On the other hand, when a guy is nervous and insecure, everything about his behavior says, "I don't believe I'm good enough to have the woman I really want."

A woman can easily sense when a guy doesn't believe in himself and thinks that she is more valuable than he is. She will see it in his body language, notice it in his conversation style and pick up on it based on the way that he behaves when he's around her.

4. He's letting her dominate him.

[image: Why is she not ready for a relationship?]

Some guys assume that if they do whatever a woman wants to do and let her take the lead, she will be happy that she has total control over a guy and will then want to be in a relationship with him.

Yet, being a pushover like that is the fastest way to make sure that the woman doesn't respect him. When a woman doesn't respect a guy, she will find it very difficult to maintain any feelings of sexual attraction for him.

A woman wants to be with a masculine guy who can take the lead and allow her to be feminine. If a woman has to take on the masculine role around a guy, she won't be able to relax and be a feminine woman, which is definitely not a turn on for her.

Although on the surface it might look like a woman wants to have total power and control over a guy, in reality, women don't respect guys that they can easily push around.

A woman wants to be with a guy that she can look up to and respect, not a guy that she looks down on regrets hooking up with.

When You Make This Woman Feel Sexually Attracted to You, She Will Then Be Ready to Start a Relationship

If you've already made some of the above mistakes and she has given you the "I'm not ready for a relationship," speech "don't worry about it."

You can fix it and recover from the bad first impression that you've made on her.

You have not ruined your opportunity with her at all.

From now on, the main thing that you need to do is to start making her see you in a different light, by triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you.

Attraction comes first and everything else (i.e. kissing, sex and a relationship) naturally follows on after that.

When you make her feel feminine and girly around you, it's only natural that she will start seeing you differently because she will be feeling attracted to your masculinity.

Remember: You can make her feel attracted in more than 100 different ways by displaying certain personality traits and behaviors that women are naturally attracted to.

When you make her feel a lot of attraction for you, she will naturally change her mind about not being ready for a relationship.

She'll go from saying she is not ready for a relationship, to coming on to you and trying to get you to kiss her or have sex with her.

You can change how she feels.

You really can do it.

From now on, you've just got to change the way that you've been approaching your interactions with her.

Focus on making her feel sexually attracted to you, rather than trying to get her to like you more as a friend or as a person.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Nice Things to Say to Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Are you looking for nice things to say to women because you are hoping it will get you laid or get you a girlfriend?

Not so fast.

If you want to get laid or get a girlfriend, the main thing that you need to do is make a woman feel sexually attracted to youâ€¦not say nice things to her.

Why?

If a woman doesn't feel sexually attracted to a guy, she's not going to become sexually excited when a guy says nice things to her.

She will simply look at him as yet another typical nice guy who is hoping to be get a chance with her because he's being so being nice, sweet, polite and respectful.

If he keeps saying nice, sweet things to her, she might even feel annoyed by the fact that he doesn't even understand that a woman needs to feel sexually attracted to a guy to want to be with him, rather than just feel nice, sweet, friendly emotions towards him.

Watch this video to understand why...

As you will discover from the video above, there's nothing wrong with being nice to women, but if you want to get laid or get a girlfriend, you have to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for you first.

Attraction comes first and everything else flows on smoothly and effortlessly after that.

For example: If a guy hasn't made a woman feel any sexual attraction to him and then says, "I like your style. You have a great fashion sense" the woman will most-likely appreciate the compliment, but she isn't going to be thinking, "WOW! This guy that I'm not attracted to likes how I dress! Wow, that must mean he likes me! Woo hoo! I might have a chance with him."

On the other hand, if a confident guy who has already made a woman feel attracted to him says, "I like your style. You look sexy in whatever you wear" the woman is going to feel excited that the guy she is attracted to also finds her attractive.

In fact, she is going to look at him as being a charming guy, whereas the guy who didn't make her feel attracted and said something nice to her will simply be seen as a nice guy or a friendly guy.

If you want to be successful at picking up women and keeping a woman interested in a relationship, you have to be able to make women feel attracted to you.

Being nice is great, but it's not enough for a woman to want to have sex with a guy or stick by him in a relationship. Attraction is the glue that gets men and women together in the first place and then helps to keep them stuck together when in a relationship.

Things You Can Say

As long as the woman is attracted to you, she will appreciate nice or sweet things that you say and see you as being charming.

For example:

“You’re twice as beautiful when you smile.” When she then smiles in response, smile and say “See, there it is” and hold eye contact with her while smiling. That is an example of flirting by the way.

Another example:

If she says something intelligent. Smile and say in a half-joking, half-serious way “Wow, you’re beautiful and intelligent. I’ve hit the jackpot talking to you” and then add in some of the humor that makes women feel attracted.

What type of humor is that?

Watch this video for some examples...

Talking to Attractive Women

[image: Talking to attractive women]

Many guys find it easy to talk to women that they don’t find attractive (or women who are already taken), but when they talk to a beautiful woman who is single, they suddenly begin to try really hard to impress her and be “liked” by her.

He doesn’t want to stuff up in any way, so he tries to be on his best behavior around her to hopefully show her that he’s nice, trustworthy and doesn’t look at her in a sexual way like other guys do.

He might think something like, “What if she thinks that I’m like all other guys who want to have sex with her? I will show her that I’m nice and that I don’t look at her in that way and hopefully she will be impressed by my self-control. Hopefully she will see that I respect her and will treat her like a princess if she gives me a chance.”

Yet, that’s not how it works.

If a woman is attractive, most of the guys she meets try to kiss her ass by being a really nice guy around her, rather than making her feel attracted, which is one of the 3 things that attractive women hate about most single men.

Watch this video for more info!

As you will discover from the video above, most women are starved of the experience of feeling exciting attraction for guys.

The majority of guys that a woman meets are only capable of making her feel friendly or awkward emotions, rather than intense sexual desire and arousal.

It’s very easy for a woman to attract guys because most men will have sex with her simply based on her appearance. However, women don’t have the same type of attraction reaction than men do.

Rather than instantly being willing to have sex simply based on a man’s appearance, a woman is looking for other qualities in a guy.

She’s hoping to meet a guy who can turn her on with his personality, confidence, conversation style, masculine vibe and charisma.

That is what really matters to most women.

Yes, a small percentage of women only want a guy who is good looking like a male model, but the majority of women are more interested in how a guy’s personality and behavior makes her feel.

When you are the guy who can offer a woman the experiencing of feeling sexually turned on and aroused by the way you are interacting with her, you will laugh at how easy it is to attract and pick up women and how little competition there is from other guys.

Most guys in this world waste years (and even decades) of their life trying to be impressive to women by building up their career, building up muscle in the gym and building up their bank account.

Yet, the truth is that most women can be attracted instantly by simply displaying the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women.

Most guys just don't understand how easy it is.

They go through life thinking that success with women is all about being super nice or super good looking, rich or having a perfect body.

Yet, if you look around, you will see that the majority of guys are just average, but they still have a hot girlfriend or wife.

Here's the thingâ€¦!

A woman can sit and listen to a nice guy give her compliment after compliment and even though she may smile and look flattered, she will walk away from him in a instant if another guy comes along and triggers her feelings of sexual attraction instead.

Triggering a woman's attraction to your personality and behavior instantly beats 100 nice things that you can say to a woman. It also beats wearing the latest fashions and having a perfect body.

Who you are as a guy (i.e. your personality, behavior, how you think, how you communicate with her, how you behave around other people, etc) is much more important to most women than anything else you can offer.

A typical nice guy (I used to be one) hopes that, if he shows a woman that he is a nice guy and says enough nice things to her, she will see that he is trustworthy and has good intentionsâ€¦!and will then give him a chance.

Yet, thatâ€¦s not how a woman's attraction for a man works.

If a guy puts too much focus on being friendly and likeable around a woman, she may like him as a friend and appreciate that he's such a good person, but she isn't going to be feeling sexually turned on by his approach.

Why?

Niceness isn't what makes women feel sexually attracted or aroused; it simply makes her feel nice, friendly emotions.

Being nice is only something that a woman finds appealing from a guy who has already made her feel sexually attracted to him. A guy being seen as the cherry on top or a welcome bonus, but it's not even essential for making her feel attracted enough to kiss or have sex with a guy.

Of course, being nice is still important. For example: When a guy makes a woman feel sexually attracted to him (e.g. because he's being confident, charismatic, masculine in his vibe and behavior, etc) and is then nice to a woman and treats her with respect, she will label him as being a "charming" guy.

However, if a guy tries to avoid sexual attraction and in the hope of being liked enough by a woman for being nice, she will simply experience friendly emotions and label him as a nice guy or friend.

What Women Really Want From a Man

[image: What women really want in a man?]

Most guys go through life believing that women are only men who are good looking, rich, tall and have a perfect body.

Yes, it is true that some women are very picky and will only accept those types of men, but those women really are the minority.

The majority of women in this world are open to feeling attracted to men who aren't rich or good looking, but who possess qualities that are equally and often even more attractive to women than looks and money.

If you take a moment to think about it, you will realize that the majority of guys in this world are not rich and don't have male model looks, but are still able to get themselves a girlfriend or wife by displaying some of the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women (e.g. confidence, charisma, charm, being masculine in a way that makes her feel feminine and girly around him, etc).

A good looking or rich guy can approach a woman and say the nicest things in the world to her, but if his approach is nervous and shy, or if his body language is awkward or insecure, the woman is going to feel turned off and won't be interested in hanging around him for long; regardless of how good he looks.

Of course, some women (usually unattractive, desperate or drunk women) will sometimes remain interested in him just because he is good looking, but that doesn't mean she will remain attracted to him in a long term relationship.

The majority of beautiful, high quality women will lose interest in an insecure good looking guy because he lacks the fundamental personality traits that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. confidence, emotional masculinity, high self-esteem, etc).

Mistakes Guys Make When Trying to Be Liked By Women

By now, hopefully you've realized that being successful with women is about making them feel attracted to you, rather than just saying nice things to them and hoping to be liked enough for it to be given a chance.

When you make women feel attracted to you first and then say some nice things, you will be considered as charming. However, if you just say nice things to a woman without first sparking her sexual desire for you, she will see you as being a nice, friendly guy that she has little or no sexual interest in.

So, if you want women to appreciate the nice things that you say to them, make sure that you focus on triggering a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for you first. Attraction comes first and then everything else flows on naturally after that.

If you can avoid making these classic mistakes the next time you talk to an attractive woman, you will get much better results with less effort.

1. Being too nice.

Being nice doesn't make a guy stand out from other guys, because most guys are nice to women or fairly nice to women.

As a woman goes through life, the majority of guys she meets will be nice to her, show her respect and hope to be liked by her.

Niceness doesn't make her think, "WOW! This guy is different!"

If you listen to what some women say, it will seem as though nice guys are rare. For example: Some women will say, "All men are assholes. Why can't I find a nice guy who will respect me and treat me like a princess?"

Yet, her statement isn't a fact.

All men are not assholes.

What she is really saying is this, "Why can't I find a guy who makes me feel attracted and is also nice to me?" because she isn't attracted to typical nice guys who only make her feel friendly emotions.

Since it is so difficult for women to find a good guy who also makes her feel attracted (those guys are usually already taken), she will usually settle for the next best thing in her eyes, which is a bad boy, jerk or asshole who does make her feel attracted (e.g. to his confidence, masculinity, etc), but who isn't a good relationship option.

When that guy dumps her, cheats on her or treats her badly, she will then begin to complain that there are no nice guys in the world and all men are assholes.

Yet, she is simply referring to the assholes that she has been dating.

What she wants is a good man who also makes her feel attracted and turned on. However, most guys don't understand that and think that a woman is referring to all men when she says, "All men are assholes. Why can't I find a nice guy?"

A typical nice guy will then try really hard to show a woman how much of a nice guy he is, but she will reject him anyway because he's not doing anything to turn her on.

He's just being nice.

Of course, there's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but if the main thing that you're doing while talking to a woman you like is trying to come up with more nice things to say to her, she will only see you as a sweet friend that she can hang around with until the right guy comes along to turn her on.

When you are talking to a woman that you want to begin a sexual relationship with, you have to focus on making her feel sexually attracted to you as a man, rather than trying to make her like you as a nice friend.

When you talk to a woman in a way that creates a spark between you and her, she will automatically like you because you are making her feel the way she wants to feel when she's interacting with a man (i.e. attracted and turned on).

So, rather than focus your attention on thinking up lots of nice things to say to a woman you like, focus instead on creating a sexual vibe between you and her. When she is sexually attracted to you, she will be much more appreciative and excited whenever you say something sweet or nice to her.

Remember: There's nothing wrong with being nice, or even saying nice things to a woman, but without sexual attraction being established first, she isn't going to be charmed by the nice things you say.

When you attract a woman first, all the other likeable qualities about you (e.g. you're a good guy, you're intelligent, you have good intentions with her, etc) will become even more appealing to her.

2. Thinking that flirting with her is wrong.

Flirting is one of the easiest ways to create a spark with a woman, build up her attraction and create sexual tension between you.

If you don't flirt with a woman during conversation, what you're doing is failing to create a sexual spark between yourself and her. A sexual spark is the most essential thing you need to create if you want a woman to be interested in you in that way.

You might want to show her that you're an intelligent, nice guy who is interested in her for more than just sex, but she's not going to care about that if you haven't made her feel attracted to you first.

Without using flirting to build some sexual tension between you and her, a woman isn't going to think, "Wow! This guy really stands out from all the other guys who hit on me. He says such nice things; I definitely want to begin a sexual relationship with him because he is."

Why? Pretty much every other guy that she meets uses the "If I say nice things to her, she will like me and then give me a chance" approach, but it's not what makes a woman feel sexually turned on.

Watch this video to understand what flirting is, how it works and why women love it so much...

3. Being afraid to use risky humor.

According to several studies into the science of human attraction, women prefer men who can make them laugh, compared to men who want to have serious, logical, polite interactions all the time.

Even though it might not be true in reality, women perceive "funny" guys as being more intelligent and honest, compared to the more serious guys who are often seen as being dim and potentially untrustworthy.

When talking to a woman, using humor is the quickest way to make her feel relaxed and at ease in your company. Of course, using humor in conversation with a woman is not about telling her joke after joke.

Here are some examples of funny things that you can say to women to make them feel attracted to you:

As you will discover from the video above, the type of humor that women are most attracted to (I call it Playfully Arrogant Humor) is seen as too risky by most guys.

Women love it when a guy has the balls to use this type of humor, as long as he keeps it playful and light. It's not about being seriously arrogant, rude or sleazy in any way.

Instead, you are just being playful with it, which is why women find it so funny and appealing.

You Don't Have to Say Nice Things to Women to Make Them Like You or Want You Sexually

There's nothing wrong with saying nice things to women, but it's not the one thing that is going to solve all of your problems with women.

Saying nice things is just seen as a bonus trait in a guy, but the main thing she is looking for is whether or not you make her feel sexually attracted or not.

If there's no sexual attraction (or not enough of it), then there's not going to be any sex or sexual relationship.

So, don't waste any more of your life thinking that the only way you're going to make women like you enough is to say a lot of nice things to them and show them how nice of a guy you are.

By now you should be clear on one thing: A woman's attraction for a man is not limited to his physical appearance, or his wealth or status. It's also not based on the nice things that he says to her during a conversation.

When you make a woman feel attracted to by displaying the personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. confidence, charisma, masculine vibe, making her laugh with the right type of humor, etc), most women will overlook any perceived flaws that you might have and see you as being a hot, sexy and desirable man.

Then, when you say nice things to her, she will label you as a charming man and will be excited to hook up with you and begin a relationship.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Signs That a Woman is Not Interested in You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Most women will act as though they aren't interested in a guy when they actually do like him.

For example: If a woman really likes a guy, but is pretending not to be interested, she might ignore him, make fun of him or take a long time to reply to his texts or messages.

Why would a woman do that to a guy?

In most cases, a woman will act like she isn't interested so can test the guy's confidence in himself. If she then notices that he loses confidence in himself and feels like he doesn't have a chance with her, she will lose interest in him because women are attracted to confident guys and turned off by insecure, self-doubting guys.

A woman might also play hard to get with a guy because she wants to see how interested he really is. Many guys try to get women interested just to feel good about themselves, but never actually follow through and ask her out or make a move to kiss her and begin a sexual relationship.

So, rather than wasting time with another one of those guys (and potentially ending up feeling rejected), she will act like she isn't interested to see if he will pursue her and get her to go out with him on a date.

Make Her Feel Attracted to You and She Will Be Interested

[image: Make her feel attracted and she will be interested]

Success with women is pretty simple when you have the skill of being able to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for you.

Watch this video to understand how it works!

As you will discover from the video above, it doesn't matter if a woman shows you obvious interest or whether she's the type to play hard to get. When you make her feel attracted, she WILL be interested.

Signs That a Woman Isn't Interested

[image: Signs that a woman isn't interested]

If a woman doesn't feel sexually attracted to a guy at all, she will try to make it clear that she doesn't see him in "that" way.

For example!

When a guy first approaches a woman and she is not interested in him at all (no matter what he tries to do to attract her), she might!

- Be cold and aloof towards him.
- Turn her body away from him during conversation.
- Roll her eyes at him when he tries to talk to her.

- Excuse herself and move away.
- Tell him, â€œIâ€™m waiting for my boyfriend,â€ even if she doesnâ€™t have one.
- Tell him, â€œIâ€™m just here having fun with my girlfriends. Can you leave us alone?â€
- Avoid smiling at him and will instead keep her body language closed off (e.g. keep her arms folded and her legs crossed and look away from him).
- Respond in one-word answers whenever he tries to make conversation with her.

When a guy is familiar with a woman already (e.g. a coworker) or friends with a woman and she is not interested in him she mightâ€™

- Treat him as a friend and if he tries to initiate anything romantic with her she will say something like, â€œI donâ€™t want to ruin our friendship,â€ or â€œI just donâ€™t feel about you that way,â€ or â€œYouâ€™re like a brother to me.â€
- Use him as a shoulder to cry on when another guy dumps her.
- Talk to him about her sexual experiences with other guys.
- Not flirt, giggle or touch him in suggestive ways during conversation.

As you can see, the signs that a woman is not interested in you can be pretty obvious.

However, just because a woman is not interested in you right now, it doesnâ€™t mean you canâ€™t change how she feels.

You can.

The key to making a woman, who is not interested in you become interested in you, is to trigger her feelings of sexual attraction for you.

For example: If youâ€™ve only being a nice friend to her so far and havenâ€™t been doing anything to make her feel aroused or turned on, you need to change that.

Watch this video to understand why a woman usually wonâ€™t have any sexual interest in the guys who are simply nice to her all the time...

As you will discover from the video above, thereâ€™s nothing wrong with being nice to this woman you like.

However, if you want her to be interested in you in a sexual way, youâ€™ve got to focus on triggering her feelings of arousal and sexual attraction.

There are more than 100 different ways that you can attract a woman during an interaction and one of those (for example) is to have a masculine vibe that makes her feel girly and feminine in your presence.

You Can Change How She Feels About You

Most guys assume that when a woman is not interested, her feelings for him are set in stone and cannot be changed. She either wants him or not and thereâ€™s nothing he can do about it.

Yet, thatâ€™s not how it works at all.

Human feelings are not static; they change all the time.

For example: Think back to a time when you found yourself not liking a person (maybe someone at university or at work), yet when that person changed their behavior and the way they interacted with you, your feelings towards them changed as well and you may have even ended up being good friends.

In the same way, when you can make a woman see you in a way that triggers her feelings of respect and attraction for you as a man, she will begin to see you in a new light and she will go from feeling â€œnot interestedâ€ to feeling â€œvery interestedâ€ in you.

What If Iâ€™m Just Not Her Type?

This is where many guys go wrong.

They assume that a womanâ€™s interest in them is dependent on their good looks, money or social status and, if they donâ€™t have those things, she will simply â€œswitch offâ€ because heâ€™s not her type at all.

Most guys think this is how women choose men, because this is how men choose women.

Men are initially attracted to women because of their looks. Regardless of whether a woman is cold, shallow, bitchy or not that intelligent, if sheâ€™s beautiful (or even just slightly attractive), most guys will still want to have sex with her.

True?

Think about it.

You most-likely see women all the time and instantly decide that you would have sex with them, simply based on their appearance.

You probably don't care what the woman's personality is like and are instantly attracted because of her looks.

That's how a man's attraction for a woman works. It's not just you.

On the other hand, most women (not all) feel attracted to men based on other qualities besides their looks, money or status.

Yes, a woman will initially judge a guy based on how he looks (after all, when she hasn't met him yet there is nothing else for her to base her opinion of him on).

However, once she meets him, his superficial qualities will be less important to her than his less â€œvisible to the eyeâ€ qualities, such as his confidence, emotional masculinity and his ability to make her feel feminine and girly in his presence.

Yes, some women only want a guy who is perfectly good looking like a male model, but most guys aren't male models and they still get laid, get a girlfriend and get married to hot women.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works, which is the opposite of what you will get told by the media and even by women themselvesâ€

When you fully understand that making a woman feel attracted to your personality and who you are as a man is the real key to triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you, you will stop looking for signs that a woman is not interested in you, and will start doing the things that make women feel automatically attracted and interested in you.

When You Trigger Her Feelings of Sexual Attraction She Will Automatically Feel Interested

If you want to get a woman to be interested in you in a sexual way, you need to make her feel sexually attracted to you based on how you interact with her—not based on how you look.

A woman's interest towards a guy is mostly determined by what he says and does in her presence.

For example:

1. Does his conversation style turn her on or turn her off?

Guys who are nervous and insecure around women will be too serious during conversation, or will ask her too many questions in a row, making her feel like she's in an interview rather than interacting with a potential boyfriend.

2. Is he able to make her feel feminine in his presence, or does he make her feel neutral or bored to be talking to him?

Some guys believe that letting a woman know they are interested in her sexually is wrong.

So, instead of flirting with her and making her feel excited to be interacting with him (e.g. attracting her and then saying something like, "You're sexy! I like you"), he will be very polite and try to flatter her by giving her endless compliments about her beauty, which only make her think he's trying to suck up to her so that she will like him as a person.

Basically, the more ways you can make a woman feel attracted to you while interacting with her, the more interested in you she will be.

Success with women is really very simple once you understand that and begin doing it.

As a guy, you can't expect a woman to feel attracted to you just because you walked up to her and said hello, or because you're her friend and you do nice things for her.

You've got to actively trigger her feelings of attraction by displaying the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women (e.g. confidence, charisma, charm, humor, etc).

Instead of wasting your time looking for signs that a woman is not interested in you, work on actively making her feel attracted to you when you interact with her.

When you do that, this woman will feel excited to be with you and will do her best to let you know that.

However, don't expect her to make it completely obvious that she likes you and wants to be with you.

As I explained at the beginning of this article, some women play hard to get and act like they aren't interested because they are trying to find themselves a guy who remains confident in himself no matter what.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Pick Up Women at the Gym: Mistakes to Avoid

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The best way to pick up women at the gym is to be the confident, charismatic and easy-going guy who can chat and get along with random people on occasion.

You shouldn't try hard to chat and talk to a lot of people, but just get yourself into the type of mood where your body language is relaxed, easy-going and open.

Genuinely focus on your work out and then, when opportunities present themselves, simply say hi to a woman, create a spark between you and her and see what unfolds.

For example, when a woman takes a break in between her set or a routine:

[image: Picking up women at the gym]

You: [Smile and in an easy-going, confident way, say] Hey, what's up. How's your work out going?

Her: [Will say "Good thanks" or whatever else she decides to say].

You: [Smile and say in a joking manner] Well, my workout was going really well until I saw you and now I'm distracted.

Her: [Most-likely laughing and enjoying the joke].

You: Okay, well I'm going to get back to my workout now, but I thought I'd at least introduce myself and say hi. I'm Dan, what's your name?

Her: Rebecca.

You: Okay hot Rebecca [include the word "hot" before whatever her name is], hopefully see you around [and then walk off and get back into your workout].

Alternatively, if she openly engages you in conversation and wants to keep talking, build up her attraction by adding a bit more humor and some flirting and then ask for her number.

For example:

You: [After some more chatting] Okay, well I'm going to get back to my workout for now, but I'd love to be able to get your number and give you a call sometime.

If neither of you have your phone with you, get her to write it down (if she can remember her number) or tell her to let you know when she's leaving so you can get her to put your number in your phone.

[image: Getting a woman's phone number at a gym cafe]

Just be straight up about it and believe that you're good enough for her. A lot of women feel insecure about their appearance in a gym, so don't act as though you don't like her. Be real, direct and open in a confident, easy-going way.

Of Course, Not All Women Are Single andÂ Hoping to Meet a Guy When at theÂ Gym

[image: How to pick up girls at the gym]

If you want a guarantee that the woman you're going to approach and talk to is single, then you need to attend a singles event like speed dating.

However, outside of those environments, you have to be prepared to approach and meet women who are not available. Sometimes the woman really is going to be taken, so don't worry about approaching and hearing, "Sorry, I have a boyfriend" when you ask for the number.

Sometimes, when guys are looking for hints and tips on how to pick up women at the gym, they're hoping to be able to get a result on their first approach. Yes, that does happen, but if you happen to approach 5 women who are already taken, don't be discouraged from approaching more.

Out of the next 5 women you approach, maybe 3 of them will be single, so don't give up right away. As long as you are being a confident, easy-going guy and aren't eagerly trying to approach every woman in the gym when you're there, no one should have a problem with what you're doing.

However, beware: I've heard from guys who've been kicked out of gyms because they essentially go there to walk around approaching women. Most people aren't going to be cool with that if they see it, especially guys who are jealous of other guys approaching women when they don't have the confidence to do so themselves.

To avoid any problems, just make sure that you focus on your workout while also keeping your body language and vibe open so you can capitalise on opportunities in a natural, easy-going way.

Mistakes to Avoid

Every environment that you approach women in will have it's own selection of mistakes to avoid. When in a gym, some of the mistakes to avoid are:

1. Offering her unwanted advice on how to train.

Guys who are regular gym-goers will sometimes approach a woman under the pretence of offering her advice relating to the equipment that she's using.

Yet, if she has not asked for advice or signalled through her body language that she's open to offers of help, then she's usually not going to respond well to a guy who approaches to teach her how to train properly.

In the same way that a group of women might display closed body language on a "girls only" night out, a woman might display closed body language in the gym because she is there to focus on her workout and isn't interested in using that time to socialize and meet guys.

If a guy ignores those cues and approaches her to offer "advice," he's going to get rejected unless he can snap her out of that frame of mind by using humor to get her laughing and then having a fun, easy-going conversation.

2. Thinking that his physique will turn her on and make her approach.

Some guys hear women talking about a guy's muscles or six pack and hope that if they just build the perfect physique, women will drop to their knees and open their mouth.

That might be how women behave on TV shows, in comedy movies and in some music videos, but itâs not how things usually work in the real world.

Some women definitely do feel attracted to guys with muscles and only want to have a boyfriend, lover or husband who is big and strong, but in a gym full of fit guys, what makes a guy stand out is his body language and vibe. If he and the woman happen to look at each other, what is going to really turn her on is if he can smile at her in a confident, charismatic way.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction works and how you can use it to help you pick up women at the gym...

For most women, it's not a guy's muscles that impress her the most, but who a guy is on the inside.

For example: If a guy has big muscles, but is secretly insecure about his attractiveness to women, then that will come through via his nervous or tense body language, vibe and behavior in the gym.

With this in mind, when a guy devotes all of his spare time to pumping iron and building bigger muscles in the mistaken belief that it will make him irresistibly attractive to women, he's missing the point.

Likewise, if a guy lingers around in the gym every day bragging (i.e. by making loud grunts and groans when lifting heavy weights) or posing (i.e. by clenching his muscles or sitting down to rest on a bench while putting on a very masculine, tough guy act) for the women he sees there, then he is simply wasting his time.

[image: Pick up women at the gym]

Even if a woman does like the look of him, she will rarely approach him and begin hitting on him.

Sure, it will happen for some very good looking guys, but most of the time, women will simply send out plenty of signals to let a guy know that they're interested in being approached by him. It's then up to the guy to have the confidence to approach her and make something happen.

As you will discover from the video above, it's up to you to identify yourself as a confident man and then take action in accordance with that belief about yourself.

You can go through life feeling as though you're not good enough or that women aren't going to be excited if you approach, but that type of thinking will never help you.

One of the most important things you can ever do for yourself is allow yourself to believe that you are worthy and that if you approach, women will feel attracted to you based on your confidence and other personality traits you display to attract them (e.g. humor).

Do You Know What Women Want?

[image: Do you know what women want?]

Keeping yourself in shape is a great thing to do, but it takes more than looking good on the outside to be an attractive guy to the majority of women.

Most women place much less importance on looks that men realize. Yes, there are women out there who will only accept a perfect looking guy, but most women are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a guy than men realize.

When approaching a woman in a gym, it might seem that the type of guy that she really wants is going to have a perfect gym body, but that's not always the case.

If you can make her feel a lot of attraction for you in other ways (e.g. you're confident, charismatic, can make her laugh, etc), then she will quickly warm up to you and if she's like most women, she won't care if other guys in the gym have a better body than you.

You might have a perfect body or an average body, but when she is talking to you, she is talking to you. You are the guy who is making her feel attracted and turned on.

Here's something weird about attraction that you have to understand if you are going to be successful at picking up women at the gym...

When you make a woman feel a lot of attraction for you based on your confidence and personality, she will start to look at your physical appearance in a positive light.

She will then look at any "imperfections" about you, as being cute or sexy because they are a part of you and you are the guy who is turning her on. It's weird how it works, but it's true.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What Should I Do With My Life? 3 Questions You Should Ask Yourself Today

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The history of your life is being written in each moment and you are either leaving behind a trail of growing success or you aren't.

If you feel like you've been wandering through life and asking yourself things like, "What should I do with my life?" try asking yourself the following questions instead:

1. What do you dream of being able to do with your life, but you're afraid to try going down that path because you think you will fail?
2. If you knew that you only had 5 years left to live, what would you try to achieve during that time to ensure that you are proud of yourself and would leave a positive impact on the world?
3. If you had the power to change the world, what would you use that power to do?

[image: What career or profession is right for me?]

The questions above will help you to get clear on what you've been hiding from and what you already know that you should be doing with your life.

Childhood Dreams

When you were a child, you were likely asked the question of, What do you want to be when you grow up?

You may have been asked this question by a teacher who wanted you to then write an essay about your dream career, or you may have been asked it by a parent or guardian who wanted to help you get clear on your goals and aspirations in life.

Can you remember what you answered? If you can, you will probably be like most people and no longer want to do what you said you wanted to do as a child.

Personally speaking, I said that I wanted to be a fireman and later on, I said that I wanted to be an architect. Now, I'm one of the world's most famous dating coaches and have helped 1,000s of men to get them with women by teaching them the secrets to success with women.

I don't have the skills required to be an architect and I wouldn't want to be fighting fires all day long, so I'm glad that I found the profession that suits me perfectly.

However, even though I absolutely love doing what I do and wake up every day pumped to get back into work here at The Modern Man, I still have additional dreams about doing more things with my life at the same time.

For example: I am now excited about starting a family. When that happens, I want to raise my children to be awesome people and have a really close, loving family that supports each other.

During that time, I know that I'm going to keep working on The Modern Man and helping guys to succeed with women. I literally have ideas for The Modern Man that stretch out 20 years from this date and I cannot wait to get to make them all a reality.

However, despite all that, I still have even more dreams and goals that I want to accomplish in other parts of my life, which then lead to even bigger dreams and goals. The reason why I have that is that I've taken the time to imagine the type of man that I truly want to be and imagine the possibilities of what might unfold when I do.

How about you? As a child, what did you often say that you wanted to be when people asked you, "What do you want to be when you grow up?"

Does it match up to how you feel now?

If it doesn't, don't worry.

Life has a way of taking you in many different and unexpected directions and in the end, people almost always feel happy that they got to walk that path and learn from it.

The secret is to have an open mind and be willing to walk a new path that will unlock your true potential and connect you with the type of happiness and fulfillment that you are seeking deep down.

If your current desires about life don't match up to the job or profession that you once thought matched you perfectly, then don't feel down on yourself. It is completely normal and to be happy, you need to open yourself up to the possibilities that are now right in front of you.

[image: How do you know what you should be doing with your life?]

For example: If a guy wanted to be a doctor, but during his university course, he found that he no longer enjoys it and keeps wishing that he could run an organic farm or open up a ski-retreat on his favorite mountain, he needs to be ready to open his mind those alternatives.

If he gives up on his initial idea of being a doctor, it doesn't mean that he is a failure. There isn't one correct way that a person should live their life and doing a job that you don't love just to please others, isn't going to bring you a lifetime of happiness.

If you want to be happy with what you choose to do with your life, you've got to be brave enough to follow your true dreams or embrace the role that life throws at you one day.

The answer to the question of "What should I do with my life?" is a lot deeper and more important than simply choosing a profession to work in.

What really matters is this:

- If you take on the role that you are planning to embrace, will it force you to become a bigger and better man, or will it allow you to hide away from reaching your true potential as a man?
- Are you intending on rising through the levels of the profession or path you intend to take, or are you just hoping to stay out of the way and be that guy in the background who people don't really notice?
- If you follow the path that you're intending to take, will you be proud and happy with your achievement in 20 years time, or will you feel like you've wasted your life doing something that was too easy for you?

What a lot of guys don't realize is that their life purpose and how they approach their life will have a direct impact on their personal happiness and the quality of relationship that they have with a woman.

When you are rising through the levels of your chosen path and reaching for your true potential as a man, you get to feel proud, happy and excited at each positive milestone you reach.

It's a constant journey of rising success and achievement and it fuels your mojo for life and gives you that pep in your step that keeps you going when the path becomes challenging.

All of that adds up to you feeling better about yourself as a man and, just as importantly, your woman being able to look up to you and respect you.

If a modern woman finds herself in a relationship with a man whom she can't look up to and respect, she will eventually begin to lose touch with her feelings of attraction for him.

When that happens, the sex will usually dry up and she will become less affectionate towards him, which will often lead to him becoming insecure, clingy and needy, which will turn her off even more.

I've heard of this happening time and time again when I've helped phone coaching clients who are in the process of getting a girlfriend, fiancée or wife back. Unlike women from past generations, today's women are often unwilling to put up with a man who is unable to be the type of man she wants to be with in a relationship.

The Difficult Dream

When you were a child and you thought about what you wanted to be when you grew up, it's possible that you chose a career that wasn't possible to achieve once you became an adult.

For instance: If you are short, then it's unlikely that you would ever be able to become a professional basketball player.

If you wanted to become an astronaut, the chances of getting chosen are going to be very limited because there are very few opportunities today for manned space travel, so despite being intelligent enough, you might not be able to become a fully fledged astronaut anytime soon.

There are many other examples of difficult dreams, but how you accepted it as an adult will be a strong indicator of the type of man you are today.

There's an old motivational quote that goes like this, "When life gives you lemons, make lemonade," meaning that even if you end up with something in your life that you don't desire or didn't ask for, look at it as an opportunity to turn it into something great in another way.

[image: What should I do with my life now?]

Using the example of wanting to be a pro basketball player, but lacking the height to be competitive enough, a successful man would think, "Okay, what else can I do in the basketball industry? How else can I use my love for the game to make an impact and become a better man in the process?"

For instance, he might train to be a coach, get involved in sports medicine, go into sporting goods sales, study sports management or otherwise get involved in a profession that would keep him around the game of basketball.

Alternatively, realizing that since his early dream was unrealistic, he might also decide to mentally regroup and go after another profession that he also has a strong interest in.

Not getting involved in basketball doesn't mean that he is a failure or giving up on his dreams. Instead, he is simply being a wise, open-minded man and realizing that there is much more to life than just basketball.

He could still attend games, be a fan and maybe marry a taller woman in the hope of having tall sons, which he then might encourage to play ball. However, regardless of which path he takes, what is most important is that he is on the path to becoming a bigger and better man himself.

If you're not on a path at the moment that is pushing you to become a bigger and better man than you are, then how can you expect to feel happy, passionate and proud of who you are?

Imagine the guy who wanted to play basketball (but couldn't because he was too short), decided instead to moan and complain about how life isn't fair. At every opportunity, he would tell friends, family or coworkers how bummed he is about not being able to become a basketball player and as a result, he simply doesn't know what else he should do with his life.

He might say that playing pro basketball is the only thing that he's interested in, but he's simply being closed-minded. If he opened his mind to the world around him, he would quickly realize that there are millions of different things that he could be doing with his life that would lead him to become the type of man that he and others are proud of.

If he remains closed-minded to the world around him, he is setting himself up for a life of depression and will disappoint the woman or women who end up being in his life. This type of man may get a good job, but it usually won't be a job that brings him pleasure and makes him feel proud and happy.

Instead, he works only for his paycheck. He complains about what his life might have been like if he could play ball, rather than going after what still could be an amazing life for him.

He lingers in a muted, unsatisfied state of existence and looks on at the world around him as being cruel, rather than being a wise man who has the courage to turn lemons into delicious lemonade.

Being a Man of Purpose Helps to Maintain a Woman's Respect and Attraction For You

Today's women are often no longer the type to just sit around waiting for a man, any man, to come and marry her so she can be a housewife.

In many cases, a woman will be well educated, strong-minded and successful in her career or business or at least have the capacity to one day be successful when she grows up.

As a result, a modern woman usually doesn't feel a desperate need for a man to provide her with food, shelter and protection like women of previous generations did. She can go to the supermarket or grocery store and buy things on her own and she can rent a house or get a mortgage on her own when she's earning enough to do so.

Of course, that doesn't mean that she doesn't want a man in her life at all. Women still want men, but they just aren't as dependent on men as they used to be.

As a result, she doesn't have to settle for a guy who lacks purpose or who doesn't follow through on his biggest ambitions and dreams because he is afraid of failure or doesn't feel as though he deserves success.

In the past, a woman had to put up with a man like that if she made the mistake of marrying him, because it was shameful to divorce. However, in today's world, a woman doesn't have to stay with a man who she no longer respects or feels attracted to.

This is why it's now more important than ever for men to become a man of purpose. In other words, follow through on your biggest dreams, goals and ambitions and be that "man on a mission" who will stop at nothing to achieve whatever it is that you are aiming to achieve.

Women are naturally attracted to and respectful towards men who are focused on what they want out of life and are willing to keep going after it even when they face obstacles and challenges along the way.

Some unattractive women are willing to accept whatever they can get in a guy, but the majority of attractive or at least fairly attractive women know that they can do better and don't have to settle for a lazy or fearful guy who doesn't have the courage to make his dreams come true.

As empowered as modern women are, they still want a man that they can respect and feel protected by. She wants to be able to look up to her man and feel proud of him, rather than look down on him and feel embarrassed that her man lacks ambition, not only in his job, but in almost every aspect of his life.

A woman wants a man who seeks the things that are important to him and goes after them with an inner strength and determination and a "never quit" type of attitude. When a woman is with a man like that, it's very easy for her to maintain her feelings of respect and attraction for him.

She will know that he is a rare find and isn't like most other men who settle for mediocrity or accept second best because they are afraid to stand up and go after what they really want.

You Don't Have to Already Be Successful to Be Attractive to Women

Some guys make the mistake of thinking that they have to be super successful in business and be rich and powerful in order to get the girl.

A guy will assume that he has to have a professional career like a doctor, lawyer or entrepreneur in order to attract a great woman. Yet, that's not true at all.

Here is the real reason why guys get rejected by women!

What matters most to a woman is that you have the potential to do well one day. She wants to see that you are not afraid to follow through on your biggest goals and dreams and if she meets you when you're just starting out, she will feel proud to stick by you as you overcome the obstacles on your way to success.

So when you ask yourself, "What should I do with my life?" don't focus on trying to become achieve something that you hope will impress a woman. Most women are more impressed by a guy who simply has a sense of purpose and has the courage and follow through to never give up until he achieves it.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Becoming a Man: 4 Steps That Every Guy Should Take

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Becoming a man is either going to be a very exciting and rewarding process for a guy to go through, or it's going to be a nightmare full of rejection, heartache and confusion.

If you are still in the process of becoming a man, here are 4 things that you must master before you will feel like you've made it to manhood:

1. Get clear on your true identity as a man.

Some guys never become a real man because they never get clear on their true identity.

For example: A guy will present himself to the world as a nice, friendly guy and hope that people like him for it, his boss promotes him because of it and women want to have sex with him because of it.

Yet, who he really is deep down is a good guy who yearns to be more assertive and to be respected and looked up to by people.

Rather than becoming a real man by rising up to that level of being, he will continue to be a passive nice guy and hope that people take pity on him, feel sorry for him, etc.

Secretly, he will fall asleep at night feeling angry about how people don't respect him and women don't seem to like him. He will often imagine himself taking out revenge on people and finally getting the respect that he feels he deserves.

Yet, the world doesn't bow down to passive nice guys or hand success or sex to them for being nice. If you want to be respected for being the good guy that you are, you have to command that respect.

A big part of becoming a man is getting rid of the nice guy act that would have worked for you as a child. As a boy, you would have been treated well and given treats for being nice, but that doesn't work as an adult.

2. Have a huge purpose in life.

If a guy doesn't have a huge purpose in life and isn't really aiming for anything in particular, other than the basics (e.g. get a woman, get a house, settle down and then die), he will naturally be susceptible to depression.

To be what people refer to as a real man, you've got to have a huge purpose in life that you are aiming for and will stop at nothing to achieve. Another way of saying purpose is to refer to it as having big dreams and ambitions that stretch out as far as you can imagine.

3. Have your choice with women, rather than taking whatever you can get.

Most guys don't grow up with a male role model who can teach them how to attract women, so a lot of guys grow up feeling desperate to get pretty much any girl that they can find.

Rather than having his choice of women and having the power to choose a truly compatible woman for him, a guy will accept whatever he can get with women and then try to make it work.

Based on this, it's no surprise that the divorce rate is so high these days. In the past, a woman had to stay with a man for life, even if she was unhappy or if they were incompatible.

Yet, in today's world, a woman can break up with a guy or divorce a man whenever she pleases. So, rather than being a beggar with women and working your ass off to hopefully get one girl to like you, be a man about it and learn how to attract women so you can have your choice of women.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to have your choice with women...

4. Be the type of man that your woman and other people can look up to and respect.

If a guy is looked down on, picked on or disrespected by women and people in general, then he's not what is referred to as a real man.

To be what people refer to as a real man, you've got to be the sort of man who others can look up to and respect. It doesn't matter if you're 18 or 58; the same rule applies. It also doesn't matter if you're aiming to pick up women or keep a relationship with a woman together for life; the same rule applies.

To be what people refer to as a real man, you've got to be the sort of man that others can look up to and rely on to "be the man" no matter how challenging life gets.

A Lack of Male Role Models

In today's world, many guys grow up without the perfect male role model to show them how to be a successful modern man. With no one else to turn to, guys often look to TV shows, movies and even the lyrics of songs for the answers.

Yet, what many of these guys don't realize is that the scenes played out in TV sitcoms and movies are designed to entertain an audience, not educate them. Without this awareness, many modern men copy the often foolish behavior of men on TV and in the movies.

A classic example is where the nervous, shy, "loveable loser" guy in a TV show or movie will stumble and make all sorts of mistakes around a woman. He will be madly in love with her, but she will initially reject him. Eventually, he'll "save the day" or do something amazing to impress her and then she'll give him a chance.

This is entertaining for some people to watch, but it's not how things play out in the real world. In the real world, women are attracted to the emotional strength in men, not the weakness.

So, when a woman meets a shy, nervous guy who is hoping to get a chance with her, she doesn't think, "Hmmm...he could probably save the day or save the world like one of those loveable losers from the movies."

Instead, she simply doesn't feel any attraction for him and rejects him.

A Poetic Look at Becoming a Man

"If" is the title of a famous poem by Rudyard Kipling (1865-1936) about becoming and being a man. You may have studied it at school, but if you're not familiar with it, here's the opening line...

"If you can keep your head when all about you are losing theirs and blaming it on you."

Kipling then expands with another confusing 30 or so lines of thought provoking "ifs" to ponder over before getting to the last line...

"Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it, and which is more you'll be a Man, my son!"

It's a pretty big lists of "ifs" and fairly confusing to read. Really, it's enough to put most guys off the idea of being a man because it all sounds too hard.

Here's the full poem to show you what I mean...

[image: Kipling - If poem]

Confused by that wording? Me too.

The above poem is a sum total of Kipling's thoughts on becoming a man and what it takes to be able to call yourself a real man. I'm sure he meant well, but in my opinion, that is a bit too intense for today's world.

These days, people have realized that we don't need to be so serious and nit-picky about everything because nobody is perfect.

Kipling seems to make it out as though unless you do all of those things, you will be a failure as a man.

I feel sorry for the guy and would love to back in time and tell him, "Hey Rudyard everything will be okay mate. Just be a good man, be emotionally strong and go after your goals and dreams. No-one really cares if you make some mistakes along the way, so don't waste anymore time trying to think about how to be perfect. Life doesn't have to be that complicated mate. Smile and get on with living your life, rather than feeling like you're inadequate unless you do all of those things."

When people are on their death bed (i.e. they are just about to die), they are often quoted as saying they wished that they hadn't worried so much about what people thought of them. Right at the moment when their life in this world is about to come to an end, they finally realize that it really doesn't matter.

As long as you are a good person, following through on your goals and being a man of integrity, you've got nothing to worry about. Push forward towards your goals and go after what you want in life, rather than worrying what others might think.

Be the man that you want to be, based on your current understanding of the world, but just know that your perspective will most-likely change as you get older...

Getting Wiser With Age

Personally speaking, I'm just about to turn 38 years old and when I was 22, I thought I had the whole damn world figured out.

I looked at how other people lived their lives and from my 22 year old perspective, I thought that some of them were so naïve and blind. Yet, as I gained more experience as a man, I eventually realized why people think, behave and act in certain ways.

Nowadays, I love and accept people for who they are and understand that, although they might not think exactly the same way as I do, they are going through their own journey of life in their own way...and that is okay.

Many years ago, I realized that a big part of becoming a man is learning to love and accept yourself, as well as love and accept others. In this life, You can't make everyone think like you do or obey your commands, so don't stress out about that. We're all different and that's okay.

As long as you are actively rising through the levels of your true potential as a man, you will be feeling increasingly happy and fulfilled and you will also garner the respect and admiration of those around you.

You will also be the sort of man that women want to align themselves with because you have the courage to rise up in a world where so many other men cower and hide from their true potential.

Becoming a man is an exciting, rewarding and fulfilling lifelong process of learning and development. Only the guys who are willing to keep on learning and developing will have what it takes to realise their full potential as a man.

If a guy gets stuck at a certain level of life and then gives up on becoming the man that he knows he could be, it won't be something that he can escape. The sadness of never reaching his true potential as a man will always be there in the back of his mind.

He will know that he is hiding from his true potential, but if he never works out how to get past that and reach the next level of life, he will always feel depressed, frustrated and confused about life and what he should be doing to feel happy and fulfilled.

Let's face it, life can be very challenging at times, but it's the way a guy chooses to deal with those challenges that eventually separates the men from the boys.

As Ben from The Modern Man has often said when we've discussed this topic, "Apart from experiencing bad luck, where people are at in their life is usually a sum total of all the choices they've made to get to that point. Successful people consistently make good choices and keep pushing forward if some of their choices don't work out."

Being a successful man is not about being a man who always wins at everything and it's not about always being right about everything either.

Instead, it's about being a man who always gives it his best shot and knows that everything doesn't always go to plan. Sometimes, plans work out perfectly, but if he tries and makes a mistake or fails, he sees it as a lesson and then learns, improves and tries again until he gets it right.

As the legendary basketball coach John Wooden once said, "If you're not making mistakes, then you're not doing anything. I'm positive that a doer makes mistakes."

Becoming a Man Who Naturally Attracts Women

Being successful with women is one of the most important goals that guys have in life. Without women, life is pretty shit, to put it bluntly.

When you are loved, wanted and respected by women, life feels awesome.

So, if you have yet to reach that point in your life where you naturally attract women, it might be because you're making one or more of the following mistakes...

As you will discover from the video above, it is possible for you (yes you) to naturally attract the women you meet and then deepen a woman's respect, love and attraction for you in a relationship.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Things Women Love to Hear: 2 Examples

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are some examples of things that women love to hear, as long as you have first made her feel attracted to you.

If you try to skip the step of making a woman feel attracted to you first and just launch into nice compliments and sweet or romantic lines, most women will either feel weird around you or just see you as a “friend” type of guy.

So, as long as you’ve made her feel attracted to you first, here are some of the things that women love to hear.

When You First Meet Her

“You’re sexy, I like you”

A lot of guys don’t realize that most women are insecure about their looks. An international survey conducted by Dove cosmetics found that 96% of women don’t consider themselves to be beautiful.

Another survey found that 85% of women wish that their hips were narrower and another survey found that 80% of women have things about their body or face that they desperately want to change.

[image: Women insecure about their looks]

So, regardless of how confident you think a woman is, she is most-likely insecure. If she is one of the insecure women and you don’t give her a compliment about her looks, guess what happens?

She plays hard to get.

To make sure that you really like her before she shows any real interest in you, she will play hard to get to see how much you try to impress her and show her that you like her.

Yet, when she notices that you’re trying hard to impress her, you actually become the opposite of what she wants in a guy. In other words, you become the opposite of the challenge that attractive women yearn to meet...

So, to avoid the mind games, just tell her that she’s sexy and that you like her. However, make sure that you’ve been automatically triggering her feelings of attraction for you by displaying the type of personality traits, behaviors or body language that naturally attracts women.

Watch this video to understand how a woman’s attraction works and how you can use it to get what you want with women...

As you will discover from the video above, you can make a woman feel attracted to you in many different ways.

When a woman is feeling very attracted to you, she’s going to love pretty much everything that you say and if she doesn’t love it, she’s going to overlook it because she doesn’t want to ruin her opportunity to be with you.

On a First Date

When you see her arrive for the date, you can give her another compliment about her looks and sex appeal by saying, “Wow, look at you...how am I going to concentrate on the food tonight? I don’t know if I’m going to be able to keep my eyes off of you. You look stunning.”

This is important to a woman because she knows that men are mostly attracted to a woman’s physical appearance, so she wants to know that she looks sexy and attractive to you.

Of course, this only works if you’re being confident and are making her feel a lot of attraction for you.

If you are a nervous type of guy and you haven’t made her feel a lot of attraction for you yet, she’s not really going to feel that excited about her strong attraction for her because she’s not feeling much for you.

Where Guys Go Wrong

There are many classic mistakes that guys make when talking to women they like, which then lead to the woman feeling turned off, playing hard to get or simply rejecting him.

Watch this video to understand where guys go wrong and what you should do instead if you want to be successful...

As you will discover from the video above, you will experience much easier and more consistent success with women if you can just relax, be real and be confident when talking to women.

Movie Madness

TV sitcoms and romantic comedy moves have got a lot to answer for when it comes to the confusion that guys experience about the things women love to hear.

In the movies, a beautiful woman will appear to swoon over a guy who approaches her to whisper sweet nothings in her ear and she will even respond positively to a guy who uses a cheesy pick-up line.

So, some confused guys will try to use that approach in the real world and will search around online for pick up lines and hope that he will find the secret words that women love to hear that will instantly get him laid.

Yet, that’s just not how it works because women are not simple, mindless creatures who fall for cheesy crap.

If you want to get laid, get a girlfriend or find yourself a woman who will become your wife, you have to focus on triggering a woman’s feelings of sexual attraction for you.

You can do this by displaying the type of personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. confidence, humor, flirting, charisma, masculinity in the way you think, feel and behave, etc).

It’s actually very easy to get women to feel attracted to you. In most cases, all you need to do is display a few of the attractive traits at the start of a conversation and women will be keenly interested in talking to you.

If you are then able to display more traits throughout the conversation, her attraction for you will go up and up until she is feeling intense attraction for you.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, women will love most of what you've got to say if you can get them feeling that way.

Everything starts with attraction and when you've established that, things then flow naturally from one step to the next (i.e. phone number or kiss, sex that night or date, relationship or lovers, etc).

A mistake that some guys make is thinking that saying sweet or romantic things to a woman is the best way to get her interested because it will show how much of a nice guy he is.

Yet, using the nice guy approach with women will only get a guy rejected if he first doesn't establish strong feelings of attraction first. Here's why...

The shy, awkward nice guy might get the girl on TV and in the movies, but real life is not like the movies.

Real women aren't so easily impressed by what a guy says because any guy can learn to say a line or two. Instead, women are interested in find out who a guy really is and they're going to put him to the test to make sure his confident attitude and body language matches up to his words.

With this in mind, the things women love to hear are the things that let them know you are a genuinely confident guy and you're not trying to hide your insecurities behind a fake confident front.

Women want to be able to see that no matter how much they challenge you during a conversation, you maintain confidence in yourself. If you can let them see that about you, they won't really have to worry so much about overanalyzing what you're saying, because they will be feeling more that enough attraction to your confidence.

Cheesy Lines Only Work if You're a Confident, Cool Guy

If a nervous guy approaches a woman with a cheesy line like, â€œWhere have you been all my life,â€ or some other â€œlineâ€ that he's memorized from a movie, he will not get the response that the male actors in movies get.

Instead, the woman is going to roll her eyes and think that he's just another loser who doesn't understand women and what they really want.

When the nervous guy approaches her, she will instantly determine that he is nervous by instantly analysing his body language, vibe and tone of voice.

All of his non-verbal communication will reveal to her that he's simply trying to get lucky with any woman by using rehearsed lines and hoping that 1 out of 100 women takes the bait.

He hopes that the woman won't notice his nervous non-verbal communication, but it's pretty obvious to women. Women are hard-wired with instincts that allow them to pick up on subtle non-verbal cues and find the real men amongst the fakers.

So, when she is approached by a nervous guy who using a canned line in the hope of getting lucky, she's not going to think, â€œWow! This guy has so much confidence. I respect that! I hope that I can get a chance with him because other women would clearly like him based on his confidence.â€

Instead, she will likely see him as a “creep,” a social loser or an outsider in that environment and will want to get away from him as quickly as possible.

Hereâs the thing...

Women are hoping to meet a guy who is confident, but doesn't feel a need to impress them. A guy who is genuinely confident will know that his normal self is already impressive enough because most guys are nervous around attractive women and try hard to “like” enough in the hope that the woman gives them a chance.

Women don't want to have to give a guy a chance (i.e. take pity on him, do him a favor). Instead, they want to meet a guy who has the ability to make them feel so much attraction that they want to get a chance with him.

Some guys approach women and have almost no idea what to say or do. So, for example: A guy might approach a woman and say something overtly to gauge her interest in him, before he's even created any attraction!

He might say, “Hey, nice shoesâ|wanna f?” or “Are you Google? Because I've just found what I'm searching for” or “Hi, you're beautiful...wanna dance with me?”

The only women who respond to lines like that before a guy establishes her feelings of attraction are drunk women, unattractive women or weirdo women.

If you want to attract and pick up sober, sexy and sane women, you need to use a more natural approach to seduction. You have to start out by displaying personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract the woman to you and then she will actually find your cheesy lines to be funny, cute, clever, etc.

However, if you start out with lines before establishing attraction, she will assume that you're yet another guy who doesn't understand the reality that women live in...

Women do love to flirt and joke around and they also love to have a guy whisper sweet nothings in their ear, but only if he has already established feelings of attraction.

Are You Trying Too Hard to Be Liked By Women?

There's a big difference between a woman liking you as a person and feel sexually attracted to you. A lot of guys make the mistake of trying hard to be “liked” by the women they meet (e.g. by acting like much more of a nice guy than he actually is or will be if they got into a relationship).

If a woman has had some experience with men in the past, she knows that guys who kiss her ass upfront and hope to be “liked” for being nice are often the type of guys who will become insecure, needy, jealous or controlling in a relationship.

Why? The guy will have had a very hard time trying to get a girl to “like” him enough to give him a chance before he met her. Then, when they are in a relationship and she naturally begins to pull back her interest at times to test his confidence, he will crumble under the pressure and become insecure, jealous, clingy or controlling.

So, while there is nothing wrong with being a nice guy or being likeable, just make sure that you're not trying to convince a woman to give you a chance because you're such a good guy.

If you want instant results with women, you just need to make her feel a lot of sexual attraction for you. When you do that, she will naturally like you as well because she will look at all or most of your other qualities in a more positive light, or she will overlook your flaws to ensure that she doesn't screw up her chance to be with you.

When a guy doesn't know what you just read in the paragraph above, he will often make the mistake of giving a woman endless compliments and saying whatever they think she wants to hear in the hope that it gets her to like him enough to give him a chance.

This is not what women want.

Being super nice in that way makes a guy come across as insincere at best and totally desperate at worst. Women know that a guy with the inner qualities that women are naturally turned on by will have his pick of women and as a result, he won't have to try hard to impress.

Some nice guys see other guys interacting with women and notice that the woman lusts after the guy even though he isn't trying hard to be nice to her or impress her.

The nice guy will then label that guy as being a "bad boy" or "jerk," but in many cases, the guy simply doesn't feel the need to impress women because they already want to be with him based on how much attraction he makes them feel.

The secret to success with women is not to treat them badly, but to trigger their feelings of attraction for you. When you are the guy who makes women feel intense attraction and you are also a good guy, then you are what women refer to as a "catch" or a "keeper."

It's actually very difficult for women to find a good guy who also has the ability to make her feel intense attraction because those guys are rare and are almost always taken.

So, when you meet a woman and she realizes that you are an attractive good guy (i.e. you are confident, charismatic, etc), you will notice that she tries really hard to impress you and hopefully get a chance with you.

If a woman can't get herself an attractive good guy, she will often settle for what most women see as second best, which is an attractive bad boy or jerk. Sometimes, a woman will give an nervous nice guy a chance, but he will almost certainly be dumped or cheated on when the relationship loses its spark.

Being the Guy That Women Love

Words alone are not enough to attraction and maintain the attention of a woman.

If you want women to love you, want you and never leave you, the most important skill that you need to work on is your ability to attract women with your personality, behavior, attitude and conversation style.

However, if you just focus on the words, you will struggle to properly attract quality women who need to feel attracted to who you are, not just what you say.

Women want to be able to see that you are a confident, genuine guy and are not just putting on act to hopefully impress them.

They want to see that what you're saying is coming from an authentic place because you have the confidence to be your natural, charismatic self rather than hide behind an act or false social persona.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Flirt With a Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to flirt with a woman is to believe that it's okay to do so.

You've got to have confidence in the way that you're flirting with her, otherwise it will come off as awkward, weird or forced. Flirting is sexy to a woman when the guy believes in himself and isn't afraid to show his attraction for her in a discreet way.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, women actually prefer guys who can flirt because it's a much more discreet, classy and exciting way of showing your interest in each other.

Where Guys Go Wrong

The main point that guys screw up with women is not believing in themselves.

For example: A guy might approach a woman in an apologetic way, "I don't suppose you'd be interested in a guy like me, but..." and expect her to be impressed by how unassuming he is. Yet, women are attracted to confidence not shyness or self-doubt.

If you want to know how to flirt with a woman, you need to get serious about being a genuinely confident man. Anything less than that and your attempts to flirt will never work as well.

Here are some mistakes to avoid...

1. Putting on an act

Have you ever noticed how easy it is for actors in movies to charm women with simple lines?

That's because it's a movie.

The actors are reading scripted lines and the women are simply responding in the way that it says they should in their script.

James Bond and other smooth characters may be able to charm women with a simple line and a gentlemanly approach, but don't think that women will be impressed by that corny stuff in real life.

Pretending to be someone you're not doesn't go down well with women and will simply cause them to raise their guard and feel awkward around you. If your body language, vibe, behavior and actions don't match up to your words in a natural way, a woman usually won't respond positively to any form of flirting because she's going to feel like you're acting.

When a woman meets an insecure guy hiding behind a fake front, she's not going to think, "Wow, what a sweet guy. He's trying to hide his shyness and insecurity from me by putting on an act...how cute!" Instead, she's usually going to think, "I've got to get away from this guy."

Likewise, if a woman is interacting with a shy, anxious guy who is spitting George-Clooney-type lines in the hopes that it impresses her, she's not going to think, "Wow! This guy is hot. He's just as suave as those guys in the movies!"

Instead, she's probably going to think, "This is weird. What's wrong here? Why can't this guy just be himself? Why is he putting on this act around me? Does he think that he needs to impress me a lot because he doesn't think he is good enough? Fine, if he thinks that he isn't good enough, then I'm going to believe him that he's not good enough.

2. Using flirting at the wrong time

Flirting works best if you are simultaneously making the woman feel attracted to you based on your confidence, vibe and body language. If you try to flirt with a woman who isn't attracted to you, she will usually find it weird, out of place and will reject you or show that she isn't feeling the same way.

For example: If a nervous, self-doubting guy is being friendly and nice to a woman during a conversation and he then suddenly throws in flirtatious line or sexual innuendo, it's usually not going to go down well. The woman is going to be feeling turned off by the fact that he is nervous and self-doubting around her and will feel as though he's just another typical nice guy who is hoping that she will give him a chance for being nice to her.

Watch this video to understand why being too nice to a woman will often result in a guy getting rejected...

As explained in the video above, there is nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but you also have to make sure that you are triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you. Attraction has to be established first and then everything else flows along smoothly after that.

3. Giving too many friendly compliments

One of the biggest mistakes that guys make when trying to flirt with women, is to keep everything nice and safe.

For example: He might give her compliments like, That's a nice dress. Where did you get that? or You have great fashion sense or I like your hair or You have beautiful eyes.

There's nothing wrong with those compliments, but they aren't the type of compliments that get straight to the point and make a woman feel sexually turned on by you.

If a woman is already turned on by you, then it's fine to use compliments like that, but if she isn't feeling much, she's not going to care about your opinion of her fashion sense because you are just another guy who likes her, but who she doesn't feel much attraction for.

As long as you've made a woman feel attracted to you first, the best compliment to give her is to look her in the eyes, then look her up and down and then look her back in the eyes and say, You're sexy or I like you.

That gets straight to the point and there's no confusion then about whether or not you find her sexy, so she doesn't have to play hard to get to check and see how much you like her.

You've put it out there and you're not afraid to say it, which is actually attractive to her because you've got balls.

Contrast that with a guy who gives a woman lots of 'nice' compliments and pretty much goes along with whatever she says. If she likes something, he does too and if she hates something and he secretly likes it, he says that he hates it too.

If a guy is overly-attentive and seems a bit too agreeable, he runs the risk of coming across as insincere and a bit of a creep. Women feel weird around guys like that.

Most women are attracted to confident guys who know who they are and what they stand for in life, so theyâ€”re not turned on by guys who constantly change their opinion to fit in with others.Â If you want to know how to flirt with a woman, you need to know how to be a genuinely confident guy who is secure in who he is, what heâ€”s about and what heâ€”s got to offer.

Youâ€”ve got to believe in yourself. Itâ€”s the most important thing you can offer to women. They need to see that youâ€”re strong and that you have the type of confidence in yourself that will allow you to push forward in life and survive, thrive and prosper even if life gets challenging.

Being the Type of Guy That Women Want to Flirt With

Women are only interested in flirting with guys who make them feel attracted and turned on. Some women are open to a bit of friendly flirting with nice guys who don't make them feel attracted, but that doesn't mean she is interested in anything romantic or sexual.

If you want a woman to desire you in a sexual way, you have to focus on triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you during interactions. Here's how it works...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Women Don't Like Nice Guys. Is It True?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

No, it's not true.

It's just that being nice isn't what triggers a woman's primal feelings of sexual attraction for a guy. Pretty much any guy can be nice if he wants to, but what triggers a woman's feelings of sexual attraction is a guy who is confident and can be confident.

Think about it...

We live in a challenging world and you often have to have the balls to stand up for yourself or the courage to push on when life gets tough. Being nice doesn't suggest to a woman that you have that in you at all.

Attraction is directly linked to survival and what we feel attracted to in each other is essentially our survival traits.

For example: We men feel instantly attracted to women who have the outer traits of a (potentially) good survivor (i.e. healthy, youthful looking, beauty that will be passed onto offspring, especially the girls).

On the other hand, women feel most attracted to a guy who has inner traits that mark him out as being a (potentially) good survivor (i.e. confident, emotionally mature, masculine in his thinking and behavior, charismatic, charming, able to get along well with others).

Women can feel attracted to a man's looks, but we men feel much more attraction to looks than women do. For women, the attraction that you make them feel by displaying useful inner qualities is much more important.

Is Being a Bad Boy the Answer?

[image: Nice guys getting the girl]

No.

Women do like nice guys, but if he isn't displaying attractive inner qualities, then the woman just isn't going to feel it.

For example: If a nice guy is nervous, self-doubting and insecure, then a woman will feel turned off by his inner qualities and reject him.

[image: Nice guy getting the girl]

However, if a nice guy is confident, charismatic and has high self-esteem, a woman will feel attracted to his inner qualities and appreciate the fact that he is also nice.

Watch this video to understand why being too nice to a woman will often result in a guy being rejected...

As you will see from the video above, being nice to a woman isn't the problem.

Do You Know What Women Want?

[image: Nice guys misses out again]

Some guys are lucky to grow up with a male role model who teaches him what women really want and how to attract them.

Yet, for most guys (including me), the education they receive about women is either wrong or toned down for political correctness.

For example: I was always told that to get a woman to like me, I had to be nice, treat her like a princess, be a gentleman, be patient and show a lot of interest in whatever she likes.

No one ever told me that women only appreciate that type of gentlemanly behavior if you start by making them feel sexually attracted to you first. I was essentially told that sexual attraction happened AFTER a woman liked you, but in reality, it has to come FIRST.

Women know this, but the majority of guys don't. Most guys approach with women the strategy of trying to be liked as a guy, rather than making the woman feel sexually attracted and turned on.

That's just one of the things that really annoy women about the majority of single men out there, as I explain in this video...

The truth is, there is a huge opportunity for you to begin enjoying your choice of women if you can stop doing what pretty much every other guy (who is getting rejected) is doing.

If you can just understand the reality that women live in (i.e. pretty much every guy is willing to bang them at least once, just based on her appearance), you will realize that if you just take a few moments or minutes to build up a woman's attraction for you first, you will have a ridiculously high success rate at getting laid and getting a girlfriend.

What you will see is that women almost thank you by way of their body language, vibe, behavior, conversation style and attitude for giving them the attraction experience that they have been deprived of by 99% of other guys who meet them.

Awkward Nice Guys in the Movies

If you've been watching romantic comedy movies, TV sitcoms or even just watching the commercials on TV lately, you will have seen that the awkward nice guy usually gets the girl in the end if he saves the day, saves the world or saves the damsel in distress.

According to the story-lines in most chick flick movies, women are looking for a sweet, romantic nice guy who lavishes them with attention and does lots of cute and caring things for them, including buying them flowers and little fluffy tokens of affection at every opportunity.

In the movies, women want the nice guy to run errands for them, fight off bad boys and bring down evil corporations. When he does all that, he gets laid and gets the girl in the end and the credits roll.

Quite often, the women in romantic comedy movies eventually come to realize that the shy, awkward, socially inept guy that they've been friends with for years is actually the love of their life.

How could she have missed that? OMG.

He's the guy who was willing to hang around and pick up the pieces after a bad boy broke her heart and finally, after years of being overlooked, she falls into his arms and they live happily ever after.

Ah hah! The secret to success with women is to show them how nice you are compared to other guys! YES! YES! YES!

No.

It's a frikken movie.

In reality, women hate it when nice guys (who aren't making her feel any attraction) try to convince her to like him by comparing themselves to the bad guys who just want to use her for sex.

A nice guy like that will be her shoulder to cry on and will always be there for her, hoping that she eventually realizes that she shouldn't be hooking up with bad boys and should hook up with him instead.

Here's the thing though...

She doesn't hook up with bad boys because she wants a boyfriend or lover who is a bad person. Instead, the bad boys are usually just the only guy around who can make her feel enough attraction to justify having sex or a relationship.

Even though a bad boy is often a bad person, he will also often be very confident, masculine, charismatic and charming to the woman. She will also see that most other guys respect him and treat him well.

If you think about the fact that attraction is directly linked to survival, you will see that those traits will potentially (not definitely) make it easier for him to thrive, survive and prosper compared to a shy, awkward nice guy.

Of course, the answer is not to become a bad boy.

No.

What women really want is a good guy who has awesome survival traits. This is what we here at The Modern Man call a good guy alpha male.

Essentially, you remain being the good guy that you are, but you also add in balls (i.e. confidence, assertiveness, masculine vibe, drive, courage, etc).

Having traits like that not only makes women feel attracted to you, but it also garners you the respect of men and often leads to you being promoted at work or doing much better than your competitors in the business world.

There is nothing wrong with being a good guy who also stands up for himself and goes after what he wants in life. It's not about getting into fights or pushing people around (at all), but it is about being strong enough to keep pushing forward towards the achievement of your goals in life.

When a woman meets a guy who is basically being an ass-kissing nice guy around her and others, it doesn't make her think, "WOW! This guy would survive, thrive and prosper if life got challenging."

Maybe he would be able to survive, thrive and prosper if life got challenging, but he's certainly not showing that to her.

Think about it the other way around...

Women wear make up to make themselves look healthier, younger looking and more beautiful to attract you. You can't help feeling more attracted to women who have that on display compared to women who don't.

If you see a woman who doesn't look healthy, looks a bit old for her age and can't be bothered putting on any make up or doing anything to look sexy and appealing, you're probably not going to think, "WOW! She'd look hot if I took her to the hospital, got her some treatment, bought her sexier clothes and got her to wear make up."

Instead, you're just not going to feel much or any attraction for her. Then, if another woman walks by who is displaying signs of health, youthfulness and beauty, your attraction will automatically be switched on.

So, the next time you watch a movie, TV sitcom, music video or TV commercial and see hot women lusting after an awkward nice guy, don't fall for it.

Don't think that it will ever be possible to get women to feel a deep, primal feeling of sexual attraction to niceness.

It's just not going to happen, regardless of how many movies or TV shows those awkward, nice guy screenwriters make because they are still pissed off about being rejected by women for being nice.

If you want to be successful with women, you do not have to become a bad boy, jerk or asshole who treats women badly. Instead, you simply need to improve your ability to trigger a woman's feelings of attraction for you.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

14 Traits of an Alpha Male

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Alpha males are essentially guys who believe in themselves and keep pushing forward towards what they want, regardless of what challenges are thrown at them.

Typically, an alpha male will:

1. Believe in his attractiveness to women, even if he doesn't look like a model because he knows that confidence and masculinity are the biggest turn-ons for women.
2. Be composed under pressure because he knows that he can get through anything.
3. Be driven to succeed at whatever he wants to achieve. If he fails the first time, he will see it as a lesson, learn what he needs to learn and then do better next time.
4. Lead the way for himself and others even when he isn't sure that he will do a 100% perfect job the entire time. He knows that no-one is perfect, but someone has to lead.
5. Expect respect from people rather than hoping to be liked.
6. Not feel embarrassed if he makes a mistake because he knows that everyone needs to learn and improve, especially if they are growing and taking on more challenging aspects of life.
7. Have a confident, self-assured body language no matter what environment he is in.
8. Have a masculine vibe rather than a neutral or feminine vibe.
9. Be persistent in following through to get what he wants. He will be the last man standing when others have thrown their hands up in the air and said it's all too difficult.
10. Be a "man's man," which essentially means that he's the sort of guy that pretty much all other men respect and look up to, but he is still able to hang out with everyone on an equal level.
11. Not be afraid to sometimes go against the status quo because he knows that life is always changing. What people said was a "must" for culture 150 years ago is now laughed at by most of modern society.
12. Create his own luck rather than sitting around and hoping that life deals him some good fortune one day. He stands up and demands great things and he usually gets them (including hot women).
13. Feel good enough for a beautiful woman even though she doesn't yet know how much of an alpha male he is. He's not in a rush to quickly show her that he's good enough because he knows that he is.
14. Always be comfortable to express his true personality and will therefore come across as more charismatic, authentic and likeable.

Breaking Down the Myths

[image: Movie star muscle]

From left: Dwayne Johnson, Hulk Hogan, Sylvester Stallone and Arnold Schwarzenegger.

There are a lot of myths surrounding what it means to be an alpha male, many of which put a guy off the idea of becoming more of an alpha male.

The false stereotypes shown by movie characters, especially 80s icons such as Sly Stallone's "Rambo" and the various action heroes played by Arnie Schwarzenegger, have led many guys to believe that being an alpha male means being a big, loud bad ass.

Sure, those guys would be considered “alpha” because they are tough and courageous, but a guy doesn’t have to beat people up, kill people or save the world to be considered an alpha male. It’s a lot simpler than that.

So, let’s have a look at some of the myths and then talk about the truths..

Myth 1: Alpha Males Are the Tough Guys or Thugs

If you believe what you see on TV and in the movies, then an alpha male is the biggest thug, the guy with the biggest muscles or the guy who can beat up all other guys.

Truth: Alpha Males Can Also Be Good Guys

Yes, bad boy alpha males exist, but so do good guy alpha males.

Good guy alpha males are those who help others along the way to their success, want other people to be happy to and come from a place of love and compassion.

Bad boy alpha males (e.g. thugs, tough guys, etc) often don’t care about how other people feel. As long as they get what they want, life is fine according to them.

Being an alpha male does not mean that you have to be a selfish asshole who doesn’t give a crap about people or the world around you. Think about some of the men who’ve changed the world over the last century by following through on their passions and not giving up and you will realize that many of them are good guys.

Myth 2: Alpha Males are Flashy Guys

In the same way that being the baddest guy in the room doesn’t necessarily make you the most alpha, the same can be said of being the loudest or flashiest guy in the room.

Sure, the guy who draws attention to himself by flashing his material possessions in some way is often seen as the “top dog” and the guy who gets the girl in the movies, but it doesn’t necessarily work that way in real life.

Some women are attracted to guys who have a lot of money, material possessions and bling, but that doesn’t make the guy an alpha male. It simply makes him a guy with a lot of material wealth.

Most women (not all) are more attracted to a guy’s inner qualities (i.e. he is confident, driven, masculine, charismatic, etc) than his outer qualities (i.e. looks, material possessions). Material wealth can definitely get a guy more attention from women and help him hook up with gold digger type women, but it doesn’t guarantee his success with women.

Think about the divorce rate and how easy it is for women to take 50% of a guy’s money and you will realize why some women are happy to be married to a guy for 5 years if they will eventually be able to walk away with a big pay check.

If you want a woman to feel attracted to who you are, you’ve got to focus on attracting her with your inner qualities, rather than trying to get her to “give you a chance” because you have some attractive outer qualities.

A woman’s attraction for a man’s outer qualities will rapidly fade away over time if he is unable to deepen her attraction based on his inner qualities.

Movies, music videos and certain TV ads will try to make you believe that getting ahead in life or getting the girl is all about how you dress, how you style your hair, what type of car you drive and how much money you have.

Yet, none of that has stuff has anything to do with who a man is on the inside, so it has nothing to do with being an alpha male.

Being alpha is all about who you are on the inside. If you're an alpha male, that might mean that you end up earning good money and being able to afford nice things, but your inner alpha is still the most attractive quality to a woman.

Think about how women buy the latest fashions and shoes and get bored of them in a second and then compare that to how men buy shoes and fashion.

A typical man will be happy with a few pairs of necessary shoes and clothes that he loves and wears all the time, whereas a woman gets really bored very quickly and wants to change the flashy stuff around all the time.

The same applies to a woman's attraction for a man's flashiness. She might like the fact that he has money, has a nice car and wears nice clothes, but if he lacks the ability to be alpha from within, she's going to quickly lose interest in his flashy exterior.

Truth: Alpha Males Don't Have to Be Flashy

Real alpha males don't have to put on a big, flashy show to attract women. They are attractive "as is" and if he also wants to be flashy, he does that because he likes it, not because he's hoping to be liked.

Myth 3: Alpha Males Treat Women Badly

This is the most common misconception that guys have.

Pretty much every guy who I've ever come across who has rejected the notion of being an alpha male, is going through life with the assumption that alpha males are bad boys who treat women badly.

This is especially true for guys who consider themselves to be a "nice guy" and then see women hooking up with guys that he considers to be a "bad boy."

Yet, what a lot of nice guys don't realize is that nice guys don't get rejected for being nice; they get rejected for failing to create enough attraction inside of a woman...

As you will discover from the video above, there is nothing wrong with being nice to a woman and a guy doesn't have to treat women badly or be a bad boy alpha male to attract women.

Instead, he simply needs to display some of the inner alpha male traits that naturally attract women (e.g. confidence, drive, masculinity, charisma, etc).

Truth: Alpha Males Can Be Good Guys Who Love Women and Treat Them Well

The ideal type of guy that women want is not a man who treats them like crap.

Yes, there are a small percentage of women in this world who enjoy being with an abusive guy, but the vast majority of women want a good guy with balls. In other words, a good guy alpha male.

When a woman meets a good guy alpha male, it flicks on the "urgency" switch in her mind where she wants to ensure that she gets a chance with him. Women know how hard it is to find good guys who also have balls.

Being a good guy alpha male also plays out well in a relationship because the woman not only feels safe and protected under your masculine leadership, but she also gets treated with respect and love.

Of course, she has to earn that respect and love. An alpha male commands respect and if he isn't treated well, he doesn't bend over and take it. He stands up for himself, but the difference between a bad boy alpha male and a good guy alpha male is that the good guy alpha male does it in a loving, respectful way.

When a woman experiences that side of her man, her respect, attraction and love for him deepens and she knows that she's found herself a "catch" that other girls would love to take from her.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How Do I Get People to Like Me?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

People usually like people who are like them, so if people don't currently like you, it means that they currently don't feel as though you are enough like them.

For example: If you find that the "cool crowd" doesn't like you, then you're probably doubting yourself around them and feeling like you're not good enough. That isn't how the cool crowd thinks about themselves, so you are not matching up.

If you want to be like them, you have to believe in yourself and feel as though you ARE good enough...even if you currently think that you're not.

From now on, you will notice that the real "cool crowd" (not the people who hang around them) are the ones who believe in themselves and think that they are worthy of attention, interest and admiration from others.

[image: How can I get more people to like me?]

You might also notice that people from the cool crowd aren't even that special, intelligent, good looking or talented, but most people really like them.

A big part of their appeal is that they believe in themselves and present a confident, more charismatic personality compared to people who don't believe in themselves and therefore present a tense, stifled personality.

Trying Too Hard to Be Liked

Guys who find it hard to make friends often feel a bit isolated in life and left out of all the fun, sex, love and good times that others are enjoying.

For some guys, the efforts they make to "join in" and to be more sociable don't seem to get them the results they want and they find themselves asking, "How do I get people to like me?"

When this is the case, the mistake many guys make is to then try harder to be liked, but, in trying too hard, they actually make themselves more unpopular. When a guy behaves in a way that makes him come across as feeling desperate to be liked, he makes himself someone that other people feel awkward around and therefore try to avoid.

There's nothing wrong with putting in some effort to be a likeable person, but if you want to get people to like you, the main thing that you have to do is believe that you are already likeable.

If you don't have that belief in yourself, then you will be suppressing your natural charisma and people will find it difficult to relax and feel comfortable around you. They will sense that something isn't quite right with you and that you need them to give you more compliments, nice treatment, etc to make yourself feel worthy.

Don't do that.

You've got to take the pressure off other people by deciding yourself that you ARE worthy and that you are good enough. Don't expect people to want to lift you up and stroke you emotionally.

Some people might do that for a while, but if they feel as though you need more of that than they are prepared to offer, they won't like being around you because it will be too much of a burden.

Being Super Nice

As a boy, you probably got the advice of "Be nice and people will like you." You may have also been given treats, kisses, hugs and pats on the head when you were a good little boy.

Yet, now that you've grown up, you may have noticed that people no longer reward you with love, affection and preferential treatment for being nice. In fact, some people take advantage of how nice you are and you then end up feeling pissed off at them and the world for not treating you the way that you deserve to be treated.

Welcome to adulthood.

As a man, if you want people to treat you nicely, you have to be the sort of guy that they look up to and respect, not a super nice guy that they can walk all over and disrespect.

This doesn't mean that you need to be a bad person at all. Instead, you just need to be a good guy with balls. In other words, a good guy alpha male.

Think about the guys that you look up to and respect the most and they will most likely be much more alpha than you. If you really admire them, they will also be good guys. So, don't make the mistake of thinking that not being super nice means that you have to be super bad.

There is a middle ground and that is what we (at The Modern Man) refer to as being a good guy alpha male. This is where you continue being the good guy that you are, but you don't let people push you around. You command respect, but you do so in an easy-going manner.

Being too nice to people (in an effort to be liked) often results in you being disrespected, taken advantage of and overlooked. It also often results in horrible rejections from women and here is why...

As you will discover from the video above, there is absolutely nothing wrong with being a nice person, but if you want to avoid being rejected by women, you must start out an interaction by making her feel attracted to you.

Do you have the skill of being able to attract women when you interact with them? Watch this video to find out...

The next mistake is...

Being an Errand Boy

Some guys try to get people to like them by doing favors, running errands, paying for their food or drinks when out partying, helping them with their work, etc.

A guy like that thinks that by always being available to do stuff for people, they will like him more, but it's much more likely that they'll simply take advantage of his desperation to be liked and use him as an errand boy without giving his feelings a second thought.

Some people will appreciate it and won't take advantage of him, but those people are few and far in between. The majority of "friends" that an errand boy will attract are going to be users who don't really care how they make him feel.

Placing Yourself Below Others

In life, you don't get treated better, score hotter women and get promoted by bowing at the feet of people who don't deserve it.

If you want to be liked and respected, you have to have a much higher opinion of yourself than you have right now. It's not about being arrogant and thinking that everyone else is beneath you, but instead it's about seeing yourself as an equal.

Some people like having "ass kissing" guys hanging around because they can use his interest in them to make themselves feel better. However, those people aren't going to be your true friend.

If you want to get people to like you, respect you and love you for who you are, then you have to begin by liking yourself, respecting yourself and loving yourself for who you are.

Don't place yourself below people and assume that they will say, "Awwwâ€¦ you're so pitiful and meek, come here and be my friend. You can hang out with me and all the other cool people because you're such a little weakling. Come here and sit on my lap."

Wake up.

You're a man now, so you need to act like one. A big part of being a man that people respect, like, admire and want to be friends with is believing in yourself.

Most people will only believe in you if you believe in yourself. They won't give you that belief â€¦ you have to take it and own it. It's yours and you have to build it up, protect it and keep adding to it throughout your life.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What a Woman Looks For in a Man (The Truth)

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

What a woman looks for in a man is going to differ slightly from woman to woman, but there are some common fundamental personality traits and behaviors that pretty much all women find attractive.

For example, a man who is:

- Confident around her and other people.
- Masculine in his thinking, behavior, vibe and how he takes action in life.
- Authentic in how he expresses his personality.
- Charismatic in how he comes across when talking to her and other people.
- Brave, driven and unrelenting in his pursuit of his dream life goals.
- Sexy in how he uses his body language and vibe to turn a woman on during a conversation.
- Charming in how he not only makes a woman feel intense attraction, but also makes her feel good about herself in the process (e.g. with compliments and other charming behavior).
- Respected by her and other people, especially alpha males.

On the other hand, traits that women aren't looking for in a man include:

[image: What a woman doesn't look for in a man]

- Nervousness around her and other people.
- Wimpy in his thinking, behavior, vibe and how he takes action in life.
- Fake in how he expresses his personality (e.g. puts on an act of being a much nicer guy than he really is, pretends to just want to be a woman's friend when he really wants to have sex with her, etc)
- Suppresses his natural charisma because he is worried that he isn't good enough or that he might be rejected by people.
- Hides from pursuing his truest, biggest goals in life because he is afraid of failure or doesn't think he deserves to succeed.
- Awkward in how he makes women feel as a result of his stifled body language and vibe.
- Unappealing in how he tries to be "liked" by women for being so nice because he has no idea how to trigger a woman's deep and primal feelings of sexual attraction.
- Disrespected by her and other people (e.g. during a conversation) and submissive to the majority of other guys because he lacks the alpha male mindset.

As you can see from the list above, women essentially want a confident guy who is real, charismatic, charming and has the ability to not only make her feel attraction, but to also have the respect of other men.

This is the type of man that women refer to as a "catch" and when you can display even some of the above qualities, you will instantly get the attention and interest of a woman when you begin talking to her.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to be the man that women are desperately looking for...

As you will discover by watching the video above, you can actually create feelings of attraction inside of a woman based on how you are interacting with her (i.e. your conversation style, body language, behavior, etc).

TV Confusion

If a guy wants to know what a woman looks for in a man and he begins to look for answers in magazines, in movies or on TV, he's going to find plenty of evidence to suggest that women are looking for a guy with Hollywood good looks, an athletic physique, a closet full of designer clothing and plenty of designer bling, a very expensive car, a large collection of the latest, cutting-edge gadgetry, a huge bank balance and a big dick.

Yet, is that really what a woman looks for in a man?

Well, it depends on the woman. Some women definitely do want to get the "fantasy guy" who lives the James Bond lifestyle, but most women are happy to settle for much, much less because those type of guys are essentially one in 100 million.

It's sort of like how many guys around the world would love to have a Victoria's Secret model for a girlfriend, but they would happily accept another girl who made them feel a lot of attraction, respect and love too.

All you have to do is think about how often you feel attracted to random, hot women in porn and you will realize that so many of them make you feel intense attraction, even though they aren't Victoria's Secret models.

Likewise, with us men, we can make women feel intense attraction for us, even though we aren't living a James Bond type lifestyle or aren't working as an international model.

Why? Watch this video to understand how it's possible for everyday guys (and even "ugly" guys) to attract, have sex with, get into relationships and marry hot women...

All it takes is a look around you in the real world to realize that guys of all shapes and sizes and all levels of attractiveness can be seen with a beautiful girlfriend on their arm, so clearly it takes more than just superficial appearances to attract a woman's attention.

Yet, it doesn't seem that obvious to guys if they don't actually know how to attract women with their personality, vibe, attitude and conversation style.

For most guys, a lot of their knowledge about what a woman looks for in a man comes from what they've seen on TV shows, in movies, in magazines and overheard women saying in person.

Some guys even base their understanding of what women want based on what they hear in female pop song lyrics.

If you fall into that trap, you will lead to believe that you have to be tall, good looking, rich and internationally famous to attract a hot girl and keep her interested.

Yet, that isn't how it works.

You (as you are right now) can attract hot women if you will just switch your focus from trying to be "liked" for being a nice guy, to making women feel sexually attracted to you instead.

You don't have to be bad, arrogant, an asshole or a jerk to achieve that. Instead, you can be a good guy, but you just have to also add in things that will trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for you.

Watch this video to understand why being too nice to a woman will often end up getting a guy rejected and what needs to be done instead...

Yes, some women do like bad boys, but the majority of women want a good guy who also has the ability to make them feel attracted.

It really is as simple as that. You can be the great guy that you are, but you also have to begin adding in things (e.g. displaying a certain type of confidence, using a certain type of humor, etc) that naturally attract women.

3 Personality Traits That Women Find Naturally Attractive About Men

The answer to the question of what a woman looks for in a man is much less about outward appearances and much more to do with inner qualities.

Sure, certain physical features are going to be seen as more attractive than others (e.g. a guy being tall, having a strong jawline, etc), but the way a guy looks or presents himself will only hold a woman's attention for so long if he doesn't have the inner qualities she's looking for to feel a deep, instinctive sexual attraction for him.

Some women will hook up with a good looking guy who lacks inner attractiveness, but the majority of women won't. The majority of women are looking for more useful qualities in a man.

What do I mean by useful? Essentially, attraction is pretty much based on identifying good survival traits. If a man is good looking, but lacks social intelligence and confidence, then he's most-likely going to have a hard time surviving and thriving in this world that a confident guy who can get along well with other people, but who lacks good looks.

Here are three essential qualities that most women look for in a man:

1. Confidence

A man might look like he's just stepped right off the cover of a glossy magazine, but if he doesn't have genuine self-confidence in who he is and his value to women and the world, he doesn't have what it takes to turn a woman on.

The mistake many guys make is thinking that a woman's attraction to a man is all about how he looks, dresses and styles his hair. Guys like that will waste time, money and energy shopping for the latest fashions, wearing the most expensive colognes and styling their hair perfectly in the hopes that it will draw women to them like a magnet.

While a guy might get a lot more women looking at him, checking him out and smiling at him if he looks good, those women will rarely, if ever, approach him.

If any guy wants to be truly successful with women and have his choice with women, he has to have the confidence to walk up and talk to women that he finds attractive, rather than hoping to be approached for looking good enough.

Watch this video to understand how you can build up the confidence to approach women that you find attractive...

If a average or below average looking guy has the confidence to approach a woman, the woman might not be thinking, “Wow!” initially based on his looks, but if he is able to attract her in other ways, she will rapidly warm up to him and then really like him.

For example: If he is being confident around her, being charismatic, getting her laughing and passing her challenging tests during the conversation, her attraction for him will go up and up.

The more attraction that he makes her feel for his confidence and personality, the more she will begin to look at his physical appearance in a positive light. She will actually come to like and even love how he looks because it is him and he is the guy that is making her feel so much attraction.

2. Masculinity

A common mistake that many guys make is in thinking that being masculine is all about developing big biceps or being the “big man” by putting other guys down and behaving in a “loud” way.

True masculinity is an inner quality that a man doesn’t have to brag about. It’s a quality that women instinctively recognize in a man because it triggers a deep sexual attraction on an instinctive and primal level and it’s a quality they feel powerless to resist.

Yes, being tall, having muscles or being a thug can make a guy appear masculine in that way. However, the majority of women do not need a guy who be a tough guy.

The majority of women are much happier to be with a guy who has the type of masculinity that will make other guys like and respect him, rather than a thug mentality that results in him getting into fights.

What we teach here at The Modern Man is about being a good guy alpha male. When you think about the men that you respect and like the most in this life, you will realize that they are probably good guy alpha males.

You don’t have to be a thug, an asshole or a jerk to be considered a masculine guy. The real winners in life are the men who are masculine, but who are also good guys.

3. Social Intelligence

Women are instinctively programmed to seek out a guy who has what it takes to be a “provider and protector.”

For most of human history, this meant being able to communicate well with others and pool resources with others when times were hard and food was scarce.

In the modern world, being a “provider and protector” is all about being a man with the social intelligence it takes to earn the respect of other men and to be a genuinely likeable guy that others like to make friends with.

When you interact with a woman, she will be instinctively looking for clues as to whether you are the type of guy who can survive, thrive and prosper in today’s world or not.

Here are 5 common mistakes that guys make when talking to women, which not only turn women off, but also suggest to the woman that he lacks social intelligence and will likely have a hard time surviving, thriving and prospering in this world...

Being the Man That Women Want

All of the qualities that will make you the type of man that women are looking for can be learned.

It doesn't matter if you currently need a bit of help talking to women, feeling confident around women or making women feel attracted to your personality. That isn't a death sentence and you are not doomed to a life of failure with women because of it.

You can learn and improve all of those areas very quickly and then get on with enjoy the success with women that you deserve.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Do Women Find Bald Men Attractive?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The answer to that question is “Yes” and “No.”

Not all women on the planet find bald men attractive, but many women do find bald men attractive or are open to feeling attracted to a bald man.

How can a woman be open to finding a bald man attractive? Simple: If he attracts her in other ways (e.g. he is confident, charismatic, has a masculine vibe, can make her laugh, etc), she will feel attracted to him for those reasons.

[image: Do women find bald guys attractive?]

When she is feeling attracted to him for those reasons, she will then begin to look at his baldness in a more positive light. She will see it as sexy, cute or attractive because it is a part of him and he is the guy that she is feeling a lot of attraction for.

Watch this video to understand how a woman’s attraction for a man really works...

As you will discover from the video above, a woman might have been going through life saying, “I don’t date bald guys,” but when she meets a guy who can attract her and turn her on in the more important ways (i.e. with his personality, confidence, vibe) she will then become open to liking him even though he is bald.

If he makes her feel a lot of attraction and she hooks up with him sexually and really enjoys it, a woman will then often change her opinion and say, “I prefer bald guys...they are sexier.”

The Bald Butt of Jokes

The “bald guy” is often the butt of jokes in TV sitcoms, Hollywood comedy movies and TV commercials.

He will be shown to fail, slip up and make mistakes around guys who have a full head of hair and athletic body type. When it comes to women, he will usually be the guy who gets rejected, is too nice, is nervous around women and loses out to the handsome guy with a full head of hair.

If you watch TV commercials or open a men’s magazine, you will also see advertisements for hair regrowth and hair dye. The message will essentially be that you have to have a full head of hair and have no gray hairs to be attractive to women.

What a load of crap. Literally a hot, steaming pile of dog shit.

Yet, many men fall for it and think that they are no longer good enough for women because their hair is thinning or they’ve gone completely bald.

When guys ask the few women that they know in life the question of “Do women find bald men attractive?” they will usually get negative answers of, “Not really” or “No, I prefer guys with a full head of hair so I can run my hands through it.”

Why do women usually respond in a way that suggests that they don’t like bald guys? It’s because the woman either:

1. Hasn't ever hooked up with a bald guy who knew how to make her feel attracted in the more important ways (i.e. with his personality, confidence, vibe, etc).
2. She isn't attracted to the bald guy who is asking the question and is basing her answering on how she feels about him.

If a woman says that she doesn't like bald guys, that does not mean that a bald guy couldn't ever make her feel attracted.

Apart from the very small minority of extremely picky women out there who demand that a guy has hair on his head, the majority of women are much more open and flexible about what they find attractive in a guy.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, you can attract women in other ways and make women completely overlook the fact that you're bald.

Not all women will accept a bald guy, but many women will. Don't expect women to tell you that or for people in general to have that level of insight.

Most guys have no idea that women can be attracted in ways other than looks, money and social status. If you ask random guys whether or not women find bald guys attractive, you will almost always get insecure answers based on the brainwashing that guys have received from TV and movies. They will tell you that the majority of women only want tall, good-looking guys who have loads of money, a male model haircut and a huge penis. If you're not tall, women won't like you. If you're not good looking, you can't get hot girls.

If you don't have loads of money, women won't be interested. If you don't have a model hair cut, women will think that you're not fashionable or cool enough and if you don't have a baby arm sized penis, you won't please her well enough.

This is the sort of insecure madness that a lot of guys believe in. They go through life thinking that they're not good enough for women, when the fact is that they ARE good enough.

Don't expect women to tell you that though. Women don't want to have to "mother" a guy or "baby" him and say, "Aww...come here little boy...you are good enough. Come here and sit on my lap...I'll pat your little head and make you feel better."

If you want women to give you the respect that you deserve, then you need to take it and own. Know that you are good enough.

Most guys don't ever get told that though. They don't understand that they ARE good enough for the majority of women. They believe that they have to be tall, handsome, rich and have a gym body to be good enough for pretty much all women these days.

Over the past few months for example, at least 20 guys have gotten in touch with The Modern Man to ask things like, "Do women find bald men attractive?" and "What do women really think of bald guys?"

What these guys don't realize is that the real reason why they aren't getting the results they want with women, is that they are failing to trigger a woman's attraction for them for the more important traits...

As you will discover from the video above, many guys go through life clinging to excuses as to why they aren't successful with women. Yet, the real reason is that they simply don't know to attract women with their personality, confidence, vibe, conversation style, etc.

Instead, they are hoping to be liked enough by women for wearing good clothes, having muscles or getting paid well at their job. As you would have seen in real life, guys who don't dress very well, don't work out at the gym and have an ordinary job are still able to attract, have sex with and even marry hot women.

That's not to say that a guy shouldn't work out at a gym, shouldn't care about wearing good clothes or shouldn't try to succeed in life. Do all of those things if you want to, but just know this: You are good enough right now for the majority of women.

All you need to do is switch your focus away from your baldness (or whatever other excuse that you use to explain your lack of success with women) and instead focus on making women feel the type of attraction that they are looking to experience when interacting with a guy.

You can trigger a woman's attraction for you for reasons other than your looks (e.g. your confidence, charisma, masculine vibe, etc) and she will then start to look at your physical appearance (even if you're bald) in a more positive light. She may even come to love the fact that you're bald.

If a guy thinks that his baldness is the reason for his lack of success at attracting women, he's going to be shy and anxious around women and behave in a way that makes him appear awkward as a result.

His nervousness and awkwardness will turn the women off and it will inevitably result in a rejection or "awkward silence" before he walks away from the women feeling rejected.

The bald guy will then believe that his baldness is what that led to the rejection and his confidence (in his sex appeal to women) will take a further knock. He will feel as though there's no point in trying because women don't seem to find him attractive now that he is bald.

He then becomes trapped in a vicious cycle of decreasing confidence, which may then lead him to avoid approaching and interacting with attractive women and either remaining alone or only feeling "good enough" around unattractive women.

To break out of this vicious cycle, a guy needs to learn what women are really looking for in a man, rather than thinking that superficial things like hair are the most important things to women.

Inner Attraction

[image: Inner attraction]

The majority of women do not judge a man's attractiveness by his looks alone. In a woman's eyes, a man's attractiveness is about who he is as a man on the inside.

Who a man really is on the inside is going to come through on how he thinks, behaves, feels and takes around a woman and in life. Who he is on the inside is either going to cause him to be a confident, masculine, charismatic guy or it's not.

For example: If a guy is insecure on the inside, then he's going to come across as nervous, self-doubting and lacking in masculine charisma. Women will feel turned off by who he is on the inside because he lacks mental and emotional strength.

Yes, some women are shallow and will only accept a perfect looking male model type of guy, but most women aren't that shallow. Most women are more interested in how a guy's inner man comes through on the outside.

When it comes to our attraction for women, it is their outer appearance that is most important to us. However, for most women, it is our inner attractiveness that matters most.

You might find that hard to believe if you've heard a lot of women say things like, "I only date handsome men" or "I only want a rich man."

However, the women that you've heard that from are not the majority of women. You will only have actually heard comments from less than 1% of the female population. Think about it. You don't know hundreds of millions of women.

If you want to be successful with women, what you need to focus on is the absolute, undeniable fact that women hook up with, get into relationships with and marry all types of different guys...including bald guys.

It is possible to attract the majority of women for reasons other than your looks, height, financial status or position in society. Yes, women can and do feel attracted to looks, money, height, social status, etc, but they can also feel attracted to men for a wide variety of other reasons too.

Will Shaving My Head Bald Make Me Look More Masculine and Attractive?

[image: Should I shave my head bald?]

Some guys who actually have hair or a receding hairline notice that bald guys usually have a hot girlfriend or wife.

So, they begin to wonder if shaving their head clean bald will make them more attractive because it can be seen as tough or more mature.

If you're thinking anything like that you're missing the point.

You can attract women with or without hair on your head. What matters most to the majority of women is how your personality, confidence, vibe and conversation style makes them feel. You either turn women on in those ways, or you don't.

If a guy can't turn a woman on in those ways, most women aren't going to be interested in him regardless of whether he is bald, has a full head of hair, has a goatee or shaves his face clean.

What matters is how your personality, confidence, conversation style and vibe makes a woman feel. If you can attract her and turn her on in those ways, she will like you regardless of what is on top of your head.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Meet Single Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Single women can be found almost anywhere, but some of the best places to meet them are at:

- Speed dating events.
- Bars and nightclubs.
- House parties.

Knowing how to meet single women involves being able to:

- 1. Confidently approach women that you find attractive.
- 2. Trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for you when you meet her.
- 3. Keep a conversation going long enough to escalate to kissing, a phone number or sex that night.

As you will discover from the videos above, meeting single women is a very easy thing to do when you have those 3 areas under control.

Being the Guy That Single Women Are Hoping to Meet

[image: Being the guy that single women want to meet]

Single guys who are struggling to get themselves a girlfriend or get laid are often looking for tips on where to go to meet single women.

They hope that by showing up at places where single women go to meet men, the whole pick up process will be made easier by the fact that women are actively looking to get laid or find a boyfriend.

Yes, it definitely can be easier get laid or find yourself a new girlfriend in those places, but only if you can display the type of personality traits and behaviors that women are looking for in a guy.

For example: If a guy has the confidence to walk up and meet some single women, but he then struggles to keep a conversation going and keep it interesting, most of his approaches will end up with the dreaded "awkward silence."

In most cases, women don't want to help a guy through the pick up process and if he doesn't have the skills to attract and seduce them, they would rather miss out on the opportunity to be with him.

Watch this video to understand why...

As you will discover from the video above, it's very easy for a woman to attract a man because most men will be willing to have sex with her simply based on her appearance.

Women don't need to learn how to attract men because all they have to do is look pretty or sexy enough and most guys will happily have sex with them and many will also want a relationship to follow.

Men are dealt a different hand of cards in this life and if a guy doesn't know how to actively attract a woman when he interacts with her (e.g. with his confidence, charisma, charm, humor, masculine vibe, etc), then a woman usually won't be feeling enough attraction to justify giving him her number, kissing him or leaving the bar/club/event to have sex with him that night.

How Meeting Women Often Works in Movies and on TV Shows

TV and movie storylines often show the shy, socially awkward guy sitting alone at a bar or a party. He then gets approached by beautiful, sexy women or the beautiful, innocent, girl next-door type of woman.

Script writers often make it appear that a guy sitting alone intrigues women and they somehow feel compelled to go over and introduce themselves to him. Sure, that does sometimes happen in real life if the guy is really good looking, famous or obvious of high status in society.

However, for the rest of the male population, it's rarely, if ever, going to happen.

In the real world, most women see guys who are sitting alone in a bar, party or at an event as being a social outcast or lonely loser. They don't think, "Wow! He's on his own!! He must be really cool, mysterious and loveable. I'm going to approach him before other girls do!"

If a woman is interested in a guy, she will usually behave in a way that lets him know she wants him to approach her, not the other way around. For example: She will smile at him, keep looking at him and even (this doesn't make obvious sense unless you understand women) act very loud, silly and girly with her friends to get his attention.

If you want to be successful at meeting women, you've got to not waste time trying to look good and hopefully get approached by desperate or drunk women.

The secret of how to meet single women is to have the confidence to approach, know how to trigger their attraction and then be able to keep an interaction going for long enough to get to the next levels of kissing, exchanging phone numbers or going home together to have sex.

BTW: One-night stands and sex on first dates are very common these days. A study in American found that 55% of couples had sex on their first date and another study in Europe discovered that 70% of women admitted to having experienced a one-night stand before.

So, don't assume that the single woman you're talking to won't be open to kissing you and having sex with you on the first night or first date. The world has changed and sex now happens much more often than many people think or like to admit when asked.

Displaying Personality Traits That Naturally Attract Women

At The Modern Man, we teach guys how to attract women in more than 100 different ways.

You don't have to be able to pull off all of the 100 attraction triggers to get laid or get a girlfriend, but if you can trigger a woman's attraction for you by displaying 5-10 traits during an interaction, you will be able to pick up most of the single women you meet.

Here are 3 examples of traits that women are naturally attracted to in men:

1. Confidence
2. Masculinity

3. Social Intelligence

1. Confidence: Are you confident around women that you find very attractive?

If you're looking for tips on how to meet single women, you're probably not aiming to pick up and have sex with unattractive women.

You want hot, sexy single women, right?

If you want to pick up hotties, you need to be able to maintain a strong state of self-confidence around them. Hot women are used to guys feeling intimidated around them and it's huge turn off.

To be confident around a hot woman, it's not about showing off, being really loud, being an arrogant asshole or anything silly like that. Instead, it's about having a relaxed, easy-going confidence that remains no matter how much she challenges you.

If you're talking to a hot woman, she will challenge you. She will play hard to get during the conversation, tease you about some of the things you're saying, pick on your sense of fashion or hairstyle and attempt to make you feel uncomfortable in many other ways.

Her aim is not to be a mean bitch, but to find herself a guy who has the type of confidence that she needs in a man. If she is beautiful, then she will be very bored of the fact that most of the guys she meets instantly feel attracted to her and want to be with her, even if she treats him badly. The guy will be nervous, self-doubting and unsure of himself around her, but he will hope that if he's just nice enough to her or impresses her enough with bragging about his job, money, car, etc, then she'll give him a chance.

This is one of the reasons why you will often hear women saying that they like a guy who is a challengeâ€¦

Women are instinctively attracted to guys with the type of self-confidence that remains intact no matter how many challenges she or life throws at him.

When a woman notices that a guy doesn't need to show off to show her that he is deeply confident, self-assured and at ease in any social situation, she cannot stop herself from feeling a strong sense of respect and attraction for him.

Women know that guys who have that type of relaxed, self-assured confidence are very hard to find. It's the type of confidence that marks a guy out to be the kind of cool, charismatic guy that single women hope to meet.

It's for this reason that just going out to the places single women hang out at won't make it as easy to get laid or get a girlfriend. If you want to meet single women and actually get end results (i.e. sex, love, relationships), you need to have the confidence to approach them and the ability to attract them.

2. Masculinity: Are you very masculine in the way that you think, feel, behave and take action in life?

Pretty much every single woman on this planet is looking for a man with strong alpha male characteristics.

The strength that most women want to find in a man has nothing to do with a guy's physical prowess, and everything to do with his mental and emotional strength.

For example: A guy might have big muscles, but if he is nervous and self-doubting around women, they are going to be turned off by his mental and emotional weakness.

Likewise, a guy might be overweight, slim or have an average body type, but if he is very confident and masculine in the way that he thinks, behaves, feels and takes action around women and in life, women are going to feel turned on by his strength.

A woman wants to feel like a feminine woman in a man's masculine presence, rather than feeling like she is stronger than him. A woman knows when a man has true masculinity because being around him literally makes her feel weak at the knees. As some women put it, "I go all mooshy and can't think straight around guys like that."

A mistake that some guys make is thinking that behaving in a loud, overly confident way makes them appear more "manly" or "bigger" than the other guys in the room, but women can see right through a guy who is putting on a confident front in an effort to hide his insecurities.

Truly masculine alpha males have a powerful, but relaxed confidence that shows in the way they handle themselves and other people. They don't need to be loud or act tough to gain the respect of other men because people just know that he is alpha and deserves respect.

If you want to be successful when you're out there meeting single women, you need to be able to make women feel relaxed and feminine in your presence. When women sense those qualities in you, they'll do whatever it takes to make sure you that you know they like you and want to escalate to a sexual level with you.

3. Social Intelligence: Do you have the type of social skills that make people respect you and like you?

Today's women are still instinctively driven to find a man who can provide for them and protect them in the same way their ancient female ancestors were in prehistoric times.

The world may have changed a lot over the past 100 or even 1,000 years, but the instincts that women have to find a guy who has the ability to survive, thrive and prosper have not gone away.

When a woman talks with a guy and assesses him to be a cool guy with great social skills, it triggers her attraction for him because he will most likely live a better life than a guy with poor social skills. She can't know that for sure, but her instincts will trigger attraction and make her like a guy who has great social skills compared to a guy who doesn't.

If a guy seems like wouldn't easily get along with confident people, wouldn't be able to get alpha males to respect him and wouldn't be able to make friend very easily, it sets off alarm bells in a woman's mind.

The guy might be able to survive just fine without having great social skills, but a woman can't stop her instincts from kicking in and essentially telling her, "If you got pregnant to this guy, life would be a struggle and he wouldn't be able to properly protect you from outside threats."

If you want to be truly successful at meeting and picking up single women, you need to display a "likeability" factor that marks you out as a guy who can easily make friends and get along with confident people in social settings.

Don't Settle For Second Best With Women

One of the easiest ways to be more attractive to women is to not accept anything less than what you find to be very attractive.

A guy who chooses to hook up with an unattractive woman just because she's making herself available for sex is a guy who is selling himself short. It's a mistake many single guys have made and I know of some guy who've ended up accidentally impregnating the woman and then finding they're stuck in a relationship with no genuine sexual spark.

You have to know that you are a good guy and that you deserve to have an attractive girlfriend or lover. You do not have to settle for women that you're not attracted to.

You can be the guy who has his pick of women, but you have to stay strong and not give into feelings of insecurity or accept women who aren't attractive enough for you...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Do Women Prefer Circumcised or Uncircumcised Men?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

This is one of those questions that youâ€™re never going to find a definitive answer to from women or from people in general.

No matter how many women you ask, youâ€™re only ever going to get an answer based on their personal experience.

For example: If a woman hasÂ had a lot of great sex with uncircumcised guys, she will say that uncircumcised is better. Yet, the great sex would have been as a result of the guy’s confidence and technique in the bedroom, not based on the fact that he still has a foreskin.

Most women know that and if you ask them, they will tell you that their overall experience of sex with a guy usually has very little to do with his â€œman partsâ€œ and everything to do with â€œthe manâ€œ himself.

To Cut or Not to Cut

Most circumcisions are carried out on baby boys for religious or cultural reasons, but some men elect to be circumcised in their adult years for a variety of health reasons.

According to the National Health Service (NHS) in the UK, the potential advantages of cutting off your hood are as follows:

1. Circumcision reduces the risk of developing a urinary tract infection (UTI), such as a bladder infection.
2. Circumcision reduces the risk of getting some types of sexually transmitted infections such as HIV.
3. Circumcision reduces the risk of developing cancer of the penis.

However, most healthcare professionals maintain that the potential benefits of circumcision are not strong enough to justify routine childhood circumcision. The NHS lists the following disadvantages of chopping off your knob skin:

- 1. Reduced sensitivity: An uncircumcised penis is more sensitive than a circumcised penis, meaning that circumcised men may experience less pleasure during sex.
- 2. Potential complications of circumcision: These include excessive bleeding and post-operative infection, and outweigh any potential benefits.

Of course, just as youâ€™re never going to find a definitive answer to the question, â€œDo women prefer circumcised or uncircumcised men?â€œ youâ€™re never going to find a definitive answer to the question, â€œDo circumcised or uncircumcised men get more enjoyment out of sex?â€œ

Why? If you look at online forums, some guys who’ve had the cut will say that they enjoy sex more now. Yet, guys who haven’t ever had their genitals attacked with a doctor’s scalpel will attest to the fact that they have always enjoyed great sex.

There’s not real clear answer to which is better. Personally speaking, I’m not cut and I have enjoyed sex with more than 250 women. No women complained about the foreskin and I also didn’t encounter any problems because I was always sure to wear a condom. Now that I’m married, sex just gets better and better.

So, What's With the "Circumcised is Best" or "Intact is Best" Myths?

Current statistics show that only around 20% of the world's male population is circumcised, meaning 80% of men are intact.

In other words, 80% of the guys that women have sex with (and enjoy having sex with) are not going to be cut. Yet, they will also have sex with uncircumcised men and enjoy that too.

There's plenty of anecdotal evidence out there to support both the "for" and "against" side of the circumcision versus intact argument if you look for it. Yet, all of the information that you will find on both sides of the argument is going to be based on personal opinion. Some people will say that "circumcised penises are better" while others will say that "keeping things intact in the way that nature intended is the way to go."

In my opinion, it really doesn't matter. Circumcisions seem to just be about an old school religious and cultural practice, which people are free to do if they want.

Focus on What Women Really Want and You Will Get What You Want With Women

Here at The Modern Man, we focus on teaching guys how to understand what really matters when it comes to success with women.

The fact is, whether you are a circumcised or an intact man, asking which type of penis a woman prefers suggests that you're placing far more importance on it than any woman ever will.

If you are circumcised and you're concerned that some women may prefer an uncircumcised penis, your concerns are going to create insecurities in your attitude and behavior that will turn a woman off.

When you're having sex with her, it won't be your foreskin-less penis that is the turn off, it will be your insecurity. The same applies if you are an intact man and you're concerned that women may prefer a circumcised penis - your unnecessary concerns create insecurities and it is insecurity that's the turn off.

When having sex with a man, what women really want to see is that he is:

- Present in the moment, rather than all up in his head with insecurities.
- Confidently doing whatever he wants to her, without worrying about whether he is good enough.
- Focused on his sexual attraction for her physical beauty, rather than worrying about how he looks.
- Confident in his sex appeal to her and doesn't waste time questioning it. He knows that she finds him attractive and doesn't stop for even one moment to doubt it.

When a woman is in bed with a man like that, it really does not matter if he has had his foreskin cut off or not. Why? The biggest turn on for women is the guy's confidence, vibe, behavior and actions in the bedroom.

If a guy is confidently doing whatever he wants, a woman won't even care if he's had 50% of his foreskin cut off. She just won't care because she will be turned on in a very deep and primal way.

Having Confidence in Your Sex Appeal

One of the most important traits that a guy needs to have when meeting a woman for the first time, going on a date with her, having sex with her and being in a relationship with her is to have confidence in his sex appeal.

If you doubt your sex appeal to women, you will naturally and automatically turn women off at various stages of a pick up, dating relationship and committed relationship. You will also turn women off in the bedroom.

Women yearn to be with a guy who understands that what women really find attractive about a guy. Yes, there are some women who are focused on a guy's looks and will only ever sleep with a rich, male model who is tall, wears the best fashions and drives a Mercedes.

However, the majority of women are much more flexible and open about what they find attractive in a guy.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use it to make a woman feel intense attraction for you, regardless of whether you've had your foreskin cut off or not...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What Turns Women Off?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Women can feel turned off and turned on by many different things about men.

For example: When meeting a guy for the first time, a woman will feel turned off by a guy who:

- Is too nice to her.
- Is too easily impressed by her.
- Doesn't know how to have an exciting, interesting and sexually arousing conversation with her.
- Doesn't know how to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction.

When in a relationship, a woman will feel turned off by a guy who:

- Becomes too clingy or needy.
- Is insecure or too emotionally sensitive.
- Is unable to control his feelings of jealousy.
- Takes her for granted.
- Ruins her feelings of respect for him.
- Destroys the love that she initially felt for him.

Women Are Easy to Turn On When You Understand Where They're Coming From

[image: What turns women on and off?]

When a guy asks, What turns women off? he usually hasn't been enjoying the type of success with women that he wants. He might be a great guy and have really good intentions with the women he meets, but they just don't seem to be interested.

Can you relate to that? Are you a good guy with good intentions, but just aren't getting the respect, love and attention that you know you deserve with women?

If so, watch this video...

As you will discover from the video above, a lot of good guys don't really know how to attract women, which is one of the things that women hate about most single men...

When you understand where women are coming from and what type of world they live in compared to men, it suddenly begins to make sense as to why women reject guys like they do.

A woman hopes to meet a guy who has the ability to turn her on by making displaying the personality traits and behaviors that will naturally attract her (e.g. confidence, charisma, charm, humor, masculine vibe, etc).

However, most of the guys that she meets will turn her off because they will display personality traits and behaviors that aren't naturally arousing (e.g. nervousness, self-doubt, polite conversation, being too nice, etc).

When a woman meets a guy like that, she immediately tries to let him know that she isn't interested.

She might ask him to leave her alone, turn away from him to talk with her girlfriends or give him cold, short responses to his questions in the hope that he feels uncomfortable and leaves.

Not knowing how to handle a situation like that, guys often begin trying harder to impress the woman, which then makes him look desperate in her eyes...and desperation in a man is a definite turn off.

So, to avoid all the mind games and bitchy behaviour, you've got to interact with women in ways that trigger their feelings of sexual attraction and respect for you as a man. You can't go through life expecting women to just like you because you're a good guy.

As you will discover from watching the videos on this page, most women select a man based on how much sexual attraction he makes her feel, not how nice or intelligent he is.

Don't Worry So Much About Your Looks

Yes, there are some women out there who only want a very good-looking guy for a boyfriend.

However, the majority of women have what I call an Open Type, which means that they are open to being with all different types of guys as long as the guy makes her feel enough attraction for other reasons (e.g. he is confident, charismatic, charming, alpha, funny, etc).

If you believe the advertisements or so called "articles" in glossy men's magazines, you will be tricked into thinking that all women are turned on by beautiful men who keep themselves groomed to perfection and wear all the latest designer clothing and bling.

Yes, the perfect looking guys in the magazines are going to be physically attractive to a lot of women, but looks are not the most important thing to the majority of women in this world...

[image: Ugly guy has a baby with a beautiful woman]

[image: Black guys with white women]

[image: How is this possible?]

[image: Everyday couples]

[image: Asian guy with white girlfriend]

[image: Ugly guy with hot cheerleader girlfriend]

[image: Guy with a weird nose with a beautiful girlfriend]

[image: Guy with big ears with beautiful girlfriend]

[image: White man marrying a black woman. Asian guy marrying a black woman]

[image: Fat Asian guy with pretty girlfriend]

[image: Asian guy marrying pretty white girl]

[image: Fat guy with a skinny girlfriend at the pool]

[image: Fat guys with pretty women]

[image: Fat men marrying beautiful women]

There's no harm in making the most of your physical appearance (e.g. working out at a gym, wearing good clothes, styling your hair in a cool way, etc) or presenting yourself well, but most women are not turned on by how a guy looks on the outside, they're turned on by who he is on the inside and how that comes through in his personality, vibe, behavior, actions and attitude.

A guy might look like a movie star, but if he behaves in a shy, anxious way around a woman that he likes, his lack of confidence will be a turn off for her and his looks alone won't hold her interest.

Of course, some women (usually unattractive women or manipulative women who just want to use a guy for a while before dumping him) do like it when they find a good-looking guy who is nervous and self-doubting.

In those cases, the woman often assumes that she will be able to control him during a relationship with the threat of a break up and will keep him wrapped around her little finger, while she remains open to meeting other guys.

As a man, your looks may help you some initial interest from women, but the majority of women place much more importance on how your personality, behavior, vibe and attitude makes them feel.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works...

Some guys make the mistake of wasting a lot of time (often years or decades of their life) working their ass off to hopefully create a certain look (e.g. a perfect gym body) or get to a certain financial status in life (e.g. buy a car, buy a house, etc) so they can feel good enough for women.

Yet, here's the thing...

You are already good enough for most women. You really are. Most women are much more flexible and open about what they find attractive in a guy and while there are some women out there who will only accept a guy who looks like a model and is super rich, the majority of women are willing to accept much, much less.

Women Like Good Guys, Not Super Nice Guys

Growing up, some guys get told by well-meaning relatives and friends that the way to attract a woman is to be super nice and to treat her like a lady at all times.

This may have been good advice back in the early 1900s up to the 1950s, but it's not good advice for today's world. Why?

Today's women don't have to save themselves for marriage anymore. So, women now select men based on how much sexual attraction he makes her feel. If he also happens to be a good guy, then that is a bonus, but if he isn't (i.e. he is a bad boy), she will usually go along with having sex with him and work out what to do later.

Think about it this way...

You might want a girlfriend who is nice, loyal, caring and trustworthy. The sort of girl you could proudly introduce to your parents, friends or co-workers.

Yet, if you go to a strip club and watch a sexy stripper dance, you're most-likely still going to be willing to have sex with her, even though she might not be a trustworthy "girl next door" type that you could introduce to friends and family.

The same happens when you look at porn. It doesn't matter what you think you want or you've been going around saying that you want in a woman, when you look at women in porn, you feel attracted to them and you then act on that attraction.

If you want women to want you in a sexual way, you've got to focus on triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you. Being extremely nice to a woman doesn't create those feelings and here is why...

Women do like nice guys, but only if he is also making her feel sexually turned on. If he's just being super nice and hoping that she "likes" him enough to give him a chance, he will usually get rejected when he tries to make a move.

When a guy is being super nice to a woman, she often becomes suspicious about what he really wants. "Is he just being friendly and nice because he's such a good guy...or does he actually want to have sex with me?"

If a woman gets the sense that you really do want to have sex with her, but you're acting like an innocent nice guy, she will put her guard up around you. She will feel uncomfortable and almost always reject you if you touch her, use sexual innuendos or attempt to escalate to a kiss or date.

To avoid getting that reaction, you have to start with attraction.

Attraction comes first and you then do everything else (e.g. phone number, kiss, sex, date, relationship) after that.

Most guys never get taught that, so they often resort to trying really hard to be as nice as possible to hopefully get a woman to like them enough.

Yet, all it takes for him to be instantly replaced is another guy to come along and make the woman feel sexually attracted. She will then turn her attention to him, kiss him, hook up with him and the nice guy will be left behind to feel depressed about being rejected yet again.

The truth is, regardless of what women SAY they want (e.g. "I want a nice guy who cares, listens, is sweet to me" etc), they don't want to be put on a pedestal and worshipped by a nice guy.

Yes, women do like guys who are nice, sweet and who listen to her, but ONLY if she is sexually attracted to him. If she isn't sexually attracted to him, then she might like the nice guy as a friend, but she isn't going to want to do anything sexual or romantic with him.

When being nice to a woman, you also have to make sure that you're being nice in an attractive way...

For example: A guy might think he is being "nice" by asking her where she'd like to go on a date or which restaurant she'd like to eat at, but if he behaves in that way, he is showing her that he doesn't have what it takes to confidently lead the way like a man.

There's nothing wrong with sometimes asking a woman where she wants to go, but on a first date, women expect a man to lead the way. Ironically, they actually see that as him being "nice."

Why?

He is being nice because he isn't expecting her to be the man and lead the way. He's being charming by letting her relax into being a feminine woman who is being swept off her feet by a masculine man.

Don't Try So Hard to Impress Women

Following on from the above, guys who are way too desperate to please women (e.g. always trying to say the right thing, being super nice, etc) will often behave in a way that makes him come across as insecure.

Just like desperation, insecurity of any sort in a man is a complete turn off for women.

For example: A guy who is desperate to please might turn up for a first date with a bunch of flowers or make some other kind of romantic gesture. That kind of approach might get a woman swooning over a guy in a Hollywood movie, but for real women living in the real world, it's actually a total turn off.

Why? Well, it's not a question of whether or not she likes flowers, but more a question of why a guy should feel the need to make such a dramatic gesture on a first date.

A woman is going to wonder why he feels the need to buy her things, rather than feeling as though he is more than enough of a present for her on the first date.

Of course, if a guy is very confident, charming, charismatic and really knows how to attract women, then he can do whatever he wants. If a guy like that gets a woman flowers, she will feel lucky that she is getting that type of attention and respect from him.

However, if a guy lacks confidence, doesn't really make her feel much attraction and is already a bit too much of a nice guy, she's not going to be impressed by the gesture.

She will almost certainly feel turned off by the fact that he's trying to buy her love with gifts, rather than make her fall in love with who he is as a guy.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Want to Meet a Girl, But it's Just Not Happening For Me

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

At The Modern Man, I often hear guys who say something like, “I want to meet a girl. I’ve tried to talk to women, but I can’t work out where I’ve been going wrong” or, “I want to have a girlfriend so bad, but women don’t seem to be interested in me.”

So, what is the real problem? Why do so many good guys find it difficult to meet girls or get themselves a girlfriend? Watch this video to find out...

As you will discover from the video above, if you want to meet a girl so you can get laid or get a girlfriend, you have to first focus on your ability to attract the women you meet. If girls don’t feel attracted to you, they’re not going to be interested in much more than just a polite, friendly conversation with you.

Yet, what if you don’t have the confidence to approach girls in the first place?

Watch this video to understand how you can begin building up your confidence to be able to walk up to a woman and start a conversation that leads to a phone number, kiss, sex and relationship...

As you will discover from the video above, it’s up to you as a guy to give yourself opportunities to meet and attract women. You can’t expect them to actively approach you because you look good.

Most women will never approach a guy and simply wait and hope to be approached by a guy who has the confidence to begin an interaction with her. Women prefer to do it that way because it helps ensure that they meet a confident guy, rather than a woman making the mistake of approaching a nervous, insecure guy and giving him a chance to be with her.

The cold, harsh truth is that any guy who says, “I want to meet a girl” must be prepared to do something about it if he wants to make it happen. He can’t expect girls to take pity on him and guide him through the process of a pick up.

Yes, some very good looking guys will get approached and hit on by women (often not the types of women they really want), but most guys (including myself) aren’t good looking enough to get approached by women, so we have to walk up to women ourselves and make them feel attracted to us for other reasons (e.g. our confidence, charisma, charm, humor, etc).

Watch this video to understand how a woman’s attraction for a man works and how you can use that to get consistently positive results when meeting girls...

As you will discover from the video above, most girls place much less importance on a guy’s look that people realize.

As a guy, you are lucky that you can actively make women feel attracted to you for reasons other than looks. When you begin attracting women in other ways (e.g. by displaying confidence, being charismatic, etc), you will see that it’s actually very easy to attract the girls you meet.

Most girls are much more flexible and open about what they will find attractive in a guy than most guys realize.

What Have You Been Doing So Far to Meet a Girl?

[image: I want to meet a girl so bad]

If you are saying, “I want to meet a girl,” what have you actually been doing to make it a reality?

For example: Have you been going to places where you can meet single girls (e.g. bars, singles events, parties, shopping malls, etc) and actively approaching women?

To meet girls and get to the point where you’re having sex and enjoying a relationship with them, you not only need to go to places where girls go, but you also need to approach and attract them.

If you’re currently sitting around at home wishing that you could meet a girl or wishing that you had a girlfriend, then you are in the right frame of mind to begin making that happen, but you also have to be willing to take some sort of action to get a result.

For example: Sitting around and hoping that a girl will suddenly appear in your life one day is a mistake that many guys make.

A guy might think, “Well, if I keep working out at the gym and building up my muscles, girls are surely going to notice me one day” or “If I stick with my career and eventually make enough money to buy my own home, women will then like me because I’m set up and able to support them.”

Guys (and men) literally waste years or even decades of their life thinking like that. They hope that one day, they will be good enough for women. Yet, what they don’t realize is that most women are much easier to attract than they will ever admit.

Most girls act like they are so good and only deserve a rich, tall, male model for a boyfriend, but most of them happily hook up with, get into a relationship with and even marry a guy who isn’t tall, rich or handsome.

It doesn’t matter what you look like, you really can attract girls and get laid and get a girlfriend. That’s not to say that a guy can pick up EVERY woman on the planet, but who needs every woman on the planet anyway?

The truth is, a guy can literally choose from millions of beautiful girls who would happily have sex with him and get into a relationship with him. However, he must learn how to make women feel attracted to who he is as a guy, rather than hoping to attract and keep a woman based on his looks.

These days, a lot of guys fall into the trap of believing that the way women are shown to think, behave and act in TV drama shows, music videos and in movies is exactly what they’re like in real life.

Without ever being shown the real truth about what women can feel attracted to, some guys get sucked into wasting years of their life trying to improve their in the false belief that this will make them irresistibly attractive to women.

Yes, women do appreciate it when a guy looks good and there are some women who will only accept a male model type of guy as a lover or boyfriend, but most women really don’t place much importance on looks.

Most women (not all) are not so shallow that they’re only interested in how a guy looks. Instead, what they’re really interested in and turned on by is who a guy is on the inside and how that then comes through in his personality, vibe, attitude, behavior and actions around her and in life.

To most girls, a guy's inner qualities are of far more importance than outer appearances. When a guy fails to recognize that, he usually goes through much of his life feeling unwanted, unloved and unworthy around beautiful women.

He simply doesn't understand that he is good enough for women and simply needs to begin to display the personality traits and behaviors that trigger a woman's feelings of attraction for a guy.

Give Girls What They Want and They Will Give You What You Want

One of the problems that guys encounter when trying to become more successful at meeting and picking up girls, is that they don't really know what girls want.

If you ask a girl what she likes in a guy, she will almost always just talk about superficial things like looks, height and money.

If she is an honest girl and says that she likes a guy to be confident and believe in himself around her, that doesn't mean that she is going to applaud a guy for being confident.

In fact, most girls will tease a guy and try to break his confidence if he appears confident around them. Why? They are testing to see how real his confidence is because girls know that guys often put on an act of being confident.

If you want to meet a girl and get to kissing, sex and a relationship, you've got to be able to give her what she really wants. You can't learn that by asking her to teach you because women don't want to be a guy's teacher on how to be a man.

Girls expect you to know how to be the type of guy that they feel attracted to and respect. If you don't know how to be that guy, they simply reject you or keep you in the friend zone.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get a Woman to Want You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to get a woman to want you is simple...

Make her feel sexually attracted to you.

There are many ways that you can make a woman feel sexually attracted to you. For example, you can:

- Display confidence around her.
- Be charismatic and charming.
- Make her laugh and feel girly in your presence.
- Turn her on with flirting and your sexually charged, masculine vibe.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction works and how you can use it to get a woman to want you...

When you display the types of personality traits and behaviors that women feel attracted to, women will naturally want to be with you.

You don't have to try hard to hopefully get women to "like" you enough to give you a chance. Instead, you've just got to know how to trigger her feelings of sexual attraction.

Do You Know What Women Really Want in a Man?

These days, it's very easy for a guy to feel confused about what women really want in a man.

For example: If he turns on the TV, he will be told that he needs to be rich, good looking, famous and stylish to attract women. If he watches a Hollywood "romantic comedy" movie, he will notice that the awkward, shy guy always seems to get the hot girl by the end of the movie, because he saves the world or rescues her from a bad situation.

Likewise, if you listen to what women SAY that they want, you will often notice that what they SAY they want and what they actually feel attracted to are two completely different things.

For example: A woman might say that she wants a nice guy, but if a guy is too nice to her, she will reject him. Why? Watch this video to find out!|

As you will discover from the video above, women do actually like "nice" guys, as long as the guy also has the ability to attract her and turn her on sexually.

For example: If a guy is nervous, anxious and insecure when he's talking to a woman that he likes, then she's not going to care if he is a nice guy or a bad boy, because she's going to be feeling turned off by his emotional weakness.

On the other hand, if a confident, charismatic guy is talking to a woman and he is also being nice to her, she will see his approach as charming and attractive. She will be "charmed" because she will be feeling attracted and feeling good that he is also treating her nicely.

What Most Women Don't Need

There are always going to be exceptions, but generally speaking, most women need the same types of things from me.

For example, most women don't need...

1. A guy who looks like a male model

Yes, there are some women who will only accept a guy who has male model features, is tall and has loads of money, but most women actually don't need you to have those things to justify being with you.

Most women are much more flexible with what they find attractive in a guy that many guys realize...

[image: Ugly guy has a baby with a beautiful woman]

[image: Black guys with white women]

[image: How is this possible?]

[image: Everyday couples]

[image: Asian guy with white girlfriend]

[image: Ugly guy with hot cheerleader girlfriend]

[image: Guy with a weird nose with a beautiful girlfriend]

[image: Guy with big ears with beautiful girlfriend]

[image: White man marrying a black woman. Asian guy marrying a black woman]

[image: Fat Asian guy with pretty girlfriend]

[image: Asian guy marrying pretty white girl]

[image: Fat guy with a skinny girlfriend at the pool]

[image: Fat guys with pretty women]

[image: Fat men marrying beautiful women]

Most women are interested in who a man is on the inside and how he makes her feel when she is in his presence, not just how he looks. Sure, certain features might catch a woman's eye initially, but looks alone can only get a guy so far.

If you lack confidence around women, don't know how to attract them and find it difficult to keep a conversation going and keep it interesting, most women just aren't going to be interested in you no matter what you look like.

To get a woman to want you sexually or more than just a friend, you have to display the personality traits and behaviors that will naturally turn her on.

Another thing that most women don't need from a man is...

2. A guy who puts her on a pedestal

A common mistake that some guys make is to assume that a woman wants a man who throws himself at her feet and pledges undying love for her. This might be how it appears in the old 1940s

Hollywood romances and in modern “romantic comedy” movies, but it’s not how it works in real life.

Sure, an unattractive woman will like that sort of treatment and may give a guy a chance if he wines and dines her for a while, but do you really want an unattractive woman who is going to make you work hard to impress her?

A lot of guys don’t realize that most women (especially the hot ones) want to find a guy who makes HER try to impress him and hope to get a chance with him. Watch this video to understand why...

As you will discover from the video above, it’s very easy for a woman to attract a man for sex. If she is decent looking, most guys will be willing to have sex with her at least once.

If she is hot, then she is most-likely really bored with the same old approach that guys take when they meet her (i.e. guy feels attracted, tries hard to impress her, puts up with her bad behavior, hopes that she might eventually give him a chance one day, etc).

Putting a woman on a pedestal like that instantly makes a guy appear insecure and unsure of his ability to attract other women, which is a turn off for women. If a woman is attractive, she will want to be able to use her attractiveness to get herself a guy that other women want.

She’s not going to want to waste her hotness on a guy who other women (even unattractive women) aren’t interested in. She’s going to want to get a fair value exchange for her beauty (i.e. she is just as attracted to him as he is to her, rather than only him being attracted to her).

If you want to know how to get a woman to want you, you need to display the alpha male qualities that make you stand out as a man who has his pick of women. The harder a woman has to work to attract and maintain your interest in her, the more she will want to get your attention all to herself.

However, don’t try to play hard to get if you don’t know how to attract other women. If a woman notices that you’re playing hard to get with her, but if no other women seem to be interested in you or you don’t seem to have the ability to attract other women, she’s not going to be excited to secure you for herself.

A woman will know that you are worth chasing if you can trigger her feelings of sexual attraction for you when you interact with her. She will know that if you can make her feel that way, you will be able to attract other women too.

The next thing that most women don’t need in a man is...

3. A bad boy

If a guy considers himself to be a “nice” guy, but notices that the women he likes are attracted to guys who aren’t as nice as he is, he will often make the mistake of thinking that women want a bad boy who treats them mean.

Yet, what is really going on in most cases is that the “nice” guy is making the mistake of thinking that the key to a woman’s heart is to treat her like a princess and be really, really nice to her.

What he doesn’t understand is that women do like nice guys, but only if the nice guy also makes her feel sexually attracted (e.g. by being confident, charismatic, masculine, flirtatious, etc).

Women do not want a bad man to treat them mean or disrespect them, but many women would rather have sex with a bad boy than a weak, wimpy, overly-nice guy. That doesn’t mean that a bad boy is a woman’s perfect type of guy, but that he is simply making her feel more attraction than the nice guy (e.g. by being masculine, confident, etc).

What almost all women really want is a confident, emotionally strong good guy because he is not only attractive, but he is also a better option for the long term compared to a reckless bad boy. Yet, finding a confident, emotionally strong good guy is like finding a needle in a haystack, so many women make do with a bad boy until something better comes along.

Being the Type of Man That Most Women Want

If you are interested in being the type of man that most want, then you need to start by improving your ability to attract women.

Although there are some women out there who place a lot of importance on a guy's looks and money, the majority of women are much more open and flexible about what they find attractive in a guy.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Feel Depressed and Lonely: How Can I Be Happier and Have More Friends?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

As a man, life definitely feels much better when you are loved and wanted by women and you when you have a lot of great friends who love you, want to spend time with you, respect you and understand you.

Yet, when those things are present in your life, you may find yourself getting to the point where you say, “I feel depressed and lonely.”

So, what is the solution? How can you get yourself away from feeling depressed about your lack of success with women or your possible lack of great friends?

Well, that depends...

If you are feeling depressed and lonely because you're not successful with women or don't have enough great friends, it means that you are either:

1. Not meeting enough women or giving yourself opportunities to meet people and make friends, or;
2. Meeting enough women and trying to make friends, but women aren't feeling attracted to you and people aren't interested in being your friend.

So, let's have a look at where you might be going wrong and what you need to do to turn your life around...

Do You Know How to Make Women Feel Attracted to You?

As I explain in the video below, the real reason why a lot of good guys fail with women is that they don't actually know how to attract women.

For example: When you interact with a woman, you can actively make her feel attracted to you by displaying confidence, being charismatic, being charming, using humor, having a masculine vibe and many other things too.

So, if you are interacting with women and they aren't feeling attracted, then you probably aren't displaying those traits or you are displaying some of them, but you are also displaying traits that turn women off at the same time (e.g. nervousness, self-doubt, suppressing your masculinity, being too nice, trying hard to impress, etc).

Do You Know How to Make People Want to Be Your Friend?

As a man, the way to make people want to be your friend is to:

1. Love and accept them for who they are (i.e. don't try to change people when talking to them, don't expect them to change who they are to make you feel comfortable).
2. Love and accept yourself who you are (i.e. understand and remember that you are a unique individual in this world and your unique, original personality is cool, valuable, worthy and loveable. Love yourself, appreciate yourself, embrace who you are).

3. Don't suppress your natural charisma (i.e. don't put on an act, don't doubt yourself, don't hold back from being yourself).
4. Have big goals/ambitions/dreams in life and work hard to achieve them (i.e. be someone who others can look up to and respect. Don't hide from your true potential as a man).

If you can approach life in that way where you are confident, forward moving guy who loves himself, but also loves and accepts others, then you are the type of guy that people will love to be around.

However, if you just try to be liked by loving and accepting people for who they are, but you don't actually love yourself (i.e. you have low self-esteem, doubt yourself, don't think you are worthy, etc), then most people aren't going to want to be your friend.

Think about the types of guys that you would love to be friends with and you will realize that they are more confident than you. They are also probably rising through the levels of their true potential as a man and going after their biggest dreams and ambitions in life.

Do You Know How to Be Happy as a Man?

As a man, you will be happy when you:

1. Embrace your destiny

We could argue all day and night if destiny or fate is real, but I think one thing is for sure: You have a purpose here in this life.

Whether than purpose is random or whether it is fate or destiny is open for debate, but you are important and there is something that you are here to do.

What I've found is that when a person (not just a man) stops fighting against the signs that they are getting from life and instead embraces the roles that they seem destined to play out, life is much more peaceful, happy and meaningful.

In other words, you know that you have something big that you dream about doing, being or achieving in this life. If you want to feel happy with yourself, you must stand up and start making progress towards the accomplishment of that dream.

If you hide away from it out of fear of failure or rejection, you will always feel depressed and down about you, your life and your place in this world.

Only you know what you really want to achieve in this life. No-one can tell you what that is. It has to come from deep within and has to be something that you really care about doing, achieving or being.

When you make progress towards that, you will naturally begin to feel happy and you will also be the sort of forward moving man that women feel attracted to and men want to be friends with.

2. Have your choice with women

Most guys never get taught how to attract women and grow up feeling clueless about how they are going to get women to like them.

Turn on a TV and you will be told that you have wear moisturiser, have six pack abs, drive a sports car and be a billionaire to get a hot girl. Watch a music video by a female pop artist and you will see her hooking up with male models. Watch a Hollywood movie and you will see nervous, awkward nice guys getting the girl by the end of the movie after saving the world.

Understanding what women want via the media will lead you down a path of confusion, insecurity and even depression. Yet, learn what women want from someone like me who worked out how to be happy as a man and you too will be happy and have your choice with women.

In the past, men didn't have to worry about having their choice of women or knowing how to attract women. A man would be a virgin until marriage, get married and then stay with his wife for life, even if they weren't happy because it was shameful to get divorced.

Not anymore.

The world has changed beyond recognition and it's no longer possible for a guy to hope that a woman will stay with him for life, even though he doesn't know how to deepen (or even maintain) her feelings of love, respect and attraction for him over time in a relationship.

These days, you have to know how to attract women when you meet them so you can have your choice of women, but also because women no longer need to quickly settle down with one of the first guys they meet.

Women can have access to 1,000s of different guys via online dating and 100s of guys by going out every weekend to bars, clubs and parties. It's easy for women to meet guys these days, so they don't have to settle for whatever they can get.

If you want to be happy as a man in today's world, you've got to know how to attract women when you meet them, so you can have your choice of women. If you go through life never even knowing how to attract women, you will have to rely on hopefully getting lucky and then hoping that the woman doesn't dump you, cheat on you or divorce you later on.

I know this all too well because it happened to me. I didn't know how to attract women, but I got lucky with a girl who later cheated on me and dumped me because I didn't even know what it took to maintain her attraction, respect and love in a relationship.

I also know this too well because I help new guys everyday who are in the process of getting an ex girlfriend, fianc  or wife back. In every case, the guy has been unable to deepen the woman's feelings of love, respect and attraction for him and this isn't because the guy lacks intelligence, but that he lacks the education that is necessary for success with women in today's world.

It's not 1900 anymore. Today's women make their own money and can sleep with whoever they want. If a woman isn't happy in a relationship, she can leave and find a new guy.

So, if you want to be happy as a man in today's world, at least make sure that you know how to attract women when you meet them and then deepen the attraction in a relationship. Otherwise, you will face a lot of initial rejection when meeting women and you will struggle to keep a relationship together.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to have your choice with women...

Are You Meeting Enough New, Single Women?

When a guy is feeling depressed and lonely, he will often say that he has tried to meet women, but none of them are single or that every great woman he meets is already taken.

Yes, many beautiful women are taken, but the reason why other guys are able to get new, hot girlfriends is that they keep meeting more women until they find some beautiful ones who are single. Part of being a happy person is to focus on the positives and any little bit of progress that you make. For example: If a guy goes out to approach women and only one of the hot women that he meets is single, he could walk away and think in a negative way, which would lead him to feel more depressed, or he could focus on the positive, which would maintain his happy, confident, forward moving state.

Negative thought: "Seeâ€¦all hot women are taken. What's the point? I'll never get a hot girlfriend."

Positive thought: "Coolâ€¦I met one hot, single woman tonight. Next time I go out, I will hopefully meet another and this time around, I will make sure that I've improved my ability to attract women, so I will get a much better result."

One of the main reasons why I was able to become successful with women so quickly, was that I refused to focus on the negatives. I used any bit of positive progress or sign to fuel my feelings of confidence, happiness and determination. Before long, I was having sex with hotties and the rest is history.

So, if you have found yourself saying, "I feel depressed and lonely" and you want to have more success with women, make sure that you are focussing on the positives and using that to fuel your feelings of happiness, confidence and determination to succeed.

Believe me, thinking in a positive, forward moving way leads to a much better life than focusing on any negatives you encounter.

What you need to realize is that you are a cool, unique individual. Your life does matter and you are the type of guy that women would love to be with. You've just got to start believing that and acting on that belief by feeling confident and going after what you want with women.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Sexual Conversation Examples to Use When Meeting Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are a couple of examples of sexual things that you can say to a woman when you meet her for the first time.

The first example is...

1. When she is tapping her straw up and down in her drink

[image: Flirting with women about how they are playing with their drink straw]

You: [Smile and look at her playing with the straw. Look her in the eyes, look back at the straw and then back to her eyes again] I like what you're doing with the straw there.

Her: [Most-likely laughing, feeling self-conscious and stopping what she was doing]

You: [Smile and say] You were slamming that straw up and down there...it was like, "Bang...bang...bang!" You're naughty, but I like it.

You can then have a laugh with her about it. In this case, you are making a joke about her raising the straw up and down in her drink by looking at it as her being sexually suggestive.

Women will often play with their drink like that when they are feeling nervous or when they are trying to appear a bit girly and shy to show the guy that they are feeling sexually attracted to him.

2. When she is stroking a bottle or glass up and down

[image: Sexual conversation at a party]

You: [Smile and look at her fingers stroking the bottle up and down, look her in the eyes and the back to the bottle. Then have a bit of a laugh as you say] Look at youâ€¦you're going to town on that bottle.

Her: [Most-likely laughing, feeling self-conscious and stopping what she was doing]

You: [Smile and say] I didn't know you felt that way about long, thick bottles.

You can then have a laugh with her about it. In this case, you are suggesting that she is stroking the bottle in a sexually suggestive way. When referring to the long, thick bottle, you are obviously referring to a penis.

At this point, some guys might be worried and think, "But, I don't have a long, thick penis...I just have an average one." Yeah, so do I, but girls don't care about that. As long as you are making her feel turned on by you, she will enjoy the feeling of your dick sliding into her even if it average or a bit smaller than average.

As women often say, "It's what a guy does with it that counts" and by that they basically mean that if your behavior, vibe, body language and actions are turning her on, she will not be worried about the size of your junk.

For example: If you're not worried about trying to look good and are simply being present and giving her your raw, confident masculinity.

When a woman sees that you're not worried and are just being a raw, masculine man, she naturally feels feminine and it triggers a deep, sexual attraction for you. Then, anything that you are doing to her physically feels all the more better because she is mentally and emotionally turned on.

Yes, it is true that some women out there only want a huge, baby-arm sized penis, but most women really don't care about the size. Personally speaking, I've had sex with more than 250 women and none of them ever complained, even though mine is just average sized.

[image: Sexual conversation at a party]

So, don't ever worry about making jokes about long, thick bottles if a woman is stroking a beer bottle or a long, thick champagne glass if you don't have a monster-sized penis. Just focus on making her feel attracted to you and then escalate to kissing and sex. Both of you will then be feeling reeeal good.

When Not to Say Something Sexual

Have you ever noticed that some guys are able to say very sexual things to women and get a laugh, a kiss and then get laid, whereas other guys get scorned, told off and rejected?

Why is that?

Simple.

Before you say anything sexual to a woman, you must make sure that you are triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you.

For example: If a nervous guy starts talking to a woman and is trying hard to be "liked" by her for being a nice guy, then she's not going to like it when he switches the conversation to become more sexual.

However, if a confident guy is talking to a woman and is triggering her feelings of attraction (e.g. by being confident, charismatic, masculine, charming, funny, etc), then she will be much more likely to love it and laugh when he says something sexual.

How about you? Do you know how to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for you when you interact with her? Watch this video to find out!|

As you will discover from the video above, you have a lot of control over how much or little attraction a woman feels for you. If you want women to enjoy it when you bring up something sexual in a conversation, make sure that you focus on making her feel attracted to you first.

If a woman feels sexually attracted to you, she will also then be interested in talking to you further, connecting with and ultimately, kissing you, having sex with you and beginning a relationship with you if that's what you both want.

Mistakes That Turn a Woman Off the Idea of Sex

It's actually very easy to attract a woman and make her feel open to the idea of flirting about her sexual interest or talking about sex with you.

However, when a guy makes one of the following classic mistakes, most women raise their guard and become closed off sexually!|

1. Being too nice

There's nothing wrong with being a good guy, having manners, respecting women and treating women well.

However, if a guy is being too nice to a woman in the hope that it makes her like him enough to “give him a chance” to have sex with her, he will almost always get rejected.

Here’s why...

As you will discover from the video above, a woman will actually appreciate the fact that you are a nice guy (or a good guy) if you first make her feel sexually attracted to you.

2. Being insecure about his sex appeal to her

Guys often don’t realize the fact that most women are much more attracted to a guy’s confidence, personality, behavior and vibe than his looks.

Yes, some women only want a tall, perfect looking, male model with loads of money. Yet, the majority of women are much more flexible about what they find sexually attractive and appealing in guys.

Watch this video to understand how a woman’s attraction really worksâ€¦

When a guy lacks confidence in his sex appeal to a woman, he will often display behaviors that will turn her off.

For example: He will find it difficult to maintain eye contact with her, he will hesitate to touch her, he will try really hard to impress her and he will generally come across in a way that suggests she is much more sexually valuable than he is.

If he then tries to bring up sex when talking to her, make sexual comments or add in innuendos, the woman will almost always react in a negative way. She will accuse him of being rude, tell him that she doesn’t like to be spoken to in that way or act offended.

Yet, if a confident guy who believed in himself said the same thing to her with a confident, relaxed smile and masculine vibe, she would almost certainly love it. Feeling attracted to his confidence and masculine vibe, she wouldn’t be able to stop herself from smiling back at him and giving him a flirtatious look.

3. Making her feel as though she is emotionally stronger than he is

If a woman gets the sense that a guy feels intimidated by her and the interaction, she will naturally feel turned off by him because women are sexually attracted to the strength in men and turned off by the weakness.

For example: If a guy appears nervous when she challenges him during conversation, or if he scrambles for something to say if she suddenly stops contributing to the conversation.

For a woman to feel sexually turned on, she needs to feel as though the man is mentally and emotionally strong enough to handle any challenging behavior that she tests him with.

If he crumbles when he challenges her, she knows that he doesn’t have what it takes to give her the type of dating, sex and relationship experience that she really wants.

If she hooked up with him, she would have to go easy on the testing and just be very submissive, otherwise he would feel as though he is getting rejected and give up. If she got into a relationship with him, he would most likely becoming clingy, needy, insecure and jealous if she gradually tested him by pulling back some of her interest and affection.

So, rather than having to deal with all that emotional crap, she would rather just reject him and hope to be approached by a confident, alpha male instead.

4. Being sleazy, rather than using classy flirting

Some guys have absolutely no idea how to flirt or use body language to seduce a woman. Being too forward, sleazy, crass or vulgar or touching a woman in ways that she finds offensive, only serves in making her feel tense, defensive and completely turned off.

There is an art to flirting and I explain how to do it and why it works so well in this videoâ€¦|

Please click like on the video if you learn something useful from it. Thank you.

Talking About Sex With a Woman You've Just Met

These days, most women that you will meet at a bar, party, nightclub or social event have had plenty of sexual experience and have probably had a one night stand or had sex on a first date.

For example: A study in the USA found that 55% couples admitted to having had sex on their first date. Another study in Europe found that 70% of women admitted to having had a one night stand before.

So, when you're talking to a woman at a bar, party, nightclub or social event, don't talk to her like she is the most innocent little angel on Earth.

In most cases, she has had sex recently and will be open to more of it if the vibe feels right with you.

Imagine this...

You and a woman have been talking for more than 20 minutes straight, so she is obviously interested in you. During that time, you and her have gradually moved away from the group that she was in or you were in and you are exclusively focused on talking to each other.

You are flirting and laughing together and she seems relaxed and comfortable around you. At this point, you don't have to bring up sex, but you can if you are feeling daring and just want to go with the flow and see what happens.

Some examples of what to say include:

- So, what is it about me that turns you on so much?
- [If you're talking about food] Hey...do you like oysters? I hear that theyâ€¦re supposed to be great aphrodisiacs. When are you taking me out to eat oysters?
- Do you like soft, sensual kisses or intense, passionate kisses?
- Kissing in public...yes or no?
- Which body part do you like being kissed on the most, apart from your you know what?
- [If she is applying her lipstick] What flavor is your lipstick? Can I taste it?

However, just remember the most important thing of allâ€¦|

You must have made her feel sexually attracted to you before you say something like that. Don't attempt to say something like that to a woman after using the nice guy approach on her, because it will not work.

Attraction comes first and everything else follows on naturally after that.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What Do Women Fantasize About?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The first thing that you need to know is that fantasies are just that — fantasies.

What women fantasize about in the privacy of their own mind, is not necessarily what they want to have happen to them in real life. Take a moment to think about your own private fantasies regarding women — and you will immediately understand that.

Just because you have an erotic fantasy about doing something to a woman or having something done to you, it doesn't always mean that you will want to act out — that fantasy in real life. It may just be something that you enjoy thinking about in the privacy of your own mind.

So, with all that said, what do women fantasize about?

According to the Top 10 lists of many women's magazines, some of the common female fantasies include:

1. Stranger Danger

Having sex with a random stranger is one of the most popular female fantasies and in many cases the fantasy revolves around being raped or — taken — by surprise by a man that she likes, but hasn't yet had sex with. However, this is why it's important for guys to realize that fantasy and reality are two entirely different things.

A woman privately fantasizing about rape does not mean that she actually wants to be raped in reality. In most cases, the — stranger danger — fantasy a woman has in her mind involves a scenario with a mysterious and handsome man who takes her by surprise.

She will feel overpowered by his masculine strength and despite her resistance, he will continue and she will then come to enjoy it.

2. Sex in Public

An important element of this fantasy is the — danger — of being watched by others.

If she loves, respects and feels attracted to her boyfriend or husband, the sex that she imagines having will be with him. The secret onlookers are almost always strangers who are either shocked or potentially interested in joining in.

3. Striptease

In this fantasy, a woman performs a sexy striptease for an audience of her choosing, whether it's her current boyfriend or a room full of strangers.

For example: She may fantasize about taking off all of her clothes in an office meeting and spreading her legs wide open on the boardroom table. The room then erupts into an orgy, with her at the center of it all.

I would also add in a number 4 here...

4. Being "Taken" By Her Man

A woman once admitted to me that she was extremely turned on by how I "took her" one day.

She was wearing a short skirt and kneeling on a chair as she looked out the window of my apartment, which overlooked a shopping street. I walked up behind her, pulled her panties to the side in a rough but controlled manner, rubbed her pussy for a few moments and then, when hard, slid inside of her.

Prior to doing that, I didn't say anything to her, I didn't ask her if she wanted it or do anything other than just have my way with her.

Months later, she told me that remembering that moment still turned her on and that whenever she was missing me, should think about that and want to "jump my bones" as she put it. In other words, she would fantasize about me and probably have a little masturbation session as a result.

Anyway, so there's a bit of a peak into the private, sexual mind of women. However, a word of warning: I recommend that you avoid placing too much importance on the details of everything little that women fantasize about.

Some guys make the mistake of thinking that they need to somehow turn all of a woman's fantasies into a reality in an effort to become her "dream man." This is not what 99% of women want or need. A woman may want you to bring some of her fantasies to life sometimes, but not all of them and not all of the time.

You don't have to do extraordinarily erotic things to be a woman's perfect man or to please her sexually. What goes on in her private mind is completely different to what she will actually allow herself to experience in real life.

For example: If you think about the striptease fantasy that erupts into an orgy in the office setting, you will realize that it isn't something that people are actually going to go along with in reality.

She knows that, but the thought of people being so sexual, erotic and loose with their inhibitions feels exciting to fantasize about. It gets her wet and she can masturbate to erotic idea. After the masturbation session, she can go back to a more "normal" way of approaching her sex and love life.

Yes, it would be great if she could do that in real life, but it's pretty obvious that if a woman jumped up on the boardroom table, took her clothes off and spread her legs wide open to show her mound, she'd probably lose her job.

Getting Her to Act Out Her Private Fantasies

Knowing what women fantasize about is not the same as knowing what women actually want in reality.

For example: If a guy suggests to his girlfriend that she should do a sexy striptease for him because he's hoping it will give her an opportunity to act out a fantasy, he's potentially putting her in a position she will feel uncomfortable and therefore not at all sexy.

Psychologists suggest that the reason the striptease fantasy is so popular is that it gives a woman the opportunity to drop all of her inhibitions in her mind and just totally let go. In real life, all of those inhibitions would still be with her unless she was seriously high on drugs or very drunk on alcohol.

Some women are comfortable and confident enough to put on a striptease for a man or a group of people, but most women aren't. A lot of women have insecurities about their body and lack the confidence to show their full nude body and dance and move in a sexually appealing way like a stripper.

Why Fantasize?

Fantasies are pretty much pure escapism and nothing more.

It's a chance to imagine your own version of the world and see what that feels like. If it's erotic and it turns you on, then great, but it doesn't mean that you or a woman absolutely must act out that fantasy in real life to be happy.

If you're asking, What do women fantasize about? because you think it will help you to understand what women really want in a man, then you are barking up the wrong tree.

Think about some of the things that you've fantasized about when it comes to women. Some of your deepest, even darkest fantasies that you would never tell anyone about...

As you would know, regardless of how enjoyable your private fantasies may be, you still feel intense attraction for women who don't have anything to do with that type of fantasy situation.

Fantasies are just a chance for a human being to escape the confines of their reality. The person can take their fantasy as far as they want to and do really bad or naughty things, without hurting anyone's feelings in real life.

Old School Views on Fantasies Vs. New School

Way back in 1908, the famous psychologist Sigmund Freud stated that, A happy person never fantasizes, only a dissatisfied one.

The attitudes of modern-day psychologists are very different to Freud's, in that fantasies are no longer considered to be a sign of unhappiness. Instead, attempting to act out those fantasies in real life is a fairly good indicator that the person involved is dissatisfied with their life.

Recent research has also found that men who are happy in their relationships and satisfied with their sex lives fantasize less than men who are unhappy, so Freud's theory holds up for men, but it's a different story for women.

Personally speaking, I can attest to the fact that ever since I met my sexy girlfriend (who recently became my wife), I haven't had the natural desire to fantasize about having sex with other women. I'm happy with her and wouldn't want another woman getting in the way of that. Besides, my wife is more than enough woman for me.

Back, when I was having sex with new women every week in my dating days, I simply didn't have much time to fantasise about other women because I was having sex with real women (250 in total, before I recently settled down).

However, back when I was hopeless with women and was single and alone for a long time, I would have all sorts of erotic fantasies about women. I was very frustrated that women didn't like me or want me sexually, so a lot of my fantasies were about me having my way with women...even if they didn't want it initially.

I would imagine myself getting my way with women (I won't go into details, but you can probably imagine) and that would turn me on. Yet, regardless of how good the fantasy felt, my real life still felt like crap because women still didn't want me.

It wasn't until I figured out how to naturally attract women in person that everything turned around for me and has been great ever since. I no longer have any desire to fantasise about getting my way with women because I've had my way with women for more than 10 years now.

To be honest, if anything, I think about women trying to get a chance with me because that is what is still see in my every day.

For example: Waitresses often still flirt with me (e.g. flirting glances, coming over for a quick interaction, etc when my wife goes off to the toilet when we're at a restaurant), some of my female friends still have a secret crush on me and flirt with me and some of my wife's friends can't fully hide their sexual attraction for me either.

So, from my perspective, there is absolutely no desire to fantasize about hopefully getting my way with other women. Instead, I hope that other women stay out of my way, so my wife and I can enjoy each other and the love that we share for life.

I still look at other women as sexy and attractive, but there is no need to fantasize about being with them. Instead, they can fantasize about me if they want, lol...

Becoming the Type of Man that Women Fantasize About

When you have ability to turn a woman on in person, you will automatically become the guy that she fantasizes about. The more attraction that you make her feel for you, the more intense that her sexual desire will be for you.

Watch this video to understand how to make a woman feel intense attraction for you...

As you will discover from the video above, you actually have a great deal of control over the way a woman feels about you.

For example: If you make a woman feel attracted to you by being confident, charismatic, charming, masculine (in your vibe, conversation style, body language, etc), she will naturally begin to have sexual feelings for you.

You did that.

You actively made her feel that way.

Can you see how it works? Can you understand that how much attraction a woman feels for you is pretty much within your control?

When you can also create a unique, emotional connection between you and a woman during an interaction, she will begin to imagine being girlfriend and falling madly in love with you.

If she happens to be masturbating at home alone, she will think about some of the moments where you were confident and masculine and then imagine what you might do to her when you eventually have sex with each other. She will imagine you confidently having your way with her, while also being loving and affectionate.

That doesn't mean that you have to live up to her exact fantasy when you actually have sex, but she will hoping that you can be confident, masculine and make her feel feminine and girly in response to your masculine approach.

Getting Her to Fantasize About You

Studies have revealed that the more sex a woman has and the happier that she is with her sex life, the more likely it is that she will fantasize about sex.

If a woman is happy with the sex and the level of sexual attraction that she feels for her man, it will be more likely that she will fantasize about having sex with him, which is a win-win situation for both parties.

It has been proven that a woman's sexually fantasies about a man can boost her sexual appetite for him and this is great news for the man in her life because he gets to play the starring role in both her fantasies and her reality.

Essentially, the more a woman wants to have sex with you in real life, the more she will fantasize about having sex with you in her fantasies. The more she fantasizes about you in private, the more she will want to have sex with you in reality.

Getting a Woman to Want to Have Sex With You in Reality

A woman will want to have sex with a guy in real life if he is able to trigger her feelings of respect, attraction and lustful desire. As a man, you are born with that ability and simply need to turn it on.

If you listen to what women say about what they want in a man, you will rarely hear them accurately explain the way that their attraction for men really works. For example: A woman will often say that she wants a nice, sweet guy who listens and cares.

Yet, in real life, women are sexually turned on by confident, masculine men who, by way of their thinking, behavior, attitude, vibe and actions, make her feel girly and feminine in his presence.

So, don't get caught up in trying to find out what women want by listening to what they say or what they fantasize about in the privacy of their mind.

If you don't really know how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to make women want to have sex with you in real life, watch this...

As you will discover from the video above, the way that your personality, behavior, vibe and attitude makes a woman feel is much more important than mere looks.

For example: If a guy who has the type of alpha male confidence and masculinity (i.e. how he thinks, feels, behaves and takes action) to make a woman feel girly and feminine in his presence, she will naturally feel more attracted to him than a nervous, good looking guy.

If confident, masculine guy happens to be a good guy, then he is what women refer to as a "catch" or a "keeper." I refer to guys like that as good guy alpha males and women know that these guys get snapped up very quickly by other women.

When you interact with a woman and she senses that you're a good guy alpha male, she will switch on and will want to see if she can get you for herself.

By the way...

Some guys don't like the idea of being an alpha male because they mistakenly confuse that with being a bad boy, jerk or selfish asshole. Yet, that isn't what being an alpha male is really about or what women are actually looking for.

On a deep and instinctive level, today's women are still looking for the same type of provider and protector male that their female ancient ancestors looked for when survival conditions were a lot tougher than they are now.

In today's world, a woman no longer needs a man with the physical strength to hunt down their next meal or kill invading tribes, but she does need a man with the mental and emotional strength to survive and thrive in modern society.

She also needs a man who has what it takes to take the lead in a relationship, which then allows her to feel like a feminine woman who is being protected by a more masculine force than her.

When you are the type of guy that she can look up, respect and feel protected by, she will naturally feel attracted to you, enjoy having sex with you and fantasize about having even more sex with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Why Don't Women Approach Men?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

We might be now living in a time that is a far cry from the “hunter and gatherer” world that our distant ancestors lived in, but when it comes to the basics of sexual attraction, not much has changed. Modern women still want men to have the confidence to approach them, rather than women having to be ballsy enough to approach men. Women still want to be the “chosen one” rather than the one who does the choosing.

Why?

Well, it all comes down to survival instincts...

A woman's attraction to a man is directly linked to his potential to survive, thrive and protect her.

It's often difficult for guys to remember that we're literally living on a planet in an apparently infinite universe of possibilities. Down here on planet Earth, life has always been challenging for humans and there have always been threats to our survival both personally and as a species.

Despite all the progress that humanity has made, we are still often just a natural disaster away from basic survival.

[image: Natural disaster - tornado]

Just because everyone is showered and wearing nice, clean clothes in bars, nightclubs, cafes and shopping malls, it doesn't mean that they can't be forced back into basic survival in an instant.

It's highly unlikely that a natural disaster is going to strike your city tomorrow, leaving you cut off from food, power and water and having to fend for yourself, but it is a possibility. Even though women never talk about these things, it is the possible threats to her survival that really drive her attraction for a man.

Essentially, are you the sort of guy who can stay strong, be smart and survive when things get rough, or are you the type of guy who would have trouble surviving amongst alpha males?

If you suddenly had to approach people and make friends and alliances in a basic survival situation, would you be an alpha male that other men respect or would you be ignored, pushed around and taken advantage of? Would she have to make alliances with people because you lack the social confidence to approach and talk to people?

Again, it's highly unlikely that you would be put into that position in our modern, shopping mall society, but it is a possibility and at the core of a woman's attraction for a man is her instinctive analysis of his ability to survive should shit hit the fan.

Women instinctively know that they need to find a mentally and emotionally strong man who can handle the challenges of life. However, if a woman approaches a guy herself, she can't be sure whether or not he would have been confident enough to approach and talk to her on his own.

If he doesn't have the confidence to do that, how confident will he be when life gets challenging? Will he be the sort of man who gets into a relationship with her and then never strives to follow through on his biggest dreams and ambitions in life, or does he have the type of personality and mindset that will ensure he rises up and reaches his true potential as a man?

Rather than giving mentally or emotionally weak guys a chance to be with her, a woman will usually just wait to be approached by a confident guy who goes after what he wants, even though it might be challenging and he might not get a positive result every time.

When you look at the world from a bigger picture perspective, it only makes sense that women are instinctively turned off by guys who are afraid to take a chance and go after what they want. It's not good for the strength and survival of the human species for women to reward emotionally weak or insecure men with sex, love and devotion.

Imagine a world where women rewarded men for being afraid of approaching them...

Can you imagine it?

A guy would be hiding in the corner of a bar or a party and women would come over and say, "Hey, you look so scared...don't worry, mommy is here to save you."

Crazy world.

Thankfully, that ain't how this world works.

In the real world that you and I live in (and that you have to accept if you want to be successful with women now and for the rest of your life), women reject nervous, self-doubting men and instead reward confident men with sex, love and devotion.

This instinctive rejection of weak men by women forces men to either be confident enough to approach a woman and pass her tests, or work his ass off (e.g. build up a great career, build muscle in the gym, etc) to hopefully impress women in other ways.

In today's world, a lot of guys lack the confidence to approach women because women are often heard in the media (and in person) saying superficial things like, "Wowâ|look at his six pack abs" or "I only date handsome men" or "I want a rich man."

The apparent attraction that women seem to have for the superficial traits of men causes a lot of guys to feel insecure if they don't meet those requirements. Guys then worry about being rejected or laughed if they approach women.

Guys will say things like, "Women are all shallow, money hungry bitches" or "Women only want handsome men these days" or "I'm not going to approach women until I'm successful in my career because all they want is a rich guy."

Yet, all around them, women are having sex with, getting into relationships with and even marrying guys who are not rich and who don't look like male models.

Most Women Don't Want to Make it Too Easy For You to Pick Them Up

[image: Approaching women at a bar]

If you approach a woman, don't expect her to make the whole process of picking her up easy and without any obstacles. Instinctively, she is programmed to test your confidence in yourself to check whether or not you are truly an emotionally secure, confident guy.

Some guys make the mistake of working up the courage to approach women, but then actively look for signals that the women aren't interested. When he picks on those signals, he then quickly exits the interaction and walks away feeling like he's been rejected yet again.

What these guys often fail to realize is this many women suddenly stop contributing anything to a conversation to see if a guy will lose confidence in himself. Women instinctively do that to quickly “sort out the men from the boys,” because women don’t want to end up with an emotionally insecure guy.

The way that attraction works is that women instinctively seek to breed strength, courage and skill into the human race via men, whereas we men instinctively seek to breed beauty and health into the human race via woman.

That’s not to say that women don’t appreciate healthy, good-looking guys, but the fact is that a woman’s attraction for a man is primarily based on his ability to survive, thrive and protect her. If a guy is good looking, it is seen as a bonus to most women, but it’s not the ultimate attraction trigger for women.

Most women can go without a guy being good looking as long as he has the type of personality, behavior and mindset that will allow him to survive, thrive and hopefully protect her throughout life. These days, a lot of guys spend years in the gym building up their body to hopefully become physically attractive enough for women. Other guys spend years building up a career in the hope that women will be impressed enough to give them a chance one day.

While there is nothing wrong with working out in the gym or building up your career and becoming successful as a man, you do not need either of those things to get laid or get a girlfriend today.

Watch this video to understand why you can attract a lot of beautiful, sexy, loving women with what you’ve got right now as a man...

As you will discover from the video above, when you know how to attract women, there is nothing to fear when approaching women.

Most of the single women that you approach will feel attracted to you and be interested in kissing you, having sex with you and starting a relationship with you, so you are simply going around choosing which women get to have a chance with you.

Most guys in this world approach women and hope to be “liked” for being a nice guy, looking good or showing that they can provide for her (e.g. buy her drinks, offer to take her out on expensive dates, offer to take her on a holiday, etc).

Rather than focussing on making the woman feel attracted, these guys hope that they can get lucky and find a woman who will give them a chance because they are so nice, have good intentions, etc.

Yet, that approach to women results in a lot of rejection and it also is one of the common causes of relationship break ups.

The smartest of men are those who use their personality to attract women. For example: If a guy approaches a woman and attracts her with his confidence, charisma, charm and humor, he won’t have to spend money on drinks, wine and dine her for weeks on dates or offer to buy her pretty things.

She will like him for who he is, not what is buying her or offering to buy her. If he doesn’t have male model looks, most women will not care and will actually come to like the way that he looks because it is him.

Regardless of How Much the World Has Changed, Women Still Want an Alpha Male

[image: Approaching women at the gym]

Today's woman can earn her own money, be protected by the police, media and courts and can get food from supermarkets and grocery stores. She can buy her own house, drive her own car and call her own shots in life.

Yet, when it comes down to what she instinctively finds attractive about men, nothing has changed. Women still feel the most amount of attraction for guys who display alpha male thinking and behavior. Alpha male thinking and behavior essentially means that a guy believes in himself, knows what he wants and goes after it with unrelenting confidence and determination.

Even though we now have supermarkets and smartphones, women still feel sexually drawn to guys who would be the best survivors if shit suddenly hit the fan. For example: If civil war broke out, a hurricane ripped through town or if there was a famine or drought.

Those events may seem unlikely, but the human instinct for survival is deep rooted and is at the source of a woman's attraction for a man. On the other hand, the source of your attraction to women is not about how strong they are, but it is instead about how beautiful and healthy a woman is.

If women were the ones to go around approaching men, how could they be sure that they'd found an alpha male or if they were making a mistake by breeding with a guy who is only confident because the woman approached him?

Women instinctively leave the approaching to men because it's the best way of ensuring that a guy is genuinely confident. When a guy does approach, most women will instinctively test his confidence by playing hard to get, not contributing a lot to the conversation or challenging him during a conversation.

Guys who don't understand women will think that they are being rejected, whereas the alpha males who either instinctively understand women or who have learnt to understand women will embrace the opportunity to make those women feel even more attracted to them.

When a woman challenges an alpha male's confidence by playing hard to get or going silent in a conversation and notices that he is still confident, relaxed and at ease, it then deepens her attraction and respect for him.

On the other hand, if a woman notices that a guy suddenly starts to doubt himself, become nervous and begin scrambling for something to say, she will know that he isn't genuinely confident and is hoping that women go easy on him.

Women Approaching Men in Movies

Have you ever noticed that in Hollywood movies, TV shows and music videos, women tend to approach men?

This is included in the movie because it is entertaining for some people to see a woman approaching a guy and hitting on him immediately (e.g. stuffing her phone number in his shirt pocket, saying "Call me," winking at him and then walking off).

Some women watching that might laugh and say, “Wow, I’d never do that...that girl is ballsy” and some guys watching might think, “Wow, if only I looked like that guy...then women would approach me and hit on me. I guess I have to hit the gym, wear better clothes and get a better hairstyle...”

Yes, women do approach some really good-looking guys in real life, but those women are usually unattractive, drunk or just approaching to show off to her friends for a laugh. If a good looking guy does get lucky is approached by a beautiful woman who is perfect for him, it is a very rare experience.

I know this because I often get contacted here at The Modern Man by guys say that they are good looking, but still can’t get a girlfriend. When I ask them if they approach women, it’s pretty much always a “No” or “I don’t have much time to approach and socialize with women.”

Here’s the thing...

If you want to enjoy sex, love and relationships with beautiful women who are truly compatible, you shouldn’t waste your time hoping that, one day, your perfect woman will approach you and then make it super easy for you to pick her up.

You have most-likely waste many years of your life waiting for that to happen already. Your precious, unique life here on this planet is ticking away and the more avoid your responsibility as a man to approach and choose women, the more you miss out on sex, love and relationships.

[image: Maybe women will approach if we just keep waiting]

Some guys hope that if they can just wait long enough or build up an amazing career, a woman will go easy on him and not care that he doesn’t have the type of masculine confidence to maintain her attraction in a relationship.

Many guys do “get lucky” and score themselves a woman for a while, but there is a reason why the divorce rate is so high these days.

Women no longer have to put up with a man who doesn’t have what it takes to deepen her love, respect and attraction over time, so many guys get dumped or divorced when a woman eventually realizes that she has settle for a guy who refuses to be the man she needs.

Approaching and picking up women really is an easy thing for us guy because we can attract women with our personality. Most women are simply waiting for a guy who has the confidence to approach and the ability to attract them enough to justify having sex and beginning a relationship.

Yes, some women are picky and only want a guy who is perfectly good looking like a model and has loads of money, but the majority of women are much more flexible and open about what they find attractive in a guy.

The majority of women in real life do not behave like women in Hollywood movies, TV shows and music videos. Women may go around saying that they only want to be approached by a tall, handsome man with loads of money, but the majority of them are open to being attracted and seduced by all sorts of guys.

However, if guys don’t approach, many women will simply wait it out in the hopes of eventually being approached by a confident guy who isn’t afraid of her and has the ability to attract her.

[image: Man approaching a woman at a bar]

So, if you’ve been asking yourself, “Why don’t women approach men?” it might be that you’ve been watching too many movies where beautiful women seem to approach guys and make it easy for them.

Yes, it would be nice if women were that easy, but they're not and there is a deep, instinctive reason why. We are little humans on a planet who are trying to carve out an existence amongst an infinite universe of possibilities. To achieve humanity's true destiny, we are going to need to become stronger and even more wiser than we are right now.

If you want to attract women, you need to let them see that you're not a fearful man. You are mentally and emotionally strong and you can handle anything that life throws at you.

When women see that in you, they feel naturally attracted and drawn to you. It's instinctive and regardless of what women might say (e.g. "I only want a handsome man") what most women actually feel the most attraction for is who you are as a guy on the inside.

Having a pretty face as a guy isn't going to ensure that you survive and thrive is the world suddenly descends into chaos (e.g. civil war, weather catastrophes, etc).

Women Want You to Choose Them

The way that the human mating dance works is that women have to show signs of health and beauty and if they are good enough, they will be chosen by an alpha male.

A mistake that a lot of men make these days is to spend a lot of time trying to make themselves look physically appealing in the hope that women choose them.

In other words, these days a lot of guys now think like a peacock bird...

[image: Peacock mating dance]

In the peacock bird species, the male bird is the colorful and pretty one and he has to look healthy and vibrant to attract the plain-looking, brown female. If he looks good enough, she will breed with him.

Yet, in the human species, it is the woman who needs to be pretty and healthy and if she is good enough, you can then make a decision to allow her to have a chance with you.

If you are going through life hoping to be chosen by women, then you're doing it wrong. The way that an alpha male (the type of guy that women are most attracted to) thinks is that he is more than good enough for women and he will decide which women get to have a chance with him.

A true alpha male knows that his attractiveness is based on his confidence, personality and emotional strength, not on how he looks. If he looks good, then good for him, but it's not absolutely necessary for a guy to look like a model to attract women, as you would have seen with your own eyes in the world around you.

Building Up the Confidence to Approach Women

Approaching women is very easy when you are confident in your ability to attract women.

For example: If you know that when you approach a woman, you're going to be able to attract her with your confidence, charisma, charm and humor, then you don't have anything to worry about.

When you know how to attract women, what happens is that most (not all) of the single women you meet feel a lot of attraction for you and want to kiss you, have sex with you and begin a relationship with you.

After experiencing those types of results for a short while, you eventually get to the point where you know that you are more than good enough for women.

Rather than feeling nervous about approaching women or asking, “Why don’t women approach men?” you simply approach women that you find attractive and enjoy an endless stream of sex, love and relationships until you are ready to allow one woman to be your girlfriend or wife.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Am I an Alpha Male?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Have you ever asked yourself the question, “Am I an alpha male?”

If you have asked yourself that question and answered, “Yes” then you probably don’t have any issues attracting women and keeping a woman happy in a relationship.

However, if you answered, “No” or “I’m not sure,” then have a think about your answers to the following questions...

1. Do you feel shy, anxious or nervous in social settings?

If you do feel shy, anxious or nervous in social settings, then you don’t have the mindset of an alpha male.

An alpha male feels totally at ease and comfortable in his own skin in any social environment. Why? He believes in himself and knows that he is more than good enough, to the point where he doesn’t waste any time comparing himself to other people and thinking, “Do I fit in here?” or “Do these people like me?”

Instead, he just allows his belief in himself to be the mindset from which he operates from and he then gets on with enjoying himself and doing whatever he wants. Even if he decides to sit down and not interact with people for an hour, he still doesn’t start doubting himself and worrying what people are thinking.

A guy who doesn’t have an alpha male mindset will worry that people are looking at him sitting down and not appearing to be interested in socializing. He might think something like, “Do people think I am a lonely outsider?” or “Have people realized that I don’t fit in here? Can they see how uncomfortable I am now feeling? Do they notice me?”

On the other hand, an alpha male will not question or doubt his place in the scene. He knows he is more than good enough and will talk and interact with people whenever he feels like it.

2. Do you doubt yourself around attractive women?

An alpha male decides that he is attractive to women and then doesn’t question it. Ironically, this actually makes him extremely attractive to women because he exudes the type of confidence that women are naturally attracted to.

A lower ranking male decides that he isn’t good enough for attractive women and tries hard to hopefully impress them and be liked enough to be “given a chance.” Women see his self-doubt and insecurity coming through via his body language, vibe, conversation and actions and it turns them off at a deep and instinctive level.

3. Do you allow selfishly dominant people to push you around?

A guy who isn’t an alpha male (i.e. a lower ranking male) will allow himself to be pushed around, taken advantage of or controlled by mean, selfish people who are more dominant than him.

For example: When talking amongst a group of people, a lower ranking male will be nervous about sticking to his opinion (even if he thinks it is right), if dominant people in the group begin to challenge his position.

He might be talking about how he really likes a certain sport or TV show and some dominant people in the group will say, “That TV show is shitâ€”only losers watch that crap” and he will then begin to back away from his support of the TV show. He might then say, “Well, I don’t like it that muchâ€”it’s okay.”

An alpha male knows who he is and what he stands for in life and he can be relied upon to always remain true to himself. His strength of character makes him someone who canâ€™t be pushed around.

If an alpha male decides that he likes a TV show and other people disagree, the alpha male won’t feel threatened by that. He doesn’t have to fight to stand up for his opinion and can simply smile, feel sorry for those who don’t like the same TV as he does, ask them why they don’t like it or challenge them for not being smart enough to understand it.

He will decide how he is going to respond, but he won’t worry about picking the perfect response. Why? An alpha male knows that he is good enough and doesn’t need to prove it to anyone. People pick up on that and it makes women feel attracted to him and men respect him.

4. Do you usually just follow, rather than standing up take on the responsibility to lead?

An alpha male does not have to lead everything, take control of everything or boss everyone around. Instead, he simply takes the lead when he wants to and lets other people lead when he wants them to.

A lower ranking male doesn’t feel comfortable in the position of leadership because he is worried about making a mistake, being challenged by other people, being rejected or being laughed at for trying to take the lead.

An alpha male knows that anyone can be a leader and a man just needs to step up and take on that type of responsibility when he feels like he can do it.

Common Confusion About What it Means to Be an Alpha Male

Amongst both men and women, there is a lot of confusion over what it means to be an alpha male.

A big part of the confusion comes down to the types of myths and stereotypes that are shown in movies, TV shows and music videos.

Itâ€™s for this reason that when a guy asks me, â€”Am I an alpha male?â€” I first have to make sure that his understanding of what it means to be an alpha male is based on real world facts and not Hollywood fiction.

For example...

1. Being alpha is not about being an arrogant asshole

In the movies, alpha males are usually portrayed as arrogant, selfish assholes. The opposing character is usually a shy, unassuming, nice guy who eventually teaches the arrogant asshole a lesson, saves the day (or saves the world) and then gets the girl in the end.

In college movies, the alpha males are usually the jocks and in workplace movies, they are usually the asshole boss or manager. In crime movies, the alpha male will be portrayed as the crime boss with lots of hot chicks and he will die in a hail of bullets from the nice guy sometime before the credits roll.

Back to reality...

