promise to take you out more often and buy you the nice things you want. I'll take you on holidays. We'll do more fun things, I promise."

Yet, that's not what she wants.

She wants him to treat her with more respect and he's offering to change the wrong things about himself, which only makes her think, "He clearly doesn't get it. He's still the same guy that he was before and if I get back with him, he's not really going to change. I've got to steer clear of him."

She then tries to cut him out of her life (e.g. blocks his phone number, blocks him on social media, or just stops answering his calls or reply to his texts) so she can move on.

So, if you are serious about getting your ex back, it's very important that you understand her real (usually very secret) reasons why she broke up with you.

For example: She may have wanted you to be more ballsy around her, rather than being so nice, but she's not going to explain to you exactly what you need to say and do to be like that.

Additionally, if you start acting more ballsy, she will almost certainly act like she doesn't like it, just so she can test to see if you're putting on an act or if you really are more ballsy for real now.

Remember: If you try to get her back by offering to change the wrong things about yourself, she will feel as though you don't understand her, which will make her feel even less respect and attraction for you.

Another thing that will drive your ex further away is

2. Ignoring Her With the No Contact Rule Without First Reactivating Her Feelings

[image: Don't ignore her for more than 7 days]

This has to be the most common ex back mistake that guys make these days.

Watch this video for more info!|

Here's the thing!|

When a woman breaks up with a guy, it's usually because she has stopped feeling respect, attraction and love for him over time.

So, when the guy decides to ignore her for 30 to 60 days by using the No Contact Rule, rather than make her think, "Why is my ex ignoring me? Why isn't he trying to get me back? I miss him so much! I'd better call him up and try to get him back before he moves on with another woman!!!" she is usually thinking, "Good! This turned out better than I hoped for. Now I can focus on enjoying my life without him and doing all the things that I've been missing out on, like hanging out with my friends, going clubbing and meeting a great guy who will treat me the way I deserve to be treated."

Why does she react to the No Contact Rule (ignoring a woman for 30 to 60 days after a break up) in that way?

Simple.

If a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy, she's not going to get overly worried about not hearing from him.

She doesn't feel respect, attraction or love for him so it doesn't really matter to her.

Instead, she's just going to feel relieved and will move on without him.

Based on helping 100s of guys to actually get their woman back, I've found that ignoring a woman only works if she's still in love with the guy, is struggling to get over the pain of the break up, or if she simply can't find herself a replacement guy.

In almost all other cases, a woman will just use the time that her ex is ignoring her to get over him and find herself a new man.

So, if you don't want to drive your ex further away from you, don't waste a lot of time ignoring her in the hopes that it will matter to her.

What you need to be doing is actively make her have feelings of respect and attraction for you again, by interacting with her (on a phone call and in person) and letting her experience the new, improved version of you.

Then, don't contact her for a few days unless she contacts you.

That's what works.

When you reactivate her feelings first and then ignore her for a few days, it's more effective because it suddenly matters to her that you're not contacting her.

She starts to wonder, "Why am I suddenly thinking about him all the time? Could he have met someone else? Why isn't he calling me? Maybe I should call him and see if we can get back together again. I miss him. There's nothing wrong with calling him. I might even meet up with him to see how I feel. I can't stop thinking about him all of a sudden, so why not â€¦ I'm just going to do it.â€¦

That's how you want her to be feeling because it then becomes about her wanting you back, not just you wanting her back.

On the other hand, if you ignore her before youâ€™ve re-sparked her feelings for you, sheâ€™s not going to care and will just try to move on without you so she can completely forget about you.

Remember: In almost all cases, actively making your ex having feelings for you again works faster than ignoring her and hoping that she misses you.

Another thing that will drive your ex further away from you isâ€¦

3. Becoming Insecure

[image: When insecure thoughts lead to insecure behavior]

Sometimes, when a guy gets broken up with, he might begin to lose confidence in himself and in his value to his ex (or even other women).

He may start to think, â€¦I really stuffed up my relationship and Iâ€™ve lost the woman I love. Itâ€™s all my fault. Iâ€™ll never be able to get her back. Besides, why would she want me back anyway? Iâ€™m such a loser. Iâ€™m sure there are hundreds of guys out there who want her. I donâ€™t stand a chance.â€¦

He then starts to become a bit of an emotional wussy.

Watch this video for more infoâ€¦

He stops displaying the qualities that attracted his ex to him in the first place (e.g. his confidence, his belief in his value to women, his ability to stand up for himself, his natural charisma) and he instead becomes insecure and self-doubting.

Thatâ€™s not what a woman wants.

Even though a woman doesnâ€™t want a guy who treats her badly, or disregards her feelings, she definitely doesnâ€™t want to be with a guy who is emotionally weak and insecure either.

Women are instinctively attracted to the kind of guy who is confident and emotionally strong enough to face the challenges of life head on, without becoming flustered, insecure or losing confidence in himself as a man.

So, when a guy becomes insecure around a woman after a break up, rather than make her think, â€¦Awwwâ€¦ poor guy! This break up has been so difficult for him. Maybe Iâ€™m being too hard on him here. Maybe I should give him another chance,â€¦ she will usually be thinking, â€¦Well if I wasnâ€™t sure about breaking up with him before, seeing him like this has made up my mind for me! How disappointing. Doesnâ€™t he realize that when heâ€™s going around feeling sorry for himself and being all insecure and wimpy, heâ€™s just turning me off even more? I donâ€™t want to be with a guy who doesnâ€™t believe in himself and in his value to me. I want to be with a guy that makes me feel lucky to have him.â€¦

She doesn't tell him that of course, because women don't want to be a guy's teacher in life about how to be a real man.

Women expect you to know this stuff or learn it and then start being what they refer to as a real man. If you don't, you get dumped, cheated on or divorced. It's just the way it goes.

So, if you don't want to drive your ex further away, you need to believe in yourself and remain confident around her no matter what she says or does.

When you do that, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling respect and attraction for you again.

Of course, she may try to test you (e.g. by acting closed off, saying she doesn't have feelings for you) to see if your confidence is real, or if you're just pretending to be confident.

However, if you continue to remain emotionally strong, relaxed and easy-going around her regardless of what she says or does, her guard will come down and she will become open to the idea of getting back with you.

Another thing that will drive your ex further away from you is

4. Seeking Pity

[image: Please I'm begging you]

Sometimes, when a woman is saying things like, "Leave me alone. I just don't feel anything for you anymore," a guy might feel at such a loss of how to make her change her mind that he might try to make her feel sorry for him.

For example: He might say to her, "Please don't do this. I love you. How many times do I have to apologize before you cut me some slack and give me a chance? I haven't been able to eat or sleep properly since we broke up. You mean everything to me. I know that I stuffed up, but at least give me one more chance to make it up to you. You never used to be a cruel woman, but you seem to have changed all of a sudden. Now you seem to get a kick out of seeing me like this. Please just give me one more chance. Remember the love we used to share. I still love you more than anything. I will do anything you want. Please, just give a chance here. I'm dying on the inside without you. I need you."

Yet, trying to make a woman feel pity or guilt for the emotional pain that you're experiencing usually only turns her off even more.

Why?

A woman doesn't like to feel like she's doing a guy a favor by being with him, simply because she's too emotionally weak to cope with being broken up.

Even if a woman is really soft-hearted and she meets up with a guy after he has sought her pity, if all she's doing is trying to cash in on her good nature and isn't doing anything else to actively re-spark her feelings for him, she will just continue on with the break up.

So, if you don't want to drive your ex further away from you, don't play the pity card on her. Instead, focus on re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you, so that she will actually want to meet up with you again because it feels good to her.

Let her want you back, not feel as though she is being made to feel sorry for you and has to give you another chance out of pity.

That approach will temporarily work on some women, but it doesn't last.

If you want her back for real, you have to do it properly.

Have You Been Re-Attracting Her or Turning Her Off?

Most guys make the same rookie mistakes after a break up, which cause a woman to lose even more interest, so don't feel bad on yourself if you've made any of the following mistakes:

- Begging and pleading with her for a second chance.
- Promising her that he will change.
- Asking her to tell him what she wants him to do to make her happy.
- Telling her how much he loves her and that he can't live without her.
- Giving her reasons why they should stay together.
- Being extra nice to her in the hopes that she will see what a great guy he is and change her mind.

Yet, in almost all cases, when a woman has lost respect and attraction for a guy, she won't easily change her mind based on those approaches.

Even though the guy is trying to reason with her and explain to her that he can change (and he's usually being 100% honest too), she's just going to be saying things like, "Look! I'm just not attracted to you anymore. Please accept that it's over between us," or "I need time apart," or "I just don't want to be in a relationship anymore."

Essentially, what she's saying is that she just doesn't have feelings for him and that he doesn't even know how to make her have feelings for him.

All he's doing is begging, pleading, convincing, asking, going on and on about the same old things, but not triggering her feelings for him.

As a result, he drives his ex further away from him.

Use an Approach That Actually Works

Getting your ex back is actually only 3 simple steps away.

So, rather than waste a lot of time doing things that will only drive her further away from you, you need to:

1. Reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you (e.g. by making her smile and laugh, making her feel feminine and girly in your presence).
2. Give her a few days of space if she needs it (no longer than 3 to 7 days at a time).
3. Meet up with her to guide her back into a relationship.

When your ex sees that you're approaching getting her back in a confident, emotionally mature way, she won't be able to stop herself from dropping her guard and allowing herself to imagine what it would feel like to be back in your arms again.

From there, it's up to you to make her feel emotions that hasn't experience with you in a while (e.g. excitement, anticipation, unpredictability) and let her to see that getting back together is going to be a whole new, fun adventure that you and her can enjoy together.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

5 Reasons Why Some Guys Ruin a Perfectly Good Relationship With Their Ideal Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 5 reasons why a guy might ruin a perfectly good relationship with his ideal woman:

1. He Takes Her Love For Granted

[image: Ruining a relationship by taking her for granted]

Most guys in this world are good guys and they wouldn't intentionally go out of their way to be hurtful towards their woman by taking her for granted.

Yet, taking a woman's love for granted is one of the most common reasons why couples break up.

Why?

A lot of guys fall into the trap of believing that the love between a man and a woman will take care of itself once they are in a committed relationship with each other.

For example: A guy might stop telling his woman how beautiful she is once they have been in a relationship for a while.

To her, this is a clear sign that he doesn't appreciate her any more and this will cause her to feel unloved.

On the other hand, the guy is usually thinking, "She should know how beautiful she is to me by now. I've told her plenty of times in the past. I shouldn't have to keep telling her now. Besides, that's the great thing about being in a long term relationship; the love is there. You don't have to keep saying the same things to over and over again to try and convince your woman how you feel about her. She just knows how you feel without you having to tell her. If she wants me to keep reminding her of my love for her that's her problem. She should stop being so needy."

Yet, that's now how to keep a relationship together with a woman.

Men and women are different.

A man's role in a relationship versus a woman's role is completely different.

You can't expect your woman to think, feel, behave and act like a man (i.e. not care so much about emotional things).

You have to let her be a woman.

When you do that, the love, respect and attraction that you feel for each other grows and becomes stronger on a daily basis.

Watch this video to understand more!

As you will discover from the video above, getting a woman into a relationship is different to keeping her in one.

You've got to deepen the way that you and her feel about each other, rather than take it all for granted.

If a guy assumes that saying â€œI love youâ€ or â€œYouâ€™re so beautiful,â€ at the beginning of the relationship should be enough to sustain his womanâ€™s feelings in the long term, he will be taught a harsh lesson by her later on as she falls out of love with him and then breaks up with him.

For a relationship to last a lifetime, itâ€™s the manâ€™s responsibility to guide both himself and his woman into deeper feelings of love, respect and attraction over time, rather than assuming that the love will take care of itself.

Human love needs to be nurtured and a woman needs to feel that her man will respect her, love her and appreciate her whether they are together for one day, or for 10, 20, 30 or even 50 years.

Sure, there are some women who will accept being taken for granted (e.g. if she has a really cool boyfriend or husband and she is unattractive, if he is very rich and sheâ€™s just staying with him for the money and lifestyle), but most women wonâ€™t.

[image: She leaves because she's had enough of being taken for granted]

Unlike in the past where a woman was forced to stay in an unhappy relationship, in todayâ€™s world a woman doesnâ€™t have to stay with a guy if he doesnâ€™t make her feel the way she wants to feel.

She can leave.

Another reason why a guy will ruin a great relationship with a woman is thatâ€™|

2. He Becomes Influenced By His Single Male Friends

[image: He becomes influenced by his single male friends]

Strangely enough, not all friendships are created equal and sometimes, a guyâ€™s friends can cost him his relationship with his ideal woman.

According to a new study conducted on 2000 women, it seems that when a guy gets together with his single male friends, he does things that he wouldnâ€™t ordinarily do.

For example: Some of the ways that a guy might change when hanging out with his friends:

- Drinking too much or too often.
- Ignoring his woman (e.g. not replying to her texts or answering her calls).
- Showing off.
- Swearing more.
- Staying out late.
- Acting like teenager who has no responsibilities, while she wants him to grow up and start taking life seriously.
- Playing computer games for hours on end.
- Talking badly about women.
- Talk about women that he wants to have sex with.
- Flirt with other women and trying to hook up with them.
- Acting like a completely different person than he is around her.
- Driving faster or less responsibly.

Generally speaking, if a woman loves a guy, adores him and respects him as her man, she will be happy that he has friends and interests that are separate from his relationship with her.

Yet, if every time he goes out with his friends he comes home drunk, changes his personality (e.g. does bad things), or risks getting himself killed by being irresponsible behind the wheel, it's only natural that she won't feel very happy about it.

The thing is

You don't have to give up your friends to keep a relationship together for life.

However, if your friends have been partially responsible for ruining a perfectly good relationship with your ideal woman, then you need to ask yourself who is more important to you.

If you decide that you want her back more than you want to be hanging out with your single buddies, then you'll probably have to make some serious decisions about who you hang out with in the future.

3. He Begins to Experience FOMO (Fear of Missing Out)

[image: He begins to experience FOMO]

Sometimes, when a guy finds himself in a relationship with a wonderful woman and they begin discussing being together for the long term (e.g. by moving in together, getting married, having a baby) he might suddenly begin to panic.

He may say to himself, "Should I commit? I mean, there are so many beautiful women out there in the world, so why should I have to settle for just one? Sure, my relationship right now is great, but what if I meet a woman who is even better than her someday? I'll never get to experience sex and love with her if I settle down now. Besides, it would feel so good to get love, affection and pleasure from many different women. Why get stuck in a monogamous relationship right now? What if we end up like one of those couples who don't have sex anymore? I don't want that. I should probably start getting some action on the side and then decide whether or not I want to stay with her."

He may then start pushing his woman away (e.g. by shutting himself off from her emotionally, treating her badly, becoming unreliable) in the hopes that she will break up with him first.

Yet, if she finally gets fed up with him and leaves, he may find himself thinking, "Damnit! Why did I do that? Why did I ruin a perfectly good relationship with my ideal woman for the superficial thrill of having sex with other women that don't even matter to me? I love her. I know that now."

If your woman has broken up with you, you've probably realized how special she really is now, right?

You and her had some real.

Here's the thing

When you develop an amazing love and connection with a woman, it's not something that should be thrown away.

You should just enjoy it, rather than getting sucked in by FOMO (the Fear of Missing Out) and thinking that you need bang 100s of other women to feel satisfied.

If you want to occasionally jerk off to some other women that you see in porn, go ahead and do that instead.

Don't ruin a perfectly good relationship by hooking up with other women for real though.

Really, there's nothing to it.

It's just some more sex and you will forget about it one day.

If you find true love and have an amazing women, stick with her.

Sure, there are many beautiful women out there that you will feel attracted to for the rest of your life, but when the love between you and your woman just keeps getting better and better over time, those women just won't matter to you.

You will appreciate the love you have with her and your perspective about missing out will change, because you will feel just as excited about being in a committed relationship as you would dating and having sex with many different women.

By the way!

I know this because I slept with a lot of women before I settled down into a relationship and then marriage with my wife.

Watch this video to learn why I decided to accept her marriage proposal and settle down!

When you find true love, the fear of missing out goes away.

You've got your ideal woman, the sex is amazing, the love is amazing and your relationship is always getting better and better.

So, there's no need to leave her.

Another reason why a guy will ruin a perfectly good relationship with a woman is that!

4. He Doesn't See Her as the Most Important Person in His Life

Generally speaking, a woman loves it when her guy has much more to his life than just her.

For example: He is striving to reach his true potential as a man and is working hard on his purpose in life or his career, while at the same time maintaining good relationships with his friends and family.

However, when a man makes everyone else in his life his main priority over her, it's only natural that she will feel neglected.

For example: Some of the ways that a guy might make his woman feel neglected and unimportant to him are:

- He always seems to discuss important events in his life with his family or friends before he tells her (e.g. he got a promotion, he passed his exams, he bought a new car).
- He breaks his promises to her for his family or friends (e.g. he doesn't go with her to her sister's birthday party because he's taking his mother shopping instead. He stands her up on a date because he's going out with his friends instead).
- He disregards her feelings in favor of other people (e.g. he invites people over for dinner even if she is feeling tired or ill. He goes out with his friends when she wants him to stay at home with her).

A man needs to make his purpose (i.e. his big long term goals and dreams) the most important thing in his life, but his woman should be the most important person.

You don't need to tell a woman that.

Instead, just be like that and she will respect you, feel attracted to and love you for life.

However, if your woman feels like she's always playing second fiddle to everyone else in your life, she will eventually begin to ask herself, â€œIs this how I want to spend the rest of my life? Am I always going to get second place in his life because everyone else is more important than me? I don't deserve this. I deserve to be a man's number one girl.â€

She might put up with it for a while, but she will eventually leave and look to find herself a man who can put her first.

5. He Becomes Emotionally Weak and She Then Loses Faith in Him as Her Man

The opposite of a guy who is always putting his woman in second place in his life, is a guy who becomes so emotionally weak that he needs his woman to support him so that he can cope.

For example: A guy like that might give up all his friends, interests and hobbies and focus all of his attention on his woman.

As a result, he becomes clingy, needy and insecure about losing her.

He might say to her, â€œI just love you so much that I wouldn't be able to go on with my life if you ever left me. You still love me don't you? I need you so much. Please don't ever break my heart. I couldn't stand the thought of you being with someone else. We are meant to be together. Please promise me that you will never do something stupid like cheat on me.â€

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that rather than make her think, â€œI feel so lucky to have a guy who loves and needs me so much,â€ a woman think, â€œHe's smothering me. Doesn't he realize that the more he clings to me, the less attractive he becomes? I just can't look up to him and respect him as a man when he's being so needy and insecure like that. I feel so disgusted by who he has become. He's not a man, he's like a boy. I hate it.â€

Alternatively, some guys make the mistake of thinking that because a woman enjoys talking about her feelings all the time, it's okay that he does it too.

No, no, no.

Remember: Men and women are different.

We are not the same as women!

A man's role in a relationship with a woman is DIFFERENT to her role in the relationship.

You have to be a man and let her be the woman.

Some guys don't know that or can't stop themselves from acting like a woman though.

For example: A woman might come home from a bad day at work and say something like, â€œI hate my job. My boss is always on my case. I just feel so depressed being in that office. I don't know what to do.â€

In most cases, the woman just wants to let off some steam and have her guy listen to her while she vents her feelings.

What she doesn't want though, is for her guy to copy her, get emotional and react like one of her girlfriends by unloading his complaints about his job too.

Why?

For a woman to maintain sexual attraction for her man, she has to feel as though he is the emotionally dominant one in the relationship.

She has to see that he is in control of his emotions and life, rather than being like a woman who is always talking about her emotions and being dramatic, but never really looking for solutions like a man would.

If a woman has to keep propping her guy up emotionally (e.g. by listening to him whine about his feelings, constantly reaffirm her love for him) she will begin to think, He's behaving like a little boy. He's always whining and complaining and being emotional about every little thing. I just can't rely on him to be the man anymore. I don't like who he has become. He feels almost feminine to me now. I always have to take care of him and comfort him emotionally. I don't want to be his mother, I want to be his woman.

Here's the thing!

Women hate it when they have to take on the role of being a guy's mother in life.

A woman might put up with it for a little while because she's secretly hoping that he will change, but when she realizes that he isn't changing, she will get sick and tired of it and want to get out of the relationship.

She will realize that she wants a guy who is already a man, so she can just relax and be his woman.

When she gets to that point, she will usually cheat on him or break up with him and try to move on.

If You Ruined Your Relationship With Your Ideal Woman Already, Don't Make This Additional Mistake!

When a woman breaks up with a guy, he will often go into desperation mode when he realizes his mistake.

Watch this video!

For example: A guy might

- Beg and plead and say things like, Please give me another chance. I will do whatever you say. Just tell me what you want me to do to make you happy again and I will do it.
- Try to change her feelings for him by saying things like, How can you give up so easily on the love we had together? or We were so good together once. If you give us the chance we can try and get that back. Please don't do this to us. You mean everything to me. I know we can make it work.
- Try to convince her to change her mind by being extra nice to her and buying her expensive gifts/paying for some of her bills/being available to her every beck and call.
- Promise to do whatever she wants.

Yet, that only turns her off more.

What You Need to Do is This!|

Even though you may have ruined a perfectly good relationship with your ideal woman, it doesn't mean that it has to stay that way.

When you make her feel the way she wants to feel from now on (when interacting with her on a phone call or in person), she will naturally drop her guard and open herself up to the idea of getting back together again.

However, you first need to show her that you've truly understood why she broke up with you and that you're not that man anymore.

You can do that by taking the following steps!

1. If you haven't already done so, apologize to her for your mistakes. Don't keep apologizing if you've already done it. Follow through on the other steps.
2. Show her via the way you think, act, behave, interact with her and respond to what she says and does, that you've changed the things about yourself that caused her to break up with you (e.g. if you were self-doubting and insecure, you are now confident and you believe in yourself. If she felt more emotionally dominant than you, you now stand up to her in a loving way and are emotionally strong).
3. Focus on using every interaction you have with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) as a way of re-sparking her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you (e.g. by making her smile and laugh, making her feel feminine and girly in your presence, flirting).
4. Guide her back into a relationship with you.

When she sees that you're not thinking, behaving or acting in the ways she expects you to (e.g. being insecure, not being ballsy enough, sucking up to her), it becomes a lot more difficult to hold on to her negative perspective of you.

Think of it this way!

If she's your ideal woman, chances are you are her ideal man.

However, right now, she's likely convinced herself that it won't work between you and her because she doesn't believe you can change and give her what she really wants.

She's wrong.

You are already changing and improving simply by reading this article and watching the videos I included.

When she experiences the new you for herself, she will be unable to stop herself from falling head-over-heels back in love with you again.

That's a fact.

She may not know it now because she's turned off by how you acted when she broke up with you and since then, but you are different now, right?

You are ready to re-attract her and get her back for real.

She is yours and is waiting for you to make the reconciliation happen.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Said That I Wasn't Emotionally Open Enough For Her

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

4 possible reasons why your ex said that you weren't emotionally open enough for her are:

1. You Didn't Know How to Express Love in a Mature Way

[image: You didn't know how to express love in a mature way]

Expressing love like a mature man is to be fearless, but not needy.

This means that you are fearless in telling a woman how much you love her, but you don't always talk about your feelings like a needy guy would.

A needy guy is always leaning on his woman for emotional support or reassurance that she loves him. Obviously, you didn't do that because you were most likely more detached and unemotional, which is the opposite extreme of being needy.

Here's the thing though!

Even though a woman doesn't want a needy guy, she also doesn't want a guy who is so closed up that he is afraid to express his love for her.

She might put up with it for a while (years in many cases), but she will eventually get tired of how detached and unemotional he seems to be.

She begins to think, "If I stick with this guy for life, I'm never going to get to experience what it feels like to be in a relationship with a man loves me fearlessly. Do I really want that?"

If she has girlfriends who are in relationships, or if she watches a lot of romance dramas on TV, she will know that what she has with her emotionally closed up guy isn't it.

She will know that there is more to a relationship between a man and a woman than just being together.

It's about real love.

The little rush of excitement, yearning and happiness that you get in your heart when you think of each other while apart, even if one of you has just gone grocery shopping.

You love each other so much and it feels so good to be with each other.

That's what women really want to experience and it's also amazing for us men too.

I know that because I'm a happily married man. My wife asked me to marry her many times and I eventually said yes. She is totally in love.

Yet, I don't make her feel less than me.

My wife is sexy, beautiful and I love her completely and she knows it.

I don't hide my love and attraction from her, but I'm not on the extreme end either like a needy guy who always talks about his "feelings."

I express my love for her in a masculine, mature way. It's never, ever needy. I express it when we are talking about how good our relationship is or when she does something really nice or thoughtful for me.

Essentially, a masculine man who is fearless with his love will tell a woman that he loves her and will be open to discussing his feelings if she asks for it, but he won't push it on her.

He understands that opening up to a woman emotionally doesn't mean he's weak or needy. Instead, it shows his strength because he's not afraid of what she might think.

He knows that women deeply respect, feel attracted to and love men who are fearless (not needy) with their expression of love when required.

I say, "when required" because it's not always necessary to tell her how you feel.

You only need to give her that at times, not all the time!

So, in your case, where your woman said that you weren't emotionally open up for her, you simply needed to be more brave and courageous with expressing yourself.

You needed to know that saying, "I love you" or telling her that you don't ever plan on leaving her and look forward to spending your life with her, does not make you weak.

In fact, it makes you strong because you know that you aren't afraid of anything she might think or say in response.

For example: My wife isn't an easy woman to handle. She's very confident and is always testing my confidence.

Sometimes, if I say something sweet to her, she will say something like, "Whatever" or "Grossâ€¦you're so romantic" to see if I crumble.

Of course, I never crumble, but she always likes to check. She's only joking, but she does it in a serious way.

Why?

A woman will always test her man's confidence because it makes her feel respect, attraction and love for him if he doesn't crumble under fake pressure.

If he does crumble and become insecure, sulky or angry, she will lose respect for him and partially detach from her feelings of respect and attraction for him.

It's just how women are.

They're pretty much designed to strengthen us menâ€¦and that's a good thing.

In your case, your woman would have been hoping that you'd man up and stop hiding your emotions so much, but you didn't.

So, she broke up with you.

If you're like most men who've been dumped for that reason, you've most likely become super open with your emotions now.

Don't do that.

Watch thisâ€¦!

She doesn't want you to turn into an emotional wuss or become needy by constantly talking about your emotions and needs.

She just wants you to relax and know that it's more than enough if you express your emotions in a relaxed, easy-going way when required.

When you do that, she feels respect, love and attraction for you for being man enough to open up to her, without being needy or insecure about it.

Another possible reason why your ex said that you weren't open enough emotionally isâ

2. You Thought She'd Like it if You Were Closed Up and Mysterious

[image: You thought she would like it if you were closed up and mysterious]

If you've ever looked through one of those romantic novels that women love to read, or watched a romantic Hollywood movie, you may have noticed that beautiful woman usually falls head over heels in love with a mysterious stranger who keeps his feelings hidden from her throughout most of the book, or movie.

He builds up the sexual tension between him and her by constantly making her wonder, Is he going to call me? He was so wonderful last night but today he's being so cold and distant! what does that mean? Does he love me or is he just playing games with me? I don't know what to do! I just want him so desperately! Does he like me, or does he like that other woman?

Eventually, by the end of the book, or movie, the woman can't control herself anymore and desperately declares her undying love for the guy, he takes her into his arms and they ride off into the sunset to live happily ever after.

Of course, in real life, things usually don't work out like that.

Although a woman might initially feel attracted to a guy who is mysterious, if over time she finds that he just can't, or won't, open up to her, she will likely begin to feel insecure in the relationship with him.

She will begin to feel as though he's just using her and waiting for a better woman to come along.

If she feels that way, she will usually start flirting with other guys and getting replacement guys ready to hook up with her right after she breaks up with him.

Alternatively, she might cheat on him and then break up with him without telling him about the other guy unless he asks.

Here's the thing!

Being really mysterious and closed up emotionally might work in novels and movies, but if a woman doesn't feel loved and taken care of in her relationship with a guy, she won't be able to relax and truly commit to her guy.

Most women want to be with a man they can feel sexually attracted to, respect and fall in love with over time, not a guy who makes her think, I just don't know how he feels about me. Is this relationship going somewhere, or am I just wasting my time?

That is fun for a woman during the dating phase of a relationship (women often refer to guys like that as a challenge and they love it), but when a couple has been together for a while, a woman wants to know that the guy loves her for real and is planning on sticking with her.

Another reason why your ex may have said that you were closed up emotionally isâ

3. You Honestly Didn't Know if You Truly Loved Her

[image: You honestly didn't know if you truly loved her]

Sometimes, a guy won't open up emotionally with a woman because deep down, he doesn't even know if he really loves her.

He likes her, enjoys spending time with her and likes having sex with her, but he's not actually sure if she's the woman that he wants to share his life with in the long term.

So, the question you need to ask yourself right now is, â€œDo I really love my ex and feel that we have a future together, or do I just want her back because I'm too afraid/insecure/lazy to find another woman that I really want to open up to and commit to for life?â€

If you can honestly say that you truly love your ex and want her in your life, then it's very important that when you interact with her from now on (e.g. via text or e-mail, on social media, on a phone call, or in person) you focus on re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

You need to show her, by the way you think, talk, behave and interact with her, that you're no longer the emotionally closed up guy she broke up with.

That doesn't mean you have to go overboard to show her how much you care and how much she means to you now.

Don't do that.

Don't become the classic needy, emotionally sensitive ex.

It doesn't work.

For example: A guy might try to show his ex that he's more emotionally open now by saying things like, â€œI know that I didn't say this to you when we were together, but I really, really love you. You're the best thing that ever happened to me and I just can't imagine being without you. Just give me one more chance and I promise that I'll tell you that I love you every day from now on. I don't want any other woman. I only want you. Please just give me a chance to prove that to you.â€

To convince her that he really means what he says, might also buy her flowers, chocolates and expensive gifts and he may also pay for some of her bills and expenses, to show her how much he really does care.

Yet, if a woman has lost respect and attraction for a guy and has closed herself off from loving him, she's not going to change her mind if he suddenly opens up.

Of course, in some cases a woman will change her mind, but that usually only applies to very young women who have little or no experience with relationships.

Pretty much every other woman knows that when a guy is acting desperate and promising her the world, it's just an act to get her back so he can feel better about himself.

She will think, â€œToo little too late. I needed you to open up to me when we were together. Things have changed now. I just don't feel like I can trust you to stay this way if I give you another chance.â€

So, don't make the mistake of getting desperate and turning up your emotional availability to the point where you start to feel like a woman to her (i.e. because women are the ones who are supposed to go around wearing their emotions on their sleeve all the time) or like a needy guy.

What should you do instead?

Show her that youâ€”ve changed by talking about it in a relaxed, easy-going manner like a real man would.

For example: When you interact with her on a phone call, or in person, you can say something like, *â€”Hey, I know that I stuffed up. I was just too afraid to admit my feelings for you before. I know that I caused you to feel unloved and unappreciated and Iâ€”m really sorry for hurting you like that. Iâ€”ve realized my mistake and I know that if we got back together again I wouldnâ€”t be that guy anymore. However, I donâ€”t expect you to believe me right now and I donâ€”t expect you to take me back. I just wanted to tell you that I regret the pain I put you through and I want to make it up to you; even if that means we can only be friends for now.*â€”

Of course, when you say that you just want to be friends, it's not about actually being friends.

Watch thisâ€”!

Being friends is simply a way for you to regain her feelings of respect and attraction for you, so she can naturally reconnect with her love and desire for you.

By the wayâ€”!

If she says something like, *â€”I donâ€”t know if I can believe you that you have changed,*â€” don't get upset and say something like, *â€”Itâ€”s really true! I really love you. How many times must I say it before you will believe me?*â€”

Just relax.

[image: Be easy going when you express how you feel]

Relax, smile and respond in a confident way by saying something along the lines of, *â€”Lookâ€”I can go around saying â€”I love youâ€” all day long, but youâ€”re still not going to believe me. As the old saying going, actions speak louder than words, so letâ€”s just catch up to say hi. We can get to know each other all over again as the people we are now, rather than who we used to be in the past. You can then make up your mind about me based on what you experience now, instead of thinking about the guy I used to be before. You are in control. You can go with how you feel, not with what I say.*â€”

When you say something like that to her, she starts to feel understood.

She begins to see that you really do now understand where you went wrong and have already made changes and adjustments to your behavior.

For example: Youâ€”re more open and loving towards her, you speaking freely about emotions and you're not trying to hide how you really feel about things anymore.

When she notices that, it automatically triggers some of her feelings of respect for you again.

Her guard comes down and she begins to think, *â€”Maybe he has changed after all. If he really is more emotionally open now, maybe I can allow myself to love him again. Maybe we can actually make our relationship work this time. I feel differently now. I want to give this a shot. I think it will work this time. I can feel it.*â€”

Another reason why your ex may have accused you of being closed up emotionally isâ€”!

4. You Took Her For Granted

[image: You took her for granted]

Sometimes, a guy falls into the trap of believing that the love between him and his woman will last for life because it was so good at the start of a relationship.

He might even think, “Why should I tell her that I love her all the time? After all, Iâm with her arenât I? If I didnât love her I wouldâve broken up with her already.”

Yet, thatâs not how a loving relationship between a man and a woman really works.

A woman needs to know that she is loved and appreciated all the time, in order for her feelings of respect, attraction and love to grow, develop and strengthen.

In a relationship, itâs the man’s responsibility to build on her feelings of respect, attraction and love over time, rather than taking her commitment to him for granted and expecting that she will fall more in love with him over time by herself.

In many relationships, the guy starts off being very loving and attentive, but eventually falls into the habit of taking his woman for granted once heâs âhookedâ her.

For example: A guy might initially say to his woman, “Youâre so beautiful. I really love the way you always make an effort to look amazing. Iâm really proud to have you as my woman.”

Yet, over time, he may just take it for granted that she always looks good and stops telling her how much he loves and appreciates her efforts to look pretty for him.

In another example, a woman might say to her guy, “I love you,” and rather than genuinely respond to that by saying something like, “I really love you too,” he might brush it off by changing the subject, or by saying something along the lines of, “Thanks,” or “Thatâs great” or never saying the word love and just saying, “Yeah, you too.”

Essentially, a guy like that is assuming that just because his woman cares so much for him, sheâll put up with anything, forever.

Yet, thatâs not how it works.

Naturally, there are some women who will accept being in a relationship with a guy who is emotionally closed off to her (e.g. a woman who is insecure about her attractiveness to other men and fears that she wonât be able to find a replacement guy who is as cool as he is).

Yet, most women wonât put up with it forever.

If a woman realizes that she has always cared so much about him, but he doesn’t do the same for her, she will begin to feel resentful and will start disconnecting from her feelings of love for him.

If he doesn’t change, she will eventually break up with him and look for a replacement guy who isnât afraid to love her for real.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Does Your Ex See You as Desperate Because You're Trying to Get Her Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Trying to get an ex back is not desperate.

It's completely normal and natural and if you pay attention to the latest songs on the radio, you will notice that they're all pretty much about wanting an ex back or being hurt by an ex.

So, don't worry â€” it's not just you who wants an ex back.

Yet, is it possible for your ex to see you as desperate for wanting her back?

Yes.

If you display any of the following behaviors, your ex will be turned off by your desperation.

Don't worry though â€” if you have made these mistakes, you can fix it and get her to respect you again.

5 Signs of Desperation That Turn a Woman Off

The first sign of desperately needing a woman back isâ€”

1. Begging and pleading for a second chance

[image: Please I'm begging you]

Thereâ€”s a big difference between wanting her back and then getting her back in a mature, emotionally strong and confident way, versus needing her back so badly that you resort to begging and pleading.

For example: A guy might panic when his woman breaks up with him and say things like, *â€”Iâ€”m sorry! Please forgive me. I know that I messed up badly, but I cannot live without you. You mean everything to me. Please! Iâ€”m begging youâ€” just give me a chance to make it up to you. I promise to change. Iâ€”ll do anything you want me to do. Please don't do this to us. We can make it work. Please!*â€”

You can't help but feel sorry for a guy who does that, right?

If you've ever been dumped by the woman you love (probably why you're reading this article), you will know that it HURTS.

â€”and that's why there are so many songs on the radio about it.

Singers can't stop themselves from thinking about their ex's, so they end up writing endless songs about them.

Even celebrities and pop stars make the mistake I talk about in the video below..

So, if you have messed up by being a bit of a wuss with your ex, don't worry â€” it's a pretty damn normal reaction.

It's not attractive to her, but it's pretty normal and if she's had some experience with relationships, she's likely seen it before.

Here's the thing though!

When a guy starts begging and pleading with his woman for another chance, rather than make her think, “Oh no! Look what I'm doing to him. He loves me so much and I'm being a bitch by wanting to break up with him. I should definitely give him another chance. The poor little thing. He needs me. I have to stay with him out of pity” it simply convinces her that she has made the right decision.

Why? A woman's attraction to a guy is based mostly on his ability to make her feel like she can look up to him and respect him as man.

So, when a guy is begging and pleading and behaving like an emotionally weak man around her, rather than trigger her feelings of respect and attraction, he's actually turning her off even more.

She's thinking something like, “Lame. If he can't even handle a break up, what are the chances of him actually handling something a lot more serious in life (e.g. raising a family, the loss of a loved one, financial problems)? I need a man that can make me feel safe and taken care of, not a guy who needs me to mother him and give him emotional support because he can't cope with problems in life. Doesn't he realize that women are turned off by the emotional weakness of men? Hasn't anyone told him that? If he knows it already, why isn't he fixed it? Does he think I'll just put up with it? No way. It's the biggest turn off ever!” I'm outta here.

So, even though he has good intentions (by begging and pleading) and wants things to work between them, his approach is all wrong.

He's trying to get her back by displaying traits and behaviors that actually turn women off, so it's not going to work.

The next sign of desperation that turns women off their ex is!

2. Constantly texting her

This often happens when a guy feels nervous or insecure about calling his ex on the phone in case she rejects him, or because he doesn't want to make it obvious to her that he wants her back.

He might then say to himself, “I'm just going to take things slowly by texting her. That way, I will stay on her mind. Hopefully, she will eventually see that I love her so much and am not giving up on our love, which will make her see that we're meant to be together. She will then want to meet up with me and we can work things out between us.”

He may then send her random texts like, “Hey, how are you today?” or “I was thinking about you. I hope you're well,” or, “Good luck with the project at work. I know you will do a great job” on a regular basis, in the hopes that it will somehow change how she currently feels about him.

Yet, here's the thing!

It's just a text.

It's not him.

So, she doesn't really believe that he has changed and become a new man simply by reading a few words on her phone or tablet device.

It's like, “Yeah, nice try!” and she keeps moving on with her life.

Why?

When a woman has lost respect and attraction for a guy, his text messages are more likely to annoy her and cause her to think something like, “Why is he texting me all the time? What does he want?” regardless of how sincere he is being via text.

Via text, your ex cannot see your body language, hear the tone of your voice or experience your confidence for real.

Instead, she has to guess your state of mind and if she’s currently focusing on her negative feelings about you (e.g. she’s feeling angry, annoyed, indifferent, turned off, disappointed, repulsed) then what are the chances of her looking at a text message from you and thinking, “Oh, my ex is being so sweet! I think I’m going to call him up and set up a date with him?”

Probably not very good, right?

Exactly.

This is why I always tell men to stop hiding behind texts if they want their ex woman back.

If you’re going to contact your ex via text, only do so with the intention of getting her on a phone call with you.

On a phone call, it’s so much easier to let her see that you’re not being desperate (i.e. because you’re being confident, easy-going, joking around, not rushing to get her back).

On a phone call, you can change her negative feelings towards you by making her smile and laugh and showing her that you’re no longer the same guy that she broke up with.

When you make a woman smile and laugh during conversation, it becomes difficult for her to think of you in a negative way and she then drops her guard and becomes open to meeting up with you in person.

On the other hand, if you just keep annoying her by texting her over and over again with no goal in mind, she will most-likely ignore you or ask you to leave her alone.

Another sign of desperately needing her back is

3. Regularly showing up at her house or workplace

Not being able to cope without her in his life, a guy might decide that he has to confront her by showing up at her house or workplace and trying to convince her to give him another chance.

Yet, if he’s like most guys, he will try to convince her in all the wrong ways.

For example: He might start begging and pleading, telling her how much she means to him, asking her to stop being so stubborn and just give him another chance.

Alternatively, he might say something like, “I’m sorry to show up like this, but I think I forgot one of my books here. You won’t mind if I come in and have a look around for it, would you?”

Secretly he’s hoping that if he gets close to her, she will realize how much she misses him and then she’ll want to get back together again.

He might also go to her workplace to try and get her to talk to him so that he can explain his feelings to her, knowing that she won’t want to cause a scene in front of her colleagues, or boss.

Yet, rather than convince her to want to get back together again, this type of behavior makes a guy look desperate and in some cases, he may even come across as being a bit of a stalker ex, which makes women feel afraid.

Hereâ€¦s the thingâ€¦!

If a guy doesnâ€¦t trigger his exâ€¦s feelings of respect and attraction for him first, sheâ€¦s not going to be happy about him showing up at her home or workplace.

Instead, sheâ€¦s likely just going to be feeling annoyed, turned off and possibly even creeped out.

So, donâ€¦t become a stalker to your ex.

Do this insteadâ€¦!

Let her experience the new you for herself, so she can feel a spark of respect and attraction for you again.

That's what counts.

It has to be about her feelings, not yours.

So, aim to get her on a phone call and interact with her at a meet up where you can her feel respect and attraction for you again by the way you now talk, think, behave and interact with her.

When you do that, she will become open to seeing you again and again and you will then get her back.

Another desperate ex back mistake isâ€¦!

4. Getting her friends or family involved

Sometimes, when a guy doesnâ€¦t know what else to do to get his ex back (e.g. because he's tried begging and pleading, convincing, ignoring her, saying that he agrees with the break up), he might then reach out to friends or family for help.

For example: He might ask a family member, friend or coworker of hers to â€¦put in a good wordâ€¦ for him with his ex.

Alternatively, he might call up her mother/sister/brother and say things like, â€¦I am still totally in love with her. I know that I made a mistake by (doing whatever he did to cause the break up) and Iâ€¦m so sorry for that. I really have changed. I promise that I would never do something like that again. I've learned my lesson. Do you think she would give me another chance if I showed her that Iâ€¦ve changed? Would you tell her for me that Iâ€¦m sorry? Can you try to get through to her and tell her that people deserve a second chance sometimes? Can you tell her that I love her and that she means everything to me? I'm a changed man and I'm willing to do whatever it takes to make it up to her.â€¦

Heâ€¦s hoping that if someone she loves and trusts takes his side, she might then be more open to forgiving him and giving him another chance.

Yet, in most cases, a woman will usually just think, â€¦Why is he going behind my back and getting my family and friends involved in our problems? Thatâ€¦s what a coward would do. Isnâ€¦t he man enough to face me and speak up for himself? Does he really think that I'm going to listen to what someone else says about him? I know him better than they do. He has ruined my feelings for him and only he can make things better if he talks to me. Trying to get others involved isn't going to change how I feel about him.â€¦

She might then feel even more determined to put her relationship with him behind her and just move on, unless he is able to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction when he talks to her.

So, if you want to get your ex back, don't rely on her friends or family to get her back for you. Instead, be man enough to contact her and re-spark her feelings for you by making her laugh and smile and letting her experience the new you.

She might be a bit cold at first, but when you're making her smile and laugh when talking to you, she can't put on that act for long.

After a few moments or minutes, her ice will melt and she will warm up to you again.

When that happens, she will open herself up to meeting up with you, hugging you, kissing and possibly even having sex to see how she feels.

I've heard back from 100s of men who've followed my ex back strategy who have gotten that result. You'll be surprised how easily it works.

5. Pouring his heart out to her in love letters, e-mails or messages

If a woman is refusing to talk to a guy on the phone, or meet up with him in person, he might decide that the only way to let her know that he still has feelings for her, is by telling her via letters, e-mails or messages.

He might say to himself, â€œI've got to get through to her somehow. I have to let her know that I still love her and that I regret hurting her. Maybe if I send her a love letter or e-mail and explain everything, it will make her see things from my point of view. She will then want to get back together again. Itâ€™s the only way I can think of to get through to her. I have to try it. I'm going to apologize, tell her exactly how I feel and how much she means to me.â€

Yet, that rarely (if ever) makes a woman change her mind. Why?

When a woman has stopped having feelings for her ex, him pouring his heart out to her isn't going to make her suddenly care.

Instead, she will usually think something like, â€œGood for you that you still love me, but I don't feel the same way about you. Youâ€™re just sending me messages and letters and hoping that Iâ€™m just going to forget about what happened between us. Well it doesn't work like that buddy. I still feel hurt and angry and you telling me how you feel only annoys me even more because itâ€™s telling me that youâ€™re still only thinking about yourself and that you don't really care about me and how I feel. You just haven't changed. You're so needy. Everything about your feelings and your point of view. You don't get it that to get a woman back, you need to make her have feelings for you again, not talk about your feelings and try to get her to understand your point of view.â€

Here's the thingâ€¦

Even though the guy is trying to show her how much he cares, she's not going to care because her feelings for him have been switched off.

She's going to perceive him as being desperate, selfish and will keep saying things like, â€œNo. Itâ€™s over between us. You need to accept it and move on.â€

So, if you don't want your ex to see you as desperate because you're trying to get her back, don't waste time sending her long love letters or e-mails talking about your feelings or trying to get her to understand your point of view.

Instead, only text her or drop her a quick note via e-mail, as a way to get her on a phone call with you.

On a phone call, you can then actively focus on switching on some of her feelings for you by making her laugh, smile and feel happy to be talking to you again and get her to meet up with you in person.

Remember: Getting a woman back requires making her have feelings for you again, rather than focusing on your feelings and trying to explain everything to her.

On a phone call, you can create a spark and then get her to meet up with you in person.

In person, you can show her by the way you talk, think and behave that you're no longer the guy that she broke up with.

The more she can see for herself that you really changed and become a new man, the more open she will become to giving the relationship another chance.

Then, if you tell her that you still care about her and love, it will feel good to her.

On the other hand, if you just pour your heart out to her and ask her to give you a second chance without sparking her feelings for you first, she's just going to keep pushing you away.

She will look at you as being selfish and desperate and believe that you're just trying to make yourself feel better by getting her back.

So, don't make her feel that way about you.

Get her feeling a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you by actively making her laugh and smile when she talks to you.

Get her to drop her guard and open back up to talking you and then get her to meet up with you.

Then, when you meet up with her in person, turn up the attraction and make her want you again.

It's Not Desperate to Want Your Ex Back

As long as you don't behave in any of the desperate ways mentioned above, you can focus on getting her back and know that you're not doing anything wrong.

Just remember be confident, relaxed, emotionally strong and centered as you get her back.

Where a guy might sometimes go wrong is that even though he knows that being desperate is a turn off, he is unable to stop himself from behaving that way.

For example: Rather doing something to improve his ability to attract her, he just carries on doing and saying the types of things that have been turning her off in the past and are still turning her off.

He then wonders why his ex woman isn't responding well to him and giving him another chance.

He knows that he should be more confident, relaxed and easy-going, but he can't stop himself from acting desperate and needy, so his ex continues to not want anything to do with him.

Imagine this!

A woman breaks up with a guy because he's too insecure and self-doubting in the relationship.

He constantly asks her things like, Do you really love me? or You wouldn't leave me, would you? because he doesn't believe in his value to her.

He looks at her as being more attractive and valuable than him, so he is worried that she will realize that she can do better and then decide to cheat on him or leave him.

In most cases, he knows that he shouldn't be behaving in that way, but he can't stop himself from doing it because he continues to think in an insecure way (i.e. seeing her as being more attractive and valuable than him).

So, she breaks up with him.

Then, rather than focusing on becoming more confident and emotionally strong as a man, he carries on behaving like an insecure, emotionally sensitive guy (e.g. he begs and pleads with her, asks her to tell him what to do to make her forgive him).

She then thinks something like, He doesn't get it. His insecurity and self-doubt is the very reason why I broke up with him in the first place and he just keeps behaving like that. He's still the same emotionally weak guy that I broke up with and he probably won't ever change. Maybe I need to teach him a lesson by not getting back with him. Maybe this will wake him up and teach him how to be a real man.

Of course, she doesn't know that if he does quickly transform and then interact with her again, she will feel a spark of respect and attraction for him and want him back.

She's just thinking about moving on because he hasn't changed yet and is still turning her off.

Yet, when he starts turning her on to the new, improved version of him that is when things change.

So, if you want to get your ex back, it's very important that you show her that you're no longer at the same level you were at when she broke up with you.

For example: If you were insecure and self-doubting in the relationship, you are confident and emotionally strong now.

If you were too nice and allowed her to push you around before, you are more ballsy and can stand up for yourself now.

If you treated her more like a friend or a big sister before, you now make her feel feminine and girly when you interact with her.

Seeing those changes in you automatically changes how she feels about you.

It doesn't always get her back though because you still have to be ballsy enough to guide her through the ex back process.

Watch this to understand how it works!

You've got to make sure that you don't stop at just showing her the new you.

You've got to guide her through the ex back process with confidence.

That is what works.

Keep Calm and Get Her Back

[image: Keep calm and get her back]

There's nothing wrong with wanting your ex back.

Wanting her back doesn't mean that you are desperate.

Wanting her back simply means that you still care about her and it would add to your happiness if you and her got back together again.

You don't need her to be happy, but you want her back and it would be great for the both of you. One of the best ways to let show her that is to focus on genuinely feeling happy, content and emotionally fulfilled without her.

For example: Hang out with new people, try new fun things with other people and join in on new experiences with other people.

Did you notice something from the sentence above?

Other people.

I'm not saying, "Do things on your own."

I'm saying, "Do fun things with other people."

If you don't do that and only do things on your own, you will not be genuinely happy without your ex.

Most of the men I've helped to get an ex back have lost a fair bit of confidence after being dumped and aren't in any mood to be socializing with other people.

Yet, that is the exact thing that wakes a man back up and lets him see that he can have fun, be happy and enjoy himself without her.

When you do that, you will discover that you automatically become more attractive to her because you are displaying some of the positive traits that women respect and find attractive in a man (e.g. confidence, self-belief, masculinity, drive and determination, perseverance).

Then, when you interact with her again, either on a phone call, or in person and she senses (via your tonality, body language and the way you think, behave and interact with her) that you are happy, confident and getting on with your life without her, she begins to see you with different eyes.

Her feelings of respect and attraction for you come rushing back and she opens up to loving you again.

She can now see that you are the kind of man she look up to, respect, feel attracted to and love.

Remember: It's about making her have feelings.

That is what really works.

Not explaining things to her, constantly apologizing or sucking up to her.

What works is to make her have feelings again by letting her experience the new and improved you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

3 Powerful Emotions That Will Make Your Ex Begin Wanting You Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a woman breaks up with a guy, itâs usually because she has lost respect, attraction and love for him over time.

So, if you want to cause your ex begin wanting you back, you have to make her feel the following powerful emotionsâ!

1. Respect

[image: Respect]

What is respect?

According to the dictionary, respect is defined as:

Respect (noun): A feeling of admiration for someone or something elicited by their abilities, qualities, or achievements.

When a woman loses respect for a guy, itâs usually because he has stopped behaving in ways that allow her to look up to him and admire him.

For example: A guy might be on his best behavior when he first meets a woman and gets to know her, so he acts a lot more confident, assertive, loving or ambitious than he really is.

Then, once they are settled into a relationship, he might stop behaving in those attractive ways and become clingy and self doubting, take her for granted or stop focusing on his goals to spend all his time with her.

When that happens, a woman will likely start to think, âWhatâs going on here? What happened to the confident/loving/ambitious guy I hooked up with? This guy is too clingy/treating me badly/going nowhere in his life. Iâm not sure if I want to be with anymoreâ and she then begins to lose respect for him.

If the guy doesnât realize that this is happening and continues thinking and behaving in the same unattractive ways (e.g. being insecure, treating her badly, not following through on his big goals in life), a woman will gradually begin to lose attraction for him.

After a while, she may then break up with him and say something along the lines of, âI just canât be with you any longer. I donât respect you anymore. You have become a different person to the guy you were when we first met. I donât like who youâve become. Itâs over.â

A guy might then try to gain back her respect in all the wrong ways.

For example: He might try to get her to respect him again byâ!

- Being extra nice to her.

Sometimes, a guy hopes that if heâs really, really nice to his ex (e.g. does everything that she wants, acts like a really good friend who just wants to help her and make her happy, runs errands for her, is supportive when she's going through tough times) she will suddenly realize that he's way too valuable to lose and will then change her mind.

Yet, a woman doesn't care how nice a guy is to her if she doesn't have strong enough sexual or romantic feelings for him.

Sure, she might appreciate that he's being a good guy to her after the break up, but most women won't suddenly think, â€œOh well now, this changes everything. He's being so nice to me, so I have to get back together with him. I can't lose a good guy! There's such a shortage of them!â€

What most guys don't realize is that most guys are good guys, especially in their relationships with women.

and women know that.

So, sucking up to by being really nice doesn't actually make women think that they must get back with you because you're way too valuable to lose.

In fact, if a woman realizes that her ex is only acting that way out of desperation, she will lose even more respect for him.

Likewise, if he keeps being nice, generous and giving to her when she is being cold or disrespectful towards him, she will lose respect for him because he doesn't have the balls to put get her to respect him.

He's just putting up with her bad behavior so he can be around her, which a woman sees as desperate.

and desperation in men is a huge turn off for women.

The thing is, a woman doesn't want a guy to feel like he needs to suck up to her to get her respect back.

To get her respect back, all a guy has to do is show her (by the way he now talks, thinks, behaves, interacts with her and reacts to what she says and does) that he is now the kind of man she can look up to and respect.

So, even though there is absolutely nothing wrong with being a good guy and being nice to a woman, it's not what will make her respect you and want you again.

The next common mistake that many guys make when trying to regain the respect of an ex woman is

- Telling her that he will change anything she wants if she will just tell him what to do.

A guy might say something like, â€œI'll do anything you want me to do. Just tell me what you want me to change and I'll do it. I promise. I will do it. Just tell me what you want me to change.â€

Yet, asking a woman to tell you what she wants you to change about yourself is actually one of the fastest ways to lose even more of her respect for you.

Why?

A woman doesn't want to be a guy's teacher about how to be a man in a relationship with a woman.

For her to be able to respect him again, she wants him to be able to figure it out on his own (or get help and not tell her about it) and then make some changes to himself.

When he has done that (i.e. within a few days or a week), he needs to interact with her on a phone call or in person (not via text) and show her that he is now the kind of man that she can feel proud of, look up to, respect and feel attracted to.

By the wayâ€¦!

He doesn't have to tell her about all the ways he has changed.

He just needs to be the new and improved version of himself and she will pick up on it.

Women are very good at analyzing the details of men's behavior when they are interacting with them, so she will pick up the subtle (but very important to her) changes that he has made (e.g. he's more ballsy now, he's more charismatic, he doesn't get insecure when she tests his confidence by being cold or bitchy).

Here's the thing thoughâ€¦!

Most women will never admit to you what they really want you to change because they don't want to teach you the subtle details that really make a woman happy when with a man.

So, if you ask her what she wants you to change, she will almost always tell you things that she doesn't even really care about (e.g. do the dishes more, buy me more things, listen to me more).

The next mistake that some guys make when trying to regain their ex's respect isâ€¦!

- Buying her gifts or paying for some of her expenses.

Sometimes, a guy might say to himself, â€œMy ex said she doesn't respect me anymore. So, maybe if I lavish her with gifts and take care of some of her expenses, she will see that Iâ€™m the kind of guy she can rely on. It will show her that I can support her and that I'm even this generous when she is being cold and bitchy towards me. When I do that, she will then start to respect me again and she will want to give me another chance.â€

However, a woman doesn't respect, feel attracted to and fall in love with a guy because of what he can buy for her.

She respects, feels attracted to and falls in love with him because of the way he makes her feel when he interacts with her.

â€¦and that is free.

It's based on how you talk, behave and react to her when you are interacting with her.

In other words, when you talk to your ex on the phone or in person, do you make her feel attracted and happy, or turned off and uncomfortable?

That's what matters.

Yet, a lot of guys don't know that simple truth, so they hope to buy their ex's love by showing her how willing they are to spend money on her.

For example: A guy might buy a woman beautiful gifts and pay for her expenses and she might even say, “Thanks, you're so kind” and be nice to him before ending the phone call or asking him to leave.

Yet, that doesn't get her back, especially if he was being unattractive by displaying insecurity, self doubt and awkwardness when around her.

Women are attracted to confidence, not insecurity.

So, even though he has probably just spend half or most of his paycheck on her, she doesn't care and she doesn't want him back because his behavior doesn't make her feel sexually attracted to him. If she finds herself considering giving him another chance out of pity, she might then ask herself, â€œDo I really want to be with a guy who is trying to earn my respect and love by buying me gifts, even though he doesn't know how to make me have real feelings for him? Is that going to make me happy? Should I just take advantage of him for a while?â€

That's not the kind of thought pattern you want your woman to be getting into.

It doesn't work to get an ex back, but in the rare cases where a woman does keep the guy around, she just uses him and doesn't give him what he wants (i.e. love, affection, sex, commitment).

What really works to get an ex back is to focus on her feelings.

You've got to make her feel something for the new and improved version of you (e.g. you're more confident and emotionally strong now, you're making progress on your big goals in life, you're more emotionally masculine, you're more charismatic).

When she can see for herself that you're a brand new man, it then feels natural and normal for her to drop her guard and open up to her feelings of respect for you.

So, you first need to focus on getting her respect back.

Then, you need to focus on her feelings of

2. Attraction

[image: Attraction]

What is attraction?

Attraction (noun): A quality or feature about someone that evokes interest, liking or desire.

Without attraction, a woman will find it difficult to connect with her feelings of romantic love for you, so she will just try to move on with another guy who makes her feel attracted.

Where some guys mess up is by trying to make a woman feel attracted in all the wrong ways.

For example: A guy might try to get his ex to feel attracted by

- Wearing better clothes, losing or gaining some weight or getting a new hairstyle.

When some guys discover that they need to re-spark their ex woman's feelings of attraction, they immediately make the mistake of thinking about attraction in terms of the physical.

For example: He will start wearing better clothes (e.g. if he's a jeans and t-shirt kind of guy, he will begin wearing expensive designer clothes), get a new hairstyle and go to the gym in the hopes of losing some weight, or gaining some muscle.

He's hoping that when he bumps into his ex, she will be impressed by his new look and think, â€œWow! My ex has really changed. He's so hot now. I just love his new clothes/hairstyle/body. I'm so attracted and turned on by him now. I wonder if we can get back together again? I want him!â€

Yet, even though a woman might appreciate that the guy has made some improvements to his physical appearance, it's not the main thing that women focus on.

When deciding whether or not to give her ex another chance, a woman looks for the changes to his way of thinking, conversation style and behavior.

If heâs still the same guy she broke up with (e.g. insecure, jealous, controlling, needy, wimpy), then sheâs not going to suddenly feel attracted to him just because heâs wearing nicer clothes, has a new hairstyle or bigger muscles.

So, if you are serious about making your ex want you back, you have to spark her feelings of attraction for you again in the ways that really matter to her.

In other words, donât waste a lot of time changing your physical appearance (unless itâs something that you want to do for yourself, not for her).

Instead, focus on saying and doing the types of things that are going to keep turning her feelings on for you (e.g. being confident and charismatic, making her laugh and smile when you interact with her, being emotionally masculine and making her feel feminine and girly in your presence).

When you do that, she feels drawn to you again.

From there, you can build on that spark of attraction by showing her that you really are a different man now.

That is the best, quickest way to make your ex begin wanting you back for real.

Another mistake that guys will often make in their attempts to re-attract an ex isâ|

- Lying or bragging about having other women interested.

For example: He might say to her, âIâm having such a great time being single. Iâve been on quite a few dates since we broke up.â

Heâs secretly hoping that the idea of him moving on with another woman will shock her into realizing what a catch he is, which will then trigger her feelings of sexual attraction for him.

Yet, lying or bragging about having other women interested in you rarely works if she currently perceives you in a negative way (e.g. she still thinks you're insecure, she can see that you don't even know what she wants you to change to make her feel attracted, she senses that you're secretly trying to get her back to make yourself feel better).

Rather than suddenly wanting you back because she feels jealous, a turned off ex will think something like, “Good for you. I don't care. Iâm glad youâre moving on. That's better than you bugging me and trying to get me back when I'm not even attracted to you.â

She then focuses on finding a replacement guy to protect herself from potentially starting to miss her ex and feel jealous that he is moving on faster than her.

In some cases, this leads her to having sex with a guy, enjoying it and finding yet another reason why she doesn't want her ex back.

By the wayâ|

If your ex finds out that youâre actually lying to her about having other women interested just to make her jealous, it will only make her lose more respect and attraction for you and then getting her back becomes a lot more challenging.

In some cases, a woman might even try to get revenge on you by hooking up with another guy and then telling you all about how great he is the next time you interact with her.

She wants you to know that two can play at that game and women (in most cases) can get laid way easier than men can.

So, don't waste time trying to trick your ex back.

Instead, focus on becoming more emotionally attractive to her (e.g. be more confident, charismatic, make her laugh and smile when talking to you, especially if she is being bitchy and cold).

When you do that, she will begin associating good emotions (e.g. happiness, excitement, anticipation) with you and naturally begin to open up to the idea of getting back with you.

Another ex back attraction mistake is

- Texting her in what he thinks is a cool way to hopefully impress her.

Where some guys go wrong is by thinking that they can make an ex woman want to get back together again just via text.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because she felt he was too timid in the relationship, he might text something like, "Hey pretty lady, I was thinking about you and I thought I'd make your day by saying hi."

He's hoping she'll think, "Wow, my ex has really changed. He sounds so cool and confident now. He is just so sexy. I need to see him again right away!"

Yet, in most cases, because a woman can't see a guy's body language, or gauge his state of mind, she will usually be rolling her eyes and thinking, "Oh boy! That sounds so cheesy! Does he really think I'm going to believe that he's confident now just because he's being Mr. Cool via text? It's easy to hide behind text messages, but I bet if he were looking me in the eyes, he would be the same old insecure, timid guy that I broke up with. I can't believe he thinks that a crappy little text is going to impress me and make me want him back. Lame."

Based on all of my years of experience helping men to get women back, I can confidently say that texting should only be used as a stepping stone to get your ex on a phone call with you.

On the phone call, you can then actively trigger her feelings of attraction by making her smile, laugh and feel good to be talking to you again.

When you do that, her guard comes down and you can then get her to meet up with you in person.

When she experiences the new you in person for herself, she begins to see you with different eyes and her attraction for you naturally and automatically reawakens.

On the other hand, if you try to impress her by hiding behind text messages, she will probably keep reminding herself of all the reasons she broke up with you.

For example: You weren't ballsy enough, you were too insecure and needy, you didn't have a plan for your life that you were following through on passionately, you ended up treating her badly in the end and so on.

If she's only getting texts from you, she will almost always assume that you're just putting on an act to impress her.

As a result, she will lose even more attraction for you and feel good about her decision to leave you.

3. Love

[image: Love]

What is love?

Love (noun): An intense feeling of deep affection.

Love (verb): To feel a deep romantic or sexual attachment to someone.

When a woman breaks up with a guy, itâ€™s usually because she has gradually disconnected from her feelings of love for him.

She might even say something like, â€œI just donâ€™t love you anymore,â€ or â€œMy feelings for you have changed. I donâ€™t feel the same way anymore.â€

What that really means is, “I have disconnected myself from the love that I once felt for you. It has been replaced by more negative emotions like disappointment, regret, disgust or apathy.”

Getting the Love Back

What she probably doesnâ€™t even know herself is that her love for him is still alive, but it has simply been pushing into the background and covered over by negative emotions.

To get her love back, you need to get rid of those negative emotions by getting her respect back and then making her feel attracted to you again.

When you do that, she naturally reconnects with the love.

Yet, most guys donâ€™t know about that.

So, a guy might try to get his ex woman to love him again byâ€

- Explaining how much she means to him.

[image: You mean everything to me! Why don't you feel the same way?]

If a woman doesnâ€™t have feelings for her ex, him saying, â€œI want you to know that I am still in love with you and I want us to be together again. You mean the world to me and my life is empty and meaningless without you. All I care about is you. You mean everything to me,â€ isnâ€™t going to make that much of a difference to her.

Essentially, if a woman has lost respect and attraction for a guy, it wonâ€™t matter to her that he still cares about her.

She might feel a little bit sentimental about what they once had together and she may feel a bit sad for him, but that isnâ€™t going to make her want him back.

Why?

A woman doesnâ€™t want to be with a guy because she feels sorry for him.

She wants to be with him because he makes her feel respect, sexual attraction and love.

So, if you want to make your ex begin wanting you back, donâ€™t bother telling her how you feel.

If she doesnâ€™t love you right now, she wonâ€™t really care about how you feel.

Instead, just focus on making her feel the way she wants to feel (i.e. respectful of you, attracted and in love).

When you do that, she will then be happy to hear that you still care about her.

However, if you try to get her back without sparking her feelings for you first, she will just keep pushing you away by saying things like, â€œI want you to stop texting and calling me. Itâ€™s really over between us. Please accept it and move on.â€

Another way that guys mistakenly try to get their ex woman to love them again isâ€

- Explaining to her how difficult it is to find the kind of love that they have experienced together.

Telling a woman that the love youâ€™ve shared together is one of a kind and she will never be able to feel that way again with anyone else is pointless if sheâ€™s lost touch with her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

In fact, reminding her of how good things used to be and how deep your love used to be, will only highlight to her how bad things are now.

Rather than make her think, â€œHeâ€™s right! What we had together was really special! No matter what else went wrong between us, at least I know her really loves me. I shouldnâ€™t rush into breaking up with him like this. Maybe I should give him another chance,â€ she will likely be thinking, â€œYes, we did love each other very much before, but thatâ€™s not enough. Love has to be nurtured and grown over time, not taken for granted and ruined over time. He just expects me to love him regardless of all the things heâ€™s done in the meantime to kill that love inside of me. It might be difficult to find another guy who loves me like he does, but Iâ€™m not willing to settle for a relationship with a guy who doesnâ€™t make me feel the way I want to feel just because he loves me, or because our love used to be great once.â€

So, don't waste time trying to get her to realize how great the love and relationship used to be.

Just make her feel attracted to the man that you are now.

Remember: How you make her feel right now and from now on is what really counts, not how you used to make her feel in the past.

Another mistake that guys make isâ€

- Telling her that he will wait for her to change her mind.

If a woman is saying things like, â€œLeave me alone. Itâ€™s really over between us,â€ a guy might try to convince her to change her mind by saying something like, â€œLook, I know that right now you feel as though you canâ€™t love me anymore, but donâ€™t rush into making a decision. Let's just take some time apart to think things through. I will wait for you no matter how long it takes. Just promise me you will think about it. I know that we can make things work between us. I am willing to wait as long as it takes.â€

He might then give her weeks and even months of space in the hopes that the time apart will make her realize how much she still loves him.

Yet, in most cases this simply doesnâ€™t work.

Why?

When a woman has lost respect, attraction and love for a guy, not hearing from him for a long time actually helps her get over him even faster.

While heâs being a good guy and waiting in the wings for her to come back, she is using the time apart to get over the pain of the break up and possibly even find a replacement guy.

Then, when he contacts her after a long time, rather than her saying, *âIâm so glad you gave me the time apart. Iâve had a chance to think things through and I now see that you and I were meant to be together. Letâs get back together! Yayy!*â she will likely say something like, *âIâm sorry. Itâs too late. Iâve already moved on. Iâm seeing someone else now.*â

Although itâs totally fine to give a woman a few days of space after a break up to allow things to calm down between you and her, anything longer than 3 to 7 days usually causes more harm than good.

So, donât wait around at home hoping that your ex will suddenly realize her mistake and begin wanting you back.

It usually doesnât happen that way.

If you want to make your ex begin wanting you back, you need to trigger the powerful emotions of respect, attraction and love inside of her.

She then naturally drops her guard and the idea of getting back with you begins to sound good to her.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Should You Show Your Ex That You Still Care About Her, or Act Like You Are Over Her?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Yes, show her that you care, but not in a needy way.

Showing her that you care in a needy way means continually talking about your feelings and how things are affecting you.

The way to show her that you care is to actually change the things that were turning her off about you, so she feels better about who you are now.

For example: Some of the things a woman might want her guy to change are that:

- He doesn't make her feel girly and feminine. She feels like more of a neutral friend or worse, like she is more of "the man" in the relationship.
- He expects her to lead and decide most things while he just relaxes and takes her for granted.
- She can't trust in him to follow through on his big goals and ambitions in life because he's always wasting time on other things (e.g. video games, watching TV, browsing social media, hanging out with his buddies).
- He is too emotionally sensitive, which makes her feel like she needs to take care of him like a big sister or mother would for a boy.

Those are some examples of things that women really want a guy to change before she actually cares that he cares about her.

If he's not willing to change the things that really matter to her, then she sees his attempts to get her back as being all about getting what he wants.

So, the first step in getting her back is truly understanding what she needs you to change and then interacting with her on a phone call or in person, so she can start to pick up on those changes in you.

A woman doesn't even need you to explain to her that you've changed.

She just needs to talk to you on the phone or interact with you in person and she will pick up on it based on how you talk to her, behave and react to her.

Only when you've done that will she then care to hear about your feelings.

However, if all you want to do is tell her about your feelings, but you don't care enough about her and the relationship to change, then she's not going to care about your feelings.

Okay, let's assume that you know what you need to change and have already changed it.

Now, you can get onto telling her that you still care about her.

For example: Say something like, *â"¢I love you and do want you back in my life, but I accept that you don't want that. So, I will let you go as a girlfriend. Maybe we can just be friends from now on. How does that sound?*â"¢

Most women will agree, but if you have really changed and are now making her feel respect and attraction for you, she will want to be more than just your friend.

However, if you don't make any changes after telling her that you still love her accepting the break up, she's almost certainly not going to come running back to you (only about 20% of women do. The remaining 80% move on).

In 80% of the ex back cases that I've helped clients through, I've found that if a guy doesn't actively make an effort to re-spark a woman's feelings of respect and sexual attraction for him, she will just keep him around as a friend while she dates other guys, or she will simply cut off contact and move on.

So, don't let that happen to you.

If you still care about your ex, then tell her that.

Don't hide it from her.

However, you must remember: She is only going to care that you care if you actually do understand what she wants you to change and then let her experience the changes for herself.

If you have changed things about yourself that really aren't important to her (e.g. she wants you to be more manly, but you've become even nicer in the hope that it impresses her), then she's not going to care that you care.

Getting Caught Out in a Lie

[image: Getting caught out in a lie]

Sometimes, a guy might think to himself, "It's probably better if I act like I'm over my ex, so it hurts her. She will then realize that I'm a cool, valuable guy and she will feel like she has to get me back."

He may then start ignoring his ex and hope that she comes running back.

Yet, that doesn't work in approximately 80% of ex back cases.

Watch this video to understand why!

Alternatively, he might try to act like he is over her when she says something like that herself.

For example: If she says, "I'm over you. I don't have feelings for you anymore. I'm glad that we're broken up," he might reply with something along the lines of, "Yeah, I agree. What we had was cool while it lasted but it's over now. I'm glad to see we both feel the same way. Well, anyway. Good luck. I wish you the best of luck for the future."

Secretly he's hoping that she will think, "Damn! That's not really how I feel. I was just putting on a brave face to act cool. I still love him. Maybe I should give him another chance" and she then texts him to ask to catch up in person or talk on the phone.

Of course, it can work like that sometimes, but it's very rare that a man will arrive at my site looking for help to get an ex woman like that back.

Almost all the men that I help to get their woman back are dealing with a woman who no longer has feelings for them and doesn't want anything to do with them anymore.

So, he has to actively make her have feelings for him again.

Watch this video for more info!

When your ex has feelings for you again, the ex back process is much smoother and easier.

However, acting like you're over your ex as a way of tricking her back into a relationship rarely (if ever) works because she can easily catch you out in that lie.

For example: Here are some of the ways she can do find out that you're just acting to be over her, rather than really being over her...

When a guy tells a woman that he's over her, she might respond by saying something like, â€œOh. Iâ€™m sorry to hear that. I know that I previously said that I didn't have feelings for you, but I was just checking to see if you still had feelings for me. Well, I guess I've lost you then. I won't be bothering you again from now on, so have a good life. Good bye.â€

[image: Getting caught out in a lie]

If he then hastily tries to stop her and says something like, â€œNo! No! I didn't really mean it. I really do still care for you. This is great! We both still have feelings for each other. We can get back together now,â€ she will know he was lying to her by acting like he was over her when he really wasn't.

Another example is when a woman asks her ex to do favors for her (e.g. she might ask him to help her with homework, pay her rent, help her paint her house, take her car to a mechanic to be fixed).

When he helps her, she flirts with him a little (e.g. hugs him, looks at him as though she finds him attractive, brings up their private jokes, gives him a kiss on the cheek) to see if he becomes excited and feels like he has a chance with her.

If he falls for it and starts running around her like a puppy dog catering to her every whim, she will be able to see that he does still care about her and has only been acting like he is over her to get her back.

Another way a woman can find out if her ex is lying to her about being over her, is by saying things like, â€œIâ€™m so glad you don't have feelings for me anymore. Iâ€™ve been asked out on dates many times by several guys that I know, but Iâ€™ve always said no because I thought we could maybe get back together again. Now that I know for sure there's no chance of that happening, I feel good about dating again and I will say yes to them.â€

If he reacts by getting upset, jealous or angry, she will have the proof she needs that he's been lying to her and was only acting like he was over her.

Here's the thing!

When a woman catches a guy out in a lie like that, she usually won't be thinking, â€œOh, it's okay, he was only lying to me because he still cares about me and just doesn't know how to tell me.â€

Instead, she will lose respect and attraction for him and will feel annoyed, or even angry with him for trying to trick her.

This is why lying to your ex about your feelings is not a good idea.

A much easier way to get her back for real is by reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction for you, by interacting with her (e.g. over the phone and in person) and behaving in ways that are attractive to her (e.g. being confident and charismatic, making her feel feminine and girly in your presence, making her laugh and smile).

That's what works.

When you are not afraid to interact with her and make her have feelings for you again, not only does she drop her guard and open up to the idea of getting back together, but she also feels impressed with you for having the balls to be honest around her and go after what you really want (i.e. to get her back).

Getting Her Back For Real

Here's the thing..

You can waste a lot of precious time acting like you are over her and hoping that it will make her want you back.

Yet, the reality is that when a woman doesn't feel respect and attraction for a guy, him moving on and being over her is actually a good thing for her.

She doesn't really and actually feels relieved about not having to go through a long, drawn out, messy break up with him.

In a case where a woman still has some feelings for her ex and is waiting for him to make a move, she will be disappointed with him for getting over her so quickly.

She will think something like, "I can't believe how quickly my ex got over me. Well, I obviously didn't mean much to him at all, so I'm not going to bother feeling sad and depressed about our failed relationship anymore. I'm going to find myself another man and get on with my life. I'll show him."

That's not what you want her to be thinking.

Instead, you want her to change her mind about being broken up and just get back together with you to give the relationship another shot.

The fastest way to do that is by actively making her have feelings of respect and attraction for you again, rather than acting like you are over her when you're really not.

When you interact with her and she can see and experience the changes in you (e.g. you are now more confident and self assured, you make her laugh and smile, you're more driven and focused in life), she will instinctively feel drawn to you again.

You don't have to put on an act around her to make her change her mind.

You simply need to show her the man that you have become since the breakup (i.e. you've learned from your past mistakes and have moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you) and let her reveal her feelings for you instead.

Here's how you can do that!

1. Call Her and Get Her Laughing, Smiling and Feeling Good to Be Interacting With You Again. Then, Get Her to Meet Up With You

Rather than acting like you're over your ex and hoping that it causes her to have feelings for you and come running back, focus instead on actually making her have real, strong feelings for you again by interacting with her.

One of the quickest ways to melt a woman's resistance and make her begin to have feelings for you again is by making her smile and laugh when she's talking to you.

Laughter takes off the edge off being broken up and stops you and her acting like strangers.

It also stops her from focusing on the past and thinking things like, "My ex really stuffed up. He hurt me so badly, or Our relationship was a disaster.

When she's smiling and laughing while talking to you, she will instead think something like, This is nice. I'm actually enjoying myself talking to him. I feel like we could actually do this again and I would enjoy it.

She then becomes open to getting back together with you for real.

So, get her on a phone call with you right away.

By the way!

You can't do all this via text messages (most guys try to and it doesn't work).

You need to get her on a phone call where she can hear the tonality of your voice and get a sense of your confidence and emotional strength.

Only use text to break the ice and then get her on a phone call with you.

When talking on the phone, make sure to keep the conversation light and easy-going and keep clear of heavy discussions about the relationship, or about how she feels that you stuffed up.

Here's an example of how to make her laugh and open her up to the idea of meeting you for a catch up!

After the initial Hello, how are you? you can then ask her, So what have you been up to lately?

She will likely reply with something like, Oh not much, how about you? or, I've been busy with studies/work. What have you been doing?

You can then say in a joking way, Nothing. I've literally been sitting by the phone waiting for you to call. I've grown a long beard. It goes all the way down to my lap.

She will most likely laugh and you can then say, "Just kidding. I've been..." and then quickly tell her what you've been up to in a sentence or two.

She will feel attracted to the fact that you have the confidence to joke around with her like that.

She will also realize that you haven't been sitting around waiting for her call and are happily enjoying your life without her, which will make her feel respect and attraction for you.

When that happens, she stops focusing on the things about the past version of you that she didn't like, and starts focusing on all the things about the new version of you that she does like.

When that happens, her guard comes down and she becomes open to meeting up with you to see what happens.

You can say something like, Anyway, let's have some coffee together just as friends. It wouldn't be about us getting back together just a coffee to say hi to each other."

If she says, "No, I don't think we should," just be relaxed and easy going when you say something like, "Hey, look – if you don't want to talk to me again after that, I will be cool with that and we can part ways as friends. It will just be a coffee and that's it and it can be the last time we ever catch up in person if you want. So, what do you say? Are you in for a coffee tomorrow or the next day?"

She will likely say Yes, to that and you can then go ahead and arrange a suitable day and time.

2. Show Her the Way Back to Real Love With You

[image: Show her the way back to real love with you]

When you meet up with her, don't rush into telling her that you still care about her (e.g. by telling her directly, by being on your best behavior, paying for everything).

If you do, you stand the risk of destroying all the good feelings you have created inside her up to this point.

Instead, just continue saying and doing the types of things that will build on her initial feelings of respect and attraction for you (e.g. being confident, charming and charismatic, making her laugh, making her feel feminine and girly).

That way, it's about her feelings rather than yours, so she doesn't see you as being selfish and only wanting her back to make yourself feel better.

If you focus on how you're making her feel (e.g. attracted, happy) rather than how you feel (e.g. that you want her back), things will naturally begin to change.

She will begin to look at you differently and might even be the one says it first by saying, "I still care about you. Do you think we can get back together again?"

That's what you want.

Make her want to get back with you because she now has strong feelings for you.

That is what works for real.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Does Your Ex Think That You Are Too Emotionally Immature For Her?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex is saying that you are too emotionally immature for her, it could be that you've been making one or more of the following mistakes.

Here are 5 examples of immaturity in a guy that cause a woman to feel turned off in a relationship and want out:

1. Lacking Purpose in Life

[image: Woman angry at her man for wasting his life playing video games]

One of the main things that women find attractive in a man is his ability to be loving, attentive and caring towards her, while at the same time having a very clear purpose and direction in his life that is separate from his relationship with her.

Knowing that a guy has an important purpose in life that he's working towards (e.g. to become something, make something, achieve something) makes a woman feel deep and ongoing respect for him as a man.

She thinks something like, "This guy is a keeper. Not only is he loving, supportive and caring, but he is also someone that I can look up to and feel proud to introduce him to my family and friends. I know that if I stick with him, he should be able to take care of both of us in the future. It's highly likely that we will have a good life together, so I'm going to stick with him and support him."

Now, compare that to a guy who remains stuck in a dead-end job for years and years, possibly lives at home with his parents, has no big goals or ambitions in life and spends most of his time hanging around his woman just "chillin' out."

He may justify his actions by thinking, "I've got everything I could possibly want and need. I don't have an important job to impress my woman because she loves me for who I am, not for what I do. That's why I don't care about anything else other than being with her and showing her how much she means to me. She is everything to me. I don't care about my place in the world or achieving things. I just want to be with her. She is what makes me happy."

Yet, although a woman wants to be loved and appreciated and likes the idea of being with a guy who is fully devoted to her, she doesn't want to be his reason for living.

Some guys mistakenly think that a woman will be flattered if he doesn't have anything else going on in his life other than her.

Yet, rather than make her happy, she sees his lack of purpose as a sign that he's insecure, emotionally immature and hasn't yet grown up and become a real man.

She might then begin to wonder, "What is he hiding from? Why isn't he doing anything with his life? Is he going to hide behind me and this relationship forever? Will I have to be the strong one always? Will I have to make us feel safe by focusing hard on my career and ensuring that we will okay in the future? He certainly seems to not really care about that and is just focused on me. That's so immature and she begins to lose respect for him as a man.

Here's the thing:

If a woman doesn't respect her man, she will find it difficult to feel attracted to him and if she's not attracted to him, she will start doubting her love for him as well.

Of course, there are women who like the idea of being with a lost guy who has no purpose in his life other than being devoted to her, but the majority of women aren't like that.

Most women like to be in a balanced relationship with a man who is 100% loving, caring and devoted to her, while at the same time 100% focused on his big purpose in life and is always making progress as he works towards achieving it.

She can then look up to him, respect him, feel sexually attracted to him and love him because he is a man who isn't afraid to rise up and reach for his true potential.

He is a man who is brave, courageous and emotionally strong, which then allows her to feel like a vulnerable, sensitive, emotional woman.

and that's heaven for a woman.

Women yearn to be with a man who allows them to truly be a woman (e.g. feminine, girly, emotional) because he is so emotionally strong, mature and focused.

It's the perfect relationship dynamic for a man and a woman because it naturally deepens your feelings of respect, sexual attraction and love for each other over time.

In other words, the spark doesn't die out.

You are always attracted to each other, respectful of each other and totally in love.

On the other hand, if a woman can't look up to and respect her guy because he's too emotionally immature to do anything important in his life, she will find it difficult to respect him and her feelings of sexual attraction and love will begin to fade over time.

So, if your ex has been saying something like, "You are too emotionally immature for me. You need to grow up" and you want to show her that you've changed, how can you do that?

Start by finding out what you really want to do with your life and then begin taking steps to make those goals a reality.

This should be a goal that spans out longer than 10 years from now.

You should try to imagine 20-40 years into the future and think about what you really want to do and how you really want your life to turn out.

Get really clear on it and then start making progress towards it immediately.

Obviously, you won't achieve the big, long term goal immediately, but what's important is that you start making progress towards it.

By doing that, not only will you spark your ex's feelings of respect and attraction for you, but you will also become a better man for yourself.

Another sign of immaturity in a guy is

2. Being Too Emotionally Sensitive

[image: Being too emotionally sensitive]

For example: A guy might feel as though he got lucky when he picked up his girlfriend and as a result he eventually becomes clingy, needy and insecure around her.

He might need her to regularly reassure him of her love by asking things like, “You wouldn’t break up with me, would you? You know that I couldn’t live without you, right?” or “Do you still love me? Are you still glad you agreed to go out with me?” or “Do you ever regret being my girlfriend? Do you ever wonder if you could find another guy that is better than me?” or “Would you ever cheat on me? I would be destroyed if you did. Can you promise me that you will never do that to me? I’m very fragile emotionally. I don’t think I could handle something like that happening to me.”

Initially, most women will respond by being loving and saying things like, “Of course I love you!” or “I would never look at another guy. I’m with you because I want to be with you. Don’t worry about it.”

However, over time, she will get very tired of always having to reassure him and take care of him emotionally.

The more she has to do that, the less respect and attraction she feels for him as a man.

Here’s what you need to remember!

It’s a man’s emotional strength that attracts a woman and allows her to relax and be the girly, feminine woman that she really wants to be in a relationship (even though most women don’t openly admit that).

If her guy is always falling to pieces around her and being emotionally weak and insecure, she won’t be able to feel safe and protected in the relationship with him.

She won’t be able to look up to him as her emotionally strong, courageous man and instead will look at him as a guy that she needs to take care of and protect.

Women hate that.

The thing is, even though a modern woman is perfectly capable of taking care of herself financially, she still wants to be able to look to her man for emotional strength and support.

If he can’t be the emotionally strong man that she needs him to be and instead needs her to support him emotionally, she just won’t be able to respect him.

As a result, her feelings of attraction and love will fade away and she will want to get out of the relationship and away from the guy who is leaning on her emotionally.

So, if your ex currently thinks you are too emotionally immature for her, what you need to do is re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you again by showing her (via the way that you now talk, think and behave) that you are an emotionally strong man that she can look up to and respect.

Let her see that you have changed and she will begin to believe that you are no longer the same guy she dumped.

When she can see for herself that you’re no longer at the same level you were at when she broke up with you (i.e. emotionally sensitive and insecure), it becomes more difficult for her to keep pushing you away, because youâ€™re not the guy that she remembers.

You are different now.

You are emotionally strong and mature.

You really have changed and it now feels so much better for her to interact with you because she can respect and attraction, rather than feeling annoyed and turned off.

Another sign of immaturity in a guy isâ€¦|

3. Not Following Through on Promises

[image: Not following through on his promises]

The love between a man and a woman is something that needs to be taken care of, so that it can grow and deepen over time.

Yet, when a guy gets into the habit of breaking his promises to his woman, it will inevitably lead to her losing respect for him and she may even start to change herself and become a completely different person that she used to be.

For example: When a guy doesnâ€™t follow through on his promises, a woman might find herself feeling angry all the time, sulking, nagging or throwing tantrums.

She may then say to herself, â€œWhatâ€™s going on here? I donâ€™t like who I have become in this relationship. I used to be so calm, relaxed and happy, but now all I seem to do is sulk and complain. I donâ€™t want to be that person anymore. He is emotionally immature and is bringing me down to his level of thinking, which is driving me crazy. I need to get away from him,â€ and she will then break up with him.

Hereâ€™s the thingâ€¦|

Itâ€™s fine for a guy to break his word once or twice (e.g. he promises to go with her to her sisterâ€™s wedding, but has to cancel at the last minute because something important came up at work, or he forgets to call her when he says he will).

Itâ€™s not the end of the world and even though a woman might feel a little bit upset or annoyed about it, it wonâ€™t matter to her that much in the long term, as long as she sees that he will try to avoid doing that to her again in future.

However, when a guy breaks his word frequently about important things (e.g. constantly promising to get a job, starting projects and never finishing them, treating her badly and promising to change but never changing) she will start to lose respect and attraction for him and eventually break up with him.

Another sign of immaturity in a guy isâ€¦|

4. Still Wanting to Think, Act and Behave Like a Boy or Teenager

[image: Still wanting to behave like a boy or teenager]

Sometimes, a guy likes the idea of going through life without any responsibilities as though he is still a young boy or a teenager.

For example: A guy might spend most of his time playing video games and ignoring all other areas of his life.

His woman might then say to him, “Why don’t you stop playing games and think about what you want to do with your life,” but he doesn’t seem to care.

He got her into a relationship, she enjoys the sex and they’ve had plenty of good times, so he just expect her to put up with it now that she’s his girl.

Yet, while he is being lazy and not making any progress in life, he doesn’t realize that his woman is gradually losing all of her respect and attraction for him.

Why? Mainly because he’s not achieving anything, which makes her feel unsafe about the future. Women have a natural instinct to make sure that they are going to be able to provide for offspring if they happen to get pregnant.

This applies is a woman hates children or doesn’t even want children. The instinct is still there.

So, when her guy is just sitting around with no big dreams or goals in life other than getting past the next level of the game, she starts to feel unsafe.

Here’s what you need to know...

A man is supposed to rise through the levels of life, reach for his true potential and go after his true purpose in life without fear.

If he doesn’t do that and just lives his life like a boy would, his woman simply cannot look up to him and respect him.

Without respect, she doesn’t feel attraction and without attraction, the love begins to fade.

Of course, there’s nothing wrong with playing video games (I play them at times), but making progress in life has to come first, she has to come second and everything else is up to you after that.

Women don’t go around explaining that to guys, but it’s what they want.

They don’t want a guy who focuses all of his attention on her, or focuses all of his attention on wasting time (e.g. playing video games).

They want a man who is making progress in life as his main priority and then giving her love and attention as his second priority.

I know that it might sound bad or politically incorrect to say that, but just think about the couples you’ve seen where the woman is mighty proud of her man and totally in love with him.

He will have a strong purpose in life and be pursuing that as his main priority, while she hugs into his arm, looks at him with loving eyes and feels safe and happy that she has a man who isn’t afraid to reach for his true potential.

In the media, women will say that they want a man who puts them first, but you always have to remember that women usually SAY one thing and DO a completely different thing altogether.

Watch this for some examples!

So, if you want to do boyish things, you can, but just make that your main priority is making progress in life like a man.

Women will often say that you should play video games or do boyish things, but you don’t have to listen to them.

Women usually say one thing and happily accept a completely different thing altogether.

Okay, the final sign of immaturity in a guy isâ□!

5. Needing Her to Mother Him

[image: Needing her to mother him]

For example: He might expect his woman to pick up after him, make all the decisions and take care of him the way his mother used to do when he was a boy.

Yet, a woman doesnâ□t want to be a manâ□s mother.

If she has to take on that role, she will feel like she is the more dominant one in the relationship and then wonâ□t be able to respect him and look up to him.

When that happens, she will lose interest in sex and start finding other guys attractive, which will lead to her cheating on him or breaking up with him.

In most cases, a woman hates it when she has to take on the role of mothering her guy because it means that she just canâ□t relax and be a real woman (i.e. girly, feminine, emotional) around him.

Instead, she has to be the strong one, which once again, ruins her desire for sex and makes her want to cheat or break up with her guy.

The thing is, she might accept an immature guy in the beginning of the relationship because she is enjoying the lust and sex, but after the novelty of being with someone new wears off, she will realize that she made a mistake and then want to get out of the relationship.

Almost all women want a man who is more emotionally mature than they are.

When a man is more emotionally mature than a woman in the way that he thinks, feels, behaves and takes action in life, it allows her to relax into thinking, feeling and behaving like a feminine woman around him.

She can then look up to him and respect him as her man.

Of course, some unattractive women do like to keep an immature guy under their control by constantly threatening of a breaking up with him.

Unattractive women do that because they are afraid that he will gain too much power in the relationship, realize that he can do better than her and then leave if he isn't living in fear.

So, she will continually threaten to break up with him if he doesn't do this or that for her.

He obeys because he knows that it will be difficult for him to find a beautiful woman who would accept his immaturity, so he just puts up with it.

Hereâ□s the thing thoughâ□!

Most women know that they can easily find a replacement guy, so they wonâ□t stick around for very long with an emotionally immature guy, unless he changes his ways fast.

Donâ□t Tell Her That You've Changed. Show Her

What you do now, is much more important than what you say you will do.

If you want to show your ex that youâ□re no longer emotionally immature, you need to do that when you're talking to her on the phone or in person, not via text.

She has to be able to experience you while talking to you, not texting with you.

When you're talking to her on the phone or in person, she will be able to sense that you're now so much more confident and emotionally mature than before.

Don't worry, a woman can pick up the changes in a guy without him having to explain that he has changed.

It comes through in how you talk to her, what you say and how you react to what she says.

So, don't worry about trying to prove to your ex that you've changed by telling her all about how you've become a more mature man since the break up.

Just be the new, improved, more mature version of yourself when you talk to her and she will pick up on it.

When she sees for herself that you really are emotionally strong, confident and mature now, something really cool happens!

She can't stop herself from feeling drawn to you again.

You are so much more interesting now.

You have transformed so quickly and you are way more attractive to her now, so the idea of getting back with you is very appealing.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Should You Play Mind Games With Your Ex to Get Her Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

It depends what you mean by mind games.

To get an ex back, you sometimes do need to make her feel jealous by showing her that you're living a fun life without her and maybe even dating another woman.

However, in many cases, you don't even need to go to that extreme because you can get her back by reactivating her feelings for you by letting her experience the new and improved version of you on a phone call or in person.

All it usually takes is a spark of respect and attraction for the new you and a woman will drop her guard slightly.

She will then become open to meeting up with you in person, hugging you and even kissing you again.

When that happens, it obviously leads to sex and when that happens, you and her will be back together if you play your cards right from then on.

However, apart from making her feel jealous, you should be careful with playing mind games becauseâ€¦!

Playing Mind Games With a Woman Can Quickly Backfire

[image: Playing mind games with an ex can backfire]

Sometimes, a guy will try what he thinks is everything (e.g. begging, pleading, promising to change) to get her back and when that doesn't work, he will think that the only answer must be to play mind games (e.g. not contacting her, lying about being with other women) to try and â€œtrickâ€œ her back into a relationship with him.

Yet, if she realizes what he is up to, she just loses even more respect and attraction for him and then it becomes more difficult for him to actually get her back.

Alternatively, on the slim chance that a guy actually gets his ex back by playing mind games with her, when she sees that he really hasn't changed, she just breaks up with him again.

3 Common Mind Games That Many Guys Try to Use on Their Ex Woman

When all else fails, some guys will beginâ€¦!

1. Using the No Contact Rule

When a woman is saying things like, â€œJust accept it, it's over between us. I don't have feelings for you anymore and nothing that you say is going to convince me to change my mind,â€œ a guy might start feeling desperate.

He may then start to think, â€œWell, if she's saying that I can't convince her, then hanging *around her and trying to change her mind might cause her to get even more annoyed with me. Yet, if I cut off communication with her and ignore her for a long time, she will hopefully realize that she misses me. She will then contact me and we can then get back together again.*â€œ

He might then stop contacting his ex for 30, or even 60 days in the hopes that this will do the trick in getting her back.

Yet, that almost never works.

Hereâ€™s whyâ€¦

Using the No Contact Rule on a woman who doesn't have strong feelings for you is usually a waste of time.

*In most cases, rather than miss a guy who is ignoring her, a woman will think, â€œCool! Iâ€™m so happy my ex got the message and is now leaving me alone. I would hate to have to deal with a guy who doesnâ€™t know when over means over. At least now I can move on with my life and make a fresh start.*â€œ

Why does she react in that way?

Unless a woman still has feelings for her ex and is secretly hoping that they will get back together again, or she is having a difficult time finding herself a replacement guy, cutting off communication with her isnâ€™t going to matter to her that much.

He has strong feelings for her, but she broke it off with him and doesn't want to be with him anymore, so not contacting her just makes it easier for her to move on without him.

Of course, she may become curious about why he hasn't been contacting her and then contact him to check that he is still missing her, but that doesn't mean he gets her back.

She's just checking to see if she is still in the power position and if she is, it reminds her that she made the right decision to break up with him.

Although women don't go around admitting it in public, they actually want to be in a relationship with a man who is in the power position.

A man who takes and maintains the power position by being a masculine man who faces life (and her) head on, rather than hiding behind cheap tricks (like the NC rule) or expecting her to lead the way and be the strong one.

Women won't want to be in the power position and feel like they have to take care of their guy emotionally.

So, if she finds out that he's been ignoring her to trick her into missing him, she will realize that he lacks the balls required to actually get a woman back by going through a natural, ex back process.

What is that process?

Watch thisâ€¦

Here's what you need to rememberâ€¦

If a woman is beautiful, or even just attractive, she will be more than capable of finding herself another guy who wants to have a relationship with her.

All she has to do is say, "Yes" to the guys at work (or university) who would love to date her and have sex with her.

Alternatively, she just needs to get on an online dating site or use a dating app and she will have 100s of guys overnight who are eagerly lining up to meet her for a date.

It's easy for women to get laid because a man's initial attraction for a woman is mostly based on her looks and pretty much every guy is willing to have sex with a woman to see how things go after that.

He doesn't care what her interests are, what fashion she wears or even what her name is.

He just wants to stick it in and see if a relationship happens after that.

So, if you want to give your ex some time apart as a cooling off period, one week is enough.

Anything longer than that is usually too much and can potentially lead to herâ€¦

- Getting over the pain of losing you and realizing that sheâ€¦s actually fine without you.
- Believing that you donâ€¦t care about her anymore.
- Feeling attracted to other guys (and liking it).
- Moving on with another guy.
- Getting annoyed that you didn't have the balls to get her back and make the relationship better this time around.

So, rather than ignoring her and hoping that it messes with her head and makes her come running back to you, itâ€¦s usually better to just call her and actively make her have feelings for you again.

Let her experience the new you and like you again, rather than leaving her to focus on how you behaved near the end of the relationship and shortly after the break up.

You donâ€¦t want her to think like that about you.

If you want her back for real, you need to actively replace her negative thoughts and memories about you (e.g. anger, resentment, indifference), with new, positive feelings (e.g. respect, attraction, joy).

â€¦and you canâ€¦t do that if youâ€¦re not talking to her.

Another mind game that some guys like to try and play on their ex woman isâ€¦

2. Lying about being with other women when he really doesnâ€¦t have any other options

Sometimes, a guy might say to himself, *â€¦If my ex thinks that Iâ€¦ve found myself a new woman, she might get jealous and come running back to me. Iâ€¦m going to tell her that Iâ€¦ve been dating other women (even though I havenâ€¦t) and I will see what happens. Hopefully she freaks out, cries and says that she wants me back.*â€¦

Yet, here's the thingâ€¦

When a woman doesnâ€¦t have strong feelings for her ex (or if she is turned off by him), finding out that heâ€¦s seeing other women wonâ€¦t really matter to her at all.

In fact, she will usually feel relieved that his attention is focused somewhere else and not on her anymore.

Then, she will move on as quickly as she can to prevent him from trying to hurt her by telling her that he's with another woman now.

Additionally, even if a woman initially feels a twinge of jealousy and it hurts her a little, when she stops to remember all the reasons why she broke up with him in the first place, she will usually realize that she's not jealous at all.

In cases where a woman still has strong feelings for her ex, finding out that heâs seeing other women might cause her to feel anxious about losing him forever and she may consider giving him another chance on the spot.

[image: Playing mind games with an ex can quickly backfire]

However, if she finds out that he is playing mind games with her and is only lying about having another woman, she will dump him again and not want anything to do with him.

If she sticks with him, she will secretly find a new man to replace him with and then break the news to him by saying something like, "I have something to tell you. I've met someone else. You and I are finished now."

Note: Something to bear in mind is that women are not stupid!

If a guy lies to a woman about being with other women, all she has to do is test him to find out.

For example: A guy might be talking to his ex on the phone and she asks him, "So what have you been up to lately?"

To make her jealous, he says something like, "Oh, Iâve been pretty busy. Iâve been going on dates with a few women and Iâm kind of getting into the swing of being a single man again. Itâs actually quite fun."

She might then test him to see if heâs being honest by saying something along the lines of, "Oh, really? Thatâs a pity! I'm sad to hear that! I was kind of hoping we could meet up for some coffee sometime and try to work things out between us. I guess Iâm too late then. Youâve already moved on. Oh well, good for you. I wonât be bothering you anymore."

If the guy then panics and says, "No! No! Wait. Itâs not like that. Iâm not serious about any other woman besides you. If you want to work things out, I want that too! Itâs what Iâve been hoping for all along," she will begin to wonder whether he was being honest with her, or if he was just playing mind games to try and get her back.

She will then likely close herself off from him even more (e.g. refuse to answer his text messages or calls) and she may then quickly find another guy to get revenge.

So, if you want to get your ex back, I recommend doing it without lying to her.

In that way, not only do you stand a much better chance of getting her back, but she will also respect you for doing it like a real man, rather than like a sneaky little boy who needs to lie to get his way in life.

Another mind game that guys will use on their ex isâ!

3. Saying that he no longer cares about her or the relationship when he really does

For example: She says something like, "You know itâs really over between us, donât you? Itâs fine talking on the phone sometimes, or when we bump into each other somewhere, but I donât want to get back together again. I just donât have feelings for you anymore."

He might then try to shock her into realizing that she still cares about him by responding with, "Hey, what makes you think I want to get back with you? What we had is in the past. Iâm over you now. Youâre really full of yourself if you think Iâm sitting around pining for you and hoping youâll take me back. Iâve already moved on with my life, so donât flatter yourself."

Yet, once again, when a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy, she's not going to feel worried that he doesn't care about her anymore.

In fact, she will likely be thinking, That's a relief. For a while there I thought he was trying to get me back. At least I know where we stand now. I'm going to say yes to that guy at work who wants to take me out.

Remember: If you still care about your ex and want her back, don't tell her that you don't.

There's no need to play games with her like that.

What you need to understand is that getting a woman back is easy if you reactivate her feelings by being attractive when you interact with her (e.g. being confident and charismatic, making her feel feminine and girly in contrast to your masculine vibe, making her laugh, smile and feel happy to be around you).

Even if a woman has feelings for a guy and falls for his trick of acting like he doesn't care, if she then gets back together with him and discovers that nothing about him has changed and that he's still at the same level he was at when she broke up with him (e.g. insecure, emotionally immature, lacking in drive and determination) she will usually just break up with him again.

The Solution: Be Real, Be a Man

[image: Get her back without playing games]

In most cases, playing mind games with your ex is a waste of time, doesn't really work and also makes you look insecure and immature.

If your ex picks up on the fact that you're trying to trick her back, she will lose even more respect and attraction for you and it will then become even more difficult to get her back.

So, if you want her back, it's always better to just be honest and emotionally courageous about it, rather than wasting time playing mind games.

When you take full responsibility for the ex back process by focusing on making your ex feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you when you interact with her (e.g. on the phone and in person), getting her back becomes easy.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

4 Things That Will Make Your Ex Feel Attracted to You Again When You See Her in Person

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Seeing your ex in person is a great opportunity for you to make her feel attracted to you again.

You can do this byâ€¦

1. Making Her Smile and Laugh, Especially When She is Being Cold or Distant

[image: Make her smile and laugh, especially when she is being cold]

Thereâ€™s a good reason that you often hear people saying, â€œLaughter is the best medicine.â€

When youâ€™re laughing and smiling, itâ€™s very difficult to be angry, annoyed or irritated at the same time.

So, when you interact with your ex and you make her smile and laugh, especially if sheâ€™s being cold and distant towards you, itâ€™s unlikely that she will be able to remain cold and bitchy towards you for very long.

No matter how determined she is to keep up a cold, unemotional front, all it usually takes is a small smile to crack her defenses and allow her to open herself up to seeing you differently.

[image: Show her that you have changed]

For example: If youâ€™re having coffee with your ex and she says something like, â€œI think this was a mistake. Weâ€™re broken up now, so seeing each other like this is a waste of time,â€ rather than feel upset about it, you can turn it around by making a joke in that moment to calm down the tension between you and her.

You can say something like, â€œI totally agree. I donâ€™t think we should be seeing each other like this eitherâ€

She will probably feel surprised that youâ€™re agreeing with her and maybe even a little shocked that youâ€™re not begging her to give you a chance.

Then, when youâ€™ve caught her off guard, you can continue by saying in a joking way, â€œI would much rather see us lying on a beach somewhere tropical, wearing a bikini â€¦ well youâ€™d be wearing the bikini of course, not me...Iâ€™ll be wearing swimming trunks, looking handsome and sipping on some cocktails. Thatâ€™s a much better way of seeing each other, donâ€™t you agree?â€ and then have a laugh with her about that.

Itâ€™s highly unlikely that she will be able to stop herself from smiling and laughing, even just a little bit.

When that happens to her, she then canâ€™t stop herself from feeling attracted to you again because her guard is down and she is open to experiencing the new you.

She begins to see you as you are now (e.g. confident, ballsy, masculine), rather than how she used to see you in the past (e.g. unsure of yourself, immature, insecure).

Another way to attract your ex when you see her again is by

2. Not Being So Serious About Everything

[image: Flirt with her and make her feel that spark with you again]

Although your main goal for meeting up with your ex might be to get her back immediately and part of that is to apologize to her for making some mistakes in the relationship, it can't be your main focus when you're interacting with her.

Sure, it's important to talk about your mistakes and apologize, but it's not good to allow the conversation between you and your ex to be so serious and only focus on those things.

For example: A guy might say to his ex, "I'm so glad that we're here together and can finally talk. I've been wanting to tell you how sorry I am for stuffing up" and go on to talk in detail about what he's learned about being a man since the break up.

He then might say, "Please consider giving us another chance. I really have learned a hard lesson from this break up and it has completely changed me. I know that I was a jerk to you near the end, but I've changed."

She might then reply by saying something like, "Yes, you were a total jerk. I can't believe that I let you mess me around like that. How can you even think that I would give you another chance after the way you behaved near the end of our relationship? Do you really believe that saying sorry is actually going to change anything?" and go on and on about all the ways she believes that he stuffed up during the relationship.

That is not the vibe you want to be creating when meeting up with your ex.

If you get into an overly serious conversation when you see her in person, you will actually be missing out on the chance to make her feel happy and attracted to you again.

Then, rather than her laughing, smiling and thinking, "This is fun. I'm really having a good time with him and I don't want it to end," being too serious about everything will get her to focus on all the negatives about you and the relationship, which will raise her defenses even more.

So, don't create that kind of dynamic.

Also, don't make the mistake of being on your best behavior to hopefully impress her (e.g. being super nice to her), or trying to make her feel guilty for breaking up with you (e.g. acting all sad and depressed to seek pity).

For example: A guy might meet up with his ex and focus on being extra nice and polite around her by not saying or doing anything that might upset her.

He might say to himself, "I just need to be extra nice to her, keep my cool and not react badly when she's trying to annoy me. Then, she will realize what a great guy I really am and how much I care about her and she will regret breaking up with me. I'll show her that I can be nice even though she dumped me and broke my heart."

However, if a woman realizes that he is only being nice to her out of desperation, it will turn her off even more.

Of course, there's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but if you're only being really nice to her because you're desperate to get her back, you are actually pushing her further away from you.

Why? Emotional weakness (e.g. insecurity, desperation, low self esteem) is a huge turn off for women.

So, instead of putting on an act and trying to impress your ex, focus on switching her feelings back on by being easy-going and relaxed and making her laugh and feel good to be seeing you in person.

Another way to make her feel attracted to you again is by

3. Talking to Her as Though You and Her Are Great Friends, While Also Including Some Sexual Flirting

[image: Make her feel attracted to the new and improved you]

Although you and your ex are broken up, it doesn't mean that everything between you and her was bad.

Sure you had some bad times, but there were also times when you and her were friends, laughed and had a lot of fun together, right?

So, when you see her in person, rather than tiptoe around her trying not to say or do anything that might upset her, just focus on talking to her like she's a really good friend who really likes you and is happy to see you.

Of course, she might act like she's not happy to see you, but don't buy into that.

If she's meeting up with you, she wants to see you.

So, don't fall for her act of being reluctant to interact with you. She wants it.

When talking to her, just keep things light and friendly between you and her, but also remember something very important

If you want to make her feel sexually attracted to you again, you have to trigger her feelings of sexual attraction and an easy way to do that is with some sexual flirting.

For example: When you see her, you say, "Wow, don't you look sexy today. Nice! I like it" rather than just acting like a friend and saying, "Oh, you look nice today."

A lot of guys make the mistake of thinking that flirting with an ex woman is wrong or too forward.

A guy might say, "I can't do that! What if I flirt with her and she gets angry with me and refuses to see me again? We're not together, so it's not proper for me to flirt with her. If she gets angry, then I will have wasted my only chance to get her back. It's better to just be friends and then hopefully, over time I will grow on her and she will realize that she still loves me and we can then get back together again."

Yet, it just doesn't work that way.

Generally speaking, women don't feel sexually attracted to their nice, neutral guy friends who are too afraid to include sexual flirting when talking to her.

She might like him and enjoy being around him as a neutral friend, but she's not going to be thinking, "I just wish he would grab me in his arms and kiss me!"

So, when you meet up with your ex, talk to her like she is a good friend of yours, but don't be neutral and act like Mr. Nice Guy.

Don't pretend that you don't find her sexually attractive anymore, or that you're not interested in getting her back.

If you only pretend that you want to be friends with her, she probably won't see any reason to get back with you.

Remember: Women want to be in a relationship with a man that they respect, feel sexually attracted to and feel love for.

A woman does not want to be in a romantic, committed relationship with a guy who is just acting like a neutral friend.

So, make sure that you flirt with her when you see her in person.

There's nothing wrong with flirting with her.

In fact, flirting is one of the best ways to quickly make your ex feel attracted to you again.

Another way to attract her is by

4. Letting Her See That You Really Have Changed the Things That She Secretly Wanted You to Change

Sometimes in a relationship, a guy might get into the habit of thinking, acting and behaving in ways that are unattractive to his woman (e.g. he becomes insecure, annoying, gets angry often), which then causes her to lose respect and attraction for him over time and eventually leads to her breaking up with him.

If he then wants to get her back, he needs to make sure that when she sees him in person, he shows her (via his actions, thinking and behavior) that he really has changed those things that caused her to break up with him in the first place.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was too emotionally sensitive and was always turning to her for emotional support and reassurance, he needs to show her that he's now emotionally strong and mature enough to stand on his own two feet.

If he was too insecure about his value to her and became needy and clingy around her, he needs to show her that even though he wants her back, he doesn't need her back to feel happy and fulfilled in his life.

Each relationship is different, so it's up to you to discover the things that your ex wants you to change and then make the correct adjustments to your way of thinking and behavior.

Then, when you see your ex in person, you will be able to make her feel attracted to you again by showing her that you are a different guy now (e.g. you are more confident, mature, assertive, focused).

However, the biggest mistake a guy can make, is by not getting to the point where he fully understands what his ex secretly wants him to change about himself.

Then, when he sees her in person, rather making her feel attracted, she feels turned off because he still doesn't even understand what she really wants from him.

2 Common Mistakes to Avoid

Even if a man is smart and successful in his career, he will still often have a lot of gaps in his knowledge about what really makes a woman feel attracted to a man.

As a result, he will often make one or both of the following mistakes as he tries to re-attract his ex!

1. Putting in way too much effort to look good because he doesn't know that a man's attitude, way of thinking and behavior are the most attractive things to a woman.

When a woman breaks up with a guy and says something like, "I don't feel attracted to you anymore," a guy might make the mistake of thinking that what she means is that if he looked better (e.g. wore better clothes, changed his hairstyle, went to the gym and built some muscle or lost some weight), she would then be attracted to him again.

Yet, that's not how it works.

[image: But, I look good. Isn't that enough?]

Although a woman might say, "Oh, you're looking good. Well done" when she sees him in person, his appearance is not the most important thing that will make her feel attracted to him again.

Essentially, what matters most to a woman is how a guy makes her feel when she's interacting with him.

It's based on how he thinks, feels, talks, behaves and acts around her.

For example: Does he make her feel feminine and girly in his presence, or does she feel more like a neutral friend or big sister around him?

Can she look up to him, respect him and feel proud of him (e.g. because he's confident, masculine and going places in his life), or does she look down on him a little bit and feel embarrassed to be associated with him?

Does he make her feel relaxed and happy, or does he make her feel tense, uncomfortable and depressed?

Does he make her feel rushes of sexual attraction when they talk and interact, or does he always seem to say and do things that turn her off?

Those are some examples of the things that are much more attractive to women than how a man looks on the outside.

Of course, that doesn't mean you should look like a slob and not bother to be presentable, but your appearance is not as important to a woman as how you make her feel based on your attitude, way of thinking and behavior.

The second common mistake that some guys make when attempting to re-attract an ex is!

2. Trying to impress her by talking about having big goals and wanting to be successful in life, when he doesn't even really care about that.

Talking about having big goals in life is not the same as actually having big goals and passionately working towards achieving them.

Some guys mistakenly think that a woman will be impressed if he tells her what heâs planning to do with his life sometime in the future.

The reality is that a woman wonât be impressed by a guy who is only saying that he has plans for his life, especially if heâs only saying it because he thinks it will make her feel attracted.

If you want to make your ex feel attracted to you again, you need to be genuinely moving up the levels of life by reaching for your true potential as a man, rather than trying to impress her with vague plans for your future that you probably wouldnât care about following through on if you got her back.

A woman doesnât need you to have achieved all your goals in life to feel attracted to you.

She just needs to see that you are striving towards achieving the things that are important to you (i.e. your big goals and dreams in life) and are not hiding from your true potential as a man.

When you believe in yourself enough to go after what you really want in life (i.e. your goals, dreams, as well as your ex), you automatically become more attractive to her and to women in general.

Then, when you see your ex in person and she notices that youâre no longer the same guy she broke up with, all of her old positive feelings of respect, attraction and love that sheâs pushed into the background suddenly get woken up.

Without being able to stop herself, she opens herself up to getting back together again and actually wants it to happen.

She is attracted to you again and is curious to see what would happen if you and her kissed, had sex and fell back in love again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What Will My Ex Think if She Finds Out That I Used the No Contact Rule?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

4 common reactions when a woman finds out that her ex used the No Contact Rule are:

1. She Loses Respect For You For Trying to Trick Her

If you use the No Contact Rule and your ex finds out, not only will she lose respect for you and possibly even feel angry at the thought of you trying to trick her into getting back with you, but she may also start wondering, “If he is being sneaky and manipulative with me now that weâ€™ve broken up, what other sneaky things did he do to me that I never found out about?”

Suddenly, she now has even more reasons why she doesnâ€™t want to be with you in a relationship anymore.

For example: A woman might break up with a guy because he was insecure in the relationship, which may have caused him to be needy, jealous or controlling.

If she then finds out that he used the No Contact Rule as a way to hopefully trick her back, rather than think, “Awwwâ€¦ itâ€™s so sweet that my ex cares for me so much that heâ€™ll even try to trick me into calling him, just to get me back,” she will be annoyed.

She will think something like, “This is just another example of how insecure he really is. He has been ignoring me as a way of trying to trick me into getting back together again. This is just like how he used to try and convince me to not go out with my friends by making me feel guilty for leaving him home alone. Nothing has changed and his current behavior now is enough to show me that he doesnâ€™t even know how to change. He just wants to lie, cheat and steal his way through life. Thatâ€™s not what a real man does. I clearly made the right decision in breaking up with him,” and she loses even more respect for him as a man.

This is why I do not recommend ignoring your ex as a way to get her back.

Watch thisâ€¦

If your ex finds out that you were just ignoring her to act like you were okay without her, but have really been missing her like crazy and havenâ€™t even fixed your issues and improved yourself, it kills her respect for you.

Without respect, itâ€™s difficult for her to feel real sexual attraction for you because women donâ€™t want to have sex with guys that they donâ€™t respect.

So, rather than wasting time with the No Contact Rule and potentially facing the negative fallout if your ex finds out about it, just focus on actively making her feel respect and attraction for you again.

That is the real secret to getting an ex back.

Watch thisâ€¦

Youâ€™ve got to actively make her have some feelings for you again.

You can do that by interacting with her on the phone, or in person, making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be talking to you again and showing her by the way you talk, think and behave that youâre a different man now.

Let her see that you really have changed and have quickly transformed into the kind of guy that she actually wants now.

When she experiences the new, improved version of you for herself, it makes it difficult for her to keep holding on to her negative thoughts about you because she naturally feels drawn to you in a way that feels good to her.

From there, you can easily build on that spark of respect and attraction and show her that things are different now.

She then wants to get back with you, or at least give you another chance to see how it goes.

Another thing that your ex might think if she finds out that you've been using the immature No Contact Rule isâ!

2. She Loses Respect For You For Not Having the Confidence and Maturity to Actively Guide Her Back into a Relationship

[image: She loses respect for you]

It is a womanâs natural instinct to be attracted to the kind of man who has the confidence, determination and strength of character to face his problems head-on and go after what he wants in life, regardless of how difficult it might seem.

That is so attractive to women.

The amount of attraction women feel for that is like how attracted we feel to sexy women in bikinis, strippers or pornstars.

It's very attractive and appealing and women just want a guy like that, but they are so hard to find because most guys are secretly emotionally weak and insecureâand women hate that.

So, if you want to get your ex back for real, let her see that you're not like other guys who feel like they need to use tricks (like not contacting her) to hopefully make her feel sad and come running back.

Let her see that you have the balls to naturally guide her back into a relationship.

How?

Watch this...

You've got to make sure that you follow the ex back process all the way through.

Don't just apologize to her and then go silent and hope that she comes running back.

That rarely works.

What should you do instead?

Start actively re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you again and guide her back into a relationship with the new you.

For example: A guy interacts with his ex on a phone call, makes her laugh and smile and then meets up with her in person and continues to say and do the types of things that make her feel attraction for him again (e.g. he is confident and charismatic, makes her feel feminine and girly in contrast to his masculine vibe).

She then drops her guard and opens back up to him.

Even if she initially says things like, "I don't know if we should try again," or "I'm just not interested in getting back together again," or "Sorry, I just don't have feelings for you anymore," she will secretly be feeling some respect for him.

Why? He is being a man and going after what he wants (i.e. her) in a confident, mature way even though she's saying no to him.

Important: When I say, "going after what he wants," I do not mean, "Being frantic, needy and desperate and pleading with her for another chance."

That's not what I'm talking about.

I'm talking about being a confident, cool, mature, masculine man who goes after what he wants without being needy or crazy about it.

When you can be that kind of man, almost no woman can resist your attractiveness and charm.

Women know how difficult it is to find a man who remains confident and in control of his emotions at all times, so when you are showing that new side of yourself to your ex, she can't help but feel drawn to you.

It becomes beneficial to her to give you another chance because she knows that you have quickly become the type of man that almost all women want.

Note: You don't have to perfect. You just need to be a lot better than you were before, which is very easy to do.

When she experiences the changes in you for herself, her instincts kick in and she feels compelled to give you another chance or at least hook up with you sexually to see how she feels.

At that point, you've pretty much got her back as long as you handle the post-reconciliation process properly.

By the way!

Compare all of what I've just shared with you to being the kind of guy who wastes weeks and sometimes even months ignoring his ex, in the hopes that she will miss him and come running back.

Lame, right?

He's not even growing as a man.

He's just trying to use some cheap trick to get back his priceless, irreplaceable woman.

Life doesn't work that way.

Cheap tricks don't work for long, if ever.

If it does work and she then finds out that he was using the No Contact Rule to mess with her head, she will perceive him as being a coward for not being man enough to just get her back.

As a result, she will lose even more respect for him and will stop feeling attracted to him.

She might then say to herself, "Well, maybe we could have worked things out before, but now I can see that he's not the kind of man I want to be with anyway. He's a trickster. He's so emotionally weak that he didn't even have the balls to get me back the normal way. Instead, he tried to mess with my head by ignoring me in the hopes that I would do all the work and call him. Well, what he didn't realize is that women feel turned off by guys who are insecure and emotionally immature in that way. I just can't look him in the eye anymore and respect him. He's not a man. He's a boy in a man's body and I don't want a boy, I want a real man.

She then tries to block him out of her life and move on.

This is why the No Contact Rule (an immature idea made up by immature people online who were trying to scheme up ways to get their ex back) is not a good idea in most ex back cases.

If you want to get your ex back for real, you have to be confident enough to contact her and actively make her feel respect and attraction for you again.

When she can see for herself that you're now an emotionally mature and confident man, her feelings for you will automatically change.

Another possible reaction from your ex if she finds out that you've been ignoring her by using the NC rule is that

3. She Can No Longer Trust You

[image: She can no longer trust you]

Trust is one of the most important components of a relationship.

Without trust, a relationship will erode away (in fights, accusations, lies, revenge, anger) until there's nothing left but a feeling of, "Why are we even together? This relationship sucks!"

So, if a woman finds out that her ex used the No Contact Rule to try and get her back, she will naturally feel as though she can no longer trust him because he's obviously trying to manipulate her. Then, no matter how much he tries to get her back, she will likely try to get revenge by continuing to say no to his attempts to convince her to give him another chance.

For example: She might say things like, "You stuffed up so badly! You tried to get me back by ignoring me. How lame. Are you a boy or a man? What makes you think that I could ever trust you again after you did that? You're a liar and a cheat and I'll never believe anything you say or do again. Goodbye and good riddance! I'm so glad I broke up with you when I did. You're not a man and you've obviously got a lot to learn about how to be one."

Pretty nasty, right?

Well, as you may have noticed, that's how women can be when they feel they've been manipulated or lied to by a guy.

Women hate wasting their time on a guy who is pretending to be a well-balanced man.

This has a lot to do with a woman's natural instincts of wanting to find one man and stick with him, because of the risk of getting pregnant.

Even if a woman doesn't want children or hates children, she still has natural instincts that control a lot of her behavior.

One of those instincts is to find a real man, get him to fall in love with her and then keep him for life, so that he will protect her and provide for her if they should ever have any offspring.

This is why most women will give men many warnings before they break up with him.

Most women don't want to have to break up with a guy because their natural instinct is to try to make the relationship work.

However, if a woman finds out that she's been with a guy who is pretending to be a real man, she gets really nasty because he has been wasting her time.

So, make sure that you want to get your ex back for real, you actually do put in the effort to fix your issues and become the man you know you should be, rather than trying to trick her by ignoring her.

By the wayâ€¦!

If you've already been using the NC rule and she finds out, don't worry â€¦ you can recover from it.

Just say something like, â€œYes, you're right. I did stuff up. However, I was only doing what I thought was the right thing to do to get you back. I thought that not contacting you would give you time to think about us and want me back. I can now see that it was a silly thing to do and I should have just had the balls to call you, catch up with you and get the relationship back together. Yet, I was too insecure at the time and I was afraid of being rejected by you, so I used the silly No Contact Rule and yes, it backfiredâ€ and then have a laugh with her about that.

You can also add in, â€œLook, I know that it wasn't the best idea I ever had, but what's done is done. I'm not that guy anymore though. The guy that I am now is prepared to face up to the consequences of his actions, rather than looking for the easy way to do things. You don't have to believe me, but I'm not going to let you throw my mistake in my face over and over again either. Yes, I was silly to use the No Contact Rule. I messed up and I'm sorry about that, but now I'm moving on from that mistake and I hope you will too. I know that it will take time to trust me again, but if you just keep an open mind, you will see that we can at least be friends for now.â€

Note: Do not text that to her.

Pretty much every guy that I help to get an ex woman back wants to text everything to her because it feels easier for him.

No.

You have to say that to her on a phone call or in person.

One of the reasons why is that women hate to get long, emotional texts from guys because that's how women text.

You have to be a man about this from now on.

If you have something in depth to say to her, you must say it on a phone call or in person.

If you text it, she will feel annoyed and think that you're acting like a woman by texting all your feelings and explanations of your actions.

So, say it to her on a call or in person.

Another possible reaction is thatâ€¦!

4. She Feels the Need to Punish You By Playing Mind Games of Her Own

Sometimes a woman might feel so angry with her ex for trying to trick her by using the No Contact Rule on her, that she then decides to take out some revenge on him.

