Your messages aren't making her think, "Hmmm...I should talk to him" or "Hmmm...I wonder why he said that? I will answer his next phone call." Instead, your messages are mostly likely making her roll her eyes and wish you'd get out of her life once and for all.

People Can Change How They Feel

Emotions are not set in stone.

Think about it!

Have you ever had a person in your life (e.g. a friend, family member, coworker, friend at university, etc.) that you once didn't like, but then they changed their behavior, communication style and attitude towards you and then you really liked them?

Getting an ex back works in a similar way.

You've got to make your ex feel differently about you by communicating with her in a new way. When you get her to feel differently, she will automatically change how she speaks to you, treats you and behaves around you.

Think about how you made her feel when you first got into a relationship!

In the beginning of your relationship, she may have fallen in love with you, but over time, you might have said or done things that gradually made her lose touch with her feelings of respect, love and attraction for you.

The spark died, your relationship began to fall apart and she might have even said, "I don't love you anymore."

Yet, love doesn't die.

Just because she can't connect with her feelings of love right now, it doesn't mean she can't reconnect with those feelings for you when you change the way she feels.

When she is presented with an improved version of you, she will naturally begin to think and feel differently about you.

If you are serious about getting her back, you have to understand that you can make her feel differently about you. You don't have to waste time sitting around and thinking, "What am I going to do? My ex refuses to see me or answer my calls" and hoping she magically changes her mind about you.

If you want to change how she feels about you right now, you have to be the one who actively makes her go through that transformation. You have to be the one who makes her feel a renewed sense of love, respect and attraction for you.

If you're interested in learning how to do that and how to get her back before it's too late, I recommend that you watch my proven-to-work program called, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Ignoring an Ex Girlfriend to Get Her Back: Does it Work?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

It's pretty obvious what ignoring an ex girlfriend might to do...

She might miss you and call you, or she might be curious about why you're not contacting her and call or text you to check that you're still missing her.

On the other hand, she might be glad that you're not contacting her and will simply get on with her life!

Ignoring your ex girlfriend is not a solution to get her back. It might get her to contact you, but it doesn't actually get her back.

To get her back, you've got to be able to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you when you next interact with her on a phone call or in person.

[image: Get her on a phone call]

If she contacts you after you've been using the No Contact Rule (ignore your ex for 30-60 days) and you turn her off in the same old ways as you used to, or if she realizes that you've been ignoring her as a trick to get her to contact you, it will actually help her feel better about herself and move on easier.

She will realize that you are trying to use tricks to hopefully get her to change her mind, because you still have no idea how to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you as a man.

The way to get a woman back is to actively make her feel respect and attraction for you the next time you interact with her. How?

Watch this video for some examples...

If you talk to your ex on the phone or interact with her in person, you just need to make sure that you are displaying the type of personality traits, behaviors and inner qualities that are naturally attractive to women.

For example: Confidence, high self-esteem, the ability to make her laugh and smile (especially if she is being cold with you), emotional maturity, masculine vibe, charisma, etc.

If you can do that, she will naturally begin to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you because you clearly have changed and improved.

Yet, don't expect her to make her interest in you very obvious right away. She will almost certainly test your confidence by playing a little hard to get, giving you mixed messages and being indecisive to see how you handle yourself.

As long as you remain confident, relaxed and continue to believe that you are making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, she will be impressed and won't be able to stop herself from feeling attracted to your emotional strength and maturity.

She will feel as though you deserve to be respected again because you're not the guy that she broke up with. You really have changed and improved a lot since she broke up with you days or weeks ago.

[image: Let her see the changes for herself]

As long as you remain confident in your ability to attract her during interactions, she will relax and allow herself to have feelings for you again.

However, if you attempt to get your ex back without changing or improving anything, then you're most likely going to turn her off in the same old ways and she's just going to keep rejecting you and moving on.

Using the No Contact Rule

[image: Using no contact to hopefully make her jealous]

Sometimes, ignoring an ex girlfriend to get her back is referred to as the No Contact Rule, where you ignore her for 30-60 days and hope that she comes back.

Sometimes, it is a good idea not to contact your ex and wait for her to contact you, but in almost every case that I've dealt with to help a guy get his ex back, he actually needed to contact her right away because she didn't have enough feelings for him to care that he was ignoring her.

My approach to getting an ex back is about rapidly fixing your issues (e.g. insecurity) and improving yourself (e.g. becoming more confident and emotionally attractive to her) and then getting her to meet up with you.

It is at the meet up that the most important part of getting her back happens. You have to know what to say and do at the meet up to get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

You also need to ensure that you can build on those feelings of respect and attraction, to the point where her desire for you becomes sudden and intense. She feels like she needs to be with you.

That is what needs to happen.

Yes, sometimes a guy can ignore a girl and it will make her feel that way, but in almost all ex back cases, the woman is happy to be given the space and she then uses that time to move on with the guy.

She Didn't Decide to Break Up With You Overnight

For a woman to reach the point where she says "Iâ€ve had enough and I want out of this relationship," she usually goes through a series of stages.

1. She mentally prepares herself for the break up.

When a woman realizes that sheâ€™s no longer feeling the way she wants to feel in her relationship, she begins to show her man that she's unhappy.

If she sends out signals to her guy and he fails to notice and make changes to re-spark the attraction between himself and her, she will begin to prepare herself mentally for a break up by imagining her life without him in it.

She will begin to imagine all of the fun things that she could do without him in her life.

She thinks what it will be like getting back out into the dating game and meeting new men who make her feel more respect and attraction than her current man does.

This allows her to convince herself that a break up is not going to be all bad and may even be fun.

2. She emotionally prepares herself for the break up.

Once she can picture herself dating other guys, she prepares herself emotionally by switching off any residual feelings of love, respect and attraction she still has for her current man.

This allows her to opening herself up to meeting and feeling attraction for other men.

3. She physically prepares herself for the break up

For a woman, her ability to attract a man depends a lot on her appearance, so prior to a break up (if she doesn't already have a replacement guy ready), a woman will work hard to improve her physical appearance.

For example: If she is usually the casual type and who likes to wear jeans and T-shirts with little makeup and then suddenly starts dieting, going to the gym more often and wearing little sexy dresses with high heels and lots of makeup, then she's getting herself ready to look attractive for other men.

She might also become more open in her body language (e.g. smiling at random men, holding eye contact with a smile when talking to a man, flirting, etc) to send out a message to other guys that says, that says, "Hey, I'm open to flirting with you and seeing where it goes."

So, if your ex has already gone through those 3 steps before breaking up with you, do you really think ignoring her will fix the problems in your relationship and get her back?

Probably not, right?

Sure, sometimes making a woman feel the pain of losing you by ignoring her will get her back temporarily, but if she does come back to you, she will just as quickly break up with you again when she feels emotionally ready to do so (e.g. she finds a replacement man).

If she notices that you still haven't fixed your issues and improved yourself, it will remind her of the real reasons why she broke up with you.

She will know that she has no intention of staying with you unless you can quickly change and start giving her the attraction experience she wants in a relationship.

She will then begin to say things like, "I need more time" or "Let's take a break" or "Maybe we could get back together in future, but for now, I need time to find myself."

In other words, she is saying, "Wait around on your own so I can find another guy and then break up with you for real, rather than having to worry about you finding a new woman before I find a new guy."

[image: Ignoring ex girlfriend to get her back]

In most cases, by ignoring your ex girlfriend for a long period of time, you are simply giving her more time to move on with her life and have sexual and romantic experiences with new men.

By the time you decide to contact her, she may have had enough time to meet a new guy, have sex and even fall in love with him.

This only makes YOUR task to get her back more difficult because you now must ensure that you don't talk, behave or act in an insecure way about the new guy.

Why? Being insecure about him will actually make him appear more confident and appealing than you. She will see that you feel threatened by him and will look at him as being more of an alpha male than you, which will naturally and automatically make her feel more attracted to him.

What I recommend is that you contact her immediately and arrange a meet up, or if you think that she needs a little bit of space, the maximum amount of time you should give her is 3 to 7 days.

After giving her some space, you need to meet up with her in person so she can experience the new and improved you and feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

When that happens, her guard will naturally come down and she will either get back with you right away or will become open to seeing you again and making a decision then.

Are You Ready to Re-Attract Her?

After helping 100s of guys to get an ex girlfriend, fiancé or wife back, I've found that there are common issues that guys need help with before they are ready to re-attract their ex.

For example:

- Do you make her feel like you need her more than she needs you?
- Have you based too much of your life on her, rather than having serious, important interests outside of the relationship?
- Have you not given her enough love and attention, or have you given her too much and ended up making her feel smothered?
- Were you able to make her feel like a real woman in your presence (i.e. feminine, girly and emotional), or did you make her feel like more of a friend?
- Who wore the pants in the relationship? Was she the boss or did you lead the way?
- Did you become too controlling, or did you not even care enough about her to worry about what she did?
- Were you insecure about your attractiveness to her?
- Were you able to deepen the love, respect and attraction during the relationship, or did you make the mistake of taking her for granted and assuming that she would just stay with you because she loved you?
- Did she start to lose interest after the initial spark died out, but you didn't know how to get it back, so you then became insecure about the relationship and possessive of her?

There are so many different reasons why a relationship will break up.

To get an ex back, you must be able to begin fixing the problems between you and her, rather than expecting her to give you another chance because things used to be good between you and her.

You have to let her feel like there is hope because you really have changed and some of the old problems that you and her had just don't happen anymore. For example: You don't get insecure anymore, you now make her feel like more of a real woman around you.

Here's what you need to remember when getting your ex back...

Ignoring her does not fix your personal issues or insecurities and it doesn't fix the problems between you. If you want to get your ex girlfriend back for real, you have to be prepared to do what it takes to improve so you can properly re-attract her.

Watch this video to understand how you can impress her when you talk to her on the phone and in person...

All it usually takes is a spark of respect and attraction and your ex will begin to think, feel, talk and behave differently when she interacts with you.

From there, you just need to build on her attraction and guide her back into a relationship.

Getting Ready to Contact Her

Before contacting your ex girlfriend, you have to make sure that you are prepared.

Here's what you need to do:

1. Find out exactly what caused her to break up with you and begin fixing those things.

You don't have to become perfect, but before you call her, make sure that you know what caused her to break up with you and have begun to fix those things about yourself.

For example:

- Did you become too insecure? If so, have you fixed that or are you just pretending to not be insecure now?
- Did you lack purpose in life and spend too much time with her? If so, have you begun to make progress towards your big goals and ambitions in life, or are you still hoping to just spend time with her and not worry about your purpose in life?
- Did you take her for granted in the relationship? If so, are you ready to treat her better without sucking up to her with extra nice behavior?

If you are saying to her, "Just give me another chance and I promise that if you tell me what I did wrong, I'll change" it will only make her lose even more love and respect for you.

She will feel like you don't understand her and don't even know what she needs you to do to make her happy.

A girlfriend doesn't want to be her boyfriend's teacher about life. She wants him to know how to be a man on his own, not with her guidance.

If a guy says to his girlfriend, "Tell me what I did wrong and I promise I'll change. I'll do whatever you want me to do. Just tell me and I will do it," he's not only saying, "I don't actually know what I've been doing wrong," what she hears is, "I need you to teach me how to be a man."

She then realizes that he isn't ready to be the man she needs, so she decides to leave him and hope to find a guy who is ready to be the man she needs.

2. Get professional help.

Most guys make all sorts of mistakes while trying to get their woman back, which turns her off even more and makes the process more difficult.

If you want to take the quick and easy road to get your ex back this week or next, I am ready to help you right now.

I Love My Ex Girlfriend, But She Has a Boyfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex girlfriend is in a relationship with the first guy she hooked up with after breaking up with you, it means that she is probably in what is commonly referred to as a “rebound relationship.”

According to most studies, anywhere from 60-90% of rebound relationships will fail within the first year, so if you love your ex girlfriend, but she has a boyfriend, it doesn't mean that it's the end of the road for you and her.

The question that you need to ask yourself is: What do you want to do about it? Do you want to get her back or are you going to focus on getting yourself a new girlfriend, or at least sleeping with some new women to help yourself get over your ex girlfriend.

The choice is yours and luckily, you are living in the age of the Internet where experts like me are ready to help you get your ex back or show you how attract and have sex or a relationship with new women.

Decide What You Really Want

[image: What are you going to do about it? Get her back or get a new girl?]

Before you can do anything, you have to know what it is that you really want and then do what is required to make that happen. If you want your ex girlfriend to dump her new boyfriend and come back to you, then you will need to:

- Change the things that caused her to break up with you in the first place (e.g. neediness, insecurity, lack of commitment, being unable to make her feel like a real woman, etc).
- Become the kind of man that she really wishes you could have been all along.
- Show her that you're a better man and that no other guy (not even her new boyfriend) can make her feel the way that you can.

Are you willing to do that? If yes, then you are ready to begin the exciting, life-changing process of getting an ex girlfriend. It really is possible to get an ex girlfriend back, even if she has moved on. Going through the process of getting her back turns you into an even greater guy than you already are right now.

There are many things that you can do immediately to get her to feel differently and there are also many things that you can do, which take a bit more effort. However, one thing is clear: You CAN make your ex feel differently about you. When you make her feel differently about you and get her to see you in a new light, she automatically begins to reconsider being with you.

Some of things that you need to do to get your ex back are easy some require a bit of effort, but the reward of getting her back is more than worth it. It really is possible to get another chance with your ex girlfriend. Watch the video below to understand how and why you can get another chance with her...

Common Mistakes to Avoid When Trying to Get Her to Leave Her Boyfriend For You

It sucks to be in the position you are in. You love your ex girlfriend, but she has a boyfriend and you may feel like you have to sit around on the sidelines waiting and hoping for another chance with her. The good news is that getting her to leave him and come back to you is not as impossible as it may seem to you right now. IF you do the right things. So, if you want to successfully get your ex back, the first step is to avoid making any of these mistakes:

1. Don't compete with her new boyfriend.

He's in; you're out (for the time being). Don't badmouth him. Don't try to beat him on the football field. Don't hang out where he does if it's not your scene. Trying to convince your ex girlfriend that he's not as good looking/rich/smart/nice/athletic or popular as you is only going to make you look desperate, childish and immature; qualities that women find UN-attractive in a man and you'll only convince her that she made the right decision by breaking up with you.

You must develop the mindset and belief that you ARE better than him. See him as NOTHING compared to you, but don't try to convince her of it. Just let her sense it in the way that you talk, behave, use your body language, etc. Let her see that you are NOT threatened by him, but don't say it to her. Let her sense it.

Women are very good at reading a guy's body language to determine whether or not he feels insecure. Your ex probably knows you better than any other woman in your life, so she will be especially good at reading your body language, listening to how you use your tonality when you speak and assessing your vibe and behavior.

If you have the belief that you really are better than him, then you will have NOTHING to worry about because he is nothing compared to you. He doesn't even come close to how great of a guy you are. Believe it.

If you think that he is better than you, it will come across in your body language, conversation, vibe, etc and your ex girlfriend will pick up on it. She will then feel more attracted to him. Why? Women are attracted to guys who believe in themselves and don't see other guys as being more attractive than them.

2. Don't lie about being with other women if you haven't been.

What guys often do is try to make their ex jealous by pretending to be dating or having sex with other women. In reality, if you're not really dating or having sex with other women, don't lie about it to your ex girlfriend. If she finds out that it's all a lie, she will be convinced that she made the right decision by breaking up with you.

If you are actually dating and having sex with other women, then tell her that if she asks you, but don't proactively say it. Only tell her if she asks. You don't need to brag or try to make her jealous because you know that you are ALREADY good enough and you are a much better guy than her current boyfriend.

3. Don't try to get her back without changing anything about yourself.

Probably the worst mistake guys make who want to get their ex back when she has a boyfriend, is to assume that if they say, "I'm so sorry baby. Please give me another chance and I promise that I'll change" then she will dump her new guy and come running back. Fact: If you want your ex girlfriend to take you seriously and come back to you, then you are going to have to take the things that caused her to break up with you seriously and show her that she matters enough for you to change.

If you aren't willing to fix any emotional issues that you have and improve the things that caused her to break up with you in the first place, then she will feel as though you are disrespecting her and the relationship. Show her that you not only respect yourself, but you respect her and the relationship.

How to Make Your Ex Girlfriend Dump Her New Boyfriend and Come Back to You

When in a relationship with a guy, a woman wants to feel:

- Loved.
- Valued.
- Appreciated.
- Attractive to you.
- Taken care of.
- Like she's with a man who knows what he wants in life and goes after it.
- Proud of you because you are such a great guy.

If a woman doesn't feel much or any of that in a relationship, she will become unhappy and will start looking for another guy who can give her that kind of emotional experience.

To get your ex girlfriend to dump her new boyfriend and come back to you, it's very important that you make her feel the emotions that she wanted to feel with you when you were in a relationship.

Everything that you and your ex ever fought about is a direct clue about what you need to change and improve to make her feel what she really wanted to feel with you all along.

For example:

If she ever said to you, "You never notice anything that I do for you," she was telling you that she was feeling unloved and unappreciated. If she said, "You spend more time with your friends than with me," she was telling you that she was feeling under-valued.

If she ever said, "You're so lazy; you'll never get anywhere in life," she was telling you she didn't feel taken care of or like you had a plan for your future together. She wanted you to become a bigger and better man, instead of hiding from your true potential as a man behind her and the relationship.

What you need to do is begin making serious changes and then let her see that. If she has currently blocked you out of her life, I provide tested examples of what to say via text, phone or Facebook to get her on a phone call with you and then get her to agree to meet up with you in person, in my program Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

How can you show her that you've changed? If she believed that you had no plans for your life, then make plans. Big plans. Find something you feel passionate about and begin to pursue it. You don't have to achieve anything big or do something amazing right now, but you need to get started on the path.

Instead of hanging around your house moping and saying “I love my ex girlfriend, but she has a boyfriend, my life is ruined...” start setting serious goals for yourself and then go out and BEGIN to make them real. Nothing is more attractive to a woman than a man who knows what he wants from life and actually goes out and gets it.

If she sees you in person or speaks to you on the telephone, instead of looking or sounding sad and telling her how terrible your life has been without her, tell her how her dumping you helped you to see your life in a better light and how you’re now pursuing your goals. Thank her for breaking up with you and say it was one of the best wake up calls you’ve ever had in life.

This will get her attention and may cause her want to see if you’ve really changed or if you’re just putting on a act to impress her. If you can show her that the changes are real she will become more interested in finding out what else you’ve changed.

Getting What You Really Want

Even though your ex girlfriend has a boyfriend, a new boyfriend still needs to “prove” himself to her. On the other hand she already knows what she likes about you. She knows all of your good points. Yes, she also knows the bad points, but she can and will begin to feel differently about you when show her that the things that caused her to break up with you have now dramatically changed.

You can do this.

Stop saying, “I love my ex girlfriend but she has a boyfriend” and start sating, “I love my ex girlfriend and I am going to get her back this month.” You can get her back into your life if you really want to and I know this because I’ve heard back from so many guys who have used my system to get an ex girlfriend, fianc  or wife back.

Don’t spend another minute blaming yourself for what happened in the past, or comparing yourself to another guy. If you want to get your ex girlfriend back, I welcome you to watch my video program called, Get Your Ex Back: Super System and put it into action today.

You can make her see you in a new light. You can make her begin to see her current boyfriend as less attractive and appealing compared to you. Are you willing to give it a shot? If so, try my system today.

7 Reasons Why You Can Get Your Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a guy is trying to get his ex girlfriend, fianc  or wife back, it can seem like an impossible thing to do.

She's saying things like, "Get away from me" or "Give me space" or "I don't want to be with you anymore." Anything along those sorts of lines means that he is experiencing direct emotional rejection from her. She is saying "No!" to the idea of being with him and isn't open to giving it another shot.

If you're reading this post now and are trying to get your ex back, then you've most-likely already tried to reason with her and explain to her that you will change and that she should give the relationship another chance. You may have also made the mistake of begging or pleading with her for another chance. From here on, don't worry about what mistakes you have made and instead just focus on the correct things that you need to say and do to get her back.

If you are serious about getting her back and you want to learn what you need to do, make sure that you read this entire post. I'm going to explain 7 reasons why you CAN get her back and I'm going to explain these reasons from my all of my vast experience with helping guys to get their ex back.

I've seen all sorts of cases where it initially seems like a hopeless case, but the guy then gets her back into a relationship by using my tested, proven to work approach. I've seen cases where a man has been married to his wife for 20 years and she says, "Leave me alone. I never want to be with you again. There are too many painful memories" and then he gets her back.

I've dealt with cases where, for example, a 20 year old guy has had his first girlfriend at university and then stuffed it up by being clingy and needy. Yet, when he went through the process that I'm going to provide for you if you get my program, he gets her back.

It really is an awesome job to have and I am really keen to help you out if you are serious about getting your ex back. In this post, I'm going to explain why you CAN get her back and why it's possible for YOU to do it. As you will discover, when getting an ex back, you actually NEED to have the belief that you CAN get her back. Without it, you end up communicating and behaving in ways that actually turn your ex off.

The first reason why you can get your ex back is that...

1. People can change the way that they feel about someone

[image: People can change the way that they feel about someone]

As you may have noticed throughout your life, a person can literally go from hating someone to then forgiving them, liking them and even loving them. You may have seen that with other people or you may have experienced it yourself where, for example, someone at work annoyed you and you hated them for it. They then changed their behavior, communication style and attitude towards you and then you liked them.

You literally went from hating them to liking them, which shows you that it is possible to change how you feel about someone. Use the experience that you've had in life to see that people can change the way that they feel about someone. A person can literally go from not liking someone to really liking someone, or from hating someone, to forgiving them and then liking them and even loving them.

In the case of getting an ex back; an ex girlfriend can literally go from not wanting to be with a guy, to really wanting to be with him and it all depends on the approach that the guy uses when trying to get her back.

Your ex can change the way she feels about you. At the moment, she may not feel like she wants to be with you, but her emotions definitely can change. How quickly your ex is going to go from not wanting to be with you to being open to being with you, depends on the approach that you use.

If you look online, most people will tell you, “Get out of her life” and use the No Contact Rule where you don’t contact her for a long period of time and then hopefully she misses you and everything magically fixes itself. Yet, that isn’t a good solution because it usually just allows the woman to move on.

[image: Waiting around using the no contact rule]

Of course, sometimes the No Contact Rule does work and makes the woman to contact her ex, but if she contacts him and discovers that he still has the same issues that lead to the break up in the first place, then she isn’t going to want to get back with him for real. She’s just calling up to see if he is still missing her and what is happening in his love life, so she can feel good about continuing to move on and leave him behind.

So, what you need to know is that you can actually make her feel differently right away. You don’t have to sit around wasting time and hoping that things change themselves because you can actively make the changes to her emotions happen very quickly.

2. When you make her feel differently, her thinking and behavior changes

[image: When you change the way she feels, she begins to think and behave differently]

If the current way that you’ve been communicating with your ex has been turning her off, then she’s not going to be thinking that she wants to get back with you. She’s going to be behaving coldly towards you and she’s going to be saying that she doesn’t want to be with you. She will be trying to push you away, get away from you and make it clear that she just doesn’t feel the same way about you anymore.

However, when you change your communication style with her in a way that makes her feel attracted to you, she will naturally begin to think and behave differently. She will become more open to being with you or at least meeting up with you to have a chat.

Right now, you might be able to make your ex feel attraction and respect for you in many different ways or, maybe you are the sort of guy who doesn’t know how to make his ex feel attracted and respectful towards him anymore. Maybe you feel like you seem to have lost your way with her.

Whatever the case is for you, what you need to understand is that you can do better. You might be a great guy already, but you can do better. You can communicate with her in a different way on the phone, in person and via text or social media. You can use different body language when you’re around her, you can have a different attitude towards her, you can have a different vibe and you can display a different level of confidence.

Those are qualities that will allow you to attract her and make her feel differently about you. If you understand what attraction is, you will know what I am talking about here. The dictionary definition of attraction is:

Attraction (noun): A quality or feature of someone that evokes feelings of interest, liking or desire.

A bit part of making your ex feel differently so she wants to get back with you is being able to make her feel attracted to you and respectful towards you. If the majority of your behavior, communication and attitude or vibe is turning her off, then she's not going to feel drawn to you.

There may be some things that that your ex finds attractive about you at the moment, but if she feels like she doesn't want to be with you right now, it means that the things that are turning her off are outweighing the things that are drawing her to you.

You've got to be able to present qualities and features about yourself that are attractive to her, that are going to draw her to you. It's actually very easy to make your ex feel differently once you know what you're doing. There are things that you can say to her via text, on the phone and in person that will make her feel differently right away.

You don't have to sit around wasting time and hoping that if you just stay out of her life, something will magically happen. What you need to do is make her feel differently and a big part of that is being able to make her feel attracted to you when you interact with her, whether that is on the phone, via text, on social media or in person.

3. Forgiveness makes her drop her guard and open back up to you

[image: Forgiveness makes your ex drop her guard and open back up to you]

If your ex doesn't forgive for making mistakes in the relationship and is going forward without you, with her guard up saying, "No! You stuffed up. It's over...I cannot forgive you" it will make the process of getting her back a lot more difficult.

So, you do actually need to get her forgiveness. How do you do that? Getting her to forgive you is something that I explain in detail in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System. There are specific conversations that you need to have with your ex to get her to forgive you and understand that you did make mistakes in the past, but that isn't going to happen anymore.

Once you do get her forgiveness, she drops her guard and becomes more open to you and when she becomes more open to you, she doesn't stop herself from feeling attracted to you or feeling respectful towards you. When she allows herself to feel attracted to you and respectful towards you, that's when she starts to feel drawn to you.

Forgiveness allows her to open herself back up to you and when she does open herself up to you, you need to make sure that you're able to make her feel enough respect and attraction for her to actually want to be with you in a relationship again.

If you need help with making her feel enough respect and attraction for you, that is one of the many things that you will learn in my program. You will learn exactly what to say when talking to her, you will learn the the process to go through to get her back and also how to make her feel respect and attraction for you once again. There is a lot to it and if you are serious about getting her back, then I welcome you to try my program.

4. You can fix any of your emotional issues and show her that you've improved and changed

[image: You can fix any emotional issues that you have and show her that you've changed]

When getting an ex back, she needs to be able to see that you have fixed any emotional issues you have that were turning her off and that you've improved and changed. Emotional issues such as: Being clingy, taking her for granted, being needy or insecure. Those are emotional issues that turn women off and they don't want to be in a relationship with a guy who can't be stronger and get over those sorts of things.

You don't have to fully fix everything and become perfect to get her back, but what you need to do is start working on those emotional issues properly. You need to get expert advice on how to fix the emotional issues that you have, which I can provide you with in my program.

If you have begun to fix your issues and improve yourself emotionally as a man, she will be able to pick up that when you interact with her. She will sense it by looking at your body language, she will hear it in your tonality and in what you say to her and she also will notice it by looking at the changes in your behavior. She will be able to see that you really have improved and changed.

If you try to get an ex back and you haven't really fixed or improved anything and are just saying that you "will" change, it's not enough for most women. Some women (e.g. women who are inexperienced with relationships or women who haven't been able to find a replacement guy), will give their ex another chance if he says that he will change. However, the relationship will break up again if he continues to turn her off by having the same old issues.

5. You can make her see you as a better option than other guys

[image: You can make your ex see you as a better option than other guys]

Your ex may have already moved on with another guy or she may be at a point now where she feels like she wants to get out there and "find herself" and have a good time. Whatever the case is for you, what you need to understand is that you can make her see you as a better option than other guys.

Unfortunately, when a lot of guys get broken up with by their woman, they start to behave in ways that are unattractive to the woman; they become insecure, they feel like they're not good enough and they essentially make the woman feel like she would be doing them a favor by giving the relationship another chance.

Your ex doesn't want to feel like she is doing you a favor by getting back with you. She wants to feel like you ARE a better option than other guys and you CAN make her feel that way. To get her to feel that way is a lot easier than most guys think. There are things that you can say to her right now and there things that you can say and do when you meet up with her that will make her feel differently about you.

When you use the techniques that I provide in my program, your ex sees you in a new light. She feels differently about you, she has a new perspective of you and it draws her to you.

6. Love doesn't die

[image: Love doesn't die]

If your ex doesn't want to get back with you, it doesn't mean that the love is dead.

It may feel like it is dead and she may have even said, "I don't love you anymore," but, what that really means is that she doesn't feel like she can be in love with you right now. It doesn't mean that you can't reconnect with the love and make her want to be in love with you once again. It also doesn't mean that you can't make the love stronger than it ever was before. You can and I know that from helping so many guys to get their ex girlfriend, ex fiancée or ex wife back.

The love is there in the background; it's just that she is not willing to connect with it right now. She doesn't feel like she wants to be in love with you right now, but you can change the way that she feels about you.

When a woman feels differently about a guy, when she feels enough respect and attraction for him and she also forgives him for his past mistakes, then she becomes more open to reconnecting with the love.

Before I devoted my life to helping guys get their ex back, I didn't know that about love. I thought that if a man and a woman broke up and the woman said, "I don't love you anymore," it meant that the love was completely dead and it was unrecoverable. However, that isn't the case at all; love doesn't die.

If you and your ex did experience love together, it is still there in the background and she will become open to reconnecting with that love when you change the way that she feels about you. Additionally, if you and your ex never experienced true love, it doesn't mean that you can't create that connection between you and her now.

To get her to feel differently about you, you've got to be able to get in contact with her and in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System I provide you with tested examples of text messages, phone calls, what to say at the meet up, what to do at the meet up, etc. When you text her, when you call her up and when you meet her in person, you're going to know exactly what to say and do to get her to want to give the relationship another chance.

When getting an ex back, you need to be confident in the process that you're going through. You need to believe in yourself that you can actually get another chance with her and that you can make her feel differently about you. Some guys get their ex back immediately and for other guys it takes a couple of days, weeks or a couple of months. It really depends on how bad the relationship became and how you treated her during the break up process.

I've seen so many examples of relationships getting back together within hours, within days, within weeks and there are also examples where it takes a little longer than that. However, what you need to do is believe in yourself and keep pushing forward, knowing that you can change the way that she feels about you.

Ironically, just having that belief in yourself makes you more attractive to your ex. Women are attracted to guys who are emotionally strong, so if you are insecure and don't think that you're good enough for her, it's actually unattractive to her and it will turn her off.

One of the things that you need to do when getting an ex back is believe in yourself and belief in yourself is one of things that you're going to get from my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

7. There is a proven, step-by-step system for you to follow

When getting an ex back, it's so easy to make mistakes.

There are many mistakes that guys make along the way that turn their ex girlfriend, fiancée wife off and make the process of getting her back much more difficult. It isn't just 5 or 10 mistakes that a guy needs to avoid. There are a lot of mistakes that you need to avoid making and if you don't know what they are, you will most-likely make the mistake, turn your ex off and make the process of getting her back more difficult than it needs to be.

So, if you want a plan to follow, then I welcome you to try my program. It comes with a 30 day money back guarantee and if you're going to get my program, promise me one thing: You will go through the entire program and you then put the advice into action. "Hi Dan

I got my girlfriend back!! She had become jealous due to [Edited: Customer revealed important technique from Get Your Ex Back: Super System] so she messaged me on Fb and on my phone. We met at a coffee shop close by my home and kissed afterward. Following that she announced that she regretted breaking up and wanted to give it another chance.

Props to you bro!!

H”

“I want to take this opportunity to thank you for saving my marriage. It was dead in the water and my wife had already began going on dates with a new guy that she knows from work. But I put your advice into action from the Get Your Ex Back system and boy did it work.

My wife came crawling back to me, crying and apologising. I am now in the position of power in the relationship and we are more in love than ever before. Your tips on sex were a huge eye opener for me as well. I would rarely get her to orgasm before but now it is happening more often every time we have sex.

You are doing great things for the men of this world Dan and you deserve a lot of credit. Had I known what your program would do for me I would have happily paid double the price.

I’ll be a loyal fan of yours for life.

Best regards, Bryon”

Some guys even get their ex back AND get new women hitting on them now that they are more attractive to women:

“Hi Dan

I got your Ex Back program and have used it to get my ex back. All that is fine now (thank you!) but there is a new problem that I’m confused about.

There’s a girl at work who is asking me to break up with my girlfriend to be with her. She’s very beautiful so I don’t know what to do. I’m at a crossroads in my life and wondering whether I should keep my girlfriend or have this new girl. I will admit that I even kissed her after work at a function we had. I’m not sure what to do. My girlfriend and I are very happy now but I am feeling very confused about this. Any advice?”

I also provide two bonus programs, Ultimate Make Up Sex and Facebook, Phone and Text Message Examples.

[image: Ultimate Make Up Sex bonus]

Ultimate Make Up Sex is about connecting with her sexually in a way that you probably haven’t done before. If you are already good at sex and have enjoyed a great sex life with her, this program will give you some additional insights that will make the sex even better than it has been already.

[image: Facebook, Phone and Text Message Examples bonus]

Facebook, Phone and Text Message Examples is a quick reference guide that includes all the Facebook, phone and text message examples from Get Your Ex Back: Super System. You will always know what to say when communicating with your ex and will be able to quickly find the examples from the program to use when you are contacting her.

If you want a proven system to follow, I welcome you to try my program. One thing I really want to point out for you is that you actually can get another chance with your ex, even if you’ve already had six chances with her.

I’ve seen all sorts of cases and it’s always surprising to see that when you make a woman feel differently, she begins to think and behave differently and open herself back up to the relationship. That is natural psychology at work.

When you can present yourself in a way that makes her feel differently, she will start thinking differently, talking differently, behaving differently and she will then naturally feel more open to meeting up with you. For the meet up, I provide all sorts of techniques that you need to use to get her to feel more attracted to you, more respectful towards you, to get her to forgive you, to get her to drop her guard and become more open to having feelings for you again.

It's all provided in the program and if you go through the process, you're going to be amazed at how it works for you.

In Closing

How to Make My Ex-Girlfriend Jealous: 7 Mistakes That Guys Make and What to Do Instead

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Making your ex girlfriend feel jealous is actually a fairly easy thing to do.

However, if you look around online at the available advice about making an ex girlfriend jealous, they will usually talk about things that are not easy to do. They will suggest things that are not only unnecessary, but also very time consuming and costly for you and don't guarantee that you're going to make her jealous or get her back.

Many people will tell you to go to the gym, get a makeover, buy lots of clothes or date other women to get her jealous and make her feel like she's losing a great guy.

[image: Buying clothes in the hope that it will make his ex girlfriend feel jealous]

Yet, you most likely don't want to have to date other women to get your ex girlfriend jealous, right? You may also not want to have to waste money on a bunch of new clothes and spend months working out at the gym to add another couple of centimetres to your biceps.

You want to make her jealous NOW, not next year.

So, how can you do that? How can you make her jealous without dating other women, working out in the gym or spending weeks or months improving your physical appearance?

It's actually quite simple.

What I'm going to talk about in this article are 7 common mistakes that guys make when trying to make their ex girlfriend jealous and what you should do instead. The first mistake is...

1. Pretending to be happy without her, when he is miserable

[image: Pretending to be happy when he is miserable without her]

If your ex girlfriend can see that you're happy without her, you're having a great time, your life is looking good and you are smiling and feeling great without her, then it will definitely make her feel jealous on some level.

Now, to be clear here, let's look at the dictionary definitions...

Happy (adjective): Delighted, pleased or glad.

Jealous (adjective): Suspicious fears or envious resentment. Anxious about maintaining or guarding something or someone.

It's very important that you don't pretend to be happy without her, if you are secretly miserable without her. Why? All it takes for an ex girlfriend to catch a guy out in a lie like that is to show some interest in him again and then quickly pull the interest back to see how happy he really is without her.

She may text him, call him or talk to him in person to say that she has been missing him and is been thinking about getting back together with him. She may ask if he misses her and if he wants to get back together to find out how he is really feeling.

Is he really happy without her, or is he just putting on an act to make her feel jealous?

If she catches you out in a lie where you are pretending to be happy when you're not, what an ex girlfriend will usually do is rush to find another guy to have sex with or least start dating a new guy, so she can then protect herself against being hurt by your mind games again.

So, what should you do instead of pretending to be happy without her?

Start using techniques that allow you to feel happy without her right now. Happiness is a choice and it is something that you can project based on how you choose to think at the time.

For example: If you meet your ex girlfriend in person and you want to project happiness, what you need to be thinking to yourself (if you're not happy prior to that moment) is, "What am I happy about in this moment? What am I happy about with my life that doesn't include her?"

Just focus on the answers that you come up with and let yourself feel the happiness that comes with along with it. Let the happiness resonate with your energy and come through in how you talk to her, look at her and behave around her.

If you're not able to show her that in person and all she can see about you is your online social profile, then projecting happiness has to come through in how you are captured in the photo.

If you are captured in your profile photo looking bored, lonely, nervous or in any other unattractive emotional state, it isn't going to make her feel jealous. You need to be projecting the glad, pleased and delighted type of happiness that is described in the dictionary definition.

To trigger a feeling of jealousy, she's got to see that you're very happy (not mildly happy or just feeling okay) without her. Appearing happy is not the only way to make your ex girlfriend feel jealous, but it's a way to trigger some sort of jealousy right now without having to buy new clothes, date other women or spend months working out in a gym.

2. Listening to people who tell him to get a style makeover

[image: Trying to make an ex girlfriend jealous by buying clothes]

Most of the advice that you'll find online about getting an ex back is about getting a guy or a girl back. It's all jumbled up together into a big confused mess of random ideas.

People will suggest that you should lose 10 pounds or 5 kilos, get a new outfit, buy a whole bunch of new outfits to completely redo your wardrobe, get a haircut and whiten your teeth. Yet, that is not required to get a woman back.

Why?

The attraction that a man feels for a woman is mostly based on her physical appearance, so he will often dump a woman simply based on her looks. However, the attraction that woman feels for a man is mostly based on who he is as a guy (e.g. his emotional strength, the way that his personality makes her feel, his confidence, his masculinity, etc).

So, the advice for a woman getting a man back is pretty easy. Lose some weight, make yourself look more physically appealing and then he might be interested in giving you another chance.

The advice for a guy is completely different.

A guy needs to focus on making his ex girlfriend feel respect and attraction for him...and that doesn't come from a hair cut, a shirt or adding a couple of extra centimetres to his biceps. Those things are not what causes a woman to feel intense respect and attraction for guy.

If a guy is a total slob, has the worst hair cut in the world and wears the worst clothes in the world, then okay – fixing himself up a little bit may have a slight effect on her, but...

She most likely didn't break up with him because of his shirt.

She most likely broke up with him because he was clingy, insecure, jealous, over-protective, an asshole to her, didn't commit or wasn't able to deep the love that she felt for him.

Those are the things that are causing the break up and to get her respect and attraction back, it's not going to come from him wearing a new shirt or getting a stylish hair cut.

So, what should you do instead?

The next time you interact with her, you need to use attraction techniques that make her feel attracted to you in ways that she hasn't felt before. (If you don't know how to do that, all of the techniques are provided in Get Your Ex Back: Super System).

Making her feel that way instantly triggers the realization in her mind that you are going to be able to attract other women very easily. You are going to be able to attract hot women, sexy women and women that are maybe more attractive than her.

That is what will trigger a strong feeling of jealousy in her.

Jealous (adjective): Suspicious fears or envious resentment. Anxious about maintaining or guarding something or someone.

On the other hand, if you interact with your ex girlfriend and you're not able to make her feel attraction for you in new ways, it will simply remind her of why she broke up with you. If you all you have to offer is a new haircut, better clothes and slightly bigger muscles, then she will know that you still don't understand what women really want from men.

She will realize that you don't understand that women are attracted to different things about men, than men are attracted to about women. Men are mostly attracted to how a woman looks and women are mostly attracted to how a man's personality makes them feel.

3. Posing in photos alone

[image: Posing in photos thinking that if he looks good, it will make his ex jealous]

One of the biggest mistakes that I see guys make when they're trying to get their ex back is posing in photos alone. The guy assumes that if he looks good in the photo, it will make his ex feel jealous and she will begin to worry that other women are going to like him because he looks good.

Yet, his ex girlfriend is most-likely going to feel turned off by his lonely, poser photo. Why? She most-likely hasn't dumped him because of his looks; she has dumped him because of how his personality and behavior makes her feel.

The majority of guys in this world don't understand how to attract women with their personality, conversation style and body language. Most guys think that women select men based on how they look, not even knowing that women choose guys based on how they make them feel.

So, what should you do instead of posting up lonely selfies or photos of you trying to look your best?

Your ex girlfriend is going to feel some jealousy if she sees you in photos where you are around other people and genuinely having fun. You don't need to date other women, you don't need post a photo up of you kissing a woman, on a date with a woman or anything else like that.

Just being around other people (rather than being alone) and being very happy is enough to trigger a feeling of jealousy in your ex girlfriend, especially if she sees the photo when she's not feeling very good about herself.

For some guys, their ex girlfriend has unfriended them from Facebook, unfollowed them from social media and is basically avoiding them. So, how can a guy like that show his ex girlfriend that is he not alone or feeling lonely without her?

He needs to make sure that the public version of his profile photo has a very happy photo of him with other people. If she stops by her ex boyfriend's profile on social media and sees him alone, looking sad, left out or not in a confident, happy state of mind, his photo is not going to make her feel jealous and it won't make her feel respect and attraction for him.

4. Jumping all over any signs of interest from her

[image: Jumping all over any signs of interest from her]

Some ex girlfriends will get to the point where they miss their ex boyfriend, even if the break up felt like it was a good idea at the time.

She may be having troubling finding a new guy, she may have already hooked up with another guy and isn't feeling very good about it, or is simply interested to see how her boyfriend will react if she reaches out to him.

[image: Ex girlfriend trying to mess with ex boyfriend's head]

Is he still sitting around missing her day and night? Is she happy and moving on without her?

The ex girlfriend will initiate some sort of contact with her ex boyfriend to test his reaction (e.g. click like on a Facebook photo or status update, comment on something that he's posted to social media, text him, walk over and say hello to him if they work together or attend the same university, etc).

To the guy, it may seem like she is showing interest and is hinting that she wants to get back together. So, what a lot of guys make the mistake of doing at that point is jumping all over her sign of interest, instead of using it as an opportunity to make her feel jealous.

How can you make your ex girlfriend jealous when she shows a sign of interest?

If an ex girlfriend walked over to talk to her ex boyfriend and he wanted to make her feel jealous, he would simply need to convey to her (via his body language, vibe and conversation style) that he is happy without her and is fine to just talk to her briefly. She would need to get the sense that it doesn't matter to him if she talks to him for 10 seconds or 10 minutes; he is fine with or without her.

In an ex girlfriend showed interest in him via social media, he needs to ensure that he doesn't get too excited about it. For example: He posts up a photo where he is having some fun with other people and she clicks like and says, "Great photo!" Many guys will then ruin the opportunity to make her feel jealous by replying instantly or by trying to initiate a conversation in the reply to her comment, or by immediately sending her a private message.

To make your ex girlfriend feel jealous, you just need to click like on her comment or reply with something simple like, "Thanks."

At that point, she's going to be feeling a bit empty. She may begin to wonder why you just said thanks and didn't send any messages after that.

What will she do then?

If she is feeling enough jealousy, she is going to contact you. She is going to want to get some sort of signal of interest back from you to make herself feel better.

BTW: If you need help when you are in contact with your ex, my program Get Your Ex Back: Super System includes all the things that you need to say to her via text and on the phone, how to get her to meet up with you (even if she currently hates you), what to do at the meet up to get her respect and attraction back and how to make her fall in love with you again.

When you get her to respect you and feel attraction for you again (don't worry – that's the easy part), you then need to make your ex girlfriend open herself back up to the love (fairly easy to do) and connect with it again. The love has been there all along, but it has just been pushed into the background.

That is one thing that a lot of guys don't realize about love...

Love doesn't die.

If you and your ex girlfriend did love each other, that love is still there, but it has just been pushed into the background. What's in the foreground are the negative emotions, the painful memories and the negative feelings she experiences when she thinks about you.

Yet, the really cool thing about love and human emotion is that you can actually get her to forgive that, wipe the slate clean and then begin to focus on the respect and attraction that she now feels for you. It really comes down to what you say to her and how you react to her tests when you are attempting to get her back. Once again, all of that is covered in my program.

When your ex girlfriend begins to focus on the respect and attraction that you're making her feel, she then begins to connect to the love that has been there in the background all along. When you use the techniques from my program Get Your Ex Back: Super System you can actually make the love stronger than it was before.

5. Trying to stay in contact with her (and make her jealous) via text, e-mail or chat

[image: Trying to make his ex feel jealous via text, e-mail or chat]

When you're attempting to get your ex girlfriend back, the only time that you should be contacting her is when you are trying to arrange a meet up.

Any other contact via text, e-mail or any other text based social media platform is potentially detrimental to your chances of getting her back. Why?

According to many studies conducted by psychologists and social scientists, anywhere from 70-93% of communication between two human beings is body language, tonality and other non-spoken forms of communication (e.g. vibe, behavior). So, if you are texting your ex, all she has from you is the text.

She can't see your body language, she can't hear your tonality and she can't look at you to assess your vibe and energy in the moment. All she has is the text...even if you are adding in smiley faces, emojicons or stickers in an attempt to make yourself appear happy, confident and loving.

So, what does she do?

Well, she does what she has to do and that is to GUESS.

She has to guess at what sort of body language and tonality you'd be using and how you'd be behaving if you were saying that sort of thing to her in person.

In most cases, where a guy is trying to make his ex girlfriend feel jealous, it's because she currently doesn't see him in a positive light. She most-likely perceives him to be insecure, clingy, desperate, an asshole, untrustworthy or in some other negative way.

When she gets a message from her ex boyfriend, she has to guess what state of mind he was in when he sent it. What is behind the text that you are sending her? How are you really feeling?

You may be including a smiley face or pretending to be happy by texting her in a relaxed, easy-going and positive way, but what's really going on in your mind? What are your real motives for sending her the message? Are you just trying to make her feel jealous that you're happy without her, or are you trying to stay in contact with her in the hopes that she changes her mind?

What should you do instead of trying to make her jealous via text or e-mail?

Only contact your ex if you are attempting to set up a meet up. It's at the meet up that you can get her to feel and experience you in person. You can get her to feel respect and attraction for you in ways that she's never felt before.

6. Using the No Contact Rule to completely avoid contact

[image: Using no contact to hopefully make her jealous]

Sometimes, when a guy doesn't contact his ex girlfriend, she will start to feel a bit worried and confused about why he isn't contacting her. That may then cause her to feel a bit jealous as she wonders why he has been able to move on so easily, while she is still sitting around thinking about him. So, she then may decide to call him or contact him in some way.

However, if she calls him up and experiences the same old guy with the same type of insecurities and underlying issues that caused her to break up with him in the first place, it's not going to make her want to get back with him. Instead, it will simply why she broke up with him in the first place and she may then want to take drastic action (e.g. hook up with another guy) to help herself get over her ex boyfriend even faster.

What a lot of guys don't realize is that they can make their ex girlfriend feel jealousy by calling her up and having a simple phone call right now. Yet, it's not only jealousy that he can make her feel. He can also make her feel respect and attraction for him, as well as a whole host of other compelling emotions that cause her to feel like she wants to see him in person as soon as possible.

What I teach my clients (and this is what works to get an ex back fast) is to not sit around waiting and hoping that, by not contacting her, everything is going to fixed. Why? A lot of times, the woman simply begins to think, "Okay, he's moving on without me...I've got to quickly hook up with another guy to make him feel jealous or to help ease the pain that I'm feeling."

Pushing her into the arms of another man doesn't solve your problem.

You may have made her feel a bit jealous, but you don't have your ex back.

So, what should you do instead?

After watching my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System (10 hours of video that you can watch online in your Modern Man customer account right now or download to a PC, Mac, phone or tablet), you are going to be ready to call her up and make her feel jealous, make her feel respect for you and make her feel attraction for you.

You will also be able to attempt a meet up. Based on hearing back from customers since releasing my program, most guys are able to get their ex girlfriend to meet up with them after the first phone call. Some ex girlfriends need a bit more convincing and it takes another phone call to get the meet up, but it usually happens on the first phone call.

Why? I tested out so many different things to say to ex girlfriends while helping my phone coaching clients. What is now included in my program is the result of a lot of testing with many different women in many different situations (i.e. the ex girlfriend hates him, doesn't trust him, is afraid of him, doesn't care about him, etc).

Using the phone conversation examples from my program will ensure that you can get her to meet up with you. Then, at the meet up, you will be able to make her feel respect, attraction and a whole host of other compelling emotions that make her feel like her life just doesn't feel right without you in it. You don't need to sit around for 30 days or 60 days hoping that she feels enough jealousy to want to meet up with you; you can make that happen right now.

Note: Not all guys are ready to call their ex girlfriend after watching the 10 hours of video from my program. Some guys need a couple of extra days to let all the advice, mindsets and insights sink in before they feel fully ready to call her up and make it happen.

Whether you decide to call your ex immediately or after a few days is up to you, but you don't have to sit around wasting time with the No Contact Rule.

7. Lying about being with other women

[image: Lying about being with other women to hopefully make her jealous]

Being with other women is definitely a way to make your ex girlfriend feel jealous, but you don't actually need to do that to get your ex girlfriend back. You also don't need to lie about having other women interested in you, dating other women or already having had sex with other women.

What sometimes happens is that a guy will try to use the "other woman" lie on his ex girlfriend to make her jealous, but it almost always backfires on him.

He may say to her, "Fine...if you don't want to get back with me, I've already got other women interested. I've been seeing a new girl recently is she's awesome...she's hotter than you" or something along those sorts of lines or in that type of context. Essentially, he's making a last ditch effort to make her feel jealous by suggesting that she will regret it now that he's seeing other women.

An ex girlfriend has a pretty simple and easy response to catch him out in a lie and ruin that little scheme. All she needs to do is say, "Fine...enjoy your life with her then. Never contact me again. Go get stuffed..."

If he then turns around and says that he will dump the girl, reject the other women and declares that he just wants to be with her, she knows that he was just lying to make her feel jealous. At that point, she will lose even more respect and attraction for him as a man.

Then, what the ex girlfriend will often do is quickly hook up with another guy to make sure her ex boyfriend can't make her feel that way again.

So, what should you do instead?

What you need to do is not only focus on making her feel jealous.

Making her feel jealous is definitely something that helps to get an ex back, but it's not the only emotion that you should focus on making your ex feel.

There are many different painful and positive emotions that you can make your ex girlfriend feel that will draw her back to you. If you're only focusing on making her feel jealous and really rubbing her face in it, it can sometimes backfire. She may build up a lot of resentment towards you and want to get back at you by hooking up with a guy, conveying that she's really happy without you or by allowing herself to fall in love with a new guy.

So, you shouldn't try to make her feel that way towards you.

You should focus on making her feel some jealousy, but there are other, very important painful and positive that you need to make her feel. You've got to do it in more of a wholesome, well rounded way, so that she comes to feel that her life just doesn't feel right without you in it.

Suddenly, she's feeling a whole bunch of conflicting emotions all at once. She's feeling painful emotions, she's feeling drawn towards you in a positive way and what happens then (if you use the techniques from my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System) is that she actually gets to the point where she feels like her life just doesn't feel right without you in it. She feels like she needs to have your love in her life.

She starts to feel like if you are not in her life, it just doesn't feel right. It's really cool how it works.

I Welcome You to Try My Proven System For Getting an Ex Back

[image: Make your ex girlfriend jealous and get her back]

If you want a proven system that is going to work for you, then I welcome you to try my program.

I hope you've enjoyed this article. Make sure that you don't focus on using tacky or "rub it in her face" methods of trying to make your ex jealous.

You can actually make your ex girlfriend feel jealous in very subtle ways; in ways that cause her to feel painful and positive emotions towards you.

You can also make her feel more love, more respect and more attraction for you during the process of getting her back.

That way, when she is back with you, she wants to be in a relationship with you even more than she did when she was first in a relationship with you, because the feelings are so much stronger now.

How Can I Get My Girlfriend Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a guy asks me, “How can I get my girlfriend back?” he usually feels like it is going to be a long and difficult road to get another chance with her.

Yet, from all my experience, most guys get back with their ex girlfriend fairly quickly and easily. How do they do it?

1. They identify the real reasons for the break up

Most women won't give you the real reasons why they are breaking up with you and will instead say vague things like, “I think we need time apart” or “I need space” or “I just don't feel the same way anymore.”

Women don't want to give you all the real, more deeper reasons why they are breaking with you because they don't want to teach you how to be a man. A woman wants a “ready made” man that she can respect, feel attracted to and love.

She doesn't want to have to train you to become the man she wants or have to wait for years in the hope that you change and become a better man than you are now. So, she will simply say that it's over and try to move on.

Guys who are able to get their girlfriend back start by identifying the real reasons for the break up. When he knows the real reasons (the woman will rarely, if ever share those reasons), he is then able to make the correct changes to his behavior and how he treats her. When she notices that happening, she naturally begins to open herself up to being with him again or at least meeting up with him in person to catch up.

2. They fix their issues and improve themselves

When a guy has been insecure, needy or desperate with his girlfriend, she will be repulsed and turned off by that. Why? Women are attracted to the strength in men and turned off by the weakness.

If a woman's ex boyfriend still hasn't fixed his issues (e.g. neediness, insecurity, lack of purpose in life, anger issues, jealousy, etc), then it won't feel right to get back with him. If she lacks experience with relationships or has been finding it difficult to get a new guy, she may get back with her ex temporarily, but will then dump him once again when she is ready.

If you're wondering, “How can I get my girlfriend back?” you have to start wondering, “How can I fix my issues and improve myself so that my girlfriend actually wants me back?”

There are 5 more steps that guys take to get their girlfriend back, which I explain and provide the solutions for in my 7-step program called, Get Your Ex Back: Super System. If you're serious about wanting to get your girlfriend back, I recommend that you watch the program.

As long as you go through my program and begin to fix your issues and emotionally improve yourself, you will feel ten times better to your girlfriend when she next interacts with you.

Her negative emotions towards you right now are not fixed into place permanently. Emotions change all the time and when she is presented with a new and improved version of you, it's only natural that she will feel differently. From there, you need to make her feel understood by acknowledging where you went wrong in the relationship. If you want to learn exactly how to have that conversation with her, I recommend that you watch Get Your Ex: Back Super System.

For now, let's have a look at some common reasons why relationships break up in the first place...

Common Reasons for Break Ups

There are many reasons why a woman will break up with a guy (I explain more than 70 of them in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System), so finding the real reasons that apply to your girlfriend is critical if you want to get her back.

Many of the reasons (not all) come down to the fact that women no longer feels attraction and respect for him and because of that, she has fallen out of love with him. Watch this video for more info:

Here are three common reasons for break ups. Do any of these apply to your break up?

1. Taking her for granted

[image: Taking her for granted]

The love, respect and attraction that you and your girlfriend feel for each other is something that needs to be taken care of, nourished and built over time.

Some guys are taught that lesson by their male role models as they grow up and become a man. Yet, most guys don't get that type of wisdom passed onto them and are left to try to figure women out on their own. Without that knowledge, a guy may assume that once he gets a woman into a relationship, he basically owns her and she has to stay with him.

Yet, as you have experienced, your girlfriend can and will leave if she isn't satisfied with how you've been treating her or behaving around her and in life. To keep a woman in a relationship with you, it is essential that you deepen the love, respect and attraction between you rather than taking it for granted and thinking that she won't ever leave.

2. Being needy or clingy

[image: Being needy or clingy]

On the opposite side of taking a woman for granted, some guys get too invested in their woman and become needy or clingy.

Examples of this can include:

- Constantly calling or texting her.
- Regularly needing her to reassure you that she loves you and wants to stay with you.
- Constantly avoiding hanging out with friends or working on your life goals just so you can spend time with her.
- Feeling as though you need her to feel good about yourself. When she isn't around, you feel sad, lonely or lost.

Why do those behaviors turn a woman off?

Women feel respect and attraction for men who want them, but don't need them 24/7. If you always need to be around her, it makes her feel like she has to take care of you emotionally, which is a huge turn off for women.

Additionally, she wants to be the one who is always thinking about you, calling you and wanting to be around you. Being in that position allows her to become consumed by her love and emotions for you, while you stand up strong and become a bigger and better man each and every day of your life.

3. Putting her in the position of power

[image: Putting her in the position of power]

Contrary to what TV sitcoms, TV drama shows, music videos and Hollywood movies would have you believe, a woman doesn't want to "wear the pants" in a relationship. Regardless of how intelligent, strong and amazing a woman is, she still wants a man to be a man.

She doesn't want to feel as though she has to lead you around or take on the role as "mother" or "big sister" for you. She wants you to be stronger than her (mentally and emotionally) so she can sometimes relax into being a feminine woman. If you force her to take on the masculine role, she won't feel like a real woman and will not enjoy being around you.

Are You Serious About Getting Your Girlfriend Back?

[image: I welcome you to try my ex back program]

If you're prepared to learn why your girlfriend really ended the relationship, then you have the right type of attitude that will ensure you get another chance with her. Guys who are just looking for a quick thing to say to their ex girlfriend to get her back don't succeed because getting her back requires that you truly understand where you've been going wrong.

Only when you know the real reasons why she broke up with you will you then be able to make the right changes that will make her feel understood, respect and open to being with you again.

When you meet up with her in person (don't worry "I will teach you what to say to get her to meet up with you"), you will be able to demonstrate to her that you not only understand where she was coming from when she broke up with you, but that you've actually fixed those issues and improved yourself.

When she sees that and hears what you say next (the conversation examples I provide in my program), she will suddenly feel like her life doesn't feel right without your love in it. She will feel immature if she remains stuck to her idea of wanting to be broken up. Getting back together will actually make her feel GOOD about herself and that is how you need to make her feel if you truly want to get her back.

Love Letter to Your Ex Girlfriend: Mistakes to Avoid

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your girlfriend has broken up with you and you're having trouble getting her back, you may be considering sending her a love letter or e-mail to hopefully convince her to give you another chance. Yet, is it actually a good idea to send her a letter or will it reduce your chances of getting her back? To answer that question for you and more, here is what I'm going to cover in this article:

1. The only time when you should ever send your ex girlfriend a love letter or e-mail.
2. Why a love letter to your ex girlfriend is usually a bad idea.
3. Mistakes to avoid when sending your ex girlfriend a love letter or love e-mail.
4. An example of a love letter that will turn an ex girlfriend off.

1. The Only Time You Should Ever Send Your Ex Girlfriend a Love Letter or E-mail

[image: Love letter to your ex girlfriend]

If your ex girlfriend has stopped answering your phone calls and text messages, has unfriended you from Facebook, unfollowed you from Instagram, Twitter or other social media accounts and won't see you in person, then sometimes, your only remaining option is to send her a written letter or e-mail.

If that is the case for you, then it is okay to send her a letter or e-mail. However, you should only send her a letter or e-mail as a last resort. Sending her a love letter is usually a bad idea and should not be used as your main way of trying to get her back.

Here's why...

2. Why a Love Letter to Your Ex Girlfriend is Usually a Bad Idea

According to most studies conducted by psychologists and social scientists, body language and tonality can make up anywhere from 70-93% of communication between two human beings.

What does that mean?

When you send a love letter to your ex girlfriend, she has to guess the state of mind that you were in when you wrote it. She has to interpret what sort of vibe you'd be giving off if you were saying that type of thing to her in person. She can't hear your tonality and she can't see your body language, so she has to guess.

In most cases, a guy's ex girlfriend is going to be thinking about him in a negative light. She will have a perception of him as being needy, insecure or desperate, rather than happy, confident and independent.

So, when she reads his love letter, it will almost always make her feel turned off because she will assume that he's being needy, insecure and desperate.

Think about it...

What does your ex girlfriend currently think about you? Does she think of you as being a confident, masculine, emotionally secure guy who could have other beautiful women if he wanted to, but wants her back because he loves her? Or does she perceive you as an insecure, emotionally weak guy who needs her back because he feels lost or lonely without her?

When a woman receives a love letter from her ex boyfriend, she usually isn't going to be thinking, "Wow! This is coming from my confident, masculine, emotionally strong ex boyfriend! I feel so turned on."

Instead, she is likely going to be rolling her eyes and thinking, "Hhhhâ€¦|he's such a wussâ€¦|this letter is so corny. Why is he being so sensitive and romantic? We're not even together. I told him that I don't feel that way about him anymore."

Making her think about you in a negative like that is not going to help you get her back. It simply makes her want to distance herself from you further.

Additionally, when getting an ex back, the cold, harsh truth is that your feelings don't really matter so much to her.

What matters is how she feels, not you.

You need to focus on making her feel respect and attraction for you, rather than making her feel annoyed that you are potentially being selfish by focussing on your own emotions.

How can you make her feel respect and attraction for you? One easy way is to let her see that you've moved beyond the level that you were at when she broke up with you.

Watch this video for some examples of what I mean...

Of course, sometimes, sending a love letter to your ex girlfriend is your only available option because she won't answer your calls, texts or see you in person.

So, let's have a look at some mistakes to avoid when sending her an e-mail or letter...

3. Mistakes to Avoid When Sending Your Ex Girlfriend a Love Letter or Love E-mail

1. Trying to convince her to give you another chance

[image: Love letter to your ex girlfriend]

You can't convince a woman to take you back via a love letter, e-mail or text message. It just doesn't work.

To get her back, she needs to be able to feel understood by you, feel respect for you and feel attraction for you...and that is mostly going to happen when she talks to you on the phone or in person.

There's only a certain amount of respect and attraction that she can feel for you via a letter or e-mail, but it's very minimal compared to what she will experience when talking to you on the phone or when talking to you in person.

Why? On the phone for example, you can use your confident, easy-going and masculine tonality and vibe to make her feel attraction.

She doesn't have to guess as what type of mood you are in because she can hear it. She can hear your confidence and love coming through the phone via your tonality and how you're using your words.

This is why I also don't recommend that guys try to text their ex back.

Texts are great if you are using humor to bring her guard down and then get her on a call, but if you're texting back and forth like a friend or worse, trying to convince her to give you another chance – it's just not going to work.

So, if you absolutely have to send a love letter to your ex girlfriend, simply aim to get her on "one last phone call" (don't worry, it won't be the last. It's just the way to get her on the phone).

Then, when she is on the phone, make her feel understood and make her feel respect and attraction for you. When you are able to do that, your ex girlfriend will then be open to meeting up with you in person.

At the meet up, you can then make her feel intense respect and attraction for you when she sees how much you've changed.

2. Being needy and protective

If an ex girlfriend isn't answering his phone calls or responding to his texts and has completely blocked him from social media, a guy will sometimes get into a needy state of mind.

He will e-mail her, message her or send a letter asking why she is ignoring or avoiding him.

Yet, asking her those sorts of questions are pointless because they do not make her feel any respect and attraction for him. Accusations or questions about why she is avoiding you should never be included in a love letter, e-mail or text.

Accusations or needy questions do not provide you with any benefit in terms of getting your ex girlfriend back. They simply drive her further away from you.

Why? Women are attracted to the strength in men and turned off by the weakness. So, when you show any sign of emotional weakness to your ex, it actually makes her lose respect and attraction for you.

3. Pleading and begging for another chance

[image: Love letter to your ex girlfriend]

When it comes to picking up a woman for the first time, a woman doesn't want to feel like she's doing a guy a favor by giving him her phone number or hooking up with him.

When it comes to getting an ex back, this is even more important. To get an ex girlfriend back, you have to make her feel respect and attraction for you and use certain techniques to make her feel like her life doesn't feel right without you in it.

You can't permanently get an ex girlfriend back by getting her to take pity on you because you feel sad or lost without her.

Some women who lack experience with relationships or who have been having trouble finding a new guy, will sometimes get back with a begging ex boyfriend temporarily, but she will then break up with him when she feels emotionally strong enough or finds a replacement guy.

To get an ex girlfriend back for real, you have to make her feel like she wants it, rather than making her feel like she is doing it as a favor to you or to make you feel better.

You have to use the break up and getting back together as a chance to cement you and her together as a strong, loving couple, rather than trying to get a temporary chance with her due to begging and pleading.

If you have made the mistake of begging and pleading for another chance, don't worry.

Just laugh it off and focus on showing her the new, improved version of you who isn't as emotionally insecure or needy. Let her see that you have rapidly matured after the break up and are way past the level you were at when she broke up with you.

In most cases, a woman won't run back into a guy's arms when he shows her that, but she will drop her guard and become more open to interacting with him again.

So, the more you interact with your ex girlfriend, the more chances you will have to rapidly rebuild her feelings for you.

Right now, your ex girlfriend is likely in an emotional state of mind where she feels as though she doesn't need or want your love in her life.

Yet, what you need to understand is that you really can actually get her to change how she feels about you.

Humans change their emotional states all the time.

A human can go from HATING someone to really LIKING them and LOVING them, if they change their behavior and how they make you feel.

You may have experienced it in your life with a person (e.g. at university or work) who started out as someone you hated, but they then changed their behavior and how they spoke to you and you instantly began to really like them.

It is completely normal and natural for humans to go through different emotional states. If your ex girlfriend currently hates you right now or doesn't want to see you again, that doesn't mean you can't change how she feels.

The reason why is that love never dies.

When you and your girlfriend broke up, she may have felt like she didn't love you anymore, but what really happened is that the love (which never dies) simply got pushed into the background of her mind.

Instead of being in a state of love with you, the way you treated her or behaved in the relationship caused her to be in a state of resentment, dislike or distrust around you.

Yet, that doesn't mean she will be permanently in that state of mind. You can get her to forgive you and give you another chance.

When a woman begins to feel respect, attraction and trust for you again, she naturally begins to connect with the love that was in the background.

The love comes to the foreground of her mind and she begins to be in that state of mind around you.

It's actually really cool how it works.

4. An Example of a Love Letter That Will Turn an Ex

Girlfriend Off

Hi Debbie

It's Saturday night and I am alone yet again.

I can't stop thinking about you. The days are long and lonely without you in them.

Why are you answering my calls? Why can't I get through to you? Why won't you give me another chance?

You once told me that you loved me and wanted to be with me forever. Where is that Debbie? Why did you lie to me? I still love you with all my heart and my heart is aching with every breath I take.

Paul

Even though the love letter is short and isn't a long-winded "pity me" rant, it is full of things that will turn an ex girlfriend off.

Essentially, he is demonstrating his emotional weakness without her, which is unattractive. Why? Women are attracted to the strength in men and turned off by the weakness. Showing emotional weakness to an ex girlfriend or a woman you're trying to pick up for the first time ensures that she will feel less respect and attraction for you. You've got to be strong.

The letter is also an example of an ex boyfriend needing his ex girlfriend, rather than making her feel like she needs him. He is basically asking her to do him a favor and take pity on him because he is feeling sad, lost and lonely without her.

That is not how to get an ex girlfriend back.

If you want to get her back, you've got to actively start making her feel something for you when you interact with her via text, on the phone or in person.

If you only have access to e-mail her or send her a letter, then you need to make sure that you also ask her to answer one last phone call from you (don't worry – it won't be the last), so you can then make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you on the phone call.

You can then get her to meet up with you in person, get her to forgive you, get her to begin having strong feelings for you again and guide her through the reconciliation process.

Guys do that every day all over the world and you can do it too.

Don't hide behind a letter and hope that she will say, "Wow! That was so sweet. I've got to take him back" or "Wow! I can see how much he cares. I've got to take him back!"

If you want her back, you have to actively spark her feelings for you so getting back together with you feels good.

You can do that.

Other guys are doing it to get their ex girlfriend back right now and you can too.

4 Reasons Why the No Contact Rule is a Bad Idea

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The No Contact Rule (ignoring a woman for 30-60 days) can work sometimes (e.g. if a woman is unable to find a replacement guy, is inexperienced with love and relationships, etc), but in most of the cases I see, it simply allows the woman time to move on without her ex.

Watch this video to understand why it's usually a bad idea to use the so called "No Contact Rule" and why you should actively begin to re-attract her instead...

If your ex currently doesn't have any feelings for you, not contacting her usually won't reactivate her feelings.

She might get curious and wonder why you are contacting her, but if you haven't changed and don't even know how to re-attract her if she contacts you, she will feel turned off and then continue moving on without you.

Of course, that's not what you will hear if you search around online. A lot of people will suggest that you should use the No Contact Rule for 30-60 days because they have no idea how to actively re-attract a woman.

I do and that is why I don't recommend that guys waste time sitting around and hoping that their woman comes running back.

If you want to re-attract her, here is some free advice to help you get the process started:

Re-attracting a woman works better than ignoring her because most women who break up with a guy no longer have feelings for him.

If the guy ignores her, she doesn't care and simply moves on without him, while he sits around feeling sick to the stomach at the idea of her having sex with another guy and moving on without him.

The No Contact Rule is all based on the hope that your ex might miss you, contact you and then want you back.

Yet, it doesn't work on most women and I know this because I've literally helped 100s of guys to get a woman back and most guys start out telling me that they've been ignoring their woman and it hasn't been working.

What I've found is that, in most cases, a guy should contact his ex girlfriend (wife or fiancé) immediately and then meet up with her in person to re-attract her, rather than letting her move on with her life.

Here are the four main reasons why the No Contact Rule is a (very) bad idea...

1. It allows her to get on with her life, fall in love with a new guy, have sex, etc

Maybe your ex has already met another guy, is in love with another guy or is simply opening herself up to the possibility of being with other men. If you allow her to have that space and she falls into the arms of another guy, that is not speeding up the process of getting her back by using the so-called “No Contact Rule.” Giving her that space just causes more problems for the both of you.

If the new guy makes her feel great emotions, then not contacting her for 30 or 60 days is going to be a bit of a favor to her. Instead of getting her back, you are simply helping her get on with her life and forget about you.

2. It doesn't solve the problems between you and her

The reasons why you and your ex have broken up aren't going to be solved by not contacting her.

For example: If she broke up with you because you were too insecure in the relationship, you weren't enough of a man for her or you weren't committing her and she got sick of that, or you were committing too much to her and needed her way more than she needed you. Not contacting her isn't going to fix those issues that you have.

The core problems between you and her have to be fixed first.

That starts with you really improving yourself and fixing your issues and that isn't something that you need to do over 30 or 60 days using the No Contact Rule. You can quickly (within hours or a few days) fix those issues enough to get her respect and attraction back.

Instead of wasting time with the No Contact Rule, to get an ex back now, you have to contact her and get her to feel respect and attraction for you again.

You've got to make her feel understood and happy to be interacting with you (don't worry – it's easy).

You also need to allow her to get the sense that the real reasons why she has broken up with you have been fixed. If she sees that you still haven't changed or have no clue what to change to get her respect, attraction and love back, then she's just going to move on without you.

When a woman provides her guy with the reasons why she is breaking up with him, she will usually try to keep things very simple and vague. Why?

One of the main reasons is that a woman doesn't want to be a man's teacher in life. She wants him to know how to be a man without her having to teach him.

Additionally, for most of human history and still to this day, a woman could be hurt or even killed by a guy during a break up. So, most women try to give vague or soft reasons (e.g. “I need time to find myself” or “I don't feel the same way anymore. Give me space and we'll see what happens”) to not hurt the guy's feelings too much in case he becomes angry or violent.

3. If she eventually calls you and you turn her off, it will help her get over you even faster

In some cases, the woman will just want to reach out to her ex and contact him.

She may get to a point where she misses him or she may just be curious to see if he is moving on faster than she is. Some women call just to check that the guy is still sitting around missing her and feeling horrible and lonely without her.

If you use the No Contact Rule and your ex eventually does call, you need to make her feel respect and attraction for you on that phone call.

If you turn her off by being insecure or needy, it will turn her off even more and make getting over you even easier. Likewise, if you pretend that you don't care about her and that you haven't been missing you, it will be easy for her to find out if that is true.

How?

Simple.

She just has to show interest in you again or say that she misses you and when you get excited about it, she knows that you were lying about not missing her.

If you haven't fixed your issues and improved yourself, she will pick up on it. If she gets the sense that you still have the same old mindsets and insecurities that caused her to break up with you in the first place, then it simply reminds her that she has made the right decision to break up with you.

So, make sure you don't make your ex feel that way. That is the opposite of what you need to do to get an ex back.

Sitting around and hoping that not contacting her will fix things is a bad idea. To get an ex back for real, you've actually got to prepare yourself for when you call her or for when she contact you. When you get in contact, it is critical that you make her feel respect and attraction for you at that point. If you don't, it will simply help her move on even faster.

4. Getting a call from her doesn't mean that she wants to get back with you

Getting back with her means that she's back in your arms, you're kissing her, you're having sex with her again and she's telling you that she loves you and wants to be with you.

However, using an amateur technique that people talk about on the Internet called the "No Contact Rule" to get her to call you, is not actually how to get an ex back.

To get an ex back, you've got to get her respect back, get her attraction back and then you've got to meet up with her in person.

At the meet up, you've got to re-attract her and then escalate to kissing, sex and the relationship.

While all that is happening, you also have to turn the tables/change the dynamic between you so that she gets out of the old emotional state that she's been in where she has been thinking that she doesn't need you, she doesn't want to be with you and she doesn't want your love.

You have to get her into a new emotional state where she feels like she does need you, she does want your love and that her life just doesn't feel right without you in it.

So, don't think that the No Contact Rule is going to solve all or any problems that you have with getting your ex back.

It may cause your ex to call you, text you or send you a message on Facebook, but if your reply or response gives her the sense that nothing about you has really changed and she is still feeling the same old feelings that caused her to break up with you before, then you won't be getting her back.

Is There Any Time When the No Contact Rule is Helpful?

Yes.

Don't get me wrong.

I'm not saying that the No Contact Rule is absolutely crap and that there's no value in it at all, because sometimes it can help.

For example: If a girl doesn't have much experience with relationships or she doesn't feel as though she's very pretty and is worried that she will find it difficult to get another guy, or if she actually has been finding it difficult to get herself a replacement guy.

In those cases where the woman is feeling worried, insecure and regretful about the break up and is panicking that her ex will move on faster than her and it will make her feel even worse than she does now, then she will reach out to the guy.

Sometimes, that will result in them getting back together, but it's almost always just a temporary thing that she is doing to keep him close while she tries to find another guy or become confident enough to be without him.

When a woman gets back with a guy because she is worried that he will move on faster than her, she will usually reel him back in by saying that she's made a mistake, loves him and wants to be with him forever. He will then relax and feel like everything is back to normal again. When she sees that he's back with her fully, she will say that she feels confused or will create a fight between them that leads to a break up.

She will say that she's dumping him and never wants to see him again, to which most guys will respond to by being needy, insecure and desperate.

What will happen then? Well, given the fact that women are sexually attracted to a man's emotional strength and turned off by his weakness, his response to her will allow her to feel turned off by him and move on with less worry and regret.

This is why it is so important to fix your emotional issues (e.g. insecurity, neediness, fear of commitment, fear of true love, etc) before you get in contact with your ex.

Why You Shouldn't Try to Text an Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

There's a fair bit of advice online about "texting your ex back" where you just have to send her some sort of magical text message and she will come running back to you.

Yet, it isn't true.

One of the reasons why it isn't true is that according to many scientific and psychological studies, body language and tonality makes up anywhere from 70-90% of communication between two human beings. One study concluded that words only make up 7% of communication, with body language being 55% and tonality contributing 38% to the communication.

So, when you send a text message to your ex girlfriend, fiancé or wife, she actually has to guess the state of mind that you're in. She has to try to interpret what sort of vibe you'd be giving off if you were saying that to her in person. She can't hear your tonality and she can't see your body language, so she has to guess.

In most cases, when it comes to getting an ex back, the woman is going to be thinking about the guy in a negative light. She will be thinking about him as being needy, insecure or desperate, rather than happy, confident and independent. Based on her current negative perception of her ex, the woman will almost always feel negative emotions towards her ex when he texts.

So, most of the time that she gets a text it will turn her off because she will have an automatic assumption that you are coming from a place of emotional weakness. Women are attracted to the strength in men and turned off by the weakness, so if she gets the sense that you're feeling insecure, desperate or needy in any way, it actually pushes her further away from you.

The Texting Rule

What I teach is a proven way of getting an ex back that I have developed by helping hundreds of phone coaching clients over the years. When it comes to texting, I have one simple rule that you must follow:

You should only text your ex if the purpose of the text is to get her on the phone to talk to you.

You actually have to get her on a phone call with you so that she can hear your emotional strength via your tonality and how you are talking to her. Women are attracted to the strength in men and turned off by the weakness, so when you get her on the phone, she has to hear and feel your confidence coming through the phone. She has to feel and experience your emotional strength.

On the other hand, if she is picking up insecurity, neediness, desperation or any other emotional weakness that is going to turn her off and push her away from you. So, the process of getting an ex back is really about fixing your issues (e.g. neediness, insecurity, fear of commitment, fear of true love, etc) and improving yourself first before you actually get in contact with her.

Fixing your issues enough to impress her and get her respect and attraction back doesn't take long at all. On the Internet, you will find a lot of amateur advice suggesting that you shouldn't contact her for 30 days or 60 days and during that time, try to recover. It's really crappy advice because that gives her plenty of time to move on, start having sex with other guys and fall in love.

If she's already got a new guy, it simply allows her time to get deeper into that relationship and move on without you. What I advise you to do is go through my 10 hour video program (that you can watch online or download after purchase) called Get Your Ex Back: Super System. During the 10 hours of video, I will help you fix your issues and improve yourself right away.

When you finish watching my system, you should be ready to contact her and begin the rapid process of getting her back. Not every guy is ready to contact his ex girlfriend (fiance or wife) by the end of the system. Some guys are extremely needy, extremely desperate and extremely insecure and they may need a couple of days or a bit more time before they are ready to contact her. However, the majority of guys that I've helped have been able to contact their ex right away.

The advice that I will provide you with includes text messages that have the sole purpose of getting her on a phone call. It doesn't matter if she's currently not answering your text or phone calls. The text message examples that I provide have been tested to ensure that whatever the problem is being you and your ex, no matter how much she hates you or even if she has said to you, "Don't ever contact me again!" – she will get on that phone call that I suggest you and her have.

Then, on the phone call, you can get her respect and attraction back by using my techniques and conversation examples. There are certain things that you need to say to get her to begin lowering her guard and opening herself up to you and being in love with you again. Then what you need to do is meet up with her in person and get her to feel even more respect and attraction for you (don't worry – it's easy).

At the meet up, you also need to make her feel sexually attracted to you again by the way you use your body language, the way you behave and the way you talk to her and look at her. Don't worry – it's easy and I will show you exactly how to do it. Without sexual attraction, there is no reason for a woman to want to be in a romantic relationship with a guy. Sexual attraction must be at the foundation of your relationship with her and you really can spark that up again.

Get Your Ex Back: Super System

If you are looking to use a proven process to get your ex back for real, I welcome you to try my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

I help new guys to successfully get their ex back every day and I hope to helping you today also.

No matter what time or day of night it is for you, simply purchase my program now and you will have instant access to watch it online or download it to your computer, tablet or phone.

5 Things That Every Guy Must Do When Getting an Ex Girlfriend, Fiancée or Wife Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Just because she has broken up with you now, it doesn't mean you can't get her back...even if you've already broken up several times before.

I've lost count of the number of guys I've helped to get an ex back, even when the woman has HATED the guy. Human emotions can and do change and when you use the correct approach while getting her back, she will naturally begin to feel the types of emotions that will make her WANT to get back with you right away.

If you want to get your ex girlfriend, fiancée or wife back quickly, here's what you need to do:

1. Don't Waste Time With the No Contact Rule

[image: Using no contact to hopefully make her jealous]

You can get your ex to instantly feel respect for you again, simply by the way you talk to her, apologize for what happened and explain what you now understand about the current situation between you and her.

You can also get her to meet up with you "one last time" (don't worry, it won't be the last!) and then re-attract her at the meet up.

The "one last meet up" technique has worked for almost all of my clients on the first phone call. Other clients have needed to ask for it two or three times before she eventually agreed.

So, do not waste any more time with the No Contact Rule.

Sure, not contacting does get some women to call, but a call from her does not mean that you're getting her back.

When she doesn't hear from her ex, a woman will usually call to check that he is still desperately hoping to be with her, which then allows her to continue moving on with the break up more easily.

Why? Women aren't attracted to neediness and desperation in men. She will use the guy's desperation and pain to feel even more turned off by him and more able to move on.

[image: Don't waste time with the no contact rule]

If you wait too long to contact her, you run the risk of her having sex with another guy or falling in love with the new man she is already with.

Rather than wasting time with the amateur "No Contact Rule," you've got to get her on the phone right away (don't worry ââ I will teach you how to get her on the phone, even if she currently hates you or has asked that you don't contact her).

On the phone call, you've got to shock her (in a positive way) out of the current state of mind that she is in and make her feel happy and curious to meet up with you "one last time."

Don't worry ââ it won't be the last meet up ââ that's just way to get her to the meet up. You then need to get her respect and attraction back at the meet up, which I will also teach you how to do if you are interested to learn.

2. Don't Text Her Unless You Want to Arrange a Meet Up

[image: Only text if you're attempting to get her on a phone call]

According to countless studies by psychologists and social scientists, anywhere from 70-90% of communication between two humans is comprised of body language and tonality.

So, when you send a text to your ex, she has to GUESS at what tonality you'd be using, what your body language would be like and how you'd be feeling at the time if you were saying that to her in person.

If your ex currently hates you or perceives you to be needy and desperate, how do you think she'll judge your text?

Will she guess that you are being confident, charming and cool or will she guess that there's a needy, hurting guy behind that text? In most cases, your ex will look at the text in a negative way and assume that you're in a bad place emotionally without her, which will then make her feel more repelled by you rather than attracted to you.

When getting an ex back, texting should ONLY be used to get her on a PHONE CALL so you can then arrange a meet up. Sending your ex any other texts will usually turn her off and make her want to distance herself from you even more.

So, don't send her pointless texts! Texts to an ex only have one purpose...

Only send her a text if the purpose is to get her on the phone to TALK to you, so you can make her feel respect and attraction for you and then arrange a meet up.

On a phone call, your ex will be able to hear your confident, emotionally secure tone of voice (which will attract her) and get a sense of how emotionally strong you are without her.

If you aren't feeling emotionally strong without her right now, I can help you with that today.

My 10 hour video program called, Get Your Ex Back: Super System devotes 2-3 hours of video training to make sure that you are 100% confident and emotionally strong, so that when you do call or see your ex, she feels attracted to you and respects you, rather than feeling repelled by you.

Her renewed attraction and respect for you is so important.

If you call or meet up with your ex and she feels turned OFF by you, rather than feeling attracted and a little bit turned on, then you are pushing her away.

You have got to draw her into you and make her WANT to see you in person. When you see her in person, you have to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and sexual attraction for you.

3. Understand What She Really Wants You to Change About Yourself

When a woman breaks up with a guy, she will rarely tell him the real reasons she is doing it. Why? For most of human history (and even to this day), women have been hurt and even killed for breaking up with a guy.

Women have a natural instinct to let a guy down as softly as possible and give him a feeling of hope that if he just keeps his distance, she may change her mind.

For example, she might say, “I need space for a while” or “Maybe we will get back together again in future” or “Give me a chance to think about it. Don’t contact me for a month. We’ll talk again then.”

In the meantime, she will quickly try to find another man who can protect her or she will at least try to kiss or have sex with another guy to get you out of her mind.

To get an ex back, you need to discover the real reasons why she has broken up with you and then make the correct changes to your behavior, conversation style and how you treat her.

If you are interested to learn exactly how to make those changes right now, I recommend that you watch Get Your Ex Back: Super System. When you watch my program, you will learn exactly what you need to say and do to prove to her that you’ve changed.

When you know the real reasons why your ex broke up with you, you can make the correct changes that will then make her feel understood and happy to be interacting with you again.

On the other hand, if you don’t know exactly what she really wants to change, you will most likely be offering the wrong things to her during conversation.

For example: A woman might want her ex to be more of a man around her, but he is saying, “I promise that I will treat you better. I will do anything” which isn’t what she actually wants from him.

You’ve got to be offering her what she really wants, not what you think she might want.

If you are trying to get her back with the wrong reasoning, she will feel as though you don’t understand her and it will make her feel even more repelled by you.

4. Fix Your Issues and Improve Yourself

To get an ex back, you can’t say to her that you WILL change. You actually have to make the changes and then let her see that either in person, via your online presence on social media sites (Facebook, Instagram, etc) or apps (Whatsapp) or use the text messages that I provide with my Get Your Ex Back: Super System to convince her to get on a phone call with you.

It doesn’t matter if she’s blocked you from Facebook or if either or you don’t use social media; simply get in contact with her either via e-mail or text message using the examples I provide.

If she isn’t responding to you now, it’s because you are sending the wrong type of messages to her. You’ve got to send her a message that makes her feel understood and gives her the impression that you’ve already changed the things about yourself that she broke up with you for.

A woman who lacks experience with relationships or who can’t find herself another guy, will sometimes miss her ex and give him another chance even though he hasn’t changed anything about himself. Yet, she will then dump him once again when she realizes her mistake.

On the other hand, a woman who has a lot of experience with relationships or who has other guys interested (or already hooking up with her), will rarely, if ever, give an ex another real chance unless he changes things about himself that caused her to break up with him.

5. Don't See Any Other Guys as Competition

Women are not attracted to insecure jealousy, so no matter how much she tries to make you jealous or how insecure you feel (e.g. because she's already with another guy or interested in another guy), you cannot show that at all.

Women are attracted to confidence and turned off by insecurity. You have to know that you are better than any other guy she could meet.

Your ex then has to see that or hear it in your voice when you talk to her. She has to get the sense that other guys do not make you feel insecure. They are nothing compared to you.

If you don't have that type of confidence in yourself, then let me give you that confidence as you go through my proven to work program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System. I've already helped thousands of guys to get their ex back and I would be honored to help you too.

Get Your Ex Back: The 3 Stages She Went Through Before Breaking Up With You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

One of the secrets to getting your ex back is to understand the process that she went through, before breaking up with you.

She went through three, basic stages:

1. She lost respect for you as a man

A woman will lose respect for a man if, for example, he is very bossy around her at home, but then when he's around other people he changes his behavior.

All of a sudden, he is Mr. Innocent and is nice, he is respectful and possibly even submissive around her (i.e. he lets her boss him around a bit) or others, especially alpha males.

When she notices that he is submissive or nice and respectful in front of others, but bossy or domineering at home, she will begin to lose respect for him.

Another reason why a woman will lose respect for a man is when he regularly whines or complains about life and seeks pity from her.

Instead of being a man about it and accepting that life comes with the good and bad, the easy and the difficult, he becomes emotional when life gets a bit challenging.

The woman then ends up feeling stronger than him, mentally and emotionally.

She may even feel like more of the 'man' in the situation, or like a mother figure to him, which is not what women want.

She will then lose respect for him because he's not really a man in her eyes.

It doesn't matter if he is 18 or 58, if he has the mind of a boy (i.e. seeks pity and help from mommy when life gets tough), then he isn't a man in a woman's eyes.

He might be in a man's body, but he still has the mind of a boy, which is not what makes a woman feel respect for a guy.

Another time that a woman will lose respect for a man is when he hides from his true potential in life, especially behind her and the relationship.

For example: He doesn't have much purpose in life.

He has dreams about what he really wants to do, but he's not really going after it because he's afraid of failure, rejection or challenge.

He then hides behind her and the relationship instead of taking on bigger things in life and becoming a bigger and better man.

If you flip that around, this is one of reasons why a woman will maintain her respect for a man.

For example: If you're the sort of guy who has purpose in life and you're rising through the levels of life to reach for your true potential as a man, it is very admirable and will gain and maintain the respect of women and other people.

As a man, you've got to go after what you really want in life with determination, passion and unrelenting confidence in yourself.

Another example of a woman losing respect for her man is where a man doesn't follow through on his promises.

As a man, you can stick by your word for three years, but that won't mean anything to a woman if during those three years, you failed to stick by your word on a few occasions.

If you haven't followed through on your promises because of emotional or mental weakness, it causes a woman to lose respect for you as a man.

Of course, there are times when you make a promise to a woman where it's impossible to follow through because of unforeseen circumstances and that's okay.

However, when it is possible to follow through on your promise, but you don't because of laziness, fear or weakness, a woman will lose respect for you.

Essentially, women respect men who are strong enough to stick by their word, even when things get challenging.

If you crumble when life gets tough, it doesn't make a woman feel safe to be around you.

2. She lost attraction for you

In the first stage, she lost respect for you and when that happens, a woman will begin to pull back her love and affection to test how the man will respond.

When a woman begins to withdraw her affection and interest and instead became a bit bitchy, annoying or cold towards you, how you respond to that will either cause her to lose more respect and attraction for you or rekindle it and get the spark back.

In most cases, a guy won't understand the woman's sudden change in behavior and will instead respond in ways that cause her to lose attraction for him. Such as:

- Being insecure, jealous or protective.
- Showing signs of self-doubt.
- Accusing her of wanting to leave you, being interested in other guys, etc.
- Losing touch with your masculinity (e.g. becoming very emotional, storming out of a room in a huff, throwing a tantrum, etc).
- Trying to please her in anyway you can, in the hope that she won't leave you.

When a woman begins to sense that desperation and a lack of confidence in her man, she then loses attraction for him.

Why?

Confidence is fundamental to a woman's sexual attraction for a man.

When you're out there meeting women for the first time or 10 years into a relationship, it's the same thing – women feel attraction to the man's confidence.

Confidence is the most important thing that you need to have as a man, if you want to be successful with women.

You need to be confident when you first meet women, you need to be confident on a date, you need to be confident during sex and you need to be confident in a relationship.

It's always essential and absolutely necessary to maintaining a woman's feelings of attraction for you.

Women don't feel attraction to a man's insecurity.

Insecurity doesn't turn women on or give them the feeling of safety that they get when with a confident man.

A man's insecurity doesn't make a woman feel like being feminine; it makes them feel like they have to be masculine and take care of the guy.

A man's lack of confidence makes a woman feel like she is stronger than him, which is not attractive to women at a fundamental level.

3. She then started to fall out of love with you

When a woman gets to a point where she doesn't respect her guy, she doesn't feel much attraction for him, she then starts to wonder, "Hang on...what am I doing in a relationship with him? Is this love? Is this what it's supposed to feel like?"

When she begins to question her feelings for him and realizes that she doesn't respect him and doesn't feel attraction for him, her commitment to the idea of being with him starts to fade away.

She then begins to open herself up to either her career/studies or to other men.

She wants to get the feeling of love, happiness and fulfilment from other areas of life.

Emotionally, she begins to disconnect from him because she realizes that she can't get what she's looking for (emotionally) with him.

To get your ex back, you've actually got to get her to go through that process again.

You begin by getting her respect back, getting her attraction back and then getting her to fall back in love with you.

Thankfully, when you follow that process properly, it's only natural that the woman will want to give the relationship another chance.

Advice to Get Your Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The best advice to to get your ex back is to focus on triggering her feelings of respect and attraction for you again.

When that happens, she will naturally begin to reconnect with her old feelings of love for you. I've already helped hundreds of guys to successfully get an ex-girlfriend, fiancé or wife back and I am ready to help you right now.

Watch this video to understand where guys go wrong when trying to get an ex back and what you can do instead to be successful...

As you will discover from the video above, your ex is really only going to take you seriously when you are able to make her feel the type of respect and attraction for you that she feels will justify giving you another chance.

For example: If a woman broke up with a guy because he wasn't enough of a man for her (e.g. he was insecure, needy, lacked purpose in life, etc), she's going to need to feel as though that has now changed.

[image: Advice for talking to ex on the phone]

She will pick up on how much he has changed by listening to what he says, how he says it and how he responds to what she says and does.

Respect, Attraction and Then Love

[image: Respect, attraction and then love]

To get your ex back, you need to go through a process with her of rebuilding her respect, attraction and love for you.

Using my techniques, you can get respect back on a phone call and then get her respect and attraction back when you meet up with her.

[image: Meet up advice to get your ex back]

When she experiences those renewed feelings of respect and attraction for you, she will then open herself up to loving you fully again. When that happens, it's pretty much guaranteed that you will get back together.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

One of the best pieces of advice to get your ex back is to not waste time with the No Contact Rule. If you look around online, most people will tell you to ignore her and move on and then hope that she comes running back.

However, that only works for about 10% of cases. 90% of guys need to get in contact with their ex and make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction over the phone, rather than waiting around and hoping that she doesn't move on.

Why Did She Break Up With You?

[image: Clingy boyfriend]

Something about your behavior, attitude, way of thinking or actions must have changed to cause your ex to fall out of love with you.

Relationships end for many different reasons (I explain the 70 reasons in my program Get Your Ex Back: Super System), but a woman falls out of love with a guy after she loses respect for him and then loses her feelings of sexual attraction for him.

It's a standard process that happens, no matter what the very specific cause is for the break up.

So, the question is: What did you do to make her lose respect and attraction for you?

1. Did You Become Needy or Clingy?

When a guy becomes insecure and behaves in a needy, jealous or overly possessive way around his girlfriend, his insecurity and clingy behavior becomes a complete turn off. Why? Women are sexually attracted and turned on by the emotional strength in men and turned off by the weakness.

If you make your girlfriend the center of your world and abandon your own dreams and ambitions as a result, you become less sexually attractive to her because she senses that you're hiding from your true potential as a man.

When she notices that other men are pushing forward in life and making their woman proud, she will look at you and wonder why you are still in pretty much the same position in life as when she met you. She may not know why she is feeling turned off, but she will feel turned off.

Instinctively, a woman knows that she should be with a guy who loves her, respects her and wants her in his life, but doesn't NEED her.

If a woman gets the sense that a guy needs her for his emotional security and sense of identity, she begins to feel like more of a mother figure to him, which is a sexual turn off.

A woman wants to be able to feel as though she is with a man that she can look up to and respect, not look down on with pity or disgust because of how emotionally weak he is.

Did you Take Her For Granted?

At the opposite end of the scale, it's not unusual for guys to slip into taking their girlfriend for granted in a relationship.

This might mean slipping into patterns of behavior that lead to her feeling that her contribution to the relationship isn't valued.

For example: Making a habit of changing plans at the last minute or adopting an attitude of, "We can do that some other time."

If you the plans she makes with you aren't important to you, it makes her feel as though you're expecting her to just hang around until it's convenient for you to fit her in. A woman doesn't want you to devote 100% of your time to her, but she also doesn't want to feel as though you don't like spending time with her at all.

Taking her for granted can also include:

- Putting her down (e.g. constantly teasing her about her weight) or picking on her and then expecting her to just put up with that bad treatment.
- No longer looking at her as being your sexy girlfriend and spending more time masturbating to porn, rather than saving up your sexual energy for her.
- Thinking that she will stick by you for life just because things felt good at the start between you.
- Expecting her to cook, clean and take care of you, even though you don't give her much love, attention and respect.

Did You Put Her in Charge?

A woman still wants to have her say and to be heard, but she wants her man to lead the way to a better life for the both of them.

She wants you to make her feel safe and protected by having a plan for your life and then following through on it with unrelenting determination.

She wants to be able to see that no matter how challenging life gets or how hard it is to achieve your ambitions and goals, you keep pushing forward as the strong one in the relationship.

This allows her to relax into being your woman, instead of being your “partner” who has to behave like a half-man, half-woman around you.

On TV, you will often see people referring to their spouse as their “partner” and if you hear that term often enough, you will think that it's the right way to talk about a woman that you're in a relationship with.

It's not.

She's not your “partner,” she's your woman.

To maintain the sexual attraction in a relationship between a man and a woman, you have to be masculine and allow her to be feminine.

If you get her to behave like one of your male buddies, to think like a man and essentially hang out with you in a neutral way like a “partner” in life, then the sexual attraction between you and her will be cancelled out.

It's just how nature works.

Just like there needs to be a positive and negative for magnets to be attracted to each other, there has to be a masculine and feminine for humans to be attracted to each other.

If you want to keep a relationship together with a woman, you have to be a masculine man and allow her to be a feminine woman (e.g. girly, free to be emotional and irrational at times, etc).

You can't expect to be half a man and for her to remain excited and happy to be with you as your friendly “partner” in life. In the past, a woman would put up with an unhappy relationship for life because divorce and breakups were seen as shameful, but not in today's world.

Regardless of the BS that random people say on TV, the truth is that a woman wants to feel like her man is the one in charge.

That does not mean you need to boss her around, decide on everything and do all the work.

It's easier than that.

All you've got to do is be the one who is responsible for the direction you and her are heading and the one who protects her when life gets challenging. If you do that for a woman, she will be 100% more loving, affection and devoted to you than if you forced her to be half a man for you instead.

Things to Say to Get Your Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

What to actually say to get your ex back depends on the stage of the break up that you're going through.

For example: What to say when she's breaking up with you, what to say to her the next day, a couple of weeks after a break up, a couple of months after or what to say if you and her have already broken up many times before.

So, what I'm going to do now is give you examples of what to say in each of those situations.

1. When she is breaking up with you

[image: What to say when a woman is breaking up with you]

When she is breaking up with you and says, "I don't want to be with you any more. It's over" what can you say to her?

In that situation, the best way to handle it is to not beg, plead or try to convince her to give you another chance. Instead, you should just accept it.

For example: "Okay, I accept your decision. If that's what you want, then that is what we'll do."

Of course, if you're one of the guys who have already broken up with your woman many times before, you've probably already played that card. You've probably already accepted the break up during a previous split with her.

[image: What to say when she is breaking up with you]

The technique of accepting the break up will usually work once or twice, but it's not something that can be relied on to always work every time you and her break up. The first or second time you try it, a woman will usually miss you and send you a text or call you and say that she misses you.

Yet, what if you've already played that card with your ex, or you can't do that because you and her have been broken up with for a while? Let's look at the example of things to say to get your ex back...

2. If you speak to her the next day

[image: Speaking to an ex the day after a break up]

If you speak to her the next day on the phone or in person, the best thing to say is, "Hey, we've broken up now, but at least we can be friends" and let her see that you're not chasing after her or begging for another chance.

A better way to approach the conversation with a woman after a break up is to talk about the mistakes you've made and apologize for it, without asking her for another chance.

For example: A guy was dumped by a woman because he was insecure, too protective, too jealous, needy and clingy.

So, what he can say is talk to her in a way where he's not trying to get back with her, but he is just going to show her that he understands where he went wrong and the reasons why she has broken up with him.

[Smile and say in an easy-going manner] "Look...I think the break up yesterday was totally necessary. I mean, I understand where you're coming from...I don't know what I was thinking...I was being overly-protective of you....I really haven't had much balance in life and I was too focused on our relationship and was clinging on to you, instead of going after what I want in life in terms of my career and ambitions, which would have allowed me to lead a more balanced life."

As long as he says something along those sorts of lines, the woman will see that he has ALREADY changed the way he thinks. You should never try to get an ex back by saying that you WILL change or that you're going to change if she gives you time or gives you another chance, because most women simply won't accept that.

Some women (usually young women or women who don't have much relationship experience) will give a guy another chance on the basis that he is promising to change, but most women won't.

When a break up happens, most women will have gotten to the point where they've had enough.

She will have tried to be patient with her guy, but he wasn't able to change and understand what she really needed from him to feel happy and excited to be in the relationship, so she will just say "No" when he asks for another chance based on his promise to change.

What a woman wants to see is that you already have changed and she isn't going to have to be patient with you, or take on the role of teaching you how to be the kind of man she wants. Instead, you've worked it out yourself and are now being the type of man that she can respect.

Of course, it's next to impossible for a guy to fix his insecurities overnight. However, you need to at least give her the impression that you understand why she broke up with you (i.e. because of your insecurity), which will allow her to feel as though you are changing already.

You're not trying to just get her back with a promise of changing and instead, are already aware of the real reasons why she has broken up with you. Based on your more enlightened awareness of the real problems in your relationship with her, you are already going through a stage of transition and growth as a man.

She will be able to see that if you truly do understand where she went wrong. Watch this video for more info...

As you will discover from the video above, there are many subtle and obvious mistakes that a guy can make, which will gradually turn a woman off the idea of being in a relationship with him.

However, if you can stop making the same old mistakes and instead interact with her in a way that makes her feel respect and attraction for you, she will naturally begin to reconnect with her feelings of love for you.

3. If you speak to her 1-4 weeks after the break up

What you will say to her if you speak to her within 1-4 weeks, really depends on the break up reason.

Some guys get broken up with by a woman because they've taken her for granted and really haven't shown her enough love, care and appreciation. Other guys (e.g. insecure guys) get broken up with by a woman because they're not enough of a man for her.

If you took your ex for granted and you see her within 1-4 weeks after the break up, then you tell her about the fact that you now understand that you took her for granted. You don't have to dwell on that subject for too long, but it's important to briefly tell her that you understand that she broke up with you for that reason.

You need to remind her that you accept the break up and then apologize for putting her through what she had to go through. However, the apology should be said in a confident, matter of fact, easy-going manner where you simply apologize for your wrong doing and leave it at that.

Some guys make the mistake of apologizing in a way where they are looking for pity from their ex. For example: "I'm really sorry about what I did...and hopefully I can get another chance with you."

Saying it in that way will make her raise her guard up and not trust your apology. She will assume that you're just saying sorry to make her feel guilty and believe that you have now changed, but you're really just trying to get another chance with her.

You don't care that you hurt her, you haven't learned from the experience and are just saying whatever to get her to give you another chance.

The right way to do it is to be very matter of fact about it, "Look...I just wanted to apologize. For the record – the way I treated you was wrong. You and I used to have something great and I just took you for granted...and for that, I'm sorry. I just want to tell you that. I'm not asking for us to get back together, but I just wanted to tell you that I'm sorry."

What happens then is that she's thinking, "Okay, well...he's not desperately trying to get me back" and she doesn't feel like you're putting any pressure on her, so she will then open herself up to you and the potential of getting back together.

So, that is what a guy who took his girlfriend for granted would say.

How about an insecure guy who got dumped for not being enough of a man for his woman?

He would say (in a confident, matter of fact and easy-going manner), "Hey, I understand the reasons for the break up...I just wasn't enough of a man for you and I understand that. I just want to say for the record that I'm sorry...you deserved a lot better from me...you and I had something great, but I don't know what the heck I was doing. Of course, I understand now why you broke up with me and I accept that. I'm not asking for us to get back together or anything like that, but I just wanted to say sorry. I want to at least give you that because we had something great and what did I do? I became overly-protective, clingy and jealous...I was pathetic...but, you go through life and you live and learn...I stuffed things up with you and I, but hey – that's life."

By saying that sort of thing to her, she will see that you've grown from the experience and are not the same old, insecure guy who is begging her for another chance.

4. After many break ups

Many guys who are trying to get a woman back have already gone through several break ups with her.

In cases like that, a guy needs to really put in some effort to fix his issues and improve himself, because she will have already given him many chances before and she's most-likely at a point where anything he says to her is going to sound like bullshit.

If he says that he understands the reasons for the break up, she's usually going to say something like,

“Well, good for you, but I’m over it” and she won’t care that he’s now worked out where he is going wrong.

[image: Do I still want to be with him?]

She’s only going to really care if he is able to interact with her in a way that makes her feel a strong, renewed sense of respect and attraction for him. He can still tell her that he now understands where he was messing up with her, but she is only going to take him seriously if she can see that, whenever she interacts with him, he is able to make her feel differently.

If she interacts with him and he gets her smiling, laughing and enjoying herself around him, then she will know that he has changed.

However, if the same old negative tension always seems to exist between them whenever they interact, she will know that he’s still the same old guy and doesn’t yet understand how to get her feeling the way that she really wants to feel when in a relationship.

Watch this video for more info...

When a woman has broken up with a guy many times before, she will often be at a point where her friends and family are telling her to move on.

So, to give her the confidence to say to her friends and family, “No, he has changed...it’s different this time” he needs to really make an effort to improve himself and fix the issues (e.g. insecurity, commitment issues, lack of purpose in life, etc) that have been causing problems in their relationship all along.

Becoming a Better Man to Get Her Back

[image: Becoming a better man to get her back]

Whatever your ex’s reasons were for ending the relationship with you, taking steps to learn from your mistakes and become a better man is the right way to get her to see you differently and feel differently about you again.