In the real world, being an alpha male is simply about knowing what you want, believing that you deserve it and then going after it with unrelenting confidence.

At The Modern Man, we teach guys how to be good guy alpha males, not arrogant asshole alpha males. A good guy alpha male is the type of guy that women are attracted to, men respect and pretty much everyone wants to be friends with.

Think about the types of men that you respect most in real life (not fictional movie characters) and they are most-likely good guy alpha males.

2. Being an alpha male is not about being loud and obnoxious

Obnoxious (adjective): Highly offensive, unpleasant, disgustingly objectionable.

Yes, there are some loud, obnoxious guys who some people will label as an “alpha male,” but don’t let those guys cloud your ideas on what it means to be an alpha male.

If you understand how human psychology works, you will know that any type of extreme personality or behaviour is usually based on insecurity.

For example: If a guy is being loud or obnoxious, he is usually insecure about how much people like him. He has found that the louder and more obnoxious he is, the more attention he gets.

He may also run into trouble for being a prick to people, but as long as he can get enough people to like him, get laid and feel good about himself, he will often continue on throughout his life with that warped, insecure social strategy.

Emotionally secure alpha males (i.e. alpha males that are truly confident and are not insecure) are able to enjoy the full range of their personality.

For example: If he wants to be loud and funny in a certain situation, he will do that. If he wants to be quiet and brooding in another, he will do that. If he just wants to be relaxed, normal and average in another, he will do that too.

A true alpha male doesn’t need to put on a big show for anyone. He knows that he is more than good enough and simply does whatever he wants, whenever he feels like it, while also being respectful towards others – if he decides that they deserve it.

True alpha males have a relaxed, inner confidence that makes them stand out as men who know who they are and what they stand for in life. It is this genuineness that makes him the type of guy that both men and women want to hang out with.

3. Being alpha is not putting other men down

In the movies, the alpha male is the “top dog” who keeps other men in their place by putting them down at every opportunity (e.g. the bad ass crime boss, the asshole CEO of a company, etc).

Yet, once again, real life is not like the movies and belittling men does not make you a true alpha male. In the real world, true alpha males have no need to make other men feel small in an effort to feel better about themselves.

A true alpha male has so much inner confidence and self-esteem that he doesn’t need to put anyone down to feel good about himself. Instead, he has so much confidence and self-esteem that can afford to make other people feel good about themselves, without feeling like he is losing anything.

4. Being alpha is not about being physically strong

In today’s world, men rule with their minds rather than their muscles.

In the past, a bigger, stronger man could simply kill a smaller, weaker man and take his food, shelter and woman. There was no police, media or court system to protect physically weaker men and they either had to comply or be socially intelligent enough to lead bigger men without being beaten up or killed.

Fortunately, today's world is a little more civilized. Men can now be short, slim and still successfully rule an office, household, gang, community or even country. Although being tall and having muscles can make a guy appear to be alpha, it only matters if he is also mentally and emotionally alpha.

For example: No doubt you've come across some tall guys who are nervous around shorter guys and people in general. Likewise, no doubt you've also seen guys who have big muscles still looking nervous in social situations like bars, house parties, etc.

This is because muscles do not give you "alpha." To be alpha, you have to decide that you are. It's mostly about how you think, feel and behave, rather than how you look.

Yes, muscles will be a great addition if you want to go to the trouble of building them up. However, I don't have a gym body and I was the leader of more than 100 staff and 10 managers at an international company.

I then left and started The Modern Man and have lead that for more than 10 years now. I've had sex with more than 250 women and recently married my sexy 22-year-old girlfriend at age 37.

I have lots of friends who are tall, confident guys, but I am respected as an alpha male. I don't care how much or how little muscle a guy has; at the end of the day, I know that I am an alpha male and that's what counts.

Both men and women pick up on it via your body language, vibe, attitude, behavior and actions. It makes women feel attracted to you, men respect you and makes most people want to be your friend. It doesn't matter if you are overweight or have an athletic body, being alpha comes from within.

You don't need to look like The Rock (Dwayne Johnson) or a young Arnold Schwarzenegger to be an alpha male and if you're asking, Am I an alpha male? because you've been working your ass off at the gym to create a perfect tough guy image, then you've completely missed the point.

[image: Movie star muscle]

From left: Dwayne Johnson, Hulk Hogan, Sylvester Stallone and Arnold Schwarzenegger.

If you enjoy working out in the gym and building up muscle, then go ahead. There's absolutely nothing wrong with it at all, but just don't ever think that you are not yet an alpha male because your body doesn't look like The Rock.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Where Do Women Go to Meet Men?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The obvious places where single women go to meet men are bars, nightclubs, singles events and speed dating events.

However, if you have the confidence to approach women that you find attractive, you can literally meet women anywhere (e.g. through friends, at work or university, at a coffee shop, sports game, shopping mall, at a park during the day, etc).

[image: Women meeting and hooking up with men]

If you're asking, Where do women go to meet men? you may be hoping that going to places where women go to meet men will boost your chances of success. It might be that you've tried to approach women and just haven't been getting the types of results that you think you should be. Yet, just going to the places where women go to meet men is not going to guarantee your success. What will? You need to:

- Have the confidence to approach women that you find attractive.
- Spark the woman's attraction and interest for you.
- Keep the conversation going long enough to get to a phone number, kiss or sex that night.

Getting a hold of a big list of places that women might go to meet men isn't going to help you if you don't have the skills to pull off a pick up.

For example: Most women don't make it obvious that they want to be approached and will simply dress up and look pretty in the hope of being approached.

She might go to a weekend market, hang around in a bookstore, go to a community gathering, sit alone at a café or attend a recreational class (e.g. yoga, fitness, etc) in the hope that a confident guy will approach her, attract her and seduce her into handing over her number or going home with him to have sex.

Asking, Where do women go to meet men? may suggest that you're looking for some kind of list of places to go where women are going to be waiting and hoping to be approached.

Apart from speed dating events, women usually aren't going to make it obvious that they are at a certain location in the hopes of meeting a man. For example: You might have heard a woman say that she only goes to nightclubs to dance.

Yeah, right...

[image: Where women go to meet men]

She's simply saying, "I only go to nightclubs for the music and dancing" to not look slutty, easy or sexually active. While she certainly might enjoy dancing at a nightclub, she will also be there in the hope of getting laid, finding her next boyfriend or maybe even a husband.

So, knowing where to find women is not the same as knowing how to approach, attract and seduce women into having sex with you or going out on a date with you.

By the way...

"Seduce" might sound like a bit of dirty word to some guys. However, the truth is that women want to be seduced. Women can't go around making it obvious that they are interested in sex, because if they did, most guys would see her as slutty and wouldn't be able to trust her in a relationship.

A woman will secretly hope that she will get approached by a guy who not only knows how to trigger her feelings of sexual attraction, but also knows that she wants the experience of being seduced.

She will almost never admit to want to be seduced, but if you watch what she actually does in her private life, you will see that she is constantly being seduced into having sex and she's having a great time behind closed doors.

A guy who understands this won't expect a woman to make it obvious that she's interested in having sex and will simply move the interaction forward from a conversation to kiss, to sex and into a relationship.

Are You the Type of Guy Women Want to Meet?

Can you approach a beautiful woman and immediately attract her with your charismatic confidence? Can you strike up interesting conversations that excite women and turn them on? Do you know how to go from a conversation to a kiss and then to sex without making the woman feel cheap or as though you're moving too fast?

Unless a guy can answer, â€œYesâ€ to all of the above, then he's not the type of guy that women are desperately hoping to meet. Until a guy can offer women the kind of attraction experience that women crave, they aren't going to be very interested in giving him what he wants (i.e. sex, love, relationship).

If you want to be the type of guy that women are desperate to meet, you have to understand the reality that they live in. Watch this video to understand...

Meeting Women at a Singles Event

Imagine this...

You've gone to a singles event and you know that the women you see there are single and looking to meet guys. You get yourself a drink and stand by the bar or take a seat out of the way so you can watch what's going on.

You notice that some women are looking your way and you're pretty sure they're interested in you, but rather than walking over and getting an interaction started, you wait and hope that they come over to you.

Unless you're a perfect looking male model or if the woman is unattractive or drunk, it's almost always not going to happen.

Women expect men to approach because women don't want to be giving a "free pass" to nervous, insecure men.

Why? Imagine a world where women rewarded insecure, nervous men with sex and love. After several generations, the human race would begin to turn into a bunch of wimps and women may begin to take on the role as protectors of men.

It's just not going to happen.

Women reward confident, masculine men with love, sex and devotion. Rather than giving a free pass to men who lack confidence and masculinity (in how they think), they wait to be approached.

Of course, it doesn't work that way in Hollywood movies...

In the movies, on TV shows and in music videos, women are often shown to approach men and either immediately start kissing him, put their phone number in his pocket or ask him to go home for sex.

Yes, it would be nice if the world worked that way, but it doesn't.

In the real world, almost all women wait to be approached. If a guy approaches in a nervous way and doesn't have the ability to trigger her feelings of attraction, she will reject him or be cold towards him until he leaves.

However, if a guy approaches in a confident way and immediately attracts the woman with his charisma, masculine vibe and charm, she will automatically open up to him and see where it goes.

Do You Know How to Turn Women on When You Meet Them?

Make no mistake, women do want you to turn them on.

Women may behave as though they are innocent and uninterested in sex, but that is just a ploy to preserve your perception of them as being fresh, untouched and trustworthy.

These days, most women have experienced a one-night stand more than once and almost all women don't wait more than one date to have sex with a guy.

A study in America found that 55% of couples had sex on their first date and a European study found that 70% of women admitted to having experienced a one-night stand.

...and that's just what women are admitting when filling out the survey.

In most cases, women downplay the amount of sexual activity they've experienced, so those statistics are most-likely higher.

With that in mind, you need to understand that women do want you to turn them on when you meet them. Don't be fooled by the shy, innocent act that women put on. In most cases, the woman you are talking to has recently had sex and is open to having more.

If you want to turn women on when you meet them, you need to focus on triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you by displaying the traits and behaviors that naturally attract women.

For example: Confidence, masculine vibe, charisma, charm, humor, etc.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, there are many different ways that you can attract women and turn them on during an interaction.

If you go out to places where women go to meet men, you will get consistently awesome results if you focus on making women feel the way that they really want to feel around a guy.

Women are everywhere, so the question that you really need to ask is not, "Where do women go to meet men?" but "How can I be the type of guy that women are desperate to meet?"

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Should Men Shave Their Pubic Hair?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Lately, a number of men have written into The Modern Man to ask, “Should men shave their pubic hair?”

The answer is pretty simple: Do it if you want to, but you don’t need to shave your pubic hair to be sexually attractive to women.

If you want to be sexually attractive to a woman in the bedroom, the most important trait to display is confidence in your sex appeal to her. A woman wants to see that you’re not worried about a thing when you are naked in front of her and are simply offering her your raw, confident masculinity.

That is what really turns a woman on.

Even though you might hear women saying that pubic hair is gross, it doesn’t mean that she cannot feel sexually attracted and turned on by a man with pubic hair. Women say all sorts of superficial things about men (e.g. “I don’t like bald guys”) and often then hook up with and even marry men who have the traits they were complaining about.

The truth is, it doesn’t really matter to a woman if you have pubic hair or are shaved. It’s not going to be something that makes her think, “OMG, I cannot be in a relationship with this guy!” or “OMG, I am so grossed out and never want to have sex with him again.”

For 99.9% of human history, men have not had access to razors that are refined enough to shave the hairs on their ball sack. Some weirdo men might have “gone bald” because they have a fetish about it or it may have been cool in some remote tribes, but the majority of men just go natural.

As long as you have confidence in your sex appeal to a woman and allow her to experience your raw, masculine presence, she isn’t going to be focused on your pubic hair. She is going to be deeply enjoying the mental and emotional experience of being with a man who doesn’t think like a woman (i.e. you’re not concerned about your appearance).

A Very Weird Thing About Women’s Attraction to Men

When a woman feels attracted to a man for reasons other than his physical appearance (e.g. he is confident, charismatic, has a masculine vibe, etc), she then starts to look at his physical appearance in a more positive light.

Features that she may have previously complained about when talking with her girlfriends (e.g. a guy not having a six pack, a guy being bald, a guy having pubic hair, etc), will suddenly become something that she actually likes about a guy, as long as he is making her feel enough attraction for other reasons.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, a woman can actually come to like the fact that a guy either has pubic hair or doesn’t, simply based on the fact that she is feeling a lot of attraction for him for other reasons.

Since she is feeling so much attraction for him, she will begin to like his sort of style. For example: If he has a beard, but has shaved his pubic hair and he makes her feel intense attraction for other reasons (e.g. she feels girly in response to his masculine vibe, he's confident, etc), she will then start to say that she likes guys who have beards and bald balls.

Attraction is a really weird thing.

Women can be attracted to men for so many different reasons, so if you take what women say on face value, you will almost always feel confused about what women really want.

For example: Some women will go around saying that they only date handsome men, but she will then get into a relationship and marry a guy who is clearly not a handsome man. Instead, he will be very confident, masculine, charming, etc and will have made her feel enough attraction in those ways for her to begin looking at his physical appearance in a more positive light.

She will literally refer to him as being handsome or good looking, even though he does not have male model features.

Why Do You Want to Shave Your Pubes?

"Should men shave their pubic hair?" is one of those questions that has begun to come up more frequently lately because it's one of the latest "man trends" going around known as "manscaping."

Where did guys get this idea?

Partly from watching porn and thinking that if the guys in porn are shaving their balls and getting to have sex with hot women, maybe one of the reasons women aren't interested in them is due to their pubic hair.

Obviously, a woman can't see a guy's pubic hair before sex, but a lot of guys feel like they need to be "ready" in case they do get to have sex with a woman. They want to ensure that they "look the part" like guys in the porn movies and fear getting an "Ewww!" reaction from a woman for having pubic hair.

Other guys have gotten the idea to shave their pubes by listening to women on TV, the internet or in magazines. Somewhere along the way, a few hot women will have said that they like a guy to shave down there, so millions of guys rushed out to get razors and get themselves ready to hopefully impress women.

"Look lady, I have no pubes! I'm like a boy. Now do you like me?"

Man, some guys are so damn confused about what women want.

Guys, listen up...

Do not try to be pretty for women. Women will gladly suck your "you know what" with or without pubes, as long as you are confident in your sex appeal.

Women will say all sorts of things that they later recount (e.g. in the 1980s, women called out for men to be more sensitive and cry. Men obeyed, turned into wussies and got dumped, cheated on and divorced in record numbers).

Do not take what women say about men so literally. When a woman is asking for a man to be more sensitive, she means that he is more open to love and actually feeling emotions, rather than being cold and afraid of experiencing love.

However, she is not saying that she wants a guy to become a woman.

Likewise, if you hear some random women saying that they like a guy who is shaved, it does not mean that you have to shave your pubic hair.

Tell her to suck it and she will, as long as you believe in your sex appeal to her. Give her your raw, confident masculinity and she will love you.

However, give her an insecure, “Now do you like me?” feminine approach to sex and she will not love you. She will feel turned off by you on a deep level because you are thinking and behaving like a woman.

Smooth vs. Hairy

It wasn't that long ago that the latest â□□man trendâ□□ was to have your chest waxed. Women said they preferred smooth, hairless chests to hairy chests, so men started visiting beauty salons in their droves and undergoing the â□□painful-but-I-can-take-itâ□□ wax treatment on a regular basis.

However, this led to a lot of men spending more time in the salon than women, and women became increasingly turned-off by a guyâ□□s overly-feminine interest in his appearance.

Women then began to say that they preferred a man with a hairy chest!

Why? Simple. The majority of guys they were meeting who had waxed their chests had fallen victim to thinking like a woman in terms of their sexual attractiveness.

In other words, these confused men failed to understand that the things that women find most attractive about a man cannot be seen (e.g. his masculine vibe, his confidence, his alpha male mindset, etc).

So, if youâ□□re wondering whether or not to follow the latest trend by shaving your little hairs down there, thereâ□□s every chance that the trend will have changed by the time youâ□□ve finished reading this article.

By the time you shave off your pubic hair, women will have begun saying, “I like hairy balls” and you will be back to square one. You still won't know how to properly attract women and you will keep running around in circles, hoping that women give you a hint of the real secret to attracting them.

To Shave to Not to Shave

Some women are going to prefer a hairy man, others are going to prefer a hairless man, but the majority of women are not going to express a preference either way because whether or not you shave your pubic hair or wax your chest is not what really turns her on.

What really turns a woman on is a man's confidence in his sex appeal to her. Women love a guy who is confident and comfortable just being himself, knowing that he is more than good enough “as is.”

Letâ□□s face it, if youâ□□re a guy who spends a lot of time â□□preeningâ□□ yourself to look “pretty” for women, then youâ□□re not showing yourself to be a masculine guy who is relaxed and comfortable in his own skin.

Women are attracted to who a guy is on the inside, not how he dresses himself up on the outside. Trends will always come and go (e.g. fashions, hairstyles, manscaping, etc) and being a man who works hard at keeping up with them all suggests youâre a man who feels insecure in himself and unsure of who he really is.

Donât Be a Peacock

[image: Peacock mating dance]

âPeacockingâ is a word used to describe the way a guy might try to use his clothing or other elements of his outward appearance to attract attention to himself, or change the way he behaves in an effort to make himself appear more âimpressiveâ when heâs around women.

The expression comes from the fact that male peacocks âstrut their stuffâ in front of female peacocks and put on an eye-catching showy display by opening out their tail feathers in an effort to attract a mate.

For male peacocks, attraction is all about looking colorful and pretty for the plain looking femaleâbut you are not a peacock!

For you, attracting female human doesn't come down to looking pretty and being all shaved up like a little boy.

Women are naturally attracted to confident, masculine men and if you allow a woman to experience your confidence and masculinity around her, she will naturally be drawn to you. Unless she's one of the small percentage of women who like little boy balls, she is going to love your pubic hair because it is a part of you.

Shaving your pubic hair may suggest that you are a âtrendyâ man, but it has no bearing on who you are as a man. Having beautifully trimmed pubic hair or super smooth genitals is not going to attract a woman if you are an insecure man who lacks real confidence.

Put it this way; if youâre not genuinely comfortable just being yourself, or youâre nervous and shy around women that you like, then theyâre not going to be anywhere near your genitals to worry about whether youâve shaved them or not.

Each to Their Own

Itâs entirely up to as an individual if you want to run a razor around and over your genitals. If you like it, go ahead and do it.

Likewise, if your woman suggests that sheâd prefer it if you kept your pubic hair trimmed because itâs tickling her when youâre lying naked in bed together, then it's up to you whether you want to laugh at her or grant her request.

The fact that you have a woman to lie naked with in the first place suggests that youâve got a lot more going for you than neat pubes.

Whether or not you go with the trend is up to you and your woman, but if youâre a single guy hoping to make himself more attractive to women and maybe even get himself a girlfriend by being bang on trend, you need to think again.

Focusing on your appearance âwhether itâs your pubic hair, your chest hair, the hair on your head, or any other area of your body youâre attempting to âpeacockââ is not the way to make yourself more attractive to women.

Remember, women are turned on by genuine confidence and real masculinity in a guy. It is the inner man that attracts, not his tail feathers...or his pubic hair.

Yes, some women want a perfectly groomed, male model with a perfect body. That is true.

However, most women really don't care if you have pubes, what color they are or how often you shave them or don't shave them.

What a woman really wants to experience in the bedroom with you is to see your absolute confidence in your sex appeal to her. She wants to see that you're not worried about a thing and are simply offering her your raw, confident masculinity.

If you give her that, she will love you regardless of whether you have pubic hair or not.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Be Smooth With the Ladies

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Being smooth with the ladies essentially means that you're able to attract women, charm them and make them feel lucky to be talking to you, kissing you, having sex with you and being in a relationship with you.

Do you have that ability? Watch this video to find out...

The opposite of being smooth with the ladies is trying too hard to be liked, acting like a nice guy who isn't interested in sex and giving women the impression that you would feel so grateful if they would just give you a chance.

[image: Not smooth with the ladies]

A lot of guys don't realize that women really do like guys who are smooth with the ladies, because women rarely admit it and if they are asked directly, they will deny it.

However, some brave women are open about it, including Taylor Swift in her song, "Blank Space" where she sings the lyrics, "Cause you know I love the players and you love the game."

If an interviewer were to ask Swift if she liked players, she would most likely deny it on camera because it's not something that a woman wants to openly admit. Putting it in a song allows her to simply brush it off as a lyric or say that it means something else entirely.

Don't Copy Fictional Men in Movies

Some guys want to know how to be smooth with the ladies because they want to be like the James Bond types that women seem to jump into bed with the moment they set eyes on them.

Bond simply says a charming line to the very attractive woman and she melts and subtly suggests that she is now open to having sex with him. It's quick and to the point and seems to work every time for him.

Yet, it doesn't work that way in real life because most beautiful women aren't that easy to seduce. They usually require a bit more than a charming pick up line before they decide to have sex with a guy.

If you want to know how to be smooth with the ladies, you have to get your head out of the fantasy land of Hollywood movies and focus on the real world.

In real life, women do feel sexually attracted to guys who are charming, confident and charismatic, but they don't always make it easy. Most women will test a guy's confidence by behaving as though they aren't interested in him, because they want to see whether he is putting on an act of being a James Bond like character, or if he is actually that cool.

You can be smooth like Bond, but don't try to achieve that by copying his lines, wearing the same types of clothes and trying to fool women into thinking that you're as smooth as 007 himself.

If you don't have true, unwavering confidence in your attractiveness to women, they will simply throw you off your game by playing hard to get, acting uninterested or challenging your identity throughout the interaction.

Truly, the best way to be smooth with the ladies is to simply focus on being yourself, while also displaying the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women (e.g. confidence, charm, masculine vibe, charisma, humor, etc).

Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will see from the video above, pretty much any guy can be smooth with the ladies as long as he is able to trigger women's feelings of sexual attraction.

You don't have to look like a James Bond type character to be considered smooth. All you need to be able to do is attract women, charm them and make them feel lucky to be talking to you, kissing you, having sex with you and being in a relationship with you.

Women will naturally feel lucky to be getting a chance with you when you are able to trigger their attraction for traits that most guys simply do not possess (e.g. charisma, sexually attractive masculine vibe, sassy humor, etc).

[image: Man in demand]

You don't have to look like a movie star to have that effect on women. Yes, some women will only accept a guy who looks like a Bond character from the movies, but most women are much more flexible about what they find attractive in men.

What Most Men Assume About Women

Most men assume that women want a perfectly good looking man with loads of money, the best fashion sense and an athletic body.

If you asked women to list off things that they want in a man, they would almost certainly begin to mention those things.

Yet, if you look at the types of men that women actually have sex with, date and marry, almost all of them are not rich and are simply working a normal job. These men have a fairly average or even below average appearance at times, come in all sorts of body shapes and are of different races and nationalities.

Despite that real version of reality, most men assume that women are only interested in the superficial and material things about men.

Yet, the truth is that most women are more attracted and interested in men for things that cannot be seen (e.g. confidence, alpha male mindset, charisma, deep understanding of what women really want to feel when interacting with a man, etc).

Yes, it is true that some women are very superficial and will only accept a guy who has all the superficial traits (e.g. looks, money, height, muscles, fashion, etc).

However, the truth is that most women are not that shallow and are much more flexible and open-minded about what they are willing to find attractive about a man.

People who don't have expert knowledge or any real understanding of what women really look for in a man will tell you that it's all about looking good, smelling good, wearing the latest designer labels, and building a muscular physique. Not only is there opinion misleading and the cause of unnecessary insecurities for men, it's just plain wrong.

Most women are not going to be truly interested in a guy unless he has the alpha male qualities that make a woman feel like a woman. In other words, his alpha male mindset, vibe, behavior, attitude and actions makes a woman feel feminine and girly around him.

If a guy suppresses the natural, alpha male within himself because he's trying to be politically correct or "nice" to women, he will deny women the experience of feeling girly and feminine around him and thus, he will never be smooth with the ladies.

Ultimately, pretty much all women yearn to be with a man who knows how to take the lead in a relationship, which then allows her to relax into being her natural feminine self.

Modern women very often need to suppress their femininity in order to get ahead in their careers, and in a world of "equal rights" they often have to take on a tough persona in order to compete alongside men in the workplace.

It's for this reason that modern women desperately want to find an alpha male who will allow them to relax into being feminine and feel safe enough to let their "tough" guard down.

Women do want a man who has what it takes to make them go weak at the knees, but it's not a guy's outer appearance that will do this for them; it's his inner qualities and the man he is on the inside.

Being Smooth With the Ladies By Putting in Less Effort Than You Ever Have Before

Guys who don't understand how to attract women or who don't understand the reality that women live in, will pretty much always find it difficult to get any consistent, lasting results with women.

They will go through life trying really hard to be "liked" by women, never truly understanding how other guys seem to get women so easily, even though those guys aren't trying to be liked.

He will notice that some guys seem to not even care if a woman likes them or not and that makes the woman chase him and try to impress him. Why do women do that? Why do women like guys who are a challenge?

As you will discover from the video above, you can get women chasing after you, trying to impress you and hoping to get a chance with you, simply by understanding the reality that women live in.

If you think, behave and act like pretty much every other guy (i.e. you feel attracted to a woman based on her physical appearance and are immediately interested in having sex or a relationship with her, even though she hasn't done anything else to impress you other than look good), then you will always encounter women who play hard to get with you, say that they would prefer to be "just friends" or tell you that they aren't looking for a relationship right now.

A guy who knows how to be smooth with the ladies is a guy who approaches women and gives them the type of experience that they need to feel really interested. He understands that pretty much every other guy disregards the reality that women live in and simply wants women to like him for being nice and hopefully give him a chance.

When you can be the guy who understands where women are coming from and then gives them the kind of experience they want, you will immediately become a guy who is smooth with the ladies.

Women will have the "twinkle in their eyes" when interacting with you and other guys won't know what is going on. Guys will assume that it must be because you're better looking than them, richer than them or have a huge penis inside your pants, but you will know the real secret to your success with the ladies...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Why is it So Hard to Find a Girlfriend?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Have you ever noticed that some guys seem to have absolutely no problem getting a girlfriend, while other guys remain single and alone for months or even years of their life?

For a guy who is finding it hard to get a girlfriend, he may begin to believe that the reason why women aren't interested in him comes down to his looks, financial status, height or some other superficial reason.

Yet, what is the real reason why many good guys fail with women? Watch this video to find out...

If you are good, decent guy and you're wondering, Why is it so hard to find a girlfriend? trying asking yourself the following:

Are You Meeting Enough Single Women?

This might seem like a statement of the obvious, but unless you're out there meeting single women, you are going to find it difficult to get a girlfriend.

Some guys stick to their small social circle, which usually consists of a few friends, their girlfriends and some of their friends. Within that social circle, there are often a few single women, but they aren't always a good match for the single guy.

So, if he never takes the risk to approach women he doesn't know, he may end up asking the question, "Why is it so hard to find a girlfriend?"

How about you? Are you approaching and meeting women that you find attractive? Have you seen some beautiful women that you would've love to have to met, but you just didn't have the courage to walk up and say hello?

Many guys get stuck in thinking that if they just look good enough (e.g. build the perfect gym body, wear fashionable clothes, have a cool hairstyle, etc), then women will feel compelled to make the first move and approach.

Yet, that's not how it works.

If a guy is really good looking and a girl is drunk or unattractive, she may approach. However, most women would rather wait to be approached by a confident guy than go around approaching nervous guy who are intimidated or fearing rejection.

Are You Being Way Too Friendly or Nice Around the Women You Like?

Sometimes guys find themselves asking, Why is it so hard to find a girlfriend? because they don't know how to get beautiful women to interested in anything other than a friendly conversation or platonic friendship.

For example: A guy who recently contacted us here at The Modern Man explained that he couldn't get his female friend to see him in a sexual way.

Part of his e-mail read, “She said she likes me and that any girl would be lucky to have me as their boyfriend, but when I asked her on a date she said she just wanted to stay friends, so what gives? Why would she say that I’m a catch, but not want me herself?”

The mistake that this guy and many other guys make is in trying hard to be liked by a woman when what they really want is for a woman to be sexually attracted to them. A woman will say that sort of thing when a guy isn’t making her feel sexually attracted enough to warrant having a sexual relationship.

In cases like this, the guy will be using the classic nice guy approach on her and expecting to be rewarded with sex, love and a relationship. Yet, that’s not how it works and here’s why...

There is nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, being friendly or being polite. However, if you want a woman to feel the desire to be your girlfriend (i.e. be in a sexual relationship with you), then you must focus on making her feel sexually attracted to you.

When a woman is sexually attracted to you, she will then appreciate the fact that you’re also a good guy. However, being a good guy is not enough on its own to turn a woman on sexually.

A woman can really like a guy as a friend without feeling any sexual attraction for him. Without the all-important sexual spark, she will only ever see him as a friend and not a potential boyfriend or lover.

Of course, the more that a guy likes a girl and wants to make her his girlfriend, the more likely it is that he’s going to behave in a way that leads to her not wanting to be anything other than just friends.

For example: Wanting to be liked can lead to trying way too hard to please. A guy who is desperate to be liked by a woman will often make himself available to her around the clock.

He’ll be at her beck and call whenever she needs help or someone to talk to, and he’ll always be there for her as a shoulder to cry on whenever her latest boyfriend has done something to upset her.

He will “LOL!” at all of her jokes online, click “like” on everything she posts on Facebook and instantly reply to any text message she sends him. In his mind, he is showing her that he likes her, respects her and cares about her. He’s also hoping that if he’s just nice enough to her, she will eventually realize that he is the one for her.

Yet, his behavior simply denies her the experience that she is really looking for, especially if she is attractive. What experience is she looking for? To attract and secure herself a guy who is not easy to pick up. In other words, she wants a guy who is more of a challenge.

Being available at her beck and call and instantly replying to everything she sends may cause her to enjoy the attention and even like having him around, but it’s not going to turn her on and make her hope and pray that she might get a chance with him.

She knows that he is desperate to be with her and that isn’t a turn on.

Are You Actively Making Women Feel Sexually Attracted to You?

A lot of guys don’t realize that most women walk around in “OFF” mode and you literally have to say and do things that turn the woman “ON.”

For example: If a guy is being confident and charismatic around a woman, it will flick her attraction switch to “ON.” However, if a guy is being nervous and really nice around a woman, she will remain in “OFF” mode.

The truth is, it’s only hard to find a girlfriend if you don’t display the qualities that women instinctively look for in a potential boyfriend.

When you display the qualities that women are naturally attracted to, you instantly become a man that women are interested in meeting and potentially being in a relationship with. They still won’t approach you, but they’ll make it obvious that they like you during a conversation.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Things to Say to Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're looking for things to say to women to get them to want you, feel good around you or simply smile and enjoy talking to you, watch the two videos below...

As you will discover from watching the videos above, the most important thing to focus on when talking to a woman is making her feel attracted to you. It won't matter to a woman that you have an endless list of things to say to her if she isn't feeling attracted to you.

Do You Run Out of Things to Say When Talking to Women?

[image: Running out of things to say]

If you find that you run out of things to say to women that you find attractive, then you're most-likely trying too hard to be liked.

To speak freely, you need to trust your gut instinct and talk about whatever you want to talk about. As long as you are coming across in an attractive way (e.g. confident, charming, charismatic, etc), a woman will continue to be interested in talking to you.

The more attraction that you make her feel, the harder she will try to keep the conversation going. If she notices that you're losing interest in her, it will be her who is scrambling for things to say to you.

However, if you aren't triggering a woman's feelings of sexual attraction and respect for you, she isn't going to be very interested in talking to you for long.

For example: A guy can approach a woman with the best line in the world, but if he delivers it in a shy, nervous way or if his body language is awkward and submissive, it's not going to impress her at all. She's going to be feeling turned off by his lack of confidence and she's going to tune out.

Where Guys Go Wrong

Guys tend to make a lot of classic mistakes when talking to women that they find attractive. Watch this video for examples of where guys go wrong and what you should do instead...

Here are some more examples of where guys go wrong when talking to beautiful women...

1. Asking too many questions in a row

When guys are looking for things to say to women, the most commonly given advice is to ask lots of questions.

For guys who feel shy around women, asking a woman lot of questions may seem like good advice because it takes the pressure off him. All a guy needs to do is have a list of "interesting" questions at the ready and then sit back and let her do the talking, right? Wrong.

To get to know a woman properly, she needs to feel relaxed and at ease in your company so she can open up and show you her real personality. If you're just firing questions at her one after the other without volunteering much or any information about yourself in return for the responses she gives you, the conversation is going to feel awkward and forced.

When a woman notices that a guy is acting weird by asking her way too many questions in a row, she will usually put her guard up and begin to give him short answers like, “Yes” or “No” or “I don’t know” to hopefully make him get the hint that she’s uncomfortable.

There’s more to being a good conversationalist than simply asking a woman a list of questions. You’ve got to be able to show her that you’re open to talking freely by sharing information about yourself in an attractive way.

2. Being too polite

Some guys make the mistake of being too formal when they speak to women they like. The guy doesn’t want to say or do anything that she might not like, so he plays it safe and acts like a perfect gentleman from the 1800s.

Trying too hard like that doesn’t impress women. Instead, it makes a guy come across as feeling desperate to be liked...and desperation is not an attractive trait in a man. There’s nothing wrong with being polite, being a good guy or treating a woman well, but when a guy does it in the hope of being liked enough that the woman will “give him a chance,” then he is doing it wrong.

Everything has to start with sexual attraction. Unlike in the past where a woman had to select a polite gentleman who she would then stick with for life (because marriage was pretty much forbidden), today’s women select men based on sexual attraction and THEN look for good guy qualities.

Being super polite and gentlemanly is not enough for a woman to want to start a relationship. She wants to feel sexually turned on by a guy and then, if he also happens to be a good guy, it is seen as a bonus to her.

So, rather than trying to be polite and always say the right thing, be attractive and be real.

The right things to say to women are the genuine things that show your true personality and allow her to get to know the real you. A woman wants to feel relaxed, be her genuine self and let her guard down around a guy, rather than feeling weird about the fake gentleman act that he is putting on.

3. Talking without listening

Women are attracted to confident guys who are secure in who they are and what they’ve got to offer in life, making them genuine guys who are comfortable just being themselves. However, a confident guy can sometimes make the mistake of talking too much or making it all about him.

Being able to talk confidently about yourself doesn’t make you a great conversationalist. The things to say to women are the things that let her know a little more about you and therefore spark her interest in you, but you also need to show her that you’re interested in who she is, what she feels and what she likes.

Being a good conversationalist means being able to listen as well as talk and it means showing an interest in what other people have to say. If you ask a woman a question to get a conversation started and then you don’t actually pay any attention to what she says in reply, she’s not going to feel you’re someone she wants to spend a lot of time with.

For example: Let’s say that you ask her if she’s done any traveling and she tells you all about the trip of a lifetime she’s just been on. If you’re a good conversationalist you’ll pay attention to what she’s saying and make relevant comments or ask her to tell you more about the most fascinating parts.

However, if you’re talking without listening, you’ll either move on to the next â€œinterestingâ€ question on your list without acknowledging her response to the last one or youâ€¦ will turn her response into an opportunity to tell her all about your holiday adventures. Either way, sheâ€¦s not going to be impressed.

4. Pretending to be someone youâ€¦re not

When a guy lacks confidence in his sex appeal to women, it can often lead to him pretending to be someone heâ€¦s not in an attempt to make himself seem more interesting (e.g. acting very silly, being very arrogant, spending loads of money on a girl, bragging about things he has or wants, etc).

In effect, behaving in this way is similar to trying too hard to always say the â€œrightâ€ thing, because he is trying to be the type of guy that he thinks a woman will be most impressed by. Yet, attempting to hide behind a fake confident front will almost always backfire because women can usually see through the act that guys put on.

If a woman senses that a guy is pretending to be someone heâ€¦s not, sheâ€¦s not going to feel comfortable enough to let her guard down and be herself around him. She might enjoy hanging out with him and find him humorous or interesting, but her guard will remain up because she will feel suspicious about him.

When talking to a woman, you should always focus on being your most real self, while also making sure that you display the type of personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to your advantage when talking to beautiful women...

As you will discover from the video above, knowing a list of things to say isn't the most important part of being successful with women. It's important to know how to talk to women and keep a conversation going, but if you're not making the woman feel attracted to you, she's not going to care about what you're saying.

Examples of Things to Say to Women

Some ideas for conversation starters are...

1. A question about her work (or study)

Asking a woman about her job (or university course) gives her an opportunity to tell you about her career and to share her enthusiasm for what she does if itâ€¦s something that sheâ€¦s passionate about.

This, in turn, gives you an opportunity to tell her a little bit about your job and what you do, and to share with her the things that youâ€¦re passionate about. Women are attracted to men with passion and purpose in life.

For example: A conversation may go something like this...

You: So, what do you do for work?

Her: I'm an accountant.

You: Oh right, so that must mean you're really smart. I'm going to have to try to impress you with big words now.

Her: [Most likely laughing] You: [Smile and say in a joking manner] Okay smarty pants, so what is $1,234 \times 50$? Try to answer that without using the calculator on your phone.

The above conversation will make her feel attracted to you because you're being confident and funny, which are two personality traits that women naturally find attractive in men.

2. A question about her hobbies and interests

Asking a woman about her hobbies and interests out with work gives her another opportunity to talk about things she enjoys and feels enthusiastic about. This also gives you the opportunity to share some information about your own hobbies, but be careful not to launch into your interests without showing a genuine interest in what she feels about it first.

Women are attracted to men who have things happening in their life that they are enthusiastic about. A guy with no friends who sits alone at home after work is less attractive than a guy who works in a job, but then passionately works on his goals and dreams in his spare time.

For example:

You: So, what do you like to do for fun on the weekends or when you have time off?

Her: I like to ski...have you ever been?

You: Yes, actually. I went skiing when I was a kid and loved it, but haven't been back since. What is it about skiing that you like so much?

Her: I like the freedom of being out on the clean slopes and just tearing it all up. I also love the cosy nights by the fire with friends, just hanging out and talking all night.

You: Wow, that's sounds awesome. When are you taking me there?

Her: [Most-likely laughing] You: You can teach me how to ski again. I'd say that I've forgotten most of my cool ski moves that I was able to do when I was 8.

Her: [Most-likely laughing, smiling, etc]

3. Commenting on a topical news story

Politics and religion are best avoided when you've just met a girl, but a current news story that's likely to cause mixed opinions can be a great way to get a conversation going.

Women are attracted to men who have a mind of their own and who are not afraid to stand up for what they believe in, even if it means going against the popular opinion. This doesn't mean that you should attack her opinions, but that you should be confident to speak your mind in a respectful way.

3. An anecdotal tale about something funny

Everyone likes to be around people who make them feel good, so if you've got a humorous tale to tell about something that's relevant to you and your life, go for it.

Not taking yourself too seriously and being able to look at the funny side of life makes you a fun and interesting guy to spend time with. Women are attracted to genuine guys who know how to naturally strike up fun, light-hearted conversations without trying too hard.

As long as you are being yourself and being attractive (e.g. being confident, charismatic, charming, etc), pretty much every woman you meet will be excited to talk to you and get to know you further.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Be a Mysterious Guy

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Have you ever heard that women really like guys who are mysterious?

Well, they don't mean mysterious in the creepy, lonely guy sort of way. What they mean is a guy who makes them feel attracted and seems to be interested, but they aren't quite sure if they can get him.

Being mysterious also means that he doesn't tell a woman absolutely everything about himself in the hope of impressing her. Instead, he lives an interesting life, has interesting opinions, but doesn't feel the need to tell her everything.

Instead, he knows that he is impressive "as is" and doesn't need to put on a big show to hopefully get a woman to like him. He knows that women want to be with him and he only opens up and shares everything with a woman that earns his love, trust and respect over time.

As Stu (one of the three Modern Man coaches) once said to a beautiful woman that he was having a casual, sexual relationship with, "You're not important enough to me to warrant getting angry." He said that in response to her asking him why he wouldn't get angry at her when she was clearly trying to piss him off.

[image: Dan, Ben and Stu - coaches at The Modern Man]

Stu knows that most women that he meets instantly love him and want to be his number one girl, so it's not a big deal when he's having a sexual relationship with a beautiful woman. She's just another girl until she earns the right to get his full attention.

A big part of being what women refer to as a mysterious guy, is being a challenge for her to conquer when she first meets you and then gets into a relationship with you. Why? Watch this video to understand why women like guys who are a challenge...

Dan Bacon (the founder of The Modern Man) used the approach of being a challenge to get his sexy, 22-year-old girlfriend to propose to him when he was 35. Watch this video to see how Dan did it.

Mysterious Guys in Romance Novels

[image: Mysterious guys in romance novels]

If you've ever flicked through the pages of a romantic novel, you may have noticed that there's generally a mysterious stranger in there somewhere. He's the guy who gets the leading lady's heart pounding and it's his mysteriousness that arouses her interest in him and continues to build the sexual tension to boiling point by the end of the book.

She can't quite figure out how to get him to love her fully, or why he seems to be so perfect for her, but seems to have a dark side or a secret that he's not willing to tell her just yet.

The same type of "mystery man" theme often appears in Hollywood movies, where the mysterious guy never reveals anything about himself and seems to come and go without leaving any kind of trail. For some reason, he is always the guy that women are desperate to jump into bed with, willing to divorce a husband over or willing to travel half way across the world to see.

Of course, in real life, things don't have to be as complicated as they are in movies and TV drama shows. In real life, all woman really wants is to be able to feel sexually attracted to you, respect you as a man and be able to fall deeply in love with you over time.

Being mysterious is just ONE of many ways that you can attract a woman. For example: Women are also attracted to guys who are charismatic, charming, confident, funny, masculine and alpha.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can trigger it by displaying traits that women are naturally attracted to...

As you will discover from the video above, you can make a woman feel attracted to you in many different ways. It's great to learn how to be a mysterious guy, but don't put too much effort into trying to appear mysterious.

What is most important is that you actually make women feel attracted to you when they interact with you.

The Mysterious Loner

Some guys confuse the idea of being a "mysterious guy" with meaning that they should appear to be a strange loner who doesn't seem to get along with people because he knows something that others don't.

Yet, that's not what women are looking for in a mysterious guy.

In movies and TV drama shows, you may have noticed that guys who sit alone at the end of bar, or are aloof and don't get along with people at parties always seem to attract the attention of the most beautiful women in the room. In many cases (in movies and TV shows), the woman will approach the guy because she is attracted to his mysteriousness.

She will ask him, "Hey, why are you sitting alone?" or "Hi, can I sit down and join you?" and he will then continue to be aloof, awkward, brooding and even somewhat depressed. Yet, the woman will feel attracted to him.

Why? Simple—it's a frikken movie or TV show. The writers add those types of storylines in because they are strange and it keeps people watching (i.e. some women are thinking, "Why is she interested in him?" and some guys are thinking, "Hmmm—maybe I can get girls to like me by being brooding, depressed and mysterious like that!")

If a guy sees that type of thing in movies often enough, he might decide to try it out in real life. So, he park himself at the end of a bar on a busy Saturday night and waits for the beautiful women in the room to start approaching him.

While he's waiting, he tries to add to his mysteriousness by keeping his back turned to the crowd and attempting to mimic the distant, faraway look the mysterious guy in the movie had on his face.

He makes sure to casually glance in the direction of any women who come into his line of sight and shoots them a look of mystery and intrigue with an expression he's been practicing in front of a mirror.

Yet, women don't seem to be interested. They're not approaching him. No-one is saying, "Hey Mr. Mysterious, please come and join us!" and no beautiful woman is walking up and offering to buy him a drink.

He wonders why it doesn't work for him, so he decides to stand against the wall and just watch the crowd. He hopes that a woman will notice him, feel attracted to his mysteriousness and then approach him.

Yet, it doesn't work. Why?

For a start, sitting alone in a social setting does not make a guy appear to be mysterious in a positive way. Instead, it usually just makes him appear to be a loner who has no friends. Turning his back on others does not add to his air of mystery either. Instead, it simply makes him appear to be a loner who lacks the social skills to even attempt to make friends.

Trying to create a distant expression on his face does not enhance his appeal to women. They may look at him and think, "Who is that guy?" but if he doesn't do anything to trigger the woman's feelings of sexual attraction or curiosity, she almost certainly isn't going to approach him for it.

Instead, she will usually just assume that he's a loner or a social awkward guy who doesn't fit in or who isn't feeling comfortable in that setting.

Switching Your Focus to Simply Attracting Women, Rather Than Trying Hard to Be Mysterious

You don't have to put on an act of being a really mysterious guy to attract women. That's not how it works.

Attracting women is much more simple than most guys think it is. As long as you are displaying traits that naturally attract women (e.g. confidence, charisma, humor, masculine vibe, etc), women are going to feel attracted to you.

If you also want to be a bit of a challenge and be seen as a mysterious guy, then it will add some extra appeal to you, but you don't need to go overboard with it.

The bottom line is that you want women to feel an intense desire to jump into bed with you, you need to change your thoughts from, How to be a mysterious guy to, How to be an irresistibly attractive guy.

Women are only attracted to mysterious strangers in romantic novels and they usually only approach mysterious guys in movies and TV shows. Getting approached by women by being mysterious is about as rare as winning the lottery. You will always have better odds with women if you simply approach them and let them experience your attractive personality.

Some of the qualities that make a guy's personality attractive to women include:

1. Confidence

If a woman likes what she sees in you, she's going to send out signals through her body language to let you know she's open to being approached by you.

If you don't have the confidence to respond to those signals or you don't have the confidence to strike up a natural, fun conversation after making an approach, you're not going to hold her attention for long. Shy, anxious, awkward behavior that shows a guy to be insecure in any way is a complete turn off.

2. Masculinity

The most important type of masculinity to a woman is how you think, behave and take action around her and in life. If your overall vibe of masculinity makes women feel girly and feminine in your presence, you will always have your pick of women.

However, if your overall vibe makes women feel neutral (neither very feminine or very masculine), you will have to work harder to get women to feel enough attraction for you to warrant having a sexual relationship with you.

3. Social intelligence

Having the social and communication skills that it takes to mix, interact and make friends adds to a guy's sexual appeal.

Women are instinctively drawn to men who have what it takes to be a provider and protector in the modern world and this means being able to network and pool resources with others when needed.

If a guy appears to be a loner, he's showing himself to be a guy who lacks social intelligence and may in fact become a bit of a burden in a long term relationship.

What Women Really Want

[image: Women competing over a mysterious guy]

Being an international man of mystery like James Bond is not what 99% of women are desperately hoping to find in a guy. To be the type of man that most women find irresistibly attractive, one of the most important mysterious things about you should be the fact that you're available.

She should be thinking, "How on Earth is this guy single? I can't believe my luck! I am going to try my hardest to get him to love me, before another woman discovers him and takes him from me!"

Most guys don't even know how to trigger a woman's feelings of intense attraction, so women become extremely excited and keen when they find a guy who does. Watch this video to understand why...

When a woman meets a guy who triggers her feelings of attraction in the ways that she's been hoping to experience, she latches onto him and doesn't let go.

She knows that a guy like him is hard to find and she will most-likely have to work hard to get his attention and then maintain his interest and attraction. She will be intrigued that he is a challenge to conquer even though she is so beautiful and has loads of other guys desperately trying to be her man.

If he is what women refer to as a mysterious guy, she will have to work hard to impress him over time to really get him to share his full love, respect and devotion her. She will have to earn it and keep earning it by being a great lover, girlfriend or wife to him.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Turn a Friendship Into a Relationship: Common Mistakes to Avoid

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

You can turn a friendship with a woman into a sexual relationship by actively triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you.

Most women literally wait for a guy to activate their attraction for him and if he doesn't do it, she simply continues to see him as a friend or just another guy that she knows.

Activating a woman's attraction for you can be achieved by simply displaying the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women (e.g. confidence, charisma, humor, masculine vibe, flirting, etc).

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use that to turn a friendship into a relationship...

Are You More Than Just a Friend to the Woman You Secretly Like?

There is a big difference between a woman really liking you as a friend and really wanting to have sex with you.

For example: If she likes you as a friend, it might be because you're such a great guy, you listen to her, you care about her and you're generally fun to be around.

On the other hand, if she really wants to have sex with you and be in a loving, committed relationship with you, it will be because you are actively triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you.

One of the ways to actively trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction is to make her feel feminine and girly in response to your masculine vibe, thinking and behavior. This immediately triggers her deep, primal attraction for masculinity.

Many guys are afraid of making a woman feel that way and tend to make her feel like "one of the guys" or like a male friend instead, which isn't a turn on for her.

Additionally, some guys will simply act like a really nice guy around her because they don't want to say or do anything that suggests she is the girl and he is the man. In his mind, he might see that as disrespectful, demeaning or impolite towards a woman, but in her mind, she knows that she craves to find a guy who can make her feel girly.

Women are attracted to men who have what it takes to make them feel like a real woman (i.e. feminine, girly, in love, etc) and it takes a man who knows how to be a man to create the all-important sexual spark.

So, when a guy behaves in a "girly" way (e.g. hang out and gossip with her like her girlfriends would) in an effort to be liked by a woman and to be her "friend," this will make him sexually unattractive in her eyes.

Sexually unattractive behavior from men can include things like:

1. Being available 24/7

A hazard of trying to be her “best friend” is making yourself available to her around the clock. This might mean always being on the end of the phone when she needs someone to talk to, or always “being there” for her and providing a shoulder to cry on whenever she’s upset.

There’s nothing wrong with being there for a woman, but not as her girlfriend. If you are going to “be there” for her, she needs to be there back for you by being your lover. If she isn’t interested in being your lover, tell her to talk to her girlfriends about her life problems.

That may sound rude or insensitive, but think about the sort of guys that women lust after and respect when it comes to sex and relationships. They are not the pussy-whipped, nice guys who essentially take on the role of a woman’s counsellor.

Instead, they love and respect the woman as long as she loves and respects them back in the way that they want (i.e. sex, love, relationship). If she doesn’t give him that, she doesn’t get to talk to him or hang around him.

This type of guy is what women refer to as a “challenge” and they actually prefer men to behave in that way. Why? Watch this video to understand...

2. Gossiping like a girl

If you’ve been attempting to fit in and spend more time with a woman as “one of the girls” by gossiping with her and quite possibly talking badly about other guys who have shown an interest in her, you’ve made yourself into someone she might like as a friend, but not someone she feels sexually attracted to.

Real men don’t bitch and gossip about other people, especially other men. Real men have big goals in life and don’t waste time bitching and moaning about the world like a woman or a girly gay guy would.

There’s nothing wrong with a man enjoying a bit of gossip if he chooses to, but if he’s doing it to fit in as “one of the girls” around women, then he’s doing it wrong.

3. Being too nice

If a guy doesn’t feel like he is good enough for a woman, he will often try really hard to be “liked” by her, which will usually end up with him being too nice.

If you’re too nice to women, you will make a great friend, but you’re not potential boyfriend material because your desperation to be liked makes you come across as weak and wimpy, which is a sexual turn off for women.

When guys lack confidence around women, they often make the above mistakes simply because they’re under the mistaken belief that behaving this way will eventually lead to the woman they’ve devoted all of their time and attention to falling madly in love with them.

If he’s just nice enough and kisses her ass for long enough, she will eventually take pity on him and say, “You know what? You are the one for me! How blind I was for not seeing that earlier! I was mistaken for not liking self-doubting nice guys in the past. Now I know that emotionally weak, wimpy men are the best type of men!”

Guys, it’s not going to happen.

Stuff like that only happens in Hollywood movies, not in the real world. The wimpy, nice guy saves the world and gets the girl in the end, or he saves her from the bad guy and then she falls in love with him. Aww, how sweet.

In the real world, women simply hook up with, get into relationships with and marry guys who make them feel sexual attraction and respect when they first meet.

There's nothing wrong with being nice or good to a woman, but if she doesn't feel sexually attracted to and can't really respect you as a man (i.e. she feels stronger than you emotionally, she notices that you're nervous around confident guys, etc), she's not going to be interested in having a sexual relationship with you.

Changing How She Feels About You

If you want to know how to turn a friendship into a relationship, you need to know how to change your female friend's perception of you as her friend. This means learning how to display the types of qualities that make you a sexually attractive guy in her eyes.

Blurting out something along the lines of, "I have feelings for you" in the course of an everyday conversation is not the way to go about changing how she sees you. Watch this video to understand why...

Telling your female friend how you feel about her will certainly let her know that you're interested in something more than friendship, but if you haven't been making her feel sexually attracted to you, then she's not going to be interested in taking the relationship to the next level.

If she's not feeling the same way about you, the knowledge that you're looking for something more than she's willing to offer will usually just lead to her feeling awkward around you.

Are You Sexually Attractive to Her?

Pretty much all women are instinctively attracted to confident, masculine men with strong alpha male characteristics. A man with alpha qualities has what it takes to make a woman feel like a feminine woman and this is what ultimately generates a deep sexual attraction.

Alpha male qualities include:

1. Confidence

Genuine self-confidence is a very attractive trait in a man. True confidence is a quiet inner confidence that marks a man out as someone who knows who he is and knows where he's going in life.

2. Masculinity

True masculinity is a quality that women sense when they're in the presence of an alpha male. It's something that makes them feel literally weak at the knees when he's around.

3. Social Intelligence

Having good communication skills and the ability to get on a level with anyone in conversation gives a guy a likeability factor that makes him popular with both men and women. Women are instinctively attracted to men with charismatic social skills, which allow the guy to make friends easily and most importantly, be respected by other alpha males.

Learning how to turn a friendship into a relationship comes down to learning how to be seen as the type of sexually attractive man that pretty much all women want to be in a relationship with.

You can turn your friendship with a woman into a relationship, but whatever you do â□□ don't try to achieve it by being even more of a friend to her.

The most important thing that you need to do is focus on triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Where Can I Meet Women?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

“Where can I meet women?” is one of those questions we I’m asked on a regular basis, but let’s be honest, it’s a question that anyone can answer.

Anyone can tell you where to meet women that’s the easy part women are everywhere.

[image: Where can I meet women?]

In fact, there’s probably a single woman within 500 meters of where you are right now, but unless you have the confidence to approach her and the ability to attract her when you begin talking to her, you’re not going to be getting the end result of getting laid, getting a girlfriend or finding your future wife.

For example: Do you know how to trigger a woman’s attraction for you when you talk to her? Do you know how to build up that feeling of attraction to the point where she either says that she really likes you or makes it really obvious that she does?

Watch this video to find out...

Great Places to Meet Women

If you are confident to approach women and are able to make them feel intense attraction for you during an interaction, then you will have no problem meeting women at places like a:

- Bar
- Coffee shop
- Public park
- Sports game
- Shopping mall

The easiest places to meet single women are at singles events like speed dating, or at bars or nightclubs where many of the women there will be single and either looking to have a one night stand or find themselves a new boyfriend.

Being in the Same Place as Women Vs. Approaching and Meeting Those Women

Women are everywhere, but being in the same place as women is not the same as meeting them.

For example: Have you ever gone out to meet women on a Friday or Saturday night and found yourself in a bar full of beautiful women, but you still ended up going home alone?

Have you tried to approach and talk to women and it just doesn’t seem to go anywhere? You might be able to get past the first few minutes of conversation with a woman, but things then tend to fizzle out and the conversation becomes boring or awkward, so you just leave or the women ask you to leave.

Does that sound familiar? If so, what do you think the real reason is? Why do you think that the conversations become boring when you're talking to attractive women? Why do you run out of things to say? Why do attractive women lose interest in you?

Watch this video to find the real answer to a very common problem that guys experience these days with women...

What Else Could Be the Problem?

If you're finding it hard to meet women and get laid or get a girlfriend, you're most-likely not putting enough effort into triggering a woman's attraction for you and are simply trying to be liked for being a good guy.

We men can feel attracted to a woman very easily because our attraction for women is primarily based on their looks. However, for most women, you have to actively trigger their attraction for you (i.e. turn them on) by displaying traits that women are naturally attracted to (e.g. confidence, charisma, the ability to get her laughing, masculine vibe, charm, etc).

What are some of the other reasons why you could be experiencing a lack of success?

Consider the following...

1. Are You Hoping That Women Approach You?

One of the most common mistakes that guys make is falling into the trap of believing that all they have to do is look good and women will throw themselves at their feet.

There's nothing wrong with working out in the gym to build up muscle or stay fit, but some guys will spend endless hours in the gym to build up muscle and then outlay loads of money to purchase the latest fashions in the hope that if they just look good enough, they won't have to face up to their fears of approaching women because women will say, "WOW! He has big muscles AND he has good clothes. Let's approach him! WOW!"

Yes, if a guy is really good looking, some women will approach him, but usually not by the type of women he really wants. Even still, if he gets approached and he lacks confidence in himself, most women (except for unattractive women who want a guy that they can control emotionally) will feel turned off by him.

Yet, for the rest of the male population, looking good is not going to result in being approached because it's not the way that the human mating dance works.

[image: Peacock mating dance]

In the Peacock bird species, the male bird has to display his colorful, pretty feathers and wait to be inspected by the plain-looking female bird. Yet, that's not how it works for humans.

In the human species, it is the woman who needs to make herself pretty and then wait to be inspected and hopefully approached by a confident, alpha male who chooses her.

Sure, it's important for a guy to keep himself looking clean and to make the most of his appearance, but even if you look like a movie star, almost all women (except for the unattractive women or drunk women) are still going to expect you to do the approaching.

Successfully meeting and picking up women is all about knowing how to make a confident approach, trigger a woman's feelings of attraction, connect with her and take things to the next level (i.e. kissing, sex or a phone number then a call to set up a date).

A guy's outer appearance might attract a woman's attention initially, but it won't hold her attention if he doesn't have the social intelligence or the communication skills keep a conversation going and keep it interesting with an attractive woman.

Watch this video to understand why...

A lot of guys get confused about how real women act in the real world, because they're so used to seeing how women behave in movies, TV sitcoms and dramas and in music videos.

In the fictional, fantasy world of TV, movies and music videos, you will see a good-looking guy walking into a bar and all of the women will instantly begin to compete with one another to get his attention.

They will approach him, stuff their phone number into his pocket and say, "Call me" or they will essentially throw themselves at him sexually.

Well, let's just say that real life is not like the movies and the fact remains that real women in the real world rarely, if ever, make the first move on a guy. If you want to be successful with women, you have to have the confidence to approach and attract the beautiful women that you see.

Approaching and meeting women is a very exciting thing for a guy to do when he has the ability to attract women with his personality (i.e. by displaying confidence, being charismatic, charming, funny, etc).

He knows that the majority of women that he approaches will feel attracted to him and be open to interacting with him, so he will be excited to give women the opportunity to meet him. It's a win-win situation for him and women.

On the other hand, if a guy doesn't have the skill of being able to attract women, approaching women will usually feel like a scary, nerve-wracking experience. He will know that the majority of women he approaches won't feel anything for him and will be cold towards him, so he will rarely try to approach.

2. Do You Try Too Hard to Be Liked When You Meet an Attractive Woman?

Another common mistake guys make is to try way too hard to impress the beautiful women that they meet. If they meet an unattractive women or average looking woman, they are usually able to maintain their composure and just be their normal self.

Yet, when in the presence of an attractive women, a lot of that relaxed confidence suddenly disappears. He begins to doubt his attractiveness to her, so to make up for that, he tries really hard to impress her and hopefully get her to like him for that instead.

For example: A guy may slip into believing that being loud or behaving in an over-the-top kind of way (i.e. spending a lot of money on drinks, being really arrogant, trying really hard to be funny for everyone, etc) will attract a woman's attention. It will get a woman's attention, but not in a good way.

Women are attracted to confident guys, but it has to be genuine confidence that comes from the inside (i.e. you believe in yourself and know that you are good enough) and not just a fake confident front.

Most women are natural experts at reading body language (they have to be to be able to stop the real men from the fakes) and they know when a guy is faking it. If you want to attract a woman's attention and keep it, you need to show her that you have genuine self-confidence in yourself as a guy.

Trying too hard around women can also lead to a guy behaving in a super-nice and overly attentive way towards a woman.

For example: A guy might say something complimentary about a woman's appearance as he makes an approach (which is fine), but if he then continues to pile on the compliments and to hang on her every word or go along with everything she says, he's actually going to turn her off. Why?

Behaving in that way makes a guy come across as insincere at best and desperate at worst. Either way, she's going to see him as a weak, wimpy guy who is trying way too hard to be liked and therefore he's not the confident, masculine alpha male she's hoping to meet.

Being the Guy That Almost All Women Want

No woman is compatible with every man on the planet and no man is perfectly compatible with every woman either, so you can't expect to pick up every woman you meet. That is why I say, "Being the guy that almost all women want."

What you can expect (and what actually happens when you are skilled at attracting women) is that most of the women you meet (including hot, sexy, beautiful women) will feel attracted to you and open themselves up to being seduced by you.

[image: Seducing women]

"Seduced" might seem like a bit of a dirty, sleazy word, but it's actually what women want. Most women have to put on an act of pretending as though they're not interested in kissing and sex when they first meet a guy, even though she has done that plenty of times before.

Women put on this act so they don't look cheap in a guy's eyes. Women know that the majority of guys will become insecure and protective when in a relationship if she is too easy and open about sex when he meets her for the first time.

So, instead of showing their interest in sex, most women just act like they are only interested in talking to you, but she is secretly hoping that you have the social intelligence to understand that she wants you to seduce her into either giving you her phone number, kissing her or having sex with her. In other words, she wants you to feel like it's all your idea and she's just going along with it because you asked for her number, moved in for a kiss or suggested that you leave the bar, party or club together.

As long as you are making a woman feel the type of attraction that she yearns to feel (i.e. you're a confident, masculine guy who makes her feel girly and feminine, but you also respect her as a woman), most women are going to be open to being with you.

How can you make a woman feel girly and feminine in your presence, while still respecting her?

It all comes down to your vibe as a man. You are either going to have a feminine vibe, a neutral vibe or a masculine vibe. Think about some of the guys that you consider to be masculine and alpha compared to those who are a bit feminine or neutral around women. No doubt, the masculine, alpha guys that you are thinking of are the ones who get all or most of the hot girls.

Confident, alpha males have a presence about them that women can sense. Being an alpha male is not about being a bad boy or an asshole though. What we teach here at The Modern Man is how to be a good guy alpha male, which is the type of guy that is attractive to the most women and also respected by men.

Women love to feel girly, feminine and somewhat submissive in the presence of an alpha male. It's an exhilarating feeling for a woman, much like the feeling that you get when you watch porn or watch a sexy stripper doing her pole dance at a strip club.

If you want to stop asking, “Where can I meet women?” and start asking, “Which woman out of the 20+ who are interested in me should I let come over to my place tonight?” then you need to take the idea of attracting women more seriously.

When you give a woman the experience that she wants in of attraction, meeting women is a very simple, rewarding process. She gets what she wants and you get what you want.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Women Who Like Short Men

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you ask a woman what type of guy she wants, she's probably not going to say, "A short guy."

However, that doesn't mean that a short guy can't get laid, get a girlfriend or find himself a beautiful wife. He can. How?

He simply has to be able to attract women with his personality, confidence and potential as a man, rather than relying on attracting women with his height...or lack thereof.

[image: Short guys with tall girlfriends]

Just like there are many women who will accept a guy who is not good looking, many women will accept a short guy, as long as he makes her feel enough attraction for other reasons (i.e. he's confident, charismatic, alpha, he the potential to do well in life or is already doing well, etc).

Watch this video to see how it worksâ€¦

The Fairly Tale Fantasy of Little Girls

Millions of little girls grow up dreaming of one day meeting their Prince Charming and living a happily ever after fairy tale life. In many cases, the man of her dreams is tall, handsome and successful, so it's no wonder that many not-so-tall guys start to ask themselves if there are any women who like short men out there.

If you're one of them, the harsh reality is that the more hung-up on your height you are and the more you carry a chip on your shoulder over the fact that fairy tales never include a short Prince Charming, the more likely it is that you'll struggle to find women who like short men.

Why? They will feel turned off by your obvious lack of belief in your attractiveness, which will come through via your body language, conversation style, attitude and overall vibe. It's not your height that will be making you less attractive, it will be your insecurity over your height that's doing that for you.

Think about it for a moment; if women were only interested in a man's height, average height guys and shorter than average height guys would never find themselves a girlfriend. Only the tallest guys in the world would get laid.

Obviously, you know that short and average height guys do get laid, get a girlfriend and get married, so obviously height is not the #1 prerequisite of all women. It is for some, but not for the majority of women.

You only need to take a look around at your local shopping mall to see men of every height out shopping with their wife, girlfriend or lover.

Height is not the be-all-and-end-all of what makes a man attractive in the eyes of most women and the sooner you let go of the idea that it's your height that's preventing you from enjoying the success with women you want, the sooner you can take steps to develop the qualities that really make you a sexually attractive man.

[image: Odd couple or acceptable?]

If you are a short guy who is failing to get laid, get a girlfriend or find yourself a wife, what is the REAL reason why women aren't interested in you? Watch this video to find out...

Short Celebrity Men Who Do Well With the Ladies

It's easy for celebrities to get laid because women have a reason to be attracted to them for reasons other than just looks (i.e. he is confident, talented, lots of people like him, he's doing well in life, etc). However, that doesn't mean that a short guy who isn't a celebrity can't attract women. As long as he puts in enough effort to attract women in other ways, many women won't care about his lack of height and they will instead fall in love with who he is.

You don't have to look like or be as successful as one of the following short, celebrity men to attract women.

Tom Cruise: He's a famously short guy, standing at 5'7" tall. He's had no problem attracting beautiful, tall women; Nicole Kidman (5'11") and Katie Holmes (5'9") to name just two.

Ben Stiller: At just 5'7" tall, this Hollywood heartthrob has no shortage of female admirers. Women might not say, "Wow! You're so short! I want you!" but they will feel attracted to him for other reasons (e.g. he's funny, charming, charismatic, confident, doing well in life, etc).

Daniel Radcliffe: This Harry Potter star is just 5'6" tall, but it hasn't stopped female fans from lining the sides of red carpets wherever he goes in the hope of catching his eye.

Marky Mark (Mark Wahlberg): At just 5'7" tall, this former rapper is married to fashion model Rhea Durham who stands at just over 5'9" without her heels.

Yet, these guys are celebrities, so you might be thinking that the success these guys have enjoyed with women is only down to their fame, Hollywood good looks and large bank balances, right? Not necessarily.

Just take a look around you in your local shopping mall. Guys of all shapes and sizes are out there with their wife, girlfriend or lover. They're not all tall, they're not all Hollywood movie star look-alikes, they don't all have a perfect body and they're not all loaded.

[image: Short guy with tall, black girlfriend]

It's not a guy's height or anything else about his outward appearance that makes a woman fall in love with him, it's who he is as a man on the inside that matters most.

Looking for info on women who like short men suggests that there are women out there actively looking for short men and therefore rejecting all tall men who look their way. Common short guys, you must know that isn't the case and you need to realize that many women (not all) who think they're looking for a tall guy, do not reject a short guy just because of his height.

A short guy won't be a perfect match for every woman he meets, but the same applies for tall guys. Taller guys have a physical attractiveness advantage, but it's not a guy's height that influences a woman's deepest level of attraction for him in him; it's who he is and the way he handles himself around her that counts the most.

Short Guys Who Succeed With Women Vs. Those Who Don't

If a short guy is confident, funny, cool and successful in life, or if a guy has confidence and purpose in life and he's on his way to becoming successful, then he's got the type of alpha qualities that make him a sexually attractive man to almost all women.

However, if a short guy lacks confidence and is shy, nervous and awkward around women, he is seen as a lower ranking male and therefore he becomes a much less sexually attractive man in a woman's eyes.

Sure, some women will reject a short guy even if he has everything else going for him, but many women won't. The majority of women are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a man than most guys realize.

For most women, it's not a guy's height that decides his attractiveness; it's his personality and potential. Women are attracted to confident men who feel secure in who they are and what they've got to offer now and in the long run.

Guys with alpha male confidence know who they are and what they're about and they feel relaxed and comfortable just being themselves as a result. They're not hung up on their height and they don't behave in an insecure way because of it.

Instead of wasting your life looking for women who like short men and reject tall men, turn your attention to looking for ways to display the inner qualities that make you a man that women find sexually attractive and appealing.

It's not your height that attracts, it's your attitude and the way you handle yourself in life. Insecurity of any sort a complete turn off for women, even if a guy is tall, dark and handsome.

A guy might look like he's just stepped off the cover of a glossy magazine, but if he doesn't have the confidence to interact with a woman in a way that triggers her feelings of primal attraction, or if he behaves in an insecure way that makes him come across as a bit of a no-hoper in life, his looks alone will not hold her attention for long.

If you're a short guy, believing that it's your height that's limiting your potential to attract women is a big mistake. The sooner you let go of that limiting belief and take steps to become a confident, masculine, alpha male, the sooner you will find yourself enjoying sex, love and relationships with beautiful women or one beautiful woman of your choosing.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Meet Women on Facebook

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to meet women on Facebook is to set up your profile in a way that makes her think, “Wow, this guy is cool. I’d like to meet him in person” or “I wish that I was a part of his life.”

When a guy meets a woman in person, he will be able to attract her based on his confidence and personality (i.e. he is charming, charismatic, funny, has a masculine vibe, etc). However, if he is trying to meet her on Facebook, she can’t experience that side of him, so she has to judge him on his looks, lifestyle and likeability.

Looks, Lifestyle and Likeability

[image: Looks, lifestyle, likeability]

Meeting women online is a lot different to meeting women in person. A woman can’t experience your confidence and personality, so she has to judge you on something.

The first thing she is going to look at is your physical appearance.

1. Looks

If you’re a very handsome guy, it will give her an initial REASON to be interested. She can rationalize to herself, “Oh, he’s good lookingâ€¦okay, maybe I will open myself up to this and get to know him.”

However, if you’re not a very handsome guy, then you need to give her a REASON to be interested in you by showing her that you live an interesting lifestyle (that she might like to be a part of) and that you are also well liked by others.

Yes, it is superficial and shallow, but that is how online dating works.

Unlike meeting women in person where guys who aren’t good looking can pick up attractive women by being confident, masculine, funny, etc, it doesn’t work that way online. When a woman is assessing a guy’s attractiveness on Facebook, she looks at superficial things because she has to judge him on something.

2. Lifestyle

Many guys make the mistake of posting up lonely photos of themselves at home, or photos of them hanging around the same 2-3 people over and over again.

If you want to meet women via Facebook, you need to give the woman a REASON to be interested. When she looks at your photos, you want her to be thinking, “Wowâ€¦this guy is cool” and begin imagining herself as your girlfriend.

For example: If you have photos of you at a sports game with friends, hanging out with some other friends at a cookout/BBQ, travel photos, family photos, etc, then she’s going to see that you live an interesting lifestyle.

Now, if you’re thinking, “Damn women these daysâ€¦that’s just too much work to get laid or get a girlfriend. Why do women have to make it so difficult? Why can’t a woman just like me for me and get to know me?” then you need to wake up to reality.

Facebook and the internet is still a new phenomenon here on planet Earth. For 99.9% of human history, humans met in person. A man would meet a woman, flirt with her, build up her feelings of attraction and then kiss her, have sex with her and then take it from there.

If you know how to do that in person when you meet women, you will always find it incredibly easy to get laid or get a girlfriend. However, if approaching and attracting women is still somewhat of a mystery to you, then you might decide to try contact women online.

If you are serious about meeting women on Facebook, you need to understand that different rules apply online than they do in person.

Online, dating is VERY superficial.

It's pretty much all about looks, lifestyle and likeability and if you don't have at least two of those elements, most women aren't going to be the least bit interested. You may feel like women are shallow bitches for being superficial online, but you can't blame them.

Most single guys who are looking to meet women via Facebook and online dating are essentially willing to have sex with pretty much any half decent woman who will reply. Yet, that's not how women work.

Watch this video to understand why...

3. Likeability

If your Facebook profile is full of you posting random things that people never like, what might that suggest about your relationship with others?

Well, it might not mean anything, because people don't click "like" or comment on everything that a person posts. Yet, when a woman that you're trying to meet via Facebook has a look at your profile and notices that no-one seems to care about what you post, she will likely assume that you are treated that in way in real life too.

She has to make a judgement because she hasn't met you in person and if your photos don't show you to be a popular, cool guy, then she is usually going to judge you in a negative light.

Likeability also comes down to your body language and positioning in photos with other people. For example: If you're often the awkward, shy guy in photos, then she's going to assume that you will be like that around her too.

She will immediately begin to imagine how embarrassed she would feel introducing a shy, awkward guy to her friends or family and the thought of that will turn her off. Why?

As you may know, women feel the most amount of sexual attraction for confident guys and are turned off by shy, insecure guys. So, if a woman judges you to be a socially shy guy after looking at your Facebook profile, she isn't going to be very interested in meeting you in person, if at all.

Do You Have Enough Time to Meet Women in Person?

[image: Why don't you talk to women in person?]

Many guys who want to know how to meet women on Facebook, will complain that they don't have enough time to meet women in person.

Yet, while that is absolutely true for some guys (e.g. workaholics, single dads, etc), the majority of other men do have time to meet women in person, but are simply afraid approach women and start a conversation, get a number and follow up for a date.

Sometimes, the reason a guy is trying to meet women via Facebook is usually connected to his lack of success meeting women offline and his mistaken belief that things will somehow work out differently if he meets women on Facebook, rather than face-to-face.

The thought process is that maybe he can “sneak in the back door” so to speak and slowly get to know a girl via Facebook and eventually get her interested. That way, he doesn’t have to face the prospect of getting rejected by women in person.

Yet, chatting to a woman on Facebook doesn’t mean much or anything to her. A guy can be chatting to her on Facebook for months and she will instantly forget about him if a guy attracts her when he meets her in person.

If she happens to go out to a bar or party and a guy triggers her feelings of sexual attraction, she isn’t going to be thinking, “Oh, but there are 20 guys talking to me on Facebook...I shouldn’t kiss this guy who is turning me on in person...I need to stay faithful to my Facebook admirers!”

Instead, she’s just going to kiss the guy, have sex with him and then possibly begin a relationship with him. Meanwhile, the Facebook chatter boys suddenly stop getting replied to. She goes cold and they wonder, “Did I say something wrong? Maybe I over-texted her?”

If you’re going to meet women via Facebook, you have to quickly transition the chatting to an actual Facetime call, Facebook video chat, telephone call or Skype call.

You have to make the transition, so she can get to experience you on the phone. You can make a woman feel attracted to you 10x faster on the phone and she is 10x less likely to say “No” if you ask her out on a phone call compared to chat.

So, just like meeting women in person, when meeting women on Facebook, you’ve got to take things to the next level. Don’t be the guy who just talks and talk and never does anything with her.

For some of the guys who struggle to attract women in person, making friends on Facebook can feel like an easier, safer option than going out to socialize in bars and clubs or going to parties. If it doesn’t work out, he can just say, “Oh well...at least she chatted with me” and he then goes and jerks off to porn and feels lonely afterwards as usual.

In his mind, as long as he is avoiding rejection in person, then everything is fine. Yet, his life is ticking away and he’s not getting any younger. His friends, co-workers (or fellow university students) are enjoying love, sex and relationships and he is still alone, even though he is a good guy who deserves a woman.

Why Are You Finding it Difficult to Meet Women and Get Laid or Get a Girlfriend?

[image: Why are you struggling to get a girlfriend?]

If you’re looking for tips on how to meet women on Facebook, but you’ve also been struggling to get laid or get a girlfriend in person, you need to figure out why you’re struggling to meet women or why women are not responding to you in the way you want them to.

For example:

1. Do you lack confidence around beautiful women in person or online?

All women are instinctively attracted to confident men on a primal level because confident men have always been and still are the best at surviving and thriving in this challenging world of ours.

When a guy lacks confidence in himself around attractive women or the “cool crowd” it instantly turns the majority of women off on a primal level. Instinctively, they don’t want to be paired up with a guy who is going to have a hard time surviving and thriving throughout life.

Of course, a guy who lacks social confidence can still survive and thrive in the modern world (e.g. if he works as a stock trader, etc), but primal attraction is based on deep-rooted instincts, rather than on recent, superficial changes in society.

Whether you are meeting women via Facebook or meeting women in person, they want to see, feel and experience your confidence. It is very important to women.

If you lack self-confidence and feel shy, nervous or anxious when talking to a beautiful woman, your vibe and behavior will be a complete turn off for her.

With this being the case, befriending women on Facebook can feel like the perfect solution because you can confidently hide your insecurities behind the computer screen, right? Wrong.

What will happen when you meet a woman on Facebook and arrange to meet in person? Your lack of confidence still exists and when you meet up with her, she is going to feel that.

If you’re serious about being successful with women, the first thing that you need to master is your self-confidence. You’ve got to believe in yourself and let a woman see that coming through in your photos online and when she meets you in person. It is very important to women, especially beautiful women, that you’re confident in yourself and don’t doubt your value or attractiveness to women.

2. Are you being too nice to women that you meet in person or online?

Many guys who lack confidence around women try to make up for it by being very nice to women and hoping to be “liked” as a person.

They are hoping that being liked by a woman will lead to her wanting to be his girlfriend, but this is unlikely to happen. To want to be with a guy in a sexual relationship a woman needs to feel sexually attracted to him, which is not the same as liking him as a friend.

For example: He might try to be “liked” by her by using cutesy, girly language in his messages. In his mind, he is hoping that she thinks, “Wow, this guy is so nice and he chats in a girly way like I do! Wow! We get along so well!”

Yet, what she is really going to be thinking, “Is this guy gay? Why is he acting like a girl?” and she’s not going to feel any sexual attraction for him as a result.

Of course, there’s nothing wrong with being a nice guy, but you also have to be sexually attractive in your behavior, communication style and attitude.

If you try too hard to make friends with a woman on Facebook and you speed reply to every comment she posts or reply in a super-nice, overly complimentary way every time, you’re making yourself less attractive to her.

3. Do you know what women really want in a man?

Essentially, a woman wants to be with a man who has what it takes to make her feel like a woman (i.e. feminine and girly in response to his masculinity).

The types of things that women are most attracted to about men are not about looks. Yes, a man’s looks can attract a woman, but most women are more interested in how a guy's personality makes her feel and what his potential to live a good life will be.

Women don't want to get stuck with a boring guy, or with a guy who will be a no hoper for life. A woman wants a guy who has the type of personality that excites her, makes her feel alive, makes her feel girly and makes her feel horny.

The Overall Process to Use When Meeting Women on Facebook

If you are serious about meeting women via Facebook, here is the overall process to use to get some action:

1. Make your profile appealing to women

Post up photos of you having a lot of fun with different friends in various environments, rather than photos of you alone or having a boring time with the same people over and over again. Essentially, you need to make a woman feel as though being your girlfriend would make her life more interesting and enjoyable.

2. Add women who are in the "People you might know" section

When Facebook suggests adding a woman as a friend because she is someone that you "might" know, add her as a friend and check if she is single. If she is, message her directly.

3. Start casual conversations with the single, available women that you've added

If you've added a single woman who is a friend of a friend, you can message her with something like, "Hi Georgia I added you because Facebook suggested you as a friend, so I thought I'd say a quick hello. I notice that you're into skiing like I am. You look like a pro on the slopes. I only got started skiing last year. You been doing it for long?"

4. Take it to the next level

If you can get her into a live messaging chat with you, take it to the next level (i.e. a phone call, Facebook video chat, Skype call, etc) when the moment is right. "Hey we should say a quick hello on the phone. What's your number?" or "Hey, I'll give you a call via Facebook to say hi. Cool?" and then get her on a call.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Asking a Woman Out: Where Guys Go Wrong

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Asking a woman out is a very easy thing to do, as long as you have made her feel enough sexual attraction for you first.

If you have been focussing on triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you, then it's only going to make sense to say, "Yes," when you ask her something like, "Hey, can I get your number so we can talk again sometime?" or "Hey, do you want to catch up for a drink on Friday after work (or university)?" or "Hey, do you want to grab a bite to eat together on Thursday?"

If you're looking for tips on asking a woman out, you may be feeling unsure of her desire for you and may be worried about how horrible you might feel if she says no. Perhaps you don't want to ruin the friendship between you, get into trouble at work or become the laughing stock of students at your university.

Whatever the case, getting the response you want will be achieved if you use the right approach.

5 Questions to Ask Yourself Before You Ask Her Out

[image: Questions to ask before asking her out]

Before you make the bold move to ask out the woman that you like, answer these 5 questions to check if you've been approaching things correctly with her so far...

1. Is she attracted to you?

[image: Is she attracted to you?]

If you ask a woman out who isn't currently feeling a lot of attraction for you, then she's more than likely going to reject you.

She might choose to go on a date with you simply because she doesn't want to hurt your feelings but if this is the case, it's not going to feel very relaxed and probably a bit awkward.

2. Is there any sexual chemistry between you and her?

[image: No sexual chemistry]

Going on a date with someone who is really only interested in being friends is going to feel weird. The sexual chemistry that is needed to spark a boyfriend-girlfriend relationship just won't exist. You'll feel awkward about telling her how you feel, especially when you realize that she just isn't feeling the same way.

Sexual chemistry happens when both the man and the woman feel sexually attracted to each other, as well as sharing a special, unique connection that excites them. In other words, they seem to "click" in a way that is completely unique to them and is exciting for both of them to experience.

3. Have you been trying to convince her to like you?

Many guys waste weeks, months or even years trying to convince a woman to like them.

For example: He will tell her how good of a guy he is compared to the assholes she has been dating, or he'll tell her how well he'd treat her if she'd just give him a chance.

Yet, women don't respond well to guys trying to convince them to have the type of feelings that should just happen naturally in response to his personality. Watch this video to understand how it works...

4. Does she only see you as a friend?

One of the biggest mistakes that guys make when it comes to asking a woman out, is attempting to become really good friends with her when what they really want is a sexual relationship.

If you want to be a guy that she's interested in dating and having sex with, you need to be the guy that she feels sexually attracted to. If she only sees you as a friend, she might like you and enjoy your company, but liking you is not the same as lusting after you, feeling turned on by you and hoping that you will let her be your girlfriend..

Before asking her out, you must make sure that you switch the dynamic between you and her from "just friends" to a man and a woman who feel a lot of sexual attraction for each other. If you can do that, she will find it difficult, if not impossible, to say no when you ask her out.

There will no reason for her to say anything other than, "Yes" to your offer of drinks, getting something to eat, hanging out at your place, etc. However, be prepared for her to feel a little bit awkward initially, because she has most-likely gotten used to only seeing you as a friend, so she might act like she isn't interested when she actually is.

5. Are you offering her any type of challenge, or are you just completely sold on her no matter how badly she treats you?

Many guys make the mistake of confusing their sexual attraction for a woman, with how much they like her as a person.

In fact, many guys don't even care about a woman's personality or behavior – they just want to have sex with her and get into a relationship with her because she looks good. Yet, that is very boring for women.

Watch this video to understand why women prefer guys who are a bit more of a challenge to impress...

Something that many guys fail to realize throughout their entire life is that women don't always want to experience a straightforward dating process. Women are not men; they live a completely different experience than we do when it comes to dating, sex and relationships.

Even if a woman is sending out signals that let a guy know that she's attracted and interested in being more than just friends, it doesn't necessarily mean that she wants him to ask her out right away. Confused? Well, the bottom line is that women love the thrill of the chase (i.e. the challenge). Women are more attracted to alpha males who have their pick of women, than guys who essentially only have one option with women: Her!

If you ask a woman out before she's had the opportunity to work hard at attracting and maintaining your attention, or earned her place by your side by seeing off all the competition from other women, then you're effectively denying her the thrill of the chase and you're making yourself a much less appealing catch as a result.

Many guys don't like the idea of being a challenge or making a woman chase because they don't want to have to play "mind games." Yet, it's not mind games. It's simply giving a woman what she wants.

If a woman is beautiful, dresses well, does her make up and tries hard to look physically appealing, then she is giving you what YOU want. As a man, you are mostly attracted to women because of their appearance, so you will always feel much more immediate sexual attraction for women who make themselves look sexy, compared to women who can't be bothered to look appealing.

Likewise, women are always going to feel much more attraction for guys who are willing to give her the attraction experience that she wants. If the woman that you like is beautiful, then pretty much every guy would have sex with her at least once, simply based on her appearance.

Most guys don't give a crap what a woman does for a living, what her personality is like or what she thinks about life. If she is hot, the guy immediately wants to bang her.

Yet, that isn't exciting for her. She wants a guy who make her feel the type of attraction that she wants to feel.

Asking a beautiful woman out before she's enjoyed even just a little bit of fun of chasing you, makes you less sexually attractive, appealing and exciting. Remember, an alpha male has his pick of women and she wants to be rewarded for her efforts by winning you (the alpha male) all to herself.

Asking a woman out straight away can make you come across as a man who perhaps doesn't have his pick of women after all, and therefore you're a less appealing catch. A woman wants to be chosen by a man that pretty much all women want to be chosen by, not a guy who is hoping to score with pretty much any half decent woman who will give him a chance.

Knowing how to make a woman enjoy the thrill of the chase makes you a man who knows how to create the exciting feelings that come with sexual tension. You can build up the sexual tension between you and a woman and bring it to boiling point. You can make a woman desperately want to get naked with you and feel you slide inside of her.

You can actually have that skill. You can actually have that power over women.

The thrill of working hard to get your attention and keep it all to herself will make the sexual sparks fly between you and the women you like. When you do it properly, a woman will often be so so turned on by you that she'll be the one asking you out.

Asking a woman out is a very simple thing to do when you display the qualities that make you the type of man that women actually want to be asked out by. Don't make the mistake of trying to get a woman interested in having a relationship with if you haven't yet sparked her interest in wanting to be kissed by you or have sex with you.

Make yourself irresistibly attractive to her and the rest, including asking her out, will all come naturally and easily to you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Do Men and Women Think Differently?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Whatever your views on the differences between men and women, there's no denying that women are looking at the world through a lens of femininity, while men are looking at it through a lens of masculinity.

Of course, it wouldn't be fair to say that all women think about the same types of things or that all men think in exactly the same way. Generalizing in that way would be far too much of a sweeping statement because some women think, behave and act like men and vice versa.

However, it is fair to say that in the grand scale of things, most women tend to concern themselves with things that revolve around the caring and nurturing aspects of life, while men focus on the providing and protecting aspects of life.

When it comes to dating, sex and relationships though – well, that's a different story altogether because there are a lot of really obvious differences between how men and women approach it.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand 7 ways that most women think, behave and act differently to most men...

The Game of Life

The world has changed beyond recognition since the days of our early ancestors who didn't live in big cities or even little villages, but the basic nature of things has essentially remained the same.

For example: In prehistoric times the men went out to hunt for food while the women stayed behind to care for the children and to keep the fire burning ready to cook the day's catch on their return. The men provided food and protection, while the women provided comfort and care.

In today's world, it's much more common for men and women to share household responsibilities rather than to stick to traditional male and female roles, but recent research has revealed that divorce rates are much higher among couples who share household tasks compared to those who stick to more traditional gender-specific roles.

The current thinking in scientific circles is that breaking away from the tradition of so-called men's work and women's work is causing an imbalance in the sexual dynamic of a relationship and the all-important sexual attraction that exists naturally between males and females is being weakened by the creation of half man half woman individuals.

Men and women do think differently and not only accepting but actively encouraging those differences may hold the key to finding and keeping the ideal dynamic in a relationship.

The Dating Game

Saying that women think about girly things and men think about manly things would be over simplifying things, but that's pretty much how it is. It may sound sexist or whatever, but it's reality.

Take the dating game for example: Most women are thinking about making themselves look pretty and appealing to men because they are hoping to be chosen by a man for their physical appearance. Women know that their physical appearance is the most powerful way of attracting a man, so they flaunt it.

Itâs for this reason that women spend a lot of time thinking about the clothes they want to wear, the way they want to style their hair, and all the other âgirlyâ stuff that men often find a bit of a mystery.

Yet, when a man tries to use the same approach as women and get chosen for his looks, he often gets rejected. Why? Simple. Women are instinctively wired to feel attracted to guys who have confidence, masculinity and the ability to survive, thrive and protect them.

On the other hand, men are instinctively wired to feel attracted to youthful, healthy, physically attractive women who will produce quality offspring. Even if a guy doesn't want to have children, his desire for a woman is based on what would come out of her if they bred.

Thatâs just the nature of things.Â Men do the choosing based on physical attractiveness and signs of health and women do whatever it takes to make sure theyâre the ones being chosen by an alpha male who will hopefully protect her, provide for her and lead the way to a better life.

Of course, if youâre a guy asking, âDo men and women think differently?â your reason for asking might be that your experience of being the chooser hasnât resulted in getting you what you want with women.

You might be seeing beautiful women and choosing them, but they aren't interested. Why could that be? Watch this video by Dan Bacon and you will find the answer...

Letting Her Be the Girl

Getting back to basics, modern women are still instinctively attracted to men with provider and protector qualities.

In todayâs world, a guy no longer needs to be able to bring back the kill to be a provider or to offer protection through displaying superior physical strength and prowess but he does still need to have what it takes to make a woman feel like a woman.

Women are attracted to the alpha male qualities of confidence and masculinity because these are the traits that mark him out as a man who knows how to naturally take the lead in a relationship and in life.

Most women (except those who want to be like men) want to be with a man who knows how to take care of a woman and allow her to be free to think, feel and behave like a woman rather than having to think, behave and act like a man.

When a woman is able to let go and be the girl (i.e. be a feminine woman who is more focused on her emotions, love, your relationship and generally being girly), it creates a sexual dynamic between the man and a woman that keeps the sexual spark alive.

However, if the man and the woman are essentially neutral around each other (i.e. neither very feminine or masculine either way), then the sexual spark will naturally die out between them. There will be no natural magnetism to create the sexual desire.

So, do men and women think differently? Yes, they do, and itâs a good thing. One of the main reasons why you feel attracted to women is that they are not like men, so instead of getting frustrated about the differences between men and women, just enjoy it.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Tell if a Woman Wants to Sleep With You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're having to ask, "How to tell if a woman wants to sleep with you," then you're probably looking for a list of signs that signal when a woman is ready for sex.

...but, guess what?

There is no guaranteed list of signs that a woman will display when she is ready for sex. There is a general list, but nothing guaranteed. Why? Not all women show their interest in sex in the same way.

Some women are very open about their desire to have sex and will say things like, "I'm horny...are you?" or "I want you to kiss me," but most women aren't. Most women want to feel like sex is your idea and that you are taking the lead. Why?

1. So you will trust her when you get into a relationship.

A woman can get laid very easily. If she is pretty, attractive or even just a little bit sexy, most guys will have sex with her at least once. Many of those guys would also be willing to have a relationship with her.

If a woman meets a guy and she is very easy to have sex with, do you think that the guy is going to be able to trust her later on in a relationship if she goes out partying with her girlfriends? Probably not.

Likewise, if she works with a bunch of men and has to go to work functions that involve alcohol, do you think that her boyfriend (or husband) will be able to trust her? If she was so easy to have sex with when he met her, will she be that easy with other guys if she's feeling bored in her relationship?

It's for this reason that a lot of women don't want to make it obvious that they want to have sex. They would rather that a guy take the approach of making her feel attracted, flirting with her and then having the confidence to escalate to kissing and sex without her having to make it super easy for him.

2. So she can feel more feminine.

A big part of the sexual enjoyment that a woman feels is the experience of being penetrated by a masculine force. She wants to wilfully surrender into the guy's arms and open herself up to his masculine force.

She wants to be able witness his confidence and masculinity before her eyes as he leads the way from a conversation to kiss and then to sex. She doesn't want to have to guide him along like a confused little boy who is scared to make a move. If she has to do that, she will end up feeling more masculine than him and that isn't a turn on for the majority of women.

You've Got to Have the Confidence to Make a Move

When guys lack confidence around women, they often ask for advice on how to tell if a woman is interested in them.

They want to know how to tell if a woman likes them before plucking up the courage to make an approach or ask her out, and then the next question on a guy's mind revolves around how to tell if a woman wants to sleep with you because they're afraid of blowing it or getting rejected through misinterpreting what they see as signals that she's interested.

Well, letâs just say that if a woman is into you and sexually interested in you, you wonât need to ask how to tell if a woman wants to sleep with you because youâre going to know.

Sheâs going to send out plenty of signals to let you know whatâs on her mind, and sheâs going to work hard at making sure you get the message. However, the harsh reality is that if youâre feeling unsure of yourself and youâre uncertain about the way women see you or feel about you, youâre not the type of guy that women want to sleep with.

Do You Know How to Trigger a Woman's Feelings of Sexual Attraction For You?

As Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) explains in this video, the real secret to success with women is being able to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for you. Watch this video to understand how it works...

If you lack confidence in yourself around beautiful women and feel shy and anxious women as a result, most women are going to feel turned off by you. They might like you as a person, but your lack of confidence around them will make it difficult for them to feel enough attraction for you to warrant having sex.

A woman is turned on by a guy who knows how to make a confident approach, and how to engage her in a relaxed, free-flowing, and interesting conversation. She wants to feel relaxed and comfortable in his company, so he has to be relaxed and comfortable in himself to allow her to feel she can safely let her guard down and be herself.

Unless a guy has what it takes to lead the way and naturally escalate a conversation into flirting and effortlessly begin to build the sexual tension, he doesnât have what it takes to turn her on. If youâre feeling so unsure of yourself that you have to ask how to tell if a woman wants to sleep with you, you are not that guy â and sheâs not going to want to sleep with you.

You Can Be The Guy Who Effortlessly Attracts Women

Sexually attractive guys have genuine self-confidence and truly masculine qualities, and the great news is that all guys can develop the qualities they need to be seen as a sexually attractive man in a womanâs eyes, even if they currently feel they donât have them at all.

If you lack confidence and youâre not enjoying the success with women you want as a result, you can change all of that by taking steps to learn how to become a better man and how to bring your natural alpha male characteristics to the fore.

Itâs not about trying to fake it or pretending to be someone youâre not, itâs all about developing the skills and qualities that allow you to become your best self â and an irresistibly attractive guy as a result.

Getting Laid is Not About Being Liked

Itâs not unusual for guys who lack confidence to mistakenly think that a woman liking them as a friend or a person, is the same as a woman feeling sexually attracted to them. Like and lust are two very different emotions and usually result in two very different outcomes.

For example: A woman can like a nice guy as a friend without feeling any kind of attraction that makes her want to sleep with him. She may appreciate this kind approach to her and like that he respects her, but she's not going to be feeling horny about it.

If he tries to make a move on her after using the nice guy approach, he will then likely get rejected. Why? Watch this video for the answer...

As you will discover from the video above, there is nothing wrong with being nice to a woman. However, being nice to her is not the thing that turns her on. It's not about being a bad boy or treating her badly, but simply about giving her the gift of feeling sexual attraction.

Without sexual attraction, a likeable nice guy is simply a likeable nice guy. However, with sexual attraction, he then becomes a desirable, charming, sexy guy.

So, make sure that you don't focus on trying to be "liked" as a guy in the hope that it will get you laid. Yes, it might work on unattractive women and some drunk women may give you a chance, but if you want to pick up hot women and have sex with them, you must focus on making them feel horny based on what you say and do when interacting with them.

Thinking that being "liked" by a woman will lead to her wanting to have sex with him is a mistake that often leads insecure guys into trying way too hard to be liked, and to behaving in a "girly" way that ultimately makes them less sexually attractive and therefore someone who will never be seen as anything other than a friend.

If you want to know how to tell if a woman wants to sleep with you, then clearly it's more than friendship you want. So, don't act like a friend. Focus on triggering her feelings of sexual desire and she will then become open to sleeping with you.

Women Don't Want a "Yes Man"

When a guy can't get laid, he will sometimes make the mistake of trying hard to please women in any way he can (e.g. doing favors for her, being a shoulder to cry on, buying her things, paying for her rent, etc), in the hope that she feels guilty enough to then reward him with sex.

He will essentially say, "Yes" to any demands she puts out there. If she's being a bitch, he'll just put up with it because he doesn't want to ruin his chance to be around her. If she's taking advantage of him (e.g. getting him to pay her rent, buy her drinks all the time, etc), he'll put up with that too.

She might like having him around as a friend because he does so many favors for her, but she won't want to sleep with him. It doesn't matter how good of a guy he is to her, if another guy comes along and offers her the challenge she desires, she will feel sexually attracted to him and want to sleep with him instead. Why?

Watch the video below to understand why women prefer guys who are more of a challenge to impress...

If a guy is available to a woman at the drop of a hat and does whatever she wants, then he's essentially at her beck and call. Rather than offering her the challenge that all beautiful women desire, he is simply behaving like another typical, horny guy who is hoping to get a chance with her.

A guy might think that being at a woman's beck and call, being a shoulder to cry on, and just generally "being there" for her around the clock will make her fall in love and want to jump into bed with him. Yet, in most cases, it won't.

Sure, that's often the way things pan out in the movies but it's not the way things work in the real world. Trying too hard and being too nice can make you appear weak, wimpy and desperate in a woman's eyes. None of these traits will turn her on and make her want to have sex with you.

The bottom line is that if sex is what you really want, you need to display the personality traits and behaviors (e.g. confidence, charisma, charm, masculine vibe, humor, etc) that trigger a woman's desire to want to have sex with you.

When you display the qualities that all women are instinctively attracted to, attracting women for sex becomes increasingly easy. Why? Women are more attracted to guys who other women want. When women see that other women find you attractive, it makes them want you even more.

Once you get on the right path with women (i.e. where are making them feel attracted to you, rather than trying to get them to like you), you will find that an increasingly number of women like you, want to be with you and are interested in having sex with you.

If you continue along that path and allow the evidence to build your confidence with women, you will find that the quality of women increases also...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Picking Up Cougars: Are They Easier Than Younger Women?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret to picking up cougars is to make her feel like she's still got it. In other words, let her know that you find her sexy.

As long as you are able to make her feel a lot of attraction for you, she will be excited that a guy like you (who could easily pick up younger women) is interested in her.

The type of traits that turn cougars on are the same as what turns a younger woman, but you really have to put more focus on your masculine vibe. If a cougar gets the sense that you are a masculine guy (in how think, behave, take action, make a woman feel in the bedroom, etc), then she will feel incredibly turned on and excited at the possibility of having sex with you.

So, if you're interested in picking up cougars, make sure that you start by sharpening up your ability to make women feel intense attraction to your personality and vibe.

Why Pick Up a Cougar?

These days, there's somewhat of a growing trend in the dating scene for younger guys to hook up with older women. It's happening in response to a combination of things including the high divorce rate, acceptance of older women being sexual and the fact that a lot of younger guys simply can't pick up women their own age, so they give older women a shot instead.

If a younger guy has a high sex drive and is looking for a woman to let it out on, cougars are often a good option. For instance, some cougars try hard to find themselves a younger guy who has the stamina to keep up with them.

It might be that they've found the majority of single men in their own age group have settled into a quiet life in slippers in front of the fire with a newspaper, or maybe the older guys on the dating scene just come with too much baggage, but whatever their reasons for preferring a younger guy, it's good news for younger guys looking to make the most of what a cougar has to offer.

Cougar Myths

It's not unusual for cougars to be portrayed in the movies and on TV as desperate older women who prey on younger men, getting their claws into them in an attempt to hang on to their youth and give their flagging ego a boost.

Nothing could be further from the truth. Most cougars are not desperate and they don't need a younger man to feel good about themselves, because they could easily have sex and a relationship with a more mature, experienced man if they wanted to.

Thinking that all it takes to attract the attention of a cougar is to be an available younger man is a big mistake. Picking up cougars is no different to picking up younger women or women of any age; women are only interested in a guy who has what it takes to make them feel a deep sexual attraction.

Are You Able to Attract Hot Women Your Own Age?

If you want to be able to pick up hot cougars, you will almost always need to skills that are required to pick up hot young women.

All women are instinctively attracted to guys with strong alpha male characteristics, and while a cougar might be looking for a younger man, she's still looking for the same confident and masculine characteristics that she seeks in any man that she has a sexual or romantic interest in.

For example: If you lack self-confidence and come across as a bit nervous or self-doubting when you approach, you're usually not going to be of interest to a hot cougar - no matter how youthful and handsome you look.

Sure, if you're a really good looking guy, then she might just have sex with you for the fun of it or for an ego boost, but it's not going to be anything more than that. Why? Most women are much more interested in a guy's inner qualities and masculine personality traits than just his pretty face.

Cougars are older women and therefore they're generally women with plenty of relationship experience behind them. They usually know that if a guy is handsome, it doesn't automatically mean that he's going to make her feel intense love, respect and attraction.

Besides, if he was able to do that, he would most-likely be hooking up with younger, hotter women rather than wasting his time with a woman who's losing her youthful attractiveness by the minute.

Cougars usually know what they're looking for and they know how they want to feel in a man's company. In most cases, youthful good looks are not enough on their own to hold a cougar's attention, or any woman's attention.

Unless a younger guy knows how to make a woman feel like a real woman in his presence (i.e. she feels feminine, girly and sexy in response to his masculine charm), he almost certainly won't have what it takes to pick up a hot cougar.

Do Cougars Have Lower Standards Than Younger Women?

[image: Picking up cougar women]

It depends on how attractive she is.

If she is a hot cougar, then she's going to expect to be rewarded by having access to guys who are able to make her (and other women) feel attracted.

[image: Hot cougar]

She knows that she doesn't have to settle for a guy who is not only unable to make her feel attracted, but he can't get younger girls to like him too.

People base their value on the mating market (dating scene) on how much attraction they are able to make the opposite sex feel. For example: If a younger woman isn't attractive, she will almost always have to lower her standards to be able to get herself a boyfriend.

The same applies with unattractive cougars, except that some of them will put on an act of having high standards, which will then trick a lot of younger guys (who could pick up hot, young women if they just knew how to attract women) into trying really hard to impress her.

When the unattractive cougar sees that the young guy doubts his attractiveness to her and is trying extremely hard to hopefully impress her, it actually makes her lose respect and attraction for him, which will almost always lead to a rejection or her getting him to take her out on a series of expensive dates, before he eventually gets to have sex with her.

If she's experienced with men, she will know that his sexual interest in her will only be temporary anyway because he will quickly get bored of hooking up with her aged body. In that case, she will often milk him for all he will give her (e.g. expensive gifts, endless compliments, etc), while she actively seeks to find a real man behind his back.

Most cougars are not easy pickings, so believing that targeting older women is the easy option to get laid, get a girlfriend or get a wife is the biggest mistake you can make.

The truth is, you can attract and pick up very beautiful women of your own age or you can pick up hot cougars, but it all comes down to your ability to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction.

Do you have the skill of being able to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for you? Watch this video to find out...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Make a Woman Like You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're looking for advice on how to make a woman like you, it's safe to say that you're not actually looking for advice on how to make a woman like you as a friend, but to like you in a sexual way, right?

Assuming that it's more than friendship you're after with a woman, the first mistake you're making is trying to get her to "like" you as a guy, rather than focusing your attention to turning her on by triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you.

If you aren't making her feel sexually turned on by how you interact with her, she isn't going to think, "Wow, he's such a nice guy. I want to start a relationship with him!" Instead, she's simply going to be switched off around you and will only properly switch on when you begin to trigger her feelings of sexual attraction.

A woman can like a guy as a friend without seeing him as a potential boyfriend...ever. So, if it's more than friendship you want, you need her to feel that she wants more than friendship from you.

If you don't focus on triggering her feelings of sexual attraction, it doesn't matter how long you've "known her" as a friend or how great you get along when you chat; if another guy comes along and turns her on, she's going to be focused on him. It's as simple as that.

[image: Didn't make her feel attracted - friend zoned]

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use that to get a woman to like you in a sexual and romantic way...

The Power of Sexual Attraction

[image: The power of sexual attraction]

When a guy wants to know how to get a woman to like him, it's often because he lacks confidence around beautiful women that he wants to have sex or get into a relationship with.

He might feel confident around unattractive women, but when he is faced with intense feelings of sexual attraction for a woman that he likes, he suddenly begins to doubt his attractiveness to her.

Sexual attraction is a powerful thing and you can use it to your advantage. It's not only us men who feel intense attraction for women; women can feel intense attraction for us too. How? Watch this video below to understand how it works...

If you don't actually know how to attract women that you like, it's only natural that you will feel unworthy or self-doubting around them. Yet, doubting yourself and lacking confidence around women (especially beautiful women) is the last thing you should ever do.

Women are naturally attracted to confidence in men, so if you don't have confidence in your attractiveness to women, most are not going to like you in a sexual way. You might be able to attract women that you're not very attracted to, but if you want the hot girls – they require a bit more confidence.

Being Naturally Attractive to Women

There are many traits that a man can display around a woman to trigger her feelings of attraction for him. For example: Confidence, charisma, charm, humor, masculinity, etc.

For now, let's have a look at three of those traits...

1. Confidence

The type of confidence women are attracted to is a relaxed, masculine confidence. You can display this type of confidence via your body language, vibe, conversation and actions.

2. Masculinity

The most attractive type of masculinity to women is a man's thinking, behavior and vibe. Some guys waste years in the gym building up muscles in the hope that women will be amazed by their physical masculinity and overlook their lack of emotional masculinity (i.e. determination to succeed, unrelenting belief in himself, confidence around alpha males, etc).

Yes, women can feel attracted a man's physical masculinity, but if he doesn't have the mental and emotional masculinity to back it up, she will quickly lose interest. A woman instinctively knows that in today's world, big muscles don't always equal success, happiness and a great life. A muscular body may look good, but it's not very useful for succeeding in today's world.

True masculinity is demonstrated through the strength of man's character and not physical or muscular strength. A man's emotional strength and ability to make a woman feel like a woman that makes him the most sexually attractive to her initially and in the long run.

3. Social intelligence

The same type of instinctive sexual attraction that women feel towards truly confident and masculine men is also felt towards men with social intelligence. Social intelligence is a key indicator of a man's potential to succeed in modern life.

A man with social intelligence has the type of qualities that make him genuinely "likeable" and therefore someone other people are keen to be friends with. Being sociable and having the kind of charismatic charm that draws people towards him makes him a guy who generates an almost primal sense of "want" in a woman.

Back in the days of our prehistoric ancestors, a man needed the trust and friendship of other men simply to be able to survive when times were hard. Women instinctively wanted to be chosen as a mate by this type of man because he had what it took to offer her and their offspring the best chance of survival.

In today's world, a man with the natural ability to form friendships and gain the trust of other men still generates a deep sexual attraction in a woman, and she still wants to be the woman he chooses.

A man doesn't have to be hugely popular or have loads of friends to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction, but he does need to display the type of social intelligence that suggests he is likeable and could make friends easily. That is what counts.

Where GuysÂ Go Wrong

Wanting to be liked by a woman is a mistake if you really want a woman to lust after you and want to have sex with you or be your boyfriend.

To want to have sex with you, a woman needs to feel sexually attracted to you, and that means she needs to see you as a guy who has all of the qualities sheâs looking for in a man. If she sees you as a friend, she might like you, but sheâs not going to feel the attraction needed to want to be more than just friends with you.

This means that trying hard to be liked by a woman or trying hard to be best friends with a woman is an approach thatâs going to backfire. If you want a woman to like you, you need to be a likeable guy, but if you want a woman to be sexually attracted to you, you need to be a sexually attractive guy âs thereâs a big difference.

Being at a womanâs beck and call or always âbeing thereâ for her at the drop of a hat might make you a guy she loves to have around as her best friend, but sheâs also going to see you as a guy who doesnât have anything else going on in his life other than her.

Some guys think that being a woman's best friend will show her how much he cares, which will then lead her to realize that he is the man for her. Yet, that's not how it works with hot women. Sure, unattractive women may go for that, but not the hotties. Hotties have options and they choose a guy based on how much sexual attraction he makes her feel, not how nice he is as a friend.

The same applies if you behave in a âgirlyâ way around a woman you like in an attempt to be liked more by her. The problem with this is that behaving this way makes you âone of the girlsâ and not a sexually attractive man that sheâs going to lust after.

Pretending to want to be âjust friendsâ when you secretly want more is also a mistake.

Women are experts at reading body language and if she senses that itâs more than friendship youâre after and sheâs not feeling the same way, sheâs going to feel awkward in your company and may well try to avoid you rather than risk having to hurt your feelings.

How to Make a Woman Like You More Than â Just Friendsâ

If you want to know how to get a woman to like you in a way that could lead to being more than just friends, you've got to focus on triggering her feelings of sexual attraction.

When a woman feels sexually attracted to you, she will then really appreciate the fact that you're also a good guy. However, don't expect her to get wet and feel horny in response to you being nice. That's just not how it works.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Score With Women: The Right Way to Do it

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your aim is to hopefully score with a woman who is nice enough to give you a chance, then you're approaching it all wrong.

Instead of thinking, "How can I score with women?" you should to change it to, "How can I make a woman feel lucky to score with me?"

Why? Most guys in this world are willing to have sex with pretty much all of the attractive women they see. It's very easy for us guys to be sexually interested in a guy because much of our attraction to women is based on how they look.

Women know this.

They get it.

[image: Willing to have sex with her just based on appearance]

If a woman is pretty, attractive, sexy or even just decent looking, she will have gone through most of her life being looked at, hit on and asked out by guys who are willing to be her immediately.

The guys don't even care about her personality or who she is as a person – just on her looks alone, they are willing to have sex with her, go out on a date with her and even get into a relationship with her.

This is one of the main reasons why if you're looking for the answer on "How to score with women," you need to focus on making the woman feel lucky to be scoring with you. In other words, you need to be a bit more of a challenge...

As long as you can make a woman feel a strong attraction for you (i.e. by being confident, having a masculine vibe, being charismatic, making her laugh, etc), she will automatically become sexually interested in you.

If you can then connect with her and get her feeling like she would be lucky to have sex with you or be your girlfriend, then she will become romantically interested in you.

Attracting women and then picking them up for sex is actually very easy to do because most guys do not have the skill set or the awareness of the reality that women live in. When a typical guy meets an attractive woman, he essentially behaves like pretty much every other guy that she's met prior to him.

In other words, he feels attracted to her and is romantically and sexually interested in her immediately, even if she isn't doing anything to impress him other than look good.

He will then try hard to impress her (e.g. by being really nice) and hope to get a chance with her.

Going through that process with a guy is very boring and typical for a woman, so when you can offer her something more exciting, you will find it incredibly easy to score with women.

How Do Normal, Everyday Guys Score With Women?

When guys are looking for advice on how to score with women, they're often confused by the fact that they see ordinary-looking guys (perhaps guys they see as being less attractive or uglier than they are) with women falling all over them.

Yet, despite their looks, good job, nice clothes and good intentions with women, they are struggling to get any kind of attention from women or to get themselves a girlfriend. Naturally, guys in that position want to know what those ordinary guys have got that they don't have.

[image: Ugly guy has a baby with a beautiful woman]

[image: Black guys with white women]

[image: How is this possible?]

[image: Everyday couples]

[image: Asian guy with white girlfriend]

[image: Ugly guy with hot cheerleader girlfriend]

[image: Guy with a weird nose with a beautiful girlfriend]

[image: Guy with big ears with beautiful girlfriend]

[image: White man marrying a black woman. Asian guy marrying a black woman]

[image: Fat Asian guy with pretty girlfriend]

[image: Asian guy marrying pretty white girl]

[image: Fat guys with pretty women]

[image: Fat men marrying beautiful women]

Scoring With Women is Not All About Looks

As Dan Bacon explains in the video below, there are some women who will only accept a perfect looking, male model type of guy with loads of money. That is true.

However, what most guys don't realize is that the majority of women have what Dan calls an "Open Type," which means that the woman is open to being with all different types of guys, as long as the guy can make her feel enough attraction for other reasons (e.g. his confidence, charisma, masculine vibe, flirting, humor, etc).

One of the biggest myths surrounding what it takes to score with women is that it's all about looks. TV ads, billboards, glossy magazines, and movies all perpetuate the myth that women are only interested in "good looking" guys who kit themselves out in all the latest trendy designer gear and look like they've just stepped off the front cover of a men's magazine.

This is simply not the case in reality. You only need to look around you at those ordinary guys with beautiful women on their arms to realize that having the right stuff to attract women goes way beyond looks alone.

In the real world, most women are not looking to score with the best-looking guy they can find because they instinctively know that a guy's looks is not his most important attribute. In terms of a guy being able to survive, thrive and protect her, he needs to be able to have confidence, masculinity and social intelligence, rather than just a pretty face.

Most women are looking to score with a guy who has the inner qualities it takes to make them feel a deep and instinctive sexual attraction that is based on survival, rather than on the temporary attraction to looks.

Scoring With Women is Not All About Money

Another popular myth is that ugly guys who attract beautiful women must have loads of money.

This myth is readily believed by guys who consider themselves to be at least average-looking if not above average but still can't get themselves a girlfriend, and this is simply because it would appear to explain why those other guys get all the attention instead of them. Yet again, this is not the case in reality.

Just as most women are not attracted to a guy by his looks alone, they are also not interested in a guy because of what he is in terms of financial wealth, material possessions, or fame. Yes, some women are money hungry whores and gold diggers, but the majority of women are much more flexible with what they find attractive about men.

Most women are more interested in who a man is on the inside (i.e. his personality, his determination to succeed, his self-esteem, etc) and his potential to possibly succeed in life at some point.

Most women do not expect a guy to already be successful in life in order for him to be attractive.

Most women can feel just as much attraction for a guy who seems like he has the potential to succeed, as they do for a guy who is already successful.

If you don't understand that, you will likely go through your life feeling as though you're not good enough for women. The fact is, if you are a good guy, then you ARE good enough for most women. All you need to do is simply improve your ability to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman when you meet her and most women will be interested in you.

Where Guys Go Wrong

Here's a couple of examples out of millions of guys who are struggling to score with women...

Jed's story...

Jed got sucked in by the advertising hype he was constantly being bombarded with on TV and billboards and he made the decision to get himself a "makeover" in an effort to make himself more attractive to women.

He spent a fortune on designer clothing and shoes and then devoted an entire day to getting his hair restyled and undergoing every imaginable kind of male "plucking and preening" process in a health spa. He then spent another small fortune on buying the recommended male grooming products to help him maintain his new super-smooth, Metrosexual image.

He looked good, he smelled good and he felt good, so he set off downtown with a spring in his stride. Jed noticed that women were noticing him a lot more. With his new-found confidence in his appearance he felt he was guaranteed to score, but he was wrong.

Jed felt more confident about his appearance on the outside, but when it came to approaching women he liked, he realized that he was no more confident on the inside. He still lacked the ability to confidently talk to attractive women and make them enjoy being around him. He looked good to women, but he didn't make them feel good, so he didn't score.

His shyness and anxiety made women feel awkward in his company and their interest in him was short-lived.

Dave's story...

Dave noticed that beautiful women always seemed to gush over the male actors in Hollywood movies, even though those men weren't necessarily model material. He assumed that if he could just copy their behavior and repeat some of their cool lines around girls, then he would finally be able to score with women.

This was a big mistake on many levels because the guys in movies are actors, not real people and the lines they use are scripted. The reactions from the actresses in the movies suggests that what the guy is saying is cool and attractive, but the actress is simply acting.

Real women living in the real world can see when a guy is attempting to hide his insecurities behind a weird, confident front. If the words that he is saying seem awkwardly scripted, he's going to be rejected by most women that he tries it on...and that's exactly what happened to Dave.

Women saw right through him and they rejected him. Most women don't want to accept a guy who doesn't believe that he is good enough "as is." When a guy feels the need to put on a fake front to hopefully try and impress a girl, she will usually notice it and reject him.

The Right Way to Do it

Those ordinary guys you see with women falling over them know something that you don't know. They know what really turns women on and they know how women think. They know that women love the thrill of the chase and they know that women want to feel lucky to have scored with a man that all women want to score with.

If you are just starting out and want to be able to score with hot women, you need to begin by improving your ability to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman. Watch this video to understand how it works...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Why Don't Women Like Nice Guys? Fact Vs. Fiction

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you consider yourself to be a nice guy and you've also been rejected by a lot of women, you have come to the conclusion that women don't like nice guys.

If you've also seen women lusting after guys that you consider to be bad boys, then it's only natural that you might ask, "Why don't women like nice guys?" and "Why do women like jerks and bad boys?"

Watch the video below by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man, author of The Flow and a nice guy who get laid) to understand why some nice guys get rejected and other nice guys don't...

As Dan explains in the video above, there's nothing wrong with being a good guy or being nice to women. The problems occur when you are not saying or doing anything to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman and are simply hoping to be "liked" enough for being such a good guy.

Being nice to a woman doesn't make her wet, but triggering her feelings of sexual attraction does. When you trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction, she really appreciates the fact that you are also a nice guy. However, if you don't make her feel attracted to you, most women won't care that you're nice guy because it's not what makes them feel sexually interested in a guy.

Are You Too Nice to Women That You Want to Have Sex With?

If you consider yourself to be a nice guy, then you're probably confused by the idea that it's possible to be too nice, right? So let me explain: there's absolutely nothing wrong with being a nice guy, but to be sexually attractive to women, a guy must also be confident, masculine, and alpha. If you're a nice guy who is also shy, nervous, and intimidated by women, or you put women on a pedestal and try way too hard to liked, you don't have the qualities it takes to be seen as a sexually attractive man.

With this in mind, women might like a nice guy as a friend but to be seen as a potential boyfriend, a woman needs to feel sexually attracted to him. Like and lust are two very different things.

Women do like nice guys, so if you're asking, "Why don't women like nice guys?" it can only be because you've experienced rejection or you're finding that women are not responding to you in the way you want them to.

With this being the case, getting the results with women you want rests on switching your focus from, "Why don't women like nice guys?" to, "Why don't women like me in the way I want them to?"

Fact Vs. Fiction

In the movies, women seem to fall for the "bad boy" every time. The guy who treats her badly is initially favored over the "nice guy" who is always there for her and provides a shoulder to cry on whenever her latest jerk of a boyfriend does something to upset her.

If the nice guy is able to save the day, save the girl or save the world by the end of the movie, she will then fall in love with him for being so confident and brave. However, if that isn't the storyline, the nice guy will simply be her whipping boy.

He will be constantly doing favors for her and essentially be at her beck and call around the clock. Whenever she needs help with anything, he's there; whenever she needs someone to talk to, he's there on the end of the phone, and whenever she needs her ego boosted, he's there with some heartfelt words to make her feel better about herself.

She says things like, "You're the nicest guy I know," or, "I'm so lucky to have you as a friend," or, "The girl who gets you as her boyfriend will be the luckiest girl in the world." Huh? If she's thinking all of that, why is she chasing after the "bad boy" who keeps breaking her heart instead of falling in love with the nicest guy she knows?

Well, let's just say that movies are responsible for most of the confusion guys feel over what women are looking for in a man and what they really want in a relationship.

In movies where the "bad boy" gets the girl and the "nice guy" loses out, the bad boy is always the ridiculously good-looking guy with a rugged jawline and rippling muscles while the nice guy is always the squeaky-clean puny guy who is also a bit of a nerd.

It's no wonder that this leads guys into believing that all the advertising hype they're bombarded with is true and that women really are only interested in how a guy looks.

This can make a "puny guy" think that hitting the gym will make him more attractive to women, or it can make a "nerdy guy" think that getting himself a new, trendier look with some designer clothes and an updated hairstyle will boost his attractiveness, but none of this will change anything that actually matters.

Real women in the real world are instinctively attracted to confident, masculine, alpha males, and the way a guy looks on the outside is of no importance compared to who he is as a man on the inside.

You might look like you're straight off a Hollywood set but if you don't have what it takes to approach women in the confident way they like to be approached and you don't have the type of mental and emotional masculinity it takes to make a woman feel like a woman in your presence, you don't have what it takes to make her feel the sexual attraction it takes to make her want you.

Of course, it's not unusual to find the storyline in many movies leads to the beautiful woman finally realizing that the guy she's been in love with all along is the "nicest guy she knows" and she jumps into bed with him and they live happily ever after! Believe me, this is not going to happen in real life.

Women are not turned on by guys who put them on a pedestal or throw themselves at their feet and they're not sexually attracted to guys who have nothing else going on in their lives other than being "best friends" with them or being "one of the girls"!

Why Don't Women Like You in the Way That You Really Want Them To?

[image: Why don't women want to have sex with you?]

Do you know the answer to that question?

Another way to ask you that question is: Why don't women want to have sex with you? Why do they only see you as a friend or as another nice guy to overlook, while they go ahead and have sex with a guy who isn't as good of a guy as you are?

Simple...you're not turning them on. You're just being the good guy that you are and expecting that women like you enough for that to "give you a chance" to be with them. That's not how it works. You've got to turn her on and when you do that, she will then appreciate the fact that you're a good guy.

If you're asking, Why don't women like nice guys? because you're a nice guy and women keep overlooking you, you need to change what has preventing you from enjoying the success you want. There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but are you being too nice and hoping that it's enough to get you the girl?

The ideal type of man for most is a good guy who is also confident, masculine, and generally cool and good fun to be around. Do you have those qualities, or are you just a "nice" guy?

If you want women to take you seriously, you have to take their wants and needs seriously. Women want you to trigger their feelings of sexual attraction and when you do that, they will then take you seriously.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

“Women Are Too Picky!”

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you’ve been finding that women are too picky, then you either haven’t been meeting enough single women or you haven’t been making them feel enough attraction for you when you meet them.

Yes, some women are very picky and will only accept a perfect male model with loads of money, but as you will discover by watching the video below, most women are much more flexible about what they find attractive in a guy...

Most women are not too picky, but it can definitely seem that way if they aren’t picking you. You know that you’re a good guy and that a woman would be lucky to be with you, but you just aren’t making them realize that.

Making a woman realize that you’re an awesome guy and that she’d be lucky to be with you is not done through convincing her with words.

Instead, it is done by triggering her feelings of respect and attraction for you as a guy. Once a woman feels respect and attraction for you, she will then look at all of your other great qualities (e.g. you’re smart, you’re a good guy, you have good intentions with her, etc) in a more positive light.

However, if she doesn’t feel respect and attraction for you as a guy, it won’t really matter to her that you’re a smart, kind-hearted guy with good intentions.

Are Women Only Interested in Good Looking, Rich Guys?

Unfortunately, guys who adopt a negative attitude and believe women to be too picky also fall into the trap of believing that women are only interested in a guy’s looks, wealth, or material possessions.

They’ll carry a chip on their shoulder over not having movie star good looks; or being shorter than average; or not having a muscular physique; or not having the finances to fill their closet with designer clothes and shoes, and the list goes on.

They assume that women overlook them or reject them because they don’t have all of the above listed things, but this is a big mistake, and if it’s one that you are making, it’s time for a reality check.

You only need to take a look around you in any social environment to see men of all shapes and sizes with beautiful women, even guys you see as ugly in some way, so what is it they have that you don’t have; why are women picking them and not you?

It’s quite possible that you believe a beautiful woman would only be interested in an ugly guy if he has a big bank balance (or a big something else) but if that’s your attitude, you really need to let it go because it’s the only thing standing in the way of being able to enjoy the success you want with women.

Yes, there is a small percentage of shallow women out there who will only accept a guy who is super rich and perfectly good looking. Yet, most aren’t that shallow.

Most women are not attracted to a guy purely because of how he looks, what he’s wearing, how his hair is styled, what car he’s driving, or even how fat his wallet is. The majority of women (95%) simply aren't that shallow.

Sure, if a guy is successful in life and has a "look" that really suits his personality, then that's cool, but other than making sure he's clean and not looking like he just crawled out from a hole in the ground, it's not his outer appearance that decides his attractiveness in most women's eyes.

Most women are attracted to who a guy is in terms of his personality and character traits, not what he is in terms of his looks or material possessions. The essential qualities and characteristics women are looking for in a man are things like: Confidence, masculinity, charm, charisma and the ability to make her laugh and smile.

In other word, good looks can only get a guy so far. A guy might look like he's just stepped off the front cover of a magazine, but if he doesn't have the type of personality that naturally attracted women, he won't be able to hold the attention of most women for very long.

Are You Making Women Feel Enough Sexual Attraction For You?

Women are not overlooking you because they're too picky, but because they aren't seeing enough the attractive qualities that they're looking for in a man when they interact with you.

If you have hang ups and insecurities about your outer appearance, the chances are this will lead to behaving in a shy, awkward, and insecure way. It's your attitude and behavior that's turning women off, not your height or your hairstyle.

Women are instinctively attracted to alpha males; men with confidence, masculinity, and a sense of purpose in life. Modern women are much more independent than in previous generations and this often results in the need to be "tough" in everyday life.

It's having to behave in a more masculine way and having to suppress their natural femininity that makes a modern woman long to meet a man who has what it takes to make her feel like a woman.

They want a man to have strong alpha characteristics because being alpha makes him mentally and emotionally strong enough to naturally take the lead in a relationship, allowing a woman to let her guard down and relax into being truly feminine.

If you lack self-confidence and you behave in a shy, anxious way around women, or you try way too hard to be liked as a result, you're not showing yourself to be the type of guy they want.

If you have genuine self-confidence, true masculinity, and social intelligence, you have qualities that make you stand out as a guy who knows who he is and what he's about in life, making you a sexually attractive guy in the process.

When you develop the alpha qualities that allow you to feel secure in yourself as a man and secure in what you've got to offer in a relationship, you become a guy that all women want and certainly not a guy who thinks women are too picky.

If women aren't picking you at the moment, you change all of that by becoming a much more sexually attractive man. All of the qualities and characteristics women are looking for in a man can be learned, developed and put into practice to make you an irresistibly attractive man who effectively has his pick of women.

Modern women are looking for a man with qualities that make him stand out as a real man in their eyes, so in this sense you could argue that women are too picky, but only because they're holding out for the alpha male they want and choosing not to make do with a lower ranking male.

Being an alpha male is not about being a bad boy, jerk or asshole. It's about being emotionally strong and secure in who you are as a man and what you've got to offer. It's about having unrelenting belief in yourself that allows you to take action and achieve whatever you want to achieve in life.

What we teach here at The Modern Man is about how to be a good guy alpha male who is not only naturally attractive to women, but also the type of guy that other men respect and people want to be friends with. You can be that guy.

You can be the guy that most women find attractive. When you develop the ability to attract women, you can be the guy who says, "Women are too easy" rather than saying, "Women are too picky."

How? Click around here at The Modern Man and we'll teach you quick and easy ways to get what you want with women...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Iâ€¢â€¢ve Always Felt Like an Outsider

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Does the idea of being the center of attention in a social situation make you breakout in a cold sweat?
Are you the kind of guy who:

- Thinks to himself, *â€¢â€¢Iâ€¢â€¢ve always felt like an outsider who doesnâ€¢â€¢t â€¢â€¢fit inâ€¢â€¢ in social situations.*â€¢â€¢
- In social situations, hangs back in a corner watching everyone else talk, have fun and chat up all the hot girls?
- Focuses on his feelings of nervousness and insecurity around groups and around women, which only makes him feel more introverted and left out.
- Watches in frustration as the girl he wants flirts and laughs and hooks up with some other guy.
- Appears lonely and uncomfortable.
- Wishes he knew how to overcome his feelings of â€¢â€¢feeling like an outsiderâ€¢â€¢ so that he could hang out, have fun and chat to women like all the other guys around him, instead of missing out and going home alone night after night.

[image: Why don't I fit in with people?]

Well believe it or not, youâ€¢â€¢re not alone in feeling this way. Many guys feel like this. However, feeling like an outsider is not something you have to live with. If it is something that is making you unhappy, itâ€¢â€¢s within your control to change it.

Why? You can control how you feel. Your happiness, confidence and self-esteem is something that you not only can control, but something that you must control. You have to take charge of your mind, rather than letting it work against you.

The Power of Your Mind

Your mind is a very powerful thing and you can use that power against you, by telling yourself, â€¢â€¢Iâ€¢â€¢ve always felt like an outsider and I just donâ€¢â€¢t fit in with othersâ€¢â€¢ every time you go out. Or, you can use that power constructively by looking at social situations as an opportunity to develop your confidence.

[image: Why do I feel like an outsider?]

Once you fully understand that how you feel in social situations is entirely up to you, the way you interact with others will also change. Ultimately, you need to understand that you don't have to be included into everything that everyone else is doing, but when you are in social situations, how welcome you feel is usually based on your perception.

If you behave as though you don't fit in or are not welcome, most people won't come to your rescue and beg you to fit in with them; you've got to assume responsibility for your acceptance into the group and just assume that you fit in.

Even the most popular people in the world are not included in on everything.

For example: Take a famous actor, although he might feel really comfortable on a movie set, at the Oscars or at a party with other actors and movie people, he might feel like an outsider at a sports game, at a dinner with business people or academics, etc.

However, rather than say, “I feel like an outsider,” if he just assumed acceptance and didn't see himself as an outsider, he could fit in if he wanted to. You can do that too.

You don't have to force yourself to fit into everything. Be who you want to be, but keep an open mind to potentially include yourself in things that you currently feel like an outsider with.

5 Things That Will Help You Fit In With Others

Changing how you feel in social situations is simply a matter of making small changes inside yourself. Here are 5 things that you can develop or do, that will help you feel more comfortable in social situations.

1. Be attractive to women

Nothing fixes a guy's social insecurities more than being able to attract women. When a guy has the skill of being able to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for him, it automatically makes:

- Other guys respect him and want to be his friend.
- Women behave nicely towards him.
- Him feel more confident in his value to others.

Do you have the skill of being able to attract women with your personality when you interact with them? Watch this video to find out...

2. Display confidence.

If you work on nothing else, work on developing your self confidence. Being confident is the most important thing you'll ever do for yourself. Self confidence will help you fit in, it will help you achieve goals in your life, it will help you progress in your career, and it will help you attract the best women. Confidence is a pretty simple thing to have too.

Consider this: Most people feel a small amount of confidence with many things in life and a large amount of confidence with some things. For example: If you're a really great video game player, when you play with other guys you will feel confident about your abilities and you will fit in, right?

If you're really good at a sport, when you're competing you feel really confident, right? So if you can feel a little bit confident in some situations, then you can build on that confidence and make yourself feel a lot of confidence in all situations.

Confidence is essentially about you having belief in yourself, which is something that you can choose to have or not. Some guys decide to believe in themselves, while other guys decide to doubt themselves.

3. Be a great conversationalist.

Probably one of the easiest ways to fit in is to be a great conversationalist. Being able to participate in a conversation in an enthusiastic and interesting way is the surest way to be accepted and also to make you feel more relaxed and comfortable.

If you can be interesting and funny, people will naturally be drawn to you. Also being the kind of man who can have his say is attractive to women, which adds to his credibility amongst other men. The biggest mistake guys who feel like an outsider make, is to shut off and shrink into the shadows during a conversation. Remember: People are involved in their own lives. Theyâre not going to make the effort to include you if you donât make the effort yourself.

4. Be more assertive.

If youâve had a bad experience in the past, like you got ignored when you tried to join in, in a conversation, itâs easy to begin believing that itâs going to happen every time. Eventually you can start anticipating rejection and rather than it happening, you end up shutting yourself off.

However, thatâs not going to help you fit in. In fact, if you repeatedly stay shut off from others, they will begin to see you as the kind of guy who doesnât want to join in and they will naturally ignore you (because they think thatâs what you want).

The best way to stop feeling left out is by making the effort to participate. If someone is rude, unfriendly or tries to shut you out of the conversation, just be assertive (in a loving, non-aggressive way).

Let that person know that you have something of value to add to the conversation and have your say. Youâd be surprised at how much respect this type of behavior will get you and how suddenly people will want to include you in their group.

5. Donât try so hard.

Guys who say, *âIâve always felt like an outsider. What am I doing wrong?*â often donât realize that by trying too hard to be liked and to fit in, they end up being seen a burden for people to carry.

Most people are emotionally bogged down with their own life and their own problems, so the idea of having to pick someone else up and make him feel better about himself is hard work. People donât have the time or the inclination to build you up emotionally so that you can become their friend.

To be accepted as a friend you have to bring value to others. If you can do that, you will naturally be accepted. However, if you donât feel like youâre valuable to others (i.e. you feel like you donât fit in), itâs natural to want them to carry the slack and accept you regardless of you not being able to âbring anything to the tableâ so to speak.

To change all this and to become more attractive to others, you have to be emotionally strong and secure in who you are, which is something that we can teach you how to do here at The Modern Man.

Open the Door and Step Inside

You can carry on going through life saying, âIâve always felt like an outsiderâ and feeling lonely and left out, or you can decide right now that you want to change all that and become the kind of guy people want to hang out with because you know how to make them feel good about themselves and because you bring value to their lives.

Right now maybe you canât see how you can do that, but with our help, not only can you make a bunch of new friends, you can also meet the perfect woman for you. Before you know it youâll wake up one morning and realize that life is great and that youâre no longer looking in from the outside.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Meeting New Women After a Break Up

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Meeting new women after a break up can be challenging, especially if a guy has been dumped and has now lost a lot of confidence in his attractiveness to women.

Although one of the best ways to get over an ex girlfriend, fiancée or wife is to begin meeting and having sex with an even better, hotter woman (or women), this isn't going to happen if you're still feeling emotionally damaged from the break up.

Right now, you might not be feeling confident enough to approach the types of women that you find attractive. If not, watch this video!

Trying to Meet New Women Before You've Reconnected With Your True Confidence

[image: Reconnect with your confidence before trying to meet new women]

Women are attracted to confident, masculine, mentally and emotionally strong men, but if you've come out of your relationship lacking self confidence and feeling nervous and shy, you will usually only attract the type of woman who is looking for a weak, insecure guy that she can control.

In other words, unattractive or manipulative women that are going to be no good for you and will simply waste your time. You don't have to accept second best, but either do the hot women that you really want.

The hot, sexy, beautiful women that would be a good enough replacement for your ex are usually going to be too much of a challenge for a guy who has been emotionally beaten up after a break up. So, before you go out meeting new women, make sure that you rebuild your confidence so you are emotionally attractive to hot women.

For example: If you meet a hot woman, you have to understand that she is used to guys hitting on her and hoping to get a chance. Yet, what she really wants is a guy who is confident enough to be a challenge...

Moving on From an Unhappy Relationship

[image: Moving on from an unhappy relationship]

If you're looking to meet new women after getting out of an unhappy relationship, then you're most-likely feeling excited about the idea of having sex with new women.

However, before you attempt to meet new women, make sure that you brush up your ability to trigger feelings of attraction inside of a woman when you meet her. You've likely lost a bit of your mojo and probably aren't as good with the ladies as you used to be...or are you?

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to determine your level of skill when it comes to attracting new women and keeping a woman attracted when in a relationship!

Bouncing Back to Become an Even Better Man

You don't have to let the break up destroy you, eat away at your confidence or waste anymore of your life.

You can use this break up as an opportunity to become an even better man that you already are. You can do this by:

1. Reconnecting with your powerful, masculine confidence

As a man, you need to make sure that you never let anyone or anything take away the powerful, masculine confidence that you've been born with.

Every man can connect with it, but most guys don't—especially after being dumped or broken up with by the woman they love. Instead, they go into their shell and disconnect with their true, masculine power.

No matter what you think of yourself right now, what you need to know is that you are a lot more powerful, confident and masculine than you've been letting yourself be lately.

You know that deep down, you are a strong man and you do deserve to be loved, cherished and adored by a beautiful woman (or women). You know that you're good enough.

Yet, being dumped or going through a messy break up (i.e. breaking up and getting back together several times, being cheated on, etc) can be a definite confidence killer for most guys. When a woman says things like, "I don't know what I ever saw in you!" or, "I feel nothing for you anymore" or "You're the worst thing that ever happened to me!" it's natural to feel hurt.

Regardless of how you hurt you feel or what doubts you have of yourself about women, you need to get over it—and fast.

If you approach women with feelings of insecurity, it will clearly come through in your body language, conversation and behavior and they will be turned off by you.

Women might not be able to explain why they feel turned off, but something just won't feel right about you. You might be able to put on a brave face and act confident and sure of yourself, but something will be off.

2. Learning from your past mistakes

No matter how bad your break up was, or how much of it was your ex's fault (even if she cheated on you), part of the responsibility rests with you.

There was most-likely something (or a lot of things) that you said or did to her that ruined her love, respect and attraction for you.

If you are unsure what type of emotional process your girlfriend (fiancée or wife) went through before ending the relationship, watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man and creator of Get Your Ex Back: Super System).

Can you relate to any of the relationship mistakes outlined in the video above?

If so, the best thing for you to do is learn from your mistakes and become an even better man that you are right now.

For example: If you were clingy, insecure or got to a point where you were unable to control your jealousy in the relationship, you need to work on fixing that otherwise you will keep repeating what happened with your ex in future relationships.

By fixing the issues that caused your ex to break up with you, not only will you become more attractive to new women, you will also become a better man than you already are today.

3. Leaving the past behind

Meeting new women after a break up means that you have to start with a clean slate. You have an exciting opportunity to start afresh and do a better job at attracting the right woman and then keeping her when you get her into a relationship.

Are you ready to leave her behind, or do you want to get her back? If you are ready to leave her behind, then disconnect from your feelings about her and start afresh with a new woman (or women).

One of the biggest mistakes guys make is to bring their relationship baggage to every new interaction they have with new women.

For example: A guy might approach a woman and as soon as heâs made it past the initial pleasantries, he starts boring her with stories about his ex, what a bitch she was and how she broke his heart.

Sometimes, a woman will listen out of politeness, but listening to stories about his ex and how broken he is without her is not going to be a sexual turn on for her.

She will usually then make an excuse to leave that goes something like, âUmm, I need to go to the bathroom...I might talk to you laterâ or âMy friends are waiting for me so I need to go nowâ or “I have to go now, but I hope things get better for you” and sheâll get away from him as quickly as possible.

Another example of hanging onto the past is to look for women who remind them of their ex.

Some guys will say they want to meet new women, but when the opportunity presents itself they make all sorts of excuses why it wonât work out, âOh, but sheâs not my type. I only date blondes like my ex Linda,â or âSheâs really pretty, but Tanesha was much prettier,â etc.

By placing these types of ârestrictionsâ on new relationships, guys like that are setting themselves up to fail by only seeking to find a woman who is almost exactly like their ex.

If you can relate to that, hereâs what you need to know...

The love and attraction that you experience with each woman will be different. Sometimes the love is amazing, but the attraction just isnât there and sometimes you feel attracted to a woman, but you donât really want to fully love her. Other times, everything clicks into place and you truly love, respect and feel attracted to the woman.

The only way to find the women who truly meet your standards and make you feel the way you want to feel, is to experiment by having sex and new relationships with many women.

Itâs much better to do it that way than hoping to get lucky and then trying to make it work with an incompatible woman. If you want a relationship to last, you have to find a woman who is truly compatible with you and you also have to be able to deepen her feelings of love, respect and attraction over time.

You may get lucky and find your perfect girl the next time you meet a woman, but if you donât find her â donât worry. Keep meeting and having sex with new women and you will.

This is Your Chance to Starting a New, Even Better Life

A break up isn't always easy to deal with, but although it can leave you feeling emotionally bruised, it can also be a great opportunity in disguise.

If you use what happened in your relationship to work on yourself and become the kind of man you always wanted to be, you will not only get through the break up more smoothly, but you will also improve your life in the long term.

Meeting new women after a break up will be a pleasure for you because you will have the skills to attract high quality, beautiful women rather than have to settle for what you can get, or hope you'll get lucky one day.

Don't waste another day of your life thinking that you can't have a beautiful woman in your life or that you don't deserve one.

You can have a beautiful woman as a lover, girlfriend or wife and it all comes back to your ability to attract women when you meet them. The better you are at attracting women, the easier it is going to be for you to meet new woman and get on with enjoying your love life.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Iâ€¢ve Never Had a Girlfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Getting a girlfriend is easy when you know how to attract women.

If you can interact with a woman, trigger her feelings of attraction and keep a conversation going for a few minutes, she will usually be more than happy to give you her phone number and go out on a date with you.

Alternatively, if you can keep the conversation going for 30 minutes to an hour, many women will be open to kissing you and having sex with you on the first night.

[image: Many women are open to kissing and having sex on the first night]

Here at The Modern Man, weâ€¢ve helped 1,000s of guys to enjoy the kind of success with women they once only dreamed of. we get lots of emails from guys on a daily basis asking for help and advice on everything from finding the confidence to approach women, bringing the spark back into a long-term relationship thatâ€¢s beginning to die or getting an ex back.

The advice we give is real world advice based on our own experiences and the experiences of the guys we help, and keeping it real is at the heart of everything we do, particularly when guys contact us to say, â€¢Iâ€¢ve never had a girlfriend. Please help me!

If youâ€¢ve never had a girlfriend, there are three main questions that we need to ask you:

1. Do You Know How to Attract Women?

As a man, the number one skill that you need to have is the ability to trigger feelings of attraction inside of a woman.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and what you need to do trigger it...

Do you know what women are looking for in a man? Do you know what women find attractive in a man, and what turns them right off? If you donâ€¢t have much experience with women, thereâ€¢s every chance that your beliefs about what women find attractive have been influenced by what youâ€¢ve seen on TV and in the movies, right?

Yet, real life is not like the movies.

If you believe in the popular Hollywood movie idea of dating, the shy, socially awkward, nice guy catches the attention of the beautiful leading lady who then falls in love with him and they live happily ever after.

Awww, how sweet.

If youâ€¢re waiting for that to happen to you, youâ€¢re in for a long wait and you're likely going to have to experience many horrible rejections before a woman may decide to give you a chance.

Why? Women reject nice guys because being nice isn't what makes a woman feel attracted to a guy.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon to understand how to be a good guy who gets all the attention, love, sex, affection and devotion that you deserve, rather than being a nice guy who gets rejected or dumped by women that you really care about...

In the movies, you will also often see confident, beautiful women approaching shy, awkward, nice guys. Yet, in the real world, women rarely approach men and simply wait for a confident guy to walk up, make her feel attracted and then move the interaction forward to a phone number, date, kiss or sex and then into a relationship.

If you've been trying to be "liked" by women for being a nice guy, then you've found one answer to the question of why you've never had a girlfriend...and you've also discovered what you need to do to change that.

2. Do You Only Behave Like a Friend Around Women?

Maybe you're not such a loner and you actually have lots of friends, but your female friends are never anything more than "just friends."

When this is the case, you need to gain an understanding of what it is that makes women see some guys as nothing more than friends and others as potential boyfriends.

It could be that your behaviour around women is leading to them seeing you as a "just good friends" kind of guy and not a man they feel sexually attracted to, so you need to learn how to change the way you behave in order to change the way women see you.

3. Do You Meet Lots of Single Women?

[image: Never had a girlfriend because I don't approach women]

You may be limiting your potential to find a girlfriend by limiting your social circle.

It might sound obvious, but it makes sense that the more single women you meet, the greater your chances of meeting a potential girlfriend, right? Of course, going to places where women go is not the answer in itself. Joining clubs, meet up groups or hanging out in places where you're likely to meet single women is not going to change anything unless you learn how to attract those women when you meet them.

Likewise, you also need to have the confidence to approach the women you find attractive. You can't expect women to suddenly take pity on you and do all the work on their own.

Women are attracted to guys who have the confidence to approach and start a conversation without the encouragement of a woman (e.g. her giving a smile, wave, continually making eye contact, etc).

If you're currently a guy saying, "I've never had a girlfriend," it might seem like an impossible dream to imagine yourself having your pick of women, but you can make it your reality by following real world dating advice that really works.

When you display the qualities that women are instinctively attracted to in a man, you instantly become the type of man they've been looking for. Rather than trying to get women to "like" you enough to give you a chance, you take the shortcut by triggering their feelings of attraction.

When a woman is attracted to you, she then becomes open to kissing you, having sex with you and then potentially beginning a relationship with you.

Being a Potential Boyfriend

At The Modern Man, we teach guys how to attract women by explaining how to develop the type of self-confidence, charisma and masculinity that women are looking for in a guy. These three qualities make a man stand out in a woman's eyes and he becomes a man they see as a potential boyfriend as a result.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Does She Like Me? Test Yourself With These Questions...

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When guys look for some sort of “test” to use as a way of figuring out whether a woman likes them or not, they’re usually guys who don’t have a lot of experience with women and they lack confidence in themselves and their attractiveness to women as a result.

More often than not, when a guy asks The Modern Man if there’s a “does she like me” test he can take, it’s because he really likes a particular woman, but hasn’t managed to pluck up the courage to ask her out. This may be because he feels too shy around her, has no idea how to make her feel attracted, has low self-esteem or fears being rejected.

If this resonates with you, then you’re probably hoping a “does she like me” test will help you to finally work up the confidence to share your feelings with her once you know for sure that she likes you, right?

Well, to help you find out whether she does, try asking yourself the following:

1. Is she attracted to you?

A lot of guys make the mistake of trying to be “liked” by a woman for being a nice guy, rather than focusing on making her feel sexually attracted while also being a good guy to her. If you’re making the mistake of being too nice to the woman you like, you may end up getting rejected if you ask her out. Here’s why...

2. Does she flirt with you?

When guys lack experience with women, or they lack confidence around women they like, they often misinterpret a woman’s body language, or they might fail to pick up on it at all.

For example: An inexperienced guy might notice that a certain woman always makes him feel good about himself by saying nice things to him whenever she sees him, or perhaps even flirting with him in a friendly way. Yet, what he’ll very often fail to notice is that she treats every man she meets on a daily basis in the same way.

He’s going to see her friendliness as a “sign” that she likes him, and she most probably does, but she doesn’t necessarily like him more than other guys – she just likes making guys smile when she’s around him and chances are she doesn’t like him in the same way that he likes her, or the way he wants her to like him.

3. Does she feel turned on by your conversation style?

Just as friendly flirting can be misread as meaning more than it actually does, having a female friend who likes to talk to you can also lead to confusion.

Guys often ask things like, “She talks to me all the time and she always says she can tell me anything, so that must mean she likes me, right?” The answer is that it depends.

If a woman feels comfortable in your company and feels she can confide in you, then you are obviously a trusted friend. However, if she’s the one doing all the talking and she never actually has any time to listen when you want to talk to her, then she’s seeing you as a reliable sounding board and a shoulder to cry on, nothing more.

4. Does she want you to meet her friends and family?

Following on from the above, we often get emails from guys who have a female friend that they want to be more than a friend. They take the fact that she says nice things such as, “You’re such a nice guy” to mean that she really likes them, but because that’s what they want to hear, they don’t pick up on what she’s really saying.

For example: If a woman notices that you are romantically interested in her, but she doesn’t feel sexually turned on by you, then she’s going to try her best to avoid the awkwardness of having to tell you straight up that she isn’t interested.

This is when she might say something along the lines of, “You’re such a nice guy, you really should meet a girlfriend of mine, you two would get on so well together” as a way of subtly letting you know that she sees you as a “just friends” kind of guy.

Traits That Women Like in Men

By asking yourself the above questions, you may have now realized that a “does she like me” test is not actually going to answer the question that you are really asking.

There’s a big difference between asking, “Does she like me as a friend?” and, “Does she want to have sex with me and begin a sexual relationship with me?” and understand that is the key to finding the answer that you’re really looking for.

A woman can really “like” a guy without feeling any sexual attraction towards him, so if you’re sexually attracted to a woman and you want confirmation that she feels the same way about you, a “does she like me” test is not what you need.

Instead of hanging around in the background and wasting time looking for “signs” that she likes you, focus on improving your ability to trigger her feelings of sexual attraction. When a woman is sexually attracted to you, she will then be excited about all the other “nice” things about you (e.g. you’re a good guy, you have good intentions, you’re intelligent, etc).

However, you must start with sexual attraction. Attraction comes first and everything else follows on naturally after that.

Here are some examples of the types of traits you can display to attract women:

1. Confidence

The number one trait a man must have to be attractive to women is self-confidence.

Women are turned on by men who have genuine confidence in who they are and where they’re going in life because, unlike arrogance, genuine confidence gives a man a self-assured presence that marks him out as a man who knows how to handle himself and take life’s challenges in his stride.

This makes him a man who has what it takes to protect a woman and provide for her in a relationship.

On the other hand, when a woman encounters a guy who lacks confidence in himself around her (i.e. to the point of being nervous, tense, self-doubting, etc), it makes her have to question his ability to protect and provide for her should they get into a relationship.

2. Charismatic conversation skills

A guy with genuine confidence knows how to approach women and strike up spontaneous conversations that excite and arouse women.

His relaxed confidence makes others feel comfortable in his company and his charismatic charm makes other people feel good when he’s around. This makes him a very attractive man and someone that both men and women are drawn to.

Women are instinctively attracted to men who are liked and respected by other men, and the fact that most women are drawn to him makes him a "catch" worth pursuing.

3. Alpha male qualities

Being an alpha male is not about being an asshole, jerk or arrogant prick. Instead, it's about being confident in who you are and believing that you can and will succeed at whatever you put your mind to. You don't doubt yourself and instead push forward in life with a confident, masculine attitude.

Women are attracted to an alpha male's strength of character and sense of purpose, and the true masculinity he demonstrates through his body language, and being comfortable and secure in who he is as a man, gives him a presence that women feel deeply when they're around him.

Women love the way a man with alpha male power makes them feel and they're virtually powerless to resist him. An alpha male doesn't have to go through life wondering, "Does she like me?" because he knows that he is naturally attractive to women...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Women Only Want Money: Is it True?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Of course not.

Yes, there are women out there who actively seek to find a rich man and will settle for nothing less. However, most women are much more flexible with what type of guy they will have sex with, get into a relationship with and even marry.

Just like most guys would ideally like to date a model, but can also be attracted to all kinds of other women such as lawyers, doctors, yoga instructors, librarians and kindergarten teachers, etc, the same thing applies to women.

Although women are attracted to guys who have money, most women can (and do) feel attracted to other types of guys too. Ultimately, it's a lot more than money that's going to seal the deal with woman.

After all, how many guys do you know who only make a small or average amount of money, but still have a hot girlfriend or wife? If you're being honest with yourself, you will admit that most of the guys you know or have known are just average guys, but still get laid, have a girlfriend or have a wife.

TV Brainwashing

[image: TV brainwashing children]

Guys who haven't had good male role models around them while growing up, often find themselves confused about what women really want in a man.

Not knowing where else to turn, they often seek to find the answers by analysing TV sitcoms, movies, music lyrics and random things that women say about guys.

In sitcoms, movies and music videos, relationships between men and women are usually depicted as dysfunctional and full of mind games. The women are usually ball breakers who treat men like crap and expect men to kiss their ass by being super polite, respectful and nice in the hope that she will eventually give him a chance to be with her.

Women are often depicted as wanting money and power and guys who can't offer them that are scorned, ridiculed or rejected. On the other hand, men are usually depicted as sniveling weaklings who are constantly being henpecked and pushed around by the women, unless, yes you guessed it, they have money or power.

When a guy has been brainwashed by TV, movies and music videos into thinking that women only want money, he usually then seeks to verify his belief by looking at how women behave in real life. For example: If he approaches a beautiful woman and gets rejected, he may walk away assuming that the women didn't think he was rich enough.

Yet, that isn't the real reason why he got rejected. What is? Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to find out...

Understanding What Women Really Want

If you really want to know what women want, it is important to realize that a lot of it has to do with survival instinct. Women are attracted to men who make them feel safe and protected and money tends to be a fairly good way of ensuring that you will have food, shelter and enough resources to provide for offspring.

Yet, a woman doesn't expect a man to be rich before she will have sex with him, be his girlfriend or even marry him.

For most women, they just want to know that you have the potential to be successful enough to provide the protection of food and shelter and be able to afford some of the enjoyable luxuries of modern life (e.g. going to the movies, taking a vacation, having a good car, etc)

Consider what would happen to this world if women were only attracted to guys who had lots of money...

The only guys with girlfriends and wives would be rich and every other guy on the planet would be single, alone and jerking off to porn for life.

Obviously, that isn't how the real world works. Most guys in this world are not rich and are either just getting by or making enough money to live a comfortable life. Yet, they still have a girlfriend or wife.

Using Money as an Excuse For Your Lack of Ability to Attract Women

If you are the kind of guy who has convinced himself that women only want money, you are probably looking for an excuse to justify why you haven't had any success with the ladies lately.

Brushing it off and blaming women for your lack of success with women, is a good way of avoiding the responsibility of facing up to any shortcomings that you may have.

You can hide away and think negative thoughts about the world all day if you want, (e.g. "Women are bitches...they are stuck up, gold digging whores") but nothing is going to change for the better unless you really stop and understand the reality that women live in.

[image: Women only want money from men]

If you get hung up on your idea that women only want money, you might waste a lot of your precious life not focussing your attention on the real issues.

For example: If a guy displays any or all of the following unattractive qualities around women, then it won't really matter if he has money or not – most women just aren't going to be interested in him.

- Lacks self confidence and becomes nervous and uncomfortable when he talks to the women he likes.
- Approaches women in an apologetic manner, rather than approaching with a confident, relaxed and easy-going attitude.
- Has trouble holding an interesting and engaging conversation with an attractive woman (e.g. he talks about boring things like his job, or asks too many questions in a row and makes the woman feel tense and uncomfortable).

- Has no idea how to attract women with his body language and masculine vibe.
- Is too nice to women (i.e. he tries to be liked by women for being really nice, polite and considerate, rather than making women feel sexually attracted while also being a good guy).
- Knows absolutely nothing about flirting and seducing a woman. He may even think that it's "wrong" to flirt or seduce with a woman and that a man should be a polite gentleman who shows no interest in sex.
- Has few or no good friends, making a woman question his trustworthiness as a person. After all, if no one trusts him enough to be his friend, why should she?
- Lacks ambition and purpose in life. A guy who is going nowhere and has no intention of going anywhere is seen as a waste of time for most women. Ultimately, most women are looking for someone to spend the rest of their life with and a guy without ambition is like food without flavor – it quickly loses its appeal.

If you can relate to any of the above points, then you need to stop worrying about women wanting money and start focussing your attention on being more attractive to women as a man. Your misguided beliefs about women only wanting money from men are preventing you from tapping into your natural ability to attract women with your personality, confidence and charm.

You can attract women with who you are, rather than what you've got in your bank account. Millions of other guys have done it and so can you.

Prove Yourself Wrong

You already know that long before money even existed, men were still able to attract women, breed and keep a relationship together for life. True?

Of course, we now live in a culture that needs money to keep the machine going, but a woman's attraction to a man is not all about money. There are millions of men out there who work as a janitor, bus driver, teacher, etc and they still get laid, get a girlfriend and get married.

Yes, some women do want a rich man and will stop at nothing to find one. However, the majority of women have what Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) refers to as an Open Type, which means that they are open to being with all different types of men, as long as the man is able to make her feel a sufficient amount of attraction for other reasons.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What Do Girls Like in a Guy?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The types of qualities that girls like in a guy include:

- Confidence.
- Masculinity (i.e. how you think, feel, behave and take action).
- Charisma.
- Charm.
- Flirtatious.
- Funny.
- Determined to succeed in life.

If you want to get girls to like you, the approach that you need to take is to focus on what triggers feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman. Don't focus on trying to be a "likeable" guy (e.g. a typical nice guy) because girls don't make their decision on which guys to have sex with based on how nice or likeable the guy is as a person.

What matters most to a girl is whether or not she feels sexually attracted to you. If you are triggering her feelings of sexual attraction, she will then really appreciate all the other good things about you (e.g. you're a good guy, you have good intentions, you're intelligent, etc).

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand how a girl's attraction works and how you can use it to get girls to like you in a sexual way...

There Are Plenty of Girls Who Would Be Perfect For You

[image: Beautiful women - different races]

A great thing about our modern world is that we now have access to women almost every race, culture, style, shape and personality, which means that if you're a guy looking to find a girl that you're compatible with, you have plenty to choose from.

If you've already had sex with quite a few women in your life, you will know that sex feels great with every beautiful woman you hook up with. However, the love, connection and dynamic between you and the girl is always a bit different.

...and this is something you need to remember.

The myth of "the one girl for you" isn't true. There are so many (possibly millions) of girls who would be perfect for you. All you need to do is meet them, make them feel attracted to you and then move the interaction forward to kissing, sex and a relationship.

If the love and relationship is great, then you can stick together for a long time or for life, but if it isn't, you can simply meet a new girl and start all over again.

Life is Not Like a Movie

In this age of modern technology, some guys end up feeling confused about what girls like in a guy because what they hear women say vs. what they see on TV and movies vs. what they see happen in real life doesn't always match up.

For example: Women will say that they want a nice guy, but they will then reject nice guys. In the movies, the nice, wimpy guy will get the girl in the end, but in real life, he just gets rejected.

If a guy doesn't ever get taught what women really feel attracted to about men, he may begin to believe that what he's being shown via sitcoms and in the movies about women and relationships is true.

He may begin to believe that women only want rich men, or men with muscles, or very smart men, or powerful men, or men with green eyes or whatever the trend of the day happens to be. This leaves men feeling confused and insecure about themselves and they begin to wonder things like, "What do girls like in a guy?" or "Why don't girls seem to like me?"

After all, the TV sitcom writers and movie scriptwriters should know what they're talking about when it comes to dating and relationships...right? Wrong. For the most part, TV sitcoms and movies are made to reflect fantasy ideas, weird behaviors and unusual situations for the purpose of entertaining the audience, rather than educating them.

If you are serious about getting girls to like you, be careful of copying the thinking and behavior of fictional characters from TV or movies. Being successful with girls in real life is about looking at what actually happens in the real world and then doing whatever works or allows you to be successful.

For example: Most guys think that a guy has to be good looking, perfectly fit, rich and famous to get a hot girlfriend or a wife. Yet, the photos below show that pretty much any guy can get a hot girlfriend.

[image: Ugly guy has a baby with a beautiful woman]

[image: Black guys with white women]

[image: How is this possible?]

[image: Everyday couples]

[image: Asian guy with white girlfriend]

[image: Ugly guy with hot cheerleader girlfriend]

[image: Guy with a weird nose with a beautiful girlfriend]

[image: Guy with big ears with beautiful girlfriend]

[image: White man marrying a black woman. Asian guy marrying a black woman]

[image: Fat Asian guy with pretty girlfriend]

[image: Asian guy marrying pretty white girl]

[image: Fat guy with a skinny girlfriend at the pool]

[image: Fat guys with pretty women]

[image: Fat men marrying beautiful women]

How did those guys get those girls to like them? Simple...they triggered feelings of attraction inside the girl and then moved the interaction forward to kissing, dating, sex and into a relationship.

Watch this video to understand how you can use attraction to get girls to see you as being the sexiest man on Earth, regardless of whether you are tall, short, bald, overweight, athletic or from a race that you don't think can attract women very well...

As you can see from the video above – girls are much more flexible about what they like in a guy, as long as the guy can make her feel a sufficient amount of attraction for other reasons.

What Girls Do Not Like in a Guy

The answer to the question of, “What do girls like in a guy?” is very similar to the answer of, “What do guys like in a girl?” The answer is simple for us guys: We like a girl who makes us feel sexually attracted. If we feel sexually attracted to a girl, we then begin to think about other things that we like about her.

What girls want to experience is a strong feeling of sexual attraction. When a girl feels sexually attracted to you, she will then begin to look for other things that she “likes” about you to justify her feelings of sexual attraction.

So, what are some of the things that ruin a girl's attraction for a guy?

1. A lack of self belief.

Guys who lack confidence in themselves and need constant reassurance and propping up are a big turn off. And no, a woman is not there to boost a guy's ego for him, and no she doesn't want to be doing him a favor by going out with him.

2. A boring personality.

[image: Boring guy]

It's doubtful that there is any woman who wants to be with a guy who can bore her to tears during a conversation.

His job, his sick mother or the number of molecules in graphite is not going to make her want to jump into his arms and demand that he take her somewhere more private so that they can discuss the matter more intimately. Neither is interrogating her.

If a guy is insecure about himself he thinks that asking a woman a series of personal question is a good way to make conversation, but this just makes her feel uncomfortable and tense; after all who wants to feel like they are in an interview on a date? Women do not like bad conversationalists.

A guy who is boring is also the kind of guy who doesn't know how to flirt or use body language to get a woman to feel attraction for him.

Flirting is fun and exciting and is a prelude to more intimate things, so is using body language; but boring guys will miss all the signs of flirting, will use body language inappropriately and will usually end up alone and wondering what went wrong.

3. A lack of ambition.

Whether a girl is looking for a one night stand or a potential life partner, you can be sure that a guy who lacks ambition is a big turn off.

A girl wants to know that a guy is going somewhere in his life, even if he heâ□□s only just starting out. A guy without goals and ambitions is not worth the effort because ultimately, no girl wants to feel likes sheâ□□s making it with a loser.

4. A lack of social skills.

A guy without etiquette or the ability to adapt to his environment, sticks to doing only what he knows how to do and cannot expand his social skills and abilities is a big turn off. A woman doesnâ□□t want to feel embarrassed by the man she is with and a guy lacking in social skills is someone she wouldnâ□□t want to introduce to her friends, her boss or her family.

5. A lack of friends.

Guys without friends and large social circles can be perceived as being insecure, fearful and untrustworthy. If a guy has no-one that wants to be his friend then there must be something wrong with him. Lack of friends also means that he wonâ□□t have backup in case of an emergency and this makes a woman feel unsafe.

Instinctively, a woman is attracted to men that have a large support base because they know that if anything bad happens her man will get the support he needs from his friends and therefore she will be safe too.

Be the Kind of Guy That GirlsÂ Want

The key to success with girlsÂ is to be the kind of guy that theyÂ feel intense attraction for.

Any guy can improve his ability to trigger a girl's feelings of attraction, so don't go through your life feeling like you're not good enough for hot girls.

You can easily get laid by hot girls, get a hot girlfriend or find yourself a hot wife if you simply focus on triggering a girl's feelings of sexual attraction...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I'm Having a Dry Spell With Women...

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're having a dry spell with women, it may have been months, maybe even years since you last had some action in the romance department. You may forgotten what it's like to go out on a date and as for sex...what's that?

Everyone around you seems to be dating, having loads of sex, falling in love and even getting married. All your friends and colleagues seem to have girlfriends and there never seems to be a shortage of women in their world, even though they are just normal, every day guys.

If you're going through a dry spell with women, it can sometimes feel like you're the only one going through it and like there is no way out. Yet, before you give up on yourself and decide that you're doomed for life when it comes to women, listen up...

The Real Reasons Why a Guy Will Experience a Dry Spell With Women

[image: Dry spell with women]

When you are stuck in a dry spell with women, it can seem like it will never end. The longer the dry spell lasts, the more difficult it becomes for many guys to break free of it because they end up losing so much confidence in themselves around women, which turns attractive women off.

There are many reasons why a guy will experience a drought with women, such as:

1. He is not talking to enough women.

[image: Having a dry spell with girls]

As obvious as this may sound, many guys will avoid approaching and talking to women. They will talk to maybe one or two women over the course of a day (sometimes days), and then they will complain that there are no available women.

2. He is talking to women but not making them feel attraction for him.

Talking to women but acting like the "best friend", the "serious businessman" or the "local clown" is not going to make them feel attraction for him. If a guy's behavior is neutral or unattractive when he is talking to a woman, he is more than likely to go home alone because then she will not feel attracted to him and therefore will not want to take things further.

As Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) explains in the video below, the main reason why guys fail with women is that they don't know how to trigger feeling of sexual attraction inside of women when they meet them.

Rather than turning a woman on, guys who experience long dry spells with women are usually the type to seek to be "liked" by women for being a good guy. However, as you will discover by reading the rest of this article, just being a nice, likeable guy isn't what makes a woman wet and horny to have sex with you.

3. He is trying to impress women and hoping to get lucky.

Some guys will put on a big act trying to impress a woman by pretending to be more important than they really are. This guy hopes that his act will impress her so much that she will give him a chance. Unfortunately, most women can see through this act and he comes across looking insecure and like a fake, which is a big turn off.

4. He is looking in the wrong places.

Some guys will hang out in all the wrong places hoping that an attractive and available woman will cross their path. He will hang out with his married friends or with all his single guy friends, but he will never go out to any of the places where single women can be found.

He might also spend loads of time trying to compete with 1,000s of other guys for the attention of one woman on an online dating site, rather than having a 1-on-1 conversation with a woman in a social environment like a bar, party or speed dating event.

5. He is trying to be liked for being nice, rather than making women want him by being attractive.

Many guys have absolutely no idea how to approach a woman in a way that will make her feel attraction. Without a clue of what to do, most guys resort to being a typical nice guy who essentially kisses a woman's ass and hopes that she takes pity on him and gives him a chance.

While there is nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, it isn't the thing that makes a woman wet. If a guy is trying to get a woman into a sexual relationship, he has to start by making her feel attraction and then anything else about him (e.g. he's a nice guy) is seen as a welcome bonus to her.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon to understand why being too nice to a woman will often lead to rejection...

As you will discover from the video above, there is nothing wrong with being a good guy, but you also have to say and do the types of things that will trigger a woman's sexual attraction for you. Without that, you will just be another typical nice guy who is hoping to be liked for being a good guy because you have no idea how to turn a woman on during a conversation.

6. He can't keep a conversation going long enough for a woman to have a chance to get to know him.

His lack of conversation skills with women mean that most of the attractive women he speaks to give up after 10 seconds to a minute of talking to him. The woman quickly realizes that he's just another guy who doesn't understand what women are really attracted to in men and is simply trying to be liked.

Why Some Guys Go For Months or Years Without Having Sex or a Relationship With a New Woman

Inevitably, the longer a guy goes without sex or a date the harder it becomes to break the cycle. Sometimes a guy will stop trying to meet women and will even avoid going out altogether.

If he makes the effort to go out and to approach women, feelings of insecurity begin to creep in and every time he is with a beautiful, available woman he begins to behave anxiously.

This comes across as nervousness and lack of self confidence; and women do not feel attraction for nervous men who lack confidence in themselves. Of course this has a negative effect on him and he begins to lose faith in himself and in his abilities to attract a woman.

The fear of failure overwhelms him and his interactions with women become stilted and tense. Because he is so invested in the outcome, he comes across as being too serious or like he's trying too hard. The conversation becomes too serious, his body language appears to be too intense and his flirting too overbearing and fake.

Unfortunately, just as one success can build on another, the same applies to failure. If he does not succeed once, then twice, the third time it's inevitable, unless he can break the cycle.

What guys experiencing a dry spell with women don't realize is that it's their beliefs and insecurities about themselves that are holding them back.

Traits That Make a Guy Unattractive to Women

Contrary to what the media; the magazines, the movies or the TV sitcoms will have you believe, getting a woman to feel attraction for you has nothing to do with the car you drive, the shirt or cologne you are wearing, or the style of your shoes. Women are attracted to men who display qualities of an alpha male – confidence, self assurance and who have a purpose in life.

On the other hand, there are guys who behave the opposite to alpha males and women do not feel attraction for them.

Here are some of the things about these men that turn women off:

1. Lacking self esteem.

A guy who thinks badly of himself is definitely a turn off because most women don't want to be with a guy who doesn't think he is good enough.

2. Lacking confidence.

A guy lacking confidence in himself and in his abilities is unattractive to women. Lack of self confidence comes across as insecurity and nervousness and no woman wants to spend her time bolstering a guy's ego, nor does she want to feel that she is doing him a favor by being with him.

Women instinctively know that this is a challenging world that we live in and they feel as though they would be better off with a guy who is confident so he can lead the way to a better life, rather than being with a guy who is nervous and will likely lean on her to lead him and protect him.

3. Being mentally and emotionally weaker than the woman.

A woman doesn't want to feel like she is the dominant one in the relationship. She wants to be with a man who can make her feel safe, protected and like a real woman; she wants a man to be mentally and emotionally strong enough to support her and challenge her.

A guy who comes across as being weak, who always puts a woman on a pedestal and allows himself to be dominated by her, may be tolerated for a short time but will inevitably be discarded when an alpha male comes along.

4. Hoping to be chosen by a woman for looking good, having money, wearing nice clothes, etc.

Some guys will wait around hoping that the woman will approach him, especially if he puts in a lot of effort to look fashionable, physically appealing or rich.

He will complain about his dry spell with women but he will never make a move on the woman, or women, he feels attracted to; instead he will wait, in vain, to be approached.

Single women are open to being approached and if a guy is not confident enough to go after what he wants, she will interpret this as him probably not being assertive enough to go after goals in his life either.

Breaking the Cycle

Waiting at home and hoping that your dry spell with women will somehow miraculously disappear is a waste of time. You've got to improve your ability to attract women when you meet them.

If you don't do that, you can only ever rely on getting lucky, but with "getting lucky" there is no guarantee that the woman will stick around when the initial novelty of being with you begins to wear off.

To be successful with women in today's world, a man needs to be able to actively attract women when he meets them and then deepen the love, respect and attraction that a woman feels over time. Without those skills, he will get rejected by most women he approaches and dumped by most or all of the women he gets into a relationship with...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How Can I Stop Being Insecure Around People?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

It's Friday night and you've been pressured by your friends or work colleagues to go out to a bar and party with them.

At the bar, everyone seems to be having fun and getting along with each other in their own groups. No matter how hard you try, you can't seem to stop yourself from feeling insecure and believing that you just don't belong.

Your friends or colleagues are all drinking, laughing and enjoying themselves. At times, they try to get you involved in conversations, but you keep making a mess of the attention by being awkward and insecure with your contribution to the conversation.

As you look around the bar, you notice groups of beautiful women talking, making connections and having fun with random guys. Some even end up kissing and exchanging phone numbers.

[image: Confident guys hooking up with women]

Yet, as usual, you are secretly feeling, left out, alone and lonely. You keep asking yourself things like, How can I stop being insecure? How can I be one of them? Why can't I be more confident? I know that I'm a good guy, so why do I feel so insecure? What is wrong with me?

You watch on as your friends or colleagues talk and flirt with women that they like. Guys who are less physically attractive than you are busy talking, laughing and even kissing a beautiful woman they have just met right in front of you.

Yet, you just cannot understand why it happens for them and not you. You feel like a third wheel and the whole scene is just making you more and more uncomfortable and you begin to feel down and anxious.

Eventually, you might get fed up with feeling insecure and either decide to leave and go home to jerk off to porn, or grin and bear it while you spend another night feeling uncomfortable and left out around people.

When you notice that women don't seem to be interested in you at all, you start going through a list of reasons why.

You might begin to think:

- I'm not good looking enough for people to automatically like me.
- I'm not cool enough for these people and I probably never can be.
- I'm not tall enough to be respected by people.
- I'm not making the type of money that would make people like me and want to be my friend.
- I'm insecure because I'm simply not worthy of attractive women and not good enough for the cool crowd.

Yet, thinking in that way is only going to create more insecurity. What you might be forgetting is this:

No-one is perfect.

What separates the confident guys from the insecure guys is that confident guys focus on things that they like about themselves and use that to feel confident.

Confident guys believe in themselves for reasons that they decide on and insecure guys don't believe themselves for reasons that they decide on. Confident guys realize that no-one is perfect, so instead of feeling insecure because they aren't perfect, they feel confident because of the things they like about themselves.

Insecurity (noun): Lack of confidence or assurance; self-doubt.

Confidence (noun): Belief in oneself and one's powers or abilities; self-confidence; self-reliance; assurance.

Use Your Powerful Mind to Feel Confident, Rather Than Using it to Feel Insecure

[image: Stop being insecure]

Think about it! For a moment!

If someone else (e.g. a stranger, a friend, a family member, etc) started saying bad things about you, (e.g. started calling you a loser, referring to you as being stupid or unworthy, etc) what would you do about it? Would you sit there and take it, or would you stand up for yourself?

The truth is that most of us would defend ourselves if someone else attacked us, be it physically or verbally, but many times guys mistakenly use the power of their mind to attack themselves.

Most people have had to encounter difficult situations growing up. Many people have been abused, and this means both women and men, and many have had poor role models growing up. However, the past is the past and this is NOW. If you spend the NOW making excuses about the past you are simply letting what happened in the past win.

Don't sit around wallowing in self-pity about your past or anything else and don't put yourself down; it is not productive and it's not getting you anywhere. Your goal needs to be to move forward, to change and transform into the man you want to be; not to hold yourself back because of what happened in the past or because of what you think are your limitations.

A lack of confidence in yourself is not only unattractive to women, but it's something that will keep most successful or "cool" people from wanting to be your friend.

It may seem like the world is full of bad people when you get rejected for not having confidence in yourself, but really, it's just a natural instinct that humans have to surround themselves with people who seem like they are going to be better at surviving and thriving in this challenging, weird world that we live in.

How Can I Stop Being Insecure?

As a man, the main thing that you need to do if you want to stop being insecure is to begin thinking like an alpha male.

An alpha male believes that he is good enough and he then thinks, behaves and takes action in accordance with that he is good enough. Who gave him permission to believe in himself? He did.

On the other hand, an insecure guy has decided to believe that he isn't good enough. He is responsible for deciding to think that way and as a result, he will naturally feel insecure and unworthy around attractive women or people that he is hoping to make a good impression on.

The good news is that every man has alpha male qualities. You were born with the ability to be an alpha male and all you have to do is bring it out and let yourself and others experience it. Don't hide it, don't suppress and don't be afraid of letting it exist.

When you do, you will realize that you are much more powerful than you've ever realized. However, if you hide from your inner alpha male, you will naturally feel insecure.

A lower ranking male will typically:

- Show signs of low self-esteem (e.g. doubting himself, hesitating to say what he wants to say, regularly putting himself down during a conversation, etc).
- Show signs of nervousness (e.g. tense body language, nervous eye contact, jittery movements, trying too hard to impress, etc).
- Act like a really nice, polite guy, rather than just being the normal, good guy that he is.
- Find it difficult to keep a conversation going or he'll talk about boring things such as the weather or how he hates his job or boss.
- Treat her as though she is way better than he and that he'd be so lucky if the almighty princess that she is gave an unworthy guy like him a chance.
- Run away to lick to his wounds if she gives him the cold shoulder, or if she doesn't contribute much to the conversation.
- Wait for the woman to make the first move because he fears being rejected.

All of the above behavior is unattractive to women and when an insecure guy notices that women aren't showing signs of interest even though he is trying hard to be likeable, he will feel even more insecure.

What he doesn't usually realize is that most women are looking for a confident guy who isn't afraid to challenge them both mentally and emotionally. If a guy displays emotional weakness, most women will feel turned off and won't give him the time of day.

An alpha male will typically:

- Behave in a confident manner.
- Have high self-esteem and regard himself with respect.
- Show her that he is mentally and emotionally strong and secure (i.e. he is a confident guy, masculine in his thinking, determined, passionate, has high self-esteem, etc).
- Instantly begin flirting with a woman to create a sexual vibe.
- Be a much more interesting conversationalist because he won't be afraid to say what he really wants to say.
- Use his body language to seduce her.
- Make her feel like a real woman in his presence (i.e. she will feel girly and feminine in response to his masculine vibe).
- Not give up when a woman acts cold and aloof, but instead melt her defenses with his confidence, humor and charming personality.

- Approach women that he likes and know that it's okay to make a move because he is naturally attractive to women and has the confidence to handle moments where a woman might play hard to get to test his interest in her or confidence in himself.

How to Become More Confident Around Women

If you are insecure around beautiful women and want to feel confident instead, the secret is to learn how to attract women.

When you are able to trigger feelings of sexual attraction in a woman, most of the single women that you meet like you and are interested. This makes the task of approaching women feel easy and exciting, rather than difficult and scary.

You know that most of the women you meet will like you, so you simply approach and give women a chance to meet you. After a while, you have so much choice with women that your confidence skyrockets even further and reaches a point that simply cannot be ruined by meeting one woman and it not working out.

On the other hand, if you are unable to attract most of the women that you meet, you will naturally feel insecure about the idea of approaching beautiful women.

If you do happen to approach and it doesn't work out (e.g. you get rejected, she's not compatible with you, etc), you will probably lose even more confidence in yourself by using that bad experience to fuel your insecurities (e.g. "See? Women don't like me. I'm not good enough.")

Getting past your insecurity is a matter of personal development; insecurity stems from feeling that you are not good enough, but if you know that this isn't true, if you are an interesting and well rounded alpha male, then you will never have to ask, "How can I stop being insecure?" ever again.

Decide what you want, then go after it, one step at a time. As the saying goes, "Rome wasn't built in a day," so finding your true, powerful self might not happen instantly, but it is there and it is waiting to be released!

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Bad First Impression: Getting a Girl to Like You Again

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Itâ€™s often said that first impressions are lasting impressions, so where does that leave a guy who realizes heâ€™s made a bad first impression on a girl?

Making a bad impression is going to mean different things to different people, but any sort of first impression that isnâ€™t a true reflection of who you are is an impression that should be avoided. For example:

- Pretending to be an even nicer guy than you really are (e.g. being overly polite, formal and reserved).
- Revealing your feelings to her before making her have strong feelings for you.
- Pretending to only want to be her friend, when what you really want is a committed, sexual relationship with her.
- Asking a woman out before youâ€™ve made her feel attracted to you.
- Making her feel like she is way too good for a guy like you because you failed to offer her any challenge.
- Putting on an act of being really cool, rich or tough to hopefully impress her.

Most women are natural experts at reading body language and they usually know when a guy is faking it because his actions and behavior donâ€™t match up with his words. Something just doesnâ€™t seem right and the womanâ€™s guard goes up.

Pretending to be someone that you are not will not impress a woman and will instead lead to her seeing you as a fake and therefore someone not to be trusted. If a woman canâ€™t feel relaxed and at ease in your company, then sheâ€™s going to put her guard up and play hard to get until you can get her to relax and open up.

As a man, if youâ€™re not relaxed and comfortable just being yourself, it will make most people you feel awkward in your company. So, whatâ€™s a guy to do? Faking it wonâ€™t create a good impression and neither will nervous, anxious behavior. So, what is the solution...especially if youâ€™re not very confident around women that you find attractive?

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to discover the confident way to a bad first impression on a woman...

Making a Good First Impression to Begin With

If you feel youâ€™ve made a bad first impression on a woman and you want to know how to fix it, you need to be aware of what it takes to make a good impression on a woman in the first place. In other words, you need to know how women think when interacting with guys and the type of qualities that they are really looking for in a man.

If you donâ€™t know what qualities that women are looking for in a man, you will likely always struggle to make a good first impression on a woman. Why? Instead of focussing on displaying the qualities that women find sexually attractive in a man, you will likely display qualities that mark you out as a nice, friendly man instead.

There's nothing wrong with being a nice, friendly man, but that isn't what turns a woman on. In addition to being a good guy, you also have to be able to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction.

[image: Bad first impression on a woman - I have feelings for you. Will you be my girlfriend? Please?]

If you're not able to do that, she will simply take your nice behavior as meaning that you're a nice, friendly man who isn't interested in anything sexual or a confused guy who simply doesn't know how to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction.

How about you? Do you know how to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for you when you interact with her? Watch this video by Dan Bacon to find out...