For example: A woman might try to punish her ex by pretending to be interested in getting back with him and then changing her mind.

She might say to him, “All this time without hearing from you has made me realize how much you really mean to me. Do you think we can work things out between us?”

He might then jump at the chance and say something like, “Yes! We can definitely work things out. That’s what I’ve been hoping for all along.”

She may then string him along for a while by saying things like, “Let’s take things slow and see what happens,” or “I need time to get used to the idea of getting back together again. So, let’s meet up for coffee and see how we feel. Not now though, but soon, okay?”

The more hope that she gives him, the deeper the guy falls for her again and then, when she reaches the point where she feels he’s really going to feel pain if they don’t get back together again, she suddenly stops taking his calls, answering his texts and cuts off all communication with him.

Alternatively, she texts him and says, “I’m sorry to have to tell you this, but I’ve met someone else. Please don’t be angry. I do care about you, but I’ve realized that we can no longer be together. I am happy now with my new boyfriend, so I hope you can respect that and leave us alone.”

He is then left thinking, “WTF? I thought she wanted to get back with me?” and is emotionally destroyed.

Meanwhile, she is laughing and thinking, “That’ll teach you for using an immature, manipulative trick on me like the No Contact Rule. I hope it ruins you.”

Nasty, right?

Well, as I said, women hate it when they find out that a guy has been pretending to be a real man.

It flicks a switch in their mind that makes them turn into a completely different person.

It’s like night and day, hot and cold.

A completely different woman.

You don’t want to flick that switch in her mind.

Get on her good side by being a real man about the ex back process from now on (i.e. actively re-attract her and confidently guide her back into a relationship).

Another way that a woman might punish a guy for using the No Contact Rule on her is by getting back with him and then waiting for a time when he’s feeling particularly vulnerable (e.g. he’s going through a tough time in life, is having problems at work, is studying for exams, is upset about something) and then she breaks up with him to get revenge.

He is then emotionally destroyed and she walks off with a grin, feeling like she has dished out the revenge that he deserved.

Do you really want that to happen to you?

Why waste time ignoring your ex and then worrying, “What will my ex think if she finds out that I used the No Contact Rule?”

The fact is, there’s an easier and more effective way to get your ex back.

A way that not only doesn’t have any negative consequences if she finds out, but will also make her love, respect and feel attracted to you even more than she did before.

What is this way?

It is to

Actively Spark Her Feelings For You Again

[image: Be a man about it and just get her back]

The fastest way to get her back is to be active, rather than inactive.

Active simply means that youâre actively making her have feelings of respect, attraction and love for you again, rather than sitting back, ignoring her and hoping that somehow she will miraculously change her mind about being broken up and come running back to you.

Where many guys go wrong is by ignoring their ex for 30, 60 or even more days and then when it doesnât work ask, âWhy isnât she coming back?â or even âDo you think sheâs not coming back because she found out that I used the No Contact Rule? Is that why? Did she search 'how to get your ex back' online and find out about the rule?â

Here's the thing...

Based on all my years of experience helping men get their ex women back, I've found that ignoring a woman doesnât work in approximately 80% of cases (which is why I've never recommended it).

Why doesn't it work?

Well, when a woman doesnât have feelings for a guy, not hearing from him again usually just makes her feel relieved.

Rather than sitting around pining for him, a woman is usually thinking, âPhew! That was easier than I thought. I was afraid that my ex would make it difficult for me to move on, but he has made it so easy for me to move on by not contacting me. Thanks!â

In the 20% of cases where it does work and the woman does come back, if she discovers that the guy hasn't actually changed the things that she really broke up with him for (e.g. heâs still needy and insecure, he still doesnât know how to give her the attraction experience that she really wants, he still has no strong purpose or direction in his life), she'll just dump him again.

Then, she will feel compelled to quickly find a new guy to make herself feel better and move on.

On the other hand, if you stay in contact with her (whether itâs via text, social media, e-mail or calling her on the phone, or meeting her in person) it becomes a lot more difficult for her to forget about you and move on.

Note: When I say, "stay in contact with her" I do not mean in a desperate, emotionally needy way.

I mean, "Stay in contact with her and interact with her in ways that make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you."

For example: You are confident, you make her smile and laugh, you're charismatic and interesting to talk to.

She then starts to think, âMy ex is being so adorable. Iâm actually having so much fun talking to him again. I wonder whatâs happened to him, heâs so different nowâ and she canât stop herself from feeling drawn to you again.

Why? You have successfully re-sparked her feelings for you.

That's the easiest and fastest way to get an ex back.

So, if youâve been using the No Contact Rule and youâre afraid what your ex will think if she finds out, stop using it right away.

Contact her and start the real ex back process that actually gets her back.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Reconnect With Your Ex

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to reconnect with your ex, follow these 4 steps!

1. Call Her to Talk on the Phone

[image: Tips for contacting an ex via text or phone call after a break up]

The quickest way to reconnect with your ex is to get her on a phone call and actively trigger her feelings for you by making her laugh, smile and feel happy that you got in touch with her again.

If you don't have her number for whatever reason (e.g. you had a big fight and she changed her number so that you can't call her), you might need to use an initial e-mail or social media message to get her new number.

If you have her number already, just call her up and say hello.

Some guys are worried about doing that and will say, "I don't think she wants to talk to me on the phone" or ask, "What if she doesn't answer?"

If you're worried about her not wanting to talk to you on the phone, don't be.

She will want to talk to you when you focus on getting her smiling and laughing, which gets rid of the awkwardness and makes her feel happy or at least open to talking to you again.

If you're worried about her not answering, don't be.

If you call and she doesn't answer, just try calling the next day.

If she still doesn't answer, text her this, "Hey, looks like you're busy or you might have missed my call. Just wanting to ask you something quick over the phone. Will give you a call another time."

Most women respond to that and ask something like, "What did you need to ask me?" or they call.

If she texts back, just call her and if she calls, obviously answer and begin reconnecting with her.

By the way!

If you really don't want to call your ex right away, it's okay to text her as a way of opening up the lines of communication between you and her.

For example: If you didn't get dumped for being needy and clingy (i.e. you instead got dumped for taking her for granted or treating her badly), you can text her something like, "Miss you."

Women love to get a text like that when they are missing their ex and hoping that he reaches out.

Of course, most guys who are looking for help on how to get an ex back are dealing with an ex who doesn't want anything to do with them anymore because they became clingy, insecure or needy near the end of the relationship.

So, if you got dumped for being clingy, insecure or needy, just text her, "Hey, can I ask you something?" and then wait for her text reply.

When she replies, just call her.

By the way!

Make sure that you don't get into a long text exchange with her, unless she is very open and excited to be talking to you via text.

Sometimes, a guy will get to the point where texting his ex becomes so comfortable that he starts to feel afraid when he thinks of calling her on the phone.

He might then say to himself, â€œThis is okay. Texting is good. At least sheâ€™s communicating with me. Iâ€™ll stick to texting for a while and when sheâ€™s ready to talk, sheâ€™ll let me know and then Iâ€™ll call her. Why rush her and stand the chance of scaring her off? Iâ€™ll just text.â€

He might then spend weeks or even months texting her back and forth in the hopes that she will one day say to him, â€œI miss you. I want to see you. Call me!â€

Unfortunately, that rarely, if ever happens.

In most cases, a woman will eventually get bored of texting back and forth with her ex and may think something along the lines of, â€œThis is pointless. Iâ€™m just wasting my time here. Thereâ€™s no reason for us to continue texting. Weâ€™re not even a couple anymore. Iâ€™m just going to ignore him and focus on meeting a man who doesnâ€™t hide behind texts. I want a real man, not a text man.â€

Then, she might stop responding to him altogether or continue texting to string him along.

Yet, while heâ€™s busy wasting time hiding behind texts, she will then meet a new man and suddenly go silent.

He will then text her asking why she isnâ€™t responding and worry that it might have been something he texted.

Yet, in reality, she moved on because he just stuck to text and didnâ€™t properly re-attract her on a phone call and in person.

So, if you want to reconnect with your ex and get her back, make sure that donâ€™t waste a lot of time texting back and forth.

Get her on a call and thenâ€

2. Focus on Getting Her Laughing and Smiling on the Call, to Get Rid of the Awkwardness and Bring Her Guard Down

Thereâ€™s an old expression that says, â€œLaughter is the best medicine,â€ and it couldnâ€™t be truer than when it comes to reconnecting with an ex.

Talking to your ex on the phone for the first time after a break up can make you feel nervous.

Prior to the call, you might think, â€œWhat if she doesnâ€™t want to talk to me? What if thereâ€™s a lot of awkward silences and she just hangs up on me? What then? Should I risk calling her?â€

The best way to avoid any problems on the call is by focusing on making her smile and laugh.

When sheâ€™s smiling and laughing, it becomes difficult for her to keep thinking, â€œI donâ€™t like this guy anymore. He stuffed up. I donâ€™t want to see him.â€

Instead, she thinks, â€œThis is actually kind of nice. Iâ€™m having fun. Wowâ€! I never expected to feel like this about him again.â€

She then starts to become willing and eager to meet up with you to see what happens in person (e.g. will it lead to a kiss, make up sex, a reconciliation?)

For example: Imagine that you are on a phone call with your ex and you say something like, “Hi Rose. I was wondering if you would like to get together sometime for a cup of coffee?”

Although there's nothing wrong with saying that to her, it's not going to make her feel attracted to you, is it?

No.

Instead, she's likely going to feel a little bit awkward and uncomfortable that you're going “straight for the kill” and asking her out again.

She may then say, “Look, it's nice of you to ask, but I don't think it's such a good idea for us to do that. We're broken up now and it's probably better if we just leave it at that.”

On the other hand, using humor to make her smile and laugh changes the dynamic between you and her and she then becomes more open to meeting up with you.

Here's an example of how you can do it:

Once you get over the initial, “Hey, how are you?” and “What have you been up to?” part of the conversation, you can say in a joking way, “By the way, I've been meaning to tell you, there's this really cute guy who wants to meet up with you for coffee. He has brown hair, blue eyes and he's waiting for you right now in the coffee shop downstairs from your office.”

She will likely respond by freaking out and saying something along the lines of, “Huh? Who is it?”

You can then laugh and say, “It's me of course. You're handsome ex boyfriend (or husband).”

Note: If you got broken up with because you were needy, clingy and insecure, it's not a good idea to actually be downstairs waiting to meet up with her for a coffee.

In cases like that, just say, “No, I'm only kidding. As if I would do that! I'm joking...relax” and then have a laugh with her about it.

Then, add in, “Hey, but it would be good to catch up for a coffee to say, right? We should do that soon, even if it's just for 10 minutes and then we part ways.”

On the other hand, if you got dumped for taking her for granted and treating her badly (and didn't beg and plead for another chance after the break up) and she still loves you, it is a good idea to be waiting downstairs ready to have a coffee with her and say hello.

Whichever option applies to you, the most important part is that you're making her smile and laugh, which gets rid of the awkwardness between you and her.

At the same time, you're displaying some of the personality traits that are instinctively attractive to women (e.g. confidence, sense of humor, charm, charisma) and making her feel good to be talking to you again.

That's what really counts when getting an ex back.

It's all about how you make her feel when you interact with her.

Why? Most women make decisions based on how they feel in the moment, which is why you've probably noticed that women will promise one thing today (based on how they're feeling) and then not follow through on that promise next week (because she's feeling differently).

Whereas, we men are men of our word.

What we say matters to us.

If we say that we're going to do something, we do it.

That's what a real man does.

Yet, women tend to base their decisions on how they feel in the moment, which is why it's so important to get your ex smiling and laughing when talking to you, so she feels good and is more open to saying yes about meeting up with you.

Even if she initially tries to stop herself from opening up to you, she won't be able to keep up her guard for long because you will be replacing her negative feelings and memories of you with new, positive feelings and enjoyable moments.

The next step of how to reconnect with your ex is to

3. Reactivate Her Feelings of Respect and Attraction

One of the most important things that you need to do to get your ex back, is to make sure that you reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you by showing her that you really are a different man now.

For example: Some of the things that you can do to reactivate your ex's feelings of respect and attraction are:

- Understand her real reasons for breaking up with you (e.g. were you an emotionally strong and confident man around her, or were you a bit insecure, needy and afraid of losing her? Did you make her feel girly and feminine in your presence, or did she end up feeling like more of a neutral friend, or worse, a mother figure for you? Did you have a strong purpose and direction in life outside of your relationship with her, or did you make her your main focus and reason for living? Were you emotionally masculine when around her, thus allowing her to fully relax into being a feminine woman around you, or were you too emotionally sensitive?).
- Begin fixing those things about yourself, so that when you interact with her over the phone (and especially in person), she will be able pick up on the changes in the way that you now talk, think, behave and respond to her.
- Get to the point where you are not emotionally dependent on her anymore and you feel happy, fulfilled and enjoying your life whether she's with you, or not (e.g. by focusing on your big dreams and goals, going out with friends and having fun).

You don't have to be perfect to reactivate your ex's feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Instead, you just need to make some adjustments and improvements to yourself and show her that you really are now at a different level from the one you were at when she broke up with you.

When you interact with her in ways that reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you, everything changes.

The process of getting her back becomes easy, because she actually likes interacting with the new you.

On the other hand, if you continue to make the old communication mistakes you made before (e.g.

being insecure, letting her have too much power over you), then getting her to feel respect and attraction for you again is going to be very difficult and she's going to say things like, "I think we should leave things as they are," or "We're exes for a reason. Let's leave it that way, okay?"

So, make sure that you are ready to properly re-attract her and reactivate her feelings when you meet up with her.

Don't leave it to chance and hope that she goes easy on you or takes pity on you.

Remember: To get a woman back, it's about making her have strong feelings for you.

It's not about telling her all about your strong feelings for her and hoping that she feels sorry for you or realizes that you must be the one because you love her so much.

Don't try to convince her to give you another chance.

Instead, make her have strong feelings for you again and she will naturally want to give the relationship another try.

4. Catch Up to Say Hello in Person

Once you've reactivated some of your ex's feelings over the phone by making her laugh and smile and feeling happy and excited to be talking to you again, get her to agree to meet up with you to say hello as friends.

In some cases, a woman might not want to come across as being too desperate to reconnect in person with her ex, so she might say something like, "I'm not sure. Maybe we should just leave it for now and see what happens in the future."

Don't worry.

As long as you focus on making her smile and laugh, her being resistant at first doesn't mean that she's not interested.

Sometimes, a woman just wants to see that you don't back away at the first sign of resistance.

Other times, she just wants to act like she's unsure to feel like she is the special one and you have to keep chasing her to get a yes.

So, just remain confident, smile (she can hear a smile over the phone based on how it changes your tonality and expression) and say, "Hey, it's just coffee. We can do that. We can be friends. Friends meet up to say hello. What's 10 minutes to say hi and then bye? It's totally fine."

If she says, "Yes" after that, you can arrange to meet her at a time that suits you both.

If she says, "No" just laugh and say, "Come on! It's just a quick coffee. Surely you can do that. Let's just catch up and say this time and if you don't want to talk to me again after that, I will accept it and not contact you anymore. So, what do you say? Let's catch up for a quick coffee to say hello and potentially say goodbye as well if that's what you want."

Almost all women will give in and say, "Yes" at that point. So, just go ahead and arrange to meet up at a time that suits you both.

By the way!

You are saying that you and her are just catching up as friends, but that's not what is really happening.

What you are really going to do is flirt with her and make her feel respect and sexual attraction for you again.

[image: Get to kissing and sex to fully reconnect]

When you do that, she will drop her guard and naturally become open to hugging you, kissing you and even having sex again to see how she feels about the relationship afterwards.

However, if you only focus on making her feel neutral, friendly feelings for you (e.g. because you don't want to come across as being too pushy), she will probably just keep looking at you as her ex who she doesn't have feelings for anymore.

So, don't pretend that you don't find her sexually attractive or that you're not interested in getting her back.

Instead, make sure that you use every interaction you have with her as an opportunity to reactivate her feelings of respect, sexual attraction and love for you.

She then realizes that by falling back in love with you she will be winning, because you are now the man she always wanted you to be.

She might not admit that initially because she will want to see that the new you is for real, but she will be open to it.

You've just got to remain strong so you can fully reconnect with her and get her back for real.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

3 Examples of How to Show Your Ex That You're No Longer a Jealous Guy

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Becoming very jealous in a relationship with a woman always leads to her losing respect for you and then no longer feeling attracted to you.

Don't worry â€œ you can fix it though.

If you became jealous in your relationship and caused your woman to break up with you, here's what you can now do to show your ex that youâ€œre no longer a jealous guyâ€œ|

1. Laugh When She Tries to Make You Jealous

[image: Laugh when she tries to make you feel jealous]

In most cases, an ex isn't going to believe that you're no longer a jealous guy if you just say something like, â€œIâ€œm sorry about being jealous when we were together. Iâ€œm over that now. I promise you, Iâ€œm no longer a jealous guy. Just give me a chance to show you.â€œ

It's just words.

There is no proof that you have really changed and after all she's been through with you, she's not going to believe mere words.

So, to test whether you have changed, a woman will often try to make you jealous to see how you react.

For example: She might say something like, â€œYou know, Iâ€œve been having an awesome time since we broke up. Iâ€œve been partying with my friends and having so much fun! I'm really enjoying being single.â€œ

To show her that you've changed, you can respond by playfully saying, “Oooh, wow...I'm so jealous” and laugh with her about it to let her see that you aren't affected by her attempts to make you react like you used to.

You can say, “Oh, noâ€œ|what am I going to do? I'm sooooo jealous” and then laugh with her about it.

You can then add in, “No, noâ€œ|good for you. I'm happy for you. You deserve to enjoy yourself after all the crap I put you through. I was so silly being jealous in the way I was. I can look back now and laugh at myself. It's funny” and then have a laugh with her about that.

This shows her that not only have you changed, but youâ€œre also still fun to talk to because you are able to make her smile and laugh by cracking a joke that is based on your past behavior.

By talking to her in that way, you trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you and she then starts to look at and think about you in a positive way.

She begins to wonder, â€œIs it really possible for my ex to have stopped being jealous so quickly? Could he really have changed? Maybe he did. Maybe it is possible for someone to change that quickly. He seems a lot different anyway. I wish he was like that beforeâ€œ and she then opens herself up to the idea of getting to know you again in a whole new way.

Always remember: When you re-spark your ex's feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you, her guard comes down and she naturally feels drawn to you again.

She can't help it.

Even if her friends, family or coworkers are telling her to steer clear of you, her heart will be drawn to you.

She will be curious about how confident, cool and mature you've become all of a sudden and she will want to experience more of it.

Another way to show your ex that you're no longer the jealous type is to

2. Become Emotionally Independent

One of the main reasons why a guy might become jealous in a relationship is because he focuses way too much of his attention on his woman and neglects other areas in his life.

For example: A guy who makes his woman the centre of his world will usually

- Stop doing things that don't include her (e.g. a hobby or interest) to spend even more of his time with her.
- Stop hanging out with his friends, unless he can bring her along too.
- Put his big goals and dreams on hold because he feels like they're not as important to him as she is. If he doesn't have big goals and dreams, he might say to himself, I don't need anything more than my woman. She's the best thing that's ever happened to me. What I need to do is make sure that nothing comes between us. She's all that matters to me now.
- Feel hurt if she wants to spend time alone, or go out with her friends without him.
- Worry that if he's not with her all the time, some other guy might steal her away from him.
- Feel insecure about his value to her (i.e. worrying that she will realize that she could do better than him and then leave him).
- Feel like he needs her in his life to be happy and without her his life wouldn't be worth living.

Being like that in a relationship with a woman is a recipe for disaster.

It never, ever lasts.

Women hate to feel responsible for a man's emotional state in a relationship.

A woman wants her man to be happy, confident and forward moving in with or without her support or reassurance.

Yet, many guys forget that (if they knew it) or don't know it at all, so they end up ruining a perfectly good relationship.

For example: If his woman tries to have interests, hobbies and friendships that are separate from her relationship with him, he will usually feel betrayed by her and become jealous of the people who are getting to spend time with her.

[image: You mean everything to me! Why don't you feel the same way?]

He might then start to blame her for making him insecure and say and ask things like:

- Am I not enough for you?
- Why are you always running off to do things with other people?
- What are you up to behind my back?
- Can I trust you when you're with other people?
- I want you to know that nothing is more important to me than our relationship. You mean everything to me. Do you feel the same way?
- Am I enough for you?
- Have you ever thought about cheating on me?
- Have you been tempted?
- Are you cheating on me?

In most cases, a woman is usually not intentionally doing anything to make him feel jealous and his insecurity is being triggered by his own lack of purpose and balance in life (i.e. he is placing way too much of his focus on her and not enough on following through on his big goals and dreams in life).

So, while she is trying to live a more emotionally independent, mature and balanced life, he is being immature and expecting her to take responsibility for his emotional well being.

Since he is focusing most of his attention on her, it's only natural that he might see her independent interests as a threat.

Yet here's the thing|

Being emotionally dependant on a woman and making her your purpose in life and responsible for your happiness and well being, is the fastest way to lose her respect.

Yes, a woman does want to be with a guy who is loving, caring and devoted to her, but she also needs him to be his own man, independent of her.

So, if you want her back, you must show her that even though you still care about her and want her back, you don't actually need her back.

Don't text that to her and don't tell her that when talking to her.

Show it to her by living your life, having fun without her and beginning to pursue your big goals and dreams with a more focused passion and determination.

Let her see that you are happy, confident and moving forward in life now and you don't need her to feel emotionally fulfilled.

Of course, you really do want her back, but you must get to the point where you don't actually need her back to feel okay again.

You're already happy, confident and forward moving in life without her.

That's what she wants to see.

She wants to see that you're no longer dependent on her emotionally and have become your own man.

By becoming emotionally independent, you are showing your ex that you're no longer a jealous guy because you've moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you.

When she notices that, she won't be able stop thinking about you in a more positive light because you are now behaving like the kind of man she can actually look up to and respect.

All of a sudden, she feels drawn to you in a way that feels good to her and she then becomes open to the idea of being with you again.

3. Be Genuinely Happy if She is Happy

Just like being emotionally independent of your ex and having a greater purpose in your life other than her is important, accepting that she is emotionally independent of you is also important if you want to prove to her that youâ€™re no longer a jealous guy.

Essentially, what this means is that you have to reach the point in your life where you genuinely feel happy for her, no matter what sheâ€™s doing or who she happens to be hanging out with.

For example: If sheâ€™s going out every night to clubs and bars with her single friends and dancing the night away with different guys and this makes her happy, then you need to be happy for her.

It's not going to feel great for you to find that out, but if you want to prove to her that you're no longer a jealous guy, you need to show her that you are happy for her and you are okay without her.

If she suddenly decides to go traveling around the world like she always wished she would, you need to be happy that sheâ€™s pursuing her dream.

Whatever it is that sheâ€™s doing now that sheâ€™s broken up with you, you have to show her that youâ€™re okay with it and that youâ€™re happy with whatever makes her happy.

Don't fake your support and encouragement of her happiness; be genuine about it.

Know that if you are genuine, it will actually make her feel attracted to you because it shows that you're not an emotionally selfish, jealous guy anymore.

If you fake your support for her, she will sense it and know that you're only pretending not to be jealous to hopefully get her back.

She will then keep her guard up and try not to interact with you again because she knows that it's all just a trick.

So, it has to be genuine.

How do you do that?

The only way to make her believe that you are genuinely happy for her is for you to get to a point in your life where:

- You feel emotionally strong and confident without her.
- You believe in your value to her and to women in general.
- You are happy about where your life is going, even if she's not in it.

When she sees that you have matured as a man in these ways, she will naturally and automatically feel respect for you again.

When she can respect you, she can then feel sexually attracted to you and when that happens, it becomes difficult for her to keep saying to herself, â€œDon't trust him. He's just faking it to make you fall in love with him again. He's probably still the same jealous guy that he's always been and if you drop your guard, he will hurt you all over again. Don't believe it. Stay away from him.â€

All of a sudden, that negative talk will begin to fade away and she will begin saying to herself, â€œHmmmâ€¦he really is different now. I get a different feeling now when I talk to him. He's a new man. It's interesting. I actually like who he is now. Why am I feeling this way about him?"

From there, you just need to continue saying and doing the types of things that will prove to her that you really have changed and are no longer a jealous guy.

Then, confidently guide her back into a relationship with you.

Warning: If You Don't Get to the Source of Your Jealousy, You Might Suffer From it For the Rest of Your Life

Jealousy is something that comes from an insecure way of thinking.

Thankfully, insecure thoughts are self-created, which means that you can change your way of thinking and create confidence instead.

When you think in a confident way, you naturally become a confident man and your confidence becomes stronger every day, week, month and year of your life.

You eventually get to the point where you no longer experience jealousy and are always confident when in a relationship with a woman.

As a result, her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you deepen over time, rather than fading away or being ruined by your jealousy and sometimes controlling behavior.

The relationship is relaxing, loving and peaceful because you aren't insecure and she feels attracted to that.

Women love men who are emotionally strong and are completely turned off by men who are emotionally weak.

So, it's all within your control.

In terms of your ex, if you don't fix the real cause of your jealousy and instead try to fake that you are now confident, all she has to do is test you and try to find an emotional weak spot to play with.

[image: Why are you being like this. I love you so much. Please just be straight with me. Tell me how you feel!]

For example: Some of the ways a woman might test you to see if you've really stopped being a jealous guy, or if you're just covering it up include the following:

- She talks about other guys who like her (e.g. she might say something like, "I was at the gym the other day and there was a personal trainer who has a crush on me. He is always telling me how hot I am and asking me out. I'm thinking about it. I don't know though" or "There's a guy who just moved into my new apartment building and last week he asked me out on a date. Why are guys asking me out so much all of a sudden? Do I look single or something? I don't get it.")
- She shows some interest in you and then starts talking about a fun time she had with another guy (e.g. "Have you seen any good movies lately? I saw a great movie last week on a date that I went on with the guy from work. It was such a good movie. We went for Italian food after that and he was being all romantic, so it was pretty fun. Anyway, the movie was called")
- She posts up photos on social media of herself partying with friends, as well as photos of her hanging out with other guys.

- She says things like, “I might be open to seeing you as a friend, but that’s all I can offer to see if you react in a jealous way by saying, “I can’t accept that. I want a relationship or nothing!”

Naturally, if the guy has genuinely fixed the root cause of his jealousy, then no matter how she tries to test him, it just won’t matter to him.

In fact, he will use tip #1 from this post and laugh at her attempts to try to make him jealous.

She will then feel respect and attraction for him and start to open herself back up to being with him again.

Yet, if he doesn’t fix the root cause of his jealous, he won’t be able to hide it for long.

Eventually, one of her tests will push his jealousy button and he will likely explode.

He might either storm off in a sulk, or start shouting at her and saying things like, “You’re such a slut! I was right about you all along. I guess that all those times that you kept telling me that I was just being jealous and paranoid was just your sneaky way of trying to make me feel bad for catching you out. You are an untrustworthy slut who can’t be with just one man. You didn’t even wait for our relationship to get cold before you jumped to the next guy. How could you do that to me? How could you be so shallow? You used to say that you loved me and wanted to be with me forever. It was all lies!” and she will know that he’s still a jealous guy.

In most cases, it’s just that easy for a woman to determine whether a guy has honestly changed, or if he’s still the same guy she broke up with and is only telling her that he’s changed to get her back.

So, don’t make the mistake of trying to show your ex that you’re no longer a jealous guy if you haven’t really changed.

When you get to the source of your jealousy, you really can get rid of it forever.

Do you know where your jealousy stems from?

Here are some of the reasons why a guy might be jealous:

- He believes that his woman is too good for him and therefore, feels like he needs to shield and protect her from anyone who might steal her away from him.
- He feels like he got lucky when he picked her up, so he is insecure about being able to find a replacement woman if she breaks up with him.
- He is drifting through his life and using the relationship as an excuse to hide from his true potential as a man.
- He has been cheated on before and still has trust issues that he hasn’t dealt with and gotten rid of.

Those are just a few examples of why a guy might feel jealous in a relationship with a woman.

How about you?

Can you pinpoint the root cause of your jealousy?

If so, you must do something to get rid of it now.

If you continue on with the insecure mindsets that lead to jealousy, you will most likely experience it for the rest of your life and ruin any other relationship you get into.

Yet, when you clear away the insecure ways of thinking that cause jealousy, you're like a completely new man and your ex will notice it when she interacts with you from now on.

Make a Fresh Start Today

You were a jealous guy and she broke up with you because of it.

That's in the past.

This is now.

You can get her back based on who you are now.

To get her to truly believe that you are no longer the jealous guy she remembers, you need to make a fresh start with her.

You need to re-attract her by making her feel respect and sexual attraction for who you are now, rather than get into long, deep and meaningful discussions about who you used to be in the past.

[image: Attract her to the new you]

That jealous guy is gone and you need to show her, via your actions, thinking and behavior that he's not coming back.

You are a new man now.

When she can see that no matter what tests she throws at you, it doesn't make you become jealous, she will start paying attention.

Even if she tries to fight it at first, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you again and opening herself up to falling in love with the new you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

4 Tests That Your Ex Might Put You Through After a Break Up

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

After a break up, your ex might put you through various tests to see how you react.

4 examples of these tests areâ€¦|

1. Being Cold or Mean Towards You to See if You Get Angry

[image: Being cold or mean towards you to see if you get angry]

When a guy is trying to get his woman back, he will usually be on his best behavior every time he interacts with her, in the hopes that she will believe that he has learned his lesson and then take him back.

Yet, most women know that when a guy is trying to get her back, he will pretty much be willing say and do anything to try and convince her to give him another chance.

So, to test him, a woman act cold, mean or bitchy towards him to see how he will react.

If he becomes angry and starts saying things like, â€œWhat is going on? What is the matter with you? Why are you being such a bitch to me? Is this another one of your silly little games? Do you think that just because weâ€™re broken up you can now treat me like crap? Youâ€™re intentionally trying to get to me arenâ€™t you? You manipulative bitch! Youâ€™ll regret doing this to me,â€ she will have succeeded in getting him to reveal his true self to her.

So, rather than being convinced to try again, she will think, â€œJust as I thought. He was just putting on an act and pretending to be all sweet and nice, but heâ€™s just the same asshole jerk that I broke up with. I knew he couldnâ€™t change. Fortunately, Iâ€™ve now seen who he really is before I made the mistake of giving him another chance. Now, I need to get as far away from him as I can because this guy is crazy and who knows what he will do if he doesnâ€™t get what he wants. Time to get a new boyfriend to help protect me.â€

Hereâ€™s the thingâ€¦|

A guy who gets angry at his woman usually fails to understand that a woman is not a manâ€™s property.

He doesnâ€™t own her, even though he wishes he did.

[image: Why are you being like this. I love you so much. Please just be straight with me. Tell me how you feel!]

A woman doesnâ€™t have to stay in a relationship if she doesnâ€™t want to.

She also doesnâ€™t have to text, talk to or even be nice to her ex after she breaks up with him.

Some guys might feel angry to read that, but itâ€™s true.

A relationship only lasts if both people want it to last.

If itâ€™s only one person who wants (or needs) it to last, it wonâ€™t.

It will fail.

So, if your ex tries to test you by being mean, cold or bitch and you get angry with her, rather than convince her to give you another chance, she will most likely just lose even more respect and attraction for you and never want to see you again.

However, that doesn't mean you should sit back and let her treat you any way she wants.

If she is being a bitch towards you, the way to respond is to laugh at her (not with her) for being such a bitch towards you.

For example, you can say something like, "You look funny when you're being mean and bitchy. It's cute" and then laugh at her.

That puts her back in her place.

Most women will never admit that they respect a guy who can do that in a loving, but dominant way, but they do.

So, don't be afraid to mess with her and put her back in her place in a dominant, but loving way.

When a guy has been dumped, he is often afraid to interact with her in that way because he fears saying or doing something that might piss her off.

Ironically, that is what pisses her off the most.

She sees him as being a desperate, wimpy guy with no backbone, who is essentially trying to suck up to her by being on his best behavior.

He thinks that he's doing the right thing, but she is feeling turned off by how wimpy he is being now that they are broken up.

He might then think to himself, "I don't understand why my ex is being so mean to me. She's treating me like dirt. I have to do something about this. Maybe if I'm even nicer to her from now on, she'll stop being so mean and she'll see that I'm a good guy. What I'll do is make sure that I'm always nice to her, even when she's being a bitch towards me. I'll spoil her with nice gifts and maybe even help out with errands or by paying off some of her bills. Then, when she sees that she's being mean to me for no good reason, she'll feel guilty. She will then realize that even though I stuffed up in the past, I'm actually a good guy and she should just give me another chance."

It sounds like a great plan, but it rarely works.

Why?

Women can see right through it.

It's so damn obvious what he's up to, so she actually loses even more respect for him for being so devious and manipulative.

She may then decide to keep taking his gifts, letting him pay for her bills and run around for her, while she continues being mean to him.

The more he puts up with her bad behavior, the more respect she loses for him until she eventually looks at him like dirt or rubbish and wants nothing to do with him sexually or romantically.

So, if you want to change how your ex currently feels about you and change the way she is treating you, you have to re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction first.

and you can't do that by simply being really nice to her.

You have to actively make her feel some respect and attraction for you again, by showing her via the way you talk, think, behave and respond to her, that you are now a very different man from the one she remembers.

When she can see that no matter how mean she is being to you, you are calm, relaxed and in control of your emotions, she won't be able to stop herself from wondering why you are not reacting the way she is expecting you to.

She then becomes curious to find out more and she drops her guard and opens herself up to the idea of getting back with you to see how it goes.

2. Acting Like She Has Zero Feelings For You to See if You Lose Confidence in Your Ability to Attract Her

Women often say very nasty, emotional things that they don't even mean at all, just to test how a guy will react.

So, another one of the tests your ex might put you through after a break up is to act like she doesn't have feelings for you when you interact with her.

For example: A guy might be talking to his ex on the phone and she says something like, âI feel absolutely nothing for you. Zip. Zero. Nada. If you were lying in the middle of the road bleeding, I would just walk right over you and keep going. You mean nothing to me now.â

If he then starts pleading with her and saying things like, âPlease don't say that. After everything we meant to each other, there must be something left that is worth saving. Your feelings can't be dead. Even a small spark is enough for us to try start over again,â she will perceive him as being emotionally weak, lacking in self confidence and unable to cope with the challenges that life throws at him.

Women hate that about guys, which is one of the reasons why they test for it so often.

A woman wants a man who believes in himself no matter what she says or does to try to make him feel insecure.

Women don't go around telling men that, but it's what they want.

So, when her ex fails her confidence test, she will then say to herself, âWhat a wimp. He's already crumbling at the first sign of resistance from me. If I had any doubts about breaking up with him, seeing him like this has convinced me that I've made the right decision. He's not a man, he's a boy in a man's body. I need a man who is emotionally strong enough to handle me and the challenges of life. Doesn't he realize that emotional weakness is not attractive to women? I need a man who believes in himself and in his value to me, not a guy who thinks that I'm too good for him and then expects me to do him a favor by giving him another chance. GrossâI'm so over it.â

As you may have noticed, women are very different to men!

The way that women think is a completely mystery to most men.

Not me.

I've got them figured out.

Watch this for example!

So, if your ex acts like she doesn't have feelings for you, don't fail her confidence test by crumbling and feeling rejected, sad and confused.

Just laugh at her and crack a joke and she will automatically feel respect and attraction for you (i.e. have feelings for you).

For example: If she says, “I feel absolutely nothing for you. Zip. Zero. Nada. If you were lying in the middle of the road bleeding, I would just walk right over you and keep going. You mean nothing to me now” you can laugh and say, “Oh no, you’re breaking my heart. What am I going to do? My bitchy ex girlfriend doesn’t have feelings for me anymore” and then pretend to cry in a playful way.

Of course, you say that in a confident, but playful way, not in an angry, spiteful way.

She will then have to at least smile, but she may even laugh depending on her personality type and at that moment, you will have made her feel a spark of respect and attraction for you.

Believe me, making her feel that is better than making her feel turned off by asking her why she doesn’t have feelings for you, or begging and pleading for another chance.

In most ex back cases, all it usually takes is a spark of respect and attraction and the woman’s guard begins to come down.

She starts to open up to the idea of getting back together and then all you’ve got to do is guide her back into a relationship.

Watch this to understand how it works!

So, just remember that she wants you to maintain your confidence at all times, especially when she is trying to make you feel insecure.

When a guy is unable to maintain confidence in his ability to attract his ex, she just can’t look up to him and respect him anymore.

Instead, she feels turned off by what she perceives as his emotional weakness (i.e. his self doubt, insecurity).

Remember: Women are attracted to a man’s confidence, emotional strength and maturity and are turned off by a man’s emotional weaknesses.

Another test that your ex might put you through after a break up is!

3. Giving You Mixed Signals to See if You Become Insecure

[image: Sorry, but I just don't know how I feel]

If a woman breaks up with a guy because he was too insecure and needy in the relationship, one of the tests she will likely put him through after the break up, is to give him mixed signals about her feelings for him.

For example: She might say something like, “You know! I’m having second thoughts about us breaking up. What do you think? Do you believe it’s possible to make things work between us after all? I don’t know.”

The guy might then respond by saying something along the lines of, “Yes! I definitely think we can make it work. I still love you and if you still love me too, that’s all that really matters. We can work out all the problems between us as long as we love each other.”

To test him, she might then pull away and say something like, “Hmmm, no, I don’t actually think that I still love you. Don’t get me wrong. I’m probably just feeling sad because we broke up and I’m alone at the moment. Anyway, I think it’s probably over between us, so we should just let it go and move on.”

If he remains calm and relaxed and doesn’t let her get to him, she will feel respect and attraction for him and she will know that he’s changed.

On the other hand, if he starts thinking, “It’s over! There’s just no hope anymore. She doesn’t want me anymore. I don’t know what to do,” and then tries to change her mind by making her feel pity for him, she will likely lose even more respect and attraction for him as a man.

Why? A woman wants to be with a man because it feels right (i.e. she respects him, feels sexually attracted and loves him), not because she’s doing him a favor.

So, don’t let your ex mess with your head by giving you mixed signals.

Instead, just focus on remaining confident and actively sparking her feelings of respect and attraction, by showing her the new and improved version of you when you interact with her (e.g. via text, on the phone, or in person).

When she realizes that her tests are not making you respond like she is expecting you to (i.e. she thinks you will be insecure and self-doubting, but instead you are confident and emotionally strong), she won’t be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you again.

You can then build on that spark of attraction by showing her that you really are a different man now.

The final test that your ex might put you through is

4. Blaming You For How Emotionally Messed Up She Feels

[image: Blaming you for how she feels]

So many women do this.

They lay it on real thick and act like the guy has broken them emotionally and caused them severe mental and emotional pain.

In reality, she’s fine and will laugh with her friends, work or study as usual and generally get on with her life.

Yet, when talking to her ex, she starts to sound really sad, worn out and somber and may breathe heavily, sigh a lot and talk in a low, depressed voice.

In most cases, it’s all an act to make the guy feel guilty, to turn him off or to make his life a misery for being yet another guy she has had to break up with.

Here’s the thing

It’s perfectly normal for a woman to feel some pain and anger after a breakup and she will likely bring it up when you interact with her.

However, sometimes a woman might get to a point where she is unfairly blaming her ex for how messed up she feels.

For example: She might say to him, “I can’t believe that I’m even talking to you after *what you put me through. You should feel embarrassed to face me after everything thatâs happened between us you know. You were a terrible boyfriend (fiancÃ© or husband) and I must have been crazy to stick around with you for as long as I did. You took my love and wiped your feet all over it. You are such a selfish jerk you know. All you ever think about is what you want and you donât even bother to notice the people you destroy along the way. I donât deserve to be feeling this way.*â

However, even if everything sheâs saying about him is true, if he lets her talk to him like that and treat him like a naughty little boy who needs to be reprimanded for his bad behavior, it will only make her lose even more respect for him.

Why? Mainly because heâs allowing her to dominate him emotionally.

If you let your ex dominate you by completely blaming you for how she feels, she wonât be able to look up to you and respect you.

If she canât respect you, then she wonât be able to feel sexually attracted to you and getting her back will then become 10x more difficult.

So, if your ex is blaming you for how messed up she feels, you can apologize once or twice, but not any more than that.

If she keeps going on about it, you need laugh and say, “Okay, enough. You keep repeating the same things over and over. I’ve apologized, so there’s no need to keep bringing it up.”

She will most likely disagree and say that it’s important to talk about.

Don’t worry about that.

Just change the subject when she brings it up, or say something funny like, “Oh, again? Wow, I haven’t heard you talk about this before. Tell me all about it” and then laugh with her about that.

You’ve got to be confident enough to put her back in her place and let her know who’s boss, rather than trying to be on your best behavior (women hate that!) to get another chance.

For example: A guy might sit and listen to his ex rant and complain over and over again and just let her go on and on about it.

Secretly, he might want to say something like, âYes, I get it. I stuffed up. However, nobodyâs perfect. You made mistakes too of course. Personally, Iâm willing to accept responsibility for my actions, but maybe you need to do that too, rather than blaming me for everything that happened. If you can face up to your mistakes and admit them to me, you will be continue on feeling confused about yourself and how you acted in our relationship. Yet, if you admit your mistakes and have the maturity to forgive me for mine, you will be clear about who you are and where you standâ but he doesnât because he wants to be on his best behavior around her to avoid pissing her off.

What he doesn’t realize is that if he did say something like that to her, she would actually feel respect for him for being man enough to stand up to her and put her back in her place (i.e. in a less dominant position than him).

She might act like she is pissed off at him for saying it, but that would just be an act.

Deep down, she would feel a spark of respect and attraction for him and begin to feel as though she wants him back.

So, always remember: If you want to get your ex back for real, don’t take her tantrums and rants so seriously.

Instead, be emotionally strong enough to guide her to laughter, smiling and feel good emotions and all of sudden, she will forget what she was so angry about and will start feeling attracted to you.

For example: Imagine that you're talking to your ex on the phone and she's throwing a tantrum and blaming you for how she feels.

You can respond by saying something like, "Wow! I was really that bad? I guess I can add, Worst Ex Boyfriend in the World to my list of accomplishments then. I'm a winner," which will make her laugh, or at least smile a little bit.

When you make her smile and laugh while interacting with you, it takes the edge off the seriousness of the situation and allows her to calm down.

When that happens, she can't stop herself from feeling attracted to the new, emotionally stronger version of you who has the balls to stand up to her when she's testing you.

She then starts to look you and think about you differently.

You seem even more attractive and interesting now, so she just can't stop herself from wanting to experience the new you again and again and again.

Before she knows it, she's back in your arms and is kissing you and loving it.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

3 Examples of How to Make Your Ex Have Strong Feelings For You Again

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

You can make your ex have strong feeling for you again by doing the following thingsâ€¦!

1. Attract Her to the New You, Hook Up With Her Sexually, Blow Her Mind and Then Don't Contact Her Until She Contacts You

[image: Blow your ex's mind and then don't contact her]

The fastest way to attract your ex back, is by making her feel strong surges of respect and sexual attraction for you every time you interact with her.

Then, hook up with her sexually and don't chase her after that. Just go silent and don't contact her until she contacts you.

So, how can you get to that point?

Whether youâ€¦re texting her, talking on the phone or meeting up with her in person, from now on your goal needs to be to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and sexual attraction for you.

Remember: The more you interact with your ex on phone calls and in person, the more chances you have of making her have strong feelings for you again.

On the other hand, if you just sit around waiting for her to hopefully realize that she still cares about you and wants you back, you could be in for a very long wait.

Look at it this wayâ€¦!

When you are not actively interacting with your ex, she could be doing any of the following things:

- Thinking about all the ways she believes you messed up (e.g. you were too insecure, you took her for granted, you made her feel like the man in the relationship because you were too emotionally sensitive) and as a result, she ends up feeling even more turned off by you.
- Going out, having a good time and hooking up with other men.
- Falling in love with another guy who treats her in ways that you failed to.
- Getting over any residual feelings she might still have for you.

So, if you donâ€¦t want any of those things to happen, you have to make sure that you donâ€¦t spend weeks, or even months, ignoring her and hoping that it wonâ€¦t.

Get her on a phone call right away and let her experience the new you, by making her laugh, smile and feel good when sheâ€¦s interacting with you.

For example: When you call her on the phone, she ask say something like, â€œSo, what have you been doing since we broke up? Have you been seeing anyone else?â€

Most guys think that it would be a bad idea to give her any sign that they are moving on.

So, a guy might say something like, â€œOh, Iâ€™ve just been working quite a lot and keeping to myself. So, noâ€”Iâ€™m not seeing anyone else. Are you?â€

Yet, an answer like that is not going to make a woman feel much, or any, attraction for him and it also gives her the opportunity to tell him all about how she has been moving on without him (i.e. to make him feel jealous, to show him that sheâ€™s doing fine without him, to get emotional revenge and hurt him for how bad he made her feel during the relationship).

On the other hand, a better way to respond when your ex asks, â€œSo, what have you been doing since we broke up? Have you been seeing anyone else?â€ would be to say in a joking way, â€œIâ€™ve been very busy rejecting all the dates that women are offering me. Itâ€™s very tiring you know? Iâ€™ve let a few women take me out and wine and dine me, but I havenâ€™t put out until the second date.â€

At this point, she will most likely laugh out loud because you are saying that women are offering you dates, taking you out and you arenâ€™t putting out, which is what a woman would do.

As long as you say it in a masculine way (i.e. donâ€™t imitate a womanâ€™s tone of voice when saying it), your ex will find it funny and incredibly attractive.

She then realize that sheâ€™s having fun talking to you again and will also be impressed that you had the balls and the wit to come up with something like that, rather than just saying, “No, Iâ€™m not seeing anyone yet. You?”

Suddenly, her perception of you changes and she begins to have feelings for you again.

When that happens, she will think something like, â€œHeâ€™s so different now. Iâ€™m really having fun talking to him. Why do I feel this way about him all of a sudden? I like it.â€

Then, what you have to do is get her to meet up with you and then hook up with her sexually.

At the meet up, make sure you continue saying and doing the types of things that that are going to keep turning her feelings on for you (e.g. being confident and charismatic, making her laugh and smile, making her feel feminine and girly).

Then, head back to your place or hers and lead up to sex.

After sex, just relax, be confident and continue to make her feel attracted to the new and improved you.

She will most likely then start to talk about seeing each other again.

Rather than making any plans, just say, â€œSounds good. We should see each other again soonâ€ and then donâ€™t contact her until she contacts you (e.g. she texts you, comments on something on social media to get your attention).

Remember: Always be replying or answering to her, rather than reaching out to her after youâ€™ve hooked up sexually and blown her mind.

If you do that, she will feel compelled to continue getting you back, rather than feeling turned off that you are doing all the chasing and not making her want it.

2. Make Her Jealous By Having a Fun Life Without Her. Then,

Interact With Her and Get Her Laughing and Smiling, But Don't Try to Get Her Back

[image: Make your ex jealous by having a fun life without her]

Believe it or not, one of the qualities that women find attractive in a man is his ability to want her, but still have a happy, fulfilling and successful life without her.

Women don't go around admitting that, but it's true.

Watch this video for some other examples of things that women don't admit to men, but which are true.

So, you need to understand that your ex will want you to be happy and enjoying life without her, even though she might never admit that or might even act angry about it.

So, why is it attractive to women?

Basically, because the opposite of being happy and enjoying life without her is a guy who is needy and insecure and who can't move forward in his life without his woman giving him the emotional support that he needs to cope, feel loved and feel secure in this world.

So, if you want your ex to have strong feelings for you again, you need to get to the point where you want her in your life, but you don't need her to feel happy and fulfilled.

A good way to do that is by beginning to enjoy a fun life without her.

For example:

- Go out with your friends to all the clubs and bars you used to avoid because you were with her.
- Meet new women and enjoy their company (it doesn't mean you have to date other women, but you can have fun with them).
- Do something wild and crazy that you always wanted to do and put the pictures up on social media where she can easily see them (e.g. go bungee jumping, rock climbing, attend music festivals). If she has unfriended you, simply post the pictures with the "public" setting so anyone can see them. Trust me, she will look. Women always look at what their recent ex is up to since the break up.
- If you've ever wanted to travel locally or overseas, do it now. Even if it's to somewhere close by where you can have fun with some friends for a weekend away, or join in on with a travel tour group. Just make sure that you take lots of photos of yourself having fun with the new people you meet along the way and put them up where she can see them.

When you are emotionally fulfilled without your ex and you then let her experience your happiness and non-neediness on a phone call (or in person), something amazing happens.

Suddenly, you seem more attractive to her and she begins to think, "This isn't at all what I was expecting. I thought he'd be feeling sad and depressed, but instead he's happy. He's not sitting around moping and feeling sorry for himself like I imagined he would be. Instead, he's out having fun without. Wow, I can't believe he got over me so quickly. He's confident and happy now, even though we're not together? Why wasn't he like this when we were together? He was so needy and insecure near the end, so how can he been having so much fun without me? It's good to see. I kind of want to be a part of the fun life he's having now. Of course, I won't tell him that."

*I'll just act like I'm still not interested. Hang onâwhatâs happening to me? Why am I feeling this way? Why do I care about him so much all of sudden? Why do I feel like I want him back?*â and she then becomes open to the idea of meeting up with you again.

So, if you want to make your ex have strong feelings for you again, just contact her (the best way is to get her on a phone call with you) and re-spark some of her feelings of respect and attraction, by making her laugh and smile and feeling happy to be interacting with you again.

Then, get her to agree to meet up with you to say hello as friends.

At the meet up, continue saying and doing the types of things that build on her initial feelings for you (e.g. being confident and charismatic, making her laugh and smile, making her feel feminine and girly in your presence).

The more attracted to you that she feels, the more she will want to get back together and try again.

She might suggest catching up again.

However, if you want to make your ex have strong feelings for you again, instead of rushing ahead and responding with, *âYes! That would be awesome! When do you want to meet up again,*â just remain cool and say something like, *âOkay, that sounds good. Iâve got some things that I need to take care of right now, but letâs see what happens. No need to rush things of course.*â

In her mind, she will want to rush things to get back together because she is feeling so attracted to the new you.

As a result, she will then likely text, call or send you a message on social media that day, or a few days later saying something like, *âHey, I really had a great time. It was good seeing you. I really want to see you again. When would suit you?*â

If sheâs shy or feels a little bit insecure about how you feel about her, she might just send you a message to say hi or ask how you are doing (e.g. “Hey, what’s up?” or, “Hey, what are you doing today?”).

From there, just get her on a call and agree to meet up with her again.

Then, get her back and enjoy the great times ahead with her.

3. Give Her the Attraction Experience That She Wants, But Never Told You About

[image: Give her the attraction experience she wants, but never told you about]

If a woman doesnât feel the way she wants to feel in a relationship, she will slowly begin to lose respect and attraction for her man.

Initially she might try to get him to change (e.g. by dropping hints or even throwing tantrums), but if he doesnât pick up on what sheâs trying to tell him, or just assumes sheâll put up with it because she loves him, she will usually disconnect from her feelings of love and eventually break up with him.

Why doesnât a woman just come out and say exactly what she wants, rather than trying to get through to a man by hinting or throwing tantrums?

The reason why is that a woman doesnât want to be a guy’s teacher in life and have to teach him how to be the kind of man she needs him to be.

If a guy can't figure out by himself how to give her the kind of attraction experience she really wants and she then has to spell it out for him, it ruins the romance and excitement for her.

So, when a guy just doesn't understand what she wants (and women want in general) from men in a relationship, she will just break up with him and hope that the next guy gets it.

Before she breaks up with him though, she will give him plenty of hints and warnings in her womanly way.

For example: She might constantly nag her guy about being more assertive in his life and say that she wished that he wouldn't allow her and other people to push him around so much.

By saying that, she hopes that he will realize what she wants and become a more emotionally strong, assertive man.

She will hope that he begins to stand up to her more, so that she can relax and be his feminine woman, rather than always having to take on a more masculine role in the relationship.

However, most women won't come out and say that because they don't want to teach a guy how to be a man.

They just want a guy who gets it, or a guy who works it out and then starts doing it.

Yet, unfortunately most guys don't understand how to be what women refer to as a real man, so they ask their woman what she wants and needs.

For example: A guy might say, "I'm sorry for making you feel that way. What do you want me to do? Just tell me what I need to do and I'll do it," which only turns her off even more.

If a woman is constantly getting the opposite of what she really wants in a relationship (e.g. she wants to feel feminine and girly in his presence, but she feels more like his mother or teacher. She wants to feel like she can rely on him to lead the way for both of them, but she feels like he's depending on her for his emotional security) her feelings for him will fade and she will usually just break up with him and move on.

So, if you want to make your ex have strong feelings for you again, you need to understand what she really wanted from you in the relationship and then fix those issues and improve yourself without needing to ask her to help you.

Then, when you next interact with her and she sees for herself that you've moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you, she will automatically start feeling respect and attraction for you again.

She will drop her guard and begin to consider what it would feel like being in a relationship with the new you.

4 Mistakes That Will Diminish Your Ex's Feelings For You

Now that you have a better understanding of some of the things that will make your ex have strong feelings for you, here are some of the mistakes that you should avoid making:

1. Thinking that being very romantic will make her have strong feelings.

Sometimes, a guy gets it into his mind that to change how his ex feels about him, he needs to treat her so well and be so nice and romantic that she can't help but fall in love with him all over again. For example: A guy might think, "Everywhere I look (e.g. movies, TV, magazines) I see that the way to a woman's heart is through romance. So, if I send my ex roses, buy her some of the things she really likes (e.g. perfume, jewelry, chocolates) and generally make her feel like a princess, then her feelings for me will change and she will want to get back together again."

He may then go ahead and spoil her in different ways, in the hopes that she will develop strong feelings for him again.

Yet, even though a woman might love and appreciate the attention and romance, most women don't fall in love with a man because of what he can buy for her, or how romantic he is.

Basically, if a man is insecure, needy, wimpy or lacks purpose and direction in his life, then being romantic isn't going to make her have strong feelings for him.

Instead, she is going to feel turned off by who he is as a man, but somewhat appreciative of all of the nice things he does for her.

On the other hand, if a guy is confident, emotionally strong and charismatic (sexually attractive traits) and then also happens to be a little romantic at times, a woman will easily be able to fall in love with him, because he is making her feel sexually attracted and he is also being a good man.

So, by all means, be romantic towards your ex if you want to, but remember that just being romantic will not make your ex have strong feelings for you again.

What will?

How she feels when she interacts with you on a phone call and in person.

How you talk, behave and react to her is what counts.

For example: Do you come across as confident or insecure? Does she feel feminine around you, or does she feel like more of a neutral friend?

That's what really matters.

2. Thinking that discussing his feelings with her will make her have strong feelings for him too.

Quite often, a guy will hope that if he explains how he feels to his ex, she will suddenly start thinking, "Oh, I never realized how much he cares for me. Well that changes everything!! I also now care for him too. I think we should get back together again. Yayy!"

That would be nice if the world worked that way, but it doesn't.

Women are not stupid, mindless robots.

They are living, breathing human beings.

And to want to be in a relationship, a woman has to feel respect, sexual attraction and love for a guy based on how he interacts with her (e.g. his way of talking, behavior, vibe, how he reacts to her, the actions he takes).

You can't just talk a woman into having feelings for you.

It doesn't work that way.

Watch this!

If a woman doesn't feel respect, sexual attraction and love for a man, then she's not going to care about his feelings for her.

Your ex will only care about your feelings when she has strong feelings for you.

So, if you want to make your ex have strong feelings for you again, don't waste time discussing your feelings with her and focus instead on making her feel respect and attraction for the new, improved version of you.

When getting an ex woman back, her feelings are all that matters.

Don't worry about expressing your feelings or getting what you want.

Give her what she wants (i.e. feelings of respect, sexual attraction and love for you) and you will get what you want (i.e. get her back).

Another mistake to avoid is

3. Ignoring her for weeks or months.

Some guys believe that if they ignore an ex woman for 30-60 days, she will then realize how much she misses him and her feelings for him will grow and become stronger.

Yet, unless a woman is still secretly in love with a guy and hoping to get back together with him, or if she is really struggling to find a replacement guy, then not hearing from him will be a welcome gift and will allow her to quietly move on without him.

So, if you want to get your ex back, don't ignore her for longer than 3-7 days.

Just give her up to a week of space to allow things to calm down between you and her and then contact her.

Anything longer than that is a waste of time.

The longer you take to contact her, the more you stand the risk of her getting over you, meeting another guy or getting even more annoyed with you for not following through and getting her back.

By the way

When I say that you shouldn't ignore her, I do not mean that you should "stay in touch via text."

Pretty much every guy does that and it doesn't work.

You've got to get her on a phone call and get her to meet up with you in person.

In person, you can re-attract her for real and then get to kissing, sex and back into a real relationship—not a texting relationship that gradually fizzles out.

Another mistake to avoid is

4. Lying about being with other women or having other women interested.

It might seem like a good idea to try and make your ex jealous by lying about being with other women, but it's one of those things that can backfire pretty badly.

If your ex catches you out in a lie (which is pretty easy for most women to do), she will likely think you're a jerk or a loser for trying to trick her and she will then lose even more respect and attraction for you.

On the other hand, if she does feel jealous and gets back together with you only to discover that nothing about you has really changed and you're still the same guy she broke up with, she will usually just break up with you again.

So, rather than trying to trick her back into your life and stand the chance of losing her again, just do it right this time.

Focus on making her feel so much respect, attraction and love for you as a guy, that the thought of not being with you actually causes her pain.

When you do that, she will have strong feelings for you and will want to get back with you again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get an Ex Back Who Cheated On You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To get an ex back who cheated on you, you need to do the following thingsâ€¦!

1. Figure Out What Really Caused Her to Seek Sexual Fulfillment With Another Guy

If your ex cheated on you, then something about your attitude or behavior in the relationship may have caused her to see another guy (or guys) as a better option.

For example: You became insecure and she then felt more attracted to confident guys, or you started out being nice and then became jealous and controlling.

Naturally, this doesnâ€™t mean that her cheating on you is all your fault and that youâ€™re a terrible guy.

In some cases, a woman just has a bad character and enjoys lying and cheating her way through life.

Based on all my research, experience with women and experience helping men get their ex back, I've found that about 5% of women fall into that category of being lying, devious types who will always lie, cheat and deceive no matter what.

With that type of woman, you are better to cut your losses and move on because she will never be trustworthy.

Of course, there are also some women who lie just to get a relationship going for a while.

For example: Your ex may even have gotten involved with you, while in the back of her mind, she was always thinking, â€œThis is good for now, but I'm only going to stay with him until a better guy comes along. I don't want to go through the pain of a break up and have no boyfriend, so I will cheat on him and get right into a new relationship with the new guy. If a relationship doesn't happen, at least it will be me who cheated on him and made him hurt, rather than me getting dumped or cheated on.â€

Those kinds of women exist.

The only way to keep a woman like that is to change and become a better man that attracts her and makes her respect you on a much deeper level.

You've got to get her to stage 5 of a relationship and keep it there.

If you do, she won't cheat on you or leave you.

However, if she does, it will be her loss and she will know it.

She will then come running back to you and begging for another chance because women know how difficult it is to find a man who can keep a relationship at stage 5.

Watch thisâ€¦!

Most guys have no idea how to get a relationship to stage 5 and keep it there and women know that.

So, when you have the ability to get the relationship to stage 5 (blissful love), your ex will never want to leave you again.

Of course, you can't just go to her and say, "Hey, I've worked out how to have a successful relationship now. Let's give it another try."

Instead, you have start being the sort of guy who displays the traits and characteristics of a man who can get a relationship to stage 5 and keep it there.

For example: You are emotionally strong and mature, you make her feel like a real woman, you make her feel deeply attracted to you just by the way you talk to her and behave around her.

So, if you want to get your ex back, you must become clear on what really caused her to seek sexual fulfillment with another man.

Was it because you stuffed up, or was it because she is an untrustworthy, lying, devious woman?

If you believe that your ex is a woman who is loyal and has good character, then her reasons for cheating on you are essentially your fault.

I know that's not nice to hear, but I'm here to help you not baby you.

I've got to make sure that you get your ex back, rather than blame her for everything, tell you to move on and not even help you.

No.

I want you to get her back.

I know you can do it too.

First, you need to understand where you went wrong.

For example: Some of the reasons why a woman might cheat on a man areâ□|

- She stopped feeling love, respect and attraction for him because he became insecure.
- She stopped feeling like a sexy, attractive woman around him because he took her for granted and ended up treating her more like a friend than his woman.
- The sexual spark went out in the relationship because he became emotionally sensitive and wasn't enough of a man for her anymore.
- She might be trying to get back at him for hurting her in some way.

If the cheating was her fault, then here are some of the reasons why she might have done it:

- She has been cheated on before and was constantly afraid that it would happen to her again, so she cheated first to avoid the pain of being cheated on.
- She felt as though that the relationship was going nowhere (e.g. you and her weren't really making much progress as a couple), so used cheating as a way to quickly get out of the relationship.
- She is a woman of bad character who enjoys lying and cheating.
- She wasn't ready to be in a committed relationship with one guy, even though she said she was in the beginning to get you to commit to her.
- She made a silly mistake (e.g. she got drunk and it happened) and now regrets it.

If it was her fault, then the best approach is to show her that you're not sitting around alone and just waiting for her.

You've got to show her that you are happy, having fun and enjoying life with other people (e.g. hanging out with friends, doing new things).

If possible, let her see that you also have women interested in you or, if you're up for it, are already dating new women.

That will make her feel as though things are even between you and her, so she will feel less guilty about getting back with you.

Many women don't want to get back with a guy that they cheated on because they feel bad about having had sex with someone else, while he didn't do anything.

They also fear that he will continually bring it up and use it against her to control her with guilt in the relationship.

So, having sex with a new woman is actually a good way to settle the score and let her feel like she's not that bad after all and that you and her can now start again on a clean slate.

Of course, if you don't want to hook up with another woman, you definitely don't have to.

If you just want to get her back, you can do that too.

How do you do that?

Once you fully understand where you really went wrong with her (e.g. you were too insecure, you weren't man enough for her, you became controlling), you can then make the correct changes and adjustments to your thinking and behavior and give her the attraction experience that she really wants from a relationship.

Then, when you interact with her (e.g. via text, e-mail, on a phone call, or in person), she will be able to see for herself that you really have changed and are now more of the man that she really wants.

When you are saying and doing things to actively make her feel sexually attracted to you again, she stops holding on to negative memories of what happened between you and her in the past.

She then begins to allow herself to have feelings such as respect, attraction, and love for you once again.

Another important part about how to get an ex back after she cheated on you is to

2. Improve Your Ability to Make Her Feel Attracted to You in the Ways That Really Matter to Her

[image: Improve your ability to attract her in the ways that really matter to her]

When a woman cheats on her guy, it's often because she is eager to experience the type of sexual attraction that she feels is lacking in her relationship with him.

For example: If a guy is too wimpy and allows his woman to push him around and dominate him, she will naturally start to feel more like the man in the relationship.

Obviously, women don't want to feel that way.

A woman wants to feel like a real woman (i.e. feminine, girly, free to be emotional while her man remains emotionally strong and stable).

So, if a guy isn't able to give her that kind of attraction experience in a relationship, she will feel as though she cannot relax into thinking, feeling, behaving and taking action like the feminine woman she really is.

She might then look outside of her relationship with her guy, to find a man who is more emotionally masculine and ballsy, thus allowing her to feel more feminine and girly around him.

Another example is where a guy was belittling and criticizing his woman on a regular basis (e.g. by putting her down in private and in front of others, making fun of her thoughts and ideas, pointing out her mistakes, always trying to show her that he is smarter than her).

This type of behavior will cause her to lose respect for him over time and feel as though they aren't in a loving, supportive relationship.

She will then hook up with a guy who treats her with respect and values what she has to say.

So, not only does she get the attraction experience that she really wants from the other man, she also succeeds in getting revenge on her guy for treating her so badly in the relationship.

He is then left devastated and his whole world comes crashing down because he once had so much power and control over his woman and now he has nothing.

She would have given him plenty of warnings before cheating on him (e.g. "I won't put up with this for much longer" or, "I'm getting tired of how you treat me"), but he didn't listen.

She then sought to fill the emotional gap that was missing in their relationship by hooking up with a new guy who treated her the way she really wanted to be treated, even if she only had a one night stand with him.

So, here's what you need to remember:

If you want to get her back, you have to be the one filling the emotional gaps and giving her the attraction experience she really wants when around a guy.

You don't have to become perfect to get her back.

Instead, you simply need to make some adjustments to your thinking and behavior, so that when you next interact with your ex, you are able to make her feel attracted in the ways that really matter to her.

When you do that, she will change how she feels about you and become open to giving the relationship another chance.

Some of the ways that you can make her feel attracted are by:

- Making her feel feminine and girly in your masculine presence.
- Behaving differently around her (e.g. if you allowed her to push you around in the past, you now stand up to her. If you were insecure before, you are now confident and emotionally strong no matter what she says or does around you).
- Making her feel happy to be around you by getting her to smile and laugh.
- Flirting with her to create a sexual spark between you and her.

By making some adjustments to your behavior and the way you think, talk and behave, she starts to see you in a different light.

She then begins to wonder, "Can we possibly make things work after everything that happened between us? Can we make a fresh start? I think we can."

She might feel confused about her newfound feelings of respect and attraction for you, but she won't be able to stop it from happening.

She will feel drawn to you and feel compelled to give the relationship another chance, even though she stuffed things up in the first place by cheating on you.

3. Interact With Her and Make Her Feel Attracted to the New, Improved Version of You

If you want to get an ex back who cheated on you, then you will usually need to be active about it.

In other words, you can't sit around for weeks and even months, thinking things like, "I miss her, but I don't know how to get her back," in the hopes that she will randomly contact you and ask you to get back together again.

After dealing with hundreds of ex back cases, I've found that it rarely (if ever) happens.

Here's why:

Even if a woman still has feelings for her ex and is hoping that they can get back together again, she will rarely make the first move, for a number of different reasons.

For example:

Sometimes, when a woman cheated on her ex, she might not contact him because she's feeling guilty and may be thinking, "What if I call him and he's still angry with me? He will probably just laugh at me and tell me to get lost. It's possibly too late to make things better between us. I stuffed up and now I have to live with the consequences of my actions."

On the other hand, if a woman cheated on her man because she didn't have feelings for him anymore (e.g. he became insecure and really turned her off), then she's not going to contact him because she just won't care about him anymore.

She's just going to think, "It's over. We're broken up. I've moved on and I hope he's doing the same. I don't want anything to do with him anymore."

So, if you want to get your ex back, you have to be the one who makes the first move rather than waiting and hoping that she does it.

You need to actively interact with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) and make her feel something for you again.

For example: Some of the ways you can make your ex feel some respect and attraction for you pretty quickly are:

- Making her smile, laugh and feel good when talking to you.
- Showing her by the way you now talk, think, behave, interact with her and respond to what she says and does that you're no longer the man she cheated on (e.g. you're more confident now, you're assertive and don't let her, or anyone, else push you around or treat you with disrespect).
- Making her feel feminine and girly in your presence.
- Being more emotionally dominant than her, thus allowing her to feel like a real woman around you.
- Letting her know that even though you love her and want her back, you are happy and enjoying life without her.

When you interact with your ex in some of these ways, she begins to feel impressed by the new you. She sees for herself that you are no longer at the same level you were at when the two of you broke up.

Sheâ suddenly faced with the kind of man she can look up to, respect and feel attracted to.

Then, the idea of getting back together again and actually experiencing a long-lasting and loving relationship with each other, doesnât seem impossible to her anymore.

So, just get her on a phone call with you right away.

Make her laugh, smile and feel happy to be talking to you again and then get her to meet up with you in person.

Another important part of getting an ex back who cheated on you is toâ

4. Hook Up Again Sexually

No matter how great things might be going between you and your ex over the phone or via text, it wonât make much of a difference if you donât meet up with her in person and have sex again.

When you re-attract her in person and then have sex with her, she begins to feel a new type of respect, attraction and love for you.

It feels good, different and exciting.

So, don't waste anymore time sitting around hoping that things magically change on their own.

Meet up with her, let her experience the changes youâve made to yourself since the break up and then have sex with her.

5. Have a Discussion About Whether She Thinks She'd Ever Do it Again

After having sex with her again, she will be much more open to discussing the idea of having a relationship with you again.

However, if you try to have that discussion prior to sex, she will just say things like, "I don't want to talk about it," or "Don't bring that stuff up. If that's all you want to talk about, I don't want to talk to you anymore."

So, make sure that you get to sex first.

As for her talking about whether or not she would cheat on you again, this is an important subject to bring up to maintain your self respect and let her see that you're not just going to get back into a committed relationship if she thinks she would do it again.

Everyone makes mistakes and this time it was most likely her fault.

However, before you decide to get back together with her, you need to have a heart-to-heart discussion (without any shouting or accusations) about whether or not it would be possible for her to stay with you in a monogamous, loving relationship and not feel tempted to stray again.

If she says something like, "I donât know," or "Iâm not sure if I will be able to stop myself from cheating again," itâs best that you cut your ties with her at that point and find yourself another woman who will be loyal to you.

Here's the thing..

If she can't promise to be faithful to you and you still want a committed relationship with her, you need to seriously ask yourself why.

Could it be because you lack confidence in yourself and don't believe you can find another woman other than her?

If that is the case, then it's more important for you to start believing in yourself, than it is to get her back.

Watch this video

Regardless of whether you want to get her back or not, you must get yourself the point where you know that you deserve better than a woman who isn't 100% loyal, loving and devoted to you.

If you don't, you'll keep getting cheated on by her or by other women that you get into relationships with.

On the other hand, if your ex says that she's sorry for what happened and that she'll never do it again, you need to decide then and there to forgive her and continue on with the relationship.

You can't be the one holding grudges and then expecting the relationship to last.

So

When Getting an Ex Back Who Cheated On You, Avoid Make the Following Mistakes

If you and your ex decide to hook up again regardless of the fact that she cheated, you need to start with a clean slate.

If you get her back and then continue to behave in ways that turned her off before, she will most-likely end up cheating on you again.

So, some mistakes to avoid making are

1. Taking her back without the ability to keep her attracted and build on her feelings over time.

It's your responsibility as the man to maintain and grow the love, respect and attraction between you and a woman over time.

People don't talk about in the media, at the dinner table or even amongst friends because it seems politically correct and unfair, but that is the way it really goes.

If a man lacks the relationship skills required to keep a relationship together by deepening his woman's feelings over time, she will break up with him or cheat on him.

There's no way around it, which is why there is such a high divorce and break up rate (even for men who are rich and successful and famous).

You have to know how to keep her attracted and build on her feelings over time.

So, when you and her get back together again, you can't just assume that everything is now okay and then do nothing to deepen her feelings of respect, attraction and love.

Women hate it when they are seduced back into a relationship with an ex who promises that things will be different this time, only to discover that he still doesn't even know how to keep her attracted and guide her into deeper feelings of love and respect over time.

If you want the relationship to last the second time around, you need make your ex feel strong, intense feelings of respect, sexual attraction and love for you.

Don't worry â€¢ it's easy to do.

In fact, it takes 100 times less effort to do that than to do what most guys do (e.g. sucking up to her, buying her gifts, doing chores for her) when trying to get an ex back and keep a relationship together.

When you naturally and easily make her have strong feelings for you again, she will then allow herself to fall madly in love with you and open her heart and mind to the experience of being in a loving, committed relationship with you again.

Another mistake to avoid isâ€¢

2. Not being able to stop yourself from feeling insecure if she is hanging out with other people, or partying without you.

Sometimes, when a guy gets back with an ex who cheated on him, it becomes very difficult for him to stop feeling insecure when sheâ€¢s not in his sight.

He might say to himself, â€¢Now that she has cheated, I canâ€¢t be sure about what she will be up to if weâ€¢re not together. What if she meets another guy who makes her feel attracted? Will she be tempted to cheat again?â€¢

As a result, he may then become clingy, needy or jealous and controlling even though he doesn't want to.

The thought of her having sex with yet another guy, or with the same guy that she cheated on him with just makes him feel crazy.

He might try to disguise his insecurity by casually texting her and calling her every day as if he's just calling to say hi, but he will really be trying to check up on her and see what she's up to.

He might also continually check her social media profiles to see if she has added any new male friends, if any new guys are clicking like or commenting and if she's in any photos with new guys that he doesn't know.

All of that worrying just drives him mad and he ends up behaving like a completely different person than he used to be when the relationship first started, which completely turns her off.

Of course, being like that is the quickest way to make a woman lose respect and attraction and potentially push her into the arms of another guy.

So, what should you do instead?

As long as you are now making her feel the way that she wants to feel when sheâ€¢s with you (e.g. sexy, feminine and girly, loved and appreciated) then thereâ€¢s no reason why she would look at another guy when sheâ€¢s not with you.

You canâ€¢t control what she gets up to behind your back though. You can only control how you think, behave and react around her.

When you believe in yourself and know that you are more than good enough for her, that confidence and emotional strength will come through and make you way more attractive to her than if you were to be insecure and doubt yourself.

If you are being insecure, she will begin to wonder, “Did I make the right decision in getting back together with him? Can I find a better guy? Do I really want to be stuck with an insecure guy like this? Maybe I should just hook up with another guy and move on completely. That will probably be the best way to fully get rid of my ex because I can see now that he’s not going to change. He still doesn’t understand how to be the kind of confident man that I really want.”

Remember: Confidence and emotional maturity is attractive to her, while insecurity and neediness turns her off.

You’ve got to believe in yourself and in your value to her at all times, regardless of what she says or does to try to make you feel insecure.

3. Becoming too strict on her when the relationship begins again.

As you would understand, you cannot become your woman’s jailer and stop her from going out, or catching up with other people from now on.

Being strict on her and treating her like a naughty little girl that needs to be kept under strict supervision in case she stuffs up again, is the quickest way to make her want to get away from you and the relationship.

If she feels like she can’t relax and be herself, she will just get fed up and break up with you or cheat on you again.

4. Having trust issues.

In a relationship, you have to be able to trust each other fully or else it simply won’t last.

Yes, of course, you now have a very good reason not to trust your ex, but if you’ve made the choice to take her back, then for your sake as well as hers, you need to forgive her and stop holding on to the past.

[image: Can you really forgive her for cheating?]

That doesn’t mean you should be a pushover and avoid any warning signs that she might be cheating again (e.g. she’s secretive, she doesn’t tell you who she’s texting or talking to on the phone, she makes excuses not to see you).

However, if she’s really putting in the effort to be a good, trustworthy girlfriend (fiancée or wife) now, then mistrusting her at every turn will simply erode the relationship to the point of no return.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

5 Mind Games That Women Play With Their Ex's

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

It would be nice if a woman just came out and said, “Yes, I still like you and I want to work things out between us,” or “I feel turned off by you now, but if you re-attract me, I will give you another chance.”

That way, a guy would know exactly where he stands with his ex and he wouldn't have to waste a lot of time trying to figure it out on his own.

Unfortunately, women are usually very unclear when expressing their feelings to a guy after a break up because they want to test if he will remain confident or become insecure when she doesn't reassure him or help through the ex back process.

So, if you currently feel confused about where you stand with your ex, look out to see if she is currently playing any of these mind games with you!

1. Pretending to Be Over the Relationship When She Still Misses Him at Times

[image: Ex giving mixed signals over the phone]

Even if a woman still has some feelings for her ex and misses him at times, she usually won't come out and tell him.

Why?

In most cases, a woman doesn't want to tell her ex about her feelings for him, because she doesn't want to make it too easy for him to get her back.

She wants to know that if he still wants her, then he's going to be man enough to take responsibility guiding both him and her back into a relationship together.

A woman usually waits for a man to take the lead and guide her through the ex back process, rather than helping him through it.

Essentially, she wants to know that he's confident enough to go after what he wants in his life (even if that means going after an ex who is pretending to be over the relationship) without losing his confidence and giving up at the first, second or even third sign of difficulty.

If he can show her that he now has the emotional strength to remain confident and not give up until he gets her back (not by telling her that, but by showing it via his behavior, way of talking and how he reacts to her), she will be able to drop her guard and open herself up to him again.

Instinctively, she will know that she can now rely on him to be the man at all times, rather than being stuck with a guy who constantly needs her to help him along and encourage him emotionally.

When she senses that new strength in him, it makes her feel surges of respect and attraction for him even if she doesn't openly admit it.

So, don't waste a lot of time sitting around and hoping that your ex will give you a clear sign she misses you and wants to get back together again.

If you want her back, itâs up to you to make it happen.

You have to be the one who calls her up and triggers her feelings of respect and attraction again (e.g. by making her laugh, smile and feel happy to be interacting with you again).

Sheâs not going to do that for you unless she is totally in love with you, misses you like crazy and can't move on without you.

Obviously, if that was the case, you wouldn't be reading this article, right?

In your case, you are totally in love with her and you miss her like crazy, but she's just not feeling the same wayâor at least, not acting like that anyway.

So, rather than getting caught up in pointless mind games that will waste time, just start making her feel respect and attraction for you again.

She then opens herself up to the idea of meeting up with you and seeing where things can go from there.

2. Telling Him to Give Her Space So She Can Consider Changing Her Mind, While She Secretly Tries to Find a Replacement Guy

In some instances, a guy might be so persistent and annoying when trying to get back together with his ex, that rather than put up with his behavior, a woman might try to let him down gently and give herself some time to find a replacement guy so he will leave her alone.

She will say something like, âLook, Iâm not sure if I want to get back together again right now, but just give me some time to think about it. Let's not talk for each other for a while. Iâll contact you and let you know when Iâve made my decision.â

The guy might then agree and stop contacting her for weeks, or even months, while he waits for her to make up her mind.

Yet, in the meantime, she is secretly looking to find another guy so she can then say, âI have something to tell you. I've met someone else. We're in love. I don't want to get back together with you. Sorry, but it's over. Please don't contact me. I don't want to ruin things with my new boyfriend.â

He is then devastated because he's just wasted all that time hoping and wishing that things will be different after giving her the space she asked for.

This is why I recommend giving a woman a maximum of 3 to 7 days of space before you contact her again to make her feel respect and attraction for you.

Watch thisâ!

If a guy gives his ex woman too much space, she will often use that time to move on.

If she doesn't move on and he has been giving her space, she might contact him out of curiosity to see if he has moved on.

If he is still waiting around for her and hasn't really changed, then she's not going to feel motivated to get back with him.

She might agree to meet up with him if he asks, but if she sees that he hasn't really changed, then she's going to stick with her decision to end the relationship.

Alternatively, if she doesn't call after being given space, a guy will usually then call her to see if she's changed her mind.

For example: If he calls her after 30 or 60 days and asks, â€œSo what have you decided about us?â€ she can quickly get rid of him by saying something along the lines of, â€œSorry. I haven't heard from you in such a long time that I'm over us now. I'm seeing someone else and I'm really happy. So, please accept that it's over between us and stop calling me.â€

Literally thousands of men have contacted me here at The Modern Man to explain that they went through that kind of experience after a break up.

So, don't waste a lot of precious time giving your ex space in the hopes that she will change her mind about you!

In most cases, too much time apart leads to the woman getting over the pain of the break up, feeling happy again and moving on.

Remember: If you're not actively sparking your ex's feelings of respect and attraction, then another guy will.

What matters most is that you interact with her (over the phone and in person) and make her feel some respect and attraction for you again.

The more respect and attraction that she feels for the new and improved you, the more open she becomes to getting back together.

On the other hand, if she doesn't see or hear from you for weeks or even months and another guy comes along and triggers her feelings of sexual attraction, she will probably forget all about you and move on with him.

Another mind game that women play with their ex's is

3. Giving Mixed Signals to Make Him Become Insecure, So She Can Get Emotional Revenge On Him

Sometimes when a woman is feeling particularly bitter or angry about her break up (e.g. because he treated her badly, cheated on her, became controlling), she might decide to punish her ex for hurting her.

To do that, she will try to stop him from getting over her and moving on, by continually giving him mixed signals about her feelings for him.

For example: Imagine a scenario where a woman might send her ex a text message saying something like, â€œHey. I've missed you lately. When can we see each other?â€

Naturally, the guy might then think, â€œThis must mean she still has some feelings for me. This is great. We're back on!â€

He then tries to call her to arrange a meet up, only to find that she's not answering her phone.

He might try calling her over and over again without getting through, until he reaches the point where he's most-likely thinking, â€œOkay, I totally misread her. I really thought she wanted to get together again. I guess I was wrong. It must be over now because she won't answer my calls.â

Then, just at the point where heâs ready to give up, she might call him on the phone and say something like, *âHey, ex boyfriend. What about that catch up? How long does a girl have to run after you before you give her the time of day?*â once again giving him hope that she wants to get back together again.

They then might arrange to catch up and when they do, she acts disinterested and possibly even flirts with the waiter or other guys around her.

If the guy feels confused and frustrated and he asks her, *âWhy are you doing this to me? Why wonât you just tell me what you want?*â she will likely just laugh and leave him hanging, while feeling better about herself for getting emotional revenge on him for the past.

Alternatively, a woman might keep asking for space, but saying that she still loves him and doesn't want to lose him.

This one is very common.

A woman will say that to keep a guy hanging around until she has fully moved on.

Then, she can hurt him by saying that she is so happy and in love with her new guy and the new guy makes her feel way better than he ever did.

So, donât let yourself get caught up in a situation like that.

If you allow your ex to mess with your head, it will do nothing to change her negative feelings for you and make her want you back.

Instead, simply take charge of the situation and use it as an opportunity to spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

For example: Using the first scenario above, a way to respond when a woman is being cold towards you and flirting with other guys when you catch up, is to laugh at her behavior or ignore it and see it for the test (of your confidence) that it really is.

You can laugh and say, “Oh, flirting with all the guys now, huh?” and laugh. Then, say, “You really know how to work it, don't you? You go girl” and just show her that you find it funny and are not threatened by it.

Don't laugh too much, of course. Don't come across as though you're excited about her flirting with other guys.

Instead, just be relaxed, masculine and easy-going and laugh at her, rather than with her.

She will likely feel a bit shocked that you are being ballsy, but still being a good man and standing up to her in that way.

This automatically puts you back in the power position and as a result, she wonât be able to stop herself from feeling respect and attraction for you.

When that happens, her mean intentions to get emotional revenge on you start to fade away.

She begins to want you back, or at least to get you back so she can then dump you when you feel like you've got her.

So, be prepared for that kind of mind game.

When you get her back, just remain cool, calm and collected.

Don't let her pull you in too deeply and make you love sick again.

Just love her, enjoy hanging out with her again and be prepared for the, “I’m not sure I want to be back together again. I think we should break up.”

If she says that, you should immediately say, “Okay, I agree. It’s over” and then leave if you’re at her place, or get her to leave if she’s at your place.

In other words, don’t get dragged into her mind games.

When she sees that she can’t control you that way, you will be in the power position and she will realize that you really have become the strong man that she wanted you to be all along.

Another mind game that women often play with their ex isâ€¦|

4. Acting Mean and Bitchy to Hopefully Make Him Hate Her, So He Then Moves On

Sometimes a woman will become a completely different person than she was during the relationship, in an attempt to make her ex hate her and move on.

For example: She mightâ€¦|

- Get really angry at him whenever he talks to her.
- Say that she never felt anything for him or that the relationship meant nothing to her.
- Demand that he do lots of nice things to make it up to her for treating her badly during the relationship.
- Talk badly about him to mutual friends, family, coworkers or even to his boss.
- Throw out his favorite things on the sidewalk (especially things that might be important to him).
- Post on social media about what a bastard he was.
- Belittle him in public.
- Disclose personal information about him.
- Lie about him (e.g. that heâ€¦s a bad lover, cheats on his tax returns).

Naturally, when a woman is being intentionally mean and is going out of her way to be hurtful, itâ€¦s difficult to imagine ever being able to change her mind about getting back together again.

Yet, funnily enough, all it usually takes is a spark of respect and attraction to make her drop her guard.

When you make her feel respect for you where she looks up to you and the more dominant, mature one, she can’t help but feel a bit attracted to the alpha male you’ve become.

Of course, it’s not about being bossy, angry or aggressive.

Instead, it’s about being emotionally strong (no matter what she says or does) rather than being emotionally sensitive and weak.

It’s also about being dominant in a loving way, rather than an aggressive or angry way.

When you do that, she naturally feels respect and attraction for you again, even though she will most likely act like she doesn’t.

If you can then continue building on that spark, it will become a raging fire of desire.

She will then go from being mean and bitchy, to saying something like, “Okay, I’m sorry. I can’t believe that I was such a bitch to you when we broke up. Can you ever forgive me? Maybe we can be friends again?”

Of course, you don’t just want to be friends and either does she.

So, this is what you need to do!

That way, your so called “friendship” will immediately become a sexual, romantic, loving relationship again.

Another mind game that women like to play on their ex’s is!

5. Ignoring Most of His Texts to Make Him Worry That He Texted the Wrong Thing and Has Screwed Things Up

If a guy was insecure in his relationship with his ex, she will usually play mind games with him to test whether or not he is now more confident and emotionally strong, or if he is still the same insecure, self-doubting guy that she broke up with.

One of the ways she will do that is by ignoring him when he texts her.

If he keeps hounding her and sending messages like, “Why are you ignoring me? What did I do? What did I say to make you stop talking to me? Did I say something wrong? Tell me?” she will realize that he hasn’t changed at all.

He’s still the same old, insecure guy who is looking to her for answers.

He doesn’t get it that women don’t want to be a guy’s teacher in life about how to be a man.

On the other hand, if he reacts confidently (e.g. stops texting her, focuses on having a good time without her and starts posting photos on his social media pages), she will quickly realize that he’s changed and will start texting him.

I’ve literally heard of that happening for hundreds of guys who’ve contacted me to tell me their ex back story.

Getting an Ex Back is Kind of Like a Dance. You Have to Lead

Have you ever noticed that women like a man to lead when they are dancing?

It’s no accident.

That’s how women are.

Women like a man who is confident enough to lead the way, so they can relax into his masculine direction and just be a beautiful, feminine woman.

The same principle applies to approaching and picking up women (i.e. women stand around waiting to be approached in bars and nightclubs) and relationships (i.e. women go along with whatever relationship dynamic the man creates, whether it’s going to be good or bad for them in the end).

So, if you want your ex back, you have to be a man about it and take the lead.

A lot of guys don’t want to do that or they don’t know that they should, so they wait around and hope that the woman makes all the moves and gets him back.

Alternatively, sometimes a guy might allow his ex to call the shots after a break up, because he feels guilty about the pain he put her through.

He might then put up with her mind games (e.g. showing interest and then losing interest) in the hopes that she will eventually forgive him and give him another chance.

Yet, that rarely works.

If you allow your ex to lead you around in circles by playing mind games with you, it will only make her lose even more respect for you because you're not being a real man.

As a result, she won't be able to feel sexually attracted to you and won't feel much or any motivation to want to give you another chance.

So, don't let her mess you around.

Get her to stop playing mind games with you by focusing on making her have strong feelings for you again.

Lead the way and get you and her back into a happy, committed relationship that lasts.

She will want that if you first focus on making her have strong feelings for you again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex is Giving Me the Silent Treatment

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Have you been making any of these 5 mistakes to cause her to go silent?

1. Texting Her to Discuss Your Feelings

It's only natural that when an ex is giving a guy the silent treatment, he may find himself feeling confused and lost about what to do.

He might be thinking, "How can I make my ex change her mind about us if she won't even talk to me? I need to get through to her. I have to make her understand how much I really care about her!"

In desperation, he might then decide that sending her text messages is the only way to get through to her and tell her how he really feels.

For example: He might text something like, "I know that you're not talking to me right now, but I want you to know I still care about you more than anything. You mean everything to me and I just can't understand why you're giving me the silent treatment now. For the sake of the love we had for each other, at least just talk to me on the phone. Please don't shut me out. I can't handle not being able to talk to you like this. I love you more than anything. Please respond."

However, this rarely causes the woman to think, "Awww! I'm being such a bitch to my ex aren't I? Maybe I should just call him up and make things easier for him emotionally. The poor thing. He's probably so sad. Even though I'm not his woman anymore, I need to take care of his emotions."

That's not how it works.

In fact, when a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy anymore, she just doesn't care about how much he cares for her.

It doesn't matter to her because in her eyes, he's still the same guy that she broke up with and he hasn't really changed.

Essentially, until her ex shows her the new version of him that has improved what she really wanted him to improve (usually completely different to what she said she wanted him to improve!), all her opinions about him are based on her past experiences interacting with him.

For example: If a guy was needy and insecure in the past and he then sends his ex a text discussing his feelings, she will usually think something like, "He's still the same. Even though we've broken up and I'm not even talking to him, he's still telling me all about his feelings and how much he needs me and can't cope without me. Doesn't he realize that he's just turning me off even more by being needy in that way? I don't want a needy, insecure guy in my life who can't cope without me. I want a man that I can look up to, respect and depend on."

What most guys fail to understand is that a woman can't experience the new and improved him via a text message.

It's just a text message.

It's not him.

So, when he texts her, she assumes that he's still the exact same guy that she broke up with, which isn't going to make her feel motivated enough to want to talk to him again.

She then gives him what he might refer to as the silent treatment, but to her, it's just that she's had enough of him not changing the things she really wants him to change (as mentioned above, this is usually completely different to what she said she wanted him to change!).

He might then get annoyed at her for being silent and start texting her things like, â€œWhy are you ignoring me? Do you think that youâ€™re too good to talk to me now or something? You treat strangers better than youâ€™re treating me. At least tell me why youâ€™re giving me the silent treatment. I just donâ€™t get it. How can you just forget about all the good times we had. Doesn't that mean anything to you?â€

Yet, in most cases, rather than convince her to talk to him again, she usually avoids him even more.

Hereâ€™s the thingâ€¦

A woman is not a guyâ€™s property.

She doesnâ€™t have to stay in a relationship with him if she doesnâ€™t want to and she doesnâ€™t have to talk to him when the relationship ends.

So, if you ever get annoyed at your ex for not looking after your emotions or caring about the relationship, she's just going to feel more compelled to stay away from you.

You have to let her feel as though she has the choice not to interact with you, while at the same time, you also need to make her feel attracted and drawn to you again.

If your ex is currently giving you the silent treatment, donâ€™t waste a lot of time texting her about your feelings, or getting annoyed or angry with her for ignoring you, because itâ€™s not going to matter to her.

Instead, only text her as a way to get her on a phone call with you where you can actively make her smile, laugh and feel good to be talking to you (this will make her feel some respect and attraction for you) again and then get her to meet up with you in person.

In person, you can then fully re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you by showing her (via the way you talk, think and behave around her) that youâ€™re no longer the same guy that she broke up with.

You really are a new and improved man.

You have improved the subtle, secret things about yourself that she wished you would change, but didn't have the guts to tell you about.

For example: Sometimes a woman will break up with a guy and say, “Sorry, I just don't want to be in a relationship anymore. I need some time to myself,” but what she really wanted to say was, “I'm breaking up with you because you're too much of a pushover. You're insecure and you lack emotional masculinity, so I don't feel very feminine and girly around you. I need a real man.”

Of course, not all women know how to properly explain what they are turned off by.

If you need help understanding exactly what caused your ex to break up with you and how to get her back, make sure to continue learning from my site.

All the answers are here.

Okay, the next mistake that can cause an ex to give you the silent treatment isâ€¦!

2. Trying to Discuss the Relationship Via Text

For example: A guy who was previously jealous and controlling during a relationship with his ex might text her and say something like, â€œIâ€™m really sorry about everything that happened between us. I know that I was always getting jealous about you hanging out with other people, especially other guys, but it was because I was afraid of losing you. I was a fool and the thing that I feared the most (losing you) happened to me anyway. I just couldnâ€™t stop myself from getting jealous around you, but I know now that it was wrong. The thing is, you are so beautiful that when I saw other guys looking at you, I just went crazy. Iâ€™m sorry. I really messed up because I care about you so much. I really want to work things out between us. Please, can we just talk about this? I promise you that Iâ€™m not like that anymore.â€

Yet, hereâ€™s the thingâ€¦!

When a guy tries to discuss the relationship via text, it usually only makes his ex relive all the negative emotions that she experienced at the time (e.g. anger, frustration, annoyance, fear, disgust, disappointment).

She may then begin to consider what he said and think, â€œYouâ€™re rightâ€¦ you were jealous and controlling. I canâ€™t believe I put up with that for so longâ€¦ and now you want me to talk to you again after everything you did to me? Fat chance! Now that youâ€™ve reminded me about all the things you did to me and itâ€™s fresh in my mind, I feel like I donâ€™t want to talk to you at all. Iâ€™m just going to go silent and not reply anymore.â€

You donâ€™t want to make her feel that way and funnily enough, she doesnâ€™t even want you to make her feel that way.

She wants you to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new you, rather than making her feel turned off by continually reminding her of the old you.

So, regardless of whether you want to apologize to your ex for what happened between you and her, make sure that you avoid discussing the relationship via text.

Instead, leave what happened between you and her in the past (even if some of the things were good) and focus instead on rebuilding her feelings of respect and attraction for the man that you are now.

Show her that youâ€™ve moved past the level you were at when you were together (e.g. youâ€™re no longer jealous, insecure, controlling) and make her feel respect, attraction and love for the new you.

If sheâ€™s like most women, she will keep her guard up initially to check whether the change is real, but no matter what she says or does on the surface (e.g. “I still donâ€™t want to be with you”), she will definitely change how she feels about you deep down.

She will begin to reconnect with the love that she once felt for you and suddenly, you wonâ€™t seem so bad after all.

Many guys are able to make their woman feel that way immediately, so they get her back right away.

Other guys need to actively make her feel respect and attraction over two to three interactions, so it takes a few days or a week.

In other cases, it can take a couple of weeks.

However, one thing is for sure: When you focus on making her feel respect and attraction for the new you, rather than reminding her of the old you, the ex back process is so much smoother and easier.

[image: Make her feel drawn to you again]

She naturally feels attracted to you again and is compelled to give you another chance or at least kiss you and have sex with you again to see how she feels.

Another mistake that can lead to an ex giving you the silent treatment isâ□|

3. Trying to Get Her Back Even Though You Clearly Don't Know How to Give Her the Attraction Experience That She Really Wants

Quite often when a guy reads that he needs to give his ex the attraction experience that she really wants, he makes the mistake of assuming that attraction means physical attraction (e.g. bigger muscles, new hairstyle, improved appearance).

He might then think to himself, â□□ Oh! I can do that. I can make myself look more appealing! That's easy. If that's all I need to do, then cool â□□ I will get her back very soonâ□□ and he may then rush out and give himself a makeover (e.g. he buys new clothes, gets a new hairstyle, signs up at a gym to lose some weight or put on some muscle).

Yet, here's the thingâ□|

A womanâ□□s attraction to a manâ□□s physical appearance isnâ□□t as powerful as her emotional attraction to him.

In other words, a guy might be good looking, have big muscles and wear the best clothes, but if he makes her feel negative emotions when sheâ□□s with him (e.g. unhappy, annoyed, irritable, sad, disappointed, uncomfortable, awkward), then how physically attractive he is won't matter to her because she just doesnâ□□t feel good around him overall.

For example: A guy might be good looking and be a good guy, but he also has a habit of getting angry every time that something doesnâ□□t go his way.

Whether itâ□□s something small (e.g. his woman forgot to put salt in the food), to something big (e.g. she got carried away talking to her friends on the phone and caused him to be late for something), he reacts by getting angry with her and then ignoring her for hours, or even for days afterwards.

Of course, most people get upset when something goes wrong, but if a guy constantly lashes out at his woman and creates a tense, unhappy environment for her to be in, she will eventually stop getting the attraction experience that she wants from him (i.e. to feel safe, protected and to be able to relax around him vs. being afraid to say or do something that might annoy him).

So, if he wants to get her back for real, he needs to be able to show her that he no longer reacts in the same old, immature ways.

He doesn't get angry at her for saying or doing things, including giving him the silent treatment.

In the past, he would most likely get angry at her for giving him the silent treatment and would feel as though she just needed to put up with his anger because she was his woman.

Yet, he now realizes that a modern woman is not a man's property and she will only stay in a relationship if she feels respect, attraction and love for her man.

So, he is now more easy-going and relaxed and can laugh about things without taking everything so seriously.

He understands that even though everyone gets annoyed at certain things sometimes, it's wrong to take his anger out on his woman or anyone else around him.

When she senses and experiences for herself that he's no longer at the same level he was at when she broke up with him, she will then be able to feel some respect for him again.

She will then drop her guard and open herself up to the idea of meeting up with him and seeing where things go.

So, if your ex is currently giving you the silent treatment, you need to focus on giving her the things that she felt was lacking in her relationship with you.

For example:

- If you were insecure in the relationship and reacted by becoming clingy and needy, you are now confident and emotionally independent.
- If she felt more like a big sister or neutral friend to you near the end of the relationship, you now make her feel feminine and girly (i.e. like a real woman).
- If she felt like you were taking her for granted, you now show her (via your actions) that you are more loving and appreciative and are a man of your word. Important: Going overboard and showing her way too much appreciation comes across as desperate, which is why it doesn't work to re-attract an ex. You need to be cool, calm and easy-going about it.
- If you lacked direction and purpose in your life, you are now busy setting some goals for yourself and moving forward towards achieving them and fulfilling your true potential as a man.
- If she felt more emotionally dominant than you because you were too nice and weren't able to stand up to her, you are now more ballsy, but are still a good, loving man.

Those are some examples of the things that you might need to change to actively re-attract your ex.

By showing her that you've improved on some of the things that caused her to break up with you in the first place, she begins to see you in a different way and then giving you the silent treatment starts to look unreasonable to her.

She wants to talk to you.

She wants to see you.

She wants to love you again.

4. Expecting Her to Care Because Things Were Good Between You and Her at the Start of the Relationship

No matter how great the past was, it is still the past and if a woman has lost touch with her feelings of respect, attraction and love for her guy, she's just not going to care about the memories as much as he does.

So, when he is saying something like, “Do you remember how good things used to be between us in the beginning? We could barely keep our hands off each other and when we weren’t together, you used to fall asleep while talking to me on the phone. We had some really great times together, didn’t we? It can’t all be gone, can it? You can’t just give up on our love. We can get all that back if you give us another chance. I believe that we are meant to be together. How we felt at the start is surely a sign that we are meant to be together,” is unlikely to thaw her heart.

Here’s why!

If you weren’t able to get her to the 5th stage of a relationship and keep it there, she’s not going to believe that you suddenly have that knowledge if you’re acting like you did around the time of the break up and haven’t really improved on the things that really turned her off about you.

So, telling her to remember the good times doesn’t help a guy get his woman back.

Instead, she will usually feel annoyed with him for reminding her of how good things used to be before, compared to how badly everything is now.

She will remember how horrible she felt before breaking up with him, how difficult it was to get rid of him after the break up and how annoying it is now that he still doesn’t understand what she really wants and needs from him.

So, if you want to make your ex stop giving you the silent treatment and get her back, you need to start a new, fresh relationship with her based on who you are now.

Don’t bother wasting time going over all the good times from the past and expecting her to care about.

Instead, focus on making her feel respect and attraction for you based on who you are right now.

She doesn’t need to feel attracted to some guy that she dumped in the recent past; she needs to feel attracted to you, now.

5. Trying to Convince Her to Change Her Mind, Rather Than Triggering Feelings Of Respect and Attraction For the New and Improved You

Sometimes, when a woman is ignoring a guy after a break up, he might try to convince her to change her mind about him by sending her a long e-mail or text message.

For example: He might say, “I’ve tried everything to get hold of you, but you just keep ignoring me. After everything we shared, can you at least talk to me on the phone? Please just talk to me. I know that we can work things out because I have changed. I really need to see you, or at least be able to talk to you. I want to show you that things will be different now, but how am I supposed to make it up to you when you are giving me the silent treatment like this?”

If convincing her doesn’t work, a guy might then try to make her feel pity for him by saying things like, “Why are you ignoring me? You mean so much to me. Can’t you see that? How can I prove to you how sorry I am if you won’t even talk to me? I am lost without you. I haven’t been able to sleep or eat properly for weeks. Please just give me a chance to make it up to you.”

Yet, making a woman feel guilty for ignoring you at a time when she doesn't feel much respect or attraction for you is only going to annoy her even more.

She may then start to think, "I can't believe he's trying to use emotional blackmail on me. How immature. How pathetic. Doesn't he realize that women are turned off by emotional weakness in men? Doesn't he realize that saying he is lost without me makes me feel sick as a woman? I want a man, not a boy."

So, don't put yourself in that position.

The only way that your ex will consider talking to you again, is if you trigger her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you from now on.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Should You Tell Your Ex About Your Feelings For Her?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

You should only tell your ex about your feelings for her, if you reactivate some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you first.

If she currently doesn't have much or any feelings for you, she's not going to care if you have feelings for her.

Instead, she will likely say something like, "That's sweet. I know you mean well, but you need to accept that things are over between us," and then she's just going to continue moving on with her life.

So, telling her that you have feelings for her is just not going to be enough to get her back.

To get her back, you first need to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new version of you by showing her via the way you talk, think, behave, act and react, that you're a new man now.

After doing that, it's absolutely fine (and totally recommended by me) that you tell her how you feel about her.

Watch this

When your ex sees for herself that you're not the same guy she broke up with, she naturally begins to feel drawn to you in a new way.

She looks at you as being a new and improved man, rather than the flawed guy that she dumped and didn't want anything more to do with.

Yet, if you're still making the same old communication and attraction mistakes with her as you did before, she isn't going to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Instead, she might be nice towards you (women often do that to prevent their ex from becoming angry or hurting them) and hope that she can move on and replace you with another guy so you leave her alone.

So, before you rush off and pour your heart out to your ex in the hopes that she will change her mind about being broken up with you, make sure that you reactivate her feelings for you first.

That is the secret to getting an ex back for real.

If you want the ex back process to work for you, it's absolutely essential that you start by making her have strong feelings for you again.

When you do, it becomes her idea to get back with you.

Some guys are able to make that happen immediately (e.g. by talking to their ex on the phone or in person), within days and sometimes in more difficult cases, it takes a couple of weeks.

However, making an ex have strong feelings for you is the fastest way to get her back and it's also the best way to do it because she actually wants to be back with you.

2 Classic Mistakes to Avoid When Expressing Your Feelings to an Ex

[image: Mistakes to avoid when confessing feelings to an ex]

When a guy really loves his ex, he might feel compelled to pour his heart out to her and tell her how much she means to him.

Yet, it just doesn't work unless he makes her have strong feelings for him first.

So, make sure that you avoid these two classic mistakes that so many of my clients have made before coming to me for help with getting their woman back!

1. Thinking that by showing her how much you care, it will make her realize that you're the one or that you and her are meant to be together.

[image: Mistakes to avoid when confession your feelings]

When a guy still has feelings for his ex and she is saying things like, "Look, just accept that it's over between us," or "I know you still care about me but I just don't feel the same way about you," he might feel like he's going to lose her forever if he doesn't do something drastic to change her mind.

He might then say to himself, "My ex probably doesn't realize how much I still love her and how much she means to me. I need to show her how much I care so she realizes that I'm the one for her. I'm going to spoil her continuously (e.g. by buying her expensive gifts, paying for her bills and rent, helping her out with chores, errands or studies) until she realizes that I'm the only guy that she can rely on to be there for her no matter what. Then, she won't be able to stay broken up with me because she will have to accept that no other guy will ever love her the way I do and that we were meant to be together."

Women don't work that way.

Even if a woman accepts her ex's gifts and attention, she will rarely change her mind about being broken up because of how nice he is being towards her.

Why?

Doing all of those things doesn't actually make her feel a renewed sense of respect and sexual attraction for him.

In most cases, it just makes him look like a pushover or a desperate ex who is being on his best behavior to hopefully win her back.

Yet, if he doesn't do anything to spark a woman's sexual and romantic feelings, she's just going to be saying things like, "You're so sweet. I'm so lucky to have an ex like you. I'm glad we can be friends now," while at the same time leaving herself open to meeting other men.

So, if you don't want that to happen to you, don't waste a lot of time trying to show your ex how much you care about her by buying her material things or by doing nice things for her.

Instead, focus on sparking her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you every time you interact with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person).

You can do that by making her smile and laugh and by showing her that youâ€¢re no longer the same man that she broke up with.

You are a new and improved man and she can now feel sexually attracted to who you are, not what you buy for her or do for her (that won't make her feel sexually attracted anyway).

She is going to be in a relationship with you, not the things you buy her or do for her.

Women only appreciate that kind of thing from a man that they are in love with, not from a guy who is being desperate and trying to win her over by being on his best behavior.

To get her back, you've got to make her feel attracted to you.

The more that you make her feel good to be interacting with you again, the more it will replace her negative feelings (e.g. anger, indifference, annoyance) with positive feelings such as respect, attraction and love.

Then, when you tell your ex about your feelings for her, rather than her saying something like, â€¢Thatâ€¢s nice to hear and very sweet, but itâ€¢s over,â€¢ she will say something like, â€¢Iâ€¢m glad to hear. I feel the same way about you. Maybe we should give our relationship another try.â€¢

Another classic mistake to avoid isâ€¢

2. Thinking that a woman can be convinced to have feelings based on logical reasons.

Sometimes, when a guy doesn't know what to do to get his ex to change her mind about him, he might try to convince her by giving her a bunch of logical reasons why he believes they should get back together again.

For example: A guy might say, â€¢Please give us another chance. We were so good together at the start. If we try again, we can be like that again,â€¢ or â€¢We experienced so many good times together. Isn't that proof enough that we are meant to be together? Please give us another chance,â€¢ or â€¢These days itâ€¢s so difficult to find someone you can be compatible with. At least you and I already know that we get along so well. Sure we had some problems, but the most important thing is that we already get on with each other, don't you agree? Everything else we can work out together.â€¢

If a couple was married, the man might try to convince her by saying things like, â€¢What about the mortgage? We just bought a new house. I can't afford to keep it on my own and neither can you,â€¢ or, â€¢Do you really want our children to have step fathers and mothers? Theyâ€¢re still so young. Don't do that to them. Please honey, I know we can work this out.â€¢

Yet, regardless of how logical a guy's reasons may be, if a woman doesn't feel respect and attraction for him as a man, she doesn't have to stay with him if she doesn't want to.

His logical reasons do not convince her to have feelings for him.

Even if he convinces her to change her mind, it usually only lasts for a short while and when the woman realizes that nothing has changed, she just breaks up with him again.

Unlike in the past where many women stayed in an unhappy relationship for life out of a sense of duty or guilt (e.g. â€¢What about the kids?â€¢ â€¢What will people say?â€¢) today's women don't have to do that anymore.

A woman today can choose to leave if her man doesn't make her feel the way she wants to feel (i.e. attracted, feminine and girly, taken care of).

Women stay with relationships that make them feel attracted and in love.

and that is something you can make her feel AGAIN.

So, if you want to get your ex back for real, you must begin the ex back process by re-sparking some of her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you.

How? By showing her that you really have improved and are no longer the same guy that she dumped.

Once you do that, she will automatically begin to reconnect with the love that she used to feel for you, except this time it will be stronger, more meaningful and more mature than before.

She might act like it isn't having an effect on her, but it will be.

She will feel compelled to give you another chance, or at least sleep with you one more time to see how she feels after that.

Then, after kissing or having sex, you can talk about giving the relationship another chance.

When you give her some of your logical reasons why the two of you should be together (e.g. it feels good, things are better, it would be fun to see how it goes), it will just be the icing on the cake for her and she will think to herself, "He definitely has a point there. We are good together. Maybe we can work things out between us after all."

What Have You Been Doing to Make Your Ex Feel Attracted Again?

It's great that you still have feelings for your ex and want her back, but what have you actually been doing to make her have feelings for you again?

Unfortunately, many guys have no idea how to go about re-attracting an ex woman, so they end up going around in circles trying to impress her in all the wrong ways.

For example: To get his ex back a guy might

1. Beg and plead

He might say things like, "Please forgive me! I know I stuffed up, but I promise I will make it up to you. I beg you to just give me one more chance. Let me show you that I can be the guy you want me to be."

Why doesn't that approach work?

When a man is begging and pleading with a woman, her survival instinct kicks in and she starts to think, "This guy is too emotionally weak for me. What would happen if life got really tough and I had to rely on him to take care of me? Based on the way he's acting now, it seems to me that I would have to take care of him instead. He would probably break down and cry or get stressed out and make things worse for me. I can't get back together with an insecure, needy, wimpy guy like that. I need an emotionally strong, masculine man that I can look up to and respect. I need a man who makes me feel safe, not a guy who needs me to make him feel safe, loved, happy and secure. He just doesn't understand how to be a man."

Another ineffective approach that guys use is toâ€¦|

2. Apologize excessively

A guy might say something like, â€œIâ€™m so, so sorry. I know that I hurt you. I canâ€™t believe I did that to you when I love you so much. Please forgive me. I donâ€™t know what I will do if you say that you canâ€™t forgive me. I am so sorry for making you feel the way I did. I can't say sorry enough. I really mean it.â€

Why doesnâ€™t that work?

Essentially, apologizing doesnâ€™t get to the core of the problems.

Yes, heâ€™s being sincere, but nothing about his behavior is making the woman feel that if she gives him another chance, things will be different this time.

Heâ€™s just apologizing, but heâ€™s still at the same level that he was at when she broke up with him.

Nothing has changed, so she sees it as an empty apology.

3. Ask her to tell him what he needs to do to make her happy.

A guy might say something along the lines of, â€œJust tell me what you want me to do. Iâ€™ll do anything. Iâ€™ll change anything about me to make you happy. Just say the word and itâ€™s done.â€

Why doesn't that approach work?

A woman doesnâ€™t want to be a guyâ€™s teacher in life about how to be a man.

If she has to explain to him what heâ€™s doing wrong now, she fears (and rightly so) that she will have to continue teaching and guiding him in the future.

She then starts to feel more like a parental figure and taking on that role is not sexually attractive to her.

For her to feel respect and attraction for him again, he needs to figure out what she wants without seeking her help.

She just wants him to figure it out and start being the man she needs, rather than looking to her for answers.

If he can transform and quickly be that man, she will automatically begin to respect him and look up to him again.

Another ineffective approach that a guy might use is toâ€¦|

4. Use the No Contact Rule to ignore her for 30 to 60 days.

Why doesn't that approach work?

When a woman doesnâ€™t have feelings for a guy, sheâ€™s not going to lose any sleep over the fact that heâ€™s not contacting her.

Instead, she will likely use the time to get over him and move on with her life.

Watch thisâ€¦|

If a woman does happen to get back together with her ex after he has been ignoring her, she will usually dump him again very quickly or immediately.

When she realizes that he is still stuck at the same level that he was at when she broke up with him and he still hasn't worked out how to give her the attraction experience she really wants, she just breaks up with him and tries to move on.

So, if you want to get your ex back and keep her back, you must focus on giving her the attraction experience that she really wants, not what you think she wants.

Remember: You might really want to tell your ex that you have feelings for her, but that's about you, not her.

Focus on making her have feelings for you again and then, getting back together will be something that she wants to do too, not just something that you're trying to make happen.

Change How She Feels About You and She Will Be Happy That You Have Feelings For Her Too

[image: Change how she feels about you]

Right now, what matters most is how you make your ex feel when you interact with her (e.g. via text, on social media, on a phone call, or in person)

For example, when you have interacted with your ex lately?

- Have you been making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be around you, or have you been turning her off and making her want to get away from you as quickly as possible?
- Have you been making her feel feminine and girly in contrast to your masculine way of talking and behaving, or has she felt more like a platonic friend or big sister to you? (This is within your control. You can make her feel attracted, girly and feminine. That's what works to get a woman back).
- Has she been able to relax fully into being a feminine woman around you, or has she felt like she needs to take care of your emotions because you're so sensitive now?
- Have you been emotionally strong and emotionally independent, or have you been insecure, self-doubting and needy?
- Have you let her see that you have dreams and ambitions in your life that you're busy working on, or have you given her the impression that you are sitting around waiting to get her back and you don't really care about anything else?

Depending on how you answered the above questions, you will now have a better idea about some of the adjustments you need to make to re-attract your ex.

Once you've begun to make some attractive adjustments and improvements to yourself (you don't have to be perfect, you just need to be at a different level from where you were when she broke up with you), call her on the phone and let her experience the new you.

On the phone call, make her smile, laugh and feeling good to be talking to you again and get her to meet up with you in person.

At the meet up, focus on making her feel the way she wants to feel (e.g. feminine and girly, attracted, respectful of you, reconnecting with the love).

When you do that, she begins to see you differently.

Then, rather than remembering all the things about the old you that she didn't like, she starts to focus on the things about the new you that she does like.

She then drops her guard and opens herself to loving you again.

Then, when you tell her about your feelings for her, she feels the same way and is excited and happy to give the relationship another chance.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Make Your Ex See You as Being Better Than Other Guys

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

4 ways to make your ex see you as being better than other guys areâ€¦

1. Don't See Other Guys as Competition

[image: Don't see other guys as competition]

When getting an ex back, attracting a new woman or maintaining the attraction of a woman when youâ€¦re in a relationship, you should never look at other guys as being your competition.

You are the man.

End of story.

You are the man.

You've got to believe it and never question it.

That's what women want you to do.

Women don't go around telling men that though because most men will get the wrong idea and start acting arrogant and treating women badly.

Instead, women just hope that they can find a man who knows that alpha male secret.

When a woman finds a guy who understands this, her instincts kick in and she feels compelled to stay with him no matter what.

She knows how rare it is to find a man who believes in himself no matter what, rather than other guys who waste their life secretly comparing themselves to other guys and feeling insecure and inferior.

You've got to know that you are the man.

Yet, here's the thingâ€¦

When a guy is still totally in love with his ex and she seems to be moving on with other guys, he will usually be feeling hurt, betrayed and possibly even envious that she is so happy without him.

Unfortunately, the worst thing that a guy can do when heâ€¦s feeling envious is to begin looking other guys as competition for his ex womanâ€¦s love.

He starts thinking about how much taller, better looking or richer other guys might be and it makes him feel insecure and inferior.

[image: Don't see other guys as competition. You are the man]

Then, rather than focusing his attention on showing her that he has changed and become a better man, he behaves in ways that make her think, â€œWhat is my ex doing? Why is he being so childish and immature? Does he really think that behaving like that is going to impress me and make me change my mind about him? The only thing he is doing is turning me off him even more.â€

For example: A common mistake that guys make is to start talking badly about other guys that like her.

He might say something along the lines of, “I have no idea what you see in that guy. He’s so nerdy. Who cuts his hair like that? Haha! I thought you had better taste in men than that!” or “That guy might have big muscles, but I bet he can’t even add up two plus two. You’re obviously going for dumb guys now” or, “All that guy wants to do is have sex with you. He won’t ever love you as much as I do. Don’t do that to yourself. Have some self respect.”

Secretly, he’s hoping that his ex will suddenly think to herself, “Hmmm| he has a point there. Other guys just can’t compare to how great my ex really is. I should just stop looking for another guy and just get back together with him.”

Yet, when a woman sees that all her ex is doing is being critical and unkind about other guys in the hopes that he will look like a better option in her eyes, she feels even more turned off by what she perceives as his jealous, immature behavior.

Here’s the thing|

Women aren’t attracted to a guy when he is being insecure by looking at other guys as competition to him.

She wants you to know that you are awesome and to believe that no matter what she says or does to try to make you feel insecure.

She won’t tell you that, but it’s what she really wants.

So, don’t waste time trying to convince your ex that you’re better than other guys by comparing yourself to them and pointing out their bad qualities compared to your good qualities.

Instead, just focus on sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you by being the new and improved version of you whenever you interact with her from now on.

By the way|

Knowing that you are the man is not about telling her that you don’t see other guys as competition, but literally not comparing yourself to them at all.

Ever.

Do not compare yourself to other guys.

You are better than them and that’s all you need to think and believe.

You don’t need to explain it, try to justify it or try to convince anyone to believe it.

Just do what alpha males do and know that you are the man without questioning|ever.

One of the reasons why it’s so important to never, ever question it is that you can always find something about other guys that you wish you had.

For example: You might want to be taller, have bigger muscles, have a better looking face, have a bigger dick or have more money.

Focusing on things that you wish were better about yourself and worrying that your ex will want those things in a guy will only make you feel insecure.

The most important thing is that you are confident about who you are, regardless of how much better looking, smarter, more successful or wealthy other guys might be compared to you.

Simply build your self esteem around the new, improved version of you.

Then, when you remain calm and relaxed around your ex and let her see that you truly believe in yourself now, she will pick up on your new, confident mindset and will naturally feel respect and attraction for you.

Even if she tries to fight it, she won't be able to stop herself from wondering, Why is my ex not feeling insecure and jealous that I'm not trying to get back with him and have been having fun without him? Maybe he really has changed. Maybe he finally has become a man that I can truly look up to and respect and she feels herself drawn to you again.

2. Give Her the Attraction Experience That She Didn't Get From You, But Secretly Wanted

[image: Give her the attraction experience that she really wants]

A woman will usually break up with a guy without ever telling him what he really was failing to include in the relationship to make her truly happy.

For example: A woman might want her guy to be more supportive of her dreams and ambitions. She wished that he would be more encouraging of her dreams and possibly even help her achieve some of her bigger goals.

Instead, he either just said, That's nice honey. I'm happy for you, when she told him about her dreams.

In some cases, the guy just laughed at her and said something along the lines of, You can never do that! You're not smart enough, or You'll never have the money for that, or You need an education to do that. You only managed to graduate from high school. Just focus on doing something that's actually achievable.

She might then get upset and say to him, You don't understand me, or You're so negative.

If the guy doesn't realize that what she really needs is for him to be more supportive, encouraging and helpful towards her, she will begin to feel unsatisfied.

She will then think about his behavior and start asking herself, Will I ever be able to achieve anything big in my life if I stick around a guy who never takes me or my dreams seriously? Do I want to wake up one morning and discover that I never accomplished anything because of him? He is holding me back. I can't allow this to happen. I have to break up with him.

If she then realizes that he's not giving her the attraction experience she really wants, and he probably never will be able to give her that experience, she will break up with him and look for a guy who can fill that need in her.

Another example of a man not giving a woman the attraction experience that she wants in a relationship is where the guy is insecure about his value to her and as a result, he becomes jealous and controlling.

He then starts to monitor her every move and expects her to report her whereabouts to him when they're not together.

She might then say, Just trust me, or I love you and I'm here with you now aren't I? Don't worry, I won't cheat on you. I love you.

[image: She won't explain the attraction experience for you in detail. She wants you to figure it out on your own and just know how to be the man.]

If he doesn't realize that what she's really saying is, "Stop being so jealous and controlling because you are turning me off and I'm going to break up with you if you keep this up," and he carries on behaving the same way, she will eventually become unsatisfied, break up with him and look for a guy who will be more emotionally secure in his relationship with her.

So, if you want to make your ex see you as better than other guys, it's very important that you find out what she secretly wanted from you that you weren't giving her and start improving on that right away.

Then, when you interact with her and she sees for herself that you've changed and improved on some of the things that caused her to break up with you (she will be able to pick up on that based on the way you now talk, think and behave around her), she won't be able to stop herself from dropping her guard a little bit and start believing that you can now give her what she really wants in a relationship.

3. Make Her Laugh and Smile, Especially When She Is Being Cold or Distant

Chances are high that right now your ex is not being overly friendly and open towards you, right?

She might have even be saying things like, "Leave me alone. What we had is over now and I'm moving on. Can't you see that I'm with someone else now?" or, "Look, we had our chance and it didn't work. I want to be single now and enjoy myself," or, "I just want some time to be alone for a while. I don't know what I want right now."

Naturally, when a woman is saying things like that and being cold and distant towards you, you might feel hurt and be at a loss of how to respond.

When a guy feels that way after his woman dumps him, he might make one of the following mistakes as he tries to show her that he is doing okay without her:

- He brags about how happy he is.

When a woman is being cold, distant and saying things like, "I've moved on. I'm not waiting around for you anymore," the guy might then attempt to make her feel jealous for breaking up with him.

For example: He might say to her, "Yeah, being broken up is totally fine for me too. I've been having a great time going out now that I don't have you holding me back anymore. Remember how you always used to hate going clubbing? Well now I can do it all the time. It's fun."

Yet, in most cases, when a guy is bragging about how happy he is without his ex it's usually because the opposite is true and in reality he's actually feeling lost and miserable without her.

Remember: A woman can easily find out if a guy is really happy without her, or if he's only putting on an act.

All she has to do is say something like, "Wow, okay it looks like you're much happier being single. Pity about that! I was kind of hoping we could work things out between us. I was actually thinking of asking you if you want to try again."

If the guy then quickly responds by saying something along the lines of, â€œNo! No! I still would rather be with you than be single,â€ she will know that he was lying to her and she will lose even more respect for him as a man.

The key is to be genuinely happy without your ex, rather than only pretending to be happy without her.

Then when she interacts with you and sees that you are getting on with your life and have truly been improving yourself as a man, she will begin to feel drawn to you in a positive way.

She will see that you are now at a completely different level as a man than you were when she broke up with you and she will find it difficult to keep thinking of you in a negative way, because she can see that youâ€™re not that guy anymore.

Another mistake that a guy might make isâ€

- He tries to make her feel unattractive compared to him.

When a woman is being cold and distant towards her ex, he might then say to himself, â€œWho does she think I am? How dare she treat me like that? Iâ€™ll show herâ€

He may then put her down and try to make her feel unattractive compared to him, in the hopes that she will feel so bad about herself that she will begin to think that other guys wouldn't want her.

She will then realize that sheâ€™s lucky that a guy like him will give her another chance.

Yet, thatâ€™s not the way to make your ex see you as better than other guys.

If a woman has experience with relationships and is confident and self-assured, she will just assume that her ex is being an insecure jerk who canâ€™t handle the fact that sheâ€™s moving on without him.

On the other hand, if the woman is inexperienced, she will probably feel hurt and she may even doubt herself a bit, but it doesn't mean that she will come running back to him.

In fact, it will often mean that she will begin flirting with other guys to see how many of them she can get to like her.

In the process of doing that, she will usually find herself another guy to start having sex with and she will then use that to make herself feel better and make her ex feel rejected and horrible about himself.

So, don't waste your time trying to get one up on your ex.

Instead, just focus on making her feel so good when sheâ€™s interacting with you from now on that she can't stop herself from wanting to interact with you via text, on social media, on the phone and in person.

The best way to do that is by making her smile and laugh when sheâ€™s being closed off and unfriendly.

For example: Imagine that youâ€™re talking to your ex over the phone right now and she says something like, â€œJust stop calling me. Iâ€™m seeing other guys now. Iâ€™m not interested in you anymore.â€

Rather than getting upset about it, you can turn it into something to laugh about together, which will make her feel respect and attraction for you.