It’s easy to do when you get the right advice, but if you try to take shortcuts by using amateur tricks that you can easily find online (e.g. avoiding her by using the No Contact Rule), you run the risk of turning her off even more and destroying the remaining love, respect and attraction she has for you.

I’ve already helped hundreds of guys to successfully get back with an ex girlfriend, fiancée or wife and I can help you too. In my popular program called, Get Your Ex Back: Super System I explain exactly what you need to do and say during each step of the process of getting your ex back.

Before we get to those sections in the program, I go through the most important part of the process, which is all about fixing your issues (e.g. insecurities, jealousy, over-protectiveness, commitment issues, etc) and improving who you are as a man (e.g. making you more confident, getting you clear on your purpose in life, making you more masculine, improving your ability to make her feel lucky to have a guy like you, etc).

Getting your ex back is an exciting process that really pushes you to grow as a man.

Many of the guys that I’ve helped have told me that they’ve not only got their ex back, but got promoted at work or made a bunch of great new friends because of their new approach to life. Y

Are you ready to take the next step and finally get her back in your arms?

Getting Back Together With Your Ex

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Getting back together with your ex is essentially a process of:

1. Figuring out what really went wrong between you and her.
2. Fixing any issues you have (e.g. insecurities, jealousy).
3. Becoming more emotionally attractive to her.
4. Meeting up with her in person to let her experience the new you.

In total, there are a total of 7 steps that you need to go through to properly get back with your ex, which I will guide you through if you watch, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

For now, let's have a look at the first point on the list above and help you figure out where things really went wrong between you and her.

As you will discover from the video above, your ex went through 3 very distinct stages before she broke up with you.

To get her back, you will need to guide her through those stages in reverse (i.e. get her respect back, get her to feel attracted to you again and she will then begin to reconnect with the love).

Getting Back Together With Her For Real

It is completely possible for you to get back together with your ex, but you have to do it right.

Watch this video to understand where guys mess up when trying to get back together with an ex...

As you will discover from the video above, your ex will only begin to take you seriously if you begin saying and doing the types of things that will make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

When you do meet up with her and get her to forgive you and experience a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, that is when she will become open to giving the relationship another chance.

[image: Getting back together with an ex woman]

Anything prior to that (e.g. text messaging, phone calls, etc) are no guarantee that you're actually going to get her back. The real reconciliation happens when you meet her in person and get her to feel the type of respect and attraction that will make her feel like it is right to give the relationship another chance.

Making the Relationship Better Than it Was Before

[image: Making the relationship better than it was before]

To get an ex back, you have to make her feel attracted and respectful of you in new ways. Then, when you get the relationship back together, you need to make it BETTER than it was at its best point.

It's easy to do, as long as you don't try to get her back before learning how to attract her in new ways.

For example: If a woman dumped a guy because he wasn't enough of a man for her (e.g. he was too emotionally sensitive, didn't have much purpose in life, she felt stronger than him emotionally, etc), then she isn't going to be excited if he tries to get her back by offering to take her on an expensive vacation, or promises to treat her better.

To get a woman like that back, he needs to fix his issues and learn how to become more of an emotionally masculine man (i.e. emotionally strong, driven, tough, etc). He can't expect her to want to get back together with him even though he still doesn't know how to make her feel the type of attraction and respect that she wants and needs in a relationship with a guy.

Here's the thing...

The start of a relationship is the easy part because a woman will often overlook a guy's flaws (e.g. he's a bit insecure, doesn't really make her feel the type of attraction she wants, etc), but after the initial buzz wears off, she will start to feel like he's not the guy for her.

To keep a relationship together with a woman, you've got to be able to deepen her feelings of love, respect and attraction for you over time, rather than expecting her to stick with you for life because things felt good at the start.

That was how it worked 100-200 years ago when it was shameful for a woman to divorce a man, but not anymore.

In today's world, women are allowed to break up with a guy, hook up with a new guy and repeat that process until they find the right guy for them.

You can be the right guy for your ex, but you have to be prepared to improve in the areas that you are lacking in terms of your ability to attract her.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use it to make your ex feel that you are still the guy for her...

When you and your ex started the relationship, it was most likely a lot fun and you probably also had a lot of great sex.

However, as time went on, you may have let your insecurities get in the way (e.g. you became jealous, clingy or controlling, etc) and may not have treated her in the way she deserved to be treated. After a while, the relationship probably started to feel a bit stale, right?

Here's the thing...

You may now feel as though the love between you and her is DEAD and there is no way to bring it back to life. Yet, as you will discover by watching the video below, love does NOT die...

Your ex can become your girlfriend again, but you have to be willing to try a new approach to getting her to feel respect and attraction for you again.

At this point, you've most-likely already tried everything you can think of, including using the No Contact Rule, but nothing has worked for you.

If you want to get her back for real, you have to be willing to do this properly. You've got to make her feel the type of respect and attraction for you that will justify her giving you another chance. Anything less than that and she almost certainly keep rejecting your attempts to get back together with her.

Are You Making Empty Promises to Her Via text?

[image: Making empty promises to an ex via text]

The most common mistake that I see guys make is texting the absolute crap out of their ex.

He will send endless texts and try to keep in contact with her, convince her to take him back, try to make her jealous, remember the good old times or promise to change if she will just give him another chance.

This rarely works because a woman doesn't want to hear that you might change if she gives you a chance. Instead, she wants to see that you have ALREADY changed by fixing your issues and improving yourself.

If you attempt to speed up the reconciliation process by making all sorts of promises and saying whatever it is you think she wants to hear, without taking any steps to figure out what really went wrong in the relationship, then you're setting yourself up for failure.

You might get her to take pity on you and get back with you for a few hours or a couple of days, but she will eventually see that you're simply offering her empty promises and are still the same guy she had broken up with.

Every promise that you make and break (through failing to understand what it is she really wants from you) will delay the reconciliation process and make it less likely that she'll ever want to get back with you again.

If you're serious about getting back together with your ex, make sure you do it properly. Lazy attempts at getting her back will get you crappy results and you may even ruin your chances with her completely.

Have You Become a Better Man as a Result of the Break Up?

Most guys will answer, "Yes!" to that because they feel as though they've been taught a lesson by the break up and have become a bit better as a result.

However, becoming a little bit better as a man is usually not enough to get an ex back. If you want to get back with her for real, you need to be a LOT better than you were when you and her were at your happiest in the relationship.

Unfortunately, a lot of guys make the mistake of thinking that becoming a better man means giving themselves a bit of a "make-over" in an attempt to boost their physical attractiveness.

Yet, this does NOT work because an ex-girlfriend (fiance or wife) is not going to feel intensely attracted to the way a guy presents himself on the outside. Instead, she will only be truly impressed and attracted if he improves who he is on the inside.

Your ex will only appreciate how good you look if you have gotten her respect back and made her feel attracted to who you are on the inside.

For example: A guy can wear expensive clothes, but his behavior, attitude and way of thinking turns his ex off like it always had. She isn't going to say, "WOW! I need to get back with him because he is now so fashionable" and will instead just realize that he's still the same old, confused guy who doesn't even know what she really wants from him.

Ask yourself, “How can I respark the sexual attraction that my ex once felt for me? How can I get her to fall in love with me again?” ☐ ☐

How to Get Your Ex-Girlfriend to Want You Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to get your ex-girlfriend to want you back is to trigger both painful and positive emotions within her.

Painful emotions include jealousy, loss and regret, while positive emotions include respect, attraction and love.

Before your ex-girlfriend broke up with you, she would have lost respect for you, stopped feeling attracted to you and then fallen out of love with you.

So, to get her to want you back, you need to guide her through the respect, attraction and love process in reverse. While doing that, you also need to be making her feel the painful emotions that will cause her to come running back to you, or at least become open to seeing you again.

First, watch this video to understand the respect, attraction and love process in more detail...

Second, watch this video to understand where guys mess up when trying to make an ex-girlfriend jealous...

Third, watch this video to learn 5 classic mistakes that guys make when trying to get an ex-girlfriend back and what you should do instead if you want to be successful...

As you will discover by watching the videos above, to get your ex girlfriend to want you back, you will need to change the way she currently perceives you.

Just like you might have hated someone in the past (e.g. a person you worked with or went to school with) and then really liked that person later on when they changed their behavior or the way they communicated with you, the same applies to getting an ex-girlfriend to want you back. At the moment, she will have a negative perception about who you are and how you make her feel, but those perceptions about you are not permanent.

You can change the way she feels about you by changing the way that you think about you in her mind. It's basic human psychology and any guy can do it, as long as he has been taught how.

Going Through the Process of Getting Her Back

Changing her perception of you and making her want you back is a step-by-step process that you can go through, which I teach in my program Get Your Ex Back: Super System

First, you need to discover exactly why she broke up with you (most women don't share the real reasons for the break up, so in my program, I explain 70+ subtle and obvious reasons why women break up with guys) and then make the exact changes that she really wants you to make.

For example: Some women will have broken up with a guy because he wasn't being enough of a man for her. Yet, the guy doesn't know that and is saying the wrong thing to her, "I'll do anything. I'll change. I'll treat you better. I'll take you on a vacation. I'll do anything – just tell me what you want."

That's not what she wants to hear though. Telling your ex girlfriend that you will change is not enough; you actually have to fix the precise things that she really broke up with you because of, as well as improve your ability to make her feel the type of love, respect and attraction that she needs to feel to justify being in a relationship.

Top 3 Pitfalls to Avoid

Here are three common mistakes that guys make when they've been dumped and are desperately trying to get their ex-girlfriend to want them back:

1. Being Clingy or Too Possessive

[image: My girlfriend said she needs space]

Ironically, the more desperate you are to get an ex-girlfriend to want you back, the less likely it is that she's going to want you back.

In the movies, the desperate "loveable loser" character will beg and plead and then do something really nice for the girl and get another chance. However, in real life, desperation is not an attractive trait in a man and any hint of desperation in your thoughts or actions will completely turn her off.

In fact, it could be that your relationship became an ex relationship because of "desperate" patterns of behavior such as clinginess or over-possessiveness and unless you can demonstrate that you've changed your ways, she's not going to be open to taking you back.

2. Begging, Crying or Pleading

[image: A relationship falling apart]

Many guys who are desperate to get an ex-girlfriend back, often make the mistake of crying and showing emotional weakness, which is a huge turn off for women.

When this is the case, a guy might try to win her back by sending her a sweet love letter, texting the crap out of her, filling up her Facebook inbox with messages, crying to her on the phone or pouring his heart out in long-winded voicemail messages.

He might even whimper or cry again and say things like, "I'm nothing without you. I feel lost in the world. I need you" not knowing that such weakness and lack of direction is not attractive to women.

To a guy who is behaving like that, he may think that he's doing the right thing by demonstrating how important she is to him, yet it simply makes things worse.

Women are turned on by guys who make them feel like a real woman (i.e. she feels feminine, girly and free to be emotional) and are turned off by guys who make them feel as like a big sister or mother figure.

Essentially, whether a woman admits to your face or not, she wants you to make HER feel girly as a result of how masculine you are.

So, if you're wondering how to get your ex-girlfriend to want you back, you now have part of the answer: Become more of a man than you already are right now. The more emotional masculinity and maturity you can display when you interact with her, the more she will feel respect and attraction for you.

Of course, a lot of the guys who are trying to get an ex-girlfriend back have been blocked by her on social media and she is no longer answering his calls or replying to his texts.

[image: Bombarding girlfriend with texts]

If you're in that situation with your ex, I recommend that you use the techniques from my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Using my approach, she will get on a phone call with you (I guarantee it) and she will agree to meet up with you in person.

3. Trying to Make Her Feel Pity

[image: Giving all of his power away in the hope that she will take pity on him]

Women want to be in a relationship with a man whom they can look up to and respect. Sometimes, a guy who has been dumped by a woman he loves will make the mistake of behaving as though he's going to be lost, destroyed and hopeless without her in his life.

Using that approach, he might be able to make her feel guilty for a few hours or days, but she will eventually realize her mistake and break up with him for good.

Women are attracted to strong men who have the emotional strength required to make a woman feel protected and safe in a relationship. Being able to do that makes a man stand out as a real man amongst other guys and gives him a presence that women feel sexually attracted to and respectful of.

If you want your ex-girlfriend to respect you, it's important that you show her that you're happy, confident and moving forward in life with or without her. However, when you do talk to her in person, you also need to have the emotional strength and courage to also tell her that you love her and still want her in your life.

Don't put on an act of being happy, confident and moving forward in life without her if that isn't true for you. It has to be genuine or else she will see right through it.

If she's unable to determine whether you are putting on an act or being truthful, all she has to do to find out is show some interest in you, say she is thinking of giving the relationship another chance and then when you are excited, she will pull back her interest and say that she changed her mind.

If you were truly happy, confident and moving forward in life with or without her, you would see that as her loss and keep moving on without her. However, if it was an act, you would become desperate and insecure again and try to get her to change her mind.

Getting Her Back For Good

[image: Getting her back for good]

Taking all of the above into consideration, knowing how to get your ex-girlfriend to want you back comes down to showing her (not telling her) that you understand the real reasons for the break up and have already changed.

If you have changed in the ways that she needs you to, then she will naturally begin feeling respect and attraction for you again. If you do that right, she will also begin to reconnect with her feelings of love for you.

If you're not sure how a woman's attraction for a man really works, watch this video for the full explanation...

As you will discover from the video above, you have a lot of direct control and influence over how much or little attraction your ex-girlfriend will feel for you.

If you display the personality traits and behaviors that naturally make a woman feel respect and attraction for a guy, she will feel the attraction and begin to feel like she wants you back or at least wants to meet up with you again to see how she feels when interacting with you in person.

Here are 3 examples of personality traits that naturally attract women...

1. Confidence

Women are instinctively attracted to confident men because this world that we live in is challenging and life isn't always easy and without challenges.

When a guy is trying to get his ex-girlfriend back, he usually displays a lot more insecurity than confidence, which turns his ex off even more.

2. Masculinity

To be able to make a woman feel like a real woman (i.e. feminine, girly, free to be emotional), you need to think, behave, feel and take action in a masculine way around her.

When a guy is trying to get his ex-girlfriend back, he often displays a lack of masculinity by being emotionally sensitive and weak, which turns his ex off even more.

3. Social Intelligence

Social intelligence is essentially your ability to get along effectively with other people.

For most of human history, resources like food have been hard to hunt and gather, so women developed an instinctive attraction for guys who have the social intelligence to make friends with others and be respected by others, especially alpha males.

When times get tough, it's the guys who have the most social alliances who are able to survive the easiest, whereas guys who are outsiders often have a harder time getting by.

Now that we live in a modern society with supermarkets and grocery stores, a woman's instinctive attraction for social intelligence has not disappeared.

Social intelligence is now an important trait that allows a guy to get promoted at work or to succeed in business by being effective at building positive relationships with other people.

When your ex-girlfriend notices that you have become more socially intelligent than you used to be, she will automatically realize that other women would love to be with the new you and she will begin to look at you in a more positive light.

Those are just three of many different ways that I will teach you to help you re-attract your ex girlfriend.

To get your ex-girlfriend to change her current negative perception of you and begin to want you back, she has to experience a renewed sense of attraction and respect for you first. That is something that I can teach right now.

It is very simple, natural and automatic and once you know how to do it, you have that power over her (and other women) for life.

Are you ready to begin the exciting process of making your ex-girlfriend want you back?

Can you imagine how good it will feel when she's finally back in your arms and saying that she loves you?

Can you imagine how proud you will feel of yourself for accomplishing that?

It's an awesome feeling to get an ex back and if you're serious about getting her back, I'm ready to show you the way right now...

I Want My Wife Back: Where Do I Start?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a guy says to me, “Dan, I want my wife back. What can you do to help?” he is usually at the point where he has tried everything he can think of and realized that if he doesn't get some professional help, he may lose his wife forever.

You can get your wife back, but you have to make sure that you don't make the classic mistakes that husbands make, which turn their wife off even more.

Watch this video to understand where a lot of men go wrong and what you should do to get this done right...

As you will discover by watching the video above, if you have truly changed and are now able to make your wife feel the type of love, respect and attraction that she wants in the marriage, she will naturally begin to become open to giving it another shot.

However, if you expect her to come back to you because you want it or because you think she should stick to the vows she made on the wedding day, she's most-likely going to keep saying no.

If you want to get your wife back for real, you'll most-likely need to make some real changes about yourself and get an up-to-date education on modern relationships, being a man and making a woman happy.

In the past, men didn't have to learn about this sort of thing.

A woman had to get married and then stick by her man for life, even if she was unhappy.

Obviously, that is no longer the case in our modern society. To keep a marriage together for life, a man now needs to know how to deepen his wife's feelings of love, respect and attraction over time, rather than taking her for granted.

Personally speaking, I recently got married to my sexy, 22 year old girlfriend (she's 15 years younger than me) after living a playboy lifestyle for about 12 years.

Now that I'm married, I have a tremendous appreciation for how important it is to keep a marriage together for life. The sense of peace, security and happiness that you get from a truly loving marriage is like nothing else.

If you do want to get some professional help to get your wife back, I hope that you decide to learn from me here at The Modern Man.

Why Did She Leave You?

[image: Why did she leave you?]

The first step in the process of getting your wife back is to understand the real reasons (not the vague ones she probably gave you like, “I don't love you anymore” or “I don't know if I want to be married” or “I need time to figure out what I want”) why she left the marriage.

Only when you know the real reasons for the split, will you be able to make accurate changes that get her attention and make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Watch this video for more info...

As you will discover from the video above, you can guide your wife back into the marriage by taking her through the 3-step process in reverse.

First, you need to get her respect back, then get her to feel attracted to you again and when that happens, she will naturally begin to reconnect with the love.

Here's an example...

Let me tell you a story about Steve (Not his real name. I've changed his name for privacy reasons), who was a phone coaching client of mine.

When Steve came to me, he felt as though the situation with his wife was hopeless because she walked out on him saying, "I want to spend some time alone to think about where my life is headed. I don't feel the same way anymore and I don't even know if I want to be married."

At that point, Steve and his wife had been married for three years and although they'd had their fair share of ups and downs, Steve had no idea why she was so deeply unhappy in their marriage.

In his words, her decision to walk away was like "a bolt out of the blue" and it came as a complete shock to him.

He tried calling her to get her to explain herself further, but even though he left several messages every day for the first week, she didn't return any of his calls. Eventually, she left a message on his cell phone saying she would call when she was ready to talk.

[image: Wife no longer answering texts from husband]

Steve was angry because this was HIS wife. He felt a certain level of ownership over her because they'd been together so long and had vowed to stay together for life on their wedding day.

Understandably, Steve was in shock and couldn't eat or sleep properly for more than a week following his wife's message. Making some of the same classic "break up mistakes" as most guys make, Steve then continued to leave messages on her phone begging her to come back.

He pleaded with her by saying, "I can change, just tell me what it is you want me to do and I'll do it," but without realizing it he was actually delaying her call by turning her off even further. Why? The more he called and the more he begged and pleaded, the more attraction and respect she lost for him as a man.

The bottom line is that Steve's wife needed time to think about her feelings for him.

At the time of walking away, she felt as though she had fallen out of love with him, so the more he called and behaved in a desperate and needy way, the less attracted she felt and the more she wanted to distance herself from the negative feelings she experienced whenever he contacted her.

Saying to his, "I can change" was seen nothing more than an empty promise in her eyes. Why? She knew that he didn't yet understand what she wanted him to change and was simply saying that he would change. Yet, what would he change?

Women don't want a man to say, "I will change, just tell me what you want me to do" because she doesn't want to have guide and lead a man through life, like a mother would do for her young son.

Whether a woman is honest enough to admit it or not, she dreams of being in a relationship with a man with confidence, masculinity and the ability to take the lead and let her relax into being a feminine, girly woman.

What Steve needed to do to get his wife back was to rediscover and redevelop the qualities that she loved about him when they first met. He needed to show that he was not only the man she fell in love with, but was now a better man.

Getting a woman back is about changing and actually letting her experience the new, improved version of you. You can't just expect her to take you back when it's going to be the same old thing as before.

Steve was a bit resistant with some of my methods at first (because it really pushes you outside your comfort zone and gets you to grow and transform very rapidly), but he put his trust in me, followed the steps of my system and he then got another chance with his wife.

The last I heard from Steve, he and his wife were happily back together and had planned a weekend away together.

This is a typical type of success story from my clients because the truth is that it is possible to get a woman back. Watch this video to understand why...

As you will discover from the video above, the love that your wife has for you is now simply in the background.

She will only want to reconnect with that love if you can start making her feel the type of respect and attraction she sees as necessary for a marriage to be healthy, happy and relevant.

Missing the Signs

Relationships, marriages included, rarely fall apart out of the blue.

In Steve's case, he thought that his wife had dropped a bomb on him all of sudden by just changing her feelings overnight. However, it turns out that she had given him plenty of warnings verbally, with her behaviour, with her body language and through her actions to try and tell him how unhappy she was.

She wasn't always completely clear and direct about it because women tend to avoid being a man's teacher and will usually just give hints and hope that he changes. It didn't really matter what she said or did, because Steve would completely miss her signs, not worry about them or misinterpret them as her just being a moody woman.

In his mind, she was his wife and she would stick around for life because that's what married people do.

Yet, what he didn't realize is that it's no longer 1905 where a woman felt ashamed to get a divorce or separate from her husband. Unfortunately, in today's world, separations, affairs and divorce are often glamorized by TV shows, music videos and Hollywood movies.

If you want your marriage to last for life, you've got to be able to deepen your wife's feelings of love, respect and attraction for you.

A big part of that is being the type of man that she can look up to and respect, rather than you taking a backseat in the marriage and expecting her to lead the way and be the strong one for both of you.

It doesn't matter how independent, confident or successful (in her career) that a woman may be, she will always yearn to be with a man who has what it takes to make her feel like a real woman (i.e. girly, feminine and free to be emotional).

A woman doesn't want to have to take on the lead and guide a man through life. Instead, she wants to relax into being feminine and not have to worry about taking care of her man as though he's a lost, insecure man who needs her to protect him.

[image: Husband doing housework]

More often than not, the women in TV marriages are the ones wearing the pants and taking charge of everyday life. The henpecked husbands just go along with everything the wife wants because that's what makes her happy or so he thinks and when she's happy, he's happy. This is not what makes women happy.

The more a woman is put in the position of taking charge the less feminine she feels. The less feminine she feels, the less sexual attraction she feels for her man.

When the natural masculine/feminine balance becomes lost in a relationship, the all-important sexual spark also begins to die and then neither party feels truly happy, satisfied and balanced.

Getting Your Wife Back For Real

If you're saying to yourself, I want my wife back, just know this...

You can begin the process of getting your wife back by changing your statement from I want my wife back to, I want to become an irresistibly attractive man that my wife will want back.

The qualities that you will need to get her back can be learned and I can teach you right now.

Are you prepared to do whatever it takes to get your wife back?

Why Do Most Rebound Relationships Fail?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Rebound relationship: The relationship that you have immediately after breaking up with your long-term girlfriend or wife.

Rebound relationships can work, but according to a number of studies, approximately 65% will fail within 6 months.

In most cases, this happens because the new person (the rebound) is simply filling in the gaps that the ex left wide open. However, just because the rebound is filling in those gaps, it doesn't mean that they are a perfect match.

After spending years of my life helping guys to get a woman back after a break up, I've found that a lot of guys get into a relationship by getting lucky and scoring with a woman as the rebound, but when the initial fun and excitement of the relationship wears off, they find themselves dumped.

[image: The spark dying out in a rebound relationship]

Breaking up with a woman you truly love can be one of the toughest experiences to go through in life.

In a serious relationship, you will usually invest a lot of your time, energy and emotions trying to make it work.

Eventually, much of your life may revolve around her and big decisions that you used to make on your own when you were single, are now often made with her buy-in or with her interests in mind.

No matter what happened during the relationship, no matter how good or bad you were together and no matter what caused the breakup; when it is all over, you are usually left feeling battered and bruised.

[image: Woman losing interest in her rebound guy]

If you're like 65% of guys out there, the next relationship you get into (the rebound relationship) will fail unless you put in some time and effort to learn from your mistakes in the relationship and become a better man.

[image: Why did she dump me and move on so quickly?]

If you don't learn from your mistakes, you'll probably meet a girl and she'll seem like she's great for you initially, but it just won't work because she will eventually lose respect and attraction for you (like your ex did) and then fall out of love with you.

If you're interested in learning from your mistakes after being dumped by a woman, watch this video...

As you will discover from the video above, a woman will usually go through 3 stages before breaking with a guy, whether he is a rebound or a man that she naturally fell in love with.

If you want your relationship with a woman to last a lifetime, you have to actively guide both you and her into deeper feelings of love, respect and attraction for each other.

It's not a woman's role to do that for you and if you don't take on that role, most women (not all) will get sick and tired of being unhappy in the relationship and they will leave.

Two Reasons Why Most Rebound Relationships Fail

1. You and your new girlfriend were attracted to each other for the wrong reasons

[image: Rebound relationship failing]

If you are feeling insecure or emotionally weak after a break up, you will naturally attract women who feel comfortable around guys like that.

Women who accept insecure, emotionally weak men usually have low self-esteem and only feel safe being in a relationship with an emotionally weak man who needs her more than she needs him.

Trying to avoid the pain of being dumped by a man she really loves and wants, she will accept a man that she knows isn't good enough for her at the time.

She figures, "If we break up, it won't be a big deal because I'll never truly love him anyway" and if he eventually dumps her, she won't be too concerned because she was never truly attracted to him anyway.

The only way he will be able to get her back is to become emotionally strong and improve his ability to make her respect him as a man and feel attracted to him. If he tries to get her back from a place of emotional weakness, it just won't work and here is why...

As you will discover from the video above, a woman will only be interested in taking you back if you can make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

If you were dumped for a rebound guy, read this: How to Get Your Ex Back When She Has Moved On

2. You're not ready to go from one serious relationship to another

[image: Why rebound relationships fail]

Going from one serious relationship to another is usually a big mistake because you need to learn from the previous experience.

If you have given yourself a chance to fix your issues (that caused or significantly contributed to the break up) and improve yourself (to be even more attractive to women and to be able to keep a relationship together), you will naturally bring all that baggage with you into the new relationship.

This will definitely lead to problems and once again, the relationship will fail within weeks, months or years.

Give Yourself a Chance to Heal, Learn and Grow From the Experience

Most rebound relationships are destined for failure because the guy is still going through the break up process mentally and emotionally.

He will either not be truly himself emotionally (usually to protect himself from getting hurt) or he will be a mess of emotions and turn the woman off. If he doesn't give himself a chance to heal, learn and grow from the experience and instead jumps into a new relationship, he will most-likely fail in that relationship too.

To successfully keep a relationship together, you need to be the type of man that a woman wants to stay with and you also need to choose the type of woman that you will want to stay with, even when she starts getting older.

[image: The healing process]

The healing process consists of several stages, which include the following:

Denial

He can't admit that it's over and keeps calling her trying to keep it together or get another chance, even though he knows that it's over, or he is the one who broke up with her and still can't believe she did whatever she did to make him break up with her.

He may think that all women are like her and that it's all too difficult. Guys like this will swear to never want a woman or sex again and will say things like, I don't care. I'll just stay alone. Women are all bitches and can't be trusted.

Anger

He feels angry about the break up and feels anger at his ex for leaving him or making him leave her. He could also be angry at whatever it was that caused the break up (her mother, friends, the guy she cheated with, etc.)

Bargaining

After the anger stage he may start to plead with her and promise that he will do whatever it takes to change; I can change. Alternatively he may bargain with himself I will never date a woman like that again.

Depression

Next he may feel that nothing will ever change for him and that he will be single and alone, forever. If he thinks like that on a regular basis, he will naturally begin to feel depressed.

Acceptance

He accepts that the relationship is over and that he will be okay. He is now ready to move on with his life and to move on to new and better relationships.

Fixing Yourself First

Grieving and taking some time to process what happened, where you went wrong and what you need to improve about yourself (to avoid it happening with the next woman) is a natural part of healing after a relationship break up.

After you fix your issues and improve yourself, it is important that you get out there and start having some fun with new women.

If you've done it (fixing your issues and improving yourself) correctly, then you will be going out there with confidence and belief in yourself, which will naturally make women feel attraction for you.

However, if you go out there will a bunch of insecurities running through your head as you speak to women, the quality women will naturally be turned off by your emotional weakness.

Getting Your Mojo Back

When you and your woman finally part ways and you realize that you're on your own, you may begin to feel a bit worried that she will be able to move on a lot quicker than you and you may not be able to find a woman like her ever again.

You may begin to doubt yourself and wonder if you have what it takes to approach and attract women out there in the dating scene.

The fastest way to get your mojo and confidence with women back is a two-step process:

1. Fix your issues and improve yourself.
2. Have sex with women who are hotter than your ex.

However, if you just want to get your ex back without having to hook up with new women, then I recommend that you watch and follow the steps from my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Get Your Ex Back Now

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to get your ex back now, you need to show her that you are the guy that she really wants to be with.

How can you do that? You need to begin sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

For example:

To make her feel attracted to you again, you can focus on being confident and making her laugh and feel light-hearted whenever she interacts with you.

[image: Making your ex feel attracted again]

A lot of guys make the mistake of being too serious, concerned or nice when interacting with an ex. You've got to make sure that you're triggering her feelings of attraction and using humor to make the dynamic between you feel more enjoyable and positive, is one of the ways that you can achieve that.

Don't take what she says so seriously. Try to put a positive spin on things, make her laugh by making light of what she is saying and get her to see the brighter side of life. When she is smiling and feeling good, she is feeling attracted to you.

To make her feel respect for you again, you need to begin to truly change the things about you that really caused her to break up with you.

Often, a guy will get dumped by a woman because he hasn't been enough of a man for her, so he needs to show her (via his body language, actions, vibe, conversation style and attitude) that he has already changed and become more of a man.

Watch this video for more info...

As you will discover from the video above, if your want to get your ex back now, you need to focus on making her feel the type of respect and attraction that she needs to feel to justify giving you another chance.

Are You and Her Now Finished Forever?

[image: Are you and her now finished forever?]

When a woman initially dumps a guy, it feels so permanent, but it isn't.

Human emotions change all the time and you can actually make her change the way she feels by changing how you talk to her and how she perceives you. I've already helped hundreds of guys get back with their ex-girlfriend, fiancé or wife...it's actually pretty easy.

You can get your ex back now as well, but you have to do it right and the right way to do it is to make her feel the emotions that will cause her to suddenly want to see you and be with you. That is something that I am ready to help you with right now.

Stop Using Lame Techniques That Don't Work

Unfortunately, the majority of guys who ask me for advice on how to get an ex back have already tried and failed because they are either:

1. Using crappy advice from amateur sites online (e.g. the No Contact Rule where a guy stops contacting his ex and hopes that it makes her miss him and forgive all of his mistakes).
2. Listening to random people on forums, who are just as emotional and confused as they are about how to get an ex back.
3. Reacting badly to the break up (e.g. begging, pleading, trying to convince her to take him back) and makingÂ turning her off even more.

Whatever the case for you, just make sure that from this moment onwards, you do it right.

If you keep ruining her feelings for you and driving her further away, it will make it difficult for you to get her back later. Not impossible, but difficult.

Remember: There is always a chance to get your ex back, if you do it right. One of the quickest ways to learn how to do it right is to learn from the mistakes made by those who do it wrong.

Don't Beg and Plead With Her to Give You Another Chance

[image: Begging and pleading with ex]

A common reaction from guys is to beg and plead to a woman to give them another chance.

A guy will promise her the world, tell her that he will âdo anythingâ to get her back, change her mind or get another chance. As you may know now (possibly after begging and pleading to your ex), women do not find begging and pleading to be an attractive trait in a man and any kind of desperate behavior is a complete turn off.

Desperation makes a guy appear weak and insecure and that state of being in a man is unattractive to a woman. She literally stops feeling sexual attraction for the guy and the more he does it, the more respect she begins to lose for him. Eventually, she closes off the side of her that loved him and makes it unavailable to him.

A woman wants to feel like her man loves her and wants her in his life, but he would be happy with or without her.

A guy like that will accept the break up, go and fix his issues (e.g. insecurity) and improve himself (i.e. improve his ability to make her feel attracted to him) and then arrange to meet up with her so she can feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

However, when a guy falls into the trap of begging by saying things like, âI'll do anything. Just tell me what it is you want and I'll do it. I promise I can change,â then he's not only making himself out to be an emotional wimp in his ex's eyes, he's also highlighting the fact that he doesn't know what mistakes he made.

Why is this important? A woman doesn't want to have to teach you how to be a man. She wants you to know what to do, instead of her feeling as though she has to âmother youâ or âbaby youâ€” through the process.

She knows that unless you know what went wrong in your relationship, you'll likely just keep making the same mistakes and annoying her even further.

You can promise her the world to her, but it won't mean anything to her because she doesn't want to share her world with you if you don't understand her and how to be the man she needs.

To get your ex back now, you need to be an emotionally and mentally strong man who is secure in who you are and what you've got to offer her. You need to be a man who knows what women want, without them having to spell it out for you.

Women don't want to be your leader, your boss or your guide in life. If you need help and mentoring from other men, then get it, but don't ever ask a woman to be your mentor. She does not want to take on that role.

Donâ€”t Put Her On a Pedestal

Some guys get so caught up in the painful emotions of being rejected and broken up with that they begin to glorify the woman breaking up with them. A guy will say, â€”Thereâ€”s no other woman that can compare to youâ€” or, â€”Without you in my life, life is not worth living.â€”

Guys who do this make the mistake of thinking that proclaiming undying love for her and putting her on a pedestal will somehow flatter her into wanting him back. It won't! In fact, it will have the opposite effect. Why?

Women do not want to be your purpose in life and they do not want to be told that without them, your life is worth nothing. That is what actors say in the movies for entertainment purposes, but in real life, women do not want men who are hopeless without them.

Women are not flattered when you glorify them by putting them on a pedestal above you. Using that approach will effectively throw a bucket of cold water over any residual feelings she had for you because it shows you to be a completely weak, insecure and desperate guy who has nothing going for him.

If your life is so empty and meaningless without her, youâ€”re not the confident, masculine man she wants. She wants to be with a man who knows how to make her feel like a woman; being insecure and needy will not make her feel the way she wants to feel.

To get your ex back now, you need to use attraction techniques to make her feel sexually attracted to you again. When you use those techniques on her, she will know that you can make other women feel that way and she will worry about another girl taking her from you.

However, if she gets the impression that you want to get her back because you can't attract other women, it will make her want to be away from you even more.

Women (especially those in a position of breaking up with a guy), do not want to feel as though they are doing the guy a favor by being with him. A woman wants to be in a relationship with a man who makes her feel attraction and whom she respects.

You've got to make her feel that way about you.

It's the only real, proven way to get an ex back and I've already helped hundreds of guys to get their ex back that way via my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Don't Brag and Try to Make Her Jealous

Intentionally bragging about being with other women (or having other women interested in you) in a deliberate attempt to make your ex jealous is an approach that's going to backfire, if you've actually been sitting alone at home feeling sorry for yourself.

Putting on any kind of act and pretending to be something you're not is never a good move because women are experts at reading body language and she's going to know you're faking it. If she can't tell by your body language, she will ask you to show text messages from the woman or might even say, â€œFine. Be with her!â€ and then stick to that to see what you do.

One of the golden rules that we teach here at The Modern Man, is that you never need to lie to a woman. There is so much power in honesty and so much potential weakness in lying to someone.

Of course, if you really have been out socializing with other women and other women are showing an interest in you, she's certainly going to begin questioning whether she made a mistake when she let you go.

It has to be real though. You can't lie about hooking up with other women and think that it will get her back. If she finds out that you were lying, she will break up with you for good.

Doing it Right

To get your ex back now, you need to show her that you've learned from the experience of being dumped and that you've already taken action to become a better man. Telling her that you will change usually isn't enough for most women. Instead, they want to see that you already have changed.

Are you willing to do whatever it takes to get your ex back now?

How to Win Back the Love of Your Life

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to win back the love of your life, you need to:

1. Understand why she really broke up with you, which is often going to be different to the reasons she gave you.
2. Fix your issues (e.g. insecurity) and improve yourself (i.e. become more emotionally attractive to her).

There are 5 more steps that you need to follow after that, which I explain in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

For now, I will help you with the first one on the list above...

As you will discover from the video above, winning back the love of your life is possible when you get her respect back and make her feel attracted to you again.

It Felt So Good While it Lasted

[image: It felt so good while it lasted]

Finding the love of your life and enjoying the relationship is one of the most incredible and rewarding experiences you can ever have.

Most people struggle through relationships for many years before they find their great love, while others lose the love of their life before they've had a chance to develop their relationship skills.

Whatever the case is for you, if you've lost your special woman and want to know how to win her back, then you've have find the right place.

The secret to winning back the love of your life is this: You have to make her feel as though you are the love of her life and that she will be winning by getting back with you. If it's about you winning and getting something from her, it won't happen.

The way to begin making her feel that way is to get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you as a man. When you get her to feel that, she naturally begins to reconnect with the love.

Watch this video for more info...

As you will discover from the video above, you've got to make her feel what she wants to feel. It can't be about you wanting to get her back so you get something from her.

Guys often want to win a woman back so that they can get something (e.g. stop feeling so sad and lonely, have sex with her one last time before breaking up with her, avoid having to get out there and meet a new woman, etc).

However, after helping 1,000s of guys win back the love of their life, I know that women only get back with a guy if they feel as though they are benefiting from the situation. In other words, she feels lucky to be with him.

Reflecting on Where You Went Wrong With Her

[image: Reflecting on where you went wrong with her]

There is almost always a perfectly good reason why a relationship broke up and in many cases, there are more than one reason why it happened.

Before you contact your ex and begin the process of winning her back, it is important to take a good, hard and honest look at yourself and where you went wrong with her.

For example: Did you make any of these mistakes in the relationship?

1. Did you stop being the man that she originally fell in love with?

Did you behave in an insecure or jealous way too often? Did you lose your self esteem? Did you stop being charming and romantic?

2. Did you start taking her for granted and not giving her the level of love, attention and affection she required?

Did you spend enough time with her? Were you there when she needed you? Did you let work, family or friends come between you and her? Did others become more important in the relationship than your woman? Were you distracted with your career, studies or hobby and not paying enough attention to her?

3. Did you continue to connect with her emotionally and physically or did you start to disconnect from her and expect that she'd put up with it?

Did you support her during the tough times? Did you have sex often enough to keep that physical connection there?

4. Did you make her feel like a real woman (i.e. feminine, girly, free to be emotional) when she was with you?

Did you make her feel girly because you were so manly, or did you make her feel like a friend or worse, like your mother?

5. Did you cheat on her?

If so, why? Often, a guy will cheat because he fears that the woman will eventually cheat, so he wants to do it first.

Other times, it's because he's not that attracted to his woman and is looking for a replacement woman before breaking up with her, or because he isn't happy within himself and is looking for happiness in the love and attention from other women.

If you cheated, what was the reason and have you been able to fix that or get over it?

Once you have acknowledged your part in the causes of the breakup, you should then take a look at the relationship as a whole.

Look at the relationship and ask yourself what went wrong...

6. Did you and her simply drift apart?

Were both of you going in the same, ultimate direction in life? Did one person in the relationship grow and become a bigger and better person, while the other got left behind? Did you want the same things? Did one of you want marriage or babies while the other one didn't?

7. Were other people interfering?

Did someone come between you and her; a family member or a friend? Was someone trying to break you up? Was work or studies getting in the way of the relationship?

8. Was there still enough passion in the relationship?

Did you still have sex regularly? Did you let it become too predictable, or hold back from really connecting with her during sex?

Answering all of these questions in your mind right now will help you get a good picture as to what really went wrong between you and her.

Before you really begin to understand how to win back the love of your life, there is another, more important step that you have to take. You have to look at your ex and ask yourself, is she really the love of your life?

- Do you see her as the love of your life because you're both perfect for each other, or because of how bad you feel without her?
- Did she want you to change into someone you didn't want to be?
- Was she someone you could imagine spending the rest of your life with and not getting divorced by eventually? Would she really stick by you?
- Does she have the same long term goals and interests as you?
- Was she spending more time with her friends than with you?
- Did she nag and fight with you a lot?
- Did she cheat on you?

Finally ask yourself this question: If you had 3, beautiful women who were into you and wanted to be your girlfriend, would you still want her back?

If you answered YES then the next question is: What improvements have you made to yourself since she left you?

Trying to get her back because you can't live without her is not going to work. You have to quickly transform yourself into the type of guy that she can't live without. If you want me to guide you through that process, I recommend that you watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

You've got to be prepared to go through a rapid transformation and improve yourself. If you are unwilling to improve yourself, she is probably going to be unwilling to give you another chance.

On the other hand, when you make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you when you meet up with her or talk to her on the phone, she will naturally open back up to wanting to be with you.

Are You Ready To Win Back the Love of Your Life?

Getting an ex back requires that you have a plan that is certain to work for you.

A lot of guys try to guess their way through the process and end up making many of the classic mistakes that ensure she won't want to get back with him.

If you want to use a highly tested, proven to work strategy for winning a woman back, then I recommend that you watch Get Your Ex Back: Super System right now, rather than wasting another day of your life without her in it.

How to Get My Wife Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Marriages or relationships rarely end out of the blue or for no reason, so if you've reached the point of wondering, How to get my wife back, here's what you need to do:

1. Understand what really went wrong between you and her.

[image: What really went wrong between you and her?]

In what ways did you cause her to lose respect and attraction for you and then fall out of love with you? You might be able to immediately think of some ways, but do any of the examples in the video below apply to your situation as well?

2. Fix your issues and improve yourself.

You might be a great man with good intentions when it comes to your wife, but there are going to be things about you that she won't be willing to put up with again.

For example: Some of the issues that can drive a woman away include a man's insecurity, inability to create feelings of love and lack of a deepening connection over time.

Some of the things that a man needs to improve include to get his wife back often include his ability to trigger her feelings of sexual attraction, his attitude and behavior. Essentially, he needs to start being the type of man that his wife feels attracted and drawn to.

Here's how it works...

As you will discover from the video above, it is possible for you to begin interacting with your wife in a way that triggers her old feelings of attraction for you and gets her to experience new and more exciting feelings of attraction.

Finding the answers you need to get your wife back comes down to changing your thought process from, How to get my wife back, to, How do I become the type of man that my wife will want back?

It's not enough to just fix your issues and apologize to your wife. To get a woman back for real, you have to make her see that you've quickly become an even better man than you were before.

After you've worked out where things really went wrong and made an effort to educate yourself on how to be a better man, then you are ready to take the next step and contact your wife to get her to meet up with you.

As long as you follow that basic process, you will have a better chance of getting her to respect you again and then become open to allowing herself to feel attracted and drawn to you again. When that happens, she will naturally begin to reconnect with the love.

Watch this video to understand where men go wrong when trying to get a woman back and what you should do instead if you want to be successful...

As long as you are willing to put in some effort to truly understand where you went wrong and then actually make improvements and changes to your thinking, behavior, attitude and approach to the relationship, your wife will then become more open to forgiving you and reconnecting with her feelings.

Is Divorce the New Norm?

[image: Is divorce the new norm?]

No.

Divorce is definitely happening a lot more than it did in the past, but I believe that marriage is still alive and well and can be an amazing, lifelong experience of love, commitment, personal growth and enlightening, strengthening life experiences.

Personally speaking, I'm now married after living a playboy lifestyle for 10 years.

I believe that marriage still has a place in the modern world and according to most statistics, around 50% of people are able to keep their marriages together for life. However, unlike in the past, today's wives don't put up with an unhappy marriage for life because most people feel as though it's no longer embarrassing or shameful to divorce.

I'm not one of those people.

I believe that if you get married and commit to the vows you have made, then it's for life, unless the other person does something really bad that cannot be forgiven. Apart from that, there is always a chance to talk things through, forgive, make up and get back into loving each other and enjoying the commitment and companionship.

Rather than running away from problems, I believe that love gets stronger and deeper when a couple grows, matures and develops together in a relationship.

Of course, if your wife doesn't believe that you can mature, develop or grow out of the issues you've been bringing into the relationship, then she's not going to be willing to entertain that way of thinking.

The only way to get her to take you seriously at this point is to educate yourself on why relationships break up (I explain 70+ reasons in my ex back program) and then make the specific that are relevant to your marriage and relationship with her.

If you are trying to get her back based on ideas that you think are important to her, you may be right, but you could also be completely missing the point.

For example: A husband trying to get his wife back on the basis that he will listen more, care and take her on vacations.

Yet, what she really cares about is the fact that she has lost respect for him (e.g. because he has been holding back from rising up to his true potential as a man, hasn't followed through on one too many promises, doesn't know how to make her feel loved, etc) and that he simply doesn't know how to get the old spark back between them.

Sure, a vacation may be fun, but if she still doesn't respect him, she isn't going to be able to feel much or any sexual attraction for him. Instinctively, she is going to be turned off by the idea of being with him because he still doesn't know how to be the man she needs.

Why Did Your Wife Leave You?

[image: Regretting the decision to split]

If the burning question in your mind is, â€œHow can I get my wife back?â€ then the chances are high that it was her who made the decision to leave you.

When a wife leaves her husband, heâ€™ll often say it came as â€œa bolt out of the blueâ€ or â€œout of nowhereâ€ and that he didnâ€™t see it coming. Yet, she would have been firing off warning shots for a long time and he either didnâ€™t see them or chose to ignore them because he looked at the vows as being an iron clad agreement.

Either way, itâ€™s unlikely that his wife just woke up one morning and decided to say, â€œIâ€™m leaving youâ€ without first sending out plenty of signals to let him know how unhappy she was with the relationship.

Now that your wife has left you, itâ€™s important that you now become clear on what those signals were and how your response (or lack of response) led to her feeling that you were no longer the man she fell in love with.

[image: Husband leaving his wife]

Of course, sometimes the decision to split is a mutual one and having a trial separation can seem like a step towards figuring out whether thereâ€™s any chance of working things out and getting back together again.

In principle, this seems like a good idea to a couple at the time, but trial separations rarely help to get a relationship back on track.

According to a study carried out at Ohio State University in the US, around 80% of trial separations eventually end in divorce. This figure is backed up by the published findings of several other related studies, with only around 10% of couples entering a trial separation actually getting back together.

Interestingly, research indicates that the couples who do get back together again after a trial separation, generally do so within the first year or so of living separately.

Any trial separation stretching beyond two years is unlikely to lead to reconciliation, because one or both the parties will usually have begun seeing new people already.

With this in mind, the question you must now ask yourself is, â€œWas her decision to leave me something that could have been avoided?â€ and, â€œAm I prepared make changes in myself and my approach to her to successfully get her back into my life?â€

As a man, it is your responsibility to guide both yourself and your woman into deeper feelings of love, respect and attraction. If you leave that task in the hands of your wife, she may try to do it for a while, but eventually it just wonâ€™t feel right to her that she has to mother you and help you to lead the relationship.

She will begin saying, â€œThis just isnâ€™t working. We donâ€™t get along anymoreâ€ or â€œI just donâ€™t feel the same way as I used toâ€ or, â€œI need time to find myself. I donâ€™t know if I want to be married anymore.â€

Yet, other couples are still madly in love 30 years into their marriage, because the man has been able to guide both of them into deeper feelings of love, respect and attraction for each other.

Getting Her Back

When making the decision to become your wife, the woman you married must have seen that you had the qualities she wanted in a man, right?

So, what happened to those qualities and what changed in you to cause her to feel differently about you?

In other words, what happened to you and to the relationship to make her want to walk away? Did you:

- Allow her to take charge and “wear the pants” in the relationship?
- Stop trying to make her feel girly around you?
- Become weak, mentally and emotionally? (Examples: Insecure, jealous, overly-sensitive, etc).
- Stop trying to be attractive to her?
- Take her for granted?
- Consistently behave in annoying ways around her?
- Forget to make her feel loved and wanted?

There are many ways in which a husband can cause his wife to lose interest and eventually want out of the relationship. In fact, in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I identify and explain the 70 different reasons why a woman will break up with a man. I then teach you what you need to do to get your ex back for good.

How to Get My Wife Back: Is it Possible?

Yes.

I Can't Live Without My Ex Girlfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're at a point where you're thinking, "I can't live without my ex girlfriend" then today is going to be a great day for you.

Watch this video to understand what you need to begin doing to truly get her back and give the relationship another chance...

As you will discover from the video above, it is possible to get her to feel respect and attraction for you again. When she experiences that, she will naturally begin to reconnect or at least allow herself to experience the love that she used to feel for you.

From there, you need to get her on the phone and get her to meet up with you in person so you can get her to forgive you, experience a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and then open herself up to giving you another chance.

The Horrible Feeling of Being Dumped By the Woman You Love

[image: Can't go on without my ex]

There's almost nothing worse in the world than the feelings experienced after a break up; when your heart feels like it's been ripped apart, there's a tight knot in the pit of your stomach and you keep telling yourself over and over again, I can't live without my ex girlfriend. I want her back. I will do anything to get her back.

When people start saying the cliché lines of, Don't worry, you'll find another girl one day or There's plenty of fish in the sea, it makes you angry because they just don't understand.

[image: Can't live without my ex]

You just know that she is the one for you and you want her back no matter what you have to sacrifice to achieve it.

Be Careful of Following Someone's Best Guess on How to Get Her Back

[image: I can't live without my ex girlfriend]

When you are in a situation where you are going around saying to yourself, I can't live without my ex girlfriend and are reaching out for people to help you get her back, you will come across all sorts of random opinions and guesses about how to do it.

Friends, colleagues and well meaning relatives are not going to be experts on the subject of how to get an ex girlfriend back, so they will just guess and give you their opinion.

For example: A common piece of incorrect advice is to use the No Contact Rule. Yes, this can cause a woman to want to contact you in some situations, but not all. Even if she does contact you, that doesn't mean you are getting her back.

If she discovers that you're still making the same mistakes you made that caused her to break up with you in the first place, she's not going to be interested in getting back together.

Why Won't She Get Back With You?

[image: I can't live without my ex girlfriend]

It's all good and well to say I can't live without my ex girlfriend, but a break up signifies that there were some pretty serious problems in the relationship.

Before you can move forward with this; whether that means getting over her or trying to get back together with your ex girlfriend, you must be clear about why the break up happened in the first place. Looking honestly at yourself, at your ex girlfriend and at your relationship is the best way to heal and make the changes needed to move forward.

Consider the following:

Were the two of you really compatible? Sometimes two people are attracted to each other initially, but after a while they realize that they are not really compatible in a long term relationship.

Were your goals the same? Often two people in a relationship start off wanting the same things, but they slowly begin going in different directions. For instance, you might have wanted to get married, buy a house, have a baby, move to another country or state, etc, but she didn't. When the goals in a relationship start to be very different, a break up becomes inevitable.

Were you behaving like a real man? Some guys make all the right moves to get the girl, but once they have her they revert back to old behaviors and simply stop trying to keep her attracted or interested.

They might even become submissive and allow her to dominate and control the relationship, which although she might find cute and flattering initially (if she doesn't have much relationship experience), she will eventually realize that she wants a real man.

Were you behaving in any of the following unattractive ways in the relationship?

1. Being insecure

Some guys begin to doubt their good fortune when they find themselves in a relationship with a beautiful woman. They know that they scored her by getting lucky and begin to worry that she'll soon realize her mistake and leave him. His insecurity becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy and she does end up deciding to leave him.

2. Being unable to control your jealousy

This is simply another way to express insecurity. A guy who isn't secure in himself and in his abilities to attract and keep a woman will always feel threatened (jealous) that another guy will take away what he's got.

He'll get jealous if she looks at a guy, talks to a guy or spends time with friends where guys are present. He just can't help thinking that she will probably like the other guys more than him.

Does any of the following apply to you and your ex girlfriend?

1. Were there serious problems in the relationship that you tried to overlook, ignore or avoid?

Issues such as abuse (physical or mental), when not addressed can lead to serious problems in a relationship. Issues of substance abuse, such as drugs, alcohol or even over the counter medications can also cause serious problems in a relationship.

If your break up was caused because these sorts of things, then even considering a reconciliation with your girlfriend before you've addressed and resolved these problems is a bad idea. You've got to fix your issues first. An ex girlfriend will rarely get back with a guy who hasn't fixed his issues, unless she too has the same problems.

2. Did one of you cheat?

Infidelity, whether yours or hers, signifies a deeper underlying problem between the two of you. When someone cheats in a relationship, it means that they are not getting what they need from their partner.

It wasn't an "accident" or a "mistake," it was a sign that the person is insecure about being able to keep the other in a relationship, or that they are simply more attracted to other people and want out of the relationship.

3. Did you stop fulfilling each others needs?

A successful, committed relationship requires a lot of give and take. Each person always needs to feel as though they are getting something valuable (e.g. love, attention, support, etc) from the other person and they also need to give of themselves in return.

If one person stops fulfilling the other's needs, then the purpose of being in the relationship in the first place disappears along with the relationship.

4. Did you stop feeling sexual attraction for each other?

[image: No more attraction in the relationship]

If a man and a woman stop feeling attraction for each other, the relationship turns into a friendship and despite what the politically correct guests on talk shows would like to have you believe, that won't keep a relationship together.

In the modern world, you have to maintain your sexual attraction and respect for each other or else it simply falls apart. It's not the early 1900s where women felt ashamed to break up with a guy. Now, if they aren't feeling it, they usually just decide to leave and get on with their life.

Getting Her Back For Real

Knowing why you broke up is a good place to start. It means that you are being honest with yourself. It also means that you are willing to make the necessary changes to get your girlfriend back. If you are prepared to do whatever it takes to get her back, then let me be the one to help you.

How to Get My Girlfriend to Give Me a Second Chance

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Can you get your girlfriend to give you a second chance? Yes, but how quickly she decides to give you that chance will depend on the severity of the mistakes you've made, which have led to her breaking up with you.

Essentially, you need to at least begin to change the things about yourself that caused her to lose respect, attraction and love for you. If you want a second chance, but are still the same guy making the same mistakes, then she just won't be interested.

Most women give their boyfriend a second chance to get back together, but if he is still the same old guy and hasn't sincerely begun to significantly fix his issues and improve himself, she will usually just break up with him again and close herself off to him.

She'll then try to get on with her life, but that doesn't mean it's completely over. You always have a chance to get your ex back â□□ that's a fact of love and relationships. Why?

Love does not die. When a woman falls out of love with a guy, the love just goes into the background, but it is still there.

To get her to reconnect the love again, you've got to start by getting her respect back and then making her feel attracted to you.

Watch this video to understand how it works...

When you do get a second chance with your girlfriend, make sure that you are mentally and emotionally ready to grab it with both hands and make the best of the opportunity you have been given.

Essentially, you've got to get yourself to a place (mentally and emotionally) where you are much more attractive to her and you're now the type of guy that she can look up to and respect. When you make her feel that, she will naturally begin to reconnect with the love that was pushed into the background.

How Badly Did You Stuff Up?

[image: How badly did you stuff up?]

To begin with, if you have been wondering to yourself, â□□How to get my girlfriend to give me a second chanceâ□□ you should first take a moment to consider the severity of the mistakes you made during the relationship that led to her breaking up with you.

This is a time of introspection and honest self-analysis that will help you understand what you really need to change, fix or improve about yourself to be worthy of regaining her full respect.

If you have already realized where you've gone wrong, have you now truly fixed those things about yourself? Are you asking your girlfriend to give you a second chance, even though you haven't yet changed or improved?

Are you willing to fix any issues you have (e.g. insecurity) and improve yourself (e.g. improve your ability to make her feel attracted to you when she interacts with you, improve your understanding of how to deepen a woman's feelings of love, respect and attraction for you), or do you want to get her to give you another chance without you having to improve anything?

When confronted with the reality of what it takes to get their girlfriend back, guys tend to react in a number of different ways. Can you relate to any of these or has your reaction to the situation been different?

Guy #1: Tries to make her feel guilty for breaking up with him

[image: Trying to guilt trip her into giving him another chance]

Guy #1 thinks that he can buy, beg or even âguilt tripâ his girlfriend back into his life. He will shower her with gifts, text her repeatedly, tell her how awful his life is without her, threaten to hurt himself and behave in all manner of unappealing, unmanly ways.

He will of course not make any effort to truly change or improve himself or correct any of the mistakes that he made when they were together. As expected; his ex girlfriend takes one look at him and decides that sheâs very happy with her new title of âex girlfriend.â

He continues to send her texts and love letters in the hope that something gets through to her. He talks about how much life sucks without her, how much he misses her and how much he loves her.

[image: Bombarding girlfriend with texts]

He hopes that if he can just tell her how deeply he loves her and how much she means to him, she will give him another chance.

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that without first regaining her respect, she's not going to allow herself to feel any attraction for him and as a result, she will remain disconnected from any feelings of love that she once had for him.

Guy #2: Gets her back, but doesn't really change anything about himself

[image: Getting her back, but not changing anything]

Guy #2 realizes that he doesnât want to change who he just to get another chance with her. He canât really be bothered to address any of the problems that led to their break up and heâs happy being the same guy heâs always been.

He tries to call her and possibly even gets her to agree to a meeting. Yet, as soon as she realizes that heâs still the same guy she left, she leaves him again.

Guy #3: Improves himself to hopefully get her back, but suddenly becomes more attractive to other women and decides to move on

[image: Improves himself and then moves on without his ex]

Guy #3 realizes that he has to make some drastic changes about himself to prove to his girlfriend how serious he really is about the two of them getting back together.

He stops being insecure (for example), becomes more confident and charismatic and suddenly notices that many other women are interested in him. Rather than getting back with his girlfriend, he hooks up with some new women, finds himself a new girlfriend and begins to forget about his ex.

Guy #4: Asks random people for advice and ends up feeling lost and confused because of the many different opinions on what to do

Guy #4 will be thinking to himself, “how to get my girlfriend to give me a second chance” and will assume that random people in his life (who haven’t ever helped a guy get an ex-girlfriend back) are going to have the right answer.

Feeling desperate to quickly make a move to get her back before she moves on, he will basically ask anyone who will listen to him, including his friends, bartenders, the waitress at the diner and ask for their advice on ways to get his girlfriend back and give the relationship another go.

Unfortunately, he gets a bunch of inaccurate, guesswork advice (e.g. “Tell her how much she means to you. If she’s the girl for you, she will come back” or “Don’t call her and if she gets in touch with you, then she’s the girl for you”) and proceeds to follow it; with disastrous results.

Why does this happen so often? Simple. Most people simply do not know how to get an ex girlfriend back and while they can provide you with an “opinion” on the topic, they will not have tested out their advice while helping 100s of guys to get a woman back

I’ve spent a lot of time and energy working out the correct way to get a woman back by coaching guys over the phone (via my phone coaching service), listening to all of their problems and working out solutions.

That is why my Get Your Ex Back: Super System isn’t cheap like the millions of ex back ebooks that you will find online.

My systematic approach to getting a girlfriend back has been heavily tested and is proven to work, even in extreme cases where the woman was completely over her ex-boyfriend when she broke up with him.

Rather than messing up your opportunity to get another chance with your girlfriend, consider learning from me. If you do, I will guide you through the simple, step-by-step process of getting her back.

Guy #5: Decides to avoid contacting her and hope that she comes running back to him

[image: Wasting time with the no contact rule]

Guy #5 decides to follow the “No Contact” rule, which was made up by amateur dating experts who are just dishing out the most obvious bits of advice you can find online.

Watch the video below to understand why the No Contact Rule is usually a bad idea. Sure, the No Contact Rule might get her to CALL you to check and see if you’re still missing her, but it almost always does not get the relationship back together.

Unless you make your girlfriend feel the type of respect and attraction that she wants to feel when she calls you, she usually isn’t going to be interested in giving you a second chance.

You might get lucky and get a second chance because she is inexperienced at relationships, but she’ll simply dump you again if you haven’t changed and can’t make her feel what she wants to feel.

Guy #6: Improves himself to hopefully get her back, meets up with her and she is impressed and gives him another chance

[image: Getting a second chance with your girlfriend]

Guy #6 realizes that the mistakes he made during the relationship were pretty bad and he will need to make some serious changes to really show his girlfriend that he respects her and is capable of being the man she was always hoping he would be.

He then gets to work on quickly changing the things about himself that caused her to lose respect, attraction and love for him during the relationship. He makes many positive changes within himself and his life starts to change for the better. Suddenly, his future looks brighter and full of promise.

He then gets together with his ex girlfriend for a simple How are things going with you? chat or catch up and she is totally impressed with what she sees.

He really has changed and she likes the changes in him. SHE wants to get back with him. Success! He is the guy who has managed to succeed where all the others failed.

Getting a Second Chance With a Girlfriend in Real Life vs. the Movies

Not knowing where else to turn for advice or ideas on what to say to their girlfriend to get a second chance, some guys watch Hollywood movies, TV drama shows and even listen to the lyrics of songs hoping to get some useable advice.

You know the type of movies, music videos and TV drama shows that I'm referring to, right?

For example: The guy standing on his ex girlfriend's front lawn at night and playing her favorite song on a guitar or a portable music box, while asking her to come back to him. In the movie, she will see it as romantic, smile and then say yes.

Another one is where the guy throws a pebble up at the girl's bedroom window and she initially seems annoyed, but he then sweet talks her into coming out to talk to him. He then does something really romantic and she says that she will give him another chance.

It happens in the movies, so it HAS to work in real life too, right?

No.

It's simply a movie, music video or TV show designed to entertain an audience by showing life playing out in a weird, unusual way.

In real life, your girlfriend needs to interact with you and see that you really have changed, that you've matured and are now a much more well-rounded man than ever before. When she interacts with you, the level of respect and attraction that you make her feel will tell her whether or not she should agree to give the relationship a second chance.

For her to be sure about saying yes to you, she will usually need to see that you have ALREADY changed the things about you that caused her to lose respect, attraction and love for you in the first place.

Don't tell her that you WILL change and hope she will give you a second chance. You actually have to change first, otherwise most women will simply say no and if she does agree with it, she will just break up with you again anyway when she realizes that nothing has really change.

If you want a second chance with your girlfriend, but are still the same guy, making the same old mistakes, most women just won't be interested.

Unlike a movie, in real life you don't have to be Mr. Perfect and say a whole bunch of perfect, smooth lines to a woman to make her feel respect and attraction for you. It's actually a lot more simple and easy than that and if you don't know how to get her to feel respect and attraction for you again, then I'm here to help you and guide you through the process.

If you've been wondering what the answer to how to get my girlfriend to give me a second chance is going to be for your unique situation, then let me help you.

My proven to work techniques will make her eager to see you again and to give the relationship a second, third or even 10th chance. Yes, I've even helped guys get their ex back in cases where the girl is saying, Go away! I hate you! Never call me again!

If you want to find out how to finally turn your situation around and get a second chance with her, go ahead and watch my program Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Get Your Ex-Girlfriend Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Guys get their ex girlfriends back all the time. It's totally possible and fairly simple when you approach it correctly.

So, if you've decided that you want to get your ex-girlfriend back and are serious about making it happen, there are a few essential rules that you need to know about first.

- Rule 1: She won't want you back for real unless you first make her feel a renewed sense of sexual attraction and respect for you.
- Rule 2: You shouldn't try to get her back before adhering to Rule 1.

Her feelings are what make all the difference when getting her back.

If she doesn't feel attracted to you, then she's not going to feel motivated to want to get back with you.

It won't matter what you say to her, she just isn't going to be willing to listen and care as much as you do because the feelings aren't mutual.

So, if you are serious about getting her back, you must focus on attraction first...

Once your ex girlfriend feels attracted to you again, it is then so much easier to guide her back into a relationship because she has a reason (i.e. she wants to be around you, hug you, kiss you and have sex with you again) to get back with you.

If you're trying to get her back for your reasons (e.g. "I care about you so much" or "I promise to do better. Please believe me and give me a chance") then she's not going to want to listen.

It has to be about her feelings.

When you focus on her feelings, she likes the new you and how you now make her feel.

She then feels like there is still something between you and her that isn't finished.

However, if you don't focus on attraction and hope to get her back by ignoring her, begging and pleading, texting like a friend and so on, then you will be disappointed.

I've personally worked on 100s of ex back cases and the #1 mistake that guys make is forgetting to focus on making her feel attracted again before attempting to get her back.

Opinions You Will Find Online

Since most advice you will find online is not written by experts who have actually helped guys to get an ex girlfriend back, you have to be careful about which approach you decided to try on your ex girlfriend.

I get a lot of e-mails from guys wanting to know how to get their ex back and most of them have already made a whole bunch of classic mistakes that they've learned online, which have pushed their ex-girlfriend further away.

For example: Some websites will say that you must use the No Contact Rule (ignore her for 30 to 60 days), while others will promise you that you can simply text your ex back with a magical text message.

People will tell you to ignore her for 30 or 60 days like that will be a magical number of days that fixes all relationship problems, makes her forgive you and come crawling back.

It doesn't.

So, how much space is enough to give her before you get her back? Watch this video for the answer...

If you give her 3 to 7 days of space, it is more than enough.

Why?

It proves the point that you're not being needy and desperate. She doesn't have to put her guard up and tell you to go away and stop pestering her.

After giving her a week of space, you then need to contact her, re-attract her and guide her through the ex back process.

Is a Break Up the End of Your Relationship With Her?

Many guys who've lost their girlfriend don't realize that most relationships have mini break ups at some stage, but manage to get back together.

It's not unusual and you could say it's almost normal, so a break up is not necessarily the end of a relationship.

Whether or not a break up is the end of your relationship with her really comes down to why you broke up. In most cases, a guy can get his girlfriend to forgive him and give him another chance very quickly. In other cases, it may take some time.

The truth is, you will always have a relationship with her in some form or another.

It's never truly broken up completely because, just by having a history together and having been together in a 1-on-1 relationship, you still have a relationship with each other.

Also, just because she's mad at you right now or turned off by how you behaved, it doesn't mean she won't lighten up to you over the next few days, weeks or months.

When you change how you make her feel (I can teach you how to do that), she will change how she feels about it. It's a natural, normal and automatic response from a human being.

[image: Getting your ex to have feelings for you again]

For example: If someone that you didn't like suddenly changed the things about themselves that you didn't like and instead, they started behaving in ways that you liked, then you would begin to like them!

You've probably had that experience many times in your life already. The same applies to an ex-girlfriend, except it's easier because you are a man and she is a woman and by activating her feelings of sexual attraction and love for you again, she will begin to follow her instincts and want to give it another chance.

Why Did Your Girlfriend Break Up With You?

[image: No feelings after breaking up]

Was it because you took her for granted and you failed to notice the warning signs she gave you, before it was too late? Did you cheat on her or did she cheat on you?

Did you become too needy or too possessive and she ended up feeling as though she needed âsome spaceâ from you?

Whatever the reason, a lot of guys tell me that the break up caught them completely by surprise; that they didnât see it coming and as far as they were concerned everything was fairly okay between them.

Clearly things were not fine and the truth is, most break ups donât âsneak upâ without warning. It might seem like a bolt out of the blue, but only because the guy failed to pick up on the warning signals that she was not happy.

Letâs say your girlfriend broke up with you because you took her for granted. Sheâs going to have fired plenty of âwarning shotsâ to give you a heads-up, but if you failed to notice them, you need to question whether you were as emotionally involved or connected as you should have been.

Letâs say the break up was the result of an infidelity. There can be no denying that being cheated on in a relationship ruins the trust and kills most relationships.

If you were the one who did the cheating, you need to question whether you did enough to repair the damage done by cheating and whether she knows that genuinely donât ever want to cheat on her again.

If she was the one who cheated on you, you need to question whether you were really able to forgive her and move on, or did you struggle to trust her and question her every move after it happened? Without trust, a relationship is destined to fail eventually.

On the subject of trust, if your insecurities âperhaps fueled by her infidelity or your suspicions of her wanting to cheat â lead to you behaving in a clingy, over-possessive way, then itâs only a matter of time before she feels suffocated by the relationship and wants some breathing space.

The more you cling to her in desperation to keep her all to yourself, the more you push her away.

Get Your Ex Girlfriend Back: What Not to Do

[image: Trying to stop a break up by begging]

If your relationship has broken up and you want to get your ex-girlfriend back, you need to be a man that she wants to get back with.

Remember, she was attracted to you when you got together, but due to your behavior she lost respect and attraction for you.

You need to figure out exactly why she lost that attraction. In my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System I explain the 70 reasons why a woman will break up with a man.

Once you know what you need to fix, you can then go about fixing that and you can have a conversation with her to get her to overlook what happened in the past and start afresh with you.

During your relationship with her, chances are that something happened to make her question whether you were the man she thought you were. Perhaps something changed in your behavior or your attitude towards her that made her begin to feel less attracted to you.

This is something that can happen in any relationship from time to time and the questions can lead to mini break ups or almost break ups while the person with the questions looks for some answers.

When relationships manage to get back together, it's because the ex with the questions finds the right answers.

With this in mind, if you want to get your ex-girlfriend back, you need to find the right answers to the questions about why she really broke up with you and what it will take to get her back ASAP.

The guy she fell in love with and wanted to be in a relationship with was a man who "swept her off her feet" and made her feel like a woman.

You were once that man, but did you stop making her feel that way? Did you become less of a man for her, or more of a man than you were when she first met you?

If you've been doing any of the following, then she will have been losing faith that you can be the man in your relationship with her...

1. Begging or Pleading

One of the most common mistakes guys make when they realize their girlfriend wants to break up with them is to plead with words to the effect of, "Whatever it is you want me to do, I'll do it" or, "I can change" or, "Just tell me what it is I did wrong and I'll fix it."

Yet, this is not giving her the answer she's looking for. She wants to see that you understand and change without her having to teach you.

She doesn't want to feel as though she has to take care of you in that way.

She wants to be with a man who makes her feel like a woman, a man who knows how to take the lead in a relationship.

If you're asking her to tell you what you should do, you're telling her that you're not that man. She wants you to know what to do.

Why?

Women are not the men. They don't want to lead us. When you make a woman lead you, it ruins the sexual dynamic between you.

2. Hounding Her With Phone Calls or Messages

If she has decided that she needs some space to find answers, you need to give her that space.

She wants a man who is mentally and emotionally strong, so if you hound her with phone calls, text messages or letters, you are not showing yourself to be that man.

She'll respect you for giving her that space, but any respect she still had for you will quickly disappear if you hound her with phone calls, Facebook messages, Skype calls, text messages, e-mails and so on.

Your desperation to get her to change her mind will only reinforce her doubts over whether you are the man she wants to be with.

She wants a real man who stands on his own two feet in life and who is happy with or without her, so hounding her and pleading with her will only make her see you as weak.

3. Hiding Away From Your Normal Lifestyle

[image: I feel depressed because my girlfriend dumped me]

This is another common mistake that a lot of guys make. Some guys mistakenly think that if they shut themselves off from the world and effectively hide away to lick their wounds, he is demonstrating to her that his life is not complete without her.

A guy like this will think that by not going out and socializing, not talking to other woman and not being happy in general, they will prove to her that she's the only woman for them and they want her back.

Guys, this is a BIG mistake on so many levels! In fact, it is the opposite of what you should be doing to get her back.

If you want to learn my 7 step system for getting an ex girlfriend back, I recommend that you watch Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

This is the only program of its kind in the world.

I tested the methods and techniques with phone coaching clients for a long time before making it available in a program because I wanted to make sure that I provided a solution that is guaranteed to work.

Now that the program is ready, you can watch it right now and start getting your ex girlfriend back immediately.

In most cases, guys are able to get their ex girlfriend back within days or a couple of weeks if it's a really difficult case.

So, don't wait any longer.

Get her back while you still have a chance!

How Can I Get My Ex Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're wondering to yourself, How can I get my ex back? the first thing you need to know is that it is possible (and often very easy) to get an ex back.

As long as you begin saying and doing the types of things that will make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, she will become more open to the idea of getting back together and giving the relationship another chance.

Where Did the Relationship Go Wrong?

[image: Where did the relationship go wrong?]

Relationships can break up for many different reasons, but here are some classic ones that you might identify with.

Did You Take Her For Granted?

One of the biggest relationship mistakes guys make is to slip into taking their girlfriend (wife or fiancé) for granted. Many times, this is not something the guy does intentionally, but the pressures of everyday life can lead to him forgetting to pay her the attention she needs to feel loved and valued in the relationship.

A classic example of this is failing to take a genuine interest in the efforts she makes to look good for you. She perhaps asks for your opinion on which outfit she should wear, and while this might seem unimportant to you, it means a lot to her because women know that their appearance is what we men are attracted to the most.

Giving her a stock standard reply each time like, Yeah, looks good honey may seem fine to you because you may not care too much about fashion or looking good, but it means a lot to her. Chances are you think she looks beautiful in everything, but not taking the time to pay attention to things that matter to her will cause her question whether you actually care at all.

Another example is letting her down or changing your plans at the last minute. Let's say you were planning a quiet night in together watching a movie – an activity that she really enjoys because it's quality time together – but you then change your plans at the last minute because you and some friends decide to hang out at a cafe or restaurant until late into the night.

You might not see it as a big deal because you and her can watch a movie at home some other time, but it is a big deal to her because you're choosing to put other people before her.

Obviously, plans do need to change at the last minute from time to time, but if you've slipped into breaking your promises on a regular basis, you've slipped into taking her for granted and expecting her to just be there whenever it's convenient for you.

Unlike in the past where women would just put up with a bad husband (they rarely had boyfriends back then), these days women will break up with a guy for not making her feel how she wants to feel in a relationship. Women get a lot of influence from pop singers, TV, movies and even the government who support single mothers.

The message that women get these days is not the same as it was 100 years ago. They're not necessarily being told to stick by their man through thick and thin. In most cases, they're being told to leave a guy if he isn't up to scratch.

2. Did You Become Clingy and Possessive?

Clearly, not paying her enough attention will lead to her feeling taken for granted and potentially ending the relationship as a result, but paying her too much attention can actually be just as damaging. A lot of guys who contact me for advice and ask, "Dan, how can I get my ex back?" often then explain how they can't understand what happened because they worshipped the ground she walked on.

One guy who wrote to me (I later helped him get his ex back via my phone coaching service) said:

"Dan, we did everything together. She said that we were soul mates. She would say I love you every day, but then all of sudden she just said that she no longer felt the same way. I couldn't stand to be apart from her for more than a few hours when we together, so being broken up now is killing me. Please help!"

To help this particular guy, one of the first things I explained to him was that women don't want a clingy guy. He asked me why and I explained that women are attracted to guys who go after their true potential in life and do not hide from the world behind a relationship.

He admitted that he'd stopped focussing on his career and hadn't been seeing his friends much at all. He was basically just seeing her everyday, for the duration of their two year relationship.

To keep a relationship together, you need to keep a balanced life going for yourself and for her. It can't all be about seeing each other. Living in each-other's pockets and avoiding the rest of what life has to offer can lead to clingy, overly-possessive behavior.

For example, if you don't have any serious hobbies or interests outside of the relationship, or you don't spend enough time in the company of your friends without her, there's a danger that you will begin to feel jealous of any friends she chooses to spend time with or feel resentful of any time she spends taking part in activities that don't include you.

Clinging to her in this way and being "needy" in terms of wanting to spend every waking moment with her is not the romantic turn on you might have been led to believe through watching romantic comedy movies. In the real world, most women just want a real man and they will keep dumping guys until they find one.

She Needs to See That You Have Already Fixed Your Issues and Improved Yourself

Okay, so having figured out where you might have gone wrong in your relationship, you're still going to be asking, "How can I get my ex back?" right? The simple answer to your problem is to become the type of guy that she wants back. How are you going to do that?

Well, you're going to have to show her that the problems or issues she had with you in the relationship no longer exist. It's not good enough for you to say that you are improving and behave in the ways you did before; you actually have to have already changed.

She needs to see by interacting with you in person, on the phone, via text or FacebookÂ that you have already learned from the mistakes you made in the relationship and you have become a better man as a result.

When she sees that, she will become open to the idea of getting back together because it will be good for her too. From there, you need to say and do very specific things to get yourself another chance and then keep the relationship together.

She Wants You to Be More of a Man Than You Were Before

When a woman gets back with a guy, she doesnâ□□t want a guy who takes her for granted, she just wants a guy who genuinely pays attention to her and takes a sincere interest in the things that are important to her. However, this doesnâ□□t mean being a guy who focusses all of his energy on her and hangs on her every word.

Being clingy and overly-possessive suffocates a relationship and it makes you a needy, desperate guy in her eyes â□□ a guy she can no longer respect and a guy she no longer feels sexually attracted to.

So what kind of guy does she want? She wants a man who knows how to make her feel like a woman; she wants a man who naturally leads the way in a relationship by creating the ideal relationship dynamic, allowing her to feel protected, cared for and totally feminine.

She wants a man with strong alpha male traits; a confident man with true masculinity, because that makes him a man she can feel a deep, instinctive and lasting sexual attraction for.

How to Get Your Ex-Girlfriend Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret of how to get your ex-girlfriend back is to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Before she feels that, she won't care that you really miss her and want her back. An ex-girlfriend will only feel a strong urge to get back with a guy if he starts making her feel respect and attraction for him again.

Watch this video to understand the process that your ex went through before breaking up with you and what you need to do to get her back...

Can You Really Get Her Back?

When I first started helping guys to get an ex girlfriend back, I didn't even know that it would be possible.

A break up seems so final.

The woman almost always says that it's over forever and there's no chance if getting her back. Yet, time after time, I see guys getting their ex back...and it's actually a lot easier than most people think.

Here's why you can get her back...

Can you see how it works? If you are serious about getting your ex-girlfriend back, then let me help you. I've lost count of the amount of guys who've contacted me to say that they've gotten their ex girlfriend, fiance or wife back.

When you use the right approach, she feels differently and opens up to the idea of being with you again. All you need to do then is meet up with her (I provide instructions on how to get her to meet up with you) and then use my techniques at the meet up to make her feel attracted to you and respectful towards you once again.

After that, there are specific things that you need to say and do to properly reconcile the relationship and all of that is explained in my program. If you are willing to do what it takes to get your ex girlfriend back, then don't waste anymore time.

Are You in the Right Emotional State to Attempt Getting Her Back?

[image: Are you emotionally ready to get her back?]

One of the most important things that you need to do to get yourself ready to get an ex-girlfriend back is improve your emotional state of mind. You need to get to a point where you are happy and confident without your ex because that is what will make her feel attracted to you and feel respect for the fact that you're so emotionally strong and mature.

If you are currently feeling like crap without her, that isn't going to be attractive to her. If you talk to her on the phone or meet up with her in person, she will pick up on the fact that you're not happy without her and need her in your life.

There's nothing wrong with wanting a woman in your life and feeling happy when is in it, but if you need her in your life and you're unhappy without her, it is a turn off. Women are attracted the emotional strength of men and turned off by the weakness.

When a woman breaks up with a guy, she isn't going to feel compelled to get back with him because he feels lonely, lost or depressed without her. If she did that, it would mean she was doing him a favor by being with him.

If you want your ex-girlfriend to truly want you back, you have to start saying and doing the types of things that are going to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

From now on, as long as you keep saying and doing the types of things that will make your ex-girlfriend feel attracted to you, she will begin to change how she looks at you.

She will begin to look at you in a more positive light and be more open to accepting your apology, forgiving you and giving the relationship another chance...

I Want My Girlfriend Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want your girlfriend back, you first need to get her respect back.

When she feels a renewed sense of respect for you as a man, she will then open herself back up to feeling attracted to you. Then, when she begins feeling attracted to you again, she will open herself to loving you.

Here's how it works...

Do You Want Her Back or Need Her Back?

[image: I want my ex girlfriend back]

If you're thinking to yourself, â"¢I want my girlfriend back,â"¢ the first thing you need to ask yourself is whether you want her back or whether you need her back. There's a huge difference between those two emotional states.

Wanting her back suggests that you are prepared to do whatever it takes to become the type of guy that she would want back. However, if you are in a state of needing her back because you feel lost or unhappy without her, then your girlfriend isn't going to feel very excited by the idea of coming back to you.

If you feel like you need her back, it usually means that whatever caused the break up (e.g. you being insecure, being needy, not having much purpose in life without her, not truly loving her, etc) is likely still there.

You might have tried to meet other women, but they just aren't making you feel the same way as she does, so you feel like you need her back.

Yet, she doesn't care if you need her back. The only way to make her care is to get her respect back and then make her feel attracted to you again. When that happens, she will naturally open herself back up the idea of loving you and being with you.

Make Her Need You Back

[image: Ex reconnecting with the love]

Sitting around and hoping that your girlfriend will magically change her mind and want you back is obviously a big mistake. The more you focus on how much you miss her and need her in your life, the more you behave like the type of guy she doesn't want back.

Your girlfriend will feel attracted to you when she sees that you're confident and happy without her. This applies when you see her in person, talk to her on the phone and when she analyses you via social media.

A classic mistake that some guys make is posting up lonely photos of themselves, where they try to look "handsome" in the pic. They hope that if they just look good enough, their girl will think that she is looking a great guy and will contact him.

[image: Posing in photos thinking that if he looks good, it will make his ex jealous]

Yet, that's not how a woman's attraction for a man really works. Women are mostly attracted to what a guy says and does when he INTERACTS with her in person or on the phone.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to get your girlfriend back...

Why Did Your Relationship End?

If you've been thinking to yourself, "I want my girlfriend back" one of the most important things that you need to do is determine exactly why your relationship ended...

Did you become clingy or possessive?

[image: Insecure boyfriend]

One of the main reasons a woman will break up with a man is that he has become too clingy, possessive or insecure.

Some guys rely on their girlfriend to feel emotionally secure, confident and happy. If she doesn't show enough affection or goes a bit cold all of sudden, the guy may become suspicious, protective and possessive of her. He might worry that she's losing interest in him and starting to feel the desire to be with other guys.

When he starts thinking like that, he will begin to behave in a way that is unattractive to women. Women are attracted to the confidence of men and turned off by any insecurities, so the more insecurity he shows, the more she loses interest.

Did you take her for granted?

[image: Taking a woman for granted]

Not paying a woman enough attention and making her feel unappreciated in a relationship is just as bad as being clingy.

While a woman doesn't want a guy who throws himself at her feet and threatens to kill himself every time she happens to glance in the direction of another man, she also doesn't want a guy who neglects to notice the effort that she puts into make herself look attractive for him.

To keep a woman happy in a relationship, you have to build on her love, respect and attraction for you over time. You can't expect that she will stick by you just because things felt good at the start.

In the past, a man could take a woman for granted because women had to stay with a man for life. It was shameful to divorce, so if a woman was unhappy, she still had to stick by her man or suffer the shame of being a divorcee.

[image: Marriages around the year 1900]

In 1900 for example, the divorce rate was less than 10% in the developed world, whereas it's now an approximate average of about 50%.

In today's world, a man needs to be able to build on a woman's love, respect and attraction for him over time. He can't just take her for granted and expect that she will stick around even she is unhappy.

[image: Modern women]

Today's women can earn their own money and have the freedom to break up with a guy whenever they feel like it.

[image: Modern women]

It's no longer seen as shameful for a woman to have sex or relationships with plenty of guys before settling down. She doesn't even have to settle down if she doesn't want to! It's a completely different world now and if you want a relationship to stay together for life, you have to deepen her feelings for you over time, rather than taking her for granted.

Did you miss the warning signs?

[image: Breaking up]

Break ups rarely happen "out of the blue" for no reason at all.

Your girlfriend would have given you plenty of warning signs to let you know how she was feeling. If you missed those signs or chose to ignore them, she would have felt as though you weren't emotionally intelligent enough to make a relationship work with her.

If she felt as though you didn't understand where you were going wrong with her, it would have been a serious emotional and intellectual disconnection. She felt disconnected emotionally because you didn't understand how to make her feel happy and intellectually because she probably felt smarter than you when it came to love and relationships.

Getting Her Back

[image: 7 reasons why you can get your ex back]

To get your girlfriend back, you will need to stop saying and doing the types of things that turn her off and start saying and doing the types of things that will attract her to you.

Anything other than that is a waste of time. If you want her back for real, you have to be prepared to do this properly. Are you prepared to do what it takes to get her back?

How to Get Back Together With Your Ex

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The secret to getting back together with your ex is to first make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

This usually happens when a guy sincerely apologizes to his ex and then switches his focus to making her feel attracted to him (e.g. by using humor, flirting, etc).

From there, a guy needs to arrange to meet up with his ex in person and then make her feel even more respect and attraction for him in person.

Have you been approaching the ex back process in that way, or have you been ignoring her, begging and pleading or trying to explain to her that things will be different?

In most cases, those approaches won't make a woman want to get back with you after she seriously breaks up with you. The only real way to get her back is to actively create a spark of feelings (e.g. attraction, respect and love) and then confidently (and persistently in some cases) guide her back into a relationship.

Watch this video to understand the 3-step process that your ex went through before breaking up with you and what you need to do to get her back...

She Still Has Feelings For You, Even if She Says She Doesn't

[image: Ex reconnecting with the love]

In most cases, when a woman decides to end the relationship, her feelings for her ex don't completely vanish, they just change.

When you follow the simple steps of how to get back together with your ex (i.e. apologize, switch to actively making her having feelings for you again, confidently guide her back into a relationship), you will see that it's actually quite easy to get her interested in you again and make her become open to giving the relationship another chance.

I get a lot of e-mails from guys who say that their girlfriend's decision to end the relationship happened all of a sudden and he just didn't see it coming.

Yet, the truth of the matter is that her feelings would have been changing for some time.

Unless she has serious commitment issues, a woman won't decide to break up with a man overnight. It's a gradual process that she goes through of losing respect, then attraction and then falling out of love.

For whatever reason (e.g. you were too insecure, took her for granted), your girlfriend (fiance or wife) would have realized that she was falling out of love with you and you didn't seem like you had the capacity to change.

When she continually felt that way around you, she would have then stopped showing a lot of affection and interest in the hope that you'd get the hint and begin to change, improve and grow as a man.

If she noticed that you weren't changing or didn't seem to have the capacity to change, she would have gradually closed herself off to you sexually and emotionally until she eventually said something like, "I can't do this anymore" and then broke up with you.

Are You Now the Type of Guy That Your Ex Would Want Back?

If you want to get back together with your ex, it's not enough promise that things will be different and show her how much you care.

To get back together with your ex for real, you have to make improvements and changes to the things that caused her to break up with you in the first place and begin to make her feel something for you whenever you interact with her.

In other words, you need to become more attractive and appealing to her.

It's only at that point that she will begin to care. However, if you don't genuinely change and don't actively make her feel something for you when you interact with her, she's almost certainly just going to try to forget about you and move on.

By the way...

Do you know how to make her (or other women) feel attracted to you when they interact with you?

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to your advantage to make your ex want to get back with you...

In addition to re-attracting her, you also need to go through the reconciliation process properly.

For example: Asking her to give the relationship another chance after you've only made her feel mild feelings of respect and attraction for you will usually result in a "No."

She's just not going to see much point getting back with you if she's going to experience the same old type of emotions that turned her off before. She has to be able to interact with you and know that things really would be different now.

You really have changed, improved and grown from the experience. So much so that when you interact with her now, she can't help but feel a tremendous amount of respect, attraction and love for you.

She might try to stop herself from feeling that way by telling herself, "No, no...you have to stay broken up. Don't get back with him" but as the old saying goes, "The heart wants what it wants."

If her heart is buzzing with respect, attraction and love when she interacts with you, her mind won't stand a chance of convincing her to not hug you, kiss you or hook up with you again.

So, whatever you do, don't waste time ignoring her and hoping that she might miss you one day and contact you.

Do something about it.

To get her back for real, you have to actively make her feel a renewed sense respect and attraction for you, so that it makes emotional sense for her to give the relationship another chance.

Let her be the one who feels like it's a good idea to get back together, rather than feeling like you are forcing her to get back together because you need her.

She Doesn't Want to Teach You What You Need to Learn

[image: She doesn't want to teach you what you need to learn]

A woman doesn't want to be a guy's teacher on how to be a man. She wants him to work that stuff out on his own and then come back to her and show her that he has truly improved and changed himself.

Why did your ex break up with you? Do you know all of her true reasons, or just the superficial reasons that she gave you (e.g. "I need space" or "I don't want to be in a relationship right now")?

If you know the real reasons why she broke up with you, have you fixed those things or at least made dramatic improvements in those areas?

Not knowing what else to do, some guys make the mistake of begging and pleading with a woman to be given a second chance. â€œJust tell me what you want me to do...I can change...I can be whatever you want me to be...just give me one more chance...tell me what you want and I'll do itâ€

Yet, by saying that sort of thing to her, he is simply confirming she will be responsible for teaching him how to grow up and be the type of man she needs. These days, women don't put up with that type of situation and simply dump the guy and move on.

Changing Her Mind

The only way to truly change her mind is to change how she feels.

You've got to stop saying and doing the sorts of things that turn her off and start saying and doing the sorts of things that will attract her to you.

Some women will give a guy another chance because they are bored or haven't been able to find a replacement guy, but the relationship will break up again if he truly hasn't changed the things that caused her to dump him before.

[image: Breaking up]

She will eventually say something like, â€œI can't do this anymore. I need space. I think we need time apartâ€ because she wants some time to get over him and begin moving on. She knows that he hasn't changed and probably won't change, so she just wants to get out of the relationship before things become even more complicated.

To get back together with your ex, you have to present a new and improved version of yourself. You cannot present the same old version of you and tell her that you WILL change.

For example: If you were insecure in the relationship, you need to become truly confident in yourself and feel happy with or without her. If you took her for granted in the relationship, you need to show her that you can be happy without her, but that you are at your happiest when with her.

I Miss My Ex-Girlfriend: Can I Get Her Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your girlfriend dumped you and you really do love her, it's only natural that you're going to find yourself thinking, "I miss my ex-girlfriend" and wanting to get her back.

You might have tried to meet other girls and maybe even slept with a few new ones since the break up, but none of them make you feel the same way she does. You and her had a connection that you simply haven't been able to find with any other woman.

So, how can you get her back?

Simple.

You have to make her feel respect and attraction for you again. You've got to let her see that you're not lonely, unhappy or insecure without her. You've got to show her that she has lost a great man.

Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man really works and how you can use it to make your ex-girlfriend feel differently about you the next time you interact with her...

Have You Been Showing Her What She's Lost?

You've already realised what you've lost in her, but has she realized the mistake that she has made by turning her back on you?

You are great, right? Yet, does she feel that way?

Chances are, her perception of you and the relationship isn't quite as "rosy" as the memories you have in your mind. Unless you are actively making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, she will mostly remember the bad times and the things that caused her to break up with you.

That isn't good for your chances of getting her back.

To increase the chances of getting your ex-girlfriend back, you have to focus on making her feel the type of emotions that will draw her to you, such as respect, attraction and even jealousy.

Watch this video for examples of how to make an ex-girlfriend jealous...

When your ex-girlfriend begins to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, she will begin to miss the good times that you shared. She will think about you in a more positive way and wonder why she just doesn't contact you to say hi.

Regardless of whether you contact her first and you wait for her to contact you, the most important thing that you need to do when you next talk to her is make her feel respect and attraction for you during the phone call.

Then, when the moment is right, get her to agree to meet up with you in person. At the meet up, you need to say and do the types of things that will make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

If you want specific instructions and examples of how to do all that, I recommend that you watch my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System

Let Her See That You're Moving On

One of the fastest ways to get her respect and attention is to show her that you're moving on. That doesn't mean you have to be with new women, but you need to show her that you've moved on from where you were when your relationship ended.

It means you need to show her that you're an even better man now; a man that lots of other women are naturally becoming interested in.

Some guys, especially those who can't think of a life without their ex-girlfriend may think, “But, I miss my ex-girlfriend, so why would I want her to think that I’ve moved on and forgotten about her?”

Simple.

That's what is going to make her feel the type of painful emotions that will cause her to contact you or at least answer her phone if you call. She's going to want to get rid of the painful feeling by playing hard to get with you on the phone.

If you remain calm, confident and happy on the phone regardless of what she says or does, she won't be able to get rid of the painful feeling. She will be thinking, “Why am I feeling sad now and he is so happy?”

She will then become more open to meeting up with you in person, possibly just to show interest in you and then pull it back and make you chase her. Yet, when she sees that you still don't chase and are happy and confident without her, the painful emotions will still be with her.

[image: Ex reconnecting with the love]

After a while, she will begin to reconsider her decision to break up with you. She will think, “If I miss him like this and don't feel good without him, why don't I just give the relationship another chance?”

The Fear of Losing You to Another Woman

When your ex-girlfriend sees that you are now thinking, behaving and taking action in a way that is attractive to women, she will begin to worry that you will find a better woman than her and completely lose interest in her.

This works if she is still single or is only dating and hasn't been able to find a suitable replacement for you. However, if your ex-girlfriend is in a new relationship, what you need to do is make her new boyfriend look like a less appealing option compared to you.

If you want to make her feel that way, you need to truly become “the one who got away.” If you want to learn how to do that right now, watch my program Get Your Ex Back: Super System and I'll show you how to get your ex-girlfriend back for real.

How to Get Her Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to get her back, you need to stop saying and doing the types of things that will turn her off and start saying and doing the types of things that will attract her to you.

When a girl has already dumped you, anything that you say to turn her off will simply push her away further from you, so you have to be careful about how you approach things.

If you approach this correctly from now on and only say and do things that will make her feel attracted to you, then you will have a very high chance of getting her back. I know this because I've already helped hundreds of guys to successfully get a woman back.

It's Not Entirely Your Fault That You've Been Dumped

[image: It's not entirely your fault that she dumped you]

Growing up, most of us don't get taught how to be happy in a relationship with a woman by our school teachers or parents.

We are essentially left on our own to work it all out, so it's no surprise that many guys end up dumped (or divorced) by the woman they love after making the same old classic mistakes (e.g. being insecure, needy, clingy, controlling, taking her for granted, etc) in a relationship.

So, make sure that you're not going around thinking that it's only YOU who has messed up with a woman and now needs help. Many guys go through what you're going through now.

Personally speaking, back when I got dumped there wasn't anyone online helping guys to get a woman back. So, I was completely on my own with it. I made a lot of classic mistakes, which pretty much every other guy makes too.

To help ensure that you avoid the classic mistakes that will drive her away, here are 5 important questions for you...

1. Do you know what you need to do to get her back?

This will be slightly different for every guy, but there are some common things that need to be improved, adjusted or changed.

Watch this video to understand the process she went through before breaking up with you and what you need to do to show her that you've changed...

After you've put in some effort to fix or improve on your issues (you can do that by going through my 10 hour video program called Get Your Ex Back: Super System), you need to get her on the phone and arrange to meet up with her in person.

At the meet up, you need to allow her to experience a renewed feeling of respect and attraction for you. This will happen automatically if you have truly fixed or improved on any issues that you have (e.g. insecurity or taking her for granted).

Making her feel respect and attraction for you again won't fix everything, but it will open the door to her heart once again. She will begin to drop her guard and open her mind up to the possibility of being with you again.

2. Have you promised her that you will change, rather than actually changing

Saying sorry and promising her that you will change isn't enough for most women.

In most cases, a woman will want to see that you have already changed and have at least started to become the type of man she wanted you to be all along.

Your ex probably doesn't want to give you another chance, only to discover that two months later you still have the same insecurities and have simply been putting on an act. She wants you to truly change.

3. Have you been taking all the blame?

While it is essential to acknowledge your part in the breakup and strive toward making changes, it is a mistake to put all of the blame on yourself. Why?

1. She will likely assume that you're just trying to make her feel guilty for not taking any blame. This will make her lose more respect and attraction for you.
2. She might use it against you (e.g. keep threatening to break up with you unless you obey all of her demands). If you put up with her bad behavior, she will lose more respect and attraction for you.

Instead of taking all of the blame for the demise of your relationship, you simply need to own up to the mistakes you have made and ask her what mistakes she made. Then, you need to switch the conversation to something more positive and light-hearted.

If you spend too much time apologizing or getting her to admit her mistakes, she may turn around and say, "I don't care...we are broken up...I don't want to talk about this anymore."

4. Have you been too emotional or sensitive about the break up?

There's nothing wrong with acknowledging how sad you are about the breakup, but it's a huge mistake to become overly-emotional to the point where you make her feel like she has to be gentle with you because you're so emotionally sensitive.

Not knowing what else to do, some guys react by whining, begging or even crying to a woman in the hope that it will make her change her mind. Yet, women aren't attracted to the emotional weakness of men.

If you want to get her back, you have to say and do the types of things that will make her feel respect and attraction for you, which means being a confident, happy, emotionally strong man with or without her.

6. Have you tried using tricks like the No Contact Rule?

In an attempt to win her back, some guys will use whatever tricks they can to make their ex jealous and get her back. However, after coaching 100s of guys through break ups and helping them quickly get back with their ex, I have found that lies, tricks and deception will backfire in most cases. For example: Some guys use the commonly known No Contact Rule and avoid contacting their ex for 30-60 days.

In some cases, it does cause the woman to miss him, contact him and they then get back together. If he hasn't changed the things that caused her to break up with him in the first place, she simply dumps him again and moves on.

However, in most cases, the woman will simply enjoy the fact that her ex boyfriend (fiance or husband) isn't contacting her and will use that time to move on without him.

Another common trick that a guy will use is to pretend that he's not interested in getting back with her. He'll say he understands her reasons for the break up and is happy to just be friends. He will then try to stay in her life, hoping that she develops feelings for him for being such a good friend.

Yet, that rarely works because most women see through it. Instead of telling him to go away, a woman will often allow him to act like a friend and think that he has a chance to get her back, while she secretly tries to find a replacement guy.

Then, one day she tells him that she has met someone else, is in love and no longer wants him hanging around as a friend because it might ruin her new relationship.

Whatever the situation is between you and your woman, make sure that you don't waste time and ruin your opportunity by using tricks or lies.

What you need to do is begin to fix and improve yourself and then get her to meet up with you in person to experience the new you. At the meet up, you also need to apologize and get her to forgive you.

She will then begin to look at you in a more positive light and you simply need to keep pushing forward to get her to give the relationship another chance.

If you would like me to guide you through that process right now, get started by watching Get Your Ex Back: Super System

All the examples and instructions are provided in the program. Simply follow the steps and you will be on your way to getting her back in your life and in your arms...

How to Know if Your Ex Wants You Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

How can you know for sure if your ex wants you back?

You can't know for sure, but you should use any signal that she gives to then feel confident enough to text her and then call her to and arrange a time to catch up.

If your ex isn't giving you any signals, don't waste time hoping that she suddenly shows interest.

Instead, focus on making her want you back by beginning to say and do the types of things that will make her experience a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Watch this video for more info...

A woman won't always make it obvious when she wants her ex guy back, especially when she's unsure whether or not she should move on and find another guy.

In most cases, a woman will simply wait to see if her ex can do what it takes to get her to forgive him and want to be with him again.

In some cases, a woman will come right out and say that she wants to get back together. However, that obviously hasn't happened for you otherwise you wouldn't be reading this article right now.

Regardless of how bad you may think your break up was and how difficult it might seem to get her back, I want to know a very important fact about modern relationships...

In Today's World, it is Normal For Couples to Get Back Together After a Break Up

In the 1800s and early 1900s, it was shameful for a couple to break up or divorce. In 1900 for example, the divorce rate was less than 10% in most of the developed world, but it is more than 50% in most countries today.

Based on many changes that have occurred to our society in the last 30 years, it has become normal for couples to get back together after a break up or series of break ups.

A lot of this has to do with the ease of communication (e.g. via phone, text, e-mail, Facebook, etc) and that it's no longer shameful to have many relationships throughout life, before settling down.

A lot of guys who seek help for getting an ex back feel as though they have truly messed up and will never be able to get their ex back.

Yet, the fact is that relationships get back together all the time all over the world. It's so common in today's world that about 80% of couples will go through a break up of some sort throughout their relationship.

Some couples will break up and get back together several times, before eventually deciding to call it quits. However, if the guy just knew what he should say and do, he would get another chance with her.

You can make your ex want you back even if she has currently moved on or is thinking about moving on. You just need to start making her feel SOME attraction for you again.

Getting another chance usually begins with a few simple sparks of attraction and I know this from successfully helping 100s of guys to get their ex back.

Mistakes That Will Make Her Not Want to Get Back With You

Have you made any of these mistakes so far in your attempts to know if your ex wants you back?

1. Writing a letter or long e-mail to proclaim your undying love

When leaving phone messages doesn't prompt his ex to call back, a guy will sometimes decide to pour his heart out via e-mail or letter. He wants her to realize how much he misses her and how much he wants her to take him back.

At the time, it seems like the right thing to do because he feels as though if she only knew how much he cared, she would want to give it another go. Yet, that isn't how love and relationships work.

The long e-mail or letter doesn't change the fact that she broke up with you for many reasons.

She knows that no matter what you say, the issues that caused her to end the relationship are still there. If you haven't fixed those issues and shown her that you've truly changed, then a letter proclaiming your undying won't have much or any effect.

When getting an ex back, saying that you WILL change is never enough. You actually have to fix your issues, improve yourself and actually make the necessary changes. In some cases, a woman will take a guy back before he's made any changes, but she will then dump him again when she realizes her mistake.

To get her back, she has to be able to look at your behavior and listen to how you communicate with her and see that you really have changed.

Anything less than that will result in a poor success rate at getting an ex back. To ensure that you get another chance, you must fix any issues you have (e.g. insecurity, lack of purpose in life, jealousy, etc) and really improve yourself.

When a guy sends a big letter to an ex, he will often say that his life isn't worth living without her. At the time, he feels as though it is a good move because she will feel guilty and take pity on him. Yet, it doesn't work. Why?

A sexual, romantic relationship between a man and a woman cannot be run on pity. Some women may take pity for a little while, but it will not last for long and she will dump him again when she realizes that he hasn't even changed.

Additionally, telling her that you are nothing without her is usually a great reason for a woman to want to move on. Women want to be with a guy who is rising through the levels of life and reaching for his true potential, not sitting around wasting time and hiding from his potential behind the safety blanket of their relationship.

2. Sending her loads of text messages, e-mails or Facebook messages

It's understandable that most guys react to being broken up with by constantly contacting their ex girlfriend (wife or fiancé).

All of sudden, he loses the woman he loves and he has access to reach out and tell her how he feels. In some cases, the woman is the mother of his children or they own a house together.

So, don't feel bad if you've made the mistake (yes, it's a big mistake) of constantly contacting her and asking for a second chance. It's fine to contact her, but it's how you do it that counts.

The point of sending any text to your ex girlfriend, wife or fiancé should be to get her ON THE PHONE. Do not engage in back and forth texts with an ex and expect that it will get her back. Why? Texts can be easily ignored and can also be perceived in the wrong way.

When talking to you on the phone, she can hear your tone of voice and ask questions if she doesn't understand what you mean.

However, via text, she will have to guess at what tone of voice you have (she will usually look at it in a negative way, especially if she currently doesn't like you very much) and guess at what you really mean.

So, don't waste your time or her time sending loads of messages. The only purpose of sending any message to an ex should be to get her on the phone. From there, you need to arrange a time to meet up with her.

If you want specific instructions on what to send to her via text, what to say on the phone and what to do at the meet up to get another chance, I recommend that you watch Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

3. Asking her friends

Asking her friends if they know if your ex wants you back is okay if you all have a great relationship. However, if you aren't close with her friends or if her friends were happy that you and your ex broke up, then it will usually be a bad idea.

If she has spoken about you in a bad light to her friends, it will be just another reason for her to roll her eyes and say, "See...that's why I broke up with him. He's sneaky and tries to get me to call him by bugging you guys."

When getting an ex back, most of it comes down to what you say and do around her. If you can get that right, getting her back will be a smooth process. However, if you attempt to wing it and just say whatever comes to mind, you will likely stuff it up.

I say that with confidence because I've helped all sorts of men (doctors, lawyers, university students, builders, office workers, pilots, university students, etc) to get their ex back.

It doesn't matter how intelligent or "cool" a guy is; when it comes to getting an ex back, he will usually make most or all of the classic mistakes and end up pushing her further away.

4. Waiting too long to make a move

If your ex gives you ANY signs that she wants you back, I strongly recommend that you take action and get her back.

You have to contact her, meet up with her and reconcile the relationship.

Don't sit around wasting time and wondering whether or not she really wants you back, or is just messing with you.