When it comes to attraction, women are looking for fundamental qualities in a man such as confidence, masculinity (in how he thinks, behaves, feels, takes action in life, etc) and social intelligence (i.e. his ability to get along with her and others).

A woman wants to be able to talk to a guy and not only feel attracted, but feel like she could rely on him to protect her and guide both himself and her to a better life together if she did get into a relationship with him.

Yet, many guys never get past that feeling with a woman because they make the same old classic mistakes during a conversation that Dan Bacon points out in the video below...

Getting it Wrong

[image: Rejected - bad first impression]

When guys make a bad first impression, it's generally because they behave in a way that shows them to be unsure of themselves, which then fails to demonstrate the alpha qualities that women are looking for in a guy.

For example: Trying too hard to fit in or being overly nice to a woman in a desperate attempt to be liked. When a guy is trying too hard, he might choose to go along with whatever the popular opinion is in conversation rather than having a mind of his own and standing by what he believes in.

He might also hang on a woman's every word and go overboard with the number of compliments he pays her, or he might ask her out on a date within a minute of meeting her because he's unsure of how much longer he'll be able to hold her attention.

Behaving in that way doesn't make a woman feel good in your company because it makes you come across as insincere at best and desperate at worst. Desperation is not an attractive trait in a man.

Desperation and insecurity are complete turn offs for women because women are naturally attracted to guys who can survive and thrive easily. Being desperate and needy makes a woman feel like she would have to take care of and protect the guy throughout life, rather than being able to rely on him to protect her and take care of her.

A man with the confident, masculine qualities a woman is looking for has a presence about him that makes her feel literally weak at the knees. She feels so girly and feminine in response to his pure masculinity.

Unlike lower ranking males (e.g. nervous guys, insecure guys, really nice guys, etc), confident alpha males effectively have their pick of women. A woman will almost always respond to an alpha male's presence by working hard to make sure that she is the one who gets his attention over all the other girls.

Women love the way they feel in the company of an alpha male and they're going to do whatever it takes to get him all to themselves. Alpha males don't need to work hard at creating a good first impression by being extra nice and polite, because they create a positive impression wherever they go by just being themselves.

With all of the above in mind, you come to realize that a bad first impression doesn't have to be a lasting impression. When you have genuine self-confidence and you're secure in who you are as a man, you have what it takes to let the real you shine through when you're around other people.

Anything weird, awkward or fake that you said or did around a woman doesn't have to be a deal breaker. That wasn't the real you and it will soon be forgotten when you show your true colors by being a confident, genuine guy around her from now on.

As long as you are able to make a woman feel a lot of respect and attraction for you during an interaction, she will be happy to overlook any minor mistakes that you made, which initially caused a bad first impression.

After all, she's hoping to find herself a lover or boyfriend and if she feels like you've got what it takes to make her happy, she's not going to reject your advances...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Talk to People in a Waiting Room

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

As long as you have a confident, relaxed and easy-going attitude, you can meet and talk with women anywhere (e.g. in a bar, a sports game, a coffee shop, at the mall and even in a waiting room).

However, this doesn't mean that a guy should just walk up to women in waiting rooms and openly hit on them in the same way that he would in a bar or a nightclub.

Each place or environment that you can meet a woman in has a specific protocol that a guy needs to be aware of if he wants to get positive results. Knowing how to talk to people in a waiting room is important because it is very different to how you would talk to someone in a nightclub or at the mall.

[image: Waiting room - flirting]

For example: If a guy is in a dentist's waiting room and notices an attractive woman, the best approach to use it to be confident, easy going and add in some humor.

You: Hey! how you doing?

Her: Oh, hi! fine thanks.

You: I'm a bit scared! I'm getting all of my teeth out today.

Her: Really? Oh my god! really?

You: [Smile and say] Yep, I'm taking them all out! I'm going to start a new trend - the No Teeth Trend.

Her: [Most-likely smiling or laughing].

You: Just kidding! I'm here for a normal check up! I like my teeth and I'm keep them all. How about you? You getting all your teeth out?

At that point, the woman will be smiling or laughing and will happy to have a chat with you. Your easy-going attitude and humor will have lightened the mood and created a private connection between you and her.

Shhhh!

[image: Business waiting room - quiet]

Sometimes it is necessary to be professional and not joke around too much with people in meeting rooms. However, for the most part, there's no reason to be overly serious.

Most people are afraid to talk and be normal in waiting rooms because they simply copy what everyone else is doing (i.e. feeling afraid to do say anything because it's so quiet and everyone will hear). However, this does not mean that women are not open to being approached in certain types of waiting rooms (e.g. dentist's waiting room).

Mistakes Guys Make When Trying to Talk to Women in a Waiting Room

If you do it right (i.e. be confident, easy-going and add in some humor), you can easily walk away with a woman's phone number after meeting her briefly in a waiting room. However, do it wrong and it will probably feel awkward for both of you.

Some of the mistakes that guys make when trying to talk to women in a waiting room include:

1. Using the wrong approach.

Every location where a guy can meet a woman is different and so should be the approach.

The way to approach a woman in a bar or a nightclub will be completely different to the way that you would approach her in a waiting room because, for example, the noise levels are different (it is noisy in a bar and quiet in the waiting room), and the woman is not in the waiting room looking to meet guys or to have a fun time.

A woman in a waiting room is often there on serious business, a guy's approach and conversation style should match and reflect this.

2. Behaving in an unattractive way.

If a guy tries to approach a woman in a waiting room while behaving in a hesitant, insecure, anxious and nervous way, he is setting himself up for failure.

Women are naturally attracted to guys who behave in a masculine way (e.g. they have a masculine vibe, relaxed confidence, are present in the moment rather than being all up in their head, etc) and any perceived weakness (e.g. insecurity, nervousness, etc) will not be attractive to her; especially in a waiting room where time is limited and first impressions have to be made quickly and convincingly.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use it to your advantage to make most of the women that you meet want to be with you...

3. Making the conversation feel awkward

If a guy manages to get as far as striking up a conversation with a woman in a waiting room, his lack of conversation skills, and his inability to engage her and to create attraction between them, means that his efforts have been wasted. A good conversation is the surest way to get a woman to drop her guard and open up about herself.

However, if a guy resorts to an interview style conversation with an endless list of questions, or else he talks all about himself and his reasons for being in the waiting room (his ingrown toenail, his legal problems, or his double impacted wisdom teeth), he can be sure that he will leave there without her telephone number.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon to understand where guys go wrong during a conversation with a woman and what you need to do to succeed...

4. Lacking social intelligence.

A guy who lacks social intelligence does not know how to engage people in a comfortable, easy-going way when in different social environments.

For example: If a guy is too upbeat and talks either too loudly or too softly in the waiting room, this can cause a woman to close up because he is making the situation feel unnecessarily weird and uncomfortable.

Most women aren't very socially confident, even though they go around acting like they are. So, most of the woman that a guy approaches to talk to in a waiting room will initially be uncomfortable.

However, if she is able to make her relax and enjoy the interaction, she will be impressed that he has the social intelligence to be able to make a conversation in a quiet waiting room feel comfortable.

5. Embarrassing her in front of others.

If the guy is too obvious in his attraction for her and flirts outrageously with her in front of everyone, he can make her feel embarrassed in front of the other people in the waiting room. Inappropriate flirting and body language such as becoming too familiar too soon, especially in front of other people, will get him rejected outright.

6. Being too nice.

If the guy tries to approach a woman by being too nice, trying to be agreeable over everything and acts like he believes that she is better than him and that he does not deserve her, she will sense this and she will remain aloof.

If a guy is too nice he will not create an opening for attraction because she can easily misinterpret his intentions and just assume that he's a friendly guy, and she will go about her business without paying any attention to him.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon to understand why being too nice to a woman will often lead to rejection...

Attracting Women is a Lot Easier Than You Might Think

Attracting women that you meet in different environments, such as waiting rooms, is a lot easier than you might think. Most guys don't realize how easy women are to pick up because they make classic mistakes, which then cause the woman to reject them. However, when you use the right approach, it really is very simple, easy and natural to pick up random women that you meet.

With our program, 21 Great Ways to Get a Girlfriend, you will learn how to approach and pick up women in 21 different environments. You will know what to say and do to get a woman eagerly giving you her phone number or adding you to Facebook and wanting to go on a date with you.

When you use the right techniques, picking up women is a lot easier than you might be able to imagine right now. Being able to approach, attract and pick up women is one of the easiest, most exciting and most rewarding things that a guy can ever learn how to do.

If you are going through life thinking that you're not good enough for most of the women you meet, then you are wrong. You are more than good enough, but have most-likely been making some classic mistakes that are ruining your chances with the women you meet.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Jobs That Impress Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Guys often ask The Modern Man for advice on what impresses women the most.

Recently, some guys have been asking about the types of jobs that impress women the most. Some of these guys assume that if they have the right look or the right job, they will be able to attract the women they want.

Yet, that's not always the case. Yes, women are impressed by certain jobs (e.g. doctor, lawyer, businessman, athlete, etc), but having a job like that doesn't automatically guarantee that you will attract a hot woman and be able to keep her happy when in a relationship.

Before we get into what really impresses a woman, let's have a look at some jobs that do impress women:

1. High paying jobs (e.g. businessman, lawyer, doctor, stockbroker, investor).
2. Jobs where the man is the leader (e.g. manager, boss, CEO, professor).
3. Jobs where a guy is doing something masculine (e.g. fireman, policeman, military, MMA fighter).
4. Jobs that require a man to be very confident with people (e.g. leader, foreman, boss, public speaker).

Why Most Men Don't Really Care What Job a Woman Does

[image: Why most men don't care what a woman does for a living]

Chances are that every time you go out to a public place, you will spot at least 2 or 3 women you feel attracted to, and given the opportunity, would want to have sex with, right? Why is that?

Simple. Most men are more attracted to a woman's physical appearance than anything else about her. If a woman is beautiful (or even just reasonably attractive), most guys will feel more than enough attraction to be willing to have sex with her, regardless of what she does for a job.

It also doesn't even matter whether or not she's a nice person, interesting or a smart; her looks are enough. Most guys that an attractive woman will meet in her life will be open to having sex with her, or starting a relationship with her, even if they don't like her personality or see any potential for a successful relationship with her.

Women on the other hand are different.

Most women are more attracted to the things in men that cannot be seen. In other words, a woman is more likely to overlook a guy's appearance if he has a great personality that makes her feel attracted.

Of course, this doesn't mean that a woman will be attracted to an ugly, dirty, smelly guy who is on welfare and lives in a cardboard box just because he has a great personality.

Looks, money and jobs do matter to women, but only as far as they add to a man's overall attractiveness. Yes, a woman does like the idea of a man being able to have his say in the world, because the idea of being with a man who is going to struggle to put food on the table is not appealing to most women.

However, that doesn't mean you have to get some special type of job before you will be attractive to women. Women are just as attracted to men who have ordinary jobs but have the potential to become more powerful and successful in their lives.

In fact, if you have a job that is impressive but are unhappy, and because of that, you end up going day to day without making any plans for the future; you are more likely to be unattractive to a woman than if you had an ordinary or even dull job, but you were enthusiastically working towards achieving great things in your life.

If women weren't attracted to guys with ordinary jobs, then the only guys with girlfriends would be the guys with jobs that impress women. However, if you look at the guys who have girlfriends, that obviously isn't the case.

Millions of guys who work as a janitor, bus driver or as a low paid office worker still manage to attract hot girlfriends and even get married to those women. The truth is, most women will overlook a man's physical appearance if he is moving forward in his life towards his biggest goals and ambitions like a real man should.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can trigger it even if you don't have an amazing job...

If a guy is good looking, or has a really impressive job, but has no self confidence, is really nervous and insecure around women and lacks the ability to make a woman feel sexual attraction for him, most women will NOT say, Oh it's okay. I'll put up with his weaknesses as a man because I'm just SO impressed by his looks/job!

This is the main reason why you've probably seen plain, or even fat or "ugly" guys dating really hot women. You've probably even thought to yourself, What has he got that I don't? I bet he must be really rich or he probably has one of those jobs that impress women, right? Wrong!

Most guys are just average guys who are getting by in life and trying to find happiness, love and fulfillment. There isn't really any amazingly special about them apart from the fact that they know how to make a woman feel attracted.

3 Ways to Impress Women Without Having an Amazing Job

Rather than wasting years of your life thinking that you're not good enough for women because you don't have an impressive job, you should focus on being impress to women right now.

1. Be a confident man

If you can be the type of guy who has the confidence to walk up to an attractive woman and hit on her in the right way, then you are the type of guy who is going to have his choice with women.

If you can talk to a woman in a confident, relaxed and easy going way, she will naturally feel attracted to you and will open up to talking to you and even kissing you, having sex and possibly going into a relationship with you.

Women are attracted to the strength in men and repelled by weakness and nothing denotes strength more than confidence and self belief. Without confidence, your ability to attract women will always be diminished.

It doesn't matter how good of a man you are, a woman will never be able to maintain her respect and attraction for you in a relationship if you lack confidence in yourself as a man.

2. Use flirting to create attraction

Flirting is the secret, unspoken language that men and women use to communicate their sexual interest to each other. It's a safe, discreet way of building sexual tension and expressing sexual interest, without being sleazy or creepy about it.

Remember: Attractive women get hit on all the time, but if they don't feel attraction for a guy, they will reject him. There is no better way to build attraction than to flirt with a woman and make her feel sexy in your eyes.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand what flirting is and how to use it to attract women...

3. Be a great conversationalist

For most guys, getting past the first few minutes of conversation is usually the hardest part.

Talking to women is easy to do when you're confident and you focus on making the woman feel attracted to you. When a woman feels attracted to a guy, she will almost always make it easy for him to talk to her, unless she is testing his confidence him by playing hard to get.

Throughout a conversation, a woman will always be trying to assess your mental and emotional strength to see if you're strong enough for a woman like her. This is a woman's natural instinct to make sure that she finds a compatible guy who can handle her and make her feel the type of attraction she really wants to experience.

Choose a Job That You Really Love, Not a Job That You Hope Will Impress Women

You can waste a lot of time worrying about jobs that impress women, or you can realize that what women really want to see is that you are a confident man who is going after his biggest dreams and ambitions in life.

As a man, you need to do the job that brings you happiness, challenges you and makes you wake up in the morning feeling excited because you can't wait to move forward and achieve what you're aiming for.

If you get into a job to hopefully impress women and still don't even know how to attract women during an interaction, most women really aren't going to care what you do for a living. Despite your great job, she just isn't going to be feeling the type of sexual attraction that she really wants to feel.

If you want to be successful with women, the main thing that you need to master is your ability to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman when you talk to her and interact with her...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

The Girl That I Like Just Wants to Be Friends

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Something that a lot of guys ask The Modern Man about is what to do when a girl just wants to be friends, but they want a sexual relationship.

Often, the guy will have known a girl as a friend for some time and he will then have suggested that they go on a date or begin a relationship, only to have her say that she just wants to be friends.

So, why do girls say that they just want to be friends with good guys who have good intentions? Why can't a girl see that the guy is a good guy and that he is sincerely interested in a relationship with her? Why does she reject such a great offer?

In most cases, it simply means that the guy hasn't been making her feel sexually attracted to him and is trying to start a relationship based on feelings of friendship, rather than sexual attraction.

[image: The girl that I like just wants to be friends]

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand why it's so important to focus on making a girl feel attracted to you first...

Most girls don't like to hurt a guy's feelings, especially if the guy is someone that she likes as a friend. By saying she just wants to be friends, she is letting him down gently, but what she's really saying is that she's not sexually attracted to him.

Have You Been Making Her Feel Sexually Attracted to You?

By the time a guy realizes a girl just wants to be friends with him and isn't interested in beginning a sexual relationship, he will probably already have made some classic mistakes that have led to him being seen as a friend and not a potential boyfriend.

Some of those mistakes include:

1. Acting like one of the girls

Unfortunately, many guys make the mistake of thinking that being great friends with a girl will lead to her liking him and then wanting to have sex with him. The more he likes a girl, the harder he'll try to be liked back by her and this often leads to behaving in a way around her that makes him become seen as one of the girls."

For example: He'll get involved in girly things such as gossiping, going on shopping trips and helping to choose outfits and makeup etc. He might also be the guy who is always available when she needs to talk about something that has upset her particularly if it's something her latest boyfriend has done.

Of course, the problem with all of this is that being liked as a friend and being lusted after as a potential boyfriend are two entirely different things. The more girly his behavior becomes, the less sexually attractive he becomes as a result. Sure, she's going to like having him around as one of her best friends but she's not going to see him as anything other than just a friend.

2. Being a doormat for her to walk all over

[image: Being a woman's doormat]

I think it's fair to say that one of the most common mistakes guys make in terms of trying to make a female friend into a girlfriend is trying way too hard to be liked. As in the above example, trying too hard to be liked and trying to be a girl's best friend inevitably leads to a guy being seen as less sexually attractive.

The more he tries to be the super-nice guy that she can rely on to be there for her, the more likely it is that she'll step all over him like a doormat.

Always being available and always dropping everything to run to her assistance won't lead to her eventually realizing that she's madly in love with him. That kind of stuff only happens in the movies, not in real life, believe me. It will only lead to her seeing him as a weak, wimpy kind of guy who doesn't have anything else going on in his life other than her.

There's nothing wrong with being a nice guy, but to be seen as sexually attractive, a guy must also have the alpha qualities it takes to be seen as a confident, masculine, and mentally and emotionally strong nice guy.

The bottom line is that if you're always available to a woman, you're not showing yourself to be the alpha male she's looking for. Alpha males have qualities that make them stand out as real men in a woman's eyes, and women know that a real man effectively has his pick of women so they'll have to work hard at attracting his attention if they want to get him all to themselves.

Being a sexually attractive man means developing the alpha male characteristics that women are instinctively drawn to in a man, and having the qualities that make women feel literally weak at the knees in your presence. When you learn how to be that man, you'll no longer find that a girl just wants to be friends, she'll want to be much more than just friends with you.

Making Her Want to Be Your Girlfriend

If you want a girl to see you as a potential boyfriend, you need to show her through your behavior and actions that you've got the sexually attractive qualities she's looking for in a man.

Women are instinctively attracted to men with genuine self-confidence and true masculinity, and above all, men who make them feel feminine.

Modern women want to be with a man who knows how to naturally take the lead in a relationship, thereby allowing her to relax into feeling naturally feminine around him.

In today's world, women often have to suppress their natural femininity in order to get ahead in their careers. Yet, despite how strong, independent and even masculine some modern women behave, they still yearn to be with a man who has what it takes to make her feel like a woman.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Making a Woman Laugh: Mistakes to Avoid

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to make a woman laugh, you have to trust your gut instinct to say whatever you think will be funny.

As long as you are making the joke in a manner that is attractive to women (e.g. confident, masculine, flirtatious, etc), the woman will laugh and enjoy it. More importantly, she will also feel attracted to you.

Watch the video below by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) for a great example of how to make a woman laugh in an attractive way...

You can also make women laugh and feel attracted to you at the same by using flirting. Here's another great video by Dan...

“I Love a Guy Who Can Make Me Laugh”

[image: Women love funny guys]

Have you ever heard a woman say, “I love a guy who can make me laugh”?

Unless you've been living under a rock or have never been around women before, you will have most likely heard women saying something like that more than once. For most women (not all), a guy's ability to make her laugh will override his lack of anything else.

This is one of the reasons why you will often see so many ordinary or even ugly guys dating or married to hot women, who when asked to explain their attraction for their man, often say, “He's just so incredibly funny. He makes me laugh and I love him for that.”

So, what is it about being funny and making a woman laugh that makes her feel attracted to a man?

What Humor Says About You to Her

[image: Why women love funny guys]

Let's face it, life can get pretty boring, stressful and dull sometimes.

However, if a guy can lighten the load with a dash of humor, it just makes being around him a lot more fun and interesting. Given the choice between hanging out with a dull or serious guy and someone who is funny, a woman will choose the funny guy every time.

Why? Well according to research it seems that making a woman laugh makes a guy seem more intelligent and trustworthy in her eyes, and this in turn makes him seem more desirable as a potential boyfriend. Another reason women like guys who can make them laugh is because a guy who is funny is usually liked and accepted by others.

At a deep level, this tells a woman this is the kind of guy who is able to have his say in the world, is most likely to get along and be respected by others, and because of that will be able to get ahead and will ultimately be able to provide for himself, her and their offspring if they have any, better than a guy who is disliked or disregarded by others.

[image: What humor says about a man]

Unlike men who will choose a woman based on how attractive she looks (even if he doesn't like her personality), most women will assess much more than just a guy's looks before they make up their mind about having sex with him or dating him.

Although a guy's looks can initially attract a woman, if he can't build on her feelings of interest, desire and amusement, she probably won't feel enough attraction for him to warrant having sex or beginning a relationship.

3 Mistakes to Avoid When Making a Woman Laugh

Being funny is definitely an asset; however, if it's not something that comes naturally to you, you can actually destroy attraction instead of create it. Here are 3 common mistakes to avoid.

1. Trying too hard.

[image: Uncool humor]

Yes, being funny is one of the quickest and easiest ways to endear yourself to people and to make a woman feel sexual attraction for you. However, trying too hard to be funny isn't funny.

For example: Some guys will memorize jokes they find on the internet and then use as many of them as possible during a conversation with a woman. He's thinking, "If women like funny guys, then all I need to do is add in some jokes and I'll finally get the girl."

Yet, that's not how it works. When a guy jokes endlessly in an effort to be liked, he only comes across as being desperate and needy. Instead of getting a woman to respect him and feel attraction for him, he only succeeds in making her feel pity for him, which then turns her off.

A big part of making a woman laugh is being natural and letting the conversation and the vibe of the environment around you inspire you.

2. Being the un-cool joker.

When a guy lacks social intelligence, it's easy for him to use humor to try and fit in.

We've all encountered the guy who makes us cringe when his lame jokes fall flat and everyone looks away uncomfortably because he's just not funny. The less people laugh at his jokes the harder he tries, but he fails to understand that such behavior is simply making him even LESS attractive to women.

It's better to be yourself and to focus on learning about people, socializing and attracting women before you try to be a "funny guy" for everyone that you meet.

3. Thinking that insulting her is being funny.

[image: Insulting humor]

If you've been learning about approaching and picking up women, you may have heard about the type of humor called cocky and funny.

We don't teach that.

Instead, we teach what we call Playfully Arrogant humor, which essentially means that you are being arrogant (or cocky if you want to call it that), but it is clear that you are only being playful. A mistake that a lot of guys make is in thinking that if cocky and funny humor works, then women must love really cocky guys who insult them.

Yet, that's not how it works.

Playfully Arrogant humor is funny and attractive to women because, unlike cocky and funny, it's not about insulting her and is instead about getting her laughing and both the man and the woman enjoying the interaction together.

When guys get too focused on the "cocky" element of the outdated cocky and funny approach to humor, they often go overboard and end up turning the woman off.

An Example of How to Make a Woman Laugh

Regardless of where you are, the key to making a woman laugh is using whatever is around you as an opportunity to tease her and to create attraction between you.

Here is an example of what to do if you're in any type of queue (in the supermarket, at the movies, at a buffet, at the post office, etc.) and an attractive woman standing behind you bumps into you (which is inevitable when you're in queues).

You: [Smile and say] Okay, okay, you don't have to push me to get my attention!

Her: [Laughing] Oh, I'm sorry I didn't mean to bump you.

You: [Still smiling] Girls are always trying to touch me.

Her: [Laughing]

You: I have feelings too, but it's always seems to be about the touching and bumping with you girls.

Her: [Laughing]

You: [Smile and show her that you're being light-hearted and only messing around] Anyway, if you promise to keep your hands to yourself, I'll keep talking to you. I'm Bob – what's your name?

See how it works? You're being playful while at the same time showing her that you're a confident, easy going guy.

Just Be Yourself

Making a woman laugh is easier than most guys think. The key is to be yourself, relax and let the conversation flow naturally.

Trust your gut instinct to say whatever you feel like saying and in many cases, it will be funny, interesting and completely unique to you...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

People Always Ask Me Why Iâ€™m Single

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Whether itâ€™s at Thanksgiving dinner, Christmas lunch, Cousin Susieâ€™s wedding or Uncle Bobâ€™s 70th birthday party; you are constantly bumping into the same people and the same family members.

After a while a pattern develops and you start to dread going to these family events because you know that inevitably, someone is going to ask the dreaded questionâ€”

Youâ€™ll be sitting down having a wonderful meal with the whole family, enjoying the turkey and the cranberry sauce; lulled by the food and the wine you begin to relax when suddenly out of the blue Aunt Millie asks, â€œWhy are you still single?â€

An expectant hush falls over the whole table and everyone turns their eyes on you. â€œWell?â€ prods Aunt Millie, â€œ...answer the question! If you canâ€™t meet anyone I know this nice girl that works at the library. Sheâ€™s really quite sweet, a bit too shy for my liking, butâ€

Embarrassed, you make some flippant retort, excuse yourself from the table and make a hasty retreat to the bathroom where you face yourself in the mirror and ask yourself that question of questions, â€œ...people always ask me why Iâ€™m single, what should I say in response?â€

If youâ€™ve ever experienced anything like that before, you would already know that some people have started to make assumptions about you (e.g. â€œA rumor has it that youâ€™re still a virgin, you must be gayâ€ or you are intimidated by women and still havenâ€™t worked out how to be a confident man).

Youâ€™re stuck and you donâ€™t know what youâ€™re doing wrong or how to fix it.

Really...Why Are You Single?

The truth of the matter is that if you are at a point in your life where people are always asking you why youâ€™re single, then there must be an issue that you are not addressing. If you are honest with yourself you will stop making excuses such as:

- Iâ€™m too focused on my career right now.
- Iâ€™m too busy for a relationship.
- I want to travel first before I settle down.
- I just havenâ€™t met the right woman yet.

You will then realize that you are literally running out of excuses and that youâ€™re not facing the fact that you just donâ€™t know how to make women feel sexually attracted to you. Youâ€™re lost and you are looking for excuses because you either donâ€™t know that you need to actively attract women with your personality, or you are expecting women to suddenly start liking you because youâ€™re such a nice guy.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand what a guy really needs to do if he wants to be successful with women...

In addition to what Dan talks about in the video above, here are some additional questions that will help you get to the source of your real problems with women...

1. Do you lack the all important confidence that women find most attractive about men?

When you find yourself in the company of women, especially women that you find attractive, you become nervous and uncomfortable. You either mumble through your words or stand there in stunned silence and have to hastily excuse yourself, doing exactly what you did at the dinner table with Aunt Millie.

2. Do you know what to say when you approach a woman?

When you see a woman that you find attractive you find yourself unable to approach her and even if you did, you probably wouldn't know what to do after that. You are not sure what to say, how to stand and what to do when and if she does something unexpected; which is something women always seem to do.

3. Do you avoid places where women are open to being approached?

You avoid places where there are lots of available women that you can meet, knowing that you won't be able to handle the stress. You also avoid interacting with women at the mall, the park, the gym, at yoga class or at your local supermarket. Even when a beautiful woman approaches you, you find a way to make yourself unavailable.

4. Do you lack the ability to keep a conversation going and keep it interesting when talking to a beautiful woman?

You don't know how to make a conversation interesting and engaging for an attractive woman and you make the mistake of talking about your boring job, your boss, the weather, your mom or the state of the nation.

If you're not talking about those things, you may then begin to interrogate her by asking question after question in the hope that she will just keep talking to you for long enough to realize that you're a nice guy and you mean her no harm.

5. Do you know how to flirt?

Flirting is an art and is the first course in the dating ritual. If you don't know how to flirt and use your body language to turn a woman on, then the result will be that you make her feel uncomfortable and tense.

6. Do you avoid approaching attractive women?

Instead of being a go getter who confidently goes after the women that he likes, you sit in a corner hoping that the woman will take pity on you and come to you. Unless you are very good looking or famous, this is NOT going to happen.

7. Have you been behaving like a lower ranking male?

As a man, you are either an alpha male or a lower ranking male. If you are getting the girls you are alpha and if you are not getting the girls you are a lower ranking male.

When you behave with insecurity, nervousness and a lack of direction and purpose in your life, you are behaving like a lower ranking male, women will pick up on it and will reject you every time because they are always on the lookout for an alpha male who is confident, self assured and has purpose and direction.

If you relate to some or all of these points, then you are in definite need of some help. The longer you go around saying people always ask me why I'm single without looking for a way to change your single status, the harder it will get.

A Little More Action Please

If you want to change your single status and you want to make women feel sexual attraction for you, then you need to address the issues above; you need to become more confident around women and you need to unleash your alpha male potential. Alpha males are the ones who always get the girls; they see what they want and they go out and get it.

Sitting around moping and saying people always ask me why Iâ€¢m single is not getting you anywhere. Action is what is required at this point.

What Should You Do?

[image: What should you do about your single status?]

The key to your success is to change the things that are holding you back and preventing you from changing your â€¢singleâ€¢ status to â€¢takenâ€¢. Unfortunately, when you have waited too long to make the necessary changes you may feel stuck and unsure about how to go about it. You might want to approach and attract women, but you also might have absolutely no idea how it's done.

Luckily for you, you are at the right place. Here at the Modern Man we have got all the advice youâ€¢ll ever need, or use, to help you approach and engage as many beautiful women as your heart desires.

The next time youâ€¢re having dinner with the family, you can say, â€¢Hi everyone...Iâ€¢d like you to meet my beautiful girlfriend...â€¢

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Meeting New Women After a Divorce

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Let's be honest; divorce is never easy.

However, you can come out of it scarred and determined never to let another woman do that to you again, or you can take the experience, learn from it and make sure that the next time you're in a relationship, you have the skills to make it work; the choice is yours.

So, rather than closing yourself off and vowing never to date another woman again, the best way to get over your ex wife is to start dating and having sex with other women as soon as possible. Meeting new women after a divorce is simple if you follow some basic guidelines.

1. Acknowledge That Your Marriage Failed and Then Move On

If you're not interesting in getting your ex wife back, then you need to acknowledge that the marriage failed and begin to feel excited about the great future ahead of you if you decide to move on and find yourself a new woman.

It's perfectly normal to go through a period of mourning when your marriage comes to an end. Most of us grow up believing that marriage is forever, so when something goes wrong, we end up beating ourselves up about it and feeling like failures.

Although it's okay to feel bad about it, putting yourself down and blaming yourself doesn't serve any purpose. Yes, your marriage ended, but you can use this as an opportunity to grow as a man and become even better than you were before.

Although divorce is a low point in your life, the good news is you now have choices that you never had before.

[image: Meeting women after a divorce]

For example:

- You can do the things you gave up on because of your marriage, e.g. go traveling, change your career, move to another country, go back to college or university, etc.
- You can choose to have sex with and date as many women as you want.
- You can choose to become the type of man that women find irresistible and have your choice of quality women.
- As mentioned, you also decide that you want to get back with your ex wife and make your marriage work.

[image: Meeting women after a divorce]

As you can see, many great things can come from something that you perceive as being a really bad experience. It all depends on your attitude.

2. Learn From Your Mistakes

As painful as it might be, part of becoming a better man in the future is to admit your past mistakes and learn from them. In your marriage, there were things you did that caused your wife to lose love, respect and attraction for you which led to your divorce.

By finding out exactly what caused your ex wife to want a divorce, you can learn and change those things so that you won't repeat them again the next time you're in a relationship. This is also the best way to re-attract your ex wife if you want to.

By learning from your mistakes and fixing your issues she will feel understood and will open her up to feeling love for you again. On the other hand, if you're not interested in a reconciliation with your ex, you will still be a better man in your next relationship.

Some examples of what to look for are:

- Did you stop being the man in your relationship? Did you let your wife wear the pants?
- Did you become clingy and possessive?
- Did you neglect her or take her for granted?
- Did you stop making her feel like a woman?
- Did you stop pursuing your goals and making plans for the future?
- Did you want separate things, e.g. starting a family, etc.

By answering all these questions (and whatever others you can think of) for yourself, you will realize where you went wrong and what you have to fix to be successful with women in the future.

3. Rebuild Your Confidence and Use it to Attract Women

After divorce it's pretty normal for a guy's confidence to take a knock. Even when a divorce is relatively simple with both the man and the woman agreeing to move on, a man's confidence can suffer, with many guys questioning their ability to meet new women.

Common insecurities that crop up after a divorce include things like, Am I a failure with women, What if I never meet another woman again, What if women don't find me attractive anymore, What if I get rejected, or I've been out of the dating game for so long I don't know how to approach and pick up women anymore.

If you're feeling insecure and nervous about meeting new women after a divorce, the first thing you need to do is focus on rebuilding the confidence that you have about your sex appeal to women. Why? Confidence in a man is more attractive to a woman than anything else.

Women are instinctively attracted to confident, masculine men who are mentally and emotionally strong, so the key to attracting new women into your life is to develop these qualities that make women see you as a real man.

If you don't build yourself up first and make sure that you're not in a low emotional state when you get back out into the dating world, you will find it difficult to attract beautiful women and you'll end up either not dating at all, or you'll settle for low caliber women that you don't feel a lot of attraction for.

4. Improve Your Dating Skills

[image: Meeting women after a divorce]

When meeting new women after a divorce it's easy for a guy to bring his failed marriage baggage with him out on a date. Basically, some guys can't get over their break up and instead of focusing on the woman in front of them, they instead make the mistake of discussing their failed relationship with her.

Although a woman may listen to you out of politeness, if you spend a lot of time talking to her about your doomed relationship and how heart broken and insecure you feel as a result, she will more than likely console you and then make an excuse to get away from you.

Why? A man who is needy, insecure and lacking in confidence is not a sexual turn on. She might feel motherly towards you but that's not going to make her want to have sex with you and then date you.

To get a woman to see you in a sexual way, you have to create attraction by showing her that you're a confident, emotionally strong man who is happy with or without a woman in his life.

If you don't have that type of confidence in yourself, and if you don't know how to behave when you first approach and interact with a woman, you need to learn these things first. I can help you with that.

Starting Over Can Be the Best Time of Your Life

As you can see, divorce doesn't have to be the end of a happy life. In fact, it can be the beginning of bigger and better things in your life. If you use this time to grow and become a better man than you were before, you can achieve things you previously thought impossible or out of your reach.

Most important, meeting new women after a divorce will become very easy for you when you sharpen up your ability to attract women when you interact with them. For example: Improve your conversation skills, charm, charisma, confidence and ability to make a woman feel girly in your presence.

When you are able to attract women in those ways, it's easy to get women interested in you and begin exploring sexual and romantic relationships.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What Turns a Woman On? 3 Myths Busted

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When you consider the sheer number of confused messages a guy gets in everyday life about what it takes to turn women on, it's no wonder we get contacted on a daily basis for advice on the subject.

All that a modern man needs to do to be confused is turn on the TV, listen to advertisements on the radio or watch a Hollywood movie. He will be told that women want perfect looking men with loads of money and if a guy doesn't have that, he shouldn't even try to hit on the woman.

You've got to be perfect, you've got to be rich and you've got to be tall, famous, have a huge dick and have perfectly moisturised skin.

Yeah, right.

Sure, some women will only accept perfect looking men with loads of money and a monster sized penis. Yet, most women are much more flexible about what they feel attracted to in a guy. We men are lucky that can turn women on in so many different ways.

If we couldn't, then most guys wouldn't be able to get laid, get a girlfriend or get married. Yet, they can...

[image: Ugly guy has a baby with a beautiful woman]

[image: Black guys with white women]

[image: How is this possible?]

[image: Everyday couples]

[image: Asian guy with white girlfriend]

[image: Ugly guy with hot cheerleader girlfriend]

[image: Guy with a weird nose with a beautiful girlfriend]

[image: Guy with big ears with beautiful girlfriend]

[image: White man marrying a black woman. Asian guy marrying a black woman]

[image: Fat Asian guy with pretty girlfriend]

[image: Asian guy marrying pretty white girl]

[image: Fat guy with a skinny girlfriend at the pool]

[image: Fat guys with pretty women]

[image: Fat men marrying beautiful women]

As you can see by the photos above, women can be turned on by all sorts of guys. What you hear in the media is simply how people think things should work, but how things actually work in the real world is often completely different.

Turn On or Turn Off?

Okay, let's take a look at some of the most common myths surrounding the subject of what turns a woman on...

Myth 1: Women are only turned on by tall, dark, handsome men

Sure, certain physical features are going to be seen as more attractive than others to certain women, but it's simply not true that you need to be tall, dark, and handsome to be able to turn women on. Just take a look around you in the real world - the guy who gets the girl in the movies might be the good-looking guy with the rippling muscles, but in the real world? Common! You see guys of all shapes, sizes, and hair colours with beautiful girlfriends, right?

In answer to the question of what turns a woman on, it's an obvious myth that women are only interested in a guy's outward appearance. In the real world, it's who you are as a man on the inside that decides how attractive you are to most women.

Yes, some women will only accept a perfect looking guy who is tall, has loads of money and has a huge penis, but most women are much more flexible about what they find attractive than guys realize.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use that to your advantage the next time you interact with a beautiful woman...

Myth 2: Women are mostly turned on by money

Following on from the tall, dark, and handsome myth, it's not unusual for guys to think that women only date average-looking guys if they've got plenty of cash to splash. Of course, guys who think this way are completely misunderstanding what turns women on.

To be attractive in a woman's eyes, you don't need to have expensive clothes and designer shoes, and you don't need to have a flashy car or any other kind of showy bling.

Women are attracted to confident men who know who they are and know where they're going in life.

Having these alpha male characteristics makes a guy a natural leader in all areas of life and because of this, he's a guy who goes after what he wants and makes his own success.

Wearing designer labels and driving a nice car might be part-and-parcel of a man's success, but it's not what he owns that turns a woman on, it's who he is and the character traits he has that attract her attention.

Put it this way; a guy with Hollywood good-looks, a designer wardrobe, and a string of sports cars will not turn a woman on if he lacks confidence and acts shy or nervous around her.

However, an average-looking guy with absolutely no bling on show will turn her on if he has genuine self-confidence and an ability to engage her in natural, free-flowing, and fun conversation that leads effortlessly into flirting.

Myth 3: Women are turned on by nice, sweet, polite gentleman

If you watch any old black and white Hollywood classic, you'll see plenty of gentlemanly behaviour that seems to get women swooning and buckling at the knees, so it's no surprise that a lot of guys slip into believing that the way to turn a woman on is to treat her like a lady.

Well, buying her flowers, lavishing her with gifts, and effectively throwing yourself at her feet by putting her on a pedestal might have worked a century ago but itâ€™s not going to do anything for a modern woman.

For a start, the movie world has never been a true reflection of the real world anyway, but the world has changed over the last couple of generations and women are looking for a man who knows how to make her feel like a woman in todayâ€™s world.

Modern women are independent women, theyâ€™re not impressed by â€œgiftsâ€œ because they can buy their own, and putting her on a pedestal doesnâ€™t boost a guyâ€™s image in her eyes, it makes her see him as a weak, desperate guy who is so unsure of what he has to offer as a man that heâ€™s trying to â€œbuyâ€œ her affections.

She doesnâ€™t want an insecure man who puts all of his energy into â€œtrying too hardâ€œ to impress her, she wants a confident, masculine man who has his pick of women because then she gets the thrill of working hard to impress him.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand why being too nice to a woman will often result in rejection...

As you will discover by watching the video above, there is nothing wrong with being a nice guy to a woman. However, you must also focus on making her feel sexually attracted to you. Nice behavior isn't enough to turn a woman on or make her want to begin a relationship with a guy.

What Really Turns a Woman On

The bottom line on what turns a woman on is this...

A guy who has the ability to make her feel feminine in response to his masculinity. For example: If a guy is confident and has a strong, masculine vibe when interacting with a woman, she will naturally feel feminine in his presence.

If he also has the ability to make her feel attracted in other ways (e.g. making her laugh, being charming, being charismatic, etc), then she will feel like she has hit the jackpot by meeting him.

Women dream of being able to find a guy who can make them feel attraction for a wide variety of traits, but it is very hard to find. When you are the guy who can turn a woman on in many different ways, you are what women refer to as a catch.

Attracting a woman for sex is simple and easy and maintaining and building on a woman's attraction in a relationship is just as effortless...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Definition of a Real Man

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

A real man is a man with genuine self-confidence and true masculinity. Heâs a man who knows his own mind and knows what heâs about in life, and heâs not afraid to stand up for what he believes in.

When a man has these qualities, he has a natural self-assuredness that makes him stand out head and shoulders above other men, and women feel an instinctive sexual attraction towards him because he has what it takes to protect her and provide for her, allowing her to relax into being a woman in the relationship.

A real man has the strength of character to be his own man in the world and to always be true to himself. If he takes part in any passing trends in society (e.g. fashion trends, social trends, etc) he does so because he is interested in it, not because he's trying to hopefully impress people and get them to like him.

He focuses on being the best version of himself itâs possible to be by developing the characteristics that help him to go on improving and becoming a better man at each new stage in his life. He knows how to be successful with women because he knows what really attracts women to men.

He doesnât have to try too hard to get a womanâs attention because women automatically sense his confident and very masculine presence and they work hard to get his attention and be selected by him.

Itâs Not All About Looks, Money and Status

If you ask a guy to describe a real man, he will often begin to imagine a handsome man with a high paying job, a chiseled jaw and a great sense of fashion. Why? That's what is fed to us via the media. TV commercials, glossy magazine ads, billboards, and Hollywood movies in general all send out the message that success with women comes down to being a good-looking guy with a chiselled jaw, Superman physique, high paying job or high status position in society.

This can lead the âaverageâ guy into feeling insecure around beautiful women and assuming that he'll never be good enough for women, even though he is good enough...and just doesn't know it.

While it is true that some women are gold diggers and that some women will only accept a perfect, male model type of guy, the majority of women are much more flexible about what they find attractive.

Most women are interested in who a guy is on the inside, not just how he presents himself on the outside. Sure, certain physical features are going to be seen as more attractive than others initially, and itâs important that a guy should make an effort and take some pride in his appearance, but women are simply not that shallow.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (the founder of The Modern Man) to understand the real reason why a lot of good guys fail with women...and no -it's not because they're not good looking enough!

Check it out...

If a rich, good looking guy approaches a woman and then struggles to string a sentence together because he is shy and nervous, most women aren't going to be interested. Most women are more interested in how a guy's personality and behavior makes them feel.

Material possessions can only ever send out a message about what a guy is, but for women, finding a real man is all about feeling the message he sends out through being who he is.

Women can sense a real man's presence because he's a man who knows who he is and feels secure enough in who he is to just be himself, and he has a quiet inner confidence that doesn't need to be advertised through outward status symbols or bling.

It's Not All About Being a Gentleman

There's nothing wrong with treating a woman well and a real man certainly does that. However, being an old school gentleman isn't what women see as being a real man in today's world.

Another common mistake guys make is to fall into the trap of putting a woman on a pedestal and virtually throwing themselves at her feet in order to impress her and win her affections. They think that doting on her in this way and behaving in a gentlemanly manner around her is the right way to treat her because a woman wants to be treated like a lady. She doesn't.

That line of thinking may have made a lady swoon a century ago but most modern women see it as corny and out of place in today's world.

Today's women are independent women who know how to hold their own in the world, so they're looking for a strong man who has what it takes to sweep her off her feet by being mentally and emotionally stronger than her and comfortably taking the lead in a relationship as a result.

A real man isn't a gentle, nice guy who treats her with kid gloves, he's a man who has what it takes to make her feel like a woman.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What Women Say and What They Really Mean

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Have you ever had a woman say something to you, only to discover later on that what she said wasn't really what she meant?

For example: She said, "I want a nice guy who cares about me and treats me like a princess," but she then lusted after and hooked up with a bad boy, jerk or asshole who didn't treat her well.

You might have then been left wondering whether or not she was telling the truth or if women now prefer bad boys over nice guys. After all, why would a woman hook up with a bad boy if she actually wants a nice guy?

The answer is actually quite simple. For example: A guy once contacted The Modern Man to explain that he had asked a girl out on a date because she was always saying what a nice guy he was, but ever since he'd asked her out she'd always been too busy to make any definite plans.

He wanted to know why she always said nice things to him but didn't seem to mean any of them because she was never available to go on a date with him.

[image: Women gossiping about men]

The answer was simple: She wasn't attracted to him, but she did like him as a friend. She did see him as a nice guy, but that isn't enough for most women to want to have sex with a guy. Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand why being really nice to a woman often results in being rejected...

Another great video by Dan Bacon is 7 Strange Things About Women, which we definitely recommend that you watch if you want to truly understand how women think...

What's Really On Her Mind?

Sometimes, women feel under pressure to say what they've been brought up to believe is the "right" thing to say under certain circumstances, rather than say what's really on their mind.

A lot of the emails we get from guys who are confused over what women say and what they really mean tell a similar story of making out with a girl and then her saying "no" just when things appear to be going really well. They want to know why a girl who is clearly enjoying the anticipation of sex would then say no to "going all the way" at the last minute.

This is a classic example of a woman saying "no" when she really wants to say "yes"! However, when you learn to understand how women think, you realise that she feels she must say no so that you don't think of her as being "too easy."

She wants to be seen as a "good" girl and she's been brought up to believe that not saying no would lead to a guy losing all respect for her.

Of course, you shouldn't disregard everything that a woman says and assume that she means the opposite every time, but there is a lot of truth in the old saying, "Actions speak louder than words," and a guy needs to learn how to read a woman's body language to be able to understand what sheâs really saying.

For example: If a woman is clearly enjoying making out with a guy and then says, “We should probably stop,” it doesn’t always mean that she wants to stop. In many cases, she just wants to ensure that you don’t look at her as being easy, cheap or slutty.

Only when a woman clearly says, “Stop!” does she usually mean it. In all other cases, she’s usually just trying to act like she is resisting so that, if you do get into a relationship with her, you will be able to trust that she can control herself. You won’t have to worry about her hooking up with other guys easily because you know that she’s not like that.

Thinking Differently

If you want to get to grips with what women say and what they really mean, you not only need to learn how women think, you also need to think differently about who you are as a man.

When youâre a man who understands women, and youâre a man who knows what women are looking for in a man, youâre no longer a man who is unsure of himself and unsure of the messages women are sending him as a result. Women are looking for a confident man who knows who he is and knows what he stands for in life.

When a man has genuine self-confidence and he believes in himself as the man he is, he has a relaxed sense of self-assurance about him that makes him very attractive to women....and when a woman is attracted to a man, sheâs going to work very hard at making sure he gets the message â so no more confusion over what she really means, youâre going to know.

Guys who are successful with women donât hang around in the background trying to work out whether a woman is interested in him or not before approaching her, and they donât get confused mixed signals from women because theyâve learned to understand how women think.

Theyâve also learned how to be the type of guy that women want, and thatâs something that in itself makes it much less likely that theyâll ever be left wondering whether what sheâs saying is what she really means. Every guy can learn how to be successful with women, and you too can be a guy who knows whatâs really on a womanâs mind...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Random Questions to Get to Know Someone

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

As long as you make a woman feel attracted to you (e.g. by being confident, charismatic, making her laugh, flirting with her, having a masculine vibe, being charming, etc), it will be very easy to get to know her.

She will be interested in getting to know you, so it won't really matter what questions you ask. However, here are some good examples to use when getting to know a woman you like:

- So, tell me...what's something interesting or weird that has happened to you lately?
- What do you like to do for fun these days?
- Are you still like the girl you were when you were younger, or have you become a completely different person?
- Would you rather eat a chocolate cake or make one for your friends or family?
- Are you a Facebook addict?
- What is your greatest accomplishment this year?

Essentially, as long as you are making her feel attracted to you, it doesn't matter where you take the conversation. Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) for some examples of what women like to talk about with men...

Don't Get Too Scripted With Your Conversation Style

At The Modern Man, we sometimes get emails from guys who asking for things like, "Random questions to get to know someone," or "what to say to women to keep them talking."

Unfortunately, many guys are usually looking for some kind of prewritten list of "random questions" that they can ask when talking to women. This approach to conversation rarely works because what attracts a woman the most is when she can see that a guy is being his real, confident self and isn't afraid to say whatever he wants to say.

If a woman gets the sense that a guy feel so intimidated by women that he has to reel off a list of prepared questions, she wonder what other insecurities he has that is hiding from her.

With this in mind, it's not a scripted list of "random questions" you need. Instead, you need to learn how to talk to women in a way that captures their attention and interest, while also making them feel attracted to you.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon to understand where a lot of guys go wrong when talking to women and what you should do instead...

What Not to Say

Okay, there can be no doubt that asking questions is an important element of getting to know more about someone, and it's certainly a big part of creating a two-way conversation, but questions alone don't make a conversation.

A lot of guys who feel shy or anxious when they approach women use questions as a way of taking the pressure off themselves. By asking a question, they don't have to think of anything else to say for a while.

However, if a guy then just follows one question with another in an effort to avoid any awkward silences when he can't think of anything else to say, he's not making conversation, he's conducting an interview.

Firing questions at a woman isn't engaging her in conversation, and it's probably going to make her feel very uncomfortable in your company.

If the questions asked don't quite fit into the natural flow of things, they're going to sound stiff and rehearsed, and if you're too busy trying to check another random question off your list, you're not going to be listening to anything she says in reply and that's going to make you appear nervous and anxious at best, and more than a little weird at worst.

For example, let's say you ask her what kind of music she likes. She tells you all about the great time she had at a music festival the previous weekend and reels off the bands she enjoyed most. But, instead of listening to her reply and finding out about her tastes in music among other things, you busy yourself trying to think of another question to ask.

Then, later on in the conversation, you nervously ask, So have you seen any bands playing live lately? She then realises that you either haven't been listening to her or are so nervous around her that you can't think straight.

While the nervous, fumbling, nice guy might get the girl in Hollywood movies, in real life, he usually just gets rejected. Why? Women are attracted to the emotional strength of men (e.g. confidence, determination, charisma, etc) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. nervousness, insecurity, anxiety, etc).

Conversation Stoppers

Firing questions at her and then not paying attention to anything she says is not engaging her in conversation, and she's going to see you as an awkward, anxious guy with no social skills and that's not attractive.

Likewise, if you ask her questions that you then go on to practically answer yourself because you're so desperate to avoid silences and to try to hold her attention, you end up coming across as a really insecure guy with no confidence and that's not attractive either.

For example: Let's say you ask her if she likes Italian food and you then go on to list a number of dishes that she must like if she does but you haven't actually let her answer! That's not engaging her in conversation, that's just nervous chatter that's going to turn her right off.

When a guy lacks confidence, another common mistake he's likely to make is to fish for compliments or to seek reassurance in the questions he asks. For example, he might say, Do you like thin guys? or, Do you like guys that are into cars? or words to that effect.

The first question is a good example of a guy feeling insecure about his appearance, but whether or not she likes thin guys is immaterial because she's not going to like his lack of self-confidence and his need for reassurance.

The second question is a good example of a guy lacking confidence in who he is and what heâs got to offer as a man. Heâs using his interest in cars, and probably flashing his car keys, as a way of trying to âimpressâ her, but women arenât interested in a guyâs material possessions, theyâre interested in his character and who he is as a man.

Improving Your Conversation Skills to Attract Women

Hereâs another great video by Dan Bacon, which provides some examples of how to attract women during a conversation...

As you will discover from the video, itâs not about what you say, but how you make women feel when you say things. If what youâre saying and doing is triggering the womanâs feelings of sexual attraction for you, then youâre on the right track.

Learn More?

Relying on scripted questions or a rehearsed approach of any kind is not the way to get to know someone.

Questions are only of value if theyâre relevant to the particular situation, and to be part of a natural conversation, they need to be part of a two-way dialogue where her answer provides you with an opportunity to share a little information about yourself before building on her response to find out more about her.

All of this takes good communication skills and an ability to listen as well as to talk. Guys who are great conversationalists are guys who have learned how to feel genuinely confident and relaxed just being themselves.

Theyâve learned how to use natural charm and charisma to draw other people towards them and to be able to strike up spontaneous conversations that people want to join in on. As a result, they find it easy and natural to get to know someone new no matter where they meet them...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Why Do Women Like Older Men?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Women like all sorts of men, not just older men.

However, if a young woman is into older men, it's usually comes down to one of the following reasons:

1. She likes how girly he makes her feel because he is so masculine.
2. She is more emotionally mature than guys her age, so she feels more compatible with older guys.
3. She prefers having sex with guys who are experienced.
4. She has a "daddy complex" and likes to be a man who will give her the love that she didn't get from her father.
5. She prefers guys who are more financially established.

When a Younger Guy Gets Dumped For an Older Guy

We recently got an email from a guy recently who wanted to know why women like older men. His reason for asking was that his girlfriend had dumped him and she'd moved on to start dating an older man.

Of course, it might seem a bit rash to jump to the conclusion that all women like older men based on this one experience, but for him it was the second time it had happened; his previous girlfriend had also dumped him and started a relationship with an older man.

The thing is, he's not alone.

The question of, Why do women like older men? comes up frequently, and it's not only from guys who've been dumped and replaced by an older guy.

It's a question a lot of guys who are struggling to get a girlfriend ask because they see older guys with younger women falling all over them, or they see older guys out on dates with younger women and they want to know what gives?

Where Younger Guys Go Wrong

[image: Where younger guys go wrong with women]

Okay, the biggest mistake the guys who ask the question, Why do women like older men? are making is assuming that age is the only basis of a woman's attraction for a man. For the younger guys who have been dumped, they see their ex-girlfriend with an older man and they assume that the only thing he's got to offer that they don't is age.

In fact, because a guy is older, it's not unusual for a younger guy to describe him as being less attractive if not uglier than them, and it's for this reason that guys who are struggling to get a girlfriend jump to the conclusion that he must have money, or a flash car, or some other kind of trapping that makes women want to hang out with him.

As they see it, why would a young woman want to hang out with an older guy unless he was able to buy her affection with extravagant gifts? This is a big mistake on many levels, not least because women are not that shallow. In fact, if a guy thinks women really are that shallow, he's found out why his ex-girlfriend dumped him or why he's struggling to get a girlfriend.

As Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) explains in this video, guys make up all sorts of excuses for their lack of success with women. Yet, in reality, their lack of success with women comes down to one, simple mistake...

What Women Like in a Man

Women are attracted to guys with alpha male qualities that make him stand out as a real man in her eyes. It's not just what she sees when she looks at a guy that attracts her, it's what she feels when she's around him.

Alpha male qualities include confidence and masculinity, and a man with strong alpha male qualities has what it takes to make her feel like a woman and it's a feeling women can't get enough of. Alpha male qualities can generate a sexual attraction that makes a woman quite literally feel weak at the knees.

Yet, here's the thing, it's not a man's age that gives him these qualities, it's who he is.

The only advantage an older man has over a younger man is life experience. An older man has had more opportunity to discover who he really is and what's really important to him in life, so he's had more opportunity to develop genuine self-confidence and to relax into just being himself.

Obviously, this does not mean that all older men have confidence and all younger men lack confidence, it's just a generalisation that helps to explain why women sometimes appear to like older men.

It's not the fact that he's older that makes him attractive to a younger woman, it's the fact that he's truly confident in who he is as a man and he's genuinely likeable as a result because he's someone that she feels totally at ease being her real, feminine self around.

He's totally comfortable just being himself and he's not trying to be anything other than himself because he believes in himself as the man he is and that's a powerfully attractive quality in a woman's eyes.

Don't Keep Making the Same Mistakes

Going back to the guy who told us that he'd been dumped twice and his exes starting dating older guys each time. The fact that he asked, Why do women like older men? suggests that he could see no other reason for being dumped other than his ex-girlfriends preferring older guys, right?

The harsh reality is that until he learns to look beyond a man's age and to see what other qualities a man might have to offer his ex in a new relationship that he didn't offer in his relationship with her, he's probably going to keep getting dumped.

A guy has to recognise and acknowledge the mistakes he made before he can learn from them and become a better man as a result. It could just be pure coincidence that he was replaced by older guys in each case but the guy's exes moved on to obviously offered something better; something that was missing in their ex-relationship.

A lack of confidence or insecurities of any kind are not attractive in a man irrespective of his age. A woman is not going to be attracted to a guy who approaches her in a shy, awkward manner and then struggles to make any kind of conversation with her because he's so intimidated by her whether he's the same age as her or 10 years older.

It's not a man's age that attracts, it's his ability to approach a woman confidently, engage her in interesting conversation, and escalate the conversation into a kiss, a phone number, a date, or sex with the type of relaxed, masculine confidence that women find irresistible in men. It's who he is that gets her attention, not what he is in terms of his appearance or his material possessions.

The great news is that the qualities women are attracted to in a man are qualities that can be developed at any age and stage of life. It doesn't matter how young or old you are as a guy, the truth is that you can improve your ability to naturally attract women with your personality, behavior, body language, conversation style, vibe and attitude...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

My Purpose in Life... What is it?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Have you ever found yourself wondering, What's my purpose in life? or have you ever considered whether having a definite purpose in life might help you to get more out of your life and achieve your true potential?

Without purpose in your life, you're effectively drifting through life waiting to see where you happen to end up or what happens to come your way, so when you look at it that way, not having a clear purpose is unlikely to help you achieve what you really want out of life.

When you have a life purpose, you have a reason for being but if that all sounds a bit new-age for your liking, having purpose in your life stops you from drifting along and helps you to take control over where you're going in life and, perhaps more importantly, who you become as a man on the way.

A man who has purpose in his life is a man who is not settling for what happens to drift his way; a man who knows what he wants and is taking steps to move towards what he wants.

In this sense, you could say that asking yourself, What's my purpose in life? is similar to asking yourself, What's my ambition in life? or, What drives me and spurs me on in life?

Of course, these aren't questions that are always easily answered and it's quite often when a man finds himself drifting aimlessly without drive and ambition, or when he finds himself feeling unfulfilled by life that he comes to realise he lacks purpose.

Life Purpose vs. Life Intentions

Guys with purpose know what they want out of life and they know with the right amount of effort and focus, they can achieve their ambitions and realise their dreams.

Guys with purpose tend to think big too, but crucially, they remain open to their dreams and ambitions changing as they go through different stages in life. What a guy might want to achieve when he is 18 will likely be different when he reaches 30, 40 or even 50.

The mistake a lot of guys make is thinking that unless it's their ambition to find a cure for cancer or to create world peace, then they don't really have a useful purpose in life. That's missing the point. The point of having purpose in life is to give yourself purpose in your life so that you can feel a sense of achievement, happiness, and fulfilment in your life.

The something useful and the something good only needs to be relevant to you and your life, and for this reason it can be helpful to think in terms of life intentions rather than life purpose.

What's my purpose in life? can be too big a question, but, What's my intention in life? can be a little easier to get your head around in the beginning.

Look at it this way; a guy might write down on a piece of paper, my life purpose is and then find he can't think of anything to write to fill in the blanks. But, if he writes down, my life intentions are, he can probably start filling in the blanks without agonising over it too much at all. For example, he might write...

- To find love, and to love and be loved.
- To be liked, and to be a good friend.
- To be happy, and to make other people happy.
- To be the best I can be in whatever I choose to do.

If youâ€™re not feeling fulfilled by your life as it is, it must be your intention to change your life for the better.

If youâ€™ve yet to find love, it must be your intention to make the changes needed to help you find love.

If youâ€™ve yet to find happiness, it must be your intention to make the changes needed to help you find happiness.

If you donâ€™t feel youâ€™re achieving your true potential in life, it must be your intention to change what youâ€™re doing or how youâ€™re doing it to help you achieve more.

The intention is all important because without it, nothing can change and your life will stay exactly as it is.

Be Your Best Self

When itâ€™s your intention to change yourself and your life for the better, youâ€™re a man of purpose, and when youâ€™re a man of purpose, youâ€™re a man who is taking control of where he is going in life and youâ€™re a man that women find very attractive as a result.

Women are attracted to men who have self-confidence and a genuine belief in themselves and their ability to achieve what they want in life.

Confidence is an attractive trait in a man but confidence and arrogance are not one and the same. Women are instinctively attracted to men who know who they are; men with quiet confidence, and men who know what they stand for in life.

They are not attracted to arrogant â€œchest-beatingâ€ displays of confidence, theyâ€™re attracted to men who have the strength of character to stand by what they believe in and what they value most in life.

Itâ€™s having an understanding of whatâ€™s most important to you in life and knowing what you really believe in and value most that allows you to understand your life purpose. A man with purpose is a man who has established a core set of principles by which he will live his life.

When a man has principles, he has what it takes to face lifeâ€™s challenges head on because he has his own set of beliefs on whatâ€™s really important to him in his life, as well as whatâ€™s right and wrong, on which to base the decisions he makes and actions he takes.

This makes him a man who will always be true to himself and therefore a man that others â€œmen and womenâ€ can trust and rely on. It also makes him a man who has what it takes to naturally lead the way in a relationship and offer a woman the protection and security she instinctively craves in a relationship.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I'm Too Nice to Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

At The Modern Man, we've literally lost count of the number of times that we've encountered guys who've said something like, â€œIâ€™m too nice to women and they treat me like crap! Why does this happen?â€

So, why does it happen? Why do women treat nice guys so badly? Why can't women see that the nice guy has good intentions and would treat her way better than the bad boy, jerk or asshole who she is sleeping with?

It's simple and it all comes back to making a woman feel the way that she REALLY wants to feel. Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand the simple solution that will stop you getting rejected by women based on how nice you are...

Two Examples of Being Too Nice to Women

Guys get stuck in the "nice guy" persona (or act) for various reasons. Here are two examples of typical nice guys...

1. He's got a lot of female friends, but none of them want to have sex with him.

This type of guy has many beautiful women friends and acquaintances and gets along with them really well. At times, it's almost like he's "one of the girls" because he can gossip with them, go shopping with them and talk on the phone for hours.

He is polite, sweet, generous and caring; a real nice guy. He listens to all their problems and he often offers them a shoulder to cry on when they are feeling down or having guy troubles. This "nice guy" is always available if a woman calls, and when she needs something he's definitely the guy she calls to her rescue.

With all of this attention and all the time spent together it's difficult to imagine that this woman isn't interested in him, and yet, when it comes to dating, she will always go out with the "bad boys" or guys that he perceives to be confident jerks or assholes.

No matter how great of a friendship he manages to build with a girl that he likes, he is always left feeling hurt and left out when it comes to love and sex.

2. He's nice, but women still don't want to be his friend or have sex with him.

Another type of nice guy is the one who doesn't even get as far as being the "good friend."

He is the guy who walks into a bar, a club, the mall, the gym, or wherever, sees a beautiful woman and decides to approach her. He walks up to her in a submissive way and tries to start a conversation.

Again he's polite, sweet and overly nice; he puts this woman (and all the women he approaches) on a pedestal and she in turn treats him like crap! She shoots him down, behaves in a stuck up or even rude way, or she simply ignores him. This guy slinks away feeling bruised and wondering what he did wrong; â€œI was nice to her wasn't I? Why did she reject me?â€

How Women Perceive Guys Who are Too Nice

Ultimately it's all about perceptions. If you are being too nice to women, you are sending out the wrong messages. Unfortunately, the messages that you are sending out are not necessarily what you would want them to be, because women perceive guys who are too nice as being:

- Mentally and emotionally weak.
- Submissive.
- Easy to manipulate.
- A push over.
- Boring.
- Lacking in confidence.
- Easily dominated.

If you're the kind of guy who's going around saying "I'm too nice to women," then one of the most important things that you need to come to terms with is this..

Women don't want you to be that nice to them. Women want to meet a good guy, but they don't want an ass-kissing wimp who they can manipulate. If women could get what they really want in a guy, it would be a good guy alpha male.

You Are Either an Alpha Male or You're Not

Men can be divided into 2 categories; they are either:

1. Alpha males, or;
2. Lower ranking males.

The differences between alpha males and lower ranking males are huge; and these differences are what guarantee that the alphas get all the girls.

Alpha males are strong (not in muscle strength but mentally and emotionally), confident, dominant and self assured. They know how to confidently approach a woman, how to flirt with her and how to make her feel attraction for them.

Lower ranking males are mentally and emotionally weak, submissive and lack confidence; they put women above themselves in terms of dominance.

Why Women are Attracted to Alpha Males

Women are attracted to alpha males for many reasons but it all mostly boils down to instinct. Women instinctively pick the worthiest male in the pack because he:

- Makes her feel safe.
- Is capable of protecting her and her (potential) offspring.
- Is going somewhere in his life.
- Is interesting and fun to be with.
- Makes her feel good about herself.

- Makes her feel like a real woman.

Why Women are NOT Attracted to Nice Guys

Just as women find alpha males irresistible, so too do they find lower ranking males (nice guys) totally undesirable.

As the common expression denotes "nice guys finish last" and this is because they are usually behaving in some or all of the following ways:

1. Lacks self confidence.

A guy who lacks self confidence tends to behave in a nervous and uptight way, and let's be honest here, nervousness does not inspire confidence.

2. Has low self esteem.

No woman wants to be with a guy who constantly puts himself down and whose ego constantly needs propping up. Ultimately, if he feels that he's not good enough for her then why would she waste her time with him. No woman wants to feel like she's doing a guy a favor by dating him.

3. Is a bad conversationalist.

A guy who is too nice usually struggles to make interesting conversation because he's too worried that he's going to say something inappropriate that might offend her. Sticking to polite (boring) conversation is the quickest way to lose a woman's interest.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand some of the classic mistakes that guys make during a conversation with a woman and what you need to do instead...

4. Doesn't know how to flirt.

Flirting is one of the most important aspects of the human mating ritual. Sex begins with simple flirting and nice guys are just "too nice" to flirt, so they are never able to make it past the 1st level of interaction with a woman.

5. Waits to be chosen by the woman.

Nice guys don't want to come across as being pushy so they wait (in vain) for the woman to make a move on them. A woman perceives this as lack of success because he is obviously not a go-getter when it comes to women, so it must mean that he's not a go-getter in his life either.

6. Has no idea how to use body language to get the girl.

Body language is a vital component of attraction between a man and a woman. The body tells the other person things that you wouldn't ordinarily say.

Nice guys don't know how to use body language when they interact with women; something as simple as touching her hand or placing a hand on her knee or her shoulder can become so uncomfortable that she begins to feel tense and turned off.

7. Doesn't know how to make her feel like a real woman.

Part of feeling attraction for a man is feeling sexy and seductive in his presence. If a man cannot make a woman feel like a real woman she begins to feel like she's the one in control and that isn't very sexy, or a turn on for her. If there is no spice, there is not attraction.

No More â€œMr Nice Guyâ€œ

Isn't it time you re-evaluated your approach to women? Do you really want to go around for the rest of your life saying â€œI'm too nice to womenâ€œ and never getting the love, respect, sex and affection that you truly deserve from women?

Click around The Modern Man site and you will discover how to unleash the alpha male power with you. Prepare to say goodbye to lonely Mr Mice Guy and instead begin saying, â€œHello ladies...â€œ to the many women who will now be feeling attracted to you and wanting to be with you sexually...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Turn Offs For Women: What Every Guy Needs to Know

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Women are fairly easy to attract and turn on.

Essentially, it all comes down to your personality and how that makes a woman feel. You will either be the sort of guy who naturally triggers feelings of love, respect and attraction inside of a woman, or you won't.

Some guys are okay at attracting women, some guys are great at it and some guys are excellent at it. How about you? Do you have the skill of being able to trigger feelings of attraction inside of a woman when you interact with her, or could you be unknowingly turning a lot of women off?

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use that to your advantage to turn women on...

Turn Offs For Women

While it is easy to turn women on, it's also easy to turn women off.

Women are mostly attracted and turned on by how a guy's behavior, thinking, actions, vibe, body language and personality makes her feel. It's a bit more complicated than the easy way that men feel attracted to women, which is mostly based on the woman's looks.

[image: Turn offs for women]

A guy might be good looking, but if he makes the following classic mistakes, the woman will feel turned off by him...

1. Being too nice

This seems to go against everything you might have been told about dating by your father or someone else from an older generation, but being too nice is one of the most common turn offs for women.

If you're a "nice guy" this doesn't seem to make any sense because surely if you like a girl, you need to "treat her nice" to make sure she likes you back, right? Well, yes and no. There's absolutely nothing wrong with being a nice guy, but in a woman's eyes, there's a fine line between being "nice" and being weak or wimpy.

It's being on the wrong side of that line that causes a guy to think that "nice guys finish last" or that women really do prefer "bad boys" but that's not actually the case. Women want a "good guy" but they want him to be a strong good guy, and that's where a lot of nice guys go wrong.

Women want a man with strong alpha male characteristics. This makes him a man with genuine self-confidence and a relaxed ability to lead the way in a relationship. When a guy is being too nice, he hesitates over taking the lead and he turns everything into a joint decision.

You might think it's "treating her nice" to ask her where she'd like to go on a date or which kind of restaurant she'd like to eat at, for example, but if you don't take the lead and show her that you're confident in your ability to lead the way and to show her a good time, you're not showing yourself to be a strong good guy.

Women are turned on by men who have what it takes to make them feel feminine, so putting them in a position of â€œtaking chargeâ€ or having to be a part of every decision turns them right off.

As Dan Bacon (the founder of The Modern Man) explains in this video, there is nothing wrong with being a nice guy or a good guy, but you also have to make sure that you make women feel sexually attracted to you. It's just not enough to be "nice" and here is why...

2. Trying too hard

[image: Trying too hard to be liked]

Following on from the above, being too nice can often lead into trying too hard.

In desperation to be liked, a guy can slip into behaving in a way that actually turns women right off because contrary to what a lot of movie scripts might have you believe, women don't like to be put on a pedestal and they're not turned on by a guy throwing himself at her feet.

For example: A nice guy who is trying too hard to be liked might turn up for a first date with a bunch of flowers. This seems to be considered a wonderfully romantic gesture in the movies and women love it, but in the real world, it's another one of those real turn offs for women! Why?

Well, it's really because she doesn't want to be given gifts for no reason. She might love flowers, but she's not going to see it as a romantic gesture on a first date, in fact, she's going to see it as a sign of desperation. She's left thinking that he's a guy with so little confidence in himself that he has to present her with gifts to disguise his insecurities.

Guys with genuine self-confidence don't have to try hard to be liked, they just are liked because they're guys who know who they are and know what they're about in life.

They're comfortable just being themselves and women are turned on by guys who have a relaxed self-assurance about them because they're guys who are not trying to be anything other than themselves â€ even when that means not going along with the popular opinion or not agreeing with what everyone else says.

Being genuine is a real turn on for women because when they sense they're in the company of a real man, they feel able to relax into being who they really are â€ and that's a real woman.

As Dan Bacon explains in this video, women are more turned on by a guy who offers her a bit of a challenge, rather than being like the 99% of guys in this world who would have sex with her simply based on her appearance, without her having to do anything special to impress them...

Avoiding the Turn Offs

Avoiding the things that turn women off is simply about learning more about what women really want.

Don't listen to what women SAY that they want though. As you would have noticed, women will go around saying that they want a "nice" guy, but then end up dating, getting into relationships with and even marrying guys who don't seem to be very nice.

Here's a great video by Dan Bacon, which explains 3 things that turn attractive women off when they interact with a single guy...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What Attracts Women to Men?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

What attracts women to men is not what most guys think it is.

If you asked a random group of guys what women are most attracted to in men, they would almost all list of things like: Looks, money, power, muscles, big dick, expensive car, fame, etc.

Here's the thing though...

While all those things CAN attract women, they are not the only ways to attract women. As a man, you can attract women in so many ways other than looks, money, etc. For example: You can attract women with your confidence, charisma, charm, humor, flirting, conversation, body language, masculine vibe, etc.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use it to make women want you...

Been Brainwashed by the Media Lately?

Many of the guys who ask The Modern Man for advice on what attracts women to men have already fallen into the trap of believing what they see in movies and what they read in glossy men's magazines.

For example: In the movies, a sexy woman might have sex with a shy, awkward guy who struggled to make any kind of conversation with her because he was so intimidated by her. Yet, have you ever seen that happen in real life?

In glossy magazines, the page after page of adverts for designer clothing, designer colognes, hair and skin products for men, cosmetics for men, bling for men, and celebrity endorsed wear-this-eat-this-drive-this-drink-this-and-be-irresistible-to-women products of every description are enough to make a guy think that if he doesn't look like a male model, then he's got no hope of attracting women.

Yet, in real life, do you only ever see movie star type guys with girlfriends?

No!

Think about it for a minute, what you see on the big screen and in the pages of magazines is not what you see in the real world, right. What attracts women to men in Hollywood blockbusters or in TV and magazine ads is not always a fair representation of what attracts women to men in the real world, if ever.

Women are not turned on by shy, awkward guys, and they're not irresistibly attracted to a guy's deodorant either! Women are attracted to who a guy is, not what he is in terms of how he looks, what he wears, or what car he drives.

So Who Are Women Attracted To?

In a nutshell, women are attracted to guys who are confident, masculine, and socially intelligent, so let's take a look at what that actually means.

1. Confidence

Women are attracted to men with self-confidence, but it has to be genuine confidence. You see, a lot of guys think that putting on a confident act by being loud or behaving outrageously makes women notice them, but women are experts at reading body language and they know when a guy is faking it. If a guy approaches her with a cheesy pick-up line and a "confident" attitude, she's going to put him to the test: she's going to test him out to see whether he's the guy he says he is or whether he's hiding behind a fake front.

If you're a guy who is trying to hide his insecurities behind a confident "act" or you're pretending to be something you're not, she's going to see right through you.

Genuine self-confidence can't be faked and women sense it in a man. Genuinely confident guys don't need to "make a noise" about who they are in an effort to draw attention to themselves, they get attention simply through being who they are.

Genuine confidence shows in the way a guy handles himself and other people, and in the way he's able to handle any situation he finds himself in. He's a guy who knows how to approach a woman the right way, and he has what it takes to "pass" any test she puts him through.

2. Masculinity

A guy with genuine self-confidence is a guy who gets a woman's attention, and a guy with true masculine qualities along with confidence is a guy who quite literally makes her feel weak at the knees.

Like confidence, you can't fake true masculinity, but a lot of guys make the mistake of thinking that their loud, over the top chest-beating type of behaviour makes them more masculine and therefore more attractive.

It doesn't! It's nothing to do with the size of a guy's muscles either, in fact, true masculinity is an inner quality that a truly masculine man doesn't have to shout about at all. Women instinctively recognise it in a man because it's a quality that triggers a deep sexual attraction, and they feel powerless to resist it.

Genuine confidence and true masculinity are qualities that mark a man out as an alpha male, and alpha male power is ultimately what attracts women to men.

3. Socially Intelligent

Socially intelligent guys are essentially likeable guys who know how to socialise and have fun with other people. With social intelligence, a guy can make relaxed, friendly conversation with everyone he meets and he can "get on a level" with them so that everyone feels comfortable around him.

This makes him a guy who makes friends easily and women are attracted to men with social skills. A confident guy who has the respect of other confident guys is a guy who stands out as the real deal; a genuine guy, and women are turned on by his genuine likeability factor.

Social intelligence is not trying to prove your superior academic intelligence or your superior knowledge of any sort to others, and it's not about trying to make it all about you.

Guys with social intelligence are charismatic guys with great conversation skills, meaning they know how to make everyone feel involved in a conversation and how to make everyone around them feel good in his company.

When you put all three of the above elements together, you have a guy with confidence, masculinity and social intelligence...and women know that guys like that are really hard to find. If a guy possesses those three qualities, he will either already be in a relationship, be dating multiple women at once or be very picky about which women get to have a chance with him.

Women dream of meeting an awesome guy like that who is a challenge to acquire, rather than accepting a guy who lacks those qualities and is super easy to seduce. Watch this video by Dan Bacon to understand why...

Do You Know How to Trigger a Woman's Feelings of Attraction For You?

You don't have to be a good looking, rich, tall, celebrity, sports car driving guy to get yourself a hot girlfriend or wife.

Most women (not all) have what we call an Open Type, which means that they are open to being with all different types of guys, as long as the guy can make her feel enough attraction for reasons other than looks, money, fame, etc.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon to understand more about how a woman's attraction works and why it's so important for a man to master the skill of being able to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Talk to a Woman in an Elevator

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to talk to a woman in an elevator, the main thing that you need to do is make her feel relaxed and comfortable in your presence.

A woman will feel relaxed and comfortable when talking to you if she can see that you are relaxed and comfortable. You can let her see that by talking to her in a relaxed, confident and easy going way.

Watch these two videos by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) for ideas on what to talk about and what to avoid...

That Hot Girl in Your Apartment Building

[image: That hot girl in your apartment building]

A classic movie scenario is the guy who lives in the same apartment building as a really beautiful woman.

Every day on his way to and from work he bumps into her in the elevator. However, he never plucks up the courage to talk to her because he doesn't know how to talk to a woman in an elevator. Although this is something that can be seen in a movie, it is also often the case in real life.

There are many guys who waste a perfect opportunity of talking to a woman in an elevator because they simply don't know how.

Elevators are the ideal environment to talk to and approach women; they are closed and intimate and you have the woman's rapt attention until one of you reaches your destination. But, although elevators are a great place to talk to a woman, it is also easy to come across as being really creepy and make her want to run for her life.

Another thing to consider when you talk to a woman in an elevator, is that the two of you are seldom alone, so you will have to be at ease approaching her in front of others. This closed environment, although great if only the two of you are in the elevator, when there are others present, can get her to be shy and unresponsive.

This is why your approach should be completely different to the way that you would approach her if she was in a bar or nightclub. If you use a "bar" approach on her in front of others in the elevator, it will cause her to become uncomfortable and react in a negative way.

If, however, your approach is natural, relaxing and puts her at ease, you can easily work on creating attraction between you. However, before you find out the right way to talk to a woman in an elevator, it is essential that you avoid making the common mistakes that guys make when they approach and talk to a woman in an elevator.

Mistakes That Guys Make When They Approach a Woman in an Elevator

Elevators are small and time is limited. Guys often forget this and behave in ways that cause the woman to feel anxious or threatened.

1. They behave in a nervous and anxious manner.

Women are seduced by, and attracted to, confident men, so when a guy is nervous and tense in his approach to a woman in an elevator instead of being relaxed and easy-going, it will only serve to put her on edge and make her want to get out of the elevator fast.

When he is easy going and relaxed, she will enjoy the interaction and will be comfortable enough to open up to him. Women are attracted to confident men with high self esteem and nervous or anxious behavior does not engender confidence.

When a guy is stuttering and stammering in front of the people she sees regularly, including neighbors or work colleagues, this approach will make her uncomfortable and she will rebuff him.

2. They misinterpret her response.

When a woman is approached in an elevator, which normally has other people in it, she will usually give the minimal response. This can cause the guy to think that her lack of conversation contribution is that she doesn't like him; but it's usually because she's feeling nervous.

There is a well known and unspoken rule that when people are in an elevator together they should not speak, but if they have to then they should speak in very hushed tones. Taking this into consideration a guy should not assume that her reserved response to him is because she's not interested.

Misinterpreting her response can prove to be the difference between getting her to agree to have coffee with him and blowing his opportunity.

3. They lack conversation skills.

A guy's conversation skills play a big part in his approach, and if he lacks the ability to converse and draw her out in conversation, then his approach will fail.

If he, for example, asks her too many questions about herself without revealing much about himself he can come across as being a stalker. This will make her feel tense and even a little threatened.

The elevator is not the ideal place for twenty questions and a guy's main goal is to get her to relax and open up to him as quickly as possible without making her feel uncomfortable.

4. They make her feel embarrassed in front of others.

Being picked up in front of other people is not an ideal situation for any woman. If a guy comes on too strong and behaves like his only aim is to "pick her up", he will make her feel embarrassed and want to get out of the elevator as fast as possible.

Not only is she in public and in close proximity to others, but they are usually also her neighbors or work colleagues and she will be reluctant to be in a situation that makes her feel uncomfortable in front of them. Putting her on the spot in front of others is definitely not how to talk to a woman in an elevator.

5. They fail to create any feelings of attraction.

Although the guy should do his best not to embarrass her, he does, at the same time, have to create attraction between them. If he doesn't use flirtation and seductive body language, however subtle, she will assume that he is just another overly friendly guy and she will either ignore him or assume that he wants to be her friend.

Using friendship as a way to get her to open up to him is not a good idea because it will backfire when he wants to take their relationship from "friendship" to sex. This is why creating attraction between them is the most important part of his approach and he should strive to create attraction between them from the first minute that they interact.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Do Women Like to Be Controlled?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Apart from the small percentage of women who like to be controlled and dominated all the time (i.e. in a master and slave type of relationship), the majority of women don't.

Most women want to be relax into the masculine direction of a man, while also feeling like they are free to do whatever they want. They want a man who can lead the way and guide both himself and her to a better life, as long as he is doing out of love, rather than insecurity.

Some men control a woman because they are insecure about losing her, while other men guide and lead a woman because they love her and want her to be happier, more fulfilled and to experience a better life.

A Woman's Attraction For a Man is Complex and Varied

Women are attracted to different kinds of men; sometimes the guy is tall with big muscles, other times his short with a bald head. Some guys have lots of money and fancy cars and houses, others are simple guys who rent a small apartment and drive a beat up car.

No matter what the guy's external characteristics, the one thing all of these guys have in common is their inner characteristics. They all have the qualities that attract women; they are all alpha males.

However, some guys confuse being an alpha male with being a bully. Yes, some alpha males are bad boys, jerks and bullies, but good guy alpha males also exist. A good guy alpha male (the type of guy that almost all women wish they could find) knows that women like to be treated with respect and made to feel like a real woman.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and what she really wants to experience when in a relationship...

Changing Times

In the last 50 years, women have become more independent in their roles; they can take care of themselves and do just about anything a man can do.

Yet, in evolutionary terms those 50 years are a speck of dust in the desert when you consider how long humans have been on this planet. Human relations have developed in a very specific way and it is the men who provide leadership and protection to a woman, even if she is the most powerful woman in the world.

When Margaret Thatcher was the British Prime Minister, she was the most powerful woman in the world at the time, but she stated that her husband Dennis was still the "man of the house" and this holds true for just about every powerful woman out there. How much more so for the average woman?

Evolutionary biologists will tell you that since ancient times a woman was most vulnerable when she was giving birth and that this is one of the main reasons why women have relied on men for protection.

Other reasons are that because of their lack of physical strength and hunting abilities, they had to rely on men to build shelters, provide food for them through hunting, and protect them from wild animals and other men. Although modern women can provide all of this for themselves, their instinct is still to seek a mate who is mentally and emotionally strong enough for her to lean on in difficult times.

This need for protection and leadership is why women like men who are confident, can lead and who exhibit alpha male qualities. Women like to relax into the masculine direction of a man they can rely on to be a man all the time. He must not just act like a man, he must be a man.

Women, like all social animals, are attracted to alpha males who show confidence, leadership and courage. Yet there are those women, who for some reason, due to their emotional make up, or because of some deep seated need to be dominated, need to be with controlling men.

Abused women are notorious for attracting controlling and abusive men but this is not true of all women. Unless she has a particular fetish or emotional desire, most women don't like being controlled. For most women, being controlled by a guy is a huge turn off and will cause them to want out of the relationship fast.

Why Do Some Men Want to Control Women?

[image: Insecure boyfriend]

Some men, mostly due to the childhood experiences which have shaped them and their beliefs about women, like to control women. Men who like to control women suffer from a level of insecurity. Here are some of the insecurities that guys have that cause them to wrongfully attempt to control their woman.

He lacks confidence. First and foremost in a man who likes to control his woman is a lack of confidence. This type of guy does not believe that he can get any woman he wants, so when he does get one he tries to control everything she does.

[image: Huh? Why is he texting me this insecure crap?]

He's afraid that if he lets her do whatever she wants, she will find someone else and leave him.

He believes that if he lets her be herself, dress the way she wants and to go out without him with her own friends, she will want to spend less time with him, or even worse, that she'll realize what a loser he is and find someone else better than him. At its worst this need to control her manifests itself as uncontrollable jealousy and can easily lead to mental and physical abuse.

He is mentally and emotionally weak. Where an alpha male is capable of providing mental and emotional support for a woman, the insecure guy secretly feels inferior to her and so he tries to control her so that she won't realize how weak he really is. This guy hides his weakness by chipping away at his woman's self confidence.

He fears that she will leave him. Deep down a guy who is controlling knows what he is doing and that it's wrong. He fears that if his woman sees who he really is, she will realize that she can do better than him and she will leave him. This fear is what drives him to control her and not let her out of his sight. To console himself he will insist that women like to be controlled.

He fears that she will be better than him. Because of his lack of self confidence, a man who controls a woman fears that if he helps her to flower as a person, she will be better than him and she will show him up and ultimately won't need him anymore. For this reason he tries to control everything in her life and even attempts to keep her down.

He has low self esteem. Ultimately, a woman who is in a relationship with the controlling type of guy soon realizes how little self belief he has and will move on with her life.

She will realize how insecure he is and that he actually doesn't have faith in himself and in his abilities to keep her without controlling her. She will know that he is actually mentally and emotionally weak and he needs to control her to make himself seem stronger to himself.

He lacks purpose. Although he can fake it well enough to seduce a woman, deep down this guy knows that he is not going anywhere with his life. He has no ambitions or future prospects and he fears that when she realizes this she will leave him.

A Real Man Doesn't Need to Control His Woman

Being in a healthy relationship with a woman is much more rewarding than trying to fake happiness and love by controlling her.

The secret to success in relationships with women is to deepen the love, respect and attraction over time. You have to love her fearlessly, rather than insecurely. You have to always try to be a better man for yourself, for her and for those around you, while also encouraging her to become a better woman for the same reasons.

The more you grow together as a couple, the stronger and more important your bond, connection and relationship becomes.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Have More Sex Appeal: Mistakes to Avoid

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to know how to have more sex appeal, the secret is attraction.

As a man, you can trigger a woman's feelings of attraction for you in so many different ways (e.g. confidence, masculine vibe, humor, flirting, charisma, charm, etc). The list goes on and on.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to your advantage to instantly have a lot more sex appeal to women...

If you are serious about knowing how to have more sex appeal, you need focus on developing the inner qualities that make you an irresistibly attractive man...and that means avoiding the following commonly made mistakes...

It's Not All About Looks

You only need to watch TV for half an hour to find yourself bombarded with so-called advice on how to boost your sexual appeal as a man.

Advertising campaigns tell you that you'll become irresistible to women if you wear a certain designer label, use a certain hair product, or wear a certain brand of deodorant, but common guys, you know it's all advertising hype, right?

Women in the real world aren't attracted to a guy by his looks alone, the real attraction is who a guy is on the inside and the character traits he has that make him the man he is.

Most women are more attracted to confidence, masculinity and social intelligence in a man than anything else, including looks.

In other words, women are attracted to guys who know how to approach them in the confident way that they like to be approached; how to strike up interesting conversations; how to be relaxed and fun to be around in a social setting and how to naturally escalate a conversation into sexual flirting and beyond.

Guys with those qualities have what it takes to turn a woman on and it's nothing to do with the clothes they're wearing or the way they've styled their hair.

In fact, guys who fall into the trap of believing that improving their outer appearance will improve their sex appeal run the risk of paying so much attention to the details of their 'look' that they end up coming across as gay or effeminate.

Women might love an effeminate guy as their friend and 'one of the girls' but they're not going to lust after him sexually and want him as a boyfriend. The more a guy focuses on prettying himself up, the more he comes across as a guy who is trying to hide his insecurities behind a good-looking but ultimately fake front. Insecurity of any sort is not an attractive trait in a man.

Drew's story

Drew considered himself to be an average-looking guy but he was finding it hard to get himself a girlfriend.

His insecurities about his appearance and the fact that he wasn't enjoying the success with women he wanted led to him getting sucked in by the messages he was receiving through reading glossy men's magazines in search of answers to the question of how to have more sex appeal. He devoted a huge amount of time and money to kitting himself out with a new closet full of designer gear — especially shoes — and he reinvented himself with a new hairstyle and filled his bathroom cabinet with all the latest male grooming products to help him maintain his just-stepped-off-the-front-cover-of-a-magazine look.

He felt good, and his new look appeared to be having the desired effect because he noticed that women were trying to catch his eye wherever he went. However, feeling good about his appearance had done nothing to change the shyness and anxiety he felt about approaching women, and the difficulty this caused him in terms of trying to strike up natural conversations.

He looked good and he caught the attention of women, but his lack of confidence and his inability to just relax and be himself around women meant that he didn't hold their attention for long. It didn't matter how great he looked on the outside, women still rejected him because he didn't have the inner qualities needed to turn them on.

If you want to know how to have more sex appeal, you need to know how to demonstrate the genuine self-confidence that women find extremely attractive in a man.

It's Not All About Muscles

Another common mistake guys make is thinking that building bigger muscles will boost their sex appeal. However, unless you've got the inner qualities that make you a sexually attractive man, the size of your muscles will not make a woman see you any differently.

Just as clever marketing campaigns are responsible for getting guys to buy into certain sex appeal boosting products, Hollywood movies are responsible for brainwashing guys into believing that women are only interested in muscle-bound action heroes. This is simply not the case.

You only need to take a look around you in the real world to see guys of all shapes and sizes attracting the attention of beautiful women and with girlfriends on their arms.

It's not a guy's physical appearance or physical strength that makes him sexually attractive, it's who he is on the inside and the emotional and mental strength he demonstrates in the confident, masculine way he handles himself and whatever life throws at him.

In the same way that Drew attempted to hide his insecurities behind a good-looking front, focusing all of your time and effort into changing your body shape will do nothing to change who you are as a man on the inside.

If you're not getting the results with women you want, it's not improvements to your outer appearance you need to make, but improvements to your inner self so that the changes you make allow you to become a better man and a more sexually attractive man as a result.

Boosting Your Sex Appeal

Masculine sex appeal is mostly about having the qualities that show you to be a confident, masculine man in the way you think and the way you behave around women and in life. Women are attracted to men who have the sort of masculine presence they sense when they're in his company.

A truly masculine man knows how to confidently approach a woman and how to make her feel relaxed and comfortable in his company through being relaxed and comfortable in himself.

When a man has the inner qualities that give him true sex appeal, he has what it takes to make a woman feel weak at the knees and virtually powerless to resist him and that's a feeling women love.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What it Means to Be a Man: Real World Truths

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you are trying to figure out what it means to be a man, the first thing you need to know is this...

Everyone has an opinion about what a man is and how he should think, behave and act in life. How one person defines a man will differ from how another person does.

So, who should you listen to then? Generally speaking, you should pay more attention to the opinion of men who are successful and that you admire and aspire to be like. If you listen to the opinion of unsuccessful men or worse, of random women who will usually give a politically correct answer, you may end up as a very confused, unfulfilled man.

[image: What it means to be a man]

There are so many paths that you take can in your life as a man, but you cannot take all of them. You have to decide what type of man you want to be and then follow through on that path, trying not to get distracted by the random opinions of unsuccessful men or women.

Was Your Dad a Good Role Model When You Were Growing Up?

The obvious starting point in your quest to understand what it means to be a man, is to look to your father or other male role models that you grew up with. Yet, not all fathers or male role models even know what it means to be a man either and have simply been fumbling their way through life and hoping for the best.

Even for those who've grown up in a secure family unit with a dad to look to for advice, there's no denying that the world has changed dramatically in the space of a generation and this means a lot of the advice given is too outdated to be helpful in today's world. So, the next place to look for pointers is the fictional world of TV and movies, but, as we all know, real life is not like the movies.

Times Change

[image: Dating - Sex before marriage]

A generation or two ago, being a man meant being the breadwinner in the family. Life was simpler in that sense; young men left home to "seek their fortune" or at least settle into a steady job and then they got married and started a family.

[image: Marriages around the year 1900]

If you go back to your grandfather's day, finding a wife was a fairly simple process too. People tended not to travel too far from their place of birth in those days so couples generally knew each other from school days or from their work places.

Wooing a woman meant being a gentleman and treating her like a lady, just like in the old black and white Hollywood classics, and women generally only left home to marry, entering marriage with a view to being a homemaker and having children straight away.

Fast forward to today and life is not so simple.

Modern women are much more independent and they're no longer looking for a man who can put them on a pedestal and shower them with gifts. They don't need a man to be the breadwinner, and they don't need to marry to be able to leave their family home. Modern women have their own careers and starting a family isn't necessarily a priority.

In this sense, you could say that modern women are 'stronger' women in that they hold their own in the world, and this means they're looking for a man with equal, if not more, mental and emotional strength so that they can relax into a feminine role in a relationship with a man who has what it takes to make her feel like a woman.

The TV Sitcom Man

In the 1970s and 80s, the men in TV sitcoms were generally downtrodden, henpecked characters who did whatever their girlfriends or wives wanted for a quiet life! The women were portrayed as the 'leaders' in the relationship and they pretty much decided how the men should live their lives including their sex lives.

A lot of modern sitcoms still use the same format, so a guy trying to figure out what it means to be a man today could easily be led into believing it means letting the woman in his life be 'in charge' and being grateful for the fact that he has a woman in his life at all.

This is NOT what it means to be a man in the real world.

Of course, other TV shows and movies depict men and women as being equals in every way. The men are no longer henpecked by domineering wives and girlfriends, and they are 'best friends' in a relationship.

Men are shown to be much more in touch with their feminine sides and you could say that male and female character roles pretty much blend into one and the same. In the movie world, this arrangement creates a 'happy ever after' relationship dynamic.

This is NOT how it works in the real world. A woman does not feel sexually attracted to a man she likes as a friend, it takes a man who knows how to be a real man to generate the sexual spark that keeps a relationship alive, well, and passionate.

The Bad Boys

Then there's the 'bad boy' approach to being a man...

A young man might look at high profile movie stars and sports stars as successful male role models, or listen to the lyrics of rich and famous rap artists, and be led into thinking that being a man means being 'the man' as a result. This can lead to taking the expression 'nice guys finish last' too literally and adopting an 'it's all about me' attitude to life.

This is NOT what it means to be a man in the real world.

Sure, confident guys get ahead in their careers and confident guys generally 'get the girl' but true self-confidence is NOT arrogance, and true masculinity is NOT treating women as play things.

So What Does It Mean to Be a Man?

Being a man today means being a strong, good man. It means being your own man and not just following the crowd.

It means knowing who you are and knowing what you value in life; it means setting your own standards and being prepared to stand by those standards, and it means not being afraid to walk to the beat of your own drum.

[image: What it means to be a man]

In other words, it takes genuine self-confidence and true masculinity to be a man.

Being a man that modern women see as a real man, means being a man who understands how modern women think. The world has changed but a woman is still instinctively attracted to a man who has what it takes to make her feel like a woman.

A real man is not a TV sitcom man, women are not attracted to weak, wimpy guys, and a real man is not a "metrosexual" man who blurs the line between traditional male and female roles.

Women want to feel a primal man-woman sexual attraction, and this is not something they feel around a guy who is "one of the girls."

The idea that "nice guys finish last" and that women prefer "bad boys" is fuelled by the fact that women will choose a strong, "bad boy" over a weak "nice guy," but what they really want is a strong, good guy.

[image: What it means to be a man]

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand why being too nice to a woman will often result in being rejected...

As Dan explains in the video, there's nothing wrong with being a nice guy, but you also have to be able to make a woman feel attracted to you. Niceness doesn't cause a woman to feel sexual attraction, but things like confidence, a masculine vibe, making her laugh, being a challenge, etc will.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Girl Code Rules: What Most Guys Will Never Know About Girls

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When girls are out in a group and theyâre approached by a guy or a group of guys, they naturally want to talk about it.

Thatâs what women do...they love to discuss the psychology of guys and how it makes them feel.

[image: Women discussing men in girl code]

Girls want to share their thoughts about the guys who have approached them, but they donât want the guys themselves to be in on what theyâre thinking â so they use a secret language.

You see, girls have an unwritten code that they all abide by, and itâs a code they can use to let each other know when theyâre excited about the guy who has approached them, or when theyâre really uncomfortable with a guyâs approach and they want help to get away from him.

Hereâs a great video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man), which reveals 3 things that women privately discuss about men...

Most girls abide by certain standard âgirl code rulesâ such as; never flirt with your friendâs boyfriend, donât date a friendâs ex until a certain time period has passed, donât leave a friend to make her way home alone etc.

What most guys will never know is that girls create their own secret language so that they can âtalkâ to each other about a guy when heâs right in front of them, and heâll have no idea whatâs being said about him. The secret language might include certain âcodeâ words that will have a particular meaning but most of the time itâs going to be body language that does the talking.

Unspoken Words

[image: Girl code rules]

Itâs fair to say that women are better at reading body language than men. They can pick up on tiny signals that most guys wouldnât notice at all and this is something that women use to their advantage when âtalkingâ in their secret language.

Of course, thereâs no one-size-fits-all list of code words that every group of girls will use, girls can get pretty creative in that department, but when you learn some body language basics, you begin to get a better understanding of how the women you approach are really feeling about you being there and what theyâre really thinking about you.

For example: Letâs say you approach a group of girls and they seem quite relaxed about you being there. Theyâre all happy to talk to you and you start up a conversation with one girl in particular.

Things seem to be going well because youâve got a two-way conversation going but then all of a sudden one of the other girls in the group asks the girl youâre talking to if she wants to dance and they all disappear on to the dance floor leaving you behind.

What happened? Well, while you thought you were enjoying a two-way conversation, the girl you were talking to must also have been talking to her friends in their secret language, and she asked them to rescue her from you! Does any of that sound familiar to you?

Code Breaking

When you gain a better understanding of body language and the way women use it, you give yourself a head start in the dating game. You're able to read the signs that let you know a girl is not that attracted to you and you can move on without wasting any more time.

You're also able to read the signs that let you know a girl is attracted to you and you can relax into turning on your charm and building the sexual tension.

I know, I know you might be thinking that it would be so much easier if girls just said what was on their mind, but hey, that's just how girls are and it's not your job as a guy to question their thinking, it's your job to be a guy who knows how women think because then you're a guy who is one step ahead.

Think about it, wouldn't it be great to know what's going on in a girl's mind as you approach her and get into conversation with her? Wouldn't it be great to be one step ahead on what's turning her on or turning her off so that you can effortlessly turn up the heat by creating just the right vibe in the things you say and the things you do?

That's exactly what guys who approach women confidently do. They know that women have girl code rules that they're going to use in secret but they also know that women openly use their body language to signal what's on their mind to a guy they're interested in. Confident guys know how to read those signals and women love it.

In fact for women, it's what flirting is all about. When you're a man who knows how women think, you know how to flirt in a way that lets a woman enjoy the thrill of the chase. She knows she wants you, and you know she wants you, but both of you know that if something is too easy to get, it loses its appeal.

Know What Most Guys Will Never Know

If you're a guy who feels nervous about approaching women or freezes up when talking to women you like, the whole girl code rules thing can make you feel even more anxious about everything, right?

This is all the more reason to know about body language and to know how to use it. Girl code rules are unspoken and often secret rules but you can give yourself a head start by knowing the basic rules that should be applied in every dating situation.

Simple rules such as not invading a woman's personal space as you approach her can make all the difference in terms of how she feels about you straight away.

Knowing the signs that let you know she's relaxed and comfortable in your company and the signs that let you know she's not comfortable can make the difference between getting to know a girl in conversation and getting left behind as she takes to the dance floor with her friends.

Women are attracted to confidence in a man and when youâ€”ve got a head start on knowing how women think, youâ€”ve got a head start on relaxing into just being yourself around women and letting your confident presence do the talking for you...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Dealing With a Break Up: Do You Want to Move on or Get Her Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're a guy dealing with a break up, you're probably sick and tired of people telling you it's time to pick yourself up and move on.

Maybe you think they are right, or maybe you still believe that you should try to get her back.

Whatever the case, you know that you don't want to keep feeling this way forever. Yet, when you're hurting, it's often hard to see a way out of the dark place you're in, right? You might even wonder if you're ever going to be able to fully get over her. She's always on your mind in one way or another.

[image: Dealing with a break up]

Of course, you're not the first guy to be dealing with a break up, and you won't be the last, so why is it that some guys seem to be able to pick themselves up, dust themselves off, and get back in the saddle within weeks of being heartbroken, and others find they're still not over it years down the line? The answer really comes down to a guy's mindset.

Down and Out

At The Modern Man, We often hear from guys who are really struggling to move on after being dumped.

In most cases, the biggest barrier in the way is a lack of confidence. Being dumped can really knock a guy's confidence for six and, depending on the circumstances, it can leave a guy feeling so low about himself that he doesn't want to risk getting back in the saddle for fear of being rejected all over again.

The safest option is just to stay down. Yet, of course, staying where he is isn't making him any happier and he knows he wants to find a way out of there, he just doesn't know how.

The way out of there is to regain confidence, and develop even greater self-confidence in your ability to attract new women. Do you know how to attract women when you interact with them? Are you able to enjoy your choice of women, or have you essentially gone through life hoping to "get lucky" with women who will give you a chance?

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand the importance of being able to attract women and how you can quickly develop that skill...

The One and Only

We also hear from a lot of guys who are not only dealing with a break up, they're dealing with watching the woman they believed was the one for them walk out of their lives. They don't see how it's possible to move on when their one shot at true love has gone and no other woman will ever be able to take her place.

A lot of people believe in the idea of a "soul mate" and that destiny dictates whether or not you meet "the one" for you.

There's absolutely no real world evidence to suggest that as humans we can only ever find "true love" with one person, but there's plenty of evidence to support the idea that it's possible to find love many times throughout life, with each relationship providing its own unique love experience.

The key to moving on is to remain open to experiencing a new and different love with another woman.

Dealing With It

Okay, break ups hurt, there's no denying it, but going through life feeling lonely because you're struggling to deal with a break up doesn't sound like much fun either, right?

Of course you're going to miss your girlfriend and the relationship you had, that's natural, but the way forward is to stop thinking about how much you're missing her and to begin thinking about what you're missing out on by not letting her go! You're not happy where you are, so why deny yourself the opportunity of finding happiness again by moving on from where you are?

Easier said than done, you're thinking, and you're probably saying to yourself, "I don't think I've got the confidence to approach new women." You might be right. Your confidence might have taken such a beating that you don't feel you've got the "guts" to go out and start again.

Yet, what if you could regain your confidence? What if you could develop genuine self-confidence and eliminate all self-doubt from your mind? What if you could change your mindset and learn how to use setbacks as stepping-stones to better things and never experience a fear of failure ever again?

Doesn't that sound better than sitting around licking your wounds? Too right it does, and that's exactly what The Modern Man programs can do for you. Watch this free video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to learn how to begin building up the confidence to approach women that you find attractive...

Getting Back In the Game

[image: Getting back in the game]

Well, when it comes to dealing with a break up, the quickest way to get over it and move on is to get lots of attractive women interested in you and begin having sex with them.

Now, if your confidence is at rock bottom, you're going to find it hard to imagine yourself in that position, but being in that very position is just a matter of taking action to regain your confidence and develop even greater self-confidence - you know what you need to do.

If you're struggling to imagine yourself in that position because you're holding on to the idea that your ex was "the one" for you, it's time to change the way you think.

The good memories you have of the relationship you had might make you think that you'll never find that kind of love again, and maybe you're right, but that doesn't mean you can't find a whole new different kind of love with a new woman in a new relationship. One thing is for sure, if you don't make yourself available to new women, you're never going to know.

When you learn to think like an alpha male, you learn to think like a man who knows he has his pick of women.

You become a man with genuine confidence; a man who knows how to approach women confidently, how to flirt and make conversation confidently, and how to escalate a conversation into a kiss, a phone number, a date, and sex. You become a man that women feel instinctively attracted to, in fact, they find you hard to resist.

They want to get your attention and they're prepared to work hard at doing whatever it takes to get it. Doesn't that sound better than sitting around licking your wounds? Too right it does, and that's exactly what the guys who pick themselves up, dust themselves down, and get back in the saddle within weeks do.

So, the choice is now yours. Do you want to get her back or do you want to attract and pick up new women to get over your ex?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Talk to a Girl on the Phone: Dos and Don'ts

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Imagine this...

You've got a hot girl's phone number and you're about to press "call" on your phone to talk to her. You're really excited about talking to her but you're feeling nervous too because you like her and you want to make a good impression â does this sound familiar to you?

Talking on the phone is something most of us do on a daily basis without giving it a second thought, and there's something about not being face-to-face with the person on the other end of the line that often makes it easier to say things on the phone that you might not say in person, right? So why is it that making a simple phone call suddenly feels like a big deal?

If you want to know how to talk to a girl on the phone, you're probably looking for advice on what to say, how to say it, and how to make sure she's looking forward to you calling again.

You could also be looking for tips on how to make sure a phone call leads to more â maybe a date, maybe a relationship? The phone call suddenly is a big deal because you're worried that if you don't get it right, you might blow your chances of talking to her again, right?

The simple answer to the question of how to talk to a girl on the phone is just be yourself, while also focussing on making her feel attracted to you. If you're feeling nervous, you're probably worried it can lead to being overly formal and overly cautious in your approach, which will turn the girl off.

It can also go the other way and lead to you trying a bit too hard to disguise your anxiety to the point where you end up sounding a little over the top. So what's the answer? The answer is to be confident in who you are; know who you are as a man and feel comfortable just being that man.

[image: How to talk to a girl on the phone]

When you have genuine self-confidence, you never feel anxious about talking to people, whether it's face-to-face or on the phone, and you're never fearful of not creating a good impression because you know that you're the real deal and people are going to pick up on that vibe when they talk to you.

Before we get into the Dos and Don'ts, you might want to watch this eye-opening video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to quickly understand where a lot of guys go wrong with conversation and what Dan recommends you to do instead...

Dos and Don'ts

Here are some dos and don'ts to consider before you make that call...

Don't...write up a list of things to say

Okay, you're worried about not saying the right thing; you're worried that you'll run out of things to say, or you're worried that if you don't have a list of things to talk about in front of you, you might forget to say something important. Stop! Don't go there.

In fact, rip up the list and bin it! Normal conversations don't have scripts so phone calls should not be scripted either!

Do...talk naturally

All you need to be is yourself. Normal conversations aren't structured, the topic of conversation bounces around depending on the responses and reactions of the speakers, right? Your phone conversation needs to be just as natural and free-flowing.

[image: How to talk to a girl on the phone]

It's not just about what you say, it's about what she says, so you need to be listening and responding, not scoring off a list of things to say from your list without paying any attention to what's being said!

If you listen to her responses, you're going to find plenty of opportunities to expand on her input and a really interesting conversation that's relevant to both of you will naturally evolve from there.

Don't...try to be someone you're not

This follows on from the above in that trying to script the conversation can lead to trying to follow a format that shows all of your personality.

For example: If you're worried that the things you normally talk about in your daily life might actually be a bit boring, you might slip a joke into the conversation in an effort to show your fun side and your sense of humour.

If it's a joke you've just read off a web page and it's not actually anything to do with the real you, it's probably not going to sit right in the conversation and she's going to sense that you could actually be a fake. Nobody likes a faker. If she's not sure whether or not she can believe anything you're saying, why should she believe in you as a person?

Do...be yourself

Yes, it all comes back to being your true self. Don't forget that conversation skills include listening as well as talking. It doesn't matter whether you think your daily life is boring, all that matters is how she responds to your conversation openers and how the conversation naturally flows as two people add their own thoughts and opinions to the mix.

[image: How to talk to a girl on the phone]

When you call a girl, it's not all about you so take the pressure off and talk about her too! The natural flow of the conversation will allow each aspect of your personality to shine through when it's appropriate without trying to force it.

Don't...try too hard to be liked

Trying to show every aspect of your personality in one conversation can lead to coming across as a fake, and trying too hard to say what you think she wants to hear can have the same effect.

In an effort to be liked, it's all too easy to slip into agreeing with everything she says and being into all the same things - same music, same bands, same kinds of food etc. - but if it's not the real you, you're on a slippery slope to becoming insincere, and she's not going to be turned on by the idea that you don't actually have a mind of your own.

In fact, your desperation to be liked by her will make her question whether you've got anything else going on in your life.

Do...remain true to yourself

When you are a man who knows his own mind and you are not afraid to stand by who you are and what you stand for in life, you are an attractive man. Always remain true to yourself, even if it means not going along with her opinion on something, because that way she knows that you are a man who has what it takes to lead the way in life and she's going to be turned on by that.

Don't...talk for hours

Trying too hard to be liked can also mean you end up talking for hours when you call her and that you are always available to take her calls whenever she wants to talk. This might seem like the right thing to do because being there for her is going to make her like you, right? Wrong. You want her to like you as a potential boyfriend, not a friend. Being at her beck and call does not make her feel sexually attracted to you, it makes her feel like you are a friend she can call on whenever her latest boyfriend has upset her in some way.

The bottom line is that women love the thrill of the chase. The more she has to work at getting your attention, and the more she has to work at getting you to find time to call her, the more attractive you are because you are a man who is in demand and she wants to win you all to herself.

Do...take action to do more than just talk

Being a bit of a challenge for a woman is great, but if you play too hard to get it can backfire.

A woman loves the chase and she loves the sexual tension that builds as she works at getting your attention, but if you don't take action to move on from talking when she wants you to, she might begin lose interest and hook up with another guy instead...often, just to make you jealous and see how you will react.

You need to be the man so that she can be the woman. When you know how to flirt on the phone and you know how to escalate a conversation into going on a date, kissing her, and naturally leading the way into sex and on into a relationship, you are a man that she wants NOW.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Make a Woman Want You: Give Her What She Really Wants

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret to making a woman want you is to trigger her feelings of sexual attraction.

If a woman feels sexually attracted to you, she will be interested in you in a sexual way. If you then know how to create a unique connection between you and her, she will become interested in you in a romantic way and will feel the desire to be your girlfriend.

Do you know how to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction? Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to find out...

When you are able to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction, you won't ever be wondering how to make a woman want you because most of the single women you meet will want you. Being able to attract women is one of the easiest, most rewarding skills that a guy can have in life.

There's a Woman That I Like...

[image: There's a woman that I like]

Guys often contact The Modern Man to ask for advice on how to get a woman they like to notice them, or how to figure out whether she is interested.

In most cases, it's about a woman at their place of work, or some other place they go regularly, that they've had a crush on for a while and want to know how to get her attention. Usually, they're unsure of whether she's even noticed them at all, or they're unsure about the way she acts around them and want to know whether it might mean she likes them back.

Sometimes, guys explain that the woman they like seems to think of them as a friend, and they want to know how to change that so that she sees them as a potential boyfriend. If this resonates with you, and you want to know how to make a woman want you, you need to begin by gaining an understanding of what it is that women want in a man.

Why Would She Want to Be With You?

[image: Why should she want to be with you?]

A lot of guys make the mistake of thinking that because they are a good guy with good intentions, the woman should then be interested. After all, women say that they want a "nice" guy who will respect them, right?

Well, not quite.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to understand why being nice to a woman isn't enough to make her want to begin a sexual relationship...

Guys often say things like, "I don't have Hollywood good looks," or, "I'm not tall and muscular," and they ask, "Why would a beautiful woman even give a guy like me a chance to be with her?"

Yet, that type of negative thinking and making up of excuses is never going to help. To begin with, most women are not attracted to a man by his looks alone; attraction goes way beyond superficial appearances.

Apart from the small percentage of women who will only accept a perfect looking guy, the whole "tall-dark-handsome-muscular-sports car-driving-sex god" idea is simply a fantasy, much like how men fantasise about certain qualities in women.

In the real world, most women (not all) are attracted to guys of every height, body shape and hair colour and, yes, even guys who don't own any kind of car! Take a look around you and you'll see plenty of ordinary, average-looking guys with beautiful girlfriends; so what's their secret?

If you're being really negative, you'll think their secret is something to do with having a huge bank balance or an enormous penis, but nothing could be further from the truth.

The longer you sit around focussing on negatives and using them as reasons not to approach beautiful women because it's a foregone conclusion that she'd reject you anyway the more likely it is that women will not give you a second glance. Your thoughts are effectively self-fulfilling prophecies.

If you want to be a man that women want, you need to change the way you think.

Making Her Want You

Here's another great video by Dan Bacon, which explains the real secret to making a woman want you, regardless of your looks, height, financial status or status in society...

Women are attracted to "strong" men, but that doesn't necessarily mean the weightlifting kind of strong. The strength that most women (not all) look for in a man is inner strength and strength of character.

Women are instinctively attracted to men with alpha male characteristics. In other words, men are able to take on the challenges of life with an unrelenting confidence and self-belief.

Alpha males are not fearless superheroes, they are just ordinary guys who have the mental and emotional strength within themselves to be dependable, reliable, and true to themselves no matter what life throws at them.

When a woman senses that she's in the presence of such a man, she feels a deep, almost primal, sexual attraction, and she not only knows that she wants him, she feels powerless to resist him.

Wouldn't you like to be that man? Of course you would, and here's the thing, you are that man. You simply haven't yet been taught how to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman based on what you say and do around them.

If you want to make a woman want you, it comes back to your ability to make her feel attracted.

Offer Her a Challenge and She Will Pay Attention

Have you ever wondered what it's like to be an attractive woman?

[image: Sexual selection based on a woman's looks]

Simply based on her appearance, most guys would be willing to have sex with her. If she wants to get laid or get herself a boyfriend, all she has to do is say “Yes” to the millions of guys who would instantly be willing to have sex with her simply based on their attraction to her looks.

Most guys don’t ever take the time to understand the difference between a woman’s dating life compared to a man’s. They know that women can get laid easily, but they don’t take the time to understand why.

The real reason why is that we men are mostly attracted to the physical appearance of women, whereas women are mostly attracted to how a guy’s personality makes them feel. This is why getting laid for women is instant based on their looks, but we men need to actively attract women with our personality, behavior, conversation style, etc.

Once you understand how to attract women during an interaction, you will realize that getting laid or getting a girlfriend is just as easy for you as it is for a woman to get laid or get a boyfriend.

You simply activate a woman’s feelings of attraction for you and then, if you’re wise, you will make her feel like she has to work to impress you and hope to get a chance with you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Need a Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

How long has it been since you last had sex with a very attractive woman?

Do you remember what it felt like to see her looking you in the eyes as she hugged you warmly and loved being in your presence?

As a man, there's only so long that you can go without a woman before you start to feel like your life is out of balance. Women bring a unique experience into a moment with their beauty, femininity, scent, attitude and energy.

[image: The pleasure of being with a woman]

There's nothing quite like having a beautiful woman in your arms, who turns to you and says, "I love you" and really means it. She wants to be there with you more than anything else in the world. Likewise, there's also nothing quite like sliding into a woman's wet opening and hearing her moan with pleasure.

Go long enough without that and you eventually say, "I've had enough of empty masturbation and lonely nights. I need a woman!"

Getting a Woman Begins With Understanding How to Attract Women

[image: I need a woman]

If you don't know how to attract women when you interact with them, most of the women you meet aren't going to be interested in anything other than a quick conversation. However, when you know how to trigger feelings of intense sexual attraction inside of a woman, most of the women that you meet will be interested in you in a sexual and romantic way.

So, it begs the question: Do you know how to attract women when you interact with them? Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) to find out...

Do You Need a Woman For Love or Sex?

Back in 1943, psychologist Abraham Maslow published a theory of the most basic needs of mankind. Known as Maslow's Hierarchy of Needs, it's a well-known theory that's built around Maslow's opinion that all human beings are born with an innate desire to self-actualize his term for an individual realising their full potential in life.

It's his belief that a man (or woman) can only self-actualize when certain basic needs are being met in life, and the most fundamental of those needs are air, food, water, sleep and sex.

This means that no matter what else a man has going on in his life a great career, plenty of hobbies and interests, cool friends and loving parents or siblings the lack of intimate love and sex leaves him feeling that his life is out of balance; something fundamentally important is missing.

Filling the Void

If you've reached the point of saying, âI need a woman, chances are you've reached a point in your life where you've realised that nothing else can fill the void.

It might be that up until this point you've been focusing on advancing your career, and because your work has been taking up most of your time and energy, you've managed to convince yourself that not having a woman in your life is no big deal because your career is your first priority anyway.

It may also be that up until now you've focused a lot of energy into pursuing hobbies and non-work related interests as a way of filling in your time, and you've convinced yourself that you're happy just âdoing your own thing and you don't really have time in your life for a woman anyway.

But, things have now changed for you.

You've realised that channelling your energy into work or hobbies is not filling the void you feel and you've actually been avoiding the growing sense of incompleteness you have by convincing yourself otherwise.

Meeting Your Needs

So, if you've reached the point of recognising that you need a woman, why don't you have one?

Look at it this way, if you need food, you go get some; if you need sleep, you get some, so if you know you need a woman, why don't you just go get one? Okay, you're going to tell me it's not that simple, right?

In that case, what you're really saying is not, âI need a woman. Instead, you are probably saying, âI need a woman and I can't get one or I don't know how to get one.

[image: What have you tried in your attempts to get yourself a woman?]

In fact, chances are you're reading this article because you've tried to get a woman and you've failed. So, what have you tried?

Maybe you've tried going out with a group of male friends, all intent on finding you a woman, but you've struggled to find the confidence to approach the women you like.

Maybe you've tried approaching women with the pick-up lines your well-meaning friends suggested as âguaranteed winners only to be rejected, or maybe your conversation skills let you down and you failed to keep a woman's interest.

Quite possibly, you haven't even tried to go out and meet women face-to-face and have chosen to âchat to women on-line (who are getting hit on by 100s, if not 1000s of guys per week) instead. Either way, your efforts have not helped you to meet your need for a woman, so what are you going to try now?

If you're open to the idea of approaching women in person, make sure that you watch this confidence-building video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man)...

Don't Sell Yourself Short

People who reach their full potential in life are the people who take action to ensure their every basic need is met. They do this by being "go getters" and by being proactive in all areas of their life.

People who "self-actualize" share certain character traits, not least a willingness to look for solutions to problems rather than allow problems to hold them back and prevent them from getting what they want out of life.

A man who gets what he needs in life, including women, is a man who knows who he is and knows what he wants, but not only that, he also accepts himself as the man he is because he believes in himself and in his potential to succeed.

"The story of the human race is the story of men and women selling themselves short."

Abraham Maslow, American psychologist, 1908-1970.

So, let's put all of this into context in terms of needing a woman. If you are a man who has recognised his need for a woman in his life, you've recognised that nothing else is going to fill that void. You need a woman, so how are you going to meet that need?

If you are a man who believes in himself and his potential to succeed, you'll take action to "go get" what you need, and if you don't know how to go about getting it, you're going to take action to learn what you need to know.

You're going to look for experts in the field and you're going to learn from their experience, knowing that you can succeed as a result of what you learn because you believe in yourself.

If, on the other hand, you are a man who focuses on the "problem" he has rather than proactively looking for a solution, you're going to let the problem become a roadblock that stands in the way of getting what you want and need in life. You're going to doubt yourself and you don't really believe you can get what you want, so you fail in your attempts to get it.

You can get what you want with women.

You can.

You can be a man who gets what he needs in life, including women, and all you need to do to be that man is believe that you CAN be that man. Believe it and act on it. Don't sit around saying, "I need a woman," and then not doing anything about it.

Take action by following through on your need for a woman. How? Change the mindset of "I need a woman" to "I am going to learn what women want and I'm going to let them see that I have it."

When you choose to look for solutions rather than focus on the problems you are experiencing in life, it means that you are choosing to become successful. When you choose to learn what it takes to be successful, it ensures that you are on your way to becoming your best self.

Don't waste another day feeling unhappy about your lack of success with women. There are so many women who would love to have a guy like you as a lover, boyfriend or husband.

If you are prepared to learn how to attract women, then most of the single women that you meet will be happy to have sex with you, date you and get into a relationship with you...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Don't Have Friends: What Makes a Guy Popular?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a guy says, âI don't have friends, he often also means, âI don't have friends to hang out with; I don't have friends to do fun stuff with; I don't have friends I can call on when I need help; I don't have friends to pick me up when I'm downâ and the list goes on.

When you don't have friends, you feel there's something missing in your life, and the bottom line is you feel lonely, right?

I Don't Have Friends = I'm Lonely

[image: I don't have friends]

Everyone needs friends. This might sound like a well-worn, clichéd song lyric but it is a scientific fact based on our basic human need for companionship.

Human beings are gregarious by nature, something proven by the fact that the vast majority of people all over the world live in communities of some sort and only a tiny minority actually choose to live in total isolation and let's be honest, those who do are considered to be weird social outcasts, aren't they?

So, if you don't have friends, does that make you a social outcast? No. There's a big difference between choosing to live in isolation and finding that you are living with unwanted feelings of isolation through not having a good network of friends who love you, care about you and appreciate your unique personality.

So the next question must be; if you want friends, why don't you have friends? The key to answering that question begins by taking a good look at how you view your situation...

View # 1: Maybe you don't see yourself as someone people want to be friends with

[image: I don't have friends]

If this is you, you've slipped into focussing on what you don't have in life. You don't think you're very interesting, you perhaps see yourself as a bit boring compared to other guys, or you don't think you're cool enough for people to want to hang out with you.

Yet, here's the thing, the way you see yourself influences the way other people see you. The more you focus on what you see as negatives, the more difficult you make it for anyone else to see anything other than those negatives.

It's not being a perfect person that makes you a perfect friend.

You don't need to be like one of the characters from Friends for people to want to be friends with you! Guys just want to be friends with other guys, and genuine friends are exactly that genuine people.

The world is full of real people, not sit-com characters, and all it takes to change your situation is a switch of focus from who you think you're not to who you really are. Real and genuine guys make real and genuine friends.

View # 2: Maybe you don't see yourself as fitting in with other guys

Being "one of the guys" is a popular expression used to describe the sort of man that all men seem to like hanging out with. This can make not being "one of the guys" feel like not fitting in.

But, here's the thing, the groups of guys who hang out together are groups of individuals who all have their own thoughts, opinions and interests in life, and it's not just a shared interest that keeps them together.

You don't need to have everything in common with someone to strike up a friendship; in fact, some of the best friendships grow between guys with very different characters. Very often, it's learning from one another's experiences in life and having another person's perspective that brings out the best in everyone.

Fitting in is not about having everything in common.

Being "one of the guys" is not about being the same as the other guys, it's about being yourself and, most importantly, being reliably yourself. Even if you're the one everyone can rely on to disagree with everyone else, it's the fact that you know who you are and what you stand for in life that makes you a reliable friend.

So What Makes a Good Friend?

"I don't have friends" does not equal, "I can't make friends" unless you choose to see it that way. There's a saying, "If you want to have a friend, you have to be a friend," meaning you have to get out there and interact with people in the way you want them to interact with you. If you're not prepared to be a friend, you can't expect others to befriend you.

Those "popular" guys you see, the guys that are always surrounded by friends, both male and female, have certain character traits in common. They include:

- Self-confidence they're comfortable in their own skin and they're not pretending to be anyone other than who they are.
- Pro-active/decisive they know what they want and they go after it, they take the lead.
- Charisma they are natural leaders in social situations but they're not domineering or arrogant; they don't hog the limelight.

All of the above traits are traits that are attractive to women and also traits that attract friends. In fact, the more you improve your ability to attract women, the easier it will be for you to make and keep friends.

Why? Women love to be around guys who make them feel attracted, even if they only ever get to be his friend because he already has enough women in his life. Guys want to be around other guys who know how to attract women because it makes it easier to meet women.

Common Mistakes That Repel Potential Friends

1. Off-loading all the time Friends are there for one another through good and bad but if you slip into off-loading your problems onto your friends every time you meet, you're no longer good fun to be around. Friends can only soak up so much before they'll start to avoid you rather than have you drag them down.

2. Trying too hard If you try too hard to fit in in an effort to make everyone like you, you run the risk of coming across as a fake. Groups of friends don't see eye-to-eye on everything, so if you're seen as someone who changes his opinion to suit the group, you're not the real deal.

3. Being too nice This follows on from trying too hard in that playing it safe and only ever saying or doing what you think others want you to say or do rather than being yourself and saying or doing what you really want to can make you come across as fake. Of course, this doesn't mean you should be not-nice! Guys respect guys who know their own mind and are not afraid to stand up for what they believe in, and women love men that other men respect.

4. Being over the top Sure, everyone loves to be around a fun guy who knows how to have a good time but if you're being loud or showy in an effort to make yourself the centre of attention all the time, you're going to find your friends drifting away before too long. Being confident is not the same as being a loud mouth and charismatic guys know how to have fun by making it fun for everyone it's not about them!

Making friends is one thing, but keeping hold of friends and building lasting friendships is another thing. Real friends are real people, and it's being genuine that makes a guy popular with both men and women.

Guys hang out with guys they can trust; guys that they feel totally relaxed just being themselves around. Women are instinctively attracted to guys who have real friends because having friends is a good indicator that he's the real deal; the real man she's looking for.

And if that's not good enough reason in itself to get out there and make some friends, how about the fact that scientific research has likened loneliness to being an alcoholic or smoking 15 cigarettes a day in terms of the devastating effect it can have on your health.

Being lonely and feeling isolated is as bad for your health as not taking regular exercise, and twice as bad as being overweight or obese.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Alpha Male and Alpha Female: Are They a Good Match?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If a guy is a true alpha male, then no woman will ever make him feel intimidated no matter how alpha she is.

For example: It won't matter if the woman is as tough as Ronda Rousey from the UFC; a true alpha male would still see her as a girl compared to him.

Yet, that doesn't mean that his first choice of woman will be a tough, alpha female. In most cases, masculine alpha males will be more attracted to very feminine alpha females or fairly confident, but feminine females.

Why is that? Alpha males are masculine in their thinking, behavior and vibe and as such, they tend to be more naturally attracted to who display their polar opposite. As long as the alpha female still retains her feminine sexiness, behavior and vibe, she will be attractive to the alpha male.

However, if she thinks, behaves and essentially feels more like a man than a woman, then a masculine man won't find her sexually attractive. This is why almost all men don't find butch, masculine lesbian women attractive.

For example: Which of these two groups of women would you prefer?

[image: Butch lesbians or feminine women]

Are you more attracted to the butch lesbians who behave like men or the feminine women?

Human sexual attraction is always based on one of the people being masculine and the other being feminine. The more masculine you are in your thinking, behavior, vibe and actions, the more naturally attractive you will be to women.

If both people are equally masculine or feminine, it will be impossible to maintain their sexual attraction for each other. They might like each other as friends or respect each other as people, but the sexual charge that comes from the distinct polarity between masculine and feminine will be missing.

As a man, you have the ability to make women feel intense attraction for you, but you have to be willing to express your masculine side. The more you hide it, the less attractive you will be to women.

What is an Alpha Male?

An alpha male is essentially a guy who isn't intimidated by anything or anyone. He knows what he wants and goes after it with confidence.

It's not about being aggressive and pushing people out of the way to get what you want – that's called being a bad boy or a jerk. The best type of alpha males are the good guy alpha males who have the confidence and masculinity to go after what they want, but also make sure that they are friendly, considerate and respectful towards others along the way.

Amongst many animal species, the top male of the pack usually gets to mate with the majority of the females. The females want his superior genes to be passed on to his offspring who will hopefully continue strengthening the species and thereby ensure its continued survival.

Things aren't quite so simple in the human world, but alpha males have qualities that mark them out as strong guys who have what it takes to be better survivors than guys who lack their confidence and masculine intelligence.

In the days of our ancient ancestors, important alpha male qualities were physical strength and prowess, but in today's world, the qualities of an alpha male are much more to do with inner strength and character.

The qualities of a modern-day alpha male are confidence, masculinity, and social intelligence, and it's these very qualities that modern women find extremely sexually attractive in a man so in this sense being an alpha male does still give a guy his pick of women in the pack.

However, unlike the top dogs in the animal world, a true alpha male in the human world doesn't have to fight for his position at the head of the pack and he doesn't have to beat other males down to demonstrate his superiority, he demonstrates his alpha status through his inner confidence and through the way he handles himself around other people and in life.

What is an Alpha Female?

An alpha female is essentially a woman who can take charge and lead the way with men and women. Being alpha doesn't automatically mean that she won't be feminine, but in most cases, alpha females tend to be a bit more manly, have tomboy traits and like to be "one of the guys."

It could be argued that true alpha females are few and far between because it's human nature for women to be caring, nurturing creatures rather than top dog leaders. Yet, in today's world, many women are challenging men to become stronger by taking on traditionally masculine positions in society. This has seemed to create an abundance of alpha females.

An alpha male needs to be able to stand his ground and to have courage in his convictions, no matter how much this means going against the grain, so an alpha female must have equal ability and that's where the problem lies.

Women are innately programmed to look after others and the bottom line is that women like to be liked and going against the grain is something they instinctively try hard to avoid.

However, modern women are much more independent than women of previous generations and they know that getting ahead in their careers often means having to play down their femininity and adopting a more masculine persona.

This, for many women, leads to being more manly in everyday life and behaving in a more masculine way in order to hold their own against workplace competitors both male and female. But, there are also alpha females who use their sexuality to their advantage in their careers and they have developed their own brand of flirtatious girl power to get ahead.

Can Alpha Male and Alpha Female Get Together?

Relationship research has concluded that while it is possible for an alpha male and alpha female relationship to begin, it's unlikely to survive for life. Of course, there are always exceptions and an alpha male with a feminine alpha female can be a great match, but most alpha males are not attracted to alpha females who adopt a masculine attitude and approach to life.

It takes an ideal relationship dynamic to maintain a relationship for life, especially in today's world where break ups are common and people get divorced like they are changing outfits. The ideal dynamic is created when there are distinct masculine/feminine roles in a relationship.

That doesn't people should return to the 1950s attitude of men being the breadwinners and women staying at home to be perfect housewives and mothers, but that a man needs to know how to be a man in a relationship in order for a woman to feel like a woman because that's ultimately what makes a relationship work.

The more masculine a guy is in his thinking, behavior, vibe and actions, the more free a woman feels to be feminine in the way she thinks, behaves and acts. The more feminine you allow a woman to feel around you, the more she feels like a real woman.

Getting the Dynamic Right

Women are instinctively attracted to alpha males because they have qualities that make them stand out as men who know who they are and what they're about in life. They have genuine self-confidence and a purposeful presence about them that women can sense on a deep and virtually primal level.

This makes them men that women recognize as modern-day providers and protectors, which in turn makes them men who have what it takes to make a woman feel like a woman and this is ultimately what all women want.

The more independent a woman is and the more she feels the need to suppress her natural femininity in her career, the more she longs to find a "real man" who has the emotional and mental strength needed to naturally take the lead in a relationship.

In the privacy of her relationship, she needs to be able to relax and let her guard down, allowing herself to become the feminine, "real woman" that she longs to be. The more feminine she feels, the more she will want to cook, clean and dress up in sexy ways to impress her masculine man. She won't go around admitting that to others and may even pretend to complain that she has to do all the housework, but she will secretly love how womanly she feels...even if she is embarrassed to admit it to others.

Recent research has proven that divorce rates are higher among couples who share domestic responsibilities in the home compared to those who keep to more traditional male and female roles.

Scientists believe that sharing what would once have been seen as "men's work" or "women's work" leads to greater friction in a relationship and results in a weakened sexual bond with both parties effectively becoming half man and half woman.

If you want the sexual charge to remain between you and a woman, you have to make sure that you maintain a clear masculine and feminine divide between you. Blur the lines too much and your desire to have sex with each other will gradually fade away.

Being the Alpha Male

Here at The Modern Man, we teach guys how to develop the type of good guy alpha male qualities that make them irresistibly attractive to women.

It's not about being a bad boy, jerk, asshole, bossy guy or prick. Instead, it's about being the good guy that you are, but simply being stronger, more assertive, more masculine and most importantly, more successful with women...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Arouse a Woman With Words

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The easiest way to arouse a woman with words is to flirt with her.

When you flirt with a woman, you automatically make her feel attracted to you because you display confidence, social intelligence and charisma. It's a very powerful, instant way to get women aroused in your presence.

Watch this video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) for some examples of how to flirt with women...

We're Lucky to Be Men

We men are lucky that we can arouse women with what we say and do.

It's very easy to do. If we are confident, charismatic, funny and flirtatious, we can attract and arouse a woman regardless of how we look.

Of course, some women only want a guy who is extremely good looking, but most women are open to being aroused by all sorts of guys. This is why you will see all types of men with beautiful women, rather than only seeing model looking men with all the hot girls.

When you know how to attract a woman during an conversation, it's very easy to get laid or get a girlfriend.

The Secret is to Trigger Her Feelings of Attraction

[image: How to arouse a woman with words]

Most guys talk to women in a way that only makes the woman feel friendly or neutral emotions. However, if you want to get laid or get a girlfriend, you have to make her feel sexually aroused by you.

Here's a great video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man), which explains how to arouse a woman with your words...

Mental Arousal

Before a woman can feel physically aroused, she needs to feel mentally aroused.

For women, sexual arousal is all about feeling real sexual chemistry, and that's something that begins in her mind and then works its way through the rest of her body. When a woman is with a man who has what it takes to mentally arouse her, the physical arousal this naturally generates leaves her feeling powerless to resist him and this is a feeling women love.

However, unlike in the Mr-Darcy-type romantic novels set in the 19th century, the words a woman wants to hear to feel mentally aroused are no longer anything to do with flowery poetry or any other kind of over-romanticised mush.

Instead, she wants to hear the words that let her know the man she's with is a confident, masculine man who knows who he is and feels secure in himself as a result. This means any kind of shy, nervous behavior or any kind of stuttering, stammering awkwardness is a complete turn off. Real life is not like romantic fiction or the movies. In fact, there's a classic example of what not to do in the 90s movie, Four Weddings and a Funeral.

If you've seen it, you may remember the famous scene where Hugh Grant stutters and stammers his way through an attempt to tell Andie MacDowell how he feels about her before resorting to reciting the lyrics from a David Cassidy song to say, "I think I love you."

It works a treat in the movie, and women watching the movie all gush over it and say, "That's so sweet," Yet, in the real world, a guy approaching a woman in the same shy and awkward way would find himself rejected. Insecurity is not a turn on for women and almost always leads to the guy being rejected or a very awkward conversation.

It's More Than Just Words

When a man knows how to approach a woman in the kind of confident, charismatic way that all women like, his body language will already be speaking volumes about him before he's even said a word. Women will automatically feel attracted to him and the interaction will start off more smoothly and easily.

If you want to know how to arouse women with words, you also must understand that attraction is about more than just what you say.

For example: All women are instinctively attracted to men with alpha male characteristics.

It's an instinct that has remained a part of human nature since the days of our early ancestors and it's basically nature's way of ensuring the survival of the species. Women seek to breed with men who are going to be good survivors and men seek to breed with women who are healthy and youthful looking.

For most of human history, a woman saw an alpha male as being able to offer the best potential for staying alive and producing healthy offspring. Despite the progress that humans have made with technology, supermarkets and a safer society, women still feel an instinctive attraction to alpha male qualities in men.

All women, no matter how independent they may be, ultimately long to find a man who has what it takes to make her feel like a woman. If a guy is like the Hugh Grant character who stutters and stammers and struggles to string a sentence together because he's intimidated by the woman, then he's not that guy.

The types of traits that will arouse women when you talk to them are:

- Confidence.
- Masculinity.
- Charisma.
- Social intelligence.
- Humor.
- Flirting.

- Being a challenge.

Arouse Her By Being a Challenge

If the woman that you like is beautiful, sexy or attractive, then most of the guys that see her will be willing to have sex with her. A beautiful woman doesn't even have to have a great personality and guys will still be willing to have sex with her and even start a relationship with her.

This is very boring for women.

If you want to stand out from the crowd and arouse a woman with your words, behavior, attitude and vibe, then try to be more of a challenge for her. Make her feel attracted to you and then make her feel the need to impress you and maintain your interest.

You will be surprised at how easily it makes women feel attracted, aroused and excited to be interacting with you. Here's a great video by Dan Bacon (the founder of The Modern Man) that explains exactly why women like a guy who is a challenge and what you need to do to be that guy...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Iâ€¢â€¢ve Always Felt Different

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When youâ€¢â€¢re with other people (especially “cool” people), do you feel like you donâ€¢â€¢t fit in? Have you ever thought, â€¢â€¢Iâ€¢â€¢ve always felt different...what is wrong with me?” or something similar?

Do you give yourself a hard time because you donâ€¢â€¢t behave like other people? Believe it or not youâ€¢â€¢re not alone in feeling this way. Consider this: What does it really mean to be different? The dictionary definition for different is:

Different (adjective): Not alike in character or quality; distinct in nature; dissimilar.

When you look at it this way, why does being â€¢â€¢not alikeâ€¢â€¢, â€¢â€¢distinct in natureâ€¢â€¢ or â€¢â€¢dissimilarâ€¢â€¢ equate to something that is â€¢â€¢badâ€¢â€¢? The truth is: Everyone is different in their own way. What matters is that YOU accept yourself rather than hoping that people will openly express their acceptance of you.

Most people are only concerned about themselves and what is going on in their life. Theyâ€¢â€¢re usually too busy worrying about their issues to be concerned about you being different.

Yes, sometimes â€¢â€¢well-meaningâ€¢â€¢ teachers, parents or friends will say things like, â€¢â€¢Why are you so quiet when during a conversation? Why don't you speak up?â€¢â€¢ or â€¢â€¢Why donâ€¢â€¢t you go out more?â€¢â€¢ or â€¢â€¢You should hang out where all the other guys from your neighborhood / college / work hang out.â€¢â€¢

Yet, often theyâ€¢â€¢re only saying these things because youâ€¢â€¢re putting out an â€¢â€¢Iâ€¢â€¢ve always felt differentâ€¢â€¢ vibe, which makes them feel they have to fix it for you because you donâ€¢â€¢t seem happy.

You donâ€¢â€¢t have to be like everyone else to be happy. Be who you are, but love yourself with or without the acceptance of everyone. No-one gets the acceptance and approval of everyone. Even people who are considered â€¢â€¢coolâ€¢â€¢ or â€¢â€¢popularâ€¢â€¢ are not accepted by everyone. That is natural and normal.

Celebrate Your Differences

Being different can be something that enhances your life and makes it better, or you can go around carrying your differences like a heavy burden. How you use your differences is up to you.

For example: Consider that a lot of successful Hollywood actors, business men, scientists, explorers, etc., are perceived as being different. These guys have used their differences to their advantage and they have not only become great in their fields, they have also made their mark on the world.

People who are a bit “different” in their thinking are usually the most interesting and admired, but this only happens because they believe in themselves while also respecting the differences in others.

Deep down, we all think we are different. Don't think that your kind of different is better than everyone else's...you're different in your own unique way â€¢â€¢ just like everyone else.

Ultimately, being different shouldnâ€¢â€¢t be the excuse you use to hold yourself back from accomplishing great things in your life.

One Man's Idea of Different is Another Man's Idea of Greatness

Being different is only a matter of perspective.

For example: Imagine there are two guys who are saying, I've always felt different. Let's call the one guy Mike and the other guy Steve. Now looking at the scenarios below, see how two guys who feel the same way can react very differently...

1. In social situations and when approaching women

Whether out with friends, at a business function or talking to a beautiful woman, Mike celebrates his uniqueness. He knows he's got a "weird" sense of humor and sometimes he even comes across as the "silent" type, but none of this matters because he is totally confident in himself.

When he finds himself in a situation that makes him feel uncomfortable (e.g. he doesn't like the topic of conversation, the noise is too loud or the place is too crowded), he's confident enough to leave without thinking, There must be something wrong with me or They'll probably think I'm weird and they won't like me.

He likes who he is and because he's not trying to get anyone's approval and isn't pretending to be someone he's not, he always ends up being liked and accepted by most people.

When it comes to approaching women, Mike's unique sense of self coupled with his confidence makes him attractive to women and he can usually get a phone number, a kiss or a date with most women he approaches.

On the other hand, when Steve finds himself in a similar situation to Mike, his reaction is very different. He walks around feeling nervous and insecure.

In social situations he lacks the confidence to assert himself and he's constantly thinking, I don't really fit with the people around me or I don't really care about the topic at hand, or I feel like the oddball of the group.

Talking to women is almost impossible for Steve. He stutters, fidgets and feels nervous and shy. Women either feel sorry for him and treat him like a little brother, or ignore him completely.

Ultimately, Steve avoids social situations or approaching women and prefers to wonder about himself. However, deep down he still keeps thinking, Even though I've always felt different, I'd love to just be able to hang out and be like other guys.

2. When faced with a problem

When Mike encounters a problem in his life he faces it head on. Rather than take things personally because he's "different", Mike is mentally and emotionally strong enough to know that he can handle it.

If for example he approaches a woman and she "rejects" him, rather than think "She doesn't like me because I'm different", he realizes that he's not going to be compatible with every woman he meets and that's okay.

Steve on the other hand prefers to hide away from his problems. Instead of facing things head on he makes excuses about why he "can't do it" or "it won't work" or "it's not for him. Steve also prefers to be single because approaching women is just too hard.

Here's a great video by Dan Bacon (founder of The Modern Man) that explains why so many guys make excuses for their lack of success with women (like Dan used to do) and what they need to do instead...

3. On having a purpose in life

Mike knows that he has always been different. Yet, rather than let it bother him, he uses his uniqueness to pursue his dreams. He has great plans for his future. He is the kind of guy who is rising through the levels of life, reaching for his true potential and going after his true purpose in life without fear.

The fact is, life is challenging and requires mental and emotional strength, but Mike knows that if men like Stephen Hawking can achieve the things he has despite his differences, then he can do it too.

These qualities make Mike attractive to women, because women like the idea of a man being able to have his say in the world. They like to know that the guy they're with will be able to provide for himself, her and their offspring if they have any.

Steve doesn't like to think about the future. He prefers to be alone living in some other world that he's made up in his head. He doesn't really have any goals for the future because he feels too insecure about being different and he assumes that he can't do anything because people won't accept him or approve of his dreams and ideas.

He also doesn't try to date because he believes that most women label him as a loser or unattractive, so he sees no point in trying. Instead, he just masturbates to porn and dulls his desire to try and survive another week alone.

Be the Best You Can Be

You can waste your life saying, I've always felt different and let it hold you back from achieving the things you really want, or you can choose to tap into those differences and use them to be attractive to women in your own unique way.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I'm Tired of Being Single

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Are you tired of being single? Does the idea of going out and seeing all those “happy” couples make you cringe?

Do you sometimes feel like you’re the only guy you know who doesn’t have a girlfriend, or as though you’re probably NEVER going to meet a beautiful woman and have a successful relationship?

Don’t worry...

A lot of guys feel the same way.

The good news is that changing your relationship status is actually a lot easier than you think. It all starts with you understand how to trigger a woman’s feelings of sexual attraction for you. Once you know how to do that, getting laid or getting a girlfriend is a very simply thing to do.

So, let me ask you...

Do you know how to actively trigger a woman’s feelings of sexual attraction for you when you talk to her, or do you just hope to be liked by her because you’re a good guy?

Watch this video to understand why it’s so important to be able to trigger a woman’s feelings of sexual attraction for you...

How Men and Women Select Each Other For Dating and Sex

[image: Sexual selection based on a woman's looks]

Most guys initially choose women based on looks. If a woman is physically attractive, she doesn’t even have to have a great personality and most guys are still going to be willing to have sex with her and possibly a relationship.

Yet, the same doesn’t apply for women.

Women don’t go through life feeling willing to have sex with pretty much every guy who looks good. Yes, women can feel attracted to a man’s physical appearance and some women place importance on looks, but the majority of women don’t.

Think about it...

Have you ever been out to the mall, the park, to a sports game or any other public place and really looked at the couples around you? In truth, how many of those guys had model good looks or millionaire bank accounts?

Most likely only one or two of were rich and a few were good looking. Why? In the real world, most guys are just normal guys like you and me and they are able to attract women in ways OTHER than looks.

Watch this video to understand how it works!

Attraction isn’t what most guys assume it is. Most of us men only find a woman attractive if she is physically good looking, but most women are much more flexible with what they find attractive about a guy.

Now don't get me wrong here...

I'm not saying women NEVER look at a man's physical appearance or status. Looks are something that a woman judges a man on initially, but (for most women, not all) looks aren't as important as the guy's personality and how he makes her feel.

Yes, there are some women who only want guys who are extremely good looking or rich, but the majority of women have what I call an "Open Type," which means that they are open to being with many different types of guys (even guys who don't have male model looks) as long as the guy can make her feel attracted in other ways.

This is why so many plain and even fat or ugly guys have really hot girlfriends or wives. Guys who don't understand how a woman's attraction for a man works might think that women are making a mistake by being with those guys, but women don't agree.

Although a woman will notice a guy's looks, in most cases, she will choose to have sex with him and then get into a relationship with him, based more on his personality and on how he makes her feel when she's with him.

This is one of the main reasons why ugly guys who are attractive to women in other ways (e.g. confidence, masculinity, funny, charming, charismatic, etc.), have beautiful girlfriends, and why good looking guys who lack self-confidence, are shy and insecure can't even get a date.

2 Common Mistakes That Single Guys Make Around Women

If you tried to approach beautiful women before and found that they've rejected you, it doesn't mean that you aren't good enough for them.

Rather than thinking to yourself, "There's something wrong with me...girls will never like me...I'm doomed!" or "I'm just not good enough to attract and date a beautiful woman," consider instead that you most-likely made some classic mistakes that naturally turned the women off.

When you understand that simple fact, you will realize that women weren't rejecting YOU as a person, but they were rejecting your approach. When you use the right approach on women, you will get a completely different result. They will feel attracted to you, want to be with you and want to stay with you.

Here are some classic mistakes that single guys make around women they like...

Mistake 1: He behaves like pretty much every other guy she meets

Consider this...

Throughout the course of a year, a beautiful woman may get approached by hundreds of men who want to have sex with her purely because she's beautiful.

These men do not care if she has a crappy personality, lacks intelligence or just wants them to buy her drinks. They don't care. They feel physically attracted to her and that is enough for them to want to be with her.

She knows that all she has to do is say "Yes" and she can have any one of those guys in a second. However, this is not a challenge to her. In fact, this is boring.

After a while, a beautiful woman begins to feel protective of herself and who she hooks up with. She knows that pretty much every guy would love to have sex with her at least once, but that's not very exciting for her.

She begins to feel the desire to find a guy who can make HER feel a lot of attraction, but who isn't desperate to be with her.

How can she find a guy like that?

Simple.

She makes herself look as attractive as possible to many guys approaching her. She then waits to see if the guy actually makes her feel any attraction.

If he does, she then plays hard to get and pretends not to be interested to see how he will react. If he doesn't really care and could take her or leave her, she then begins to want to get him to like her.

She then gets to enjoy the feeling of attracting, seducing and hooking up with a guy who she really wants to be with, rather than letting yet another boring guy enjoy having sex with her.

If you've ever approached beautiful women before, you're probably now beginning to remember that you too have faced these types of tests. Yet, did you pass them by remaining confident in yourself and knowing that she wants a guy who doesn't crumble under her pressure, or did you crumble and walk away?

If you want to be successful at getting yourself a beautiful girlfriend, you have to understand the reality that she lives in. You can't just use the same approach as all the other guys that she's been rejecting and expect to get a different result because you're a good guy with good intentions.

You need to realize that a woman wants to meet a guy who will not only make her feel intense attraction for him, but will make her feel like SHE has to impress HIM before he'll kiss her, take her home for sex, get her number or ask her out on a date.

At this point, some guys might be wondering, â€œBut why all these games? Can't a woman just like me because I'm a nice guy? Why do women have to make it so complicated?â€

The fact is, being a good guy is an important piece of the puzzle to success with women, but it's NOT enough to create feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman. If the woman that you like is pretty, beautiful or sexy, she wants a man who can offer her some type of challenge where she ends up feeling excited and lucky to be with him.

She doesn't want to feel like she is just settling for one of the billions of random guys who want to have sex with her because she looks good. She wants to find a guy who makes her feel a lot of attraction and also makes her feel lucky to be chosen by him.

Mistake 2: He thinks that being nice to a woman is good enough

Another common mistake that single guys make is in believing that the best way to get a girlfriend is to be really nice to her.

A guy like this will start off being all nice and friendly, running around getting her drinks, or pretending not to be interested in her sexually. He just wants to show her that he's a good guy, he respects her and he would never think of rushing into anything sexual with her.

Yet, when she walks off with another guy who triggered her feelings of sexual attraction, he feels hurt and disappointed. He wonders why some guys are able to get girls so easily, while he just gets placed in the friend zone.

[image: Why does this keep happening to me?]

In his mind, he is doing the right thing by being nice to women. After all, he has heard that women want a “nice” guy, so why aren’t they interested in him.

Simple.

Being nice isn’t good enough.

There’s nothing wrong with being a good guy, having manners, being respectful towards women or even being a bit of a gentleman. However, women don’t care about any of those traits unless you make them feel sexually attracted to you first.

Everything has to start with sexual attraction. Once a woman feels sexually attracted to you, she will then appreciate all the other nice things about you. She will feel lucky to have met a guy who not only makes her feel a lot of attraction, but is also a good guy with good intentions.

Yet, when a guy starts everything off with niceness and friendliness, it sends the wrong message to the woman.

She will either assume that he just wants to be friends because he doesn’t find her sexually attractive, or that he is just pretending to be a nice, helpful, polite, caring friend to hopefully spend enough time around on her to grow on her and maybe get a chance with her one day.

To avoid all the mind games that come with dating, you have to start everything off with attraction.

Why Waste Another Day of Your Precious Life? Start Attracting Women Now...

[image: Single guys wasting their life thinking that they're not good enough]

Most of the guys who say, “I’m tired of being single” don’t believe that it’s possible to suddenly start attracting women for reasons OTHER than looks, money, height, muscles or status.

They feel like they are doomed for life to be single or to only get the scraps that other men don’t want. Yet, they are wrong.

Attracting women is a very easy thing to do. You will literally laugh at how easy it is when you begin to doing it.

[image: You can attract women and get laid or get yourself a girlfriend]

If you’re tired of being single and if you want to change that TODAY, why not let me show you the way?

Right now, you have an opportunity to learn proven techniques from me that will allow you to instantly begin attracting women that you meet. When you are able to attract women, you won’t have time to be single because you will be having sex or relationships with one or more of the many women who are intensely attracted to you.

I enjoyed that lifestyle for 10 years and had sex with more than 250 women before settling down with my hot girlfriend who recently became my wife.

When I first started out, I couldn’t even get most of the unattractive women I met to like me, let alone hot women. I was single and alone for a long time until I realized that I needed to work out what attraction really was and how I could use it to have my choice with women.

When I discovered the secrets to attracting women, my life instantly began to change and it's just gotten better and better ever since.

So, if you've been thinking to yourself, "I'm tired of being single," make the decision to learn my attraction techniques and apply them into your interactions with women. You will be more than amazed at how quickly and easily it works for you.

Are you willing to give this a shot?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Pick Up Women at a Sports Game

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

You can literally pick up women anywhere, even at a sport game.

If a woman is single and you are able to make her feel attracted to you when you interact with her, then approaching and picking up women will always be a very simple and easy thing for you to do.

Although there are usually much less women than men at a sports game, there are still a lot of great opportunities to approach and meet pretty women who are interested in the same sport as you are.

If you are supporting the same team as the women that you want to approach, it's almost like you are friends who simply haven't met each other yet. You are a part of the same, like-minded community and have something in common that you both really enjoy, which makes an interaction start off fairly easily.

What you need to know is that it is possible to pick up women at a sports game and it's actually quite easy to do. So, if you're interested in learning how to pick up women at a sports game, here are 5 pointers that will help you get great results:

1. Sit next to women that you find attractive

If the seats aren't pre-allocated and you can choose where you sit, then simply look around for girls that you want to sit next to.

Approach them and say to them (with a confident smile and a relaxed attitude), "Hey, is this seat taken?"

If the seat isn't taken, sit down and immediately introduce yourself in a confident, easy-going way. "Nice to meet you ☺☺ I'm Dan. What's your names?"

From there, casually talk about that day's coming game, the chances of the team winning and have a relaxed chat with them.

2. Celebrate a goal or point together with a high five

An important part of the process of picking up a woman is making her feel good around you and making her feel like she is connecting with you.

An easy way to accomplish that is to get her (and some or all of her friends ☺☺ whatever feels appropriate) to high five with you to celebrate an exciting point or goal.

I've done that many times before at a football game, where I have turned around to high five with girls behind me and my friends and also tapped girls on the shoulder who are in front of us.

It doesn't matter if the girls are beside you, behind you or in front of you; simply cheer when the exciting point or goal happens and then high five with them.

Don't ask for permission to high five, just expect that they will high five you.

After the high five, just continue on celebrating with your friends or if the girls are maintaining eye contact and wanting to continue interacting with you, you can then switch to using some humor to keep things going.

For example: One of the times that I picked up a woman at a sports game, I started things off with a high five and we (her friends and I) smiled, made eye contact and laughed together.

People looking on would have assumed we knew each other because it was so comfortable, free flowing and natural.

Anyway, after the high five, I turned to the hot girl that I liked and said, “Hey â□□ we’re going to play a little game here.Â You guys want to know what the game is?”

They said, “Yes” and I then said, “It’s call the Beer For a Goal game and it works like this. You girls will pick the team that you think will score the next goal and us three guys will take the other team. If you girls are right, we will buy you all a beer at the break and we are right, you will get us a beer. You in?”

They agreed and we lost, so we bought them a beer at the next break and that gave me a couple of minutes to chat to the girl I liked.

During the game, we did some more high fives and then near the end of the game, I turned to the girls and said, “Hey, we are going to the pub here for a beer after the game. Do you guys want to join us for one beer?”

They said, “Yes” and after the game, we went for a beer and the girls bought the first round.

Three hours later (after all of us went to another bar outside of the stadium nearby), I was back at my apartment with the girl I liked. She stayed the night, of course! You wouldn’t expect any less from me, would you? Lol...

3. Say hello when waiting in a line during breaks

During the breaks between the game, pretty much everyone rushes off to go to the toilet or buy some food or drinks.

If you are waiting in line to get some food or drinks, have a positive, easy-going attitude and just say hello to the women that are in front of you or behind you.

Talk about the game, ask them how they think the team is going and tell them what you think of the game so far.

As long as you know how to trigger feelings of attraction inside of the women (e.g. by using some humor, being confident, being charismatic, being charming, etc), they will be excited and interested to talk to you.

Do you know how to trigger a woman’s feelings of attraction for you when you interact with her? Watch this video to find outâ□!

4. Get there early

If you get to the sports stadium early, it will give you a chance to warm up by meeting some women at the bar or at the cafeteria when women are lining up for food or drinks.

It’s usually a lot less noisy and frantic if you get there early and because the game hasn’t started, women don’t really have much to do other than talk to their friends, eat and drink, so they are open to having the odd random chat to a confident, charismatic guy.

If there is a chance to talk to a woman when she is buying some food, simply say something like, “Hey! do you think our team is going to win today?” and if she says “Yes” for example, you can joke around by telling her that the star player for the team has been injured at the last minute.

When she looks at you with a shocked expression and says something like, “What? No way!” you can smile, laugh and say, “Just kidding.”

She will then have a laugh and you can follow up by introducing yourself. “No, I think our team will win today for sure. I’m Dan by the way what’s your name?”

5. Approach the women who hang around in the bars or cafeteria after the game

If your team has won the game and women (who support the same team as you) are hanging around after the game, they are going to be in a happy, positive mood.

They are most-likely going to be smiling and feeling open to chatting to fellow supporters of the team who can strike up a harmless conversation with them.

For example: If you walk up and talk to women who are hanging around after the game, you can say (in a confident, easy-going and positive manner), “What a game. We killed it today. It was awesome. What did you guys think of the game?”

Have a quick chat, properly introduce yourself (e.g. “By the way my name’s Dan. What’s your name?”) and then focus on making the women feel attracted to you (e.g. by using humor, being confident, being charismatic, being charming, etc).

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Meeting Women on Facebook

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Meeting women on Facebook has become a lot easier thanks to the popularity of dating apps like Tinder that have almost made online dating seem like a “cool” thing to do.

In the past, most women would feel embarrassed to admit that they met a guy via the Internet, but these days the majority of women feel like it is a perfectly normal and acceptable thing to do.

If a woman is single, she will usually be open to receiving messages from guys on Facebook because she will want to explore whatever options are available to hoping find herself a lover or boyfriend.

As long as a guy can spark her interest, get her on a call and then arrange to meet up with her in person, he can have her as a girlfriend, hook up with her casually or even end up marrying her. Yet, despite the fact that many women are open to meeting guys via Facebook, most guys go about it in the wrong way and immediately turn women off.

[image: Hitting on a girl immediately via Facebook]

[image: Woman turned off by message via Facebook]

For example: Most of the guys who contact women via Facebook will send the same type of junk that pretty much every other guy is sending. Messages like, “Heyâ€¦wassupâ€¦you’re beautifulâ€¦wanna chat?” or “Hey â€¦ you’re pretty. Can you add me as a friend?”

When a guy sends those types of typical messages to a woman, she simply places him in the same category as the other 100 guys who messaged her that month. She will assume that he is another typical loser guy who doesn’t understand how to attract women and is simply messaging every hot girl he can find.

So, if you want to succeed at meeting women on Facebook...

Start By Making Your Profile Attractive and Interesting to Women

[image: Make your Facebook attractive to women]

The same, #1 rule of approaching women in person applies to meeting women via Facebook.

That is...

You always have to start by actively making the woman feel attracted to you.

When a woman looks at a guy’s profile, she will either feel turned off by who he seems to be as a person or she will feel attracted to it. His profile with either trigger her feelings of attraction or it won’t.

If it doesn’t, she won’t be interested in getting to know him. She might keep him on as a friend so she can get some extra likes on her photos or status updates, but she won’t have any sexual or romantic interest in him because who he seems to be isn’t making her feel attracted.

When you message a random woman on Facebook or add her as a friend, she will quickly have a look over your main page and photos to see what kind of guy you are.

[image: Woman analyzing a man's Facebook profile]

She will be asking herself things like:

- Are you a lonely guy or do you have a lot of good friends?
- Are you living a fun, interesting life or do you seem a little boring?
- Do your friends on Facebook respect you by liking and commenting on what you post, or are your photos and status updates mostly ignored by your friends?
- Have you had any hot girlfriends who are at her level of attractiveness, or is she way hotter than your ex girlfriends?
- Do you seem to be a guy who is making progress in life and getting somewhere, or are you a no hoper, loser or deadbeat?
- If she became your girlfriend, would her friends be jealous because you're such a cool, confident guy or would they feel like they have a better boyfriend than she does?
- How would she feel if she posted up photos with you and her on her Facebook?

A woman will assess those types of things because she wants to know if she will feel proud or embarrassed to be called your girlfriend.

These days, many women feel so attached to their social media profiles that it becomes the main part of their identity. Who they are on Facebook, Instagram and Twitter for example, is how they want their friends, family and coworkers (or fellow students) to think of them in real life.

If a woman appears to be living a cool, fun and interesting life based on her social media activity, she will want to be able to keep up that image when she gets into a relationship.

So, if a guy adds a woman on Facebook and she looks through his profile to discover that he lives a fairly solitary life, looks uncomfortable in photos at parties, social events and doesn't seem like the kind of guy who other women would like, then she's not going to be in a hurry to get to know him.

[image: Lonely guy vs. popular guy on Facebook]

He might feel instantly attracted to her because she looks good, but if she is like most women, she wants to be with a guy for reasons other than just looks.

When a woman feels attracted to who you are, she will be much more open to messaging you on Facebook, giving you her phone number, chatting on the phone and agreeing to meet up with you in person.

So, before add another random woman on Facebook, just make sure that your profile will make women feel:

1. Attracted to you.
2. Interested to get to know you.
3. Safe to meet up with you in person.

Being Attractive to Women Via Facebook

If you want to use Facebook to meet women, make sure that you only post things that will make women feel attracted to you and avoid posting up anything that makes you appear insecure, lonely, socially awkward, confused about what it means to be a man, unsure of yourself, etc.

Some random examples of things that will make the majority of women feel turned off when they look at a guy's Facebook profile:

1. Talking about his feelings like girls do

[image: Guys acting like girls on Facebook]

Women love to get on Facebook and openly talk (or rant) about their feelings. One day she is happy, the next she is sad and the next she is angry.

Yet, when a guy behaves like that, women don't say, "WOW! He's so sensitive and emotional like a girl! He changes his feelings like the weather" | "he's so messed up like a woman!"

Instead, they simply feel turned off by his lack of masculine strength and ability to be a man who feels emotions, but then focuses on finding a solution, fixing the problem and moving forward in life rather than whining about it like a girl.

While girls might reply and say, "What's wrong? Are you okay?" it doesn't mean that he is going to have sex with them. The women will simply feel like he is one of their fragile, feminine guy friends that they have absolutely no sexual interest in.

2. Having a comic book hero as his profile or cover photo

It's fine for a grown man to like absolutely anything he wants (including comic books), but if the main thing that a man is interested in is the type of thing that young boys (or immature men) would like, most women will feel turned off.

Most women are more attracted to guys who are moving forward in life, rather than hanging onto their childhood and still wanting to feel, act and think like a boy. If a guy is masculine, emotionally mature and is moving forward in life and achieving what he really wants, then it is fine that he also retains a fascination or interest in things that he liked when he was younger.

However, if a guy lacks masculinity (in how he thinks, behaves, acts, etc) and is using his fascination with boyhood hobbies to hide from his rising up and achieving his true potential as a man, women are going to feel turned off by him.

The woman may wonder, "If he is still so into comic books, will that mean that he still has the mind, attitude and emotional maturity of young boy? Will he be capable of being the masculine, mature man that I need in a relationship, or will I end up feeling like a bit of mother figure to him?"

3. Ranting and raving like a girl about equal rights, political issues, etc

There's nothing wrong with having an opinion and discussing political or ethical issues with friends, but some guys make the mistake of ranting on and complaining like a girl about how much the world sucks. Women are more attracted to mature, masculine guys who do something to fix a problem rather than complaining and hoping that everyone else will fix the problem for them.

For example: If a guy posts up complaints about politics all the time, he should either get into politics or shut up and focus on achieving what he wants to achieve in life. Almost no-one wants to hear a guy complaining about issues and not doing anything to fix them, especially women. It's not attractive, it's not cool and it's not helpful.

It's fine for women to bitch and moan, but we men need to either shut or do something about it. Bitching and moaning like a woman will turn the majority of women off, no matter how "cool" the guy thinks his post is. Women are attracted to guys who think, behave and act in a masculine way, not a feminine way.

4. Posting up lonely photos

[image: Guys posting up lonely photos on Facebook]

Women aren't attracted to lonely guys. Instinctively, a woman knows that it's much more beneficial for her to be with a guy who is liked and respected by others than to try to survive life with a guy who is ignored, disliked or even hated on by others. This is just as true today as it was when humans were living in villages and tribes.

5. Posting up cute, sensitive or romantic things like girls do

Girls (and women) love to fill out those quizzes like, "Who is your soul mate?" and other random, "cute" stuff that they find online. When a guy posts up stuff like that, the majority of women feel turned off by it because women aren't attracted to guys who think, act and behave like girls do.

Women don't think, "Wow! He must be so sweet and romantic. He would treat me so well! He's not just looking for sex, he's looking for a soul mate! Wow!" Instead, most women will simply assume that he's another lost guy who doesn't know how to make women feel attracted to him.

An Example of Message to Send to a Woman Via Facebook

Okay, so let's assume that you've done what it takes to automatically trigger a woman's feelings of attraction for you via Facebook.

Your profile photo is confident, your status updates are mature, masculine and forward moving and your photos show you having a great time with other people.

Excellent.

Now, you are ready to begin adding women and messaging them to create a connection.

For example:

"Hey Michelle

You don't know me and I don't know you, but I added you recently when I saw you appear in the "People You Might Now" sidebar on Facebook.

Since we've added each other, I thought I'd reach out and say a quick hello to you, rather than being a silent friend on Facebook.

I see that you're a cat lover too. Nice! Cats are the best pets. I grew up with two cats in my household and the love and relaxation that they add into a home is just awesome.

Anyway, after having a quick look at some of your photos and what you've posted up on Facebook, I have to admit that you not only seem like a smart, interesting woman, but you're also a pretty damn cute.

I don't expect anything from you in return for this message, but I just wanted to say hello!

â°

Cheers

Dan"

In the example above, I am pointing out something that I like about her, but I'm also showing her that I am not a desperate, random guy who is immediately trying to pick her up via Facebook with a message like, “Hey...ur cute” or “Hi â□□ wanna chat? Ur sexy!”

If the women that you are adding on Facebook are actually single and looking for a boyfriend or lover, you will get replies to an opening message where you point out something that you like about her and subtly try to connect with her.

If you don't get a reply from her, you need to:

1. Keep adding to the attractiveness of your profile (e.g. post up photos of you looking confident, liked and included when having fun with other people).
2. Like some of her posts.
3. Comment on some of her posts in a positive, funny or encouraging way.

If she feels attracted to the online representation of you from your Facebook profile, she will begin to click like on some of your photos or status updates.

When that happens, you should try to initiate a chat with her when she is online and after a bit of flirting and chatting, get her on a Facetime call or get her phone number to call her phone.

After a bit of flirting back and forth, simply say, “Hey â□□ let's say hello on video. I'll call you on Facetime, okay?” or “Hey, what's your number? I'll give you a call and say hello.”

[image: From Facebook to a phone call]

Sometimes, a woman won't want to do a video call with you on Facebook because she will be relaxing on the couch without any make up on, or wearing old clothes that she only puts on when at home alone.

[image: Woman using Facebook]

If that's the case, she's only going to be comfortable with an audio Facebook call or a phone call, so if she says no to getting on a video call, just go for an audio call on Facebook or to her actual phone number.

It's important to get away from text chat as quickly as possible because it's much easier to make a woman feel attracted to you when you talk to her via video chat or a phone call than it is via text.

If you're just texting or messaging her, she can easily lose interest if she isn't feeling much attraction or she can begin playing hard to get (i.e. by giving you short replies, not replying for hours or days or not replying to some messages at all) just for fun.

[image: From Facebook to a phone call]

However, if you get her on a phone call, you then have more control because you can trigger her feelings of attraction for you (e.g. by making her laugh, flirting with her, being confident, etc), connect with her without having to wait hours for a reply and then arrange to meet up in person.

Don't Hide Behind Messages. Get Her on a Call, Attract Her and then Meet Her in Person

One of the biggest mistake that guys make when they meet a woman on Facebook is to waste weeks or months talking to her online, without ever taking the step to get her on a call.

A guy will sometimes feel like he is in a “relationship” with a woman that he has been text chatting to via Facebook because she will seem to be interested, but until he actually gets her on a call, meets up with her in person, kisses her and begins a sexual relationship with her, he is simply another guy online who is hitting on her.

If she is attractive, she will always get random guys trying to hit on her online and even though she might message back and forth with some of them, nothing will happen until the guy meets up with her in person.

All it takes for an online guy to be forgotten or replaced is for a guy to meet the woman in person, make her feel attracted and then either kiss her or have sex with her.

[image: Facebook - friend zoned or forgotten]

When a woman feels attracted to a guy in person and kisses him, that is much more real and exciting than the 100 messages that she’s received from a guy who likes her on Facebook.

So, if you are interested in meeting women via Facebook, make sure that you always try to take things to the next level. Don’t wait around wondering what she might be thinking â□□ make her feel attracted, connect with her, get her on a call, meet up with her in person, kiss her, have sex with her and start a relationship.

Make Her Feel Like it Would Be a Good Thing to Be Associated With You in Real Life

The key to attracting women on Facebook is to appear to be the kind of guy they would feel proud to be associated with in real life.

On Facebook, you can do this by:

1. Posting lots of pictures of you having fun with other people

This allows a woman know that you are a cool, well-liked guy that people like to be around. Unless a woman is a lonley emo type, she isn’t going to be very interested in guys who aren’t well liked by other people.

When a typical woman looks at a guy’s Facebook profile, she wants to know that it would feel good to be by his side in a social environment. If she looks through his profile and discovers that he is usually on his own or appears uncomfortable when around other people, she will feel worried about what it might be like to be alone with him in person.

2. Posting interesting updates about your life that show you are making progress, moving forward and living your life

No matter what age a woman is, she will feel naturally attracted to a guy who knows what he wants and is confidently going after it to make it happen.

A woman wants to see that you are following through on your desires, having fun and enjoying life without fear of failure or rejection. You have big dreams and you are following through on them, while also enjoying the fun side of life with the people in your life that you love.

All of that makes you attractive to her, compared to the type of deadbeat posts that some guys make, such as: “So bored...nothing to do” or or posting up random, pointless internet memes that most young children and immature adults are sharing around to waste time and distract themselves from life.

Women are much more attracted to guys who are passionate about something in life and moving forward to achieve it, compared to guys who are confused about what they want and waste time distracting themselves with unimportant things (e.g. always posting up funny meme photos, news stories, the latest celebrity gossip, etc).

By the way...

[image: Too difficult to meet women via Facebook?]

If all of that sounds like too much work just to get a girlfriend or get laid and you'd rather just approach a woman in person, pick her up and have sex with her that night and then start a relationship without having to do all the showy stuff via Facebook, then make sure that you are prepared to approach the next time you see an attractive woman in public.

If you usually don't have enough confidence to approach attractive women in person, watch this video!|

Approaching a woman in person is very easy to do, as long as you know how to trigger her feelings of attraction for you. When you make a woman feel a lot of attraction for you when you meet her (e.g. by being confident, making her laugh, being charismatic, being charming, etc), she will open herself up to talking to you and be interested to get to know you.

Do you know how to attract women when you interact with them? Watch this video to find out!|

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Why Women Love One Night Stands

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The main reason why women love one night stands is that sex feels just as good for women as it does for men. Kissing, being skin to skin, embracing, looking each other in the eyes, oral sex, orgasm...it's all good and women know that.

[image: Dating - Sex before marriage]

In today's world, women are free to have sex with whomever they want and they can settle down into a committed relationship whenever they feel like it. So, they do just that...a lot.

Life isn't like it was in the distant past where a woman had to save her virginity for marriage and then stick with the one man for life. Back in those days, pre-marital sex with strictly forbidden and even talking about sex was seen as taboo or shocking.

[image: Marriages around the year 1900]

Not anymore.

These days, women are free to do whatever they want sexually and don't even have to settle down if they choose not to. If a woman wants to enjoy the excitement of sex and potentially then have a relationship with that guy, she is free to do so.

No one is stopping her.

Despite these changes, most young girls are still brought up to believe that one day they will be swept off their feet by Prince Charming and they will then live happily-ever-after. In the fairy-tale world that girls are told to believe in, there is no sex...only love and a committed relationship with a nice man.

From a young age, women are conditioned to think, behave and act in a way that fits with the idea of waiting to find true love, then getting married and living happily ever after. Yet, despite the best efforts of parents, most women lose their virginity in their late teens and then have sex with a lot of men before eventually settling down.

These days, a woman is fully aware that she doesn't need to settle down with the first guy that she has sex with. Based on this freedom, most women simply want to have a good time until they meet a guy that they love and want to commit to.

Often, a woman will go through much of her 20s and early 30s thinking that she never wants to settle down and have kids. Unless she meets a guy who really makes her feel a lot of attraction and opens her heart up to experience true love, she will be happy just to have fun and get in and out of casual relationships.

She won't consider herself to be a "slut" or to be doing anything wrong because that's just how the world works now. Pre-marital sex is allowed and sex is no longer taboo.

Putting Out Vs. Having Sex For the Fun of it

[image: Putting out vs. enjoying sex]

Despite the real changes that have happened in society, many women are still taught that itâ□□s degrading for a girl to “put out” for a guy on a first date or casual encounter and women who have one night stands with men are being “used.”

Some guys grow up thinking this way as well (e.g. if they’ve been raised by strict, conservative parents), so they treat women in a way that suggests she would never want to have sex...even though she probably had sex that week or the week before with a random guy that she met or a guy that she is casually dating.

A classic example of an outdated approach to dating that many guys are still using is the “nice guy” approach...

Although there is nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, some guys make the mistake of thinking that being really nice to a modern woman is the way to “win her heart” and eventually, hopefully, maybe get to have sex with her.

Yes, that was an excellent idea back in 1897, but not in today’s world. Having sex with a modern woman is very simple, easy and in most cases, instant. Simply make her feel sexually attracted and then escalate to kissing and sex. Most women will have sex with you on the first night, first date or second date.

Although the majority of women are reluctant to talk about how much they enjoy sex, that doesn’t mean they aren’t having it...on a regular basis...with different guys. For most modern women, they don’t see having a one night stand as “putting out,” but as having fun and enjoying themselves.

[image: Why women love one night stands]

It makes sense because society really has changed. It’s just not 1897 anymore, even if some people wish it was. In today’s world, sex happens a lot easier and more often than most guys realize and that most women admit.

These days, many women choose to have sex with a man they have no intention of having sex with again purely because it feels good. It’s fun, it’s enjoyable and it’s natural. Yes, it used to be taboo to hook up and have a one night stand, but not anymore.

[image: Why women love one night stands]

A recent study in Europe found that 70% of women admitted to having experienced a one night stand. Another study in the USA found that 55% of couples admitted to having sex on their first date. ...and that’s just what they are admitting to!

[image: Why women love one night stands]

Most women still feel the need to minimize their sexual encounters or experiences to appear more lady like, innocent and untouched. Why? She doesn’t want to be seen as the sort of woman who couldn’t be trusted in a relationship.

If a man meets a woman who is easy to hook up with sexually and talks about how many guys she’s slept with, do you think he will be able to trust her if she went out on her own? Probably not. A woman being too easy and open about having sex with other guys just isn’t good for establishing trust and building a relationship that lasts.

Despite having experienced a lot sex, I’ve found that most women will never admit to having had a one night stand or to sleeping with more than a total of 10 guys. Most women will say that they’ve only had sex when in a relationship or that they’ve only slept with 5 or 6 guys.

The “5 or 6 guys” that a woman is usually thinking of are those that she’s been in a relationship with. The other ones are kept hidden away as her little secret.

Often, a woman won’t even tell her girlfriends how many guys she’s had sex with. If she goes home with a guy, she will sometimes say that she didn’t sleep with him and then say that she plans to sleep with him after a few dates.

You can’t blame women for putting on an act of innocence about sex. It’s not her fault that she is still expected to act like an innocent virgin, even though everyone is having sex all the time. She’s just trying to do what she thinks is right.

100 years ago, it was “right” to remain a virgin, but what is “right” today? Have sex with 3 guys before settling down? 10 guys?

[image: Why women love one night stands]

There is no clear instruction for women on what to do, so many of them keep their sex life a secret and continue on until they meet the type of guy who is worth settling down for.

A Surprising Fact About One Night Stands

From the outside, one night stands might seem sleazy and very temporary. After all, the term suggests that the couple only have sex for “one night.”

However, a surprising fact about one night stands is that they often lead to relationships. After a couple has had sex, they can then immediately begin a relationship because there’s no need to date for weeks before finally having sex. The relationship has already started.

Women know this too.

When a woman meets a confident guy who seems like he could attract other women, she knows that the fastest way to get to his heart is to sleep with him. After she has sex with him, she can then seduce him into falling in love with her. However, if she doesn’t have sex with him, he might have sex with another woman and fall in love with her instead.

This is completely different to how things worked in the past.

100+ years ago, a man had to court a woman for months or even years before he could finally get her to say “Yes” to marrying him. Generally speaking, people lived in small towns or small cities, so there weren’t many other options to choose from.

Women knew that back then too.

When women are in short supply, they can afford to play hard to get a make a guy earn a kiss. However, in today’s world, women know that other women are willing to have sex with a guy to begin a relationship with him, so they have to act quickly.

One night stands aren’t just about having sex. In most cases, women do it to find themselves a boyfriend, even if they don’t admit that to the guy on the night.

The Science of Instant Hook Ups

[image: Why women love one night stands]

Scientific studies have found that a woman can feel immediately willing to have sex when she meets an alpha male who is sexually interested in her. Why is that?

For most of human history, we didn't live amongst millions of other people in big cities. We only had a very limited pool of options to breed with (e.g. 150 people in a town) and since a woman's natural instinct is to breed with an alpha male, she had to be willing to have sex very quickly to ensure that she had a chance to breed with him.

These days, alpha males are everywhere and are not as scarce as they once were, but women still react by becoming open to having sex right away or very quickly when they meet an alpha male who is sexually interested in them.

[image: Why women love one night stands]

Why do women feel the instinctive desire to breed with an alpha male? Throughout human history, alpha males usually offered the best chance of creating offspring that would be better at surviving (i.e. the boys would likely be strong, confident and brave like their father).

Generally speaking, an alpha male can usually offer a woman the best chance of protection and he will be more enjoyable to have sex with (i.e. because he will be confident and masculine, which is attractive to women), which will then allow the couple to continue having sex for many years and possibly create several children, rather than just one and then they lose interest in having sex with each other.

These days, when a woman meets a guy who displays alpha male traits (e.g. confidence, masculinity in how he thinks and behaves, etc), her instincts kick in and she becomes more open to having sex with him very quickly (i.e. a one night stand, sex on the first date).

In the past, if a woman was lucky enough to get the attention of an alpha male, she would have to act quickly to ensure that she got a chance to be impregnated with his strong genes. Today, the instinct is still there for women, but instead of looking to get pregnant, they are simply looking to enjoy the pleasure of having sex with an alpha male.

The Secret to Pulling One Night Stands

The secret to pulling one night stands is to focus on triggering a woman's primal attraction triggers, such as her desire for an alpha male.

This does not mean that you have to be a macho jerk or act like you are King Dick and everyone else is beneath you. What we teach here at The Modern Man is about being a good guy alpha male. A good guy alpha male is confident, assertive, masculine (in the way he thinks, behaves, moves, etc), but he is also loving, charming, charismatic and easy-going.

For example: If you're talking to a woman in a bar and she asks, "Hey, do you want to get another drink?" you can come from the position of an alpha male who knows that she wants to have sex with him, while still being playful and easy-going.

[image: Trying to get me drunk]

You can reply by saying, "Oh, I see what's going on. You're trying to get me drunk. Sorry, I'm not that easy...I'm not going to sleep with you tonight. It will take a few dates before I let you kiss me."

She will then laugh and possibly say that it is you who has to wait to have sex with her. However, it will make her feel attracted to your confidence in yourself. She will assume that if you have the confidence to talk to her like that, other women must like you too.

This is one way to trigger her attraction to alpha male traits. If you want to learn more examples of how to attract women and get them to have sex with you on the first night, keep learning from us here at The Modern Man.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use it to make women feel an intense attraction and desire for you...

Make Her Feel Attracted and She Will Become Open to Having Sex With You

Even though a woman is expected to act like a lady and only have sex in a relationship, the majority of women don't.

To a woman, one, exciting night of feeling totally feminine and completely under the influence of a guy's alpha male power feels absolutely right in the moment. When a woman is feeling a lot of sexual attraction for a guy, she isn't necessarily thinking about "happily ever after," but is feeling swept up in the way that he is making her feel right now.

...and that's all that has to matter to her.

She's a free, modern woman who is allowed to do whatever she wants.