When she says, â€œIâ€™m seeing other guys now. Iâ€™m not interested in you anymore,â€ you can respond by saying in a joking manner, â€œOh no! You mean youâ€™re not sitting around heart-broken and thinking of sneaky ways to try and get me back? I just canâ€™t believe it. Iâ€™m totally devastated. I think Iâ€™m going to cry nowâ€ boo hoo!â€œ and then laugh.

She will most likely laugh, or at least smile when you tease her in that way, especially when she knows sheâ€™s been caught out trying to be bitchy towards you and it has turned into something that youâ€™re both now laughing about.

When she laughs (or even just smiles), it becomes difficult for her to keep pushing you away because she naturally feels good talking to you.

She starts to feel some respect and attraction for you for having the balls to tease her in a tense moment like that and she begins to see you in a different light.

She then drops her guard and becomes more open to interacting with you and even meeting up with you again to catch up and see what happens.

Thatâ€™s when you can really take things up a level and make her fall in love with you all over again.

4. Go Through the Ex Back Process, Hook Up With Her Sexually and Blow Her Mind

The main thing to remember is that the fastest way to make your ex see you as being better than other guys is to actively make her have strong feelings for you again.

When she is interacting with you and sheâ€™s feeling a lot of respect and attraction for the man that you are now, it becomes difficult for her to be thinking about other guys at the same time.

The key is to interact with your ex and continue saying and doing the types of things that are going to keep turning her feelings on for you (e.g. being confident and charismatic, making her laugh and smile, making her feel feminine and girly in contrast to your emotional strength and masculinity, using her bitchy attitude to create funny moments that bring you closer together and show her that youâ€™re not intimidated by her or insecure and hurt without her support).

So, donâ€™t sit around saying, â€œHow can I make my ex see me as a better man than other guys?â€ and hoping that she suddenly changes her mind and comes running back to you on her own.

Instead, just call her up on the phone and let her experience the new you.

Make her laugh and smile and get her thinking, â€œThis is odd. I feel happy talking to my ex again. I never thought it was possible but I actually want to talk to him like this. Itâ€™s fun.â€

Then, get her to meet up with you in person.

At the meet up, continue focusing on making her feel sexual attraction and respect for the new you.

Pay attention to the signs that she may be giving you (e.g. licking her lips, touching you on the arm and/or leg, playing with her hair or a necklace, talking about the good times that you and her shared) that sheâ€™s open to connecting with you on a more intimate level.

When it feels like an appropriate time, give her a hug and if she doesnâ€™t pull away, give her a kiss.

From there, if sheâ€™s open, you can go to your place or hers and hook up with her sexually.

Focus on building the sexual tension between you and her to the point where she realizes that other guys pale in comparison to how you make her feel.

Remember: When you re-spark your exâ€™s feelings of respect and attraction and then blow her mind with the best sex sheâ€™s ever experienced, it will be difficult, if not impossible, for her to see you as being anything other than the best.

Enjoy the great times ahead with her!

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Show Your Ex That You Truly Have Changed as a Man

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To show your ex that you truly have changed as a man, you need to allow her experience the changes when she interacts with you.

It's only on a phone call or during in-person interactions that she can truly assess the new version of you and decide for herself if you have changed or not.

She won't listen if you try to convince her that you've changed â€œ you have to let her experience it on a phone call or in person.

How can you do that?

Remember: Actions Speak Louder Than Words

[image: Actions speak louder than words]

When a woman is saying things like, â€œYouâ€™ll never change. No matter what I say or do, youâ€™ll always be the same guy. Iâ€™ve had enough of our relationship and I don't want you anymore. Just leave me alone. Itâ€™s over between us,â€ itâ€™s only natural that a guy will want to prove to her that sheâ€™s wrong.

He might say, â€œNo, youâ€™re wrong. Listen to me. Iâ€™m not the same guy anymore. I promise you that if we get back together again, youâ€™ll see for yourself that I truly have changed as a man. Just give me a chance to show you. All I'm asking for is one more chance, that's all.â€

Yet, a woman will likely just say, â€œWhateverâ€ you have promised to change before and you didn't. I just donâ€™t believe you anymore. Iâ€™m not interested. Leave me alone.â€

So, donâ€™t bother telling her that you have changed and trying to convince her with your words that things will be different this time around.

Instead, just let her see that you have already changed based on how you now interact with her and the way that you now respond to difficult situations that would have negatively affected you in the past.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was insecure and jealous, she's not going to fully believe him if he tells her, â€œIâ€™m not jealous anymore. Really! Iâ€™m a changed man.â€

To test him, all she has to do is say something like, â€œI donâ€™t know if I want to get back together. Iâ€™m dating other guys now and itâ€™s really a lot of fun being single againâ€ and see the sudden look of sadness and rejection all over his face.

If she hasn't started dating anyone else yet, she might agree to meet up with her ex and exaggerate how much fun she has been having going out to clubs with her friends and talk about other guys who are now interested in her.

If her ex is only pretending to have changed his jealous ways, it will be very difficult for him to hide it when sheâ€™s behaving that way in front of him.

He might then get upset and possibly say, â€œHuh? We've only just broken up and you're already dating? How can you do that to me? Here I am trying to make things right between us and all you're doing is behaving like a trampâ€ and she will instantly know that he hasn't really changed after all.

On the other hand, if she tries to make him jealous and he simply remains calm and relaxed and maybe even teases her by saying something like, â€œI'm glad to see you're finally letting your hair down and having some fun. You were actually quite a bore when we were together,â€ she will feel a bit shocked (in a good way) that he's now so confident and isn't getting angry and jealous like he did in the past.

She will then begin to believe that he truly has changed as a man and will start to feel some respect and attraction for him again.

Making her feel respect and attraction for you again is absolutely essential if you want to get her back for real.

When you trigger your ex's feelings of respect and attraction for the new you, her guard comes down and she starts to believe that you truly have changed and that it's possible for her to love you again.

She then opens her heart to you and opens up to hugging, kissing and possibly even having sex to see how she feels afterwards.

On the other hand, if your actions don't match your words (i.e. you say that you've changed, but you still react in the same old ways that were turning her off), she will just keep pushing you away and saying, â€œI don't care that you're saying you've changed. It's over between us. You have to move on.â€

Understand Her Real Reasons For Breaking Up With You, Not What You Think Her Reasons Are

[image: Understand her real reasons for wanting to break up with you]

Before you try to show your ex that you truly have changed as a man, are you absolutely, 100% sure that you know what really caused her to break up with you?

For example: Sometimes a woman will break up with a guy because he doesn't make her feel feminine (i.e. she feels more dominant than him, or just feels like a neutral friend rather than a woman who looks up to him and feels girly around him).

Yet, she doesn't tell him that.

Rather than spelling things out for him, she will often say something like, â€œYou just don't understand me and what I want. We're not a good match.â€

What she really means is that he isn't masculine enough in how he thinks, talks, feels, behaves and takes action around her and in life.

Even though he might be a good guy and have great intentions with her, he just doesn't know how to take charge and confidently lead the way so that she can relax into feeling totally feminine around him.

For example: If she throws a tantrum, he gets flustered and argues with her, rather than being the man and guiding her girly tantrum back into laughter, smiling and feel good emotions.

He might say things like, “Why are you acting like this? I love you. Just tell me what you want me to do to make you happy and I’ll do it. What do you want? Just tell me! I’m trying my best!” or “You’re crazy. You always get angry like this. You need to go and see a psychologist.”

However, what he doesn’t realize is that she actually needs him to not take her tantrums so seriously.

He needs to understand that a woman isn’t scary when she throws a tantrum. She’s cute, sexy, silly or funny.

He doesn’t have to feel angry, flustered or intimidated when she acts like that.

Instead, he needs to just let her rant and then guide her back to love, laughter, smiling and other feel good emotions.

That’s what a real man does and until a woman finds a real man, she will never be happy and she will always want to break up or get divorced.

Most women don’t know how to explain what a real man is and how he behaves, but they know it when they find it.

The example above of not taking her tantrums so seriously is just one of the things that a real man does.

When a woman finds a man like that, she never, ever wants to let go because it allows her to be a real feminine woman (i.e. girly, emotional, sexual, loving and caring all mixed into one), which is what women want.

So, most women won’t be able to tell you what they really want you to change.

Even if she does know how to explain it, she rarely wants to explain it because she doesn’t want to be your teacher in life about how to be a real man.

If she did that, she would end up feeling more like your mother or big sister, which would destroy her feelings of sexual attraction for you.

So, if you don’t already know the real reasons why your ex broke up with you, it’s important for you to find out before you try to show her that you’re a changed man.

You can’t just guess and hope that you understand her.

You need help.

You must discover the real reasons why she really broke up with you, which in most cases, is going to be completely different than the reasons she gave you.

Put it this way, if you don’t know the real reasons why she broke up with you, you might change all the wrong things about yourself (e.g. you might think she wants you to be more loving and attentive, but what she really wants is for you to be more assertive and not let her or others push you around, or you might think she wants you to spend less time working, but what she wants is for you to be more confident and emotionally strong).

If you have no idea how to figure out her real reasons for breaking up with you by yourself, here are some questions to ask yourself:

- Were you confident and emotionally strong around her, or were you insecure, needy and clingy?
- Did she feel feminine and girly in your presence, or did she feel more like a platonic friend, or big sister?

- Did you have a strong life purpose outside of your relationship with her, or did you make her your sole reason for living and as a result you became jealous, over protective or controlling?
- Were you more emotionally dominant than her, or did she wear the pants in the relationship?
- Did you start out confident and then end up becoming insecure and childish?
- Was she able to continually look up to you and respect you as her man, or did she lose respect for you over time?
- Did she feel loved and appreciated, or did she feel like you were taking her for granted?

When you fully understand where you went wrong with her, you can then change the things she really wants you to change, rather than changing what you think she wants you to change.

When you then interact with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person), she will be able to see for herself that you truly have changed as a man.

When that happens, she will automatically begins to feel respect and attraction for you again, her guard comes down and it becomes possible for her to believe that you really are different now.

You Can't Show Her Via Text That You Have Truly Changed

To show your ex that you truly have changed as a man, you have to have the courage to do it face-to-face (even if you're afraid that she might tell you to get lost).

So, you need to call her and get her on a phone call to start with (if you don't already see your ex in person on a regular basis of course).

When you get her on a phone call, make her feel respect and attraction for you at the start of the call, have a quick chat for about 10-20 seconds and then get her to meet up with you in person.

When you meet up with her in person, you can then show her that you truly have changed as a man and are no longer the guy that she dumped.

Where many guys go wrong is by hiding behind text messages because they are too afraid to face their ex and possibly be rejected by her.

Many guys say, "She doesn't seem like she would be open to talking on the phone" or, "She probably doesn't want to meet up with me."

That's not good enough.

You've got to be a man about this and get her on a phone call and get her to meet up with you in person.

When a guy doesn't understand that, he will often send his ex feeler texts to see how she will respond (e.g. "Hey, how are you doing?" or "I just wanted to say hi and see how you are.")

He is hoping that she will respond with something like, "Hey!! How have you been? I missed you. How about we get together to catch up?" or that she replies a few times and eventually says something like, "So, want to catch up sometime?"

Yet, if a woman already has a low opinion of her ex, how do you think she will feel when she just gets a feeler text message from him?

Will she be thinking, â€œOh, how sweet. My ex is reaching out to me. That must mean that heâ€™s changed as a man. I think Iâ€™ll call him up and arrange a catch up right now,â€ or will she be feeling annoyed and thinking, â€œWhy is he texting me? What does he want? I bet heâ€™s been sitting around missing me all this time and hasnâ€™t changed a damn thing about himself.â€

Remember: Nothing that you put in a text can convince a woman that youâ€™ve changed and that she should forgive you and give you another chance.

Itâ€™s just a bunch of words on a little screen to her.

When a woman canâ€™t see your body language or hear the tone of your voice, she just wonâ€™t believe that youâ€™ve changed for real.

So, if you want to show your ex that you have truly changed as a man, start by being man enough to get her on a phone call and make her feel respect and attraction for the new you, rather than annoy her by sending her pointless text messages.

An Example Of What to Text When She Doesnâ€™t Answer Your Calls

If your ex currently doesnâ€™t answer your attempts to call her, here is an example of what you can text to get her to talk to you on the phone:

Call her and then wait until the next day.

If you still havenâ€™t heard back from her, text her and say, â€œHey, Jenna. I tried to call you yesterday, but I couldnâ€™t get hold of you. I know that youâ€™re really busy so I wonâ€™t take up a lot of your time, but thereâ€™s just something quick I want to ask you over the phone. Iâ€™ll call you again some other time so I can ask you this question.â€

Most of the time a woman will be curious about what you want to ask her and she may then text back and ask, â€œWhat do you want to ask me?â€

Donâ€™t text her back though.

Just pick up the phone and call her right away.

She will want to know what the question is, so she will answer her phone.

Once you have her on the phone, donâ€™t waste time making pointless, polite conversation, or she might get annoyed and assume you tricked her into answering your call.

Instead focus on making her laugh and smile and getting her to the point where she is feeling good talking to you and wondering, â€œWhat is going on here? How did my ex get me to relax like this? Could he really have changed?â€

When you make her laugh, she drops her guard and becomes more open to seeing you as you are now, rather than how she remembers you from the past.

Once you break through her walls, get her to meet up with you in person so that she can really see for herself that you truly have changed as a man.

Just ask her (this is the question you wanted to ask), â€œHey, so how about we catch up for a quick coffee to say hello. Iâ€™m going to be busy on Monday and Wednesday, but I have Tuesday or Thursday free at (whatever time would suit you and her the best). Which of those days would be better for you?"

She will then choose a day and you can then agree to meet up at a certain time.

Of course, your ex might be resistant to meeting with you at first.

So, if she initially says no to catching up, you can say something like, "Hey, it's just 10 minutes for a cup of coffee. We can do that. We can have coffee and be civil with each other. Surely we don't hate each other that much that we can't catch up for 10 minutes and say hello."

Most women don't want to come across as being unreasonable when you're being so mature and will say something like, "Okay, just this once," or "Okay, as long as you promise to leave me alone after that. I'm not promising that we are getting back together just because I am saying yes to a coffee."

Then just go ahead and arrange a good time for you both to meet up.

Be the Man and Get Her Back

[image: Meeting up with an ex for coffee]

At the meet up you need to be bold enough not to let her intimidate you with her cold and distant attitude (most women put on that act at the meet up).

As the man, it's up to you to take the lead and not let your ex try to dominate you with her confident personality or confuse you with her distance and coldness.

For example: She might say something like, "Hurry up. Let's just get this over with and then I never have to see you again."

Rather than let her get to you, just use her hostility or aloofness as a way of sparking her feelings of respect and attraction and showing her that you truly are a confident, emotionally strong, masculine man now.

[image: Be the man and get her back]

When she realizes that you remain confident and easy going no matter how mean she is towards you, her walls begin to crumble and she finally starts believing that you truly are a changed man now.

She realizes that you are now a man that she can look up to, respect and feel attracted to.

Best of all, she realizes that it feels good to be around you now.

She likes who you have become so quickly.

It turns her on.

She starts to reconnect with the loving feelings that she used to have for you and you and her naturally begin to get back together right then and there.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Take Things Slow With an Ex to Get Her Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The 5 steps to follow when you're taking things slow with an ex to get her back are!

1. Reactivate Her Feelings

Your ex has most likely been trying hard to fully disconnect herself from any feelings she once had for you.

When she does that, it makes it easier for her to move on and open herself up to falling in love with another man.

Of course, that's not what you want!

You want to get her back and the fastest way to do that is to actively re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

In other words, switch her feelings back on and get her start reconnecting with the love, respect and attraction she used to feel for you.

If you do that, she will naturally open herself up to getting back with you.

Yet, if you just sit and wait in the background and hope that she somehow reactivates her feelings all by herself, you will most likely be disappointed.

These days, most women are experienced enough with relationships to know that the pain after a break up will go away soon enough.

So, they don't usually come running back to a man that they've dumped, unless he first makes her reconnect with her feelings for him, so she actually wants to be with him again.

Yet, sometimes a guy might say to himself, "I really just want to take things slow with my ex to get her back. I don't want to be pushy and cause her to panic and close herself off to me. I think I'm going to just give her some space to cool off and then, when I get in touch with her, she will feel happy to hear from me, because she will have had time to get over her negative feelings about me and the break up."

Then, because he wants to take things slow, he cuts off all communication with her for 30, or sometimes even 60 days (or more).

As I explain in this video, taking things that slow is a huge mistake in most cases!

When a woman doesn't have feelings for her ex, not hearing from him for a few weeks, or even months, isn't going to matter that much to her.

Rather than make her think, "Oh wow! how considerate of my ex to take things slow and give me some space to feel better about what happened between us. What a nice man! Just for that, I'm going to reward him by getting back together again," she will likely be thinking, "I'm so glad my ex is leaving me alone. Now I can move on with my life without having to deal with him trying to get me to forgive him and give him another chance."

Remember: It's totally fine to take things slow and give her some space, but anything longer than a week usually causes problems, such as:

- She moves on.
- She stops feeling bad about the break up and realizes that she's actually fine without you.
- She starts to believe that you don't care about her anymore, because you're not even trying to get her back.
- She gets annoyed at how slow you are taking things and tries to hurt you (and hopefully get you to make the reconciliation between you and her happen quicker) by hooking up with another guy.
- She starts going out more, meets new guys, feels attracted to them and likes it.

So, don't make the mistake of leaving it up to her to contact you when she feels like it.

She might say to you that she wants to take things slow, but you always have to remember that women usually SAY one thing and WANT a completely different thing altogether.

Watch this video to see what I mean!

If your ex is saying that she wants to take things slow, it is highly likely that she is the sort of woman who hates it when guys follow her instructions.

She wants a man to simply laugh at her suggestion and confidently guide her through the ex back process until they are in a relationship once again.

Remember: You are the man and it's up to you to take the lead and not wait around for your ex to give you the green light that it's okay to contact her and get back together again.

Don't waste a lot of time not interacting with her and hope that she will come running back to you because you're being a good boy and giving her space like she asked.

If you want to take things slow with your ex, that's perfectly fine, but you must ensure that in every interaction you have with her, you make her feel a spark of respect and attraction for you.

Reactivate her feelings and she won't want to take things slow anymore.

Once you've done that!

2. Agree to See Each Other Whenever You and Her Feel Like it

[image: Agree to see each other whenever you feel like it]

A woman might not be open to meeting up with you right away and she may be saying things like, "I don't know if we should see each other again," or "I just don't want to rush things. I don't know if I'm ready to see you again."

That's normal.

A woman rarely wants to make it easy for a guy to get her back, even if she still has feelings for him. Why?

Most women don't want to come across as being too desperate to meet up with their ex, so she will likely just play a little bit hard to get.

If your ex isn't being very open and eager about meeting up with you, don't worry about it.

Just be assertive (in a friendly, easy-going way - not an angry, sulking way) and get an in-person meet up with her.

When you meet up with her in person that is when she will have the best chance to experience the new you and feel attracted to you.

Watch thisâ€¦

So, make sure that you don't settle for just being her texting buddy or waiting around for her to hopefully call you one day and say, "I'm ready now. Let's get back together!"

Thatâ€¦s not how the ex back process works.

The ex back process for men who want to get a woman back requires that you take action and lead the way.

If you do that correctly, a woman will naturally follow along and before she knows it, she will be kissing you, having sex with you and telling you that she loves you again.

So, get the meet up no matter what.

For example: If your ex says something like, â€œI don't know if it's a good idea to see each other,â€ you can say to her, â€œIt's okay. We don't need to rush things. We can be friends. There's no pressure about getting back together again. We can just catch up and see each other when we feel like it and see what happens. It will be fun chatting to each other based on the people we have become since the break up, rather than focusing on past mistakes. We can meet up for a cup of coffee without it being a big deal. That's what friends do.â€

She will most-likely relax a little bit after that and she may say, â€œOkay. I guess we can do that,â€ and you can then arrange to meet up with her right away.

If she doesn't, you just need to say something like, â€œIf you don't want to talk to me ever again after we catch up this time, I will accept that. So, let's just catch up this once and see how we feel.â€

She will almost certainly say yes to that because if she doesn't want to see you again, she will see a way to make that happen.

Of course, when you re-attract her in person, she will want to see you again, so don't worry.

When you meet up with her, focus on making her laugh and smile and feel happy to be around you again.

The happier she feels when she interacts with you in person, the more she starts to believe that youâ€¦re not going to suddenly revert back to being the same guy that she broke up with.

It then becomes difficult for her to say no to the idea of getting back together again because sheâ€¦s feeling good around you now.

3. Don't Go Without Seeing Her For More Than 5 Days

Sometimes a guy will think to himself, â€œMy ex and I agreed to take things slow and only see each other when we both feel like it. I don't want to be pushy and scare her off, so I'm going to let her make the next move.â€

He might then wait for weeks (and sometimes even months) to hear from his ex again after meeting up with her.

Yet, thatâ€¦s not how the ex back process works.

If a woman is feeling nervous or unsure about getting back together again with her ex, the longer she doesn't see him, the more time she has to talk herself out of the usefulness of staying in contact with him at all.

She might then just focus all her efforts on getting over him and moving on by flirting with or having sex with another guy.

So, no matter how slow you and your ex have decided to take things, make sure that you don't go for longer than 5 days without seeing each other.

Remember: The best approach is to be active and get her back by making her have feelings for you again.

You can't make her have feelings for you again if you're not in front of her letting her experience the new you.

5 days of space is enough time to make her miss you and look forward to seeing you again without feeling pressured, but usually not enough time to give her the option to meet someone else and move on.

After 5 days, just call her up again, make her smile and laugh some more and arrange the next meet up.

This time when you meet up with her, focus on taking things up a level.

For example: When you see her you might say, â€œHey, you're looking pretty today. Come here and give me a hug you sexy thing,â€ then hug her and pull away after a couple of seconds.

Then, spend the rest of the interaction with her building up the sexual tension between you and her so that she gets to the point where she's thinking, â€œWhere is this going? I'm feeling so excited again. Why am I feeling this way? Is it a sign that we are meant to get back together? I should follow my heart. My heart is telling me that we should try again.â€

If she's open to it, you and her can then escalate to kissing and sex that day or night.

However, if she's still a bit nervous, just continue taking things slow with her while rebuilding her feelings of respect, sexual attraction and love for you.

4. Make Sure That the Sex is Better Than it Used to Be

One of the reasons why a relationship sometimes fizzles out is because the spark dies out.

The sex becomes routine and monotonous (e.g. once a week in the missionary position, on Friday nights after dinner and movies) and a woman becomes bored.

Some women will happily put up with that if the rest of the relationship is awesome, but if the relationship also makes her feel bored, uncomfortable or annoyed, then the lack of sexual excitement is going to become more of an issue for her.

So, when you and your ex hook up again sexually, it's important that the sex is better than it was before.

For example: Some mistakes to avoid making are:

- Asking her if it's okay to touch her or kiss her: Most women feel turned off by this because the guy comes across as being insecure. A woman wants to know that the man she's with is confident enough to take the lead and lead them both to touching, kissing and sex without her having to guide him.

- Becoming nervous if she seems to be a little bit resistant or not enjoying herself: If you can't relax, neither can she. It's up to you to do that (e.g. by reassuring her a couple of times in between kisses that you find her sexy and attractive, by touching her on places that you know will turn her on).
- Being afraid to try something new: If you are just sticking to what you've always done, it won't be an interesting, exciting new experience and she will likely feel as though she made the right decision by breaking up with him.

You don't have to be super amazing when you have sex with her again for the first time, but make sure that you are different in how you move, touch her, behave and look at her.

She will notice and she will love it.

5. Give Her an Improved Attraction Experience

When a woman breaks up with a guy, she generally has a good reason for doing it.

Usually, it's because somewhere along the line, the guy stopped giving her the attraction experience that she really wants (e.g. he became an insecure boyfriend or husband, whereas she feels attracted to confidence), which caused her feelings for him to fade.

If you want to convince your ex to give you another chance, one of the most important steps you have to take, is to improve on the flaws that she really broke up with you for, so that when you interact with her, you can then make her feel attracted in the ways she always wanted.

Where a guy might sometimes make a mistake is by focusing all of his attention on getting his ex back and forgetting to make the adjustments to his thinking, behavior and attitude in ways that will actually impress her and attract her back.

He might then keep offering her things that she doesn't really want (e.g. to take care of her better, handle her expenses, improve his appearance to become physically more attractive to her), when what she really wants is for him to be more confident, not put up with her bad behavior and put her back in her place in a dominant, but loving way.

Of course, she's not going to tell him that because he might take it the wrong way and be aggressive rather than dominant, but loving, so she just lets him make the mistake and continues to feel turned off by him.

To get your ex back, you need to know what was really turning her off and then make the necessary adjustments to your way of thinking and behavior so that when you interact with her, you will be giving her the attraction experience that she actually wants.

For example: Some of the things that destroy a woman's attraction experience are when a man

- Lacks purpose and direction in his life so he makes her the center of his world.
- Stops being the man around her and lets her dominate him with her confident personality.
- Lacks confidence and emotional strength and go through life doubting himself and feeling negative and insecure.
- Wants different things in life to her (e.g. he wants to party and have a good time, while she wants to settle down and buy a house or start a family).

- Is jealous and controlling.
- Treats her like a friend or a big sister rather than making her feel feminine and girly when she's with him.
- Takes her for granted.
- Is emotionally immature and expects her to mother him.

Do any of those apply to you?

When you understand where you went wrong in your relationship with your ex, you can then show her (by the way you talk, think, behave and interact with her now) that you've learned from the experience and have become a better man as a result.

Then, when you interact with her and she sees for herself that you're no longer the same guy that she broke up with, her feelings start to change.

She starts to respect you again for having the balls to man up and admit your mistakes, rather than try to disguise them or get her to forget about them as though they never happened.

When she can respect you, she will feel attracted to you and when she is attracted to you, she opens herself up to getting back together again.

6. Keep Busy By Making Progress On Important Goals or Ambitions That You Have in Life Other Than Being With Her

Just because you might have decided to take things slow with your ex, it doesn't mean you need to put the rest of your life on hold.

In fact, one of the things that will speed up the ex back process is that if she sees you having a great life without her.

Where a guy might go wrong (and end up losing his woman as a result), is that he thinks making a woman the center of his world is what she actually wants.

For example: He might give up his interests or hobbies, stop catching up with his friends and possibly even give up on his goals and dreams in life just to completely focus on her.

He might try to justify his actions by thinking, "She's more important to me than anything else in life. I don't need other things to be happy. I have her now. The love that her and I share is more important than career, friends or family. I just want her. She is what matters to me."

However, a woman doesn't want to be a man's main focus in life and be responsible for his mental and emotional well being.

She wants him to love her, look after her and appreciate her, but if he allows himself to become emotionally dependent on her, she will feel smothered and then begin to lose respect for him as a man.

So don't make the mistake of making your whole purpose and reason for living about getting her back.

Instead, focus on getting to the point where you have a strong life purpose, goals, interests and friendships that are separate from your relationship with her.

Quickly get yourself to the point where you are happy with or without her.

When she sees that you don't need her to be happy and fulfilled, you suddenly become the kind of man that she can look up to, respect and feel attracted to.

She then becomes anxious about losing you and instead of wanting you to take things slow, she wants you to hurry up and get her back.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Seduce Your Ex Back Into a Relationship

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to seduce your ex back into a relationship with you, here are the 5 steps you should follow:

1. Trigger her feelings of sexual attraction for you when you interact with her
2. Get her to meet up with you in person
3. Build up the sexual tension between you and her
4. Release the sexual tension with at least a hug, but preferably also a kiss
5. Get her to see that it would be fun to catch up again, even if it's the last time before you and her say goodbye

Okay, let's begin with step 1:

1. Trigger Her Feelings of Sexual Attraction For You When You Interact With Her

[image: Trigger her feelings of sexual attraction every time you interact with her]

One of the main reasons why a woman breaks up with a guy is that, over time, she loses touch with her feelings of respect and attraction for him.

She just doesn't feel that spark with him anymore, so she starts to become bored and begins thinking about leaving him to find a new man.

So, if you want to seduce your ex back into a relationship, the first thing you need to do is re-spark those feelings inside of her.

A really great way of doing that is by getting her to smile, laugh and feel happy every time she interacts with you.

When she is smiling and laughing while interacting with you, it makes it difficult to hold onto any negative feelings about you.

She relaxes her guard and naturally becomes more open to interacting with you again, which in turn gives you more opportunities to trigger her feelings of sexual attraction for you.

Whether youâre texting her, calling her on the phone or seeing her in person, itâs up to you to use every interaction to break down your exâs walls and get her thinking, âHmmmâ! Iâm actually having fun talking to my ex again. It feels good to be interacting with him again.

The more fun she has while interacting with you, the more likely it is that she will want to do it again and again.

From there, you just need to keep saying and doing the types of things that women find attractive in men (e.g. be confident and charismatic, make her feel girly and feminine in contrast to your masculine vibe) and she will slowly open herself up to the idea of being seduced back into a relationship with you.

However, if you don't trigger her feelings of sexual attraction for you first, she's going to continue saying things like, I'm just not interested, or I really don't have feelings for you anymore, or We're just not right for each other. Please just move on and leave me alone. We had our chance and it didn't work.

So, make sure that you focus on making her feel sexually attracted to you before you even attempt to get another chance with her.

Note: Where some guys go wrong is thinking that looking better will trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction and seduce her back into a relationship with him.

For example: If a guy remembers his ex saying something like, Guys with big muscles are so hot! or I think guys who wear suits are sexy, he might then think, If I want to be successful in seducing my ex back into a relationship, I need to be the kind of guy she finds attractive. That means I'm going to have to go to the gym to build up my muscles and get myself some suits, even though I'm more of a jeans and t-shirt kind of guy. I'm going to do whatever it takes to turn her on. If she wants muscles and suits, I will give her that!

Yet, a woman who has broken up with a guy isn't necessarily going to run back to him because he's wearing a nice suit, or packed on some extra muscle.

Sure, a woman might see the physical changes in her ex and say something like, Oh, wow! you've really changed. You look good, but that doesn't mean she's suddenly going to change her mind and want to be with him because of that superficial change he has made.

If a guy doesn't change in the ways that are important to her (e.g. he was clingy and insecure in the relationship, but has now become more confident and emotionally mature, or he was too self-absorbed and took her for granted and has now becomes more attentive and caring), she's not going to feel sexually attracted to him based solely on his physical appearance.

All she has to do is interact with him and if he reacts in the same ways he used to (e.g. clingy, insecure, secretly self-absorbed), she's going to realize that nothing fundamental has really changed about him.

She will realize that his changes are merely superficial, so his muscles and suits will then have no effect on her.

She will just look at him as the same guy that she broke up with and say something like, You really look great, but it's too late for us to try again. It's over.

2. Get Her to Meet Up With You in Person

[image: Get her to meet up with you in person]

Initially texting your ex to open the lines of communication is perfectly fine, but using text is not the best way to seduce her back into a relationship with you.

To seduce your ex back into a relationship for real, you have to meet up with her in person and let her experience the new you.

When she is face-to-face with you and you are sparking her feelings of sexual attraction and respect via your body language, the way you're talking to her and the way you're interacting with her, she won't be able to resist feeling seduced.

On the other hand, if all the interactions between you and her are via text and maybe some over the phone, she will never get to experience the full force of your new and improved personality and confidence.

A lot of guys make the mistake of thinking that because a woman is being nice and friendly via text, she's being seduced and it's working.

If a guy is insecure, he might say to himself, "At least by texting her we are staying in touch. She's not ignoring me or telling me to get lost, so it must be working. Maybe if I just keep texting her regularly, she will start to want me again."

Yet, that's not how it works. Why?

Mainly because she's just getting texts from you.

She's not really interacting with the real you.

It's just words on a screen to her.

Watch this video of me as I help you understand how to get your ex back.

Can you see the difference in actually learning from me when I speak on video, compared to only reading the words that I've typed for you here?

This is why you shouldn't hide behind text when getting an ex back.

Any guy can hide behind texts by typing a bunch of words and acting more confident and emotionally strong than he actually is.

Women know that.

When a woman is getting texts from her ex, she has no way of being able to see if the confident, cool persona he is presenting to her is actually real or not.

So, no matter how open she is to getting back together with you, it's highly unlikely that it will totally happen via text.

If you want to seduce your ex back into a relationship for real, make sure that you get her on a phone call to spark some of her feelings for you and then get her to meet up with you in person.

In person, she will be able to see for herself that everything she experienced over the phone and via text (e.g. your confidence, charisma, emotional strength) is actually for real.

She then won't be able to stop herself from feeling respect and attraction for the new and improved you.

From there, you need to

3. Build Up the Sexual Tension Between You and Her

If you want to seduce your ex back into a relationship with you, creating sexual tension between you and her is an absolute must.

How do you build sexual tension?

By flirting with her and making her laugh and smile during interactions, while also not trying to convince her to get back into a relationship with you.

Flirting makes a woman feel attracted to you and the fact that you're not desperately trying to convince her to get back with you creates a build of desire from her side.

She starts to wonder, “Why am I feeling so drawn to him all of a sudden? Why am I missing him? Why am I feeling this way?”

That’s what you want.

Unfortunately, a lot of guys make the mistake of thinking that flirting with an ex is wrong.

For example: A guy might say, “What if I try to flirt with her and she gets angry with me and leaves? If that happens, then I stand the risk of wasting my only chance with her. So, it would probably be better to act like just a friend and then see where things go from there.”

Then, when he meets up with her, rather than using humor to help her relax and open up, he remains serious and on his best behavior because he thinks that is what she wants.

Yet, seriousness is not attractive to an ex woman because it keeps things distant between you and her.

If she feels awkward, uptight and distant around you, she will naturally focus on all the negative things about you and the relationship.

Yet, when she is laughing, smiling and feeling attracted, she loosens up and starts focusing on the things that she likes about you and the good times that you and her once shared.

So, don’t be serious. Just flirt and make her feel attracted to you again.

She doesn’t want to see you being serious and acting like you need to be on your best behavior to impress her.

She wants you to re-attract her.

For example: If a guy is being very serious at the meet up, she might then take it the wrong way and assume that he is feeling nervous and insecure around her.

She will likely think to herself, “I see that nothing much has changed with my ex since we broke up. He’s still insecure and is still needs me to love him so he can feel good about himself again. This meet up is really turning into a waste of time. He still doesn’t understand how to be a real man. I should just go.”

Of course, there is a place and time to be serious in a relationship, but when a guy is trying to seduce his ex back into a relationship, he needs to first get her to relax and feel comfortable around him, so she can drop her guard.

So, don’t be afraid to flirt with your ex and make her laugh when you meet up with her.

You can’t seduce her by being her nice, very serious or platonic friend.

You have to actively make her feel sexually attracted to you and flirting, laughing and smiling is the perfect way to build up the sexual tension between you and her.

When you do that, she starts to feel good and becomes more open to the idea of getting back together again.

4. Release the Sexual Tension With at Least a Hug, But Preferably Also a Kiss

[image: Release the built up tension with a kiss]

If you've been triggering your ex's feelings of sexual attraction during your meet up with her (i.e. using flirting and humor to create sexual tension, being emotionally stronger, making her feel girly and feminine), your ex will be giving you signs that she's feeling open to you.

For example: She might be

- Playing with her hair or necklace.
- Licking her lips.
- Touching you on the arm or leg during conversation.
- Biting her lip while looking at you in the eye.
- Reaching out to touch your hand.

Whatever the case, it's up to you to take the lead and release the sexual tension that has been building up between you, by giving her a hug and possibly even a kiss.

For example: You might say, in an easy-going way, "It's really great to see that we're not like those ex's who can't talk to each other. We're pretty cool ex's, don't you think? We should hug on that. Come over here and give me a hug."

She might be a little resistant at first, and may say, "No, we shouldn't do that," but just remain relaxed and say, "It's just a hug. We're friends now. We can do that. Besides, we're cool ex's. We're not like other people who can't even be normal around each other after breaking up. Come here, bring it in for a hug."

She will then come closer to you for a hug.

Just pull her close and say something like, "Mmmm, you smell pretty good for an ex. I like it," and then lean in and give her a quick kiss on the lips.

Depending on how she responds, you can either deepen the kiss, or move back and continue building the tension between you and her and try again later if it looks like she's keen.

If she says no to a kiss, just say, "Hey, it's a goodbye kiss. We can do that" and she will almost certainly go for it.

If she doesn't, it means that she is either testing your confidence to see if you crumble and become nervous, or you haven't built up enough sexual tension first and she's just not feeling it yet.

5. Get Her to See That it Would Be Fun to Catch Up Again, Even if it's the Last Time Before You and Her Say Goodbye

[image: Get her to see that catching up with you again would be fun]

After you hug and kiss, don't make the mistake of getting too serious and getting into deep discussions about the relationship.

After all the work you've done to get her to relax and open up to you at this point, you don't want to cause her to reconnect with the negative feelings she may still be feeling about her break up with you.

So, just keep things light and relaxed between you and her and simply ask, "How about we do this again next week?"

She might respond by saying something like, â€œIâ€™m not sure thatâ€™s a good idea,â€ or â€œI donâ€™t know. I need some time to think about it.â€

Regardless of what she says, donâ€™t get upset or start thinking, â€œOh no! This isnâ€™t working! I thought she was interested in getting back and now she doesnâ€™t even want to see me again! Ahhh!! What should I do?!!â€

In most cases, when a woman is reluctant to meet up with you again, it usually has nothing to do with whether she wants to get back together again.

What does it mean?

She simply doesnâ€™t want to make it too easy for you to get her back.

She wants to make sure that youâ€™ve really changed (e.g. youâ€™re not going to start feeling insecure, get upset with her and start begging and pleading after she says an initial no to meeting up again) and that youâ€™re man enough to guide her through the ex back process until you and her are fully back in a relationship again.

So, if sheâ€™s playing a little bit hard to get, simply say, â€œHey, we had a good time today didnâ€™t we? So, why not do it again? If you feel that youâ€™ve had enough of me after that, we can say goodbye there and then and you never have to see me again. How about it? Letâ€™s catch up in a few days.â€

She will probably give in and say something along the lines of, â€œOkay. I can live with that.â€

Then, just go ahead and make plans with her to hook up when itâ€™s suitable for both of you.

Just remember: The point of hooking up with her again, is to continue building on her feelings of sexual attraction and seducing her back into a relationship with you.

By the wayâ€¦

If possible, try to get to sex after the first meet up.

Sex speeds up the process of reconciling the relationship.

It doesnâ€™t fix everything, but itâ€™s one part of the ex back process that you need to make sure you include along the way, rather than acting like just a friend.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

3 Reasons Why a Woman Will Say No to Dating Her Ex Again

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex is currently saying things like, “I don’t want to start dating you again. It’s over between us,” you may be thinking, “Why is she being so stubborn? Why won’t she at least try to work things out with me? I know for sure that I will be a better boyfriend (husband) this time around if she would only give me a chance.”

So, why is she currently saying no to dating you again?

Here are the 3 most common reasons why a woman will say that to her ex!

1. She Doesn’t Want to Call it “Dating” Because That Makes it Sound Like She’s Going to Commit to a Relationship

So, rather than referring to it as a “date” or asking her to consider “dating” you again, just refer to it as “meeting up” or “catching up.”

That takes the pressure off her and she can then relax and see what happens when you do meet up in person.

If you will make that simple change to your wording, you will see an immediate shift in how she reacts to your suggestions.

Why?

In approximately 90% of the ex back cases that I’ve worked on over the years, when a guy interacts with his ex woman and sparks some of her feelings again, she immediately or very quickly becomes open to meeting up with him in person and seeing how she feels.

Yet, she doesn’t want him to refer to it as a “date” because that makes it feel as though it’s a date and then a relationship.

She first wants to see if he has truly changed and improved the things that caused her to break up with him in the first place (e.g. he wasn’t being enough of a man for her, he had become insecure), or if he’s just been putting on an act to get her back and will soon go back to being the same guy that was turning her off before.

For example: A guy might be clingy and overly protective in a relationship with a woman, so after she breaks up with him, to get her back he might try to be more easy-going and relaxed around her.

[image: Clingy, jealous, insecure boyfriend]

Yet, once she agrees to dating him again, he may then slowly start falling back into his old ways (e.g. getting upset if she tries to do things independently of him, insisting on knowing her every move, looking over her shoulder when she is using her phone, asking about her male coworkers, asking what her girlfriends have been saying about him).

For these reasons, a woman will usually say “No” to dating her ex again until she feels confident that he has truly changed the things about himself that turned her off and isn’t just pretending to get her back.

So, in cases like that, a guy just needs to keep showing his ex (via his actions, behavior, communication style and the way he responds to what she says and does now), that he really has changed.

He needs to do that regardless of whether she is being open and friendly to him or not.

Why?

Many women will act cold or become closed off after a break up, because they don't want to make it easy for their ex (especially an insecure ex) to feel confident as he gets her back.

She wants to see that he is confident with or without her help and reassurance of her feelings.

2. She Currently Doesn't Feel Enough Respect and Attraction For Him

Generally speaking, most women don't just give up on a relationship with a guy for no reason at all.

For a woman to break up with a guy, she will have usually reached a point where she is thinking things like, "I don't know why I'm with him anymore. I used to enjoy being around him and he used to make me feel good. I used to love it when he touched me and kissed me, but now I don't feel attracted to him anymore. I don't feel like I'm being my real self when I'm around him either because I seem to always be in a bad mood. I want to smile and feel happy with my man, rather than feel like I need to get away from him to breathe and feel normal again."

In most cases, when a woman reaches a point where she's thinking like that, she may hint about what's bothering her in an attempt to get the guy to change his behavior.

If he doesn't notice or doesn't care to change for her and continues behaving in ways that turn her off, she will gradually lose respect for him.

Without respect, it then becomes very difficult for her to feel sexually attracted to him and without respect and attraction, she will then start to disconnect from her feelings of love and will usually just break up with him if she gets a sense that he just won't change.

So, when a guy comes back after a break up and says something like, "Please give me another chance! Let's just try and work things out. Why don't we just start dating again and see where things go? I'm okay with taking it slow if you want" it usually doesn't work.

Most women will think something like, "Huh? Why would I want to date you again? Based on your recent actions, I don't believe anything about you has truly changed. So, I think I'd prefer to remain broken up rather than get back into the same rut that we were in before."

She knows that he will be on his best behavior if she says yes to dating him and will likely buy her gifts, take her out to fancy dinners and try to romance her.

Yet, all of that is not him. It's just stuff and things outside of him.

A woman needs to be in a relationship with you, not the things you give her.

She has to be able to feel sexually attracted to you, not what you do for her out of the kindness of your heart.

So, what should you do instead?

Start making her feel attracted to the new you!

A woman will usually say no to dating her ex again, unless he makes a sudden, dramatic change in how he communicates and interacts with her and re-sparks her feelings of respect and attraction for him.

Without re-sparking her feelings first, sheâs just going to keep behaving coldly towards him and saying, âNo. Iâm not interested in dating you again.â

Yet, when he makes some adjustment and improvements to his behavior and the way he interacts with her (e.g. heâs more confident and emotionally mature vs. being insecure and needy, heâs more relaxed and can handle her distant attitude vs. getting upset, being emotionally sensitive and taking things too seriously) she will naturally begin to change her opinion about him.

She may start thinking, âHe is definitely behaving differently now, compared to how he behaved before we broke up. Heâs being so much more mature and emotionally strong now. I could possibly say yes to dating him again if he behaved like this from now on.â

When she starts to think like that, she drops her guard and becomes open to meeting up or catching up with you to see what happens.

On the other hand, if a guy tries to get his ex back without first re-sparking her feelings for him (i.e. by showing her that heâs now a different man to the one she broke up with) and instead continues to interact with her in ways that turn her off, then sheâs just going to say things like, âNoâ! Iâm just not interested. Please leave me alone.â

So, if you want to turn your exâs no into a yes, make sure that you re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you first.

Another reason why your ex might say no to dating her ex is thatâ!

3. The Relationship Problems Haven't Been Fixed and She Doesn't Believe He Can Fix Them

In most cases, a relationship doesnât just break up at the first sign of trouble.

When a woman is feeling unhappy in her relationship with a guy, she will usually try different ways to let him know about it (e.g. becoming distant, throwing tantrums, nagging, complaining), in the hopes that he will then take action and fix the problems.

For example: If a woman feels that her guy is whining about his life like a victim (e.g. He might say something like, âMy boss is always making me work late and he never appreciates what I do!â or âIâll never be able to get a good job because I didnât go to universityâ) she might then start pushing him to make some changes and saying things like, âWell, why donât you stand up for yourself with your boss? Why do you let him push you around like that?â or âIf you want a better job, why donât you do something about it?â

When that happens, some guys will think, âYeah, she has a point there,â and then immediately begin to take action and fix his problems.

The woman then notices that he is taking action to become a better man and her love for him grows even deeper.

That's how a relationship gets stronger over time. The couple is always making progress and it never gets stale.

Yet, in most cases, rather than listen to what as she is trying to tell him, the guy will continue whining even more and he might say something like, â€œLookâ€ you donâ€™t understand. If I stand up to my boss he will fire me,â€ or â€œI just donâ€™t have the money to go to university. Canâ€™t you see that? I can't do anything about my situationâ€ and he continues behaving in the same old ways until his woman loses all respect and attraction for him and breaks up with him.

He might then start pleading with her and saying, â€œPlease give me another chance. I promise you things will be different now,â€ but by that stage the woman doesnâ€™t believe that he can change.

Itâ€™s also likely that he doesnâ€™t even know what she really wants him to change and heâ€™s hoping that she will tell him.

It would be nice if women did that for men, but that's not the role that women want to take on in the life of men.

When in a relationship, a woman does not want to have to take on the role of teacher for her guy and explain to him how to be the real man that she (and every other women) wants and needs.

She wants him to figure things out by himself and then take action like a real man by making the necessary changes to his thinking and behavior.

When he does, she can then look up to him and respect him as her man again.

If he then asks her to get back together again, she will be open to the idea because she can see that heâ€™s at a different level now.

However, if she gets a sense that he hasnâ€™t changed, doesnâ€™t even know how to change and is still the same guy that she broke up with, sheâ€™s just going to be saying, â€œNo, I donâ€™t want to do that.â€

So, the first step to getting your exâ€™s respect and attraction back is to fully understand the real reasons why she broke up with you.

In that way, the next time you interact with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) you will be able to show her by the way you talk to her (not by telling her) and interact with her, that you truly understand where you went wrong in the relationship and are no longer the same guy that she broke up with.

When she can see for herself that youâ€™re no longer avoiding making changes to yourself and are now a completely different man from the one she remembers, she wonâ€™t be able to hold on to her negative opinion about you for long.

She might initially feel skeptical and may say to herself, â€œI wonder if heâ€™s really changed or if heâ€™s just putting on a act to try and get me back? Is it possible that he is different now?â€

Yet, when she interacts with you and sees that no matter what she says or does, you no longer behave, talk or react in the ways she expects you to.

For example:

- She expects you to whine and complain like you used to, but youâ€™re now positive, focused and driven in life.
- She expects you to be nervous and insecure around her, but youâ€™re confident, relaxed and emotionally strong now.
- She expects you to give up and walk away with your tail between your legs when sheâ€™s being cold and distant towards you, but you laugh at her attempts to push you away now.

All of that makes her drop her guard and feel more open and even happy to be interacting with you again.

She starts to feel that you've actually made the effort to see things from her point of view and she begins to feel respect and attraction for you again.

On the other hand, if you try to get her back without fixing the relationship problems first, then she will usually just continue saying no to dating you again.

Don't Try to Get Her to Commit to Getting Back Together Before You Re-Spark Her Feelings For You

It's perfectly fine for a guy to want his ex woman back after a break up.

In fact, I had to make a video on that very topic (see above) because many people say things like, "Ah, who cares about an ex? Just forget about her and find another woman."

Obviously those people haven't ever lost someone they really loved and known that they could do so much better in the relationship if they just got another chance.

So, just know that it's totally fine for a man to want his woman back.

Yet, here's the thing...

Just because he is thinking, "Okay, I get it now. I stuffed up, I have learned my lesson and I'm ready to be a better man for her. I want to give the relationship another shot by starting off just dating again like we did in the beginning," it doesn't necessarily mean that a woman feels the same way.

Trying to get your ex to commit to dating or starting again from the beginning, just because you want her to, is usually the fastest way to scare her off.

It's just too much too soon for some women, especially when the guy hasn't really done anything to recreate the spark of sexual attraction between him and her.

He is attracted to her, but she's just not feeling it yet.

So, if he starts saying things like, "I think we should go out again. We can start at the beginning and work things out. It will be like the first time. We can go on a date and see how we feel," she starts to feel that he's coming on too strong.

She feels nervous about saying "Yes" because she's afraid that by agreeing to a date, she would be committing to more than just catching up and seeing how she feels.

According to Wikipedia, dating is defined as: "A stage of romantic and/or sexual relationships in humans whereby two or more people meet socially, possibly as friends or with the aim of each assessing the other's suitability as a partner in a more committed intimate relationship or marriage."

A woman doesn't want to feel like she's being forced back into a relationship with her ex again, especially when he hasn't made her feel sexually attracted to him first.

So, if you are serious about getting your ex back, don't try to get her to commit to anything right away.

Instead, focus on interacting with her over the phone and mostly in person and making her feel surges of respect and sexual attraction for you based on how you talk to her and interact with her.

What to Do: Call Her, Get Her Laughing and Feeling Good and Then Suggest a Catch Up, Not a Date

[image: Talking to your ex on the phone]

Before you even get to the discussion having a relationship again, you have to first make her feel attracted by calling her (or talking to her in person), getting her laughing and then suggesting a time to catch up.

When you catch up with her, you need to focus on rebuilding her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Don't try to talk her into having a relationship with you until you have had sex again. After sex, she will naturally be more open to having a relationship with you again.

So, don't ask her to date you or think about having a relationship again.

You first need to focus on making her feel attracted and feel good around you and a great way to do that is with humor.

When you make a woman laugh and smile, she can't continue to feel nervous or defensive around you for very long.

Even if she tries to act cold or distant towards you initially, eventually she will find herself feeling good and her walls will start to come down.

So, if you want to get your ex back, the best approach is to avoid getting too serious about a relationship too soon and instead focus on making her feel attracted and happy every time she interacts with you.

For example: If a guy calls his ex after a break up and almost immediately says something like, â€œHey Tania, how are you? I was wonderingâ€¦ how about we go out on a date sometime?â€ there's a very high chance she will say no.

He didn't do anything to bring down her guard and make her feel good around him. Instead, he just went right after what he wants; a date.

Yet, he is forgetting that she needs to be able to feel attracted to him as well. A relationship can't be one sided.

So, if a guy approaches his ex in that way, the woman will think something like, â€œNo way – we just broke up! I don't want to go on a date with you. You're expecting way too much from me here. I still don't know if I've forgiven you for what happened between us,â€ and she will likely reply with something along the lines of, â€œNo, I don't think so. It's over between us.â€

Alternatively, she may give him false hope by saying, “Maybe sometime in the future, but not now.”

That's not the reaction you want to get from your ex, which is why you have to make her laugh and smile and then suggest catching up for a coffee, not a date.

Here's how you can do it...

Imagine that you're talking on the phone with your ex right now and she's being a bit cold and distant towards you and maybe even trying to get off the phone.

She might then say something like, â€œLook, Iâ€™m really busy. What do you want to talk to me about?â€

You can then say something along the lines of, â€œI really need your help.â€

Most women are nice, so she will instinctively drop her guard a little bit because you are asking for her help and she may say, â€œWith what? Whatâ€™s wrong?â€

You can then reply in a joking way, â€œIâ€™ve just come from the doctorâ€™s office. Apparently he says Iâ€™m severely dehydrated and the only thing that will prevent me from dropping dead is having a cup of coffee from that little coffee shop we used to go to...remember? So, I really need you to help me out and meet me there for a coffeeâ€ | itâ€™s a matter of life and death!â€

She will probably then realize that you were joking with her all along and she will likely laugh about getting caught out with your joke.

She may then begin to feel curious about your ability to joke with her in a light-hearted way, even when sheâ€™s being so cold towards you and will naturally feel some respect and attraction for you for having the courage to tease her in that way.

When that happens, she opens herself up to the idea of meeting up with you again, because she doesnâ€™t feel threatened.

You can then go ahead and say something like, â€œI was only joking, but how about we get that cup of coffee anyway? It will be fun to see each other again and catch up as friends.â€

That eases her mind even more and she will likely be more open to saying, â€œYes, why not?â€ rather than feeling threatened and saying, â€œNo.â€

When you see her in person, just focus on building on her newfound feelings of respect and attraction and then gently show her that getting back together again will actually be an exciting new adventure for both of you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Know How Your Ex Really Feels About You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Most women won't tell you how they really feel if you ask because they either don't want you getting angry, don't know how to explain it, or don't want to give you clues on how to fix the problem and get her back.

Rather than trying to work out how she feels, what you need to do is start to actively make her have feelings for you from now on.

How can you do that?

Firstâ€¦

Understand What She Likes and Doesn't Like About You

Your ex once really wanted to be with you in a relationship, but something happened that caused her to want to break up with you.

In most cases, the things that really turned an ex woman off aren't very obvious.

They are the subtle things that she and other women don't like to admit (e.g. the guy wasn't man enough for her, he cried in front of her and it ruined her feelings of attraction for him, she got tired of feeling like the emotionally stronger one in the relationship).

Here's the thing thoughâ€¦

If you don't know what her real, subtle reasons are, you won't be able to make the correct adjustments or changes to the way you interact and communicate with her from now on.

If she doesn't see the right changes in you, she will continue to conceal how she really feels about you (e.g. by being nice to you one day and then ignoring you, or being distant and cold and then sending you texts like she used to when things were good).

This may leave you wondering, How do I know how my ex really feels about me?

To answer that question, you need to get 100% clear on what your ex liked and disliked about you.

For example: Not everything about you in the relationship was attractive to her (e.g. you might have become insecure, needy, immature or jealous).

At the same time, not everything about you was unattractive (e.g. you made her feel feminine and girly in your presence, you were caring and loving, you were supportive of her dreams, you were honest and loyal).

If you're not sure what you need to change, ask yourself the following questions

- When I interact with her these days, do I make her smile, laugh and feel happy to be with me, or does she seem bored, get annoyed with me easily or look for excuses to get off the phone or leave?
- Am I emotionally strong and confident around her, or do I come across as insecure?
- Do I take the lead when we're interacting, thus allowing her to relax and be a feminine woman around me, or does she dominate me with her confident personality?
- Am I an emotionally masculine man that she can look up to and respect, or am I way too soft and just allow her to push me around?

- Do I have purpose and direction in my life, or am I sitting around feeling lost about who I am and what my life is going to be about now because she broke up with me?
- Was I loving, caring and supportive towards her, or did I take her for granted at times?

Answering those questions in your mind will allow you to get clearer on the real relationship dynamic between your ex, so you can begin to focus on improving the things that really matter to her. When you truly understand what was turning her off in the past, or has been turning her off since the break up (e.g. you became insecure, you don't make her feel feminine and girly when she's around you anymore, she feels more dominant than you), you can take action on improving those things about yourself right away.

Then, the next time you interact with her, you will be able to give her the attraction experience that she really wants from you, because you will naturally be doing more of the things that turn her on, and you will have improved and changed the things that turn her off.

She might not show you how she feels right away, but the more you interact with her and build on her feelings of respect and attraction, the less she will be able to hide her feelings for you.

4 Mistakes to Avoid When Trying to Determine How Your Ex Really Feels About You

An important part of making your ex have feelings for you again, is to avoid saying and doing the types of things that will turn her off even more.

So, make sure that you avoid making the following mistakes!

1. Asking her how she feels about you.

When a guy wants to know how his ex feels about him, it might seem like the logical thing for him to just say to her, Hey, I know we're broken up but I still care about you and I was wondering how do you feel about me?

Yet, rather than saying something nice like, I still like you or I don't have feelings for you anymore, most women will say something like, I don't know or Don't ask me that.

Why?

After a break up, a woman will rarely be honest with a guy and come out and say exactly what she's feeling because:

- She's afraid that if she tells him she doesn't care about him anymore, he may either start begging and pleading with her for a second chance, or in a worst case scenario, become angry and possibly violent towards her.
- She doesn't want to give him a chance to try and convince her to change her mind (e.g. by telling her that he will change, bringing up all the good times they shared in the past, telling her that he can't live without her).
- She doesn't want to have to explain her feelings to him (e.g. tell him that she doesn't care about him anymore because heâs too insecure) and then listen as he tells her that heâs fixed those things (even though he really hasnât) just to get her back.

- She doesnât want to make it easy for him to get her back by telling him how she feels. She wants to see if heâs man enough to get her back without her helping him along.
- She doesnât want to teach him how to be the kind of man that she needs him to be.

So, rather than asking your ex how she feels about you, just focus on making her feel respect and attraction for the new you, every time you interact with her from now on.

When you make her feel attracted, she naturally becomes more open to discussing her feelings with you.

[image: I like the new you]

She automatically starts to say things like, “I like the new you” or “Why weren’t you like this before? This is how I wanted you to be.”

2. Reading way too much into what she says or texts.

There are many different reasons why a woman will say or do something.

For example: Sometimes a woman might be having a bad day and respond to a text from her ex in a cold way by saying something like, âWhat do you want? Leave me alone,â or âIâm busy now. Please stop bothering me!â

If a guy feels insecure about himself, he might then begin to wonder, âWhat does that text mean? Does she just want me to stop texting her today, or does she never want to hear from me again? Does this mean itâs really over between us and that she wonât ever consider getting back together again?â

On the other hand, a woman might be having a particularly good day, and she might then call her ex and say something along the lines of, âHey, I was just thinking about you and I thought I’d check to see how you are doing. How are you today?â

He might then start thinking, âWow, she’s checking up on me. It must mean that she is missing me and wants me back.â

Yet, neither of her reactions are solid proof that the woman either hates her ex or loves him and wants him back.

Just because a woman is being cold and unfriendly towards her ex, it doesnât mean that she hates him and doesnât ever want to get back together with him.

In the same way, her being sweet and caring towards him doesnât mean that she does.

Here’s the thingâ!

If you spend a lot of time trying to decipher how your ex really feels about you, you will usually end up feeling confused and insecure.

So, don’t waste time wondering how she feels. Just make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction when you interact with her.

Why?

A woman will rarely make her feelings clear to her ex (e.g. because she doesnât want to lead him on, she doesnât want to make it easy for him to get her back), so itâs usually best not to bother trying to figure out how she feels.

Instead, you just need to focus on making her laugh, smile and feel good when you interact with her and then guide her through the ex back process, until she is back in your arms again.

3. Checking her social media profiles for clues.

Sometimes a guy might get so caught up in trying to figure out his ex's feelings for him, that he may spend hours, day after day, looking at all her social media profiles (e.g. on Facebook, Instagram, Twitter) for clues.

For example: He might check her social media to see

- If she still has photos of him and her together up on her profile.
- If she is talking about him with other people and what she might be saying about him.
- If she is going out and having fun, or feeling sad and is avoiding socializing.
- If she is adding any new guy friends.
- If any new guys are commenting or clicking like on her posts.
- If she is posting photos of herself with other guys.

Depending on what he finds, he may think something like, It looks like she hasn't completely forgotten me. She isn't saying that she hates me either, so maybe she still has feelings for me, or What the?! She has moved on without me so fast. She's having fun and hanging out with new guys, so I have no chance now. I guess she doesn't feel anything for me anymore.

Yet, based on the 100s of ex back cases that I've personally worked on with clients, a woman's social media profile doesn't prove anything.

For example: If there are still photos of you and her on her Facebook profile, it might simply mean that she hasn't bothered to take them down, or it could mean that she still has fond memories of you and her together.

It could also mean that she is trying to mess with your head and show you that you still have a chance, or that she is trying to signal to you that she is still open to getting back with you and is hoping that you make it happen.

There are so many possibilities of what she could really be thinking or what her real reasons might be.

So, don't waste your time trying to decipher some imaginary code that will tell you how your ex really feels about you.

Instead, what you need to do is interact with her on the phone and in person and make her have feelings of respect, attraction and love for you again.

4. Asking her friends or family to help you understand what she is thinking or feeling.

As a last resort, a guy might call up his ex's friends or family and ask them things like, Does she still talk about me? Does she say that she still has feelings for me? Do you think there's a chance we can get back together again? Is she always like this with ex boyfriends? Do you have any idea how I can get through to her and show her that I've changed? Do you think she is open to giving *me another chance?*â□□

In some cases a guy might even ask a friend or family member to â□□put in a good wordâ□□ for him and try to convince his ex to give him another chance.

However, by calling your exâ□□s friends and family, not only are you putting them in an awkward position (i.e. by putting them in the middle of your break up and expecting them to pick sides), you are also running the risk of really annoying your ex.

If she finds out that you've beenÂ bothering her friends and family, she may think, *â□□Why doesnâ□□t he just man up and call me himself if he has anything to ask? Why is he being a coward and hiding behind other people?*â□□ and she will then feel even turned off by you.

Remember: You want your ex to feel good about you, not annoyed, frustrated, or turned off.

If You Want Her Back, Get Her Back

[image: How does my ex really feel about me?]

If you like, you can continue wasting day after day, week after week trying to figure out how to know how your ex really feels about you, or you can just get her back.

Which option do you prefer?

Ignoring her and hoping that she comes running back, or just getting her back now?

If you want to get her back, the quickest way to do it is by actively re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you while interacting with her on a phone call or in person.

This means that you shouldn't sit around ignoring her and hoping she will miraculously send you some sign to let you know that she wants you to contact her.

In 95% of ex back cases that I've worked on, a woman doesn't send her ex a lifeline text like, "I miss you. I want you back. Call me" because there is nothing for her to miss anymore.

By the time most men seek real help to get their ex woman back, they've already made many of the classic mistakes (e.g. begging or pleading for another chance, sending her insecure texts about his feelings for her, continuing to turn her off in the subtle ways that made her want to break up with him in the first place).

So, if you want to get your ex back, don't waste anymore time using the wrong approach.

You have to pick up the phone and call her and if possible arrange a time to meet up in person.

You then need to focus on making her laugh, smile and think, *â□□Wow, it's so good to talk to him now. I canâ□□t believe he has changed so much since we broke up. He sounds so much more confident and in control now. Iâ□□m really enjoying talking to him. Why wasn't he like this before? Maybe we should just give this another chance.*â□□

The fact is, the more that you spark her feelings for you, the more open she becomes to getting back with you.

When she opens up, she shows more signs of interest and is happy to meet up with you, hug you, kiss you and have sex with you again.

When that happens, you don't have to sit around wondering how she really feels about you, because she will be in your arms again and saying things like, â□□I never thought it was possible to feel this way about you. I just can't get over how much I love being around you now. I'm so happy we're back together. Why weren't you like this before? If you were like this, we wouldn't have broken up. I really like the new you.

Of course, not all women will be that open with their feelings, but when she is in your arms again and kissing you, it's pretty obvious how she feels.

So, what are you going to do now?

Sit around and hope that she contacts you and guides you through the ex back process, or take action and get her back now?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Said That She Felt Like My Mother, Rather Than My Girlfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

A woman might put up with that type of relationship dynamic in the beginning, but if she secretly wants a real man that she can look up to and respect, she will eventually get tired of feeling like the stronger one in the relationship and dump her guy.

If your ex said that she felt like your mother, rather than your girlfriend, you may have made one or more of the following mistakes:

1. Always Letting Her Decide What to Do

Sometimes a guy might think that he's being a good boyfriend or husband when he lets his woman make all the decisions in the relationship.

He might say to himself, I really, really love my girlfriend (or wife) and I want her to be happy. Whatever she wants to do is fine by me as long as it makes her happy. I'm just going to sit back and let her make all the decisions so she always gets to do what she wants to do. I'm sure it's what she wants anyway. She will love me for not being selfish like other guys. I will just do whatever she wants and she will be happy because she won't have to do things that I want to do.

Yet, that's not what women want from a man.

Why?

In a relationship, most women don't want to be emotionally stronger than their man and have to be the one who decides on what to do.

If a woman takes the lead in the relationship and becomes the more dominant one, she will eventually lose respect for her man and she may even start thinking, What a wimp. What a pushover. He's always hiding behind me and waiting for me to lead the way for us. I wish he would just man up for a change and make some of the decisions around here. I'm tired of feeling like his mother and always having to take care of him.

[image: She said she feels like my mother]

She may then try to push him to take on a more dominant role in the relationship (e.g. by throwing a tantrum and saying things like, I don't care what we do today. Why don't you decide? I'm tired of always having to make the decisions around here.)

If the guy catches on to her hint and starts being more masculine around her from then on, she will naturally feel respect for him as a man and her feelings of respect and attraction will come alive and begin to deepen.

On the other hand, if he responds by saying something along the lines of, Why are you being like this? You know that I only want to please you. I just want you to be happy. Just tell me what you want me to do and I'll do it. I'm happy with whatever you decide. I don't care what we do, as long as we are together she will feel even more frustrated and her feelings for him will begin to fade.

The thing is, a woman doesn't want to have to teach a guy how to be the man that she needs.

She wants a man who already understands what it takes to be the man in a relationship or a man who gets help and just starts being that man, rather than having to teach him like his mother or sister.

Note: When I refer to getting help, I can obviously be that help you need. However, be warned! Do not tell her that you are getting help. Do not tell her that you are trying to deal with your problems and issues and man up for her.

She does not want to hear that.

Why? It makes her feel like your mother or big sister!

If you say something like, "I want you to know that I found someone to help me and I'm learning how to be more of a man for you," she will feel as though you're expecting a mother to son response of, "Good boy. I'm so proud of you."

She doesn't want to feel that way about you anymore.

So, what should you do instead?

Just get help (i.e. from me) and don't tell her about it. Just learn and start being the man, rather than talking about how you're trying to be the man.

Be the man.

Let her see that come through in how you now talk, behave and react to her.

Don't tell her that you've become more of a man. Just be more of a man and she will see it for herself.

Here's the thing!

In a relationship, a woman wants to be able to rely on her man to confidently lead the way and provide the emotional strength and support that she needs to make her feel safe, protected and taken care of.

It's totally fine if she makes some of the decisions once in a while, or even if she fully takes the lead on occasion, but for the most part, she wants to see that her man is leading the way so she can relax into feeling like a real woman in the relationship (i.e. feminine, girly in comparison to how masculine he talks, behaves and acts), rather than feeling like his mother or big sister.

If a guy can't give her that type of relationship experience, she will likely just break up with him and look for a man who already knows how to be the man she needs him to be.

So, if you want to convince your ex that you're no longer the same guy she broke up with, you need to show her (not tell her) that you now have the ability to be masculine and take the lead in the relationship.

When she sees that she can relax and trust that you really are the man now, she will begin to respect you again and she will start seeing you with different eyes.

If your ex broke up with you and gave that reason that she felt more like your mother than girlfriend, you may have also made this classic mistake!

2. Needing Her Regular or Constant Reassurance That She Loved You

Sometimes, when a guy feels lucky to be with his woman (i.e. he picked her up by pure luck, she's a lot prettier or cooler than his previous girlfriends), he might find himself feeling insecure in the relationship with her.

For example: He might think about how beautiful she is compared to him and say to himself, â€œIâ€™m so lucky to have her. Sheâ€™s way too good for me. What will happen when she realizes that? Will she leave me?â€

[image: When insecure thoughts lead to insecure behavior]

As a result of that kind of insecure thinking, he naturally starts to behave in insecure ways (e.g. he becomes clingy, needy, controlling, possessive or jealous).

To reassure himself that she isn't thinking of breaking up with him, he might regularly ask her things like, â€œHow much do you love me?â€ or â€œYou still love me don't you?â€ or â€œYou would never leave me would you?â€ or, â€œDo you still find me attractive?â€ or, â€œWould you ever cheat on me?â€

Yet, rather than make a woman think, â€œMy guy is so caring. He must love me so much to constantly be so afraid of losing me! This is so amazing! I have to stay with him forever and ever!â€ she will usually just think, â€œOhhhh....he is constantly acting like a little boy who needs his mommy to hold his hand and tell him how much she loves him all the time. I don't know for how much longer I can put up with this. Heâ€™s driving me crazy! I need a real man.â€

Hereâ€™s the thing thoughâ€

If your ex chose to be with you in the first place, it was because she once felt enough respect, love and attraction for you to want to be in a relationship with you.

However, if you doubted your attractiveness and value to her during the relationship and allowed your insecurities to turn you into an insecure, needy, clingy guy, itâ€™s only natural that she would then begin to feel more like your mother than your girlfriend.

A woman doesn't want to feel as though she needs to take care of her guy.

She wants to feel as though he would be 100% happy, confident and forward moving in life with or without her.

She wants to be with an emotionally strong man who believes in himself and in his value to her, rather than a guy who is constantly assessing whether or not he is good enough for her and if she is going to cheat or leave.

If a guy is unable to grow up and become the emotionally strong man that a woman wants and needs, she will almost always lose respect and attraction for him and break up with him.

So, if you want to get your ex back, you have to show her by the way you interact with her from now on, that you are no longer the insecure, needy guy she remembers from the past.

Don't tell her that in an e-mail or text.

You have to let her sense that during a phone conversation or, if possible, an in person interaction.

Women who break up with guys who made them feel like a mother, absolutely hate it when the guy e-mails or texts them big, long messages about his feelings, progress on becoming a man and so on.

Just let her see it and sense it for herself on a phone call or in person.

3. Lacking Purpose in Life Outside of Your Relationship With Her

Although thereâs nothing wrong with being a loving and devoted boyfriend (or husband), it cannot be your main purpose in life if you want your relationship to last.

When a man makes his woman the main reason for his existence and essentially focuses all his attention and energy on her and not much else, itâs only natural that he will begin to behave in a clingy way.

For example: A guy might stop focusing on his interests and hobbies so that he can spend more time with his woman.

He might stop pursuing his goals and think something like, âThose goals arenât really that important to me. My relationship with her is what really counts. As long as Iâm with her and making her happy, nothing else really matters. I donât even care about my life outside of her anyway. I just want to be with her.â

In some cases, a guy may even stop hanging out with his friends unless his woman can come along too.

Yet, thatâs not what most women want.

A woman wants to be loved and appreciated, but she doesnât want to be the one providing a guy with his emotional security, sense of identity or reason for living.

Of course, there are some women who like to be with a man who has nothing else going on in his life other than her (usually women who are insecure or unattractive), but the majority of women like to be in a balanced relationship with a man they can look up to and respect.

When a woman respects her man, she will also feel attracted to him and the relationship dynamic will be balanced.

Yet, if a woman feels like she has to mother her man because he is too emotionally weak and insecure to face life head on, she will lose respect and attraction for him and eventually break up with him.

So, if your ex said that she felt more like your mother rather than your girlfriend, to get her back, you need to show her that you have become an emotionally independent man now.

Although you still love her and want her back, she has to be able to see that you donât need her back to be able to live a happy, successful and fulfilling life.

You now have a life purpose that you are striving towards (i.e. a huge long term goal or dream), you have friends and hobbies that youâre busy with and youâre doing the things that youâve always wanted to do, but have been putting off because of your relationship with her.

When you take that step and be a mature, emotionally strong man, you will automatically become more attractive to your ex, because she will see that you are no longer the needy, insecure guy she broke up with.

She will see that you are now a man who knows what he wants and isnât afraid to make it happen.

You are a man that she can look up to, respect, feel attracted to and feel proud to reintroduce to her family and friends.

4. Not Making Her Feel Girly in Comparison to You

One of the best ways to make your ex stop feeling like your mother and start feeling like your girlfriend, is to make her feel girly and feminine when she interacts with you.

Many guys make the mistake of thinking that a woman will be happier if she makes all the decisions, takes on the leading role and feels like more of the “man” in a relationship.

However, even though modern women are independent and have their own jobs, earn their own money and make their own choices, they are still instinctively attracted to and respect a man who is emotionally more dominant than them in a relationship.

Of course, being emotionally dominant and more masculine than a woman doesn’t mean being controlling, bossing her around, disrespecting her or her opinions and ideas, or making all the decisions all the time.

It simply means that the man is the emotionally stronger one, which then makes a woman feel girly in his presence. Why?

When a guy is more masculine than a woman (by being emotionally stronger than her for example), it makes her feel like a real, feminine woman around him.

She can then relax and be girly, feminine, get emotional and focus on the love that she feels for her man, rather than feeling like she is the more dominant one and needs to take care of him like a mother would take care of a boy.

Some guys just don’t understand that about women, so in a relationship, a guy might fall into the habit of letting his woman make all the decisions, rely on her to take care of him emotionally and essentially tell him what to do.

Yet, when a woman feels emotionally more dominant than her man, she begins to lose respect for him.

Without respect, she cannot feel attraction and she may then start to think, “This isn’t a relationship anymore. I feel more like his mother than his girlfriend. I’m tired of mothering him. I want a real man who can make me feel girly and feminine in his presence, rather than feeling like I need to take care of him and hold his hand because he can’t cope in his life. I want a man who makes me feel safe, rather than a guy who needs me to make him feel safe and secure in this world.”

For most women, feeling like a guy’s mother is not a good basis for a strong and long-lasting relationship, so she will just break up with him.

He might then try to get her to change her mind by saying things like, “Please don’t do this to me. Just tell me what you want me to do and I’ll do it. I’ll do anything! I promise. Just tell me and I will do it. You have my word!”

What he doesn’t realize is that he’s doing the exact same thing that caused her to break up with him in the first place – he’s asking her to be his mother by leading him and telling him what to do.

What he needs to understand is that she just wants him to figure it out on his own, so that she can then start to look up to him and respect him as a man from now on.

Confidently Guide Her Back Into a Relationship Like a Real Man

Some guys think that a woman should accept their boyish or immature outlook on life.

Sure, some women will put up with it, but if a woman is beautiful and knows that she can leave her guy any time and easily find a real man, she will usually just leave.

In the past, a woman had to stay in an unhappy or unfulfilling relationship for life, because it was shameful to break up.

However, that's not the case anymore.

These days, if a woman loses too much respect and attraction for a guy, she can choose to leave him any time she wants to, because he doesn't own her and it's no longer shameful to break up or even get divorced.

So, if you want to get another chance with your ex, you need to man up and start being a man that she can look up to and respect.

The good news is that all it usually takes is a spark of respect and attraction.

When she interacts with you and sees that you have become more masculine in your thinking, behavior, feelings, tonality and actions, she will feel a spark of respect and attraction for you again.

She will then begin to open back up to the relationship, even though she may act as though she is still completely closed off and not feeling anything for you.

It's up to you to have the courage to follow through on the ex back process and show her that you now really are the kind of man she can look up to, respect and feel attracted to.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

If Your Ex is Being Nice to You, Does it Mean She Wants You Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

It depends.

Not every woman is the same. Sometimes, a woman will be nice to her ex for one or more of the following reasons:

1. She wants to let him down slowly, rather than rudely rejecting him and causing him to become angry or violent

[image: She doesn't want to get stuck at his place while he begs and pleads for another chance]

Even if a guy is a really good guy who would never do anything to hurt his ex, itâs still a womanâs instinct to protect herself from a potentially frightening and possibly even violent situation.

In a situation where a woman is being nice to her ex, rather than it meaning she actually wants him back, it can sometimes just be a case of her wanting to let him down slowly to avoid the possibility of having to deal with him reacting in an overly emotional way (e.g. he becomes angry or even violent, or alternatively, he breaks down and begs her to change her mind and doesn't let her leave his home until she agrees to give him another chance).

So, rather than put herself in that kind of situation, a woman might instead say something like, âYou really are a great guy and you deserve a great woman. You know that I will always have a place for you in my heart, but right now Iâm just not ready to be the best girlfriend (fianc  or wife) that you deserve. I need some space to sort myself out and maybe sometime in the future, when Iâm not so messed up, we can get back together again.â

[image: She is afraid to break up with him suddenly, in case he becomes angry or violent]

In this way, sheâs not rejecting the guy directly, so it lessens the chance of him becoming violent or angry.

Instead, he might even be left thinking, âOkay cool, she just needs a bit of space. Sheâs being nice to me and isn't saying that there is no chance, so it must mean she still cares about me and wants me back, but just needs some time apart. Iâll just wait for her to figure things out and then we can get back together. Then, everything can go back to the way it was before.â

However, quite often that isn't how it turns out.

A woman doesn't want to be put in the position where she has to defend herself against an angry man, so she usually just tries to get out of the relationship as easily and peacefully as possible â even if that means giving the guy false hope.

2. She wants to lead him on make him think that he has a chance, while she secretly tries to find a replacement guy

[image: Leading her ex on while she secretly tries to find a replacement guy]

Sometimes a woman might want to get revenge on her ex for the pain he caused her, so she pretends to still be interested in him while in reality she is secretly moving on.

She may say to herself, “He was such a jerk to me. Now is the time to give him a dose of his own medicine and see how he likes it when he gets messed around. I’m going to be extra nice to him and let him think I’m still interested in him and in the meantime, I’m going to find myself another guy who will treat me the way I want to be treated. Then, when I am sure that the other guy likes me and wants to be with me, I will give my ex the news and tell him that I’m happy without him now.”

Alternatively, a woman might feel a bit worried about getting stuck without a guy in her life, so she may think, “I’ll just keep my ex around for a while in case I don’t meet another guy. He might not be the guy for me, but having him showing me interest is better than having no guy at all. Then, as soon as I meet someone else to replace him with, he’ll be out of my life for good.”

She might then pretend to be interested in getting back together again (e.g. texting with him all the time, saying that she sometimes thinks about the good times they had, saying things like, “I don’t know if I made the right decision about breaking up with you,” or calling him up to check how he’s doing).

Yet, she’s only leading him on and because the guy usually isn’t actually doing anything to reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for him, it doesn’t matter to her.

In most cases, guys will just be friendly with their ex woman while texting or talking to her because they don’t actually know how to get the spark back and make her really want to give him another chance.

Either that or the guy will think it’s wrong to act like anything other than a friend. He will think that he should just be patient with her and be a nice friend and hopefully, she will then realize that she wants him and needs him.

The thing is though, a woman doesn’t want to have a serious, romantic that is purely based on friendship.

We all know what happens in those kinds of relationships; no sex.

Sex is an important part of a romantic relationship between a man and a woman and at the very least, there needs to be a strong sexual attraction from both the man and the woman, even if they don’t have sex that regularly.

Without sexual attraction and that all important spark that comes with it, a relationship feels boring and stale.

So, if you want to get your ex back for real, make sure that you are ready and prepared to make her feel attracted to you again.

If you aren’t, she isn’t going to feel very motivated about having a relationship with you purely based on being nice friends.

Another reason why a woman will be nice to her is...

3. She wants him back, but isn't going to make it obvious

Even if your ex still cares for you and wants you back, she won't necessarily make it obvious because she wants to see if you have the confidence to get the relationship back without her help.

So, rather than just saying, â€œHey, I know that weâ€™re broken up, but I still have feelings for you and if youâ€™re interested, Iâ€™d really like to get back together again,â€ she likely just going to be nice, friendly and wait for you to make the next move.

She wants to know that you have the courage and confidence to make it happen without her help because she doesn't want to be in a relationship with a guy that she has to carry throughout life.

She wants a man who has the confidence, courage and balls to make things happen, without the encouragement of a woman.

Here's the thing though...

So many guys out there make the mistake of thinking that a woman will be happier if she dictates the pace or if she decides how things should play out.

For example: A guy might say to himself, â€œWell if sheâ€™s being nice to me because she wants me back, I just should wait and let it happen on her terms. After all, I donâ€™t want to come across as being pushy and scare her off. When sheâ€™s ready, she will tell me what she wants and then we can get back together again.â€

Yet, thatâ€™s not what she wants.

She wants him to be man enough to get her back, without her having to hold his hand and lead him through the ex back process.

If he canâ€™t be a man and do that and instead sits around waiting for her to give him the go ahead, she may get to the point where sheâ€™s thinking, â€œWell, it looks like I was wrong about my ex. I thought he was a confident, emotionally strong guy who had the balls to go after what he really wants in life, but clearly thatâ€™s not the case. Instead, heâ€™s really just an insecure, nervous guy whoâ€™s probably going to waste his life waiting for things to happen. He isn't a go getter. He is destined to fail at life because he waits for things to be handed to him, rather than taking action and going through the process. I canâ€™t respect a guy like that. Itâ€™s a pity because he really is a nice guy, but if I canâ€™t respect him then I wonâ€™t be able to feel attracted to him either, so there's no point being together. I guess Iâ€™m just going to have to move on without him. Hopefully the next guy will be stronger than him.â€

Donâ€™t let that happen to you and your woman.

Rescue her before she falls into the arms of another guy who will most likely never love her as much as you do.

Just be the man and make it happen.

Show her that you are now confident and emotionally strong enough to go after what you want in life, including her, regardless of how challenging or difficult it may seem.

Show her that you have the balls to be the kind of man that she needs you to be by interacting with her (on the phone, but preferably in person) and making her feel respect and attraction for the new you.

The more that you make her smile and laugh while you're interacting with her, the more difficult it becomes for her to stay closed off, especially if she secretly wants you back.

When she experiences your confidence and masculinity (in the way you now talk, behave and react to her), her guard will come down and she will open herself up to saying, "Okay, yes, I want to get back together again. Let's give it a try" when you suggest it.

4. She is a nice, loving person who cares about how others feel

Sometimes a woman is just a nice person.

Even though she might have broken up with her guy and broke his heart in the process, she may still care enough about him to want to ease his pain by being nice to him.

For that reason, a woman might make a point of reaching out to her ex as a way of checking up on him to make sure that he's okay.

In her eyes, she's just being a nice, caring person and is doing her best to make sure that he can heal his broken heart.

Yet, it's understandable that a guy who is still in love with his ex might misinterpret her kindness and mistake as a sign that she fully wants him back right now.

Here's the thing though...

Even if your ex is only being nice to you because she's a loving person and currently isn't interested in getting back together again, it doesn't mean you can't change how she feels about you.

You can.

When you spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you again (e.g. by making her smile and laugh when you interact with her, showing her that you've moved past the level you were at before, making her feel feminine and girly in your presence) she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you again.

It happens naturally and automatically without you having to try to convince her of anything.

5. She wants to remain friends, but currently isn't interested in anything else with you

Sometimes a woman might say, "I really care about you, but I just don't want to be in a relationship with you. How about we just remain friends? That's all I can offer right now."

A guy might then jump at the idea, because he thinks that by staying friends with her he might eventually cause her to change her mind.

He might say to himself, "That's okay. I can handle being friends with her for a while. Then, if I'm really nice to her and show her that she can rely on me no matter what, she will hopefully realize that I'm the guy for her and she will change her mind about only wanting to be friends."

He might then hang around her and be really nice, helpful and reliable to show her how much he cares about her as a person.

Yet, although being friends with your ex is better than cutting off all communication with her, itâs not enough to just hang around her and hope she will someday miraculously come to the conclusion that she still loves you.

It just doesnât work that way.

The truth is, if your ex is being nice and friendly to you, it doesnât mean she wants you back sexually and romantically.

To make her feel that way, you have to actively make her feel respect, sexual attraction and romantic love for you again when you interact with her.

If you just hang around her being friendly and not actively making her feel respect and sexual attraction for you again, she will likely enjoy having you around a shoulder to cry on when sheâs down, or someone to hang out with when sheâs bored.

Yet, thatâs not going to make her think, âMy ex is being so nice. Heâs such a great friend. I think I made a mistake in breaking up with him. I want him back now. All I need is a good friendship! Who needs sexual attraction and romantic love? A friendship is more than enough!â

No, no, no.

Thatâs not how it works.

While you are being her nice friend, she will be trying to move on by finding a replacement guy (she will tell you that she isnât looking), while youâre patiently waiting around in the background for her to give you another chance for being so sweet.

So, what should you do instead?

If she wants to be friends, then yes, be her friend, but donât be her sweet, platonic friend who doesnât ever flirt with her and make her feel sexual attraction and juicy, romantic love.

To get her back, you need to actively make her feel respect and sexual attraction for you again by using every interaction you have with her (e.g. on the phone, or in person) to make her smile, laugh and feel good to be around you.

Donât pretend that youâre not interested in getting her back, or that you donât find her sexually attractive anymore.

If you only focus on making her feel neutral, friendly feelings for you, there wonât be any strong reason for her to want you back sexually and romantically.

So, make sure that you flirt with her and make her feel sexually attracted to you again.

Thereâs nothing wrong with flirting with her.

Thereâs nothing wrong with being a confident, emotionally masculine man who is using every interaction with her to re-spark her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

You can do that.

Remember: If youâre not sparking her feelings of respect and sexual attraction, then someone other guy will.

When he does, she will then become fixated on him.

Her hormones will kick in and she will begin to imagine having sex with him and being in love with him.

She will only see you as a friendly ex who she doesn't have any sexual or romantic interest in anymore, so nothing that you do to be sweet and nice will have any real effect.

You've got to make sure that you are making her experience feelings of respect, sexual attraction and romantic love for you, not just friendship and nice, innocent feelings.

Don't Waste Time Reading Into Her Signals

[image: Don't waste time reading into her signals]

Sometimes, a guy can waste a lot of time debating whether his ex being nice to him is a sign that she wants him back, to the point where she just moves on without him because he takes too much time to go through the ex back process.

What you need to understand is that a woman can behave in different ways and it can mean different things.

Women aren't all the same.

You can't rely on her signals because they could mean something completely different than what you are thinking.

This is why you need to take the lead and get her back, without waiting for her to guide you through the process.

For example: A woman might be nice to her ex and be happy to text with him, but she doesn't want to get back with him and is actively looking for a replacement guy.

Alternatively, another woman may be a total bitch to her ex because she is testing to see if he will be man enough to pursue her and get her back, despite her not making it easy for him.

Sometimes a woman being nice to her ex does mean she wants him back and she's hoping that he picks up on that and gets her back.

The point is, women are complicated and if you wait around trying to be sure what your ex really means by her random signals, you may end up losing her because you didn't act fast enough.

If you want her back, then it's up to you to be emotionally strong enough to take the lead and actively make her have feelings for you again.

Where some guys go wrong, is by getting overly excited at any sign of interest from their ex (e.g. she clicks like on social media, replies to a text or answers the phone) and then reacting in a desperate way that turns her off.

For example: A guy might text his ex to say hi and she responds by texting something like, â€œHey. How have you been?â€

He might then start thinking, â€œShe's not telling me to go away. She initiated the text, so maybe she wants me back.â€

He may then start bombarding her with endless text messages hoping to "warm her up," until he eventually confesses how much he has missed her and wants her back.

Yet, when a guy overreacts to a signal of interest from his ex woman, she can easily feel turned off by that because she might imagine him being lonely and feel desperate at home without her in his life.

Even if a woman was initially thinking, “Hmmm| maybe my ex and I can get back together,” when he goes overboard and reacts in desperation, she will instinctively pull away from what she perceives as his emotional weakness.

She will feel as though getting back with him would be like doing him a favor because he seems to need her back to feel good about himself again.

She might then think, “Obviously my ex still wants to get back with me, but he’s really going about it the wrong way. Why is he texting me so much all of a sudden and confessing his feelings for me over an over. His desperation is making me doubt whether I want to settle with a man who doesn’t believe that he can get me back by just being confident and guiding me back into a relationship right now. Instead, he’s just talking about his feelings, being friendly and apologizing for everything that happened. Seems kind of desperate. I don’t like it.”

Always remember this:

It is confidence, emotional strength and masculinity that women are attracted to in men.

Insecurity, neediness and desperation turns women off, even if they might say that it doesn’t just to be nice.

If you want your ex to really want you back, focus on doing more of the attractive stuff around her (i.e. being confident, masculine, charismatic, determined, charming) and less of the unattractive stuff (e.g. being insecure, needy, emotionally sensitive, desperate).

When you behave in the ways that are naturally attractive to her, you will automatically trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

She will then start to think, “Hmmm| I like this new version of him. It feels good to be around him again. I’m actually worried about losing him to some other woman now. I should just give him another chance and see what happens.”

Making her feel that way is what makes a woman want you back for real.

When you focus on turning her back on to you sexually and romantically, she will want you back, even if she was only initially being nice to you for other reasons.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Do You Want Your Ex Back or Need Her Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

For a man to get a woman back, he needs to get to a place where he wants her back, but doesn't need her back to make himself feel emotionally secure and stable again.

It's totally fine for him to still care about her and want her to be part of his life again, but he has to know that he sincerely doesn't need to get her back to feel good about himself and his life.

[image: Convincing her won't work if she doesn't respect you]

If he is just acting like he doesn't need her, she will pick up on it if she interacts with him and it will make her keep her guard up around him.

Rather than make her think, “That's so sweet. My ex must really love me if he can't get on with his life without me. I think I should give him another chance! After all, he needs me! I just have to do it. It's the right thing to do,” she will probably be thinking, “If my ex is falling apart because we broke up, chances are high that he won't be able to cope with other big challenges in his life, like maintaining a happy family, raising children, or paying off a mortgage. Knowing that he can't cope very well under pressure doesn't exactly make me want to run back to him. I now don't feel like I can fully relax with him and know that he's emotionally strong enough to take care of me and our family if we have one. In fact, if we ever got back together again, he would probably turn into the kind of guy who needs to rely on me to take care of him and guide him through life and a relationship. That's not what I want. I want a man I can respect, look up to and feel safe with. A guy who can not only cope on his own, but thrives on his own.”

When she thinks those kind of thoughts, her guard remains up and she won't open back up to her ex, no matter how nice he is to her, how much he ignores her to pretend that he's over her or how often he texts her to stay in touch.

She won't tell him, but somewhere inside of her she will know that he just isn't ready to handle a woman like her and needs to figure out how to be the kind of man she needs.

So, if you want to show your ex that you care and want her back without seeming needy or desperate, just make sure that you first begin to focus on finding joy and emotional fulfillment in your life without her.

I know that it might be difficult to think of doing anything without her or doing anything else other than trying to get her back, but if you are feeling needy, it's going to turn her off.

When you find yourself thinking things like, “I really miss my ex. I just don't know what to do now that she's not here anymore. I need her back. Life isn't enjoyable without her. I don't want to do anything until I get her back,” turn your energy towards other things that you may have neglected in your life as a result of your relationship with her.

For example:

- What are your big goals or dreams for the future? If you're not sure, right now is your chance to find out. Ask yourself, “What do I wish I was doing with my life?” and then begin to pursue that, even if you only take one step towards it. Just start making progress in that direction and you will begin to feel less needy for her.

- What have you been putting off doing because of your relationship? Maybe you always wanted to take up a hobby (e.g. hiking, sailing, photography, martial arts, group exercise classes) but you never got around to it. Well now you can and if you do, it will make you feel less needy for your ex.
- Is there somewhere you've always wanted to go? Is there a city or country that has always fascinated you? You can now take that trip you've always thought about, but never felt was possible. If you can, go with some friends or attend expat meet ups (i.e. meet ups for people from your country who are living in that country) or stay at a hostel so you instantly meet lots of new people and have fun with them partying around the city.
- Is there something you've been longing for? Maybe you've secretly wanted to go after a promotion at work, but you were too afraid it would take time away from your relationship. Now you can go for it by putting in extra time at work to land the better role.

When you start doing things that make you happy, you will discover that not only do you become an even greater man than you already are, you also become more attractive to your ex (and other women).

You then become the kind of man that women respect (e.g. confident, masculine, determined, ambitious) and feel attracted to, which makes you feel great about yourself.

Then, when you interact with your ex again, either on a phone call, or in person and she experiences the new, confident, happy you who is getting on with his life without her, she begins to see you differently.

She starts to think, "I really thought that my ex was going to fall apart when we broke up, but he's being so emotionally strong and mature about it. He's not the same guy I broke up with. In fact, he's actually behaving in the ways that I always hoped he would. I really like this new version of him. I actually want to be around him now. He's fun and interesting and I feel good when we interact. Maybe we can actually get back together again after all. Maybe we should just give it another shot. After all, he has proven himself to me and I feel so differently about him now, so why not?"

When the Need to Get Her Back Causes You to Make Mistakes

[image: She doesn't want to teach you how to be the man she needs]

Sometimes, a guy will be so desperate to get his ex back, that he will rush head first into trying anything that he can think of to make her change her mind about him (e.g. begging, pleading, buying her gifts, being extra nice to her).

In most cases, these attempts fail and a woman may lose even more respect and attraction for a guy because he is coming across as so desperate and needy now that she has broken up with him.

So, if you want to get your ex back, try to avoid making the following mistakes!

1. Needing her back when she is fine without you

If your ex is doing fine without you, she will be even more turned off if she senses that you need her to feel good about yourself again.

It makes her feel like you need her to be like a mother figure in your life and take care of you, because you're so lost and confused without her.

Women are fine to take on that role if it's for their son, but not for their boyfriend or husband.

She wants a man who loves her and wants her back, but does not need her to feel good about himself and feel "sane" again.

Sometimes, a guy might spend his time after a break up worrying and thinking things, â€œIâ€™m so lost without my ex. She was everything to me and now life just feels empty without her. I donâ€™t feel like doing anything if sheâ€™s not in my life to share it.â€

He may then go around for days, weeks and even months, moping and feeling like he cannot get on with his life without his ex.

Deep down, he might hope that if his ex finds out how much he needs her and that heâ€™s lost without her, she will change her mind about him and want to get back together again.

Yet, thatâ€™s usually not the case.

When a woman doesnâ€™t have feelings for a guy, sheâ€™s not really going to care about his emotional needs in their relationship.

Instead, she will usually avoid him and try to maintain her own happiness, rather than calling him up, making him feel better and telling him exactly what he needs to do to get her back.

Rather than being his savior, she will just think something like, â€œI know youâ€™re feeling sad and lost without me, but Iâ€™m feeling fine. In fact, Iâ€™m moving on. Grow up and take responsibility for your life. Be a man. Stop relying on me like a boy relies on his mother. Be your own man.â€

In most cases, she wishes he could hurry up and improve his ability to make her feel respect and attraction so she can give him another chance.

Yet, if he doesn't do that, she simply has to move on rather than trying to help him become the man that she needs.

If a woman feels like he wonâ€™t be able to change and be the kind of man she wants him to be, then she will usually prefer to cut him out of her life completely so that she can get on with finding someone else.

So, if youâ€™re serious about getting your ex back, you need to make her want you back as much as you want her.

How can you do that?

By interacting with her and making her feel respect and attraction for the new you.

When you renew her feelings of respect and attraction for you (e.g. by making her laugh, smile and feel good when she interacts with you, showing her that youâ€™ve moved past the level you were at before), her perception of you changes.

She feels motivated to want to interact with you more, to see if you genuinely donâ€™t need her and are now emotionally independent, or if youâ€™re just putting on an act to get her back.

[image: Get your ex to drop her guard and open back up to you]

If she senses that the changes in you are real, she naturally feels respect and attraction for you and her guard comes down.

The next mistake to avoid is..

2. Trying to get her back without reactivating her feelings first to make her want you back

Guys who can't cope without their woman will often waste time trying to get her back without realizing that they have to reactivate her feelings first.

A guy like that is generally only thinking about his own feelings and how lost and helpless he feels without her.

Heâs not really thinking about how he needs to make her feel at all.

He doesn't clearly understand or accept that getting a woman back is about making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction, rather than giving him another chance because he wants it so much.

So, instead of focusing on saying and doing the types of things that will reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for him, he instead does what he thinks will make her want him back.

For example: A guy mightâ|

- Beg and plead with her to give him another chance.
- Ask her to help him understand what heâs doing wrong so that he can change.
- Tell her how much he needs her in his life.
- Try to convince her by bringing up the past and saying things like, âRemember all the good times we shared together. It wasnât all bad. We can get that back if we try, canât we? After all we've been through, you can't just give up on us like this. Please remember what we used to have. We can have that again. Just give me another chance. I will prove it to you that I've changed. You will see. I might not have changed yet or even know exactly what you want, but I will. I promise. Just give me another chance.â
- Being extra nice to her in the hopes that it will convince her to change her mind.

Yet, hereâs the thingâ|

If a woman has lost respect and attraction for her ex, him behaving in desperate ways around her, isnât going to make her change her mind.

In fact, she may even think, âMy ex is losing it. He just can't stop himself from reacting to everything in his life in a needy, desperate, overly emotional way. I hope he doesnât think that his behavior is actually going to make me change my mind about him. Iâm done taking care of him and being his emotional support system in life. I want a guy who makes me feel as though I don't need to take care of him emotionally. That way, I can be the girl. I can be the emotional and vulnerable one and actually feel like a real woman for a change. I want a guy who is confident and emotionally strong, rather than being so emotionally sensitive and needy. I want someone that I can depend on and feel safe with, rather than a guy that needs me to take care of him.â

In most cases after a serious break up, a woman will only give her ex another chance when he can reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction first.

So, donât waste your time trying to convince your ex to give you another chance by trying any of the desperate methods mentioned above, because you will only be wasting your time.

Instead, make her want you back by reactivating her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you first.

You can do that by making her smile, laugh and feel girly in your presence and by showing her (via the way you talk, think, behave and interact with her) that youâ€”ve moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you.

When you reactivate her feelings for you again, she will be more open to the idea of getting back together with you again.

Yet, if she senses that getting back together with her is mostly about making yourself feel better, she will remain closed off to you.

3. Trying to get her to see how much you care in the hopes that she will then realize that you are the one

Sometimes, a guy might say to himself, *â€”Nothing that I’ve tried has worked to get my ex back so far. Maybe if Iâ€”m extra nice to her and spoil her in different ways, like buying her the things that she really wants but cannot afford, helping her pay her university fees or rent or running errands for her, she will see how much I care for her and she will stop pushing me away and realize that Iâ€”m the one for her. Maybe I just need to be the most helpful ex boyfriend (or husband) possible. Maybe then she will realize that she does need me in her life.*â€”

Yet, when a woman has broken up with a guy because of his neediness, she will perceive his actions as another desperate way of keeping her close to him.

She might think, *â€”Heâ€”s just buying me all these nice things and treating me so well so that he can have an excuse to be around me all the time. He still canâ€”t let go and feel good without me. He needs me to love him to feel good about himself. Sure, itâ€”s nice to get spoiled, but I know what his real motives are...he needs me back. He can’t live without me. He must be losing sleep and worrying all the time. Why can’t he just let go and be happy without me? If he did that, I would at least be able to respect him and lower my guard around him. Yet, he can’t do that. He’s just so needy for me. I donâ€”t want to be his reason for living anymore.*â€”

So, rather than trying to get your ex to see how much you care by being fully available physically, emotionally and financially, focus instead on making her care about you by reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction for you first.

The more you reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you, the faster she will become convinced that youâ€”re at a different emotional level now.

She will see that she loves you, respects you and wants you back in her life, even though you’re not doing anything special for her.

Then, when you get her back and do some special things for her, she will appreciate them so much more and feel lucky to have an awesome man like you.

Going From Needing Her Back, to Wanting Her Back, to Getting Her Back

[image: Get your ex back by guiding her into an even better relationship than before]

If you want to get your ex back, you need to actively make her have strong feelings for you again and then guide her back into a relationship.

Don't waste time making the same old mistakes with her (e.g. texting like a friend, apologizing over and over) and expecting that she will suddenly say, "Wow! You know what? I just realized that I want you back now that you've apologized for the 100th time and sent me yet another friendly text."

You first need to show her via your actions and behavior that you're not the same insecure, needy guy that she remembers.

You really have changed.

Then, if she tests you (e.g. by pretending to be interested in getting back together again and then pulling away) and you remain relaxed and even turn her behavior into something to laugh about, she will be shocked (in a good way) and she will be drawn to you in a way that feels nice.

She may then start to wonder, "What happened to my ex who was so needy and insecure? He didn't react at all like I was expecting him to. He's like a completely different man now. A man that I can actually respect and look up to."

Her feelings of respect and attraction for you will then begin to awaken and she will start to look forward to hearing from you.

She might get back together with you right away, but if she doesn't, don't give up.

Just keep making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new and improved you.

Every time you interact with her and she sees that you are still confident and emotionally strong and that you haven't reverted back to the old you, it will melt another bit of her heart until she's totally in love with you again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

4 Reasons Why Love Becomes Stronger When You Reignite it After a Break Up

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

People break up and get back together all the time, but what a lot of people don't know is that getting back together can be one of the most amazing feelings that a couple can ever experience.

Why?

Here are 4 reasons why love actually becomes stronger when you reignite it after a break up.

1. The Love is More Mature

[image: The love is more mature]

At the beginning of a relationship, everything is usually new and fresh and filled with the euphoria of lust and a new spark of love.

However, once the dust settles and the initial thrill of being with someone completely new wears off, reality sinks in and this is when a lot of couples break up.

For example: A couple might get into a power struggle.

To see if she can gain power over her man, the woman might pull back her interest, throw tantrums or act like she isn't interested in sex to see how he will react.

If the guy responds by becoming desperate and trying to hold on to her even more (e.g. becoming clingy, needy and insecure, asking her what she wants him to do to make her happy), she will gain power over him and begin to lose respect and attraction for him.

If the power gap becomes too wide, she will eventually get tired of having a guy that she feels so much more valuable than, so she might cheat on him or dump him.

In some cases, that is the end of the relationship and the couple never sees each other again because the guy thinks that it's impossible to get her back, or he messes up the ex back process by making classic mistakes (e.g. ignoring her and hoping she comes back, begging and pleading for another chance).

Yet, there are also couples who not only get back together, but also manage to make the love even stronger than it was before.

They become completely intoxicated and overwhelmed by how much they love each other now that they are getting back together and are then back together.

So, why is that? Why does the love become stronger when you reignite it after a break up?

One of the reasons why is that the love is more mature.

When the man improves himself and goes beyond the level that he was at when she broke up with him, it's a much more mature, enjoyable relationship for both him and the woman.

Watch this video for more info.

For example: A guy who was insecure in the relationship and became needy and clingy, can now reach a new level of manhood by becoming more confident and emotionally strong.

Rather than becoming insecure when she tests his confidence (e.g. by acting like she isn't interested, putting him down), he doesn't let it affect him.

He knows that a woman might behave in unpredictable ways to test his confidence, so he remains strong and as a result, she feels a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

Another example of a test is where a woman becomes emotional and throws tantrums to see how he will react.

In the past, her tantrums might have caused him to become upset, angry or uncertain about their relationship.

Yet, now he understands that she just needs him to be an emotionally strong, masculine man and not get sucked into the drama that she is creating.

He just remains calm and often even laughs at her dramatic behavior because it's just not something that he takes seriously anymore.

and she really likes that about him now.

[image: She is now getting the attraction experience she wants]

When she realizes that she is now with a confident, emotionally secure man who loves her and wants her in his life, but doesn't need her to be gentle with him because he is so emotionally sensitive, it makes her feel an increased amount of respect, attraction and love for him.

She realizes that his emotional sensitive has been replaced by emotional strength, which is highly attractive to her.

Her love for him is now deeper, more meaningful and interesting than ever before because he is such a better man than now compared to how he was when she broke up with him.

By breaking up and getting back together again at a new level, a woman has seen the worst and now best side of her man.

By loving her enough to change and improve as a man, there is now a deeper maturity and trust in the relationship and they both feel closer and more connected than ever.

There is a great story behind their relationship and it's something worth holding onto because it feels so good to be around each other now.

It's like the man has hit the "reset" button in her mind and she now sees him as a completely new, improved man, rather than looking at his faults and thinking about all the mistakes he made.

She has completely forgiven all of that because he is now the kind of man that she can truly, deeply love for life.

Another reason why the love becomes stronger when you reignite it after a break up is that

2. You're Now Giving Her the Attraction Experience That She Really Wants in a Relationship

A woman rarely breaks up with a man for no good reason at all.

Of course, sometimes a relationship might just fizzle out because neither the man nor the woman really care about each other and are happier just to end it and find someone new.

Yet, in most cases, for a woman to get to the point where she decides to break up with her guy, it will usually happen after a long time of trying to get him to change and give her the kind of attraction experience she really wants.

For example: A woman might feel that her guy is too timid and doesn't like to take the lead with her or in other areas of his life.

She may then try to encourage him to be more assertive and decisive, by saying things like, â€œWhy don't you decide where we should invest our savings? Why do you keep worrying all the time? Just fix it!â€ or â€œYou should stand up to your boss when he makes you work late. You also have other commitments in your life. Don't let him push you around like that,â€ or even â€œI'm tired of always making the decisions around here! Why don't you decide for a change?â€

What she wants is for him to be more of a man and have the balls to stand up to her and others in his life.

If the guy doesn't pick up on her hints and just carries on behaving in the same unattractive way around her, she will usually get to the point where she decides to just break up with him.

However, after the break up, if the guy can then make some quick changes and improve his ability to give her the kind of attraction she really wants, she will pay attention and be interested again, even if she doesn't initially want to be.

For example: Some of the ways that a guy might change to give a woman the kind of attraction experience that was lacking in their unique relationship include:

- He makes her feel feminine and girly in his presence, rather than making her feel like a friend or "one of the guys."
- He makes her feel heard and understood, rather than overlooking what she says or feels like he used to.
- He makes her smile, laugh and feel happy to be around him again, rather than getting into stressful arguments and having annoying, deep and meaningful conversations all the time.
- He reacts differently to what she says and does (e.g. he stands up to her if she's being pushy, doesn't get upset when she is being overly emotional).
- He takes the lead in the relationship thus allowing her to relax into being totally feminine around him, rather than expecting her to be 50/50 with him or to take the lead and guide him.
- He maintains and builds on the respect, love and attraction between him and her over time, rather than taking her feelings for him for granted.

She then feels happy and like she can now look up to him and respect him as her man and the love between them becomes stronger than it was before.

3. You Appreciate Each Other So Much More Than Before

[image: She loves the new you even more]

There's a line from an old song in the 1960s that says, â€œYou don't know what you've got until you lose it.â€

That's an old school song, but its truth is timeless.

Sometimes, a guy will take his woman for granted and not treat her as well as he did at the start. She then dumps him and he panics and realizes that he's just lost the best thing that ever happened to him.

Yet, she's not lost forever.

You CAN get your woman back, even if you and her went through a messy break up or if she said that she never wants anything to do with you again.

The reason why you can get her back is that feelings CAN and DO change.

If your ex's feelings haven't changed yet and she hasn't come running back, you can MAKE HER have feelings for you again.

Then, when you get back together, both you and her will experience a more mature, exciting and deep love that you will appreciate on a completely new level.

You will appreciate each other and the unique dynamic between you so much more than you ever did.

It will feel like both of you are so lucky to have gotten back together and would have been silly to let each other go and not give it another shot.

For example: Sometimes, when a guy and a woman break up, they might then go out and date other people in an attempt to move on.

Yet, what often happens is that even though a rebound relationship might feel great at the start, the reality eventually begins to appear and their flaws begin to become more obvious.

For example: If she breaks up with you because you weren't treating her well, she will most likely rebound with a guy who treats her like a princess.

Yet, after a while, she will realize that the reason he treats her so well is that he is insecure about his attractiveness and value to her and is secretly doesn't feel like he deserves a woman of her quality.

She then begins to feel turned off by his insecurity and feels like she is in a relationship with a guy who doesn't deserve her.

She then remembers that you were so much more confident than him and begins to think about you in a positive light and wonder why she just doesn't give you another chance.

So, when a man and a woman get back together again (after a man has improved his ability to give her the attraction experience she really wants), the love between them becomes stronger than ever before.

They have both seen what's out there and have come to the realization that the grass isn't greener on the other side and they are actually more suited to each other than they previously imagined.

On the other hand, a couple might not have dated anyone else after the break up, but being apart made them realize that they were meant to be together and that they were willing to put in the effort to resolve the issues in the relationship and make the love stronger.

So, they now appreciate each other more.

For example: Rather than get annoyed with her when she throws a tantrum, it doesn't become a big deal anymore because he doesn't take it so seriously.

The guy now appreciates that it's part of her being an emotional woman and he can be a masculine man by allowing her to let off steam without making a big deal about it.

She then respects him for being strong enough to handle the random storms she creates (in the form of tantrums) and loves him more than ever before.

As for her, if he doesn't call her or text her every day, she now realizes that it's not because he's taking her for granted, but rather because he's busy and will get around to it when he gets the chance.

Essentially, love becomes stronger and more mature when you reignite it after a break up, because a couple now understands that no-one is perfect and that mistakes, arguments and disagreements will happen, but that isn't a reason give up and walk away.

4. You Have Renewed Faith in Your Love Because it Has Endured a Break Up (or Multiple Break Ups) and is Now Stronger Than Ever

[image: Reigniting the love after a break up]

Surviving a break up (or multiple break ups) is a clear indication that your love is stronger than the problems in the relationship.

Relationships only truly fall apart when the man isn't able to take charge and get things back on track to love, happiness and commitment.

For example: A guy might have become needy and insecure in his relationship with a woman, but rather than make an effort to become confident in the relationship, he instead puts the blame on his ex by saying things like, It's her fault. If she didn't put her career / friends / family before me, we would still be together. All I ever did was shower her with love and attention. I even gave up my hobbies and friends for her and all she did was complain about feeling smothered. What do women want? They are so hard to please!

Yet, by not being willing to accept responsibility for the fact that his insecurity and neediness turned her off, the chances of the relationship getting back together again are very slim.

On the other hand, when a guy makes some adjustments and improvements to his behavior (i.e. he becomes more confident and emotionally strong), her love for him will be stronger when they get back together.

His woman will think something like, He must really love me to have made the effort to change and become a better man so quickly. If we can survive breaking up and getting back together again, it makes me believe that if something bad comes along in the future we will be able to overcome it and stay together. Our love is not only more mature now, but it's getting stronger every day. So, there's no point just turning my back on him. Maybe I owe this to myself to give it a shot. After all, I feel so much for him all of a sudden, so why not?

This is what you want your ex thinking and feeling.

You need to make her realize that being with you is way better than being without you.

The fact is, when a couple sticks together rather than breaking up, the love, respect and attraction between them grows and deepens over time.

2 Mistakes That Prevent the Love From Coming Back Stronger Than Ever

[image: Trying to get her back without changing what she really wants]

For some couples, the love doesn't come back stronger when they get back together.

Instead, the love fizzles out very quickly because the guy makes one or both of the following mistakes!

1. He tries to get a woman back without changing and improving on the real reasons why she broke up with him.

If a guy doesn't make some adjustments to his thinking, behavior and the way he talks and interacts with his ex woman, then getting her back becomes very difficult for him.

Even if a woman decides to give him another chance, if she then comes back and realizes that he's still at the same level he was at when she broke up with him, she will just break up with him once again.

One of the main reasons why a guy doesn't succeed in making the love stronger after a break up, is because he hasn't figured out the real reasons why his woman broke up with him in the first place (or he decides to be lazy about it and not fix anything, but still want her back).

It's fine to take that, "I don't care approach" to the ex back process if you don't really care about getting her back.

However, if you want her back for real, you have to sincerely care about what she secretly wants from you to be happy and stay with you.

For example:

- Does she want you to be more manly and ballsy with her?
- Does she want you to treat her better, but not go overboard and desperately try to impress her?
- Does she want you to take back the position of power in the relationship, or start allowing her to have a little more power?
- Does she hate it how she can make you feel insecure so easily, or are you way too arrogant and confident around her to the point that she feels inferior to you?

Here's the thing!

Whatever your woman really wants, she probably won't tell you the uncensored version that will really make her happy.

She'll say things like, "I don't know maybe I just need some space to figure myself out" or, "I don't have feelings for you anymore. Maybe I just need to be alone for a while" or, "Look, I appreciate how much you love me and care about me, but I just can't do this anymore."

Yet, that doesn't tell a guy what he needs to do to get her back.

She's just talking in vague terms about herself and isn't telling him what will actually make her change her mind.

As a result, he's usually offering her the wrong things (e.g. being nicer when she wants him to be ballsier) and then wondering, â€œWhy isnâ€™t this working? Why isnâ€™t she giving me another chance?â€

So, if you want to make the love between you and an ex stronger, you need to change what she secretly wants you to change, not what you think she wants you to change.

For example: Some of the things that women are usually too afraid to tell men include:

- He is insecure about his value to her and it makes her feel like she could do better than him.
- He is clingy and needy, which makes her feel like his mother and like he needs to be taken care of.
- He takes her for granted and just expect her to put up with his bad treatment of her.
- He doesnâ€™t know how to make her feel feminine and girly around him, so she ends up feeling neutral or worse, like she is more dominant and powerful than him.
- He is jealous and controlling, which she knows stems from his insecurity about being able to attract high quality women, so she feels like she is doing him a favor by being with him.
- He has no clearÂ purpose and direction in his life and he has made her his main reason for living, which makes her feel unsafe because sheâ€™s with a guy who is afraid of reaching for his true potential in life.
- He is too emotionally sensitive, so she has to be gentle with him otherwise he gets angry or insecure.

Can you relate to any of these possible reasons why your woman might have broken up with you?

If you answered yes, then you now have an idea of what you need to change about yourself to re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you and get her back into a relationship that is even better than before.

Another mistake that some guys make, which prevents the love from being stronger when they get back with their woman isâ€

2. He doesnâ€™t know how to deepen the love, so it quickly becomes boring or uninspiring

For a relationship to last, mutual love, respect and appreciation must be deepened over time, rather than just taking those feelings for granted and expecting them to remain.

Sometimes, a guy will be all fun and excitement in the initial stages of his relationship with a woman (e.g. taking her out on dates, putting in effort when having sex with her, being a man she can rely on), but after a while, the sizzle goes out and life becomes dreary, boring and predictable (e.g. going to the movies and dinner every Friday night, visiting family once a week, taking her love and commitment to him for granted as he lazes on the couch watching TV or playing video games most weekends).

If a relationship is only about you and your woman hanging out together and doing the same things over and over again, doing the chores and paying bills, she might begin to feel bored, restless and as though she is with a guy who just expects her to remember how good she felt at the start and stick around for life because of that.

That approach worked 100-150 years ago, but not today.

Today, women can leave a men if they find themselves in a dead or dying relationship, so you need to keep the spark alive.

Don't worry, it's easy to do.

I know that it might sound like a lot of hard work, but it's simple, natural and easy.

I know this because I'm happily married and can tell you from personal experience that it's so easy to keep a woman happy, in love and attracted to you for life.

So, if you want to get your ex back, just know that your relationship with her is going to be better than ever before.

You and her are going to feel such a strong love for each other that it will literally make your heart rush with happiness, contentment and fulfillment.

When you make her feel that way, she is not going to want to break up with you ever again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Make Your Ex Suddenly Show Interest in You Again

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to make your ex suddenly show interest in you again, do these 3 things!

1. Interact With Her On a Phone Call, or in Person, to Reactivate Her Feelings

[image: Talking to your ex on the phone]

When a woman is being cold, distant and saying things like, "I'm just not interested in getting back together with you," it might seem like there's nothing you can do to change her mind.

Yet, you can.

When you actively re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, she can't stop herself from dropping her guard and opening herself up to the idea of maybe getting back together again.

No matter how much she tries to fight it, if you're always there (e.g. on the phone, or meeting up with her in person) and are making her smile, laugh and feel nice to be around you, she can't help but see you in a different, more positive light.

Think about it this way!

In most cases, a guy stops interacting with a woman after a break up because he's feeling bad and he doesn't know what to say to her to get her back.

He might think, "If I give her a bit of space, she will hopefully stop feeling so angry/hurt/annoyed with me and then, when I eventually contact her she will be more open to getting back together again."

That approach has only work in about 20% of the ex back cases that I've seen.

In other words, it has an 80% failure rate!

Why?

When a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy, not hearing from him or not seeing him for a long time doesn't change how she thinks about him.

Rather than make her think, "I wonder what my ex is up to? I really miss him so much. Who cares that he turned me off so much near the end! I want him back" it will usually cause her to dwell on the negative aspects of her relationship with him and make her want to continue moving on without him.

On the other hand, if a guy makes a point of interacting with his ex on a phone call and in person to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him, her feelings for him will naturally and automatically being to change.

Why?

Rather than sitting around waiting for her to change her mind about him on her own, he's actively replacing her negative memories with new, happy memories and thoughts about him.

If you want to make your ex suddenly show interest in you again, don't sit around hoping that she does all the work for you.

You have to be the one who takes the lead and reactivates her feelings of respect and attraction for you during interactions.

Get her on a phone call with you right away and focus on making her smile, laugh and feel good to be talking to you again.

Then, get her to meet up with you in person where she can see for herself that you're no longer the same guy she broke up with.

For example: You can do that by!

- Making her feel feminine and girly in your presence, rather than making her feel neutral (like a friend) or worse, masculine (like she is more dominant than you).
- Showing her that you clearly understand her reasons for breaking up with you and have taken steps towards changing those things about yourself (e.g. if you were insecure and needy, you're now emotionally strong, if you lacked purpose and direction in your life, you now have goals and you're working towards achieving them).
- Remaining confident and emotionally masculine around her, even though she's being cold and aloof and is saying things like, "You're just wasting your time. I'm just not interested in you anymore."

When you successfully flick her feelings of respect and attraction back on, she won't be able to stop herself from showing interest in you again.

Secretly she may be thinking, "I can't believe he's really my ex. I know I said that I was never going to get back with him, but I can't help feeling curious about him now. He's so different now. As weird and crazy as it might sound to my friends or family, I can actually see myself being with him again now. Who cares what they think! I want to give him another chance."

That's what you want to happen.

Yet, it 80% of the ex back cases I've seen and worked on with clients, it ONLY happens if you actively make the woman have feelings for you again.

You have to call her on the phone and then meet up with her in person to properly reactivate her feelings.

Where a lot of guys go wrong is by thinking, "It's probably better to break the ice with my ex by sending her texts, e-mails or social media messages. That way she won't feel like I'm trying to push her into getting back together again. Then over time, she will hopefully soften up, open up and then I'll call her when she's really interested."

Yet, a woman will rarely text her ex to say, "We've been texting back and forth for a while now and I suddenly realized that I miss you. Can we get together for some coffee? I really want to see you. Please call me!!!"

Why?

Regardless of whether she's dying to see her ex or not, a woman doesn't want to make it too easy for him to get her back.

She instinctively wants to wait to see if he has the confidence and balls to make the ex back process happen, or if he's too afraid of rejection to risk going through the process.

So, rather than helping him through the ex back process, she will usually just be cold and distant.

[image: Most women don't want to make the ex back process easy for their ex]

He might then react by getting angry, losing confidence in himself, begging her for another chance or just completely ignoring her and hoping that she suddenly calls him and helps him through the ex back process.

For that reason, if you want to make you ex suddenly show interest in you again, you can't just sit around hiding behind texts and hoping she will eventually say, â€œOkay, Iâ€™m interested now. Letâ€™s meet up!!!â€

It just doesn't work that way in 80% of the ex back cases that I've seen and worked on.

Why?

When a woman finally dumps a man (after giving him plenty of warnings), she's usually completely turned off by him.

So, unless he reactivates her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for him, she is just going to continue moving on without him.

As the man, it's up to you to take the lead and to guide both you and her back into a relationship.

Don't make the classic ex back mistake of hiding behind texts in the hope that she will do all the work for you.

Just pick up the phone and talk to her in person.

On the phone call, focus on saying and doing the types of things that will spark her feelings for you (rather than saying and doing the types of things that caused her to break up with you) and then get her to meet up with you in person.

When she meets up with you and sees for herself that you're no longer thinking, talking or behaving in the way she remembers, she will naturally and automatically begin to feel interested in you again.

For example:

- She's expecting you to be nervous and insecure but now you are more confident and emotionally strong now.
- She's expecting you to be extra nice and do whatever she says, but now you are more ballsy and you stand up to her
- She's expecting to feel like your mother or sister or like just a friend, but instead she feels feminine and girly in your presence now, which turns her on.

When she has a different experience during interactions with you, her feelings will naturally and automatically change.

You then simply have to continue guiding her through the ex back process and she will be yours once again.

Another example of how to make your ex suddenly show interest in you again, is to

2. Let Her See That You Are Emotionally Independent Now, But Don't Rub it in Her Face

There's nothing wrong with feeling like you miss your ex sometimes and that you want her back. You may even say things like, I miss having her around. I wish she was here with me now, or I hate lying in this big bed by myself. It seems so empty without her. I just want to hug her again, kiss her and have sex with her. Even just going to the movies again would be nice or cuddling up on the couch to watch one of our favorite TV shows together. Ahh, I miss her. Missing her is normal.

Wanting her back is normal.

Yet, feeling like you can't be happy in your life without her is a problem.

Why?

It's a turn off to her. Women hate it when a man is dependent on her for his feelings of happiness, self worth and identity in this world.

On the other hand, women love it when a man cares about her and loves her, but is happy with or without her.

So, rather than sitting around thinking about how bad you're feeling right now, a better way to make yourself more attractive to her, is to become emotionally independent without her.

Basically what that means is that you focus on getting on with your life, even though you would ALSO like to get back together with her.

For example: Rather than wasting a lot of time thinking about how much you miss her, you can channel that energy into making progress on your big goals and dreams in life.

Additionally, you can do some of the things that you've always wanted to do but have been putting off (e.g. go traveling, take up a new hobby, go to university, start a martial arts class).

The more you focus on becoming a more fulfilled and interesting man without her, the more likely it is that when you interact with her she will feel some or a lot of interest in the new, improved you.

Yet, if you just sit around missing her and not caring about your life without her, she will pick up on your neediness when you interact with her and it will turn her off.

For example: Sometimes a guy might say to himself, I feel terrible without her. Why should I pretend that I'm okay when I'm not? I'm not going to hide my pain. Then, when she sees how badly I'm hurting, she will realize just how much I really love her and she will feel guilty for breaking up with me.

He might then appear sad, lost or lonely when posting on social media (if he posts at all) by posting up solo photos, quotes about being sad or rants about how much life sucks when you've been dumped.

He might also try to seek pity from others (and hope that she sees it, feels sorry for him and contacts him) by posting things like, Stuff in traffic after another long, boring day at the office. Just trying to make it home so that I can crash on the couch and watch some TV. I hate my life! or Feeling lousy today. Another weekend sitting around at home doing nothing.

On the other hand, if he doesn't post anything on social media at all, his ex will check his profile and assume that he's is lonely and is just sitting around miss her.

She may then think, “Clearly nothing about my ex has changed. He's still the same needy, insecure guy I broke up with. It looks like I made the right decision to break up with him. There's absolutely nothing happening in his life without me.” I'm so glad I got away from him while I can. What a needy guy! what a mistake it was to be with him and she then tries to move on even faster without him.

So, if you want to make your ex suddenly show interest in you again, it's important that you show her that you've moved beyond the level you were at when she broke up with you, rather than staying the same and hoping she will just feel sorry for you and change her mind.

Remember: Becoming emotionally independent is not something you're doing to impress your ex into getting back together with you.

You are doing it for yourself.

If she asks you, “Why are you (going for the promotion at work, taking a martial arts class, hanging out with new friends) all of a sudden?” just say, “Life moves on. You know that I love you, but I don't see any point sitting around waiting for you if you don't want me back. So, I'm getting on with my life.”

She will then feel a slight pain of being rejected, mixed in with feeling respect and attraction for the fact that you have the emotional strength to get on with your life even though she isn't a part of it any more.

By the way!