Make her want you back by interacting with her and making her feel SOMETHING for you again.

All it usually takes is a small spark of attraction or a smile and laugh and woman will drop her guard and become open to interacting with her ex again. The guy then needs to have the confidence to call her and get her to meet up with him.

The Truth About How to Know if Your Ex Wants You Back

If your ex wanted you back right now, she might not have the confidence to contact you and tell you. Sometimes, a woman will feel as though she might look weak for wanting you back, so she will simply move on unless you do something to get the relationship back together.

If you want to get your ex back, you have to start making her feel SOMETHING for you whenever you interact with her via text, on the phone or in person. You then need to be confident to lead the way, even if she doesn't seem very keen to meet up with you or get back together.

Women like the man to be the leader of a sexual courtship and relationship and if you don't have the confidence or knowledge to lead her back into a relationship, most women will simply move on.

Are you willing to do what it takes to get her back? Do you know how to spark her attraction for you again?

My Wife Left Me: How Do I Get Her Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your wife has left you and you want to get her back, the main thing you need to focus on is making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you as a man.

It's not enough to want her back and be promising her the world if she gives you another chance. What you need to make her feel is respect and attraction for who you are as a man. When she notices that she is feeling respect and attraction for you in new ways, it grabs her attention and she becomes open to the idea of getting back with you.

The Vows Have Been Broken

You and your wife once promised to stick by each other for life.

Yet, those vows now seem to have meant nothing to her because she's left you. Maybe you have left the home or she has, but either way, she is now opening herself to the possibility of being with a new man.

Being left by your wife is a tough thing to deal with. Seeing your wife leave you can leave you feeling bitterly betrayed, but also confused about life, relationships and what women actually want. It's also probably one of the most embarrassing, humiliating and lonely experience to go through in life.

While it is normal to feel down, remaining stuck with those emotions will only drive her away faster. Why? Women are attracted to the strength of men and repulsed by the weakness. Whenever your wife interacts with you, she has to feel your emotional strength, not weakness.

If you allow the act of her leaving you to send you into a downward spiral, she will become even more turned off the idea of coming back.

The 3 Stages She Went Through Before Deciding to Leave You

Before you can get your wife back for good, you will need to understand her real reasons for leaving you and then get her to forgive you for any mistakes or shortcomings. Don't worry – that's actually pretty easy to do because the love that you and your wife shared is not DEAD.

Love never dies.

It just gets pushed into the background while people focus on or feel overwhelmed by negative, painful emotions. When you can get your wife to feel positive, loving emotions towards you, she will naturally begin to open herself back up to the idea of being with you again.

In my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I provide you with the exact wording of the conversation you need to have with your wife to get her to forgive you and open herself up to giving the marriage another chance.

Why Did Your Wife Leave You?

Some of the men who contact me tell me that they didn't see it coming, â€œDan...my wife left me...and it happened all of a sudden. One day she was saying she loves me and the next she was saying she wants a divorce! How can this be happening?â€œ However, in all my years being focused on success with women, dating and relationships in the modern world, I've rarely come across examples where a woman just makes a snap decision to leave a man.

In pretty much every case I've dealt with or heard about, the woman had been giving the man hints, warnings and suggestions for a long time before the break up. She will say things like, â€œIf things don't change, I don't know if I will want to stay togetherâ€œ or â€œThis isn't the way I want my relationship with my man to beâ€œ or â€œIf you don't change, I will leave you.â€œ However, most men see those statements as idle threats that don't need to be taken that seriously.

This is especially true for men who've married their woman. They feel as though they've â€œgot her for life nowâ€œ and it would be too difficult or embarrassing for her to get a divorce, so he won't ever do it and he can continue treating her however he wants.

So, why did your wife leave you? If you're one of the unfortunate men who are sitting here today thinking, â€œMy wife left me...what do I do?â€œ then let's get to the bottom of the problem and start working towards a solution for you.

Did You Become Less of a Man?

If you watch enough TV sitcoms (which are designed to entertain an audience rather than educate them about real life), watch enough movies or listen to enough politically correct TV talk show hosts, you might start to think that relationships should be 50/50 and men should no longer â€œwear the pantsâ€œ in a relationship.

However, that couldn't be further from the truth. Regardless of what changes have gone on in society and how â€œmasculineâ€œ modern men tend to behave, they still want you to be the man. Ultimately, what a woman wants is to feel like a woman, and the more she feels she has to â€œtake charge,â€œ the less like a woman she feels.

It's tough for a guy to admit, â€œMy wife left me because I wasn't enough of a man for her,â€œ but from my years of experience helping men from all over the world, it's actually the most common reason for a wife leaving a husband.

Unlike women of past generations, today's wives don't just â€œput up withâ€œ a â€œbad husbandâ€œ for life. The TV sitcoms and celebrities they see getting divorced (and then talking about how great of a decision it was on a TV talk show) are often way too influential for a woman. Many modern women find it difficult to uphold traditional values because they see 1,000s of women on TV who seem to be happy that they've gotten a divorce.

The government then tells them, â€œIt's okay. We will support you as a single mother. We will make sure your husband gives you money every month and gives you 50% of what he owns.â€œ If your wife turns on the radio, she constantly hears women singing about how they aren't reliant on men anymore or how they dumped their man and are now happier than ever and moving on.

In today's world, you actually have to be what women refer to as a real man in order for them to want to stay with you. Unlike the women they see on TV who are having problems with their man, your woman can look at you and realize how lucky she is. Your wife being able to feel that way is extremely important.

Did You Take Her For Granted?

If your wife left because she felt taken for granted, she will have sent out plenty of warning signals about the way she felt before finally making the decision to leave. If you feel her decision to leave came from nowhere without warning, you simply didn't pick up on the signals.

There's no one-size-fits-all type of attitude or behavior that makes every woman feel taken for granted, but if you slipped into a habit of expecting certain things from your wife without showing any appreciation for her efforts, then most women will feel under-appreciated.

Most women want to be with a man who values and appreciates what they bring to the relationship, not a man who continues to take without giving back. It's not about random bunches of flowers or boxes of expensive chocolates, it's about being emotionally attached enough to notice the signals she sends out and then having enough love to give that you actually take the lead in resolving any relationship issues.

Did You Cheat on Her?

If you cheated on your wife, then her decision to leave would come as no real surprise. Whether or not she can forgive you for cheating on her is going to be her decision alone to make, but to help her along you will need to re-discuss what it means to be married.

Part of the vows you would have made before saying "I do" was to stick by each other, through good times and bad, until death do us part. Your love and commitment to each other should be able to push the mistake you made (cheating) to the side and see it as something outside of your marriage.

It's not something that needs to be a part of your marriage. You can both decide to let it go and not let it interfere with your marriage any longer. You and your wife are committed to each other. Many women won't be ready to do that because the husband has been behaving in a way that is causing her to lose more attraction and respect for him and thus fall further out of love with him.

If you want her to become open to letting the cheating incident go and focusing instead on the commitment of your marriage and the vows you both made, you need to start making her feel sexual attraction and respect for you again. This is exactly what I will teach you how to do in my program Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

A common mistake that guys make in this situation is to try to shift the blame away from themselves and onto their wife. For instance, he would say something along the lines of, "Well you drove me to it; we haven't had sex in months and you've been acting all cold and unapproachable lately," as a way of trying to make it her fault that he strayed.

Women want to be with the type of man who would think about why they've not had sex in months and then take the lead in resolving the situation.

A woman doesn't want to be married to a man who is so emotionally detached from her and the marriage that he fails to take any responsibility and chooses to satisfy his own needs elsewhere.

Did You Put Her on a Pedestal?

Sometimes, a woman will leave a marriage because sheâs feeling suffocated by it. This is effectively the opposite of taking the wife for granted in that she feels put up on a pedestal, even though she hasn't been behaving nicely towards her husband.

Some guys might be thinking, âWhatâs wrong with that? You've got to treat your wife like a princess no matter what. My wife left me...maybe I wasn't doing enough!â Unfortunately, these men don't realize that women aren't attracted to men they can push around.

While the average TV sitcom might have you believe that women love the idea of having a man throw himself at her feet, they don't love it in the real world. The TV sitcom is designed to entertain the audience.

In the real world, a man who puts a woman on a pedestal and showers her with gifts and tokens of affection, even though she isn't behaving nicely in return, is not a man that she can respect. If she can't respect him, then she's not going to feel attraction for him and if she can't feel attraction for him, she will begin falling out of love with him.

Getting Her Back is Possible

Just like it is possible to get a girlfriend back, it is also possible to get a wife to come back. When a man e-mails me or posts up a comment on this site and says, âMy wife left meâ I instantly feel sorry for him, but I also know that I can definitely help him, so I am glad that he reached out to me for help.

These days, it is fairly common for a marriage to break up temporarily and then get back together, so make sure that you don't give up and think that you've ruined things forever.

As long as the husband can begin to resolve any issues he has, change the unattractive behaviors that he has been displaying and get his wife to start respecting him and feeling attraction for him again, she will automatically begin to reconnect with the the love that she used to feel.

You can get her to feel differently about you and if you are willing to do what it takes to get your wife back, then I am ready to show you the way. I've already helped hundreds of men to get a wife back and I would love to help you too.

How to Get Your Ex Back Fast

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The most obvious way to get an ex back fast is to hook up with a beautiful woman and make her jealous.

Yet, not every guy wants to do that or has the ability to attract and pick up new, beautiful women. So, if don't want to sleep with another woman or if you are unable to attract women at the moment (e.g. because you lack confidence after being broken up with, have lost your mojo, etc), what should you do instead?

Stuff That Doesn't Work...and What to Do Instead

[image: Getting an ex back fast - stuff that doesn't work]

1. Begging her to give another chance

Sure, sometimes a woman will give another guy a chance if he begs her for long enough, but most won't. If you're looking for advice on how to get your ex back fast, you've probably already tried begging her and it hasn't fixed the problems between you and her.

Instead of begging, what you need to do is accept the break up and then leave the house or end the phone call. Completely turn your back on her for a few hours and see what happens. If she doesn't call by the next day, you need to call her up, apologize for your mistakes (that caused the break up) and then focus on making her feel attracted to you again.

2. Bombarding her with text messages

[image: Huh? Why is he texting me this insecure crap?]

Most guys bombard their ex with text messages or phone calls in the hope that if he just stays on her mind, she won't forget him and move on.

Yet, it doesn't work because she has broken up with you due to how you've been thinking, behaving and acting around her. A text is just a text. It's not you in person, saying and doing the right things and then hugging her, making her feel like she wants to forgive you and then kissing her. It's just a text.

Unless you fix or at least improve your issues and problems that are turning her off, she isn't going to feel much or anything from a text message. Additionally, if you bombard her with texts and are coming across in an emotional, needy way it will only turn her off even more.

You've got to fix or at least improve your issues and problems and then call her up, meet up with her in person and let her experience the new you. That is the only fast way to get an ex back for real.

3. Telling her how much you love her and need her in your life

Most guys make this mistake.

They love their girl so much that it seems to make sense to tell her that while she is breaking up with him. Yet, in most cases, she isn't breaking up with him because he doesn't love her enough. She is breaking up with him because she lost her feeling of respect, attraction and love for him.

Watch this video to understand what a woman will usually go through before breaking up with a guy...

Look at it From a Different Perspective

Let's say you were the one who broke up with your girlfriend (or fiancée or wife). What would she need to do to get you back...and fast?

For example: Imagine that you broke up with her because she was always trying to create problems between you and your friends. She resented the time you spent with them instead of her and would often complain when you wanted to spend time with them.

After the break up, she begins to send you text messages several times a day and leaves messages on your phone at home, desperately trying to stay in your life. She says she misses you and wants to be with you.

Yet, none of that changes the fact that she can't handle it when you spend time with your friends. You broke up with her because of her attitude to your friends and nothing she says can change that about her, unless she comes out and says, "Hey, I messed up..." and then explains why she was wrong to treat your friends badly.

If she apologized and said that she would now accept you spending time with your friends, would you give her another chance? You might be saying, "Yes" but that's only because you're probably thinking of your ex that you want back.

Think of it this way...

Imagine that she is a woman that you're not attracted to and no longer respect. Would you still want her back? Now you might be answering, "No."

...and that's the point.

Unless you make your ex girlfriend (fiance or wife) feel respect and attraction for you again, your apologies and promises to do better will not have much effect. You have to start by making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and she will then begin to reconsider her feelings for you.

Are you ready to do what it takes to get her back? If you are, I am ready to help you right now...

My Girlfriend Broke Up With Me: What Should I Do?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When guys email me to say, “My girlfriend broke up with me,” they often tell me that the break up came as a complete surprise to them.

The guy didn’t really see it coming and doesn’t have much of an idea why she broke up with him.

If you are unsure why she has really broken up with you and what you’ll need to do to get her back, watch this video...

Generally speaking, a relationship break up doesn’t just happen out of the blue and a woman will have given plenty of hints to the guy and even given him warnings, such as, “If you don’t change, then I don’t know if we can be together” or “I won’t put up with this forever you know?”

Women Usually Don’t Say Why They Are Really Breaking Up With You

[image: My girlfriend broke up with me]

Generally speaking, when interacting with her man, a woman won’t just come out and say what’s on their mind.

Instead, she will fire “warning shots” through her body language and hint about whatever she sees as the problem, rather than coming straight out with it.

Why? A woman wants her man to notice that she’s unhappy and take some sort of action to figure out what the problem is for himself.

She doesn’t want to have to lead him through the situation and feel like his mother or like the “man.” This, of course, makes absolutely no sense to most men who prefer to “tell it how it is” and keep life simple.

Guys often ask me, “Dan – Why do women have play games? Why can’t they just get right to the point like I do? Why all the games and wishy washy answers? Why can’t they just say what they mean?”

Yet, what these guys don’t realize is that they are sexually attracted to the feminine behavior of women and getting her to behave like a man will make her less attractive to him.

There is a specific dynamic that needs to occur between a man and a woman in order for sexual attraction to exist.

[image: Please I'm begging you]

Killing that dynamic will eventually lead to the death of your relationship. However, the good news is that it can be brought back to life.

You just have to give the relationship what it has been lacking and it will naturally begin coming back to life.

My Girlfriend Broke Up With Me: Can I Get Her Back?

[image: My girlfriend broke up with me]

Yes, you can get your ex back, but only if you can show her that the “problem” as she saw it is now fixed and won’t happen again. For example:

Did you take her for granted?

You may not feel that you took her for granted, but if she felt taken for granted, you’re going to have to show her that you now exactly what caused her to feel that way.

She is going to have to see, by analyzing your behavior and conversation that you really do understand how to make her feel appreciated, loved and respected.

If you can tell her what she needs to hear and behave in the way she has been wishing you would all along, she will naturally open back up to you and the relationship.

Did you “smother” her with over-protectiveness or clingy behavior?

[image: My girlfriend broke up with me]

You may believe that you did nothing more than lavish her with all the attention she deserves, but putting her on a pedestal, proclaiming your undying love for her and needing to see her all the time may have turned her right off you and relationship.

As hard as it may be to believe, most women want to be in a relationship with a man whom other women want to be with.

If you’re the sort of guy who doesn’t have his pick of women (or usually can’t get any women) and you smother your girlfriend, she will begin to feel as though she is lot more valuable than you.

As a result, she will feel like she’s doing you a favor by being with you. However, a woman wants to feel lucky to be with her man.

If she doesn’t feel that, you’re need to be around her will turn her off and make her want out of the relationship. If a woman feels smothered, the sexual spark will begin to die because it just won’t feel right to be with you in that way anymore.

Did you become needy?

[image: I will change whatever you want me to change. Just tell me and I will do it.]

Frequently asking for her reassurance that she loves you, wants to stay with you and isn’t interested in other guys is no way to show your love and devotion to her.

While a woman might be somewhat happy to see that her man loves her so much as to worry a little, it doesn’t make her look up to him as a strong, confident man who believes in himself.

Personally speaking, I never, ever worry about stuff like that. Why? I’ve developed myself into what women refer to as a real man.

When you are that type of guy, you don’t have the insecurities that other guys have and it is your woman who will do the worrying about losing you.

If you really want to understand why she broke up with you and you want to know how to win her back, you need to improve your understanding of women.

You need to understand how women really think and you need to understand what their body language, actions behavior is really telling you.

Personally speaking, when my girlfriend broke up with me many years ago, I didn't know what to do to get her back.

I lost my chance to get my girlfriend back because no-one was there to help. It happened before the internet had people online helping each other, so I was on my own.

Now, since developing The Modern Man, I have helped 100s of guys get their ex girlfriend back and I can help you too.

These days, I hear from multiple guys per day who've been able to get their ex back. You really can do this.

Are you willing to give it a try? Don't leave it too late.

Get her back before she fully moves on without you...

Does My Ex Still Love Me?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If your ex doesn't love you now, it doesn't mean that you can't get her to love you again.

The love between a man and a woman is something that needs to be taken care of. If it's not nourished and looked after properly, it will fade away into the background. However, it doesn't die.

With the right words and the right actions, you can rekindle her love again and bring it into the foreground of her mind. Men from all over the world having been using my techniques to get their ex back into a relationship and make the love even more powerful than it was before.

You can do it too.

It's Only Natural to Still Want Her Love

[image: Does my ex still love me?]

When the love of a woman is taken away from a man, it can feel like he is losing a huge part of himself and his life.

This is especially true if he sees her as the one for him and is willing to do whatever it takes to be the man she wants. In cases like that, it's only natural that a man would wonder, Does my ex still love me? as he sits around missing her and wishing that she was still in his life.

No matter how many times your friends tell you that there's plenty more fish in the sea or that you need to get back out there in the dating scene and find yourself a new woman, you can't help wondering if your ex might still love you and if there's a chance she might change her mind and get back with you. So, is there?

Well, look at it this way...

If you were the one who chose to break up the relationship with her, would you still love her? Sure. You could still love her in a way, but not necessarily in the way where you'd want her back. It would be more of a friendly love rather than a sexual, romantic love.

While you might still care about her, that isn't the same as being madly in love with her and having sexual desire for her. Chances are, if your ex broke up with you, she has different feelings for you now. She has a friendly, but more distant kind of love for you.

[image: Dying love]

She will still have some form of loving feeling towards you, but unless you are able to say and do the things that reignite her feelings of sexual attraction and respect for you, her romantic love for you will remain extinguished.

The 3 Stages She Went Through Before Breaking Up With You

Rekindling Attraction

Try to imagine that an ex-girlfriend that you dumped is asking, “Does my ex still love me?” but you no longer feel sexual attraction for her because she isn’t as physically attractive as she once was.

What would it take for her to be able to rekindle your love for her? All things considered, the bottom line is that she would need to make herself look pretty and sexy for you again, right? In fact, she would need to become so attractive to you (more than when you first met her) that you wouldn’t be able to help yourself from at least giving the relationship another chance.

That there is the answer...

If you want your ex to love you again, you need to become more attractive to her than you ever have before. Watch the video below to understand how a woman’s attraction for a man really works and how you can use that to reignite your ex’s feelings for you...

Women are mostly attracted to things about men that can’t be seen with the naked eye (e.g. confidence, masculine vibe, charisma, etc), whereas men are mostly attracted to things about women that can be seen (i.e. a woman’s physical appearance).

Maintaining the Attraction

Your ex loved you at some point in the relationship, it means that something about you attracted her to you in the first place and something made her develop those feelings. She became your ex, so it’s pretty clear that the initial attraction didn’t last.

If you want to get that attraction back, I can teach you exactly what you need to say and do when you next interact with her. All you need to do is change your question from, “Does my ex still love me?” to, “What can I do to make her feel respect and attraction for me again?”

When your ex feels a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you again, she will naturally begin to reconnect with her romantic love for you.

How to Get Your Girlfriend Back: 6 Things You Should Never Say

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When it comes to the very important topic of how to get your girlfriend back, there are many things that you need to avoid saying to her.

Getting an ex back is a fairly simple and easy process, but many guys (including me before I worked out how to do it) get it wrong.

So, don't worry, I am here to help you get your girlfriend back for real. I've already helped hundreds of guys to successfully get an ex girlfriend back and I am ready to help you right now.

First off, I'm going to give you some examples of things you shouldn't say to your girlfriend when trying to get her back...

1. "I will change!"

[image: I will change]

In an effort to win her back, some men will promise to change, but the problem is that they don't really know how or what to change. Women rarely say more than, "I need time to myself" or "It's not you, it's me" or "I don't feel the same way anymore." They don't explain the real, deeper reasons why the guy has turned her off and what he needs to do to fix that.

Without understanding what you actually need to change to make her feel the way she wants to feel, promising to change is pointless. Why? You end up offering to change things about yourself that she isn't even concerned about and then she feels like you don't understand her and can't be the guy she really wants.

2. "Is there someone else? Have you cheated on me?"

[image: Who have you been sleeping with?]

When a woman breaks up with a guy, it usually comes as a bit of a surprise to him.

He thought everything was fine and that she would continue putting up with their problems or with his unattractive behavior, but it wasn't. Maybe he missed the clues she was giving him or maybe he ignored them, but now that she's said "it's over between you and me" he is shocked.

For many guys who aren't very secure emotionally, they will react by accusing the woman of cheating or sleeping around behind his back.

Why isn't this a good thing to say when trying to get an ex girlfriend back?

It puts you into a state of mind where you feel, appear and behave in a desperate and insecure way. Women are attracted to the emotional strength of men and turned off by the weakness. If she HAS cheated, it has already been done, so no amount of sulking, getting angry or calling her names will undo it.

However, if you can keep the cheating accusations out of the discussion and avoid attacking her character like that, it will help retain her respect and attraction for you as a man. If she has cheated, she will eventually reveal that or you will see it by looking at what happens with her social media accounts.

Accusing her of cheating never provides you with any benefit in terms of getting her back. Instead, it just pushes her further away from you because the insecure, desperate and angry behavior makes her lose respect and attraction for you.

3. â□□ Youâ□□ ll regret this!â□□

[image: You will regret this]

If a woman has lost respect and attraction for a guy, she will find it difficult to allow herself to feel any love for him.

If that has gone on for a while, she will get to the point where she thinks that it will be a relief to break up with him and move on. If she breaks up with him and he is then able to regain her respect and attraction right away (that's what I teach in my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System) then she WILL feel regret and want to get back with him.

However, if he is only using the classic, "You'll regret this" line to hopefully scare her into staying, it will rarely, if ever, have a positive effect. Why? She knows that she doesn't feel respect and attraction for him and isn't feeling much or any love for him, so it seems like a GOOD IDEA to move on.

Some guys will say things like, "You will never find another man who loves you as much as I do" or "We are meant to be together. You are making a huge mistake and will regret this" or "If you leave me and I find a new woman, you will regret this." He may also tell her that what they have is too good to give up and she wonâ□□t find it again.

That isn't how to get your girlfriend back.

You've got to get her back by making her feel respect for you again, then attraction and then love. If you don't know how to do that with your girlfriend, I recommend that you watch my program. Hundreds of guys have already used it to successfully get their ex girlfriend back and it can work for you too.

4. â□□ If I can't be with you, I am going to kill myselfâ□□

[image: I will kill myself if I can't be with you]

Trying to make his ex feel guilty, a guy will sometimes threaten to hurt or kill himself if she doesnâ□□t take him back and will tell her that if something happens to him, it will be her fault.

That type of behavior is not going to make her desire him. Women want to be with a man they can look up to, respect and admire...not a guy they look down on, disrespect and dislike. Almost every woman will be turned off by a man who would hurt himself in a pointless attempt to win back her love. The only thing that he will gain is her pity for being such a weak man.

Trying to seek pity or make her feel guilt is not how to get your girlfriend back. A sexual relationship between a man and a woman cannot be run on pity for too long. If the relationship has already ended, it can't run on pity for more than a few hours or days.

5. Did you get my messages?

[image: Why you can't text your ex back]

Trying to get your ex girlfriend back via text or e-mail is a bad idea. Why?

If a woman doesn't feel respect and attraction for you, sending her text messages, e-mails or Facebook messages isn't going to help you.

She will get the message and assume that you are still the same guy who is unable to make her feel sufficient levels of respect and attraction to be in a relationship.

6. Please tell her that I love her.

[image: Please tell her that I love her]

When his girlfriend hasn't been responding to his attempts to communicate with her, many guys will make the mistake of trying to get friends and family involved.

Getting other people to pass on messages to your girlfriend rarely, if ever, has any positive effects. In most cases, your girlfriend will resent that you involved her friends and family by putting them in an awkward position between you both.

If you want to know how to get your girlfriend back ASAP, I recommend that you try my program, Get Your Ex Back: Super System). I've already helped hundreds of guys to get their ex back and I would be honored to help you too.

I Want to Get My Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

I get a lot of emails from guys who ask me, â€œDan, can you help me get my ex back quickly? Is it possible?â€œ and the answer is finally, “YES!”

I say finally, because it has taken me many years of hard work and testing (with my phone coaching clients) to work out a quick and simple solution for guys to use that really does work.

Getting an ex back used to be something that most people thought was pretty much close to impossible, but it’s now one of the easiest things to do for a guy who wants a second chance with his woman. So, if it’s so easy...

Why Have You Failed to Get Her Back So Far?

Most of the guys I’ve helped over the years have been intelligent guys who are excellent at their job, or their field of study or at doing certain things in life. Yet, when it comes to getting their ex back, they are often clueless.

Why is that? Why is getting an ex back such a difficult thing to deal with so many guys?

Simple.

When a man is broken up with, he almost always begins to think, behave and act in ways that cause the woman to lose even more respect, attraction and love for him. Watch the video below for 5 classic mistakes that most guys make when trying to get an ex back...

You Are No Longer Alone With This

[image: You are no longer alone with this]

I am here to help you.

I know that when you are missing your ex and everyone around you is saying things like, “Move on...there are plenty of fish in the sea,” it can be a very lonely, frustrating and isolating experience.

It’s not painful because you’re weak and you can’t deal it; it’s painful because it’s an automatic human reaction to being dumped or rejected. In fact, it has been scientifically proven that missing someone after a relationship break up can generate the same level of hurt as grieving the loss of a loved one who has died.

Yet, no one would dare say, â€œHey, there are plenty more fish in the sea. Don’t worry, get over itâ€œ to a grieving man, would they? Of course not, but somehow well-meaning friends and relatives seem to think that telling you, â€œIt’s her lossâ€œ or, â€œYou can do better than her and she didn’t deserve you anywayâ€œ is going to make you feel better. It doesn’t!

Guys sometimes tell me that since their relationship broke up, the only time they ever feel happy is the first few seconds of every morning after waking up because that’s the only time they momentarily forget that they no longer have their ex in their lives.

The good news is that you CAN get her back. It’s not impossible. If you are willing to make some quick changes to how you are communicating with her and interacting with her, you WILL be able to make her feel differently about you and then agree to meet up with you in person.

At the meet up, you will be able to get her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

What Most Guys Don't Realize About Getting an Ex Back

Most guys don't realize that they need to make the process of getting back together a benefit to her, not a benefit to him.

When a guy is more focused on getting a woman back because he needs her for his emotional security, it pushes the woman faster away because she feels like would be doing him a favor by getting back with him. If she has already broken up with him, she's almost certainly not going to be in the mood to her ex a favor.

So, the first question you really need to ask yourself is, â€œWhy do I want her back?â€ I know, I know, you want her back because you miss her and don't want another guy taking her, but you need to delve a little deeper than that to get a real answer.

Do you want to get her back because you miss her and everything about her? Do you want her back because you miss the way you felt when you were in a relationship? Do you want her back because you miss the way you felt when someone loved you?

In other words, is it all about you?

This is a question that you might be reluctant to allow your mind to truly answer right now, so take a moment to think about it if you need to. Is getting back together more about you getting what you want? Is she going to feel like she's doing you a favor by giving you another chance?

If she is going to feel that way, then you won't be getting her back anytime soon. If she hasn't been responding to your attempts to get her back, it may be that you're making it all about you.

For example: Have you tried pleading with her to give you another chance?

Getting dumped by a woman you love is an emotionally difficult thing to deal with, so it's only natural that some guys make the mistake of begging and pleading for another chance.

He will promise her the world and promise to do whatever she wants, as long as she gives him one more chance. That might work the first time, but if a woman is breaking up with a guy for the second, third or fourth time, then she has probably gotten to a point where she is unwilling to give him any more time to fix his issues and improve himself.

Some guys will hound their ex text messages and leave countless messages on her answer machine at home and sometimes even at her work. They'll plead with her for another chance and say things like, â€œI can't live without you; I can't eat; I can't sleep, I can't get you out of my head.â€

Unfortunately for guys like that (I was one of them. I did the same types of things when I got dumped many years ago), they mistakenly think that pouring their heart in a text message, letter, e-mail or voice mail will somehow win her back.

Yet, begging and pouting your heart out usually has the opposite effect because all she's hearing is you talking about how you feel and what you need.

Make it All About Her

If you're thinking, "I want to get my ex back" the first thing you must get clear on is this: You have to make getting back together with you feel like a GOOD thing for her.

You have to begin say and doing the things that will reignite her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you...

How to Win a Girl Back: Will She Want You Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to know how to win a girl back, you first need to know why she really broke up with you in the first place.

Once you know the real reasons why she broke up with you, your next move is to begin fixing or improving those things about yourself. When you've done that, you then need to call her up, get her to meet up with you and allow her to experience a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

When you do that, she naturally open herself up to being with you again. It may take some convincing, but most guys are able to get a woman to give them another chance if they make her feel enough respect and attraction at the meet up.

Potential Reasons Why She May Have Broken Up With You

A woman can lose interest in a guy and break up with him for many reasons, but here are some common ones that might relate to:

1. Insecurity

[image: Being insecure]

Women are attracted to a man's confidence because this is a challenging world and she needs to be able to rely on a guy to be emotionally strong, no matter what life throws at him.

When a girl finds herself in a relationship with a guy who is insecure (e.g. clingy, needy, lacking confidence in social situations, lack of belief in himself at work, etc), she will begin to feel turned off by him on a fundamental level.

Even if she once loved him and said that she was going to marry him, she can instantly begin to lose attraction, respect and interest in him if he becomes insecure.

Insecurity is something that women want to steer clear of. They don't want to have to carry an emotionally weak man throughout life and they also don't want to open up sexually to be penetrated by an insecure guy...it's just not a turn on for women at all.

2. Trust issues

To keep a relationship alive, you must give a woman your full trust. She has to feel that you are confident in yourself without her and that she is responsible for maintaining your trust in her.

She wants to see that you're not worried about whether or not you can trust her. Instead, you give her your trust and let her take care of it. You don't worry about it. You focus on more important things in life like your career, friends, family, health and finances and just trust that she loves you, wants you and will stick by you.

If you can't give a woman that, she will eventually lose interest in you. When a guy sees that a woman is losing interest in him, he will often make the mistake of beginning to lose trust in her desire for him.

[image: How to win a girl back]

He may begin to question where she is going, who she is talking to or why she likes certain things all of a sudden. He will wonder if she is starting to think that she should find a new guy. His lack of trust in her will be seen as an insecurity, which will turn her off at a deep level.

3. A lack of fun and excitement

When a relationship first begins, most guys find it easy to be fun, go on interesting dates, make women laugh and generally have a good time together.

Yet, after he gets laid and the initial buzz wears off after a year or so, a guy will often begin to take his woman's love for granted. He might even begin to feel bored with how they just hang out all the time and complain that it's becoming boring.

What a guy like that doesn't understand is that as a man, it is your responsibility to keep the love, happiness, excitement, passion and adventure alive in the relationship. That may sound unfair, but it's just how things work.

In the past, a woman had to stay with a guy for life, even if she was unhappy because it was shameful to divorce.

[image: The old days...]

Not anymore.

[image: Modern women]

In today's relationship environment, society encourages women to find perfect love and happiness with a man. For a modern man to be successful at keeping a relationship together in today's world, he needs to know how to:

1. Attract women when he meets them, so he can have options with women and then choose the right woman for him rather than accepting a woman who isn't truly compatible with him.
2. Deepen a woman's love, respect and attraction for him over time in a relationship.

If you don't have those skills, you find it incredibly difficult to attract a high quality, compatible woman and you will almost certainly end up being dumped or divorced later on in your relationship or marriage.

Text Your Ex Back: 7 Common Mistakes Guys Make

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

You and your girlfriend (fiance or wife) broke up, but you think the relationship is still worth saving and you want to get her back.

You can definitely get her back, because relationships get back together all the time if the reconciliation process (getting back together) is handled correctly.

If you are wondering whether you can simply text your ex back, the answer is a definite “No.”

A text doesn’t change the reasons why she broke up with you.

It doesn’t improve you as a man and it doesn’t make her feel as though she would be benefiting by getting back together with you.

To get your ex back, you have to make her feel as though you have improved and become an even better man than before.

A text message simply cannot achieve that.

If she feels as though you’re trying to get her back before you’ve even changed, then no amount of texts or no special, “magical” text will make a difference.

In this current age where billions of online and phone messages are sent around each day, it’s only natural that you might want to try to send messages in an attempt to get her back.

If you only want to try to get her back via text, make sure you avoid these common mistakes...

Mistake 1: Sending Your Apologies

Apologies are always best said in person.

Anyone can type, “I’m sorry” (see I just did it) and not have to really show that they mean it at all.

So, texting apologies won’t get you the response you really want from her.

Additionally, problems in relationships are rarely one-sided and by taking on all of the blame for the end of your relationship will only make you appear weak.

If you think the reason that you and your ex broke up was because of something only you did, but you’re not sure what it was, repeatedly texting her about how sorry you are and want her forgiveness is another tact that won’t work.

Mistake 2: Sending Guilt Texts

Sending texts in the hopes of making your ex feel guilty so she will take you back is a “trick” that rarely works. If it does get her feeling guilty, it will usually only last for a short while (from seconds to days) before she realizes what you’re up to and decides to close herself off to you even more.

Women are fairly sympathetic by nature, but they are also smart and after the guilt trip wears off, she’ll be upset that you played on her feelings.

For instance, if youâ€™re apart and you send her a text reminding her that your relationshipâ€™s anniversary date is coming up and youâ€™re depressed because youâ€™re not together to celebrate it, thatâ€™s a guilt text.

If you text about how you have lost weight because you haven't been eating, you canâ€™t sleep or are having trouble concentrating, it only shows your weakness. Women are attracted to the strength in men, not the weakness.

Mistake 3: Bringing Up Old Problems or Arguments

If youâ€™re trying to use the text your ex back approach (which doesn't work anyway), you should remember that itâ€™s always best to leave what happened in the pastâ€”in the past.

This is particularly true if you had an argument that preceded the breakup. Guys who bring up past difficulties are only opening up old wounds.

You want your ex feeling good to talk to you, not annoyed or frustrated.

Thereâ€™s a saying that, “Time heals all wounds,” but if you start texting about a past problem, whether youâ€™re apologizing or making an excuse for your behavior, you are simply making the healing take longer.

She gets frustrated by your texts, closes up and it then becomes even more difficult to get her back.

When you just use text, weeks and even months can pass by without you making any real progress with her.

You've got to get her on a phone call and meet up with her in person, so you can get her back NOW.

That's what my Get Your Ex Back: Super System will allow you to do.

When you use the techniques from my program, she WILL want to meet up with you and person and you WILL have a chance to say what you need to say to her (don't worry, I explain exactly what to say in my program) to get that second chance.

Mistake 4: Texting Like a Little Girl

When texting became popular it became the â€œin thingâ€”to do by young girls and boys who started using slang or â€œcuteâ€”abbreviations when sending notes to each other.

Sending texts like â€œIDK how 2 say i m sry 4gv me plsâ€” or â€œi ms u. wen cn i c u?â€” is writing like a childish little girl.

You would never text a client or your boss with that style of juvenile writing so don't try to text your ex back with a similar style of texting.

If your goal is to show your ex that you are a masculine, intelligent adult, donâ€™t send texts like a little girl would.

Mistake 5: Sending Too Many Texts

In a panic to try to revive their relationship, some guys will bombard their ex with what seems like (to her) to be non-stop text messages.

Without giving your ex time to miss you, lick her wounds or otherwise have a chance to think further about your relationship and the possibility of getting back together, youâre making a big mistake. Occasional texting will allow her to know your intentions and desires and may let her consider a reunion with you, but smothering her with your texts will make her want to back off even further or block your messages altogether.

However, I personally don't recommend the silly âNo Contact Rule.â From my testing with phone coaching clients for more than 3 years, I've found that many guys should call their ex immediately, talk to her on the phone and then meet up with her and get the relationship back together.

Watch this video for more info:

Mistake 6: Texting Her Friends

Some guys will attempt to get her friends, family or coworkers involved, hoping that it will make her feel selfish for breaking up with him.

By doing this youâre putting her friend in an awkward position that will only anger your ex because youâve now put her friend in the middle of your breakup. Remember: You want your ex feeling good about you, not annoyed, frustrated, etc.

Mistake 7: Sending âExcuseâ Texts

Some guys will use any excuse to contact their ex.

For instance, he may ask, âWhen are you going to come and pick up your stuff at my place?â or âDo you want me to bring your clothes, boxes, etc over?â

If she wants whatever is there, sheâll ask you for it. Let her contact you about that sort of thing. Using excuses to contact her is not going to get her back.

If you want to know how to get her back for real, then let me help you.

If you use the techniques from my Get Your Ex Back: Super System video program, SHE will start contacting you.

If she doesn't contact you (that sometimes happens when the ex really hates a guy), you simply need to contact her using my tested, proven to work text message, Facebook and phone call examples.

She will then agree to meet up with you in person...

Can't Get Over My Ex: Should I Move On?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you can't get over your ex, it usually means one of the following.

1. She is truly the one for you and your gut instinct is telling you that you must get her back.
2. You have met other women, but they just don't make you feel the same way as she does.
3. You don't know how to attract women when you meet them, so most of the beautiful women you meet aren't interested in you.
4. You haven't been approaching and meeting other women in person, so you don't feel like you have many (or any) other options with women other than your ex.
5. The only women who are interested in you right now are not your type.

If she is truly the one for you, then I highly recommend that you do what it takes to get her back. To get your ex back, you need to work out why she really broke up with you and then begin fixing or improving the things about you that turned her off.

Do you know why she really broke up with you? Did you make any of the mistakes outlined in the video below?

When you know where you've gone wrong and have either fixed those things or made improvements, you then need to get in contact with her. The purpose of contacting her is to arrange to meet up with her in person so you can get her to experience the new, improved version of you.

At the meet up, you need to focus on saying and doing the things that are going to make her feel attracted to you. Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works...

Do You Want to Move On?

[image: I can't get over my ex]

Can you imagine yourself with another woman? Is your ex the only girl for you? If you picture your life in 10 years time, does it include your ex?

If you feel like you want to move on and be with some new women, you should take that step rather than trying to cling to your ex because it feels easier and safer. However, if you feel like no other woman is going to come close to your ex, then you decide to do whatever it takes to get her back.

You are at a point in your life now where you have a huge opportunity to grow and become a better man than you already are. You can do that by doing what it takes to get an ex back, or you can use this opportunity to develop the ability to effortlessly attract women when you meet them.

Wanting to Move On

Let's assume that you want to get over your ex and move on from her, even though you haven't been able to get over her yet.

What have you tried so far to help you get over her? Are you mostly sitting around wishing you could get her back, or are you actively having sex with new women and experiencing different types of love and connection?

Have you tried any of the following?

1. Meeting new women

If you can't get over your ex, the idea of meeting new women probably doesn't sound appealing. You might have even tried talking to new girls, but they just don't make you feel like she did.

Why? In most cases, it's because you're not in the right emotional state to attract women. They can sense your insecurity about falling in love again and they can be turned off by your lack of desire for them.

When meeting new women, they wanted to feel attracted to you and they also want you to feel attracted to them. It's not enough just to show your attraction to a woman though! You also have to make her feel attracted to you.

If you're not making women feel a lot of attraction for you, or if you're holding back from showing desire or interest because you're worried about getting rejected or hurt, most women won't get very involved in the interaction with you. They will feel like something is missing and they won't open up to show you their true personality.

2. Approaching new women

The fastest way to get over an ex is to begin having sex with other women that you see as being more attractive than your ex.

You can't achieve that with online dating unless you are a male model with loads of money. Why? Women judge men based on money and looks on online dating because they have so many options (often 1,000s) to choose from and have to select guys based on superficial traits.

This is why you need to be able to approach women in person, so it's just you and her. When you approach in person, you can make her feel attracted to who you are, rather than what you look like or how much money you make.

If you don't have the confidence to approach new women and attract them in person, watch this video...

3. Improving your ability to attract women

Whether you want to attract your ex back or attract new women, you can't do that if you don't actually know how to attract women.

Most guys never get taught what women are really attracted to in men, so they end up wasting time on things that aren't very important to women (e.g. being really nice, wearing expensive clothes and shoes, building extra muscle at the gym, etc).

How about you? Do you actually know how to trigger feelings of sexual attraction inside of a woman based on what you say and do around her? Watch this video to find out...

What is Your Next Move Going to Be?

Right now, your ex isn't in your life. You probably also don't have a high quality, attractive woman who really loves you. So, what do you want to do about it?

Are you going to let more of your precious life slip away without your ex, or are you going to do what it takes to get her back?

Are you going to remain alone and hope that you get lucky, or are you going to figure out how you can attract other beautiful women, so that you can then move on and get over your ex?

How to Get Your Ex Back When She Has Moved On

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Losing the woman you love is a painful experience to go through, but if your ex has already moved on, it can make the experience even worse.

Even though she once really loved you, none of that seems to matter to her now. She has opened herself up sexually and emotionally with another guy.

...and you're on your own.

Not anymore.

I'm here to help you. So, if you are serious about learning how to get your ex back when she has moved on, today is going to be a VERY good day for you. You will remember this day forever because this is the day when everything will begin to change.

Why Did She Break Up With You?

[image: Why did she break up with you?]

The first thing I want to share with you is a lesson about the process she went through before breaking up with you.

Watch the video below to discover some of the possible reasons why she broke up with you, to begin understanding what you might need to improve before attempting to get her back...

Make Her Reconsider Her Decision

There's no getting away from the fact that your ex is your ex for a reason.

Something happened to cause your relationship to break down and, assuming it was her decision to end the relationship, you may or may not have been given a straight answer to the question of why she broke up with you.

Women quite often give vague reasons for wanting to make the split, such as, It's not you, it's me, or I just need some space.

This can make it difficult to know for sure what made her feelings for you change, but when you become the type of man that women describe as a real man, it won't matter what reason she thought she had for dumping you, because the new you will become enough of a reason for her to reconsider her decision.

Getting her to reconsider her decision involves two important elements. You need to:

1. Improve yourself and become more attractive to her than you were before.
2. Get her on the phone and get her to forgive you and want to see you again.

Watch this video for more info...

You can make your ex feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

At the moment, she might feel like it's not worth getting back with you, but that's based on her current feelings.

You can change how she feels by actively making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you. Other guys have done it and you can do it too.

Statistically Speaking, She Will Dump Her New Guy Pretty Soon

Most rebound relationships fail (at least 65% within a few months) because the woman usually accepts a guy who is not her ideal man, but just who happens to fill the gaps that existed in her previous relationship.

Although your ex has moved on, she may only have moved on with a guy who fills the gaps she felt you left open in her relationship with you, not a guy who actually offers her everything she's looking for in a man.

For example: If you were needy, insecure and lacked confidence in the last half of your relationship with her, she will go for a guy who is very confident to make up for that. If you were careless, took her for granted and were selfish, she will often go for a nice guy who treats her like a princess.

Most of the guys who attract rebound women are usually just "getting lucky" with a woman who is looking for a quick replacement, so they are often the type of guy who makes loads of relationship mistakes that quickly ruins the attraction she felt towards him or eventually tears the relationship apart.

Make Her See You as More Attractive Than Her New Guy

We men are lucky because women are able to feel sexually attracted to us for MANY different reasons.

Without changing ANYTHING about your physical appearance, you begin attracting your ex in more than 100 different ways. Here are two of those ways...

1. Confidence

Women are naturally attracted to confident guys.

The more that your ex feels that you are confident and emotionally secure without her, the more attracted she will be. If she has already moved on, you need to be able to display that confidence via social media, by calling her up on the phone and by meeting her in person.

If her current perception of you is that you're not feeling very confident in yourself without her, she will naturally feel turned off by you.

2. Masculinity

When helping guys to get their ex back, I often have to look through a client's Facebook profile to see what sort of image he is projecting to his ex.

Almost every time, a guy is making the classic mistake of posting selfies where he is trying to look good physically.

[image: Posing in photos thinking that if he looks good, it will make his ex jealous]

He's hoping that if he just looks good enough, his ex will think, "Oooh, he looks good...maybe another girl will like him soon if I don't get back with him!" Yet, that's not how a woman's attraction for a man works.

When a woman sees that a guy is posting up lonely selfies, or has been getting a friend to take photos of him on his own where he's trying to look physically appealing, she knows that he lacks masculinity.

How so? Real men know that women are more attracted to a guy's masculine vibe, thinking, behavior and actions than anything else. Real men also know that they can look shabby and not have even "done their hair" and women will feel a primal attraction to their masculinity.

A masculine man knows that the human mating dance doesn't involve a man trying to look all pretty for a woman.

[image: Peacock mating dance]

In the peacock bird species, the female is plain looking and the male is colorful and vibrant. The more colorful and pretty his plumage is, the more attractive he will be to the female.

Yet, that's not how it works with humans.

Human women feel attracted to a man's masculinity, which is more about his vibe, thinking, behavior and actions.

How can you get your ex to see that when she has moved on? Once again, it's about showing that via social media, letting her feel it come through on a phone call and then letting her experience when you meet up with her in person.

Actions Speak Louder Than Words

Whatever it was that caused your ex to become your ex, she will begin to reconsider her decision when you begin triggering her feelings of sexual attraction for you.

Are you ready to do what it takes to get her back?

Getting Your Ex Back: 5 Common Mistakes to Avoid

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Your woman broke up with you and you're either feeling devastated, frustrated or just sad about not having her in your life anymore.

You want her back more than anything, but if you don't know the right way to go about getting your ex back, chances are she'll be gone for good.

This is why MOST songs on the radio are about people who miss their ex. Most people do NOT know how to get an ex back and when it comes to guys trying to get their ex back, the mistakes are common and global. Here are 5 common mistakes that guys make...

Mistake #1: Why? Why? Why?

When a woman breaks up with a man, most guys are shocked by the news and will repeatedly ask her why she's leaving him. The fact is that she likely gave the guy clues for a long time and he never picked up on them, so when he starts asking her why she's doing it, it only annoys her more.

She figures that if he wasn't paying attention to the hints she was trying to get across to him in the past, why should she bother to tell him now.

She also thinks that if he doesn't understand what he needs to do, then she doesn't want to have to be the one teaching him. Women just don't want to take on that role for a guy when it comes to a relationship.

From all my years of research into relationships, I've found that a woman doesn't simply wake up one morning and suddenly decide to break up with her man. When she does break the news, it's likely the result of something she's been thinking about for a long time.

Before she decided to break up with her man, she would have dropped many clues about her unhappiness for months and in some cases years.

If her man doesn't recognize her hints and act upon them early, when the end comes, she surely isn't going to spell it out for him. She figures if he didn't get the message long before the breakup, then she wants no part of discussing her unhappiness with him now.

On the other hand, some women won't even know exactly why things have stopped working in her relationship. She just knows that she feels a loss of attraction for him and she probably can't even explain the specific behavior he exhibited (or didn't exhibit) that was turning her off.

For her, it was just a feeling of discontentment, so asking her why she wants to break up is pointless. She probably won't be able to verbalize her exact feelings anyway.

Mistake #2: Rushed Apologies

When a breakup takes place, the unfortunate guy will often rush into apologizing and promising to change. The problem is that if he doesn't understand why the woman dropped him, the apology will be full of words and statements that mean nothing to her.

Also, by taking the blame, especially without understanding her reason and her need to call it quits, the man will only put himself into a weakened position with her, which is extremely unattractive to a woman. A woman can't stay with a man out of pity for very long.

She wants a man whom she can respect, look up to and be attracted to. She doesn't want a guy who is willing to say anything, including taking exclusive blame for something he doesn't even understand he did or didn't do, just to win her back. If this example rings true for you, it's very likely you do need to make some changes before you can go about getting your ex back.

It's not your fault by the way. Most of us don't grow up around male role models who have a successful, loving and passionate relationship with their woman. Instead, most of us grow up looking at TV and movies and hoping that we can learn that way.

However, what most of us don't realize is that the writers of TV shows and movies inject LOADS of drama and relationship problems into the show to make us feel entertained.

Writers also play out stories where the "nice guy" gets the girl by being super nice to her, saying lots of sweet things and helping her out in a time of need. Yet, in the real world, women don't feel attraction for those guys. They make like those guys as a friend, but not as a sexual lover they want to submit to.

Likewise, when we see TV shows and movies depicting long-term relationships, they usually have huge problems, affairs, deception, etc. Rarely does a TV show or movie show a happily loving couple without any problems apart from the occasional disagreement, which they then discuss and become closer over as a result.

Yet, in real life, we often see happy couples who are still madly in love after decades. THAT is possible and it is REAL. You just have to know how to do it.

Mistake #3: Whining, Begging or Crying

When the breakup happens, many guys become very emotional. Some will cry. Some will beg. Some will whine. Some will do all three and more.

The worst thing is that they couldn't be displaying that behavior at a WORSE time. Women are extremely turned off by emotional weakness in a man. Whenever a guy gets emotional in that manner, it's a major turnoff for any woman.

That type of emotion is not what women want.

They want a masculine man that they have a strong attraction for and not a guy who shows his emotions in such a weak way, or who breaks down and cries when he is challenged.

Likewise, the opposite emotion is also going to be an instant and permanent turn-off. I'm talking about guys who become hostile, angry or worse...violent. Obviously, that type of behavior isn't cool, but hey "I'll be the first to admit, I did it once."

I got so angry at my ex for cheating on me and dumping me that I swore at her and threatened to hurt her (I didn't hurt her though). I was really angry and felt bitterly betrayed. I called my mother up and cried, telling her, "She cheated on me and now she wants to break up! What do I do?" and even my mother was a bit taken aback by my weakness.

It took me MANY years to learn what it means to be a man and to be the sort of guy who doesn't lash out in anger, become emotional or have any weak points or insecurities. It also took me many years to learn that real men don't cry when life gets tough.

Instead, they do what they need to do to fix a situation and achieve the goal they want. These days, I am emotionally bullet-proof and because of that, women feel a deep, lasting and intense attraction for me.

It's a double bonus type of situation because I feel good and my women (now woman because I'm in a committed relationship) to do. If only I had someone like me to help me out back when I got dumped many years ago, I would have been able to turn the situation around and get her back. On that note...

When getting your ex back, it's important that you do it like a man and not like a wimp. Any wimpy, whiny, sulky behavior will not win you ANY points with her. Also, if you're one of the MANY guys who became overly emotional during the break up, don't worry.

You can turn it around, get her forgiveness and get another chance with her. In my program Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I explain exactly what to say to her so she forgives the crying, whining or begging and gives you another chance. What you will say to her has been tested by 100s of my phone coaching clients who have been able to get their ex back successfully.

Mistake #4: Not Giving Her Space

Even if the decision to break up the relationship was hers, it doesn't mean that she's going to just move on right away without needing any time to lick her own wounds and heal. She needs space to sort out her emotions. She likely loved you and thought you and her would be together for life and now she has to work out how she feels about that, while on her own.

If the guy begins bombarding her with phone calls, cards, texts, love letters, e-mail messages or other forms of communication telling her over and over how much he loves her and wants her back, her need for distance, space and time to heal and get her head together is going to become even greater.

If she feels overwhelmed by the unwanted attention from her ex, she likely will want to break off all communication with him.

The good news for guys who have made that mistake is that you CAN recover from it. In my program Get Your Ex Back: Super System, I provide you with TESTED contact examples to use via Facebook, phone and text so she opens back up to you and wants to see you in person.

Mistake #5: Using Trickery

Another common mistake that guys will use in trying to get their ex back is trickery. This can take place in a number of ways.

There's the "let's be friends" ploy. What usually happens is that the man will attempt to coax his ex into believing that he'll be satisfied with just being friends. He usually believes that if he can get her to keep talking to him and spending time with him, she'll eventually realize that he's a great guy and will want him back.

When he suggests that type of arrangement, she, on the other hand, will recognize what he's doing and will quickly turn down his proposal of friendship or will continually make up excuses as to why she can't see him or talk to him.

Guys in that situation will often feel as though they still have a chance and will be behaving in ways that actually push the woman away, rather than draw her back into a relationship. Whatever form of trickery a guy employs will usually make getting his ex back less likely.

Did you make any of those mistakes when your ex broke up with you? Whatever you did before, don't worry about that. You CAN fix the situation, get her forgiveness and get another chance. If you want to do that, I recommend that you watch Get Your Ex Back: Super System.

Can You Be Friends With Your Ex?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a guy asks me, “Can you be friends with your ex?” the answer is that it depends on what he wants from the friendship.

For example: If he wants to be friends with her so he can get her back, he has to focus on making her feel sexually and romantically attracted to him again while they are “friends.”

If he just acts like a neutral, non sexual friend, then she’s not going to be feeling much or any attraction for him.

She may also lose respect for him for acting like just a friend, when what he really wants in a relationship.

So, how can you remain friends with her and get her back, without losing her respect or scaring her off?

Watch this video for the answer...

If you accept the friendship with her, but don’t actually act like a friend (i.e. you make her feel sexually attracted to you again), then it won’t be a friendship, so don’t worry.

She will be feeling attracted to you and drawn to you. She won’t be able to stop herself from having romantic and sexual feelings about you.

All you need to do then is guide her back into a relationship.

Do You Already Have a New Girlfriend?

Sometimes guys ask me, “Can you remain friends with an ex?” because they really just want to be friends with her.

So, if you have moved on and you’re now with another woman, then yes – it’s possible to be just friends with an ex, but take a moment to consider how your new girlfriend might be feeling about it too.

Sometimes, you need to distance yourself from ex’s to allow your new woman to fully trust you and open her heart to you.

If your new girlfriend sees that you’ve still got a thing for your ex, it may cause her to never truly open her heart up to you.

She will always have “one foot out the door” and will be more emotionally ready to break up with you or accept that you’re drifting away.

Some women can handle their guy being friends with an ex girlfriend, but most can’t.

I know that my wife would hate it if I talked to my ex girlfriends because she knows that they still want me.

I just avoid my ex’s because it would cause problems in my marriage.

It would be nice to be able to be friends with some of them, but my wife is way more important than any of my ex’s, so it just doesn’t matter much to me.

Partying With Mutual Friends

[image: Can you be friends with your ex?]

It's not unusual for couples in a relationship to have mutual friends and this can mean that even after a break-up, there's a good chance of bumping into one another at social events.

Being acquaintances in this way and being able to see each other without awkwardness at parties or social gatherings where you have mutual friends is a good thing.

Yet, outside of those times, it's really not necessary to stay in each other's lives (unless you want to get her back) because it will only cause problems in the new relationships that you and your ex move on to.

If you want to stay in her life as a friend because you want her back, then you need to focus on doing that rather than just being a nice, innocent, non-sexual, friendly ex.

Watch this video to understand how to get her back by attracting her...

Focus on re-attracting your ex and she will naturally want to be with you again.

Can You Be Friends With Your Ex? Questions to Ask Yourself...

Here are some questions to ask yourself before you decide to be friends with your ex...

Why do you want to remain friends with your ex?

What are your reasons for wanting to stay friends with your ex?

Unless you have some sort of joint business interest or have to see each other because you have children together, there's usually not much reason for wanting to stay friends.

Of course, if you and her broke up on mutual terms and you're both happy to move on, then it's fine to be friends because your feelings aren't going to get in the way.

However, if you want her back, just make sure that you don't waste time acting like a friend and turning her off in the process.

Focus on making her have sexual and romantic feelings for you again and guide her back into a relationship.

Are you secretly hoping to get her back?

[image: Can you be friends with your ex?]

If you're secretly hoping to get her back, pretending otherwise is a mistake because your body language and the way you act around her will let her know what you're really thinking, regardless of what you are saying, (e.g. "I just want to be friends" or, "I care about you as a person. That's all.")

If she senses that you're trying to get her back, it may cause her to avoid you completely rather than experience awkward moments in your company or get drawn back into a relationship that isn't based on mutual attraction.

Do you need her friendship?

If you're asking the question, Can you be friends with your ex? because the break up of your relationship has left you sitting at home alone and without any social life, you need to question whether you want to remain friends for old-times sake or whether you need to remain friends because you don't have much else going on in your life.

If you're trying to keep her in your life as a friend, is it because you're unwilling or unable to move on?

This can often be the case for guys who've been dumped and if it describes your situation, it may have been your clinginess and general lack of purpose in life that led to your ex ending the relationship in the first place.

What Do You Really Want?

You've got to be clear about whether or not you want her back or just want to be her friend.

If you want her back, focus on re-attracting her rather than trying to be a nice, friendly, innocent ex.

I hear back from men every day who have used my methods to get their ex woman back immediately, within days and in extreme cases, within a week or two.

You can do it too.

If you want her back, focus on re-attracting her and guiding her back into a relationship.

You can do it.

Get her back!

Need Help to Get Her Back?

Right now, you’re probably wondering whether or not you actually have a chance of getting her back, right?

It might seem impossible now, but when you begin to use the right approach (i.e. start by making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and then confidently guide her back into a relationship), you will see that she opens back up to you and changes how she feels.

You really can make her change how she feels and change her mind about the break up.

Of course, don’t expect anyone else to tell you that.

Most people don't know that it's possible to get an ex back, so they simply tell you to move on.

They say things like, "There are plenty of fish in the sea. You will find another girl" or "Ignore her and she will miss you and come back," or "Find a new hobby to distract yourself and you will eventually forget about her."

It's so damn annoying for a guy who wants his woman back because most people have no idea how to help him. It's like no one cares and they just expect you to get over her.

That's where I come in...

I care about you and your situation and I sincerely want to help you get her back. I know how important she is to you and I understand the horrible pain you are feeling right now as you miss her and want her back.

The first thing that I want you to know is that you CAN get another chance with your ex.

You really can.

I know this for sure because I've already helped 100s of guys to get a woman back.

[image: Get Your Ex Back: Super System]

Here are just a few of the messages that guys have sent me after following the steps of Get Your Ex Back: Super System to get their woman back...

"It was a lot easier than I thought it would be. She immediately changed her attitude towards me by the time I got to step 3 of the program. We then met up and got back together. Thanks so much for your help! I couldn't have done it without you! Peter"

"Getting my ex back was a bit more complicated than other guys because of her abused past, but your system definitely worked for me.

We were spending 1 day and evening a weekend together recently having deep love making. She then rang tonight saying we were falling into our old pattern and maybe we should break up again, but I changed her mind based on my newfound confidence and understanding of how to really connect with a woman's mind.

Anyway she ended up saying she loved me multiple times and wants to be with me & address our niggles was the outcome.

In conclusion I wanted to thank you Dan as all your advice including the mistakes that guys make etc. has really helped me a lot. Thank you Dan, you're making a lot of couples very happy with your programmes.

Kind regards
M.Y"

"I got my girlfriend back and I could not be happier right now. I really feel like a lot has changed in me since watching your program. I have grown up a lot after grasping what it really means to be a man for a woman. She is back in love me now so my thanks to you and your program. I bought 3 or 4 other programs before finding you but they were all rubbish and merely told me to use the no contact approach and if she didn't come back I was to move on. Thank you for your guidance Dan. I could not have done this without you. Jacob"

"Hi Dan

I got your ex back program last week, secured a meet up with her and then did that last night.

She was very hesitant at first but I persisted as you mentioned in the program and she agreed.

We met up for what was supposed to be a quick coffee and that turned into her having feelings for me again and getting worried about it, so I suggested we got for a walk and while walking I suggested we go hang out at my place and she said yes.

We ended up having sex and she said that she didnt know why but she felt differently and wanted to give us another chance!!!!

Her and I are taking things slow now but it looks good because she came over to my place yesterday and stayed the night so I am confident that I can continue to spark her feelings more. We even talked about going away for a weekend soon so it is looking very positive.

I can't thank you enough Dan. You are saving a lot of men from a lot of messed up pain and problems.

I will certainly recommend you to friends if they go through a break up!

Regards,
Paul"

"Hi dan 5 months after me and my wife broke up we are now back together and so happy.

I'll be honest with you I thought after I went through your programmes that they would be of no use to me I couldn't have been more wrong , certain parts of the programme i couldn't really use but the majority was so helpful because it got me in the right mindset and helped me through the toughest part of the break up and showed me how to be a man that my wife would want.

In all fairness it just felt natural to be this way so many many thanks to you and the team at modern man because without you it would have been impossible for me to get my wife back in my arms so if any of you guys are in Liverpool England any time don't hesitate to contact me because I would like to take you guys out for a drink again.

Thank you thank you thank you you don't realise how much you have helped me, Matty"

"I was skeptical before trying your program because my ex girlfriend hated me and wanted nothing to do with me. Well I was surprised at how quickly things changed when I started making her feel jealous like you suggest in the program. I was worried to do it because I thought she would get angry and hate me even more but it drew her to me. I guess she realized that she was losing a great guy and it struck a chord with her.

We met up for a coffee and I used your methods to get her smiling again and laughing like she used to. She said that I had changed and she liked it and I knew at the moment that I could get her back, so I told her to stand up and for us to give each other a hug. We then kissed and it was magical like it was in the beginning when we first dated.

The relationship has been back together for a week now and everything seems to be going well. Thanks for your advice Dan, it really worked and I am glad to have found your site when I went searching online after she dumped me for the third time! You have a loyal fan for life now. Victor”

“Hiya Dan

I got my ex back! It was actually a lot easier than I was thinking it would be. Your methods are brilliant!

I was lead to believe by friends that once a girl broke up with you that that was it but now that Iâ€”ve done it I can see what you see about attraction and relationships and love.

Me and my girlfriend are now planning on moving in together and things are really good, so my thanks to you for the brilliant program and advice.

Garyâ€” â€”Hi Dan

I want to take this opportunity to thank you for saving my marriage. It was dead in the water and my wife had already began going on dates with a new guy that she knows from work. But I put your advice into action from the Get Your Ex Back system and boy did it work.

My wife came crawling back to me, crying and apologizing. I am now in the position of power in the relationship and we are more in love than ever before. Your tips on sex where a huge eye opener for me as well. I would rarely get her to orgasm before but now it is happening almost every time we have sex.

You are doing great things for the men of this world Dan and you deserve a lot of credit. Had I known what your program would do for me I would have happily paid double the price.

Byronâ€”

“Dan I got my girlfriend back. Thank you!

Nate”

Hi Dan,

I have nearly everyone of your products except the Alpha Male Power and they have utterly changed my life.

My GF broke up with me on December 14th, and lets just say I cried and begged for about 2 weeks then realized it wasn't going to do anything to get her back.

So I found your series and worked on me and forced myself to interact with women. It wasn't long before I got numbers, built rapport, and moved forward to kissing and heavy petting, however no sex.

I cut off communication for 3 weeks with the EX, and then I was on a job interview in NYC about 3 weeks ago and posted on my Facebook I was at a Bar, my ex whom also lives in NYC was coincidentally 2 blocks away and we meet up!

Long story short, we're back together, at one point she asked me if use getting back together was a good idea and if it was a good thing. I just laughed at her and said it was the best thing for us, cause the things you told me I lack (confidence, emotional understanding of women and body language) I've fixed and women now love me (showed her pictures from my phone). Dan she flipped so quickly it wasn't even funny! I told her she needs to behave and do things I like or I'll just walk away and go to one of the other girls. I told her if she does things I like I'll give her a reward, She was like really. I tease her with a reward and then giving her rewards, keeping her on her toes. When she does things I don't like she goes to time-out, but only for 5 seconds, then I tell her to give me a hug and say she's sorry.

I've turned the tides in the relationship, and now she always messaging me, chasing me. I tell her every time I talk to her, Ok talk to you in a week, I'm busy the next few days. 12 to 18 hours later she messages me wondering what I'm up too! She says I'm different and understanding.

Right now I tell her I'm Version 2.0 with firmware 3.0 coning out soon, you better figure me out quick or you'll be learning how to figure me out all over again. she's like are you for real. I'm like stop being so serious, she's like your mean. I'm like ya so??? O.o she is pushed in the feminine every time.

Your material is spot on, I keep her in the feminine , but sometimes show my feminine then go right back to be a dominant male and she loves it.

Again thanks for your content, I'll keep listening to it over and over again. Maybe sometime when I'm in Melbourne or your in the States, we can meet up!!!

-Trevor.

Hey Dan,

I have been working on everything you have taught me and I think its finally starting to come together.

I have visited my ex a couple times now and she seems so in love again. She now compliments me about how much more masculine I am and treats me so much better. I am so happy ,thank you. We are better than ever and I feel like (with your help) Iâ€™m learning to keep the dominant role and stay in control of my emotions.

Now that I am more aware my role in the relationship we have a deeper connection and are on the way to an Amazing relationship. Alexâ€”

“I just wanted to email you Dan to say thank you for making this program. Without your guidance and examples of would have had to give up and move on without her because she was being so stubborn and wouldn’t open up to me. Is She Still In Love with You?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Love never dies...

It simply gets pushed into the background when a woman doesn't feel enough respect or attraction for her man.

If you focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you from now, she will naturally and automatically begin to reconnect with the love that she once felt for you.

She will then begin to open up to the idea of being with you again, or at least communicating with you and meeting up with you.

Relationships Have Changed

In the past, a woman had to choose one man, marry him and then stick with him until the end. It was shameful to get divorced, so even if she wasn't happy in the marriage, she had to put up with it.

[image: old-style-of-courtship]

Not anymore.

In today's world, a man has to be able to deepen a woman's love, respect and attraction for him over time.

[image: Why are you being like this?]

If he fails to do that, the woman will gradually fall out of love with him and will then either break up with him, cheat on him or ask for space to be alone so she can then find a replacement guy and move on.

Before breaking up with a guy, a woman will go through three, distinct stages.

1. She loses respect for you (e.g. because you became insecure, treated her badly).
2. She stops feeling attracted to you because you don't change and keep making the same mistakes.
3. She falls out of love with you.

To get her back, you've got to focus on making her feel respect for you again.

Watch this video for more info...

When she respects you again, she will then allow herself to feel attracted and will then open back up to having real feelings for you again.

When you get her back, she will fall back in love with you and it will be better than it was before because you will be a new, improved man who can now make her feel attracted in ways that you previously couldn't.

A Classic Break Up Scenario

Couples break up for all sorts of reasons (e.g. cheating, bored of being in a long distance relationship, trust issues, etc), but no matter what the specific reason is, the core problem is always about a loss of respect, attraction and love.

In terms of respect, some guys ruin a woman's respect by being needy, while other guys ruin it by not needing her or caring about her at all. There are many different ways that it can happen, but when it happens, things change and a guy needs to know how to handle it or else he will make the problem worse.

Here is a classic break up scenario that explains what often happens when a woman changes how she feels and starts to pull back her interest...

[image: Does she still love you?]

When "John" and "Wendy" first began their relationship, everything felt blissful, exciting and hopeful.

They spent as much time as possible together, their sex life was amazing and John felt as though he'd finally met the woman of his dreams. She even said to him on a few occasions that she wanted to be his wife one day, start a family and grow old together.

Wendy really loved him and the feelings they were experiencing together were exciting and made life worth living. Everything seemed perfect and John didn't think that Wendy could ever change how she felt.

Yet, she did...

[image: Does she still love you?]

All of a sudden, she became distant and was no longer interested in hugging, kissing or having sex like they used to. Not knowing what else to do, John reacted by becoming clingy and protective, which turned her off even more.

Instead of being the confident, easy-going guy that she first got into a relationship with, John was now an insecure, tense guy that needed her to tell him that she wouldn't leave him. He would ask her things like, "Do you love me or not?" and try his best to be the nicest, most considerate, loving boyfriend he could.

Yet, it didn't work.

He asked her why she was being so cold and demanded that she hug him, kiss him and show him affection like she used to. "What's wrong with you? Why are you acting like this?" John would ask.

No matter what he said or did, Wendy only grew more distant and seemed even less interested in being with him. The more he tried to fix the problem, the worse it became.. She just wasn't the same Wendy anymore. She was like a completely different woman now.

He reminded her that she used to tell him that she wanted to marry him, have a family and grow old together. "How can you forget how you felt before?" John would ask, "Have you forgotten all the good times we had? Do they count for nothing?"

Wendy looked down at the floor and remained silent. She looked up and said, "Well...no, it does count. We had good times before, but it's just not the same anymore. I don't feel the same way as I used to."

John and Wendy had experienced some bad times in their relationship before, but this time it was different. John knew that something was seriously wrong, but didn't know what to say or do to fix it.

[image: Does she still love you?]

He asked her to explain what was wrong, but she just said, "Nothing...I don't know...I don't want to talk about it." John thought that if he just left her to think on her own, she would get over it and things would go back to normal in a few days.

Yet, nothing changed.

A few days later, Wendy called him up and said, "We need to talk. I've been thinking a lot and I just don't feel like we should be together anymore."

John was shocked.

This is was the woman who'd said she would marry him and grow old with him. How could she change her mind so quickly? Their relationship was so good before, so surely it could be fixed. John asked her what he could do to change her mind and she said, "I don't know."

Not having the courage to break up with him right then and there, Wendy said, "I think I just need space for a while. I need time to think and find myself. Maybe we just need a break for a while."

John gave her space for three weeks and then called her. When could tell that he was hurting and lost without her.

She asked him, "So...how have you been? Are you okay?" and John then admitted that he hadn't been able to sleep or eat properly since the break up, had been getting into trouble at work and basically staying at home waiting for her call.

Wendy realized that he was still the same insecure, needy John that she broke up with. John didn't realize that behaving in that way isn't attractive to women and he simply turned her off even more by saying that.

Did You Know That She Was Going to Break Up With You?

[image: Did you know that she was going to break up with you?]

Before breaking up with a guy, a woman will usually give him plenty of warning and a lot of signs that she is rapidly losing interest in the relationship.

Here are some classic signs that a woman is beginning to think of breaking up with a guy...

1. She is rarely available to see him

Unless something else in her life (e.g. work, study) is taking up all of her free time, a woman will alwaysÂ make herself available for the man she loves. Women thrive on having love flowing throughÂ their life and when a woman is with a man that she loves,Â she will make time for him no matter what.

2. She avoids communication with him

Most women stay in close contact with the man they love. If she is avoiding his calls and taking a long time to reply to his texts or messages, it's a clear sign that she isn't interested.Â The bestÂ way to test a woman's interest level is to stop all communication for a 7 days. If she loves you and wants to be with you, she will contact you within that time.

If she doesn't, it's pretty clear that she has fallen out of love with you, is cheating on you with another guy or just isn't interested in being in a relationship with you.

3. She flirts with other men in his presence

It is fine for a woman to be social and friendly with other men in a group setting, but when she OPENLY and OBVIOUSLY starts FLIRTING in a sexual way with a man (or men) in front of her boyfriend (fiance or husband) it means that she's not his girl, she's anyone's girl.

4. She goes out partying without him on a regular basis

Some guys get lucky when they meet their girlfriend or wife. They don't really know how to attract women properly and simply met a girl who gave them a chance.

In cases like that, many women will keep their "lucky boyfriend" around until they find another guy to replace him. If she going out to party with her friends without him on a regular basis, it means that she is opening herself up to meeting and hooking up with new men.

If a woman loves you, respects you and wants to be with you, she would want you to come along to the party or she would have little interest in going out to party on a regular basis.

5. She avoids sex or affection as much as possible

If a woman is attracted to her man, respects him and is in love with him, she will naturally have the urge to hug, kiss and have sex with him.

However, when a woman (who was previously into hugging, kissing and having sex with her man) suddenly becomes turned off by it and doesn't change, it means that she is turned off by what her man has been saying and doing around her.

She has lost respect and attraction for him and if he doesn't know what to say or do to get that back, she will continue to move on. The only way that he can change how she feels is to change his approach to her.

For example: Be loving rather than desperate or needy, be confident rather than insecure and make her laugh rather than making her feel annoyed.

Only when he is able to say and do the things that make her feel respect and attraction for him, will she then begin to change how she feels. If a woman feels respect, love and attraction for a guy, she will naturally have the urge to hug him, kiss him and have sex with him.

6. She doesn't care about her appearance anymore

There are always going to be times when both of you aren't looking your best (e.g. hungover in the morning, feeling sick with the flu, etc), but women in a happy relationship will always make a huge effort to look attractive for her man.

If she no longer cares about what her man thinks of her physical appearance and puts little or no effort into making herself look appealing, it means that she no longer cares about him.

7. She no longer gets jealous about other women, at all

In the past, if he mentioned another woman during conversation and talked about her attractiveness in a positive way, she would become jealous and possibly even get upset about it. Now, he can talk about other women all day and she doesn't care one bit.

She may even go as far as encouraging him to start hooking up with other women and tell him that she doesn't mind.

If a woman ever says that, you can be 100% sure that she has now opened herself to the idea of hooking up with other guys. She no longer sees you as the guy that she wants to spend the rest of your life with.

If another guy (who knows how to make her feel sexual attraction) meets her and kisses her, she will most-likely cheat on you and then break up with you. I hear about cases like that all time where a guy suddenly gets dumped because his woman kisses a random guy or starts having sex with a guy from work, university, etc.

What Do You Want to Do About it?

[image: What do you want to do about it?]

If you're reading this post, you've mostly been broken up with by a woman or you are currently in a relationship with a girl who doesn't seem that interested in you anymore.

So, what do you want to do about it?

Here are your three options:

1. Get the spark back in your existing relationship before it breaks up.
2. Get a new woman.
3. Get her back and give the relationship another shot.

Coping With a Break Up After Being Dumped...

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Getting dumped by a girl that he truly loves isn't something that any guy wants to experience.

It's a horrible feeling that I experienced many years ago, which forced me to learn what I now teach here at The Modern Man.

Destroying the “One True Love” Myth

You might have heard some people claim that there can only be a one woman who can be a soul mate for you in this life.

It isn't true.

The “one true love” myth was spread by people who assumed that the person they were in love with was the only person they could ever love. In most cases, it was their first love or the first time they had experienced love, so they assumed that it meant they were soul mates.

The myth has also been spread by people miss the one who “got away” and now feel as though that person was their soulmate.

For men, looking at an ex-girlfriend as “the only one for me” usually happens when isn't very good at attracting women, so he doesn't have many options to choose from. Since he doesn't have access to the types of very attractive women that he really wants, new women just don't make him feel the same way as his ex did.

You Now Have Access to Millions of Women Who Would Be Perfect For You

[image: Millions of women to choose from]

For most of human history, men didn't have an abundance choice of women to choose from.

There were no cars, planes, phones or internet so men had to choose from the small amount of women in their local area. Nowadays, we live in larger towns and cities with millions of people and we have access to women from all over the world.

New women fly into your country every day for a holiday and even come to live their with family. In today's world, there are millions of women who would be perfect for you. All you really need to do is have the confidence to approach them and the skills to make them feel attracted to you.

When you can do that, you have your choice of women...

There are millions of women who would truly love you, cherish you and stay with you for life.

If you believe the “one true love” myth that was created in earlier times of human history (when men and women had to choose from a small pool of options) and made popular by Hollywood movies, your belief in it will ruin your ability to experience true love with other women after a break up.

For example: If you've had a loving relationship with a woman that you think was the “the one” for you, it may cause you to avoid looking for love again because the “one” has already gotten away. There will always be naïve people who continue to push the one true love myth as fact, but it’s just not true and the majority of today’s women have already realized it. A survey carried out by Dr. Shauna Springer, a relationship psychologist, revealed that 81% of the 1200+ women she questioned completely rejected the “soul mate philosophy” and stated instead that they believed it was possible to find love more than once in a lifetime. Of course it is. Love is everywhere.

A Fear of Love Will Ruin Your Entire Life

If a guy puts his heart and soul into a relationship, believing he has found his one and only true “soul mate” and she then ends the relationship, it can be hard for him to commit to the idea of loving another woman for two main reasons.

1. He’s stuck in the belief that you only get one shot at “true love” and that if you mess it up, you will never experience true love ever again.
2. He’s afraid of fully loving another woman because that would leave him wide open to the potential for “losing” her love too.

You have to understand and know that love is everywhere. You can experience amazing, mind-blowing with many different women. I know that because I’ve experienced it myself and I also know it because I’ve seen it happen to other people all my life.

You have to open yourself up to feeling, experiencing and living true love with another woman. Don’t close yourself off in fear because love isn’t something to be afraid of. If you know how to deepen a woman’s love, respect and attraction for you over time, she WILL want to stay with you. The love will feel deeper, more meaningful and more pleasurable as the years go on. That is what’s possible when you approach relationships in the right way with a woman that you’re truly attracted to and sincerely want to be with.

However, a fear of love can ruin a man and cause him to completely shut himself away from the world of love, connection and intimacy. I recommend that you become fearless when it comes to love; go into a loving relationship with an open heart and don’t worry about whether or not it might end one day. Just love and love well.

When you can walk through the world with an open heart and true, deep confidence in yourself as a fearlessly loving man, you will be surprised at how easily women fall in love with you.

I’m not just talking about when you get into a relationship “I’m referring the instant feelings of love that you’ve probably seen some women have for some guys. Personally speaking, I’m at a point where I can get a woman to fall in love with me every time I go out to meet women.

They become “love struck” and can’t help themselves from wanting to be with me. It’s a nice power to have over women, especially when you use it with good intentions. Update: I did use it for good intentions after recently accepting the marriage proposal of my girlfriend and then marrying her.

The Clickbait Line of, 'There's Plenty More Fish in the Sea' is Actually TRUE

[image: Getting a new girl is a lot easier than you might think. If you aim for women who are just "out of your league" it will be an amazing experience and you will cherish the love you experience with her.]

Getting a new girl is a lot easier than you might think. As long as you approach and interact with women in the right way, you will have a new girlfriend or lover after talking to only a few new girls.

If you've ever been dumped or are in the process of coping with a break up right now, you will no doubt have had a well-meaning friend or relative tell you that 'there's plenty more fish in the sea!'

Of course, when your heart is broken and the pain of facing life without the one is still raw, it's unimaginable that you could ever find love again, no matter how many fish there are in the sea. However, there's no getting away from the fact that your potential to find love again comes down to your openness to it.

If you stick with the 'one true love' myth or avoid opening yourself to love again because you fear losing it, your life will pass you by as you experience years of unnecessary emptiness and sadness.

Maybe the love you lost really was true love from your point of view, but things change and people change. Maybe when you met and got together it felt like a pre-destined perfect match, but two people in a relationship are not destined to develop with relationship in the same way or at the same rate.

Maybe you were good together initially, but unless you're both looking for the same things in life at the same time and shooting for the same goal in your relationship, it's naive to believe that destiny is going to hold you together.

No matter how in love you are, you and her are still two individuals and if your core values don't match or you are no longer compatible, it's going to begin pushing you apart unless changes are made.

Relationships stay together because both parties are prepared to roll with the changes and do what it takes to work towards a common goal.

It's not about finding your one and only soul mate that allows you to do that, it's about finding love and then having the relationship intelligence (i.e. like social intelligence, emotional intelligence, academic intelligence) to go through the phases of the relationship properly and deepen the love, attraction and respect you feel for each other.

If it doesn't work out and you or her realize years later that you want to break up, it doesn't mean that you will never find love again. In fact, you will find it the next day if you wanted to and if you were open to it.

Of course, it's only natural to want to go through a short grieving process if you've been dumped, but the truth is, if you're the type of guy that women desperately want to be with, you won't be getting dumped anymore.

Personally speaking, no woman has broken up with me since I discovered what I now teach her at The Modern Man. I've only been getting marriage proposals and ex-girlfriends who desperately try to get me back, year after year.

Believe me, it's a much better life to be living that one where you are being dumped or are afraid of being dumped.

The Love is Always Different With Every Woman

[image: Different flavors of love]

The thing is, with each woman that you have a loving relationship with, you will experience a completely different type of love. It is never the same and cannot be because each woman is a different person and the subtle nuances and differences in your relationship will create a new type of love.

Personally speaking, I really loved my ex-girlfriend (who I broke up with because she wanted to get married and start a family with me, but I didn't want to do that with her) and we had an amazing relationship for one and a half years. Yet, I now love my wife so much more than I ever loved my ex-girlfriend.

A few months after my wife and I got into a relationship, I told her that I used to say, â€œI love youâ€ to my ex-girlfriend, but with her I always seem to say, â€œI love you so much.â€

She asked me why and I jokingly said it was because of her skills when using her mouth, if you know what I mean. She playfully hit me and I said, â€œNo, it's because you're so beautiful...and you make me coffee all the timeâ€ and she playfully hit me again.

The thing is, I could have easily married my ex-girlfriend and some of the many other loving girlfriends that I've had over the years who wanted to settle down with me.

Yet, I knew that it is possible to experience love with many different women and I also knew, deep down, that I shouldn't settle down with any of them because, despite being beautiful, they weren't 100% perfect for me.

[image: Love is sweet]

Me (Dan Bacon) and the woman who finally got me to say yes to marriage

If you are wondering how you can cope with your break up, you should understand that the love you experienced with your ex-girlfriend was a special type of love that you and her shared together.

However, it is NOT the only love that is available to you.

You WILL experience love again if you are willing to...

Open Yourself Up to Love

[image: Open yourself up to love]

Love is abundant in our world.

You will realize that if you open yourself up to it and allow yourself to see it. If you want to live an amazing life and experience true love with one or many more women, don't close yourself off to it.

Fearlessly open yourself up to love, knowing that no matter what happens, you can always find love with another woman if it doesn't work out.

When a woman senses that you are a man who is fearless when it comes to love, you will be surprised at how easily she opens up to you. You will see that women look at you in a different way. They are excited because you are the sort of guy who can make them feel a deep and truly fearless love that most people only ever get to experience once in a lifetime.

Can You Get Your Ex-Girlfriend Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Yes, you can.

Getting an ex-girlfriend back is definitely possible.

How? Watch this...

Think about it this way...

Have you ever hated someone and then really liked them later on when they changed the way that they communicated or behaved around you?

Of course, it happens to everyone.

Additionally, has there ever been a time when you didn't want to be with a particular woman, but you then changed your mind and really wanted to be with her?

Of course, it's natural and it happens to most guys.

You definitely can get an ex girlfriend back because it is possible to change the way she feels about you.

Not only is it possible to change how your ex girlfriend feels about you, but it's a very common thing that guys from all over the world do to get their ex back.

When you begin saying and doing things that make her feel respect and attraction for you, she will naturally begin to feel differently about you.

When an ex-girlfriend feels enough renewed respect and attraction for the guy she once dumped, she will almost always open herself back up to being with him.

It's just simple psychology and when you know how to do it, you will kick yourself for not learning this stuff earlier.

A Break Up is Not Permanent if You Can Make Her Feel Differently About You

[image: Change how she feels about you]

Right now, your ex might not have much or any feelings for you to want to get back into a relationship.

However, that doesn't mean that you can't change how she feels. In most cases, all it usually takes is a spark of attraction and woman immediately becomes more open to communicating with her ex and even meeting up with him in person.

Once you have reactivated your ex-girlfriend's feelings for you again, all you need to do is have the confidence and know how to guide back into a relationship with you.

It might seem like a difficult thing to do right now, but that's because you've probably been turning her off and haven't yet reactivated her feelings for you, so she's most-likely being closed off to you and not giving you any signs that she wants to get back together.

You can change that though.

You have a lot of direct control over how much or little attraction your ex feels for you.

As long as you are interacting with her and sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for you, her guard will come down and you can then guide her back into a relationship and get her back for good.

Why Did You and Your Girlfriend Decide to Break Up?

[image: Why did your ex girlfriend break up with you?]

Most breakups don't happen out of the blue.

There are usually plenty of warning signs that a guy will either ignore or be too inexperienced with relationship to notice.

Many of the guys I've helped to get an ex back have said that they were shocked when she wanted to break up, because she'd often talked about marriage, starting a family and how much she loved him.

Yet, just because a woman says that she wants to be with you for life one day, it doesn't mean she will continue holding onto that thought if you no longer make her feel the same way.

Love is something that needs to be taken care of.

If you want to be keep a relationship together for life, you have to deepen the woman's feelings of love, respect and attraction for you, rather than taking her for granted and expecting that she will stick around.

In the past, a woman would stay with a man for life even if she was unhappy because it was shameful to get divorced.

In today's world, women break up with guys all the time and don't even worry about it. In fact, society and even a woman's family and friends will encourage her to break up with a guy who isn't right for her.

It's just not like it used to be.

These days, you actually have to know how to attract a woman and then maintain her attraction for you. Otherwise, she can and often will leave if she gets bored of not feeling the way she really wants to feel.

This is why guys usually fail to get their woman back after a break up, because they have no idea how to make her feel attracted in the ways that really matter to her.

For example:

- A woman breaks up with a guy because he was too nice and he then tries to get her back by being even nicer and more romantic. What she really wants is for him to be more ballsy and confident around her, but he just doesn't understand that, so she moves on.
- A woman breaks up with a guy because he has become insecure, so he then tries to show her that he is fine without her by ignoring her for 30-60 days. Then, when he finally interacts with her again, she tests his confidence and notices that he's still insecure, so she continues moving on without him.

If you want to get your ex-girlfriend back, you've got to understand and accept the type of attraction experience she wants and needs.

You've got to give her the type of attraction she wants, otherwise you just can't expect her to want to be with you anymore.

She's not going to care if things used to be good between you and her because that was the past and this is now.

You've got to make now feel good for her and then she will open back up to you.

Some Do's and Don'ts Now That You've Broken Up

There are many classic mistakes that guys make when a woman breaks up with them and they're trying to get her back, but here are some common ones to avoid:

1. Don't plead, beg, whine or otherwise put yourself into a position where you are saying that you will do anything to please her.

Women are mostly attracted to men who are mentally and emotionally strong, so showing emotional weakness like that turns a woman off.

If you have already begged and pleaded or have been a bit of an emotional wuss, don't worry – you can recover from that.

Just start being a confident, emotionally strong man from now on and she will pick up on when she interacts with women.

Women are naturally wired to pick up on the subtle cues that men give off to display confidence via their conversation style, vibe, body language, behavior and actions.

If you have honestly learned how to be more confident than you were before, it WILL come across when she interacts with you and it WILL make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

She might not openly admit it, but she will feel it.

Another mistake to avoid is...

2. Don't hound her with calls, letters and text messages.

The more pressure you put on her, the more she will want to distance herself from you.

You and her were individuals before you met each other, you were individuals while you were in a relationship (despite how close you both felt) and you are both individuals right now.

She is an individual and can do whatever she wants with her individual life, just like you can. If you make her feel as though she doesn't have the freedom of choice as an individual human being, it will make her want to get further away from you.

There's nothing wrong with being persistent or assertive while getting her back, but just make sure that you don't give her the impression that she doesn't have a choice in the matter.

3. Don't call her friends or family and ask for their help.

Her friends and family will usually take her side and if they don't, she will quickly convince them to. She will then feel resentment towards you for getting her family or friends involved in the break up.

4. Do demonstrate that you are happy with or without her.

Talk confidently, do fun things, catch up with friends, go out to party and enjoy yourself and let her see that happening in your life via your social media account(s). If

Even if she has unfriended you or blocked you, she will still stop by your social media accounts from time to time (and unblock you temporarily) to see what you've been up to.

If she can see that you are happy without her, she will be much more open to communicating with you and meeting up with you because she won't be worried about you desperately trying to get her back.

One of the most common mistakes that guys make is posting up lonely photos of themselves on social media.

Some guys don't even post anything on social media and when their ex girlfriend stops by to have a look, she sees the same old profile photo and status updates and assumes that he's just sitting around missing her.

Even though that might not be true, she's still going to think that way.

So, if you have a social media account (e.g. Facebook, Instagram) make sure that you don't appear lonely. Let her see that things are happening in your life and you seem happy without her.

5. Do display the charm and confidence that originally attracted her to you.

Be positive, fun and happy to talk to, rather than serious or depressing.

Women are naturally attracted to the emotional strength in men and turned off by the emotional weakness. So, whenever you interact with her, make sure that you display emotional strength by being confident, having high self esteem and being positive about your life and where it's going.

Don't try too hard to seem super happy and confident without her. Just relax and let her see that you're strong and have been doing fine since the break up.

6. Do begin to fix any insecurities that you have regarding your ex (e.g. jealousy, feeling like you're not good enough for her, clinginess, etc) before you meet up with her in person to attempt a reconciliation.

You don't have to become perfect before you meet her, just better.

When your ex girlfriend sees that you've become a more emotionally strong man, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Often, that's all it takes for some guys to get their ex girlfriend back, but if your ex is playing hard to get, you just need to make her feel attracted in other ways (e.g. flirt with her, make her feel girly and feminine in comparison to how masculine you think, talk, feel, behave and take action).

Will You Get Her Back?

[image: How to know if your ex wants you back]

After helping hundreds of guys to successfully get their ex back, I can say with confidence that you have a VERY HIGH chance of getting your ex girlfriend back.

The very least that I can promise you is that she will agree to meet up with you in person.

At the meet up, you can then use my advanced attraction techniques and persuasive conversation techniques to get her to want to give the relationship another chance. The techniques that I provide make her feel differently about you, which is the most important thing.

If you meet up with your ex and make her feel the same old types of emotions that turned her off you in the first place, she isn't going to very interested in giving the relationship another shot.

However, when you make her feel respect and attraction for you in ways that she's never experienced before, that is when things begin to change in her mind.

Getting back together actually begins to become HER idea.

She starts to feels as though her life just doesn't feel right with you and your love in it. She feels confused that all of a sudden, she's feeling so attracted to you and she begins to rationalize that as being a sign that she should give you another chance.

Once the relationship is back together, you then deepen the love, respect and attraction that she feels for you and she won't want to break up again.

Having Sex With Your Ex

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Having sex with your ex is a great way to rekindle her feelings for you, but it only really works if you've been able to recapture her respect for you first.

For example: If a woman breaks up with a guy because he was insecure and too clingy, she might have sex with him one last time to finalize the relationship, but if he hasn't really fixed his insecurities, she's not going to be rushing to get back with him.

This is why the most important part of getting an ex back is to ensure that you've fixed and improved the things about you that caused the break up in the first place. If you do that, your ex will also be more willing to have sex with you one last time (or a few times) as well.

Will Having Sex With Your Ex Get the Relationship Back Together?

It depends on what type of relationship you had and how strong her reasons are for breaking up with you.

For example...

1. Was it just a casual fling?

Why did you break up in the first place? Did you and her have a great time in the bedroom but didn't click on a relationship level, so you decided to part ways?

If that's the case, you can use sex to keep things alive, but you must ensure that you are also establishing the foundations for a healthy, connected relationship from then on.

2. Did you break up with her?

If you broke it off with her, what are your reasons for now wanting her back? Have you realized that she is the right woman for you?

A lot of guys find themselves in this situation where they break up with a woman, but then realize that other women aren't much better than her after all. Plus, what he had with her felt good, so why throw it away?

In cases like this, you need to meet up with your ex, apologize for not being ready to be on the same level as her in the relationship and tell her that you want to give things another try. If she refuses, just tell her that you're happy to hang out a couple more times as friends to give her the chance to see how she feels about it.

Of course, she's not going to really need to hang out a few more times before she makes the decision. A woman will usually do that at the end of the first meet up, or she will open herself up sexually and emotionally the second or third time you meet up.

3. Did she break up with you?

If she broke up with you, she's probably going to have a whole list of reasons why she won't want to get back together with you or have sex with you again.

So, you need to begin by getting her respect back (i.e. apologizing and letting her see that you've changed and improved) and she will then be willing to allow herself to feel attracted to you again. Watch this video to understand how a woman's attraction for a man works and how you can use it to make your ex want to have sex with you again...

As you will discover from the video above, most women will only be willing to take your efforts to get back with them seriously, if they can see that you've already changed and improved.

She will know that by how much respect and attraction she naturally begins to feel for you again when you talk to her on the phone and meet up with her in person.

Should I Text My Ex About the Good Times We Had to Make Her Remember?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Not necessarily.

Here are 6 possible reactions from a woman if her ex boyfriend texts her about the good times he and her shared:

1. She knows that heâs trying to manipulate her into missing him

Even though what heâs saying might be true (i.e. they had a lot of really good times together), a woman wonât necessarily see it that way when reminded of it.

Instead, she will assume that heâs most likely trying to manipulate her into feeling like she is missing out on a chance to experience more of that and therefore, open up and give him another chance.

As a result, she then puts up her guard and is wary of everything he texts her.

She may also become resistant to interacting with him (e.g. stop responding to his texts, or answering his calls), because she feels angry, resentful, guarded and suspicious.

It then becomes a lot more difficult for him to re-attract her and get her back.

This is why, texting your ex about the good times you and her shared, is usually a cheesy, obviously manipulative technique to use.

A better approach is to let her remember all by herself.

How?

When you interact with her, make her feel good to be talking to you again (i.e. sheâs smiling, laughing and enjoying herself, feeling attracted), then the happy memories of you and her together will automatically come flooding back.

She will then realize that she misses you and if she opened up to giving you another chance, or at least hooking up with you for a while, it would feel good to her.

Another possible reaction to a guy sending a good memory text to his ex girlfriendâ

2. She feels turned off that she has been feeling happy without him since the break up, but heâs still needy for her

[image: She feels turned off that she has been feeling happy without him since the break up, but heâs still needy for her]

[image: She feels turned off that she has been feeling happy without him since the break up, but heâs still needy for her]

As a result of his âgood memory text,â she assumes that heâs still just sitting around and hoping to get her back, rather than moving on like she has been.

She may also assume that heâs needy, lost, desperate and lonely without her, which then turns her off.

Essentially, she assumes that he still needs her love and attention to feel happy, confident and make progress in life.

Thatâs unattractive to her because women arenât attracted to the emotional weakness in men; especially to men that theyâve dumped.

So, she just she loses even more respect for him and feels relieved that she broke up with him.

What should you do instead?

Have the courage to show her that youâre confident, happy and enjoying without her, so she feels a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you, due to you being emotionally strong enough to get back on your own two feet after the break up and move on.

You can do that by posting photos on social media of yourself having fun and set those photos to âpublicâ so she can see them.

If you donât use social media, now is the time to start.

If she doesnât follow you, or isnât your friend on social media, just post it as public so she can see it without having to add you as a friend, or follow you.

Then, send her a text saying something like, âHey, Iâm on Instagram nowâjust thought Iâd let you know.â

If you already use social media and she doesnât follow you, or isnât your friend on the app/site, just text her something like, âHey, we should be friends on social media. Hereâs my profileâ and add in a link.

Important: Donât text her to verbally explain the fun youâve been having (i.e. texts without any photos) because that can easily come across as being fake (i.e. youâre trying to impress her and make her feel jealous or worried about losing you).

Likewise, donât send her pics of you having fun out of nowhere.

Post it to social media.

Posting on social media (even if you donât normally do a lot of that) is easily seen as normal and understandable by an ex, rather than suspicious because you can post about your life if you want to; it has nothing to do with her.

When your ex sees that youâre enjoying life without her, her guard will come down and she will naturally feel more drawn to you because it signals to her that youâre emotionally strong without her.

She may then try to contact you in some way (e.g. click âlikeâ on your photos, send a private message to say âHiâ) and see what happens from there.

However, if she doesnât contact you, donât wait for weeks to contact her.

Be a man about it and give her a call, or text her to get her attention and then get her on a phone call, or video call.

At the very least, go from typed texts to voice texts, so she can hear your confidence and sense that youâre not desperate, needy and lost without her.

When she senses that, her guard comes down and she feels a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

Another possible reaction of sending an ex a text about good memoriesâ!

3. She remembers that the good times didn't last long and most of the relationship wasn't what she wanted

So, sending the good memory text has the opposite effect.

Rather than make her miss you, it reminds her of all the reasons why she decided to break up with you in the first place (e.g. you weren't confident enough to go for what you want in life, or weren't confident enough around her, you were too soft and emotional for her, you took her for granted and made her feel like your roommate instead of your girl).

As a result, she then feels even more determined to move on with someone else, rather than giving you another chance.

On the other hand, if you just call her and begin re-attracting her in new and interesting ways, she won't be able to stop herself from seeing you in a more positive light (i.e. because you have already replaced the parts of the relationship she didn't want with fresh, exciting feelings she does want).

For example: You can't

- Use light-hearted humor to keep the interaction fun and filled with smiles and laughter, rather than talking about the relationship (e.g. discussing the problems or talking about the good times) and stressing her out. This is especially important if she is being cold, distant or moody when you try to talk to her. Don't get sucked into her mood. Break her out of it with a light-hearted approach.
- Not being afraid to flirt with her. Some guys worry that it's not their place anymore to flirt with her, or that she'll get annoyed and hang up or block him. You need to have the balls to create some sexual tension between you with flirting, so she actually wants to meet up with you in person.
- Show her your new and improved level of confidence based on the way you now talk to her and respond to what she says or does (e.g. you remain calm and even laugh in a good natured way when she's acting as though she is over you, or you remain confident no matter what she does to try to make you feel insecure).
- Let her sense that you're very happy and satisfied with your life without her and even though you want her back, you don't need her back to feel good about yourself. Don't tell her that though. Let her sense it. Big difference. As long as you've made her feel attracted again, she will feel like she is losing you when you make her sense that and it will cause her to open up. She won't want to be living with regret for not giving you another chance, now that she has realized her feelings for you aren't dead.

When you begin to offer her the attraction experience she always wanted, but didn't get from you, she will naturally begin to realize that a relationship with you would feel so much better than it did in the past.

Doing that is what works, rather than sending a cheesy, good memory text.

Another possible reaction to a guy texting his ex girlfriend about good memories!

4. She blocks him

She might decide to do that because:

She doesn't care about him anymore, so doesn't want to be reminded of the good times they had. From her perspective, it's over because she no longer has enough feelings for him. Yet, it seems that he is still hanging on because he has feelings for her. He doesn't know how to make her have feelings, so he's trying to hopefully make her miss him by bringing up good memories. It's painful, annoying and frustrating for her to remember how happy they used to be at the start and then how unhappy she eventually became. She assumes that he probably still has no idea how to attract her in the ways she really wants. So, she doesn't see any point of reopening that wound and being unhappy again.

She feels angry that she invested so much of her time with him, only for things not to work out. She then had to start over with someone else, is kind of happy now and doesn't want to ruin it.

5. She pretends to be interested in the text, but secretly rolls her eyes at it

For example: She might send him a positive emoji of some kind (e.g. a smiley face), reply and say that she misses those times, or say that they sure did have good times and so on.

Yet, she's only being polite (e.g. out of reflex because she's a nice person, or she's hoping that will be the end of it and he'll leave her alone after that, or she wants to mess with his head and pretend to be interested).

In reality though, she hasn't forgotten why she broke up with him, so she doesn't care how good things used to be in the past.

He made a bunch of mistakes (e.g. became too insecure, stopped being manly), which led to the break up and that's what she remembers the most.

As a result, she doesn't feel motivated to talk to him on the phone, or see him in person, which then makes it harder for him to re-attract her and get her back.

From his perspective, his good memory text worked, but from her perspective, he probably still has no clue on how to attract her in the ways she wants.

He can only change her perspective on that by interacting with her and letting her experience the new and improved him.

Finally, another possible reaction is the ideal one, which most guys are hoping for!

6. She remembers those times, misses him and then wants him back

Sometimes, reminding an ex woman about the good times you had does make her miss you.

She's sitting at home alone and feeling lonely, or having a bad day at work, or not having luck meeting new guys and all of a sudden, she hears from you and is reminded of a happy time in her life.

She then thinks, âHe's right. What we shared was special. I was happy with him back then. Yes, it all went wrong in the end, but maybe we should have tried harder to fix the relationship rather than break up. I wonder if it's too late now?â

Yet, here's the thing!

Even if she thinks that way, she might actually be too scared to do anything about it (e.g. in case you're just texting her to be friendly, but don't want her back. So, she doesn't want to seem desperate and give you the impression that she's open to you and her getting back together).

As a result, she might just reply in a polite way, click like on the text or wait a while to respond and try not to show much interest.

This is why, as a man, you need to take the lead in the ex back process, rather than hoping that your ex has the courage to guide you and her back together.

The sooner you get her on a phone or video call and make her feel new sparks of respect and attraction for you, the sooner she will want to see you in person.

You can then meet up with her and build on her feelings.

Before you know it, you will be hugging, kissing, having sex and getting right back in a relationship again.

3 Mistakes Guys Often Make When Trying to Get an Ex Girlfriend to Remember the Good Times They Shared

[image: 3 Mistakes Guys Often Make When Trying to Get an Ex Girlfriend to Remember the Good Times They Shared]

[image: 3 Mistakes Guys Often Make When Trying to Get an Ex Girlfriend to Remember the Good Times They Shared]

1. Focusing too much on trying to get her to feel good via text

It's almost impossible to tell how a woman is really feeling via text.

For example: She can't

- Easily misinterpret the meaning of your words and become annoyed or turned off, but not say anything about it.
- Become upset and even cry, but just reply in a normal, neutral way.
- Feel bored and unimpressed, but reply with happy emojis or lols.
- Feel angry that you're trying to remind her of good memories to trick her into missing you, but not say anything about it.
- Roll her eyes at what she sees as a cheesy, good memory text, but then reply and agree that you and her did have some good times.

As a result, some guys will end up putting in loads of effort trying to make an ex girlfriend (fiancée or wife) feel good via text, but not be having the effect they actually want (i.e. making her feel attracted, making her miss him).

Instead, she can be feeling increasingly annoyed at all the texts, turned off by what she perceives to be insecure, desperate texts and get to the point where she wonders why she is even replying to him at all.

So, if you want to get her back for real, understand that will need to hear your voice and observe your body language (e.g. to see if you're being confident or not) and experience the changes in you (i.e. have you leveled up in some of the ways that matter to her) to make a real decision about whether or not to give you another chance.

If you only focus on text, she simply won't be able to assess that and will most likely assume negative things about you.

It's fine to use text initially, but you've got to get past that level if you want her back for real. Another texting mistake!

2. Being too emotional about the good times, when she isn't emotionally invested in him or the relationship anymore

When a woman has lost touch with her feelings for an ex, she's unlikely to be impressed by emotional reminders of how happy they used to be as a couple.

He's still in love with her, but she doesn't feel it, so the memory doesn't feel as important or significant to her.

It may have felt important back then, but she knows why she broke up with him and a good memory doesn't change that.

So, if a guy seems to be focused on the emotional, or romantic part of the relationship when she doesn't feel the same way, it will cause her to want to keep her distance from him.

After all, she doesn't want to get into a relationship where the feelings aren't mutual, or give him another chance out of pity.

She wants to get into a relationship based on her feeling attracted to and drawn to him.

Those feelings will rarely, if ever, be created by good memory texts.

3. Thinking that his only option to re-attract her is via text

It doesn't matter if you and her used to only text, or mostly texted rather than talking on a phone call or video call.

What matters is what works.

What works is when she can hear the confidence in your voice via voice text, a phone call, or video call.

She can also see how you now react and respond to her in real time (i.e. you're so much more confident now, more masculine in your behavior, conversation style and energy, able to flirt with her now to create sexual tension and so on).

When she's faced with the man you have become since the break up, she will automatically feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

It is then so much easier for you to build on her feelings and make her want you back, because she's open to it and is beginning to really want it.

On the other hand, if you only stick to text, she can easily misinterpret what you're saying, get bored of texting you or assume that you haven't really changed.

My Girlfriend Said She Feels Terrible for Breaking Up With Me, But it Had to Be Done

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 6 common reasons why a woman will say that to her ex boyfriend, plus what you can do to get her back:

1. She broke up with you when you were at a weak point in your life

For example: You might have

- Been struggling to find a job or were in financial trouble for quite a while, which caused you to become stressed, insecure or begin to behave in ways that made her lose respect and attraction.
- Been going through personal problems (e.g. fighting with your parents, siblings, friends or coworkers), which resulted in you being irritable or easily annoyed with her.
- Experienced a personal loss (e.g. the death of a close family member or friend), which caused you to do a lot of crying, or withdraw from life and turn to her for emotional support.
- Been ill and were undergoing treatment, which caused you to lose the vigor you once had and begin worrying that she wouldn't find you attractive anymore. This resulted in her feeling turned off by your insecurity.
- Lost your job, or got evicted from your home, which made you feel insecure about your ability to provide for her, or due to her having a home and a job and being better off than you.
- Been struggling with, or had just failed your exams, or screwed up a project at work and been in trouble with your boss.
- Lost money in a bad investment, which resulted in you becoming very stressed and her worrying that you might keep doing the same thing in future (i.e. failing at getting ahead).