[image: Why women love one night stands]

Despite what a lot of guys think, women do love sex just as much as men. As long as a guy triggers a woman's primal attraction triggers, it doesn't really matter what he does to her in the bedroom....it's going to feel good because she will be feeling a deep, instinctive attraction for him.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Text Message Examples That Attract Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Texting is a great way to make contact with a woman once you have gotten her phone number.

However, make sure that you don't waste time hiding behind texts. Although it might seem like a woman doesn't want to get on a phone call because she enjoys texting, the fastest way to get her out on a date is to call her, make her feel attracted on the phone and then arrange a date.

If you hide behind texts and are too afraid to get on a phone call, a woman can easily lose interest and decide to hook up with another guy who has the confidence to call her up and arrange to see her in person.

What to Text a Woman After Getting Her Number in Person

[image: Text message examples]

After getting a woman's number for the first time in person (e.g. at a bar, party, during the day, etc) you can send her any one of these type of texts:

Hey – Dan here. Good to meet you. Chat to you sometime soon.

Hey – it's Dan here. The handsome guy from the bar.

Hey Michelle – Dan here. Talk to you soon.

Sending her a text like that ensures that she has your number and knows that you're interested. If you were successful in making her feel a lot of attraction for you when you first met her, it's important that she also knows that you are interested in her and aren't just getting her number for fun.

Many guys get phone numbers from women and never follow up on them or arrange a date. As a result, many women feel like a guy isn't a real dating option until she has actually met up with him for a first date, kissed him (or had sex with him) and wanted more.

Getting a woman's number and texting her doesn't mean anything. You're only really dating when you've had sex or at least kissed. Anything prior to that is simply a maybe.

What to Text Next

After texting her the initial message, my advice is that you call her rather than continuing to text her. Get her on a phone call, have a laugh together and then arrange to meet up in person. That way, you can get to kissing and sex and a real relationship can begin.

However, if you really want to send a couple of texts beforehand, at least make sure that they trigger her feelings of attraction for you.

For example: One of the ways to attract women is to use humor. So, say for example that on the night you met her, she was wearing a red dress and was looking sexy. During the conversation, you jokingly referred to her as the "lady in red."

You could then trigger her feelings of attraction by using a bit of humor:

The lady in red. You looked good in that dress the other night. I looked good too, but you looked better. How are you today?

She will have a little laugh and feel attracted to the fact that you're not only being confident and funny, but you're also giving her a compliment. All of that combined adds up to her seeing you as a charming guy.

You can also just keep it simple and say:

Hey...the lady in red. How are you today?

She will have a little laugh and remember that she felt good talking to you when you referred to her as the lady in red.

In a situation like that, you shouldn't spend a lot of time texting back and forth. After her initial reply, just call her. If she doesn't answer, it may be that she is busy or at work at that moment, so don't worry.

She will either text you again, call you or go silent. Whatever happens, don't lose confidence in yourself. Keep pushing forward until you actually meet her in person because without a date in person and then kissing and sex, you are just another guy texting her.

Texting Mistakes to Avoid

[image: Text message examples]

After doing all the hard work to get a woman's phone number, some guys screw up their chances with her by making one or all of the following mistakes:

1. Over-texting

There's nothing with texting a woman, but if you text her too much and don't ever get her on a call and arrange a date, she can easily lose interest in you.

Why? 93% of the communication between two human beings is non-verbal (e.g. tonality, body language, vibe, etc).

When a guy is texting a woman, she is only getting 7% of his actual communication, so she has to fill in the remaining 93% by imagining what he would look like, sound like and be behaving like if he said that (what he sent via text) to her in person.

If you over-text a woman, she may begin to think of you in a negative light (e.g. assume that you're too afraid to call her and risk rejection if you suggest a date). If she begins to feel that way, she won't be as impressed or amused by anything you say via text.

It will become of a nuisance than anything and she will keep herself open to meeting a guy who will actually meet up with her, kiss her and have sex with her, rather than just text the crap out of her.

2. Taking too long to contact her after getting her number

Some guys lack so much confidence in their attractiveness to women that they chicken out when it comes time to text or call her.

I used to make this mistake myself when I first started getting numbers. I'd get a few numbers during the night and then be worried about getting rejected if I called. I'd be thinking, "Maybe I didn't attract her enough" or "Maybe she didn't even like me much and just gave me her number to get me to leave her alone” or “Maybe...”

I would come up with reasons not to call and then think, “I’ll go get some more numbers next weekend, attract the women better and then call.” Yet, it just kept happening.

Eventually, I got the point where I started to force myself to call by telling myself, “If she gave you her number, she felt attracted to you and is open to meeting up with you and potentially having sex with you. So call.”

To my surprise, when I started following through on numbers, I started getting laid every week and soon had a few women on the go at once.

So, if you get a girl’s number, don’t sit around worrying about whether or not she likes you. Additionally, don’t play games with her and think that if you text her too soon, it will make you look desperate.

It won’t.

You’re not desperate for texting or calling a girl and then arranging a date. You’re simply a cool, confident guy who is going after what he wants. Women are impressed by that, so don’t hide behind endless text messages. Just call her, arrange a date and then have sex with her.

[image: Modern women]

BTW: A recent survey revealed that 55% of couples had sex on their first date and 70% of women admitted to having experienced a one night stand. So, don’t think that sex doesn’t happen easily and often.

These days, most women will have sex with you (or at least kiss you) on the first night or the first date. So, don’t hide behind texts, don’t wait a long time to call – just keep moving forward and make things happen.

[image: Sex on the first date]

If you want to be successful with women, you’ve got to believe in yourself and push forward to the next level. Hanging around in the “Maybe I like you, maybe I don’t” text zone is for sissies. Just get her on the phone, meet up with her, kiss her and have sex with her.

Until you get to that point, her interest in you is just a maybe and you can instantly be replaced by a guy who kisses her or has sex with her, rather than texting her.

3. Texting like a woman

[image: Text message comparison]

If you feel like you must absolutely text a woman, just make sure that you are not texting like a young boy or a woman.

Some text message examples of a guy writing like a woman would:

```
hi how r u?
wat u doin?
i lyke u.
u wanna hook up?
ur nice!
i miss u...hvnt seen u in ages
```

Just because girls text that way, it doesn't mean that you should too. If you want to be attractive to women, you should focus on being more mature and masculine, rather than childish or feminine.

4. Being too cute

[image: A woman getting a girly text message from a guy]

It's okay to send cute messages if you're a very masculine guy and are just doing that to add in a bit of sweetness at times, or to joke around with her by pretending to be a sissy. However, if you're a fairly normal, neutral type of guy in terms of masculinity, being very cute with a woman via text is actually going to turn her off.

She will imagine what your facial expression and thought process might be when you send her the cute message and if she pictures you looking cute like a girl, she isn't going to feel attracted. Instead, she will begin to lose attraction because you lack the all important masculinity that women seek in men.

Here are some super lame text messages just as an example. Ready to vomit?

| â☐☐Do you have a plaster? Why? cause i cut myself fallin 4 u!â☐☐

Why is this a turn off? It is childish and something that kids in school do. If you send that to her as a joke (and she knows that you're joking) it will be funny, but if you're serious she will of course think that you're a weirdo.

| â☐☐Hey snuggle bear" (or any other cutsie name)

Again, this is fine if you're a masculine guy, have already had sex with her or are just joking around. However, being cute via text messages is not attractive to women in pretty much all other circumstances.

| "If you were mauled by a lion with chainsaws for hands, i hope it wouldnt get your face cuz its cute :)"

I don't know how you feel after reading those cutsie messages, but I'm feeling a bit nauseous after having to write them up as examples. Sickening stuff. Lol...

5. Being too pushy or needy

Some guys get a little bit too excited when they get a woman's number.

He will text her to say good morning, text her to tell her that he's on his way to work, when he's stuck in a traffic jam (e.g. "OMG...traffic jam. Gunna be late for work! Eeek!") and text her to tell her what he just ate for lunch.

Truth be told, I feel sorry for guys like that. It's not his fault that he wants to be in love, have a girlfriend and get some affection from women. It's just natural to want that.

However, women don't want to be bombarded with messages from desperate guys. It just isn't exciting, unless of course she is unattractive and desperate for some male attention.

Some needy text message examples:

| r u getting my messages?
what r u doing? Why donâ☐☐t you answer me?
It has been a week and I haven't heard from you. Are you bored of me already?

i miss you...do you miss me?

6. Asking her out via a text message

This is the number one classic mistake that guys make when texting girls. Instead of growing a pair of balls and getting on a phone call (where the girl can feel attracted to his confidence), he will hide behind a text message because it won't feel as bad if she says no.

Some guys will use the excuse that she doesn't like talking on the phone and she would feel awkward if he called. However, if she meets a confident guy, he is going to call her up, meet her in person and then bang her.

The insecure guy who was hiding behind text will then be forgotten and she will get on with having a relationship with the confident guy who had the balls to follow through with a call, date and then sex.

Asking a woman on a date via text increases the chances of her saying no. When she gets a text, it gives her time to think about whether or not she wants to play hard to get. It's not the same as hearing your confident voice over the phone and feeling attracted to it.

The text you send her is just words on a screen. If she wants to test your interest in her or your confidence level by playing hard to get, saying no to a date request via text is easy. However, saying no to you on the phone when she is feeling attracted to you just doesn't make much sense, so she is more likely to say yes.

Do you know how to make women feel a lot of attraction for you when you interact with them on the phone or in person? Watch this video to find out...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How To Be Charming

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret to being charming with women is a simple equation:

Make her feel attracted to you + Treat her nicely = Charming.

For example: If you make a woman feel attracted to you by being confident and making her laugh, you will be seen as charming if you also treat her well by giving her a compliment, being nice to her or making her feel beautiful and sexy.

Dictionary Definition

The dictionary definition of charm (or to be charming) is:

Charming (noun): A power of pleasing or attracting, as through personality; a trait or feature imparting this power; to gain or influence through personal charm; to be fascinating or pleasing.

In other words, being charming is about creating feelings of attraction inside of a woman, as well as being a pleasing guy to be around, talk to and interact with.

[image: How to be charming]

If a guy made a woman feel attracted to him, but was then a jerk or an asshole to her, he wouldn't be seen as charming—he'd be seen as a jerk or an asshole.

However, if a guy made a woman feel attracted to him and then treated her well (e.g. gave her compliments, listened to her, made her feel special, etc), he would be seen as charming.

All women love a charming guy, but don't confuse being charming with being an ass-kissing nice guy. To be considered as charming, you have to first begin with attraction.

Only when a woman feels sexually attracted to you (e.g. because you're being confident, charismatic, getting her laughing, etc) will she then appreciate your nice, good guy behavior and see it as charming.

Old School Charm...Not So Cool Anymore

[image: Old school charm]

In the past, charm was associated with a chivalrous hero who would duel with a score of villains to protect a woman's honor. This would make her feel attracted to his bravery and strength.

He would then do nice things like throw his jacket/coat/cape on the ground for her to walk over so that she didn't get mud on her shoes. How sweet.

Old school movie heroes such as Errol Flynn, Cary Grant, Gary Cooper, Clark Gable and Humphrey Bogart from the 30s, 40s and 50s were attractive to women because of their confidence and celebrity status. Then, when women saw them saying and doing nice things in movies, they labeled them as charming.

Today, charm is still an important part of male and female courtship, but it has changed to suit the demands of modern culture.

For example: If a guy were to throw his jacket on the ground for a woman to walk over, most women would regard him as weird rather than charming.

Qualities That Kill a Guy's Ability to Charm Women

[image: Lack of charm]

Being regarded as a charming guy starts with a guy's ability to attract women. If he thinks, behaves and acts in a way that is unattractive to women, they aren't going to be charmed by his nice behavior or compliments.

[image: Only being nice and forgetting about attraction]

If a guy is nervous around women, doubts himself and tries to get women to "like" him (rather than feel attracted to him first) by being a nice guy and being really helpful and caring, he won't be considered charming.

Here's why!|

If a guy is insecure and self-conscious when he interacts with women, he won't be considered as charming.

If a guy has low self-esteem and expects a woman to be gentle with him and give him a chance to get to know her, he won't be seen as a charming guy.

If a guy has bad manners; talks with his mouth full, is too loud or too overbearing, never says "please" and "thank you" and treats people such as waiters and valets badly, he won't be considered charming.

He might be able to attract some women who like bad boys, but most women will think he's an idiot and avoid him.

If a guy doesn't know how to attract a woman, build up the sexual tension between them and seduce her into having sex, he won't be considered as being charming. A woman might like him as a person, but she isn't going to refer to him as a charming guy. Instead, she will see him as a nice guy, a friend or some random guy that she happens to know, but has no sexual interest in.

Do you know how to trigger a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for you when you interact with her? Watch this video to find out!|

If a guy lacks the social intelligence to be able to talk to women and keep a conversation going in an attractive way, he won't be considered as being a charming guy.

What is Social Intelligence and How Does it Affect a Guy's Ability to Charm Women?

The original definition of social intelligence was coined by Edward Thorndike in 1920. Since that time many psychologists and social scientists have suggested subtle variations of the definition, but ultimately the definition that they generally agree on is, the capacity to effectively negotiate *complex social relationships and environments.*â□□

Why is that important to women?

Simple.

We live in a challenging world. Despite having supermarkets, police, TV, the internet, government, etc a guy still needs to be able to make his own way in the world. Social intelligence is one of the traits that suggests to a woman that a guy will be able to get along with people and potentially do well in life.

When a woman meets a guy, she instinctively checks his level of social intelligence because it's something that women are naturally attracted to. She can't stop herself from feeling attracted to it because it's an important instinct that is linked to survival.

If a woman feels as though the guy can't even deal with talking to her or her friends, she will question his ability to live a happy life where he achieves success, has great friends and maintains a great relationship with her. When she starts to question that, she will feel turned off by him on an instinctive level.

For most women, if a guy lacks social intelligence, it doesn't matter if he has a high level of academic intelligence (e.g. got top grades at university). Women always find men who are smart with people more attractive than men who are simply book smart.

Instinctively, women know that social intelligence is a huge indicator of a guy's ability to be successful with his social and romantic relationships. She knows that a guy who lacks the ability to get along with her and her friends, will likely be disrespected by men and women in the workplace and amongst friends.

Having social intelligence is a big part of being a charming guy. If a woman is talking to a guy and can see that, no matter how much she tests him (e.g. by playing hard to get, not contributing much to the conversation, etc) he remains confident in himself, she will feel attracted to him.

If he also retains a positive attitude, continues to show love and respect towards her and makes her feel good to be interacting with him, she will instantly begin to recognize that he is a charming guy.

No matter what happens, a charming guy will remain confident and continue to make a woman feel attracted to him and also make her feel special, wanted, appreciated and happy when interacting with him.

When a woman comes across a guy like that, she knows that she's found something worth fighting for. It's very rare for a woman to meet a charming guy who just happens to be single. To her, it's like winning the dating jackpot.

When a woman meets a charming guy (i.e. a good guy who can make her feel attracted to him and make her feel special in his eyes), it's the equivalent of a guy meeting a beautiful woman that he rates 9/10 to 10/10 who is friendly towards him and makes him feel special.

How To Be a Charming Guy is Something That Can Be Learned

If you are a good guy, then you've already got 50% of what it means to be charming.Â The remaining 50% comes down to your ability to attract women and seduce them into having sex and relationship with you.

If you currently aren't very good at making women feel attracted to you, then make sure that you learn from us here at The Modern Man. The more you learn, the more charming you will become to women.

When you develop your ability to be a charming man, you will find it incredibly easy to attract and seduce women into sex. You will realize that picking up women for sex or a relationship is literally one of the easiest things for you to do in life.

Why? When a woman meets a charming guy, she doesn't want to play too hard to get because she doesn't want to lose the chance to be with him.

Women make it easy to pick them up and make it obvious that they like youâ

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Approaching Women Alone

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Approaching women alone isn't easy if you lack confidence the confidence to approach and don't really know how to get them to feel attracted to you.

If you lack the confidence to approach women, watch this video...

If you don't know how to get women to feel attracted to you when you meet them, watch this video to understand how it works...

Are You Here Alone?

[image: Are you here alone?]

Many guys feel the urge to approach women alone, but are often worried that women may ask them questions like, "Where are your friends?" or "Why are you here alone?"

The simple response to questions like those is to confirm that you are alone, but to let the women know via your tonality, body language and vibe that you are completely fine with it.

For example: You can reply and say, "Yes, I thought I'd come out on my own tonight for a change. It's exciting." Put a positive spin on it, rather than thinking that being alone is a bad thing. Let women be impressed by the fact that you are confident enough to approach women alone.

You Can Get the Same Results When Approaching Alone or With a Friend

[image: Approaching women alone]

As long as you have the confidence to approach and the ability to attract the women you meet, it doesn't matter if you go out approaching women alone or with a friend.

What matters is whether or not you can make women feel attracted to you when you meet them. When women feel attracted to you, they then look at other things about you (i.e. that you're out alone) in a positive light.

However, if you approach and try to be "liked" by women for being nice to them or pretending to be a party guy when you're just a normal, good guy, they will feel suspicious of you and begin to question why you would be out alone (i.e. Do you not have any friends? Are you potentially a weirdo or psycho who is going to hurt her?)

This is why it's extremely important that you focus on making women feel attracted to you when you approach them. Attraction comes first and everything else flows on smoothly after that.

Common Mistakes That Guys Make When

Approaching Women

Approaching women is the easiest, fastest way to get laid or get a girlfriend because you have the chance to instantly create attraction and a unique connection between yourself and the woman. Unlike with online dating where she has 1,000s of men to choose from, when she meets you in person, it's just you, her and a bunch of other guys standing around who are too afraid to approach her.

You get to focus in on her, build up her attraction and the sexual tension between you and make her want to release the tension with kissing and sex. When you know how to do that, you can get laid or get a girlfriend pretty any time you go out approaching.

However, when a guy makes some or all of the following mistakes when approaching women, things aren't so easy...

1. He displays obvious signs of nervousness

When a guy is nervous around a woman his behavior is not relaxed; he fidgets, avoids looking her in the eyes and he has difficulty getting his words out. Nervousness comes across as insecurity and insecurity is due to a lack of confidence. A woman can sense it when a guy lacks self confidence and this is a turn off.

2. He struggles to keep a conversation going with attractive women

It's usually very easy to talk to unattractive women, but when talking to attractive women, a guy has to be prepared for the tests they will put him through.

For example: Many attractive women will play hard to get initially to test how confident a guy is. If he feels like he's blown it and then walks away, she knows that she's just gotten rid of a guy who lacks the all important self-confidence that women are looking for in a man.

However, if he remains calm, positive and keeps the conversation going in a confident, easy-going way, the woman will eventually realize that he is a confident guy and she will relax and open up to him. He will then get to experience the friendly, easy-going side of her personality that most guys never get to see.

When a guy doesn't realize that women will test his confidence, he usually sees their lack of contribution to a conversation as a sign that he is being rejected. He then begins to feel uncomfortable expressing himself, so he often resorts to asking the women a lot of questions to hopefully get them talking about themselves.

However, when women are in "test mode," they will give very short answers or no answer at all if they are asked a lot of questions in a row. If a guy lacks the social skills to handle that type of test from women, most women will instinctively lose interest in him and no longer want to interact with him.

3. He tries to show her how nice of a guy he is, rather than making her feel turned on

There's nothing wrong with being a nice guy (I'm nice and I've had sex with more than 250 women), but you also have to turn women on. If a woman doesn't feel sexually turned on by you, she won't see the point in talking to you for too long, giving you her phone number or catching up with you for a date.

Many guys don't realize that women actually WANT to be seduced into sex and a relationship when they meet a guy. Guys who don't know this think that they need to start out by showing woman that they are a nice guy with good intentions.

Yet, that's what pretty much every guy does and it doesn't work. Why? Women don't choose which guy to have a sexual relationship with based on how nice he is. Here's why...

If a guy doesn't know how to seduce a woman when he talks to her, she won't really know what his intentions are. She will wonder why this friendly, nice guy is talking to her and feel weird about it. She might then ask him, "Where are your friends?" or "Why are you talking to us?"

Without first creating some sexual attraction between himself and the woman, the interaction becomes purely platonic and she feels like he is wasting her time.

4. He waits for very obvious signals of interest before approaching

When a guy lacks confidence in his attractiveness to women, he will often wait for very obvious signals or signs that a woman is open to being approached. He will stand around looking at her, try to make eye contact and see what happens.

If she doesn't make it obvious that she wants him to approach her, he will think that she must have a boyfriend or she mustn't find him very attractive.

What he doesn't realize is that most women do not give guys a "free pass" to approach them. Instead, the majority of women act like they aren't even interested in being approached because that ensures that they will have a higher chance of being approached by a confident, alpha male.

The nervous, insecure guys will feel afraid to approach, so it's a good strategy from women. If you want to hook up with hot women, you've got to give yourself permission to approach. You cannot wait around hoping that hot women will suddenly make it easy for you to approach them. That's not how it works.

Common Mistakes Guys Make Approaching Groups of Women

If your aim is to approach a group of women, you essentially need to:

- Approach in a confident, easy-going way.
- Don't expect that they will immediately welcome you into the group. It happens sometimes, but sometimes they will test your confidence first.
- Begin getting along with random people in the group.
- Don't worry about trying to get the approval of the most confident girl in the group. Just assume that you have her approval and relax when she tests you.
- Focus on making the women feel attracted to you (e.g. by being confident, using humor, etc).
- Have a good time with them.

Some of the mistakes that a guy will make approaching a group of women are:

1. Nervously asking for permission to sit down or to join the group

If a guy asks permission from the group to join them, he stands the risk of them saying no. If he gets a no, then he has no choice other than to walk away and his opportunity is lost. Instead of asking for permission, just give yourself permission and let them meet the cool, confident, good guy that you are.

An alpha male doesn't need to get permission to talk to anyone – he just does it. It's not about being disrespectful, rude or arrogant, but just being a good, confident guy who doesn't need to get the permission of women to be able to talk to them.

Although it might seem like "good manners" to ask for permission, many women will see it as an opportunity to reject you in front of their friends to feel good about themselves. On the other hand, if you just assume that you have permission to talk to them and then talk to them in a confident, easy-going manner, the women will feel attracted to your confidence.

2. Not adding any positive energy to the group

When approaching a group of women, you don't have to go into the group and put on a big show to make them excited to meet you. Instead, you simply have to add at least some positive energy to the group.

Positive energy can come from the fact that you're smiling, while being confident, easy-going and freely chatting to the group. It can also come from using a bit of humor to get the girls laughing or by flirting with some of the women to create a sexual vibe.

When a guy approaches a group of women and brings down the mood, they won't be very welcoming. For example: If he is nervous, hesitant or anxious and they are happy, confident and free flowing, they will feel awkward with him hanging around.

If the vibe of the group is quiet and relaxed (e.g. relaxing in a coffee shop) and he is too high energy and over the top, the women will feel like they need to reject him or show their disapproval to bring him down to a lower energy level.

3. He focuses all of his attention on one woman and ignores the rest

In his eagerness to pick up one specific woman in a group, a guy will sometimes make the mistake of zoning in on her and ignoring her friends. It then often results in her friends trying to block his attempts to pick her up, which makes things unnecessarily complicated.

When approaching a group of women, make sure that you have an easy-going approach to the pick up. Don't rush to pick up one girl and exclude her friends. Instead, be confident, relaxed and easy-going and allow the interaction to unfold naturally.

As long as you are being attractive (i.e. being confident, charismatic, charming, using some humor at times, etc) most, if not all of the women in the group will feel attracted to you. This then works in your favor because when women see that other women are attracted to you, they then begin to show you more interest and try to compete for your attention.

Women always want to get the guy that other women want. It's just the way women work. So, relax, be confident and make the women in the group feel attracted to you. When you do that, it will be 10x easier to pick up the hottest girl in the group.

Are You Ready to Begin Approaching Women Alone?

If approaching women alone still feels daunting to you, what you need to do is focus on building up more confidence in your attractiveness to women.

When you know that you can attract most of the women you approach, you will no longer feel afraid to approach women. You will know that if you go out approaching, you will get laid, get a girlfriend or at least get a bunch of phone numbers that lead to sex later than week.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

12 Common Mistakes That Guys Make With Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 12 common mistakes that guys make with women, which can lead to rejection or a relationship break up.

How many of these mistakes have you made before?

1. Thinking that being nice to a woman is good enough

[image: Being nice to a woman and expecting her to want to be in a sexual relationship because of it]

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman and there's nothing wrong with being a good guy, but being nice to a woman isn't the thing that makes her feel sexually turned on.

For example: When a guy interacts with a woman that he wants to get into a sexual relationship, if he is just being nice to her, that isn't the thing that is going to make her feel sexually attracted to him.

Being nice is not going to make her feel turned on.

She's not going to say, "Wow! This guy is nice! I want to have sex with him and start a relationship with him."

What a lot of nice guys and good guys don't understand is that the majority of guys in this world are good guys. If a woman is attractive, most of the guys that she meets are going to be nice to her.

[image: "But, I'm a nice guy..."]

So, when a guy is nice to a woman it doesn't mark him out as being special. What marks a guy out as special is when he can trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of her. He can turn her on by what he is saying and doing when interacting with her.

When it comes to relationships, being nice to a woman is also not good enough. If a modern man wants a relationship with a woman to stay together for life, he has to deepen the woman's feelings of love, respect and attraction over time.

He can't expect that a woman is going to want to stay around and stick with him for life if he's unable to deepen the love, respect and attraction over time. If he's doing things that are making the woman lose respect for him or doing many things that are turning the woman off, then he can't expect her to stick around. Why? The dating and relationship scene has changed.

If you think about how women used to select men in the past, you will realize that the dating and relationship scene has completely changed. In the past, a man would have to be nice to a woman, court her and show her that he could take care of her if they got married.

[image: The old days...]

When he was able to prove that he could support her, he would then need to ask her father for his daughter's hand in marriage and then the couple would get married and lose their virginity on the wedding night. Generally speaking, most women couldn't earn their own money in the past and they were almost completely dependant on men for support.

Today's women can earn their own money and they can have sex whenever they want.

[image: Modern women]

Women no longer select guys simply based on how nice a guy is or how well set up he is to support her. The way that women select men for sex and relationship is now based on sexual attraction first and everything else after that.

If a guy makes a woman feel sexually attracted when he meets her, she will become open to the possibility of having sex with him or starting a sexual relationship. However, if he doesn't make her feel any sexual attraction, she has no need to be with him.

If a modern man wants to get laid or get a girlfriend, he needs to actively attract women when he interacts with them.

[image: You have to start with sexual attraction]

These days, a guy needs to be able to say and do things that turn women on, rather than just being nice and expecting that he's going to get a chance with the woman because he is a good guy with good intentions.

What a lot of guys don't realize is that most most guys in this world are good guys.

[image: Men in prison]

If most guys in this world were bad guys, then everyone would be locked up in prison or jail and there would be total chaos on the streets. People would be killing each other all day and night, but that's not the case at all.

[image: Most people are good people]

Most people in this world are good people and most guys in this world are good guys. So, when a guy meets a woman and is nice to her, it isn't something that really amazes her. A guy being nice to her is a standard, default thing that she is going to experience with most of the guys that she meets.

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman. If people tell you that nice guys finish last and that you shouldn't be nice to women, they are wrong. There is nothing wrong with being a good guy, but what you also need to do is actively make women feel sexually attracted to you when you interact with them.

When you are interacting with a woman, you are either displaying the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women and turn them on, or you're not. If you're just being nice to women, you cannot expect them to want to have sex with you or start a sexual relationship with you.

Over the years, some guys have come to my website and said something like, "I'm nice to women...I talk to them nicely, I'm good to them and I've got good intentions, but they're not even interested in me. What is going on? Why can't they just like me? Why can't they just see that I'm a good guy and give me a chance?"

The reason why is that it's not about just being nice to her.

If you think about how we're raised up as children. We are taught that if we are nice to people they will like us. Teachers or parents often say things like, "If you want to make friends, be nice to people and then they'll be nice to you and you can all be friends."

What happens is that a lot of guys end up confusing the advice they got as a child by applying it to their adult life.

Some guys think, “I’m attracted to that woman and I really like her. I want her to really like me, so I’m going to be really nice to her...I’m going to be very polite and very respectful...I’m going to show her that I really, really care about her and then hopefully she’s going to give me a chance to be with her.”

Yet, that isn’t how the dating process works.

Being nice to make her like you as a friend or a person isn’t what needs to happen to get her interested in having sex or a sexual relationship with you. You have to start with sexual attraction and everything else comes after that.

Today’s women select men for sex and relationships based on sexual attraction and then in a relationship, women stay with men who are able to deepen their feelings of love, respect and attraction over time.

In the past, a guy could just get himself a woman and then take her for granted. He didn’t have to worry about deepening the love, respect or attraction because it was shameful to divorce, so women stuck by men for life, even if they weren’t happy.

If he wanted to get himself a woman in the first place, he would need to get a job or show that he could support a woman, be nice to her and then he might be able to get her to say “Yes” to marrying him. They would then lose their virginity on the wedding night.

Yet, that’s just not the way that the world works any more.

In today’s dating and relationship scene, being nice to a woman is no longer good enough. There’s nothing wrong with being nice and there’s nothing wrong with being a good guy, but you also have to be able to make women feel sexually attracted to you based on what you say and do when you interact with them.

You have to display at least some of the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women. The more ways that you are able to attract women with your personality and behavior, the more they feel attracted to you. In a relationship, you have to know how to deepen a woman’s feelings of love, respect and attraction for you over time.

Taking a woman for granted and expecting that she will stick around is no longer something that guys can rely on. Today’s women can leave a marriage or break up with a boyfriend if they want to. They are no longer completely dependant on men, so in most cases, women only stay with men who they feel enough respect, love and attraction for.

2. Being too easily impressed by women

[image: Men feel an instant intense attraction to women simply based on looks]

What a lot of guys don’t understand is that there is a difference between how men feel attracted to women and how women feel attracted to men.

Most men feel an intense attraction to a woman’s physical appearance and her physical appearance is enough for the man to want to have sex with her or start a relationship with her.

[image: Man looking at porn. Men are mostly attracted to the physical appearance of women]

That is why porn has always been directed towards men. Porn has always been about providing images or videos for men to look at and then jerk off to.

This is also the reason why when a woman is walking down the street, guys will be turning their head and looking at her and thinking, “Oooh, look at that...I’d tap that...I want to be with her...I want to be her boyfriend...I want to have sex with her.”

[image: The "Wow!" reaction to a woman's physical appearance]

That instant reaction of being impressed by a woman happens simply based on her physical appearance. Yet, the same rule doesn’t apply to women.

Women can feel attracted to a man’s physical appearance, but what women are most attracted to is how a guy’s personality and behavior makes her feel. There are some women in this world who will only accept a perfect, good looking guy who is tall with a perfect body and also has loads of money. That is true.

However, the majority of women have what I call an Open Type, which means that they are open to being with all different types of guys as long as the guy knows how to make her feel attracted when he interacts with her.

So, the mistake that guys make is that they don’t understand the reality that women live in. Women go through life and if they are attractive, most guys are willing to have sex with them or start a relationship with them simply based on their appearance.

Even if the woman doesn’t have a nice personality or is a bit of a bitch, most guys are still going to be willing to have sex with her simply based on her appearance. After a while, that gets very boring for women; especially attractive women.

[image: Group of cold women]

What most women want (I say “most” because unattractive women do like it) is a guy who isn’t immediately 100% interested simply based on her appearance. What an attractive woman wants to experience is a guy who can actually make HER feel attracted. A guy who can turn HER on and make her feel like she wants to be with him.

Yet, most guys never give that to women because most guys feel intense attraction to a woman’s physical appearance and then confuse that with their interest level. They are attracted and 100% interested at the same time, without her having to say or do anything to impress them any further.

The guy is already 100% impressed by her and ready to have sex or begin a relationship with her just because she looks good.

3. Thinking that he can buy her attraction or love

[image: Taking a woman out to dinner]

There’s nothing wrong with taking a woman out to dinner and paying for it and there’s nothing wrong with talking to a woman and buying her a drink if you’re getting along and enjoying each other’s company.

[image: Trying to buy her love]

The mistake is where a guy feels like he can make a woman love him or feel attracted to him by buying her things (e.g. paying for drinks, buying her an expensive dinner, paying for her rent, etc). A guy like that makes the mistake of thinking that it will impress her and make her want to be with him because he is so generous and takes care of her like a princess.

100 years ago, buying women things was a great way to show that you could take care of them and were capable of being the breadwinner and providing for her. However, the majority of today's women can earn their own money. They don't need a man to pay for everything for them.

The number one thing that women are looking for isn't a guy who can pay for a dinner, buy them a present or buy a drink for them. What modern women are looking for is a man who makes them feel sexual attraction and a man that they can also look up to and respect.

Women aren't looking for a guy who tries to overcompensate for not being able to make them feel sexually attracted by buying them things. Women don't want to be talking to a guy and thinking, "Okay, this guy isn't very confident...he's paying for all these things as a way to hopefully get me to like him" and then not feel much respect for him as a result.

What women are looking for is a guy who triggers feelings of sexual attraction inside of them, makes them feel turned on, makes them feel drawn to him and is also a guy that they can respect.

4. Thinking that attracting her or seducing her is wrong

[image: Thinking that it is wrong to turn her on]

Over the years, some guys have come my site and said things like, "I was raised up to be a gentleman. I am nice to women and I want to take them out on dates...and if they don't like that, then bad luck for them. I'm not going to do anything other than be nice to them. I'm a gentleman...I'm respectful towards women and I want to show them that. If they don't like that, they are crazy."

What guys like that don't understand is that women actively seduce men (i.e. by dressing in a sexy way to attract men and then being sweet and nice to men to make them feel like they have a chance) and they want men to actively seduce them.

For women, it's very easy for them to attract us because all they've got to do is dress a little bit sexy, show some cleavage or wear a short skirt to show some leg. They can wear tight fitting pants or a tight skirt, put on some lipstick, make themselves look more physically attractive and then be sweet and nice and most guys will be willing to have sex with them.

It's very easy for women to seduce men. If you've ever been to a strip club, you'll see that the women in there are not only beautiful and sexy, but they also come across in a sweet, easy-going, friendly type of way. They know how to seduce guys.

Strippers know how to get guys thinking, "Wow! This girl is attractive AND she's really nice to me. I really like her!" They are experts at seducing men.

However, what a lot of guys don't understand is that women actually want to meet a guy who can make them feel sexually attracted and then seduces them into having sex. Not in a way where the guy is doing it against her will of course, but where she is feel attracted, is feeling like she really wants to have sex with him and is going along with it.

She is enjoying the process of feeling attracted, seeing the guy build up sexual tension between them and then release the sexual tension together with kissing and sex.

Here's the thing though...

You won't hear women going around saying this. Women will usually say things that are the complete opposite to what they want sexually, because they don't want to come across as being too easy. They don't want to come across as the "s" word.

A woman doesn't want to come across in a way where, if a guy gets into a relationship with her, he won't be able to trust her because she was so open and easy when it came to sex. Most women have to put on a bit of an act of innocence, so they will say things like:

- I want a sensitive man.
- I would never have a one night stand.
- I hate it when a man tries to pick me up.
- I want a nice guy.
- I want a man to show me how much he cares for me.

When guys hear women saying those sorts of things often enough, they begin to believe that the secret to success with women is to avoid trying to attract them or seduce them. Many guys assume that they need to be nice, show the woman how much they care and then hopefully they will get a chance with her.

Yet, that's not how it works.

You can have sex with most women pretty quickly and then start a relationship with them right away. Depending on the country, some statistics show that up to 70% of women have had a one night stand before...so women aren't as innocent as most guys assume they are.

Personally speaking, I've had sex with more than 250 women and at least 100 of those women I had sex with on the first night. Pretty much all of them said something like, "This is the first time I've ever done this...I never have one night stands...I never do this...this is so unlike me."

Women tend to come across in that way because they want you to be able to trust them. They want you to be able to see them as a woman that you can rely on and trust if you get into a relationship. It's not easy for modern women because the dating scene has changed. It's no longer about her saving herself for marriage anymore.

It's a more complex dating scene now where women can have sex before marriage, but they can't go around bragging about that, showing it off or talking about it because people will think that she's an "s" or guys will think that they can't trust her in a relationship.

Yet, she's simply adapting to the modern dating environment and so are guys who understand what it actually going on. Many of the men who haven't yet adapted to the modern dating scene are still thinking that it's wrong to make a woman feel attracted or turned on when they first meet her.

They feel as though it would be disrespectful to use body language that would make her feel girly and turn her on, or to say things that trigger sexual desire. Yet, these days, you actually need to do it. Women select men for sex and relationships based on sexual attraction.

What a lot of modern men make the mistake of doing is trying hard to show a woman that he is a respectful, nice guy and he has good intentions. He wants her to get the sense that he will wait 10 dates to get a kiss or sex if he has to.

[image: Trying too hard to be respectful]

The thing is, there's nothing wrong with waiting for 10 dates to have sex, but what a modern man actually needs to do when he starts interacting with a woman is make her feel sexual attraction.

Whether he and the woman wait 5 dates or 10 dates to have sex or they have sex on the first night is up to them, but what a guy needs to do is focus on making her feel sexually attracted to him when he first starts interacting with her.

Just making a woman feel friendly feelings or getting along with her as a friend and being nice to her, isn't the thing that is going to make her think, "WOW! I want to be in a sexual relationship with this guy" because pretty much every guy that she meets talks to her in that way.

The guys who stand out are the guys who give her a little tingle "down there" and make her feel like, "Ooh...mmm...I want to have sex with this guy." They are the guys who actively turn her on and make her feel sexual desire, rather than just being friendly and hoping that it makes her want to have sex.

5. Sharing his feelings before she is even properly attracted

If a guy hasn't said or done anything to make a woman feel sexually attracted to him and he then tells the woman that he has feelings for her, it isn't going to be much of interest to her compared to a guy who has made HER feel attracted first, turned HER on and made HER feel sexual desire.

Then, if he says that he likes her, she feels lucky that a guy that she feels attracted to also likes her. That is what she wants to experience, but most guys don't allow women to have that experience because they don't understand the reality that women live in.

Most guys will feel attracted to a woman's physical appearance and then if she is then nice to him, he might say that he really likes her or that he has feelings for her. He might hint at wanting to be her boyfriend or ask her what she thinks of having a relationship with him, in the hope that he will be lucky enough to get a chance with her.

If he wants to be with her, he has to make HER feel attracted to HIM first. He has to make her experience sexual feelings and then she will actually be interested in the fact that he has feelings for her, because she has feelings for him.

A lot of beautiful women have the same boring experience over and over again when meeting guys and eventually get really annoyed by it. If a woman is beautiful, she will meet a guy and he will almost certainly feel very attracted to her immediately.

Then, if she is nice to him and talks to him, he might feel like all he has to do from there is be nice to her, ask her out and then they will begin a relationship.

After a bit of conversation, he might say things like, "I connect with you...you're not like other girls...I really like you" and ask her questions like, "Do you have a boyfriend?" or "Can I take you out sometime?"

He's going straight for the kill because he feels like her being nice to him means that she is interested in him sexually, but it's not.

What women are looking to find is a guy who can make THEM feel sexually attracted and then build up the sexual tension to the point where she wants to reveal her feelings for him. She wants to experience the exciting feelings that are associated with wanting to reveal her feelings to the guy.

She wants to feel so attracted that she actually tells him that she likes him or hugs him, kisses him or touches him in a seductive or loving way. She wants to be feeling so much sexual attraction for him that she eventually just says, “I really like you” or “kiss me!” or “let’s go out on a date” or “let’s go home together.”

She wants to feel that, but most guys will never give that to her because most guys do not understand the reality that women live in.

[image: Most guys are willing to have sex with a woman simply based on their attraction to her appearance]

Most guys don’t understand that the majority of guys that a woman meets will have “feelings” for her if she is nice to them. If a woman attractive, pretty or even just decent looking and she talks to a guy in a nice, sweet way, most guys will become very interested in her and hope to get a chance with her. Eventually, many of them will reveal their “feelings” for her.

That is not the experience that an attractive woman is hoping to have. She is hoping to meet a guy who makes her feel like she has to chase him a little, she has to reveal her feelings and hopefully get a chance with him.

6. Thinking that he has to have money or looks to get a girl

Money or looks can definitely attract women, but they are not the only ways that a guy can attract women.

Most guys are not rich, yet they still have a girlfriend or a wife. Most guys are not male models, yet they still have a girlfriend or a wife. In other words, guys without good looks or lots of money, can and do attract women for sex, relationships and marriage.

Back when I was hopeless with women, I assumed that women didn’t like me because I wasn’t good looking enough. I was working in a normal job, so I assumed that they weren’t impressed by that either.

When I saw women happily talking to other guys at bars or parties, I assumed that those guys must be better looking than me, even though the guys were just average or below-average looking guys. I thought, “Okay...well, I guess those guys are good looking to women...and I’m not.”

What I didn’t know back then, but which I eventually realized is that you’ve actually got to spark feelings of sexual attraction when you’re interacting with the woman. Back when I was getting rejected by women, I was walking over and talking to them and asking things like:

- “Hey...how are you doing?”
- “How’s your night going?”
- “What do you do for a living?”
- “How long have you worked there?”
- “What’s your name?”
- “How old are you?”

After that, there’d be an awkward silence and I’d be thinking, “What else can I say?!” and I would then run out of things to say.

I’d be thinking to myself, “Why can’t I keep a conversation going and keep it interesting when talking to a woman? Why does it just fizzle out all the time? Why aren't girls interested in me?"

Back then, I didn't realize that NOTHING that I was saying was making the women feel sexually attracted. Asking a girl what she does for a living and asking other boring questions like that isn't something that makes her feel sexually turned on.

It isn't something that makes her think, "WOW! This guy is so amazing and interesting...I want to talk to him. I'm feeling so attracted to him...I'm feeling so turned on." Instead, it's just a standard conversation that she's had hundreds, if not thousands of times before.

It was only when I realized that I had to actively attract women that I then started to experiment with saying and doing certain things that made women feel sexually attracted to me. When I did that, things instantly started to change.

Women felt attracted to me, I was able to kiss women within 10 minutes of meeting them and then 5 minutes. Then, I started taking women home for sex and enjoying that lifestyle. My newfound ability to actively attract women was now allowing me to have my choice with women, rather than hoping to "get lucky" with a woman.

It was no longer about trying to be "liked" for being a good guy. Now, I was a good guy who was ALSO sexually attractive to women. Being able to make women feel sexual attraction was what made all the difference.

Before I knew how to actively attract women during an interaction based on what I was saying and doing, I thought the reason why women didn't find me attractive was that I wasn't good looking enough.

I also assumed that I didn't have a good enough job. I drove a cheap, average type of car, so I thought that women wouldn't be impressed by that. I simply assumed that I wasn't good enough for attractive women.

A lot of guys make this same mistake where they feel as though they can't attract beautiful women because they're not good looking enough or they don't have loads of money. However, the fact is that most guys are not rich and most guys are not male models, yet they still manage to attract and have sex with, or a relationship or even a marriage with beautiful women.

7. Doing whatever she wants in the hope that it will impress her and make her like him

[image: Doing whatever she wants in the hope that it makes her like him]

When a guy doesn't know how to make women feel attracted to him, he'll often think that solution to get women interested must be to treat women like perfect princesses and do whatever they want in the hope that they are nice enough to "give him a chance."

He might think, "Okay, I'm going to do whatever this woman wants...I'm going to say yes to whatever she asks of me...I'm going laugh at all of her jokes and buy her whatever she wants. Then, hopefully she will see that I'm a good man and she will like me too."

Yet, that's not how it works.

When a woman sees that a guy doesn't respect himself very much and is willing to say or do whatever he can to hopefully get her to “like” him, she doesn’t feel respect for him. Women don’t feel attracted to guys that they don’t respect. Trying to kiss a woman’s butt by doing whatever she wants is a sure path to a rejection or a break up.

The way to get women to be immediately interested in you is to spark feelings of sexual attraction. Sexual attraction is where the power is. If you’re not actively making women feel sexually attracted to you when you approach them, then there’s almost no need to approach; most women simply aren’t going to be feeling what they really want to feel when they meet a guy.

8. Being annoyed when women test, rather than seeing it as an opportunity

Women test men all the time. It doesn’t matter what level of skill you have at attracting women, making them feel respect for you or making them love you; women will still test you.

An example of a test is where a guy is talking to a girl that he likes and they’re getting along well. Suddenly, she stops showing interest and stops contributing much to the conversation. In most cases, when a woman pulls back her interest like that, she is simply testing the guy’s confidence.

[image: Woman testing man]

She wants to see whether he is going to feel insecure. She wants to see if he’s going to desperately begin to chase her and confess his feelings for her. She wants to see what sort of guy he really is.

What a lot of guys don’t understand is that a woman’s test is an opportunity to make her feel more attraction. When you can maintain your confidence in yourself and not get flustered by the test that she’s putting you through and just continue to believe in yourself, it actually makes her feel attracted to you.

The same thing applies to relationships. When a guy is in a relationship with a woman, it doesn’t matter how much attraction she feels for him, it doesn’t matter how much she respects him and it doesn’t matter how much she loves him; she will ALWAYS test him.

Why? When a woman tests a man and sees that he is the man, he is confident and he is the masculine one, it makes her feel attracted to him. It maintains her respect for him and allows her to fall more deeply in love with him.

However, if she tests him and he crumbles under the pressure, fails the challenge and can’t deal with it, then he’s most likely not man enough for her.

In the past, women would put up with guys who weren’t able to maintain their attraction and respect because it was shameful to divorce. Yet, whether we like it or not, most women are not ashamed of divorce anymore and simply leave guys who can’t make them feel what they really want to feel.

[image: Relationship has fallen apart]

In today’s world, a guy needs to know how to deepen a woman’s love, respect and attraction for him over time. If he doesn’t know how to do that, the relationship will most-likely fall apart.

9. Trying too hard to be liked

This is a classic mistake for guys who don't actually know how to attract women.

They don't know how to make women feel sexually attracted to them, so they will often use the approach of trying really hard to be "liked" as a guy. He might be a great friend to her, do favors for her and generally "be there" for her.

Yet, that isn't what makes a woman feel sexually attracted and turned on.

There is a big difference between a woman "liking" a guy as a friend and feeling "sexual attraction" for him. A woman can like a lot of guys that she meets as a friend or as a person, but that isn't the same as her feeling sexually attracted and turned on by how a guy talks to her and interacts with her.

If a guy doesn't make a woman feel sexually attracted, it doesn't really matter how hard he tries to get her to like him; she's just not going to be feeling what she really wants to feel.

10. Being insecure

[image: Being insecure]

Some examples of being insecure are when a guy:

- Approaches and talks to a woman: He might doubt himself, feel nervous or intimidated.
- Is on a date: He might try too hard to impress, appear nervous or intimidated.
- Is in a relationship: He might become overly protective, jealous or clingy.

None of those things make women feel sexually attracted to a guy because women are naturally attracted to the mental and emotional strength of men and are turned off by any weaknesses.

Imagine a world where women rewarded men with sex, love and devotion for being insecure...

Generation after generation, women would successfully breed more emotional weakness into the human race, which wouldn't help anyone. The most insecure men would get the best women, which might end up turning us into a race of emotional wimps.

Women instinctively seek to breed strength into the human race, not weakness.

Some guys may think that it's unfair that women find emotional strength attractive. They may feel annoyed that women can't accept their insecurity, shyness or lack of confidence and just like them for who they are, but it's just how nature works.

To be successful with women, a man needs to understand the fundamental personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women. He then needs to begin displaying those traits and behaviors, rather than expecting women to go against their natural instincts.

When a guy presents the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women, success with women is simple and permanent.

Women feel naturally attracted to him, without him having to try hard to be "liked." Women naturally like him and naturally feel attracted to him because he's displaying the personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women.

11. Not even knowing what to do to succeed

Most guys still don't even know that it's possible to improve their skills with women. They assume that if they have failed with women in the past, it means that they are no good with women and can't really do anything about it.

Most guys also don't even know that it's possible to attract women while they interact with them. They are going through life thinking that they either have to be super nice or they've got to be good looking with loads of money and then they'll get a girl.

Yet, it is possible to attract women based on what you say and do. You do not have to be good looking or rich to attract women, get laid, get a girlfriend or get laid. All you need to do is know how to actively attract women when you interact with them. When you can do that, women naturally find you attractive and want to be with you. It's pretty simple.

Another type of guy who comes to my website is a guy who is having problems with his relationship. The spark has died or his girl has dumped him. When a guy like that arrives at my site, it's almost always the case that he doesn't even know how to deepen a woman's feelings of love, respect and attraction for him.

He's hoping that if he's just nice enough to her then that will be good enough, but it's not.

To keep a relationship together, you have to know how to deepen a woman's feelings of respect, love and attraction for you. You can't just be good to a woman and think she will stick around because it's not enough to keep a modern woman in a relationship.

100 or 200 years ago, women had to put up with not really feeling much respect or attraction for their man. They had to stay with him because it was shameful to divorce, but not anymore. In today's world, if a woman isn't feeling more respect, love and attraction for her man and is instead losing respect, love and attraction for him, then the society around her tells her to move on.

It's unfortunate, but that is the world that we live in these days.

12. Making excuses rather than addressing the real issues

[image: Making excuses for his lack of success with women]

Pretty much every guy who is not succeeding with women has a secret excuse (or a number of excuses) as to why it's not happening for him. Some guys will say:

- If only I was taller.
- I have to lose some weight first.
- I'm not good looking enough.
- I have to get a better job first.
- I have to go to the gym for a year first and build some muscle.

Yet, what guys like that fail to realize (or accept) is that they always see other guys who don't fit the mould of being perfect, with a beautiful girlfriend or a wife.

Have a look at these photos here...

Look at this guy with his beautiful girlfriend. Does he look like a guy with a perfect body and a perfect face? What's she doing with him?

[image: Ugly guy marries pretty woman]

Well, it turns out that they had a family and then they got married.

[image: Ugly guy has a baby with a beautiful woman]

How about these guys...

[image: Fat men marrying beautiful women]

They are both very overweight, but they've each got a beautiful wife. Most guys are going to say, "Okay, it must be because the guy is rich," but the guy being rich is not not always the case. Why?

[image: Fat guys with pretty women]

Most guys are just getting by financially or working in a normal job that pays a normal income. Most overweight guys are not rich, but they still can attract and marry a beautiful woman.

Don't just assume that if a guy who isn't typically good looking has a beautiful girlfriend or wife, it must mean that he is rich. Most people are not rich. In almost all cases, the guy got her by making her feel attracted and then beginning a relationship with her.

How about these guys...

[image: Bald guy with pretty woman. She finds him attractive]

They are both bald. One has a beautiful girlfriend and the other guy has a beautiful wife. Isn't being attractive about having a full head of hair? How can these guys get a girlfriend or a wife if they don't have hair on their head?

How about Asian guys with white women...

[image: Asian guy marries white girl. She finds him attractive]

How is this possible?

Even Asian guys who are overweight can have pretty white girls. How is it possible?

[image: Fat Asian guy with pretty girlfriend]

How about these guys...

These black guys are with white women...

[image: Black guys with white women]

...and here is a white guy with a black woman and an Asian guy with a black woman.

[image: White man marrying a black woman. Asian guy marrying a black woman]

How about this guy with his big ears. Why would she like him?

[image: Guy with big ears with beautiful girlfriend]

How about this guy...

[image: Guy with a weird nose with a beautiful girlfriend]

He has a funny looking nose. Why is this girl with him, when she could be with a guy who has a perfect, male model type of face?

Do you think that the guys in those photos are better than you? Do you really think that they are better than you and that you can't attract women?

Here's the truth...

If those guys can attract women, then YOU can attract women. It doesn't matter what secret excuse you hold onto for not being successful with women (e.g. looks, height, body shape, race, financial status, etc). If you are not successful with women, it's pretty simple: You don't know how to properly attract women when you interact with them.

You most-likely do not know how much POWER you have when it comes to attracting women. The truth is that you CAN make women feel INTENSE attraction for you based on what you SAY and DO when you interact with them. You do not have to hope to get selected based on looks. You can MAKE women feel attracted to you.

If you are going through life thinking that you're not good enough for attractive women, then you are wrong.

[image: Stop wasting your life being unsuccessful with women]

You are good enough.

You CAN make women feel attracted to you.

If you have been getting rejected by women, it means that you have not been making them feel enough attraction for you based on what you are saying and doing when you interact with them. You can change that. You can learn how to attract women properly.

If you've gotten dumped by a woman you love, it means that you weren't doing a good enough job of deepening the love, respect and attraction that she feels for you. You can change that. You can learn how to deepen a woman's love, respect and attraction for you in a relationship.

You do not have to get rejected by women when you meet them and you do not have to get dumped out of a relationship. Why? It is possible to be one of the guys who can attract women at will and it's also possible to be one of those couples that you see who are 30-40 years into a relationship and are still extremely happy.

The couple is more in love than ever before and they still cuddle, kiss, hold hands and laugh together. That is possible.

Some Important Questions For You

To finish up now, what I'm going to do is ask you some questions about each of the 12 mistakes, so you can work out whether or not you've ever made these mistakes with women.

I used to make these sort of mistakes myself, so after I've asked you the questions, I'm then going to tell you what I did to stop making those mistakes and start experiencing easy, natural and consistent success with women.

1. Thinking that being nice to a woman is good enough

Have you ever tried using the strategy of being very nice to a woman and then hoping that she "likes" you enough to give you a chance with her?

2. Being too easily impressed by women

Do you behave, think and act differently when you're talking to a beautiful woman vs. an unattractive woman?

Do you tend to give beautiful women the impression that you would love to be with them, even though they haven't done anything to impress you other than look good?

3. Thinking that he can buy her attraction or love

Have you ever tried to get a woman to feel attracted to you or remain interested in you by taking her out to an expensive dinner, buying her drinks or buying her an expensive gift?

4. Thinking that attracting her or seducing her is "wrong"

When you talk to women, do you hold back from saying and doing things that will turn them on because you think it would be disrespectful?

Has anyone ever told you that women love guys who can turn them on in a discreet way?

5. Sharing his feelings before she is even properly attracted

Have you ever felt so attracted to a girl that you blurted out how you felt about her, but then she said that things were moving too fast or that she only wanted to be friends for now?

6. Thinking that he has to have money or looks to get a girl

Have you ever felt as though you're not good enough for attractive women because you don't look good enough or make enough money?

Have you ever seen guys who aren't good looking or rich with beautiful women and not been able to work out why the woman is with him?

7. Doing whatever she wants in the hope that it will impress her and make her like him

Have you ever been on your very best behavior in the hope that it would impress a woman and make her like you, only to have her then tell you that she just sees you as a friend?

8. Being annoyed when women test, rather than seeing it as an opportunity

Have you ever thought that women are silly, annoying, frustrating or even stupid for playing "mind games" without realizing that they were simply trying to test your confidence so that they could feel attracted to you or remain attracted to you?

9. Trying too hard to be liked

Have you ever tried way too hard to be liked by a woman to the point where she sensed your desperation and it turned her off?

10. Being insecure

Have you ever felt nervous or unsure of yourself when talking to a woman that you were really attracted to, but then felt confident when talking to a woman that you didn't find attractive?

Have you ever become jealous, needy or clingy in a relationship because you felt insecure about the woman's desire for you?

11. Not even knowing what to do to succeed

Do you know how to attract women when you approach them, or have you been approaching women and just hoping to be liked because you're a good guy?

Do you know how to deepen a woman's respect, love and attraction for you in a relationship, or have you just expected that a relationship would last because it felt good at the start?

12. Making excuses rather than addressing the real issues

Have you ever decided that you can't attract women because of your looks, race or financial status, even though millions of other guys similar to you can attract beautiful women?

Have you ever thought that it is impossible to keep a woman happy in a relationship, even though millions of other guys similar to you are able to do it?

So, how many of those mistakes have you made with women? Personally speaking, I've been guilty of pretty much all of those, but what made a difference for me is that I learnt how to do the right things.

When I learned how to do the right things, I was then able to attract women when interacting with them. I was able to have sex with women on the first night I met them and I enjoyed my choice with women for many years.

Then, when I was 35 years old, I met my sexy, 20 year old girlfriend and recently, at the age of 37, I got engaged to her and now I'm going down the path of marriage.

I've had sex with more than 250 women and I've enjoyed having total power, control and choice with women and now YOU can have that power, control and choice as well. You can actually have your choice with women. You can attract women at will, so you can choose the right women for you.

Then, in a relationship, you can deepen a woman's feelings of respect, love and attraction for you over time.

You can really do that. Yes, you.

Your Success With Women

If you'd like to learn what you need to know to be successful with women, here is what you might want to learn about next:

1. The Flow
2. The Modern Relationship
3. Make Her Love You For Life

The first program that I would recommend is my ebook The Flow. This ebook will teach you how to naturally attract women and get laid or get a girlfriend by going through my simple, proven to work, Flow process.

The Flow prevents rejection by ensuring that a woman feels very attracted to you and really wants to be with you before you ask for a phone number, move in for a kiss, ask her out on a date or have sex with her.

[image: The Flow]

Read it now

Another program that you might want to learn from is The Modern Relationship. This video program will teach you how to create and maintain the ideal type of relationship dynamic that deepens the love, respect and attraction over time.

You are in the position of power and your woman tries hard to impress you, please you and maintain your interest.

[image: The Modern Relationship]

Watch it now

The third program I would recommend for you is Make Her Love You For Life.

This is my latest program and teaches you how to keep the love and spark alive in a relationship for life.

Watch it now

The more you learn from me, the more skilled you become at attracting women when you meet them and then deepening their love, respect and attraction in a relationship.

The more you understand, the easier it gets.

Instead of trying hard to be “liked” when you meet women, they feel naturally attracted to you and they want to be with you.

Instead of stressing out about losing your woman to another man, you can relax and be confident in yourself and the relationship because the love, respect and attraction is deepening over time rather than fading away.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Can You Convince a Woman to Like You?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

So, can you convince a woman to like you?

I often get asked this question by guys who have a crush on a girl at university, men who like a particular woman at work, or guys who are friends with a girl and want to begin a sexual relationship with her, but she just doesn't feel the same way.

[image: Maybe this will finally convince her to like me]

A guy in that position may wonder, "How can I convince her to like me the way that I like her?" He will hear her talking about other guys who don't treat her well and may think, "I'd treat her so well. I'd be such a great boyfriend. I wouldn't hurt her. I wouldn't treat her badly.

I would be trustworthy...I would do the right thing...I've got good intentions with her. I'm trying to convince her of that, but she's just not listening. She keeps hooking up with other guys who are not even as nice to her as I am. What's going on here?"

[image: Why does she only like me as a friend?]

So, if there's a girl or a woman that you like right now and you just can't seem to get her to like you the same way, have a think about this...

Think about the times you've seen a woman interact with a man that she's just met and sparks start flying between them immediately. They have instant sexual chemistry and like each other immediately.

[image: Instant attraction]

Have you ever seen that?

Have you ever seen a guy interacting with a girl and there are sparks flying between them immediately? She's laughing, giggling, smiling and hitting him on the arm or touching him in other ways. You look on and realize that they have great chemistry and it's just obvious that they're going to hook up sexually.

[image: Instant chemistry and attraction]

They exchange phone numbers, start kissing or leave the party or club together and they begin a sexual relationship. Yet, it happened right away and the guy didn't have to convince her to like him.

Whereas, you see other guys who talk to women and they try to get to know her for weeks or months without ever making a move. He's a great friend to her, they get along, talk and laugh, but there's no sexual spark there.

She's not actually interested in having a sexual relationship with him because he's not even making her feel sexually attracted. He's just being friendly with her. Then, if he brings up the idea of him and her having a relationship, she rejects him.

She may give him one of the classic "friend zone lines" such as:

- "We are better as friends."
- "I don't want to ruin our friendship."
- "I'm not looking for a relationship right now."

- “I’m busy with my studies and don’t have time for a boyfriend.”
- “You’re such a good friend. I don’t want to ruin what we have.”
- “Sorry, I don’t see you in that way. You’re like a brother to me.”
- “Awww...how sweet. You’re such a nice guy. You’re my best friend and I really appreciate having you in my life.”
- “I’m busy with my career and need to focus on doing well at work.”

A guy who doesn’t understand what is really going may think, “Okay cool...I’ll just keep hanging around and hopefully I’m going to grow on her. Hopefully I’m going to get her to like me.”

Yet, what he fails to recognize and understand is how other guys get girls so easily and instantly. He observes other guys interacting with women and sparks fly immediately, they get it on immediately and leave the party or club together, or become an item at university or a couple at work, etc.

[image: Easy pick up]

The guy immediately gets into a relationship with her, without having to get to know her for a long time. He didn’t need to convince her to like him. He made feel something. He created a spark between them.

...and that there is the secret.

To get a woman to like you and want to be in a sexual relationship with you, she doesn’t need you to convince her that you’re a great guy and will treat her well. What she needs to feel is sexual attraction.

To make her want to have sex with you and begin a sexual relationship, you have to actively trigger feelings of sexual attraction. Not feelings of friendly emotions where you’re just a good guy, a friend who just wants to hang out and everything is all nice and sweet and innocent. There’s no sexual intentions at all; just a friendship.

That there is a friendship.

If you want a woman to start having sex with you or be eager to begin a sexual, romantic relationship with you, the most important thing that you need to do is actively trigger her feelings of sexual attraction.

An Example of How to Trigger a Woman’s Feelings of Sexual Attraction

[image: Imagine being at a cafe with a girl you like]

Imagine that you’re talking to a woman that you like and are eating together at a cafe.

If you’re at university, imagine that you’re eating at the cafeteria with her. If you’re working and are hanging out with a female coworker that you’ve got a crush on, imagine that you’re eating at a cafe nearby for lunch.

At some point, she’s going to end up with some food or crumbs on the side of her mouth and she’s going to try to wipe it off with her fingers or a napkin. So, what would you say during that moment to make her feel attracted to you?

What’s something that you can say and do in that moment to make her feel sexually attracted to you?

What would you say?

What most guys will say at that point is either nothing while they give her a chance to clean her face, or they might try to help her like a gentleman. “Oh, yep...there you go. You got it.”

Based on what he thinks is the right way to get her interested in a sexual, romantic relationship, he will be that good friend who is looking out for her and who keeps everything friendly and platonic. On the other hand, a guy who is going to make her feel sexually attracted will focus on making her feel girly in that moment. He’s going to use his masculinity to subtly dominate her by putting her under the spotlight of his attention. He will make her feel a bit girly and unsure of herself around him.

[image: Imagine being at a cafe with a woman you like]

He’s only doing it in a playful way. It’s not a mean or overly domineering way. It’s just a subtle bit of domination.

So, for example, when she has something on the side of her mouth, he will point it out and look at it and say something like, “Oh, actually...you’ve got something there on your mouth” and she will then reach up to wipe it off. He will then say, “...and on the other side too...and there’s something on your nose – what is that?”

She’s then going to smile and feel self-conscious as she is put under the spotlight of his attention. He will then laugh and show her that is only joking.

When you do that, the woman notices that you’re joking, laughs and then feels girly in response to your masculinity. You are masculine enough to make her feel girly in that moment. You’re confident enough to put her on the spot and play with the situation and to create a dynamic between you and her where you’re subtly dominating her.

That is sexually attractive to women.

If you think about what happens during sex, you will realize that a woman opens up to receive the man’s masculinity. She submits and opens up to the man. The man penetrates and she receives. She is the receiver and he is the giver.

[image: He makes me feel girly]

So, when you subtly dominate a woman during conversation in a playful way, it actually triggers a feeling inside of her where she can then think, “Wow...he could actually make me feel girly in the bedroom.” His energy, his personality and his approach to her makes her feel a little bit girly...and that is a sexual turn on for women.

Sexual Attraction Can Be Triggered

What a lot of guys don’t realize is that sexual attraction can be triggered.

You don’t have to be a good looking guy with millions or billions of dollars...or euros, rupees, pounds or whatever currency you use. You don’t have to have those things that everyone says is so important to women, to make a woman feel sexually attracted to you.

...and you would have seen it before with your own eyes.

You would have seen other guys start to talk to girls who don’t have looks or money, but the girl starts giggling, feeling all girly, hitting him on the arm playfully and there are sparks flying between them immediately.

How does that happen? Simple: He is triggering feelings of sexual attraction inside of her, which is a skill that you can actually have as a guy. You don't have to rely on luck and hope that a woman will "give you a chance" if you can just convince her that you're a good enough guy.

Good Guys Are Way More Common Than You May Think

[image: But, wait...I'm a good guy!]

Here's the thing that a lot of good guys don't understand or realize: Most guys in this world are good guys.

Most good guys think that they are the only good guy in this world. They think that they are much better than everyone else. "I'm nicer...I'm more loyal...I'm more honorable...I'm more trustworthy...I've got better intentions with women than all these other guys."

Yet, most guys in this world are good guys. That really is the case.

Being good isn't the thing that makes a woman want to have sex because it's pretty much everywhere she looks. It's easy for her to find a nice guy, but what isn't easy is to find a good guy who also makes her feel sexually attracted.

What makes a woman want to have sex and start a sexual relationship is feeling sexual attraction for you.

At The Modern Man, I teach guys how to make women feel sexual attraction for them in more than 100 different ways. In this post, I've just demonstrated one way of making a woman feel sexual attraction for you. You can make women feel attracted to you in more than 100 different ways.

You most-likely don't know how much power you have when it comes to attracting women. If you're the sort of guy who is looking for advice on how to convince women to like you, then you most-likely don't even know that you can trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside a woman.

Triggering the woman's sexual attraction is within your control.

Generally speaking, you are in complete control over how much or how little attraction a woman feels for you. You can actively make women feel attracted to you. That is why I've personally been able to have sex with more than 250 women and now I have a sexy girlfriend who recently became my fiancée. She's 22 and I'm 37 and we met when I was 35 and she was 20.

I've had a string of girlfriends and lovers prior to her who were 20, 19, 23, 18, 24 and so on. Non stop sex, love and good times with sexy women. Why have I been able to do that? Simple: I know how to make women feel sexually attracted to me when I interact with them, based on what I say and do.

Having that type of power and control over attracting women is something that you can do. You can actually make women feel intense attraction for you and want to be with you, simply based on what you say and do when interacting with them.

When you see other guys starting to talk to women and sparks begin flying immediately; that can be you. Not the guy who is hanging around a woman for a couple of months and hoping that she likes you and then another guy comes along, talks to her for a few minutes and then takes her.

[image: Sparks fly immediately]

You then look on in horror and disappointment thinking, “What?! Her and I get along so well. What’s going on here? How could she betray me like that? I thought she liked me?” Yes, she likes you as a friend and likes you as a person, but you’re not making her feel sexual attraction.

Do You Want to Learn How to Make Women Feel Sexually Attracted to You?

[image: Have sex with her rather than just being a friend]

If you want to learn how to make women feel sexually attracted to you, then I recommend that you read my book The Flow. While reading The Flow, you will learn so many different ways to attract women, how to be confident around women and what to say and do to get yourself a girlfriend or get laid.

Then, if you want to learn more after going through The Flow and you want to keep improving your ability to attract women, keep building on your confidence and becoming more attractive to women in how you talk to them and behave around them, then I have all of my other programs for you as well.

How much you decide to learn and how much you decide to improve your ability to attract women is up to you, but if you are one of the guys who don’t even know how to attract women when you interact with them, make sure that you at least read my ebook The Flow.

I used the techniques from The Flow to have sex with more than 250 women and I also used the same techniques from The Flow to pick up my fiancée. The same process that I went through all those times is the same process that other guys are using now after reading my ebook.

It doesn’t matter if it’s a new woman that you’re talking to, a woman that you already know as a friend or a woman that you’ve made a bad first impression on. The same thing is important every time:

Are you actually making her feel sexual attraction for you? Are you triggering that? Are you building it up? Are you making her feel so much desire for you that she has to have you; she wants to be with you and only you? Are you making her feel that?

Don’t waste any more time trying to convince women to like you. Learn how to attract them. Learn how to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of women and you will realize how easy it is.

You’ll realize that you’ve been wasting your time trying to get to know girls and trying to get them to “like” you, when you can actually make them feel attracted to you within seconds and build that up over a few minutes.

It’s very easy to do.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What Do Women Like to Talk About With Men?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In this post, I'm going to give you some examples of things that you can say when talking to a woman.

One thing that I want to point out first though is that you can talk about pretty much anything you want, as long as you are making the woman feel attracted to you.

[image: A conversation with no attraction]

Where a lot of guys go wrong is that they talk to women in a way that only causes her to feel friendly types of emotions. It's more of a serious, formal or friendly type of conversation that doesn't really go anywhere sexual.

You might have seen other guys talk to women and when they start talking to women, sparks are flying immediately. The woman is laughing, she's touching up on him, she wants to talk to him, she wants to be with him and she doesn't want the conversation to end.

There is clear sexual spark between them and it happened so easily. He didn't have to talk to her for hours or get to know her for days or weeks. The spark was created immediately by the way he spoke to her.

[image: Creating a spark when you first start talking to a woman]

You can have that effect on women too by actively triggering a woman's feelings of sexual attraction for you. I'm going to give you some examples of how to do that and I'm also going to explain the most important thing to you and that is why what I'm saying and doing is attractive to women.

Conversation Examples

One thing that I want to make absolutely clear before I give you these examples is this: I'm going to give you examples of what to say that trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman. I'm not giving you normal, boring things to say or a list of random topics to talk about with a woman.

Giving you a list of topics to talk about with women isn't going to help you get a girlfriend or get laid. What you need to do when talking to a woman is trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of her, rather than triggering friendly feelings where she doesn't have any sexual interest in you at all.

When a woman is feeling sexual attraction for you, she'll be interested in talking to you about whatever you want to talk about. However, if she's not feeling any sexual attraction and she's feeling a bit bored by the friendly, polite type of conversation that you're having with her, she's not going to be interested in talking to you for very long if she's actually looking for a boyfriend or a lover.

So, what I'm going to do here is give you some examples of what to say, but I'm going to say it in a way that triggers feelings of sexual attraction. The words that I'm saying to the woman aren't that important. What's most important is how I'm making her feel when I say them.

Example 1

[image: Talking to a nurse]

Imagine that you're talking to a woman and she says that she works as a nurse...

What are you going to say in response to that?

What most guys will say is, “Oh, right...so how long have you been working there?” or “Oh, okay...which hospital do you work at?” and they will have a straightforward, boring conversation that she’s probably a million times before.

That’s not going to make her feel sexually attracted to him.

It might make her feel normal, friendly types of emotions towards him and want to be his friend or continue talking to him in a friendly manner, but it’s not going to make her think, “Oooh...I want to have sex with this guy. I want to be his girlfriend! I want to be with him.”

What will make her feel that way is triggering some sexual attraction. So, if I was talking to a woman and she said that she worked as a nurse, some are the things that I would say include, “Oh a nurse...right, okay...naughty nurse.”

[image: Naughty nurse]

Referring to her as a naughty nurse immediately makes both of you start to imagine something like the image above. Thinking of her as a naughty nurse is what immediately comes to mind for you and then for her after you’ve said it.

You’re saying that in a joking, non-serious manner. You’re just having a laugh, you’re creating some sexual tension between you and her and there’s nothing wrong with that.

[image: Charming guy]

Women love it when a guy can be confident enough to say something funny like that in an easy-going way. He’s not afraid to make a joke like that, he’s not afraid to bring up something sexual and it’s not that serious.

Example 2

Another way to trigger feelings of sexual attraction when a woman (that you’re getting along with and have already made feel attracted to you) says that she works as a nurse is, “Oh right...a nurse...yeah, nurses are hot...I like nurses.”

A lot of guys are worried about giving women compliments during conversation, but giving a woman a compliment doesn’t make you lose any power unless you decide it does.

Additionally, giving a woman when you are also being attractive to her actually makes her feel more attracted to you because she will now see you as being a charming guy. Guys who make women feel attracted to them and give women compliments at time are seen as charming guys. The basic equation is: $\text{Attraction} + \text{Occasional Compliments} = \text{Charming}$.

Example 3

Another example in response to a woman telling you that she works as a nurse is to look at her with a smile and say in a playfully judgemental or slightly suspicious way, “Yeah...right...you look like a nurse.” She will then ask you why (and in most cases she will already be smiling or laughing) and you can say, “...because you’re hot.”

So, why does that attract women?

Simple: You are making her feel sexual attraction in response to your confidence and ability to use that type of humor.

What a lot of guys don’t understand is that the things that mostly attract women are a man’s personality traits and behaviors. So, when I'm saying things like that, what I'm actually displaying to the woman is social confidence and the ability to make her laugh.

I'm showing her that I'm confident enough to say that sort of thing when socializing or when talking to a woman. I'm not intimidated by women and women find that attractive. Additionally, some of the things that I've said there are going to make her laugh.

You might have heard a woman say, "I like a guy who can make me laugh." Making a woman laugh is one of the things that will attract her to you.

Not all of the types of humor that guys use are attractive to women. The most attractive type of humor that makes her feel girly in response to your masculinity. It makes her feel like she's being put on the spot, like you're the more dominant one in the situation and that you're confident enough to play with the situation.

You're not afraid. You're a confident guy who will say and do things like that without fear. That is actually attractive to women and it's very funny.

[image: Talk show hosts who use Playfully Arrogant Humor]

If you pay attention from now on, you will notice that the most popular of the funny, TV talk show hosts use that type of humor. They are not afraid to say things that are a little bit daring or risky or things that put people on the spot. People laugh at that sort of humor when they see others experiencing it or when they experience it themselves.

It's the type of humor that makes women feel attracted and it's the type of humor that makes most people like you, which is why I recommend it (and use it) for success with women and why TV talk show hosts use it to build an audience/following for their show.

Why So Serious?

[image: Sticking to safe, polite conversation]

If you're talking to a woman that you want to attract and have a sexual relationship with, one thing that you need to understand is that you don't always have to talk in a serious, formal, straightforward manner.

What's most important to a woman is how she feels when she's interacting with you. Does she feel bored or does she feel excited? Does she feel turned on or does she feel turned off?

Talking to a woman in a logical, intelligent, serious manner the whole time isn't going to make her feel sexually attracted. She might be impressed about how intelligent you are and how good of a guy you are, but it's not going to make her feel like she wants to have sex with you any time soon.

However, when you trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of her, then the fact that you're also an intelligent, good guy is simply a bonus to her. She feels excited about meeting a good guy who she also feels attracted to.

The thing that makes a woman want to have sex with you or start a relationship with you is sexual attraction and that is something that you need to actively trigger. When you're talking to a woman, you need to be actively triggering feelings of sexual attraction.

The more ways that you can make a woman feel sexually attracted to you, the more attracted and interested she will be.

Example 4

Another example of conversation is where you've been talking to some women in a bar for a few minutes and you then make a joke about them having to buy you a drink.

A mistake that a lot of guys will make when they're talking to women in bars or clubs is to buy them drinks as a way of keeping the interaction going.

A guy like that is hoping that he will make her feel guilty and obliged to keep talking to him, so he will then have enough time to grow on her. Yet, more time talking to her while not making her feel attracted isn't going to make her want him.

There's nothing wrong with buying a woman a drink in a bar, as long as it's not done as a way to buy more of her time and attention. Feel free to buy a woman a drink if you're actually getting along well with each other and she is attracted to you. Getting a drink at that point is absolutely fine.

The conversation example I want to give you here is where you're talking to some women for a few minutes and you're laughing and having a good time together.

After a few minutes of conversation, you can say something like this with a smile, "Y'know...I've been talking to you girls for two or three minutes here and none of you have offered to buy me a drink. It's like...where's your manners? My drink is empty here...what's going on here?"

You're joking about that. It's not a serious thing to say.

You're not being serious and you're not making a demand that they have to buy you a drink. You are just joking around about it and that will make them laugh because women usually ask guys to buy them a drink, but you're actually saying it first.

Think about it...

That is the type of humor that a funny TV talk show host would use. They playfully put people on the spot, reverse roles, etc. It's funny. You can't get into any trouble for it because you're only joking. It's completely harmless...and it's funny, which is attractive to women.

One thing that you need to know about talking to women that you want to attract, is that you don't have to be serious all the time. A lot of intelligent guys struggle with talking to women because they don't want to talk about anything that might be seen as silly or that isn't serious or formal.

They really don't want to talk about anything (e.g. "pointless" small talk) that doesn't showcase their academic intelligence or good intentions. As a result, guys like that often avoid joking around about things because they don't want to come across as someone who isn't serious about life or who isn't a very smart man.

However, when you're talking to women, you need to be able to make them feel attracted to you. You need to trigger feelings of sexual attraction by making them feel attracted to you in many different ways. Using humor is just one of the ways to make women feel attracted to you.

At The Modern Man, I teach guys how to make women feel attracted to them in more than 100 different ways. Some of the conversation examples I've given you so far are just showcasing three or four different ways of attracting women in very subtle ways. You can actually attract women in more than 100 different ways.

Example 5

[image: Talking to girls at university]

Another example of conversation is not about a woman who is working, but a woman who is at university. So, say for example a guy is talking to a girl at university and he then asks her what she is studying. She tells him that he is studying medicine.

He can then say what almost every guy will say to her at that point, which will be something like, “Oh wow...that’s really cool. Good on you!” That’s what most guys are going to say to her because they just want to be nice to her and give her a compliment.

They don’t even know that they can make her feel attracted in that moment.

So, instead of just being the typical nice guy who gives her a compliment and is trying really hard to show her that he is good guy, he can make her feel attracted.

BTW: There’s nothing wrong with being a good guy. You should be a good guy, but you can also make women feel attracted to you at certain moments in a conversation!

When she says that she is studying medicine, he can say something like this to make her feel attracted to him...

“Oh, medicine...that sounds pretty easy. I mean, when I saw you I thought you looked like a smart girl. I thought I you might be studying something a little bit more difficult than that.

Medicine...anyone can do that. Anyone can be a doctor. It’s like...oh, okay – you’ve got the flu? Here, take these antibiotics...it’s not going to work, but there you go...or...oh yeah, cut his leg off...we won’t be able to save that leg, sorry.”

By making her laugh and displaying confidence like that, he will be attracting her in two different ways at once. That is much better than just being friendly and not creating any sexual attraction.

A comment like that is not meant to be serious. You are just joking around and having a laugh with her. You’re creating a funny situation out of nothing, which is attractive to women. Women are attracted to guys who can make them laugh and who are confident to say things like that and not be afraid of making a mistake.

[image: Rejected for playing it too safe]

A lot of guys are afraid to say something that a girl might not like. They are worried about making a mistake while talking to her, so they just shut up and don’t say much at all. They stick to safe, polite and friendly conversation, but that’s not what makes women feel attracted.

Topics to Avoid

For the record here, there are some topics that you should try to avoid when you’re talking to women...

Those include: Death, murder, rape, disease and things like that. Obviously, getting into those types of topics isn’t going to make a woman want to have sex with you, but generally speaking, you can talk about whatever you want to talk about as long as you’re not being really serious about it all the time.

A lot of guys make the mistake of trying to show women how intelligent they are, how much of a good guy they are, how trustworthy they are as a guy and how loyal they are. They hope that by showcasing those traits to the woman, it will eventually make her think, “You know what? This guy’s a really good guy...I’ve got to have sex with him. I’ve got to give him my phone number!”

Yet, the way that it really works is that you've actually got to make a woman feel attracted to you. You've got to trigger feelings of sexual attraction (not friendly, non-sexual feelings) by the way that you talk to her and interact with her.

Why Some Guys Get All the Girls...Even Though They Aren't as Intelligent as You Are

[image: Getting all the girls]

You might have seen it happen before...

You might have seen other guys who aren't as intelligent as you are, who aren't as good of a guy as you are, but when they talk to a woman, sparks fly between them within seconds. Minutes later, you see them kissing and leaving the party, bar or club together.

[image: Sparks fly immediately]

What's happening is that the guy is taking the shortcut to success with women. He's not trying to get to know her for hours, days or weeks before he reveals his sexual or romantic interest. He's making her feel sexual attraction for him right away and moving things right along.

It's actually a more honest, direct and effective approach to use than "playing it safe" and acting like a friendly guy who doesn't have any sexual interest in her.

What a lot of guys make the mistake of doing is thinking, "Well, I'm going to talk to this woman and I'm going to tell her all about myself...I'm going to listen to her and what she's got to say. I'm going to try my best to connect with her and then hopefully, she's going to like me."

Whereas, what you actually need to do is trigger her feelings of sexual attraction for you right away. Once a woman's feelings of sexual attraction are triggered, you then build on that and connect with her. If you don't know how to do that when talk to women, you have to learn it.

Do You Have All the Answers For Success With Women Already...or Do You Need to Learn a Few Extra Things About Women?

[image: Do you need to learn?]

Most guys need to learn how to be more successful with women....not just you. You're not alone with this.

Some guys have a natural ability with women and they learn this sort of stuff instinctively as they grow up. Just like you might be better at certain things in life compared to other guys, the guys who are naturally good with women currently have an edge over you.

Yet, that doesn't mean you can attract women like the naturals do. You can actually do it better if you learn what we teach here at The Modern Man.

If a guy isn't naturally good with women, he might be lucky enough to grow up with a father figure who can teach him how to be successful with women. If that isn't available, he might have uncles, brothers or cousins who can teach him where he is going wrong with women.

However, if you are one the guys who haven't had that type of upbringing or if you are one of the guys who isn't naturally good with women, you actually have to learn how. If no-one around is teaching you this stuff, you've got to actively learn it.

100 or 200 years ago, men didn't have to learn this kind of stuff because women needed men. Back then, a man could talk to a woman he liked and make all sorts of mistakes that get modern men rejected and he would still be able to marry her.

[image: The old days...]

Women had less options to choose from and needed to find a man to marry. If a woman didn't marry young and become a housewife, she was looked down upon and seen as weird. Back then, society basically looked at the life of a woman as being about serving a man. Cooking for him, cleaning and taking care of the offspring, while he went out and earned money to take care of them.

In the past, a man would basically have to show that he could take care of a woman and provide for her. He would court her, buy her gifts and show her that he was capable of taking care of her. He would then ask her father for her hand in marriage and they would lose their virginity on the wedding night.

Ahh, so easy...

Back then, men didn't have to know how to attract women or be great at conversation. If you began courting a woman and she showed some interest, it essentially meant that you and her were going to get married...even if you sucked at conversation.

Yet, today (whether anyone likes it or not), it's all about instant attraction and living life on your own terms. Society has changed and is not going back to the 1800s or 1900s. You either adapt or get left behind.

These days, most women are allowed to have sex before marriage and they happily do so. Most women don't need a man for their survival because they can earn their own money and be protected by the society around them. As a result of that, most women only select men that they feel very attracted to.

When a woman interacts with a guy, if he doesn't make her feel sexual attraction, then there is no need for her to have be with him. She doesn't need him. She is looking for a guy that makes her want him, but she doesn't actually need a man for her immediate survival.

Why Aren't Women Interested in Me?

A lot of good guys come to my website and ask me questions about why they are struggling so much to get a girlfriend or get laid. Over the years, some guys have said things like, "I don't know what it is with women these days...I talk to them and they don't like me. I'm a good guy, so how can I show her that I'm actually a good guy...I'm not going to hurt her...I'm a trustworthy guy, so she should be with me."

Yet, that's not everything that a woman needs to feel or know to want to begin a sexual relationship with you. What she wants to feel is sexual attraction, not just nice, friendly feelings for you. Being good is not good enough. You also need to make women feel sexual attraction.

What a lot of good guys don't realize is that most guys in this world are good guys.

If you're talking to a woman and are thinking that you have an edge over other guys because you're a good guy, then think again. Women have a huge selection of good guys to choose from, but being good isn't what turns a woman on sexually.

What turns a woman on sexually are the male personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women. In your life right now, you are either triggering those feelings of attraction in women when you interact with them, or you're not.

If you're not triggering those feelings when you're interacting with women, then it doesn't matter how good of a guy you are. There are loads of other good guys who would happily have sex with her as well, but what she is trying to find is a guy who makes her feel sexually attracted.

Want to Learn More About Conversation?

I hope you've learnt something useful from the examples of conversation that I've provided in this post.

If you now want to get an in-depth education on how to talk to women and make them feel attracted to you and want to be with you sexually and romantically, then I have a program for that called, The Ultimate Guide to Conversation.

The Ultimate Guide to Conversation is an audio program that Ben, Stu and I put together. Ben, Stu and I are the coaches here at The Modern Man. To create the program, we met up on several occasions (months of work) to plan and create a structured program that teaches a guy how to talk to women so he can get a girlfriend, get laid or make a woman fall in love with him during a conversation.

Before getting into the recording studio to record the audio, we spent a lot of time discussing exactly what we say that makes women feel instantly attracted and how we make women fall in love with us during a conversation.

We also discussed where guys go wrong, the mistakes they make and how to easily fix those mistakes so a guy can begin talking to women in a way that instantly sparks attraction and then builds on that to create intense feelings of attraction inside of a woman.

When everything was ready, we put it all together into a structured program called, The Ultimate Guide to Conversation.

In the program, you will learn what to say to start conversations with women, how to keep conversations going and keep them interesting, how to flirt with women and create a sexual vibe, how to get a woman to fall in love with you during a conversation and want to have sex with you and be your girlfriend.

[image: I don't know what to say to women]

So, if you are one of the guys who needs to learn how to attract women properly, don't be afraid of that. Don't think that it's something you need to hide or feel ashamed of. Some guys are naturally good with women, but not all guys are.

As for me...

I had to learn how to be good with women and same with Ben from The Modern Man, but Stu is a natural and has always been good with women. In the past, I used to walk up to talk to women and feel extremely nervous about it. I didn't know what to say or how to get them to feel attracted to me. I'd start talking to women and run out of things to say within 30 seconds to a minute. I'd then be standing there facing an awkward silence and I would just leave. I didn't know how to get past that, but I kept going out and approaching women and I eventually worked it out.

As for Ben, he was going out to approach women long before we met and we all met at a time where the three of us (Ben, Stu and I) were successful with women. I'd worked it out, Ben had worked it out and Stu had always been good with women, so we joined forces and started The Modern Man.

Knowing What to Say

Conversation is one of those things that guys really need to be good at if they want to be successful with women.

If you're talking to a woman and you don't know how to charm her, make her feel attracted to you and want to have sex with you by the way that you're talking to her, then you're going to have a really difficult time getting yourself a girlfriend.

So, if you don't know how to make women feel attracted to you when you talk to them, go ahead and listen to The Ultimate Guide to Conversation and learn this stuff, so you can start attracting women and have your choice of women.

[image: The Ultimate Guide to Conversation]

You are either going to go through your life and get this education from your father, your uncles, your cousins, your brothers or friends who can teach you, or you're going to learn from us.

That is one of the reasons why we're called The Modern Man...

Never in human history has it been possible for men to help each other like this from across the world. I can be your friend, I can be your brother, I can be your cousin, so to speak. I can be there for you and same with Ben and Stu. We can be your male peer group that teaches you the essential lessons that you need to learn to be successful with women.

Once you learn this stuff and start using it, you will see how easy it is to attract women. If you're interacting with women at the moment and they're not really feel attracted to you, that's because you're not actively triggering feelings of sexual attraction inside of the woman/women.

You might be triggering a bit of sexual attraction, but you're not triggering enough.

At The Modern Man, we teach guys how to make women feel attracted to them in more than 100 different ways. You can attract women in so many different ways and during a conversation is the best time to do it.

When you're talking to a woman, you can make her feel attracted in 20 or 30 different ways during a 5-minute conversation. It's actually very easy to do, so if you're interesting learning more about conversation, check out The Ultimate Guide to Conversation

You will really enjoy listening to the program and you will learn so many amazing insights about attracting women and get so many examples of what to say to make women want you.

It's a 10-hour audio program where you will learn exactly what to say to start conversations, keep them going and keep them interesting, build on a woman's sexual attraction and desire for you to the point where she just has to have you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Is Being Shy a Turn Off For Women?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Yes and no.

Most women are turned off by shyness in men. However, there are some women who will accept a shy guy and put up with him for a while.

Some women will stick by a shy guy in a relationship or marriage, but most women won't. When a woman gets tired of not being able to feel sexually attracted to her shy guy, she will usually break up with him, have an affair or cheat on him and then dump him.

I know this because I help new guys to get their ex back every day. In about 65% of the ex back cases I deal with, the guy lacks confidence in himself with women and either got lucky when he picked up his girlfriend or got married to a woman who secretly didn't feel much attraction for him.

Four Types of Women Who Will Accept a Shy Guy

Generally speaking, the four types of women who will initially accept a shy guy are:

1. Anti-social women

[image: Anti-social girl at home]

As you may have seen throughout in your life, some shy guys are still able to get themselves a girlfriend. Often, the type of woman who accepts a shy guy will be going through a phase in her life where she hates society, can't be bothered interacting with people and just wants to read books on philosophy, listen to music or watch TV.

Yet, as you may have also seen throughout your life, most people usually change as they mature, or when they start a new job or take on a new hobby and meet new friends. Anti-social people don't always remain anti-social for life.

Just because a woman is currently going through an anti-social phase in her life and is currently willing to accept a shy guy who also hates socializing, it doesn't mean that she won't later learn to love being around other people.

When the formerly anti-social woman suddenly wants to attend BBQs or weekend cookouts with friends and go to parties, but her shy guy tries to hold her back from that, she will begin to resent him for it.

She will feel like they are growing apart and that she is holding him back in life. From there, the couple will usually begin to fight and the relationship may gradually fall apart.

[image: Losing interest in her shy, anti-social guy]

I've seen more than 100 cases of that sort of thing with the guys that I help to get an ex back. The anti-social girl starts out accepting his shyness and social insecurity and then later feels attracted to a confident guy that she meets at work, at university or through friends.

She then cheats on the shy guy or just dumps him and gets right into a new relationship with the confident guy. The shy guy is then left worse off than when he first started. The break up causes him to lose even more confidence in himself around women, which makes him even less attractive to other women.

So, don't bet on an anti-social woman putting up with your shyness for life, or for very long. In many cases, an anti-social woman will change and if you are still shy when she becomes confident, the relationship may begin to fall apart or she may act on her desire to be with a confident guy who is now more compatible with her.

2. Unattractive women

If a woman is unattractive and can't seem to get confident guys interested in her initially or maintain their interest when in a relationship, she will eventually begin to feel drawn to shy guys who lack confidence.

The unattractive woman will feel safe with a shy guy because he will usually feel lucky to be getting a chance with pretty much any girl he meets. After all, most women aren't attracted to him because he lacks confidence in himself, so he too gets to the point where he is willing to accept pretty much any half decent (or even unattractive) woman he meets.

When in a relationship, the shy guy won't be able to attract many other (or no) beautiful women because he lacks confidence, so the unattractive woman doesn't have to worry so much about losing him. She knows that he will need her for his emotional security and that she has a higher chance of holding on to him compared to a confident guy who can easily attract other women.

Meanwhile, the shy guy will secretly continue to feel attracted to prettier, more beautiful women and when the initial novelty of having sex with his unattractive girlfriend has worn off, he will begin to feel like he is living a lie by being with her.

He may turn to porn, try to attract a new woman or put up with being in a relationship with a woman he isn't attracted to because she pays half the rent or mortgage. Not a happy life to live!

3. Manipulative women

[image: Manipulative woman]

Another type of woman who will accept a shy guy over a confident, alpha male is an emotionally manipulative woman.

This type of woman will get a shy guy into a relationship and then keep him under control by regularly threatening to break up with him. Before allowing him the pleasure of kissing her for the first time, she might get him to take her out on several expensive dates.

Even then, she will make him work for it. He will have to be on his best behavior or else he won't get any kisses or sex. She will essentially have him "under her thumb" and he will pretty much do whatever she wants to please her and hopefully stay in a relationship with her.

Yet, all of his good efforts really won't matter to her.

She will take whatever she wants from the shy guy and then discard him when she finds a more confident guy who actually makes her feel attracted and respectful towards him.

[image: Manipulative woman]

After spending a few years helping new guys to get an ex girlfriend or wife back, I see a lot of cases that involve manipulative women.

Sometimes, I'll be helping a guy who is trying to get a manipulative woman back and she will be making demands to him like, "Pay my rent and I'll let you see me" or "Buy me an engagement ring and then I'll think about it" and then she takes the rent or ring and she still continues to refuse to see him.

Other times, the guy will have been willingly doing those sorts of things prior to talking to me (without her even asking him to!), in the hope that it would get her to give him another chance.

Yet, it doesn't.

A manipulative woman doesn't respect guys who keep allowing themselves to be pushed around by her. He has to stop falling for her games and start being a stronger man.

What makes any woman give a guy another chance is when he makes her feel a renewed sense of respect, love and attraction for him. It might sound like paying for her rent and buying her gifts would accomplish that, but it doesn't. In most cases, it makes the ex lose more respect for her guy because she sees that he is continuing to be emotionally manipulated and pushed around by her.

You can't buy a woman's sustained attraction for you, nor can you rely on a woman being nice to you for life just because you're a good guy. If you don't make a woman feel increasing amounts of love, respect and attraction for you in a relationship, it's only natural that she will begin to lose interest over time.

For a relationship to be successful, you have to be able to deepen the feelings that you and her share. You can't expect a woman to stick around because things were good in the beginning. It's not the early 1900s where breaking up was shameful. Most women are not embarrassed to break up and move onto another guy if they don't feel like they've found the right guy.

The start of a relationship is the easy part; pretty much anyone can do that. The part of a relationship that requires real knowledge and skill is in deepening the woman's love, respect and attraction for you.

[image: No sexual spark with the shy guy]

Too often, a shy guy will get into a relationship with a manipulative woman who will lead him on for months or even years, before eventually dumping him when she finds herself a replacement, when her girlfriends become single again and want to go out clubbing or when she feels like going on an overseas holiday to "find herself."

Yeah, "find herself" in the arms of a confident man who will give her the emotionally attractive experience that she has been craving all along. Find herself with her legs up in the air, screaming, "Give it to me! Yes! Yes! Yes!"

I know, it sucks to think of a woman doing that behind a shy guy's back, but think about this...

Guys who aren't attracted to their woman often end up doing something pretty similar. Some men also cheat on women that they aren't attracted to. It's not only women who do it. A lack of love, respect and attraction means that a relationship can and often will fall apart.

As a man, if you want to avoid being cheated on, dumped or divorced in this life, you've got to know how to properly attract a woman when you meet her (this allows you to have your choice with women, so you can then choose a truly compatible woman) and then deepen her feelings of love, respect and attraction for you over time.

4. Casual dating women

[image: A woman who is only interested in casual dating]

You might be surprised to know that some women don't really care if they have sex with you, get into a dating relationship and then break up with you.

It really doesn't matter much at all to them.

To some women, that's how life works and they see it as a completely normal and acceptable thing to do. Some women see a new relationship like trying on a new dress or pair of shoes. She will wear the dress or shoes until she is bored of it and she will then get something new.

Unfortunately, a lot of shy guys and guys who lack experience with women don't know about that. So, when a shy guy meets the type of woman who is fine with casual dating, he will often get his hopes up and think that he's just scored the love of his life. In many cases, the woman will be prettier than most (if not all) of the women he's been able to attract before.

He will feel like he has hit the jackpot. To him, she is the one and wants her and only her. Yet, in her mind, it's simply going to be a casual fling and she'll then dump him when she's in the mood for something new and more exciting.

[image: Shy guy being broken up with]

If a woman is attractive and can have her choice of men, she will know that the shy guy isn't the confident guy that she has been dreaming of meeting. She will know that she doesn't have to settle for an emotionally weak or sensitive man.

However, since she is in the mood for a bit of love and affection from a shy guy who will most-likely pour his heart out to her and treat her like a princess for a while, she opens herself up to it.

Days, weeks or months into the relationship, the casual dating woman then turns around and says, "I don't think we should see each other anymore. I initially thought I wanted a relationship, but now I know that I'm not ready for something as serious as this" or "I need space to find myself."

A guy can get a woman back under those circumstances, (I've literally helped more than 100 guys to get that type of ex back), but he has to know how to make her feel really attracted to him. He has to fix shyness and social insecurity and rapidly become a more confident guy.

When his ex sees that he is rapidly becoming confident every day, she then starts to feel like she's made a mistake by breaking up with him. She suddenly feels more attracted to him and she knows that other women will too.

She then opens herself back up to being with him and the relationship can continue on. Then, as long as he knows how to make her feel more respect, love and attraction for him as the relationship continues, there will no reason to break up again.

The casual dating woman will realize that she has found a guy who feels right for her (i.e. she wants to stop dating other guys and just be with him, fall further in love, maybe get engaged, get married and start a family, etc.) and she will then want to stay with him.

Of course, there is no guarantee of keeping a woman like her by his side for life (because she may not see a break up or divorce as a shameful, devastating thing for her), but at least he will now be in the position of power in the relationship.

If he wants to break up with her, he will be able to do so without fear. His confidence and ability to attract women will ensure that he can easily get a new woman.

After becoming a confident guy and interacting with women throughout his daily life, after a while, he will almost certainly have a number of women waiting in the wings and hoping that he breaks up with his current girl.

Shyness Isn't the Secret to Success With Women

[image: No sexual spark with the shy guy]

Often, when a guy asks me something like, "Is being shy a turn off for women?" he is secretly hoping that the answer will be, "No, of course not! Women love shy guys. They think shyness is so cute! Be shy! Weakness is great!"

Yes, imagine for a moment that the secret to success with women was about being a shy guy...

Imagine a world where the weaker men were, the more attractive they would be to women.

Guys would be extremely nervous, shy and wimpy around women because they'd know that it would turn women on. The more emotionally weak and vulnerable a guy was, the more women would like him.

Male politicians would go red in the face when giving a speech and then bow their head down in a shy, bashful way as they shyly passed the microphone to a woman. "Here, you say it...I'm too shy...I'm going to go out the back and cry." The woman would then "be the man" and lead the way for him and humanity.

She would then approach him later on and say, "Hey sexy...I saw how scared you were before. I am completely wet. Bang me! Bang me you nervous wreck! Bang me you wimp!"

Single guys who were trying to get laid or get a girlfriend would need to go overboard to show their shyness to the point where they'd literally run and hide when a woman said "Hi."

A woman would say "Hi" and the shy guy would scream, "Ahhh!!! A Woman! Ahhh!! I'm feeling so shy! I'm so embarrassed! I'm super insecure!!" and he'd then run away as fast as he could. The woman would then turn to her girlfriend and say, "Wow! Look how shy and afraid he is! Did you see that? He was so scared of me. I want him!"

That would be one weird world to live in.

Back to reality here...

[image: Too shy to approach women]

In the real world that you live in, women don't want you to be shy around them. Shyness doesn't make her wet, it doesn't make her melt and it doesn't make her swoon. Shyness stops you from approaching women that you find attractive.

When a shy guy talks to a woman, she almost always doesn't want to keep interacting with him because she doesn't want to feel responsible for making him feel shy and insecure. She wants the awkwardness to end and often, rejecting the shy guy in a cold way is the only way she can end the interaction quickly enough.

[image: Shy guy being left out of the group]

Even though some women will accept a shy guy initially, almost all women are turned off by emotional weakness.

Whether she is a young girl or a mature woman, she wants you to be confident and emotionally strong, not insecure and weak. We live in a world that usually isn't nice and easy all day and night. Life is challenging even at the best of times and women rely on us men to stand up and be strong for them, for ourselves and for the rest of humanity.

[image: Women need the strength of men, not the weakness]

Humanity needs your strength, not your weakness. As a result, women feel naturally attracted to a man's strength and turned off by his weakness.

Shyness isn't something that is going to protect a woman or save the day. It is an emotional weakness that comes from a lack of understanding about how to be emotionally strong.

To overcome your unnecessary, unhelpful and unattractive shyness, you have to get rid of your social insecurities. When you do that, you will be confident. Look at these dictionary definitions and you will probably see that connection yourself.

Get rid of insecurities and you will be confident. When you are truly confident (not faking confidence or trying to feel confident, but truly confident), your shyness will go away. It's as simple as that.

Shy (adjective): Being reserved. Having or showing nervousness or timidity in the company of other people.

Insecurity (noun): Lack of confidence or assurance; self-doubt.

Confidence (noun): Belief in oneself and one's powers or abilities; self-confidence; self-reliance; assurance.

If you are a shy, socially insecure guy, it simply means that you don't know how to be confident right now.

Your shyness is not a permanent thing that you are stuck with no matter what.

Either no one has taught you how to be confident so far in your life, or you have suffered so many rejections and have had so many bad social experiences that you've become attached to the identity of being a shy, fearful guy around women or in social situations.

Yet, here's the thing...

You are not weak.

Your true spirit within is powerful and you know it. You are stronger and more powerful than you give yourself credit for.

You simply need to learn how to tap into the infinite confidence within you and bring that to the forefront from now on. You have to stop adding fuel to the fire of your shyness and social insecurity and start adding fuel to the fire of your confidence and emotional strength.

Your strength is where your power is. Emotional weakness will never get you what you really want in life.

[image: Breaking up with an emotionally weak man]

Yes, you might be able to still get a girlfriend while being a shy guy, but don't count on her sticking with you for life or for very long at all. Shyness isn't sexually attractive.

Women don't need or want your weakness.

Women (and the world for that matter) want and need you to be strong.

A woman wants to be able to rely on you to be the strong one, so she can relax into a more feminine role around you. She can cry when life gets tough, she can feel scared when watching a movie and she can cuddle into you and feel like is protected by your masculine confidence and emotional strength.

Feeling girly in response to your masculine confidence turns a woman on in a way that she will rarely, if ever, admit in public. It makes her wet, it makes her melt and it makes her want to open up and receive the guy. It's a turn on.

Women crave the confidence of men, just like we men crave the beauty of women. We men feel intense attraction to a woman's physical appearance and women feel intense attraction to our mental and emotional strength.

It's just how nature works.

Sure, some women will put up with being with an emotional weak or sensitive man for a while, but secretly, she won't feel much or any sexual attraction for him.

Think about it...

Just like when a guy is with an unattractive woman and spends a lot of time secretly wishing that he could be with a beautiful woman, a woman will secretly wish to be with a confident man if her guy is emotionally weak.

Why is it So Easy For Women?

[image: Why is dating so easy for women?]

If a woman is shy, most men are not turned off by it at all. In fact, most guys like a girl who is a bit shy because she will usually be easier to dominate in the bedroom and manage in a relationship.

Shyness can make her look more appealing, which is why many women put red or pink make up on their cheeks (otherwise known as "blush") to attract men. Having red or pink make up on her cheeks makes the woman seem like she is shy and is blushing, which then attracts men to her because she looks like more of an easy target.

She gets approached more, hit on more and has more of a selection of men to choose from.

Yet, it doesn't work that way for shy guys or guys who blush because women aren't seeking the weakness of men. They are seeking our strength.

[image: Stop wasting your life being without women. Be strong so you can naturally attract women]

When a shy guy is single, he might say to himself, "Why is it so difficult to get a girlfriend? I just don't have any luck with women. They're so picky!" or he might say, "Women these days are all bitches. All they want is a bad boy who treats them like shit. I'm a nice guy and they reject me. It's ridiculous."

He might try to blame other things (e.g. his looks, lack of height, etc) for his lack of success with women, or say that the women in his town, city or country are too difficult to pick up.

Yet, as I explain this video, none of those things are the REAL reason why he is failing with women...

No matter how much a shy guy complains or attempts to console himself, nothing changes the fact that most women are turned off by emotional weakness. As a man, you have to understand and accept that women aren't seeking our weakness. It's not what gets them aroused.

Are You Man Enough For the Types of Women You Really Want?

When a woman first meets a guy or observes his body language from afar, she will instinctively analyze whether or not he is man enough to make her feel the way she really wants to feel.

Will he be able to make her feel girly in response to his masculine confidence, or will she have to be gentle with him because he is so emotionally weak or sensitive?

Will she end up feeling like more of a friend, big sister or even mother figure to him, or will she feel like his woman? Will she be able to look up to him and respect him as a man?

Will she ever be able to truly surrender herself to him (body and mind) during sex, or will it just be boring sex where the only real sensation is the physical penetration and touch? Will he ever be able to penetrate her body and mind with his masculine power?

Since shyness is an emotional weakness, the idea of submitting (sexually) to less powerful force than herself just doesn't feel right to most women. Most women secretly yearn to be with a guy who feels stronger than themselves, mentally and emotionally.

They want to open up and be penetrated by an emotionally strong man, not a weak, confused guy who is lost in his insecure thoughts.

By the way...

When I talk about strength, I'm not talking about physical strength or muscles; I'm talking about your emotional and mental strength.

In other words, are you the sort of guy who buckles under pressure when she tests you by poking you in an emotional weak spot, or do you remain calm, confident and in control no matter what?

Can you handle her pressure, or do you lack the emotional strength to remain strong? Can she rely on you to be strong now and in the future?

If your aim is to get a woman to have sex with you or want to be your girlfriend, you have to make her feel like a real woman. A big of making her feel that way is being out her girly feminine side by being a real man in her presence.

[image: The spark dies and then the cheating often starts]

This exact same rule applies with young women or mature women. Girls and women are sexually attracted the strength in guys all across the world. It's just how nature works.

It doesn't matter what country you live in or what race you are from, you are a human and so is she. Human women seek the strength of human men. It turns them on like nothing else.

Two Common Mistakes That Shy Guys Make With Women

[image: Bored with a shy guy]

Since a shy guy lacks confidence, most of the women he meets won't feel enough attraction for him to want to get into a relationship.

After experiencing a lot of rejection or being ignored by attractive women for most of his life, a shy guy may make one of the following mistakes...

Mistake #1 □ □ Trying to get a woman to “like” him, rather than making her feel attracted to him.

[image: Why do women keep rejecting me?]

Many shy guys will overcompensate for their lack of ability to attract women by trying very hard to be likeable.

For instance, he might be really nice to a girl and hope that she “gives him a chance,” or try to show a woman that he is a good, generous man who has a great job and can support her. He will give her the impression that he will do whatever she wants or buy her whatever she wants in return for getting to be her boyfriend.

Yet, that is a failing strategy.

Buying gifts or expensive dinners for a woman, being really nice to her and being a very courteous guy isn't what makes her feel sexual attraction and desire.

It might get the woman to like him as a friend (or a manipulative woman to use him for a while), but it won't make her feel any lasting sexual attraction or respect for him.

[image: Yes, I like you as a friend, but that doesn't mean I want to have sex with you]

What a lot of guys don't realize is that there is huge difference between a woman liking a guy and a woman feeling sexual attraction for him. According to the dictionary and Wikipedia respectively, the definition for each word is as follows:

Like (verb): To regard with favor; have a kindly or friendly feeling for.

Sexual attraction: Attraction on the basis of sexual desire.

If a woman likes a guy as a person or a friend, it doesn't automatically mean she will ever be interested in having sex with him or being his girlfriend. What makes a woman want to have sex with a guy is sexual attraction, which can be sparked in more than 100 different ways during an interaction.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

Being a good, likeable guy is great, but if you want to enjoy your choice of women and maintain the attraction of a woman in a relationship, you have to be able to make a woman feel sexually attracted to the way you interact with her.

So, when you first meet a woman, don't focus on trying to get her to like you; get her to feel attracted to you. When a woman feels a lot of attraction for you, she will then look at everything else about you in a more positive light.

Additionally, since you're most-likely a good guy already (most shy guys are. I used to be a shy guy myself), she will end up falling in love with the fact that you're not only making her feel intense attraction, but you're also a great guy.

When a woman meets a guy who not only makes her feel a lot of attraction, but is also a good guy, it's like hitting the dating jackpot. It's the equivalent of a man meeting a beautiful, sexy woman who also has a sweet, loving personality.

Most guys wish they could get themselves a beautiful, sexy woman who has a sweet, loving personality and most women wish they could get a confident man who is also a good guy. You're most-likely already a good guy, so all you need know is confidence and the ability to make women feel attracted to you when you interact with them and you're set for life.

Mistake #2 ◻ ◻ Being the good, reliable, helpful friend and waiting patiently in the friend zone.

Another common mistake that many shy guys make is putting on an act of just wanting to be friends with a woman.

Since the shy guy fears being rejected by her or is afraid to show her that he wants to have a sexual relationship with her, he will pretend to just want to be friends.

Secretly, he is hoping that, over time, he might be able to "grow on her" and she will then give him a chance to be with her. He focuses on being the best friend she could ever have and she happily welcomes all the attention, favors, gifts, compliments and kind gestures.

Yet, all it takes for him to be pushed aside is another guy to come along who knows how to make her feel sexually attracted and who is also confident enough to move in for a kiss and begin a sexual relationship with her.

The shy guy might have been her friend for months or years, but she will almost always leave him behind without even worrying about it. In her mind, he is just a friend, so there's nothing to think about, but in his mind, she is "the one" so it is a devastating blow.

The shy guy might then see her behavior as mean, selfish, rude or even as a cold, brutal act of betrayal because he thought that the way to a woman's heart was to be a nice friend to her.

All that time, he had been trying to show her that he respected her and was willing to wait, when all he had to do was make her feel sexually attracted and she would have immediately become interested in having a sexual relationship with him.

Unfortunately for shy guys, most women enjoy the convenience of having a shy guy in their life who is secretly in love with them (e.g. he will be a shoulder to cry on when she has problems in a relationship with another guy, he will do favors like help her move house, pay some of her rent when she is strapped for cash or drive her around so she can go shopping, etc.).

In most cases, the shy guy isn't the man that she looks at as being "the one" for her. She might lead him on by saying that she does like him or that she wants to be with him, but isn't ready for a relationship, such women are usually just being manipulative and using the shy guy. If she wanted to be with him she would. It's pretty simple.

So, don't try to be a woman's friend in the hope that she will reward you with sex and loyalty.

You have to start a relationship with a woman based on her feeling attraction and respect for you as a guy. From there, you need to deepen her feelings of love, respect and attraction for you throughout the relationship.

If you don't know how to actively keep the spark alive in a relationship, it will almost certainly die out and you will either have to continue on feeling miserable in an unhappy relationship or you will end up divorced or dumped after investing loads of time, money and energy into her and the relationship.

[image: Breaking up]

As a man, you need to know how to actively trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman when you meet her and when you're in a relationship. It is the most important skill that a guy needs to have when it comes to success with women.

Watch this video for more info...

Being Held Back By Shyness

Being a shy, insecure guy is not something that you have to be stuck with for the rest of your life. You can break free of your shyness and unleash your powerful inner spirit onto the world around you. The world wants you to be strong and so do women.

You can be the confident guy that women feel sexually attracted to and men respect. You don't have to let shyness and social insecurity maintain a strangle hold on your life and mind any longer.

[image: Confident guy with all the girls]

You also don't have to continue being the guy who waits in the background as other guys take all the hot women, while all you get is the empty feeling of blowing into a tissue after jerking off to porn.

You can have access to real, beautiful women.

In fact, you deserve it.

...and you probably know that.

You probably already realize that you'd be a much better boyfriend or husband than most of the guys you've seen women with. So, don't let shyness hold you back anymore.

Build Up the Confidence to Approach and Talk to Women

When I built up the confidence to approach and talk to women, it automatically began to fix a lot of my social insecurities and shyness.

I began kissing women after minutes of meeting them, having sex with new women pretty much every weekend and I made loads of new friends. After a while, there was no reason to be shy anymore and I've been confident ever since.

Watch this video for some beginner tips to help you begin building up the confidence to approach women...

Overcoming your shyness won't take you years to accomplish. Most guys who learn from me are confident within days or weeks, depending on how quickly they begin to use my techniques.

In my programs here at The Modern Man, you will find powerful confidence boosting techniques that you can use to become more confident right now. As a former shy guy myself (I actually suffered from social anxiety years ago), I can and will show you the way to confidence today.

If you are interested in becoming more confident, why waste another day of your precious life asking, "Is being shy a turn off to women?" and hoping that the answer is...

"No! Women love shyness. Keep being weak and everything will be okay. You will be the guy who women take pity on like they do in the movies. Don't worry about being confident. Just be emotionally weak and women will take care of you. Weakness is winning!"

Yet, you know very well what the truth is...

Being emotionally weak SUCKS.

Right?

[image: Being emotionally weak sucks]

Your lack of confidence with women ruins the moment for you at the worst possible times. When you want to approach a woman you find attractive, when you're talking to a beautiful woman, when you're on a date or even when you're in the bedroom.

You hate the fact that you keep being held back by shyness and insecurity, but the question is: Are you willing to fix it?

Are you willing to become a stronger man?

Believe me, you CAN be stronger.

You really can.

Deep down, you know that your inner spirit is powerful. You are much stronger and more powerful than you probably realize. True, unstoppable social confidence is within your reach.

So, why even bother wasting another day or your life being held back by shyness and social insecurity when you can fix it right now? I'm here to help you make it all happen today and it is going to be a LOT easier than you might imagine.

I developed my techniques by first fixing my own confidence issues and then helping guys for years. This is what I do.

If you want to overcome your shyness and transform yourself into the powerful man that you know you can be, I am ready to help you right now.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Is it Okay For a Man to Compliment a Woman on Her Appearance?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Yes.

There is nothing wrong with complimenting a woman on her appearance or beauty. However, if your objective is to begin a sexual relationship with a woman, there is a general rule that you should follow when giving her a compliment.

General rule: Make a woman feel attracted to you before giving her a compliment about her attractiveness.

You can break that rule if you want to, but to ensure things flow smoothly when you interact with a woman that you intend to have a sexual relationship with, you should always start with making her feel attracted to you first.

For example: If you are interacting with a woman in an unattractive way (e.g. being too nice, feeling nervous or intimidated by her, etc), then your compliment won't be very important to her.

If she isn't feeling attracted to you, why should she care that you find her attractive?

A woman wants to be with a guy who she feels attracted to as well. So, if you compliment a woman before making her feel attracted to you, she will usually assume that you're only giving her a compliment because you are hoping to impress her and get her to like you.

If she gets that impression from you, it will almost always make her play hard to get from then on. To avoid making a woman play hard to get with you, what you need to do is make her feel attracted to YOU first. Once she feels attracted to you, she will welcome your compliment and look at you as being a charming guy.

Attraction + Compliment = Charming

[image: Attraction + Compliment = Charming]

Charming (adjective): Pleasing, delightful.

Charm (noun): A power of pleasing or attracting through personality or beauty.

When you make a woman feel attracted to you and then give her a compliment on her appearance, she actually sees you as being charming. You are not only making her feel the tingle of sexual attraction, but you're also a loving guy who isn't afraid to express his attraction and appreciation of her. To a woman, that is like hitting the dating jackpot.

Yet, if you are only being nice, neutral or friendly to a woman and you then give her a compliment, she will usually just see it as a nice gesture and thank you for it in a friendly way. So, instead of trying to be her friend or be seen as a nice, good man who only wants to talk to her, make sure that you start things off by making her feel sexually attracted to you.

Always remember: Attraction first and everything else after that.

[image: Make her feel attracted and then give her a compliment]

By starting with sexual attraction (i.e. making her feel attracted to your confidence, masculinity, vibe, conversation style, tone of voice, etc) and then giving her a compliment, you allow her to experience what she has been hoping to find in a man (i.e. to meet a man that she is attracted to and who is also a great guy).

Your compliment has so much more meaning and value because she is attracted to you too. She feels lucky that a guy whom she feels attracted to also finds her attractive.

Complimenting Her Without First Making Her Feel Attracted

[image: Complimenting a woman without first making her feel attracted]

Most guys in this world have never been taught how to attract women.

In fact, most guys are going through life thinking that the only way to attract women is with looks, money, height and social status. That's pretty much all we get told by the media and by friends who have also been brainwashed by the media.

Most guys (I used to be one of those guys) aren't even aware that the most intense types of attraction that a woman can feel, happen when she is interacting with a guy. In other words, the woman feels attracted to his confidence, personality, conversation style and the way he behaves during the interaction.

Guys who don't know how to attract a woman during an interaction will sometimes try to over-compensate with extra compliments to make up for their lack of ability to get women interested. Since they haven't been able to make women feel attracted to their looks, they will try to get women to "like" them (not feel sexually attracted to them) for being a nice guy or a really good guy to her.

To be clear...

There is nothing wrong with being a good man. In fact, I recommend it. What I teach here at The Modern Man is about being a good guy alpha male, or what women refer to as a "real man." So, let it be clear that I am not saying you shouldn't be good to women.

What I am saying is that being really nice to a woman, laughing at all of her jokes and basically trying to show her that you are good man is NOT what makes her feel sexual attraction.

Being really nice to her might make her like you as a friend and ask you things like, "Why don't you have a girlfriend? You're such a nice guy. I'm surprised that you are single!" or say, "Don't worry...you'll find a great girl one day and she'll be lucky to have you." Yet, you actually like HER and she doesn't seem to be interested.

When that happens to you, what is missing the key ingredient of sexual attraction.

You are most-likely doing a great job of being a likeable guy and you are probably a good, honest man, but if you haven't been able to pick up your choice of women, you have simply been forgetting to include the most important thing that needs to happen when you FIRST meet a woman. What is that thing?

Sexual attraction.

...and lots of it.

As a man, you have to make a woman feel sexually attracted to you and then build on that attraction. The easiest ways to do make a woman feel attracted to you are based on what you SAY and DO when you interact with her. Watch this video for more info...

If you don't actively trigger feelings of sexual attraction in a woman, she will either lose interest in talking to you within minutes or she may even reject you right away.

Looks can attract women, but most women (not all) place more important on how a guy makes her feel during an interaction. As a man, you can't rely on your looks, your job or other external things to hold the attraction and interest of a woman.

A woman's attraction for a man is almost always based on his personality, behavior and communication style. She picks up on those things during an interaction, so don't expect women to approach you and say, "Wow! Nice shirt. Wanna have sex?" or "Hi...umm...you have nice muscles...can I get your number?"

Most women will look at what you say and do during an interaction. You will either know how to attract her or you won't. It's as simple as that.

If you don't make a woman feel attracted to you when you meet her, then there is no real value in giving her compliments about anything. Sure, she will appreciate them and giving compliments is a nice thing to do, but complimenting her isn't going to make her think, "You know what? He's such a great guy. I've got to date him!"

To make a woman want to date you or have sex with you, the first thing you need to do is make her feel sexually attracted to you.

Attraction comes first and everything else happens after that.

You Don't Lose Your Power if You Give a Woman a Compliment

[image: You don't lose your power if you compliment a woman]

You will find a lot of amateur advice online that suggests you will "lose your power" if you compliment a woman.

Yet, here is my expert advice on that topic...

As a man, you NEVER lose your power unless you decide that you have lost it. That applies when you are talking to women and with anyone else you meet in life.

In terms of complimenting women, what you need to understand is that there is nothing wrong with being a charming, loving guy. In fact, it's a GOOD thing to be like that. People love and respect confident, charming guys who aren't afraid to love others.

You can give a woman a compliment on ANYTHING and it does not make you lose any power.

You are still the man.

[image: Charming guy]

You are the one who decides who has the power. If you feel like she is more powerful or valuable than you, then YES – she is. However, if you retain your sense of self-respect, you don't lose any power. That doesn't mean you need to put her down or think that she is beneath you. Simply love and accept her for who she is and treat her as an equal.

“No one can make you feel inferior without your consent.” Eleanor Roosevelt (Former First Lady of the United States), 1884-1962.

The only time you will “lose your power” in an interaction with a woman (or with anyone for that matter) is when you decide that you’ve lost power.

For example: Imagine that you’re talking to an attractive woman.

You look at her and are struck by her beauty. You feel so attracted to her and immediately want to be with her. As you focus on your attraction for her, you suddenly begin to feel like she is way more valuable than you are. In your mind, you are secretly hoping that you can get her to like you enough to give you a chance with her.

In an attempt to get her to “like” you as a person (rather than making her feel sexually attracted to you), you give her lots of compliments and hope to win her over. Secretly, you feel like you’re not good enough for her and that she has the power in the dynamic between you.

In that case, yes – she will have the power, but it’s only because you decided to give it to her. She doesn’t own the power; you gave it to her. She didn’t take it from you; you automatically offered it to her by looking up to her as being more powerful and valuable than you are.

You did it.

Not her.

You gave your power and she happily took it as a reward for making you feel attracted. She then sensed that and felt like she probably was too good for you. She then secretly began to hope that she will meet a guy who she feels lucky to be with.

Don’t Be Afraid of Expressing Love and Appreciation

When you can give a woman a compliment in a confident, masculine and fearlessly loving way, it actually impresses her. She looks at you as a valuable guy who believes in himself and has the confidence and courage to love and appreciate her without fear or hesitation.

Many guys are afraid of expressing love out of a fear of it being rejected. They’ve most-likely tried to express love for women before, but have made the mistake of doing so before they even made her feel attracted to them.

After getting rejected by women, some guys end up feeling bitter. They may even begin to believe that women are crazy and only want bad boys who treat them mean. Yet, that’s not how it works. She simply wants to feel attracted to you first.

So, make her feel attracted to you and the fearlessly express your love and appreciation of her. Be strong enough to show her some love and appreciation, without needing to put her down. By complimenting her, you are not giving her your power. You are simply being a confident, charming guy who sees her as a beautiful human being who deserves the compliment.

No-one loses power. No-one gains power. It’s just an exchange of love.

Two Examples of Compliments That I Like to Use

The first type of compliment that I like to give is about a woman's sex appeal to me. I also add in the fact that I like her, just to make things crystal clear between us.

This is a compliment that you may find difficult to use if you're not used to being this honest with women, or if you think that women will react negatively to sexual compliments like they do in movies, music videos and TV shows.

Here is how women often react to compliments in movies, TV dramas and music videos to entertain the audience...

[image: Woman slapping a man for giving her a compliment]

Yet, in real life...

[image: A man giving a woman a compliment after making her feel attracted]

As long as you make a woman feel attracted to you FIRST, she will welcome the sexual compliment. However, if you say something sexual while also behaving in an unattractive way (e.g. being nervous around her, feeling intimidated, being extra nice in the hope of impressing her, placing her above you in terms of dominance, etc), then a woman will usually react negatively to it.

To be successful with women, you have to know how to make them feel attracted to you. This applies to picking up women for sex or relationships and it also applies to being in relationships. Keeping the spark alive in a relationship requires you to actually know how to make a woman feel attracted to the way you interact with her.

Without the skill of being able to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman, you are basically leaving yourself open to being rejected or dumped. It's just how it works. You have to know how to make women feel attracted to you. It's one of the most important, essential, fundamental skills that every man needs to have in life.

Okay, so now that I've made that clear, here is the first example of how to compliment a woman...

After you've made a woman feel attracted to you at the start of an interaction and have spoken to her for anywhere from 10 seconds to a couple of minutes, smile at her in a confident way and tell her that you find her to be SEXY. Not pretty, not beautiful, but SEXY.

Quick her a quick look up and down in a casual, confident way and then smile and say, "You're sexy. I like you."

If you've made her feel enough attraction for you at the start of the interaction, she will SMILE and love the compliment. She will appreciate the fact that you are being so upfront and honest with her, rather than pretending to only like her as a friend or pretending to be an innocent nice guy who isn't interested in sex.

When she knows that you find her to be sexy, she doesn't have to worry about being rejected by you or waste time trying to work out if you like her. She feels attracted to you and now you've made it completely clear that you feel attracted to her.

Once that is clear between you and her, there is no need for games anymore. You can smile at each other and have a private understanding that you will be having sex shortly. Whether it happens that night, on the first date or after a couple of dates, both you and her know that it's on and it will be happening soon enough.

When you make a woman feel attracted and give her a compliment like that, she actually sees you as a charming guy that she is lucky to be interacting with. She knows that 99% of the guys she meets don't have the ability to turn her on and make their intentions clear the way you just have.

It's literally like a breath of fresh air for a woman. It makes the process of meeting you feel so much more real, open and exciting.

The second compliment I like to give is about a woman's intelligence and beauty.

For example: If you're talking to an attractive woman and she says that she works as an accountant, you can smile and say, "Oh, wow. So you are smart AND pretty. I've hit the jackpot."

By saying this, you are letting her know that you find her attractive and you are also giving her a compliment about being intelligent.

By the way...

Saying that you've "hit the jackpot" does not give her the power, nor does it mean that suggesting you are now going to be trying desperately to pick her up. You are simply being a confident, charming, loving guy and saying how you feel in the moment without any fear.

By giving her such a generous compliment about her beauty and intelligence, it doesn't mean that you now think you are beneath her or that she is the prize to be won. You are simply being a charming, loving guy. It's not anything more serious than that...unless you think it is.

Believe me, love isn't something to be afraid of. As long as you express love and appreciation in an attractive way, women will flock to you. They will appreciate your compliments and see you as a charming guy.

So, from now on...

If anyone tells you that it is wrong to compliment a woman, you now know what the correct answer is. Let them know not to be so afraid of love. Let them know that no-one can take away their power unless they give it to them.

Go ahead and compliment a woman as much as you want, but just make sure that you also make her feel attracted to you. If she doesn't feel attracted to you, your compliments will usually only be seen as a nice, friendly gesture.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Talk to a Girl You Like: Essential Tips

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When talking to a girl you like, the most important thing that you need to do is make her feel attracted to you.

One of the ways that you can do that is by displaying confidence around by while being your true self.

When talking to a girl that he isn't interested in, a guy usually feels easy to just be himself, talk freely, joke around and say whatever he feels like. Yet, when talking to a girl he likes, he suddenly finds it difficult to be his true self.

She Doesn't Want You to Feel Intimidated

[image: She doesn't want you to feel intimidated]

As you may have noticed, most guys feel intimidated by attractive girls. They feel like those girls are out of their league and are too difficult to talk to or pick up.

If the girl that you like is attractive, then she is used to guys feeling intimidated by her. She is also tired and bored of guys wanting her so easily, without her having to do anything to impress them.

Simply based on her appearance, most guys wish they could get a chance with her, which then leads her to wish that she could meet a guy who is more of a challenge and who isn't intimidated.

She Wants You to Turn Her on Make Her Feel Sexually Attracted

[image: She wants you to make her feel sexually attracted to you]

A lot of guys don't know how to attract girls and because of that, they focus on trying to be liked by girls for being nice to them.

They hope that if they are just nice enough to a girl, she will hopefully give them a chance to be with her. Yet, that's just not how it works. Here's whyâ€¦!

If you're reading this now, you are most likely already a good guy. You have good intentions with girls and you are friendly, trustworthy and likeable, but girls just don't seem to be interested in you.

Why is that?

It's not because you're a good guy. It's because you haven't been making women feel attracted to you. Watch this introductory video about attraction to understand what I meanâ€¦!

3 Mistakes to Avoid When Talking to a Girl You Like

A big part of knowing how to talk to a girl you like is in knowing what to avoid doing. Here are some classic mistakes to avoidâ|

1. Don't pretend to just want to be her friend

If you want to have a sexual relationship with a girl, you need to make her feel sexually attracted to you and you also need to let her know that you find her sexually attractive.

Pretending to be her friend and just hanging around her and talking for hours is easy to do, but it doesn't mean that she will want to have sex with you or be your girlfriend.

You can talk to her for hours, but if another guy comes along who knows how to make her feel sexually attracted and then escalates to kissing and sex, it means that you will be slam dunked into the friend zone.

If you've been pretending to want to be her friend and haven't been making her feel much attraction, then she's most-likely going to accept that you just want to be friends. She will also just see you as a friend or someone she knows and won't worry about leaving you behind to hook up with a guy who makes her feel sexually attracted.

You might feel shocked and disappointed when she does that because you had thought you were getting along so well, but what you were missing was the key ingredient of sexual attraction.

You were also pretending to just be interested in her as a friend or pretending that you wanted to take things slow and get to know her for a while, when you were secretly fantasizing about kissing and have sex with her ASAP.

So, don't pretend to just want to be a girl's friend. Make her feel attracted to you, show her that you find her sexually attractive and then escalate to kissing and sex or at least get her out on a date with you.

2. Be a good guy, but don't be too nice

[image: Be a good guy, but don't be too nice]

There's nothing wrong with being a good guy. You do not have to become a bad boy to attract women or have your choice with women.

Yes, some women are attracted to bad boy, but that isn't because the bad boy is a bad person. Instead, it's usually because he is very confident and masculine around her and that makes her feel attracted. She will be aware that isn't a very good guy or isn't very trustworthy, but she will still act on her feelings of attraction for him.

The same thing applies to guys who feel attracted to strippers. A guy might go through life saying, "I want a nice girlfriend who is intelligent, pretty, down to Earth, loyal, sweet, etc."

Then, if he goes to a strip club, all of that will be forgotten when he gives in to his intense feelings of attraction for the strippers. A guy might even go against what he has been telling everyone else and say, "Wow! I would marry her. She's not like the other strippers. She's nice."

He will try to convince himself that she is a nice, trustworthy woman because he wants to act on the intense feelings of attraction he is experiencing.

The same applies to women when it comes to bad boys. Some women will act on their feelings of attraction for a bad boy, even though they know he isn't a good guy for the long run.

So, does that mean you have to become a bad boy to succeed with women?

No!

You simply need to be able to attract women by being confident and masculine around. You do not have to become a bad person to be confident and masculine around women.

You will most likely see what I refer to as “good guy alpha males” (I am one of them) who are even more desired by women than bad boys are. Good guy alpha males are rarely single and if they are, it is by choice. Most of the women that a good guy alpha male meets feel attracted to him and make it known that they like him.

You can still be a good guy and display a lot of confidence and masculinity when you talk to girls. You do not have to become a bad boy or be mean or a jerk to women. You can be a good guy alpha male. All of my programs at The Modern Man will teach you how to be a good guy alpha male. Everything that I teach is based on that.

A lot of guys make the mistake of being too nice to girls in the hope of being liked. For example: He might do her a lot of favors, listen to her talk non-stop about all of her problems in life, laugh at all of her jokes and treat her extremely well in the hope that it makes her “like” him.

Yes, doing that will make a girl like you as a friend, but it won’t cause her to feel sexually turned on by you. What will make her feel that way is you creating a spark of attraction between you and then building on that.

Some of the ways that you can create a spark of attraction is by being confident, masculine (in your behavior, thinking, conversation style and actions), flirting with her and turning her on in different ways during a conversation. If you don’t know how to do that, I recommend that you read my ebook The Flow, which is jam-packed with ready-to-use examples for talking to and attracting girls.

3. Don’t expect her to lead the way

[image: Don't expect her to lead the way]

When you make a girl feel a lot of attraction for you, she will sometimes directly tell you that she likes you. She may even suggest that you and her go on a date or catch up sometime.

However, not all girls are the same.

Some are shy and are worried about getting rejected by you. Some are very confident and will not go on a date or even kiss you unless you pass her confidence tests.

For example: An attractive, confident girl might test your confidence by not contributing much to a conversation. If she sees that you become nervous and unsure of yourself, she has instantly discovered that you’re not the guy she is looking for.

She needs a guy who is more confident than her and who doesn’t buckle under any pressure she introduces into the conversation. To get girls like that, you need to know what to say and do when they test you.

Want to Learn More About How to Talk to a Girl You Like?

If you want to learn exactly what to say and do around any girl (i.e. shy girls, confident girls, very attractive girls, etc), I recommend that you read my ebook The Flow. It is jam-packed with my best tips and techniques for talking to girls, getting them attracted and then escalating to kissing and sex.

I will show you the secrets to making a girl feel LUCKY to be talking to you. She will feel so much attraction for you that things will just flow from one stage to the next seamlessly. It really is very easy to do once you use the right approach with girls.

Most guys don't realize how easy it is to pick up girls. It's one of the easiest, most exciting things that you will ever learn to do in your life as a man.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Meeting New Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Meeting new women is easy when you know how to attract women.

If you try to meet new women and you don't even know how to attract them, it will usually be a horrible experience full of women playing hard to get, not showing interest back or just plain rejecting you.

However, when you do know how to attract women, they immediately open up to you, want to talk to you and want to be with you.

Watch this video for an introductory lesson on what you really need to do to attract women:

Some Guys Make it Look Easy...Because it Actually is Easy

[image: Why is it so easy for some guys to meet women?]

Have you ever noticed how some guys in a group always seem to know the right things to say and do around women to get attention and have their choice with women?

I'm not talking about the loud mouth guys who show off or put other guys down. I'm talking about the guys who have a relaxed confidence about themselves and are able to create a spark of attraction with pretty much every woman they interact with.

Looking on the from outside, you might assume that the girls like him because he is better looking than you or, if you don't know him, you might assume that he's rich and the girls know it. However, in most cases, it's a lot simpler than that.

The guy is simply creating a spark of attraction when he meets a woman and he is then building on that attraction throughout the interaction. If he is good at making women feel attracted to him, he will easily be able to get a woman feeling intense attraction and wanting to be with him—even if he isn't good looking or rich.

Right now, the idea of meeting new women might seem scary or frustrating to you. You may have tried it in the past and gotten a bad reaction from women.

However, that doesn't mean that women don't like you. There is nothing wrong with YOU. The thing that needs to change is that you need to focus on making women feel attracted and turned on when you interact with them.

That's the missing piece of the puzzle.

Are You Enough of a Challenge For Women? Do You Make the Process of Meeting You Feel Exciting or Typical?

Here's the thing—

Most men immediately choose a woman based on how she looks. For example: A guy might look at a woman and automatically think, "Yes, she's hot, I'd have sex with her and date her" or, â€œNo, sheâ€™s fat. Definitely not.â€

We men canâ€™t help it that we are â€œvisualâ€ creatures and that we feel intense attraction for a woman based on the way she looks. This is why many guys will have sex and even get into a relationship with a woman even if they doesnâ€™t like her personality, or even if they know the relationship won't last.

Most guys are simply happy to have sex with the woman and spend some time with her and if it doesn't work out, it really doesn't matter because at least they got laid or got loved.

Women know this.

Women know that men are attracted to them for their looks. If a woman happens to be attractive, she knows that all she has to do is put on some make up, do her hair and wear a tight dress and she will be hit on by numerous men.

This is boring for her.

It is typical.

There is no challenge.

She knows that she can easily get hit on and have sex with men, even if she doesn't have a good personality or can't impress the guy in any other way than her looks.

So, when a guy comes along and is smart enough to be a bit of a challenge for her, he instantly gets her attention.

This is also why you will see plain, and even ugly or fat guys with beautiful girlfriends or wives. It might not make any sense to you why on Earth the woman would be with that guy, but she actually loves him and feels attracted to him. She is excited to be with himâ€¦even if you think he is ugly or doesn't deserve her.

Let me ask you hereâ€¦

How do you feel when you see guys who aren't good looking with beautiful women? Does it annoy you or does it now starting to make sense to you?

Are you one of the guys who assume that if a beautiful woman is with an "ugly" guy or an overweight guy, then the guy MUST be rich. That is the only way she could be attracted to him, right?

Wrong.

Women can feel attracted to men for so many different reasons. When you look closely, you will see many plain or ugly guys who have little or no money, but are still dating beautiful women. Why? These guys have realized that women are more attracted to a manâ€™s personality than to his looks. They are attracting her based on how they talk to her and interact with her. They are using their personality and charm to turn her on, not their looks.

How could a woman like a guy who isn't good looking?

Most women have what I call an â€œOpen Type,â€ which means that she will be willing to be with all different types of guys, as long as the guy has the personality type (i.e. is confident, masculine, mentally and emotionally strong, has purpose and direction in life, etc.) that can make her feel the way she wants to feel.

3 Tips to Help You Meet New Women

Now that you know that you don't have to be Mr. Olympia, a male model and Warren Buffett all rolled into one to meet and attract new women, here are a few tips that you can use right now.

1. Go out with the intention of talking to some new women and making them feel attracted to you

This seems a bit obvious, right?

Yet, you would be surprised at how many guys will say they REALLY want to meet new women and then when I ask them, "What did you do this weekend?" I will hear things like

"I just stayed at home."

"I'm too busy to meet women." (Yet, he spends loads of spare time at the gym, watching TV, hanging out with friends, etc).

"I went to a friends house."

"We had a boys night out...it wasn't about meeting women, so none of us approached any women." (Yet, they looked at girls all night and wished they could have sex with many of them).

"I was playing video games all weekend with my buddies."

I also hear guys complaining that their city or country is a difficult place to meet women. Guys will literally say to me, "I don't try to meet women in my city because they are all stuck up bitches" or...

"Women in my city play hard to get...it's impossible to get a girlfriend here because they expect you to be rich or good looking" even though other guys (who know how to attract women and aren't good looking or rich) are picking those women up, enjoying sex and relationships with them and even marrying them.

So, if you want to meet new women, you have to leave any excuses at the door. You've got to be prepared to at least TALK to some new women.

[image: Wanting to meet women, but not sure what to say or do]

When you do talk to women, you must know how to ATTRACT them. If you try to talk to women and you don't even focus on attracting them during the interaction, of course they will play hard to get or reject you.

Women want to feel attracted to the way you interact with them (i.e. what you say and do), so if you don't know how to do that, you can't expect things to go well. Don't expect women to be nice to you if you are nice to them. You have to start the interaction by making them feel attracted to you.

If you want to meet new women, you have to make a point of going out with the intention of actually meeting women and this means going to places where women can be found standing or sitting around.

This is not difficult.

Women are everywhere; at the mall, at the park, in bars, clubs and restaurants and many of these women are single and open to meeting a new man.

If you're too afraid to approach women in those places, at least go to a speed dating event where all the women are single and looking to meet a guy. If you don't know what to say and do when interacting with the women there, read my ebook The Flow or listen to the section on speed dating in 21 Great Ways to Get a Girlfriend.

2. Display confidence

Women are naturally attracted to the strength in men and turned off by weakness, so confidence is an essential trait that you need to have as a man when picking up women and when in a relationship.

If a guy is confident and self-assured, a woman will naturally feel attracted to him because he is strong. On the other hand if a guy is nervous, insecure, and uncomfortable around her, a woman will perceive him as being weak and she will find it difficult, if not impossible to feel any real attraction for him.

If a woman perceives you as a weak guy (mentally and emotionally), she will not feel sexually attracted to you unless she is the sort of woman who wants a weak guy that she can control. However, such women usually end up dumping or divorcing those guys when they are ready to move on and hook up with a real man.

If you are nervous and unsure of yourself, a woman might want to be your friend, but when it comes to choosing a guy she would willingly have sex with and date, a woman will choose a guy who makes her feel sexual attraction as a result of his confidence and other personality traits that demonstrate he is a strong guy.

Fortunately, confidence is something that can be developed very quickly. If you want to learn how to have the confidence to approach women, start by watching the free video below:

3. Create an unforgettable connection

In addition to creating a spark of attraction between you and the woman, you also need to know what to say to keep a conversation going and keep it interesting for long enough to create an unforgettable connection.

Not knowing what else to say, some guys resort to asking the woman as many questions as they can, hoping that it will somehow keep things going long enough to create a connection.

Yet, when a guy is asking things like, What's your name, What do you do for a living, Do you have a boyfriend, it usually just makes the woman feel bored and like she is going through the typical, interview style conversation that most guys use.

A woman wants to feel very attracted to you and to then truly connect with you. To do that, you have to be willing to talk to her in a way that creates an exciting connection. You have to be prepared to take some risks and say things that you're probably not used to saying around new women that you meet.

Once you know what to say and do when meeting new women, you realize how easy it is to create a distinct, unforgettable connection with women. You also realize that the majority of guys that a woman meets have no idea how to make her feel attracted and truly connect with her.

This is a power that you can have.

You can instantly stand out from the crowd in a woman's mind. You can be the guy that she is so glad that she has finally met. You can be the guy who doesn't talk to her in the same old way as every other guy who is hoping to get a chance with her.

You can be the guy who makes HER feel attracted to you, rather than only you feeling attracted to her and then hoping to get a chance with her by being nice, polite and friendly. You can be the guy who turns her on.

It's Easier Than You Might Think

[image: Stop wasting your life being without women]

Meeting new women is something you can do right now.

Don't hide yourself away and waste your life thinking that you're not good enough for women.

You are good enough.

You can make women feel attracted to you when you meet them.

If you are unsure about what to say or do when you approach women, don't worry â these are things you can easily learn and that we teach here at The Modern Man.

If you need some help, why not try one or more of my programs and experience the amazing results that 1,000s of other guys from all over the world have been experiencing?

You can do this.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

5 Ways to Make a Woman Want to Have Sex With You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Making a woman feel the desire to have sex is actually a lot easier than most guys realize.

Here are 5 things that you can do to make a woman want to have sex when:

- You first meet her.
- You are stuck in the friend zone or have made a bad first impression on her.
- The spark has died in your relationship and she is no longer interested in sex.

1. Make her feel sexually attracted to the way you are interacting with her

[image: Make her feel sexually attracted to you]

To make a woman want to have sex with you, the first and most obvious thing that you need to do is make her feel sexually attracted to you.

A woman's sexual attraction is mostly based on what you say and do in her presence. For example:

- Does your conversation style turn her on or turn her off?
- Are you able to make her feel girly in your presence, or do you just make her feel like “one of the guys” or like a good friend?

At The Modern Man, I teach guys how to make women feel attracted to them in more than 100 different ways and I provide tested, proven to work examples of exactly what to say and do for each way of attracting women.

The more ways that you are able to make a woman feel attracted to you when interacting with her, the more intense her sexual desire will be.

Two examples of how to make a woman feel attracted to you during an interaction are to:

1. Be masculine: In your energy, vibe, conversation style, behavior and body language to the point where she feels girly (or as some women refer to it as, “feels like a real woman”) in your presence.
2. Flirt with her: Flirting creates a spark between you and a woman when you meet her and it's also one of the things that keeps the spark alive in a relationship.

Those are just two of more than 100 different ways that you can make a woman feel sexually attracted to you.

When interacting with a woman for 5 minutes, you can easily set off 5, 10, 15 or even 20 different attraction triggers.

When you make her feel attracted in many different ways at once, she naturally feels sexually attracted to you and will experience a strong desire to have sex with you.

However, if you interact with a woman and are unknowingly turning her off in 5-20 different ways, then she isn't going to feel much or any desire to have sex with you.

A woman's attraction is mostly based on what you say and do in her presence.

The more ways you can make a woman feel attracted to you while interacting with her, the more intense her desire to have sex with you will be.

That's how attraction works for women.

As a guy, you have to actively make a woman feel attracted to you when you interact with her.

Don't expect her to feel attracted on her own for some random or magical reason. You've got to actively turn her on by what you say and do around her.

2. Make it very clear that you find her sexually attractive

This is an essential thing to do when meeting a woman for the first time, getting to know her and when in a relationship.

[image: Women being insecure about their looks]

According to the Dove Cosmetics international survey on beauty, 96% of women do not consider themselves to be beautiful.

Strange, but true!

Why are modern women so insecure about their beauty?

When a woman compares herself to the perfectly Photoshopped and airbrushed images of women in advertisements or to the sexy women in porn, she realizes that she doesn't look that good without make up or when she isn't dressed up in a sexy outfit.

She knows what she looks like when she is at home alone or when she wakes up and she feels like it doesn't compare to how women in advertisements or porn look.

Even if a woman seems like she is confident about her appearance, statistically speaking (96%), she isn't.

I also know from personal experience that even if a woman thinks she is pretty, she will almost always have insecurities about certain parts of her face or body (e.g. the youthfulness of her skin, her weight, breast size, butt size, etc).

You might look at her and sincerely believe that she is beautiful, but she is thinking, "Hhh...I hate my thighsâI'll never be as sexy as the women who have perfect legs."

So, don't assume that she knows she is beautiful.

In most cases, women feel inadequate for various reasons that they will rarely, if ever, discuss with men.

When a woman is having sex with you, she wants to feel truly sexy in your eyes.

She wants to feel like she is fully accepted by you and that she is safe to be her true self.

If she doesn't feel that way around you, she will feel insecure and won't be drawn to the idea of having sex with you.

How can you make a woman feel sexy in your eyes?

[image: You're sexy, I like you]

When meeting a woman for the first time:

After making her feel sexually attracted to you and chatting with her for 30-seconds to a minute, look at her with a loving appreciation and say, "You're sexy. I like you."

I have never, ever gotten a bad reaction from saying that to a woman.

Women love to be appreciated.

As long as you have made her feel attracted to you during the first part of the conversation, she will be very happy that you find her so attractive and that you have the confidence to say it.

You will see her smile and look happy when you make that comment about her. Make sure you attract her first though! Attraction comes first and everything else follows it.

If you give women compliments before making them feel attracted to you, the compliment will have less meaning and value.

She will see it as you trying to suck up to her or impress her by being nice.

However, if you've made her feel attracted to you first, she will really appreciate it and feel excited about it.

If you don't know how to make a woman feel intensely attracted to you when interacting with her, then keep learning from me! I will teach you more than 100 different ways to make a woman feel attracted to you.

When interacting with a woman you are friends with:

The next time she puts in some extra effort to look more beautiful or sexy, look at her and say, "Wow! Look at you. You look very sexy today."

Don't be afraid to say that to her.

Be honest and let her know that you find her to be sexy.

Don't just tell her she looks "nice" or "pretty" or "beautiful." Tell her that she looks "sexy."

The word "sexy" immediately lets her know that you see her in that way, but referring to her as nice, pretty or beautiful could just mean that you're being polite.

[image: Attract her, make her feel sexy and turn her on with your touch]

If you only ever behave like a friend around her, most women will just accept that you want to be friends and leave it at that.

However, when you make her feel a lot of attraction for you and then let her know that you find her sexy, a spark ignites between you and her.

From there, you just need to know how to go from a conversation to a kiss or a conversation to a date and then sex. It's really easy and natural once you know what to say and do.

When interacting with your girlfriend or wife:

Look at her with desire.

Confidently smile and don't stop feeling of desire for her no matter what she says or does.

Literally tell her that she is the sexiest woman on Earth in your eyes.

Let her feel it by the way that you look at her. Embrace the feeling of attraction that you're having for her.

Let it influence your body language, tonality and behavior. Let her see that you are visibly affected by her sex appeal in a positive way.

3. Build up the sexual tension

[image: Sexual tension in the office]

Sometimes, a woman will be horny and ready for sex without you having to do anything to get her in the mood.

Yet, in almost all cases, most women need you to turn them on by building up the sexual tension between you.

What is sexual tension?

Sexual tension: An exciting feeling that occurs when a man and woman feel sexual attraction for each other, but the escalation to sex is being delayed by them, the environment or circumstance (e.g. they work together, she doesn't want to look too easy in front of her friends by hooking up with him too quickly, he is already in a relationship with another woman, they are engaging in enjoyable foreplay for a few minutes before sex, etc).

Whether you are meeting a woman for the first time, trying to get out of the friend zone with a woman you have a crush on or are 20 years into a marriage, the same rule applies.

Women LOVE the exciting feeling of releasing built up sexual tension with kissing and sex. So, don't ignore the power of sexual tension when it comes to sex!

[image: Sexual tension being released with a kiss]

When you build up sexual tension correctly, a woman not only wants to have sex with you, but she also feels like she NEEDS to have sex with you to release the built up tension between you.

Sex becomes something that she really wants to do with you. She feels the tingle down there and wants to get you inside.

However, if there isn't much or any sexual tension present between you and a woman (e.g. you haven't been actively making her feel attracted to you while interacting with her, she only sees you as a friend, you have been together for 10 years and you can't be bothered trying to build up sexual tension with her, etc), the idea of having sex won't feel very appealing to her.

4. Turn her on with your touch

When meeting a woman for the first time:

Give her a charming handshake when you introduce yourself.

Hold her hand firmly, but gently and maintain eye contact as you keep holding her hand for about 5 seconds while you introduce yourself, "Hey, my name's Dan – I thought I'd come over and say hello to you...you're easily the most beautiful woman in the room."

She will feel turned on by the fact that you were relaxed, confident and didn't rush to let go of her hand.

Doing this is a display of confidence and masculinity that will immediately make her feel girly in your presence.

Then, the fact that you also gave her a compliment makes her see you as a charming guy.

When interacting with a woman you are friends with:

Give her a Goodbye Hug.

When you are parting ways, say, “Okay, I feel like a hug today. Give me a Goodbye Hug” and then hug her warmly for a few seconds.

Then as you exit the hug, say (in a masculine way), “Ooh, I like hugging you” and with a confident smile, add in, “You’re sexy. I like you.”

[image: The Goodbye Hug]

When interacting with your girlfriend or wife:

In this case, I’m referring to getting a girlfriend or wife in the mood who usually isn’t interested in sex.

If the spark has died out in your sex life, you need to actively get that spark back.

Don’t expect it to come back by magic without you doing anything. You’ve got to actively make it happen by interacting with her in an attractive way.

One way to do that is to bring her in for a hug and tell her to relax with you for a minute. Then, begin to touch and caress her very slowly all over her body (don’t rush).

[image: Don't rush as you turn her on with your touch]

She may resist your attempts to get her in the mood if she doesn’t feel like it in that moment, but if you keep telling her that she is sexy (e.g. “I think you’re so sexy. I love you”) and kiss her softly on the side of her neck and just under her ear, she will warm up to it.

Keep touching her all over her body and expressing your desire for her. Your touch and your desire for her will begin to turn her on.

5. Laugh at her pre-sex tests

[image: Laugh at her pre-sex tests]

Women always test men.

You can’t escape it.

Whether you meet a woman for the first time, are on a first date or are 20 years in a relationship, she won’t stop testing you.

For example: If a woman is attracted to you and wants to have sex with you, she might test you by pretending to not even like you or feel no attraction for you, just to see how you respond.

Why would she do that?

She wants to confirm that you are a confident man and are worthy of being in a more dominant position than her.

It’s a natural instinct that women have.

When a woman tests your confidence and you don’t crumble, it confirms to her that you are worthy of being in the masculine position.

It makes sense for her to open up and receive you because you are a more dominant, masculine force. When she sees that you remain strong and believe in yourself no matter how much she tests you, it allows her to relax into feeling like a real woman around you.

She can trust in you to be the man at all times and that allows her to be more feminine around you.

The best part?

The more feminine that you make a woman feel in your presence, the more sexually turned on she will be when interacting with you.

In my online training programs here at The Modern Man, I provide many examples of how to make women feel feminine in your presence.

I can literally teach you how to make a woman go “weak at the knees” in your presence because she feels so girly and feminine around you.

That is a power that you can easily have...and it's so much fun to do.

Making a woman feel that way is much more efficient and reliable than trying to get a woman to like you by talking to her for hours or taking her out on a series of dates!

You can make a woman feel intense attraction for you within seconds to minutes of meeting her.

You may have seen other guys do that in the past, but not known what was going on and why the woman suddenly became so attracted. You can have the same effect on women.

When you know how to make a woman feel “weak at the knees” in your presence and attract her in many other additional ways during an interaction, you no longer have to hope that women want to have sex with you.

Instead, you make them feel attracted and they then eagerly want to.

One of the ways to make a woman feel some attraction for you is to laugh at her pre-sex tests. For example:

When meeting a woman for the first time:

If a woman feels attracted to you and begins to think about sleeping with you that night, she may test you by pretending not to like you to see if you squirm and become nervous around her.

For instance, she might say, “I just want you to know that I don't sleep with guys that I meet from bars. You're nice and all, but nothing is going to happen between us,” even though you haven't said anything about that yet.

Secretly, she is hoping that you remain confident and maintain your composure.

If you become nervous or have a rejected look on your face, she knows that she won't be able to be her true self in the bedroom with you.

She'll have to be gentle with you (emotionally) or else you might feel insecure—and that isn't a turn on for women.

If she says something like that to you, simply smile and say, “That's alright. I'm a virgin anyway. I'm saving myself for marriage.”

She will laugh and be relieved that you are a confident guy who doesn't become insecure around her when she challenges you.

[image: Laugh at her pre-sex tests]

This isn't a case of women being silly and playing unnecessary mind games with men. She is simply trying to find a guy who is strong enough for her, mentally and emotionally.

There are so many things that women say to test guys when they meet them.

You can pass any test that a woman puts you through and if you want to learn more about that, keep learning from me here at The Modern Man.

I know all the tests that women put guys through and what to say and do when it happens.

When interacting with a woman you are friends with:

[image: Interacting with a female friend]

She might ask you, "So, why do you hang out with me so much?"

The key here is not to answer her in a serious, logical manner or get into a deep and meaningful discussion about how you feel.

Simply smile or laugh and say, "I like hanging out with you because you're sexy and you pretend not to like me."

Believe me, she will laugh and she will love it.

Make sure you've been making her feel very attracted to you first though!

Remember, attraction comes first and everything else follows that. The more attracted you can make her feel before making a comment like that the better.

If you don't know how to make a woman feel intense attraction for you during an interaction, make sure that you keep learning from me.

I teach more than 100 different ways to make a woman feel attracted to you.

It's the easiest, most exciting and rewarding thing you will ever learn how to do in your life!

When interacting with your girlfriend or wife:

If she tries to poke fun at you for being overweight/skinny, bald, etc do not become insecure about it at all.

For example, if she says, "Eww, look at your hair! So dorky" you can laugh and say, "Yeah, dorky, but sexy. I can't help being this handsome! I'm sexy and I know it."

Then, walk over and hug her or kiss her in a relaxed, masculine way.

This turns her on because you are displaying emotional strength around her rather than insecurity.

Women are attracted to the emotional strength of men and turned off by any emotional weaknesses a guy has (e.g. insecure, self-doubt, low self esteem).

When you realize that women want you to display confidence and they actually feel attracted to it (even though many will pretend not to), you will find it so much easier to be the confident guy that you know you are on the inside.

The fact is, there are so many things that you can say and do around a girlfriend or wife in a relationship that will make her feel sexually attracted to you.

If the spark has died in your relationship, it doesn't mean that you can't get it back.

You've just got to start interacting with her in a more attractive way.

The same applies to the single guys reading this...

If you are talking to women and it isn't going anywhere and women don't seem to be very interested, it doesn't mean you can't change that.

When you begin interacting with women in a way that causes them to feel attracted to you, women naturally want to be with you.

Would You Like to Learn More From Me?

[image: Dan Bacon - Founder of The Modern Man and author of The Flow]

If you enjoyed what you've been learning so far, you will absolutely LOVE what you learn in my programs.

What result would you like to get with women right now?

1. I want to get laid or get a girlfriend.

[image: Stop wasting your life being without women. Get laid or get a girlfriend now. It is very easy to do]

Use The Flow the next time you talk to a woman and you will be able to make her feel intense attraction for you. You will know exactly what to say and do to make her want to have sex with you or be your girlfriend.

She will feel attracted to you in many different ways and because of that, the interaction will naturally "flow" from one step to the next. In many cases, the woman will even tell you that she likes you and wants something to happen between you and her.

2. I want to turn a female friend or coworker into a girlfriend, or recover from a bad first impression I made on a girl.

[image: What? I thought she liked me!]

Use The Flow the next time you interact with her and she will feel a sudden rush of attraction for you. When she suddenly feels sexually attracted to you, her behavior, conversation style and attitude will immediately begin to change. She will feel drawn to you and will open herself up to the potential of hooking up with you.

It doesn't matter if you've messed up the initial impression that you made on her.

What matters is that you now make her feel very attracted to you. When you notice that she is attracted to you (you will learn about that in The Flow), simply use my rejection-proof techniques to transition from a conversation to a date, or to a kiss and then sex.

You will be surprised at how easy it is to do and how happy she is when you finally kiss and have sex.

3. I want to get the spark back in my relationship.

[image: Get the spark back before you relationship breaks up for real]

Use the techniques from Make Her Love You For Life to create a brand new dynamic in your relationship that will automatically and consistently build up sexual tension between you and her.

Okay, that brings us to the end of this post. I hope to be helping you further!

Cheers

Dan Bacon

Founder of The Modern Man

The Flow

[image: The Flow]

The Flow is my simple-to-use, proven-to-work process for getting laid, getting a girlfriend or getting out of the friend zone.

I've used The Flow to have sex with more than 250 women.

I also used The Flow to pick up my beautiful, sexy girlfriend, who recently became my fiancÃ©.

The Flow is so easy to use and you will be able to make a woman feel a LOT of attraction for you the first time you try it.

You will be amazed at how easy it is.

I offer a 30-day money back guarantee, so don't waste any more time thinking about it.

Try it for yourself and see! Download it now

Make Her Love You For Life

[image: Make her love you for life]

This is the relationship program that every modern man needs to watch.

You will learn how to create and maintain the ideal type of relationship dynamic where sexual tension is automatically created between you and your woman.

Her respect, love and attraction for you grows over time rather than fading away. Download it now

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Make a Woman Feel INTENSE Attraction For You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In this post, I'm going to teach you how to make a woman feel intense attraction for you.

I'm not talking about a mild attraction where she "kind of" likes you; I'm talking about INTENSE attraction where she has to have you. She wants to be with you and only you. It feels good to be with you. It feels right to be with you and it really turns her on.

This powerful way of attraction that I'm going to teach you applies whether you are:

- Meeting a woman for the first time.
- Getting to know a woman.
- Already deep into a long-term relationship with a woman.

The same fundamental principles of attraction apply no matter what stage of the pick up or relationship process you are at with a woman. You either know how to make her feel attracted in this way or you don't.

What I'm about to teach you is most-likely going to blow your mind. You are never going to look at attraction the same way EVER again.

So, make sure that you read this entire post because I'm about to ask you some questions that you will most-likely answer differently when you finish reading.

Three Important Questions For You Before We Begin

Questions

1. Does a guy have to be tall, handsome or rich to make a beautiful woman feel intense attraction for him?
2. Do you think that it's possible for a guy who isn't rich, tall or handsome to make beautiful women feel intense attraction for him?
3. Is it possible for a man to make a woman feel more respect, love and attraction for him over time in a relationship, or does the spark have to die out in a relationship?

Have a think about that and now let's get into...

The Secret to Making a Woman Feel INTENSE Attraction For You

[image: The secret to intense attraction]

The secret to making a woman feel intense attraction for you is to actively turn her on by the way that you interact with her.

Although a woman can feel attracted to a man's physical appearance, the most intense types of attraction that a woman can feel are based on what you say and do when interacting with her.

This rule of attraction applies when you first meet a woman, are getting to know her and when in a relationship with her.

Generally speaking, you are in complete control of how much or little attraction you want to make a woman feel for you. You can make a woman feel attracted to you in more than 100 different ways during an interaction.

The more ways that you can make a woman feel attracted to you and how you're making her feel, the more intense her attraction will be.

We men are not limited to making a woman feel attracted to us because of our looks and I'm going to show you a lot of proof of that throughout this post.

It's Easy For Women to Initially Attract Most Men For Sex or a Relationship

[image: Easy for attractive women to attract men for sex]

For women, it's very easy for them to initially attract men for sex or a relationship because men are mostly attracted to a woman's physical appearance.

That is why porn exploded on the internet and continues to grow.

[image: Man looking at porn. Initially, men are mostly attracted to the physical appearance of women]

It's also the reason why in the past, when porn was only ever in magazines and video tapes, it was all direct towards men because men feel an intense attraction to a woman's physical appearance.

This doesn't mean that a woman can't feel attracted to a man's physical appearance, but for a woman, the most important thing to her is how you make her feel when you interact with her.

Does your conversation style make her feel turned on it does it make her feel turned off?

Does interacting with you make her feel excited, attracted, in love, feel lustful and all sorts of desirable emotions, or does it make her feel turned off? Does it make her feel awkward? Does it make her feel bored?

As a man, what you need to do to make a woman feel intense attraction for you is to actively make her feel attracted to you, in many different ways while you interact with her.

An Example of a One of the Ways to Attract Women

[image: Using humor to attract women]

An example of one of the MANY ways to attract a woman during an interaction is to make her laugh. You might have heard that women love a guy who can make them laugh. That is one of the ways to make a woman feel attracted to who you are; attracted to being around you, attracted to being with you.

If you look up the dictionary definition of attraction, it is:

Attraction (noun): A quality or feature of someone that evokes interest, liking or desire.

The dictionary definition doesn't say that attraction is about physical appearance. It's about qualities and features that evoke feelings of interest, liking and desire.

Making her laugh is just ONE of the ways that you can make a woman feel attracted to you. At The Modern Man, I teach guys how to make women feel attracted to them in more than 100 different ways.

Most guys are going through life not even knowing how much POWER and CONTROL they have over how much attraction women feel for them. Most guys are going through life thinking, "Am I good looking enough? Do I need to lose weight? Do I need to put on weight? Do I need to build more muscle?"

Many of these guys are completely focused on their looks as if it is the answer to success with women.

The thing is, a woman can feel attracted to a man's appearance, but if it was the most important thing to women, the porn industry would have grown and exploded because of women wanting to look at naked men. Women would have been buying magazines with naked men and then masturbating to that.

...but, that's just not how it works.

What's most important to a woman is how you make her feel when you interact with her.

Yes, I know...

There ARE women out there who will ONLY ever accept a very good looking guy who has millions or billions of dollars (or euros, pounds, etc) and has a perfect gym body. Those women do exist; that is true, but the majority of women have what I call an Open Type.

An Open Type means that a woman is willing to be with all different types of guys (e.g. from different races, different shapes and sizes, different facial features, etc) as long as the guy can make her feel a lot of attraction when he interacts with her.

Hoping to Get a "Wow!" Reaction For Your Looks

[image: Hoping to get a "Wow!" reaction for his looks]

A lot of guys end up feeling very insecure about their looks and I used to think the same way before I actually worked out how to attract women.

Like I used to do, a lot of guys go through life and hope to get a "Wow!" reaction from women based on how they look. They might get a few looks from women (e.g. a woman looks at him, looks away, looks back again and then looks away, etc), but nothing other than "looking at him" happens.

The guy may think, "Okay, that girl is looking at me...she might like me, but nothing is happening here. She's not giving me any clear signal that she wants me to approach her. Maybe I'm not good looking enough."

He goes through life not getting the "Wow!" reaction that he has in response to a woman's physical appearance.

[image: The "Wow!" reaction to a woman's physical appearance]

A woman can simply be walking along the street and men can be having an intense feeling of attraction for her, simply based on her looks.

They don't even care what her personality is like. Simply based on her appearance, most men will feel more than enough attraction for her to want to be with her.

[image: The "Wow!" reaction to a woman's physical appearance]

"Ohh, look at her. I'd love to be with her. I'd love to be with her. Marriage material. I'd definitely have sex with her. I'd definitely want to at least be her boyfriend."

...and that intense feeling of attraction is just based on her appearance.

Guys walk through the world, don't get that "Wow!" reaction from women and then start thinking, "Well, I guess I'm not good looking enough."

Yet, what those guys don't realize is that to make a woman feel intense attraction, you have to ACTIVELY attract her when you interact with her.

A Really WEIRD, But True Fact of Attraction

When you make a woman feel attracted to you in many different ways (e.g. make her laugh, turn her on by being confident, make her feel girly in your presence, etc) while you interact with her, something really weird happens...

She starts to look at what might have otherwise been a negative about you (e.g. big nose, short, bald, overweight, etc) in a positive light.

Those things that you might have thought were unattractive actually become likeable, cute, adorable and sexy to her, even though they aren't considered to be male model features.

She's feeling attracted to how you are making her feel while interacting with her and she actually begins to like the way that you look because it is a part of you.

She feels attracted to you and therefore, begins to look at you in a more positive light.

This is one of the reasons why you will see guys who aren't good looking, with a beautiful girlfriend or wife. You will also hear women referring to their boyfriend or husband as sexy or handsome, even though he doesn't have a good looking face or a perfect body shape.

She likes his physical appearance because it is him and he makes her feel attracted in more important, longer-lasting ways than just mere looks. He might not have a good looking face or a great body shape, but she still finds him to be incredibly attractive, appealing, desirable and loveable.

Instead of looking at his "imperfect" physical features in a negative light, she will see them as being attractive and appealing to her because they are a part of him.

She will actually really like the way that he looks. In fact, she can even love it and come to prefer his type of appearance over what she thought she used to like or want.

This is weird, I know...

It doesn't make much sense for guys who don't understand attraction.

A lot of guys think that they have to look like a perfect male model with a perfect body and then they're going to be able to make women feel intense attraction for them, but that is not how it works.

Yes, a woman can feel attraction to a man's physical appearance, but you are not limited to making a woman feel intense attraction for you based on your appearance.

The most powerful types of attraction that you can make a woman feel are based on what you say and do when you're interacting with her.

When you look around, you will see that the guys who are with beautiful women, usually don't look like perfect, plastic models. They've got weird quirks about them and they've got features that you might consider to be unattractive (e.g. big nose, short, overweight, etc), but the woman he is with finds him to be attractive.

Weird, but true.

Even though he doesn't look like a male model, she says that he is handsome, sexy and desirable. He is her man, she loves him, she loves being around him, she loves the look of him and she loves his unique features because she's feeling attracted to him in many different ways.

On the flip side, if you don't make a woman feel attracted to you when you're interacting with her, then she starts to see your quirks and features that are not considered to be physically good looking in a negative light.

She wonders why she's not feeling attracted to you and she starts focusing on things that she doesn't like about you. "Oh yeah...I don't like that he's bald" or "I don't like that he's got a big nose."

However, that doesn't mean that the same woman cannot feel intense attraction for a guy who is bald or who does have a big nose. She can feel intense attraction for him, if he makes her feel attracted in many other different ways.

Weird, but true.

As mentioned, I teach guys how to make women feel attracted to them in more than 100 different ways.

You most-likely don't know how much power you have when it comes to attracting women. You can make a woman feel intense attraction when you interact with her.

It doesn't have to be about your looks. You don't have to try to use your looks to attract women.

You can use your personality, your communication style, your behavior, your body language, your attitude, etc. There are so many different things that you can do to make women feel attracted to you.

You really can.

A lot of guys go through life thinking, "I'm bald" or "I've got a big nose" or "I'm short" or "I don't have the perfect body" or "My face isn't good looking, so I can't be attractive to women."

Yet, what these guys fail to realize is that their surface features (e.g. being bald, having a big nose, being short, etc) can flick over to being cute, adorable, sexy, attractive, handsome and desirable if he makes her feel attracted in other ways.

The Really Cool Thing About Being a Man

The really cool thing about being a man is that you can be overweight, you can be short, you can be bald, you can have a big nose or you can have a high forehead and bent nose like me and most beautiful women can still refer to you as sexy, handsome and attractive.

Weird, but true.

When you know how to attract women while interacting with them (i.e. based on what you say and do), women then say, “Ooh, there’s something about him. I like him!” and are really drawn to you.

The more ways that you can make her feel attracted to you while interacting with her, the more INTENSE her attraction for you will be. When she is feeling intense attraction for you, it won’t even really matter to her what you look like. Of course, not ALL women will accept a guy who isn’t a perfect male model, but most will.

You might have seen other guys with beautiful women and thought, “What is she doing with him?” You might have been walking along a street and seen a guy walking along with his beautiful girlfriend or wife and he doesn’t look like anything special.

He might have been overweight, short or may not have had a perfect gym body like you’ve been told by the media or online that you MUST have to attract women. “Get the six pack abs and then you get the girl!” or “Build up your biceps and then you’ll get the girl.”

Yet, when you look at what’s going on around in you the REAL world, you realize that’s not even the case. Beautiful women are with all sorts of different looking guys.

Yes, there ARE some women who like the guys who have the perfect body. There’s nothing wrong with working out in a gym and there’s nothing wrong with having muscles, but you don’t actually NEED it to get yourself a beautiful girlfriend or a wife, or to have sex with beautiful women.

You don’t actually need it.

You can have muscles and the perfect body if you want to, but you don’t actually need it.

Some Real Life Proof That You Don’t Have to Be a Perfect Male Model to Attract Women

What I’m going to do now is show you some photos of guys who aren’t good looking, who are overweight or from a race where guys think they can’t pick up women as easily as other races, but they have a beautiful girlfriend or wife.

So, have a look at this guy....

[image: Ugly guy marries pretty woman]

Does he look like a handsome man with a perfect gym body, or does he actually look a bit overweight? How about his face: Does his look handsome, ugly, below-average looking or average looking?

How about these two guys getting married to a beautiful woman, but both guys are heavily overweight and maybe even considered to be obese....

[image: Fat men marrying beautiful women]

Most guys are going to assume, “Okay, he MUST be rich. Money is the only reason why she would want to be with him.”

[image: Fat guy with a skinny girlfriend at the pool]

Yet, that's not always the case.

[image: Fat guys with pretty women]

Most guys in this world aren't rich and are just getting by. Most guys have just got a normal job and earn a normal income.

How about this guy here...

[image: Fat guy with sexy girlfriend]

His girlfriend is beautiful, she's in shape, but he is overweight. What is she doing with him when she could be with a really tall man who's in perfect shape and who looks like a male model? What's going on here?

How about these two guys...

[image: Bald guy with pretty woman. She finds him attractive]

These guys are BALD.

Huh?

What are those women doing with them? Isn't being attractive about having a full head of hair? Isn't that what they tell you on those TV commercials when they're saying that you have to dye your hair and have a full head of hair?

What's going on here? Why would a woman want to be with a guy who is bald?

You've got to have a full head of hair to attract women...right?

How about this guy...

[image: Asian guy marrying pretty white girl]

He's Asian. Hang on...an Asian guy with a white girl...that can't be possible. Yes, it is possible and it's actually very normal and common these days.

Here's a fat Asian guy with a young, pretty white girlfriend...

[image: Fat Asian guy with pretty girlfriend]

How is that possible?

...and now, here are some black guys with white women. What's going on here?

[image: Black guys with white women]

Here's a white guy with a black woman. What's going on here? Here's an Asian guy with a black woman. How is that possible? What's going on? How could she feel attracted to him?

[image: White man marrying a black woman. Asian guy marrying a black woman]

How about this guy with his big ears...

[image: Guy with big ears with beautiful girlfriend]

What's going on there? Why is she with him?

How about this guy...

[image: Guy with a weird nose with a beautiful girlfriend]

Look at his nose. He doesn't look like a typical, good looking guy. He has that weird looking nose, but he's got a beautiful looking girl. Why is she with him when she could be with a guy who has a male model looking face? What's going on?

I mean, have a look at this guy...

[image: Ugly guy with hot cheerleader girlfriend]

What's going on here? This girl is a young, pretty woman and she's with that guy who doesn't look handsome. How is that possible?

Is it actually possible that she's not concerned about his looks now? She feels attracted to him in OTHER ways (no, not money) and she actually sees his physical appearance now about being attractive to her.

Now that she feels a lot of attraction for him for OTHER reasons, she looks at what otherwise would have been negatives about him (e.g. nerdy smile, big eyebrows, nerdy clothes, etc) in a more positive light.

What do you think?

Is it possible that when a woman feels attraction for a guy for OTHER reasons (no, not money), that she stops focusing on what she might have been going around saying that she wants in a guy? For example: "I want a tall, handsome, perfect man with loads of money."

[image: Asian guy with white girlfriend]

Is it possible that a woman can feel attracted to a guy for OTHER reasons and then actually like his physical appearance because it is him?

[image: How is this possible?]

She is attracted to him, she is into him and because of that, she actually looks at his physical appearance in a positive light and even sees it as attractive or handsome?

[image: Everyday couples]

What is going on here? Why are these women (and many others that you've witnessed in your life) not with perfect male models with loads of money? Why is it possible for these guys to have these women? What is going on?

The Truth About Attracting Women

It's actually possible to attract women in ways other than looks, money, social status, being tall, having a big dick, etc.

Not all women will accept a guy who doesn't look like a perfect male model with a perfect body, but most women will.

Most women are more flexible with what they feel attracted to and place less importance on a guy's physical appearance, if he's able to make them feel enough attraction for other reasons.

Before interacting with a guy, a woman will judge him on his physical appearance because she has to make an assessment based on something. However, when a guy interacts with her, his surface features (e.g. having a big nose, being a bit thin, being overweight, having an unappealing face, etc) can flick over to being likeable if he can make her feel enough attraction for other reasons.

This is why it's so important for you to be able to attract women when you interact with them. Your ability to attract women determines the quality of woman that you can have access to and it determines a lot of the desire she will have to stay in a relationship with you.

If you're unable to make women feel attracted to you when you meet them, you won't have your choice with women. In a relationship, if you're unable to make a woman feel increasingly attracted to you over time, the spark will die out.

For the single guys watching this video: If you are afraid of interacting with women and you hide away in the background, you are literally wasting your precious lifetime. You deserve so much better than what you are allowing yourself to experience with women.

A lot of guys waste their life hoping that women will someday, suddenly like them for looking good or for achieving a certain financial status in life. Wasted years tick away and nothing really ever changes.

To be clear...

There is nothing wrong with a guy working out a gym and building muscle. Likewise, there is nothing wrong with a guy putting in a lot of hard work to be successful in life.

You can do those things if you want to, but you can still make a beautiful woman feel INTENSE attraction for you even if you don't have those things.

There are guys out there who don't have a job, have never worked out in a gym in their entire life, are skinny or overweight, but they still have a beautiful girlfriend or wife. They can still make women feel intense attraction for them, or at least enough attraction to begin a relationship.

Your Ability to Attract Women

Throughout your life, your ability to attract women is going to be critical to your success at picking up women and being able to keep a relationship together.

If you're currently single and you're unable to make beautiful women feel intense attraction for you, it doesn't mean that you can't develop that skill. Likewise, if you're currently in a relationship and the spark has died, it doesn't mean that you can't start behaving and talking to her in an attractive way and get that spark back.

Generally speaking, the amount of attraction that a woman feels for you is completely within your control. Most of what a woman feels attracted to is how a man behaves and talks to her, when he interacts with her.

Once you know how to make a woman feel intense attraction for you during an interaction, you realize how much power and control you have over your success with women.

You realize that you don't need to be afraid to walk over and talk to women because you can make them feel attracted. You also realize that you don't need to worry about losing your girlfriend or your wife because you can maintain her attraction and you can build on it over time.

Take Ben from The Modern Man as an example. Ben, Stu and I are the coaches at The Modern Man.

[image: Ben, Stu and Dan - The Modern Man coaches]

As you can see, Ben doesn't look like anything special. In the past, he was a confident guy (unlike me who was nervous around attractive women and had to learn how to be confident), but even though he was confident, he didn't know what to say or do around women to make them feel attracted enough to want to be with him.

Ben never really got anywhere with women and was always the single guy while all of his friends were hooking up with women, having relationships and having a great time. Yet, what Ben did was focus on discovering how to attract women and when he did that, women began flooding into his life.

When I first met Ben, he used to always say to me, "Give me 10 minutes alone with a girl and she's mine" and then later on that turned into, "Give me 5 minutes" and then "Give me a minute" and then, "Just let me interact with her."

Ben has confidence in himself and so do I and does Stu. Yet, how do we do it? How do we have that confidence in ourselves where we can talk to a woman and interact with her and we know that we're going to be able to make her feel attracted?

The reason why I've been able to make so many beautiful women intense attraction for me is because I've focused on attracting women when I interact with them. I know that the most important and powerful ways of attracting women happen when you're actually interacting with them.

"It's Not Fair! Women Have it So Easy..."

When a guy doesn't know how to attract women, it can feel like women have it so easy because all they've got to do is look good and they'll get attention.

However, when a guy knows how to attract a woman by the way that he interacts with her, he suddenly realizes that he is the lucky one. He can be overweight, short, have a big nose, etc and he can still make a beautiful woman feel intense attraction for him.

We men are lucky that women can feel intense attraction for us based on how we interact with them.

When you know how to attract women during interactions, you have your choice with women because most of the women that you meet feel attracted to you. It's really up to you how much or how little attraction you want women to feel for you when you interact with them.

You can decide to set off several attraction triggers during a simple conversation and make her feel a lot of attraction for you. In a relationship, you can make your woman feel increasing amounts of attraction for you over time.

The spark doesn't have to die between you and her. You can make her feel attracted to you by the way that you interact with her.

If the way that you interact with her turns her off and doesn't make her feel more love, respect and attraction for you, then of course the spark is going to die out. However, if the way that you interact with her, communicate with her and behave around her makes her feel more love, respect and attraction for you, then the spark isn't going to die out.

The spark doesn't have to die out in a relationship. You can actually make a woman feel more and more attracted to you over time.

She can fall more in love, feel more respect and feel more attraction for you over time, to the point where it doesn't make any sense to want to break up with you. You are her man.

How Did I Work Out the Secrets of Attraction?

So, how did I work out all of these attraction techniques? How did I work out how to be successful with women?

Well, in the past, I wasn't successful with women.

I was the nervous guy, I was too nice to women and would talk to them and quickly run out of things to say. If I was talking to an attractive woman, I almost always couldn't keep the conversation going or keep it interesting.

I would start talking to an attractive woman and she might give me a chance initially because I dressed well and was appearing to be decent, but then I'd lose her interest because I didn't even know how to make her feel attracted.

I didn't know how to make a woman feel attracted to me while interacting with her. I didn't even know that it was important to make a woman feel attracted during an interaction, other than just being a likeable, nice guy.

I was hoping to be chosen by her for looking good enough, because that's how I selected women. It was a case of me thinking, "Okay, I've got these fashionable clothes on...I've styled my hair in a cool way...can I get a chance with you?"

...but, it just wasn't working.

So, like most guys, I assume that I mustn't be good looking enough. That went on for a long time (years) and I ended up losing a lot of confidence in myself until one night when I attended some after work drinks with my coworkers / colleagues.

The same, old thing happened again: I talked to some women (after having a few drinks to feel confident enough) and they either rejected my attempts to talk to them or quickly lost interest when I began asking them all the standard questions like, "So, what do you do for a living?" and then, "Oh, okay and how long have you worked there?"

I went home alone as usual and my older sister (who I was sharing a rented house with at the time) asked, "So...Dan, did you pick up tonight?" She was asking me in a sarcastic way because she knew that the answer was almost certainly going to be, "No" and it was.

After hearing me say "No" once again, she said, "Oh, don't worry...you've just got to wait for the right girl to come along. Maybe you're meeting the wrong girls."

I explained the situation further, hoping that she would have some sort of female insight to help me understand what I was doing wrong, but she didn't. I said, "I'm talking to women and it just doesn't seem to be going anywhere. It seems like there's nothing really to talk about and it gets boring very quickly."

Once again, she said, "Oh, you're probably just meeting the wrong girls. Wait and the right girl will come along."

That is the point where EVERYTHING changed for me. I said (in a candid, loving way that only a brother can say to his sister), "Bullshit! No! I've seen other guys who've got a beautiful women...they've got a beautiful girlfriend or wife or they have multiple women in their life."

Why can't I have a girl? Why aren't women interested in me? Why am I talking to women and it's not going anywhere? What is going on here? What is wrong? What am I missing?"

Of course, back then, I didn't know what I was missing.

I didn't even know that a guy had to actively make a woman feel attracted to him while he interacted with her.

I was going through life with the peacock bird mentality.

[image: Peacock mating dance]

Look at the peacock bird. He has to attract a female bird by looking all colorful and pretty. "Please choose me! Look at my feathers. Am I pretty enough for you?"

Based on what I'd seen in the media and overheard women say about handsome, good looking men, I thought that it was all about looks.