Just make sure that you don't rub your happiness in her face.

If you make the mistake of bragging about how happy and confident you are now or how good your life is without her, it will backfire.

Just be relaxed and easy-going about it. Don't make a big deal out of it.

Remember that you are doing all these new, fun, interesting things because it's the best thing for you to do for YOU.

Don't do it because you hope it will impress her or hurt her.

Just do it because you have realized that it's important to live a balanced life as a man, rather than having all of your attention focused on your relationship with a woman.

[image: Let her see that you are emotionally independent now]

Although women will rarely, if ever, admit it, they actually want a man who is emotionally independent of them and who would be happy with or without them.

So, make sure that you get into that mindset ASAP.

Then, when you interact with your ex and she sees for herself that even though you want her back, you don't need her back to feel happy and fulfilled in your life, she will begin to feel respect and attraction for you again, which will then make her show interest in you.

3. Make Her Laugh, Smile and Feel Good When She's

Interacting With You

One of the best ways to diffuse a tense situation is with laughter.

According to science, laughter decreases stress hormones in the body and triggers the release of endorphins, the body's natural "feel good" chemicals.

When you make your ex laugh and smile during an interaction, it makes it very difficult for her to continue feeling angry or indifferent towards you because she is feeling good.

Smiles and laughter are also a good way to heal the pain, anger and resentment that your ex might be feeling towards you right now.

By making every interaction between you and her a happy experience from now on, you will be actively triggering her feelings of respect and attraction for you and making the negatives of your relationship seem less important to her.

When that happens, she will naturally stop trying to avoid you and instead allows herself to show interest in you again.

So, don't waste your time trying to convince your ex to give you another chance by making some (or all!) of the classic ex back mistakes that guys make.

For example:

- Begging and pleading with her to give him another chance.
- Trying to convince her by telling her how much he cares.
- Being extra nice to her in the hopes that she will change her mind.
- Giving her a long list of reasons why they should be together.
- Promising her that he will change.
- Ignoring her for 30 to 60 days in the hopes that she will miss him and come running back.

Instead, use every interaction you have with her to erase her old, negative, painful memories and replace them with new, happy memories by making her laugh and smile.

For example: Imagine you're talking to your ex on the phone and she asks you something like, "So what have you been doing since we broke up?" as a way of testing to see if you've been missing her.

The usual (non-attractive) response would be to say something like, "Oh, you know! I've been busy with work and hanging out with my friends. What about you?"

Yet, that reply isn't going to make her laugh or smile and make her want to stay on the phone with you for very long.

So, a better way to respond to her question, "So what have you been doing since we broke up?" would be to say in a joking way, "I've been eating. I ordered all those pizzas you would never let me eat when we were together and I haven't stopped yet for the last week. It's starting to become a bit of a problem though because I can't fit through the front door anymore, so I'm stuck in the house eating takeout pizza. You're going to have to come rescue me and put me on one of your health food diets or else I might explode! The walls will then be covered with pizza and guts as wallpaper."

She will most likely say something like "Aaaah! Gross! That sounds terrible," and she will have a laugh with you about it.

When she laughs, it takes her mind off what happened in the past and she starts to see you in a new light.

She then drops her guard and becomes more open to feeling positive emotions such as respect, attraction and love for you again.

Making Her Show Interest in You Again and Then Getting Her Back

[image: Making her show interest and then getting her back]

When you started off wondering how to make your ex suddenly show interest in you again, you were probably thinking, “If she’s not interested, is it even possible to make her change how she feels?”

Yet, something you may not have realized is that people change their feelings ALL the time.

Think about a time in your life when you might have disliked someone, yet, when they changed the way they interacted with you, you suddenly found yourself thinking, “Hey, this person is not so bad after all. I actually like them now!”

In the same way, when you change the way you interact with your ex and make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, it’s only natural that her feelings for you will change too.

Once you make her have feelings for you again, her heart will fill up with new, exciting emotions and she will feel drawn to you.

You then simply need to guide her through the final steps of the ex back process, until she’s back in your arms and feeling happy to be with you again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Do You Love Your Ex More Than You Love Yourself?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a guy gets broken up with by the woman he loves, he might begin to think, “My life is over now,” or “She means everything to me and without her I am nothing.”

Here’s the thing!

There’s nothing wrong with feeling sad and even depressed when a break up happens, but if you want to get her back, you have to get past that level of emotional response.

You have to quickly get yourself to the point where you love her, but you love yourself more and you know that you would be fine even if you didn’t get her back.

Why?

A woman wants to be loved, appreciated and wanted, but she doesn’t want to be your sole purpose for living.

Women hate that!

Even though some women might SAY that they want a guy to make them his sole purpose for living, they do not actually want that.

A woman wants a man who loves her, appreciates her and wants her, but she does not want to be your “everything” and without her you are “nothing.”

Women are turned off by guys who think less of themselves compared to her and are turned on by men who have high levels of confidence, self-esteem and self-love.

A woman wants a man who feels worthy of her, not a guy who makes her feel like she’s doing him a favor by staying with him.

If a woman feels like she can’t look up to and respect her man, then no matter what he tries to say to convince her to give him another chance (e.g. “You’re my everything” or “I love you more than I love myself”), she just won’t listen because she will be turned off by the fact that he thinks less of himself compared to her.

So, don’t try to convince your ex to give you another chance if you don’t know how to love yourself first.

To love yourself, you need to start focusing on your good qualities AND you also need to reestablish your belief in your attractiveness and value to her.

Watch this video for some examples on how to do that!

When you can reach the point in your life where you want her back but don’t need her back in order to be happy, fulfilled and excited about life again, something amazing happens!

You instantly become more attractive to her and she then begins to doubt her decision to break up with you, even if she doesn’t openly admit it to you.

Yet, if you continue to mope around and spend your time thinking things like, “I hate my life without her,” or “I need her. My life is pointless without her,” she will pick up on your weakness when you interact with her and will just keep saying, “It’s over between us. Please leave me alone.”

Your Relationship With Yourself Sets the Tone For Your Life

[image: Your relationship with yourself sets the tone for your life]

Itâs a law of nature that you attract what you give out to the world.

For example: Have you ever woken up in a bad mood only to discover that everything else in your day just kept going wrong (e.g. you missed the bus, you were late for a meeting, you spilled spaghetti sauce on your favorite shirt, your coworkers were extra mean or cold that day)?

Alternatively, have you noticed that when youâre feeling happy and positive, everything seems to go right (e.g. you get an unexpected bonus at work, a friend you havenât seen in a long time invites you out, people are nicer to you)?

Maybe youâve experienced that while on a holiday or vacation and the reason why is that people can pick up on your good mood and expectation that things will go well.

Your good mood rubs off on them and everyone wins.

So, when you give out feelings of love, self-confidence, emotional strength and a passion for life, you will attract more of those things back to you.

On the other hand, if you give out feelings self-doubt, lack of self-worth and desperation, you will attract those things back to you too.

The same people who would have been nice to you, will doubt you, ignore you and overlook you.

In most cases, the only difference between a guy who is confident, successful and enjoys a great relationship with a woman and a guy who is insecure, unsuccessful and alone, is simply a matter of mindset.

For example:

1. Some guys don't have much purpose in life, so they doubt their value to women and the world.

[image: Guys with no purpose lack confidence with women]

When a guy doesnât have much purpose in life (i.e. he doesn't have big dreams, goals and ambitions), he might then make his main focus in life all about his relationship with a woman.

He may tell himself, âThatâs how a great relationship should be. A guy needs to make his girlfriend/wife the centre of his world and focus all his love, attention and time on her. Nothing else is as important as she is. Who cares about goals and ambitions? All I care about is her!â

What a lot of guys donât realize is that being emotionally dependant on a woman and making her his purpose in life is the fastest way to lose her respect.

Why?

Although a woman wants to be with a man who is caring, loving and devoted to her, she also wants him to be his own man and have his own purpose in life that is not about her at all.

If a guy focuses all his attention on his woman and cannot function without her, she will begin to think, âWhy is he being so clingy? Initially I thought it was because he loves me so much, but now I wonder if itâs simply because he has nothing else going on in his life other than me. He never goes out unless we go out together, he has no friends of his own and he doesnât even have *any big goals or dreams that he is actively following through on. All he ever does is hang around me and if I ever ask him for some alone time, or go out with my friends, he sulks for days. I really thought he was a loving, caring guy in the beginning, but now I can see that heâs an insecure, needy, immature guy who needs me because he has nothing else going on for him. I donât know if I can stick around for much longer. I need a man, not a boy. He doesnât make me feel safe because he is basically hiding from his potential behind me and the relationship. I am protecting himâit should be the other way around.*â

Then, when she breaks up with him and says that he ruined their relationship with his neediness and insecurity, he might say to himself, *âI gave her my all and it still wasnât enough! What do women want?!!! Even though I loved her more than I loved myself, she still broke up with me. If my love is not enough then I have nothing. Iâm such a loser with women and in life. No woman is ever going to love me like my ex. If I gave her all my love and it was worthless, then it shows that I am doomed to be rejected by her and other women for life. Iâm just not good enough.*â

Hereâs the thing thoughâ!

Itâs natural and normal that a guy might feel down about himself after being dumped by the woman he loves, but saying that he has nothing and that he has no value to women or the world is simply another example of his lack of confidence and self-belief.

So, if your woman has broken up with you and youâre currently feeling down and like life isnât worth living, ask yourself the following questions:

- What is my purpose in life?

Do you have a big dream or goal in your life?

If not, now is a good time to think about what you really want in life and then take action to make it happen.

If youâre not sure what you want to do with your life, donât worry, just think about the things that make you happy and that you feel passionate about (other than your ex) and focus on doing something every day that brings you closer to achieving that goal.

For example: You might enjoy practicing a martial art.

If you become a skilled martial artist, you might then discover that you want to be a martial artâs instructor and eventually open your own studio.

Alternatively, you might realize that you only like doing martial arts as exercise, but what you really care about is property investment or your local community or windsurfing or stock trading.

The possibilities are endless.

When you start to focus on the things that excite you and start making progress towards achieving some goals in your life, not only will you realize that youâre not reliant on your ex for your happiness, you will also discover that you have a place in the world and that you are valuable.

- What are the things that Iâve always wanted to see and do?

Again, think about all the things you might have always wanted to see or do but pushed it into the background because of your relationship with your ex.

For example: Have you wanted to go traveling or to visit a particular city or country?

Have you wanted to go after a promotion at work but never bothered?

Have you thought about furthering your education but always stopped yourself?

Whatever those things are for you, now is the time to make them happen.

Making progress in your life without your ex will show her that you're not just sitting around sulking, feeling sad and rejected.

You are a man who making progress and moving forward in life, with or without her.

However, be warned: Making progress on your own is not the only thing you need to do to get an ex back.

What is MOST important is your ability to attract her when you interact with her again.

You can't be making the same old mistakes that have turned her off (e.g. letting her push you around, being insecure, sulking, not knowing how to put her in her place when she is out of line) and expect her to want you back.

You have to move beyond the level you were at when she dumped you.

Watch this video for more infoâ€¦!

When your ex gets to experience the new and improved you, she will naturally drop her guard and begin to open up to having real feelings for you again.

It's a natural, automatic process, so don't worry about getting it wrong.

You will get it right as long as you have improved your ability to attract her when you interact with her.

- Have I been holding myself back from becoming a better man?

Have you allowed yourself to stagnate and become stuck at a certain level in life?

What could you do that would not only bring you pleasure and take your mind off your ex, but also make you a better man in the process?

For example: You might like to take a cooking or dance class (also a great way to meet new women to make your ex jealous. You don't have to hook up with those women. Just being around them will make her jealous), or you might prefer to join a hiking club, or begin training for a marathon.

Now is the time to do those things.

When you start to love yourself as much as you love your ex, you will automatically become more attractive to her and to women in general, because women are attracted to a man who is confident about his place in the world and who has a big purpose in his life and isn't afraid to go make it happen.

Then, when you interact with your ex and she experiences the new, confident, determined you, she will begin to think, â€œWow! Now this is the kind of guy I can look up to, respect and feel proud to call my man. Why did I dump him before? I know that I thought I made the right decision before, but now I am second guessing when I said that it was completely over. Maybe it's not completely over. Maybe there is a chance for us yet.â€

2. Some guys think that women will be flattered and feel special if a guy loves her more than he loves himself.

[image: She doesn't want a needy guy]

It's possible that you may have seen a movie or TV show where a guy professes his undying love for his woman by saying something like, "You mean everything to me. You are my reason for living. I love you more than I love myself and if anything had to happen to you, I would rather die than be without you."

She will then likely burst into tears, fall into his arms and they would live happily ever after, or at least happily up to the end of the movie or TV show.

The same applies for pop songs and music videos.

It's all fantasy and they keep doing it because millions of clueless people (usually teens and young adults) fall for it and dream about that happening to them.

However, in real life, when a guy puts a woman above himself in terms of value (i.e. he loves her more than he loves himself), rather than make her think, "That's so sweet. This guy is a keeper," it usually makes a woman feel more dominant than him, which turns her off.

She then begins to wonder, "Maybe I am too good for this guy. If he doesn't believe in himself and thinks that I'm better than him, maybe he's right. Maybe I can do better than him. I don't want to be with a guy because I'm the only woman who ever gave him a chance. I want a man who I want to be with, not a guy who needs me because no one else wants him."

Although some women might initially like the idea that a guy loves her so much that he puts her above himself in terms of value, she will eventually get tired of it and dump him.

For example: A guy might constantly ask his girlfriend or wife, "Do you still love me? You wouldn't leave me would you? You know I wouldn't be able to live without you? You mean everything to me. Please promise me that you will be faithful to me. I couldn't bare to live without you. It would completely destroy me if you ever cheated on me."

That kind of thing is nice in a movie, TV show or music video, but not in real life.

In real life, women hate wimpy, needy guys who essentially put their happiness and confidence in her hands.

If a woman has that much power over a guy, she will usually then begin to boss him around, act cold and indifferent towards him and treat him badly to see if he will stand up to her like a real man, or if he will just put up with it because he needs her so much.

If he just takes whatever she dishes out, she will lose respect and attraction for him and she begin to feel very annoyed by his clingy, needy behavior.

She will then either dump him, or cheat on him and then tell him about it and dump him.

3. Some guys make the mistake of thinking that a woman is all his life should be about.

Sometimes, a guy will feel so lucky to be in a relationship with a beautiful woman that he slowly becomes insecure about losing her.

The idea of being without her, or worse yet, having to go out and find another woman all over again, fills him with fear.

He might then begin to tell himself, â€œI feel so good with her that if Iâ€™m away from her, I just want to finish what Iâ€™m doing and be with her. Everything else in life like work, goals, friends or family are just annoying things that I donâ€™t want to pay attention to. I only want to spend time with her because she makes me feel good when Iâ€™m with her. Screw the world! I donâ€™t care about having goals. I just want to be with her.â€

He might then slowly give up his hobbies and interests and possibly even stop hanging out with his friends, because being with his woman makes him feel safe, wanted and loved and he doesnâ€™t want to risk losing that.

However, what he doesnâ€™t realize is that rather than make a woman think, â€œWow, Iâ€™m so lucky to have a guy who lives only for me. Women dream about having a guy who makes her his all and here I am living a fairytale,â€ she is instead thinking, â€œWhat is he hiding from? Yes, I love that he loves me and is so caring, considerate and appreciative of me, but I really donâ€™t get a sense that heâ€™s going anywhere in his life. It feels like heâ€™s hiding from the world and is using his love for me as an excuse to become a bigger and better man. Heâ€™s afraid to go out and actually have a go at doing something with his life. Do I really want to be stuck with a guy who has no ambitions in his life? What kind of future will we have together? Will I have to mother him and take care of him forever? I donâ€™t want that. I need a real man. A man that I can look up to, respect, depend on and be able to relax into being a feminine woman around him.â€

Hereâ€™s the thingâ€¦

A woman needs her man to be emotionally strong enough to love her, yet at the same time to have the courage to face his life head on with or without her by his side.

If he can do that, she will respect him, feel attracted to him and love him for life.

On the other hand, if he canâ€™t be the emotionally strong man that she needs, she will feel turned off by him at a deep instinctive level and want to get out of the relationship.

So, donâ€™t try to convince your ex to give you another chance if you havenâ€™t reached the point where you love yourself as much as you love her and are now tackling your life head on.

She wants you to be your own man, with or without her.

She wants you to love her and want her in your life, but to not need her anymore.

When You Love Yourself She Can Look Up to You and Respect You

[image: When you love yourself, she can look up to you and respect you]

What you think about yourself matters.

When you are full of love for yourself and for others (even if they donâ€™t love you back), you automatically become much more attractive, charismatic and appealing.

You will strive to reach your true potential as a man and make your mark in the world, regardless of what anyone else has to say about it.

On the other hand, if you hide behind a woman and allow your fears and insecurities to dominate your life, not only will it be very difficult to get your ex back, but it will also be very difficult to find another woman.

Don't do that to yourself.

Instead, focus on being a confident man who loves himself and is moving forward in life towards bigger and better success every day, every week and every month.

Every step you take towards achieving your goals is a step closer to unlocking the greatness inside you.

You don't have to have achieved all of your goals to feel like you are good enough for your ex (or any other woman).

Feel as though you are good enough NOW, while also working hard to get to where you want to be in life.

Then, when you interact with your ex and she sees the man you have become, not only will her feelings of respect and attraction come flowing back, she will also start worrying that if she doesn't get back with you, some other lucky woman will snag you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Be Attractive When Speaking to Your Ex in Person or on the Phone

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 5 things that you can do to be more attractive and appealing when speaking to your ex in person, or on the phone:

1. Let Her See That You Are Emotionally Strong Now

[image: Let her see that you are emotionally strong now]

Women love emotionally strong men.

Emotional strength makes a woman feel safe with a man, which then makes her feel respect and sexual attraction for him.

On the other hand, women hate emotional weakness.

One of the main reasons why a woman breaks up with a guy is because he just isn't emotionally strong enough to handle a girl like her right now.

For example: He becomes insecure when she doesn't show enough interest, he needs her to regularly reassure him that she won't break up with him and he becomes angry when she throws a tantrum because he can't control his emotions.

This often happens to guys who aren't any good at attracting and picking up women and simply rely on luck.

So, when a guy like finally hooks up with an attractive woman, he might say to himself, "I've gotten lucky here. I'd better hold on to her tightly because there's no way that a guy like me would ever find another beautiful, intelligent woman like her. I have to do whatever it takes to prevent her from liking another guy."

He might then become insecure in his relationship with her ask things like, "Do you still love me?" or "You wouldn't leave me, would you?" or, "Can I trust you to never cheat on me? I've been hurt in the past and I need you to promise that you wouldn't ever do that to me."

He might also become clingy by ignoring his friends, interests and hobbies to spend all his time with her and might then become jealous and controlling (e.g. by getting upset when she talks to other guys, checking her private e-mails and text messages).

Yet, rather than making her feel loved, appreciated and wanted, she feels smothered and begins to lose respect for him.

She starts to feel as though he needs her more than she needs him, which is a huge turn off for women.

Women want to be loved, wanted and appreciated, but they don't want a needy, insecure guy to cling to them for dear life.

She wants a man who is confident, happy and forward moving in life and doesn't need her to constantly encourage him or give him confidence.

She wants him to be his own man, while also loving, respecting and appreciating her.

So, if one of the main reasons you got dumped was due to emotional weakness or insecurity, you need to show her that you are now a confident, emotionally strong man.

Of course, just standing up to her and being emotionally strong isn't the only way to make a woman feel some attraction for you again.

Here is another way to be attractive when talking to your ex on the phone or in person!

2. Use Humor to Make Her Feel Good and to Get Rid of the Serious Vibe

[image: Use humor to make her feel good and get rid of the serious vibe]

It has been said that laughter is the best medicine.

Essentially what this means is that regardless of how bad things are between a guy and his ex woman, a little bit of humor will usually break the ice and take the bite off the negative feelings she is holding onto about him.

For example: If your sitting at a table (at a café or restaurant) and your ex says, "Looks, it's over. There's nothing left between us anymore," she will be expecting you to back down or get upset at her.

So, what you can do instead?

Be emotionally strong enough to risk making a joke in that moment to calm the tension between you, drop her guard and make her feel a spark with you again.

You might say something like, "Well that's not entirely true, is it? Technically there's a whole table between us" and then laugh with her about that for a moment.

Or, if she says, "Look, it's over. We can't get back together," you can laugh and say, "Yeah, I know it's over. I have a girlfriend now and we got engaged the other night, so of course you and I can't get back together. We're finished!" and then laugh with her about that.

Or, if she says, "I just need some more time and space," you can laugh and say, "Okay, how about I give you the next 30 years to think about it. You'll be old and gray by that point, but that's okay. We'll go and have tea or something like a couple of old fogies" and then laugh with her about that.

Essentially, just be strong enough to joke around and not take her comments so seriously all the time.

When you do that, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling attracted to the new, emotionally stronger version of you who has the balls to joke around in moments that you would previously become unsure of yourself, back down or get annoyed and turn it into a stressful conversation.

When you can just relax, be confident and be more easy-going about things as you talk to her, her guard naturally comes down and she becomes more open to the idea of getting back together again.

For example: A woman might be feeling angry, resentful and bitter towards her ex because of what happened between them.

When he calls her on the phone, or bumps into her somewhere, she might be cold and distant towards him and say something like, "Forget about it. I'm never going to forgive you for what you did to me.â€œ

If he then reacts by getting upset, or giving up, heâ€™s likely going to lose any chance he has of re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for him.

On the other hand, if he responds in a way that makes her smile, laugh and feel happy to be interacting with him again, her guard will come down.

So, if she says something like, â€œForget about it. Iâ€™m never going to forgive you for what you did to me,â€œ you can respond by saying, â€œMe too! Iâ€™m never going to forgive you for what you did to me either!â€œ

She might then look annoyed and say, â€œWhat do you mean? I never did anything to you,â€œ and you can reply by saying, â€œSure you did! You got me addicted to your delicious lasagne and now Iâ€™m having withdrawal symptoms. Itâ€™s pure torture! Iâ€™ve been eating lasagne when out with friends at restaurants, but itâ€™s not the same. Youâ€™ve ruined lasagne for me forever! I can never forgive you for doing that to meâ€œ and then have a laugh with her about that.

She will most likely laugh along with you and it will then take away the seriousness of what she was saying a moment earlier.

When you use humor and get her smiling and laughing, your ex is going to feel good around you again.

She will start feeling surges of respect and attraction for you again and her guard will come down, making her more open to the idea of getting back together again.

So, donâ€™t be afraid to make her laugh, especially if sheâ€™s being serious, bitchy or mean.

3. Don't Make it All About Your Feelings

Sometimes, a guy might feel so worried to be talking to his ex again after a break up that he ends up babbling on about his feelings and comes across as being too emotionally sensitive.

Some women even see it as being selfish because it seems to be all about him, rather than how she feels and what she wants.

For example: A man might call his ex woman and she might then ask, â€œWhat do you want?â€œ or â€œWhy are you calling me?â€œ in a cold, mean or rude tone of voice.

Rather than just laugh at her coldness (e.g. â€œOoh, someone is in a bitchy mood todayâ€œ or â€œGee, you sound nice and friendly todayâ€œ) and focus on making her feel attracted, he starts saying things like, â€œLook, I know you donâ€™t want to talk to me, but please just listen! Iâ€™m falling apart without you. Donâ€™t you care that I am lost without you? I hate the thought of having hurt you so much that now you donâ€™t even want to talk to me. Being apart from you is killing me. Please just give me a chance to explain. I can make it up to youâ€œ, I really can. I care so much for you. You mean everything to me. Iâ€™ve never loved another woman like you and I never will. I canâ€™t concentrate at work and I havenâ€™t been eating or sleeping properly. Please, you mean the world to me. Donâ€™t give up on us now. What we had was so special.â€œ

Even though he is being sincere and pouring his heart out because he really does love her and truly believes that he would do a better job this time around, she just doesnâ€™t care.

When a woman doesnâ€™t feel respect and attraction for a guy, him telling her all about how badly heâ□□s feeling isnâ□□t going to matter that much to her.

Instead, she will think something like, *â□□ Why is he sulking to me about how bad he feels? Doesnâ□□t he realize that heâ□□s just putting me off even more by being so emotionally sensitive and needy? Itâ□□s bad enough that he hurt me, but now he is just making things worse by being such a wuss. If he thinks that showing me how sad he's feeling without me, is going to make me change my mind about him, he hasnâ□□t figured out yet that women are turned off by emotional weakness in men. If he wants me to care that he cares for me, heâ□□s going to have figure out how to be a confident, emotionally strong man. Right now though, that looks impossible because he's being such a wimp. He just doesnâ□□t get it. Iâ□□m going to have to go ahead and find myself a real man because clearly he isn't one and doesn't have a clue how to quickly become one.*â□□

Remember: If you want to be attractive when talking to your ex girlfriend on the phone or in person, donâ□□t waste her time or your time letting her know how terrible youâ□□ve been feeling since the break up.

Instead, just focus on re-sparking her feelings of respect, sexual attraction and love for you by showing her that youâ□□ve moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you.

For example: If a woman dumped a guy because he was too insecure and self-doubting, he will need to show her that he has become emotionally stronger since the breakup.

Another example is where a woman broke up with a guy because they were constantly fighting and disagreeing over things and she was tired of always feeling stressed out, irritated or annoyed.

To show her that heâ□□s moved past that level, he needs to react differently to what sheâ□□s saying (e.g. if she says something that would previously cause an argument, he now remains calm and turns it into something to laugh about together).

By showing your ex that youâ□□re not the same guy she broke up with, you will be able to break down some of the walls sheâ□□s put up to keep herself closed off from you.

Even if she tries to stop it, her feelings of respect and attraction will begin to trickle through to her heart and make her feel drawn to you.

Then, as long as you continue saying and doing the type of things that build on her feelings on for you, that initial trickle of respect and attraction will turn into a torrent and she will then be the one saying, *â□□ Maybe we made a mistake. Maybe we should give our relationship another chance*â□|â□□

4. Flirt With Her

A lot of guys make the mistake of thinking that flirting is reserved only for when a guy is trying to attract a woman for the first time, or when a man and a woman are in a relationship together.

So, some of the guys who read this section will think, *â□□ I canâ□□t do that! Itâ□□s not my place to flirt with her anymore, or joke around and make her feel attracted. What if she gets angry and then refuses to talk to me or see me again? I wonâ□□t be able to get her back. If I flirt with her, she might tell me to stop being like that and to just treat her like a friend. That would annoy her, wouldn't it?*â□□

No, it will attract her.

Flirting makes women feel attracted especially when they are your ex.

An ex woman will act as though it's not working on her, but it will be.

Yet, because a guy's confidence has taken a beating after being dumped and he is so worried about annoying his ex girlfriend, he will believe her when she says something like, "Hey, don't talk to me like that. We're not together anymore" in response to him flirting with her or even joking around.

So, when talking to his ex on the phone or in person, he will try to please her by acting more like a friend, or worse, acting like he's no longer interested in her.

However, his friendly, nice guy, non-sexual approach will simply make her feel NOTHING for him. She's not going to be thinking, "Wow! My ex is on his best behavior. He must really still love me. I will reward him by feeling attracted and giving him sex, love and devotion now. It's time to get back together because he's been such a good little boy! Yayy!"

Instead, she will think something like, "Why am I not feeling anything for him anymore? I know that I said I was cool about being friends with him, but it's getting annoying now. Maybe the fact that I am not feeling anything for him is a sign that we're not meant to be together. Maybe he isn't the one and I was right for breaking up with him."

She then opens herself up to meeting new guys, having sex and falling in love to get over and move on from her ex.

So, if you want your ex to respect you and feel attracted for you, don't waste time pretending you just want to be her innocent, non-sexual friend.

Watch this video for more info!

While being her "friend," you have to actively make her feel sexually attracted to you and one of the best ways to start doing that is by flirting with her.

Flirt (verb): Behave as though attracted to or trying to attract someone, but for amusement rather than with serious intentions.

Flirting is fun for both men and women.

When it comes to getting an ex back, flirting breaks down the walls of mistrust and misunderstanding and it allows a woman to feel attracted without worrying that it means she is agreeing to get back with him.

Yet, when she feels attracted, she then wants him back.

The fact is that when you flirt with your ex on the phone or in person, she's going to feel good, and you're going to feel good and she will feel more open to the idea of getting back together again.

5. Have a Positive Attitude, No Matter How Cold or Distant She is Being

[image: Have a positive attitude no matter how cold or distant she is being]

Wouldn't it be nice if you could just call your ex or see her in person and she then says, "Hey, we both made mistakes. I forgive you for making me feel the way you did. I love you. Let's just get back together again!"

Yes, that would be nice, but it will rarely happen if the guy doesn't reactivate the woman's feelings first.

If he just expects her to change her mind because they haven't been speaking to each other, he will be disappointed when he sees that she's moving on without him.

To get your ex back, you've got to do something about it.

You've got to become more attractive to her in the way that you now think, talk, feel, behave and act.

For example:

- Are you now very confident and emotionally strong, or are you still fairly insecure and emotionally sensitive?
- Are you now very driven and motivated, or hiding from your true potential as a man?
- Are you now more emotionally dominant than her, or would she still be able to walk all over you by acting cold, bitchy or dominant?

If you want to attract her back for real, she's going to need to see that you have already improved, fixed, adjusted or changed the things that were turning her off about you before.

If she can't see that you have change, a woman will usually remain cold and distant until she it becomes more obvious to her that she's dealing with a new, improved man now.

So, if she is cold and distant towards you, don't take it too seriously and don't let it ruin your positive attitude or confidence about getting her back.

If you maintain a positive attitude, regardless of how she's behaving (e.g. she is unfriendly, keeps bringing up all your past mistakes, flirts with other guys in front of), it will become very difficult for her to keep behaving badly towards you when you're being such a great guy.

Note: Sometimes when a woman is being cold and unresponsive towards her ex, he might attempt to attract her back by bragging, exaggerating or even lying about what he's been up to.

For example: A guy might say to his ex, I've been having such a great time lately. I've been hanging out with some new friends and we've been invited to some of the most exclusive, VIP clubs in the city. I love my new life.

Alternatively he might say, I got a promotion at work. I'm making so much more money now that I'm thinking about getting a new car.

Secretly, he's hoping that she will be impressed and will then stop being so cold and distant towards him because she wants to be included in on his new, amazing life without her.

Yet, if he's only lying about getting promoted or having fun without her, she will either sense it right away or eventually find out about it and she will be turned off even more.

So, rather than creating additional problems for yourself, just focus on having a positive attitude, remaining confident and actively making her feel respect and attraction for you again.

When she can see that you're not the same guy she broke up with, her guard will come down.

She may act like she's not interested to test if you will become insecure, but just maintain your confident, positive attitude and continue on until you are kissing her, having sex and back in a relationship again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Your Ex Back Without Pressuring Her

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

You need to be assertive to get a woman back, but that doesn't mean you should pressure her to decide right now or rush her decision.

You need to confidently guide her back into a relationship by reactivating her feelings and getting to hug, kiss and if applicable, also have sex to reconnect in a physical way.

She will most-likely be resistant to getting back together (most women are after a break up), but if you know that you and her will be so much happier now that you have improved, as a man you need to be emotionally courageous enough to put up with her sometimes cold, distant or stubborn behavior.

When you bring the love back to life and both you and her are happier than ever before, she will appreciate the fact that you loved her enough to endure the ex back process and get the relationship back together.

Most guys feel like it's too difficult or that it's impossible to get a woman back, but it's actually easy when you follow these 3 steps:

1. Apologize for your mistakes and let her see that you've already changed or improved the things that she broke up with you for (e.g. insecurity, lack of ambition, taking her for granted).
2. Switch your focus to making her have some feelings for you (e.g. making her feel attracted to you by using humor, flirting, making her feel girly and feminine around you, etc).
3. Guide her back into a relationship.

You've already done step 1, right?

Most guys have.

Yet, have you completed steps 2 and 3?

If you are not back with her yet, then you haven't. You've got to keep moving through the ex back process.

By the way, despite what people think

There's Nothing Wrong With Wanting Her Back or Getting Her Back

[image: Renew her feelings and get back together]

Some people think it's wrong or weak or whatever to get a woman back.

Screw them.

You love her and you want her back.

There's absolutely nothing wrong with that.

[image: Be calm and easy-going about the ex back process]

You are allowed to want her back, and you are allowed to do whatever it takes to get her back as long as you are being a loving man and not trying to hurt her.

If you are trying to get her back because you love her and will make her so much happier this time, you can go through the ex back process without feeling guilty about pressuring her.

At the end of the day, you are doing the right thing if it's for love.

Just make sure that you do it in a confident, relaxed manner, rather than panicking about losing her and forcefully trying to pressure her into giving you another chance.

For example: Some of the things that can make a woman feel pressured by a guy, include:

- Begging and pleading with her to give him another chance.
- Continually promising her that heâll do whatever she wants him to do if they get back together again.
- Telling her that he will hurt or kill himself if she doesn't give him another chance.
- Repeatedly apologizing for his past mistakes in long texts, e-mails, voicemails or social media messages.
- Desperately asking her to tell him what she wants him to change about himself.
- Forcefully trying to convince her by giving her a long list of reasons why they are âperfectâ together.
- Trying to make her feel guilty for putting him through so much emotional pain.
- Turning up at her front door uninvited and trying to get her to change her mind.
- Not giving her even one day of space because he is constantly texting, calling or trying to see her.

Here's the thing..

If you don't want to pressure your ex, just be more relaxed and easy going about the ex back process.

Interact with her and go through the ex back process, but don't be so frantic, urgent or panicked about it.

Regardless of what other people (who don't care about you getting her back) might say, the fact is that you are not doing anything wrong by wanting her back and then being confident enough to re-attract her and guide her back into a relationship.

By approaching it that way, she is going to feel good about getting back with you because she feels attracted and she likes the new you.

She won't feel like she is being pressured to get back with you, even though haven't really changed or improved much about yourself and are just trying to get her back because you feel horrible, lonely and rejected without her.

When she feels good about going through the ex back process with you, her guard comes down and she becomes more open to interacting with you again, meeting up with you in person and getting back together.

Where Some Guys Go Wrong

[image: Be calm and easy-going about the ex back process]

When a woman is resisting any attempts by her ex to restart the relationship (e.g. sheâs being cold, distant or stubborn), he might then feel that he needs to be extra sensitive of her feelings and listen to everything she says.

He hopes that by becoming sensitive, soft, caring and gentle, she will feel less pressured and then want to get back with him.

Yet, in the process, he will end up turning her off because women just aren't attracted to soft, wimpy guys.

What he needs to do is be confident, relaxed and easy-going, but he also needs to be strong, assertive and push the ex back process along.

He can't just wait for to guide him back into a relationship because if she doesn't have strong feelings for him, she's just going to move on.

For example: A woman might say to a guy, "I'm really not sure what I want right now. I don't know if this relationship is right for me. Please don't pressure me to make a decision right now, because I can't. Just give me a month of space to think things through and then we can see what happens after that."

In most cases, a guy will think, "That's okay. I can deal with that. She's only asking me for a month. Who knows, it might even turn out to be a good thing. She will have time to calm down and then she will realize that what we have together was amazing and is too good to throw away, she will be happy to get back together again."

He will then give her the space that she's asking for.

[image: Giving her the space to move on]

Yet, when a month and possibly even two months pass by and he doesn't hear from her again, he starts to wonder, "Why isn't she calling me? She said she wants a month of space and I've already given her a lot more time than that. I didn't put pressure on her during that time, so why hasn't she called me yet?"

The main reason why giving a woman a month (or more) of space after a break up just doesn't work in most ex back cases.

If a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy, not having to see him, or deal with him trying to get her back for a month is actually a good thing to her.

Most women use the time, space or distance they've asked for to secretly get over him and move on with their life.

This is why I recommend that a guy not give a woman more than 7 days of space before contacting her and continuing on with the ex back process.

Watch this video for more info!

Giving a woman too much space when she doesn't have strong feelings for her ex is usually a recipe for disaster.

She knows that she doesn't want him back (because he hasn't done anything to reactivate her feelings), but she's also feeling sad, hurt and lonely after the break, so what does she do?

Yes, you guessed it.

She either starts flirting with new guys, goes on dates and possibly even has sex with some of them to completely get over her ex.

That's not what you want, right?

You want her back.

If you want her back, don't ever think that you are doing the wrong thing by actively getting her back.

Some people will tell you that it's weak to chase after her and it's tougher to ignore her and not care.

Yet, it's actually weaker to avoid problems than to face them head on.

When you have the confidence, courage and willingness to quickly change and improve yourself and then guide her through the ex back process, you get your ex back.

Yet, if you just sit around hoping that by not contacting her it will lessen the pressure and she will want you back, you're most likely going to be disappointed.

By the wayâ€¦!

Don't get me wrong here.

I'm not saying that you should pressure her back into a relationship with you.

Instead, I'm say that you should quickly improve yourself (within 3 to 7 days) and then contact her, re-attract her and guide her through the ex back process.

Most guys don't realize that it's possible to do that, so they choose to just wait in the background and hope that everything simply works out.

Yet, while heâ€™s waiting around being emotionally sensitive to her needs and trying to get her back without pressuring her, she will usually go out, have fun and possibly even hook up with other guys.

This is why itâ€™s so important to only give your ex a week of space at most, before contacting her again.

Even if she asks you for a month, I recommend that you call her after a week.

The fact is that you have to stay in touch with her if youâ€™re going to successfully re-spark her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

You make her have feelings for you by doing nothing, if she currently has a negative perception of you.

Sure, give her a week to cool off and calm down, but don't waste time by hoping that giving her more space will make things even better.

In most cases, the woman will simply move on!

When it comes to getting a woman back, absence doesn't make the heart grow fonder if she doesn't have feelings for you.

If your ex really does love you and want you back, then yes â€¦ ignore her for as long as you like and she will come running back.

Yet, in 80% of the ex back cases that I've worked on, the woman starts out not wanting anything to do with the guy anymore because he has ruined her feelings for him.

The only way to get a woman like back is to reactivate her feelings during interactions.

If the guy simply ignores her, she's just going to move on without him and won't care at all.

So, don't worry about whether or not she might feel that youâ€™re pressuring her back into a relationship.

You're not pressuring her.

You're just being a confident, relaxed, easy-going and loving man who is creating the opportunity for you and her to give the relationship another shot.

So, get her on a phone call right away.

On the phone call, actively change her feelings for you by making her feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Once you've re-sparked some of her feelings for you, get her to agree to meet up with you in person to catch up.

It's much easier to do that than to sit around for weeks or months worrying about her sleeping with other guys.

Get her back!

What if She Says "No" to Your First Request to Catch Up?

Sometimes, a woman will be resistant to the idea of meeting up with her ex because she is afraid of what might happen or what she could feel for him if they talked in person again.

So, she might say something like, "Look, just give me time. I asked for a month of space and now you're calling me up after only a week. Why can't you just give me more time? I'm not ready to get back together. I need more time to think about it. I don't like you pressuring me in this way."

No matter what she says, don't get upset or angry and say something like, "I'm sorry! I don't want you to feel like I'm pressuring you, it's just that I miss you so much. You're not being fair to me. You just want everything your way! What about my feelings?"

Don't say anything like that!

That is the biggest mistakes that a man can make when trying to get a woman back...

Getting upset, or even worse, angry with her is definitely not going to convince her that she wants to see you again and it's also not going to do anything to re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

So, if your ex says "No" the first time you ask her to meet up with you and is playing a little bit hard to get, use it as an opportunity to spark her feelings of attraction by making her laugh.

For example: If your ex says, "Look, just give me time. I asked for a month of space and now you're calling me up after only a week. Why can't you just give me more time? I'm not ready to get back together. I need more time to think about it. I don't like you pressuring me in this way," you can respond by laughing and saying in a joking way, "Oops! Well, I guess I should walk away from your front door then. I'm standing outside with a bunch of helium balloons. I will give them to your neighbor then" and then have a laugh with her about.

She'll most likely respond by saying, "What? You're outside my door holding balloons? You're crazy! Why are you here?"

[image: Use humor to calm the tension]

You can then laugh and say, “No, I’m only kidding! Of course I wouldn’t do that. You know I wouldn’t be that kind of guy who turns up at your front door and tries to pressure you into getting back with me. All I am asking for is to catch up to say hello as friends. It’s not about us getting back together. We would be simply catching up to say hello. If after the coffee, you decide that you never want to speak to me again, I will honor that wish and never contact you again. So, how about we catch up for a 10 minute coffee this Tuesday or Wednesday evening this week? Or, do I need to turn up at your front door with balloons?” and then laugh with her about that.

When she notices that you are being easy going and have the confidence to joke around with her, it will actually make her feel a spark of respect and attraction for the new you.

When that happens, she opens herself up to the idea of meeting up with you.

You can then convince her by saying something like, “Look, there’s no pressure about meeting up for 10 minutes over a cup of coffee to say hello to each other. We can do that. It’s no big deal. It doesn’t mean we’re getting back together. It’s just coffee. So, how about it? I’m free on Tuesday and Wednesday this week. Which of those nights suits you best?”

In most cases, a woman will respond by saying something like, “Oh, okay. Maybe just this once, but I’m only staying for 10 minutes” and she’ll tell you which day she’s available.

Then, when you meet up with her in person, you attract her to the new and improved you and then simply guide her through the rest of the ex back process.

Are You Ready to Get Her Back?

Have you improved on your weaknesses and the things that were turning her off?

Are you ready to impress her in person and attract her to the new you?

Watch this video to understand how it works!

As you can see, you don’t need to pressure a woman to get her back.

You simply need to give her the attraction experience that she really wants and then, getting back together feels like a good thing for her too.

It’s not just about you wanting her back anymore.

She is attracted to the new you and enjoys how she feels around you now.

So, just guide her back into a relationship and enjoy the great times ahead with her!

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Are You Making it Difficult For Your Ex to Love You?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Making your ex love you again is easy.

Yet, if you make any of the following mistakes, it becomes difficult because she feels turned off and can't fully respect you.

So, if you want to make your ex love you again, be sure not to ruin her feelings withâ

1. Needy communication

[image: Needy communication with ex]

When a guy gets broken up with, the reality of what just happened might cause him to panic and react in ways that he normally wouldn't.

He might start thinking, âShe is mine! I'm not going to let some other guy take her from me. I will do whatever it takes to get her love back.â

It's fine to want your ex back, but the thing that turns a woman off is when a man starts communicating with her in a desperate, needy way.

For example: He might...

- Send her numerous text messages explaining his feelings for her, apologizing and trying to convince her why she should give him another chance.
- Bombard her with texts so he is on her mind all the time, in the hope that she will eventually realize how much she still loves him.
- Always respond to any communication from her (e.g. a text, social media message, or a phone call) instantly or very quickly.
- Try to make her feel sorry for him by telling her that his life means nothing without her, or that he is sad and can't function at work or university.

Yet, rather than make a woman think, âWow, he must really love me so much. That must mean that he is the one for me. So, how can I possibly give up on the love we shared? Iâve been too hard on him. Maybe itâs time to get back together again,â she will think something like, âWhy doesn't he leave me alone? Does he really think that being needy, clingy and insecure every time he gets in touch with me is going to make me suddenly love him again? Doesn't he realize that neediness and desperation are qualities that women find unattractive in a man? Even if I had my doubts about breaking up with him before, his recent needy behavior has convinced me that heâs simply not man enough for me. I need a man I can look up to and respect, not a needy little boy that I have to take care of. He just doesn't understand how to be a man in this situation, or in many of the situations that we encountered in our relationship.â

Even though she would happily give him another chance if he approached getting her back correctly, he's messing it up by being needy.

Most guys get stuck at the basic step of apologizing for their mistakes and asking for another chance, but they never really progress past that.

If you want to make your ex love you again, don't make her think that you're a needy, desperate guy who is lost without her and doesn't know what else to do but apologize and ask for another chance.

Instead, focus on saying and doing the types of things that will re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you (e.g. being confident and emotionally mature, being more charismatic and charming, making her smile and laugh, making her feel girly in comparison to how masculine you think, talk, feel and behave).

When it feels good to her to be interacting with you again, she will be a lot more motivated to want to meet up with you and see if you and her can rekindle the love that you once shared.

The next thing that makes it difficult for an ex to love you again is

2. Not fixing the things about you that secretly turn her off

When a woman is saying things like, "Look, it's over between us. We gave it our best shot and now we need to say goodbye and go our separate ways. We're just not compatible with each other. We want different things from a relationship," a guy might then start offering to change all sorts of things that she doesn't really care about.

For example: A woman might want her ex to be more of a man around her.

Yet, he might say to her, "Please don't go. I can change. I promise that if you just give me one more chance I will be the best boyfriend (fiancé or husband) in the world. I'll be more attentive. I'll treat you better than ever before and I'll make sure you get everything your heart desires."

That's not what she is asking for, so rather than make her change her mind and give him another chance, it just turns her off even more.

He is offering to change things about himself that she doesn't really care about (i.e. he's promising to treat her better, but what she really wants is for him to be more ballsy and more of a man around her).

So, if you want to make your ex love you again, you first need to understand the real reasons why she broke up with you.

Then, when you next interact with her, you can show her that you're no longer turning her off in the ways that you used to.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he lacked confidence and was too insecure and emotionally sensitive, he has to show her that he has become more confident now.

He is emotionally strong and no longer doubts himself around her, becomes emotionally sensitive when she tests his confidence (i.e. by throwing a tantrum, acting like she isn't interested, teasing him).

Another example is if a woman broke up with a guy for being too nice and allowing her to push him around.

To show her that he's not that guy anymore he needs to be more ballsy around her by standing up for himself in an assertive, but loving way.

When a woman can see that you've changed without needing her help or guidance, she will naturally begin to feel respect and attraction for you and it then becomes a lot easier for her to love you again.

Another mistake that will make it difficult for your ex to love you isâ€¦

3. Asking her to help you understand what you need to say and do to get her back

[image: Just tell me what I need to change and I will do it]

When a guy realizes that he needs to change to get his ex back, he will usually say to her, â€œJust tell me what you want. Iâ€™ll do anything for you. Please help me understand what I did wrong. Tell me what turned you off about me and I will fix it. Just give me one more chance to show you that things can be different between us.â€

Heâ€™s likely thinking that by asking her to help him understand what he needs to do to get her back, it will make her happy because it will show her how much he cares.

Yet, thatâ€™s not what a woman wants.

A woman doesnâ€™t want to take on the role of being a guyâ€™s guide or teacher in life and have to teach him how to be attractive to her.

She wants him to figure it out on his own (or with the help of male friends or role models), so that she can look up to him and respect him as a man, rather than look down on him and feel like she has to take care of him like his mother or big sister.

4. Being too emotionally sensitive

When a woman breaks up with a guy, she will usually make it difficult for him to interact with her from then on.

For example: She might refuse to answer his texts, or talk to him on the phone, or she might ignore him on social media.

If she does happen to bump into him (e.g. if they work together, or go to university together, have mutual friends, live in the same apartment building), she might be cold, distant and even a little bit bitchy towards him.

If the guy then becomes emotional and starts asking her, â€œWhy are you doing this to me? How can you be so cold after everything weâ€™ve been through together? Doesnâ€™t the love that we shared mean anything to you? Is your heart made of stone? I still love you, you know! Why canâ€™t you at least talk to me nicely? Why are you so closed off? Please, just stop ignoring me from now on and give me one more chance to make things up to you. You might have been able to get over me, but I am not over you. I canâ€™t even function properly at work. Please just give us a chance to work things out.â€

Yet, rather than make her think, â€œHeâ€™s right. I am being a bitch towards him. After all we did love each other. I owe it to him to give him another chance,â€ she will be thinking something like, â€œIf he thinks that behaving like a lost boy who needs his mommy is going to make me love him again, heâ€™s got it all wrong.â€

Although a guy might feel frustrated and hurt that his ex is shutting him out of her life completely, the only way for him to make her stop giving him the cold shoulder and open herself up to loving him again is by rebuilding her feelings of respect and attraction for him.

How can he do that?

By thinking, talking and behaving in some of the ways that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. being confident around her and changing her mood by making her smile and laugh when she is being bitchy and cold).

So, if you really want to convince your ex to try again and not give up on your love, focus on making her feel respect and attraction for you again, rather than expecting her to care that you were once in love with each other.

When she's feeling attracted to the new and improved you, reconnecting with her original feelings of love for you will happen automatically because it now feels good to her.

5. Trying to convince her to give you another chance by having long, drawn out conversations with her

Nothing that you can say to a woman will make her change her mind if she doesn't have feelings for you.

You have to trigger her feelings first before she opens herself up to hear what you have to say.

Watch this video to see what I mean!

Since most guys don't know how to re-attract their ex, they try to use whatever approach they are able to do on their own.

Unfortunately, this often means that a guy tries to convince his ex woman to give him another chance, by having long, drawn out, emotional, tiring conversations with her.

Although she might allow the conversation to happen, it's just not going to make her feel excited to get back with him.

You've got to focus on creating a spark again, rather than trying to convince her with all of your logical reasons why you and her should get back together (e.g. you're a good guy, you will do better this time, you love her).

6. Seeking pity

Sometimes, a guy might try to make his ex woman feel pity for him in the hope that it causes her to feel guilty enough to give him another chance.

Yet, it usually just makes her more determined not to give in to his emotional blackmail and to move on to a more emotionally strong man.

A woman wants to be with a man because it feels right (i.e. she respects him, feels sexually attracted and loves him), not because she's doing him a favor.

7. Being extra nice

When all else fails, a guy will sometimes resort to being extra nice to his ex by doing whatever she wants and being at her beck and call, in the hopes that she will realize what a great guy he is and then get back together with him.

Yet, even though a woman might appreciate that her ex is being so nice to her, niceness isn't enough to make her feel respect and sexual attraction for him again.

Fact: Her Love For You Isn't Dead

A lot of people aren't aware of the fact that love doesn't die.

Love can be brought back to life by reactivating a woman's feelings of respect and attraction for you.

The love that your ex once felt for you is still there, but it has simply been pushed into the background by more negative emotions such as anger, disgust, resentment and disappointment.

You can make her reconnect with the love by guiding her through the ex back process!

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

3 Ways to Make Your Ex Love You as Much as You Love Her

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex is currently saying things like, “I don’t love you anymore,” it might feel that getting her to change her mind is an impossible dream.

Yet, making you ex love you as much as you love her isn’t as difficult as it might seem to you right now.

Here are the 3 steps that you need to take to make her reconnect with the love she used to feel for you.

When you do that, she will naturally want to get back with you again.

1. Start Giving Her the Attraction Experience That She Secretly Wants

[image: Start giving her the attraction experience that she secretly wants]

Most women don’t explain the secret, subtle things that they want a man to say and do in every moment to give her the attraction experience they want.

For example: A woman might throw a tantrum and wish her boyfriend (or husband) didn’t take it so seriously.

She wished he would sometimes just laugh at her and the situation, rather than getting sucked into the fake drama she was creating.

Yet, she doesn’t say that to him.

Instead, she just hopes that he “understands her” or “gets her” and is able to read between the lines and realize that, even though she seems really mad because she’s throwing a tantrum, she will actually love him more if he has the balls to guide the interaction back to laughter and love.

If he doesn’t, the tantrum will turn into a heated argument or into him trying to suck up to her to get her to stop.

As a result, she will feel unsatisfied that he isn’t able to give her the attraction experience that she wants in a relationship.

Another example of a man not giving a woman the attraction experience that she wants in a relationship is where he becomes clingy, needy and emotionally sensitive, but she is attracted to emotional strength in men.

She hates it when a guy needs her to be gentle with him, reassure him of her love and essentially mother him, but he just doesn’t know how else to act in a relationship.

She then feels unsatisfied and rather than teaching him how to change, she just falls out of love with him and then breaks up with him.

He is then left feeling lost and wondering how he can make her love him as much as he loves her.

If he then calls her up, crying, begging and saying things like, “I can’t live without you. How can you do this to us? Why can’t you love me as much as I love you? Can’t you see that I feel lost without you? Please don't do this. You mean everything to me. I need you in my life,â€œ it will turn her off even more.

His need for her will simply confirm to her that he still doesn't understand how to be an emotionally strong, emotionally mature man and as a result, she will lose even more respect and attraction for him.

On the other hand, if he can start showing her (by the way he talks, thinks, behaves, interacts with her and responds to what she says) that heâ€œs now more confident and emotionally strong, she will automatically feel more attracted to him and respectful of him.

Another example of not giving a woman the attraction experience she wants, is where a guy had no real purpose and direction in his life, which made her feel unsafe and insecure about her future with him.

She couldn't feel attracted to the man he was and the man he was becoming because he was just stuck and accepted his lot in life.

A woman wants to know that her man is rising through the levels of life by reaching for his true potential as a man, rather than just planning on getting by and never really having a secure future.

A man does not need to have achieved everything before a woman can fully love and respect him again.

Instead, he just has to show her that heâ€œs putting in the effort to become a bigger and better man to ensure a safer future for both of them.

So, the question is: What part of the overall attraction experience of being with a man in a relationship was your ex girlfriend (or wife) missing?

What are your weak points when it comes to relationships and maintaining her attraction for you?

That's what you need to start improving right now.

By showing your ex (by the way you now think, talk, feel, behave and act) that youâ€œve fixed some of things that caused her to break up with you in the first place, she subconsciously allows the walls around her heart to come down and begins to feel more respect and attraction for you as a man.

She starts to say to herself, â€œThis is what I wanted from him all along. Now itâ€œs actually possible for me to love him again. This is different.â€œ

2. Reactivate Her Feelings, But Don't Immediately Pressure Her to Get Back Into a Relationship

One of the best ways to make your ex love you as much as you love her is by actively triggering her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you.

You can only achieve that by interacting with her on phone calls and in person.

Where many guys go wrong is by thinking that a womanâ€œs feelings will change all by themselves and one day she will call him up and say, â€œIâ€œve come to my senses. I love you now. Letâ€œs get back together again.â€œ

So, rather than make the effort to interact with her, like calling her on the phone, or meeting up with her in person, a guy might sit back for weeks and sometimes even months, waiting to hear from her.

Yet, it rarely (if ever) happens.

If a woman doesn't have any feelings for her ex, not hearing from him will actually be a relief in most cases.

She will think something like, "Cool. He's leaving me alone. Now I can move on without him. When we do speak again, I'll make sure that I've hooked up with another guy, so I can rub that in his face."

Meanwhile, the guy ignoring her is hoping, "Hopefully by ignoring her, she starts to love me as much as I love her. She will miss me and realize that I am the one for her."

Yet, here's the thing!

If a woman does happen to contact her ex after not hearing from him for a long time, it's usually to see if he's still missing her (to make herself feel good about herself), but she's not going to get back with him.

A woman will rarely get back with a guy that she doesn't have feelings for.

If you want your ex to have feelings for you, the best way to do that is to interact with her and create a new spark of respect and sexual attraction.

So, don't waste precious time ignoring your ex in the hopes that the time apart will convince her that she loves you as much as you love her.

Instead, just focus on interacting with her over the phone or in person and create a spark with her again.

Then, when she is feeling attracted again, just give her 3 to 7 days of space so she can start to really miss you.

In most cases that I've worked on, the woman will then text or call the man within the 3 to 7 days to say hello.

From there, you just need to continue saying and doing the types of things that will build on her feelings for you (e.g. by making her smile and laugh, being confident and charismatic).

She will then naturally and automatically begin to reconnect with the love that she felt for you before.

3. Be a Man That She Can Now Fully Look Up to and Respect

In a relationship, it's the man's responsibility to maintain and build on the respect, sexual attraction and love that his woman feels for him over time.

If he can't do that for her, a woman will eventually start to ask herself, "Why am I still with him if I don't love him as much as he loves me? Why am I putting up with second best? I deserve to be with a man that I can look up to and respect, feel attracted to and love. I want a man that I can feel proud of, not someone I have to make excuses for. Maybe him and I have to break up. Maybe he isn't the one."

If she continues to see that he doesn't make much or any effort to build on her feelings for him (e.g. he falls into the habit of taking her for granted, he uses the relationship with her to hide from his true potential as a man, he stops leading the way and allows her to dominate him), she will eventually just break up with him, rather than stick around hoping he will change one day.

The thing is, when a woman loses respect for a guy (e.g. because he becomes insecure, takes her for granted), it becomes increasingly difficult for her to feel sexually attracted to him and when that happens, she will also begin to disconnect with her love for him.

She will then become increasingly cold and distant, until one day she tells him that she no longer loves him and doesn't want to be with him.

Classic Mistakes That Guys Make When a Woman Falls Out of Love

It hurts when the woman that you love says something like, "I don't love you anymore" and then breaks up with you.

Sometimes, a guy won't know how to handle the situation and will begin pouring his heart out to her, begging for another chance or desperately trying to convince her to stay.

So, if you've made any of the following mistakes, don't worry â you can still fix it.

1. Thinking that explaining how much you love her will make her love you back

[image: Please understand how much I love you]

If a woman doesn't have feelings for her ex anymore, him saying, "I know we're broken up, but I want you to know that I am still in love with you and want to be with you. I'll always love you no matter what," isn't going to make much difference to her.

Why?

If a woman has lost respect and attraction for her ex, it won't matter to her that he still loves her.

She just won't care about his feelings for her because she doesn't have strong feelings for him.

She might a bit feel sorry for him, but that isn't going to make her want to be with him.

A woman doesn't want to have to be with a guy because he wants it because that feels unfair to her and like she is doing him a favor.

Instead, she wants to feel respect, sexual attraction and love for him, which then automatically makes her want to have sex with him and be in a relationship with him.

So, if you want to make your ex love you as much as you love her, you must make her experience the type of feelings she wants to experience when she's with you (e.g. respect, attraction, love), rather than trying to explain to her how much you love her.

If you don't re-spark her feelings for you first, she's just going to keep saying, "Please accept that it's over," because she doesn't care that you love her.

However, when you spark some of her feelings for you first and then build on that, she then starts feeling good about the fact that she loves you and you love her.

It then makes total sense for her to want to get back with you.

Another mistake to avoid isâ

2. Thinking that being a nice, supportive friend will make her love you

When a guy is faced with losing his woman forever, he might think, "When she sees that I am the one who is always there for her no matter what, she will realize that she still loves me as much as I *love her. We can get back together again and forget about what just happened between us. Yes, that's what I will do! I will be the nicest ex boyfriend (or husband) a woman has ever known. I will be so supportive, caring and attentive and she will then fall back in love with me because she will realize that no other guy will treat her as well as I do.*â□□

He might then decide to make himself available to her every beck and call, in the hopes that her feelings for him will change.

Yet, in most cases, a woman will assume that friends means friends and heâ□□ll end up being the one hearing all about the new man in her life.

Here's the thingâ□!

It's totally fine to remain friends with your ex, but you have to make sure that you are actively making her feel sexually attracted to you.

Watch this video for more infoâ□!

If you only focus on making her feel neutral, friendly feelings for you by being a nice, supportive friend, she might keep you around in the background as a friend, but that wonâ□□t stop her from having sex or falling in love with a new guy.

So, donâ□□t put yourself in that position with her.

Be her friend by all means, but make sure your friendship with her is only a stepping stone towards making her feel sexually attracted to you again, so she can then begin to fall in love with you again.

Another mistake to avoid isâ□!

3. Thinking that giving her weeks or months of space will eventually make her fall back in love with you

If youâ□□re considering stepping back for a while and giving your ex some space (e.g. ignoring her for a few weeks or months), I recommend that you watch this videoâ□!

Although itâ□□s fine to give a woman a few days of space after a break up to allow things to calm down between you and her, anything longer than 3 to 7 days usually causes more harm than good.

For example: If a woman doesnâ□□t hear back from her ex for more than a week, she mightâ□!

- Stop feeling sad about the break up and realize that sheâ□□s actually going to be okay without her ex.
- Assume that since he hasnâ□□t contacted her in a long time he doesnâ□□t care about her anymore.
- Start going out and meeting new guys and discover that she likes it.
- See him as emotionally immature for not having the balls to call her.

This is why I recommend that men contact their ex woman within 3 to 7 days.

If she doesn't hear from you after that, she will usually just hook up with a new guy or at least start flirting with new guys to get you out of her mind, so she can begin to properly move on.

Making Your Ex Fall in Love With You All Over Again

Women yearn to be in a relationship with a man who has the emotional strength to guide her into deeper feelings of love over time.

So, if you want to make your ex love you as much as you love her, you need to be the more emotionally courageous one who makes it happen, even if she's currently saying things like, "Sorry, I'm not interested. Please respect my decision" or, "I just don't have feelings for you anymore."

To get her back, you need to make her reconnect with her feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

When she experiences that, she will naturally start to feel love for you again, except this time it will feel more exciting and worthwhile to her.

She then will realize that her love for you is more powerful than she ever knew.

By going through the ex back process, you will show her what true love really feels like and she will be grateful for it.

Getting back with an ex and experiencing a more powerful, exciting and intoxicating love is an amazing experience for a woman.

Don't deprive her of that.

Let her experience what it's like to fall back in love with an ex who has become a better man and is now capable of giving her the attraction experience that she always wanted.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Show Your Ex That You Care, Without Seeming Needy or Desperate

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To show your ex that you care without seeming needy or desperate, you need to let her see that you do want her back, but you don't actually need her back to feel emotionally secure again.

You have to get to the point where you honestly feel that you will be happy and fulfilled in your life, even if you never get her back.

It's totally fine to care about her and want her back, but you just have to sincerely know that you don't need her to feel good about yourself.

You can get on with your life without her, find another woman and you would be fine.

Of course, you want her back and that is fine too.

However, you must get yourself to the point emotionally where you are not dependent on her to feel like you're good enough as a man.

She doesn't want to feel as though you need her approval and acceptance to feel like you're worthy and that you're a good man.

If she senses that you are falling apart without her, rather than make her think, "How sweet. My ex must really love me if he can't get on with his life without me. I think we should get back together again because no other guy will ever feel this way about me," she pulls away from what she perceives as your emotional weakness.

Instinctively, a woman knows that if a guy falls apart after a break up, he is going to struggle to handle the challenges of life as the years go on (e.g. paying off a mortgage, raising children, maintaining a happy family, getting ahead in life).

Knowing that he crumbles under pressure doesn't make her feel as though she can relax, feel protected and feel safe in a relationship with him.

[image: Needing your ex back, rather than wanting her back]

Instead, she fears that he might always need her to be the emotionally stronger one who has to take care of him because he just can't cope on his own.

So, if you want to show your ex that you care without seeming needy or desperate, make sure that you focus on genuinely feeling happy, content and emotionally fulfilled without her.

When you do that, you will discover that working on yourself in that way brings out all the positive traits that women respect in a man (e.g. confidence, masculinity, drive and determination, perseverance) and as a result, you automatically become more attractive to her.

Then, when you interact with her again, either on a phone call, or in person and she senses (via your tonality, body language and the way you think, behave and react) that you are confident and happy and getting on with your life without her, she begins to see you differently.

She starts to think, "Hmm... I thought he was going to fall apart when we broke up, but he's being so emotionally mature all of a sudden. He's actually behaving in the ways that I always hoped he would. I like the new him. I know that I said I didn't want to be with him again, but for some reason I feel different now. I could actually seem myself falling in love again with the man he is now. Maybe it is okay to give our relationship another chance. Who cares what my friends think. I have to follow my heartâ€” and she then opens herself up to getting back together again.

3 Mistakes to Avoid When Trying to Not Seem Needy or Desperate

Sometimes, a guy will be so worried about seeming needy or desperate when heâ€™s interacting with his ex that he will end up behaving in ways that make her feel as though he doesn't really want her back.

So, if you want to get your ex back, avoid making these common mistakes that guys make when trying to avoid seeming needy or desperateâ€”!

1. Acting like youâ€™re completely over her when youâ€™re not

Sometimes, a guy might try to hide his feelings by acting like heâ€™s completely over her, even though what he really wants is to get her back.

For example: If she says something like, â€œI donâ€™t think we can ever be together again. I just donâ€™t have feelings for you anymore,â€ he might then respond by saying something like, â€œYeah, me too. I hope you donâ€™t think that Iâ€™m sitting around pining for you. Iâ€™m completely over you now too. Itâ€™s great isnâ€™t it? We got through this break up like two mature adults. Well, anyway, I wish you all the best for your future. Bye.â€

Secretly, heâ€™s hoping that it will shock her into saying, â€œWait! Wait! I really do love you. I want us to get back together!â€

Yet, hereâ€™s the thingâ€”!

When a woman doesnâ€™t feel enough respect and attraction for her man and has also disconnected from her feelings of love for him, sheâ€™s not really going to care that they are going their separate ways.

In fact, she might even feel a bit relieved that she wonâ€™t have to keep fighting him off and telling him that itâ€™s over.

Instead, she will seek to quickly start hooking up with new guys to make herself feel better and validate the fact that other guys want her, even though her ex doesn't.

Of course, sometimes if a guy pretends to be over his ex girlfriend (or wife), she might come running back to him out of fear of losing him.

This happens when the woman is very young, is inexperienced with relationships or is unattractive and worries that she won't be able to find a replacement guy before he hooks up with a new woman.

However, most of the time, even if a woman still has feelings for her ex, rather than try to get back with him, she is more likely to say to herself, â€œIf he doesnâ€™t love you anymore, then forget about him. He obviously isn't the one. Pick yourself up and find another guy who will love you the way that you deserve.â€

She will then try to move on (or have sex with new guys) as quickly as possible to get over the pain.

So, if you want to show your ex that you care, acting like youâ€™re over her is not the way to go about it in most cases.

Some women will fall for it, but most will simply seek to get revenge by hooking up with guys and moving on.

What should you do instead?

Simply need to focus on reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction for you by behaving in ways that are attractive to her (e.g. making her laugh and smile, being confident and charismatic, being emotionally masculine), every time you interact with her.

When you trigger her feelings in a confident, loving way, not only does she drop her guard and open herself up to the idea of getting back together again, but she also feels intensely attracted to you for being such an emotionally strong man.

2. Lying about having other women interested in you when there are none

Trying not to come across as being needy and desperate by lying about having other women interested when there aren't any, rarely works if your ex doesn't have feelings for you.

Instead, she will likely just shrug it off, be glad that the other women are keeping you away from her and simply move on without you.

Even if she initially feels a twinge of jealousy, she will quickly remember all the negative things about you that she didn't like (e.g. you were too emotionally sensitive, you lacked purpose and direction in your life, you took her for granted) and her jealousy will then be replaced with indifference.

If she doesn't know that you're lying and if she still kind of wants you back, it can make her feel like he is losing you and that she needs to give you another chance.

Yet, if she finds out that you're lying, it makes getting her back all the more challenging.

For example: A guy might be having a conversation with his ex about what he's been up to since they broke up.

He then says something like, "I've been quite busy actually. I've gone on a few dates and have been enjoying the single life again."

To test whether he's being honest, she might then respond by saying, "Really? That's too bad. I was kind of hoping that we could work things out between us, but clearly you're way too busy moving on. Okay, well, I won't bother you again. I've got to go. Bye."

If he then panics and says, "Hold on a minute! I'm not moving on. These women mean nothing to me. It's you that I really want. If you want to get back together again, of course I want that," she will suspect that he was trying to trick her into getting back with him by pretending that other women are interested.

She will then try to get revenge by actually hooking up with a guy, so she can then rub that in his face the next time that they interact or communicate.

So, if you want to show her that you care without seeming needy or desperate, you just need to focus on becoming more emotionally attractive to her (e.g. by being more confident, making her laugh and smile and feel good when she's interacting with you, making her feel feminine and girly in contrast to your masculine way of thinking, talking, feeling, behaving and acting).

When she can see for herself that you're no longer at the same level you were at before and are now the type of guy that she can look up to, respect, feel attracted to and love, she will naturally begin to open up to you again.

3. Avoiding contact with her for weeks to show her that youâre not needy

[image: Hopefully avoiding her will show her that I'm not needy]

Sometimes, all it takes is a day or two to get a woman to open up and want to get back together with her ex if he sparks her feelings of respect and attraction first.

Yet, rather than focusing on triggering a womanâs feelings during interactions, some guys worry too much about coming across as being needy, so they go inactive instead of active.

Essentially, what this means is that rather than actively interact with his ex, reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for him and then guide her back into a relationship with him, a guy decides to become inactive by avoiding contact with her altogether.

This is often referred to as "going no contact," which is based on the commonly known No Contact Rule (ignoring a woman for 30-60 days after a break up).

What a lot of guys don't realize is that the No Contact Rule works bests for women who are trying to get a guy back, not for men who are trying to get a woman back.

Why?

Most men are hopeless at approaching, attracting and picking up women, so when his ex girlfriend (or wife) goes no contact after a break up and he isn't getting any action with new women, what will he usually do?

That's right, he'll reach out to her because he will miss her.

During the No Contact period, he will fail at picking up new women and will eventually think, "No other women want me like my ex did. Maybe she is the one for me" and he will then contact her.

Yet, the same doesn't apply to women.

Most women can instantly get laid by going out to a party, bar, nightclub and saying, "Yes" to the many guys who want to stick it in her.

[image: It's easy for women to move on after a break up]

She can also get on a dating app or online dating site and instantly have 100s of guys willing to meet her.

So, when a guy ignores his ex after a break up, she usually just moves on without him.

Watch this video for more infoâ!

Most guys don't know this, so they think that the best way to get a woman back is to cut off all communication.

After a break up, a guy might spend weeks and in some cases even months waiting for her to call because he doesn't want to seem needy or desperate.

When she doesn't call and he decides to contact her, he hopes that she thinks something like, "My ex is so cool. He's not needy or desperate like other guys. He didn't even call me for like a month! That's so amazing! Now I can respect him for not being a needy guy and we can get back together again."

Reality checkâ!

In real life, the last thing that will cross a woman's mind when a guy is ignoring her is that he's doing it because he's not needy or desperate.

She might wonder why he isn't contacting her, but if she was very turned off by him when she dumped him (e.g. because he'd become too emotionally sensitive, he lacked confidence, his attitude turned her off), she will just try to erase him from her thoughts and move on quickly.

The general rule is that unless a woman really still loves her ex and is secretly hoping that they will get back together again, or if she is struggling to find herself a replacement guy, avoiding contact with her isn't going to matter that much to her at all.

The best way to show your ex that you care without seeming needy or desperate is by giving her 3 to 7 days of space.

Then, you need to interact with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) to let her see that you really have changed, matured and are no longer the needy guy she broke up with.

All it takes is one spark of respect and attraction and she will begin to change her perspective of you and start thinking of you in a more positive light.

Her walls come down and she is happy to know that you cared enough for her to become a better man - a man that she can now feel proud of, look up to, respect, desire and love.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

3 Examples of Needy Communication With an Ex

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Everyone says that women are turned off by neediness, but what are some examples of being needy when communicating with an ex?

1. Regularly Texting Her About Your Feelings

[image: Regularly texting her about your feelings]

There's nothing wrong with having feelings for your ex, but if you regularly want to talk about how you feel, how much she means to you and how you are sure that she is the one, it will come across as needy.

Being needy means that you need her to feel good about yourself.

You need her approval, her acceptance and her love and attention to feel like life is okay and you are a worthy, attractive man.

There's nothing wrong with wanting that kind of thing from a woman, but when you need it to feel confident, have self esteem or to be happy, that's when it becomes needy and turns women off.

Women want to be with a guy who is confident, happy and forward moving in life with or without her.

The main reason why is that if a guy is like that, she can feel safe with him because he is his own man and doesn't need her motherly support to keep his spirits high, remain confident and continue pursuing his goals in life.

She knows that he is emotionally strong enough to stand on his own two feet, without her having to hold him up by repeatedly reminding him that she loves him, supports him and that everything is going to be okay.

So, when a guy is always talking about his feelings all the time, it makes a woman feel as though he really needs her to be able to function and feel good about himself.

He's not his own man and needs her to be the one to make him feel as though everything is okay.

Women hate that.

Women don't want to be the main supporting pillar in a man's life.

Instead, they want him to be the strong one, so she can then lean on him for emotional support.

If he is able to do that for her, she feels a deep respect, attraction and love for him and naturally wants to be with him.

Yet, if he is the emotionally weaker one, she feels like more of the man or like a mother figure to him, which completely turns her off because she's unable to be a feminine, girly woman in the relationship.

So, in terms of being needy via text, a guy will make the mistake of thinking that if he can just fully explain to her how he feels and how much he still cares for her, she will stop being so stubborn and give him another chance.

He might then send her a series of long-winded text messages saying things like, â□□I need you to please listen to what I'm saying here. Yes, I stuffed up, but I still care for you so much. Do you know how much I love you? I love you more than anything else in this world. I feel lost without you and every day that goes by where youâ€¦re not talking to me, I feel like Iâ€¦m dying on the inside. My heart is broken. I canâ€¦t eat and sleep properly because all I do is think about you and how badly I want us to be together again. What we had was special. Please let me make it up to you. Please give me one more chanceâ€¦! Iâ€¦ll do anything to get another chance. I love you more than anything and I hope you can sense my sincerity here. I want nothing else, but to be with you. Love, Peter xoxoxoxâ€¦

Yet, rather than make a woman think, â€œOMG, this is amazing! He must really love me for him to be texting me like this all the time. It must mean that he is the one!!! Iâ€¦d be silly to let him be the one that got away. Clearly he is in love with me, so that is all that matters, right? Maybe I should give him that second chance after all,â€¦ she is going to be turned off by his need for her.

She will then think something like, “Blah! Blah! Blah! Iâ€¦ve heard this from you so many times before, but I just donâ€¦t care how you feel anymore. You donâ€¦t even know for sure why we broke up anyway. You have no idea how to be the kind of man that I want you to be. Youâ€¦re just promising to change but deep down, the desperation to get me back is all about how bad you feel after being dumped and rejected by me. Well, what about how I feel? Do you even realize that I donâ€¦t feel any respect or attraction for you anymore? I want to be with a man I can look up to, respect and who makes me feel like his girly, feminine woman in comparison to how masculine he thinks, talks, behaves, acts and feels. I donâ€¦t feel feminine when Iâ€¦m with you. You made me feel like your mother, or big sister or like the man in the relationship. You don't even know how to change. So, stop texting me these soppy messages and move on. Itâ€¦s over between us, unless you can quickly change and show me that you are now the kind of man that I always wanted you to be.â€¦

Hereâ€¦s the thingâ€¦!

Even though her ex is being a good guy and is trying to do the right thing, she just isn't going to be amazed by his needy, emotional text.

When a woman canâ€¦t see a guyâ€¦s body language, or at least hear the tonality of his voice over the phone, she has to guess at what state of mind he was in when he sent the text.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was insecure and needy in the relationship, she is going to have that perception of him clear in her mind.

So, when she receives a bunch of text messages telling her all about how heâ€¦s feeling after the break up, is she going to think, â€œThis is such and emotionally strong man. I love the way that he wears his heart on his sleeve. I can definitely look up to him and respect him now,â€¦ or will she think something like, â€œWhy is he still being so emotionally weak and sensitive? Doesn't he understand that I dumped him for that reason? Does he really think that telling me he is falling apart is going to make me feel like I can depend on him and look up to him as a man now? He just doesn't understand me or women in general. He hasn't yet worked out how to be a man.â€¦

Even though he might think that she wants to hear all about his feelings via text, she doesn't.

Women hate it when guys hide behind text messages and don't have the balls to say things on a phone call or in person.

Women also hate it when they dump a guy for being emotionally needy and he then continues being that way after the break up.

Women also hate it when they don't have feelings for a guy after a break up and he is going on and on about his feelings.

If she doesn't have feelings for you right now, you need to MAKE HER have feelings for you first. Don't talk about your feelings and how much you need her back.

[image: Actively re-attract her and get her back]

Make her feel a renewed sense of respect, sexual attraction and love for you (i.e. make her have feelings) and she will then care about you and how you feel.

Even still, you shouldn't go on and on about your feelings.

Instead, you've just got to be confident and guide her back into a relationship with you.

Leave all the feelings talk until after you've had sex again.

Likewise, don't try to talk about the relationship or your feelings via text.

Instead, only text her as a way of getting her on a phone call, so you can then arrange to see her in person and properly re-attract her.

For example: You can try to call her and if she doesn't answer, just send her a short text saying something like, â€œHey Linda. I need to ask you something quick over the phone.â€œ

In most cases, a woman will respond with something like, â€œOkay,â€œ or â€œWhat do you want to ask me?â€œ

Then, just call her.

Don't text a reply, don't wait for hours until you call her and don't worry about a thing.

Just call her.

On the phone call, focus on making her laugh, smile and feel happy to be communicating with you again.

She will most likely be cold and distant because she doesn't want to make it easy for you, but you have to remain confident.

The more that you spark her feelings of attraction and respect for you by being confident and making her smile and laugh again, the more open she will be to continue talking to you on the phone.

Yet, that's not enough to fully get her back.

You must get her to meet up with you in person where you can show her that you've changed and let her experience the new and improved you.

When she can see for herself (via the way you talk, behave, interact with her and react to what she says) that you're now at a completely different level as a man because you've fixed some of the things that were turning her off (e.g. you were needy and insecure before, but now you're confident and emotionally strong), she won't be able to stop herself from opening up to you again.

She will drop her guard and then getting her back instantly becomes a lot easier because she is feeling receptive and open to it.

On the other hand, if you just tell her about your feelings without sparking her feelings for you first, she's just going to be saying, â€œNo. It's over between us. There aren't going to be any *second chances between us. You need to move on. Accept it. We're finished. I don't feel the same way as you do. Leave me alone.*â□□

Another example of needy communication with an ex isâ□|

2. Instantly Replying to Everything That She Texts

[image: Instantly replying to everything she texts]

When a guy is desperate to get back together with his ex, heâ□□ll likely try to be on his best behavior and not do anything to give her the impression that heâ□□s not interested in her anymore.

When his ex sends him a text, he will feel compelled to respond to her right away.

He may think, *â□□ This is the only chance I have with her. If I donâ□□t reply immediately, she might think Iâ□□m being rude or that Iâ□□m not interested in her anymore. I donâ□□t want to blow it by making her think that I donâ□□t care.*â□□

Yet, rather than make her think that he is instantly replying to everything because he cares, itâ□□s more likely that she will be thinking, *â□□ What is he doing? Is he just sitting around waiting for me to text him? Doesnâ□□t he have a life without me? When does he focus on work, or go out with friends, or do anything else that will prevent him from immediately replying to me?*â□□ and she will feel turned off by what she perceives as his neediness and desperation.

So, no matter how badly you want to instantly or quickly respond to everything she texts you, just don't do it.

If youâ□□re busy (e.g. driving your car, out with friends, at work), just wait for a more suitable time to get back to her.

Of course, donâ□□t make the opposite mistake of ignoring her for hours or days just so that you donâ□□t come across as being needy.

That would be rude and she will likely get annoyed with you for playing mind games with her.

Instead, just take your time to reply when you are genuinely busy and if you are available, reply quickly or fairly soon after she texts.

Sometimes it's okay to reply instantly, but only do that about 20% of the time and for the remaining 80%, just mix things up between replying quickly, soon after, hours later or even the next day if you can't get to her text because you are busy, sleeping or unavailable.

Another example of needy communication with an ex isâ□|

3. Trying to Make Her Feel Pity By Telling Her How Much You Care

[image: I care about you so much. Please give me another chance]

If a guy is trying to get his ex to listen to him and give him another chance and sheâ□□s saying things like, *â□□ No. Iâ□□m just not interested. Itâ□□s over. Forget about me and move on. I don't love you anymore*â□□ he might then try to make her feel sorry for him.

For example: He might say to her, â□□ I know youâ□□re saying that itâ□□s over, but itâ□□s not over for me. I still care about you. I can't just forget about all the things that we shared. Don't you care even a little bit? I thought you were a kind, loving woman, but you are acting like you don't care about that we meant something to each other. You used to be so loving and now it's like you couldn't give a crap about how I feel or how much I love you. Can't you see that I'm sorry for hurting you? Does seeing me in pain like this and missing you so much make you happy? Why can't you just remember the good times we shared? We can make it work. Please just give me one more chance that all I'm asking for is one more chance for the sake of the love we once had for each other.

Even though the guy is being honest about his feelings, trying to seek pity for how bad he feels without her isn't going to make her feel a rush of respect, sexual attraction and love and make her want to give him another chance.

To her, it just seems very selfish on his part.

It's all about him and how he feels.

A woman doesn't like to feel like she's being forced into doing something she doesn't want to do, simply because the guy can't handle the pain of being broken up with.

While he's thinking that she might give him a chance based on how much he cares about her, she's thinking something like, So, let me get this straight he thinks that being an emotionally weak, needy guy and using emotional blackmail on me is going to make me change my mind? Hmmm I guess he still hasn't figured out that women want a man they can count on to be a man, not an emotional wimp who needs to be taken care of by a mother figure. I can't believe that he's acting like this. I can see now that giving him another chance would be a waste of time because nothing about him has really changed and it's likely that it never will. He just doesn't understand how to be a man yet and I certainly don't want to be stuck with him while he figures it out. If he wants me back, he'd better sort himself out soon or else I will find another guy who is already a man and I will fall in love with him instead.

Remember: A woman doesn't want to feel like she's doing her ex a favor by being with him.

If a guy gets his ex back by making her feel pity for him, she will only stay for a little while because there just won't be enough respect, attraction and love for her to want to stick around.

On the other hand, if you make your ex feel like she's winning the relationship lottery by getting back together with you (i.e. because you're making her feel more attracted to you than she has ever felt before), she will want to try again because it feels good to her, not because you're forcing her to.

It will then be about her getting you back, rather than her having to give you another chance to make you feel good about yourself again.

Getting Rid of Your Neediness

If you want your ex back in your life and keep her, make sure that you deal with your neediness before you interact with her again.

A great way of doing that is by getting to the source of your neediness and then taking real steps to change those things about yourself.

For example: Ask yourself, Could I have become needy because

- I lacked purpose in my life and made her my main reason for living?
- I thought that being emotionally needy and sensitive is what a woman wanted from a man?
- I didn't know how to be emotionally strong around her anymore because I handed all of my power over to her?

What you need to understand is that a woman wants a man that she can look up to, respect and feel attracted to.

Sometimes, a woman will pretend that she doesn't want her man to be like that, but it's just a test to see if he will hand over his power to her.

If he does, it turns her off at a deep, instinctive level and she stops feeling safe with him.

She worries that other people (e.g. bad boys, mean people at work) will take advantage of him, hurt him or hurt her because he is unable to stand up for himself in an assertive, but loving and easy-going way.

Instead, he just buckles under the pressure and fails basic social tests that place him into a lower ranking male position.

A woman doesn't want to get stuck with a guy who can't handle himself in the world and keep himself and her safe for life.

Even though she might not openly talk about that or even be able to explain it if asked, it's what her instincts are hard-wired to find out about a man.

If a woman discovers that she is with a lower ranking male, she automatically begins to feel unsafe and starts wishing she could find herself a more confident, alpha male.

Being an alpha male isn't about being a bad boy, thug, jerk or asshole.

The best alpha males are the good guy alpha males.

Men like this are good men, but they don't get pushed around by women or people.

They maintain their cool, they are good men, but they are also assertive and ensure that they are respected in social situations.

So, if you want to get an ex back after being needy, make sure that you're not thinking, feeling, behaving and acting like a lower ranking male as well.

You need to step up your game and become a more confident, assertive man.

Again, it's not about being a jerk or an asshole.

An example of being a good guy alpha male is being able to get her to stop being cold and bitchy when talking to you by making her smile, laugh and enjoy herself when talking to you.

When she can see that you no longer feel nervous or unsure of yourself when she is being cold, distant, bitchy or domineering, she naturally feels a rush or respect, attraction and love for the new you.

She almost certainly won't make it easy for you to get her back by openly admitting, "Wow, I feel attracted to you now," but she will feel attracted.

She will actually start feeling good being around you, rather than looking for ways to get away from you as fast as possible.

Getting back with you will feel fun and interesting to her because she will be feeling a newfound respect, attraction and love for you.

You just need to maintain your confidence and keep pushing forward until you get her back.

Just don't push forward in a needy way!

Don't make it all about your feelings and needs.

Make it about her getting what she wants.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How Long Will it Take For Your Ex to Miss You if You Ignore Her Using the No Contact Rule?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The amount of time it takes for an ex to miss you if use the No Contact Rule depends on who she is. Answer the following questions about her to find out if the No Contact Rule will work on her or not...

1. Is She Inexperienced With Relationships and Break Ups?

[image: Is she inexperienced with relationships?]

If this is her first serious relationship, she might not know what to expect from you after the break up. So, when she doesn't hear from you for weeks or even months, she might then start to panic about you finding another woman while she is still trying to cope with the pain of the break up.

She then contacts you to see how you are doing and hopes to find out that you're still missing her and are available to give the relationship another chance.

However, just because she wants you back (to ease her pain), it doesn't mean that everything will be okay between you and her for life now.

In most cases, if a woman gets back with her ex after he used the No Contact Rule to make her miss him and she then sees that nothing about him has really changed (e.g. he's still the same needy, insecure guy, he still doesn't know how to make her feel like a real woman), she will just break up with him again.

This is why I recommend that guys do not use the No Contact Rule for almost all break up scenarios with women.

In most cases, a guy should just give his ex 3 to 7 days of space and then contact her, re-attract her and guide her back into a relationship.

Another question to answer about your relationship and whether or not the No Contact Rule will work on her, is:

2. Can She Easily Find a New Guy?

If a woman is insecure, sees herself as being unattractive and is worried that she will be unable to find a replacement guy before her ex moves on, she might call her ex when he is using the No Contact Rule on her.

That happens sometimes, but in most cases, a woman can easily find a new guy for sex or a relationship.

All she has to do is get on a dating app or site, or go to a bar or nightclub and loads of guys will be happy to have sex with her and date her if she just makes it easy enough for them.

So, if a woman wants to get laid, it's usually just about saying, "Yes" to the many guys who will happily stick it in.

This is why the No Contact Rule is better for women who are trying to get a guy back, because most guys can't don't have the skills to go out and get laid by lots of women, so they usually come crawling back to women who ignore them after a break up.

Yet, when a woman dumps a guy and he ignores her, she can easily move on without him because most guys will happily have sex with her and even date her if she is open and willing.

Additionally, if a woman has had experience with break ups before, she will know that the pain will eventually fade away, so she can also just ride it out until she feels that she is completely over him.

So, as a man, ignoring your ex isn't the only option and it's not the best option.

You don't have to sit around waiting and hoping that your ex will miss you enough to call you, before some other guy comes along.

For a man, getting an ex back is usually an active process not a passive process.

In other words, like most things in life, if you want her back, you have to go out and put in the effort to get her back before she fully moves on with another guy and gets engaged, married or pregnant.

You have to interact with your ex in whatever way is possible for you (e.g. text her, message her on social media, call her on the phone, or meet up with her in person) and make her feel something for you again.

If she doesn't feel anything for you, it's not going to matter to her whether you're ignoring her or not.

She might contact you to say hi as a way of checking if you still miss her and want her back, but since you haven't re-sparked her feelings for you, she's not going to be missing you and wanting you back.

On the other hand, if you actively spark her feelings of attraction and respect for you, she then becomes intrigued and starts to wonder â€œWhy am I feeling this way all of a sudden? Is it a sign that we're meant to get back together?â€œ

Another question to ask yourself isâ€œ|

3. Does She Still Feel a Lot of Respect, Attraction and Love For You?

If a woman still has strong feelings for her ex, not hearing from him for a long time might will make her miss him.

She will text or call him to see why he's ignoring her and if he's found another woman.

However, in most cases, even when a woman still cares for her ex, if he ignores her for too long, rather than call him up, she might start thinking, â€œWhy isn't he calling me? Can he have moved on so quickly? I guess I was naÃ—ve to sit around hoping that he would call me and get us back together. Well I guess I was a fool for wanting that, so it stops right now. Iâ€™m not waiting a second longer for him to call me. If he can move on, so can I. Itâ€™s about time that I took my girlfriends up on that girl's weekend away. Iâ€™m going to go, have fun and find myself another guy or at least have sex and enjoy myself.â€œ

She then pushes any positive emotions that she has been feeling for ex into the background and allows herself to feel angry, resentful and indifferent, as a way of getting over him a lot faster.

Here's the thingâ€¦!

As a man, you always stand a much better chance of getting your ex woman back when you actively make her have feelings for you, rather than waiting around hoping she will miss you enough to come back on her own.

She can easily find herself a new guy, or start having sex with new guys to enjoy herself and get over you.

So, rather than wasting a lot of time ignoring her using the No Contact Rule, just focus on using every interaction that you have with her from now on as an opportunity to make her smile, laugh and feel happy to be in contact with you.

The happier that she feels when she's interacting with you, the more likely it will be that she will truly miss you and want you back.

When that happens, her defenses come down and she opens up to the idea of getting back together again.

On the other hand, the less she hears from you, the more time she has to get over you and find herself another guy who is actively making her feel how she wants to feel (i.e. excited, attracted, feminine and girly, in love).

Another important question to ask yourself isâ€¦!

4. Have You Improved and Changed the Things About Yourself That Turned Her Off?

You and her broke up for a reason.

There was something or a number of things about your behavior and attitude that really turned her off and if you want to get her back and keep her, you need to improve, fix or change those things about yourself.

For example: If a guy got broken up with because he was too needy and insecure, he has to show his ex that he's now more emotionally mature and confident in himself.

The best way to show her that is based on how he talks to her on the phone and how he interacts with her in person, so she can fully experience the changes.

It's possible to get some respect and attraction back via text, but it's minimal compared to what you achieve on a phone call and in person.

Another example is where a woman broke up with a guy because he lacked purpose and direction in life.

As a result, she didn't feel safe and protected in the relationship with him.

In a case like that, the guy needs to discover his purpose in life (or decide on his big goals, dreams and ambitions for the future) and actively start working towards it.

When the woman then sees that her ex has been improving himself and is now at a different level than he was before, she will naturally begin to regain some of her respect and attraction for him.

She will then begin to worry that she might be losing a great man and will reach out to contact him in some way.

Yet, if she notices that her ex is the same guy she broke up with, him ignoring her just won't matter much or at all to her.

5. How Much Time Are You Planning on Giving Her?

The problem with ignoring your ex for a long time is that eventually you reach the point where wonder, â€œHow much time is enough? Should I call her now, or keep ignoring her? What if I've ignored her too long and now she doesn't want to talk to me? What if she has a new boyfriend? What if she forgets about me and the feelings she once had for me? Should I just keep waiting for her to miss me? Maybe I should wait another few weeks or a couple of months.â€

Don't do that to yourself.

The general rule of thumb is this!

- Don't ignore your ex for longer than 3 to 7 days. Longer than that is just a waste of time.
- Get her on a phone call with you and focus on sparking her feelings of respect and attraction by making her laugh, smile and feel good to be talking to you again.
- Then, once you've done that, step back and give her another 3 to 7 days of space.

Watch this video for more info!

By giving her an extra few days of space, you're letting all the good feelings you created in her over the phone sink in and allow her to miss how good it feels to interact with you again.

She might then text you to say hi, or call you and say something like, â€œHey, how are you? I had fun chatting to you again the other day, so I thought I'd call to say hi. How was your day?â€

When she texts you or calls you, just go ahead and make plans with her to meet up in person.

If she doesn't call you, then simply contact her again, and repeat the process until she agrees to meet up with you in person, where you can then continue to spark her feelings for you to the point where she is ready to be your girl again.

When the No Contact Rule Backfires!

Sometimes, a guy might say to himself, â€œI don't know how to make my ex miss me and want me back. So, if I ignore her using the No Contact Rule, it might shock her into realizing that she will lose me forever. She will then come running back to me.â€

Yet, while a guy sits around waits for weeks, months and sometimes years waiting for his ex to come back, rather than making her come back, something else happens instead!

- Waiting around for her slowly destroys his confidence with other women.

Although a guy might initially feel good about his decision to ignore his ex, as days, weeks and even months go by, his confidence starts to fade.

He begins to wonder, â€œWhy isn't she calling me? How can she not be missing me by now? I *guess sheâ€™s forgotten all about me. Obviously I wasnâ€™t that important to her for her to forget about me so quickly. If she doesn't want me back after I've ignored her like this, it means that I'm not that loveable. So, what chance do I stand with a woman who is a complete stranger and doesnâ€™t even know me? Iâ€™ll never be able to find another woman. Maybe I'm one of those guys who are destined to be alone for life. Maybe she is the one that got away and no other woman will ever make me feel the same way. Maybe other women just won't love me as much as she did in the beginning. Maybe I'm just not good enough.*â€”

Donâ€™t let that happen to you.

Donâ€™t ignore your ex for so long that you eventually start to believe that you're not good enough for her or other women.

If you will just get her back by being active, you will see that you can make her feel respect, attraction and love for you right away or very quickly.

When you see that, you will feel confident in yourself and your attractiveness to her and other women.

Another problem with the No Contact Rule is thatâ€”!

- It makes him feel unworthy of her.

Another weird thing that happens when a guy is ignoring his ex for too long, is that he begins to idolize her.

Suddenly, she becomes perfect in his eyes and he forgets all about the things that used to irritate him about her.

He may then start to think, *â€”She was the perfect woman and I ruined everything. I canâ€™t believe I stuffed up so badly. Iâ€™m such a loser. I donâ€™t blame her for breaking up with me and not wanting me back. If I was her, I wouldnâ€™t want me back either. She was always out of my league. I'm not good enough for her. I can't get her back. She's too good for me.*â€”

Yet, what he doesnâ€™t realize is that feeling unworthy of her love only makes him seem less attractive to her and other women.

Why?

A woman likes the idea of being with a man she feels will be the envy of her female friends and acquaintances because he is always confident in himself, no matter what anyone says or does or what he is going through in life.

She wants to be able to feel proud of him, respect him and feel attracted to him.

So, when a guy is being emotionally sensitive and doesnâ€™t believe in himself and his worth to her, it does nothing to spark her feelings for him.

Instead, she thinks, *â€”I need to get away from this guy as quickly as possible and find myself a real man. I need a man who is emotionally strong and can cope with the bumps on the road of life. I need someone that I can look up to and respect, rather than hanging around with a wimpy guy because I feel sorry for him. He doesn't even believe in himself. I will have to carry him for life. I need a real man.*â€”

If feel unworthy of getting her back, she will be able to pick up on that based on your tonality, body language and the way you talk, think, behave and interact with her.

She will then be turned off at a deep instinctive level and it will remind her why she broke up with you in the first place.

So, if you want her back, you have to believe you are good enough for her, otherwise neither will she.

Remember: A woman getting a man back is different to a man getting a woman back.

Women can use different techniques that work on most men, such as the No Contact Rule.

However, men need to be active rather than passive.

Men need to actively make the woman have feelings again, rather than sitting around and hoping that she comes running back.

In the 100s of ex back cases that I've worked on, the No Contact Rule has only gotten positive results about 20% of the time.

In 80% of cases, the woman simply moves on and completely gets over the guy during the No Contact period.

Another problem with the NC rule is thatâ

- It makes him fear relationships in general.

When a guy waits around for his ex for a long time and then nothing happens, he might start to get a little bit bitter about women in general.

He may then think something like, *âAll women are bitches. They pretend that they love you and then when they have your heart in their hands, they stomp on it by dumping you. Iâm never going to let a woman do that to me again. I am not getting into another relationship ever again. I'm going to be single for life. Women cannot be trusted!*â

Don't become that confused, bitter guy who doesn't even acknowledge the fact that billions of relationships have remained together for life.

If you only focus on all the couples who break up or divorce, rather than acknowledging that at least 50% or more of marriages or relationships last a lifetime, you will lose out on the thrill of having the kind of love that gets better and better over time.

I know this because I am now married after sleeping with 100s of women over the years.

I accepted my girlfriend's marriage proposal and even though our relationship was amazing then, it has continued to get even better over time.

So, make sure that you don't become one of those guys who are afraid of being in a committed relationship with a woman.

You can make it work with her.

Yes, you made a mistake in the past and your ex broke up with you, but that was then and this is now.

You are at a different level as a man now and you can find love again with your ex, or even with another woman if you want that instead.

However, you will never be able to be happy until you learn to accept that bad things sometimes happen in life.

Itâs up to you to use that as an opportunity to improve and become a better, emotionally stronger man, rather than letting it depress you, make you bitter and stop you from having a happy life.

So, if youâre wondering how long it will take for you ex to miss you if you ignore her using the

No Contact Rule, the answer is thisâ□!

As long as it takes you to start actively re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you.
The longer you wait, the longer it will take.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Do While Your Ex is in a Rebound Relationship

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

While your ex is in a rebound relationship, you should...

1. Start Fixing the Things About You That Turned Her Off

[image: Start fixing the things about you that turned her off]

If your ex has lost respect and attraction for you as a man, regardless of how sorry you are for everything that happened between you and her, it's not going to matter to her unless she can see for herself that things have changed.

Instead, she is likely going to assume the worst about you and think that you're still the same guy and who won't be able to change how she feels.

To make your ex want to leave her new guy and get back with you soon, you need to show her (by the way you now talk, feel, think, act and behave) that you really have changed and improved.

By the way!

I know that it's not easy for many guys to show their ex woman that they've changed because she no longer wants to talk to them.

However, you have to be persistent to get her on a phone call and get her to meet up with you in person.

Don't worry about the new guy. He is with your woman and she belongs to you.

So, just get her on a phone call and get her to meet up with you.

Before you do that though, make sure that you have begun to fix some of the things that caused her to break up with you in the first place.

For example: A guy might have been insecure, needy and self-doubting in the relationship.

To get her to see that he's not that guy anymore, he needs to show her that he has become more confident and emotionally strong now.

When he interacts with his ex (on the phone and in person) and she tests him (e.g. by being cold and distant, giving him mixed signals), he remains confident and doesn't get insecure about his attractiveness to her like an insecure guy would.

Another example is where a woman broke up with a guy because he was too nice and he allowed her to dominate him and order him around.

To show her that he's changed, he needs let her experience for herself (on a phone call or in person) that he is now more masculine and ballsy in a way that makes her feel feminine in comparison to him.

When she tries to dominate him and order him around like she used to, he just laughs it off and doesn't get rattled like he used to.

He looks at her as being a girl, rather than as her being a super powerful woman that he needs to bow down to.

He is a good man and he respect her, but he no longer becomes unsure of himself or wimpy when she starts being bitchy, controlling or domineering.

When she sees this change in him, she naturally feels respect and attraction for him.

She realizes that she can now relax and trust that he is a real man now. He's not the wimpy, insecure or submissive guy that she dumped.

He has become a confident, emotionally masculine man now and she can sincerely respect him.

When your ex can see that you haven't been sitting around feeling sorry for yourself and have instead been working towards becoming an even better man (i.e. by fixing all the things that were turning her off), she will naturally feel respect for you, even if she doesn't openly admit it.

When she feels respect for you, she will naturally become open to feeling attracted to you again as well, even if she tries to fight it.

When that happens, you can then build on her feelings until she's thinking, â€œIf I don't give him another chance soon, I'm going to lose him to some other woman,â€ and she wants to be back in your arms.

2. Prepare to Give Her the Attraction Experience That She Wanted From You All Along

When a woman breaks up with a guy and quickly gets into a rebound relationship, it's often because she is eager to experience the type of attraction that she felt was lacking in her relationship with her ex.

For example: If a woman's ex was too nice and allowed her to walk all over him with her dominant personality, her new guy will be more emotionally masculine and ballsy and will be able to stand up to her, thus allowing her to feel more feminine and girly around him.

Another example is where a guy took a woman for granted (e.g. expecting her to do everything for him, breaking his promises to her, stopped appreciating her).

In cases like that, her new guy will usually be more attentive towards her, which will make her feel loved and appreciated.

A woman's rebound guy is usually just filling in the emotional gaps that were missing in her relationship with her ex (e.g. the new guy is emotionally strong vs. her ex is emotionally weak and sensitive, the new guy is loving and attentive vs. her ex took her for granted).

Where some guys go wrong when trying to get an ex woman back who is in a rebound, is that they start thinking that the new guy is better than them.

For example: If he is insecure about some aspect of himself (e.g. his appearance, job, financial status), he might then say, â€œThat's why she's with him. He's better looking than me and he drives a really fancy car. How can I compete with that? I'm just an average Joe. Maybe if I go to the gym and build lots of muscles and get a better job, she will be impressed and leave him. Yet, that would take a long time to do. I want her back now. I don't know what else to do to make her think of me as better than him.â€

Don't do that to yourself.

Just because your ex is with another guy, it doesn't mean that he is perfect for her and that you canâ€™t get her back.

Heâ€™s simply giving her the attraction experience she wants right now, but it doesnâ€™t mean that at some point he wonâ€™t have gaps of his own (e.g. he might be emotionally strong, but she may discover that he lacks direction and purpose in life, or he might be loving and attentive, but he will gradually become needy and clingy).

Comparing yourself to another guy only makes you lose confidence in yourself, which makes you less attractive to your ex because she perceives you as being emotionally weaker than him.

Women are naturally attracted to whichever guy is the most confident.

I'm not talking about boastful, loudmouth confidence. I'm talking about relaxed, self-assured confidence.

You've got to believe in your attractiveness to her by focusing on your good qualities and improving on the things about yourself that were turning her off.

No guy is perfect, so donâ€™t dwell on the other guy at all.

Heâ€™s not important.

It doesnâ€™t matter if heâ€™s rich, famous or if he has model good looks.

What matters the most is that you focus on making some adjustments to your thinking and behavior, so that when you interact with your ex, you can give her the attraction experience she really wants and change how she feels about you.

Some of the ways you can do that are by:

- Showing her via your thinking, actions and behavior that youâ€™ve fixed some of the issues that were turning her off before (e.g. if you were insecure, you are now more emotionally strong and confident, or if you were too nice and a pushover before, you are now more ballsy and emotionally masculine).
- Reacting differently to what she says and does, (e.g. if you got jealous when she talked about other guys, you now relax and smile and don't even worry about it. You know that women are attracted to confidence, so by remaining confident, she naturally feels attracted to you even if she doesn't openly admit it).
- Making her feel feminine and girly in your presence to trigger her feelings of sexual attraction for you.
- Making her smile, laugh and feel excited to be around you.

Simply by making some attractive adjustments to your behavior and the way you think, talk and interact with her, talking to you or being around you will suddenly feel good to her.

[image: Woman missing her man]

She then starts to wonder about her decision to break up with you and she might feel confused about her newfound feelings of respect and attraction for you vs. what she is feeling for her new guy.

She wonâ€™t be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you again.

3. Become Emotionally Independent

It's perfectly okay for a guy to miss his ex and want her back.

Once in a while he might even say things like, â€œI wish that she was here with me now. I miss her hugs and kisses,â€ or â€œI miss her the most on Sunday afternoonâ€ when things get quiet around here. I hate this lonely feeling. I would feel better if she were here.â€

There's nothing wrong with missing her, but if a guy feels as though he can't function without his ex and has lost his main reason for living, he is actually making himself even more undesirable to her. Why?

What a lot of guys don't realize is that being emotionally dependant on a woman and making her his purpose in life is the fastest way to lose her respect.

A woman does want to be with a guy who is loving, caring and devoted to her, but she also wants him to be his own man, with or without her support.

Where some guys go wrong (and end up being dumped for it), is they think making a woman the center of his world is what she actually wants.

A guy like this might then stop catching up with his friends unless she's invited too.

This is fine if the relationship is amazing, the guy is making progress in life and she looks up to him and respects him, but if he's a needy guy who is emotionally dependent on her, it will gradually turn her off.

Likewise, when a guy gives up his hobbies and interests that don't include her and generally makes her the main focus of his life, a woman eventually starts to feel as though she's got herself a boy who needs his mommy, rather than a man who she can look up to and respect.

She begins to think, â€œHe's smothering me. I just need a little space to do some things by myself at times. He's driving me crazy by being so stuck to me. Sometimes, I think he's going to even follow me to the bathroom. I can't do anything without him there. I can't take this anymore! It's just too much. I can't breathe.â€

Then, when she breaks up with him and says that he has ruined their relationship and put her through a really hard time, he might say to himself, â€œLook at what I did to her. I made her hate me. She's just too good for me. I'm such a terrible boyfriend (fianc  or husband). I don't deserve her. I had the love of my life and I screwed it up. I am a failure as a man. She can do better than me.â€

It's only natural that a guy will feel pretty down about himself after being dumped by the woman he loves, but a guy feeling unworthy of his ex is actually another form of emotional dependence.

It's like saying, â€œI need her to make me feel like I'm good enough, even though deep down I believe I don't deserve her. I need her approval. I need her to make me feel confident again. Without her telling me that I'm worthy, I just don't feel it. I'm not good enough.â€

The thing is, a woman doesn't want to feel like being with a guy is a favor to him.

Instead, she wants to be with a man who is confident in who he is and his attractiveness to her, rather than needing her to make him confident.

Women are attracted to self confidence rather than dependent confidence because it makes them feel safe that the man can handle himself in the world.

So, you need to show her that even though you still care for her and want her back, you are happy, confident and moving forward in life with, or without her.

You have your own important, long term dreams and goals in life and you don't need her to make you feel confident and have self esteem.

You're a great guy and she will be the one winning if she chooses to get back together with you.

To make sure that you give her that impression, you need to begin focusing on becoming an even better man than you already are.

For example:

- If you don't already know, find out what your purpose in life really is and then set yourself some goals and start working towards achieving them.
- If you don't know what your purpose is, just think of what you really would love to do with your life and then come up with huge, long term goals that are based on that. Then, start the journey and don't stop.
- Think about all the things you've wanted to do (e.g. go traveling, learn a new skill, take a martial arts class), but have previously put them off because you were too busy, or because you didn't want to spend any time away from her.
- Challenge yourself to do something different from what you always do as a way of becoming emotionally stronger (e.g. if you're inclined to be more academic and prefer reading and studying, consider going rock climbing, doing martial arts or learning to fly a plane to challenge yourself).
- If you've neglected your friends, now is a good time to get reacquainted with them and even make new ones.

When you get to the point where you have a life purpose, goals, interests and friendships that are separate from your relationship with her and you are happy with or without her, something interesting happens!

She feels attracted to you again. Why?

When you stop needing a woman to give your purpose and direction in life, you suddenly become the kind of man that she can look up to, respect and feel attracted to.

Women love a man who knows who is and what he wants in life, outside of just wanting a woman.

Women do want a man who wants them, loves them and adores them, but they don't want a needy leech to be stuck to them and sucking all the love, attention and affection they can give before they've given enough and need to remove him.

When you're emotionally independent, but still love her and want her in your life, she can see that there is space to breathe in a relationship with you.

Then, rather than feeling like you're smothering her and need her to feel good about yourself, she will feel lucky to be with a man who is going places in life, while also still paying attention to her and loving her in the way that she really wants.

4. Contact Her to Meet Up With You in Person, So You Can Say Hello as Friends

[image: Get her on a phone call]

To get an ex back when she is in a rebound relationship, you have to be active about it.

Don't worry about the new guy. He is with your ex and she belongs with you.

If you want her back, you have to interact with her and make her experience new, positive feelings and emotions about you (e.g. respect, desire, love) so that the negative things she remembers about you (e.g. a lack of confidence, being insecure, being jealous and controlling) no longer seem important to her anymore.

Sometimes, a guy will make the mistake of sitting around waiting for months, or even years for her rebound relationship to end and then, when he realizes that she's not coming back, he might ask himself, Why isn't she calling me? Why isn't she breaking up with him?

The reason why is that waiting for an ex to come back without actively doing anything only works 20% of the time.

Even then, the woman will usually come back and see that the guy hasn't improved his ability to give her the attraction experience she wants and she will just break up with him again.

If you want to get your ex back when she's in a rebound relationship, the fastest way to do it is by actively making her have feelings for you again.

One of the best ways to do that is by making her laugh, smile and feel happy when she's interacting with you on a phone call, or in person.

So, don't sit around waiting and hoping your ex will dump her new guy and come running back to you.

Instead, just contact her (the best way is to call her on the phone) and re-spark some of her feelings of respect and attraction by making her laugh and smile and feeling good to be talking to you again.

Then, get her to agree to meet up with you to say hello as friends.

She might be reluctant at first and she might say something like, I don't know. I'm with someone else now. I don't think it would be right.

Whatever you do, don't get upset or give up. Simply say, These days, there's nothing wrong with people meeting up for a cup of coffee after they've broken up. We can do that. We can say hello as friends. If you don't want to meet up with me after the coffee, it's totally fine. I will accept that. I know that you're in a relationship now. This isn't about us getting back together. We are simply meeting up to say hello as friends.

Tell her that it's not wrong for her to want to catch up with you as a friend to say hi.

Tell her that it's not considered cheating or anything like that.

You're just meeting up as friends to say hello and if she doesn't want to ever talk to again after that, let her know that you will respect her wishes.

5. Let Her Experience the New and Improved You at the Meet Up, But Don't Try to Get Her Back Right Away, Unless She is Really Open to it

When you meet up with your ex, make sure that you continue to trigger her feelings of respect and attraction, make her laugh and smile and get her thinking, â€œWow, this is actually kind of nice. It feels good to be around him again.â€

Note: Don't make the mistake of pretending to be a neutral friend who doesn't flirt with her or make her feel attracted.

Watch this video for more info!

To get her back, you need to flirt with her and make her feel attracted even though you said that you were just meeting up as friends.

There's nothing wrong with that.

Just don't pressure her to get back with you right away, unless she really wants to.

Instead, simply focus instead on making her feel so much respect, attraction and love for you again that she asks, â€œCan we do this again sometime? This was actually fun.â€

6. Optional: Hook Up With Her Sexually to Disrupt Her New Relationship

At the meet up, continue focusing on making her feel sexual attraction and respect for the new you.

If she seems open and is giving you signs that she's attracted to you (e.g. keeps touching you, licks her lips a lot, plays with a necklace or her hair), lean in and give her a quick kiss.

From there, if she's open, go ahead and proceed to having sex at your place or her place.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Will Acting as Though You Don't Care About Getting Her Back Make Your Ex Change Her Mind?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Acting as though you don't care about getting your ex back to make her change her mind only works on some women (e.g. if it's her first relationship, if she is unable to find a new guy to replace you, if she still loves you and wants to be with you).

However, almost all other women will simply use the fact that you don't care to move on even faster, so they can get revenge on you (i.e. by hooking up with a new guy and posting up photos on social media of her hanging out with him) for not caring about getting her back.

The best approach to use is to confidently get her back by reactivating her feelings and guiding the relationship back together at a pace that works for the both of you.

Some women will get back with their ex immediately, whereas some take days, others weeks and in really bad cases, it takes more than a month to fully get her back.

So, rather than wasting a lot of time playing mind games with your ex by hoping that acting like you don't care will make her run back to you, just focus on actively re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you every time you interact with her (whether you're texting her, interacting with her on social media, calling her on the phone, or meeting up with her in person).

When you reactivate her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you again, it changes her perception of you (which right now is mostly negative) and she begins to see you in a more positive light.

When that happens, she can't stop herself from wanting to interact with you again, even though she previously thought that she was over you and didn't want anything to do with you anymore.

All of a sudden, she feels drawn to you and from there you can build on that spark of attraction and get her to change her mind about the break up.

However, if you just act as though you don't care about getting her back and don't do anything to activate her feelings of respect and attraction for you again, the chances of making her change her mind are low.

Acting Like You Don't Care Often Makes Things Worse

[image: Acting like you don't care can actually make things worse]

Sometimes, a guy might try to get his ex back by begging and pleading with her, apologizing excessively and promising her that he will change if she gives him another chance.

If that approach doesn't work, a guy might then think, I've tried everything to make her change her mind. I don't know what else to do now. I'm desperate to get her back. Maybe if I just act like I don't care about getting her back, she will realize her mistake and come running back to me. Yeah! I'll make her feel worried that I don't care anymore and she will then feel the need to contact me to stop feeling that pain. Then, when she contacts me, she will want me back and it will be much easier! I've worked it out! I will act like I don't care!

Yet, although that can work in some cases (about 20% of ex back cases that I see), in 80% of cases, playing mind games with a woman simply doesn't work.

Here is what can happen when a guy tries to get his ex back by pretending that he doesn't care about her.

1. He wastes time by acting like he doesn't care and she then moves on without him.

It's common knowledge that humans always want what they can't have.

So, when a guy gets broken up with and his ex is saying things like, "Look, you just have to accept that you and I are broken up now. Stop trying to make me change my mind. It's over," it's understandable that he might think, "Okay then, fine. I'll change her mind by pretending that I don't care if we get back together or not. When she realizes that she has lost me completely, she will panic and will come running back to me for another chance. I'll teach her a lesson by making her feel rejected. She will regret this!"

Yet, in most cases, it just doesn't work and the woman simply moves on.

Why?

To begin with, when a woman breaks up with a guy, it's usually because she has lost respect and attraction for him over time.

So, when she's sitting at home thinking about her ex relationship, chances are high that she's not remembering the good times.

Instead she's likely saying to herself, "I can't believe how badly he hurt me. I would never put myself through something like that again. I wasted my time with him because he just doesn't understand what I want or what we women want. He just doesn't get it. I hope he doesn't think there's a chance of us ever getting back together again. Maybe I need to move on to make sure that I can be in a position to tell him that I have a new guy and can't get back with him. Yeah, I'll go out with the girls this weekend and see if I can find a new guy."

So, when her ex then interacts with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) she will likely be cold and distant towards him and she might say something like, "I hope you don't think there's a chance that we'll ever be together again? You're crazy if you do. We're not getting back together. I've made up my mind."

To hopefully trick her by acting like he doesn't care, he might then say something like, "What makes you think I want to get back with you? I'm perfectly fine without you in my life. I'm moving on, so don't worry. I don't want you back."

Secretly, he's hoping that she'll suddenly start wanting him because he no longer wants her.

He's thinking, "People want what they can't have, so I am going to show her that she can't have me!"

Yet, if a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy anymore, him saying that he doesn't want to get back with her will usually come as a relief to her.

She will think, "Cool. That turned out better than I thought it would. He's leaving me alone and I can now move on and do all the things I've missed out on by being in an unhappy relationship with him, like hanging out with my friends, going clubbing, dancing and hopefully *finding the love of my life. This is going to be great!*â€œ

So, if your ex doesn't have much or any feelings for you right now, don't think that acting like you don't care is going to make her want you back.

A woman won't care if you don't care about her, if she doesn't have feelings for you.

Instead she's going to use the get out of this relationship free card that you're giving her (i.e. by telling her that you don't care about getting her back) as her reason to put your relationship behind her and move on.

If you genuinely want to make your ex change her mind and get her back, then don't waste time pretending that you don't.

The fastest way to get her back is to be active, rather than inactive.

By active, it means actively triggering her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you again, so she wants to get back with you.

In a case where a woman is still secretly in love with a guy and is hoping that they can work things out, if he then says, *â€œI'm not interested in getting back together again with you,*â€œ she will most-likely feel hurt and close herself off even more.

She might then say to herself, *â€œI can't keep allowing him to do this to me. He's hurt me enough already. This is where it stops. I'm going to focus on totally erasing him from my mind and my heart and I'm going to move on. I deserve better than this. I'm going to hook up with some new guys asap and get him off my mind completely.*â€œ

So, don't try to trick her if she doesn't feel much or anything for you right now.

The best way to get a woman back is to actively re-attract her and guide her back into a relationship with you.

That doesn't mean you should harass her or bombard her with texts or phone calls.

Instead, just re-attract her and get her back.

For exampleâ€œ

Once you have re-sparked your ex's feelings, it makes getting her back so much easier and more natural.

She wants to get back with you for her own reasons, rather than feeling like she has to get back with you to make you feel better about yourself.

2. He acts like he doesn't care, so she shows interest, pretends to want him back and then punishes him by rejecting him once again.

When a guy puts on an act of pretending like he doesn't want her back, a woman will test him to see if he's being honest with her, or if he's just lying to her to make her run after him.

For example: A guy might say to his ex, *â€œI'm fine without you. I think it's actually a good thing that we're broken up. Let's go our separate ways, meet new people and forget about each other. What do you say?*â€œ

She might then test him to see if he really means what he's saying, or if he's just putting on an act by responding with something like, â€œOhhâ€œI'm actually sorry to hear you say that. I thought we could try and make things work between us. I still care about you a lot and I miss you at times, but since you don't feel the same way about me, then okay. Let's forget about our relationship and move on.

If he then quickly responds by saying something like, "No! No! I didn't say I don't care about you. Of course I care. You're the woman I love. I would be so happy if we got back together," she will know that he was only acting as though he doesn't care about getting her back to make her change her mind.

So, to get revenge, she will then reject him again by saying something like, "Let me think about it. I will get back to you in a few days."

She will then let him wait and will text him something like, "I've realized that I don't really want to get back together. I think you were right, we should move on and meet other people. I hope you're not mad. I will always have a place for you in my heart, but I just don't want to get back together now. I wish you all the best."

Sometimes though, a woman will get back with a guy for a day or a week to make him show her that he really loves her and wants to be with her.

[image: Pulling him in and then dumping him again to get revenge]

When she has fully pulled him back in, she will then dump him once again to get revenge for acting like he didn't care.

She might say something like, "I'm not sure if I'm ready to be in a relationship with you again. Maybe we can get back together in future, but I want to be single now. I hope you can respect that."

It's Better to Be Real

If you want to get her back, it's better to be real, honest and emotionally strong and just guide her back into a relationship, rather than playing games.

Of course, most people won't tell you that.

When a guy wants to get his ex woman back, people will often say things like, "What's the matter with you? Why do you want to chase after a woman who has dumped you? That's weak, man. You should forget about her and move on. Clearly she doesn't want you. Man up and get over her. Just get another woman and forget all about her. Who cares about her?"

Yet, they are wrong.

There's no shame in wanting your ex back.

Watch this quick video that I made on the subject:

Just because your relationship has broken up, it doesn't mean that you have to forget all about it and never want to be with her again.

The choice is yours.

You can choose to walk away and make a clean start with another woman if you want to, or you can choose to get your ex back if you want to.

There's nothing wrong with either option.

In fact, quite often, getting back together after a break up can be an exciting, rewarding process for both the man and the woman.

When you fully take on the responsibility to maintain and deepen your woman's feelings of love, respect and attraction for you over time, you will make the second time around even better for the both of you.

As long as you don't try to get her back in a needy way (e.g. begging and pleading with her for a second chance, apologizing excessively, asking her to tell you what to do to make her happy), just don't worry about what other people say about you want her back.

If you want to get your ex back, do it.

Getting Her Back Without Acting Like You Don't Care

The fastest way to make your ex change her mind is by actively making her have feelings for you again, rather than acting as though you don't care about getting her back.

You can do that by:

- Making some changes and improvements to the way you are interacting with her (e.g. you're more confident now and no longer react in the insecure, emotionally sensitive ways that you used to).
- Making her smile, laugh and feel excited to be talking to you again.
- No longer letting her trick you into losing your cool if she's being bitchy or cold.
- Making her feel girly and feminine in your presence.
- Showing her, via the way you think, talk, behave and interact with her that you're a new and improved man now.

When you interact with her in ways that trigger her feelings of respect and attraction, you don't have to put on an act to get her to change her mind, because the real you is more than good enough for her to want to change her mind and give the relationship another chance.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Did Your Ex Say That She Needed to Find Herself or Be Herself Again?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a woman says that she needs to find herself, or to be herself again, it's usually because she stopped feeling the way she wants to feel in the relationship.

Somewhere along the way, her feelings of respect and attraction for her man started to fade and eventually she began to think something like, "Is this it? Is this what our relationship is going to be like from now on? Where is the love and desire? Where is the fun and excitement?"

Generally, when a woman reaches the point where she begins questioning her feelings for her man, she might then say to him, "I think we need to take a break from each other. I just don't know who I am, or why I'm here anymore. I need to find myself."

So, if your ex said something like that to you during the break up, you might be wondering, "What does she mean? I don't understand what she really wants me to do now. What did I do wrong? How did I make her feel that way?"

4 Reasons Why a Woman Will Say That She Needs to Find Herself or Be Herself Again

[image: Why women say that they need to find themselves, as an excuse to break up a relationship]
The first possible reason why your ex said that she needed to find herself, or be herself again is

1. She Stopped Feeling Girly and Feminine in Your Presence

In a relationship, it's the man's responsibility to maintain and grow the love and attraction between him and his woman.

One of the most important parts of this is to ensure that you continue making her feel like a real woman.

Essentially, this means that you make her feel girly and feminine in comparison to your masculinity (i.e. the manly way that you think, talk, feel, behave and act).

A mistake that a lot of guys make in a relationship is to stop treating his woman like a feminine woman and start treating her more like a friend, or like one of the guys.

It might feel like fun to hang out like friends or to act like her at times, but she will eventually start to lose interest when she realizes that she's no longer as attracted as she used to be.

Another mistake that some guys make is to think that a woman will be happier if she takes on the more dominant role in the relationship and makes most of the decisions.

What a guy like that doesn't understand, is that even though most modern women are independent and might make a lot of decisions in the work environment, they are still attracted to and respectful of a man who takes on the more dominant, masculine role in a relationship.

Of course, that doesn't mean that a woman wants a domineering man to boss her around, tell her what to do and not allow her to have her say.

Instead, it simply means that she wants a man who is emotionally stronger than her, so she can look up to him and respect him, which then gives her the opportunity to relax into feeling like a real woman (i.e. feminine and girly).

So, why does it matter if a woman stops feeling like a real woman in the relationship?

Basically, the less feminine and girly that a woman feels around her man, the less sexual attraction she feels for him.

She starts to regard him as more of a friend or roommate, or in the case where she is more emotionally dominant than him; she starts to feel more like his boss or mother.

So, when a woman finds herself in that position in her relationship (i.e. being friends, being emotionally dominant), she starts to lose her feelings of respect and attraction for her guy.

Without attraction, she might then begin to focus more on the things about him that she doesn't like and possibly even get into arguments and disagreements with him.

She will begin to distance herself from him and eventually she will break up with him.

So, if your ex is saying, "I need to be myself again and I don't feel like I can be who I really want to be in a relationship with you," it could be because she hasn't been feeling girly and feminine in the relationship with you anymore.

Thankfully, you can easily change how she feels by making some adjustments to the way you interact with her from this point onwards.

You need to show her (via the way you talk, think, behave and interact with her) that you now have the ability to be masculine in a way that makes her feel girly and feminine.

When you become more masculine in the way you interact with her (e.g. make her smile and laugh when she is being cold and distant or is trying to make you submit to her dominance, take charge and lead the way to allow her to relax into feeling feminine in comparison to you), then her feelings will automatically change.

She will then start to think, "Something has changed. I really feel good being with my ex again. Talking to him actually makes me feel excited again. It feels good to be around him. Maybe we really can have a second chance together. Why wasn't he like before? I would have never broken up with him if this is who he was. Maybe I have to give him another chance before some other girl finds him and gets to experience his new, more attractive ways."

She will automatically start to think in that way when you trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

However, if you continue to make her feel like a neutral friend, or allow her to dominate you, she will just keep saying things like, "I still don't know what I really want in my life. I need to find myself first before I can commit to a relationship again. Maybe one day we can get back together again when I know who I am and what I want, but I can't do that now. I want to be myself again for a while. Just give me time."