Yet, rather than be a caring, reassuring girlfriend to you while you tried to cope with the difficult situation, she chose that particular moment to break up with you.

She just couldn't get over the fact that your reaction to the problem or issue you encountered, had ruined her feelings of respect for you and therefore, caused her to stop feeling attracted to you the way she used to.

As a result, she began to fall out of love and decided to just go ahead with the break up, rather than supporting you or giving you another chance.

Now, the thing is, if your girlfriend is like most women, then she would feel guilty for letting you down during a time when you needed her the most.

So, it's only normal that she will say that she feels terrible about breaking up with you, but had to do it.

Yet, terrible is not the only emotion she'd be experiencing.

She might also feel very relieved to have gone through with the break up, rather than continuing on in a relationship that she wasn't secretly happy with.

Alternatively, she might also feel confused in addition to feeling terrible for breaking up with you, because she still has some residual feelings for you.

You would know which one of those is true for your situation.

2. She broke up with you to pursue another guy, but might not completely admit that to you (ever)

[image: She broke up with you to pursue another guy, but might not completely admit that to you]

[image: She broke up with you to pursue another guy, but might not completely admit that to you]

If the spark dies in a relationship (e.g. because a guy ends up treating his girlfriend more like a friend than his lover, the sex becomes boring and predictable, or even stops altogether, or the guy becomes insecure, needy or clingy and turns her off), it's only natural that a woman will begin to feel attracted to other men.

Of course, that doesn't mean she's going to immediately be unfaithful with a random guy who flirts with her and makes her feel good, just because the relationship with her boyfriend has become a bit dull.

However, being flirted with by a guy who makes her feel attracted (e.g. because he is more confident than her boyfriend, knows how to flirt, is more masculine in his energy and therefore makes her feel more feminine again), can highlight to her what is missing in her relationship.

A woman will rarely cheat based on that, but if the relationship is dull for too long, but she can't come up with a good enough reason to break up with her boyfriend (i.e. because he is a good guy and is treating her fairly well, or very well), then a woman will often cheat as a way of pushing herself to go through with a break up following it.

Yet, she will rarely tell her boyfriend that her cheating and experiencing a new guy was the reason she is breaking up with him because she either doesn't want to hurt his feelings, doesn't want to explain why, is worried he might get angry and become aggressive, or wants to seem like the innocent one in the relationship and make him feel as though the break up is all his fault.

As a result, a woman will often just say something like, "I feel terrible for breaking up with you, but it has to be done" or, "I feel bad for breaking up with you, but this is what needs to be done. It's the best decision for both of us" to hopefully let him down easy and avoid any trouble.

Here's the thing:

Although it sucks to be dumped by a woman like in that way, you can still get her back if you want to.

The key to getting her back, is to interact with her and suddenly give her the kind of attraction experience that she can't resist.

When you do that, all of her old feelings of love will come rushing back and she will also feel a new, exciting and unforgettable type of love for you.

This then causes her to stop looking at other guys as being better than you or more appealing than you, because she knows that what you and her have is unique.

She also knows that if she doesn't give you a chance, it's almost certainly going to be her who will be the one living with regret from now on.

So, she opens back up to you.

You can do that, but you've got to be willing to level up your ability to attract her, rather than trying to offer her the same old version of you.

You have a chance now to level up and get her back, or go into your shell and end up feeling sad, rejected and left behind for many months of years from now.

Another reason why your girlfriend may have told you that she felt terrible for ending the relationship, but it had to be done isâ€¦

3. You didn't really do anything wrong other than being too nice

Some guys are confused why being too nice to a woman is a problem when it comes to initially attracting a woman, going on a date or being in a relationship or marriage with her.

It doesn't really seem to make sense, until you understand this:

Almost every woman wants to be in a relationship with a good man who treats her well, but she doesn't want a guy to be so nice to her that she ends up feeling as though she doesn't have to be a good woman and treat him well in return.

If she gets that sense, then her respect for him decreases and as a result, she finds it difficult to look up to him and feel proud to be his girlfriend.

When that happens, she stops feeling attracted to him and if she was ever in love with him, begins to fall out of love.

It's not that being nice is a bad thing.

Instead, it's just when a guy is too nice, she doesn't ever get to feel accountable to him, or motivated to treat him well and remain attractive.

She feels as though he's just going to put up with anything to be with her, which makes her doubt his ability to stand up for himself and be respected in other situations (e.g. at work, if they encounter bad people or a challenging situation, etc).

What a woman really wants is to feel is that, if she doesn't treat her man well enough, maintain her attractiveness and make him happy too, then he might leave her and she'd then miss out on being with him.

In other words, a man who is more of a challenge for her.

Of course, women will rarely admit that because they don't want nice guys thinking, â€œOh, so you want a challenge huh? Okay, I will be really challenging nowâ€ just like a nice guy goes from being nice, to being really nice to hopefully impress a woman.

That is why women remain quiet about it and just go for men who make them feel the way they really want to feel.

Likewise, women usually dump (or cheat on and then dump) men who are just too nice to them.

So, if you made the mistake of being too nice to your ex girlfriend and it resulted in her breaking up with you, then you need to change your approach with her from now on (e.g. don't suck up to her anymore, be more of a challenge, make her feel the need to impress you).

Of course, you should also continue to treat her well and be the good man that you are, but also allow her to experience the exciting, irresistible feelings that come with needing to use her charm to maintain your interest.

When she realizes that you now have the ability to make her feel that way, you suddenly become the man she doesn't want to lose.

Why?

Women know how difficult it is to find a good man, who also can be a challenge and make her feel the need to impress him.

It's a very rare thing and women refer to men like that as a "real man" or a "catch" or a "sexy."

When a woman finds one of those men, she knows that it will be a long time, or possibly never, until she meets another one.

So, when you make your girlfriend feel that way, she is going to open back up to you.

You will get another chance with her.

Another reason why your girlfriend may have felt terrible about leaving you!

4. She once promised she'd stick with you no matter what

Although your girlfriend probably meant it when she said it, a woman will rarely honor and stick to a promise like that, if she finds herself losing more and more respect, attraction and love for her boyfriend over time.

It felt right when she said it, but eventually, it felt wrong and she wanted out.

So, in a case like that, a woman will usually just break up with her boyfriend and move on, rather than continuing to waste time in a relationship that most likely isn't going to work out, or will end up feeling miserable because the guy is unable to maintain her respect, attraction and love.

A woman not wanting to "waste time" has a lot to do with a woman's natural instincts of wanting to find one man, get him to fall in love with her and then build a future together (e.g. get married, start a family).

Even though many young women will say that they don't care about kids, marriage or a lifetime relationship, they secretly do.

It's just how women are.

Deep down, pretty much every woman feels the instinctive need to find one man, get him to fall in love with her and then build a real future with him.

As a result, most women feel terrible when leaving a guy that they once loved, because it goes against the instinct of settling down and making the relationship work and last for life.

Yet, women also have a heart and intuition, which helps them make more difficult decisions that go against their primal instincts.

As a result, she can still end up feeling terrible, guilty or even selfish about the break up.

No matter what though, she will bounce back because at the end of the day, her wants and needs are far more important to her than anything else.

Deep down, she also knows that she has once chance at getting her life right and can't allow it to be messed up, just because she's temporarily feeling terrible about something.

So, she goes through with the break up, regardless of how it might hurt her boyfriend.

5. She feels you deserved better treatment from her, due to how much you did for her

If that applies to your girlfriend, then it means you were a great guy to her (e.g. treated her well, took care of her, were generous, put her needs ahead of your own to hopefully make her feel happy, safe, supported and secure).

As a result, you're not a bad boyfriend that she had to get away from; you're not the villain. You are the innocent one, which causes her to feel bad about having to break up with you.

Despite all that, the reality is that a woman doesn't have to remain in a relationship with a guy because of how much he does for her.

A romantic relationship with a woman is not about how much you give to her, or do for her, although those things are a nice bonus.

Instead, it's about how you make her feel.

Being really nice, generous and caring towards her will make her feel safe, supported and secure, but it won't give her the other feelings she craves in a relationship (e.g. feeling the need to impress you too, wanting to be a good girl for you, worrying that you might lose interest in her, worrying that another woman might try to take you from her).

That's not something a woman will ever tell a nice guy (because she doesn't want him to then say, â€œOkay, I will do that. Just give me a chance. I will changeâ€), but it's the reality.

Unfortunately, a lot of guys just don't know how to make a woman want to stick with a relationship for life, so they spend most of the relationship doing things for their woman (e.g. running errands, helping her out financially, driving her around to meetings/interviews/classes, cooking/cleaning for her, getting out of her way, doing whatever she wants to do) to show her how much they love her and hopefully be loved in return.

Yet, even though a woman truly appreciates that level of niceness from a man, it's not enough to make her want to stick with him romantically.

What makes a woman stick with a man in a romantic relationship, are the other feelings she gets with him, which a guy who is too nice simply cannot offer unless he changes.

Another reason why your girlfriend may have felt terrible about leaving you's

6. She knew it would break your heart, but not hers

Sometimes, a woman will realize that her guy is a lot more in love with her than she is with him.

As a result, she knows that breaking up with him won't be a big loss to her and she may even feel a bit relieved by it.

On the other hand, it's obvious to her it would break his heart and he might even struggle to move on, if she were to end the relationship.

That can cause her to feel a bit guilty, selfish or cruel, which is why she said that she felt terrible for breaking up with him.

However, even though she's sorry about hurting him, in her mind, the break up was necessary because she was never able to open up and give him her full love and devotion.

How about your girlfriend?

If she broke up with you for that reason, do you think it's impossible or possible to get her back now?

After helping countless men to get an ex girlfriend, fiancée or wife back, I can tell you that you can make her fall in love with the new you and get her back.

How?

It's all about giving her the attraction experience she always wanted from you but never got (e.g. you being a lot more confident, rather than continuing to be insecure or needy, being more challenging, rather than being so nice and agreeable) and then letting her want more of that, rather than immediately pushing or hinting at getting back together into a relationship.

When she realizes that you're not being needy by pushing for a relationship, but she is feeling attracted and drawn to you, she will also realize that she wants you back.

Then, getting her back becomes so much easier for you because she wants it too.

4 Mistakes a Guy Will Often Make When His Girlfriend Leaves Him, But Says She Feels Terrible About it

[image: 4 Mistakes a Guy Will Often Make When His Girlfriend Leaves Him, But Says She Feels Terrible About it]

[image: 4 Mistakes a Guy Will Often Make When His Girlfriend Leaves Him, But Says She Feels Terrible About it]

1. Pleads with her and seeks pity

Although a woman might feel sorry for her ex and feel bad about hurting him, she will rarely allow those feelings to force her back into a relationship.

She may do it temporarily (e.g. for a couple of hours, days or weeks), but it won't last.

When she realizes that he's keeping her around due to the pity she feels for him, it will cause her to lose even more respect and attraction.

That's the opposite of what he needs to make her feel if he wants her back for real.

So, don't bother trying to make your ex girlfriend feel pity for you by begging, pleading with her or seeking pity.

Instead, focus on creating new sexual and romantic feelings inside of her, so she naturally feels drawn to you and becomes open to giving you another chance for her own reasons (i.e. because she wants you and doesn't want to lose you now).

2. Asks her to explain the reasons why, so he can change for her or not make the same mistake with another woman

A woman usually doesn't want to admit the subtle reasons why she broke up with a guy (e.g. he's not confident enough in the bedroom, he makes her feel like she has too much power over him, he doesn't understand what really makes a woman feel primally attracted to a man, he is unwilling to be anything other than a nice guy and thinks that being a challenge is playing mind games, or is disrespecting a woman, rather than it simply being a playful, attractive dynamic between a man and a woman).

So, when a nice guy asks his girlfriend to explain what he did wrong, it puts her on the spot and makes her feel tense and uncomfortable.

She realizes that if she tells him what he has done wrong, it could hurt his feelings further, enrage him and cause him to have an emotional outburst, cause him to try to convince her that she is damaged/has issues/needs to see a therapist if she wants a guy who isn't as nice as him, or result in him saying something like, "Okay, I will do that. Just give me a chance to show you. I promise I will change," which will then cause her to feel obligated to give him another chance.

3. Assuming that she must be messed up and incapable of committing to a relationship

In almost all cases, a woman is capable of committing to a relationship, but it has to feel right for her. So, when a guy assumes that his girlfriend is messed up in the head and it was her issues that caused the break up, he will usually then have to watch on in utter disappointment as she moves on with a new boyfriend, or eventually gets engaged and happily settles down.

Here's the thing:

Unless a woman is crazy, she won't leave a relationship with a guy if she's happy and getting the kind of attraction experience she really wants (e.g. he's enough of a challenge for her, while also treating her well).

Instead, she will do everything she can to make him feel loved, appreciated and valued, so he won't leave her.

Yet, if a guy can't make his girlfriend feel the ways she wants to feel in the relationship with him, then she will almost always dump him and start over, or go through with a marriage and eventually divorce him after years of unhappiness.

So, don't assume that your girlfriend is incapable of sticking with a relationship.

You can have a relationship with her that last for life, but you have to understand what you weren't offering her and begin offering that (i.e. the kind of attraction experience she really wants).

If you don't, then you'll have to watch on as she moves on without you.

4. Assuming that she will come back to him, if he hurts her by not contacting her

In most cases, a woman doesn't care if her ex isn't contacting her because she doesn't have enough feelings for him anymore to truly care.

She's not in love with him and doesn't feel attracted to him, so she plans on moving on and finding a new man, rather than worrying about an ex that she doesn't really care about anymore.

As a result, his plan of not contacting her backfires because by the time he does contact her, she will usually be in a new relationship and no longer interested, or will be enjoying the freedom of single life (e.g. going on dates, kissing new guys, having sex).

He then has to put in double the effort to reactivate her feelings for him and get her back.

So, don't let that happen to you.

If you want your girlfriend back, get it done now, while you still can.

11 Best Tips From a Get Your Ex Back Coach

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Getting your ex back can be a simple, straightforward and successful experience if you follow the right approach.

Yet, if you end up making classic ex back mistakes, or use a technique that doesn't fit your situation, you might completely miss out on the chance to get her ex back.

So, here are 11 of my best tips as a get your ex back coach, which I recommend if you honestly want her back:

1. Don't use the No Contact Rule on her if she doesn't feel much or any attraction for you anymore

The main reason why is that if she doesn't have much or any feelings for you right now, then she's probably not going to miss you and wish she could be talking to you again.

Instead, she's probably not going to care at all and you will be out of sight, out of mind for her.

She may also feel relieved about being able to move on and begin going out and meeting new guys, without you attracting her back into a relationship.

So, when she meets a new guy who makes her feel attracted, she may just decide to open up to him (i.e. kiss him, go on a date with him, have sex with him, begin to fall in love with him).

Then, by the time you do get in touch with her again after several weeks or even months (i.e. because the No Contact Rule states not to contact an ex for 30 to 60 days, or even longer), she will probably already be in a new relationship and will have gotten over you completely.

As a result, it then becomes more difficult for you to get her back (e.g. because she may have blocked your number or unfriended you, be reluctant to interact with you in case it interferes with her new relationship, be angry with you for ignoring her, or decide to want to ignore you back to get revenge for ignoring her and not even trying to contact her after the break up).

By the way!

If your ex does still have some feelings for you (i.e. she still feels a bit in love with you, misses being around you, feels attracted to certain things about you), using No Contact on her can still backfire because she can take it as a sign that you're no longer interested in her.

That can make her feel rejected, or insulted and she might then just hook up with another man to make herself feel better.

Alternatively, she may push herself to get into a relationship, fall in love and be happy without you, rather than keeping her heart guarded and remaining single, or just casually dating for many months or years after the break up.

This is why, the best approach is always a direct one (i.e. interact with her, re-attract her and get her back into a relationship).

When you interact with your ex and make her feel sparks of attraction again, it makes it a lot more difficult for her to move on and forget about you.

She feels attracted and drawn to you again, which makes her want to give the relationship another chance, or at least hook up to see how she feels, rather than risk walking away and deeply regretting it later on.

2. Understand that it's not needy to calmly and confidently re-attract a woman

[image: Understand that it's not needy to calmly and confidently re-attract a woman]

[image: Understand that it's not needy to calmly and confidently re-attract a woman]

Some guys worry that contacting their ex woman will make them seem needy or desperate.

It won't, as long as you approach it correctly.

For example: Here are some examples of contacting an ex woman in a needy way vs. being attractive and appealing:

- Needy: Sending her loads of texts to explain your feelings for her, apologize and try to convince her to give you another chance.
- Attractive: Text her to get her attention, then confidently get her on a phone call and use humor to bring down her guard and make her feel open and interested to see you in person. When you have made her feel that way, suggest catching up to say hi as friends. That's a lot different to a guy calling or texting about his feelings and desperately trying to get her to agree to talk to him in person.
- Needy: Being very nice and sweet to her all the time, regardless of how cold or even bitchy she is towards you.
- Attractive: Laughing and putting her back in her place (in a loving way) when she treats you with disrespect and showing her that even though you want her back, you're not going to just put up her bad behavior to make it happen. Instead, you have the balls to stand your ground, while still being a good, loving man.
- Needy: Desperately chasing after her and begging and pleading for another chance, while you ignore your other goals in life and focus on feeling sorry for yourself.
- Attractive: Focusing on your own goals and interests and having fun in your life without her, while also interacting with her and making her feel attracted to you again.
- Needy: Sucking up to her and giving her the impression that she's in control of the ex back process (i.e. she gets to decide whether or not you will get another chance).
- Attractive: Treating her well and making her feel loved and appreciated, but also being enough of a challenge so she feels motivated to use her charms to win you over. You then gain more control over the ex back process and are literally letting her get another chance with you.

As you may have realized by reading through those examples, it's not needy to pursue your ex in a calm, confident manner.

So, don't hide away from her and worry that she might think this or that if you contact her.

Just get on with re-attracting her and getting her back.

You can do it.

3. Know that a woman can change her mind, if you change how she feels

A common mistake that guys make when trying to get an ex woman back, is to attempt to â€œreasonâ€œ with her.

For example: A guy will come up with reasons why she shouldnâ€™t walk away from him or the relationship, tell her why she means so much with him and try to explain how things could be different if sheâ€™d just give him another chance.

Yet, that rarely works because it doesnâ€™t make a woman suddenly develop feelings again (i.e. feel attracted, feel in love) and instead, it can make her look at the guy as being selfish because he wants her back, even though she doesnâ€™t feel the same kind of way about him.

So, in her mind, it would be a one-sided relationship where he loves her and feels attracted to her, but she feels turned off and doesnâ€™t feel the desire to be close with him anymore.

Thatâ€™s not appealing for a woman, which is why a woman will usually reject it when it is offered to her.

The best way to get a woman to change her mind, is to change how she feels (i.e. interact with her and actively make her feel new sparks of sexual and romantic attraction for you, based on how you now talk to her, behave around her and get her to behave around you).

When she feels differently about you, her thoughts, behavior and actions will automatically change (e.g. she will become more open to texting you, talking on the phone, seeing you in person, hugging you, kissing, having sex and so on).

4. Donâ€™t give up if she doesnâ€™t immediately come running back into your arms

[image: Donâ€™t give up if she doesnâ€™t immediately come running back into your arms]

[image: Donâ€™t give up if she doesnâ€™t immediately come running back into your arms]

Here are some reasons why a woman wonâ€™t always instantly run back into her exâ€™s arms:

- She doesnâ€™t want to seem desperate and risk giving him the impression that what he did wasnâ€™t that bad after all. If he thinks that, he may assume that the break up was just her attempt to make him chase her. As a result, he wonâ€™t feel like he made much of a mistake and potentially might do it again in future.
- She wants to punish him a little bit for what happened, by making him wait longer or try harder.
- Sheâ€™s afraid that he might hurt her again if she gets back with him, so she doesnâ€™t want to rush into it and regret it later on.
- She wants to see if her ex will lose confidence in himself and give up, or if he really is the strong, confident man heâ€™s been claiming to be (or suggesting her will become) since the break up.

- She wants to interact with him further to assess how she feels (e.g. Does she feel enough attraction to get back with him? Does he really understand what secretly turned her off and has changed enough to avoid doing it again in future?).

This is why you need to remain confident throughout the ex back process.

You might get her back in 24 hours, a few days, or a few weeks, but whatever the case is for you, just ensure that you remain confident no matter how she is behaving.

Don't become insecure, or feel that it's all too difficult, or she could never change her mind.

Understand the reasons I've listed above to know that sometimes, a woman needs to wait a little and assess how you will react, or how she will feel as she continues to interact with you.

5. Understand that she isn't going to care about your desire for a relationship, until you make her want it first

Many guys lose their ex woman by pushing for a relationship when she doesn't want it yet.

For example: He feels 100% attracted and in love with her, but she only feels 20% attraction and love for him.

So, to her, the idea of being in a relationship with him again just seems very unappealing.

Additionally, if she feels as though he is trying to pressure her into it, she may become defensive or stubborn because she wants to be able to make up her own mind for her own reasons, rather than getting bullied into it by her ex.

She might also perceive him as being selfish because he seems to be only thinking about what he wants.

He wants her back and doesn't really care about the fact that the feelings aren't mutual, or even close to mutual.

As long as he gets her back, all is good.

Yet, she just doesn't see it the same way as he does.

It's not all good for her.

It's potentially going to be a repeat of the relationship she just broke up, or worse (e.g. he becomes more insecure, more confused about how to make her happy), which will then result in her having to go through yet another break up with him.

This is why, the best way to approach getting your ex back is to use interactions with her to build on her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you, without trying to get her to commit to a relationship again.

Just let her start to want to be back with you, without any prompting from you.

When you allow her to truly feel the excitement of wanting to be back with you, she will naturally begin to fall back in love with you, or at least develop a new kind of lust with you.

Either way, it will lead you back into each other's arms and it will feel amazing for both of you.

6. Make sure that you quickly level up in the ways that count, rather than the ones she won't value

In other words, if one of her reasons for breaking up with you was because you became too needy in the relationship, promising to be more romantic isn't going to make her want you back.

Alternatively, if she wants a guy who is more of a challenge (i.e. wants a guy who makes her feel the need to impress him and maintain his interest, rather than a guy who is solely trying to impress her and maintain her interest), then telling her that you'll do anything she wants for another chance will just turn her off even more.

So, to successfully re-attract your ex and get her back, you first need to understand her real reasons for breaking up with you (e.g. you weren't manly enough in your behavior, became too emotionally sensitive, or she felt too much like your sister or buddy, rather than your woman).

When you understand what actually counts to her and level up in those specific ways, she then feels understood, surprised and curious to explore her new feelings of attraction and desire for you.

7. Be willing to give her up to a week of space if she needs it, but don't wait longer than that

A week is enough time to allow for things to calm down between you and make her begin to miss you a little bit.

A week also proves the point that you're not being needy or desperate.

Yet, waiting any longer than a week almost always has the opposite effect that men hope it will have.

For example: If a woman doesn't hear from her ex guy for more than a week, she will usually:

- Start focusing on the things she hates about him (e.g. he was too insecure and needy, he made her feel unappreciated, he didn't know how to handle her tantrums and would throw a tantrum in return, he was vindictive, spiteful or selfish), rather than on missing the things she loves (e.g. his sense of humor, his focus and determination, his kindness, his sexual confidence).
- Get over any residual feelings she might still have for him.
- Go out, have a good time and hook up with other men.
- Get into a new relationship with another man who actively sparks her feelings for him, rather than wanting the ex that she dumped.

This is why, you shouldn't spend weeks, or even months, ignoring her in the hope that she will miss you even more.

In almost all cases, it simply does not work to do that.

Important: The No Contact Rule can work very well for a woman who wants to get a man back who dumped her.

One of the main reasons why is that if a man dumps a woman and she just accepts it and never contacts him again, he will usually feel rejected and want to get her back to see that he can.

Alternatively, he may struggle to get laid or find a replacement girlfriend and then contact her so he can have someone to have sex with.

Yet, when a man gets dumped by a woman who no longer feels attracted to him and he then doesn't contact her, she doesn't feel rejected.

She usually feels relieved and then easily moves on and starts sleeping with a new guy right away, or fairly soon after the break up.

8. Don't refuse her offer of friendship

[image: Don't refuse her offer of friendship]

[image: Don't refuse her offer of friendship]

Staying friends with an ex is actually a great opportunity to get her back.

Unfortunately, some guys don't realize that and end up pushing their ex woman away and missing out on getting her back.

For example: When she says, Hey, let's stay friends, a guy might respond with, No, that's not enough for me. I want a relationship with you or nothing or, No, I couldn't handle just being your friend. It would be too difficult for me, so it's best that we just don't talk to each other anymore.

He then loses his chance to stay in contact, re-attract her and get her back because he played the all or nothing card or the pity me card when she offered a friendship.

Here's the thing!

An offer of friendship is like a woman saying, It's okay for us to text, call and possibly even meet up again, if it feels right to me.

Why on Earth would you reject that and then struggle to find an excuse to get in touch with her?

It doesn't make sense, right?

So, just understand that being friends with an ex is an ideal way to get her back because it allows you to stay in contact and re-attract her, without coming across as needy, pushy or desperate.

Simply use any and every interaction that you have with her from now on, to reactivate her sexual and romantic feelings (e.g. by using playfully challenging humor, flirting and by showing her that you're now at a new level as a man).

The more attracted she feels to your confident, appealing approach during interactions, the more she will start missing you, wanting you and seeing you as more than just a friend to her.

You can then hook up with her sexually and get her back.

9. Don't ignore her hints that she is open to getting back with you

Some guys pick up on hints from an ex woman and get the sense that she is open to him, but don't act on it because they're waiting for her to make it very obvious.

Yet, most women won't give very clear signs and will simply move on if a guy doesn't have the confidence or interest in her to make a move.

Some of the reasons why women usually don't give crystal clear signs, include:

- She doesn't want to get rejected by him if he isn't interested in her anymore.
- She doesn't want to come across as desperate and risk him thinking that she's willing to accept him, regardless of whether he's changed and improved any of the things that turned her off before.
- She wants to test his confidence and ensure that he's man enough to go after what he wants (i.e. her), even though it's not easy or obvious.
- She is testing the waters to see how she feels when showing some interest in him (i.e. does she feel more attracted or less attracted based on how he replies or reacts?).
- So, if a guy hesitates for too long because he doesn't have the confidence to act on her subtle hints, she may take it is a sign that he's not man enough for her, or isn't interested enough to make a move.
- She will then begin to close herself off from him and may even act cold, bitchy or rude if he tries to contact her, which will make it more difficult for him to get her back.

So, make sure that you don't take too long to make your move if she is giving you subtle hints.

Be a man and go after what you want.

10. Only show emotional strength and emotional independence

Some guys worry that by seeming to be happy without her, a woman will feel insulted (i.e. because he's doing well without her, rather than falling apart), or will want to hook up with another guy to make herself feel better.

Yet, in most cases, the effect that it has on a woman is that she can't stop thinking about him in positive ways because he is now behaving like the kind of man she can actually look up to and respect.

She feels impressed by his ability to be confident, happy and forward moving in life, regardless of whether she's with him or not.

As a result, she begins to feel drawn to him in a way that feels good to her and she then becomes open to the idea of giving him another chance.

Important: Even if a woman does feel attracted to her ex guy now that he seems happy without her, she will rarely, if ever admit that to him.

Instead, most women will pretend to be annoyed or insulted to see if the guy then says something like, "No, but I'm not happy. That's what you don't understand. I'm just trying to move on, but I've been missing you like crazy."

She then realizes that she still has power over him, he's been putting on an act and as a result, doesn't deserve the respect and attraction she was feeling for him.

So, don't panic if she pretends to be upset, annoyed or insulted due to you seeming confident, happy and enjoying life without her.

Women feel attracted to that because they are attracted to the emotional strength in men, not the weakness.

11. Don't try to get her back just via text

Texting is totally fine as a way of opening up the lines of communication with an ex, or to say some brief things here and there.

Yet, if a guy tries to discuss his way back into a relationship with an ex woman, or tries to attract her during long text conversations, it can be exhausting and stressful for her and will almost always lead to misunderstandings of what the other person actually meant by certain texts.

All that effort can then end up making things worse, rather than better (i.e. she suddenly feels annoyed about having to put in so much effort, in order to interact with a guy she no longer has strong feelings for. As a result, she stops responding or responds on a cold, bitchy or careless way to annoy him, turn him off or make him give up).

So, if you want to get your ex back, it's fine to initially use text, but you need to get to a call at some point (video or audio call), rather than just sticking to text.

A call cuts through all the misunderstandings and allows you to instantly begin re-attracting her based on your confidence, masculinity, humor, flirting and so on.

She then naturally wants to meet up in person, so she can experience the new you in person, which makes it so much easier for you to get her back.

My Girlfriend Broke Up With Me for Her Ex Who Didn't Treat Her Well: 6 Reasons Why

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 6 common reasons why a woman will do that and how you can get her back:

1. She thought she wanted a nice guy like you, but she just didn't feel right about it

Initially, the idea of being with a nice guy who is the opposite of her ex in many ways, may have appealed to her because she was tired of being treated so badly.

Yet, eventually when the pain of the break up started to fade away and she felt more optimistic about her life, she began to realize that even though you're a really good guy who treats her well, something just wasn't right.

In many cases, it will be due to the fact that she has so much power over you (e.g. she can treat you badly and you will put up with it because you're such a nice guy, or because you don't want to screw up your chances with her, or because you don't care and just want to get to spend time with her).

Alternatively, you have tried to stand up for yourself when she wasn't treating you well, but she easily shot you down because of her confident, assertive personality, or because you felt like you just had to accept it because she is an attractive woman.

As a result, she felt drawn to her ex because even though he didn't treat her well, he was at least emotionally more dominant than her and didn't allow her to walk all over him.

She knew that he could dump her at any moment, which motivated her to be a good girl to him and try to impress him.

Of course, that doesn't mean you have to become a jerk and treat her badly like her ex did, in order to get her back.

Instead, you simply need to show her that you're now a much more confident, ballsy and assertive guy, while still being good to her.

In other words, be a good guy with balls, or a good guy who is confident, masculine (in your energy, behavior and actions) and unafraid of how she might react (e.g. with tantrums).

If you can't man up like that even a little, she simply won't feel the kind of attraction for you that will make her want you more than her ex.

However, if you are willing to man up and let her experience it, then she will immediately begin to think and feel differently about you.

She will also realize that you are a better option than her ex, because you are also a good man, which is what a woman really wants.

It's just that a woman doesn't want a good man who is wimpy, or bows down to her assertive personality.

She wants a good man with a backbone, who she can genuinely rely on to be the strong one now and in the long run in their life together.

If a man is unable to provide a woman like her with that kind of feeling, she just won't want to be with him.

2. Due to the attraction she feels for her ex, she doesn't care that he treated her badly

[image: Due to the attraction she feels for her ex, she doesn't care that he treated her badly]

[image: Due to the attraction she feels for her ex, she doesn't care that he treated her badly]

When a guy can make a woman feel primal sexual and romantic attraction for him (i.e. due to his masculine way of being, which in turn makes her feel feminine), she will struggle to let him go or forget about him, especially if she only meets men who are afraid to be masculine around her and instead, end up behaving more like a friend, or worse, very similar to her (e.g. giggly like a girl, emotional like a woman, unable to make clear decisions under pressure, cry when life gets tough).

So, if her bad guy ex wants her back, she will usually give him a chance and hope to change him, or hope that he has changed and will now treat her the way he should have all along.

Sometimes that result in a couple having a happy, loving, lifelong relationship with each other from then on.

However, in most cases, the bad guy doesn't change (i.e. because he doesn't know how to, doesn't really care enough about the woman to be bothered to try, is a bad person at his core, has deep issues that he isn't willing to or mature enough to address or overcome).

As a result, they will almost certainly break up again.

Yet, that doesn't mean you should sit around waiting for your girlfriend to break up with him and hope that she comes running back to you.

Instead, the best and most manly way to approach it is to interact with her and focus on sparking her feelings of attraction for you (e.g. by being confident, but also a bit of a challenge to her so she feels like she has to try to keep you interested or to impress you, being playful and fun to be around rather than being too serious), so she naturally feels drawn to you and wants you back.

In a case like yours, she might not come back on day one, but she will be thinking about you and missing you.

I've heard back from hundreds of guys in your situation and they usually get their ex woman back, or at least sleep with her again within a week or two.

So, don't sit around waiting for her to hopefully break up with him and magically want you back.

Instead, be man enough to interact with her, attract her and get her to meet up with you as soon as you can.

If you are prepared and ready to attract her in new ways (e.g. being more of a challenge, flirting in a more attractive way, being a lot more confident than you used to be), then she will naturally see you as the better option compared to her ex who didn't treat her well.

3. You were her rebound

In a case like that, your girlfriend was simply using you to make herself feel better after having her self-esteem crushed by her ex.

It sucks to hear that, but many women do it and so do men.

A woman will get with some random guy (usually a nice guy), to make herself feel better and hopefully regain some of her self-esteem (i.e. due to his compliments, nice treatment of her, devotion to her, etc).

Yet, when a woman like that starts to feel good about herself again because of all the nice treatment, she usually then realizes that she doesn't feel enough sexual and romantic attraction to want to continue on with the relationship.

Here's the thing!

A rebound relationship can last for life.

Throughout history, hundreds of millions of those relationships have worked and remained together for life.

It's not impossible.

A rebound can be turned into a lifetime relationship, but only if the attraction is strong enough.

If the attraction (especially on her side) is weak, or barely there, then she just won't be able to pretend for very long and as a result, a break up will happen at some point.

So, if your girlfriend broke up with you for an ex who didn't treat her well, it almost certainly means the attraction she felt for you wasn't as strong as the attraction she felt for him.

That doesn't mean you can't get her back though.

You can.

When you interact with her and make her feel attracted to you in ways she never felt before, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you.

Even though she may have previously thought of you as a rebound, she will suddenly start imagining what it would be like to give you another chance.

If she doesn't give you that chance right away, the attraction will remain with her and she will begin to worry that you are the one and she is going to regret losing you for the rest of her life.

As a result, she will contact you, or show that she is open to meeting up with you.

You can then get her back and make the relationship work this time around.

4. She wasn't really ever over him and when she had a chance to get back with him, she took it

That often happens if the woman got dumped by her when she was still in love with him and as a result, she never fully committed to her boyfriend.

Instead, she just accepted him, even though she believed he wasn't ideal for her, because it felt safe to be in a relationship without the highs and lows she experienced with her ex (e.g. they were very much in love and happy together, but he then treated her badly, which led to a lot of arguments, tears, stress and unhappiness).

She wasn't totally in love with her new boyfriend, but it felt better than having to go through all the stress she did with her ex.

So, she just went along with it, while secretly missing her ex and wondering why he remained on her mind.

In other cases, a woman will get with a new guy to hopefully make her ex jealous.

She will think something like, “Maybe the shock of losing me to another man will force my ex to realize how much he loves me and what he’s losing. Maybe he will then change and try to get me back. If he does, I will give him another chance.”

Then, when her ex reacts in the way she was secretly hoping her would (i.e. he seems to have changed and wants her back), she doesn’t hesitate to get back with him because that was her intention all along.

Of course, if her new boyfriend (who has just been dumped) knows how to attract her in ways that he previously couldn’t (e.g. being more of a challenge, making her feel girly in comparison to his masculine approach to her) or wouldn’t (i.e. because he thought it was wrong to treat a woman in that way), she will view him as being better than her ex who didn’t treat her well.

5. She didn’t like where the relationship was headed with you

[image: She didn’t like where the relationship was headed with you]

[image: She didn’t like where the relationship was headed with you]

For example: Here are some red flags in a relationship that can cause a woman to want to break up with a guy:

- She felt as though she had too much power over him (e.g. she called all the shots and he followed her lead like a puppy dog). That made her feel more like a mother figure to him, or a big sister, rather than feeling like his girl and being able to look up to him and feel safe and protected.
She didn’t feel much of a need to impress him (e.g. because she knew he was so in love with her that he would accept anything, even bad behavior, just to spend time with her).
- She never really felt his confidence during sex, so she worried that it would eventually become boring or even fizzle out.
- She was already beginning to lose interest based on his approach to the relationship (e.g. he was too needy and clingy, he tried to control her too much, he always seemed to need emotional support from her, he didn’t know how to handle her moods or tantrums and would become emotionally sensitive, confused or irritable. Alternatively, he would suck up to her and treat her even more nicely, in the hope that she would take pity on him and treat him better. Yet, pity does not create attraction in a woman and instead, makes a woman grow resentful and angry towards a man, regardless of how nice he is being to her).

So, if your girlfriend noticed red flags in the relationship, she may have decided that it just wouldn’t work out in the long run, unless you were truly able to change and level up as a man.

If she felt as though you weren’t able to change, or had no idea what to change, she will have naturally begun to feel drawn to her ex who made her feel more attracted due to not making the red flag mistakes that you did.

Of course, he’s not perfect and she knows that.

It’s just that attraction is what brings men and women together and if your approach made her feel a lot less attracted than he did, then she will naturally want to be back with him instead.

6. She never planned on being loyal to you, even though she acted like she did

Some of a woman will do that:

- She's the kind of girl doesn't feel bad about using guys to give herself an ego boost.
- She was using you to make her ex jealous and want her back.
- She doesn't like being single so will often accept a guy that she's not fully attracted or compatible with, until she can find someone else who is, or until she can get back with her ex.
- She knew you were lovestruck by her and would treat her better if you thought she felt the same way, or would be willing to commit to you further if you continued to treat her well. Yet, she never planned on committing all the way with you because she wants to be lovestruck for a guy and hoping to get him to commit.

So, she always secretly planned on breaking up with you, even though she acted like she was happy, or as though you were doing a good job of winning her over.

It might hurt to realize that, but the good news is that, even if your ex never intended to be loyal to you in past, it doesn't mean that you can't make her want to be loyal and commit to you now.

You just need to give her the right motivation (i.e. the right kind of attraction that she truly seeks when around a man).

When you make her feel that way, sticking with her ex who doesn't treat her well will automatically seem like a bad decision and a waste of her time.

Additionally, she will fear that if another quality woman meets you and experiences the kind of attraction you can now offer, she will immediately try to get with you and secure you into a relationship.

As a result, your ex feels the urgency needed to want to get back with you quickly.

2 Mistakes Guys Often Make When Their Girlfriend Leaves Them for a Previous Ex Boyfriend

1. Not using the power of the Contrast Principle

The Contrast Principle is essentially a way of making someone see one option as being more favorable and desirable, when compared with a worse option (e.g. a rotten apple vs. a clean, fresh, ripe apple)

The Contrast Principle something that people encounter all day, every day, in all kinds of situations in life.

In this case (i.e. with your girlfriend), when a woman has the choice between two men, she will automatically compare and contrast you and him against each other.

She won't be contrasting you and him against every other man on the planet, but against each other.

If you seem like the better option to her, then he will seem like a worse option and she will therefore feel more drawn to you.

In most cases, the man that a woman wants will have qualities such as confidence, charm, emotional masculinity and will be a bit of a challenge (i.e. he won't always say yes to whatever she wants, he will playfully mess with her at times, rather than always giving her a straightforward answer, he will make her feel the need to impress him).

So, if you have the courage to interact with your girlfriend and display qualities that will make him seem less attraction in comparison to you, she will naturally begin to feel more drawn to you.

However, if you make the mistake of cutting off contact and just waiting and hoping for her to want you back, then you'll most likely end up disappointed.

Why?

Almost all women do not go back to a guy they dumped due to a lack of attraction.

A lack of attraction is what lead to the break up and an activation of new attraction is what will lead her back to you.

So, don't make the mistake of avoiding using the Contrast Principle to your advantage.

2. Feeling like it would be needy to contact her and re-attract her back

It's not needy to calmly and confidently go after what you want in life, including her.

What is needy is if a guy contacts his ex girlfriend and begs, pleads or tells her that he can't live without her, or asks how she could leave him and go back to the guy who didn't treat her well.

Likewise, it's also needy if a guy constantly texts or calls his ex girlfriend and tries to convince her to give him another chance, or make her feel sorry for him based on how sad, lost or upset he is about the break up.

That's needy because the guy needs her emotional support or acceptance to feel okay about himself again.

Yet, what isn't needy is when a man is confident, brave and emotionally strong enough to contact his ex girlfriend, focus on re-attracting her and then get her to want to meet up with him in person.

Then, in person, he builds on her attraction and makes her feel like she wants (and even needs) him back.

That's how real men get their ex women back.

So, don't think you'll be seen as needy for taking control of the situation like a man.

Be a man and get her back while you still can.

My Ex is Keeping in Touch With People Close to Me: 7 Reasons Why

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 7 common reasons why a woman will stay in touch with people close to her ex:

1. She is trying to make herself feel less lonely as she deals with losing you and the relationship

Breaking up with someone often means that you lose the person, as well as the friendships you had with their family and friends.

That can be difficult for some women to handle, especially in cases where a woman doesn't have many friends (e.g. she is shy and struggles to make friends, has a small social circle, isn't very close with her own friends), or isn't completely happy with her family relationship (e.g. she's an orphan and doesn't like her adoptive parents, isn't very close with her biological family, hates her biological parents).

In a case like that, a woman might keep in touch with people close to her ex because she needs the emotional connection while she tries to deal with losing him and the relationship.

Yet, once she begins to heal from the pain of the break up and also possibly starts making new friends and/or dating again, she will almost certainly stop keeping in touch with people close to her ex.

She may keep them on social media and have rare interactions with them, but they will have served their purpose (i.e. made her feel less alone as she worked on getting over the relationship) and now she is focused on her new boyfriend and the new friend and family relationships that come with him.

2. She is simply contacting them out of habit

[image: She is simply contacting them out of habit]

[image: She is simply contacting them out of habit]

In some cases, (e.g. when a relationship was close/serious and lasted for a long time), a man's family and friends will become an important part of a woman's life as well.

She will develop the habit of including them in group texts (e.g. when she forwards a funny meme or message via Whatsapp), or check their social media posts regularly and click "like" or comment.

She may even be the kind of person who likes to talk over the phone a lot and randomly calls friends to chat about her day.

In a case like that, a woman can be in the habit of occasionally calling or texting some of the people who are close to her ex.

It's not about him though.

It's about her.

She likes doing that, so she's doing it.

In her mind, she may be thinking, “I broke up with him and not everyone else,” so she doesn’t see a problem with it.

3. She is staying in touch to be nice, but it won’t last for long

Basically, she’s a good person and doesn’t want to give them (people close to her ex) the impression that she was being nice to them simply because of her relationship with him.

However, when she gets a new boyfriend and moves on, she will feel less and less motivated to stay in touch with people who are close to her ex.

She will be involved with a new group of people and as a result, she will focus more on spending time getting to know them and building relationships with them, rather than on keeping in touch with the people close to him.

Alternatively, she may eventually want to avoid giving her new boyfriend any reason to feel jealous or uncomfortable, so she will gradually stop contacting anyone associated with her ex.

Of course, if your ex is one of those women, you can use that to your advantage so you can reactivate her feelings for you and get her back.

How?

Get her on a call and reawaken her sexual and romantic feelings and then get her to agree to catch up with you as friends.

Being a nice person, she will almost certainly agree to that request, especially due to the fact that she is feeling sparks for you again.

Then, at the meet up, make sure that you continue building on her feelings for you and then hook up with her sexually to make her feel more open to giving you and the relationship another chance.

4. She is trying to let you know that she isn’t completely shutting you out of her life yet

When a woman hates her ex, she will usually cut him and anyone associated with him completely out of her life.

Basically, she wants to make it clear to him that it’s over and there’s absolutely no chance of them getting back together again.

So, if a woman keeps in touch with people close to her ex, it can often be her way of keeping the door open between them for a little while.

She may be secretly hoping that he will do something to change her mind (i.e. contact her and attract her in the ways she really wants) and let her realize that they really can work things out after all.

Alternatively, she might just be letting him know that they can still be friends, even though they’re no longer together.

Whatever the case is for you though, it’s essential that you don’t sit around wondering, “Why is my ex keeping in touch with people close to me? What does it mean?” and then not doing anything about it.

Instead, have the confidence to contact her and re-attract her.

Use every interaction you have with her to reawaken some of her feelings and make her feel open up to the idea of giving the relationship another try.

You can do that byâ€¦|

- Being cool and confident no matter how she responds to you, so she remembers what attracted her to you in the first place (if you were a confident guy, but then lost confidence), or so she feels as though you really have changed (if you were an insecure guy, but have now become confident).
- Being playful and fun to talk to, rather than making the conversation feel tense or stressful.
- Not being afraid to joke around and tease her (in a loving, attractive way), rather than trying to be on your best behavior to hopefully get her to take pity on you. Women donâ€™t want to be with a guy out of pity. Women want to be with a guy due to feelings of attraction. Attraction can be sparked in a woman via humor and playfully challenging behavior.
- Adding in some flirting, so she realizes that that sexual spark between you isnâ€™t dead, rather than just being neutral like a friend and making her think that there isnâ€™t enough of a spark for you and her to get back together, or at least hook up again.

The more attracted and happy she feels when interacting with you, the more her defenses come down. She realizes that thereâ€™s no point trying to remain broken up with you because she misses you and feels drawn to you.

As a result, she opens up to hooking up with you, or getting back into a relationship.

5. She is just trying to mess with you

[image: She is just trying to mess with you]

[image: She is just trying to mess with you]

If your ex feels angry or resentful over the break up and what led up to it, she may want to hurt you to get revenge.

As a result, she might choose to keep in touch with people close to you as a way of sowing seeds of doubt in your mind.

For example: She hopes you will think, â€œDoes this mean she still has feelings for me? Is it still possible for us to work things out now? Is she trying to signal to me to contact her?â€

If you then wait around (e.g. for weeks or months) for her to give you a clearer sign that she wants you back, she will almost certainly just move on without you.

Then when you find out that she has moved on, not only will you have wasted a lot of time waiting for her, but you will also likely feel rejected/dumped once again.

She will then have gotten her revenge.

Donâ€™t let that happen to you.

Realize that even when a woman has lost respect, attraction and love for a man to the point where she wants to mess with his head to hurt him after breaking up with him, it doesnâ€™t mean he canâ€™t make her change how she feels and get her back.

He can because feelings change all the time.

All it takes is a real spark of attraction to make it difficult for her to carry on with her plan (i.e.

because it's almost impossible to continually push away someone who you feel sexually and romantically attracted to and don't want to lose).

She begins to wonder what it would feel like to be around the new and improved you, what it would feel like to be in your arms or to have sex with you again.

When that happens, she will struggle to stop herself from getting in touch with you and hinting at wanting to see you in person, even though she previously thought that she was over you.

6. They've been contacting her out of habit and she's been replying

This can be because she's part of their social media group and they just can't be bothered to go and unfriend her from their account, or block her on their phone.

Alternatively, some people simply aren't as attuned to what goes on around them and won't even know that you've broken up.

In other cases, they don't feel like they need to be loyal to you and stop contacting her just because the relationship has ended.

In other cases still, because the woman is a generally nice and polite person, she doesn't have the heart to tell them that she doesn't want them to keep in touch with her due to the break up.

So, the interactions continue back and forth out of habit, or politeness.

Of course, eventually the interactions will likely fade away as life moves on and other people or things become more important (e.g. she gets a new boyfriend and stops responding to them, they begin to forget about her because they don't see her anymore) and your ex will fully be out of your life at that stage.

If you don't want that to happen, then take action now while you're still on her mind (even if it's via the people close to you) by reactivating her feelings for you and getting her back.

7. She likes a guy you know and is trying to remain on his radar

She is hoping that if she sticks around and he knows that you and her have broken up, he will eventually make a move and ask her out.

Yet, if he doesn't make a move (e.g. because he doesn't like her in the way she likes him, he's loyal to you and doesn't want to cause problems between you, he doesn't realize she has feelings for him, he's insecure and doubts that a woman like her would like him), she may eventually get tired of waiting and stop keeping in touch with everyone so she can move on and make a fresh start with someone new.

3 Mistakes Men Often Make When an Ex Woman Stays in Touch With People Close to Him

1. Assuming that if he just waits long enough, she will contact him too

Although that is a possibility in some cases, a woman usually won't get in touch with an ex that she's broken up with.

Some of the reasons why:

Although she likes his friends and family and wants to keep them in her life, she doesn't like him/feel attracted to him anymore, so she doesn't see any point to staying in touch.

She doesn't want to encourage him to try and get her back.

She doesn't want to risk being rejected by him if he decides to ignore her.

She doesn't want to make it easy for him. Instead, she wants to see if he's man enough to take the lead, re-attract her and get her back without any encouragement from her.

That is why, it's always best to take action and pursue a woman in a calm, confident, masculine manner, rather than to waiting around to 'see what happens,' or hoping that she takes on the manly role and has the courage to ask you out, or try to get back with you.

If you don't take action while you still can, she will almost certainly move on with someone else and you may end up missing out on your chance to get her back.

2. Over-analyzing comments she makes on friend's social media posts, or things he hears about her from friends

If you sit around overanalyzing everything your ex says to friends, or comments or posts online to understand her state of mind and her intentions, you will end up driving yourself crazy.

Why?

Women usually aren't very direct and honest regarding romance and will be vague, say contradictory things, say something emotional just for the heck of it and say the opposite of what they actually mean or truly think.

It's just how women are.

Women aren't like men.

So, don't over analyze what she has been posting, commenting or saying to people you know.

Instead, understand that when it comes to getting a woman back, you need to focus on what you're doing, not on what she's doing.

That's what a real man does.

A real man doesn't get caught up in what the woman is saying or doing, to hopefully follow her.

He leads, he is the courageous one and he goes after what he wants in a calm, confident and masculine manner.

In other words, he doesn't get all emotional like a woman, sit around worrying or losing sleep and driving himself crazy.

He gets clear on what he wants, figures out the best plan of action to get her back and then follows through on in a confident manner.

3. Waiting too long to make a move and then regretting it for the rest of his life

The guys who don't ever work up the courage to re-attract their ex woman, will usually end up missing out on their chance to get her back and then regret it for the rest of their life.

I've literally heard from men who still miss an ex girlfriend from 20, 30 or even 40 years ago.

They didn't know what to do to get her back, or didn't have the courage to go after what they wanted and get her back.

Don't let yourself be one of those men.

If you want her back, be courageous enough to take the lead and make it happen while you still can.

Break Up Because of Age Difference: 10 Common Reasons Why

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 10 common reasons why a couple will break up due to age differences:

1. Even though the man was older, the woman felt as though he wasn't emotionally mature enough

In some cases, a woman will get into a relationship with an older man because she believes that he's at a maturity level most guys her age haven't reached yet.

For example: She might assume he's

- Is over his partying days and is more ready to settle down and start a family.
- Has decided what he wants out of life and is already making progress on achieving that (i.e. has clear goals, dreams and a purpose in life, rather than drifting along, hanging out with friends and just wasting time like many younger guys do, or feeling uncertain and unsure of what he wants to do).
- Is financially better off, or at least knows how to invest for the future.
- Will be able to take care of her.
- Is more responsible.
- Is more confident and emotionally strong.
- Is more comforting and supportive.

Yet, age doesn't necessarily ensure that a person is more mature emotionally.

So, a younger woman may end up feeling shocked to discover that the older man she fell for, isn't living up to her expectations (e.g. he behaves a lot like the younger guys she's dated, doesn't have a clear purpose in life, has failed at his attempts to become successful, or has become successful and thinks that he doesn't have to put in much effort into a relationship now because he's valuable).

As a result, she may decide to break up with him and look to find a man who is more emotionally mature in the ways that are important to her.

2. The man used his older age as an excuse to act like a controlling, bossy father figure

[image: The man used his older age as an excuse to act like a controlling, bossy father figure]

[image: The man used his older age as an excuse to act like a controlling, bossy father figure]

For example: He might

- Tell her what she can and cannot wear.

- Restrict who she's allowed to hang out with and when.
- Tell her what she should do with her life.
- Scold, or even punish her (e.g. stop talking to her, no longer support her, get very angry at her, cancel something he'd promised her, or treat her badly) if she makes a mistake, or doesn't do what she's told.
- Expect her to always do what he says, even though she doesn't want to, because it's for her own good and because, he knows better than her.

Of course, some women (e.g. a woman who has daddy issues and is looking for a father figure in her life), will accept that kind of relationship and stick with a man like that.

However, the majority of women will eventually get fed up with a guy who is controlling, tells her what to do, or treats her like an irresponsible child.

One of the reasons why is that most women will act like they need a man to take care of them, but in reality, they are perfectly capable of taking care of themselves.

Women do that because it creates an enjoyable sexual and romantic dynamic for a relationship, where the man is protecting her and keeping her safe from the big bad world out there, which makes him feel strong, proud and important and makes her feel safe, attracted and loved.

Yet, it doesn't mean that the woman can't take care of herself, or is stupid.

So, if a woman gets into a relationship with an older man who is too controlling, or treats her like a naive, stupid child, she will lose respect for him for taking the dynamic way too far.

She will usually then choose to break up with him because she's an individual, she's not stupid and is not his property.

The man who gets dumped in a situation like that will often then beg, plead, cry to her or will become angry at her and try to control her further.

Yet, both of those approaches will just push her away further.

What works in a situation like that is when a man has the maturity to laugh at himself, apologize to her and let her know that he was silly to behave like that.

Then, let her know that he accepts the break up, is sorry for treating her that way and wishes her all the best.

As a result, she realizes that he understands his mistake, is being mature about it and deserves her respect.

When she feels respect for him again, her attraction comes back and she begins to fall in love with him again.

When that happens, she realizes that it would be a mistake to walk away from him because he's clearly a confident, mature man who simply made a mistake.

Another reason for a break up due to age difference is

3. The older man couldn't keep up with the younger woman's desire to have fun and enjoy life

Some younger women are happy to have a calm, laid-back relationship (e.g. stay home most of the time, go out to restaurants for dinner sometimes, occasionally hang out with friends who are married or in a relationship) with an older man.

However, in some cases, a younger woman may want her and her older man to keep up with younger couples that she knows (e.g. her friends or coworkers).

For example: She might want toâ

- Go partying and get wasted drunk sometimes.
- Stay up very late even though they have to go to work the next day.
- Have sex for hours, or experiment with challenging positions just for the fun of it.
- Be a bit irresponsible (e.g. pack up and go away on vacation in the spur of the moment, skip work, eat fattening foods, drive a little too fast sometimes, be impolite to people sometimes) without worrying about the consequences.
- Participate in physically challenging activities like skydiving, surfing, rock climbing, physical sports, etc.
- Act a little silly or crazy sometimes just for the fun of it (e.g. joke around a little too much, throw a tantrum, drink a little too much).

If she notices that her older guy canâ have fun and enjoy life in the way that she wants, she may eventually decide to break up with him and look for a younger man who can hopefully keep up with her.

4. The older man never really wanted to settle down with her

Many older men whoâve been through a divorce, or who have had a lot of relationships break up in the past, will often develop a distrust of women in relationships.

As a result, they will lean towards being a player, or giving a younger woman the impression that they are in love with her and want to build a life with her.

That will last as long as she doesnâ push him for a serious commitment.

If she starts talking about marriage or children, a man like that will quickly pull away and focus on finding himself a replacement woman who just wants a casual relationship.

5. The woman thought she wanted an older guy, but couldnâ stop feeling more attracted to men her own age

[image: The woman thought she wanted an older guy, but couldnâ stop feeling more attracted to men her own age]

[image: The woman thought she wanted an older guy, but couldnâ stop feeling more attracted to men her own age]

Some reasons why:

- She now feels that she has more in common with guys her own age.
- She perceives the relationship with him as being like that of a parent/child rather than a boyfriend/girlfriend, which she now knows is a turn off to her.

- She finds him mentally attractive, but is more physically attracted to younger men.
- She finds him physically attractive, but is more emotionally attracted to younger men (e.g. younger men seem a bit more adventurous, open minded and daring compared to her older man who is settled in his ways, doesn't want to take any risks and lives by a fairly strict routine).
- There isn't much of a sexual spark between them and she sees him as being her friend rather than her lover.

So, rather than stick around in the relationship and feel like she's missing out, or potentially end up cheating, she breaks up with him instead.

6. The relationship became boring

In some cases, a relationship starts off feeling fun and exciting, but the romantic and sexual spark gradually fizzles out and being together feel dull, boring and predictable.

Alternatively, a couple falls in love and has a great romance, but then ends up feeling more like friends.

So, if a guy gets dumped in a situation like that, he may end up assuming that the break up was mainly because of the age difference.

Yet, boredom, or ending up feeling more like friends can cause a break up regardless of whether a couple is the same age, or many years or a decade or more apart.

So, ask yourself: Is it possible that the relationship with your ex lost the all important spark of sexual and romantic attraction, which is the real reason why she broke up with you?

Is it possible that you treated her like your girlfriend initially, but ended up treating her more like a friend later on?

The good news is that, regardless of your answer, you can do something about it and get her back. How?

When you reactivate her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you during interactions, she will feel drawn to you again, regardless of the age difference.

Why?

Attraction is what brings men and women together.

Without it, there's no reason to be together in a relationship.

So, if you suspect that the spark of attraction died in the relationship with your ex, some of the ways to bring it back are:

Using humor to make her smile, laugh and feel like she's having fun every time she interacts with you from now on, rather than trying to have serious, deep discussions about what went wrong in the relationship.

Flirting with her to create sexual tension, rather than being too nice, neutral or on your best behavior in the hope of impressing her, or getting her to take pity on you.

Being a good man to her, but also being more of a challenge (i.e. you don't always say or do things to please her, you have the balls to playfully say no to some things she asks of you), so she feels attracted, excited, awakened and motivated to put in some effort to impress you to maintain your interest.

The more you make her feel attracted in new and interesting ways, the more she will open up become to giving you another chance, or at least to hooking up to see if things feel different now.

7. The younger guy wasn't able to mature fast enough to keep up with the older woman

Some young guys can be pretty mature for their age, or are the kind who mature quickly (or grow up fast) when in a relationship with an older woman.

Yet, some guys struggle to get to the same maturity level as their older woman fast enough to maintain her interest.

As a result, she begins to doubt whether he is the right man for her long term.

The thing is, for a relationship to last, there has to be more than just a superficial attraction between the man and woman.

In other words, although a couple might be physically attracted to each other and enjoy each other's company initially, that simply won't be enough to keep the relationship together for life.

For example: For an older woman to want to stick with a younger guy, she needs him to be able to keep up with her level of maturity, so she doesn't feel embarrassed or ashamed to seen with him, or spend time with him around friends or family.

In some cases, an older woman will notice that she's more established in her career, while her younger man seems to be drifting along without knowing what he wants to do.

Initially she might be totally fine with that, but eventually, she starts to feel as though she has to take care of him (i.e. like his mother would) due to his lack of purpose and direction in life.

Additionally, he might even talk to her as though she is like a mentor, or mother figure to him, which will gradually turn her off.

In other cases, an older might be looking for a man to settle down with and if she already has children with someone else, for him to take on the role of a father figure to them.

Yet, her younger man just wants to have fun, party, drink with her and enjoy the sex, without the added responsibilities of getting serious with an older woman.

She usually won't break up with him right away because of that, but if he doesn't begin to mature and be the kind of man that can take on the additional responsibilities of being with her, it will eventually feel wrong for her to stick with him.

8. She thought an older man would understand how to keep a relationship together better than a younger guy, but he wasnâ€™t able to

[image: She thought an older man would understand how to keep a relationship together better than a younger guy, but he wasnâ€™t able to]

[image: She thought an older man would understand how to keep a relationship together better than a younger guy, but he wasnâ€™t able to]

Just because a guy is older, it doesnâ€™t mean he knows how to maintain and build on a womanâ€™s feelings of love, respect and attraction in a relationship.

Some younger women donâ€™t realize that and end up feeling bitterly disappointed when they date an older guy and he ruins the relationship dynamic with his insecurity, or ineffective approach (e.g. being too needy, expecting too much or too little of her, losing control of his emotions too often, being vindictive).

Hereâ€™s the thingâ€¦

A guy can be young (e.g. 18-25) and truly know what it takes to make a woman want to stick with him for life, treat him well and do everything she can to maintain his interest in her (e.g. he believes in his value to her, heâ€™s emotionally independent while also making her feel loved and appreciated, he maintains his confidence regardless of any drama she might be creating to make him feel insecure, he occasionally behaves in a playfully challenging way, which makes her want to impress him and also makes her feel excited and awake when around him).

On the other hand, a guy can be much older (e.g. 40+) and go through one failed relationship to the next, because he hasnâ€™t really leveled up his understanding of what makes a woman feel loved and want to commit to a man for life.

For example: He may just assume that because heâ€™s paid off his house, has a nice car and is able to take her on holidays or vacations, then she should be happy and want to stick with him for life.

Yet, he fails to realize that most men in this world arenâ€™t financially successful, struggle to pay bills, have to save for years to take a holiday, but are still able to have a happy, loving relationship with a woman that lasts for life.

Why?

The majority of what keeps a woman happy, committed and in love is how she feels when she is around her man, rather than what he has achieved or paid off.

Why?

She is in a relationship with him, not with his achievements or possessions.

9. The younger guy wasnâ€™t able to attract women his own age and accepted an older woman

If a woman senses that a younger guy is only with her because he canâ€™t attract women his own age, she will secretly feel turned off.

She may accept his attention and affection initially, but she will privately struggle to feel proud to have attracted to him because women his own age just aren't interested in him.

Here's the thing:

A woman wants to feel that her guy is liked and wanted by women (i.e. he can have his choice of women), but has chosen her.

That makes her feel lucky, special and attracted to him.

Yet, if she senses that he can't attract other women, so he has lowered his standards to accept an older woman, just so he can get laid or get some loving attention, she will gradually begin to feel like she's doing him a favor.

Women don't like to feel like that, even if they secretly see themselves as being unattractive, or not as attractive as they used to be.

Essentially, when a man makes a woman feel that way, he gives her a false sense of superiority over him, which makes her feel like she's too good for him, even though she really isn't.

10. Her family and friends really didn't approve, which eventually became too much for her to handle

Some women put a lot of value into what their family or friends think of her boyfriend.

So, if a woman's family or friends don't approve of her (younger or older) guy, she will eventually break up with him rather than continuing to upset her family and friends, or risk losing their love and support.

Of course, if she's truly attracted and in love with her guy, it won't matter what her family thinks of him, or if they approve.

Instead, she will follow her heart, because she understands that he's a catch (i.e. a real man) and she may end up regretting it for the rest of her life if she lets him go.

10 Best Tips on How to Make Up With Your Girlfriend After You Hurt Her

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Most guys who want to get a girlfriend back have hurt her in some way or another, but are still able to get her back.

For example: If a guy hurts his girlfriend, it will usually be a case of him doing something that shows he didn't truly love her, or wasn't truly committed to her.

It's pretty common and it can be fixed.

So, if you want to make up with your girlfriend, here are the best 10 tips on how to do it:

1. Know that her level of attraction for you will determine how willing she is to forgive you

In other words, if your girlfriend doesn't feel attracted to you anymore, then she won't have much desire to forgive you and give the relationship another chance.

However, if you interact with her and make her experience new feelings of sexual and romantic attraction for you, then it will be in her best interests to forgive you so the relationship can get back together.

Why?

Since she is feeling attracted and drawn to you again, it means that her feelings for you aren't dead.

If she doesn't give you another chance now, then she is going to be missing you and wanting you back.

If she waits too long to give you another chance and you then move on with another woman and are happy, she will end up feeling like the one who got left behind, rejected or dumped.

She doesn't want to feel that kind of pain (i.e. the kind that you've been feeling since she dumped you).

As a result, she opens up to forgiving your mistake(s) to give the relationship another chance while she still can.

This is why, if you want to make up with your girlfriend after hurting her, it's absolutely essential that you focus on making her feel attracted to you during interactions, so she realizes that her feelings for you, are still way too strong to continue going through with a break up.

Some of the ways you can make her feel attracted are by:

Being confident and believing in your value to her, rather than feeling unsure of yourself and filling your head with negative thoughts like, "I've really stuffed things up so badly" or, "What if she never forgives me?"

Flirting with her (e.g. playfully teasing her) to create so much sexual tension between you that she wants to release it with hugging, kissing and sex.

Not being afraid to use humor when talking to her (even if she is in a bad mood, or is being cold), so she can't help but feel happier when talking to you.

Remaining calm and easy-going when she acts cold or aloof towards you.

The more you make her feel attracted again, the more willing she will be to forgive you.

Yet, if you just talk to her in a nice, friendly way or over-apologize for hurting her and end up seeming desperate, then she won't be feel much or any attraction.

Therefore, she will be much less likely to forgive you and give the relationship another chance.

2. Be aware that sometimes a woman will act like she is unwilling to forgive her boyfriend, even when she is

[image: Be aware that sometimes a woman will act like she is unwilling to forgive her boyfriend, even when she is]

[image: Be aware that sometimes a woman will act like she is unwilling to forgive her boyfriend, even when she is]

Some of the reasons why a woman might act that way are:

- She wants to temporarily punish him for the pain he put her through.
- She's afraid he will hurt her again if she gets back with him.
- She doesn't want to give in too quickly and give him the impression that what he did wasn't very serious after all. If he thinks that, he may then assume she was just putting on an act about being upset and hurt to make him chase her. Therefore, he won't feel like he made much of a mistake and potentially might do it again and again in future.
- She worries that he only wants her to forgive him so he can feel better about behaving like such a jerk, rather than actually being genuinely sorry for what he did.
- She wants to test him (by initially being unwilling to give him another chance) to see if he has changed and improved some of the things that caused her to dump him, or if he's just pretending to have changed so he can get another chance for now.
- She wants to hopefully gain some more power in the relationship, by making him try hard to get her back.
- She is trying to impress her girlfriends by seeming like a confident, independent woman who doesn't put up with bad treatment from a man. Secretly, she misses her boyfriend and wants him back, but wants to act tough or carefree about it all now, to gain some respect and admiration from her friends.
- She wants to see if her boyfriend will become insecure and begin begging and pleading, or if he'll maintain the type of confidence and masculinity that caused her to fall in love with him in the first place.

So, if your girlfriend doesn't seem willing to forgive you, it doesn't mean you're doomed and can't get another chance with her.

If you remain confident and focus on re-attracting her, she will feel motivated to give in and forgive you to get the relationship back together.

However, if you panic, feel insecure and begin pleading with her, she can literally begin to change her mind and become unwilling to forgive you (i.e. because she is turned off by your approach to get her back).

This is why, it's essential that you remain confident no matter what and focus on making her feel a renewed sense of attraction for you.

3. Do apologize to her, but don't grovel, suck up to her or become desperate

When a guy grovels and becomes desperate, his apology will usually be full of rushed excuses (e.g. â€œIâ€™m sorry. I did it because I love you so muchâ€) or big promises (e.g. â€œIâ€™m sorry. I promise Iâ€™ll never do it again. I will do anything you want. Please just give me a chanceâ€), which isn't what a woman really wants to hear.

A woman wants to see her boyfriend remaining calm, confident and in control, while also being sincere about what he is saying to her.

So, the best approach when apologizing is to:

- Remain calm and confident.
- Keep the apology brief.
- Be sincere.
- Accept what you did as being a silly mistake that you've now learned from.
- Don't immediately ask her for another chance.
- Don't ramble on about your feelings for her.
- Focus on turning the conversation back to laughter and feel good emotions as soon as possible.

By apologizing to your girlfriend like that, you will let her see that you've already changed and become more of a man than you were before.

You have learned your lesson and aren't making the additional mistake of groveling, pleading or begging her to forgive you.

Instead, you're being a man about it and that is attractive to her.

Approaching it in that way automatically sparks new feelings of respect and attraction for you, which then causes her to stop focusing on how badly you hurt her.

Instead, she begins focusing on her love and desire for you, which makes it easier for her to forgive you, so the relationship can get back together.

4. Understand that if you cut off contact, she may see that as another betrayal or insult to her

Some guys use the No Contact Rule (i.e. not contacting a woman for 30 days after a break up) to hopefully make their girlfriend come running back.

Yet, in case where a woman dumped a guy for hurting her, using the No Contact Rule after a break up can make it seem as though he doesn't even care enough to try and get her back, or at least contact her and apologize.

As a result, his ex girlfriend may then decide to get revenge by finding herself another man as quickly as possible and then posting photos of him and her looking happy and in love on social media, to rub it in his face.

Alternatively, if he does finally contact her (e.g. after a few weeks or months), she might ignore his messages and refuse to answer his calls, which then makes it more difficult for him to re-attract her and get the relationship back together.

So, if you want your girlfriend to forgive you and give you another chance after hurting her, you stand a much better chance of that happening by staying in her life and re-attracting her compared to just ignoring her.

5. Level up your understanding of what makes a woman feel loved and want to commit to a man for life

Then, let her experience your new and improved approach the next time you interact with her.

For example: Some of the things that make a woman feel loved and want to commit to a man for life, include:

- He is loving, caring and attentive towards her, but is also enough of a challenge to motivate her to put in the effort to be a good woman and treat him well, or else he will lose interest in her. That is the ideal balance that women want, but many men don't do it because they can't be bothered (i.e. he just wants to be neutral with her like a friend), or because he fears that she won't like it if he's anything other than nice and agreeable.
- He lets her have her way sometimes, but doesn't tolerate bad behavior or her being disrespectful towards him (i.e. he lets her know if she has stepped over the line and is now being disrespectful).
- He maintains his confidence when she tries to make him feel insecure by teasing him, being distant or creating drama.
- He doesn't lose control of his emotions and get upset when she's moody or throws a tantrum.
- He makes her feel sexy, wanted and desired, rather than taking her for granted or treating her like a friend or buddy.
- He believes in himself and in his value to her, rather than losing confidence in the relationship and becoming clingy and needy as a result.

These are just a few of the things that make a woman feel loved and want to stick with a man in a relationship.

So, make sure that you prepare yourself to let her sense that you now get all of that.

If she senses that you even get half of it, then she'll feel enough attraction to want to forgive you.

If you get more of it and are able to let her sense it based on how you now talk to her, react to her and behave in general, she will see you as the one and know that it would be a mistake to leave you.

6. Show sincere care about her feelings, but don't let her make it out to be worse than it was

[image: Show sincere care about her feelings, but don't let her make it out to be worse than it was]

[image: Show sincere care about her feelings, but don't let her make it out to be worse than it was]

Some women make a mistake that a guy made out to be way worse than it actually is.

A woman might do this to gain power over a guy, test his confidence and masculinity and see how he will react when under that kind of pressure.

How you react will directly affect her level of attraction, respect and love for you.

So, calmly acknowledge that some aspects of your actions, behavior and the way you treated her caused her pain and then gently turn the conversation back to laughter and smiling as soon as possibly.

By doing approach it in that way, it shows her that you're not going to allow her create unnecessary drama over what happened.

Instead, you've admitted your mistake, learned from the experience and have already taken steps to become a better, more emotionally mature man.

As a result, she won't be able to stop herself from naturally feeling respect for you again.

When she respects you, she then feels more attracted to you and becomes open to forgiving your mistakes and giving the relationship another chance.

7. Understand that if she truly loves you, she will miss being around you

That's why it's best to apologize, show her that you care, re-attract her and then give her a few days of space to miss you.

During those 3 or so days, she will have a chance to stop focusing on all the ways you stuffed up and begin to miss the things she likes about you (e.g. the way you make her feel protected and safe when she's with you, how you're so ambitious and hard-working, that you were always kind and respectful towards her friends and family, that you're a really good guy, the way you always know how to make her laugh and smile when she's having a bad day, how she feels when having sex with you, your scent, your smile, the intelligent, interesting or fun conversations you and her used to have).

By giving her time to realize that she does miss you and that you're not all bad, she becomes more open to forgiving you.

It then becomes easy for you to re-attract her and make her want you sexually and romantically again.

Important: Don't make the mistake of thinking that if 3 days will make her miss you, then waiting even longer will definitely make her miss you more.

Sometimes that will work, but in most cases, a woman will feel resentful, annoyed and revengeful if her ex doesn't try to get her back after more than a week.

She will usually then put in the effort to get over him and move on (i.e. date other men), rather than waiting around and risk getting hurt again.

She may also just start dating or sleeping with a guy who is interested in her, to ensure that when her ex does contact her, she has something to hurt him with and protect herself with.

So, while it's fine to give her a little bit of space, don't go overboard with it.

Additionally, don't give her space if you haven't re-attracted her yet, or if you feel as though she isn't attracted to you anymore.

How much attraction she feels for you will determine how much she misses you.

8. Tell her that you love her, but will accept the break up if she can't forgive you

By saying that to her, you're letting her know that even though you do love her, miss her and want her back, you're not going to beg and plead if she isn't interested.

As a result:

- She automatically feels respect and attraction for you again, for being an emotionally strong and mature about the situation, rather than being needy and desperate.
- She feels a little rejected and sad that you would just walk away from her without a fight and makes her question whether what happened (i.e. how you hurt her) is worth losing you over forever.
- She imagines what it will be like for her to go out and find another man like you, invest a lot of her time in a relationship and then potentially find out that he's not right for her after all.
- She worries that she won't ever find another man who can mature, level up and become an even better man as quickly as you have.

As a result, her defenses come down and she becomes open to forgiving you and working things out.

9. Don't see yourself as being a horrible man if you simply made a mistake

For example: A guy may have been angry and said something hurtful to his girlfriend, put her down in front of family or friends or lied to her about something that he couldn't work up the courage to be truthful about.

Instead of seeing yourself as a horrible boyfriend, you need to understand that everyone makes mistakes in a relationship sometimes.

However, what turns a guy into a great man is when he learns from his mistakes and becomes an even better man as a result.

So, instead of beating yourself up over what happened, use it as motivation to help you quickly (i.e. within the next week at the most) become the kind of man that your girlfriend wants to forgive.

10. Don't lose touch with the cool confident side of yourself that she was attracted to in the first place

When a guy gets dumped because he hurt his girlfriend, he might decide that the only way to convince her that he's truly sorry, is by being super nice, agreeable and polite from now on.

Yet, by acting like that, he stops displaying the qualities that attracted her to him in the first place (e.g. he was a bit of a challenge, he didn't always agree with everything she had to say, he stood up to her when she was out of line, he had a rugged, manly type of confidence, he knew she wanted him).

As a result, she doesn't feel attracted to him in the way she used to and begins to realize that if she got back with him, he would be unattractive to her now.

Here's the thing!

Even though a woman doesn't want to be with a guy who treats her badly, she also doesn't want to be with a guy who is an emotional wuss.

So, don't think you have to suck up to her and be on your best behavior to get another chance.

That will further ruin her feelings for you.

Instead, what you need to do is mix in some of your original behavior that attracted her to you in the first place, as well as being treating her better and being more loving and kind from now on.

When you do that, her walls naturally come down and she feels that she can trust you to be the man she can depend on from now on.

Was the Break Up My Fault or Hers? 14 Clues to Look For

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Sometimes a break up is the fault of one person, who has either broken the trust or ruined the feelings of the other person.

Yet, in most cases, even though one person is more to blame, both will have played a part in the breakdown of the relationship.

So, if you want to know whether it was your fault, her fault or the fault of both of you, here are 14 questions to ask yourself:

1. Did you take her love for granted?

Sometimes, a guy doesn't put enough effort into his relationship with a woman (e.g. he doesn't contribute enough to their progress as a couple, he takes more love than he gives, he stops being as nice as he was in the beginning, he expects her to put up with his annoying or unattractive behavior), which can then cause a woman to feel taken for granted and like he doesn't appreciate her, or what she does for him.

That can eventually lead to her breaking up with him, rather than sticking with a relationship that makes her feel unloved and unappreciated.

If you can relate to taking her for granted and you feel like she kept being good to you, then the break up was likely more your fault than hers.

The good news though, is that the mistake you made isn't unforgivable.

Most guys can get another chance with an ex woman after taking her for granted, but you have to approach it correctly to make it work.

For example: Don't go from being a bit of an asshole, to being super nice and sucking up to her because that will just turn her off more.

Women aren't attracted to desperation in men, so you have to interact with her again and be good to her, but don't go overboard with it.

The most important thing to focus on is making her feel sparks of sexual and romantic attraction, by displaying traits that naturally attract women (e.g. confidence, being a playful challenge at time, using humor and flirting, being masculine in the way you talk, behave and take action).

When your ex notices that you've learned from your mistakes and have become an even better man as a result, she won't be able to stop herself from dropping her guard a bit, which then makes it possible for you to get her back.

2. Did you make her feel secure enough in your commitment to her?

[image: Did you make her feel secure enough in your commitment to her?]

[image: Did you make her feel secure enough in your commitment to her?]

When a woman complains to her guy that he isn't committed, a guy might say, â€œIâ€™m with you, arenâ€™t I? That should be enough proof that Iâ€™m committed. We basically do everything together. I love you. That should be enough.â€

Yet, for most women that isn't enough.

She doesn't want to just be boyfriend and girlfriend forever, or for as long as he doesn't lose interest in her.

She may say that she's fine with that, but women say that to keep a guy happy initially; always hoping he'll warm up to a more serious commitment down the line.

If that doesn't happen, she will begin to worry that she's wasting her youthful attractiveness on a guy who isn't ever going to give her the kind of loving, dedicated commitment that she seeks.

That can lead to her threatening to break up with him, breaking up with him, or cheating on him (to hurt him) and then breaking up with him.

Important: If anything like that happened with your ex, don't make the mistake of rushing and desperately offering to marry her or get engaged for now, to prove your commitment to her.

Women are completely turned off by desperation in men, so that approach will likely backfire on you.

Likewise, if she feels as though your proposal is just to get her back for now, or to stop the pain you're feeling after being dumped, then it won't be romantic for her.

Instead, it will feel as though she's doing you a favor, which isn't the feeling a woman wants when she says, â€œYes!â€ to getting engaged or married.

3. Did you become needy for her love, or put up with bad treatment just to spend time with her?

Sometimes a guy feels insecure about his value and attractiveness to his woman (i.e. he sees her as being more attractive or valuable than he is).

That can lead to him feeling lucky to have her and at the same time, begin to really worry about losing her.

Unfortunately, thinking in that way can cause him to start reacting to her in clingy, needy, desperate ways, which will then turn her off and make her realize that she may actually be too good for him.

For example: He might

- Constantly bombard her with texts throughout the day to stay on her mind.
- Regularly ask things like, â€œDo you still love me?â€ or, â€œDo you still feel attracted to me?â€ or, â€œYou do know how much I love you and couldn't live without you, right? You're not going to cheat on me one day, are you? I couldn't handle that. So, please just tell me – are you happy with me? If not, what can I do to make you happy? I don't want us to end.â€
- Look for excuses to call her and see her, if she has made plans with other people.

Accept her being unloving, closed off and even disrespectful towards him, because he's too afraid to stand up to her, or get her to respect him and treat him the way he wishes she would.

Check her phone when she isn't looking, or ask to look through her messages to see if she's been texting any guys.

Get jealous or become angry or controlling if she looks at another man for too long when in his presence.

Accuse her of wanting to cheat, or of potentially already having cheated on him behind his back.

Worry that she might develop feelings for one of his male friends, or one of her male friends, so he tries to keep her away from them at all times.

Need to be around her to feel okay about himself. When not with her, he sends her sad, lonely texts or seems insecure and unsure of himself.

Although he may tell himself that he's just being a loving, attentive boyfriend, she won't see it that way.

She also won't find it attractive, at all.

Why?

Insecurity, clinginess and neediness are traits that are deeply unattractive to women because it causes her to feel unsafe with the guy.

Not in terms of him hurting her (although that could happen), but in terms of his ability to handle challenges in life or challenging people they come across and be able to keep her safe and protected.

If he's needy for her love and can't cope without her, it makes her feel like she is helping make him feel safe.

Deep down, a woman doesn't want that.

Not because she's selfish, but because the sexual dynamic between a man and a woman isn't based on a woman being the stronger one.

Likewise, if he puts up with her bad treatment of him and isn't willing to put her back in her place (in a loving, but dominant way), or isn't capable of getting her to respect him, then she will doubt that he could get other challenging people to respect him in life.

As a result, she just doesn't feel safe with him.

She will then decide to break up with him and try to find a man who can give her the kind of feeling she seeks in a relationship.

Of course, her ex still can get her back, but he has to man up and start being what she wants.

When he does, she will sense it, realize her feelings for him are coming back and will want to open up to giving him another chance.

4. Did you stop caring about her enough that she sought love and attention from elsewhere?

If a guy stops giving a woman the emotional and physical love she craves in a relationship (e.g. he spends more time at work, hanging out with his friends and family, or playing video games than with her, he doesn't put in the effort to do things together anymore and just expects her to be happy for life), then she may begin feeling neglected.

If she then interacts with other men who are attentive towards her, give her compliments and make her feel beautiful and valued, she may start feeling drawn to them instead.

In some cases, a woman might even cheat on her guy to get the love and attention she feels heâs not giving her anymore.

She will then confess her cheating, break up with him and start seeing the new guy, or begin enjoying single life.

Itâs not because sheâs a disloyal woman.

Instead, itâs because she is an individual and has to take care of her own feelings, needs and wants if her boyfriend/husband isnât doing that for her.

Men also cheat on women when situations like that are reversed.

Itâs just how it works.

If you want a relationship to last for life, you have to be willing to maintain a balance (i.e. where you still do things you enjoy that donât include her, but you also focus on doing things with her that bring you closer together, or at least make life more enjoyable together).

5. Did you maturely handle the arguments you and her had, or did you use an ineffective, selfish or vindictive style of communication?

For example: The mature way to handle an argument is to be as calm as possible (because you love her and donât have any need to hurt her) as you talk through the problem.

You also aim to add in some humor, be light-hearted or look for something positive to laugh about together in a stressful moment like that, rather than getting sucked into the negative feelings, arguing aggressively and then feeling more disconnected from each other as a result.

An immature way to handle an argument is by sulking, shouting at her and insulting her, walking away and refusing to talk about it, throwing her past mistakes in her face to make her feel as though sheâs the main reason the relationship is problematic, or putting her down and making her feel like sheâs incompetent or stupid.

Of course, she could have been the one who used an ineffective, selfish, vindictive style of communication during an argument or fight.

Alternatively, maybe the both of you tended to âlose itâ and get to angry or insulting during arguments.

You will know the answer to that and it will help you understand whether or not the break up was your fault, hers or due to the both of you.

Regardless of what you realize, just know this: Itâs totally fine and normal to make mistakes in relationships.

However, what sets successful couples apart from those who break up, is that a successful couple will learn from the argument and approach situations like it better in future.

They wonât be perfect right away, but they will get better and better over time, which will bring them closer together.

It also makes them both realize that if they were to break up, theyâ€¦d potentially end up getting into a relationship with someone else who isnâ€¦t as mature as they are and therefore, theyâ€¦d be back to square one.

So, rather than wasting time with a new person and having to go through years of stressful arguments again, they just keep getting better and better as a couple.

Eventually, they are one of the happy, in love, successful couples that others look at and wonder, â€œHow do they do it? Why donâ€¦t I have what they have? What am I missing?â€¦

5. Was she ever truly committed to you?

Some women get into a relationship with a guy for reasons that have nothing to do with him being her ideal match.

Instead, a woman will sometimes date a guy because:

- She is using him as a rebound to get over an ex she still has strong feelings for.
- She hates being the only one of her friends or family who is still single.
- Her family is pressuring her to settle down, so she just gets with a guy to shut them up.
- Sheâ€¦s getting older and is afraid that she might run out of time to start a family.
- They were friends and drifted into a relationship, even though she doesnâ€¦t really feel much of a sexual spark with him.
- He chased her for so long that she eventually gave in and agreed to go out with him.
- They knew each other for a long time and he sort of grew on her.

She just wanted casual sex, but he saw her as the love of his life and pushed to make the relationship official.

In cases like those, a woman will rarely commit, or will reluctantly commit and then break up with, or divorce him later on.

Of course, that doesnâ€¦t mean she doesnâ€¦t care for him at all, or that he doesnâ€¦t have a chance to make the relationship work.

She does care for him and he can make the relationship work, but he has to use a different approach to attraction with her.

If he continues using the same old approach to attraction that heâ€¦s been using (e.g. being the nice guy, letting her get her way all the time just so he can spend time with her, treating her like a friend rather than treating her like his sexy girlfriend), she will eventually get bored and dump him.

From his perspective, it will be devastating because he loves her so much, but from her perspective, she wonâ€¦t really be losing much because he never understood what makes a woman like her feel deep, committed attraction.

6. Was she still too immature to have a serious, committed relationship that lasted for life?

Sometimes, a woman is really young and inexperienced and canâ€¦t handle the pressure of a mature relationship.

As a result, the relationship will feel too stressful, boring or like too much responsibility for her. She may even begin to envy the freedom and excitement that her single girlfriends are experiencing (e.g. going out to parties and clubs, hooking up with different guys, not having to take someone else's feelings into consideration, free to do whatever they want, whenever they want).

When that happens, she may just decide to break up with her guy and focus on living a fun, carefree life without him.

Women like that only stop and get back with a guy if he can make her feel as though she is losing him.

If he tries to get her back with a "pity me" kind of approach, or by pleading with her, a woman like that will rarely give up her newfound freedom to get back into a committed relationship again.

7. Did your approach to the relationship cause you and her to grow apart?

[image: Did your approach to the relationship cause you and her to grow apart?]

[image: Did your approach to the relationship cause you and her to grow apart?]

For example: A man initially treated his woman very well when they first got together and maybe even for the first couple of years.

Yet, eventually, he began to behave differently and treated her in a way that pushed them apart.

He may have:

- Become insecure about her attraction for him and therefore, began to behave in a jealous, controlling way.
- Become less willing to be nice to her and instead, wanted to hurt her emotionally (e.g. by putting her down, acting like he didn't care about her anymore, ruining her friendships, turning her against her family, making her feel unattractive in his eyes, ignoring her and so on).
- Started spending more and more time with friends, working or playing video games and expected her to just wait around in the background of his life. Yet, she then started to feel drawn to hanging out with friends, which led her to start feeling attracted to the idea of being single, or possibility cheating on him.
- Not been willing to rise up through the levels of a relationship with her (e.g. move in together, get engaged, get married, start a family) and expected her to just stay with him anyway.
- Become quite aggressive, insulting or demeaning when they had arguments, rather than being loving, supportive and easygoing.
- Used mistakes she made in the relationship, or anything negatively she said or did to him, to make her feel guilty so he could hopefully control her more.
- Expected a lot from her (e.g. to show him love, be respectful, be kind), but didn't do the same in return.
- Started hanging out with different kinds of people and looking down on her for not being able to fit in.

- Been unwilling to spend time with her or her family due to his anti-social attitude.
- Stopped being the confident, cool guy that she fell in love with and started being an insecure, awkward guy that she kept having to make excuses for.
- Tried to stop her from pursuing her dreams because he feared it would lead her to cheat on him.
- Wanted her to just be happy with hanging out at home, getting by and not striving for success in life.
- Spent too much time working, trying to succeed and pursuing his dreams and not enough time with her (i.e. he didn't achieve the right balance and made her feel like she wasn't important in his life).

As a result of one or more of the above, a couple can easily begin to grow apart and no longer feel compatible.

If a woman feels that for long enough, she will usually decide to just break up with her guy and try to find a new man who will give her the kind of relationship experience she really wants.

8. Did she give you enough of a chance to fix the relationship, or change your ways?

Most women won't just walk out of a relationship without giving a guy a few chances to change and improve first.

If a guy takes the hint and starts giving her more of the attraction experience she wants in the relationship with him (e.g. he stops being so clingy and focuses on his goals and interests outside of the relationship to lead a more balanced life, he stops being a pushover with her and takes more of the lead, or he creates the kind of dynamic that motivates her to treat him well and impress him) things will settle down.

She will feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him for being man enough to understand the problem and then care enough to fix it.

Yet, if he fails to get the message and continues making the same mistakes and turning her off the way he has been, a woman will usually just break up with him and try to move on.

9. Did you start off treating her really well, but then change over time?

A guy will do this sometimes if he thinks that his woman will stick with him forever, just because she said that she loves him early on, or because she is so in love with him at the time.

Yet, what he doesn't realize, is that in today's world, a woman doesn't have to stay with a guy if he's no longer giving her the relationship experience she wants (e.g. he makes her feel loved, respected, taken care of, attracted).

Instead, her willingness and desire to stay with him is based on how she feels with him.

She is not required by law to stay with him no matter what, even if they get married or have a family. So, the way that it works is this: If a man makes her feel loved and feel the way she really wants to in a relationship (i.e. she wants to impress him, treat him well, win more of his love over time and build a future together, but at the same time, she is secure in his love for her), she will want to stick with him and be a good, loving woman to him in return.

On the other hand, if a man makes a woman lose a lot of respect and attraction for him due to his actions and behavior (e.g. being insecure, controlling, clingy, lacking purpose in life, not making her feel important), she can choose to break up with him because sheâs an individual and not his property.

Itâs just not like the way it was back in the 1800s, or early 1900s.

Things have changed and to keep a relationship together in todayâs world, you need to know what youâre doing.

If you donât ever figure that out, you will experience break up after break up, or will end up in an unhappy, loveless marriage or relationship.

So, you should use the break up that you had with her as a chance to finally get this area of your life sorted out.

Donât make the same mistake again.

If you want to get her back, you can do that and you should do it while you still can.

If you want to make your next relationship work with a new woman, you can do that, but not if you end up making the same old mistakes, or new ones that youâre not yet aware of.

You have to get it right, or you will be back in the same place again and again throughout life (i.e. heartbroken, feeling left behind, wondering why you canât find a good woman, or make a relationship work).

10. Did you make her lose touch with her sense of freedom and individuality in the relationship by being too controlling, needy or protective?

[image: Did you make her lose touch with her sense of freedom and individuality in the relationship?]

[image: Did you make her lose touch with her sense of freedom and individuality in the relationship?]

For example: A guy can make a woman feel that way by:

- Texting or calling her multiple times a day to check up on her.
- Going through her messages to see who sheâs talking to.
- Refusing to let her hang out with her friends if heâs not with her.
- Demanding, or expecting that she spend all of her free time with him (e.g. evenings, weekends, holidays).
- Getting upset or accusing her of being unfaithful to him when sheâs nice to other guys, or say something nice about another guy (e.g. she clicks âlikeâ on a guyâs post, smiles at a waiter, praises a male coworker in his presence, talks about a guy at work who is funny or who she thinks is cool).

Behavior like that will eventually make a woman feel like the relationship is too stressful (i.e.

because she always has to go out of her way to reassure him and make him feel loved, wanted and secure. He can't be secure without that because he is needy).

The opposite of being needy is being independently confident.

Independent confidence means that you feel confident no matter what a woman says or does.

Dependent confidence (i.e. neediness) means that you can only feel confident if a woman behaves in a certain way, or reassures you based on the way she talks to you or touches you.

So, if a woman finds herself with a guy who is needy, she can end up feeling suffocated and trapped. Eventually, she may break up with him as a way of reclaiming her sense of freedom.

11. Who was the more emotionally unstable one?

When a guy is emotionally unstable in a relationship with a woman (e.g. easily irritated, unable to remain confident, moody, extremely jealous at times), he will usually end up saying or doing things that drive her away.

Of course, women are usually very moody and irritable in relationships, but unlike men, they don't need to be totally confident, secure and stable in order to be attractive.

Why?

Women are attracted to a man's confidence and emotional stability because it makes them feel protected, safe and girly when around him.

A man doesn't need a woman to make him feel safe, protected and girly because she's so strong.

Instead, a big part of the sexual attraction between a man and a woman is the woman feeling girly around the man and him being the one who she can cuddle into and feel protected by.

If a man is emotionally unstable, a woman can't rely on him to be her "rock" in this world and instead, will feel as though she needs to be more like a man to make him feel okay.

A woman doesn't want that.

She wants to be free to be feminine, which does include her being moody, irrational and even unreasonable at times around her man.

It doesn't mean that a man has to give into what she wants when she is being moody though.

Instead, it just means that a man has to be able to let a woman be a woman and at the same time, be a man for her.

If a man is unable to do that because he's emotionally unstable (i.e. taking on the woman's role in the relationship), then she's not going to feel the desire to cuddle into him to feel safe and feel girly.

As a result, the sexual attraction will die out, arguments will happen often and they will grow apart. Eventually, she will decide to break up with him and try to move on.

So, if you were the one who was being emotionally unstable in the relationship, it's best to briefly (not a long winded, emotional apology) apologize to your ex for pushing her away and then show her (not tell her) that you're not like that anymore.

You can show her based on how you now behave, react to her, talk and approach interactions with her.

When she senses that you've gotten control of your emotions, she will be able to drop her guard and interact with you more to see how things go from there.

Even if she doesn't initially want to give you another chance, you will be on her mind and she will be missing you and wondering what it would feel like to get back together.

Soon enough, she will realize that if she doesn't give you another chance, she's probably going to end up regretting it and wanting you back.

As a result, she opens up to getting back with you and the relationship is better than before because you're now more emotionally stable like a real man should be.

12. Did she expect too much from you?

Sometimes a woman has unrealistic expectations of a man (e.g. she wants him to take care of her and pay for everything, expects him to have all the answers, wants him to have a successful career and still come home and do most of the housework even though she's home most of the day).

Not only does this put a lot of unnecessary pressure on a man, but it also leads to arguments and fights when the woman feels that her expectations aren't being met.

Eventually the relationship becomes too stressful and they break up.

The only kind of man that a woman like that will respect and appreciate, is a man who doesn't try to jump through all the hoops she holds up in a relationship.

Instead, he is a challenge and makes her feel like she needs to impress him and maintain his interest, while still being good to her and treating her well.

Anything other than that and a woman like her will complain, nag and argue all the way to a break up.

13. Was she secretly insecure about things she didn't tell you about, or you didn't pick up on?

For example: Did she feel as though you were too good for her (e.g. because your family is wealthier than hers, you got a better education than she did, you were rising through the levels in your career, while she was stuck in a dead end job)?

Did she secretly believe you could get yourself a much more attractive woman than her (i.e. because you're very good looking and she's more average looking)?

As a result, did she feel as though you were just settling for her and might cheat on her if you got the chance?

If she experienced those kinds of doubts or worries, she may have felt that you were better off without her, or she could avoid the pain and heartbreak of being dumped if she left you first.

If you want her back, you have to be prepared for her to always feel a bit insecure, regardless of what you say and do to reassure her.

Just don't make the mistake of sucking up to her, over complimenting her and pouring your heart out to her in an attempt to get her back.

Always remember: Women aren't attracted to desperation in men and they don't want to be in a relationship with a desperate man.

So, approach her, interact with her and re-attract her, but don't go overboard with the expressions of love and interest.

14. Did she give you a lot of reasons not to trust her, or were you too insecure to fully trust her?

Sometimes, a woman is an untrustworthy person who tells lies, cheats or behaves in ways (e.g. openly flirts with other guys, talks about an ex that she is still in love with) that gradually erode a man's trust in her.

In other cases, a man has trust issues (e.g. because he got lied to or cheated on by a previous girlfriend, his mother left his father when he was very young to be with another man, he doesn't believe in himself and in his value to her, so he's always expecting her to cheat on him one day), which can lead to him destroying a relationship with a perfectly good woman.

If he had just remained confident in her love for him and not let his insecurities change his behavior, then she would have been loyal to him for life.

Yet, he couldn't stop himself from becoming insecure, which then lead to her breaking up with him.

Alternatively, she was untrustworthy and despite him being a good guy, she dumped him or cheated on him anyway.

How about you?

After reading through the points in this article, do you think the break up was more your fault or hers?

Were you both at fault?

Regardless of who was to blame for the breakdown of the relationship, the question now is: Do you want another chance with her while you still can?

Does My Ex Want Me to Get Her Back, or Leave Her Be? 11 Signs to Look Out for

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Some women will make it obvious that they don't want to get back with an ex boyfriend, whereas others will only give subtle clues.

Likewise, sometimes a woman will secretly be missing her ex boyfriend and be hoping to get back with him, but will not make it obvious.

So, here are signs to look out for that suggest she either wants you to get her back, or to leave her alone:

1. If she wants you back, she will usually be open to talking to you

In many cases, a woman won't show a lot of interest in an ex (that she secretly wants back) because:

- She doesn't want to seem too desperate for pursuing him after she broke up with him.
- She doesn't want to give him the impression that it's easy to get her back, so he then thinks he doesn't have to change or improve anything about himself.
- She doesn't want to get rejected by him if he's not interested in her anymore. If that happens, she will end up feeling hurt and like the one who got dumped, so she plays it cool.
- She wants to see if he's got the confidence to do what needs to be done to get her back, or if he will be unsure of himself and wait for her to lead him. Women respond to confidence, so if she senses that he's insecure and unsure of himself, she will question whether or not it's a good idea to continue being open to him.

So, if you want to get your ex back while you still have a chance, don't waste time wondering whether or not she wants it as well.

If she has contacted you, take it as a sign that she does want you back.

Then, interact with her (on the phone and in person), create additional sparks of attraction inside of her (e.g. by being confident, using playfully challenging humor, flirting with her) and get her back.

2. If she truly wants you to leave her alone for now, a woman will usually say that and then block you

So, a woman will say something like, "Just leave me alone. It's over. You need to move on" and then block your number.

She might also unfriend you on social media and possibly even stop hanging out at any of the places that she might run into you.

If you do want her back, don't assume it's impossible to make it happen now that she's blocked you.

The truth is, feelings change all the time.

Right now, your ex might be saying she wants you to leave her alone.

Yet, when you spark some of her sexual and romantic feelings for you, sheâs naturally going to change her mind (i.e. because sheâs feeling positive emotions such as respect, attraction and excitement again).

She then becomes more open to talking to you again.

How can you get in touch with her to spark her feelings if sheâs blocked you?

Send her an email, ask a friend to text her for you, or even show up at her place of work or home (at a suitable time of course) so you can talk to her in person.

If you are worried about using those approaches, use a more subtle approach that works, which is to post photos to social media of yourself having fun and looking confident around other people.

Be sure to post the photos as âpublicâ so she can see them without having to follow you.

Whatever approach you decide to take, the most important thing to do is to focus on re-attracting her (i.e. posting photos of yourself looking happy and confident around others, rather than posting photos of yourself alone, or making posts that suggest you are on your own, feeling lonely or lost without her).

Another sign to look out for isâ!

3. If she wants you to get her back, a woman will often like and comment on your social media posts

A woman who has lost a lot of respect and attraction for a guy and no longer wants to be with him, will usually avoid being nice to him (e.g. liking his posts, commenting in a nice way).

Rather than being nice and potentially giving him the wrong idea, she will try to cut off all contact, make a clean break and move on without him.

So, if your ex has been clicking âlikeâ on most, or all of your social media posts or even leaving comments, it can be her subtle way of letting you know that sheâs still interested.

Essentially, sheâs giving you an excuse to message or call her and open up the lines of communication between you again.

If you want her back, you must build up the confidence to make a move while you still can (i.e. before she meets another guy that she finds more attractive and appealing).

4. If she wants you to leave her alone, a woman will often be very cold, rude and distant if you try to contact her

[image: If she wants you to leave her alone, a woman will often be very cold, rude and distant if you try to contact her]

[image: If she wants you to leave her alone, a woman will often be very cold, rude and distant if you try to contact her]

That kind of behavior from a woman can often be a clear sign that she wants you to leave you alone. Yet, not always.

For example: Sometimes a woman will be cold, rude and distant to test her ex's confidence (e.g. if he was insecure in the relationship).

It's her way of checking to see if he's changed and leveled up as a man, or if he's still stuck at the same level.

So, if your ex has been cold, rude, distant or mean towards you since the break up, it might have left you feeling confused about whether or not she wants you back, or wants you to leave her alone.

It really can be either.

However, the most important thing to understand about break ups, is that all it usually takes is a spark of respect and attraction inside of a woman, for her to begin to drop her guard and open up to the possibility of getting back with you.

She suddenly realizes that her feelings for you aren't dead, which then makes her begin to worry about regretting it if she doesn't give you another chance before you move on without her.

This is why, if you want her back, you shouldn't just give up based on her initial treatment of you.

As long as you focus on saying and doing the types of things that create a spark inside of her (e.g. maintaining your confidence with her regardless of how cold, distant or bitchy she's being, using humor to break down her defenses and make her feel good around you again, showing her via your attitude, actions and behavior that you've changed and improved some of the things that turned her off during the relationship), she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you again.

That's how millions of men get women back, every day, all across the world.

It's the best and most natural way to get a woman back and it works.

5. If she wants you back, a woman will find excuses to randomly contact you

For example: She might congratulate you on something you achieved or experienced recently, wish you a happy birthday, ask how a friend or family member is doing and so on.

Whatever her reason is doesn't really matter.

If your ex is contacting you, then you have an opportunity to re-attract her during your interactions with her.

For example:

- Don't make the mistake of remaining neutral, or just acting friendly with her when she contacts you. Instead, be playful and flirtatious to create sexual tension between you. Sexual tension (i.e. when you feel the desire to have sex, but can't because there is an obstacle in between you and her) will make more open to hanging out with you in person, so she can release the tension with touching, kissing and sex.

- Don't suck up to her with a nice guy act. For example: You might be tempted to be extra polite, nice and be on your best behavior to show how serious you are about getting her back. Yet, being a bit playfully challenging to make her laugh, feel excited and feel attracted around you is infinitely more effective.
- Don't apologize too much for what you did. It's fine to give her one sincere apology, but repeatedly apologizing will make you look desperate and will create the wrong power dynamic in the new relationship (i.e. it will be about her allowing you another chance, rather than you both wanting to give each other another chance).
- Don't be stick to just texting her if she reaches out via text. It's fine to reply via text, but get to a phone call shortly after, or at the very least, send her some voice texts, so she can hear your confidence and sense that you're not being needy, desperate or too keen.

The more attracted you make her feel when she interacts with you, the more she will truly believe that getting back with you will be the right thing for her to do.

Then, it's just a matter of catching up and you and her will be back together.

6. If she wants you to leave her alone, she might get into a new, serious relationship with a guy

Many women quickly do that to hopefully turn their ex off, or make him feel insecure.

Yet, if you maintain your confidence and have the courage to interact with her and create new feeling of attraction inside of her, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you again.

Why?

Just like pretty much every woman on the planet, your ex will secretly want to be with a confident man who believes in himself and maintains his belief no matter what she says or does.

That is like being a 10/10 in a woman eyes, because it's so difficult to find and when a woman does find it, she feels a deep, primal attraction for him because it also makes her feel safe.

On the other hand, if a woman is with a guy who is insecure and can't maintain his confidence, then she can't rely on him to protect her and keep her safe throughout life, so she feels instinctively and primally turned off.

So, make sure that you maintain your confidence no matter what she says or does to try to make you feel insecure.

When she senses your unwavering confidence, she will automatically feel a new sense of respect and attraction for you.

You can then build on her attraction and hook up with her again, so she feels unsure about her feelings for the other guy.

7. If she wants you to get her back, she might act like she is over you, but then show interest again the next day

[image: If she wants you to get her back, she might act like she is over you, but then show interest again the next day]

[image: If she wants you to get her back, she might act like she is over you, but then show interest again the next day]

A guy might experience that kind of behavior from his ex and think, â€œI donâ€™t know if she wants me to get her back or leave her be. It feels like sheâ€™s playing mind games with me. Maybe she is over me, but is just messing with my headâ€ or maybe she wants me back. I donâ€™t know!

It can be very confusing for a guy.

So, let me clear it up for you.

A woman can have different (and often very valid) reasons for pretending that sheâ€™s over her ex one day and then showing interest the next.