I thought that I had to get chosen based on how I looked and then try to impress the girl by talking about my job and about what I wanted to do in the future...and then hopefully, I'd be able to get a chance with her.

Yet, that was obviously wrong and trying to be chosen for your looks or career credentials doesn't get you anywhere...and you would know that as well if you've been trying it.

[image: Dan Bacon - home alone...once again]

I was sick of being left out of all the love, sex and relationships that everyone else was enjoying. I knew I deserved better than to be rejected by pretty much every woman I spoke to.

I knew that I was missing a key piece to the puzzle of attracting women, but I just didn't know what it was.

So, I made a promise to myself...

[image: I made a promise to work this stuff out no matter what]

I said to myself, "I'm going to go out and approach women every weekend until I work this stuff out. Until I work out how to start a conversation with a woman and get her attracted to me; to who I am...to like me for me, to love me for me, to want me for me.

I'm going to make that happen."

Luckily, around that time, I made a new friend and he was hopeless with women as well. We made an agreement together and said, "Let's go out there and approach women every weekend and get this worked out."

Initially, it was horrible because neither of us knew what we were doing. I would walk up to women and try to start talking to them and they would either give me a "Get away from us" type of reaction with their body language or they would rapidly lose interest in talking to me within 10 seconds to 2 minutes.

I would always run out of things to say, the conversation would become boring and I couldn't keep the interaction going or keep the conversation interesting enough.

I would then either have to leave because it felt so awkward and even unnecessary to be talking to them or the women would say something, "Um...can you leave us alone now?" or "Sorry, but we're having a girl's night" or "I'm going to bathroom. Bye!" and she wouldn't come back.

It was the same thing over and over again, but I persisted and I stuck to my promise of continuing to approach women until I worked this stuff out.

Eventually I started to work out how to make women feel attracted to me.

[image: Dan Bacon - Living the playboy lifestyle]

I started to work out how to make women feel INTENSE attraction for me. I made women feel attracted to who I was (i.e. my personality, vibe, etc), how I was talking to them and how I was using my body language during the interaction.

[image: Dan Bacon - Living the playboy lifestyle]

I was attracting women in 5, 10 and then even 15 different ways within minutes of meeting them.

[image: Dan Bacon - Living the playboy lifestyle]

I worked out how to kiss women within 10 minutes of meeting them, then within 5 minutes and then almost immediately. I worked out how to take women home for sex from a bar or nightclub.

[image: Dan Bacon - Living the playboy lifestyle]

I worked out how to get sex on the first date (at my place or hers), even if I had met the woman during the day in a shopping mall or cafe and only gotten her number after talking with her for a few minutes.

I worked out how to have multiple women in my life at a time. I worked out how to be confident. I worked out what to say and do around women to have my choice of women.

After enjoying that lifestyle for about a year and a half, I decided to write down everything that I'd discovered and put it into what eventually became my book, The Flow. The Flow is the natural process that you need to go through when you meet a woman, to make her feel attracted to you and want to be with you.

So, if you want to learn how to attract women into wanting to date you or have sex with you (e.g. a woman from work that you have a crush on, meeting women in bars or clubs, meeting women at university, through friends, etc), then at least make sure that you read my book The Flow.

I have a lot of powerful, life-changing programs at The Modern Man and all of them include unique ways of attracting women, becoming more confident and becoming a more attractive man overall.

However, if you're starting out and you want to learn how to attract women and have your choice with women, then make sure that you at least read my book The Flow and experience what it's like to be able to attract women.

Experience what it's like to make a woman feel more and more attracted to you, the more she interacts with you. You can actually have that power and control over your interacts with women.

When it comes to relationships, if you want to learn how to make your woman feel an increasing amount of attraction for you in a relationship, then I have two programs for you.

The first program is The Modern Relationship, where you will learn how to create and maintain the ideal type of relationship dynamic that always creates more sexual tension between you and your woman.

The second program is Better Than a Bad Boy, which is about being the sort of man that a woman not only desperately wants to be with (when you meet her), but stay with when in a relationship.

The respect, love and attraction that she feels for you, deepens over time rather than fading away. It's also about having purpose in life and being what women refer to as a real man.

Women are often found asking, "Where are all the real men?" and a lot of guys think that bad boys are the most attractive type of guy to women, but the most attractive, desirable type of man is a real man. That is what women are REALLY looking for and hoping to meet and be with when in a relationship.

I've Done it and You Can Too

Over the more than 10 years that I enjoyed the playboy lifestyle of having many women in my life, dating (and having sex) with multiple women at once and really enjoying myself, I had many girlfriends who wanted to settle down with me and marry me.

Yet, I was never ready for that until I met my current girlfriend a little over two years ago.

[image: Dan Bacon at a nightclub with girlfriend]

As you can see, she's a very sexy woman and I picked her up even though I don't have a gym body. I don't have the big muscles that are apparently "required" to pick up hot, sexy women.

When I met her, there were plenty of tall guys in the club with muscles and good looking faces, but I was the guy who interacted with her and made her feel intense attraction.

[image: Dan Bacon with girlfriend at Jan Juc beach, Victoria]

Throughout our relationship, her attraction love and respect for me has increased over time, rather than fading away. Recently, her and I got engaged and we're now planning to start a family.

[image: Dan Bacon - now engaged to be married]

I don't want to talk a lot about myself here, but the reason I'm telling you this is that I want you to know that you CAN make a beautiful woman feel intense attraction for you by the way that you interact with her.

You don't have to look like a perfect male model to make a beautiful woman feel intense attraction for you.

What I want you to know is that the most powerful and important ways to attract women happen when you interact with them.

It's about:

- What you say and do when you're interacting with her.
- How your behavior makes her feel.
- How your conversation style makes her feel.

Some women will only accept a super good looking guy with loads of money, but most women have an Open Type and they can feel attracted to all different types of guys, as long as the guy makes her feel attracted in other ways.

What Do You Think Now?

Let's go back to the questions I asked you at the start of the post.

Do you think that it's possible for YOU to make a beautiful woman feel intense attraction for you?

Or...

Do you feel like you can't make a beautiful woman feel intense attraction for you because you're not good looking enough, you're not super rich with millions or billions of dollars (or euros, pounds, etc), you don't have an amazing job or you're not tall enough?

Do you think that, because of things, you cannot make a beautiful woman feel intense attraction for you?

If you think that you can't make a beautiful woman feel intense attraction for you, then read through the article again and look at the photo evidence I am providing.

Attraction works differently than most guys realize. When you look up attraction in the dictionary, it doesn't say, "The feeling that a woman gets in response to a guy's physical appearance."

Attraction is about features and qualities that evoke feelings of interest, liking and desire. A woman can feel attracted to a man for many different reasons; it's not just about looks.

Yes, of course, there ARE women who will only ever accept a tall, handsome, perfect male model with loads of money. That is true, but the majority of women have what I call an Open Type, which means that they're open to being with all different types of guys as the guy makes her feel enough attraction in other ways.

You may not be able to believe that right now. You may not be ready to accept it, but I promise you one thing...

If you don't accept it right now or if you don't understand it right now, you're going to see it all around you in the world from now on.

You're going to see a guy walking along with a beautiful woman and you will notice that he doesn't look like anything special.

You're going to see a guy in a social situation who doesn't look like anything special, isn't rich or isn't high status in society, but beautiful women are going to be attracted to him.

There will be nothing really special about his appearance at all. He will look like an average or even below-average looking guy or he will be overweight, be shorter than you or be from a race that you think can't attract women from other races very well, but women will be into him like nothing else.

The women will feel intense attraction for him and want to be with him.

That is the reality that you live in.

It is real and it is all around you, but you probably haven't understood it until now. Hopefully, now that I've explained it clearly in this post, you won't go and waste your life thinking that you're not good enough for attractive women. You are. You really are.

In terms of relationships...

Do you think that it's possible to make a woman feel increasing amounts of attraction for you over time?

Do you think that it's possible to be one of those couples that you see who are 30-40 years into a relationship, but are still extremely happy together? They are attracted to each other, they are still in love and they still have the "spark" between them.

Do you think that it's possible?

Of course it is.

For the single guys reading this...

If you want to make a woman feel intense attraction for you when you meet her, then you at least read my book The Flow and if you want to learn even more advanced and mastery level techniques later on, then I have all of my other programs for you as well.

For the guys who are already in a relationship...

If you want to make your woman feel a renewed feeling of attraction for you and then deepen that over time, I recommend that you watch The Modern Relationship and if you want to deepen your education and learn more about being the sort of man that women desperately want to be with, then I recommend that you watch Better Than a Bad Boy

Better Than a Bad Boy is about being what women refer to as a real man. When a woman is with a real man, she does not want to leave him. She feels intense attraction, respect and love for him and that grows over time rather than fading away.

Would You Like to Unlock More Secrets of Attraction?

I hope you've enjoyed this post and if you want to learn more, what you've discovered in this post is just a tiny bit of what I can teach you. If you've enjoyed what you've been learning so far, you are going to be AMAZED at what you learn in my programs.

Our techniques, methods and mindsets have come from all of our successful experience with women and from taking guys out for many years into bars, clubs and shopping malls and showing them how to approach women.

Our advice also comes from running seminars for many years, coaching guys on the phone and from replying to all of the comments all over the site for many years to help guys who need a quick question answered.

The techniques that we teach in our programs are exclusive to The Modern Man and no-one else can explain what we understand in the way that we understand it.

What Ben, Stu and I say and do when we're interacting with women is why we've been able to make so many women feel intense attraction for us for so many years. When you know how to make women feel intense attraction for you when you're interacting with them, it's just so easy to attract a woman for sex or a relationship.

Ben, Stu and I have spent a long time creating all of our programs to put all of the advice, techniques, methods, mindsets and insights into structured formats that you can learn and start using in your life right now.

You don't have to waste YEARS of your life and put in loads of hard work to try to work all of this stuff out on your own. You can learn what we've worked out over many years in a matter of HOURS. For you, it's all available in a program. All you need to do is download it and then upload it into your brain, start using the techniques and you will instantly having the sort of success that we've been experiencing with women all this time.

When you interact with a woman for the first time, you're able to make her feel INTENSE attraction for you. When you're in a relationship, you're able to deepen her attraction over time to the point where she doesn't want to leave you.

You can have that power and control over your ability to attract women.

Your ability to attract women determines the quality of woman that you can have access to and the desire that she's going to have to stay with you in a relationship.

You CAN make a beautiful woman feel intense attraction for you and you CAN make her feel more and more attracted to you over time. You really can do it.

[image: Stop wasting your life being without women]

I hope that if you do want to learn how to do it, you get started. You don't go and waste more of your life thinking that you can't do it, "Oh, I'm not good looking enough" or "I'm not good enough."

Yes you are.

You can make a beautiful woman feel intense attraction for you while she is talking to you. You can really do it.

In a relationship, you can make a woman feel more and more attraction for you over time. You can do it.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I'm Good Looking, But Can't Get a Girlfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Recently, a guy contacted me and asked, â€œDan, Iâ€™m good looking, but canâ€™t get a girlfriend. I donâ€™t get it. Why do so many ugly, fat guys get hot girlfriends but I canâ€™t? People tell me Iâ€™m good looking, but women just aren't interested in me. Why? Why can't I get a girlfriend?â€

I would love to personally reply to everyone who e-mails me, but it's physically impossible to be an e-mail buddy to 100s of new guys every week and still have the time to make new posts and videos for the site.

So, instead of personally replying to him (and the 100s of similar messages about looks that I've gotten over the last couple of months), I'm going to explain the answer in this article.

Good Looks Don't Automatically Make You Good With Women

Thanks to the media, most guys these days think that if they are good looking, women are going to line up to be with them.

Yet, in reality that isn't what happens at all.

To show you what I mean, here are a few more comments and questions that I've gotten from good looking guys:

â€œI am 34, unmarried and lonely. All my life I have been called handsome and cute and whatever although to this date I've had sex two times. The first was with a drunk girl I lucked onto at a party and the other was a prostitute. I try talking to women and they seem interested at first but the conversation never goes anywhere.â€

*â€œIts impossible to approach women! I walk around the mall for hours on end trying to do it day after day but never doing it. I know everything about attracting women and what to say and do but I still canâ€™t do it. Iâ€™m so sick of this. Iâ€™m a great looking guy – better looking than 99% of dudes I see, I have a great lifestyle, Iâ€™m a fantastic friend and I have good intentions, anybody would be lucky to date me. No matter how psed off I get with my situations its never enough to motivate to take the plunge and just say something. It depresses the hell out of me sitting in night after night thinking â€œok tomorrow Iâ€™ll do itâ€ Iâ€™ve come to realisation now Iâ€™m just kidding myself Iâ€™m never going to do it. I hate seeing an attractive women with some dweeby boyfriend holding hands. What am I doing wrong?? How can I change? Why aren't my looks helping???â€

â☐☐I regularly get told that I am good looking and people ask me why I don't have a girlfriend all the time, but I am yet to have one single girlfriend in my entire life and I am 27. Please Dan I am asking you to help me. I haven't bought any of your products yet, but I promise I will if you help me.â☐☐

â☐☐i have very big problem and i hope you can surely help me out. most people including men and women tell me how good looking i am;muscular and very tall but my problem is,i find it very difficult to approach girls even the ugliest.AND also find it difficult too talking to guys.i cant look straight to someones face when talking to.AND this has made feel me so shy when i try to approach women and the woman can just see directly from me so i really need your help.â☐☐

â☐☐I am a very good looking guy, I work out and have a great body, I own my own business but I am am shy when I really like a girl. Where am I going wrong Dan? How can I be the man that women want?â☐☐

Why aren't those guys getting laid or getting a girlfriend?

What is the real problem?

Simple...

Most Women Place Less Importance on Looks Than Men Realize

[image: Normal, everyday guys can attract women by creating a spark during an interaction]

It's true that there are some women out there who will only ever accept an extremely good looking guy for a boyfriend, lover or husband.

Women like that will simply reject any who doesn't appear to be good looking according to her standards.

Yet, those women are the minority.

The majority of women have what I call an Open Type, which means that they are open to being with many different types of guys (in terms of looks, race, financial status, height, weight, etc) as long as the guy can make her feel attracted and drawn to him in other ways.

[image: Attracting and picking up women is easy]

Most women (not all) don't select a guy purely based on his looks.

Most women are seeking more important, useful traits in a man such as confidence, charisma, the ability to make her laugh, the potential to do well in life, the ability to make her feel girly in response to his masculinity and the ability to be respected by other men and get along with people in general. If a guy is simply “good looking” or has a great gym body, but his personality lacks substance or appeal (e.g. he is a boring conversationalist, is too nice to her in the hope of being liked for it, is nervous or unsure of himself and makes her feel like more of a friend than feeling girly and sexual around him), most women will reject him.

Some women will feel attracted to him and even try to pick him up, but those women will usually either be unattractive, drunk or weird psychos.

Most attractive women who are normal, confident and looking for a real man will not accept a good looking guy who lacks confidence around her or who doesn't know how to make her feel girly and feminine in comparison to his masculine approach.

The Peacock Analogy

[image: Male peacock displaying pumage]

In the peacock bird species, the male bird shows off his colorful plumage and hopes to be selected by the female bird for his appearance.

In the human species, it is the woman who gets dressed up, wears make up and tries to look as physically appealing as possible to be selected by the best males for her appearance.

Many modern men have become confused with all the advertising messages they see on TV, which show men being adored and lusted after for being good looking, having six-pack abs or wearing the latest fashions.

They have been led to believe that if they just look good enough, women will approach them like female actors do in Hollywood movies and TV shows. Yet, in the real world, the human mating dance has not changed.

Yes, some women are dead set on finding the perfect looking guy who looks like a perfect male model, but the majority of women don't really care that much about a guy's looks at the end of the day.

Most women know that their initial attraction to a guy's looks will fade, so what is most important is his ability to make her feel attracted in other ways for life.

Women LOVE it when they meet a guy who doesn't make the Pretty Peacock mistake of trying to use his looks to attract her and instead uses his personality, behavior and communication skills to turn her on in many different ways at once.

Attracting her with your personality, behavior and communication style allows her to take on the role of being the “Pretty Peacock” and be selected for how she looks, which is how women really want it to be.

It also allows the woman to select a man for how his personality, behavior and communication style makes her feel.

If you go through life trying to get women to select you based on looks, you will be dancing the wrong mating dance. Yes, a man's looks can attract women, but you're not a peacock bird, you are a man.

Women are looking for more useful traits in a man than just a pretty face or perfectly sculpted gym body.

It is a fact of nature that human women can (and will) select a man based on his personality, behavior and communication style.

If you are able to attract a woman with those things, most women (not all) will forget the fact that you don't look like a perfectly sculpted male model.

A guy can be overweight or "ugly" (in your eyes), but to her he will be attractive. It's just the way it works.

A Weird Fact About Attraction

[image: Fat guy with hot girlfriend. She finds him attractive]

When a guy can attract a woman in other ways (e.g. with his confidence, conversation style, humor, special talents or skills, etc), she actually begins to see his "ugly" or previously "unattractive" features as being cute, sexy, appealing, adorable and loveable.

He might be overweight, have a gap between his teeth, be short, bald or from a race that you think isn't attractive, but she will find him attractive.

She may have been going around SAYING that she doesn't like bald guys, but that doesn't mean that a bald guy can't make her feel attracted.

[image: Ugly man with beautiful women. She finds him attractive]

[image: Fat guy with beautiful girlfriend. She finds him attractive]

That doesn't make any sense to a guy who is good looking when he sees it because he doesn't understand what attraction REALLY is. The dictionary definition of attraction is:

Attraction (noun): A quality or feature of someone that evokes interest, liking or desire.

Even though women will go around SAYING that they only want a good looking guy or a handsome man, it does not mean that they cannot feel attracted to average looking or "ugly" men for other reasons.

[image: Fat guy with sexy girlfriend]

[image: Asian guy marries white girl. She finds him attractive]

People can SAY whatever they want, but what you should focus on is what they actually DO. A woman might go around saying that she wants a handsome footballer or a rich businessman, but she will happily have sex with or even marry a guy who isn't either of those things, as long as he can attract her in several other ways.

[image: Bald guy with pretty woman. She finds him attractive]

This fact of attraction is a difficult thing for most men to accept, but it's the true reality of the human mating dance. You either accept it or you go through life feeling insecure because your Pretty Peacock dance still isn't working.

You either believe what you see in the media and what women SAY or you watch what people actually do.

There is a huge difference between what people think and say and what they actually do.

People can say whatever they want, but the reality is that women can (and do) feel attracted to men for many different reasons other than looks and money.

Most guys don't realize how easy it is to attract a beautiful woman because most guys approach and hit on her in the wrong way.

Imagine Being a Beautiful Woman...

[image: Imagine being a beautiful woman]

Imagine for a moment that you're at a social event with a hundred other guys and one beautiful woman walks in.

How many of those guys would want to hit on her, have sex with her and have her as their girlfriend?

Most-likely all one hundred of them.

Yet, approximately 95 out of 100 of them wouldn't really care whether or not she has a nice personality, is intelligent or has good long term potential as a girlfriend or wife.

They are going to feel sexually attracted to her and want to be with her based on her LOOKS.

Now this is where the big difference comes in between men and women.

The beautiful woman in the room knows that she can have any one of those hundred guys if she really wants to...and that's just so boring for her.

She knows that men are attracted to her because of her looks, so for her, getting a guy is not a challenge.

If a woman is beautiful or at least decent looking, all she has to do is dress a little sexy, put on some makeup and do her hair and she can have pretty much any guy she wants.

Yet, there's no challenge for her with that game.

It's too easy.

After experiencing the same thing her entire life where guys are hoping to get a chance with her simply based on her looks, she develops a need for a guy who makes her feel lucky to have been chosen by him.

She wants to be with a guy who makes her hope to get a chance with him. A guy who doesn't want her just based on her looks and makes her impress him first, before he becomes fully interested.

[image: The life of a beautiful woman]

Yet, finding a guy like that is next to impossible for a beautiful woman. Most guys react to their feelings of attraction and show 100% interest in her immediately or pretend not to be interested, but she can tell that they are.

[image: Happy couple at the cinema]

It's not easy for a woman to find a guy who can make her feel the way she really wants to feel when with a guy.

If she is beautiful, most guys will instantly like her, want to have sex with her and will hope to be chosen by her for looking good (e.g. having big muscles, wearing fashionable clothes, having a good looking face, etc).

Yet, almost all women don't want to select a male for his looks like the peacock bird does.

Instead, she looks for men who have more important traits that human men need to survive, thrive and prosper in this world (e.g. confidence, determination to succeed, ability to get along well with others).

A man's looks isn't going to make her feel safe, protected and girly, but his masculinity (in how he thinks, behaves and takes action in life) will.

His pretty face or perfectly sculpted gym body isn't necessarily going to pay the bills when they are trying to pay off a mortgage and raise a family, but his determination, emotional strength and social intelligence will.

A woman wants a man who can make her feel attracted in longer lasting ways, rather than just the fleeting feelings of initial physical attraction that she may feel for a good looking guy.

[image: Happy couple - pregnant]

Seeing the couple above, some guys will think, "Huh? How could she let herself get pregnant to him!?" and they will assume that the guy must be rich or have a huge dick. Yet, most guys aren't rich and most guys have an average-sized penis.

So, what else could she be attracted to about him?

Is it possible that his personality traits, behavior and way of communicating with her made her feel attracted enough to start a relationship with him and then made her want to start a family with him?

Is she making a mistake being with him? Should she have chosen a guy who looks like a male model instead? Is that all women want? A guy who looks good?

Is it possible that a beautiful woman doesn't have to be with a guy who looks like a male model or has millions or billions of dollars to be truly attracted to him and happy in love with him?

Are looks and money the main things that a woman needs from a guy, or could most women be a lot less shallow about looks that you might imagine?

Do guys have to have male model looks to have a beautiful girlfriend or wife, or can they attract women with their personality, behavior and communication style?

Men place a lot more importance on a woman's looks than women place importance on a man's looks. There's nothing wrong with that; we're just following our natural instinct.

We men want to find a beautiful looking woman because that is what is important in terms of feeling proud of her, having beautiful children and feeling a continued attraction to her physical appearance, long enough to procreate.

However, for women, a guy's looks isn't what is going to have the most long term value to her. Yes, she can feel attracted to looks, but instinctively, she knows that looks are not the most valuable and useful trait that a guy can have.

[image: Happy couple by a lake]

If she meets an average or below-average looking guy who can attract her in more important ways and make her feel the way that she truly wants to feel when with a guy, then she will be a winner in life for being with him.

Her life is going to be GREAT because she is attracted to her man and he makes her feel the way she really wants to feel with a guy.

Yes, she could hold out for a male model billionaire, but that isn't the ONLY type of guy she can feel attracted to.

A woman might go around SAYING that she only wants a male model with billions of dollars, but that doesn't mean she can't feel attracted to, fall in love with and happily marry a guy who doesn't have either of those things.

A woman's attraction for a man is mostly based on how his personality, behavior and communication style makes her feel.

Yes, some women are gold diggers and only want super rich men, but the majority of women feel attracted to men who have the POTENTIAL to do well in life; they don't expect a man to already be successful.

Instead of a woman wasting her whole life trying to find a guy who looks like a perfect male model and has a billion dollars, she will happily accept a guy who looks okay and has the potential to do well in life.

Remember what attraction is:

Attraction (noun): A quality or feature of someone that evokes interest, liking or desire.

There are not just one or two things about a man (e.g. looks and money) that attract women.

Yes, women can find those two things attractive, but just like with you wanting a perfect Victoria's Secret model and then happily accepting a beautiful "girl next door" type of woman, most women will do the same with a guy who looks okay, but can make her feel the way she really, truly wants to feel when with a guy.

If a woman feels attracted to a man for other reasons (e.g. the way his personality, behavior and communication style makes her feel) and she then falls in love with him, she won't CARE about the fact that he doesn't look like a male model and doesn't have 50 billion dollars.

She will love him for who he is.

I know...it's a hard pill to swallow.

It can be difficult for some guys to believe that a beautiful woman would accept a guy who isn't as beautiful as her or who doesn't have millions or billions of dollars.

Yet, it is true.

If you are like many modern men, you have been confused by what you've seen in magazine advertisements, on TV shows and in movies. The good-looking guy is always surrounded by beautiful women and it seems like that is how it is supposed to be; beautiful people with beautiful people.

You may have even heard women saying that they only like handsome men or that they will only go out with a very good-looking guy.

Women DO say that sort of thing, but it doesn't mean that they cannot feel intensely attracted to average or below-average looking men for other reasons.

You may want to believe that attracting women is all about looks and money and you can if you want, but I promise you thisâ€¦!

You will go away from my site today and you will see evidence of what I am talking about EVERYWHERE.

You will overhear a beautiful woman talking about how much she loves a guy and he will NOT be good looking like a model. He may only have an average job and drive an average carâ€¦or have no job and no car. He might even be overweight or from a race that you think is not as attractive as your race.

Yet, she will be madly in love with him.

You will see beautiful women walking along with a boyfriend or husband and the guy will not be a good-looking man. He will look ordinary or maybe even ugly in your eyes.

In your stubbornness to accept reality, you might say to yourself, “Yeah, well...he must be mega rich or have a 20 inch dick” or “She is making a mistake by being with him. She will dump him soon.”

You may think that women are stupid, brainless or mad for not seeing that you’re a good looking guy and then rushing to be with you.

Yet, it is not stupidity; it is the reality that you live in.

Women can feel attracted to a guy for many different reasons OTHER than looks.

If you think that a guy’s looks are the most important thing to a woman, you simply don’t understand what attraction really is or are unwilling to accept that attraction works differently to what you’ve been told by the media.

It’s not your fault.

Almost everyone you meet won’t understand attraction and will believe what they get told in the media or what people SAY rather than what people do.

When you understand how to attract women, you see that most guys just don’t get it and are walking through life feeling insecure about their looks and hoping to be chosen by women like a Pretty Peacock.

You will then notice that a very small percentage of guys don’t play the Pretty Peacock game and effortlessly attract women with their personality, behavior and communication style.

Other guys look on and think, “What? Why is she with him?” because they just don’t understand what attraction REALLY is and how it works.

Attraction is the feeling that a person gets in response to features and qualities of another person. In terms of a woman’s attraction for a man, she can feel attracted to a man for 100s of different reasons, not just looks or money.

That is the truth.

The sooner you accept it, the sooner you can stop thinking that the human mating dance is the same as the mating dance of the peacock bird.

You can stop feeling so insecure about your looks or attached to the meaning of your looks and start focusing on attracting women with things that are within your control (i.e. your communication style, behavior and personality).

When Good Looking Guys Get Rejected By Women

[image: A good looking guy with good intentions being rejected by a woman]

Most good-looking guys grow up being told how cute and handsome they are. Maybe their mothers, sisters, relatives and friends tell them how good they are going to be with the ladies when they grow up.

It gets drummed into their head that they are good looking and they grow up expecting to have women flock to them. Yet, it doesn't always happen. Why?

Some good looking guys grow up and are confident, masculine and know how to talk to women in a way that turns them on. Those guys find it very easy to attract women and get a girlfriend.

Yet, not all good-looking guys are truly confident or masculine (in their thinking, behavior and actions) and most don't even know how to turn a woman on during a conversation.

If you're a good looking guy and are reading this, you probably fall into the second category where you still don't yet know what you need to say and do to properly attract and keep a woman.

You will have been able to attract, pick up and have sex and relationships with women whom you are NOT attracted to, but you can't seem to attract and keep the quality women that you are really attracted to.

You may have been able to attract some beautiful women, but they quickly or eventually lost interest in you and dumped you—and you still don't know why.

You may have tried to approach beautiful women and have gotten rejected.

When that happens, all the compliments you got as a child and young man about being handsome and good looking may suddenly seem less believable.

You may think, "Hang on! Am I good looking or not? Were my parents just being nice by saying that I was a handsome young man? Am I ugly now that I'm no longer a young boy? Was I good looking before, but am now becoming ugly as I grow up? What is going on?"

What's going on is that you're not a peacock bird; you're a human man.

Most human women have to assess a guy's personality before they make a decision about whether they will have sex with him or date him, so if you don't turn women on during conversation, most women aren't going to be interested.

A good looking guy can definitely attract a woman with his looks initially, but that doesn't mean the woman will continue to feel attracted to him once they begin talking.

If the way that he talks to her and interacts with her is unattractive (e.g. being nervous while talking to her, being too nice, being way too aloof, etc), she will rapidly lose interest.

His looks will suddenly begin to seem unappealing to her and she will find it difficult to feel any attraction for him at all.

3 Simple Ways to Attract Women

[image: Attracting women for sex is easy]

Most guys don't realize how much power they have when it comes to attracting women, because they're only thinking about looks, money, height, social status and penis size.

Yet, the reason why you will see beautiful women with ugly, overweight, short or bald men is that women CAN be attracted in other ways.

Most men are not rich and most men only have an average-sized penis, yet they still manage to get a girlfriend or wife or have sex with many beautiful women.

How? Here are just three of more than 100 different ways that you can attract women:

1. Real confidence

When a guy has real confidence, it means he believes in himself and in his abilities at all times. Not some of the time, but ALL of the time.

If you can only manage to feel confident around unattractive women, but you then lose confidence in yourself around attractive women, it means that you are insecure.

Confidence (noun): Belief in oneself and one's powers or abilities; self-confidence; self-reliance; assurance.

Insecurity (noun): Lack of confidence or assurance; self-doubt.

Women, especially beautiful women, want a guy who doesn't feel insecure around them. A beautiful woman wants a guy who believes in himself no matter what; even if she tests him during a conversation and tries to make him feel insecure.

Not all beautiful women will accept an ugly or average looking guy who is confident, but many will because most women have what I call an Open Type, meaning that they are open to being with many different types of guys as long as the guy can make her feel a sufficient amount of attraction for other reasons.

She knows that when they begin a relationship, the initial attraction to looks will become less important. She wants to be able to feel attracted to a guy for more important, long lasting ways.

To be certain about being able to pick a woman up, you need to know how to attract her in many different ways at once. Confidence is extremely attractive to women, but you should also be backing that up by attracting her in other ways as well.

The more ways that you can make women feel attracted to you, the more attractive you will be to women. Other guys looking on won't understand why women feel so attracted to you, but you will.

2. Mental and emotional masculinity

Many guys make the mistake of thinking that being masculine is only about being tall, having a buff body or a full head of thick hair. Yet, the type of masculinity that women are attracted to the most is a man's inner masculinity.

If a guy can handle himself well under pressure (e.g. in social situations, in his personal life or at work), he is displaying the type of masculinity that is much more useful in this world than a pretty faced guy who can't handle himself under pressure.

A man who has the mental and emotional masculinity to remain strong under pressure is the sort of man that she can rely on now and in the future.

Yet, a guy who looks good, but is fairly weak emotionally means that she will have to carry him through life and protect him (emotionally) during challenging times.

A woman wants to be able to relax into being the woman while you stand up and be the man.

3. Great conversation skills

To survive, thrive and prosper in this world, it's important to be able to get along with others and communicate in a way that makes people respect you and like you. Great conversation and communication skills are so important.

A woman might think that you look good, but if she talks to you and you don't feel good, it will quickly begin to turn her off.

I'll share a personal story here to explain what I mean...

One of my female friends once told me that she was introduced to a really good looking guy through friends and everyone was so excited for them to meet because she was beautiful and he was a 6ft 3inch tall handsome guy with a perfect gym body.

Everyone thought they would be a perfect match; a beautiful woman with a handsome man. Perfect, right? That's all she wants and needs in a man, right? Wrong.

When she met him, she said it was one of the most boring, unfulfilling dates of her life.

I can't remember exactly what she said, but she said something like, "He was probably used to getting compliments all of his life and people liking him because of his looksâ€¦|but, his personality was nowhere to be found. He thought he was soooo good, but I was likeâ€¦|booooring. He came across as though he was superior to everyone because of his looks, but I just saw a fairly shallow guy who lacked any real substance."

That same girl is now married to a scruffy looking guy that she met in a bar and she has moved from the city out to a farmhouse that they recently got a mortgage on together. In other words, no â€œ the guy isn't rich. They are paying off the house together.

She was always a city girl who loved shopping and partying, but she has been completely transformed by the love that she now shares with her husband. She doesn't care about what she used to think because this guy (now a friend of mine) makes her feel the way she really wants to feel.

I remember when they first got together and she posted up some photos on Facebook of them as a new couple. People were jokingly (but seriously) saying that he was batting out of his league and that he was so lucky.

I just checked out Facebook now to copy/paste some of the comments. One comment said, "Beauty and the beast. Just kidding! You guys look great together" and another said, "Lucky guy. Congrats [her name]. You two look very happy together."

Yet, she is the one who feels lucky. I know her husband well now and he's an awesome guy. He's confident, real and very masculine in the way that he thinks, behaves and takes action in life. He's a no BS sort of guy, which is one thing I like about him.

He's also a loving, compassionate guy who cares about the people in his life. He doesn't have a lot of time for everyone because he's busy working on his purpose, but when he does talk to people, they feel noticed, welcomed, loved, appreciated and proud to be talking to him.

He's what would be called an alpha male, but he isn't a bad boy or a jerk or asshole.

He's a good guy alpha male, which is the type of alpha male that people respect and admire and that women lust after and then fall madly in love with. That is the alpha male approach that I teach here at The Modern Man.

While he doesn't have the facial features or body type of a male model (he's probably a 5 or 6 in looks), he's a guy who knows how to be a man and make a woman feel the way she really wants to feel. His wife is at least an 8 in looks without make up and a 9+ with make up. She's a hottie.

Some good looking guys will see them together and think that she is making a mistake by being with him or she is selling out, but she isn't. She is happy, she is intensely attracted him and she is madly in love with him.

She doesn't care that he doesn't look like a male model from the magazines. In her eyes, he's the most handsome man in the world. That won't make any sense to you if you don't understand attraction and the effect that it has on a person's perception.

When a woman feels attracted to a guy for many reasons OTHER than looks, she will actually come to really like his looksâ€”even if he doesn't look like a good looking guy.

In the media, you will hear people talking about guys being so handsome and good looking like it's the answer to everything, but it's not.

Yes, looks can initially attract women, but the majority of women do not select men purely based on looks because a man's looks is not the most important male trait for her or for the human race.

She needs a man who can survive, thrive and prosper while keeping her safe and making her laugh and enjoy the love that they share. If all that a guy has is a pretty face, then he's practically useless in this world.

Guys who are good looking and who also know how to attract women in other ways will find it extremely easy to have sex with beautiful women, get a beautiful girlfriend or wife.

However, guys aren't good looking, but who know how to attract women in other ways can have just as easy access to beautiful women.

The more skilled an average or below-average guy is at attracting women with his personality, behavior and communication style (e.g. by being confident, making women laugh, being charming, displaying charisma), the easier it will be for him to attract and pick up beautiful women.

Do You Want to Learn the Simple Secrets of Attracting Women?

Imagine what would happen in your life if you knew exactly how to instantly attract women and make them feel an intense emotional connection with you and unstoppable desire for who you are as a guy.

Imagine talking to a group of women and effortlessly making them fight over which one will winâ€”you over...and then picking the woman you feel most attracted to.

I've done that more times than I can count. Getting women to compete over you makes the process of picking up 10x easier, but most guys simply don't know how to do it.

Imagine having a beautiful girlfriend who goes out of her way to please you and worries about you losing interest in HER rather than the other way around. I've enjoyed that power for 12 years and have recently accepting my girlfriend's marriage proposal, after rejecting several other girlfriends.

Could it be possible that a guy can attract women in ways other than looks and money, or do men need to be Pretty Peacocks and stand around looking as pretty as they can in the hope of being selected by women?

Here's the truthâ€¦!

You can attract women in more than 100 different ways.

It has taken me YEARS to work out the more than 100 different ways to attract women, but you can learn it in a matter of HOURS.

Attracting women is simple, easy and effortless once you know what you're doing. However, if you choose to remain in the dark about attraction, it will continue to feel like one of the most difficult, frustrating, depressing things that you ever have to deal with in your life.

When you know how to attract women, you will laugh at how easy it is. Other guys look on at you thinking, "What? Why can he get all the girls while I get nothing?"

It won't make any sense to them because most guys do not know how to attract women. They just don't get it.

That is a HUGE opportunity for you.

You can learn this stuff now before other guys find out about my techniques and start using them to attract the women you want.

If you want to stop saying to yourself, "I'm good looking, but can't get a girlfriend," then let me help you right now.

I've already helped 1000s of guys become successful with women with my simple to use techniques and I can help you too.

The transformation you are about to experience is instant and will last a lifetime.

You don't have to spend more years in the gym trying to improve your appearance or endless money on clothes, shoes, cars and so on.

You are about to discover the simple, easy and natural way to make most women that you mean feel attracted to you and want to be with you...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Okay, I Admit it. I Need Help With the Ladies...

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Do you feel that women are a complete mystery to you? Do you feel like you're the only guy who is striking out with women and every other guy seems to know something that you don't?

Have you ever thought anything like, "What is wrong with me? Why do I keep failing with women?" or "I need help with the ladies" or "Why can't I get a girlfriend?"

Relax...many modern men feel that way.

The good news is that women are not as mysterious as they might seem to you right now. Being good with the ladies is actually one of the easiest, most exciting things that you will ever learn how to do in life.

If you follow the guidelines that I'm about to give you, you will realize that approaching women, having one night stands, going on dates and being in relationships with beautiful women is actually a lot easier than you currently may think.

First, let's begin by answering a very important question...

What Do Women Really Want in a Man?

[image: Huh?? I thought she liked me!]

There is a big difference between what women SAY they want in a man and what they actually go for.

For instance, women will often say that they want a nice guy, but they will then reject guys for being nice to them. Women will also say that they only date good looking guys, but will then have sex, date and even marry guys who are not considered "good looking" by most people.

If you want to be good with the ladies, it's very important to watch what women DO, rather than blindly listening to what they SAY. Watch the video below to understand why being too nice to a woman will lead to rejection, even though she is probably going around SAYING, "I want a sweet, nice guy who listens to me, treats me like a princess and doesn't expect sex right away."

Natural Qualities About You That Will Attract Women

Unlike men who are mostly attracted to a women based entirely on how physically attractive she looks, most women will place less importance on a guy's physical appearance if he has the personality traits and behavioral qualities that she is looking for.

If you want to be successful with the ladies, you need to know what those personality traits and behavioral qualities are and you need to make sure that you display them during your interactions, dates and relationships.

I teach guys how to attract women in more than 100 different ways, but here are 4 ways to help you get started:

1. Confidence

Women are attracted to confidence, but are turned off by shyness, insecurity and low self-esteem. If you approach a woman and behave nervous and insecure, it will turn her off on a deep and instinctive level.

Even if you're a great guy, have a great job (or are studying a course at university that will lead to a great job), most women don't care about those sorts of details if you are turning them off at a deep and instinctive level. If you are unable to attract her with your personality and behavior, all the potentially attractive details about you become less valuable and appealing.

2. The ability to lead when necessary

Women prefer men who take the lead during the dating process. Guys who wait for women to make the first move will rarely ever get phone numbers, have one night stands or go on dates.

Many guys see women in the movies approaching guys and think that it is normal, but in real life that rarely happens. In real life women want to be approached. Why? They like to know that the guy is man enough to take the lead in the sexual courtship and make her feel like a real woman.

A guy who waits to be approached by a woman is usually the sort of guy who hasn't yet worked out what it means to be a man and is still thinking like a boy or like a guy who has watched one too many Hollywood movies where the girl approaches the guy first.

3. A great conversationalist

Women like to be engaged by a man who is a good conversationalist, but don't confuse that with talking to her like a friend. A good conversationalist in a woman's eyes is a guy who knows how to flirt with her, create a sexual vibe and make her feel turned on in subtle ways.

A good conversationalist is also a guy who can get a woman to be her true self while talking to him and can also be his real self with her. If you hide behind your true self by asking boring questions like, "So, what do you do?" and then having a standard conversation about her answer, it won't allow either of you to be fully real in the moment.

You've got to loosen up and say whatever you think and feel. Yes, you will make some mistakes initially when you learn to be that real, but the biggest benefit is that you get to be yourself and be loved for it. You attract women who are perfectly compatible with you, rather than trying to be "liked" as a nice person by all women.

4. Emotional strength

Emotional strength is something that women crave in a man. As you may have noticed, it's fine for women to cry and become emotional, but men are expected to be stronger.

Why? We live in a challenging world that is still dangerous at times and it's much safer and wiser for a woman to be with a man who can be strong during a tough moment or during tough times.

If you interact with a woman and she feels stronger than you emotionally, it's enough to turn her off on a deep and instinctive level. Even if you're a great guy, it won't matter to her because you don't have one of the most fundamentally important things that she is truly looking for in a man.

Naturally, there are some women who will hook up with and even marry an emotionally weak man. However, such women are usually the type who will never truly love him and will secretly wish to be with a stronger man, or will be the type of woman who controls him during a relationship with the threat of a break up.

As a man, being emotionally strong is not an option; it's a necessity. You've got to be strong. The stronger you become, the better you feel in life, the more you succeed, the more people respect you and the more women love you and want you.

Being emotionally weak is a stressful life full of rejection, heartache, disrespect from others, missing out on promotions at work, feeling depressed and anxious and so on. It's not wise to be weak.

How to Get The Woman You Want

[image: I'm a good guy...why don't women like me?]

There's no use saying "I need help with the ladies" if you are going to keep doing the same old things that haven't worked for you so far. To be successful with women, you will need make some changes to the way you've been doing things so far and to the way you see yourself. For example, you're not going to get a phone number, a date or a one night stand if you continue to spend every Friday and Saturday night alone or with your single, male buddies who want to stay at home watching TV or go out "people watching."

You've got to get involved. I know that can feel like a scary thing to do, but when you actually know how to attract women, it becomes one of the easiest, most exciting things that you'll ever do in your life.

So, how can you get started?

Step #1 â Go to places where single women hang out

If you try to meet women online, you will be competing with 1,000s of other guys who are afraid to talk to women in person. If a woman is attractive, she will get hundreds and sometimes even thousands of messages or requests every month.

The easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend is to talk to a woman in person.

You have to go to places where single women hang out (e.g. bars, clubs, speed dating events) and simply talk to some of them.

In the beginning, you will most-likely feel a bit nervous and unsure of yourself, but the key is to not get hung up about a specific result. If you go to a club thinking, "I have to get a woman tonight. If I don't succeed I'll be a loser," you are putting unnecessary pressure on yourself and are potentially setting yourself up to fail.

Rather than going out looking to pick up any woman you approach, think of yourself as being just a guy out to have a good time and socialize with some women.

How can you build up the confidence to approach and talk to women? Check out the video below:

Step #2 â Don't try to pick up any attractive woman you meet

It's only natural that you might feel as though you want to hook up with a beautiful woman the first time you go out. However, don't get too attached to the idea of getting a result with every attractive woman you see or talk to.

If you worry and think to yourself, "What if she doesn't like me? What if she doesn't want to give me her number? What if she has a boyfriend?" you are putting unnecessary pressure on yourself to get a result or fail miserably.

On the other hand if you remain relaxed and easy-going, by saying to yourself, “I’m here to have a good time by talking to a lot of women without worrying about getting a result,” things will unfold naturally.

Step #3 Don’t take the conversations so seriously

[image: Being confident to say whatever you want]

Women love a guy who can make them laugh, but they also love a guy who can just relax and have a good time with her.

If a woman is attractive, most of the guys she meets are immediately interested in her and will talk to her as though they are hoping to get a chance with HER.

Don’t take the conversation with her so seriously. Instead, talk to her as though she is hoping to hook up with you and she will LOVE it.

For example, if she says “I really like pizza,” smile and say something like “Oh, right...so you want me to take you out for pizza. I get it...girls always use me for free pizza. If you want pizza, you’re going to have to take me out! I think a girl should pay for me for once...I always get used for free pizza...and I usually only get to eat 1 or 2 slices and the girl gobbles up the rest :(”

If you were smiling while saying it, she will smile too and she will most-likely laugh. She will then say something like, “That’s not what I meant! :D” and you can respond by saying, “Okay, fine...well, look...I’m not the kind of guy who would let a woman’s cravings go unanswered. So, how about Friday night? I like pizza too, so you can show me your favorite pizza place and we’ll see how tasty it is...but, just let me have at least 3 slices.”

You are not being overly serious with the offer for Friday night pizza, but you are putting it out there. After that, she will either say yes or will want to talk to you further and get to know you a little more before giving you her number.

When you feel like the moment is right, get your phone and out say, “Hang on, I’m going to write something about you in my phone” and then hand her your phone and say, “Here, put your number in there where I’ve typed, Crazy Pizza Lady.”

Smile and don’t take the conversation and interaction so seriously. If you can do that, she will have a great time with you and will want to talk to you again.

Note: That isn’t my standard way for getting a woman’s number. This is just an example based on something I’ve done to help you understand what is possible when you don’t take conversations so seriously with women. In my book The Flow, I explain what to say to basically any woman you meet to get her phone number in under a minute, without even having to use any humor.

In my book The Flow, I explain exactly what to say to absolutely ensure that a woman will give you her phone number. There is a very specific way to say it to ensure that she really wants to give you her phone number. The line that I use is something that took a lot of practise and testing until I finally got it right.

Once you know how to ask for the number in the simple way that I teach in The Flow, you will never ever worry about asking for a number again because you know that you’ll get it.

It's a Lot Easier Than You Might Think

If you want to be good with the ladies, one of the first things you need to do is realize that it is actually a lot easier to succeed with women than you might think.

If you've approached women before and have been rejected you might feel like you couldn't ever be a guy who is good with the ladies, but that is not true.

With the right training, saying "I need help with the ladies" will quickly become a thing of the past. If you let me help you right now, you can learn exactly what to say and do around a woman to get her to want you sexually and be interested in you romantically.

Complete success with women is at the tip of your finger right now. Will you click or will you stick to your old ways?

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

5 Conversation Mistakes That Instantly Turn Women Off

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Being able to talk to a woman and get her to feel attracted to you right away, is a skill that is very important to your overall success with women.

You can't rely on hoping to grow on a woman over time because you usually won't have much time to talk to her or she will simply get taken by another guy who knows how to make her feel attracted immediately.

To help you have the skill of being able to attract women right away, I'm going to cover 5 conversation mistakes that guys make, which turn women off and can ruin the chances of being with her.

If you can avoid making these mistakes the next time you talk to an attractive woman, you will experience much better results. She will feel more naturally attracted to you and you will feel more relaxed, confident and in control.

Mistake number one is...

1. Always trying to say the right thing

[image: Always trying to say the right thing]

Have you ever found that when you talk to a woman that you're not attracted to, you feel confident and are able to say whatever you want, be yourself, talk about things that you find interesting, crack some jokes and generally have a good, interesting conversation?

Yet, when you talk to a woman that you feel really attracted to, you suddenly find it difficult to keep the conversation going and keep it interesting. You run out of things to say and may think something like, "What am I going to say to this girl to make her feel impressed by me? What am I going to say to get her to like me?"

Worrying about trying to say the right thing to her is something that will turn her off. Women are attracted to guys who are confident in themselves and who don't feel like they need to put on an act to hopefully try to impress her. So, one of the most important things that you need to do when you're talking to a woman that you find attractive is to really be yourself.

If you suppress your natural charisma and hide your true personality, then what happens is that you come across as awkward and the conversation may begin to feel a bit weird or strange to her. It just doesn't feel right when she's talking to you. If she also notices that you're not really being your true self, are hesitating and looking a bit tense around her, it will make her feel uncomfortable.

A woman doesn't want to be responsible for making you feel that way and in most cases, she will try to quickly end the conversation or will simply lose interest in you.

You don't need to be worried about trying to be perfect and say everything exactly how she would want to hear it. She has her flaws and is not a perfect human being. She doesn't know all the right things to say in every moment of her life. If she's a normal girl, she will simply trust her gut instinct and say what she feels...and that is what you need to do as well.

[image: Being confident to say whatever you want]

If you are a confident guy, you will trust your gut instinct and say whatever you feel like saying. You will talk about whatever you feel like, share some opinions and even say a joke if you feel like it, but you're not going to hold back in fear of saying the wrong thing around her.

2. Being too neutral or too nice

[image: Rejected after being too neutral with a woman]

Neutral: Not showing any sexual interest and just talking to her like a friend.

Nice: Trying extra hard to be nice, polite and sweet to hopefully get her to like you.

Some guys learn that women aren't attracted to very nice guys, so they stop trying to be nice to women and they start being neutral. They don't really have any emotion or personality at all when they're talking to a woman they find attractive. As a result, she doesn't feel much while talking to him, quickly gets bored and wants to leave the interaction.

For example:

Man: So, what do you do for a living?

Woman: I'm an accountant.

Man: Oh, okay, cool. So, how long have you worked as an accountant?

Woman: 7 years.

Man: Oh, okay, cool. So...are you having a good night?

Woman: Uhh, yeah, it's good thanks.

Man: Oh, that's good. It's a nice place here isn't it?

Woman: Umm, I'm going to go to the bathroom. Bye!

Neutral guys don't have that "X Factor" and are missing that "something about them" that will make a woman feel attracted. They suppress their natural charisma and personality and try to be as neutral to avoid any possibility of being rejected for saying or doing anything outside the norm. Yet, it backfires because women don't feel much or anything for them at all.

Neutral guys are forgettable and are often ignored or left out in social situations. Worried about saying or doing anything that might get them rejected, they freeze up and lose their appeal.

[image: Being neutral to avoid being rejected]

In terms of being too nice, the main mistake that guys make is in thinking that they need to get a woman to like them as a person and then they will get a chance with her. Yet, what he really needs to do is make her feel attracted to him.

[image: Being too nice to a woman rather than making her feel attracted]

When you are talking to a woman, you have to focus on making her feel sexually attracted to you as a man and then anything else about you that is likeable (e.g. you're a good guy, you're intelligent, etc) becomes even more appealing to her.

Yet, if you're just a nice guy and are just being nice, friendly and polite to her, there will almost always be no spark between you and her. You've got to create that spark by making her feel sexually attracted to you. If you don't do that, most women will lose interest in talking to you.

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman and there's nothing wrong with being a good guy, but if the only thing you're doing while talking to her is being nice, it will usually only create friendly, non-sexual feelings within her. What you need to do is make her feel sexually attracted to you and one of the easiest ways to do that is in the way that you talk to her.

[image: Flirting with a woman in a bar]

While talking to her, you can use humor, flirting, sexual innuendos and you can display confidence and masculinity in the way that you talk to her about general things, life, yourself and her. Attracting her is also about how you handle yourself during the conversation.

Are you able to remain confident or are you constantly second-guessing yourself while talking to her? Are you able to keep the conversation going and keep it interesting or are you struggling to come up with something to say?

Important: There's nothing wrong with being nice and there's nothing wrong with being good, but what you also need to do is talk to her in a way that makes her feel sexually attracted to you. That's the most important thing that you need to do and then anything else that is likeable about you suddenly becomes more appealing to her.

3. Showing serious romantic interest in her before making her feel attracted Attraction works differently for men and women.

Most men don't understand (or want to accept) that women feel attracted to men for different reasons than men feel attracted to women. There is a reason why a porn explosion happened when the internet began and why it continues to grow today.

[image: Man looking at porn. Men are mostly attracted to the physical appearance of women]

Men look at women in porn and are able to jerk off to it because men mostly feel attracted to a woman's physical appearance initially, which is usually enough for a man to want to have sex with her or even begin a relationship with her.

[image: Attracted and interested immediately just based on her appearance]

So, if a woman is attractive, most guys are interested in her right away simply based on her appearance. I'll show you some images now and you can assess this for yourself. Look at the photos below.

Would you have sex with some or even all of these women if you had the chance?

[image: Group of women in a nightclub]

You don't even know anything about them other than their physical appearance. Each of those women could have a bad personality, be untrustworthy, disloyal or annoying, but you would most likely have sex with most or even all of them (at least once), right?

How about the women in the photos below. Would you have sex with either of them if you could?

[image: Two beautiful women]

How about these two?

[image: Two beautiful women]

How about the women in this group? Would you have sex with some or even all of them if you had the chance?

[image: Group of women in a nightclub]

Generally speaking, if a woman is physically attractive, most of the guys that she meets are going to be fully interested in her right away, simply based on her appearance. Even if she is a bit of a bitch, a bit cold or doesn't have a nice personality, most guys are still going to be willing to have sex with her simply based on her appearance.

[image: Group of cold women]

So, the conversation mistake that some guys make when they are talking to an attractive woman is that they feel attracted to her and are fully interested in her, even though she may not have everything that he's looking for in a woman. Based on the feelings of attraction that he is experiencing, he immediately begins showing her lots of romantic interest.

When a guy shows serious romantic interest in a woman before making her feel attracted to him, he will ask her questions such as:

"So, do you have a boyfriend?"

"Can I take you out some time?"

"Can I get your phone number?"

"Are you single?"

"What sort of guys do you like?"

"Are you interested in a relationship right now or are you more focused on your work/studies?"

He may also not be so direct about asking her if she has a boyfriend and instead will show a lot of interest in her and her life. For instance, if she says that she is an accountant, he might say, "Oh, right...that's really interesting" and pretend to be interested in anything about her in the hope that it makes her like him.

Guys like that don't realize that women need to feel attracted to a guy first. Women need to feel attracted to who you are as a guy; to your personality traits and behavior. Unfortunately, a lot of guys don't even know that they can attract women with their personality and behavior.

[image: Confused men thinking that it's all about looks]

Most guys are going through life thinking that women feel attracted to men for the same reason that men feel attracted to women (i.e. physical appearance). There's nothing wrong with a guy taking care of his physical appearance and looking good, but looks aren't everything.

A woman can look at a guy and say, "Oh, he looks nice" or "He is handsome," but it's not the final, deciding factor that will determine whether or not she will want to be his girlfriend, wife or lover.

If she starts interacting with a guy who "looks good," but he then displays the sorts of qualities that turn women off (e.g. nervousness, self-doubt, unable to have an interesting conversation with her, unable to flirt with her and build up the sexual tension during the conversation), then she will naturally feel turned off by him. He might look good, but he doesn't feel good to her.

The reason why you will see guys who are not typically good looking with a beautiful woman is that most women (not all) are more interested and attracted to things about guys that cannot be seen. It's not about the guy's physical appearance; it's about his personality and behavior and how that makes her feel.

That is why you will see guys from particular races (e.g. Asian) where people think that can't attract women easily, yet the guy will have a beautiful girlfriend, lover or wife from another race that is supposedly "hard to pick up."

A guy might be overweight, but he can still have a hot girlfriend who is in shape. A guy might not be the best looking guy in the world, but he can still have a pretty girlfriend.

[image: Fat guy with beautiful girlfriend. She finds him attractive]

[image: Ugly man with beautiful women. She finds him attractive]

[image: Ugly guy with a pretty girlfriend. She finds him attractive]

[image: Fat guy with hot girlfriend. She finds him attractive]

[image: Asian guy marries white girl. She finds him attractive]

[image: Bald guy with pretty woman. She finds him attractive]

[image: Fat guy with sexy girlfriend]

Some women will only ever accept an extremely good looking guy; a guy who looks like a male model. However, the majority of women have what I call an Open Type, which means that they are open to being with all different types of guys as long as the guy can make her feel attracted in other ways.

When it comes to the other ways to attract women, most guys automatically think that it's got to be about money, having a huge dick, being tall or having a lot of status and power in society. Yet, that is not the only way to attract women.

There are much simpler, easier, instant ways to attract women (e.g. you can display confidence around her, make her laugh, flirt with her during a conversation and build up the sexual tension between you, etc). There are so many different ways that you can attract women and in my programs at The Modern Man, I teach more than 100 different ways that guys can attract women.

You most-likely don't know how much power you have when it comes to attracting women. Most guys are going through life thinking that if they aren't very good looking or super rich, then attractive women simply won't like them. Yet, they forget that they always see guys who don't fit that mold with beautiful women.

They see it everywhere, but don't want to accept that it may actually be possible to attract women in ways other than looks, money, height, status, power and having a big whopper in their pants. Whether a guy wants to accept it or not, it still remains true. Most women have an Open Type and are willing to be with a guy who isn't good looking, but who can make her feel attracted in other ways.

When talking to women, what you've got to be able to do is make her feel attracted to who you are as a guy. How does your conversation style make her feel? Is it turning her on or turning her off? Is it making her feel good or is it making her feel bored?

Generally speaking, you are in control of how much attraction a woman feels for you. If you use the right conversation techniques while talking to her, she will feel attracted to you. However, if you are making some or all of the classic mistakes that guys make when talking to women they find attractive, you're going to be turning her off.

Even though you might be a great guy and have great intentions with her. Even though you might be an intelligent, trustworthy guy; it doesn't matter to her unless you can make her feel attracted to you when you talk to her. If your conversation style is turning her off, then that is how she will feel...turned off.

You've got to be able to make her feel good around you, drawn to you and attracted to you during the conversation. That is what counts to her and then anything else that is likeable about you will suddenly become more appealing to her.

So, with the mistake of guys immediately showing interest in wanting to be a woman's boyfriend, what you need to do instead is focus on making her feel attracted to you first. When she's feeling a lot of attraction for you, she will automatically begin to think about you as a lover or boyfriend. She will also automatically begin to show you more signs of interest as well.

Yet, if you start talking an attractive woman and give her the impression that you really like her and are hoping to get a chance with her, she will almost always put her guard up. She will feel as though she is the more valuable one. You want something from her, you're feeling attracted to her and you want to get with her, but she's not really feeling anything.

Additionally, if you're conversation style is turning her off, she will feel as though if she gives you her phone number or hooks up with you, it's almost like she's going to be doing you a favor...and that's not how she wants to feel. She wants to feel lucky to get a chance with you.

A woman wants to be able to interact with you and for you to turn her on and make her feel good. She wants you to make her feel attracted and when you do that, she will automatically begin to open herself up to the possibility of hooking up with you, giving you her number or going out on a date with you.

Remember: If she's an attractive woman, most of the guys that she meets will instantly feel attracted to her and be fully interested in her simply based on her appearance. It's very simple for her to attract guys because most men initially select women mainly based on the woman's physical appearance.

Women are looking for important qualities in a guy than just a pretty face. She wants to see the qualities that she is looking for in a guy coming through during the conversation. She wants to feel attracted to how you talk to her, how you converse with her, how you connect with her and how you get her laughing.

How does it feel to be talking to you? Is it making her feel turned on or is it turning her off? Is it exciting her or is boring her?

4. Hoping that she will lead the conversation

[image: Hoping that she will lead the conversation]

Most women will test you during a conversation by not saying much at all.

They are testing you to see how you are going to react. Are you going to become nervous or will you remain confident? Will you be able to maintain a positive vibe and interaction between you and her or are you the sort of guy who crumbles under pressure in social situations and in life?

Have a think about why that might be important to a woman...

Think about what she needs from a man. She needs a guy who can actually survive, thrive and prosper in the world. A guy who can protect her, stand up for himself and not get pushed around by others in life or crumble under pressure.

These are the sorts of instinctive tests that women put men through, whether the guy is 15 years old or 50. Girls have exactly the same instinctive patterns of thinking and behavior that adult women do.

When a girl or a woman tests a guy, she is instinctively trying to see if a guy is strong enough and capable enough to protect her and survive in this world. She doesn't want to align herself with a wimp or with a guy who crumbles under social pressure because it's not a useful trait in a guy.

A lot of guys mistakenly go through life thinking, "If I can just look good enough, then women will like me and won't mind that I'm nervous or don't know what to say." Yet, it doesn't work that way. Almost all women don't select guys purely based on looks. Some do, but they will eventually dump a good looking guy if he doesn't have the real traits that allow a woman to maintain her attraction for a guy.

If you want to be successful with women, you've got to be able to attract women in more important ways than just having a nice shirt, haircut or big biceps. A woman's instinct drives her to find a guy who is actually capable of doing well in life, protecting her, making her feel good, having good sex with her, getting along with her friends and family, etc.

[image: A woman looking for deeper qualities in a guy]

What I've found is that most attractive women will test you by not saying much during a conversation. When you're talking to unattractive, desperate women, they will usually try very hard to keep the conversation going and make it super easy for you to hook up with them. Yet, those women are probably not the types of women you're aiming to get, right? You want to hook up with women that you're truly attracted to.

What you need to understand going into a conversation with a woman that you're attracted to, is that she's most-likely going to test you by not saying much. What she wants to see from you is that you don't crumble under pressure. She wants to see that you can lead the way during a conversation.

She wants to see that you don't have to rely on her to be gentle with you and guide you through the process of starting a relationship with her. She doesn't have to be the one who asks for your phone number, suggests that you go out on a date or moves in for the first kiss.

You are a guy who has the social intelligence to read the cues that she is giving you and keep the conversation going and keep it interesting. You know what to say to guide her to a phone number, kiss, date or even to have sex on the same night that you meet her.

[image: A woman looking for deeper qualities in a guy]

Women are looking for deeper qualities in men that are more important than just looks. She wants to be able to see that you can lead her rather than hoping that she makes it easy by leading you. Being able to lead the conversation is a signal to her that you will most-likely be the sort of guy who adds value to her life; you're not going to be a dead weight. You're not going to be a burden or someone that she has to carry throughout life.

You are a strong man. You are a confident man. You are a socially intelligent man. You are someone who is going to add value to her life.

That is attractive to women.

5. Perceiving silences as being “awkward” silences

A lot of guys are worried about talking to women because they are concerned that if they run out of things to say and there is a silence, it's going to feel really awkward. Yet, is the silence actually awkward or is simply a matter of how you are perceiving it?

Do conversations need to have dialogue being exchanged 100% of the time, non-stop or are silences actually a natural and very normal part of a conversation? Are silences a great opportunity for you to make her feel more attracted to you?

Unfortunately, a lot of guys think that if the conversation goes a bit silent, then they've ruined their opportunity with the woman and she is rapidly losing interest. Yet, that is not true at all.

Look at guys who are cool and are confident in themselves and you will see that they're not worried about a bit of a silence in a conversation. They aren't concerned about the woman losing interest because they know that she will feel attracted to them in so many different ways.

If a guy understands that the sorts of things that I understand about women, he will know that if he remains confident and doesn't crumble under pressure, it will actually make her feel more attracted to him. She's going to be impressed that he's not one of the typical guys who gets nervous, awkward and starts doubting himself because there's a silence in the conversation.

Would You Like to Learn More?

[image: The Ultimate Guide to Conversation]

I hope you've enjoyed this post!

If you'd like to learn more of my conversation techniques and get 100s of examples of what to say to women, I have a dedicated program about conversation called The Ultimate Guide to Conversation.

When you listen to The Ultimate Guide to Conversation (10 hours of professionally recorded audio), you will learn:

- 100s of examples of what to say when talking to a woman.
- How to keep conversations going and keep them interesting.
- How to flirt with a woman and create a sexual vibe between you, without being seen as sleazy or too forward.
- How to use humor in a way that makes a woman feel happy and excited to be talking to you, as well as turned on by you and attracted to you.
- How to use sexual innuendos and discreetly bring up the subject of sex when talking to a woman.
- How to make women feel love for you during a conversation.
- How to connect with women emotionally.
- How to explore conversations and make them interesting and enjoyable for both of you.

There is so much more to the program and if you decided to listen to it, you will have so much power during conversations with women from now on. The techniques from the program make women feel interested in you immediately and the more you talk to her, the more attracted she feels.

By using the examples from the program, you will be able to effortlessly keep conversations going and connect with women in ways that you've probably never done before. Sound good? Listen to The Ultimate Guide to Conversation now.

Okay, that brings me to the end of the post! I hope that you've learnt something interesting from me today and if you have any comments or questions, feel free to ask below!

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

The Most Important Skill That a Guy Needs to Have to Be Successful With Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The most important skill that a guy needs to have to be successful with women is the ability to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside a woman.

Your level of ability to attract women determines the quality of woman that you can have access to and it's also one of the major things that determines her desire to want to stay with you when in a relationship.

The Ability to Attract Women When You Meet Them and Maintain the Attraction in a Relationship

[image: Attracting a woman into a relationship and then maintaining her attraction]

As a man, if you don't have the skill of being able to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman, your interactions with women will usually feel boring, awkward and forced. A woman might like you as a friend, but she's not going to feel much attraction for you and thus won't be very interested in starting a sexual or romantic relationship with you.

In a relationship, after the initial lust has faded away, if you're unable to make a woman feel attracted to you in the more deeper, longer lasting ways, then she will naturally lose interest in being with you.

Do You Have the Skill of Being Able to Attract Women?

[image: Do you have the ability to attract women with your personality?]

Being able to attract women is a skill that a guy either has or doesn't have. Some guys are absolutely clueless when it comes to attracting women, some are okay at it, some are great at it and some are excellent at attracting women.

How about you?

Do you have the skill of being able to attract the women that you really want into having sex or a relationship with you? Are you only able to get lucky or can you attract women at will? One way to find out is to ask you a number of questions.

Have you ever had any of the following situations happen to you?

1. You were talking to a woman you really liked and hoping to begin a sexual relationship with her, but the conversation felt boring, awkward and even forced. You then ran out of things to say and you lost your opportunity with her.
2. You were on a date with a woman and there was clearly some friendly chemistry between you, but you didn't know how to "switch gears" and spark the sexual chemistry. So, the date felt a bit boring and awkward, she lost interest and you didn't get a second date.

3. You met an attractive woman who was clearly “girlfriend material” and she liked you, but only as a friend. You wanted to get her to feel the same way about you, but you just didn’t know how to do it, so you gave up and remained alone.

[image: Not feeling any attraction for him]

How about right now in your life....

Is there a woman that you really like and you want to begin a sexual relationship with her, but the sexual chemistry just isn’t there? If you answered yes, then I’m going to let you in on a BIG secret about attraction that most guys are completely unaware of...

A Big Secret About Attraction

[image: You can make a woman feel attracted to you for reasons OTHER than looks...and then she will actually like your looks]

Most guys think that they have NO CONTROL over whether or not a woman feels attraction for them.

That is absolutely incorrect.

You can CREATE feelings of attraction inside of a woman.

If a woman doesn’t initially feel attracted to your looks, it doesn’t mean that you can’t make her feel intensely attracted to you for other reasons.

A lot of guys make the mistake of assuming that if a woman doesn’t feel attracted to him because of his looks, height, job or whatever else, then he CANNOT make her feel attracted to him.

[image: Confused men thinking that it's all about looks]

Many men assume that since they their decision on which women they’re interested in based on looks, women must do the same thing when choosing a guy. Yet, it just doesn’t work that way for most women. Most women can look at guys who are “good looking” and feel attracted, but if she interacts with the good looking guy and his personality, communication style and behavior turns her off, then she isn’t going to want to be with him in almost every case.

However, if a woman sees a guy who isn’t very good looking, but he then interacts with her and creates feelings of attraction, she will be interested. For example: He may make the woman feel attracted to him by:

1. Making her laugh.
2. Being confident around her.
3. Being masculine.

I teach guys how to make women feel attracted to them in more than 100 ways and what I’ve mentioned above are only 3 ways. There are so many different ways that you can make a woman feel attracted to you. You can create the attraction. It doesn’t have to be there from the start based on your looks!

As a man, it’s really important for you to understand that fact of attraction and accept it. If you don’t accept it and you instead go through life thinking, “I’ve got to look good and that is how I will get women” or “If I’m not tall and don’t have big muscles, women won’t be interested in me” or “Women have to choose me based on my appearance” then you’re going to have a really difficult time with women for the rest of your life.

You’re going to be standing back and hoping that women like you and want to have sex with you or start a relationship with you simply based on how you look...and it’s not going to work. A very good looking, very handsome man can use that strategy to get himself a woman because women are going to look at him and say, “Wow...he’s handsome” and they may then approach him to talk to him or make it super easy for him to pick them up if approaches and starts a conversation.

If the good looking guy is also very confident and has the skill of attracting women with his personality, then it’s going to be very easy for him to pick women up for sex or a relationship. Yet, if you’re the sort of guy who doesn’t get approached by women because of your looks (95% of guys), then you need to accept that you have to create attraction by interacting with women face to face.

When you know that you can attract women face to face, you are not afraid of approaching them. You know that most of the women you approach will feel attracted to you and be interested in you, so you simply approach and choose the women you find the most attractive. You can choose to have sex with many women or get yourself a girlfriend or wife.

You have that power of choice because you can attract women at will, rather than wasting half or most of your life waiting and hoping to “get lucky”...and then potentially ruining that relationship because you still don’t even know how to maintain the woman’s attraction for you once you’ve got her.

A Strange, But True Fact About Attracting Women in Other Ways

This is strange, but true.

You might not want to believe it right now, but you WILL see it from now on after I tell you this. Here it is....

When you attract a woman in many other ways, she actually sees you as being good looking. She likes the way that you look, even if you are overweight or don’t have male model features. She starts to focus on the good things about you and begins to pick out qualities and features about you that she likes.

That is the essence of what attraction is all about. If you look at the dictionary definition of attraction, you will understand why it is possible to attract women in ways OTHER than looks:

| Attraction (noun): A quality or feature of someone that evokes interest, liking or desire.

As a man, there are so many different qualities that you can present to a woman that will evoke feelings of interest, liking and desire.

Why is Humor One of the More Than 100 Ways That a Guy

Can Attract Women?

[image: Why does humor attract women?]

Why does being funny and making a woman laugh make her feel attracted to a man? Why is humor one of the things that a woman is drawn to about a guy? Why is it one of the things that you can do that make women feel attracted to you and want to be with you?

Isn't it all just about looks?

No.

A couple of reasons why humor is something that a guy can use to attract women are:

1. Life can get pretty dull, stressful and depressing at times and it's great to have someone who can lighten the mood and make you smile.
2. Having the ability to make her laugh means that other people will probably like you to, which is going to be better for her survival. You will most-likely be a better survivor and provider.

So, what am I talk about with "survival" and being able to provide for her and things like that? For most of human history, surviving as a human hasn't been that easy. It has been a challenge all the way to the current day.

[image: Crowd of people]

Even today, in our modern world with all of our technology, supermarkets, systems, etc, survival is still a challenge. You still have to be capable of doing well and getting somewhere in life so you can survive, thrive and enjoy a great life. Life isn't as dangerous as it used to be, but the instinct that a woman has to align herself with a guy who is going to be a better survivor is still there.

Using humor and being able to make her laugh is ONE of the signals to her that you're most-likely going to be the sort of guy that can survive well. You will most-likely get along well with others and be liked by other people. As a result, you will probably be better at providing, surviving and thriving in this world than a guy who doesn't get along well with others and is disliked by others.

Attracting Women With Your Personality

[image: Which twin is more attractive?]

To help you understand what I mean by attracting women with your personality and being naturally attractive to women for reasons OTHER than looks, a great example to show you is the example of a pair of identical twins.

So, which of these twins is going to be more attractive to women?

The twin on the left is nervous around women, he doesn't know how to flirt with women, he doubts himself and comes across as a bit shy and awkward. The twin on the right is confident around women, knows how to flirt with women, he believes in himself and comes across as confident and easy-going.

Which of the twins is going to be more attractive to women? The twin on the left or the twin on the right?

[image: The twin on the left is less attractive because he is nervous, self-doubting and doesn't know how to flirt with women]

If you understand attraction, you will know that women are attracted to the strength in men and turned off by the weakness. Therefore, the twin on the right is going to be more naturally attractive to women. He is confident, he believes in himself (emotional strength), whereas the twin on the left lacks confidence and doubts himself around women (emotional weakness).

Being emotionally strong is just ONE of the ways that you can attract women. It's not the only way.

There are more than 100 different ways that I teach guys how to attract women and being emotionally strong is just one of the ways that you can attract women.

In this example with the twins being "identical twins," some guys will still look at them and say, "Well...I think the twin on the right is better looking, so that is why she would go for him." Guys who think like that still don't understand that you can attract women in many different ways. They either don't understand or are not yet willing to accept the fact that women are more attracted to a guy's personality and how it makes her feel, than what he looks like.

Women can be attracted to what a man looks like, but if a man's personality doesn't make her feel good (i.e. it doesn't turn her on sexually and emotionally) and she feels turned off by his personality (e.g. the twin on the left is nervous and doubts himself around her, etc), then she's not going to want to be with him even if he looks better than the twin on the right.

Most Women Have an Open Type When it Comes to Men, Even if They Don't Openly Admit it

Some women are extremely picky and will only go for a guy who looks like a male model, who is tall, rich, has a perfect gym body and drives an expensive car. However, most women have what I call an Open Type, which means that they are open being with many different types of guys as long as the guy can make her feel attracted in other ways.

The truth is, you don't have to be rich, good looking, tall or have big muscles to attract most women (95%). What you need to have is the ability to attract women with your personality, communication and behavior. Women only need to see that you have the potential to do well, but you don't have to be already successful in life.

You can be the sort of guy who is on his way to success or who is pushing forward in life and reaching for your true potential as a man. For most women, that is just as attractive as a guy who is already successful in life. You don't already have to be at the peak of your career or successful in life to be attractive to women.

[image: I've got to succeed in life first, then girls will like me]

Some guys waste half or most of their life thinking, "I'm going to get a good job first...I'm going to save up a lot of money...I'm going to buy a car and a house and THEN I'm going to start trying to get a girlfriend because women will like me for being so well set up and successful in life."

Yet, the truth is that you really don't need to do that to attract almost all women.

As you would have seen out there in the real world, millions of guys are with women and they are NOT fully successful in life. The majority of guys aren't fully set up and successful in life, but they still have a girlfriend, a wife or are having sex with many different women on rotation.

Almost all women are not expecting you to be a tall, male model with the perfect gym body and billions of dollars before you are worthy of them. They just expect to feel attracted to you and you can make women feel attracted to you in many different ways.

The Ability to Trigger Feelings of Sexual Attraction in a Woman

[image: The skill of attracting women]

The ability to trigger feelings of sexual attraction in a woman is the most important thing that a guy needs to learn if he wants to be successful with women.

A guy can be going through life and have a good job, a nice car and live in a great apartment or house, but if he interacts with a woman and his personality and communication style doesn't make her feel sexually attracted, then she won't really care that he has a nice job and car.

Interacting with him isn't going to make her feel attracted, so it's going to feel quite boring, awkward and forced. Without the feeling of sexual attraction, there's no reason for the woman to want to have anything other than a friendly conversation with him and then turn away and forget about him.

However, when a woman feels sexually attracted to a guy, then there is a reason to get to know him further and like all the other things about him.

[image: Attracted to more than just looks]

So, one thing that I really want to make 100% clear for you here is this: Attraction can be created.

Once you open your mind to that, you will start to see it all around you. You will see guys interacting with women and they will be creating feelings of attraction inside of the woman and that is what is drawing her to him. That is something that YOU can do.

I spent YEARS figuring out how to attract women and then took the time to put all the advice into my book, The Flow. You don't have to spend years trying to work this stuff out on your own. In a matter of HOURS, you can learn what has taken me YEARS to figure out.

If you read my book The Flow, you will get an education and understanding of women that will allow you to naturally attract women when you interact with them. Yet, if you decide to go through life and refuse to have the skill of being able to attract women, then what you can look forward to is probably the same sorts of things that you've been experiencing with women so far.

You might get the same rejections, the same awkward conversations, the same lack of sexual chemistry between you and the woman that you meet. In a relationship, after the initial lust has faded away, you'll probably get the same sort of result again where the woman isn't attracted to you for deeper reasons. The spark and the fire that once burned between you just isn't there anymore, so the relationship starts to fall apart.

I know that all too well because it happened to me. The whole reason why I started The Modern Man in the first place is that I got lucky many years ago. I was at a party, had gotten a bit drunk and there was a girl on the dance floor (in the backyard of the house party) who was a bit drunk too and somehow we started to kiss. After that, we started a relationship, but I had gotten lucky.

I didn't know how to attract her when I met her and didn't know how to maintain her attraction and build on it in the relationship. In the relationship, I did so many things that turned her off that she eventually cheated on me and then dumped me. I then went through many years of being lonely and losing a lot of confidence in myself around women and "throwing my hands up" and giving up at times.

Eventually, after getting sick and tired of the loneliness and lack of confidence around women, I decided that I was going to work out how to approach women, how to naturally attract them and how to have my choice with women. Back then, it was very difficult to do because there wasn't a book called The Flow, so I was on my own and trying to work it all out through trial and error.

After a lot of initial rejection (because I had no idea how to attract women and lacked a lot of confidence in myself), I eventually did work it all out and had a great time picking up women for many years before settling down with my girlfriend. Ever since working out the secrets to attracting women, I've been teaching other guys how to do the same thing and I've also been helping guys to get their ex girlfriend back.

Unlike when I got dumped by my girlfriend many years ago (before the internet had dating and relationship experts devoting their life to helping others), I now know how to get an ex girlfriend back. You've got to make her feel respect for you, make her feel attracted to you and open her back up to the love, which is actually very easy to do when you know how to make women feel attracted to you.

In Closing

To finish up here, I just want to go back to the most important skill that you need to have as a man if you want to be successful with women. That is: The ability to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman.

| Skill (noun): The ability to do something well; expertise.

Attracting women is one of those complex skills in life that initially feels a bit awkward and difficult, but once you know how to do it, it is then very easy and automatic.

For example, if you think about learning how to play a musical instrument (e.g. guitar); initially it feels really awkward and you don't really know what to do, but after a bit of practice, you are able to play songs and it's very easy and enjoyable. It is a complex skill that initially feels like it will be difficult to master, but eventually feels like one of the easiest, most enjoyable things to do in life.

[image: The complex skill of playing guitar]

Another example is when you are learning how to drive a car. You get into the car for the first time and there are so many different things to focus on all at once. Initially, it may feel like a difficult thing to do, but once you learn how to do it and you have the complex skill, it's very easy, natural and automatic.

[image: Learning a complex skill]

The same thing applies to attracting women.

Attracting women is actually a skill that you can develop and master as a man. If you don't have the skill of being able to attract women, then when you interact with women, your conversations are usually going to feel awkward, boring, forced or just friendly. The sexual chemistry and attraction just isn't going to be there with pretty much every woman you meet.

Sometimes, you might be able to get lucky and click with a girl one time out of 100, but if you want to attract most of the women that you meet, if you want to have your CHOICE with women and be able to create feelings of attraction inside random women that you meet throughout your life, then you will need to have the skill of being able to attract women.

If you're interested in learning how to attract women and you want to develop that complex skill right now, the two programs that I recommend you start with are either:

1. The Flow.
2. The Modern Relationship.

[image: The Flow]

The Flow is for guys who are looking to approach and attract women to get themselves a girlfriend or have sex with many women and enjoy their choice of women.

[image: The Modern Relationship]

The Modern Relationship is for guys who are already in a relationship with a woman and want to be able to build on the attraction, respect and love that their woman feels for them.

When a guy doesn't know how to do that with his woman when in a relationship, then the attraction, respect and love is pretty much guaranteed to fade away over time. However, when you know what you're doing, the attraction, respect and love that you and your woman feel for each other deepens over time.

Naturally attracting women is an ability that you can have as a man. It's either something that you know how to do or you don't know how to do. If you don't know how to attract women when you're interacting with them, most of the women that you meet just won't feel the spark with you and they won't be interested in anything other than just talking to you or being a friend.

Most women go through their life feeling very unsatisfied with the options that they have in terms of dating and relationships. When a woman is in a relationship, she will often feel disappointed that her guy isn't able to maintain her attraction for him. When you are the guy who can deepen her attraction, then YOU are the guy that she wants to stay with.

If you are interested in learning how to develop the skill of attracting women when you meet them, so you can get yourself a girlfriend or get laid and have your choice with women, then I welcome you to read my book, The Flow. If you already have a girlfriend, fiancé or wife and you want to learn how to build on the attraction, respect and love that she feels for you, then I recommend that you watch my program, The Modern Relationship.

When you learn how to attract women and you start using the techniques, you will realize how easy it is. Most guys go through their life never really understanding how to attract women and as a result, they get rejected by women or end up ruining the relationships that they have with women throughout their life.

Every guy can improve on his ability to attract women and if you need the help, I'm here for you. I hope that you decide to give my programs a try. You can get started and try the programs with no risk. I offer a 30 day money back guarantee, so give it a try, start learning how to attract women, use the techniques and you will be AMAZED at how women respond to you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What is Flirting and Why Does it Turn Women on So Easily?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Flirting is an essential ingredient that you need to include when you're out there approaching and picking up women to get laid, get a girlfriend or find yourself a wife. It's also something that you need to include in a relationship to help keep the spark alive.

When it comes to meeting women, if you've been finding that your conversations with women start off well, but then fizzle out and become boring to the point where the girl just doesn't seem very interested in talking to you anymore, then flirting is most-likely the missing ingredient that you've been overlooking.

In This Post

In this post, I'm going to answer the following questions for you about flirting:

- What is flirting?
- What is an example of flirting?
- Why do women prefer men who can flirt?
- Why does flirting turn a woman on so easily?
- Is flirting all you need to attract a woman for sex or a relationship?

What is Flirting?

The best way to start off answering that question is to look at the dictionary definition:

Flirt (verb): To behave as though you're attracted to or trying to attract someone, but for amusement rather than with serious intentions. To court triflingly or to act amorously without serious intentions.

So, what does that mean? Essentially, you are showing that you're attracted to her, but it's not serious. You're doing it without serious intentions. You're acting amorously, but without serious intentions. What does acting amorously mean?

Amorous (adjective): Showing sexual desire, expressing love, being in love.

By acting amorously or being amorous towards her, you are showing sexual desire for her, showing love and appreciation of her, but without serious intentions.

Women know that flirting isn't serious, the dictionary says that flirting isn't serious and I'm telling you as well; it's not a serious thing to do, but it's a very important thing to do because it creates a spark between yourself and a woman.

What is an Example of Flirting?

[image: Starbucks barista]

The examples of flirting that I'm going to provide for you take place in a Starbucks cafe when you're interacting with the female barista and ordering a coffee.

The first example of flirting that I'm going to give you is a subtle example of flirting and then I'm going to provide a really obvious example of flirting, to ensure that you fully understand what is going on.

1. Subtle example of flirting

With this subtle example of flirting, it's more about your body language, tonality, vibe and how you're coming across rather than what you're saying. You are acting amorously, showing her that you're attracted to her, but you are not doing it in a serious way.

It's not a serious, formal, risky thing to do; you're just being a cool, easy-going, loving, charming guy and you're showing interest in her in a very subtle way that women love.

[image: Starbucks barista]

So, you walk up and she asks you, "What would you like to order?" or "What can I get you today?" and instead of just ordering your coffee like a normal customer and not showing her that you find her attractive, not expressing any love or appreciation for her, you can flirt with her in a very subtle way.

When she asks you something like, "What can I get you?" you can pause, smile, look her up and down a little and say, "Well...hello, how are you today?" with a subtle expression of love, appreciation and sexual desire.

That's what flirting is. You are showing her that you find her attractive and you are doing it without serious intentions. You're just being a cool, confident, loving, charming guy by flirting with her in that way.

[image: Starbucks barista]

What you might notice now that we're talking about subtle flirting is that guy's like George Clooney, who women refer to as being charming, has been using that type of body language all along.

[image: George Clooney - flirtatious smile]

When he interacts with female hosts or interviewers, you will notice that he uses a flirtatious smile and body language. He's showing his appreciation of the woman's beauty and sex appeal. He's not afraid to express that feeling in a subtly flirtatious way.

The same applies with your interactions with women; you can show that type of appreciation of the woman's beauty, her attractiveness and you can do that in a loving way. It's not serious; you're not doing it with serious intentions. You are simply flirting with her and giving her the type of communication experience that women yearn to have with men.

2. Really obvious example of flirting

The next example is a really obvious example of flirting to ensure that you get the point and understand what flirting is. Remember: You are behaving as though you're attracted to her, you're showing your attraction for her, you're showing your appreciation of her, but it's not serious, which means that you can joke around with at times as I will demonstrate with the following example.

When you walk up and the woman asks you, "What would you like to order?" to be flirt with her in a really obvious way, you can pause, smile and say something like, "Well...I thought I knew what I was going to order, but I've walked up now and my mind's gone blank. I'm standing here talking to the most beautiful barista in all of Starbucks, so I've lost my train of thought. Let's see...what was I going to get? Latte...cappuccino...I guess I'll get a latte."

That's a really obvious example of flirting because I'm actually saying what I feel about her attractiveness, by mentioning that I'm standing there talking to the most beautiful barista in all of Starbucks. It's not as subtle as just walking up with a loving, subtly sexual smile and saying, "Well...hello, how are you today?"

With the really obvious example of flirting, I'm actually saying something like, "Well...now my mind's gone blank. I'm standing here talking to the most beautiful barista in all of Starbucks and I've forgotten what I was going to order."

You're being playful with your display of sexual attraction, love and appreciation for her. You're not doing it in serious manner that demands a serious response. You're simply flirting, flattering her, expressing that love and appreciation of her and it's not a serious thing. However, flirting a very important thing to do because it creates a spark between you and the woman.

Why Do Women Prefer Men Who Can Flirt?

[image: Why do women prefer men who can flirt?]

There are many reasons why women prefer men who can flirt and I'm going to have to explain these for you to ensure that you really understand it, because a lot of guys see flirting as silly, pointless mind games that women want to play.

A guy might think or say, "I don't want to do anything like that. I find her attractive and just want to say hello to her, ask her out on a date and then she likes me for being a good guy. Why does she have to play games? Why can't it be more simple?"

Yet, the dating process just doesn't work in that way and you'll find out why as I explain the following four main reasons.

1. Flirting allows her to get a feel for the guy's personality first

What a lot of guys don't understand is that women feel attracted to men for different reasons than men feel attracted to women. A woman can feel attracted to a man's physical appearance, but if his personality and behavior doesn't make her feel the way that she wants to feel, then she's not going to be interested in almost all cases.

Even though he "looks good," she will still reject him and won't be interested because he just doesn't "feel good."

[image: Rejected even though he looks good]

Yet, the same rule doesn't apply for the majority of men when it comes to their attraction for women. Men are mostly attracted to a woman's physical appearance and if a woman is attractive, most of the men that she meets will be willing to have sex with her or even start a relationship even if they don't like her personality and behavior.

Most guys would be willing to give it a go to have sex because most guys are ready to have sex or are turned on enough just based on the woman's physical appearance.

[image: Most men would be willing to have sex with these women, even if the men didn't like the personality or behavior of the women]

This is why the porn explosion happened on the internet. Men look at porn and get turned on immediately, simply based on how the woman looks. Even if the guy doesn't like the woman's personality, morals, values or level of intelligence, he can still get horny and want to have sex with her (or jerk off to her).

[image: Man looking at porn. Men are mostly attracted to the physical appearance of women]

Just based on physical appearance, most men are ready and willing to give an attractive woman a chance. They would date her, have sex with her or even begin a relationship with her even if they didn't fully like her personality and behavior. That is the position that most women are in and you need to understand that if you are going to understand why women behave in the ways they do.

Some guys have higher standards when it comes to women and want to find a woman who's not only attractive, but also has a great personality. However, the majority of men (95%) that a woman will meet in her life, will either ask her out or show her that they are really interested and want to be her boyfriend, simply based on her appearance.

Even if the guy doesn't like her personality, even if she is being a bit of a bitch, the majority of guys will still be interested in giving it a go. If she is attractive, that is the sort of treatment that she will get throughout her life from men.

Yet, she doesn't just want to accept one of those random guys. She wants a guy who can make HER feel attracted...and that is NOT just about a guy's looks.

[image: Rejected for not using flirting to create a spark first]

Instead of being immediately ready for sex, most women need to be warmed up. Some women are very easy and will have sex right away or will be very easy to pick up, even if a guy has little to no skill at attracting and picking up women. However, the majority of women need to be warmed up and if the guy's personality and behavior doesn't turn her on and make her feel attracted, then she's not going to go along with it.

Flirting allows a woman to get a feel for the guy's personality first before she begins to show some more interest. Instead of a woman just saying, "Oh, you like me? Okay...you look good, I look good, so I'll give you my number...let's go out on a date...how about tonight? Come over to my place, we'll have sex and get this relationship started" she will want to get a feel for the guy's personality first.

2. Flirting is discreet and non-committal

When you flirt with a woman and she flirts back with you, it doesn't mean that she is saying, "Okay, I like you and I want to start a relationship" or "Okay, let's have sex." What she's doing is simply flirting with you to see how it feels and if it feels good, she will go with it.

Women like to play in what I call The Maybe Zone of Flirting to see how they feel, before committing to anything else. The Maybe Zone of Flirting is, "Maybe I like you, maybe I don't. Maybe I'll hook up with you, maybe I won't."

A lot of guys don't like that and wish that women would be more straightforward and to the point. "What's with all these silly games?! I like that girl....I find her attractive...I want to be with her. Why is she playing hard to get? Why is she making this difficult?"

One of the reasons why is that a woman wants to be discreet about her sexual interest in a guy so that other people (including the guy) don't think that she is "easy" or look down on her in any way.

Additionally, before she actually commits to going on a date with a guy, having sex or starting a relationship, she wants to be able to feel very attracted to him first because the attraction that a woman feels for a guy is mostly based on how his personality and behavior makes her feel.

If a woman is attractive, most of the guys that she meets are willing to get started with her (i.e. kiss her, have sex with her, take her out on a date, etc) simply based on her appearance, but she's not. Most women need to be "warmed up" first and they will then be interested in going forward to a kiss, a date, having sex or starting a relationship.

3. Flirting builds up sexual tension

Sexual tension is an exciting feeling that a man and a woman will experience when they want to have sex with each other or go to the next stage of a relationship, but there is something (or someone) blocking that progression.

Example 1: They work together and are attracted to each other, but it is considered wrong or inappropriate to hook up, so they just flirt with each other and the sexual tension builds up. Another Example 2: A woman is interacting with a guy in a bar who isn't easy to pick up. He's not a typical guy who is instantly ready to hook up with her or be her boyfriend simply based on her appearance. Instead, he feels attracted to her, but has the ability to "warm her up" by building up the sexual tension between them.

Most guys instantly react to a woman's physical appearance and are ready to act simply based on that, which is why guys jerk off to porn. The attraction to a woman's physical appearance is enough for most guys.

However, what a woman wants to experience is the exciting feeling of sexual tension that only happens with a guy who understands the position that women are in when it comes to dating and sex. She wants to feel attracted to him in many different ways during an interaction to the point where she too is ready to kiss or have sex.

You can attract a woman by how you are talking to her, how you are using your body language and how you are responding to what she says and does. These are things that a guy either knows how to do or not. Guys who don't know how to attract women during interactions will talk to women and the conversations may start out okay, but it quickly becomes boring and the woman loses interest because there is no build up of attraction or sexual tension.

Many men don't want to flirt with women because they want women to stop being silly and just like them for being a good guy, "Hey...I'm a nice guy...I'm intelligent...I've got good intentions with you. What's with all the silly games? I like you...let's stop mucking around here."

[image: Why doesn't she like me for being a nice, intelligent man?]

Yet, what is really going on is that, if you refuse to flirt with women, what you're refusing to do is create a spark between yourself and a woman when you meet her. The intelligent, deep and meaningful conversations with a woman happen later on in the relationship. You don't need to having those sorts of conversations with a woman initially to get her interested in you.

You've got to create a spark, build up her attraction for you and create exciting feelings of sexual tension. Most women need to be "warmed up" to the guy first and they are not interested in getting started (i.e. with kissing, sex or a relationship) simply based on the guy's appearance. They want to feel attracted and turned on by his personality and behavior.

Initially, women want to feel a spark with you and flirting is one of the easiest ways to make that happen. There are so many things that you can say and do to flirt with a woman and create between you and her when you first meet her.

If there is a woman that you already know and you haven't created a spark with her, you can now create that spark by using flirting and then build on that by attracting her in many different ways.

A lot of intelligent men want women to be impressed by the fact that they are intelligent, have great ideas about the world and politics (or anything other topic they think women should be impressed by), have a great job, have great intentions with the woman, but that isn't what she is looking for.

She wants to feel a spark of sexual attraction and then she wants you to be able to build on that by making her feel turned on by your personality and behavior, which is actually a very easy thing to do once you know what you're doing.

4. It's more fun and enjoyable than talking to a guy who doesn't flirt

[image: Talking to a guy who doesn't flirt]

With flirting, sparks fly immediately between a man and a woman and in a relationship, flirting is one of the things that helps to keep the spark alive.

What happens for a lot of couples is that they will get into a relationship and initially, it will be fun and exciting because there is the "beginner's lust" at the start of a relationship.

[image: The spark is dying]

However, once that initial lust has died away, if the guy doesn't know how to flirt with his woman and doesn't know how to create more sexual tension to keep the spark alive, the relationship can start to feel boring. The couple then ends up feeling like friends or housemates and the fire begins to burn out with no spark between them.

Why Does Flirting Turn a Woman On So Easily?

The reason why flirting turns a woman on so easily, is that it attracts women in many different ways at once.

Most guys are going through life that, to attract women, you've got to look good, be tall, have muscles, have loads of money, have an expensive car, live in an amazing house or apartment, wear the best clothes and THEN you will get the girl. Yet, that's just not how it works. The fact is that you can attract women in so many different ways.

Yes...women are attracted to guys who are good looking. A handsome guy can make the woman feel attracted.

Yes...being tall will make a woman feel some attraction for guy.

Yes...having a perfect, gym body can make a woman feel attraction.

Yet, they are not the ONLY things that women can feel attracted to and that is why you will see guys who are overweight, with attractive women. You will see guys who many people think are not good looking, with a beautiful woman. You will see guys who are from a race (e.g. Asian) where other people think that he can't attract many women, but he will be doing it...easily.

[image: Fat guy with hot girlfriend. She finds him attractive]

[image: Asian guy marries white girl. She finds him attractive]

[image: Bald guy with pretty woman. She finds him attractive]

[image: Fat guy with sexy girlfriend]

[image: Fat guy with beautiful girlfriend. She finds him attractive]

[image: Ugly man with beautiful women. She finds him attractive]

[image: Nerdy guy with a beautiful girlfriend]

[image: Ugly guy with a pretty girlfriend. She finds him attractive]

Why does this happen? How can women feel attracted to guys who don't look like male models? What is going on?

It is a fact of nature that women CAN feel attracted to men for many different reasons. A woman's attraction for a man is not limited to his physical appearance. When you flirt with a woman, you are actually attracting her in many different ways at once.

By flirting with a woman, you are:

1. Being confident.
2. Displaying social intelligence.
3. Being masculine.
4. Being charming.

You're being confident and are displaying social intelligence by being a guy who actually understands flirting and knows that women love it and that they want guys to do that with them.

You're being masculine because you're making her feel girly; you're not afraid to say or do something like that in a public or social environment. You are also being charming, depending on what style of flirting that you're using at the time.

There are so many different ways that the woman is feeling attracted to you when you flirt with her. If you think about what attraction actually is, you will understand how it works. The dictionary definition of attraction is:

Attraction (noun): A quality or feature of someone that evokes feelings of interest, liking or desire.

The dictionary definition of attraction is not, "the feeling that a woman gets when she sees a good looking guy." Attraction occurs when a woman observes, notices or experiences qualities in a man that evoke feelings of interest, liking and desire within her.

When it comes to attracting women, you have so much power. You've got more power than you most-likely realize. You can attract women in so many different ways.

Is Flirting All You Need to Attract a Woman For Sex or a Relationship?

No.

Flirting is just one of the ways that you can attract women.

In my programs at The Modern Man, I teach guys how to attract women in more than 100 different ways. If you read my book The Flow (an instant download after you purchase), you will learn about flirting, many important attraction techniques and the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women.

You will also have examples of things that you can say and do right away to start attracting women. From that, you will be able to get yourself a girlfriend, get yourself a wife or get laid and have sex with many different women.

If you don't know about things like flirting and how to attract women in other ways, then reading The Flow will give you an introductory education on what it takes to be successful with women. You will learn how to attract women when you meet them and then maintain the attraction of a woman in a relationship.

Then, if you want to learn more and discover more attraction techniques, more ways to be confident and more mind-blowing insights about success with women, I have all of my other programs for you as well.

Personally Speaking...

Personally speaking, I never used to know about flirting. I thought that flirting was something that women did and that wasn't important for men.

I would go over and talk to women and ask them boring questions about what they did for a living, where they lived, how old they are, etc. The conversation would quickly get boring and I didn't know why it got boring. I didn't know why women weren't excited when talking to me.

I mistakenly thought that, "Okay...it must be happening because I am not good looking enough. I have to buy more expensive clothes...I've got to get better looking fashions. I've got to go the gym...I've got to look better in any way I can and THEN, hopefully women are going to be excited when they talk to me."

Yet, no matter what I did in terms of going to the gym, buying new clothes or expensive shoes, styling my haircut in a certain way or getting a new cologne...none of it made a difference to the end result of actually getting laid or getting a girlfriend.

Initially, when I started wearing better clothes, women did show some more initial interest, but when I began to talk to a woman, she would quickly get bored and I would run out of things to say. It would feel awkward with the long silences during the conversation because I didn't know what else to say.

There was just no spark because I didn't even know about flirting and I didn't even know that you can attract women in so many different ways when you are interacting with them. As a result of that lack of knowledge, I was turning women off in many different ways while I was interacting with them. Yet, I just didn't know it.

After being rejected by women yet again, I would go home with my tail between my legs thinking, "Oh well...I'm just not good looking enough. Oh well...I guess I'm stuffed when it comes to women...I guess I'm going to have to accept an unattractive woman" not even realizing how close I was to being successful with women.

If I could just go back in time, I would say to myself, "Dan! Wake up!!! Use flirting and other attraction techniques to attract women. You CAN do it." I would tell the younger version of me to stop being so close-minded about attraction. Yet, that version of Dan just didn't know what I eventually discovered and now teach here at The Modern Man.

Back then, I was going through life and looking at other guys who were with beautiful women and thinking, "Well...they must be better looking than me" because that is all I knew.

Attracting Women is a Complex Skill That You Either Have or Don't Have [image: Attracting women is a complex skill that you either have or don't have]

What a lot of guys don't realize is that attracting women and being good with women, is a complex skill that a guy either has or he doesn't have.

Like me when I was hopeless with women and couldn't get myself a girlfriend, a lot of guys are still going through life right now, not even knowing that they have so much power when it comes to attracting women. A lot of guys are going through life thinking, "I don't look good enough and that's why women don't like me" or "My job is not good enough" or "I'm not tall enough."

Such men don't pay attention to the fact that they do see guys who they look better than or who have the same "issue" (e.g. lack of height, overweight, etc) with attractive women. They don't pay attention to that because they don't know what else to think.

So, let me tell you something now to clear it up and to help you understand what's really going on...

Being good with women (i.e. being able to attract women when you meet them and then continually build on the attraction, respect and love that a woman feels for you in a relationship) is a complex skill that a guy either has or doesn't have.

In life, you learn many new complex skills and you either know how to do it or you don't know how to do it.

An example is when a guy learns how to drive a car. Initially, there are so many things to think about, learn and focus on and it might feel like a difficult thing to do, but once you learn it and start doing it, you've got the complex skill and you're set for life.

[image: Learning a complex skill]

The same thing applies with developing and having the complex skill of being good with women.

Initially, from the outside, when a guy looks at a guy who is good with women and notices that sparks are flying as he interacts with them women, it can feel like it would be a difficult thing to do.

The guy on the outside may think, "Hhh...that's too difficult. Bloody women...why do they make it so hard? Why can't I just walk up to her and she likes me for being a good guy? Why does it have to be so difficult?"

[image: It looks difficult from the outside, but it's actually very easy to do]

It seems like a difficult thing to do, but it's actually very easy, just like learning to drive a car. You learn what you need to do, you then do that, you gain the complex skill and you're set for life.

However, if a guy goes through life and he never develops the complex skill of being good with women, then what happens is that he almost always gets rejected by women when he tries to pick them up.

Relationships that he's in become stale and boring. He may also become insecure, needy and take the woman for granted. The relationship then begins to fall apart. No one has ever really taught him what it takes to be successful with women and he's going through life without the complex skill; he just doesn't know what to do.

Yet, that is what I am here for at The Modern Man.

I am here to offer you all the answers, all the techniques, all the solutions involved in having the complex skill of being good with women. Once you get the complex skill, attracting women when you meet them and maintaining their attraction in a relationship is one of the easiest things to do in life.

When you first start out trying to learn how to pick up women, approach women and have your choice with women, it may feel like a difficult thing to do, but I always hear back from guys who have used some or all of my programs and most of them refer to it as being ridiculously easy.

Yet, at the start, if a guy is walking through life and doesn't even know about flirting or how to attract women in many different ways and is thinking that it's all about looks; it can feel like a really difficult thing to do. Women may seem silly, annoying and even shallow for rejecting him, but they are doing it for a reason.

The woman wants to feel a spark of attraction and she then wants the guy to be able to build on that attraction by attracting her in many different ways with his personality and behavior. If that doesn't happen, then she isn't feeling what she wants to feel before hooking up with a guy.

Stop Wasting Your Life Thinking That You're Not Good Enough For Women

[image: My hope for you: Don't waste more of your life thinking that you can't attract women!]

If you are going through life and not experiencing the type of success with women that you want, I hope that you don't go through more of your life thinking that you are locked out of being able to attract women.

I hope that you don't waste more of your life thinking that you're not good looking enough, that you're not good enough as a man, not tall enough, don't have enough muscle or any other thing that you currently think is mandatory for success with women.

I hope that you can open your mind to the reality that guys who are not good looking are picking up beautiful women. Guys who are overweight are picking up beautiful women and even marrying them. Even Asian guys are hooking up with white women and marrying them. Why is that? It's because women can be attracted to a guy for so many different reasons.

A woman's attraction for a man is not limited to his physical appearance. I hope that you can understand that.

Furthermore, when you make a woman feel attracted to you in other ways, she will actually like your physical appearance, even if other people think you don't look attractive. She will say something like, "There's something about him that I like. He's cute. I find him attractive. He's my handsome boyfriend/husband." She will be attracted to him.

Not all women in the world will go for a guy who doesn't look like a male model, but many women will. That's what you need to understand.

With flirting, you can create a spark between yourself and a woman initially, just by flirting with her (i.e. expressing your love and appreciation and feelings of sexual attraction) in a non-serious way. You are showing her that you're sexually attracted to her and then when you create that spark with her, you simply build up the attraction (there are so many ways that you can do it) and then go through the process (called "The Flow") that I talk about in my book The Flow.

You go through "The Flow" and naturally go from one step to the next with a woman. When a guy isn't successful at approaching and picking up women for sex or a relationship, it's because he isn't go through The Flow. He isn't creating a spark between himself a woman and isn't able to build on that spark.

In most cases, a guy will be hoping that the woman will "like" him for being a good guy and then give him a "chance" with her. Yet, that isn't the experience she is looking for and being a good guy just isn't enough. You've got to be able to create a spark between yourself and a woman and then build on it. If you are able to do that, you will have so much choice with women because most of the guys that she will meet in her life have no clue how to do it.

No guy can pick up every woman in the world, but with flirting and attracting women in many different ways, you can pick up many beautiful women very easily.

In Summary

[image: Subtle flirting in the gym]

Flirting is not a serious thing to do, but it's a very important thing to do because it creates a spark between you and a woman.

You don't need to worried about using flirting, "Will she see it as too forward?" or "Will I offend her?" You're not doing anything wrong by expressing some love and appreciation. You're not doing anything wrong by showing her that you find her to be sexually attractive. You're not doing it with serious intentions.

Women know that flirting isn't serious and they love it because they can get a feel for your personality first, before committing to anything serious like giving you a phone number, kissing you, having sex with you or starting a relationship with you.

Flirting allows a woman to play in the Maybe Zone and get a feel for you first, before she goes any further. When you are one of the rare guys who knows how to rapidly build on a woman's attraction for you and turn her on, then you will have so much choice with women.

It will no longer be a case of you trying to talk to women and hoping that they like you, but will be a case you creating an instant spark between yourself and the woman, building on that attraction and then moving it forward.

Rather than thinking to yourself, “I hope I can get this girl to like me. I hope that I can grow on her” and hoping to be liked for being a good guy, you will actually be making women feel sexually attracted to you. Trying to be “liked” will lead you into the dreaded friend zone and will also leave you vulnerable to having another guy come along and steal the woman that you’ve been talking to for an hour, just by flirting with her for a few minutes.

[image: You can attract women]

You do have the ability to make women feel attracted to you.

You most-likely don’t realize how much power you have when it comes to attracting women. You have so much power. You have more power than you probably realize.

It’s not just about a man’s physical appearance. You can make women feel attracted to you in so many different ways and I hope that if you are interested in learning, then you read my book The Flow and if you want to learn even more, you check out some of my other programs as well.

When you do, you will have the complex skill that is required to be successful with women and you will be set for life. You will have your choice with women and you will be able to attract women when you meet them and maintain the attraction of a woman in a relationship.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Know if a Woman is Interested in You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Okay, so there's a woman that you really like and you want to start a sexual relationship with her, but you're not sure if she feels the same way.

How can you find out if she likes you?

The Golden Rule

[image: Start off by creating a spark of sexual attraction]

The Golden Rule is that if you have made a woman feel sexually attracted to you, then she will be interested in you.

The more attraction that you can make her feel for you, the more interested she will be.

- If she is not attracted to you, she isn't going to be interested.
- If she is a little bit attracted to you, she will be a little bit interested.
- If she is very attracted to you, she will be very interested.

Yet, even when a woman is very attracted and interested in you, it doesn't automatically mean that she is going to openly show that to you!

Not All Women Make it Completely Obvious When They Like You

[image: Two women showing their interest in different ways]

Sometimes, a woman will stop talking to a guy to test his level of interest or to test his confidence level. She wants to see if he's going to become nervous when she pulls back her interest or if he will lose interest in her. How interested is he and how confident is he when a woman plays a little bit hard to get?

Sometimes, a woman will talk to a guy and get him really interested in her, even when she has no plans at all to hook up with him sexually. Often, the woman will want to use the guy's interest in her as a confidence booster; to make her feel better about herself, to improve her self-esteem or to look good in front of others.

Sometimes, a woman will want to avoid looking "too easy" to a guy. She will want him to be able to trust her in a relationship if they do end up hooking up, so she wants to show him that she's not an easy target who gives herself up very easily. A woman like that will play hard to get and behave shy about the idea of going on a date, so the man can feel like he is getting a great woman that he will want to stay with.

What to Do if You Can't Work Out Whether or Not She is Interested

[image: What to do if you can't work out whether or not she is interested]

Each woman will show her interest in a guy in a slightly different way. Sometimes, the woman will be challenging. Sometimes, the woman will be easy.

So, what should you do?

- Focus on making her feel attracted to you.
- Confidently attempt to escalate things to the next level (e.g. phone number, kiss, date or sex).
- As long as she keeps showing interest in talking to you and interacting with you, keep going with that until you get to the end result. Be the strong one for the both of you. Sometimes, the woman is shy or worried about being rejected and needs a guy who can be strong enough to deal with her issues.

Don't waste time and energy worrying about whether not she is interested in you. Focus on making her feel attracted to you and she will be interested.

Waiting and Hoping For Obvious Signals

[image: Looking nervous and he waits for more obvious signals]

The main reason why you shouldn't wait around hoping for obvious signals from her is that it can cause you to appear nervous, self-doubting or awkward around her. Those are behaviors and personality traits that turn a woman off.

Waiting for obvious signals from her may also cause you to act like a friend around her, because you're worried about showing interest in her and being rejected. However, behaving or acting like a friend around her is not what causes a woman to feel sexually attracted to you.

What is Attraction and How Can You Make a Woman Feel Attracted to You?

The dictionary definition of attraction is:

▮ Attraction (noun): A quality or feature of someone that evokes interest, liking or desire.

In my programs, I teach guys how to attract women in more than 100 different ways. An example of a way to attract a woman is by using humor, which is just one of the ways that you can attract women. You might have heard women say that they like a guy who can make them laugh.

Humor is one of the best ways to make women feel attracted to you. However, not all types of humor make women feel attracted to a guy. If a guy is just using a friendly and polite type of humor when talking to a woman, it is not going to make her feel attracted. The type of humor that makes a woman feel attracted is what I call, Playfully Arrogant Humor.

By using Playfully Arrogant Humor, you're not being arrogant; you're being playfully arrogant and that is what's funny about it.

Just in case you're feeling worried about the word "arrogant," I want to point out that I'm talking about playfully arrogant humor, which is actually the type of humor that talk show hosts use.

[image: Talk show hosts who use Playfully Arrogant Humor]

Talk show hosts like Jimmy Fallon, Stephen Colbert, Johnny Carson, David Letterman, Jon Stewart, Arsenio Hall, Conan O'Brien and even women like Ellen Degeneres and Giuliana Rancic all use what I call, Playfully Arrogant Humor.

I'm going to give you a couple of examples of Playfully Arrogant Humor in a minute, but, before I do that let me just tell you something even more important about Playfully Arrogant Humor...

The reason why talk show hosts use Playfully Arrogant Humor is that it's the type of humor that makes most people like you. The talk show hosts wouldn't use that type of humor if it made most people hate them because no-one would watch their show.

When you use Playfully Arrogant Humor, it makes women feel attracted to you and it makes most people like you. So, don't be afraid of the word "arrogant" and don't be afraid to use Playfully Arrogant Humor; it's one of the best things that you'll ever do in life. It makes life so much more fun, it makes more people like you and it makes women feel attracted to you.

Most guys stick to polite and "safe" type of humor around women because they are offending women or saying something that might make the woman angry or annoyed. As a result of that "nice guy" approach, the guy ends up being very nice, polite and reserved around her...but, that isn't what makes a woman feel attracted to a guy.

A guy who has the confidence, social intelligence and masculinity to be able to use Playfully Arrogant Humor is the sort of guy who is going to make her feel attracted. He's also the guy who will make her feel really good because she's going to be laughing and having a fun time interacting with him.

Two Examples of Using Playfully Arrogant Humor to Attract a Woman

Imagine that you're talking to a woman you like and she touches you on the arm. How can you make her feel attracted to you by using Playfully Arrogant Humor?

When she touches you on the arm, look down at where she touched you and then look back up at her with a smile and say, "What's with that? You're a bit touchy-feeling today, aren't you?"

[image: Using Playfully Arrogant humor]

By saying that with a smile, you're being playfully arrogant. You're not being an arrogant guy; you're just joking around and pretending to be arrogant by assuming that she's trying to seduce you and hit on you. That's what is funny because most guys will never have the courage or social intelligence to react in that way.

Women feel attracted to a guy like that. Why? Using Playfully Arrogant Humor requires confidence and confidence is extremely attractive to women. It also requires you to think in a masculine way, where you are the man and she is the woman.

A lot of guys will interact with a woman and will put her in the more powerful position; they'll put her in the position of dominance. The guy will try to do whatever he can (even if it means giving up his power and being a pushover around her) to hopefully impress her. Yet, behaving in that way is not what makes a woman feel turned on by a guy. Most women are turned on by guys who are the more masculine one, so she can then be free to feel girly and be the woman in the dynamic between them.

Another example of using Playfully Arrogant Humor when interacting with a woman you like, is while having drinks with her at a party, social function or at a bar.

Imagine that you're out having drinks with the woman you like and she asks, "Do you want to get another drink?" Being the friendly, innocent, nice guy who isn't going to make her feel any attraction, you would just say, "Sure, let's get another drink" and miss out on a perfect opportunity to make her feel more attracted to you.

However, if you use what I call Playfully Arrogant Humor, you would smile and confidently say something like, "Another drink? You trying to get me drunk, are you?" It's about her trying to hit on you. You're being playfully arrogant about it and she's going to find it funny and feel attracted to your confidence, masculinity, etc.

[image: Using Playfully Arrogant humor]

Her: Hey, do you want to get another drink?

You: What? You trying to get me drunk, are you?

What's happening is that you're suggesting that she's trying to get you drunk so she can kiss you and sleep with you. She's trying to take advantage of you.

It would be arrogant to go around thinking that any woman who suggests getting another drink, wants to sleep with you, but since you're being playfully arrogant...that is what's funny. It's a funny joke in the moment. It's not overly serious, it's just a bit of fun.

You've got the confidence, the social intelligence and masculinity to say something risky like that, rather than being a boring, nice gentleman or a friendly guy who's just pretending to be her friend and is acting nice and polite around her. Your using the moment to make her feel more attracted to you, rather than using the moment to pretend as though you just want to be friends.

There is a reason why talk show hosts use that type of humor: It makes people laugh hard and really like them. Don't be afraid of it. Embrace the opportunity to make her feel attracted to you.

Using Playfully Arrogant Humor

To make it clear about how using this type of humor makes a woman feel attracted to you, have a look at the dictionary definition of attraction.

Attraction (noun): A quality or feature of someone that evokes interest, liking or desire.

There are many different qualities and features that you can present to women that make them feel naturally attracted to you. Using humor is just one of those qualities.

How does Playfully Arrogant Humor make her feel attracted to you? You are presenting traits (features or qualities) that naturally attract women, such as: Confidence, masculinity, the ability to make her laugh and social intelligence.

If you just use polite, guarded, reserved, nice guy type of humor, it doesn't make her feel attracted to you because you're not displaying a lot of confidence and you're not displaying masculinity.

If you're too afraid to use Playfully Arrogant Humor with women, then you're most likely in the mindset where you feel like you need to be nice to women to get them to like you and then hopefully get a chance with them.

To successfully pick women up and have your choice of women, you've got to be the sort of guy who makes women feel attracted to you, not just like you as a person because you're such a good guy. There's nothing wrong with being a good guy, but you've got to be the sort of good guy who also makes women feel attracted to you.

Making women see you as a friendly, nice, innocent guy isn't what makes them feel sexually turned on. However, when you display many traits that naturally attract women (e.g. confidence, masculinity, social intelligence, etc), it will attract her to you and turn her on.

Confidence, masculinity and social intelligence are not the only traits that you can display. I teach more than 100 different ways that guys can naturally attract women. Attracting women is actually a very simple and easy thing to do, once you understand it.

You don't have to become a bad boy or a jerk or do things that are rude or mean to women to attract them. However, you do need to display personality traits and behaviors that are going to naturally attract women to you. My approach to women is about being a good guy, but being a good guy who is also attractive to women. That is the big difference.

Attracting Women

[image: Losing the girl because he wasn't make her feel attracted]

Instead of wasting time thinking about whether or not a woman is interested in you, what you need to do is focus on making her feel attracted to you. The more ways that you can make a woman feel attracted to you, the more interested she is going to be in you.

Once attracted to a guy, each woman will show her interest in a guy in a slightly different way. Some women will play hard to get. Some women will make it easy. So, what you need to do is simply focus on making her feel attracted and then confidently move things forward.

If she gives you an absolute, "No! Go away! Leave me alone" response then you know that she's not attracted to you and she's not interested in you. However, if she keeps trying to talk to you, is open to talking to you and is open to interacting with you, then it means that you have an opportunity to make her feel even more attracted to you.

The more attracted you can make her feel, the more interested she's going to be in you.

Use The Flow to Make Her Your Girlfriend Now, Before You

Miss Out on Your Opportunity With Her

[image: Make her become your girlfriend by guiding her through The Flow]

If there's a woman that you really like and you want to make her feel sexually attracted to you, I welcome you to try the proven techniques from my book, The Flow.

When you use The Flow on this woman you like, the dynamic between you and her will instantly change because she will feel attracted to you in so many different ways.

There are so many different ways to make women feel attracted to you and in The Flow, for example, I explain and provide examples of the 9 personality traits that naturally attract women. The ability to use humor and make her laugh is one of those traits.

[image: The Flow]

In The Flow, you will find so many examples of how to use Playfully Arrogant Humor when you approach women, when you start talking to them, when you're a few minutes into the conversation, when you're getting to know her, when you're on a date, when you're calling her up and when you're in a relationship.

There are so many different examples for you, so know how to make a woman feel attracted to you in any moment and you also know how to make her feel really good around you. She enjoys interacting with you, she wants to be around you and she wants to be with you.

As you read through The Flow, you will discover so many different examples of how you can make this woman that you like feel really attracted to you and want to be with you.

You can actually make her feel excited about the idea of being with you. You can make her feel turned on while interacting with you. It's very easy to do and women love to be in the presence of a guy who has the ability to make them feel that way.

“Is She Interested in Me?”

[image: Is she interested in me??]

Wasting time worrying about whether or not she's interested in you, is the wrong approach to use with a woman.

What you need to do is make her feel attracted to you. When she is attracted to you, she's going to be interested in you. The more attracted you can make her feel, the more interested she is going to be.

In The Flow, I also explain how to go from just talking to her and getting her attracted to you, to a phone number, to kiss, to sex and starting a relationship. You simply go through the flow with her. Things flow from one step the next. That is how it works. It's very natural and easy to do.

It's not like being the friend, hanging around her and hoping that something develops over time. When you know how to attract women, you can do it very quickly during a brief interaction. You may have noticed that when some other guys interact with women, they are able to create instant sexual chemistry between themselves and the woman.

You can do that too.

It's actually a skill that you can learn.

Getting Out of the Friend Zone and Into a Relationship With Her

If you want to get out of the friend zone with the woman you like and you want to start a relationship with her, I welcome you to read my book, The Flow. When you start using the techniques from The Flow, she will feel attracted to you, she will be excited to hook up with you and you'll start a relationship with her.

It's actually very simple to do.

It's not rocket science.

It's very natural for a man and a woman who feel attracted to each other to hook up and start a sexual relationship. However, if you're not making this woman feel attracted to you, it won't make any sense to her to want to start a sexual relationship with you. It will only make sense to stay friends.

When you attract a woman, it's only natural that things can then change from being friendly to sexual. If you want to make it happen with the woman you like, I welcome you to read my book The Flow and put it into action. I hope to see you post up a success story on the site soon!

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

3 Beginner Tips For Building Up the Confidence to Approach Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Most guys can't work up the courage to approach attractive women, which is actually a huge opportunity for you.

Since it's not a woman's role to go around approaching and trying to pick up a man, many women complain that they don't really approached much at all.

If they do get approached, it's usually by guys who are going "straight for the kill" by saying things like, "Hey, can I take you out?" or "What's your phone number?" or "Do you have a boyfriend?" or "Can I buy you a drink?" Most guys go "straight for the kill" when approaching a woman because they don't know how to approach and hit on a woman properly.

As she walks through life, most guys simply look at an attractive, call out to her on the street or try to catch eye contact with her. When she's out in a social environment, most guys will just stand around or sit around looking at her and they won't have the courage to walk up and talk to her in a normal, confident way.

[image: Most guys simply look at her or call out to her, but they don't know how to approach her and hit on her properly]

So, there is a huge opportunity for you.

If you can be the type of guy that has the confidence to walk up to attractive women and hit on them properly, then you are the guy who is going to have his choice with women. What you will find, which is what surprises a lot of guys (and it surprised me too when I started approaching women) is that there's hardly any competition from other guys.

Most guys are just standing around looking at the women and when you're the guy who has the confidence to walk up and talk to women and hit on them properly, then you have your choice with women. It's actually very easy to do once you have confidence and the skill set that is required for successfully approaching and picking up women.

So, how do you build the confidence to approach women?

What is Confidence?

If you don't have a clear understanding of what confidence is, it's very easy to get confused about why you're feeling nervous or anxious before approaching a woman. So, the dictionary definition is:

Confidence (noun): Belief in oneself and one's powers or abilities; self-confidence; self-reliance; assurance.

Another definition to help you really understand confidence, is the word that is the opposite of confidence; insecurity. If you look at the dictionary definition of insecurity, it is:

Insecurity (noun): Lack of confidence or assurance; self-doubt.

So, if you're not confident you are insecure. That is literally how it works. You're either insecure of you're confident. So, if you are insecure about approaching women, how do you change that?

Your Powerful Mind

[image: Harness the power of your mind]

Your mind is a very powerful thing and you can either use the power of your mind against you (to create feelings of insecurity) or for you (to create feelings of confidence).

If you're using the power of your mind against you, you are going to be thinking in a way that causes feelings of insecurity. If you use the power of your mind for you and to your advantage, then you're going to be thinking in a way that makes you feel confident. So, to build confidence and harness the power of your mind to work for you, it requires a change in your thinking about the idea of approaching women.

3 Tips For Building Up the Confidence to Approach Women

To build confidence, you must use the power of your mind to your advantage, rather than to your disadvantage. Here are 3 ways to do it right now...

1. Get into the habit of imagining things going well

[image: Get into the habit of imagining things going well]

If you see a woman that you find attractive and you want to approach her, get into the habit of imagining it going well.

You don't actually have to approach her. This is just about building up your confidence to approach when you are ready. You may feel confident enough to approach her just by imagining it going well, but if you lack a lot of confidence with women, you probably won't feel confident enough to approach her.

Take control of the power of your mind by getting yourself into the habit of imagining things going well. Instead of allowing insecure thoughts to crowd your mind, such as, "What if I get rejected? I'll probably run out of things to say. What if she's got a boyfriend? What if other people see and they don't like that I'm approach her?" allow yourself to feel confident by imagining things going well.

Imagine yourself walking over to her (e.g. in a cafe, in the supermarket or at the gym) and she smiles as you talk to her. The conversation starts off great and you're able to attract her in many different ways with your conversation style and the way that you're using humor. Things go really well and she gives you her phone number and both of you walk off smiling. You then call her up and go on a date with her.

If you meet a woman in a bar or at a party, imagine walking up and talking to her and then the conversation quickly leading to kissing and sex that night. If you can imagine things going well like that, it helps you begin to feel good about the idea of approaching women. You've got to get into the habit of doing that if you want to get out of the habit of feeling insecure and fearful about the idea of approaching women.

Of course, imagining things going well doesn't fix all of your confidence problems with women, but what it does is that it gives you a start.

If you think about what confidence is, it is belief in yourself and your abilities. You need to develop the belief that you can do it and that it can go well, rather than thinking that you can't do it and that it can't go well. Having the belief that you can do it rather than having the belief that you can't do it; it's the starting point of having confidence with women.

By imagining things going well, what you're doing is getting into the habit of feeling confident and feeling good about the idea of approaching women, rather than feeling bad about it, feeling insecure, self-doubting and worried about it.

Feeling confident about the idea of things going well is what you need to do. If you think about what confidence is, it's belief in yourself and your abilities and you need develop that belief by harnessing the power of your mind.

2. Accept that every approach probably won't result in a relationship...and that is okay

[image: Not every approach will turn into a relationship]

Imagine yourself approaching a woman, talking to her and then it doesn't lead to a phone number or a relationship. Imagine yourself approaching a woman, talking to her and it doesn't lead to kissing and sex that night.

...and be okay with it.

What's interesting, is that when you have that type of mindset and attitude about approaching women (i.e. you are okay about every approach not leading to a result like a phone number, kiss, sexual encounter or relationship), the woman actually feels more attracted to you. She gets the sense that you're a cool, confident, easy-going guy, rather than an awkward, self-doubting, needy guy.

Guys who don't have the right attitude for approaching women and are instead worried about being rejected and thinking, "I've got to get this girl! I've got to get this girl" come across as having a needy energy. Women pick up on that and they don't like it. Women aren't attracted to insecurity and neediness.

On the other hand, a guy who can come over and just be easy-going and not be worried about whether or not the interaction is going to lead a phone number, kiss or sex that night, has the sort of attitude that makes a woman feel comfortable around him and attracted to him.

Women are not attracted to neediness or nervousness in guys, but they are attracted to a guy who feels confident and independent. A guy who is happy with or without her is very attractive to women. Simply being okay with an approach not leading to an end result will allow you to convey that type of attitude and vibe, which will help you attract women more naturally and easily.

Another important thing to realize about approaching women and about every approach not turning into a phone number, kiss or sexual relationship, is to understand that it's a fact of nature. No woman is romantically compatible with every man on the planet. Likewise, no man is romantically compatible with every woman on the planet.

...and that is okay.

Imagine a world where every woman was romantically compatible with every man on the planet and vice versa. Keeping a relationship or a marriage together would be very difficult! You'd be in a relationship with a woman you love, but you'd also be in love with other women and wanting to be with them. Your girlfriend or wife would be in love with many other guys and wanting to be with them.

[image: Crowd of people]

The way that nature works is that we are not romantically compatible with everyone...and that is okay. It's a good thing. It's normal and natural.

When you can approach women with that knowledge, it allows you to not worry about being rejected. You're simply going over and checking, "Is this a girl who is compatible with the current version of me?" There's nothing to be worried about. You don't have to get a match every time you approach a woman.

3. Stop identifying yourself as being an insecure man around women

[image: Stop identifying yourself as being an insecure man around women]

Instead of going through your life and saying to yourself, "Yeah, I lack confidence around women...I'm scared of approaching women" start to see yourself as a guy who is confident in himself and is moving forward and going after what he wants in life.

Approaching and talking to women isn't dangerous. It's just two humans talking to each other; it's really no big deal at all. However, if you identify yourself as being a guy who is scared, insecure and nervous when it comes to approaching women, then that is the sort of mindset that you will have running through your head.

Thinking in that insecure way, you will be harnessing the power of your mind to work against you. If you want to harness the power of your mind to work for you, you've got to develop the ability to be confident. Part of developing the ability to be confident starts with you identifying yourself as a confident man who is going after what he wants. You're not afraid and you're going to go for it.

Get into the habit of feeling that way, so you can identify yourself as a guy who is confident, rather than a guy who is insecure around women.

The truth is, you are stronger and more amazing that you give yourself credit for. Your true spirit within is strong and you know it.

If you cling to the negative patterns of thinking that you've tied yourself down with and you stop yourself from approaching and talking to women, you will never know what could have happened between you and women. You will never live the amazing life of the strong man that you truly are within.

[image: Stop identifying yourself with your insecurities and start identifying with yourself as being a confident man who goes after what he wants]

If you let your negative, insecure thoughts become a habit of being and your habit of thinking, what will happen is that when you interact with women, it will all come across. Women will pick up on your insecurity by looking at your body language, listening to how you're talking to them, analyzing how you're responding to them and feeling your overall vibe.

The Importance of Being Confident as a Man

[image: The importance of having confidence as a man]

Being confident with women is important all the way from approaching and picking up women to being in a relationship.

When approaching and interacting with women, confidence allows you to attract women because women are attracted to a man's confidence. When in a relationship, it allows you to maintain the attraction of your woman because you are the strong one; you're not insecure. No matter what happens, you remain confident in yourself and she respects you for that and she feels attracted to you because of it.

If you lack confidence with women and you get into a relationship by luck or by chance, what often happens is that your lack of confidence starts to eat away at the woman's attraction for you. You may start to become jealous, insecure and overly-protective of her because you know that you got her by luck or chance. You may also be unable to handle the challenging behavior that a woman puts a man through when in a relationship.

Lacking confidence with women can also negatively affect you at work. If you're the sort of guy who isn't confident around women, you are more likely to get overlooked for promotions. Guys can see that women don't really respect you that much and women can see that the guys don't really look at you as the sort of man who is attractive to women.

However, the guys who are confident around women and able to make women feel attracted to them via their confidence and communication style, are the sort of guys who typically get a lot more respect in the workplace and get promoted more easily.

As a man, being confident with women is so important to your life. Confidence allows you to approach and attract women in the first place, it allows you to maintain a woman's attraction in a relationship and it also helps you in your work life to be the sort of man that other men respect and look up to, rather than looking down on.

In your life, you are either going to decide to be confident with women or you are going to decide to continue on feeling insecure with women. The choice really is yours. You can use the power of your mind to work for you or against you; it really is your choice in life.

Building Up the Confidence to Approach Women

To recap, the 3 beginner tips for building up the confidence to approach women are:

1. Get into the habit of imagining things going well.
2. Accept that every approach probably won't result in a relationship...and that is okay.
3. Stop identifying yourself as being an insecure man around women.

Confidence is something that you have to take control of in your life. It's something that you're either going to have or not have throughout your life. When you understand how to be confident with women and you get used to feeling confident, you will get to the point where it becomes a natural way of being; you won't have to think about it anymore. Confidence becomes natural and automatic for you and you're set for life.

However, if you go through your life and remain in the habit of thinking in an insecure way and continue to lack confidence around women, it doesn't change. Often, it just gets worse.

Personally Speaking...

Personally speaking, I used to be at a point in my life where I couldn't approach women.

As a result of that fear, I spent a lot of time alone at home just feeling sorry for myself. I would think, "Why do the guys at work have girlfriends, but I don't?" and "Why is it so difficult for me to walk over and talk to women? What is going on?"

I knew that it was silly to be afraid of approaching women because I knew that it wasn't dangerous. I knew that the fear I was feeling was unreasonable, unnecessary and over the top. Yet, I couldn't stop myself from feeling that way when I wanted to approach an attractive woman.

Then, when I started to work out the secrets to success with women by going out and approaching women, I rapidly began to discover how to be confident around women. I worked out how to confidently and fearlessly approach women and quickly attract them. When that happened, I was able to go out in a social environment and confidently approach women, attract them and easily pick them up for sex or a relationship.

I enjoyed the life for about a year and a half before I decided to write it all down and put it into my book, The Flow. I had intention of sharing the knowledge and hadn't even thought about The Modern Man at that point. The initial reason I wrote everything down was so that I never forgot it! I had discovered the secrets to success with women and I wanted to make sure I remembered everything I was saying and doing to have such easy and consistent success with women.

[image: The Flow]

If you read my book The Flow, you will learn things about confidence and attracting women that will blow your mind. Guys who've read the book often report back that just by reading it, they are 10 times more confident than they were before reading it. Then, when they start to use the techniques in real life, they become so confident and can approach women at will and effortlessly attract women.

Interactions flow from one step to the next, which is why I call it The Flow.

When you go through The Flow with a woman, the interaction naturally flows from one step to the next. You confidently approach her, she feels attracted to you in so many different ways, you connect with her and then you escalate to a phone number, a kiss or a date, or from a conversation to kiss and then sex that night and then start a relationship.

It's really cool how it works.

So, if you lack the confidence to approach women and you want something that is really, truly going to help you right now, then I welcome you to have a read of my book The Flow. If you want to use a system that will allow you to confidently approach women, attract them and get what you want; whether that is a girlfriend or to have sex with many beautiful women, then get your copy of The Flow now.

I welcome you to have a read through it, use the techniques in your life and you will see how quickly and easily you become truly confident with women. I've done it, guys who've read my book have done it and you can do it too.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What is Your New Year's Resolution About Women?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In 2015, I'm going to:

- ☐ Get a girlfriend
- ☐ Get my ex back
- ☐ Have sex with many beautiful women
- ☐ Improve my existing relationship
- ☐ Find myself a wife
- ☐ Turn my female friend into my girlfriend

Vote

View Results

[image: Loading ...]

Loading ...

How to Make Sure That You Succeed With Women in 2015

Setting a New Year's resolution is a great way to get clear on what you want to achieve with women. However, it's very easy to slip back into unmotivated, procrastinating ways of thinking after the first week of January has passed.

Here is how to ensure that you remain focused and achieve your goal, rather than letting another year of your life waste away being unsuccessful with women...

1. Give yourself credit for any success you've achieved

[image: The impossible becomes possible when you keep pushing forward]

A big part of building and maintaining confidence with women and with anything else in life, is giving yourself credit for the progress you have made, rather than focusing on the times where you have failed.

Insecurity (noun): Lack of confidence or assurance; self-doubt.

Confidence (noun): Belief in oneself and one's powers or abilities; self-confidence; self-reliance; assurance.

Confidence is about having belief in yourself and your abilities. To have belief in yourself when it comes to women, you must actively give yourself reasons to believe in yourself. Ask yourself questions that allow you to give yourself credit for what you have achieved so far with women...and then focus on those positive thoughts rather than focusing on negative thoughts.

Ask yourself...

- What are you able to do now (with women) that you weren't able to do 12 months ago? (Give yourself credit for that).
- Are you more confident around women? (Even if you are only 50% more confident, give yourself credit for it. You are on your way to becoming more and more confident).
- Are you able to keep conversations going and keep them interesting for longer?
- Are you able to attract women in more ways that you could last year?
- Have you become an emotionally stronger man?
- Have you become less nervous around attractive women?
- Do people respect you more now that you've become more confident and masculine?

Give yourself credit for the things you've achieved so far, rather than feeling down about what you haven't been able to do. Focus on the reasons why you will achieve your goals with women, not on the reasons why you might not.

As I tweeted on New Year's Eve back in 2013...

Focus on the reasons why you can succeed, not on the reasons why you might not be able to.

— Dan Bacon (@Dan_Modern_Man) December 31, 2013

2. Know that if you made progress in 2014, you can achieve your goals in 2015

[image: Succeed with women]

If you made progress with your women-related goals in 2014, you will make even more progress in 2015. If you don't make the same old mistakes that have caused you problems in the past and instead begin to use the right approach with women, you will achieve your goals. Success with women is simple, natural and automatic when you know what you're doing.

If you have made any progress with women in 2014, then you are not a failure with women. You are a great man and you are on your way to complete success with women. It is within your reach.

Keep pushing forward and before you know it, you will be lying in bed with the woman of your dreams. She will turn to you and say, "I love you so much" and you will realize that you've done it.

"Our greatest weakness lies in giving up. The most certain way to succeed is always to try just one more time" and "Many of life's failures are people who did not realize how close they were to success when they gave up." Thomas A. Edison (1847-1931. Inventor of the light bulb, phonograph, motion picture camera and many other important pieces of technology).

"Success is walking from failure to failure with no loss of enthusiasm." Winston Churchill (1874-1965. Former Prime Minister of the United Kingdom)

"Believe that you can and you're half way there." Theodore Roosevelt (1858-1919. Former President of the United States)

"Twenty years from now you will be more disappointed by the things that you didn't do than by the ones you did do, so throw off the bowlines, sail away from safe harbor, catch the trade winds in your sails. Explore, Dream, Discover." Mark Twain (1835-1910. American author).

“Successful people do what unsuccessful people are not willing to do. Don’t wish it were easier; wish you were better.” Jim Rohn (1930-2009. American author)

“You may have to fight a battle more than once to win it.” Margaret Thatcher (1925-2013. Former Prime Minister of the United Kingdom)

3. Get the education about women that you’ve been missing

[image: Get the education about women that you need to succeed]

In life, you only know what you know.

For example: If you don’t know how to attract women, then you don’t know how to attract women. When you interact with a woman that you’d love to begin a relationship with, you won’t be able to make her feel much attraction for you and she just won’t be interested.

If you don’t know how to keep a conversation going and keep it interesting, your conversations with women will feel boring, awkward and even forced at times. You won’t be able to keep conversations going long enough to properly connect with women, so opportunities to hook up with a woman or begin a relationship will keep slipping through your fingers.

If you are at a point in your life where you still need to learn specific things about how to be successful with women, then decide to make 2015 the year that it all happens for you.

“It is what we think we know already that often prevents us from learning.” Claude Bernard (1813-1878. French physiologist).

“Success depends upon previous preparation, and without such preparation there is sure to be failure.” Confucius (551 BC – 479 BC. Chinese philosopher).

“Live as if you were to die tomorrow. Learn as if you were to live forever.” Mahatma Gandhi (1869-1948. Indian lawyer and philosophical leader).

“All life is an experiment. The more experiments you make the better.” Ralph Waldo Emerson (1803-1882. American philosopher)

“By failing to prepare, you are preparing to fail.” Benjamin Franklin (1706-1790. Founding Father of the United States)

“The best time to plant a tree was 20 years ago. The second best time is now.” Chinese Proverb

“Life shrinks or expands in proportion to one’s courage.” Anais Nin (1903-1977. French author)

[image: Make a choice to take a chance or your life will never change]

Now is the time to make a choice to take a chance that will change your life forever.

If you go through life hiding from doing the things that make you afraid, you will never grow into the man you really want to be.

Facing your fears, stepping out of your comfort zone and standing up to be the man that you dream of being is an amazing achievement, which leads to a lifetime of happiness and satisfaction beyond any comfort you will ever feel by hiding away in fear.

Make 2015 the year that you finally get the results with women that you've been missing out on for so long...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Say to Make a Beautiful Woman Feel Attracted to You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In this post, I'm going to give you three different examples of things that you can say to a beautiful woman to make her feel attracted to you.

These conversation examples allow you to stand out from other guys who hit on her, make her feel good around you and begin building up her attraction for you.

Before I give you the examples of what to say, I have to give you the background on what it's like to be a beautiful woman. Why? Doing so ensures that you understand why the conversation examples will make her feel attracted to you.

It's important that you understand that first because otherwise, it's just a bunch of words and it doesn't really make much sense.

Let's begin by looking at...

The Life of a Beautiful Woman

[image: The life of a beautiful woman]

Imagine what it's like...

She's walking through the world and everywhere she goes, people look at her. When she's walking along a busy street, guys stop and stare. If a guy is walking along the street, people don't stop and stare and say, "Woah...look at him." However, if a beautiful woman is walking down the street, heads are turning.

[image: The life of a beautiful woman]

Guys are stopping to stare at her, trying to smile at her and catch eye contact and sleazy guys are calling out to her, "Heyyy baby! What's going on?" She's getting all sorts of attention, all sorts of smiles and when she interacts with a guy, most of the time, he will be the sort of guy who puts on the nice guy persona. He will be really nice to her, give her special treatment and treat her extra well, to hopefully impress her and get her to like him.

The life of a beautiful woman is different.

Her beauty separates her from other, normal looking human beings. The more beautiful a woman is, the more difficult it is for most people to relate to her and interact with her in a normal way.

When a guy starts interacting with a beautiful woman who's done herself up with make up, has a sexy body and is giving off that certain attitude of, "I'm too good for you" he can feel it.

[image: Nervous guy interacting with beautiful woman]

She knows that he can feel it because, if he's like most of the guys that she meets, he suddenly starts to feel unsure of himself. He looks nervous, he looks tense and he doesn't behave like his normal, natural self. She senses that he's unsure of himself and is putting on a bit of an act (e.g. of being a really nice guy, bragging about how much money he plans to make, talking about his achievements in life, etc) to hopefully impress her.

He doesn't really know what to do in the presence of this beautiful goddess, this beautiful woman.

She knows how much power her beauty has over him...and she doesn't like it.

She doesn't like it when she keeps experiencing that (guys feeling unsure about themselves around her and then putting on an persona/changing their natural personality in the hope that they can impress her) with guys. It's the same thing day in, day out.

[image: The life of a beautiful woman]

So, what a lot of beautiful women experience is that guys either don't approach them at all, stare at them or call out to them on the street. Nice guys will treat her extra special and nice and be romantic and sweet and hope that, if he is just nice enough to her, she might take pity on him and give him a chance to be with her.

A beautiful woman also encounters a lot of sleazy guys, guys being a dick and saying, "Give me your number" or "Hey!! You got a boyfriend?" So, she's not really getting the experience that she's looking for. What she's hoping for is that a guy is actually going to flirt with her and hit on her properly. She's hoping that a guy is going to make her feel attracted in many different ways, but since most guys don't know how to do that, she misses out on that experience.

A classic example of this is the interview with Bar Refaeli, after she had won the Maxim Hot 100 Women award. She says in the interview (below) that guys don't even hit on her. She isn't counting all the sleazy guys who call out to her, the nice guys who try to get her to "like" them for being a good guy (rather than hitting on her and making her feel attracted) or the men who stare at her.

What she means by "hit on her" is when a guy approaches her in a confident, easy going way and then flirts with her to build up sexual tension between them. Guys who hit on her incorrectly are not counted because those guys are irrelevant and forgettable. If a guy doesn't know how to properly hit on a woman, it doesn't matter if he is good looking – most women will simply reject him because he doesn't know how to make her feel how she really wants to feel when she interacts with a guy.

In the video above, Bar Refaeli gives an example of a time when a guy tried to hit on her (but did it wrong). He stood in front of her and start speaking out his phone number, which surprised and confused her. She rejected him by saying that she was taken (in a relationship), even though she wasn't.

Important: When she says, "Yeah!" in response to Conan's question, "That works?" regarding the guy who used the awkward approach on her, she is not saying, "Yes, that works." What she is saying is that she is hoping to be approached. The approach did not work. The guy got rejected because he went "straight for the kill" rather than attracting her and connecting with her first.

Not knowing how to properly hit on a woman, the guy probably decided to just behave like an arrogant dick (probably because he heard that beautiful woman like bad guys or are attracted to arrogant guys) and speak out his number to her. When she said, "What?" he replied, with, "Well, you want to write down my number don't you?" which is just a weird, awkward and unloving way to go about talking to a woman.

[image: Beautiful women standing around waiting to be approached]

So, what most beautiful women experience are either guys are who are too nice around them, nervous around them, tense around them, putting on an act around them, can't be natural around them, being sleazy, being a dick or just not approaching them at all. It's the same thing over and over and over again.

What a beautiful woman is hoping to experience is to meet a guy who is not intimidated by her, but can also speak to her in a loving, cool, easy going way. She's not hoping to meet a guy who isn't intimidated by her and tries to show her that by being an asshole or an arrogant prick.

There's a lot of crap advice on the internet that you will find, where they will tell you that with beautiful woman, you've got to say negative things to them, bring them down, attack their self esteem and then you might be able to get a chance with them.

That is really bad advice because you don't need to do that to get a beautiful woman to respect you, feel attracted to you and be nice to you. It's not a loving thing to do, it's not a cool thing to do and really, if you're like most of the guys who are trying to learn how to be successful with women, you're a good guy and you don't want to be a dick, you don't want to be an asshole.

You just want to be a cool, good, loving guy and hook up with a beautiful woman or many beautiful women; whatever applies to you.

Examples of What to Say to Three Different Types of Beautiful Women

What I'm going to do now is give you three examples of things that you can say to different types of beautiful women in a loving way, that shows her that you're not intimidated by her.

The three examples are for:

1. A beautiful stripper.
2. A beautiful model.
3. A beautiful actress.

1. A Beautiful Stripper

[image: A beautiful stripper]

If you're in a strip club, the beautiful women in there will usually be more friendly than the average beautiful woman that you could meet in other places. The strippers will sit down with guys in the hope that the guy will then pay for a dance, buy her a drink or give her a tip. So, she's going to be presenting herself in a fairly friendly, easy going way.

Yet, despite how easy it is to talk to strippers, most guys don't make those beautiful women feel attracted to them because they are the same type of guy that she meets all night long. What she gets is guys bragging about how much money they make (or are going to make), trying to impress her by saying they'll take her on a holiday or buy her expensive gifts or asking if she's got a boyfriend.

It's the same thing every night. For her, most guys just blend into one big mass of compliments, requests for dates, offers to buy her things and enquiries about whether or not she has a boyfriend.

So, to make her feel attracted to you, what you can say instead is this...

You're sitting down with her and you ask her if she is going to YOU a drink. After 30 seconds or so of conversation, you can say, "Yeah, so when are you going to get me a drink?" She's most likely going to smile and say, "No, you've got to get me a drink" or she's going to laugh about it and say something like, "Don't you know the way it works? The guy has to get the girl a drink! :)"

Here is an example of how it could play out:

You: [Say in a confident, easy-going way] So, when are going to get me a drink?

Her: [Laughing] Ohh no, you've got to get me a drink! Ǿ□□□

You: Oh, you didn't get the memo? Management changed the rules here. Now, when a cool, handsome guy sits down, you've got to get him a drink. So...I'll get a Sambuca on the rocks.

What's going on in that conversation example is this: You're showing her that you're not intimidated by her. You're showing her that her beauty doesn't make you feel like, "Ohhh, wow. I've got to try to impress this girl and hopefully get a chance with her."

You're also not saying and doing what pretty much every other guy that she meets says and does. You're not afraid to make a joke and have a fun conversation with her. You're not being an asshole by cracking a joke like that. You're simply a cool, easy-going, loving guy who isn't afraid of her. That is really refreshing, enjoyable and attractive for beautiful women who are bored of encountering guys who are either too nice or too much of an asshole.

So, how will saying something like that make her feel attracted to you?

1. You're using humor to make her laugh, which is very attractive to women. Women love to be with a guy who can make them laugh.
2. You're displaying confidence, which is very attractive to women. Women want to be with a guy who is emotionally strong and confidence is a big part of that.

If you look at the dictionary definition of attraction, you will see that attraction is:

Attraction (noun): A quality or feature of someone that evokes interest, liking or desire.

What's happening is that you are presenting qualities and features about yourself that will evoke that "interest, liking and desire."

Confidence and humor are not the only qualities that you can present to her that are going to make her feel attracted to you. I teach more than 100 different ways that you can make a woman feel attracted to you.

[image: Men worried about their looks]

Most guys are stuck on the whole "looks" thing and if they don't feel that they're good looking enough, they assume that they can't get a beautiful woman.

...but, that's not true at all.

The more ways that you can attract a woman with your personality, the more attractive you are to her. Most of the guys that a beautiful woman interacts with won't know how to make her feel attracted in many different ways. Most guys are thinking that it's all just about looks, bragging about how much money they might be able to make, show her their big muscles and things like that. Yet, the truth is that a beautiful woman can be attracted to a man for so many other different reasons.

Most men are willing to have sex with a beautiful woman right away, simply based on her appearance. She looks good, therefore I want to have sex with her. However, with a woman's attraction to a man, it needs to be built up.

Some women will see a very good looking guy and be willing to have sex with him very quickly, but if they interact with the guy and he turns them off in many different ways (i.e. with his conversation style, lack of confidence, etc), they can and will lose interest most of the time.

The reason why average looking guys can pick up beautiful women, have a beautiful wife or have a beautiful girlfriend is that women can be attracted in many different ways. You can build up a woman's attraction for you (within 1-5 minutes) by displaying many different personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women.

Some women require a much higher level of attraction before they are willing to kiss you, go on a date with you and have sex with you or have a relationship with you. However, many women (including beautiful women) will hook up with a guy simply based on light or fairly strong attraction. Strippers are usually the type of woman that require a higher level of attraction. So, if a guy doesn't know how to attract women in many different ways, then he's probably not going to be able to pick the stripper up.

However, he will be able to make her feel some level of attraction for him. It's important for you to realize that because, as a man, you need to realize that you can make women feel attracted to you in so many different ways. When you have that realization, you stop being so concerned about your looks and start focusing on attracting women in different ways.

2. A Beautiful Model

[image: A beautiful model]

Imagine that you being talking to a beautiful woman and she says that she works as a model.

What most guys will do is either suddenly being to behave as though she is too good for him, or will say something typical like, “You're very beautiful” or “Oh wow...what modelling agency do you work with?” It will be the same experience for her over and over again.

Guys will also find it difficult to behave like their normal, natural self around her. She will notice that (she's been experiencing it most of her life with clueless guys) and will then begin to place the guy into the same category as the 1,000s of other guys who've had the same reaction to her.

So, what you can do instead is show her that you're not intimidated by her, but do it in a loving way. Do it in a cool, easy-going way where you're not being an asshole, you're not being a dick; you're just being a cool, easy-going guy.

Here is an example of how it could play out:

Her: I work as a model.

You: [Smile and say to her in a loving, easy-going way] Yeah, you know what? Before I came over to talk to you, I was thinking, “Check out the hands on that girl.” You're a hand model, right?

Her: [Most-likely laughing and smiling] No, no – I'm not a hand model

ð□□□

You: Well, you've got great feet though. You've got to be a foot model, | right? I mean, those are great feet.

By that point, she's going to be laughing and telling you, "No, no – I'm a fashion model! :)" or whatever she works as.

You've shown her that you're not intimidated by her and you're not afraid to take a risk and say something a bit funny that other guys are worried might offend her. You're just being a cool, easy-going guy and you're not doing it in a mean, negative way. You're doing it in a loving, cool, easy-going way.

So, once again: How will saying something like that make her feel attracted to you?

You're using humor and you're displaying confidence, both of which are very attractive to women.

Displaying confidence and using humor is not the only way that you can attract a woman with your personality, but it's a start; it gets that attraction going. It evokes feelings of interest, liking and desire.

| Attraction (noun): A quality or feature of someone that evokes interest, liking or desire.

3. A Beautiful Actress

[image: A beautiful actress]

Imagine that you meet a beautiful woman and she says that she works as an actress. Most guys are going to feel a bit intimidated and ask what movies she has been in. So, you can show her that you're not intimidated by her and you can do that in a loving way, by saying something like, "Yeah, you know what? I think I saw you in that..." and then say whatever big supermarket, grocery or department store chain is in your country.

If you're in America, you might say Walmart. If you're in Australia, you might say Coles or Woolworths, you might say Tesco in the UK and so on.

Here's an example of how it might play out:

| You: Yeah, you know what? I think I saw you in that Coles commercial. You're that grocery girl, right? You're the checkout girl that's smiling and singing the song. That's you, right?

| Her: [Most-likely laughing and then beginning to tell you what she has acted in]

Once again, she will feel attracted to your confidence and ability to make her laugh. Displaying confidence and using humor is not the only way to naturally attract women to you, but it's a start. The most important thing for you to realize is that you can make beautiful women feel attracted to you in so many different ways. The more ways that you can attract women to you, the more attraction they will feel for you.

The Truth About Attraction

[image: Attracting women is easy when you know what you are doing]

A lot of guys don't realize that they can attract women in so many different ways. When it comes to a beautiful woman, most guys think (including myself before. This is how I used to think when I couldn't get a girlfriend and couldn't get beautiful women to feel attracted to me) that to get a beautiful woman, you've got to be a really handsome man. You've got to be tall, have big muscles, have a lot of money, an expensive car, a beautiful house and be able to take her around the world on expensive holidays.

Yet, that's actually not the case at all.

Yes...

Those things (money, looks, height) CAN attract women; there's no doubt about that at all.

However, you can still pick beautiful women up without having any of those sorts of things. You can still pick women up, based on the woman's attraction for you and you can make her feel attracted to you in so many different ways.

A lot of guys don't actually understand what attraction is. A lot of guys think that a woman's attraction for a man is just about looks. That's all they can really think. Yet, looks are not the only thing that can attract a woman to a man.

There are so many things about you, so many qualities that you can present to her that will evoke those feelings of interest, liking and desire. There are so many things that you can do and say around women that make them feel sexual desire.

There are specific ways that you can talk to a woman, which make her feel sexual desire. There are specific ways that you can use your body language, which will make a woman feel attracted to you. There are specific ways that you can respond to the way that a woman tests a guy during an interaction, which will make her feel attracted to you.

That is real.

You really can naturally attract women in so many different ways. The more ways that you can attract women to you, the more attraction they feel for you.

If you think about the example of Bar Refaeli, the model who doesn't even get hit on, she's just hoping that a guy is going to hit on her (properly), flirt with her, make her feel attracted in many different ways and then guide her to kissing, sex and a relationship. That way, SHE can experience love, instead of feeling lonely and left out. SHE can experience the happiness and joy that comes with a loving, passionate relationship.

Now, that said...not ALL beautiful women can't get a date and aren't being hit on. However, what you need to understand is that pretty much ALL beautiful women get hit on in the wrong way. Most guys don't know how to make women feel attracted to them in many different ways, so most of the guys that a beautiful woman has to hook up with, she does because it's like, "Oh well, I can't get anything else."

She's got loads of guys trying to get a date with her and take her out, but she's not really feeling that much attraction.

Attraction (noun): A quality or feature of someone that evokes interest, liking or desire.

Most beautiful women don't get to meet a guy who makes her feel really intense attraction very often. It might be one time every few months or once a year that she comes across a guy who really knows how to turn her on emotionally and mentally. For women, it's not just about the physical, "Oh, okay...he looks good." What she really wants is to be turned on mentally and emotionally by a guy who really knows how to make her feel attracted to him.

What I Hope That You Can Understand

What I hope that you can understand is that there is an opportunity for you.

Most of the guys that a beautiful woman meets don't know how to interact with her in a way that makes her feel turned on. They just don't know how to do it.

Most guys are in a state of shock when they see a beautiful woman. They suddenly start behaving tense or unnatural and are hoping to get a chance with her. They don't realize that pretty much every guy reacts in that needy, insecure way and it turns her off. She is hoping to get a completely different reaction from a guy.

She is hoping to meet a guy who isn't intimidated by her, but who is also a cool, easy-going, loving guy who can make her feel attracted.

I've given you a few different examples of what to say, but that is just a glimpse of what you can do to make women feel attracted to you. There are more than a hundred ways that I teach to make women feel attracted to you.

When you are the guy that is making a woman feel attracted to you in 5, 10, 15 or 20 different ways, then you're the guy that she's excited to be interacting with. You're the guy that she wants to kiss. You're the guy that she wants to go home and have sex with.

The guys that you see posting up success stories on my site are the guys who are using 5, 10, 15 or 20 different attraction techniques on a woman that they meet.

Then, the woman is his because she is feeling so much attraction.

There are more attraction techniques that they can use, but they are only using that much and they are still getting the result. Why? When you know how to properly attract women, you have hardly any competition from other guys.

Most guys don't even know about the attraction techniques that I teach (or that guys who are naturally good with women use), so they are doing 5, 10, 15 or 20 different things that are turning the woman OFF...and they don't even know how to stop making the same mistakes over and over again.

The Reason Why it is Possible For an Average Guy to Attract a Beautiful Woman

The reason why it's possible to attract a beautiful woman is that a woman's attraction to a man is not limited to looks, height, money and social status.

Some beautiful women will only ever hook up with a guy who is very good looking like a model, or is very tall, muscular, has loads of money and loads of power in society.

However, most women have what I call an Open Type. Meaning that they're open to being with all different types of guys, as long as the guy makes her feel attracted in many different ways, other than looks, height, money, social status and power.

This is the very specific and real reason why you see guys that you might consider to be ugly, guys that you think that you look better than or are better than in many different ways, with beautiful women.

Attraction isn't limited to what most people think it is.

While we men select women mostly based on the woman's appearance, women are more open in the way that they feel attracted to men.

Most guys don't know this fact of attraction.

As a result of that, they feel insecure and unworthy around beautiful women, not even knowing that there are many different ways that they can make the beautiful woman feel attracted to them.

For example: A guy might be a good looking guy and work in a great job, but it doesn't mean that he will be able to attract a beautiful woman for sex or a relationship.

[image: Yet another women who has lost interest in talking to him]

He starts interacting with a beautiful woman is she seems interested initially because he looks good, but then she loses interest and he thinks, "Hhh...what's going on here? Why can't I get a girl?"

On the other hand, another guy is going through life as an "ugly" guy. For most of this life, he's been saying to himself, "I can't get beautiful women because I'm not good looking enough...I'm ugly" but he then sees other ugly guys with beautiful women or guys who he feels he looks better than with beautiful women and he is confused.

Even though guys see other ugly or average looking guys with beautiful women, they can't connect the dots and work out the answer to the problem. They say, "Well, he must be rich or have a huge dick or something" or "That woman must be crazy."

They just don't realize that there are OTHER ways to attract women. They don't realize that when you interact with a woman, that's when the real magic happens. That's when the real analysis about a guy happens and it is when the real decision (about whether to hook up with him or not) is made.

When you interact with a woman, how do you make her feel?

Is your conversation style making her feel sexually turned on or is just making her feel normal, friendly types of emotions? Is your body language subtly turning her off, or is it turning her on? How about the way that you're presenting your personality: Is that turning her off or is it turning her on?

Most guys just don't know how to attract women, but when you are the guy who knows how to attract women in many different ways at once, it is YOU who gets access to the beautiful women. You are the guy that they are excited to be interacting with, want to kiss, want to have sex with and want to be in a relationship with.

Most Beautiful Women Are Not Happy with the Options They Have

[image: A beautiful woman not happy with her available romantic options]

Just because pretty much every guy wants to have sex with a beautiful woman and she has loads of options to choose from, it doesn't mean that she's happy about the options.

Some beautiful women are lucky; they meet a great guy and are very happy. Yet, there are so many beautiful women who don't meet the right guy for them and who are going through life being swooned over, having nice guys treat them extra well (in the hope of being "liked" for being a good guy rather than making her feel attracted) and having sleazy guys call out to them on the street.

Many beautiful women also settle to date and even get into relationships with guys who look physically good looking, but don't have the skills to make her feel emotionally fulfilled. She yearns to meet a guy who can make her feel attracted and emotionally fulfilled, even if the guy doesn't look like a model (most guys).

Some beautiful won't settle for anything less than a very good looking, tall, muscular, rich man with loads of power in society, but it really is true that many beautiful women have what I call an Open Type.

That is why you see beautiful women with all sorts of guys. You see beautiful women with the sorts of guys that others may look at as being ugly or unattractive, or undeserving of a woman like that. Yet, to her, she is happy, she is fulfilled because he's making her feel attracted in so many different ways and he's making her feel how she really wants to feel with a guy.

My Question to You

Now that I've explained all that for you, the question I have for you is...

Are you going to be guy that stands out in a beautiful woman's mind? Are you going to be the guy who makes her feel like, "Wow...this is different! I'm interested" where you evoke the feelings of interest, liking and desire to get the attraction flowing. Are you going to be that guy?

Or...

Are you going to be like the 1,000s of other guys that she keeps meeting who are doing the same thing over and over again? They're making the same mistakes, saying the same sorts of things to her and she feels very bored by that.

You have the opportunity to be the guy who makes her feel attracted.

It's actually very easy to do. Guys are always posting up success stories talking about how surprised they are at how easy it is to attract beautiful women. Prior to doing it, a lot of guys are thinking, "No, no, no! You can't, you can't. It's all about looks. You can't do it, you can't do it."

Yet, you actually can. That's the really cool thing.

Are You Willing to Try This?

[image: The Flow]

If you're interested in learning how to make beautiful women feel attracted to you, then I welcome you to try my book The Flow. The Flow includes loads of tested, proven to work examples of what to say and do to make women feel attracted to you in many different ways.

Attracting women is so simple when you know what you're doing. It's one of the easiest things to do in life. However, if you don't know what you're doing and are making loads of mistakes while interacting with women, then attracting women is a very difficult, confusing and frustrating experience.

If you want to stop standing on the sidelines and just staring at beautiful women and you'd rather start having sex or being in love with a beautiful woman (or women), then I welcome you to try my proven techniques. I welcome you to try my book The Flow. What you will find when you begin using the techniques from The Flow is that women feel attracted to you in so many different ways.

The more of my techniques that you use in combination, the more attraction that women feel for you. You can attract the sorts of beautiful women that other guys see as being out of reach, out of their league or untouchable. You can make those women feel excited, delighted and eager to be with you.

You can make women feel so attracted to you that they smile ear to ear, giggle, touch you, hug you and really want to hook up with you. You can make women feel that way.

That is really true.

It's actual.

It's real.

You can actually do it, but most guys simply don't know how to.

I hope that, if you're interested in learning how to do it, that you give my book The Flow a try and you start using the techniques. When you do, you will see that it works and I just hope that you come back and are one of the generous ones who post up a success story.

If you want to see what other guys are experiencing by using my techniques, then go and read through the success stories and you will see that guys are experiencing things with women that other guys think are impossible.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Why Does Being Too Nice to a Woman Often Lead to Rejection?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

So, why does being too nice to a woman often lead to rejection?

Well, this is a confusing one for a lot of guys to understand because you will often hear women saying that they “like” nice guys.

When women are talking about a guy they’re interested in, they will usually say things like, “He’s so nice” or “he’s so sweet,” so it seems like that is the key to success with women.

Be nice, be sweet and you’ll then get the girl, right?

Well, not quite.

[image: Being sweet and romantic doesn't work if she's not attracted to you]

To make things more confusing for guys, women don’t complain about the nice treatment that nice guys give them. They don’t say to a guy, “Hey, being nice to me isn’t going to get you laid or make me want to be your girlfriend.”

[image: A woman getting a lot of attention]

Instead, they just soak up all the nice treatment and then sleep with a guy who makes them feel how they really want to feel. What do women really want to feel when interacting with a guy? Keep reading to discover the answer.

[image: A nice guy being sweet and innocent around a woman...thinking it that it will make her like him]

When a guy notices that a woman is reacting in a positive way to his nice behavior (i.e. she is smiling, enjoying the attention, enjoying the compliments and not telling him to go away), he will want to continue behaving in that way because it makes him feel good. It feels good that the woman he likes is being nice to him, smiling and showing interest in talking to him.

It seems to be working well, so he might then think, “Okay, well...I’m going to keep doing this and hopefully I will grow on her. Hopefully she will develop feelings for me over time.”

Yet, why doesn’t it work?

[image: Feeling friendly affection rather than attraction]

Why do her feelings only ever remain friendly towards the nice guy?

Why does she reject the nice guy when he tries to make a move on her? Why does she say, “You’re silly...we should just be friends” or “Sorry, I don’t want to ruin our friendship” when he attempts to ask her out on a date or suggest having a relationship?

What’s going on there?

If she enjoys being around him and appreciates his nice behavior, why doesn’t she want to have a sexual relationship with him? What’s the missing piece of the puzzle?

[image: Creating feelings of friendly affection rather than sexual attraction]

He is Creating Feelings of Friendly Affection Rather Than Sexual Attraction

If you focus on being nice to a woman and end up being too nice to her, it simply creates feelings of friendly affection towards you, not sexual attraction.

Read the dictionary definitions below to see the difference. The difference is in the sexual desire that attraction creates compared to the “gentle fondness” that is created by feeling friendly affection for another person.

Affection (noun): A gentle feeling of fondness or liking.

Attraction (noun): A quality or feature of someone that evokes interest, liking or desire.

If the main approach that you’re using with women or with a particular woman that you like, is to be a good guy around her and get her to feel a friendly affection for you, then it’s not going to work.

When you try to escalate things to a next level (e.g. get a phone number, set up a date, kiss her or ask her out), she’s most likely going to say “No” because she doesn’t feel attracted to you.

Without feelings of sexual attraction, she feels no need to be anything other than a friend or a stranger to you. Sexual attraction is what makes her want to have sex with you or begin a relationship with you.

Being good, being nice, being polite, laughing at all her jokes and being sweet around her are not the things that will make her feel sexual attraction for you. Those things are still great to do, but they don’t count for anything sexual if she doesn’t feel attracted to you.

You can make women feel sexually attracted to you in so many different ways (I teach more than 100 different ways to attract women) other than the typical things like looks, height, money or social status.

There are so many different ways that a guy can make a woman feel attracted, but most guys simply don’t know about them.

[image: Sharing the real reason she likes a guy]

When you hear women gushing about a particular guy that they like and saying, “He’s so sweet” or “He’s so nice” what’s actually happening is that the guy has attracted her (i.e. he’s made her feel sexual attraction for him) AND he’s ALSO being sweet and nice to her or simply being a good guy.

Women will say vague things like, “He’s sweet” or “He’s cute” or “He’s nice” but that’s not the whole story. Women don’t go around sharing and explaining the reasons why they feel attracted a particular guy. So, it remains a mystery to most guys as they go through life.

For most guys, all they hear women saying is “He’s nice” or “He’s sweet” or “He’s handsome.” So, many guys assume, “It must be about being sweet and good looking. That’s the key to success with women.”

Yet, that’s not it at all.

You can actually make women feel attracted to you via things like your conversation style, the humor that you use, your body language, by displaying certain personality traits and behaviors and by responding in a certain way to the many tests that a woman will put a guy through when talking to him.

Women are always testing guys to see how confident a guy is, what sort of guy he is, what his intentions are and most guys fail those tests because they don't even know what's going on. Most guys don't even know why a woman will behave in a challenging or cold way during a conversation, especially after everything seemed to be going so well between them.

Yet, women know exactly what is going on.

Women have a particular "girl code" that they run by and have many tests that they put guys through, but most guys just don't know about it. When a woman suddenly seems to lose interest, he doesn't know what to say or do and ends up saying and doing all the wrong things, which turn her off and ruin the dynamic between them.

Do You Need to Be a Bad Boy to Make Women Like You?

[image: Being a good guy, but still being attractive in other ways]

No.

One thing that I want to point out here is that there is nothing wrong with being nice to a woman.

You can be a good guy, you can be polite, you can be well-mannered, you can be a gentleman, but ONLY if you are ALSO making the woman feel sexually attracted to you in many different ways.

[image: Attract her in many different ways and she will actually love you for being such a good guy]

If you're only being a good, nice guy to her, then she's only going to experience gentle, fond, friendly types of feelings for you. Those friendly feelings are not what cause a woman to have sex with you right now or begin a sexual relationship.

If you want a woman to want to have sex with you or begin a sexual relationship with her, you've got to say and do the things that will make her feel sexually attracted to you.

The Reason Why Being Too Nice to a Woman Often Leads to Rejection

[image: Why does being sweet and nice often lead to rejection?]

The reason why being too nice to a woman often leads to rejection is that it creates feelings of friendly affection, rather than sexual attraction.

Making her feel affection for you may cause her to want to be a friend to you, to include you in her life in some way or at least be nice to you, but it doesn't make her want to start a sexual relationship with you.

What does make her feel like having sex with you or beginning a sexual relationship with you, is the exciting feeling of attraction. In addition to feeling attraction, she also wants to be in the presence of a guy who knows how to build up the sexual tension between himself and a woman.

Sexual tension: An exciting feeling that occurs when a man and woman feel sexual attraction for each other, but the escalation to sex is being delayed by them, the environment or circumstance (e.g. they work together, she is out partying with her friends and doesn't want to look too easy in front of her friends by hooking up with him quickly, he | is already in a relationship with another girl, etc).

For a guy, if he sees an attractive woman, he doesn't need the sexual tension to build up because he's willing to have sex with her right away. Generally speaking, most guys will see a woman and be willing to have sex with her just based on how she looks.

[image: Guys willing to have sex with a woman immediately]

Yet, the way it works for a woman is that she wants the sexual tension to build up first (this can be done during a 10-20 minute interaction or over a few days if you work or study with a woman) and she will then be open to having sex.

She wants to experience and enjoy sexual tension based on how the guy is behaving and managing the dynamic in the interaction between them. It's exciting for her and it makes her want to kiss and have sex to release all the built up sexual tension.

Some guys don't like that requirement though.

[image: If you say no to create feelings of attraction and building up the sexual tension, she will usually say no to you.]

They say, "No, no, no! I like her and I want to have sex and a relationship with her. I don't want to have to create any sexual tension. I just want her to like me for being a good guy."

But, that's not what women want.

Women want to feel sexual attraction (not friendly affection) and they want to be with a guy who knows how to build up the sexual tension, so that when you actually do kiss and have sex, it's an amazing, exciting, exhilarating release of all the built up sexual tension.

[image: Releasing the built up sexual tension]

That's what a woman really wants to experience.

Discover More Powerful Secrets of Natural Attraction

[image: Discover the secrets of natural attraction]

I hope you've enjoyed this post and learnt some useful tips and insights from it.

If you'd like to instantly discover how to naturally attract women in many different ways at once, as well as build up the sexual tension between you and a woman, then I welcome you to read my book The Flow. I welcome you to try it. The Flow comes with a 30 day money back guarantee and you are going to be blown away by the sorts of things that you learn in my book.

It took me YEARS to work out the secrets that I teach in The Flow, but you can learn it all in a matter of HOURS.

[image: The Flow]

When you begin using the simple-to-use techniques from The Flow in your interactions with women, you will see how attracted they are to you. You are going to be AMAZED at the way that women respond to you compared to how they've been responding to you so far.

...and you don't need to become a bad boy to do it.

You don't need to become a jerk or an asshole. You can be a good guy, but you are going to be a sexually attractive good guy. You're going to be the sort of good guy who knows how to build up the sexual tension between himself and a woman and then release it with kissing and sex.

When you know how to do that, you become the guy that women are gushing about, talking about and wanting to be with. They will be saying, "He's so sweet" or "He's so nice" and other guys will be thinking, "What's going on here? They like him because he's nice? They like him because he's sweet?"

...and they just won't get it.

They won't know that you've been making women feel sexual attraction for you (in many different ways at once), building up the sexual tension and then releasing it with kissing and sex.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

The Real Reason Why a Lot of Good Men Fail With Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

I've been helping guys to succeed with women since way back in 2005.

One of the things that I've found is that every guy who is not succeeding with women has a secret excuse or a secret reason as to why it's not happening for him.

Some guys will say, "It's because of my height. I'm not tall enough" or "It's because of my weight. I'm overweight" (or too skinny), or "It's because of my looks. I'm ugly. People have said that I'm ugly. I don't look like the guys in the magazines or advertisements. I'm not a male model type and women don't like me because of that."

Some guys will say that their lack of success with women is because of race, "It's because I'm black" or "it's because I'm Asian" or "it's because I'm a white guy and I look nerdy."

[image: All the good women are taken]

Some guys will blame their lack of success with women on the lack of available women who are compatible with them and may say, "The only women that I like are the ones who are already taken."

Most Good Guys Don't Realize How Close They Are to Being Successful With Women

[image: Good guy so close to success]

Unfortunately, for a lot of good guys out there in the world, they just don't understand how close they are to be able to attract beautiful women, pick them up, have sex and start a relationship with them.

Most guys are focussing on the reasons why women might not like them, rather than focussing on making women feel attracted to them. Women can be attracted in so many different ways, but a lot of guys turn women off during conversation with the style of conversation that they're using, their body language and by failing the many tests that a woman puts a man through while talking to him.

Many good guys (who women would LOVE to be with) simply don't know about how to make women feel attracted to them by using a certain conversation style and body language. They also don't know about the many tests that women put a guy through while talking to him. Instead of making the woman feel attracted by passing her tests, he makes her feel turned off by failing them.

Without that knowledge, when things go wrong, the majority of guys simply turn to their secret excuse as the reason why. "Well...it must be my looks. I'm not good looking enough for her" or whatever secret excuse or reason he uses to explain his lack of success with women.

The Weird Secret Excuse That I Used For My Lack of Success With Women

Before I became successful with women, I actually had one of these secret excuses as well. In fact, I had two of them, but one of them was pretty weird.

The first one (the weird one) was about my nose. My nose is a little bit bent from a childhood accident and because of that, I look a bit different on either side of my face. When interacting with women, I used to feel really insecure about it and thought that it was having a huge impact on my attractiveness to women.

Whenever I would talk to some women, I'd want to be on what I thought was my "good side" so they could see the best looking side of my face. My insecurity and belief was that I looked better on my left side and therefore, women were going to like me more because I looked better.

Yet, even though women were seeing the "good side" of my face, I was still single and I couldn't get attractive women to want to be with me. So, I simply assumed that my lack of success with women was had to do with my second excuse.

My second secret excuse was about my looks. I thought that I just wasn't good looking enough for attractive women. When I'd see other guys who were interacting with beautiful women, I made the assumption that, "Oh, that guy must be better looking than me because the attractive women like him. I don't look like him and that's why they don't like me."

Yet, I was wrong.

What I didn't realize, which is what pretty much every guy who has one of the secret excuses doesn't realize, is that every guy who is not succeeding with women, every other guy who is failing with women, is going through life with his secret excuse or his collection of secret excuses.

He also doesn't realize (or simply refuses to accept) that, for every secret excuse he has, there are guys who have the same "issue" that he thinks is a problem and they are succeeding with women. They are attracting women, having sex with women and they have a girlfriend or wife.

Yet, for a guy who is attached to his excuses, he simply blocks that evidence out. He wants to feel like he is correct, rather than admit that he might not be right and may need to change the way he thinks about what it takes to attract a woman.

The Big Problem With Getting Attached to Your Excuses

[image: Getting attached to his secret excuses]

After a while, if a guy really attaches himself to his secret excuse (or his collection of secret excuses), they start to weave themselves deep into his mind and deep into his life. He may even begin avoiding trying to meet women altogether because he believes that he's going to be rejected because of his looks, his race, his job, where he lives, his height or any other excuse that he is carrying around with him.

[image: Afraid to meet women because he is attached to his secret excuse]

Eventually, he loses a lot of confidence in himself around women and begins to develop deeper insecurities about his attractiveness to women. Confidence, if you look it up in the dictionary, is essentially about having belief in yourself and your abilities. By attaching himself to his excuses, he has less and less belief in himself and his ability to attract women, so he loses more and more confidence.

Getting Rid of Your Secret Excuses to Become More Confident With Women

How can a guy get rid of his secret excuse and start being more confident around women?

How did I do it? How did I stop worrying about my bent nose?

The first thing that a guy needs to do is:

1. Look for examples of guys who have the same “issue” as him, but who are actually successful with women

If a guy is fat and he says, “Women don’t like fat guys. Women don’t like me because I’m fat” he needs to pay attention to the fact that he does see fat, overweight guys with women. They do get a girlfriend, they do get laid and they do get married.

[image: Fat guy with girlfriend]

[image: Fat guy with girlfriend]

[image: Fat guys getting married]

Some guys may see the fat guy with a hot woman and say that it’s because he has money or power in society. Yet, in most cases, the fat guy is just an ordinary guy who simply knows how to attract women in ways that most guys are unaware of.

Another example is where a guy’s secret excuse is that he’s not good looking enough. He says, “Women don’t like me because I’m not good looking enough. I interact with them and they just don’t seem to be interested, so it has to be about my looks. It has to be that they are rejecting me because I don’t look good enough.”

[image: Why is he being rejected?]

What he needs to do is focus on the fact that he sees guys who are not considered to be “typically good looking” with beautiful women. He sees guys who he would consider to be ugly with a beautiful woman. He sees a guy with an ugly looking nose, but he has a beautiful girlfriend.

[image: Ugly nosed guy with a beautiful girlfriend]

He notices an Indian guy with what he considers to be a “weird haircut,” but he has a beautiful girlfriend. Why? Every man can be attractive to women regardless of race, haircut or whatever other guys think. He might think he is better than the Indian guy because he has white skin or is tall with black skin and big muscles, but the woman thinks the Indian guy she is with is attractive...even though some other guys may think they are better than him.

[image: Indian guy with beautiful girlfriend]

The Indian guys in the photos above can be a LOT more attractive to a woman than a good looking white man. No, it’s not because the Indian guy has a lot of money or has a huge dick. It’s also not because he has a lot of power or status in society. It’s much more simple and natural.

An Indian man (and basically any other man) can be working a normal job, have a normal sized penis and still be MORE attractive to a white woman than a good looking white man. Why? How can that be possible? Keep reading along and it will begin to make sense to you.

BTW: The Indian guys in the photos above could BOTH pick up the blonde white girl from the previous photo above. You have probably seen women like her with an Indian guy, an Asian guy or a black guy. Why? It's not about race, it's about attraction.

Some people think that guys from a certain race can't be as attractive as guys from another race, but it just isn't true. Masculine attractiveness is different to feminine attractiveness. The things that attract a woman to a man are different to what attracts a man to a woman.

Human women can be attracted to human men for so many different reasons, regardless of race or what other people around them are thinking or saying.

[image: Race mixing protest]

Indian, black, white, Asian and whatever other race: We are all human and every man can attract women regardless of race. Most women (not all) have what I call an Open Type, meaning they are open to being with all types of guys...even if other people around them are racist and think they should stick to their own race.

If a guy is able to make her feel very attracted to his personality and who he is as a guy, most women don't care what race (and sometimes even religion) that the guy is from.

Some guys looking on may think, "Huh? Why is she with him?" but it's not a mystery. She is with him because he makes her feel attracted. He makes her feel what she wants to feel with a guy, even though some closed-minded people around her (who don't yet realize that we are all human and equal) think she should be with someone else from her own "race."

[image: Racism - interracial marriage]

If a woman feels what she wants to feel with a guy, that is what matters. The guy gets the girl because he can attract women, regardless of race. He doesn't have to have big muscles, a big dick and a lot of money to do that. It's much more simple and natural than most guys realize.

Most women have an Open Type and will hook up with and marry a guy that other men might think is ugly or from a race that they don't think is attractive. To her, the man will be attractive because a woman's attraction to a man is much more complex than just his looks or his race.

An Indian guy or an Hispanic guy is no less attractive than a black guy, white guy or Asian guy. It's not about race. It's about making the woman feel attracted to you in many different ways as a man.

Once you can understand that concept, it all begins to make sense.

You won't look at other guys and wonder why they have a girl and you don't because you will know exactly why it is happening. The guy has made the woman feel attracted to him and she is feeling what she wants to feel with a guy...even if some people looking on think that she shouldn't be with a guy from that race.

Some white guys will think they are better than Asian guys and some Asian guys think they are less attractive than black guys, etc. Yet, each guy has the capacity to naturally attract women to him. Some guys find that hard to believe, but the photos I'm showing here and what you've seen in real life should allow you to at least open your mind to it.

Once a guy can stop thinking about race and start focusing on making women feel attracted to him, everything changes. You start to see that human women feel attracted to human men, even if some people think that it's wrong to hook up with a person from a certain race.

Attraction (noun): A quality or feature of someone that evokes interest, liking or desire.

Another example is where a guy notices another guy that he considers to be a “douchebag,” but the guy has a beautiful girlfriend. To him, the guy is a douchebag because of how he looks. To him, the guy who he perceives to be a douchebag doesn’t deserve that girl, but to the girl, he is attractive.

[image: Douchebag or not - he can attract a beautiful girl]

He constantly sees guys who he considers to be ugly, weird looking or like a douche, but they have a beautiful girlfriend. Why? Continue reading to find out the answer, if you don’t know it already.

[image: Average to ugly looking guy with beautiful girlfriend]

Some guys use race as the reason why they are unsuccessful with women. A guy might say, “I’m Asian” or “I’m black” or whatever race that he thinks is going to be a problem for attracting women, because HE hasn’t been able to attract women.

If he’s an Asian guy for example, he needs to focus on the fact that Asian guys do get a girlfriend and they can attract women, even though they are Asian. They can still attract women, they can still get a girlfriend and they can still get married.

[image: Asian guy marrying a white girl]

So, that’s the first thing that a guy needs to do to begin overcoming his secret excuse. The second thing that a guy needs to do is:

2. Get educated on how to make women feel attraction for his personality and who he is as a guy

What a lot of guys don’t realize is that attracting women is actually a skill that a guy can develop and have. If you look at the dictionary definition of skill:

Skill (noun): The ability to do something well; expertise.

Attraction (noun): A quality or feature of someone that evokes interest, liking or desire.

You can actually have the skill of being able to talk to a woman in a way that causes her to feel attraction for you.

You can have the skill of using your body language in a way that causes a woman to feel attraction for you.

You can have the skill of being able to respond to a woman’s tests during an interaction in a way that causes her to feel attraction for you.

There are so many different ways that you can make a woman feel attracted to you.

The more skilled you become at attracting women in different ways, the higher quality of woman that you can have access to. Most guys interact with beautiful women and simply don’t know how to make those women feel attracted to them. Instead, they usually make women feel turned off by them in many different, subtle ways.

When you are the guy who knows how to attract women in many different ways at once, it becomes very simple as easy for you. You interact with women, they feel very attracted to you and they want to be with you because of that.

Then, with your skill of attracting women, you make the woman feel even more attraction for you to the point where she feels intense attraction and she feels like she has to be with you. In a relationship, she wants to stay with you and she doesn't want to leave you because she's feeling what she wants to feel with a guy.

The reason why most guys don't see the connection and understand that you can actually have the skill of attracting women, is that most guys don't even know how to attract women. If I show a photo like the one below, most guys will say, "Okay, those three women like the white guy because the black guy in the background isn't as good looking."