Yet, here's the thing|

If another guy comes along who is more masculine than you in the way that he thinks, feels, behaves and takes action in life, she is going to feel attracted to him.

She will feel girly and feminine in comparison to his masculinity and will instantly forget all about “finding herself.”

Instead, she will jump right into having sex and a relationship with him because what she was trying to find all along was the exciting feeling of attraction that only happens when there is a clear difference between the sexual energy of the man and the woman (i.e. masculine and feminine).

It's not something that she can ignore. That is the natural attraction experience that a woman is truly looking for.

So, if you want to get your ex back before some other guy snaps her up, make sure that every time you interact with her from now on, you're triggering her feelings of attraction for you and are making her feel girly and feminine in contrast to your masculine vibe.

2. She Felt Lost About Her Future Because You Didn't Provide Enough Direction

Part of being the man in a relationship with a woman is taking on the role of being the one who is mostly responsible for guiding you and her to a better life in future.

This doesn't mean that you have to make all the decisions, do all the work or earn all the money. Instead, it means that you make sure there a clear plan for your future together and that you both stay on track to get there.

She doesn't have to be as emotionally strong as consistent as you. You have to be the strong, consistent one who is always pushing forward and making progress towards your long-term goals, dreams and ambitions.

If you do that, she will come along with you, support you all the way and love and respect you deeply.

However, if a guy is just going through life randomly without a clear purpose or direction, it will cause his woman to feel insecure about her future.

She will start to feel as though one of them has to step up and start getting serious about their future.

If her man doesn't do it, she will do it and as a result, she will feel less feminine and will feel as though she is the more dominant, sensible and “masculine” one in the relationship, which will make her unhappy and confused.

When she thinks about her future with him, she just won't feel safe and protected.

She won't feel as though she can fully rely on him to be a man and remain strong all the way to victory.

She will feel as though she's going to need to keep lifting him up, encouraging him along and deciding which direction to head and what decisions to make along the way.

For example: A woman might have the idea of wanting to eventually settle down, buy a house and start a family with her man.

Yet, if he's just drifting along in his life without making any effort to reach for his true potential, she will start asking herself, “Is this really going to work? Do I really want to stick around for years or decades in the hopes that this guy eventually realizes that he needs to do something with his life so we can have a safe future together? What would happen if I suddenly got pregnant? The way that things are now, he would struggle to take care of me and our child. I'm not saying that he has to be super successful for things to work out between us, but he does need to be moving forward, pursuing his goals and providing direction for our future together. I'm not sure if he is capable of doing that at all. Right now, he's emotionally immature and hasn't yet grown up and become a real man, which is making me feel lost and confused about what the future might bring.

Essentially, a woman who confidently leads the way and makes her feel protected and safe because he is always emotionally strong no matter what happens.

When a woman can see that her man is emotionally strong and is rising through the levels of life and reaching for his true potential, she will feel safe with him, respectful of him, attracted to him and will fall more in love with him over time.

On the other hand, if a woman realizes that she's constantly encouraging, or even nagging her man to stop hiding from his true potential because of laziness, or a fear of failure, she will eventually lose respect for him and will say something like, "I need to find myself" or, "I need time apart to think about what I want."

3. She Had to Change Her Personality Too Much to Be With You

At the beginning of a relationship when the love is new and exciting, a woman will usually ignore negative things about her relationship with a guy.

She might even say, "It's not so bad. I'm sure he will eventually see what he's doing wrong and change."

Yet, over time, when she realizes the guy's behavior isn't changing at all, she might find herself losing respect for him and reacting in ways that she doesn't like.

For example: A guy might be very emotionally sensitive in the relationship with his woman, to the point where he becomes insecure and needy.

He might constantly ask her, "Do you still love me? You wouldn't break up with me would you? You know I would just fall apart without you, don't you?"

She might then find herself reassuring him, taking care of him and avoiding doing anything that might upset him or make him feel insecure.

She doesn't want to have to be that reassuring girlfriend (or wife) and just wants to be a man's woman, where she can look up to him and respect him.

Yet, he constantly needs her reassurance that she loves him, finds him attractive and won't ever leave him.

Over time, she might realize that rather than feeling like his woman, she feels more like his mother who is taking care of his emotional well-being because he hasn't yet grown up and become an emotionally strong, emotionally independent real man.

Another example of a woman having to change her personality too much to suit the relationship is when a guy starts taking her for granted (e.g. he breaks his promises to her over and over again, doesn't pull his weight, criticizes her, expects her to put up with his bad attitude).

In a situation like that, a woman might find herself nagging at him to change his ways and she may then become very angry and bitchy when he ignores her nagging and just keeps doing whatever he wants.

Eventually, she will begin to resent coming across as a nagging, complaining woman who is always angry and looking to start an argument with her man.

She then might begin to think, "Look at what you have become. Do you really want to be this *person for life? Why are you so unhappy these days? Is this who you really are? You used to be so happy, cheerful and easy-going. Why are you so stressed out now? It's because of him!*â□□

When she realizes that he has been causing her personality to change in ways that she doesn't like, she will then break up with him and say that she needs to find herself or be herself again.

At the time, it won't make much sense to the guy being broken up with, but it will make full sense to the woman.

She will feel as though she has to get away from him to begin reconnecting with her old self, which she was much happier as before he began to turn her into a nagging, stressed woman.

4. You and Her Have Grown Apart

One of the most important aspects of a relationship is that the man and woman are both going in the same direction in life.

Whether itâ□□s to have fun, party and travel together, or to settle down, buy a house, pursue a career or have a family together, a couple needs to have a shared, long term vision that they are both happy about.

So, if a woman discovers that she has matured a lot faster than her guy (e.g. sheâ□□s ready to be more serious and focused on achieving her goals, while heâ□□s still sitting around playing video games, living at home with his parents or stuck in a dead-end job), she may start feeling like they are growing apart.

She might say to herself, *â□□We no longer want the same things in life. All the things we had in common (e.g. partying, traveling) that drew us together are now the things that are pulling us apart. I donâ□□t want those things anymore, but I can see that heâ□□s not ready to change. I donâ□□t know if I can stick around in the hopes that it will happen someday soon. Maybe we need a break from each other, so we can figure out what we really want.*â□□

Initially, she might try to stick around and see if he changes, but if he remains emotionally immature in contrast to her growing emotional maturity, she will break up with him and begin to look for a new man who wants the same things as her.

If You Give Her Too Much Time to Find Herself, You Might Lose Her

[image: Don't give her too much space or you will lose her]

The main reason why a woman will break up with a guy is because something about his way of thinking, behavior and attitude has made her lose respect and attraction for him.

For example: He became too insecure, jealous, controlling or over-protective.

If a guy doesn't realize her true reasons for breaking up with him and just gives her time to "find herself," she will simply move on because there is nothing different to come back to.

In her eyes, he is still the same guy who still doesn't understand what she wants and needs, so she will just seek to find it in another man unless her ex changes and guides her through the ex back process to get the relationship back together.

So, if youâ□□re thinking about waiting around in the hopes that your ex will call you up one day and say something like, “Hey! I’ve found myself! I now know who I am and what I want in my life and what I want is you! Let’s get back together again,” you’re almost certainly going to be disappointed when you find out that she “found herself” with another guy.

What should you do instead?

The best thing to do while your ex is finding herself, is use the time wisely by becoming the kind of man she actually wants to come back to.

For example: Some of the things you can do that will re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you are:

1. Understand her true reasons for breaking up with you (e.g. Were you making her feel girly and feminine in your presence or was she more of a neutral friend? Did you want the same things in life or were you going in different directions? Were you manly enough for her or did you end up acting a bit like her? Were you confident and emotionally strong, or did you become insecure and emotionally sensitive?).
2. Begin fixing those things about yourself so that when you interact with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) she will be able to sense that you’ve changed.
3. Improve your ability to attract her (e.g. make her smile and laugh, make her feel girly and feminine), so she will definitely have some feelings for you again the next time you interact with her.
4. Get to the point where you feel happy with, or without her in your life (e.g. focus on your dreams and goals, have fun going out with friends or other women), so you aren’t emotionally dependent on her.

Once you’ve begun to make some adjustments and improvements to yourself (you don’t have to be perfect, you just need to be at a different level from where you were when she broke up with you), call her up on the phone and let her experience the new you.

On the phone call, get her laughing, smiling and feeling happy to be talking to you again and get her to meet up with you in person.

At the meet up, focus on sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you via the way you react and respond to what she says now (e.g. you are confident rather than insecure, you are masculine rather than neutral or feminine).

When you interact with her in ways that re-spark her feelings, her perception of you automatically begins to change.

She drops her guard and then the process of getting her back becomes really easy, because she is feeling open to you.

When she’s with you now, she can finally be herself again.

Being herself is about being a feminine woman who is in love with a man.

It’s about her being able to feel happy and free to be who she truly is, without feeling like she needs to look out for how her man is feeling because he’s so emotionally sensitive or emotionally dependent on her.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Get Your Ex Back Super System (Download / Watch Online)

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

[image: Get Your Ex Back: Super System]

[image: Facebook, Phone and Text Message Examples]

[image: Ultimate Make Up Sex]

Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Step by step instructions on how to get your ex back

Get Your Ex Back: Super System guides you and your ex girlfriend, wife or fianc  back into a loving, committed relationship. It makes you more attractive and appealing to her than you were before. She feels new and powerful feelings for you and getting back together becomes her idea. It is a 7 step system and by the 7th step, you are back together in a new, improved and more loving and sexually passionate relationship.

10 hours of video.

Instant download / watch online.

Plays on smartphones, tablets, PCs and MACs.

30 day money back guarantee.

Lifetime access to redownload or watch online.

50% discounts on additional product purchases after you become a customer.

Presenter: Dan

Bonus 1: Facebook, Phone and Text Message Examples

$137 FREE

- A quick reference guide that ensures you have all the Facebook, phone and text messages examples from the Get Your Ex Back: Super System available when you are communicating with your ex.
- Provides additional tips and reminders surrounding each example, so you can quickly scan it while communicating with her.
- Explains how to get her eagerly WANTING to meet up with you, even if she starts out being challenging or uninterested on the phone.
- Provides examples of what to say to make her HAPPY to be talking to you on the phone.
- Reminds you of key points from the Get Your Ex Back: Super System by providing a quick reference “DO’s and DON’Ts” list regarding communication via Facebook, phone, text and e-mail.
- Includes bonus examples of communicating with her via Facebook, phone, text and e-mail.

Bonus 2: Ultimate Make Up Sex

~~$297~~ FREE

- Explains how to give her the type of sex that will completely change her mind about the break up.
- Teaches you my best, simple ways to make a woman orgasm (my women orgasm about 95% of the time we have sex).
- Gives you alpha male insights on how to touch a woman during sex in a way that makes her feel incredible, deep attraction and lust for you.
- Shows you how to tap into a part of her sexual mind that she has likely hidden from you all along. Once you access this part of her, she will love you deeper than she ever has before and other guys will simply pale in comparison to you when it comes to the sexual experience.
- Includes my personal favorite techniques and “moves” in the bedroom that have left some of my girlfriends crying in absolute joy and pleading with me to never leave them.

[image: Get Your Ex Back: Super System - Plus Bonuses]

You Get it All!

- Get Your Ex Back: Super System: ~~$597~~ $297
- Facebook, Phone and Text Message Examples: ~~$137~~ FREE
- Ultimate Make Up Sex: ~~$297~~ FREE

Total Value: $1,031

Price: $297

30 Day Money Back Guarantee

Add to Cart

Getting dumped hurts, especially when you really love her and you really want her back more than anything.

The thought of her being with another guy and being in love with him and leaving you behind just makes you feel sick to your stomach.

She's your woman.

You know that you and her could have such a better relationship this time around but she's not willing to give you a chance.

So, how do you get her back?

Well, when a guy is trying to get his woman back, pretty much everything that he thinks he should do turns out to be the wrong thing to do and just makes it harder for him to get her back.

For example:

- Trying to convince her to give you another chance.

- Promising to change.
- Begging.
- Pleading.
- Buying her gifts
- Taking her on holidays or vacations.
- Being extra nice to her.
- Crying to her.

When those sorts of approaches don't work, a lot of guys think that their situation is hopeless and there's just no chance of getting her back, but they're wrong.

When a guy has been dumped, he's not necessarily behaving like his normal self.

He's feeling hurt, he's being rejected by his woman and his confidence is taking a bit of a heat.

So, he's not thinking straight and he may then start to think, "Okay, well, what else can I do to make her want me? Well I know, I'll ignore her. I'll stop contacting her, I'll cut off all communication and then she's going to realize how much she needs me and she's going to come running back."

Well, that sounds great, in theory, but when a woman breaks up with a man that she's turned off by and she doesn't have feelings for anymore, she's not going to come running back to him if he ignores her.

I've been working on ex-back cases for years and the only time that I see the cutting-off-communication, not-contacting-her approach work, is where the woman is inexperienced with relationships and she can't really handle the pain of being broken up with or she can't find a replacement guy and then starts coming back to her ex-guy.

However, when a woman has been through a break-up before or she can handle the pain of a break-up or she can find a replacement guy, she would just use that time that the guy is ignoring her to move on.

When that happens, it becomes even more difficult for the guy to get her back because now there's another man in the picture and he's going to try to get him out of the way.

Of course, he can get her back from the other man but if you're in a situation where your woman hasn't moved on yet, there's no point creating that extra level of difficulty for yourself when getting her back.

So what should you do instead?

What I recommend is that a guy gives a woman space for 3 to 7 days.

During that time, what a guy needs to do is rapidly improve his ability to make her have feelings for him again.

He needs to improve his ability to make her feel respect, attraction and love for him, that is the most important thing that you need to do.

Not suck up to her, not beg for another chance, not ignore her, not send her long emails and text messages pouring your heart out.

That is not what to do.

You've got to rapidly improve your ability to make her feel respect, attraction and love for you because that is what matters to her.

You want her back, you really care about her, you love her, you miss her, you want to have her in your arms again.

Yet, that is not her concern.

She's not concerned about your feelings right now. She's concerned about her feelings.

If you're going to get her back, you have to focus on her feelings, making her feel something for you, not you saying all the things that you care about her and sucking up to her and sending her messages and buying her gifts or whatever.

If you're at a point where you're trying to get your woman back and nothing that you've been saying or doing has been working, that's where I can help you.

If you're serious about getting her back, I recommend that you watch my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System.

It's a proven step-by-step solution that is easy to use and guarantees that you get another chance with her.

As long as you follow the steps, her guard will come down, she will feel respect for you again, you will then spark her feelings of attraction and love and she will want to give you another chance because she will be feeling strong, exciting and uncontrollable feelings that can only happen when a couple gets back together in this way.

That's another thing that a lot of guys don't understand about the ex-back process...

Getting her back is not only good for you, it's good for her, too.

It feels amazing for a woman when she gets back with a guy who has quickly transformed and he's able to make her feel so much more respect, attraction and love now. That's exciting.

So, if you want to get your ex back, make sure that you're focusing on actively making her have feelings for you again.

Don't take the risk of just ignoring her and hoping that she comes running back because most ex-back cases that I've worked on, a guy has tried to do that and she hasn't come running back.

What I see work day in and day out when I help phone coaching clients is to focus on actively making her feel something again and then guide her through the ex-back process.

The ex-back process is explained in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System. It's a seven-step process and as long as you follow the seven steps, I guarantee that you'll get another chance with her.

I don't guarantee that you'll get another chance with her if you don't follow the steps, mark my words on that.

I'm not saying just watch the program and you'll get another chance! I'm saying watch the program, follow the steps and you will get another chance with her, I guarantee that!

So, if you're serious about getting her back, I recommend that you start watching Get Your Ex Back Super System right now. I'll guide you through the process and all you've got to do is complete the steps and you'll get her back.

Frequently Asked Questions

Okay, so what I'm going to do now is answer some frequently asked questions about Get Your Ex Back Super System.

Those questions are:

1. What if she's not answering my texts or calls?
2. What if she has moved on?
3. What if she hates me and says there's no chance?
4. What if I've made all the classic ex-back mistakes and turned her off?
5. Is it too late to get her back?
6. Will this work for my situation?
7. How fast can I get her back?

1. What if she's not answering my texts or calls?

With the first question, if she's not answering your text or phone calls at the moment, don't worry. There are techniques in the program that make her unblock you from social media, start answering your text messages and start answering the phone.

I developed Get your Ex Back Super System by actually helping men to successfully get their women back so I know about all the problems that men face when trying to get a woman back.

If you're at a point where your woman isn't answering your text or phone calls, that's pretty standard. The reason why is most guys try to get their ex back on their own first, then they make all the classic ex-back mistakes which turn the woman off.

It's usually only when a guy has made all the classic mistakes or many of the classic mistakes will he then starts thinking, "Okay, I need some help."

So, don't worry if she's not answering your text or phone calls, I've got you covered with that. All the examples and techniques of what to do are provided in the program.

2. What if she has moved on?

If she has got a new man, don't worry about him. She's your woman and you're going to get her back.

The examples of what to say are provided in the program. I explain what to say to her so she does meet up with you and then what to say and do at the meet-up so you can re-attract her, get her to forgive you, get her to feel respect for you again and start to open up to the idea of being with you.

If she doesn't want to get back with you because she's moved on, there are techniques in the program to get her to want to leave the new guy and be with you.

3. What if she hates me and says there's no chance?

Well, that's just simply based on how she's feeling at the moment.

You've most likely been turning her off by the way that you've been interacting with her and communicating with her.

That's about to change.

What you're going to do from now on is actively make her feel respect, attraction and love for you. She's going to start to have feelings for you again and she's not going to hate you. Once you reactivate some of her feelings then she starts to open up to the idea of getting back with you.

4. What if I've made all the classic ex-back mistakes and turned her off?

What you need to understand is that most guys make mistakes after a break-up.

It's not just you that has made mistakes.

Pretty much every guy makes the classic ex-back mistakes and break-up mistakes, so don't worry about it.

What matters is how you make her feel from now on.

If you're interacting with her and you're making her feel some respect, attraction and love for you again, then she's going to be more willing to forgive you for the mistakes that you made during the break-up and after the break-up.

However, if you're not doing anything to make her feel respect, attraction and love for you again, then she's not going to be willing to forgive you for the mistakes that you've been making.

If you're continuing to turn her off by the way that you're interacting with her and communication with her, then there's no reason for her to want to forgive you and open back up to you.

What you need to do is use the techniques from Get Your Ex Back Super System to start making her have positive feelings for you from now on.

5. Is it too late to get her back?

No.

It's never too late.

There's always a chance to get her back.

All you've got to do is start making her have feelings for you again. W hen she has feelings for you such as respect, attraction and love, then she wants to get back with you.

It's not just about you wanting to get back with her. It's about her wanting to be with you because she feels drawn to you. She feels respect, attraction and love and wants to be around you.

6. Will this work for my situation?

Every relationship is different. However, the fundamentals are the same.

Your woman needs to feel respect, attraction and love for you.

It doesn't matter how many break-ups you've been through already. It doesn't matter if you've got kids or if she was your first love at university or you worked together or it's now long distance.

What matters is how you're making her feel from now on.

Are you making her feel respect, attraction and love for you or are you turning her off?

That is what matters.

When you make her have feelings for you again, then she wants to be back with you so the answer is yes, it will work for your situation if you actively make her have feelings for you again.

6. How fast can I get her back?

The speed at which you get her back depends on how quickly you start going through the steps.

Some guys watch the program and are immediately ready to contact their ex and get her back.

Other guys need to give her three to seven days of space and during that time they improve their ability to re-attract her and make her have feelings again.

In other cases, some guys need a couple of weeks before they're fully ready to get her back. It all depends on you and how quickly you can go through the steps.

When you watch Get your Ex Back Super System, you will experience a new found confidence in yourself.

You will feel worthy of her.

You will realize that she is your woman and you can get her back and you are good enough for her.

You will then be able to contact her, meet up with her, re-attract her and get her back into a relationship with you.

All you've got to do is follow the steps and you will get her back.

So, if you're serious about getting her back, start watching Get your Ex Back Super System right now and I'll guide you through the process.

I give you my 100% guarantee that if you follow the steps, you will get her back.

Go ahead and get started now.

[image: Get Your Ex Back: Super System]

[image: Facebook, Phone and Text Message Examples]

[image: Ultimate Make Up Sex]

Step by step instructions on how to get your ex back

Get Your Ex Back: Super System guides you and your ex girlfriend, wife or fianc  back into a loving, committed relationship as soon as possible.

The techniques from Get Your Ex Back Super System make you more attractive and appealing to her than you were before.

When you interact with her on the phone and in person, she experiences a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you. She then becomes open to meeting up with you in person.

When you meet up with her, my powerful attraction techniques ensure that you trigger new and exciting feelings of attraction inside of her.

Her perception of you changes and she becomes open to giving the relationship another shot, or at least having sex with you again to see how she feels.

Get Your Ex Back: Super System is a 7 step system and by the 7th step, you and your ex will be back together in a new, improved and more loving and sexually passionate relationship.

10 hours of video.

Instant download / watch online.

Plays on smartphones, tablets, PCs and MACs.

30 day money back guarantee.

Lifetime access to redownload or watch online.

50% discounts on additional product purchases after you become a customer.

Presenter: Dan

Watch it Now

Free Bonus 1: Facebook, Phone and Text Message Examples

~~$137~~ FREE

- A quick reference guide that ensures you have all the Facebook, phone and text messages examples from the Get Your Ex Back: Super System available when you are communicating with your ex.
- Provides additional tips and reminders surrounding each example, so you can quickly scan it while communicating with her.
- Explains how to get her eagerly WANTING to meet up with you, even if she starts out being challenging or uninterested on the phone.
- Provides examples of what to say to make her HAPPY to be talking to you on the phone.
- Reminds you of key points from the Get Your Ex Back: Super System by providing a quick reference “DO’s and DON’Ts” list regarding communication via Facebook, phone, text and e-mail.
- Includes bonus examples of communicating with her via Facebook, phone, text and e-mail.

Free Bonus 2: Ultimate Make Up Sex

~~$297~~ FREE

- Explains how to give her the type of sex that will completely change her mind about the break up.
- Teaches you my best, simple ways to make a woman orgasm (my women orgasm about 95% of the time we have sex).
- Gives you alpha male insights on how to touch a woman during sex in a way that makes her feel incredible, deep attraction and lust for you.
- Shows you how to tap into a part of her sexual mind that she has likely hidden from you all along. Once you access this part of her, she will love you deeper than she ever has before and other guys will simply pale in comparison to you when it comes to the sexual experience.
- Includes my personal favorite techniques and “moves” in the bedroom that have left some of my girlfriends crying in absolute joy and pleading with me to never leave them.

[image: Get Your Ex Back: Super System - Plus Bonuses]

You Get it All!

- Get Your Ex Back: Super System: ~~$597~~ $297
- Facebook, Phone and Text Message Examples: ~~$137~~ FREE
- Ultimate Make Up Sex: ~~$297~~ FREE

Total Value: $1,031

Price: $297

Get Started

Success Stories

Here are just a few of the messages that guys have sent me after following the steps of Get Your Ex Back: Super System to get their woman back...

“It was a lot easier than I thought it would be. She immediately changed her attitude towards me by the time I got to step 3 of the program. We then met up and got back together. Thanks so much for your help! I couldn’t have done it without you! Peter”

“Getting my ex back was a bit more complicated than other guys because of her abused past, but your system definitely worked for me.

We were spending 1 day and evening a weekend together recently having deep love making. She then rang tonight saying we were falling into our old pattern and maybe we should break up again, but I changed her mind based on my newfound confidence and understanding of how to really connect with a woman’s mind.

Anyway she ended up saying she loved me multiple times and wants to be with me & address our niggles was the outcome.

In conclusion I wanted to thank you Dan as all your advice including the mistakes that guys make etc. has really helped me a lot. Thank you Dan, you’re making a lot of couples very happy with your programmes.

Kind regards
M.Y”

“I got my girlfriend back and I could not be happier right now. I really feel like a lot has changed in me since watching your program. I have grown up a lot after grasping what it really means to be a man for a woman. She is back in love me now so my thanks to you and your program. I bought 3 or 4 other programs before finding you but they were all rubbish and merely told me to use the no contact approach and if she didn’t come back I was to move on. Thank you for your guidance Dan. I could not have done this without you. Jacob”

“Hi Dan

I got your ex back program last week, secured a meet up with her and then did that last night.

She was very hesitant at first but I persisted as you mentioned in the program and she agreed.

We met up for what was supposed to be a quick coffee and that turned into her having feelings for me again and getting worried about it, so I suggested we got for a walk and while walking I suggested we go hang out at my place and she said yes.

We ended up having sex and she said that she didnt know why but she felt differently and wanted to give us another chance!!!!

Her and I are taking things slow now but it looks good because she came over to my place yesterday and stayed the night so I am confident that I can continue to spark her feelings more. We even talked about going away for a weekend soon so it is looking very positive.

I canâ€¢t thank you enough Dan. You are saving a lot of men from a lot of messed up pain and problems.

I will certainly recommend you to friends if they go through a break up!

Regards,
Paul”

â€¢Hi dan 5 months after me and my wife broke up we are now back together and so happy.

Iâ€¢ll be honest with you I thought after I went through your programmes that they would be of no use to me I couldnâ€¢t have been more wrong , certain parts of the programme i couldnâ€¢t really use but the majority was so helpful because it got me in the right mindset and helped me through the toughest part of the break up and showed me how to be a man that my wife would want.

In all fairness it just felt natural to be this way so many many thanks to you and the team at modern man because without you it would have been impossible for me to get my wife back in my arms so if any of you guys are in Liverpool England any time donâ€¢t hesitate to contact me because I would like to take you guys out for a drink again.

Thank you thank you thank you you donâ€¢t realise how much you have helped me,
Mattyâ€¢

“I was skeptical before trying your program because my ex girlfriend hated me and wanted nothing to do with me. Well I was surprised at how quickly things changed when I started making her feel jealous like you suggest in the program. I was worried to do it because I thought she would get angry and hate me even more but it drew her to me. I guess she realized that she was losing a great guy and it struck a chord with her.

We met up for a coffee and I used your methods to get her smiling again and laughing like she used to. She said that I had changed and she liked it and I knew at the moment that I could get her back, so I told her to stand up and for us to give each other a hug. We then kissed and it was magical like it was in the beginning when we first dated.

The relationship has been back together for a week now and everything seems to be going well. Thanks for your advice Dan, it really worked and I am glad to have found your site when I went searching online after she dumped me for the third time! You have a loyal fan for life now. Victor”

“Hiya Dan

I got my ex back! It was actually a lot easier than I was thinking it would be. Your methods are brilliant!

I was lead to believe by friends that once a girl broke up with you that that was it but now that Iâ€”ve done it I can see what you see about attraction and relationships and love.

Me and my girlfriend are now planning on moving in together and things are really good, so my thanks to you for the brilliant program and advice.

Garyâ€”

â€”Hi Dan

I want to take this opportunity to thank you for saving my marriage. It was dead in the water and my wife had already began going on dates with a new guy that she knows from work. But I put your advice into action from the Get Your Ex Back system and boy did it work.

My wife came crawling back to me, crying and apologizing. I am now in the position of power in the relationship and we are more in love than ever before. Your tips on sex where a huge eye opener for me as well. I would rarely get her to orgasm before but now it is happening almost every time we have sex.

You are doing great things for the men of this world Dan and you deserve a lot of credit. Had I known what your program would do for me I would have happily paid double the price.

Byronâ€”

“Dan I got my girlfriend back. Thank you!

Nate”

â€”Hi Dan,

I have nearly everyone of your products except the Alpha Male Power and they have utterly changed my life.

My GF broke up with me on December 14th, and lets just say I cried and begged for about 2 weeks then realized it wasnâ€”t going to do anything to get her back.

So I found your series and worked on me and forced myself to interact with women. It wasnâ€”t long before I got numbers, built rapport, and moved forward to kissing and heavy petting, however no sex.

I cut off communication for 3 weeks with the EX, and then I was on a job interview in NYC about 3 weeks ago and posted on my Facebook I was at a Bar, my ex whom also lives in NYC was coincidentally 2 blocks away and we meet up!

Long story short, we're back together, at one point she asked me if use getting back together was a good idea and if it was a good thing. I just laughed at her and said it was the best thing for us, cause the things you told me I lack (confidence, emotional understanding of women and body language) I've fixed and women now love me (showed her pictures from my phone). man. Dan. she flipped so quickly it wasn't even funny. I told her she needs to behave and do things I like or I'll just walk away and go to one of the other girls. I told her if she does things I like I'll give her a reward, She was like really. I tease her with a reward and then giving her rewards, keeping her on her toes. When she does things I don't like she goes to time-out, but only for 5 seconds, then I tell her to give me a hug and say she's sorry.

I've turned the tides in the relationship, and now she always messaging me, chasing me. I tell her every time I talk to her, "Ok talk to you in a week, I'm busy the next few days" 12 to 18 hours later she messages me wondering what I'm up too. She says I'm different and understanding.

Right now I tell her I'm Version 2.0 with firmware 3.0 coning out soon, you better figure me out quick or you'll be learning how to figure me out all over again. she's like are you for real. I'm like stop being so serious, she's like your mean. I'm like ya so??? O.o she is pushed in the feminine every time.

Your material is spot on, I keep her in the feminine , but sometimes show my feminine then go right back to be a dominant male and she loves it.

Again thanks for your content, I'll keep listening to it over and over again. Maybe sometime when I'm in Melbourne or your in the States, we can meet up!!!

-Trevor.

Hey Dan,

I have been working on everything you have taught me and I think its finally starting to come together.

I have visited my ex a couple times now and she seems so in love again. She now compliments me about how much more masculine I am and treats me so much better. I am so happy ,thank you. We are better than ever and I feel like (with your help) I'm learning to keep the dominant role and stay in control of my emotions.

Now that I am more aware my role in the relationship we have a deeper connection and are on the way to an Amazing relationship. Alex

"I just wanted to email you Dan to say thank you for making this program. Without your guidance and examples of would have had to give up and move on without her because she was being so stubborn and wouldn't open up to me. I used your approach and her walls came down and we met up. There was a spark there like in the beginning and we have been back together since that day. If you are ever in New York please get in touch so I can buy you a beer and say thanks! Will”

Here are some screenshots of comments from guys on my Youtube channel:

[image: Ex back success stories - example 1]

[image: Ex back success stories - example 4]

[image: Ex back success stories - example 3]

[image: Ex back success stories - example 2]

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

6 Possible Reasons Why Your Ex Replies to Your Texts in a Cold, Distant Way

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex is currently replying to your texts in a cold, distant way, here are 6 possible reasons why!

1. Your texts don't make her feel respect and attraction

Although you can regain some respect and attraction via text, it's just not enough to get a relationship back together.

To make her feel enough respect and attraction for you to feel motivated to want to get back together for real, you've got to get her on a phone call and then meet up with her in person.

If you try to hide behind texts because it feels easier, you waste a lot of time where you and her could have been hooking up and may end up asking yourself, "Why isn't she responding?" or "Why are her replies to my texts so cold and distant?"

To convince your ex that you're worth a second chance, she needs to see (via the way you talk, behave, interact with her and respond to her) that you now understand the real reasons why she broke up with you and have already made some changes to become a better man as a result.

That's very difficult to achieve via text.

A woman knows that a guy can put on a persona and pretend to be anything he wants via text (e.g. he can pretend to be confident and having a great time without her, while he's really feeling insecure and sitting at home yearning to be with her again).

So, unless a woman can experience the new and improved version of her ex face-to-face, every time she gets a text from him, she's likely just going to be thinking, "What does he want? Why is he bothering me?" and she will then begin to reply in a cold, distant way in the hopes that he'll get the message and leave her alone.

To break down her walls, you need to call your ex and say something like, "Hey Sue! I just wanted to call and say that I'm sorry for what happened between us. I know that I hurt you, but I've had a huge wake up call. I now understand why you broke up with me and I realize if the roles were reversed I would have also broken up with you. I'm not that guy anymore. I don't expect you to believe me and I don't expect you to take me back, but I'd like us to at least try and be friends."

By saying something like that to her it calms things down.

Watch this video for another example!

Talking to her in that way gives her a chance to determine whether or not he really has become more of a man (i.e. by analyzing what he is saying and how he's responding to her and how he's reacting to her when she's being cold, distant and unfriendly towards him).

If she can see that her ex has genuinely changed and become a better man, her guard will come down and she will automatically start feeling some respect and attraction for him again.

However, if he hasn't changed at all and is still saying and doing the same things that were turning her off before (e.g. being insecure, trying to convince her to give him another chance via text), she's just going to continue being cold and distant and she won't be open to meeting up with him.

2. You text too much

Another possible reason why your ex replies to your texts in a cold, distant way is because you're texting her way too much.

This often happens when a woman doesn't want to talk to her ex on the phone.

He might then decide that the best way to get through to her is via text.

For example: He might say to himself, "If she doesn't want to talk to me or see me in person, I will just keep texting her. That way, she won't be able to forget about me and our relationship and that will stop her from moving on with some other guy. Hopefully, by texting her every day she'll realize that I won't give up on our love so easily and she will then stop avoiding me. She'll agree to meeting up with me and then I can convince her to try again."

He might then decide to text her random things throughout the day (e.g. "How was your day?" or "How is work?" or "Are you finished exams yet?"), as a way of staying in touch with her.

Yet, here's the thing!

When texting a woman, if a guy doesn't first trigger her feelings of respect and attraction (e.g. by making her smile and laugh), she's most-likely just going to feel annoyed to constantly be interrupted, regardless of how sincere he is being.

The fact is that nothing you text to your ex will truly convince her that you've changed and that she should give you another chance. Why?

Firstly, it's just a text message, so she can easily misinterpret what you're saying because she can't hear your tonality or see your body language to determine your state of mind while you're texting.

When she reads your text message, she has to guess at how you were feeling when you typed it (e.g. were you feeling confident and self-assured, or were you feeling nervous, insecure and desperate?).

If she currently perceives you in a negative way, she will most likely read your message and think the worst of you.

So, if you want to contact your ex via text after a break up, remember to only do so with the intention of making her feel enough initial respect and attraction for you, to allow her to open up to talking to you on the phone.

Don't waste a lot of time sending her random texts that will potentially annoy her and turn her off even more, in the hopes that she will warm up to you.

On a phone call, it's so much easier to melt her iciness and make her feel respect and attraction for you. How?

By making her smile and laugh and showing her that you're no longer the same guy she broke up with.

For example: You call her up and say, "Hey ex girlfriend, how you doing?" rather than saying something boring like, “Hey, how are you?”

Alternatively, you call her up and say, “Hey, how’s it going. Look, I know that we’re broken up, but my laundry has started to pile up and I need someone to do it for me.”

She will almost certainly laugh at that and you have then successfully gotten her to open up and feel some respect and attraction for you.

When you make a woman smile and laugh during conversation, it becomes difficult for her to remain cold and distant for long.

She drops her guard, starts to feel good talking to you again and then becomes open to meeting up with you in person.

3. She doesn’t want to make it easy for you to get her back

Even if a woman still has feelings for her ex and wants to get back with him, sheâ€¢s won’t always say so via text.

In most cases, a woman doesnâ€¢t want to text her ex and tell him about her feelings for him, because she doesnâ€¢t want to make it easy too for him.

She wants to know that heâ€¢s man enough to take responsibility of the ex back process and guide both him and her into a relationship.

Why?

Women are instinctively attracted to men who remain confident and go after what they want in life (including an ex that they still love), regardless of what anyone else thinks, says or does.

On the other hand, women are instinctively turned off by guys who need women to encourage them to feel confident and worthy.

So, if youâ€¢re wondering why your ex has been replying to your texts in a cold, distant way, it could be because sheâ€¢s feeling like youâ€¢re hiding behind texts in the hopes that she will make it easy for you by saying something like, “Hey, call me :)” or, “Hey, what’s up? I miss you.”

It would be nice if she made it that easy, but most women won’t.

So, you just have to make it happen yourself, otherwise she will move on and it will then be even harder to get her back.

Don’t make her get to the point where she starts to believe that you’re hiding behind texts because you’re too afraid to face her.

For example: If a woman keeps getting text messages from her ex, but he never plucks up the courage to call and arrange a time to meet up, she may start thinking, â€¢Why doesnâ€¢t he just call me? Why is he being so timid? Doesnâ€¢t he know that women are attracted to confident men who take the lead and make things happen? I hope he doesnâ€¢t think that Iâ€¢m going to do all the work and guide us back into a relationship.â€¢

So, start the ex back process by showing her that you have the balls to be the kind of man that she needs you to be by calling her.

On the phone call, focus on making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be interacting with you again.

The more you make her smile and laugh while youâ€¢re talking to her, the more difficult it becomes for her to keep being cold and distant towards you.

When she hears the confidence and sincerity in your voice, her guard will come down and she will open herself up to the idea of meeting up with you in person again to see where things go from there.

4. You're being too serious or too emotional via text

Sometimes, a guy will use text messages as a way of telling an ex how much he loves her, how sorry he is about what happened and how he promises to do whatever she wants if she gives him a second chance.

When he's feeling lonely and missing her like crazy, sending those texts might seem like a good idea, but it's not.

He might even think, "If my ex realizes just how much I care for her, she won't be able to stay cold and distant towards me anymore. She will have to forgive me and agree to talk to me again."

Yet, when a woman has lost respect and attraction for a guy, him texting her about his feelings isn't really going to matter that much (if at all) to her.

Instead, she's going to feel even more annoyed with him and she may think something like, "Actions speak louder than words and right now all I'm getting is a bunch of words on a screen from a guy who clearly doesn't have the emotional maturity to deal with a break up like a real man. He's just falling apart like a woman who has been dumped. He's being emotional and expecting me to care, even though he hasn't done anything to make me have feelings for him again. He just doesn't get it. I'm not going to care unless I have feelings for him again."

Here's the thing!

A woman only appreciates it when a guy expresses his love for her if she has feelings for him too.

If he has turned her off and she currently has negative feelings for him, she's just going to feel annoyed when he's being too serious or emotional via text.

Also, because she can't see his body language, hear the tonality of his voice, or assess his vibe and energy in the moment, she will just think the worst of him, rather than give him the benefit of the doubt and assume he has changed and is a better man now.

What most guys fail to remember is that a woman can't experience the new and improved version of him via text messages.

So remember: Only text your ex as a way of getting her on a phone call with you, where you can actively trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you by making her laugh, smile and feel good to be interacting with you again, and get her to meet up with you in person.

5. She still hasn't experienced the new and improved you in person, so she feels as though she is replying to the old version of you that she broke up with

[image: She feels like she is replying to the old version of you]

To stop your ex from being cold and distant towards you, you must have the balls to call her and reactivate her feelings for you again by displaying attractive traits (e.g. confidence, humor, masculine mindset, charisma).

If you just keep sending her boring text messages without ever calling her or seeing her in person, she will just keep saying things like, “I don’t have feelings for you anymore. You need to stop texting me.”

After all, she’s just getting texts from you. She’s not really interacting with the real you. It’s just words on a screen.

For example: Watch this video of me as I help you understand how to impress your ex.

You will see that it’s much different to watch me and listen to me than it is to just read words on a screen!

Another reason why your ex may be replying to your texts in a cold, distant way is because!

6. She doesn’t want to waste time texting if you aren’t going to be the one for her

If a woman gets a sense that her ex hasn’t changed or won’t be able to change, she will feel like it’s a waste of time for her to remain in contact with him.

If there is no respect or sexual attraction, she will disconnect herself from him and open herself up to meeting new men.

Most women prefer to cut off an ex completely (or just be cold and distant until he leaves her alone), if they feel that he’s not going to be the right guy for her.

For example: A woman will ask herself questions like!

- Can he change and become the man that I need him to be, or will he continue to behave in the ways that turn me off (e.g. being insecure, needy and clingy, jealous and controlling, taking me for granted, lacking drive and ambition)?
- Do I feel good when I’m interacting with him, or do I feel bored, stressed out, or annoyed?
- Does he make me feel sexually attracted, or does he turn me off?
- Is he more masculine than me, allowing me to feel like a real woman around him (i.e. feminine, girly, free to be emotional), or does he make me feel like a friend or one of the guys?
- Do we have the same long term goals, dreams and plans for the future (e.g. to get married, start a family, go traveling), or do we want different things?
- Is he the kind of man that I can look up to and respect for life, or do I look down on him?
- Is he the kind of man I can feel proud of, or do I feel a bit embarrassed to admit that he’s my guy?

If she discovers that there are more no’s than yes’s, then she will naturally become cold and distant towards him because she doesn’t want to give him hope.

So, if you’re serious about getting your ex back, you have to focus on letting her experience the new and improved you.

You can’t do that all through texts though.

Your ex will continue reply to your texts in a cold, distant way until you call her up on the phone and make her feel like she would be losing out if she didn't get back with you right away.

When you trigger her feelings of respect and attraction via the way you think, act, behave and interact with her on a phone call and in person, her iciness melts and she feels motivated to want to see you in person again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Your Ex to Open Up to You Again

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To get your ex to open up to you again, you need to completely stop doing the things that close her off.

For example, some of the things that will cause her to remain closed off to you, include:

1. Being insecure while talking to her

[image: Being insecure while talking to your ex]

All women, including ex's who are closed off to you, respond positively to a man's confidence.

A man's confidence attracts women just like a woman's cleavage attracts us.

We can't help but feel some attraction when we see tits on display like that and women can't help but feel some attraction when a guy is being confident, especially when she is being closed off.

It takes real balls to remain confident and emotionally strong when the woman you love is being closed off to you.

So, when you are confident around her no matter what she says or does, she will naturally feel respect and attraction for you and will start to open up.

She may test to see if your confidence is real by continuing to act closed off, but if you can continue to remain confident and emotionally strong, the effect of attraction will make her open up.

Her opening up may just be that she is open to texting you again, talking on the phone or catching up in person.

You have to see that as a sign that she is open to getting back with you, as long as you have the confidence to keep guiding her back into a relationship.

However, if all you've got for her is a whole bunch of insecurity and self-doubt, she's not going to feel attracted and therefore, will not open up to you again.

Women aren't attracted to insecurity because it makes them feel as though they wouldn't be safe with the guy and would need to protect themselves and be strong to handle the challenges of life.

Women want a confident, emotionally strong man who remains strong no matter what life or a woman throws at him.

It's not about being arrogant and acting tough.

Instead, it's just about remaining confident, relaxed, easy-going and emotionally strong, regardless of what she says or does.

If you can do that, she will absolutely feel some respect and attraction for you, even if she acts like she isn't.

Another thing that will keep her closed off is a

2. Trying to suck up to her

[image: Trying to suck up to your ex]

Sometimes, when a woman is refusing to open up to her ex, he may think, “I need to be on my best behavior around her. I can’t say or do anything that might upset her, or she will close up even more. She may even not want to talk to me ever again. I can’t afford to annoy her and lose my last chance at getting her back.”

He might then try to stay on her good side when he’s interacting with her, by behaving in ways that he thinks will please her.

For example: A guy might offer to run errands for her, be a friend that she can talk to and even help her financially.

He might also become very nice, polite, considerate and caring, in the hopes that she will think, “Oh my, isn’t he so sweet now? I’d be stupid not to get back with him! No other guy would treat me this well.”

Yet, that’s not how women work.

Instead, she might just take advantage of his generosity and get him to buy her presents, be extra nice to her and make her feel good about herself, while she secretly tries to find a replacement guy to move on with.

Then, soon enough, she says something like, “Look, there’s something I need to tell you. I’m with someone else now. We’re really happy together and it’s serious, so I want you to respect that and leave me alone.”

He is then left devastated and she laughs to herself and moves on, feeling good about herself because she is wanted by two men and has left one of them completely heartbroken.

Don’t do that to yourself.

Be a good man, but don’t suck up to her.

Sucking up, groveling, being Mr. Nice Guy or Mr. Fix it who helps her with everything is not the way to make a woman love you again.

You’ve got to start by making her feel respect and attraction for you first.

Once you do that, her guard will come down and she will open back up to you again.

3. Letting her bring up your mistakes over and over again

It’s fine to talk about your mistakes and apologize, but it’s not good to allow that discussion to happen over and over again.

For example: A guy might allow his ex to justify being closed off to him by continually talking about how bad of a boyfriend (or husband) he was.

She might say to him, “Why are you even bothering talking to me? You stuffed up so many times that I can’t believe that you can actually look me in the eye right now. You should be embarrassed. I was a saint to put up with you for as long as I did. I don’t even know why I’m talking to you again. I should just block you from my phone and choose never see you again after what you did. I can't believe how immature you were. You treated me like crap. I didn't deserve to be put through all that. I don't want you back and no other woman is going to want you either. You are the worst of the worst.

Even though the guy might be thinking, She's right, I did stuff up badly. I deserve this, if he lets her talk to him like that, it will only make her lose even more respect for him.

What should he do instead?

Watch this video for the answer!

She can forgive you and open up to you again, but that's not going to happen if you let her keep bringing up your mistakes and making a big deal about it.

Get to the point where she realizes that it has been said and there's no need to keep repeating herself, otherwise she just looks silly.

If you let her dominate you and make you listen to her rants over and over again, she won't be able to look up to you and respect you and as a result, she won't be able to feel sexually attracted to you either.

So, if your ex keeps bringing up all your past mistakes and talking to you like you're a naughty little boy who needs to be punished, you need to show her that you're not that guy anymore and that she needs to stop treating you like that.

4. Acting like an innocent friend

If you want your ex to open up to you again, you have to make her feel respect and sexual attraction for you, not nice, friendly emotions.

Sometimes, a guy will try to get his ex girlfriend (or wife) back by pretending that he's only interested in being her neutral friend, which will cause the woman to remain closed up because there's no sexual attraction and respect to make her feel motivated to want to be close to him, kiss him, have sex and open up again emotionally.

So, if you want to get your ex to open up to you again, don't let your insecurities make you act like a friend who isn't allowed to flirt with her and make her feel attracted and don't let her dominate you with her confident personality.

It's totally fine to be her friend, but just don't be an innocent friend who isn't interested in her sexually or romantically.

5. Trying to convince her to give you another chance

When a woman breaks up with a guy, one of his first reactions will usually be to try and convince her to give him another chance.

For example: He might say to her, Please forgive me. I care about you so much. For the sake of the love we shared, please just give me one more chance to make things right between us.

If she then responds by saying, Forget it. Nothing can convince me to get back with you again, he may get upset and feel like she's being stubborn and just won't open up to him.

Yet, what a guy like that doesn't realize is that the woman isn't being stubborn or closed off because she is selfish or mean.

Instead, she's just reacting to the lack of respect and sexual attraction she feels for him based on the approach that he's using.

Trying to convince a woman to open up and give you another chance doesn't turn her on make her feel attracted and drawn to you.

6. Expecting her to want to be with you again because the relationship used to feel great

[image: Things used to be great between us. Please remember that!]

When a guy wants a woman to have feelings for him again, he'll often try to get her to focus on all the good times they shared, in the hopes that she realizes how much she will miss being with him.

For example: If a woman keeps pushing a man away and saying things like, It's over, there's nothing left between us, he might respond by saying something like, How can you say that? We used to love each other so much. I admit that our relationship didn't turn out the way we initially intended, but we did love each other before. We managed to stay together through some rough times, like back when I lost my job. No matter what happened, we always had a laugh together. I mean, what about that time we went skinny dipping at the beach that was so much fun. So, why are you only letting yourself focus on the bad stuff? What about the good things we shared? Don't they make up for some of the bad times? I think that if we had to measure the good times we had vs. the bad times, you would see that it was good most of the time.

Unfortunately, as sensible an argument as that may be, it's usually not enough to make a woman spontaneously change her mind and say, Oh yes, I remember now! Okay, since we had more good times than bad ones we can get back together now. Thanks for reminding me!

Instead, by pointing out how good things were at the start, it simply highlights to her how bad things got in the end.

7. Feeling entitled to her love or to a relationship because you're a good man and you really do love her

[image: Feeling entitled to your ex's love]

In some cases, a man simply cannot understand how or why his woman could dump him and not want to be with him anymore.

He feels entitled to her love and a relationship with her, because he hasn't yet realized that people stay together if it feels right and if the future looks promising together, not because it used to feel good.

In the past, a woman would be forced to marry a guy picked out for her by a father or guardian and then she had to stay with him for life, regardless of how unhappy she was.

That's not the way it works anymore.

These days, if a woman loses too much respect and attraction for a guy, she can break up with him because he doesn't own her, it's no longer shameful to break up and she is allowed to get in and out of relationships until she finds the right man for her.

So, if you want your ex to open up and want you back, you've got to be able to let her see that you really have changed, rather than expecting her to give you another chance because you're a good man and you really do love her and care about her.

8. Not giving her the attraction experience that she really wants

For a woman to remain happy in a relationship, she has to be able to get the attraction experience she wants.

She doesn't have to put up with feeling unhappy, bored, unappreciated, smothered or controlled.

For example, when you talk to your ex these days:

- Do you make her laugh, smile and feel good to be talking to you again, or do you stress her out by always talking about the relationship, your feelings or going over and over your mistakes?
- Do you remain calm and composed when she says or does something that annoys you, or do you get upset and get into an argument with her over it?
- Do you make her feel like a real woman (i.e. feminine and girly) when she's with you, or do you treat her like a neutral friend, or allow her to dominate you emotionally to the point where she feels stronger than you?
- Do you behave like a man who has understood where he went wrong and has fixed some of the issues that were turning her off, or are you just the same guy she broke up with who is making the same mistakes (e.g. taking her for granted, being emotionally sensitive, being insecure)?

Open and Willing to Give You Another Chance

To get your ex to open up to you again and be willing to give you another chance, you need to be able to let her see that you really have moved beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you.

For example: If a guy got broken up with because he allowed his woman to wear the pants in the relationship and be more dominant than him, to get her back he needs to show her that he's now more masculine in the way he thinks, feels, behaves and takes action in life.

She can now feel like a real woman around him because he is more masculine than her.

Another example is where a woman broke up with a guy because there was constant arguing and fighting in the relationship and she felt stressed out and frustrated.

To show her that he's now at a different level, he needs to let her see that he's learned from his mistakes, has started to change and is reacting differently in difficult or challenging situations.

When your ex realizes that she now feels respect, attraction and love for you whenever she interacts with you, she will naturally and automatically open back up to you again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend is Worried About What People Will Say if She Gets Back With Me

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your girlfriend said that she is worried about what people will say if she gets back with you, you need to:

1. Let her see that you really have changed, she can be confident to tell people that things are different now

[image: Let her see that things really are different now]

One of the best ways to make your girlfriend feel happy to get back together with you, is by giving her some evidence that you really have changed.

If you can't show her that you have already changed for real, she's going to be thinking, How am I going to tell my friends and family that I'm back together with him after all the negative things I told them about him? They'll think I'm crazy or stupid to put myself back into a situation like that and I won't blame them. I need to know for sure that things really will be different.

Watch this video to understand how you can prove to her that you've changed!

For example: If a guy was too jealous and that was one of the main reasons why she broke up with him, he needs to now start showing her that he really is more confident and emotionally mature now.

He is happy, confident and getting on with life regardless of whether or not she is in his life.

If she then decides to get back with him, she can comfortably say to her friends and family, I know that he used to be very jealous and controlling before, but he's not like that now at all. He's actually put in the effort to change and I respect him for that. We can be happy now.

Yet, if he hasn't really changed and the opinion of her parents and friends matters to her, she's just not going to feel good about the decision to give him another chance.

Another example is if a guy lacked purpose in life and focused all of his attention on her.

Rather than being a real man and going after his big, goals, dreams and ambitions, while also loving her, he made the classic mistake of making his whole life about her and became clingy, needy and insecure as a result.

To show her that he's learned from his mistakes and he's started to change, he needs to let her see that he now has some big goals and ambitions in life and has started making some progress towards achieving those things.

Of course, he doesn't have to have achieved his goals and ambitions already and he doesn't have to become Superman, but he needs to have started to make progress towards his goals.

She then has proof that he's not stuck and he's not the same guy that she broke up with.

He really has improved, which is going to make it a lot easier for her to say to her friends and family, It's okay, you don't have to be worried about me now. He really isn't the same guy as *before. We can have a real future together now. We can make it work.*â€œ

Another example is where a woman broke up with a guy because he took her for granted in the relationship.

He always seem to break his promises to her, criticize her in private as well as in front of her friends and family and expected her to do whatever he wanted to do.

To let her see that heâ€™s really changed and that heâ€™s not going to treat her in those ways again, he needs to first understand that his behavior was unattractive to her and then make some adjustments to the way he thinks, acts, behaves and interacts with her from now on.

He needs to show her that he is now a loving, supportive guy who will continue being the man, but will be a better, more caring man this time.

If her friends and family can then see that he is now treating her better, is loving, caring and isn't taking her for granted, they will be more open to giving him one last chance and she will then feel better about getting back together with him.

So, if your girlfriend is currently saying that sheâ€™s worried about what people will say if she gets back with you, the best way to alleviate her worries is by letting her know that youâ€™ve learned from your mistakes and have already started to change.

You can tell her that you've changed; you've got to prove it based on your behavior, actions and the progress you have made and will make.

2. Educate her about the fact that most couples get back together and give it one more chance if real changes are made

[image: Help her understand that it's normal for couples to get back together]

Men and women usually get into relationships without knowing how to actually make a relationship last for life.

For example: Some people believe that for a relationship to last, a couple should always be happy, agree on everything and never argue with each other or make mistakes.

They will believe that if a serious mistake is made, the other person can get very angry and treat them badly or walk away from the relationship completely.

Yet, approach a relationship that way isn't how to make it last for life.

Successful couples who stay together for life, understand that no-one is perfect and that arguments, disagreements and mistakes will happen, but that isn't a reason to get very angry or break up and walk away.

As long as a man and a woman love and forgive each other patiently, and as long as the person who makes the mistakes puts in the effort to learn from their mistakes and is becoming a better person as a result, the relationship will last for life.

By sticking with each other when times get tough, the love, respect and attraction between them will also grow and deepen over time.

Of course, patience and forgiveness has its limits and if a woman realizes that her guy keeps making the same mistakes over and over again without even trying to change and improve himself, she will usually get sick of it and then break up with him.

So, if youâre saying, âMy girlfriend is worried about what people will say if she gets back with me,â then itâs likely that you kept making the same mistakes over and over and over again, to the point where people might have started saying to her, âWhy are you letting him treat you like that? Are you a sucker for punishment? Youâve given him plenty of chances to change but a leopard doesnât change its spots. Heâs not going to change. You need to walk away.â

That might have been true about you before, but not now.

You are a better man now.

You donât have to keep making the same old mistakes over and over again, because you are capable of learning from your mistakes and doing things right from now on.

Yet, donât make the mistake of thinking that if you say to your girlfriend, âLook, I know I stuffed up, but everyone makes mistakes. I can learn from my mistakes. You can tell people that Iâm going to change when we get back together again, so thereâs no reason why you shouldnât get back with me again. Everything will be okay,â sheâll come running back to you.

Saying that youâve made a mistake and that youâre going to change usually isnât enough for most women to want to give the relationship another chance.

To convince her, youâve got to show her that youâve already started to learn from your mistakes and that you really can make her feel differently now.

When she interacts with you and sees that your thinking and behavior is at a completely different level from the one you were at when she broke up with you, she will start to feel respect for you again.

When that happens, she also feels attracted to you and is then a lot more willing to re-connect with the love she felt for you before.

3. Tell her that what her heart wants isn't for anyone else to decide but her

[image: Get her to follow her heart]

You need to explain to your girlfriend that her feelings are for her alone to decide on, without anyone else (including you) telling her how she must feel.

Her heart knows what it wants and no one else has the right to tell her to listen to them instead of her heart.

For example: You might say to her, âWeâve definitely been through a lot together. We were in love and are now broken up, which means that we've experienced a lot of different emotions. Some of the feelings we experienced were amazing and others were painful. Yet, even though I made some mistakes in the past and turned you off, that isnât the guy that I am now. If I kept being the same guy (e.g. being insecure and needy, or jealous and controlling, taking you for granted), of course you would have a hard time explaining to yourself and to other people why you would want to get back with me. Yet, Iâm not that guy anymore. I donât expect you to believe me just because Iâm *saying it, I expect you to believe your own eyes and heart. Your heart knows what you want, even if you are entirely sure if you should give me another chance.*â□□

Of course, saying something like that to her isn't going to automatically make her jump in your arms and say, *â□□Thatâ□□s awesome! I wasnâ□□t sure before but now that you put it like that, letâ□□s get back together again!*â□□

However, it does makes her stop and question herself and she then begins to wonder, *â□□Am I resisting getting back together again because of what happened between us in the past, or because I donâ□□t want people to think I am being naïve? Worrying what others think isn't a good enough reason to stop myself from being happy with my ex if heâ□□s really changed. I should do what I want, not what they want me to do.*â□□

She then feels free to forgive you and give you another chance for her own reasons.

She stops looking at you in a negative way and starts to focus more on who you are right now.

She then stops worrying about what people might say if she got back with you and starts to reconnect with the love in her heart.

Getting Her's Friends and Family to Forgive You

Sometimes, a guy will say whatever he can to convince his girlfriend to give him another chance.

For example: He might say, *â□□I love you. What difference does it make what other people say about us. Itâ□□s you and me that counts.*â□□

Although from his point of view he is right, the fact is that when a woman has a strong support system that has stepped in, taken care of her and helped her deal with the pain of the breakup, she won't want to feel as though she's letting them all down.

So, although a woman does wants to be with a guy because she loves him and because it feels good to be in a relationship with him, she also wants to be able to respect him, look up to him and be able to say to her family and friends, *â□□This is my man. Iâ□□m proud to call myself his girlfriend,*â□□ rather than feel like she has to sneak around and hide her relationship from them.

If a guy hasn't changed much, sheâ□□s naturally going to feel reluctant to get back with him again because her friends and family will be against her decision.

If he doesn't apologize in person to the people who he has wronged (e.g. her parents, her close friends) and tell them that he made some immature mistakes, but that we all live and learn in life, they are still going to think of him being the guy that they once lost faith in.

So, donâ□□t expect your girlfriend to disregard the other people she cares about just to be with you. You can tell her to listen to her heart, but don't tell her not to care about what people who she cares about think.

Instead be emotionally mature enough to face them yourself, apologize and take responsibility for your past actions.

Not only will her friends and family be able to see that you really have changed, but it will also make your girlfriend feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you as a man as well.

When you trigger her feelings of respect and attraction again, even if she tries to fight it, she wonâ□□t be able to stop herself from re-connecting with the love in her heart.

From there, itâs up to you to keep building on her feelings for you, until she says, âWho cares what people will say! I love you and thatâs all that matters,â and wants to be back with you again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

The Truth About How to Win Your Ex Girlfriend Back From Another Guy

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When it comes to process getting you ex back when she's already dating another guy, you will probably hear many different opinions about what you should do.

For example: Some people might say,

- If your ex girlfriend is dating another guy, it's absolutely impossible to get her back. Just forget about it and move on.
- Of course you can get her back. Nothing is impossible when it comes to love and relationships.
- Just give her space and if she comes back, it's meant to be.
- People can't get back together after a break up, especially if one of them has already moved on.
- People can get back together after a break up, even if one of them has already moved on.

As you can see, people have opinions, but that doesn't mean they know what they're talking about.

From my years of experience helped men to get women back, I can tell you with absolute confidence that you can win her back.

I know that because I've already helped 100s of guys to get a woman back after she had already hooked up with or fell in love with a new guy.

Watch this video for an intro on how it works!

Getting her back is possible, so make sure that you remain confident and don't give up just because another guy is in the picture.

The Truth About Winning Her Back

[image: Winning an ex back from another guy]

Here's what you need to know about how to win your ex girlfriend back from another guy!

1. She might be open to leaving him for you right away, but it usually takes a couple of weeks to complete the ex back process in cases like this.

If a woman can't deal with the pain of a break up, she might hook up with a guy that she's not really that attracted to (e.g. a really nice guy who treats her like a princess) in order to make herself feel a little bit better.

She might say to herself, "Well, my new guy isn't so bad. At least he is really sweet and he treats me well. This way, I have someone to go out with and I don't have to be alone. Even if things don't work out between us, it won't be that big of a deal to me anyway, because he's not the guy I see myself with for life. He's good enough for now because he's keeping my mind off my ex."

In some of these cases (e.g. if a woman is still in love with her ex and is only dating a new guy to make him jealous), all it usually takes is one phone call and one meet up and she then jumps back into a relationship with him and leave the new guy (the rebound) behind.

However, in cases where a woman who doesn't have any feelings for her ex anymore (e.g. because he became really insecure during the relationship and turned her off during the break up process), it will usually take a week or two before she opens up to the idea of being back in a relationship with him.

Watch this video to understand how he can change her mind!

It is possible to make your ex girlfriend see you as being a better option than the new guy, even though that might seem difficult or impossible to you right now.

After all, she has probably been saying things to you like, "Leave me alone. I have a new boyfriend now" or, "I'm much happier with him than I was with you."

Yet, her feelings for him are not set in stone. They can change.

You can make her feelings for him change and cause her to realize that she should be with you instead.

If you want to make her feel that way so you can win her back, the main thing that you need to focus on from now on is using every chance you have to interact with her (even if it's only via text or social media) to trigger her feelings of desire by making her smile, laugh and enjoy the idea of interacting with you again.

Then, get her to meet up with you in person, re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction and get her back into a relationship with you.

Don't worry about the new guy. He is with your girlfriend. Get her back and he will then have to find himself another woman.

2. You need to give her the attraction experience she wanted with you, but never told you about.

In most cases, when a woman breaks up with a guy, her very next boyfriend is going to be someone who is pretty much the opposite of her ex and who is giving her the attraction experience that really she wants.

For example: If a woman's ex was insecure, needy and self-doubting in the relationship with her, her new guy will be confident and self-assured.

He might not be perfect in every way, but she will be happy to finally get to be with a guy who is confident and doesn't need her constant reassurance and encouragement to feel good about himself.

Another example is if a woman's ex was too nice and allowed her walk all over him and treat him like crap. In cases like that, her new guy will usually be a lot more emotionally dominant than her.

Another example is if her ex lacked drive and ambition in his life. Her new guy will be a go-getter who has a purpose and is going places.

So, if your ex girlfriend has a new man in her life, it's very likely that she's attracted to him because he's making her feel attracted in the ways that you were not.

He's giving her a part of the attraction experience that was lacking with you.

Yet, that doesn't mean the new guy is perfect.

It simply means he's not making the exact same mistakes you made in the relationship with her.

He would still be making mistakes though.

Most guys aren't perfect when it comes to dating, attraction and relationships, so over time, she will begin to notice that he is behaving in ways that are unattractive to her.

For example: He might be more confident than you were, but he might then fall into the habit of taking her for granted and not caring about her feelings.

When she realizes that her new guy isn't what she thought he was, she will likely dump him.

This is why you need to be proactive and make sure that you are interacting with your ex, so she can experience the new and improved version of you.

She will then begin comparing you to her new guy and may think, "Why do I feel so confused all of a sudden? I thought my new guy had the qualities I was looking for in a man, so why do I miss my ex. My ex has really changed. He's no longer the same guy that I broke up with. Maybe I should give him a chance. Maybe I was wrong to end it with him. Maybe I was just being selfish and didn't realize that I had a great man. All he needed was a bit of patience from me and he would have changed. He has changed now and I don't know why, but I am attracted to him again."

3. If she seems happy with the new guy, it doesn't mean that they will last.

Most relationships start out happy, but end within 1-2 months.

Think about it!

How many of the women that you've been with have you stayed with for life? None.

The same goes for women.

They have many relationships and most of them don't last, because most guys don't really know how to keep a relationship together for life.

So, either he will dump her or she will dump him.

Of course, if your ex girlfriend is sincerely happy with her new guy and is definitely planning on settling down with him, the only other option you have is to get her to hook up with you one last time so you can disrupt the relationship between them, before it's too late.

Just get her to meet up with you, make her feel attracted to you again and hook up with her.

If you don't know how to make that happen, watch Get Your Ex Back Super System

4. Most guys who are good with women (i.e. they can attract and pick up women by choice rather than luck) don't settle down with women easily, so he will likely dump her if she isn't what he really wants.

When a guy knows that he can have pretty much any woman he wants, he's not going to settle down very quickly.

I know this personally because I hooked up with more than 250 women before I accepted my girlfriend's marriage proposal.

Here's what happened!

So, when a guy is good with women, he won't just settle down with any woman he hooks up with.

In many cases, a guy who is good with women will hook up with a new woman every week or two, so it's obviously impossible for him to commit to them all.

Instead, a guy like that is just going to enjoy having sex and hanging out with her and then, when the novelty of the relationship wears off and he becomes bored, or meets another woman that catches his attention, he will just break up with her and move on.

However, regardless of whether your ex girlfriend's new guy is good with women and is only with her for now, or he's the type of guy who wants to be with her for life, your main focus needs to be on fully understanding what caused your ex to break up with you in the first place and fixing those things about yourself.

Then when you interact with her again (e.g. on the phone or in person) she will see that you've changed the things about yourself that she felt turned off by.

She will then start to feel respect and attraction for you again and when that happens, she will be more willing to leave her new guy for you, or at least kiss you and have sex with you again to see how she feels.

5. He is not better than you.

If you think her new man is better than you, you are already unattractive to your ex, because women are turned off when a guy feels inferior to other guys in terms of attractiveness.

Knowing that you are better than him is not about telling her that you're better than him, but letting her sense that you are so confident that you don't even see him as being competition.

Don't worry; I understand that some guys don't have the confidence to think of themselves in that way.

Yet, you can build that confidence in a matter of days if you start thinking in the right way.

You've got to realize that you are a great man in your own right, regardless of what her new guy is like.

Yes, you made some mistakes, but that is who you were before, not now.

When you accept and believe that you are more than good enough to be her man, the idea of her having a new boyfriend won't bother you anymore.

You will realize that you can easily win your ex girlfriend back from another guy based on who you are as a man (e.g. confident, emotionally strong, ambitious, charismatic), rather than on whether you're good looking enough or rich enough, or any other superficial reasons.

Don't sit around thinking about him being better than you.

That is not going to help you win her back.

You've got to be confident and know that you are better than him, regardless of how well she speaks of him.

4 Mistakes to Avoid Making if You Want to Win Her Back

Getting an ex back is actually a lot easier than some guys might think.

However, what causes a lot to guys to say, "I could never win my ex back from her new guy. I've tried everything she just doesn't want me," is trying to get her back and failing after making a whole bunch of rookie mistakes.

For exampleâ€¦!

1. Being her platonic friend who doesn't flirt with her or make her feel attracted.

Sometimes, a guy might say to himself, â€œI really want to win my ex girlfriend back, but sheâ€™s with another guy. If I stay friends with her and make sure that Iâ€™m there for her when sheâ€™s having a fight with her new boyfriend, or is having a bad day, she will eventually see that Iâ€™m the one she can depend on and she will realize that she still loves me and she will dump him for me. I will show her that Iâ€™m a much more caring man than he could ever be and she will then realize that no guy will treat her as well as I do.â€

He might then hang around her all the time being a nice, helpful, reliable friend.

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that it's not what is going to cause a woman to suddenly say, â€œWhat have I done? Why am I with another guy? My ex is just so sweet and dependable all this time, even though I've been enjoying a new relationship. Iâ€™m going to dump my new boyfriend now to get back together with my ex, because I can see now that no one can love me as much as he does.â€

It would be nice if women worked that way, but they don't.

Women don't reward niceness with love, sex and devotion.

Women only appreciate niceness from men that they respect and feel sexually attracted to, not men who are sucking up to them with the nice guy act.

Rather than rushing back to her ex, a woman will usually just enjoy having a shoulder to cry on when sheâ€™s feeling down or having a bad day, but will continue having fun, kissing and having sex with her new guy.

So, donâ€™t do that to yourself.

You deserve to have her back in your arms. You don't need to be the nice friend in the background.

Be her friend yes, but not a platonic friend.

Watch this to understand the right way to be her friendâ€¦!

If you are going to be her "friend," you need to actively make her feel respect and sexual attraction for you again by using every interaction you have with her to make her smile, laugh and feel good to be around you.

Donâ€™t pretend that you donâ€™t find her sexually attractive anymore, or that youâ€™re not interested in getting her back.

If you only focus on making her feel neutral, friendly feelings for you (e.g. because you donâ€™t want to scare her off, or because you want to show her how much you care about her as a person), she probably wonâ€™t see any reason to break up with her new guy to get back with you.

Always remember: A romantic relationship between a man and a woman has to have a basis of sexual attraction and respect.

If that isn't there, it's just a friendship and that is not a romantic relationship.

So, make sure that you flirt with her and make her feel attracted.

Thereâ€™s nothing wrong with flirting with her.

In fact, thereâ€™s everything right with it.

Youâ€™re simply being a confident, emotionally masculine man who is doing what is required to re-spark a womanâ€™s respect, attraction and love for you.

That’s a good thing.

2. Saying bad things about the new guy.

Itâ€™s only natural that when a guy sees his ex girlfriend in the arms of another guy, he will feel a bit rejected, annoyed, jealous, upset and even angry.

He may think, â€˜I donâ€™t see what she sees in him. He looks like a loser. I thought she had better taste than that,â€™ or â€˜I canâ€™t imagine how she would go from being with me, who treated her like a princess by always taking her to the most expensive restaurants in town and buying her all the things she always wanted, to being with that douchebag. Heâ€™s always dressed in denims and t-shirts. He looks cheap.â€™

Yet, hereâ€™s the thingâ€¦

If you say something like that to your ex, rather than make her say, â€˜You knowâ€¦ youâ€™re right. My new guy is a loser! Iâ€™m going to dump him now so that I can be with you,â€™ she will likely just assume that youâ€™re being emotionally immature and behaving that wayÂ because you canâ€™t have her anymore.

Unfortunately, emotional immaturity is not a turn on for most women. Confidence and emotional maturity is what turns a woman on.

So, even if her new guy isnâ€™t veryÂ confident or mature or isn’t as cool as you are, don’t start bad mouthing him to her. If you do, he will suddenly seem the better man compared to you because you will appear jealous and he will seem like the “winner” in the situation.

What should you do instead?

Donâ€™t look at him as competition.

Instead, focus on re-sparking your ex girlfriendâ€™s feelings of respect and attraction by behaving in some of the ways that are attractive to women (e.g. confident, charismatic, emotionally strong and mature).

Then, she will be the one making the comparisons and thinking of you as being better than him, rather than looking at you as being the sore loser.

3. Thinking that telling her how much she means to you will change how she feels.

It can be very painful for a guy to see his ex girlfriend happy with another guy.

Yet, him telling her things like, â€˜I still love you so much. You mean the world to me. I canâ€™t imagine my life without you in it. I know youâ€™re with him now, but that doesnâ€™t change how I feel. I will be here for you no matter how long it takes for you to realize that no one can love you like I do,â€™ wonâ€™t make much difference to her if she doesnâ€™t feel respect and attraction for him.

Instead she will likely think, â€˜Yeah right! Now heâ€™s telling me he cares, but what about all the times when we were together and he made me feel like crap? Well, good for him if he still loves me. I have a new guy and I donâ€™t care that he cares.â€™

In most cases, a woman doesnâ€™t care how much she means to her ex, if she doesnâ€™t have feelings for him anymore.

For her to care about how much he cares about her, the feelings have to be mutual or at least fairly even.

So, if you want to win your ex girlfriend back, don't waste time telling her how much you care for her, because if she's not feeling respect and attraction for you right now, it's just not going to matter to her.

You need to actively trigger her feelings for you first, before you tell her that you care, otherwise it won't make a difference to her and it won't make her want to leave her new relationship for you.

4. Not doing enough to make yourself become emotionally independent of her.

There's no doubt that you really want to win your ex back, otherwise you wouldn't be trying to convince her to get back together even though she has a new guy, right?

It's totally fine, normal and natural for you to want her back|even though some people might tell you that it's "wrong."

Watch this video to see what I mean|

So, don't worry that others might not understand how you feel about her.

You want her back and it's totally normal and natural.

However, sitting around and needing her back so you can feel happy or confident again isn't a good idea.

What you need to do is get to the point where you want her back, but don't need her back.

Needing her back means that you are feeling lost and can't live a normal, healthy life without her.

On the other hand, wanting her back implies that you're getting on with your life, doing all the things that make you a better, more fulfilled and interesting man, but it would also be nice to have her back.

If she gets the sense that you want her back, but don't need her back to feel better about yourself, she will feel some respect and attraction for you because of it, which will make it even easier to win her back from the new guy.

You Can Do it

[image: Get your ex back - reunited couples]

No matter how impossible it might seem to you right now, winning your ex girlfriend back from another guy is actually a lot easier than you might think.

Remember: When you focus on saying and doing the types of things that trigger a woman's feelings of respect and attraction, her guard naturally comes down.

All of that is within your control.

So, are you going to give up on her or get her back?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Talking to Your Ex On the Phone

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When talking to your ex on the phone, you need to:

1. Use Humor to Bring Down Her Guard

Just because you and your woman have broken up, it doesn't mean you now have to be serious when talking to her.

In fact, if you are too serious, emotional or "deep and meaningful" when your ex isn't feeling respect and attraction for you, her guard will remain up because she will feel as though you're putting on an act and trying really hard not to say anything "wrong" to avoid screwing up.

On the other hand, making your ex laugh, smile and feel happy when you're talking to her on the phone is the quickest way to make her drop her guard and open herself up to the idea of getting back together again.

A mistake that a lot of guys make is feeling unwelcome to flirt or joke with their ex when talking to her on the phone.

For example: A guy might think, â€œShe's so closed off and cold towards me when we're talking on the phone. If I try to flirt with her, or make a joke, she might close up even more and say that she never wants to talk to me again. I don't want to lose my chance with her by stepping out of line. So I will just keep things plain and unattractive between us and hopefully she will eventually open up.â€

Yet, here's the thing!

Making her open up to you will be much easier and will happen a lot faster, if she's feeling good and feeling attracted (women are attracted to guys who can make them laugh, especially when they are being cold and bitchy) every time she interacts with you.

So, don't be afraid to joke around with her.

For example: Imagine that you've just called your ex on the phone and she says something like, â€œWhy do you keep calling me? Just leave me alone.â€

The serious, polite answer that won't create any attraction between her and you would be, â€œSorry, but I really care about you and I want us to work things out between us.â€

Nothing about that response is going to allow her to experience the new you.

Instead, she's likely just going to keep her guard up and say something like, â€œIt's over. Just accept it. Leave me alone.â€

However, if you instead use humor to deflect the seriousness of her comments, it allows her to relax and be more open to talking to you.

So, if your ex says, â€œWhy do you keep calling me? Just leave me alone,â€ you can respond by joking with her and saying something along the lines of, , “I'm not going to stop calling until I get the pepperoni pizza I ordered. This is Pizza Hut, right?” or, â€œI'm not going to stop calling you until you deliver my Chicken Chow Mien and fried wontons. This is the Chinese Gourmet Food

Express, isn't it?

At this point, she will probably be laughing and feeling a little self-conscious about being so cold towards you.

You can then say, No, cancel the pizza. Anyway, I thought I'd give you a call to say hi as a friend. How have you been girl?

She will most likely laugh at that as well. You could also end that sentence by referring to her as your ex girlfriend, No, cancel the pizza. Anyway, I thought I'd give you a call to say hi as a friend. How have you been ex girlfriend? if you and her are cool with joking around with each other like that.

After you bring her guard down with a bit of humor, just have a chat with her and add in some more humor as you and her keep talking, to ensure that she remains relaxed and open while talking to you. By talking to her in this way, she will be able to see that you're no longer thinking, behaving or interacting with her in the same ways you used to before (e.g. insecure, desperate to impress her and not lose her) and she won't be able to stop herself from feeling some respect and attraction for you again.

2. Let Her Sense That You Really Have Changed

[image: Talking to your ex on the phone]

If you call your ex on the phone and end up talking to her and interacting with her in the same old ways (e.g. insecure, giving her too much power, trying to explain your "feelings" to her), she's just not going to be very interested in getting back together with you.

If you want to get her respect back, you need let her sense (via your actions, behavior and the way you respond to her) that you really have changed and are not the same guy that she broke up with.

For example: A guy might have been insecure and timid in his relationship with his ex.

He might then have reacted by allowing her to push him around and always get her own way.

To convince her that he's changed, he now has to react completely differently when she tries to dominate him emotionally.

For instance, if she tries to put him off when he calls her by being cold, bitchy and uncommunicative, rather than react by getting upset and giving up hope of ever getting her back, he needs to remain calm and confidently stand up to her.

So, if she says something like, I don't want to talk to you, he needs to just laugh and say in a joking way, That's okay. You did all the talking when we were together, so how about I take over and talk for a bit just to give you a break? Let me tell you about this great new course I've enrolled in or, "Let me tell you about the book I read last week. I'll explain it from cover to cover" and then have a laugh with her about it, without explaining the book (obviously!)

[image: Talking to your ex girlfriend on the phone]

He can then say, "Only kidding anyway, so I've been working hard lately. How about you? How has your day been so far?" to get the conversation moving alone.

By standing up to her, heâs showing her that heâs no longer the emotionally weak guy that she remembers.

Heâs emotionally strong now and he doesn't allow her to push him around or make him do whatever she wants.

This triggers her feelings of respect and attraction and she begins to think things like, âWhy do I feel different now? Why is he so confident? I wish he were like this before. I wasn't expecting him to improve and change so quickly. He used to let me walk all over him. I always felt so dominant over him. He is so much more confident and sure of himself nowâand I like it. Heâs emotionally strong and masculine now. Why do I feel like I want to see him all of a sudden?â

Essentially, if every time youâre talking to your ex on the phone, you respond in a confident, mature way, she will see that youâre no longer the same guy she broke up with.

When that happens, she wonât be able to stay closed off towards you for long, no matter how hard she tries.

3. Get Her to Feel a Renewed Sense of Respect and Attraction For the New You

Sometimes, a guy will call his ex and focus his attention on telling her how he feels, in the hope that she realizes how important she is to him and then thinks, “Hmm, he really does love me. It must mean that we are meant for each other. Okay, I will get back with him.”

Yet, that's not how it works.

Your ex will want to get back with you when she feels a renewed sense of respect and sexual attraction for you.

It's not about telling her all about how you “feel.”

She doesn't care much (or at all) about your feelings right now. She wants to have feelings for you.

Of course, most guys don't realize that at the time, so they unload their feelings onto their ex and hope that it makes all the difference.

For example: A guy might say to his ex woman, âI want you to know that even though weâre broken up, youâre still the only one for me. I understand that I stuffed up and thatâs why weâre not together anymore, but I feel that if we can get back together again, things will be different. Iâll never hurt you againâI can promise you that. You mean the world to me and being without you has been the hardest thing Iâve ever had to deal with in my life. Please give me a chance to show you that Iâve changed. I will never love another woman the way I love you. You are the only one for me. All I care about is you. You mean the absolute world to me. What you and I had was so special and I don't want to lose that. I really love you and care about you. Please believe me.â

Yet, hereâs the thingâ!

Even though a woman might feel slightly flattered to hear that her ex feels so much for her and is unable to move on without her, if she doesnât have feelings for him, itâs not going to make her suddenly think, âWell okay thenâ! I know I donât feel respect and attraction for him anymore, but since he loves me so much, I guess I should give him another chance.â

Unfortunately, it doesn't work that way.

For a woman to open herself up to the idea of getting back together with her ex, she needs to be able to look up to, respect and feel attracted to him first.

So, when you're talking to your ex on the phone, don't waste your time talking about your "feelings" with her, unless you've triggered her feelings for you first.

If she's currently saying things like, "Look, I know you're hurting, but I just don't have feelings for you anymore," or "I'm sorry but it's over between us. Please accept it," it's probably because she's just not feeling enough respect and attraction for you in that moment.

She doesn't care that you care so much about her and want her back.

That's about you, not her.

She will see your attempts to get her back as being self-serving and may even accuse you of only wanting her back to make yourself feel better.

However, if you get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new you first, it becomes about her wanting you back too.

She can't stop herself from letting her guard down and thinking, "Maybe we can work things out between us after all."

4. Tell Her That When You Look Back at Your Previous Behavior, You Understand Why She Broke Up With You

For example: Imagine that a guy got broken up with because he took his woman for granted.

To prove to her that he understands why she broke up with him, he might say something like, "Looking back at my behavior, I now understand why you broke up with me. I see now that I took you for granted. I just assumed that because you loved me it was okay to not put much effort into the relationship. I let you down. I put you in second place in my life and made you feel like you didn't matter much to me at all, even though you did. I know that words are not enough to get you to forgive me, but I am sorry that I hurt you. You have always mattered to me, but I just didn't show it to you in the way that you needed. I know that if our roles had been reversed, I would have hated being treated the way I treated you. However, I'm not that guy anymore. I don't expect you to believe me right away. I just want to say that I'm sorry for everything that I put you through. I still care about you and want you back, but I also accept your decision about us breaking up. I'm not asking you to take me back. Instead, I just want you to know that I fully understand why you broke up with me and if it had been the other way around, I would have probably also broken up with you too. So, maybe I can ask you now: Can you forgive me so that we can start over with a clean slate, or can you forgive me so we can at least be friends again?"

By saying that to her and being confident enough to admit his mistake, he is showing her that he has changed and is no longer the same guy who took her for granted.

When you confidently admit to your ex that you've learned from your past mistakes, you instantly become more attractive to her, even if she doesn't openly admit it.

5. Don't Try to Get Her to Commit to Getting Back Together Over a Phone Call, Unless She is Hinting at it

In some instances, when a guy sparks a woman's feelings over the phone, she might be open to getting back together with him right away.

She may then say something like, "Hey, I miss you. I thought being broken up was what I wanted but now I'm not so sure," or "I wonder what things would be like between us if we go back together?" in the hopes that he will then be courageous enough to take the lead and guide then both back into a relationship together.

Yet, that isn't the case most of the time.

Sometimes, a woman will initially be a bit resistant to giving any sign over the phone because she doesn't want to make it easy for him.

She wants to see if he has the confidence and balls to guide her back into a relationship without her having to encourage him along.

This is especially true with cases where the guy was dumped for being insecure, jealous and wasn't man enough for her.

So, in cases like that, a guy needs to keep moving the ex back process forward, regardless of the lack of positive signals she is giving him.

Go From the Phone, to Face-to-Face to Back Together

[image: Actively re-attract her and get her back]

Always remember: Talking to your ex on the phone is a great way of sparking her feelings for you again, but the key is to get her to meet up with you face-to-face.

If your ex isn't very open and is not clearly hinting that she's missing you, you just need to get her to meet up with you in person.

At the meet up, you need to continue making her smile and laugh and making her feel respect and attraction for you again.

When she interacts with you in person and experiences the new and improved you, her walls come down and getting back together again feels good to her.

It becomes about her wanting you back for her own reasons, rather than feeling like she's being pressured to get back together with you to make you feel good about yourself again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

4 Tips On How to Win Your Ex Back After Being Dumped

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to win your ex back after being dumped, here is what you should do!

1. Don't Ignore Her For More Than 7 Days

[image: Don't ignore her for more than 7 days]

In most cases, a guy can reactivate a woman's feelings for him immediately, or within a few days of trying.

So, if you want to win your ex back, don't wait around for longer than 7 days to start the ex back process with her.

Just give her a few days to a week of space to allow things to calm down between you and her and then contact her.

The best approach is to call rather than text her, but if she won't answer your phone calls, you can text to get her attention and then call and she should answer.

On the phone call, you need to actively focus on making her laugh, smile and feel happy to be interacting with you again.

Then, at the point where she's feeling good to be talking to you, get her to agree to seeing you in person to catch up.

At the catch up, you need to continue saying and doing the types of things that will make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and cause her to think things like, "I don't know if I made the right decision about dumping him. At the time, I thought it was impossible for him to change and be able to give me the type of attraction experience I really want in a relationship, but he has changed. I actually like being around him now. It feels good. I think I might have made a mistake."

When she starts feeling like that, her guard comes down.

It is then up to you to build on her initial feelings of respect and attraction for you, until she's longing to be back in your arms, kissing you and having sex with you again.

Where a lot of guys go wrong when trying to get an ex back is by thinking that if they ignore her for a long time (e.g. 30 or 60 days), she will somehow change her mind about dumping him and come running back.

For example: A guy might say to himself, "My ex was really angry with me when she dumped me, so if I try to contact her now, she will probably just hang up the phone, or tell me to get lost. Yet, if I give her a month or two apart, hopefully she will calm down and realize that she misses me and then she'll call me up and we can get back together again."

However, here's the thing!

Generally speaking, the only time a woman will contact her ex when he's ignoring her is if:

- She's still in love with him and can't bear not hearing from him.

- She can't find a replacement guy, so she tells herself, "My ex will do for now until someone better comes along."
- She's inexperienced with relationships and can't handle the pain of being broken up.
- She just wants to check if he's still missing her and if so, she will continue moving on without having to be rejected by him.

In almost all other cases, if a woman has reached the point where she has lost respect and attraction for her guy to the point where she dumps him, she's not really going to care that much if he's then ignoring her.

In fact, she'll likely be thinking, "Phew! I thought my ex was going to make a big deal about the break up and start begging and pleading and making all sorts of promises to change. Fortunately, he seems to have gotten the message that I don't want him in my life anymore and he's leaving me alone completely. Now it's time to find a new guy!" and she will just move on.

Even if a woman decides to come back after a guy has been ignoring her for a long time (by the way that happens about 20% of the time), when she realizes that he hasn't really changed (e.g. he's still insecure, needy, lacks drive and determination, is too emotionally sensitive), she simply dumps him again.

So, don't bother wasting a lot of time ignoring your ex in the hopes that it will get the relationship back together because it only works (temporarily in most cases) about 20% of the time.

The best approach is to be active and get her back by making her have feelings for you again.

7 days of space is more than enough for even the messiest of break ups.

After giving her the 7 days, just focus on using every interaction you have with her (e.g. via text, on a phone call, on social media and in person) as an opportunity make her feel respect and attraction for you again.

The more she enjoys interacting with you, the more her walls will come down and then the idea of getting back together again will feel good to her.

2. Reactivate Her Feelings During Interactions

[image: Making your ex feel attracted over the phone]

The fastest way to win your ex back after being dumped is by actively re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

If a woman has lost respect and attraction for her guy, she will usually avoid him and try to move on, rather than calling him up and telling him what he needs to do to get her back.

So, if you want to get your ex back, don't sit around hoping that she does all the work for you.

You have to be the one who takes the lead and actively triggers her feelings of respect and attraction for you during interactions.

Regardless of whether you're sending her a quick text, messaging her on social media, calling her up on the phone, or meeting her in person, you have to use every opportunity to put a smile on her face, get her giggling again and make her think, "This is fun. I actually like hearing from my ex again. I feel good with him now."

Where some guys go wrong is in thinking that the way to win an ex back, is by using every interaction as an opportunity to explain his feelings to show her how much he cares.

For example: A guy might send a woman a long series of text messages saying things like, â€œIâ€™m so sorry about what happened between us. I really love you and I canâ€™t live without you. Please forgive me. I know we can work things out. I canâ€™t bear the thought of never seeing you again. Please babyâ€¦ just give me one more chance.â€

He might also call her on the phone and say something along the lines of, â€œI miss you so much. I just canâ€™t stand it. I havenâ€™t been able to eat or sleep properly since we broke up. Please give me one more chance to prove to you how good things can be between us. You mean the world to me. I know I stuffed up, but if you will just tell me what I need to change to get another chance I will do it. Iâ€™ve never loved another woman as much as I have loved you. I will do anything to ensure that we have another chance. I donâ€™t care about other women. I just want to be with you. I know that we can make this work. I love you. Please listen to me and understand that I am being sincere.â€

Heâ€™s hoping that by pouring out his heart to her, she will change her mind and get back together with him.

Yet, hereâ€™s the thingâ€¦

If a woman has lost respect and attraction for her ex, sheâ€™s not going to care that much about his feelings.

In some cases, a woman may even think, â€œGood! Iâ€™m glad youâ€™re suffering. You put me through hell when we were together, so you deserve the pain that youâ€™re feeling now.â€

She might also reply to messages with, “I donâ€™t knowâ€¦I need more time” or, “I still care about you a lot, but I just need space right now” to make him feel as though his messages are working.

Yet, she knows very well that his desperate, pleading approach via message (or e-mail) is a huge turn off.

She knows that she will only give him another chance if he is able to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction on a phone call and in person.

Even though she wonâ€™t ever tell him, texts and messages from him have hardly any effect on her and usually turn her off because she imagines them coming from the weak, desperate version of him, rather than the cool, confident version of him that she liked initially.

So, donâ€™t waste your time trying to get her to give you another chance by explaining your feelings for her via texts, e-mails or social media messages.

Instead, make her care about you again (for real) by reactivating her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you first.

For example: You can do that byâ€¦

- Making her feel feminine and girly in your presence.
- Making her smile and laugh when sheâ€™s interacting with you.
- Showing her that youâ€™ve moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you.
- Being confident and emotionally masculine around her, even when sheâ€™s being cold and is saying things like, â€œGo away. My feelings for you are dead.â€

When she starts to feel respect and attraction for you again, she will be more open to the idea of getting back together with you again.

3. Be Persistent About Getting Her to Meet Up With You in Person, But Do So in an Easy-going Manner

[image: Meeting up with ex to reattract her]

Regardless of how often you make your ex laugh via text, e-mail or even on the phone, the relationship isn't going to move beyond that point unless you meet up with her in person, hug, kiss and possibly have sex.

So, make sure you don't waste a lot of time texting, e-mailing or phoning her without getting to the point where you arrange to meet up with her in person.

For example: Imagine you're talking to your ex on the phone right now.

Just keep things light and relaxed between you and make sure you're making her smile and laugh at times.

Then, after you've chatted for a 2-3 minutes, simply say, "How about we get a cup of coffee or a quick bite to eat sometime this week so we can say hello?"

She might say "Yes" right away, at which point you can arrange a time and place that suits you both, or she might say "No."

If she says "No" don't worry about it.

A mistake that a guy might make is to take the initial rejection too seriously and start saying things like, "Why are you being like this? All I'm asking for is a meet up over a cup of coffee! It's not like I'm asking you to marry me or something. Why can't you just be nice this once?"

Obviously, reacting in this way and getting angry or upset with her is probably not going to make her think, "Silly me! Why am I being so difficult? Clearly my ex is having a difficult time dealing with our break up. I should meet up with him and see if we can patch things up. I like the way he reacts so immaturely!"

Instead, she's likely going to be thinking, "Hmmm! and he wants to get back together again when he's behaving like a spoilt little boy? Well, that's not going to happen now. Even if I had some doubts before, after this performance I know for sure I don't want to be with a man who is as emotionally weak and immature as he is. I need a guy I can look up to and respect, not a guy who needs to be mothered and taken care of."

So, if she's saying no, or playing a little bit hard to get, don't let it bother you, but also, don't give up.

Just laugh and say in an easy-going manner, "Look, all I'm asking for is a quick meet up over a cup of coffee. I promise that I'm not going to assume that because you're agreeing to meet up with me it means we're going to get back together again. It's no big deal, it's just coffee. Ex's do that all the time. If, after we see each other, you never want to see me again, I'll respect your wishes and stop contacting you completely. Okay?"

In most instances, a woman will most-likely relax her guard and say something like, "Oh, okay. I suppose I can spare 10 minutes," or, if she's still really angry with her ex and feels like she wants him out of her life, she might say, "Sure, if you promise to leave me alone after that."

Then, just go ahead and make plans to meet her at a time that suits you both.

4. Build On Her Feelings in Person By Giving Her the Attraction Experience She Wants

[image: Bring back the love]

Initially, your ex will likely approach the meet up with some hesitation and skepticism.

She will probably be thinking, “This is just coffee. It doesn’t mean anything. I know that he was cool over the phone, but he’s probably just going to be the same guy I broke up with. I doubt that he’s changed. I need to keep my guard up and make sure that I don’t feel anything for him.”

So, to counter that, it’s up to you to build on her initial feelings of respect and attraction for you by giving her the attraction experience she really wants.

For example: If a guy is too emotionally sensitive and insecure and a woman wants a guy who is emotionally stronger and more confident, she’s not going to change her mind about the break up unless he shows her that he has become emotionally stronger and more confident.

Another example is where a guy is too nice and allows the woman to dominate him emotionally in the relationship, and she wants a man who can take the lead, allowing her to relax into thinking, feeling, behaving and taking action like a feminine woman.

To win her back, the guy needs to show her that he is now more masculine in the way he thinks, feels, behaves and takes action in life.

So, if you want to win your ex back after being dumped, focus on showing her that you’ve moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you.

When she experiences your new, attractive behavior in person, she naturally begins to feel more respect and attraction for you as a man.

She then drops her guard, and without even realizing it, she finds herself back in your arms and saying to herself, “I missed this. I’m so glad he had the courage to go through the ex back process and get me back.”

Even though you might not be feeling very confident after being dumped by her, you can change that. Confidence is like a muscle; the more you build it, the stronger it gets.

Likewise, insecurity is also like a muscle and if you feed your insecurities with self-doubt, nervousness and anxiety, you’re not going to feel very confident about getting her back.

You can become extremely confident about getting her back and you can do that within a matter of days!

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Took Her For Granted. Now I Want Her Back More Than Anything

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Men will often do this with a woman that they weren't initially attracted to, but she grew on him. She liked him way more than he liked her, but he gave her a chance after having sex with her or because he couldn't attract the kind of women that he really wanted.

She then put up with his bad treatment and when the moment was right to get revenge (e.g. he was going through a tough time in life, he wanted her more than she wanted him), she dumped him and got her revenge.

It's a pretty common story.

So, don't feel bad if you took her for granted and now want her back more than anything.

A lot of guys are going through the exact same thing as you and here is how they can get her back!|

As you will learn from the video above, you haven't done the worst thing in the world by taking her for granted.

It was a mistake and you can get her back even though you may have hurt her feelings for a while during the relationship.

Questions to Ask Yourself at This Point

[image: Questions to ask yourself at this point]

Before you begin the exciting process of getting her back, you should be completely honest with yourself about whether you will commit to her for life and never feel the need to cheat on her or leave her for another woman.

To find out if she is truly the right woman for you, answer the following questions as you're reading along:

1. Do I secretly think that I'd cheat on her later on to satisfy my need to be with women?

Sometimes, a guy will lack confidence in his ability to attract the type of women he really wants (e.g. beautiful, intelligent, down to Earth, sexy), so he settles into a relationship with a woman that he perceives as being less attractive.

Deep down, he likely knows that she's probably not the woman he wants to be with for life, but because he doesn't have the confidence to get himself a hot girlfriend, he just remains in a relationship with her.

He might then say to himself, I don't really need a beautiful woman. My girlfriend is okay. She's a nice person and she really loves me. That's good enough for me.

However, when a guy settles into a relationship with a woman he doesn't really feel attracted to, eventually his feelings will come through via his actions (e.g. he starts to take his woman for granted to the point where she breaks up with him).

When that happens, he might say, “I took her for granted and now I want her back more than anything,” because the idea of being alone and unwanted is unbearable to him.

He might then try all sorts of ways to convince his ex to take him back.

For example: He might

- Beg and plead with her to forgive him.
- Apologize to her over and over again.
- Promise her that he’ll never take her for granted again if she gives him another chance.
- Be extra nice to her in the hopes that it will make up for the way he treated her before.
- Promise to do whatever she wants.
- Offer to take her on vacations.
- Take her out on expensive dinner dates.
- Buy her gifts.
- Help her pay her rent, bills or expenses.

Although she might take advantage of his generosity to get some revenge on him, it’s not going to make her feel the way that she really wants to feel.

She’s going to assume that he’s just doing that to get another chance with her, but he is still going to break up with her again one day.

Meanwhile, despite his efforts to get her back, he may be secretly thinking, “What if I can get a woman who is hotter than her? Will I actually stay with her for life? Do I only want her back for now, but I will break up with her later? Who cares? I’ve got to get her back to stop myself from feeling this emotional pain. I need to do this.”

So, before you do anything else, stop a moment and ask yourself

If another beautiful woman came into your life today and wanted to have sex with you and be your girlfriend, would you still be saying, “I want my ex back more than anything,” or would you begin to forget about her and hook up with the new woman instead?

If your answer is, “Of course I would hook up with the hot woman, who wouldn’t?” chances are, that you don’t really want your ex back, but just miss being in a relationship.

On the other hand, if you wouldn’t want anything to do with the new woman, then your motivation is pure and you are doing the right thing by getting her back.

Another question to ask yourself is

2. Do I want her back because I can’t be bothered picking up new women, or because I believe that she is the woman I want to spend the rest of my life with?

Sometimes a guy might be saying, “I took my ex for granted and now I want her back more than anything,” but secretly he just wants her back because it feels comfortable.

For example: Some of the reasons why a guy will try to get his ex back when he doesn’t really believe she’s the one for him are:

- They share the bills, which makes it easier to survive and be able to still spend money on things that he enjoys.

- They share the chores, which makes it easier to keep the house clean.
- He doesn't have to go to the movies or restaurants alone, or as the third wheel with a friend and his girlfriend or wife.
- It's easier to stay in a relationship that's mediocre than going out and putting in the effort to attract another woman.

So, before you rush off to get your ex back, ask yourself:

Do I really love her and feel that there is a future for us, or am I just too scared/lazy to go out and find the kind of woman I really want to be with for life?

Am I really willing to put in the effort to change the things about myself that have been turning her off (i.e. taking her for granted), or am I just going to fall back into my old behavior when I get her back?

Am I willing to create a new relationship dynamic between her and myself based on mutual love and respect, or am I just settling for her because I don't believe I can do any better?

If you can honestly say that she's the one for you, then it's very important that when you interact with her from now on (e.g. via text or e-mail, on social media, on a phone call, or in person) you focus on re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

You need to show her, by the way you talk, think, behave, interact with her and react to what she's saying and doing, that you're no longer the guy who took her for granted.

You're more mature now.

You are a much better man and you really do deserve another chance with her.

When she can see that you have understood where you went wrong and have already made changes and adjustments to your behavior and the way you treat her (e.g. you're more loving, considerate and appreciative towards her), she will begin to feel some respect for again.

Yet, don't make the classic mistake that many guys make in your situation and go overboard with being extra nice, polite, generous and attentive.

Remain being the cool, confident guy that you are, but just be nicer and more considerate of her feelings.

The next question to ask yourself is:

3. Do I really think that I'd treat her well for life, or am I just trying to convince myself that I would treat her well for life to avoid the current pain of losing her?

Missing her and wanting her back more than anything can make you think that you would be an amazing boyfriend or husband to her for life.

Yet, that's based on how you feel now that it hurts so much without her in your life.

What happens when you get her back? Will you still feel as motivated to treat her well? Would you treat her well for life?

Sometimes, a guy might be holding onto the desire to be with his ex woman because:

- He's afraid that other high quality women just won't be interested in him or put up with his bad behavior for life, so he wants to keep her because he knows that she has a lot of patience.

- Now that she's no longer around, he's idealizing the relationship with his ex, even though it was often filled with fighting, arguments and unhappiness.
- He's emotionally sensitive and cannot deal with the pain of being broken up.

If a guy only wants his ex back because he's afraid of facing the pain of being without her or having to go out and find another woman, he's wasting his potential as a man.

So, don't let that happen to you.

Don't settle for a woman you don't really feel attracted to and love because you don't believe you can do better.

You can.

You can have your pick of women if you want to.

You simply need to have the confidence and self-belief to approach them, attract them and open them up to sex and love.

When you know how to spark a woman's feelings of respect and attraction, you can have your choice of women.

Watch this video to understand how it works!

So, don't settle for a relationship where you become someone that you don't like very much (e.g. selfish, a bully, lazy, bored and disinterested).

It's just not worth it.

If She's Really the One For You, Be Sure to Avoid Making These Mistakes While Getting Her Back

Let's assume that you're 100% sure that even though you took your ex for granted, you really do still love her, know she's the one for you and want her back more than anything.

Cool.

The good news is that it's a lot easier to get her back than you may think.

Yet, there are some mistakes you should avoid making if you want to be successful.

For example:

- Doing so much to show her you care that you end up seeming desperate, which then turns her off.

Naturally, when a guy loses his woman because he took her for granted, he may feel upset and even angry at himself for letting it get to that point.

He might think to himself, "How could you do that to her? You had a beautiful, loving woman and you just went and stuffed everything up! You're such an idiot. How could you treat her the way you did? What got into you man? She deserved better than that and you'll deserve what you get if she decides that she never wants to forgive you or see you again. You screwed up big time. If you want her back, you'd damn well better show her just how much you care for her. Whatever it takes, it's up to you to show her that you care and that you will never do anything to hurt her"

ever again.â€

He might then decide that the best way to show her that he cares, is he starts to do things for her that he hopes will convince her.

As mentioned earlier in the article, he might do things likeâ€

- Buy her thoughtful gifts, like a piece of jewelry that she always wanted.
- Run errands for her to make her life easier.
- Pay some of her bills or rent.
- Do her grocery shopping for her.
- Help her out with studies or chores around her house.
- Spend all his time calling her, visiting her and doing whatever she wants him to do.
- Writing her poems, love letters and long e-mails explaining how he feels.
- Buying her flowers and other romantic gifts to show how much he cares.

Yet, when a guy goes overboard in that way, rather than convince his ex that heâ€™s changed and that he will treat her well if she gives him another chance, it actually makes her lose even more respect and attraction for him. Why?

Essentially, women are turned off by emotional weakness in men.

They hate it when a guy can't maintain control of his emotions and ends up acting like a lost boy who needs the approval of a woman (like a mother figure) to feel good about himself again.

So, when a guy is following her around like a puppy dog and doing anything that she wants to please her, rather than make her think, *â€My ex really regrets taking me for granted. Look at how well heâ€™s treating me now. Iâ€™m sure that he wonâ€™t make that mistake again. We should get back together again,*â€ she may just think, *â€I know he took me for granted and that wasnâ€™t nice. I donâ€™t ever want to go through that again. However, I also donâ€™t want to be with a guy who isnâ€™t emotionally mature enough to face his problems head on in a confident, calm and controlled manner. He might think that heâ€™s pleasing me by showing me how much he cares, but his desperation is a turn off. I want a man I can look up to, respect and feel attracted to, not one that I feel pity for. I want a real man and my ex is clearly not that guy right now.*â€

By the wayâ€

If youâ€™ve already gone a bit overboard trying to show her how much you care (e.g. buying her gifts, taking care of her expenses, being available to her 24/7), donâ€™t worry about it.

You can fix it by simply making some changes to the way that you interact with her from now on.

For example: Focus on making her laugh, smile and feel the thrill of being around you again, rather than buying her gifts or running around after her trying to convince her that you care.

- LosingÂ touch with the cool, confident side of yourself that she was attracted to in the first place.

When a guy loses his woman because he took her for granted, he might then think that he has to become super nice, super agreeable, polite and attentive to convince her that heâ€™s changed.

He might then stop displaying the qualities that attracted her to him in the first place (e.g. the fact that he was a little bit hard to get, didnâ€™t always agree with everything she had to say) and he instead becomes a â€œYesâ€ man.

Thatâ€™s not what a woman wants.

Even though a woman doesnâ€™t want a guy who treats her badly and disregards her feelings, she definitely doesnâ€™t want to be with a guy who is an emotional wimp either.

Women are instinctively attracted to guys who are a bit of a challenge.

Women rarely admit it when asked in public, but a guy who is easy to push around and manipulate is a sexual turn off for most women.

So, if you took her for granted and now want her back more than anything, donâ€™t think you have to roll over and become her puppy dog.

Instead, what you need to do is mix in some of your original behavior that attracted her to you in the first place, as well as be kind, loving and treat her well from now on.

You then need to work on getting her to forgive and trust you again.

When you get her to truly forgive you (itâ€™s easy), it then allows her to start looking at the new you, rather than seeing you as the guy she dumped.

Her walls come down and she feels that she can trust you to be the man she wants you to be.

From there, you need to build on her feelings for you and prove to her that the guy who took her for granted is gone forever and in his place is a man she can feel safe with, trust, look up to, respect, feel attracted to and love.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Do Couples Who Break Up and Get Back Together Last?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Many people believe that getting back with an ex is a recipe for disaster, because the chances of it lasting are very low.

Why?

They don't know how to do it and when they've tried in the past, they have failed, so they assume that everyone else will fail too.

They are wrong.

So, if you're wondering, “Do couples who break up and get back together last?” the answer is “Yes!”

Yes, if the man is able to guide both himself and the woman into deeper feelings of love, respect and attraction.

What a lot of guys don't know is that getting back together again after a break up is an exciting, rewarding process for both the man and the woman.

It feels really good for both of them.

[image: Give her the attraction experience that she wants]

Love is a powerful thing and feels amazing when it gets stronger and more meaningful after a break up turns into a reconciliation and the couples falls back in love with each other.

Many of the men that I've helped to get a woman back have said things like, “We are so much happier now” and, “She said that she can't believe how good things are now. She is just so happy and in love. I can't thank you enough!”

So, don't feel like you can't get your woman back just because many people out there have no idea how to get an ex back and make the relationship even better.

You can make the relationship even better, but just make sure that you don't make these classic mistakes, otherwise the reconciliation won't last!

1. Not Changing the Attraction Experience to What She Actually Wants

[image: Not changing the attraction experience to what she actually wants]

A woman will rarely wake up one morning and think, “Hmmm...everything is so great in my relationship! My man is just wonderful, so I think I am going to break up with him now!”

That would be crazy, right?

For a woman to come to a decision to break up with her man, it will usually be after a long time of trying to get him to change and give her the kind of attraction experience she really wants.

For example: A woman might have been with a guy who was always way too nice to her.

He allowed her to push him around and believed that she would be happier if he just let her get her way all the time.

She may told him to stop being such a pushover or she might have hinted at that fact that he needed to “man up” or “grow a pair of balls,” but he just didn’t know how to do it, or he thought that being a pushover was the right thing to do.

By not being ballsy enough to stand up to her and take the lead, rather than make her happy, she then ended up feeling like the more dominant one and as a result, she didn’t feel like a real woman (i.e. feminine, girly, free to be emotional, protected by her man).

She then began to lose respect for him because he just wasn’t man enough for her.

So, to get her back and make the relationship last, the guy needs to show her that he’s no longer the pushover guy that broke up with.

He needs to become more ballsy and stop letting her dominate him with her confident personality.

It’s not about being rude, mean or selfish towards her.

Instead, he just needs to stop putting up with her crap and be a more dominant, loving man, rather than letting her disrespect him and just being a wimpy, loving man.

When he interacts with her again as a dominant, loving man, she will be able to pick up on the new, more attractive way that he now he talks, behaves and responds to her dominant personality.

She will realize that he is now capable of giving her the attraction experience that she really wants in a relationship, rather than him continuing on doing what he thinks is “the right thing to do,” but which is actually turning her off completely.

When she sees that he is being a dominant, loving man and leading the way, she can relax into feeling like a real woman around him, which will then trigger her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for him and open her up to the idea of being in a relationship with him again.

Another example is when a guy treated a woman badly (e.g. he took her for granted, broke his promises to her) and then when he realized his mistake, he became way too nice in an effort to suck up to her.

That doesn’t work because a woman doesn’t want to see her man in desperation mode and acting like his whole world depends on her approval and attention.

To get her back he needs to show her (via his actions and behavior) that he is now a balanced, normal man who treats a woman well, but also expects to be treated well in return.

She will then begin to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new man he has become.

The idea of being in a lasting relationship with him will no longer seem impossible.

He can then get her back for real.

2. Getting Her Back Via Begging and Pleading

[image: Trying to stop a break up by begging]

Sometimes, a guy just can’t handle the emotional pain of breaking up.

It hurts.

You get that horrible pain in your chest, the hot panic all across your body and you can’t eat or sleep properly.

It's not fun.

Yet, women don't want to see that a guy is panicking and is desperate without her.

A woman wants to see that he is handling the situation like a man (i.e. remaining in control of his emotions, making the necessary changes and then getting her back).

Of course, most guys don't do that and get sucked into the painful emotions that course through their body and mind after a break up.

For example: A guy may get stuck thinking things like, "This is horrible! I'm all alone now. I thought her and I would be together for life and now she's telling me it's over. I can't accept it. She is my life and without her there would be no point continuing on. Other women don't interest me. All I want is her. Everything I ever imagined for my future has her in it! I have to do something before it's too late and I lose her forever."

Feeling overwhelmed by the pain, he may then start begging and pleading with her and saying things like, "Please give me one more chance. I will do anything to make things right between us. I know we can work things out if we stick together. Please don't let go of what we have together!"

In some instances (e.g. when a woman has little or no previous experience with relationships, or she feels sorry for him), a woman might give a guy another chance for a while.

If she gives him a chance, it will only be for a few days or weeks at most because she will realize her mistake soon enough.

She will ask herself, "Is this the man I want to spend the rest of my life with? He's so emotionally weak and sensitive. Is the pity that I feel for him enough to keep a relationship together for life? Why am I wasting my time with him? He's doesn't even know how to be the strong man that I need" and will then break up with him once again.

In most cases though, when a guy starts begging and pleading, rather than make a woman change her mind about breaking up with him, it simply convinces her that she's made the right decision. Why?

A woman's attraction to a guy is based mostly on how he makes her feel by the way he talks, interacts with her, his body language, his attitude, the way he responds to the problems in his life and the way he handles himself as a man.

For example:

- Is he confident, emotionally strong and capable of taking care of her and himself in the long term, or is he insecure, self-doubting and emotionally sensitive?
- Does he know how to be a man, or does he need her to guide him and teach him how to be man enough for her?
- Can he handle the challenges in his life, or does he fall apart and crumble under the pressures of life?
- Does he have big dreams, goals and a purpose in his life outside of his relationship with her, or has he made her the center of his world and is unable to function as a man without her?

These are the types of things that draw a woman to a man and keep her attracted and interested in the long run.

So, when a guy is begging and pleading with a woman to take him back because he can't handle the pain of being broken up, she will usually think something like, “This isn’t the kind of guy I see myself being with for life. I need a man that I can look up to, respect and feel attracted to, not a boy who needs a mother figure to hold his hand when things get tough in life.”

Even though he has good intentions and really does want things to work between them, his approach is all wrong.

He’s trying to get her back by displaying traits and behaviors that actually turn women off.

So, if you’ve broken up with your ex and want to get her back into a relationship that will last, make sure that you avoid begging and pleading with her.

Of course, if you’ve already made the mistake of begging your ex to give you a second chance, don’t worry about it.

It’s not the end of the world and it’s not unfixable.

As long as you have learned from your mistake, you can hold your head high knowing that you’ve become and are currently becoming a better man because of what happened.

You’re no longer the same guy who begged and pleaded with her and you’re also not the same guy that she broke up with.

You are a better man now.

So, don’t worry about how you behaved in the past (e.g. begged and pleaded) and simply focus on making your ex feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new you whenever you interact with her (e.g. by being confident and self-assured, making her laugh, staying emotionally strong even when she is being cold and unfriendly towards you).

3. Not Having Any Mutual Goals That You’re Excited to Experience Together in the Long Term

[image: Not having mutual, long term goals that you're both excited about]

There are many reasons why a man and a woman might stay together for life, including:

- Respect and attraction that grows stronger over time.
- Love that becomes deeper and more meaningful over time.
- Compatibility.
- Companionship.
- Great sex.
- Great communication.
- Trust.

However, one very important component of a relationship that lasts is that the man and woman both have the same long term goals and views about life (e.g. getting a house, starting a family, traveling). Couples with real staying power understand the value of having shared long term interests and goals that they look forward to experiencing together.

On the other hand, if the couple doesn’t see eye to eye on the more fundamental aspects of the relationship, it will be difficult for them to connect on a deeper level and feel motivated to stay together for life.

Eventually, one or the other will feel that they are missing out on what they really want to do in life and a break up will likely happen.

For example: Imagine that a woman is thinking, “I’m so glad to be in a relationship with such a great man. I can’t wait for us to get a house together. I’ve even applied for a promotion at work so that we can get more money to apply for a mortgage. When that happens, we can get married and start a family together as soon as possible,” while at the same time the guy is thinking, “I’m having such a great time partying right now. It’s awesome going to bars and clubs and not having any responsibilities. I would hate getting stuck with a mortgage or kids. I want to go traveling and see the world. I just want to live a life of fun. I don’t want to get tied down.”

Clearly, they don’t have the same goals in life.

So, even though they might really love each other now, over the long-term, they will most-likely start fighting, arguing and drifting apart unless one of them changes their long term goals.

If neither of them change, they will end up resenting each other because either the man or the woman will feel like they are compromising on their goals and dreams to suit the other person.

That’s not how a happy, successful, long-term relationship works.

For a couple to stay together, having mutual goals that they are excited to experience together in the long term is absolutely essential.

That doesn’t mean a man and a woman should be doing everything together as a couple and have no independent hobbies or interests.

Instead, it simply means they should want the same things in the long-term and be working towards making their mutual goals a reality.

The Second Time Around is Usually Better

[image: Bring her happy, loving smile back]

Falling back in love after a break up is one of the most amazing feelings a couple can experience in life.

There’s just something about the fact that you and her have a history together, you used to feel great together, went through a bad patch, fixed things up and are now happy, more mature, more in love and more connected than ever before.

Women love that feeling and so do men.

It’s a really cool thing to experience and literally millions of couples do it every year.

People break up and get back together all the time.

You can be one of the men who successfully guides your woman back into a relationship.

You’d be surprised at how easy it is when you focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and then guiding her back into feelings of love and passion again.

When you spark her feelings for you again and then build on that, all her walls come down and she wants to be back in your arms again.

It feels right.

It feels good.

It's an amazing experience for both the man and the woman.

So, do couples who break up and get back together last?

The answer isâ€¦!

Yes, as long as the man starts by making the woman feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him and then guides her back into feelings of love and passion.

In most cases, it happens very quickly, but with really messy break ups, it can sometimes take weeks because the woman needs a little bit of time to process her new feelings and feel enough desire and motivation to give him another chance.

You might be able to get your ex back today, tomorrow or within a few days.

So, if you want her back, go ahead and do it.

Don't listen to people who tell you that it's impossible.

It's not.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Begged My Ex Girlfriend to Take Me Back. Now She is Ignoring Me

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Okay, so you begged your ex girlfriend to take you back and now she's ignoring you.

Don't worry; you can recover from that.

You've just got to let her see that you've learned from the experience of begging for another chance and understand that it would have been a real turn off for her to see you behaving like that.

[image: So what...I begged. It was a mistake that I have learned from]

For example: You can say something along the lines of, "Hey, I know I stuffed up. I got so upset over the idea of losing you that I reacted like an immature child. I get that now. I understand why my behavior would make you feel like you don't want to be around me anymore. I mean who wants to hang out with a wimpy, needy guy, right? However, something I'd like you to understand is that neither one of us is perfect. Yes, I reacted badly, but that's over now. I made a mistake, but I've learned from it and moved on from there. I'm not that guy anymore. We all learn from our mistakes and become better people as a result. I don't expect you to take my word for it and believe that I have fully changed, but if we can just try to be friends for now, I'll prove it to you via my actions. You will see for yourself that I really have changed. I'm not asking you to take me back at all. Instead, I'm just that we stay civil with each other and remain open to saying hello every now and again."

If she continues to complain about the fact that you begged and how much it turned her off, just use some humor to get her laughing and to get rid of the seriousness of the conversation, "Oh well, so I begged for another chance. At least I didn't get down on my knees and beg. I was still a respectful beggar. I was a standing beggar. That's much cooler than begging on your knees. I was a pretty damn cool beggar" and then have a laugh with her about it.

The point of using humor is to get rid of the seriousness of the situation and make her feel attracted to your ability to make her laugh when she is being so closed off to you.

[image: Use humor rather than being an emotional wuss]

Women are naturally attracted to guys who can do that, so a small spark of attraction will be created between you and her at that moment.

Even if she tells herself, "Don't let him make you laugh and feel good. He's trying to make you change your mind about him and give him another chance," she just can't stop herself from beginning to feel some respect for you again for having the balls to admit your mistake and then get her laughing and smiling when she was being cold, bitchy and closed off towards you.

By the way!

Only saying that to your ex girlfriend isn't the magic solution to convincing her to come running back into your arms.

It's simply the first step in showing her that you have realized your mistake and have already begun to change and improve as a man, which then makes it easier for her to reconnect to her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

You essentially open the door to getting back together.

Then, from that point onwards, you need to continue re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you, by displaying some of the traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. maturity, confidence, emotional strength).

You can make her feel attracted to you again based on how you talk to her, react to her and think, feel, behave and act.

Whether youâre sending her a text, e-mail, messaging her on social media, calling her on the phone, or meeting up with her in person, you have to keep showing her that youâre not longer that guy who begged her to take him back.

You are a more emotionally strong, emotionally mature and emotionally attractive man now and it would be a mistake for her to not give you another chance.

Don't tell her that; show it to her.

Where Guys Go Wrong When Their Ex Girl is Ignoring Them

Sometimes, a guy might ask himself, âOkay, so I begged my ex girlfriend to take me back and now sheâs ignoring me, so what do I do now? Should I ignore her too? Should I send her texts to remind her of the good times? Should I apologize in a letter or e-mail?â

There are so many optional ways of trying to get an ex back, but most of them don't work.

You have to do this right.

You have to make sure that you don't make these kinds of mistakes.

If you do, you have to stop making those mistakes and start doing the right things immediately.

The first mistake that a guy might make while his ex girl is ignoring him isâ|

1. Not improving his ability to attract her before he next interacts with her.

[image: Not improving his ability to attract her]

One of the main reasons why a woman breaks up with a guy is because she has lost a lot of respect and attraction for him over time and he eventually becomes too much of a turn off for her to justify remaining in a relationship with him.

For example:

- He becomes emotionally insecure in the relationship with her and starts being clingy and needy (e.g. needing her to reassure him of her love and attraction for him, telling her that he couldn't cope or live without her support).
- He allows her to dominate him with her confident personality and ends up being a wimpy, pushover guy that she just can't feel attracted to anymore.
- He crumbles when faced with challenges in his life.
- He stops making her feel feminine and girly in his presence and treats her more like a neutral friend, or a big sister.
- He stops making her feel safe and protected because he has no real purpose and direction in his life.

Here's the thingâ€¦!

Even when a guy behaves in some of these unattractive ways, most women will stick around in the relationship for a while in the hopes that he will change.

To speed up the process of change, she will begin to drop hints, make suggestions and sometimes even have arguments with him over seemingly insignificant things, as a way of letting him know that sheâ€™s not happy.

If he fails to pick up on her clues, or simply assumes that sheâ€™ll stick with him even if he doesnâ€™t change, she will start thinking, â€œI have no future with this guy. Heâ€™s stuck in a rut in his life and making the same mistakes over and over again. He doesnâ€™t even know what heâ€™s doing wrong, so he wonâ€™t be able to change. I need to get out of here and find a guy who knows how to be a man. I am sick of waiting for him to be the man that I need.â€

Then, when she decides to break up with him and he reacts by begging and pleading with her to take him back, she might think, â€œHhhhâ€¦he still doesnâ€™t get it. Heâ€™s making the same mistakes and hoping that things between us will somehow change by magic. Iâ€™ve made the right decision in breaking up with him because he clearly doesn't get it and isn't even trying to learn and become the man that I need,â€ and she then simply cuts him out of her life and just ignores him.

So, if you want your ex girlfriend to stop ignoring you and open herself up to the idea of taking you back, you have to make sure that youâ€™ve improved your ability to attract her (i.e. by improving on the things that caused her to break up with you in the first place) before you interact with her.

If you attempt to get her to take you back without first giving her what she wants from you, she will simply keep ignoring you and pushing you away.

For example: If a guy got broken up with because he was too insecure, self-doubting and needy in the relationship, he needs to show his ex girlfriend that heâ€™s now more confident and emotionally mature than before.

Another example is if a guy got broken up with because he was too timid in the relationship and allowed his ex to dominate him and push him around.

In that case, he needs to show her, via his actions, behavior and the way he responds to her, that heâ€™s now emotionally strong and can stand up for himself, regardless of how badly he wants her back.

Of course, that doesnâ€™t mean that he must be rude or overly domineering, controlling and bossy.

It simply means that he is now being emotionally strong and takes on the role of leading the way to a better relationship for him and her, rather than being so timid, hesitant and self-doubting.

2. Discussing his “feelings” with her when she has lost respect and attraction for him.

[image: Clingy boyfriend pleading with girlfriend]

When a guy makes the mistake of begging his ex girlfriend to take him back, he might think that if he explains his reasons why and tells her how much she means to him, she will forgive him.

He might then say to her, â€œI know youâ€™re mad at me for behaving the way I did, but you have to understand that I only reacted that way because I care about you so much. I just couldnâ€™t accept that what we had together is over. Please donâ€™t throw our love away. I canâ€™t stand the thought of living without you. Just give me a chance to show you that I can be the guy you want me to be.

Yet, here's the thing!

A woman doesn't care how much a guy cares for her if she has lost respect and attraction for him.

Even though he wants her to see how much he really cares for her, she's usually not going to care that much because she simply doesn't have feelings for him anymore.

It annoys her that he wants to talk about his "feelings" for her when she doesn't even have feelings for him.

She may then say things like, "You're so selfish" and, "All you care about is yourself," and that will really confuse him because from his perspective, all he cares about is her and getting her back.

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that she just isn't going to care about what he is feeling, until he can start making her feel what she wants to feel.

Nothing about his actions are showing her that he's changed anything about himself since the break up.

He's just going on and on about his feelings, but he's not triggering her feelings for him.

So, if you want your ex girlfriend to take you back, don't waste time discussing your feelings because if she's not feeling a lot of respect and attraction for you right now, it's just not going to matter to her.

What will change her mind about you is if you re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you by making her feel some respect, attraction and love again.

Then, she can't stop herself from feeling drawn to you and wanting to interact with you more and more.

3. Thinking that being extra nice to her will help.

Sometimes, a guy will think that if he's extra nice to his ex girlfriend, it will make her feel so guilty for breaking up with him that she will just have to give him another chance.

He might decide to do whatever she wants him to do, make himself available to her 24/7, help her with her housework (or homework), run errands for her and possibly even pay her bills.

Yet, here's the thing!

Even though a woman might really appreciate that her ex is being so nice and doing all those great things for her, it's not the thing that's going to make her change her mind about him. Why?

Niceness doesn't make a woman feel turned on and aroused.

Women only see niceness as charming and sexy when it's coming from a confident guy who makes her feel respect and attraction in other ways.

If a woman doesn't feel respect and attraction for her ex and he's being super nice to her, she's going to see right through it.

She will know that he's just trying to suck up to her because he has no idea how to make her feel sexually attracted, aroused and respectful towards him.

Rather than thinking, "Maybe I should just get back together with him seeing as he's being so nice, a woman will usually just enjoy being spoiled by him, while at the same time keeping herself open to hooking up with another guy who can give her what she really wants in a relationship. There's nothing wrong with being nice to her, but just make sure that you're not using that as your main strategy to get her back, because it doesn't work.