For example:

- Sheâ€™s testing his confidence level (e.g. does he have the balls to get her back even though sheâ€™s not making it easy for him? Does he still lack the kind of confidence she looks for in a man?).
- Sheâ€™s testing to see how interested in getting her back he really is (e.g. does he want her back because he cares for her, or is it mostly about his ego being hurt when she dumped him?).
- She feels attracted sometimes, but then feels turned off other times (e.g. sheâ€™s attracted when heâ€™s being confident, self-assured, flirts with her and makes her feel desirable. Yet, she feels turned off when heâ€™s being unsure of himself, sucks up to her and lets her call all the shots).
- She is trying to keep the possibility of you and her getting back together open, so she can have a little more time to make her final decision.

This is why, the best response is for you to remain calm, relaxed and confident no matter how she behaves.

That way, you are behaving in a way that will be attractive to her, which will make it difficult for her to get over you and move on.

Regardless of how attracted you make her feel, donâ€™t just sit around waiting for her to make it 100% clear that she wants you to get her back.

In many ex back cases, a guy needs to have the courage to make a move (i.e. arrange a catch up and then hook up with her), otherwise the attraction she has will fade away, or be replaced by her attraction to a new guy she meets.

8. If she wants you to leave her alone, she might ask you to never contact her again

In a case like that, the best approach is to tell her that you accept her decision, agree that you and her wonâ€™t ever get back together and then get her to agree to meet up with you one last time to say goodbye as friends.

If she says no, just tell her that if she never wants to hear from you after catching up as friends, you will never contact her again.

This gives you an opportunity to re-attract her in person and her an opportunity to close off the relationship.

Yet, when you re-attract her in person, she then feels confused and begins to regret saying that she never wants to speak to you again.

She realizes that if she doesn't ever speak to you again, or see you, then she's going to miss you because she does have feelings for you.

Her feelings for you have only just been reawakened, but they're there.

She can feel the pain of losing you now.

When she's feeling that kind of emotional pain, she naturally wants to stop it by trying to keep things open between you and her, rather than closing you off completely.

This means that she'll be much more likely to be open to texting and potentially catching up in person again, or to you suggesting a goodbye hug at the end up the catch up, which can then lead to a kiss and to sex.

9. If she wants you to get her back, she will actively flirt with you

A woman will almost never risk getting rejected by an ex guy if she thinks he's not interested in her anymore.

So, if your ex has flirted with you lately, or the last time you interacted, don't sit around waiting for more obvious signs that she wants you back.

What are some flirting examples?

Her being cute in text messages, her being sexually suggestive in text messages, her using pet names or nicknames that you and her used in the relationship, her smiling and looking at you in a cute way when talking to you in person, her touching you more than she needs to and so on.

If she's done anything like that, you've got to believe in yourself and understand that she's still willing to flirt with you, which clearly suggests she still has those kind of feelings for you.

If a woman doesn't have those feelings, she will rarely, if ever, flirt with an ex.

Instead, she will be cold, distant and talk to him only like a friend, rather than potentially giving him the wrong idea.

So, if your ex has been flirting, then have the courage to build up the sexual tension between you and her and then blissfully release it together with kissing and sex.

Don't just let the sexual tension build and then not do anything with it.

If she's feeling horny and you're not fulfilling her needs, she will naturally begin to feel open to sleeping with other men.

So, if she's feel attracted, make a move while you still can.

Sex speeds up the process of reconciling a relationship, stops a lot of the mind games or uncertainty between a man and a woman and helps get things back on track.

10. If she wants you to leave her alone, she won't care if you ignore her or move on

In cases like those, the best way to make her care is to use any interactions you have with her (e.g. via text, social media, over the phone or in person), to re-spark her sexual and romantic feelings you.

The more you make her feel attracted, smile, feel desirable and feel good when talking to you, the more that the idea of losing you for real will begin to worry her.

She then naturally wants to talk to you more and hang out to see how she feels.

On the other hand, if she's lost touch with her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you and broke up with you because of it, then you ignoring her for a few weeks or even months isn't going to bother her.

Instead, she's going to use the time to move on and find a new man.

11. If she wants you to get her back, she might not admit it to you and will just wait

In a case like that, she will be secretly be hoping that you have the courage to make a move.

Of course, she won't wait forever.

If she notices that you're not doing anything to get her back after a couple of weeks, she may force herself to get over you and move on (usually by hooking up with another man).

Don't let that happen to you.

If you want your ex back, you've got to be man enough to take control of the situation, rather than expecting her to be the strong one who gets you and her back together.

3 Mistakes to Avoid if You're Unsure About Messaging Your Ex

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Sometimes a guy will completely miss out on getting his ex girlfriend or wife back, due to one or more of the following mistakes:

1. Waiting for a week, not hearing from her and then waiting an additional week

The longer you wait to message her, the more time you're giving her to get over you and find a replacement man.

That doesn't mean you have to contact her immediately after a break up, although some men do and get their woman back.

Instead, it's totally fine to wait a few days, or a week to let things cool down, give her a chance to miss you and let her see that you're not being desperate, needy and chasing her down.

Yet, if you wait longer than that (e.g. use the No Contact Rule, which was originally designed by therapists to help couples move on), then she's almost certainly going to begin moving on without you.

So, make a move while you still can, rather than waiting for a week (or more) and then waiting even longer, in the hope that she mans up and messages you.

You need to man up and message her.

You're the man, so take control of the situation and begin guiding her through the ex back process.

2. Not realizing that most women can easily be re-attracted into a relationship, or at least into hooking up again

[image: Not realizing that most women can easily be re-attracted into a relationship, or at least into hooking up again]

[image: Not realizing that most women can easily be re-attracted into a relationship, or at least into hooking up again]

Most women don't want to have to start over with a new guy, spend years with him, fall in love and eventually find out that he's not compatible with her, or be disappointed when he changes and is no longer the guy he used to be (e.g. He used to be nice, but turns into an asshole. He used to be confident, but becomes more and more insecure, jealous and emotionally sensitive over time).

This is why, a woman will often allow herself to be seduced by her ex, if he's able to make her feel new feelings of attraction that excite her.

To her, he's familiar, she trusts him sexually and it's usually something she can do without anyone finding out right away.

Alternatively, she does it because she enjoys the drama of it all, she likes the anticipation or she wants to test herself to see how she will react after hooking up with her ex.

So, if you get in touch with your ex quickly and begin re-attracting her, you can have her back in your arms sooner, rather than later.

Yet, if you think that the answer to getting her back is to just wait, then you will likely be waiting for a long time, or may soon find out that she has moved on without you.

3. Texting her in a friendly way, but hoping she feels a romantic or sexual spark

If you want your ex to feel a sexual and romantic spark with you, so she wants to get back together, you have to focus on creating and building that spark.

You can do that via flirting, being more confident than you used to be, being a bit playfully challenging and so on.

It's better to show that new, more attractive side of yourself via a video call, on a phone call or at the very least, via voice texts.

If you only send her typed texts and are suddenly acting a lot more confidently, ballsy or assertive, she can easily read it the wrong way.

So, if you want her back for real, just prepare yourself to do it in a way that works (i.e. in an attractive way, rather than a boring, neutral or unattractive way).

For example: A guy will want his ex girlfriend or wife back, but he'll just text in a basic way, as though he's having a conversation with a buddy.

Yet, by texting her in that way, she begins to think that there is no longer enough of a spark between them to warrant having a sexual relationship.

It feels more like a friendship to her, than something romantic.

As a result, she puts him in the friend zone and focuses on meeting new men who make her feel sexually and romantically attracted.

Alternatively, a guy tries to be extra nice to his ex woman, to hopefully get her to take pity on him, or hopefully make her see that he's not angry about the break up.

Yet, it backfires because his approach doesn't make her feel sexually and romantically attracted. She just feels neutral towards him, or feels turned off by the fact that he's become nicer, softer and wimpier (in her eyes).

This is why, if you want your ex back, you have to prepare yourself to actively spark her feelings of sexual and romantic attraction when you next interact.

When you do that, her guard will come down and she'll become open to meeting up in person.

In person, you can then build on her feelings and get to a hug, kiss, sex and back into a relationship.

Do I Message My Ex First, or Wait Until She Sends Me a Message?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

It depends on the following:

- If you are a man or a woman

Men need to take control of the situation and go through an ex back process to get a woman back, rather than being passive (i.e. waiting) like a woman would be.

In almost all cases where a woman has dumped a guy, she will rarely try to get him back via text.

Instead, she will usually sit back and wait to see if he is emotionally strong enough to send her a message first and then make her feel attracted and drawn to him again.

If he doesn't have the courage to do that, she will lose respect for him for fearing rejection, or she will want to move on without him because she will assume that he's not interested enough to pursue her and get her back.

Whether or not you should message your ex first also depends on this:

- If she is still attracted to you or not

If your ex isn't attracted to you anymore, she's probably not going to send you a message.

Some women do message an ex to simply check if he's still interested, which she can tell by how he replies to her.

Yet, in most cases, a woman will focus on moving on and finding a new man to have sex and a relationship with.

- How easy it will be for her to move on

In today's world, it's very easy for a woman to find a new man.

For example:

She can use one of the many dating apps available to find guys to date (e.g. Tinder, OkCupid, Coffee Meets Bagel, Match, Hinge, Bumble and so on).

Overnight, she can have hundreds of guys interested and trying to message her.

Alternatively, if she's attractive, guys will hit on her when she goes out to clubs, bars or parties with her friends.

Additionally, she can open up to guys she knows and have been waiting for a chance with her (e.g. a coworker, friend, ex boyfriend, friend of a friend).

10 Things That Might Happen if You Wait For Her to Message, or You Message Her First

What happens really depends on the relationship you and her had, what kind of girl she is and how you go about texting her.

For example:

1. If you wait for her to message you, she might never contact you again

[image: If you wait for her to message you, she might never contact you again]

[image: If you wait for her to message you, she might never contact you again]

That can be because she's not attracted to you anymore and doesn't care if you don't contact her.

Alternatively, she might take it as a sign that you're not interested in her anymore.

As a result, she fears getting rejected by you if she messages you first, so she never does.

That's why, it's always best for you to make the first move and get the ex back process started.

In other words, be a man and guide her through the ex back process, so you can actually get her back.

Don't sit around waiting for her to man up and message you.

Take control of the situation, re-attract her and get her back while you still can.

2. If you wait for her to message you, she might text you out of curiosity, but not want you back

Sometimes a woman will wonder, "Why isn't he contacting me? What is he up to?" and will then make the first move to get in touch with her ex.

Yet, she doesn't actually want to get him back.

Instead, she's just curious to see if he replies, if he's still interested and if he has been missing her.

Regardless of how he replies, she plans on continuing to move on without him.

So, while he might think, "Yes! It worked! My ex messaged me!" she will be thinking, "I'll just confirm that he's still missing me and then I'll continue moving on without him."

A woman will often do that to make herself feel better and have peace of mind that her ex still wants her back, while she moves on.

Getting a message from an ex woman like that doesn't mean you've gotten her back.

It's just a message, or a series of texts and nothing more.

3. If you wait for her to text you, she might feel annoyed and want to get revenge by getting herself a new guy

She might feel that you never really loved or cared about her or the relationship, which is why you're now not trying to get her back, or at least message her to reopen communication between you and her.

As a result, she decides to show you that she doesn't need you in her life by finding a new man as quickly as possible.

You then end up being the one who loses out, because she was hoping to hear from you all along and you never made a move.

Don't let that happen to you.

If you want to give her a bit of space before messaging her, then you only need to do that for a few days or up to a week at most.

That allows things to cool down between you and her, gives her a chance to miss you and also proves that you're not being needy or desperation.

After a days or up to a week, just go ahead and message her.

Make her smile and feel happy to be hearing from you and then get to an in person meet up, so you can get her back for real.

4. If you wait for her to text you, she might see it as you being intimidated by the situation

She might assume that you're afraid and don't have the balls to send her a text, email or social media message, let alone get her on a phone call.

That can lead to her to decide you're not man enough for her.

If she feels that way, she will naturally feel attracted to other men who display more confidence, self-belief and ballsiness than you have been or did in the relationship with her.

She will push herself to interact with those sort of men, in the hope that she doesn't end up with another guy that doesn't have the level of confidence she really wants.

This is why, you've got to be courageous when getting an ex back (i.e. because it displays confidence), while also using an approach that causes her to feel a renewed sense of respect, attraction and love for you (e.g. attracting her in new ways as you talk to her, letting her sense that you've leveled up as a man. Don't tell her that – let her sense it).

5. If you text her first, she might not reply

That can mean she isn't interest, or she might have another reason (or reasons) for ignoring your message.

For example:

- She doesn't want to seem too eager to hear from you, so she ignores you to see what you will do next (i.e. Will you try again, or will you give up just because she didn't reply?)
- She wonders if you were just testing the waters to see if she was missing you, so you could feel good about yourself.
- She's angry with you for taking so long to message her after the break up.
- She's confused about the meaning of your text (i.e. Are you just saying hi as a friend, or are you interested in getting her back?).

There are many reasons why a woman won't reply to her ex right away, which don't actually prevent him from getting her back..

So, don't give up right away if your ex doesn't reply.

In all ex back cases, the best option is always to remain confident no matter what and focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect, attraction and love for you.

That is what works on women.

6. If you text her first, she might reply in a cold way, but be secretly interested

[image: If you text her first, she might reply in a cold way, but be secretly interested]

[image: If you text her first, she might reply in a cold way, but be secretly interested]

This can be because she wants to test your confidence, which is why your response is so important.

The best approach is to show her that you're not worried, or aren't taking her cold response so seriously.

Instead, you feel confident about yourself, regardless of how cold she's being, or how she's trying to put you off and make you feel uncertain about your chances with her.

Remember: Women are naturally attracted to the confidence in men, so when you project a confident, self-assured energy, she will naturally look at you in a more positive light, even if she pretends not to.

Don't be afraid to show her that you're not intimidated by her cold, unfriendly attitude.

Likewise, don't rely on her sending you nice, sweet, friendly texts to hopefully make you feel confident enough.

You have to have independent confidence, rather than relying on her to help you.

The more she notices that you're not negatively affected by her coldness, the quicker she will begin to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

When she feels that, she will realize that her feelings for you aren't dead and if she doesn't give you another chance, she might end up regretting it and missing you for the rest of her life.

7. If you text her first, she might be excited to hear from you, but then lose interest based on what you say next

For example: You're too serious, nice or polite, she doesn't feel a spark with you.

As a result, she loses interest and decides that you and her are no longer compatible, or she has changed and no longer feels attracted to guys like you.

Alternatively, you start messaging her random things and she gets bored of texting with you (e.g. you text her about your day, how busy you were at work, how you got stuck in traffic, the problems you're experiencing in life, what you're having for lunch).

If you don't make those mistakes, you might make the mistake of seeming to be pushing for a relationship, even though she's not attracted to you yet.

As a result, she loses interest because she just doesn't feel the same way you do.

8. If you text her first, she might be open to a bit of texting initially, but will want you to progress to a phone call or meet up

[image: If you text her first, she might be open to a bit of texting initially, but will want you to progress to a phone call or meet up]

[image: If you text her first, she might be open to a bit of texting initially, but will want you to progress to a phone call or meet up]

If you don't take things to the next level and just stick to texting her, a woman will almost always get bored and lose interest.

In some cases, a woman will text her ex, but will secretly begin dating and sleeping with a new man, or hooking up with new guys and will eventually say, â€œIâ€™ve got something to tell you. Iâ€™ve met someone and Iâ€™m very happy with himâ€ and then ask her ex to stop texting her. He will then get dumped and heartbroken for a second time.

He thought he had a chance, he thought she was interested, but all he did was text.

9. If you text her first, she might want to play hard to get to see how you react

For example:

- Will you lose confidence in yourself and your chances of getting her back, if she isn't being nice, sweet and friendly via text?
- Will you lose control of your emotions and get angry at her, or become desperate for her to show you the love you want?
- Will you lose interest and just move on with a new woman?

Depending on how you react, she will either start ignoring you and focus on moving on, or open herself up to being guided back into a relationship with you.

10. If you don't text her first, she might decide to block you and focus on moving on

She takes it (you not messaging her) as a sign that you're not interested in her.

So, she then blocks your number and begins moving on, rather than wasting more time waiting and feeling disappointed when she doesn't hear from you.

5 Mistakes to Avoid if Your Ex Won't Give You Closure

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a guy wants to get closure from his ex girlfriend (or wife), he will often make one or more of the following 5 mistakes, which push her away even further.

1. Not realizing that getting an ex back is about re-attracting her sexually and romantically

When a woman feels sexually and romantically attracted to her ex again (even if just a little bit), she begins to look at him in a more positive light.

She starts to realize that her feelings for him aren't dead and that, if she doesn't give him another chance, she may end up regretting it when he moves on and is happy without her.

As a result, she has a reason to get back with him, or at least hook up with him again to see how she feels.

Can you see the pattern here?

It's about her feelings, not yours.

Getting closure is about you trying to take care of your feelings, not hers.

Understand?

Additionally, you need to understand the reality of closure: It doesn't necessarily give you closure.

For example: Imagine she said, "Okay, I'll tell you more about why I broke up with you and how I felt leading up to the break up."

She then tells you that she began to lose feelings for you when you did a certain insecure thing, or reacted in a particular way, which really turned her off.

Then, she realized that she couldn't be with you.

Would that really give you closure?

Think about it.

You and her likely experience so many great moments together and she probably told you that she loved you.

So, why on Earth would she just fall out of love with you and dump you over a silly mistake you made?

There has to be more to it.

As a result, you don't have the closure that you've been seeking.

You still wonder if she was telling the truth, or if there was another, more secret reason (e.g. she met someone else) why she left you.

So, not only will seeking closure possibly lead you to having more questions, it's not actually the way to get a woman back anyway.

To get her back, you need to focus on making her have new feelings for you, rather than trying to take of your own feelings.

When you approach the ex back process in that way, she will naturally drop her guard and open up the idea of getting back to you.

Why?

She now has new feelings for you and worries that if she doesn't give you a chance, she's going to regret it when you move on and are no longer interested in her.

That is what works.

Another mistake to avoid making is

2. Pleading with her

[image: Pleading with her]

[image: Pleading with her]

Women aren't attracted to desperation in men, so if you plead with her to hopefully tell you what you need to know, it's just going to turn her off.

It can also lead to a woman blocking her ex, or feeling more motivated to move on without him, so she at least has another guy to put in the way of her ex trying to get her back.

So, while you might feel like you need to know how she feels, why she did what she did, or what you did wrong, it's not something to be seeking from her.

You need to figure out where you went wrong (e.g. Were you too insecure, emotionally sensitive, clingy or controlling? Did you lose the confidence in yourself that initially attracted her to you? Did you give her too much power in the relationship? Did you stop being manly?) and then quickly prepare yourself to interact with her and let her see that you have changed.

Don't tell her that you've changed all those things and ask her another chance based on it though.

A woman doesn't want a guy trying to sell himself to her.

Instead, what a woman wants is to naturally feel attracted to you based on who you are and how that makes her feel – without you having to explain it all to her, or ask for reassurance that you're doing it right.

So, don't go seeking closure, or reassurance from her.

Instead, focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the man you've become since the break up.

Then, go through the remaining steps of the ex back process to actually get her back.

You can do it, but you've got to stop focusing on taking care of your feeling (i.e. seeking closure, clarification or reassurance from her).

3. Assuming that she will care if you cut off contact and ignore her from now on

If a woman doesn't have feelings for her ex anymore and she can easily move on, she's not going to care if he's not contacting her anymore.

So, don't try that trick on her and waste months waiting and hoping that she comes back.

If you want her back, you need to take control of the situation and actively begin re-attracting her, so she has a reason to get back with you now.

4. Writing a long email or message to express how you feel

Women hate it when a guy sends a huge wall of text explaining or expressing his feelings and being overly soppy about it.

It doesn't matter if she's in love with him, or if she's dumped him – women just don't like it when men become too emotionally sensitive.

Women love it when a man feels emotions and is emotionally available (at times), but they don't like a guy who takes on the role of a woman and makes everything about his feelings.

Women do not want to take care of your feelings, or have your feelings be what everything is about.

Instead, women want to react to you with feelings of attraction and then follow their feelings (i.e. kiss you, date you, have sex with you, get into a relationship with you).

If you feel the need to unload a mega sized email or message, or send her a series of texts expressing your feelings, you're not going to get closure; you're almost certainly just going to get rejected.

So, if you want her back, you have to approach this like a man.

While it's fine to feel feelings, it's not fine to make everything about your feelings.

Focus on making her have feelings for the new and improved you and then have the balls to follow through to a hug, kiss, sex and back into a relationship.

5. Developing a fear of relationships because you didn't get the closure you needed

Many guys won't ever make the search that you did to arrive at this article.

Instead, a guy will feel sad, sorry for himself and upset about not getting closure from his ex.

He may end up feeling as though women are selfish, impossible to keep happy and that he will never be able to maintain a relationship with a quality woman.

As a result, he then begins to develop a fear of relationships and insecurities around women because he doesn't understand them.

Additionally, he may end up getting into another relationship and making the same or similar mistakes (i.e. mistakes based on his insecurities) that result in yet another break up for him.

For a lot of men, that cycle continues throughout their life until they eventually feel like it's just all too difficult and believe that they are doomed when it comes to women and relationships.

I feel sorry for those men because they don't know what you've learned in this article.

They just don't get it, so they are destined for a life of suffering.

Not you though.

You've found the answers in this article and you know that you're at the right place now.

The question is: Are you going to continue to learn and quickly improve yourself over the next couple of days, or will you go back into your shell and hide away from this opportunity to be with her again?

You're at a crossroads moment in your life right now.

Turn left and you go down a path of confusion, regret and sadness as you watch her move on without you and never want you back.

The right turn is to continue learning right here, right now.

Don't leave until you find more answers.

All of the answers you seek are here.

Why Won't My Ex Give Me Closure? (6 Reasons)

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

6 possible reasons why:

1. She doesn't feel like she has to

Sometimes, a woman will walk away from a relationship feeling confident that she has made the right decision.

From her perspective, it's over and there's nothing left to talk about.

Of course, the guy she just dumped might not see it that way.

Instead, he may be struggling to come to terms with what happened and from his point of view, there are so many questions he wants answers to before he can even think about letting go or moving on.

As a result, it can cause him to behave in unattractive ways, which only push her away even more.

For example: He might

- Constantly text, call or message her on social media and ask that she give him some closure.
- Show up unexpectedly at her place of work or home, to try to talk to her about what happened.
- Beg and plead with her to give him some answers.
- Write her a long email, or series of messages to convey how he feels, ask her a bunch of questions and request that she stops being so selfish or cold towards him.

In most cases, it then causes the woman to pull away from him even more.

He might then ask himself, Why won't my ex give me closure? What is her problem? What is she hiding? Why won't she do it for me? What is going on?

From her perspective, the answer to the question of why she won't give him closure is pretty simple: She doesn't have to.

She's already made her decision, broken up with him and is now focused on moving on without him.

Additionally, she feels as though she's not actually responsible for her ex's emotional well-being.

She is single now and he is not her responsibility, so if he can't deal with life, then it's his problem, not hers.

That may sound cruel, but it's the reality.

You were an individual living your own life before you met her, she was doing the same with her life and when you got together, you were two individuals in a relationship with each other.

[image: She doesn't feel like she has to give you any closure, other than the break up itself]

[image: She doesn't feel like she has to give you any closure, other than the break up itself]

A relationship isn't a contract that requires either of you to take care of the other person for life.

A relationship is just a term for the situation where (in this case), a man and a woman are â□□togetherâ□□ as boyfriend and girlfriend.

In other words, you never really own your girlfriend, or your wife for that matter.

Itâ□□s just you and her â□□togetherâ□□ and that will remain, unless you, her or the both of you changes your mind.

If you, her or the both of you change your mind and no longer want to be â□□together,â□□ then the relationship can end and neither of you owe the other person anything.

Of course, thereâ□□s a terms called decency (Decency (noun): Behavior that conforms to accepted standards of morality or respectability) and from your perspective, she should have the decency to show you the respect to give you some closure.

After all, you and her went through a lot and you probably treated her really well, did a lot for her and so on.

Well, from your perspective, it seems right that she should give you some closure and I personally understand how you feel.

However, in reality, she doesnâ□□t owe you that at all and doesnâ□□t have to give you it if she doesnâ□□t want to.

Itâ□□s important for your maturity as a man to accept that.

Itâ□□s also important for her level of respect and attraction for you, because women are turned off by men who â□□needâ□□ to be taken care of emotionally by a woman.

Women are attracted to men who are emotionally independent and donâ□□t need a womanâ□□s words or actions to be a certain way, before he can feel confident, worthy and good about himself.

So, if youâ□□re currently waiting and relying on your exâ□□s words or behavior to make you feel better, youâ□□re going about it all wrong.

You need to say to yourself, â□□I donâ□□t need closure from her. Iâ□□ve gotten closure already based on the fact that she broke up with me. If I want her back, Iâ□□ve got to now focus on re-attracting her.â□□

Itâ□□s as simple as that.

Youâ□□ve got to focus on what is actually going to work.

If you do what works (i.e. re-attract her and seduce her back into a relationship), then you get her back.

If you donâ□□t (e.g. just text her and hope that something happens, ask for closure, seem sad or lost without her, talk about your feelings, try to get her to pity you), then you simply push her away further.

Another possible reason why your ex wonâ□□t give you closure isâ□□!

2. She worries that if she talks to you again, she will be seduced back into a relationship

Sometimes a woman will break up with a guy, but still have some feelings for him.

Yet, she also knows that he currently isnâ□□t capable of being the sort of man she really wants and needs (e.g. heâ□□s too immature for her, too emotionally sensitive or not manly enough).

So, rather than settle down into a relationship that doesn't make her happy, she decides to break up with him and try to move on.

Despite all that, she can still worry that if she opens up to talking to him, he might be able to change her mind and she will then be seduced back into a relationship with him again.

As a result, she cuts him off and refuses to talk to him and give him the closure he wants.

If you feel as though your ex falls into that category, then getting her back should be pretty easy for you.

Rather than pestering her about closure, you can begin getting her back by focusing on re-attracting her (i.e. displaying the kind of attitude, confidence and behavior she will feel attracted to).

By the way!

If she's currently not answering your calls, text her this:

Hey – I know you probably don't want to talk to me because I've been pestering you about giving me closure, but I'm over that now. Sorry about being so silly about all that. I know now that it wasn't necessary because we have broken up. I accept that we've broken up. However, I do want to ask you something quick over the phone. Don't worry, it's not serious. I'll call you in 5 minutes.

Then, call her 5 minutes later.

If she doesn't answer, leave it for a day or two and call her again.

If she doesn't answer, text her this:

Hey, I tried calling. Maybe you're busy. No probs. I do want to ask you this quick question. I'll try calling you again tonight at 6. Again – it's nothing serious.

By that stage, she will be curious about what you want to ask her so she may text something along the lines of, Okay, fine or, What do you want to ask me? Just tell me now.

Regardless of how she responds, don't text her back.

You must talk to her over the phone, so you can display confidence to spark some attraction and use humor to break down her defenses.

When she feels sparks of attraction and relaxes her guard, she will then begin feeling drawn to you again, which will make her so much more likely to agree to catch up in person and say hi as friends.

Then, when you meet up with her and she notices that you've used the time apart from her to truly level up as a man (e.g. you're so much more confident now, you're more emotionally masculine, you don't react in an insecure or emotionally sensitive way anymore), she will automatically start to feel a new kind of respect and attraction for you again, even if she initially tries to stop herself from feeling it.

She will begin to look at you and think something like, Wow, he's not like he used to be. I like him a lot more now. It's actually kind of sexy to see him so confident now. Maybe I should sleep with him and see how I feel afterwards.

Before you know it, the catch up will lead to a hug and then a kiss and into the bedroom.

So, rather than trying to get closure from her, just do what you need to do to get to a meet up and then re-attract her and get her back.

Nothing else matters (if you want her back).

Another possible reason why your ex won't give you closure is!

3. She knows that nothing about you has really changed, so she doesn't feel motivated to discuss anything with you

[image: She knows that nothing about you has really changed, so she doesn't feel motivated to discuss anything with you]

[image: She knows that nothing about you has really changed, so she doesn't feel motivated to discuss anything with you]

To get a woman back, you need to make her feel differently about you, based on the changes you make to yourself (e.g. you become more confident, you no longer react to her in an emotionally sensitive or insecure way).

Unfortunately, a lot of guys don't realize that, or they don't seek the help to quickly improve themselves emotionally, so they can then re-attract the woman and get her back.

For example:

If a guy was emotionally unavailable in the relationship and he then pretends that he doesn't care that she has dumped him (e.g. he uses the No Contact Rule and doesn't contact her for 30 days), she can take that as a sign that he's still as emotionally closed off, or emotionally immature as he was before.

If a guy was wimpy and needy in the relationship and he then begs and pleads and behaves in other desperate ways, she will know for sure that he hasn't changed. If she were to get back with him, it would just be more of the same.

If a guy was too giving, too generous and let her walk all over him in the relationship and then says, "Just tell me what you want me to do and I'll do it" or, "I'll change. Just tell me what I need to change and I'll do it", she will know that he still doesn't get what she really wants (i.e. for him to stop being such a pushover).

When he then fails at getting her back, he might reach out to her for closure, which isn't going to change anything because she knows he'd still make her feel the same way (e.g. turned off, annoyed, unfulfilled).

When she rejects his requests for closure, the guy may end up feeling confused, frustrated and maybe even a little angry at her.

He may think, "Why is she being so stubborn?" or, "Why is she being so selfish?" "Why won't she at least give me some closure so that I can understand what I did wrong?"

Yet, what a guy like that doesn't realize is that he's trying to get her back while offering her the same kind of attraction experience that turned her off and led to the break up.

Nothing has really changed and she knows it.

As a result, she doesn't feel motivated to help him emotionally by giving him closure; especially since it could possibly lead to him convincing her to give him another chance and her giving into that.

Another possible reason why your ex won't give you closure is!

4. She sees a guy needing closure as being needy, which turns her off even more

Although a guy may feel as though getting closure is justified or the right thing to do, his ex woman will usually see it as needy and desperate.

As a result, she distances herself from him even more.

Why?

Women are instinctively attracted to the emotional strength in men and turned off by the emotional weakness.

In other wordsâ€¦!

If a man is emotionally strong, heâ€™s going to be confident, have high self-esteem, believe in himself and his value as a man and be able to handle whatever life throws at him without flinching (e.g. if he gets broken up with, heâ€™s going to either take action to get his ex back, or get over her, move on and find himself a new woman).

Heâ€™s not going to break down, cry, beg, plead or seek pity from his ex woman, to hopefully give him closure.

So, if a man is emotionally weak, heâ€™s going to be insecure, doubt himself and his value to his ex and other women and as a result, heâ€™s going to feel like he really needs her back, or really needs her reassurance (via closure) to make himself feel better again.

Itâ€™s not a nice thing to go through for a guy who is emotionally weak, but if he wants his ex woman back, he needs to man up.

He also needs to focus on what is going to work: Re-attraction.

When she feels attracted to him again, she then has a reason to get back with him (i.e. she doesnâ€™t want to regret losing him now).

Women get back with men based on their own reasons.

Itâ€™s not because women are selfish.

Instead, itâ€™s because a relationship is about two individuals deciding to be together for their own reasons.

If she doesnâ€™t have any reason to get back with you, then sheâ€™s not going to.

So, give her a reason by reawakening her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you.

In almost all cases, a guy wonâ€™t achieve that by asking for closure, or by having a closure conversation.

Instead, he will achieve it by interacting with his ex woman and making her feel attracted to the new and improved version of himself (e.g. heâ€™s so much more confident now, more manly in his behavior, he doesnâ€™t react in an emotionally sensitive or insecure way anymore, heâ€™s able to properly flirt with her now to create sexual tension).

Another possible reason why your ex wonâ€™t give you closure isâ€¦!

5. She doesn't want to explain where you went wrong and why she decided to break up with you because she fears that you will promise to change those things if she gives you another chance

Maybe that's not your intention, but a woman does worry about it happening.

Maybe you want closure so you can move on and not make the same mistakes again with another woman, but how can she really be sure of that?

No matter what a guy promises a woman, she knows that he might also have ulterior motives, or use what she says to get her back.

As a result, most women who've had some experience with relationships, or who have good instincts when it comes to relationships, will choose not to give an ex closure and just want to continue moving on without him.

Her ex might become frustrated with that approach and say something like "Please tell me why you have broken up with me. After everything we've been through together, I at least deserve an explanation? Just give me something to help me understand what I did wrong. Everything was fine and all of a sudden, you just didn't want to be with me anymore. Please just tell me what happened, or what I did."

In his mind, he sees it as completely normal and natural to be asking for an explanation.

Yet, in her mind, she can be thinking things like, "Yeah, whatever. I bet if I tell him what he did wrong, he's going to start making promises to change and then expect me to give him another chance. What he doesn't realize is how that would make me feel. I would end up feeling like I've got a man who is following my instructions so I don't dump him. I don't want that kind of relationship. Alternatively, I will be with a guy who doesn't really want to be doing the things I'm asking of him, but he does it to stay with me a little longer. Maybe he'll then end up dumping me when he's ready. I don't want to risk that."

So, when her ex keeps asking her for closure to help him understand what he did wrong, or how he could have made her happy, she remains guarded, closed up and possibly even gets to the point where she rejects him, cuts off contact and possibly blocks his number.

Many women do that so they can have a chance to move on and find a new guy, before their ex gets them back.

Another possible reason why your ex won't give you closure is that

6. She did something that she feels guilty about and doesn't want to have to admit it to you

In some cases, a woman will begin moving on from one relationship before ending the other (e.g. she hooked up sexually with someone else, she fell in love with another guy, she kissed a guy).

As a result, she doesn't want to hurt her ex, or even worse, risk him getting angry and possibly becoming violent towards her by telling him her real reason for the break up.

Alternatively, she doesn't want him to have an opportunity to call her a slut, a whore or other names and make her feel guilty for cheating on him.

At this point, she doesn't feel guilty because she has excused herself for cheating prior to the break up, by saying to herself that it just happened or, "it was a drunken mistake" or, that she was no longer in love with her ex, so she wasn't committed anymore.

Of course, those aren't valid reasons for cheating, but if she wants to feel like the good one and maintain her positive self-image, she will hold onto those notions.

If she were to admit what she did to her ex, he could use it against her and cause her to question her self-image and feel bad about her betrayal.

So, rather than putting herself in that position, she refuses to answer his questions and hopes that he eventually gives up and leaves her alone.

4 Mistakes to Avoid When Holding a Grudge Against an Ex

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

It's fine to initially hold a bit of a grudge against your ex, but you should aim to get over that as soon as possible.

If you don't, it can end up causing all sorts of additional problems for you emotionally and personally, which will result in more break ups and heartache for you throughout life.

For example:

1. Assuming that all women will eventually treat you the same way your ex did

Sometimes a guy will allow a negative experience with one woman, cause him to feel suspicious and guarded towards all women.

He will fear that if he opens himself up to loving a new woman, he could eventually end up getting dumped, cheated on or hurt once again.

He will forget about the fact that all across the world, billions of couples have been able to be happy together, loyal and remain in love for life.

Those couples are just as common as the billions who broke up, or the millions of couples who get back together each year.

Yet, he only focuses on the negative.

As a result, women sense his fear, insecurity and emotional immaturity and it turns them off.

Some women like guys who are afraid like that, but it's usually only unattractive women who want to find an insecure guy who they can control.

The way unattractive women do it, is they initially act very nice towards the insecure guy, be sweet, give him lots of sex and get him to fall in love, or feel like he needs her in his life (e.g. paying rent together, gets him to ditch his friends and focus only on her).

Then, once he's hooked, she changes and starts to control him with the threat of a break up.

Before he knows it, he is being controlled by a woman that he wasn't even that attracted to initially.

He's doing whatever she wants, putting up with her bad behavior and letting her control him emotionally, just so he doesn't have to experience the pain of being dumped again.

Yet, eventually, she dumps him anyway.

Then, he's right back where he started after being dumped by his ex, except this time, he's just wasted 1-5 years with an unattractive woman who made him become even more insecure than before.

From there, a guy like that will often go into his shell and avoid relationships again, or fall for the same trick from a woman that he's not even that attracted to.

Alternatively, he will avoid relationships and focus on building up his career and becoming successful, in the hope that he can get a more attractive woman.

Yet, if he happens to become very successful and make a lot of money, he will almost always only attract gold digger women who can see that heâs trying to sell himself to her and be chosen based on his money.

Women like that also control men, but they arenât so nice initially.

Instead, they are only nice and affectionate if the guy is buying her things or spending lots of money to impress her.

So, itâs a no-win situation for a guy like that.

Itâs a negative cycle that only leads to more pain.

How can he escape the negative cycle?

Simple.

He needs to stop being insecure about women, stop holding grudges, stop being afraid and start being a confident man who isnât afraid of love and doesnât feel the need to sell himself to a woman to hopefully get a chance with her.

Instead, he knows that he is a great catch and that a woman would be lucky to get a chance with him.

As a result, women sense his confidence and feel attracted to it and he then gives women a chance to be with him.

The relationship starts off on his terms and remains on his terms.

He doesnât allow himself to be controlled or walked all over by a woman.

Instead, he creates a dynamic where he treats the woman well, but he also makes her feel the need to treat him well at the same time.

She knows that heâs a great guy and that if she doesnât continue to treat him well, he could lose interest in her.

She doesnât want that to happen, so she continues to treat him well and they remain happy, in love and together for life.

Thatâs how to escape the negative cycle and enter the positive cycle of love and happiness in a relationship with a woman.

If you donât do that, then your fear of women will continually be proven true to you throughout life (i.e. you will be dumped or cheated on by women).

Another mistake to avoid making isâ

2. Letting the grudge negatively affect your behavior in future relationships

[image: Letting the grudge negatively affect your behavior in future relationships]

[image: Letting the grudge negatively affect your behavior in future relationships]

For example: If a guy holds a grudge against his ex because she cheated on him, he might end up distrusting every other woman he gets into a relationship with from then on.

He may become emotionally sensitive if he suspects something, even if itâs not true (e.g. a guy friend texts her, she looks at another man while theyâre out together, her ex texts her to say hi). As a result, he might explode with anger, or over-react in a very jealous, controlling way. Naturally, that kind of behavior will lead to her losing respect, attraction and love for him. If it continues, she may eventually decide to break up with him.

If he had treated her well (apart from his outbursts) and done a lot for her, he might then hold a grudge against her for dumping him in that way.

He may feel betrayed and believe that women canât be trusted, or a relationship is impossible to keep together these days.

Obviously that isnât true as billions of couples of have remained together for life, without cheating on each other or breaking.

It is possible to remain happy, in love and together for life, but you have to know what attracts women and how to maintain a loving relationship dynamic.

If you donât know those things, the relationship will become stale and she will fall out of love. Itâs just how it works.

So, for the sake of your happiness today and in future, let go of the grudge youâve been holding against your ex.

If you donât, you may find yourself ruining relationship after relationship until you eventually do let go of the grudge.

Another mistake to avoid making isâ

3. Never really accepting that romantic relationships are conditional

[image: Never really accepting that romantic relationships are conditional]

[image: Never really accepting that romantic relationships are conditional]

Sometimes, itâs difficult for a guy to accept that just because a woman loved him and maybe even promised to be with him forever, it doesnât mean she actually has to stick to it.

The reality is that if a woman no longer feels the same way she did when she promised to be his girl forever, she doesnât have to stay with him if she doesnât want to.

Why?

Romantic relationships are conditional (i.e. they remain together if the couple remains in love, is happy together).

If a guy canât accept that, he may end up holding a grudge against his ex for lying to him, betraying him or going back on the promises she made to him.

He may not realize that promises she made when she was falling in love, or in love were only words. It wasnât a watertight, legal contract that couldnât be broken.

It was just a bunch of âin love promisesâ that rolled off her tongue when things were good. Itâs not nice that she broke that promise, but the world and life isnât always nice.

Sometimes, bad things happen to make us realize that we need to be better as a person, or become stronger as a person, or become stronger as a society.

It's just how it works.

If you want her back, you first need to let go of the grudge and then focus on preparing yourself to interact with your ex and re-attract her.

When you re-attract your ex, her original feelings for you will come flooding back and as a result, the conditions will change.

She will begin to see you as her ex that she still loves or has feelings for, which then makes her open up to getting back with you.

When you approach it that way, there's no need for a grudge because you simply just get her back.

Yet, when you weight yourself down with self-pity, anger and the disgust of being betrayed by her, then you're not going anywhere.

You'll be stuck there and it will negatively affect your future relationships.

Another mistake to avoid making is!

4. Wanting her back, but not trying and then regretting it for the rest of your life

If you let your feelings of anger and betrayal cause you to do nothing to get your ex back, you may end up regretting it months, or years from now.

One day, you'll wake up and realize that you had a chance to contact her, re-attract her and get her back, but you didn't.

You let too many months or years pass by, while you privately held onto a grudge against her, or weighed yourself down by focusing on her betrayal or unfair treatment of you.

Don't put yourself through that pain.

If you still have feelings for your ex and want her back, there's no better time to make it happen than right now.

Don't wait until it's too late.

Get her back.

How to Stop Holding a Grudge Against an Ex

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

4 things you can do right now:

1. Accept your part in the break up

When a couple breaks up, it's rarely the case that one person was 100% to blame for everything. No one is perfect, so mistakes will have been made in the relationship by both the woman and the man.

Of course, if you've been holding a grudge against your ex, you might feel as though she is to blame for a lot of what went wrong, or for how badly you've been feeling since the break up.

So, how can you stop holding a grudge now?

The first thing you need to do is clearly and honestly acknowledge that you also made mistakes in the relationship that led to her acting and behaving the way she did.

In fact, when you really think about it, you might be able to realize that she probably would have continued to treat you well, be faithful and stick with you if you hadn't changed so much (e.g. become insecure) and turned her off.

For example: Imagine her in a relationship with the ideal version of yourself that you sometimes think about.

The version of you that is truly confident, manly, capable and who doesn't react in an insecure way to her or anything else in life.

Imagine how she would have felt with that version of you, compared to who you became in the relationship.

By doing that, you can begin to take some responsibility for how you changed her.

[image: Letting go of your grudge doesn't mean she is innocent and didn't do anything wrong]

[image: Letting go of your grudge doesn't mean she is innocent and didn't do anything wrong]

Of course, that doesn't mean that you are 100% to blame and she's an innocent little angel.

Instead, it simply means you're emotionally mature enough to see that you do have an effect on people and it's not always positive.

Think about it this way!

Imagine a woman is in a relationship with a man because he is confident, loving, kind and an all around good guy.

He also makes her feel sexy, desirable and like she's the most beautiful woman in the world, in his eyes.

Yet, despite all that, he's not a pushover type of guy.

She still gets the sense that she needs to continue to look good to impress him, continue to treat him well and be good to him, otherwise he could lose interest in her.

This motivates her to be a good woman to him, treat him well, be loving and faithful, while at the same time, also put in the effort to look good for him to keep him happy and attracted to her.

That kind of relationship brings out the best in a woman.

Yet, the same man can bring out the worst in a woman simply by changing his approach to her and the relationship.

For example: Imagine that although he continues to be nice and loving towards her, as time goes by, he stops making her feel like a desirable woman and starts treating her more like a neutral friend.

He starts to lose confidence and become insecure, jealous and a little controlling or needy.

This gives her the sense that he's no longer the confident guy she fell in love with and he's turned into a typical, insecure guy that is scared of losing her.

As a result, her feelings for him begin to change, along with her behavior towards him.

Although she might still care for him as a person, she begins to feel unhappy, disappointed, irritated and restless.

She begins to get angry at him, throw tantrums and no longer shows him the respect she once did.

Eventually, she begins feeling drawn to other men and possibly cheats, or lines up a new guy to replace him with after the break up.

She then breaks up with him and naturally, he feels betrayed by her.

As a result, he can end up holding a grudge against her and blaming her for the break up, or for how badly he has felt since the break up.

Now, the thing is, she isn't an innocent angel in all of this.

She cheated, lined up a new guy or she became bitchy and treated her ex badly leading up to the break up.

So, she is partly to blame for the break down of the relationship.

However, if her ex can accept his part in the break up (i.e. he stopped making her feel the way she wanted to feel in a relationship, which caused her to pull away or change as a person), then he will see that he shouldn't be holding a grudge.

As for you, it's important that you start with accepting your part in the break up, or your part in changing her and bringing out the bad side of her that you ended up seeing or experiencing.

If you're able to accept that, you will then realize that you could have kept the relationship together and happy, but more importantly, you can also get her back now if you really want to.

How?

By making some adjustments and changes to how you approach interactions with women, so you can naturally attract your ex the next time you interact with her.

How? What needs to be changed or adjusted?

It depends on the guy, but some examples of a guy changing and becoming attractive to an ex woman include him being so much more confident than before, no longer reacting to her in an insecure way, being more manly in his behavior or conversation style, being able to flirt with her to create sexual tension and so on.

There are so many ways to attract an ex woman.

If you focus on doing that when you interact with her next, you won't be holding a grudge against her.

Instead, you will be holding her against your body.

She will be back with you, looking you in the eyes, kissing you the way she used to and feeling attracted and excited about the man you've become and how you now make her feel.

That might sound impossible to you now, especially after all you and her went through and how bad the break up was.

Yet, every day, millions of couples get back together, even though their break up was bad, bad things were said and grudges were held.

What changes everything is attraction.

When you make her feel attracted to the new and improved you when you interact with her, her perception of you changes.

She begins to realize that her feelings for you aren't dead, so she then opens back up and you can get her back.

Another way to stop holding a grudge against your ex is to

2. Put yourself in her shoes and imagine how you would have reacted

Up until recently, you've probably only been focusing on seeing things from your point of view, rather than putting yourself in her shoes and feeling what she would have felt.

As a result, you may have been mostly only remembering the negative ways your ex acted and behaved leading up to and immediately after the break up.

For example: Leading up to the break up she might have

- Lied to you and said that everything was â€œFine,â€œ even though she was secretly getting ready to leave you.
- Stopped being the loving, attentive woman that you fell in love with.
- Acted cold and distant towards you.
- Withheld sex or affection from you.
- Gotten into arguments with you about seemingly irrelevant or trivial things that she wouldn't have gotten upset about in the past.
- Called you names and accused you of being a bad boyfriend/husband.
- Been secretive and suspicious in her behavior.
- Been increasingly selfish towards you, or unfair in her treatment of you.

Then, after the break up, she may have

- Acted bitchy towards you and refused to listen to anything you had to say, as you tried to get her back, or get her to admit what she'd done wrong.
- Hooked up with, or started dating another guy immediately after she left you.
- Talked badly about you to mutual friends, or to her family.
- Blocked your number, unfriended you on social media and refused to see you again.

- Sent you cold or rude texts.
- Became a completely different person, where she seemed to just forget about or not care about all the things you and her had been through.

Naturally, that kind of behavior from her can cause you to feel hard done by, betrayed or disrespected.

It can also lead you to think that she is the one who is being unreasonable, unfair, selfish and cold, which can then result in you holding a grudge against her.

Yet, just for a moment, try to see things from her perspective and decide if it's possible that you would've reacted in the same way that she did (or in a similar way) if you were in her place.

If you can't imagine being in your ex's shoes, imagine a random woman who was feeling unhappy in her relationship with a boyfriend.

Somewhere along the line, he stopped being the confident, emotional strong man that she fell in love with.

Instead, he ended up becoming very needy and insecure instead, which began to reduce her feelings of respect and attraction for him.

Initially, she tried to overlook his insecurity and reassured him that she loved him and would never leave him.

Yet, he continued to be clingy and insecure, which resulted in him becoming very jealous and controlling..

Over time, his behavior became too much for her to put up with any longer, so she started switching off her feelings and preparing (emotionally) to break up with him.

As a result, from his perspective, she suddenly seemed to be acting very cold and distant, which then caused him to become more insecure, jealous and controlling.

He accused her of wanting to cheat, or liking a guy from work, texting with an ex, looking at other men when they were walking together and so on.

Of course, this then led to arguments and disagreements between them, which pushed her away even further.

Eventually, she lost all respect and attraction for him and realized that there was no point sticking with the relationship anymore.

The guy she fell in love with had changed and become very unattractive, so she decided to cut her losses now, break up with him and try to move on.

After the break up, her ex behaved in all sorts of unattractive ways as he attempted to change her mind and get another chance.

For example:

- He begged and pleaded with her to give him another chance.
- He promised her he would do whatever she wanted.
- He sent her flowers and gifts.
- He sent her long text messages and emails pouring his heart out to her.
- He got angry and accused her of being a terrible girlfriend/wife to him.
- He cried to her.

- He threatened to hurt himself, or end his life.
- He said he was lost and depressed without her.
- He reached out to her friends or family for help.
- He posted sad updates on social media.
- He pleaded with her to explain what he did wrong, so he could fix it.

Unfortunately for him, his “lost guy” behavior only convinced her that she made the right decision by breaking up with him after all.

Why?

Women don’t want to be with a guy that they have to teach and mentor into becoming a man.

A woman wants a man who understands it, or learns it from other men and then gets on with being it, rather than looking to her to mother him, or guide him.

So, when he displayed confusion, insecurity, emotional weakness and pleaded with her to help him, it only turned her off even more.

As a result, she then began to move on without him by dating new men, or getting into a new relationship right away, or shortly after the break up.

This resulted in him feeling like she’d stabbed in the back, or betrayed him and essentially thrown him out like a piece of garbage that she didn’t care about.

After all he did for her, after all they’d been through, after all the loving words they’d said to each other; it all meant nothing to her.

Naturally, he then began to hold a grudge against her.

What he probably didn’t realize and won’t realize for a long time, is that he brought that bad side of her out by becoming unattractive to her.

If the situation were reversed and he’d gotten into a relationship with a hot girl who treated him well, but she then turned into an unattractive woman who treated him badly, he probably would have changed how he treated her too.

That’s how relationships work.

If you want a relationship to last, you have to bring out the right side of a person and keep it that way. Happy couples who remain in love for life do that.

Those who don’t, end up fighting and breaking up.

So, try to see things from her perspective and realize that she isn’t an evil, selfish bitch.

Instead, she’s the girl you initially met, but she changed based on how you made her feel in the relationship.

That might be a tough pill to swallow, but it’s the truth.

Another thing that can help you stop holding a grudge against your ex is to

3. Understand that loyalty in a romantic relationship is conditional, rather than a given

[image: Understand that loyalty in a romantic relationship is conditional, rather than a given]

[image: Understand that loyalty in a romantic relationship is conditional, rather than a given]

It would be nice if a couple could get together and then be loyal to each other for life, no matter what happened.

Yet, that's just not how it works.

Why?

For the following reasons:

People mature differently

For example: If a woman begins to mature a lot faster than her guy, she will naturally begin to feel drawn to other people who are more in sync with her more mature way of thinking.

Even though she may initially have said things like, "I want us to be together forever," or "You are the love of my life and I can't imagine my future without you in it," it simply won't apply anymore because she's no longer the same person and either is he.

She's different now (i.e. more mature), so she now wants other things from her guy (e.g. initially she was happy to party with him and live paycheck to paycheck, but now she wants him to settle down and plan for the future. She initially agreed that they were too young to have children, but now she's ready to start a family and she wants him to be ready too. She used to hate family gatherings, but now sees the importance of family and wants to stop being so anti-social towards them. She used to like to gossip and waste time, but now she wants to get things done and make progress in life).

If he can't give her what she wants, she will naturally start to lose touch with her original feelings for him and open herself up to meeting someone else who is at the same emotional level as her, regardless of what she promised to him in the past when they were falling in love.

It sucks that a woman (or a man) would go back on their loving promise, but it's just the way romantic relationships are.

It's not like a business contract, or legal promise.

It's just words said when falling in love, or newly in love.

Those words only remain true if the couple matures together, goes after goals together and makes progress, while remaining in love.

Without that, it's just going to end.

People make mistakes

For example: A woman might get into a relationship with a guy that she initially believes is her ideal guy, only to realize that he's not who she thought he was (e.g. he was loving and attentive at first but over time he became selfish, self-absorbed and started taking her for granted).

As a result, she no longer feels the need to be loyal to him and a break up, or cheating and then a break up happens.

Only some people know how to keep a relationship happy, in love and together for life. It's not a skill or knowledge that people are born with. It's something that you learn or figure out over time.

So, initially, a woman might say to her boyfriend, "I love you and want to be with you for life," but then the relationship becomes stale, they fall out of love and she no longer feels the need to be loyal and stick to her in love promise.

In some cases, a guy will learn and improve his ability to keep his girlfriend or wife feeling attracted, or to fall back in love with him so they can stay together and not have to break up.

Yet, in most cases, a guy will remain clueless about what to do and she will end up leaving.

As a result, he might end up holding a grudge against her because she didn't give him enough of a chance.

However, the reality is that love between a man and a woman is conditional (i.e. a man and a woman will remain in love if the conditions of the relationship make them feel that way).

If you don't know how to keep the love alive, you will almost certainly experience another break up in your next relationship because romantic love between a man and a woman is conditional.

It's not something to hold a grudge against your ex or against women in general about.

Instead, it's something for you to learn and master in your life, so you don't have to get dumped again.

Another thing that can help you stop holding a grudge against your ex is to

4. Make her become less important in your mind (if you want to move on from her)

If you don't want her back, you need to get to the point where she doesn't pop into your mind every day, or regularly enough to make you feel sad, rejected, betrayed, angry and so on.

In other words, stop thinking things like, I can't believe she did that to me! or, How could she treat me that way after everything I did for her? or, I thought she loved me and this is how she repays me or, How could she be so selfish?

How?

Remind yourself that whatever happened between you and your ex is now in the past.

You are no longer the same guy she dumped (you've leveled up) and she's likely not the same woman either.

You've almost certainly grown from the experience and have become a much better man as a result (e.g. more emotionally strong, better able to cope with difficult situations in life, more assertive and able to stand up for yourself, understand what makes a woman remain in love with a man for life).

As a result, you can now move on, find yourself another woman and have a happy, lifelong relationship with her based on the lessons your ex forced you to learn by dumping you.

Yet, what if you want to get her back?

Keep learning right here, right now.

I'll show you how to get her back fast, so you can have another chance with her, feel better about yourself and decide what to do from there (e.g. stick with her for life, or dump her and move on).

Regain your power.

Regain your confidence.

Take control of the situation while you still can.

3 Mistakes to Avoid When Using the Law of Attraction to Get Your Ex Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The Law of Attraction definitely does work.

Iâve experienced it multiple times in the past for my biggest dreams, which have come true and continue to experience it to this day.

I know it will continue to work as the years and decades go on.

In my opinion, the Law of Attraction is something that you can totally rely on, if you are willing to truly believe in it.

If you only half believe that it will work, then you will get half the results.

If you doubt it, then you will get negative results that reinforce your doubt of this fundamental law of the universe.

So, if you are serious about getting your ex back by using the Law of Attraction, I recommend that you avoid the following mistakes:

1. Visualizing getting her back, but then not taking enough or any action to get her back

Put it this wayâ

You can sit at home, every day for the rest of your life and imagine yourself winning the lottery, but if you donât buy a lottery ticket, itâs just not going to happen.

In the same way, you can imagine getting back with her all you want, but you still have to take the action of contacting her, meeting up with her and getting her back.

So, while itâs important to visualize yourself getting what youâve asked the universe to deliver to you, itâs just as important to then take steps to get in back, with full belief that you will succeed.

You might encounter a little resistance from her initially (e.g. she seems unsure, or even initially says, âNoâ to your request to catch up), but if you honestly believe you can do it and, just as importantly, are willing to prepare yourself to succeed when you communicate with her, then you will get what you want.

Preparing yourself to communicate with her means that you donât just text her and ask her to catch up with you, or call her and seem sad, lost and lonely without her and then ask to catch up. Those approaches will almost certainly fail.

To succeed, you need to interact with her and create sparks of attraction inside of her, so she then becomes open to catching up.

Once youâve re-attracted her on a phone call, video call or via a series of voice texts back and forth, then arrange a meet up and re-attract her in person.

When she feels attracted to you in person and realizes that her feelings arenât dead, then you are just a hug or kiss away from getting her back.

So, make sure that you don't just sit around hoping that she'll come back, or visualizing you and her back together and expecting the universe to do all the work for you.

The Law of Attraction doesn't work that way.

You have to take effective action (not ineffective action, such as just texting her, or seeming sad and lost without her and then asking to see her), with the full belief that you will succeed and get what you want.

Another mistake to avoid making is

2. Asking the universe to get your ex woman back, but secretly believing that it's not possible

[image: Asking the universe to get your ex woman back, but secretly believing that it's not possible]

Here's the thing

The Law of Attraction responds to your private emotions and series of actions that correspond with those emotions.

So, if a guy asks the universe to help him get his ex woman back, but secretly believes it won't work, then he will get inconsistent results.

The universe will respond directly to the inconsistent energy he is projecting.

Why?

The way the LOA works is that the universe essentially says, âOkay or, âYes to everything you say, feel or send out.

It is responding to who you really are, what you really feel and the actions you take as a result.

For example: Have you ever had to give a presentation (e.g. at work, university or school) and before you presented it, you kept telling yourself things like, âYou can do this,â or âYou'll be fine,â only to have negative thoughts slip in and make you think something along the lines of, âDon't mess up,â or âDon't forget your linesâ?

Chances are high that you got through the presentation, but you also forgot some of your lines, messed up some of the things you were saying, or did something else to embarrass yourself along the way.

Why did you get inconsistent results?

Your emotions were inconsistent prior to the presentation and likely throughout it as well.

On the one hand, you tried to convince yourself that things would go well, but on the other hand, you kept thinking of all the ways it could go wrong.

As a result, you were sending the universe mixed messages and the universe said, âOkay and allowed you to experience the chaos you seemed to want.

The universe doesn't get in your way and make things perfect for you.

It waits for you to be strong enough to imagine getting what you want, believing you will and then taking effective action to make it happen.

Even if you encounter an obstacle, you still believe and you still continue to take effective action and you succeed.

Before you know it, youâve become so much more successful than other people around you and your success continues to grow.

Thatâs how it works if you use the LOA correctly.

It is success for life.

The same rule applies with getting your ex back.

If you donât actually get to the point in your mind where you 100% believe that itâs to get her back using the Law of Attraction, then you will almost certainly get inconsistent results.

For example: You might get all the way to a meet up with your ex, but because youâre secretly doubting that sheâs going to want you back, she ends up saying something along the lines of, âLook, itâs been nice to see you again, but Iâm not interested in us getting back together. Maybe we can be friends from now on instead. Iâm sure you will find a great girl who is right for you, but itâs not me.â

If you honestly want her back, then donât let that outcome happen to you.

Take control of the situation by using the Law of Attraction correctly and the universe will deliver the outcome you really want.

3. Waiting and waiting and waiting for something to happen

Sometimes a guy will assume that he can just wait and eventually, the Law of Attraction will bring his ex woman backâone day.

Yet, months and then years pass and she moves on and is happy without him, or she gets older and he no longer feels as attracted to her as he used to.

Instead, he just likes the idea of getting her back so he doesnât have to feel rejected by her anymore, but doesnât actually want her back for real.

So, the universe says, âOkayâ and goes along with what he wants.

She remains out of his reach because he doesnât take action and she doesnât come back, because he doesnât really want her back anyway.

This is why, if you honestly do want your ex back, the time to take action is now.

Donât wait around and hope that the universe will do all the work for you and deliver her back to you.

It just doesnât work that way.

You need to ask, believe, take effective action (not ineffective action, such as just texting her, or contacting her and coming across in a way that isnât attractive to her) and then you will receive.

The Law of Attraction does work, but you have to use it correctly.

Most people never truly use it correctly, but those who do experience an amazing, successful life where their dreams continually come true.

If you want to experience that kind of flow in your life, youâve got to believe and youâve got to take effective action.

If you do, the universe will say, â€œOkayâ€œ and give you exactly what you want.

How I Got My Ex Back Using the Law of Attraction

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to be one of the many men who can say, â€œI got my ex back using the Law of Attractionâ€ then here are my 5 best tips for you:

1. Be absolutely clear on how the Law of Attraction works

The Law of Attraction steps are as follows:

- Ask for what you want

For example: You might say something along the lines of, â€œI want to get back with my ex. I want it to be easy and effortless. I want us both to fall back in love with each other and to be happy in a relationship together that only gets better and better over time.â€

- Believe that you will receive it

You canâ€™t kind of believe that you will receive what youâ€™re asking for.

You really do have to believe it, through and through, deep down.

If youâ€™re struggling with that, start by getting rid of negative thoughts like these:

- The Law of Attraction canâ€™t really help me get my ex back, can it? Maybe itâ€™s just fake. Maybe it doesnâ€™t work. Maybe itâ€™s a scam.
- She hates me too much for this to work. No amount of believing or a Law of Attraction can change that. She just doesnâ€™t want me anymore.
- Our break up was really bad and I canâ€™t believe sheâ€™d forgive me and want me enough again to give me another chance.
- What if she meets someone else while Iâ€™m trying to get her back using the so-called â€œLaw of Attractionâ€ that I donâ€™t even know for sure works?
- What if Iâ€™m just wasting my time?
- She said that sheâ€™d never change her mind no matter what. Sheâ€™s a very strong willed woman. She doesnâ€™t change her mind easily. I donâ€™t really have a chance.
- She said she doesnâ€™t love me anymore. What is the Law of Attraction going to do about that?

Replace negative thoughts with positive thoughts like these, to begin the process of believing that you will receive what youâ€™re asking for:

- I can get her back.
- It is absolutely possible to re-attract her and make her want to give our relationship another chance.
- I can make her feel differently about me. I know I can. I can do this.
- I believe that our love is still there in the background waiting to be reawaken. When the love comes flooding back, her and I are going to be so happy together. Iâ€™m looking forward to that moment and I know I can make it happen.

- I know Iâm the right man for her now that Iâve changed and realized so many things about myself, relationships and love.
- I believe we can make our relationship work this time around.
- I believe that I can use the natural laws of reality to bend things to my will. I can cause shifts in the complex patterns of the universe that make her miss me, fall back in love with me and get back with me.
- Other men have used the Law of Attraction to get an ex woman back and I can do it too.
- The Law of Attraction has been proven to work by millions of people. It takes courage to truly believe and I have that courage. I will use this powerful law of nature to help me get her back. It will work. I can feel it.

The key is to get to the point where you absolutely believe that itâs totally possible to get her back.

Thereâs not a doubt in your mind.

You know for sure that the universe is saying, âYes. Your wish is granted. Iâm in the process of making it come true now,â when you ask for something.

You know that, you believe it and as a result, you donât have any doubt in your mind.

- Imagine having already received it

[image: Imagine having already received it]

[image: Imagine having already received it]

Imagine you and her catching up, feeling attracted to each other and getting back together.

Then, imagine hugging, followed by her kissing you and looking into your eyes with love.

Imagine her on the sofa next to you, or in bed next to you.

Close your eyes and imagine her there, looking so happy to be with you.

Really feel it and see it as already being achieved for sure.

Make it totally real in your mind.

- Feel the emotions associated with having received it

While imagining having already received what youâve asked for, itâs critically important that you feel the positive emotions associated with it.

For example: Donât imagine you and her back together and be feeling doubt, worry, uncertainty or any other negative emotion.

Instead, feel happy, relieved, proud of yourself for doing it, loved, wanted and blessed.

If you canât honestly feel those emotions and instead, are feeling negative, uncertain emotions, then youâre not using the Law of Attraction properly.

The Law of Attraction responds to your deep, private emotions, which is why you need to honestly believe that you will receive it, then imagine having already received it and then feel the positive emotions associated with having gotten what you wanted.

This next part is just as importantâ€¦!

- Take action to receive it and then you will receive it

Many people skip over, or try to avoid the all important action step of the Law of Attraction.

Then, when they donâ€™t receive what they asked for, they end up saying things like, â€œThe Law of Attraction doesnâ€™t workâ€ or, â€œPeople who say that the Law of Attraction can help you get anything you want are liars and frauds. Itâ€™s a scam – it didnâ€™t work for me. Itâ€™s just a bunch of wishful thinking. Donâ€™t fall for it. Nothing works. You just have to accept your fate. You can't change anything. You have no control over anythingâ€ and so on.

Yet, the truth is, millions of people around the world (including me, by the way) have made their biggest dreams come true using the Law of Attraction.

Why has it worked for those people and not others?

They didnâ€™t skip over the most important step of all to make their dream a reality: Taking action. Skipping that step would be like me saying that I wanted to be the worldâ€™s best ex back expert to help men get their ex back, imagining it happening, but then never writing any articles, never making any videos or never making a step by step program that guys could follow along and use to get their ex woman back.

Of course, I didnâ€™t skip over that stuff and Iâ€™ve already done it.

In fact, Iâ€™ve already written more than 1,000 articles on how to get an ex woman back and I will be writing another 2,000 or so over the coming years.

Many of the articles are 2,000 and up to 6,000 words, or in some cases 10 A4 pages long.

That's a lot of work, but I'm willing to do it because I have the answers and am willing to take the action required to share those answers.

In terms of getting your ex back using the Law of Attraction: You donâ€™t have to spend many years working on it like Iâ€™ve done to become the worldâ€™s best ex back expert.

Instead, you can do it within the next 1-3 weeks if you are willing to follow the steps correctly.

The first step or bit of â€œactionâ€ that you need to take, is to prepare yourself to re-attract your ex during interactions (i.e. get ready to attract her in the ways that she really wants).

For example: If you have lost confidence in your value to her and no longer feel worthy of her, then sheâ€™s going to sense that insecurity when you talk to her and it will turn her off.

So, you need to begin understanding how to be truly confident in yourself and not show signs of insecurity when interacting with your ex.

If you try to skip over that part and just wish and hope that she comes back because youâ€™ve asked the universe to deliver that to you, then youâ€™re not using the Law of Attraction properly.

The universe will do its side of the bargain, but you have to do your part of it as well.

Itâ€™s not a one-sided deal.

The same with what I do: No-one would know the knowledge I have about getting ex women back if I didnâ€™t put in the years of non-stop work that it has taken to write all the articles, make all the videos and create the step by step program.

Yet, I did that and the universe has delivered its side of the bargain because men from all over the world flood to my website every day and Iâ€™m able to help them.

Check out some of the success stories here (countless more have been posted in comments under videos on my Youtube channel by random guys whoâ€™ve gotten my program, followed the steps and gotten their ex woman back).

BTW: Once youâ€™ve prepared yourself to re-attract her, you then need to take the next step of action, which is to interact with her over the phone or in person and begin reawakening her feelings for you.

While doing that, continue to believe that what you are doing is working and is going to work.

Note: That will only be true if youâ€™ve properly prepared yourself to re-attract her, are doing it right and know what to say and do next to get her back.

It doesnâ€™t work if you just do whatever and say to yourself, â€œIt will work.â€

That would be like me writing anything in my articles and saying, â€œYes, this is the best ex back advice online.â€

No.

Itâ€™s only the best if you do it properly, which is what I do with my advice and what you should do when re-attracting your ex to get her back.

So, now that you are aware of how the Law of Attraction actually works, letâ€™s go into detail on what you should do (i.e. more â€œactionsâ€ you can take)â€

2. Imagine you and her back together and feel great about it

For the next few days, spend at least 10-15 minutes each day just imagining you and her back together and really feel the positive emotions associated with it.

For example: Imagine you and her happily sitting at home eating dinner together at the dining table, or in the lounge room if you prefer.

Make it extra real by envisioning what you and her are wearing, what youâ€™re eating, what music is playing in the background (if any) and other little details that might be important to you.

Imagine how she will be smiling and looking at you adoringly, as she eats and is so happy to be back with you.

Imagine her getting a bit of sauce on her lip and you leaning over and wiping it off with your napkin or finger, or even saying, â€œCome hereâ€ and then leaning in to lick it off and then kiss her.

Notice how she laughs, smiles and things feel good between you and her again.

Feel how it would feel to experience that with her.

Imagine how she smells; her unique, soft, beautiful scent that you find so attractive.

Imagine how her skin feels when you touch, caress or hug her.

Imagine the kiss, to the point where you can literally feel the softness of her lips on yours and the beautiful taste her mouth.

In some cases, a guy will need to do that for 1-2 days before he is fully in alignment with getting his ex back using the Law of Attraction, whereas others will need 3-4 days or a week.

I recommend that you get it done as quickly as possible and then begin taking action to move forward through the ex back process right away, rather than backing away out of fear.

To build your confidence that you will succeed in getting her back, an important action step is to

3. Improve your ability to make her feel sexually attracted to you

You can wish and hope that she'll come back all you want, but you still need to be able to attract her when she does.

If you're not ready for that part, then you haven't fulfilled your end of the bargain, so the universe can't give you what you really want.

So, don't skip over this step.

It's very important.

Here are some examples of how a guy can change, improve or adjust his approach in a way that attracts his ex when she comes back, or when he interacts with her again:

- He's so much confident and self-assured now, which means that he doesn't feel the need to control her out of jealousy, or get reassurance from her that he's attractive, worthy, lovable or good enough for her. He knows it and she likes that about him now.
- He's a bit more of a playful challenge for her now (e.g. playfully says no to some things, playfully makes fun of her if she's being unreasonable, doesn't always give her a straightforward answer and instead is a bit more playful), rather than always being so predictable or nice. By being playful I don't mean silly or acting childish or acting like a girl. Instead, it's about being manly, but not being so straightforward about everything all the time. Surprise her at times by saying, No with a smile, or saying, Okay, I'll help you with that, as long as you cook me dinner or saying, Maybe as an answer (with a smile), rather than always giving her a yes/no answer.
- He is now able to create a relationship dynamic that causes her to want to be good to him, treat him well and be affectionate and loving towards him. At the same time, he also treats her well and makes her feel loved and appreciated. She can sense that now by talking to him and seeing how he reacts to things, what he says, how he behaves and how it makes her feel. She can now see that he's the sort of guy that women want to be with. He's changed, he's leveled up and she likes it.
- He makes her feel like a sexy, desirable woman and she feels a spark again, rather than feeling as though she's one of his buddies or a roommate (i.e. there to share the chores, hang out and watch TV together, split the bills). He takes the lead more often now, rather than assuming that she wants to decide on everything, get her way and for him to just follow along. He now understands that a woman wants to relax into her natural, feminine nature, which is to follow a man, rather than lead a man.
- He now has a definite purpose and direction in life that he's actively working towards, rather than drifting along and accepting whatever comes his way in life, or failing at project after project and blaming external things for it (e.g. blaming the government, the Law of Attraction, his upbringing, etc). Due to him leveling up and taking real responsibility for his life, she naturally feels that a future with him will be much safer. That alone won't necessarily get her back, but it's an attractive feeling for a woman, as long the guy doesn't use it to try to sell himself to her (e.g. â€œIâ€™m applying for a new job. Iâ€™m really trying now. Will you give me another chance?â€). Women don't want to give a guy a chance out of pity. Women get with men due to attraction. Make her feel attracted and she'll want you back.

- He's more emotionally mature now, which means that he doesn't seek her pity, create unnecessary arguments, drag her down with his insecurities, or let her walk all over him with her confident, independent personality.

When a woman experiences a new kind of attraction for her ex, she naturally drops her guard and opens up to the idea of being in a relationship with him again.

So, if you want your ex back for real, don't just rely on wishing and hoping via the Law of Attraction.

You've got to make sure that you take the action step of leveling up your ability to attract her. Then, when you are ready (most guys are within 3-7 days)â€¦

4. Interact with her and re-attract her

Once you feel ready (e.g. after a few days, or up to a week of preparing yourself to re-attract your ex), go ahead and contact her.

A phone call is usually best, because she can more easily sense the changes in you via your tonality and the way you express yourself.

You can text her first if you want to, but just don't stick to typed texts because if she has a negative perception of you (e.g. thinks you're needy, desperate or insecure), she will read your texts with that in mind.

Make sure that you at least transition to voice texts, or to a phone call or video call as soon as possible, so she can really get a sense for how much you've changed and then feel attracted to that.

Once you've made her feel attracted to you on the phone and began to connect with her a little more, arrange to catch up in person to say hi.

Important: Don't ask her for that via text.

Guys who do that almost always fail at getting their ex back.

You've got to have the courage to at least use voice texts, or get to a phone call or video call.

So, do that and get the meet up.

Then, using the Law of Attraction, imagine things going really well when you and her meet up.

For example: Imagine yourself walking into the coffee shop or restaurant where you and her are meeting and imagine feeling more confident and self-assured than you ever have before.

Imagine what clothes you're wearing and how, no matter what you've chosen to wear that day, you look handsome, confident and manly and she loves it.

Feel the confidence oozing out of you and how great it is to be sitting there with her again.

Imagine her looking at you and trying to hide her feelings of attraction for you, but you being able to see it.

She smiles and shyly looks down and then bites her bottom lip.

Sheâs feeling it.

From there, see both you and her laughing, smiling and feeling good in each otherâs company.

She then eventually says something like, âTo be honest, I really didnât want to come to this meet up, but Iâm glad that I did. Youâve changed a lot. I really like the new you. Why werenât you like this before?â

Imagine her saying something like that and believe she will.

She feels so attracted to you that she canât stop herself from saying it.

At the end of the meet up, imagine yourself giving her a goodbye hug, which then turns into kiss that makes her heart fill up with love.

Then, imagine the two of you going to your place or hers and having mind-blowing sex.

Anything you do to her makes her feel aroused.

She loves it so much because of who you are now.

Your touch feels so much better than it ever has before.

She knows that itâs not over between you and her now and she definitely wants you back.

Make that as real as possible in your mind.

From thereâ|

5. Get back with her and continue using the Law of Attraction to create an amazing future together as a couple

Once you and her have had sex, reconnected and she is happy to be back with you, it will only get better from there.

This will be so because you will continue doing the types of things that maintain and increase her attraction for you (e.g. being confident, self-assured, charming, emotionally independent, making her laugh and smile, making her feel sexy and desirable in your presence, having purpose in life, being a man of your word, no longer feeling insecure).

She will look up to you, respect you and know that she is so lucky to be with you.

As a result, she will be loyal to you and youâll enjoy an amazing life together as a happy, in love couple.

5 Mistakes to Avoid When Planning a Gift For Your Ex Girlfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Getting your ex girlfriend a gift can sometimes be a way to reopen communication between you and her.

Yet, in most cases, regardless of how amazing your gift is, she just won't open back up to you.

So, here are 5 mistakes to avoid when trying to come up with the best gift idea to hopefully win your ex back:

1. Assuming that buying her something will make her want you back

When no longer feels attracted or in love with an ex boyfriend, she will rarely be won over and want him back because he paid for some object or thing and gave it to her.

She might appreciate his gesture and even say something like, â€œOh, that's nice of you, thanksâ€ if he gives it to her in person, but she might also react badly and say, â€œWhy are you giving me this? We're broken up. I don't want anything from you.â€

Alternatively, if he sends it to her, she might suspect that he's trying to make her feel guilty for leaving him, so she then contacts him and is nice to him.

That way (he hopes), he can then get another chance with her.

Yet, if she suspects that he's trying to make her feel guilty or selfish, so she contacts him, a woman will usually just feel resentful towards him and want to avoid him even more.

So, what should a guy do instead?

Interact with her in person, or at the very least on a phone call, video call or series of voice texts, so she can get a sense of the new and improved him (i.e. more confident, more able to flirt with her and create a spark).

It is him who she will be getting back into a relationship with, not a gift, which is why it's so important that he interacts with her and makes her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him.

When your ex feels attracted and drawn to who you are now, then she knows she'll miss out on experiencing those feelings if she doesn't give you another chance.

That is what makes a woman want to get back with a guy; not a gift that he buys for her when she's not even attracted to him.

So, if a guy just gives his ex girlfriend a gift, or sends her one and hopes that she will open back up to being with him, he will almost always end up feeling disappointed when she rejects him (e.g. â€œWhy are you giving me a gift? I don't want anything from you. It's over, okay? Just leave me aloneâ€), or says something like, â€œThanks for the present. I hope you're well. Take careâ€ to push him away.

You donâ€™t need to spend money on buying something for her.

What you need to do is improve your ability to attract her as you interact with her.

Without that, sheâ€™s just not going to feel much or anything for you and therefore, wonâ€™t be interested in a relationship with you, regardless of what youâ€™ve bought for her.

The next mistake to avoid isâ€¦!

2. Buying something romantic when she doesnâ€™t have romantic feelings

[image: Buying something romantic when she doesnâ€™t have romantic feelings]

[image: Buying something romantic when she doesnâ€™t have romantic feelings]

Sometimes, a guy assumes that buying a romantic gift (e.g. a teddy bear with a red heart on it saying *â€œI miss you,*â€ a heart shaped pendant or bracelet, a personalized box of chocolates, her favorite perfume or body lotion) will make his ex think, *â€œWow! He loves me so much. He is the one! Iâ€™ve got to give him another chance!*â€

Yet, it just doesnâ€™t work that way.

Why?

When a woman breaks up with a guy, itâ€™s normally because she has disconnected from her feelings of love, respect and attraction for him.

So, when a guy is being charming and buying her romantic gifts, although she might appreciate the attention, sheâ€™s still not going to want to be in a relationship because she doesnâ€™t have feelings for him anymore.

For a woman to want to get back into a relationship with an ex, the feelings have to be mutual, or at least close to mutual again.

It canâ€™t just be about him loving her and wanting her back for his own reasons and then trying to buy her feelings for him with romantic gifts.

Why?

Romance is only enjoyable to a woman if she has feelings for a man (i.e. she respects him, feels attracted to him and is either falling in love with him or is in love with him).

If a guy offers romantic gestures to a woman when she isnâ€™t attracted, she will feel uncomfortable, annoyed, pressured and will reject him or close up and make it difficult for him to interact with her.

Essentially, she is reacting to her lack of attraction for him and trying to let him know that.

A woman will rarely say that to a man directly though (e.g. â€œI donâ€™t appreciate or want your romantic gestures because Iâ€™m not attracted to youâ€) because she doesnâ€™t want to make the guy angry, or teach him what he needs to do to make her want him.

She wants a man who understands how to attract a woman and then lets her experience that, rather than a hopeless romantic type of guy who is essentially throwing darts in the dark (or blindly trying anything he can think of) and hoping that he hits the mark.

Women know what hits the mark and itâs the unmistakeable feeling of sexual attraction.

If you donât know how to make her feel that for you anymore, then sheâs simply not going to be interested, regardless of what gift you buy for her.

The next mistake to avoid isâ!

3. Assuming that women are easily tricked by romantic gestures

[image: Assuming that women are easily tricked by romantic gestures]

[image: Assuming that women are easily tricked by romantic gestures]

Women arenât stupid.

Well, almost all women, but you know what I mean.

Most women have a brain and instantly know when a man is trying to buy their affection with gifts, or win them over with promises to do whatever she wants, if sheâll just give him a chance.

Unfortunately, some guys forget that and assume that women are blind to the obvious tricks that men try to use.

As a result, a guy will assume that if he buys a special gift for his ex girlfriend (e.g. a ring, a puppy, a car, a new computer, a phone, etc), she will stop caring about the fact that she doesnât feel attracted to him, or isnât in love with him and will want to be with him anyway.

Of course, some selfish women will initially show some interest if the gift is significant enough, so they can secure the gift and then dump the guy.

Yet, in most cases, a woman will simply reject her exâs attempts at buying her.

In some cases, a woman will even become annoyed and lose more respect for her ex for trying to buy her back.

For example: She may think something like, âI canât believe heâs trying to buy back my love with gifts. After all the crap he put me through, he thinks he can just buy me a gift and shut me up. How dumb does he think I am? I know why I broke up with him and unless he can fix those things and show me that heâs changed what really matters to me (i.e. his thinking, attitude and behavior), Iâm not going to fall for his cheap trick.â

She then closes herself off from him, which makes it more difficult for him to get her back.

Another mistake to avoid making isâ!

4. Buying an expensive gift to hopefully show her how much you care

When a guy doesnât know how to get his ex girlfriend back, he will often assume that the solution must be to show her how much he cares.

He thinks something like, âIf I show her how much I care, she will see that Iâm serious about fixing things. She will see that I am willing to do whatever it takes. Then, she will give me another chance.â€œ

So he begins to shower her with expensive gifts, or gives her one, very special, amazing gift and hopes with all of his heart that it works.

He hopes she will think something like, â€œWow, Iâ€™m impressed! What an amazing gift. It must mean that he really loves me if heâ€™s willing to spend so much money on me. Iâ€™d be a fool to let him get away. After all, what if I never find another man who will show me as much love as he does? Heâ€™s so generous now as well. So, maybe I would regret letting him go. I think I should just get back with him again.â€œ

Yet, he doesnâ€™t realize is that almost all women (apart from gold diggers, or manipulative, selfish women who intend on using a guy and then breaking up with him when they are ready) donâ€™t choose to be with a guy based on what he can buy for her.

Instead, a woman chooses to be with a man based on how he makes her feel when sheâ€™s with him (e.g. attracted, in love, wanting to impress him and maintain his interest, excited about their future as a couple, happy when around him, feminine in comparison to his masculine approach to her and to life, desirable in his eyes).

So, rather than getting an expensive gift for your ex and potentially wasting your time and your money, just focus on reactivating her sexual and romantic feelings for you during an interaction (i.e. in person, on a phone or video call, or via a series of voice texts).

Donâ€™t try to hide behind typed texts because youâ€™re afraid to step up to a phone call, video call or voice texts.

She has to be able to hear your tonality to get a sense of your confidence.

If you just text her, she will assume your level of confidence and if she currently has a negative perception of you (e.g. sees you as being desperate for her, needy, insecure), she will read your texts in a negative way.

So, if you begin texting her, make sure that you quickly transition to voice texts or a phone or video call as soon as you feel the courage to do so.

If you wait too long to transition away from just typed texts, she will almost certainly lose interest, play hard to get or reject you.

I know this because Iâ€™ve successfully helped countless men from all over the world to get an ex woman back fast.

Donâ€™t make the classic mistakes that so many other guys make.

On that note, hereâ€™s another mistake to avoid when it comes to getting an ex girlfriend a gift!

5. Acting like you donâ€™t expect anything (i.e. a relationship, her feeling guilty) in return for the gift and are just doing it because youâ€™re such a nice guy

As I mentioned earlier, women arenâ€™t stupid.

They know what guys do to try to get a chance with them.

So, if a guy gives his ex girlfriend a gift and says something like, â€œI just wanted to give you something nice to say thank you for being a great girlfriend and to wish you the best for your future without me,â€œ sheâ€™s going to be suspicious.

What should he do instead?

Simple: Donâ€™t try to use a gift to get her back.

Just contact her and re-attract her, so she naturally wants to get back with him.

Always remember: For her to want to get back with you, she needs to have feelings for you.

If itâ€™s only you who has feelings and youâ€™re trying to get her back by buying her a gift, then she might appreciate the attempt, but itâ€™s not going to change her feelings.

You can change her feelings today or tomorrow if you are willing to focus on natural attraction.

In other words, interact with her and display the traits and behaviors that naturally cause a woman to feel attracted and interested in her ex again.

Gift Ideas Ex Girlfriend (Give Her This!)

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

I will explain the ultimate gift to give to your ex girlfriend in this article.

However, I first have to tell you something very important: Getting an ex girlfriend a physical gift (e.g. a teddy, a ring, chocolates, flowers, something she really wants, but can't afford to buy herself) is not the best way to get her back.

Why?

Women only enjoy romantic gestures from a man that they are attracted to.

If a man is offering a woman romantic gestures when she isn't attracted, she will close up and become difficult to interact with, or she will outright reject him and ask him to leave her alone.

So, if you are set on giving your ex girlfriend a gift, this is what you really need to do to be successful and get her back:

1. Reawaken her sexual feelings for you based on the new way you talk to her and interact with her

[image: Reawaken her sexual feelings for you based on the new way you talk to her and interact with her]

[image: Reawaken her sexual feelings for you based on the new way you talk to her and interact with her]

If you want your ex girlfriend to really sit up and pay attention to you again (i.e. want you back for real), then you need to use an approach that will actually work.

That means, even though buying her a nice, expensive or meaningful gift may cause her to think something along the lines of, "That was nice of him," it's not necessarily going to make her want you back.

After all, she can easily think something like, "Huh? Why has he given me a gift? Does he think I'll get back with him because of a gift?"

If you think about it: A gift isn't you.

It's just something you buy for her, it's an object or a thing.

That isn't you.

If she's going to want to get back with you, then she needs to feel something for you as a person, based on how you make her feel when you interact with her.

So, you need to do that first, before even getting the optional step of giving her a gift (i.e. a gift is not necessary).

How?

Begin attracting her in new and exciting ways, so she can start feeling respect and attraction for you again.

Some of the ways you can do that are by

- Being more ballsy and assertive, while still being a good guy to her, rather than being too nice and always letting things slide with her to avoid a confrontation, or to avoid annoying her. BTW: Women often pretend to be annoyed to see if a guy will cower, become hesitant and insecure around her. If he does, she loses respect and attraction for him. Sheâll never explain that to him, because she doesnât want to be his teacher on how to attract a woman. A guy either understands this stuff, or the woman loses interest. Itâs as simple as that and it applies all the way throughout life. You either understand women, or you struggle with women.
- Being emotionally strong and taking the lead during interactions, rather than allowing her to walk all over you with her confident, independent personality.
- Being confident and self-assured around her, rather than feeling nervous, insecure or not good enough for her, regardless of what she says, how she behaves or how she treats you.
- Making her feel feminine and girly when sheâs with you by using ballsy humor or having a masculine attitude, rather than making her feel neutral, or even a little bit turned off, because you just talk to her gently and treat her like a friend.
- Using humor to break down her defenses and make her feel happy and relaxed to be around you again, rather than being too serious with her and making her feel tense and stressed out as a result.

The more you naturally attract your ex girlfriend in ways that she wasnât expecting from you, the less she will be able to keep her defenses up.

She will realize that her feelings for you are real and if she doesnât give you another chance, she may end up regretting you as the one that got away.

So, focus on making her feel sexually attracted to you before you even attempt to buy her a gift.

The next step you need to take isâ|

2. Make her want you back, but donât try to get a relationship

When a guy is searching for help on how to get an ex girlfriend back, itâs usually a case of him being ready to get back into a relationship with her right now, but her being unsure or not wanting it at all.

In many cases, heâll make the mistake of pushing for a relationship and letting her see that his #1 goal is for them to be a couple asap.

As a result, he might say or text things like, âLetâs give our relationship another try. I promise you, this time things will be different. I love you more than anything and Iâm willing to do whatever it takes.â

Yet, rather than getting her back with that approach, he just pushes her away further.

Why?

Getting an ex woman back is about making her want you back so much that she is the one hoping you and her become a couple again.

One of the best ways to do that is to focus on re-attracting her, but also let her sense that youâre not pushing for a relationship.

She then feels as though if she doesn't turn on her charms and seduce you, then you might lose interest and she might end up feeling rejected and left behind.

So, she opens up to getting back with you and says it, or turns on her charms and seduces you sexually, in the hope that things will get back together from there.

Making her feel that way about you is 100x more enjoyable, rewarding, fulfilling and meaningful to her than her getting a gift from you when she has little to no feelings for you and suspects you might be trying to buy her back with a gift.

So, instead, make her want you back, but don't try to secure a relationship.

Then continue to

3. Build on her attraction to the point where she is trying to get you to commit again

[image: Build on her attraction to the point where she is trying to get you to commit again]

[image: Build on her attraction to the point where she is trying to get you to commit again]

Build up her feelings of attraction for you to the point where she feels that if she doesn't get you back, she might regret it for the rest of her life.

One of the ways you can do that is by building up the sexual tension between you and her.

How?

By flirting with her and making her feel sexually attracted to you during a conversation (e.g. by being more assertive, while still being a good guy to her. By being more masculine, so she feels girly in comparison to you), but then just go back to interacting with her in a normal, friendly manner as though you're not trying to flirt with her.

That leaves her thinking, What just happened? I thought we were flirting again. I thought it was on. I must have taken his intentions the wrong way.

Then, flirt with her again and make her feel even more attracted, excited and drawn to you.

Then, relax back into ordinary conversation once again.

By doing that, sexual tension will build up between you and her and she'll want to release the tension with kissing and sex.

Yet, to get to the point where you and her have sex, she'll need to turn on her charm, start making some moves (i.e. touching you more, being more open), so you know that she is feeling it.

When she's feeling and behaving in that way, it's just a matter of you making a simple move like moving on for a hug and then kiss and it will be on.

Before you know it, you and her will be having sex and she'll be enjoying the exciting, unforgettable gift of make up sex with an ex that she has become attracted to again.

BTW: It's fine if you and her only kiss and fool around a little (i.e. touching, rubbing, etc).

As long as she's feeling enough sexual attraction for you to become sexual or fool around a little with you, then it's back on.

At that point, a woman will often say something like, Maybe we made a mistake with breaking upâ□□ or, â□□I like the new you. Why werenâ□□t you like this before?â□□ or, â□□Maybe we should give us another shot.â□□

When that happens, you can thenâ□□!

4. Allow her to have a relationship with you again

Allowing her to be your girlfriend again means that you take on the position of power in the relationship, which is what a woman really wants a man to do anyway.

When you are essentially letting her be with you (without saying that to her BTW. Saying it to her would be rude and will backfire) by agreeing with what she is proposing, or going along with her desire to be back with you, then youâ□□re giving her the greatest gift of all.

Women yearn to be with a man who makes her feel lucky to be with him, while also treating her well. When she has a man like that, she feels proud to be with him and tries harder to keep the relationship together and to keep him happy.

That really is the ultimate gift you can give to your ex girlfriend.

Nothing else compares to that.

On the other hand, when a woman reluctantly gives a guy a chance and opens up to dating him, or reluctantly gives an ex boyfriend another chance even though she's not feeling attracted, itâ□□s not a gift to her; itâ□□s a burden.

She finds herself in the uncomfortable situation of being with a guy who is totally into her, but she doesn't feel the same way at all.

That always leads to a rejection or a break up.

So, how can you give your ex girlfriend the ultimate gift of getting to be your girlfriend again?

When she starts pushing you to get back together again, rather than responding too eagerly and saying something like, â□□Yes! Thatâ□□s what Iâ□□ve been waiting to hear from you all along. Iâ□□ve been so lost without you. I have been trying so hard to convince you that Iâ□□ve changed, so you will give me another chanceâ□□ and making her perceive you as desperate, just maintain your composure and make her feel like sheâ□□s winning (or getting a gift) by getting back with you. Just let her sense (donâ□□t say it!) that you donâ□□t need her back, but that you do love her and are happy to let her get back with you.

She will get that sense based on your body language, behavior and how you react to what she is proposing, hinting at or trying to get to happen.

When she senses that you do love her, but donâ□□t need her and are willing to give it a try because of her approach to you now, not only does she want you even more, but she also feels lucky to have you.

Then, once you get her back into a relationship, you canâ□□!

5. Give her the gift of going for a weekend away with you somewhere

After youâve made her fall back in love with you and have gotten her back, you can then give her a gift that she will love and appreciate â a weekend away with you.

This allows you and her to begin a renewed relationship with new, happy and exciting memories.

Itâs a fresh start for you both, with the added bonus of having the break up and the lessons you learned from it, push you to be a better man for her.

Just donât try to offer her a weekend away with you before you re-attract her and get her back.

When it comes to getting an ex woman back, you have to do things in the right order, otherwise she will either reject you or become difficult to interact with.

Always start by re-attracting her first and then everything will flow so much more smoothly between you and her from there.

BTW: It doesnât take long to re-attract her.

You can literally do it tomorrow, if you are willing to learn.

5 Tips for Successfully Reuniting With Your Ex Girlfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you want to reunite with your ex girlfriend, be sure to apply these tips to ensure that your attempt is successful and results in you and her getting back into a committed, loving relationship that lasts.

1. Level up your ability to attract her emotionally

Emotional attraction is very important to women when it comes to relationships.

So, if a woman is with a man who she can't truly feel attracted to emotionally (e.g. she's more emotionally independent, whereas he tends to be clingy and needy, she's focused on making progress on her goals as soon as possible, whereas he is still happy to drifting through life, she believes in herself and her value to him, while he feels insecure about his value to her, she feels comfortable around confident people, whereas he feels intimidated), then relationship just won't feel right to her.

Some women put up with that, but if a woman is attractive and knows she doesn't have to settle for it, she will usually want to go through with a break up and try to find a more emotionally attractive man.

This is why, if you want to successfully reunite with your ex, you need to level up your ability to make her feel emotionally attracted, so she can sense that things would really be better with you now.

Here are some examples of what a woman might want to see from her ex boyfriend when she interacts with him again:

- He treats her well and is loving and attentive, but he now also makes her feel motivated to be good to him and impress him. She senses that and realizes that if she doesn't treat him well and impress him, he might lose interest in her. It's no longer a one-sided, âhe wants her, but she doesn't want himâ kind of relationship. There is mutual attraction and desire to impress each other now.
- He remains calm, confident and in control regardless of what she says or does to test him (e.g. not giving straight answers, acting like she doesn't care, insulting him, putting him down) or how emotional she gets. This shows her that he is a much stronger man now, but is still loving and respectful. He's manned up.
- He makes her feel turned on and aroused by way of his flirting and manly behavior, rather than making her feel neutral, non-sexual feelings by acting like a nice friend, or like an unworthy ex who is insecure around her now.
- He makes her feel special and loved, but he doesn't need to spend every minute with her to feel secure. Instead, he now has his own goals, interests and ambitions outside of the relationship, which naturally prevent him from being clingy, needy, controlling or jealous.

When a man is able to make changes like those, his ex girlfriend will automatically begin to feel more emotionally attracted to him and as a result, it will be so much easier to reunite and get back together, because she will want it too.

2. Reach out to her and set up a meet up while you still can

[image: Reach out to her and set up a meet up while you still can]

[image: Reach out to her and set up a meet up while you still can]

She's not going to wait around, or be single and available forever.

So, if you're not in contact with her right now, go ahead reach out to her via text or social media to reopen the lines of communication.

Once you've done that, it's important that you get her on a call (phone call or video call), so you can properly reactivate some of her feelings for you and make her want to see you in person.

Every day, all across the world, millions guys successfully reunite with an ex girlfriend right away, simply by just having the courage to hit a call on their phone and talk to her, rather than hiding behind texts or messages for weeks or months.

Hiding behind texts results in so many guys losing out on getting an ex girlfriend back, because she gets bored with the endless and pointless texting (or messaging) back and forth, or she decides to play hard to get to hopefully encourage him to call, or get to the point where he arranges a meet up.

She then either stops responding to him, or she places him in the friend zone and moves on with another guy instead.

That's why you need to call her and use some playfully challenging humor to make her feel attracted and think, "He sounds so different now. Maybe it would be fun to see him in person."

For example: Imagine you're on a call with her and she says, "I just can't decide if it's a good idea to see each other again."

You then laugh and say, "You always had a problem with decisions, so let's not decide. Let's just catch up," which is actually a decision of course, because you're deciding for the both of you that you should catch up.

Alternatively, you could laugh and say, "Well, if you can't decide, I'll decide for us. We'll catch up and have a coffee this Wednesday at 7pm. Meet you at Cafe Modern at 7pm on Wednesday."

Alternatively, you can laugh and say, "It's not a good idea. It's a great idea. We'll catch up, have a coffee, have a laugh and say goodbye. There's no problem with that, so it's not a big decision to make. See you at 7pm on Wednesday at Cafe Modern?"

Alternatively, you can laugh and say, "You're so funny. Always struggling to make decisions. Let's just have a coffee. No big deal. See you at Cafe Modern at 7pm on Wednesday for an innocent catch up between exes. You're paying for the coffee of course" and then pause, let her feel shocked or ask, "Huh?" and then say, "Just kidding. The coffee is on me. Let's catch up, have a laugh and a chat. No strings attached."

If you have the courage to playfully mess with her, it will create sparks of attraction inside of her because women are attracted to confident, ballsiness and daring from men, as long as you are still being a good, respectful man.

As a result of feeling attracted, she will naturally want to meet up with you to experience more of this new, exciting and interesting side of you.

3. Surprise her with new, exciting feelings of attraction at the meet up

At the meet up, make sure that you continue to reawaken her feelings by saying and doing the types of things that will make her look at you in a more positive light.

For example:

- Rather than being nervous and unsure of yourself around her, surprise her with your new, more confident and relaxed attitude.
- Rather than being too nice, polite and on your best behavior, shock her (in a good way) by flirting with her, using some playfully challenging humor and allowing the sexual sparks to fly between you and her again.
- Rather than pretending that you only see her as a neutral friend now, make it clear to her via the way you talk and interact with her that you still find her sexy and desirable.
- Rather than let her control the dynamic of the conversation or interaction, stand up to her in a loving, but assertive way so she can see you've manned up and are now able to handle her confident, independent personality.

The more you do that, the more she will realize that you aren't the same guy she broke up with. As a result, her walls will come down and she will begin to imagine what reuniting with you (sexually and romantically) would feel like.

4. Let her be the one who is hinting at or suggesting that you and her get back together

Many guys make the mistake of meeting up with an ex girlfriend and then pushing and trying hard to get her to agree to having a relationship again.

Yet, that approach almost always backfires because a woman doesn't want to feel trapped, or like she's being forced into something she's not sure about.

This is why it's important that you focus on making her feel very attracted to you at the meet up (i.e. by being challenging, flirting with her, remaining confident no matter what she says or does to make you doubt yourself), so she's the one who starts hinting at getting back together again.

For example: She might say, "Seeing you again has made me wonder if we made a mistake by breaking up. What do you think? Do you think there's a chance we can work things out after all?"

Alternatively, rather than saying something, she might give you signs that she's open to hooking up with you sexually (e.g. touching you more often than she needs to, playing with her throat or hair while talking to you), because she knows that sex speeds up the reconciliation process.

You can then just lead the way and guide her to a hug, kissing, sex and then back into a relationship.

5. Allow her to have another chance with you

Once you've re-attracted her and made her want to be back with you, mentally put yourself in the position where it is you who is deciding whether or not she gets a chance with you.

Not only is that a better dynamic for you, but it's also what a woman really wants anyway.

Women want a guy who makes them feel lucky to be with him, rather than reluctantly accepting a guy that theyâ€”re not really that into.

When you make that mental shift to see yourself as being in the position of power, she will begin to sense it based on your body language, what youâ€”re saying, how youâ€”re behaving and how youâ€”re reacting to her.

As a result, she will begin to feel as though sheâ€”s the one who has to impress you to ensure that you and her get back together.

This makes her begin to turn on her charm to try to fully win you over.

You then allow her to have another chance with you.

5 Mistakes to Avoid When Attempting to Reunite With an Ex Girlfriend

1. Coming on too strong about wanting a relationship when she doesnâ€”t feel the same way

Women rarely respond well when a man is desperate for a relationship.

Itâ€”s just not attractive.

So, if you come on too strong about wanting a relationship, your ex girlfriend is likely going to feel uncomfortable, pressured and as though she is being forced into something that sheâ€”s not ready for, or doesnâ€”t want anymore.

She might then begin to close herself off from you, cut off contact or ask that you and her donâ€”t speak to each other for a while (i.e. she will ask for space, so she can start dating other men and move on).

This is why, if you want to successfully reunite with your ex girlfriend, focus on building up her sexual and romantic feelings for you during interactions, rather than trying to secure a relationship when she doesnâ€”t even feel like being in one with you.

After youâ€”ve had sex with her again, you and her will naturally begin to get back together if youâ€”ve changed and she likes the new you.

Prior to that, donâ€”t try to secure a relationship because she will almost certainly push you away, play hard to get or ask for space.

2. Not adjusting your approach to make her feel a new kind of attraction for you

If a guy tries to get his ex girlfriend back by using the same approach that he used before (e.g. being really nice and sweet to her, treating her like a friend, letting her call all the shots), she usually wonâ€”t be interested and will simply reject him.

This is why, to make your ex want you back, you need to start creating new feelings of sexual and romantic attraction inside of her (i.e. by being more of a challenge, being more manly in how you talk to her, behave around her and react to her).

When you make her feel attracted in new and exciting ways, she then feels compelled to give you another chance, because itâ€”s interesting, appealing and arousing for her.

3. Being tense and anxious around her, rather than confident and lighthearted

Women are naturally attracted to confident, emotionally strong men.

So, if you're being too tense and anxious during interactions with your ex, she will naturally feel turned off (i.e. her instincts tell her that a guy that can't relax and be confident is emotionally weak or unstable).

As a result, she will instinctively decide that you're not the right guy for her and push you away.

4. Asking her if she wants to get back into a relationship with you

It seems like an innocent, practical question to ask, âSo, do you want to get back together?â or, âDo you think there's a chance we could work things out?â but when you ask an ex woman something like that, she will usually give you an answer that is counter-productive (e.g. she's not sure, she needs space to think about it).

Alternatively, she will reject your offer to avoid seeming too easy.

This is why, the best approach is for you to just interact with her and focus on sparking her sexual and romantic feelings for you.

When you make her feel attracted, respectful and excited around you, then reuniting with her will naturally begin to happen because she will want it too.

5. Waiting too long to initiate the reconciliation

The longer you wait to begin the ex back process, the more chances you're giving her to get over you and find a new man to fall in love with.

If you don't want that to happen, you have to make sure that you don't spend the next few weeks, or even months, ignoring her and hoping that she can't replace you.

The best approach is to just call her and actively make her have feelings for you again.

Then, hook up with her sexually and guide her back into a relationship.

Will She Come Back if I Give Her Space? 7 Possible Outcomes

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Not necessarily.

Here are 7 possible outcomes of you giving her space and waiting for her to come back.

1. She feels sad, so she decides to make herself feel better by dating new men

Almost all women have men in their life who secretly like her and are just waiting for a chance to date her.

For example: A coworker, a neighbor, a friend of a friend, or an ex who she still feels something for.

It's also very easy for women to line up a bunch of dates via dating apps and sites (e.g. Tinder, OkCupid, Coffee Meets Bagel, Hinge, Bumble).

Additionally, if she's attractive and she goes to bars or clubs with her friends (they will usually drag her out for a girl's night out to make her feel better), the chances of her getting hit on by guys there are pretty high.

If she wants to (or gets drunk and goes with the flow), she can easily hook up with a guy she meets there and even end up dating and then getting into a relationship with him.

So, if you give her too much space and she feels hurt because of it, don't assume she will come running back to you to get you back.

Instead, she might decide to open herself up to dating a new guy to give herself a confidence boost and make herself feel better that way instead.

Then, by the time you do contact her (possibly after 30 or even 60 days), she will likely already be with a new man, or have experienced fun, exciting sex and want more of it.

Then, convincing her to leave her new relationship, or give up on an enjoyable single life to give you another chance becomes a lot more difficult for you.

This is why, if you do give your ex space, 3 to 7 days is long enough to allow for things to calm down and for her to start missing you.

3 to 7 days proves the point that you're not being needy or desperate, while also showing her that you haven't just given up and don't care enough to attempt to get her back.

So, when you wait too long, it can often motivate a woman to want to forget about you and move on, rather than risk contacting you to find out that you're not interested.

The next reason why she won't necessarily come back just because you gave her space is that

2. She doesn't care because she's not planning on getting back with you

[image: She doesn't care because she's not planning on getting back with you]

[image: She doesn't care because she's not planning on getting back with you]

When a woman breaks up with a man, it will usually be a move that she works up to making over the course of weeks or months.

First, she will usually give her man chances to improve himself or change the dynamic of the relationship, but if he doesn't, she will begin to switch off her feelings for him.

Additionally, she will usually prepare herself mentally to move on and make a fresh start without him in it (i.e. tell some of her girlfriends and get them ready to want to go out and party with her, or start flirting and opening up to guys who are interested in her, so she has a new guy to date pretty much right away).

Then, she will get herself to the point where she doesn't care if she loses him.

At that point, she will dump him.

Then, if he doesn't contact her, she simply won't care much at all and will get on with enjoying life without him.

So, when a woman doesn't hear from a man she has dumped, rather than feeling upset about it and running back to him, she just doesn't care.

It's actually not something she spends a lot of time thinking or worrying about, because she's usually busy getting on with her life.

This is why, you stand a much better chance of getting your ex back by giving her a little bit of space (i.e. up to a week) and then interact with her again to re-attract her and get her back.