[image: Why is she with him?]

Then, if I show this photo of the black guy with the white guy in the background, most guys will say, "Okay, women like the black guy because he is good looking."

[image: Why is she with him?]

Then, if I show this photo with the guy on the right who appears to be more "typically good looking," most guys will feel confused and wonder how on Earth the woman would like the guy on the left. They may say, "That must be happening because it's not a real photo...it's just a stock photo, not like the real ones you've been showing so far."

[image: Why is she with him?]

Sticking With Your Secret Excuse No Matter What

Back in the time when I wasn't successful with women, I would focus on my excuses and any other negative reasoning I could come up with as to why I wasn't successful with women. I would focus on my belief that I wasn't good looking enough, that I had a bent nose and that I just didn't look good enough for attractive women.

In my mind, that was the reason why attractive women weren't interested in me.

I wouldn't allow myself to focus on the fact that I saw guys who were NOT good looking with beautiful women. I stuck to my excuse because that is what made sense to me.

I thought that attractive didn't want to be with me because of my looks.

...and that was the end of the story as far as I was concerned.

Heck, I'd even HEARD women say that they only like good looking guys and see many women gushing when looking at a guy and saying, "Ooh, he's handsome." So, in my mind, I was being rejected because of my looks and that was that. Attractive women didn't gush over me, so I would have to accept unattractive women or nothing at all.

I thought that women wanted a really good looking guy and since I'm not a good looking guy, I couldn't attract women. End of story.

As a result of thinking in that stubborn, confused and insecure way, I was pretty lonely. I missed out on enjoying love, sex and relationships while everyone else was hooking up and having a great time.

Yet, deep down, I knew that something wasn't quite right about my excuses.

Deep down, I knew that there had to be another reason why I wasn't succeeding with women. There had to be another reason because other guys were succeeding with women when they looked WORSE than me.

So, I eventually began to think, “Maybe there ARE other ways that women can be attracted to men. Maybe I can do something about this. Maybe I can be one of those guys that I’ve seen who are with a beautiful women, but the guy doesn’t even look like anything special.”

When I started to focus on attracting women in different ways, that’s when everything started to change for me.

I still looked like the same guy, but what I was doing was attracting women in different ways. I began to use a certain conversation style, a certain type of humor and a certain type of body language. I began to respond to the tests that women put men through during an interaction, in a way that caused the women to feel attracted to me.

Throughout the years, as I hooked up with more than 250 women, I still had the same bent nose and still looked like pretty much the same guy. I didn’t develop a gym body, I wore the same types of clothes and the only thing that really changed is that I lost more and more hair on my head.

Interestingly enough, when I decided, “Okay, I’ve had sex with enough women...I’m going to settle down now” and chose my current girlfriend (we’ve been together for more than two years at the time of writing this post), I was still the same guy with the same bent nose...and she didn’t even notice that my nose was bent.

About 3 months into our relationship, we were having a discussion about insecurities and I told her that I used to be insecure about my nose and how it is bent. When I told her, she looked at me and said, “Oh yeah, your nose is bent”

It was the first time she thought about it.

Why?

She was (and still is) attracted to me in so many different ways.

Success with women is not about your nose. It’s not about your height. Women can feel attracted to a man for so many different reasons, which most guys are simply unaware of.

The Real Reason

The real reason why a lot of good men fail with women is that they don’t know how to attract women.

When they keep getting rejected by women, they refer to their “secret excuse” as the reason why it continues to happen. Yet, if the guy just knew how to attract women, he would stop getting rejected because women would be attracted and interested in him.

A Few Important Questions For You

A few, important questions I want to ask you at this point are:

1. Do you think it’s possible to attract women in ways other than looks, height, money and social status?
2. Do you think it’s possible to attract women by displaying certain personality traits and behaviors?
3. Do you think it’s possible to attract women by talking to them in a certain way that causes them to feel attracted to you, feel lust for you, feel connected with you and feel like they want to impress you?

The answers to those questions is a big, fat YES.

You can attract women by displaying certain personality traits and behaviors.

You can attract women by using a certain conversation style.

There are so many different ways that you can make a woman feel attracted to you.

I've identified more than 100 ways that a guy can make a woman feel attracted to him and I teach all of those ways in my programs here at The Modern Man.

Some of the ways to attract women are very simple.

Some are complex.

...but, the result is always the same.

The more attraction techniques you use in combination, the more attraction that women feel for you. When you can make women feel a lot of attraction for you, you instantly get access to high quality women that most guys just can't attract.

The next important question that I want to ask you is this...

Have you been using any of the following types of excuses to come up with a secret reason or excuse why you haven't been succeeding with women?

- I'm not tall enough.
- I'm not good looking enough.
- I don't have a good enough job.
- I don't make enough money.
- I don't live in a high end house or apartment.
- I don't drive a good enough car.
- I don't wear good enough clothes.
- All the good women are taken.
- Women only go for really good looking guys.

Are you using any of those excuses even though other guys who have the same "issue" are getting laid, have a girlfriend or have gotten married? How much longer are you going to stick to your secret excuse before you realize that you can attract women in more than 100 other ways?

What is Your Secret Excuse or Reason?

[image: Any guy can attract women]

Why do attractive women reject you?

- ☐ I'm not good looking enough
- ☐ I'm not tall enough
- ☐ I don't have a good enough job
- ☐ I don't make enough money
- ☐ I don't live in an expensive house or apartment

- ☐ I don't drive an expensive or cool car
- ☐ I don't wear the right clothes
- ☐ My race / nationality

Vote

View Results

[image: Loading ...]

Loading ...

Select the number reason why you think attractive women have rejected you or why you've been failing with women.*

What is your secret excuse or reason as to why you've been failing with women? What is the secret reason that you use to explain why women aren't attracted to you or why you can't pick women up?

What excuse have you been going through life saying to yourself, or what collection of excuses are you carrying around in your mind into interactions with women and throughout your daily life that are making you feel less confident and feel insecure around women?

[image: Post up a comment below]

Feel free to post up your secret excuse in a comment below. One of the reasons why I would encourage you to post up your secret excuse (or collection of secret excuses) is that it helps you to get clear on what is actually troubling you. What is making you lose confidence around women? What is making you feel insecure?

What you might find (as comments build up over time) is that most guys are thinking the same sorts of things and have similar excuses, even though OTHER GUYS with the same type of "issue" as them have a got beautiful girlfriend or wife or are getting laid like crazy.

So, what are your excuses? Please post up a comment below. I'm interested to hear what you've got to say.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

3 Things That Attractive Women Hate About Most Single Men

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you've ever overheard a group of women talking about men as they sit around a table, you will have noticed that they complain about all sorts of things related to men.

Yet, amongst all the noise of their often random discussions, there are some very common things that really annoy women about men, which keep popping up over and over again.

One of the reasons why attractive women hate the sorts of things about single men that I'm about to reveal now, is that it actually ruins the opportunity to be with the guy. He may be a good guy, but he just doesn't understand what she really wants from him.

As for you...

If you have made any of the mistakes that I'm going to talk about in this article, then you've most likely met attractive women throughout your life who wanted to be with you, but had to change their mind because you did one or more of these things to turn the woman off you.

So, what are these 3 common things that attractive women hate about most of the single men they meet? The first one is...

1. They don't know how to make her feel sexually attracted

[image: Easy for attractive women to attract men for sex]

It's very easy for an attractive woman to attract men for sex and a relationship because we men are mostly attracted to the physical appearance of women.

Most men are willing to have sex with a woman, even if they don't like her personality. Even if she is being a bit of a bitch or if there will be no relationship after the sex, most guys are still willing to stick it in, pump away, have sex with her and have a good time.

Yet, the same rule doesn't apply for how women feel attracted to men. An attractive woman could have sex with the 95 out of 100 guys who are ready and willing to have sex with her, but she doesn't because most guys don't even make her feel much attraction at all.

Why?

Most men are going through life thinking that women are attracted to men for the same reasons that men are attracted to women. They assume that women are mostly attracted to a man's physical appearance and that everything else is pretty much irrelevant, but that's not the case at all.

To make a woman feel sexually attracted to you, it's about a whole range of other things that have nothing to do with your looks.

Most of the guys that an attractive women meets will not know how to make her feel sexually attracted, via their conversation, with their body language, personality, vibe and how they respond to what she is saying and doing.

95 out 100 guys don't even know that there things they can say and do around women that make women feel turned on and make women feel attracted. They just assume that women choose men based on looks, just like men choose women based on their looks.

They also assume that they need to be a nice guy to her, get to know her and then hopefully she will give him a chance. Yet, by using that approach, a guy is usually only be able to make an attractive woman feel affection for him a friendly way, rather than attraction for him in a sexual way.

To make this clear, here are the dictionary definitions of affection and attraction...

Affection (noun): A gentle feeling of fondness or liking.

Attraction (noun): A quality or feature of someone that evokes interest, liking or desire.

When it comes to sexual attraction, the “desire” that is mentioned in the dictionary definition changes to “sexual desire.” The woman’s sexual desire for you is infinitely more important than her friendly affection towards you as a fellow human being.

Most of the single guys that an attractive woman meets don’t make her feel sexual attraction. They only make her feel affection because they are just focused on being a good guy, being nice, having a polite conversation and trying to get to know her as a person.

These guys don’t even know how to make her feel turned on with flirting, by creating a sexual vibe between them, by using their body language in a certain way and by responding to what she’s saying and doing in a way that turns her on.

They don’t even know about that stuff.

...and it becomes really annoying to attractive women when most of the guys they meet are clueless about it.

An attractive woman goes through life being able to attract men VERY easily because she looks good, but most of the single men she meets don’t make HER feel attracted. Unless she is lucky to come across a guy who understands how to make a woman feel sexual attraction, she goes through her life thinking, “When am I going to meet a guy that turns me on? When am I going to meet a guy who makes me so attracted that I want to have sex with him right away?”

She just doesn’t get that feeling very often because most of the guys she meets think that a woman’s attraction to a man is based on his looks. The guy thinks, “Okay, well if I’ve got muscles, I’ve got a nice shirt on and I look good, then she might feel attracted to me and want me” because he is making the mistake of thinking that women feel attraction for men for the same reasons as men feel attraction for women.

He’s trying to get chosen by her based on how he looks, rather than focusing on making her feel attracted to who he is as a guy. In other words, he’s actually being a bit of a girl about the way he’s trying to attract a mate. He’s hoping that she feels attracted to what he looks like and then wants to have sex with him, but that’s just not how it works.

The next thing that attractive women hate about most of the single men that they meet is...

2. They are too easy to impress

[image: Most single men are too easy to impress]

Not only are most guys instantly attracted to her because of her looks, but they are also instantly impressed by her because of it too.

So, what happens for an attractive women is that she really doesn’t have to do anything else (other than look good) to impress most of the single men she meets. The men are already impressed because she is attractive.

Yet, that isn't very exciting to her.

It's the same thing over and over again.

As she goes through life, she realizes that there aren't many guys who are smart enough to be a bit of a challenge for her and make her feel like she has to impress them.

For her, life is a case of men just standing around with their dicks out saying, "I'll put it in...I'll have sex with you" or "Give me a chance...can I be your boyfriend? Can I have sex with you?" They're all just hovering around her.

Yet, that isn't exciting for her.

What she wants is to experience a guy who can make her feel attracted, but ALSO make her feel like she has to impress him and build up his interest enough to the point where he'll give HER a chance to be with him.

That is exciting for her.

Some guys reading this article right now may think, "Why do women have to make it so difficult? Why do there have to be these bloody mind games? Why can't it just be a case of I like her, she likes me, so let's get into it?"

The reason why is that most of the guys she meets are willing to do that with her. She can't help the fact that she feels more attracted to guys who are a bit of a challenge and who make her feel like she has to impress them. She can't help it.

The same applies with how men feel attracted to women...

Women go through life complaining, "Hhh...why don't men just like me for me? Look at all these women with make up on and their sexy dresses and their cleavage out on display. Why can't men just like me for me?" or "Why do men turn their heads and look at that woman because she's got a short dress on? Why do men look at that woman because she has her cleavage out on display?"

We men can't help it that women who put on make up or dress themselves up in a sexy way are more appealing to us.

It's not because we are shallow and only want a woman who wears make up, but it's because her make up triggers our attraction because it makes her face look more appealing. It's weird, but it's just how attraction works.

[image: Brunette before and after make up]

[image: Blonde before and after make up]

[image: Brunette before and after make up]

[image: Dark blonde before and after make up]

[image: Blonde before and after make up]

We men can't help it that we feel more attraction if a woman does herself up and puts an effort in to make herself look sexier.

[image: Group of women at a nightclub]

We men are not shallow for feeling attracted to women who put in an effort to look more appealing.

We are simply reacting to our natural attraction instincts. There are certain things that women can do to trigger our attraction for them.

Likewise, there are certain things that we men can do to trigger a woman's attraction for us.

For example: If a guy makes a woman feel attracted to him (e.g. by being confident, charismatic, charming, funny, etc), she will also feel excited if he then makes her feel like she needs to impress him, maintain his interest and get a chance with him.

In other words, she knows that he could easily have other women if he wanted to, but he's going to choose her if she impresses him enough.

A guy like that is sexy to a woman.

It's exciting and appealing because unlike the 95% of other guys who are willing to have sex with her just because of her appearance, this guy is actually a bit of a challenge to win over and it gets her attention.

He's not just willing to have sex with her because she looks good; he actually wants to be properly impressed by who she is. If he doesn't like the way she thinks, behaves or acts, he will reject her and not let her have sex with him.

He can easily attract other women and if she wants to get a chance with him, she will need to play her cards right, otherwise he will simply allow another girl to get a chance with him.

Now, some guys reading this article may think, "I don't want to make it challenging in any way to impress me. I'm a good guy and I just want to tell her that I like her. I want to be a gentleman and I want her to like me for that. I am impressed by how she looks and I want her to just like me and want me because I like her and want her."

Good luck with that approach if you decide to use it. What you will find is that most women will reject you because they are sick and tired of guys refusing to offer them any excitement and simply expecting to be liked for being a nice guy.

Women want to feel like they are lucky to have your attention and interest, rather than feeling like you're yet another guy who feels lucky to have their brief attention and interest.

If you want to be able to attract, pick up and have sex with beautiful women, you have to stop acting like 95% of the guys she meets. Almost every guy who looks at her or meets her wants to have sex with her, is impressed by her and wants to show her how much he likes her.

Yet, that is very boring for an attractive woman.

She wants to be able to hook up with a guy who makes her feel excited and makes her feel lucky to be getting a chance with him.

It's not about being an arrogant prick or thinking you are way too good for women, but simply about knowing that you can easily attract other women and will only allow a woman to have a chance with you if she meets your standards.

Most women won't openly admit it, but they yearn to be able to find a guy like that. They want the challenge and they want to feel like they've scored themselves a valuable guy that other women want.

3. They place her above themselves in terms of value and dominance

[image: Lower value and dominance]

One of the keys to being successful with women is not only be able to attract women, but being able to get women to respect you as a man.

A lot of guys make the mistake of thinking, “Okay, I know a few things that attract women...I’m going to walk over to her and crack a few jokes, have an interesting conversation with her and come across as being confident...and then she’s going to feel attracted to me and want to be with me.”

Yet, that’s not how it works.

On a certain level, a woman is going to feel attracted to humor, confidence and a guy’s ability to have an interesting conversation with her, but if she doesn’t respect the guy or if looks down on him, then she’s not going to want to have sex with him.

Being able to get women to respect you is especially important when it comes to picking up attractive women. An attractive woman has options because most guys want to have sex with her and most guys look up to her as being something valuable to attain.

Yet, an attractive woman doesn’t want to feel as though she is doing a guy a favor by being with him. She doesn’t want to feel like she is trading down in terms of social value; she wants to feel like she’s trading up.

One of the secrets to making her feel that way is to not lower yourself around her and give her the impression that she’s so much more valuable than you. She doesn’t want you to feel that way about yourself. You can if you want to, but it will only cause her to feel a lack of respect and attraction for you. What she really wants is to feel that you are slightly higher value than her.

The other part of this is about dominance. When a guy meets an attractive woman, what he’ll often do in the hope of getting a chance with her is convey that he willing to hand over his power and self-respect to hopefully get her to like him. He will give her the impression that he is willing to do whatever she wants to do, sit down wherever she wants to sit down, talk about what she wants to talk about, laugh about what she wants to laugh about, hate what she hates and like what she likes.

Essentially, he thinks that it is a good idea to let her lead the way and make her feel like she is in the position of power over him. He hopes that it will make her like him and then he will get a chance to have sex or a relationship with her. Yet, while that approach might make her feel a friendly affection towards him, it definitely won’t make her feel sexually attracted...unless she’s a dominatrix who likes to whip guys senseless.

Hooking up with a guy who hands over his power and thinks and behaves as though he is lower value than her is simply not what 99.9% of attractive women are looking for.

An attractive woman wants to be able to respect a guy as well as feel attraction for him. If she feels like she is more dominant than him and she’s higher value than him, then she won’t respect him and she won’t feel attraction for him and it’s just not going to happen.

It doesn’t matter how many jokes he cracks or how many techniques he tries to use on top of all that junk he is handing her, the fact is that she feels turned off by him on a fundamental level. She can sense that he doesn’t feel like he’s good enough for her and that he’s willing to let her dominate him, so it's a no go.

The Often Sad Life of an Attractive Woman

[image: The often sad life of an attractive woman]

From the outside, the life of an attractive woman can seem so perfect, easy and happy. Everyone wants to bang her, everyone wants to be with her and she can have any guy she wants.

Yet, the majority of guys that she meets just don't make her feel much attraction at all.

95 out 100 guys in this world don't even know that they can turn women on by using a certain conversation style, a certain type of humor and body language and by responding in certain ways to what women say and do. They just don't even know that it is possible.

Most of the guys that an attractive woman meets simply make her feel a friendly affection, rather than attraction.

Yet, affection pretty much means nothing to her.

When a guy makes her feel friendly affection, he's just another friendly, forgettable guy that she's met. Another one of 1,000s of guys that have come her way, felt attracted to her and just been a standard, good guy who is hoping to be liked by her. They have offered little or no elements of attraction for her to get excited about.

Most guys just offer friendly feelings that don't really go anywhere. She interacts with him and it's nice to talk to him, but "Whatever..." Instead of feeling bored with a guy who makes her feel affection, she wants to find a guy who makes her feel turned on.

She wants to find a guy who makes her feel like SHE wants to have sex, not a guy who wants to have sex with her, but who only makes her feel like she wants to be friends.

Unlock More Secrets of Attracting Women

[image: The Flow]

If you want to learn how to make attractive women feel turned on by you, then I recommend that you read my book The Flow.

It has taken me YEARS to figure out what you can learn in a matter of HOURS by reading my book.

You don't have to waste the next 10-20 years of your life trying to work women out, while getting rejected, dumped or overlooked by women who would have otherwise wanted to be with you.

If you want to discover the easy ways to make women feel naturally attracted to who you are as a guy, to your personality and to the way that you speak to them, I welcome you to try my book.

When you read The Flow and begin using the techniques, you will see that attractive women are attracted to you and want to be with you. If you observe or listen to other guys while they interact with women, you will notice that 95 out 100 guys don't even know about this stuff.

Most guys are simply making women feel affection for them, rather than attraction.

When you are the guy who makes attractive women feel attraction, then you are the guy who has sex and a relationship with them.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Why Do Women Like a Guy Who is a Challenge?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

So, why do women like a guy who is a “challenge”?

Why do women have to make the dating process so difficult? Why can't it be just a simple case of saying to a woman, “Hey, I like you...let's start a relationship” and then you start a relationship with her?

Why do there have to be silly “mind games” involved in starting a relationship with a woman? Why can't you just see a girl that you're attracted to, walk over to her and say, “I like you...give me your number...let's start a relationship.” Why can't it be that simple?

The Reason

The reason is that it is very easy for a woman to attract a man for sex. If a woman is beautiful, attractive or even just decent looking, most men will be willing to have sex with her simply based on her appearance...even if they don't like her personality!

Here is the proof...

Would you have sex with this woman?

[image: Would you have sex with this woman?]

How about this one?

[image: Would you have sex with this woman?]

How about this woman?

[image: Would you have sex with this woman?]

It's easy for women to attract us men because we men instantly make a decision whether or not we'd have sex with a woman, just on how she looks. It's like, “Yep, I'd have sex with her...and her...and her...not her though...and not her....but, I'd have sex with her...her too.”

Since men make a decision on which women they're willing to have sex with based on her appearance, it's very easy for a woman to get laid. There's no real challenge for her because just based on her appearance, approximately 80 out of 100 (maybe even more) guys will have sex with her. Even if they don't like her personality, most guys are still going to be willing to have sex with her at least once.

Yet, the same doesn't apply for women. Most women are not willing to have sex with a guy unless he meets certain criteria in terms of his personality and potential as a man.

Personality and Potential

[image: Personality and potential]

Women can and do feel attraction to a man's looks/appearance, but that's not how the majority of women make their decision on who they are going to have sex or a relationship with. Women decide who they are going to have sex or a relationship with based on a guy's personality and potential.

Personality: How does his personality make her feel? Does it turn her on? Does it turn her off? Does it make her feel happy or does it make her feel bored and awkward?

Potential: Does he have the potential to do well in life and to succeed in life, or is he going to be a bit of a "no hoper" or burden for her to carry throughout life? What is his potential as a lover, as a boyfriend or as a husband?

Men and women are different in how they select someone for sex. A woman can select a man for sex just based on his looks and say, "Wow, he's good looking...I want to have sex with him." Yet, if she then talks to him and discovers that he doesn't have a good personality or she feels turned off, awkward, then it won't matter that he is good looking. She will decide not to have sex with him based on how his personality makes her feel.

For a man, selecting a woman for sex is a lot more simple. The majority of men will have sex with a woman even if she has a boring personality or has no potential to succeed in life.

[image: How many of these women would you have sex with?]

A man can walk through the world, look at women and say, "Yep, I'd have sex with her...yep, I'd have sex with her...yep, her too...not her or her, but yes – I'd have sex with that woman."

It's an instant YES or NO decision on whether a man would have sex with a woman. Most men are happy to get inside a woman, pump away and enjoy themselves regardless of whether a relationship will follow after sex.

[image: How many of these women would you have sex with?]

Women Get Bored of How Easy it is For Them

For a woman who is beautiful, attractive or at least decent looking, she will get to the point where she feels bored of how easy it is to attract a man for sex. Most of the guys she meets are just too easy and are willing to be with her, without her having to do anything to impress them. They are attracted to her and want to be with her and that's it. End of story. There is no challenge.

She doesn't have to do much more to impress men because she looks good. Yet, that dynamic isn't exciting to her because it's just everywhere for her.

Think of it this way...

[image: Pizza vs bread]

If all you had available to eat every day was plain bread with nothing on it, you will eventually get bored of it. Then, if something like a pizza comes along, it will give you a "Wow!" reaction. It will be very appetizing and you will want to eat that much more than the plain old bread.

The same thing applies with women and the concept of being a challenge. If you use the approach that 95% of guys use on women, you will be as tempting to her as the same old, plain bread that has been offered to her everyday. Yet, if you are a challenge, then you are as tempting as a hot pizza will be to her after years of eating plain bread day in, day out.

Most guys don't have the understanding about women that you are getting right now. They don't know that women are experiencing the same thing (i.e. the guy is attracted to her and is willing to have sex with her, without her having to impress him any further) over and over again with 95 out of 100 guys they meet.

Guys who do this assume that they are doing an original thing by showing her how much they like her. "She's special...I really like her" ...yeah, join the queue! Since 95% of guys have been showing her how much they like her pretty much every day of her life since she became sexually available, it doesn't excite her. It doesn't get her thinking, "Wow, I want to be with him!"

What does? A guy who is a challenge.

Being a Challenge

[image: Being a challenge]

How do you be the challenge that women want to win all for themselves?

Essentially, it's about conveying to her (without having to say it) that you can have other women if you wanted to, but you're going to choose her if she impresses you enough.

That can be conveyed via your conversation style, body language and vibe without actually saying, "Hey, I can have other women, but I will choose you if you impress me enough." There are certain ways to convey that and most guys just don't know how to do it.

When you convey the challenge to women, they become excited. Just like if you had been eating plain bread everyday of your life and a pizza suddenly arrives in front of you; you're going to have a "Wow!" reaction to it. The pizza will be exciting, it will be different and it will be something that you really want to eat.

If you want to be the sort of guy that women hope to get a chance with, then I recommend that you read my book The Flow.

This is very simple stuff.

It's not rocket science.

It's not something that you need to spend years on to get a degree on or anything like that. This is something that you can learn in a matter of HOURS.

Once you have the understanding about women that I have (which took me YEARS to work out because I had to figure this out on my own), your success rate with women will change instantly. How? You change the way that you interact with women and they change the way that they respond to you. It's as simple as that.

When use my techniques, guys see you interact with women and wonder, "What is he doing that is making women like him so much?" but they can't figure it out. Why? Most guys will go through their life NEVER knowing this stuff because most guys don't even think that it is possible to make women feel attracted to them or to make women chase them or pursue them.

Most guys don't even think that attracting women by choice is possible.

...and that is a HUGE opportunity for you because it IS possible. Not only is it possible, but it's ridiculously EASY and I've been doing it to women for more than 10 years now.

Here's the thing...

1,000s of guys find my site every day, but only a tiny percentage of those guys realize that this is possible and then get my book to learn the techniques. The generous guys then come back at some point to post up their success stories for guys like yourself to see that this is possible.

After learning from The Flow and using the techniques on women, you will see that 95 out 100 guys don't even know about this stuff. You will no longer be the guy who is looking on and wondering why beautiful women are with men that you KNOW you are better than. You will know exactly how they got the women attracted because you will be doing it too.

Personally Speaking...

Personally speaking, I never used to understand this sort of thing and would think, "I like that girl over there...she's attractive to me...why can't she just like me for me?"

I just didn't understand that pretty much every guy she was meeting felt attracted to her and wanted to get a chance to have sex or a relationship with her. I also didn't know that you could "turn the tables around" so that the woman is hoping to get a chance with you. I didn't think that was possible.

How can it be possible? Aren't women the ones with all the power in the dating scene? No!

We men have the power.

We can make women feel LUCKY to be with us.

We can be the delicious challenge that women are hoping to meet and win for themselves.

...and it's ridiculously EASY to do.

That is the insane, crazy and amazing thing that has made me continue working full time on The Modern Man for more than 10 years now (including the time I spent writing The Flow). I have not stopped working on The Modern Man because I have got to get this stuff out there.

If you are the sort of guy who doesn't have his choice with women, or who can interact with women and almost pick them up or can only talk to women for a few minutes before they lose interest, then I recommend that you read The Flow right now and start using my simple, proven to work techniques for attracting women.

You don't have to waste the next 10-20 years of your life not getting what you want with women. Attracting women and getting them to feel LUCKY to be chosen by you is not impossible. You've seen other guys do it and thought, "He doesn't look like anything special...why is she with him?" If those guys can do it, you can too.

I'm one of the guys who doesn't look like anything special (i.e. I have a bent nose, small eyes, I don't have big muscles, etc), but I've enjoyed my choice of beautiful women for more than 10 years now.

I've had so many women pursue me and some have literally begged to be my girlfriend. I don't say that to brag, show off or anything like that; I say it to YOU so that I can help you understand what happens when you actually know how to be a challenge and attract women in the way they really want.

I've also walked up to catwalk models and pulled them back for sex on the same night, or gotten their phone number and caught up to have sex on the first date while they were still in town for their fashion shows. It didn't matter that the catwalk models were a lot taller than me or that they are beautiful and I am average looking and a lot shorter than them. Why? The really pretty women are often easier to pick up because they are even more bored of the fact that most guys are not a challenge.

When 95% of guys meet an attractive woman, they try hard to show her how interested they are. Even if he tries to hide it, she can see it all over his body language and hear it in the way he speaks to her. It's obvious to her because she's been witnessing it since she became sexually available. Some guys will even quickly say to her, "You're beautiful" or "Do you have a boyfriend?" and do whatever they can to impress her and be with her.

Yet, that doesn't impress her. What does impress her is a guy has the ability to "turn the tables" and get her trying to impress him.

This is something that YOU can do.

You can actually make women try to impress you and hope to get a chance with you. To some guys, that may sound impossible because they haven't even be able to get many attractive women interested in them at all. Yet, the reason you haven't been able to do it so far is because your approach to women is probably very similar to 95% of the guys they have been meeting.

In other words, women haven't been rejecting YOU as a person; they have been rejecting your approach.

Being a challenge and making women hope to get a chance with you is just a matter of changing your approach, changing a few of the things that you say to women and conveying certain messages during an interaction. When you do that, you will be amazed at how the woman responds to you. You will be amazed when you see that pretty women are hoping to get you to like them. It is a really cool power to have over women and most guys don't even think that it's possible.

Okay, I hope you've enjoyed this post. I also hope that you decide to give The Flow a try and if you do give it a try, I look forward to hearing about your success if you post it up on the site!

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Impress a Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

About 12 years ago, I learnt a secret about impressing women that 95 out of 100 guys still don't even know.

When I teach you this secret and you start looking at how most guys behave around the women they're sexually attracted to, you will realize that 95% of guys don't even know this. You will notice that they unknowingly turn women off during interactions because they don't even know what you're about to learn right now.

Feeling the Overwhelming Desire to Impress Her

When a guy meets a girl that he is very attracted to and really wants to be in a relationship (or at least have sex) with, he will often feel a strong, overwhelming desire to impress her as much as he can. If he doesn't know what I will be teaching you in this article, the guy will stop behaving like his normal, natural self and he start putting on a bit of an act around her.

Worried that she won't like him for who he is, he will put on a "nice guy persona" (e.g. being extra nice, being very well mannered, etc) around her in the hope that it will make her like him.

Unfortunately for him, he doesn't realize that women are fully aware of this because 95 out of 100 guys put on that type of act around her.

4 Signs That a Guy Has Slipped into "Impress Her!!" Mode

1. He stops behaving like his natural self and becomes nervous and tense around the woman.
2. He doesn't want to say anything that she might not like, so he sticks to safe, boring conversations like, "What do you do for a living? How long have you worked there?" or "Oh, that's a nice dress. Where did you buy that dress?"
3. He tries to say "cool" things that he hopes will impress her.
4. He tries to make a good impression by being on his best behavior around her.

The guy hopes that the woman will think, "Wow, he's such a nice guy. He's saying all the right things. He seems like a really good guy...a trustworthy guy. He's so likeable. I could introduce him to my family and friends. I want to be with him!"

Yet, this approach to women almost always backfires and causes the woman loses interest instead of becoming more interested. Why? 95% of the guys a woman meets will put on that type of act around her. She's not stupid; she knows that it isn't the guy's natural personality. She knows that he's trying to trick her into seeing him as an innocent, non-threatening guy who she should "give a chance" to.

The Secret to Impressing Women

The secret that I want to tell you about impressing women that I learnt a long, long time ago and that most guys still don't even know is this...

The secret to impressing a woman is to not try to impress her at all.

Instead of trying to impress a woman in the hopes that she likes you, what you actually need to do is:

1. Stop trying to impress her.
2. Be your normal, natural self.
3. Get her to feel sexually attracted to you, rather than just “like” you as a person.

If a woman likes you as a guy or likes you as a person, it doesn't mean that she's going to want to have sex with you. What makes a woman want to have sex with you and be your girlfriend, your lover or dream about being your wife, is her feeling sexually attracted to you. Sexual attraction has to come first before anything else you do, including getting her to “like” you as a person.

Sexual attraction isn't sparked in a woman by:

- Being really nice around her and saying all the right things or sticking to safe, polite conversation.
- Acting like Mr. Perfect or Mr. I'm Not Interested in Sex, I Just Want to Be Your Friend.
- Listening to her talk excitedly about her love of shoes, fashion or a particular TV show she's been watching lately.

Putting on an Act Makes Her Lose Respect For You as a Guy

[image: How to impress a woman]

When a woman gets the sense that a guy is not being his normal, real, authentic self it actually makes her lose respect for him. Additionally, the majority of his behavior around her (e.g. being extra nice, polite, well mannered, considerate, etc) won't be making her feel sexually attracted to him. She might think of him as a nice guy, but that doesn't make a woman feel sexually attracted.

When a woman doesn't respect a guy or feel sexual attraction for him, it doesn't add up to her thinking, “Wow! I'm so impressed! I want to start a relationship with him right now.” She simply looks at him as yet another guy who doesn't feel like his normal, natural self is good enough for her.

Impressing Women Naturally

The natural, simple way to impress a woman is to gain her respect by being your normal, authentic self while also doing the sorts of things that will make her feel sexually attracted to you. You can make a woman feel sexually attracted to you based on her personality and who you are as a guy. There are so many different ways that you can attract a woman while talking to her and interacting with her.

Just like 95% of guys fail in their attempts to impress women, almost the same amount of guys don't know how to make a woman feel attracted during a conversation. So, when you learn the techniques that we teach here at The Modern Man (and that you can learn about in my book The Flow, which is the foundation of everything I teach), you will instantly become more impressive than 95% of guys a woman meets.

In a matter of hours you can learn what has taken me years to work out about attracting women and getting women to fall madly in love with you during an interaction. If you have met a woman already and have made a bad impression her, simply use the techniques that I teach in The Flow and she will suddenly feel intense respect and attraction for you. If you use a lot of my attraction techniques on her at once, she will even begin to pursue you and make it really obvious that she has feelings for you and she wants to be with you.

When you meet a new woman for the first time, getting her to feel respect and attraction for you happens in the first 1-2 minutes. You will see how attracted she is to you and you will be amazed at how obvious she makes it that she really likes you and wants to be with you. That is a really cool power to have as a guy and when you start using the techniques that I provide in The Flow, you will notice that 95 out of 100 guys don't even know about this stuff.

Right now, you have got an opportunity now to get ahead of the competition. Before other guys find The Modern Man and starting learning and using these techniques on women before you do, you've got an opportunity to learn it all now, get what you want with women, enjoy the life that you want with women and not have to worry about most guys competing with you. After learning the techniques and insights from The Flow, you will see that 95 out of 100 guys don't even know this and are simply trying to fumble their way into a relationship with a woman or are hoping to "get lucky."

Unlike other guys who are clueless about women, you will know exactly what you're doing when interacting with a woman. You will effortlessly make a woman feel intense respect and attraction for you when you interact with her. You won't have to waste weeks or months trying to impress a woman and hope that she eventually likes you, constantly worrying that some other guy might steal her from you. You will simply make her feel respect and attraction for you immediately and she will then make it completely obvious that she likes you in a sexual way and wants something to happen.

In many cases, she will even begin to pursue you, ask you out or hint at the fact that she wants to get sexual with you. Other guys looking on won't know why beautiful women like you so much, but it will be completely clear to you. You will know exactly how and why you've made women feel that way. From that moment onwards, you will know that you will have your choice with women for life. Impressing women and making them feel intense respect and attraction for you will no longer be a mystery to you.

In Conclusion

I hope you enjoyed this post.

Just remember...

The next time you interact with a woman you really like, don't try so hard to impress her. Trying hard to impress a woman is actually very unimpressive to women because they get that all the time from clueless guys.

What makes a woman feel impressed by you is noticing that you don't feel the need to impress her because you believe that your natural self is good enough for her. That type of confidence in a guy is really impressive to women. From there, you simply need to make her feel very attracted to you (don't worry – it is easy) and she will make it really obvious that she wants to be with you.

When you see how attracted to you she is, you then use my simple, proven to work techniques from

The Flow to go from a conversation to a kiss or a conversation to a phone number, then date, kiss and sex. You can also go from a conversation to a kiss to sex on the first day or night you meet a woman. It really is very natural and easy to do and I hope that you give it a try.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

A Surprising Truth About What Really Attracts Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In this article, I'm going to share a surprising truth with you about what really attracts women to men.

This is a difficult concept to get your head around (and accept) initially, but once you open your mind to it, you will begin to see it everywhere around you and it will all begin to make sense.

It's the concept of what really attracts women to men. Most men make the mistake of thinking that women feel attracted to men for the same reasons that men feel attracted to women, but that isn't correct.

Almost all men are mostly attracted to beautiful women who have a sweet, friendly, approachable type of personality. So, most men then assume that women must be attracted to men who are really good looking and who have a sweet, friendly and approachable personality.

I used to think the same thing.

I tried my best to look as good as I could, I bought the best clothes and tried to be as nice as I could to women. I was polite, friendly, approachable, easy-going, gentle and simply trying to show women that I was a good guy, I was trustworthy and that I'd be good boyfriend material.

Yet, women still didn't like me.

So, I assumed (like almost all guys do) that the reason women weren't interested in me was due to the fact that I'm not a tall, good looking guy. It was a nice excuse, but deep down I knew that it probably wasn't correct because I kept seeing other guys (that were not good looking) walking along happy and content with their beautiful girlfriend or wife.

I thought to myself, "There has to be something else going on here...I have to be missing something..." but I had no idea what that "something" was. Luckily, I didn't give up and instead pushed on to find the answer. When I did find the answer, I discovered a surprising truth about what really attracts women that most guys are STILL unaware of to this day. Most guys do not even want to consider that this is possible, but it's the truth.

This is actually how attraction works for women...

The Surprising Truth

Women are mostly attracted to things about men that cannot be seen.

In other words, women are mostly attracted to the things about that are not visual, that are invisible to the naked eye. For men, the opposite is true.

Men are mostly attracted to things about women that can be seen.

Another way to explain this is that women are mostly attracted to a man's personality traits and how it makes her feel. Whereas, men are mostly attracted to a woman's physical appearance and how that makes him feel. This is why men watch porn and masturbate to what they are seeing visually, while women close their eyes and imagine having sex with men who have the personality traits (e.g. confidence) that attract her.

Does That Mean That a Man's Look Doesn't Matter?

Of course not.

Imagine a smelly homeless man with 5 missing teeth and scraggy clothes. It won't matter if he has a great personality; the majority of women won't want anything to do with him.

Looks, money, fame, height, muscles and age can attract or turn off a woman. That is true. However, those things are not nearly as important as how his personality makes the woman feel. That is, of course, as long as the guy is a fairly "normal" guy. What is normal? Pretty much every guy on the planet. What isn't "normal"? A crazy man, a homeless man, etc.

In almost all cases, if a normal man's personality makes a woman feel attracted to him and makes her feel the types of emotions that she wants to feel with a guy, she will overlook the fact that he's not 6'5 inches tall, doesn't look like a male model, doesn't have an amazing, high paying job or doesn't drive an expensive car.

She will feel attracted to him for other reasons and she will then fall in love with who he is as a guy/man. This is why you (and every other guy) has seen guys who are not good looking, tall or rich with beautiful women. The women are attracted to those guys for reasons other than the superficial things, such as height, looks, money, fame and muscles.

Making Women Feel Attracted to You

As it turns out, making women feel naturally attracted to your personality and who you are as a man is one of the easiest things you can ever do in life.

When a guy first begins his quest to get better results with women and finds The Modern Man site, he often arrives thinking that it will be very difficult to attract pretty women, because he hasn't been able to do that very well in his life so far.

Yet, when he starts using the proven attraction techniques that we teach here at The Modern Man, he realizes how easy it actually is. He then begins to realize that most guys around him don't even know how to actively attract women and are simply hoping to "get lucky." When you begin to naturally attract women with your personality (and other things that we only teach in our programs), you realize that it is an ability that you have had all along.

You just haven't been shown how to use your natural ability to attract women.

If you would like to quickly learn how to naturally attract women with your personality (and other things that are only revealed in our programs), I recommend that you read my book, The Flow. You will be amazed when you go through the book and discover all of the powerful (yet simple) ways that you can attract women.

This isn't rocket science or a bunch of overly-complicated theory. This is very natural and very simple and any guy can do it.

When you start to interact with women in the ways that I suggest in my book The Flow, you will see that they are naturally attracted to you. Then, when you begin to use a lot of the techniques on women all at once, you will find that you're able to make women feel intense attraction for you. Women feel so much for you (instantly) that they begin to lust after you or make it completely obvious that they want to kiss you and have sex with you.

It's really cool how it works and I've enjoyed that sort of power over women for more than 12 years now.

Get Ahead of Other Guys by Starting This Today

Most guys don't even think that it's possible to attract women with their personality (and other things that we reveal in our programs), but The Modern Man is growing in popularity every day.

Right now, you have an opportunity to learn this stuff before other guys find out about it.

Next week, if you're interacting with a beautiful woman (that you really want to have sex with or have as your girlfriend) and you don't know how to attract her, it won't even matter if you think that it's "fate" or "destiny" that you and her have met. If there is another guy (e.g. at her work, university, at the party, etc) who is talking to her and he knows how to attract women and is using 6 or 7 different attraction techniques on her, then it will be he who gets to have sex and a relationship with her.

Attraction is what starts the process of hooking up and if you can't make women feel that way about you, it won't matter how much you "like" her. Just like you want to be with a woman that you feel attracted to, a woman wants to be with a guy that she is attracted to. When you are the guy who can make women feel intense attraction during a 1-5 minute conversation or interaction, then it will be you who has his choice with women. You will be the guy who is getting naked with her and enjoying love, sex and intimacy.

You have found my site here.

I have the answers.

I have spent years working this stuff out and have slept with more than 250 women in the process. I now have an amazing girlfriend (two years into the relationship as I write this) and couldn't be happier about this area of my life.

You don't have to waste more years of your life not knowing how to attract women and have your choice with women. What has taken me years to work out, you can learn in a matter of hours and then get on with enjoying your life with women.

The next time that you interact with woman, you are going to be the one that she feels intense attraction for. You are going to be the one that she can't stop thinking about. You are going to be the one that she feels lust for and wants to be with sexually.

So, if you are interested in having that sort of power over women, I really welcome you to try my book The Flow. It comes with a 30 day money back guarantee and I welcome you to try it. You will love what you're about to learn in this book.

When you know how to attract women and make women feel what 95 out of 100 guys can't make her feel, then you are the guy who has his choice with women. You are the guy in a group situation who is respected. Women are paying attention to you, laughing at your jokes and trying to keep any conversation going with you to hopefully get you to like them more. You are the guy who is in control. You are the guy who knows the secrets of naturally attracting women.

Other guys who are looking on at you interacting with women won't know what you're doing. Women won't know either and will simply be feeling attracted to you and enjoying interacting with you. Guys looking on will wonder why women like you so much, but they won't be able to put their finger on it. It just won't make any sense to them because most guys go through their life never really understanding women and just hoping that they can somehow get lucky, rather than getting rejected, cheated on, dumped or divorced.

Most guys don't know that they can have total control over how much attraction a woman feels for them when they first meet her and when they are many years into a relationship. They don't know that they have the natural ability to make a woman feel instantly attracted to them and then build on that during 1-5 minutes of interaction to the point where she feel intense attraction and feels like she just has to be with him.

You now have an opportunity to have that type of power and control over your dating and relationship life with women. You can be the guy that women really want to be with. If you haven't been able to attract beautiful women whenever you want so far in your life, it doesn't mean that you can't start doing it now. This is something that every guy can learn, but most guys still don't even know about it.

You have an opportunity now to get ahead of the pack, to get an edge over guys and start enjoying your choice with women by naturally attracting women and making women feel intense attraction for you when you interact with them.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

5 Ways to Make a Woman Want You Now

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

1. Make her feel sexually attracted to you

If a woman doesn't feel sexually attracted to you, she won't want to be in a sexual relationship with you.

She might want to be your friend, but without sexual attraction she won't have much or any desire to be your girlfriend or lover.

Sexual attraction is what makes a woman want to have sex with you, which then makes her yearn to be your girlfriend.

Being nice or friendly with a woman might make her like you as a person, but it won't make her want to be in a sexual relationship with you.

Without a strong feeling of sexual attraction, you will either be:

1. A friend to her: While you are a woman's friend, she isn't obligated to be loyal to you and not sleep with other guys. She will continue having sex and falling in love with other guys with whom she is sexually attracted to, even if it hurts you to see it.
2. An extra in the background: When you watch a Hollywood movie, do you spend a lot of time thinking about the random people in the background or do you focus on the main characters? The main guy that a woman will be focused on in her life is the guy who makes her feel the most amount of sexual attraction. If you can't make her feel that way, you will simply be an extra in the background or a random guy that she can easily forget.

When you are a Friend or an Extra in the background, any attempts to tell her how you feel or advance the relationship will backfire unless you first focus on making her feel attracted to you.

2. Don't Ever Act Like a Friend Who Isn't Interested in Sex

Watch this video to understand why...

Many guys make the mistake of acting like they want to be "friends" with a woman because they are worried about being too forward, turning the woman off or ruining the friendship.

Secretly, the guy wants to have sex with her, but he puts on an act of being an innocent, friendly guy who is only interested in talking to her or hanging out with her.

Then, when he witnesses another guy who shows his sexual and romantic interest in her immediately, he will often label that guy as a jerk or a sleaze.

He will wonder why she would let herself be treated in that way. "I'm so nice to her. I'm a great guy. Why is she interested in that guy? All he seems to be interested in is a sexual relationship with her! At least I care about her!"

He assumes that the woman is making a mistake or that the sleazy guy/jerk is taking advantage of her. A guy like that will often conclude that it must be because the sleaze/jerk is better looking than him, but it's not that.

Here is how it actually worksâ€¦!

If a woman gets the sense that a guy only wants to be friends with her or is too scared to do anything other than be an extra in the background of her life, she will usually just accept it and leave it at that.

[image: How to get out of the friend zone]

She will then have a sexual, loving relationship with a guy who makes her feel sexual attraction and who isn't afraid to guide her towards kissing, sex and a relationship.

Always remember:

- When meeting a woman for the first time: She doesn't need to get to know you as a "friend" before she will be open to kissing and having sex with you. The most important thing that she needs to feel is sexual attraction, which will then cause her try and notice things that she likes you about as a guy so she can have a reason (other than sexual attraction) to be your lover or girlfriend.
- When interacting with a woman you already know: She doesn't need to be your friend first to be comfortable about the idea of having sex with you. She only needs to feel sexually attracted to you. Then, the fact that you are a good guy is just a bonus to her.

When meeting a woman for the first time or interacting with a woman they already know, many guys are worried about showing their sexual interest and will say things like:

- “I don't want her thinking that I don't respect her.”
- “I want her to know that she is special to me.”
- “I want her to know that I'm interested in a relationship, not just sex. I'm not a sleaze.”
- “I'm worried about ruining our friendship.”
- “I'm worried that if I tell her I like her, she will reject me and I will then be embarrassed and have ruined my opportunity with her.”
- “My plan is to be as close to her as possible as a friend and hopefully she will develop feelings for me over time.”

While a guy like that is wasting time by thinking in that way, another guy simply comes along, makes her feel sexual attraction and then escalates to kissing, sex and a relationship. The Friend or Extra is then left wondering what just happened.

3. Don't tell her that you have feelings for her unless she is VERY attracted to you

Telling a woman that you have feelings for her is fine, as long as she is very attracted to you.

- Mild levels of attraction: If she only feels mild levels of attraction for you, she won't be excited about the fact that you like her or have "feelings" for her. She may thank you for compliment and may possibly be open to the idea of going on a date with you, but she won't be very excited about it.
- Friendly attraction: If she only sees as a friend and doesn't have strong sexual feelings for you, it will feel wrong to her when she is suddenly forced to consider having a sexual relationship with you after you confess your feelings.

Let me tell you a quick story hereâ€¦

I once helped a client who had met a beautiful young woman and fell in love with her at first sight. When they met, she seemed to really enjoy talking to him and they got along very well. He thought that she would become his girlfriend (and maybe even his wife), but he was devastated to find out a few weeks later that she didnâ€™t feel the same wayâ€¦at all.

Why didnâ€™t she feel the same way?

The entire time he interacted with her, he had behaved like a friend, but secretly, he wanted to have sex with her and make her his girlfriend. He didn't know how to make a woman feel sexual attraction and instead just showed how "interested" he was in her.

At night, he would often fall asleep thinking about how great it would be to have sex with her and be her boyfriend. The more he fantasied about her, the more worried he became because he wasnâ€™t sure if she felt the same way.

She was always happy to talk to him and even seemed to like him more than other girls did.

According to what he was reading on the Internet, her behavior meant she liked him too! He'd also read online that he should confess his feelings for herâ€¦

So, he decided to tell her how he felt.

To his horror and disappointment, she looked sad to hear his confession from him and said something along the lines of, "Thank youâ€¦I like you tooâ€¦youâ€™re very special to me, but I donâ€™t want to ruin our friendship."

He was heartbroken, but also very confused.

He wondered whether her comment of "I like you too" meant that she really wanted to be with him, but wasnâ€™t sure if it would ruin their relationship.

Not knowing what else to do, he began to confess his feelings even more via text and e-mail. He bought her gifts, sent her sweet texts and clicked like on everything she posted online.

Yet, the more he did for her, the further she pulled away. Eventually, she stopped responding to anything he sent her online and no longer answered his calls. Whenever he saw her in person, she tried to avoid him or always seemed to be in a hurry to go somewhere else.

Feeling confused about what to do, he signed up for a phone coaching session with me and I taught him the attraction techniques from my eBook The Flow.

Following my advice, he stopped acting like a hopeless romantic and instead began to make her feel intense sexual attraction for him.

The next time he saw her, he went from being ignored by her to having her walk right up to him and smile.

She was literally standing right in front of him face to face, looking him in the eyes and about 20cm away from his face.

It was similar to what's happening the photo below...

[image: Start off by creating a spark of sexual attraction]

He built up the sexual tension between them (using the attraction techniques that you can learn from The Flow) and they then kissed right then and there.

After that, they began a sexual relationship and he emailed me about two weeks later to tell me that he was now her boyfriend.

Without sexual attraction, a woman simply won't be interested in a sexual relationship with a guy. It's as simple as that. When you make a woman feel sexually attracted to you, the change in her behavior and availability happens instantly. It's really cool how it worksâ□|

4. Build up the sexual tension between you

Sexual tension: An exciting feeling that occurs when a man and woman feel sexual attraction for each other, but the escalation to sex is being delayed by them, the environment or circumstance (e.g. they work together, she is out partying with her friends and doesn't want to look too easy in front of her friends by hooking up with him quickly, he is already in a relationship with another girl, etc).

To make a woman want to be with you sexually, you first need to make her feel sexually attracted to you and you then build the sexual tension between you.

You can build up boiling hot sexual tension between you and a woman during 1-5 minutes of interaction, or take it slow and build it up over a few days or weeks (e.g. if you work with her, attend university together, etc).

When you build up sexual tension correctly, the woman not only wants to have sex with you, but feels like she needs to have sex with you to release the built up sexual tension.

In the case of my client (mentioned in the previous section), the woman felt an intense desire to kiss him to release the built up sexual tension between them.

If there isn't any sexual tension present between you and a woman, the idea of having sex won't feel very appealing.

If you do happen to have sex, it will feel awkward, forced and even boring to her. While the physical sensation of sliding into her will feel great for both of you, it won't be the type of amazing, emotionally charged sex that happens when a man and a woman release their built up sexual tension.

5. Release the sexual tension with kissing and sex

You can only build up sexual tension to a certain point before it runs out of steam. If you don't release the built up tension through kissing and sex, the woman will either:

1. Lose interest when she realizes that you're too afraid to make a move.
2. Think that you're just playing with her. In most cases, she will then hook up with another guy to make you jealous, or at least brag about other guys who like her to see if it makes you insecure. This is her way of testing whether you like her and are simply afraid to make a move.

Women fantasize and dream about meeting a guy who has the ability to build up the sexual tension between them and then have the confidence to release it via kissing and sex.

Most guys can't provide that experience for a woman and instead kill the sexual tension by confessing their feelings for the woman before she's even properly attracted.

If you can give women the exciting experience of feeling attracted, having the tension build up and then releasing it via kissing and sex, you will be a man in demand. Women literally fight over guys who have that type of skill with women.

By the way!

If you'd like to learn how to guide a woman through the process of building up sexual tension and then releasing it with kissing and sex, I have written a step-by-step book about it called The Flow.

I have personally used The Flow to have sex with more than 250 women, before recently getting into a relationship with the most amazing, beautiful woman I've ever met.

This is her...

[image: Dan Bacon at nightclub with girlfriend (now wife)]

Attracting and picking up women for sex is so damn easy.

If you will just make the decision to read The Flow, I will teach you so many powerful ways to naturally attract women that always work.

It's so easy to do that the next time you interact a woman, you will be able to make her feel sexually attracted and turned on by you in ways that she cannot control.

From now on, you will notice how attracted women are to you and they will make it completely obvious that they want to be with you sexually.

If you'd like to have the same type of power that I have enjoyed with women for so many years, I welcome you to use my secrets for attracting and picking up women for sex and relationships.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

5 Things That You Can Do to Make a Woman Want to Have Sex With You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Getting a woman to want to have sex with you is one of the most natural and easy things to do as a man.

For the purpose of this article, I am going to focus on getting a woman to have sex with you on the first night. Before I do that though, I want to begin by showing you some proof that most women are open to having sex on the first night or first date.

Statistics:

- Singles in America Survey found that 55% of singles have sex on the first date.
- Durex Condoms survey in Norway found that 70% of respondents had experienced a one-night stand.
- Student Beans survey in the UK found that 51% of men and women admitted to having experienced a one-night stand.
- The National Survey on Sexual Attitudes and Lifestyles found that the average amount of men that a woman had sex with before marriage has almost doubled in the last 10 years from an average of 3.7 to now 7.7.
- Personally speaking, I've had sex with more than 250 women and about 100 of those women have come from one night stands where I met the woman at a bar, club or during the day.

Casual sex happens a lot more than it used to and getting laid is easier than it has ever been. You really should embrace the fact that most women are open to having casual sex, rather than assuming that it's only you who secretly wants to have sex or get laid. Even though they might not admit it to others when asked, most women are open to having sex on the first night, first date or at the very least on the second date.

The next time you meet a woman with the intention of having sex with her, remember the statistics I've just shown you. Don't assume that she is an innocent woman would never have sex on the first night or first date. Statistically speaking, most of the women you will meet have already done it are happy to do it again!

Now, let's look at the 5 things you must do to get a woman to have sex with you on the first night.

1. Make her feel sexually attracted to you

Attraction (noun): A quality that evokes interest, liking, or desire.

Sexual attraction: Attraction on the basis of sexual desire.

Most of the guys who struggle to get laid are those who focus on trying to get women to like them, rather than getting women to feel sexually attracted to them. For example: A guy will talk to a woman in a nice, polite way, laugh at her jokes and generally try to make her see that he is a good, trustworthy guy. He then hopes that she will somehow become interested in having sex with him on the basis of liking him as a person.

Yet, that's just not how it worksâ€¦!

What makes a woman feel the desire for sex is sexual attraction and then the build up of sexual tension between herself and the man. If a woman doesn't feel sexually attracted to you, she won't want to have sex with you. She might like you as a person, but she won't be interested in having sex with you. If you attempt to show any sexual interest or make any moves on her while she isn't feeling sexually attracted to you, she will almost always reject you.

If you want to get laid for real, you must focus on making the woman feel intense feelings of sexual attraction for you. If you only make a woman feel mild levels of sexual attraction for you and instead focus most of your efforts on showing her that you're a nice guy, she will usually play hard to get and make you work to earn a chance with her. However, when you make women feel intense sexual attraction for you (don't worry, it's easy), she will instantly open herself up to the opportunity to have sex with you or at least go on a date with you and then have sex.

2. Build sexual tension

Sexual tension: An exciting feeling that occurs when a man and woman feel sexual attraction for each other, but the escalation to sex is being delayed by them, the environment or circumstance (e.g. they work together, she is out partying with her friends and doesn't want to look too easy in front of her friends by hooking up with him quickly, he is already in a relationship with another girl, etc).

To get laid with a woman of your choosing, you first need to make her feel sexually attracted to you and then build up the sexual tension between you to the point where she wants to release it with kissing and sex. You can build up boiling hot sexual tension between you and a woman within 3-5 minutes of meeting her, or take it slow and build it up over a few days or weeks (e.g. if you work with her).

When you build up sexual tension correctly, a woman not only wants to have sex with you, but she also feels like she needs to have sex with you. However, if there isn't much or any sexual tension present between you, the idea of having sex won't feel very appealing. If you do happen to have sex, it will feel awkward, forced and even boring to her.

While the physical sensation of sliding into her will feel great for both of you, it won't be the type of amazing, emotionally charged sex that happens when a man and a woman release their built up sexual tension.

When lots of sexual tension is present, a woman will often throw herself at a man by kissing him first or by making it completely obvious that she wants to go home and have sex with him. If she can't have sex with him that night due to circumstances (e.g. they are at a formal work function), she will begin hitting on him and making it very clear that she wants something sexual to happen between them.

It's really cool how it worksâ€¦!

3. Make her feel sexy in your eyes

According to the Dove international survey on beauty, 96% of women do not consider themselves to be beautiful. Crazy, but true. When a modern woman compares herself to the Photoshopped images of women in magazine advertisements or to the sexy women in porn, she often feels insecure about her beauty in comparison to those women.

Almost all women you meet will act like they are confident and as though they believe they are beautiful, but most women (96%) secretly feel insecure about their looks and sexiness to men. These days, a big part of getting laid is to ensure that you make the woman feel sexy in your eyes.

If you don't make a woman feel sexy, her insecurity about her looks may cause her to play hard to get with you. Why? She will need to see that you really want her and aren't just pretending to be interested in her to get laid. When a woman plays hard to get, many guys will then kill the sexual tension by becoming desperate or too keen to show the woman that he likes her. Women are not attracted to desperation and neediness in guys, especially when a woman begins pulling back her interest.

To avoid a woman playing hard to get with you, you've got to get things right from the start by making her feel sexy in your eyes. Don't make her feel the need to play games. Just be real about how you feel from the moment you meet her. By "feel" I don't mean that you "like" her as a person, but that you think she is sexy. If you want to get laid by women consistently, you've got to make them feel sexy.

If you have already attracted the woman properly (see the first part of this report), she will be excited that you find her sexy. However, if you haven't attracted her, she won't care if you find her sexy; you'll just be another guy who wants her, but can't have her.

Example: If a woman looks sex in the dress that she's wearing, don't be vague with her by saying, "Oh, that's a nice dress. Where did you buy it?" or "You look nice in that dress." Be direct, honest and make it absolutely clear that you find her sexy. Either say to her, "I just wanted to tell you â□□ you look so sexy in that dress" or "By the way, I think you're very sexy." Say it with relaxed confidence and a confident, relaxed, loving smile.

In almost all cases, the woman will SMILE, her eyes will light up with excitement and she will feel happy and confident around you. Why? Well, apart from the fact that 96% of women secretly don't think they are beautiful, many women worry that if you take them home to have sex, you won't be very attracted to them so the sex will feel awkward and forced. When she is feeling insecure like that, a woman may become concerned that you will simply have sex with her once and then say goodbye. She will then play hard to get to see if you really, really like her.

Even if it is only going to be a one night stand, a woman still wants to feel like she is sexy in your eyes. She wants to feel good about herself and enjoy the hook up, rather than worrying and feeling insecure the whole time.

4. Show her that she would feel comfortable being alone with you

If a woman gets the sense that a guy is nervous or tense about the idea of getting sexual with her, it will turn her off. She wants to feel that if she got alone with you, she would feel safe and comfortable and you would be confident and relaxed. She wants to feel as though it would be fun to get sexual with you and that she would really enjoy it.

Additionally, if a woman feels as though a guy is needy and is aiming to get something from her (i.e.

sex so he can brag to his friends or a girlfriend so he can finally feel good about himself) rather than aiming to share something with her, it will turn her off.

When a feels turned on, comfortable around you and is also enjoying the sexual tension between you, she will naturally feel aroused by the idea of getting sexual with you. However, if your interaction style makes a woman feel bored, tense or uncomfortable, she definitely won't be in a hurry to get sexual with you any time soon.

5. Kiss her

Kissing changes an interaction from being friendly, or from being a couple of strangers who are simply flirting with each other, to you and her getting physical and becoming open to actually having sex.

Flirting is very important to create and build sexual tension, but unless you act on the flirting by making a move to get physical with her, the tension will often fizzle out and go nowhere.

Flirting (verb): Behave as though attracted to or trying to attract someone, but for fun rather than with serious intentions.

Before a woman feels comfortable to leave a venue/place with you and go home for sex, she will usually want to kiss you first. That way, it makes sense as to why you are leaving together instead of exchanging numbers or adding each other to Facebook to talk later.

The majority (about 80%) of women I've pulled from bars and nightclubs instantly became interested in the idea of leaving with me after we'd kissed. Prior to that, it was just a fun, flirty interaction with a build up of sexual tension.

If you attempt to get a woman to leave a bar or party to have sex with you prior to kissing her, she will usually resist and ask why you feel the need to leave so soon. Kissing instantly creates a private understanding between you that sex is pretty much going to happen, as long as you play your cards right.

By the way! □!

If you would like to learn exactly what I say and do when I approach and meet women with the intention of having sex, I recommend that you read my book The Flow.

I've used The Flow to have sex with more than 250 women, before recently using it to get into an amazing relationship with my perfect woman. I've also helped 1,000s of guys to get laid, get a girlfriend and enjoy their choice of women by teaching them The Flow.

The Flow is jam packed with examples of what to say and do to ensure that you get laid and have your choice of women. All of the examples provided in The Flow have been thoroughly tested and proven to work by me and by the 100s of clients I've taught in person (taking them into bars and clubs to pick up women).

The Flow is natural, authentic and makes women feel sexually attracted to you right away. It automatically builds up boiling hot sexual tension between you and a woman to the point where she feels an urgent need to have sex with you, or at least kiss you. This is a power that you really can have over women and I hope that you give this a try.

Imagineâ!

From this day onward, you are able to make women feel intense attraction for you and instantly build up the sexual tension so much that the woman either makes a move on you (e.g. kisses or hugs you) or makes it completely obvious that she wants to have sex with you.

Can you imagine that happening in your interactions with women? Well, that will be completely normal for you from now on, if you will just decide tryÂ The Flow now.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

5 Natural Attraction Skills That Any Guy Can Use to Get a Girlfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

1. Display confidence

If a woman doesn't feel sexually attracted to you, she won't want to be your girlfriend. She might want to be your friend, but without sexual attraction she won't have much or any desire to be your girlfriend in a sexual relationship.

Sexual attraction is what makes her want to have sex with you now, which then makes her think about wanting to be your girlfriend. Being nice to her, being a friend and just hanging around her might make her like you as a person, but it usually won't make her want to be in a sexual relationship with you.

If you want a girl to be your girlfriend, you must focus on making her feel sexually attracted to you.

Luckily, that is a very simple thing to do!'

You can make a woman feel sexually attracted to you by displaying confidence around her and in social situations. You can then deepen her feelings of attraction for you by remaining confident around her at all times, no matter what she says or does to test your confidence (e.g. she plays hard to get).

Having that type of confidence really turns a woman on, in the same way that we men get turned on when a woman wears a sexy dress. We men are mostly attracted to the physical attributes of women and women are most attracted to our personality traits and emotional strength as a guy. We are lucky that we can attract women in so many different ways. You can have so much power with women when you know how to attract them.

Confidence is a pretty simple thing to have too. It's essentially about you having belief in yourself and your abilities, which is something that you can decide to have or not. Some guys decide to believe in themselves, while other guys decide to doubt themselves.

Here's how the dictionary describes confidence and insecurity (the opposite of confidence):

Confidence (noun): Belief in oneself and one's powers or abilities; self-confidence; self-reliance; assurance.

Insecurity (noun): Lack of confidence or assurance; self-doubt.

As you can see, insecurity is the opposite of confidence. Confidence is based on your belief in yourself and your abilities, which is something that you can decide to have or not.

Women are naturally attracted to a guy's confidence and the more confident you are with her, the more she will want to be your girlfriend. However, if you are insecure around a woman (e.g. you doubt yourself, you get nervous around her, etc), it will turn her off on a deep level and she will only want to be friends (or nothing at all) with you.

Why do women feel attracted to a man's confidence rather than his insecurity? Why isn't insecurity and weakness attractive to women? We humans live in a challenging and often dangerous world, where the weak don't always do so well. As a result, women are naturally attracted the strength in men (e.g. confidence) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. nervousness, anxiety, insecurity).

Attracting women is actually a lot easier than most guys think. At The Modern Man, we teach more than 100 ways to naturally attract women and confidence is just one of those ways.

2. Create an unforgettable connection

If all you can manage is 1-2 minutes of conversation with a woman before running out of things to say, or before things get awkward and she loses interest in you, then you will struggle to get yourself a girlfriend.

To have the highest chance of getting a girlfriend, you need to be able to talk to a woman for 10-30 minutes so you can create a meaningful connection. Anything less than that and most women simply won't have enough time to get to know you, feel turned on by you and begin developing real feelings for you. Sometimes, you will instantly click with a woman and even kiss her within minutes of meeting her, but in most cases you will have to talk to her for a short while to create a real connection.

Conversation is what allows a man and a woman to be in each other's presence for long enough for all the other communication to take place. The other communication is about your sexual, emotional, social and intellectual compatibility with each other. If you can't keep a conversation going long enough to communicate those things, most women will simply lose interest and then forget about you after the conversation is over.

Guys who struggle to get a girlfriend are those who mostly engage women in boring conversations (e.g. "What's your name? What do you do for a living? What did you study? How long have you been working there? Where do you live? How long have you lived there?") and then wonder why they can't find any women who really connect with them.

To get a girlfriend, you have to create feelings of sexual, emotional, social and intellectual connection between you during the conversation (don't worry – it's easy). When you create those feelings, intense lust and love will rapidly develop between you. You will both feel like you "click" with each other and that you are meant for each other. Both of you will also feel excited and eager to kiss, have sex and begin a relationship as soon as possible. It's really cool how it works.

Some guys grow up and have a natural ability to talk to women in the way that I teach here at The Modern Man, but the majority of guys don't. A man who doesn't understand that a different conversation style is required when a man and a woman are getting to know each other with the intention of having sex or beginning a sexual relationship, will always find it difficult to get himself a girlfriend. To him, women will seem confusing and weird. He will feel confused about what he should be saying to them and when a woman suddenly loses interest in him during a conversation, he will have absolutely no idea why.

3. Use an attractive style of humor

No doubt you've already heard that women love a funny guy, right? Sure, it's pretty common knowledge. However, what most guys don't know is that not all humor is created equal. Most humor does not make a woman feel sexually attracted to a guy. It's only a certain type of humor that turns a woman on.

Using polite, soft or politically correct humor or making jokes about everyday things isn't sexually attractive to women. The most attractive type of humor is what I call Playfully Arrogant Humor, which I provide approximately 100 personally tested examples of in my book The Flow.

Playfully Arrogant Humor is not about actually being arrogant. It's about pretending to be arrogant in a playful way and that is what women find so funny, exciting and enjoyable. As it turns out, this is the type of humor that all of the James Bond (007) characters use. It's also the type of humor that TV talk show hosts like Jimmy Fallon, David Letterman and Ellen Degeneres use.

What should that tell you?

It is a great style of humor to use! Playfully Arrogant Humor is the type of humor that makes the majority of people like you. The TV talk show hosts use it because it's the type of humor that makes the majority of people LOVE watching their show. They don't sit there being very polite and reserved the whole time; they use what I call, Playfully Arrogant Humor and people love it.

[image: Playfully arrogant humor]

The typical effect of using Playfully Arrogant Humor on a woman. She is initially a bit shocked, but she then smiles and enjoys it. Using this type of humor naturally attracts women because it displays confidence, social intelligence and masculinity all at once.

Real arrogance makes most people hate you, but playful arrogance makes most people really like you. When you use Playfully Arrogant Humor while interacting with women, they feel sexually attracted, excited and lucky to be interacting with a cool guy like you. It's really quite simple to do and when you begin using it in your interactions with women, you will notice that most guys (at least 80%) don't even know about it. They will look on and wonder why women get so excited, happy and attracted in your presence, but they won't be able to work it out.

Most guys go through life only knowing that "women love a funny guy," but that's where their wisdom on the matter ends. Mistakenly, many guys try to "crack jokes" and try extra hard to make women laugh, but women still aren't interested in them. They then wonder if women really do like funny guys or not, or possibly begin worrying that they might not be good looking enough, tall enough, etc to be of interest to women. Yet, in reality, they just aren't using the type of humor that attracts women. It's as simple as that.

If you'd like instant access to my best examples of Playfully Arrogant Humor that make women laugh out loud and want to have sex with you and be your girlfriend, I recommend that check out my book, The Flow. In case you don't know about my background, I've used my techniques (that I teach in The Flow) to have sex with more than 250 women and I now have an amazing girlfriend. In other words, my techniques work!

4. Flirt with her to create a sexual vibe

Flirting is the discreet language that men and women use to communicate their sexual interest in each other. It's a safe, discreet way of building sexual tension and expressing sexual interest, without being sleazy or directly saying, "Hey, I want to have sex with you. Do you want to have sex with me?"

Flirting (verb): Behave as though attracted to or trying to attract someone, but for fun rather than with serious intentions.

Flirting is a classy, discreet and exciting way for both men and women to instantly express their sexual interest in each other. Women love to flirt and they feel most comfortable expressing their sexual interest in that way. Most guys (approximately 80%) don't know how to flirt, so when you flirt with a woman you will notice that she becomes very excited to finally be in the presence of a man who actually knows how to flirt. Flirting literally separates you from the crowd and marks you out as a guy who would be fun to be in a relationship with.

Some guys look at flirting as useless, pointless "mind games" for silly people, so they refuse to even think about it as a way of communicating with women. Instead of using flirting to communicate their sexual interest in the way that women want it to be expressed, these guys just want to come out and say, "Hey, I like you. Do you want to be my girlfriend or not?"

That type of direct, non-flirtatious communication makes sense to us men because we are very straightforward and logical. If we like a girl, it makes total sense for us to say, "Hey, I like you. Let's start a relationship." However, that is not the style of communication that excites a woman and makes her want to be your girlfriend. She wants you to flirt with her and make the escalation to kissing, sex and a relationship feel exciting, rather than making her feel as though she has been selected for a new job as your girlfriend.

Flirting is not a bunch of pointless mind games for silly people; it is the language of sexual love between a man and a woman. Without flirting, interactions will seem awkward and talking to a woman for longer than 5 minutes will get boring. You have to flirt if you want women to be excited to talk to you and get to know you.

Most men are happy to have sex with a woman the moment they see her, whereas women like to be turned on and guided through a sexual courtship. Flirting is one of the most important skills that you need to have if you want to get yourself a girlfriend because it turns women on in the way they want to be turned on. Flirting is also essential to keep the spark alive in your relationship. It's the language of sexual love between a man and a woman and if you want to be truly successful with women, you must not ignore it.

If you are interested to learn, I provide loads of tested, proven to work examples of flirting in my book The Flow. Use them and you will instantly stand out from other guys. She will feel excited, happy and turned on while interacting with you.

5. Escalate to kissing and sex when the moment calls for it

If you only ever talk to women, but don't escalate the interaction to the next level (e.g. phone number, kiss, date, sex and then relationship), you will find it difficult, if not impossible to get a girlfriend. Almost all women wait for the guy to make the first move and if he doesn't, she almost always rather miss out on being with him than have to make the first move herself. Instead, she will simply wait for a more confident guy to come along who is man enough to make a move and begin kissing her.

Many guys really do want to be able to escalate to a kiss or phone number with a girl they like, but they either lack the confidence or make the move in the wrong way and end up getting rejected.

To escalate to a kiss, phone number or sex with a woman, there are certain things that you need to say and do at the right times to avoid rejection. Most guys escalate with women at the wrong times or say the wrong things before making a move, which causes them to get rejected.

However, there are guys (like me) who can effortlessly escalate to the next level with a woman without getting rejected. They know what to say and do and more importantly, when to say and do those things. To them, escalating to a kiss, phone number, sex or date is as simple as walking or talking. Getting a girlfriend isn't difficult at all and they always have plenty of women interested. When in a relationship, there are always women waiting on the sidelines for him to break up with current girlfriend so they can get a chance to be with him.

If you lack confidence in yourself around women or need help with the necessary skills (e.g. conversation, flirting, etc) to get yourself a girlfriend, then let me help you. I've already helped 1,000s of guys to instantly get a girlfriend and I would love to help you too. It really is very simple when you know what I know about women and attraction.

Honestly, it's so easy that you will kick yourself for not learning this stuff earlier.

Below, you will find the programs that guarantee you will get a girlfriend. Not maybe, but absolutely guaranteed. If you are a good guy, then you deserve to get yourself a girlfriend and I am ready to help you make that happen today.

Imagine...

Two weeks from now, you already have a girlfriend and she is more beautiful than any other woman you've been able to attract before. Can you imagine that? Well, that is what will happen if you give The Flow a try today. I've already helped 1,000s of guys to get a girlfriend and I would love to help you too.

It really is very easy and natural to get women attracted to you and wanting to be your girlfriend. I hope that you take the next step to let me help you have your choice with women so you can choose the perfect girl for you.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

10 Reasons Why Good Men Get Rejected By Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Why do so many good guys get rejected with women? Is it because women want a bad man? No. Thankfully, women definitely don't reject good men in favor of bad men. Here are some of the many reasons why good guys get rejected by women:

1. He tries to get her to like him, before she is attracted to him

One of the biggest mistakes that good guys make with women is that they try to be "liked" by a woman for being a good man or for being a nice guy, instead of making her feel sexually attracted to him first.

For example: He might "be there" for her when she is feeling down or going through a challenging time in life, be a friend, listen, be very courteous and generous all because he is hoping to be liked as a person.

Instead of attracting her with his confidence, he hopes to be liked for being a good guy and then feels disappointed when she's just not that interested in him. If you only want to build a non-sexual friendship with a woman, having her "like" you as a person is fine.

However, if you want to have a sexual relationship with her, you've got to make her feel sexually attracted to you rather than being a nice, friendly guy and getting her to like you as a person.

Making her feel sexually attracted to you is about being confident around her, being masculine and creating a sexual vibe with her by the way that you look at her, talk to her, touch her and also how you behave around her.

Example: Imagine a guy who has a crush on one of his female friends. He meets up with her at a party or for lunch/coffee and says to her in a friendly, non-sexual way, "Oh, you look nice today. Your hair looks nice...and that's a nice dress."

Is that going to make her feel attracted to him?

No.

What he saying is too friendly, nice and non-sexual. A woman will assume that he is just being friendly with her or that he doesn't find her sexually attractive and is simply being polite to her. On the other hand, if he were to smile and confidently say, "Ooh, look at you...you're looking fantastic...that's a sexy dress...you look very sexy today. How am I going to be concentrating on the coffee here? I'm going to be looking at you the whole time...you're blowing my mind here :)"

He could also keep it very simple and just say, "Ohh, watch out...you're looking sexy today" and give her a quick compliment about her sexiness. That type of compliment and conversation style is completely different to being friendly and saying she looks "nice." Telling her that she looks sexy and having a tone to your voice that suggests you find her very attractive creates a sexual vibe between you and her, whereas telling her that she looks "nice" creates a friendly vibe between you.

When you create a sexual vibe with a woman, you get past all the fake, "friendly" conversation and get right into what you both really want to be doing: Sex, love and intimacy. Instead of being a neutral nice guy who tries hard to be politically correct and non-sexual with women, you are a real man. You are a good guy who is not afraid to show his sexual interest in women. You know that it's okay to do so and as long as you do it in a confident, easy-going way, women love it and feel flattered by it.

As you may know, women are more attracted to alpha males than any other type of male. Unlike a nervous, self-doubting good guy, an alpha male is not afraid or ashamed of his sexual desire for women. It's not about showing your sexual desire in a sleazy way, being a bad boy or demeaning women in any way. Instead, it is about appreciating women's sexiness in a confident, loving way.

Women love to be appreciated and reminded that they are sexy, because most women are insecure about their looks ("96% of women don't consider themselves to be beautiful" Dove cosmetics global survey). There is nothing wrong with showing your sexual appreciation of a woman, as long as you do it correctly. When you have the confidence and skill to do it correctly, women will instantly feel good around you, feel attracted to you and feel lucky to be interacting with you.

2. He tries to get her to commit to a relationship before sex

[image: Trying to get a woman to commit to a relationship before sex]

Back in the 1800s or early 1900s, getting a woman to commit to a relationship was essential because almost every woman lost her virginity on her wedding night. In those times, a man would have to court a woman and take her on a series of outings (dates) with a chaperone (a person, usually a family member, who would come along to supervise the couple and ensure that they didn't touch or kiss) and he would then eventually ask her to marry him.

If the woman said yes, the man would then ask her father for permission to have her "hand in marriage." The couple would then marry and in most cases, they would lose their virginity on the wedding night. So, back then, it made total sense to use a dating strategy of trying to get a woman to commit to a relationship before sex.

However, in today's world that is just not how it works. Some guys are annoyed by that and wish that things could be as simple as they were back in the 1800s and early 1900s, but it's just not the way it works anymore. Today, most women like to have sex to start off the relationship and then see where it goes from there.

One study from England found that 55% of couples had sex on their first date and another study from America found that 70% of women admitted to having experienced a "one night stand" (sex on the first night) before. 70% of Norwegians have also admitted to having experienced one night stands.

Sex does happen.

From my personal experience, I've found that most women are open to either having a one night stand, sex on the first date or sex on the second date. That is how most modern women like to decide whether or not they really like the guy and whether or not it's worth pursuing a relationship.

Some guys may see that as "wrong" because they haven't yet come to terms with the fact that culture always changes, but it's how it works these days. Culture never remains the same. It's a constant evolution based on new ideas, freedoms and understandings of life.

A mistake that many good guys or "nice guys" make with women is asking for a relationship commitment up front. He might do that indirectly by asking a girl that he's only been talking to for a few minutes, "So, do you have a boyfriend?" or "Are you seeing anyone at the moment?" or he might ask her directly by saying, “Can I take you out on a date?” or “Are you looking for a boyfriend at the moment?”

Using that type of approach with women makes it too formal. You’re essentially communicating to her that you’re out of touch with the modern world. You don’t know that sex happens a lot and it usually happens before relationships even begin.

You don’t know that she has had a one night stand before or that she would sleep with you on the first night, first date or second date. You don’t know that most women just want to hook up with you and see where it goes. You’re out of touch with modern life.

Important: Most women will absolutely deny that to you if you ask them to their face. However, the statistics speak for themselves. In most parts of the world, women have sex on the first night, first date or second date. I’ve also found the same thing from personal experience.

Some women are receptive to the outdated dating approach of courting each other for months and then maybe having sex, but the majority of modern women just don’t like it. A woman doesn’t want to commit to a relationship with a guy right away, especially if he’s not even making her feel much attraction. Most women want to at least kiss you before getting into any conversations about starting a relationship or dating each other.

In most countries, the divorce rate is near or more than 50%, so women are also aware that they have to be careful who they choose for a boyfriend or husband. Dating and having sex has evolved as a way for modern humans to get a feel for each other and determine whether or not it is worth committing to a serious relationship.

Instead of rushing into a serious relationship and having sex later on, most women want to try you out first and see what it feels like to be with you in that way. A woman won’t admit that when you meet her, but it is exactly what she’s been doing behind closed doors with the men she’s been meeting.

The fact is that it’s no longer taboo or shameful for a woman to have sex before getting married. She’s not required to be a virgin when she gets married; she is allowed to have several relationships before settling down if that’s what she wants to do.

Society’s views on sex have changed and you don’t need to get a woman to commit to a relationship with you before she will have sex with you. Most women are open to at least kissing you the first time they meet you, but sex is also an option as well.

So, make sure that you don’t use the approach of coming across as though you want to have a serious relationship with her before you’ve even kissed her. Get to kissing and sex first and then take it from there.

3. Being too nice

There’s nothing wrong with being nice to a woman. Anyone who tells you that nice guys finish last or that you have to be a “bad boy” to get women is wrong. As you would have seen by observing the world around you, good guys have girlfriends, wives and lovers. Good guys hook up with women for sex on the first night or they have a girlfriend or a wife. They do not finish last.

So, being good is not a bad thing when it comes to women and dating. The problems occur when a good guy is too nice to a woman in the hopes that she will “like” him and then reward him with sex and love because of his niceness. Being nice to a woman is not the step before sex. That approach may get a woman to “like” you as a person, but it’s not what makes a woman feel sexually attracted to you. She may feel emotionally attracted in some (not all) ways, but in most cases, she will end up seeing you as more of a friend or you will feel like more of a brother to her.

Being really nice to a woman is what a nice friend would do for her because he cares about her, not because he wants to trick her into having sex with him. Women are not obligated to reward nice behavior with sex and that is not how it works anyway. Just like you want to have sex with women that you’re attracted to, a woman wants to be able to have sex with a guy whom she is attracted to, not a sneaky nice guy who is hoping to be rewarded with sex for being a good guy to her.

Instead of wasting time and being dishonest by using a sneaky nice guy approach on women, just be real. Attract a woman immediately by being confident and masculine around her. Don’t come across as a neutral good guy. Be the man and let her be the woman.

When she interacts with you, a woman wants to get the sense that you are the masculine one and she is the feminine one. She wants to see that you think, behave and take action like a man. It doesn’t matter if you are 18 or 58, the same rule applies. Women feel attracted to a guy’s confidence and masculinity, just like we men feel attracted to a woman’s beauty and femininity.

If you are confident and masculine, you can attract women immediately. You don’t have to “get to know her” and hope that you “grow” on her. You can attract her immediately. To attract her immediately, your vibe and presence as a guy should feel masculine to her. Don’t give her a confused vibe as a result of suppressing your masculinity and possibly coming across as a little bit feminine around her and in life.

After coaching guys for many years, I’ve found that approximately 30% of guys have mistakenly adopted fairly feminine mannerisms, behavior and vibe as a result of thinking that it would help them connect better with women. The remaining 70% of guys tend to suppress their masculinity and don’t allow themselves to “be the man” around women. They often feel as though it’s wrong to be a man or that it’s wrong to make a woman feel girly. A lot of that thinking comes from watching too much TV or some of the latest Hollywood movies that glorify women and make men look like stupid, clumsy fools who would be so lucky to get a chance with a woman.

In the movies, in TV sitcoms and in music videos, guys are usually scolded and demeaned if they behave in a confident way around women. In the real world, men who are wise enough to differentiate fiction (TV and movies) from reality (real life), know that being masculine around women is the right thing to do and it is what leads to kissing, sex and relationships. However, the guys who look to TV and movies as an education source in life often fear making women feel girly in response to their masculinity. In the movies, guys get rejected for that.

Many modern men have watched angry, feminist women on TV (e.g. shows like The View) talking badly about men who are confident around or who look at women in a sexual way. After watching enough of that crap, it begins to drive an unnecessary fear into a man because he just doesn’t know how attraction really works. He doesn’t realize how unhappy those masculine, feminist women are and how dead their sex life is with their “partner.”

Attracting women with your confidence and masculinity is what makes a woman the most happy and excited to be around you. It makes her feel like a real woman when you are confident and masculine enough to make her feel girly and to confidently compliment her on her sexiness. When a woman feels sexually appreciated by a confident, masculine man, it’s revitalising, invigorating and exciting for her. It makes her feel alive. So, don’t ever be afraid to do what is right. Don’t listen to those unattractive, angry, feminist women on TV and don't look at movies and TV dramas as reality.

When you are wise enough to begin attracting women with your confidence and masculinity, you will notice that women feel lucky to have met a guy like you, especially because you're also a good guy. However, if you are afraid to be confident and masculine and instead expect women to feel sexually attracted to you just because you're a good guy, you will be disappointed again and again. Being a good guy is not what makes a woman wet. Being a confident, masculine guy who isn't afraid to express his sexual interest in her does. Then, the fact that you're a good guy is simply a very welcome bonus to her.

4. Being the friend

A common good guy mistake is trying to be a woman's friend first and then hoping that she will eventually see him as being trustworthy enough to have a relationship with. He wants her to see that he's just a friend, he's non-threatening, he's just a good guy and doesn't expect sex. Secretly, he hopes that she will eventually realize (like women do in the movies) that he is "the one" for her and they will then live happily ever after.

Why do so many good guys use that approach? They simply don't know what it takes to successfully get a woman into a sexual relationship. His confusion may come from being raised by conservative parents who taught him that he needed to have good manners around women, be nice, be a gentleman and be patient or by watching too many fictional "love stories" where the nervous, nice guy is eventually chosen by a woman after being friends with her throughout the entire movie.

A classic example is the lame movie called 500 Days of Summer, where the lead male character "Tom" has a crush on a girl at work named "Summer." He is nervous around her, lacks confidence and is secretly obsessed with her. He acts like a nice friend around her and never shows any sign of liking her in a sexual way.

Since it is a movie, she starts the first ever conversation with him in an elevator. She comes across as an intelligent, easy-going, down to Earth type of girl who miraculously shares the same taste in music in him. Wow! So amazing! To start the conversation, she compliments him on his taste in music and he then begins imagining being with her as boyfriend and girlfriend. Later in the movie, she kisses Tom in the photocopy room at the office, even though he has done absolutely nothing to attract her.

In fact, every bit of his behavior is unattractive to women, but for the sake of making a movie and entertaining an audience with a strange reality, she kisses him first. Unlike in the movies, in the real world, women want to interact with a guy who is confident and who believes in his own sex appeal, rather than hanging around with her as a friend and hoping that she makes the first move on him.

A woman wants a man to attract her with his confidence and masculinity and then have the confidence to move the interaction forward to kissing, sex and a relationship when appropriate. A woman does not require weeks or months of "friendship" before she will kiss a guy or have sex with him. If a guy uses the friend approach, what will usually happen is that he'll be in the "friend zone" with her for weeks or months and all it will take for him to be forgotten is another guy to come along and attract her and then escalate to kissing, sex and a relationship right away.

The guy in the friend zone will then be shocked and maybe even angry that she has hooked up with another guy. Yet, he doesn't realize that sex happens very quickly between a man and a woman who are attracted to each other. He also doesn't realize that most women usually don't want to have more “male friends” than they already have in their life at that time. Sometimes, a woman will enjoy having many male “friends” who are secretly interested in her and hoping to get a chance with her, because it boosts her self-esteem and often results in guys doing her favors, buying her drinks and dinner, etc.

However, for the majority of women who aren’t looking for male friends and are instead looking for a lover, boyfriend or husband, using the friend approach will backfire and be a huge waste of time for both of you. Additionally, if a woman gets the sense that you like her and are trying to “sneak in the back door” by pretending to be an innocent friend, it will make her lose trust in you. She will then put her guard up around you and will be very wary about opening up to you any further.

What women want from a good guy is for him to have the confidence to make her feel attracted and then move things forward quickly. Sometimes you can kiss a girl the first time you meet her, sometimes on the first date and sometimes on the second date. Yet, hanging around and being her so called “friend” for weeks or months is not the way to accomplish the goal of having sex with her or getting into a relationship with her. Start with attraction, then get to kissing and sex. After that, it’s up to you and her whether a relationship is necessary.

5. Placing her above him in terms of value

[image: A man placing a woman above himself in terms of value. Offering the world to her in the hope that she gives him a chance to be with her.]

Some good guys will work in a great job, wear great clothes, drive a nice car and live in a nice apartment or house, but still won’t believe that they are good enough for the attractive women they meet. When interacting with an attractive woman, he will place her above himself in terms of value. He will assume that she has more sexual value, more dating power and more overall value on the mating market compared to him, so he will feel as though he’d be lucky to get a chance with her.

This will come across in how he talks to her, looks at her and behaves around her. She will get the sense that he isn’t good enough for her and that will then turn her off the idea of hooking up with him.

For some good guys, it doesn’t matter how much they’ve achieved in life or how much of a good guy they are, they still won’t feel valuable enough for most of the women they meet. Without having enough belief in his value to women, a guy will usually try to use what he has (or can offer a woman) to get her to “like” him and want him. For example: He may begin talking about his job and hint at how much money he is making or talk about his expensive car or the fact that he lives in an upper class neighborhood in the hope that it will impress her and get her to see that he is valuable.

That is a flawed strategy and is the worst thing you can ever do around a woman, especially an attractive one. When a woman gets the sense that a man doesn’t feel good enough for her and is trying to impress her with material possessions, boasting or promises of what he can offer her, it actually lowers his value in her eyes. She instantly realizes that he doesn’t see himself as a valuable guy and is trying to trick her into thinking that he is with superficial things.

What a good guy needs to do is decide that he is valuable just for being a good guy. Unlike other guys, he’s not an asshole, jerk or prick who is out to do her harm. He’s a cool, confident, good guy who has good intentions with her. He is rising through the levels of life and going after his true potential as a man, which is something that both women and men respect about him. A man like that is a valuable man. A good guy simply needs to realize that about himself and then remember it when he is interacting with women.

Where a lot of good guys go wrong is in looking at women as being better than themselves, just because the woman is beautiful or attractive to him. Giving a woman so much credit for making him feel attracted is the wrong way to judge her value. Just because she looks attractive, it does not mean that she is better than him or more valuable than him. Yes, she may be valuable because she is pretty, but a good guy is extremely valuable too if he is cool, confident and masculine.

A good guy needs to realize that there is a shortage of good men out there for women to choose from. For the most part, women have to choose between nervous nice guys and douchebags or bad boys. Almost all of the real men (i.e. good guys who are confident and masculine) already have a girlfriend, a wife or are sleeping with several beautiful women at once. So, if you're a confident, masculine good guy, then you have to realize that most women will feel lucky to be with a guy like you. You are valuable, very valuable. You are a diamond in the ruff. You are the sort of guy who deserves to feel valuable around attractive women.

As a human being, you get to decide on your own value as a person. If you try to decide your value as a man based on looks for example, you will rarely if ever win the "value battle" with women because most guys are not very good looking and look average next to a beautiful woman. Women are the beautiful ones of the human species and when they do themselves up with make up, they look even more beautiful.

You can't win the value battle with a woman by trying to decide whether or not you're valuable enough to her based on your looks. You've got to decide whether or not you're valuable enough for her based on what you think about yourself. For example: You can think, "I am a valuable man because I am confident and masculine and I'm a good guy. I'm valuable because I am rising through the levels of life and going after my true potential as a man. I am valuable because I am pushing forward in life with confidence and determination. I am valuable because I have good intentions with women and with the world. I am valuable because I said so."

If you're interacting with a woman and she feels like you don't believe that you're valuable enough for her, it turns her off on a deep level. Why? When it comes to sex and relationships, women don't want to trade down in terms of value. A woman wants to feel as though you could easily have other women (she will know that if you are confident and masculine around her. She will know that other women will find you attractive as well), but will select her if she meets your standards.

A woman wants to feel lucky to be with you, not feel as though she'd be doing you a favor and hooking up with a low value guy who is offering her gifts or anything else to make up for his lack of self-perceived value. She wants to see that you consider yourself to be a high value man and when she sees that, she will naturally respect you and feel attracted to you.

Looking at women as being above you in terms of value will almost always lead to rejection. The only times you might get laid are with MILFs / Cougars who like the fact that they appear sexy to you, even though they know you deserve a younger, sexier woman. However, for younger, hotter women, they just don't like it when they get the sense that a guy doesn't feel good enough for her. Hooking up with a low value guy just doesn't make any sense to her. Almost all attractive women don't want to feel as though they'd be doing a guy a favor by hooking up with him.

If you are the type of good guy who places women above you in terms of value, it won't matter how much you achieve in life. Nothing will change until you decide that you are a valuable man as you are right now. Unless you give yourself credit for being the cool, good guy that you are, you will always feel as though you're not good enough for attractive women. There will always be that "other thing" that you need to achieve first.

For example: A guy who works out in the gym to build muscle that will hopefully impress women. He will have a fit, strong body and obvious muscles, but he will think to himself, "I'm still not as big as those other guys I've seen. If I can put on another few kilos/pounds of muscle, THEN women will find me attractive. I've got to have bigger biceps first..."

Another example is where a guy is working in a job that he hopes will impress women. He will think, "If I can get a promotion, THEN women will like me." He knows it might be years before he gets the promotion, but he will convince himself that the promotion will be the answer to his problems with women. He figures that when women see that he's in a good position at work, they will suddenly like him because he will be a better provider.

Another example is about where a guy lives, "I'm living in this area at the moment. If I can move into the city or to a better neighborhood, THEN women are going to like me." Then, when he moves to the new area, he will think, "My furniture isn't good enough. I've got to get expensive, stylish furniture and a bigger TV...then I will feel comfortable bringing women home."

That type of insecure approach will go on and on for your entire life if you don't change it now. With that type of insecure thinking, you never feel good enough for attractive women. To break the cycle of insecurity, you've got to decide that you're good enough right now. You have seen guys who aren't even half the man that you are, but they have a beautiful girlfriend or wife. You've seen guys who don't even have a job or a car or anything, but they have a beautiful girlfriend. You've got to stop doubting yourself and start giving yourself credit for being a cool, good guy.

You've got to decide that you are valuable based on who you are as a person right now. You then have to believe that and remember it when you are interacting with women, because women aren't going to make it easy on you. Attractive women aren't going to say, "Oh, you're a good guy...wow! Well, it doesn't matter that you're not confident, it doesn't matter that you don't believe in yourself, it doesn't matter that I feel like I'd be doing you a favor by going out with you...let's just go home and have sex and then I will be your girlfriend."

That's obviously not how it works.

You have to believe in yourself. You have to believe that you're valuable enough for a woman even when she tests you (e.g. by playing hard to get, not contributing much to the conversation) to see how confident you really are in that belief. Unless you believe in yourself, she can't believe in you either. To her, there's nothing to believe in when it comes to you because you seem to be a body of self-doubt around her. You second guess yourself and don't feel valuable enough.

If a woman can test your confidence by playing hard to get and see that you still believe in yourself no matter what, it is VERY attractive to her. In most cases, it takes a few minutes for even the hottest, bitchiest and most cold women to melt like butter around that type of confidence. She suddenly becomes friendly and excited to have finally met a guy who doesn't crumble under her pressure. When she notices that, no matter how hard she tests you, your confidence in yourself remains unstoppable, it flips a switch in her mind that turns her on at a deep level.

Women know that when a cool, good guy has that level of confidence, many other women are going to like him too. She knows that you will have your choice with women and the fact that you are interested in her makes her feel special. You are choosing her over the potentially hundreds of other women who'd love to have sex with you or be your girlfriend. When she gets that sense, she knows that she is getting herself a valuable guy.

However, if she gets the sense that you doubt your value around her, she feels like she would be losing out by hooking up with you. She gets that feeling from 95% of the guys she interacts with in life, because most guys don't know how to attract women. Most guys go through life looking at women as having all the dating power and feeling as though they'd be lucky to hook up with an attractive woman. Yet, the 5% of guys who understand what I do, know that women feel lucky and excited to hook up with a cool, confident good guy who believes in himself.

When you have that knowledge about women, you are able to interact with women knowing that they would be lucky to hook up with you. When a woman tests you by playing hard to get, you don't panic because you know that it's a perfect opportunity to make her feel even more attraction for you. It's pretty cool how it works and makes the whole process of approaching and meeting women exciting and rewarding. Instead of going home alone, you wake up the next morning with a hot woman in your bed who is eager to jump on again for a ride.

6. Not building sexual tension

[image: Trying to escalate before creating sexual tension]

Sexual tension: An exciting feeling that occurs when a man and woman feel sexual attraction for each other, but the escalation to sex is being delayed by them, the environment or circumstance (e.g. they work together).

Many good guys make the mistake of liking a woman and then trying to be a good guy by showing her how interested they are. He doesn't want to "lead her on" or do anything that might cause her to lose interest, so makes it clear that he is 100% interested in her. Instead of playing with the feelings of attraction they are having with each other to then build sexual tension, he cuts out any chance of that by showing her that he's keen and hoping to get a chance with her.

That approach works with some unattractive women or women who are looking for a desperate man they can control, but it doesn't work with 99% of attractive women. Why? Since men are mostly attracted to a woman's looks, most of the guys that an attractive woman meets in her life will show 100% interest in her immediately. They will hand themselves over to her on a silver platter and make it absolutely clear that they are hoping to get a chance with her, which ruins the opportunity for sexual tension to build up between them.

One of the most exciting things that you can do for yourself and a woman is to create sexual tension between you. Embrace the fact that you and her are sexually attracted to each other, but are not immediately jumping all over each other to have sex. You might have sex with her 30 minutes later when you pull her home from the bar or club, or you might have sex with her on the first date, but in the meantime, just enjoy building up the sexual tension.

Let it get to the point where she is excited and really wants to have sex with you, rather than her being initially interested in you and then losing interest because you don't know how to create sexual tension. Don't ruin it by being Mr. Keen who is so starved for female attention that he becomes desperate at the first sign of interest from a woman.

Example of creating some playful sexual tension: You're talking to a woman in bar. You're both attracted to each other, flirting and having a laugh. She turns to you and says that she's going to the bathroom. Instead of just being a boring good guy who is super excited to be talking to a girl who is showing him some interest, build some sexual tension instead. Smile and confidently say, "Oh, you move very quickly, don't you? I've only known you 5 or 10 minutes and you already want me to go to the bathroom with you. I don't move that quickly. You're going to have to take me out on a few dates first before you get to have sex with me."

By saying that, you are creating a playful obstacle in between you and her hooking up for sex. It doesn't matter if she wasn't even implying that you join her in the bathroom for sex (99% of cases women won't be implying that!). What matters is that you are creating the excitement and joy that comes with sexual tension. You are socially intelligent enough to do that, which is exciting for women. It shows that you're not a desperate guy who is trying to be nice and polite to her in the hope of being reward with sex, love and affection.

Another example of creating sexual tension is by using eye contact. When interacting with a woman, there will almost always be a physical distance between you. The physical distance between you is the block, the obstacle or the barrier between you and her linking up to kiss and have sex. So, the obstacle is already there. The other thing you need to add into the mix is more sexual attraction, which you can create with sexual eye contact.

Instead of just making eye contact with her like a typical good would do (e.g. friendly, non-sexual), add in a more sexual vibe to your eye contact (watch the video on this page for a demonstration). Have a bit of a smile and look at her as though you're almost about to eat her. Look at her and know that she is sexually attracted to you. How? You are being confident, which naturally makes a woman feel sexually attracted, so she is attracted to you. End of story. Accept it. Don't doubt it. Believe it. Live it. Enjoy it.

Based on the additional confidence that you will be displaying by knowing that she is sexually attracted to you, her attraction for you will increase even more. You can't lose with that sort of approach with women. Being confident and knowing that women feel attracted to confidence allows you to naturally and effortlessly attract women. It's pretty cool how it works. Make sure that you do it.

When you confidently look at her in a sexual way, it creates sexual tension between you because there is a mutual sexual attraction as well as a physical distance that is separating you from each other. Both of you feel open and possibly even eager to close the distance and begin kissing and having sex, but the physical barrier remains between you. You have created a private world between you, a private bubble or a "private understanding" that you and her both want to have sex with each other.

You may have seen a man and a woman instantly react to each other in that way before. From a simple interaction, you noticed that they were suddenly looking at each other as though they had a private understanding between them that they would hook up and have sex. Then, you would have witnessed lots of flirting, touching and laughing between them. After that, they would have hooked up for sex and/or became a couple.

When you're interacting with a woman that you want to have sex with, make sure that you create sexual tension and then release the tension with kissing and sex. Failing to create sexual tension will mean that most women find your approach boring and unappealing and they will place you in the friend zone instead.

7. Waiting too long to make a move

[image: Waiting too long to make a move, to the point where the woman has lost interest.]

Women don't always show the same signals of interest, so you can't ever rely on a woman making it obvious that she wants you to kiss her for the first time. The way that a woman shows her signals of interest will differ based on her confidence level and what type of man she is looking for.

For example: A woman who is very confident and beautiful will usually play hard to get when she meets a guy that she likes because she wants to find a guy who can handle her level of confidence. She will test to see how strong a guy is, mentally and emotionally and if he can't handle her playing a bit hard to get during an interaction, then he's not confident enough to be her lover or boyfriend. He's too weak (mentally and emotionally) for a girl like her.

Another example is a woman who is insecure about her looks and value to men. This type of woman will often become shy when she likes a guy. She will stop showing any signs of interest and won't contribute much to the conversation because she is worried about being rejected by the guy she likes. To a guy who doesn't understand women, he might see that as a sign that she doesn't like him. He will then doubt himself, leave the interaction and both of them will go home alone.

Some women will make it very obvious that they like you. For instance, a woman may be talking to you and playing with her hair in a girly way, biting her lip, looking at you in a submissive way and/or constantly primping herself (e.g adjusting her hair, reapplying lipstick, etc) to make herself look more presentable to you. She may even say that she likes you or ask whether or not you have a girlfriend.

Since women show their interest in different ways, you can't rely on women to give you a standard signal that they like you. It will almost always be different, except for the times when women make it completely obvious. You've got to know that many women will like you and then play hard to get to see how you react. They want to see if you'll suddenly lose confidence in yourself or, if the woman is insecure, she will want to see if you actually do like her for real or are just trying to get her interested to feel good about yourself.

Where a lot of good guys go wrong with women is waiting too long to make a move because they are sitting around waiting for super obvious signals from a woman, or hoping that she makes the first move. He doesn't want to see "too forward" or be rejected for making a move, so he will keep interacting with her in the hope that she will make it very obvious that she likes him. This may go on for an hour or two if he's meeting her for the first time at a bar or party, or it may go on for weeks or months if he knows her as a friend or acquaintance.

Eventually, most women get frustrated and tired with the lack of action from the guy and then lose interest in him. Instead of wasting more time on him, the woman will open herself up to opportunities to be with other guys. For example: If he's talking to a girl for the first time, she may say, "I'm going to the bathroom" or "I'm going to go dance with my friends" and then never come back. If she's a woman that he knows and has been a "friend" to for a while, she will reject him when he eventually tries to make a move.

She will say something like, "Sorry...I don't want to ruin our friendship" or "I'm too busy right now" or "I'm shocked to hear that you feel that way...we're just friends!" To avoid that happening to you, simply build up sexual tension and then release that tension with kissing and sex. Don't sit around waiting and hoping that a woman makes the first move or makes it completely obvious that she likes you, because most women won't do that.

8. Lacking confidence around her

[image: A man lacking confidence around a woman, even though she is sitting there having a drink with him.]

Women are sexually attracted to a man's confidence and are sexually turned off by a man's insecurity, self-doubt, nervousness and other emotional weaknesses.

To be confident around women, you have to give yourself permission to feel confident based on the fact that you're a cool, good guy. Women aren't going to make it easy for you and say, "Hey, I like you. Don't doubt yourself. Be confident around me." Women aren't going to do that because they are looking for guys who are confident enough to handle them as well as the challenges of life.

The world that we live in here on planet Earth is challenging, even at the best of times. In most cases, you need to be a confident man to survive, thrive and prosper on this little planet in the universe. It's been a tough road to get to where we've gotten to today as a human species. The weak don't always do well in this weird and wonderful world and women instinctively know that. So, don't question a woman's attraction to your confidence. It makes total sense that women are attracted to a man's confidence.

If you display a lack of confidence around women, it won't matter to them that you're a good guy. Goodness is great, but it's not what makes a woman feel sexually attracted to you. You've got to be confident and masculine and then the fact that you're a good guy is simply a welcome bonus to her.

9. Thinking that being a gentleman will win her over

There's nothing wrong with being chivalrous, being a good man or being gentlemanly to a woman. It's just that it doesn't mean crap to a woman unless she is sexually attracted to you. Being a gentleman or doing nice things for her is not the step before sex. You don't get rewarded with sex for being a gentleman. That's not how it works.

You get a woman sexually interested in you by being sexually attractive to her, which comes from your confidence, masculinity and how you make her feel when you interact with her. If she feels girly in response to your masculine vibe, it won't even matter if you're a good guy or a bad boy, because she will naturally feel sexually attracted to you. The same applies to you as a man; it doesn't matter if a stripper or a pornstar is a "bad girl," you feel attracted to her because of what she is displaying to you.

If you display confidence and masculinity around women, they will feel attracted to you. However, they don't feel attraction to niceness or goodness. That doesn't mean you need to be a bad boy in any way; it just means that you need to be attractive.

10. Pretending not to be interested in sex

Some good guys make the mistake of shutting down their sexual side around women. A guy like that will act as though the only reason he's talking to a woman is because she's interesting or that he's just interested in being friends.

That approach is nice if you just want to talk to a woman and not create any sort of sexual spark between you, but it's the opposite of what you need to if you want to get laid or get yourself a girlfriend. Pretending not to be interested in sex with a woman you're attracted to is called lying. You are being dishonest to her and to yourself by behaving in that way.

In many cases, the good guys who pretend not to be interested in sex when interacting with women are the same guys who jerk off to porn every week. They feel intense attraction to women, they love women and they want to be sexual with women, but when interacting with women in person, they pretend to just be an innocent, friendly guy. When a good guy puts on an act like that, he's not being who he really is as a human being.

To be clear here, I'm not talking about being sleazy or being over the top in the way that you show sexual interest in women. I'm also not talking about not caring about a woman and only looking at her as a sexual object. What I'm talking about is that you at least be man enough, honest enough and real enough to show your sexual interest in her. Remember that most women (96% of women, according to the Dove cosmetics global survey) don't think that they are beautiful. So, you are doing most women a favor by showing your sexual interest in her and making her feel appreciated.

Most women are insecure about their looks and sexiness to men and secretly appreciate it when a cool, good guy is confident enough to say something as simple as, "You're sexy...I like you" instead of pretending like he's just an innocent guy who would never, ever think about having sex with her.

Being a Good Guy Who is Successful With Women

If you consider yourself to be a good guy, then from now on allow yourself to feel confident and valuable about that fact. Being a good guy is cool and you need to stop doubting yourself in any way. You need to understand that you get to decide on your value as a man. You can think of women as being more valuable than you and out of your reach, or you can think of them as being equal and then take action in accordance with that thinking.

Say to yourself, "I'm a good guy, therefore I am a valuable guy. I'm not like all those bad guys out there...those pricks, assholes, liars and snakes. I'm a good guy and I've got good intentions with women, so I'm going to allow myself to feel valuable around women because of that. Women are going to be lucky to hook up with a guy like me."

No matter how many tests women throw at me while I'm interacting with them, I'm not going to buckle under the pressure. I know that they are just testing to see how confident I am...and when they see that I continue to be confident no matter what, they will be excited and feel attracted to me. I won't see women as being higher value than me merely because they look attractive. I am higher value (or equal value) because I am an awesome guy.

When I can maintain that belief in myself and stay on that confident path, women are naturally going to feel attracted to me and they will stop rejecting me."

Personally speaking...

Back when I was hopeless with women, I was still the same good guy that I am today. Deep down, I'm still the same good guy with good intentions who wants to do good things in the world. I like to do good things for people and I'm a nice guy at heart, but what has changed is that I believe in myself. I allow myself to feel valuable around women and people based on the fact that I'm a good guy.

Nothing that anyone says or does ever deters me from my belief in myself. I am confident all the time, no matter what happens...because I said so. I have decided to be confident and I've stuck with that. I decided to believe in myself and that's that. Thankfully, women find that type of confidence very attractive in a man and it has allowed me to have sex with hundreds of beautiful women, even though I don't compare to them in the looks department.

Confidence (or belief in yourself) is a very powerful trait to have as a man. It's very useful in this world. Confidence helps you in your career, when hanging around friends or when dealing with the challenges of life, so it makes total sense that women feel attracted to it. Allow yourself to have it. Embrace and it enjoy it. You deserve it because you are a good guy.

Have belief in yourself rather than doubting yourself around women. Step forward and go after what you want in life (including going after attractive women) with determination and unshakeable confidence. That type of approach to life is very attractive to women at a fundamental level. The fact that you're also a good guy is simply a welcome bonus to her.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get Out of the Friend Zone With a Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In this post, I'm going to help you get out of the friend zone with a woman or a girl that you like. I will provide you with techniques for attracting her, getting her out on a date and then kissing her to begin the sexual relationship, rather than just being her friend.

Here's what I am going to explain for you in this post:

- The difference between a friend, lover and boyfriend.
- 3 common reasons why women place men in the friend zone.
- 3 ways to change the way that she feels about you.
- How to get her to go out on a date with you.
- How to kiss her for the first time.

The Difference Between a Friend, Lover and Boyfriend

It's important to look at the differences between these roles because if you want her to be your girlfriend or lover, you really have to stop thinking, behaving and acting like a friend to her. You really have to stop that. You've got to start behaving like a potential lover or boyfriend, rather than a friend who has no sexual interest in her.

Friend (noun): A person who is on good terms with another. A person who is not hostile. A person attached to another by feelings of affection or personal regard.

Lover (noun): A person who has a sexual or romantic relationship with another.

Boyfriend (noun): A male friend with whom a person is romantically or sexually involved; sweetheart or lover.

[image: Friend zone sex]

The way to not just be her friend is to think about what the difference really is between a friendship and a sexual relationship with a woman. It's essentially the same thing, except for the sex. What happens before a man and a woman have sex? Is it about being "friends" or is about something else? It's about sexual attraction being present and then sexual tension building up and then being released through kissing and sex.

To get out of the friend zone with her, you're going to need to make her feel sexually attracted to you and then escalate to kissing and sex. You do not need to be more of a friend to her or build up more of a relationship first. You have to focus on sexual attraction and building up the sexual tension between you.

3 Common Reasons Why Women Place Men in the Friend

Zone

1. A lack of sexual attraction

[image: Friend zone - no sexual attraction]

When you're only seen as a friend, she may like you as a person, but that's not sexual attraction or what happens before sex. Being her friend is not what turns a woman on. A woman will feel turned on by a guy if she feels sexually attracted to him, not friendly with him.

Men and women create sexual attraction in each other by using different methods and approaches. Some guys feel as though women have it easy because we men mostly judge them on their physical appearance, so if a woman wants to look more sexually appealing to us, all she has to do is put on a bit of make up and she goes from looking okay, average or even below average looking to looking sexy and beautiful. A woman can also show her cleavage in a nice, tight fitting dress and attract us that way also.

The funny thing is that it's just as easy for us men to attract women, but it's not about us trying to looking more physically appealing. We men don't go around putting on make up or wearing tight shorts to show off our legs or butt. It's not about that. What is it about then?

It's about your confidence and your belief in yourself around her. I'm not talking about you just being confident as her "friend," I'm talking about the confidence that you have in your sex appeal to her. If you're talking to the woman who currently has you in the friend zone, you've got to show her that you have Confidence in Your Sex Appeal. The confidence that you have in your sex appeal to her comes through via your body language and tone of voice. (Watch the video on this page for an example).

It's funny how it works because a guy can have confidence in his sex appeal for various reasons. For instance, some guys feel as though they need to have a nice car and good clothes to be sexy to women. Then, when he gets a nice car and wears nice clothes, he feels confident in his sex appeal to women.

What will he then do as a result of having confidence in his sex appeal? He'll be more confident around women and will demonstrate belief in his sex appeal to her and to other women. Then, the women will feel attracted to his confidence in his sex appeal.

At this point, some guys reading along may think, "Well, the women like him because of his car and his clothes" but that's not the case at all. They like him because of his confidence in his sex appeal. You will see guys who don't have a nice car or who don't even have a car, who don't have nice clothes or wear ordinary clothes, but they have confidence in their sex appeal to women.

Where is that confidence coming from? How can those guys have confidence in their sex appeal if they don't have a nice car, nice clothes or other external things? It comes down to a decision; a decision that a guy makes about his sex appeal to women. It's something that YOU get to decide on. You might decide that you have sex appeal because you're a good guy with a great smile, or just because you said so.

Some guys may be wondering at this point, "How do I have belief in my sex appeal to women, if I don't think that I have sex appeal?" Well, the funny thing is that if YOU don't believe that you have sex appeal and you interact with women and they pick up on it, then you won't be sexually appealing to them. Women aren't sexually attracted to a man's self-doubt; women are attracted to a man's confidence and belief in himself.

When you have a lot of belief in yourself, you are very attractive to women. Having a belief in yourself as a man is the equivalent of a woman putting on make up, wearing a sexy dress or showing her cleavage. She suddenly goes from being okay looking to being very attractive and appealing. If you have a little bit of belief in yourself around women, they find you mildly appealing, but if you have a lot of belief in yourself, they can't help but feel attracted.

At this point, some guys might be wondering, "Why is confidence so important to women? How does that attract women? Why are women so interested in confidence?" Well, attraction is actually a pretty weird thing. If you think about it, we men are attracted to women's body parts. Like, "Ohh, look at her legs...sexy." Her legs are just two boney structures with muscle, blood and skin around them. What is attractive about that?

To us men, when those "legs" are on a woman, it has meaning to us and is attractive for some reason. It's pretty weird how it works. The fleshy bags of skin on her chest, the "mammary glands" attracts us also. We're like, "Ohh, look at her tits...nice."

That's just how attraction works; it's weird. Women are attracted to a man's confidence, which may sound weird, but it's just the way it works. Yet, it does make sense if you think about it.

If you think about the value that confidence has in this world, you will realize that it's very useful for surviving, thriving and getting things done. It's a challenging world that we live in here on planet Earth and throughout the entire human history, it's been a real challenge to get to where we are right now.

Confidence is very useful and it's something that women want to be connected with and breed with. We men want to breed with the beauty of the woman and women want to breed with the strength of the man. It's just the weird way that attraction works.

If you can interact with this female friend of yours where you believe that have sex appeal in her eyes, she will feel attracted to your confidence in yourself. You will be able to look at her in a sexual way, rather than just looking at her as a friend (watch the video on this page for a demonstration).

When you know that she finds you sexually appealing and that there is a sexual vibe between you, it's much easier to look at her in way that demonstrates your confidence in your sex appeal. How do you know that she finds you sexually appealing? Simple. You display confidence in your sex appeal and it automatically makes you sexually appealing to her. It's a no-lose technique.

Women cannot stop themselves from feeling attracted to a guy who has confidence in his sex appeal, just like we men feel more attracted to a woman when she puts on make up, wears a sexy dress or shows her cleavage. It's a natural reaction of attraction.

On the other hand, if she gets the sense that you doubt yourself around her or don't feel good enough for her, it's a natural and automatic turn off. Women don't want to breed with the weakness of men, just like men don't want to breed with physically unattractive women. You've got to attract her with utter belief in yourself and your sex appeal to her.

2. A simple misunderstanding

[image: Friend zone misunderstanding]

Often, when a guy is in the friend zone with a woman, she has accepted the fact that he doesn't find her sexy because he's never said anything about it. He's never tried to flirt with her, he's never looked at her in a sexual way and has just been friendly around her and been a really good friend.

When a guy like that eventually admits to having feelings for the girl, it's a bit of a shock to her. She will often respond with disbelief and say, "What? I didn't think you felt that way" and will tell him that she doesn't want to ruin their friendship. To her, he has just been a good friend and hasn't ever seen her in a sexual way, so it would feel weird to suddenly have sex with her.

What a lot of guys don't realize is that women actually need you to tell them that you find them sexy. Most women are insecure about their looks, which some guys feel is weird and uncalled for, but it's true. A quick statistic to back it up is the global survey conducted by Dove Cosmetics. They asked 3,200 women from around the world whether they considered themselves to be beautiful and 96% of women said no.

I know this shocking truth from personal experience as well. By meeting thousands of women (while taking clients out to approach women each weekend), having sex with a lot of women and having a lot of female friends, I've discovered that women are insecure about their looks. Even if you look at a girl and think she's a total hottie, she will be insecure about her looks in some way.

It's weird, but it's just the way it is. So, if you're interacting with a woman and you're only ever being friendly with her and never giving her any sort of sexual compliment, she will usually feel as though you don't find her as sexually appealing as other women. Many women will say, "Okay, well he just wants to be friends with me" and it's just a simple misunderstanding.

3. Asking for too much, too soon

[image: Friend zone - too much too soon]

These days, most women don't want to commit to the idea of having a relationship with a guy before they've kissed him. Some women won't even commit to the idea of having a relationship before sex.

That may sound a bit weird for some guys as well, but if you think about where the change in women's attitudes has come from, it will make total sense. In the past, premarital sex was not allowed so almost everyone didn't have sex before marriage. A woman had to remain a virgin before marriage and she then lost her virginity on the wedding night.

So, back in those times, a guy would court a woman and then ask for her hand in marriage. He would then get her father's permission to marry her and the couple would then get married. When they had sex on the wedding night, the real relationship would then begin.

Yet, that's just not how it works anymore.

We're living in a completely different society now. That's not to say that "society is all messed up now" or that "women have lost their way," it's just that society is different. Culture always changes throughout the ages. If you look back throughout human history, you will see all sorts of cultures who thought they had it all worked out and would say, "THIS is the way that every human should live."

Yet, they are then superseded by the following culture. They are left behind and their ways of thinking and living life become obsolete and irrelevant in the new version of human society. In today's world, it's totally fine for a woman to have sex and it's totally fine for her to kiss a guy. So, most women don't like the idea of a guy coming on to her and saying that he wants to have a relationship with her, before she's even kissed him or had sex with him.

Women want to get to kissing and sex first and then see how they feel with you. Women are aware of the approximate 50% divorce rate in much of the developed world, so they aren't in a hurry to marry the first guy who shows them interest. Instead of asking her for a relationship or asking her to be your girlfriend, you've got to get to kissing and sex first.

Once that happens, the discussion about having a relationship will come up naturally. Yet, even at that point, there is no guarantee or requirement for either of you to want to commit to a serious relationship. You're simply just testing the waters or "dating" each other and seeing how things go.

3 Ways to Change the Way That She Feels About You

1. Change the way that you behave around her

[image: Friend zone attraction]

I've been talking about this a bit already, but I will point it again now because it's very important that you change your behavior before you change the way that you talk to her. If you start using some of the lines or conversation examples that I'm going to give you, before you've changed your behavior around her, it won't have the same sort of impact on her.

The main way that you need to change your behavior is to start being more confident around her and believe that you have sex appeal in her eyes. Not just a little bit of sex appeal, but a LOT of sex appeal. The more that you believe in your sex appeal to her, the more sex appeal you will actually have to her. It's really cool how it works and we are lucky to be guys because, unlike women who have to put on a lot of make up or buy expensive dresses and shoes to look more appealing, all we have to do is believe in ourselves.

When you believe in sex appeal around her, your behavior will automatically change to be more attractive to her. You will naturally be more confident, charming and have a more appealing sexual vibe to her. She will smile and feel excited about and attracted to the sudden changes in you.

2. Change the way that you talk to her

[image: Change the way that you talk to her]

Instead of just talking to her like a friend and being that innocent, friendly who has no sexual interest in her, you really have to change that and be more sexual with her. You have to remember that you're not after a friendship with her, you want to be her boyfriend or lover and the difference between a friend and a boyfriend or lover is sex.

Example: You work with a woman that you like or have a crush on a girl at university. When she walks into a room or walks into the cafeteria, instead of saying, "Oh, you look nice today" make it a bit more sexual by saying, "Ooh, look at you today...you're looking fantastic...very sexy today." You've got to include the word "sexy" to make it sexual and to show your sexual interest in her. Don't say that she looks "nice" or "pretty" because that is what a friend would say.

If you're in a work environment where that might not be seen as appropriate, then simply say it outside of the workplace. Say it to her at the Friday night drinks or while having lunch or a coffee with her. You might say to her, "By the way...you're looking very sexy today...I saw you walk in this morning and it was like – ooh, look at Rebecca today...you've got it going on girl."

Give her that type of sexual compliment instead of just being a friendly, non-sexual guy who asks unnecessary questions like, "Oh, that's a nice dress...where did you get it? How much did it cost?" That's not what you really want to say to her. You really want to tell her that she looks sexy and you want to have a sexual vibe with her, so don't hide your sexual interest in her behind fake friendliness. Another way to change the way that you talk to her is to playfully resist her "attempts" to have sex with you, even if she isn't trying to. This is about you joking around and being playful about the idea of you and her potentially having sex, rather than talking to her in a serious manner or only as a friend.

An example of how to do this is when you and her are hanging out somewhere (e.g. a bar, a party, a park, etc) and she says, "Oh, I'm tired." How can you playfully resist her attempt to have sex with you in that moment? You playfully assume that she's hinting at wanting to go home and sleep with you by saying, "Stop giving me subtle hints that you want to go home and sleep with me. You know...I get what you're trying to say."

She will then smile, be shocked, laugh and say, "What? I was just saying that I was tired! :)" and you can then SMILE and say, "No, no...I've seen the way you've been looking at me." She will then laugh with you and both of you will be smiling about the sexual tension between you. You can then playfully resist her attempts to have sex with you further by saying, "Look...you're going to have to take me out on a few dates before I let you have sex with me."

When you use that approach with her, you create a fun and interesting dynamic where it's about her trying to seduce you and her trying to win you over. Women really enjoy that because 99% of guys don't have the confidence or social skills to be able to playfully mess with women in that way.

Another example is where she wants to come over to your house for the first time or you are going over to her house for the first time. To playfully resist her attempts to have sex with you, you can say, "Okay, look...I'm coming over, but you're not getting to have sex with me tonight. I'm not that easy. You're going to have to take me out on a few dates first."

You can then have a laugh with her and feel excited about the sexual tension that is building between you. Using this approach helps to release the awkward tension that is usually present when a guy and a girl are transitioning from a friendship to a sexual relationship. You're both able to smile and laugh about the transition, rather than being so serious and formal about it.

Another way to change the way that you talk to her is to let her know about your feelings and intentions. I'm not talking about you suddenly becoming very romantic and expressing your feelings for her or being very soppy or sensitive about it. A lot of modern women find it very awkward and even tacky when a guy is being too full on or too sensitive about expressing his feelings.

So, when you tell her what your feelings are and what you're intentions are with her, you've got to do it in a way where you're not being overly serious or romantic where it's a big deal for you. The best way to say it is to just be confident and easy-going and say it in a matter of fact sort of way, with a little bit of humor added in to release any awkward tension.

You can say, "By the way...I like you Rebecca...more than just a friend. It probably sounds a little bit romantic to say that, but it's true. I think you're sexy and I like you." Just be easy-going about it and say it in a confident way. You don't have to say those exact words. You can also say something like, "By the way Rebecca...just want to let you know that I like you more than just a friend...there's something about you that I like...your very sexy...just want to let you know that. I mean, it probably sounds a little bit romantic to say that, but it's true. I think you're sexy and I like you."

Important: Don't send that to her via text, a Facebook or Whatsapp message or e-mail. You must tell her that she is sexy and that you like her in person, or at the very least on a phone call. Saying it via text does not allow her to feel attracted to your confidence and maturity in saying such a thing. Body language and tonality make up MOST of the communication between two human beings and when she only has a text message from you, she has to guess at what tone and vibe you are portraying with the message.

If she currently sees you as an insecure, self-doubting guy and doesn't feel attracted to you, she will not see a message like that in a good way. She will have to guess as what you are feeling when you are sending it and will likely imagine you being all romantic and sensitive. You've got to be confident enough to say that sort of thing to her in person.

It's important to be confident and easy-going when you tell this woman or girl that you find her sexy and like her more than just a friend. Don't ask her to be your girlfriend or anything like that. Just tell her that you like her more than just a friend and think that she is sexy. Then, you need to focus on building her attraction for you, building up the sexual tension and then releasing that sexual tension via kissing and sex.

Another way to change the way that you talk to her is to stop talking to her as though you're "just a friend." For example: Instead of being the friend who sits around listening about the drama that's going on between all of her girlfriends or the problems that she's having at work, be the guy who actually flirts with her in those moments. That's what she really wants from you and that is what will make her feel more sexually attracted to you.

So, if she always complains to you about work, instead of just listening like you normally do, SMILE and say, "You're such a drama queen. This person did this, that person did that...lalalala." What's she going to do in that moment? She's going to laugh at the social intelligence and confidence you are displaying by saying such a thing to her. You're not being an asshole by saying it; you're just playfully messing with her and that is what it's cool and funny.

Another response to her being a drama queen is to say, "Geez...it sucks to be you, doesn't it?" and then smile and have a laugh with her. Again, you're saying that in a playful, flirtatious way. You're not saying it in a mean, negative way. You are simply smiling and being confident enough to playfully mess with her in a moment like that.

The reason why it is considered "flirting" is that you are playfully dominating her in the conversation or making her feel girly in response to your masculinity, which attracts her. Women feel sexually attracted to men who can playfully dominate them in a conversation or interaction because it says a lot about a guy's confidence, masculinity and social intelligence. Yes, what women are attracted to is weird, but it's no weirder than our attraction to their body parts. It is what it is.

If you look at the dictionary definition of flirting, it is:

Flirting (verb): Behave as though attracted to or trying to attract someone, but for amusement rather than with serious intentions.

In other words, by playfully messing with her like that, you are attracting her for amusement rather than attracting her and thinking, "This is the line that will trick her into liking me and then get me laid!" You're just being the cool, confident guy that you are and enjoying a bit of flirtatious vibe with her.

By flirting with her in that way, I'm not saying that you should never listen to her, never be caring or be there in a time of need. You should continue to be there for her, listen, love and care about her. However, you also need to mix in the flirting behavior and conversation because that is what will make her feel sexually attracted to you.

Being her friend isn't what makes a woman feel sexually attracted to you. Believing in your sex appeal and having the confidence and social intelligence to flirt with her and playfully dominate her during a conversation, is part of what will make her respect you as a man. Instead of just feeling as though you're one of her "girlfriends" who sits around discussing drama with her, you're the guy who makes her feel attracted and lustful. She respects you and wants to experience sex with you and see if it turns into love and an amazing relationship.

3. Change the way that you look at her

[image: Change the way that you look at her]

According to countless studies into human communication, body language makes up anywhere from 70-80% of communication between two human beings when they are interacting in person. So, when you are interacting with this girl that you're in the friend zone with, it's really important that you bring in sexuality, confidence and masculinity into your body language.

Those are the elements that are going to make her feel sexually attracted to you and turn her on around you. When you use the body language techniques I'm about to give you that her behavior changes around you. You're going to see that the way she looks at you changes. She will smile, give you submissive looks and have that look in her eye that suggests she is suddenly feeling more sexually attracted to you.

The first way to change the way you look at her is to use what I call, The Sex Smile.

The Sex Smile

This is about you looking at her in a way where you are thinking about sex, you're confident about her attraction to you and you're enjoying the sexual feeling that you're experiencing with her. This is something that, in most cases, you will have to lead. Don't expect a woman to lead The Sex Smile with you; some women will do it because they are very flirtatious, but if you're in the friend zone with a girl who acts like a friend around you, she's probably not going to do The Sex Smile first.

A woman will give you a Sex Smile back if you do it properly by really believing in yourself and your sex appeal to her. The Sex Smile works better the more you believe in yourself and the more than you stick with it. It's difficult to explain The Sex Smile with words, so I recommend that you watch the video on this page to learn it.

If a woman asks you why you are suddenly looking at her in a sexual way, you absolutely should not show signs of nervousness and self-doubt in response. Simply remain confident, smile and say, "You know...I've never told you this, but I think you're very sexy." Saying that just cuts through all the fake, friendly conversation and gets right to the heart of what you really feel. Don't worry about saying it; women LOVE to be appreciated for their sexiness, especially when a guy does it in a confident, easy-going way.

The Sexual Squint

This is about squinting your eyes at her in a sexual, playful way during a conversation. It's flirtatious because it makes her feel slightly dominated because she is suddenly “under the spotlight” of your gaze. She feels attracted to how girly you are making her feel, but since you are just attracting her that way for your own amusement, it’s not serious and is considered flirting.

Once again, you can watch the video on this page for a demo.

The Delicious Look

This is about you seeing her as delicious and finding her to be very sexually appealing.

For example: She walks into work one morning or walks into university and comes over to say hello. Instead of you just saying to her in a friendly way, “Oh, you look nice to day. That’s a nice dress” use the word “sexy” and look at her in a way where you find her to be delicious. “Ooh, look at you today...you’re looking fantastic...looking very sexy today.”

At this point, some guys may be wondering, “But, isn’t that a bit too forward? Could she think that I’m being sleazy? Could she feel as though I’m demeaning her or anything like that?” Not at all. Women like to be sexually appreciated.

Seeing her as delicious is not about you being sleazy or going over the top with it like, “Ohhhhhh, look at you. Come here...take your clothes off and bend over. Giz a look....ohhhhh.” Obviously, that is over the top and would be considered sleazy by many women.

Seeing her as delicious is more about showing a loving appreciation of her sexiness. You’re just being a confident, loving guy and letting her know that you find her to be sexually attractive. It’s very important to let her know that you find her sexually attractive because if you have just been friendly with her in the past, she probably assumes that you don’t look at her as being as sexually appealing as other women.

In many cases, a woman who has you in the friend zone will feel a bit insecure around you. Sometimes, she feels as though she’s not good enough for you because you never look at her in the way that she wants to be looked at. You don’t make her feel sexy; you just make her feel like a nice girl.

The same rule applies when you’re in a committed relationship with a girl. For example: When I picked up my girlfriend who I’m now in a relationship with, I was sitting in a nightclub with a friend and we were looking around at the women on offer and saying, “Yeah...not many hotties here tonight...I might hook up with that girl once, but wouldn’t want anything more...wouldn’t touch that girl over there...”

Then, all of a sudden, my girlfriend to be walked in and I said, “Now THAT is what I’m talking about....that is hot.” I still feel the same way about her because I’ve chosen a woman that I’m really attracted to. I still make her feel like she’s the sexiest woman on Earth. When she does herself up and walks down the stairs before we head out to a party or dinner, I say things like, “Ohhh! Nice...my darling...sexy bitch” and she loves it.

I still have the same reaction to her that I had the first night and it’s authentic. So, if you are really attracted to this female friend of yours, then let it be known. If you withhold your sexual interest in women, if you withhold that appreciation of their sexiness and femininity, then you are taking something from them and depriving them of an amazing gift.

The gift of appreciating her sexiness and femininity is much more valuable than buying her flowers, chocolates or an expensive dinner. Making her feel like a real woman and making her feel appreciated is a gift that lasts a lifetime.

Alpha Analysis

This type of look is where you look her up and down and evaluate her sexiness and then follow it up with a compliment.

For example: She just walked in somewhere to meet you and you look her up and down and say, “Ooh, you’re sexy...you’ve got it going on girl. You’re looking really good today.” Guess what will happen? If you have already changed your behavior around her and she thus feels attracted to you, she will be happy and excited at what you just said. You will see her smile from ear to ear, or giggle and look at you in a submissive way. In other words, she will love it.

Looking at her in that way and saying that sort of thing cuts through all the bullshit. It cuts through all the fake, friendly conversation of you hanging out and just being her “friend.” It really gets to heart of what is required to begin the transition from a friendship to a sexual relationship.

At this point, some guys may be thinking, “What if I do it and she doesn’t like it?” or “What if I do it and she tells me that she doesn’t want me to look at her in that way?” If you’re worried about being rejected in that way, then you don’t understand women or attraction.

Women are attracted to a man’s confidence. If she is attracted to you, then she will love that you’re looking at her in that way. If she says, “Why are you looking at me like that?” it’s usually just a test to see if you will become nervous and doubt yourself. If you do, it means that you’re just trying to use a line on her and are not even confident.

What you need to understand is that you are really lucky to be a guy, you’re really lucky to be a man because women feel attracted to your belief in yourself. If you look at her in a sexual way and she tries to play hard to get or test you, you will attract her MORE by not becoming nervous or doubting yourself. If you don’t back down from your confidence, you become more attracted to her.

You will see that if you don’t back down, she will smile and become girly in response to your masculinity. When that happens, she will feel a rush of attraction for you in a way that she rarely, if ever, gets to experience with other guys. Most guys that a woman meets do not have the confidence to remain strong under her pressure. Most guys buckle and become nervous in response to a woman’s tests, so when a woman comes up against a guy who doesn’t back down, it’s exhilarating, exciting and enjoyable for her.

If you panic and become nervous in response to her testing you by pretending not to like your display of appreciation for her sexiness, it’s a turn off. It’s the equivalent of a woman with make up on, suddenly washing off all of her make up. When you see what she looks like without the make up, you suddenly don’t feel the same way about her. She looks different. She doesn’t look as attractive without the make up on.

If you can remain confident no matter what she says or does, then you remain really attractive to her. It’s very easy to do when you know that women are attracted to confidence and that the more confident you can be, the more attracted she will be to you.

How to Get Her to Go Out on a Date With You

In many cases where a guy is in the friend zone with a girl, it will feel awkward for both him and the girl to transition from a friendship to a sexual relationship. However, if you do change the way that she feels about you first, it will make sense to her that you and her should change the status of your relationship. If you don't make her feel attracted to you first, any attempts to get her out on a date will feel awkward and even unnecessary to her.

If some friend zone cases, the woman will open up and reveal her feelings. She may even walk up to you, hug you and kiss you or invite you over to her place and all just flows from one step to the next after attracting her and letting her know how you feel. Yet, that is the ideal reaction. In many cases, a woman will feel insecure and awkward about transitioning from a mere friendship to a full blown sexual relationship.

So, instead of asking her out on a date or asking if she wants to be your girlfriend, you should go on what I call The Half Date. This is where you invite her out to something that you're already going to be doing with friends. She can bring some friends or a friend along with her if she wants to. For instance, you and a couple of friends are going for a drink at a bar on the weekend for someone's party, or to a bar on a Friday night celebrate your friend's promotion at work, achievement at university or something like that.

[image: Half Date - beers with friends]

You simply say to her, "Hey, you should come along as well" when you're telling her about it. "We're going to go there on Friday night...it's a really cool place...we're going to be hanging out...you should come along as well." Don't refer to it as a date by asking her, "Do you want to go out on a date with me? We'll meet at the bar for my friend's party."

Just frame it as you and her catching up. Say something like, "I'm going out on Friday night with some friends...it would be really cool if you could come along as well and we could catch up and hang out. We're going to be there for my friend's birthday and celebrate, so it would be great if you could come along." The Half Date is great because it allows her to meet up with you without appearing as though she is interested in beginning a sexual relationship with you. Many women feel awkward about the transition, so it's just a way to make her feel more comfortable to meet up with you.

[image: Half Date - sports game]

If you're not the sort of guy who goes to bars or you don't drink, that is fine also. Instead of going to a bar, you can invite her to a sports game or to a BBQ (cookout) at your place, a friend's place or at a park/lake on the weekend. You can also get a bit of a house party happening and invite her to that. It doesn't matter if only 8 people are attending the house party; that is still a house party. You don't have to have 50 people there to make it a house party.

[image: Half Date - BBQ or cookout at home]

In the case of holding a house party and inviting her along to that, you can say, "Hey, we're having a house party on Saturday night, you should come over. It would be really cool if we could catch up and hang out."

Once you get a woman to attend a Half Date with you, it's then about building up the attraction and then escalating to a kiss or even sex if that's possible. It's not about hanging out and just being friendly with her the whole time. You've got to be flirting with her, believing in your sex appeal and making her feel attracted.

How to Kiss Her For the First Time

[image: Hug technique kiss transition]

1. Transition From The Hug Technique to a Kiss

The Hug Technique is really cool because it's a versatile technique that you can use with women in many different situations. Here are some example ways to use it:

Birthday Hug: If it's a girl's birthday, you can say, "Oh, birthday hug...come here" and open your arms and move in for a birthday hug. I've never had a woman reject a birthday hug.

New Years Eve Hug: You see some girls walking a long a street on New Year's Eve or you see them hanging out somewhere. Walk over and say, "Heyyy! Happy New Year's Eve" and they will say it back and then say, "New Year's Eve hug" and simply open your arms and move in for the hug. Women never reject an NYE hug either, probably because they are in a fun mood and want to have a good time.

Goodbye Hug: If you're in the friend zone with a woman and rarely, if ever touch each other, you can use the Goodbye Hug to close the distance and create an opportunity for a kiss. So, if you're hanging out with this girl and are parting ways, what you can say is, "Alright, come here...let's have a goodbye hug today" and then move in for the hug.

[image: Hug technique kiss transition]

Don't make it a friendly, non-sexual hug. Make it a warm hug where you hold her with love and sexual appreciation. Then, simply pull back from the hug and still hold her and look her in the eyes. If she stands there smiling and gladly maintaining eye contact with you, or looks at you in a shy, girly way, then she is feeling turned on and is open to being kissed, so simply lean in and kiss her.

If she quickly pulls away from the hug or turns her face away from you, then she is signalling that she isn't open to kissing you, in which case you need to focus on building more attraction and sexual tension before attempting a kiss.

If you want something to say when you're pulling back from the hug and looking her in the eyes, simply relax and say, "It's been good catching up today" while maintaining eye contact with her. That will make her feel attraction because it takes confidence and masculinity to do that, which are both very attractive to women. Say it in a sexual, loving way, not in a friendly, platonic way that has no sexual vibe at all.

2. Create a Private Moment Between You

[image: Friend zone private moment]

One of the way that I got out of a friend zone situation was by going out to dinner with her, her female friend and one of my guy friends. That is an example of a Half Date by the way. We had a few glasses of wine over dinner and then we all went back to my apartment, which has a balcony with a view that over looks the city.

While inside the apartment, we were all just hanging out and were having coffee and some biscuits. My friend was talking to her female friend and I said to my girl, "Hey, come out to the balcony for a minute...we'll go check out the view." On the balcony, we were having a chat and flirting back and forth. I was giving her The Sex Smile and she was feeling it.

After about 30 seconds of that, I put my hand out to reach behind her lower back. I didn't initially touch her back, but a couple of seconds later I did. I then drew her towards me and we just looked at each other and smiled and then started kissing. Now that was an amazing moment. It was like fireworks were going off. It just amazing.

The reason I am telling you about how amazing the first kiss was, is not to say that it was so cool that I kissed that girl and felt so good. The reason is to let you in on a bit of secret here. That secret is to know that the first kiss is going to feel good for you AND for her. My girl was blown away by the kiss and we had an amazing time that night.

It wasn't a case of me getting a kiss from her, me getting sex from her or getting the amazing blowjob she gave me that night. It was a case of both of us releasing the built up sexual tension because we had been "just friends" prior to that moment, but sexual attraction was present. I was simply confident enough to move things forward and allow that exciting, mutually pleasurable release of sexual tension to occur.

Summary

[image: Friend zone transition - flirting, sexual tension]

Essentially, what you need to do is attract her, make your intentions known and be confident and strong enough to push through any awkward moments so you can actually get to kissing and sex.

Each friend zone transition is going to be a little bit different because some women are going to be a bit easier than others and some guys are going to be more confident than other guys. However, what you need to know is that when a woman is attracted to a guy and he lets it be known that he finds her sexy and then attempts to move it forward, she will rarely, if ever, reject that.

If a woman is not attracted to a guy, then she has reason to reject him. She only sees him as a friend and doesn't feel any sexual feelings for him, so it makes sense to reject his attempts to kiss her. So, make sure that you attract her first by believing in yourself and having unstoppable confidence in your sex appeal. Then, have the confidence to let her know how you feel, "Ooh, you're looking sexy today...how are YOU doing? Look at that dress...watch out! :)"

Have the confidence give her that experience rather than being a non-sexual friend and say, "Oh, hey – how's it going today? I haven't seen you in a while. How's it been at work?" Drop the friendly, platonic stuff and show her a more sexually confident side of yourself. Then, be confident and strong enough to push through any feelings of awkwardness leading up to the kiss.

As a man, it really is your responsibility to be strong enough to move things forward. Women don't want to have to lead a man and will instead wait and hope that you have the confidence to lead the way and make a move. If she does play a bit hard to get or rejects your first attempt to kiss her, it doesn't mean that you're doomed for life and that you can never be with her. It just means that she's a little bit more challenging than other women.

If she says to you outright, "No! I'm not interested in you in that way" then okay, that's a no. You need to step back and attract her for a while and she if she changes her tune and starts showing you signs of interest. However, anything outside of an absolute "No!" is an opportunity to move things forward.

If she is giving you very obvious signals such as submissive facial expressions in response to your flirting or getting really involved in the flirting by laughing, smiling and giggling about it, then it's her way of showing that she is open to it. So, you need to be confident enough (or simply allow yourself to feel confident enough in the moment) to move things forward.

One main thing to remember with a friend zone transition is that it's not about you getting something from her. It's not about you taking something from her or you getting something and she doesn't get anything out of it at all. The first kiss from a friend zone transition feels great for both the guy and the girl. So, just know that you're going to give her that gift.

The sex from a friend zone transition feels amazing for both the man and the woman. So, you will be giving her that gift as well. You are sharing an experience together, not taking something from her. The relationship will feel great as well, with a nice backstory that she can tell her girlfriends, "We started out as just friends and then wow – something just happened. A spark just set off between us and I suddenly felt really attracted to him. It feels amazing and we get along so well. I'm just so happy right now."

So, if you want to get out of the friend zone, first make sure that she feels attracted to you and then make your intentions known. Build up the sexual tension and then push through any feelings of awkwardness to get to that point where both of you release the built up sexual tension and enjoy it. It's a beautiful thing.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

10 Smart Ways to Eliminate Your Fear of Rejection

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

A lot of the guys who aren't successful with women could easily be more successful with women, if they just weren't so afraid of rejection or weren't holding themselves back from opportunities to be with women.

The fear of rejection comes up when a guy wants to approach a woman that he finds attractive, or when he's talking to a woman and won't escalate to a phone number, kiss or sex because he is worried about getting rejected.

The fear also comes up when there's a girl that he already knows and likes (e.g. a girl that he has a crush on at work or university), where he will only ever talk to her, but never make a move because he's worried about being rejected or ruining the friendship.

So, what I'm going to do in this big post is provide you with different ways to overcome and eliminate your fear of rejection. Once you get rid of your fear of rejection with women, it not only allows you to get better results with women, but it also helps you in other areas of your life as well.

You will learn not to be so afraid to take a little bit of a risk, to take a chance and move forward in the direction that you want to move forward in, whatever that may be in life.

1. Understand That No Man is Compatible With Every Woman He Meets

[image: No man is compatible with every woman he meets]

When you meet women, you're never going to be compatible with every woman that you meet.

That not just because it's you; every person in the world experiences the same thing. Even a woman isn't going to be compatible with every guy in the world.

A lot of guys will look at her and say, "Nah, not interested" even if other guys find her beautiful or really like her as a person.

When you go out and talk to women, if you talk to five women and you're only compatible with one of them, that is called nature. That's just how nature works; no person is compatible with every person.

If you want to be more compatible with women, then you will need to improve your social and emotional compatibility. When you are more socially and emotionally compatible with women, you will find that three or four out of every five women you meet will feel compatible with you.

[image: Socially compatible]

Generally speaking, there are five categories of compatibility that decide whether or not a man and a woman are a good match. Those are:

1. Social.
2. Emotional.
3. Physical.

4. Spiritual.

5. Mental.

Social compatibility is about whether or not you're on the same sort of level, socially. You will get along with the same sort of crowd, you may have a similar fashion sense and like the same sorts of social activities (e.g. house parties, sports, BBQ get-togethers (a cook-out) with friends, etc).

Social compatibility is also about whether or not you'd get along well with her friends if she were to introduce you to them, or whether she'd feel proud to introduce you to her parents and family members.

[image: Socially and emotionally compatible]

Emotional compatibility is about how you make each other feel. If you interact with women and you're not very confident as a guy, then you're not going to be making them feel good emotions.

If you're doubting yourself around a woman, feeling nervous and looking a bit tense, then you're going to be making her feel uncomfortable, awkward and turned off by your lack of mental and emotional strength.

In many cases, if a woman senses that her presence is making you feel nervous or anxious, she will want to get away from the conversation or interaction as quickly as possible because she doesn't want to feel responsible for making you feel that way. However, if you are confident around women they will feel relaxed, attracted, happy and excited to be interacting with you.

When you interact with women and you both feel enjoyable emotions, have a good vibe going back and forth and the interaction just flows freely rather than being stilted or emotionally guarded, then you have great emotional compatibility with each other.

Physical compatibility is about your physical attraction or appreciation of each other. Some women have a type of guy that they really want.

For instance, some women will only sleep with tall black guys, some women only want a skinny Asian guy and some women want a model-looking white guy. There are those sorts of women out there and you need to accept that.

However, just because some women have a very specific type that they are looking for, it doesn't mean that all women think that way. The fact is that most women have an open type and are more interested in being socially, emotionally and mentally compatible with a guy.

They will happily forgo having a boyfriend or husband who looks like a male model, which 99% of the male population don't look like, to have the other things like social, emotional, mental and spiritual compatibility.

That doesn't mean that the woman is not physically attracted to her man, but that she simply doesn't place as much importance on a man's looks compared to how he makes her feel and the love and connection they share.

You will have seen endless evidence of that when you look at everyday couples, where the woman is very beautiful and the guy just looks average or even below average in looks.

Spiritual compatibility is about your outlook on life with regards to philosophy, religion, the universe and how you think about life and existence overall. This area of compatibility is not extremely important to all types of women.

Many women will adopt the spiritual outlook of their man and some women will be very strong minded about what they believe, but it really depends on the woman.

Mental compatibility is about your intelligence level and how that matches up. You might be more intelligent than her, she might be more intelligent than you or you may have an equal level of intelligence.

You might be a lot more intelligent than her and she may be very ditzy (silly, scatterbrained) and that might really work for you and her. It's about being able to get along with each other, understand each other and get each other.

So, when you're out there meeting new women, you shouldn't go out there expecting to be compatible with every woman that you meet. Thinking to yourself, "If I talk to her and it doesn't work out, then I've been rejected...I'm a loser...I can't do this" is the wrong way to be approaching the situation. You will not be compatible with every woman you meet because that's just how nature works.

When you understand that, you will also be able to look at women and see that they are not compatible with every guy they meet either. It's not just YOU who is experiencing a lack of compatibility with some of the women you meet. It's a human thing.

2. Know That Each Approach or Escalation Will Feel Easier Than the Last One

[image: Good guy approaching a hot woman]

An example to put this into perspective is to think back to when you first learnt how to swim as a boy. Getting into the shallow end of the pool is fairly easy to do, but diving into the deep end or diving off a diving board into the deep end, feels a lot scarier for most children.

The first time, you may be feeling fear and worrying about how it could go wrong, but when you finally jump in, you realize that it's fine.

[image: Approaching women at a bar]

After that, most children will then have the confidence to jump in the deep end again and feel happy and excited about it. However, some children will still be a bit scared and will need to do it a few more times before they start feeling comfortable and stop worrying about something going wrong. Eventually, it's just a simple, fun thing to do and the child will have little or no fear when jumping into the deep end of a pool.

Another way to help you understand that approaching and escalating with women will get easier and easier and that you won't always fear rejection, is to let you know that being good with women is a skill that you can develop.

If you think about the example of learning how to drive a car; that's a skill that you have to develop. Before learning how to drive, a young guy may look at a car and see people driving around and think, "Okay, that looks pretty simple, I can do that."

Yet, when he first gets in a car and attempts to drive it, he suddenly learns that there are many different things he has to focus on all at once.

He has to check his mirrors, put the car into gear, use the brake and accelerator (and clutch if the car is manual) and then abide by a huge collection of road rules that are mostly new to him. Initially, it feels a bit complicated for a lot of guys and maybe even a bit overwhelming, but he will push on because he's not worried about being "rejected" by the car.

He has seen other people driving, so he knows that it's possible. He knows that once he develops the skill he will be able to drive like everyone else. He doesn't give up because he knows that it's possible to develop the skill.

Another example is with guitars or other musical instruments. With a guitar for example, some guys will look at it and feel as though it would be a simple instrument to play.

He will have seen other people playing it and they just seem to be holding the guitar and strumming away to make the music happen. Yet, when he actually picks up a guitar, he then realizes that there are many things he needs to think about and do at the same time to produce nice sounding music.

If he gets some guidance from an expert or puts in a lot of practice on his own, he will eventually get to the point where he can play music. With any skill that you need to learn in life, it gets easier and easier the more that you learn and practice.

After a bit of learning a practice, you will be driving the car, playing music or picking up and having sex and relationships with women. If you can develop the skill, you will get the results you want.

When it comes to women, if you have been rejected in the past it doesn't mean that you will continue being rejected in future. You simply need to focus on developing the skills required to properly talk to, attract and pick up women. Once you develop the skill, you will get the result.

3. Understand the Difference Between a Woman Rejecting You and Testing You

[image: Passing her confidence tests to make her attracted]

It's funny because most of the rejections that you think you've experienced with women so far in life, are actually just a case of the woman testing you. Women rarely reject guys that they're interested in, let alone attracted to.

So, if you have experienced some "rejection" in the past from women, where you've been talking to a girl and everything seems to be going fine, but she then suddenly closes up and appears to be losing interest, then it was most-likely just a test.

If you made the mistake that most guys make, you would have begun to panic (in your head), started behaving nervously and showing signs of self-doubt, which would have then caused her to lose attraction for you.

From what seemed like a sure thing that you and her would have a sexual relationship, it suddenly vanishes and you are left wondering what the heck just happened.

In most cases, it's just a simple case of the woman testing you. She was testing to see how you would react, because she was trying to see how confident you really are.

Confidence turns a woman on, so if she tests you and you remain confident no matter what, she gets more turned on by you. For us guys, we can see a woman and decide within milliseconds about whether or not we'd have sex with her.

It's a case of looking at women and deciding yes or no about yes because we are visually stimulated. Yet, most women need to get turned on by a guy's confidence and personality before they will want to have sex with him.

I'm not saying that women can't look at a guy and say, "He's hot, I want to have sex with him" because women will look at very good looking guys and say, "Wow, he's sexy" or "Wow, he's handsome" and consider having sex with him.

However, that does not mean that women think the same way as men do. Men are more sexually attracted to a woman's appearance and women are more attracted to a man's confidence and how his personality makes her feel.

A quick bit of evidence to justify that statement is to think about porn and how men masturbate to it because men are visually stimulated. When a woman masturbates, she closes her eyes and imagines having sex with a confident guy or a number of confident guys, depending on what her fantasy is.

Yes, some women will look at porn, but the majority of women don't and they don't use it for masturbation like guys do.

A guy will look at a woman and instantly think "Yes" or "No" about whether he would have sex with her, based on her looks. Women think that way too, but they will instantly go from a "No" to a "Yes" when interacting with a guy who isn't good looking, if he is confident, masculine and charming.

A guy's confidence, masculinity and personality are much more important to a woman, which is why average and below average looking guys are able to have sex with and marry beautiful women.

If a below average looking guy is able to turn a woman on with his confidence, masculinity and personality, many women will not care that he doesn't look like a male model.

Women are excited when they meet a guy who knows how to turn her on in ways that will last a lifetime.

Attraction to a person's looks fades over time, especially if their behavior is unattractive to you. Women instinctively know this and would rather be with a guy who can turn them on in more meaningful ways, than just be with a guy who looks good, but lacks confidence or masculinity in his thinking, behavior, actions and overall vibe.

One of the ways that women attempt to get turned on by you is by testing your confidence.

Women will play hard to get or suddenly appear disinterested to see how you react.

She wants to see if you can remain confident and masculine. She wants to see if you have the social and emotional intelligence to recognize that she's testing you and then playfully and confidently mess with her (tease her, play with her) as a result of it.

For example: You're talking to a girl you like and she suddenly goes quiet and isn't adding much to the conversation. Instead of you doubting yourself and thinking, "Damnit! I'm losing her. She's losing interest in me..." smile at her in a confident way and say something like, "Look at you getting all shy now...you're going into your shell...do I make you nervous, do I?"

Saying that to her turns the test back on her. You've used your confidence, masculine and social and emotional intelligence to handle the situation.

You're smiling, including a sexual and flirtatious vibe, but you're also making her feel girly in response to your masculinity, which turns her on. Women love to be made to feel girly at times.

I'm definitely not saying that you should be trying to make her feel girly during every minute of the interaction.

Instead, I am saying to bring that vibe when she is testing you and it will be very powerful. She will feel a deep, irresistible attraction to your masculinity. The attraction she feels for you isn't something that she can turn off or control. It's a natural attraction that draws women to you like a magnet and is the type of attraction that will last a lifetime.

So, from now on don't confuse a woman's tests as rejection. Her sudden change in behavior is usually just a test to see how confident you really are, so she can feel even more attracted to you. It's actually a really cool thing about women that you should embrace and welcome.

When you notice that a woman is testing you and playing hard to get, you should feel excited about it because you now have a perfect opportunity to make her even more attracted to you by remaining confident and retaining your belief in yourself, rather than doubting yourself and starting to feel nervous because you think that you're losing the opportunity with her.

4. Be the One Who Rejects

[image: Make her fall in love by being a challenge]

One of the keys to success with women is to reject women who are not good enough for you.

When you're interacting with women, you will gain a lot of power and control if you can have a subtly judgemental vibe about you where you are judging her and deciding whether or not she's good enough for you. By being the one who rejects, it's not about outwardly saying, "I'm just deciding whether or not you're good enough for me" or anything like that.

Instead, it comes through via your body language, vibe and behavior.

An example of body language is in how you look at her, where you give her a judgemental look at times, rather than just being nice, friendly and agreeing with whatever she says or does.

Using this approach with women is important because if women get the sense that you're the sort of guy who will accept any half-decent woman who shows him a bit of interest, they will feel turned off by you.

A woman wants to feel special by attracting a guy who has standards, rather than a guy who will accept pretty much any woman.

By being the one who rejects, I'm not talking about ignoring women or pretending not to be interested. It's not about acting, pretending or any other sort of immature social behavior. If you ignore women and pretend not to be interested, they are not going to say, "Wow! He's not interested in us at all! I like him! I want to have sex with him."

What it's about is attracting women by being confident, masculine and creating a sexual vibe, while also having a subtly judgemental vibe about you.

[image: Combining charm and challenge]

It's about you judging her and deciding whether or not she is good enough for you.

If you are acting or pretending that you are judging her and deciding if she is good enough, she will be able to see through that by simply losing interest in you and watching as you become nervous or desperate to regain her interest.

If you are being genuine about it and actually have standards about what you will and will not accept in a woman, then you will sincerely judge women and only accept women who are good enough for you. When a woman gets that sense about you in addition to feeling attracted to your confidence and masculinity, she will feel the urge to impress you and win you over.

When you allow yourself to take on that position, you will stop worrying about being rejected.

You will be the one who is deciding and because of that, women will get the sense that you're a man who deserves their respect. Women feel special when they can attract a guy who has standards, but just make sure that you understand me clearly: I am not saying to ignore women and pretend not to be interested.

It's about attracting women with your confidence and masculinity and then creating a sexual vibe between you, so she is actually into you.

However, you are deciding whether or not she meets your standards. When you get good at attracting women with your confidence and masculinity, you will see that you can attract most of the women you meet. When that happens, it will make even more sense to you to be picky.

You will become the chooser and women will hope to not be rejected by you. They will hope to get a chance with such a confident, self-assured man as yourself.

5. Stop Fueling the Fear With Negative Fantasy

[image: The fear of going after what you want with women]

A lot of the guys who fear being rejected by women, feel paralyzed by painful thoughts about things potentially going wrong. In his mind, he is worried about the worse possible outcome happening to him and if it does happen, how it will make him lose even more confidence in himself around women.

For instance, if he approaches a woman to talk to her, he will imagine her saying, "Get away from me! Why are you talking to me?"

From all of my personal experience of approaching women and taking clients out to approach women, I've never seen a woman react that way to a confident, easy-going approach.

The fact is, if you come across a woman who reacts in that way, she is a weirdo! You do not need to worry about trying to impress a crazy woman like her. 99.9% of women do not react like a crazy woman and will instead be open to your approach.

Even though most women will respond well to being approached, many guys can't get over their fear of being horribly rejected by a mean or crazy woman. If he hasn't approached many women in his life, or if he has approached women, but done so incorrectly (i.e. in a nervous way, placing her above himself in terms of value, not creating a sexual vibe, etc) then he won't have much positive experience to base his theories about women upon.

So, what will he do? In many cases, he will look at the behavior of women on TV, in movies and in music videos as being a true representation of a woman's behavior and attitude towards men.

In music videos for example, you will see female pop singers acting very confident and they'll have model-looking men bowing at their feet. She's trying to portray an image of herself as being a confident, independent and powerful woman who can have any man she wants.

Yet, in most cases, when you watch the documentaries that go behind the scenes in a female celebrity's life or when she is interviewed by a great interviewer, you find out that she's a mess. She cries herself to sleep, she is insecure, she finds it difficult to keep a relationship together, she doesn't think she is pretty enough, she's actually very shy around guys she likes, etc.

If you watch movies, TV shows and music videos and see a man being slapped or having a drink tipped over his head for talking to a woman, you have to understand that it's not how 99.9% of women behave in real life. The writers and producers of TV shows and movies include shocking, humiliating and jaw-dropping scenes to impress the audience.

Additionally, since most young guys these days spend more time playing video games and less time going to the cinemas, many new movies are aimed at impressing a female audience.

So, when you see men acting like fools around women in movies and hoping to get a woman to like him for being so nice, just know that it's another stupid movie that is aimed at appeasing a female audience. It's not reality and it's not something you should try to learn from. It's just a movie.

Some guys fuel their fear of rejection by thinking about times when they've tried to approach women, get a girl's number or ask a woman out and have failed.

To justify his fear, a guy may say, "Well, I've tried in the past and it didn't work, so what's the point in trying? Women are just going to reject me. They don't like me...I've tried asking them out and they're all bloody stuck up or only want a male model."

Yet, where is that type of thinking going to get him with women? He won't be getting anywhere near a real woman and will have to resort to jerking off to porn every week for years.

His life will pass him by and he'll wake up 20 years down the road and feel a horrible, sickening feeling of regret for the many years he has wasted, hiding from an unnecessary fear.

A better way to think about success with women is to be realistic by understanding that you may have to talk to five more women before you find yourself a girlfriend or lover.

Maybe you will talk to one more woman and it will turn out that there's a spark between you and you and her begin a relationship. Maybe you have to talk to 10 more women or talk to 15 more women until you finally get used to being confident around women.

Maybe by the 15th approach, you stop doubting yourself around women and you actually start attracting women for once by being confident.

Instead of being too nice and hoping to get her to like you as a person, you stop with all that crap and just believe in yourself instead. With your confidence and self-belief, you are able to stand there and talk to her freely, joking around and expressing your sexual interest in her via your vibe, body language and things that you say.

An example of expressing your sexual interest in a woman by what you say is by looking at her, smiling and saying to her in a confident way, "You're sexy...I like you."

You say that at a moment where you and her are talking, flirting and having a bit of laugh together or if you're confident enough, you can just stop and look at her and hold eye contact for a few seconds with a smile and then say it at any moment you choose.

It might take 15 attempts to get to that point because maybe the first time you try to approach or escalate with a woman, you're crapping yourself. You're really afraid of being rejected, so you come across as nervous and unsure of yourself and as a result, she doesn't feel attracted to you.

Maybe the second time you approach a woman, you walk over and then quickly run out of things to say, so you then learn more about conversation and begin to know what to say to women to keep things interesting.

The third time you walk over and talk to some women, it just so happens that the woman you like is trying to impress her friends by playing hard to get with you, even though she likes you.

Yet, you don't realize that and instead assume she doesn't like you, so you lose confidence and appear nervous, which then turns her off. You then realize that you've got to believe in yourself and maintain that belief throughout the entire interaction.

So, you talk to some more women and you're able to attract a woman in the group, but you then start doubting yourself and getting all up in your head and find it difficult to focus on the conversation. Before you know it, you feel like you've run out of things to say, so you leave the interaction and feel like you've been rejected or have blown your opportunity with her.

You continue to experience ups and downs with your interactions with women, but it never gets past a conversation. Then finally, you get it right and it works.

You're confident, you know what to say and can keep a conversation going and keep it interesting and no matter how much the woman tests you or plays hard to get, you don't stop believing in yourself. You know that women are attracted to confidence and the more you can stand there and believe in yourself, the more she will be attracted to you.

Instead of fueling your fear of rejection with negative fantasies of what might go wrong, simply focus on getting to the point where you can actually pick women up.

Don't say to yourself, "I got rejected in the past...it has gone horribly wrong for me in the past, so it's going to continue go wrong. I'm never going to be able to get what I want with women."

Thinking in a negative way and encouraging yourself to feel fear is not the correct way to make progress. Fueling the fear will simply keep you hidden away from achieving the simple goals that you have with women. Success with women is simple once you get rid of the negativity and just focus on moving forward and getting the results you want.

6. Don't Need Anything From the Situation

[image: Charismatic charm]

If you fear rejection, a lot it has to do with the mindset of needing the woman. A guy will think, "If I talk to this girl, I've got to get her. If I don't get her, then I've stuffed up...I'm going to miss out...I'm not going to be able to have any girl. This is my chance to get a girl."

Approaching a woman to talk to her or attracting a woman that you already know is not your only chance to get a girl. It's simply one chance out of millions.

If you feel as though you have to get her, you need to get her and if you don't get her your life is a mess, you're a loser or you're doomed for life – then you're most-likely going to fear being rejected by her.

To avoid the unnecessary fear of rejection, simply feel attracted to her like you feel attracted to other women, rather than seeing her as the only woman you're attracted to. No doubt you go through life and find women attractive all the time. There isn't just one girl in the world that you're attracted to; you're attracted to women everywhere.

So, talk to a woman and want her, but don't need her.

For instance, maybe you want to have sex with her, experience love with her or have a relationship with her. That's great, but you don't need her and only her. She's just one woman out of millions that would be perfect for you.

The irony is that she is going to like you and want you more if she gets the sense that you would be happy with or without her. If she feels as though you need her for your happiness or to feel validated as a man, then it will turn her off at a deep level.

When talking to a woman, you have to be happy with or without the result of a phone number, kiss or sex.

If you are making her feel attracted to you (i.e. by being confident, masculine and creating a sexual vibe) and she gets the sense that you want her, but don't need her, what do you think she will she do? She will try to show her interest in you to make it known that she likes you and is interested.

What happens to her as a result of feeling that way and trying to get you interested? She likes you even more and becomes committed to the idea of being with you.

Instead of her thinking, "Yawn...okay, should I give this guy a chance with me?" like she feels with 99% of guys, with you she is thinking, "Wow, I like this...there's something about him. I want this guy. I've got to get him to like me back."

From that, you get to choose her rather than hoping to be chosen. That's a pretty cool position to be in as a guy and all it takes is a simple switch of your mindset by wanting her, but not needing her.

When you genuinely use this approach, it eliminates the fear of rejection because it is you who is deciding whether or not you like her.

You know that you don't need that particular woman. You know that you can talk to other women and feel just as attracted and interested in them.

You also know that if you allow yourself to be the chooser, then women will want to impress you and get chosen by you, as long as you are making them feel a sufficient amount of attraction via your confidence and masculinity.

On the other hand, if you are needy of women, you will be more-likely to fear being rejected and losing your opportunity with a specific woman.

For example: You finally work up the courage to approach a woman that you find attractive. This is your big chance to get a girl. You feel like everything is riding on this approach. If you don't get her, then you're a failure and women don't like you.

No.

She is just one girl out of millions who would be perfect for you. There are hundreds of millions of women that you would happily have sex with. She is not the only girl for you and if you don't get her, your life is not ruined.

You can think in a negative, needy way if you want to. Yet, how are you going to feel as a result of thinking like that? You're going to be fearing rejection, you're going to be too worried about messing up and not succeeding with her.

She will pick up on that by observing your body language, listening to how you're talking to her and sensing your underlying vibe of insecurity and neediness and it will turn her off.

So, instead of putting yourself in that unnecessary position with a woman, just know that if you talk to a woman and want her, but don't need her, she will pick up on that and want you more as a result. I'm not talking about you acting or pretending in any way. Don't act like you don't want her at all. You do want her, but you don't need her.

She will pick up on that via your body language, how you're talking to her, your vibe and how you respond to her behavior or tests.

For example: If you're talking to a woman who feels attracted to you, but she gets the sense that you want her, but don't need her, she will often test you by talking to and even flirting with other guys in the group or by suddenly pulling back her interest and acting disinterested in you.

If you then start to panic and appear nervous and uneasy about "losing her," she has successfully caught you out in an act.

To get this done correctly, you cannot act or pretend. Instead, you have to know that she's not the only girl in the world for you. If you look at her as being your "chance" with women or being "the one" for you, then you're going to be too worried about succeeding with her, which is actually a turn off to women.

It's absolutely fine to want to succeed with her, it's fine to want to pick her up, it's fine to want to have sex with her, but you don't need it. That's the difference that will help you get rid of your fear of rejection and more easily attract women.

7. Know That it's Not Always Your Fault

[image: Group of cold women]

No matter how good you become with women (e.g. you're confident, you're a great conversationalist, you know how to flirt and make women feel sexual attraction for you, you're a cool guy, you dress well, you've got a positive outlook on life, you're moving forward in life, you've got purpose in life and are an all-round awesome guy), it doesn't mean that every interaction will go smoothly and end up with you getting a phone number, kiss or sex.

Why? Some women are bad communicators and don't know what to say during a conversation with a guy they like.

Some women are weird, some women have a crappy vibe about them and a negative outlook on life. Sometimes, a woman will like you, but will also be trying to impress her friends by playing hard to get and she will go too far with it to the point where you lose interest in her.

Sometimes, a woman will get nervous and start doubting herself around you and want to get away from the interaction.

She will really like you, but will be doubting herself and just get away from the interaction and hope that you chase after her. You realize these sorts of things when you become a really confident guy and see that most people are fairly insecure, nervous and self-doubting when interacting with the opposite sex or in social situations in general.

So, instead of feeling a fear of rejection and thinking, "Hhh...what if I talk to a girl and it doesn't work?" or "What if I try to make a move and it doesn't work?" just know that you are doing the right thing. You are attracted to a girl, you're wanting to move it forward and you're being the man about it by making a move. If she doesn't vibe well with you or you and her aren't compatible enough, that's not necessarily your fault.

Sometimes it's her fault, sometimes it's a lack of compatibility, but don't put all the blame on yourself, feel down about it and then fear being rejected by other women.

An interaction doesn't always go smoothly from one step to the next and you should accept that in advance. When you are really good with women, you will be able to push through any awkwardness and manoeuvre around any mistakes she is making (e.g. she's playing too hard to get) to get to a phone number, kiss or sex with most women.

However, if you're not very skilled at approaching and picking up women yet, just know that it's not always your fault that an interaction died or fizzled out.

Simply go talk to some other women, or put your confidence and skills with women to the test by seeing how far you can push the interaction. Staying in an interaction and trying to deal with it is of the best ways to improve your confidence and skills with women and become better with women as a result.

Instead of saying to yourself, "I'm losing her! I'm feeling nervous now...I've got to get out of here" say to yourself, "No...I'm going to stay in here. I'm going to face this and see how far I can take it."

Doing so makes you a lot stronger as a man and it also often ends up turning into something like kissing, sex and a relationship because the awkwardness is sometimes created by the woman, so you just have to be strong enough to push through it.

8. Know That Everything Will Be Okay

[image: Happy couples]

A lot of guys really stuck on their fear of rejection and get used to hiding away in fear.

The potential of being rejected becomes more overwhelming and powerful to them than actually going out there and getting the result that they want with women. He doesn't understand that no man is compatible with every woman he meets and that he will be perfectly compatible with millions of women, not just one woman.

In many cases, he also doesn't know that the "one true love" myth is actually a myth that began back in a time where premarital sex was forbidden. Back then, most people only had one and sometimes two sexual partners in life before getting married.

So, the whole idea about "the one that got away" came about and then Hollywood movies began to entrench the idea with an endless supply of movies about "the one," the one that got away, soulmates all other fanciful ideas.

It's fine if you want to believe in that stuff. You can believe in whatever you want. If you want to believe that there is only one "soulmate" for you out there that is fine, but it's not going to help you with the fear of rejection.

What's going to help you with the fear of rejection is to understand that there are millions of women who are perfect for you.

There are millions of women who would blow your mind with the amount of love that they give you.

There are millions, possibly billions of women that you are sexually attracted to.

There are millions of women that you could have an amazing relationship with. With that in mind, let me ask you: If you had a relationship with one of these millions of women and she really loved you and you really loved her and you had a great connection and relationship, would you say that she is your one and only soulmate?

Possibly, if you wanted to put that sort of label on it. However, how about instead of having a relationship with number 257,000 out of the millions of women that you could choose from, you had a relationship with woman number 435,026. The relationship with her was amazing and the love was deep, real and lasted for life. Would she be your one and only soulmate?

If you wanted to put that sort of label on it, you could. It's up to you how you decide to look life.

You can look at women and at love as being scarce and hard to find, or you can see the abundance of women and love around you. We're all here on a planet that is floating in what appears to be an infinite space.

There are billions of us humans here on the planet and everything is going to be okay if you decide to approach one of the millions of women that you find attractive.

You're not going to die, be killed or be ruined forever and all eternity because you walked over and talked to a woman and weren't compatible with her. Big frikken deal. You talked to a girl, you liked her and you attempted to escalate, but she wasn't that interested. Big frikken deal.

It's just a conversation and an interaction between two humans that happened to meet. Really, you don't need to worry about not "getting her." It's not a big deal at all.

Yet, to some guys, talking to a woman seems like a really big deal to them.

A guy might say, "What if everyone at school finds out?" or "What if everyone at work finds out?" or "I live in a small town...what if they find out?" or "What if I talk to a girl and it gets back to people that I know that I talked to her and it didn't work out?"

If you are approaching your interactions with women correctly, then most women that you talk to will at least feel attracted to you as a result of your confidence, masculinity and the sexual vibe that you create.

So, there is nothing to worry about.

If you happen to meet a woman that you're not compatible with, that is fine as well. In fact, it's nature. No human is romantically compatible with every human on the planet and that is okay.

Talking to a woman and checking to see if you and her are a compatible match is nothing to be embarrassed or ashamed about. It's just normal and you should feel proud that you're being a man about it and approaching or making a move. You're not hiding away in fear, you are taking action and being a confident man.

Billions of humans interact with each other every day on the planet and they don't all end up giving each other their phone number and then having sex and a relationship, do they? No. It's just normal and natural that interactions and they don't always lead to kissing, sex and a relationship. So, don't put so much pressure on yourself.

Know that everything will be okay. You'll be alright. If you talk to a particular woman, it might seem very important to you in that moment. You might feel as though you have to get her because you're attracted to her, you like her and she is actually talking back to you and seems interested.

Yet, she is one of millions that you would have an amazing relationship with.

If you're the sort of guy who knows how to make women feel attracted and isn't afraid to talk to women (because you know they will feel attracted to you, so you know that it will be fine), then you're not going to be worried about getting one particular girl.

If the interaction doesn't work out, you will talk to other women that you're just as attracted to or even more attracted to and you're not going to worry about the girl you met where it didn't work out.

If you just focus on one girl and think, "I've got to get her. My whole life is about her. She is my soulmate. She is the one. I've got to get her. It's me and her in the universe and no-one else matters – just me and her" then you're going to cause yourself all sorts of unnecessary trouble.

You will be fearing rejection and will be worrying about messing up your one opportunity with a girl. When she senses your neediness for her, she will much more likely to reject you.

So, know that everything will be okay whether you get one particular girl or not. Yes, she might be beautiful and also be a nice, easy-going, intelligent girl, but she's not the only woman like that.

Those women are everywhere and when you can learn how to be confident around women, you will find that types of women who were previously cold and bitchy towards you, suddenly open up and be friendly and easy-going with you. You will then realize how much choice with women you really have.

9. Get Excited About Feeling Nervous

[image: Flirting touch]

This one is really cool.

One way to get past the overwhelming, immobilizing feelings of nervousness and fear is to feel excited about it.

For example, think about guys who are thrill seekers (e.g. base jumpers, skydivers, etc). They are risk takers who are afraid, but excited about it at the same time. They are excited about facing that feeling of fear and then getting the rush from actually doing following through and doing what they want to do.

The same applies to approaching and escalating to kissing and sex with women. It's actually really exciting to get out there and approach women, or to suddenly start talking in a confident, sexual way with a woman that you've had a crush on for a while.

With the woman that you've got a crush on for example, you stop looking at her as an innocent friend and instead start to appreciate her sexiness by looking at her with a smile and a look in your eyes as though you're almost going to eat her. She's delicious to you and you're not afraid to show her that.

Suddenly, you have the confidence to smile and confidently say, "You're sexy...I like you" to her. It's actually really exciting to do that. You feel so much more alive as a man.

Compare that to hiding away and being afraid of getting rejected. Some guys will hide from what they want with women and try to justify their fear by saying, "What if I go over and talk to her and it doesn't work out?" or "What if I try to make a move and it doesn't work out?"

What sort of life is that to live? If you think like that around women, what does that say about you as a man? Here's the thing: You are better than that. You do not have to be afraid.

When you stop being afraid and start embracing the feeling of being nervous and having those “butterflies” in your stomach or the “tingles” or whatever you call them, that is when life starts to get really interesting.

When you’re living at the edge of your comfort zone with women, you are growing and you’re going places in life. Yet, when you’re hiding from stepping outside of your comfort zone with women, you’re not going anywhere.

You’re stagnating and are potentially jerking off to porn too much. Hiding from women is not going to get you results with women. Holding back your interest in women and being afraid to show your sexual interest is not going to get you results with women.

One of the things that you can say to yourself when you feel nervous if you see a woman that you want to approach, or if you’re talking to a girl you like and are afraid to be confident around her, make a move or be a bit more sexual and flirtatious is, “Cool! I’m feeling nervous! This is awesome. Once I do this and get past it, I’m going to be able to do even bigger things than this. I’m going to be even stronger than I am now.”

That is a much more forward moving, exciting, alpha male approach to life. Instead of being shut down by the fear and losing your opportunity with her, simply get excited about the fact that you’re living at the edge of your comfort zone. Embrace it.

Important: When you say something to yourself like, “Cool! I’m feeling nervous. I’m at the edge of my comfort zone” I’m not talking about thinking about it or saying it in a nervous, tense and worried way.

I’m not talking about you feeling nervous about the nervousness or feeling the fear and trying to convince yourself not to be afraid.

What I’m talking about is you feeling excited about the nervousness.

Be excited and think to yourself, “Cool! I’m feeling nervous. This means that I’m at the edge of my comfort zone with women. When I do this and I’m able to handle this type of situation, I will then be able to do bigger and better things after it. I am growing as a man. Things are happening for me. I’m moving forward!” and actually feel excited about it.

Don’t feel nervous about the nervous, fearful feelings you experience. Feel excited and know that you will make huge progress when you push yourself to get past it.

10. Know That it Will Be Worth it

[image: It is possible to be happy and successful in life]

It only takes that one, special girl to make all of your previous “rejections” worth it.

When you’re talking with her and you’re laughing, hugging each other, touching each other, kissing, having sex, she’s giggling, she’s looking at you with those loving eyes and you then wake up in the morning and she’s next to you, you’re hanging out, having a great relationship and experiencing love – all of the times when you’d met women who weren’t compatible with you become meaningless and irrelevant.

You don’t really care about the times that you approached women and it didn’t work out; they become irrelevant because what you have with her is what you’ve been after all along. That’s the thing that you were aiming to achieve and you did it. The feelings you are experiencing with her now are more than worth it.

If you can just use the alpha male approach of knowing that it's good to go after what you want.

Going after what you want is nothing to be afraid of. There's nothing to fear about the fact that you will meet women and find some who are fairly compatible with you, slightly compatible and then some are incredibly compatible with you.

When you can accept that in advance, you will push forward until you find a some of the millions of women who are incredibly compatible with you. It will be amazing for both of you.

She's going to be looking to you with excitement, lust and irresistible feelings of love. She's going to be totally into you and want to be with you. When you're having sex with her, she's going to love it. When you're in a relationship, she's going to be looking at you with loving eyes.

That is worth it.

Getting to that point is much more enjoyable than succumbing to the fear and hiding yourself away thinking, "What if I get rejected? What if I talk to her and she doesn't like me?"

You can live that sort of fearful life if you want to, but it's not going to get anywhere. Hiding yourself away because you're too afraid to meet compatible women isn't going to make you grow as a man, but being man enough to take a chance and push yourself outside of your comfort zone will.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

18 Tips For Getting Laid From Bars and Nightclubs

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

I'm going to give you 18 different tips to help you get laid when you're out there meeting women in bars and nightclubs.

As you may know about me, I've had sex with a lot of women.

At this point, I've had sex with more than 250 women and about 65% of those women I've pulled from bars and nightclubs. Always wear a condom and you won't experience any problems. It's a great invention. Be sure to use it.

I've had a lot of fun out there, living the lifestyle and pulling lots of beautiful women back home for sex.

The girlfriend I have now is a sexy, 22 year old girl that I also pulled from a nightclub (I'm 37 years old). (Update: Her and I are now married and have twin girls).

Getting laid from bars and nightclubs was very simple for me once I figured out how it works.

So, in this post, I'm going to share some great tips with you to help you get laid and make the process so much easier for you as well.

1. Know that one night stands happen...a lot

Depending on which studies you look at, anywhere from 60-70% of women admit to having experienced a one night stand before.

When asked those sorts of questions in person, many women lie to make themselves look more innocent than they really are, so the actual percentage is most-likely higher than 60-70%.

From personal experience, pretty much every woman that I've had a one night stand with has said, "I never do this" or "This is the first time I've done this."

Women say that because they don't want to look slutty in your eyes.

She wants you to be able to trust her if you have a relationship with her, rather than you thinking that she has no self control and may cheat on you if she gets the chance.

Even if she's had several one night stands before, a woman will almost always say that it's her first time and that she "never does this."

I know that when I talk about these sorts of statistics (70% of women admit to having had a one night stand), some guys think, "Man...women these days are such sluts...bloody hell, the whole world has gone to the dogs...it's all ruined. Why can't it be like it was back in the early 1900s when women just had one man and stuck with him for life?"

Some guys wish that things would change and be like they used to be back in the early 1900s, where premarital sex was forbidden.

Back then, a man had to court a woman and then eventually ask her father for her hand in marriage.

The couple then lost their virginity on their wedding night.

Yet, whether we like it or not, that's just not the way it works anymore in almost all countries around the world.

The world has changed and culture always changes throughout the ages.

If you look back through human history, certain cultures always think they've got it all worked out and then 50 years later the culture changes (e.g. the Samurais in Japan, the posh gentleman of England).

Culture always changes.

So, clinging onto the past and wishing that it was 1800 isn't the answer.

Go with the flow of the modern world and you will enjoy modern life and all it has to offer.

It's not just us men who are enjoying it, by the way.

Since women are now earning their own money and don't have to quickly settle down and find a man to marry, many women are enjoying their sexual freedom as well.

They know that it's okay to have sex whenever they want, as long as most of the people they know don't find out about it.

Many of the one night stands a woman has will remain her little secret and she won't always tell her friends what she's been up to behind closed doors.

[image: No sex before marriage vs. have sex whenever you want]

Some guys may wish that women would behave like they did back in the early 1900s, but times have changed. Culture always changes over time and you either adapt or get left behind.

The way it works these days is that women go out there and hook up with guys to find themselves a boyfriend, a husband or to just have some fun.