What does work?

This!

Getting an ex back is mostly about making her feel respect and sexual attraction for you.

That is what counts because those are the "feelings" that matter to her the most.

Feeling nice, supported, appreciated and so on is great, but it doesn't get her wet and horny.

If you want your ex back for real, you have to make her respect you as a man and feel sexually attracted to the way that you now think, talk, feel, behave and act.

4. Thinking that giving her time will change the situation.

[image: Most guys give a woman too much space]

There's an old saying of, "Time heals all wounds" and it usually is true.

Yet, when it comes to getting an ex back, it just isn't the best way of thinking.

Watch this to understand why giving her loads of time usually isn't the answer!

Time may heal the "wounds" that she suffered during the relationship (e.g. disappointment, loss of attraction, loss of respect), but it will rarely make her come running back to you.

When a woman is sitting home alone after a break up and thinking about her ex, she's usually feeling a lot of negative emotions such as anger, contempt or indifference.

If she doesn't hear from her ex for a long time, she will usually think something like, "After all that begging and pleading my ex hasn't even bothered to see how I'm doing. Huh? Clearly I didn't mean that much to him after all. Well, that's it then. That chapter of my life is now closed and I'm moving on."

Giving an ex too much space usually causes more problems than it solves.

For example:

- She starts going out with her single girlfriends to meet new guys.
- She starts believing that you're over her, so she moves on by having sex with new guys and falling in love to make herself feel better.
- She assumes that you not contacting her means that you don't care about her or the anymore.
- She assumes that you are still the same old immature guy who begged and pleaded and now doesn't even know how to fix the problem and get her back.
- She stops feeling the pain of the break up and realizes that she's perfectly fine without you in her life.
- She gets annoyed with you for not making an effort to contact her and then she becomes more stubborn and closed off towards you if you decide to contact her later on.

Giving a woman space can work in some situations, but in most ex back cases that I've worked on, a guy just need to actively get the woman back by calling her, meeting up with her and guiding her back into an even better relationship than before.

When She Feels Attracted to You Again, She Won't Be Able to Fully Ignore You

If your ex girlfriend is ignoring you because you begged her to take you back, it might feel like you've lost her forever and that she will never change her mind.

She can and she will.

When she feels respect and attraction for you again, she will naturally and automatically reconnect with her original feelings of love for you.

So, from now on, just use every opportunity you get to interact with her (even if to begin with it's just sending her a text message, or via social media) to re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

The best way to do that is by making her laugh, smile and feel happy to be hearing from you.

Let her see that you've moved beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you and that you can now give her the attraction experience she wants.

If she can see that you have already begun to change and that you're no longer the begging, immature guy that she remembers, her feelings for you will automatically change.

She will begin to see you in a more positive light and then ignoring you will seem petty or "wrong" to her.

She will feel the need to text you, talk to you on the phone and see you in person.

If you keep making her feel attracted, she will want to kiss you, hug you and have sex with you again.

So, don't worry about the past; now is all that matters.

You can change how she feels now.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

3 Tips to Attract Your Ex Girlfriend Via Text

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 3 things that you can do right now to attract your ex girlfriend via text!

1. Use Humor

[image: Use humor when texting your ex]

One of the easiest ways to break the ice with an ex and make her feel some attraction is to make her laugh.

When a woman is smiling and laughing, it is very difficult for her to hold on to her negative thoughts and feelings about you.

So, rather than being too serious (or even boring) when you're texting your ex girlfriend and possibly annoying her, make sure that you're making her smile and laugh.

For example: A guy might try to reconnect with his ex via text after a break up, so he might send her a text saying something like, "Hey. I just wanted to say hi and see how you're doing. Are you okay?"

However, texting an ex girlfriend like that isn't going to attract her and make her think, "Oh, it's so nice to hear from my ex again. I missed him so much! I want him soooo bad."

Instead, she's probably just going to reply by saying something like, "I'm fine, thanks," which effectively closes off the interaction with her.

She will then forget about her ex and go back to whatever she was doing before her phone buzzed to notify her of a new message.

So, if you're going to text your ex girlfriend, make sure that your text messages are mostly light and humorous.

The key is to get her smiling, laughing and thinking, "What's gotten into him? He sounds so different now. He sounds so relaxed and happy. I wonder what he's up to?"

[image: Let her see that you have changed]

She will drop her guard and when you call her on the phone to arrange a meet up, she will be more open to the idea because you've already made her feel good to be hearing from you.

What's an example of how to do that?

If she texts you and you remember that it was her birthday recently, you can text her this, "By the way happy birthday for last month. I bought you a really cool present a box of chocolates but, I ended up eating them myself."

At this point she is probably going to be smiling and possibly even laughing and will most likely reply with a thanks and an "lol."

Another example is if she texts you and asks something like, "Hey, how are you?" and you then reply with, "Really bad!"

She will then text something like, "Why? What's up?" and you can then jokingly say, "Just kidding."

I'm having a great day, lol ð□□□ How about you?"

Another example is if she texts you and says, "Hey, I just thought I'd say hi" and you can reply with, "Who's this?" as a joke.

She will then smile and laugh and reply with something like, "It's me, Rebecca!" and you can reply with, "Oh, Rebeccaâ□|my hot ex girlfriend. I remember you now. How are you?"

Making her laugh and feel a little shocked in that way will cause her to feel respect and attraction for you because you have the confidence, balls and emotional strength to text her like that even though you want her back.

[image: Use humor to make her feel good to be texting you]

She will then begin to think about you in a positive way and want to see you.

By using humor in a text to attract your ex girlfriend, youâ□□re making sure that when she sees your Caller I.D. on her phone, she is actually looking forward to hearing from you, rather than thinking, â□□Ohhhh, noâ□|.what does my ex want now? Why wonâ□□t he just go away and leave me alone?â□□

2. Keep the Text Length Brief

[image: Keep the text length brief]

Many guys send walls of text, ranting on about their feelings and apologizing over and over again. Women hate that.

Rather than making a woman think, â□□My ex must really be sorry about what happened between us for him to be so emotional about it. I must also mean that he is the one for me. He is so sure of it, so it must be true. Yeah, this is like a romantic love story. I was wrong to break up with him because I stopped feeling respect, attraction and love for him! He loves me, so that is why we need to be together. I get it now! It's all about him and his feelings. Who cares about how bad he makes me feel? I've got to be with him because he wants to be with me,â□□ she will likely be thinking, â□□He just doesn't get it."

Here's the thingâ□|

Women get bored and turned off by a guy who uses text messages as a way of communicating his "feelings" to her, because it shows that he can't gain control of his emotions and handle the situation like a man (i.e. apologize once, change, reactivate her feelings of respect, attraction and love and guide her back into a relationship).

Instead, he just wants to hide behind safe text messages and tell her all about his feelings, his regret and his promises for the future.

Unfortunately, that just doesn't cut it.

Text messages are a new thing, even though we've had them for decades now.

Humans feel most respect and attraction when they talk in person and if that can't happen, the next best thing is a phone call.

Text messages can have an impact when used to make her laugh and feel good, but when it comes to discussing the relationship, text messages are the absolute worst way of communicating.

So, if you want to attract your ex girlfriend via text, make sure that you keep your messages short and to the point.

Your ultimate goal needs to be to get her on a phone call with you as soon as possible so that you can spark her feelings of respect and attraction, get her to meet up with you and have her back in your arms where she belongs.

3. Let Her See That You Have Changed

[image: Let her see that you have changed]

It might be tempting to text your ex girlfriend and say something like, â€œI know I messed up, but I really can change. Just give me a chance to show you and I will,â€ but I highly recommend that you do not send a message like that.

Don't tell her that you will change.

Instead, just let her see that you've changed based on how you communicate about things via text, on phone calls and in person.

For example: If an ex sends her guy a text along the lines of, â€œI don't have the same feelings for you anymore,â€ a good way for him to reply would be to say something like, â€œI know. I was immature in the relationship and made a bunch of silly mistakes. I don't blame you for not feeling the same way.â€

This shows her that he is being mature, accepts her decision and isn't being a needy, emotionally sensitive guy, so she then feels some respect and attraction for him.

Another example is where a guy has been dumped for being insecure, needy or clingy and she asks, â€œAre you okay?â€ he can then say, â€œYes, I'm fine. I miss you sometimes, but I accept that we're broken up.â€

She can then feel respect for the fact that he has become emotionally stronger and is being mature.

As a result, she will automatically start feeling some attraction for him as well and will feel the desire to see him in person and assess how she feels.

That's what you want.

When you trigger your ex girlfriend's feelings of respect and attraction for the new you, her guard comes down and she starts to reconnect with her original feelings of love for you and she becomes open to meeting up with you in person.

Some Mistakes That Will Turn Her Off Rather Than Attract Her

In this current age where billions of online and phone messages are sent back and forth each day, it's only natural that a guy might want to try to get his ex back by texting her.

So, if you're looking to attract your ex girlfriend via text, here are some mistakes you should avoid making.

- Only sticking to text rather than getting on a phone call with her.

Texting an ex when she refuses to talk to you over the phone or see you in person, is a good way to break the ice and get her to open up to you a little bit.

However, sometimes a guy will get to the point where heâs just too afraid to pick up the phone and call his ex girlfriend, in case she doesn't want to talk to him or if she gets angry and blocks him completely.

He might think, âWhat if I call her up and she hangs up on me? What if she blocks my number? What if she tells me sheâs not interested in getting back together again? Maybe if I just take things slowly with her and just stick to texting for a few weeks, she will eventually relax and open up to the idea of seeing me in person again.â

He might then spend weeks or even months texting back and forth with his ex, in the hopes that one day she will say, âHey, enough with all this texting. Letâs meet up! :)â

Yet, that rarely, if ever, happens.

In most cases, a woman will just get bored of receiving endless messages from her ex boyfriend and will then stop responding to him altogether.

Alternatively, she might carry on texting, but while heâs busy thinking that itâs because sheâs interested in getting back together again, sheâs trying to move on by meeting new guys, having sex and falling in love with someone new.

So, if you want to attract your ex girlfriend back and get her back for real, make sure that donât waste a lot of time texting back and forth.

Youâve got to get her on a phone call with you as quickly as possible, so that you can re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, by making her smile, laugh and feel good to be talking to you again and then arrange a time to meet up in person.

When she meets up with you and realizes that youâre no longer at the same level you were at when she broke up with you (e.g. youâre more confident and emotionally strong now, you have a clear purpose and direction in life, youâre more ballsy and can stand up to her) she will instinctively feel attracted to you again.

- Sending texts every day to stay on her mind.

When a guy is unable to see his ex woman every day, he will often worry that she will forget about him if he doesn't stay on her mind with daily texts, e-mails or social media messages.

He may think, âIf I canât talk to her and I canât see her, what will stop her from meeting another guy and forgetting all about me? I canât let that happen! I have to do something to stay on her mind.â

He might then begin to text her every day with things like, “Hey, hope you're having a great day” or “Have fun at the concert tonight,” as a way to staying on her mind and hopefully stopping her from moving on.

Yet, hereâs the thingâ!

His ex is most likely turned off by him (e.g. because he was clingy, needy and insecure in the relationship with her), so when she gets text message after text message, day after day, how do you think she will feel?

Will she be thinking, âHow sweet of my ex to stay in touch like this. He obviously loves me so *much to hang in there, even though Iâve been so hard on him. Maybe I should just give him another chance. After all, he texts me every day. Other guys won't love me or care about me as much as he does. I just have to get back with him!*â or might she be thinking, âWhy is he bothering me with all these pointless texts? What does he want? Why doesn't he just call me and meet up with me? Why is he hiding behind texts like a girl would with a guy? He's clearly not man enough to handle our break up and get me back. Doesn't he realize that even though I've said that I don't want to talk to him on the phone, that's just the woman in me talking? We women say things like that, but it doesn't mean that it's an absolute order and the guy can't break the rule. He just doesn't get it that he can make me feel happy and attracted on a phone call in person. Oh well, I guess I'll just have to find a real man who understands women and will make me feel the way that I really want to feel in a relationship.â

- Seeking pity via text.

[image: Don't seek pity via text]

When a guy is texting his ex and she says something like, âSo, how are you?â it might be tempting for him to say something like, âBad. I just canât eat or sleep since we broke up. I haven't been able to concentrate at work. All I think about is you. Do you miss me? Can you give me another chance? My life is a mess without you.â

Secretly, he might be hoping that if she sees how terrible heâs feeling, she will take pity on him and then agree to talk to him on the phone, or see him in person.

Yet, making a woman feel pity or guilt for the emotional pain that you are going through, usually only turns her off even more. Why?

A woman doesnât like to feel like sheâs being manipulated for feeling the way that she feels (i.e. turned off, unhappy), simply because the guy canât cope without her.

In most cases, she just wonât care about what heâs going through and might even say to herself, âGood. He deserves whatâs happening to him. He didnât appreciate me when I was there, but now he wants me to feel sorry for him. Well thatâs not going to happen. I donât care anymore. He can suffer. He deserves it.â

Seeking pity just doesn't work with women.

It may work temporarily on women who have little or no experience with relationships, but most women know that if a guy is seeking her pity, he hasn't yet worked out what it means to be a man.

So, if you want to attract your ex girlfriend via text, be sure to avoid sending âpity meâ texts and instead, just focus on re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

- Discussing the relationship in detail via text.

Another common mistake that guys make is to bring up the relationship when texting an ex.

For example: A guy who was insecure in his relationship might text his ex girlfriend and say something along the lines of, âI know I stuffed up. Iâm really sorry for being so insecure and self-doubting when we were together. Itâs just that I loved you so much that I was afraid of losing you. Yet, thatâs what happened anyway. Iâm sorry. Can we just talk about this? I have a lot that I want to explain to you. Will you read it if I send it to you?â

Here's the thingâ€¦!

When a guy keeps bringing up the relationship and all his mistakes, it usually only makes his ex girlfriend re-live all the negative emotions she experienced at the time (e.g. anger, annoyance, disillusionment).

Regardless of whether you want to apologize to your ex girlfriend for what happened between you and her, or ask her to tell you what you did wrong, if you want to attract her via text, make sure that you avoid discussing the relationship in detail over text.

Instead, leave the past in the past (both the good times and the bad times) and focus on re-attracting her in a whole new different way.

Show her by the way you think, talk and behave that youâ€™ve moved beyond the level you were at when you were together and make her feel respect, attraction and love for the new you.

What Are You Waiting For? Just Pick Up the Phone and Call Her

Although it is possible to create some attraction in a text message, the most important thing is to get your ex girlfriend on a phone call, where she can hear the tone of your voice and experience your confidence and emotional strength.

When you text her, she will usually just assume youâ€™re the same guy that she broke up with and continue thinking of you in a negative way.

Since she canâ€™t see your body language or hear the tonality of your voice, she will usually just think the worst of you, rather than give you the benefit of the doubt.

So, donâ€™t waste any more time trying to attract your ex girlfriend via text message than you need to.

Text her to get her attention, but then pick up the phone and give her a call.

When she hears the maturity and confidence in your voice and gets a sense of the guy you have become since the break up, her guard will come down and she wonâ€™t be able to stop herself from feeling attracted to you once again.

What are you waiting for?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Girlfriend Said That She Doesn't Feel Attracted to Me

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Don't worry, you can make her feel attracted to you again.

First, you need to get clear on where you have been going wrong, so you know exactly what to fix to make her feel attracted.

1. Did you become insecure of emotionally sensitive?

[image: Did you become emotionally sensitive?]

It's a fact of nature that women are not attracted to emotionally weak, wimpy, insecure men.

Women are attracted to strong men who have the confidence, self-belief and emotional strength needed to make her feel protected and safe in a relationship and in life in general.

Even though women act like they are strong these days, they still feel vulnerable in this world, so they naturally feel attracted to men who are confident and emotionally strong no matter what situation they face in life.

So, when a man becomes insecure, clingy, needy and emotionally sensitive in a relationship with a woman, she instinctively starts to lose respect and attraction for him.

She might not ever think, "Hmm, I don't feel safe with him," but her instincts will kick in and she will think things like, "Something just isn't right, I don't know what it is, but I just don't feel attracted to him anymore."

If he doesn't man up and change, she begin to feel more like his mother, or big sister who has to take care of him and reassure him that everything is okay and that he will be safe, looked after and loved by her.

For example: A guy might ask his woman, "Do you still love me?" or "Do you feel attracted to me like you used to?" or "You wouldn't leave me would you? You know that I wouldn't be able to cope if you ever broke up with me, right? You are everything to me."

She then finds herself having to reassure him by saying things like, "No baby, it's okay. Of course I love you," or "Don't worry. I'll always be your girl."

Yet, the more she has to reassure him, the less respect and attraction she feels for him and the less safe she feels with him as a man.

Here's what you need to remember!

It's a man's ability to always be the emotionally stronger one in the relationship that allows a woman to relax and be the feminine woman that she wants to be.

She can just be his woman and feel safe that no matter what obstacles or challenges they face, he will always remain strong.

On the other hand, if she has to take on a dominant role and feels like she's taking care of him and protecting him from the big bad world out there, she stops feeling feminine and girly in his presence and unavoidably, she also stops feeling sexually attracted to him as well.

She feels turned off by his insecurity and emotional weakness and just can't seem to work up the desire to want to fully submit to him anymore.

She might still have sex with him, but she won't be all there and will be wishing that it was over, she was doing it with another guy or that he would change and become a more emotionally strong man.

So, if your ex has been saying things like, "I just don't feel any attraction for you anymore," to you lately, what you need to do is to actively trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

You need to interact with her and let her experience your emotional strength via the way you talk, behave, interact with her and respond to what she says.

She will then automatically begin to feel some respect and attraction for you again, even if she says that she isn't.

In cases like this, a woman will usually pretend not to be feeling anything for her ex boyfriend as a way of testing if his newfound confidence is real, or if he is still the same old insecure, emotionally sensitive guy that she dumped.

2. Did you make her feel as though she could no longer look up to you and respect you as her man?

[image: Losing her respect by begging]

If a woman can't respect her man, she will feel less and less attraction for him and when that happens, she will gradually begin to fall out of love with him as well.

In a relationship, it's the man's responsibility to maintain and grow the love, respect and attraction that his woman feels for him.

If he behaves in ways that cause her to lose respect for him, she will gradually stop feeling attracted to him and will usually just walk away from the relationship saying things like, "I don't feel attracted to you anymore."

[image: Losing her respect for you as a man]

Some of the things that might cause a woman to feel that way, include:

- He belittles her or criticizes her (e.g. is never happy with anything that she does, makes fun of her in front of other people).
- He disregards her opinion about things (e.g. always makes the decisions without ever taking her feelings into consideration).
- He lets her wear the pants in the relationship (e.g. allows her to dominate him and make all the decisions).
- He fails to keep his word to her (e.g. says that he will call her but doesn't, promises to take her out and then doesn't show up).
- He acts tough around her, but is nervous and shy in social situations around other people.
- He expects her to put up with his bad attitude just because they used to be in love and he used to be really nice to her when they were dating.

- He is way too nice to her and spends most of his time sucking up to her and trying to show her how much he cares, rather than just being a normal, good guy and making her feel respect and attraction.

Regardless of how good looking, nice or successful a man is, if a woman cannot look up to and respect him as her man, it will be very difficult for her to feel attracted to him and she will most-likely just break up with him.

So, if you want your ex girlfriend back, make sure that you start the quick ex back process by making her feel respect and attraction for you first.

If you don't do that, getting her back will be a long, drawn out and potentially impossible task.

3. Did you become jealous or controlling?

[image: Becoming jealous or controlling]

When a guy is in a relationship with a beautiful woman, it's only natural that he will be a bit protective over her.

After all, pretty much any guy would love to stick it in her and many of those guys would even have a relationship with her, so it's completely normal to be a little bit protective.

However, if a boyfriend (or husband) goes overboard and becomes jealous and controlling of his woman, she will begin to resent him and her feelings of respect and attraction will fade.

For example: A jealous, controlling guy might say to his girlfriend, "I forbid you to hang out with your friends anymore. I don't know if some other guy is going to be there and hook up with you, so I won't allow you to hang out with your friends anymore unless I am there."

He might also call her up at all hours of the day or night to check up on her and find out where she is and with whom.

He may even get into the annoying habit of going through her phone, checking her calls or text messages, or even reading her private e-mails and social media messages.

That's just way too much.

A strong and healthy relationship is built on mutual trust, not on controlling each other in an insecure, overly protective way.

If a man and a woman cannot trust each other, it will eventually stop the flow of respect, attraction and love in the relationship and they will either cheat or break up and move on.

4. Did you give up on your important goals just to spend more and more time with her?

[image: I just want to spend more time with you. Nothing else matters!]

Sometimes, a guy might think to himself, "I really love my girlfriend so much. I don't want to be away from her even for a second. I want her to know that she's the most important thing in my life, so I will stop pursuing my goals and dreams and just spend as much time as I can with" her.â

He might then give up on achieving his big goals, dreams and ambitions to spend every spare moment with her.

Yet, contrary to what many guys think, that isn't what a woman wants.

Although a woman does love and appreciate a man who is caring, loving and devoted to her, most women do not want a guy who has nothing else going on in his life besides her. Why?

A woman needs to be able to look up to, respect and feel proud of the guy she's with.

Imagine if a woman has to introduce her boyfriend to her friends and family and she says, *â*Hi mom, hi dad. This is my new boyfriend Michael. He's really great. He loves me so much that he just sits around at home spending all his time with me. He won't even let me go to the grocery store without him. He's so devoted. He doesn't have any plans for the future, but that's okay because he loves me so much. We just spend all of our time together. Screw the rest of the world â we don't need them. We will just remain stuck at this level of life forever. We don't need to strive to achieve anything because we have each other.â

Will she be feeling proud of her man, or will she be a bit embarrassed that her man is behaving like a young boy who hasn't yet realized what it means to be a man and live a great life and maintain a happy relationship for life?

She may not know that he is making a mistake and might feel as though everyone else is wrong for striving and having goals and dreams, but she will eventually realize that life just gets tougher and tougher the more you avoid stepping up and becoming a mature adult.

When she sees that her sisters, girlfriends and other women that she knows are in a relationship with a man who is making progress in life, she will begin to nag and complain about her boyfriend who spends most of his time hanging out with her, playing video games or working in a job that he doesn't really like or that doesn't offer him any chance of promotion.

If he doesn't step up to the plate and start focusing on making progress towards his big goals, dreams and ambitions, she will start to feel unsafe with him.

She will feel as though she has to take on the role of being the more grown up one and as a result, she will feel less and less feminine around him.

Regardless of how young or old a woman is, she will want a man (now or in the near future) who:

- Is striving to reach his true potential as a man (e.g. pursuing his big goals, dreams and ambitions).
- Has more to his life than just her (e.g. friends outside of the relationship, hobbies, interests).
- Will work hard on achieving his purpose in life, while at the same time giving plenty of time, love and emotional support to her.

A big part of maintaining and developing a woman's feelings of respect and attraction over time, is having a purpose in life outside of the relationship with her.

You don't have to constantly be busy and rushing around doing things, but you do have to have your own goals and dreams that you're working towards, rather than just spending all of your time with her or all of your time procrastinating and avoiding your true potential.

5. Did you take her feelings of attraction for granted?

[image: Taking her feelings of attraction for granted]

A lot of guys fall into the trap of believing that the love between a man and a woman is unconditional and will last for life, as long as it was amazing at the start of a relationship.

Yet, clearly that isn't the case.

Love, respect and attraction grows based on how a man and a woman make each other feel in the relationship together every day.

So, for a relationship to last a lifetime, it's the guy's responsibility to guide himself and his woman into deeper feelings of love, respect and attraction over time, rather than falling into the trap of taking each other for granted.

Many guys are very loving and attentive at the start of a relationship, only to start taking their woman for granted once the initial excitement wears off, or when he feels like she is properly hooked on him and doesn't want to leave.

For example: A guy might begin criticizing his girlfriend, become selfish, expect that she does whatever he wants her to do (e.g. take care of all the cooking and cleaning, only go to the places he likes, wear what he wants her to wear) now that they are in a relationship.

Essentially, a guy like that is assuming that just because his girlfriend cares for him, she'll put up with anything, forever.

Of course, there are some women who will accept being treated in that way for a while and even for years, but eventually, most women will begin to lose so respect and attraction that they will either cheat or leave.

Common Mistakes That Guys Make When Their Ex Girlfriend No Longer Feels Attracted

Some guys mistakenly think they can make an ex girlfriend feel attracted again by:

1. Showing how much they care.

[image: I really care about you. Why can't you just see that?]

If a woman has lost respect and attraction for a guy, hearing him say things like, "You are the best thing that ever happened to me. I really care about you as a person. You mean everything to me. You're the best woman I've ever met. No other woman is like you. I know I messed up, but I promise I can make it up to you. Just give me one more chance to show you how good it can really be. There's no other guy out there who can love you the way that I do. Please let's try and work things out," isn't going to suddenly make her change her mind.

Instead, she's likely just going to be thinking, "The words sound great, but the actions speak for themselves. I just don't feel anything for him anymore."

So, don't bother telling your ex girlfriend how much you still care for her because it just won't matter to her if she isn't feeling much (or any) respect and attraction for you right now. You've got to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new you first.

Once you've done that, she will then start to enjoy hearing how much you love her and care about her.

Her guard will come down and she will begin to feel like it's possible for her to respect you and be attracted to you again.

2.Â Buying better clothes.

When a woman says, *â€œI don't feel attracted to you,*â€œ a guy might make the mistake of thinking that it's all about his physical appearance.

He might then decide to change the way he looks by buying better clothes, buying new shoes and possibly even changing his hairstyle, in the hopes that his ex girlfriend will see him and say, *â€œOMG! My ex is looking so great! I love his new look. I feel so attracted to him now. I just have to get him back.*â€œ

Yet, that's not how it works.

Although a woman might appreciate a guy's effort to look good, what he's wearing (or even how big his muscles are) isn't as attractive to her as his ability to attract her emotionally.

Essentially, what matters most to a woman is how a guy makes her feel when she's with him based on how he thinks, feels, talks, behaves and acts.

For example: Does he make her feel sexy and feminine in his presence, or does she feel emotionally dominant because he's too self-doubting and insecure?

Is he emotionally mature and confident and can he make her laugh and feel good in his company even when she tests him, or does he become upset and emotional if she shows some resistance towards him?

Can she look up to him, respect him and feel proud to show him off to her friends and family as her man, or does she feel a little embarrassed to be associated with him?

These are the things that are much more attractive to women than a guy's physical appearance.

Of course, there's nothing wrong with putting in some effort to look good, but it's not as important as how you make her feel emotionally based on how you think, feel, talk, behave and act around her and in life.

So, if you want to make your ex girlfriend feel attracted to you again, focus on making her feel the way she wants to feel when she's with you (i.e. feminine, girly, free to be emotional like a woman, turned on, aroused), rather than trying to impress her with your clothes and other superficial things.

3.Â Taking her out to fun places.

Sometimes, a guy might say to himself, *â€œWell if my ex girlfriend is saying that she doesn't feel attracted to me anymore, it's probably because we stopped doing all the fun things we used to do when we first got together. In the early days we used to go clubbing, eat out at fancy restaurants, go to parties with friends and even camp out on the beach at night. So, maybe if I take her out to some of the fun places we used to love again, it will re-spark her feelings of attraction for me.*â€œ

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that even if a woman feels good about going places, those feelings are only going to be temporary.

If he doesn't do anything to regain his ex girlfriend's respect and attraction for him other than take her out to fun places, her feelings of happiness won't last for very long.

She will be analyzing how he still thinks, feels, talks, behaves and acts and she will realize that he still doesn't really understand how to make her feel real, lasting attraction.

4.Â Trying to get her to remember the good times that they had at the start.

Wouldn't it be nice if you could make your ex feel attracted again simply by bringing up all the good times you shared together in the past?

Life would be so simple and easy.

A guy could simply say to his ex girlfriend, âRemember how we couldn't keep our hands off each other when we met? I don't think we ever saw a movie from beginning to end because we were so busy kissing. What about the way we used to dance together? I don't know another woman who can move the way you do,â and she would then jump back into his arms and everything would go back to the way is used to be.

Unfortunately, that's not how things work.

When a woman has lost touch with her feelings of respect, attraction and love for a guy, being reminded how good things used to be between them will usually only highlight to her how bad things are now.

So, if you want to make your ex girlfriend feel attracted to you again and get her back, you have to actively make her have feelings for you based on who you are now.

Don't bother wasting time rehashing all the good times from the past.

How you make her feel right now and from now on is what really counts.

Attraction Can Be Created

[image: Give her the attraction experience that she wants]

What a lot of guys don't realize is that a woman's attraction can be created or sparked and brought into life based on how the guy thinks, talks, behaves, feels and acts around her.

For example: If a guy is being confident, charismatic and using humor to make her feel good, she will feel attracted to him.

He created that.

He made it happen.

Likewise, if a guy is being nervous, tense and too polite around his ex to suck up to her, she won't feel attracted to him.

He created that.

He made it happen.

You can literally create or destroy a woman's feelings of attraction for you.

So, just because your ex girlfriend said that she doesn't feel attracted to you anymore, it doesn't mean you can't change how she feels.

You can.

You made her feel attracted to you once before, so you can definitely do it again.

From now on, you have to stop saying and doing the things that turn her off and start making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new you.

When you interact with her in ways that re-spark her feelings for you, everything changes.

She starts to want you again because she is attracted to you and it feels really good to talk to you, be around you, kiss you and have sex with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

4 Ways to Make Your Ex Want You Bad

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 4 ways to make your ex want you bad...

1. Interact With Her and Make Her Feel Attracted to the New You

[image: Interact with your ex and make her feel attracted to the new you]

To make your ex want you again badly, you have to be active about it, rather than being inactive.

Essentially what this means, is that youâre actively interacting with her every chance you get (e.g. via text, on social media, over the phone, or meeting up with her in person) and making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, rather than waiting around hoping sheâll contact you and say, *âI miss you! Letâs get back together again.*â

Watch this video to see what I meanâ!

By interacting with her, making her feel attracted and then stopping, she then starts to really miss you and want you bad.

Sometimes, a guy might think, *âI want to make my ex want me bad. I want her to regret breaking up and come running back to me. Maybe the best thing to do is to ignore her for a few weeks, or even months, until she realizes how much she misses me. Then, when she's lonely and doesn't have my attention, she will realize the mistake she has made. She will also start worrying about losing me to some other woman and sheâll want to get back together again.*â

He may then spend a lot of time ignoring her, until one day he realizes that sheâs just not coming back.

When that happens, a guy might feel hurt and confused and even say, *âSheâs supposed to be calling me up and telling me how badly she wants me back. Why isnât she doing that? Why isnât she calling me? How can I make her want me as badly as I want her??*â

Here's what he doesn't realizeâ!

When a woman has lost respect and attraction for a guy, then not hearing from him for weeks or even months doesnât really matter to her, and she will likely use that time to move on.

Watch this video for more infoâ!

If you want to make your ex want you bad, the fastest way to do it is by interacting with her (rather than ignoring her) to reawaken her feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

One of the best ways to do that is by making her laugh, smile and feel happy when sheâs interacting with you.

For example: Imagine that youâre talking to your ex on the phone and she says something like, *âLook, you need to accept that itâs over between us. I just donât want you anymore.*â

If you just accept that and say something like, âI get it. Youâre mad at me right now. What do I have to do to convince you that Iâm sorry? What will it take to make you forgive me and give me another chance?â€œ she will likely just keep pushing you away and nothing will change.

Yet, if you use her negativity towards you as a way of making her smile and laugh, she will likely begin to see you in a different, more positive light.

So, when she says, â€œLook, you need to accept that itâ€™s over between us. I just donâ€™t want you anymore,â€œ you can respond by saying something like, â€œThatâ€™s great! I donâ€™t want you anymore either. Letâ€™s be anti boyfriend and girlfriend from now on. We can go around hating each other, and I will send you a poison ivy plant on Valentines Day and buy you broccoli for your birthday.â€œ

Alternatively, you can jokingly say something like, “Same here. I don’t want you anymore either. I was so sick of your cooking. I eat well now” and then laugh.

By responding in that way and being light-hearted about things, youâ€™re getting rid of the seriousness of what sheâ€™s saying.

At the same time, youâ€™re also showing her that youâ€™re an emotionally strong, confident and mature man who remains confident regardless of what sheâ€™s saying or how sheâ€™s behaving.

That is actually attractive to her.

Women can’t help but feel attracted to confidence, even if they pretend that it doesn’t make them feel attracted.

A man’s confidence makes women feel attracted just like a woman’s cleavage makes us feel attracted.

We can’t help but feel attracted and pay attention to it and the same goes for women with our confidence.

Men might pretend that they haven’t noticed a woman’s cleavage, but they do and women might pretend that they aren’t attracted to a guy’s confidence, but they are.

So, when you attract your ex by making her smile or laugh when she is being cold and bitchy towards you, she begins to wonder about the changes in you.

She drops her guard and catches herself thinking, â€œHmmmâ€¦itâ€™s actually quite fun talking with him now. Heâ€™s really changed. Why do I care about losing him all of a sudden? Why do I want him back in some way? What is happening to me?â€œ

Simple.

She’s feeling respect and attraction because he’s not being a wimp just because she has broken up with him.

He’s being confident, joking around and making her laugh.

By the wayâ€¦

Do not try to make her feel attracted to with confidence via text. Text is the weakest, least effective way to make a woman feel attractedâ€¦especially an ex.

You have to let her experience your confident attitude on a phone call or in person.

Do not try to get your ex back via text.

Almost every guy that I have ever coached to get an ex back has made the mistake of trying to text his ex back.

The woman doesn’t end up wanting him badly because of some amazing text.

Instead, she gets annoyed that he's trying to act confident, cool, mature or whatever via text.

She wants to experience that on a phone call or in person, otherwise she just doesn't believe that he is really like that now.

If you're going to text her, just do so with the aim of getting her on a phone call, so you can properly attract her.

2. Make Her Feel Feminine and Girly in Your Presence

[image: Make your ex feel feminine and girly]

Making your ex feel like a real woman (i.e. feminine, girly, free to be emotional) when she interacts with you is one of the best ways to make her want you again.

If you want to make her feel that way, make sure that there is a clear difference between how you talk, think, feel, behave and act in comparison to her.

In other words, let her talk, think, feel, behave and act like a woman and you do the complete opposite and be the man.

Women love that and it makes them want a man bad because it's so rare to find a man who doesn't become feminine or neutral around her.

2 common mistakes that guys make, which ruin the opportunity for her to feel like a real woman are:

- He only focuses on making her feel neutral, friendly feelings for him.

Sometimes, a guy might think, "If I pretend that I want to be friends with my ex, I'll have a good excuse to be around her all the time. Then when she sees that I'm the guy who is always there for her through the good times and the bad times, she'll realize how much she still loves me and then she'll want me back. Yeah, I'll just be a nice friend to her. That should work!"

Here's the thing though!

Staying friends with an ex is an excellent way of getting an ex back if you are actively re-sparking her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

If you're just being a nice, neutral friend though, she's going to go to get those feelings.

For example: A guy might make himself available to his ex 24/7, help her out with errands or homework and be her shoulder to cry on when she's having a bad day.

However, instead of using every interaction with her as an opportunity to re-spark her feelings of sexual attraction by making her feel girly, flirting with her and making her smile and laugh, he remains on his best "friend" behavior by being nice, sweet, innocent and non-flirtatious around her.

Yet, hanging out with a nice, platonic friend isn't what makes a woman feel feminine and girly or turned on and aroused.

It doesn't make her think, "My ex is amazing! He makes me feel so turned on when I'm around him. I want him so bad! I've got to have sex with him again! Wow! He's so nice, neutral and non-sexual! This is what I want!!!"

Instead, it just makes her want to hook up with a confident, masculine guy even more than ever so she can get to feel like a real woman.

- He allows her to dominate him.

If a woman feels more dominant than a guy, it becomes very difficult for her to respect him.

If she can't respect him, she also can't feel real attraction for him.

So, you always must ensure that you maintain the respect of your woman at all costs.

Yet, what often happens after a break up is that a guy feels so bad about losing her and desperately wants to get back with her, that he allows her to walk all over him.

He essentially hands over all his power to her and hopes that if he just shows her how willing he is to submit to everything she wants, she will be amazed and give him another chance.

For example: A guy might allow his ex woman to keep bringing up all of his past mistakes and saying things to him like, â€œYou stuffed up! You were such a terrible boyfriend (fianc  or husband). Remember all those times you cancelled our plans for your job or friends? What about those jealous fits you had when we went out and some guy showed me some interest or even just looked at me? You can be so childish and immature sometimes. I can't believe I stuck around with you for as long as I did. You're such a jerk!â€

Of course, it's totally fine for a woman to bring up some of the things that caused her to break up with her man, but it's not okay for him to allow her to keep bringing it up over and over again to put him down.

When a woman is able to dominate her guy in that way, she can't look up to him, respect him and feel attracted to him.

Rather than feel like a sexy, feminine, girly woman in his presence, she starts to feel like a teacher or mother who is always scolding a little boy.

The fact is, a woman doesn't want to be with a guy she can dominate, even if she seems like she enjoys doing it.

She wants to be with a guy who knows how to confidently lead the way, takes charge and allows her to relax into feeling totally feminine and girly around him.

3. Let Her See That You Want Her, But No Longer Need Her

There's a big difference between wanting to get back with your ex and needing her back.

Essentially, wanting her back means that you still love her and would like to experience the true power of love in a relationship with her again.

On the other hand, needing her implies that you're unable to cope with the emotional pain of being without her and you can't move forward with your life because you're lost, confused and lonely without her.

Here's the thing though!

Neediness is a huge turn off for most women because they don't want to have to support a guy emotionally and make him feel worthy, happy and full of self-esteem.

If a woman has to do that, she feels like his mother or big sister. Yet, she wants to feel like his girl.

So, when a guy is calling up his ex and saying things like, â€œI need you! Can't you see how lost I am without you? Please give me another chance. I can't bear the thought of living without you in my life, rather than make her think, My ex is really in pain without me. It must mean that our love is true and he is the one, she's more-likely thinking, Oh boy! What a wimp! Doesn't he realize that he's acting like a child? I don't want to get back with a guy who needs me to take care of him like I am his mother. I want a man I can look up to, respect and feel sexually attracted to. I need a man who will take care of me and make me feel like a real woman.

The more he begs, pleads or tries to convince her to think about his “feelings,” the less respect, attraction and love that she feels for him.

Eventually, the very thought of him makes her feel sick, resentful and regretful that she ever let him be with her.

So, if you want to make your ex want you bad, focus on getting to the point where you truly believe that you don't need her to be happy again.

You can't pretend that you're happy though.

You have to genuinely feel happy, content and emotionally fulfilled without her.

If you try to fake it, she will sense it via your body language, or by what you say and she will keep rejecting you.

On the other hand, if you focus on getting on with other important things in your life, going out with friends, having a good time without her and enjoying the things you've been putting off (e.g. traveling, taking up a new hobby like martial arts, hanging out with new friends), she will sense it and will feel attracted to your confidence and your ability to cope with being broken up with.

She won't be able to stop herself from looking at you with a new, more positive way, because you are now behaving like the kind of confident, forward moving man that she can look up to and respect.

By the way!

Getting on with your life doesn't mean you have to rub it in your ex's face.

For example: Sometimes, a guy will go overboard by posting endless photos of himself with other women on his social media pages and updating his status with all the things he's busy doing.

Although there's nothing wrong with posting photos of yourself with other women on social media, just make sure that if your ex asks you about it, you don't try to make her feel bad.

Just say, “Oh, they are just friends” and then talk about other things, rather than telling her that you're hooking up with lots of women and don't need her.

Note: You don't have to post up photos with you and other women to make your ex want you bad.

It is an approach that works, but so does posting up photos with you and new friends having a great time.

I know that most guys who want to get their woman back are not interested in being with other women and just want her back.

So, once again: You don't have to post up photos of you with other women, but it is an approach that works to make a woman feel sad, worried, jealous and regretful about losing you, which then makes her want you back.

Of course, many women will get angry and send a text, e-mail or make a phone call to express their anger or disappointment in their ex boyfriend or husband.

Yet, that's just her trying to control him and stop him from making her want him as badly as she does now.

So, if your ex does get mad if she sees that you're moving on, just be easy-going about it and say, "Hey, you and I are broken up. You know that I wanted to get back with you, but I've accepted your decision."

She will then want you bad and will begin texting you and wanting to see you.

4. Be Happier Than She is, But Try to Make Her Happy When You Interact With Her

Most guys lose a lot of confidence after being dumped, so it can feel difficult to be happy, confident and moving forward without her.

Yet, you need to do it if you want to make your ex want you bad.

How will being happier than your ex make her want you?

Women are naturally attracted to the type of men who have the emotional strength to be happy, confident and forward moving regardless of what life throws at them.

On the other hand, women are turned off by men who crumble when things get difficult and need a woman by their side to support them.

So, the next time that you talk to your ex, you must ensure that she senses your confidence and emotional independence.

If you can't do that, then making your ex want to get back together with you will be difficult, because she will pick up on your neediness and insecurity and feel turned off by you.

A woman doesn't want to feel like she's doing a guy favor by being with him.

She wants to feel like the guy she is with could easily have other women if he wanted to (because he's so confident and she knows that women find that attractive), but he is choosing her.

That makes her feel lucky and special because she is being chosen by a guy who could easily choose to be with other women.

[image: Making your ex want you badly]

Yet, being this doesn't mean you should try to make her feel horrible about herself now that you and her are no longer together.

Instead, let her see, hear, feel and notice that you are happy without her, but also have the emotional maturity and love to actively make her feel good about herself when she's talking to you.

If you do that, she will realize that you are a rare catch of a man who is not only confident and masculine, but is also loving and compassionate.

That's like winning the "Man Lottery" for women.

Getting her to think of you in that way will make her want you badly.

So, the question now is: What have you done so far to get yourself to a point where you are truly happy, confident and forward moving without her?

For example: Have you been doing any of these things since the break up?

- Working towards achieving your big dreams, goals and ambitions in life.
- Pursuing a new hobby of interest that you have been putting off (e.g. hiking, running, sky-diving, martial arts).
- Doing something new that will make you an even better and more successful man than you already are (e.g. taking on a promotion, going back to school to get a better qualification, learning new skills that will get you promoted soon).
- Learning new things that will enhance your life experience (e.g. how to cook).

By focusing on improving yourself and your life, not only do you become a better man and have a happier and more successful life, but you also become more attractive to your ex and to other women.

When you interact with your ex, she will see that you haven't been a lonely, sad and depressed guy who sat around crying over losing her.

As a result, she will naturally begin to feel some respect and attraction for you again.

Then, when you also make her smile, laugh and feel good when she's interacting with you, she will start asking herself, "How could I let him go? I must have been blind not to see what a catch he really is."

She will be the one who wants to be back in your arms.

She will want you bad and you will then give her and the relationship another chance.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Girlfriend is Leaving Me. What Do I Do?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

So, your girlfriend is leaving you and you don't know what to do.

Here are 5 important tips to follow that will ensure she wants you back now or within a few days!

1. Don't Start Begging

[image: Begging and pleading for forgiveness]

When a woman tells her guy, "I've had it. I'm leaving you! It's over between us," it can come as quite a shock to him.

Not knowing what else to do, he might then start begging her to give him another chance.

For example: He might say something like, "Please baby, don't do this to me! Don't go! I can change. I'll be whatever you want me to be and I'll do anything you want me to do; just tell me what you want and I promise that I will do it. I love you! If you give me one more chance, I promise you that things will be different between us. I beg you! Please stay!"

Yet, in most cases, rather than make a woman think, "Hmmm, this guy must really love me if he's willing to do anything for me," his begging and pleading actually pushes her away even more.

She then begins to add, "Emotionally weak, needy and desperate" to the list of things that are turning her off about him and her decision to leave feels like the right thing for her to do.

Most women don't want to be in a relationship with the kind of man they can't look up to and respect.

So, when a guy is begging, pleading and coming across as desperate, a woman will likely think, "I know he's acting this way because he loves me, but if he can't handle a simple break up without falling apart like this, what are the chances that he will be able to handle other, more serious issues in his life? I don't want to be with a guy who is emotionally weak and needs me to support him and hold him up when things get tough. I want a man who is confident, self-assured and emotionally strong enough to take care of me through the difficult times in life."

By the way!

If you've already tried begging your girlfriend not to leave; don't worry about it.

You can recover from a mistake like that.

Write it off as a lesson learned and focus on being an emotionally strong guy from now on whenever you interact with her.

For example: The next time you're talking to your girlfriend over the phone, or in person, you can laugh and say to her, "I guess I overreacted there a bit didn't I? Who was that blubbing, begging wimp anyway? I suppose I reacted like that because I still love you and I didn't want you to leave me. However, I now know I should have been more mature about it and I accepted your decision like a man. So, I'm sorry for begging and pleading with you like that. I accept your decision to break up, but I still love you and do wish we could get back together."

Will saying something like that to your girlfriend make her change her mind?

No, but itâs a good start because she can see that you’re being emotionally mature about it, which will make her feel respect and attraction for you.

To fully stop your girlfriend from leaving you forever, you have to focus on making her feel respect and attraction for the new you, every time you interact with her from now on.

Watch this video for some examples on how to do thatâ!

2. Don’t Ask Her to Tell You What You Need to Change

[image: Why won't my ex tell me how she really feels?]

Another common reaction that guys have when their girlfriend says, “Iâm leaving you,” is to ask her what she wants him to do to get her to change her mind.

A guy might say, “Just tell me what it is that you need me to change and Iâll do it.”

Yet, asking a woman to tell you what she wants you to change about yourself, is as good as saying to her, “I have absolutely no idea how to be the man that you need me to be. I need you to teach me how to grow up and become the kind of man you can look up to and respect. Can you do that for me babe? Can you be my teacher and guide in life on how to be a man? I couldn’t learn those lessons from my father, grandfather, brothers or cousins, so I need you, a woman, to teach me. Can you do that for me?”

Here’s the thingâ!

A woman doesn’t want to be your teacher about how to be a man in a relationship.

She wants you to figure it out on your own, make some changes to yourself, and show her (via your thinking, actions, behavior and conversation style), that you are now the kind of man that she can feel proud of, look up to, respect and feel attracted to.

So, an important question for you now is this: Do you know exactly what is causing your girlfriend to want to break up with you?

If your answer is “No,” here are some of the reasons why she might be leaving, but won’t tell you about because she doesn’t want to teach you how to get her back...

- Youâve become too insecure, needy and clingy in the relationship with her.
- Youâre not manly enough for her and she feels more like your friend or sister, rather than your girlfriend.
- Youâre too much of a pushover and you let her get away with bad behavior, so she doesn’t feel safe with you because she can see that you don’t know how to stand up for yourself in an assertive, but loving way.
- Youâve been taking her for granted (e.g. letting her do all the housework or run all the errands, putting her in second or third place in your life, breaking your promises to her).
- Youâre not reaching for your true potential in life (e.g. pursuing your big dreams and goals) and are sitting around wasting your life away (e.g. watching TV, playing video games, remaining stuck in a dead-end job).

Once you understand your girlfriendâs reasons for wanting to leave, you can begin to make some changes to yourself.

When she can see for herself that you have figured out what has been turning her off and have also taken action to improve those things in yourself, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you as a man.

She won't necessarily want you back just because of that, but it's the right move to make.

To get her back for real, you need to be able to persuade her to give you another chance, which is something that I teach in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System

If you're not ready to get her back yet, or if she is really angry and annoyed by you, I recommend that you

3. Give Her 3 to 7 Days of Space

[image: Give her 3-7 days of space]

Right now, you might be feeling panic and possibly even thinking that will never be able to get her back.

Relax.

Most guys can get a second, third and even fourth chance with their ex woman, so you can too.

Some guys are able to get their ex back immediately, but most break ups last for about 3-7 days and then get back together if the guy is able to:

- Apologize.

By being confident and mature enough to apologize to his girlfriend for his mistakes, he is showing her that he has learned from them and is taking positive steps to become an even better man than before.

As a result, he automatically re-sparks some of her feelings of respect and attraction for him and she then allows herself to drop her guard and reconsider her decision to leave him.

- Let her experience the new version of him that is more attractive.

A good way of letting her experience the new, more attractive version of you is by focusing on making her smile, laugh and feel happy every time that you interact with her.

This is very important for guys who got dumped for becoming too insecure or emotionally sensitive in the relationship or for not being manly enough.

Whichever ways you were turning her off, just make sure that you improve on those areas and, most importantly, believe that what you've done is making a difference to her feelings of attraction.

Why?

Confidence attracts women and insecurity and self-doubt turns women off.

- Remain confident as he guides her back into a relationship; especially when she is giving him mixed signals.

Sometimes, a woman will test a guy to see if he has really changed, or if he's just putting on an act just to stop her from leaving him.

To make sure that the changes are for real, she might give him mixed signals (e.g. pretend that she wants to patch things up between them one minute and then say, “Forget about it, I’ve changed my mind,” the next).

If he remains calm and continue to focus on triggering her feelings (of respect, attraction and love) for him, she won’t be able to stop herself from dropping her guard and opening herself up to fixing the relationship.

So, if you want to stop your girlfriend from leaving you, give her 3 to 7 days of space to allow things to cool down between you and her (if necessary).

Then, get in touch with her (preferably on a phone call), actively re-spark some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you and get her to agree to meet up with you in person.

At the meet up, focus on letting her experience the new you and making her feel good to be around you again.

4. Begin to Fix the Things About You That Have Been Turning Her Off

One of the quickest ways to stop your girlfriend from leaving you, is to fix the things about yourself that have caused her to lose respect and attraction for you.

For example: A guy might have gotten into the habit of taking his woman for granted.

He may have:

- Put her in second place to his friends, family, hobbies and interests
- Become selfish and expect her to do all the housework, cooking or runs all the errands, even though he isn’t giving her the attraction experience that she wants when in a relationship.
- Expected her to stick with him for life because they were so in love at the start of the relationship.
- Become rude, mean or angry and expected her to put up with it.
- Focused too much on his work or studies and expected her to just wait in the background and see him from time to time.

So, if he wants to stop her from breaking up with him, the guy has to first understand that his behavior made her feel taken for granted, unloved and unappreciated and then improve his relationship skills to the point where she believes that he’s more loving and mature now.

Another example break up scenario is where a woman wants to leave a guy because she’s sick and tired of all the fighting and arguing in the relationship.

To make her change her mind, the guy needs to show her that he’s learned from his mistakes and that he now responds to things in a more mature way.

For instance, if she does something that would ordinarily upset him and cause him to get annoyed and possibly even start shouting at her, he now just turns it into something they can both smile and laugh about together.

She then can see for herself that she’s no longer stressed out around him and they actually have fun together now, so it's worth saving the relationship.

You don't have to be perfect to convince your girlfriend to stay, but you do have to show her that you've understood her reasons for wanting to leave and are making the effort to fix those about yourself.

When you do that, she will automatically begin to feel some respect for you again and will naturally change her mind.

5. Meet Up With Her and Get Her Back

[image: Meeting up with an ex for coffee]

Regardless of how negative your girlfriend is being towards you at the moment, you need to get her to agree to meet up with you in person.

For example: If your girlfriend is refusing to meet up with you and is saying things like, "Just leave me alone. I've had enough and I really don't want to see you anymore," you can say to her, "Look, I know that right now I'm not on the top of your Favorite Person in the World list. However, all I'm asking for is a quick catch up over a cup of coffee. We're not children who have to ignore each other like this. We can catch up for a quick coffee, right? If after the meet up you don't want to see me or talk to me again, I'll respect your wishes and won't contact you again."

Then, when you meet up with her, you need to keep saying and doing the types of things that will make her see you in a new light and convince her to give you another chance (e.g. be confident, make her smile and laugh, show her that you love and appreciate her).

However, don't push her to decide there and then if you haven't fully re-sparked her feelings of respect and attraction for you first.

If she sees that you're being a confident, emotionally mature guy around her, she won't be able to stop herself from dropping her guard a little bit and allowing herself to imagine you and her being back together again.

From there, it's up to you to open her eyes to the fact that falling back in love with each other will be one of the most amazing feelings she will ever experience in her life.

When she realizes that she will be winning because you are now the man she always wanted you to be and because it's exciting to fall back in love with someone again, she will feel happy about being in a relationship with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Iâ€¢m a Rich and Successful Man, But My Ex Still Isn't Interested in Being With Me

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If youâ€¢re saying something like, â€¢Iâ€¢m a rich and successful man, but my ex still isnâ€¢t interested in being with me,â€¢ and wondering why, here is the answer...

A woman needs to be in love with you, not your money.

Money is a bonus in a relationship, but it is not an essential for love.

Some women will date and even marry a guy for his money, but most women are more attracted to how a man makes her feel when sheâ€¢s with him.

Who he is when sheâ€¢s interacting with him is what matters the most to her.

For example: Some of the questions a woman subconsciously asks herself when sheâ€¢s first thinking about hooking up with a man are:

- Do I feel good around him, or does he make me feel bored, or even turned off?
- Can I look up to him and respect him as a man, or do I look down on him a little bit?
- Do I feel like heâ€¢s man enough for me, or do I feel emotionally stronger than him?
- Does he make me feel feminine and girly in his presence, or do I feel neutral around him, or even worse, like a big sister or mother-figure to him?

These are the types of things that really matter to most to a woman in terms of being in love with her man and wanting to stay with him.

A man might be very rich and successful, but if he canâ€¢t make a woman feel the way that she wants to feel when sheâ€¢s with him, itâ€¢s unlikely that she will say, â€¢Well, okayâ€¢|heâ€¢s really boring to be around, heâ€¢s arrogant and treats me like a child sometimes/or I feel like his big sister, but heâ€¢s rich and successful, so Iâ€¢ll stick with him for life.â€¢

Thatâ€¢s not how it works in most cases.

A woman needs to feel emotionally attracted to a man to want to stay with him.

So, if you want your ex to be interested in you, here's what you need to doâ€¢!

1. Understand Her Real, Hidden Reasons For Not Being Interested in Getting Back Together With You

[image: Her true, hidden reasons for leaving you]

Sometimes, a woman will break up with a guy and give him an excuse like, â€¢Look, youâ€¢re a great guy but I need some space to sort myself out,â€¢ or, â€¢Itâ€¢s not you, itâ€¢s me. Iâ€¢m just not ready to be in a serious relationship right now. Itâ€¢s better that we break up now because I donâ€¢t want to hurt you.â€¢

Yet, that isn't her real reason for breaking it off with him.

She's just saying that to soften the blow and be nice, so he doesn't get angry.

If you read the examples above again, you will see that she isn't actually telling him what he needs to change to get her back.

She's just saying that she needs space or that it's her fault, but that's not what she is really thinking.

So, the most important thing that you need to do to make your ex feel interested in you again is to show her that you understand her secret reasons for breaking up with you, without her needing to explain them to you.

For example: Some of the secret reasons why a woman might break up with a guy include:

- He assumes that because he's rich and successful she will stick with him regardless of how badly he treats her (e.g. takes her for granted, puts her in second place in his life, belittles her or criticizes her in front of others).
- He wants different things in life to her (e.g. he wants to travel around and live an extravagant lifestyle, while she wants to settle down and have a family).
- He bullies her and disregards her opinions.
- He treats her more like a trophy than like an attractive woman that he feels love and desire for.
- He is jealous and controlling and wants to know her every move.
- He is strong in business, but emotionally weak in relationships.
- She feels like more of a big sister to him.
- She hates how he just wants her to be a woman on his arm and not having any goals or dreams of her own.
- He gets nervous in social situations (e.g. around her friends, family or coworkers).
- He thinks he can buy her love by paying for her rent, bills and buying her expensive gifts, but what she really wants is to feel respect, attraction and love for how he makes her feel when they spend time together.
- He is too serious and tense about things all the time and she can't seem to relax and feel happy around him as a result.
- He fails her confidence tests by becoming insecure or angry when she throws a tantrum, acts uninterested in him or stops being affectionate.
- He lives a boring lifestyle and doesn't do much or anything fun.
- He tries too hard to impress her by doing lots of fun things, but she just doesn't respect him as a man, so it's not fun for her. She likes going to new places and doing new things, but she's not fully in love with him yet, so it always feels a bit awkward.
- The emotional issues he has reminds her of an ex or her abusive father, so she wants to get out before she gets too involved in the relationship.
- He can't seem to get along with her family and friends, who are an important part of her life.
- She thinks that he's just too good for her and is only with her because he can't get other women, but if other women show him interest in future, he may dump her and leave her behind.

Can you relate to any of those possible reasons why she broke up with you?

If you answered yes, then good – you now have an idea of what you need to change about yourself to reawaken her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Then, when you interact with her (e.g. via text, on social media, on a phone call and especially in person) you can show her via your body language, behavior, the way you talk to her and the way you respond to her, that you are now a very different man from the one she remembers.

She will be able to see for herself that some of the things that were turning her off about you are no longer an issue and you have already improved in the days, or weeks, since she broke up with you. When that happens, she won't be able to stop herself from thinking, â€œSomething is different about him. He's really changed. Maybe we can work things out between us after all.â€

On the other hand, if you don't fully understand her reasons for saying, â€œI'm not interested in being with you anymore,â€ chances are high that you will keep saying and doing the types of things that were turning her off in the past and have been turning her off since the break up. You'll likely keep offering her the type of things that don't really matter to her (e.g. to pay her bills, buy her expensive gifts) and she'll just keep saying, â€œThanks. You're really sweet, but I'm just not interested in getting back together again.â€

2. Begin Changing or Adjusting the Things About You That Have Been Turning Her Off

Understanding why your ex isn't interested in being with you is a good start, but that alone is not going to make her change her mind.

Essentially, if your ex has lost respect and attraction for you as a man, to make her want you again, you first have to prove to her (via your actions and behavior) that you're not the same man she broke up with.

You can't tell her that you've figured it all out and that you've changed, because she's probably not going to believe you.

For example: She might say, â€œYes, yes. I've heard that plenty of times before from you. You're always saying that you've changed, but when I give you another chance, you're just the same emotionally weak/controlling/critical/self-absorbed guy you've always been. Forget it! I'm not interested in being with you anymore. Just leave me alone.â€

[image: Changing the way that you interact with her]

So, don't try to tell her that you've changed.

Instead, show her.

If you want to make your ex change her mind about you, you need to show her via your behavior, the way you think and act, what you say to her and the way you respond to what she says, that you're now at a different level from when she broke up with you.

For example: Some common mistakes that a rich, successful man might make that will keep turning his ex off include the following:

- Paying for her rent or expenses to make her feel dependent on him.

One of the most common mistakes a rich guy will make when trying to get his ex back, is fall into the habit of paying for her expenses, so she feels like she needs to still have him in her life.

He might say to himself, â€œIf I pay for all her expenses and rent, she will see how lucky she is to have someone in her life that cares for her the way I do. She'll also realize that she actually can't cope without my support and will then want to get back together again.â€

Yet, paying a woman's expenses rarely makes her change how she feels about a guy.

When a woman has lost respect and attraction for a guy, him paying all her expenses might even annoy her and make her resent him.

She may think, â€œHow shallow does he think I am? Does he really think that he can buy my love? Doesn't he understand that I need to have feelings for him to want to be with him? Feelings don't come from paying my expenses.â€

She then may decide to use him financially to get back at him for assuming that her feelings are for sale.

So, if you want to make your ex change her mind about being with you, don't try to make her financially dependent on you in the hopes that it make her realize how much she needs you.

Instead, focus on making her emotionally dependent on you by sparking her feelings of respect and attraction, so she feels like she needs to be around you more to feel good, feel happy and feel in love.

Then, if you also happen to pay for her rent or her expenses (if you want to), she will think, â€œWow! Iâ€™m the luckiest girl on earth to have such a great man. Iâ€™m going to do whatever it takes to make him happy so that he will never leave me.â€

- Buying her an expensive ring to show her that he can take care of her.

Sometimes, a rich guy may think that the main thing a woman thinks about when choosing a guy, is whether or not he can take care of her financially.

He might then decide to show her that he can take care of her by buying her an expensive ring.

Yet, being financially stable is not the only thing that makes a woman feel taken care of.

Even though a woman likes the idea of being with a man who is financially capable of taking care of her and any children that might come along, she also wants to feel that he is emotionally strong enough to take care of her as well.

For example: A woman can be very emotional and she might even cry or get upset for no reasonâ€”several times per month in some cases!

She might pick an argument with her guy over seemingly insignificant things, or she might say, â€œIâ€™m fineâ€ and then get angry with him for not realizing that what she's actually saying is, â€œIâ€™m not fine and I need you to hold me or pay attention to me for a minute to make me feel better.â€

However, when she's being an emotional woman, getting an expensive ring is unlikely going to make her feel taken care of.

Instead, it just makes her feel like a spoilt brat who is getting what she wants for being a bad girl.

That's not a healthy way to build a relationship.

Your woman should be rewarded for good behavior, not bratty, selfish behavior.

So, what should a man do instead?

Simple.

If she's being a pain in the butt and throwing tantrums for no reason, he just needs to remain emotionally strong, laugh about it and not take her so seriously.

If he does that rather than getting annoyed with her or desperately trying to suck up to her to hopefully stop her from being such a brat, sheâll know that he is man enough for her and she will feel both taken care of and attracted to him at a deep instinctive level.

The fact is, a guy might be able to take care of a woman financially, but if he crumbles emotionally when she challenges him, she wonât feel taken care of in the way that she really wants.

- Offering to take her on an expensive vacation.

[image: Trying to buy her love]

A man who is rich and successful may sometimes think that if he can give his ex something she cannot pay for by herself (e.g. an expensive vacation), sheâll suddenly change her mind about him.

Secretly, heâs hoping that sheâll say to herself, âWithout him I would never be able to have this kind of luxury in my life. Iâve been such a fool to break up with a rich and successful man like him,â and she will then become interested again.

However, in most cases, a woman doesnât fall in love with a guy because he can take her on expensive vacations, she falls in love with him because of the way he makes her feel.

There are some women who use men for their money, but that isnât love.

Love happens when a woman respects you, feels attracted to you and is happy about how she feels when around you.

Essentially, if a guy can trigger a womanâs feelings of respect and attraction for him, she will want to stay with him even if all he can afford is to set up a tent in his back yard.

Crazy, I know, but thatâs how most women are.

Women do like men with money, but they like men who make them feel respect, attraction and happiness more than rich men who make them feel bored, uncomfortable and turned off.

So, if a rich man (who has been turning his ex woman off) tries to buy her love by offering to take her to the most expensive resort in the world, she will usually just say something like, âThanks.

Thatâs really nice of you, but Iâm not interested.â

By the wayâ!

If you make her feel respect and attraction again and then offer the vacation, then thatâs a different story.

Start with respect and attraction and then everything you do after that will be appreciated by so much more.

Of course, just donât fall into the trap of trying to buy her love. It doesnât work.

You may get some temporary interest, but lasting interest and love is based on real feelings of respect and attraction for who you are and how you make her feel when you interact with her.

- Being extra nice to her in the hopes that she sees how much he cares.

Another common mistake that rich guys make when they are trying to get an ex back is to be extra nice to her.

For example: A guy might say, âIf Iâm really nice to her and make myself available to her every need, she will realize how much I care for her. Then, even though sheâs been saying that she isn't interested in being with me, she will change her mind and we can be together again because she will realize that no other man will treat her as well as I do.

Yet, what a guy like that doesn't understand is that when a woman is saying things like, Look, I know you mean well, but I'm just not interested in being with you, it's usually because she doesn't feel sexually attracted to him anymore.

This often happens because he's trying to win her over with traits (e.g. niceness, politeness, compassion) that don't even make a woman feel sexually attracted and turned on.

A woman only feels love and sexual attraction for those traits if she feels respect and attraction for a guy first.

Respect and sexual attraction has to come first, not niceness and generosity.

Even though she might appreciate that he's being really nice to her, it's not going to make her change her mind about being with him.

Rather than her thinking, He's so nice. I just can't resist him. I have to be next to him, kiss him, have sex with him and never let him go she will usually be thinking, He's a good guy, but I just don't feel anything with him. I'm lucky to have a nice, sweet friend like him who cares for me, but I don't want a friend, I want a boyfriend or husband.

She may continue to keep him in her life as a friend, but she will be actively trying to find a new man to replace him as soon as possible.

So, don't waste your time being extra nice to your ex in the hopes that she will realize how much you care for her and decide to get back together with you based on that.

Instead, make her interested again by triggering her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you.

[image: Get her respect and attraction back at a meet up]

When your ex sees that you no longer think, act and behave in the ways she felt turned off by (e.g. insecurity, jealousy, controlling behavior), she will feel respect for you and begin to feel drawn to you again.

3. Interact With Her Right Away and Let Her Experience the New You

You can sit around saying, I'm a rich, successful man, but my ex still isn't interested in being with me, and hope that she will somehow realize that she made a big mistake and call you up, or you can take action to get her back right away.

Naturally, when a woman is saying things like, Leave me alone. I'm just not interested in being with you anymore, a guy might feel like he needs to step back for a while and let her come to her senses.

He might then wait around for weeks, or even months, in the hopes that she will call him up and say, I've realized my mistake. You're a rich, successful man and I would be crazy to let you go. Will you please take me back?

Yet, unless a woman is still secretly in love with a guy, or is really struggling to find a replacement guy, she will rarely call up her ex if she doesn't hear from him for a long time.

She may contact him just to check that he's still missing her, but if she discovers that he still wants her back and hasn't yet changed the things about himself that secretly turned her off, she's just going to keep moving on.

If she doesn't contact him, she will likely say to herself, â€œWell if he hasn't made an effort to contact me after all this time, it must mean that he didn't really love me in the way he said he did. He's obviously moved on with his life, so I'm not going to sit around waiting to hear from him anymore. It's over and I'm moving on and will find myself a man who isn't afraid to love me and work through any relationship problems we encounter.â€

So, don't waste a lot of time waiting around and hoping she'll change her mind all by herself. Actively interact with her and make her feel something for you again.

Even if she's being cold and distant and saying things like, â€œI don't want to talk to you. I'm just not interested,â€ rather than give up, you can turn it around by making her smile, laugh and feel good when talking to you.

The more you make a woman smile, laugh and feel happy, the less she can hold onto her negative, angry feelings about you.

[image: Reconnect with her]

She will be impressed when she sees for herself that you are no longer at the same level you were at when she broke up with you.

When she's suddenly faced with the kind of man that she can now look up to, respect, feel attracted to and love, it will be difficult for her to keep saying, â€œNo, I'm not interested in being with you.â€

Her walls will come down and she'll realize that falling back in love with you is one of the most amazing feelings she has ever experienced in her life.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What Makes an Ex Feel Attracted to You Again? 6 Examples

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 6 examples of what can make an ex feel attracted to you again.

1. She Sees That You've Changed the Things About You That Were Turning Her Off

A woman doesn't usually wake up one morning and think to herself, "Today is a lovely day. I think I'm going to break up with my boyfriend (fiancé or husband) now."

Instead, she will usually think about it for a long time and even try to find reasons to stay, rather than give up on the love and relationship that they have been sharing together.

So, when a woman finally calls it quits, it's usually because she has lost so much respect and attraction for her man that she just can't imagine staying with him any longer.

Yet, what causes a woman to lose respect and attraction for a man to the point where she can't stand being around him anymore?

Some of the causes can be that:

- He became emotionally abusive (e.g. insulting, controlling, threatening).
- He was too clingy (e.g. always needing her to reassure him of her love for him, being too emotionally sensitive, worried that she might one day like another guy and leave him).
- He was insecure (e.g. about life, socializing, the relationship, his future).
- He cheated on her.
- He took her love for granted and expected her to stick around for life, even though he wasn't treating her very well anymore or wasn't making her feel appreciated.
- He lacked purpose and direction in life (e.g. he wasted most of his time watching TV, playing video games, hanging out with his buddies or engaging in fairly pointless hobbies just so he didn't have to make progress in real life by following through on his big dreams and ambitions).
- He stopped trying to get along with her friends and family and maybe even tried to turn her against them.

The list goes on.

You would probably be fairly clear on how you stuffed things up with her now, but did were you aware of it during the relationship?

Maybe you were and if so, you took her love for granted and expected her to stick around and put up with it because things used to be so good between you and her at the start.

Yet, you can keep a relationship together for life simply based on good times at the start.

You've got to keep the love alive, rather than taking it for granted.

Over time, if a guy fails to pick up on his woman's unhappiness and then change his ways, she will gradually lose respect and attraction for him.

When a woman doesn't feel much respect or attraction for a guy, she will then start to disconnect from her feelings of love for him as well and when that happens, she will usually just break up with him and try to move on.

She won't always want to break up with him, but she will feel like she has to because he just isn't listening and he isn't putting in the effort to fix his mistakes and become the man that she needs.

So, if you want to make your ex feel attracted to you again, you must start by fixing the things about yourself that were turning her off.

When she sees that you have changed, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling attracted to you again, even if she tries to hide it or act like she's not impressed.

When she feels a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, she then starts to wonder, â€œWhy do I miss him all of a sudden? Why am I thinking about him all the time?â€

She can't stop herself from feeling that because attraction is an automatic reaction that men and women have to each other when attractive traits are displaying.

From there you can build on that initial spark of attraction by showing her that things really are different now.

Another example of what makes an ex feel attracted to you again isâ€

2. Making Her Laugh and Smile When She Interacts With You

There's a popular saying that goes like this, â€œLaughter is the best medicineâ€ and in some cases, it's true.

When you make your ex laugh and smile every time that she interacts with you from now on, you are helping to heal the pain, anger and resentment that she has been feeling towards you.

By making every interaction between you and her happy and enjoyable, you are actively sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you and making the negatives of your relationship seem less important to her.

When that happens, she naturally feels drawn to you in a way that feels good to her.

So, rather than spend a lot of time going over what went wrong in the relationship when you're interacting with your ex (which will only keep reminding her about the things that turned her off in the first place), just use that time to create new, happy memories in her mind by making her laugh and smile.

For example: If she asks you, â€œWhat have you been up to since we broke up?â€ you can jokingly say, â€œOh, not much. I took a vow not to shower or bath until you talked to me again. Thank goodness we're talking now. The neighbors have been complaining about the smell for days!â€

She will most likely have a laugh with you about it. If she doesn't, don't worry; she will still feel respect and attraction for you for having the confidence and social intelligence to make a joke in a potentially tense moment like that.

When she laughs (or just smiles because she is playing hard to get), it takes her mind off the negative parts about her relationship with you and she starts to think of you as you are now, rather than who you were.

She then drops her guard and becomes more open to feeling positive emotions such as respect, attraction and love for you again.

3. She Sees That You Are Now Emotionally Independent, But You Still Love Her and Respect Her

A woman definitely wants to be loved and appreciated by her man, but in most cases, she doesn't want to be his main reason for living or main source of happiness.

Some guys mistakenly think that to make a woman feel loved and appreciated, he has to make everything about her.

For example: A guy might give up all his hobbies and interests and stop hanging out with friends as a way of showing his woman how much she means to him.

He assumes that by showing her just how much he loves and needs her, she will be amazed at his dedication and will be loyal to him for him.

Yet, that's not how it works.

When a man makes his woman his reason for living, he will eventually begin to behave in a clingy, needy, insecure way, especially if she starts becoming less affectionate or attentive (most women do that to test the guy's confidence and to see if he has become clingy).

If the woman notices that he has become clingy and needs her constant love and attention to feel happy and confident, it will cause her to lose respect and attraction for him.

She will feel as though he isn't an emotionally strong man and is only behaving that way because she is supporting him.

A woman wants to be with a man who is happy, confident and forward moving with or without her.

She doesn't want to feel as though she has to keep propping him up, patting him on the back and encouraging him along to keep him happy, confident and forward moving.

So, if a guy became clingy, jealous or very insecure in the relationship and it lead to him being dumped, he has to now show her that he's an emotionally independent, emotionally strong and emotionally masculine man now.

He can't be the same old emotionally sensitive, self-doubting, insecure guy and expect her to want him back.

So, how can he become more emotionally independent?

Some examples are to:

- Start taking real steps towards achieving his big goals and ambitions in life.
- Take up a new hobby that includes other people (e.g. martial arts, dancing, a mixed sports team that plays volleyball, soccer, basketball, tennis, badminton. Alternatively, join a meet up group in his area that catches up once a week to do something together, such as hiking, discussing philosophy, exercise, mountain biking).
- Hang out with old friends again, or make new friends.

When you focus on becoming genuinely happy and independent in your own life, not only are you helping to take your mind off what happened between you and your ex, but you are also becoming more attractive to your ex and to women in general.

The next time you interact with your ex, she will see that youâ€”re not the same guy she broke up with and have become a more balanced man, rather than being so focused on her.

This will make her begin to feel some respect and attraction for you again.

4. You Make Her Feel Attracted in New Ways

One of the best ways to make an ex feel attracted to you again is to show her you have moved beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you.

For example: If your ex broke up with you because you weren't ambitious and were procrastinating in life, you need to show her that you are now starting to make progress towards your goals.

You donâ€”t have to achieve everything right away for her to feel attracted to you again; you just need to start making progress in the direction of your big goals and dreams in life.

She will then see that youâ€”re not stuck in a rut like before, which will make her feel respect for you for manning up and having the courage to change and improve.

Another example is if you were insecure and too emotionally sensitive in the relationship.

In that case, you need to be able to show her that you are now more confident than ever.

You are calm, confident and relaxed and you donâ€”t get upset, angry or hurt when she tests you by doing things like pretending to be interested one minute and then ignoring you the next.

You are emotionally strong now and handle things differently to how she remembers you in the past.

5. She Feels Jealous Because Youâ€”re Dating a New Woman

Sometimes, a woman might see her ex out at a club kissing, hugging and having fun with another woman, or she might see pictures of him and his new girlfriend on social media.

She might then say to herself, â€”Wow, other women like him now. I donâ€”t like seeing him with other women like this because it makes me miss him. I think I made a big mistake by breaking up with him. I've got to get him back.â€”

Suddenly, the idea of losing a guy that is appealing to other women makes her feel attracted to him again, and she might then text him or call her ex in an attempt to get him back.

Warning: If a guy is only pretending to be having fun and dating other women just to make his ex jealous, he stands a big chance of getting caught out in a lie that can backfire and cause her to lose even more respect and attraction for him.

For example: Over the course of a week, she sees photos of him on social media hanging out with a girl and even hugging her.

She then calls him and says, “I've been seeing photos of you with your new girl on Facebook. How could you move on so quickly?! I still love you and you already have a new girlfriend? Did you ever love me?”

If he then says, “No, she isn't my girlfriend. We're just friends. I don't want any other woman, I just want you” she will then know that he was trying to make her jealous to get her back.

She may then decide to get revenge on him by blocking him on social media or by hooking up with a new guy just to make him feel bad.

However, I have heard of many cases when this tactic has worked.

It works best when you are genuinely beginning to move on without her and if she confronts you about it, you just be honest and say, “Yes, it’s true. I still love you, but you don’t want to be with me, so I’m just moving on.”

She then realizes that it was her fault for pushing you away.

Even though she is throwing a tantrum and getting angry, she is attracted to you and wants you back.

Women are more attracted to guys who other women want. It’s just how it works.

Of course, if you want to re-attract your ex and not have to date any other women, I teach how to do that in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System

6. She’s Dated Other Guys and Discovered That You Are a Better Catch Than They Are

Occasionally, when a couple is young or has little or no experience with relationships, they might fall into a rut and feel like the relationship has to end because it has become a little boring.

For example: They might behave more like friends around each other, or the guy might be too inexperienced to give the woman the attraction experience that she really wants (e.g. she wants him to be more manly, but he’s too emotionally sensitive and is a bit of a pushover with her).

She might then decide to break up with him and choose to date other guys, in the hopes that some other guy can make her feel the way she wants to feel in a relationship.

However, she may then realize that although other guys fill certain emotional gaps that were missing in her relationship with her ex, most of them have issues of their own and that her ex was actually more attractive to her than she initially thought.

If she then interacts with her ex and he stands out by behaving in ways that are attractive to her (e.g. he is more emotionally mature and confident now, he makes her laugh and flirts with her, he’s charming and charismatic), she will naturally regret breaking up with him and will want him back.

Remember: It’s Who You Are as a Man That Matters to Her Most

As you can see from the examples above, there are many different ways to make an ex feel attracted to you again.

However, where some guys go wrong is by trying to attract an ex back with superficial things like clothes, hairstyle, body shape and shoes.

For example: A guy might say to himself, “I have to re-spark my ex’s feelings of attraction to get her back, but I won’t be able to achieve that if I look like my old self, so I’ll have to get myself a makeover. I need to change update my wardrobe, go to the gym and build some muscles. Then, when she sees me again she won't be able to stop herself from feeling attracted to the new me.

Yet, here's the thing!

Although those things can make a nice superficial impression and even make a woman say something like, "Oh, you're looking good. Have you been working out?" if how you interact with her doesn't make her feel attracted (e.g. you lack confidence around her, you're still making the same old communication mistakes when talking to her), then the new clothes, shoes and muscles will quickly lose their appeal.

To make and ex feel attracted to you again, you have to turn her on with the deeper traits of confidence, masculinity (how you think, behave, talk) and emotional maturity, rather than hoping to get her back with a new pair of shoes, a nice hair cut, or big biceps and a six-pack.

Essentially, a woman's attraction to a man is mostly based on how he makes her feel.

For example:

- Does she feel feminine and girly in his presence, or does she feel neutral around him or more like his friend or big sister?
- Does she look up to him and respect him, or does she feel like she has to guide him and teach him how to be the man she needs him to be?
- Is he confident and emotionally strong, or is he secretly insecure and still dealing with a lot of emotional issues that he can't seem to shake?

These things are much more important to most women than a guy's physical appearance.

Of course, there are some women who are attracted to the superficial things in men (e.g. his looks, money, status), but most women are more attracted to a man's behavior and inner qualities and how that makes her feel when she's with him.

So, if you're serious about making your ex feel attracted to you again, don't waste a lot of time trying to change your physical appearance.

Naturally, there's nothing wrong with looking the best you can, but your main focus needs to be on making some changes and improvements to the way you are talking to her and interacting with her.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

5 Steps to Make Your Ex Regret Dumping You and Want You Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To make your ex regret dumping you and want you back, follow these 5 steps:

1. Discover Her True, Hidden Reasons For Leaving You

[image: Her true, hidden reasons for leaving you]

Some guys know exactly what caused their ex to break up with them (e.g. the guy cheated on her, he lied to her, he was abusive towards her).

However, in most cases, a guy isn't fully clear on what caused his ex to dump him and often just accepts the reasons she gave him.

For example: A guy might say, "My ex broke up with me because she said she needed some space to focus on her career."

He might then think to himself, "If I give her some space to focus on her work, she will realize what a great guy I am and she will then regret dumping me and want me back."

Yet, that's not how it works.

To begin with, most women will rarely come out and say exactly what is turning them off about a guy's behavior.

So, when a woman says things like, "I need some space," or "I just don't feel the same way about us anymore," or "Things have changed" or "I don't know what I want anymore," it's usually her way of letting the guy down gently.

She doesn't want to come right out and reveal her true, hidden reasons why she is dumping him because:

- She doesn't want to tell him her secret reasons (e.g. he's not manly enough, he's too emotionally sensitive) because she doesn't want him to quickly start acting like he's fixed those things.
- She's afraid that if she tells him what he's doing wrong, he might become angry or possibly even violent.
- She doesn't want to give him a chance to talk her out of her decision (e.g. by begging and pleading with her, promising her he will change, telling her how much he still loves her).
- She doesn't want to teach him how to be the kind of man she needs in her life.
- She doesn't want him to take her feedback the wrong way (e.g. one of her secret reasons might be that he's too much of a pushover and let's her get away with disrespecting him. She fears that if she tells him that, he might take it too far and become too assertive, controlling and aggressive in an attempt to show her that he's not a pushover anymore).

[image: Hiding her real reasons for the break up]

Rather than telling him how to get her back, a woman will usually just try to cut her losses and move on in the hope that she can find a man who already has the ability to maintain her respect, attraction and love in a relationship.

So, if you want to make your ex regret dumping you and want you back, you need to be able to show her that you understand her secret reasons for breaking up with you, without her needing to explain them to you.

If you are unsure about what those reasons are for you, check out the list below and see if any of the following apply to you and your relationship.

- Were you both after the same kind of relationship, or did you want different things (e.g. one of you wanted to have fun together, but the other was focused on work or finishing university, or one of you want to get married and start a family, while the other was more focused on career)?
- Were you making her feel feminine and girly in your presence, or did you allow her to take on a more masculine role in the relationship (e.g. by letting her make all the decisions, letting her push you around, becoming the more emotionally sensitive one)?
- Did you make her feel loved and appreciated, or did she feel you were taking her for granted (e.g. you stopped noticing her efforts to look good, stopped telling her how much you loved and appreciated her, you put her in second place to your friends and expected her to put up with it)?
- Were you always respectful towards her, or did you get into a habit of criticizing or belittling her (e.g. making fun of her in front of other people, disregarding her opinions or ideas, making her feel stupid in comparison to how intelligent you are)?
- Did you live a balanced lifestyle that she was a part of, or did you become clingy and needy and mostly focus all of your time and attention on her?

By answering these questions, you will begin to get a better understanding of what caused your ex to dump you in the first place.

Then, when you interact with her (e.g. via text, on social media, on a phone call and especially in person) you can show her via your body language, behavior, the way you talk to her and the way you respond to her, that you have now changed.

She will be able to see that are no longer the guy she dumped and you have already improved in the days or weeks since the break up.

When that happens, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you again.

She will then start to regret dumping you and will begin to imagine how good it would feel to be back in your arms again, kissing you, having sex with you and telling you that she loves you.

On the other hand, if you don't fully understand what has been turning her off about you, chances are high that you will keep making the same old mistakes in your communication style, or will keep offering to fix the wrong things that she doesn't even care about (e.g. a guy might say, "I will treat you so much better, I promise," but what she really wants is for him to be more manly and not be such a hopeless romantic).

If you offer her the wrong things, she will just keep saying things like, "Sorry, I'm not interested," or "Just accept that it's over."

2. Begin Fixing Those Things About Yourself

[image: Begin fixing your issues and improving yourself]

Understanding what caused your ex to dump you is a great start, but that alone isn't what will make her want you back.

Neither will texting, e-mailing or calling her up, to say things like, â€œIâ€™ve really changed. Iâ€™m a different guy now. I promise I wonâ€™t make the same mistakes again if you just come back. Please give me another chance and you can see for yourself that Iâ€™m a changed man.â€

Remember: Actions speak louder than words.

If your ex has lost respect and attraction for you as a man, regardless of how sincere you might be, she is likely going to assume the worst about you and think that you're still the same guy and won't be able to change how she feels.

To make your ex regret dumping you and want you back, you need to show her via your behavior, the way you think and act, what you say to her and the way you respond to what she says, that youâ€™re now at a different level from when she broke up with you.

For example: Ask yourselfâ€

- How do I usually react when my ex says that she doesn't want to be with me?

If she says things like, â€œMy feelings for you are dead,â€ or â€œYou mean nothing to me anymore,â€ do you remain and think to yourself, â€œIt's fine. I accept that she feels that way right now, but I also know that feelings can and do change all the time, so how she feels now is not permanent. I can change how she feels and make her love me againâ€ or do you get upset or angry with her and possibly beg and plead by saying things like, â€œPlease give me another chance! I canâ€™t live without you! Don't do this to us. We can make it work.â€

- How do I react when she talks about other guys?

Do you lose hope and think, â€œOh no! She's talking about other guys. This means that she will have sex with them, enjoy it and never want me back,â€ or do you remain confident in yourself and focus instead on making her smile, laugh and feel attracted to you again?

When your ex sees that she can no longer make you react in the ways that you used to when you were together, she will feel respect for you and begin to feel drawn to you again.

You don't need to be perfect to get her back, just better.

Actions speak louder than words, so rather than trying to convince her with words (e.g. "I will change"), convince her by how you now think, feel, talk, behave and act around her and in life.

3. Improve Your Ability to Attract Her During Interactions

[image: Make her love the new you]

When a woman breaks up with a guy, chances are high that sheâ€™s not going to want to interact with him much, or at all after they part ways.

So, to make your ex regret dumping you and want you back, you can't sit around hoping she will somehow wake up one morning and think to herself, "I miss my ex so much. I think I want to get back together with him. I should call him and ask him to come and see me so we can get back together."

The chances of her doing that are just way too low.

I've personally helped 100s of men to get women back and the fastest, easiest way to get a woman back is to actively re-attract her.

You need to use every chance you get, whether it's via text, on social media, e-mail, on a phone call, or in person, to show your ex that you've changed and make her feel like she's losing out if she continues to stay broken up with you.

For example: When you interact with her and she's being cold towards you, you need to get her to smile and laugh, and let her experience your newfound confidence based on how you think, feel, talk and behave around her now.

The more that she can see that you're not responding to her like she's expecting you to, the more she will begin wondering, "What's going on here? Why isn't he getting upset or angry like he used to when we were together? Something is really different about him," and she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you again.

However, if you keep making the same old mistakes in your communication style, she will likely just keep pushing you away like she always has.

So, to avoid turning her off even more, here are some mistakes to avoid making when you're interacting with her.

- Lying about moving on when you haven't.

Sometimes a guy will pretend that he's moved on with his life, even though he hasn't, in the hopes that it makes his ex regret dumping him and then want him back.

For example: When a guy interacts with his ex, he might say things like, "I'm totally fine about us breaking up. I mean, I would never get back together again anyway because I'm so over you now," or "I'm actually glad that we broke up. I've been going out a lot lately and there are so many women interested in dating me, so things have been fun. I would hate to be stuck in a relationship now. Single life is way more fun."

If that's his honest opinion, then he can go ahead and say that if he wants to be rude and get some revenge by hurting her feelings a little.

However, if a guy wants her back, he shouldn't make up lies about being over her when he isn't.

Why? A woman can easily catch him in a lie by showing interest in him and then pulling back to see how he reacts.

For example: She might say, "Actually, I was thinking that maybe we should catch up. I've missed you. I don't want to be single anymore. I want you back" and then when he starts saying, "Yeah, well maybe we could do that. I've been missing you too" she might say, "Hhhh...I don't know...I need time to think about it" and then string him along to get revenge for lying about being over her.

Lies just don't help in an ex back situation, so whatever you do, just be honest.

In life in general, it's way easier (and less stressful) to just be honest all the time because you then have nothing to hide.

If you try to lie to her to make her regret losing you and she catches you out in that lie by showing interest and then pulling it away when you show interest back, she's just going to lose respect for you and that will make it harder to get her back.

- Bragging about what you have achieved since the break up to hopefully make her feel like she's let a great man go.

Another way that some men try to make their ex woman regret dumping them is by bragging about all the great things they've been doing since the break up.

For example: A guy might say to his ex, I've been so busy since we broke up. I got promoted at work and I'm now earning so much more money, so I'm planning to tour through Europe next summer. Oh, and did I mention? I've got a brand new car as well. You'd love it!

Yet, in most cases, a woman will know if he is insecure and is only saying those things to hopefully impress her.

So, rather than making a woman think, My ex sure has become very successful since we broke up. He's such a great guy. I never realized what a great catch he really is. I wonder, maybe we should get back together again, she may think, Lame! I can't believe he's bragging to me about those things. Doesn't he realize that what matters to me is who he is as a man? Like I care how much he earns now or that he has a great car. I'm not going to be in a relationship with those things; I will be in a relationship with him and it is him and his thinking and behavior that turns me off. He still doesn't get it.

- Trying to make her feel guilty for how bad she made you feel.

[image: You promised that we'd be together forever]

It's only natural that when a guy gets dumped, he might feel hurt and betrayed by his woman. After all, she probably once said to him, "I love you so much. I want to be with you forever" or something along those lines.

So, if a guy is a man of his word and he said the same thing back to her at the time, it's only natural that he would feel betrayed.

He might then try to make his ex feel guilty for going back on her promise and making him feel so angry, depressed, lost and confused as a result.

For example: A guy might call up his ex and say something like, How can you do this to me?! How can you be so cold and heartless? After everything we've been through and how much we loved each other, how can you just throw me out like an old pair of shoes? I'm a person you know? I have feelings? Doesn't it matter to you that I love you?

Secretly, he might be hoping that if she feels guilty enough about hurting him so badly, she might think to herself, My ex is right! I really have been a heartless bitch towards him. He must really love me if he's feeling so hurt and sad about the break up. I regret making him feel that way, so maybe I should just give him another chance.

Yet, it rarely works that way.

When a woman sees a man behaving in a desperate, insecure, emotionally weak way, it only turns her off even more.

She begins to wonder, “If he can’t cope with a break up, what will happen if he has to face other serious problems in life? Will he need me to guide him and protect him like I am his mother?”

Most women don’t want to take on that role in a relationship with a guy, which is why they are primarily attracted to men who are emotionally strong, confident and able to cope with whatever life throws at them.

Guys who are insecure, self-doubting, needy or too emotionally sensitive feel like more of a burden than a benefit to women, so women usually close up, break up and try not to look back.

☞ Telling her that no other guy will love her as much as you do.

When a woman doesn’t have feelings for her ex, hearing him say, “You will never find a guy who will love you as much as I do. You mean the world to me. Why can’t you see that I am the right guy for you? I love you so much. No other guy will treat you as good as I do” isn’t going to matter that much to her.

Why? A woman just won’t care much at all that a guy loves her, if she doesn’t feel respect and attraction for him.

The feelings have to be mutual for her to care.

So, if you want to make your ex regret dumping you and want you back, don’t waste a lot of time telling her how much you love her, because she’s not going to care how much you love her compared to other guys if you don’t re-spark some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you first.

4. Call Her to Let Her Experience the New You

[image: Get her on a phone call]

Some guys believe that texting an ex is a safe, non-threatening way of interacting with her and will ensure that he can slowly get her back without putting too much pressure on her by calling her or talking to her in person.

A guy may think, “My ex is likely still angry with me, so if I call her up on the phone she will probably just hang up on me or tell me to get lost. If I stick to text messages, she won’t feel pressured and will appreciate that I’m taking things slow. She will gradually see that I’ve changed and will then be more open to the idea of getting together again.”

Yet, hiding behind texts is usually the worst thing that a guy can do to get an ex woman back.

Why? If she currently perceives him in a negative way (e.g. she’s angry with him, she feels resentment and disappointment about who he became in the relationship and how that made her feel), it’s unlikely that she will perceive anything he texts her in a positive light.

Even if he has really changed and is more confident, mature and emotionally strong than ever before, she can’t really determine that because she isn’t able to see his body language or hear the tone of his voice.

So, anything he says via text will potentially be seen by her in a negative way because she will imagine that the text is coming from the kind of guy he was when she dumped him.

If you want to regain your ex's respect for you, you have to let her experience the new you in a more substantial way than just text, e-mail or social media message.

The best way to do that is by getting her on a phone call where you can make her laugh, smile and feel your confidence via your tonality.

From there, you need to arrange a meet up with her, where you can continue to actively re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

5. Meet Up With Her and Allow Her to Experience the New You, But Don't Try to Get Her Back

[image: Meet up to get your ex back after a break up]

When you meet up with your ex, continue saying and doing the types of things that have been turning her on (e.g. be confident, self-assured, make her smile and laugh, flirt with her).

At this point, it might be very tempting to want to push your ex to agree to giving your relationship another chance, especially if she seems to be having fun and is possibly even saying things like, â€œWow! you've really changed,â€ or â€œI can't believe that I'm having so much fun with you again like this. Maybe we should do this again sometime?â€

However, although you might be tempted to say, â€œYes! Let's get back together again!â€ if you push her to get back into a relationship with you right away, she might change her mind and go back to playing hard to get.

If you want her to fully regret dumping you, the best approach is to say something like, “Well, let's take it slow and see how we feel” or, “Let's agree to catch up in a few days and if we still want to get back together, we will do it then” so you can build up her desire to want to get back with you.

Just make sure that you aren't the one pushing to get back together with her if you haven't yet fully reactivated her feelings of respect and attraction and made her want to give it another try.

If she's not feeling it and you push to get back together, she may say something like, â€œYes, I'm enjoying hanging out with you but that doesn't mean I want to be your girlfriend (fianc  or wife) again. You hurt me/disappointed me/really turned me off and I don't know if I can forgive you for that yet.â€

So, make sure that you play your cards right.

Instead of trying to get her back when you meet up with her, focus instead on reactivating her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you again.

[image: Re-attracting your ex]

You want to get her thinking, â€œWow! my ex is so different now. I really enjoy his company. I'm having so much fun. Being around him now is even better than it was when we first met. I want us to be back together. I regret breaking up with him now. I want this. I want him back.â€

Once she is thinking that way, getting her back and keeping her in a relationship will be very easy for you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

3 Signs That My Wife Wants to Reconcile

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Sometimes a wife will be interested in reconciling with her ex husband, but at the same time, she might not want to come across as too easy in case he rejects her.

So, it's unlikely that a wife will come out and directly say, "I'm interested in getting our marriage back together. Let's do this!"

Instead, she will usually give some signs that she hopes her husband will pick up and then act on.

Here are 3 signs that your wife might want to reconcile with you:

1. She is Happy to Communicate With You

[image: She is happy to communicate with you]

When a woman separates from her husband, she will often be feeling a lot of negative emotions (e.g. anger, resentment, disappointment) and will want to avoid interacting with him as much as possible to get him out of her mind and start to move on.

The husband may try to contact her via text, e-mail, social media, or by calling her on the phone, but she will ignore him, block his number on her phone and even "unfriend" him on social media.

However, when a wife wants to reconcile with her husband, I've found that she will be more open to communicating with him.

For example: She will respond to his texts or e-mails, click "like" on his social media pages and answer his calls.

If he suggests a meet up, she will respond by saying something like, "Sure. When would you like to catch up?"

Alternatively, if she doesn't want to come across as being too eager, she might say, "I'm not sure. Let me think about it and get back to you," or "I don't have time this week. How about next week?" or "Okay. Maybe I can spare 10 minutes during my lunch break."

Each woman will be different, so don't worry if your wife hasn't been that nice and accommodating when you have contacted her.

Regardless of whether your wife sounds excited by the idea of seeing you again, or if she's simply playing it cool and a little hard to get, it's up to you to take the lead and make things happen between you and her.

Be the more emotionally courageous one of the two of you by remaining emotionally strong as you guide her back into a relationship, even if she is acting disinterested at times.

After helping 100s of men get their wife back, I've found that an ex wife will rarely make the reconciliation feel super easy, even if she's really interested in getting back together again.

So, instead of wasting time waiting for her to give you 100% clear signs that she wants to reconcile, simply pick up the phone and get her to a meet up with you.

Then, when you meet up with her in person, reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you. Show her that you are a different man now from the one that she remembers and you are no longer making the same old mistakes.

For example: If a wife left her husband because he lacked purpose and direction in his life and was hiding behind her from his true potential, she's not going to be enthusiastic about getting the marriage back together if he is still stuck at that level as a man.

To convince her that he's moved beyond that level, he needs to show her that he has set some big, long term goals for himself and is actively working towards achieving them.

He doesn't have to achieve everything, but he does need to be making some progress towards those goals (e.g. the first few steps towards making it happen).

Another example is if a wife left her husband because he was too jealous and controlling in the relationship.

To regain her respect and attraction for him, he needs to show her that he has become an emotionally strong, emotionally independent and emotionally masculine man now.

He's no longer the emotionally sensitive, insecure guy that turned her off for so long.

He really has improved and she can see it how he thinks, talks, feels, behaves and acts now.

When she notices those changes, it makes it a lot easier for her to look up to him, respect him and feel proud to say to her friends and family, He is my husband. I love him. Things are different now. We are going to give it another try.

2. She Contacts You First to Say Hello

[image: She contacts you first to say hello]

In most ex back cases where a woman doesn't want anything to do with her man anymore, she will wait for him to make the first move and contact her if he wants her back.

However, sometimes she will take the initiative to contact him and get the ball rolling.

For example: A woman might text her husband and say something like, Hi. I just wanted to see how you're doing, or I was just thinking about you. I hope you're doing okay.

Essentially, she's giving him an excuse to call her up and invite her to meet up with him.

He just needs to have the confidence to read between the lines like that and make it happen.

If he doesn't get the hint and then sits around asking, What does it mean when a wife calls you up to say hello? Is it a sign that she wants to reconcile, or is she just being friendly? or What if I call her up and she rejects me? What if she doesn't really want to get back together again and I make a fool of myself? What if she is just leading me on? What if she has met another man and just wants me to call so she can tell me that? precious time is going to be wasted and she will begin to wonder whether they are meant to be together or not.

As you would know, it's unlikely that a woman will wait around forever in the hopes that her man will man up and be courageous enough to get the relationship back together, even if she is being wishy washy about it.

So, if you want to reconcile with your wife, don't wait around for her to make all the moves.

[image: Get her on a phone call]

It's up to you to be emotionally courageous enough to contact her and begin the ex back process, regardless of whether she's giving you clear signs that she's interested, or if she's playing hard to get.

Remember: A woman is naturally attracted to fundamental qualities in a man such as confidence, determination to success and an ability to overcome obstacles in life no matter how tough they are. The more that you display these qualities to your wife, the more respect she will feel for you and the more attracted she will feel.

When that happens, she then reconnects with her feelings of love for you and getting back together again starts to seem like a sensible idea and the right thing to do.

3. She Brings Up Good Memories That You and Her Shared Together Over the Years

[image: Making your ex feel attracted over the phone]

Another sign that your wife wants to reconcile is when she brings up the good times that you and her have shared over the years.

For example: She might say, “Remember our honeymoon? We had such a great time snorkeling and taking those long walks on the beach. We were so in love then, weren’t we?” or “I was driving to a meeting yesterday and I happened to pass that little Italian restaurant where you proposed to me. Do you remember how everyone started clapping for us and the owners gave us with free deserts? We ate so much that we were sick the next day.”

That’s a pretty damn obvious signal that she wants to reconcile and I’m sure that you would probably agree.

Here’s the thing!

If a woman doesn’t have any feelings for a man and is trying to move on, she will avoid talking about good times that they shared because she doesn’t want to give him the wrong idea.

Instead, she will push all the good memories to the back of her mind and keep reminding herself how much he hurt her or disappointed her over the years.

So, if your wife brings up some of the good times that you’ve shared, it’s more than likely that she’s open to reconciliation and is hoping that you man up and make it happen.

What Are You Waiting For?

Where some men go wrong is that they wait way too long to get a clear sign from their wife that she wants to reconcile.

A man will sometimes waste weeks, or even months waiting for a sign from his ex, and then possibly say to himself, “I need to make sure that she wants to get back together again. If I make a move and she’s not interested, not only will I make a fool of myself, I might also end up pushing her away even more. I have to wait for a clear sign from her. I don’t want to seem like I am pressuring her into anything. I treated her badly when we separated because I was clinging onto her for dear life and it really annoyed her. I want to show her that I’m not desperate anymore, so I’m just going to keep ignoring her and hope that she comes back to me.”

Ignoring a woman who doesn’t want to be with you isn’t the way to get her back.

Men who stop contacting their wife (or trying to get her back) and wait for crystal clear signals that she is ready to reconcile, often end up losing her to another man.

Don't be afraid to make a move to get your own wife back.

Yes, you stuffed up and she left you, but you're a better man now, right?

Then, get her back!

Based on the 100s of marriage ex cases that I've worked on, it is very rare that the woman will suddenly send a text or call and say, "I miss you. Can we get together sometime and try work things out?" if the husband has just been sitting around and waiting for her.

Most women wait for their husband to man up and get the relationship back together and if he doesn't, she usually just moves on.

Right now, the most important thing you need to understand is that it doesn't matter if your wife is giving you loud, obvious signs that she wants to reconcile, or she's ignoring you and pretending she's not interested.

What matters is whether or not you are actively making her have feelings for you again when you interact with her.

The question you need to ask yourself is: "What am I doing to get my wife back?"

For example:

- Have you been calling her on the phone and re-attracting her and flirting with her, or have you been hiding behind text/SMS messages because it feels easier to communicate with her in that way?
- Have you been using every interaction you have with her as an opportunity to gain back her trust and spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, or are you saying and doing some of the things that turn women off (e.g. crying, begging, pleading, promising to change)?
- Have you been making her feel a renewed sense of sexual attraction and respect for you, or have you turned into a really nice, polite, caring ex husband who just wants to be her friend?
- Have you changed the things about you that were turning her off, or are you still pretty much the same guy that she walked out on?

As you can see, getting your wife back involves some action on your part.

So, don't waste another minute waiting for a sign from her.

Instead, call her up right away and focus on making her feel renewed surges of respect and sexual attraction for you and then confidently guide her back into a new, happy marriage with you.

Take the Lead and Guide Her Back into a New, Happy Marriage With You

[image: Take the lead and guide her back into a new, happy marriage with you]

In most cases, a wife is bored of how she felt in the relationship and won't give obvious signs that she wants to get back together.

So, what you need to do is be the more emotionally courageous one who makes it happen, even if she isn't showing very clear signs that she wants to get back together.

To get her back, you need to reactivate her feelings and bring back the love that was there at the start, by reawakening her positive feelings for you (e.g. trust, respect, sexual desire).

Look at it this way!

Women are instinctively more attracted to certain qualities in a man than others.

For example: A woman is more likely going to choose a confident, charismatic, emotionally strong man over an insecure, self-doubting, emotionally weak man.

It's just how her instincts work.

So, when she sees that you are now so much more confident, charismatic, emotionally strong and you can also get her laughing and feeling good around you again, it's only natural that she will become open to giving you another chance.

However, if you try to get her back just by being a nice, friendly, caring ex husband, she's just not going to feel motivated enough to want to be with you again.

She will be saying things like, "Look, I appreciate all that you've been doing for me. You've been really nice lately, but I don't think we can make it work. I'm just not feeling interested anymore, I don't know why."

So if you want to get your wife back, start the process by getting her to respect you again while also re-sparking her sexual attraction and desire for you.

When you do that, her walls will come down and the love in her heart will come rushing back.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

3 Things You Should Know About Getting an Ex to Forgive You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Getting an ex to forgive is easy when you know what to say and do.

Here's what to say and do:

1. Let her know that by sincerely forgiving you, it will actually make her feel better about herself.

[image: Forgiving me will make you feel better]

Tell her that if she's carrying a grudge against you, it will make her feel unhappy until she lets go of it.

You can say something along the lines of, "I understand that right now you don't have much or any positive feelings for me anymore and probably don't ever want to forgive me. However, you forgiving me isn't about making me feel better. Instead, when you can sincerely forgive me it will make you feel better about yourself because you're not carrying around a grudge against me. You are mature enough to know that people sometimes make mistakes and learn from them in life, so you can forgive me for that. It doesn't mean that you and I then get back together, but it means that you walk away feeling lighter. Then, when you go into a future relationship with some other lucky guy, you won't be taking all the baggage from our relationship with you. You can start with a clean slate and then, when you look back at what we had together, instead of feeling angry or bitter about it, you will at least be able to see that if nothing else, we parted like two mature adults."

Of course, saying something like that to her doesn't mean you're encouraging her to move on and find another guy.

Don't worry, it actually has the opposite effect.

When you give a woman the freedom to go to another relationship baggage-free without you trying to hold her back, it feels easy for her to forgive you.

She stops focusing on all the bad things about your relationship and she starts to look at you in a more positive light.

Her guard comes down and she starts wondering, "What's going on here? This is new. Being mature and emotionally strong like this is not what I'd expect from my ex. I actually agree with him. I can forgive him. We all do make mistakes and learn from them, so it's not something that I need to hold a grudge against him for now and for the rest of my life. I can be mature and forgive him now. That will save me from having to walk around feeling bitter, resentful and angry towards him and other men for a long time."

She then forgives you and starts to look at you as you are now, rather than who used to be (i.e. the guy she dumped).

From that point onwards, you've just got to make sure that every time you interact with her, whether it's on a phone call or in person, you're making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

When you do that, she becomes more open to the idea of reconnecting with her love for you.

She's not holding onto bad memories and is looking at you based on who you are now and how you make her feel now.

That's what you want.

That's how you get an ex to forgive you and then use it to get her back naturally.

2. When she forgives you, she will open herself up to see the new you.

[image: Get your ex to open up to the new you]

Important: Make sure you change and improve yourself before asking for forgiveness.

If you ask for her forgiveness, but are still the same guy she broke up with who is making the same old mistakes, she's not going to feel very motivated to forgive you.

Instead, she's likely going to be saying, "Whatever! We're finished. Stop asking me to forgive you. I don't care what you want. How can you expect me to forgive you when you're still (fill in whatever mistake you made with her e.g. insecure, unmotivated, jealous, controlling, emotionally weak)? Just leave me alone. I don't want to talk to you anymore."

On the other hand, if you get her to forgive you and she and then make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new you, her guard will come down and you can then quickly guide her through the rest of the ex back process.

As long as you focus on showing her via your behavior, way of thinking and the way you interact with her that you're no longer the guy she remembers who hurt her, she won't be able to hold onto her negative feelings for you for much longer.

The more she experiences the new you, the more likely it is that she'll allow herself to fall back in love with you again.

3. Saying sorry to her isn't enough.

[image: Saying sorry isn't enough]

Getting an ex to forgive you usually takes more than just saying, "Look. I know I stuffed up. I'm sorry! okay? Can you please forgive me?"

You need to let her see that you have changed, rather than telling her that you have changed, or that you promise to change in future.

If she can't experience the changes in you when she interacts with you, she's just going to be thinking, "Well you're saying all the right words here, but remember: Actions speak louder than words. How can I believe anything you say when I can see that you haven't really changed at all? You're just stuck doing the same old things over and over again, hoping that if I give you another chance, things will be different somehow. Well it doesn't work like that! I've had enough of this. I am not going to put up with it anymore."

So, if you want to get your ex back, make sure that you can show her (via how you talk, think, feel, behave and act) that you've learned from your mistakes and have already begun to change.

For example: If a guy got broken up with because he lacked purpose and direction in life, to show her that he's changed, he needs to set some goals and actively start achieving them.

He doesn't have to have completely achieved the goals before she will accept that he's changed, but he just needs to start making progress.

At least take the first or second step in achieving his goals, so she can see that he is for real now and isn't all talk.

Another example is where a guy was jealous and controlling in the relationship.

To get her to see that things really are different now, he needs to now show her that he has quickly become an emotionally strong and secure man.

Another example is where a guy got broken up with because the relationship was ruined by constant fighting and arguing to the point where it became too stressful for her to handle.

So, to show her that he's changed and get her to forgive him, the guy needs to react differently when he interacts with her from now on.

When she says or does something that annoys him, rather than react in his old way (e.g. get angry, shout, sulk, insult her), he instead needs to remain confident, easy-going and light-hearted about things (e.g. make a joke about what she is saying or doing and turn it into something they can both laugh about).

He might tease her and jokingly say, "I bet you're expecting me to blow up right now aren't you? Okay, here goes! This is me blowing up. Look! I'm mad!" and playfully pretend to be mad at her and then have a laugh with her about it.

When your ex experiences you in a new way (e.g. you make her smile and laugh, she feels good in your company) she starts to believe your apology and opens up to forgiving you for real.

3 Forgiveness Mistakes to Avoid

You can get your ex to forgive you, but you first have to make her feel respect and attraction for you as a man, otherwise she might say that she forgives you, but she won't really mean it.

Reawakening her feelings of respect and attraction can be done every time you interact with her (e.g. via text message, on social media, on the phone or in person).

Here are some examples of how to do it!

You can get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

You can do it.

You can then get her to forgive you for real.

Most guys don't learn what you are learning now, so they often make one or more of these classic forgiveness mistakes, which causes the woman to remain closed up.

1. Asking for forgiveness before changing.

If you apologize to your ex before you have fully understood what you need to change, she's going to notice that and it will turn her off even further.

She may think, "Hmm! how typical! He's just saying all the things that he thinks I want to hear so I will forgive him and he can then feel better about himself because he got me back and is no longer the rejected ex. He's telling me that he's changed, but I'm not seeing any of those" changes. So, I have no reason to forgive him or give him another chance.

This is why it's so important to truly understand her real reasons for dumping you, which are often completely different to what she has told you.

For example: Sometimes a woman will break up with a guy by saying something like, "I just need some time apart," or "It's not you, it's me. I need some space."

Yet, that's not the real reason why she is breaking up with him.

She may have dumped him because he wasn't manly enough (i.e. in how he thinks, feels, behaves and acts around her), but she will say that she's just not sure whether she wants a relationship at the moment.

Leading up to the break up, a woman will usually give hints in the hope that he understands why she is losing interest.

She might say, "Why are you so sensitive all the time?" or "Why don't you stand up for yourself, rather than letting your coworkers/friends/family pick on you like that?" or "Why are you so insecure about this/that? You should be more confident. I hate it when you're not confident."

Eventually, she will start to nag him, start arguments over seemingly unimportant things and lose interest in having sex to hopefully show him that she's not happy and wants him to start paying attention and change before it's too late.

If he fails to pick up on those hints, or simply brushes over them by saying to himself, "Ah, she's always nagging me about nothing. It doesn't matter. She still loves me," or "She's being a temperamental woman again. I'm sure she'll get over it."

Women! she will eventually realize that she's not getting through to him and that a break up needs to happen.

Many guys don't realize that women really are very different to men.

As a man, if you see a problem in a relationship, you have no problem pointing it out, finding a solution and fixing it.

Yet, a woman in a relationship is different.

She doesn't want to be Mrs. Fix it and be a guy's teacher in life about how to be a man.

She wants a man to listen to her hints and take the initiative to fix problems, without needing her leadership.

Why?

She doesn't want to be in the more dominant position. She wants to be your girl.

She doesn't want to feel like she has to guide you through life.

She wants to relax into your masculine direction and know that you are man enough to notice problems, find a solution and fix it rather than taking her love for granted and not changing, or lacking masculinity by expecting her to "be the man" and fix it.

So, the question is: Do you know exactly what your ex wants you to change about yourself before she will truly forgive you and take you back?

Here are some questions that might help you better understand where you went wrong in the relationship with her and what you need to change:

- Did she ever complain that you were wasting too much time watching TV, playing video games or hanging out with your buddies? This was her way of encouraging you to become more focused and goal driven in your life. She wanted you to get clear on your big plan for your life and start following through on it, rather than thinking like a younger guy who hasn't yet worked out who he is and become a man.

- Did she ever complain about you not noticing something new about her appearance (e.g. a new dress or hairstyle, she lost weight)? This was her way of saying that she was feeling taken for granted and neglected.
- Did she ever encourage you to take up a hobby or sport, or go out more with your friends? This was her way of telling you that you were being too clingy and needy and should have been living a more balanced lifestyle that wasn't completely focused on her.
- Did she ever get mad at you for not making decisions in the relationship? This was her way of telling you that she was wearing the pants in the relationship and she didn't like it.

There are obviously many more reasons why women break up with men (I cover more than 70 of them in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System), but that should be enough now to get you thinking about where you might have gone wrong with her.

Remember: If you ask for her forgiveness and you still don't know what she really wants (usually different to what she has told you), she's just going to keep saying "No" to your requests to get back with her.

2. Trying to make her feel sorry for you.

Not knowing how else to get a woman to forgive him, a guy will sometimes try to make her feel sorry for him, by saying something like, "I know I stuffed up badly, but if you don't forgive me I'll never be able to live with myself. Please just say you understand and that we can at least try to be friends. I can't live without you. I have been a complete mess since you left me. I can't focus at work, I can't eat properly and I haven't had a good night sleep since. Please just give me another chance. I am begging you."

Yet, rather than making her feel like she should forgive him, it usually causes a woman to become more resentful and turned off.

Why?

A woman doesn't want to be emotionally blackmailed (i.e. made to get back with him because she feels so much pity for him).

What a woman really wants is to forgive her ex because he's made the effort to improve himself and become a better man, not because she has to out of pity or guilt.

If she feels sorry for him, she won't be able to respect him or look up to him, which will make it impossible for her to have sexual, romantic feelings for him and as a result, the relationship just won't work.

So, don't waste time seeking her pity because of how sad, depressed, lost or lonely you have felt since the break up.

Getting an ex to forgive you comes from sparking her feelings of respect, attraction and love, not on trying to make her feel guilty.

If you want her back, just focus instead on saying and doing the types of things that will show her that youâ€”ve moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you.

When she sees that youâ€”ve changed for real, she will be able to forgive you because it feels like the right thing to do, not because she feels sorry for you.

When she forgives you, she will feel a lot of respect and attraction for you and will then begin to reconnect with her original feelings of love for you.

3. Thinking that forgiveness will make her want you back.

When a guy asks his ex to forgive him, she sometimes refuses because sheâ€”s afraid he might take it the wrong way.

She might say to herself, *â€”I know that my ex wants me to forgive him, but I donâ€”t want him to think that everything will then be perfect and we can go back to being a happy couple again. Iâ€”m not ready to do that, and I donâ€”t know if I will ever be ready to take him back. So, Iâ€™m going to tell him that I canâ€™t forgive him yet and need time to think about it. During that time, Iâ€™m going to try to move on without him.*â€”

So, when asking for your exâ€”s forgiveness, you have to make it clear to her that by forgiving you, youâ€”re not expecting her to take you back.

For example: You might say something like, *â€”I hope that you can forgive me so that we can both move on from what happened to us in a more positive way. This doesnâ€”t mean that Iâ€”m expecting you to take me back just because youâ€”re willing to forgive me. I understand that I hurt you and right now getting back together is something you canâ€”t see yourself doing. Thatâ€”s okay. I respect your decision. Being able to forgive me is a new start for both of us as we go our separate ways, or just remain friends.*â€”

Saying something like that to her is like hitting a reset button where both you and her can start over with a clean slate.

[image: Starting off with her on a clean slate]

From there, you need to use every interaction you have with her (via text, social media, on a phone call, and in person) to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction.

Her guard will come down and you can then guide her back into an even better relationship with you than you had with her before.

[image: Lead the way and get her back]

Just make sure that you are prepared to go all the way to get her back.

Donâ€™t start the ex back process and give up because she initially says, “No.” Be confident, re-attract her and turn that “No” into a “Yes!”

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Will My Ex Ever Forgive Me and Realize Her Mistake?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

It depends.

If you genuinely didn't do anything wrong, then yes – she will eventually realize her mistake and regret it, but by then it might be years from now.

If you did do something wrong that you don't know of (e.g. she wanted you to be more manly, but didn't tell you that and broke up with you saying, "I just don't feel the same way anymore" and didn't tell you the real reason), then she's not going to regret it.

Instead, she's likely just going to be thinking, "My life is so much better now. I know that I made the right decision when I broke up with my ex because he had no clue what I really wanted and is most likely still the same."

To make your ex forgive you and realize her mistake, you've got to understand what truly caused her to break up with you.

For example:

- Did you give her the kind of attraction experience that she secretly wanted in her relationship with you (e.g. she might have wanted you to be more determined and driven, rather than focusing all your attention on her, or she might have wanted you to be more ballsy, rather than being too nice or a pushover)?
- Did you become insecure and turn her off (e.g. regularly asking her to reassure you that she loved you and wouldn't leave you, or feeling very jealous when she did something without you, or even just looked at another guy)?
- Did you guide her into deeper feelings of love over time, or did you let the love fade away?

When you understand where you really went wrong, you can then focus on changing the things that will truly matter to her.

So, if your ex is currently pushing you away and saying things like, "Look, you've got to face it! I'm not going to change my mind about us. It's over," it simply means that the way you're coming across to her now, is still making her feel the same way she felt when she broke up with you.

Basically, nothing about your behavior now is making her feel that you've changed, or even that you know how to change.

So, if you want your ex to forgive you and realize her mistake, you have to show her that you've moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you.

When you make some changes and improvements to the way you are talking to her and interacting with her (e.g. you're more confident, emotionally strong, self-assured and driven now), it sparks her feelings for you again.

[image: Creating a spark via text]

She then begins to feel some respect and attraction for the new you and wonders if she made a mistake by leaving you.

When that thought process begins in her mind, then it becomes possible to get her to forgive you because she is now feeling more open towards you and the possibility of giving the relationship another chance.

However, if you just carry on being the same guy and making the same old mistakes that you made before the break up with her (e.g. being insecure, having no real plan for your life or not following through on your big plans, letting her push you around) she will just keep saying, â€œSorry, I canâ€™t forgive you. You need to accept that weâ€™re through.â€

3 Mistakes to Avoid if You Want Her to Forgive You

If you want your ex to forgive you and realize her mistake, you have to actively get her to reconnect with the positive feelings she has for you (e.g. respect, love, attraction, affection), and make her stop thinking of you in a negative way.

You can only do that if youâ€™re saying and doing the types of things that are going to build on her feelings of love, respect and attraction, rather than saying and doing the types of things that were turning her off in the past, or that have been turning her off since she broke up with you.

So, with that in mind, here are 3 common mistakes to avoid making at this point of the ex back process:

1. Remember: Waiting around for a woman for months or even years usually results in a man losing confidence in his attractiveness to women.

[image: Wasting time waiting for ex to shown signs of interest]

Going through a serious break up can really dent a manâ€™s confidence and self-esteem.

Sometimes, a guy might wait around for months or years for his ex to forgive him and realize her mistake, but when she doesnâ€™t come back, or even make an effort to contact him, he may begin to doubt his attractiveness as a man.

For example: He might say to himself, â€œWhy hasn't she contacted me and asked to get back together? What am I going to do now? Remain single and alone? I will never be able to get myself another beautiful woman like her. If my ex wonâ€™t forgive me and take me back, what are the chances of me starting over with another woman? Most women these days arenâ€™t interested in ordinary guys like me. Theyâ€™re after good-looking guys with big muscles and lots of money. I just canâ€™t compete with that. Iâ€™m going to end up single and lonely for the rest of my life. Maybe I just need to wait a little longerâ€|hopefully she will realize her mistake and contact me.â€

Yet, hereâ€™s the thingâ€|

In most cases, a guy's looks, muscles or clothes are not as attractive to a woman as his ability to attract her emotionally.

For example:

- Is he emotionally strong, confident and self-assured, or is he insecure, self-doubting and fearful?
- Can she look up to him, respect him and feel proud to call him her man, or does she look down on him and feel embarrassed by him?

- Is he more masculine than her in the way he thinks, feels, behaves and takes action in life, or does she feel like more of “the man” or like a neutral friend around him?
- Can he lead the way and be a dominant man while also being loving and respectful towards her, or does he let her push him around and dominate him?
- Is he a man who is rising through the levels of life and reaching for his true potential, or is he hiding behind her and the relationship?
- Does she feel loved, respected, appreciated and taken care of, or does she feel taken for granted?

These are the kinds of things that a woman looks for and finds most attractive in a man.

So, don’t waste a lot of time sitting around putting yourself down because your ex hasn’t contacted you yet.

You can re-attract her and you can attract other women.

Watch this video for some examples of how to attract your ex!

If you want her back, just make sure that you focus on truly understanding what really turned your ex off about you and then begin fixing those things about yourself.

For example: A woman might have broken up with a guy because he was too insecure and self-doubting.

If he tries to get her back, or tries to get a new woman without fixing that first, he will just keep getting rejected or dumped.

He might then say, “See! I was right! Women just don’t go for ordinary guys like me. I’m not attractive and that’s why I’m all alone. I am doomed to be single and lonely for the rest of my life. Women are too picky and I’m just not good enough. I’ll never be good enough. There’s nothing I can do about this.”

On the other hand, if he makes some adjustments to his thinking and behavior (e.g. becomes more confident and emotionally strong), not only will he begin to attract new beautiful women, but he will also become more attractive to his ex.

She will be able to see for herself that he has really changed and is now the type of guy she can look up to and respect.

When that happens, she will naturally want to forgive him.

2. Don’t develop a fear of getting into another relationship because you are worried you’ll just get dumped again.

Right now, the idea of getting into another relationship might fill you with dread, emotional pain and a sick feeling in your stomach.

You might even be thinking, “Once bitten, twice shy. There’s no way I’m going to let another woman get that close to me, become a huge part of my life and then leave me. I’m not going to put myself through that again.”

Yet, you will never be truly happy as a man until you can accept that you can improve and life can get better.

Your past mistakes don’t need to define you. Instead, just use them to make you stronger.

Just because you messed up with her in the past, it doesn't mean that you're going to mess up the relationship when you get her back.

You can do better this time.

You have learned from the experience and become a better man, right?

If not, just get started on that.

For example: Imagine that a guy got broken up with by his woman because he lacked purpose and direction in life.

He usually just around watching TV, drinking, hanging out with his buddies or playing video games and avoiding making progress in life in his spare time.

So, his woman eventually got sick and tired of the lack of progress and how unsafe she felt with him when she imagined their future together, so she dumped him.

However, after the break up, he realized his mistake and went about setting some big goals for his life and then started actively working towards achieving them.

He doesn't have to have already achieved the goals to be able to impress his ex, but he does need to at least make some initial progress so she can see that he is for real.

Another example is where a guy got broken up with because he was too insecure and self-doubting. After the break up, he focuses on becoming a more emotionally strong and confident man.

Then, when he interacts with his ex and she tests him (e.g. giving mixed signals, not laughing at his jokes, being distant), he remains confident and doesn't get insecure or nervous like he used to.

She then automatically feels a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new and improved version of him.

By the way!

If a guy makes those changes to himself after the break up and then interacts with new women, they are going to be interested in him and the relationship is going to be so much better because he's at a different level as a man now.

He's not the insecure or unmotivated guy that he used to be, so a woman isn't going to want to leave him.

Women know how difficult it is to find an emotionally strong, driven guy who is also a good guy, so if he's a good guy, women just aren't going to want to get rid of him.

As you can see, stopping yourself from having another relationship because you're afraid of being hurt, betrayed and dumped again is a waste of time.

When you focus on improving yourself as a man, you will naturally begin to attract women and enjoy your choice of women.

If you want to get your ex back that is fine, but if you don't, just know that it is possible for you to have your choice of women.

3. Don't miss out on opportunities to be with other women because you are worried that she will be mad if she finds out.

[image: Getting used to being the lonely, single guy]

A guy might sometimes decide that he's not going to interact with or date another woman, in case his ex finds out and believes that he's over her.

This is one of the most common mistakes that I see guys make because they don't realize the way that a woman's attraction works.

Women are more attracted to guys who other women find attractive.

It's just how it works.

Most guys don't realize that and worry that if they date other women while waiting for her, she will explode with anger, feel betrayed and never, ever want to get back together with him again.

Yet, although it's true that many women will get very angry when they find out, it's also true that it makes her feel so much more attracted to her ex because a woman's attraction works differently to a man's.

Guys who don't understand how a woman's attraction works might say to themselves, "I don't want my ex to realize her mistake and decide to forgive me, only for her to find out that I've been seeing other women while we were apart. She will think that I never loved her and that I'm untrustworthy and then she'll never want to be with me again. Dating other women will just make her mad at me again and this time around she'll never take me back. I know what she's like. She used to hate it when other women showed me interest. I need to show her that she's the one for me, so I'm going to just wait for her even if she sleeps with other guys during that time. When she realizes how much she means to me and that I can't move on because of her, she will realize that I am the one for her, forgive me and take me back."