3. She feels happier without you, which makes her glad that you're not contacting her

In most cases, the days, weeks and even months leading up to a break up are filled with more bad days than good ones.

The couple will usually have arguments and feel like they are drifting apart, or as though only one of them wants to hold onto the relationship.

During this time, a woman might find herself often crying and wondering why she's even bothering sticking around with a guy who makes her feel so miserable.

Initially, she might feel a bit afraid to break up with him because she worries that she'll miss him and feel unhappy without him in her life.

Yet, if she doesn't feel happy with him, she will force herself to go through with the break up.

Then, rather than feeling lost and sad without him, she actually feels happy and free.

It feels like a weight has been lifted off of her shoulders and she can now get on with enjoying life, rather than being stuck in a relationship that was making her unhappy.

4. She feels rejected that you're not contacting her, worries about losing you and then contacts you

Sometimes giving a woman space and not contacting her can work.

She can worry that she's losing you and contact you to open communication back up between you.

Of course, there's no guarantee you will get her back if she contacts you under those circumstances (i.e. if she senses that you haven't changed, she can and usually will lose interest. Alternatively, she may just contact you to check that you still want her back, so she can feel good about herself as she moves on without you).

5. She doesn't worry because she has plenty of experience with break ups and knows that the pain will pass

If a woman has been through a few break ups in her life, she will know that no matter how sad, lonely and dejected she might be feeling because an ex isn't contacting her, those feelings will eventually fade away.

So, rather than letting his silence bother her, a woman will usually focus on doing the things that will help her get over him (e.g. spend more time going out with her single friends and flirting with guys, focus on her work or hobbies, go on dates, have sex with someone new).

6. She feels disappointed that you don't care enough to contact her and fix things

Regardless of how convinced a woman is that she wants to be broken up, it doesn't mean she is 100% against giving her ex another chance if he contacts her and re-attracts her.

This is one of the reasons why so many couples break up and get back together more than once.

Women pretty much always give a guy another chance, if he is able to re-attract her.

Important: Re-attracting her is different to trying to convince her to give you another chance.

Re-attracting her is about interacting with her and letting her experience the changes in you, rather than telling her that you've changed or will change if she gives you another chance.

So, if you give your ex too much space and don't contact her for weeks or months, you can end up killing any hope she has of giving you another chance.

As a result, she may think something like, "Well, maybe he never loved me at all! If he did, he'd be calling me instead of ignoring me. I guess I was a fool to believe that he really loved me."

A woman will usually then begin dating and hooking up with another guy to make herself feel better.

7. She falls in love with a new guy and stops caring about potentially getting back with you

When a woman has lost touch with her feelings for a guy enough to dump him and leave him, she will rarely wait around for him to come back to her.

Instead, she will focus on moving on as quickly as possible, even if that means dating guys who aren't her ideal match, until she finds the right one.

Then, by the time her ex does contact her again, she might be in love with someone else and not interested in trying to fix a broken relationship.

If he'd contacted her earlier, it would have been easier for him to get her to meet up.

Yet, now he's made it unnecessarily difficult for himself by having to attract her on a call and persuade her to meet up, despite being with a new guy.

This is why, if you want your ex back, you need to be the guy who makes her feel respect, attraction and love again so she wants to be with you, rather than with anyone else.

If you let another guy get a hold of her heart, you're going to have to battle to convince her that you're her ideal match and he isn't.

4 Mistakes Men Often Make When Giving a Woman Space After a Break Up

1. Assuming that the more space he gives her, the more she will want him back

A little bit space (i.e. 3 to 7 days) is best when getting an ex woman back.

The reason why is because it gives her some time to cool off and begin missing you, while also proving that you're not needy and desperate, but do still care about her.

Giving her more than a week can result in her believing that you don't care anymore, so she is free to move on without you.

2. Assuming that giving space works in all break up situations

Giving a lot of space works in some, but not most break up situations.

For example: If a woman is still very much in love with her guy, she may go back to him if he ignores her for weeks because she doesn't want to risk losing him.

Of course, she might also feel rejected and decide to move on without him.

Another example of when giving space works, is if a woman struggles to find a replacement man.

She may then go back to her ex because she wants to stop feeling like a reject, or stop feeling lonely and left behind.

However, in cases like that, she will usually be looking for another guy in the background and when she finds one she will dump her ex again and move on.

On the other hand, in cases where a woman has lost touch with her feelings for a guy enough to dump him, giving her space is actually something she is grateful for, because she can move on in peace.

So, if your ex stopped loving you, feeling attracted to you and respecting you near the end of the relationship, don't assume that she will want that back.

A woman wants to feel in love and be in a relationship with a man that she respects and feels attracted to.

If you want her back, contact her, interact with her and let her experience those kind of feelings for you.

3. Assuming that she will want to come back to him, even though she's not attracted or in love with him anymore

Think about it!

It doesn't make sense to assume that a woman who no longer has feelings for a guy, is suddenly going to change her mind the longer he ignores her, right?

She doesn't want him, so why would she want him if he lets her have space?

It will only work if she can't find a suitable replacement man, or if she really does want him and only dumped him due to a silly argument or problem they experienced.

If your ex dumped you due to no longer having enough feelings to want to be with you, then she's almost certainly not going to run back to that if you give her space.

This is why, just giving a woman space is not the answer to getting her back.

What is the answer? Attraction.

The more attraction you can make her feel when you interact with her, the more she will realize that her feelings for you aren't dead and that getting back with you would actually be exciting, interesting and enjoyable for her now.

4. Underestimating her ability to attract and date new men and move on without him

Most women are attractive enough to easily find a new man to start dating, sleeping with or having a relationship with.

So, when a woman's ex ignores her after the break up, she will won't struggle to be able to meet new men.

To make herself feel better, she may decide to hook up with one of them, rather than chasing after an ex that she assumes is no longer interested in her (i.e. because he's not contacting her).

5 Tips for Getting an Ex Back After Months of No Contact

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The No Contact Rule doesn't work for most ex back cases where a guy has been dumped by a woman who no longer feels enough attraction or love to be with him.

However, there is still always a chance to contact your ex, make her feel attracted and get something going again.

All hope is not lost.

You can still get her back.

So, here are 5 tips for you, if you're serious about getting her back after months of using the No Contact Rule on her:

1. Understand that she will might experience some good feelings to hear from you after this long

After all, you are a man that she used to really like or love and there is a chance that she may have been missing you for a while.

Even though she dumped you, she may not have been 100% over you when the relationship ended.

In a case like that, it can cause a woman to wonder why he isn't contacting her anymore (e.g. Has he met a new girl? Does he not care about her all of a sudden? Is it him who is rejecting her now?).

Despite that, most women don't reach out to an ex who is using No Contact and instead, decide to begin moving on by meeting new men (e.g. going to bars and clubs, joining an online dating site or using an app like Tinder, joining a meet up group in her area, opening up to dating one or more of her male friends who have had a crush on her).

In most cases, the woman will move on and forget about her ex.

Yet, if she is unable to properly move on (e.g. because she has only been meeting low quality guys, no one is asking her out on a date, she didn't feel enough of a spark with her male friends), she may find herself thinking about her ex more and more.

Rather than remembering all the negative things about him that used to turn her off (e.g. she felt more like his friend than his lover, he wasn't enough of a challenge to her, so she never felt motivated to treat him well and be a good woman to him, he was too insecure and ended up being clingy and needy), she instead starts thinking about him in a more positive way.

Then, if he contacts her out of the blue after ignoring her for months, there is a chance she will be happy to hear from him and be willing to reply.

Of course, if she interacts with him and notices that he hasn't changed and is still making the same attraction mistakes as before (e.g. still seems a bit insecure, still lacks the manliness she craves, still gives her too much power), she will lose interest and become more determined to meet new men to move on without him.

So, if you do contact your ex after months of No Contact, make sure that you're ready to re-attract her in new and interesting ways, rather than just reaching out and talking to her like a friend, or letting her sense that you still have some or all of the same kind of issues that turned her off about you.

2. Understand that she will probably suspect that you want her back and that isn't a problem

[image: Understand that she will probably suspect that you want her back and that isn't a problem]

[image: Understand that she will probably suspect that you want her back and that isn't a problem]

If you contact her, she will have to wonder why.

If she suspects that you're contacting her due to wanting her back, it's not a problem.

Yet, just don't go right into letting her sense that you want her back, unless she shows that to you.

If she is just talking like a friend, then add in flirting and arrange a catch up in person as soon as possible, without giving her the impression that it's about starting the relationship again and nothing else.

Let her sense that it's a casual catch up.

3. Understand that she might have gotten over you by this point and will need to experience a new spark to feel drawn to you again

A romantic, sexual spark is what changes a man and a woman from just being friends, to being lovers, boyfriend-girlfriend or husband-wife.

It's the fundamental thing that makes a woman want more than just a friendship, or nothing at all.

Your ex would have felt a spark with you in the past, which led to her wanting to have a sexual relationship with you.

Yet, somewhere along the line, the spark died and she began to lose interest.

If you want to get her back now, after months of No Contact, the best approach to use it to create a new kind of spark with her, so she becomes interested and curious.

If you tried to rekindle the relationship by using the approach you used with her in the past, her guard will go up and she may feel as though you're trying to get her to want what she used to like about you when things were good.

For example: If a guy initially attracted his girlfriend by talking about certain topics that she was interested in, or texting her late at night and having deep and meaningful conversations, he might try that approach again.

Yet, that's old news to her.

It's an approach that she previously fell for, which resulted in a relationship that she ended up disliking so much she ended it.

So, to avoid her putting her guard up, you need to be willing to create a new kind of spark with her, which will then cause her to see you in a new light.

For example: Some of the ways you can do that are by

- Taking control in an emotionally masculine manner and leading the way during interactions with her, rather than letting her call the shots or cause you to behave in a timid way, due to her confident, independent personality.
- Avoiding being too serious around her and instead using humor to make her laugh, smile and feel happy to be around you again.
- Being confident and believing in your value to her, rather than feeling unworthy of her now due to being dumped.
- Being a good guy to her, but also flirting with her and building up sexual tension between you and her, so that she wants to release the exciting tension with hugging, kissing and sex.
- Remaining calm, confident and easy-going rather than getting upset, regardless of what she says or does to test you.

When you use a new approach to her, she will feel a new spark with you.

Then, she will realize that if she doesn't give you a chance, she may end up missing you and regretting it.

As a result, she opens up to giving you another chance, or at least meeting up with you in person to see what happens.

4. A confident voice text with a bit of humor works better than just a standard text

The best approach is a phone call, or video call.

However, if you can't do that or don't feel confident enough to do so, then sending her a confident voice text and adding in some humor, or light flirting will spark her attraction and curiosity and make her want to respond to you.

You can then banter back and forth a few times after that via voice text, but eventually, have the courage to get on a phone call with her to give yourself the best chance to re-attract her and get her to meet up with you in person.

Whatever you do though, make sure that you don't just stick to typed texts.

Using voice texts (at the very least), or talking to your ex on a call will get you much quicker results than just typing up texts.

Why?

On a phone call, she can sense whether or not you've changed based on the tonality of your voice and how you are now talking to her, responding to her and reacting to what she says.

As a result, when you suggest a meet up, she is more likely to accept and agree because she will want to experience the new, confident version of you face to face.

She is also much less likely to reject you on a phone call vs. a text.

Based on what I've seen from thousands of text examples Modern Man customers and website visitors have sent me, as well as from guys I've coached in the past, women are at least 10x more likely to reject a request for a meet up when it's sent via text vs. asked for on a phone call.

Voice texts increase the chances of getting a yes, but they aren't as effective as a live phone call or video call.

So, make sure not to try and achieve everything with your ex via typed texts.

At the very least, use voice texts to then transition to a phone call (i.e. because she's heard your voice, sensed that youâre not being needy, sensed your confidence and becomes curious to talk to you on a call).

5. Make sure that your social profile shows that youâve been having fun around other people

When you contact her, she will almost certainly go to your social profiles first to see what youâve been up to.

If she sees that your profile hasnât been updated in months, or you made posts that suggest you are alone, or doing things on your own, then it can cause her to think something like, âWhy is he contacting me? Is he lonely and desperate without me/ It looks like heâs been sitting around all this time and doing nothing. Maybe heâs just contacting me because he canât find another woman to be with.â

She then doesnât feel motivated to talk to you or see you.

So, before reaching out to your ex, make sure that your social media profiles are updated with photos of you having fun with other people.

Important: It must be with other people and not of you alone (regardless or how good you think you look in a particular photo), of your pet, the sunset on the beach or the great meal you had at your favorite restaurantâalone.

Women arenât attracted to loneliness or emotional weakness (i.e. a guy who is unable to be around other people after being dumped because heâs suffering emotionally).

Women are attracted to emotional strength, which you can display to her by having fun with other people and posting it on social media.

Even just seeing a few photos of you enjoying your life without her, is enough for most women to drop their guard and open up to interacting with you some more to see where things go.

Iâve heard back from thousands of men whoâve experienced this, even with the most stubborn, uninterested ex girlfriend or wife.

You have to do what works.

On that note, here are some examples of what doesnât workâ!

5 Mistakes Men Often Make When Trying to Get an Ex Woman Back After Months of No Contact

1. Sending a vague text, not getting a response and then giving up

For example: A guy might text something like, âHey, thereâs a new space travel movie coming out. Just thought Iâd let you know because I remembered you liked movies like that,â or just a simple, âHey.â

She might not know what his intentions are, a woman will usually ignore a text like that and wait for more.

If he doesnât send anything else, she will leave it and continue moving on without him.

So, if you do text your ex, make sure you use some humor to spark her feelings of curiosity about you, or at least have the courage to text her again the next day if she doesn't reply, or send her a voice message with some humor or flirting.

Essentially, don't give up so easily and don't hide behind typed texts, hoping that she will do all the work to get you back.

If she hasn't heard from you in months, she might be a bit hesitant to start communicating with you (e.g. she might worry that you're just reaching out to text her, get her replying and then let her know that you've met another girl and are happy).

There are all sorts of reasons why a guy will text his ex girlfriend, which can make her feel unsure and hesitant about reply.

So be strong, contact her again if necessary and move things forward to a phone call and meet up.

2. Waiting additional weeks or months without contacting her and she then completely moves on

The longer a woman goes without hearing from her ex, the more time she has to get over him.

Additionally, the more likely it is that she will meet a man who makes her feel attracted.

So, stop waiting for "the right moment" to contact her and get her on a call with you right away.

The sooner you begin re-sparking her feelings again, the sooner she will be back in your arms and loving it.

3. Not preparing himself to create a new spark with her

A mistake that many guys make is to sit around for weeks or months of No Contact, just thinking about how much they miss their ex and how they want her back.

Yet, what they should be doing is preparing themselves to attract her in new and interesting ways, so she actually has a reason to give him another chance (i.e. she has new feelings for him and worries that she will regret not giving him another chance).

As a result, a guy will wait months to contact his ex girlfriend and she will sense that he's still trying to offer her the same kind of attraction experience that she lost interest in (e.g. he's still too nice, too insecure, gives her too much power, doesn't know how to be a challenge, doesn't understand how to flirt with her and create sexual tension).

She then doesn't feel motivated to give him another chance, so she rejects him or cuts off contact.

4. Showing interest in a relationship before she does

If you want to make your ex feel interested in getting back together again, focus on building up her sexual and romantic feelings for you during interactions (e.g. by using playful humor, being flirtatious, being more confident than you were before, being a bit of a challenge, making her feel girly in comparison to your more manly approach), rather than pushing for a relationship with her right away.

Then, the more attracted and happy she feels when she's with you, the more her defenses will begin to come down.

As a result, she will naturally become open to the possibility of being with you again in a sexual and romantic way, because she feels drawn to you.

However, if you push for a relationship before youâve reactivated her feelings of attraction, sheâs just going to keep saying, âNo. Iâm not interestedâ because itâs youâre asking for a one-sided relationship.

The feelings have to be mutual, or at least close to mutual for her to want to give you another chance.

If itâs just about you wanting her back because you love her, miss her and are promising to do better, then sheâs not going to be interested.

You have to focus on making her have feelings for you.

When you do that, she will then open up to more, but not before.

5. Acting like he only sees her as a friend, which then results in her feeling as though thereâs no spark between them

A friendship is different to a boyfriend-girlfriend relationship.

The main difference is the sexual spark.

So, donât make the mistake of just talking to her like a friend and hoping that sheâll want you back.

By all means be friendly, but make sure that you use flirting and other natural attraction methods to make her feel sexually attracted to you as well.

That way, she knows what your intentions are without you having to say it and she also feels a spark with you, which then creates sexual tension that she wants to release with hugging, kissing and sex.

When you approach it that way, she becomes open and is excited to explore her new feelings for you.

However, if you just act like a friend, her guard will go up, she will be suspicious of your intentions and will almost certainly play mind games with you (e.g. acting like sheâs not interested when she is) to avoid herself being rejected.

5 Tips on How to Get a Woman Back Who Was Never Really Into You to Begin With

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 5 things you can do:

1. Understand what parts of the attraction experience were missing in her relationship with you

After getting dumped, many guys are left wondering, “Why did she end it? I thought what we had was great, but somehow, it just wasn’t enough for her. What was missing?”

It can be very confusing and frustrating, especially if you really did like her, love her and want things to work out.

So, if you’re not sure where to start to get her back, here are some questions that will help you better understand what was missing in the relationship:

- Did she like that you were an emotionally strong, confident and independent man, or did she complain about you being clingy, needy, insecure, not manly enough too emotionally sensitive?
- Did she feel motivated to treat you well and be a good, loving woman to you to avoid losing you, or did she treat you badly because she knew that you would put up with it just to be with her?
- Did she like that you took the lead in the relationship and allowed her to relax into thinking, feeling and behaving like a feminine woman around you, or did she feel that she had to be the strong one, make important decisions for the both of you and essentially take care of you?
- Did she feel sexy and desirable with you, or did she end up feeling more like your non-sexual friend or housemate?
- Did she feel proud to be standing next to at parties, social events or around friends and family, or did she feel embarrassed due to you feeling nervous, insecure or intimidated by confident people?
- Did she feel she lucky to be with you, or did you give her the impression that you felt lucky to be with her?

When you understand what really turned your ex off about you, you can then take action to improve those things about yourself right now.

That way, the next time you interact with her, you will be able to give her the attraction experience she really wants from a man.

She will then realize that you how she feels around you now is different, interesting and appealing, so if she doesn’t give you another chance, she may end up regretting it if she can’t find a guy who makes her feel that way.

2. Accept that you will need to adjust your approach to her if you want her back

[image: Accept that you will need to adjust your approach to her if you want her back]

[image: Accept that you will need to adjust your approach to her if you want her back]

If you keep using the same approach with your ex that you've been using up to this point (e.g. being really nice, letting her call all the shots, being too easy, feeling intimidated by her, trying to get on her good side by sucking up to her), she's almost certainly going to continue moving on without you.

Here's the thing|

To make your ex really want you this time around, you need to start creating new feelings of sexual and romantic attraction inside of her.

That requires you to adjust your approach with her, rather than only doing things that you have been doing and not being willing to step outside of your comfort zone.

What are some examples?

- Being more ballsy and using humor when you're around her, rather than always being nice and polite. That doesn't mean to be disrespectful or to be an asshole. Instead, it's about manning up and letting her experience your confidence, masculinity and balls, while also making her laugh at the humor you're using. It's an approach that pretty much every woman on the planet instantly feels attracted to. Yes, even your ex. Don't assume she doesn't. If she met a guy who had more balls than you in terms of how he interacted with her and he made her laugh, don't assume she wouldn't feel attracted. What makes women feel attracted to men is different to what makes men feel attracted to women (i.e. we don't need women to be ballsy. Most men like nice, friendly women).
- Taking control and being the man during interactions with her, rather than giving her too much power.
- Treating her like a hot, sexy woman, rather than as though she is angelic, pure or uninterested in sex or feeling turned on. She wants to feel turned on and if you don't make her feel that way, another guy will and she will then focus on him.
- Being more emotionally independent and enjoying your life without her, rather than making everything about her and devoting all your time to her and the relationship.

When you adjust your approach, her feelings will automatically start to change as well, without her even realizing it.

If you know what you're doing (i.e. you understand how to attract women on purpose and aren't just doing whatever and hoping for the best), you can then build on those feelings and make her fall deeply in love with you this time around.

3. Don't try to push for a relationship before you've hooked up with her again sexually

If your ex currently feels like you're not her ideal man, then she's not going to react well to you pushing for a relationship.

So, don't pressure her for a relationship.

Instead, simply make interactions with you feel fun, easygoing and commitment free.

At the same time, focus on building her sexual feelings for you, so she at least wants to kiss and have sex, even though she may not want to get back into a relationship right away.

Let her see that if she kissed you or had sex with you, it wouldn't result in you pleading with her to give you another chance.

Let her sense that you love her, want her and respect her, but you're not pushing for anything. Just focus on attracting her, building up sexual tension and then initiate kissing and sex.

Sex is important because it speeds up the process of getting a woman back by letting her experience a new and improved you.

When she does, she realizes that you're no longer the same man and things really would be different with you this time around.

As a result, she then drops her guard and becomes more open to seeing where things go from there. Of course, sex won't fix your relationship problems with her, but it definitely does help to get things back on track.

The more you make her realize that you are the man she wants to be with in the long term (e.g. emotionally strong, ballsy, dependable, charming, a challenge for her to win over, ambitious, funny), the more she will want to take the next step and commit to being with you.

Don't tell her that you are that man now; let her experience it.

She has to be able to sense it and see it for herself, rather than you trying to sell yourself to her.

Get her feeling attracted to you again and then guide her to a hug, kiss, sex and then back into a relationship.

If she asks, "So, does this mean we're back together?" or, "So, does this mean you want us to be back together?" you can simply say, "Let's just see how things go. Neither of us need to commit to a relationship. Let's just hang out and see what happens."

4. Let her be the one who wants a relationship with you now

You can do that by being a challenge, which is what a woman like her is going to really want from a guy.

What does being a challenge to a woman mean?

It means, you need to make her feel like she has to be good to you, treat you well and work hard to impress you, or else you won't be interested in her.

Think about it!

Most women make men feel that way.

So, there is nothing wrong with you taking on that role and being the challenge, rather than being the one who is working hard to impress her and hope she doesn't leave you.

Unfortunately, a lot of men either don't know about this, or they think it's wrong or disrespectful to be a challenge, even though it's how women get men wrapped around their little finger.

It's not wrong to have a woman be totally in love with you and wanting to impress you.

In fact, women want to be in that position.

A lot of men don't understand that or know about it and as a result, a guy will end up chasing after a woman in a relationship and sucking up to her, in the hope that she won't leave him.

Yet, that gives a woman power over a man that she simply doesn't want because it's not a fulfilling experience for her.

She might pretend that she likes being in the position of power and enjoys it when a guy is very nice, sweet and agreeable, but in reality, she's not going to respect him if he does whatever she wants just so he can spend time with her.

Remember: A woman wants to feel that her man is a catch, not like she's doing him a favor by being with him.

If she feels that way, she is happy.

If she doesn't, she is bored, unhappy and will be restless.

This is why, if you want to get your ex to genuinely feel respect, attraction and love for you this time around, avoid always being on your best behavior around her and never saying or doing anything to challenge her, even in a playful way.

You will be surprised to see how effective a bit of resistance from you can be.

Of course, be prepared for her to pretend to be upset about it though.

That's just her testing to see if you really have grown a pair of balls with her, or if you're just putting on an act and hoping she falls for it without checking to see if you are for real.

If you want her to respect you, it's important that you level up for real.

How?

Keep reading!

5. Make her feel like she is losing a much better version of you

If you interact with your ex over the phone and in person and she notices that you're now talking, thinking, acting and behaving in ways that she always wanted from you but never got, she's naturally going to start feeling like she's losing out by not being with you anymore.

For example: She may notice that

- Even though you're still loving, caring and attentive towards her, you no longer allow her to push you around and get away with creating unnecessary drama and being disrespectful towards you. You don't sulk and complain about it. Instead, you calmly, assertively and confidently disagree, or let her know that she's being disrespectful or unreasonable. You're happy and forward moving in your life without her. You want her back, you don't need her back to feel good about yourself. As a result, you don't act in needy, clingy or insecure ways anymore.
- You maintain your confidence no matter what she says or does (e.g. she tries to make you feel insecure by pretending that she doesn't have feelings for you).
- You're not afraid to use humor to change her mood from cold or bitchy to open and happy, rather than getting dragged into her fake drama, being timid in response her mood or losing control of your emotions and getting angry at her.

When she notices these kinds of changes in you, she's going to feel that if she doesn't at least give you another chance, she may be the one who regrets it later on.

As a result, she then wants to hang out with you more to see where things go.

4 Mistakes to Avoid When Trying to Get an Ex Woman Back Who Was Never Really Into You

1. Thinking that cutting off contact will make her care so much that she tries to get you back

It won't.

If she was never really into you, why would she change her mind now that you're not even around to spark any feelings for you?

Instead, she's not going to care and will get on with finding another man who she can fall in love with (e.g. she will join an online dating site or use an app like Tinder, Bumble or Hinge, accept dates from guys in her life who are interested and have been waiting for her to become single, go out to clubs and parties to meet and flirt with men).

Eventually, she's likely to meet a guy who can give her the kind of attraction experience she really wants (e.g. the guy is more of a challenge, he's not insecure, he makes her want to impress him), which may cause her to open up and begin falling in love with him.

Then, by the time you notice that she's not coming back to you, she will have been sleeping with the new guy and moving on.

Is that what you want?

If not, forget about ignoring her to hopefully make her want you.

Cutting off contact only works if a woman is still in love with her ex guy.

In pretty much every other case, the woman simply moves on.

2. Writing to her to tell her how much she means to you

That's a bad idea for several reasons.

For example:

- She doesn't have to read what you write to her and can just ignore you. As a result, it won't make any difference to how she feels.
- If she doesn't have feelings for you, hearing about your feelings for her isn't going to change that. Instead, she's likely going to see you as being selfish and too focused on your own wants, needs and feelings.
- If one of the things about you that prevented her from falling deeply in love with you was that you're too emotionally sensitive, a letter telling her how much she means to you will further highlight that side of you to her and turn her off even more.
- When she can't hear the tonality of your voice or see your body language, she may assume that you're still the same guy she broke up with (e.g. insecure, needy, too nice, not masculine enough for her). She then doesn't feel motivated to give you another chance.

Women only want and appreciate romantic gestures from men that they have feelings for. From all other men, romance is not wanted or welcomed.

So, don't bother writing to her about your feelings.

What matters now are her feelings.

You have to interact with her, make her have some new feelings for you and then take it from there.

You can't do that by hiding behind letters, texts, emails and so on.

You've got to interact with her in person, or at the very least on a phone or video call.

Don't shy away from that.

3. Hoping that she will care if you build up your muscles, or wear better clothes

If you look better, she might compliment you and say you look good.

Yet, that doesn't mean she will want you back.

Why?

What matters most to a woman is how a guy makes her feel when she's interacting with him.

If he looks good, but she feels turned off by his insecurity, then she's going to start looking at him and his appearance in a negative light.

She will then look at his shirt or muscles and he will look like he's trying too hard, or as though it doesn't suit him.

That all happens based on whether his behavior is making her feel attracted or not.

So, make sure that the number one thing you focus on is how to make her feel attracted to you when you talk to her and interact with her.

Without that, you've got nothing to offer her in terms of how she would feel with you if the relationship started again.

4. Hoping that her new relationships fail and she eventually comes back to you

Her new relationships might fail.

After all, she has a 100% failure rate so far when it comes to relationships.

Despite that, in almost all cases, a woman will keep moving forward (i.e. look for a new man) rather than go back to a relationship that left her feeling sexually and romantically unfulfilled.

So, if you want your ex back, don't hope that she comes back to you due to having no other options.

Interact with her and let her sense that you are the best option for her, by attracting her in new and interesting ways that she wasn't expecting from you.

My Girlfriend Broke Up With Me Before Her Birthday – 4 Reasons Why

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 4 of the most common reasons why a woman will do that to her boyfriend:

1. She didn't want him to do something romantic for her because she was no longer in love with him

Romance is only appreciated and enjoyable for a woman, if she has feelings of respect, attraction and love for a guy.

When a woman is in love with a man, it feels great for her to be cared about him, given something nice or treated to something on her birthday, or any other day.

Yet, if those feelings aren't there, she doesn't want romantic gestures and isn't going to like it when he's showing her love and expecting her to show him love in return.

As a result, the idea of pretending to be impressed and excited by his romantic gestures on her birthday will feel stressful and even annoying to her.

She doesn't want to have to act like she's in love with him when she's not and have to kiss him, hug him and seem very appreciative of whatever he gives her or does for her.

It will be all too fake for her and she just doesn't want to feel that way on her birthday, when she could be feeling happy and being her real self around friends or family.

So, rather than waiting to break up with him at a later date, a woman will often just go through with it before her birthday to save herself all the unnecessary stress and unease.

However, that doesn't mean all hope is lost for her ex boyfriend.

Feelings change all the time.

Think about it!

Your girlfriend went from not knowing you or caring about you before you met, to feeling attracted to you and beginning to like you when you met and then to falling in love with you.

She then went through a phase where she began to fall out of love, which resulted in her going through with a break up.

As you can see, her feelings have changed multiple times in the past and they can easily be changed again.

Women can and do fall back in love with an ex boyfriend.

Every day, it happens millions of times all over the world.

You can do it.

You can be one of the men who get their ex girlfriend back.

Another reason why a woman will break up with a boyfriend before her birthday is!

2. She didn't want to have to fake being happy with him in front her friends and family

[image: She didn't want to have to fake being happy with him in front her friends and family]

[image: She didn't want to have to fake being happy with him in front her friends and family]

In most cases, when a woman is in love with a guy, she will be happy to let her friends and family see her together with her boyfriend.

She will feel proud of having a relationship that is working, with a man that she looks up to and respect.

She will feel complete and not have to worry about being seen as a lonely, single girl, or a girl who still hasn't figured out how to make a relationship work.

So, her birthday is a happy, special and proud time for her, if she has a boyfriend that she loves.

On her birthday, a woman's friends might ask, What did he get you? or, Is he doing something special for you later tonight?

She then can show off her special gift from him or talk about his romantic plans for her.

Yet, when she's lost touch with her feelings for boyfriend and is no longer in love, a woman will usually want to avoid putting on an act and looking happy and excited when she's not.

Additionally, in most cases, a woman doesn't want to lie to her family and friends about how happy and in love she is with him, only to then have to explain herself to them when she dumps him a few days or a week later.

She wants to keep her family and friends on her side, trusting in her and seeing her as a reliable, honest person.

One of the many reasons why, is that even though she will be breaking up with him, it's not as if she's not going to experience some emotional pain and feelings of loss.

Many women do struggle emotionally after a break up, even if they are sure about ending the relationship.

So, when a woman breaks up with him before her birthday, she wants to know that her family and friends will be there to support her and help her enjoy her birthday as a single woman.

As a result, she can have fun and enjoy herself with family and friends rather than pretending to be in love or happy with her boyfriend (when she's not), or feeling upset and lonely because her friends and family don't really want to support her through it and think that she needs to learn a lesson about being honest about her feelings.

That said, it doesn't mean that her ex boyfriend no longer has a chance with her.

Remember: Feelings can and do change.

You can re-attract her and get another chance with her, if you are willing to approach the ex back process in a mature manner (i.e. don't make the mistake of cutting off contact and expecting her to come running back to you. That rarely, if ever works and is an immature, naive approach. The mature, effective approach is to quickly fix your issues/improve yourself over the next week and then have the courage to call her, arrange a catch up and then re-attract her and get her back).

Another reason why!

3. She was interested in another guy and wanted to hopefully hook up with him at her party

Sometimes, a woman will already have her eye on another guy that she's secretly hoping to get into a relationship with.

So, inviting him to her party and making sure that she's single can be a way of her hopefully getting what she wants.

If she's single, she is then free to go crazy, flirt with her crush as much as possible on the night and if things work out, hook up with him sexually.

This is why, if you want your girlfriend back, you shouldn't sit around hoping she will change her mind on her own.

If you wait too long to begin re-attracting her and making her feel sexually and romantically attracted to you again, it can make the process of getting her back more difficult for you (i.e. because she's already hooked up with her crush and they're now in a relationship).

You can still get her back of course, but there's no need to make it more difficult by waiting to begin the re-attraction step of the ex back process.

So, take control of the situation today and begin making her feel the kind of emotions that she wants to feel with a guy (e.g. attracted, attracted, excited, turned on, aroused), so she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you again.

When she experiences that, she will realize that her feelings for you aren't dead and that it would actually be interesting and exciting to give you another chance.

Yet, if you just wait and hope that she remains single and comes running back, you might end up feeling disappointed and heartbroken when you hear that she has been moving on without you.

4. She had been planning on breaking up with him for a while and her upcoming birthday gave her extra motivation to do it

Some people like to make New Year's resolutions and start the new year with a clean slate.

However, others tend to use their birthday as a day that inspires them to feel motivated to follow through on goals, or go after what they really want in the coming year.

So, if a woman has been feeling unhappy in a relationship with her boyfriend, she might decide that she doesn't want to begin the next year of her life with old baggage dragging her down.

As a result, she decides to just break up with him before her birthday.

It sucks that she did that to you, but don't worry.

You can turn things around.

How?

By changing your approach to attraction with her from now on, so she starts to feel drawn to you again in a new and good way.

Some of the ways you can do that are by

- Becoming more confident and self-assured, rather than feeling insecure and unsure of yourself.
- Improving your ability to make her feel like a hot, sexy woman in your presence (by flirting with her, by being manly so she can feel girly in comparison to you), rather than turning her off by treating her like your buddy or friend. It takes courage to do that, but it works. Pretty much every you need to do in terms of re-attracting her will feel outside of your comfort zone initially. Yet, that's just the point. You need to level up and attract her in new and interesting ways. You have to have the courage to do that.

- Using humor when she is being uptight and tense, rather than worrying that she will get angry at you for it. Don't follow her mood and become timid in response to her negativity, tenseness or anger. Be confident, bold, strong and loving enough to get her to crack a smile and laugh, so she switches out of being in a bad mood, to feeling happier, more open and more attracted to you. Always remember that women are attracted to emotional strength in men. As long as you are being a good man to her, you're not doing anything wrong by getting her to smile, laugh and get out of bad mood. She might say you are to stop you from being attractive to her, but you're not doing anything wrong.
- Adding to your strengths and improving your weaknesses, rather than remaining the same and expecting her to just accept it.
- Creating a new relationship dynamic between you and her, where you treat her well and make her feel loved and appreciated, but also make her feel motivated to impress you and keep you happy, or else you will lose interest in her.
- Being more emotionally masculine in how you think, behave, talk and act, rather than being too nice and soft with her and allowing her to dominate you with her confident personality.

When you start making her feel sexually attracted to you again, it then becomes a lot harder for her to walk away from you for real because she risks regretting it later on.

As a result, she opens back up to talking to you over the phone and seeing you in person to see if you and her can work things out after all.

4 Mistakes to Avoid if You Want to Get Her Back

1. Buying her a great gift to hopefully make her feel guilty, or to warm back up to you

Your ex girlfriend may appreciate the gift, but it's almost certainly not going to make her suddenly have feelings for you and want to get back together.

Why?

She may see the gift as a desperate attempt to "buy" back her love as a form of manipulation (i.e. trying to make her feel bad for breaking up with such a nice, honorable and generous guy).

If she senses that's your motive (even if she's wrong), she will feel even more determined to remain broken up with you, because she doesn't want to fall for your mind games.

Alternatively, she might see it as nice that you bought her a gift, but she knows the reality of the situation as well (i.e. she's not going to be getting back into a relationship with a gift. It's just an object or thing. You are the person she broke up with and no gift changes who you are, or how you make her feel when you interact with her).

This is why, the most important thing to focus on is your ability to attract her during interactions.

Nothing else really matters because the most important thing to her now is how she feels.

If she feels attracted to you, she will feel open to getting back with you.

If she feels turned off and you give her a gift, sheâs almost certainly going to remain feeling turned off.

The gift is just an object or a thing. Itâs not you.

Another mistake to avoid isâ|

2. Asking her why

Even though you might feel like you deserve to know why she broke up with you before her birthday, itâs not something she will want to honestly share with you.

Why?

She doesnât want to give you clues on how to get her back, or potentially reveal her disloyal act that led to the break up (i.e. liking another guy and leaving you so she could date him, inviting her crush to the party and hooking up with him).

If you ask her, she may give you a response, but in almost all cases, a woman wonât be honest about her reasons why.

So, when a guy is asking, âHow couldâ you do this to me? Why did you leave me like that?â in an emotional way where he clearly seems confused and hurt, it just highlights to her that he doesnât know how to be the man that she wants without her guidance, input and direction. Instead, he needs her help to help him become the kind of man that he should be to effectively attract her.

That makes her lose even more respect for him because it makes her look at him as a confused guy, who doesnât understand women and what they want.

Women donât want to take on the role of being a mentor to a guy, especially an ex.

As a result, she then doesnât want anything more to do with him, because from her point of view, sheâs just wasting her time with a guy who might never be the kind of man she wants and needs him to be.

So, donât ask her why she left you.

I will teach you that and how to re-attract her, but you have to be willing to learn and do this right, otherwise you will almost certainly lose her.

Another mistake to avoidâ|

3. Sending her a romantic card expressing your love (if she is currently not in love with you)

Sending a romantic card, love letter or note might work in romantic movies or books (fake reality), but in the real world, when a woman has lost touch with her feelings for a guy, him being romantic and pouring his heart out to her doesnât change her mind about being broken up.

Remember: Romance is only enjoyable to a woman if she has feelings for a man (i.e. she respects him, feels attracted to him and is either falling in love with him, or is in love with him).

Romance outside of that is not welcomed by women.

So, for your ex to want to get back together, the feelings have to be mutual or at least close to mutual between you and her.

It can't just be about you loving her and wanting her back for your reasons.

Instead, she has to feel like she will be missing out on a great thing if she doesn't get back with you.

That's what motivates a woman to want to get back with a man and it does not come from being romantic.

It comes from reactivating her feelings by attracting her in new and interesting ways.

So, forget about the soppy cards and love letters because it won't work.

4. Waiting around for her to change her mind and she then moves on without you

You might feel hurt that she left you and want to teach her a lesson, by not contacting her.

Yet, here's the thing!

If your ex has disconnected with her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you, she's not going to care if you don't contact her.

She will simply move on.

5 Pros and Cons of Telling Your Ex Girlfriend That You've Slept With Another Woman Since the Break Up

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Telling your ex that you've slept with a woman can sometimes help get her back, but there are pros and cons to be aware of.

For example:

1. If you were needy in the relationship, she may feel as though you'd be less needy now that you've slept with a new woman

She might see it as a sign that even though you love her and want her back, you no longer need her back to be able to feel good about yourself and get on with your life without her.

You are able to attract other women and get to sex, so you're not a lonely, desperate, needy guy. That is attractive to her.

As a result, she feels more open to interacting with you than she would if she believed you were still the same needy guy you were before, or if you had been all alone, missing her and needing her back. Why?

Unlike men (who don't require a woman not to be needy of them. In fact, men often like it when a woman is dependent on them), a woman doesn't want to get stuck with a guy who can't handle himself in the world and needs her to keep propping him up, patting him on the back and encouraging him along to keep him happy, confident and forward moving.

Even though she might not openly admit that to you, or even be able to explain it if asked, it's what her instincts are hard-wired to want in a man.

This is why, if you were needy in the relationship with your ex girlfriend and you then tell her that you've slept with another woman since the break up, it can make her look at you as being more emotionally independent than you were before.

In her eyes, you've become a man who isn't clinging on to her because that's all he can get.

Instead, you want her back because you love her, have changed and know that you and her would be happier this time around.

That takes a lot of pressure off her shoulders because it's not about her giving a chance to an ex who needs her, but rather a non-needy ex who loves her and who could make her happier than before.

2. If the other woman is attractive, or a lot more attractive than her (in her eyes), she might look at you as being more attractive and valuable to women

[image: If the other woman is attractive, or a lot more attractive than her (in her eyes), she might look at you as being more attractive and valuable to women]

[image: If the other woman is attractive, or a lot more attractive than her (in her eyes), she might look at you as being more attractive and valuable to women]

Women don't want to feel like they're doing a guy favor by being with him.

A woman wants to feel like she is at least getting an even deal (i.e. the guy is attractive or valuable and she is attractive or valuable), or ideally, the guy is a catch and she's lucky that he has chosen her, even though he could easily get other quality women.

So, when you tell your ex girlfriend that you've slept with another woman since the break up, she will immediately wonder what the woman looks like.

She might ask you for a photo, ask her name, or search your social media to see what she looks like.

If she perceives her as being attractive, or more attractive than her, she will start seeing you as more valuable.

Of course, she will almost certainly not admit that to you.

In many cases, a woman will make a negative comment about the other woman (e.g. She has horrible hair or, She's ugly or, She's plain looking or, That's what you replaced me with? Lol, okay, as long as you are happy), or pretend to reject her ex (e.g. Fine – go and be with her, I don't care. I hope you two are happy. Don't ever call me again).

Don't fall for those kind of manipulative reactions from her.

Just know that if the woman you have slept with is at least fairly attractive, your ex will see you in a more positive light.

Women feel more attracted to men that other women want.

It's not something that women like to admit, but it's how their attraction for men really works.

This is why women will complain about a guy being a player, or bad boy, but will still sleep with him anyway.

The woman is turned on by the fact that so many other women want him.

3. If she has slept with another guy since the break up, she might feel as though getting back with you wouldn't be a problem now

If she was the only one who slept with someone new since the break up, a woman may worry that her ex will be insecure about it if they got back together.

He might worry that the other guy was better than him in bed, or had a bigger penis and then lose confidence, or seek to get revenge on her by reeling her back in and then dumping her when he's ready.

Yet, if he's also slept with another woman, then they're even and it's less likely that he will become jealous and seek revenge.

Of course, if you do tell your ex girlfriend that you've slept with someone else, you do need to be prepared for her to say that she has too.

Don't make the mistake that some guys make and get upset or angry with her and accuse her of being a slut, if she admits to having slept with a guy since the break up.

That's only going to make her lose respect for you and see you as being two faced.

It will then become a lot more difficult for you to reactivate her feelings for you and get her back.

So, prepare for yourself for the news that she may give you and be ready to be totally fine about it, forget about it and get on with getting back with her.

4. She might find it sexy that you have experienced sex with a new woman since her

According to research, many women fantasize about watching their man having sex with someone else.

In most cases, it is simply a daydream that a woman has about her husband or boyfriend and she wouldn't want that fantasy to ever become a reality.

However, there are also women who report that after they split up with their husband or boyfriend and he began sleeping with another woman, they suddenly started feeling attracted to him again.

Sometimes, it even resulted in post-break up sex with him.

So, a guy telling his ex girlfriend that he's slept with another woman since the break up, can turn her on when she then imagines him having sex with another woman.

She may also feel attracted simply based on the idea of another woman being turned on by him and wanting to have sex with him (i.e. he's not an unattractive guy that no woman wants).

She might also begin perceiving him as being a bit of a bad boy (bad boys are sexy to women) to have moved on so easily.

Finally, she can also feel respect and attraction based on the fact that he hasn't been sitting around at home, lonely and falling apart without her.

Instead, he quickly become emotionally stronger and more capable of attracting women and then did just that.

That is a turn on to her, because him being more experienced with women now implies that he could be better at being able to please her sexually if they ever have sex again.

So, she then becomes curious about how she'd feel if they had sex and becomes open to meeting up with him and seeing where things go.

5. She might feel jealous that another woman has been getting to experience your sexual love

If you were great in bed and that is one of the things your ex girlfriend really loved about you, she may feel jealous that another woman got to experience that with you.

Even though you and her are broken up, she may still feel possessive over you and the sexual connection you and her shared.

Additionally, she might also feel insecure about her sexual skills and wonder if the other woman was better in bed than her.

As a result, she may then open up to hooking up with you again one more time, so she can experience the sexual chemistry you and her shared and try her best to please you in bed, so you forget about the other girl.

Note: When you and her sex, be sure to blow her mind by being more attractive during the sex (i.e. more confident, more manly), so she then realizes that her feelings for you are back and stronger than ever.

If you need help with that, you can watch Ultimate Make Up Sex, which is a bonus program that comes with Get Your Ex Back Super System.

So, the above 5 points were the positives about telling her that youâ€¦ve slept with another woman. Here areâ€¦

5 Cons of Telling Your Ex Girlfriend That Youâ€¦ve Slept With Another Woman Since the Break Up

1. If she hasnâ€¦t slept with anyone else since the break up, you telling her about your sex life might compel her to do the same

She might think, â€œWhat? Heâ€¦s already moved on? How silly of me for thinking that I mattered enough to him and he cared enough to not move on so quickly. Well, I guess he showed me. So, I donâ€¦t have to sit around anymore being faithful to a guy who has already moved on. There are plenty of guys who are interested in me. Iâ€¦m going to open myself up to sleeping with one of them.â€œ

She then proceeds to date and sleep with another man.

Then, if you happen to interact with her and try to get her back, she might say something like, â€œSorry, but itâ€¦s too late for us. I thought we had a chance, but you moved on and slept with another woman. That showed me you didnâ€¦t care. So, Iâ€¦m with someone else now and Iâ€¦m happy. Just accept that itâ€¦s over for us. Goodbyeâ€œ to reject you and hurt you.

2. If she doesnâ€¦t really trust you anymore, she might assume youâ€¦re saying that just to make her jealous and want you back

Sometimes a guy will try all sorts of tricks and ways to get his ex back after a break up.

For example: He might start off by begging and pleading with her to change her mind and make promises to change.

If that doesnâ€¦t work, he may send her flowers or gifts to hopefully impress her and make her want him back.

Again, if she says â€œNo,â€œ he might get angry with her and accuse her of being selfish and unreasonable.

Alternatively, he might try to put a guilt trip on her by telling her that she has destroyed him by leaving him behind.

So naturally, by the time he gets to the part where he tells her that heâ€¦s slept with another woman since the break up, rather than just accept it, she might think that itâ€¦s just another ploy to manipulate her into getting back together again.

As a result, she wonâ€¦t believe him, or will give him a, â€œWhatever, I donâ€¦t careâ€œ kind of response or reaction.

3. If she doesnâ€¦t think the woman is as attractive as her, she will feel as though she made the right decision to leave you

In a womanâ€¦s eyes, if a guy is unable to attract another high quality woman after a break up, it is a sign that he lacks confidence and belief in himself (i.e. because quality women tend to avoid insecure men and only want confident men).

So, if her ex sleeps with a woman who is less attractive than her, she will look at her ex as having lost value, not gained it.

She then feels relieved that theyâre broken up and she no longer has to waste time on him.

4. She might worry that youâd cheat on her with that woman, or another woman, if she got back with you

Sometimes, finding out that her ex is sleeping with other women makes a woman feel insecure.

She may then think, âIf I give him another chance, he might get back with me, but continue to meet and sleep with new women behind my back. After all, if heâs enjoying himself sleeping with random women, why would he want to stop? He might cheat on me after I have fallen back in love with him. I refuse to put myself through that kind of pain. I have to remain broken up with him.â

She then closes herself off and tries to move on with someone else, rather than risk putting herself in the position of getting cheated on and heartbroken.

Additionally, if sheâs been cheated on before by an ex boyfriend, itâs something that she may secretly worry about, even when in a happy, stable relationship.

5. She might pretend to be upset at you and not want to talk to you anymore

This is actually the most common reaction, so be prepared for it.

Donât react like many guys do, where a guy will say, âNo please, wait! She meant nothing to me! Youâre the only woman I really want. I promise it will never happen again. Please just give me one more chance!â

She will then have a kind of power and control over you that she doesnât want.

She doesnât want to feel turned off by your lack of balls, if you turn into a total âyes manâ for her and are willing to do whatever she says, to hopefully get another chance with her.

She wants you to be respectful towards her, but not turn into a whimpering, apologizing, desperate guy.

So, be prepared for her to test you (by pretending to be upset) if and when you tell her that youâve slept with another woman since the break up.

5 Reasons Why You Need to Stop Talking About the Relationship With Your Ex

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Some guys try to get an ex woman back by talking about the relationship and â€œtrying to work things out.â€œ

It rarely works.

Why?

1. A woman usually isn't going to be interested in getting back into a relationship, unless she feels a different kind of attraction for you

If your ex feels as though you're essentially going to be offering her that same kind of attraction experience that she dumped you and left you because of, then she's not going to feel very motivated to get back with you.

The attraction experience you are offering her has to feel new and interesting (e.g. if a guy wasn't confident enough, he needs to start showing her and letting her experience his new level of confidence. If a guy wasn't manly enough, he needs to stop doing the sensitive, overly sweet, insecure, unmanly things that turned her off and start behaving in a more manly way).

She has to be able to sense that things really will be different and more importantly, that she will feel differently (in a good way) if she gets back with him.

This is where a lot of guys go wrong.

A guy will behave and treat her the same way he did when they first met, or when they were in an established relationship and hope that she will want him back based on the reasons he's providing her (e.g. because of all they've been through together, how much he loves her, etc).

In some cases, a woman will reluctantly give a guy another chance based on him providing reasons and seeming to be sincere about doing better, changing and so on.

Yet, in almost all cases, a woman simply isn't going to be interested in starting up a relationship again if she isn't feeling a new kind of attraction for him.

So, in terms of your situation: Do you know what you need to change, adjust or improve to begin making her feel attracted in new ways, so she actually has an interest in getting back with you?

Ask yourself:

- What is it about me that turned her off?
- Did I start off being a confident guy that she fell in love with, but ended up being clingy and needy?
- What do I think was missing from the relationship?
- Was there still a spark between me and her, or did we end up feeling more like friends?
- Did she want me to behave in a way that I wasn't aware of (e.g. more assertive and manly rather than being so nice, sweet and compliant)?
- Was I trying to get her to accept things about me that she didn't and won't ever find attractive (e.g. being emotionally dependent on her, being insecure, crying, acting like a victim in life)?

- Do I even know how to actively attract a woman when interacting with her (i.e. by being confident, being a playful challenge, using flirting), or was I simply just doing whatever and hoping she would stick with me because I love her so much?
- Was I a man that she could always look up to and respect, or did I ruin her respect for me on many occasions (e.g. by crying, giving up and not following through on goals, losing my temper, becoming overly jealous or possessive, feeling insecure about other men that she interacted with, needing too much of her emotional support to the point where she felt like a mother, big sister or mentor to me)?

When you understand where you went wrong with her, you can then begin to focus on what specific changes, adjustments or improvements you need to make.

Don't take a long time to do that though.

You need to learn and improve in the next few days to a week and then interact with her, re-attract her and get her back.

If you don't, then she will almost certainly begin to move on without you.

2. Discussing the relationship isn't the solution to getting a woman back

[image: Discussing the relationship isn't the solution to getting a woman back]

[image: Discussing the relationship isn't the solution to getting a woman back]

Re-attracting her sexually and romantically is the solution.

When she feels a renewed sense of sexual and romantic attraction for you, she then worries about losing you, missing you and regretting it.

Yet, if her feelings for you are pretty much dead, she simply isn't going to care, no matter how much you talk about the relationship to hopefully "work things out."

If you want to awaken her feelings of sexual and romantic attraction, understand that a woman looks for the following things in a man:

- Does he confidently lead the way in a relationship, thereby allowing her to feel feminine and girly around him, or is he too emotionally weak and insecure, which then forces her to take on a more dominant role in the relationship?
- Is he enough of a challenge to her, thereby making her feel motivated to treat him well and be a good woman to him or else risk losing him, or does she feel like she can walk all over him and he'll just put up with it so he can be with her?
- Does he treat her like a sexy, desirable woman, or does he treat her more like a buddy or roommate that he no longer sees as being sexy or desirable?
- Does he believe in himself and in his value to her, or does he feel like she's out of his league, which then results in him becoming needy, clingy, controlling or jealous?
- Does he have a clear purpose and direction in life that he's working towards achieving, or is he irresponsible and simply drifting through life, or the kind of guy who blames everyone else for his failures and thinks it's too difficult for him to achieve his big goals?
- Does he remain calm, confident and in control when she occasionally isn't being nice, easy and straightforward with him during a conversation, or does he become insecure, agitated, nervous or unsure of himself?

If you interact with her in a way that naturally decreases her feelings of attraction, she just isn't going to care about what you've got to say about the relationship.

Getting her back is about her feelings for you, not about your feelings for her (she already knows that you have feelings for her).

Make her have feelings again and she will want you back.

3. Discussing the relationship usually pushes women away further because of how stressful, time consuming and energy sapping it can be

Even though a guy's intentions are good when he's talking about the relationship and trying to work things out, it usually just ends up reminding her of the reasons why she broke up with him.

So, rather than feeling happy and impressed with him for being so motivated to fix things with her, she feels tense and stressed out (e.g. because she's always having to respond to his long-winded messages, she gets interrupted at work, or when she's trying to relax or have fun with her friends, he's always showing up unexpectedly at her house or workplace so they can talk, he wants to have long phone calls with her, or long in person discussions).

As a result, she ends up pushing him away and wanting space.

So, what should you do instead?

Understand that it's totally fine to briefly brush over a few relationship problems if your ex brings them up during a conversation, but you shouldn't stick with the topic.

Instead, after acknowledging her concern or making her feel understood (very briefly), steer the conversation back to humor and feel good emotions, so she can feel good around you and realize that things aren't so bad between you and her after all.

When you approach it that way, she then naturally feels open to interacting with you more over the phone and in person, to see where things go.

Yet, if you stick with certain topics and end up having exhausting, deep and meaningful conversations in person, or worse, sending her long, detailed text messages, then she's almost certainly going to want to push you away, or ask for space.

4. She can easily just say, 'I've had enough. I don't want to talk to you about this anymore. Please just leave me alone.'

If you keep trying to discuss the relationship and work things out, she can easily decide to cut you out of her life completely.

For example: She might

- Block your number.
- Unfriend you and block you on social media.
- Stop hanging out at any of the places that she might run into you.
- Refuse to meet up with you in person.
- Tell you to stop texting her.
- Tell you that it's over and she never wants to hear from you again.

- Ask you for weeks or a month of space.

It then comesÂ difficult for you to get through to her and re-attract her.

For example: It usually takes a bit of effort to get unblocked (e.g. posting up photos on social media of you having fun with other people, so she can see that youâre not desperately and lonely, or asking a mutual friend to put in a good word for you, showing up at her place of work to talk to her in person, emailing her, sending her a message on social media to apologize, etc), so you can then interact with her, re-spark her feelings for you and begin getting her back.

This is why, the best approach is to keep conversations with your ex light, relaxed and filled with humor.

Of course, itâs not about constantly cracking pointless jokes and not being serious about anything.

Instead, itâs about using a little bit of humor to take the edge off negative feelings she is holding onto, which then causes her to open up enough so you can begin to re-attract her and get her back.

So, donât be afraid to joke with her to diffuse the tension between you and make her feel happy to be interacting with you again, rather than dreading it.

5. Talking about the relationship can make her feel like you really want something that she doesnât want

Right now, you might feel like you want to get back together again with your ex for sure, 100%.

Yet, if you havenât reactivated her feelings for you, chances are high that sheâs not going to be feeling the same way about you.

So, every time you talk about the relationship with her, rather than feeling motivated to work things out with you, sheâs going to feel like you are pressuring her into something she doesnât want right now.

Always remember: To get an ex woman back, the only thing that matters is how you make her feel.

Your feelings, wants and desires are pretty much irrelevant and unimportant to her at this point.

She cares about herself (not because sheâs selfish, but because she has to now) and what she wants now.

She will only start to care about you and what you want, if you first reactivate her feelings of sexual and romantic attraction, so she actually has a reason to want to get back with you (i.e. to not regret losing you later, now that she is feeling attracted and missing being with you).

Additionally, when youâre talking about the relationship and trying to work things out, it can actually make her feel as though youâre being selfish and only thinking about yourself.

Of course, youâre not being selfish.

Youâre just trying to get her back because you love her and know that you will do better this time.

Yet, she doesnât see it that way because at the moment, itâs a one-sided attraction.

You want her, but she doesnât feel the same way, so to her; itâs all about you getting what you want.

4 Mistakes to Avoid When Talking to Your Ex About Anything From Now on

1. Being too nice or neutral

When a woman feels sexually attracted and in love with a man, she will usually appreciate it when he is nice to her, or does something nice for her.

Yet, if a woman doesn't have those kind of feelings for an ex that she has dumped, then him being nice doesn't turn her on and make her want him back.

Instead, she can perceive his nice gestures (e.g. being extra considerate of her feelings, being generous, being overly caring) as an attempt to manipulate her.

She can assume that he's being very nice to her, so she feels guilty for dumping him and then feels obligated to give him another chance.

If she gets that sense, her guard will go up and she will become suspicious of anything nice her ex says to her, or does for her.

Additionally, if a woman has broken up with a guy, she isn't going to feel attracted, turned on and in love with him again if he's just being neutral with her (e.g. just talking to her like a friend, not including any flirting in conversations and letting her sense that there is no romantic spark between them).

If she gets a sense that the romantic spark just isn't there anymore, she will feel as though she made the right decision to break up with him and will continue moving on.

2. Being too serious and intense

One of the biggest mistakes that guys make when trying to get an ex back, is being too serious when interacting with her (e.g. he constantly talks about the relationship in a serious manner and what they can do to fix it).

He hopes that if she notices how sincere he is, she will then want to open back up to him and give him another chance.

Unfortunately though, women don't respond to a guy's seriousness by then wanting him sexually and romantically.

It's not how it works.

A woman might appreciate his dedication, but it's not what makes her want to give him another chance and it's not what makes her feel sexually and romantically attracted again.

So, if your intention is to get your ex back, focus on making her smile and laugh when you talk to her by using humor and flirting, rather than being too serious and only trying to discuss the relationship with her to work things out.

When she feels good while talking to you, she will then feel more motivated to bring her emotional walls down and open up to getting back with you.

3. Feeling unworthy of flirting with her, or feeling like it's wrong to flirt with her

Sometimes a guy is worried that if he steps out of line with his ex (i.e. flirts with her), she will get angry and heâll then lose any chance he might have had of getting her back.

Yet, the opposite is actually true.

If you donât make your ex feel sexually attracted to you again (which you can do by flirting with her), then sheâs not going to feel much, or any, motivation to want to give you another chance at a sexual, romantic relationship with her.

So, donât be afraid to flirt with her and create sexual tension between you.

When you do, she naturally starts to want to release that sexual tension with hugging, kissing and sex. As a result, it makes it so much easier for you to get her back.

4. Not following the ex back process in the order it is supposed to go

What is the right order?

Attraction first and everything else after that.

Talking about the relationship in detail should be done after youâve kissed, had sex and made up.

If she brings up the relationship before then, you can listen and talk a little, but always lean towards adding in humor and flirting to make things feel light and feel good between you in the moment.

Your main focus always needs to be on making her feel sexual and romantic attraction for you again. Focus on that and you will easily get her back.

Focus on discussing the relationship to âwork things outâ and she will almost certainly push you away, ask for space or make a final statement of, âItâs over. I donât want to discuss the relationship with you anymore. Leave me alone.â

So, the next time you interact with her, what are you going to do?

What if She Forgets About Me During No Contact?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Many women do forget about their ex and move on when he uses No Contact.

Here are the 5 main reasons why:

1. She feels excited to be single and meeting new men who she finds attractive

If the sexual spark died with her ex and she ended up feeling more like his friend or roommate, a woman will usually feel excited about being looked at with desire by another man, flirted with and seen as sexy, desirable woman once again.

Additionally, because she didn't feel that way near the end of the relationship, she doesn't really have much to hold on to, remember or miss when he's ignoring her for 30 or 60 days.

So, rather than sitting around missing him and wondering why he's not calling her, a woman will simply begin exploring her new-found freedom.

In other words, she might:

Stay out late and party with her single friends.

Flirt with random guys that she meets at bars, clubs, parties, the gym and so on.

Hook up with any guy she wants to, just for the fun of it.

Not have to compromise on what she wants to do.

Hang out with whomever she wants, whenever she wants, wherever she wants and do anything she wants without the burden of responsibility that comes with being a guy's girlfriend.

Get on dating apps, line up a bunch of dates and start seeing guys that she likes.

As a result, she had fun, begins to forget about her ex during No Contact and just gets on with enjoying life without him.

If he then calls her after a few weeks or months to try and get her back, she usually won't be excited to hear from him.

Instead, she may feel as though he's finally built up the courage to talk to her, or hasn't been able to get laid or find a replacement girlfriend, so is trying to get her back now to stop feeling so lonely and rejected.

As a result, she might say something like, "Look, I haven't heard from you in ages and to be honest, I've realized now that I prefer being single. I'm having so much fun again and I'm not going to give that up. I'm sorry, but you need to accept that what we had is over. I wish you all the best. I'm sure you will find someone special who loves you. Goodbye."

He then realizes that he wasted 30 to 60 days sitting around, hoping that she would miss him and come running back to him and lost her in the end as a result.

Don't let that guy be you.

Know right now that the No Contact Rule rarely works to get a woman back.

In almost all cases, the woman simply moves on.

Another reason why a woman will forget about her ex during the No Contact period is that

2. She develops an exciting crush on a guy, or falls in love with a guy and gets into a relationship with him

Even if a woman does still have feelings for her ex and is secretly hoping theyâll work things out, she wonât wait around forever for him to re-attract her and get her back.

So, if her ex uses No Contact and goes silent for weeks or months, she will almost certainly start to focus on getting over him, by hooking up with and dating other men.

Then, somewhere along the line, she may meet a guy who gives her the kind of attraction experience that causes her fall in love with him (e.g. he makes her feel like a desirable woman, heâs confident and self-assured, heâs enough of a challenge to her, so she feels motivated to impress him to keep his interest).

When that happens, she will begin to forget about her ex and focus instead on making things work with the new guy.

So, if you want your ex back, using No Contact on her is a risk you probably shouldnât take; especially when thereâs another better, more effective way.

What way?

Confidently, calmly contacting her right away (even if youâre not 100% sure if she still has feelings for you or not) to make her laugh, smile and feel good to be talking to you.

Not just via text though.

Women canât really sense how confident you are via text, so you need to have the balls to call her and have a conversation, get to a video call or at the very least, send her voice texts, so she can sense your confidence.

Let her feel attracted to how youâre coming across (i.e. confident rather than nervous, funny rather than boring, flirtatious rather than neutral, daring rather than hesitant, masculine rather than submissive, timid or feminine).

Then, once youâve made her smile, laugh and feel attracted, get her to meet up with you in person.

Meet up with her, re-attract her, hug, kiss and then have sex with her again.

When you get to that point, you will naturally get back together.

On the other hand, if you sit around waiting for weeks and months using the No Contact Rule, she will probably just get seduced by another man and fall in love with him instead, or at least have sex with him for a while and open herself up to dating other guys.

Another reason why the NC rule can make a woman forget about her ex and move onâ!

3. She never really loved her ex that much, so she doesnât really care about the break up

[image: She never really loved her ex that much, so she doesnât really care about the break up]

[image: She never really loved her ex that much, so she doesnât really care about the break up]

In some cases, a woman will get into a relationship with a guy sheâs not 100% attracted to, or compatible with.

Some of her reasons might beâ€¦!

- He is a rebound (i.e. sheâ€™s using him to get over her ex).
- Sheâ€™s tired of seeing all her friends, family and coworkers in happy relationships, so she decides to give him a chance rather than being the only single one.
- He pursued her so much and showered her with attention, compliments and even flowers and gifts, that she eventually gave in and agreed to date him, even though she never really felt romantically drawn to him.
- She was going through a lonely phase and wanted some company for a while, but he ended up falling for her and not wanting to break up.

Of course, that doesnâ€™t mean she didnâ€™t care about him at all while in the relationship.

Secretly, she may have been hoping that he would eventually be able to create a relationship dynamic that caused her to fall deeply in love, want to treat him well and be a good, loving woman to him.

Yet, when that didnâ€™t happen, she realized that she was never really able to open up and give him her full devotion and love.

So, when they broke up, it wasnâ€™t a huge loss to her.

In fact, she may have even felt a bit relieved to be out of the relationship.

As a result, if her ex then uses No Contact on her as a way to hopefully make her miss him and want him back, it actually ends up having the opposite effect.

The No Contact period simply gives her the time and space she needs to move on without him.

Hereâ€™s the thing thoughâ€¦!

Even if your ex never fully loved you before, it doesnâ€™t mean you canâ€™t make her feel that way about you now.

You can.

If you stay in her life (not in a needy way, but in a calm, confident manner where you are being attractive to her) and begin giving her the attraction experience she always wanted from you (e.g. maintain your confidence regardless of how cold or even bitchy sheâ€™s being, be ballsy and emotionally masculine with her, be more of a challenge to her, rather than being too nice and sucking up to her), she wonâ€™t be able to stop herself from experiencing feelings for you that she never felt before.

When that happens, getting her back becomes easier for you, because she wants it too.

Yet, if you just cut off contact and wait, sheâ€™s almost certainly going to move on and not care about having lost you.

After all, if the attraction isnâ€™t there, itâ€™s not a boyfriend-girlfriend relationship, so there is nothing for her to want back.

4. Sheâ€™s used to dealing with break ups and knows that itâ€™s best to keep her ex off her mind and move on

If a woman is experienced with break ups, she knows that no matter how sad and hurt she might be feeling initially, those feelings will eventually fade away because she broke up with him.

It's different if a woman gets dumped vs. if she was the dumper.

As the dumper, she is in the position of power and is the one who rejected him.

She may initially feel a bit sad, hurt, lonely, lost and unhappy, but she knows that it will fade away and she will move on.

So, if an ex is using radio silence to hopefully make her miss him and want her back, it simply won't work on her.

Rather than running back to him, she will focus on doing the types of things that will help her get over and forget about him (e.g. go on dates with guys who like her and have been waiting for a chance to be with her, put her attention into her work or studies, take up a fun hobby, join a meet up group in her area so she can meet interesting people, go out more with her single friends).

Then, if her ex contacts her after 30 or 60 days, she's will most likely already be completely over him and not interested in getting back together.

5. Her life feels better without him, so she doesn't feel like she is missing out on anything

Sometimes after a break up, a woman will suddenly realize how much calmer and happier she feels without her ex.

She will feel free, happy and optimistic about her future without him.

This might be because the relationship became too stressful for her (e.g. the guy had so many issues, insecurities or problems, but never fixed them or leveled up, so they were always arguing and fighting).

Alternatively, she may have realized that her ex caused her personality to change in ways that she didn't like (e.g. she became a nag, she cried all the time, she told lies to avoid getting into arguments with him, she had to dull down her appearance because he was insecure of other guys looking at her), so she's now enjoying the feeling of being herself again.

So, while her ex is missing her like crazy and hoping that No Contact will work on her, she moves on and enjoys her life without him.

3 Mistakes to Avoid if You're using No Contact to Hopefully Get Your Ex Back

1. Not realizing that No Contact doesn't work as well for men as it does for women

If a woman uses NC on a guy after he dumps her, it can have the following effects on him:

- He feels rejected that she doesn't seem to care about being dumped by him, so he reaches out to her to assess whether she is still interested.
- He feels like he has lost the power he had over her because she isn't trying to get him back, so he gets back with her to prove to himself that he is still in the position of power.
- He worries that she must have a new guy and is moving on faster than him, so he reaches out to her to check that she is still interested.

In cases like that, the woman can then get him back (temporarily) by agreeing to catch up with him.

Yet, the same thing doesn't apply to a woman who dumps a guy.

When a guy uses No Contact after getting dumped by a woman who doesn't feel attracted to him anymore, she will usually use the time to get over him and move on with another man.

Since she isn't attracted to him anymore, or doesn't have enough feelings to justify giving him another chance, she isn't going to care if he isn't contacting her.

She doesn't need to get him back to prove to herself that she can.

Women rarely do that and in almost all cases, they avoid it because it's usually a lot more difficult for a woman to get out of a relationship, than it is for a man (i.e. many ex boyfriends will beg, plead and almost not let a woman break up with them).

So, when a woman has gotten out of a relationship with a man she doesn't want to be with, she will rarely run back to it just because he isn't contacting her.

What makes a woman want a man back, is when he interacts with her and attracts her in new and interesting ways.

When a man does that, a woman then has a reason to get back with him (i.e. she feels attracted, intrigued and is worried that she will miss him and regret not giving him a chance).

2. Worrying about what your ex might be thinking, doing or feeling for months, but never doing what it takes to get her back

The longer you sit around doing nothing to get her back, the more chances you're giving some other guy to seduce her and take her from you.

You need to man up and get her back while you still can.

3. Not realizing how easy it is to attract and seduce a woman back into a relationship

Re-attracting a woman seems like a difficult thing to do, until you try it.

The fact is, even if a woman seems closed off and uninterested right now, it doesn't mean she will feel the same way a few days from now, after you have reactivated her feelings of respect and sexual attraction.

Unfortunately, so many guys don't understand that and think that their only option is to just cut off contact and hope that she magically wants him back.

Guys like that lose their ex and end up regretting it, often for years, decades and for some, their entire life.

Don't let that happen to you.

If you don't want your ex to forget you, forget about the wimpy approach of using No Contact.

Instead, take control of the ex back process by actively re-attracting her, so you can get her back within days or the next week or so.

Take your chance while you still can.

Ex Wife Doesn't Want Me Back – 5 Tips to Get Her Back

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Even if your ex wife said that she doesn't want you back and is happy with a new man, the reality is that you do still have a chance with her.

Likewise, if she says that she just wants to be alone, or focus on the kids and doesn't want you back, it still doesn't mean you have no chance.

There is always a chance to get an ex back.

Here's why:

1. Decisions change when feelings change

A common reaction that some men have in a situation like this, is to take whatever their ex wife says to heart.

For example: If she says, "Look. Please accept that I don't want to get back with you. It's over and I won't change my mind. You need to move on, a man might misinterpret that to mean, 'Nothing you can say or do will make me change my mind. So give up right now and go away. We will never, ever be a couple again and my decision is set in stone.'"

Yet, here's the thing!

Feelings change all the time and when they do, decisions also change.

So, even though your ex wife may have currently decided that she doesn't want you back because she no longer feels enough respect, attraction and love for you to justify being together anymore, it doesn't mean she will feel the same way a week from now, after you have reactivated some of her feelings.

Get it?

You can literally change how she feels and as a result, change her decision making process regarding you.

How?

Well, you've already done it many times before.

Do you remember how when you first met her and she didn't have feelings for you at all?

You were just some guy who was hitting on her and she may have even decided in that moment that she wasn't 100% interested in you.

Yet, after talking to you further, she may have begun thinking, "Hmmm... she's not so bad after all. In fact, she's kind of cute and sexy in a way."

In that moment, she decided to give you a chance.

From there, you likely got her to go on a date with you and then be your girlfriend, even though she may not have initially been very interested.

You then made her fall in love with you, which resulted in her deciding that she wanted to be your wife and spend the rest of her life with you.

You did that.

You did it by building positive feelings of love, respect and attraction inside of her as you began dating her.

Unfortunately, over time, you also made some mistakes that decreased and maybe even killed some of her feelings, which resulted in her feeling a lot of anger, disappointment or resentment towards you.

Then, she decided that she didn't want to stick with you for life anymore.

Now, you can literally make her want you back again, because her feelings for you really can change like they have in the past.

So, if you want your wife back, don't give up yet.

The solution is to re-attract her so she wants to get back with you.

You can do that by interacting with her and actively creating new sparks of attraction inside of her, by displaying traits that are going to be attractive to her at this time (i.e. emotional strength, emotional independence, confidence, the ability to flirt with her and create sexual tension).

When she feels new sparks, her thought process about you changes, which leads to her being more open to getting back with you.

2. Forgiveness usually happens when the other person feels motivated to forgive for their own reasons

[image: Forgiveness usually happens when the other person feels motivated to forgive for their own reasons]

[image: Forgiveness usually happens when the other person feels motivated to forgive for their own reasons]

Maybe you've already tried to get your ex wife to forgive you and she said, "No. You had your chance. You hurt me too much and I will never be able to forget it. I can't forgive you for what you did."

The reason why is because she may feel that you were asking her to forgive you so you can feel better about what happened, or to get her back, rather than having to live with the shame of ruining your marriage for the rest of your life.

So, letting you off the hook by taking away the guilt you feel regarding your mistakes didn't seem like it was beneficial to her.

Instead, she might have wanted to make you suffer for a while, for putting her through the pain she went through.

If that's the response you've been creating inside of her, then she naturally won't want you back.

This is why, you need to get her to understand that forgiving you is for her own benefit.

Explain to her that if she doesn't forgive you, she will go through life feeling bitter and angry about your failed marriage and it will cause problems with future relationships for her.

She has an opportunity to do the mature thing now by forgiving you, which will then get rid of any emotional baggage she has about relationships (i.e. secretly believing they can't work, worrying that she will experience it again with someone else).

That way, she has a reason to want to genuinely forgive you.

Of course, when she does forgive you for her own benefit, it also benefits you because it automatically causes her stop looking at you in a negative way.

She recognizes that who you are now and who you were when she divorced you, are two completely different people.

You really have changed as a man by learning from the experience of the divorce (or separation).

Her being able to see that, instantly makes you more emotionally attractive to her, whether she wants to admit it or not.

When she sees you as being attractive again, it stops her from feeling as though it would be impossible to give you another chance.

After all, her feelings for you aren't dead and in fact, are coming back in new and interesting ways.

3. Almost all new relationships fail, so the chances of her finding a perfect man are slim

Most statistics don't look favorably on new relationships.

For example:

Experts indicate that 90% of rebound relationships (the relationship a man or woman has right after breaking up a significant relationship) fail within the first 3 months.

Likewise, in terms of dating relationships, 60% of unmarried relationships break up within 2 months and 70% end within 1 year, according to Social Science Data Collection at Stanford University, California.

So, when a woman starts dating a new guy after her divorce or separation, the chances of them making it past 3 months is pretty slim.

The reason why, is because she's almost certainly dating a guy who is the opposite, or as close to the opposite of her ex (e.g. if her ex was too serious and focused on his career and the future, she will date a guy who is carefree and easygoing. If her ex was insecure, she will be attracted to a confident guy).

Yet, that doesn't mean he is her ideal match and within 3 months, a woman will usually realize it and the relationship will begin to end.

However, in a case where a woman makes it past the first 3 months of a rebound relationship, the chances of the relationship lasting longer than a year is only 30%.

So, even if your ex wife doesn't want you back because she's dating a new guy (or has her eye on a new guy), the chances of things working aren't very high for her.

If you want to speed up the process of her losing interest in dating and just wanting to be back with you, then you need to interact with her and attract her in new ways.

If you just avoid her and hope she wants you back, she might worry that you've lost interest and she will be then be afraid to show interest, in case you reject her.

So, don't play games with her.

Just begin re-attracting her and get her back.

4. When you are able to make her feel a new kind of attraction and love, she realizes that her feelings for you aren't dead

This is so important for you to grasp and begin to put into action.

It's the solution for you to get her back.

The reality is that when your wife realizes that her feelings for you aren't dead and in fact, are back in new and interesting ways, she becomes curious about exploring her new feelings for you.

She feels as though it would be interesting to get back with you, because it wouldn't be the same as it was before.

You have changed and are now able to make her feel attracted in ways she wished you would in the past.

It's a new start for you and her, rather than having to continue along the path of throwing away all that you and have her have built and been through together.

This is why, you must focus on giving her an upgraded attraction experience every time you interact with her from now.

Remember: If you think, talk, act, behave and treat her the same way you did before, she's not going to see the point of getting back with you because it will feel the same.

It has to feel different to her now.

For example: From now on!

Rather than always getting into long discussions about the marriage, the divorce and what you did wrong, focus on making her laugh and smile when she's with you, so the idea of losing you (and the happiness she experiences with you) starts to worry her.

Make flirtatious banter a main feature of all of your interactions with her, rather than just talking to her in a neutral way like a friend, or a bored, sexually uninteresting or uninterested ex husband. When you use flirting, it builds sexual tension, which means that you're on her mind whenever she starts to feel horny.

If she creates drama and tries to blame you for the divorce, use laughter and playful teasing to stand up to her, rather than caving in, getting defensive, arguing or being emotionless.

The more you awaken her feelings of respect and attraction for you in new ways, the more open she will become to giving you another chance.

5. Sometimes, married couples split up, grow as individuals, get back together and are then happier than before

According to research conducted by Nancy Kalish, Ph.D., professor emeritus of psychology at California State University, Sacramento, married couples that reunite after divorce have a 72% chance of staying together for life.

One of the main reasons why is because having a history together, falling in love, then going through a rough patch, working things out and then getting back together again, is one of the most amazing feelings a couple can experience in life.

It's a deep, bonding experience and millions of couples do it every year.

You can be one of the men who successfully guides your wife back into a relationship with you, rather than just giving up due to the split, separation or divorce.

You will be surprised at how easy it is when you focus on making her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you and then guiding her back into feelings of love and passion again.

It really does work.

You will only know that though if you try it.

If you give up, or think that you can't because of things she's said (e.g. â€œIâ€™ll never change my mindâ€) then you won't get her back.

You have to be strong and get this done for your sake and hers.

4 Mistakes Men Often Make When Their Ex Wife Doesn't Want Them Back

1. Hoping that if he just gives her more space, she will eventually come back

Yet, years then pass and she ends up fully getting over him and moves on with a new man, often after dating and sleeping with a number of new men first.

He then ends up regretting his decision when she's happily married again to her next husband, or in love with another man and living a good life without him.

Honestly ask yourself: Is that how you want things to turn out with her?

Do you really want to be the sad, ex husband looking on and missing her, regretting not making a move while you still had a chance?

If you don't want to be in that position, then let me make one thing very clear: Giving her more space is not the answer.

What is?

Using every interaction you have with her from now on, to actively re-spark her sexual and romantic feelings for you.

That is what works.

Rather than ignoring her and hoping she comes back on her own, you have to be bold enough to flirt with her, be playful with her and make her feel like a sexy, desirable woman in your presence.

If you don't do that, she will begin to consider that what you and her had is totally and completely dead now.

She will then try to find romantic happiness, lust, sex and desire with another man.

2. Never truly understanding the power of attraction and how it changes a woman's mind

Some men simply don't know how much power and control they have over how much attraction a woman feels for them.

Women literally feel attracted to you in reaction to the personality traits and behaviors you display or don't display (e.g. confidence vs. insecurity, emotional strength vs. insecurity, masculinity vs. timidity, flirtatiousness vs. neutrality).

How much attraction your wife feels is based on how you approach interactions with her.

When you interact with your wife and make her feel attracted, she begins to look at you in a positive light.

She realizes that you aren't so bad after all and her feelings for you aren't dead.

This then causes her to rethink her decision about leaving you.

She feels as though if she doesn't give you another chance, she is going to miss you and regret it.

As a result, she feels compelled to open up, give you a chance and see how it goes.

So, regardless of what your ex is saying now (e.g. she doesn't want you back), you need to understand that she won't want to stick to that decision when she's feeling attracted to you again.

It's almost impossible, because it would mean going against what feels good and right to her.

That's why, it's so important for you to focus on making her feel attracted to you during interactions.

The more you change how she feels, the more she can't resist giving you another chance.

However, if you keep talking about how you want her back but don't do anything to make her feel sexually and romantically attracted again, she's going to continue not being interested.

3. Trying to win her back by being a nice, helpful or generous ex husband

Although a woman might appreciate it when her ex is being sweet and generous, it's not what will change her feelings for him or make her want him back, especially if she senses that he's doing it to suck up to her and make her feel pity for him.

Women don't feel attracted to a guy out of pity.

Attraction is a reaction to a man's strength (i.e. confidence, emotional strength), not weakness (i.e. insecurity, emotional weakness).

4. Feeling unworthy to guide her through the ex back process and get back into a relationship with her

When a man doesn't feel worthy of his ex wife anymore, she will sense it and feel turned off.

She will pick up on his self-doubt via his attitude, body language and the way he talks and behaves around her, which will then result in her feeling as though she could do better than him (even if that's not true).

So, if you want your ex back, you must begin to absolutely believe that you are good enough for her and then take action to re-attract her and get her back.

If you don't feel worthy, she will look for a new man who does.

Should I Tell My Ex That the Break Up Has Made Me Feel Suicidal?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Absolutely not.

Here are 5 reasons why:

1. Women hate it when a man tries to manipulate her into giving him another chance based on how unstable he now is Sometimes, a break up can be really devastating for a guy.

He may even end up thinking things like, â€œI can't live without her! She was everything to me and now the pain is so unbearable that I would rather end it all than spend another minute missing her the way I do and knowing that she doesn't want to be with me.â€

While feeling that way, the guy might then decide to tell his ex that the break up has made him consider suicide.

Secretly, he's likely hoping that she will feel flattered that he loves her so much that he's willing to end his own life rather than face a future without her.

She might then begin thinking things like, â€œWow! I never realized how powerful his love is for me. I know I broke up with him, but seeing how he's willing to die rather than live without me, it makes me wonder if I made a mistake. After all, will I ever be able to find another guy who will love me that much again? Probably not. This is a once in a lifetime love and if I walk away now, I may end up regretting it for the rest of my life.â€

She may then give him another chance with her.

Yet, it almost never works out that way.

Instead, a guy telling a woman that he's feeling suicidal after their break up usually only makes her feel as though he's trying to manipulate her into getting back with him.

So, rather than feel flattered, she's likely thinking things like, â€œThat's such a dirty trick! Not only is he proving to me that breaking up with him was the right decision after all seeing as he's now proven to me how unstable he really is, he's also trying to make me feel afraid that if I don't take him back he's going to kill himself and that it will all be my fault! That sucks!â€

She then usually makes more of an effort to distance herself from him and not get caught up in his drama (e.g. she ignores his texts or calls, avoids him if she happens to bump into him at the mall/university).

Here's the main reason why!

A woman doesn't want to be emotionally blackmailed and made to feel guilty for breaking up with a guy and then forced to give him another chance, simply because she's afraid that he's so unstable that he may end up killing himself.

Not only is that stressful to her and makes her feel trapped and like she can't be her true self anymore (i.e. because she's afraid if she says or does something wrong he will go through with the suicide), she also cannot feel respect, attraction and love for a guy she perceives as being emotional weak and unstable.

Without respect, attraction and love, there's nothing to base a relationship on.

So, regardless of how distraught you feel about losing her, your ex is not going to thank you for telling her that it's making you feel suicidal.

On the other hand, if you take positive steps to reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you (e.g. interact with her over the phone and in person and make her laugh, smile and feel good to be talking to you again), not only will she feel drawn to you again in a way that feels right to her, it will also help you snap out of the dark place you're currently stuck in.

Basically, when you can see for yourself that there is a good chance you can get her back, you will no longer feel the need to kill yourself.

As a result, your confidence and self-belief will begin to resurface and then getting your ex woman back becomes easier for you, because a confident, emotionally strong man is so much more attractive to a woman than an unstable one.

Another reason why you shouldn't tell your ex that the break up has made you feel suicidal is that

2. Being emotionally unstable is unattractive to women

Something that a lot of guys don't realize is that a woman's attraction to a man is a very instinctive thing.

Basically, she's instinctively programmed to go for the strongest, toughest, most powerful man available to her, so that he can protect her and take care of her and any children they might have in the future together.

Of course, unlike in the past where the strength and toughness of a man had to be physical (i.e. because a woman needed to be protected from predators and/or enemies set on raping or kidnapping her), in today's world a woman needs a man who is emotionally strong and mentally tough.

She needs to know that if he's faced with problems in life (e.g. he loses his job, he's faced with a serious illness or the death of a family member, he has money problems, he gets broken up with), he will be able to cope.

That then makes her feel safe, which in turn sparks her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him.

She can see that he's the kind of man she can depend on to be a man no matter what happens and that is attractive to her.

So, when a guy can't cope with the bumps in the road in his life (e.g. he becomes suicidal when he gets broken up with, he falls apart when something important doesn't go right), her instincts kick in and she feels turned off by him at a deep level.

Subconsciously she knows that he's not a good match for her and that she won't be safe if she sticks with him.

As a result, she pulls away from him even more and puts in the effort to find herself a new, more emotionally strong man than him.

This is why, if you don't want to turn your ex off even more, you shouldn't tell her that the break up has made you feel suicidal.

Remember: Women are attracted to emotional strength in men, not weakness.

So, rather than make her feel drawn to you because you're so lost without her, chances are high that she's going to feel as though she's better off without an emotionally weak, unstable guy like you in her life instead.

On the other hand, if you want to reactivate your ex's respect, attraction and love and get her back, it's very important that you regain control of your emotions first and then prepare to re-attract her, before you interact with her.

Get rid of any feelings of hopelessness and desperation by knowing that you can re-attract her and get her back.

As a result, you don't need to panic, worry or feel lost without her in any way.

You can relax and confidently get her back over the next few days to a week.

Another reason why you shouldn't tell your ex that the break up has made you feel suicidal is

3. Pretty much everyone has had suicidal thoughts at one point in their life

For most people in the world, life can sometimes be very challenging and quite often, when a person hits rock bottom, they may think things like, It just isn't worth it anymore. Maybe I'm better off dead than having to live with this pain.

However, in almost all cases where a person contemplates suicide, it's not really what they want to do.

Instead, they're feeling stuck and like there's no hope in that moment, yet, over time, things naturally begin to change and improve and those feelings naturally fade away.

For example: A guy might get fired from his job, leaving him without an income to support himself and his family.

He may then begin to feel suicidal and like it's the only way out for him and his family (e.g. they will get his life insurance money and be better off).

Yet, all it takes is for him to realize that his family really do need him and depend on him, not just financially but also emotionally, to change his mind.

That can then lead to him feeling more motivated and determined to find another job and keep his family together and happy.

Then, because he's feeling more confident and sure of himself, opportunities begin to present themselves and before long, he may find himself in an even better job than the one he lost.

As you can likely see, thinking about killing yourself is actually not that amazing or odd.

Yes, right now you probably feel that you have nothing worth living for and that you've hit rock bottom.

However, it's more than likely that those feelings won't last forever, especially if you take the time to think about all the opportunities lying ahead of you right now.

For example: You have the chance to

- Re-attract your ex and get her back if you want to.
- Find yourself another, equally beautiful woman to her.
- Spend more time focusing on your big goals and dreams in life.

- Do some of the things you always wanted to do but kept putting off because of your relationship (e.g. go traveling, go back to school and get a degree, start your own business).

The opportunities are limitless, as long as you're open to seeing them.

So, go ahead and feel sad if you need to feel that way.

There's nothing wrong with experiencing the loss of your past relationship with your ex.

However, make sure that you also remind yourself that there are so many better options than suicide for you to take.

Focus on that and before long, not only will those feelings naturally start to fade away, you'll likely also start to feel more positive about your chances of getting your ex back.

You can then interact with her, re-attract her (i.e. because you will no longer be giving off a "poor little me" vibe) and get her back.

When you do, you will likely realize that you never really intended to go through with killing yourself.

It was just something you were feeling in that moment and then you got through it and are now an emotionally stronger man than before because of it.

Another reason why you shouldn't tell your ex that the break up has made you feel suicidal is

4. It can make her feel worried about what else you might be capable of

For you, telling your ex that the break up has made you feel suicidal might simply be your way of expressing to her how much she meant to you and how you really miss her.

However, for her, it can raise concerns about your mental stability and what you might be capable of doing as a result.

For example: Many men have killed their ex woman and then committed suicide when they thought things like, "If I can't have her, then nobody can."

Of course, you're probably not going to do that, but your ex can't know that for sure.

The truth is, a woman doesn't want to be put in the position where she has to defend herself against an angry, potentially unstable man, so she usually just tries to get away from him as quickly as possible even if that means cutting him completely out of her life, or finding herself a new man to protect her.

So, by telling your ex that you feel suicidal, rather than make her want to be nice to you and help you through this difficult time (e.g. by talking to you over the phone, spending time with you even though you're no longer a couple), which is what you may be hoping for, she may instead pull away from you even more (e.g. block your number on her phone, unfriend you on social media, refuse to see you in person).

She might also hook up with a new guy as quickly as possible for added protection and to give her an added reason why she can't help you cope.

She can then cut you out of her life by saying something along the lines of, "Look, I know you're struggling with our break up, but maybe you should go for counseling or something. I think that would be best. I really can't help you through this; I'm with someone else now."

This then, not only has the opposite effect of what youâre likely hoping for (i.e. to get her to stick around in your life and possibly even give you another chance), it can make those suicidal feelings even worse.

So, donât let that happen to you.

If what you really want is to get your ex back, the best approach to making that happen is from a position of emotional strength, not weakness.

Sheâs so much more likely to feel respect and attraction for you for handling the pain of the break up well, than she is if you tell her youâre suicidal.

This is why itâs so important that you get control of your emotions right now.

Itâs the most important thing you can do, if you want to successfully get your ex back.

Another reason why you shouldnât tell your ex that the break up has made you feel suicidal isâ

5. Pity isnât what drives a woman to want to get back with her ex

Sometimes, a guy might feel at a loss of how to go about getting his ex back after a break up.

This is especially true if the woman said things like, âItâs so over between us! Iâm done with you this time, so donât try to stop me, because nothing you say or do will ever make me change my mind,â when she broke up with him.

So, in desperation, he might decide to tell her that heâs feeling suicidal, as a way of making her feel bad.

Essentially, he may be hoping that by putting her on a guilt trip, she will change her mind about breaking up with him.

Even if she doesnât, she may at least start being nice to him again, giving him a chance to try and win back her love.

Yet, in most cases, rather than make a woman feel pity or guilt for the pain that heâs experiencing and try to stop him from going through with the suicide by getting back into a relationship with him, it usually only turns her off even more.

In fact, in some instances, a woman will even get angry with her ex for telling her that and she then doubles her efforts to move on from him. Why?

A woman doesnât want to be responsible for a manâs emotional wellbeing.

Additionally, she doesnât want to be forced into a relationship that doesnât make her happy, just because the guy is too emotionally weak to cope with being dumped.

That is unattractive to her and rather than allow herself to be emotionally blackmailed by him, she will just use it as another reason to cut him out of her life completely and move on.

Hereâs the thingâ

You will have a lot more success in getting your ex to open back up to being a couple again when you portray some of the qualities and personality traits that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. emotional strength, manliness, confidence, the ability to cope with whatever life throws at you without falling apart), rather than by trying to make her feel sorry for you.

So, if youâre tempted to adopt a 'poor me' attitude by telling her that the break up has made you feel suicidal, donât do it.

You will get much better results (i.e. a chance to get her back for real) if you simply focus on re-sparking her feelings of respect and attraction for the confident, emotionally strong you.

When you approach getting your ex back from a position of strength rather than weakness, she feels drawn to you again in a good way and she then automatically wants to be around you more.

That makes getting her back easy for you, because she wants it too.

3 Mistakes to Avoid if You're Feeling Suicidal and You Want Her Back

You can dwell on your negative feelings and continue to feel suicidal, or you can take steps to get your ex back.

Almost certainly, getting her back is the better choice, so focus on that.

However, for that to happen, make sure you avoid the following mistakes:

1. Appearing to be sad and lost on social media

Sometimes, a guy will use social media as a way of letting his ex woman know how devastated he has been feeling since the break up (e.g. by posting photos of himself looking sad and lonely).

Secretly, he's likely hoping that when she sees that he's falling apart without her, she will feel flattered by the depth of his love and devotion for her and that will then make her come running back to him.

Yet, that almost never happens.

Instead, seeing him looking so desperate and lost without her makes a woman feel turned off by him even more. Why?

Emotional neediness and an inability to handle what life throws at him are not attractive traits in a man, so when she sees him looking like he's falling apart, it simply confirms to her that she made the right decision to break up with him, because he's not man enough for her.

Additionally, when a woman sees that her ex is posting sad photos of himself online, she may take it as a sign that he's trying to manipulate her into feeling sorry for him so that she can give him another chance.

That is annoying to her and in many cases, it has the opposite effect (i.e. it makes the woman even more determined to move on and find herself another man).

Finally and most importantly, when a woman has disconnected from her feelings of respect, attraction and love for her ex, him feeling sad and lonely without her doesn't really matter to her anymore.

Instead, she will focus on her own feelings and her own life, rather than waste time and energy trying to make her ex, who she no longer has feelings for, feel better (e.g. by being extra nice to him when she interacts with him, telling him that she might consider giving him another chance, try to talk him into getting therapy).

So, if your intention is to make your ex want you back, going the pity route is not the best approach.

What is?

Showing her that you are happy and forward moving in your life, with or without her (e.g. by posting photos of you having fun with other people).

When she can see that you're coping with the break up like a real man, it will go a long way in reactivating her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

She then becomes more open to interacting with you to see where things go from there.

Another mistake to avoid making isâ€¦!

2. Hoping to get mutual friends to tell her that you are sad, lost and distraught without her

Sometimes, a guy might talk about his suicidal feelings to mutual friends, so that they can tell his ex and make her feel bad.

That, however, is a bad idea for two main reasons.

Firstly, putting friends in the middle of your break up is not a nice thing to do.

Not only are you forcing them to take sides, having to deal with a guy who is having suicidal thoughts is not the kind of responsibility that most people want.

Secondly, and most importantly, even if they do put in a good word for you to your ex, rather than make her want to get back with you, she will almost certainly resent you for trying to manipulate her via your friends.

Additionally, she will feel turned off even more, because she doesn't want to be responsible for your emotional wellbeing.

So, if you're tempted to get friends involved in your break up, just forget about it and focus instead on re-sparking your ex's feelings of respect and attraction for the confident, emotionally strong you instead.

That will almost certainly have better results than if you try to get her back through feelings of guilt and manipulation.

Additionally, your friends will thank you for not pulling them into your personal drama.

Another mistake to avoid making isâ€¦!

3. Not realizing that re-attracting an ex is a simple, straightforward and easy thing to do

Maybe you're having suicidal thoughts right now because you believe that it's impossible for you to get your ex back.

Maybe you've even convinced yourself that there's no other way to reach out to her and let her know that you still have feelings for her.

Yet, here's the thingâ€¦!

There is another way.

The fact is, you really can change how she feels and get her back, if you want to.

You can take control of the ex back process by focusing on actively re-attracting her during interactions with you, rather than giving up and letting your negative thoughts and emotions suck you into a downward spiral of hopelessness and despair.

When your ex sees for herself that youâre the kind of man she always wanted you to be (e.g. confident, emotionally strong, emotionally masculine, able to handle the bumps in the road of life), her walls will naturally start to crumble.

Then getting back together with you becomes something she wants too.

So, stop focusing on the bad and start focusing on the good.

You can get her back.

Itâs easier than you might think.

How to Apologize to Your Ex Girlfriend For Hurting Her Feelings

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 4 tips on how to apologize to your ex girlfriend and get her back:

1. Tell her that you're sorry, explain why you did it and let her know that you don't expect her to take you back

For example: You might say something along the lines of, "I just want you to know that I truly regret hurting you. I know that doesn't excuse my behavior and the way I treated you, but at the time I wasn't thinking clearly. I was upset about how our relationship had degenerated and that we were no longer happy and in love like we used to be at the beginning of our relationship and as a result, I behaved in a very childish, immature and inappropriate way. For that I am genuinely sorry. I know that apologizing to you isn't going to suddenly make what happened go away and I want to make it clear to you, I'm not saying this so that you can give me another chance. Instead, I just want to take responsibility for my actions and hopefully get you to forgive me, so that we can both move on."

By apologizing to her in this way and also taking responsibility for your part in the break up, it allows her to calm down.

She stops focusing on how badly you hurt her feelings and starts to feel some respect for you again for being mature enough to admit your mistake.

When she begins to respect you, she no longer feels as closed off towards you, which in turn allows her to stop looking at you in such a negative way.

As a result, her defenses begin to come down and it then becomes possible for her to forgive you.

When that happens, it opens the door for you to be able to interact with her more often (e.g. via text, social media, over the phone and in person) and reactivate her sexual and romantic feelings for you so that you can get her back.

As you can see, with the right approach, anything becomes possible.

Another effective way to apologize to your ex girlfriend for hurting her feelings is:

2. Tell her that you're sorry because she didn't deserve to be treated like that, after all she did for you

[image: Tell her that you're sorry because she didn't deserve to be treated like that, after all she did for you]

[image: Tell her that you're sorry because she didn't deserve to be treated like that, after all she did for you]

For example: You can say something like, "Hey, I just wanted to tell you how sorry I am for hurting you. It was an extremely stupid thing for me to do and I really regret it, especially after everything you've done for me. You've only been a good person and treated me well and sadly, I didn't do the same for you. I behaved like a jerk and I truly regret that. If I could turn back the clock and go back to that time, I would definitely behave 100% better, but unfortunately I can't do that. However, what I can do, is be a better man from this point onwards towards you and that starts with this apology. Of course, I don't expect you to forget the past. I just hope you will be able to judge me based on who I am now, rather than who I was then from now on. Then, maybe sometime in the future, you will be able to forgive me and we can at least be friends again.

By calmly apologizing to your ex girlfriend in that way, while being confident and mature enough to admit your mistake, you're showing her that you're no longer the same guy who hurt her feelings.

You've learned from the experience and have already taken some positive steps to become a better, more emotionally mature man than before.

It also makes her feel appreciated and that everything she did for you wasn't taken for granted, even though your behavior may have implied that to her at the time.

This automatically re-sparks some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you and she then allows herself to begin forgiving you for hurting her in the past.

She believes you that you really do regret how you behaved and have already begun to change and improve as a man, which makes it easier for her to truly forgive you.

The great thing about that, is that forgiveness makes a woman drop her guard and open back up to you, even if she didn't want to or intend to.

She stops looking at you in a negative light and starts seeing the new, improved version of you.

That's when you can quickly and easily reactivate her sexual and romantic feelings for you and guide her back into a relationship.

Another effective way to apologize to your ex girlfriend for hurting her feelings is

3. Apologize and then use humor to lighten the mood

For example: Imagine you're on a call with your ex girlfriend.

You can say something along the lines of, Hey, I just wanted to say that I'm truly sorry for hurting you the way I did. I know that right now, apologizing probably seems a bit lame to you and you may even be thinking something along the lines of, An apology can't wipe away the pain and make me feel better, but it really is the only thing I can do to prove to you that I regret my actions and behavior.

By saying something like that to her, she will likely feel a bit better, even if it's because she's happy that you're accepting responsibility for your actions.

She may then say something like, Okay, I accept your apology, but don't think I'm going to forgive you that easily or, Fine. Whatever.

Regardless of her response, the next thing you need to do is use some humor to lighten the mood and make her relax her guard a little bit.

You can do that by saying in a joking tone of voice, something along the lines of, Hey, I really am sorry. You have no idea how many times I've punched myself in the arm as punishment for hurting you. You probably wouldn't recognize me anymore if you saw me! I'm black and blue with a little bit of green thrown in from all the bruises, and have a laugh with her about that.

Essentially, just be strong enough to make a joke and not continue to beat yourself up about what happened before.

Humor is a very effective way to make a woman stop putting up walls around you.

When she is laughing and smiling, it becomes a lot more difficult for her to continue holding a grudge against you for hurting her feelings.

So, don't be afraid to use humor to diffuse the tension between you and her and make her look forward to interacting with you again.

You can then use those interactions to re-spark her feelings for you and get her back.

Another effective way to apologize to your ex girlfriend for hurting her feelings isâ€¦

4. Apologize on a phone call, re-attract her and then suggest catching up as friends to say hi or to say goodbye in a nice way

For example: Start off the conversation with her by saying something along the lines of, â€œI know that nothing I say can fully make up for the pain I caused you, but nevertheless, I really am sorry for hurting your feelings. Regardless of why I did it, you definitely deserved better. So, if you can find it in your heart to forgive me, I would truly appreciate it.â€

Then, rather than going on and on about how you stuffed up, use humor to ease the tension between you and make her feel more relaxed to be talking to you again.

Keep the conversation light and easy going and then when she sounds like she's relaxed her guard and is feeling drawn to you again, rather than feeling closed off and angry, get her to agree to a meet up.

For example: You might say something like, â€œHey, I'm glad I got a chance to clear the air between us. Why don't we take it one step further and catch up sometime this week to say hello as friends. Of course, it's not about us getting back together. It's just getting a quick cup of coffee to say hi, or if you really never want to see me again, to at least say goodbye and end things in a nice way, rather than how it happened before. We're mature enough to do that, don't you agree?â€

If you've created enough feelings of respect and attraction inside of her during the phone call (i.e. by being confident, using humor), she will likely agree to meet up with you.

However, don't give up if she doesn't agree right away.

There are many reasons why she might not want to instantly say yes.

For example: She mightâ€¦

- Not want to come across as being too easy.
- Be afraid of getting hurt again.
- Worry that you might try to pressure her into giving you another chance even though she doesn't feel ready for that yet.

Whatever the case, just maintain your confidence and say something along the lines of, â€œHey, it's just a quick cup of coffee between two friends. No strings attached and I give you my word that if you decide that you never want to see me again after the meet up, I will respect your wishes and completely leave you alone and never contact you again. So, how about it? I'm free on *Tuesday or Thursday. Which of those days suits you best?*â€œ

She will then probably agree and you can go ahead and make plans to meet at a time that's convenient for you both.

Then, when you meet up with her, make sure you're prepared to make her feel sexually and romantically attracted to you again.

Don't get there and act all insecure and unsure of yourself.

Also, don't meet up with her and just have a nice, friendly chat.

You've got to be ready, willing and able to turn on the charm and make her feel so attracted to you again that she's willing to forgive you right there and then for hurting her feelings and open up to seeing more of you from then on.

You can then build on her feelings, make her fall back in love with you and get her back into a relationship that's even better than before.

What to Avoid When Apologizing to Your Ex Girlfriend if You Want Her Back

When you use the right approach, your path will automatically be smooth and getting your ex back will happen naturally and easily.

However, if you use the wrong approach, you will likely end up struggling more than you need to.

So, begin getting your ex girlfriend to forgive you for hurting her feelings by avoiding the following mistakes:

1. Writing a long apology letter

It's only natural that if a guy's ex is currently refusing to have anything to do with him and possibly saying things like, â€œI don't want to talk to you,â€œ or â€œForget it. I'm not interested in your apologies,â€œ he might be feeling stuck.

He may even be wondering something along the lines of, â€œIf she won't talk to me, how can I apologize to her for hurting her feelings? Additionally, how will I ever be able to get her to forgive me and possibly open back up to giving me one more chance?â€œ

He might then come to the conclusion that the only way to get through to her is by writing her a long apology letter.

Yet, rather than make his ex contact him and say, â€œHey, I got your letter. I see now that you really are sorry about what happened, so I forgive you. Everything is okay between us now and I'm even willing to see if we can work things out and get back together again,â€œ she instead feels even more turned off by what she perceives as his lack of balls.

She then feels even more turned off by him for not having the courage to look her in the eye when he made his apology to her.

Additionally, because she can't hear the tonality of his voice, or see his body language, she doesn't know if he's really being sincere or just saying what he thinks she wants to hear so she will give him another chance.

For this reason, rather than give him the benefit of the doubt (i.e. that heâs genuinely sorry for hurting her feelings), she usually just assumes that heâs faking it and is just trying to say whatever he can think of to get another chance with her.

As a result, she doesnât even bother to respond or acknowledge his letter, thereby leaving him feeling unsure of whether she even read it, or what he can do next to get her attention.

This is why, if you want your ex to believe that youâre sorry for hurting her feelings and open back up to giving you another chance, you need to apologize to her face-to-face, or at least on a phone call.

In that way, not only will she be able to see and hear the sincerity in your voice and body language and feel more motivated to forgive you, it will also be easier for you to spark her feelings of respect and attraction.

When that happens, getting her back becomes easier, because sheâs open to the idea, rather than putting up walls and avoiding you.

Another mistake to avoid isâ!

2. Apologizing via text and expecting her to be able to sense your sincerity

In todayâs modern world, the majority of communication between people is done digitally.

In fact, according to Portio Research, 23 billionÂ text messages are sent daily around the world, or almost 16 million per minute.