So, when you're out there picking up women and getting laid in bars and nightclubs, don't think that the women in the club aren't the sorts of women that you can't marry.

They are pretty much just the same as any other type of woman you will meet anywhere else.

Most of the women you meet in nightclubs are the innocent looking women that you see during the day.

Just because she looks innocent and works as an accountant, it doesn't mean she's never had a one night stand.

Example: I met my wife in a nightclub. She worked as a hairdresser during the day. We've been together for over 6 years now and she's the mother of my twin daughters. She's the most loyal, committed woman I've ever been with.

Just because a woman is in a nightclub, it doesn't mean that she has no family values and wouldn't be a trustworthy woman.

Most of the time, good, trustworthy women put themselves out there in the hope that they can find a boyfriend or husband.

Secretly, they hope that they will find the right guy so they don't have to sleep around and can get on with enjoying a committed relationship that lasts for life.

Today, many couples are still too embarrassed to admit that they met at a bar or nightclub, because they are still coming to terms with the fact that the culture has changed.

Many people still think it is "wrong" or embarrassing to have met in a bar or club, but it's no different to meeting online or in person.

Sex happens and then the relationship begins.

It's pretty simple.

So, just know in advance that one night stands happen a lot and many of them start from meeting in a nightclub.

The women that you meet in bars and clubs will usually behave as though they are innocent angels who've never had sex, but most of them are open to having sex with you and seeing where it goes.

If you start a relationship, great, but if not that isn't a problem either.

In those cases, she will usually just tell her friends, "Nothing happened. I ended up going home alone" and she won't ever speak of it again.

Another interesting statistic about sex is that 55% of couples admit to having had sex on their first date.

Many modern men make the mistake of going through the dating process thinking that they need to date a woman 3-4 times before she will like him enough to have sex.

Yet, statistically speaking, most women that you meet are open to having sex on either the first night, first date or second date.

Any longer than that and some women will feel as though the guy is lacking confidence, or doesn't find her sexy enough to make a move.

She will often just assume that there isn't a sexual spark and they are more like friends, so it wouldn't work.

So, when you go out to bars and nightclubs, walk into the nightclub knowing that pretty much every woman that you're looking at in the club has had a one night stand before.

It's just the way the way it is.

Some guys are turned off by that and think, "Women these days...you get them and they've been used and abused for years and then they finally get with you" and have a negative mindset about it.

They see it as disgusting and wish that women would remain a virgin until marriage.

A man can look at it any way he wants, but the fact is that it is happening.

Women are hooking up with guys, they are open to having one night stands and if you want to "get your end in" and have a good time, then just accept that one night stands happen.

Accept that you are going to walk into a bar or nightclub and you are going to get a one night stand too.

2. Smile a lot

When it comes to getting laid from bars and nightclubs, it's important to be confident and be in a good mood.

One of the best ways to do that is to smile a lot (i.e. in a confident, relaxed, easy-going manner, not in an eager, "Hey, look at me! I'm happy! Please like me!" kind of way).

If you're not a very confident guy or don't have a high level of skill with women, then make sure that you do whatever you can to feel confident and be in a good mood so that you can approach women without hesitating or feeling tense.

Some guys make the mistake of being a bit of a poser and putting on act of being cool, aloof and alpha.

If you're a very confident guy, then it's fine to do that – you will still get laid anyway, but if you're not that good with women, posing and trying to look aloof or indifferent to the crowd isn't going to help you.

If anything, it will just cause you to “get all up in your head,” feel insecure or feel like an outsider.

When you're walking into a club or bar, smile and then start talking to some women, “Hey, I just got here and thought I'd come over and say hi. I'm Dan, what's your name?”

Get right in there, smile and feel good about approaching and meeting women.

Smiling allows you to get into the right sort of mood, rather than feeling as though you're not ready to approach yet or that you're “not in state” to approach.

Keep smiling throughout the night too (at times and in an easy-going, relaxed manner).

Have a good time at the bar or club.

When women can see that you're happy and in a good mood, you're much more approachable.

You may get approached at times, but at the very least women will feel more comfortable to smile back at you, if you happen to catch eye contact with each other throughout the night.

An interesting example to give you some more perspective on why the smile is important is to look at a couple of champions from the UFC, named TJ Dillashaw and Jon “Bones” Jones.

Those guys are great examples of elite athletes who use their body to positively affect their mind.

Before the fight, they are smiling and feeling pumped up as though they have already won the fight.

[image: Jon Jones and TJ Dillashaw]

It's not an accident that these intelligent, elite athletes use their body to affect their mind before a fight. Behaving like they have already won is a deliberate technique that helps get them in the right frame of mind.

If you watch the UFC, you will see some fighters appearing very tense before a fight and trying to convince themselves to relax and feel confident.

Yet, Jon Jones and TJ Dillashaw walk up to the octagon as though they have already won the fight.

When Bruce Buffer was introducing TJ Dillashaw in his epic fight against Renan Barao for example, Dillashaw was behaving as though he would if he had just won the fight.

He was pumped and saying, “Yes!!!! Yeahhh!!!” as though he had already won.

He then fought one of the most amazing fights in UFC history.

The same with Jones, who walks out to the octagon smiling and raising his arms in the air as though he is the champion and has already won the fight.

Those guys are not doing that by accident or for no reason at all.

Behaving as though they have already won is a deliberate technique to get themselves in the right frame of mind before the fight.

You can use the same technique (Use Your Body to Positively Affect Your Mind) when you are approaching and picking up women, by smiling to get yourself in a good mood and continuing to smile to maintain that mood.

If you already have a high level of confidence and skill with women, you can pick up women and get laid without smiling a lot or at all, but if you're a guy who lacks confidence and isn't very good at getting laid from bars and clubs, smiling is a great technique to use throughout the night.

Instead of walking into a bar or club and thinking to yourself, "Do I fit in here? How do I look? These people look like they're in their own groups...not very approachable..." walk in like it's your party, like it's your sort of scene and as though you fit in perfectly.

Feel like, "Wow, this place is great. This place is perfect for me" and smile about it. Walk up to some women, SMILE and say, "Hey, what's happening...I thought I just come over and say hi...I'm Dan...you girls are looking fantastic...how's the night going?"

Smile, feel good about yourself and allow others to feel good in your presence.

It helps you to get into the right sort of mood and maintain it, rather than feeling overwhelmed by all the different people in the club who aren't smiling at you and welcoming you into their groups.

You have to manage your own emotional state and feel good with or without people, rather than hoping that other people make an effort to make you feel good about yourself.

Your emotional state is up to you.

When Jon Jones walks out smiling, dancing and feeling like he's already won, he doesn't give a crap about what others think.

He's there to win and he knows that using his body in that way gives him an advantage.

When you're out there in a bar or club, don't worry what others are thinking.

Know that smiling and feeling good about yourself gives you an advantage over other guys.

Women find you more attractive and approachable because you're confident and in a good mood.

3. Approach immediately

If you have a high level of confidence and skill with women, you don't have to approach immediately and can approach whenever you want to.

However, if you're a guy who suffers from approach anxiety, don't walk into a club and think, "Okay, I'm going to get a drink first...I'm going to go to the toilet...I'm going to look around first."

You don't want to give yourself a chance to start feeling insecure or feeling like an outsider in the bar or club.

Approach the first decent woman that you see, even if that woman is the female hostess who is greeting patrons as they come in.

You can approach and talk to her to get started by smiling and saying something like, "Hey, what's happening? This looks like it's a good night tonight...how have you been going tonight? You working hard?"

If there is no female hostess to greet you, then walk in and talk to the first decent looking women you see.

It's not about picking those women up, but about getting the vibe going for yourself and being social.

Walk right up to some women and say, "Hey, I just got here and thought I'd come over and say hi...I'm Dan, what's your names?"

As long as you do that in a confident, easy-going way, women will respond well to you. However, if you do it in a nervous, self-doubting way, women won't be very interested in talking to you.

4. Look for women who are open

Whilst in the process of approaching immediately (i.e. within the first 1-10 seconds of walking into the club), try to look for women who are the most open to being approached by guys.

Two examples are:

1. Women who are standing around, facing themselves out to the crowd and not really talking to each other are very open to be approached.
2. Women who are having a casual conversation and regularly looking around the bar or club are fairly open to being approached.

Yet, women who are locked in an eye-to-eye, serious conversation and have their backs turned away from the crowd are less open to being approached, so avoid them if you can, until they open up.

If you have a high level of confidence and skill with women, you can approach women whenever you want and push through any initial awkwardness.

However, if you don't have a lot of skill with women and find it difficult to get laid from bars, nightclubs or anywhere else for that matter, make sure that you make it easy for yourself by approaching those women who are most open to being approached.

5. Show sexual interest immediately

This isn't about being a sleazy guy and getting a bad reaction from women.

It's about showing your sexual interest in a woman and not being ashamed of that.

If you want to get laid that night, it's better to find the women who enjoying that type of approach and are open to being sexual with you.

If you show sexual interest in a woman and she doesn't like it, then you know that she probably isn't going to have sex with you or anyone else that night.

Personally speaking, I cannot remember a woman not liking it when I've shown sexual interest in her in a confident, discreet, mature manner.

One of the reasons why is that most women are insecure about their appearance, especially when around other women who have dolled themselves up.

Another reason why is that most women rarely get shown sexual interest by a confident guy who does it in an easy-going, discreet and mature manner (i.e. not in a sleazy way).

Instead, they usually only get drunk guys saying, "Heyyyyyy!" or, "Woah! Gimme your number" or, "Heyyyy, where you goin'? Come here!"

Those approaches are not mature, discreet, easy-going ways of showing sexual interest.

You've got to be more subtle about it.

If you do it right, she will like it and it will build up sexual tension between you and her that will draw her to you like a magnet.

By the way...

When you show your sexual interest in a woman, she will usually smile, love it, giggle and feel turned on feel lucky that she is in the presence of an alpha male who isn't afraid to show his sexual interest.

He's not ashamed of being a man, he's not a social reject or loser who doesn't understand that sex happens.

Instead, he's a guy who understands that women want sex just as much as men, but can't be as obvious about it.

A woman can't go around showing that she is very interested in sex or that she will have sex easily because most guys will then assume think that she is slutty and couldn't be trusted in a relationship. She's has to be a bit coy and pretend that she doesn't ever have sex, so that a guy will feel as though he's almost getting her to have sex for the first time.

This is why most women will remove photos with previous boyfriends from their social media accounts.

Most guys can't handle seeing their girlfriend with other guys in the past, but most women are different.

Most women actually feel more attracted to their boyfriend or husband when seeing that he has had other women in the past.

Of course, at some point in the relationship, she will start to get annoyed by it and wonder why he is keeping the photos, so she will then try to get him to take it down.

There's nothing wrong with the guy taking the photos down if he is honestly committed to her and isn't going to break up with her, but if she's just a fling, then he should never take the photos down for her.

Hopefully that helps you understand one of the differences between men and women and why women often behave like they've never had sex, when they meet a guy.

It's a strategy that women use to make men feel like they are getting her for the first time.

She's a fresh, ripe piece of unpicked fruit that he is going to access before anyone else.

Pretty much every woman I've had a one night stand with has said, "This is the first time I've ever done this" or "I never do this" or "I'm usually not like this".

In the early days, I would react to a woman saying that by adding in, "Women always say that" but I later realized that I didn't need to say anything.

Instead, the polite, classy and discreet thing to do is to just let the woman "save face" and maintain her identity as being an innocent little angel that you are seducing into having sex with you.

A simple way to show your sexual interest in a woman is to walk up to her, smile (in a confident, easy-going manner) and confidently say, "You're sexy...I like you" or smile at her and confidently say, "You're a sexy one...I like you."

Any variation of that is fine, as long as you tell her that she is sexy.

Don't say she is beautiful or pretty or well dressed, tell her that she is sexy.

Note: If you ask women in person or online if they like being called sexy or a guy starting a conversation with them and using the word sexy, they will almost always say no.

However, there is a huge difference between what most women SAY and what they actually DO in person and behind closed doors. Watch: Don't Listen to What Women SAY, Watch What They DO

Where a lot of guys go wrong is saying non-sexual things like, "You have nice hair" or "You have beautiful eyes" because they are too afraid to say what they are really thinking, or think that a woman would be shocked, offended or disgusted if a man showed his sexual interest in her.

What a lot of guys don't realize is that most women are insecure about their looks.

For example: There was a global survey conducted by Dove Cosmetics that found 96% of women don't consider themselves to be beautiful.

This means that almost every woman you meet has an insecurity about her looks and does not think she is beautiful.

She may behave as though she is the hottest woman in the world, but secretly she doesn't even feel as though she is very sexy or beautiful.

It may sound strange, but it's true.

A modern woman looks around at the billboards of photoshopped women who have been airbrushed to perfection and she knows that she doesn't look like that.

She knows that before she puts on her make up to go out, she looks like a completely different woman.

If you've ever banged a hot chick from a club and then seen her after she's taken off her make up, you will know that hot women can look completely different without make up.

[image: Brunette before and after make up]

[image: Blonde before and after make up]

[image: Brunette before and after make up]

[image: Dark blonde before and after make up]

[image: Blonde before and after make up]

When you meet a woman in a bar or nightclub who has done herself up with make up, she knows that she doesn't normally look that good.

This is why most women LIKE it when a guy shows his sexual interest and lets her know that he finds her sexy.

In fact, some women NEED you to show your sexual interest so she can then loosen up and feel good enough around you, instead of acting confident when she is secretly insecure about her looks.

Of course, if you ask women about this online, they will rarely admit it. They will say that any guy who thinks a woman needs him to tell her that she is sexy is delusional. Once again, watch Don't Listen to What Women SAY, Watch What They DO

The reality is that if a woman feels insecure about her looks and you don't let her know that you think she is sexy, she will often play hard to get to make you chase her more so she can feel confident.

You don't need to put her or yourself through that.

Just tell her that she is sexy and most of the games stop right there.

She knows that you like her and she is excited to be interacting with a guy who isn't afraid of her or afraid of being rejected.

He's just being real, loving and open with her, which is a huge breath of fresh air for women.

One of the things to keep in mind when showing your sexual interest in a woman when at a bar or nightclub, is to make sure that you're not ashamed of it.

Don't be thinking, "What if this goes wrong? What if she rejects me? What if she doesn't like it?"

If you think like that, you will come across as insecure and nervous in the subtleties of your body language, tonality and behavior.

If you want a lot of sex, you've got to be one of the confident guys who doesn't second guess himself.

When a confident guy like that interact with a woman that he finds attractive, he doesn't give a damn about whether or not his sexual interest will be well received or not.

Why?

He knows that when he honestly believes in himself, it comes through in the subtleties of his body language, tonality and behavior and automatically attracts women.

Of course, most women wouldn't admit that if you asked them, but just watch what happens when a woman interacts with a guy who honestly believes in himself and, as a result, has relaxed, easy-going confidence that never wavers.

So, a guy who understands what you are beginning to learn now (and can learn in full here) will look at a woman with utter belief in himself, rather than looking at her and hoping that she might like him.

He knows that a woman feels attraction to a man's confidence, so he's not worried about whether or not she is attracted to him because that part of the process is taken care of already.

When he shows his sexual interest in her, she feels even more attracted that he has the confidence to do that without worrying about being rejected.

The man and woman then create a private bubble that blocks out the world around them; a secret understanding between themselves that they are both sexually attracted and open to the idea of having sex.

You might have seen that when you've observed a confident guy talking to a woman and noticed that she is smiling "ear to ear" and is excited and turned on by him.

It's like the suddenly have a special connection and a secret understanding between them.

That is something that you can CREATE with almost every woman you meet if you can just be confident enough to show her your sexual interest in the right way.

To others watching on, it looks like you have some sort of magical power over women...and you do.

It's not something that most guys ever discover or know how to do.

When you know how to do it, the doors to endless sexy women literally open up before you.

Walk on in and enjoy the buffet.

By the way...

Women also know that if guy isn't afraid to show his sexual interest, it will be much more fun to have sex with him.

He won't be so worried about things in the bedroom and will be more confident, alpha and relaxed. He will say and do whatever he wants in the bedroom, which is the sort of guy that women dream of having sex with.

She also assumes that will believe in himself in a relationship and will probably have the confidence to do well in life as well.

All this from him being honestly confident and showing his sexual interest in her in the right way.

Most guys don't ever get to experience that power.

One of the reasons why is that some guys go through life thinking, "I have to be a woman's friend first, before she like me enough to have sex with me" or "I have to be a gentleman and show her that I respect women and don't expect sex" or "I have to show her that I'm a really nice guy and trustworthy" and other things that they think are important and essential before getting laid.

The way that it actually works, is that a woman is primarily interested in whether or not she is sexually attracted to you first and then anything else that is good about you (e.g. you're a good guy, have good manners, etc) is just a bonus.

However, the nice things about you are not the things that initially get her wet and wanting to have sex with you.

If you want to get laid from bars and nightclubs, make sure that you do the things that turn a woman on very quickly.

Then, anything else about you as a man that is good and noble is simply a bonus to her.

6. Don't confuse her tests as rejection

Pretty much every woman that you meet is going to test you to see how confident you are.

It doesn't mean that she is rejecting you.

Instead, it's just her way of verifying that you're a confident guy.

The number one thing that women are looking for in guys is confidence because it has so many benefits to her emotionally and also in life.

A guy's level of confidence says a lot about him, who he is and his potential to do well in life.

Confidence is just one of those things that women really want in a guy.

It may sound strange to guys that women are so attracted to confidence, but it's no stranger than how we men are so attracted to a woman's body parts.

"Oh, look at those legs" or "What a sexy butt!" or "Look at her cleavage!"

In reality, her legs are two, boney structures wrapped in bloody muscle and then covered over by skin.

What is so attractive about a combination of bone, blood, muscle and skin?

Attraction is weird, but it is what it is.

You have to accept that women are attracted to confidence and it's something that is very important to them.

It's no stranger than the things that we find attractive about women.

It is what it is.

Accept it.

Likewise, understand that women aren't attracted to insecurity and emotional weakness in a guy.

Why?

We live in a world that is challenging at the best of times, so women want to be with a guy who is strong, mentally and emotionally.

Women don't want to hook up with a guy who is going to hide behind her when life gets challenging, or cry on her shoulder when he isn't feeling very strong.

She doesn't want a guy who is going to be a burden for her.

Her instincts tell her to hook up with a confident man who can stand up and face the challenges of life and come out a winner.

So, when you're interacting with a woman who wants to have sex with you that night, be prepared for the tests because they will happen.

For instance, she may give you disapproving looks or not contribute much to the conversation to see if you panic and feel as though you are being rejected.

You may have been behaving like a really confident guy who wants her, but doesn't need her (i.e. you have your choice with women and don't need her, but you do like her and are interested), so she will then test that by saying something like, "Stand here and hold my drink while I go and dance."

If you then stand there looking nervous and worried about other guys dancing near her, then her test has worked and revealed your true level of mental and emotional strength.

A confident guy who could easily have other women and doesn't need her may laugh and say, "Put the drink on the table here...go and dance...I'll be here" rather than standing up next to the dance floor and holding her drink like a servant.

Note: If a guy is very confident and alpha, he can stand there and hold her drink and it won't make a difference.

Why? He knows that no matter what anyone says or does, he is still the alpha...and she knows it too.

Another common test that women will put a guy through in a bar or nightclub is to get him interested and then turn away and start talking to her friends for a couple of minutes, to see if you panic and feel left out.

What she is hoping to see is that you have the confidence and social intelligence to talk to her friends and not feel as though you're being rejected.

She is hoping that you don't feel left out and are able to stay in the interaction without worrying about a thing.

Depending on the girl, the level of testing is going to be different.

Some girls test more than others, but don't see those tests as her rejecting you.

She's just trying to determine how confident you really are.

Some women test guys a lot because they are trying to find a guy who is mentally and emotionally compatible with them.

She doesn't want to be with a guy who feels weaker than her emotionally.

She wants to feel girly around a guy because he's so confident and doesn't suppress his masculinity around her out of fear.

Guys who get laid are the guys who believe in themselves and they don't stop believing in themselves, no matter what happens.

Women find that type of confidence irresistibly attractive because it says a lot about what sort of life the guy would be living, how much other people would respect him, how much fun it would be to have sex with him and the potential that he has to do well in life.

7. Really enjoy what you talk about

Have you ever noticed that when a cool guy is talking to women, he enjoys himself by talking about whatever he feels like talking about?

He's not straining to keep a polite, emotionally guarded conversation going.

He's just saying whatever he wants to say and enjoying it.

When you're talking to a woman in bar or nightclub and looking to get laid, don't try to impress her with serious conversation.

The way that I talk to women is to talk about whatever the heck I want to talk about at the time.

So, say for example you decided to talk about the topic of holidays/vacations and said, "Hey, right now...if you could click your fingers and you would be anywhere in a dream holiday destination...just click and you're right there...where would it be?"

If she then says, "Hawaii" it's not about you then getting into a serious, formal conversation with her about Hawaii and why she likes it.

When it comes to getting laid in bars and nightclubs, you've got to be having a good time and connecting with women, but you've also got to be enjoying yourself and having fun for your own sake as well.

Some guys make the mistake of coming across as a nice, innocent guy who wants to talk to her about pleasant things all night.

That is not what gets you laid.

Have fun with women and enjoy yourself, rather than trying to get her to like you because you connect so well on various topics.

The more that you enjoy what you're talking about and have fun with it, the easier it is to escalate to kissing with women.

You're in a good mood and things flow more easily from one stage to the next.

In response to her saying, "Hawaii" you can then enjoy what you're talking about by getting involved in the feelings of talking about Hawaii.

Really feel the emotion of what you're saying and enjoy it.

"Awesome! I've never been there, but whenever I've imagined going to Hawaii I haven't thought about surfing because I think I'd be shit at that. Apparently surfing takes a lot of getting used to...I like the idea of those late night parties on the beach with the Hawaiian music and dancing. I love that sort of thing..."

By that point, she will have already begun to add to the conversation if you are saying it with feeling, or she will at least be nodding and smiling.

You can then ask, “How about you? Tell me something that you like about Hawaii. What is some ideal situation that you can picture yourself in there? Apart from you and me having sex on the beach...” or “...apart from you buying me drinks and trying to get me drunk so you can sleep with me. I know what you’re like...I can tell by the look in your eyes.”

The point is to enjoy whatever you’re talking about it, rather than trying to have a serious conversation with her.

A lot of guys want to have sex with women from bars and nightclubs, but feel turned off by the idea of approaching because it seems like a huge task to go and talk to the women and get to know them. Get rid of that mindset and instead just focus on having a good time and saying whatever you feel like saying.

You don’t have to get to know women well before having sex with them.

Just have a good time, escalate things to the next level, kiss her and then leave to have sex with her.

That’s basically how it works.

To understand what to say and do at each step to get to kissing and sex, read The Flow or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

8. Don’t doubt your attractiveness

It’s very important to women that you don’t your value to them.

She doesn’t want to feel like she is hooking up with a guy who doesn’t deserve her, who isn’t even in her league or who feels like she would be doing him a favor by hooking up with him.

She doesn’t want to feel that way.

She wants to feel like, “Wow...this guy is so confident...women like him...he can have other women, but he’s interested in me. I feel so lucky.”

That’s how she wants to feel.

She doesn’t want to feel like she does with pretty much every guy she meets, where the guy makes her feel as though she is more valuable than him and that he would be so lucky to get with her.

She wants to feel like she has a chance to score a guy who could have other women, but may choose her if she plays her cards right.

When I interact with a woman, I know that she is attracted to me.

Why?

I know that women are attracted to confidence, which I have plenty of.

I know that women are attracted to a guy’s masculinity, which comes through in how I think, behave and take action.

It also comes through in my vibe and body language.

When I’m coming across as a masculine guy, I know that it turns a woman on.

I know that women like it when you show them sexual interest; I know that it turns them on.

I know that women feel better around you when you show them sexual interest.

I don't doubt what's going on between me and the woman and because of that, I behave in a more confident way, which turns her on even more.

She feels excited about my confidence and feels like she would be lucky to have sex with me.

For some guys, it almost seems impossible to have that sort of power over women.

Yet, it is available to guys if they just learn how to think in a different way around women.

Instead of doubting your attractiveness, know that you are attractive to women and do not deviate from that belief...ever.

You are attractive to women because you are confident and masculine.

End of story.

No ifs or buts about it; you are an attractive man.

Most guys say, "To attract women, you have to be tall and good looking, or have big muscles" because they don't know what else to think.

Throughout my entire "career" of being awesome with women, I haven't had big muscles.

Yet, I have gotten laid every time that I've gone out to pick up women.

It wasn't always that easy for me for though.

As you may know if you know about me and my story, I used to go out and approach women and get rejected all the time because I didn't know what I was doing.

Women didn't like me because I lacked confidence in myself and was too afraid to show my sexual interest.

I doubted my attractiveness to women because I was comparing myself to other guys based on looks.

Yet, when I worked out the secrets that I teach here at The Modern Man, getting laid and getting a girlfriend has been a simple, guaranteed process for me.

When you know what you're doing around women, it's very simple.

You just go out and get laid.

You can't pick up every woman, but you go out and are always able to pull beautiful women back for sex and have an awesome time.

A big secret to my success with women is simply believing in my attractiveness to women.

Don't ever doubt your attractiveness to women.

The irony is that when you don't doubt your attractiveness to women, you are actually attractive to women because you're confident.

9. Give yourself permission to be the cool guy

A lot of guys will look around at other people in a bar or club and think, "They're all in their groups...women don't want to be approached because they already have plenty of people in their group to talk to...those guys seem really cool and are dressed really well...I don't fit in here."

With that sort of mindset, a guy will naturally feel nervous and look like a bit of an outsider in a bar or club.

He will wonder how he can get into the "cool crowd" and get women to like him.

What he doesn't realize is that being part of the cool crowd starts with giving himself permission to be the cool guy, by saying to himself, "I am the cool crowd."

You have to decide that you're a cool guy and then take action in life based on that belief about yourself.

Earlier in the article when I gave the example of walking into a bar or club, smiling and saying something like, "Hey, how's it going...I thought I'd come and say hi. I'm Dan...what your name?"

That's an example of me giving myself permission to be the cool guy.

I'm not waiting around for people to show me that I am accepted; I assume acceptance and just get right into it.

With that sort of confidence, women don't say, "Get away from us!" or "Why are you talking to us?" because they want to be cool too.

They want to be included in the cool crowd, so they will be nice to cool people to fit in and be accepted.

It's a natural, instinctive reaction that most humans have when they meet a confident, "cool" person.

10. Escalate all the time

When you're out to get laid, it's best to separate the women who are open to having sex that night, with the women who will want to go on a few dates first.

Some women will not have sex on the first night because they are shy in front of their friends, or are out with their coworkers and are worried about ruining their reputation at work.

When you escalate all the time, it's about constantly pushing things forward and testing the boundaries to see how a woman responds.

When you start to escalate with woman and she goes along with it, she becomes even more committed to the interaction and sex becomes an almost inevitable outcome.

If she doesn't want to have sex that night, you will usually be able to at least get a kiss from her and then have sex with her on the first date.

Remember: A study in the USA found that 55% of couples had sex on their first date.

Women don't go around admitting that sort of thing, but it's what really happens.

So, here are some escalation examples to help you get things moving along:

Example 1: Go for a shot or a drink at the bar

You can say something as simple as, "Hey, let's go grab a drink. I'm going over to the bar, come with me" or "Hey, I'm going to grab a drink from the bar...come with me...let's go grab a shot."

If she says, "I don't want to drink a shot" then say, "Alright, come to the bar, let's go grab a drink. What are you going to drink? Me and you are going to get a drink together – come on."

Just say it with confidence and belief in yourself and be the cool, easy-going guy that you are and most women will go with you.

If she says no, which some women will because they want to test your confidence (that's okay – it's almost never a rejection and is almost always just a test), simply smile and say, "What? Come on, let's go grab a drink" and reach out your hand and say, "Come here, give me your hand" and then lead her to the bar.

If she still continues to test you and smiles and says, "No, I want to stay here" you can smile and say playfully (important. Say it playfully) something like, "Come here, I want to talk to you" like a father would say to his little daughter.

Then, smile and say, "Let's go get a drink" and lead her to the bar with you.

Just be persistent because some women will feel shy to go with you, some will want to test your confidence and other will be trying to not look too easy in front of their friends or you.

Getting her to be alone with you is an example of escalating and it creates a more private connection between you and her.

She is showing her willingness to do things alone with you and to follow your masculine direction.

Some women will also be open to a bit of kissing while you're waiting to order drinks at the bar, or after the drinks have been served and paid for and you're standing there talking to each other.

Some women feel more comfortable kissing when their friends or coworkers can't see.

However, it really depends on the size of the bar or club and on the particular woman.

Some women don't care and will kiss you immediately after meeting you, whereas others will want to do it away from prying eyes.

It really depends.

At the very least, by going to the bar to order a drink together, you will have achieved an important step in the process of getting laid by getting her to feel comfortable and willing to be alone with you.

That is often enough for many women to then feel comfortable to do things like sit on your lap when you're back at the table with her friends, hug you, etc.

Always be escalating if you want to get laid.

Just keep moving things forward because any step forward is a step closer to sex that night, or at least a kiss and then sex on the first date.

Some guys will be wondering now about who pays for the drinks.

It's fine to get the first round and then ask her to get you a drink next time, if she doesn't automatically offer.

If a woman is attracted to you and likes you, she will usually buy you a drink for the second round.

Example 2: Use the Hug Technique

If it's her birthday, you can say, "Ohh, birthday hug! Come here – birthday hug. Happy birthday" and then give her a hug for her birthday.

This helps to break the physical barrier between you and her.

It also gets her and her friends smiling and laughing and feeling more comfortable around you.

Example 3: Dance the 10 Second Dance

If a song comes on and she says, "I love this song" you can add in, "This song is awesome...come here, let's do a 10 Second Dance...I can't be bothered dancing for half an hour, but let's dance for 10 seconds.”

Then, pull her close to you and dance with her for 10 seconds.

If she tries to go longer than 10 seconds, you can then jokingly say, “Hey, 10 seconds is up...if you want anymore dancing you’re going to have to buy me a drink first...I’m not that easy...you’re going to have to work for it baby.”

When it comes to getting laid in bars and nightclubs, quick escalations and testing the waters in these ways is important because you want to find the women who are actually interested in having sex that night.

Additionally, since a lot of women are open to having sex right away, they will show a guy signals of sexual interest and then get frustrated if he doesn’t pick up on them.

If she’s open to having sex that night, she doesn’t want to get stuck talking to a guy who won’t have sex with her because he can’t see her signals or will be too chicken to make a move.

Each woman shows her signals of interest in a different way.

An obvious sign of interest is when a woman looks at you in a girly way, while also playing with her necklace and biting her bottom lip.

However, not all women make it that obvious, so it’s important that you believe in your attractiveness and escalate all the time in case you are interacting with one of the women who don’t make it obvious because they want to test the guy’s confidence and masculinity.

That said, you will also be able to get laid by using a slower approach to the pick up by talking to her for hours and building up sexual tension with eye contact and bit of flirting.

I’ve used that approach before and gotten laid, but when I’ve used the approach of escalating all the time, I get laid quicker and easier.

Escalating all the time allows you to sort out the women who are open to having sex with the women who are going to require 1-3 dates first.

Escalating all the time also ensures that you don’t disappoint the women who want to know for sure that they are interacting with a guy who is actually going to hook up with them that night.

If you have been talking to her for 30 minutes, but haven’t made any sort of move on her or shown obvious sexual interest, a woman who is looking to get laid that night will usually lose interest and want to meet other guys instead.

11. Reframe the interaction as though it’s about her trying to win you over

A lot of guys fall into the trap of trying too hard to pick a woman up.

When a woman senses that a guy is trying to pick her up, she may then feel as though she has to play hard to get so she doesn’t look too easy.

When she starts pulling back and playing hard to get, the guy will then feel as though he is being rejected and losing her, which will cause him to appear nervous or self-doubting, which will then turn her off.

So, before a woman begins down that path and ends up saying something like, “Hey, by the way – we're not having sex tonight" make sure that you reframe the interaction first.

One of the ways you can do it is by reframing her saying that she is going to the bathroom as meaning that she wants to have sex with you in the bathroom.

Here are some examples:

Example 1

Her: I'm going to go to the bathroom.

You: [Smile and say in a playful, but almost shocked way] Wow, you're very forward. We've only been talking for 5 minutes and you already want me to go to the bathroom with you? I don't work that quickly. I'm going to need a couple of more drinks first. Get me a scotch on the rocks and then I'll be more open to it.

Example 2

Her: I'm going to go to the bathroom.

You: Wow, you're forward. The last woman who hit on me at least took me out to dinner first, but you want me in the bathroom already?

By talking to her in that way, you are reframing the interaction to be about her trying to pick you up. She'll laugh, she'll love it and she'll know that you aren't a social reject who doesn't understand that sex happens.

You are a guy who is confident with women and willing to joke around about things like that, rather than being nice and polite the whole time because you're worried about saying something wrong or "offending" her.

To reframe the interaction as though it's about her trying to win you over (which is actually how women want the interaction to go. She wants to feel lucky to pick you up, rather than feel as though you're just another guy who is hoping to be chosen by her), you also want to be raising and lowering your interest level in her to keep her guessing.

Rather than being 100% interested in her no matter what she says or does, let her feel your interest level drop at times, even if you do it in a playful way.

For example, if she says that she's an accountant you can say, "Woah...okay...I liked you up until that point, but when you said that you're an accountant, you lost me...you're too smart for me...I don't have the vocabulary to be dealing with a girl like you."

12. Try social vs. sexual styles

I know that a lot of guys aren't comfortable with walking up to women and immediately showing their sexual interest in them.

Many guys go through life thinking that they have to be a nice gentleman who doesn't look at women in a sexual way, or think that a woman will want to have sex with him.

Maybe it's as a result of brainwashing from the media or being brought up in an ultra-conservative family, but whatever a guy's backstory is, he knows that he secretly jerks off to hardcore porn every week.

True?

A guy like that needs to answer the following questions to himself right now:

When was the last time you jerked off and had wild thoughts about the woman while doing it?

What were you thinking about her?

What were you imagining yourself saying and doing to her?

Where is that side of you when you're talking to women that you find sexually attractive?

Why don't you at least show 20% of that side of you when talking to women you find sexually attractive?

Why do you suddenly become Mr. Nice or Mr. Polite or Mr. Innocent and Never, Ever Think About Sex when you talk to a woman that you find sexually attractive?

The reality is that, regardless of how nice a guy acts, he knows that he loves women, wants to have sex with women and looks at women in a sexual way.

Yet, he goes through life suffering from a conflict of identity because he thinks he needs to be a nice, innocent-looking, gentleman, but he also wants to be sexual with the women he meets.

Since it's so common for modern men to have that conflict of identity, I know that many guys aren't comfortable to use a sexual style of pick up right away.

So, if you're not comfortable showing your sexual interest in women, it's fine to use the more social style of pick up that we also teach here at The Modern Man.

The social approach is where you just walk up to women and be social, have a good time and build up sexual tension over the course of the night (or day) with eye contact and flirting.

You gradually build up to touching, kissing and then take a woman home for sex.

However, you can also use the more sexual style, which gets you faster results because you're able to efficiently sort through the women who are open to having sex that night, rather than investing 2-3 hours in a woman and then only getting a kiss and her phone number at the end of the night.

You don't have to use the more sexual style if you're not comfortable with it, but I would encourage you to try it.

Try being a little bit more sexual than you think you should be.

Try being a little bit more confident than you think you deserve to be.

Try being a little bit more presumptuous about her attraction for you.

Try to do that rather than doubting yourself and hiding your sexual interest in her. If you mix that in with a social style of pick up, you will find that your success rate at getting laid will skyrocket.

You don't have to go down the path of being a sleazy guy; that's not what I'm talking about here.

I'm talking about showing your sexual interest in women and not being afraid of it.

I have gotten laid many times by using the more social, friendly, easy-going approach, but it does take more time.

Sometimes you have to invest 2-3 hours of hanging out with a girl, rather than 2-3 minutes and then you're dancing close with her, groping her, kissing her and it's on.

Then, it's just a matter of time before you leave the bar or club to have sex.

I've pulled women out of bars and clubs immediately, within 5 minutes, 10 minutes and all the way up to four hours.

My fastest times always happen when I show my sexual interest right away with the more sexual style of pick up, but using the social style is fun as well.

13. Be in a party mood or a sensual mood

You can go into a bar or a club and get laid by being in a party mood or a sensual mood.

You can walk up to women in a really sensual, relaxed mood and say, “Hey, what’s going on...I thought I’d come over and say hi...I’m Dan, what’s your name?” and then she gives you her name.

If you’re talking to two women named Jenny and Michelle for example, you can say in a sensual, charming way, “Oh, so it’s Jenny and Michelle...two of the most beautiful girls I’ve ever seen in my life.”

Women like the sensual style, as long as you are confident and relaxed about it.

It’s not about being sleazy, it’s about being sensual, confident and relaxed.

Have a relaxed, sensual smile and make relaxed, confident eye contact with the women.

When you do it right, women love it.

Alternatively, you walk in to the bar or club in more of a party mood.

You walk in, smiling and feeling good about yourself, the night and the bar/club.

You’re in a party mood and you walk right up to some girls and say (with a smile), “Hey, what’s happening...I just got here...thought I’d come over and say hi. I’m Dan, what’s your names?”

They will smile and respond by talking to you if come across as confident and easy going.

You will get laid easily when you’re in party mode or sensual mode, but if you’re in poser mode you will rarely get laid.

Poser mode is where you’re all up in your head and trying to look good, in the hope that women notice you or like you.

Posing often includes acting like you’re indifferent to the bar or club and are so important or cool that you no-one there is good enough to talk to you.

The only posers who get laid are the really good looking guys, who will sometimes get approached by women.

For the rest of us guys, we have to get in there and meet women, rather than standing around and hoping to be approached.

We have to make a woman feel attracted to our confidence, masculinity and personality, turn her on during the interaction and then take her home to have sex.

14. Don’t wait for women to give you approach signals

If you don’t get laid from your first approach, you will need to keep approaching until you find the right woman for you that night.

Don’t make the mistake of having an approach done and then standing around as though you’ve been rejected or are now lacking confidence in yourself.

Keep feeling good, keep smiling and keep approaching.

Many guys will stand around hoping that women give them obvious signals that it's okay to approach (e.g. smiling and waving him over, winking at him, etc), but that isn't an effective strategy because almost all women don't make it that easy for guys.

Don't ever sit around hoping that women will suddenly make it easy for you.

Don't look for favors in the club (e.g. women who will take pity on guys who are afraid) because it rarely, if ever happens and when it does, the women are usually unattractive.

The way to approach women in bars and clubs is to use your confidence to approach and attract women.

If you have a high level of skill with women, you can approach any woman you want and it will usually go well.

However, if you're not that good at picking up women or getting laid, try to look for women who are open to being approached (e.g. standing around and not saying much to each other, while looking around at the crowd) and then just approach.

In the movies, women will call men over or approach men, but in real life, most women simply wait around hoping to be approached by a confident guy who won't be afraid to show his sexual interest in her and will escalate to either a phone number, kiss or sex that night.

So, don't wait around hoping that women make it really obvious that they want to be approached by you in particular.

Just approach women who look open and use your confidence to attract them.

If you have approached a woman and it hasn't resulted in a sexual vibe ,or kissing and you then exit the interaction, that is fine.

Don't get all up in your head and worry, "That approach didn't go well, so everyone is probably looking at me now thinking that I'm a loser."

No matter what you do after the interaction ends (e.g. stand around with a friend talking or go to the bar), just make sure that you maintain your positive vibe and confidence and then approach more women.

Most guys looking on will be envious of your confidence and be secretly wishing they could be like you.

Women notice this and it makes them feel more attracted to you.

You seem different and they wonder why you are so confident, compared to all the other guys and why you are having fun, interesting interactions with women.

This makes them want to meet you.

Focus on that, rather than on the potential negatives.

If you focus on the negatives, you lose confidence and it makes you less attractive.

15. Stay in there

This is so important.

You have to stay in the interaction as long as possible because some women need more time than others.

You will be able to do a better job of staying in there by using some of the tips I've given you so far (e.g. not seeing her tests as rejection, not doubting your attractiveness to her, enjoying whatever you decide to talk about, etc).

When it comes to pulling a one night stand or getting laid from bars and nightclubs, sometimes you will go up and talk to a woman and be kissing her immediately because she's in the mood, a little tipsy or because you and her have a special connection or great sexual chemistry.

Sometimes it takes 10 seconds to get to the kiss, sometimes 20 seconds, a minute, 5 minutes, an hour, two hours or even three hours.

It takes different amounts of time because we're dealing with humans here, not robots.

Humans are complex creatures who behave in slightly different ways based on their insecurities, personality type, etc.

For instance, you might be talking to a group of women and the woman you like is trying to show off to her friends by playing hard to get.

She may really like you, but also be trying to get some status in her group by showing her friends that she isn't easy to pick up.

A woman may also feel embarrassed to escalate in any way because her coworkers are around, or she may feel as though she needs to play hard to get to show you that she's a trustworthy girl.

So, don't expect every interaction that you have with a woman in a bar or club to go from a conversation, to kiss and then sex with 30 minutes to an hour.

Sometimes it takes a lot more time, which is why you have to stay in the interaction as long as possible.

One of the biggest keys to getting laid from bars and nightclubs is to stay in the interaction as long as possible, even if you feel uncomfortable at times.

Sometimes you have to invest 1-3 hours of hanging out with the girl, partying and talking with her friends and sometimes being a little bit indifferent to her and just talking to her friends.

When a woman sees that her friends like you too (or even better – her female friends are attracted to you), it makes her feel more comfortable hooking up with you.

She knows that her friends approve and that they may even be jealous that she's met a guy like you.

In the early days, when I was still trying to work out how to pick up women, I hadn't yet discovered the power of staying in there and pushing through any feelings of awkwardness.

I would go out to approach and pick up women and when it wasn't escalating very quickly, I'd be thinking, "Okay, this girl doesn't like me" and would then doubt my attractiveness to her and fall into an insecure way of thinking.

When a woman would notice that I'd lost confidence, she would then feel turned off by that and start showing signs of disinterest.

I would then leave the interaction and feel rejected, not knowing what had just happened.

When I decided that I would stay in interactions as long as possible and see what happens, I then started to get laid much more often.

Based on those results, I was then able to realize that there are many reasons why an interaction won't always immediately escalate to kissing, groping, etc.

Sometimes, you walk up to a woman and then walk out with her a couple of minutes later and sometimes it takes a couple of hours.

When you can learn to accept that and stay in there, your success at picking up women goes through the roof.

The interactions won't always lead to sex that night though.

Sometimes, you will even get to point where you are kissing the woman, making out and she will be loving it and she'll then say, "I want to go home by myself tonight" and you have sex with her on the first date instead.

That's fine and it will happen sometimes, but just know that you have to stay in there as long as possible to increase the chances of you getting laid that night.

When you're in a long interaction with a woman or her friends, don't ever feel like you're an intruder or as though you're a burden to them.

Be someone who is adding good energy and vibes to the group, or if you're talking to two girls, be the guy who is having a good time with them.

If she's in a group that isn't very interested in talking to her, it's fine to mainly focus on your girl most of the time.

However, if she is with people who want to spend time with her, make sure that you're talking to them too.

16. Kiss her

If you want to get laid from bars or nightclubs, you will usually at least have to kiss the girl before she will be willing and open to leave the venue with you.

If you get to the end of the night and still haven't kissed her, it won't make much sense for her to leave with you and then be alone with you.

To her, you will still feel more like a friend than anything else.

Kissing changes things from being friendly to sexual in an instant.

It creates a private connection between you and a woman where sex becomes inevitable.

So, at least try to kiss her, with the knowledge that women rarely reject kisses from guys they are attracted to.

She might shy away from the kiss if she's worried about her coworkers seeing, in which case you should try to get alone with her first (e.g. go to the bar together and then find a private place in the bar to sit down for 5 minutes, "Hey, let's just sit down here for 5 minutes and then we'll go back to your friends. Cool?")

One of the ways to kiss a woman in a bar or nightclub is after the 10 Second Dance.

When you stop dancing, hold her close in front of you so you are face to face and making eye contact.

Her reaction to that will usually tell you whether or not she is open to kiss you.

If she stands there smiling and maintaining eye contact with you, there's a 99% chance she will be open to being kissed right then and there, so just lean in and it will happen.

However, if she is turning her head away and avoiding eye contact in an uncomfortable way, it usually means that she doesn't want to kiss you right then and there.

If you haven't attracted her properly because you're not being confident around her or haven't included a sexual vibe, then she will most-likely reject your kiss.

So, make sure that you focus on building her attraction for you before attempting any other type of escalation.

For my best ever techniques for getting a first kiss (and sex on the first night or first date) that I can't share here or on Youtube, read The Flow or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

17. Take her home or at least to another venue

Some women will be open to going straight home with you after meeting in a club.

Some women have an identity crisis with the whole idea of having sex on the first night (e.g. she doesn't want to look too easy in your eyes, she wants to show off to her friends by playing hard to get, she's worried what her coworkers might think about her, etc), so she may want to go to another bar, club or venue (e.g. cafe, take away food store, etc) before going home with you.

Going to another bar or club with her is an escalation to the next level.

She is personally going to a new place with you, rather than just talking to you as though you are a random guy in a bar or club that isn't going to be a part of her life.

Going to another venue with you allows a woman to feel as though she is still maintaining her pride and sense of identity (i.e. the identity of being an innocent woman who never has sex outside of a relationship).

With the small percentage of women who need to go to another venue first (I'd estimate that about 30% of women require it before going home with you), they will eventually say something like, "I'm getting tired...I might go home" which is your cue to say, "Okay, let's get out of here together."

At that point, she still isn't 100% committed to going home with you and may act surprised when you get in a taxi or your car and suggest that she come over to your place.

To break the tension and get her laughing and relaxed about going home with you, just say, "But, don't get any funny ideas, we're not having sex tonight...I'm not that easy."

The woman will then usually laugh and say, "No, YOU don't get any ideas!" and then you just head home together and get it on.

It doesn't matter if you go to her place or yours, but it's best to go to the place that is closer.

Many women are a lot easier than that and you simply have to say to her (at the bar or club), "Hey, you want to get out of here?" and she will say yes, or "Hey, it's been a good night so far, but I'm thinking about getting out here now...you want to get out of here or what?"

The woman may say something like, "Yeah, I'm thinking about leaving too" to which you can smile and jokingly reply, "Cool, you can give me a massage when we get home then."

If you don't want to go straight home with her and want to go to another venue first, simply say something like, "Hey, there's a really cool bar up the road that I want to check out. Let's go check it out” and she will then leave with you.

Sometimes all of her friends will come along with you, sometimes some of her friends will come and sometimes (usually when you’ve already kissed her) it will be just you and her.

Most women can read between the lines and know that if they are leaving a venue with you, it will most-likely lead to something else happening.

It’s not an absolute guarantee of her having sex with you, but it’s at least a commitment of her going somewhere else with you.

Even if she does go somewhere else with you, she might still behave as though she isn’t going to have sex with you, but secretly be hoping that you keep pushing things forward.

The only way to know is to move things forward (i.e. kiss when you are on the way to the next venue, or when you get there, or start kissing when you get back to your place of hers).

Just know that most women who go to bars and nightclubs have had a one night stand before, even though some won’t even admit it to their closest friends.

Statistically speaking, when talking to a woman in a bar or club, there’s at least a 70% chance that she’s had a one night stand before and she will likely do it again if you can seduce her.

That doesn’t mean that every woman at a nightclub wants a one night stand, but if you’re going to pull a one night stand, the best place to find a woman for that is at a bar or nightclub.

18. Know that every approach will not get you laid

Meeting random strangers is not a black and white process.

You’re not going into a computer simulated environment where everyone is preprogrammed to behave and respond in certain ways.

In a busy bar or nightclub, there will be all sorts of personality types, energy levels, insecurities and people who are trying to present a certain type of social persona or identity to the crowd.

If you approach two or three different women and it doesn’t get you laid, that is fine.

If you start thinking that you’re a failure, then you’re thinking about it in the wrong way.

The correct way to think about it to understand that when people meet each other, they’re not always going to be compatible and that is okay.

It’s not your fault that a woman isn’t compatible with you.

No man is compatible with every woman he meets and no woman is compatible with every man she meets.

Meeting a woman who isn’t compatible with you doesn’t mean that you’re a failure.

It just means that you’ve got to meet other women.

So, when you go out there to get laid, don’t put pressure on yourself like, “Okay, I’m going to talk to three women tonight and if I don’t get laid, I’m a failure, I’m a loser, I can’t do this...and I’m just going to give up and jerk off to porn every week.”

If you talk to three groups of women and it doesn’t work out, that is fine.

If you have been doing it properly (i.e. believing in your attractiveness, smiling and enjoying yourself), you will have been getting more and more pumped up with each approach and when you then talk to the next woman or the next group of women, you may then get yourself a woman to have sex with that night.

Don't give up.

Don't expect that women are going to be nice and make it really easy for you.

Go out there, have a good time, be confident, believe in your attractiveness to women, keep escalating and moving it forward and have a great time.

By the way...

If you've enjoyed these free tips and would like to get my best ever techniques and methods for getting to kissing and sex with women that you've just met, then I recommend that you read The Flow or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is full of techniques, examples and methods that I can't share here on the site or on Youtube. Learn more here.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

55 Reasons Why Nice Guys Fail With Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Back when I was using the nice guy approach on women, I thought that it should work.

After all, what could possibly be wrong about being nice to a woman, especially when we always hear women saying, “I want a nice guy” and complaining about guys who don’t treat them well?

Surely women are making a huge mistake by not hooking up with nice guys, right?

Actually, the answer is no.

So, does that mean the secret to success with women to be a bad boy, jerk or asshole and treat women badly?

Once again, the answer is no.

As you will discover throughout this list of 55 reasons why nice guys fail with women, the secret is to be a good guy who also makes a woman feel sexually attracted and turned on during conversations and interactions.

If you can do that, women will love you for being a nice guy.

However, if all you’ve got to offer women is your niceness, you will be friendzoned.

Here are 55 mistakes that nice guys make, which lead to rejection or to getting dumped out of a relationship...

1. Thinking that being really nice to a woman obligates her to be romantically interested in him

[image: Hey, you're so nice! Let's have sex]

Being nice to a woman doesn’t make her feel sexually attracted and turned on by you.

If you want a woman to have a romantic or sexual interest in you, the first thing you need to do is focus on making her feel sexually attracted and turned on by you.

Only then will she appreciate the fact that you are also a nice guy.

There’s nothing wrong with being a nice guy, but women only care if you’re nice AFTER they feel sexually attracted to you.

If a woman isn’t sexually attracted to you, she’s not going to reward you with sex, love and devotion just because you’re nice to her.

[image: What if I told you that being nice to a woman doesn't obligate her to be romantically interested in you?]

When a nice guy gets rejected by a woman after being really nice to her in the hope of getting her to like him, it doesn’t make any sense to him.

He thinks, “What is her problem? I’ve been so nice to her, I’ve been listening to her, I’ve been kind and considerate, I’ve been there for her...I would do anything to make her happy. Yet, she’s not even interested in me. She says that she just wants to be friends! Surely she is just confused.”

What the nice guy fails to realize is that being really nice to a woman doesn't then entitle him to date her or have sex with her.

What makes a woman interested in having a sex with a guy is her feeling sexual attraction for him.

What makes a woman feel sexual attraction for a guy is his confidence, masculinity (i.e. alpha male thinking, behavior and actions) and his ability to make her feel feminine and girly during an interaction...NOT his niceness.

If a guy makes a woman feel attracted to him first (e.g. he is confident, gets her laughing, is charismatic) and is then nice to her, she will actually enjoy it and refer to him as a charming guy.

However, if a guy starts off being really nice to her in the hope that she will like him enough to give him a chance, she will close up because the attraction isn't mutual.

What the nice guy doesn't realize is that he needs to actively spark the woman's attraction for him FIRST and then, when she is attracted, she will begin to appreciate the fact that he is also a good guy. Since most nice guys aren't aware that attraction is required before anything else, they will usually be very nice and sweet towards a woman and then expect her to like him and want to be with him based on that.

Yet, that's just not how it works.

You have to start with attraction and then everything else follows on naturally after that.

If you start by trying to suck up to a woman by being really nice to her, she might like you as a person, but she usually isn't going to be feeling enough attraction for you to think of you as being anything other than a friend.

2. Assuming that if women don't like nice guys then they must want bad boys, jerks or assholes

[image: So, you rejected me for being a nice guy? Please, tell me more about how badly your asshole boyfriend treats you]

A nice guy will hear women complain and say, "I want a nice guy" but then watch in disbelief as the very same women hook up with so called assholes, jerks and bad boys. It is very confusing for him.

The problem here is based on the nice guy's perception of what a bad boy, jerk or asshole is.

He thinks that anyone who isn't as nice to girls as he is is a bad boy, jerk or asshole.

Yet, in most cases, the so called bad boy is just an ordinary good guy who doesn't go around sucking up to women and hoping that they like him for it like a nice guy does.

The so called "jerk" is often just a very confident guy who understands that women first want to feel attraction for a guy before they consider getting romantically involved with him, so he starts off by displaying confidence and not trying to suck up to women to get them to like him as a person.

Of course, I'm not saying that there aren't any bad boys out there.

Of course there are.

There are also some messed up women who want a bad man, but they are an absolute minority and probably don't even make up 1% of the female population.

Most women just want a confident, masculine guy who is also a good guy. They don't want a selfdoubting, ass-kissing nice guy and they don't want a bad man.

In many cases, a nice guy (who usually lacks confidence in himself) will misinterpret another guy's high level of social confidence as arrogance.

The nice guy will say, "I care about her so much. I would do anything to be with her. Yet, she is lusting after a guy who doesn't even care about her. The guy she is in love with is a jerk. He thinks he's so damn good. Why doesn't she see that he's a jerk?"

What the nice guy doesn't realize is that women feel attraction to a man's confidence and the "arrogant jerk" simply isn't desperate to be with her like he is. Why? As a result of his confidence, he will usually have plenty of other women interested in him at the same time and he may not even find that particular woman very attractive.

When a nice guy hears that, he might think, "Well, why does she want to be with him if he doesn't find her attractive? Clearly he doesn't want her and I do, so why not be with me? I think she is the most beautiful woman in the world. Why doesn't that mean anything to her?? I would treat her so much better than he would."

The answer is simple: The fact that a nice guy is trying to show her that he would treat her well doesn't mean much or anything to the woman because she isn't attracted to him.

If the nice guy started by making her feel attracted to him (e.g. being confident, flirting with her, being charismatic, making her feel feminine in comparison to his masculinity), she would be then feel excited and lucky to have met a guy who makes her feel attracted and will also treat her well.

However, she's not going to hook up with a nice guy just because she will treat him well. Instead, she will hook up with a guy who makes her feel attracted and then try to change him to be nicer to her later on.

The nice guy will then look on and think, "WTF? She complains about guys not treating her well and then she hooks up with a jerk instead of me. WTF!!!"

He just doesn't understand that attraction has to come first.

He also doesn't understand that if he had lots of women attracted and interested in him, he wouldn't be able to give them all a chance to be with him. He would become more selective.

Imagine this...

A very attractive woman has a lot of guys who are interested in her.

Would you call her a "jerk" if she didn't get into a relationship with every guy who was interested in her?

Of course not.

It's not her fault that she is making lots of guys feel attracted to her. She doesn't have to be interested in all of them, have sex with all of them or have a relationship with all of them.

She can pick and choose.

The same applies for a very confident guy who knows how to make women feel attracted to him. He can pick and choose and doesn't have to suck up to women with a nice guy act to hopefully get them to like him.

Women like him by default because he is attractive to them and as a result, women try to get a chance to be with him, even though he might not treat them as well as a nice guy would.

Why? Attraction rules.

Men want to be with women that they feel attracted to (even if the woman is a bit cold or a bit of a bitch to him initially) and women want to be with men that they are attracted to.

Sure, some guys will say, “No way! Screw those bitchy women! I don’t want anything to do with them.” Yeah, right – then he goes and jerks off to porn with bitchy, hot women.

Attraction rules.

If a woman feels a lot of attraction for you, she won’t really care if you’re not treating her as nicely as other guys do. She will want to hook up with you because her feelings of attraction are more important.

Unfortunately, most guys just doesn’t understand how the human mating dance works and why attraction is so important.

When a nice doesn’t get liked for being nice and sees women hooking up with guys that he perceives to be jerks or assholes, he usually concludes that women must hate nice guys and want to be treated badly.

Women don’t want to be treated badly.

They want to find a guy who makes them feel attracted and if he also happens to be nice, that is seen as a welcome bonus, but isn’t always necessary for sex to happen and a relationship to begin.

3. GettingÂ angry at women for doing what he does

[image: Nice guy vs. nice girl]

A nice guy will sometimes feelÂ angry about how women don’t select guys based on how nice they are.

He’ll think, “I’ve been so nice to her. I’ve done everything she could ever want and she still doesn’t like me...what a bitch!Â Why is she interested in that guy who is a jerk?”

Yet, what he fails to realize is that he is doing the same thing as her. How so?

Generally speaking, a nice guy will usually want a girlfriend who is nice, intelligent, easy-going, down to earth, beautiful, loyal and trustworthy.

Yet, he will jerk off to porn with sluts, whores and pornstars (i.e. bad girls) every week.

If he had the chance to have sex with a bad girl (e.g. a sexy woman from a nightclub, a stripper or even a slutty pornstar), he probably would.

[image: Strippers are bad girls]

In fact, while jerking off to sluts, whores and pornstars, a nice guy will often fantasize about having some of those women as a lover, girlfriend or even wife.

[image: Men looking at online porn]

In that moment of masturbation, it doesn’t matter to the nice guy that the woman he is jerking off to is a “bad girl.”

Why? Attraction rules.

He is sexually attracted to her, so the fact that she is a bad girl doesn’t matter and he simply jerks off to please himself.

The difference for women is that they can actually get laid a lot easier than a nice guy can because a nice guy's approach doesn't make women feel sexually attracted.

Most women just have to say, "Yes" and most guys (nice guys, bad boys, jerks and anyone else) would bang her at least once. Why? Men feel mostly attracted to women based on their physical appearance and are usually willing to have sex and even a relationship just based on the woman looking physically attractive.

This is why men instantly get turned on when looking at women in porn and don't give a crap what the woman's personality, intelligence level or anything else is. If she has a nice ass, pussy, tits or face, it's boner time.

Yet, the same rule doesn't apply for how women feel attracted to men.

Most women (not all) are more attracted and turned on by how a man's personality, behavior and inner qualities make them feel (i.e. his confidence, masculine vibe, humor, charm, etc).

Yet, a nice guy doesn't get that.

He thinks that women should like him for being nice, even though it doesn't turn women on.

Think about it this way...

Initially, you are mostly attracted to a woman's physical appearance more than anything else, so imagine how unattractive women feel.

Unattractive women will often complain about men being assholes for selecting women based on their appearance, but a woman's physical appearance is what men find most attractive.

It's not our fault that we find a woman's physical appearance so attractive. That's how nature works.

Likewise, it's not a woman's fault for being so attracted to a guy's confidence and ability to make her feel feminine in comparison to how masculine he is being (i.e. how he is think, feeling, talking, moving, behaving, reacting to her).

She can't say to herself, "No! I shouldn't feel attracted to confidence. I've got to go for a nice guy who is afraid of me. I've got to select an ass kissing nice guy who doesn't even know how to trigger my feelings of sexual attraction when I talk to him."

So, what does she do?

If she can't find a confident, masculine good guy, she settles for the next best thing (in her eyes), which is any guy who is confident and masculine. Unfortunately, that often means that she hooks up with bad boys and jerks, but think about it...

If you couldn't find a beautiful, nice girl, would you be happy to settle for sleeping with a beautiful, bad girl (e.g. stripper, sexy club chick, pornstar)?

Women don't actually want to be with a bad boy, just as much as you don't want to get into a serious relationship with a pornstar.

You'd rather have a beautiful woman who is sexy, but is also trustworthy, right?

Well, maybe you might want a crazy, cheating pornstar, but that's up to you.

The majority of guys just want an attractive woman who is a good person, just like the majority of women want a guy who makes them feel attracted and is also a good person.

4. Thinking that he should be rewarded with sex, love and devotion for being a good boy

[image: Using a boyish love attraction strategy]

As a boy, you get rewarded for being nice to your parents, teachers and other authority figures.

In the case of a mother, a boy will say, “Look mommy! I cleaned my room ☺☺☺ Can I have some candy now?” and she will give him some candy, tell him that she loves him and hug him.

When you are no longer a little boy, the world stops rewarding you for being sweet and innocent like a child.

When you grow up, the world rewards you for being confident and going after what you want, regardless of whether or not you are a good guy.

As you would have seen in life, there are some successful people in this world who are bad people, but they are still successful and are enjoying all the luxuries of modern life.

Of course, the solution is not to copy the bad people and turn into a bitter, negative person with bad intentions.

The solution is to be a great guy who is honest and has great intentions, but is not an ass-kissing, self-doubting, insecure nice guy who expects the world to give him treats for being a good little boy.

As a man, you get rewarded by the world and by women for being confident and going after what you want.

The more confident and masculine that you become as a man, the more than women find you attractive.

When you get to the point where you are a very confident and masculine guy, success with women becomes too easy because most women feel naturally attracted to you. Why? Women are mostly attracted to a guy's confidence and masculinity, which is why they will often hook up with bad guys and jerks.

5. Pretending not to be interested in sex

[image: Other guys are only interested in having sex with her]

What a nice guy will often do is pretend that he's not interested in a woman in a sexual way.

He will behave as though he only wants to be a friend to her, even though he really does want to have sex with her and regularly jerks off to porn, when he interacts with her, he will act as though he's not even interested in sex whatsoever.

In his mind, he feels like he has a clever plan.

“I will befriend her and be so nice to her that she will eventually feel obliged to date me or have sex with me.”

The problem for the nice guy (apart from the fact that sexual attraction is missing) is that a woman will usually be able to tell if a guy likes her.

She will catch him looking at her, she will hear it in his words and she will see it in his actions.

However, if he continues to just act like an innocent friend who isn't interested in her in a sexual way, she will become suspicious of him and will find it difficult to trust him.

In some cases, a woman will play games with the guy by showing him little bits of interest and then rejecting him when he tries to make a move.

Not all women will do that, but some do enjoy having that power over guys because it gives them a boost of confidence and self-esteem, which they then use to feel confident when around guys who are actually making them feel sexually attracted.

When it comes to relationships, a woman does want to be with a good guy who treats her well and respects her. However, all that stuff comes later, not first.

Attraction first, nice stuff later.

6. Feeling superior over other guys because he is nicer than them

One thing I want to make clear here is that there is NOTHING wrong with being nice to a woman or to anyone for that matter.

In fact, The Modern Man method for success with women is about being a GOOD GUY who is also confident, masculine and socially intelligent.

The solution to success with women is NOT to be an asshole, bad boy, jerk or nice guy. Instead, the solution is to be a good guy who is also makes women feel attracted by displaying personality traits, behaviors and inner qualities that turn women on (e.g. confidence, masculine vibe, charisma, charm, humor).

As long as you display some attractive traits, women will feel some attraction for you and then, when you are nice to them, they will see you as a charming, attractive guy.

However, if all a guy has to offer women is niceness, they will see him as a nice guy and friend zone him.

He will then think that women are crazy or that other guys are assholes who will never be as nice as he is.

In the mind of a nice guy, he is right and everyone else is wrong.

He has been listening to women say, "All men are assholes" and "Men are only interested in one thing" and has personally "been there" for women who when they've complained about how bad their boyfriends had been treating them.

So, he figures, "Okay, so if women don't like guys who treat them badly, then I need to be the nicest guy in the world. I will show women that I respect them and wouldn't ever expect to have sex with them...unless they wanted to. When women see that I'm not like other guys and I'm not only interested in sex, they will come rushing to me and jump all over my cock. Yayy! I've worked out how to be successful with women!!"

Here's the thing though...

If success with women was about men being as nice as possible to women, what do you think would happen to this world?

Can you imagine if women rewarded men for being super nice, polite and handing all their power over to women in the hope of being rewarded with a kiss or, if they are lucky, even some SEX?

Man, that would be a weird world.

Men would essentially be the slaves of women. Women would have men on dog collars and would say, “Sit...you little bitch!” and the man would sit.

As you may have noticed, that isn’t how the world is or has ever been.

However, for a nice guy, he thinks that a woman should reward him for being nice to her, being there for her, for listening to all of her problems, talking to her like one of her girlfriends would, putting her needs and wants ahead of his own, being extra polite and respectful and so on.

In his version of reality, it all makes perfect sense, but in the real world, it’s just not how the nature of attraction works.

It’s not all the fault of the nice guy though.

Hollywood movies, TV sitcoms and the politically correct comments that woman make on TV are partially to blame for this.

In Hollywood movies, the nice guy character always gets the girl in the end after he saves the day, saves the girl (usually from a bad guy) or saves the world.

Despite being nervous, self-doubting and generally a big fat pussy around the woman the entire movie, she eventually falls in love with him and they smile and embrace as the credits roll.

Nice guys then go through life thinking that they could be that knight in shining armor for women and be rewarded with sex, love and devotion. Yet, the more he tries to be the “save the day nice guy,” the more women friend zone him.

Of course, there’s nothing wrong with helping a woman, being nice to her and saving her from problem, but it won’t result in sex and a relationship unless she is sexually attracted to you.

7. Secretly feeling as though women are more valuable than him

Although most nice guys won’t admit it, they often have the insecurity of not feeling worthy of women, especially beautiful women.

In fact, many nice guys feel as though they have to trick women into being with them, because they tend to worship women and see them as a prize to attain.

Some of this stems from jerking off to a lot of porn and seeing beautiful women as being something that is out of reach to him. He feels as though the woman would almost be doing him a favor or making a mistake by going out with him.

Yet, what he doesn’t realize is that if he just starting making women feel attracted to him during interactions, he would see that most women he meets do feel attracted to him.

Once the attraction is there, all a guy needs to do is have the balls to move things forward (e.g. to a phone number, kiss, sex, date) and most women will go along with it.

8. Not realizing that most women see the nice guy act as manipulative and untrustworthy

Although many women perceive the nice guy act to be manipulative, I know that most nice guys are actually honest, good guys who just want to be loved, understood and included.

Nice guys usually have good intentions with women and want to find themselves a nice girl or have a few fun, sexual relationship before settling into a serious relationship.

Yet, even though I can see the good in nice guys, I've found that when women complain about nice guys, they almost always use the word "manipulative."

Why? They perceive his extreme niceness, politeness and kindness as a manipulative attempt to get women to "trust" him, so he can then get them into bed.

Unfortunately for a nice guy, women don't think, "WOW! This guy is so nice! I want to have sex with him" because they can sense that the nice guy is expecting love, sex and affection as a reward for his niceness...and that is both annoying and a turn off.

The question for the woman becomes, "Is he just a nice, innocent guy who has nothing better to do than help me out and be nice to me, or does he have an ulterior motive? Is he trying to get me to see him as a harmless guy who is just trying to be helpful, or does he actually have a sexual interest in me? If he isn't being honest about his intentions with me, what else is he lying about? Can I trust this guy to be alone with me? I can already see that he isn't honest about who he is...so, what else should I be worried about?"

9. Behaving like a character from Pleasantville

If you've ever seen the movie Pleasantville, you will know that something just doesn't seem right when everyone is so nice, reserved and extra polite.

Why? Generally speaking, humans are good people, but they also have a naughty side that they like to express every now and then.

If the naughty side is suppressed, humans always develop strange psychological issues and twisted behaviors.

A classic case of that is to think about how many religious figures, who are against sex, have actually been caught out hurting innocent children. Another example are male politicians who pretend to be perfect and then have an affair behind their wife's back.

The secret to success with women is not to become a naughty, bad boy who treats women like shit and just cares about sex.

The secret is to lead a balanced life and to be genuine about what you want and don't want. A lot of very nice guys give people the impression that they are innocent guys who would never think about having sex with a woman, but they then jerk off to sluts in hardcore porn every week.

While jerking off to porn, the nice guy is thinking all sorts of "naughty" thoughts, but in person, he behaves as though he would never think that way about a woman.

In many cases, women can pick up on this mismatch of energy and get a "creepy" vibe around him.

On one hand, he seems like an innocent, nice guy, but on the other hand, the woman can sense that he isn't being truthful in how he is presenting himself to the world.

People instinctively know that when a person is being way too nice, something is up.

What I've found is that any extreme personality type is always based on insecurity. For example: If a guy goes around acting overly macho and tough, he will be insecure about how people perceive him and will be trying to impress them.

Yet, when a guy is confident, masculine and relaxed, he is usually the type of guy who doesn't feel the need to put on a bit act of bravado to impress people. He knows that he's already good enough, which is why he is confident rather than insecure.

If you look up confidence in the dictionary, you will see that it's the opposite of insecurity.

Confidence is essentially about having belief in yourself and your abilities, whereas insecurity is about doubting yourself and your abilities.

So, when someone is acting way too nice or way too aloof or macho, people instinctively know that something isn't quite right about them and they put their guard up.

If you want women to trust you and feel comfortable around you, don't put on any act for anyone. Just be real, confident and relaxed and let women and people experience your true, unfiltered personality.

10. Thinking that showing sexual interest in a woman is disrespectful or "too forward"

Either due to a strict upbringing by very conservative parents or repeated brainwashing by TV and movies, some nice guys have developed the belief that showing sexual interest in a woman is wrong, disrespectful, rude, ill-mannered or too forward.

In many movies, TV shows and music video clips, women are portrayed as being offended or shocked when a guy shows any sexual interest.

In person, many women will also behave that way too so they doesn't look too easy.

Yet, the truth is that not only do women love it when a guy shows sexual interest, but they usually NEED it because most women are insecure about their appearance and sex appeal.

Here are some statistics to show you what I mean:

- 96% of women don't consider themselves to be beautiful, according to a global survey conducted by Dove Cosmetics.
- Women are reported to experience depression at twice the rate of men in the USA.
- In the UK, 40% of women will require treatment for depression at some point in their life compared to only 10% of men. In other words, women are more depressed than men.
- Women are twice as likely to experience anxiety compared to men.
- 60% of the people who have OCD (Obsessive Compulsive Disorders) and phobias are women.

Weird, right?

Especially since most guys would bang most women at least once.

Yet, the fact is that, statistically speaking, women are more insecure than men, so rather than acting like you don't find them attractive, it's actually important to attract a woman and then show sexual interest in her, otherwise she might doubt herself and start playing hard to get as a defense.

Most nice guys don't know about the insecurity of women, so they think that they are doing women a favor by not showing sexual interest.

Yet, it actually makes him get rejected more because the woman thinks that he isn't feel attracted to her enough, so she then starts playing hard to get to make him show more interest.

Then, when he panics and feels like he's getting rejected, he starts showing lots of interest, which turns the woman off because he seems desperate.

To cut through the bullshit, a nice guy just needs to learn to be honest about his sexual interest in a woman.

If he finds a woman to be sexy, he simply needs to be confident and masculine around her to attract her and then have the courage to be honest and say, "You're sexy...I like you" while looking her in the eyes with a confident smile.

Personally speaking, I've never had a woman be offended by that.

I've only ever had women become flattered and excited about it and then begin to feel turned on by me because I am being charming (making a woman feel attracted + being nice to her = charming) and have the balls to say something like that.

It may sound like 96% of women are CRAZY for not knowing that they are so beautiful and sexy, but guys do the very same thing when judging their own sex appeal.

Most guys don't realize that their confidence and masculinity are the most attractive things to women and if they display that, almost every woman they meet will feel instant sexual attraction for them.

Guys make the mistake of getting sucked in by the fake reality of Hollywood movies and TV advertising, which gives them a completely different perspective of what it takes to be successful with women.

For example: Most guys think that they need to be tall, handsome or rich before a woman will like them. Other guys think that without six pack abs and a gym body, women won't find them very sexy.

Yet, here is the real reason why guys fail with women...

As you will discover from the video above, women can feel attracted to superficial things about men (e.g. money, height, looks), but they can also feel just as attracted to personality traits, behaviors and inner qualities (e.g. confidence, charisma, charm, masculinity).

Most guys don't know that though, so they go around thinking that modern women are shallow and only want tall, good looking rich guys.

It's not just guys who are mixed up and confused these days though; 96% of women don't even think they are beautiful!

Obviously those women are wrong, but they just don't know it.

Women compare themselves to the photoshopped billboards and magazine ads and to the sexy women in porn videos. They know that men find very beautiful women the most attractive and a woman knows that without make up, she doesn't look the women in the magazines.

She knows that when she goes to bed at night, she just looks like a normal, girl next door type...and that makes her insecure about her looks.

It's a very insecure world out there, which actually gives you a MASSIVE advantage when you interact with women.

How? Just know that the next time you interact with a woman, she will put on a brave face and act as though she thinks she is the most beautiful, valuable girl in the world, but secretly she doesn't believe it.

Personally speaking, knowing that has allowed me to remain confident around women who play hard to get, which then causes them to feel attraction to my unstopable, unshakable confidence.

It's a beautiful thing and we guys are lucky that women find our confidence so sexy and attractive.

I personally know a lot of beautiful women and they all have things about themselves that they don't like and are insecure about.

For example: They will say things like, "I know that I look good, but I hate my nose...I know that I'm not pretty because of my nose" or "Yeah, if only had better legs...I look too short...I hate it."

When a guy looks at these women, you can tell that he is physically attracted to them, but in the woman's mind she is thinking things like, "He's probably looking at my nose...ahh! I hate my life! I'll never be able to find a good guy who doesn't see other women as being more beautiful than me."

When a nice guy talks to her, he will act like he's only interested in her as a friend and she will thinking, "Ahh!! My frikken nose! Guys hate my nose" and will start acting like she doesn't care about him.

The nice guy will then panic and feel like he's being rejected. Yet, in reality, he's lack of honesty is making her act on her insecurities.

Here's the thing...

A lot of nice guys make the mistake of thinking that a woman will see them as being sleazy or too forward if he shows sexual interest.

He's seen movies, TV sitcoms and music videos where women slap men or push men away for showing sexual interest.

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that it is a necessary part of seducing modern women and that women actually love it, appreciate it and need it.

A nice guy will often ask, "What if she doesn't like that?" or say, "She's not like other girls. She's nice. She doesn't want to be treated that way."

He will then treat her like an innocent angel of a girl, which will turn her off because she isn't an innocent angel.

According to surveys of women, at least 65% of single women masturbate a few times a week. The real percentage would be a lot higher because most women are too shy to ever admit to masturbating, so it's probably closer to 85%.

Additionally, most of the women that a nice guy refers to be as being "nice" or "special" or "not like other girls" have already had sex and potentially had a few one night stands.

Personally speaking, about 40% of the women I've had one night stands with have said, "I've never done this before" in an attempt to make themselves look innocent.

They don't want me getting the impression that they are easy and that, if we had a relationship and she went out with her girlfriends, she would easily sleep with another guy.

A lot of women give the impression that they are innocent little angels, but they each have a naughty side and in today's day and age, most of them explore it very often.

In the past, a woman would remain a virgin until marriage, but not anymore.

[image: No sex before marriage vs. have sex whenever you want]

Today's world is completely different and many nice guys tend to see women as being from the 1800s or early 1900s when sex was still taboo.

Whether a nice guy likes it or not, the world has changed and women aren't innocent little angels who don't like sex. They are out there enjoying themselves and trying to find a great guy in the process.

11. Placing himself in the friend zone and then getting angry when the woman rejects his advances

[image: I've been a great friend to her for months, but she doesn't want to have sex with me. Bitch!]

A lot of guy nice guys complain about being placed in the friend zone by a woman for being nice to her.

Yet, what a lot of these guys fail to realize is that they have placed themselves in the friend zone by not starting with making the woman feel sexually attracted.

A woman doesn't place a guy in the friend zone because she is not the one leading the dance, so to speak. She is not the leader of the sexual courtship; she is the woman, the feminine, the one who is guided through a sexual courtship by a man.

If you don't want to be placed in the friend zone with a woman, you need to start by making her feel sexually attracted to you and then, you can treat her nicely as you guide her to a kiss, sex and into a relationship.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

Guys who start out trying to be a woman's friend are the ones who get friend zoned, whereas guys who start out turning a woman on are the ones who get to have sex and a relationship with the woman.

To start out with attraction, you've got to display attractive personality traits, behaviors and inner qualities to turn her on and get her interest. Only then she will be excited about the fact that you're also a nice guy.

However, if you start out by sucking up to her with a nice guy act, then she's not going to be turned on and she will friend zone you.

The nice guy then gets pissed off that the girl he really likes doesn't feel the same way about him, even though he's been so nice to her.

He may have treated her really nicely, listened to all of her problems, done favors for her, laughed at all her jokes and essentially done everything he can to show her how much good of a "friend" he is.

Then, he gets confused or even angry when she says, "Sorry, I just want to be friends" when he asks her out or tries to make a move.

He thinks that she's a bitch or that he might just need to suck up to her a little more and then he'll get some booty.

Yet, what's really going on is that he hasn't done anything to make her feel sexually turned on by him, so she's not interested in anything other than a friendship.

12. Putting up with a woman's bad behavior in the hope that she will like him for it

Since a nice guy's approach to women is unattractive, he rarely gets a chance with any women.

So, when a girl shows the slightest bit of interest in him, he usually grabs onto that and never lets go.

A woman will often get to the point where she rejects the nice guy and has to say, "Let me be clear...I am not interested in you in that way...I only see you as a friend. Please understand that," but the nice guy will keep holding on to any hope that she might change her mind.

In the mind of the nice guy, he feels that if he just sticks around puts up with her bad behavior, she will eventually begin to feel sorry for him and give him a chance.

After all, that's what happens in most Hollywood movies and TV shows, so it should happen in the real world too, right? Wrong. The real world and the entertainment world of TV and movies are two completely different things.

I remember a time when a nice guy told me a story of how badly a woman that he liked had treated him.

She was planning on paying someone to get her house painted, but the nice guy stepped in and offered to do it for free so she could save some money.

In his mind, he thought he would get rewarded with love, sex and a relationship for being so nice and helpful to her. Instead, while he was painting her house, she put on a sexy dress and went out on a date with another guy.

The nice guy was furious, but stuck around to finish the paint job.

Over the next few weeks, his "friendship" with her then deteriorated and when he eventually confessed his feelings to her, she was shocked.

She said something along the lines of, "I thought we were just friends? I've never seen you in any other way. Sorry, but I think we are better off as friends. I hope you can respect that."

He couldn't understand what he had done wrong.

In his mind, he had been the perfect gentleman, but she still wasn't interested.

If you have read this far into the article, you would know that he didn't start with attraction, so he got friend zoned.

The world doesn't work like this: Be really nice to women and you will be rewarded with sex and a relationship.

It works like this: Attract women and you will be rewarded with sex and a relationship.

13. Thinking that being an alpha male means being a jerk or bad boy

Some nice guys avoid taking an alpha male approach to life because they assume that to be an alpha male, they have to be the “top dog” all the time by bossing people around.

The nice guy just wants people to like him for the soft, insecure, gentle guy that he is.

That might of worked as a child, but it doesn't work when a guy becomes and adult and he will often feeling angry at people and the world for not taking pity on him like they did when he was a kid.

Whether he accepts that now or 20 years from now is his choice, the laws of nature ain't going to change for him.

It's a fact of nature that women are more attracted to alpha males than any other type of guy. It's not something that you can convince women to stop feeling. It's instinctive.

What I teach here at The Modern Man is how to be a good guy alpha male; the type of guy that women lust after and men respect. The type of guy that everyone wants to be friends with.

Yes, there are bad boy alpha males out there, but just because you've seen a jerk alpha male or an asshole alpha male before, it doesn't mean that all alpha males are like that.

So, don't be afraid of the term “alpha male” and assume that it's about being an aggressive asshole who bosses everyone around.

You can still be a good guy and be an alpha male. In fact, I recommend it.

Bad boy alpha males usually get their punishment in the end, whether it's prison time, divorce, loneliness or failure at life in general.

Good guy alpha males are the guys that almost everyone looks up to and respects (e.g. Dwayne “The Rock” Johnson, Will Smith, Bear Grylls, Bill Rancic).

When a nice guy goes through life rejecting women's desire for him to be an alpha male, he is limiting his attractiveness to women. He may be a perfect match for a woman in so many ways, but if she doesn't feel that he has alpha male qualities, her attraction for him will be mild at best.

14. Assuming that women are stupid and will fall for the “clever” nice guy act

Hollywood movies are partially to blame for this because, in the movies, the nice guy almost always gets the girl in the end.

An example of that is the movie 500 Days of Summer, where a nervous, nice guy named Tom hooks up with the female lead character named Summer, when she makes the first move on him and kisses him.

Throughout the movie, Tom behaves like a nice, innocent friend around her and is constantly obsessing over her.

He is in love with her and everything about her, but lies to her face by pretending to be a friend.

After a while, she picks up on the fact that he really likes her. Then, one day in the photocopying room, she stops, looks him in the eyes, walks over, kisses him and then walks out of the room.

Sadly, it's movies like 500 Days of Summer that cause so much confusion, depression and loneliness for modern men.

Nice guys all over the world look at that crap and think that women are stupid and will be tricked by the nice guy act into making the first move on a guy.

In the real world, a beautiful woman like Summer would have just hooked up with a confident guy and Tom would have remained in the friend zone where he had placed himself all along.

Since Hollywood movies are usually quite vague and don't come with explanations of what they really mean, it leaves it open to interpretation.

Someone like me can see exactly where Tom is going wrong, but many nice guys will watch what Tom does and think that it's a strategy that might work for them.

"If I can just be nice enough and behave as though I am a hopeless romantic, maybe a girl like Summer will take pity on me."

Many women watching the movie will roll their eyes and cringe when they recall the guys like Tom who have pursued them, despite there being no sexual chemistry.

Yet, women won't try to stop men from behaving like that.

Why? Many women use guys like Tom as a self-esteem boost and lead him along, showing little bits of interest so he comes infatuated with her, treats her nice, compliments her, does favors for her, etc.

If he gets an honest female friend, she might tell him, "You don't need to be that nice. Just be yourself" but he will have no idea what that means because it's a vague statement.

What he really needs to hear is, "Make her feel sexually attracted to you and turned on by you and she will then want you," but he probably won't know how to do that either.

15. Thinking that letting her be in the position of power will make her happy

A nice guy will often assume that the more power he gives to a woman, the happier she will be.

Yet, that's not how it works when it comes to sexual relationships.

In the workplace and in everyday life, women do want the opportunity to be in a position of power, but that doesn't mean that the same woman wants a man to submit to her power when he meets her at a bar or party for the first time.

These days, women take on leadership roles in the workplace and usually do an excellent job of it. However, when it comes to a sexual, romantic relationship a woman wants to be able to relax into the masculine power and direction of a man.

That doesn't mean she wants a man to disrespect her and put her down. Instead, she just wants a man to remain confident around her and not hand over his balls to her in the hope that she is nice enough to give him a chance to be with her.

A classic example of a guy handing over his power is when a woman that he is dating asks, "So, what do you want to do today?" and the nice guy replies, "Whatever you want to do."

Sure, women do want to get to choose where to go on dates sometimes, but in most cases, they just want to relax into being an emotional woman who doesn't need to lead the way all the time. She wants to feel feminine and girly around a guy who is taking the lead and not expecting her to take on the masculine role and lead him.

Some nice guys get angry at women for being turned off when a guy lacks the balls or the emotional masculinity to lead.

Over the years, many guys have asked me, "Dan, why do we men have to lead? Why can't a woman just take control and tell me what to do. I'll do whatever she wants, I don't care."

Yet, what a lot of guys don't realize is that a woman doesn't feel turned on, attracted and in love if she has to take on the role of being a guy's big sister, mother figure or teacher in life about how to be a man.

She wants a guy who makes her feel like she can relax and go along with what he wants to do, rather than always having to think ahead, plan and lead the way for the both of them.

So, rather than taking on the role as mother or big sister to a confused nice guy, a woman will simply reject him and hope to meet a guy who is willing to be a man for her.

Some guys hate to hear that though and will say, "I don't care what they want! I will stay single and jerk off to porn for life."

Yeah, right.

That guy will get more and more miserable as the years go on, until he eventually realizes that he's either going to have to be a man or he will continue to be left behind as his friends get girlfriends, get married, start a family and move onto the next levels of life without him.

16. Misinterpreting the complaints that women make about men

A nice guy will often hear women complaining about men not treating them well enough.

He will then come up with what initially seems like a genius idea, "Ahah! I've got it! I will let her do whatever she wants, I'll buy her gifts, dinner and drinks, I will do anything she says and treat her 100 times better than other guys do...THEN she will like me!"

What the nice guy fails to realize is that it doesn't matter how nice he is to a woman.

If she doesn't feel sexual attraction for him and respect him as a man, then she isn't going to be interested in having a sexual, romantic relationship with him.

Yes, the woman who is complaining about guys does want to find a better, nicer guy, but niceness isn't the number one trait that she is looking for.

Think about it from our perspective...

We men are more attracted to physically beautiful women. Despite our attraction for a woman's physical appearance, most of us guys also want a woman who has a good personality.

Yet, most guys would gladly have a sexual relationship with a beautiful woman based on their attraction for her. In other words, if a woman is hot, you'd probably bang her and hook up with her for a while simply based on the fact that she looks good.

The same goes for women; they feel attracted to a guy, have a sexual relationship with him and hope that they can change him into a better guy. When they can't change him, they complain, dump him and then try to find a better guy.

Nice guys will hear women say, "Guys are all assholes. Where are all the nice guys?" and he think, "WTF? I am right here. Why can't she see that I'm nice? I guess I will have to be even nicer to make sure that she notices that I'm not like other guys."

Yet, what women really mean by, "Where are all the nice guys?" is, "Where can I find a guy who makes me feel attracted and turned on and is also nice to me?"

Guys like that are very hard to find because they're usually already taken (e.g. have a girlfriend or wife), or have multiple girlfriends and don't have time for any more.

The good guy with multiple girlfriends might seem like a jerk to nice guys, but in most cases, he's just another good guy who is letting multiple women have a chance with him at once. If he falls in love with one of them, he will accept her as his exclusive girlfriend.

Many nice guys hate to hear that because it annoys them that a guy like him could have so many women, while the nice guy isn't getting anything other than the empty feeling he experiences after jerking off to porn multiple times per week.

What the nice guy doesn't understand is that women want to feel sexually attracted first and then any nice traits that a guy has are seen as a bonus.

When a woman meets a guy who makes her feel sexually attracted and also happens to be a good guy, she will feel as though has struck gold and will hold onto him with both hands and never let go.

Even if he is seeing other women at the same time, she will try hard to become his number one girl...and she will love the challenge.

Meanwhile, the nice guy will be thinking, "WTF? Why is she chasing after him? I would completely commit to her."

Yes, of course the nice guy wants to commit to her because he is attracted to her, but the attraction isn't mutual. He has to turn her on first and that is something that almost all nice guys are unwilling to do upfront because they think it's wrong or too forward.

17. Trying to convince a woman to like him

Many nice guys will attempt to convince women to like them, by explaining how he is not like other guys or that he has "feelings" for her.

What most nice guys don't realize is that a woman doesn't choose a guy based on how convincing his argument is about why he is better, nice, sweeter or more trustworthy than other guys.

A woman chooses based on the hot, tingly feeling she gets in her pussy.

In other words, if you turn her on by your behavior (e.g. by being confident, making her laugh, being charming, being charismatic), she will feel attracted to you and be willing to be with you, without you having to convince her to give you a chance.

Without knowing that simple fact, a nice guy will often express his "feelings" in a heartfelt way to a woman.

He'll say, "Why aren't you interested in me more than just a friend? I really like you. I would treat you so well. I will give you everything that you want. If you were my girlfriend, I would never cheat on you, treat you badly or take you for granted. Other guys just want to use you for sex, but I will give you my heart and my love forever.”

What the nice guy doesn't realize is that doesn't mean much or anything to a woman prior to her feeling sexual attraction and lust for him.

Women don't respond to promises of loyalty, kindness and niceness, they respond to feelings of sexual attraction. If you also happen to be a good guy, then it is a welcome bonus, but it's not her number one need.

Try to think think about it this way...

Imagine a woman who is completely unattractive to you.

The sort of woman who you would NEVER have sex with.

You have no sexual feelings for her at ALL, but she is saying to you, “I would treat you so well. I will give you everything that you want. If you were my boyfriend, I would never cheat on you, treat you badly or take you for granted. I would give you my heart and my love forever.”

Would that make you want her?

If you're not a desperate guy who would have sex with any woman who offers, then you will say no.

If you say yes and would have sex with her, then you have a mindset that is VERY unattractive to women (i.e. a mindset of sexual desperation). Women are turned off by men who will have sex with any woman, rather than having standards.

A woman only feels special if she knows that you could easily have other women, but are choosing her.

Anyway, back to the unattractive woman.

If her attempts to try and convince you to feel attracted to her and love her fail because you're NOT attracted to her, can you see where the nice guy fails too?

He fails to attract the woman, behaves in ways that turn her off (e.g. giving her too much power) and then tries to convince her to want a sexual relationship with him. Can you understand why she would say no?

She's not being a bitch, she's just acting on her instinct of attraction and with him, it's just not there.

18. Claiming to be an honest, nice guy, but lying about his intentions

Many nice guys have an impression of themselves as being more honest than almost everyone else in the world.

A nice guy will go through life feeling as though he deserves to be with women because she so nice, honest and respectful towards women. Yet, when he interacts with women that he's attracted to, he lies to them by pretending to be a nice, innocent friend.

When a nice guy observes a confident guy showing his sexual interest in a woman right away, the nice guy will usually label the guy as being a sleazy asshole.

In the mind of a nice guy, he thinks that women want to be taken on a series of sweet, innocent dates that eventually lead to a kiss when the woman is ready.

That approach was great in the 1950s, but not in today's world.

Today, almost all women kiss or have sex with a guy on either the first night, first date or second date.

Hearing that will anger some nice guys and a nice guy reading this may even assume that I think all women are sluts. They're not; it's just that the dating process has changed. These days, most women are open to starting a relationship with sex and then seeing where it goes.

In the 1800s for example, a man would have to slowly court a woman and then eventually ask her father for her hand in marriage.

Pre-marital sex was forbidden, so the dating strategy was a long courtship where the man proved himself as a nice, trustworthy man who could provide a good life for the woman.

Yet, that's just not how it works anymore.

Hearing that may make some nice guys wish they could go back in time and live in the 1800s and that is fine, but since we haven't invented time travel yet, he either has to accept that things have changed or continue missing out on sex and relationships and having to jerk off to porn all the time.

Not all women will have sex on the first night, first date or second date, but I estimate about 85% of the women I've met have been.

I've slept with women from all walks of life and nationalities and it's always the same because the dating game has changed.

Women may give the impression that they're "not that sort of girl" but that's just a social persona that they put on to avoid being mistakenly judged as being a slut. From the woman's perspective, she's just trying to have some fun while she works on finding the right guy for her.

Nice guys who interact with women and pretend to only be interested in her in a friendly way, often don't realize the dishonesty in their approach.

They feel as though they are being nice to her or being a "gentleman" and as such, they should be rewarded for it. After all, he always hears women complaining about men only "wanting one thing," so he tries to show her that he's not interested in sex.

Yet, she is interested in sex.

19. Copying the thought patterns of confused celebrity nice guys

Just because a guy is a celebrity or rock singer, it doesn't mean that he has all the answers to success with women.

Some nice guys will watch interviews of male celebrities and pop idols and hear them talk about women in the same, confused way as he does.

When listening to a song about women that has been written by a confused nice guy, a nice guy will think, "Yeah!!! See...THIS guys gets it! Women are so stupid for rejecting us nice guys...even this SINGER is saying it, so it MUST be true that women are just confused."

There are some celebrities and rock/pop singers who are good with women, but many aren't.

Some nice guys don't realize that and think that if celebrities are saying the same things about women

(e.g. women only go for bad boys), then it must be true. He then clings to the hope that ONE DAY women will realize their mistake and start giving nice guys the respect they “deserve.”

What the nice guy doesn't realize is that it isn't a smart move to copy the thought patterns of men who are still struggling with women despite being a celebrity.

He doesn't realize that there are millions of good guys who get laid more than celebrities, even though they are just ordinary guys.

He wants to believe that women are wrong for rejecting him because he doesn't want to face up to the fact that he may have been wrong about women all along.

So, he listens to confused, male celebrities who complain about women wanting bad boys and he feels happy in his little world of lonely masturbation and anger towards women.

What he doesn't realize is that most women would like him and be open to hooking up with him, if he could just be wise enough to start with sexual attraction and then confidently lead the way to kissing, sex and a relationship.

Yet, the nice guy doesn't want to do that.

He wants women to feel sexually attracted to him and romantically interested in him for being nice.

20. Thinking that being incredibly nice to a woman is original and will sweep her off her feet

[image: You can trust me. I am your friend. I am here for you. I'm not like all the other guys.]

What a nice guy doesn't realize is that his caring, attentive nice guy approach is NOT original.

Throughout her life, a woman will constantly be hit on by guys who are kind, considerate and extra nice in the hope of being liked by her.

A guy will think, “I'll get her...I'll be so damn nice to her that she will see me as the cutest, sweetest guy she's ever met. She will feel guilty about how kind I am being towards her and she will have to give me a chance with her.”

If a woman has some experience with men, she will know that very nice guys almost always change once they get her into a relationship.

The nice guy will usually go from being sweet, considerate and kind to insecure, inconsiderate and controlling when in a relationship.

Instead of explaining to him that she isn't falling for his nice guy act, she will simply say, “Thanks, but I'm not looking for a relationship” or “I wouldn't want to ruin our friendship” and then hope that he gets the hint.

She knows that nice guys who struggle to get laid are usually a nightmare to break up with, because they will cling on to the only attractive woman who has given them a chance in a long time.

21. Thinking that being romantic will make her want to be with him

Most nice guys see romance as a means to an end.

In other words, it's a trick, a ploy or a move to get a woman to like him.

Yet, when he tries this "special trick" on women, they are usually annoyed by it because the attraction isn't mutual.

Romance from a nice guy tends to be one sided, awkward and unwanted, but real romance is something that both the man and woman are aware of and want; it's exciting and invigorating for both of them because there is a mutual attraction.

From a nice guy's perspective, he thinks that by being romantic he is giving women what they want and if he really lays it on thick, the woman will feel guilty for getting so much nice attention and kindness that she will have to sleep with him.

22. Thinking that "being in touch with his feminine side" is what women want

In the 1980s, women began to have more of a voice on TV and were saying things like, "Men are so emotionless. They shouldn't be afraid to cry. They should get in touch with their feminine side. I respect a man who has the guts to cry."

Statements like those were partially responsible for creating what became known as the S.N.A.G (Sensitive New Aged Guy), which resulted in a lot of men ending up as 40 year old virgins or getting cheated on or dumped by women for years on end.

The SNAGS began crying during movies, taking a lot of interest in traditionally feminine things (e.g. cooking, cleaning, home decorating, fashion, romantic movies, etc) and rejecting traditional masculine behavior.

Many guys who were already married to a woman thought they could fix their stale marriage by becoming more of a SNAG. What did the wives do? Divorce them.

Why? If she wasn't attracted to him in the first place (e.g. because he had become insecure, wasn't able to make her feel girly and feminine in comparison to his masculinity) and then he became a sensitive, feminine type of guy, she would be even more turned off by him.

Here's the thing...

Sometimes, women just say whatever comes to their mind about men and relationship if they don't mean it.

Men who don't realize that it's not a woman's role to lead us and teach us how to be men, make the mistake of listening to what women say and then taking it 100% literally.

"Okay, you want sensitive? Fine, I will cry my frikken eyes out in front of you! Do you like me more NOW?"

[image: Feminine man crying during a movie]

Confused men follow what a woman says and then she changes her mind (often a second or two later), the guy is left confused and even angry at her for it.

He doesn't realize that we men have to decide what we want to do, while also taking into account the wants, needs and desires of women.

We need to be respectful of women and listen to them, but it is us men who make the final decision about how we behave, think and act.

It's not up to women to guide and take on the role of mother or big sister in your life.

It's just not how the nature of male/female attraction works.

Men who understand women know that a woman will often say one thing and then do the complete opposite or be fully committed to a new cultural idea one year and totally against it the next.

[image: Queer Eye For the Straight Guy]

These gay guys confused millions of modern men and helped create what became known as the Metrosexual

In the early 2000s, gay people became socially acceptable and began appearing on TV shows, such as "Queer Eye For the Straight Guy" in which they would give a heterosexual man a "makeover" and get him dress nicely, get a new hairstyle and make his home look more stylish.

When the straight guy was presented to everyone near the end of the show, women would say, "Wow! He looks so handsome. Wow! I like your clothes! Wow! I would date him"

So, what did many guys do?

They took it way too far and ended up creating what became known as the Metrosexual.

They began waxing their chests, legs and/or eyebrows. They got pedicures, manicures, started wearing pink shirts and way too much cologne.

What did women do? They rejected, cheated on or dumped those guys for being too in touch with their feminine side.

Women began saying, "I don't like a guy who spends more time getting in the bathroom than I do" and once again, guys all around the world were confused about what women want.

Don't get me wrong though.

The fact that modern men are more in touch with their emotions is a good thing. Additionally, the fact that it has become socially acceptable for a man to say, "I love you" to a friend or family member is also a GOOD thing.

In the past, a lot of men were too closed up emotionally.

A son would often grow up never hearing his father say, "I love you" or "I'm proud of you son," which is a damn shame for both of them.

However, thanks to the efforts of women and yes, even gay guys, modern men are much more capable of being more emotionally open and present with women, their friends and family.

So, a lot of good has come out of the confusion of the last 3-4 decades. We've become wiser, more enlightened and more open-minded.

To be clear: There is nothing wrong with feeling emotion, taking care of your appearance or even cooking a dinner for a woman.

The problem is when a guy goes overboard, loses touch with what it means to be a man and ends up coming across as a feminine guy or even making some people wonder if he is actually gay.

Don't copy the gay guys from TV and don't listen to what women say and take it so literally.

Yes, be more emotionally open and loving, but don't be a girl about it.

Women are not attracted to guys who are more “sensitive” and emotional than they are.

A woman wants to be able to feel as though she’s with a guy who is mentally and emotionally strong, not a guy who will break down into tears when life gets tough.

She wants to be able to relax into the feminine around a guy who is secure in his masculinity. If she wanted to be with someone who was very emotional and sensitive, she would hook up with a woman.

23. Misinterpreting the meaning of a woman teasing a confident guy

When a nice guy observes a woman tease a man or put him down for being very confident (e.g. “You think that all the women like you, don’t you?”), it is usually meant as a test of his confidence.

Women are attracted to confidence and when a woman tests a guy by teasing him and attempting to make him nervous, but notices that he remains confident, then she feels even MORE attracted to him.

If the confident guy is also a good guy, then the woman will be excited and want to be with him.

However, if no confident good guys are available, many women will hook up with a guy who is so confident that he is arrogant or a bit of a jerk.

Why? Confidence and masculinity are the most attractive things to women.

A nice guy will see a woman hooking up with a guy who isn’t very nice and wonder if the woman has lost her mind. He’ll think, “Why is she with him? He doesn’t give a crap about her and will just use her for sex. I would treat her so well. What is wrong with women?”

When a nice guy sees a woman putting a confident guy down or picking on a confident guy for believing in himself, a nice guy will often make the mistake of thinking that women want a man who will lower himself around her.

So, instead of behaving in a confident way around women, he will behave in a shy, soft, hesitant and polite way and let women push him around in the hopes that it will make them like him.

Nice guys will sometimes say, “I wouldn’t want to be presumptuous and assume that a woman likes me” not realizing that it’s that assumption, that belief in himself that would actually attract women.

Many nice guys feel embarrassed to be too confident around a woman because they feel as though would be disrespectful to the almighty woman. < em>”What if she thinks I am being arrogant by being confident? What if she says that I’m an asshole for assuming that she would like me?”

Many nice guys never realize that there is a big difference between being a good guy who is very confident and being arrogant.

Arrogance (noun): Offensive display of superiority or self-importance; overbearing pride.

Confidence (noun): Belief in oneself and one’s powers or abilities; self-confidence; self-reliance; assurance.

As a man, your confidence is your number one weapon for success with women and in life.

You’ve got to belief in yourself and go after what you want with women and in life. However, arrogance is a completely different thing altogether.

At times, it may appear as though women are putting a man down for being arrogant, but almost every time it will simply be a test of his confidence. If he remains confidence and doesn’t buckle under pressure, the women will be even more attracted to him than before.

24. Constantly contacting her

There's nothing wrong with showing your interest in a woman by getting in contact with her, but nice guys usually make the mistake of going overboard.

Sometimes, a nice guy will think, "I don't want her to think that I'm not interested. I'm not one of those jerks who will play games with her. I am serious about her. I will contact her all day every day because I want her to know how much I care and that I'm serious about her."

What he doesn't realize is that women want to have the opportunity to miss a guy.

Women love the feelings that come with wondering, "Will he call today?" or "Why hasn't he responded to my message? It's been two hours!"

The nice guy robs her of that and instead forces her to feel smothered, trapped and even annoyed by his constant contact.

The nice guy also doesn't realize that a woman wants to feel like she has to impress HIM and maintain HIS interest.

She wants to know that he could easily have other women, but if she plays her cards right and continues to impress him, he will give her a chance.

When a nice guy learns that about women, he usually thinks, "No, I don't want to play any games with her. I am serious about her and I will definitely give her a chance. I don't want her getting the impression that I would not accept her. Of course I would accept her. I want her more than anything else in the world."

What he doesn't realize is that the approach he is using towards her is the approach that she wishes he would make her take.

She wants to be in the position where she has to impress the guy to win his love and affection, rather than be in the position where she eventually "gives in" and gives a guy a chance with her because he's been so sweet and nice.

In other words, she wants a guy who is more of a challenge to win over...

Being a challenge doesn't mean faking it that you don't like a woman.

Instead, it's about making her feel attracted to you, showing some interest in her, but not being fully sold on her right away.

By eagerly trying to get her to be his girlfriend, a nice guy prevents the woman from experiencing the thrill of the chase as she gradually wins a guy over and is lucky enough to have sex with him or become his girlfriend.

A nice guy doesn't want to let her have that experience.

He feels as though showing any sign of resistance towards her will turn her off, when in reality, it actually makes a woman more interested.

Nice guys usually see challenging behavior as being as "jerk behavior," whereas women see it as exciting.

Why?

Think about it...

If a woman is attractive, pretty much every guy would bang her at least once.

There's no challenge for her.

She wants the excitement of feeling attracted to a guy, but not being able to get him to fully like her unless she really impresses him.

That way, she gets to feel like she has scored a guy that she really wants to be with, rather than just saying yes to the 99% of guys who would bang her if she allowed it.

Women won't go around admitting that, but all you have to do is watch what they do (i.e. lust after guys who make them feel attracted, but are a challenge to win over), rather than what they say, "I just want a nice guy" or "Where are all the nice guys?"

Once again, being a challenge is not about faking non-interest in a woman.

You have to make her feel attracted to you, show some interest, but not be fully sold on her unless she really impress you.

You don't say, "Okay, impress me" and expect her to impress you. Instead, you let her see that you're not fully sold on her by the way you use your body language, talk and respond and react to her.

25. Thinking that women are making a mistake by not dating him

[image: Fuck you bitch. I'm a nice guy]

A nice guy will often develop the attitude of, "Well, stuff you bitches...if you can't see the good guy that is in front of you, then you won't ever get to be with me. You can all go get fked!"

Personally speaking, I feel sorry for guys like that and I work my ass off here at The Modern Man to make as many informative articles and videos as I can, to hopefully get the message out there.

Nice guys are usually good, intelligent, honest guys, but they just have the wrong idea about how the human mating dance works.

When a nice guy doesn't understand attraction and what women really want, he will get angry at women for choosing guys based on things that he doesn't understand.

He wants women to stop following their natural instinct of attraction and start lusting after guys because they are nice.

When he tries to get women to like him for being nice and they aren't interested, he concludes that women must be crazy and are making a mistake by not seeing how good of a guy he is.

Yet, unless he actively starts making women feel sexually attracted to him during interactions, he will continue to experience the same rejection over and over again.

Eventually, a girl may give him a chance, but she will lose interest in him in a relationship if he is unable to maintain her feelings of attraction after the initial novelty of being with someone new wears off.

26. Thinking that building a friendship with a woman is the same as going through a sexual courtship with her

A friendship is different to a sexual relationship.

While it might seem like the “logical” thing to do to build a friendship with a woman before making a move or tell her that you have feelings for her, it’s just not the way it works.

The fact is that many women will kiss or have sex with a guy on the first night, first date or second or third date, without any prior friendship or knowledge of the guy.

- An American study found that 55% of couples have sex on their first date.
- Durex Condoms survey in Norway found that 70% of people had experienced a one-night stand.
- Student Beans survey in the UK found that 51% of men and women admitted to having experienced a one-night stand.
- The National Survey on Sexual Attitudes and Lifestyles found that the average amount of men that a woman had sex with before marriage has almost doubled in the last 10 years from an average of 3.7 to now 7.7.

Does this mean that modern women are sluts?

No.

Pre-marital sex is no longer forbidden, so women men and women are free to take each other for a test drive first (i.e. have sex, date for a while) before they commit to an actual relationship.

Some guys fall in love right away and commit because they are a great match, while others have sex, break up and continue looking for a more compatible person.

Some nice guys might complain about that and say that they wish they were living in 1800, but those guys just need to grow up and accept that the world ALWAYS changes.

Culture is never stuck on one trend forever.

It used to be forbidden for women to wear a mini skirt. It was shocking for a woman to show her ankles.

Now, millions of men all over the world are jerking off to hardcore porn, where women are copping 3-4 dicks at once.

The world changes man. Deal with it.

The gentleman nice guy approach of slowly courting a woman has been replaced by instant hook ups that either result in a relationship or a, “That was fun, bye!”

A lot of nice guys just don’t understand how much sex is actually going on.

In his mind, women don’t want sex as much as he does. Why does he think that? Because most women aren’t sexually attracted to him because he uses the nice guy approach.

In his world, women aren’t even into sex because they always seem to be saying things like, “Sorry, I’m not looking for a boyfriend right now” or feel shocked when he shows sexual interest in them.

Why? Because the sexual attraction isn’t mutual.

The nice guy is trying to achieve his end goal with her (i.e. a sexual relationship) by being a friend to her first and hoping to slowly grow on her over time.

The nice guy tries to get a woman to “like” him as a person, but doesn’t realize that a woman liking him as a person is completely different to her feeling sexual attraction and lust for him.

Sexual attraction is required before sex, not a friendship.

It’s fine to be friendly with a woman after you make her feel sexually attracted, but don’t waste time doing it beforehand. You will get instant results with women if you start by turning them on instead.

Here’s the thing though...

If you listen to what women SAY, they will say that they like to “get to know a guy first” before rushing into anything.

Yeah, right.

[image: How to get a one night stand]

If you watch what women DO, you will see that they feel instant attraction for some guys and rush into a sexual or committed relationship, without getting to know him well.

Why? Women can’t go around looking slutty by admitting that they don’t need to get to know a guy first before kissing him or having sex with him.

27. Reframing rejection as being the fault of everyone else

Over the years, some guys have contacted me and said something along the lines of, “I’ve done the noble thing by being a really nice guy. I’m a gentleman. I’m a good guy, but women just don’t get it. I guess they want to be treated like shit. Where are all the women that my grandfather would have been able to meet? Give me those types of women. The women of today are just money hungry sluts who don’t know a good guy when one is staring her in the face. If they want guys to treat them like shit, maybe I should start being an asshole.”

I feel sorry for guys like that because they just don’t know what you’ve been learning so far in this article.

I used to feel the same way at times and wonder why a beautiful, intelligent woman would want to be with a guy who I perceived to be a bad boy, asshole, jerk or just a guy who didn’t seem like he was any better than me.

I heard so many women say things like, “I want a nice guy” and I misinterpreted what women actually meant by it.

I thought they meant, “A really, really nice, sweet, polite guy” when they actually meant, “A guy who makes me feel attracted and is also nice to me.”

When I didn’t understand what I now teach here at The Modern Man, I thought that I deserved to have beautiful women in my life because I was nice.

I thought everyone else was acting crazy for not giving me the credit that I felt I deserved for being so nice.

Yet, I was wrong.

For a nice guy to become successful with women, he has to stop blaming everyone else and simply start making women feel attracted to him by displaying the personality traits, behaviors and inner qualities that naturally attract women (e.g. confidence, charisma, masculine vibe, charm, humor).

A nice guy needs to understand that women do want a good guy, but getting a woman to have sex with him doesn't begin with him showing her how nice of a guy he is; it starts with sexual attraction.

Women aren't crazy for rejecting nice guys, just like men aren't crazy for rejecting physically unattractive women.

Both genders are simply reacting to what they feel naturally turned off or attracted to.

Physically unattractive women might feel angry that men don't find them very attractive, but we can't help it.

Likewise, nervous, self-doubting nice guys might feel angry that women don't find them very attractive, but women can't help it that they feel attracted to confidence.

28. Hoping that he will grow on a woman if he can just spend enough time around her

In the movies, the nice guy who is hopeless with women will eventually grow on the woman.

He will start out getting rejected by her and then he will save the day, save the world or save the girl and then she will like him.

Awww, how sweet.

In the real world though, a guy needs to create the spark of sexual attraction right away otherwise another guy who knows how to do it will have a sexual relationship with her and he'll end up in the friend zone.

[image: How to get out of the friend zone]

In some cases, a guy will have time to slowly grow on a woman, but in most cases, modern women have options and will simply hook up with a guy who gets her attracted and moves it forward to kissing and sex.

Over the years, many guys have said something along the lines of this to me, "Dan...I'm a bit of shy guy, but once women get to know me they start to like me."

Yet, that's just not good enough.

Hoping to eventually "grow on a woman" is not an effective strategy for having your choice of women in today's world.

All it takes to lose the woman you like is for another guy who knows what he's doing (i.e. he starts with attraction and then confidently guides her to kissing and sex) to come along and take her from you.

After that, you will be placed even further in the friend zone than ever before.

Even if you had known the woman for months and had really gotten to know her as a friend, she will place more importance on the hot, tingly feeling in her pussy, than the friendly feelings she has for you.

She wants to get laid with a guy who makes her feel attracted, not a self-doubting, nice guy who makes her feel friendly emotions.

100 years ago, a nice guy would have had more of a chance to grow on a woman because a woman didn't really have that many options, compared to today where women can go out to a bar, use online dating or just say "Yes" to the many guys who like her at work or through friends.

A long time ago, dating was frowned upon and most women couldn't be alone with a potential suitor and would need to have a chaperone (usually a member of the family) accompany her and the guy everywhere, to ensure that they didn't kiss or get physical in any way.

Back then, a woman had to save her virginity for marriage, so the dating process was completely different.

In today's world, most women have sex on the first night, first date or first few dates.

[image: Modern women hooking up with guys rather than rushing to settle down]

Some guys get angry when they hear that because it implies that modern women are sluts, but they aren't.

Humans adapt their dating and mating strategies to the particular culture they are surrounded by.

In today's world, most people don't wait until marriage to lose their virginity and instead have many sexual, romantic, loving relationships before feeling ready to settle down.

Many women only sleep with a guy as a way of keeping him interested because they know that a lot of guys will not put up with having to wait weeks or months to have sex.

So, instead of losing him to another girl, she will sleep with him very quickly so they can start their relationship.

Many nice guy don't realize this and instead try to slowly grow on a woman over time, hoping that she will eventually "like" him.

He doesn't realize that he can skip all that crap and get right to sex and a relationship by attracting her first and then moving it forward.

29. Thinking that if he tells a woman he has feelings for her, it will make her want to be with him

[image: I wuv you...?]

One of the most common mistakes that a nice guy makes is telling a woman that he has feelings for her, before he has even attracted her and created the exciting, loving feelings that come with sexual chemistry.

In the mind of a nice guy, he thinking, "If she knows how much I care about her, love her and respect her, then she will surely give me a chance and want to be with me."

Yet, as you would know if you've read this far into the article, that isn't the way to start a sexual relationship with a woman.

In many cases, a nice guy will behave like her friend for a long time and then suddenly confess his "feelings" for her, but she will have been so turned off by self-doubting, super nice behavior that she won't see him in that way at all.

She will have noticed that he was being extra nice and polite as an attempt to get her to like and trust him, which she will suddenly stop feeling around him.

Instead of making her feel sexually attracted and turned on while he interacted with her, he would have been making her feel very friendly, soft, innocent, polite, unsexy emotions.

So, rather than looking to him as a man who she'd love to get bent over by, she looks at him more like a little brother or friend.

Despite being a good guy and having good intentions with her, she rejects him because she just doesn't feel the same way he does (i.e. she doesn't feel the sexual attraction that he does for her).

When a nice guy gets to that point and hears a woman say, "Sorry, I don't see you in that way. I think we should just remain friends" it is devastating.

He has spent so much time thinking about her, fantasizing about being in a relationship with her and believing that he has been going about the courtship in the right way.

In his mind, his "clever plan" to get her to like him and trust him was working until he confessed his feelings. Little does he know, he was going about it the wrong way the entire time and only ever made her see him as a friend.

At this point, a lot of nice guys feel angry, confused and bitter towards the woman and women in general.

Some guys won't move on from that experience for many years of their life, never really understanding the fundamental mistakes they've made.

They also don't realize that they actually can recover from their mistakes and get the woman into a sexual relationship by simply going about it in the right way from now on (i.e. focus on making her feel sexually attracted and turned on. When she is feeling a lot of attraction, move to the next appropriate level – kiss, date, sex).

30. Thinking that asking a woman if he can kiss her is romantic and the "right thing to do"

In romantic movies and movies that are based on high school and college life, you will often see a nice guy asking a girl if he can kiss her.

She'll reject him, but later on the movie, he will save the day, save the world or save her from some sort of danger. Then, in most cases, she will rush over and kiss him first.

For a lot of modern men who've grown up without a proper education on how to attract and pick up women, they may look at that as the way the world really works.

A guy might think that if he behaves like one of those loveable loser characters in movies and asks a girl if he can kiss her, she will say yes or eventually kiss him in a random moment after he has been super helpful towards her.

What a nice guy doesn't realize is that women hate being asked if they want to be kissed because it shows a lack of confidence and masculinity.

When a woman masturbates, she fantasizes about having sex with a confident, masculine guy doing whatever he wants to do to her.

Women dream of being in front of a confident, masculine guy who, when the moment is right, pulls her close to him and starts kissing her or leans in and kisses her.

Yet, a nice guy will often make the mistake of acting like an innocent gentlemen and bashfully asking if he can kiss her.

It's an act because that's not how he really wants to behave.

When he jerks off to porn, he has all sorts of hardcore thoughts about women and imagines himself doing all sorts of "naughty" things.

Yet, when in the presence of a real woman, he acts as though he's an innocent gentleman from the year 1892.

What the nice guy doesn't realize is that asking a woman's permission to kiss her will ruin the moment for her.

She will feel disappointed that he is suppressing his masculinity around her and pretending to be more of a feminine, shy, self-doubting man.

31. Expecting that a woman should care about him because he cares so much about her

[image: I really care about you. Please give me a chance to be with you. I will do anything you ask]

When nice guys reach out to me for help, they will often say, "Dan, I really care about this girl. She's special to me. How can I get her to feel the same way? She said she only sees me as a friend. I don't know what to do. I really like her, I respect her...why doesn't she see that?"

What he doesn't realize is that really caring about a woman is not the step before sex.

Nice guys often perceive themselves as being really caring, considerate gentleman and feel as though that should give them an edge over other guys.

He will often feel as though he is entitled to have sex with a woman because he is nicer than the other guys in her life.

If the woman doesn't "allow" him to have sex with her, then he feels as though she's obviously a bitch who likes jerks and bad boys and wants to be treated badly by men.

This stems from a nice guy not understanding attraction and what women really want to experience while going through a sexual courtship with a guy.

Even though his approach to women doesn't work and results in him being rejected or dumped again and again, he keeps doing it.

He feels as though women must be confused and need to be rescued from all the bad men in the world.

Some nice guys remain a virgin into their 30s and 40s, or rarely have any relationships with women because they are using the flawed nice guy approach.

Instead of going through a sexual courtship the fast and easy way, a nice guy will waste time trying to show women how much he respects them, cares about them and wants to be their friend.

For an intelligent nice guy, it's difficult to admit that his approach might be wrong.

He's used to being right about pretty much everything else in his life, so he assumes that he is right about women too and everyone else just doesn't get it.

Unless he has more of an open mind, he may continue on his nice guy path for life, constantly experiencing rejection, break ups and the inevitable frustration and even depression that comes with it.

32. Misinterpreting what women mean by “nice guy” or “sweet guy”

When a woman gushes and lustfully refers to a guy that she likes by saying, “He’s such a sweet guy” or “...and he’s so nice” it means that she is ALSO sexually attracted to him.

She has probably already kissed him and possibly even had sex with him recently.

In the mind of a nice guy, he hears “sweet” and “nice” and takes what the woman is saying literally.

He thinks that the guy must be very sweet and nice to her and wonders why she hasn’t been responding to his nice, polite sweet behavior.

A nice guy will often then make the mistake of thinking, “Right...well, if these women want nice and sweet, then I will be 100x nicer and sweeter than all the other guys. THEN they will like me!”

Unfortunately, he just doesn’t understand attraction and what women really want to experience before sex and when a relationship begins after sex.

[image: I'll be 100 times nicer than all the other guys...THEN women will like me!]

33. Thinking that if he gives her hints that he likes her, she will make the first move

An example of this is shown in the movie, 500 Days of Summer, where the male lead character named “Tom” is a typical nice guy.

He is obsessed with the female lead character named Summer, but doesn’t know how to make something happen between them.

When Summer asks if he wants something from the office supply room, Tom tries to hint to her that he likes her by saying, “You know what I want.”

Summer looks confused and acts like she doesn’t understand what he is trying to say.

Why? She doesn’t want to lead him and make it easy for him to hook up with her. She wants a guy who is confident to move things forward, without having to get her to reassure him that she is interested.

In his mind, he is hoping that she says, “Oh yes, I know what you want. You want to have sex with me. Okay cool, let’s have sex tonight and start a relationship.”

Of course, in the movie, she ends up kissing him first, which was really disappointing for me to see because I know how much that will confuse real guys and mess with their head.

Summer could tell that Tom was interested, so one day in the photocopy room, she looks at him and then walks up, kisses him (tongue make out) and then walks out. After that, they start a relationship.

Some nice guys will see that and think that if they just give a woman enough hints and wait long enough, she will make the first move.

Yet, in the real world, a woman like Summer wouldn’t do that and would simply have sex with a confident guy who picked her up.

500 Days of Summer is just one of many bullshit nice guy movies that cause men and women so many problems around the world every day.

The really annoying part about the movie is that, in the end, Summer left him for another guy and got married, without ever explaining why she did it.

Then, using the same nice guy approach women, Tom picks up another woman while waiting to be interviewed for a job. This time, the woman is even MORE beautiful than Summer. Then, the credits roll and everything is all nice and peachy.

Unfortunately, a lot of nice guys get sucked in by the bullshit, fantasy reality of movies and then feel depressed when their nice guy approach doesn't work in real life.

Guys see movie characters like Tom being kissed by women for giving hints that he likes her and think, "Wow! Maybe I can do that with the girl at work or at university. Maybe if I can give her enough hints, she will ask me out or even kiss me when we're alone."

That movie actually portrays women as being stupid and gullible when faced with the nice guy act.

In the real world, women reject guys like Tom and hook up with confident guys who know what they are doing.

If a guy like Tom does "get lucky" and get a chance with a woman like Summer, he almost always gets dumped later on when she realizes her mistake.

Women aren't stupid; they want a confident man who makes them feel attraction, respect and love and if a guy can't deliver that, the woman will reject, dump or divorce him.

Again, some nice guys will feel annoyed when they read that because he might feel as though women are too hard to please.

They're not.

Women are easy to please when you understand what makes them feel attracted.

If you don't understand how to initially attract a woman and then deepen her respect, attraction and love when in a relationship, then yes – women will seem very hard to please and your relationship life will feel like a nightmare.

However, when you know how to attract women and also know how to deepen their feelings in a relationship, it's an easy, wonderful, enjoyable life full of love, laughter and good times.

34. Thinking that chivalry will get him laid

| Chivalry (noun): Courteous behavior, especially that of a man toward women.

Nice guys who get caught up in being chivalrous towards women usually don't realize that chivalry means nothing to a woman unless she is sexually attracted to the guy.

A woman will usually be happy about the nice treatment and will welcome it, but chivalry isn't the "trick" that gets a woman to say, "Wow! You're so sexy! I want to be with you!"

A nice guy will often feel angry at women for not rewarding him for his chivalry.

"I opened the door for her and what do I get? Nothing. She smiled and then went and flirted with that asshole at the bar. Look at the prick – he's touching her. He smacked her ass...did you see that? Why does she want to be disrespected like that? Why do women like douche bags and hate nice guys like me who are chivalrous and actually care about them? It just doesn't make any sense!"

In the mind of the nice guy, women are innocent angels who need to be treated like a princess.

Showing any sign of sexual interest towards a woman is wrong and only when he has offered enough chivalry to her, will she then reward him with sex and a relationship.

He feels as though needs to open doors for her, pull out a chair for her at the table, buy her drinks and dinner, give her his coat if it is cold and generally be as chivalrous as possible.

What he doesn't understand is that almost all modern women only like small doses of chivalry from guys whom they are sexually attracted to.

Too much chivalry is seen as tacky to most modern women because it's so outdated.

We are living in a completely different world today and to be successful with women, a nice guy needs to accept that he's not living in the medieval period where everyone needed to be "proper" and display the best of manners at all times.

In today's world, good manners are appreciated, but being excessively well mannered is usually seen as tacky and unnecessary for most situations.

35. Thinking that the answer must be to treat women like shit

For nice guys who never come across this article and don't ever learn what you've been learning so far, they will often come to the conclusion that women are crazy and must want to be treated like shit.

In the video below, you will see that a group of confused nice guys even made a song about it.

A lot of confused nice guys will watch that video and think that if guys are singing about women being crazy and wanting to be treated like shit, then it must be true.

Here's the thing...

The secret to success with women is not to treat women badly.

Of course women don't want that.

If women wanted a bad guy who treated them horribly, you would hear women bragging about how their man beats them up, abuses them and treats them like dirt.

The secret to success with women is to be a confident, good guy who can turn women on during a conversation and deepen their feelings in a relationship.

36. Misunderstanding a woman's reasons for rejecting him

[image: The girl I'm obsessed with doesn't like me. She must be a shallow bitch]

What a nice guy usually fails to realize is that he's not being rejected for being nice, he's being rejected for not making her feel attracted to him first.

Instead of being a confident guy around her and making her feel girly in response to his masculinity (e.g. his masculine tone of voice, his masculine attitude, his masculine behavior and body language), a nice guy will hope that a woman will like him for being really nice to her.

Regardless of how nice he is to women, they just aren't interested because the attraction isn't mutual.

Yes, he feels attracted to her and would happily bang her and even have a relationship with her, but all she feels towards him are friendly feelings because he's doing nothing to actively turn her on and make her feel attracted.

Not knowing this, a nice guy will sometimes think, "Why doesn't she give me a chance? I'm a nice guy. Isn't that what women want? Am I not good looking enough? Is that what it is?" never stopping to notice that he often sees beautiful women with average or even below-average looking guys.

To come up with an easy excuse, he tries to make it out to be about his looks, instead of facing up to the fact that his nice guy approach to women may be causing the rejection.

37. Thinking that he has to save women from mistakenly hooking up with bad boys or jerks

Some nice guys feel as though women are making a HUGE mistake by hooking up with guys who aren't as nice as he is.

In his mind, a woman is like a "damsel in distress" and doesn't have enough intelligence or awareness to realize her mistake, dump the "bad" guy and then hook up with a "nice" guy instead.

A nice guy often feels as though a woman just needs to be told that she's making a mistake and should be choosing a nice guy like him, rather than being used and disrespected by some jerk who doesn't even care about her.

Movies and fairytales brainwash this mindset into boys from a very young age.

Boys are taught that women are helpless and are often being taken advantage of by bad people or bad men.

In the movie, cartoon or fairytale, the hero boy or man will save the poor, helpless woman and they will live happily ever after. Superman saves the day, then gets the girl. Spiderman saves the day, then gets the girl. The list goes on and on.

In many Hollywood movies, the wimpy nice guy character will usually walk up, punch the bad boy in the face and knock him out with one punch.

This usually happens when the bad guy goes too far and treats the woman badly and then the nice guy steps in to save the day.

After he saves the day, she is his girl and he starts behaving very confidently from then on in the movie.

In the mind of a nice guy, women are innocent angels who need to be rescued from the bad men they are sleeping with.

To him, women are clueless, helpless victims who are making a huge mistake.

What the nice guy doesn't realize is that women are simply hooking up with men whom they feel attraction for and hoping that one of those guys turns out to be a good guy.

The nice guy sees this as stupid, crazy behavior by women, even though he jerks off to whores and sluts (bad girls) while watching porn.

He feels as though women need to be saved from their mistake and held in his nice, loving arms.

What he doesn't realize is that women don't want to be held by him unless he firsts make them feel sexual attraction.

A nice guy will often become obsessed with a woman from work or university or that he has met through friends.

Since most women don't show him any interest, if a woman does show him interest and also happens to be with what he sees as a bad boyfriend or husband, he will feel as though he needs to save her.

He may think, "She a special woman. She doesn't deserve to be treated like that. That guy isn't half the man I am. She should be with me. If she was my girlfriend, I would do everything for her. I would treat her like a princess."

What he doesn't realize is that women are perfectly capable of making their own decisions.

Women are just as and sometimes even more intelligent than men and are usually very aware of the decisions they are making regarding their sex life.

If a woman doesn't know that she is making a mistake, she will eventually realize it. However, she doesn't need to be saved by a sweet nice guy who feels as though she needs to be handled like fragile glass.

First and foremost, a woman wants to feel sexually attracted to the guy that she is with. She also wants to respect him as a man and feel feminine around him.

The number one thing on a woman's list is NOT niceness, but niceness is something that almost all women want from a man that they are attracted to.

When a woman is with a bad man, she will almost always wish she could find another man who is just as confident as her man, but who is also a really good guy.

Those men are hard to find though, which is why you will often hear women saying, "Where are all the real men?"

Many women have to settle for what they've got because there is a shortage of real men in today's world. When women do come across a real man (i.e. a good guy who is also confident and has a masculine approach to life), they grab onto him with both hands and never want to let go.

Yet, when a woman comes across yet another self-doubting nice guy who suppresses his masculinity around her, she sighs in disappointment.

Guys like that are a dime a dozen, but real men are as hard for women to find as a needle in a haystack.

38. Thinking that buying her flowers or a gift will do the trick

[image: I got you some flowers. Now we have sex, right?]

Not all nice guys make this mistake, but I've heard from enough guys over the years to mark this down as a common reason why nice guys fail with women.

I've literally lost count of the amount of guys who have bought a woman a gift, or bought a series of gifts in an attempt to win her affections.

[image: Trying to buy her love]

In the 1800s and early 1900s when almost all women couldn't earn their own money, it was a good idea for a guy to show that he could buy her lots of nice, pretty things.

However, times have changed and women no longer select guys on the basis of being able to buy things for them.

In today's world, sexual attraction and emotional compatibility are the most important thing for most women because they actually want to love the guy they are with and enjoy being around him.

Yes, there are some gold diggers out there and women who only like guys who are rich, but the majority of women don't reject guys who work in a normal job or earn an okay income, because the majority of guys fall into that category.

Pretty much every guy you see with a hot girl is just earning a normal wage and in some cases, doesn't even have a job.

She hooks up with him and gets into a relationship with him based on sexual attraction, not money or means. She can afford to do that because she can provide for herself by working and earning money.

In the past, a woman would put up with a man (for life!) even if she didn't love him or want to be with him, simply because he could provide food and shelter and because it was shameful to divorce.

It wasn't always about attraction and real love back then.

Not anymore though.

If you want to be successful with women in today's world, you actually need to be able to make a woman feel attracted and then deepen her feelings of respect, attraction and love in a relationship.

39. Thinking that a woman will want him if he explains how nice he is compared to other guys

[image: Wow! You're so nice! Why aren't other guys as nice as you are?]

When a nice guy overhears a woman complaining about men, or about her boyfriend, husband or lover, he will often see that as his chance to be with her.

He'll explain to her that he's not like other guys and remind her that she deserves so much better.

When she complains about guys only being interested in her for sex, he will explain to her that he's not like other guys and cares about a woman as a person before anything else.

When a woman notices that a nice guy is constantly putting other guys down and saying how good he is compared to other guys, she realizes that he's doing it as an attempt to impress her and get her to see him in a good light.

He feels as though the nicer, more innocent and gentlemanly he appears to her, the more she's going to want to be with him.

He thinks, "After all, women do say that they want a nice guy. So, I've just got to get it through to them that I'm the nicest guy available."

In the mind of a nice guy, he thinks that getting a woman into a sexual relationship is about getting her to "like" him as a person first. He doesn't realize that a woman liking a man is secondary to her feeling attraction for him.

A woman would rather be with a guy who makes her feel attraction and then hope to change him over time, than be with a guy who she doesn't feel sexually attracted to, but who is really nice to her.

40. Pretending to be anti-men in an attempt to get women to like him

[image: All men are assholes]

Since a nice guy makes the mistake of thinking that he has to get women to “like” him before he can have sex with them, he sometimes make the mistake of being anti-men.

When feminist women complain about all men being chauvinist pigs or only interested in sex, some nice guys will see that as an opportunity to be “liked” by women.

He will say something like, “yeah, I know...most men are just pigs. Sometimes I am ashamed to be a man because other guys give us a bad name. I’m not like them at all. I treat women with respect. Women are intelligent and shouldn’t be looked at a sex objects. Women have feelings and should be respected.”

From a nice guy’s perspective, his “clever plan” is a genius idea and will be his special trick to get into the panties of naive women.

He’ll often get so caught up in the feminist bullshit that he will actually start to believe it. He will think that any guy who isn’t bowing down to the almighty woman is a chauvinist pig or an asshole who needs to be educated about “how to treat a lady.”

What the nice guy doesn’t realize is that most women can see right through his false persona.

When women notice that other women aren’t attracted to him and he basically has no options with women, they will realize that he is being a cheerleader for women to get them to like him, or he might actually be gay.

After all, he’ll say things like, “I’m on your side ladies. All men are bastards!” in the hope to be liked, so no-one can blame the women for suspecting that he might be one of the girls.

Instead of having sex with the women he has befriended, he will be seen as more like a brother to them.

Then, when he eventually tries to make a move, he will get the old, “Huh? What are you doing? Noooo...we’re just friends” or “Sorry, I like you as a person, but not in that way. I don’t want to ruin our friendship” line, which is simply a gentle way of saying, “I am not attracted to you.”

The exact same nice guys who complain about men looking at women as sex objects or “only being interested in one thing” will go home and jerk off to sluts and whores while watching porn.

Then, when he interacts with real women, he will behave as though he doesn’t look at women in a sexual way.

He gives women the impression that he feels as though women are perfect princesses who should be treated with the utmost of respect and should never be looked at in a sexual way.

41. Believing that women should choose men based on their level of niceness

Imagine for a moment that women did choose men on how nice they were.

In that world, the nicest, most polite, obedient men would get the girl. The nicer a guy was to a woman, the more of a chance he'd have to get a chance with her.

Can you imagine it?

Men would essentially be slaves to the almighty woman.

[image: Who should wear the pants in a relationship? Men or women?]

A man would bow at a woman's feet and beg for her affections.

If a woman wanted to sit down, a man would get down on all fours and she would sit on his back.

She would fart on him and he would say, "Thank you m'lady" and she would say, "Shut your trap."

I know, it's a bit of an "out there" example, but I intentionally made it a bit out there to make a point.

It is not our role to suck up to women and hope to get a chance with them.

You can do that if you want, but women will not respect you or feel attracted to you if use that approach.

Sure, many women will like you as a person because you're so nice, but they won't be fantasizing about having sex with you. Instead, they will just hook up with a guy who doesn't feel the need to bow down to them like you do.

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but just don't put on an act of being even nicer than you are to suck up to her.

She can see right through it.

What many nice guys fail to realize is that women do not choose guys based on niceness.

It's not how the world works and if it did work that way, planet Earth would be a very weird place indeed.

For a nice guy to break away from his fairytale ideas of women being perfect princesses who choose men based on niceness, he needs to accept that it's not how the world works.

Women want men to be good to them, but to not be such an ass-kissing nice guy who puts on an act of being even nicer than he is to hopefully get her approval.

42. Thinking that continuously putting a woman's needs ahead of his own, will prove to her how "devoted" he is

Some nice guys will do anything and everything for a woman in an attempt to get to "like" him.

For example: He may drive her around town to get errands done even though he is busy with other things, cancel his important plans to help her with anything she needs and generally let her use him in any way she wants.

In his mind, this is the perfect way to show her how devoted he is. He hopes that she will eventually realize that he's a great guy and will then want to be with him.

The nice guy will feel as though he needs to prove himself to a woman before she will "give him a chance."

He may even say to her, "I will do anything for you. Just name it and I will do it. I want to show you how much I care about you. You are very special to me."

What a nice guy doesn't realize is that a woman doesn't care how "devoted" he is if she isn't attracted to him.

Women don't want a friendly, non-sexual guy that they can push around or lead around like a little puppy dog.

If you decide to put a woman's needs ahead of your own at times because you're a good guy and sincerely only want to be her friend, that is completely fine and acceptable.

However, if you are constantly putting a woman's needs ahead of your own and letting her take advantage of you in the hope that it will make her "like" you and give you a chance to have a sexual relationship with her, then you're doing it wrong.

43. Not admitting his attraction for a woman

When a nice guy likes a woman and wants to have a sexual relationship with her, he will rarely tell her that he finds her attractive.

Rather than saying, "You're sexy...I like you" or "You look sexy in that dress" he will make friendly, innocent comments like, "You have nice guys" or "That's a nice dress."

If the woman is experienced enough with dating and relationships, she will know that he has a crush on her.

However, since he isn't man enough to do anything about it, she will feel turned off by his dishonest, insecure approach.

From then on, any type of nervous, self-doubting or hesitant behavior around her will be a sign that he either doesn't feel good enough for her (women hate that) or he is trying to trick her into thinking he is an innocent nice guy who just wants to be her friend (they hate that just as much).

She will know that something just isn't quite right with him.

Since women don't go around instructing guys on how to be a man, she will just accept that he is who he is and will say something like, "You'll find a nice girl one day...don't worry" or "I wish I could find a nice guy like you" and plenty of other confusing comments that make no sense to most nice guys.

She will then hope that he gets the message and understands that she doesn't feel attracted to him.

Since he thinks that he needs to hide his attraction for her, he will sneak looks at her and hope that she doesn't catch him. Sometimes, she will catch him looking at her and he will quickly look away feeling embarrassed or though he has been busted.

She will then begin to lose trust in him and will put her guard up. She may even feel uncomfortable being alone with him because something just doesn't seem right.

44. Sticking to safe conversation topics to avoid offending women

When a nice guy is talking to a new woman, he usually sticks to the classic, boring conversation topics of work, location and age.

"Where do you work? Where do you live? How old are you?" When those topics dry up, he usually has a few more things to say before completely running out of things to say.

Instead of being real and being able to keep a conversation going and keep it interesting in a fun, easy-going way, he puts on an act of being a polite, nice guy to hopefully impress her with his manners.

He worries about potentially saying the wrong thing to a woman because he thinks that he has to get women to “like” him.

He doesn't realize that if he focused on making women attracted to him, they would be interested in talking about pretty much anything with him and would try to keep the conversation going.

What women want is a good guy who also has a backbone.

In other words, a good guy who has balls and who isn't afraid to say or do whatever he wants, while also being respectful towards others.

When women get the sense that a guy is afraid to explore conversation topics or say anything that they might disagree with, they realize that he has no backbone.

He's a soft, wimpy assed nice guy who will bend and flex to please everyone in the hope that he is liked. That is very unattractive to women because men like that are usually picked on by guys, picked last for promotions and insecure in relationships.

If she is talking about something that he doesn't agree with, a nice guy will usually try to avoid saying what he really thinks.

He doesn't want to offend her, so he may even pretend to agree with her.

If she senses that he's just agreeing with her to please her, she will lose respect for him. When a woman loses respect for a man, she instantly begins to lose attraction for him and when that happens, she will usually lose interest.

45. Thinking that complaining about women to others will fix the problem

[image: Why you no make sense?]

In the mind of a nice guy, women are confused and are making a mistake for not liking him.

He will sometimes feel as though he needs to get other people to understand that he is a nice guy and deserves credit for that.

So, he may post up a “pity me” style Facebook status update, such as, “Why am I so unlucky in love?” or “I don't get why women love jerks so much. I'm a nice guy and I will never change.”

Some nice guys will waste most or even all of their life sitting around and waiting for the world to change.

In his mind, he deserves women because he is nice and the problem is that people just don't get that.

If he complains enough times, he feels that someone will come to his rescue or a woman will reach out and say, “You know what? You're right! I have been hooking up with the wrong guys all my life. I need a nice guy like you. Call me.”

Yet, that just ain't going to happen because most women aren't attracted to insecure men who are putting on an act of being nicer than they actually are, in the hope of impressing women.

Women who are attracted to insecure nice guys are usually insecure themselves and will instantly dump the guy if she ever gets a chance with a confident, alpha male or she will simply make the nice guy's life a misery by constantly threatening to break up with him and then using his pleas and desperation as a way to feel good about herself.

As you may know, seeking pity and complaining about things is not the way to fix your problems in life.

If a real man has a problem, he acknowledges it, seeks a solution, uses that solution and then gets on with his successful life.

He doesn't sit around complaining and seeking pity in the hope that someone will come and rescue him.

He takes action, finds and uses a solution and then keeps pushing forward to an even better life than ever before.

In life, we are regularly faced with new challenges and obstacles to overcome. If a guy has the attitude where he seeks pity and complains instead of getting the job done, then he's not going to get very far in life or have a great time with women.

46. Trying to hook up with women even though the sexual attraction isn't mutual

A nice guy will usually skip the attraction step of a sexual courtship and will attempt to make advances on a woman, even though their relationship feels like a friendship or a brother/sister relationship.

For the woman, it just feels wrong or awkward to her, so she rejects him with a classic line such as, "I don't want to ruin our friendship" or "Sorry, I'm not looking for a relationship right now."

Whether she understands the nice guy's mistake or not, her instincts will tell her that it just doesn't feel right.

From the nice guy's perspective, he has done everything right and has been the "perfect gentleman" up to that point, so he doesn't see any reason why she wouldn't give him a chance.

After all, nice guys get the girl in the movies and women are always saying, "I want a nice guy" so his approach to women makes complete sense to him.

Sometimes, a nice guy will feel as though asking a woman out on a date will make her want to be his girlfriend.

This belief usually comes from seeing nice guys in movies or TV shows ask a woman out, go on a date with her and then eventually she becomes his girlfriend.

However, without sexual attraction, without sexual chemistry and without her being able to respect him as a man, any request for a date just doesn't make any sense to her.

47. Not being his true self

A lot of nice guys are reluctant to learn how to attract and pick up women properly, because they don't want to have to become someone that they're not. However, what he doesn't realize is that the nice guy act that he puts on in social situations is not who he really is.

When he is home alone and looking at porn, he is excited to look at women. However, when in front of a real woman, he will often behave as though he doesn't look at women in a sexual way.

He will become a fake version of himself and put on a persona that he feels will trick women into liking him. He feels as though he is smarter than everyone else and that women will fall for his unassuming, innocent nice guy act.

In many cases where a nice guy is able to get a woman to fall for the nice guy act and begin a relationship with him, his real personality will slowly come out during the relationship.

After a while, he may begin to treat the woman badly, become overly possessive and controlling, talk down to her and even hurt her.

His initial act was that of an innocent, friendly nice guy, but what eventually comes to the surface is an insecure guy who has somewhat of a hate towards women for not liking him in the past.

For a nice guy to become successful with women, he has to start to be his real self rather than pretending to be nicer than he actually is.

He has to begin to allow his true self to come to the surface when he is interacting with women and with people. He needs to get used to that, rather than continuing the habit of presenting an extra nice, innocent version of himself and hoping to be liked for it.

In most cases, a nice guy doesn't intentionally want to be lying or putting on a fake persona, but he doesn't know what else to do.

What a nice guy really wants is to know himself and be loved and appreciated by others. He has mistakenly thought that the path to love and appreciation is through niceness and behaving in a very innocent, almost childlike way.

However, that is acting and putting on a forced social persona. It's not his true self. It's a fake version of himself that is portraying to women and the world because he thinks that it will get him what he wants.

Most nice guys use the nice guy approach because they haven't yet discovered that attracting women is easy.

In the mind of a nice guy, he will have to impress the crap out of a woman to get her to give him a chance.

Yet, he's wrong.

Attracting women is the easy part.

All you've got to do is display some of the personality traits, behaviors and inner qualities that naturally attract women (e.g. confidence, masculine vibe, charisma, charm, humor) and most women will feel attracted to you.

Of course, that is, as long as you're not trying to suck up to them with a nice guy act while displaying those traits.

You've just got to be real. Let your real, honest personality come through without running through the filter of the nice guy act.

Yet, who are you anyway?

The typical nice guy hasn't yet discovered who he really is and is instead acting in a way that he thinks will get women to like him and want to be with him.

Some nice guys keep the persona going for decades, to the point where they convince themselves and those around them that it's just the way they are.

"I was born like this. I'm a nice guy. What else can I say? Why should I have to become an asshole to attract women? I won't do it. I'm a nice guy and I refuse to stop being nice."

To a nice guy, it's often a case of either being really nice or really bad to women.

He doesn't realize that the guys who are the most successful with women now and in the long run are the confident, good guys.

48. Thinking that doing anything other than being nice to a woman is playing "mind games" with her

When a nice guy first hears the phrase "nice guys finish last" he may then assume that to be successful with women, he will need to become a bad boy, jerk or asshole and essentially play a whole bunch of mind games on women.

The way he sees it is that his nice approach is authentic and he isn't interested in playing games with women, even though his nice guy act is a strategy that he is attempting to use to seduce women.

After searching online, a typical modern nice guy will come across all sorts of random advice that is being made up by guys who aren't even successful with women.

They will say things like, "Act like you're not interested in her. Be aloof. Tell her that you already have a girlfriend" and other rubbish like that. Unfortunately, a lot of good guys end up following that advice and it causes them more harm than good.

One day, the woman he's got a crush on says to him, "I feel like I don't know you anymore. I don't know what's gotten into you, but you've been behaving really weird lately. You should loosen up. You seem tense."

Let me make this clear for all the nice guys reading along: You do not have to play games with women to get them into a sexual relationship with you.

You simply have to attract women, create sexual chemistry, build a connection and escalate to kissing, dates and sex. Being nice to her and expecting her to want to have sex with you because you're such a good, honest, loyal guy is not the approach that works.

Instead of sticking with your nice guy identity and trying to defend it for the rest of your life, simply switch to being what women refer to as a "great guy" or a real man.

A real man is confident and masculine while also being a good guy. He treats people well, but stands up for himself and what he believes in. He lives life on his terms, while also being respectful of other people.

49. Making a woman feel as though she is the answer to all of his problems

Many nice guys give a woman the impression that, without her, he will be unhappy, depressed and lost.

When she rejects his initial attempts to turn their friendship into a relationship, he may begin to plead and say, “You mean everything to me. I want you in my life more than anything else. You’re the most amazing girl I’ve ever met.”

Unfortunately for the nice guy, he has been watching way too many romantic movies where an approach like that allows the guy to get the girl in the end.

In the movies, a guy is usually shown to beg his way into a relationship.

The male character will plead with the woman, “Please, give me a chance. I promise I will treat you well” and she will reject him again and again until he does something amazing like save the world, save the day or save her from some danger or a bad guy.

When a nice guy gives a woman the impression that he needs her, she gets the sense that he sees her as a way to be happy with himself...and that turns her off. She doesn’t want to be responsible for how happy or depressed he is.

What the desperate nice guy doesn’t understand is that the guys who are the most attractive to women are those who are happy with or without her.

In the mind of a nice guy, guys who happy with or without a particular woman are jerks or bad boys. He thinks that he needs to behave like a romantic guy from a movie and devote every waking moment to thinking of her.

Yet, that’s not what women want.

A woman wants a guy to want her, respect her, like her and appreciate her, but not need her.

50. Being a pushover

The nice guys who really fail with women are those who let people push them around.

They are the quiet guy in the group or the shy look one at parties. A guy like that will laugh in a nervous, self-doubting way and essentially stand back as the alpha males get all the attention from women.

He knows that he’s a great guy, but he just doesn’t have the confidence to back it up.

He’s either had been raised by parents who turned him into a wimp, or he has been brainwashed by the junk he’s seen on TV and in the movies.

In life, you can only be nice to a certain point before people start walking all over you.

So, if you are the sort of nice guy who is a bit of a pushover, you should start to reconsider the how you allow people to treat you.

Some guys have no limit of how nice they will be to women and people in their attempts to be liked. Even though he may get angry and frustrated when alone with his thoughts, a pushover nice guy will rarely stand up for himself. If he does, he will usually do it in a wimpy, “pity me” sort of way, rather than a confident, assertive, alpha male way.

What a lot of nice guys don’t realize is that women feel an instant attraction for guys who are assertive, but also cool and friendly with people.

It’s not about being an assertive asshole, but a good guy alpha male who doesn’t let himself get pushed around or taken advantage of.

When a woman sees that a guy is a leader and not a follower, she feels a natural attraction to him because women are programmed to feel attracted to alpha males.

Her attraction for confident, alpha males is not something that she can control or switch off – it just happens.

We men feel the same type of instant attraction when we see a woman's cleavage or pretty face – it's not something that we can switch off, it just happens.

Unattractive women or women with no tits may say, "Hey, you shouldn't feel attracted to pretty faces or nice tits," but that isn't going to stop us.

Likewise, nice guys might say, "Hey, you shouldn't feel attracted to confident, alpha males. You should feel attracted to insecure nice guys," but that isn't going to stop the natural instincts of women.

51. Always being available for her at any moment

There's nothing wrong with quickly replying to a woman's text, answering her phone call or helping her out if she is in trouble.

However, a nice guy sometimes goes too far with his availability and kindness towards a woman because he is hoping to be "liked" by her and then rewarded with sex, love and affection.

What a nice guy doesn't realize is that not always replying to a woman's texts, not always answering her calls and not always being available at any moment is actually what women want from a man.

Why? Women want to feel the full spectrum of emotions in their relationship with a man.

If the only emotions a nice guy makes her feel are safe, loved, wanted and needed, she will eventually get bored of that.

That's not because women are crazy and need to be entertained, but that life isn't as simple as just being nice, calm, warm and sweet all the time.

In other words, life isn't black and white. There are many colors and many shades of gray too.

If you don't allow a woman to experience a wide variety of emotions, she will naturally get bored of you. Not because she's crazy and needs to be entertained, but because she is human and will not be confined to a boring, monotonous reality.

So, when a nice guy always immediately replies to her texts, phone calls or requests, she comes to expect it and then starts to feel bored.

At times, a woman also wants to worry about why a guy hasn't replied to her text right away. If he doesn't answer her call (e.g. because he's busy working on his life purpose, career, hanging out with friends, exercising, etc), she wants to be able to worry that he might be with another woman.

She wants to be able to feel anxious when choosing which dress to wear for the date, instead of knowing that whatever she wears he will always say, "Oh, that looks nice."

If it doesn't look nice, she wants him to have the balls to say, "I don't like that dress. You looked way better in the blue dress yesterday" rather than just saying that she looks nice every day.

She wants a real man, not a faker.

She wants to feel as though she needs to impress him, as well as feeling as though he loves her, wants her and sees her as the sexiest woman on Earth.

When a nice guy hears that, he will often try to fight against it.

“No. I was raised to be a gentleman. I refuse to play any sort of games with women. I will always be available, I will always be nice and if they don’t like that, then they are obviously confused bitches.”

What the nice guy doesn’t realize is that not being 100% available for a woman 24/7 doesn’t mean that he is playing games with her.

What it means is that he has a balanced approach to life, rather than being obsessed by a woman.

A real man is a man who will love and cherish his woman, but will also have many other interests in life that take up his time and attention.

If he is always available for her at any moment, a woman will get the sense that he is either hiding from his true potential as a man or is simply another desperate guy who is willing to do anything for a woman in the hope that she will like him.

52. Thinking that he won’t have a chance with a woman until she gets bored of being with bad boys

Over the years, a number of guys have said something similar as this to me, “Dan...women are entitled, stuck up bitches these days. They hate nice guys like me and only want bad boys or rich guys. I’m not even going to bother with them until I finish university, get a high paying job and can afford to buy the bitch whatever she wants.”

I feel sorry for guys like that because they just don’t understand attraction.

They fail to acknowledge the fact that most of the guys that women hook up with or have as a boyfriend are actually GOOD GUYS.

Yes, some women hook up with bad boys and about 1% of the population is very rich, but pretty much every other guy is just an average good guy making an average income.

A lot of nice guys feel as though a woman is rejecting him as a guy, when she is simply rejecting his approach to her (i.e. he’s trying to befriend her, rather than making her feel sexually turned on and aroused by him).

He thinks he is “doing the noble thing” by being nice to her, never realizing that his approach to women is boring and outdated.

If he could just stop putting on an act of being a sweet, nice, innocent guy and start being a good guy who makes women feel attracted and turned on during interactions, women would suddenly become open to having a sexual relationship with him.

Some nice guys have the mistaken belief that a woman will go through a “bad boy phase” and then eventually realize that she wants a nice guy who treats her like a princess.

This belief stems from seeing very confident, assertive women in their 30s and 40s eventually settling down with a nice guy.

Why does that happen? Simple. Women lose their attractiveness as they age.

When a woman hits 30 years of age, she rapidly begins to lose value on the mating market because she doesn't have the young, fertile body that she used to have.

She eventually gets to the point where she has to accept whatever she can get because all the confident guys are either committed or still sleeping with women in their 20s.

Sitting on the sidelines and hoping that women will eventually want you for being a nice guy is a failing strategy.

Just look at the high divorce rate out there today. Most divorces are initiated by women and it's usually because the guy doesn't even know how to make her feel attracted.

She might have married him to please her parents and stop being left behind by friends who were getting married, but that doesn't mean she will stick with him for life.

If you want to be successful with women, you've actually got to be the sort of guy they want to hook up with and stay with. Anything less than that will almost always result in cheating, dumping or divorce.

If you can't accept that and make changes to how you have been approaching women, then you have a miserable life ahead of you.

However, if you can be a man right now and not sulk and complain, you will accept that you need to stop putting on a nice guy act and hoping to be rewarded for it.

You will realize that women need to feel sexually attracted to a man to want to be with him and he needs to be able to deepen her feelings over time for her to want to stay with him for life.

You might not want to accept that now, but believe me – you will be forced to later on in life if you get to 40 or 50 and are still being rejected or dumped by women.

53. Being unable to read a woman's signals of interest

When a woman has enough experiences with nice guys who get the wrong idea and misinterpret her niceness as meaning that she is interested in sex and love, she will usually begin to develop a colder, more bitchy reaction when nice guys show interest in her.

In the past, she may have been too afraid to tell the last 20 nice guys, "Hey, I'm not interested...I only see you as a friend. Don't even bother. There is absolutely no chance for us," but after experiencing that for years on end, most women get to a point where they crack and have to change their approach.

[image: Why do women hate men and reject them?]

For some nice guys, even a direct rejection from a woman won't fully deter them.

He will read into anything she says to him from now on, or anything she types in a message or e-mail.

If she puts in a smiley face or signs off with xxx at the end of her message, he will usually misinterpret that as meaning that she has changed her mind and now wants to be with him.

In most cases, it won't be because she has changed her mind though.

It will either be that she is trying to mess with him and is using his desperation for her to build more confidence in herself or is simply a girl who signs off messages to friends with xxx and other loving gestures.

What a lot of guys don't realize is that most women are afraid to directly reject guys.

Why? For most of human history, a man could get away with rape or murder.

Even to this day, many women are still hurt or killed by guys they've rejected or dumped.

To play it safe, most women tend to string men along by saying, "I'm not ready for a relationship right now" until they actually find a confident, masculine guy to have a relationship with, or they say things like, "I don't want to ruin our friendship" to appease the nice guy and let him feel like he is a good, trusted friend of hers.

Most nice guys will never read this article and won't know why they are being rejected by women.

Instead of understanding the rejection and then changing their ways to be the sort of guy who naturally attracts women, the uninformed nice guys get angry and bitter about the constant rejection they receive from women.

For guys who understand attraction and know what signals to look for, it is completely obvious when a woman is interested.

When he notices the signals, he simply moves forward to kissing, dates, sex and a relationship.

However, for the average nice guy, a woman's signals of interest are mostly outside of his awareness. He will be able to pick up on some signals, but not all.

More importantly, he will usually miss the signals when she is trying to tell him that she isn't interested.

Since most women will give a vague rejection excuse such as, "I'm just not looking for a relationship right now" or "I don't want to ruin our friendship" the average nice guy will feel as though he still has a chance.

He will assume that he just needs to try harder and will attempt to be even nicer and sweeter to her (e.g. give her space, don't try to make any moves, be really considerate, respect her even more, explain that he doesn't want to rush things, etc), in the hope that it will make her like him.

All the while, she will be on the look out for a more confident, authentic guy to hook up with or will already have a lover and won't tell the nice guy.

54. Making a woman feel as though she doesn't have to do anything to impress him

Many nice guys make the mistake of being too keen and desperate to get a chance with a woman.

The nice guy will hear that women like a guy who is a challenge, but he will disregard that as "pointless mind games."

What the nice guy doesn't realize is that there is a fundamental reason why women like a guy who is a challenge to acquire, compared to a guy who will accept her no matter what.

The reason?

Guys who are desperate and will accept almost ANY woman are usually the type of guy who get pushed around in life, overlooked for promotions and ignored in social situations.

In other words, spending her life with him will most likely be very problematic and difficult.

On the other hand, guys who have standards about what they will and will not accept in a woman are usually the type who lead others, get picked for promotions and have lots of great friends.

What type of guy is going to be more beneficial to a woman to breed with or even just be in a relationship with?

Imagine this...

A woman is presented with two options:

1. A good guy who is confident and authentic (i.e. he's a good guy, but he is not putting on an act of being nicer than he actually is). He likes her and treats her well, but he's not going to remain interested in her unless she continues to impress him. If she behaves badly, he stops liking her. If she doesn't look very attractive one day, he begins to lose interest.
2. A nice guy who is desperate for any half-decent woman to like him. He will do anything and everything to hopefully get a chance with her. No matter how badly she treats him or how she presents herself, he remains 100% interested and keen the whole time.

It might seem like a woman would go for the nice guy because it's easier, but she isn't after easy.

She wants to feel sexual attraction and feel like she is getting a valuable guy, not a guy who would accept pretty much any half decent woman.

She wants to feel special that she has been chosen by a guy who could easily have other women, but is going to give her a chance, rather than feeling like she accepted a guy who sucked up to her with a nice guy act.

By having standards and expecting a woman to impress him, the first guy is not playing games with her. He still likes her and treats her well, but if she doesn't live up to his standards, she doesn't get a chance with him.

She then feels as though if she's going to get him to have sex with her and commit to a relationship, she'd better be on her best behavior and try hard to look extra pretty.

On the other hand, the desperation of a lot of nice guys causes women to feel as though they don't even have to try. He's already 100% interested and will remain that way no matter what she says or does.

In the mind of a nice guy, that is a GOOD thing because he doesn't ever want her thinking that he doesn't like her. He wants to be gentle with her and treat her like a fragile little princess.

Yet, that's not what women actually want.

Women want to feel as though they have to maintain the interest of a guy. If a guy just accepts anything from her, what type of life is he going to lead? Will he be successful? Will people respect him? Will he accept a mediocre life?

55. Suppressing his natural charisma

Charisma (noun): Extraordinarily appealing personality. Compelling attractiveness or charm that can inspire devotion in others. Magnetic presence.

When you let your real, authentic, unfiltered personality come through, you have charisma.

If you're also a good guy, then you will be seen as a charming, charismatic, attractive guy. However, if a guy lets his real, authentic, unfiltered personality come through and he's an asshole, he'll be seen as an asshole.

The secret is to be real, but to be good.

Every guy, even nice guys, can be seen as charismatic and attractive in the eyes of women.

Yet, since most nice guys are more worried about being rejected, they often suppress their true personality around women that they find attractive.

Instead of coming across as a cool, charismatic guy, a nice guy often comes across as weird, nervous and self-doubting to the woman.

If he presents a suppressed version of his real personality, something won't seem right about him and some women will even label him as being "creepy."

A nice guy may sometimes have the ability charismatic around close friends, but as soon as he is in front of an attractive women, he tends to shut that side of himself down and go into his shell.

If he interacts with the woman, he will usually turn into a nice, friendly guy who just wants to "get to know her." He will behave as though he's just an innocent, nice guy who wouldn't ever think about her in a sexual way.

When a woman interacts with a nice guy who is suppressing his natural personality, she can usually sense it.

If she has observed him interact with other people in a more open way, but then shut down and go into his shell when interacting with her, she knows that he either lacks confidence or isn't a man she can fully trust to be alone with.

In the mind of a nice guy, he is the most trustworthy man on the planet, but women don't feel the same way because they sense that he's putting on an act. They sense that he isn't being authentic and is hiding something.

The Solution

Phew! That took me quite a while to type up! ☹☹☹

As I explained throughout this article, the secret to success with women is not to become an asshole, jerk or bad boy.

Women are not crazy and they do not want a bad man who will beat them up and make them feel miserable.

Almost all women want a confident good guy who has the balls to turn her on during a conversation and the wisdom to guide her into deeper feelings when in a relationship.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Masturbation Overload: Are Modern Men Masturbating Too Much?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Let's face it, there's a lot of really good porn online.

Take one look at a porn site and it's only natural that you will get a boner and may then consider jerking off to calm it down.

Yet, should you be jerking off to porn on a regular basis? Could it be doing you more harm than good?

To answer those questions and more, I'm going to cover the following topics in this article:

- Masturbation statistics for men and women.
- Why do humans feel the urge to masturbate?
- What do doctors and scientists say about male masturbation?
- Can masturbating to porn ruin a man's attraction for his girlfriend or wife?
- Times when it is okay to masturbate when in a relationship.
- Can excessive masturbation reduce a man's drive to succeed in life?
- What to do if masturbation is preventing you from getting a girlfriend.

Masturbation Statistics For Men and Women

[image: Female masturbation]

The following statistics are from various survey and studies from across the world. Percentages do vary based on age and marital status, but these statistics will be sufficient to give you a big picture perspective on masturbation.

When looking at the percentages, take into account that most people aren't fully honest when asked about masturbation, so you might want to add 10-20% to some of the statistics, especially when it comes to women who tend to be a lot more reserved about admitting to masturbation.

[image: Female masturbation statistics]

Sources: Wikipedia, National Survey of Sexual Behavior, The Gossard Big M Survey.

As you can see from the statistics above, it's not only men who masturbate. Women also masturbate to release a build up sexual desire that has not been released with actual intercourse.

When a woman masturbates, she usually closes her eyes and imagines having sex with a guy or remembers a previous sexual experience. Many women in relationships say that when they masturbate, they think of their boyfriend or husband and imagine having sex with him.

Since women are mostly turned on by a man's confidence and masculinity, women will usually think about a man being very confident and masculine with her in the bedroom. For men, who are mostly turned on by a woman's physical appearance, looking at porn is the fastest and easiest way to get aroused.

Most women will never admit to masturbating if you ask them face to face, but the statistics from various studies and surveys show that women masturbate to release their built up sexual desire and even for a bit of fun. Some women have said that they masturbate before going to bed at night to help them sleep, or in the morning to get themselves up and out of bed in a good mood.

[image: Male masturbation statistics]

Sources: Wikipedia, Journal of Psychology and Human Sexuality, Wikipicks.

Poll

How often do you masturbate?

- ☐ Once a month
- ☐ Once a week
- ☐ A few times a week
- ☐ Every day
- ☐ Multiple times per day

Vote

View Results

[image: Loading ...]

Loading ...

Why Do Humans Feel the Urge to Masturbate?

[image: An illustration of a man's sperm about to fertilize a woman's egg]

Essentially, we humans are hard-wired with an urge to find a mate so we can have offspring and keep the human species going. According to Wikipedia, the total amount of humans that have ever lived is approximately 107 billion.

A lot of sex and baby making has occurred to get us to where we are today. If sex and sexual desire was a bad thing or “wrong,” humans and animals would have died out and vanished into history. Yet, here we are, billions of humans later and we are now communicating via the Internet.

You are reading my article on a computer, phone or tablet and the human race is charging on towards its ultimate destiny. Billions of humans have masturbated, had sex, made babies and made breakthroughs that have led this this very moment.

The fact is, human bodies are designed (or created) in a way that causes us to feel a pent up desire to have sex. When we don't get that sex, we (both men and women) release the built up desire via masturbation.

[image: From sexual desire to procreation]

Sexual desire is not something that a human can turn off. As you might have seen in the news over the years, even religious figures who say that sex is wrong secretly masturbate or have twisted sexual desires and fantasies that sometimes end up hurting innocent people.

Sexual desire is natural and its purpose is to get us to make copies of ourselves via sexual intercourse. So, if you're one of the many modern men who feel guilty for having sexual desire, you should stop punishing yourself for it. You are a human being and are hard-wired to feel that way. It's completely normal, natural and healthy and it ensures the replication and survival of our species.

What Do Doctors and Scientists Say About Male Masturbation?

In the 18th and 19th century, conservative people who lied about their sexual desire tried very hard to turn masturbation into a bad thing. Doctors, religious figures and other authority figures claimed that masturbation would lead to mental health issues, blindness and even hairy palms.

Here's what a doctor said about masturbation in the 1950s, "Masturbation is the most prevalent of all sexual disorders. It is very commonly found in the mentally unstable, the insane and sexual perverts. Masturbation in an otherwise normal individual can produce idiocy." What an idiot! The bullshit that authority figures used to say in public years ago is hilarious.

Thanks to the efforts of today's scientists and doctors, modern men are now beginning to learn that masturbation may be healthy, if done in moderation.

In 2003, a team of Australian scientists at the Cancer Council of Victoria, found that men who ejaculate regularly during the ages of 20 to 50 are less likely to develop prostate cancer.

Why? Masturbation allows the prostate and the seminal vesicles to discharge secretions and prevent the build up of carcinogens (the things that cause cancer) that may be concentrated in the prostate.

However, don't get carried away with it! Excessive masturbation (more than 5 times a week) will cause some men to experience impotence, premature ejaculation and a lack of desire for sex with real women.

In my opinion, masturbating more than once a week when you are single (not in a relationship) means that you don't have the right balance in life.

To achieve what you really want with women, you should be using your sexual desire to approach and pick up real women and to achieve your life purpose and goals, rather than blowing your pent up sexual desire out into a tissue or sock several times a week.

Sources: Cancer Council Victoria, EmbarrassingProblems.com

Can Masturbating to Porn Ruin a Man's Attraction For His Girlfriend or Wife?

[image: Masturbating when in a relationship]

Definitely.

Think about it.

What do you do when you're looking for porn videos to jerk off to? You look around for the best videos that turn you on the most and ignore the ones that don't give you a "Wow" reaction. You want to feel as turned on as possible, rather than having a boring, unfulfilling jerk off to mediocre porn.

If you get into the habit of doing that while in a relationship with a woman, it may change your mindset about what it takes you to get fully aroused for sex. Years into a relationship, your girlfriend or wife may not give you the same “Wow!” response that you had when you first began having sex with her.

So, what’s a modern man to do? Avoid porn altogether?

It depends.

If you have a sexy wife or girlfriend, it will be easy for you to want to be with her sexually.

Additionally, if you have a great relationship that is based on true love and have also been deepening the respect, love and attraction that you feel for each other, then you will naturally enjoy coming together in sexual union.

It will feel good and fulfilling to have sex with each other. On the other hand, if you’ve accepted a woman that you’re not very attracted to or have developed the type of relationship dynamic that doesn’t naturally and automatically create built up sexual tension between you and your woman, then you won’t feel much (or any) desire to have sex with her.

It was a lot easier for guys in the past. Before the arrival of the Internet and the subsequent explosion of online porn, men were jerking off to “blue movies” (sex videos) and magazines that they would buy from retail stores.

Before that, all a guy really had were a few photos of scantily clad women showing a “bit of leg” or some cleavage. Prior to that, men would have probably had to close their eyes and imagine sexy women.

A man in the year 1900 for example, would have had the same desire and urge to masturbate as you do, but since you have such easy, instant access to amazing, boner-activating porn, you are in a more difficult position.

You have to consciously remind yourself to avoid porn, or else you run the risk of sapping the sexual energy from your relationship with your woman. It takes a conscious effort and if you really do want your relationship to succeed, you will do your best to ignore porn and give your sexual energy to your woman instead.

Times When it is Okay to Masturbate When in a Relationship

Generally speaking, you should avoid masturbating when in a relationship and instead use your sexual energy on your woman.

Personally speaking, if my girl and I don’t have sex for more than 3 days, there is a definite change in her behavior. She becomes more irritable and moody, but the morning after we’ve had sex, she is always so cheery, nice and loving.

I’m actually lucky to have a woman like that because it allows me to give my sexual energy to her a few times a week, rather than blowing it out into a tissue over internet porn. As a result, our relationship feels good and we really feel like a couple.

I’ll go on record and admit that I’ve watched porn a few times so far in our relationship when she has been on her period. There have been times when he didn’t have sex for 2-3 days before her period started and she then had a 6-7 day period, which left me with “aching balls” near the end of all that. Clearing out the build up of sperm and sexual desire by masturbating didn’t ruin my attraction or desire for her though because I really am attracted to her and really do love her.

In addition to masturbating when your woman is on her period, there are also times when it is totally fine to masturbate when in a relationship, such as:

1. When she has a lower sex drive than you: Don’t confuse that with you not getting her in the mood, or not maintaining the right dynamic in your relationship that naturally creates sexual tension between you and your woman. T here are some women who have a low sex drive, while other women tend to fluctuate based on their levels of happiness, stress and relationship satisfaction.

If your woman has a very low sex drive and only wants sex once a week or once a month, then, according to scientific research into prostate cancer, it will actually be healthy for you to clean out the built up sperm in your testicles.

So, don’t feel guilty about it.

However, if she has a normal sex drive and you rarely have sex with her, then you need to working on changing the dynamic of your relationship so that you are naturally creating a build up of sexual tension between you, that you both want to release very often.

2. When she is out of town: If she travels a lot for work or goes out of town without you, then it’s fine to masturbate and clean out the built up sperm in your testicles.

3. When she has the flu or isn’t feeling well: If she’s down and out with the flu or some other illness and can’t have sex for weeks at a time, there’s nothing wrong with masturbating to clean out the built up sperm in your testicles.

Can Excessive Masturbation Reduce a Man’s Drive to Succeed in Life?

[image: A modern man hiding from life]

Definitely.

Studies have shown that when a guy masturbates too often, his dopamine levels drop. Dopamine is the chemical in our brain that makes us crave and want things in life. With low levels of dopamine from excessive masturbation, a man won’t feel a strong urge to succeed or do much with his life.

As dopamine receptors get less and less sensitive, things that would usually make a guy feel happy and fulfilled, such as spending time hanging out with a friend, making plans for the future, achieving things in life, dating and having sex with a real woman, etc., begin to lose their appeal.

You probably know that already though, right?

You may have had days (or weekends) where you’ve done a fair bit of jerking off, only to realize that you suddenly felt very uninspired by the real world around you.

Feeling down, worn out and disconnected from the world around you, you may have then sat down on the couch and watched too much TV, intoxicated yourself with drink or drugs, played computer games or generally just hid yourself away from the real world.

I'm definitely not saying that we men can't watch TV, drink, play computer games or have some alone time every now and then, but when a guy does that often as a result of excessive masturbation, it can lead to a lack of success in life.

If you want to be successful in life, one of the key ingredients is to keep pushing towards your dreams with unrelenting determination and belief in yourself.

[image: Masturbating away your desire to get a girlfriend and be happy in a relationship]

Life isn't always easy, so the men who remain the strongest for longest are usually the ones who succeed at whatever it is they are aiming to achieve.

You have to be stronger and more determined than others and if you can just go that extra mile, you will come out on top and be one of the successful people in this world.

Total success and happiness may remain out of your reach (or take way longer to achieve) if you are constantly jerking off to porn to calm your daily boner because you just won't have much desire to work hard and get there.

Instead of regularly getting rid of your pent up sexual desire, I recommend that you try using it to succeed with what you want to in life. Use the built up dopamine to get yourself to take action in the direction of your goals, rather than dulling your desire with yet another useless session of masturbation.

Besides, having sex with real beautiful women is 100 times more exciting, fulfilling and amazing than jerking off to a video or photo gallery. Following the sex, the love and companionship is even more fulfilling.

What to Do if Masturbation is Preventing You From Getting a Girlfriend

If you have been using masturbation to dull your desire so you don't have to approach and meet real women, try the following practical solutions:

1. Switch to Masturbation Monday: Instead of masturbating whenever you feel that your sexual desire is recharged and needs a release, try to save that for Monday. I'm calling it Masturbation Monday and it will hopefully give guys something easy to remember to get their habit under control. Instead of blowing your built up sexual desire out into a tissue on any day you feel it, use your sexual energy to talk to real women and begin having sex with them. That way you can get yourself a girlfriend, rather than dulling your desire so you can hide away for yet another wasted week of your life.

How many weeks, months or years have you been doing it so far? You can't get those years of your life back – they are gone.

2. Join meet up groups: The more people you know, the easier it is to meet women and be introduced to women. The easiest way to meet new people (and meet some women in the process) is to join meet up groups in your area.

The women at meet up groups are not always the hottest, but at least it's an opportunity for you to be around real women and get yourself a girlfriend. From there, a guy is usually able to build new friendships, which then leads to parties and introductions to other women.

3. Build your way to a Fortnightly Fap: Once you are comfortable with Masturbation Monday, switch to a Fortnightly Fap.

If you have been talking to real women and getting dates, you should already be having real sex. However, if you're just jerking off and still avoiding women, then you're just jerking off. Don't waste your life like that. Work your way towards sliding your dick into a real pussy – it's a much more enjoyable, fulfilling and rewarding experience.

4. Get used to a Monthly Masturbation: When you are used to the Fortnightly Fap and have been hooking up with real women, try getting used to a Monthly Masturbation session.

You will have so much built up sexual desire throughout the month that attending a speed dating event, joining a meet up group or approaching real women will be something that you really WANT to do.

However, if you fap like there's no tomorrow, you're not going to be very motivated to hook up with real women. Many more months and potentially years or decades of your life are going to waste away, with you feeling lonely and left out from having real experiences with real women.

5. Improve your skills with women: Learn how to approach and pick up women.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

7 Strange Things About Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To the untrained eye, women can appear to be very strange in the way that they behave, think and take action in life; especially when it comes to sex, dating and relationships.

Don't feel bad about not knowing what I'm about to tell you now, because most guys don't know what I'm about to reveal here. Even the famous psychologist, Sigmund Freud went to his grave still not knowing what women want. He was quoted as saying:

"The great question that has never been answered, and which I have not yet been able to answer, despite my thirty years of research into the feminine soul, is 'What does a woman want?'" Sigmund Freud Psychologist, 1856-1939.

If someone of that level of intelligence, in terms of psychology, doesn't know what women want, don't feel bad about not knowing what I'm about to tell you now.

1. They would rather miss out on being with you than have to lead you

[image: 7 Strange Things About Women: 1. They would rather miss out on being with you than have to lead you]

Even if a woman really likes you, she will usually avoid asking you out, showing too much interest or making the first move.

Why?

Leading you through the courtship would place her into the masculine position in your "relationship." If she is like almost every woman on the planet, she will want to be the feminine one and be able to follow your masculine lead. She wants you to "lead the dance," so to speak.

Some guys see that type of behavior from women as being strange and will ask me, "Why do women give mixed signals?"

Why do they have to play games like that? If she likes me, why doesn't she just tell me?" What these guys don't realize is that she is simply trying to be a woman and let him be the man.

She wants to feel attracted to his confidence and masculinity as he leads the way from a conversation, to flirting, kissing, sex and a relationship. She doesn't want to have to "baby" him or "mother" him through the courtship process.

The same applies to sexual intercourse. Most women want to be with a guy who feels stronger than them, mentally and emotionally. A woman wants to be able to fully surrender her body and mind and open herself up to a more masculine force. She doesn't want a scared, fearful guy who will not be able to give her that feeling in the bedroom. She wants a guy who has the confidence and wisdom to be the man at all times.

Here is a comment that a woman left on The Modern Man recently:

"I am in this situation right now. I'm not really sure if I want to date my male friend, but I would like him to do more work than me trying to initiate things. Should I just give him lots of space and let him initiate? what if he doesn't really initiate for FWB (Friends With Benefits) activities unless I do? Does that mean he isn't into it because i know he does... We're also co workers..."

Notice how she said, "I would like him to do more work than me trying to initiate things."

She may not be a dating guru, but as a woman, she instinctively knows what she wants from a man and what is going to "feel right" for her. She has likely been giving that guy obvious signals for months and he is probably wondering whether or not she likes him.

2. They want to be approached, but behave as though they don't

[image: 7 Strange Things About Women: 2. They want to be approached, but behave as though they don't]

Have you ever seen women standing around in a bar or nightclub who have gone to a LOT of effort to look beautiful and attract attention, yet they are behaving as though they don't want ANY attention.

This can seem very strange to a lot of guys, who will look at these women and think, "Why are they so stuck up? Why are they being such bitches?" What a lot of guys don't realize is that these women DO want to be approached.

However, to screen out the nervous, self-doubting, insecure guys, women will often make themselves appear uninterested and unapproachable.

These type of women are looking for a man who will not be afraid to approach them and say hi, no matter what vibe they are giving off. When a guy does approach, they will still seem unimpressed initially to test his confidence.

If he doesn't buckle under the pressure and become nervous, the women will slowly open themselves up to him.

Then, when they realize that he is truly confident and masculine, they will become desperate to be with him because they know that it's next to impossible to find a guy with that level of confidence around women.

It's a lot easier for us guys to find the type of woman we want.

Our attraction is mostly based on a woman's looks, so we know almost instantly which women we want to have sex with when we look around a bar, nightclub, party, etc.

However, for women, it's a lot more difficult to find the right guy. Most guys they meet will not have the type of confidence and masculinity that they are looking for.

3. They say that they want a nice guy, but it isn't what they really want

[image: 7 Strange Things About Women: 3. They say that they want a nice guy, but it isn't what they really want]

No doubt you would have heard a woman say, "I just want a nice guy. I want a guy who cares, listens and is sweet to me." You would have also heard women refer to men that they are dating as being nice, "Oh, he's such a nice guy. He's so sweet."

You may have also heard that nice guys finish last and that women don't like nice guys, so what is going on? Here it is...

When a woman says that she wants a "nice" guy, what she's actually saying is that she wants a guy whom she is attracted to, but who is also a nice guy (or a good guy).

She doesn't just want a guy who is really nice to her, but doesn't even make her feel any attraction. The traits that make women attracted to you are things like your confidence, masculinity, ability to make her feel girly, your social intelligence and overall personality.

If you pay attention to what the media says, you may come to believe that a woman's attraction for a man is all about his looks, height and money.

However, if you pay attention to the real world around you, it will become clear to you that a woman's attraction is not based purely on a guy's looks, height and money. If it was based on those superficial things, then 99% of guys wouldn't have a girlfriend or wife because most guys are not a tall, rich, male model.

Let's talk about some deeper stuff...

A woman's core, primal attraction for a man is based on his ability to protect her and help her (and any offspring they may have) survive. Why? For most of human history, a woman needed a man to protect her from being raped or killed and she also needed a man who could provide food and shelter.

It's only in the last 70 years that attitudes have begun to change towards women in terms of social equality, the ability to work and earn money, voting rights and a fair justice system.

Prior to that, a man was a woman's protection and safety barrier from the big, bad world around her, so a woman's attraction to a man who can keep her safe and help her survive is pretty much engrained into her instincts.

Although today's world is much safer for a woman and she can now earn her own money, she will have an instinctive attraction to a man who seems like he would do a better job at keeping her safe and helping her to survive.

Where a lot of "nice guys" go wrong with women is in thinking that when a woman says, "I want a nice guy" she means a really nice, polite, sweet guy who puts her needs ahead of his own. The guy then treats her in the nicest, most polite, innocent, friendly way that he can, only to find that she isn't interested.

What women really mean though is a guy who is confident, masculine, socially intelligent as well as being a nice (or good) guy.

If that is true, then why do women hook up with jerks or bad boys? For the same reasons why you jerk off to porn online. You'd most-likely want your girlfriend or wife to be a beautiful, intelligent, down to Earth, trustworthy, loyal woman with good morals and values, right?

However, you jerk off to sluts when you watch porn. True?

How that relates to women hooking up with bad boys and jerks is that those men are usually very confident and masculine.

Even though the woman knows that the bad boy or jerk isn't the best choice for a boyfriend or husband, she can't help enjoying the feelings of attraction that she experiences with him.

She would rather be with a very confident, masculine GOOD guy, but those guys are usually already taken. The same applies to your attraction to women. You would most-likely want a nice girl for a girlfriend, but you can't help but feel attracted to strippers and pornstars.

4. They say that they want a good looking guy, but then they date, have sex with and even marry average looking, below average looking or “ugly” men

[image: Adrian Lima with her husband Marko Jaric]

Adrian Lima with her husband Marko Jaric

[image: Marko Jaric (Adriana Lima's husband) doesn't look like a male model, but he is married to a supermodel. According to scientific research about physical attractiveness, the facial features have to be perfectly spaced out. Marko's eyes are very close together, which would suggest that he isn't good looking. So why does Adriana Lima find him so attractive? Some may say it is because he is a basketball player. That's not a valid argument though because she could have picked other basketball players. Why did she choose him?]

Marko Jaric (Adriana Lima's husband) doesn't look like a male model, but he is married to a supermodel.

His eyes are very close together, which means scientific research about physical attraction would suggest he isn't good looking. Why is she with him then? Some may say it is because he is a basketball player. Well, she could have picked other basketball players. Why him?