Yet, that's not how it works!

Women aren't attracted to guys who are afraid of them and what they might think.

Making a woman your sole purpose for living, being emotionally dependent on her and trying to suck up to her by remaining single and alone is one of the fastest ways to lose her respect and turn her off.

So, don't stop yourself from meeting other women just to impress your ex.

If you are single, lonely and feeling depressed and lost without her, you're actually making yourself less attractive to her.

Women feel attracted to good, loving men who go after what they want in life and don't put up with BS.

If she is currently saying, "I need more time" or, "I'm not sure" and has been saying that for months, then you can almost guarantee that she will say something like this to you soon, "Umm...there's something I have to tell you. I've met someone else. Sorry. We're in love, we're moving in together and he has asked me to tell you to stop contacting me. So, please respect our wishes and stop contacting me."

That kind of message sucks, especially for the kind of honest, good men who wait around being loyal to a woman who just isn't going to be loyal back.

So, if you have been waiting for her to make up her mind for a long time, don't waste anymore time.

Make her feel the pain of losing an amazing man like you by hooking up with some new women.

That doesn't mean you have to go out and date a new woman every night.

Instead, it simply means you should start to move on, so she feels the pain of losing you and then realizes her mistake, forgives you and takes you back.

By the way!

If you don't want to be with any other women, I have an alternative technique that you can use to get her back where you get her back without ever having to hug, kiss or sleep with another woman.

I teach that technique in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System

When You Change How She Feels, She Will Want to Forgive You

[image: Make her feel attracted to the new and improved you]

If your ex is currently saying things like, "Forget it. I can't forgive you. It's over between us," it simply means that your current approach has been convincing her that anything about you has really changed.

You're still the same guy that was turning her off and you haven't yet figured out how to make her feel differently about you.

Don't worry you can change that.

If you want her back, you have to start actively make her have feelings for the new and improved you.

When you do that, she will then become open to forgiving your past mistakes and will begin to enjoy how she feels around the new you.

How strong her feelings are for you is pretty much within your control from now on.

It all comes down to what you say and do when you interact with her.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Breaking Up and Getting Back Together: Statistics

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Over the years, there have been many studies conducted on couples who break up and get back together.

According to these studies, the age of the couple and the seriousness of the relationship will be the main determining factor about whether they get back together or not.

For example:

- In 2009 RenÃ© Dailey from the Department of Communication Studies at the University of Texas, found that approximately 65% of U.S. college students had broken up and then gotten back together again.
- A 2012 study conducted by S. Halpern-Meekin, W. D. Manning, P. C. Giordano, M. A. Longmore (Relationship Churning in Emerging Adulthood: On/Off Relationships and Sex With an Ex) published in the Journal of Adolescent Research found that 44% of young adults aged 17 to 24, reported breaking up and getting back together again, with 53% admitting to having sex with an ex.
- According to a 2013 study conducted by Amber Vennum, an assistant professor of Family Studies and Human Services at Kansas State University, about 37% of couples living together, and 23% of married couples have broken up and then gotten back together again.
- Earlier studies on married couples (Kitson, 1985; Wineberg & McCarthy, 1994), found that between 10-17% of married couples separated and then got back together again, and about 40% of separated married couples attempted a reconciliation (Bumpass, Castro Martin, & Sweet, 1991; Wineberg, 1996a).
- Finally, some studies found that couples in less committed relationships were less likely to get back together again after a breakup than couples who were living together or married.
- According to research conducted by Nancy Kalish, Ph.D., professor emeritus of psychology at California State University, Sacramento, married couples that reunite after divorce have a 72% chance of staying together for life.

The Statistics Look Bad Because They Aren't 100% Accurate

[image: Get your ex back - reunited couples]

The statistics show anywhere from 10% to 72% chance of getting back together after a break up, which isn't very encouraging if you want a 100% chance to get your woman back.

However, the good news is that the statistics above do not take into account the fact that men can now seek help online and learn how to get their woman back.

Based on my years of online experience helping men to get women back, I see way better numbers than those listed above.

[image: Successfully getting an ex back]

Most men are able to get another chance with their woman, even if they start the ex back process at a point where she has absolutely no feelings for him anymore.

The fact is, statistics rarely tell the whole story of what is really going on in today's society, which is changing so quickly.

Pretty much all of the studies that have been done on break ups, separations and divorces are usually based on couples who broke up and then didn't know how to get each other back.

The couple may have gone to counselling (e.g. if they were married or in a serious, long term relationship), but counsellors will rarely, if ever, teach a man how to re-attract a woman and will simply tell him to be nicer to her, listen and all the kinds of things that he's already been doing and that hasn't been working.

As a result, many men feel lost, don't know how to get their woman back and end up making rookie mistakes like these:

1. Begging, pleading, asking for another chance even though he hasn't really changed.

[image: Begging and pleading - low success rate]

Not knowing what else to do, a guy will often beg and plead for another chance, even though he hasn't changed or doesn't even know what or how to change to make her happy.

When a guy is begging, pleading and generally putting himself in an emotionally vulnerable position, he actually becomes less attractive to his ex, and his chances of getting her back become diminished. Why?

A woman wants to be in a relationship with a man she can look up to, respect and feel attracted to; in other words, a man who is confident, emotionally strong, focused and determined.

So, when a guy is begging, crying, asking her to give him another chance, he's not making her feel like she can look up to him and respect him.

Instead she's seeing him as someone who is insecure, needy and emotionally weak, which turns her off even more and causes her to think, "I don't want to get back with him. If he's behaving like this now, what happens when he has to deal with something serious in our relationship (e.g. an illness or death, losing his job)? He will probably expect me to guide him and be the stronger one. I don't want to do that. I want a man I can look up to and rely on, not the other way around."

Yet, here's the thing|

All of the statistics above don't take into account the fact that I now provide this free video that helps guys understand what to say and do to recover from the mistake of begging and pleading to their woman|

As you can see from the video above, begging and pleading to her and turning her off like that isn't the end of the world.

You can recover from a mistake like that.

Another rookie ex back mistake is|

2. Trying to convince her to give him another chance, rather than changing how she feels so she feels motivated to try again.

[image: Can you convince your ex to give you another chance?]

One of the most common reactions that guys have when they get broken up with is to try to convince their ex to change her mind.

For example: A guy might get into debates or discussions with his ex and say things like, “After everything we shared, the least we can do is try to make things right between us. Please just give you and me one more chance,” or “How can you just let our love die like this? I love you more than anything in the world. Don’t do this to me” in the hopes that she’ll change her mind.

Yet, a woman will rarely (if ever) change her mind based on explanations.

The only way a woman will get back together again with her ex, is if he triggers her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him.

Watch this video to understand why!

A lot of guys who don’t get their ex woman back try to convince her to give him another chance and when she says, “No” they give up.

Yet, now a guy can visit my site, learn how to re-attract her and get the relationship back together.

So, for a guy who is wondering, “What are my chances of getting my ex back based on the statistics of couples breaking up and getting back together?” the studies don’t offer much hope.

However, as mentioned earlier, what the statistics don’t show is that these days help is available online.

5 Tips to Get Your Ex Back ASAP

Men from all over the world are quietly getting their woman back and getting on with enjoying a happy relationship with her by doing the following 5 things:

1. Understand her real reasons for breaking up.

The main reason why a woman will break up with a guy is because something about his behavior, way of thinking and attitude has been really turning her off.

For example:

- He took her for granted (e.g. stopped making her feel loved and appreciated, stopped noticing her efforts to look good for him, stopped being a man of his word, treated her badly and expected her to put up with it).
- He became too insecure and clingy in the relationship (e.g. stopped having a social life outside of his relationship with her, kept needing her to reassure him of her love, didn’t allow her to spend any time away from him because he didn’t trust her or simply needed to be with her for his sense of identity and happiness in life).
- He was too nice and always let her dominate him (e.g. he let her make most or all of the decisions, let her win every argument or disagreement in the hope that it would make her happy).
- He wasn’t following through on his big dreams and ambitions for life (e.g. he spent all of his time sitting at home watching TV or playing video games, drinking or hanging out with his buddies).

- He stopped making her feel girly and feminine around him (e.g. she felt more like a friend or a mother figure rather than his girl).

By figuring out caused your ex's feelings for you to change, you can then begin to turn things around by making some attractive improvements to the way you think, feel, talk, act and behave to show her that you've learned from your mistakes and become a better man since the break up.

You are now a man that respect, look up to and feel sexually attracted to again.

2. Make changes to what is really important to her, which is usually completely different to what she says is important.

[image: Making your ex have feelings for you again]

In most cases, a woman will rarely come out and say to a guy, "I want you to change these 7 specific things about yourself or else I'm going to break up with you."

Instead, she will have likely given hints and suggestions in the hopes that he'll figure it out on his own.

For example: A guy might be in the habit of always canceling plans with his girlfriend (fiancée or wife) at the last minute, without giving her much notice or taking her feelings into consideration.

She might then say something like, "I was really looking forward to that dinner/movie/concert," rather than coming out and saying to him directly, "You let me down again! You're now in the habit of taking me for granted and I don't like it. If you keep doing this, I'm going to break up with you. You need to take my feelings into consideration. If you don't change that, I will end the relationship and when I do, I will say something like 'I just don't feel the same way anymore' rather than reminding you of what you've been doing wrong and what you need to fix to get me back."

So, why doesn't a woman just come out and say exactly is bothering her and what the guy can do to change?

The main reason is because most women don't want to be a man's teacher or mother in life and have to teach him how to be the kind of man she can look up to, respect and feel attracted to.

A woman doesn't want to do that.

She doesn't want to dominate him and feel like she needs to take care of him like he's a little child.

She wants him to figure out how to be the man that she needs, without her having to help him or guide him.

She also doesn't want to give him the exact instructions on how to get her back, because that would make her begin to become his teacher on how to become a man.

So, rather than getting stuck in that role, she will simply say something like, "I don't feel the same way anymore" or "I need time apart to think things through."

Here's the thing!

If you don't fully understand what your ex wants you to change about yourself, you might be offering her what she doesn't want.

For example: A woman might want her guy to be more ballsy and stand up to her rather than putting up with her BS, but he keeps offering to treat her better and spend more time with her instead.

She thinks, "Hhhhâ€¦he just doesn't get it" and doesn't tell him, "Hey, man up. Stop letting me disrespect you like I do. Be loving and respectful to me when you stand up for yourself, but stand up for yourself. Stop being such a pushover!"

Alternatively, she might want him to be more ambitious and driven in his life, but heâ€¦s apologizing for taking her for granted.

So, itâ€¦s very important that you understand your exâ€¦s real reasons for breaking up.

If you try to get her back by offering to change the wrong things about yourself, she will feel as though you donâ€¦t understand her, which will make her feel even less respect and attraction for you.

3. Reactivate her feelings during 1-3 interactions on the phone and in person.

The fastest way to get an ex back is by actively re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Where many guys go wrong is by thinking that a womanâ€¦s feelings will change all by themselves without any effort on their part.

So, rather than actively making her have feelings for him over the phone and in person, a guy might then sit back and wait for weeks and sometimes even months to hear from his ex.

Then, when she doesn't contact him he assumes that she just doesn't want to be with him anymore and there's nothing he can do about it.

The fact is, if a woman doesnâ€¦t have any feelings for her ex (e.g. because he really turned her off by being very insecure, clingy and controlling), not hearing from him will actually be a relief.

She may think, *â€¦Phew! That was easier than I expected. I thought my ex was going to hound me to give him another chance. Instead, he just went away quietly. Now I can get on with my life without worrying about him anymore. I guess him and I weren't meant to be. I haven't really been bothered about him not being in my life, so I suppose that means I should be with someone else instead. If he was the one, I would be missing him.*â€¦

Yet, here's the thingâ€¦!

In most cases, a woman will only contact her ex (after heâ€¦s been ignoring her for a long time) when sheâ€¦s still in love with him and wants to get back together again, or if sheâ€¦s been struggling to find another guy to replace him.

In almost all other instances, the woman will just close that chapter of her life and move on because her ex hasn't said or done anything to reactivate her feelings.

So, if you want to get back together with your ex, donâ€¦t waste a lot of time avoiding her and hoping she will come back to you on her own.

Instead, get her on a phone call with you right away and begin triggering her feelings of desire by making her smile, laugh and enjoy the thrill of talking to you again.

Then, get her to meet up with you in person.

In most cases, all it takes is 2 to 3 interactions where the guy is sparking her feelings (on the phone and in person), before a really stubborn woman will begin to drop her guard and open herself up to you again.

In easy cases, all it takes is one phone call and one meet up and the couple is back together.

However, with women who don't have any feelings for their ex anymore, it usually takes 2 to 3 interactions to fully get her back.

Even if she tries to fight it, her mind will be telling her, â€œHeâ€™s not the same guy anymore. Maybe I should give him another chanceâ€ and her resolve to stay mad at him will fade away.

4. Get her to open up to giving the relationship another try.

So, how can you spark a woman's feelings for you and make her open up to giving the relationship another try?

One of the ways is by using humor.

When you focus on making a woman smile, laugh, and feel good to be interacting with you, it makes it very difficult for her to hang on to her angry, negative feelings about you.

For example: If a guy is talking to his ex on the phone and she is being cold and unfriendly towards him, it's easy for him to just give up on trying to talk to her and end the call.

However, if he lets her push him away like that so easily, he will miss out on the opportunity to use her unwillingness to talk to him as a way of sparking her feelings again, and at the same time gain back her respect by handling her bitchiness so well.

How does it work?

Imagine that you're talking to your ex on the phone and she says something like, â€œWhy are you calling me? Do you think I have nothing else going on in my life just because we're broken up?â€

A common reaction that a guy might have is to just say something like, â€œNo, that's not what I'm thinking,â€ but nothing about that is going to spark her feelings and make her feel attracted.

On the other hand, if she says, â€œWhy are you calling me? Do you think I have nothing else going on in my life just because we're broken up?â€ you can respond by saying something like, â€œOf course you have things going on in your life. Let me think there's eating, sleeping, washing your hair, reading, watching TV, washing your hairâ€¦â€ Yep, I'm guessing there's a lot of hair washing going on. I remember that was your favorite pastime when we were together. You used to watch your hair like 5 times a week. That hair of yours keeps you busyâ€ and then have a laugh with her about that.

She will likely laugh, or at least smile how you handled her bitchy attitude in a confident, but loving way.

She will then feel curious about your newfound relaxed, confident attitude towards her, which will naturally spark some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

When that happens, her resistance begins to fall away and she opens herself up to the idea of giving the relationship another try.

From there, it's up to you to guide her through the rest of the ex back process.

5. Guide her back into a relationship that feels better than it ever did before.

[image: Guide your woman back into a relationship]

When you spark a woman's feelings for you again and then build on it, all her walls begin to come down and she literally wants to be back in your arms again.

The thought of hugging you, kissing you and even having sex with you all starts to feel so good again.

She wants it.

She might try to fight it at first by telling herself, "Why am I thinking of him in that way? I broke up with him for a reason. I don't want him back. It's over. Why am I acting like a silly schoolgirl who is in love all over again? Why do I want to have sex with him again?"

Yet, her heart will be full of new, pleasurable feelings for you that she won't be able to ignore.

What she probably doesn't realize now is that falling back in love with you will be one of the best feelings that she's ever going to experience in life.

Getting back with an ex who has really changed and can now make her feel attracted in new ways is an amazing experience for a woman.

It makes her feel a kind of love, attraction and respect that she just can't experience in any other way.

When you get her back, she will realize that if she had let you go, she would now be missing out on the greatest love of her life.

Remember: The key to getting her back is making her have such strong feelings for you that she feels she can't stop herself from wanting to be around you again.

What a lot of guys don't realize is that the breaking up and getting back together statistics available online rarely show the real picture.

So, while professors and psychologists might focus on the old numbers from outdated studies, today's men are quietly getting help online, getting their women back and then enjoying a happy relationship with her once again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

2 Examples of What to Say to Convince Her to Take Me Back One More Time

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Important: These examples will only work if you reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you first.

If you just say these things to her without making her experience renewed feelings for you first, she won't feel enough for you to say yes, or even consider, taking you back one more time.

To begin with, there are two examples of how you convince your ex to take you back:

1. Make her feel understood and show that you've moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you, by being serious and sincere when you talk to her.

Watch this video to understand how that works!

2. Break the ice with humor and get her smiling, laughing and feeling happy to be talking to you again, so that she drops her guard and opens herself up to the idea of getting back together again.

Watch this video to understand how that works!

If you use either one of those approaches, you should be able to convince her to take you back one more time.

Let's have a look at those examples in more detail!

Example 1: Making her feel understood.

[image: Making your ex feel understood]

Imagine that you're talking to your ex and she is saying things like, "It's really over between us. There's nothing that will make me take you back one more time."

You can say something like, "Hey, I know that right now, you feel like there's nothing good left between us. I get it. I messed up and clearly you've gotten to the point where you can now only focus on the bad stuff between us. All the good things that happened between us doesn't matter to any more. I understand why you feel that way and I don't blame you. If I were you, I would also be saying there's nothing that can convince me to take you back one more time. However, one thing I want you to understand is that neither one of us is perfect. No one is. We both made some mistakes in our relationship, but that doesn't mean we are bad people; it simply means we made some mistakes and learned from that, just like other people do. I accept full responsibility for my past mistakes, but I would appreciate it if you could see me for who I am now, not who I was back then. I'm not that guy anymore. I don't expect you to believe that right away, and I don't expect you to want to get back together again now because you're feeling hurt. That's fine and it's your decision and I respect it. However, all I ask is that you at least let us try and be friends for now. Let's get to know each other again based on who we are now, rather than who we were in the past."

Naturally, saying something like that to her isn't going to automatically make her think, "Wow! My ex has changed so much. I love him now. Let's get back together again," but it does calm things down and gets her to be more reasonable.

She begins to see that you have already matured and become a better man since the break up, which makes her feel some respect and attraction for you.

That's what you want.

When you can make her feel some respect for you again, it makes her drop her guard, even if just a little bit.

From that moment, you've got to continue saying and doing the types of things that will build on her feelings of respect and attraction for you, rather than saying and doing the types of things that were turning her off in the past, or that have been turning her off since she broke up with you.

Example 2: Making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be interacting with you.

[image: Tips for contacting an ex via text or phone call after a break up]

Imagine that you're talking to your ex and she says something like, I don't love you anymore, or You mean nothing to me now. It's over, you need to move on.

Instead of pleading with her, or trying to convince her to change her mind by saying things like, Please! I'll do anything you want me to do. Just give me one more chance, or I love you! What about what we had together – doesn't that count for anything? you can use humor to get rid of the seriousness of what she is saying.

Using humor to deflect serious comments like that takes away the anger and allows her to be more relaxed and open when talking to you.

So, if your ex says something like, You mean nothing to me now. It's over, you need to move on, you can respond by joking with her and saying something along the lines of, What do you mean I need to move on? I got engaged last week and then laugh with her about that.

By approaching a potentially serious conversation in a funny way, she's more likely to relax, smile, laugh and be more open to talking to you and agree to catch up and see you in person.

Using humor to get her laughing creates some positive feelings in her, which makes her stop only focusing on the negatives about you.

Even if she tries to fight it, she can't stop herself from beginning to feel respect for you for having the confidence and the social skills to make her laugh and smile in a serious moment like that.

However, once again, that's not the magic solution to convincing a woman to take you back one more time.

It's just a great technique to lower her guard and get her open to going through the ex back process with you.

After you make her smile and laugh, you then need to get serious and show her that you respect her decision.

You might then say to her, I was just kidding. Seriously though, I understand why you're feeling like that about me now and I accept your decision about the break up. I now understand what I did wrong when we were together, and I'm sorry that I hurt you. I don't expect you to want to get back with me, but I do want you to know that I'm sorry and I still love you, even if you and I never, ever get back together again.

From then on, every time you interact with her (e.g. via text, on social media, over the phone, or in person), you need to focus on reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction for you, by displaying some of the traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. confidence, maturity, humor, determination, emotional masculinity).

You need to keep showing her (based on how you talk to her, behave, think and take action) that you're no longer the same guy she broke up with.

That's how to convince her to take you back one more time.

She feels convinced because she feels good, not because you are giving her lots of good reasons to take you back.

She feels attracted, respectful towards you and is enjoying interacting with you, so getting back together seems like a good thing to do.

4 Mistakes to Avoid When Trying to Get Her to Take You Back One More Time

You can get her to take you back one more time, but if you make any or all of these rookie mistakes, it will slow the process down and potentially push her away for good.

The first rookie mistake that guys make is

1. Asking for another chance without improving the things that she is really breaking up with him for.

[image: Please remember the good times]

If you're asking your ex for another chance without improving the things that she is really breaking up with you for (e.g. she wants you to be more manly, but you are trying to get her back by treating her even better than you have before), she's just going to keep pushing you away and saying things like, "Sorry, you and I aren't a match anymore. It's over between us. I get used to it. You just don't understand what I want or need."

To reactivate your ex's feelings of respect and attraction for you again, you first need to understand the real reasons why she broke up with you.

Then, when you next interact with her, you can show her that you really have changed in the ways that are important to her.

For example: If a woman dumped a guy because he was insecure and too emotionally sensitive, he has to show her that he's become emotionally stronger since the break up.

A way to show her that he is now an emotionally strong and confident man is by behaving differently to the way she is expecting.

For instance, if she tries to get a reaction out of him by saying things like, "I hate you," or "I never want to see you again," rather than react by getting upset, or begging her to forgive him, he reacts by laughing and making a joke about it.

With the example of a guy getting dumped for not being manly enough, he needs to show her that he has now changed and can stand up for himself, while still continuing to be a loving, respectful man.

If she tries to test him by ordering him around, or telling him what to do, he can stand up for himself in an easy-going manner by joking around and saying something like, “Wow, you sure are a Miss Bossy Boots now, aren’t you? Ha ha ha, you’re funny” or, “Oh, yes Mam! Anything you say! My wish is your command” and then laugh at her and the situation.

Another example is where a woman dumped a guy because he lacked purpose and direction in life.

In a case like that, the guy needs to show her that he has now fully decided on his big goals and dreams for life and has started to make progress towards them.

When a woman can see that her guy has moved past the level that he was at when she broke up with him (without needing her help), she will naturally begin to feel some respect for him again.

When she feels respect, she can then begin to feel sexually attracted to him again and when that happens, she becomes more open to the idea of reconnecting with her feelings of love for him.

2. Promising her that he will do anything if she will just give him another chance.

[image: All I am asking for is one more chance]

It’s only natural that a guy might feel upset when he gets broken up with, especially when he is still truly in love with his girlfriend (fiancée or wife).

He might even say to himself, “I don’t want our relationship to end! I still love her. She is the only woman for me. I can’t let her go without a fight! I don’t want any other woman. I have to get her back no matter what!”

That’s totally fine, but what isn’t fine is when a guy allows that to come through as desperation when talking to his ex, which then turns her off even more.

He may begin begging and pleading with her and saying things like, “I love you so much! Please forgive me just one more time and I’ll do anything that you want me to do. I’m so sorry! Please give me one more chance. Tell me what you want me to change and I will. You name it and I will do it. You have my word on that.”

However, the very fact that he’s asking her to tell him what he needs to change about himself to make her happy, only backs up her feeling that he doesn’t yet have a clue as to what really caused her feelings for him to change.

Here’s the thing!

A woman doesn’t want to be the one to tell her guy what he’s been doing wrong, because she doesn’t want to be his teacher in life on how to be a man.

If she has to teach him how to be the man that she needs now, she fears that she will end up feeling like she has to take on that role for the rest of her life, which will make her feel like his mother or big sister.

[image: Just take me back one more time]

So, rather than promising your ex that you will do anything she wants you to do, focus instead on figuring out what happened to cause her feelings for you to change.

For example:

- If you were too emotionally sensitive, start being an emotionally strong, emotionally masculine man.

- If you lacked purpose and direction in life, get clear on your goals and start making progress. You don't have to achieve your goals now, but just get started in the direction of your goals.
- If you let her wear the pants in the relationship and it turned her off, decide that you're not going to be a pushover with her anymore.
- If you were closed up emotionally and didn't properly convey your love for her, start being emotionally fearless, but do not become a hopeless romantic and pour your heart out to her.
- If you stopped making her feel attracted to you, start attracting her in new ways.

Take action to turn things around by making the necessary improvements to yourself that will show her you've learned from your past mistakes and are now a better man.

Be a man that she can look up to, respect and feel attracted to, rather than a man that she feels sorry for, resents or looks down on.

3. Explaining all of his feelings for her in a long letter, e-mail or series of text messages.

Some guys believe that if they fully explain to their ex how they feel and how much they still care for her, she will suddenly change her mind.

In cases like that, a guy might send his ex a long letter, e-mail or a series of text messages to say things like, I still mean the world to me. Without you I'm lost. I really love you and I will do anything to get you to take me back one more time. I have never loved a woman as much as I love you. You mean so much to me. All the times we spent together are my most cherished memories in life. Do you remember the time when we and so on.

Yet, in most cases that doesn't work.

Why?

Firstly, when a woman has stopped feeling respect and attraction for a guy, him telling her all about he feels now just isn't going to matter to her.

Instead, a woman will usually think, Whatever! I've had enough and I'm moving on with my life. I'm not interested in hearing about your feelings for me anymore. I don't have feelings for you now and you still have no idea how to change that. You're trying to get me back to make yourself feel better. I feel fine without you, but you need me. I just don't feel the same way as you do anymore. You've lost me. You don't even know what will make me feel respect, attraction and love for you right now. You are trying to get me back and nothing that you are saying is hitting the mark.

She just doesn't care because he hasn't done anything to reactivate her feelings for him and is trying to get her back based on what he wants.

Even though he might be a good guy and is trying to do the right thing, she will think of him as being selfish because it's all about him getting what he wants.

Secondly, according to multiple studies, only 7% of communication between two people is based on words, while a whopping 93% is based on body language, vibe and tone of voice.

So, when a woman gets a letter, e-mail or text message, she cannot experience your body language or listen to the tonality of your voice.

She then has to guess at your state of mind, and if she currently has negative feelings towards you, she will probably perceive your words in a less than favorable way.

Instead of thinking, “That is an amazing letter. I am so moved by it. My ex obviously really cares about me. Maybe I’m being too hard on him,” she is likely thinking, “Here we go again! He’s just trying to push me into taking him back,” or “How annoying. He thinks telling me that he loves me in a text or e-mail is actually going to change all the bad things he did to me. Think again!”

So, don’t waste time pouring your heart out to your ex in a letter, e-mail or text message.

Instead, focus on getting her on a phone call where you can reactivate some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you by making her laugh and smile, and then get her to meet up with you in person.

4. Trying to show her how much he cares, rather than making her care by reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction.

Sometimes, a guy may think to himself, “Maybe if I buy my ex some roses, pay for her rent, and be extra nice and supportive towards her, she will see how much she really means to me and will then take me back one more time.”

Yet, what he doesn’t realize is that even if a woman accepts his gifts and attention, if he doesn’t do anything else to reactivate her respect and sexual attraction for him as a man, it’s not going to matter that much to her that he is trying to show her how much he still cares.

So, rather than wasting a lot of time trying show your ex that you care by getting her material things, focus instead on making her care by reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction.

You can do that by letting her experience positive emotions such as respect, attraction and happiness, every time that you interact with her from now on.

[image: Making your ex have feelings for you again]

The more that you reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you, the faster it makes the negatives of your relationship seem less important to her.

She naturally begins to feel drawn to you in a way that feels good to her, and she can’t stop herself from wanting to interact with you via text, on the phone and in person.

Even though she might have previously been saying, “I just don’t have feelings for you anymore. I’m over you,” she will now start to think about taking you back one more time just to see how it goes.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Convincing an Ex to Get Back Together, Even Though She Has a New Guy

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The best way to convince an ex to get back together is to let her experience and feel attracted to the new and improved you in person, so she can see the contrast between you and him.

No doubt he will be making her feel a lot of new, positive emotions because he's a rebound, but you can beat him at that game.

You've got to meet up with her and make her feel attracted and respectful of you in new ways (e.g. attracting her with your emotional strength by getting her laughing and smiling even if she is being cold, bitchy or distant).

[image: Getting her back from her new guy]

Once you've reactivated some of her feelings for you again, she will start to look at you in a more positive light.

If she's very happy with the new guy, she probably won't be thinking about getting back with you right away, but her guard will come down.

She will start to look at you in a more positive light and since you are being so confident, charismatic and emotionally strong, she won't be able to keep thinking of you in a negative way.

To end the catch up, make sure that you get her to hug you when you are parting ways (e.g. "Okay, bring it in for a hug") and if possible, try to have a kiss goodbye as well.

If the kiss goes well, you can then try to get her to hook up with you sexually, but if you can't get the kiss â□□ don't worry.

The main thing that you need to focus on is using every interaction you have with her from now on (e.g. e-mail, text, Facebook, phone calls, in person) as an opportunity to spark her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you again.

The more that you can make her smile, laugh and feel happy when sheâ□□s interacting with you, the more open she will become to the idea of getting back together again or at least hooking up with you on the side to see how she feels.

Just remember: Your focus has to be on saying and doing the types of things that are going to draw her to you and turn her on, not push her away even more and make her think, â□□Iâ□□m so glad I broke up with my ex. My new guy is so wonderful compared to him. Iâ□□m so happy now.â□□

Mistakes to Avoid if You Want to Get Her Back From the New Guy

To ensure that you don't turn her off and make the new guy look like a better man in contrast to you, be sure to avoid making any of these classic mistakes:

1. Saying bad things about her new guy.

[image: I love you more than this new guy]

It's only natural that a guy who loves his ex woman and wants to get back with her is going to feel unhappy when he sees that she has a new man in her life.

He may start comparing himself to the new guy and thinking, "What does she see in that guy? I don't think he's that good looking. He looks like a nerd," or "I know we had our problems but I treated my ex well, but I always bought her expensive gifts and took her out to all the trendy places in town. The new guy drives an old, beat up car. He looks like such a loser!" or "I could beat that guy on the sports field any day of the week. I'm fitter and stronger than him" or, "He seems dim witted. I'm intelligent, successful and witty. All he has is a bad boy attitude. What does she see in him?"

It's fine to think that way, but if you go and say those kinds of things to your ex, she's going to assume that you're being insecure and are trying to get her to look at him in a negative light.

If your ex thinks that you are being insecure, then it will make the new guy look more attractive in comparison to you.

Why?

Women aren't attracted to insecurity.

Confidence is what turns women on and even if the new guy isn't that confident, you will make him appear more confident if you are being insecure (according to her).

So, what should you do instead?

Don't look at him as competition.

He's nothing compared to you.

You are so much better than him that he doesn't even register on your radar.

Even if you don't really believe that you are better than him, it's essential that you begin to believe it.

Why?

Confidence is what attract women, not self doubt or insecurity.

If you look up confidence in the dictionary, the definition is, "Belief in oneself and one's powers or abilities; self-confidence; self-reliance; assurance."

When it comes to getting an ex back, you need to have belief in yourself and your attractiveness to her.

Doubt that and the new guy will look more confident in contrast to your insecurity.

By the way!

As you may know, when a woman dates a new guy after a break up, he is usually very different to her ex.

In most cases, the rebound guy is simply filling in whatever emotional gaps were missing in her previous relationship.

For example: If a woman broke up with her ex because he was too clingy, needy and insecure and was using his relationship with her as an excuse to hide from his true potential in life, then the new guy will be independent, self-assured, emotionally strong and will be achieving big goals in his life.

Alternatively, if a woman's ex boyfriend (fiancé or husband) allowed her to wear the pants in the relationship, her new guy will be more dominant than her.

So, how do convince her to come back to you even though she has a new guy?

She will become interested in you again if she can see that you are not the same guy she broke up with, and the things she broke up with you about are no longer an issue.

2. Trying to explain the reasons why she should be with you, rather than making her feel strong surges of respect and attraction for you.

[image: But, I love you and you mean everything to me]

In your mind, you probably have hundreds of great reasons why your ex and you should get back together again even though she has a new guy.

For example: A guy who has been left behind by his woman might say to her, "We had so many good times together, don't you remember? I know that we can be happy again if only you will just give me another chance. I promise you that I will change this time. It won't be the same as before. We will be so much happier this time around. I love you more than anything in this world, so I know that your new guy will never be able to love you the way I do. Yes, I stuffed up, but can't you see that our love is worth fighting for?"

[image: Please just remember how you used to love me]

However, if a woman has lost respect and attraction for her ex, she's not going care how good his reasons are.

She may say something like, "Yes, it's true that we had some good times together, but that was near the beginning. Most of the relationship was me trying to tell you to change and how unhappy you were making me feel. I have a new man in my life now and don't want to go back to the annoying, frustrating life I had with you. Also, if you really loved me the way you say that you do, you wouldn't have hurt me in the first place and we would still be together. You would have listened when I told you to change, but you didn't. You just expected me to stick around and put up with it. Just accept that it's over between us and that I'm happy with my new guy."

While it might totally suck to hear your woman say something like that, the good news is that her feelings aren't permanent.

You can change the way that she feels about you.

You've got to make sure that every time you interact with her from now on, you are actively making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Don't waste time trying to convince her.

If she doesn't fully respect you at the moment, your efforts to convince her will be a whole bunch of wasted energy.

Focus on changing how she feels and her mind will then change without you having to convince her.

Don't try to change her mind and expect that she will then change how she feels on her own. You have to start by reactivating her feelings for you and then her mind will follow.

When you get her back into a relationship, you then need to deepen her feelings for you over time, rather than just expecting her to stick around because you managed to attract her back.

In a relationship, itâ€™s the manâ€™s responsibility to maintain and build on the love, respect and attraction between him and his woman.

If he fails to do that by behaving in ways that are unattractive to her (e.g. he becomes clingy and needy, he stops making her feel feminine and girly in comparison to his masculine approach, he takes her for granted), then her positive feelings for him will gradually get pushed into the background and will get replaced by negative emotions such as anger, resentment and disgust.

When that happens, she will break up with him again because sheâ€™s not feeling enough respect, attraction and love for him to feel motivated to want to stay in the relationship.

In terms of getting her back, the only thing that will convince her to leave her new man for you is when you make her feel strong surges of respect and attraction for you, so she can then reconnect with her currently inactive feelings of love for you.

She will then begin to feel that your relationship is worth fighting for and that she will be losing out if she doesnâ€™t give you another chance.

3. Losing confidence in yourself around her.

[image: Losing confidence in yourself around her]

Getting broken up with can sometimes ruin a guyâ€™s confidence in his attractiveness to his ex and to women in general.

He may start thinking, â€œI had the perfect woman and I ruined it. Iâ€™m such a loser. How could I have messed things up so badly? I donâ€™t deserve a beautiful woman like her. I need to get her back because other women arenâ€™t going to want me either. If she gives me another chance, I will do anything she wants to make sure that she is happy.â€

Then when he interacts with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person), rather than focus on showing her that he has understood what caused her to break up with him, and has moved past that level, he keeps putting himself down by going over what he did wrong in the relationship.

For example: When talking to his ex, a guy might say, â€œI really messed things up between us. Iâ€™m so sorry for hurting you. Youâ€™re so beautiful and you should be treated like a princess, yet all I did was cause you pain. I know I donâ€™t deserve you, but I really want you back in my life. I promise that Iâ€™ll do anything you want me to do to make you happy again. Please just give me another chance! Tell me what you want me to do and I will do it, I promise.â€

Yet, thatâ€™s not what a woman wants to hear.

A woman wants to see that her man can figure out what went wrong in the relationship, improve himself and then make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new and improved version of him.

If he can do that, she will be able to look up to him and respect him again.

Only then, will she be able to drop her guard and open herself up to the possibility of getting back together again.

On the other hand, if she sees that he has no confidence in himself or in his value to her anymore, she will likely think, â€œWhy should I take him back? I already have a new guy who is confident in himself and is making me happy, so why would I go back to an insecure guy who hasnâ€™t even changed?â€

Here's the thingâ€¦!

You did make some mistakes with her, but you need to stop beating yourself up over it.

Accept that you made some mistakes in the past, but also accept that it's not who you are right now.

You are a better man now, right?

Focus on that.

That's who you are now.

Every time you interact with your ex from now on, focus on showing her (via the way you think, feel, talk and behave) that youâ€¦ve moved beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you.

Let her see respect, attraction and love for the man that you are now.

4. Not becoming emotionally independent.

[image: I need my ex back. I can't function without her]

There's no doubt that you really want your ex back, otherwise you wouldn't be trying to convince her to get back together even though she has a new guy, right?

That's totally fine, but there is a big difference between wanting her back and needing her back.

Needing her back implies that you are feeling lost and can't live a normal, healthy life without her.

On the other hand, wanting her implies that you have a great life with enough friends, interests, hobbies and goals of your own, so you're not lost without her.

Instead, you love her, you want her back, you enjoy having her in your life and you want to do the right thing by her this time.

That's different.

So, if you want your ex to see you as being a better option than the new guy she is dating, you need to get to the point where you want her in your life, but you don't need her to feel happy and fulfilled.

If you can feel genuinely content in your life without her, you will automatically become more attractive to her and other women.

Remember: While emotional strength in a man is attractive, insecurity and self-doubt is not.

So, when your ex realizes that you are now a confident, emotionally strong man who is getting on with his life without her, she will automatically feel attracted to youâ€¦ even if she doesn't want to.

Attraction is an automatic reaction that humans have for each other.

If a man sees attractive traits in a woman, he doesn't have to think about whether he feels attracted; it just happens automatically.

Likewise, women automatically feel attracted to men who display attractive trait such as confidence, emotional strength, charisma, determination to succeed, high self esteem.

When you make your ex feel attracted to you, she can't stop herself from wondering, â€¦ Why is my ex so different now? Why do I like him all of a sudden? What has changed in him? He never used to be like that when we were together. I wonder if I rushed into my new relationship too quickly.

Maybe I need to get some space from my new guy and think things over, and she then begins to feel drawn to you again in a way that feels good to her.

5. Trying to make her feel sorry for you.

Sometimes, when a guy sees that his ex has a new guy in her life, he might try to make her feel pity for him by letting her know how hurt and lost he is without her.

For example: A guy might call his ex up on the phone and say things like, How can you have moved on so quickly? Didn't our relationship mean anything to you? I'm still in love with you and you're already dating some other guy? How can you be so cold-hearted? I haven't been able to eat, sleep or function properly since we broke up. I need you in my life. You are the woman for me. I don't care that you have a new guy. I want you back. You are my everything and without you, I am nothing. I'm just not interested in life unless you are in it. I've been very depressed lately. Please just give you and me another chance.

He's hoping that if she realizes how much pain he is going through being without her, she will break up with her new guy and come rushing back into his arms just like the leading ladies do in romantic Hollywood movies.

Yet, that's not how it works in real life.

In real life, a woman doesn't want to be feeling like she's doing a guy a favor by being with him.

She wants to be with a guy who makes her feel respect, attraction and love, not pity or sorrow.

It's up to her who she decides to be with and in most cases, a woman will decide to be with the guy who can make her feel the most respect, attraction and love—even if the guy isn't perfect.

The new guy won't be a perfect guy, but he will simply be making her feel more respect, attraction and love that you can currently make her feel.

Once your ex feels that (by interacting with you and feeling attracted to the new and improved you), she will begin to feel more attracted to you in contrast to him and her rebound relationship will fall apart.

She will then decide to give you another chance.

An important word there is “decide.”

In the past, a woman had to stay with her man for the sake of the children, because breaking up was considered taboo, even if he treated her badly.

She couldn't decide to leave him because it was forbidden and a woman was essentially seen as a man's property.

Yet these days, a woman can leave a man if she decides that she doesn't want to be with him anymore.

So, don't make the mistake of trying to get your ex to give you another chance based on feelings of pity or guilt.

Get her to decide that she wants to leave the new guy by giving her an improved attraction experience with you.

You can do it.

Getting Her Love Back

Right now, your ex girlfriend might be saying things like, â€œItâ€™s over between us. Iâ€™m with another guy now, so just accept it and move on.â€

Yet, even though it might feel like her feelings are set in stone and nothing that you do will change how she feels right now, it's just a temporary feeling for her.

Feelings change all the time.

Think back to when she first fell in love with you.

She really wanted to be with you and even if an ex was trying to get her back, she would have been saying, "No" because she was happy with you.

Yet, after a while, you started saying and doing things that turned her off and her love for you began to get pushed into the background of her mind.

She started focusing on the negative things about you and eventually said something like, â€œI donâ€™t love you anymore,â€ or â€œI want to break up with youâ€ or â€œI don't think we should be together anymoreâ€ or â€œI need some time apart to think about what I want.â€

In the same way, when you make some adjustments to the way you think, act, behave and interact with her, she will not be able to stop herself from feeling respect and attraction for you, which will begin to change how she feels about the new guy.

When that happens, she drops her guard and opens herself up to the idea of being with you again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Persuade My Ex to Meet Up With Me For Coffee

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Getting your ex to meet up with you for a coffee is easy in most cases because if she initially says, “No” you can still change her mind.

Here are 2 options that I’ve taught clients and they have worked pretty much every time:

Option 1: Call her, get her laughing, smiling and feeling good on a friendly phone call with you and then suggest catching up for coffee.

[image: Talking to your ex on the phone]

When you make a woman smile and laugh, she can’t stay mad at you for long even if she initially tries to act cold or distant.

Eventually, her desire to stay mad at you will fade and she will start to enjoy talking to you again.

The more light-hearted and relaxed the interaction between you and her is, the less she will be able to hold on to her negative, angry feelings about you.

For example: A guy calls his ex girlfriend, fiancée or wife with the intention of getting her to meet up with him for coffee.

He might say something along the lines of, “Hey Samantha, how are you? I’d really like to meet up for coffee sometime, what do you say?”

Yet, that’s not going to work in most cases.

Why? Nothing about what he is saying will make her think, “Sure! I’m just going to put all my negative feelings about you away and rush out to have coffee with you ASAP!”

Instead she’s likely going to say, “Why would I want to do that? It’s over between us and I don’t want to see you again.”

That’s not the reaction you want to get from her, which is why you have to make her laugh and smile first before you suggest catching up for a coffee.

Here’s how you can do it!

Imagine that you’re talking to your ex on the phone right now.

You will likely start off by saying something like, “Hey, how have you been?”

She will most-likely just say, “Fine,” or “Fine. How are you?”

You can then respond by saying something like, “I’m great! I’m meeting this really beautiful woman for coffee tomorrow at that little coffee shop we used to like! do you remember it?”

She will likely flip out and say, “What? You’re actually calling me up to tell me about your date with some other woman? You’re nuts!” at which point you can laugh and say, “Nuts am I? That’s okay, but you still haven’t told me what time I can pick you up for that coffee”

tomorrow?â□□

[image: Attracting your ex over the phone]

She will probably then realize that you were joking and begin laugh about getting caught out with your joke, while at the same time feel flattered that youâ□□re still referring to her as beautiful even though sheâ□□s your ex.

She will feel curious about the changes in you (e.g. you're so confident and are willing to joke around, rather than doubting yourself and being on your very best behavior in the hopes of impressing her) and will naturally feel some respect and attraction for you for having the balls to tease her in that way.

When that happens, she then opens herself up to the idea of talking to you again, at which point you can persuade her to meet up with you for that coffee.

For example: "I was just kidding, but anyway â□□ I think it would be fun to just catch up and say hello. We could grab a quick coffee at that place. I'm going to be busy on Monday and Wednesday, but I have Tuesday and Thursday free at the moment. Which of those days could meet up on?"

When you see her in person, just focus on building on the newfound respect and attraction that she is feeling for you and then gently guide her back into a relationship with you.

Option 2: Call her, chat in a friendly, easy-going way and then suggest a catch up to say hello, or to say goodbye if she never wants to talk to you after that.

[image: Making your ex feel attracted over the phone]

Just like in the previous example, itâ□□s important to keep things light and relaxed between you and your ex over the phone.

So, donâ□□t get into deep discussions about the relationship and let her bring up all the ways that she feels you stuffed up.

Letting her rant will cause her to connect with her negative emotions about you (e.g. anger, resentment, disillusionment) to come to the surface and she will likely close up and be unwilling to meet up with you for coffee.

Instead, just keep things light and friendly.

Then, once youâ□□ve chatted to her for a few minutes, simply ask, â□□How about we get together for a cup of coffee sometime this week?â□□

She might be resistant to the idea at first and say something like, â□□I donâ□□t think thatâ□□s a good idea,â□□ or â□□Weâ□□re broken up. Letâ□□s not open up old wounds againâ□□ or, "Maybe, but I need more time apart."

Regardless of what she says, donâ□□t get upset or start saying things like, â□□Please! Why wonâ□□t you just meet up with me? I just want to see you. Why are you being such a bitch about it? Come on, just meet up with me. Please.â□□

Obviously getting annoyed, upset or angry with her isnâ□□t going to convince her that she wants to see you again and itâ€™s also not going to re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Instead, sheâ€™s probably going to be thinking, â€œOh boy! I canâ€™t believe heâ€™s losing it like that and he still expects me to meet up with him again. Iâ€™m going to hang up now and block his number so that I donâ€™t have to put up with this type of behavior again.â€

So, if sheâ€™s saying no, or playing a little bit hard to get, simply say, â€œLook, itâ€™s just a 10 minute coffee. It doesnâ€™t mean that weâ€™re going to get back together again because weâ€™re having a coffee. These days, itâ€™s no big deal for exâ€™s to catch up and have a chat in person. Weâ€™re mature adults. We can do that. Besides, if we meet up and afterwards you decide that you never want to hear from me, or speak to me again, that will be fine by me. I will respect that and promise to never contact you again. So, how about it? We can at least have a coffee as friends to say hello, or if you want, it can be a goodbye and I wonâ€™t contact you again. Letâ€™s try to catch up in the next day or so.â€

In most instances, a woman will likely respond by saying something like, â€œOh, okay. Maybe just this once,â€ or, if she really hates her ex and wants him out of her life, she will say, â€œOkay, as long as you agree that you wonâ€™t call me again after that.â€

Then, just go ahead and make plans to meet her at a time that suits you both.

Just remember: When you meet up with her for coffee, youâ€™ve got to continue saying and doing the types of things that will keep turning her feelings back on for you.

When you trigger her feelings of respect and sexual attraction at the meet up, it makes her see you in a different light.

She Might Refuse to Meet Up With You if You Make Any Of These Mistakes

Persuading an ex to meet up with you for coffee isnâ€™t as difficult as some guys might think.

However, there are certain approaches that will spark a womanâ€™s feelings and make her feel happy to be meeting up with her ex, and some that will cause her to think, â€œIs this guy for real? What makes him think Iâ€™d ever want to see him again? No frikken way I am meeting up with him for coffee!!!â€

Here are some mistakes to avoid making if you want to successfully persuade your ex to meet up with you for coffee.

1. Trying to persuade her via text.

[image: Trying to persuade an ex via text]

Sometimes, a guy will be too afraid to call his ex in case she responds in a cold or unfriendly way towards him, so he will instead try to break the ice by sending her a nice, friendly text.

However, after helping 100s of guys to get women back, Iâ€™ve found that texting an ex after a break up should only ever be used as a means of getting her to talk to you on the phone, so that you can persuade her to meet up with you in person.

Where many guys go wrong is by texting an ex many random things (e.g. â€œHow are you?â€ or â€œWhat have you been up to lately?â€) in the hopes that she will eventually contact him and let him know that she wants to meet up or that she misses him.

He hopes that he can then ask her out for coffee without putting himself in a position where she will likely say â€œNo.â€œ

Yet, hereâ€™s the thing!

If your ex is currently feeling some anger, resentment or any other negative emotions towards you because of what happened between you and her during the relationship or break up, any text from you can easily be misunderstood or perceived in a negative way.

Numerous studies have proven that up to 90% of communication between two people is non-verbal.

Essentially this means while someone is talking, we are not making our minds up about them only based on what they are saying (10% of the communication), but rather on their body language, their tonality and the way they come across to us (90% of the communication).

So, when a guy texts his ex to try and persuade her to meet up with him for coffee, rather than her saying to herself, â€œOh, itâ€™s my ex and he wants to meet up for coffee. Cool! He sounds so confident, charming and charismatic now. What an amazing text he just sent me!â€œ she will likely be thinking, â€œWhat does he want? What is he up to? Is he trying to get me to meet up with him to get me back? He thinks he can do that via text? No way. He has to grow the balls to get me on the phone and ask me. I don't believe that he has changed and a text message isn't going to change that.â€œ

When a woman can't see a guy's body language, or hear the tone of his voice, she has to guess his state of mind at the time of sending the text.

Her perception of his texts will be based on how she felt about him during the break up and afterwards because she doesn't have any other reference point, since they aren't talking on the phone or in person.

If he keeps texting to insist on meeting up with her for coffee (e.g. by saying things like, â€œWhy won't you meet up with me? Whatâ€™s wrong with you? Just one time. Please!â€œ) she will only feel more turned off by him.

In her mind she will likely be thinking, â€œWhy is he being like this? Clearly nothing about him has changed. I'd be a fool to meet up with him for coffee. I'll only be prolonging my pain. I don't want to get back into a fight with him. No way am I going to see him again. He's most likely still the same and nothing has changed, so no!â€œ

Your ex is only going to take you seriously when you can make her feel the type of respect and attraction she feels is necessary for her to consider giving you another chance.

â€¦and you cannot achieve that via text.

So, if your ex isn't answering her phone right now, or if you first want to break the ice, then send her a text like this: â€œHey Samantha, Dan here. I hope you're well. I want to ask you something quick over the phone, so I'm going to give you a call later today.â€œ

Then, make sure that you call her and focus on reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction for you, by making her feel good to be talking to you again.

By the way!

The quick thing that you want to ask her is to meet up for coffee.

When she hears the tone of your voice and senses the changes in you as well as smiles and laughs on the call, she will be a lot more open to the idea of meeting up for coffee because it will feel like a good idea to her.

Yet, if you try to achieve all that via text, you will almost certainly get a “No” from her.

The next mistake that guys make isâ€¦!

2. Trying to make her feel pity for him.

[image: Please just me up with me! Please! I will do anything to see you]

Sometimes, a guy will be so frustrated with his ex because she is being stubborn and refusing to meet up with him for coffee, that he may try to make her feel sorry for him in the hopes that she gives in and says, “Yes” to meeting up.

For example: He might say to her, â€œCome onâ€¦ why are you being like this? Why do you keep punishing me? Canâ€¦t you see how sorry I am for hurting you? Does making me feel like this make you happy? Do you like seeing me suffer? Please babeâ€¦ just one cup of coffee is all Iâ€¦m asking for. I really need to see you one more time. Do it for old timeâ€¦s sake. Please!â€¦

Yet, making a woman feel pity or guilt for the emotional pain that youâ€™re experiencing, usually only turns her off even more. Why?

A woman doesnâ€™t like to feel like sheâ€™s being forced into doing something she doesnâ€™t want to do, simply because the guy canâ€™t take â€œNoâ€¦ for an answer.

If she doesnâ€™t feel enough respect and attraction for him as a man, she simply wonâ€™t care enough to want to see him again.

So, if you want to persuade your ex to meet up with you for coffee, donâ€™t play the pity card on her.

Instead, focus on re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you, so that she will be motivated to want to meet up with you because it feels good to her, not because she feels sorry for you.

3. Taking her initial “No” too seriously.

[image: Taking her initial no too seriously]

Most women don’t want to come across as being too desperate to meet up with their ex, so chances are, your ex might say â€œNoâ€¦ the first time you ask her to meet up with you.

Don’t worry.

Itâ€™s not the end of the world.

As long as you continue making her smile and laugh when youâ€™re interacting with her and making her feel respect and attraction for you again, she will eventually change her mind and catch up with you.

So, rather than get upset and give up if she resists you at first, simply say in light hearted, joking way, â€œHey, it’s just a 10 minute coffee. We can do that. Iâ€™m not asking you for a kidney hereâ€¦ and have a laugh.

Just keep making her laugh and persist (in an easy-going way) until she says yes.

Don’t give up until you get that coffee catch up.

4. Not letting her know that if she doesn't want to talk to you again after that, you will respect her wishes.

Sometimes a woman doesn't want to consider about getting back together with her ex yet, so when he asks her to meet up with him for coffee, she may think, â€œI don't want to say yes because I don't want him to think that I'm interested in getting back together again. I don't want him to get the wrong idea. If he does, I'll then have to be mean to him to make him leave me alone.â€

It's up to you not to put her in that position.

So, when you ask her to meet up with you, rather than make her feel like it's a serious thing, you can say something like, â€œI think it will be good for us to catch up over a cup of coffee now that the dust has settled between us. I'm not expecting us to get back together again just because you've agreed to meet up with me. We're just two friends catching up. After that, if you feel like you want to see me again, then great â€œ I will be open to that too. However, if you decide you never want to talk to me again, I will respect your wishes and leave you alone. In this way, we can both have closure and at least the last thing you remember about me isn't that I stuffed up, but rather that we are able to hang out as friends if we want to. Isn't that better than just ignoring each other and feeling all the hurt of the break up?â€

Saying something like that to her calms things down and puts her mind at ease.

She begins to wonder, â€œWhy am I being so stubborn? It's just coffee after all. I don't have to get back together with him if I don't want to, so why not just catch up with him?â€

Her guard then comes down and she says, "Yes" to catching up.

You Can Do it

[image: Don't give up until she says yes]

Here's the thingâ€œ

You can sit around for the next few days or weeks wondering, â€œHow can I persuade my ex to meet up with me for coffee?â€ or you can pick up the phone right now and make it happen.

It's actually a lot easier than you might think.

[image: Meeting up with an ex for coffee]

When you trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you on a phone call, she will stop focusing on how bad you made her feel in the past and start thinking about how good you're making her feel now.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Convince My Ex to Try Again, Rather Than Giving Up on Our Love

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

She will completely give up on the love if you can't get her to reconnect with it.

The way to get her to reconnect with her original feelings of love for you is to focus on making her feel surges of respect and attraction for you whenever you interact with her from now on.

For example: Get her laughing and smiling, let her see that you've moved beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you, give her the attraction experience she wants.

If she can see that you have already begun to change and as a result, her feelings for you are changing from negative to positive, then she will stop thinking that there's no chance for you and her anymore.

You can change how she feels.

You can do it.

Convincing your ex to try again rather than giving up on your love is actually easier than you might think.

Right now, she might be saying, It's over. I just don't feel like we can make things work anymore, or It's time we faced the facts and realized we just aren't meant to be together, because she's not feeling attracted to you at this point.

She doesn't have feelings (e.g. respect, attraction and love) for you, so it feels easy for her to give up on the love that you have had shared.

Since she doesn't have much or any feelings for you anymore, she just doesn't care; it doesn't matter to her.

However, when you focus on triggering her feelings of respect and attraction for you every time you interact with her, she becomes more open to feeling that love again.

One of the best ways to start triggering her feelings again is by making her smile, laugh and feel happy when she interacts with you.

For example: Imagine you're talking to your ex on the phone and she says something like, Look. Let's face it, what we had is gone. Our love is dead.

A common reaction that a guy might have is to get upset and possibly even beg and plead with her.

He might say, No, don't say that. You know that our love is special. Why can't you see that anymore? Don't you remember how good things used to be between us? Why are you so willing to just give up and forget about everything we had? Sure we've had our problems but we can make this work. Don't give up on our love like this. Please.

Yet, even though he's trying to reason with her, she's usually going to say something like, I know you mean well, but it's just too late.

Essentially what she's saying is that she just doesn't have feelings for him and that he doesn't even know how to make her have feelings for him.

That's why she's not interested.

[image: How can you just give up on our love like this?]

Heâs just begging and pleading and trying to reason with her, going on and on about the same old things, but thatâs not triggering her feelings for him.

It's all about how he feels and what he wants, not about how she feels and what she wants.

He needs her back, but she's just not feeling it.

On the other hand, if you ex says, *âLook. Letâs face itâ| what we had is gone. Our love is dead,*â you can use that as an opportunity to trigger some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

So, rather than get upset, you can jokingly say something like, âOkay, fine. I agree. Our love is dead. We can hate each other now. This will be good because I get to delete you off my birthday list. No more presents for you! That trip to Tahitiâ| gone! Those gold earrings you always wantedâ| gone! Wow! I feel better nowâ| all that love stuff can be exhausting. I feel so much lighter without it. Please, let's not get back together! Please give up on our loveâ and then have a laugh with her about it.

[image: Please give up on our love]

Saying something like that to her in a joking manner will take the seriousness away from the situation and it will likely make her smile.

She will then relax and be more open because she can see that youâre not pushing her to change her mind in a needy way.

Instead, you're being a confident, emotionally strong, socially intelligent man who has the sense to joke around in a serious moment like that to ease the tension and bring things back to smiling, laughter and feelings of love.

When you do that, her guard comes down and before she realizes it, sheâs feeling some positive emotions for you again.

She starts wondering, *âWhy am I smiling so much? Iâm not supposed to be having so much fun. Weâre broken up now, so I've got to stop smiling and laughing. Why does it feel so good talking to him again? Whatâs happening to me? Is this a sign that we should get back together? Maybe he is the one after all.*â

On the other hand, if you say and do the types of things that turn her off (e.g. "Please give me another chance! Please don't give up on our love! I need you in my life,") she will just say something like, *âNo. Itâs over. Just accept it.*â

3 Mistakes to Avoid if You Want to Keep the Love Alive

Here are some rookie mistakes to avoid making when convincing your ex to try again, rather than give up on your love.

A lot of guys make these mistakes because they don't really know what else to do, so make sure you read through the entire article to ensure that you understand the right way to approach her from now on.

Mistake #1 isâ|

1. Trying to convince her that the love is worth fighting for when she doesn't even feel enough respect and attraction for you yet.

[image: Our love is worth fighting for]

When a woman is saying, *â€œI don't think we can work things out,*â€œ a guy might then try to convince her that their love is worth fighting for by reminding her of what they had together.

For example: He might say, *â€œI know that right now all you can think about is all the fighting and arguing we've been doing lately. I can see how that can make you feel like there's nothing good between us anymore, but that's just not true. Think about all the good things we've shared. Not everything is bad. In fact, I'd say we've had more good times than bad times together. Don't make your decision based on a few fights. We had some great times and we can have more if we try again. Please don't let our love die. We can make this work.*â€œ

Yet, even though what he is saying might be true and is fairly well said, a woman won't feel the same way if she's not feeling much (or any) respect and attraction for him at that point in time.

Instead, she will think something like, *â€œYes, we had some great times together. I'll even go as far as saying they were the best times I ever had with a man. However, those times were mostly all at the beginning of our relationship when I still thought of you as the kind of guy I could look up to and respect. Sadly, you're not that guy anymore. Now, all that I see is a guy who makes me cry and feel sad all the time. Why would I want to go back to that?*â€œ

In most cases, you can't convince an ex not to give up on your love and to try again, simply by bringing up the good times that you shared together in the past.

When a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy, the past really doesn't matter to her anymore.

What matters to her is how he is making her feel now, not how he made her feel a long time ago.

So, if you want to convince your ex to try again, focus on making her feel surges of respect and attraction for you when you interact with her (e.g. via text, on social media, on a phone call, or in person).

She needs to feel attraction and respect for the man you are today, not be reminded of the guy that you used to be a long time ago.

2. Thinking that because you shared an amazing love, it means you are soul mates and have to be together for life.

[image: You promised that we would stay together forever]

As difficult as it may be to accept, the truth is that you cannot convince a woman to try again or to stay with you just because you were once in love.

Even if you and her talked about living happily ever after, it just doesn't matter to a woman when she loses touch with her feelings for who you have become.

That was then and this is now.

If a woman no longer feels the same way, she doesn't have to stay with a guy if she doesn't want to.

In the past, a woman was considered to be her man's property and breaking up or getting a divorce wasn't even an option for her.

She had to stick by him for life whether she was happy or not.

However, in today's world, a woman won't stay with a man for long if he can't maintain her feelings of respect, attraction and love (e.g. he becomes very insecure, treats her badly, takes her for granted, is controlling, stops trying to make her feel good).

These days, a relationship stays together when both people decide that they want to stay together because they feel good together, not because they used to be in love and said that they be a couple for life.

So, rather than trying to convince your ex to try again, you have to get her to reconnect with her old feelings of love first, by letting her experience surges of respect and attraction for the new and improved version of you.

For example: If a guy is needy and insecure, he needs to show her that he's now confident and emotionally strong.

If he's too nice, he needs to show her that he's got the balls to stand up for himself and be a real man now.

If he's unsure of what he wants from life, he needs to show her that he now has big ambitions, goals and a clear purpose and is starting to make progress.

When you interact with your ex and she experiences the new and improved you, her feelings automatically begin to change.

She starts to feel respect and attraction for you again and her guard comes down.

You don't have to convince her to change her mind.

Instead, you only need to focus on using every interaction you have with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) to trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you, and she will naturally begin to reconnect with the love that she once felt.

When that happens, it's up to you to take the lead and guide her back into a relationship with you.

3. Trying to make her feel guilty rather than focusing on making her feel respect, attraction and love.

[image: Please remember the good times we had]

Not knowing what else to do, a guy might try to make his ex feel guilty for not wanting to try again.

He might say something like, "How can you be so cold and heartless? Was the love that we shared really so meaningless to you? Were you even in love with me at all? What kind of person are you? After everything we've done together, are just going to walk away? Obviously our love meant more to me than it meant to you. I wish I could be as callous as you, but I can't. I am a man of my word and when I said that I'd love you forever, I meant it. Obviously you were lying or you're just an untrustworthy woman that I've waste all this time with. I hope you're happy now!"

Although he's likely just lashing out at her because he's experiencing a lot of emotional pain from being rejected, it's not going to help get her back.

Trying to make a woman feel guilty will rarely make her change her mind about breaking up.

[image: How can you do this to me?]

Sometimes a woman will give a guy another chance temporarily, but she just dump him again when she realizes that nothing has changed and she doesn't have to feel guilty anymore.

Yet, in most cases, rather than getting her back, his emotional outburst will cause her to lose even more respect and attraction for him because he is being so emotionally sensitive, unloving and insulting.

The only way that a woman will feel happy to try again is when the guy is able to quickly rebuild her feelings of respect and attraction (e.g. by being emotionally strong, making her laugh and smile, making her feel feminine and girly in his presence).

So, if you really want to convince your ex to try again and not give up on your love, focus on making her feel respect and attraction for you again, rather than playing mind games with her by trying to make her feel guilty for leaving you.

When she's feeling attracted to and respectful of the new and improved you, she will be happy to reconnect with her original feelings of love.

She will want to try again because it will feel good to her, not because she feels like you're forcing her to.

Love Doesn't Die

If you haven't yet been able to convince your ex to try again and not give up on your love, it doesn't mean that her love for you is dead.

Even if she's actually saying, My love for you is dead, what she really means is that she doesn't feel like she can love you right now.

It's about how you are making her feel right now. It's not about love. Love doesn't die. It is always there in the background.

Her negative emotions of anger, resentment or betrayal have pushed the love into the background and she's not willing to connect with it right now.

You can change that.

When you trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you again, it makes the negatives of her past with you seem less important.

She feels drawn to you again in a way that actually feels good, so reconnecting with the love happens naturally whether she likes it or not.

So, don't bother trying to convince your ex to try again by begging, pleading and promising her that you'll change if she gives you another chance, because those things only push the love further into the background.

Instead, focus on making her smile, laugh and feel happy when she's interacting with you.

The happier she feels around you, the more respect and attraction she will feel and the faster the love will come rushing back into her heart.

She won't be able to stop it from happening.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

4 Tips About How to Get Your Ex Back When She Doesn't Want You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you haven't been able to work out how to get your ex back when she doesn't want you, here are 4 important tips to help you start the ex back process:

1. Understand What She Likes and Doesn't Like About You

[image: Understand what she likes and doesn't like about you]

If your ex is saying things like, "Go away! I don't want you in my life anymore. There's nothing about you that makes me want to be together again," it might feel like she hates everything about you.

Yet, that's rarely the case.

Right now, she's only focusing on all the things that she doesn't like about you, but that doesn't mean everything about you is wrong.

For example: Ask yourself:

- Did my ex like that I'm an emotionally strong, confident and independent man, or did she complain about me being clingy, needy and insecure?
- Did she like that I took the lead in the relationship and allowed her to relax into her feminine self, or did she feel that she had to wear the pants and make all the decisions?
- Did she enjoy feeling feminine and girly around me, or did she dislike feeling more dominant than me?
- Did she like that I was an honest, loyal man, or did I let her down and betray her trust?
- Did she enjoy the feeling of being loved, appreciated and taken care of, or did she feel like I was taking her for granted?
- Did she like the idea of me rising up the levels of life and achieving my goals, or did she feel annoyed by my lack of drive and determination?

Those are just a few questions to help you see that do you have strong points that are attractive to your ex, but you may also have some weak points that turned her off.

When you understand what really turned her off about you (e.g. you became insecure), you can take action on improving those things about yourself right now.

Then, the next time you interact with her, you will be able to make her feel understood (e.g. be an emotionally strong man no matter what she says or does and she will see that you understood that your insecurity was turning her off and have already fixed it) to then give her the type of attraction experience that she really wants in a relationship.

When you start fixing some of your issues and improving on your weaknesses, it will spark some of your ex's feelings of respect for you when she interacts with you.

She might act like she's not impressed, but she will be.

She will then start thinking about all the other things that she likes about you (e.g. you're a good man, you're honest, loyal, hardworking, great in bed), rather than thinking about why she doesn't want you anymore.

2. Add to Your Strengths and Fix Your Weaknesses

Once you've figured out the things that your ex doesn't like about you, you have a place to start rebuilding her feelings for you.

For example: If a guy discovers that one of the things his ex doesn't like about him is that he was too insecure and needy in the relationship with her, to get her respect and attraction back, he has to show her that he has fixed that weakness to become a confident, emotionally strong man.

She will need to see that he's not the same insecure guy that she broke up with.

To do that, he needs to use every interaction he has with her (e.g. via text, e-mail, social media, phone and in person) to spark her feelings for him by showing her that he has changed.

Initially, a woman will usually keep pushing her ex away and saying, I'm not interested. Just leave me alone.

She may also think, It does look like he has changed, but how can I be sure? What if I open myself up to him again and then he goes back to being needy, clingy and insecure like before? I wouldn't be able to handle that a second time.

She might then test him to see if he's only putting on an act to get her back, by being cold and indifferent towards him when he's being nice to her.

Alternatively, she might say something like, I'm happy being single. I get to have fun with my friends and meet interesting guys. Why would I give all that up to be with a needy, controlling boyfriend again?

[image: Add to your strengths, fix your weaknesses]

If he then reacts by getting upset, feeling hurt and possibly even saying things like, How can you say that to me? What has gotten into you. You used to tell me that you loved me. How can you just give up on our love like that? I know that I was too clingy sometimes, but that's because I love you so much. I can't bear the thought of being without you. Why can't you see that? Why is being loved so much by me such a bad thing to you? she will realize that he's still the same insecure, needy guy she broke up with and she'll keep her heart closed off to him.

Another example is where a woman broke up with a guy because the relationship was filled with constant fighting, arguing and misunderstandings and she eventually got tired of it.

To convince her that he's changed, he needs to show her that the kinds of things that would usually annoy him and set him off (e.g. she says something mean to provoke him, she nags him, she looks at another guy) no longer have the same effect on him.

Instead, he makes a joke about it, and gets her laughing and smiling.

She then thinks, I didn't expect that! I thought he was going to blow up at me like he used to. Wow! I'm impressed. He really has changed.

Whatever the case is for you (e.g. you were too insecure, lacked drive and direction in your life, took her for granted), the most important thing now is that you understand what your weaknesses are and endeavor to fix them.

Then, when you interact with you ex, she will see that youâre no longer the same guy and you no longer make the same old mistakes.

The changes in you will re-spark some of her feelings of respect for you again.

She won't be able to stop herself from wanting to interact with you via text, on the phone and in person, even though she previously told herself, âI never want to see him again. Ever!â

Suddenly, she feels drawn to you and from there you can build on that spark of attraction and show her that things really are different now.

3. Interact With Her on a Phone Call or in Person to Let Her Experience the New You

[image: Let her experience the new you]

To get an ex back when she doesn't want you, you have to be active about it, rather than being inactive.

Active means that youâre actively interacting with her (e.g. calling her up on the phone, meeting up with her in person) and triggering her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you, rather than waiting around hoping that she will contact you.

For example: Some guys will say, âHow can I get my ex back if she doesn't want me? Maybe the best thing to do is give her space for a month and see what happens. Hopefully over time she will realize how much she misses me and sheâll then change her mind about us getting back together. Who knows? Maybe that's all I can do at this point.â

A guy might then ignore his ex for weeks, or even months until he realizes that sheâs just not coming back.

He might then ask, âWhy isn't she coming back? Why isn't she calling me up and telling me that she missed me? I don't get it.â

The reason why is that when a woman doesn't have any feelings for a guy and is saying things to him like, âI don't want you,â or âIt's over. Deal with it,â him ignoring her for weeks or a month doesn't really matter to her.

She might be curious to find out if he's moving on and will text or call him, but if she finds out that he's just been sitting around waiting for her, she will lose more respect for him for trying to trick her into wanting him back by ignoring her.

In most ex back cases, a woman won't call and will just start using the time apart to get over him, hook up with new guys and move on with her life.

Based on the 100s of ex back cases I've worked on with clients, I've found that not contacting an ex for a long time only works if sheâs still in love with you and wants you back.

Ignoring her rarely, if ever, works when a woman is saying, âI don't want you anymore.â

So, if you want to get your ex back when she doesn't want you, the fastest way is by actively making her have feelings for you again.

One of the best ways to trigger a womanâs feelings for you is by making her laugh, smile and feel happy when she's interacting with you on a phone call, or in person.

For example: A guy is talking to his ex on the phone and she says something like, "Look, you stuffed up. It's over. I just don't want you anymore."

If he just accepts that and hangs up the phone and walks away with his tail between his legs, or starts apologizing to her and putting himself down, it's unlikely that she will feel anything for him other than contempt or indifference.

On the other hand, if he jokes around with her at that point and gets her laughing and smiling, it's going to make her feel some attraction and respect for him.

She then starts enjoying the feeling of interacting with him again and she begins to wonder, "Is it possible for things to be different between us now? Maybe it is. Things already feel better between us, so why not just meet up with him and see how I feel?"

From that moment onwards, you just need to continue saying and doing the types of things that will develop her feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

4. Give Her the Attraction Experience She Wants

[image: Give her the attraction experience that she wants]

If a woman doesn't want a guy anymore and he doesn't start giving her the attraction experience she wants from a man, she's not going to suddenly want him.

For example: If a guy is insecure and a woman wants a confident guy, she's not going to change her mind about him if he then continues to be needy, clingy and self-doubting around her.

Instead, she's likely going to be thinking, "Doesn't he realize that women aren't attracted to emotionally weak, wimpy men? Women are attracted to strong men who are confident, self-assured and have the emotional strength that a woman needs to feel secure in a relationship. His insecurity is just not attractive to me. Why doesn't he understand that? Hhh...well, I'm not going to explain it to him that's for sure. He'll have to work out how to be a man on his own. In the meantime, I'm going to find myself an actual man who understands what a woman really wants."

Unless he changes and becomes a more confident guy very quickly, she's just not going to want to give him another chance because she's tired of not getting the attraction experience she really wants.

Another example is where a guy is too nice and a woman needs him to have more balls and not put up with her BS so easily.

If he fails to man up and take on a more dominant, but loving role around her, she will continue to feel more dominant than him and it will turn her off.

A woman wants to be with a guy who naturally takes charge and knows how to confidently lead the way, therefore allowing her to relax into feeling totally feminine around him.

Another example is where a guy is unsure of what he wants from life and the woman wants a guy with a clear purpose and big goals and ambitions for the future.

A woman wants to know that her man is rising through the levels of life, and that she can rely on him to guide both himself and her to a better future together.

If he just sits around feeling sorry for himself and continues with his old habits (e.g. watching TV, playing video games, browsing social media) instead of finding a big purpose to follow through on, she will feel turned off by him at a deep, instinctive level.

Are You Ready to Give Her the Attraction Experience She Wants?

To get your ex back when she doesn't want you, you have to make her feel the way she wants to feel when she's in a relationship.

A woman will often put up with not getting the attraction experience she wants in a relationship, but if there are other problems in the relationship, she will get to a point where she just doesn't see the point in staying together anymore.

So, the question is: Are you ready to give her the attraction experience she wants?

Do you know what has been turning her off and have you already fixed those things about yourself, or are you willing to fix them?

By making some attractive adjustments to your behavior and the way you talk and interact with her, being around you suddenly feels fun for her.

She starts to feel attracted, her guard naturally comes down and she opens up to you again.

You can change how she feels because attraction is an automatic reaction that a woman has for a man when he displays traits that are attractive to her (e.g. confidence, charisma, emotional masculinity).

When you reawaken her feelings of respect and attraction for you, she will reconnect with her original feelings of love for you.

Then, getting back together again will feel like the right thing for her to do.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Pushed Her Away. Now I Regret it and Want Her Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Okay, so you've pushed your ex away, you regret it and now want her back.

The good news is that you can fix this and get her back.

If you haven't done so already, be honest and tell her that you made a mistake by pushing her away.

Let her know that you don't expect her to get back with you just because you admit that you made a mistake, but you want her to know that pushing her away was due to you being immature and not being ready to give her the love that she needed.

Then, switch your interactions to always be about fun, laughter and good feelings.

Don't discuss the past over and over again.

Instead, get her laughing, smiling and feeling good and then get her to meet up with you, so you can hug, kiss and get back together.

Yes, you made a mistake by pushing her away, but leave that mistake behind and focus on how you make her feel now.

Understanding the Real Reasons Why You Pushed Her Away

[image: Understanding the real reasons why you pushed her away]

Sometimes, a guy isn't ready to be in a truly committed relationship with a woman, so he shuts himself off from her and pushes her away.

Even though he really loves her, his instincts tell him that he's just not ready to settle down yet, so he doesn't try to take the relationship to the next level (e.g. getting engaged, married, having children, buying a house together).

Not every relationship needs to go to that ultimate level, but there has to be some progress together as a couple (e.g. working towards long terms goals together), otherwise you will eventually get bored of being with each other.

You will have gone to all the tourist attractions, been to plenty of movies together, eaten out at many restaurants and hung out on the couch on many Sundays.

Yet, what next?

If there's nothing else to aim for as a couple, that's usually when either you or her will start pushing each other away.

Of course, there are other reasons.

For example: Some of the other reasons why a guy might push his woman away include:

- He feels insecure about his attractiveness to her so he adopts a "Dump her before she dumps me" philosophy.
- His parents got divorced and he has no relationship model to work from, so he doesn't know how to stay in love with a woman and make the relationship better and better over time.
- He has little, or no, relationship experience and simply doesn't know how to be in a loving and committed relationship with a woman, so he makes classic mistakes (e.g. taking her for granted, treating her badly, being too clingy or controlling) and that pushes her away.

- He may have had a previous relationship where his woman proved to be untrustworthy (e.g. she lied to him, cheated on him, treated him disrespectfully), so he just doesn't want to get too involved in the relationship because he fears being hurt again.
- He's afraid that if he allows a woman to get too close to him, she will gain power over him and turn him into a wimpy boyfriend who does whatever she wants.
- He's afraid that if he opens up to a woman emotionally and really loves her, she will perceive him as being too soft and she will then break up with him.

By understanding what really caused you to push your woman away, you can make some changes to your way of thinking and behavior.

Then, when you interact with her again, you can show her that you've changed the things about you that turned her off and pushed her away.

Of course, if you pushed her away and she was really upset about it around the time of breaking up, it's possible that she's going to try to avoid interacting with you and meeting up with you because she will be worried about getting hurt again.

So, when you call and try to arrange a catch up, she may be cold and closed off to you and say things like, "Leave me alone! You're the one who pushed me away, so deal with it. It's over! I don't care about you anymore. I am happy without you now."

When she's saying these things to you, you might start beating yourself up about it and say to yourself, "Damn it! I pushed her away and now I regret it and want her back, but it's just too late. She doesn't want to see me or talk to me. It's hopeless! I can't do anything about it."

You can.

When you change how she feels (i.e. by replacing her negative feelings of anger, pain or betrayal with positive feelings of respect, attraction and love) she will not be able to hold on to her anger towards you for long.

So, if you really want to get your ex back after pushing her away, what you need to do is use every interaction you have with her (even if it's only via text message, e-mail or social media to start off with) to spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

When you spark her feelings for you, she literally goes from thinking of you in a negative way, to having positive thoughts about you and then dropping her guard.

Initially, she may be hesitant and say, "I don't know if you treated me like crap. I was a good girlfriend (fiancée or wife) to you and you pushed me away. I don't want to go through all that again. I'm happy now. Please don't ruin that for me."

However, no matter what she says or does, you just need to stay relaxed and keep focusing on making her laugh, smile and feel good to be interacting with you again.

You've got to reactivate her old feelings for you and get her to lower her guard, so you can guide her back in to a loving, happy relationship with you.

For example: Imagine that you're talking to your ex over the phone and she says something like, "Look, I'm just not interested anymore. You pushed me away," rather than feel guilty about it and thinking to yourself, â€œI deserve that. Iâ€™m the one who messed up,â€ you can use it as an opportunity to spark her feelings of attraction.

You can do that by saying something like, â€œI know I pushed you away, but that was the idiot version of me. I was being a shthead and I know it. Youâ€™re talking to a completely new man now. I flushed the old version of me down the toilet. He was a piece of shitâ€ and then laugh with her about it.

By saying something like this to her, you are first acknowledging that you made a mistake by pushing her away, while also making her smile by turning it around and joking about how you messed up.

When you have the confidence to make a joke when sheâ€™s being cold towards you and pushing you away, you take the sting out of the pain she is feeling over being rejected by you.

The more fun that she has when she interacts with you, the more her guard comes down.

She then begins to wonder, â€œWhy do I feel like I want to forgive him for pushing me away? Why am I actually happy to be interacting with him again?â€

Of course, saying something like that and making her laugh once isnâ€™t the magic answer to getting her back, but it is a great start.

From there, you need to focus on making her feel more attraction and respect for you every time you interact with her and then build on that until she is back in your arms.

Donâ€™t Make Any More Classic Ex Back Mistakes

The last thing that you'd want to do now is push your ex even further away, right?

If so, make sure that you donâ€™t make any of these classic ex back mistakesâ€|

1. Pouring your heart out to her in a long-winded letter or e-mail, or in a series of big text messages.

If a guy pushed his girlfriend (fiancÃ© or wife) away, chances are high that right now, sheâ€™s avoiding all contact with him.

He might say to himself, â€œI pushed her away and now I regret it and want her back, but she wonâ€™t talk to me anymore. I have to get through to her somehow. I have to let her know that Iâ€™m sorry and that I still love her. Maybe a long letter or a whole bunch of text messages where I explain everything will help. I have to try it. It's the only chance I have.â€

Yet that rarely makes a woman come running back. Why?

When a woman doesnâ€™t have feelings for her ex any more, him pouring his heart out to her simply doesn't matter to her.

Instead, a woman will usually think something like, â€œYou pushed me away and now Iâ€™ve moved on. I donâ€™t care that you care about me and I donâ€™t care that you regret your actions. Itâ€™s too little too late! You have feelings for me, but I don't have feelings for you. This is all about you, not me. How selfish of you. You haven't changed.â€

Here's the thingâ€|

When a woman canâ€™t see a guyâ€™s body language, or at least hear the tonality of his voice over the phone, she has to guess at how he was feeling when he wrote her the letter, e-mail or text.

Even though heâ€™s trying to make her see that heâ€™s a changed man, sheâ€™s usually just going to interpret everything that he is writing based on her perception of him around the time of the break up, during the break up or after it.

So, if she currently sees him as being insecure, emotionally weak and not a guy that she can look up to and respect, him telling her how much he cares about her and how sorry he is for pushing her away, isnâ€™t going to change those feelings inside of her.

Remember: A letter, e-mail or text is just a bunch of words on paper or a screen.

A letter, e-mail or text cannot convey to her your emotions, your state of mind or even show her that youâ€™ve changed.

So, what should you do if you want to make your woman forgive you for pushing her away and change her mind about breaking up with you?

Only text her or drop her a quick note via e-mail as a way to get her on a phone call with you.

You must get to a phone call.

On the phone call, you can then actively start renewing some of her feelings for you by make her laugh, smile and feel happy to be communicating with you again.

Yet, thatâ€™s not enough to fully get her back.

You need to get her to meet up with you in person where you can show her (via the way you talk, behave, interact with her and react to what she says) that youâ€™re a new man now.

When you re-spark some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you, she wonâ€™t be able to stop herself from letting her guard down, even if only a little bit.

She will then start to think, â€œI know he pushed me away, but everyone makes mistakes in relationships. I see now that heâ€™s much more mature than he used to be when we were together. He really seems to be sorry about it now and I can see that he means it. Maybe if I give him another chance things will be different between us this time.â€

On the other hand, if you just pour your heart out to her and ask her to forgive you for pushing her away and to give you a second chance, without sparking her feelings for you first, sheâ€™s just going to be saying, â€œNo. Itâ€™s over between us. Sorry, you messed up and Iâ€™m not giving you any more chances.â€

2. Treating her so well that you end up coming across as desperate, which turns her off.

[image: Trying to buy her love]

Painful feelings of regret can sometimes make a guy do things that he normally wouldn't and which are totally out of character for him.

For example: If a guy pushed his woman away and now he regrets it and wants her back, he might say to himself, â€œI have to make it up to her somehow. I have to do whatever it takes to convince her that Iâ€™m desperately sorry for what I did and that I want her back. I need to show her that if she gives me another chance Iâ€™ll never hurt her again. Iâ€™ll be the best boyfriend (or husband) a woman could have.â€

He might then look for opportunities to show her how much he cares.

For example: He might start sending her big bunches of flowers with notes attached saying things like, â€œIâ€™m so sorry for pushing you away. I know that I hurt you, but Iâ€™ll do anything you want to show you how much I truly regret what I did. I love you so much and Iâ€™ll do whatever it takes to prove to you that Iâ€™ve changed. Please forgive me! I promise Iâ€™ll never treat you like that again if you give me another chance.â€

He might also shower her with attention every time he sees her (e.g. if they happen to work together, or go to the same university), while at the same time continually apologizing to her and asking for her forgiveness.

Yet, when a guy runs around after his ex and begs or pleads for her forgiveness, rather than make her think, â€œAwwwâ€| my ex must really be sorry for what he did. Heâ€™s being so sweet, running around apologizing to me all the time, sending me flowers and treating me like a princess. I guess I should forgive him now and we can then get back together again,â€ she instead feels turned off by his desperation and what she perceives to be his emotionally weak state of mind.

[image: Begging doesn't work on most women]

She thinks, â€œWhy is he behaving like this? Doesnâ€™t he realize that itâ€™s confidence, determination and strength of character that women look for in a man and not neediness, insecurity and an inability to cope with the bumps in the road of life? He thinks that running around treating me like gold and putting himself at my mercy is going to attract me back, but thatâ€™s not what I want. I want a man I can look up to, respect, feel attracted to and be proud of. He just doesnâ€™t get it! He still hasn't grown up and become the man that I need. He's just not mature enough for me. He doesn't know what I want or what women in general want. He just doesn't get it.â€

In his mind, he feels like he's doing the right thing by sucking up to her, but women don't want to be with a guy out of pity.

A woman wants to be able to look up to and respect her man and if he can't make her feel that way, the relationship will never last.

So, if you pushed your woman away and now you regret it and want her back, donâ€™t go overboard apologizing, pleading and generally being at her beck and call in the hopes that sheâ€™ll give you another chance because sheâ€™ll likely just perceive you as being desperate and feel even more turned off by you.

Of course, if youâ€™ve already been down that road and made that classic mistake, donâ€™t worry about it.

Just make sure that from now on you adjust your behavior in a way that sparks her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

When you focus on making her feel respect and attraction for you again, the process of getting her back becomes easier because she is more willing to drop her guard and open herself up to the idea of giving the relationship another chance.

Sheâ€™s no longer thinking, â€œI canâ€™t forgive him for pushing me away,â€ because she is now seeing you in a different (and more positive) light and can think, “Well, maybe he wasn't so bad after all. People make mistakes. He's different now. I like how he is now. Maybe we should just give it another try and see how it goes.”

3. Feeling like she could never forgive you because you made such a horrible mistake.

[image: She will never forgive me]

Sometimes, a guy will beat himself up about pushing his woman away.

He might say to himself, “I’m such an idiot! I had the perfect woman and I ruined it. I destroyed the best thing that has ever happened to me. I pushed her away because of my insecurities and doubts and now I have to live with this horrible feeling of guilt and regret. I can’t see how she would ever be able to forgive me and give me another chance. It’s a hopeless situation. I just have to live with the knowledge that I will never get her back because of the mistakes I made.”

Yet, it doesn’t have to be that way.

A guy in that position needs to realize that we all live and learn and it’s completely normal for someone to make a mistake, learn from it and become a better person.

That’s life.

It’s completely normal, natural and common.

Making the mistake of pushing her away doesn’t mean that he and her aren’t a great match or couldn’t have an amazing relationship if they got back together.

It was simply a mistake that they are now both aware of.

However, that mistake doesn’t mean that the love is dead.

Instead, the love has just been trampled on a little.

It can be dusted off and brought back to life and be even stronger now, if both him and her are mature enough to let it happen.

So, don’t keep beating yourself up about what happened.

Leave your mistake in the past and start afresh with her based on the man that you are now.

The most important thing is that you move forward and replace the negative feelings that she experienced (e.g. heartbreak, betrayal, anger) with positive feelings of trust, respect and attraction.

When you trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for you, everything changes.

[image: Making your ex have feelings for you again]

Her guard comes down and she opens herself up to getting back together again because being around you feels good to her now.

On the other hand, if the only thing you’re doing is going over what went wrong in the relationship and saying things like, “I pushed you away and I regret it. Can you ever forgive me?” you will never be able to move past that mistake and start a new relationship with her on a clean slate.

Remember: Mistakes in relationships happen, but it doesn’t mean that the love is dead.

The love simply buried under anger and emotional pain.

You can bring the love back to life.

Once you make her have feelings for you again, her heart will fill up with new, exciting emotions and she will want to be back in your arms.

What that happens, she too will regret that the relationship ended and will be happy that you had the courage to get it back together.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

6 Tips For Contacting an Ex Via Text or Phone Call After a Break Up

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The main reason why you should text an ex is to get her on a phone call, where you can spark some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you, and get her to meet up with you in person.

Don't try to use text for anything else than, or else you will increase the chances of her losing interest and moving on without you.

Here are 6 tips for contacting an ex via text or phone call after a break up.

1. Don't send too many texts

[image: Don't send too many texts to your ex]

When a guy wants to get back with his ex, but she isn't open to the idea of seeing him in person, he might try to stay in touch with her via text.

For example: He may think, "I know she doesn't want to see me right now, so texting is all I've got to work with. If I keep texting her every day, I will stay on her mind and she won't hook up with another guy. Hopefully, my texts will eventually make her realize how much I care for her and she'll stop avoiding me. She'll then agree to meet up and I will then convince her to give me another chance."

Yet, here's the thing!

Constantly texting an ex as a way of staying in touch, stopping her from moving on, or trying to convince her to give him another chance is one of the worst things a guy can do. Why?

Although texts can create a little spark here and there (e.g. when a guy is using humor to attract her), in most cases when a guy has been dumped by his woman, his texts will come across a bit insecure, boring (e.g. "How was your day?") or he will try too hard to impress her.

So, the woman isn't going to be amazed by his texts and thinking, "Damn, I need to get back with him. Did you see the way he just texted?! That was so cool!"

[image: Why does he think that he can get me back via text?]

Instead, she is basically being bombarded by endless texts about random things that don't really spark her feelings of respect and attraction for him again, so she thinks, "Why is he wasting my time with these texts? Why won't he just leave me alone and move on with his life? Does he think he can get me back by texting me every day? I'll show him. I'll hook up with that guy from the office this Friday and then tell him via text. That will shut him up."

Here's what you always need to remember!

Nothing you text to your ex will convince her that you've changed and that she should now forgive you and give you another chance.

It's just a text message.

It's not you.

When a woman can't see your body language or hear the tone of your voice, she won't be able to experience the new and improved you for real, so she just won't believe that you've changed. With a text message, she has to interpret what you're writing based to how she feels about you and how you behaved near the end of the break up, during it and since.

For example: If a woman feels negative emotions such as resentment, disgust, indifference, anger, or annoyance towards her ex, then anything that he texts her will likely be seen negatively too.

So, if you want to contact your ex via text after a break up, remember to only do so with the intention of getting her on a phone call with you right away.

Don't waste a lot of time (hers and yours) sending her random texts that will potentially annoy her and turn her off even more.

On a phone call, you can re-spark some of her feelings for you by making her smile and laugh and show her that you're no longer the same old guy that she remembered.

Getting her smiling and laughing on a phone call immediately drops her guard and she then becomes more open to meeting up with you.

2. Don't instantly reply to every text

A guy might be tempted to reply instantly to every text he gets from his ex, because he might be thinking, "If I don't reply right away, she might think that I'm being rude or that I'm not interested in her anymore. She might even suspect that I'm with another woman and then she definitely won't want to get back together with me."

Yet, rather than make her think, "How sweet. My ex is so thoughtful and caring, he never lets me wait for a reply for more than a minute," she will most-likely be thinking, "He's just sitting around waiting for me to text him. Doesn't he have a life? He even texts me back right away when he's at work. He obviously doesn't care about his life anymore now that I'm not in it. He has lost it" and she will feel repelled by what she perceives to be his desperation, lack of maturity and lack of emotional independence.

The fact is, desperation and emotional dependency (otherwise known as neediness) is not an attractive trait in a man, so even if you're really happy that your ex is texting you back, don't make the classic mistake of instantly replying to every text within seconds or minutes.

If you're busy (e.g. driving, out with friends, at work), it's not rude to wait for a more suitable time to reply to her.

Even if you have to force yourself to wait a while to text her back because the only thing you have going on in your life at the moment is sitting at home waiting to hear from her, just do it.

Force yourself to wait 10 minutes sometimes, an hour other times and even a day other times.

It's fine to reply within seconds or minutes sometimes, but make sure that you don't get predictable.

3. Don't waste weeks texting without seeing her in person

It's easy for a guy to fall into the habit of texting his ex without working up the courage to see her in person.

He might think, “This is okay. At least she’s talking to me even if it is only via text. There’s no point in pushing her. When she’s ready to see me, she’ll tell me and then we can meet up. I want to show her that I respect her.”

Yet, a woman will rarely text her ex and say, “I’ve been thinking about you so much lately. I miss you. Why don’t you give me a call? I want to get together,” because she doesn’t want to make it too easy for him to get her back.

Sometimes women do that, but it’s only if she really loves her ex, misses him and can’t move on without him.

However, those ex back cases are not the ones that guys get online and seek help with.

Those are easy because all you have to do is ignore her and she’ll come running back.

The majority of ex back cases (I’d estimate it about 80% based on my years of experience helping guys get women back) are cases where the woman has lost respect and attraction for her guy and no longer wants anything to do with him.

That’s what guys seek help with because they are unable to fix it on their own.

In cases like that, a guy needs to prepare himself to get his ex to forgive him, feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him and then guide her back into a relationship.

That’s what I teach in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System and it works.

If you want your ex back, you can’t sit around hoping that if you just text her enough, she will eventually say, “Okay, let’s get back together.”

It just doesn’t work that way in 80% of cases, so if you use that approach, you’re most likely eventually going to get a text from her saying something like, “I’ve met a new guy. He wants me to stop talking to you. Please respect that and stop texting me.”

Here’s the thing!

As the man, it’s your responsibility to guide both you and her back into a relationship.

So, don’t make the classic ex back mistake of hiding behind texts in the hopes that she will make it easy for you.

Even though you and your ex might be texting back and forth in a friendly way, it doesn’t mean she’s sitting around saving herself for you.

If another guy comes along and makes her feel attracted, it’s unlikely that she will say to him, “No, I can’t. I’m waiting for my ex to pluck up the courage and call me. I’m not sure how long that will take, but I’m going to sit around and reject all other guys because I want to text back and forth with my ex for years, rather than going out on a date, hugging, kissing, having sex and being in love with a guy.”

Instead, she’s just going to get on with her life when it happens. She’s not going to be loyal to you because you’re texting her.

Regardless of how often you text her, nothing you say in a text message can be powerful enough to convince her that you’re no longer the guy she remembers.

So, if you really want to get your ex back, don’t waste weeks while you’re texting back and forth.

Just pick up the phone and talk to her in person.

On the phone call, focus on sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

When she hears the confidence in your voice, her guard will come down and she will then become open to meeting up with you in person.

4. Get her laughing and smiling when you call her

[image: Talking to your ex on the phone]

Although calling your ex is better than texting, it will be a complete waste of time if you don't use the phone call to spark some of her feelings of attraction and desire for you again.

For example: When you call her up, you can say something like, Hi Susan. I was wondering would you like to meet up some time just to catch up?

Yet, that's not going to leave her feeling attracted, and she's likely just going to say something along the lines of, No, I don't think that's a good idea. Let's leave the past behind us. We should both focus on moving on.

On the other hand, you can use humor to make her smile, laugh and start thinking to herself, This is fun. Maybe getting together for a catch up isn't such a bad idea after all.

Here's how you can do it!

You can say something like, Hey Susan, how's your day been so far? She will likely respond by saying, Fine, how about you?

You can then say in a joking way, My day is great so far, but it's just about to get even better! I'm waiting for a cute blonde woman to ask me out to lunch and then my day will be perfect.

She will likely feel a bit annoyed and say, Oh, okay. Well, that's nice for you.

You can then say, Well, it will be when she asks me out to lunch. By the way...you are the cute blonde. So, where are you taking me to lunch? I feel like Chinese food today, how about you – what do you feel like? and then laugh.

At this point, she will probably be laughing and feeling a little embarrassed about initially feeling upset with you for talking about another woman, which turned out to be her.

By making her laugh you're breaking the ice between you and her.

You're effectively saying to her (without these words), Hey, it's okay to laugh together. We can still do that.

At the same time, she will be impressed to see that you're confident enough to joke around with her, and possibly also feel a little flattered that you're still calling her cute, even though you and her are no longer together.

When you make an ex smile and laugh again when talking to you, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling good.

Even if she tries to resist it, she won't be able to hold on to her negative feelings about you for long because you're replacing her negative memories of you with new, positive feelings.

When that happens, her guard comes down and she becomes open to meeting up with you and seeing where it goes.

5. Use the phone call to let her experience the new and improved you

On a phone call, you can spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, by letting her experience the improvements that you've made to yourself since the break up.

For example: If one of the reasons why a woman broke up with her man was that he lacked ambition and had no real direction in life, on a phone call he would need to let her experience the new him that is now more ambitious and goal oriented.

However, he can't just come out and say to her, "You know how you hated the fact that I had no goals in my life? Well now I do. I'm more ambitious now just like you always wanted me to be," because she doesn't want him to be ambitious just for her.

She wants him to be a man because he has realized where was going wrong and has grown up, rather than just doing whatever she wants in the hopes that it will get back|even though he doesn't want to do what she wants.

She might even think to herself, "Nice try buddy! You're just saying that to me because you know that's one of the main reasons I broke up with you."

So, to convince her that he's changed, he has to let her experience the new, more ambitious and driven version of himself through conversation.

How can he do that?

If she asks, "So how have you been?" rather than him responding with a boring, "Fine," which says nothing about him, he can instead tell her about the things he's been up to since the break up to show her that he's changed.

For example: When she asks, "So how have you been?" he might say something like, "I'm great. I've finally gotten around to taking that Spanish language course I was always interested in starting. It's going well and I'm planning a trip to Spain next month to meet with some investors who are interested in that business idea I always had. It's great to be making progress with the things that I had been putting off. I'm excited about the future. Good times ahead."

By talking to her in that way, he's showing her that he's changed without actually coming out and saying it.

She then begins to feel some respect for him again for being man enough to face up to his issues (e.g. hiding from his dream and goals behind her and the relationship) and make some serious adjustments to his behavior and way of thinking.

If he is also making her smile, laugh and feel good to be talking to him over the phone, she will drop her guard and open herself up to the idea of meeting up with him in person.

Then, when he meets up with her, he simply needs to continue saying and doing the types of things that will reactivate her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him.

6. Arrange a meet up in person

[image: How to get her to meet up with you]

If you want her back, don't waste time hiding behind texts and phone calls.

In ex back cases, nothing significant usually happens until the man and woman meet up in person and the woman gets to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

Until that happens, a woman usually won't be feeling enough respect and attraction to feel motivated to give the relationship another chance.

However, when you meet up with her in person and make her feel attracted to you in new and exciting ways (e.g. by being more confident and emotionally mature, by making her laugh, by being charismatic) that is when things will really change between you and her.

[image: Get your ex back - reunited couples]

The bottom line is this!

Contacting your ex via text or phone call after a break up is only a stepping stone to meeting up with her, where you can reactivate her feelings in person and then hug, kiss and make her love for you come rushing back.

So, text to get her on a call and call to get her to meet up with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What is the Success Rate For Getting an Ex Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Some studies say that 65% of couples get back together, while others suggest anywhere from 10% to 53%.

In other words, they have no idea.

The studies also don't take into account the fact that men are now getting online to learn how to get an ex back and are succeeding in higher numbers than ever before.

Based on what we see here at The Modern Man by helping men get women back, the majority of guys can at least get another chance with their ex as long as they follow the correct ex back process.

If a guy can't get a second chance immediately, he can usually do so within weeks and we often get e-mails from guys to thank us for the advice and to say how happy they are after getting their woman back in 10-15 days.

We also sometimes hear of guys getting a second chance a month or two later, as long as he continues to follow the process that we provide here.

Guys who fail to get their ex back are usually those who don't make the changes needed by the woman.

Instead, they simply continue to turn her off (e.g. by being insecure, letting her have too much power over him, not making her respect him again, not actively re-attracting her, avoiding her in the hopes that she comes running back).

So, if you want to successfully get your ex back, you first need to understand what she needs, and then go about giving her those things.

Here's what you need to do!

1. Understand what caused her to break up with you

[image: Understand what she really needs you to change about yourself]

In most relationships, the woman doesn't just wake up one day and think to herself, "Today is a good day to dump my guy. Yeah! I've decided that I want to be single!"

Instead, she usually makes that decision after a long time of trying to get through to her guy to make him see how unhappy she is with him.

For example: A woman might say to her guy, "If you don't change, I'm going to leave," or "I'm tired of fighting with you over the same things. You're just not listening to me. I'm not going to put up with this much longer."

If the guy simply writes it off as her being a temperamental woman, or if he ignores her because he assumes that his love for her is enough to keep her in the relationship for life, her feelings of respect and attraction for him will begin to fade away.

Over time, if he continues to ignore her feedback and carries on saying and doing the types of things that have been turning her off, she will break up with him.

The guy might then ask, "Huh?! Why are you doing this to me? What have I done wrong? Just *tell me what you want me to do and Iâ€¦ will do it. I promise that I will change. Just tell me exactly what I need to change. I will do it.*â€¦

However, by that stage, the woman is likely thinking, *â€¦ Well, it's too little, too late. Iâ€¦ ve already told you hundreds of times before and you didn't care to listen and change.*â€¦

Some women do tell their guy exactly what he needs to change about himself, but most women wonâ€¦ t. Why?

A woman doesnâ€¦ t want to be a guyâ€¦ s teacher in life and have to teach him how to be the kind of man who thinks, talks, acts and behaves in ways that are attractive to her.

She wants a ready-made man or guy who can quickly figure out how to be a man without her help.

So, rather than hang around and take on the role of his teacher or mother, she will simply say something like, *â€¦ Itâ€¦ s not you, itâ€¦ s me. I need some space right now to sort out my life by myself,*â€¦ and she will then leave him behind.

[image: I am attracted to you. Why don't feel attracted to me too?]

What she isn't telling him is, "Look, you're just not man enough for me. Other guys get how to be a man, but you don't."

She doesn't want to give him clues on what to work on because she doesnâ€¦ t want him to fake the improvements to get her back.

If he can work it out for himself or get help from a friend, then she will see that has stepped up and is no longer the confused guy that she dumped.

He has become a man now and no matter how turned off she used to feel, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him because of it.

So, how about you?

Do you know the real, more subtle reasons why your ex dumped you and didn't want you back?

If you want to successfully get her back, you need to first understand her real, more subtle reasons (not the vague excuses or reasons she gave you) for breaking up with you.

If you have no idea how to figure that out by yourself, here are some questions you can ask that will help:

- Did you make her feel loved, respected and appreciated, or did you take her for granted (e.g. by no longer noticing her efforts to look attractive for you, failing to help with chores/errands)?
- Were you the man in the relationship, or did you allow her to wear the pants and make most of the decisions for you and her?
- Did she feel feminine and girly in your presence, or did she feel more like a friend, or big sister?
- Was she able to look up to you and respect you as her man, or did she look down on you?
- Weâ€¦ re you emotionally strong and confident around her, or were you insecure, needy and clingy?
- Did you have a purpose outside of your relationship with her, or did you make her your sole reason for living?

Once you fully understand where you really went wrong with her, you will then be able to make the correct changes to your thinking and behavior.

[image: Talking to your ex on the phone]

Then, when you next interact with her again via text, e-mail, on a phone call, or in person, she will be able to see for herself that youâ€¢re not stuck repeating the same mistakes over and over again.

When that happens, she automatically starts to feel some respect and attraction for you again.

Thatâ€¢s when her guard comes down, and she opens herself to the idea of getting back together again.

2. Change how she feels

One of the ways to change how your ex feels about you is to show her that youâ€¢ve moved beyond the level you were at when she broke up with you.

At this point, some guys will ask, “How can I do that? She isn’t answering my calls or texts. She doesn’t want to see me.”

If you need help to bring down her walls, get her to unblock you from social media, answering your texts and calls and be willing to meet up with you in person, I recommend that you watch, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

If you are sincere about getting her back, it’s absolutely essential that you let her see that you’re no longer stuck at the same level you were at when she broke up with you.

For example: A guy got dumped by his woman because he was too needy and insecure in the relationship.

He may have been too emotionally sensitive, constantly needed her to reassure him of her love, or he may have been clingy, jealous and controlling.

Whatever the case, his insecurity caused her to lose respect and attraction for him as a man and she then broke up with him.

So, to change how she feels about him, he needs to allow her to experience the new and improved, confident and self-assured version of himself whenever he interacts with her from now on.

She will see that he is no longer insecure.

Regardless of what she says, how she reacts, or how she tests him (e.g. acting cold and bitchy towards him), he doesn’t lose confidence and even has the emotional strength and social intelligence to be able to get her smiling and laughing in moments like that.

For example: As a way of testing whether her ex has really changed, or is just putting on an act, a woman might say to him, “I don’t know if there’s a chance for us anymore. Iâ€¢m having such a great time hanging out with my friends and meeting new guys. I think I like being single.”

If he then reacts by getting upset, sulking and possibly even getting angry with her and saying something like, “How can you do this to me? Weâ€¢ve only been broken up for a week and youâ€¢re already over me just like that. Didn’t our love mean anything to you? Have you already slept with a new guy?” she will see that nothing about him has really changed and his new, confident and emotionally strong persona was only an act.

On the other hand, if he remains relaxed, smiles and says something like, “Thatâ€¢s cool. Being single definitely has its up side, but so does being in a really good relationship. The main thing is that you enjoy yourself no matter where you find yourself; single or in a relationship,” she will see that heâs changed for real and her feelings for him will begin to change too.

[image: Making your ex feel attracted over the phone]

If she then tries to test him further by saying, “Yeah, but I wasn’t enjoying myself in our relationship,” he can demonstrate emotional strength and social intelligence by saying in a joking manner, “Yeah, me too. I secretly hated you the whole time” and then laugh with her about that.

She will then see that he’s not the insecure, emotionally sensitive guy that she broke up with.

He has already changed and become a better man.

The more that she experiences his newfound confidence and emotional strength, the more naturally attracted she feels.

So, if you want to have a high success rate chance of getting your ex back, the main thing to remember is that you need to change how she feels about the old you by letting her experience the new you.

When you change and improve on the things that caused your ex to lose respect and attraction for you, her feelings for you will also change.

It happens naturally and automatically, even if she doesn’t want it to or if she tries to fight it or hide it.

If your ex is currently saying, “Iâm not interested in getting back together again,” or “I just don’t feel the same way about you anymore,” itâs simply because she is seeing (via the way you talk, act, behave and interact with her), that nothing about you has changed.

On the other hand, when you get her on a phone call, or meet up with her, and she experiences the new and improved version of you, sheâll begin to think, “This isn’t the guy I remember. Heâs changed so much. It feels silly for me to keep saying “No” to him now. Maybe I should just give him a chance. Who knows? it might be fun. I want to kiss him and hug him all of a sudden for some reason. I guess it’s a sign.”

When that happens, you are simply a catch up away from getting her back.

You can do this.

3. Contact her and get her to meet up with you in person

One of the best ways to successfully get an ex back is by interacting with her on a phone call and making her laugh, smile and feel good to be talking to you again.

Laughter, smiling and feel good emotions automatically bring her guard down and she naturally begins to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for who you have become since the break up.

For example: Imagine that youâre talking to your ex and she says something like, “Look, I don’t see the point of getting back together again.”

A boring response that will do nothing to spark her feelings for you would be something along the lines of, “Oh, but I still love you. Please don’t say that. I really think that we can work things out. Can’t you just give us another chance?”

[image: Re-attracting your ex over the phone]

On the other hand, a response that will get her smiling, laughing and feeling some level of attraction for you would be something like, “Me too. If we got back together, things would be better, we’d stay together and then I’d have to put up with eating your crappy cooking again” and then laugh. Obviously, you’d only say that if her cooking was really good and both you and her knew that, so she’d know that you’re joking.

However, if you are a confident guy, you could say it if her cooking was bad and then say, “Only kidding. You did make that one dish really well. Remember when you made that lasagna? That was awesome. You are a good cook, you’re pretty and I love you” and that’s why I want to get back with you. Also, I need someone to do my laundry” and then laugh with her about that.

[image: Attracting your ex over the phone]

By making a joke in response to her statement of, “Look, I don’t see the point of getting back together again,” you instantly take the edge off the seriousness of the situation and bring it back to laughter and love.

She has a laugh with you and then begins to wonder, “Why isn’t he being emotionally sensitive like he used to? Why is he reacting so differently? He’s so much more confident and emotionally mature” and I like it for some reason. What’s going on? Could this mean that we are supposed to get back together? Maybe it will be a good idea to give this a try. I can see it going well.

By using humor to get her smiling and laughing on a phone call, she will naturally feel attracted to you, whether she wants to or not.

She will begin to reconnect with her positive feelings for you (e.g. respect, attraction, love) and then when you ask her for a meet up, she will feel excited to see you again, even if she acts like she is only half interested or doesn’t care whether the meet up happens or not.

At the meet up, you can then reinforce her reignited feelings of respect and attraction by letting her experience the new you face-to-face.

Then, you simply guide her through the rest of the ex back process.

Success or Failure It’s Up to You. Which One Do You Choose?

[image: Successfully getting an ex back]

If you’ve bothered to ask, “What is the success rate for getting an ex back?” you will have probably discovered that most people don’t think it’s possible to get a relationship back together, even though there are some statistics that suggest more than 50% of relationships get back together (even if only temporarily) after a break up.

Friends, family and coworkers may have even been told, “Forget about her. It’s over. You need to move on,” or “Just stop calling her for a while. If she doesn’t come back, then it wasn’t meant to be. I’ve heard people say that if you let someone go and they come back, it was meant to be, but if they don’t, you have to move on.”

Yet, they don’t understand what you’re going through right now and they also don’t even know that millions of people get back together every day all over the world.

It is possible to get an ex back, even if she currently hates you or doesn’t have any feelings for you.

I've personally heard from 100s of guys who've used my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System to get their woman back and most of them start out with a woman who despises them and doesn't want anything to do with them anymore.

I don't hear back from every customer though.

[image: Re-attracting your ex]

Most guys just use the program, get their woman back and get on with their life, so I don't know the exact success rate.

However, I can tell you one thing for sure: Trying to guess how to get your ex back without following a proven to work, step by step approach will result in you making loads of classic mistakes that turn her off and potentially ruin your chances of getting her back.

For example: Most guys who don't know how to get an ex woman back will do things like beg, plead, try to convince her or ignore her.

Yet, those approaches have a very low success rate.

I know this because I've personally helped 100s of phone coaching clients to get women back and they've pretty much all used those techniques before getting in touch with me.

When they use my ex back approach (i.e. actively make her have feelings for you again and then guide her back into a relationship), they get their woman back.

So, if you want to get your woman back using the highest success rate approach, don't waste any more time thinking about it.

The time is now.

Get her back before it's too late.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Getting an Ex Back: 5 Success Stories

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Getting an ex back is a lot easier than most guys might think.

To show you how it's done, here are 5 success stories of what men did to get an ex woman back and why it worked.

The following success stories are based on the most common of the 100s of ex back cases that I've personally worked on with clients.

1. He regained her trust by changing, improving and letting her experience it in person. Then, they got back together.

[image: Get her respect and attraction back at a meet up]

A woman's trust in who you are as a man is very important in a relationship.

If she can't trust in you to be a confident, loving, emotionally strong man, her guard starts to go up and she no longer wants to give you all of her love.

So, when a guy behaves in ways that turn a woman off during a relationship (e.g. he is too insecure and clingy, is jealous and controlling, lacks purpose in life outside of the relationship with her, takes her for granted) her feelings of trust, respect, attraction and love for him will decline over time.

Initially, she may try to convince him to change by dropping hints about his behavior or throwing tantrums to show him how upset and unhappy she is with the relationship.

Yet, if the guy doesn't pick up on her hints and takes action to change those things about himself, or if he simply ignores her hints and assumes that because she loves him so much she should put up with anything, she will eventually break up with him.

So, when a guy gets his ex back in cases like those, it's usually because he has changed the things about himself that were turning her off and in the process regained her respect and trust.

For example: A guy got broken up with by his woman because he was jealous and controlling in the relationship with her.

He was clinging to her and acting like a controlling bully by forbidding her to go out with her friends, or accusing her of cheating or wanting to cheat every time she interacted with another guy, (e.g. at work, at university, on Facebook).

So, what is an example ex back success story for a situation like this?

To show her that he had changed and regain her trust, the man called her and invited her to a meet up.

[image: Ex was initially resistant to the idea of meeting up]

Naturally, she wasn't convinced that anything about him would be different, so she was resistant at first, saying things like, "I don't think that's a good idea," or "You broke my trust and I just don't have feelings for you anymore. I don't think it's a good idea that we meet," or, "I don't think I'm ready to meet up yet. I think I need more time."

However, rather than get disheartened and give up, the man simply focused on sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for him by making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be talking to him over the phone.

By triggering some of her feelings, she lowered her guard and then said, “Yes” to meeting up with him.

Yet, just because she agreed to see him again, it didn’t mean that she was 100% ready to get back together with him.

She needed to see for herself the changes she experienced over the phone.

So, at the meet up, she pretended to be interested in getting back together with him one minute, and then acted cold and indifferent the next minute to see how he would react.

Rather than being insecure and emotionally weak like he would of in the past, he remained confident and simply smiled and laughed at her behavior and then continued to interact with her.

She then tried to make him jealous by saying something along the lines of, “I don’t know if I want to get back together with you. I’m actually having a lot of fun now. I’m going out to clubs with my single friends and I’m meeting many interesting guys.”

She was testing to see if he would react like his old self by getting jealous, angry or throwing a tantrum at her.

Instead, he just smiled and said something like, “Good for you. I’m glad you’re enjoying yourself.”

This really surprised her and she may have begun to wonder, “Why isn’t he getting jealous? Does he have a new woman who is prettier than me, or has really just changed and become more of a man now? If I had said something like that to him before we broke up he would have gone through the roof. Yet, now he’s smiling and even telling me that it’s a good thing. He’s really changed. I actually like the new him. He’s fun to be around now.”

The more time that she spent hanging out with him, the more she got to experience the new and improved version of him.

He suddenly seemed more attractive to her than ever before and her feelings of trust and respect for him began to grow.

He then asked her to get back together again and see how it goes and she said, “Yes.”

2. He gave her a week of space, used that time to improve his ability to attract her, contacted her, met up for coffee and got the relationship back together

Most guys don’t know what to do when they get broken up with by the woman that they love, so they just give up on the idea of getting their ex back, or ignore her in the hopes that she will eventually come back on her own.

Yet, that rarely works, because the longer a guy spends ignoring a woman, the more time she has to get over him, and potentially hook up with another man.

Giving a woman a week of space is the perfect amount of time because it allows things to cool down after the break up, but doesn’t give her too much time to forget about you and move on.

When a guy contacts his ex woman (e.g. via text message, e-mail, on social media, or on a phone call) to invite her out for coffee after giving her a week of space, he is much more likely to get her back than a guy who has been ignoring his ex for 30 or 60 days.

However, contacting an ex after a week of space isn't the magic answer to getting her back.

A guy who contacts his ex within a week must prepare to attract her on the phone or in person before she will be open to the idea of getting back together again.

For example: A guy meets up with his ex for coffee.

At the meet up, he actively sparks her feelings of attraction by flirting with her and by being confident, charismatic and charming.

He also lets her experience the changes he's made to himself since the break up (e.g. if he was insecure and allowed her to dominate him before, he is now masculine and emotionally strong, if he was lacking in drive and ambition, he is now rising through the levels of life and reaching for his true potential as a man).

She feels respect and attraction for him again, and they get back together again.

I've heard back from many guys who've gotten their woman back in ex back cases like this.

As long as you get some face-to-face time with her and properly re-spark her feelings, she won't be able to stop herself from at least hugging and kissing you at the end of the meet up or during it.

When that happens, the next step is sex and getting the relationship back together.

You'd be surprised at how often that happens.

3. He gave her the attraction experience she was looking for all along and she then cancelled the divorce.

[image: She cancelled the divorce and they stayed together]

A wife will seldom give up on her marriage unless she absolutely has to (e.g. her husband has become very abusive, he is taking her for granted and making her life a living hell by expecting her to do everything for him).

Marriage usually lasts for life, but a husband stops making his wife feel the way that she wants to feel in the relationship (e.g. loved, appreciated, attracted, feminine, safe) she will usually decide to divorce him and have to deal with the stigma that is attached to being a divorcee.

For a man to stop his wife from wanting a divorce, he has to change the way he interacts and communicates with her in ways that triggers her feelings of attraction and respect for him again.

For example: Some of the ways that he can do that include:

- Reacting differently to what she says and does (e.g. if she nags him about not helping with the housework, rather than get upset about it, he understands that she's feeling taken for granted and then focuses on making her feel loved and appreciated. Alternatively, he turns it into something for them both to laugh about, rather than taking it so seriously and he then helps her with some of the housework).
- Focusing on making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be around him, rather than just being neutral and not really caring about making her smile and laugh.

- Making her feel feminine, girly and taken care of in the relationship, rather than making her feel neutral or worse, feel like more of the “man” in the relationship.
- Showing her via his thinking, behavior and actions that heâ€¢s fixed some of the issues that have been turning her off (e.g. heâ€¢s more confident and is no longer being insecure, he now takes the lead in the relationship rather than expecting her to decide on everything).

In response to his new, attractive behavior, she naturally begins to feel more respect and attraction for him as a man and starts to ask herself, â€¢I still love him and heâ€¢s clearly changed for the better, so do I really want to go through with the divorce?â€¢

She then drops her guard, opens herself back up to the love in her heart and cancels the divorce.

Once again, I’ve heard back from so many clients and customers who’ve avoided a nasty, expensive divorce just by going through the steps in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System

4. He got a new job, started being more mature, met up with her, reactivated her feelings and got the relationship back together.

[image: Make her love the new you]

A woman wants to know that her man is someone she can look up to, respect and rely on for life.

So, if a guy is sitting around and letting his life pass him by, she is likely going to be thinking, â€¢What am I doing here? Iâ€¢m stuck in a relationship with a guy who is wasting his life away and dragging me along with him. Heâ€¢s so immature. Heâ€¢s just wasting all of his spare time playing video games or watching TV. Heâ€¢s stuck in a dead-end job and has no ambitions or goals for his life. I donâ€¢t want that anymore. I want a man who has a planâ€¢a man who has bigger goals and ambitions and will make it happen, so I can feel safe. Imagine if I got pregnant with himâ€¢what kind of life would be have? He’s not even striving to achieve a better life. He’s just so comfortable now that we’re in a relationship. He has no idea how bad life could get for us if one of us lost our jobs, one of us got sick or if we couldn’t afford to take care of any children we had while paying rent or a mortgage. I’ve just got to leave him before my life gets any worse.â€¢

Most women like the idea of being with a man who is rising through the levels of life by reaching for his true potential as a man.

So, when a woman realizes that her guy has no plan for his life, she will most-likely break up with him because his lack of purpose is a big turn off for her and makes her feel unsafe.

Of course, that doesnâ€¢t mean she wonâ€¢t be able to feel respect and attraction for him ever again.

When she can see that heâ€¢s no longer the same immature guy that she broke up with, her feelings for him naturally change.

For example: A guy got broken up with because he was immature and lacked drive and direction in his life.

However, rather than sit around feeling sad and depressed about it, he decided to make some improvements to himself.

He then called up his ex and said something like, “I’ve had a lot of time to think about why you broke up with me, and I now understand that what I did wrong. I was just hanging around waiting for life to happen and wasn’t making any progress. That was childish and immature and I can see why you stopped respecting me as a man. I now understand that that’s not how a real man behaves in life. However, I also want you to know that I’m not that same old guy anymore. I’ve made some real positive changes in my life and things are going well for me now. I have a new job that I love and I have big plans for my future. Thanks to you, I’ve learned from my mistakes and I’m moving forward in my life and becoming a better man. I just wish I didn’t have to hurt you during our relationship to realize that. I’m not asking for you to take me back, but I do want you to know that I love you and I have changed because it was the right thing to do.”

By saying something like that to his ex, he accomplishes 2 things:

1. He shows her that he’s no longer the same guy that she broke up with and he’s now a new and improved man.
2. He triggers her feelings of respect and attraction for him for being so mature, confident and forward moving, which makes her drop her guard and open up to the idea of getting back together with him again.

After saying that to her, he made a point of meeting up with her in person, so that she could experience the new him face-to-face.

At the meet up, he continued to spark her feelings for him by behaving in some of the ways that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. confident, charismatic, charming) and by showing her his new, mature side.

She may have then begun to wonder, “What is going on here? This isn’t the childish, immature guy I used to know who lacked purpose and direction in his life. Not only does he now have goals and dreams that he’s working towards, but he’s also so much more confident and self-assured. Wow! I never thought he would change, but here he is, a completely different man from the one I broke up with. I’m so impressed that he took charge of his life in this way. I could definitely see myself in a relationship with him now.”

She felt a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him, her guard came down and they got back together again.

Of course, admitting your mistakes to your ex doesn’t always make her instantly change her mind about breaking up with you and come running back, but it does soften her negative feelings (e.g. anger, pain, indifference) and allow her to feel some level of respect and attraction for you again.

5. He apologized for his mistakes, got her to forgive him and gave her a week of space. During that time, he improved his ability to attract her and then met up with her, had sex with her and they got back together.

[image: Hooking up with your ex]

Forgiveness is powerful.

When you get a woman to forgive you it makes her drop her guard and stop focusing on the negatives of the relationship.

Forgiveness really changes a woman.

After forgiving her ex, she almost always becomes more open to interacting with him on the phone and in person.

Then, when she can see (by what he says, how he behaves and how he interacts with her) that he's at a different level now from what she remembers, she allows herself to feel respect and attraction for him again.

When she allows herself to feel attracted to him and respectful towards him, that's when she starts to feel drawn to him.

However, to get to the point where his ex is forgiving him, he first has to apologize to her for his mistakes.

For example: He might say to her, "I know I stuffed up. I can see now why you felt like you had to break up with me. I understand now that at the time, breaking up was the right thing to do for both of us. It definitely allowed me to see the things about myself that needed improving and to have the time to become a better man. I just want you to know that I'm not the same old guy that you broke up with and I'm sorry for the pain I caused you. I'm not asking you to take me back at all, but I am asking you to forgive me. Can you forgive me? If you can, it will make you feel better and allow you to move on easier and it will also make me feel better because I truly am sorry for being such an idiot in our relationship, especially near the end. So, what do you say? Can you forgive me?"

When she forgives him, he then backs off and gives her a week of space.

During that time, she starts to think about all the changes that she experienced in him during their interaction.

She may then think to herself, "That's definitely not the guy I broke up with. He's definitely changed. I actually like the man that he's become now. It feels good interacting with him again."

After a week, he calls her and continues to say and do the types of things that trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for him.

He gets her smiling and laughing over the phone and when he asks her to meet up with him, she doesn't hesitate to say yes.

At the meet up, he makes her feel even more attracted by displaying some of the personality traits and behaviors that are attractive to women, such as confidence, charm, charisma and the ability to make her laugh even when she's being cold and distant.

She feels great and they kiss, have sex and get back together.

Have You Been Using a Failing Ex Back Approach and Expecting Winning Results?

If you want to win your ex back, you can't use a failing strategy (e.g. ignoring her for 30-60 days, begging for another chance or trying to get her to feel pity for you because you love her so much). To get her back, you've got to give her the kind of attraction experience that she wants and can't get with other guys.

When a guy has tried everything that he knows (e.g. ignoring her, begging, trying to convince her), he may get to a point where he feels like there's no hope of getting his ex back.

He might say, "I've tried everything but nothing is working. I will never be able to convince my ex to give us a second chance."

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that he's not getting her back because he has been saying the same old things and using the same old tricks, rather than focusing on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and sexual attraction for him.

For example: A guy might be calling his ex and begging and pleading with her to take him back.

He may be promising her that he really will change and telling her things like, "I can't live without you. You mean the world to me. I promise that things will be different this time if you'll just give me a chance" or "How can you let our love die? Doesn't what we had together mean anything to you? I still love you and you don't appreciate that, then there's something wrong with you."

Yet, none of what a guy is saying really matters to a woman if she's lost respect and attraction for him (e.g. because he became very insecure in the relationship).

On the other hand, if he changes the way he communicates and interacts with her in a way that sparks her feelings of respect and attraction for him again, it makes the negatives of the relationship seem less serious to her because she is now seeing him in a more positive light.

So, if your ex is currently saying, "Forget about it. I don't have feelings for you anymore and I don't want to get back together again," it means that the way you have been talking to her and interacting with her hasn't sparking those feelings inside of her.

Yet, that doesn't mean that you can't start to trigger those feelings inside of her.

You can.

When you make some adjustments to the way you talk, behave and interact with her in a way that sparks her feelings, everything changes.