So, itâs only natural that a guy might feel as though itâs okay to apologize to his girlfriend for hurting her feelings via text message too.

Yet, hereâs the thingâ!

Although texting is a perfectly acceptable and normal way of communicating with friends and loved ones, when it comes to apologizing for doing something wrong, itâs not really the best approach.

Hereâs whyâ!

When sending a text to a friend or loved one, their perception of you is a positive one, so whatever you say is almost guaranteed to be taken in a positive way.

On the other hand, a text to an ex woman who currently harbors negative feelings towards you, is almost certainly going to be misunderstood and judged in cynical way.

So, rather than give you the benefit of the doubt and assume your apology is genuine and sincere, sheâs likely going to think youâre just saying what you need to say for her to let you off the hook (i.e. forgive you).

In fact, in her mind, rather than picture a man who genuinely regrets hurting her feelings, sheâs likely imagining you laughing and snickering at her and thinking things like, âI bet sheâs going to fall for my apology and forgive me. Haha! What a gullible little fool.â

Of course thatâs not the truth at all, but because you hurt her before and she doesnât have any evidence to prove that you really have changed, sheâs usually just going to assume the worst of you.

This is why, if you intend to apologize to your ex girlfriend, make sure you do it over the phone or in person.

Yes, sheâs probably not going to make it easy for you (e.g. she may refuse to answer your call or to meet up with you), but you need to man up and figure out how to pass that test of your confidence and resolve.

When you do and you then sincerely apologize to her, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling some respect for you for being man enough to come clean to her and take responsibility for your actions.

When she respects you, she will also begin to feel attracted to you again and then opening back up to you doesn't seem so far fetched to her anymore.

You can then use interactions with her to fully reactivate her feelings for you and get her back.

Another mistake to avoid is

3. Wanting her back, apologizing via text, not hearing from her and then giving up on getting her back

Sometimes a guy will go ahead and send his ex a big apology via text.

He will then wait and wait for her to hopefully respond with something like, â" Okay, I forgive you,â" thereby giving him the opening he wants to try and get her back.

Yet, here's the thing

There are a number of reasons why a woman won't respond to an apology text from an ex guy.

For example: Some of those reasons might be

- She doesn't want to forgive him right away and wants him to suffer a bit more before she accepts his apology.
- She doesn't want to make it easy for him to get her back, so she plays a bit hard to get to see how he responds.
- She wants to see if he will remain confident enough to keep trying to get her to forgive him.
- She wants him to call her instead of texting.

So, if you decide to apologize to your ex girlfriend via text and she doesn't respond, don't just give up.

Instead, get her on a phone call where she can hear the sincerity in your voice and gauge from the way you interact with her that you really have leveled up as a man.

You can also make her laugh and smile and feel good to be talking to you again.

When that happens, her defenses naturally come down and she opens back up to meeting up with you in person to see where things go from there.

However, if you give up at the first sign of resistance from her, you may lose out on the opportunity of getting her back and end up regretting it for the rest of your life.

So, don't let that happen to you.

Another mistake to avoid is

4. Feeling unworthy of getting her back because of how much you hurt her feelings

When a guy blames himself for hurting his ex girlfriend's feelings, he might fall into the trap of putting himself down compared to her.

He may then begin thinking things like, â" I can't believe how I treated her. She was nothing but amazing and I was a jerk compared to her. Even if she wanted me back now, which Iâ€™m sure she doesnâ€™t, the truth is, I donâ€™t deserve a woman like her. Sheâ€™s just too good for me.

Yet, what he doesnâ€™t realize is that feeling unworthy of his ex girlfriendâ€™s love, respect and attraction only makes him seem less attractive to her (and to other women as well).

Why?

A woman likes the idea of being in a relationship with a guy who is always confident and believes in himself and his value as a man, regardless of what happens (even if heâ€™s behaved badly and ruined her feelings for him).

The more emotionally strong he is, the more she is able to respect him, feel attracted to him and love him.

So, when a guy is putting himself down and feeling unworthy of her love, rather than make her feel happy that heâ€™s getting what he deserves for hurting her feelings (i.e. suffering), she instead feels turned off by his lack of confidence.

As a result, she feels even more convinced that breaking up with him was the right decision for her.

Yet, hereâ€™s the thing!

Everyone makes mistakes, even her.

So, even though you stuffed up, that doesnâ€™t make you a bad person and it doesnâ€™t make you unworthy of her love and respect.

As long as youâ€™ve leveled up as a man now, then the past is the past and thereâ€™s no reason for it to ruin the present.

So, forget what happened and focus on what you can do right now to reactivate your ex girlfriendâ€™s feelings for you and get her back.

Another mistake to avoid is!

5. Not realizing that reunited love feels amazing for the woman, especially when the guy hurt her feelings

What a lot of guys donâ€™t know is that getting a woman back after a break up is an exciting, rewarding process for her (and for him too).

This is especially true if heâ€™s hurt her feelings, because then the idea of having a better, more loving and caring relationship with him instinctively appeals to her.

Why?

A womanâ€™s natural instinct is to try to stick in a relationship with one guy for life.

This has a lot to do with her primal breeding instincts.

So, even if she doesnâ€™t have children, or doesnâ€™t even want to have children, her instincts still encourage her to find and keep a good man, who will stick with her and protect, provide and support her if they decide to have children sometime in the future.

This is one of the biggest reasons why a lot of women will take a long time to decide to break up with a guy, even if theyâ€™re not 100% happy in the relationship with him.

Her instincts tell her that itâ€™s necessary for her to make it work.

So if you can honestly level up as a man and then let your ex experience the new you, her instincts will naturally kick in again and she will likely begin thinking things like, “He’s really not the same guy who hurt my feelings anymore. That means, if I give him another chance, the possibility that our relationship will be even better than before and last for a lifetime is so much higher. Additionally, even though he stuffed up, he’s still a good guy deep down. I think I should give him another chance. I think this time we could make it work.”

Then, when you also spark her sexual and romantic feelings for you again and then build on that, all her walls come down and she literally wants to be back in your arms again.

Being held by you feels good.

It feels right.

Her heart fills up with new, exciting emotions and she feels compelled to give you another chance, because the thought of losing you for real feels stressful and wrong.

You then simply need to guide her through the final steps of the ex back process, until she’s back in your arms and feeling happier than she ever did before.

5 Reasons Why Your Ex Hates it When You Try to Understand Her Feelings, Moment By Moment

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The best approach with a woman is to respect her freedom to experience feelings, but not focus on her randomly changing feelings or moods.

If you follow along with a woman's change in mood or feelings moment by moment, hour by hour or even day by day, it will cause all sorts of problems between you and her.

For example:

1. It stops the love from flowing naturally in the relationship

Sometimes, when a guy wants to get his ex back after a break up, he will constantly look for cues from her to guide him along the process.

That means, every time he notices something about her attitude, behavior or actions that seems off to him, he will instantly try to understand it.

For example: If he calls her on the phone and she sounds a bit distant while talking to him, he may take that as a sign that there's something bothering her.

He may then say something along the lines of, "What's wrong? What are you feeling right now? I can tell that you're not 100% yourself. Tell me what is bothering you so that we can work through it. The more we discuss things the more likely it is that we can work things out between us. Don't hold back. I can take whatever you throw at me. I want to be here for you."

Although the guy is being sincere, saying those kind of things to an ex woman is usually a turn off. Why?

Firstly, it puts a lot of pressure on her to analyze every detail of how she's feeling.

Yet, a woman doesn't always want to do that.

In some instances that might be because she's not ready to discuss her feelings with her ex in that moment and other times she's just had a bad day and is tired, but she doesn't want to talk to him about it.

Additionally, explaining her feelings moment by moment doesn't allow her to actually feel them.

Instead, it's essentially a stop-start process the whole time.

For example: Just as she starts to relax and begins to feel some surges of respect and attraction for him again, he stops the flow of their interaction to ask how she's feeling.

She then has to stop experiencing her feelings and begin to think about them instead.

That constant on/off process is stressful and exhausting for a woman.

As a result, she becomes closed off and uncooperative, mainly because she can't handle the strain of having to think about how she's feeling every moment she interacts with him.

So, if you want your ex to open up to you, you're going to have to do it by focusing on making her feel respect and sexual attraction for you again.

You can do that by behaving and talking in ways that display confidence, emotional strength, masculinity, charisma and wit.

Donâ€¢t try to force her into it by constantly trying to understand her feelings moment by moment.

In most cases, when a guy does that, itâ€¢s usually because heâ€¢s been dumped for being too emotionally sensitive (i.e. liked to talk about his feelings like a woman) to begin with.

So, donâ€¢t become even softer and turn her off even more as a result.

Instead, build on her sexual and romantic feelings for you and then you wonâ€¢t have to worry about what sheâ€¢s feelings, because she will be showing it to you via her body language and the way she touches and responds to you.

Another reason why your ex hates it when you try to understand her feelings moment by moment isâ€¢!

2. She knows that a man who understands what women really want, doesnâ€¢t waste time trying to discuss his way into their heart

[image: She knows that a man who understands what women really want, doesnâ€¢t waste time trying to discuss his way into their heart]

[image: She knows that a man who understands what women really want, doesnâ€¢t waste time trying to discuss his way into their heart]

Sometimes a guy will make the mistake of thinking that the path to reconciliation with his ex can only happen if he gets into her mind and starts to monitor her feelings every inch of the way.

He assumes that if he can pinpoint how sheâ€¢s feeling moment by moment, he can then adjust his behavior and actions accordingly to make her feel heard and understood.

She will then see that heâ€¢s putting in the effort to make things right between them and that will hopefully make her want him back.

However, even though his intentions are good, discussing a womanâ€¢s feelings in detail, only causes her to look at getting the relationship back together again as being too much hard work (i.e. because heâ€¢s not man enough to figure it out on his own).

Instead, he needs her to guide him and explain to him what does and does not make her feel attracted.

Yet, if she has to tell him how to be the man she needs, she will lose even more respect for him, because heâ€¢s not his own man.

He is simply following her instructions, which takes the romance out of it.

Hereâ€¢s the thingâ€¢!

For a woman to want to be in a relationship, she has to feel respect and sexual and romantic attraction for a guy based on how makes her feel when sheâ€¢s with him (e.g. happy, attracted, excited or stressed, annoyed, turned off).

This is why, your approach to getting your ex back needs to be about how you make her feel when you talk to her on the phone or in person, not ask her how she feels.

You canâ€¢t just talk a woman into having feelings for you.

You have to make her experience them.

For example: Some of the ways you can spark her feelings for you during interactions and make her feel drawn to you again in a way that feels good to her are byâ€¦!

- Flirting with her to create sexual tension, rather than acting like her therapist and causing her to close herself off from you instead.
- Making her smile and laugh and feel relaxed to be around you again, rather than trying to get into her mind by asking her how sheâ€™s feeling moment by moment.
- Maintaining your confidence with her when she tries to make you doubt yourself around her.
- Being a good man who cares about her and how she feels, but not being so emotionally sensitive all the time (i.e. behaving like a woman or a girl would and always talking about feelings) that she perceives you as being emotionally weak or wimpy.
- Believing in yourself and in your value to her, rather than doubting yourself, which then makes you try to suck up to her (e.g. by trying to understand her feelings moment by moment) and turning her off as a result.
- Not giving her too much power over you (e.g. by being too nice and understanding all the time) and instead, letting her see that you are now even more masculine in the way you think, talk, behave and react when interacting with her.
- This allows her to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you for being your own man, rather than feeling as though she has to help you become the man you should be, which then makes it hard for her to relax and just be a feminine woman around you.

She then becomes open to talking to you, hanging out with you and seeing where things go from there.

On the other hand, if you continue talking about her feelings rather than focus on making her have feelings, she will likely close herself off from you even more and then getting her back will become a lot more difficult for you.

Another reason why your ex hates it when you try to understand her feelings moment by moment isâ€¦!

3. Instinctively, it just feels weird and annoying to her

For most women, talking about their feelings all the time is something they prefer to do with their girlfriends, not their ex guy.

So, when a guy is constantly asking things like, â€œHow are you feeling now?â€ or, â€œAre you okay? What is bothering you?â€ or, â€œIs something Iâ€™m doing upsetting you right now?â€ rather than make her think, â€œThis is so sweet. Heâ€™s really trying to get into my head and understand how Iâ€™m feeling. Heâ€™s putting in so much effort to make things right. I love that heâ€™s so emotionally sensitive. Itâ€™s so attractive to me. It actually makes me want to give him another chance,â€ it makes her feel annoyed instead.

She may then think something along the lines of, â€œWhy is he trying to be my therapist? Thatâ€™s just so weird. I donâ€™t want to discuss my feelings with him. Heâ€™s my ex after all! This is just so creepy.â€

She will then likely shut him out of her life, rather than have to deal with him anymore.

Although the guy might feel frustrated and hurt by this, the only way for him to make her stop giving him the cold shoulder and open herself up to loving him again is by rebuilding her feelings of respect and attraction for him.

How can he do that?

By thinking, talking and behaving in some of the ways that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. being confident around her and making her smile and laugh when they're together rather than trying to psychoanalyze her).

So, if you really want your ex to open back up to you, focus on sparking her sexual and romantic feelings for you again.

When she's feeling attracted to you again, reconnecting with her original feelings of love for you will happen automatically because it now feels good to her.

Another reason why your ex hates it when you try to understand her feelings moment by moment is!

4. She wants a guy who is more of a challenge

The internet, TV, women's magazines and relationship books have really played a big part in confusing guys on how women like to be treated by their men.

As a result, after a break up a guy might find himself thinking something along the lines of, "According to what I've seen on TV and I've overheard women saying; a man being sensitive to a woman's feelings is what's required of me to make her feel as though I'm taking this break up seriously and that she's being heard and understood. She will then want to give me another chance because of my dedication to make things right with her."

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that although a woman does like it when a man is considerate of her feelings and puts in the effort to improve himself after a break up, she doesn't want to feel like he's sucking up to her and being an emotional wimp, just to get another chance with her.

Instead, she wants him to be more of a challenge, so that she can be the one who spends a lot of time thinking about him and trying to understand what he is thinking and feeling.

Likewise, there is a big difference between what women say makes them feel attracted to a man and what actually does.

Warning: The above video might be a bit shocking if you're a guy who is used to sucking up to women and hoping they'll like you for it.

Unfortunately, some guys assume that being a challenge to a woman is disrespectful, or is playing unnecessary mind games.

A guy like that might think, "Why should I waste time doing that and possibly risk her feeling as though I'm messing with her? Then she may decide not to give me another chance and I will have lost her forever. I believe it's much better to be open and show her that I'm willing to do what it takes to understand how she's feeling so we can fix things and get back together again."

Yet, that's not how a woman thinks.

Additionally, he has been using the nice guy/suck up guy approach with her for a long time and it has NOT been working.

It's not going to suddenly start working.

What works is what makes women feel attracted.

If a guy is unwilling to do that, he will struggle with women for his ENTIRE life.

So, here's the thing...

Although a woman does want a man to make her feel loved, appreciated and heard, she also wants to feel as though she needs to understand him and then do what it takes to impress him, otherwise he will lose interest in her.

If a guy can't make her feel attracted in that way, she will get bored of always feeling like she's the more valuable one in the relationship.

This is why, if your intention is to get your ex back, you need to stop trying to understand her feelings moment by moment and begin acting like the emotionally strong, emotionally masculine man she wants you to be.

In other words, be a good man to her, but also don't make her feel as though she has you wrapped around her little finger.

Instead, be a bit more of a challenge to her during interactions, rather than being a good little boy who's always talking about her feelings (e.g. laugh at her in a loving way if she complains about how you hurt her in the relationship, rather than being submissive and ask her to talk about her feelings).

You may be pleasantly surprised to see how effective standing up to a woman can be in making her reconnect to her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you again.

Another reason why your ex hates it when you try to understand her feelings moment by moment is that

5. It seems very needy to her

When a guy constantly tries to understand his ex's feelings moment by moment, he automatically makes her feel as though he needs her reassurance and her guidance to be able to handle the break up.

As a result, she begins to perceive him as being a needy, emotionally weak guy who doesn't know how to cope with a break up and instead needs his woman to navigate him through the entire process and help him get her back.

She then instinctively feels turned off by him and rather than think, "It's so sweet how he's trying to understand my feelings," she instead thinks something along the lines of, "I can't do anything without him getting on my case about it and asking me how I'm feeling and what's bothering me. I wish he would stop being so needy and clingy all the time. It's driving me crazy! I can't handle this. He's smothering me! Maybe I should just cut him off so that I don't have to deal with this anymore."

Here's the thing!

Women are attracted to men who are confident, self-assured and can remain calm and composed under pressure (e.g. can handle a break up without falling apart or needing her guidance and support to cope and get her back).

As a result, neediness and desperation are not attractive qualities and will simply turn a woman off when displayed.

This is why, if you want to get your ex back, you can't make her feel as though you need her to explain her feelings to you and be open all the time so that you can feel confident again.

In other words, you can't make her feel that you're being needy.

How can you do that?

A man who isn't needy doesn't need to know what a woman is thinking or feeling from moment by moment, hour to hour, day to day.

His confidence in his value and attractiveness to her results in him being able to be happy and content in his life, without it being dependent on her emotional state.

In other words, even if she's angry, sad, hysterical, blaming him for the break up or upset, he remains calm and confident and continues to believe in himself and in his value as a man.

He doesn't take it personally and starts thinking things like, What did I do wrong now? What can I do to fix this? How can I make her feel better if I don't understand why she's feeling this way?

He understands that she's an emotional woman and sometimes she's happy and open and other times she's not and he just needs to remain emotionally strong, laugh about it and not take her so seriously.

If he does that, rather than becoming needy and desperately trying to suck up to her as a way of getting her approval, she'll know that he is man enough for her and she will feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for him as a man.

When that happens, her guard comes down and she becomes more open to interacting with him over the phone and in person to see if they can work things out and get back together again.

2 Common Mistakes to Avoid With an Emotional Ex Girlfriend

Re-attracting your ex is not as difficult as it might seem.

However, you do have to use the right approach if you want her to open back up to you again.

That means, you should avoid making the following mistakes which will only end up turning her off instead.

1. Assuming that she should be impressed and grateful for how concerned you are about her emotional state

Sometimes a guy will try to understand his ex's feelings moment by moment, solely for the purpose of impressing her enough to give him another chance.

Essentially, he's likely hoping that she will think something along the lines of, Wow! He's really being so caring and sensitive towards me. I'm so flattered that he loves me enough to be so concerned about my emotional health. So, based on his commitment and support for my wellbeing, I'm willing to give him another chance right away.

Yet, in most cases, that approach usually leads to the woman losing respect for the guy, because she can see that he's not being his real self.

Instead, he's being extra nice, supportive and concerned for her as a way of sucking up to her.

Thatâs not what makes a woman feel respect for a guy.

She wants to see that he is being a good man, but heâs not desperately falling all over himself to show his concern for her in the hope that she will be impressed and give him another chance.

She wants to know that the man she is with is someone she can respect, look up to and feel proud of, rather than being a guy who is emotionally wimpy and lacks a backbone.

So, rather than putting all your energy into trying to understand your exâs feelings moment by moment, focus instead on making her feel surges of respect and attraction for you by making her laugh and smile and feel good to be around you.

When you do that, it doesnât matter what she feels every moment of every day, as long as her underlying feeling is that she feels drawn to you again and wants you back.

The next mistake to avoid making isâ!

2. Spending a lot of time expressing your feelings to her, rather than just re-attracting her

Sometimes a guy assumes that if he talks about his feelings to his ex, she will relax and open up about her feelings too.

They can then clear the air (i.e. discuss their problems) and that will lead to them getting back together again.

Yet, it doesnât actually work that way and hereâs whyâ!

If a woman has disconnected from her feelings of respect, sexual attraction and love for a man, then him telling her about his feelings isnât going to make her suddenly want to talk about her feelings too.

Additionally, she may even feel put off, because heâs basically putting her under pressure to say that she feels the same way he does when she doesnât.

So, if you want your ex to tell you how she feels and want you back, donât waste time expressing your feelings to her.

Instead, focus on making her feel respect and sexual attraction for the new, improved version of you, so that opening up to you happens because it feels like the right thing to do for her.

When you approach it that way, you donât have to try to force emotions out of her that she doesnât want to share.

Instead, you allow her to go with how she feels and that she feels drawn to you again.

As a result, getting her back becomes easy for you, because she wants it too.

Grass is Greener Syndrome Ex Girlfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 5 of the most common reasons why a woman will develop a Grass is Greener Syndrome and then leave her man:

1. She didn't feel attracted to him in the way she secretly wanted to

At the beginning of a relationship everything always seems perfect (i.e. the spark of attraction is strong).

The woman might even begin thinking things like, "I think he could be the one. He just seems to know how to make me feel happy when I'm sad, calm me down when I'm angry and generally make me feel good when I'm around him. I love how it feels to be in his arms. I'm just so happy and nothing is going to change that."

Unfortunately though, over time, she may begin to notice that even though her guy is a good guy in many ways, he just can't seem to make her feel attracted in the ways that she really wants.

For example: He's nice and sweet and gentle with her and treats her like she's precious.

However, what she secretly wants is for him to be a bit more of a challenge so she feels as though she needs to put in some effort to impress him too, rather than feeling like she can say and do anything (e.g. throw tantrums over nothing, blame him for how she's feeling, disrespect him) and he will always let her get away with it.

Alternatively, he treats her like she's his best friend and one of his buddies (e.g. he likes to hang out and play video games with her or watch football/baseball games on TV, go to the park and kick a ball around, spends most weekends fixing his car and expects her to stick around and get her hands dirty with him).

Yet, what she really wants is for him to make her feel like a sexy, desirable woman.

She wants to feel attractive and like he can't wait to get her naked and in bed with him, rather than greasy and under the hood of a car, or sweaty and working out in the yard.

[image: She didn't feel attracted to him in the way she secretly wanted to]

[image: She didn't feel attracted to him in the way she secretly wanted to]

Another example is when a guy thinks that in order to make his woman happy, he needs to take a back seat and let her call all the shots and make all the decisions in the relationship.

Unfortunately though, she hated being the more dominant one in the relationship, because it stopped her from being able to relax into thinking, acting and behaving like a feminine woman.

Instead, she has to wear the pants and be the man for the both of them.

Naturally, this causes her to lose respect for him.

She may then begin to think things like, "Why am I putting up with this? I don't want to be with a guy who can't make me feel the way I want to feel when I'm with him, even if he is a good guy. Right now, all I feel is angry and resentful towards him, because I feel as though I'm compromising on my wants and desires just to stick with him. I don't want that anymore. I deserve better and so does he. I don't think this is working out after all."

Then, while thinking and feeling this way, she may find herself interacting with another guy who begins to spark her feelings in the ways that she feels have been lacking in her relationship with her guy (e.g. heâs more challenging, emotionally masculine, makes her feel feminine and girly in his presence).

This naturally causes her to begin thinking that the grass is greener on the other side.

She may then decide to break up with her guy to explore her feelings for the new man.

Yet, hereâs the thingâ!

Even though a woman might initially be drawn to another guy because heâs giving her the kind of attraction experience that she felt was missing in her relationship, it doesnât mean heâs perfect or wonât turn her off in other ways (e.g. heâs more emotionally masculine, but he is lazy and has no purpose in life, he makes her feel sexy and desirable, but heâs also got a wandering eye).

So, if your ex girlfriend is currently suffering from Grass is Greener Syndrome, donât let it get to you and cause you to give up on getting her back.

Instead, focus on understanding what was missing in your relationship with her, so that when you interact with her from now on, you can start making her feel attracted in the ways that are important to her.

The more drawn to you she feels in a way that feels good to her, the more respect and sexual attraction for you she will begin to feel again.

From there, reconnecting with her original feelings of love for you is something that happens naturally, because it feels like the right thing for her to do.

Then, dumping her new guy (if she hasnât done that already) and getting back with you will happen very quickly and easily.

Another reason why a woman will develop the so-called, âGrass is Greener Syndromeâ isâ!

2. The guy was initially attractive and appealing to her, but he changed and became too neutral, soft or insecure

Sometimes, a woman gets into a relationship with a guy because he initially displays the kinds of behaviors and characteristics that are attractive to her.

For example: He mightâ!

- Seem confident and self-assured, without being arrogant or overbearing.
- Treat her like a feminine girly woman when interacting with her, thereby making her feel attractive and desirable.
- Exude emotional masculinity and inner strength.
- Make her laugh and smile and feel good about herself in his presence.

However, after a while, she began to notice that some of the things that drew her to him in the first place were beginning to fade away.

For example: Rather than being the confident, emotionally strong man she fell in love with, he began to feel insecure about himself around her.

He started to ask things like, âYou wouldnât ever leave me would you?â or, âYou still love me, don't you?

He also became jealous of her relationships with other men (e.g. the guys she talked to at university/work/her neighbors, her male friends, guys on social media) and as a result, became clingy and needy.

Alternatively, he went from being an emotionally masculine, passionate man, to behaving like a neutral friend or roommate with her (i.e. he stopped creating attraction between them so she felt more like his buddy than his girl).

Another example is where a guy stopped being emotionally strong and suddenly became overly emotional like a woman or a girl (e.g. when they had an argument or disagreement he would cry or sulk, he would whine to his woman about every little problem or issue in his life, rather than deal with it like a man).

As a result, she began to lose respect for him as a man.

When that happened, she noticed that her feelings of attraction for him began to fade away as well.

This made other guys seem so much more attractive to her.

She then began to think things like, "I really misjudged him. I thought he was so confident and emotionally strong and I felt that we had something special going, but it turns out he's nothing like I imagined him to be. He's just insecure and needy and a wuss and I no longer want to be stuck in a relationship with him. I'm sure I can do so much better for myself than this."

This led to her breaking up with him and finding herself a new guy who really is what he appears to be (e.g. confident, charismatic, emotionally strong and masculine).

If this sounds like something that might have caused your ex girlfriend to develop Grass is Greener Syndrome, then don't worry about it.

You can still change how she feels and get her back.

All it takes is a new approach to attraction.

When you make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for the man you are now (e.g. by making her laugh and smile and feel good during interactions, showing her via your actions, behavior and conversation style that you've leveled up as a man, making her feel feminine and girly in contrast to your masculine vibe), she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you again.

When that happens, her walls come down and she becomes confused about her feelings for the other guy.

Then all it takes is for you to fully switch her sexual and romantic feelings for you back on and get her back.

Another reason why a woman will develop the so-called, "Grass is Greener Syndrome" is

3. The relationship dynamic was boring and predictable

[image: The relationship dynamic was boring and predictable]

[image: The relationship dynamic was boring and predictable]

For a relationship to last, the dynamic between the man and the woman needs to be in balance.

Essentially, what that means is that the guy is a good guy, who also makes his woman feel excited to be around him, causing her to respond to that by being a loving, devoted, loyal woman to him.

However, if the guy can't maintain that dynamic, his woman will begin to lose too much respect and attraction for him and she may then begin to feel that the grass is greener elsewhere.

Unfortunately, a lot of guys don't understand relationship dynamics, so they make the mistake of thinking that doing whatever their woman wants is what will keep her happy and want to stay with him.

However, some guys tend to go overboard with that (usually because they don't really understand how a woman's attraction to a man works) and as a result, turn their woman off instead.

For example: A guy like that might Shower her with attention, gifts and other displays of his affection.

Always be nice and sweet to his girl, regardless of how she behaves or the way she treats him (e.g. she disrespects him, is closed off towards him, isn't supportive of his dreams in life even though he always encourages her to achieve her biggest goals, she lies to him).

Take a back seat and allow her to make most or all the decisions for the both of them (e.g. she decides when, where and with whom they will go out, chooses the restaurant or movie, tells him when he can and cannot see his friends).

Always agrees with her regardless of how unreasonable she's being because he's afraid she might dump him if he stands up to her.

In his mind, he's being the perfect boyfriend.

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that even though his woman might appreciate that he's a good guy to her, being able to say and do anything and get away with it is actually pretty boring to her.

As a result, she doesn't feel motivated to be a good woman back to him in return and instead ends up taking him for granted.

In other words, she's the sort of woman who wants a guy who is more of a challenge, so she feels like she has to do her best to keep him happy and interested in her, rather than feeling as though she doesn't have to put in any effort in the relationship because he will accept anything she throws at him as long as he can be with her.

Of course, if he can't offer her the challenge she secretly wants in her relationship with him, she might mentally begin to compare him to other men (e.g. guys at work or university that have shown interest in her in the past).

If she then also happens to interact with a guy who gives her the feelings that she's craving (i.e. he's more of a challenge so she feels excited and turned on), she may then decide to dump her guy for the new man.

So, if something like that has happened to you, to get your ex girlfriend back, you need to focus on approaching her in a completely new way that is going to be more attractive and appealing to her.

This new way involves you creating a relationship dynamic where you're good to her and treat her with love and respect, but you also make her feel motivated to be good to you, treat you well, be loyal to you and make you feel loved and appreciated.

When she begins to realize that the grass is not greener on the other side (i.e. because most guys don't really know how to maintain a balanced relationship dynamic), she will start to feel that losing you will be something she will end up regretting.

As a result, she will naturally open back up to being your girl again, or at least hooking up with you sexually to see how she feels afterwards.

Another reason why a woman will develop the so-called, "Grass is Greener Syndrome" is!

4. The guy made her feel as though she was more valuable than him

In some cases, a guy will get into a relationship with a woman who is a lot more beautiful, engaging, funny and smart than any other woman he has ever dated.

As a result, he may begin thinking things like, "She's so amazing. I can't believe how lucky I am that a woman like her would even consider being with a guy like me. I just hope that I will be enough for her and that she doesn't realize that she can do so much better than me."

He might then treat her like gold, do whatever she wants without argument regardless of how unreasonable she's being, allow her to treat him badly or disrespect him and generally fawn over her.

This naturally makes the woman feel as though she's more valuable than him and she may begin to think things like, "Why am I sticking with him? I'm sure I can do so much better for myself. He's just so wimpy and insecure. I need a real man who can make me feel like a real woman, not an insecure guy who doesn't believe in himself and who lets me push him around and disrespect him so easily."

If she then also happens to interact with other guys who come across as being more of a challenge to her than her guy (i.e. they make her feel that she needs to put in the effort to impress them, otherwise they will lose interest in her vs. her guy who will accept whatever she dishes out to him without ever standing up to her), she will quickly begin to lose interest in him.

She may then decide that the grass is definitely greener on the other side and break up with him.

Of course, being dumped by his woman only reinforces to him what he believed all along (i.e. that she's out of his league).

Yet, that's not really true.

He is good enough for her, but his approach to attraction gave her the impression that she was too good for him and that he was lucky to be with her, which gave her a false sense of superiority over him.

In other words, she could have stayed with him for life, but he made her feel like she was trading down by being with him (even though she wasn't), so she decided to leave him and find herself another man who felt he deserved to be with her.

This is why, if you want to get your ex back, you have to get to the point where you believe in yourself and your value to her.

You can then sincerely project the kind of confidence that will re-attract her and make her want to be your girl again.

Then interact with her, reawaken her sexual and romantic feelings for you and get her back.

You can do it, but you have to believe that you can.

If you don't truly believe in yourself and feel as though your ex will be the lucky one to have a great guy like you in her life, the grass will continue to seem greener elsewhere and you will struggle to get her back.

Another reason why a woman will develop the so-called, "Grass is Greener Syndrome" is

5. She was too mature for him

Sometimes a guy matures faster than his woman and sometimes a woman matures faster than her man.

However, if a woman does grow up before her guy does, it can lead to her feeling as though the relationship no longer suits her.

For example: She might notice that

- She doesn't want to party as much as she did before and instead prefers to focus on her studies or career. However, her guy is still stuck partying, hanging out with his friends, being irresponsible and not being able to hold down a steady job.
- She is more serious about the relationship and sees herself settling down and potentially having a family together. On the other hand, he's content to just drift along as boyfriend and girlfriend without a purpose or direction.
- She has big dreams and goals that she's working towards achieving in her life, while he has made her his purpose in life and just follows what she does.
- Her friends and family are moving on to new levels in their relationships, while she is stuck at the same level with her guy, without any hope that things will change.

As a result, she may begin feeling dissatisfied in her relationship with her guy.

She might then begin looking to find herself someone else who is in sync with her way of thinking, talking and behaving.

So, if your ex broke up with you because she felt that you and her were at different stages in life (i.e. she was more mature than you) don't worry about it.

When you change your approach to attraction she will quickly be able to see for herself that you've leveled up as a man.

Then, as long as you use interactions with her to make her feel sparks of sexual and romantic attraction for you, her feelings will naturally begin to change.

She will start to realize that you really are the guy for her after all.

When that happens, her defenses come down and she opens back up to hanging out with you more and more to see where things go from there.

3 Mistakes You Should Avoid if You Want to Re-attract an Ex Girlfriend Who is Affected By Grass is Greener Syndrome

Regardless of whether your ex left you for greener pastures (i.e. another guy) or not, you can get her back if you want to.

It all depends on the approach you use from now on.

When you reactivate her feelings for you, she will see for herself that you really are the right guy for her after all and want you back.

However, if you turn her off, she will feel that she's better off without you.

So make sure you don't make any of the following mistakes:

1. Assuming that she has psychological problems and needs help, when it's mostly just about a lack of attraction

Sometimes a guy doesn't want to admit that he may be partly to blame for the break up with his ex (i.e. he didn't give her the attraction experience she wanted so she left him), or he simply doesn't understand how important attraction is to romantic love between a man and a woman.

As a result, he might justify what happened by accusing her of being mentally messed up.

He may even think to himself, "She's got issues, that's why she broke up with me. She needs to get help. Then, she will realize that she made a mistake and that the grass isn't greener somewhere else and she will come back to me."

Yet, here's the thing!

Just because a woman leaves a guy because of "Grass is Greener Syndrome" it doesn't mean she has psychological problems.

Instead, in most cases, it simply means that her guy wasn't making her feel the way she wanted to feel in the relationship with him (i.e. attracted, in love, excited to be around him, happy).

So, don't make that mistake with your ex.

If you want her back, get her back by re-attracting her, rather than making excuses for her and blaming everything on her state of mind.

The more respect and attraction you make her feel for you again, the more interested she will be in the idea of getting back together again.

So focus on that.

Another mistake to avoid is

2. Getting into long discussions with her in an attempt to fix her

If you insist on having long, drawn out discussions with your ex about why she did this to you and then try to "fix" her as though she is somehow broken, you may end up losing her for real.

Here's the thing!

A woman doesn't want to be made to feel like she can't choose what she wants, even if that means breaking up with her guy to explore other options.

So, if you want to get your ex back, don't try to do it by discussing what you think is wrong with her, because she's almost certainly not going to listen to you.

She may even dig in her heels and refuse to interact with you, rather than deal with you always trying to fix her.

So, what should you do instead?

Focus on interacting with her and using humor and flirting to reawaken her sexual and romantic feelings for you and make her realize, on her own, that losing you is something she doesn't want to do.

When she gets to that point by herself, everything changes naturally and easily.

She wants to get back with you again because it feels good to her, not because she was forced into it by being made to believe that she has a problem.

Another mistake to avoid isâ€¦|

3. Not understanding the very subtle parts of your behavior and approach to the relationship that turn her off

When a woman leaves a guy because of â€œGrass is Greener Syndromeâ€œ what he may not realize is that he contributed to her feelings of dissatisfaction in the relationship.

As a result, he doesnâ€™t change anything about himself (i.e. because he failed to understand what aspects of his thinking and behavior turned her off).

So, when he then interacts with his ex after the break up and she sees that heâ€™s still the same and if she got back with him, the relationship dynamic would be what it was before, she sticks to her decision to move on.

Hereâ€™s the thingâ€¦|

If you want to get your ex back, you need to be able to give her the attraction experience she really wants from you.

That means, you need to understand her subtle reasons for breaking up with you in the first place (e.g. you started off being confident and self-assured but ended up being needy and insecure, initially you made her feel sexy and desirable but over time you started making her feel like one of your buddies or a roommate).

Then, when you interact with her, she will be able to pick up (via your attitude, conversation style, actions and behavior) that you really have leveled up as a man.

That will automatically spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you.

Her guard then comes down and the idea of being your girl again starts to feel good to her.

Why Does My Ex Girlfriend Want to Be Friends?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

5 possible reasons why:

1. She doesn't want to admit that she wants you back, so she pretends to just want to be friends

Sometimes, a woman might break up with a guy, only to realize that she really misses him.

She may then begin to think things like, "I really thought that this was the right decision for me, but now I'm not so sure anymore. In fact, I'm almost certain I made a mistake. Not only do I miss him, I can see now that other guys out there don't compare to him at all. I really stuffed up and now I don't know what to do. I want him back, but I'm afraid that if I say that to him, he will reject me to get back at me for breaking up with him. What should I do?"

This kind of thinking can lead to her deciding to be friends with her ex as a way of keeping him in her life.

It also gives her a good excuse to be able to text, call or see him in person as often as she wants to. She then hopes he will be bold enough to make a move, so that they can get back into a relationship together.

Unfortunately though, it doesn't always work out that way.

Why?

Firstly, some guys make the mistake of rejecting a friendship with their ex.

A guy like that might say something along the lines of, "Sorry, but I can't just be friends with you. It's all or nothing."

Essentially, he may be hoping that his ex will say something like, "Okay, then. Well, if we can't be friends, let's be together then" and make it easy for him to get her back.

Unfortunately, the woman usually says something like, "Fine. If that's how you feel, then I guess it's over" and walks away, even though she might still be secretly open to being with him.

He has put her on the spot and forced her to either agree to get back with him or nothing, so she rejects him and walks away.

By saying something like that, he's also ruining his ability to stay in touch with her so he can then reactivate her feelings and get her back.

So, don't make that mistake with your ex girlfriend.

If she wants to be friends, be happy about it, because it means you can easily get her back.

Note: Just make sure you don't agree to be friends with your ex and then act like a nice, neutral friend who isn't attracted to her anymore.

That would be a mistake.

Yes, be her friend, but also use interactions to spark her sexual and romantic feelings for you.

Before you know it, you and her will be hugging, kissing, having sex and be in a relationship again, because it's something you both want.

Another possible reason why your ex girlfriend wants to be friends is

2. She wants to keep things amicable between you and her to avoid anything nasty happening

[image: She wants to keep things amicable between you and her to avoid anything nasty happening]

[image: She wants to keep things amicable between you and her to avoid anything nasty happening]

Most men are good guys who would never do anything to hurt a woman, even one who is breaking up with them.

However, a woman's natural instincts to protect herself, won't want to take that chance and risk getting hurt physically, or having to deal with a boyfriend who threatens her and wants to get revenge.

So, rather than just breaking up with him by saying, â€œHey, it's over between us and I think we should move on and not see each other anymore,â€ and then end up having to deal with him reacting in a way that makes her feel stressed, threatened or uncomfortable (e.g. he gets angry, becomes verbally or physically abusive, loses control of his emotions and breaks down crying, begs and pleads with her to change her mind, refuses to leave/let her go until she agrees to give him one more chance), she instead says something along the lines of, â€œI know this isn't ideal right now, but let's be friends.â€

She's hoping by saying that to him, it will lessen the chance of him taking the break too badly (e.g. because he will still have contact with her and be able to see her or talk to her over the phone) and she will be safe.

Then, while he's hanging around being her nice, sweet friend that she can always rely on to be there for her when she needs him, she can focus on finding herself a replacement man to move on with.

If her ex then decides to try and get her back after being friends with her for a while, she will be able to tell him that she's in a new relationship.

She can then cut him out of her life if she wants to, without worrying about the consequences, because she will have a new man to protect her.

Another possible reason why your ex girlfriend wants to be friends is

3. She likes to do that with ex boyfriends, so she can spy on their life via social media now and in the future

Some women are naturally curious and want to keep tabs on a guy even if he's an ex and a good way to do that is by remaining friends with him.

She can then satisfy her curiosity by checking up on him from time to time via social media, or even on a phone call or at a meet up.

Alternatively, a woman might be in the habit of staying friends with an ex, as a way of keeping an eye on him, to make sure that she moves on first before he's had a chance to find a replacement to her.

She can then feel better about herself knowing that she's desirable and attractive to other men, while heâ€™s struggling to move on without her.

In some cases, a woman might even use a so-called friendship with her ex as a way of keeping him hanging on and thinking that maybe he still has a chance of getting her back.

Itâ€™s her way of getting revenge on him for how he treated her in the relationship, or for the break up.

She then moves on feeling good about herself, knowing that heâ€™s suffering.

However, it doesnâ€™t have to be that way.

So, if your ex is in the habit of staying friends with her exâ€™s as a way of giving them false hope about their chances of getting her back, itâ€™s very important that you donâ€™t allow her to do that to you.

In fact, you can turn things around and not only not give her the satisfaction of seeing you hurting and staying stuck in your life without her, you can even reactivate her feelings for you and get her back, if you want to.

How can you do that?

By showing her that even though you still care about her and want her back, you donâ€™t actually need her back.

Of course, you donâ€™t tell her that.

Instead, you show it to her by living your life to the fullest, having fun without her and beginning to pursue your big goals and dreams in life with a more focused passion and determination.

Let her see during interactions with you that you are happy, confident and moving forward in life now and you donâ€™t need her to feel happy and emotionally fulfilled.

When she sees for herself that her plan is backfiring and that instead of feeling good about herself for stringing you along, sheâ€™s actually feeling as though sheâ€™s missing out and like she made a mistake by breaking up with you, she wonâ€™t be able to stop thinking about you in a more positive light.

All of a sudden, she feels drawn to you in a way that feels good to her and she then wants to be your girl again.

Itâ€™s then up to you to take her back if you want to and enjoy a relationship with her thatâ€™s so much better than before.

Another possible reason why your ex girlfriend wants to be friends isâ€¦

4. Itâ€™s her way of saying that she doesnâ€™t want a relationship, but is okay about being friends

In some cases, a woman might get to a point in a relationship where she really does care for her guy, but she no longer feels sexually and romantically attracted to him.

She may then decide to break up with him, but she doesnâ€™t want to lose him completely by cutting him out of her life.

As a result, she may say something along the lines of, â€œEven though weâ€™re not a couple anymore, I really want us to be friends.â€

The good news is that staying friends with an ex is one of the best ways to get her back quickly.

So, if your ex girlfriend said that she wants to be friends with you, say â€œYesâ€ right away.

Then, you need to actively make her feel respect and sexual attraction for you again by using every interaction you have with her, especially on the phone and in person, to make her smile, laugh and feel good about keeping you in her life.

Donâ€™t pretend that youâ€™re not interested in getting her back, or that you donâ€™t find her sexually attractive anymore.

If you only focus on making her feel neutral, friendly feelings for you, she will almost certainly put you in the Friend Zone and then nothing will stop her from moving on with another man.

So, make sure that you flirt with her and make her feel sexually attracted to you again.

Then, getting back with you will happen naturally, because she will realize that being in a relationship with you is actually the one thing that makes her feel the happiest and the most content.

Another possible reason why your ex girlfriend wants to be friends isâ€¦

5. To string you along, so you can feel emotional pain as you see her move on and be happy with a new man

There are times when a woman resents her ex for what happened in the relationship (i.e. he didnâ€™t live up to her expectations and give her the attraction experience she wanted from him).

So naturally, she might feel betrayed by him and like she wants to get revenge on him for causing her so much pain.

As a result, she may suggest that they stay friends.

Secretly, she could even be hoping that he will take her suggestion as a sign that sheâ€™s still open to the idea of them getting back together again some day.

He might then wait around for her.

In the meantime, she will focus on quickly finding herself a new man to move on with.

Then, when sheâ€™s safely involved with another guy, she can say to her ex, â€œHey, I have something I want to tell you. Iâ€™m in love with someone else. Iâ€™m so happy again! Donâ€™t you think thatâ€™s great?â€ and get her revenge by seeing the pain her news is causing him.

So, donâ€™t let that happen to you.

If you want to get your ex girlfriend back, make sure that when you agree to be friends with her, you also actively take steps to re-attract her and get her back.

You canâ€™t just sit around and hope that being a nice, sweet, reliable friend to her is going to cut it.

If you donâ€™t level up as a man and then let her experience the new you during interactions, you wonâ€™t be able to regain her respect and attraction for you.

On the other hand, when your ex girlfriend can see for herself that you are a new and improved man already and that if she gets back with you, youâ€™re not going to go back to making the same attraction mistakes as before, she will naturally start to feel drawn to you again.

When that happens, her defenses will come down and she will open back up to talking to you and hanging out with you again to see where things go from there.

4 Pitfalls to Avoid When Being Friends With an Ex if You Want Her Back

Generally speaking, staying friends with an ex is a good thing, because it gives you the opportunity to stay in her life and as a result, be able to re-attract her and get her back.

However, there are also pitfalls that you need to be aware of, so you don't make the kinds of mistakes that will ruin, or at least diminish, your chances of getting her back.

For example: 4 of these pitfalls are!

1. Saying that you can't just be friends with her because you wouldn't be able to deal with that

Some guys make the very big mistake of rejecting an ex woman's offer to stay friends after their break up.

A guy like that might say something along the lines of, "I'm sorry, but I can't do that. I still have so many feelings for you, that the idea of talking to you or seeing you and not being able to hold you and love you would destroy me. I just can't deal with that pain. As far as I'm concerned it's all or nothing. Either you're my girl, or we just go our separate ways."

Unfortunately though, in most cases, the woman will usually reply with something like, "Well, then it's going to have to be nothing. The only thing I can offer you is a friendship, so if you don't want to accept that, then I'm going to have to say goodbye to you forever."

He then loses out on getting her back because he's cut off all his lines of communication with her (e.g. if he tries to text her or call her she will likely respond by saying something like, "Look, you said that you don't want to be friends so it's better if you don't contact me at all.")

So, don't make that mistake with your ex girlfriend.

If she's offering to stay friends, be grateful for the opportunity to stay in touch with her.

You can then use the friendship to reactivate her sexual and romantic feelings for you and get her back.

Another pitfall to avoid is!

2. Accepting her friendship and then acting like a friend

Another common mistake that guys make is agreeing to be friends with an ex woman and then acting like a nice friend every time they interact with her.

Yet, here's the thing!

If you act friendly or neutral around your ex, she will probably only ever have friendly, neutral, non-sexual feelings for you.

Even worse, she might even start turning to you (i.e. her nice, neutral friend) for advice about her relationships with other guys, or ask for your opinion on how to make herself more attractive for a new guy that she's interested in.

That's definitely not a position you want to find yourself in.

So, if you agree to stay friends with your ex girlfriend, make sure that you don't pretend that you just want to be her innocent, neutral friend and that youâre not interested in getting her back.

Of course, itâs totally fine to be friendly with her, as long as youâre also sparking her feelings for you during interactions.

Make her want you again sexually and romantically and when you do, the relationship will naturally get back together right away, or very quickly.

On the other hand, pretend to only be her friend and watch her move on with a new guy.

The choice is yours.

Another pitfall to avoid isâ

3. Hoping that if youâre a good enough friend to her, she will eventually realize that youâre the most loyal, honest, kindhearted man sheâs ever met and she will then want you back

Under the guise of being a good friend, a guy might sometimes lavish his ex girlfriend with gifts and tokens of his affection, help her out financially by paying her rent or taking care of some of her bills and generally making himself available to her 24/7.

At the back of his mind he might be thinking things like, âIf Iâm really nice to her, spoil her and make myself an essential part of her life, she will realize that even though weâre broken up, Iâm still the one person who really cares for her and is always there when she needs me. She will see that no other guy can take care of her the way I do and she will then naturally change her mind and want to get back into a relationship with me.â

Unfortunately though, it doesnât really work that way.

So, even if a woman really appreciates the attention, loyalty and kindness given to her by her ex, itâs not what makes her want to be in a sexual and romantic relationship with him.

Why?

Mainly because all heâs doing is being nice to her.

Yet, what he should be doing is actively reawakening her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for him.

So, donât waste your time being kind, loyal and sweet to your ex girlfriend and then feeling hurt and rejected when she moves on with some other guy (usually someone you will perceive as being not as nice as you are).

If you want her back, you need to get her interested by making her feel a renewed sense of respect and sexual attraction for you.

When you re-spark some of her feelings of respect and attraction (e.g. via the way you think, talk, behave and interact with her), she will naturally start to feel drawn to you again.

Then, she will also appreciate the fact that you care about her and are a good guy to her.

As a result, giving you another chance will actually feel right to her.

The next pitfall to avoid isâ

4. Only being her friend via text

Being friends with your ex girlfriend has to be more than just texting back and forth with her from time to time.

If you don't also talk to her over the phone and meet up with her in person, eventually, the texts will stop coming and she will move on.

Why?

If you don't actively spark her sexual and romantic feelings for you, she's usually going to find someone else who will.

So, while you're out of sight (i.e. all she gets from you is a few words on a screen), she could be meeting new guys who are making her feel sexually attracted.

This is why, if your goal is to get back into a sexual and romantic relationship with your ex girlfriend, then don't make the mistake of texting her as a friend and assume that it will happen from there.

It won't.

You have to spark some of her feelings of attraction for you first (e.g. by flirting with her to create some sexual tension between you, making her laugh and smile and feel good to be around you, showing her during interactions that you've leveled up as a man, making her feel girly and feminine in contrast to your masculine vibe).

However, you can't do all that via text.

You have to get her on a phone call with you and then meet up with her in person so she can experience it via the tonality of your voice, your body language and the way you respond to what she says and does.

She then naturally begins to feel surges of respect and attraction for you again.

When that happens, her defenses come crashing down and then being "just friends" doesn't feel right to her any longer.

She wants more.

She wants to be your girl.

7 Tips For Restoring a Broken Marriage

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Hereâs what we recommend you do:

1. Let her feel a NEW type of attraction for you that will reawaken her sexual and romantic interest

In most cases, a woman wonât consider divorcing her husband unless she feels that she can no longer look up to him, respect him, feel sexually attracted to him and love him as her man.

So, if you want to restore your broken marriage, you first need to get clear on what caused your wife to disconnect from her feelings for you.

You then need to quickly prepare yourself to offer her a new and exciting attraction experience that will reawaken the desire and romance inside of her and make her want to be with you again.

An example of a new attraction experience is starting to be more of a playful challenge (i.e. playfully refusing to do things she asks, sometimes not answering her questions in a straightforward manner), rather than being a yes man, or a neutral man who just goes along with everything she wants like a friend.

Watch this for more insights...

BTW: If you and her have separated or divorced, we recommend that you watch Get Your Ex Back Super System.

If you are still together, but having problems and she isn't yet wanting to separate or divorce, we recommend that you watch Make Her Love You For Life.

So, in terms of re-attracting her in a new, refreshing way, here are some questions to ask yourself that will help you begin figuring out where you've gone wrong and what you need to do now to re-attract her:

- Did you continue to display the behaviors and personality traits that first attracted your wife to you, or did all that change after you and her got married (e.g. were you initially confident, emotionally strong and someone she could always depend on, but after a while, you became insecure, unsure of yourself and unreliable)?
- Did you stick to making her feel like a beautiful, desirable woman throughout the marriage, or did you gradually start treating her more like a buddy or roommate?
- Did you make her feel loved, appreciated and valued in the relationship with you, or did you take her for granted and made her feel like she was in last place in your life after your work, hobbies, friends or interests?
- Were you and her actively working towards the same goals for your future together as a couple, or were you each pursuing different things?
- Did you take the lead in the relationship thereby allowing your wife to relax into thinking, feeling, acting and behaving like a feminine woman around you, or did she have to be the emotionally stronger one in the relationship and carry the burden of all the responsibilities in the marriage?
- Did you continue to reach for your true potential as a man and make progress on your goals in life (e.g. finish your studies, work towards a promotion, start your own business), or did you become lazy and un-ambitious once you and her got married?

The better your understanding you have of what caused your marriage to break down, the faster you can change your approach to how you interact with your wife from now on.

When you begin to think, behave, act and respond to her in ways that reawaken her sexual and romantic feelings for you, she won't be able to stop herself from feeling drawn to you again.

When that happens, her defenses begin to come down and she feels more open to the idea of fixing your broken marriage.

On the other hand, if you don't re-spark some of her feelings for you first, she's not going to feel motivated to give you another chance.

She will then likely go through with the divorce if she hasn't already, or if you and her are currently divorced, she will focus even more on fully getting over you and finding herself a new man.

Another tip for restoring a broken marriage is

2. Stop setting off negative chain reactions while you still can

What is a negative chain reaction?

Basically, it's a bad habit or behavior that gets built up over time to become a major issue in a relationship.

In the same way, a positive chain reaction is a good habit or behavior that gets repeated over time to the point where it becomes an unbreakable link in the relationship.

For example: A negative chain reactions is

A guy becomes unsure of himself and his value to his woman.

This then has the effect of making him worry about losing her and he begins to think things like, What if she meets another guy who makes her feel more attracted? What if she decides to leave me for him?

Those insecure feelings then lead to him feeling jealous of any relationships she has with other men (e.g. at work or university, online, at the gym).

From there, he might begin spying on her (e.g. checking her phone to see who she's texting, checking her social media posts, listening in on her phone conversations).

As a result, he becomes more and more controlling.

This causes her to feel smothered by him and she naturally starts to lose respect for him as a man.

When she stops respecting him, she also ceases to feel attraction for him.

Their sex life then starts to suffer as well, because she no longer wants to sleep with a man she doesn't feel attracted to.

Inevitably, her love for him also begins to fade away and by this point, it's only a matter of time before the relationship breaks down completely and she walks out on him.

As you can likely see, the whole process was a chain reaction of negative events.

Now, the opposite of a negative chain reaction is a positive chain reaction.

An example of that is where a guy is confident and self-assured.

No matter what his woman says or does to make him feel insecure about himself around her (e.g. she teases him, throws tantrums, disagrees with him just to get a reaction out of him), he just remains emotionally strong.

He also uses humor to ease any tension between them and then he assertively, yet lovingly, puts her back in her place.

As a result, she feels a strong surge of renewed respect and attraction for him for being a ballsy, emotionally masculine man with her.

This then makes her put in even more effort to be a good, loving devoted woman to him.

In return he treats her well and makes her feel loved and appreciated.

The marriage then naturally grows stronger and neither of them ever feel the need to break up, because being in a committed relationship with each other is where they feel the happiest and most fulfilled.

So, as you can see, your actions and behavior will either build on your marriage and make it stronger, or erode it until itâ€™s left in pieces.

This is why, if you want to restore your broken marriage and get back to the point where you and your wife are happy, in love and want to stay together for life, you have to stop setting off negative chain reactions and begin creating positive ones instead.

In other words, you need to get in the habit of doing the right things from now on.

That means, when it comes to building your wifeâ€™s feelings of respect, attraction and love for you, you need to make sure that you say and do the types of things that spark those feelings inside of her over and over again (e.g. by being confident, emotionally masculine, ballsy, more of a challenge, you make her feel feminine and girly), rather than turning her off (e.g. by being insecure, jealous, controlling, emotionally sensitive, clingy, needy, wimpy, treating her like a neutral friend).

The more you can replace negative chain reactions with positive ones, the more open your wife will become to giving you another chance.

Then, not only can you restore your broken marriage, you will also be able to make it last a lifetime.

3. Use a new approach to communication that makes both you and her really enjoy talking to each other again

A common mistake that guys make when trying to fix their marriage is using interactions with their wife to talk about all the issues and problems in the relationship.

In cases like that, a guy might repeatedly go on and on about what he thinks their problems are, how sorry he is for his mistakes and how he believes they can fix things, in the hope that this will convince her not to walk away for good.

Yet, rather than making her think, â€œHe really seems to be motivated to fix our marriage. I guess, after everything weâ€™ve been through together I owe it to him to at least try. Besides, heâ€™s being so sweetâ€ she instead feels stressed out by the constant reminder of how bad things really are between them.

She then closes up and possibly even walks away, leaving the guy thinking things like, â€œWhat just happened? What did I do? I was making the effort to try and fix our marriage and she just got up and left. What is her problem?â

Her problem is that his approach to communication wasnât making her feel like she wanted to be around him.

Instead, she felt so tense and annoyed that she just wanted to get as far away from him as possible.

Of course, that doesnât mean you should avoid talking about the problems in your marriage completely.

Itâs just better to first focus on making conversations with your wife more enjoyable, rather than always dwelling on the negative.

The more you use humor to lighten the mood between you and make her feel relaxed and happy to be around you, the more likely it is that she will want to discuss ways to fix the marriage.

On the other hand, if you make the communication between you and her all about what went wrong and what you both have to do to restore your marriage, she may remain closed off.

By the way, making her laugh and smile doesnât mean you have to crack jokes all the time and not be serious, it simply means you take the pressure off the both of you to get back together again, so that things arenât so tense and strained all the time.

When you get your wife laughing and feeling good, she stops focusing so much on the negatives about you and the relationship.

From there, reconnecting with her feelings of respect and attraction for you becomes a lot more possible.

So, just get her laughing and smiling to help her relax enough to drop her guard and open herself up to the idea of working on fixing your marriage.

4. Take the blame for your mistakes without expecting anything back from her

Everyone makes mistakes in a relationship sometimes.

That doesnât make you a bad person, it just makes you human.

So, donât be afraid to go ahead and take the blame for your mistakes.

For example: You might say something along the lines of, âHey, I just want you to know that I accept responsibility for my mistakes. I know I stuffed up and there were times where I let you down by being too needy/irresponsible/closed off/immature. For that I am truly sorry and even though I know you probably wonât believe me right now, I want you to know that Iâm not that man anymore. Iâve made a point of learning from my mistakes, because I never want to hurt you again.â

Of course, donât say that to your wife expecting her to say something like, âYeah, I made mistakes too. Iâm sorry. Letâs forget about everything and get back together again,â because she probably wonât do that.

However, if she loves you, she will naturally begin to admit her mistakes.

That might happen right after youâve admitted your mistakes to her first, or it might take some time for her to process everything before sheâs ready to do that.

On the other hand, if sheâs worried about you using her mistakes against her, she might not say anything.

However, itâ€™s important for you to lead the way by being emotionally brave.

Even if your wife doesnâ€™t admit to her mistakes, she will almost certainly feel respect for you for having the balls to do it.

When she respects you, she naturally starts to feel attracted to you again and with those two emotions in place, reconnecting with her feelings of love becomes something sheâ€™s more willing to do than she was before.

You and her can then work on restoring your marriage.

Note: Donâ€™t make the mistake of taking the blame for everything and making her out to be perfect.

By doing that youâ€™re not only rewarding your wife for her bad behavior, youâ€™re also causing her to lose more respect for you for sucking up to her when you know that she was partly to blame.

So, just say what you need to say and then focus on using the rest of your interaction with her to build on her sexual and romantic feelings for you by behaving in ways that are naturally attractive to her (e.g. confident, charismatic, ballsy).

The more you do that, the more you will be able to rebuild the trust, respect and love between you and her and fix your marriage.

Another tip for restoring a broken marriage isâ€¦

5. Donâ€™t become neutral towards her

Itâ€™s understandable that when a marriage is broken, a guy might feel that in order to convince his wife to give the relationship another chance, he has to be on his best behavior around her.

As a result, he might stick to always being nice and polite and friendly with her and pretend that heâ€™s no longer interested in her in a sexual and romantic way.

In his mind he might even justify his behavior by thinking things like, â€œI want her to feel comfortable around me rather than like Iâ€™m trying to pressure her into giving our marriage another chance. When she sees that Iâ€™m not pushing her into anything, she will relax around me and that might open her up to the idea of getting back together again. However, if I come on too strong (i.e. give her the impression that I want her back), she might clam up and then I will lose her for real.â€

If your wife has left you, itâ€™s only a matter of time before other men will start hitting on her and making her feel sexy.

So, while youâ€™re being nice and neutral towards her, sheâ€™s likely going to think something like, â€œItâ€™s quite obvious that my marriage is over and my husband has lost interest in me, so why should I stay faithful to him when there are other guys out there who still find me attractive. I deserve to be made to feel desirable and since itâ€™s clear heâ€™s not going to make me feel that way anymore, Iâ€™m going to open myself to finding someone who will.â€

So, if you donâ€™t want that to happen, make sure that you actively spark her feelings for you during interactions, rather than being too neutral and giving her the impression that youâ€™ve lost interest in her.

Don't pretend that you only want to be her friend and that you're not interested in being her husband and lover again and expect her to remain loyal to you.

You have to make her want you again sexually and romantically and when you do, the relationship will naturally get back together again.

On the other hand, stick around being neutral and she'll almost certainly find someone else who can spark her feelings.

Another tip for restoring a broken marriage is

6. Don't go to counseling

[image: Due to political correctness, men are usually blamed for most things at couple's counseling]

[image: Due to political correctness, men are usually blamed for most things at couple's counseling]

When a guy feels stuck and like nothing he's tried so far to convince his wife to give their marriage another chance has worked (e.g. he's had long discussions with her about what he needs to change to make her happy again, bought her flowers and gifts, promised her he will do whatever she wants if she gives him one more chance) he may then start thinking that counseling is the only way to restore their broken marriage.

Yet, even though the media has led couples to believe that counseling is the solution to all their problems, it's not.

In fact, counseling can even cause a relationship to become unfixable, rather than restore it.

Why?

Counselors usually make it out to be the man's fault and, due to political correctness, essentially tell him to be the opposite of what is attractive to a woman (i.e. be even nicer, listen more, do the housework for her).

However, that only leads to more problems in the marriage, because when a woman gets the sense that her man is too submissive and wimpy and afraid to assert his will with her, she stops respecting him.

When she doesn't respect him, she also can't feel attracted to him and then the motivation to fix their relationship disappears.

So, if you want to restore your broken marriage, but can't see a way to do it other than to go to counseling, there is.

When you actively make your wife have some positive feelings for you again (i.e. respect, attraction, love), the idea of fixing your relationship begins to feel like something she would like to do.

By the way

Here are 5 simple steps to reactivating your wife's feelings for you again:

Show her via your attitude, conversation style, actions and behavior that you've fully understood her real, hidden reasons for breaking up with you.

If you haven't already done so, apologize to her for your mistakes. (Just make sure you don't grovel or take all the blame for everything that happened.)

Show her that you've begun to level up as a man (e.g. you're more confident, you're more emotionally independent, you're more emotionally mature).

Use every interaction you have with her from now on, whether over the phone, or in person, as an opportunity to make her smile, laugh, feel attracted, feel feminine and girly and feel good to be interacting with you again.

Then, gently guide her back into a relationship with you.

When she experiences the new you, she will naturally start to feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

That then opens her up to restoring your marriage, because losing you no longer appeals to her.

7. Be careful about asking her for advice on what you should change

For many guys, asking their wife for advice on how they can change and improve makes perfect sense.

After all, sheâ€™s the one who is unhappy in the marriage, so if she asks for what she wants and then gets it, she will be happy and the marriage will be restored, right?

Wrong.

Hereâ€™s the thingâ€¦!

Even though some women wonâ€™t take advantage of a moment like that, some will.

These women will use a guyâ€™s vulnerability in that moment to gain power over him (e.g. she might make unreasonable requests to see how far she can push him).

Yet, the funny thing is, that when a woman like that gets power over her man, it doesnâ€™t necessarily make her want to be with him.

Why?

In a relationship, if a guy hands his power over to a woman, she wonâ€™t be able to respect him anymore.

If she canâ€™t respect him, she wonâ€™t be able to feel sexually attracted to him and without those two things in place, restoring the marriage doesnâ€™t feel like the right thing for her to do.

On the other hand, a woman who doesnâ€™t want to get power over her husband will also lose respect for him if he asks her for advice on what he needs to change. Why?

Hereâ€™s the thingâ€¦!

A woman wants to know that her man is able to figure out what he has been doing wrong by himself and then take action to make the necessary changes to his thinking and behavior.

What she doesnâ€™t want is for him to force her into the role of being his teacher and telling him how he needs to think, act and behave to maintain her respect, attraction and love.

Basically, she wants a guy who is already a man, so she can just relax and love him.

So, if you want to restore your broken marriage, you need to show your wife that you can give her what she wants, without needing to ask her to help you figure it out.

When you can do that, you will instantly regain a lot of her original respect and attraction for you.

Her guard will then come down and then making your marriage work again will be something she wants to do.

3 Mistakes to Avoid When Restoring a Broken Marriage

When your approach is right, regaining your wife's respect, attraction and love is actually pretty easy to do.

However, when your approach is wrong, you end up turning her off even more.

This is why, you need to make sure you don't make any of the following mistakes:

1. Hoping that showing her how sad and lonely you are, will make her want you back

That can work if your wife is still in love with you and attracted to you.

However, if she has disconnected from her sexual and romantic feelings for you, she may feel turned off by what she perceives as your emotional weakness and your inability to cope with a stressful situation like a real man.

She may then decide that you're not the kind of guy she wants to be married to anymore and rather than try to restore your broken marriage, she will focus on getting over you and moving on.

So, if you want your wife to feel motivated to get back with you, make sure that you show her that even though you still love her and want to be married to her, you're not falling apart without her.

When she can see that you're confident, happy and emotionally fulfilled even though the marriage is in disarray, she will naturally and automatically feel respect and attraction for you.

You can then build on her feelings and make her want to be your wife again.

Another mistake to avoid making is

2. Getting into long, drawn out and exhausting discussions with her, rather than just re-attracting her

Nothing that you can say to a woman will make her change her mind if she has lost touch with her feelings for you.

So you having long, drawn out, emotional, tiring conversations with her is not going to have the effect on her that you're likely hoping for (i.e. that she feels motivated to work on the relationship).

A better approach is if you simply focus on creating a spark inside of her again, rather than trying to convince her with all of your logical reasons why you and her should restore your broken marriage (e.g. for the sake of the children, you will do better this time, you love her).

When she's feeling respect and attraction for you again, she will naturally want to make things work for her own reasons (e.g. she doesn't want to regret it later on if she leaves you, she realizes she still loves you).

Another mistake to avoid making is

3. Becoming her texting buddy while she secretly begins moving on behind your back

If you settle for just being your wife's texting buddy and not ever talking to her over the phone or seeing her in person, don't be surprised if the relationship breaks down completely and she moves on with someone else.

Here's the thing!

If you want to restore your broken marriage, you have to take action and lead the way.

That means, it's up to you to reactivate your wife's sexual and romantic feelings for you, so that she wants your marriage to work as much as you do.

That's not going to happen if you stick to nice or neutral texting.

Remember: Texting is fine when a woman is in love with you and perceives you in a positive light.

However, when she has disconnected from her feelings for you, anything you say via text, no matter how sincere, can easily be misinterpreted (e.g. you might say that you love her and rather than feel flattered, she may assume you're just being selfish and thinking only about your feelings and what you want).

So, to avoid that from happening and to speed up the process of getting her back, make sure you talk to her over the phone and then meet up with her in person.

When you meet up with her, focus on making her laugh and smile and feel good to be around you again.

The more respect and attraction she feels when she interacts with you in person, the more she starts to believe that you're not going to suddenly revert back to being the same guy you were before.

It then becomes difficult for her to say no to the idea of restoring your broken marriage, because she's feeling good around you now and she doesn't want to lose you.

My Girlfriend Cheated On Me and Then She Got Dumped. Should I Get Her Back?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

It depends on whether or not you really do love her, miss her and want to make something work with her.

Here are 4 options for you.

Option 1: Re-attract her, hook up with her sexually and then walk away

Sometimes, a guy just wants to know that he can get a cheating ex back if he wants to.

However, deep down, he might not really want to be in a relationship with her, because he knows that if she cheated on him once, nothing will really stop her from doing it again.

In a case like that, re-attracting her, hooking up with her and walking away is all he needs, to be able to move on without having hang-ups about what happened.

So, if you feel that you want to prove a point to yourself by re-attracting your ex, hooking up with her sexually and then walking away, go ahead and make it happen.

Start by calling her on the phone and using some humor to make her smile, laugh and feel at ease when talking to you again.

Additionally, throw in a bit of flirting, so that you create some sexual tension between you.

The more attracted you make her feel on the call, the more open she will become to meeting up with you in person.

Then when you see her in person, continue to say and do the types of things that will make her feel attracted to you.

[image: Re-attract her, hook up with her sexually and then walk away]

Build up the sexual tension between you so she wants to kiss and have sex with you again.

For example: Imagine that you and her are sitting together having coffee at a local café and she's drinking a latte.

To flirt with her and thereby create sexual tension between you, you can say something along the lines of, "You look so cute with that foam mustache on your top lip."

Then add, "Let me get that for you," and then lean over, hold her chin gently with one hand and wipe her mouth with your napkin with the other.

Do that while looking into her eyes and then back to her lips, giving her the impression that what you really want to do is kiss her.

She will likely blush and feel a bit self-conscious, while at the same time also feeling attracted to you and possibly even begin thinking things like, "I wish it was more than that napkin touching my lips. I can't believe I'm thinking this but I wish he would just kiss me."

At that point, lean back and continue talking normally as if nothing happened.

Then, once you sense things have calmed down between you, flirt with her again (e.g. lean in closer to her and say, "Mmmm!" you smell good, or "That lipstick you're wearing looks totally kissable," alternatively, touch her hand in passing or lean forward and gently move her hair out of her face) and then relax back into ordinary conversation once more.

By this stage, she will likely be more than willing to release some of the sexual desire in her with at least a hug.

Then, once you have her in your arms, slowly and confidently lean in and give her a kiss as well.

From there, if she seems willing suggest going back to your place or hers and hook up with her sexually.

Then, when she seems relaxed and possibly even hinting about you and her getting back together again, you can say something along the lines of, "Sorry, but I don't want to be in a relationship with a woman who has a habit of cheating. I deserve better. Thanks for the catch up, but I think it's better if we go our separate ways," and just walk away, knowing that you ended things on your terms, not hers.

Alternatively, you can go with

[image: Re-attract her, hook up with her sexually, enjoy a new relationship and make her fall back in love with you, then break up with her when you're ready]

In some cases, a guy might feel that he wants to teach his ex girlfriend a lesson for cheating on him.

So, rather than just move on after she got dumped, he might decide to re-attract her, get her back and then when she is vulnerable and in love with him again, dump her to get his revenge.

So, if you feel that you want to hurt your ex for cheating on you, this may be the option you want to take.

That means, you really have to think, act and behave in ways that will re-spark her sexual and romantic feelings for you and make her want to be your girl again.

For example: You need to be

- More confident and self-assured than ever before, so that nothing she says or does can get to you.
- More of a challenge than you used to be (e.g. don't agree with everything she says or wants you to do, don't reply to her calls or text messages right away, don't always make yourself available to her when she wants you), so she feels as though she has to now work hard to impress you.
- Charming and charismatic during interactions so her guard naturally comes down.
- More emotionally masculine than in the past so that you make her feel feminine and girly in your presence, rather than being too nice or gentle and not creating enough of a masculine/feminine dynamic between you which results in her perceiving you only as a friend.

The more you make her feel attracted in new and exciting ways, the more she will want to get back into a relationship with you.

Then, hook up with her sexually and blow her mind in ways that you never have before (e.g. take longer with foreplay and build up the sexual tension by kissing, touching and teasing, try something that youâve never tried before such as a different position or by building her up and then pulling away just before she climaxes and then starting all over again).

Make her want you both physically and emotionally more than she ever did before.

Then, once she has fallen back in love with you and feels as though you and her might have a future together, you can dump her to get your revenge on her for cheating on you.

For example: You can wait for a special occasion like her birthday and then say something like, âI have something important I want to say to you.â

She will then likely begin thinking things like, âI wonder what he wants to tell me? Is it possible that heâs going to ask me to move in with him/marry him? I feel so excited!â

Then, when sheâs all eager and happy, you can say something along the lines of, âThis has been a long time coming, but I think today itâs time for me to make it official. Iâm breaking up with you. Youâre a disloyal, cheating bitch and I definitely donât intend to waste my life with you. Maybe some other sucker will fall for your conniving ways, but that guy is not me. Itâs over. Bye,â and leave her feeling broken, knowing that you have gotten your revenge on her.

Alternatively, you can chooseâ

Option 3: Re-attract her, hook up with her sexually, enjoy a new relationship and make her fall back in love with you, then stay together

If you truly believe that your ex is the love of your life and that you can genuinely forgive her for cheating on you without throwing it in her face every time you have a fight, then one of the best decisions you will ever make is to focus on getting her back for another chance at the relationship.

You can easily do that if you want to by using a different approach to attraction than before, so you can regain her respect, attraction and love.

When you re-spark her sexual and romantic feelings for you, she will naturally open herself up to the idea of you and her being together as a couple again.

So, how do you go about reactivating her feelings for you?

That depends on what turned her off before to cause her to cheat on you with another guy and what she really needs to experience with you to feel a renewed sense of respect, attraction and love.

For example: Here are some of the changes that your ex might want to see in you, so she can feel attracted to you again.

- You now maintain your confidence around her at all times, rather than letting what she says or does affect how you feel (e.g. you become insecure and unsure of yourself, you feel jealous, you feel hurt by her words or actions).
- You no longer allow her to push you around and get away with disrespecting you or behaving badly (e.g. throwing tantrums, sulking) like you used to. Instead, you can now see her for what she is (i.e. an emotional woman) and you can laugh at her in a loving way when sheâs being a brat, rather than get upset or feel annoyed by her behavior.
- Rather than just having the same, comfortable sex you and her have been having all along,

- youâ€™re now bolder with her, making it an experience that she canâ€™t stop thinking about.
- Youâ€™re more emotionally dominant than her now, rather than letting her wear the pants in the relationship.
- You now truly believe in yourself and in your value to her, rather than feeling like sheâ€™s doing you a favor by being with you.
- Youâ€™re now more of a challenge to her and you make her feel as though she has to work hard to impress you and hold on to you, rather than like she doesnâ€™t have to put in any effort at all.
- You now make her feel so sexy and desirable when sheâ€™s with you, that no other guy can make her feel the way you do.

By making some simple adjustments to your approach to attraction, you can then easily re-attract your ex and get her back.

From there, you need to focus on creating the kind of relationship dynamic where youâ€™re good to her, make her feel loved, appreciated and desirable, while at the same time she feels motivated to be a good, loyal, loving woman to you.

When that happens, you can be assured that not only that the relationship will last, your ex will also never be tempted to cheat on you again, because she wonâ€™t ever want to lose you.

Alternatively, you might decide to go withâ€¦!

Option 4: Attract new women and forget about her

Another decision you can make is to forget all about your cheating ex and move on without her.

Yes, maybe you still have feelings for her and maybe you want her back, but you donâ€™t need her back to feel happy and fulfilled in your life.

So, rather than sitting around asking things like, â€œMy girlfriend cheated on me and she then got dumped. Should I get her back?â€ you can instead focus on getting out, attracting new, beautiful women, hooking up with them sexually and forgetting all about her.

The more fun you begin to have without your ex in your life, the more you might come to realize that youâ€™re actually better off without her.

You may begin noticing that there are many equally beautiful women out there who find you attractive and you can have your pick of them.

So why settle for a woman who is disloyal and has already broken your trust once before?

Eventually, you might even find another woman that you perceive as being perfect for you, fall in love with her and move on with her, ensuring that the only thing that remains of your ex is just a distant memory.

By the wayâ€¦!

Some of the ways you can get over your ex, begin meeting new women and move on areâ€¦!

- Going out to clubs, bars and parties with your single friends to meet, attract and hook up with new women.
- Asking women that youâ€™ve always been attracted to out on dates (e.g. someone at university or work, a woman in your neighborhood or apartment building, a friend of a friend).

- Joining a group activity where you are likely to meet new women (e.g. cooking, dancing or yoga classes).
- Volunteering for something that you feel strongly about (e.g. at an animal shelter, a community fundraiser, a political event, a religious event).

The more you put yourself out there, the more chances you will have to meet and hook up with new women.

Of course, it's important that you know how to attract them and make them want to be with you. Sometimes, a guy makes the mistake of interacting with other women and spending most of the time talking about his ex and how she cheated on him and how broken he feels about it.

That's not going to help you move on.

This is why, you need to be sure that you are ready to let her go and move on with another woman. If you're not ready to do it, you might find yourself drifting from woman to woman for months and even years without ever being happy or content.

Instead, you always seem to find yourself thinking things like, "I wish things had turned out differently. I really miss my ex and I think she was the one for me."

Don't let that happen to you.

If you decide to move on, be certain that it's the right thing for you to do, so that you never have any regrets about it later on.

On the other hand, if you don't feel like it's the right decision for you, then don't do it. Do what feels right.

That's the only way you will be happy and content in your life.

The choice is yours.

Where Some Guys Go Wrong When Considering Getting Back With an Ex Who Cheated

If you decide that you want to get back with your ex, then you need to use the kind of approach that will quickly reactivate her sexual and romantic feelings for you and make her want you back too.

This is why it's very important that you don't make the kind of attraction mistakes that will end up turning her off even more.

She then doesn't want to get back together again and prefers to move on with another man who isn't you.

For example: Some of the mistakes to avoid that guys make in a similar situation to yours are:

1. Waiting too long to make a move and she then moves on with a new guy to make herself get over being dumped

[image: Waiting too long to make a move and she then moves on with a new guy to make herself get over being dumped]

[image: Waiting too long to make a move and she then moves on with a new guy to make herself get over being dumped]

In some cases, a guy spends a lot of time being afraid to make a move to re-attract an ex girlfriend who cheated on him and then got dumped.

In his mind he might be thinking things like, "What if she doesn't want me anymore? Then not only will I be a fool for being cheated on, I will also be labeled desperate for chasing after her and being rejected. Maybe I should just wait for her to give me some kind of sign that she's open to getting back together again and then I'll make a move and at least I won't embarrass myself."

He might then wait and wait for a sign that never comes.

In the meantime, his ex could be thinking things like, "I really stuffed everything up. I had a great guy and then I went and cheated on him with a jerk and now I got dumped. Unfortunately, I can't go back because it looks like my ex isn't interested in me anymore, and I don't blame him after what I put him through. I guess it's time to accept that what I had in the past is over and move on and find another guy, and hopefully this time I won't mess everything up."

She may then just move on and find herself a new man to help her get over being dumped and her ex misses out on getting her back, because he didn't have the courage to make a move sooner.

So, don't let that happen to you.

If you are willing to forgive your ex for cheating on you and get back into a relationship with her, don't sit around waiting for her to come back to you, because you will likely lose her for a second time.

Take action now.

Call her on the phone or meet up with her in person, reactivate her sexual and romantic feelings for you and get her back into a relationship with you that's so much better than it was before.

Another mistake that guys make in a situation similar to yours is that

2. Not knowing that it will feel good for her to get back with him now that she has been dumped

Sometimes, a woman will resist getting back with a guy she cheated on, because she feels bad about having sex with someone else and hurting him, while he didn't do anything wrong.

Additionally, a woman might worry that if she does give him another chance, he will continually throw her mistake in her face and use it against her to control her with guilt in the relationship.

So, if you can genuinely forgive your ex woman for what happened and then also reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you, she will feel like she won the guy lottery.

She will realize that she's got the kind of guy that she needs to hold on to and cherish.

As a result, she will then put in the effort to be a good woman to you, treat you well, love you, respect you and most of all be loyal to you.

Then, when you're a good guy to her too and you don't punish her emotionally for her mistake, you will be able to build a happy and long lasting relationship together.

So, don't be afraid to make a move.

She will likely be so grateful to you that you did.

Another mistake that guys make in a situation similar to yours isâ€¦!

3. Not preparing himself to be more attractive emotionally and in the bedroom

Getting back an ex who cheated is not just about saying, â€œI forgive you. Letâ€¦s get back together again.â€¦

Instead, a guy needs to be able to give her a new and improved attraction experience, both emotionally and sexually.

For example:

If emotionally he was needy and clingy before, he now needs to be more of a challenge to her so she feels as though she now has to put in the effort to impress him and keep him interested in her.

On the other hand, if he was sexually too boring and predictable (e.g. sex twice a week in the missionary position), he now prepares to blow her mind by being a different, more considerate, more exciting lover than before.

If he doesnâ€¦t change and then tries to get her back, she will usually just reject him and say things like, â€œLook, itâ€¦s over between us. Please accept that and move on.â€¦

Alternatively, if she does give him another chance and then notices that heâ€¦s still the same guy as before, she will either break up with him and move on, or cheat on him again.

This is why itâ€¦s so important that you prepare to re-attract your ex in the ways that are important to her.

When she sees that youâ€¦ve really put in the effort to become a better man, she will naturally feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

It then becomes easy for you to fully reactivate her feelings, get her back and keep her in a happy relationship with you.

Another mistake that guys make in a situation similar to yours isâ€¦!

4. Walking away from an opportunity to get her back and then regretting it for the rest of his life

Itâ€¦s quite possible that your ex has learned her lesson and truly regrets cheating on you.

However, you will never know unless you take the chance of getting her back.

If you donâ€¦t, you might always wonder, â€œWhat ifâ€¦â€¦ at the back of your mind.

Donâ€¦t let that happen.

Call her on the phone or meet up with her in person, reactivate her feelings for you andÂ give yourself a chance to be back with her.

My Girlfriend Broke Up With Me While I Was Deployed

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 6 common reasons why a woman will do that and how to get her back:

1. She didn't want to live with the idea that you might never come home

For some women, the stress and uncertainty of living with the thought that the man they love could die any minute can become unbearable.

For example: A woman like that might find herself worrying all the time and being on edge for no obvious reason.

She may also start to experience problems with her health (e.g. she becomes clinically depressed and needs medication to cope, or experiences stress-related ailments such as migraines/heart related problems/stomach issues/eating disorders).

So, for her own mental, physical and emotional well-being, she may decide to break up with her guy.

That doesn't necessarily mean that she doesn't love him anymore, it simply means that she can't handle the stress of the relationship, or the fear of losing him.

In the same way, it's very possible that your girlfriend broke up with you while you were deployed as a last resort, because her health was taking a battering from all the stress she was experiencing.

That means, she may still have feelings for you, even though she broke up with you and that's good news.

Of course, that doesn't mean you should rush off and call her and say things like, "I know why you did this. You're just feeling stressed, but it's okay. I promise I won't get killed. You just need to hang in there and everything will be all right," because it will likely only make her feel defensive and close herself off from you even more.

Instead, a better approach is to convince her that you can at least be friends now, with no strings attached.

That will likely take off some of the pressure she's feeling about losing you.

It also gives you an excuse to stay in contact with her.

This is especially a good idea if you're still deployed and don't know when you'll be back.

You can then use the "friendship" to continue building on her feelings of respect and attraction for you, so she doesn't want to get over you and move on.

Then, when you finally get back home, you can fully reactivate her feelings for you in person (e.g. by making her smile and laugh and feel good to have you back in her life, flirting with her to create sexual tension between you, being emotionally masculine when she's being a sensitive, emotional girl around you) and get her back.

Just remember: Don't make the mistake of being a nice, neutral friend who pretends that he's no longer attracted to her in a sexual or romantic way.

If you do that, she will almost certainly focus on getting over you and moving on.

So focus on making her feel attracted during interactions with you (e.g. via text, Skype, social media, over the phone and in person).

The more you do that, the more she will start seeing you as more than just a friend.

You can then hook up with her sexually and get her back.

Another common reason why a woman will break up with her guy while he is deployed isâ€¦!

2. She becameÂ jealous of her girlfriends whoÂ were enjoying single life, or relationships where the man is always with her

Imagine a woman is sitting at home alone with only photos of her man as company.

In the meantime, all around her, her girlfriends are busy going out, having fun with their boyfriends and husbands, or if theyâ€re single, hooking up with guys and enjoying themselves.

Itâ€s only natural that she may begin to feel a bit jealous and like sheâ€s missing out.

She might then begin to think things like, â€Iâ€m the only one stuck here alone. Everyone else is having fun and enjoying their life while theyâ€re still young. How long do I have to wait before I can have a bit of fun too? Itâ€s not that I donâ€t care for my boyfriend, but this long distance relationship just isnâ€t working for me. I know itâ€s not his fault, but I donâ€t want to miss out on the best years of my life. Maybe Iâ€m better off breaking up with him and enjoy being single for a while. Then I might even be able to find myself a new man who will stick around and do some of the fun things I want to do, rather than me having to sit around by myself waiting for a guy who may or may not come back to me sometime in the future.â€

This can lead to her breaking up with her boyfriend.

Yet, hereâ€s the thingâ€!

A woman who is happy in her relationship with her man would never get tired of waiting for him, even if he is far away and even if she sees that all her friends are having so much fun without her.

Yes, she may miss him and wish he was with her.

Additionally, she may envy her friends who are in relationships and who get to enjoy their men every day.

However, itâ€s unlikely that she will feel as though sheâ€s better off breaking up with her guy and moving on.

Instead, she will likely feel even more motivated to wait for him, because she knows that what they have is special.

Not only do they love and care for each other, they have also endured the test of being apart under difficult circumstances (i.e. he is at risk of getting hurt or even dying) and that only makes the relationship stronger.

So, when a woman breaks up with her boyfriend while he is deployed, because she feels like sheâ€s missing out, chances are high that there are underlying problems in the relationship that are being ignored.

For example: Some of the reasons why a woman will feel that itâ€s better for her to break up and even be single for a while than to stick in a relationship with a guy areâ€!

The relationship has fallen into a rut and is boring, predictable and unexciting when theyâ€re together.

She feels taken for granted and like her man expects her to stick around just because of what they had in the beginning, even though the relationship hasn't felt good to her for a while.

He's stopped saying and doing the types of things that made her feel attracted to him in the first place.

She feels more like his friend than his woman (i.e. because he treats her like one of his buddies, rather than like a sexy and desirable woman).

Here's the thing!

Just because things felt great between you and your girlfriend at the start of your relationship, it doesn't mean that she's going to want to stick around for life in a relationship that has lost its spark.

So, if you want to get her back, it's very important that you actively spark her feelings of respect and attraction for you again (e.g. by making her laugh, smile and feel happy when she's interacting with you).

When she feels more attracted to you than she ever has before, because you are now making her feel attracted in new and exciting ways, she will realize that she has nothing to feel jealous about.

In fact, what she has with you is something other's will envy, because it's based on mutual love, attraction and respect that grows stronger and deeper every day.

As a result, she will regret her decision to break up with you and will want to be your girl again.

Another common reason why a woman will break up with her guy while he is deployed is!

3. She always planned on breaking up with you, but didn't want to do it while you were home

Sometimes, a woman will want to breakup with a guy, but because she's worried about how he might react if she does, she keeps putting it off.

For example: She may fear that he will!

- Get upset and lose control of his emotions (e.g. beg and plead with her to change her mind) and she doesn't want to have to deal with that
- Get angry with her and possibly become violent or aggressive.
- Try to talk her out of her decision (e.g. by trying to make her feel guilty for breaking up with him just before he gets deployed).

So, rather than come out and do it to his face, she instead waits for him to get deployed before she goes through with it.

Essentially, she's likely hoping that he will have enough time to get over her by the time he comes back, so that she won't have to endure the stress of having to give him reasons and explanations about why she doesn't want to be his girl anymore.

Additionally, by breaking up with him while he's deployed, it gives her more time to fully get over him and find herself a replacement man.

Then, by the time her ex gets back and tries to convince her to give him another chance, she will be able to say something along the lines of, 'I'm sorry but it's just too late. I've moved on already and I have a new boyfriend now. Please accept that what we had is over and try to move on too.â

If this is the case between you and your ex, the important thing for you to do from now on is not to give up.

If you accept her decision and walk away now, you may end up regretting it later on.

So, what should you do instead?

Make sure that you stay in her life.

Not as a clingy, needy ex boyfriend, or as a friend, but as the guy who makes her feel so attracted during interactions, that she begins to regret her decision and starts to want to be your girl again.

Another common reason why a woman will break up with her guy while he is deployed isâ

4. She started to feel lonely and horny, so she broke up with you to pursue another guy

What a lot of guys don't realize is that women have sexual needs too.

So, unlike in the past where a woman had to suppress those needs if she was single, or only have sex at the request of her husband if she was in a relationship, today's woman is free to be as sexually active as she wants to be.

If she is single, she can have casual sex as often as she wants, with as many guys as she wants and it's perfectly okay.

If she is in a relationship, her and her guy can be as wild and sexually active as they choose to be.

However, in a case where a woman is in a long distance relationship with a guy (e.g. because they live in different cities or countries, he is deployed), it's only natural that even though he's away, her sexual needs won't diminish.

In fact, thinking about him and all the good times they shared together, both emotionally and sexually, can make her hornier than ever.

Yet, that doesn't mean she's going to go around sleeping with any guy she can find to satisfy her sexual needs, just because her man isn't around.

Of course, there are some women of bad character who will do whatever they want (i.e. cheat on their guy) if they feel like it, without it bothering them in the least that they are being unfaithful.

However, most women will resist their sexual needs, because they love and respect their man.

A woman like that will literally count down the days until she will see him again.

She will patiently and faithfully wait for him to come home, so that she can hug him, kiss him, and have mind blowing sex with him, because she feels so happy to be back in his arms again.

That is what is possible when a relationship has the right dynamic and the guy makes his woman feel increasing amounts of love, respect and attraction for him over time.

On the other hand, it doesn't matter if a guy is deployed or right there with his woman, if he fails to make her feel sexually and emotionally attracted to him.

She will feel dissatisfied and then if another guy comes along and sparks her sexual and romantic feelings for him, she won't be able to resist him.

If your girlfriend broke up with you while you were deployed, it could be because another guy sparked her feelings more than you did.

She then felt that she was better off breaking up with you to be with him.

Hereâs the thing thoughâ!

Although it sucks to be dumped like that, you can still get her back if you want to.

The key is to give her the kind of attraction experience she wonât be able to resist.

When you make her feel more respect and attraction than ever before, all her old feelings of love for you will come rushing back.

She then stops looking at other guys as being better than you, because she knows that no one else can make her feel as attracted and in love as you do.

She then naturally remains loyal and waits for you to come back to her, because she feels lucky to have you.

Another common reason why a woman will break up with her guy while he is deployed isâ!

5. She was stressed with how time consuming and energy sapping the regular video calls, texts or emails had become

Being in a long distance relationship can be exhausting for a woman and it gets even worse when a guy is deployed, because interactions with him are so unpredictable and even stressful.

She might then find herself always being on edge, waiting to hear from him and fearing that something might happen to him.

Then, when she does get a chance to talk to him (e.g. via video call), she has to put on her best face.

In other words, she always has to be positive on the calls or in her e-mails, to cheer her guy up and not let him worry about her.

So, unlike when a woman can come home after a bad day and tell her man what happened to her at work or university, or about the argument she had with her friend or sister, with her deployed boyfriend she has to keep all that in.

Initially, that can be okay, but after a while she might begin feeling like maintaining the relationship is just too much hard work for her.

She might then decide to breakup with him, rather than have to deal with the stress of being a military girlfriend.

Another common reason why a woman will break up with her guy while he is deployed isâ!

6. While spending time away from you, she realized that she didnât really miss you as much as she thought she should

[image: While spending time away from you, she realized that she didnât really miss you as much as she thought she should]

[image: While spending time away from you, she realized that she didnât really miss you as much as she thought she should]

In some cases, a woman might realize that sheâs actually having a lot of fun without her guy around.

So, rather than sit around missing him, she ends up going out with friends and enjoying her life.

This can cause her to take it as a sign that maybe her guy is not the one for her.

Then, rather than stay in a relationship that she doesn't feel is going to last, she may decide to end it (even though her guy is still deployed) and get on with finding herself the man she intends to spend the rest of her life with.

Although finding out that your girlfriend doesn't miss you and doesn't believe you're the one for her can be hurtful, it doesn't have to signal the end of your relationship.

You can change how she feels.

You can make her miss you more so that the idea of losing you becomes worrying to her.

In other words, you can control how you make her feel.

So, to start off with, get her to agree to stay friends.

Then, use every interaction you have with her from now on to spark some of her feelings for you.

That may be with an email, it may be with a phone call, it may be with a video call or it may be via social media, or a combination of all those things.

If you're going to be successful at getting her back, your focus needs to be on how you're making her feel during every single interaction.

In other words, if you're making her feel friendly or neutral feelings, or nothing at all, you're not going to get the results you want.

On the other hand, if you're making her feel sexually and romantically attracted, you're closer to getting her back.

She's going to start feeling drawn to you again.

She's going to miss you more than ever before and she's going to wish that your deployment will end quickly, so that you can be together again.

Avoid These 3 Mistakes

Although you might feel helpless right now and like there's nothing you can do to get your girlfriend back, the truth is, there's a lot you can do — even when you're far away.

You can re-attract her and get her back.

It all depends on the approach you use from now on.

In other words, are you going to do things that are attractive to her, or are you going to make mistakes that will push her away even more?

For example: 3 mistakes to avoid making are:

1. Trying to get her back by making her feel guilty about what she has done

[image: Trying to get her back by making her feel guilty about what she has done]

[image: Trying to get her back by making her feel guilty about what she has done]

There's no denying that being dumped while on deployment is not a nice thing.

However, rubbing that in your ex's face and making her out to be a terrible person because of it, isn't going to make her feel like she wants to give you another chance.

Here's the thing:

A woman doesn't want to be with a man out of feelings of guilt for breaking up with him while he was deployed.

She also doesn't want to be made to feel like she's a bad person for putting her own wants and needs first.

So, don't bother trying to make her guilty.

Not only is that not an attractive quality in you (i.e. it makes you seem heartless, inconsiderate and manipulative), it will also likely just make her feel even more convinced that you're not the right guy for her.

A better approach is to accept the break up and then use interactions with her to make her laugh and smile and feel good to be talking to you, so she regrets her decision.

Another mistake to avoid making is:

2. Trying to have in depth conversations with her about the break up while still deployed

Long, drawn out conversations are difficult enough when done in person.

However, having such a conversation while being thousands of miles apart, is almost impossible.

Why?

When a woman has lost touch with her feelings for a guy, she will usually be closed off and not very receptive to what he has to say.

Then, because time is limited (i.e. because he's far away and can't sit on a call or video chat for hours), he can't spark some of her feelings for him first to make her more open to what he has to say.

Instead, he has to get to the heart of the matter right away and because she doesn't have feelings for him, she usually just refuses to listen.

That makes it a frustrating experience for both him and her and can even lead to arguments and disagreements, which defeats the purpose of having the discussion in the first place (i.e. to convince her to give him another chance).

So, if you want to talk about the relationship with your girlfriend, you need to wait until you can do it in person and then, only after you've re-sparked some of her feelings for you.

Only then will she open back up to you and at least listen to what you have to say.

Another mistake to avoid making is:

3. Not waiting until you get back home to get her back

In almost all other ex back cases, a guy shouldn't cut off contact and wait to get his ex back.

Yet, when deployed and in a position where it's impossible to meet up with her, re-attract her and get her back, a guy does need to give her that space.

During that time, he has to prepare himself to re-attract her by becoming more emotionally attractive to her (e.g. more confident, less unsure of himself and his value to her, more of a challenge).

Then, when he meets up with her and makes her feel attracted in new and exciting ways, she won't be able to resist being around him.

He can then build up her feelings for him and get her back into a relationship that is so much stronger than before, because it withstood the test of separation and won.

My Ex Girlfriend Has Made Me Become Insecure Around Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Here are 7 of the most common reasons why that will happen to a guy after being dumped by an ex girlfriend he really loved and wanted to be with:

1. The way she dumped him made him begin to doubt that he could ever keep a quality woman happy in a relationship

Sometimes, a woman who has been really sweet, loving and gentle throughout the course of her relationship with a guy might change drastically when she breaks up with him.

For example: She might become bitchy and say really hurtful things to hurt him (e.g. she tells him that heâs terrible in bed, says that she never really loved him, mocks him about certain aspects of his physical appearance).

Essentially, sheâs lashing out at him and trying to make him feel as bad as sheâs currently feeling.

However, deep down, she doesnât really mean what sheâs saying and itâs likely that when things calm down, she will regret behaving in that way.

Unfortunately though, in some cases, the guy doesnât see it that way.

Instead, he takes everything she says to heart and begins to doubt himself and his value to women.

He may even start thinking things like, âI guess Iâm a loser when it comes to women. If my ex hates me so much after she said that she loves me, I must really suck as a boyfriend. That probably means I will never be able to find another woman who will accept all my faults and be attracted to me.â

Yet, thinking that way only causes him to spiral into a pit of hopelessness and despair, which then comes through every time he interacts with other women.

He then gets rejected by them (i.e. because heâs displaying the types of characteristics that are instinctively unattractive to women).

That only confirms to him what he now believes about himself (i.e. that heâs not good enough, heâs unattractive), which then results in him falling even deeper into his spiral of despair.

So, if this sounds like something youâre currently putting yourself through, you need to stop right away.

You need to change the way you think about yourself and the break up with your ex girlfriend.

When you begin to think differently (i.e. in a more positive way), you will also begin feeling better.

Then you will likely be surprised to see that women respond to you differently too.

All of a sudden you become more desirable and fun to be around.

It has nothing to do with your appearance, or anything that your ex might have said to get to you.

Instead, itâs about how you feel about yourself.

The more confident and self-assured you feel, the more it comes through in your actions and behavior and the more attractive you are to women in general and even to your ex.

Even if she doesn't admit it, seeing you handle what she threw at you in such an emotionally strong and mature way makes her automatically see you in a new light.

She then starts to wonder if she made the right decision by breaking up with you after all.

So start changing your negative thoughts to positive ones right now.

For example: Instead of thinking, "My ex girlfriend has made me become insecure around women," replace that with something along the lines of, "I feel confident around women because I know my true value as a man. I believe in myself and in my worth to my ex and to other women and I will continue to feel that way when I interact with them, even if they're being cold, dismissive or bitchy towards me."

Then, when you interact with women (and your ex) from now on, rather than projecting an image of a guy who feels insecure and unsure of himself, your confidence and self-belief will come through instead (e.g. in the tonality of your voice, your body language and in the way you behave and respond to them).

You will then automatically be more attractive.

Additionally, when your ex girlfriend experiences the new, more emotionally strong, confident you, she will naturally start to feel a surge of respect and attraction for you again.

You can then build on that and get her back if you want to, or move on and find yourself an even better woman than her.

Another common reason why a guy will become insecure around women after a break up is

2. She was the hottest or one of the hottest women he's ever been in a relationship with

[image: She was the hottest or one of the hottest women he's ever been in a relationship with]

[image: She was the hottest or one of the hottest women he's ever been in a relationship with]

Sometimes, a guy manages to get into a relationship with a woman who he considers to be way more beautiful than anyone else he's ever dated before.

This can cause him to think things like, "I'm so lucky that a girl as gorgeous as her wants to be with a guy like me. I don't know what I did to deserve her, but I know for sure that she's one of a kind and I'll never find another woman like her again."

As a result of thinking that way about her, he puts her on a pedestal and begins to suck up to her (e.g. by always being nice and sweet to her regardless of how badly she treats him, spoiling her with gifts and romantic gestures), because deep down he doesn't believe that he's got what it takes to attract another beautiful woman like her.

Essentially, he's hoping that by making the effort to be the perfect boyfriend to her, she won't break up with him, even though he believes she can do better than him if she wants to.

So, naturally when she does break up with him, not only is he devastated about losing her, he also panics about his chances of ever finding another woman to replace her in his life, because he doesn't feel good enough.

This causes him to talk, act and behave in an insecure way when he interacts with other women.

Then, when he gets rejected by them, it only affirms to him what heâs secretly believed all along (i.e. that heâs not worthy of a beautiful woman).

Yet, what he doesnât realize is that lacking confidence in himself and feeling unworthy of a beautiful womanâs love actually turns women off.

Why?

A woman likes the idea of being with a man that she feels will be the envy of her friends, family and other women, because he is always confident in himself and believes in his attractiveness and value to her.

No matter what heâs going through in life, or what other people say or do to make him feel unsure of himself and his value, it doesnât affect him.

Instead, he always feels confident about himself and knows that he is worthy of any woman he chooses and of anything else he wants in life.

So, when a guy interacts with women and gives off a, âIâm not good enough for youâ kind of vibe, it naturally turns them off.

This is why, if you want to find yourself another beautiful woman, or even get your ex back, you have to absolutely believe that you are more than good enough.

If you donât believe in your value and attractiveness as a man, a woman will pick up on it, feel turned off and it will then become more difficult for you to get another girlfriend, or your ex back if thatâs what you want to do.

Another common reason why a guy will become insecure around women after a break up isâ

3. She made him feel like he was a horrible boyfriend when she broke up with him

For example: A woman might say things like, âIâll never be able to understand what made me agree to be your girl in the first place. I should have seen this coming. You were a terrible boyfriend and I must have been crazy to stick around with you as long as I did. Itâs all your fault weâre broken up! Youâre the one who stuffed everything up, not me.â

Of course, if a guy is emotionally strong, heâs not going to let this get to him and destroy his confidence.

Instead, heâs going to see what sheâs saying for what it is â her trying to hurt him to make herself feel better about the break up.

Even if everything sheâs saying about him is true, rather than make him feel insecure and like heâs no longer good enough for her or other women, he will usually take it as constructive criticism and then focus on becoming an even better man than before.

Unfortunately though, not all men are that emotionally strong.

So, when a woman blames him for the break up, he takes it to heart and starts believing that he sucks as a boyfriend.

Naturally, thinking that way makes him feel insecure around women, because at the back of his mind heâs usually thinking things like, âWhat if Iâm not good enough to get another quality woman like her?â

His insecurity and self-doubt then comes through during interactions via his actions, behavior and conversation style and he gets rejected, thereby confirming to himself that what heâs thinking is true and that no other woman will want to be his girl again.

Hereâs the thing though â

Everyone makes mistakes in relationships, not just you.

How you now recover from the mistakes you made is what really counts.

So, are you going to sit around letting your exâs words poison your mind into believing that everything is your fault, or are you going to accept responsibility for your actions, learn from your slip up and become a better, more emotionally strong man as a result?

If you donât, then getting a new woman, or your ex back if you want her, becomes really difficult.

Another common reason why a guy will become insecure around women after a break up isâ

4. He knows that he doesnât really understand what women find attractive and how to keep one happy in a relationship

Sometimes after a break up, a guy might start thinking things like, âWomen are so difficult to understand. They never say what they really want and quite often theyâll say one thing and mean another. I just donât know how to handle that. I always feel that no matter what I do Iâm in the wrong. Iâll never be able to hold on to a woman because Iâll never truly understand what she wants. Itâs hopeless!â

This may then lead to him feeling insecure and unsure of himself around women and that will naturally contribute to him struggling to find someone new and move on (or get his ex back if he wants to).

Hereâs the thingâ

A woman will almost never tell a guy what she wants from him.

Instead, she will either give him subtle hints, or say nothing at all and just expect him to figure it out on his own and be the man she wants him to be.

If he can do that, she will respect him, look up to him, feel attracted to him and be loyal to him.

However, if she has to explain to him how to be a man, she will automatically start feeling attracted to other men who donât need her to explain it.

He will start to look like a confused guy who still hasnât fully grown up and become a man and she will close herself off from him.

If sheâs just getting to know him, she will pull away and focus on finding another man who is already what she wants him to be and if sheâs in a relationship with him, she will usually just break up with him and move on.

This is why, it is very important for you to understand what women want from a guy, so that you can easily attract them and keep them happy in a relationship with you.

By the wayâ

Here are some examples of what the majority of women find attractive in a man:

He is confident and emotionally strong regardless of what is happening in his life (e.g. his woman dumps him, he loses out on a promotion heâs been hoping for, his investments fall through).

He stands up to her and puts her back in her place in a loving, but assertive manner when sheâs behaving badly, rather than submit to her and let her walk all over him.

He is loving, attentive and considerate towards her, but he also makes her feel like she needs to be a good woman back to him in order for him to stick with her.

He makes her feel sexy and desirable when she's with him, rather than making her feel neutral emotions or worse, turned off by him.

He has a definite purpose in life that he's working towards, so he doesn't end up being clingy or needy. Instead, he's an emotionally independent man and that is attractive to her.

He is stronger than her emotionally, so it feels right to her to submit to him sexually.

She's submitting to a force that is more powerful than her.

He believes in himself and in his value to her and he passes her confidence tests easily.

As a result, she feels like she's lucky that he's with her, rather than like she's doing him a favor because she's better than him.

These are just a few of the things that a woman looks out for in her relationship with a man.

So, the question that you should ask yourself is, Am I that kind of guy?