A lot of guys who see a beautiful woman with an “ugly” guy, an unattractive guy or a below average looking guy think to themselves, “HOW did he get her? What's going on there? Why is she with him? What am I lacking that he's got?”

To the untrained eye, that type of “Beauty and the Beast” match up can seem very strange.

We're told in the media that it's all about being good looking, tall and having six pack abs, but that is wrong. The truth is that women feel attracted to guys who are confident, masculine and who can make them feel girly and feminine.

When I refer to making a woman feel girly, I'm not talking about disrespecting a woman's maturity or intelligence and treating her like she's a naive little girl. What I am saying is that she feels girly and feminine in response to your masculinity.

5. They say that they want a confident guy, but tease you if you behave too confidently

[image: 7 Strange Things About Women: 5. They say that they want a confident guy, but tease you if you behave too confidently]

For a guy who doesn't understand women, this behavior will seem very strange and weird. Women are saying that they want a confident guy, women are attracted to confident men, but when a man behaves too confidently and has a lot of self-belief around women, they will often tease him and put him down. Why?

Simple: They are testing to see how confident he really is.

If the guy buckles under pressure, becomes nervous or apologizes for being so confident, then the women know that it was just an act and he's really not that confident.

Additionally, if a woman is able to dominate a guy like that during a simple interaction, it is a huge turn off for her sexually. A guy like that is not going to be able to be the man that she wants and needs in the bedroom and in a relationship.

6. They behave as though they are too beautiful for a guy like you, but they are insecure about their looks

[image: 7 Strange Things About Women: 6. They behave as though they are too beautiful for a guy like you, but they are insecure about their looks]

Something that is really surprising to a lot of guys, is that most women don't think that they're beautiful.

A great piece of research to back this up was Dove's Global Survey on Beauty. They found that 96% of women don't consider themselves to be beautiful.

[image: Women insecure about their looks]

Prior to seeing the results of the Dove study, I already knew that women were insecure and was using that knowledge (that I had gained from approaching and having sex with so many women) to feel even more confident about myself when interacting with women.

The more confident I became, the more that women liked me and the easier it became to sleep with very beautiful women. We men are lucky that women find our confidence so attractive to women. If it was about looking like a male model, most guys would simply get rejected.

When you're out there meeting women, you will notice that many women will act as though they are too beautiful for a guy like you, but guess what?

Deep down, she is insecure about her looks.

I've asked this question to my beautiful female friends and some ex-girlfriends.

Even though they are all sexy, pretty women, they each have one or a few things about themselves that they claim makes them "ugly."

They say things like, "I hate my nose. If I had a nose like Megan Fox, then I'd be beautiful, but I'm just average” or “I hate my ears. They make me look like a monkey. I’m not beautiful and I know it.”

Yet, if you met any of these women out on the town, they would behave as though they are so damn beautiful and way too hard to get for a guy like you. Why? Two main reasons:

1. She is trying to cover up her lack of confidence by behaving like she is very confident.
2. She is testing to see if you will be scared away by that level of confidence from a woman. If so, you’re not strong enough for her.

7. They pretend to be offended when a guy shows sexual interest, but they actually need it

[image: 7 Strange Things About Women: 7. They pretend to be offended when a guy shows sexual interest, but they actually need it]

What a lot of guys don’t realize is that most women need you to show your sexual interest in them, in order to feel turned on and to open themselves up to being sexually seduced by you.

Since most women don’t consider themselves to be beautiful, they aren’t sure how sexy they really are to men.

So, when a man comes along and shows sexual interest in her (in the right way), she gets excited. She’s happy and very flattered to be appreciated in that way. It’s a huge moment for her and she suddenly starts thinking sexual thoughts and feeling turned on.

However, to test a guy’s confidence, she will usually pretend to be offended at his sexual interest in her. If the guy gets nervous, apologizes or appears rejected, then she knows that he isn’t a strong enough man (mentally and emotionally) for a woman like her.

In the movies, you will see a man getting slapped, having a drink tipped over his head or humiliated for showing sexual interest in a woman he likes. However, in the real world where most women are insecure about their looks, they actually need it and welcome it.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Recover From a Bad First Impression You've Made on a Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

How can you recover from a bad first impression that you've made on a girl?

The easiest way to do it is to believe and just know that one little slip-up, or a few slip-ups, isn't the end, it's not game over.

You can always recover from a bad first impression that you made on a woman by focussing on making her feel attracted to you whenever you interact with her from now on.

[image: How to recover from a bad first impression with a girl]

For example: Be confident, charming, charismatic and make her laugh and smile when talks to you. When you do that she will naturally begin to feel attracted to you again.

The beginner mindset to success with women, to attracting women, to picking women up, is as follows.

- When approaching women:Â If she sees you looking but then you don't approach, you've ruined it.
- During a conversation:Â If you mess up and don't come across as very attractive or cool, you've ruined it.
- Asking her out:Â If you do it wrong and she says no, you've ruined it.
- Sex:Â If you do a poor job the first time, you've ruined it.

A more advanced mindset is to not worry about any little slip-ups that you make.

Women are mostly attracted to a guy's confidence. So, if you're talking to a woman, you're interacting with her, you're on a date with her, or you've had sex with her and you feel like you've stuffed it up and then start doubting yourself, you will become less attractive to her.

Yet, if you're talking to a woman, you're on a date with her, you have sex with her, whatever and you don't do a very good job of it, but you then don't doubt yourself and remain confident and retain belief in yourself that you are a good guy, you will be more naturally attractive to her.

When it comes to human attraction, the more confident a man is, the more a woman will feel attracted to him.

So, if you can just allow yourself to feel confident, then she's actually going to feel more attracted to you and she's going to worry less about any little slip-ups.

[image: Recover from a bad first impression]

She'll give you a pass for any little slip ups and won't so much about them because you are making her feel so attracted in other ways (e.g. you're being confident, charming, charismatic and making her laugh).

If you stuffed up and said the wrong thing during conversation, she tested you during a conversation and you fumbled on your words or you became a bit nervous, don't worry about it.

Just forget all about that and focus on being confident. The more that you can allow yourself to do that, the more that she's going to be attracted to you in the moment, on the date, or in the new relationship that you have.

The best way to recover from a bad first impression that you've made on a girl is to remember that women are attracted to a man's confidence.

[image: Recover from a bad first date]

The more confidence that you can allow yourself to feel during an interaction, a conversation, or whatever, the more that she's going to like you.

Note that I actually said allow yourself, because you actually have to allow yourself to think confident thoughts, instead of insecure thoughts. You have to get used to thinking in a confident way.

If you're interacting with women and it doesn't go well, and you're used to thinking in an insecure way, "If I don't say it right then I've stuffed up," or, "Most girls don't like me" or, "I'm not getting any better at this, I'm hopeless with women," then you're going to be coming across in an unattractive way to women.

Yet, if you can get into the habit of allowing yourself to feel more confident in a moment, when you're interacting with women, on a date, etc., then you're going to become more attractive to women.

For example: You're in a conversation and she tests you and then you stuff up, how do you allow yourself to feel more confident? Instead of thinking, "I've stuffed this up," or, "I'm losing her" or, "This is all going downhill now!" just relax, and just say, "No amount of mistakes that I make is going to ruin this. This girl's going to like me because I'm confident."

If you've got a confident mindset like that, she is naturally going to like you. Women are naturally attracted to confidence and turned off by insecurity, so it is absolutely essential that you allow yourself to think in a confident way.

When you have a confident mindset, your body language is going to be more relaxed and masculine, and she's naturally going to feel more attracted to you as a result.

If you make a few mistakes or slip up during a conversation or interaction, don't worry – you haven't ruined it.

Just remember that women are mostly attracted to a guy's confidence. If you can simply remain confident in yourself and not feel as though you've messed it up, she will feel more naturally attracted to you.

We men are lucky that our confidence is the #1 thing that women find attractive about us.

When you have real confidence, attracting women is simple.

If you've messed up around a girl that you know, just forget about the mistakes you've made and focus on letting her experience your confidence. Then, when she shows you more signs of interest, use that to feel even more confident, which will make her even more attracted to you.

Then, when you are ready, make a move by either kissing her, getting her phone number to set up a date or having sex with her that day or night.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Should You Tell a Woman That You Have Feelings For Her?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you really like a woman, but haven't had sex with her, kissed her or started dating her yet, should you tell her that you have feelings for her?

Will telling a woman that you have feelings for her make her want to begin a relationship with you?

It Depends on Two Main Things

Whether or not you should tell a woman that you have feelings for her prior to having sex with her depends on two main things:

1. How you say it.
2. Whether or not she is sexually attracted to you.

If you are being overly sensitive when you express your feelings to her, most women will feel turned off by it. Almost all women prefer it when guys are more direct and just say that they like them, without being so sensitive and emotional about their "feelings."

Before you tell a girl that you like her (that is different than telling her that you have "feelings" for her), you have to at least make sure that she is sexually attracted to you first. If a woman isn't attracted to you, then telling her that you have feelings for her isn't going to suddenly make her feel attracted to you.

Instead, she will probably give you one of the classic responses like, "I don't want to ruin our friendship" or "You're a nice guy, but I don't think about you in that way." Why? Without attraction, it's just a friendship or a friendly interaction. You have to make her feel sexually attracted to you first and THEN she will care whether or not you like her too.

Based on my vast experience with women, I've found that the majority of women don't want to hear about a guy's "feelings" until after they've had sex with him.

Why it's Usually a Bad Idea to Tell a Woman That You Have Feelings For Her, Before You've Had Sex With Her

[image: Revealing feelings before real attraction or sex]

If a woman is sexually attracted to you, she will be more open to hearing that you have feelings for her, but most women still prefer that you don't become overly sensitive or emotional like that prior to having sex. If you do say that you have feelings for her, she will prefer that you do so with confidence and be direct by saying that you like her.

Almost all women feel turned off and put their guard up if a guy comes on too strong about wanting a relationship, before they've actually had sex or at least kissed. These days, a woman wants to take you for a "test drive" first, which essentially involves kissing you, having sex with you and seeing how she feels after that.

If she develops feelings for you after sex (or at least after kissing), she will then be excited to know that you have feelings for her too.

The one exception when it's not a bad idea to tell a woman that you feelings her before sex, is when she is very shy and insecure. If the woman doesn't believe in her attractiveness to you, she will be worried about getting rejected by you if she shows too much interest.

In those cases, you can just tell the shy woman, "Hey, by the way...I want to let you know...I like you...I like you more than just a friend...there's something about you that I really like."

Saying that to her makes it obvious that she has a chance with you. She will then feel more confident in herself because she knows that you really do have an interest in her more than just friends.

From there, what you need to do is arrange to catch up with her (e.g. go out for drinks, make some dinner at your place or her place and then get cozy on the couch/sofa) and then escalate to kissing and sex.

If she comes to your place or if she invites you over to her place and you're sitting on the couch together (after you've recently told her that you like her), it is a clear signal to you that she is interested in being alone with you and potentially kissing you and having sex with you.

If you do get to that point with her, make sure you don't start doubting whether or not she likes you. Of course she does, so just kiss her and escalate to sex.

A shy or insecure woman often needs to be reassured that you like her, otherwise she will play hard to get or act like she isn't interested in a relationship and just wants to be friends. So, if you're dealing with a shy girl who doesn't believe in herself, it's fine to tell her that you have feelings for her as long as you don't get too sensitive about it.

With almost every other type of woman, you should avoid telling her that you have feelings for her before you've had sex with her.

Why?

She may feel as though you're already sold on her and she doesn't have to do anything else to impress you. There is no challenge, no excitement, no romance. You really like her and no matter what she says or does, you're probably still going to want her.

If you're a good guy and you want to treat women well, you might think that telling her how much care about her and want to be with her is the "right thing to do." Yet, it's boring for women because it's so typical. It's not what they really want.

If the woman that you like is attractive, pretty much every guy likes her immediately and then reveals his "feelings" for her. It's boring for her because it's so easy to get guys to like her.

Watch this video to understand why...

Revealing your feelings to a woman before sex almost always takes away the romance, the mystery, the suspense and anticipation that she hopes to experience with a guy.

If the woman that you like is attractive, pretty much every guy in the world would be willing to have sex with her and many of those guys would also be willing to begin a relationship with her.

You're not the only one who is interested in her. She won't really care that you have feelings for her until you make her feel very attracted to you and then build up some sexual tension between you.

If you are going to be really nice to her and give her the best gift of all, you will keep building up the sexual tension to the point where she wants to reveal HER feelings to you.

How does it work?

Think of the sexual tension that is building up between you and this woman as being like the air in a balloon. If you add a lot of air into a balloon, it will eventually pop when it can no longer take any more pressure.

A woman's sexual desire works in a similar way...

If you keep building up the sexual tension between you and her, she eventually gets to the point where she wait any longer and begins to feel like she needs to have sex with you to release all the built up tension.

She wants it and nothing that anyone else says will make her not want it. She is feeling intense attraction for you and she wants to kiss you and feel you slide inside of her. She wants you to put it in. She can't wait.

For a woman, the most enjoyable way to release sexual tension is with kissing and sex, not hearing about a guy's "feelings" for her. A guy being sensitive and telling her how he feels isn't the same as him kissing her and having sex with her when she REALLY wants it.

[image: Pop the balloon with sex, not an expression of your feelings]

If you tell a woman that you have feelings for her before releasing the tension with kissing or sex, it she won't be able to tell you how she feels first. You will essentially rob her of the experience of a lifetime.

Women yearn to feel the excitement of really liking a guy and having to reveal their feelings first because they can't hold it in any longer. Most guys can't give that experience to a woman though because they just pop the balloon early by being sensitive and expressing their feelings.

[image: Revealing his feelings ruined the excitement for her]

Instead of releasing all the built up sexual tension (e.g. the air of the balloon) with an expression of your feelings, release it with a kiss and sex.

[image: Build up the sexual tension and then kiss her]

After you've had sex, you still don't have to let all the air out of the balloon by telling a woman how much you like her.

[image: After sex]

You can keep the excitement alive and allow her to experience one of rarest things that a woman will ever experience with a guy she feels attracted to: She reveals her feelings to you first. You're actually giving a woman a GIFT by allowing her to experience that.

Most guys take that away from women because they can't control themselves. They feel so excited that an attractive woman likes them that they just want to tell her how much they feel. He hopes that by telling her how he feels, she will say, "Wow! I really like you too" and they will live happily ever after like the characters from a Hollywood movie or fairytale.

[image: Give her the gift of truly wanting you]

If you feel attracted to a woman, get along well with her and then tell her that you have "feelings" for her, it's such a boring, standard experience for her. When it happens, she then realizes that a sexual courtship with you isn't going to be exciting and will play out in the same way as it has with all other guys who liked her.

If the woman that you like is beautiful or attractive, then she will almost certainly be bored of the standard dating approach that guys use with her. She wants to feel the rush, the excitement and the thrill of the chase.

She wants to be laying in bed at night and thinking, “Does he really like me? Is he going to kiss me? Are we going to have sex? Is this going to be a relationship? What can I do to impress him? What dress should I wear tomorrow? Maybe I should wear my hair down...I look prettier with my hair down. What lipstick should I wear though? Ohh, I’m so confused!”

She wants to go through that kind of experience because she’s a girl and it’s exciting to be all emotional and in love like that. Women enjoy the thrill of it and they love to talk to their girlfriends on the phone about a guy that they really like, but aren’t sure if he likes her in the same way.

She wants to be able to say to her girlfriends, “Hey, let me read out the texts he’s sent me. Tell me if you think that this means he likes me...” and get all excited about it.

It’s the sort of fun, enjoyable drama that women yearn to have in their dating life. They want to feel like they are lucky to be getting a particular guy, rather than just giving yet another boring guy a chance to hook up with them.

Revealing your feelings to a woman prior to sex can also make her feel like she has to lead you or guide you through the sexual courtship. When a guy says, “I have feelings for you” he is often hoping that the woman will then reassure him and say, “Oh, I have feelings for you too. Let’s start a relationship!”

Yet, that’s not the position she wants to take on.

Generally speaking, a woman wants a man to confidently lead her through a sexual courtship. She doesn’t want to have to think like a man and make plans for a date or suggest taking things to the next level. She wants the man to believe in himself and then confidently lead the way to kissing, sex and a relationship.

A woman wants you to believe in yourself and take things to next level, even if it means that you have to risk getting rejected by her.

She doesn’t want you to hand over the responsibility to her by saying something, “I have something to tell you...I have feelings for you” in the hope that she jumps all over the statement and says, “Oh, wow! Cool, well let’s go on a date then! Come to my place on Wednesday and we’ll have dinner. Let’s hang out.”

She also doesn’t want you to behave as though you are trying to get her into a serious relationship right away. Why?

The dating scene has changed...

[image: The old days...]

100 years ago, a man would have to court a woman, reveal his feelings to her, be really nice to her and show that he could support her. If she accepted his romantic interest and confirmed that she would be open to marrying him, he would then have to ask her father for permission to marry her.

The couple would then getting married and lose their virginity on the wedding night. That was how it worked back then and that dating process was enjoyable for a woman because she lived in a time where women were expected to become a wife and mother.

Back then, the main purpose of a woman’s life was to grow up, attract a husband who could support her, get married, have children, support her husband by cooking and cleaning and then get old and die.

Today's world is a lot different for women.

[image: Modern women]

A woman can now grow up and then do whatever she wants. She doesn't have to become a wife or a mother at all if she doesn't want to. The society around her essentially tells her that it's okay to have many boyfriends before settling down. That is, if she wants to settle down at all.

She doesn't even have to have a boyfriend if she doesn't want to; she is allowed to do whatever she wants.

[image: Not yet ready to settle down for life]

Based on the changes to the sexual courtship process, the majority of women no longer select a guy based on how nice he is, how much of a gentleman he is or how well he could support her. These days, it's all about sexual attraction.

You have to start with sexual attraction and then everything else happens after that.

If you make a woman feel sexually attracted to you, she will then become open to kissing you, having sex with you and maybe having a relationship with you after that.

According to a recent survey, 55% of couples have sex on their first date and 70% of women admit to having experienced a one night stand. It's no longer 1900 where sex before marriage was forbidden.

These days, a relationship is rarely discussed prior to kissing or sex. You get to kissing and sex first and then you see where it goes.

What you have to understand about today's women is that they want to feel sexually attracted to you first. You don't have to get to know them for a long time and then reveal your "feelings" after pretending to be a friend for months.

If the way that you talk to a woman only makes her feel nice, friendly emotions, she won't really care that you have "feelings" for her. She might be flattered by your interest in her, but she will feel awkward about dating you or starting a relationship with you.

Here's why...

Mistakes That Guys Make When Admitting Their Feelings to a Woman

When a guy is stuck in the friend zone with a woman that he has a crush on, he will often make the mistake of acting like a friend and then expecting her to somehow want him as a boyfriend.

Even though he thinks she is sexy and would love to kiss her and have sex with her, he will never say anything like that. Instead, he will ACT like he is just interested in her in a friendly way.

For example: If she is wearing a sexy dress or is looking particularly sexy one day, he will lie to her and say, "Oh, that's a nice dress. You look nice today" or "I like what you've done with your hair today."

If he was honest, he would tell her that he thinks she looks sexy, but he doesn't have the balls to say something like that or he thinks it would be "wrong" or "improper" to do so.

He hasn't yet adapted to the modern dating scene and still talks to women like a man in 1900 or 1960 would have. He wants to show women that he "respects" them and doesn't want to seem "too forward," so he will just pretend to be a friend and hope that something will happen.

Yet, if he does that, another guy will come along, make her feel sexually attracted right away and steal her from him. He will then feel betrayed or assume that women must like bad boys who are only interested in sex.

That's not the case at all.

These days, women want to feel sexual attraction first and then everything else happens after that. A guy doesn't need to pretend to want to be friends and act like he's not interested in her in a sexual way.

Instead of lying to her by acting like an innocent friend who would NEVER think about her in a sexual way, he needs to be honest with her.

He can look at her and say in a relaxed, but confident way, "Well...you look sexy today. Look at you in the red dress...I like this."

Being honest like that allows a woman to know for sure that you have a sexual interest in her. It also makes her feel attracted to the fact that you have the confidence and masculinity (i.e. the balls) to say something like that to her.

She feels excited about the fact that you are one of the rare modern men who've adapted to the modern dating scene. You know what is going on and aren't clueless like other guys who are still acting like a friend or really nice guy and hoping to get women to "like" them as a person.

Being honest with a woman and telling her that you think she is sexy also prevents most of the mind games that women play. For example: If a woman isn't sure that a guy likes her in a sexual way, she will often play very hard to get to make him show a lot of interest first, before she begins to feel confident enough to show interest back.

To avoid the mind games and get right into kissing, sex and a relationship, just be honest and tell her that you find her SEXY. Not pretty, nice, beautiful, adorable, cute, etc. SEXY. Tell her that you think she is sexy.

How I Tell a Girl That I Like Her

I talk about her being sexy.

I don't say, "Ohh...I feel like we've got a connection" like I'm in a romantic movie. I get straight to the point...and it works.

What is really going to happen between her and I is that we will be having SEX. I'm not interested in becoming her friend and getting to know her for a long time first. We are going to kiss, have sex and then after that, we will consider having a relationship.

To get to the point of having sex, there has to be a sexual vibe between her and I, not just a friendly, nice vibe that friends maintain with each other.

In most of the romantic Hollywood movies, there will be a nervous, self-doubting male character who ends up scoring the hot girl. He will usually tell her that he has feelings for her and she will initially reject him or she will have a boyfriend who treats her badly.

After that basic story line plays out, the nervous, self-doubting guy will save the day, save the world or save the girl from the bad guy. They will then kiss, she will reveal her feelings for him and they will live happily ever after.

In the real world, you don't have to save the world or be a woman's knight in shining armor to get laid or get a girlfriend.

It's much more simple than that.

Simply make her feel attracted to you and then either escalate to a date, kiss or sex and begin a relationship that way, or attract her and build up a lot of sexual tension before moving to a kiss, sex or date.

Personally, I don't ever say to a woman that I have "feelings" for her. How I tell a girl that I like her (that is different than saying you have "feelings" for her) is by saying that I think she is sexy.

However, I only do that after making sure that she is feeling sexually attracted to me first.

So, if I'm talking to a woman and have made her feel attracted to me, I will then look at her in a subtly sexual way and say something like, "You're sexy..."

My masculine body language, vibe and eye contact in that moment will make her feel girly. She will feel like the less dominant one because she will feel my masculine presence when I say it...and she will like it. She will feel like she is being looked at and spoken to by a masculine man who would devour her in the bedroom.

I won't say, "You're sexy..." in a friendly way. I will say it in a way that puts her under the spotlight of my masculine gaze. She will feel my presence in that moment and it will turn her on.

When you make a woman feel girly in response to your masculinity, it turns her on in a very deep way. Nothing that you can ever say to a woman is more powerful than making her feel girly in response to your masculinity. It's the most fundamental, primal type of sexual attraction between men and women.

Note: If a woman is shy or self-doubting around me, I will also add in "I like you" to that statement. So, I will say, "You're sexy...I like you." This allows her to feel certain that I really do like her, so she doesn't have to be worried about getting rejected by me if she shows interest.

How to Recover if You've Already Messed Up

It's pretty simple.

If you have already revealed your feelings to a girl in a sensitive way and it has turned her off, or if you've acted weird and nervous around her – just don't worry about it.

The main thing that you need to do from now on is feel as though you have NOT messed up. You need to believe that she still likes you, no matter how many mistakes you've made so far.

Why?

Women are mostly attracted to a guy's confidence, so when she sees that you are still confident around her no matter what she says or does (e.g. gives you strange looks, ignores you, etc), she will begin to feel attracted to you.

If you feel like you've stuffed up and begin ignoring her or avoiding her because you feel embarrassed, she will feel turned off by your lack of belief in yourself.

You have to believe in yourself. Instead of thinking like an insecure guy would, “Does she still like me?” or “Did I turn her off by saying that?” or “How can I impress her?” you have to believe that you are good enough for her.

When you have made her feel a lot of attraction for you again, you can then ask her out, kiss her or get her to come over to your place to “hang out.” However, make sure that you focus on making her feel attracted to you first.

Your “feelings” for her won’t be important until after sex, or at least until after you’ve kissed her. Even then, you should try to give her the gift of being able to reveal her feelings to you first...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Feel Relaxed and Confident When You're Alone in a Social Environment

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Do you feel anxious, nervous or self-conscious when you're on in a social environment? Are you the type of guy who worries what other people are thinking of you? If so, watch the video above for some quick tips that will help you feel more relaxed and confident when you're alone in a social environment.

What Causes Anxiety and Nervousness in Social Environments?

Anxiety and nervousness are triggered by the way you think. In other words, by your mindsets. To stop feeling nervous, anxious or self-conscious, you have to get used to thinking in a more confident way. In other words, you have to get rid of your insecure mindsets that are causing you to feel nervous, self-conscious or anxious when in a social environment.

Mindset (noun): The ideas and attitudes with which a person approaches a situation. A habitual way of thinking about something.

Confidence (noun): The feeling or belief that one can rely on someone or something. a feeling of self-assurance arising from the belief in oneself and one's powers or abilities.

Insecurity (noun): Uncertainty or anxiety about oneself; lack of confidence.

Building More Confidence

Confidence is essentially about your belief in yourself and your abilities. So, building more confidence is about building more belief in yourself. If you don't feel relaxed or confident when you're on your own in a social environment, it means that you are using insecure mindsets. If you want to feel confident and relaxed in social environments, you have to focus on getting rid of your insecurities and replacing those ineffective mindsets with confident ones.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

The Best Type of Man: Bad Boy, Jerk or Nice Guy?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Bad boy (noun): A man who does not conform to approved standards of behavior.

Jerk (noun): An obnoxious man. Often selfish, manipulative and mean to others.

Nice guy (noun): A man with a friendly, but unassertive personality.

Real man (noun): A good man, who is also confident and masculine.

Bad boy, jerk or nice guy: Who is the best man out of those three in terms of what women really want in a man?

It's not the bad boy.

It's not the jerk.

It's not the nice guy.

The best type of man is a what women refer to as a real man.

The Best Man: A Real Man

What women really want in a guy is for him to be a good man, but also be very confident and masculine. If a man is only good or "nice," but lacks confidence and masculinity (in how he thinks, behaves and takes action in life), then he will not be what women refer to as a real man. He will usually be placed in the friend zone, rejected, ignored and overlooked by women because his lack of confidence and masculinity makes him unattractive to women.

Women are mostly attracted to a man's confidence and masculinity and if he also happens to be a good guy, then it's a welcome bonus. Real men are very hard to find for women, which is why you will often hear women asking, "Where are all the real men?" It's easy for a nervous nice guy to become a real man, if he just puts in a bit of effort to improve his confidence and masculinity.

Women Don't Want a Bad Man

Some nice guys get annoyed when they see women hooking up with bad boys and jerks and then conclude that all women are crazy and that women actually want to be with a bad man. Women aren't looking to find a bad person to have a relationship with, they are looking to feel attraction. Just like you might be turned on by very slutty women in a porn video (even though you probably want a nice woman to have as a girlfriend or wife), women will get turned on by very confident and masculine men in real life (even though they want a good man).

The solution is not to become a bad boy or a jerk, but to be Better Than a Bad Boy by becoming a real man.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Know if You and a Woman Are Compatible With Each Other

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're out there trying to find yourself a girlfriend, you will feel attracted to many different types of women that you meet, but not every conversation will lead to sex, dating and a relationship. Why? No man is compatible with every woman he meets and no woman is perfect for every guy she meets either.

So, how do you know whether or not you and a woman are compatible with each other? How do you know if getting her number is going to lead to a sex and a relationship that works? To answer that, we first have to get clear on the differences between attraction, compatibility and incompatibility.

The Difference Between Attraction and Compatibility

Attraction (noun): A quality or feature that evokes interest, desire or fascination in something.

Compatibility (adjective): Capable of living or existing together in harmony.

Incompatible (adjective): Unable to exist together in harmony, contrary or opposed in character.

As you can see from the dictionary definitions, when you and a woman feel attracted to each other doesn't mean that you will also be compatible and be able to have a great relationship that lasts a lifetime. You might be able to arouse the attraction, interest and desire of a woman, but unless she feels compatible with you, it usually won't go any further than a conversation. Some women will have sex and begin a relationship with a guy purely based on attraction and will later end the relationship when they realize that it isn't working, but for a relationship to work and last the test of time, you need to be attracted to each other and compatible.

When you're out there meeting women, you might talk to a woman, find her physically attractive and be open to having sex with her or having her as a lover for a while, but that doesn't mean that you are 100% compatible and should try to lock in a lifetime relationship. If you want to find a woman to marry or settle down with for life, you have to look for more in a woman than just a feeling of attraction for her.

5 Categories of Compatibility

When it comes to compatibility between a man and a woman, there are five basic categories of compatibility:

1. Emotional: Whether or not you make each other feel desirable emotions. Do you make each other feel good, understood, proud, happy, loving or do you make each other feel awkward, misunderstood, unhappy and uncomfortable?
2. Social: Whether or not you are from the same sort of crowd or not. Are you too cool for her, or is she too cool for you? Would you get along with her friends? Would she be proud or embarrassed to introduce you to her parents?

3. Physical: Whether or not you're physically attracted to each other.
4. Mental: Whether or not you have the same level of mental ability and intelligence level. Can you relate to each other's type of humor and thinking?
5. Spiritual: Whether or not you have the same type of philosophical beliefs, or are at least open to accepting each other's way of thinking about life.

When it comes to success with women, the most important categories of compatibility that you need to provide her with are emotional, social and mental. Many women are happy to forget about a guy's lack of good looks and love him for who he is as a man, as long as he is compatible in those other important ways. Additionally, these days, most people aren't too concerned about spiritual compatibility, but that differs from person to person. For the record, my girlfriend and I share the same open, philosophical beliefs about life and respect the beliefs of all people.

You Will Know

When you're talking to a woman and there is a strong, mutual feeling of attraction between you, as well as a strong connection in many of the categories of compatibility, that's when you know you are a good match. Ideally, you want to choose a woman who is perfect for you in every way, because these days, relationships don't last a lifetime if they aren't meant to be or if they are only based on a 1-2 categories of compatibility.

When I chose my girlfriend, I had been rejecting women for years before I met her. I had plenty of beautiful girlfriends who were good women, but who usually lacked in some areas of compatibility. For example: Mental and emotional compatibility, where the woman didn't have a truly loyal character, didn't have good family values, etc. The other times when I rejected offers to settle down with women was when I just wasn't ready for it, so in that case, we weren't mentally, emotionally and socially compatible anymore.

Awkward Conversation: Does That Mean You're Incompatible?

If you're talking a woman and it feels tense and awkward, does that mean you're not compatible with her?

Not necessarily.

If you're not a confident guy and tend to feel nervous around women, most of the awkwardness is probably being created by you. When it comes to the human mating dance, it is up to the man to lead the way by being confident and making both himself and the woman feel comfortable. It's not a woman's role to be gentle with you and guide you through a sexual courtship if you're a nervous, shy type.

When I was nervous and unsure of myself around women, most women didn't like me and I couldn't get laid or get a girlfriend. However, when I became more confident, masculine and socially intelligent, most women I was meeting liked me and were open to the conversation. I became more attractive and more compatible to women (mentally, socially and emotionally) by becoming a more confident, masculine guy.

Recovering From a Bad First Impression

Many guys who come to me for help have made a bad first impression on a girl (e.g. being too nice, being really nervous, etc) and now want to get another chance with her. You definitely can recover from a bad first impression and make her feel more attracted to you, but if there is no real compatibility between you and her at all, then it's never going to feel right.Â

If you know a woman already and get along really well with her, but have simply made mistakes that have placed you in the friend zone, then you are compatible with her, but are currently not attractive to her. So, you justÂ need to focus on becoming more confident, masculine and socially intelligent and the spark between you and her will ignite.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Talk to Shy Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

One of the things that amazed me when I started becoming more successful with women, was realizing that many women don't know what to say to a man when they first meet him. Previously, I thought that it was just me who sucked at conversation, but it quickly became clear to me that women were also struggling to think of things to say to keep a conversation going and keep it interesting.

As I became more and more confident around women, I started to experiment with something...

After the woman and I had said a few things to each other to get the conversation started and keep it going for about a minute or so, I would just stop. I'd pause and wait to see how the girl would react. If I was at a bar for example, I would casually have a sip of my drink and look around the bar in a relaxed, confident way, not worrying about the pause in conversation. What would happen? In most cases, the women would quickly try to think of something to say and would blurt out a lame, classic line, such as:

- Ummm...so, what do you do?
- Ummm...so, where are you from?
- Ummm...so, do you come here often?

I was very surprised when I saw women reacting in this way. I would then respond with a smile and say, "Oh, how's that for a cheesy line? Where'd you get that from? The internet or something?" and we would all have a laugh.

Seeing women react like that taught me that my previous perceptions of women were wrong. When I was a nervous, self-doubting guy, I would usually perceive women as being better at socializing than me, as being more confident than me and being "cooler" than me. I viewed any pauses in conversation as being my fault and as meaning that I was hopeless at socializing. I believed that women saw me as a loser because I sometimes didn't know what to say during a conversation, when in fact a lot of women don't actually know what to say as well.

When I realized that most women weren't expert conversationalists and would actually worry about pauses and silences in conversation, it helped me to feel more relaxed and confident about the idea of walking up to talk to women. I stopped putting the blame solely on myself by thinking, "I'm stuffing this up because I don't know what to say!!" and began thinking, "Okay, just relax and let this conversation happen naturally, even if that means it happens a bit slower than normal and with a few more pauses." When women noticed that I wasn't panicking during a pause in conversation, they felt more attraction for me because I was displaying confidence, which is the most attractive trait a man can display around women.

Getting a Shy Women to Open Up

To get a shy woman to open up to you during conversation, you need to do is help her feel more comfortable about sharing her emotions and opinions. The way to do that is not by asking her a lot of questions, but by leading the way by giving some information about yourself (i.e your feelings, your opinions) followed by a question.

For example: Imagine that you're talking to a shy girl in a bar. Instead of asking her, "Do you come here often?", "What are you drinking there?" or "What do you do for a living?" lead the way by sharing some of your feelings and opinions and then asking her what she thinks and feels.

"Y'know...I haven't been to this bar in a couple of months or so. I really like this place because you come in here and the volume of the music is just right; you can have a chat...there always seems to be a good vibe in here, with lots of people having fun. A friend of mine had a party here about 5 months ago...that was cool. I like this place, it has a good vibe to it. How about you? What do you think of this place? What are your favorite bars in town?"

She will then share her feelings about the bar or about other bars in your city. You can then explore her feelings and opinions more, joke around with some of the things she says, flirt with her or relate to what she is saying. If you'd like to learn more about keeping conversations going and keeping them interesting, we provide examples of how to respond to women in different ways in our program, The Ultimate Guide to Conversation.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Deal With Other Guys Hitting on the Same Girl as You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

This is something that I used to have a lot of trouble with when I wasn't a confident, alpha male.

If I was talking to a girl and was doubting myself or feeling a bit nervous around her, she would naturally feel turned off by that.

She may have liked me on a few levels (e.g. "This guy seems interesting. He seems like a cool, good guy...oh, that was funny, he made me laugh there...he seems to have a fairly good vibe about him"), but my lack of confidence would turn her off.

Then, if a more confident guy came over and started talking to her or if there was a more confident guy in the group, she would naturally gravitate towards him in most cases.

Why? Women are mostly attracted to a guy's confidence and are turned off by a guy's shyness, nervousness, insecurity and self-doubt.

Generally speaking, confidence wins over any other trait when it comes to attracting women. A guy can be average or below average looking, but if he is very confident and believes in himself, he will get more action with women than a good looking shy guy who feels nervous around women.

How to React When it Happens

The best reaction is to simply continue believing in yourself and to not view the other guy as your competition.

It doesn't matter who he is, what he looks like or what he has to offer women; you have to trust in the fact that confidence is the most attractive trait to women.

You can't pick up every woman (no man can) because you will not be compatible with every woman in the world.

Likewise, every woman won't be compatible with what you want in a girl either, so don't worry about not being able to "score" with every girl you meet.

Instead, just focus on the fact that the more confidence you have in yourself, the more that women will like you. Then, when you do meet compatible women, they will choose you over other guys because you will feel compatible to them and you will be more attractive.

One of the main things you have to do to achieve success with women is to become more confident.

When I became more confident, guys stopped hitting on the same girl as me during a conversation because they realized that they would pale in comparison to me in terms of confidence, masculinity and social intelligence.

However, that didn't stop all guys from trying to hit on the same girl as me (i.e. some guys lack confidence and will try to step in and steal a girl that you're talking to, rather than approaching a girl on their own).

Whenever a guy did hit on the same girl as me, I would actually like it because he would end up looking less attractive compared to me in 99% of cases because I would be more confident, masculine and socially intelligent.

When I when I reached a level of true, powerful confidence and masculinity, pretty much every other guy in a group was less confident than me.

These days, the only exceptions are when I'm around my alpha male friends who are naturally good with women, in which case we are usually equally confident and alpha, or I am slightly more confident and alpha.

Women are always analyzing a situation to see who the confident alpha males are and which guys are simply pretending to be confident and alpha.

When you are truly confident and alpha, you don't have to put on an act or try to compete with other guys, because there is no competition; you are the man.

If you want to have your choice with women, you have to focus on becoming more confident and alpha.

You may know 20 great conversation starters or funny lines that you've read online, but if a guy is more confident and alpha than you, the woman will like him more than you in 99% of cases.

Mistakes to Avoid

Whatever your level of confidence is right now, the main thing you need to avoid (when a guy hits on the same girl as you) is to not try to compete with him.

As a true alpha male, there is no competition; you are the man. That's not to say that there aren't any other alpha males in the world, but that you're not worried about other men being competition.

When women sense that you feel "less than" around another man, that guy looks like the alpha male and you come across as a self-doubting, lower ranking male.

Additionally, when a woman notices that you're competing with another guy in front of her and trying to get her to like you more than she likes him, she will usually play hard to get with you and lose interest due to your lack of confidence in yourself.

Don't try to compete with other guys; the most important thing is what happens between you and her (i.e. how you think, feel, behave and take action when around a her, how you make her feel, the connection that you and her develop, the respect that she feels for you, etc). Other guys are simply added noise in a situation; they're not your competition.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Dating Advice For Introverted Guys

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

These days, a lot of guys are fairly introverted and are finding it difficult to succeed with women. They don't enjoy socialising that much or having to go to parties and try to be the center of attention to attract women. They would rather be able to simply meet a nice girl and have a relationship, without having to go out nightclubbing every weekend or having a huge group of friends that they see every week.

A lot of introverted guys are often deep thinkers and prefer to think about life and focus on other things, rather than just socializing and hanging out with people for no reason. However, these guys (maybe you), still want to be successful with women. You still want to be able to get laid, get a girlfriend and enjoy yourself. You don't want to have to miss out on it because you're not an extroverted guy.

So, is it possible? Can you still have your choice of women, get laid and get a girlfriend (or find a wife), without having to be a wild extrovert who is addicted to being around loads of people? Definitely. Before we go any further though, let's just get clear on the whole "introverted" and "extroverted" thing, so it is nice and clear for everyone.

Introvert: A shy person. A person characterized by concern primarily with his or her own thoughts and feelings.

Extrovert: An outgoing, gregarious person. A person characterized by extroversion; a person concerned primarily with the physical and social environment.

Gregarious: Fond of the company of others; sociable.

Do You Have to Be an Extrovert to Be Successful With Women?

No.

If you're an introverted guy and want to be successful with women, you do not have to become an extrovert and be really "gregarious" as the dictionary definition explains, or be really "fond" of being in the company of others. However, you do have to become more confident because a guy who lacks confidence isn't attractive to women. When you're not attractive to women, they're not going to like you and you're going to have hardly any opportunities with women.

If you're only a little bit introverted (i.e. you have an average level of confidence), then you're going to be at an average level of attractiveness to women, which means that about 30% of the women you meet will like you and feel an average level of attraction for you. There are many traits that attract women to men, but the three main traits are your confidence, your masculinity (i.e. how you think, behave and take action in life) and your social intelligence (i.e. whether or not you're a cool guy, whether you can get along well with her and others, etc).

The #1 trait is confidence, so if you're a guy who lacks confidence and is also introverted then you will not only avoid socializing and meeting women, but when you do meet women, they will rarely feel much attraction for you. You don't have to change your personality and become an extrovert who wants to be around people all the time, but if you want women to feel strong attraction for you when they meet you, then you must improve your confidence (the most important), masculinity and social intelligence. If you are weak in those areas, then women's attraction for you will be weak and inconsistent.

What Happened to Me

When I first started out, trying to become more successful with women, I was a fairly introverted guy who wanted to have more friends, but also didn't want to have more friends at the same time, if you know what I mean. Going out and talking to people in social environments wasn't on the top of my priority list. I wasn't thinking, "Oh wow! I can't wait to go out and talk to people in social environments!" because when I did go out to social environments, I wouldn't that feel that good about myself.

I would be doubting myself around the "cool crowd," worrying about what everyone else was thinking, wondering if I was fitting in and doubting that girls would me. However, now that I'm a confident alpha male and have great social skills, does that now mean that I now love going out and socializing and need to do that all day, everyday to feel good about myself (like an extrovert would)? No. I don't want to socialize all day, every day because I'm a thinker and like to have more of a balance in my life.

The big difference between how I was before and how I am now is that when I am in a social environment, I am confident and really do enjoy socializing with people. Unlike in the past, where I would feel negative emotions in social environments, I now feel positive emotions because most people like me, respect me and want to be my friend. In the case of women, most women feel intense attraction for me and wish they could be my girlfriend or at least be sexed by me.

When I am not in a social environment, I rarely need it or crave it like an extrovert does. Instead, I have more of a balanced life with my work (The Modern Man), my girlfriend, my friends, family, exercise, time to relax and think and other important parts of my life. Sometimes I enjoy going out socializing and catching up with friends and other times, I just want time to chill out and think about life in the universe.

These days, I would be considered more of an extrovert by most people who meet me (because most people aren't as confident as me), but the truth is that I'm neither an introvert or extrovert. I prefer to have a balance of both sides of that state of being. I don't need to be alone and I don't need to be around people; I just do whatever I want, day in, day out because I have the confidence and emotional security to be happy, forward-moving and driven in either situation. I like being around people when I'm around them, but it's not as if I need to be around loads of people all the time like an extrovert would.

[image: Nervous - Dan]

Not all introverted guys are nervous, but I was. Here is me as a nervous introvert trying to meet women. This girl actually liked me and even gave me her phone number, but I screwed up the date because I was too nervous around her and doubted that she liked me. I felt as though she was out of my league. Women like this forced me to become stronger by building more confidence and becoming more of a man.

[image: Dan - confident]

This is what happened when I became more confident, masculine and socially intelligent. I didn't have to become an extrovert who needed to be around people all the time, but I did have to become more confident, masculine and socially intelligent so that when I did meet women, they liked me and wanted to have sex and a relationship with me.

Chance Encounters With Women

If you're an introverted guy, you do not have to change your core personality and become a full on extrovert to be successful with women, but you do need to become more confident, more masculine and improve your social skills and social intelligence. Why? Doing so makes you a very attractive option to women, so when you do have a chance encounter with a woman (i.e. assuming that you're an introvert who rarely goes out socializing and only meets women by chance), at least you will be ready to seize the moment and go from a conversation to a phone number and then set up a date, or from a conversation to a kiss and then sex that day/night.

Are You a Confident Introvert?

You may be one of the rare guys who are very confident, but also an introvert. If that is the case, then you are either a thinker who prefers to be focused on what you're working on in life rather than just hanging out with people all the time, or you are the type of guy who wants to be around other people more, but avoids it because you don't feel your best when around other people.

If you're an introvert who wants to be around people more often, but you avoid it because you tend to feel bad (i.e. uncomfortable, excluded, etc) when hanging out with other people, that doesn't mean you are an introvert. What it means is that you lack the type of social intelligence and skills that will allow you to naturally get along with people in any environment.

If you want to improve your social skills and intelligence so you become even more confident and charismatic than you are right now, then I recommend that you keep learning from us here at The Modern Man. All of our programs improve a guy's confidence, masculinity (how he thinks, behaves and takes action in life) and social intelligence, as well as making him incredibly successful with women.

So, if you're one of the many guys who need help with women, stick around and keep learning. If you want to get results quickly, consider our advanced programs that provide solutions to all of the problems that you've been experiencing with women.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

What to Say to Get a Woman's Number in a Bar

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When you're talking to a woman who is attracted to you and you've been getting along well with, all you have to say to her is:

"Hey, it's been cool talking to you. Do you want to talk again sometime?"

Most of the time, women are going to say, "Yes." If the woman is not attracted to you or doesn't like you, then she will say something like, "No, that's fine, let's just leave it at this. It was nice to meet you...I hope you have a good night" to let you know that she doesn't want anything else to do with you.

However, if she says, "Yes" then it's a clear sign that she is open to talking to you again.

[image: What to talk about with women in bars]

After she says "Yes," simply take out your phone and open up it to the section that she can add in her phone number and then hand her your phone and say, "Cool...put your number in."

Most women will put their number in right away.

What I like to do at that point is call the girl's phone number right away. I will say, "Hey, I'll call you right now so you've got my number and you know that it's me if I do text or call you."

Calling her number right away (or sending her a text while standing in front of her with something like, "Dan – the hot guy from the bar.") is better because when you do call or text in 1-3 days, she will know that it is you.

Attractive women don't usually answer their phone when unidentified numbers call them because it's often an ex-boyfriend who she doesn't want to speak to, or some admirer who keeps calling her.

Additionally, if a woman is leading a busy lifestyle (e.g. with work or study in addition to a busy social or family life) then she won't always be available to answer her phone. So, there's nothing wrong with saying to a girl, "Hey, I'll call you now so you've got my number and you know it's me when I call."

This approach makes sure that if you do call and she doesn't answer, she knows that it's you and you can follow up with a text and say, "Hey Jenny – couldn't get through. Just saying hi. It's Dan" and then she'll usually reply. If she doesn't, simply call her two days from then. If she still doesn't answer, you can try a more humorous message to get her attention like, "Okay, you either hate me or you're busy! ð☐☐☐ Chat soon?"

Mistakes to Avoid When Getting a Woman's Number in a Bar

Getting a woman's number in a bar is a very easy thing to do, but if you make a big deal out of it, getting the number will become difficult to impossible. Here are a couple of classic mistakes to avoid:

1. Asking if You Can Get Her Number

"Hey, so...ummm...can I get your number? Can I call you sometime?" You don't need to ask for permission to get a woman's number. Women don't like it because they don't like when a man starts behaving submissively and expects the woman to be gentle with him and lead him through the flow of a sexual courtship, all the way to sex and a relationship. She wants a man who can take charge in an easy-going way like this:

- You: Hey, it's been cool chatting to you. Do you want to chat again sometime?
- Her: Yes, that would be cool.
- You: Okay, put your number in.

By saying it in the way I've listed above, you're leading the way, which is what a woman wants. You're not saying, "Ummm...so, can I call you sometime?" and then expecting her to be gentle with you and lead the way.

2. Asking if She Wants to Go on a Date

When getting a woman's phone number in any environment, you should avoid asking her out on the date right then and there, unless it is completely obvious that you and her want to go on a date asap. Most women don't want to commit to a date at the point of giving you their phone number and simply want to see how they feel when you call. So, avoid saying things like, "Do you want to see again? Do you want go out with me? Do you want to go on a date with me? Do you have a boyfriend?"

Getting a woman's number doesn't mean, "Okay, now we're going to start a relationship and be together forever." Instead, it's just that you and her are going to "talk" again sometime, which is why I say, "Hey, it's been cool talking to you. Do you want to talking again sometime?" If you can keep it that easy-going and informal, then most women will happily give you their number.

If you make it out as though you're saying, "Okay, if you give me your number, I'm calling you and we're getting married" then most women are going to be turned off by how serious you're being. The exception to this rule is when you meet a woman who is absolutely compatible with you (rare) and you both (not just you) know for sure that you're going to begin a serious relationship.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

The Kiss Test: 7 Signs That a Woman Wants You to Kiss Her

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

As long as you make a woman feel a lot of attraction for you first, it will feel natural for her to kiss you. She will want it because she will have sexual feelings for you, rather than just friendly feelings. Yet, despite how much attraction a guy makes a woman feel, she will rarely make the first move by kissing him first. Instead, she will give you as many signals as possible, in the hope that you have the confidence to start kissing her.

In the movies, you will sometimes see a woman walk over and start kissing a guy, but in real life, most women would prefer to miss out on an opportunity to have sex or a relationship, rather than have to make the first move by kissing him first.

Why is that? Women are attracted to confidence in men, so most would prefer to wait for a confident guy rather than hook up with a nervous guy who lacks the mental and emotional strength that can make her feel the type of attraction she wants.

7 Signs That She Wants You to Kiss Her

To ensure that you don't miss out on opportunities with women who are open to kissing you, look out for these signals and then confidently make the first move...

1. She keeps holding eye contact and then staring at your lips

When a woman is interested in kissing you, she will usually try to maintain eye contact with you and also keep looking down at your mouth, staring at it for a few seconds and then looking back up to your eyes. If she is shy, she won't make a lot of eye contact, but she will make a point of regularly looking at your mouth to show you that she is interested.

If you're talking to a woman who tries to maintain eye contact with you and also keeps looking down at your mouth, staring at your lips for a bit and then looking up at your eyes again, it's a sign that she is open to kissing you.

You have made her feel attracted to you and she is either consciously showing it (i.e. trying to let you know that she likes you) or she is reacting on instinct and just going with the flow.

Not all guys are confident enough to start kissing a woman with only one signal of interest though. Luckily, there are other signals to look out for...

2. Biting her lip / licking her lips

Women don't all show the exact same signs of interest in a sequence or at all, so not all girls are going to show the "biting her lip / licking her lips" signal to you.

When interacting with a woman that you want to kiss, you should be on the look out for any of the signals on this page, but don't be worried if she doesn't show all of the signals during her interaction with you. If you focus too much on the signals, you may end up wasting too much time and come across as nervous, self-doubting or uninterested in her in a sexual way.

Obviously, the more signals she shows you, the higher the chances are that she wants you to kiss her, but part of being successful with women is being confident enough to make a move on one or two signals that a woman gives you.

Why?

Not all women give a lot of signals and the more attractive women tend to show signals that they are not interested, just to test your confidence level. At my level of skill with women, a woman can't stop herself from showing me signs of interest because I make her feel intense feelings of sexual attraction just by the way I look at her and talk to her.

If you're talking to a woman and she is biting her lip in a girly way or licking her lips in a sexually suggestive way (demonstrated in the video), then you can't get a more obvious signal than that.

Do not doubt yourself when women show you this signal – it is the most obvious of them all. When a woman bites her lip or licks her lips in a sexually suggestive way, she is essentially trying to communicate this to you, "I'm feeling girly and submissive around you."

When a woman feels girly and submissive around you, what's going through her mind is that she wants to submit to you sexually; she feels like you are the more powerful one, the more confident one and the dynamic between you and her is turning her on.

She is trying to signal this to you and it is then up to you to have the confidence to act on that signal and make a move. If you don't have the confidence to move in and kiss her based on that signal, there are other signals to look for as well.

3. Regularly touching you / playfully hitting you

When a woman doesn't like a guy, doesn't feel any sexual attraction for him and doesn't want to give him any signals that she's interested in him in a sexual way, she avoids touching him. She doesn't want to give him the impression that it's okay to touch each other, so she tries to avoid as much physical contact as possible.

However, if a woman is regularly touching you, it reveals that she is comfortable with that sort of physical contact between you.

[image: Does she want to kiss me?]

You have to believe in yourself and go with the moment. In most cases, a woman won't want to make it any more obvious than showing you how comfortable she is with you physically. She doesn't want to have to guide you through the process and instead expects you to have the confidence to act on her signals.

Not all touching means that she wants to kiss you though...

If you're just having a normal, friendly conversation with a woman (e.g. no sexual flirting, no obvious feelings of attraction) and she touches you, it doesn't necessarily mean that she wants to kiss you.

To know for sure if her touch is suggesting that she wants you to kiss her, she has to also be showing you other signs of interest (e.g. submissive looks, biting her lip, playing with her hair in a girly way, etc) other than just regularly touching you on the leg or arm for example.

Some women touch guys in more of a friendly way; you might have a coworker who does that with a lot of guys and girls because that's her nature and she's very "touchy feely" with people.

However, if you're interacting a woman who likes you and is showing other signs of interest in you and she's regularly touching you or playfully hitting you, (e.g. hitting on the arm and saying, "You're baaaaad" or hitting you on the butt in a sexually suggestive way), then she's trying to get more of a playful, physical, touchy feely vibe and dynamic going back and forth between you.

She doesn't want the dynamic to only "talking" and no "touching." She is instinctively reaching out to touch you and is trying to spark something more sexual between you and her.

A confident guy like myself would see that and I would say to myself, "This girl likes me" and I would then do whatever I wanted to do (e.g. move in and start kissing her, keep talking to her and then get her phone number, have sex with her that night, etc).

A guy who lacks confidence in himself may wonder, "What does that mean? Does this mean she likes me?" and will hesitate and hold back. The thing is, if you hesitate around women and hold back from making a move, you will usually miss your "window of opportunity."

For most women, when they're interacting with a guy that they've just met, they will give a Window of Opportunity (WOO) to a guy when they feel a spark of attraction and realize that they like him.

A woman will open herself up to the situation and it is then up to the guy to have the confidence to make a move. If a guy doesn't make a move, the window will start to close.

The WOO is a bit different for women you already know. If there's a woman you already know who really likes you and has been trying to give you signals of interest, but you haven't had the confidence to take action, she will usually keep showing those signs of interest and the Window of Opportunity will remain open (until a confident guy comes along and attracts her).

If you meet a girl in a bar and she's hoping to have sex that night or find herself a boyfriend, then you have to make a move very quickly (i.e. anywhere from instantly to within the first hour). If she likes you, shows signs of interest and opens the WOO for you, but you then don't make a move, most women will close the WOO and begin playing hard to get or try to exit the interaction completely.

Of course, you can turn that around if you have a high level of skill with women and know how to make women experience deep feelings of respect, attraction and lust for you.

4. Submissive looks

In the sexual act, it is the man who penetrates the woman; the woman opens up and receives the man. If the man is masculine, she enjoys the feeling of submitting to him (e.g. getting down on her knees to suck him, bending over and receiving him "doggy style," etc).

So, when a woman gives you submissive looks (e.g. dipping her chin down and looking up at you in a girly way) when she is interacting with you, she is instinctively (and sometimes actively/consciously) trying to communicate, "I'm open to submitting to you. I like you. I'm feeling this. I feel girly around you. You're making me feel turned on."

It is then up to you as a man to make a move (e.g. put your arm around her lower back and draw her into you, then look her in the eyes and then start kissing her).

If you don't have the confidence to do that, let's talk about another sign that a woman wants you to kiss her...

5. Plays with her hair or necklace

I'm not saying that when you're interacting with a woman and she casually readjusts her hair or necklace, that it means she wants you to kiss her. What I am referring to is when you are talking to a woman and she is constantly playing with her hair or necklace in a girly, shy or submissive way (demonstrated in the video).

This is a clear sign that she is feeling girly around you, that you're the more powerful one in the dynamic and that it is turning her on sexually. She is showing you that she is willing to submit to you sexually and showing you that she is enjoying the feeling.

If she is really obvious in the way that she shows a guy that she wants him to kiss her (about 20% of women), she will give you submissive looks and continually play with/fidget with her hair and necklace in a girly way.

If she's afraid of being rejected by you and is worried that you don't like her or is the type of woman who withholds obvious signs of interest to test a guy's confidence level, she might play with her necklace, but maintain a serious look on her face to avoid giving you too much information about her interest level.

6. She is open to you touching her

If a woman is not sexually interested in you and doesn't want to show you any signs of interest, she usually isn't going to be open to you touching her. If you put your hand on her leg or put your arm around her, she will push you away in an annoyed way or angrily say, "Hey – no need to touch."

However, if you're talking to a woman and you put your arm around her lower back, touching her on the shoulder, playing with her hair while talking to her (demonstrated in the video) and she reacts in a girly, positive way, then it's a clear signal that she is sexually attracted to you and is open to you kissing her.

7. Primps herself for you

Primp (verb): Making minor adjustments to (one's hair, makeup, or clothes).

When it comes to the male/female dynamic, it is the woman who needs to look pretty and beautiful and the man then selects the pretty and beautiful woman. It's not up to us guys to primp ourselves look all pretty for women; it is the woman who needs to be pretty, colorful and beautiful and it is the man who needs to be confident, masculine and select the women he finds attractive.

[image: Male peacock displaying plumage]

For peacock bird, it is the male bird who needs to be pretty and colorful to attract the female. She then selects a mate based on how colorful and pretty his plumage is. As a human man, you are not a bird and you do not need to be all pretty and good looking to get a beautiful woman.

You are a man and in the human mating dance, it is the man who needs to be confident and masculine enough (in the way he thinks, behaves and takes action) to choose the beautiful women that he likes. The man needs to believe that he deserves to choose women and he then needs to choose women with authority. The more he believes that he has the power of choice, the more masculine he will come across and the more girly that women will feel around him.

When it comes to what women do to show you that they want you to kiss them, one of the signs is that they will primp themselves to look even better for you.

So, if you're talking to a girl and she fixes her top to readjust her breasts to show better cleavage to you, it is a sign that she is trying to look attractive to you. She might also put on or reapply some lipstick or lip gloss, which can mean that she is trying to draw attention to her lips and make her lips as appealing as possible for you.

For a guy who doesn't believe in himself, he will see a woman applying lipstick in front of him and may think, "Ohh...she's so pretty...now she's putting on lipstick...wow, that looks really nice" or might not even think anything of it at all.

For a confident guy like me, I look at that and think, "Look at this girl...trying to make herself look nicer for me...how cute."

I will then put my arm around her, move in closer or pull her in closer to me. I will then have eye-to-eye contact with her and I'll look at her mouth and then back up to her eyes (a couple of times) with a confident smile.

When I see that she is smiling back or at least maintaining eye contact in a positive way, I will then just move in and kiss her...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

The Sex Smile

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

This is how to make a woman think about having sex with you, just by the way that you're smiling at her.

Example

Imagine that you're talking to a woman that you're attracted to and want to have sex with.

Picture yourself in a setting like a bar or a party, or maybe you're at university or at afterwork drinks with coworkers and you're talking to a girl from the office that you like.

Instead of just talking to the girl and displaying an easy going, friendly vibe and behaving as though you're not even interested in having sex with her, mix it up and include The Sex Smile. What will happen is that she will immediately start feeling turned on by you and will immediately consider the idea of having sex with you.

How to Do it

While she is talking to you, maintain eye contact with her and instead of normal, friendly eye contact, change your eye contact to be more sexual (demonstrated in the video) and add in The Sex Smile.

While using The Sex Smile, look her in the eyes, then down to her mouth, back up to her eyes and back down to her mouth. When you're interacting with a woman and you give her that sort of you look, her reaction is going to be based on the attraction she is suddenly feeling for you.

She might smile and playfully ask, "Whaaat?" :) It means that she's feeling turned on by you, is feeling the moment that you've just created and is trying to say something to break the tension between you. If you're interacting with a confident woman who likes you and isn't afraid to show her interest in you, she's going to give you The Sex Smile right back.

She might also display some submissive body language (e.g. dipping her chin down and looking up at you in a girly way), which is a sign that she is open to submitting herself sexually to you.

She feels turned on, she feels like you're the more powerful one in the dynamic between you and her and she likes that. If she didn't like it, she would react negatively and would say, "What?! What are you looking at me like that for?" in an annoyed and even angry way.

Why it Works

When a woman feels attraction for a guy, it means that she will be more open to flirting with him and exchanging sexually suggestive body language or comments.

When feeling attraction for a guy, a woman will naturally consider the idea of having sex with him and if you can add in The Sex Smile, it will make her feelings of attraction for you even stronger. If you're being a fairly confident guy around her, then she is going to be feeling some level of attraction for you.

If you want to make women feel intense levels of attraction for you, then use the advanced confidence and attraction techniques that we teach here at The Modern Man. You will be surprised at how easy it is to do, even if you're a beginner.

If you're being confident, most women will feel a good level of attraction and if you add in The Sex Smile, most will enjoy it and give you a smile back. When a woman engages in that type of flirting body language with you, it begins to create a private understanding between you and her that you're attracted to each other and are toying with the idea of having sex sometime soon.

Depending on where you meet the woman, you then need to escalate the interaction to a phone number, kiss or sex that night. If you want step-by-step instructions for the escalation process, I recommend that you watch Dating Power.

The Trick to Making Sure That it Works

Since women are attracted to a guy's confidence, when you BELIEVE and KNOW that your smile is turning her on, that actually gets her MORE turned on. She feels attracted to your confidence and starts giggling in response to how you're making her feel with a simple smile.

Enjoy!

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Pick Up Your Neighbor

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to have sex with your neighbor, you have to make sure that you trigger her feelings of sexual attraction for you first.

Right now, you're probably feeling more than ready to have sex with her because you feel attracted to her. Yet, does she feel the same way about you, or is she just being friendly?

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to get your neighbor feeling turned on and eager to have sex with you...

As you will discover from the video above, if she doesn't feel attracted and turned on by how you interact with her, she probably isn't going to be interested in anything sexual because it would feel awkward (i.e. you'd be attracted to her, but she'd only be looking at you a nice guy who she likes as a friend).

You have to make her feel attracted, build up the sexual tension between you and then release it with sex.

Building up sexual tension can be done during a 5-10 minute conversation or over a few days or weeks if you want to take it slow. How quickly you will have sex with her will depend on how good you are at making her feel attracted, recognizing her signals of sexual interest and then having the confidence to make a move.

Many Women See it as Romantic

[image: Picking up a neighbor]

Have you ever watched a movie or TV show where a beautiful woman moves in next door to a man and they almost instantly begin hanging out at each others houses and then having sex?

In the real world, most people try to avoid their neighbors and live a private life that never includes their neighbors, but if you like a woman who is your neighbor, the good news is that it is often possible to pick her up and begin a sexual relationship.

You can be charming and attractive and make her feel like her life is suddenly playing out like a Hollywood movie.

She will then get excited about the idea of hooking up with you and tell her friends and family all about that story, rather than having to say that she's met yet another guy in a bar or nightclub.

How to Pick Up Your Neighbor: What to Do

[image: Flirting with a neighbor]

Here are the five steps to picking up and then beginning a sexual relationship with your neighbor:

1. Establish yourself as a cool, trustworthy guy

Most people want to be able to live in peace and not be bothered by crazy, untrustworthy or even dangerous neighbors.

As such, most people try to keep their distance from their neighbors and just smile and say hello as they drive or walk past. To get through the “neighbor barrier” that most women will put up, you have to approach her and have a quick, easy-going conversation to establish yourself as a cool, trustworthy guy.

Even if you have a great conversation and are very confident, easy-going and likeable, most women will still keep their guard up and not commit too much to the conversation, so don’t worry if you get that reaction.

The aim of the first approach is not to pick her up, but to simply establish that you are not a threat, a lonely weirdo or someone that she should steer clear of.

2. Focus on building sexual tension and developing a connection

When you initially begin speaking to her, don’t try to get a phone number, add her to Facebook or invite her over. Just start by having an easy-going conversation, throwing in some humor and letting her see that you’re a cool, trustworthy guy.

This may happen over the course of a few days (if you happen to see her often), or a few weeks to a few months if you rarely cross paths.

While establishing yourself as a cool, trustworthy guy, you must also focus on building sexual tension between you and her by making her feel attracted to you, but not actually trying to get her phone number or get her to come over to your place.

Sexual tension happens between a man and a woman when there is a lot of attraction present, but the relationship isn’t escalating to kissing and sex.

However, sexual tension isn’t everything that you need. You also need to chat to her in a way that allows you both to connect on various levels.

Without a proper connection, some women will happily escalate to sex, but to make sure that she does feel comfortable being alone with you in her home or at your place, make sure that you build a good connection with her first.

How long should you focus on building sexual tension and connecting with her before making a move?

That depends on how often you see her, how good you are at making women feel attracted to you and how worried she is about getting involved with a neighbor.

Sometimes it will happen almost immediately, whereas other times it will take weeks or months to play out. If you want to get laid on the first night you meet women, you should be going out to bars and nightclubs and approaching women there. However, if you want to take things slow with a woman you like, then picking up a neighbor can be a great experience for both of you.

3. Invite her over to your place or invite her out somewhere when the time is right

[image: Having sex with a neighbor]

When you have built enough sexual tension, you then need to invite her over to your place for a reason such as: Coffee, Friday night drinks, or to a BBQ that you’re having at home with friends.

You can also invite her out to go and have a drink, a coffee, to go to a party that you’re attending with friends or just to grab a bite to eat at a restaurant or take away store that you've both talked about wanting to eat before.

If she says no to your offer initially, just go back to building more sexual tension between you and establishing a better connection. Then, when the time is right, suggest it again.

How to Pick Up Your Neighbor: 4 Mistakes to Avoid

Here is where guys go wrong when attempting to pick up their pretty neighbor:

Mistake 1: Being the lonely, boring neighbor

If the woman is also boring and lonely, then this won't be too much of a problem, but if she is a cool, beautiful woman or a woman who leads an active lifestyle, she isn't going to be very attracted to a guy who lives a lonely lifestyle.

When it comes to picking up neighbors, most women will hold back any signs of real interest until they can see that you are a compatible match.

She will want to know for sure whether it will be a good idea to allow you to come into her life. So, when a woman senses that a guy is a "lonely neighbor" looking for some company and is hoping that she will take pity on him, she won't be interested.

To successfully attract and pick up your neighbor, you have to make her feel as though not having you in her life is a bad thing and that she is missing out on enjoying good times by not spending more time with you.

To do that, you should be living an active, interesting lifestyle with friends, fun hobbies and big things that you are working on achieving in life.

If you are leading that type of lifestyle, here's how a conversation might go if she was living a fairly boring lifestyle:

- You: So, how was your weekend?
- Her: Oh, pretty boring...just stayed at home mostly. How about you?
- You: [Smile and say in a joking manner] Oh, so you're a boring girl huh? "I thought you would have been out partying all weekend."
- Her: [Laughing] Nah, just stayed at home.
- You: Well, I'm no party animal, but I went to a friend's house party on Saturday night and was at another friend's BBQ on Sunday afternoon. It was a fun weekend.
- Her: Cool, sounds like you have a great weekend.
- You: Yeah, it was fun. Maybe if you ever have another boring weekend, I should invite you to some parties or something?
- Her: Yeah, that would be cool.

Of course, that's an example of everything going well in the conversation and of you just experienced a fun weekend with friends. If the conversation does go that well, simply get her number or add her to Facebook and then follow up from there. If it doesn't flow that smoothly, just focus on bumping into her once a week (or more if appropriate) and building up more sexual tension and connection between you.

As mentioned, you don't have to be living a fun, interesting lifestyle if she is a boring, stay at home type of woman. However, it is always good to be able to talk about some fun and interesting things that you've been up to lately. Women are always more open to guys who will add more fun and enjoyment to their life.

Mistake 2: Pretending to be an innocent friend who has no sexual or romantic feelings for her

[image: A nice guy being sweet and innocent around a woman...thinking it that it will make her like him]

In most cases, a woman will be able to sense that you like her in a sexual way, so if you hide your sexual interest in her, you will only come across as being weird, untrustworthy and even creepy to some women.

Women are attracted to guys who have the confidence to be themselves and to openly show their sexual interest in a woman in a discreet, non-sleazy way.

If you're attracted to your neighbor, but you are hiding your feelings behind an act of being her innocent friend or a helpful, nice guy act, she may begin to perceive you as a weird neighbor who is always hovering around her and as a result, she will not be interested.

When it comes to picking up your neighbor or any other woman, you have to be honest about your sexual interest after first making her feel attracted to you.

Watch this video to understand why acting like a friend or innocent nice guy often leads to rejection...

Once you have made your neighbor feel attracted to you, it's important to let her know that you find her attractive too. Most women are insecure about their looks and need to be given fairly direct compliments, otherwise they play hard to get to make sure that a guy is really interested and isn't just playing with her.

To let her know that you find her attractive, just smile at her and say things like, "Oh, my sexy neighbor" whenever you see her. If she is attracted to you, she will love it and will make herself more open and available to you, hoping that you make the next move.

Mistake 3: Being too forceful about it

[image: Rejected when expressing feelings to a woman]

Some guys do the opposite of the previous mistake (pretending to have no sexual or romantic interest in her) and instead become too serious and forceful about wanting to start a relationship with her.

Guys who make this mistake often confuse being confident and "being an alpha male who goes after what he wants" with being overbearing and needy. In most cases, these guys lack confidence around women and people and generally behave in a way that most women find unattractive.

When you're attempting to pick up any woman, you must ensure that she is actually attracted and interested in you first, before you begin your pursuit of sex or a relationship. When a woman is attracted to you, she will welcome your advances and even approach you at times, which means that you won't have to behave like an annoying neighbor to get her attention.

Mistake 4: Constantly Doing Favors For Her

Some guys assume that if they do a lot of good deeds for a woman, she will then like him and want to have sex with him.

This is a good move for a guy who is confident and alpha because the woman will be attracted to him, but if you're a nervous, self-doubting, insecure type of guy, then it will be a bad move because she will not be attracted to you.

To attract any woman you have to be confident and masculine (in your thinking, behavior and actions) around her. You also have to be able to flirt with her and create a sexual vibe between you.

If all you can do for her is fix a broken tap, but are nervous and self-doubting when you talk to her or when she looks you in the eyes, then she's not going to want anything more than an extra favor from you.

Of course, there are some women who will accept a nervous, self-doubting guy for sex or a relationship. However, those women are usually unattractive or are simply looking for a guy to play with for a while, until a real man comes along.

Every day, I have thousands of men coming to me for advice on how to get an ex back because of this very problem; they got lucky with a girl who just intended to use them for a while and she has now dumped him because she's either bored and wants to find a real man, or she has already found a new man and is already sleeping with him.

I can help these guys to get their ex back, but if you want to avoid getting dumped or cheated on in the first place, don't rely on "getting lucky" and then hoping that the woman will never realize her mistake and dump you.

How to Approach Her and Start the Interaction

Not all neighbors are the type who stand outside watering their front lawn every evening, or hanging out in the gym at an apartment complex a few times a week. In many cases, you won't see your neighbor for weeks and in other cases, you might see her every day. So, your approach has to vary based on how easy it is to approach and talk to her.

Apartment building: Try to cross paths with her in the elevator, in the foyer or lobby, at the communal gym or swimming pool. Make sure that when you do see her you make the approach, because it will likely be another week to a month before you bump into her again.

House: Walk past her house when she is outside watering her front lawn, or getting mail from her mailbox and then start up a friendly, easy-going conversation and add in some flirting. You will need to be mentally prepared to get up and make an approach at a moment's notice.

Additionally, if your community celebrates things like Halloween or Christmas, you could always organize to go "trick or treating" with some of your nieces and nephews or walk around your neighborhood singing carol songs with the people who go door to door.

If your community doesn't celebrate those traditions (or anything similar where people go from door to door in their neighborhood), then you will have to rely on bumping into her at random times.

Unless you see her often, approaching your neighbor usually isn't going to be as easy as approaching women in bars or talking to women at parties. It's a more difficult approach to pull off, but you essentially need to be patient, confident and ready to approach at a moment's notice.

In some cases, it will be appropriate to walk right up to her door and knock to say hello and have a chat. However, most of the time it won't and you will just have to wait until you get an opportunity to start a conversation when you happen to cross paths.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Talk to Women on Facebook

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Talking to women on Facebook is similar to talking to women that you meet in person. Essentially, when you talk to a woman on Facebook you have to:

- Use humor so she enjoys talking to you.
- Come across as a cool, likeable guy so she wants to associate herself with you.
- Be confident so she feels attracted to you.
- Flirt with her and build up the sexual tension between you so she wants to have sex with you.
- Get her phone number so you can call her and set up a date.

[image: Do's and Don'ts - Facebook]

The DO's and DON'Ts of Talking to Women on Facebook

The secret of how to talk to women on Facebook is to stand out from the crowd by being the sort of guy that a woman wants to talk to and be associated with. That means:

1. Do post photos of you having a lot of fun with other people

Many women now use Facebook as a screening process to sort out the cool guys from the loners. Although many guys will feel annoyed at women for being so superficial and wanting to hook up with guys who will make their Facebook profile look cooler, that's just how a lot of women think these days. A woman wants to see that if she hooks up with you, she will have opportunities to get great photos posted to her Facebook wall. lame yes, but that's modern life unfortunately. If there is nothing going on in your life according to your Facebook photos and posts, most modern women aren't going to feel super excited to be associated with you as a lover or girlfriend on Facebook.

[image: Facebook fail and win]

2. Don't post lonely photos of you at home alone

This is the biggest mistake that I see guys (who are not getting any results with women) making. They take selfie after selfie of themselves alone at home, alone at the train station, alone at a take away food store, etc. Loneliness is not attractive to women, so if you want to use Facebook to talk to women, make sure you don't post up your lonely moments in life.

3. Don't post "pity me" status updates about your life

Another big mistake that guys make is posting up "pity me" status updates like, "Why is life so hard?" or "Ughhh...Monday again. I hate my life." It is fine for women to do that, but not for men. Most women are more attracted to men who are mentally and emotionally strong (i.e. an alpha male) and turned off by emotionally weak men (e.g. shy guys, nervous guys, clingy guys, etc).

[image: Pity men Facebook status updates]

4. Don't post like a girl

Some guys will post status updates like a woman like, “Oh no you didn't! Just left McDonalds and am so pissed off! The staff were so rude! I hate McDonalds now!!” or “OMG!! Just saw Megan Fox on TV and my heart skipped a beat!!! I have a big crush on her!!” Posting like a girl will never, ever make a woman feel attraction for you. The only guys who can post up status updates like a girl and get laughs and women feeling more attraction for him as a result, is a guy who is a confident, alpha male in real life. If you're a nervous, shy guy who lacks masculinity in real-life interactions and then you post up things on Facebook like a girl would, you will turn women off you even more.

When talking a woman on Facebook, you must be a masculine guy and not use or copy her girly, cute, feminine style of communication. Why? Women are attracted to a man's masculinity and turned off when a guy is too feminine in his approach, behavior and thinking. Some guys mistakenly believe that if their messages are “cute,” sweet and full of compliments that a woman will be much more open to talking with them. However, the opposite is true. The more you behave like her, the less interested she will be in talking to you.

Some examples of a girly style of communication:

- Hi! i think ur pic is sooooo cuuute! ð□□□
- U look sooo GR8!
- Wow, ur 2 cute. Lol!
- I lyke ur profile and want 2 talk 2 you. Do u wanna talk 2 me 2?
- OMG!!! So cuuuuuute ^__^

Behaving like a woman or like a little boy (instead of behaving like a masculine man or alpha male) is just not attractive to women. Are you attracted to butch lesbians who behave like men? If you're not a weirdo, then you would of course say, “No” and would instead be attracted to feminine, sexy women. The same applies when talking to women on Facebook: They are not going to feel attracted to you if you behave like a girl. Women feel attraction to a guy's masculine behavior, thinking, actions and communication style, so if you can display that when you talk to a woman on Facebook, she will be much more interested in talking to you and seeing you in person.

Here are some butch lesbians and then some feminine women to give you a graphic example of what I mean...

[image: Butch lesbians or feminine women]

Look at the two different types of women above. Are you more attracted to the butch lesbians who behave like men or the feminine women? When you behave like a girl or like a little boy on Facebook, women feel as much attraction for you as you feel for butch lesbians. Why? Just like you are attracted to feminine women, women are attracted to masculine men. So, don't behave like a girl on Facebook or you will be as unattractive to women as those butch lesbians are to you. Embrace your masculinity and be a man.

5. Don't immediately hit on a woman when you add her as a friend

[image: Unattractive Facebook message from a guy to a girl]

The above approach doesn't work for two main reasons:

1. Most attractive women get those type of messages from random guys every day or at least once a week: I have plenty of attractive female friends and I've seen the sort of messages that some of them get on a daily basis. Additionally, my girlfriend (who has her status set to being in a relationship with me) still gets random guys sending her messages like, “Hi! Wanna chat?” or “Wow! You’re beautiful. Add me so we can chat :)” many times per week.

2. To get a woman to want to talk to you, she first has to feel attraction for you: Whether you meet a woman in person or online, you first have to spark her attraction for you. If you’re feeling sexually attracted to her because of her sexy photo, but she isn’t feeling anything for you, then she’s not going to be very interested in talking to you.

6. Don’t bombard her with messages

Most women have a life or at least have enough responsibilities in life to feel busy. No matter how much fun she has when talking to you, messaging her too often will result in her losing interest in chatting with you because the novelty of it will wear off and will also make you appear as though you have nothing else going on in your life.

No matter what age a woman is, she is always going to be more attracted to guys who go after their true potential in life and do not hide from the world behind an online persona. To get a woman to feel attraction for you and want to meet you in person, you need to maintain a balanced life rather than just focusing on her or spending all night chatting to people on Facebook. Ideally, you want a woman to log on to her Facebook page and wonder, “Am I going to hear from him today? I hope he messages me!” and when she doesn’t hear from you, you want her to feel disappointed and as though she is missing out because you’re probably out somewhere having a great time without her.

“Living” on Facebook and avoiding the rest of what life has to offer you can lead to you displaying clingy, needy and desperate behavior, all of which is unattractive to women. The best approach to use when talking to women on Facebook is to leave a couple of days gap in between bursts of chatting for 5-10 minutes. However, your number one goal should always be to get her on the phone and then arrange to see her in person.

7. Don’t pretend to be an innocent friend who just wants to “chat.”

Some guys put on an act of just wanting to be innocent friends with a woman on Facebook, because they are too afraid of being rejected by her after showing sexual or romantic interest. However, being liked as a friend by a woman is not the same as having her feel attraction and desire for you, or making her want to meet you in person and have sex with you. For a woman to want to be more than a just friend with you, she needs to feel sexually attracted to you and the bottom line is if you’re just being a sweet, friendly guy who only wants to talk online, she will enjoy the attention while she goes out in real life and has sex with a real guy.

8. Don’t hide behind messages – Get her on the phone and arrange a time to see each other in person

The worst thing you can do when talking to women on Facebook is to keep messaging her for weeks and never actually getting her on a phone call. If you wait too long to get her on the phone and organize a time to see each other in person, she will either lose interest in chatting to you or hook up with another guy that she has met in person. When you talk to a woman on the phone, she will feel attraction for you more rapidly than via Facebook messages because she will be able to experience your confident, charismatic personality and feel great when you make her laugh. However, if you just message her all the time, she will be less-likely to feel any sort of attraction for you and may even feel turned off by your communication style.

What to Say When You Contact Her

[image: Woman checking Facebook]

What to say when you contact a woman via Facebook really depends on whether she is a cold, warm or hot contact.

- Cold contact: You don't know her and are just randomly contacting her.
- Warm contact: She is a friend of a friend.
- Hot contact: You've met her in person or already know her well.

If you'd like to know exactly what to say when you first contact women on Facebook, I recommend that you watch Approaching and Talking to Women: For Beginners. I provide my best, tested examples for contacting different types of women on Facebook and then escalating to a phone call so you can set up a date.

Talking Online vs. Talking Face-to-Face

Online, anyone can pretend to be better, cooler and more confident than they are in real life. Most women realize this and as a result, they don't get "sold" on a guy until they talk to him on the phone or in person. Facebook is a new way of communicating for humans and if you want to use it to meet women, you should only use it as a way to get a woman's phone number and then set up a date.

If you spend too much time trying to come up with clever things to say to a woman on Facebook, you will likely end up saying the wrong things or appearing as though you don't have the guts to talk to her on the phone or in person. Then, when she meets a confident guy in real life, she will begin a sexual relationship with him and you will be quickly forgotten. You might be a very confident, self-assured and even witty guy when you're talking to women online, but if you're lost for words, anxious and insecure on a phone call or date, she will be looking to get away from you as fast as possible without hurting your feelings too much.

Being Afraid to Talk to Women in Real Life

These days, an increasing number of men are afraid to approach and talk to women in real life because they develop a warped perception of women by watching too much porn and by believing what they see in music videos, movies and TV drama shows as being how women think and behave in real life. After a while, a guy begins to perceive women as being way more valuable than him and may even begin to copy the "loveable loser" behavior that he sees male characters display in Hollywood movies, only to later realize that in real life, women are attracted to confident guys, not shy, nervous, "pity me" type guys who somehow manage to get laid in every Hollywood movie.

Unfortunately for many guys, talking to women on Facebook is often the only positive female attention they can get. In their everyday life, they are so nervous and self-doubting around women that women don't show them any interest other than just being friendly. Yet, little do many of these guys know, just because a woman talks to him online and ends her messages with smiley faces ð□□□ LOLs!!!! and xoxox, it doesnâ□□t mean sheâ□□s hoping and yearning for him to become her boyfriend. More often than not she is just enjoying the attention and is also talking to and being pursued by many guys online at the same time.

Regardless of how many smiley faces ð□□□ and LOLs a woman sends you, she isn't going to reject a confident guy who talks to her in real life, just because she's being LOLing with you online. She will happily go out on dates and have sex with guys who don't hide behind Facebook or text messages and simply get her on a date and then escalate to sex.

What Does Your Facebook Profile Say About You?

These days, many women are happy to quickly add a guy on Facebook to assess his profile and determine whether he is a cool guy or a lonely guy. If she adds you on Facebook and sees an endless stream of lonely selfies, "pity me" and confused status updates about life, she will usually unfriend you or simply ignore you from then on.

If you fear talking to women in real life and don't have many close friends or live a fun lifestyle, Facebook isn't going to be your savior. You might be able to get women to add you or chat to you, but if they see that you're not a confident guy and really don't have much going on in your life, they usually aren't going to be excited to talk to you or see you in real life. It may be superficial of women to want to associate themselves with cool guys who can add some value to their life, but that's just how women are behaving these days. Getting more likes and comments on her Facebook is like a drug for most women. When you add women on Facebook, you want them to look at your profile and think, "Wow, this guy is cool. I would feel proud to be his girlfriend" rather than, "Oh...nothing going on here...this guy would be embarrassing to have as a boyfriend."

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Flirt With a Woman at Work

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to flirt with a woman at work, you should ensure that she feels attracted to you first.

For example: Begin by attracting her with your confidence, charisma and by using humor in some of your interactions.

[image: Flirting at work]

When she at least feels attracted to you in those ways (this can happen right away), she will then be open to engaging in some subtle flirting with you.

Why? Women are comfortable flirting with guys that they are attracted to and uncomfortable flirting with guys whom they only see as a friend.

If the woman you like at work only sees you as a friend and has no sexual attraction for you at all, she's probably not going to respond well to flirting and may even complain to the boss or coworkers.

Watch the video above for an example (the story of how my friend attracted a new girl at work) of how to quickly make a woman feel attracted and then flirt with her.

[image: Making her feel sexually attracted to you first]

If this female coworker only likes you as a person, that is not the same as her feeling sexual attraction for you. If she isn't interested in you in a sexual way, she won't be interested in flirting with you.

You really have to be clear on that before you begin to flirt with her, otherwise it will cause unnecessary problems for you.

Making Her Feel Sexually Attracted to You Before You Flirt With Her

[image: Making her feel sexually attracted to you before you flirt with her]

There are many different ways that you can make a woman feel attracted to you (e.g. by displaying confidence, being charismatic, being respected by other people in front of her, using humor, etc).

Reminder: If you try to flirt with her when she has no sexual interest in you, she will either reject you or ask you to be more professional with her.

If you keep flirting with her, even she doesn't feel attracted to you, she may ask coworkers to tell you to stop or she might talk to your manager or boss.

So, make sure that she is attracted to you first.

It's so damn important that I have to say it a few times, before I continue on with the rest of the article now.

Examples of How to Flirt With a Woman at Work

[image: Examples of how to flirt with a woman at work]

After you have made sure that she feels sexually attracted to you, you can now begin to flirt with her in a light, easy-going way.

I recommend starting with flirting body language first, so you can further test the waters with her and see how she reacts.

Example 1: Use a Subtle Sexual Smile

[image: Subtle sexual smile - flirting]

To use the Subtle, Sexual Smile to flirt with a woman at work, simply do the following:

- Allow yourself to feel confident in the moment while talking to her.
- Hold eye contact with her and smile in a confident, easy-going way.
- In your mind, assume that she likes you and then use that confidence to smile at her in a confident, subtly sexual way.
- When she holds eye contact and smiles back at you, maintain eye contact for 3-4 seconds while continuing to smile as she talks to you.

When you use the Subtle Sexual Smile, she will then either look away in a submissive way (a good sign), look puzzled (usually just to test your confidence) or might ask you something like, “What are you smiling about?” to which you can reply (while smiling and saying the following in an easy-going, confident way), “Talking to you makes me smile.”

If she likes you and wants to flirt with you, she will become shy, smile, laugh and show you that she enjoyed the compliment. If she wants to keep things professional and doesn't want a workplace romance, she might get weird about it ask, “What do you mean?”

Simply smile and reply in an easy-going way, “Talking to you makes me smile because you're not only a beautiful woman, but you're also very intelligent and you do a great job here. It's a pleasure to be working with you.”

She will then be impressed at the fact that you've not only remained confident (this will be attractive to her), but you also have the social intelligence to be professional in a situation like that.

If she is the type of woman who will need you to be discreet about your workplace romance, she will be impressed that you don't get flustered and panic when under pressure.

Whatever you do, just make sure that you continue to display relaxed confidence and be easy going about the whole thing. Confidence is sexually attractive to women and if you display nervousness and self-doubt you will not only turn her off, but you will make the interaction feel awkward.

Example 2: Compliment Her So Often That it Becomes Funny

[image: Flirting example: Compliment her until it becomes funny]

When flirting with a woman at work, you have to flirt “under the radar” so that you don't get yourself into trouble for being unprofessional.

A normal approach to flirting when you meet women in a bar or nightclub is to be more direct and sexually suggestive with your flirting (e.g. smile and say, “You’re sexy...I like you” when you and her have just had a laugh together).

However, in the workplace, you usually have to much more discreet and subtle.

Rather than being direct about your sexual interest in her, you should instead focus on creating a fun and positive vibe between you and her, while also making sure that you are making her feel sexually attracted to you.

Here are a couple of examples of complimenting her so often that it becomes funny and flirtatious:

- Her coffee cup: “Wow, you have great taste when it comes to coffee cups. The off white color is just dazzling.”
- Her desk: “I just wanted to tell you that you’re an inspiration to me. You keep your desk so tidy and organized, while my desk looks like a tornado just passed by it.”

Important: To ensure that you don’t get in trouble for being annoying offensive, you must make sure that you smile ☺☺☺ when giving the compliments. You must also (and this is more important) maintain a positive, easy-going personality style at work.

If you’re always super serious around her and other people, or if you’re usually sarcastic or negative about things and you then begin to compliment her like that, she may take it the wrong way and think that you’re making fun of her in a mean way.

To avoid any drama in a work environment, you should always try to maintain a positive, easy-going, light-hearted approach, while also being professional and effective.

If you are too serious and uptight about things, most of your coworkers will not want to interact with you in a playful way.

Do Not Flirt With Her Via E-mail

[image: Don't flirt with her via e-mail]

Many guys make the mistake of trying to flirt with female coworkers via e-mail because they are afraid to say things to her in person.

This is the worst approach that a guy could ever take with a female coworker for two main reasons:

1. It’s very easy to completely misinterpret what you’re trying to say

When a woman can’t see your body language and facial expressions or can’t hear the tone of your voice, she has to GUESS how you were behaving/feeling when you wrote what you did in the e-mail. If you say sexually suggestive things or attempt to tease or flirt with her via e-mail, it can easily come across as sleazy, insulting and unprofessional.

She might be the type of woman who gets offended easily or may be the type who wants to cause problems in the workplace, so flirting via e-mail will usually get you in trouble with a woman like her.

To flirt with a woman at work, you must ensure that you interact with her in person.

If you are too afraid to talk to her in person and try to hide behind e-mail messages, she may misinterpret what you’re saying and then report you to a manager, to HR (Human Resources) or begin spreading negative gossip about you around the workplace.

2. An e-mail is much less likely to spark her feelings of attraction

Women feel most attraction for a man when they interact with him in person. Why? It is during an interaction that a woman can fully experience your confidence, behavior and personality.

Simply sending a message to her with a cute smiley face ☺ and some LOLs, will usually result in her experiencing mild feelings of interest and possibly some attraction at times.

However, if she then interacts with you in person and notices that you are nervous and self-doubting around her, she will close up and lose interest in you. She will realize that you're confident and flirty via e-mail, but you are nervous and self-doubting in person.

5 Mistakes to Avoid When Flirting With a Woman at Work

It's easy to flirt with women at work if you're always a confident, easy-going guy who isn't afraid to have a laugh.

If you're that sort of guy, no-one is going to complain when you do what you normally do and have a laugh with a woman at work.

As long as you do a great job and approach your role professionally, the vast majority of people (including management) will appreciate that you are able to bring smiles and laughter into the workplace at times.

Yet, when a guy doesn't come across in that way, he might make one of the following classic mistakes...

1. Coming on too strong

When flirting with a woman in the workplace, you have to take it easy and give the attraction some time to develop.

If you meet a woman in a bar, you can flirt with her and begin kissing within minutes, but in a workplace, you have to be more relaxed and patient about it.

If she shows you some interest, don't get all excited and then ask her out on a date that day or the next.

Instead, just let the sexual tension build up between you and her until it is absolutely obvious that she wants something to happen between you and her (i.e. she is always going out of her way to see you, she flirts with you, asks what you're going to be up to for the weekend, etc).

From there, do not ask her out on a "date."

Why?

Most women in a workplace environment are worried about dating a coworker for a while, getting dumped and then feeling embarrassed or humiliated around her colleagues.

To avoid a woman putting her guard up and not wanting to escalate any further than some innocent flirting back and forth in the workplace, you must suggest to "catch up" sometime outside of work, rather than talking about going on a date or asking if she is interested in having a relationship with you.

Ideally, you would simply invite her to catch up with you and some friends who are having some drinks on a Friday night after work, or invite her to a house party or to a friend's party at a bar or friend's BBQ at a park on the weekend.

2. Expecting her to like you because you're being nice to her

Just because a woman is being friendly with a guy, it doesn't necessarily mean that she likes him and wants to have sex with him.

Likewise, being nice to a woman and being her friend isn't what makes a woman feel turned on and attracted.

There's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman in a work environment, but unless you are coming across in a way that triggers her feelings of sexual attraction for you, she's not going to be interested in anything more than a professional relationship as colleagues.

3. Using the workplace as a testing ground for picking up women

If you want to know how to flirt with a woman at work because you're planning on using the workplace as a testing ground instead of approaching and talking to women outside of work, it is a very bad idea.

Unless you are skilled at attracting women with your personality (e.g. you're confident, charismatic, charming, funny) and people like you and respect you, it is very easy to get yourself into trouble for attempting to pick up women at work.

If you're skilled at picking up women outside of work, then go ahead and flirt away.

However, if you don't really know how to make women feel attracted to you outside of work, then you will get much better results if you improve your ability to attract women first (e.g. at a bar, social event, party, with waitresses, receptionists, etc).

When you are able to trigger a woman's feelings of attraction for you in many different ways, she will be unable to stop herself from feeling sexually attracted to you.

When you know that she is attracted to you, she will then be excited when you begin to subtly flirt with her in the workplace.

Then, if you suggest catching up for a drink after work or invite her to a party that you're attending on the weekend, she will be happy to come along and will be hoping that you and her hook up.

4. Being sleazy

To flirt with a woman at work, you have to be classy and discreet because most women are afraid of becoming the target of negative gossip.

Most women in the workplace want to be able to maintain their image of professionalism, but are open to some discreet flirting as long as you make them feel attracted to you first.

Here's the thing though...

Even if a woman is sexually attracted to you, she usually won't be open to showing obvious signs of sexual interest when others are watching, because she will be worried about how it might affect her chances of being promoted or her position in the company.

So, keep it discreet (e.g. use the Subtle Sexual Smile) and build up the sexual tension between you by continuing to make her feel attracted.

Then, if you attend after work drinks together or invite her out for a drink 1-on-1 on a Friday night after work, she will be keen to finally release the sexual tension with kissing and sex.

[image: After work drinks - flirting]

5. Telling everyone how you feel about her

If you want to be seen as a cool, confident guy who is liked, respected and wanted by women, don't go around telling everyone how you feel about the woman you like.

Just believe in yourself that you can attract her on your own, without the assistance of coworkers.

If a guy doesn't make the woman feel attracted first and then goes around telling people, "I really like her. What should I do to let her know how I feel? Should I ask her out," it might be fun for some people to talk about, but it's not going to make the woman think, "WOW! He's afraid to ask me out! WOW! A nervous, insecure guy! WOW!!"

Instead, she will usually deny having any feelings for him and may even laugh with people behind his back, so she can "save face" and not appear as though she is interested in a guy like him.

Are You Ready to Do it?

[image: Flirting with a woman at work]

Will you be ready to flirt with her the next time you interact with her?

I hope my article has helped you and if you'd like to learn more, click around my site and I will continue teaching you how to naturally attract women...

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Avoid Awkward Silences in a Conversation

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Have you ever been talking to a woman and then run out of things to say? Do you find it difficult to keep conversations going and keep them interesting?

Don't worry – most guys do. Yet, what most guys don't realize about the dreaded “awkward silence” in a conversation is this:

1. It's completely normal and natural for a conversation to have pauses and silences

When two humans speak to each other, they don't have to be exchanging dialogue 100% of the time. It is completely normal and natural for a silence or pause to occur in a conversation.

2. It's not an awkward silence if you don't think it is

[image: Not an awkward silence]

Why do you think that the silence is “awkward”?

A confident guy like me^Â is totally comfortable when silences happen in conversation. Why? If a conversation goes quiet, I don't think anything; I have nothing to prove because I already know that women feel attracted to me.

How do I know that? It's easy to attract women.

You can attract women by being confident, having a masculine vibe, being charismatic, using humor, etc. It's easy and when you know how to attract women in those ways, you don't have to worry about any silences during conversations. In fact, you can make her more attracted to you by remaining confident when the conversation does go silent at times.

3. If she is attracted to you, she will usually try to fill in any silences

[image: Not an awkward silence during a conversation]

When a woman feels sexual attraction for you and is hoping that you like her too, she will usually worry that you will lose interest in her if there are long pauses or silences during a conversation.

If you just relax and wait for a minute, she will eventually ask you something boring like, “So, what do you do?” or “So, do you come here often?” or something similar.

Why? She doesn't know what else to say! She's scrambling and rushing to come up with something to say and in her panic, she comes up with something standard and boring like that.

Of course, there are some cool women who know that silences during a conversation are normal, natural and expected. In those cases, she will just wait for you to keep the conversation going or will lose interest if you get nervous about the “awkward” silence.

Do You Get Nervous When a Conversation With a Woman Goes Silent?

[image: Woman testing man]

Many women will intentionally let a conversation go quiet because they want to see how you will react.

Will you become nervous and begin to doubt that she likes you, or will you remain confident and calm? Since women are mostly attracted to a guy's confidence, they are always trying out different ways to test your confidence during a conversation, on a date, during sex and in a relationship.

Even confident guys like me still experience constant testing from women. Why? Women want to feel as though you are stronger than them (mentally and emotionally), so it then makes sense for them to submit to you during conversation, sex and in a relationship.

[image: Awkward silences during conversation]

If a woman feels stronger than you, then it just won't feel right for her to open herself up to you and be penetrated by you during sex, or to follow your lead in a relationship. Women want to submit themselves to men who feel stronger than them, mentally and emotionally.

When a woman tests your confidence by letting a conversation dry up and creating a lengthy pause, she will be watching to see what happens to your body language, behavior and conversation style.

This is not something that you can fake for too long because your true self is always coming through via your body language, behavior, actions, conversation style and vibe. The key to success with women is not to "fake it until you make it," but to actually become confident and alpha.

If you avoid that and hope to get by with tricks, most women will catch you and reject you for it. Women are looking for real men who are genuinely confident and if you can display that during a conversation, most women that you meet will like you and open themselves up to the idea of being with you.

Three Common Conversation Mistakes to Avoid

There are many ways that a guy will mess up a conversation with a woman that he's trying to attract. Here are three common ones:

1. Talking Too Much

When a guy lacks confidence around women and his insecurities begin making him feel nervous, he will often make the mistake of talking too much in an attempt to fill in any gaps or "awkward silences" during a conversation.

When that happens, he will often make the mistake of beginning to brag about his achievements or what he is aiming to achieve in life, in an attempt to impress the woman.

The more he tries to impress her, the less impressed she is. Why? Women are impressed by men who are confident and don't feel the need to brag and hope to get the approval of others.

To be a confident, alpha male that women will feel naturally attracted to you have to start by realizing that you are already good enough and do not need to hopelessly try to get women to like you.

Fearing silence and feeling awkward when no one is talking indicates that a guy is not relaxed and comfortable just being himself. Women are always actively on the look out for this type of insecurity and anxiety from a guy, because it helps them pick out the boys from the men or the alpha males from the omega males.

In Hollywood movies, TV sitcoms and dramas, you will often see women falling in love with the nervous, socially-hopeless nice guy. He will say all sorts of awkward things and cause awkward moments, but he will then save the day, save the girl or save the world and then she will fall madly in love with him.

In the real world, women are turned off by nervous, self-doubting guys and simply have sex with alpha males instead. Many nervous, shy and insecure guys manage to get lucky and score themselves a girlfriend, but they almost always end up getting cheated on or dumped by her.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use it to get what you want with women...

As you will discover from the video above, women are lot easier to attract than most guys realize.

As long as you display the personality traits and behaviors that are attractive to women, most women will like you and be interested in being with you.

2. Freezing Up

[image: Freezing up when talking to a woman]

Many guys know a few lines to say to women to start a conversation, but they will often freeze up and become lost for words when talking to an attractive woman.

A fundamental part of enjoying success with women is being confident and believing in yourself when talking to a woman. If you can't believe in yourself, a woman usually won't accept it and would rather reject you than give you a free pass to sleep with her.

If she is experienced with relationships, she will know that guys who lack confidence around women are usually the type to become clingy in a relationship or do many of the other things that cause a woman to lose respect for a man in a relationship.

When a woman goes out to party or to socialize, she isn't looking to meet a guy who takes the conversation extremely seriously and is worried about messing up.

She just wants you to be confident to be yourself and to let your natural sense of humor come to the surface while talking to her. She wants you to feel comfortable to flirt with her and create a sexual vibe, while not being sleazy or behaving like a jerk.

3. Faking it

For some guys, their fear of being rejected by a woman leads to them trying way too hard to impress a woman.

This might mean putting on a fake social persona and pretending to be someone that he's not (e.g. a really nice guy, a shy and vulnerable guy, a bad boy, a jerk or a gentleman).

However, faking about who you really are rarely works (for long) because when a woman senses that you're not being genuine, she will put her guard up, find it difficult to trust you and won't feel relaxed in your company.

Having relaxed confidence and being comfortable to just be yourself and not try to impress anyone is far more attractive to a woman than being a faker. Guys who try to impress women with loud, over the top behavior are very often trying to hide their lack of confidence behind an overly-confident front. For these guys, and any kind of silence will feel awkward because they're so unsure of themselves and what they've got to offer to women that they seek approval by putting on a fake persona to “fit in” with others.

Some inexperienced or younger women will fall for it and mistakenly think that the guy is confident and even “cool,” but most women are experienced or socially intelligent enough to spot a genuinely confident guy from a faker.

How to Be an Amazing Conversationalist

To master the art of conversation, you need to be able to:

- Pause, listen and talk in a way that makes people respect you and listen to you.
- Strike the right balance between talking about yourself and getting her to talk about herself.
- Let silences comfortably exist during conversations, instead of trying to fill them up so you are exchanging dialogue 100% of the time. Remember: Silence is not awkward for guys who are confident and secure in who they are and who know that a silence is normal and expected during a conversation.
- Draw people into a conversation by being yourself, but also connecting with them on their level.

Avoiding Awkward Silences During Conversations With Women

In addition to learn many new things to say and ways of keeping conversations going and keeping them interesting, the key to avoid awkward silences is to know that silences in a conversation are not awkward at all.

A guy who is confident in himself and socially intelligent enough to know that a silence is normal during a conversation, will be able to talk to women with the type of relaxed confidence that women are naturally drawn to.

He can be himself and let his real sense of humor and charisma come to the surface around women.

When a guy is skilled at attracting women, he will be able to make a woman feel like a real woman (i.e. make her feel girly and feminine) during conversation because he is so masculine in the way he thinks, behaves and feels. Having real inner confidence and a masculine characteristics allows him to have a presence about him that stirs a deep sexual attraction in women.

He becomes a man that women describe as a real man and when women are lucky enough to meet one of those men, they try very hard to keep conversations going with him.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Do Men Need Toughening Up or Are We Tough Enough Already?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Men can never be tough enough.

The toughening up of the human species has been going on since it began and in my opinion, it will never end.

Life here on planet Earth is challenging at the best of times and as men, we can never rest on our laurels and think that we've got this reality sorted out and under control.

[image: Men can never be tough enough]

Despite our smartphones, supermarkets and confident posts on the Internet, we human beings are still only a hurricane or tornado away from basic survival.

All of a sudden, our trusty power grid shuts down, supermarket shelves are emptied in a panicked frenzy, the gas runs dry and we're back to fending for ourselves again.

While future technological breakthroughs will solve a lot of our problems and make life easier in many ways, we are living in a seemingly infinite universe, so there will always be new and more complex challenges awaiting us as we progress forward.

We will never get to the point where we can say, "We've achieved everything. The battle is over! Our dreams are all achieved and nothing else needs to be done" because there is always a next level.

Our human story is only just beginning and to get to where we really want to be, we will need to become even tougher, smarter and more resilient than we've ever been before.

Why Do Men Need to Be Tough? Why Can't Women Be the Tough Ones?

When we ask ourselves, "Do men need toughening up, or are we tough enough already?" we're really asking that question because we know that men are expected to be the tougher ones of the human species.

Whether people feel comfortable openly admitting it or not, we all know that it is okay for a woman to cry, be afraid and hide behind the protection of a man.

However, the same is not true for men.

Generally speaking, we men are expected to be strong, tough and stand fearlessly in the face of danger when necessary. We are expected to be a pillar of strength for those around us and remain strong when others are fearful or buckling under pressure.

[image: Female UFC fighters]

Female UFC fighters

[image: Female body builders]

Female body builders

[image: Female body builders]

Female body builders

[image: Female soldiers]

Female soldiers

That's not to say that women aren't tough or can't protect men.

In today's world, women are often fighting on the frontlines of battle alongside men or duking it out in bloody, UFC cage fights for the love of the sport and competition.

Yet, just because a small percentage of women are now battling on the frontlines like men, it doesn't mean that "women are the new men" and that we men now need to step aside. It just means that women are challenging us men to become even tougher than we've ever been before, which is actually a really good thing.

Women Challenge Us Men to Become Tougher... and That is a Good Thing For All of Us

Throughout human history, a small percentage of women have taken on the role of being tough like a man and standing in the face of danger to protect men and humanity. However, for the most part, women have stood back from danger and instead challenged men to become even tougher than they already are.

By showing more attraction and interest for confident men and showing less attraction and interest for weak men, women have challenged us men to become stronger.

Since men will do pretty much anything to impress women to hopefully plant their seed, women react by requesting toughness and strength, amongst other things, in exchange for bearing offspring. It's a beautiful exchange of value and personally speaking, I look at this "mating preference" as one of the greatest gifts that women provide for humanity.

My Story: How Women Challenged Me to Become a Stronger Man

[image: Dan Bacon - Dating and Relationship Expert]

I guess the best way to explain the wider benefits of women challenging men, is to tell my story about how women challenged me to become the strong, "tough" man that I am today.

It all started 11 years ago when I got tired of being single and decided to try and meet women.

I wasn't a tough guy, mentally and emotionally. I doubted myself, I felt nervous around women and they just didn't like that about me. Instead of rewarding my weakness with sex, love and devotion, women challenged me to become stronger by rejecting me and not showing interest in my wimpy approach to them.

After a while, I began to hate women for being so mean and picky about the guys who approached them. I thought that women were stuck up and didn't know a good guy when they met one. No matter how many different ways I tried to talk to them, women just didn't like me. Eventually, I realized that my nervousness or lack of "mental and emotional toughness" was the problem.

It wasn't until I became confident and "toughened up" that women started to show me interest and respect. When I walked over to talk to a woman as a confident man, that is when women opened up to the conversation.

As my confidence grew, so did women's interest in me. Before I knew it, I had women calling me up and trying to set up dates with me. It was a pretty amazing transformation and experience.

To be clear, me getting to "sort out my dating life" wasn't the wider benefit to humanity with regards to women's challenging behavior; it goes deeper than that. As a by-product of becoming a stronger, more confident man simply to have women like me, I ended up getting promoted three times within six months in the corporate world.

To improve my confidence, self-belief and mental toughness around women, I had to go through a lot of personal development.

While learning everything I could about confidence, social intelligence and interacting with other people, I quickly became more effective in my job and from a low-level customer service employee on the phone, I rose up to become the coach of a team, the leader of a team and then the leader of the leaders.

That was also a pretty amazing transformation and experience. As a tough-minded man, I was able to confidently lead hundreds of employees and as a team, we managed to improve productivity and increase job satisfaction, which then reduced employee sick leave rates and thus increased profits for the company.

Essentially, I became a more useful and effective man for society.

All of this happened in response to being rejected by women for being a mentally and emotionally weak man. If women accepted my self-doubt, nervousness and emotional weakness, then what sort of world would be living in? We'd be encouraging the human race to become wimpier.

In that weird world, women would have to settle for scared, nervous men who were hesitant in the bedroom and in life. When faced with challenging situations, these men would break down and cry and look to women to save them.

When watching a horror movie, it would be the man who hugged into the woman for a feeling of safety. If there were strange noises outside the house, it would be the man telling the woman, "Please! Go outside and check! I'm scared!"

I don't know about you, but I like things the way they are now. In today's world, women have the choice to live like a man if they choose to, live like a traditional woman or be their own version of what they think a woman is.

We have a nice mix of different personality types and ways of looking at life and it all blends together to make us tougher than we were yesterday.

Some men are angry that many modern women aren't subservient like women of previous generations, but such men simply haven't realized that they are falling behind the times. Women are still women, but if you feel as though they are tougher than you, then you've lost your way as a man.

It's Not Only the Pressure of Women That Make Us Men Stronger

Dana White, the president of the UFC is a perfect example of a man who has become stronger by rising through the levels of his true potential as a man.

He has been unrelenting in his pursuit to make the UFC the best fighting organization in the world. Due to the pressure of having to deal with tough men, day in and day out, as well as the pressures of the media and running the business side of the UFC, Dana White has turned into one tough, alpha male.

[image: Dana White]

Dana White has had to become tougher to deal with the increasing level of challenge and pressure involved with running the UFC.

He is also a perfect example of a man who has a strong life purpose and will stop at nothing to make it happen.

When you are a man of purpose, you are forced to become stronger all the time. Of course, a big side benefit of that is you become deeply attractive to women. Women refer to you as a real man, men respect you and most people want to be around you or be your friend. It's the magnetic draw and power of being of man of purpose.

Okay, so here is the before and after of Dana White:

Before

After

Muscle Confusion

Many modern men who don't understand what toughness really is will often turn to bodybuilding as a solution to be seen as "tough" by women, or by people in general.

While there is nothing wrong with working out and building muscles, it is not the type of toughness that is most impressive to women or the most beneficial to humanity.

A man might be able to lift heavy weights in a gym, but if he is a wimp at heart and doesn't really contribute much to the world, then he's not very useful to anyone.

[image: Why do women like guys with big muscles?]

If you're not confident guy, then she doesn't care if you have muscles or not...she's not going to be interested. Without confidence, you're just another nervous, weak-minded guy with muscles

Zoom up into the sky to about 400ft and then look down and take a bird's eye view of a guy with big muscles working out in a gym. As you look down from your high position, you will see that the body builder is about as small as an ant.

He's not "big" like he thinks he is.

He's a little human on a tiny planet floating in a humungous universe.

His ability to lift weights up and down in a repetitive fashion doesn't do anything for the real challenges and problems facing humanity.

It also doesn't necessarily mean that he is a confident guy who will be able to protect and provide for a woman and the offspring they have. Growing slightly bigger muscles also doesn't mean that he is successful in life or is on his way to success.

It just means that he has extra meat on his body.

It is for this reason that when a woman is deciding how much she likes a guy, she looks at his behavior, thinking and the actions he takes as a man.

He may have big biceps, but if he is nervous in social situations or is hiding from his true potential as a man out of fear, then he doesn't have the type of toughness that she will find attractive in a long-term relationship.

She might feel some initial physical attraction to his muscles and physical strength, but instinctively she knows that his biceps aren't that important. This type of natural selection by women for mental and emotional toughness, rather than just physical toughness, is one of the main reasons why the human race has become what it is today.

What Does it Mean to Be a Tough Man?

Tough (adjective): Strong and durable, not easily broken. Capable of great endurance.

Weak (adjective): Not strong. Likely to break or collapse under pressure. Lacking in force, inadequate.

Essentially, being tough as a man is about being strong, durable and not folding under pressure. While this also applies to your physical strength, the most important type of strength as a man is your mental and emotional strength.

If you become nervous under pressure or quit when faced with a difficult challenge, then you're not a tough man. However, if you're the sort of man who remains strong, sturdy and determined no matter what, then you have what it takes to be respected by other men, wanted by women and truly appreciated by the world around you.

How Tough Are You As a Man?

Every guy has a certain level of toughness right now, but that isn't and never will be the highest peak he can reach. Answer the following questions to yourself and have a think about how tough you are as a man and where you might be able to add some strength:

- Do you give up easily when a project or career dream becomes too challenging, or do you push through any obstacles and keep reaching for your ultimate goals with unrelenting determination?
- When life gets tough, do you seek the pity of others, or do you accept the situation for what it is, fix it and then get on with life, feeling stronger and more determined than ever before?
- Do you cry when times get tough, or do you feel the emotion of a situation and then get on with life instead of breaking down into tears?
- Do you feel nervous or anxious around attractive women, or are you always calm, confident and in control?
- Do you become jealous, clingy or insecure in a relationship with a woman, or do you retain your confidence and love her in a mature, non-needy way?
- If you see an attractive woman whom you want to approach, do you approach with confidence or become nervous, doubt yourself and then chicken out?

There is always room to improve your personal toughness as a man and there is literally no limit to the “toughness potential” of the human race.

So, in response to the question of, “Do men need toughening up, or are we tough enough already?” I think the answer is clear: There is no limit to your toughness as a man.

You can be a lot tougher than you are right now so keep going. You haven’t reached the peak yet and when you do, there will be another peak to climb. It goes on forever and that is a good thing.

Onward!

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Why Does the Legal System Make Men Pay For Women?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

By forcing men to pay a divorce settlement, is the legal system suggesting that all women are hookers and need to get paid for being with men?

I think it is.

According to the law, women need to get paid for being with a man.

[image: Pay up boy - give me half!]

Who makes up these laws and thinks it is correct?

The same type of humans that have made up all sorts of crazy laws in the past (e.g. hang scientists for suggesting that the Earth isn't flat, burn women at the stake because they are suspected of being a witch, etc).

It's crazy, but people go along with it because everyone else is doing it.

Are All Women Hookers Now?

This is a discussion that I had with Ben from The Modern Man one day as we noticed a string of divorce settlements being broadcast throughout the mass media, where high profile men were forced to give 50% of their money and assets to their wife after a divorce.

We wondered to ourselves, "Why does the legal system make men pay for women? Does this mean that all women are hookers who get paid for being with a man? Why don't women pay men? Why is the legal system continuing to enforce a law that developed when women couldn't get out there and earn their own money?"

Here's what we think...

The law that forces men to pay a woman a "divorce settlement" is outdated and turns many modern men off the idea of marriage.

In most countries, women can now earn their own money and be supported by the government as a single parent, so it's not as if they need to take 50% of a man's wealth after a divorce.

A woman should get child support if the couple had children, but taking 50% of the man's wealth just for being his wife means that, according to the legal system, she is a hooker and needs to get paid.

The outdated law that grants an ex-wife 50% of a man's money and assets is enough to make most modern men laugh at the idea of getting married.

As one guy said to me via email, "I'll love her, I'll trust her, but I'm not going to marry her and give her the power to take 50% of my net wealth if she decides that she wants to be single again."

I understand where he is coming from because even for me (Dan from The Modern Man) in a relationship with my perfect woman, I still can't say that her and I will be together "forever."

Update: We have now gotten married. I decided to do it because I believe I can keep the relationship together for life. She signed a prenup and she has her own successful business now, so I ain't worried about a thing.

Extended Lifespans: Will You Be Able to Stay Together For 100s of Years?

If you've been paying attention to what is going on with science, you would know that humans are on the verge of being able to live for 150-200 years and by that point, new technology will be available that will most-likely allow us to stay alive indefinitely.

If you think that is "wishful thinking" or science fiction, then go and watch the entire Through the Wormhole series (not just one episode). You will see that we're on the verge of being able to live indefinitely.

The question that a lot of informed modern men have now is this, "Is marriage really a good idea when the legal system is still basing its judgment on a time when humans died at 70 and when divorce was shameful and avoided at all costs?"

Should we men have to hand over half of our assets and wealth to a woman if the relationship breaks up five, 20, 50 or even 70 years from now? Personally speaking, I am continuing down the path of potentially starting a family with my beautiful girlfriend and may even be open to getting married, but one thing is for sure: I will be protecting myself with a prenuptial agreement.

Marriage Wasn't Always Based on Love

In the past, most men and women got married out of necessity or to secure alliances, land or legitimate heirs. In her book Marriage, a History: How Love Conquered Marriage

[image:]

, Stephanie Coontz states, *"For most of history, it was inconceivable that people would choose their mates on the basis of something as fragile and irrational as love and then focus all their sexual, intimate, and altruistic desires on the resulting marriage."*¹

In other words, the concept of marriage came about to secure benefits, land, alliances and build a more secure life. If you were lucky, you also got to marry someone you loved.

In today's society, people usually get married because they are in love and are enjoying a great relationship. They want to signal their commit to be with each other for life by "tying the knot" and getting married. However, if their relationship falls apart or if the love fades away, they often choose to get divorced.

Since women are usually granted 50% of a man's wealth and assets, it shouldn't be a surprise to learn that, according to the American Law and Economics Review, approximately 68.9% of all divorces are filed by women.

After all, she can get a huge divorce payout and then start a new relationship with another man, only to go through another divorce later on (and get another payout) if she loses interest. In other words, she is getting paid like a hooker does for being with a client, except she is staying with him for years instead of hours.

According to a report researched at the London School of Economics and published by the Centre for Policy Studies, it seems that women are more likely than ever to marry a man who will improve their financial prospects.

As Catherine Hakim, a senior researcher in sociology and the reports author states,
*“Women’s aspirations to marry up, if they can, to a man who is better-educated and higher earning persists in most European countries, and women continue to use marriage as an alternative or supplement to their employment careers.”*²

At this point Iâm sure the feminists will be up in arms and saying that women deserved to be paid, but it is this kind of research that is turning men off marriage and making them ask, “Do women who get married have ulterior motives?” or “Is my wife going to encourage me to become wealthy, to work hard and to buy lots of expensive things, only to turn around one day and demand half of it in a divorce?”

Paul McCartney and His One-Legged Hooker

[image: Paul McCartney, the old rocker who got rolled by a one-legged prostitute (Heather Mills) for £24.3 million after four years of marriage.]

A classic, high profile example of men being “taken to the cleaners” by a woman during a divorce is the marriage and subsequent divorce between Paul McCartney and Heather Mills (a one-legged prostitute from England).

If ever there was a case of a woman who could easily be perceived as an expensive hooker, Heather Mills fits the bill perfectly.

Here’s why...

According to the judgment summary published by BBC News, Paul McCartney and Heather Mills were married for just under 4 years.

For this period of time Heather Mills felt she deserved to get £125m. In the end the judge awarded her with £24.3m, of which £16.5m was to be given to her as a lump sum and £7.8m to be given to her in assets³.

The question is though, what could this woman possibly have contributed to her husband and the marriage in a period of less than 4 years, that could be worth the £125m she was asking for, or even the £24.3m she was awarded? He is Paul McCartney from the Beatles, arguably the best band that ever existed. How on Earth could she have contributed anything to that?

The way I see it is that the legal system made McCartney, like millions of other husbands, pay his woman like she was a hooker or one of those women who get paid for giving the “girlfriend experience.”

Let’s break it down:

- Sex on average twice a week x 4 years = sex 416 times.
- £24.3 million pound payout / 416 times having sex = £58,413.461 per sexual encounter.

That is one very expensive one-legged prostitute! Heather Mills now goes down in history as one of the most expensive hookers to have ever lived and she did it in modern times, with all of our media and intelligent, well-educated judges and lawyers.

The modern legal system paid Mills for being with one of the coolest guys on the planet. In my opinion, that is a ridiculous divorce settlement based on an outdated law that suggests women need to be paid for being with women.

In the end, Heather Mills was awarded Â£16,643 for every day she was married to Paul McCartney; and that was over and above all the perks that came along with the "job" such as expensive gifts, 5 star vacations, fame and Paul McCartney pulling strings to help her advance her own career by arranging for her to interview Paul Newman on Larry King Live, broadcast by CNN on 17 April 2004, etc.'

The old rocker got rolled.

Of course it's easy to say that Heather Mills and Paul McCartney are celebrities and the divorce rules that apply to the rich and famous do not apply to everyone else.

However, there are countless ordinary women who have received the same, if not better, perks from their divorce. Other examples include, Alan and Melissa Miller who were married for only 2 years and 9 months and had no children, yet she was awarded Â£5m for her "services".

As Marcus Dearle, a family lawyer who works at the firm that represented Melissa Miller stated, "What actually happened, at the end of the day, was that the judge focused on the high standard of living that Mrs Miller and Mr Miller enjoyed, and also the fact that a lot of money was earned in that very short... marriage."

In other words, is it fair to say that Melissa Miller, Heather Mills and all women who are being awarded big payouts are simply being paid to keep them in the "high standard of living" they have become accustomed to?

If this is the case, does that make these women (who are paid money for being with men) simply a legal (and very expensive) prostitute?

After all, if a person gets fired from their job, it's not likely that their ex employer is going to keep sending them their paycheck for years just because they've become accustomed to a "high standard of living," is it?

So why does this happen time and again and why does the legal system make men pay for women? In my opinion, the legal system is outdated and if you are going to get married, make sure you protect yourself.

The Argument From Women

Women lose value on the dating and mating market as they age because their attractiveness is based on their youthful appearance first and personality second.

However, the opposite is true for men. As guys hit their 30s and 40s, their value on the mating market increases because they are more masculine, more established in life and are usually able to provide a better life for themselves and the woman. So, it's no surprise that some women want the divorce settlement laws to stay in place.

If a woman invests her time and body into a man by bearing offspring and letting her youthfulness and beauty fade during a marriage, it can be difficult for her to get back out there and attract a high quality man after a divorce.

[image: Two men offering gifts to one woman]

While most people aren't comfortable discussing the facts about a woman's value on the mating market, it is what's really at the heart of the 50% payout. The legal system is basically saying, "When a woman commits to a man, her value usually decreases, making it harder for her to get back on her feet after a divorce."

During a long marriage, a woman will often give up her own career, education and aspirations and decide to support her husband in pursuing his career or financial dreams.

Sometimes this support is active, where the wife participates in her husband's business and other times the support is passive, where she stays at home, runs the household and raises the kids.

It is for this reason that the legal system tends to take an overall approach to divorce and assume the best about women (i.e. that she is 50% responsible for the wealth and assets that the man has acquired).

However, what if the woman's input was worthless? Should she be given an equal share of what he owns even if she has done nothing for it other than be with him? Somehow, this just doesn't seem fair and in the opinion of most people (men and women alike), divorce settlements should be based on more than just assumptions.

Some women will argue that a woman is giving up her chance to earn money and build a career by sticking by a man, but that decision is her choice.

If she wants to get out there and build a career, be a businesswoman or change the world, then she should do that. However, if she decides to relax at home and experience the joy of being a stay at home mum, then she shouldn't expect to pocket half of the man's wealth in return.

Sure, if a couple get divorced the man should pay child support for their offspring, but giving her half of his stuff regardless? That's just silly and outdated. For all we know, she could have been a terrible mother and a horrible wife. Why should she be paid for that?

£36 Million For 33 Years of Marriage

Vira Hladun-Goldmann and Robert Goldman were married for 33 years. Robert was a successful banker before meeting Vira and he continued to work hard, while his wife lived a life of luxury and "supported" him all the way. In the end, she was awarded £36 million for 33 years of marriage. Six months later, Robert Goldman died of a massive heart attack. He was 66.

It is impossible, but also unfair to say that the only one contributing to the marriage was Mr Goldman.

However, surely she shouldn't have been paid so much just for being his wife. What is she, a hooker? Has to get her payment for being with him? I doubt that she contributed £36 million to his net worth. She might have loved him, yes, but love isn't the same as building a successful career.

Did she help him make the trades in his banking career? Did she run the business meetings with clients? I doubt it. The legal system made him pay for his hooker. It's an outdated system and I, for one, do not like it.

Divorced Women Living in Poverty

Don't get me wrong; it's not all peaches and roses for divorced women.

According to a report on the Social Security Bulletin (USA), recent data showed that around 20 percent of divorced women aged 65 or older live in poverty.

Differences in poverty rates are even larger at the oldest ages—22 percent of divorced women aged 80 or older are poor... Clearly, the longer a woman stays married to a man, the more difficult it becomes for her to support herself if they get divorced.

According to the Australian Institute of Family Studies, research shows that after a divorce, a woman's household income drops significantly (especially in the first year after her divorce), while men experience the exact opposite where their income continues to grow.

However, in most cases this only happens because the woman is usually the one left with the responsibility of caring for the children and cannot do that while still having a full time job, while the man is only expected to pay child support so he can carry on working as before.

So, there is the possibility that laws are in place to protect women in those circumstance. Yet, despite that, a man having to give 50% of his assets and wealth to a woman shouldn't be applied as a blanket law.

[image: Divorced women - poverty]

In a poll taken by GFK Roper and commissioned by Divorce360.com, 43% of fathers don't pay child support. So, it seems that in order to prevent this from happening, the law would rather give the woman 50% of the man's wealth and it be done with it.

The fact is, in many ways the law is actually hurting women more than it's helping them. By giving ex-wives 50% of their husband's wealth, they are turning a large majority of single men off the idea of marriage.

Another consequence is that guys who get divorced are becoming more stubborn about not paying maintenance or child support. In the end everyone loses when blanket 50/50 laws are enforced.

[image: Poverty - men, women and children]

Poverty isn't exclusive to divorced women, so it's not a legitimate argument to say that men have to give women 50% when divorcing to avoid the woman having to live in poverty. A woman shouldn't automatically be given the right to 50% of a man's wealth and assets just for being his wife.

I Won't Get Married Without a Prenuptial Agreement

I'm not yet sure if I want to ever get married, but I do plan on sticking with my girlfriend for life.

If we do marry, we will definitely be getting a prenuptial agreement signed beforehand. That's not a sign of my lack of belief in the relationship, but a smart decision based on how much the world has changed and will continue to change.

Prenuptial Agreement (noun): An agreement made by a couple before they marry concerning the ownership of their respective assets should the marriage fail.

My girlfriend has already stated that she doesn't ever want have ownership over what I have built and that is fine, but if I do marry her, the outdated legal system will automatically give her the right to claim 50%.

So, if she changes her mind later on, she will be legally entitled to 50%. During a break up or divorce, both men and women can suddenly become very nasty, mean and selfish, so just because her and I are in love and she only wants the best for me now, that doesn't mean she wouldn't change if we ever went through a break up.

She could easily turn around and say, "Give me half" and the outdated legal system would enforce that "right," even though she is not responsible for all the work (approximately 15,000 hours of work) that I have put into The Modern Man since starting it 2005.

The legal system would basically say, "Pay up. All women are hookers. You married her, so now she is entitled to her 50% share of everything you own and have built." It's ridiculous and is the #1 reason why I won't be walking down the aisle (if I ever decide to) without having a prenuptial agreement in place.

[image: Chilling out at the beach for sunset]

Chilling out at the beach for sunset

[image: Getting packed for a weekend away]

Getting packed for a weekend away

[image: Love is sweet]

Love is sweet

Don't get me wrong, I love and trust my girlfriend. We are madly in love, have been together since October 2012 and for the first time in my life, I am actually open to having a family.

I rejected the pleas from so many women for years who each wanted to marry me and start a family with me, but about 8 months into my relationship with my girlfriend, I suddenly began to become open to it. She's an amazing girl and ticks every box that I have in terms of what I want in a woman. I really couldn't ask for a better girl.

If I do marry her (update: we are now married. She signed a prenup and runs her own successful business now, so I ain't worried about a thing), that will mean that I am fully committing myself to the relationship for life.

I'm giving her my word that I won't ever cheat and that I will do everything I can to make us both happy, keep us safe and allow us to fulfil our dreams.

However, I also know that is becoming increasingly difficult to make a 100% guarantee to stick together "for life" in a relationship, especially when our lifespans are on the increase. Living to 150 (or longer) is not the only problem a modern couple faces though.

By 2035, computer games will have become so realistic and complex that you will be able to enter into a virtual world and have what feels like a real life in there.

The nanotechnology running through your body and the fully realistic graphics will make it all feel 100% real (e.g. just like in the movie, The Matrix), even down to the sexual experience. Yes, you will be able to have virtual sex that feels completely real.

It's not science fiction. The characters in the "game" will be just like people you meet in real life; they will be complex and react to what is going on just like a normal human would. In the virtual world, you might have a bunch of girlfriends or even get married and start a family with a woman.

The sex, the things you do and what you experience will all feel 100% real. Sounds like fun, right? Yet, when your wife goes into a virtual world to hang out and have sex with her "other men" while you sit on the couch watching TV, how is that going to make you feel?

Are both men and women going to be okay about that? Will having realistic sex in virtual worlds tear marriages apart, or will it be a good thing?

“...when your wife goes into a virtual world to hang out and have sex with her “other men” while you sit on the couch watching TV, how is that going to make you feel? Are we going to be okay about that? Will having realistic sex in virtual worlds tear marriages apart, or will it be a good thing?”

If you think that living indefinitely or going into virtual worlds that feel exactly like this world is science fiction, then watch the entire four seasons of Through the Wormhole and read The Next Big Thing Is Really Small to learn how nanotechnology is going to change the world more than TV, computers and iPods combined.

[image:]

When you become aware of what is happening and on the horizon, you realize that life as we know it is changing (whether we like it or not) and it will continue to change.

Some people will say, “Oh, you just have to believe in love and stick together forever,” but we humans are not accustomed to living with a spouse forever.

When we do begin to live for 150, 200 and even 500 years,Â will it become boring to just be with one person? Will the idea of marriage change? Will we make 20 or 30 year commitments to each other, so that it is agreed at after the 30 years have past, we will then go our separate ways?

In my opinion, every guy should be doing his best to protect himself going into a marriage because relationships are likely to change over the next 30 years and because the legal system is out of date.

These days, a guyÂ shouldn’t go into a marriage and expect that the love will last forever and that a woman will be nice about not wanting to take half his stuff if they divorce. As long as the legal system continues to make men pay women for being with them, we menÂ need to be smart about our actions and make sure that we are protected in the event of any changes.

Is it Time to Scrap 50/50 Divorce Settlements?

Whether youâre a man or a woman, the debate about 50/50 divorce settlements is heating up.

The fact is, the legal system is stuck and is confused about how to handle divorces in these changing times.

This problem doesn’t only apply to just country; divorce and the law has become a “sticky” subject worldwide and most people are afraid to even touch it. Women needing to get paid for being with men is still partially accepted, even though people won’t openly admit it.

It’s completely outdated and is demeaning to both men and women.

[image: Baroness Ruth Deech]

The 50/50 divorce settlement is “unfair to men and demeaning to women. Women of working age without young children to support should be expected to look after themselves.” Baroness Ruth Deech

On the one hand, there are voices such as that of Baroness Deech, a long-time lawyer and a crossbench peer in the House of Lords who is clearly against the 50/50 split. According to Beech, this type of settlement is, “unfair to men and demeaning to women” and that “women of working age without young children to support should be expected to look after themselves.â€œ

At the same time, lawyers such as James Pirrie, who represented Julia McFarlane (a housewife who was awarded a payment of Â£250,000 per year for life), is clearly happy to keep the status quo exactly as it is. In his own words, he described the judgment awarded to Julia McFarlane as “groundbreaking.”

Sunder Katwala, the general secretary of the Fabian Society (a British socialist society) feels that, outcomes should vary in divorce cases according to relevant circumstances, while philosopher Mary Warnock says, Divorce is easy only if the protagonists are selfless and loving. In which case, why get divorced?

From philosophers, to economists to the layman (or woman) on the street, one thing is certain; a 50/50 divorce settlement is still a heated debate and far from being settled.

What do you think? Are all women just gold diggers and hookers at heart; and should men have to pick up the check for a failed marriage? Should men be forced to pay for women or should women only get money in the case of child support?

Poll

Should Men Have to Pay 50% to a Woman if the Marriage Ends in Divorce?

- ☐ Yes
- ☐ No

Vote

View Results

[image: Loading ...]

Loading ...

My Overall View on Marriage

I think that marriage is a beautiful thing when it is entered into with the right intentions.

My parents are still married (same with Ben and Stu from The Modern Man). I have plenty of friends who are happily married and some who are unhappily married. As for me, I lived the bachelor lifestyle for many years and had an amazingly fun time, but the love that my girlfriend and I now share tops it all.

We are one of those couples that fall more in love each day and I am grateful for that.

However, despite all the nice and fluffy feelings of love, the current legal system is a huge turn off for me and for many men when it comes to marriage. My girlfriend and I both don't like the idea of her automatically becoming “entitled” to half my stuff.

I guess I will be okay with it if I can get a solid prenup agreement in place.

The “you have to pay a woman 50%” law is just so outdated that it’s almost comical now. It really is quite funny to say, “Hey man, pay that woman. She stayed with you for a while, so she deserves money now. Pay the hooker. Go ahead – pay up. Pussy costs money. Pay for the service of your former hooker.”

It’s ridiculous and outdated to treat the relationships between men and woman in that way, as though we are still living in a time where women can’t earn their own money or get remarried without feeling ashamed.

My girlfriend has openly said that she doesn’t want to be in a position where she can take half my stuff just for being with me, but the legal system entitles her to it. I’ll sort it out though and get a proper agreement in place before I make any further moves.

The current laws turn marriage into an opportunity for women to do a bad thing (i.e. divorce a man to get half of his stuff just because she feels like it).

It brings out a dark side in women that wouldn’t be there if the legal system didn’t view women as being hookers who need to be paid for being with men. Imagine if Heather Mills (the one-legged prostitute that divorced Paul McCartney from The Beatles after four years of marriage and got paid £24.3m) wasn’t entitled to get money from McCartney.

Would she have tried harder to fix their relationship problems? Would both Paul and Heather become better people by fixing the problems in their marriage, rather than ending it with a payment for her “services”?

I think the current system encourages women to give up on marriages too easily because the reward of divorce is huge if the man has assets or savings in the bank. In my opinion, it takes all the romance out of marriage and turns it into a ticking time bomb.

References

Coontz, S. (2006). Marriage, a History: How Love Conquered Marriage

[image:]

. Penguin Books, Retrieved from <http://www.stephaniecoontz.com/books/marriage/chapter1.htm>

Woods, J. (2011, January, 05). Do women really want to marry for money? The Telegraph.

Retrieved from

<http://www.telegraph.co.uk/women/sex/8239530/Do-women-really-want-to-marry-for-money.html>

Mills awarded £24.3m settlement. (2008, March, 17). BBC News. Retrieved from

<http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/entertainment/7300931.stm>

Heather Mills. Wikipedia. Relationship with Paul McCartney, Marriage. Retrieved from http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Heather_Mills

Ex-wives win key divorce rulings. (2006, May, 24) BBC News. Retrieved from http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/uk_news/5010888.stm

Rock, L. (2006, February, 5). Divorce deals by Mrs 50 Per Cent. The Observer.

Retrieved from <http://www.theguardian.com/money/2006/feb/05/uknews.theobserver>

Butrica, B.A., Smith, K.E. (2012). The Retirement Prospects of Divorced Women. Social Security Bulletin, 3 (1). Retrieved from <http://www.ssa.gov/policy/docs/ssb/v72n1/v72n1p11.html>

â, Lyle, B. (2012, October, 22). After Divorce Women Rebound Faster But Stay In Poverty Longer. The Huffington Post. Retrieved from http://www.huffingtonpost.com/brendan-lyle/after-divorce-women-rebou_1_b_1970733.html

â¹ Kimball, M. (2013). 43 Percent Not Paying! Divorce360.com. Retrieved from <http://www.divorce360.com/divorce-articles/statistics/us/43-percent-not-paying.aspx?artid=173>

Â¹â° Doughty, S. (2009, September, 15). Scrap the 50-50 divorce payouts that rob men, says law chief. Mail Online. Retrieved from <http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-1213523/Scrap-50-50-divorce-payouts-rob-men-says-law-chief.html>

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

How to Get a Girl to Notice You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to get a girl to notice you, it's pretty simple.

You've got to display the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, getting a girl to notice you isn't all about how you look or what you wear.

Yes, really good looking guys do get noticed by women and guys who are fashionable also get noticed by women, but that doesn't mean that the guy actually gets laid.

To be successful with women, you've got to be able to attract them with your personality and behavior. If they don't approach you (most girls don't approach, so don't worry), you need to have the confidence to walk over and talk to them yourself.

Watch this video to understand how you can build up the confidence to walk up and talk to girls that you find attractive...

As you will discover from the video above, your success with women is most-likely within your control.

You get to decide how you feel (i.e. you either allow yourself to feel confident or force yourself to be insecure) and you get to decide how much attraction you make girls feel (i.e. you either display the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women, or you don't).

Are You Too Easily Impressed By Girls?

[image: Too easily impressed by girls]

A lot of the guys who come to me asking, "Dan, how can I get girls to notice me?" are usually the type of guys who are too easily impressed by girls.

How?

A guy will see a girl that he finds physically attractive and he will like her immediately, simply based on her looks. He won't give a crap what she wants to talk about, what she studies at university or what career she works in, where she lives or what the name of her pet is.

In his mind, she is physically attractive, so he is interested.

...and girls can see that.

If a girl is attractive, she will be bored out of her mind at how easy guys are to impress. She wants a guy who she has to work hard to get noticed by and then work hard to impress.

Watch this video for more info...

As you will discover from the video above, most guys refuse to give girls the attraction experience they so desperately crave.

It's so boring for an attractive girl to see that yet another guy is hoping to get noticed by her. Then, when he finally works up the courage to talk to her, he is hoping that she will like him. He will say and do whatever he can to impress her and hopefully get a chance with her.

Boring.

She wants to feel lucky to be talking to you and getting your attention. She wants to see that you could easily attract other women, but you are choosing to talk to her because you are temporarily impressed by her.

If she impresses you further (e.g. by being nice, showing interest in you, laughing at your jokes, etc), then you will continue interacting with her. However, if she doesn't behave in the way you like, you will simply lose interest her and give your attention to another girl instead.

Stop Trying to Get Noticed by Girls Based on How You Look

[image: How can I get girls to notice me?]

You may have read somewhere that dressing in a certain way or styling your hair a certain way is going to get you noticed by girls.

While presenting yourself well is a good thing, looking good is only going to get you so far. If a girl likes what she sees in your physical appearance, she might want to know more about you by having a conversation with you and seeing how that feels.

However, don't expect her to take on the masculine role and come over and talk to you first. That happens in the movies, but in real life, most girls simply wait for confident guys to approach them, make them feel attracted and then move to a phone number, kiss or sex.

[image: Why do girls notice other guys, but not me?]

After that, they will begin a relationship and the guy who was hoping to be chosen for how he looked, is left behind yet again and wondering, "How can I get girls to notice me? What else should I wear? Should I build muscle? Should I try to make more money by getting promoted at work?"

If most of your efforts to get a girlfriend or get laid are going into trying to look good so that girls notice you, then you're missing the point.

[image: Will girls notice me if I look better?]

You're living in a fantasy world where girls will come over and approach you if you look a certain way or wear certain clothes.

Have you ever wondered why guys who are less attractive than you always seem to have a girlfriend, when you can't even get girls to notice you?

Well, now you know why.

In most cases, those guys don't sit around waiting to be noticed. They use their confidence to approach and then attract women with their personality and behavior, or they make women notice them by displaying the personality traits and behaviors that attract women and when they see signals of interest, they approach and attract the woman further.

Make Girls Want You to Notice Them

[image: Make girls want you to notice them]

When girls observe your body language and behavior, they will either feel attracted to you or they won't.

If you are displaying the personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract girls (e.g. confidence, charisma, masculine vibe, the ability to make people laugh, etc), girls will automatically realize that other girls are going to be interested in you too.

You will stand out from other guys and they will hope to get noticed by you.

If they do get your attention, you will see them primping and preening themselves (e.g. fixing their hair, adjusting their clothes, applying lipstick or make up) and showing some signs of interest in you (e.g. repeated eye contact or regularly looking at you, smiling at you, etc).

When you notice that happening, you've then got to make sure that you begin a conversation with her, so that you can make her feel more attracted to your personality and behavior.

For example: If you start talking to a girl and she notices that you're confident, charismatic and have a masculine vibe, then she will feel attracted to you. If you can also get her laughing, she will feel even more attraction for you.

The more attraction you make her feel, the more she want to be with you sexually and romantically.

An Easy Way to Get a Girl to Notice You

[image: Smile and wave at girls]

One of the easiest ways that you can display the types of personality traits and behaviors that are attractive to girls is to smile at her and then wave to say hello.

This takes confidence to do, which is why it's attractive to girls.

When you can be the confident guy who has the balls to smile and wave at a girl in a relaxed, easy-going way, you will be seen as a charming and mysterious guy who they will most-likely be interested to meet.

Warning: Some girls may test your confidence by pulling a "What the?" face when you smile and wave, but if you can just keep smiling and remain confident, she will drop the test and begin smiling back at you.

When she sees that you didn't crack under her pressure, she will feel attracted to your confidence. Also, now that you've waved at her, you've already had a bit of communication between you and she has responded back with a smile, so she's going to be much more open (and even excited) if you approach.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Dating After a Break Up

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

After a break up, a guy's confidence in his ability to attract other women is usually his biggest hurdle to begin dating quality women again, especially if his girlfriend (fiancée or wife) was the one to break up with him.

[image: Dating after a break up]

Since women are attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, high self-esteem, etc) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. nervousness, anxiety, low self-esteem, etc), if he tries to get out there and meet women in a state of low confidence, he will get rejected most times that he tries.

It won't matter if he is wearing an expensive new shirt and has sprayed on the latest designer cologne; if he lacks confidence in his attractiveness to women, he will be turning women off.

How about you?

Do you have confidence in your attractiveness and sex appeal to women? Are you able to attract beautiful women when you talk to them?

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to successfully begin dating after a break up...

As you will discover from the video above, your dating success after a break up really comes down to your ability to trigger a woman's feelings of attraction for you when you meet her.

If you attempt to talk to new women and you're simply hoping that they like you because you're a good guy, then you're going to get rejected a lot. These days, women select a man based on how much sexual attraction he makes her feel and if he also happens to be a good guy, that is seen as a bonus.

Attracting Women With Your Confidence

One of the most important traits that you need to be successful at dating women after a break up or dating women in general, is confidence.

Women are instinctively attracted to a man's confidence and without it, you're just not going to be able to get the kind of women you really want.

The contrast example here is to think about what we men find most attractive in a woman when we first meet her: Her physical appearance.

If a woman put on a lot of weight when she was in a relationship and therefore became less physically appealing to guys, she's not going to have a lot of value on the dating market, so dating after a break up is going to be just as difficult for her as it will be for a guy who lacks confidence.

She might be able to attract shy guys who lack confidence in themselves or guys who are willing to accept a less attractive woman just to have sex with, but if she wants a confident guy who can have his choice of women (i.e. the type of guy that most women want), then she's going to have to get on the treadmill and lose some weight.

For men, it's not about losing weight or getting into shape.

Instead, a man has to improve his confidence and his ability to attract women during an interaction. If he doesn't, he will get rejected and will probably end up making excuses about not being tall enough, rich enough or good looking enough to attract women.

Watch this video to understand the real reason why a lot of good men fail with women...

As you will discover by watching the video above, guys make up all sorts of excuses for their lack of success with women, but it really comes down to their inability to attract women.

Recharging Your Confidence By Having Sex With New Women

[image: Have sex with new women]

Obviously, a great way to get over a break up is to have sex with some new women.

Not just any women though.

To truly move on and feel good about yourself and where your life is heading, you will need to have sex with women that you see as being more attractive than your ex.

Yet, if your confidence has taken a knock as a result of being dumped or going through a messy break up, you probably won't be feeling very confident about approaching and picking up hot women.

If that's the case for you, watch this video...

As you will discover from the video above, your confidence is pretty much under your control.

You can either use the power of your mind to feel more confident, or you can make the mistake of using it to make yourself feel insecure, unworthy and nervous around attractive women.

Mistakes to Avoid When Dating After a Break Up

[image: Mistakes to avoid when dating after a break up]

When you finally do decide to get out there and meet new women, here are some common mistakes to avoid...

1. Revealing too much about your ex

When you meet a new woman, the most important thing to her is how she feels with you, not what your relationship history is.

Some guys make the mistake of approaching women and then, after he runs out of things to say, he will begin discussing his recently failed relationship.

If you spend a lot of time talking to a woman about your relationship break up, the heartache it caused and the on-going confidence issues you have as a result, you're not showing her what she needs to see to feel sexually attracted to you (i.e. confidence in yourself, feeling happy with or without any woman in your life, etc).

She might listen to you out of kindness, but she probably won't want to have sex with you because "sympathy sex" usually only ever happens in the movies. In real life, women are attracted and turned on by guys who attract them and turn them on, not by guys who need to be taken care of emotionally.

So, if a woman asks you whether or not you are single, just say “Yes, I am.” If she asks if you’ve ever had a girlfriend or recently broke up with one, just say, “Yes, I was in a relationship, but now I am single.”

If you’re at a bar and she tries to get you to go into more detail about the relationship, just laugh and say, “Oh, that is in the past now. We don’t need to waste our night talking about that” and then change the subject with something like, “So, anyway. What’s the most fun thing you’ve done in the last couple of months?”

If she still insists, get her to tell you her latest break up story first and then tell her yours. That way, both you and her will be on the same level.

2. Looking for a clone of your girlfriend

Another common mistake that a guy will make when dating after a break up, is to look for women who remind him of his ex-girlfriend.

Trying to find an exact replica of his ex is a mistake because it prevents a guy from seeing what other women have to offer. It’s not a woman’s hair color, height, tit size or any other external feature that makes her the perfect woman for you; it is who she is as a person and how she responds to you as the person you are.

Sure, she has to be beautiful (of course), but the way your ex looked is not the only type of physical beauty that attracts you. Just think about the wide range of women that you masturbate over when you look at porn.

The truth is, you will create a different type of love, connection and sexual experience with each woman you have a relationship with. Just because you enjoyed a fulfilling love connection with your ex, it doesn’t mean that you can’t experience an even greater love and connection next time.

After all of my relationship experience (I’m now in a committed relationship that I don’t intend on breaking up. Update: We recently got married), I can tell you this with absolute certainty...

The great times, the love and the amazing feelings that you experienced with your ex are NOTHING compared to what you will experience when you become a better man than you are right now and can attract even HIGHER quality women.

Being able to attract high quality women leads to a completely different life experience. The sex is better, you feel happier, you feel proud to call her your girlfriend (or wife) and you can actually maintain your woman’s attraction over time in the relationship, rather than it fading away and leading to yet another break up for you.

3. Bringing your emotional baggage into conversations, dates and relationships

If a guy has been dumped, has gone through a messy break up, or has been cheated on or lied to by the woman he loved, it will often be difficult to let that pain go and not bring it into the next relationship he has.

While his new woman might seem trustworthy, a guy who has been cheated on or lied to by a woman will usually struggle to fully trust a woman from then on.

Yet, here’s the thing...

If you want a relationship to reach the higher stages of true love and commitment, you need to give the woman your full trust.

If she abuses that trust, then it will be her loss when you dump her and she loses a great man.

However, if you don't give her that trust, you will end up turning her off by being insecure, clingy, jealous or overly protective throughout the relationship. The love will never grow, mature and reach its true potential and as a result, you and her will eventually get to the point where you wonder why you are still together.

You might get along and have a good history together, but if the love hasn't ever grown and reached its true potential, something just won't feel right between you and her.

Are You Ready to Begin Dating Beautiful Women?

To make sure that you're ready to succeed at dating new women, make sure that you prepare yourself by sharpening up your attraction skills.

The better you are at attracting women when you meet them, the easier it will be for you to begin dating after a break up.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Do Women Like Shy Guys?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Most women don't like shy guys because women are attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. shyness, insecurity, anxiety).

It's not because women are mean, but because a woman's attraction for a man is based on his survival traits. In other words, if he and her were forced back into basic survival (e.g. after a hurricane) would he get pushed around by more confident guys and thus find it harder to survive and to protect her?

At work, would a shy guy be able to get promoted like a confident guy would and if he couldn't, would that mean that he'd find it harder to survive, thrive and prosper in this world?

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works...

As you will discover from the video above, women can feel attracted to guys for a variety of personality traits (e.g. confidence, charisma) and behaviors (e.g. assertiveness, the ability to make people laugh, determination and drive to succeed, being charming towards women, etc).

When answering the question of, "Do women like shy guys?" it's important to talk about the difference between a woman liking a guy and feeling sexual attraction for a guy.

Yes, some women will like a shy guy as a person, but that doesn't mean she will feel sexually attracted and turned on by him, or that she will prefer a shy guy over a confident guy.

Women are sexually attracted to the emotional strength in men (e.g. confidence, self-esteem, drive, determination to succeed, etc) and turned off by the weakness (shyness, nervousness, insecurity).

A shy guy can get lucky with women at times, but if he then becomes insecure, clingy and jealous in a relationship, the woman will either break up with him, cheat on him or constantly nag him to be more of a man for her. If he can't do that, the relationship will fall apart.

The secret to success with women is not to be a vulnerable, nervous, "please pity me" shy guy and hope to get lucky with women who give you a chance and then never really love you as much as they would love a real man. What is the secret to success with women? Simply continue being the good guy that you are, but become a confident good guy.

Learn how to make a woman feel intense sexual attraction for you, learn how to maintain her respect for you and fall more deeply in love with you during a relationship. You don't have to become a bad boy or a jerk; the secret to success with women is to be a good guy who is also confident, masculine and socially intelligent. When that happens, you become what women refer to as a real man.

Why Women Usually Reject Shy Guys

[image: Do girls like shy guys?]

Shy guys get rejected by women because shyness is a sexual turn off for most women.

Why?

A woman wants to feel as though you are mentally and emotionally stronger than her, not weaker.

Being shy or nervous around a woman makes her feel stronger than you, so the idea of submitting to you sexually just doesn't feel right.

[image: Shy guy making a woman feel stronger than him]

In many cases, a shy guy will make a woman feel as though she needs to be gentle with him because he's so emotional sensitive.

If your aim is to get a woman to want to have sex with you or want to be your girlfriend, you have to make her feel feminine and girl in response to your confidence and masculinity.

Yes, some women will accept a weaker man (e.g. an insecure, clingy or shy guy) because they want to control him for a while to feel good about themselves, before they dump him and feel even better about themselves because he begs and pleads for another chance.

[image: Breaking up with a shy guy]

Other women will accept a weak man until something better comes along (e.g. so he can help her pay rent, or can help her from feeling lonely, etc), but if being accepted by a woman like that is your "dating strategy" then prepare for a lot of heartache and disappointment.

A shy guy might get lucky and find a woman that will be with him for now, but when a more confident man comes along, most women will either cheat on the shy guy or dump him and fall right into the arms of the new guy.

It may sound harsh and selfish of women to do that to a shy guy, but men often do the same thing to women by accepting less attractive women and then waiting for something better to come along.

Additionally, some women will accept a shy guy because they worried about being dumped or cheated on by a more confident man who can easily attract other women.

A woman like this assumes that a shy guy will stick by her side because he won't be able to attract many other women, so there will be less chance for her to get dumped or cheated on.

Yet, that isn't how it always turns out.

[image: Losing attraction for her shy guy]

In most cases, she will end up "wearing the pants" in the relationship and as a result, she will lose respect and attraction for him over time.

Lacking attraction and respect, the couple's sex life will most-likely dry up and if their relationship may become more of a convenient friendship where they stay together as a means of paying the bills, mortgage and so on.

If you want to be successful with women, the answer is not to be shy and hope that women take pity on you, love you for being weak and never leave you for a real man. The answer is to become and be the type of man that women desperately want to be with and never want to leave.

Watch this video to understand how to be the type of man that a woman will never want to leave...

As you will discover from the video above, being irresistible to women is not all about looks, money, height, having a big dick or having a lot of status in society.

Most women (not all) are happy to be with a guy who can make her feel attracted to who he is on the inside, rather than what he looks like on the outside or how much money he has in his bank account.

Shy Guys Who Act Like a “Friend” to Hopefully Score With a Girl

[image: Being the friend]

Some shy guys put on an act of just wanting to be friends with a woman, because they are too afraid of being rejected by her or too shy to show their sexual interest.

What many of these guys don't realize is that being liked as a friend by a woman is not the same as being lusted after as a potential boyfriend or lover.

Watch this video to understand why...

As you will discover from the video above, there's nothing wrong with being nice to a woman, but it's not the thing that will make her feel sexually attracted to you and turned on by you.

While the shy guy is playing Mr. Friendly and Innocent, a confident guy simply needs to have a quick interaction with her, make her feel sexual attraction and then escalate to kissing, sex and a relationship.

[image: Shy guy rejected because a confident guy attracted the woman instead]

After that, the confident guy will not only become the woman's boyfriend, but they will likely become best friends in their relationship as well. They will have great sex (women are more turned on by confident guys), experience love and have fun together as a couple who have a mutual attraction for each other.

Here's the thing...

For a woman to want to be more than “just friends” with you, she needs to feel sexually attracted to you and the bottom line is that shyness is not a sexually attractive trait in a man.

Sure, there are some women who like to have a shy guy as their boyfriend because they enjoy having control over him, but needless to say, this does not make for a healthy relationship.

In most cases, the woman will simply dump him or cheat on him if a better man comes along. Since a guy's shyness is usually down to his lack of confidence and low self-esteem, the woman will usually be able to manipulate and control him with the threat of a break up.

His low self-esteem will cause him to think that no other woman would ever be interested in him, so he will decide to put up with a controlling, disrespectful woman rather than face the prospect of being lonely again.

The Dating Life of a Shy Guy

[image: The dating life of a shy guy]

Here are a couple of examples of how a shy guy's refusal to be a confident guy eventually leads him down a path of being rejected, used or dumped by women...

Ed the Friend

Ed had been a friend to Ellie for years, but he secretly wanted her to be his girlfriend.

Although he felt comfortable around unattractive women, he couldn't stop himself from feeling nervous and shy around beautiful women in social situations.

Sensing his emotional weakness, most women rejected him and after a while, Ed developed the belief that most women were bitches and that Ellie was the girl for him.

After all, she was the only pretty girl who was nice to him and had shown him any interest. Over time, he began to see her as "the one" and because he was so obsessed with her, he looked at her appearance and behavior as being way more attractive than it actually was.

In a mistaken attempt to get her to "like" him (instead of feel sexual attraction for him), Ed did everything for her; doing huge favors and always there as a shoulder to cry on whenever her latest boyfriend did something to upset her.

Ellie loved having Ed around as a friend, but his shyness and lack of confidence meant that she didn't feel any sexual desire for him.

After a while, Ellie began to take advantage of Ed by occasionally calling him up when she needed help paying her rent, never admitting that she'd wasted the money buying sexy outfits to impress a guy that she was lusting after.

She knew that Ed would do whatever it took to hopefully get a chance with her, even if it meant wasting his own money to support her current lifestyle that she clearly couldn't afford and that had nothing to do with impressing him.

Hoping to get her to like him, Ed dutifully helped her to pay the rent whenever she asked and even bought groceries for her in the hope that it would show her how much he cared and that he was capable of providing for her if they got into a relationship.

The problem was, the more he tried to "be there" for her and to be her best friend, the less sexually attractive he became to her.

She was turned off by how easily she could control him and get him to do whatever she wanted, even though she wasn't giving him what he really wanted.

While Ed was masturbating porn every week, Ellie was hooking up with new guys and then running to Ed to cry and complain about how bad the other guys treated her.

Ed would tell her things like, "You deserve better than that! Why do you go for such jerks?" and would then explain to her that he wasn't like those guys at all.

In his mind, he was hoping that he could convince her to like him by explaining how much of a good guy he was compared to the other guys she was feeling attracted to.

Yet, little did he know that you can convince a woman to like you and here is why...

As you will discover from the video above, many guys waste much of their lives hoping to get women to realize how good of a guy they are.

Of course, it usually works out nicely in Hollywood movies where the nice, shy, awkward guy gets the girl by the end of the movie, but real life is a lot different.

Here's another example of the dating life of a shy guy...

Sam the "Lucky" Guy

Sam's shyness made it hard for him to develop real friendships with people, so his social life was pretty much non-existent.

Although he went out most weekends, he rarely spoke to any women because he was afraid of being rejected. One night, a drunk woman chose to approach him and say hi. After a few more drinks, they left the bar together and went home for sex.

The thing is, women rarely, if ever approach men, but this particular woman had just been dumped by her boyfriend (a confident guy that could have pretty much any woman he wanted), so she felt drawn to Sam's shyness and vulnerability.

She was drunk, but instinctively, she knew that Sam's shyness and lack of self-esteem would give her the perfect opportunity to be in control of everything if they had a relationship. She knew that Sam felt extremely lucky to be with her and she used his insecurity and feelings of unworthiness to make herself feel better about having been dumped by her boyfriend.

A few weeks into the relationship, Sam became clingy and she began to feel turned off the idea of being with him.

Before long, she called him up to say, "We have to talk" and then met up with him to break up with him in person and watch him grovel, cry and beg for another chance. She used his begging and pleading to feel even better about herself and broke up with him and never looked back.

Over the years, I have been surprised at how common the "Sam" story is for guys out there.

It's pretty much the most common story I come across; especially for guys who are looking to get an ex girlfriend back.

Why? Most guys fumble their way into relationships without any real knowledge or awareness of how to attract and seduce women properly. So, rather than attracting women by choice, they rely on getting lucky and hope that everything just works out.

Yet, it's not 1900 anymore.

[image: It's not 1900 anymore]

In the past, a woman had to remain a virgin, get married and then stick with her man for life. Even if she wasn't happy, she had to stay with him because it was shameful to get divorced.

Not anymore.

[image: Modern women]

If a guy is unable to guide his woman into deeper feelings of love, respect and attraction for him over time, she will usually just break up with him and move on.

Today's women are encouraged by society to break up with unsatisfactory men, so the days of guys being able to get through life as a shy, insecure guy are pretty much over.

Are You a Shy Guy?

Asking, "Do women like shy guys?" and hoping to hear "Yes, they do! Shyness is really cute! Be shy!" is a classic example of where guys go wrong when it comes to success with women.

If you want your choice of women, if you want to be successful with women and if you want to stop being rejected by the women you like, then you have to work WITH nature, not AGAINST it.

Women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength in men, not the weakness.

If you want to flow with nature, you need to be emotionally strong as a man, rather than expecting women to take pity on you even though you are shy and insecure.

If you are unwilling to become a stronger guy than you are right now, you can't expect women to suddenly change their natural instincts and start liking shy guys.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Do Women Like Men With Long Hair?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Most people you ask will give you a Yes or No answer to the question of, Do women like men with long hair? but the real answer is that “it depends on the woman’s preferences and whether or not she is attracted to the guy’s personality.”

Watch this video and you will realize that the length of a man’s hair usually isn’t the reason he gets rejected or accepted by a woman....

Some women love men with long hair, some women hate long hair on men and some don’t care either way.

Yet, just because a woman might say she doesn’t like long hair on men, it doesn’t mean that a guy with long hair will never be able to have sex with her, date her or even marry her.

Why?

What really matters to a woman is whether or not she is attracted to him.

Some women are extremely picky and will NEVER accept a guy with long hair, but most women have what I call an Open Type, which means that they are open to being with all different types of guys, as long as the guy can make her feel enough attraction for other reasons.

For example: If a guy has long hair and he is confident, charismatic and funny, most women (those who have an Open Type) will be attracted to him and open to being with him. However, if a guy has long hair and is nervous, self-doubting and insecure around women, then most women aren’t going to be attracted to him.

[image: Nervous guy with long hair. Boring date]

Liked by women	Disliked by women
Confident guy with short hair.	Nervous guy with short hair.
Confident guy with long hair.	Nervous guy with long hair.
Confident bald guy.	Nervous bald guy.

Get the picture?

Women are attracted to confident men and are turned off by nervous, low self-esteem, self-doubting guys.

[image: Women feeling turned off by insecure guy]

If you are shy, nervous or self-doubting around women, it doesn’t matter if you have long, short or medium length hair – they usually aren’t going to be interested in you.

Why?

Women are attracted to the emotional strength of men (e.g. confidence, high self-esteem, determination to succeed, etc) and turned off by the weakness (e.g. shyness, insecurity, nervousness, self-doubt, etc).

A confident man can have no hair and be irresistibly attractive to women, but a nervous, self-doubting guy with no hair will be a turn off.

Get it?

“But, I Heard a Woman Say That She Hates Men With Long Hair”

When you ask a woman what she finds attractive in a man, she will say all sorts of superficial things. For example: Most women will say, “I want a tall, handsome man with lots of money. He should drive a luxury car, work as a doctor or some other high-paying profession, listen to me, buy me lots of expensive things and treat me like a princess.”

Yet, when you look at the boyfriend/husband of most women, you will see he’s just an average or below-average looking guy, with an average job and an average life.

[image: Ugly guy has a baby with a beautiful woman]

[image: Black guys with white women]

[image: How is this possible?]

[image: Everyday couples]

[image: Asian guy with white girlfriend]

[image: Ugly guy with hot cheerleader girlfriend]

[image: Guy with a weird nose with a beautiful girlfriend]

[image: Guy with big ears with beautiful girlfriend]

[image: White man marrying a black woman. Asian guy marrying a black woman]

[image: Fat Asian guy with pretty girlfriend]

[image: Asian guy marrying pretty white girl]

[image: Fat guy with a skinny girlfriend at the pool]

[image: Fat guys with pretty women]

[image: Fat men marrying beautiful women]

If you look at what women ask for via their online dating profiles, they will usually be requesting a tall man with lots of money.

Yet, that doesn’t mean it will be impossible for her to hook up with a short guy, a guy of average height or a guy who has a normal job. It’s just what she is putting out there.

The same applies to men...

If you ask a guy what type of woman he wants, he’ll usually think of model-looking women or sexy women like the women he sees in porn. Yet, he will be just as happy with a pretty, “girl next door” type of woman who works in a normal job.

The point is, you shouldn’t don’t base your confidence on the superficial things that you’ve heard women say.

Women usually say things as a test of your confidence and belief in yourself, rather than saying what they really mean.

If you hear a woman say that she only dates guys with short hair, then it is usually just a veiled test of your confidence.

For example: Will you suddenly lose confidence around her now because she said that she only dates guys with short hair, or are you truly confident in himself no matter what a woman says?

Changing Your Hairstyle Doesn't Change Who You Are as a Person

Hair trends come and go just like fashion trends pop up and then disappear the next year.

Some guys get sucked into changing their hairstyles to fit in with the latest fashion (in the hope that women will finally like them as a result).

Yet, changing your hair doesn't change who you are or make women say, "Wow! I don't care that you're not very confident and can't make me feel attracted to your personality. You have an AMAZING hairstyle, so I want to get down on my knees and suck your..."

Of course, your hairstyle and the clothes you wear does create a certain "look" for you, so it is important to consider what message you're sending out about yourself in the way you dress and style your hair.

If you have long hair, you're usually going to stand out because it goes against the cultural norm (i.e. men wear their hair short and women wear it longer). As long as you are confident in yourself and believe that women find you attractive, man of them will feel attracted to your confidence and as a result, they will also like your long hair.

Long hair can make you appear:

1. Like a rebel

Depending on how you wear it, long hair can mark you out as a bit of a rebel. It might give you a sexually attractive "rough and ready" manly image, but it could also make you look scruffy and unclean if you don't style it properly.

2. Unconventional

Many artistic and creative men favor long hair as a way of breaking away from convention and the norm. When a guy is very confident in who is as a person and what he stands for in life, wearing his hair long is a cool statement. However, when a man is shy and lacks social confidence, long hair can make him look like a bit of a loser or social outcast.

3. Intelligent

Long hair on a man is often associated with him being more of an intellectual, studious type of guy than an outdoorsy, hands-on kind of guy. Obviously, there are always exceptions to every rule, but sporty guys who live an active lifestyle are less likely to have long hair simply because it gets in the way.

4. Carefree

Many guys have long hair for no reason other than it suits their lifestyle. They're not trying to create any kind of image, in fact, they've got far too much going on and they're having way too much fun to worry about their hair.

What is the Best Look to Have For Success With Women?

To be successful at attracting the types of women who are currently compatible with you, I recommend that you “dress for your scene.”

Essentially, this means that if you want to approach women who work as fashion models, then you need to wear fashionable clothes that will be perceived as being “cool” for the scene.

You can still pick up fashionable women without wearing fashionable clothes, but it will make it that little bit harder for you.

Focus on Building Your Confidence, Not on Styling Your Hair in Different Ways

If you lack self-confidence and are shy, nervous and generally awkward around women, then women are not going to be attracted to you regardless of how you style or cut your hair.

Having short, long or medium length hair isn’t going to make much of a difference to the majority of women because hair is such a superficial thing.

A woman’s attraction for a man is based on her survival instincts. In other words, you are either displaying the personality traits and behaviors that mark you out as a man who can easily survive, thrive and prosper in this world...or you’re not.

Having long hair can make you stand out in a crowd, but it’s not your hair that holds a woman’s attention. Instead, what your personality and behavior represents to her is what really counts.

A guy can look as though he’s just stepped off the front cover of a glossy men’s magazine, but if he lacks the personality traits and behaviors that women are instinctively attracted to in men, most women will not be interested in him regardless of how long or short his hair is.

From now on, I recommend that you focus on improving your ability to attract women with your personality and behavior, rather than wasting time thinking about the length of your hair.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

WATCH VIDEO (FREE)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

I Don't Have Many Friends: What Am I Doing Wrong?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Why is it that some guys seem to have lots of friends, while other guys have one or two friends or are completely on their own most of the time?

Why can some guys maintain lasting friendships and never lose touch with old friends even if they get into a relationship with a woman, while other guys get left behind and then struggle to find new friends?

[image: My friends leave me behind when they find a girl]

If you are one of the many guys who are saying, â€œI don't have many friends,â€ what is the real reason why it keeps happening to you?

If you search around online, people will tell you to go volunteer or â€œspend more time around people,â€ or “be a good friend to people and they will like you,” but is that isn't the answer to your problem.

The reason why you don't have many friends runs deeper than that.

I remember a time when I had only one friend in the world and he was a negative guy who would bring me down.

[image: Dan Bacon at home alone]

When I got cheated on and then dumped by my girlfriend, he told me that all women were sl*ts and that they couldn't be trusted, when in fact the breakup was MY fault and my insecurity and over-protectiveness caused her to want out of the relationship.

My negative friend would always speak badly about other people, point out their flaws and talk about how stupid they were for not being like him.

For example: He'd say things like, â€œCheck out that idiot. What a sheep. Smoking his cigarette like its cool. What a loserâ€ and other negative comments like that.

By spending a lot of time around him, I began to feel as though people were mean, selfish, sheepish and stupid...and guess what â€œ I was wrong. Sure, there are some stupid people in this world, but it wasn't until I began seeing the GOOD in people that I started to make loads of new friends.

See the Good in Women

Back when I didn't have many friends, it was difficult for me to see the good in people, especially women.

[image: See the good in women]

I hated the way that women rejected me, overlooked me and ignored me if I tried to get to know them.

Yet, I decided to try something different.

I decided to try and look for the good in women, rather than assuming that they were bad people and were ready to reject me.

Whenever I went out to approach and meet women, rather than looking for negative signals from women, I began to look at the ways that women behaved in a more positive light.

For example: I began to understand why women seemed to act bitchy, cold or rude when a guy approached them. In the past, I thought it was because women were mean bitches and only wanted a really good looking guy, but I eventually realized that it is simply a woman's way to test a man's social confidence and confidence with women in general.

Why would she test that?

Think about it...

Throughout human history and even today, life has been a challenge. If a guy is socially confident, he will be more likely (but not guaranteed) to live a better life and be able to thrive and prosper more than a guy socially anxious guy who lacks confidence when tested by other people.

When I realized what women were actually doing, it allowed me to then begin attracting them with my confidence. Watch this video for the full story...

As you will discover from the video above, a lot of guy's problems with socializing, meeting women and making friends comes back to his lack of social intelligence or social confidence.

He might be a good guy and have good intentions with women, but if he triggers a woman's feelings of repulsion (e.g. by being nervous, self-doubting, etc), he is usually going to get rejected.

Likewise, if a guy is trying to make friends with people and comes across as a secretly needy guy, people will feel turned off by him. He may seem like a nice guy on the surface, but people will be able to sense his neediness, loneliness and confusion about why women (and the "cool crowd") don't seem to like him.

He will try to fit in with the cool crowd and try to get women to like him (e.g. by being a really nice guy), but something will be off about his behavior, vibe and actions. People will instinctively know that he is confused and is hoping to get people to like him in the wrong way.

For example: Watch this video to understand why being too nice to a woman will often lead to rejection...

As you will discover from the video above, a lot of guys put on an act of being an even nicer guy than they actually are. They do that to hopefully be liked enough by a woman to be given a chance.

In terms of making friends, some guys make the mistake of trying to show people how nice, generous and kind they are, in the hope of being liked. People will sense his desperation and although they might not ever tell him, they will secretly feel as though he is a bit of a social loser for being such an ass-kisser.

Here's the thing...

There's nothing wrong with being good, but if a guy is extra nice in the hope that it will make people want to be his friend, then he's doing it wrong.

If you want people to want to your friend, be the good guy that you are, but also assume that you are more than good enough to be considered a friend without having to do 100 favors for them.

You've got to know that you are more than good enough and then simply be your normal, cool, charismatic self and let the friendship happen naturally as a result.

Choosing to See the Good in People Has Allowed Me to Effortlessly Attract a Lot of Friends

As I type this article, I am 36 years old and have more friends than I can honestly count. I really do have too many friends and simply don't have enough time to catch up with them all or talk to them on the phone.

I don't say that to brag, but to point out something important...

I used to have one friend.

Just one.

Now, I have more friends than I have time for.

How?

Well, I've learned a lot about life, love and friendships over the years, but one of the greatest things that I've discovered is the importance of seeing the good in people.

Initially, I started doing it because I read about it in a book somewhere and I thought, â€œWhy not? I'll give it a try and see how things go.â€ Yet, before I knew it, I was happier, had more friends and my life was on the up and up.

As the years went on, I came to know that most people are actually GOOD people. Yet, because of their lack of social skills or because of certain insecurities or bad traits that they've picked up from other people, they sometimes come across in a way that annoys you or frustrates you.

They even make mistakes and do selfish things, but really, they are just trying to be liked, loved, understood or appreciated by others. They may not be going about it in the right way, but at their core, most people are GOOD people.

When I had that realization, it let me see PAST the surface level behavior of people so I could understand and love a person for who they are.

In fact, it even allowed me to let my â€œnegative friendâ€ back into my life (in small doses!) because he doesn't have any other real friends and I do value him as a friend.

The thing is, he isn't negative because he is a bad person, but because he is insecure about his intelligence and value as a person, so he likes to put others down to feel good about himself. He's the sort of guy who always says, "I told you so" or claims to be right, even though he is wrong.

In the 15 years I've known him, he has never once admitted to making a mistake in his thinking or opinions.

I've tried addressing it with him, but he just denies it. Why? You can only help those who want to be helped and he's convinced himself that he's the smartest man on the planet and everyone else is an idiot, so it's pretty difficult to help him!

However, I don't let that affect our friendship or annoy me. I just accept him and love him for who he is. As a result, he feels understood and comfortable around me and we're able to enjoy the better parts about our friendship, such as our passion for discussing existence, the universe and the reality around us.

Apart from being positive about things that he likes, he pretty much sees the BAD in everyone else. Not surprisingly, he's usually pretty depressed about life, has no good friends and spends a lot of time posting negative things on Facebook.

Personally speaking, my life has been great ever since I chose to see the good in people. Initially, it was something that I had to keep reminding myself to do, but it eventually became automatic.

More importantly, when it became an automatic response for me to see the good in people, suddenly most people wanted to be my friend.

So, I highly recommend that you begin practicing seeing the good in people, even if you do it sometimes at the moment. Get into the habit of doing it all the time and it will change your life in so many positive ways, including adding loads more friends to your life.

In addition to having most people want to be my friend or at least spend more time with me, here are some of the benefits I have experienced from being in the habit of seeing the good in people:

- I feel less stress and worry about the faults of others.
- It doesn't bother me if someone is being a jerk. I know that it is their problem and has nothing to do with me.
- I am able to love people for who they are and as a result, I have loads of friends in my life and I am able to get along with people instantly.
- People often say things like, "We should catch up!" or "We should spend more time together" even though I've just met them.
- I am able to love and accept a woman (even if she has a bitchy personality) right away and as a result, she feels lucky to have met a guy who loves her for who she is and can deal with who she is. As a result, women "light up" (i.e. get excited, become animated, get turned on) when they meet me.
- I am happier and laugh at things more than the average person.

If you're currently in the habit of seeing the flaws in people, try switching to seeing their good qualities.

It doesn't mean that you don't pay any attention to their flaws and see them as being perfect. Instead, it's about accepting them for who they are and loving the good parts about them.

Additionally, when you are beginning to develop a friendship, you can give them feedback on some of their bad qualities.

Real Friends vs. Facebook Friends

These days, people can have 100s or even 1,000s of "friends" on Facebook, Whatsapp, Twitter and so on, but that doesn't automatically mean they'll have loads of friends in real life.

It's nice to have "online friends," but life is pretty lonely if you don't have many real friends in your day-to-day life.

Real friends are people who know the real you, people you can be yourself around and people whom you actually know in the real world. Some qualities of real friends include:

- Acceptance: Great friends accept each other as they are; they never try to change one another and they accept that nobody is perfect.

- Appreciation: Great friends never take one another for granted; they value the contribution that the other person makes to the friendship and they make sure that the other person knows.
- Listening: Great friends don't hog conversations and make get-togethers all about them; they listen to each other and connect on many levels as a result.
- Patience: Great friends have patience with one another and forgive arguments easily; they see the bigger picture and let go of anger, so they can get back to enjoying the friendship.
- Authenticity: Great friends are totally at ease being themselves around each other; they trust each other each other and can be relied upon to be their genuine selves.
- Loyalty: Great friends are loyal to each other and always look out for each other. If your current friends don't care if you live or die, fail or succeed, then they aren't real friends.

Already doing all those things for people, but still don't have many friends? Well, you need to...

Stop Trying So Hard

Whenever I've helped guys who have hardly any (or no) friends in their life, they almost always tell me how much effort they go to be liked by their friends.

In his mind, a guy like this believes that being really good to someone and doing lots of favors for them will get them to like you.

Yet, that isn't how it works. In my life, I have too many friends to the point where I don't have time to speak to them on the phone, chat online or even catch up 1-on-1. In most cases, I catch up with a bunch of friends at the same time to save time, but sometimes I allocate time to catch up 1-on-1 with some of my best friends.

Here's the thing though!

I never call, text or message my friends to get them to catch up with me. They are always contacting me.

The same applied to my dating life – women would always call and text me to catch up. I was always just replying to texts or phone calls and saying Yes or No to offers to catch up with me. As for my friendships, the same thing happens, but why?

I had a chat with my girlfriend (update: We recently got married) about this because she even noticed it and commented on it about 6 months into our relationship.

She said, When we go out with friends, they are always talking to you, interrupting other people to talk to you, or standing there waiting for another person to finish talking so they can talk to you.

When we're at home, people are always calling and texting you. What's with that? I honestly didn't know and had to stop and think about for a bit. Here are the reasons I gave my girlfriend:

- When people talk to me, they feel good about themselves because they know that I accept them for who they are.
- I am a man of purpose, which makes people feel proud to say that they are my friend.
- When people talk to me, they always learn something new about life, love, existence, themselves, etc and that makes it exciting to be around me.

- Since I live my life by my own rules, people see that as cool and they look up to me. The more time they spend around me, the more confident they become to live life by their own rules (i.e. follow their dreams, do what they really want, say what they really want to say, etc).
- I am now an alpha male, which automatically makes people feel safe around me, proud to know me and even “cool” to be seen with me.
- I give love and add love to a situation, rather than having to take love (e.g. an insecure guy who needs compliments from people is trying to take love rather than give it), so people feel good around me.
- I don’t try to get people to like me. I just assume that we’ll get along and start the conversation with that mindset. Even if the person is weird and has trouble getting along with people, it doesn’t make me think, “Oh no! I’m stuffing up! He/she doesn’t like me!” I accept the person for who they are and love them in that moment. I don’t need anything from them and they eventually (usually very quickly) pick up on that. They then like me because I’m just there in the moment with them, allowing them to be themselves, while also being the cool guy that I am.
- I don’t try to impress people or get them to think I am “cool.” I already know that I’m cool, impressive and someone that they’d be lucky to know. It’s not arrogance to the point of thinking that I am better than other people, but it is confidence in myself and who I am.

Guys who come to me saying, “Dan, I don’t have many friends. What am I doing wrong?” often don’t realize that by trying too hard to be liked, they end up being seen as uncool or as a burden for people to carry.

If you need people to like you, then you are trying to take love from them. Since most people don’t have a lot of spare love to give (because they aren’t emotionally full), they feel repelled by people who need to take love from a friendship.

×

[image]

Almost there! Please complete this quick form to gain instant access.

[image: Dan Bacon]

You are about to discover my personal secret for success with women. This FREE video will BLOW YOUR MIND (I promise!)

Yes, I want free tips via email from Dan Bacon. I can unsubscribe at anytime with a click. Privacy policy.

Why Are Women Attracted to Jerks?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Over the years, many guys have asked me things like, “Dan, why are women attracted to jerks?” and “Why do women like bad boys?”

In most cases, a guy’s reason for asking this question is due to the fact that he considers himself to be a nice guy and has noticed that women overlook him in favor of guys that he perceives to be a “jerk.”

Watch this video to understand why nice guys usually get rejected by women and what you can do to be successful with women, while still being a nice guy...

As you will discover from the video above, being a jerk is not the secret to success with women.

Women are usually more attracted to jerks because they at least display some (not all) of the qualities that make women feel attracted (e.g. confidence, assertiveness, masculine vibe, etc), whereas nice guys usually display traits that turn women off (e.g. nervousness, insecurity, social anxiety, etc).

The Truth

[image: Is he a jerk or a confident guy?]

Some women do prefer bad boys and jerks, but those women are the minority.

The truth is, most guys are nice guys (or fairly nice guys) and they are able to get laid, get a girlfriend and get married because they also display traits that make women feel naturally attracted to them.

[image: Nice guys who get laid]

The kind of nice guys that get rejected by women are the ones who are nervous, shy or who expect to be liked enough (or “given a chance”) by a woman because they have good intentions.

Nice guys who get rejected simply don’t know what makes women feel attracted, which is 1 of the 3 things that attractive women hate about most single men...

As you will discover from the video above, it’s very easy for a woman to make a guy feel attracted because he will usually select her based on her physical appearance.

Yet, most women (not all) are interested in things other than a guy’s appearance.

Here’s a simplified way of looking at the jerk vs. nice guy problem, with one attractive trait (confidence) added in to set the guys apart...

Liked by women	Disliked by women
Confident nice guy.	Nervous nice guy.
Confident bad boy.	Nervous bad boy.
Confident jerk.	Nervous jerk.
Confident good guy.	Nervous good guy.

Get the drift?

In the example above, it's the guy's confidence that women are attracted to.

There's Nothing Wrong With Being Nice

[image: Ben, Stu and Dan - The Modern Man coaches]

Here at The Modern Man, Ben, Stu and I (The Modern Man coaches) are all nice guys.

Looking at the photo of us above, some guys might think that we seem like jerks, assholes, bad boys or whatever, while other guys will think that we seem like regular good guys.

You are going to perceive us in whatever way you want, which will be based on your current understanding of the world (e.g. anyone who doesn't look as nice and innocent as you is probably a bit of bad boy, jerk, etc).

However, in case you can't work out what type of guys we are, I will tell you...

Ben, Stu and I are regular good guys. We like being nice to people and to women.

[image: Stu presenting at Dating Power]

However, being good guys doesn't mean that we will be nervous, shy and socially anxious like other nice guys who put on a fake smile and act vulnerable to hopefully get pity from others.

Ben, Stu and I are good guys who are also very confident, masculine and charismatic. As a result of having those traits, we are attractive to women and the fact that we are good guys is seen as a bonus for women. Yet, our niceness is not seen as mandatory by women.

As you have seen a woman will forgo the niceness and hook up with a jerk or bad boy, just so she can feel attraction to his confidence and masculinity. If she instead hooked up with a nervous nice guy, she'd have herself a nice guy, but she wouldn't feel much or any attraction for him due to his emotional weakness.

Are women crazy for feeling attracted to guys in the way they do?

No.

It's more more "crazy" than you feeling attracted to bad girls (e.g. pornstars, strippers, etc) and then going around telling everyone that you're trying to meet a nice girl.

[image: A beautiful stripper]

You can't help what triggers your feelings of attraction.

You probably want a nice girl who is a sexy and beautiful as a pornstar or stripper, but if you if you met a pornstar or stripper who was a bad girl, you'd probably still want to have sex with her, right?

Yes, There Are Some Weird Women Who Like Bad, Abusive Men

[image: A small minority of women like bad men]

A small minority of women actually want a very bad man (likely less than 5%), some women like a guy who is a little bit of a bad boy (20%), but the majority of women (75%) want a good guy who is confident.

The same applies to men.