She drops her guard and getting your ex back becomes a matter of when rather than if.

So, when you do want your ex back?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Ask Your Girlfriend For a Second Chance, Even Though She Isn't Interested

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your girlfriend currently isn't interested in giving you a second chance, you can make her interested by getting her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

For example: If you and her feel more like friends now (rather than lovers or boyfriend and girlfriend), then you need to trigger her feelings of sexual attraction by making her feel girly and feminine when you interact with her.

On the other hand, if she isn't interested because you became insecure in the relationship (e.g. jealous, needy, controlling, too protective), you need to interact with her and let her see that you're now confident and emotionally strong.

Once you create a spark, the door will then be open to rebuild her feelings and guide her back into a relationship.

However, make sure that you don't ask your girlfriend for a second chance until you know that she is attracted again, because she will just keep pushing you away and saying things like, "I am not interested," or "Just accept that it's over between us. I don't feel the same way about you anymore."

It can't be about you wanting her back because you love her so much or because you promise that things will be different this time around.

It has to be about you making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new and improved you, so she can then believe that things really are different now and a relationship with you would feel good to her.

The truth is, contrary to what some guys might believe, getting a woman to give you a second chance is actually pretty easy when you focus on changing how she feels when she interacts with you.

Watch this video for some examples!

As long as you are actively making her feel some respect and attraction for you, she will begin to feel interested again.

You can make her feel that way.

However, if you make one or more of the following mistakes, she's just going to keep saying that she's not interested!

1. Asking her for another chance before her feelings have been reactivated

[image: My ex isn't interested in getting back together]

One of the most common reactions that guys have when they get broken up with is to quickly try and convince their ex to give them another chance.

For example: A guy might explain what went wrong in the relationship, offer to change whatever she wants and promise her the world if she changes her mind.

Yet, if he doesn't first spark her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him, she will usually just keep saying, â€œLook, I know you mean well but Iâ€™m not interested in you anymore. Itâ€™s over between us. You need to let me go and move on with your life.â€

Essentially, what she's not coming out and saying is, â€œI know that youâ€™re sorry we broke up, but that doesn't change how I feel. Sorry is about how you feel. You still don't understand what caused me to stop having feelings for you and youâ€™re just hoping that if you apologize Iâ€™m going to forget about all the things that have been turning me off. You're also hoping that we can then go back to the way things used to be. However, Iâ€™m not interested in going back to that, because I don't believe that you can change. You need to accept that itâ€™s over and stop trying to convince me to change my mind. You don't even know how to quickly become the man that I want you to be, so I'm going to just move on unless you can somehow make me feel differently.â€

Sometimes, a woman will give a guy another chance when he convinces her that things will be different, but if she's given him chances like that before, she will eventually get tired of it.

So, don't waste your time trying to get her to give you another chance based on you promising to change.

Instead, just sparking her feelings of respect, attraction and love by behaving in some of the ways that are attractive to women (e.g. by making her feel feminine and girly when she's interacting with you from now on, making her smile and laugh, showing her that you've moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you, being emotionally masculine).

When you re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction, she will be more open to the idea of getting back together with you again.

On the other hand, if you just keep saying and doing the types of things that were turning her off before and interact with her in a neutral way (rather than an attractive, masculine way), she's going to keep saying, â€œThanks, but no thanks. Iâ€™m not interested.â€

2. Trying to make her feel sorry for you

[image: Clingy boyfriend pleading with girlfriend]

Sometimes, it can be difficult for a guy to accept that even though he's still truly in love with his girlfriend, she's not interested in giving him a second chance.

It's heartbreaking.

All those good times, the hugs, kisses, sex and loving moments are all gone now and she no longer feels the same way.

Some guys just can't deal with that kind of rejection, so they try to make the woman feel pity or guilt for making him feel so sad, depressed and rejected.

He might then begin to beg and plead for another chance only for her to keep saying, â€œNo. Iâ€™m not interested.â€

Feeling worse than he ever has in his life, he might then say something like, â€œHow can you do this to me? I love you so much. How can you be so cold-hearted after everything weâ€™ve shared together? Donâ€™t you care that youâ€™re breaking my heart? You mean the world to me and youâ€™re acting like I mean nothing to you. Yes, I messed up, but doesnâ€™t everyone deserve a second chance? You might not think so, but I believe that what we had is worth fighting for. Obviously my love for you was real, while you were only pretending to care about me. If you loved me for real, you wouldn't do this to me.

Yet, rather than make her think, Oh no! My ex must really love me if he is so sad about our break up! maybe Iâ€™m being too hard on him. Maybe I should just give him another chance and see if things can be different this time, his behavior makes her lose even more respect and attraction for him. Why?

Itâ€™s a womanâ€™s natural instinct to be more attracted to the kind of guy who has the emotional strength to cope with the random problems and challenges that life throws at him.

So, when a guy is looking for pity and is making himself look desperate and emotionally weak in a womanâ€™s eyes, she actually feels turned off by him.

Her instincts tell her, See, you were right to break up with him. Heâ€™s not emotionally strong enough to be able to cope with his problems and take care of himself. If you give him a second chance, you will probably end up having to take care of him and teach him how to be a man in his life. You need a man, not a boy. Go through with the break up. He's the sort of guy who will lean on you for emotional support and never grow up. Leave now while you can.

Even if the guy has the ability to be a man and handle the challenges of life, her instincts are going to be telling her otherwise because it's based on his current behavior.

It doesn't matter if a man has been emotionally strong around a woman for a year; if he becomes emotionally weak, that's who he is in the woman's eyes.

Women want to be able to feel safe with a guy who can handle the challenges of life, rather than getting stuck with a guy who needs her to make him feel safe.

A woman wants to be with a man who is confident, self-assured, determined and able to take care of her, not her have to take care of him.

Rather than her taking pity on him, his behavior actually causes her to lose even more respect and attraction for him.

Of course, itâ€™s sometimes possible to make a woman feel enough pity for a guy that she gets back together with him for a few days.

[image: My ex isn't interested in giving me another chance]

However, she will just break up with him again when she realizes that heâ€™s the same as before and that he doesnâ€™t have what it takes to change what she needs him to change.

So, donâ€™t waste a lot of time trying to make your girlfriend feel sorry for you.

Instead, just start saying and doing the types of things that will cause her to stop and think, Hey, whatâ€™s going on here? This isnâ€™t the way Iâ€™ve been expecting my ex to behave. Heâ€™s so different now. Heâ€™s actually being so mature and emotionally strong. I like the new him. Maybe itâ€™s not too late to give our relationship a second chance.

When you reactivate your ex girlfriendâ€™s feelings of respect, attraction and love for you again, you wonâ€™t have to resort to making her feel pity for you to get her to give you a second chance. Instead, she will want to give you a second chance because it feels good to her; not because youâre attempting to manipulate her feelings for you by making her feel sorry for you.

3. Saying that you will wait for her no matter how long it takes

[image: I will wait for you no matter how long it takes]

Often, when a woman is saying things like, *âItâs over between us. Iâm just not interested in getting back together again,*â a guy might decide that the only way to show her that heâs really serious about getting her back, is by making it clear that he will never, ever get over her.

He might say to her, *âEven though you say that youâre not interested in giving me a second chance, I want you to know that Iâll wait for you no matter how long it takes. I donât want any other woman. I want you. Youâre the only woman for me, and eventually youâll see that no other guy will care for you the way I do and that our love is worth saving.*â

He may think that by showing her how committed he still is to her, and that no other woman compares to her, she will feel flattered and open herself back up to giving him another chance.

Yet, hereâs the thingâ!

Although a woman appreciates a man who is totally loving and devoted, she doesnât want to be his purpose for living and she doesnât want to be responsible for taking care of his will to live or happiness in life.

She also doesnât want to feel like he canât attract other women and only wants to be with her because she originally gave him a chance to be with her.

She wants him to be confident enough to move forward and enjoy his life with, or without her.

If a guy sits around waiting for his girlfriend to hopefully one day give him a second chance, it usually means that heâs neglecting other areas of his life.

For example: A guy might decide to avoid going out socially and interacting with any other women, in case his girlfriend finds out and thinks that heâs moved on.

He might neglect his career, or give up on his purpose in life.

Yet, thatâs not attractive to a woman.

Of course, there are some women out there who will enjoy an ego boost when they discover that their ex is waiting around for them and going nowhere in his life.

However, the majority of women like the idea of being with a man who can be happy and fulfilled in his life with, or without her.

So, if you want to ask your girlfriend for a second chance, make sure that itâs because you sincerely love her and because she adds value to your life, not because she is your life and you have nothing else going on without her.

Then, when you interact with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) and she gets a sense that you are happy, confident and getting on with your life without her, she will begin to see you in a new light.

You will seem more attractive to her and she will feel drawn to you again.

4. Being extra nice to her to show how much you care

Another common mistake that guys make when they are trying to get a girlfriend to give them a second chance, is to be extra nice to her.

For example: A guy might lavish his ex girlfriend with gifts and tokens of his affection, help her out financially by paying her rent, buying her groceries or paying her bills and make himself available to her 24/7.

He may think, “If Iâ€™m really nice to her, spoil her and make myself an essential part of her life, she will realize that I really care for her and that she canâ€™t live without me. Then, even though sheâ€™s been saying that she isnâ€™t interested, she will change her mind and give me a second chance.”

However, what a guy like that doesnâ€™t understand is that when a woman is saying things like, “Go away. Iâ€™m just not interested in getting back together again,” itâ€™s because she doesnâ€™t have sexual and romantic feelings for him anymore.

Even though she might appreciate that heâ€™s being extra nice to her, itâ€™s most likely not going to make her think, “What have I been thinking? This guy is such a gem! I want to kiss him and have sex with him right now! Look at the way heâ€™s spoiling me and doing everything I want. I better give him a second chance before he gets away and some other lucky woman takes him,” because all heâ€™s doing is being nice to her, without renewing her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for him first.

So, donâ€™t waste your time being nice to your ex girlfriend and then feeling hurt and dejected when she keeps saying “Thanks, youâ€™re so sweet, but Iâ€™m not interested in being in a relationship with you anymore.”

Instead, you need to make her interested by getting her to feel a renewed sense of respect and sexual attraction for you.

When you re-spark some of her feelings of respect and attraction (e.g. via the way you think, talk, behave and interact with her), she will naturally drop her guard and appreciate that you care about her.

Then, giving you a second chance will actually feel right to her.

Making Her Go From Not Interested to Very Interested and Then Getting Her Back

When you started off wondering how to ask your girlfriend for a second chance even though she wasn't interested, you may have been thinking, “If sheâ€™s not interested, nothing that I say is going to make her change her mind, so itâ€™s probably a lost cause. Iâ€™ve lost her forever. I guess I just have to accept that and let her get on with her life without me. I'm just not good enough for her.”

Yet, hopefully by now youâ€™ve realized that getting her to change her mind is actually a lot easier than you might have thought.

When you re-spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, something interesting happensâ€¦!

She stops focusing on all the negative things about your relationship and she starts to see you in a new, more positive light.

From there, itâ□□s up to you to continue sparking those positive emotions inside of her (i.e. respect, attraction and love) and guide her back into a loving, sexual relationship with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get an Ex Back After Using the No Contact Rule For Too Long

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Okay, so you've been using the No Contact Rule for too long and now you want to get your ex back.

Here's what to do!

Just call her and say hello.

Reactivate her feelings by using some humor.

Say in a joking manner, "Hey ex girlfriend, how are you? I thought I'd give you a call to say hi," and then let her respond.

You can then add in something like, "Well, I thought that you might get in touch with me one day to say hi or something, but you didn't! Didn't hear a peep out of you!" and have a laugh with her about that.

You can then say, "So, I guess you're completely over me then, right?" and let her answer and have a laugh with her about that.

Of course, don't be serious about what you are saying and how she is answering your questions.

Just relax, be confident and be willing to have a laugh about it.

If you can get her to laugh at what you're saying, you can then say, "Well, it's good to see that we can still have a laugh isn't it? So, how have you been anyway?" and have a conversation with her.

During the conversation, let her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the new and improved you and then get her to meet up with you in person.

When you meet up in person, you can re-spark her feelings for you by showing her (via what you say, the way you behave and the way you interact with her) that you're a different guy from the one she remembered.

When you spark her feelings for you again, she will begin to forget all about the fact that you haven't been in touch with her for a long time because she will feel good to be around you.

You can then start getting to know each other all over again with a clean slate, based on who you are as a man now, rather than who you used to be before she broke up with you.

3 Common Reasons Why Guys Don't Get Their Ex Back After Using the No Contact Rule For Too Long

After helping 100s of men to get women back, I've realized something!

It's never too late to get an ex back.

I've literally helped guys to get a woman back after days, weeks, months and even years.

There is always a chance to get her back.

Yet, the guys who fail at getting their woman back after using the NC rule fail for one of the following reasonsâ€¦!

1. He feels like it's too late to contact her

[image: Is it too late to contact her?]

Sometimes, a guy will cut off all communication with his ex after a break up and think, â€œIf I give her some time to cool off, not only will she forget about how bad things were between us, but it will also give her a chance to miss me. Then, she will contact me, tell me that she misses me and wants to see me and we will meet up. We will then get back together.â€

He might then ignore her for 30 to 60 days (in some cases even longer) and then when she doesn't call, he wonders, â€œHuh? Why isn't she calling me? Did she ever love me? Do I mean nothing to her? I thought using the No Contact Rule worked on women. What do I do now?â€

The reason why she didn't call is that the NC rule just doesn't work in most cases. Why?

When a woman breaks up with a guy, it's usually because she's reached the stage where her positive feelings of respect, attraction and love for him have been pushed into the background because of his behavior (e.g. he was insecure, treated her badly, took her for granted, was too needy, disappointed her again and again).

At that point, she will allow negative emotions such as anger, resentment, pain and disappointment to come to the front of her mind and fill her heart with a feeling that tells her she must break up with him and never look back.

When her ex stops interacting with her by going no contact, she just hangs on to the negative thoughts and feelings about him and moves on.

So, can he get her back?

Yes.

When he interacts with her and actively reawakens her feelings of respect and attraction, everything begins to change and she suddenly starts to remember why she loved him so much in the beginning.

He can then get her back by confidently guiding her back into a relationship.

Yet, most guys don't realize that, so they just give up and feel like they now have no chance of getting her back because they've been using the NC rule for way too long.

For example: A guy might say to himself, â€œIt's too late! I've been using the No Contact Rule for months and if I call my ex up she probably won't want to talk to me, or she will have likely moved on. There's nothing I can do now. I've missed my chance with her.â€

It's not too late.

There is no time limit for getting an ex back. Some guys get their ex back in one day, some in one week, one month, a year or several years later.

You can get her back, but if you want her back, you have to man up and do something about it.

Sitting around wasting more time and saying, â€œIt's probably too late to contact her now. What if she doesn't want to talk to me?â€ is not going to change the situation.

You have to start interacting with her and making her feel SOMETHING for you again.

Even if all she wants from you at first is a friendship, being friends with her is better than doing nothing at all.

Why?

By becoming friends with your ex, you can regularly interact with her and use that time to actively reawaken her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

On the other hand, if you do nothing, you might find yourself all alone a year from now still wondering how you can get her back, while she will have likely moved on and possibly even gotten engaged to some other guy.

Important: When you are being “friends” with her, don’t act like a friend. Focus on making her feel sparks of sexual and romantic attraction for you.

Then, she won’t see you as a friend.

Another mistake that guys often make after using the No Contact Rule for too long is...

2. He feels unwelcome to talk to her

In some cases, a guy might eventually work up the courage to contact his ex after ignoring her for a long time, only for her to say something like, “Why are you calling me now? It’s been ages since we broke up and I’ve moved on. I’m seeing someone else now. What do you want?”

He might then think too himself, “Well, that’s it then. I gave it a try and she just isn’t interested in even talking to me anymore. Therefore, I can’t get my ex back and no-one can. I tried the No Contact Rule and it didn’t work.”

Little does he know that the NC rule only works in about 20% of cases.

In other words, it has an 80% failure rate.

That is why I’ve never recommended it.

Most guys don’t know that it’s possible to actively re-attract their ex, so they just go silent and hope that she comes running back.

Yet, it just doesn’t work in most cases.

Of course, sometimes it does work and sometimes, it doesn’t even matter that a guy has ignored his ex for a long time; he can still get her back.

Why?

There are many reasons why a woman might be unwelcoming when her ex finally calls her after weeks or months of ignoring her.

For example:

- He might have taken her by surprise and she is shocked to hear from him again and she doesn’t know how to react, so she acts cold and distant.
- He might have caught her at a bad time (e.g. she is hanging around a friend who doesn’t like her ex, so she tries to act like she isn’t happy to hear from him).
- She could be feeling hurt that it took him so long to contact her and she doesn’t want to come across as eager to hear from him.
- She might be feeling cautious about showing too much emotion because he might start ignoring her again.
- She could be playing hard to get so she doesn’t come across as being too desperate to see him again.

Regardless of her reasons for sounding unwelcoming the first time her ex interacts with her, itâ€™s up to him to remain confident and focus on making her laugh and smile.

When a woman is laughing, smiling and having fun talking to her ex, it becomes difficult for her to maintain a cold, distant persona at the same time.

This is why you need to be persistent and make sure that your ex feels good when sheâ€™s interacting with you.

When her feelings of respect and attraction for you are reactivated, it becomes difficult for her to tell you to go away, and she then drops her guard and opens back up to you.

3. He sends her a text rather than calling her

[image: Sending out a feeler text to an ex]

Another reason why a guy might lose out on getting his ex back after using the No Contact Rule for too long, is by sending her a â€™feeler textâ€™ to see if she responds with signs of interest.

For example: A guy might text his ex something like, â€™Hey Jenny, itâ€™s Peter here. I just wanted to say hi.â€™

Heâ€™s hoping that by contacting her via text (after ignoring her for 30-60 days) she will be more open to the idea of hearing from him again because itâ€™s easier than a phone call.

He also hopes that she will then respond by texting him something like, â€™Oh, hi Peter. How have you been? Itâ€™s been such a long time since we chatted! Do you want to get together sometime to catch up?â€™

Yet, thatâ€™s not usually how it works.

Unless a woman has actually been sitting around desperately missing her ex and hoping that he will contact her, she will most likely just ignore his text and keep moving on with her life.

Even if a woman does respond though, itâ€™s often because she just wants to find out what her ex has been up to, and if heâ€™s moved on and found another girlfriend, or if heâ€™s still missing her and feeling unhappy without her.

So, if you want to get your ex back after using the No Contact Rule for too long, donâ€™t waste any more time randomly texting her in the hopes that sheâ€™ll give you a clear sign that sheâ€™s open to getting back together again.

Youâ€™ve got to her on a phone call with you, where you can actually get her smiling, laughing and feeling good to be talking to you again and then arrange a time to catch up in person.

In person, you will be able to fully reawaken her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you by showing her that youâ€™re now a very different (i.e. more confident, mature, charismatic) man than the one she remembered.

What You Can Do if Your Ex Wonâ€™t Answer Her Phone

[image: Creating a spark via text]

In some cases, a woman might not answer her phone right away when she notices that itâ€™s her ex calling.

However, that doesn't mean you can't get her to answer your call at all.

Here's what to do if she's not answering your calls.

Just send her a text like, Hey Jenny, it's Dan here. We haven't spoken in a while and there is something quick that I'd like to ask you over the phone. I guess you're busy at the moment, so I might try call you another time.

Many women will reply to that and say something like, Sorry, I was in the shower. You can call me now and you can then make the call, or, "What do you want to ask me?" and you then just call rather than replying via text.

In some cases, a woman will just call back to find out what her ex wants.

If she doesn't respond though, just call her the next day.

If she still doesn't answer, just wait another day, call and if she still doesn't answer, send her this text, Hey Jenny trying to get in touch to ask you something quick. I might try calling you again next week then. Have a great week, and then call her a week from then.

In most cases, her curiosity will get the better of her and she will most-likely answer your call to see what you want, or at least text back to find out (if she texts, call her, don't text your reply).

Once you get her on a phone call, you need to reawaken some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you (e.g. by making her laugh, smile and feel happy).

When she can hear the confidence and sincerity in your voice, her guard will come down and she will then become open to meeting up with you in person again.

At the meet up, you need to show her, via your body language, conversation style, the way you're interacting with her and the way you respond to what she is saying, that you're at a different level now from the one you used to be when she broke up with you.

Initially, she might act like she's not interested and possibly even say something like, Well it's nice chatting to you again, but what happened between us is over now, but she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you again.

Deep down she'll likely be thinking, He's really different now. It's actually nice talking to him again. It actually feels good. Why am I feeling this way? Should I give him another chance? Maybe it will be fun to kiss him again and have sex like we used to. It might be fun. I heard that make up sex feels great. Yeah, maybe I should do it just to see how I feel.

How Much Longer Are You Going to Wait Before You Call Her?

[image: Maybe I need to wait a bit longer before I call her]

So, you've been ignoring your ex for weeks, months and possibly even years.

If you want, you can continue on saying, It's too late. I used the No Contact Rule for way too long. There's no way that she'd want to hear from me or you can take action right away to start the exciting process of getting her back.

If you begin the ex back process, you will find that it is life changing, confidence boosting, exciting and enlightening because you become such a better man during the process and you get your girl back.

The break up may have been painful for you, but things are about to get real good for you.

Even if you contact her and she initially says, â€œGo away! Iâ€™m over you now. Itâ€™s too late,â€ when you reawaken some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you, her resistance will fade and she will open back up to you because she will be feeling drawn to you.

On the other hand, if you just continue ignoring her, it's highly likely that nothing will change.

You will probably still be missing her months or years from now and she will likely have moved on, forgotten all about you and enjoying her life without you.

So, just pick up the phone and call her!

It doesn't really matter if your ex is going to be happy to hear from you again or not.

What matters is whether or not you're actively interacting with her again and sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Once you've re-sparked her feelings for you, the next step is to confidently guide her back into a relationship.

You can do that.

Guys all over the world get their women back every day and you can do it too, even if you've already wasted loads of time with the No Contact Rule.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get My Ex Girlfriend Back After She Dumped Me For Being Needy

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

You can get your ex girlfriend back after she dumped you for being needy by following these 3 steps:

1. Become Emotionally Independent

Right now the idea of living a happy, productive and independent life without your girlfriend might seem impossible.

You might even be thinking, “My girlfriend was my main reason for living and being happy. Without her in my life there’s no point doing anything. Things just don’t seem fun anymore. Why would I even want to do anything without her? What would be the point of living my life without her in it?”

Yet, thinking like that is just going to prevent you from getting her back.

Until you accept that you can live a happy and fulfilling life without your ex, you will stay stuck in a cycle of neediness that will keep turning your ex girlfriend off.

So, if you want her back, you have to become emotionally independent.

In other words, you can’t be relying on her love and desire for you to make you feel happy, whole and worthy in this life.

At this point, some guys will ask, “How can I do that when she means so much to me? I miss my ex girlfriend and I want her back. Do I need to pretend that I don’t care about her to convince her that I want her back? Must I play those mind games with her?”

It’s not about pretending or mind games.

You need to become emotionally independent because if you do, you will become emotionally attractive to her again (i.e. you will be more confident, have higher self-esteem and will be back to your old charismatic, charming, lovable self).

You can’t fake that.

You have to do it for real.

[image: I need my ex back. I can't function without her]

If you don’t get over your neediness for real and instead decide to put on an act of being more confident and emotionally independent without her, she will eventually say or do something that will reveal your insecurities.

For example: She might say something like, “You know! I’ve been thinking. Maybe we should get back together. I miss you, but since you’re not interested in me anymore, I guess I will have to move on.”

If the guy then quickly says, “No! No! Of course I’m interested! It’s what I’ve been hoping for all along. I still love you!” she will realize that he’s only been pretending not to be needy anymore and she will feel more turned off by him for trying to trick her into taking him back.

So, don't put on an act.

Women are very good at smelling an act of confidence in a guy.

All they have to do is test the guy and if he cracks under pressure (e.g. becomes nervous) or drops his act, the woman knows that it's an act.

What should you do instead?

You must show her that you now have a lot more going on in your life than just her.

You should have your own dreams, goals and plans that you are working towards, regardless of whether you're in a relationship or not.

You don't have to have already achieved those dreams, goals and plans, but you need to be making real progress towards them and because of that, you will be feeling confident, happy and full of self esteem.

[image: Get rid of your neediness and she will notice and feel attracted]

She will notice that and she will believe you that you're no longer the needy guy that she broke up with.

Yes, you still have some neediness deep down, but it's going away fast. You're becoming the man that you know you should have been all along.

The truth is, you have been putting off doing certain things in your life because of your relationship with your ex girlfriend, right?

You have dreams and goals, but you just wanted to spend all of your spare time with her.

You stopped caring about the world and what you always wanted to do and you became a guy who was hiding from his dreams behind the safety and comfort of a relationship with a loving, caring woman.

However, now that you're single, you can finally begin to make your dreams a reality.

Ask yourself!

- What is my purpose in life?

What do you dream about doing or becoming? If you're not sure about what you really want to accomplish in your life, now is a good time to find that out and then take action to make it happen.

For example: What's something you always wish you could work on or work as? What area of life are you most passionate about, other than your ex girlfriend? What do you wish you could become in this world or change about the world?

What industry, movement or cause do you wish you could be a part of? What do you love to do most, other than be with your girlfriend?

Answer those questions and you may begin to realize that you do have a purpose in life this and if you make progress in that area, you won't be so reliant on your girlfriend for your sense of identity in this life.

- What are the things I've always wanted to do and see?

Have you been putting off some of the things you really want to do because you didn't want to leave your girlfriend behind? Now is the time to decide what those things are (e.g. go traveling, further your education) and make them happen.

- Have I been holding myself back from becoming a better man?

Have you been avoiding accomplishing certain things in your life (e.g. go to university, learn a new skill such as martial arts, computer programming, flying an airplane)? Now is the time to do those things.

- Have I allowed myself to become a lonely guy?

Have you neglected your friends because of your relationship with her? You now have the opportunity to make amends with old friends and even make new ones.

By answering the above questions, you will likely realize that being dumped by your ex girlfriend is a great opportunity for you to become an even better man than youâ€¢ve ever been before.

This is your moment.

You are about to step up to the next level of your destiny.

When you take that step like a mature, emotionally strong man, you will automatically become more attractive to your ex and to women in general because women are attracted to a man who knows what he wants and isn't afraid to go make it happen or to go ahead and get it.

Then, when you interact with your ex and she experiences the new you (a man who knows what he wants and is taking the steps to make it happen), she will likely be thinking, *â€¢My ex has really changed. What happened to that needy, insecure, emotionally weak guy who used to turn me off? Heâ€¢s now so confident, driven and emotionally strong now. That is sexy. Hang onâ€¢why do I think he is so sexy all of a sudden? Why am I feeling this way? I guess it's a sign that we should be back together.*â€¢

That's what you want her to be thinking, rather than, "Hhhhâ€¢here's another text from my needy ex boyfriend. Let me guess â€¢ he's still stuck at the same level of maturity that he was when I dumped him. He still doesn't even know how to make me feel a renewed sense of a respect and attraction for him. Well, I'm not giving him another chance because he hasn't done anything to deserve it."

If you want to get an ex back after being dumped for being needy, you need to show her that you've changed, rather than promising that you will change or asking for another chance based on the fact that you love her so much.

2. Apologize to Her and Tell Her That You Have Now Realized Your Mistake

[image: Apologize to her over the phone]

Itâ€¢s natural that when a guy gets dumped for being needy, he will most-likely want to apologize to his girlfriend for his mistake.

However, where many guys go wrong is turning an apology into begging and pleading for her forgiveness, as well as making all sorts of promises to change.

Thatâ€¢s not what a woman wants.

She doesn't want a guy who is willing to say anything or do anything she wants, just so she will take him back.

Instead, she wants to see that he has actually understood the real reasons why she broke up with him (e.g. he was needy, insecure, controlling, jealous, still hadn't worked out how to be a real man) and that he's taking steps to quickly change those things about himself.

So, when you apologize to her, don't feel like you have to beg for forgiveness just because you made the mistake of being a needy boyfriend.

A better way of apologizing that will spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you, is to say something like, "I understand why you dumped me. I was insecure and needy in the relationship with you and I became overbearing. I see that now and I understand how my neediness made you feel like you always had to reassure me of your love. That was silly and immature of me to do that. I wouldn't have liked it if our roles were reversed and you were always nagging me about going out without you, reassuring you that I loved you or getting upset when I made plans with my friends. It wasn't fair on you and I see that now. However, I'm not that guy anymore. I don't expect you to believe me right away, but I just want to say that I'm sorry for everything that I put you through. I still care about you, but I accept your decision about us breaking up. I also want you to know that everyone makes mistakes in a relationship sometimes. I'm not perfect, but then no one else is either. I'm not asking you to take me back, I just want you to forgive me so that we can start over with a clean slate and be friends again."

By calmly apologizing to your ex girlfriend, while being confident and mature enough to admit your mistake, you're showing her that you're no longer the confused, needy guy she broke up with.

You have learned from the experience and are taking positive steps to become a better, more confident and emotionally strong man than before.

This is attractive to her.

It automatically re-sparks some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you and she then allows herself to forgive you for being needy in the past.

[image: Re-activating her feelings]

She believes you that you have realized your mistake and have already begun to change and improve as a man, which makes it easier for her to truly forgive you.

Forgiveness is a powerful thing because it makes a woman drop her guard and open back up to you, even if she didn't intend to.

All of a sudden, she stops looking at you in a negative light and starts seeing the new, improved version of you.

She accepts that you have changed, forgives you and lets go of the old version of you that she has forgiven.

That's when you can quickly and easily guide her back into a relationship.

3. Let Her Experience Respect and Attraction For the New You

[image: Make her feel attracted to the new and improved you]

Right now, you may, or may not be able to have lots of interactions with your ex girlfriend.

She may have blocked you, stopped answering your texts or told you to leave her alone, or she may be still open to hearing from you.

Whatever the case is for you, the most important thing that you need to do is use every interaction that you have with her as a way of actively sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

If she has fully blocked you, there are ways to get her to unblock you, which I explain in my program, Get Your Ex Back Super System

To get her back, you need to actively make her feel something for you again, so her guard comes down and she opens herself up to talking to you in person again.

This means that you can't ignore her for weeks or months, and hope that she will suddenly start thinking, â€œI haven't heard from my ex in such a long time. Why isn't he calling me, texting me or clicking like on my social media posts? I miss him. I'm going to call him up and tell him I want to get back together again.â€

Ignoring an ex only works in about 20% of ex back cases if the woman still has strong feelings for her ex, or is struggling to find someone new to replace him.

In a case where a woman has stopped feeling respect and attraction for her ex because he was very needy, then not hearing from him for a long time won't really matter that much to her and she will likely just move on.

Also, even if you do manage to get your ex girlfriend to contact you after giving her a few weeks or months of space, if she interacts with you and discovers that you haven't really changed and are still the needy guy she broke up with, she's likely just going to think, â€œWell nothing much has changed with my ex. It's time for me to fully move on and forget all about him.â€

So, to get her back, the most important thing that you need to do is to interact with you ex via text, social media, e-mail and especially over the phone and in person, so you can let her experience respect and attraction for the new you.

How can you do that?

Imagine that right now, you're talking to your ex girlfriend over the phone and she tries to test you to see if you're still needy.

She might say, â€œHow have you been? I was out shopping the other day and I happened to go past that little Italian restaurant we used to love. It got me thinking about all the good times we had and made me miss you.â€

If you quickly jump at that and respond with something like, â€œYou have no idea how miserable I've been without you! Of course I remember our special restaurant! I keep seeing all the things that remind me of you and I haven't been able to eat or sleep properly since the break up. I miss you too!â€ she will see that nothing has really changed.

She is still in the position of power and you are still waiting around, feeling horrible and lonely without her in your life.

On the other hand, if you remain confident and easy-going and say in a joking way, â€œOh yeah, I was at that restaurant just the other day. I was also thinking about you! I was recalling that time you got spaghetti sauce all over your face. You looked so goofy!â€ she will most likely laugh and feel a bit self-conscious.

She will then think something like, "What's going on here? That's not the response I was expecting from him. He's changed. He's confident now. In the past, he would just be telling me how much he misses me, but now he's so relaxed and confident and I like it."

When that happens, she just won't be able to stop herself from automatically feeling some respect and attraction for you again.

That's what you want.

When she experiences respect and attraction for the new you, her guard comes down and she starts to reconnect with her original feelings of love for you.

She becomes open to meeting up with you in person.

From there, you just need to continue showing her that you've changed (e.g. by remaining confident and relaxed no matter what she says or does to test you, by being charming and easy-going), and then guide her back into a relationship with you.

You Can Get Her Back, But You Need to Avoid Making These Mistakes

Being dumped by your woman for being needy doesn't mean that your relationship is unfixable.

You can get your ex girlfriend back, but you first have to make her feel respect and attraction for you again.

When you make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, the ex back process is easy and straightforward.

However, if you make any of these mistakes, you will cause her to continue feeling turned off by you, which will make the ex back process difficult and challenging:

1. Not getting to the source of your neediness

[image: Fix your neediness first]

If you don't understand what is causing you to be needy, you will most likely just keep experiencing it.

This means that whether you get back together with your ex girlfriend or find a new girlfriend, you will keep getting dumped until you figure out where your neediness really stems from and then take action to fix it.

For example: Some of the reasons why a guy might be needy are:

- He lacks purpose in life.

A guy who lacks purpose has no big long term goals or dreams.

He's simply drifting through his life and using his relationship with his girlfriend as an excuse to hide from his true potential as a man.

To change, he needs to find something that he feels truly passionate about and take steps to make his dreams a reality.

He doesn't have to achieve everything to get her back, but he just needs to show her that he's making progress towards achieving something big in his life that is independent of her.

If she is his purpose, she will feel deeply turned off by him.

Women don't want to be a man's reason for living, even though they may say that they want that in pop songs or romantic movies.

In real life, women want a man who has purpose and will follow through on that with or without her. Being like that causes a woman to feel a deep, ongoing respect and attraction for you.

- He thinks that a woman should feel flattered by the fact that he needs her so much.

Initially, a woman might like the idea that her guy is so devoted to her and even seems to need her, but she will become turned off if she realizes that he needs her because he's emotionally insecure.

She will test him by losing interest in him and sex or by pretending to be interested in other guys and if he falls to pieces, she will know that he's only confident and happy because when she loves him.

She will know that he needs her love to be strong and without it, he becomes a weak, insecure, needy guy.

She will then begin to order him around, treat him badly and be cold towards him and if he puts up with it because he needs her, she will lose a tremendous amount of respect and attraction for him.

In his mind, he thinks that being so needy of her will show her how much he loves her, but in her mind, it will show her how much he needs her.

A woman wants a man who wants her, not needs her.

A woman wants to be loved, cherished, respected and appreciated, but she doesn't want to be desperately needed by a guy who can't function without her.

2. Keep turning her off and hope that she will just give you another chance because you care about her so much

To successfully convince your ex girlfriend to give you another chance, you must begin to make her experience the type of feelings that she wants to experience when she's with you (e.g. respect, attraction, love).

If you keep saying and doing the types of things that were turning her off before she dumped you (e.g. being needy and insecure when you interact with her, telling her how terrible your life is without her, telling her how much you still love her) she just will keep saying things like, It's over, or Sorry, I don't have feelings for you anymore.

Why?

If a woman has lost respect and attraction for her guy, she won't really care that he still cares about her.

It doesn't matter that you and her were in love before.

What matters is how she feels now.

You need to focus on changing the way that she feels now, not trying to remind her of how she used to feel or how good things used to be.

You have to show her (by the way you think, act, behave, interact with her, and react to what she says and does) that you are now a confident and easy-going man.

You're not the tense, needy guy that she dumped.

You're confident, relaxed and you have high self-esteem now, with or without her.

Don't tell her that that you're happy without her, because that would be rude and she will try to use it against you.

Instead, show her that you are confident, happy and full of self-esteem without her by how you think, talk, feel, behave and interact with her.

Once you do that and you see her positive reactions, the idea of getting back together again won't seem that impossible to you or her anymore.

You can do this.

You can get her back.

Yes, you made a mistake by being needy, but you're not that guy anymore, right?

You're confident now.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

3 Steps For Making an Ex Want You Again, Even if She Currently Despises You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Making an ex want you again, even though she currently despises you is actually a lot easier than you might think.

Follow these 3 steps and she will go from despising you, to liking you and then loving you again:

1. Change the Things That She Despises

The fastest way to make your ex stop despising you and want you again, is to actively change the things she despises, and make her have some positive feelings (e.g. respect, attraction, love) for you again.

Make her feel impressed that you've quickly changed those things and are no longer the same guy that she broke up with.

Of course, before you do that, it's important that you take a moment to fully understand exactly what caused her to get to the point where she said something like, "Go away! I never want to see you again. I despise you now."

If you try to change things that she doesn't really care about (e.g. you become even nicer to her, when the real thing that she despises is that you are insecure), she's not going to be impressed.

Likewise, if you try to get her to explain what she wants you to change, she's just going to despise you even more.

For example: A guy might say, "I realize that my ex and I had our problems, but she never really told me what I was doing wrong. Why can't she just say exactly what was bothering her so that I know exactly what to change?"

He might even go as far as saying to her, "I know that you despise me right now, but I don't understand why, so please tell me what I did wrong so that I can change. I'll do anything to fix this. Just tell me what you want and I will do it."

Yet, that's not how the ex back process works.

In most cases, a woman will have likely given her guy multiple hints regarding what she wants him to change about himself, but she won't have told him the real, more subtle reasons why she has lost respect for him as a man.

[image: What do you despise about me?]

So, why doesn't a woman just come out and say what exactly is bothering her and what the guy can do to change?

The main reason is because most women don't want to be a man's teacher or mother and have to teach him how to think, act and behave like a man in his life.

If she has to teach him once how to behave like a man, what is going to stop him from always turning to her to solve all his problems in the future?

A woman doesn't want to be in that position in her romantic relationship.

She doesn't want to feel like she's taking care of him or as though he's her student or child.

She doesn't want to take on that role because it destroys her feelings of sexual attraction and respect for him.

If he wants her back, he needs to work this out himself or get help.

He can't expect her to take care of him, hold his hand and guide him through the process of getting her back.

She's just not going to do that.

So, if you want your ex back, you need to get very clear on what caused her to break up with you and then despise you.

You can then make some adjustments to how you interact with her (e.g. via your behavior, body language, the way you talk to her, the way you interact with her).

She will then see for herself that what she used to despise about you isn't there anymore, so her guard then comes down.

When that happens, her feelings for you begin to change in a positive way very quickly.

For example: If a guy was insecure and needy during the relationship, he needs to show her that he is now a confident, emotionally secure man.

If a guy stopped making her feel feminine and girly, his woman will need to experience his masculine vibe and see for herself that he is now more confident and is an emotionally strong and emotionally masculine man that she can look up to and respect.

Do you know what you need to fix to get her back?

If you don't fully understand what you need to change, you will simply continue saying and doing the things that make her despise you (e.g. being too much of a pushover and letting her walk all over you, feeling insecure and jealous if she mentions other guys, trying to convince her to give you another chance, trying to make her feel guilty for making you feel so sad about the break up).

If you do that, your ex is going to behave coldly towards you (so she doesn't give you the impression that she's warming back up to you) and may say things like, â€œWhy won't you just leave me alone?â€ or â€œIt's over between us. I don't want you in my life. Why don't you get that? Leave me alone.â€

So, make sure that you are prepared to re-attract her whenever you interact with her from now on!

When she experiences the new, more attractive version of you from now on, she won't be able to hold on to her negative feelings about you.

She will then begin to drop her guard and open back up to the idea of being with you again.

2. Become Emotionally Independent

It's only natural that when the woman that a guy loves says something like, â€œI despise you,â€ or â€œI hate you,â€ he might feel like his world is crashing down around him.

This is especially true when a guy makes his girlfriend his main reason for living (e.g. he lacks purpose and ambition outside of the relationship and focuses most or all of his spare attention and energy on her).

When she dumps him, he not only has to live with the reality of losing her, but also that she now despises him.

It's a devastating blow for a guy who lacks purpose and ambition outside of his relationship with his woman.

[image: He became needy, insecure or jealous]

She is his world, so without her, he feels like life isn't worth living.

All of a sudden, the world becomes a cold, mean, horrible place to live in.

He's on his own and people around him keep saying annoying things like, "Don't worry, there are plenty of fish in the sea" or, "Don't worry, you'll find another girl soon."

Yet, he doesn't want any other girl! He wants her.

Feeling lost and panicked without her, he might then try to change her feelings for him by saying something like, "I love you. Without you there is nothing valuable left in my life. You are my world and I can never be happy without you."

Essentially, he will try to convince her to give him another chance because he needs her.

Yet, that's not what she wants.

A woman wants to be truly loved and appreciated by her man, but she doesn't want to be his reason for living.

So, telling your ex how much you love and need her right now is not going to make her stop despising you, especially if she doesn't currently respect you.

Women only feel attracted to men that they respect and they only remain in love with men that make them feel respect and attraction.

If you want her back, you've got to focus on making her feel respect and attraction for you first.

How?

You have to believe and accept that you don't need her love to be happy and fulfilled.

Sure, you really want her back, but you don't need her back.

[image: Feeling like you can't live without her]

You will not die without her.

You will survive and you will be able to live a happy life without her.

You need to think that way first, so you can stop feeling so emotionally dependent on her.

You will want her back, but you don't need her like your life depends on it.

When you realize that you can have a great life without your girlfriend, your mindset changes and you instantly begin to become more emotionally attractive to her because you're now more confident, emotionally independent and emotionally masculine.

Then, whenever you interact with her (e.g. on a phone call, or in person) and she notices that you are now emotionally strong and happy in your life without her, she begins to see you in a different way.

All of her old positive feelings of respect, attraction and love that she's pushed into the background suddenly get woken up, and she feels drawn to you again.

Why?

By becoming emotionally independent, you are effectively showing your girlfriend that you've moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you.

You are now presenting her with a version of yourself that clearly has some of the qualities that most women are attracted to. (e.g. confidence, emotional masculinity).

It's just so important that you get to the point where you want her back, but you don't need her.

You can do that within days and you do not need to sleep with any other women to achieve it.

It's simply a mental thing.

You've got to imagine life without her and picture yourself feeling happy, loved and fulfilled with other women or another women in your life.

If you do that and can truly believe it, you will instantly become more emotionally attractive to your ex.

So, make sure that you make this mental change and stop looking at her as the answer to all of your problems in life.

When she can see that you are now an emotionally strong and independent man without her, she will automatically feel attracted to you, even if she doesn't want to and even if she was saying that she despised you.

Why?

Attraction isn't something that a person can prevent from happening.

Attraction is an automatic reaction that men and women have to each other when they notice attractive traits.

So, when you display some of the behaviors and traits that are instinctively attractive to women, your ex girlfriend (fiancée or wife) will automatically feel a new kind of respect and attraction for you, even if she initially tries to deny it.

Once you make her feel that way, you then need to focus on making her feel excited to be in love with you with you again by building on her newfound feelings of respect and attraction for you.

That's the way to get her back.

Don't sit around waiting and hoping that she comes running back by magic.

You've got to do something about this and get her back.

For example: If a guy sits around at home feeling sad and depressed because his girlfriend currently despises him, and he then sends her loads of text messages, e-mails, or calls her on the phone to tell her that he loves her and misses her, it's not going to convince her to give him a second chance.

Why?

Nothing has changed.

He has feelings for her, but she doesn't have feelings for him.

He's trying to get her back even though he hasn't changed anything about himself.

It's just unfair to her and she knows it, which is why she eventually gets to the point where she despises him for being so selfish and unloving.

On the other hand, if a guy gets excited about what is happening in his life and starts becoming a better man that she can feel attracted to, then she is going to be impressed and will immediately begin to think differently about him.

When he interacts with her and says something like, â€œBy the way, I finally got that promotion at work. Itâ€™s awesome. Theyâ€™re even sending me to our offices in Europe for two weeks to get more training,â€ or â€œI discovered that I actually love to cook, so Iâ€™ve been attending a professional cooking school on weekends, and Iâ€™m actually planning on opening up my own little bistro,â€ she will see that he is very different from the guy she once despised.

When that happens, she just canâ€™t stop herself from beginning to look at him in a more positive light because he is now behaving like the kind of man she can actually look up to and respect.

3. Interact With Her and Let Her Experience the New You

[image: Change how she feels about you during interactions]

When a woman is saying things like, â€œStay away from me! I despise you and I never want to see you again,â€ it sometimes becomes difficult for a guy to stay positive about his chances of getting her back.

He might then say to himself, â€œOkay, well if I give her some space for a month, she might cool off and stop being so angry with me. Then, when she forgets about all the negatives of our relationship or of me, I will be able to make her want me again.â€

He might then decide to avoid all contact with her for weeks or even months.

Yet, avoiding a woman only works when the woman is still in love with the guy and is secretly hoping that they will get back together again.

If she is still in love with him and really wants him back, she will be happy to be hearing from him again so they can finally get back together again.

However, when a woman despises her ex, giving her weeks of months of time apart will be exactly what she wants.

She will most likely use that time to move on with her life and possibly even get herself another guy.

Here's what you need to get clear onâ€

To make an ex want you again even though she currently despises you, you have to actively interact with her and let her experience the new you, so she can feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction and actually like the new you.

[image: Meet up with your girlfriend]

You have to use every opportunity (e.g. by texting, e-mailing, messaging her on social media, calling her on the phone, or seeing her in person) to change her negative opinion of you.

How can you do that?

Focus on making her smile, laugh and feel happy every time you contact her.

For example: If a guy is talking with his ex girlfriend on the phone and she says, â€œI hate you! I despise you! Just leave me alone,â€ rather than letting her get under his skin and make him feel like heâ€™s a bad person for having made a mistake, he can turn it into something to laugh about together.

He can say something like, â€œWell I guess Iâ€™m the worst ex boyfriend in the world then, right?â€ she will then most likely say, â€œYes you are,â€ and he can laugh about it and say, â€œAt least Iâ€™m consistent then. You know that I always like to be the best at everything I do. Iâ€™m doing an awesome job of being the worst ex boyfriend in the world. I think I deserve an award for it or somethingâ€ and then laugh with her about it.

The point of laughing and making light of her comment is to get rid of the seriousness of what she is saying.

At the same time, itâ€™s also a good way to show her that he is now emotionally strong enough to cope with her anger.

He doesn't become insecure and self-doubting and he doesn't become angry.

He remains confident, loving and masculine and that is something that every woman feels attracted to about men.

Humor also takes the edge of a potentially hostile situation and allows her to be more open to interacting with him again.

Essentially, when you make a woman smile, laugh and feel happy, she simply can't hold onto negative, angry feelings about you for long.

Of course, you can't change how she feels about you if you're not actively in contact with her.

So, don't bother wasting time ignoring her.

Give her a few days of space (e.g. 3 to 7 days) to cool off if she needs it and then contact her and re-spark some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

By the way!

When I talk about respect and attraction, some guys make the mistake of just focusing on physical attraction, which is actually the least important type of attraction when getting an ex woman back.

For example: A guy might say to himself, â€œIf I need to re-attract my ex, then Iâ€™m going to get myself a physical makeover. I will build muscle (or lose weight) and update my wardrobe. I'll get a new, stylish haircut and get a tan as well. Then, when she sees me again, she will notice that Iâ€™ve changed and she will like me again.â€

Yet, although she might appreciate that he's taking better care of himself physically and is putting in effort to look good, if she currently despises him, those things will seem superficial and unimportant to her.

Why?

A woman's attraction to a man is based mostly on how he makes her feel.

It's about who he is when she's interacting with him.

For example: A woman will subconsciously ask herself!

- Do I feel good when I'm around him, or do I feel bored, stressed out, or uncomfortable?
- Does he make me feel turned on and attracted, or does he turn me off?
- Is he the type of man that I can look up to and respect, or do I look down on him and feel like he's not good enough for me?

- Does he make me feel feminine and girly in his presence, or do I feel emotionally stronger than him or neutral around him like a friend?

That's what really matters to woman.

So, if you're serious about making your ex want you again, you have to focus on letting her experience the new and improved you when she interacts with you.

Focus on improving your emotional attractiveness to her (e.g. confidence, emotional masculinity, charisma), rather than wasting time on superficial things like your appearance.

If your ex has been saying that she doesn't have feelings for you now, it means that the way you've been interacting with her hasn't been making her see you in a new light.

However, that doesn't mean that you can't change that.

You can.

When you show her that you've changed the things that she despised about you, she won't be able to stop herself for feeling drawn to you again.

For example:

- If you were insecure in the relationship, you have now become an emotionally strong man.
- If she didn't feel feminine and girly in your presence, you have now become the kind of man who takes the lead, remains in control and never loses confidence around her.

Feelings Can Change and That's Good News For You

Right now, your ex might be saying, I despise you! I never want to see you again!

Yet, that doesn't mean her feelings can't change.

Feelings change all the time.

Think about it:

[image: Bring back the love]

There was a time in your relationship where she was probably saying things like, I love you. You're so wonderful. I want to be with you forever.

Unfortunately, over time, those positive emotions changed and were replaced by more negative emotions such as anger, pain and distrust.

The good news is that her feelings for you can change again and she can reconnect with her original feelings of respect, attraction and love, as well as feeling even more for you when you get the relationship back together.

When you trigger her feelings of respect and attraction via the way you think, act, behave and interact with her, even if she tries to fight it, she won't be able to stop herself from seeing you in a more positive light again.

From there, it's up to you to keep building on that spark of respect and attraction that she's feeling, until it becomes a raging fire inside of her and she can't stop herself from wanting to be back in your arms again.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Make Her Come Running Back to Me: 4 Easy Steps

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are the 4 steps that you need to take to make her come running back to you.

1. Change and Let Her Experience it

[image: Meet up with her and make her feel something for you again]

When a woman breaks up with a guy, she will have usually come to that decision after a long time. She will have given the guy clues about her unhappiness, which have possibly gone on for months and even years until she finally got to the point where she had enough.

For example: Before deciding to break up with her man, she may have been saying things like, “If you don’t change I’m going to break up with you,” or “I can’t live like this anymore. You need to make some changes or else I’m going to be out of here.”

In some cases, a woman might have even been very specific about what she wanted the guy to change about himself, like saying, “Your jealousy is driving me crazy! You won’t let me do anything without you. If you don’t stop being so insecure, jealous and clingy all the time I’m going to break up with you,” or “The only thing you do all day is sit around watching TV. Why don’t you do something with your life?”

If the guy then doesn’t pick up on her hints and then change, or if he simply ignores her by assuming that because she loves him she’ll put up with anything he does forever, she will eventually lose respect for him as a man.

Respect is very important.

When a woman doesn’t feel respect for a man, she will find it difficult to feel sexually attracted to him.

If she doesn’t respect him and then also doesn’t feel much sexual attraction for him, she will then begin to allow negative feelings such as anger, resentment and pain to push the love she feels for him into the background, and she will then want to break up with him.

So, if your ex said anything like this when she broke up with you, “Leave me alone, I never want to see you again,” or “It’s over between us. I just don’t have feelings for you anymore,” it’s because she stopped feeling respect and attraction for you based on your behavior.

If you want to make her come running back to you, you need to:

- Understand what caused her to break up with you in the first place.
- Change or at least improve those things about yourself.
- Let her experience the new improved you every time that you interact with her from now on (e.g. via text, e-mail, on social media, over the phone, and in person).

When she sees for herself that you’re not the same guy she broke up with, she will naturally begin to feel drawn to you again.

Where many guys go wrong is by not changing at all and expecting the woman to come running back because she misses him.

Yet, even if she does get in touch with him because he's not contacting her, it doesn't mean that he's going to get her back.

If she notices that he is still the same and hasn't really changed, she's going to be more determined to keep him out of her life because he obviously doesn't care enough about her to put in the work required to be the kind of man she needs.

For example: A woman might have dumped a guy because he was too jealous, insecure and clingy.

A few weeks after the break up, she might call him up to see what he's been up to, while also trying to find out if he has made any real changes to himself since their breakup.

To test whether he's become emotionally stronger and is no longer the insecure guy she broke up with, she might say something like, "I'm really enjoying being single. It's fun having my freedom back. I've been meeting lots of new friends. I'm going to a party this weekend with my friend Michael."

If he reacts by getting jealous and possibly even saying something like, "How can you call me up and tell me these things? Here I am trying to make things right between us and you're hanging out with your Michael friend, who I'm sure you've already slept with! How can you be such a bitch to me? How can you be so cold? I've always loved you so much and now you've changed" she will see that he's still emotionally dependent on her, which will turn her off even more.

She may think, "My ex is such a lost cause. He's never going to stop being insecure, jealous and needy and I just can't be with a guy like that. I guess it's really over between us. I need to move on now I suppose. I will try to find myself a man, rather than being with an insecure guy like. Maybe I will sleep with Michael for a bit of fun too."

So, don't get jealous, don't worry about her liking other guys and don't doubt your ability to re-attract her.

You can make her have feelings for you again.

Of course, if you've been trying to make your ex come running back to you and nothing has been working so far, you need to try a new approach.

What you need to do is start the ex back process by re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

You can do that by using every interaction you have with her, be it via text, e-mail, on social media, over the phone, or face-to-face, to make her feel something positive for you (e.g. respect, attraction, admiration).

The more she experiences the changes in you, the more difficult it will be for her to stop herself from feeling drawn to you.

From there, you can build on that initial spark of respect and attraction and show her that things really are different now.

2. Give Her 3-7 Days of Space

[image: Making your ex miss you]

In most cases, a guy can make a woman have feelings for him again immediately, or within a few days of trying.

So, if you want to make your ex come running back to you, give her 3 to 7 days of space if she asked you for it during or after the break up.

There's nothing wrong with giving a woman a few days space after a break up to let things calm down.

However, any longer than that is usually a waste of time because it just gives her more time to move on without you or more time to get over you.

After 3 to 7 days of space you need to contact her (preferably by calling her on the phone) and actively re-spark some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Then, you need to get her to agree to a meet up with you in person.

At the meet up, you need to focus on making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be around you again, to the point where she is thinking, â€œWow! It's really good to be hanging out with my ex again. I'm really enjoying being around him. He's so different from the guy I broke up with. I like him again. This feels good. Maybe we should get back together again.â€

From there, use every interaction that you have with her to build on her feelings of respect and attraction for you and guide her back into a relationship.

Where a lot of guys go wrong is by making one of these 2 mistakes:

- Contacting her too often

[image: Bombarding ex with texts]

Sometimes, a guy will feel so eager to get back together with his ex, that he may think, â€œIf I give her some time apart, she might forget all about me and find herself another guy. I don't want that to happen, so even if she doesn't want to take my calls or talk to me in person, I'm going to text her as much as possible to make sure that I stay on her mind. Eventually, she'll see that I'm not going to give up on our love so easily. She'll realize how much I still care about her and miss her and she will then give me another chance.â€

Yet, here's the thing!

Most women aren't going to think something like this if they are being bombarded with texts from an ex, â€œOMG! It's so amazing that he's texting me like this. This is like a Hollywood movie love story. My ex must really love me to keep in touch the way that he has been. Maybe I've been too hard on him. Maybe we should just forget all about the break up and get back together again.â€

After all, it's just a text message.

It's not him.

If she is going to believe that he has changed, he needs to prove that to her while talking to her on a phone call or in person, not via little messages or long e-mails.

Likewise, she's not going to be impressed if he sends her pointless texts, e-mails, messages on social media, or even calls her on the phone to ask things like, â€œHow was your day?â€ or â€œWhat are you up to?â€

That type of meaningless contact usually just annoys the woman further because he's obviously doing it because he misses her, but he's not saying or doing anything to make her miss him.

She might reply to his texts to string him along or to be a nice ex girlfriend (fiancée or wife), but that doesn't mean he is getting her back.

Just because a guy is able to remain in constant contact with his ex, it doesn't mean that she's not secretly moving on without him.

So, if you want to make your ex come running back to you, contacting her too often isn't the approach that you should be using.

When getting an ex back, the best approach is to give her a few days of space, and then get her on a phone call where you can arrange a meet up.

At the meet up, focus on making her feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you so she drops her guard and opens back up to you.

- Cutting off communication with her for too long

On the opposite side, rather than contact his ex too much, sometimes a guy will think, â€œOkay, how about this? I just stop contacting her altogether. I go cold. Cut off all communication. That way, the longer I stay out of touch with her, the more she will miss me and want to hear from me. She will then realize that she made a mistake by breaking up with me and it will make her come running back to me.â€

Yet, it rarely works that way because when most women break up with a guy, they have lost a lot of respect and attraction for him and don't believe that he has the ability to change and become the man they want.

This is why a woman will usually only come running back to her ex if she's still in love with him, is inexperienced with relationships and can't deal with the pain of the break up or if she can't find a replacement guy quick enough.

In almost all other instances, if a guy tries to get his ex back by ignoring her for a long time, she's not going to care that much because she's not even attracted to him anymore.

When a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy and he stops communicating with her, she's will often think, â€œThanks for giving me this space to get on with my life without you! I've been going out with the girls and getting hit on by guys. I even slept with a guy last weekend, so I'm moving on without you. Bye!â€

On the other hand, if her ex actively made her have some feelings of respect and attraction for him and THEN didn't contact her for a few days (no more than a week), that's a completely different story.

She's going to start missing him because she does feel some attraction for him.

She thinks, â€œHuh? What is this feeling? I thought that I was over him. Why is it bothering me so much that he hasn't called me? Why am I missing him all of a sudden? Why am I worried that he might meet someone else?â€ and it then becomes much more likely that she will come running back to him to give the relationship another chance.

So remember: You don't need to use more than 3 to 7 days of space between contacting her.

Give her a little bit of space, contact her and focus on reactivating her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you (over the phone and in person) and then don't try to push her into getting back with you.

If you do that, it will be her who wants to get back with you.

3. Contact Her to Meet Up With You

As obvious as this may sound, chances are high that you're not going to make your ex come running back if you don't actively make an effort to trigger her feelings for you again.

This means that you have to contact her and get her to agree to meet you in person, so she can experience the new and improved version of you.

When you make her feel the types of feelings she really, secretly wants to feel around a guy, all of her walls come down and she literally wants to be back in your arms again.

However, without sparking her feelings of attraction first, she's just going to be saying, â€œPlease accept that it's over between us,â€ or â€œI just don't have feelings for you anymore.â€

After a break up, many guys go around saying things like, â€œNo matter what I do, my ex just refuses to give me another chance. I've tried everything and nothing seems to be working. I don't know what else to do.â€

Yet, in most cases, it turns out that â€œeverythingâ€ was simply him begging for another chance, trying to convince her via text and waiting around hoping that she will change her mind.

Here's the thing!

Most women will wait to hear from their ex and if he is able to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction on a phone call or in person, she will give him another chance.

Yet, if he doesn't contact her and arrange a meet up, she will just assume that he's not interested in her anymore and will likely move on.

So, as a man, it's up to you to take the initiative and guide both you and her back into a relationship.

Don't wait around hoping that she will give you a sign that she wants you to contact her.

Simply pick up the phone and focus on re-sparking some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you by at least making her smile and laugh at times during the conversation, rather than only talking about the relationship.

Once you've re-sparked some of her feelings for you, get her to agree to meet up with you in person and then get her back.

Face-to-face is where you can really spark her feelings for you and make her want to get back together again.

4. Meet Up With Her, Attract Her, But Don't Try to Get Back With Her

[image: Meet up with your girlfriend]

In most cases, I would advise to get back with the woman at the first meet up, but sometimes you shouldn't, especially if you want her to come running back to you or if you think she's the kind of woman who will refuse to get back at the first meet up.

However, whatever you do, make sure that you get some face-to-face time with her.

Not Facetime or video Skype calls. I mean face-to-face in person time.

The whole point of interacting with your ex via text, e-mail, on social media and on the phone is to get her to meet up with you in person, where you can make her smile, laugh, feel happy and feel attracted in your presence.

This shows her that you are a different man to the one she remembers and that she really does feel better around you now.

When she sees that you've changed and she starts to feel good when she's around you, her guard naturally comes down.

She becomes more open to interacting with you and she then can't stop herself from allowing all her positive feelings for you (i.e. respect, attraction and love) to come back out.

When that happens, it's up to you to continue saying and doing the types of things that make her feel a lot of respect, attraction and love for you again.

To get her to come running back, the key is to continue triggering her feelings of attraction for you, so that she reaches the point where she really can't bare not being with you.

She then says something like, "Hey, I think we should get back together again," or "I think I made a mistake when I broke up with you. Please let's start over again. I miss you."

So, make sure that you use the face-to-face time to make her feel respect, sexual attraction and romantic feelings for you again.

Don't waste the face-to-face time by being really nice, polite, hesitant and acting like a friend.

Behave as though you and her are on a first date and assume that she likes you.

What sometimes happens is a guy makes all the effort to meet up with his ex and then he doesn't reactivate her feelings at the meet up, so she doesn't feel the need to come running back to him.

For example: A guy might say to himself, "I'm lucky that my ex has agreed to meet up with me, so I better not do anything to push her away. I need to be on my best behavior and not make her feel pressured to get back with me. I will just act like a friend and be nice to her."

He might then avoid doing any of the things that will actively spark some of her feelings of attraction (e.g. flirting with her, being charming and charismatic, being confident when she is being challenging).

Yet, here's the thing|

If a woman doesn't feel sexual attraction for a guy, she's just going to end up saying something like, "It's been nice catching up with you again, but I think we're better off just being friends from now on. I don't think we're right for each other. Please don't contact me anymore. I want to try to move on and not get dragged back into a relationship with you. I think we're better off just being friends now."

Don't put yourself in that position.

If you want to get her back, make sure that you focus on making her feel sexually attracted when she's in your presence.

For example: One way to do that is to make her feel happy when she's around you, especially when she is acting cold or bitchy.

Make her laugh and smile and show her via the way you think, behave, and interact with her that you're a confident, emotionally strong man no matter how she talks or behaves around you.

That will make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the strong man that you've become since the break up.

She will then feel like she wants to get back with you or at least give you another chance.

[image: Re-activating her feelings]

You can do that at the meet up or, if you want her to come running back to you, just end the meet up and wish her the best.

You will then most likely get a text, call or social media message that day or shortly after where she says that she misses you or wants to see you.

If she's too shy or embarrassed to admit that, she might just send you a message to say hi.

From there, you should get her on a call and get her to meet up with you again.

Then, get her back.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Said, "Maybe I Like You, Maybe I Don't"

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex is saying, "Maybe I like you, maybe I don't," it's usually because she needs you to confidently guide her back into a relationship by activating her feelings whenever she interacts with you.

The longer you wait for her to come to you, the more likely it is that she will think that you're not interested and then just move on with her life.

For example: A guy might think, "My ex said maybe I like you, maybe I don't. So, if I push her to make a decision about getting back together, she might get annoyed with me and then I'll lose any chance that I have with her."

He might then sit around for days, weeks, months and, in some cases that I've seen, even years waiting for his ex to decide that she wants him back.

[image: I don't want to seem pushy to my ex]

Then, when he finds out that she has moved on with another guy he likely thinks, "So, she didn't want me back after all. I was right not to try to get her back. If I did, I would have made a fool of myself and gotten rejected by her."

Yet, what a guy like that doesn't realize is that to get an ex back, he needs to be a man about it.

As the man, it's up to you to take the lead and not wait around for your ex to tell you that it's 100% okay to get back together again.

Instead, you need to actively focus on re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you every chance that you get from now on (e.g. via text, e-mail, social media message, on a phone call, in person).

Regardless of what she says and does, you need to show her (by the attractive way that you now think, talk, behave when interacting with her) that she will be losing out if she doesn't get back together with you quickly.

For example: When a woman has lost touch with her feelings of respect and attraction for a guy and then breaks up with him, she may think, "I'm not sure if my ex is man enough for me at this point of his life. Sure, he's not all bad and we definitely had some good times together, but I don't know if that's enough to keep us together for life."

She might then say things to him like, "Maybe I like you, maybe I don't," or "I think I want to get back together with you, but I'm just not sure" to test his reaction.

When a woman says something like that, it's up to you as the man to be the more emotionally strong one and show her that you have confidence in yourself and your attractiveness to her.

Where a lot of guys go wrong is to waste time listening to her change her mind all the time and hope that she will wake up one day and think to herself, "Okay! I've made up my mind now. I do like my ex, so I'm going to call him up and tell him that I want to get back together again and everything will be perfect."

Here's the thing!

In almost all ex back cases, for a man to get an ex girlfriend (fiancée or wife) back, he has to be the emotionally stronger one.

He has to have the courage to follow through on the ex back process, even if his ex is being wishy washy or vague about her feelings.

As a man, itâs also up to you to take the lead by reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction for you whenever you interact with her.

Asking Her What She Means

[image: Why won't my ex tell me how she really feels?]

When a woman is saying things like, âMaybe I like you, maybe I donât,â itâs only natural that a guy might then want her to explain exactly what she means.

For example: A guy might ask his ex, âWhat does that mean? I donât understand. How can you not know whether you like me or not? Either you do or you donât. Why donât you just tell me what you want me to do to make you like me again and get this relationship back together?â

It seems like the logical thing for a guy to do, right?

Yes, but thatâs not what a woman wants.

A woman wants the guy to understand that what she is really saying is, âThe door is still open to you getting back together with me, but you need to make it happen.â

However, being a woman, sheâs not going to come right out and say that to him because she doesn't want to make it too easy for him and she also doesn't want to become the boss or the leader of the relationship.

She wants him to lead the way by being the more emotionally strong, courageous one, rather than expecting her to hold his hand and guide him through the ex back process.

At this point, a lot of guys might be asking, âWhy doesnât she just say what she means? Why all the mind games? Why can't she just help us get the relationship back together? Why do I have to do everything and lead the way?â

It's simple.

Men and women are different.

A woman wants to be with a man who doesn't require her to take on the role of his teacher or protector in life.

She wants to just relax into being a man's woman.

So, when she doesn't explain exactly what she means and gives mixed signals, she's hoping to see that her ex will have the self-confidence and emotional courage to get her back, regardless of the possibility that he might initially get rejected.

Women do this to test a guy's confidence because it's an important part of what makes a woman feel safe with a man in this world.

She wants to know that her man will remain emotionally strong and go after what he wants in life, regardless of any challenges or that he might encounter along the way.

So, if you ask your ex to explain what she means when she says, âMaybe I like you, maybe I donât,â youâre essentially telling her youâre not man enough to work it out by yourself.

You're saying to her that you don't know how to be a man and are stuck unless she helps you.

She then thinks, â Well, if he can't figure out that I want him to take the initiative and get back together with me, then he isn't yet ready to be a man that I can rely on to lead the way now and throughout our life together. If I have to explain it to him now, then chances are high that I will always have to keep teaching him how to be the man that I need. I don't want to do that! I don't want to be his teacher or mother figure in this life. I won't be able to look up to him and respect him as a man, because deep down I'll always be wondering if he would have made an effort to get me back if I hadn't told him how to do it. I don't want to hold his hand and guide him through the process of getting me back together. If he can't work it out on his own or get the help that he needs, I'm just going to move on.â

Even though some guys might think that it's unfair, the fact is that most women just don't want to play the role of being a guy's teacher in life.

Your ex girlfriend (fiancée or wife) wants to feel as though you are leading the way in the relationship and that she can look up to you, respect you and feel attracted to you.

However, even though she wants that, don't expect her to make it easy for you!

She Will Almost Certainly Play Hard to Get

[image: Ex playing hard to get]

It would be nice if your ex just came out and said, â Yes, I still like you. Let's get back together again.â

Yet, it's not that simple.

For her to really want you back, she needs to feel that she is winning or gaining something because you are now the kind of guy that she can feel proud to call her man.

She doesn't expect you to be perfect and become Mr. Wonderful overnight, but you do need to improve on the areas that have been turning her off (e.g. your insecurity).

So, rather than just coming out and saying, â Yes, I like you and I want to get back together again,â right away, a woman will usually first play hard to get to see whether or not you've now got what she's looking for in a boyfriend (fiancée or husband).

If you remain calm and relaxed and confidently focus on sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you every chance that you get, she will begin to feel lucky to be getting back together again with you.

Based on your quick changes and improvement, she can now think, â Hmmm! he's an emotionally strong man who is confident, determined and willing to go after what he really wants in life now. No matter what obstacles he comes across, he digs deep and keeps pushing forward. I respect him for that and I feel lucky to have a guy like him who loves me so much and can make me feel so safe because he is so emotionally strong. I would be a fool to let him go.â

On the other hand, if you crumble at her first sign of resistance, she will most-likely perceive you as being emotionally weak, lacking in self-confidence and unable to cope with the challenges that life throws at you, and she will then think, “If he can’t even cope with a little resistance from me now, what will happen if things get too difficult in life? Will he expect me to take care of him? I don’t want to do that. I want a man who I can lean on for support. I don’t want to be a mother figure in my guy’s life. I want a man.”

By the way!

Something to bear in mind is that you can’t fake confidence and pretend to be emotionally strong because your true nature will inevitably come through in subtle and obvious ways when you interact with your ex.

For example: When a guy is talking to his ex and she is saying, “Maybe I like you, maybe I don’t,” he might then put on an act of being confident around her by pretending that he doesn’t care what she decides and that he’s totally fine without her.

He might say to her, “Well, I don’t care if you like me or not. Do whatever you want. I’m happy with whatever you decide.”

She will then pick up on the fact that he’s only pretending to be confident and pretending that he doesn’t care, so she will then test him.

She will say something like, “I don’t know what to do. I really can’t make up my mind. There’s another guy who is interested in me and I can’t decide between the two of you. What do you think I should do?”

If he then gets upset or angry, and maybe says something like, “How can you do this to me? I love you and want to be with you. How could you move on so quickly like that? Why don’t you give you and me a chance?” she will see that he really does care and was simply putting on an act.

On the other hand, if he reacts by staying calm and laughing at her about it by saying in a joking way, “Well, if I was you I’d definitely pick the other guy! I’m way too much of a man for you to handle now, so go for him instead. He’ll be nice and sweet, whereas all I will do is bend you over and bang you if I see you again,” she will most-likely laugh or smile.

She will then naturally begin to feel respect for him again for being confident enough to make a joke in a moment like that.

So, don’t worry if your ex said that she isn’t sure whether or not she likes you and wants to be with you.

Instead, just focus on remaining confident and actively making her have feelings for you again, by showing her the new and improved version of you when you interact with her (e.g. via text, on the phone, or in person), and then confidently guiding her back into a relationship.

Same Approach Usually Equals the Same Results

[image: Stop using an approach that doesn't work]

Albert Einstein was apparently quoted as saying, “Insanity is doing the same thing over and over again, and expecting different results.”

In the same way, a mistake that many guys make is continuing to attempt to get an ex back in the same old ways (e.g. begging, pleading, convincing, ignoring) and then wondering why it doesn’t work.

If you want to get your ex back, you need to change your approach and do what actually works.

Watch thisâ€¦!

What works is switching your focus to actively making her have strong feelings for you again and then guiding her back into a relationship.

Don't waste time trying to convince her to give you another chance, or ignoring her in the hope that she comes running back one day.

Just get her back now and get on with enjoying a great relationship together again.

Don't waste time making the same old mistakes with her and expecting that you're going to get a different result for some magical reason.

For example: A guy got broken up with by his girlfriend (fianc  or wife) for being too insecure, self-doubting and needy around her.

He may have constantly asked her things like,    Do you really love me?    or,    Are you still attracted to me?    or    You wouldn  t break up with me would you? You know that I couldn't live without you,    or    You  re so beautiful and amazing, what are you doing with a guy like me? What guarantee do I have that you're not going to leave me one day?   

He might also have dropped most or all of his hobbies, interests, and even friends that he had before meeting her, so that he could spend every spare moment with her.

In his mind, he feels like he's doing the right thing.

   This is what a good boyfriend (fianc  or husband) should do. I  m showing her that she  s the most important person in my life and that nothing and no one is as important to me as she is.   

Yet, rather than make her feel loved and appreciated, his actions come across to her as needy, clingy and insecure, so she loses respect and attraction for him, falls out of love and then breaks up with him.

If he wants to get her back, he first needs to show her that he   not the same insecure, needy guy that she remembers.

He can  t just come out and say to her,    Look, I know you hated it when I was clingy and needy around you, but don  t worry I  m over that now. Let  s get back together and you can see for yourself that I  ve changed,    because she  s probably not going to believe him.

Instead, he has to show her via his actions and behavior that he really has changed.

For example: She might test him by acting interested one minute and then pulling away the next.

She will expect him to react like he used to when they were together (e.g. get upset, tell her how much he still loves her and how he can  t live without her, beg and plead with her for another chance).

Yet, if he reacts by remaining relaxed and even turning her behavior into something to laugh about, she will begin to see him in a more positive light and start to reconnect with her original feelings for him.

All of a sudden, she will experience a renewed sense of respect for him, and it will then become a lot easier for her to reconnect with her feelings of love for him.

Turning a Maybe Into a Yes

[image: Getting your ex to have feelings for you again]

When a guy says, “My ex said maybe I like you, maybe I don’t, it’s likely that she’s also thinking, ‘If I give her enough time to think about it, she will hopefully make up her mind, finally say and choose me as her man.’”

Unfortunately, that’s not usually how it works in real life.

These days, all it takes for a woman to get a new man is get on a dating app or online dating site and she will instantly have 100s of guys who want to meet up with her for a date.

If she wants to get laid, she only has to go out to a bar or nightclub and say, “Yes” to the many guys who want to have sex with her that night.

So, when a guy gives his ex a lot of space, she will often hook up with new guys to make herself better about the fact that her ex is ignoring her.

One of those guys could make her feel more respect and attraction than her ex did, so he then gets left behind.

He has no idea how to get her back and is just sitting around, waiting and hoping that her maybe turns into a yes.

If you want your ex to make up her mind, say “Yes” and come back to you, then you’ve got to take the lead and get her back.

How?

By saying and doing the type of things that will make her feel a renewed sense of respect, attraction, and love for you from now on.

Don’t waste any more time doing the type of things that rarely work (e.g. trying to reason with her, begging and pleading, offering to do whatever she wants, giving her lots of space so that she can make up her mind).

Instead, just focus on making her feel good when she interacts with you (e.g. via text, e-mail, on social media, on a phone call, in person).

For example: If you interact with your ex over the phone, or you meet up with her in person, focus on making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be talking to you.

The more she enjoys being around you, the more that her feelings of respect and attraction for you will build.

When that happens, she won’t be able to stop herself from saying something like, “I know that I’ve been saying maybe I like you, maybe I don’t lately, but that’s not true anymore. I really do like you again and I think we should get back together.”

That’s how you can make your ex make up her mind about you very quickly.

You’ve got to reactivate her feelings and then confidently guide her back into a relationship with you, rather than giving her time to decide on her own whether she likes you or not.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Do if Your Ex Stops Texting or Talking to You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

What you can do if your ex stops texting or talking to you, is ask her to get on a quick phone call with you.

If your ex currently isn't answering any of your phone calls, simply try to call her and if she doesn't answer, send her a text like this:

â€œHey Lisa. I really want to ask you something over the phone. I tried calling you, but you must be busy at the moment because I couldn't get hold of you. I'll try to call you again some other time.â€

She will most likely respond by asking something like, â€œWhat do you want to ask me?â€

When she does, just call her. Don't text a reply, just call.

On the other hand, if she doesn't respond to your message at all, just call her again at another time when you know she isn't busy with work, studies or other things.

Once you get her on a phone call, you can then reactivate some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

For example: If your ex calls you up and says something like, â€œHey Dan, what did you want to ask me over the phone?â€ you can respond by saying something along the lines of, â€œOh, I'm going to meet up with a really beautiful woman on Sunday and I wanted to ask you, which shirt do you think I should wear, blue or the green?â€

She will most-likely be shocked and say something like, â€œWhat? Are you really asking me what shirt you should wear on a date?â€

You can then reply in a joking manner, â€œYes, of course. I need to make a good impression. So, which shirt do you want me to wear when you and I catch up on Sunday?â€

[image: Get her on a phone call]

At this point, she will most likely laugh at having been caught out by your joke, while at the same time feeling drawn to the new and improved version of you.

Then, either get her to meet up with you in person (e.g. by continuing on with the joke), or if she says that she doesn't want to see you in person, just tell her that you might get in contact with her later to just say hello as a friend.

Then, 3-7 days later, contact her, activate her feelings and get her to meet up with you.

Watch this video to understand how that works!

As long as you are activating her feelings for you and giving her a little bit of space to miss you, she's going to want to start texting and talking with you again.

When she meets up with you in person, get her to experience the new and improved version of you and make her laugh, smile and feel good around you.

Always remember: When getting an ex back, the main thing that you need to focus on is reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

When you trigger her feelings of attraction for you again, it makes all the negative things that she might be thinking about you (e.g. how you hurt her, how you stopped making her feel the way she wants to feel in a relationship) seem less important to her, because she naturally feels drawn to you in a way that feels good to her now.

Yet, if you don't focus on triggering her feelings of attraction again, she will naturally stop wanting to text you or talk to you because in her mind, you are still giving her the same old unattractive experience that turned her off and lead to the break up.

5 Common Mistakes That Guys Make When Their Ex Woman Stops Texting or Talking to Them

[image: Clingy boyfriend pleading with girlfriend]

When a guy wants to get his ex back, it's only natural that he's going to feel a little bit confused and possibly even hurt if she stops talking to him or texting him.

When that happens, he might make one or more of the following mistakes that will turn her off even further!

1. He starts asking her why

He asks things like, "Why aren't you responding anymore? Is it something I said? What did I do wrong? Please talk to me."

Yet, rather than get the desired response from her (i.e. get her to talk to him again), it usually just makes a woman pull away even more. Why?

One of the main reasons why a woman breaks up with a guy is because she has lost respect and attraction for him.

If he then starts to behave in a needy, insecure, desperate way, rather than make her think, "Oh how sweet. My ex really cares about me. He wants to know what he's doing wrong so that he can improve himself to please me. How sweet. What an amazing guy!" it only makes her lose more respect for him.

Why?

She wants to know that he is able figure out what he is doing wrong by himself, rather than turning to her for advice or guidance and then take action to make the necessary changes to his thinking and behavior.

Women hate it when they have to take on the role of teacher in a guy's life.

A woman might do it and put up with it early in a relationship, but she will eventually get sick and tired of having to help him become a man.

She will realize that she wants a guy who is already a man, so she can just relax and be his woman.

So, when a guy comes to his ex woman and pleads with her to give him guidance on how he can make her feel attracted to him or love him again, she just gets more annoyed and loses more respect for him.

However, if he can fix his issues and improve himself without needing to ask her to help him, it will regain a lot of her original respect and attraction for him.

Her guard will then come down and she will open herself back up to interacting with him, having feelings for him and getting back together with him.

So, rather than texting or calling your ex repeatedly and asking her to tell you why she's ignoring you, just focus on using every interaction that you have with her to make her feel a new level of respect and attraction for the new and improved man you have become.

2. He tries to get her to remember the good times

[image: Seeming desperate by pleading with her]

Another mistake that some guys make is to try and get their ex to talk to them again by bringing up all the good times they had together.

For example: A guy might send his ex a text saying things like, "I just drove past the restaurant we ate at on our first date. Made me think of you," or "Sitting at my desk at work listening to our song play on the radio and thinking of all the good times we had together. Do you remember that night we first danced to our song?"

Obviously, the guy really cares about her and he wants to let her know how he feels in the hopes that she will respond by saying something like, "Yes, I remember the good times too. Maybe we can make some new memories together that will make us forget about all the bad stuff that happened between us? I love you. I miss you."

It would be nice if that was how to get an ex woman back, but it isn't.

In most cases, a woman just rolls her eyes at messages like that because she just doesn't feel the same way as he does anymore.

When a woman has lost touch with her feelings of respect, attraction and love for a guy, him reminding her of the good times they used to have, usually only highlights to her how badly he messed up.

She begins to think, "Yeah, we had some good times and then you went and ruined everything. Good for you if you're still thinking about me and listening to our song. As far as I'm concerned, the only songs I want to listen to are the ones that don't remind me of you. I don't have feelings for you anymore. Can't you see that?"

When a woman isn't feeling respect and attraction for her ex, she's just not going to care that he cares about her, or that he's thinking about how good their relationship used to be.

So, unless you actively make your ex have feelings of respect and attraction for you again, she's not going to suddenly start thinking, "Awww! My ex is being so sweet and romantic via text. Maybe I'm being too hard on him. Who cares if he doesn't understand why we broke up and how to make me feel respect and attraction for him again. At least we had some good times in the beginning, so I'll get back together with him based on that."

Unfortunately, that's just not how it works.

In today's world, a woman no longer has to stay in a relationship with a man if he's not making her feel the way she wants to feel when she's with him.

In the past, a woman had to stay with a man for life even if she was unhappy.

Women had to wait until marriage to lose their virginity and then stick with the chosen man, even if he treated her badly.

Yet, in today's world, women can leave a relationship if the guy doesn't know how to be the man she needs and can't make her feel the type of respect, attraction and love that she wants to feel in a relationship.

So, if you want your ex back, don't waste time trying to convince her that you're the right guy for her based on good memories from the past.

How you make her feel right now and from now on is what really counts.

If she has lost touch with her feelings of respect and attraction for you, she's not going to come running back to you if you remind her of how good things used to be.

She needs to feel respect and attraction for you based on who you are right now, not who you used to be.

You've got to start interacting with her and making her feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

3. He gets angry

Sometimes, when a woman suddenly stops texting or talking to her ex guy, he will angry at her for being so cold, bitchy or uncaring towards him.

For example: He might try to get hold of her by texting things like, â€œWhy won't you answer me? Why are you being like this? You used to be such a nice girl. What has gotten into you? Please pick up the phone. At least tell me what I've done to make you stop talking to me.â€

Yet, if she still doesn't respond, he might then become angry with her and start texting her things like, â€œYou selfish bitch! Why are you doing this to me?â€ or â€œWhy won't you text me or answer my calls? Is it because you're with another guy? Are you already sleeping with someone new? You whore! Cheap slut!â€ or â€œIs this another one of your little games? Are you intentionally trying to push my buttons? You manipulative bitch! You'll regret doing this to me!â€

The fact is, getting angry with an ex and possibly even getting a little bit aggressive with her, is unlikely going to make her think, â€œAww! my ex is so upset that I've stopped texting and talking to him. How could I do such a terrible thing to him when he clearly still loves me so much? I had better call him up right away and apologize for being so unfair towards him. I'm such a bad woman for not texting or talking with him. I've got to get back with him now because he deserves another chance now that he's gotten angry.â€

Instead, she'll more than likely be thinking, â€œThis guy is crazy! I no longer feel safe about the idea of meeting up with him. What if he tries to hurt me to get revenge for breaking up with him and making him angry like this? It's a good thing that I broke up with him when I did, because who knows what would have happened if I ever did something to upset him if we were still together.â€

What guys who get angry at their woman often don't understand, is that a woman is not a man's property.

A woman doesn't have to stay in a relationship with a man if she doesn't want to, and she doesn't even have to text him or talk to him after she breaks up with him.

So, getting angry with her and demanding that his ex talks to him isn't going to change her mind.

In fact, she will most likely lose even more respect and attraction for him as a man, and that will make getting her back even more difficult.

4. He apologizes excessively

[image: Please...I will do anything!]

Most guys in this world are good guys, so when their ex woman stops texting or talking to them after a break up, a guy will want to apologize for annoying her, causing her pain or doing the wrong thing. Being the good guy that he is, he might then decide to send her an onslaught of text or social media messages, or e-mails, saying things like, “I’m so sorry. I can’t bear the thought of not hearing from you again and knowing that it’s all my fault for having hurt you so much. Can you at least give me a chance to make it up to you?”

When she doesn’t reply, he might send her another message saying, “Why aren’t you replying? I’m telling you that I’m sorry and I mean it. Please just have the decency to reply to me.”

When she still doesn’t reply, he might add, “How many times must I say I’m sorry to convince you to forgive me? Please don’t ignore me like this. We need to talk.”

A guy like that will assume that if he can convince her of how sorry he is for what happened between them, she will forgive him and then open herself up to taking him back.

Although there is nothing wrong with apologizing to a woman after a break up, it’s usually just not enough. Why?

In most cases, a woman will have broken up with a guy for deeper, more complex reasons.

For example: The guy might have lacked purpose and direction in his life and focused all of his attention, energy and time on her, which made her feel smothered.

[image: He became needy, insecure or jealous]

Then, after the break up, she might have hoped that he would grow up and start being more of a man by beginning to rise up through the levels of life and reaching for his true potential as a man.

Yet, as the days, weeks and months went on, she found that nothing about her ex was really changing and he was still stuck at the same level he was at when they broke up.

When that happens, a woman will often think something like, “Well, I loved him and wanted us to be able to get back together, but nothing is changing. No matter what I’ve said to him, he just not getting the point. He’s stuck at the same place that he was when we broke up. He’s also holding me back from moving on and meeting a new guy who can give me the attraction experience I really want.”

As a result, she then stops texting and talking to him and tries to move on with another guy, or at least start hooking up with guys to forget all about her ex.

If her ex then starts bombarding her with apologies in the hopes that she will start talking to him again, it makes her feel that he still hasn’t realized there are deeper reasons to why she broke up with him.

She feels as though she’s just not being understood and then begins to think, “The more time that I waste trying to get through to my ex, the more I’m missing out on finding someone who can actually be the type of man that I really need in my life right now.”

Then, every time her ex texts her, she starts to feel resentment towards him for wasting her time and trying to get her back even though he hasn’t really changed.

So, if you want your ex back for real and you want her back quickly, don’t waste time apologizing to her over and over via texts, e-mails, social media messages or letters.

Instead, just focus on understanding the deeper reasons that caused her to break up with you and begin to make some changes, adjustments and improvements in those areas.

Then, when you get her on a phone call, you can grab her attention right away by showing her (via what you say, how you interact with her, and how you respond to what she says) that you've begun to understand and change the things about yourself that caused her to break up with you.

When you do that, it will make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

From there, you just need to continue saying and doing the types of things that will allow her to experience the new and improved version of you.

She will then drop her guard and open herself up to the idea of getting back together with you again.

5. He thinks that not contacting her for a month will fix the problem

When a woman stops contacting her ex, he might decide that if he gives her some space, she'll eventually come around and call him up again.

So, he will cut off communication and hope that she realizes that she needs him or wants him back.

He might think, "Okay, so she's stopped texting and talking to me. Maybe she just needs some space for a while. I've heard that absence makes the heart grow fonder, so if I just stay away and not contact her for a month or so, she will realize that she misses me. Then, she'll start talking to me again and will not only come back to me, but she'll also be grateful that I was so cool about it and gave her time apart without harassing her."

He then ignores her for 30 to 60 days and when nothing happens, he asks, "What's wrong? Why hasn't she called me yet? Why isn't she texting and telling me how much she's missing me? I've heard that not contacting a woman works to get her back. Why isn't it working on her?"

The reason why is that ignoring a woman for a month or more after a break up just doesn't work in most ex back cases.

Why?

If a woman doesn't have feelings for a guy and has already stopped talking to him, she's not going to feel like it's that big of a deal when he doesn't contact her anymore.

Instead, she will likely be thinking, "Cool! That was easier than I imagined. I thought my ex was going to make things really difficult for me when I stopped texting and talking to him all of a sudden. I'm so glad he got the message that I don't want anything to do with him and let me go without a fight. Now I can get on with my life without having to worry about how I'm going to get rid of him. Maybe I should go out with the girls this weekend and hook up with a guy. Yes, I'm going to get laid! There's also that cute guy at work who is interested in me. Maybe I will start flirting with him and go out on a date with him."

She then becomes excited and happy about her life without her ex and starts to move on.

This is why it's so important to only give your ex 3 to 7 days of space before contacting her again.

You have to stay in touch with her so you can re-spark her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you, rather than just sitting around hoping that she comes running back if you don't contact her.

Remember: In most ex back situations, the old saying of, â€œOut of sight, out of mind,â€ applies. When youâ€™re not actively sparking her feelings of attraction, another guy will. So, donâ€™t waste time ignoring her. Instead, get her to meet up with you as soon as possible and then get her back.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

	WATCH VIDEO (FREE)
----------------------	---------------------------

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Attracting an Ex Girlfriend Back to You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Attracting an ex girlfriend back to you starts by understanding what traits are the most attractive to her.

For example:

1. Masculinity

Do you make her feel feminine and girly in comparison to how masculine you think, behave, feel and take action and in life? Does she feel like the more dominant one or the one who is more grounded and strong?

In a relationship, it's the man's responsibility to maintain and grow the respect, attraction and love that his woman feels for him over time.

He can't expect a woman to want to stick around for life just because things felt good at the start.

He has to deepen the attraction by continuing to display traits that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. emotional masculinity, confidence, humor, determination to succeed).

If a man does that during a relationship, a woman's attraction will grow over time rather than fading away.

However, if he starts behaving in ways that are unattractive to her (e.g. lacking masculinity by being insecure, needy or letting her wear the pants in the relationship), she will slowly begin to lose respect for him.

[image: He became needy, insecure or jealous]

As she loses respect for him, she will also begin to find it difficult to feel attracted to him and when that happens, she will begin to disconnect with the love that she used to feel for him.

She will then begin to pull away and won't be as affectionate or loving as she used to and the guy will be confused as to why she has changed so much all of a sudden.

Not knowing what else to do, he might then try to get the spark back by being really nice to her, helping her with things (e.g. housework, her bills, her life) and hoping that she realizes what a sweet, loving, amazing boyfriend that he is.

To show her how much he loves her, he might get to the point where he devotes loads of time and energy into showing her how much he cares for her.

She might take advantage of that and get him to buy her gifts, take her on expensive holidays or to expensive dinners, get him to clean up her house, pay for her bills and so on.

She might even begin to withdraw interest in having sex and make him do lots of things to impress her before he gets to kiss her or have sex with her again.

In his mind, he might think that he's doing the right thing by showing her that he's willing to do whatever she wants, but women don't respect that kind of submissive behavior from men.

Women don't want a man who lets himself get pushed around or forced into being in a the submissive role in a relationship, because it makes the woman feel lose trust in his ability to "be the man” in other areas of his life.

A woman wants to be able to trust in a guy’s masculinity, so she can relax and feel safe in knowing that no matter what life throws at him, he will always remain strong and won’t allow himself to be pushed around—especially by a girl.

Being the man in a relationship isn’t about being angry, aggressive or controlling towards a woman. Instead, it’s about establishing mutual respect and then maintaining that throughout the relationship, no matter how many tantrums she throws and no matter what challenges you and her face in life.

To achieve that, you always need to be the type of man who is confident, strong and masculine, while also being loving, kind and gentle when required.

She has to get the sense that you are the man in the relationship and she is the woman, or that you are the more dominant one and she is the more submissive one.

She wants to see that you are always the more emotionally strong one, while she tends to be the emotionally sensitive one who hugs into you to feel safe, strong and grounded.

In other words, you are her man and she is your girl.

Although most women won’t openly admit that they want that kind of relationship, that’s what most women long for with a man.

They want a man who makes them feel like a natural woman.

A woman who is free to be emotional, cry, be irrational, change her mind like the weather, be madly in love and express her femininity in ways that are only possible when she is with a truly masculine man.

Watch the video above for some free examples of how to attract your ex and get the relationship back together.

2. Confidence

Are you insecure? Is she more confident than you are? Have you become too emotionally sensitive when it comes to her?

Sometimes, a guy will feel so lucky to be in a relationship with a beautiful woman that he slowly becomes insecure about losing her.

He worries that she might eventually realize that she is very attractive and he is just an ordinary guy and when that happens, she might want to dump him and find a new man.

With that type of insecurity running through his mind, he might then begin to react by behaving in a clingy and needy way when he’s around her.

For example: He might regularly ask her things like, “Do you still love me?” or “Do you know that I couldn’t live without you? My life would be over. I need you. You mean everything to me. Without you, life would be pointless” or “You wouldn’t ever leave me, would you?”

[image: How do I know if my girlfriend loves me?]

This type of behavior is unattractive to most women because it’s about the guy needing her for support.

He’s not an emotionally strong man on his own and he’s essentially saying, “Hey, I need you to take care of me. If you dump me, I will be an emotional mess. So, in a sense, you need to take on the role of being my caretaker like my mother did when I was a boy. You have to take care of me."

The clingier and needier a guy becomes in his relationship, the more turned off she feels by him. Why?

Insecurity, clinginess and neediness are not the kind of qualities that women find attractive in men.

So, when a guy is being needy of his girlfriend, rather than saying to herself, "OMG, I'm so lucky! My guy is so sweet. He cares about me so much that he can't bear the thought of losing me," a woman will most-likely be thinking, "Yes, it's nice that he loves me so much, but he's going overboard. I don't want to be responsible for his emotional security like this. I feel like his mother or big sister. I need a guy who is emotionally strong and confident without me having to hold his hand and reassure him all the time about my feelings for him. I'm in a relationship with a boy! How can I get out of this relationship? He obviously doesn't know how to change and become a man very quickly, so I need to end this and try to move on. He's just not man enough for me at this point of his life."

Some guys are lucky enough to have male role models in their life (e.g. grandfather, father, uncle, big brother) who teach them what it means to be a confident, masculine man that a woman would never want to leave.

Yet, not all guys get that guidance as they're growing up, so they often get into a relationship and end up stuffing it up by becoming insecure and ruining the woman's feelings for them.

Then, no matter what he tries to say to convince her to give him another chance, she just won't listen because she knows that he isn't aware of how to be the man she needs.

So, don't try to convince her that she should give you another chance if you don't even know how to be the emotionally strong man that she needs.

If you continue to display a lack of confidence around your ex, it just won't matter to her that you still care about her and want her back.

She needs to feel good (e.g. respectful, attracted, hopeful) about the idea of getting back together with you, not like she's doing you a favor because she feels sorry for you.

The only way to make her feel that way is to begin attracting her in ways that you failed to during the relationship or near the end of the relationship.

You've got to get back to being an emotionally attractive man (e.g. confident, determined to succeed, high self esteem).

[image: Understand where you really went wrong]

You can do that.

You are a strong man.

You can do it.

Your relationship with her depends on it, so don't sit around feeling sorry for yourself.

3. Humor

Are you too serious around her now? Can you still make her laugh, smile and feel good around you like you did at the start? Are you afraid to joke around when you talk to her because you don't want to piss her off?

Just because you and your girlfriend have broken up, it doesn't mean that you have to stop behaving in ways that a new boyfriend and girlfriend would around each other (e.g. flirting, joking around).

After all, how else do you think you can attract your ex girlfriend back to you if you're not actively doing anything to respark her feelings for you?

You've got to feel worthy of her and not hold back from saying and doing the things that actually make a woman feel attracted to a man.

Of course, one of the best ways to do that is to use humor.

[image: Attract her over the phone, rather than trying to convince her]

When you use humor and get her smiling and laughing, she's going to feel good and so are you.

Then, her guard will come down and she will become more open to interacting with you again, meeting up with you in person, and getting back together.

Here's an example of humor:

Just don't be afraid to joke around.

Don't take your interactions with her so seriously. Loosen up and let your confident humor start flowing from you.

Have You Been Trying to Attract Her Back With Things That Don't Actually Create Feelings of Attraction in a Woman?

Some guys feel so lost about how to attract an ex girlfriend back that they end up saying and doing the types of things that turn her off even more.

Then, when nothing works, they feel hopeless and begin to wonder, "Why isn't my approach working? Why can't she see how much I still love her and that I'd do anything to get her back? Why isn't she changing her mind based on all the nice things that I'm doing for her? Why can't she see that I'm serious about her and want this to work?"

What he doesn't realize is that he's been trying to attract her back by using an approach that doesn't create sexual attraction inside of a woman unless she respects the guy.

If a woman respects a guy, she will feel attracted to him if he is being nice to her too.

However, if a woman doesn't respect a guy (i.e. 90% of ex back cases), she's not going to feel attracted to him based on him being nice to her.

So, the question is: Have you been trying to get your ex girlfriend back in any of the following ways, even though you haven't gotten her respect back yet?

1. Being extra nice to her

Sometimes, when a guy gets broken up with he might think, "If I'm really nice to my ex girlfriend (fiancée or wife) she will see that I'm a great guy and that I really care about her. She will realize that breaking up with me was a big mistake and then she will come running back. No *other guy will ever treat her like I do. I love her so much and I would do anything for her. I'm going to show her that by being so damn nice to her that she just has to feel sorry for me and then give me another chance.*â□□

Here's the thingâ□|

Although there is nothing wrong with being a good guy and being nice to a woman, it isn't what makes her decide whether or not she wants to be with a man in a sexually romantic way.

For example: A guy might be extra nice to his ex girlfriend, buy her lots of expensive gifts (e.g. flowers, chocolates, jewelry), pay her bills and generally do whatever she wants in an attempt to show how much he cares.

Yet, if he doesn't make her feel a renewed sense of respect for him as a man first, all of his nice deeds aren't going to matter much to her.

Of course, she might appreciate his thoughtfulness and she may even say things like, *â□□ Thank you. Youâ□□re so sweet. Iâ□□m so lucky to have a great ex boyfriend like you in my life. Thanks for making this so easy for us, rather than being a pain in the ass like other guys would be,*â□□ but that doesnâ□□t mean she wants to get back into a relationship with him.

In fact, she might even take advantage of her ex just to test how desperate he is to get her back.

For example: She might get him to agree to help her in ways that are expensive or time consuming to him, run errands for her or help her pay her bills.

She might also chat to him via text about all of her life problems and get him to be her texting friend who is always there to support her.

All along though, she will be secretly trying to find a new man to replace him and will eventually drop the news, "Umm, there's something that I need to tell you. I've met someone. We've been seeing each other for the past few weeks and it has become serious now. He doesn't want me communicating with you anymore, so I need you to respect that now by not contacting me anymore."

Donâ□□t put yourself in that kind of position.

You deserve to get her back, not to be taken advantage of by her and then laughed at as she moves on with another guy while you're in intense emotional pain as you miss her and yearn for her.

Be a good man and be nice to her, but don't become Mr. Nice Guy who hopes to get her back by sucking up to her and doing whatever she wants.

Instead, just focus on actively making her feel respect and attraction for you again every time you interact with her (e.g. via text message, e-mail, on a phone call, or in person), by behaving in some of the ways that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. confident, charismatic, self-assured, emotionally independent).

When you spark her feelings of attraction for you again, it makes the negatives of your relationship seem less important to her, because she naturally feels drawn to you in a way that feels good to her.

2. Being a helpful friend

Another mistake that some guys make is to fall deep into the Friend Zone with their ex woman.

For example: A guy might think, â□□ If I stay friends with my ex girlfriend, Iâ□□ll have a good excuse to be around her all the time. Then when she sees that Iâ□□m the one that she can turn to when sheâ□□s having a bad day, is sad, or needs any kind of help, she will realize that she still loves *me and we can get back together again.*â□□

He might then make himself available to his ex 24/7 and maybe even be her shoulder to cry on when she gets dumped by another guy.

Don't do that to yourself.

If you are going to be her friend, make sure that you are actively making her feel respect and sexual attraction for you again.

Don't be her friend if you're just going to be Mr. Nice Guy or Mr. Helpful towards her.

The fastest way to get her back while being her friend is to focus on making her feel respect and attraction for you again.

If you only focus on making her feel neutral, friendly feelings for you (e.g. because you want to show her how much you care about her as a person), she might keep you around as a friend, but she won't be loyal.

Then, as soon as another guy comes along who makes her feel sexual attraction and is confident enough to make a move on her, she will jump ship, hook up with him and leave you behind.

Some guys don't want to believe that their ex girlfriend would do that and then when she does, they are shocked and feel betrayed and angry at her for taking advantage of them.

Don't put yourself in that position with her.

You can't trust her to be loyal if you're not making her feel the kind of respect, attraction and love that a woman needs to feel to want to stay in a relationship.

3. Texting back and forth about your day or week

Some guys believe that sending regular texts to stay on her mind will mean that she will be less likely to move on because she will be thinking about him the whole time.

He might then start texting her things like, â□□How was your day?â□□ or â□□On my way to work and I just wanted to say hi. Have a great day!â□□ or â□□I've just come out of a boring meeting with my boss. How has your day been?â□□

However, just because his ex girlfriend might be nice and friendly and respond to his texts, it doesn't mean that she wants him back.

In reality, a woman will often be thinking, *â□□Why is he sending me all this crap? I donâ□□t care about his meeting or that heâ□□s on his way to work. Is this is way of trying to get me back? How pathetic. He doesn't even have the balls to call me and make something happen. He's hiding behind texts. He wasn't enough of a man for me when we were in a relationship and obviously nothing has changed since.*â□□

So, why doesnâ□□t staying in touch with an ex girlfriend make her think, *â□□Wow! Cool! I think I miss my ex. Hearing from him all the time via text has made me realize how much I still care about him*â□□?

The reason why is because talking about his day will not show her that anything about him has changed.

It doesnâ□□t solve any of the core problems that they faced in their relationship, and it doesnâ□□t make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

So, rather than wasting a lot of time texting random things to your ex girlfriend (and possibly annoying her even more), just try to get her on a phone call where you can actively spark some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

On a phone call, you've got to get her smiling, laughing and feeling good to be talking to you again.

From there, you need to get her to meet up with you in person, make her feel a lot of respect and attraction for you and then guide her back into a relationship with you.

4. Changing your physical appearance by adding a bit more muscle, losing some weight or buying new clothes

When some guys find out that they need to respark a woman's feelings of sexual attraction to get her back, they make the mistake of thinking they have to change their physical appearance.

For example: If a guy remembers his ex girlfriend saying, "I love guys who wear business suits," he might then get himself a suit even though he's more of a jeans and t-shirt kind of guy.

He might then begin to wear suits or really formal clothes and post photos on social media in the hopes that she thinks, "Wow! He's so sophisticated now. He's wearing suits! I have to get him back."

Yet, if she broke up with him because he was insecure, emotionally sensitive and wasn't enough of a man for her, she's not going to believe that all that has now changed because he's wearing a suit.

She might be curious to find out if he is changed and may text or call him, but if she talks to him and notices that he's still the same old insecure guy as before, she's going to lose more respect for him and convince herself that she needs to move on quickly because he's trying to trick her into thinking that he has changed and she doesn't want to fall for that trap.

Alternatively, if a guy heard his ex say, "Guys with big biceps and six-pack abs are soooo hot," he might then decide to go to the gym to lose some weight if he needs to, or become more muscular.

Yet, a woman who has dumped her guy isn't going to run back to him because he's lost some weight or put on some muscle weight.

Sure, some women will appreciate an improvement in a guy's physical appearance, but it's not going to attract her back in the most important, fundamental ways (i.e. how his personality and behavior makes her feel).

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he was insecure and needy, she will not feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him about his physical appearance, because the unattractive things about him are emotional (i.e. he is insecure and needy).

Alternatively, if a guy was too submissive and allowed his ex to dominate him in the relationship, him getting bigger muscles, or new clothes isn't going to disguise the fact that he's still the same emotionally weak guy underneath all the outside changes.

So, rather than wasting a lot of time fixing your physical appearance in the hopes that this will attract your ex girlfriend back to you, ask yourself these questions instead:

- Can you make your ex girlfriend feel feminine and girly in your presence, or does she tend to feel like the more dominant, emotionally stronger one?
- Can she look up to you and respect you as a man, or does she look down on you?

- Can you make her laugh, smile and feel excited to be around you, or does she look for excuses to get away from you now?

These are the fundamental things that matter more to a woman than a guy's looks.

If you are serious about attracting your ex girlfriend back to you, you have to spark her feelings of attraction for you again, by saying and doing the types of things that are going to keep turning her feelings on for you, rather than saying and doing the types of things that were turning her off in the past, or that have been turning her off since your break up.

When you do that, she feels drawn to you and from there you can build on that spark of attraction by showing her that you really are a different man now.

That's how you attract an ex girlfriend back to you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Does Cutting Off Communication After a Break Up Get a Relationship Back Together?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're wondering if cutting off communication after a break up will get your relationship back together again, the answer is this!

It's fine to have a cooling off period where you and her don't speak for up to a week, but anything longer than that usually causes problems, such as:

- She moves on.
- She stops feeling the pain of losing you and realizes that she can handle being without you.
- She feels attracted to new guys and likes it.
- She sees the fact that you haven't contacted her as meaning that you don't care.
- She sees it as immature and wonders why you don't just call her.

So, rather than waste a lot of time ignoring your ex in the hopes that she will realize that she misses you and come back, it's usually best to use the time to actively make her feel sparks of respect and attraction for you again.

However, you can't do that if you're avoiding any communication with her for weeks, or even months.

Giving her too much space rarely works.

I've personally worked on 100s of ex back cases with my phone coaching clients and cutting off communication for long periods of time (e.g. 30+ days) usually results in the woman moving on.

The best way to get a woman back is to give her 3-7 days of space and then actively re-attract her and get back into a relationship.

Where Guys Go Wrong

[image: Should you ignore your ex to get her back?]

Sometimes, when trying to get a woman back after a break up, guys will make the mistake of thinking that cutting off communication is a real solution to making any woman go from having no feelings for a guy, to missing him and then wanting him back.

However, in most cases it just doesn't work.

Why?

To begin with, when a woman breaks up with a guy, it's usually because she has lost respect and attraction for him over time.

In her mind, she may be thinking negative things about him like, "I can't believe how badly he hurt me. I'll never let him put me through that kind of pain again. He can forget about us ever getting back together" or, "I can't believe how much time I wasted with him. He was confident when I met him, but his true colors came through later on and he showed me how insecure and emotionally weak he really is. I need a man, not a boy. What a waste of my time!!"

So, when a guy cuts off communication with her after the break up, rather than think, â€œI feel all sad and hurt that my ex isnâ€™t calling me up. I miss him so much,â€ she will more than likely be thinking, â€œItâ€™s such a relief to be out of that relationship. I finally can move on with my life.â€

Hereâ€™s the thingâ€¦!

Unless a woman is still in love with a guy and is secretly hoping that they will get back together again, or she is struggling to find herself a replacement guy, cutting off communication isnâ€™t going to be that big of a deal for her.

[image: Most women don't come back if you ignore them]

She might wonder why he isn't contacting her, but if she's sure that he can't change and become what she needs (e.g. a confident, emotionally secure, emotionally mature man) right now, she's going to cut her losses and try to move on quickly.

The truth is, most women are perfectly capable of finding a new guy who wants to sleep with her and give a relationship a try.

If she has had experience with break ups before, she will know that the pain of it all will pass very quickly, and each day will get easier until she feels truly happy without him.

This is one of the reasons why cutting off communication isn't the best idea for most ex back cases.

Even if a woman still has some feelings for her ex, him cutting off communication with her actually helps her get over him.

Hereâ€™s whyâ€¦!

Imagine a woman is sitting at home after a break up and missing her ex.

Although she might be feeling some pain, anger and disappointment about no longer being in a relationship with him, deep down she might also have a sense of hope that maybe they can work things out.

Yet, rather than him call her up after a few days and actively work towards sparking some of her feelings of respect and attraction for him again, he cuts off all communication with her for weeks, and maybe even months.

When this happens, she starts to doubt his feelings for her.

She begins to wonder, â€œWhy isnâ€™t he calling me? Doesnâ€™t he care about me at all? I thought that heâ€™d at least just phone to see if Iâ€™m okay. How silly of me to have been sitting here hoping that he might also want to get our relationship back together again, like I do. Heâ€™s obviously over me and moving on with his life. Maybe he didn't even love me at all. What a jerk. Well, Iâ€™m not going to sit around waiting for him to call me anymore. If he can forget about me so easily, then I can do the same. I'm going out with the girls this weekend and I'm going to get laid.â€

She then works away at completely switching off her feelings for him (e.g. by getting angry over his lack of communication, actively moving on with or hooking up with another guy).

So, should you cut off all communication with her and wait?

Well, if she doesn't have feelings for you right now, the answer is NO.

If you think that she does want to get back with you and will miss you if you don't contact her, the answer is MAYBE.

Maybe, because ignoring her still doesn't guarantee that she's not going to hook up with a new guy and fall in love with him.

The best way to get a woman back is to be active about it.

Actively re-attract her and actively guide her back into a relationship with you, before it's too late.

So, rather than waste a lot of time cutting off communication with your ex in the hopes that it will get the relationship back together, focus instead on using every interaction you have with her as an opportunity make her feel sparks of respect and attraction for you again.

Whether you're interacting with her via text, on social media, over the phone, and especially in person, make sure that you are making her smile, laugh and feel happy to be in contact with you again.

The happier that she feels when she's interacting with you, the more her defenses will come down, and the more open she will become to the idea of getting back together again.

On the other hand, the less communication you have with your ex, the more time she has to get over you and find herself another guy who makes her feel exciting lust and new love.

What is Stopping You From Contacting Your Ex Right Now?

[image: I need her back]

Quite often, when a guy is asking, "Does cutting off communication after a break up get the relationship back together?" it's usually due to one of the following reasons:

- He's afraid to call her up because he thinks that she might not want to hear from him.
- He's heard that break ups are permanent and that couples rarely get back together again.
- She told him that she never wants to hear from him again and that she will never give him another chance.
- She's already dating a new guy and he believes that she probably won't want to hear from him now.
- He thinks that giving her time apart will make forget his past mistakes and cause her to really miss him and need him.

None of those ways of thinking above will get her back.

You've got to do something about it, rather than sitting around hoping that it all magically fixes itself due to cutting off communication.

The key to getting a relationship back together is to actively spark the woman's feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

Even if your ex is saying things like, "I just don't have feelings for you anymore," or even, "I hate you! Don't talk to me ever again," or "I'm in love with someone else, it's over between us," when you respark some of her old feelings for you again, she just can't stop herself from wanting to interact with you.

All of a sudden, she feels drawn to you, even though she thought she was completely over you.

From that point, you simply build on the spark of attraction that she's feeling by showing her that things really can be different between you and her.

Yet, without any communication between you and her to respark her feelings of respect and attraction, she will likely just move on.

The Best Way to Get a Relationship Back Together

[image: Have the balls to make something happen]

The best way to stir up a woman's emotions and make her want to get back together again is to interact with her and actively make her feel sparks of respect and attraction for you.

The main thing is to let her experience for herself the new and improved version of you (e.g. via the way you think, talk, behave and interact with her), so she drops her guard and becomes more open to her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

How can you do that?

First of all, you need to show her that you've moved past the level you were at when she broke up with you, and then get her laughing and smiling and feeling good to be talking to you again, whether it's on a phone call or in person.

For example: If you were jealous and insecure in the relationship and that caused her to lose respect and attraction for you as a man, you need to show her that you're now a more emotionally strong and mature man.

Another example is if your ex broke up with you because she felt more dominant than you in the relationship.

In cases like that, you need to show her that you are now the stronger, more masculine and more dominant one by having the courage to contact her, make her feel respect and attraction for you again, and guide her back into a relationship with you.

You don't have to become perfect to get her back, but you do need to move beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you.

Focus on making her smile, laugh, and feel good to be interacting with you, rather than letting her try to push you into reacting in an insecure way like she has been able to do lately.

For example: Imagine a guy is talking on the phone with his ex, and she is being cold and unfriendly towards him by saying things like, "I feel nothing for you anymore," or "I'm happy now. I'm meeting new guys and it feels great to be dating again. I like being single. Leave me alone."

She is likely expecting him to react in the same old ways that he used to do when they were breaking up (e.g. becoming jealous and getting angry at her, getting upset and pleading with her for another chance).

If he lets her get to him like that, she will know that nothing about him has really changed, so she will continue saying things like, "Just accept that it's over between us."

On the other hand, rather than reacting in an insecure way, he can use her comments as an opportunity to spark her feelings of respect and attraction for him again.

Here's an example!

Imagine that youâare on a phone call with your ex and she tries to test you by saying something along the lines of, âIâm glad we broke up. Iâm having so much fun without you. Iâve been going clubbing with my girlfriend friends and weâve dancing and having a great time together.â

The way she will be expecting you to react is by getting upset, angry or rushing to get off the phone call with her.

Instead, you can reply by saying something like, âCool! Thatâs awesome to hear. Iâm so glad that youâre finally having fun, but I donât believe that your friends are enjoying going dancing with you as much as you say they are.â

She might then get annoyed and say, âWhat do you mean they donât enjoy going dancing with me? Why shouldnât they?â

At that point you can say in a joking voice, âWell, if I remember correctly, you dance like a headless chicken with one leg. Youâre always bumping into everyone, standing on their toes, falling all over the placeâ!â and then laugh, to make sure that she knows that youâre joking.

She may then laugh about getting caught out with your joke and her guard will come down.

She will then begin to wonder why she is feeling so attracted to your newfound confident and self-assured attitude towards her.

Then, regardless of how badly things ended between you and her, she wonât be able to stop herself from feeling at least some level of respect for you again, which is what you want.

The more respect she feels for you, the more likely it is that she will drop her guard and allow some of her positive feelings about you (e.g. attraction, love) to come back again.

Then, when she is feeling more relaxed and open towards you again, you can say to her, âYou know that I want you to be happy, so Iâll tell you whatâ! How about we meet up for a drink and I can help you with your dance moves. In that way, the next time you go clubbing with your friends you can show off your cool dance moves, rather than dancing like a chicken.â

Or, if you feel like thereâs no way sheâd agree to meet up for a drink and a dance, you can say, âAnyway, you and I should catch up for a coffee as friends. Itâs not about us getting back together. Just a quick catch up to say hi.â

If she says âYes,â just meet up with her and continue saying and doing the types of things that will deepen her feelings of respect and attraction for you, and then guide her back into a relationship with you.

On the other hand, if sheâs not ready to get back together at this time, just say something like, âWell, it was cool chatting to you again,â and then end the phone call.

Then, donât contact her for a few days and repeat the process again until she is willing to get back together.

In Life, if You Snooze, You Usually Lose

Sometimes, itâs good to cut off communication with people (e.g. a friend who has been rude to you) and wait for them to come back and apologize.

Yet, with most other things in life, ignoring a problem (e.g. the fact that she currently doesnât feel much or any respect and attraction for you and doesn't want to be with you because of that), usually doesn't fix it.

Cutting off communication after a break up to get a relationship back together only works approximately 20% of the time (based on the 100s of cases that I've worked on).

Then, if the woman comes back and sees that the guy hasn't really changed, she just breaks up with him again.

Not only is cutting off contact a huge waste of time in most cases, but it also gives a woman the space that she needs to move on.

So, rather than cut off communication with your ex in the hopes that she will miss you and come running back, just focus on actively sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

Get her thinking, â€œHmmmâ€ | *why does it actually feel good to be hearing from my ex again? I enjoy talking him now. He's different. Maybe we can work things out between us after all.*â€

In almost every ex back case (of a man getting a woman back), he should not ignore her for more than 3-7 days.

Any more time than that is usually just a recipe for disaster because the woman gets over the break up, moves on or decides that she will get revenge by sleeping with new guys and then waiting to tell her ex all about it when he finally does call.

If he doesn't, she'll post up photos on social media of herself having fun with new guys and new friends, to show her ex that she's doing totally fine without him.

So, don't waste time cutting off contact.

Actively sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you again is what counts when getting a woman back after a break up, not cutting off communication and hoping that she comes running back.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

Simply enter your email address and click the orange button to gain free, instant access!

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Ex Said That She Only Has Negative Feelings Towards Me Now

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

You need laugh at her for saying that, rather than taking it so seriously.

For example: Laugh and say, â€œWell, I guess that I'm the worst ex boyfriend in the world then. Iâm that bad, am I?â€

She will most likely say, â€œYes, you are. Youâ€™re the worst.â€

Yet, even though her saying that might be hurtful to you, rather than get upset about it, just laugh and respond with something like, â€œOkay, then I'm a horrible ex boyfriend. I guess I win the title of being the worst ex boyfriend in the world, which is a pretty good achievement. I'm very proud of thatâ€ and have a laugh with her about it.

The point of laughing and making light of her comment about only having negative feelings towards you, is to get rid of the seriousness of what she is saying.

Using humor and a light-hearted approach in response to serious comments like that takes away the anger and allows her to be more open and easy-going about it all.

Once you've gotten rid of the seriousness of her comment, you then need to start showing her that you have changed, so she can begin to feel positive emotions whenever she interacts with you from now on.

Here are some doâ€™s and donâ€™t to help you achieve thatâ€™!

Donâ€™t Suck Up to Her to Change Her Negative Feelings Towards You

[image: Don't suck up to your ex]

Sometimes, a guy thinks that to change a womanâ€™s negative feelings for him, he needs to be extra nice to her by sucking up to her and doing whatever she wants.

For example: He might think to himself, â€œMy ex said that she only has negative feelings towards me now. Thatâ€™s because sheâ€™s only thinking about the bad things I did to her. If I start being really nice to her, treating her like a princess when I see her, buying her those things that I know she really likes, and even helping out with her bills (e.g. pay her rent, buy her groceries), she will stop thinking about my past mistakes and start seeing me in a more positive light. Sheâ€™ll realize that even though I hurt her in the past and recently, Iâm actually a really nice, honest, sincere, loving guy and that she canâ€™t live without me.â€

[image: Will my girlfriend be happy if I treat her like a princess and buy her lots of expensive things?]

Yet, when a woman currently perceives her ex in a negative way because she has lost respect for him as a man, being extra nice to her will usually just make her even more annoyed with him.

She may think, â€œDoes he really think that paying my rent/buying me gifts is all it will take to *make me forget about what he did to me in the past, even though he still doesn't even know how to make me feel respect and attraction for him anymore?*â€œ

Here's the thingâ€œ

If a woman has lost respect and attraction for her ex, she will find it difficult to allow herself to open back up to him because she just can't trust in who he is as a man.

If he tries to be extra nice to her and suck up to her to be forgiven, she's just going to see right through it.

She might then decide to teach him a lesson, by saying to herself, â€œOkay fine. Iâ€™ll let him pay for my rent/groceries/run around doing things for me if thatâ€™s what he wants to do for me. He deserves to suffer for how he treated me. I will get him doing everything for me and string him along as though he has a chance. In the meantime, I'll find myself another guy and tell him all about it when I'm ready to truly break his heart and get him back for treating me so badly in the relationship.â€œ

He might feel like he's making progress by sucking up to her and being Mr. Nice Guy, but he's really only accomplishing 2 things:

1. Making her feel good about herself (e.g. she feels wanted, attractive, in the position of power, not worried about him moving on with another girl) so she can calmly and confidently move on with her life and find another guy.
2. Causing her to lose even more respect and attraction for him as a man because he's trying to suck up to her to get another chance.

Even if a woman really appreciates that her ex is being extra nice to her and spoiling her in different ways (e.g. gifts, dinners, paying her bills), it doesn't mean she's going to suddenly forgive him for his past mistakes.

In most cases, she will simply think, â€œI know my ex is being really sweet right now, but that doesn't change what happened between us. Heâ€™s still the same guy that I broke up with. Heâ€™s probably just hoping that being nice to me will be enough to make me forget about the past, and overlook the fact that he still hasn't figured out the real reasons why the split between us happened.â€œ

So, what should you do instead?

To change how your ex currently feels about you, you have to respark her feelings of respect and attractionâ€œand you can't do it by simply being really nice to her.

Of course, there's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but if you're letting her treat you badly because you're hoping that she will suddenly realize that you're not such a bad guy after all and then change her mind, you're actually only turning her off even more.

To get your ex to change her negative feelings about you, you have to actively make her feel respect and attraction for you again, by behaving in some of the ways that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. confident, charismatic, self-assured, masculine).

So, don't waste time sucking up to her in the hopes that it will change how she feels.

Instead, focus on being the kind of man that she can look up to and respect whenever you interact with her (i.e. via text, on social media, over the phone or face-to-face).

When your ex begins to feel respect for you again, it becomes difficult for her to hold on to her negative feelings about you, and she then becomes more open to the idea of getting back together again.

Choose to See the Humor in Her Comments, Rather Than Feeling Sad About it

[image: Attract her over the phone, rather than trying to convince her]

It's understandable that a guy might feel sad when he hears his ex saying things like, "It's over between us. I only have negative feelings towards you now."

He might then start telling himself, "I hurt the woman that I love and now she hates me. I deserve to be dumped. We used to be so good together and now the only thing she feels for me is anger, resentment, and disgust. That is all my fault. I messed up so badly and I don't think there's anything that I can say or do that will change her negative feelings towards me."

The truth is, going through a break up is a pretty horrible experience for most guys.

It hurts.

For many guys, it makes it difficult to eat, sleep and work properly because she's always on his mind.

A guy might get to the point where he feels like he just doesn't deserve her and has to put up with being rejected and lonely now that she only has negative feelings towards him.

Yet, putting yourself down and feeling like you're unworthy of her isn't the way to regain your ex's respect.

You've got to be confident in yourself and the new and improved man that you now are since she dumped you.

The truth is, everyone makes mistakes.

You're not perfect, but neither is your ex.

So, rather than sitting around blaming yourself about what happened and giving yourself the title of, "Worst Ex Boyfriend in the World," what you need to do is focus on making her laugh, smile and feel happy every time that she interacts with you via text, on a phone call or in person.

Seeing the humor in her comments about your is one of the best ways to show your ex that you're not the same guy she broke up with anymore.

For example: A guy is talking to his ex and she says, "Forget about us. I only have negative feelings towards you now. Nothing is going to make me think of you in a positive way."

Rather than react in a way that she might be expecting, (e.g. get upset, become angry with her, beg and plead with her), he decides to show her his maturity and confidence by joking about to get her smiling and laughing, which then re-sparks some of her feelings of respect and attraction for him.

When she says, "Forget about us. I only have negative feelings towards you now. Nothing is going to make me think of you in a positive way," he can respond by smiling and saying in a joking way, "Yeah! I feel the same way too! I hate you now. You deserve to get the title of 'Worst Ex Girlfriend in the World' for breaking my heart. Look what you've done to me. I can't even eat anymore! I'm so sad. I've only had 4 hamburgers, 4 large fries, and 4 cokes today at McDonald's. I'm starving because I can't eat. Iâ€¢m just fading away hereâ€¢I'm just skin and bones now. I can't eat, I can't sleepâ€¢I'm so sad that the Worst Ex Girlfriend in the World dumped me and now doesn't want anything to do with meâ€¢ and laugh with her about it.

Of course, saying that to her isnâ€¢t the magic secret to wiping away all your past mistakes and suddenly making her fall hopelessly in love with you again.

Itâ€¢s simply something to say in that moment to make her smile, or laugh and take away some of the bitterness that sheâ€¢s currently feeling towards you.

Itâ€¢s also a way to spark some of her feelings of respect, based on the fact that you're not falling apart because of what sheâ€¢s saying.

Remember: How you make your ex feel right now is what counts.

The more you can trigger her feelings of respect and attraction for the man that you've become since the break up (e.g. yesterday, last week, 2 months ago), the more likely it is that she will stop seeing you in a negative light based on who you were in the past.

You are different now.

You've become such a better man since the day she dumped you.

You are not the same guy anymore.