If the answer is No, then it's very important that you focus on improving those things in you.

Then, when you interact with women, or your ex, from now on, you will easily be able to attract them, because you are now the kind of man that women instinctively feel drawn to.

You can then get your ex back if you want to, or find yourself another, high quality woman to move on with.

The choice is yours.

Another common reason why a guy will become insecure around women after a break up is

5. He placed way too much importance on her and made her become the main purpose of his life at the time

Some guys mistakenly think that to make a woman feel loved and appreciated in a relationship with him, he has to make her the centre of his world.

As a result, a guy like that might give up all his interests and hobbies, put his personal goals and dreams on hold and even stop hanging out with his friends, just so that he can spend all of his time with her.

Eventually, she becomes his comfort zone and he can no longer make a decision without her approval and guidance.

In other words, he becomes dependent on her for almost everything in his life.

So, when she's loving and supportive, he feels confident, self-assured, valuable and like he can accomplish anything he wants in his life.

On the other hand, when she's angry, closed off or unsupportive, he feels insecure, unsure of himself and like he's worthless.

Unfortunately, this dependency stays with him after he gets broken up with.

As a result, he then can't move on and find another woman, because his support system (i.e. his ex) is no loner around guiding him, supporting him, encouraging him and making him feel worthy.

Hereâs the thing thoughâ

When a guy makes a woman the most important thing in his life, it actually turns her off and makes her feel smothered.

She will then gradually begin to lose respect and attraction for him for not being an emotionally strong, independent man.

Eventually, she will also disconnect from her feelings of love for him as well and this usually leads to her breaking up with him.

What you may not realize is that even though a woman wants to be loved, appreciated and made to feel as though sheâs the most important person in her manâs life, she doesnât want to be the most important thing.

She wants to be with a man who is happy, confident and forward moving in his life, with or without her support, approval or attention.

She doesnât want to feel as though he will fall apart without her guidance and support.

In the same way, if you want to stop feeling insecure around other women so that you can find yourself a new girlfriend (or re-attract your ex if you want to), you need to become more emotionally independent.

In other words, you need to get to the point in your life where you make your own decisions and feel good about them, regardless of what other people think.

For example: Some of the ways you can do that are byâ

- Focusing on achieving some of your big goals, dreams and ambitions in life, regardless or whether other people approve or not.
- Doing something new that youâve always avoided because your ex (or your friends and family) didnât approve of it (e.g. a take up a martial art, join a travel club and go to exotic, interesting or even dangerous places, join a dance club, join a mixed sports team with both male and female players).
- Reconnecting with old friends that you stopped seeing because your ex didnât like them and also focusing on making new ones.

When you focus on becoming genuinely happy and content in your own life, not only does that stop you from feeling nervous and insecure around women, but you also become more attractive to your ex as well.

You can then decide if you want to get her back, or move on with a new woman.

The choice is yours.

Another common reason why a guy will become insecure around women after a break up isâ

6. She cheated on him or got with a new guy shortly after their break up

Itâs only natural that if a woman cheats on her guy, or moves on really quickly after she breaks up with him, it can make him doubt his attractiveness to her.

He may even begin wondering things like, *âWas I bad in bed?*â or, âDid she feel turned off by my physical appearance? Wasn't I good looking enough for her?'

Naturally, this can lead to him feeling insecure when he's around other women, because at the back of his mind he's always wondering if they find him unattractive.

He might then focus on changing his physical appearance by giving himself a makeover or by going to the gym and losing some weight or building some muscle.

Yet, here's the thing!

What a guy like that doesn't realize is that a man's emotional attractiveness is much more important to a woman than his physical attractiveness.

In other words, an average guy who is confident, self-assured, emotionally strong, ballsy and emotionally masculine is a hundred times more attractive to women than a really handsome guy who is insecure, unsure of himself, timid and emotionally sensitive.

This is why, if you want to find yourself a new woman, or even better, get your ex girlfriend back, you need to focus on improving your emotional attractiveness.

Then, when you interact with women, they will be able to pick up on it and they will automatically feel attracted to you.

Remember: A woman needs to be able to look up to her man and feel like she is lucky to have him, not like she's doing him a favor by being his girlfriend, because he believes he can't get anyone else other than her.

So, regardless of what happened with your ex, you have to get to the point where you believe in yourself and in your value and attractiveness as a man.

If you don't, you will end up staying stuck in relationship limbo where you can't attract a new woman and you also can't re-attract your ex.

Don't make that mistake.

Believe in yourself and then get the woman you really want (e.g. a new woman or your ex girlfriend back).

You can do it!

Another common reason why a guy will become insecure around women after a break up is

7. She made him feel like he really needed her

[image: She made him feel like he really needed her]

[image: She made him feel like he really needed her]

Some women love the idea of having a man wrapped around their little finger.

It gives them a sense of power knowing that their guy is totally dependent on her and cannot function without her.

For example: A woman like that will constantly belittle her guy and say things like, 'You're so lucky to have me. You know that if I wasn't your girl you would never have passed your exams/gotten that promotion at work/found that job. You need me.'

This wears at the guy's sense of self worth and before long he truly believes that he really needs his woman and can't do without her.

Unfortunately though, when a woman like that dumps her guy, he feels totally lost and insecure without her.

This then leads to him being unable to move on and find himself a new woman, because he doesn't believe he's capable of doing things on his own.

This is why, if something like this has happened to you, you have to focus on rebuilding your feelings of value and self worth.

You need to pick yourself up and start moving forward with confidence, knowing that you can re-attract your ex, or other quality women if you choose to do so.

Another way of saying that is, if you want to find a new woman to date and fall in love with, or get your ex back, you need to believe that you can.

Believing that you can starts filling you up with the kind of confidence that causes you to think, talk, behave and act in ways that are naturally attractive to the majority of women (i.e. you have high self-esteem, you don't doubt your value and attractiveness as a man regardless of what happened with your ex, you're comfortable flirting with women and making them want you sexually).

So, go ahead and believe in yourself and in your value to women and your ex and let them sense that as you interact with them.

You will then be able to re-attract your ex girlfriend back, or attract a new woman if you prefer to do that instead.

It's all up to you.

4 Mistakes That Can Cause a Guy to Remain Insecure After a Break Up and Prevent Him From Getting His Ex Back

By the way!

If you don't want to stay stuck in a place where your negative emotions prevent you from moving forward and either re-attracting your ex, or finding yourself a new woman, you need to avoid the following mistakes:

1. Not using the break up as a wake up call to become better at attracting women

You can look at your break up as a terrible thing and allow it to erode your feelings of self worth, or you can use it as an opportunity to become a better, more emotionally strong, confident man.

It's actually a choice you can make for yourself.

On the one hand you can wallow in misery and pain and keep telling yourself that your ex girlfriend has made you become insecure around women.

On the other hand, you can regain control of your emotions.

Then, focus on replacing feelings of insecurity and desperation with feelings of confidence, emotional strength and emotional masculinity.

The more you embrace your true self (e.g. the confident, emotionally strong version of you) vs. the man you think your ex created (i.e. the insecure guy who doubts himself and his value to women), the more attractive you will become to your ex and to other women.

Then decide what you want (i.e. to get your ex back or move on) and make it happen.

Another mistake to avoid making isâ€¦!

2. Not realizing that he can actually level up and re-attract her quite quickly

If you truly believe that your ex is the one for you, then just focus on getting her back for another chance at the relationship.

You can do that by leveling up as a man and using a different approach to attraction with her than you did before, so you can reactivate her sexual and romantic feelings for you.

When she feels a renewed sense of respect, attraction and love for you during interactions, she will naturally open herself up to the possibility of you and her being together as a couple, or at least hooking up again to see how she feels.

So, donâ€™t waste any more time feeling despondent and like you have to stay stuck in a place where you canâ€™t move forward.

If you want to get your ex back, just do it.

Itâ€™s actually a lot easier than you might think.

Another mistake to avoid making isâ€¦!

3. Assuming that he will never be able to gain control over this area of his life

Sometimes a guy can waste a lot of time feeling like he just doesnâ€™t have what it takes to attract quality women.

A guy like that may end up staying single, becoming bitter and jaded about love and go around saying things like, “Women donâ€™t want guys like me so, whatâ€™s the point of even bothering with love?”

Alternatively, he might get into relationships with women he doesnâ€™t really want (e.g. unattractive or insecure women), because thatâ€™s the best he can do.

This is why, if you want to get your ex back, or to find yourself another high quality woman, itâ€™s absolutely essential that you improve your ability to make women feel attracted to you.

The more you think, act and behave in attractive ways (e.g. being confident. Charming, charismatic, using humor to make women feel good to be around you), the easier it becomes for you to attract any woman you want, including re-attracting your ex.

On the other hand, if you keep telling yourself that your ex girlfriend has made you become insecure around women, you may end up alone and bitter and regret it for the rest of your life.

Another mistake to avoid making isâ€¦!

4. Not realizing that many guys are now using break ups with women to transform themselves into more attractive men and then getting their ex woman back just for fun

Know that from now on, you are going to be in control of how you feel about yourself and youâ€™re not going to let anyone else affect that.

What matters is how you feel about yourself.

The more you believe in yourself and in your value as a man, the more your attitude, actions, behavior and conversation style will portray that.

You will then automatically seem more attractive to women, because you are displaying the traits that women instinctively feel attracted to in men,

You can then have your choice of woman, or get your ex back if you want to.

Thousands of other guys have done it and you can do it too.

You just have to believe that you can and then start taking the necessary steps towards getting her back.

Should I Thank My Ex For Breaking Up With Me?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

It depends on how bad the break up was, if the woman still feels attracted to you and what the thank you is for.

For example: Here are 5 possible reactions from a woman when her ex man thanks her for the relationship, for teaching him valuable lessons or for being a great girlfriend to him:

1. She doesn't care because she's no longer attracted to him or in love with him

Although you might be 100% sincere when thanking your ex girlfriend for breaking up with you, if she no longer has feelings for you, she's likely not going to care that much about it.

Instead, she's probably just going to roll her eyes and think something along the lines of, â€œBlah! Blah! Blah! Why is he wasting my time?â€

It might not sound like a very nice response to you, but think about it this wayâ€

If you've ever been contacted by a woman that you were no longer attracted to, you will know how little you felt when reading her words.

[image: She doesn't care because she's no longer attracted to him or in love with him]

[image: She doesn't care because she's no longer attracted to him or in love with him]

Rather than make you feel drawn to her and think things like, â€œShe seems so nice. Maybe I should give her another chance with me,â€ you more likely thought something like, â€œWhy won't she just leave me alone? What do I have to do to get through to her? I don't want to be mean to her, but right now I feel that's the only way to make it clear that I'm not interested in her anymore in the way that she wants.â€

Well, that's how your ex might feel when you thank her.

So, what should you do instead?

If you don't want her back, you should just accept the break up, move on and find yourself another woman to be with who loves and appreciates you in the way that you deserve.

On the other hand, if you want her back, a better approach than thanking her for breaking up with you, is to interact with her and make her feel attracted to you again.

In other words, forget about being overly emotional with her in the hope that she will be impressed with you for being so nice to her and give you another chance and focus on doing the types of things that will spark her feelings for you.

For example: Use interactions with her toâ€

- Make her laugh and smile and feel good to be talking to you again.
- Flirt with her to create sexual tension between you and her so she feels motivated to hug, kiss and have sex with you again.
- Show her that you've leveled up as a man and no longer turn her off in the ways you did before.
- Give her an upgraded attraction experience and make her feel drawn to you in new and exiting ways.

- The more you reactivate her sexual and romantic feelings for you, the more interested she will become in giving you another chance.

On the other hand, if all you do is thank her for breaking up with you and then hope this will make her want you back, you may end up being very disappointed when she says something like, "Cool, thanks," and then walks away and finds herself a new man.

Another possible reaction a woman might have when her ex thanks her is!

2. She does care and appreciates the fact that her ex has had the courage to thank her for being such a great girlfriend to him

Quite often a woman will break up with a guy, because she feels as though he's taking her for granted.

In other words, his actions, behavior and attitude makes her feel unloved, unappreciated and undervalued.

So, if after the break up he takes the time to thank her for everything she did for him in the relationship, it will likely go a long way in making her forgive him.

Of course, just because your ex might appreciate your gesture, it doesn't mean she's going to just open up and want to be your girl again.

For that to happen, you're going to have to reactivate her feelings of respect and attraction for you first.

You're also going to have to show her via your attitude, actions, behavior and conversation style that you're a new man now and that if she gives you another chance, you're not going to go back to making the same old attraction mistakes as before.

Some examples of how to do that are:

Maintaining your confidence when talking to her, regardless of what she says or does to make you feel uncertain of yourself (e.g. she's cold or sarcastic towards you and says things like, "Well you've thanked me now, so what do you want from me, a pat on the back?").

Not trying to get her back into a relationship right away and instead, just focusing on building up sexual tension between you by flirting with her.

Making her laugh, smile and feel good when she interacts with you so that she wants to be around you more and more.

Showing her that you've changed and matured since you and her broke up and are now a new and improved man.

Not sucking up to her by being extra nice or accommodating (because you're afraid that if you don't do whatever she wants she won't forgive you and give you another chance) and start being more emotionally masculine and ballsy around her (e.g. be a good guy, but don't be a pushover, stand up to her when she's out of line, laugh at her in a loving way when she's behaving like a brat).

Making her feel like a sexy desirable woman in your presence, rather than being neutral or friendly towards her.

The more you reactivate her feelings for you during interactions, the more she will begin to allow herself to relax, smile, laugh and feel good to be around you again.

She then becomes open to forgiving your mistakes and giving you another chance.

Another possible reaction a woman might have when her ex thanks her isâ□|

3. She rolls her eyes when he says it or sends it to her via text, social media message or email

If one of the reasons why a woman broke up with her guy was because she perceived him as being too emotionally weak and wimpy, then itâ□□s very likely that him thanking her for breaking up with him is going to be perceived as another sign of his wussyness.

Then, rather than her taking it as a compliment, or as a sign that heâ□□s being a gentleman about the break up (which may be what heâ□□s aiming for), she will instead roll her eyes at him or at the text/message he sent her.

Of course, he might feel hurt by her reaction (especially if she does it to his face) and he may wonder why sheâ□□s being such a bitch to him and not being appreciative of his gracious gesture to her, but hereâ□□s the thingâ□|

If a woman has disconnected from her feelings of love, respect and attraction for a guy because he was emotionally weak in the relationship and he then thanks her for the break up, sheâ□□s not going to care that heâ□□s being so civil and courteous to her.

Instead, she will likely be thinking something along the lines of, â□□Really? Even now that Iâ□□ve dumped him, heâ□□s still being such a wimp! Instead of manning up and getting a backbone, heâ□□s thanking me for breaking up with him. What real man does that? This just makes it so much easier for me to move on and find someone else. I donâ□□t deny that heâ□□s a nice guy, but heâ□□s really not man enough for me.â□□

So, if you thank your ex for breaking up with you, make sure sheâ□□s not going to take that as a sign of emotional weakness.

If she does, she will inevitably feel that youâ□□re not man enough for her and will then just keep rejecting you.

On the other hand, if you remain in control of your emotions and then confidently focus on using interactions with her (e.g. over the phone and in person) to spark her sexual and romantic feelings for you again, she will automatically begin to see you with different eyes.

Then, she will also appreciate the fact that youâ□□re a gentleman, as long as youâ□□re being an emotionally strong, dominant one.

She will then want to be around you again, because youâ□□re now offering a dream scenario for a woman that is so rare (i.e. being confident and emotionally strong, while also being a good man to her).

So, when your ex senses that youâ□□ve suddenly developed that ability and are not being needy or wimpy, she will naturally feel drawn to you, even if she initially thought that what you and her had together was over for good.

It then becomes easy for you to get her back, because she wants it too.

Another possible reaction a woman might have when her ex thanks her isâ□|

4. She asks why he is thanking her and his reasons seem selfish to her

[image: She asks why he is thanking her and his reasons seem selfish to her]

[image: She asks why he is thanking her and his reasons seem selfish to her]

For example: A guy might respond to her question by saying things like, â€œIâ€™m thanking you because I feel that youâ€™re an amazing woman and even though you no longer want to be my girl, Iâ€™m such a better man because of you. You helped me become the best version of myself and Iâ€™m truly grateful to you for that and thatâ€™s why Iâ€™m thanking you. I just want you to know that I appreciate everything you did for me in the relationship and I will never forget you.â€

Yet, rather than make a woman feel good about herself for playing such an important part in his life, she may actually feel annoyed that heâ€™s gained so much from her, while sheâ€™s left worse off by the relationship.

She might even say to him something along the lines of, â€œWell, Iâ€™m glad that you feel so good about the relationship. It seems that you got all the benefits, while I got all the crap. It makes me feel as though I was the only one putting in any effort and you were just taking and taking. I see now how selfish you really are. Even now that weâ€™re broken up, all you can think about is yourself and how great everything turned out for you. Well, what about me? What did I get out of this relationship? Oh yeah, I remember nowâ€¦ a self-serving, self-absorbed boyfriend and a broken heart. Well thanks for your gratitude, but you can keep it. You selfish jerk!â€

Of course, thatâ€™s likely not what the guy was intending at all.

He was probably trying to be a good guy and show her how valuable she was to him.

Yet, when a woman has lost touch with her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him and possibly feels that he wasnâ€™t a good man to her, hearing him praise her and say how great things were because of her, usually only highlights to her that she came off worst from the relationship.

She then feels even more determined to move on and find a man who will make her feel as though she is gaining from the relationship with him, not just him gaining from her.

So, if your motivation to thank your ex for breaking up with you is to impress her so that she will want to give you another chance, be aware that itâ€™s possible that she will take it the wrong way.

If that happens, it becomes more difficult for you to get her back, because sheâ€™s closed off towards you.

On the other hand, a better approach is to just use interactions with her to make her smile and laugh and feel good to be around you.

Then, she will feel as though sheâ€™s losing by letting go of you.

That then makes her drop her guard around you and open up to seeing if you and her can work things out so that you can get back together again.

Another possible reaction a woman might have when her ex thanks her isâ€™!

5. She assumes that heâ€™s trying to manipulate her

In most cases, when a guy thanks a woman for breaking up with him, rather than think something like, â€œThatâ€™s so sweet of him. I feel so flattered that he values me so much, even though weâ€™ve broken up,â€ a woman will usually take it as a sign that heâ€™s sucking up to her as a way of getting her to give him another chance.

She will then likely end up thinking things like, “I can’t believe he’s trying to manipulate me! Does he honestly think that thanking me is going to make me feel sorry for him and change my mind about the break up? That’s so immature!”

She might then pull away from him even more.

Here’s the thing!

Even though the guy might be a good guy and probably has good intentions when he thanks her for breaking up with him (e.g. he wants to let her know that he doesn’t have any hard feelings, he wants to show her how much he valued her), a woman usually won’t see it that way. Why?

A woman doesn’t want to be made to feel guilty over her decisions.

If she wants to break up with a guy, she wants to be able to do it without him trying to rub it in her face that he’s so wonderful and loving (i.e. by thanking her), while she’s a bitch for walking away from him.

So, don’t bother thanking your ex woman for breaking up with you if it’s just a ploy to make her feel pity for you as your way of getting her back, because it will most-likely backfire.

Instead, just focus on reawakening her feelings of respect and attraction, so she naturally feels drawn to you and becomes open to giving you another chance.

Avoid These Mistakes if You Decide to Thank Her For Breaking Up With You

If you really feel strongly about thanking your ex, then go ahead and do it.

Just make sure that you do it right.

For example: 3 mistakes to avoid making are!

1. Coming across as cheesy when thanking her

There’s a manly, emotionally strong way to thank an ex woman for breaking up with you and then there’s a cheesy, soppy way of doing it.

If you want to spark some of her feelings of respect and attraction for you again, you need to go for the manly, emotionally strong approach.

On the other hand, if you want to turn her off even more and convince her that she made the right decision by breaking up with you, go ahead and be cheesy (e.g. being too sweet, nice and emotional and making it sound like she was perfect in every way).

Here’s the thing!

If you want to reactivate your ex’s feelings for you again and get her back, you need to show her that you’ve leveled up as a man and are now the kind of guy she always wanted you to be (e.g. confident, emotionally strong, ballsy, sure of yourself and your value to her).

That means maintaining your confidence with her regardless of what she says or does, or how she responds when you thank her.

Then use humor to break down her defenses, reactivate her feelings for you and make her feel as though she will end up regretting it if she doesn't give you another chance.

The next mistake to avoid making is!

2. Leaving her with a feeling of resentment based on how you thank her

For example: A guy might say things like, I just wanted to say how much I appreciate the time we had together. You're a wonderful woman and I'm a better man because I had you in my life. You were always so kind and patient with me, even when I didn't pull my weight around the house and forgot to take out the garbage, or pick up after myself, or invited my friends over without telling you and then leaving you to clean up after they left. Not only that, you've also taught me so much. I can now even cook a few nice meals because of you. You also encouraged me to complete my studies which helped me get a promotion at work. So, for all that and so much more, I want to thank you and say that I only wish you the best from now on. I hope you will always be happy.

Yet, even though he's being sincere, she may not see it that way.

Instead, she might actually resent him for getting the better end of the deal.

So while he's going on about everything he gained, she will likely be thinking things like, What did I get out of this relationship? Oh yeah! I remember now a lot of cooking, cleaning and a boyfriend who never contributed to my well being. Now that I see how much I gave and what I got in return, it makes me feel even angrier than I was before! I feel used!

She might then respond in a bitchy way and tell him to get lost and leave her alone.

The guy will then likely feel confused and hurt by her response to his genuine compliment to her.

Yet, here's the thing!

No matter how much you value your ex and what she did for you, she's likely not going to appreciate it when you point it out to her if she feels hard done by you.

The next mistake to avoid making is!

3. Thanking her because you don't know how else to show her that you're fine without her

Sometimes, a guy might decide to thank his ex as a way of showing her that he's not sitting around feeling sad and lost without her.

He might then say things like, Thank you for breaking up with me. I'm actually rediscovering what fun it is to be single again. I'm finally getting to do a lot of things I had put off because of our relationship. It's great!

Yet, here's the thing!

Although being genuinely happy in your life without your ex can impress her (because women love the idea of being with a man who wants her, but doesn't need her to be happy and content), making it sound like you're grateful to her for breaking up with you because your life is so much better without her, isn't a good idea.

Why?

Rather than be impressed by your newfound emotional independence, your ex will likely assume you're patronizing her for breaking up with you.

She will then almost certainly perceive you as being arrogant and full of yourself and she may then decide to cut you out of her life completely (e.g. by blocking your number on her phone, unfriending you on social media, refusing to see you in person).

You will then struggle to interact with her (because she's avoiding you) and then getting her back becomes more difficult for you.

So, if you want your ex to see that even though you want her back, you don't need her back in order for you to feel good about yourself, there are better ways of letting her know, other than thanking her for breaking up with you (e.g. by posting photos of yourself on social media having fun with other people, letting mutual friends talk about you and what you're doing through casual conversation with her).

When she notices that you really are happy in your life without her, she won't be able stop thinking about you in a more positive way, because you're now behaving like the kind of man she can actually look up to and respect.

All of a sudden, she feels drawn to you in a way that feels good to her and she then naturally and easily becomes open to the idea of getting back together again.

How to Play Hard to Get With an Ex After Being Clingy

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

1. Attract her and make her really want you back, then tell her that you think it's best to not speak for a couple of weeks

If your main reason for wanting to play hard to get with an ex after being clingy is to get her back, then your interactions with her from now on need to be about you re-sparking some of her feelings of respect, attraction and love for you instead.

For example: Some of the ways you can do that are by:

- Using humor to ease the tension and awkwardness between you and her and make her feel good to be interacting with you again, rather than feeling tense and like she wants nothing to do with you anymore.
- Making sure that you believe in yourself and in your value to her, rather than beating yourself up about being clingy and feeling as though you don't deserve her back as a result, which she will pick up on and feel turned off about.
- Being aware that she's going to test you to see if you're still the same clingy guy you were before (e.g. by being cold and aloof towards you, pretending that she doesn't want to give you another chance), so make sure that you maintain your confidence with her, rather than becoming upset or giving up on getting her back.
- Being bold enough to flirt with her and create some sexual tension between you, rather acting like just a friend, or worse, like you're not interested in her in a sexual and romantic way anymore.
- Showing her via your actions, behavior and conversation style that you really are different now (i.e. you're more emotionally independent).

Then, once you've reawakened her sexual and romantic feelings for you again and she starts showing signs of wanting to get back together again (e.g. she talks about you and her as though you're a couple again, she wants to see you more often, she hints at the idea of getting back together), pull away a little bit.

For example: You can say something along the lines of, "I think it's better if we don't talk or see each other for a couple of weeks so we can figure out how we both feel. I don't want to rush into something and then end up making the same mistakes as before."

She will likely be a bit confused when you say that to her (i.e. because you've made her feel attracted and she wants you back), but she will also feel a surge of respect and attraction for you for not trying to rush her back into a relationship with you like your old clingy self would have done.

Then, if she reaches out during those two weeks, show some interest, but make sure that you're relaxed and calm about it, rather than being overly excited that she's reaching out to you first.

From there, arrange a meet up and get her back for real this time.

Another way you can play hard to get with an ex after being clingy is to:

2. Playfully mess with her when you talk with her, rather than being neutral or too nice

A lot of guys really beat themselves up about being clingy in a relationship with a woman.

So, after they get broken up with, interacting with their ex becomes difficult for them, because they don't know how to act and behave around her so that she doesn't perceive them as still being clingy.

As a result, a guy like that will be neutral, or nice and polite during interactions with his ex, to avoid giving her the impression that he misses her.

Yet, behaving in that way doesn't help a guy get his ex back and it usually doesn't fool her into believing he's no longer clingy either.

Instead, it likely makes her think that he's being neutral or nice and polite as a way of hiding his clinginess from her.

So, a better way to interact with your ex to make her see you differently, is by being a bit cheeky and messing with her head.

For example: If she asks if you miss her, playfully say something like, â€œOf course I miss you! You know I can't cook a thing. I haven't had a decent meal in weeks. What's not to miss?â€ or, â€œI suppose I did miss you for about 5 minutes and then I realized I get control of the TV remote again and the feeling went away after that.â€

By interacting with her in that way she's most likely going to smile and laugh.

What does smiling and laughing do?

It creates some feelings.

She respects that you have the confidence and the social skills to make her laugh and smile in a moment like that.

She also begins to see you in a different light.

Rather than continue seeing you as her clingy ex, she starts to see another more attractive and emotionally independent side to you.

She then naturally becomes more open to giving you another chance.

Then, getting back together again becomes easy.

Another way you can play hard to get with an ex after being clingy is to

3. Be a challenge to impress

Being more of a challenge means you're not always at your ex's disposal like you used to be before.

For example: If in the past you were always available to her every beck and call and dropped everything you were doing, no matter how important to run around for her, make sure that you now put yourself first from time to time.

So, if your ex asks you for a favor, rather than saying â€œYes,â€ to her every time, you can occasionally say something along the lines of, â€œSorry, but I'm busy and won't be able to help you out this time.â€

Alternatively, if she asks you if you're seeing someone else, rather than quickly deny it like you would have in the past, you can just shrug and brush her off by saying, â€œMaybe,â€ and then changing the subject.

That will almost certainly leave her feeling curious and possibly even a bit wound up that youâ€™re not coming clean to her.

Essentially, by being more of a challenge to your ex, rather than always saying what she expects and doing whatever she wants, she starts to feel attracted to you again in a way that feels good to her.

As a result her defenses come down and she becomes open to interacting with you more and more to see where things go from there.

By the wayâ€¦!

Donâ€™t go too far with being a challenge.

You have to still show some interest because some women can become insecure and assume that youâ€™re not interested anymore.

The way to think about it is that being a challenge is very attractive to women, being way too challenging is exhausting and not being a challenge is boring.

Another way you can play hard to get with an ex after being clingy is toâ€¦!

4. Do fun things with other people and really enjoy it

One thing that definitely says, â€œIâ€™m no longer that clingy guy you used to know,â€ to a woman is when he gets on with his life after their break up.

So, instead of sitting at home alone and feeling sad and dejected, you need to let her see that you donâ€™t need her to be happy.

Donâ€™t tell her that you donâ€™t need her to be happy though.

Let her see it and sense it.

Show her by living your life and having fun with other people, without her needing to be there too.

Let her see that you are happy, confident and moving forward in life now and you donâ€™t need her in order to feel content and emotionally fulfilled.

However, make sure that you also let her see that you do still love her.

By becoming emotionally independent, you are showing your ex that youâ€™re no longer the clingy guy she broke up with.

When she notices that, she wonâ€™t be able to stop herself from feeling respect for you again, because you are now behaving like the kind of man she always wanted you to be.

When she respects you, she also starts to feel attracted to you again and then opening back up to the idea of being with you starts to feel good to her.

From there you can seduce her into kissing you, having sex with you and getting into a relationship with you again.

5 Ways Not to Behave With an Ex Woman After Being Clingy

(if You Want Her Back)

[image: 5 Ways Not to Behave With an Ex Woman After Being Clingy]

[image: 5 Ways Not to Behave With an Ex Woman After Being Clingy]

Being clingy is a mistake that many guys make with a woman.

So, stop beating yourself up about it.

It happened, but it's over now.

You've learned from your mistake and you've leveled up as a man.

The important thing from now on is to think, act and behave like the new and improved man that you are and part of that is to make sure you don't make any of the following mistakes:

1. Cutting off contact for a month to hopefully show her that you don't care anymore

Ignoring an ex woman for a month or more after a break up can make her miss her ex and want him back, if she secretly still has feelings for him.

In a case like that, she will likely think something along the lines of, "Why isn't he contacting me? Why doesn't he care about me anymore? I miss him. Maybe I should send him a text/call him on the phone to say hi and see what happens from there."

However, even then, a woman will usually avoid making the first move with an ex guy, because she doesn't want to be rejected by him if he really has lost interest in her.

On the other hand, that tactic almost never works when a woman has lost touch with her feelings of respect, attraction and love for a guy and has broken up with him because he turned her off by being clingy.

Instead, she will almost certainly use the time apart to get over him and move on, usually by hooking up with and dating other men.

Additionally, if she suspects that he's just playing mind games with her to try and get her back, she will feel even more turned off by him and then she will probably double her efforts to find a replacement guy.

This is why, if you want to prove to your ex that you're no longer clingy and get her back, don't play mind games with her that can backfire on you.

A better way to approach the situation is by giving her a week of space to allow for things to calm down between you and make her miss you a little bit.

Then call her on the phone and make her laugh, smile and feel good to be hearing from you again and arrange to see her in person.

Then, when you meet up with her, continue showing her via your attitude, conversation style, actions, behavior and the way you respond to her that you're no longer the clingy guy she broke up with.

When she experiences the new, more emotionally independent version of you, she will naturally drop her guard around you.

She then becomes open to giving you another chance, because she can see that you really are different now.

However, if you stick to playing mind games with her, you may end up losing her for real.

Another mistake to avoid making isâ□|

2. Playing too hard to get when responding to her texts

A guy might decide to take a long time in responding to any texts that his ex might send him as a way of showing her that heâ□□s changed.

Yet, rather than make a woman see that as a sign that heâ□□s no longer clingy and needy, she will usually just assume that heâ□□s still the same as before and is just â□□playing it coolâ□□ to trick her into giving him another chance.

So, rather than think, “Why isnâ□□t he texting me back? Could it be possible that heâ□□s already found another girl? Heâ□□s always taking so long to reply to me and sometimes he doesnâ□□t even respond. Maybe heâ□□s really over me!” she will be thinking something like, “I bet heâ□□s sitting at home looking at the phone all the time and when he hears from me, he acts like heâ□□s busy and ignores me or takes forever to respond. He probably thinks I wonâ□□t realize that heâ□□s playing hard to get with me as a way of convincing me that heâ□□s changed his clingy ways. Even now, he doesnâ□□t know how to act like a real man. Instead, he thinks he can play mind games with me and I will fall for it and get back with him. Thatâ□□s just so sad.”

She may then just stop texting him and even block his number on her phone, making it really difficult for him to interact with her and reactivate her feelings for him.

So, if you truly want to convince your ex that youâ□□re no longer a clingy guy, donâ□□t act like an immature boy.

A real man wouldnâ□□t play games with a woman he wants.

Instead, he would take action to reactivate her sexual and romantic feelings for him and get her back.

That doesnâ□□t mean you should respond to her texts right away and then end up giving her the impression that youâ□□re sitting by the phone waiting for her to contact you.

Instead, just take your time to reply when you are genuinely busy and if you are available, reply quickly or fairly soon after she texts.

Sometimes itâ□□s okay to reply instantly, but only do that about 20% of the time.

For the remaining 80%, just mix things up between replying quickly, soon after, an hour or two later or even later in the day or the next day if youâ□□re unavailable (e.g. she texts you late at night when youâ□□re about to fall asleep, so rather than respond right away, wait until the next day).

The more you behave like an emotionally mature man, the more likely it is that she will begin to feel respect for you again.

When she respects you, she will also start to feel attracted to you and then getting her back becomes easy for you because sheâ□□s open to it.

Another mistake to avoid making isâ□|

3. Lying about dating other women or having women interested in you

Sometimes a guy will try to make his ex regret breaking up with him by showing her that heâ□□s fine without her and already moving on.

Heâ□□s hoping that she will see how valuable he is and come running back to him.

Yet, lying about dating other women is something that can backfire pretty badly.

Hereâ□□s the thingâ□|

If your ex catches you out in a lie (which is pretty easy for most women to do), she will likely think youâ□□re a loser or emotionally immature for trying to trick her and she will then lose even more respect and attraction for you.

On the other hand, if she does feel jealous and decides to give you another chance with her, if she then discovers that nothing about you has really changed and youâ□□re still the same clingy, needy guy she broke up with, she will almost certainly break up with you again.

Except this time, she may force herself to move on quickly by hooking up sexually with another man to get back at you.

So, rather than trying to trick your ex woman back into your life and stand the chance of losing her again for real this time, just use an approach that is going to work.

What is that approach?

Interact with her and make her feel sexually and romantically attracted to the new and improved version of you.

When she experiences you in a new way (i.e. you now respond and react differently to the way you did before), she will naturally start to feel open to you again.

You can then guide her back into a new relationship with you.

Another mistake to avoid making isâ□|

4. Rubbing your newfound confidence and happiness in her face, rather than being cool and easygoing about it

Bouncing back from a break up and coming back better than you were before is something you should be proud of.

So, donâ□□t be afraid to show your new confident, happy self to your ex.

In actual fact, itâ□□s something that will automatically make you more attractive and desirable to her, because women are instinctively attracted to confident, emotionally strong men who are able to grow and become better versions of themselves after a challenging situation (e.g. a break up).

However, if you try to rub it in her face (e.g. brag to her about how great your life is now), you could risk turning her off instead of re-attracting her.

Rather than take your newfound confidence and happiness as a sign that youâ□□ve become an emotionally independent man who can now be happy with or without her, she will likely just assume that youâ□□re putting on an act to impress her and she will feel turned off by your childishness.

She may then just cut you off and focus on moving on without you.

This is why you need to make sure that when you interact with your ex, you let her experience your newfound confidence through your attitude, conversation style and the way you act and respond to her.

Be relaxed and easygoing and let your actions speak for themselves.

When she senses that youâ□□re genuinely happy without her and moving on without feeling the need to brag, she will feel attracted to you again.

The next mistake to avoid isâ€¦!

5. Hoping that if you act the opposite of clingy (i.e. completely disinterested), it will make her chase you and want you back

Most women arenâ€¦t stupid.

So, when a guy goes from being clingy and needy to not interested in her in a matter of days or weeks, she will almost certainly assume that heâ€¦s putting on a act to trick her into giving him another chance.

As a result, she will lose even more respect for him for resorting to games, rather than actually putting in the effort to level up and become a better man.

At the same time, because she has disconnected from her feelings for him, rather than care that heâ€¦s no longer interested in her, she will usually just shrug it off and focus on moving on herself (usually with a new man).

Hereâ€¦s the thingâ€¦!

If you want your girl back, donâ€¦t play games with her.

Instead, quickly change your approach to attraction with her so that you can reactivate her feelings for you.

Then, when sheâ€¦s feeling drawn to you again in a way that feels good to her, hug, kiss, have sex and get back together again.

My Ex Slept With Someone Else and Now Won't Speak to Me

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

4 common reasons why a woman will do that and how to get her back:

1. She feels slutty and knows that if she talks to you, she will feel guilty

Some women have no problem moving on after a break up by hooking up sexually with different guys.

In fact, those women actually enjoy the feeling of hooking up with different guys and it makes them feel more confident and attractive.

However, there are also women who don't feel comfortable sleeping with a guy, unless they are in a relationship with him.

Your ex might be one of these women.

So, if she actually did sleep with someone else when it's not really in her nature to do so, she might be feeling really bad about it.

She may even be putting herself down and thinking things like, "I can't believe I behaved like such a slut! What will people think of me? What will my ex say when he finds out? He will probably accuse me of being shallow and cheap and I wouldn't blame him. After what we had together, I don't know how I could do this. I won't be able to look him in the eyes again."

Additionally, she may feel worried that if she interacts with you, her feelings of guilt might push her into giving you another chance, even though she doesn't necessarily feel like she wants to, just to clear her conscience.

So, to avoid that from happening, she could have simply decided to stop speaking to you.

Here's the thing though!

If you want her back, you need to make sure that you go about it in the right way.

To begin with, it's very important that you don't play on her feelings of guilt and make her give you another chance based on that.

Sure, you might get her back, but it's almost 100% guaranteed that the relationship won't last, because guilt is not the basis of a strong, long-lasting relationship.

What is?

Feelings of mutual love, respect, and sexual attraction.

This is why, if you want to get her back, you need to make sure that your approach builds those types of feelings inside of her, rather than hoping her guilt will be enough.

Then, not only will she respect you for not rubbing her sleeping with someone else in her face and then using it to manipulate her, she will also begin to feel attracted to you as well.

You can then build on those feelings during interactions and get her back.

By the way!

If she's currently refusing to speak to you over the phone, to get past that hurdle, do this:

- Try to call her at a time when you know that sheâll be available to take your call.
- If she doesnât answer, send her a text like, âHey (insert her name here), I was just trying to call you because thereâs something quick that I want to ask you on the phone. I guess youâre busy at the moment, so I might try to call you again some other time.â
- She will probably reply with something like, âWhatâs going on?â or, âWhat do you want to ask me?â
- Whatever her response is, just call her back.
- If she still doesnât answer, simply try to call her again in a few days time. She will almost certainly be curious about what you want to ask her so chances are high that she will answer.

Then, when you get her on the phone, youâve got to make her feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you (e.g. by making her laugh and smile and feel good to actually be talking to you again).

Then, get her to agree to meet up with you in person for a quick chat.

When you meet up with her in person, you need to build on those initial feelings of attraction and respect and get her to drop her guard and open back up to talking to you and interacting with you.

It then becomes easy for you to get her back, because youâve built up her real feelings for you (i.e. respect, attraction, love), rather than manipulating her through feelings of guilt to give you one more chance.

Another possible reason why your ex has stopped speaking to you after sleeping with someone else isâ!

2. At the moment, she feels more attracted to him than she does to you

Sometimes, a woman will sleep with someone else after a break up as a way of getting over her ex. However, that can make her realize that the new guy makes her feel attracted in ways that her ex never did.

For example: If her ex was a bit shy and introverted and as a result, he preferred to stay home most of the time just hanging out, listening to music, reading or watching TV and playing video games, her new man might be more fun loving and enjoy going out and trying new and exciting things.

This is attractive to her because itâs different to what she was used to before.

Alternatively, if her ex had fallen into the habit of treating her more like a friend and in contrast, her new guy makes her feel sexy and desirable, sheâs naturally going to feel more drawn to him.

As a result, she wonât feel like she should be keeping the door open for her ex to get her back.

Instead, she will choose to explore her feelings for her new guy first and see what that leads to.

If he manages to continue building on her feelings of respect, attraction and love for him over time, she will quickly forget about her ex and move on with him.

On the other hand, if she realizes that the spark she initially felt with her new man wasnât long-lasting, she may begin talking to her ex again.

Yet, hereâs the thingâ!

Even if your ex is currently feeling more attracted to the guy she slept with and that is why she isnât speaking to you anymore, it doesnât mean heâs perfect for her.

It also doesn't mean you can't get her back.

How can you do that?

A good way to get her to start speaking to you again, so you can begin reactivating her feelings for you, is by getting her to agree to just be friends from now on.

For example: You might get her on a call with you (use the method mentioned in the first point) and say something along the lines of, "Hey, I just want you to know that I accept that we're broken up and I'm not going to pressure you into doing anything you don't want. However, I believe we're both mature enough to at least be able to be friends from now on. So, let's just agree to say hi as friends once in a while, rather than ignoring each other and being immature about this break up."

In all likelihood, she won't want to come across as being immature and she will agree.

You can then use the friendship to re-spark her feelings for you and get her back.

Important: The aim of being friends with your ex is to allow her not to feel pressured into getting back into a relationship with you.

However, it's not actually about being a nice, neutral friend to her.

Don't make that mistake, because it will only push her more into the arms of her new man, or another man who knows how to spark her sexual and romantic feelings for him.

You have to use the so called "friendship" as a way for you to interact with her and make her feel attracted to you in a sexual and romantic way, not a friendly way.

So, make sure that when you interact with her, you're sparking her feelings for you, so she begins to see you as a better option to her new man.

Be a confident, emotionally masculine man who is doing what he needs to do to get back the woman he loves.

That is a good thing for you and her, so don't feel bad about it.

Just reactivate her feelings and get her back.

She will be happy you did when she's happily back in your arms and having the kind of relationship with you that she always wanted.

Another possible reason why your ex has stopped speaking to you after sleeping with someone else is

3. She used that guy to help herself get over you

Quite often, a guy will hook up with another woman (or women) after a break up to speed up the process of getting over his ex.

In many ways, it's what is expected of him (e.g. his buddies will pressure him to get out there and move on).

However, in the modern world, many women do it too.

So, rather than sit at home alone feeling sad and remembering all the good times she had with her ex, a woman's friends will usually encourage her to get out and start meeting new guys right away.

As a result, a woman is more likely to hook up with another guy after a break up than to remain faithful to her ex in case they get back together again.

Of course, sleeping with someone else doesn't necessarily mean she loves him or feels the same way she did for her ex when things were good.

However, having sex with him can help her get over her ex and move on.

When that happens, she will likely cut off contact with her ex to prevent herself from falling for him again.

The question you need to answer for yourself is this: Are you going to let her walk away without doing anything to get her back, or are you going to be man enough to go after her (even though she currently seems to not be interested in you anymore) and make her yours again?

If you intend to get her back, then don't sit around feeling sorry for yourself and saying, "My ex slept with someone else and now won't speak to me," and do something.

What should you do?

Re-attract her on a call, or better yet in person, so that the idea of moving on and forgetting about you makes her feel anxious and like she's making a big mistake.

She will then not only start speaking to you again, she will likely also apologize to you for sleeping with someone else and beg you to give her one more chance.

It's then up to you to take her back if you want to.

Another possible reason why your ex has stopped speaking to you after sleeping with someone else is

4. She wants to avoid talking to you because she still misses you

In most cases, a woman will do whatever she can to get over her ex and move on and in some cases, that may include sleeping with another guy.

However, just because that happens, it doesn't mean her feelings for her ex suddenly switch off.

In fact, she might realize that hooking up with other guys doesn't take away the fact that she misses her ex and what they had together.

As a result, she might then decide to stop talking to him to see if that will help her get over him.

So, while in his mind he's likely thinking that the reason she stopped speaking to him was because she slept with someone else, the reality might be she did it because she could no longer bear the pain of interacting with him knowing that what they had is over.

This is why, if you want her back, you can't give up just because your ex suddenly stopped talking to you.

If you do, she will lose even more respect and attraction for you for not believing in yourself and in your value to her and she will then force herself to get over you for real.

On the other hand, if you are man enough to get her back, despite the obstacles (i.e. she's not speaking to you), she will automatically feel a renewed sense of respect and attraction for you.

When that happens, her defenses come down and she opens back up to texting you, messaging on social media, talking on the phone and even meeting up in person.

You can then easily reactivate her feelings for you and make her your girl once again.

5 Mistakes You Should Avoid Making Now if You Want Her Back

[image: 5 Mistakes You Should Avoid Making Now if You Want Her Back]

When you use the right approach, you can easily get your ex to speak to you again and even want to be your girl again.

So, if that's what you're hoping for, make sure you don't make any of the following mistakes and end up decreasing your chances of getting her back.

1. Getting angry at her for being so selfish all of a sudden

It's only natural that a guy might feel a bit annoyed that his ex has stopped speaking to him after sleeping with someone else.

In his mind he may even be thinking things like, "I should be the one ignoring her, not the other way around. I don't get why she won't speak to me now. After all, she's the one who slept with another guy and if I'm willing to still interact with her, she should be grateful, not treat me like dirt! I can't believe how selfish she's being."

Yet here's the thing!

Getting angry with your ex and accusing her of being selfish for not wanting to speak to you anymore is the worst thing you can do if you want her back.

Why?

Firstly, it makes her feel defensive and annoyed and she then begins thinking things like, "How dare he call me selfish? He doesn't own me and we're not even a couple anymore, so I can do whatever I want. He doesn't have a say in it anymore and I don't owe him anything just because we were a couple once. It's over now and I am free to make whatever decisions please me without needing to take his feelings into consideration."

She then closes herself off even more and even if she was open to speaking to you again, she now becomes stubborn about it and refuses to give you the satisfaction.

This makes it so much more difficult for you to then reactivate her feelings for you and get her back. Additionally, reacting in that way only highlights to her that you're too emotionally immature for her.

She then feels even more motivated to move on, either with the guy she slept with, or with someone else.

So, if you don't want to push your ex further away, make sure you don't lose your temper with her and accuse her of being selfish for not speaking to you.

Remember: A woman doesn't like to be emotionally blackmailed into a relationship.

A much better approach is to get her on a phone call with you and then to make her laugh and smile and feel so good to be talking to you again, that she can't resist staying in touch with you.

You can then easily reactivate her sexual and romantic feelings for you and get her back.

Another mistake to avoid making if you want to get her back isâ€¦|

2. Trying to get her back via pity

Sometimes a guy might sulk, whine and generally try to make his ex feel sorry for him for the pain he is experiencing because she is refusing to speak to him.

For example: He might text her a series of long messages saying things like, â€œHow can you do this to me? First you break up with me, then you slept with someone else right after that and now you wonâ€™t speak to me. How can you discard me like I donâ€™t even matter to you? Doesnâ€™t anything we had together even matter to you? Donâ€™t I even deserve to be treated with a little bit of kindness? Donâ€™t you even care that I love you and that I have given up everything up for you? Nothing is more important to me than you. Of course, now I see that the same doesnâ€™t apply for you. Not only donâ€™t you give a damn about how Iâ€™m feeling, by your treatment of me makes me think that you never really cared for me. If you did, you would at least show some compassion towards me now that weâ€™ve broken up. Instead, all I get is a cold shoulder. Why? What did I do to you to deserve this? Why are you being so cruel to me?â€

Yet, rather than make a woman think, â€œDamn, he has a point. I really am being unfair to him. He doesnâ€™t deserve to be treated this way after all the love and care he has given me,â€ she will instead feel annoyed that he is trying to make her feel bad about putting herself and her desires first.

As a result, she will lose even more respect for him and she may then go to extreme measures to cut him out of her life completely (e.g. block his number on her phone, avoid going to places where she knows she might run into him, unfriend him on social media if she hasnâ€™t already done that).

So, if you really want to get your ex woman back, donâ€™t bother trying to make her feel pity for you.

Instead, focus on getting her on a phone call or to a meet up with you, so that you can reawaken her feelings of respect and sexual attraction for you.

When you do that, she will naturally feel drawn to you again.

She will then want to interact with you more to see where things go from there.

Another mistake to avoid making if you want to get her back isâ€¦|

3. Losing confidence in your ability to attract and keep a woman

When a guyâ€™s ex sleeps with someone else and then wonâ€™t speak to him, it can easily ruin his confidence in his attractiveness to his ex and to women in general.

He might then start thinking things like, â€œI must really be a loser if she wonâ€™t even talk to me anymore. Not only did she quickly hook up with another guy, now she doesnâ€™t even want to acknowledge me. Itâ€™s like I donâ€™t exist to her. Sheâ€™s moved on and she wants nothing to do with me. Iâ€™m nothing in her eyes. Maybe sheâ€™s right though. Maybe Iâ€™m not the kind of guy that makes women love him and stay loyal to him. Maybe I am worthless after all.â€

Allowing your exâ€™s behavior destroy your confidence and make you feel unworthy of your value as a man will also decrease your chances of finding yourself a new woman and moving on, or getting her back.

The fact is, women are not attracted to men who are insecure and consider themselves below them in terms of value.

So, if you interact with another woman and she picks up on your feelings of self-doubt and unworthiness and she will feel turned off at a deep instinctive level.

The same applies to your ex.

She will feel turned off by your lack of belief in yourself and will then be glad that she decided to break up with you when she did.

So, if you want to find yourself another beautiful, high quality woman, or get your ex back, you have to absolutely believe that you are more than good enough.

If you don't believe in yourself and in your value as a man, it will come through in your attitude, conversation style, actions and behavior and it will turn women off.

It will then become more difficult for you to get a new woman, or your ex back.

Another mistake to avoid making if you want to get her back is a|

4. Going into your shell and being alone for months and then years

Sometimes a guy like that might think something along the lines of, “If my ex won't speak to me, there's nothing I can really do about it. I can't exactly force her, so I have to accept that she doesn't want anything to do with me anymore and try to move on, even though I don't want to.”

He might then close himself off and stop going out with friends, doing interesting things or dating other women altogether and ends up living a sad and lonely life for months, that then stretch into years.

Yet, he never quite gets over his ex and at the back of his mind he's always wondering things like, “I wonder how she's doing?” or, “If only I hadn't given up. Could I have gotten her back?”

So, don't let this happen to you.

If you decide to accept that your ex no longer wants to speak to you and move on, make sure that it's because you want to, not because you feel that you have to, based on her behavior towards you.

Remember: Just because your ex is avoiding you right now, it doesn't mean she will continue to feel that way a week from now when you re-attract her and make her feel strong surges of respect and sexual attraction for you again.

So, don't give up if what you really want is to get your ex back and then find yourself wasting years of your life pining over her and wishing you hadn't given up on getting her back.

Get her back now.

You can do it.

Another mistake to avoid making if you want to get her back is a|

5. Missing out on getting her back and being able to break up with her on your own terms

If you don't do what needs to be done to get your ex back right now, you may end up regretting it for the rest of your life.

Here's the thing!

Maybe your ex is not the right woman for you and maybe she is.

However, you'll never know for sure unless you get her back.

Then, you can decide how you feel about her, not from a desperate, "I miss her so much and I can't stand that she is refusing to speak to me," point of view, but rather from a, "I have re-attracted her and we now have a new relationship based on mutual trust, love, respect and attraction and I'm glad that I didn't give up," perspective.

Alternatively, you might decide to get her back and then realize that she's not good enough for you.

You can then dump her on your own terms and move on and find another, high quality woman who is worthy of you.

The point is, it has to be because it's what you want, not because you're settling for what has been thrown at you.

So, stop accepting your ex's silence towards you and take action to get her back now.

You can then decide to keep her or dump her.

The choice is yours.

A Secret Insecurity That Most Women Have...

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

On the surface, it might seem like women are over validated and it might seem like they are so confident and sure of themselves.

All a woman has to do these days is post a selfie on Facebook and her friends and family are going to like that and say that she's beautiful, or she can post in on Instagram and loads of random guys are going to be saying, "Wow, you're so beautiful. Can I take you out sometime? You are my dream girl," and so on.

Yet, if you are one of the men who has slept with attractive women, you know that pretty much all of them have insecurities about their appearance in some way or another.

For example: A girl might be insecure about her forehead being so big in comparison to other women.

Another girl might be insecure about how big her boobs are because one of the guys that she was with or she really liked commented on the fact that he liked smaller boobs.

[image: She thinks she has a plain Jane appearance, but many guys think she is stunningly beautiful]

A woman might feel like she has a bit of a plain Jane type of appearance in comparison to some of the other women that she's seen out there.

She doesn't feel like she has a striking appearance and isn't really anything that special.

Another girl might be insecure about her curly hair and a guy that she really liked may have commented on the fact that he likes straight hair, so she might be worried that if she meets a guy that he won't like her curly hair, yet on the surface she will seem like she's got it all together.

She will seem confident and sure about herself and as though she would never have any insecurities.

Another girl might be insecure about her red hair.

She might have been called a ginger at school and a guy might have broken up with her and told her that he doesn't really like her red hair and so on.

She might have also noticed that her friends who are blonde or brunette get more attention from the type of guys that she is really attracted to.

Another girl might be insecure about her nose and think that it's too big.

She might have a friend who has a smaller nose and always seems to get more attention from guys than she does.

She might have also been teased at school about her big nose.

Another girl might be insecure about her skin.

She might have met a guy that she really liked who preferred women who had much darker skin than her, so she might have an insecurity about not being dark enough or she might have an insecurity about her lips not being big enough or being too big.

Another girl might be insecure about her blonde hair.

She might think that people look at her as a bit of a blonde bimbo.

She might then try to act like she's really sophisticated and intelligent and has got her stuff together, when she really doesn't want to have to act like that.

She just wants to be able to relax and be easy-going, but she ends acting like she's this sophisticated, modern woman who has got it all together.

So, a mistake that a lot of guys make is that they see a woman that they find attractive and then they assume that she must think she is perfect.

She must think she is so attractive and she must be hard to get because he is feeling so much attraction for her.

She must get so much attention from men.

She must know that she is the hottest girl around and he's going to have to try really hard to impress her and hopefully get a chance with her.

Yet, when a guy comes across in that way to a woman, she then starts to think, "Well, yeah, maybe I am perfect. Maybe I am really hard to get. Maybe I do need to make this guy really impress me first before I decide to give him my phone number."

She then starts playing hard to get because the guy has given her too much credit for her attractiveness.

The amount of attraction that he is feeling for her has caused him to think, "She's really special. She's really beautiful. I'm going to have really hard to get somewhere with her."

The thing is though, if the guy were to use a different approach with her where he didn't give her so much credit for her attractiveness and instead saw her as being an equal to him, then she wouldn't have that big head, that big ego where she was thinking, "Yeah, I'm so much better than this guy."

He's actually feeding her ego.

He's making her play hard to get.

Unfortunately, most guys don't ever realize that and instead they fall for the act that women put on.

Women put on a great act.

They go through life and act as though they don't need a man and they essentially give the impression that says, "I'm a modern, independent woman. I'm fearless. I'm strong. I don't need a man. I'm fine on my own."

Then she goes home and cries herself to sleep because she's single and lonely.

She then wakes up the next day and it's the same act once again, "I'm a modern independent woman. I don't need a man. I'm powerful. I'm strong. I'm fearless."

[image: Why can't I get a boyfriend? What is wrong with me?]

Then she goes home and she's single. She's lonely.

She looks at herself in the mirror and she says, "It's my nose, isn't it? I wish I didn't have such a big nose. It's my boobs. They're too big or they're too small. It's my thighs. Guys don't like my thighs or it's my butt. I need to do more squats. I need to have a more rounded butt then guys are going to like me."

Then she goes to sleep, wakes up in the morning and it's the same act again.

She walks through life acting as though she's got it all together.

She doesn't need a man.

She doesn't care and most guys believe her.

They look at her, feel attracted to her, see her not being interested in guys or not even trying to get anywhere with guys and they think, "Wow, she's really special. I'd have to try really hard to get a chance with her."

What those guys don't know is that in the majority of cases, for the majority of women, they are easy to attract and pick up.

This is why you'll see many women getting in and out of relationships until they're in their 30s and they still will not have found the right guy for them.

It's because attracting and picking up women is actually a very simple, basic thing to do in most cases, with most women.

All you've got to do is create a spark of attraction when you start talking to her and then have the courage and the know-how to get to a phone number or get to a kiss and set up a date.

There are some women out there who are picky and are hard to get.

That is true, but the majority of women are easy to attract and pick up.

They put on a great act of pretending that they don't need a man and pretending that they are high value, when in fact most of them are insecure and if you are a man who has slept with attractive women, you know that.

You will know that with your attractive ex girlfriend, or an attractive woman that you were sleeping with for a while, she had insecurities about her appearance.

She didn't think that she was perfect.

She was insecure about certain things about her appearance and she wanted to have features that were like other women.

She compared herself to other women and said, "I wish I had that type of nose. I wish I had that type of butt. I wish I had hips like her. I wish I had hair like her. I wish I had eyes like that," and so on.

She did not feel as though she was the most beautiful woman in the world.

Yet, if you look at the way that women act, they act as though they've got it all together.

They act as though they think they are the most beautiful woman in the world and you would be so lucky to get a chance with them, when in fact most of them are easy to attract and pick up.

You will see that when you see other guys with attractive women and the guy doesn't even look that good and you might think to yourself, "What is she doing with him? She is way more attractive than him."

One of the reasons why that is true is that for the majority of women, you can attract them for reasons other than looks.

It doesn't have to be about your looks.

There are some women out there who will only accept a really good-looking guy or a rich guy.

That's true, but the majority of women including women that you look at as being pretty and beautiful and, in some cases, maybe even perfect, they will accept a guy who isn't as good looking as them.

They will accept a guy who is confident when he talks to her.

He's able to make her laugh.

He's a bit charming and charismatic as he talks to her and as a result, he creates a spark of attraction inside of her and builds on that as he talks to her.

Then, he has the courage and the know-how to get to a phone number, kiss, sex, date and into a relationship.

So, don't give women so much credit for their looks to the point where you think that you're not good enough.

Women don't give themselves that much credit for their looks and you shouldn't either.

You should feel worthy of the types of women that you find attractive.

You should then interact with them, make them feel attracted to you and get to a phone number, kiss, sex, date and into a relationship if you want that as well.

Okay, I hope you've enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn more, I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

When you read or listen to The Flow, you will learn exactly what to say and do to start conversations with women, make them feel attracted to you, build on that attraction very quickly and easily and then get to a phone number, kiss, sex, date and into a relationship if you want that as well.

Don't Give Women So Much Credit For Their Looks

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is to point out another reason why you should not give women so much credit for their looks.

If you give women too much credit for their looks and you think that they are more attractive than you, then it's going to come across even if you try to hide it.

The thing is, what you think and feel on the inside, comes out on the outside via your body language, your behavior, your vibe and your conversation style.

What you'll notice from now on, is that the guys who don't give women so much credit for their looks are the guys who are confident and relaxed around women.

They also tend to be the guys that women try to impress and gain validation from.

They want to hopefully be seen as attractive in that guy's eyes.

On the other hand, the guys who give women loads of credit for their looks, are the guys who end up feeling nervous and unsure of themselves around women.

A guy like that will end up acting like a completely different version of himself based on his insecurity and self-doubt.

He'll then go home later on and think, "Why was I being like that? Why didn't I just relax? Why did I say those sort of things to try to impress her? I ended up looking like an idiot" and so on.

He'll be kicking himself because he gives women too much credit for their attractiveness.

He thinks that women are better than him when he feels attracted to them.

He feels like he's not good enough, when in fact he is.

If he wants some proof of that, all he's got to do is look at the types of guys that he sees with attractive women.

Sometimes, sure, the guy with an attractive woman is going to be good looking, he's going to be rich and so on, but for the most part, most of the guys that you see with attractive women are just normal guys.

They're nothing special.

The thing is, you're probably a better guy than most of those guys who have an attractive woman, if not all of them.

So, stop giving women so much credit.

Stop thinking that you're not good enough.

You are good enough.

96.2% of Single Women Want You to Know This...

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

96.2% of single women want you to know this secret.

Why is it such an exact number? Why is it 96.2%?

I'll tell you that in a second. First, let me tell you what they want you to know.

What 96.2% of single women want single men to know is that sometimes you'll meet a woman, she will like you and she'll feel a spark, but she won't actually have the courage to show you too much interest in the conversation, in case you reject her.

Even though some women seem like they wouldn't really care if a guy rejected them, women are human too.

If you've ever experienced rejection from a woman that you felt attracted to and had an interest in, then you know that it's not a nice feeling to experience.

Women have also experienced rejection.

Many times throughout her single life, a woman will experience situations where she meets a guy, feels attracted to him, is interested in him and then he loses interest in talking to her or in pursuing her for some reason.

In some cases, that happens because the guy didn't feel enough attraction for her.

In other cases, the guy loses interest because she isn't giving him obvious signs of interest and he thinks that there's no spark there, so he stops pursuing.

In some cases, some guys just enjoy making women feel attracted to them and have no intention of pursuing most of the women that they interact with and make feel attracted to them.

By the way, about the 96.2% of women...

Why is it that exact number?

Well, according to a Gallup poll in the USA, 3.8% of women identify themselves as being lesbians.

So, the lesbians out there don't want a single guy to think that if he's talking to her and she's not showing obvious interest, it means that she's scared of rejection.

[image: Single women who love men]

In this video, I'm talking about the approximate 96.2% of women out there who like to have a man's middle leg go inside there and maybe even in there at times, if she's feeling a little bit naughty.

Okay, jokes aside, though...

The serious lesson that you can take away from this video is that many times, when you interact with a woman, she often won't want to show too much obvious interest, in case you lose interest in her as you talk to her.

Alternatively, she might be worried that you're just going to make her feel attracted and make her want you and then you're not going to pursue her.

That's going to leave her feeling like she got rejected by you, that she wasn't good enough for you and so on.

So, when you meet a woman and you're making her feel attracted by being confident, using some ballsy humor or playfully teasing her during conversation, being charismatic and so on, then you have to understand that she is going to feel some sparks of attraction for that.

Depending on the woman, she might show you obvious signs of interest and make it really obvious that she wants something to happen, or she might be afraid to show you too much interest, in case you reject her.

Alternatively, she might be the sort of woman who doesn't want to show too much interest during the first 5 to 10 minutes of a conversation to see what type of confidence level you have.

In most cases, those type of women are going to be the really hot women that only want a confident guy because they know that if they get into a relationship with a guy who doesn't feel worthy of them and isn't truly confident, then he will almost certainly become needy, clingy and potentially controlling in the relationship.

So, if you meet a woman and you're doing what it takes to make a woman feel naturally attracted to you, such as being confident, being charismatic, using certain types of humor and so on, then make sure that you believe in yourself.

Make sure that you don't over-analyze how the woman is behaving.

Make sure that you don't look at a woman's insecure or fearful behavior about being rejected as meaning that you're not good enough for her or that she isn't feeling attracted to you.

Of course, it's not possible to attract every single woman in the world.

However, if you are displaying personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women, such as being confident, charismatic, being emotionally masculine and so on, then the majority of women that you meet are going to feel attracted to you.

Some women will feel a little bit of attraction, some women will feel a lot of attraction and some women will feel intense attraction.

Yet, what you have to understand is that when you display personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women, they will naturally feel attracted to you.

The thing is, though, you'll probably find it really difficult to hear a woman admit what I've just told you in this video.

Most women don't like to admit that they want a man.

Many modern women go through life acting as though they don't need a man, they're not afraid of rejection, they don't need anything, but the reality is that women are human, too.

They really do feel the pain of rejection and they really do want to avoid that painful feeling.

So, just make sure that you don't doubt yourself and feel like you're not good enough if a woman isn't showing you obvious signs of interest.

Learn More

Okay, I hope you've enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

The Flow is the easiest way to get laid and get a girlfriend.

It's a step-by-step process that you use to attract women, connect with them and take things to the next level.

It's easy to use and it works.

One final point that I want to make for you in this video is that throughout your life, you have most likely met a number of attractive women who were interested in you and were open to something happening between you and them, but you misread her signals.

You saw her lack of obvious interest as meaning that you weren't good enough for her, when in fact, you were good enough for her.

2 Funny Things About the Friend Zone

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

To be clear here, the Friend Zone is when you have a sexual interest in a woman and you want to have a sexual romantic relationship with her, but she only sees you as a friend.

So, the first funny thing about the Friend Zone is...

1. It's usually the guy who places himself in the Friend Zone

Some women place guys in the Friend Zone because they have absolutely no interest in the guy and would never date a guy like him, but in most situations when a guy is in the Friend Zone, he has actually placed himself there.

The woman would hook up with him sexually and get into a relationship with him, but he has placed himself in the Friend Zone because he doesn't think that he is good enough for her.

[image: He is good enough for her and she is waiting for him to realize that]

He's trying too hard to get her to like him, he's trying too hard to get to know her and is hoping that eventually, she's going to show him some strong sign that she wants more than just a friendship.

In the meantime though, he doesn't feel like he's good enough yet.

He is talking to her and trying to hang out with her and build up some sort of relationship so something happens.

Yet, as you may have seen in your life, when a guy uses that approach with a woman, all it usually takes for him to be pushed to the sidelines is for another guy to come along and make her feel attracted.

[image: Most men place themselves in the friend zone]

The new guy isn't necessarily any more better looking than him, but the one difference about this new guy is that he does believe that he is good enough for her.

He doesn't interact with her in a way where he's just trying to be friends with her.

He's not trying to build up some sort of relationship by really getting to know her over time.

Instead, he's focusing on making her feel sexually attracted and turned on by him.

When that happens, the guy who was in the Friend Zone is then left thinking, "What? Why did she do that? We were getting along so well. We have so many things in common. We hang out. We talk. She laughs. She was even touching me on my arm and my leg and everything seemed to be going fine. I thought I was getting great signals from her."

Yes, she was giving some signals, but at the end of the day, she doesn't actually want to have a friendship.

She wants to have a sexual, romantic, relationship.

So, when a guy comes along who shortcuts the process and just makes her feel sexually attracted and turned on, she then has a sexual interest in him.

He will do that by being very confident around her and using humor, being charming and charismatic, but more importantly, he will do it by not giving her the impression that he is hoping to get a chance with her.

The guys who place themselves in the Friend Zone tend to give a woman the impression that they are hoping to be liked by her.

The woman, if she has any experience with dating, can see that.

She can see that he doesn't really believe in himself and is trying to hopefully grow on her over time.

In some cases, that slow, friends first approach can actually work.

For example, in the case of two coworkers working together for a couple of years.

If the woman is spending a lot of time with the guy and he's able to grow on her over time, he might be able to get a chance with her.

Yet, if another guy comes along into the workplace and makes her feel attracted right away, then she's not really going to be focusing on the guy who's just making her feel friendly emotions.

She's going to be focusing on the guy who is making her feel sexually attracted.

The guy who was using the friends first approach then gets left behind.

Now, it's important to point out that she didn't actually place the guy in the Friend Zone.

He placed himself there by using a friends first approach.

He was trying to get to know her and slowly build up a relationship over time, whereas the other guy focused on making her feel sexually attracted and turned on pretty much right away.

That's how he avoided the friend zone and got her sexual and romantic interest right away.

Now, in the workplace, some guys might be wondering, "How can he do that without getting himself into trouble?"

It really comes down to the way that you come across when you're interacting with a woman.

A guy who is confident with women and knows how to make them feel sexually attracted will do it in subtle ways.

For example, if he is making a woman feel attracted to him by being confident and being charismatic and he notices that, he will begin to show her that he is noticing that she finds him attractive and he will also begin to show her that he finds her sexually attractive.

He'll do it in a very subtle way, though.

He'll be talking to her, for example and give her a look up and down. He will show her that he finds her attractive, but he will do it in a subtle way like hat.

Subtle signals like that that show her that he is aware about the sexual tension building up between him and her.

She can then flirt back with him by touching him, playfully hitting him at times, biting her lip when talking to him (when no one else is looking) and looking him up and down in a subtly, sexual way.

On the other hand, the guy in the Friend Zone is just being nice and neutral around her and not creating a sexual spark.

He's saying, "Hey, how are you today? How's work going? How's things? Yeah, I'm working on this project," and is being Mr. Neutral and being Mr. Friendly.

He has placed himself in the Friend Zone based on his approach to her.

The second funny thing about the Friend Zone is that...

2. Most guys aren't even aware that they are doing it

The next time that you're at a bar, a party or a social event, notice how most guys interact with women that they find attractive.

Most guys use the friends first approach and are trying to get to know the woman and build up some sort of friendship and relationship, so they can eventually get a chance with her.

Most guys doubt themselves around attractive women and feel like they're not good enough for the women.

Now, the thing is, most of those guys ARE good enough for the woman.

They are more than good enough for her, but it's the guy's insecure, self-doubting thinking that is causing him to behave like that.

He thinks that he needs to slowly build up a connection with her, build up some sort of relationship and hopefully, she's going to like him.

Alternatively, he's thinking that a woman like her wouldn't want a guy like him.

So, he's thinking, "Alright. I'm going to try to be nice to her, try to talk to her and get along and hopefully we build up some sort of connection and she likes me for that."

[image: Most men aren't even aware that they are placing themselves in the friend zone]

Then you see another guy come along and talk to her and he uses what I call the attraction first approach.

He focuses on making her feel sexually attracted and turned on by him.

Now, he's not being sleazy about it and he's not saying, "Hey girl. What's going on? Let me see that butt. Oh, yeah. I like yours. You show me your tits."

It's not a sleazy first approach.

I'm not talking about that.

I'm talking about attraction.

You make her feel sexually attracted and turned on by you in subtle ways.

For example, a guy who's being confident and making a woman feel attracted to him based on his confidence and the humor that he's using and the charisma that he's displaying.

He's talking to her and she asks him, "So, what are you doing later on?"

A guy who is not going to make her feel attracted at that point will answer in a logical manner.

He will answer her question and miss out on the opportunity to create a sexual understanding between them.

However, a guy who uses the attraction-first approach and is focused on making the woman feel attracted will hear her question and answer it in a much better way.

She asks him, "So, what are you doing later on?" and he looks at her and says, "Gee, you move fast. We've only been talking for a couple of minutes. Geez, just take it easy. You're going to need to take me on some dates first and wine and dine me and maybe after a few dates, I'll let you hold my hand."

Pretty much every girl you say that to will laugh at that.

She will then try to tell you that she wasn't saying that and it's you who needs to take her on dates and so on.

However, as a result of talking to her in that way, you are letting her know that there is something going on between you and her.

It's not just a friendship.

You're not trying to get to know her and find out all about her interests and, "Oh, really? You like hiking. Oh, that's nice. Oh, you're an accountant. How long you been doing that? Oh, that's great. Where did you study? Oh, really. Okay, what else can I ask you that is going to bore you to tears?"

Now, there's nothing wrong with asking women questions about those things and there is nothing wrong with discussing those things.

However, if a guy is using the friends first approach with a woman where he's trying to be her friend and build up some sort of connection and isn't focused on making her feel sexually attracted and turned on, then he is almost certainly going to end up in the Friend Zone.

If he talks to her for an hour and they seem to be getting along and then he asks for her phone number, she's almost certainly going to say no.

She might say something like, "Well, you're nice and it's been great chatting to you, but I'm sorry I don't give out my number at bars," or, "I'm sorry, I'm not looking for a boyfriend right now," or, "I'm sorry, I'm too busy at the moment," or, "I don't have a phone number," which some women will say as well.

The reason why she will do that is because she's not feeling sexually attracted to him.

She might get along with him in a friendly way, but she's not actually looking for a friendship.

She's looking for a sexual, romantic relationship.

She will then start talking to another guy and if he is making her feel sexually attracted and turned on, she's either going to give him her phone number or they're going to end up kissing and having sex that night.

Now, it doesn't mean that the guy who got Friend Zoned wasn't good enough for her.

He was almost certainly good enough for her, but he made the mistake of using too much of a friendly approach.

There wasn't enough of a sexual spark there.

There's nothing wrong with being friendly while talking to a woman, but you also must ensure that she's feeling sexually attracted and turned on.

At the end of the day, that's what's going to be the difference between a friendship and a sexual relationship.

Learn more?

Okay, I hope you've enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn more, I recommend that you read my ebook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

When you read The Flow or listen to the audio version, you will learn exactly what to say and do to attract women and get to sex and relationships.

It's actually a very easy thing to do.

Most women are way easier to pick up than they make themselves out to be.

You just need to make sure that you're using an approach that causes them to feel attracted to you and then know what to say and do to get to a phone number, kiss, sex and into a relationship.

So, from now on, you will notice that most guys actually place themselves in the Friend Zone with women that they like and they're not even aware of it.

This presents an amazing opportunity for you.

When you are one of the rare guys who use the attraction-first approach, you will see how easy most women are to pick up. Most women will act as though they are difficult and hard to get when guys use the friends first approach.

However, when a guy uses the attraction first approach and makes her feel sexually attracted and turned on, she doesn't want to play games with him and mess it up.

She might test his confidence by playing a bit hard-to-get at times, but she's going to be interested in a sexual, romantic experience with him.

She's not going to look at him as just a friend.

She's going to have a sexual and romantic interest.

He can then move things forward to a phone number, a kiss, sex or a relationship if he wants that as well after sex.

He has that choice.

The woman has a sexual interest in him.

He can go forward and enjoy that and then whatever happens after then is up to the two of them.

Meanwhile, the guy in the Friend Zone, who doesn't understand what you've just learned, is thinking, "What is wrong with women? I was so nice to her. We were getting along and now she goes and hooks up with another guy."

As you now know, the answer is simple.

You have to focus on making her feel attracted and you have to feel that you are worthy of her.

Don't place yourself in the Friend Zone by thinking that you're not good enough and that you have to build up a friendship and slowly get her to like you.

You can make her feel sexually attracted and turned on by you right away and you can then build on that.

The next thing you know, you and her are kissing, having sex and enjoying a relationship.

That's how easy it should be and that's how easy it is when you use the attraction first approach.

3 Beginner Mistakes That Guys Make With Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If a man has been finding it difficult to get laid or get a girlfriend, he may eventually start to figure out where he has been going wrong and he may then make some changes and start getting results with women.

Unfortunately though, some guys end up making beginner-level mistakes with women their entire single life and as a result, they don't ever get to access the pretty women that they want, or they end up getting rejected by girls who were actually interested in them, but the interaction just became awkward and the girl lost interest.

For some guys, if that happens to them long enough, they may eventually start to believe that it's their fate (i.e. they are doomed with women).

Thankfully though, for most men, all that is standing in between them and being able to hook up or get into relationships with women that they find attractive, is just to understand where they've been going wrong and to simply adjust their approach so they can have interactions that flow smoothly, where the woman wants to hook up with them sexually or be his girlfriend.

So, here are 3 beginner mistakes that so many guys make, which end up causing them to get rejected or friend-zoned by women who they could have actually hooked up with.

1. Trying to get a woman to like him as a person, rather than making her feel sparks of sexual attraction for him

[image: Trying to get a woman to like him as a person, rather than making her feel sparks of sexual attraction for him]

When a guy is a beginner at getting laid or getting a girlfriend, or if he's been doing it for a while and just hasn't figured this particular thing out, he will interact with a woman that he finds attractive and his focus will be on making her feel comfortable around him, having a good conversation with her, getting to know her and hoping that she sees that he's a good guy.

He hopes that she will like him because of that and want to be with him sexually and romantically.

Yet, when he uses that approach, in almost all cases, women that he meets will just feel friendly type of vibes with him.

The woman won't be feeling excited and turned on.

She won't be feeling like she wants to jump on him and start kissing him and having sex with him.

Instead she will feel more like just a friend.

Additionally, when a guy uses the approach where he just wants to make a woman feel comfortable and get to know her, what will often happen to him is that if he's talking to a woman or a couple of women and is having a comfortable conversation with them, getting along with them and then another guy comes along and starts using flirting and humor, they will instantly lose interest in talking to the guy who just wants to have a friendly conversation and will focus on the guy who's flirting with them to create a sexual vibe.

The other guy is using flirt and humor to energize the conversation, so they become focused on him.

Meanwhile, the guy who's using the approach of just trying to make the girls feel comfortable and get along with them is sitting there thinking, "What's going on here? The girls are focused on this guy now, they like him, they want to talk to him" and the girls start flirting with that guy.

Before he knows it, he feels like a third wheel, or if he's with a group, he starts to feel like the awkward one in the group because everyone else is connecting on a different level and he feels left out of it.

To avoid that happening to you, what you need to understand is that you can make a woman feel attracted to you right away (without having to get to know her first).

You can energize the conversation right away by using flirting, humor or adding in other attractive traits (e.g. your masculine vibe).

You can create a sexual vibe between you and her right away.

Of course, you don't need to be constantly flirting with a woman to create a sexual vibe or constantly using humor, but you need to be able to add that stuff in, so the woman is feeling attracted to you.

She's seeing that you don't want to just have a friendly conversation with her.

There's a spark between you and her.

She feels that energy between you and her where it could become sexual and romantic.

So, if you're talking to a couple of women and the conversation goes to what they do for a living, you can use their answers to that question to energize the conversation, to flirt with them and use some humor to get them experiencing sexual feelings for you.

When you do that, the women are feeling attracted to you, they're feeling drawn to you, they want to interact with you and they can sense that you're not just looking at them as a couple of friends.

You're looking at them as women that you find attractive and therefore you're motivated enough to flirt with them.

They're not just girls that you want to have a friendly conversation with.

You actually find them attractive.

Flirting is a language that women understand and that they prefer to use, to discreetly show their interest in you.

The dictionary definition of flirting is:

Flirt (verb): To behave as though you're attracted to or trying to attract someone, but for amusement, rather than with serious intentions.

In other words, flirting is when you playfully show interest and make a woman feel attracted to you.

For example: By being confident, playfully challenging, assertive, using some humor, etc, but just for the fun of it.

When you make a woman feel attracted to you based on your behavior and you also flirt to show some interest, she will then flirt back with you and due to the mutual attraction and mutual displays of interest between you and her, both you and her can skip over trying to get to know each other and just start interacting as though you and her are already a couple or are becoming a couple.

This is why you'll see some guys create sparks of attraction inside of a woman within 10 to 15 seconds of talking to her, whereas other guys who make the mistake of trying to get a woman to like him enough as a person to give him a chance, will often talk to a woman for hours and hours and if he then asks for her number, he will get the old, "Sorry, but I'm not looking for a boyfriend" or, "You're nice, but I think we'd be better off as friends."

As a beginner to attracting women, he doesn't understand the discreet language of flirting that cuts through all the 'getting to know you' phase and gets right into mutual, playful displays of sexual attraction and interest.

Back to the example...

For example: You're talking to two girls and you ask them what they do for a living.

One girl says that she works as a nurse and the other as a teacher.

To the teacher, you could say something like this, "A teacher? You look like you'd be a mean teacher. You have that angry face about you...that stern look. Before I came over and talked to you girls, I was standing across the bar and I noticed you and you just had like an angry face on you."

Pause for a moment, smile and say, "I'm just kidding, you look like a sweetie. What's it like being a teacher?"

To the nurse, you can say something like this, "And you – a nurse. Well, that suits you because you have very caring eyes...but I can see there's a bit of a wild side in there as well."

Now the thing is, many women want to be able to seem like they're approachable when they're out at a bar or a party.

They don't want to seem like a mean type of woman, a bitchy type of woman who's got that resting bitch face and so on.

Instead they want to seem approachable.

So, when you say something, like she had a mean look on her face, a scowl on her face, a sort of angry-looking face, a woman is going to be shocked.

She's going to be curious and is going to want to find out why you thought that about her.

Since you're only joking and then you say, "Just kidding, you look like a sweetie," women who do want to be approached so they can meet a guy and hopefully find themselves a boyfriend, will laugh at that and feel relieved that they don't seem bitchy and unapproachable and instead are giving off a softer, warmer and more open vibe.

That makes her feel attracted to you because you have the confidence to say something like that to her and the ability to make her laugh, the ability to make her feel girly and put on the spot, the social intelligence to create a moment like that and so on.

With the other example of the woman being a nurse: Saying that she has very caring eyes, but you can see a wild side in there as well is also attractive.

Women love that because once again, they do want to come across as having that femininity to them, that softness, that warmth, but they want a guy to know that they also have a bit of a wild side, a bit of a naughty side.

When you say something like that, it creates a private connection between you and the woman where she knows that you 'get it,' (i.e. she knows that you understand that there's a bit of a naughty side in the background as well, a bit of a wild side).

Therefore, the conversation that you and her have doesn't have to be all politeness and formalities.

It can be a little bit edgy (i.e. sexual undertones, naughtiness, cheekiness), which is then going to be a lot more fun for you and her.

Now compare that to just trying to make the women feel comfortable.

"Oh, so what do you do? Oh, you're a teacher and you're a nurse, oh, cool. How long have you been working there? Cool. Interesting. What hospital do you work at? Oh, wow. How long have you been working there and do you enjoy what you do? I mean it must be very hard working as a nurse."

A totally different experience for the man and the woman.

It's just a neutral conversation.

There's no flirting going back and forth.

It's a conversation that can easily be disrupted by one of her friends, or by someone else coming into the conversation.

She isn't feeling enough attraction for the guy (who is just being friendly) to want to focus on him (because she wants to find a boyfriend or lover, not a male friend).

On the other hand, if you have a conversation with her where you're flirting with her and she's feeling energized and someone comes in to interrupt the conversation, she's going to want to bring her focus back on you because you are a guy who is making her feel attracted.

There's a connection between you and her.

There are sparks between you and her.

She's feeling drawn to you.

There's that energy between you and her where it's not just about having a friendly, neutral conversation.

She's feeling something for you.

She's feeling attracted to you.

She's feeling drawn to you.

As I said though, you don't have to do that all the time.

It's not a 100% of the time thing.

Instead, flirting is simply 20% of the time.

80% of the time you can have a normal everyday conversation, but you at least need to be able to add in some flirting, a little bit of humor, a little bit of challenging humor and so forth 20% of the time.

So, always remember to add in flirt 20% of the time, if you want to have an energized, attracted conversation where the woman is drawn to you and she wants something to happen between you and her.

The thing is though, some guys might feel like that's just too difficult for them.

A guy might think, "I don't want to have fun when I'm talking to a woman like that, I don't want put in any effort to challenge her in a playful way. I just want to talk to her and be the good guy that I am and I want her to like me for that."

Yet it's important to understand that a woman's attraction for a man is largely based on how his personality and behavior makes her feel.

If a guy is interacting with a woman and he's just being neutral and friendly, then she's not going to be very attracted to him, but if that same guy starts being a little bit playfully challenging while he's talking to her, flirting with her a bit, then she is going to feel sparks of attraction him.

It's the difference between getting laid and getting a girlfriend, or going home and doing what most guys do when they go home alone.

The second beginner mistake is...

2. Assuming that he is being rejected if the woman isn't showing lots of interest

[image: Assuming he is being rejected if she isn't showing lots of interest]

So many guys miss out on being with women that are attracted to them due to making this mistake.

A guy will be interacting with a woman who is feeling attracted and interested, but like a typical woman, she isn't showing loads of interest in him right away for various reasons.

[image: Assuming rejection if she isn't making her interest obvious]

For example: Some of the reasons why a woman will do that are:

- To see if a guy will remain confident even though she's not showing him loads of interest.
- To see if a guy will remain interested in her, even though she's not showing him loads of interest.
- To avoid looking like an easy girl. She wants to show him that she's the sort of girl who can control herself. She isn't a slutty type of woman. She doesn't easily just hook up with guys. She is the sort of woman who controls herself.

A guy needs to understand that about women.

Most women don't want to look slutty, they don't want to look like an easy girl, so they'll usually remain quite reserved.

At times, it may even seem that she isn't interested and that can sometimes be due to her insecurities.

For example: Sometimes she could be talking to a guy, feeling attracted to him and feeling like she's coming on too strong too soon or worry that she looks too keen.

She will worry that he's going to think that she's desperate, so she then starts playing with her phone or acting like she's not that interested to 'play it cool' and so on.

So, if a guy doesn't understand that all these sorts of things can go on when he's talking to a woman, he may lose confidence.

He may think that he's being rejected by a woman who is actually interested in him.

Now the thing is, some guys will say, "Oh, women are stupid, why do they play games like that? Why don't they just say that they like me so we can get on with kissing, having sex and having a relationship?"

Yet, guys do the same thing to women.

A guy will like a woman and he will be 'playing it cool.'

He won't have the confidence to tell her that he likes her.

Instead, he'll just keep talking to her and that's what a lot of women do; they just keep talking to you. Continuing to talk to you is often a signal that a woman is interested in you.

If she stays there talking to you, you've got to see that as a sign that she's interested in you because if she wasn't, she would most likely leave.

So, if you're talking to a woman, she isn't running away from you and is continuing to talk to you, then just get on with making her feel attracted, connecting with her and taking things to the next level.

Get to a kiss or get her phone number and get things moving along, rather than making the beginner mistake of thinking that if a woman doesn't show you loads of interest, then she's not interested.

As I just explained a few moments ago, there can be all sorts of reasons why she isn't showing loads of obvious interest, just like a guy will do when he's interacting with a woman and he is feeling unsure of himself.

For example: He starts talking to her as a friend, even though he really likes her and is hoping to become her boyfriend.

On the outside, he seems like he just wants to be her friend and has no interest in a relationship. Yet, inside he's thinking, "Wow, I really like this girl! She's so amazing," but he just talks to her like a friend.

He asks things like, "So, what have you been up to lately? Oh, yeah. Cool, that's interesting" and doesn't use her answers to flirt with her or challenge her.

He's just talking to her like a friend and is afraid to start flirting with her.

He's afraid to show some obvious interest.

He's afraid to make a move.

So, it's important to understand that both men and women often find themselves feeling that fear, or feeling insecure around something they like.

As a result, their behavior can change and with a woman for example, it can seem like she isn't interested, when she actually is.

So, when you're talking to a woman, don't expect her to be showing loads of obvious signs of interest to let that she likes you.

Many times, you'll be talking to an attractive woman and she will like you, but she won't make it super obvious.

You don't need to tell her that you want to be her boyfriend, or ask her for a relationship.

Instead, you just need to get on with making her feel some more attraction, connecting with her and moving things forward (i.e. getting to a hug, kiss and then sex).

If you do that, then a relationship will naturally start.

Yet, if you give up because you're expecting her to make it 100% obvious that she wants you, then you and her will probably end up going your separate ways and she will end up feeling disappointed that she didn't get to be with you.

You may also end up feeling disappointed that it didn't work out.

You thought she was interested initially, but she didn't seem to be very interested.

Little did you know, she was.

Yet, she was nervous, unsure of herself, didn't want to look too easy, or was waiting to see if you would remain confident or interested in her if she wasn't making it obvious that she wanted you.

So, stick in there, keep going and move things forward to a hug, kiss, sex and then into a relationship.

The third beginner mistake that a lot of guys make is...

3. Not allowing her to experience the fun of trying to win him over

[image: She wants to be able to win him over, but he is making it obvious that is already won over by her]

For example: A guy will meet a woman and feel instantly attracted to her because she's pretty.

He will then become overwhelmed by his attraction to the point where he shows her that he's totally won over by her.

He will give her the sense that she doesn't have to do anything to impress him because he's totally into her and he wants to be her boyfriend.

Yet, if the woman is attractive, then she will have experienced that reaction from 99.9% of the guys that she's met throughout her life since she became a woman.

[image: Not allowing her to experience the fun of trying to win him over]

What women like that want to experience is the fun, the thrill and the excitement of trying to win a guy over, of trying to use their charm and trying to use their beauty to win him over.

So, when a pretty woman is talking to a guy who is making her feel sparks of attraction for him based on how he's approaching the conversation and she then notices that he's not totally sold on her (i.e. he's not showing signs that he wants to be her boyfriend, he is just interacting with her, making her feel attracted and there's that sense there that she still needs to impress him to win him over), she becomes excited by that.

In the process of trying to win him over and trying to use her charm to make him like her more, it makes her like him more.

She starts thinking things like, "I really like this guy. I want to be with this guy. I want to win him over. This guy is making me feel so attracted, so excited, I want to be with him."

When you use that approach, the pickup becomes so much easier because it becomes about you allowing her to be with you.

Whereas what most guys do with this beginner mistake, is instantly feel totally won over by a woman based on his attraction for her.

He is impressed by her.

He wants to be with her and might then start asking if she's looking for a boyfriend, or what she looks for in a boyfriend and so on.

She will sense that he is already won over and there's nothing for her to do.

She doesn't have to impress him in any way because he's already totally won over by her and is hoping to become her boyfriend.

So, what you need to do is just calm down a little bit.

Focus on making her feel attracted.

Give her that sense that she needs to impress you, to win you over and allow her to start using her charm to try to do that and in the process of doing that, she's going to like you so much more.

She's going to want to be with you.

Then, when you allow her to be with you, she feels special, she feels excited to be with you because she won you over.

It wasn't the typical thing that she has experienced since she became a woman.

It wasn't you trying hard to hopefully get with her.

She felt that excitement of trying to win you over and you can continue that throughout an entire relationship.

You can keep that type of dynamic alive while still making her feel loved, still committing to her and so on.

You can always make her feel that sense that she needs to keep impressing you and winning more of your love.

Once again, it's a totally different experience for a man to be in that position, rather than trying hard to hopefully get a chance for the girl.

So, if you have been making some beginner mistakes with women and mistakes that you're most likely not aware of and you want to learn the easy way to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audio book version, The Flow on Audio.

Simply follow the steps of The Flow and you and a woman that you find attractive, will flow from one step to the next.

It's the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend.

Have You Missed Your Chance to Be Successful With Women?

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that it's never too late to get started and enjoy success with women.

Instantly attracting women is something that you can easily learn to do.

You simply need to adjust your approach when you're interacting with women that you find attractive and you will see a completely different response and reaction from them.

They will feel attracted to you.

They will feel energized.

They'll light up, they'll be interested in you and they'll be drawn to you.

It's such an amazing thing to experience as a man and I hope that you don't miss out on experiencing it for yourself because you think that you can't do it, when you can.

A Playful Way to Initiate a First Kiss With a Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you're ever talking to a woman that you find attractive, notice that she's feeling attracted to you and can sense that it's the time to move in and kiss her, but you're not quite sure how to make that move, you can have a bit of fun with it and use a playful technique called Count the Shoulders.

So, if you're sitting next to a woman, or even if you're standing next to a woman and you're talking and 'that vibe' is there where she's attracted to you, you've been flirting with her, you feel like it's the time to kiss her, but you don't really know how to initiate, just say something like this to her.

"Hey, so do you wanna play count the shoulders?"

Then she may say "Yes," but she'll most likely be confused by the question.

That doesn't matter.

Simply start counting the shoulders, one, two, three, four.

Then, if you notice that she's smiling and she's totally cool with you having your arm around her like that, simply draw in a little bit closer, lean in, start kissing, done.

An alternative way of playing Count the Shoulders is to say, "Hey, do you know how to play Count the Shoulders?" and if she says, "No" (which she most likely will), you can then say, "Okay, cool. I'll show you."

Then, simply start counting your shoulders as shown in the video above.

5 BIG Secrets Single Women Hide From Men

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

A very small percentage of men know about the secrets that I'm going to share with you now, regarding single women and as a result, they feel confident around attractive women.

They know their secrets.

Yet, the vast majority of men do not know the secrets that I'm going to share with you now and as a result, they lack confidence around single women.

[image: Does she like me? Is she interested?]

The man just doesn't know where he stands with her.

Does she like me?

Is she interested in sex?

Is she interested in a relationship?

[image: She isn't making it obvious that she wants sex or a relationship]

She's not making it obvious and as a result, he doesn't feel confident about his chances of getting her out in a date, for example.

So, let's begin with the first secret that single women hide from men.

1. Most act like they're hard to get, but are secretly easy

A great example of this is the study that was done at Florida State University.

What happened is that the researchers got a bunch of students to approach other students, one at a time and the physical attractiveness of the male and female approachers ranged from slightly unattractive, to moderately attractive.

So, in other words, the students doing the approaching weren't really good-looking; they were just average looking or slightly below average looking.

Here's what the approachers said, whether there were a man or a woman.

"I've been noticing you around campus. I find you to be very attractive..."

Then, the approacher asked one of the following questions.

- "Would you go out with me tonight?"
- "Would you come over to my apartment tonight?" or;
- "Would you go to bed with me tonight?"

So in other words, "I've been noticing you around campus. I find you to be very attractive. Would you come over to my apartment tonight?"

Here are the results of the study.

[image: Florida State University study]

56% of the women said yes when the guy asked "Would you go out with me tonight?"

Now, she didn't know anything else about him other than him saying, "I've been noticing you around campus. I find you to be very attractive. Would you go out with me tonight?"

56% of the women said yes, whereas 50% of the men said yes to the same question when asked by a woman.

With the other question, "Would you come over to my apartment tonight?" 6% of women said yes and 69% of men said yes.

Finally, "Would you go to bed with me tonight?"

None of the women said yes, whereas 75% of the men said yes.

In other words, women don't want to immediately say yes to sex, but more than half will immediately say yes to going on a date, even though they don't know anything about the guy.

That's a good example because if guys saw those girls walking around on their own, the girls would almost certainly be displaying body language that suggested they didn't want to be approached, or that there would be hard to get.

Yet, 56% of them immediately said yes to going out on a date with a guy who said "I've been noticing you around campus. I find you to be very attractive. Would you go out with me tonight?"

They said yes.

The thing is though, the results of that study don't necessarily mean that a guy should go into a shopping mall and walk up to a woman shopping and say, "Hey, I've been noticing around the shopping mall. I think you're very attractive. Would you go out with me tonight?" because that's a different environment.

In a university environment, for example, there is a certain level of safety for the woman because the guy is a fellow student.

If he asked for her number, or if she goes out in a date with him, there is protection because they're part of the same University.

Yet, in a shopping mall, pretty much everyone there is a stranger.

She doesn't know who the man is, who has said that he's been noticing her around the shopping mall. Does that mean that he's a stalker? What has he been doing? Has he been following her around and so on?

So, when a man is in different social environments such as a bar, club, house party, a shopping mall, a restaurant and so on, he needs to use a different approach.

It's not going to be, "Hey, I've been noticing you around. I think you're very attractive. Would you go out with me tonight?"

Obviously, that line isn't going to work in a bar because she's already out that night.

So, that particular line would need to be slightly modified in order to make it work in a bar environment.

For example: He could say, "Hey, I noticed you from across the bar. You look very attractive, so I thought I'd come over and say hi."

By saying it that way, he's not asking her out right away, which wouldn't make any sense, of course. Instead, he's starting the conversation in a charming way and can then make her feel sparks of attraction for him by flirting with her.

He can then connect with her and when the time is right, he can take things to the next level such as getting her phone number, kissing her and maybe having sex that night, or if it's just a phone number, he can set up a date when he calls her.

Then, they can kiss and maybe have sex on the first, second or third date and a dating relationship or even a boyfriend/girlfriend relationship will most likely begin from there.

So, each situation that you meet women in is going to be slightly different.

Yet, despite the differences in the approach that you need to take, the key lesson here is that many women will act as though they're hard to get when they're not.

The same thing applies to women in bars.

Many women will sit around or stand around and they will seem like they are hard to get and there are many reasons for that.

One of which I'll discuss in secret number 4, but before we get to that, one of the reasons is that in a bar environment, a woman doesn't want to make herself seem too approachable to guys who are drunk.

She doesn't want the drunk guys who are building up their courage by drinking lots of alcohol, to see that she's open and friendly and they can come over and talk to her.

Instead, she wants a guy who has the confidence to come over and talk to her even though she's not making it obvious that she wants a guy to come over and talk to her.

Additionally, another reason is that if she looks too open and eager and she wants guys to approach her, she may get guys approaching her who don't actually really like her and will only want to have sex with her once, or may just want to make her feel attracted, build up their confidence and then go talk to another woman.

So, many women will act as though they're hard to get when secretly, they're easy to get or fairly easy to get, if a guy just gives himself the chance (i.e. if he gets over there, has an interaction with her, creates a spark and gets something going between him and her).

2. Most have a fantasy list of requirements for a man, but don't actually stick to it in real life

[image: Most women have a fantasy list of requirements for a man, but don't actually stick to it in real life]

One thing that I want to make 100% clear, is that I'm not talking about dating apps like Tinder or Bumble.

On dating apps like those, a woman usually has all the power.

For example: With Tinder, if she's in a big city, tens of thousands of guys are swiping right on her, hoping to get a match and all she has to do is go through the app and swipe on guys that are her ideal type, or her fantasy type (i.e. who meet her fantasy list of requirements) and she's almost certainly going to get matches.

Then, if she wants to, she can chat with that guy and if the guy knows how to get her out in a date, he can organize a date with her.

[image: Most Tinder users have never gotten a date from the app]

Yet, the reality is that most of the women who have used Tinder have never actually gone on a date as a result of the app.

I actually got a comment recently from a guy who ran a bit of a test on a dating app, where he put himself down as a CEO and said that he liked to buy lots of cars and he was into collecting cars and some other thing that identified him as being a rich guy.

He said that he got loads of likes on that compared to his exact same profile with the exact same photos and him saying that he was a manager in sales.

That's the reality with dating apps because a woman usually has all the power.

She can just select from the tens of thousands of guys who are hoping to get a chance with her.

Yet, although many women definitely do use dating apps to go on dates, most don't.

[image: USA Tinder users - early 2020]

Additionally, most of the users of Tinder are men, so a woman usually has so many options that guys who would be able to get a chance with her in person aren't ever seen, or aren't ever selected.

Now, compare that to talking to a woman in person and a guy has a much higher chance of getting an instant yes, compared to waiting around and hoping that he'll be selected out of tens of thousands of guys who are swiping on a woman on a dating app.

So, in this age of dating apps, a lot of guys feel insecure around single women.

They feel as though every single woman is using Tinder and Bumble to go on loads of dates and she can select from all these top, amazing men who are totally successful and have got all these traits that she's looking for.

Yet, the reality is that (even though she could select top tier men from dating apps), most women don't go on dates via dating apps and number 2, most women don't actually feel confident about being with a guy who is so successful, or so attractive with all these top-tier qualities.

Of course, some pretty women are very confident and they go for tall, successful, handsome and rich men, but some pretty women go for normal everyday guys.

The reality is that some pretty women feel so much more at home and confident with a normal, everyday guy compared to a very handsome or successful man because she worries that the very handsome successful man might not be faithful to her, or that he will be faithful and she'll fall in love with him, but he will then get bored of her and dump her because she's not pretty enough to maintain his interest.

Not every pretty woman has that insecurity, of course, but quite a lot of them do, which is why many of them happily get into relationships with and even marry normal, everyday guys.

Additionally, some pretty women even date guys who others may see as being scruffy, but she will love him based on his personality and how he makes her feel.

Some pretty women also go for men who are overweight or bald, even though the guy isn't very successful in life.

Not all pretty women do that, but some do.

The reason why, is that so many women feel so much more comfortable and at home with a normal, everyday guy who makes her feel attracted for reasons other than these top tier totally high status qualities, like he's the CEO of this, he is the owner of all these yachts, he does this, he does that and so on.

Most women just don't feel confident in their ability to hold a guy like that down.

Additionally, they don't see themselves as being the sort of woman who will live that type of lifestyle.

She is just a normal everyday girl.

Yes, she is pretty, but like most pretty women she ends up with guys who are just normal guys.

Her and a guy paying rent and living together, her and a guy's saving up for a deposit on their home and eventually getting a house together, or eventual getting married and then having children and so on.

Some pretty girls are just normal, everyday girls and will happily hook up with, get into a relationship with and even marry a normal, everyday guy.

Of course, don't get me wrong, there are some pretty girls and beautiful women who have extremely high standards in real life and they will stick to those standards no matter what.

The guy has to be what she sees as very good-looking or very good-looking and rich, otherwise she won't be interested at all.

If she sees a guy as being ugly, below average looking or even just average looking, then she won't be interested.

Likewise, with some women like that, if the guy is not rich or very successful in life, then she just won't be interested.

Those women definitely do exist, so don't get me wrong.

I'm not saying that every pretty woman and every beautiful woman will go for a normal, everyday guy because they won't.

For example: You may have seen some of the reality shows called WAGS (Wives and Girlfriends of Sports Stars and Athletes), or the rich wives of this place and that place.

There are some women who have really high standards when it comes to men, but the reality is that some of those WAGS women definitely are attractive, but many of them really aren't super amazing, attractive girls especially when they take off their makeup.

Instead, most women like that have very specific standards when it comes to men and only want to be with a successful athlete.

So, they go out of their way to be around those men and try to get one to marry them.

That's their thing.

Yet, the majority of pretty girls out there don't see themselves as being one of the 0.001% of women who end up with a high status sports star, a celebrity, a CEO and so on.

The girl might sometimes fantasize about that, just like a guy might sometimes fantasize about being with a certain model or whatever, but it doesn't mean that she's going to stick to that in real life.

It doesn't mean that a guy has to be high status in society, be some big shot in order to get a chance with her.

The reality, is that some pretty girls go for guys like that, but some pretty girls go for normal everyday guys.

So, what happens for a lot of single guys these days is that they see the way that women behave on dating apps, or they look at the results that they haven't been getting on dating apps and then they think, “Well, if I can’t even get a match out of all these thousands of girls, how is a girl in real life going to react to me?”

He may think, “Do I have to approach a thousand girls before I can get myself a girlfriend? No girl is going to like me because I don’t get any likes on Tinder. I don’t get any girls contacting me on Bumble. Why should they want to talk to me in person? They obviously don’t find me attractive.”

Yet, a small percentage of men know the secret that I’m going to tell you now, whereas the vast majority of men do not know it and many of those men go their entire life never knowing it.

This secret of female to male attraction, which applies to the majority of women out there, including most beautiful and pretty women, is that in many cases, you can make a woman feel intense attraction for you as you talk to her, even if you’re not her usual type or the sort of guy that she assumed she would go for.

You can do this as you talk to her by displaying personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women, such as confidence, charisma, charm, being a bit of a challenge, being emotionally masculine, flirting with her to create a sexual vibe and so on.

Of course, it’s not possible for a guy to pick up every woman in the world, but he can attract and pick up many women, including beautiful and pretty women.

One of the reasons why this is possible and why it happens all over the world, is that although many women do have a fantasy list of requirements for a man, they don’t always stick to it in real life.

So many guys don’t ever discover this secret about attracting women.

As a result, they go through their life believing that they’re not good enough for pretty women, even though other guys who look like them, who look similar to them or who don’t even look as good as them, are able to get themselves a pretty girlfriend or wife.

The way that it works, is that when you make a woman feel sparks of attraction for you in person, she starts looking at you with attraction in her eyes.

Her perception of you changes.

She starts looking at you and thinking, “There’s something about this guy. I like him. He’s cute. He’s sexy. I don’t normally go for guys like him, but there’s something about him. I really like him.”

A similar thing can happen to guys, but it usually takes a little bit longer than it takes for girls.

For example: A guy may meet a girl that he’s not initially attracted to, but when he spends time with her, she grows on him.

Then, he really starts to find her attractive he looks at her and thinks, “I really like this girl. I really want to be with her,” and falls in love with her.

He has a relationship with her even though initially, he wasn’t that attracted to her.

She grew on him.

Now, as I said, it usually takes a lot longer for a guy to experience that compared to a woman.

When you’re talking to a woman, that can happen within the first one to two minutes.

With most women, all it usually takes is one to two minutes of conversation where you display personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women and she feels sparks of attraction for you.

This is where so many single guys get confused because they hear that women don’t place as much importance on a man's physical appearance as men place on a woman's physical appearance, but that doesn't seem to make sense because women say, "That guy's good-looking. He's sexy, he's handsome."

So what's going on?

Well, what's going on is that when a man can make a woman feel attracted to him for reasons other than his physical appearance, such as him being confident, emotionally masculine, flirting with her, being charming or charismatic, she starts looking at his physical appearance in a positive light.

She starts thinking, "Well, I don't normally go for bald guys, but I find this guy attractive. I don't normally go for guys who look like this or that, but there's something about him I really like him."

So, for the single guys watching this video and even for the guys who are in a relationship with a woman and she isn't feeling attracted to him the way that she used to, just understand that you can make women feel attracted to you as you talk to them and interact with them.

When you do that, a woman looks at you as being attractive, appealing and desirable.

Additionally, this is a feeling and a perception of you that can continue throughout an entire lifetime relationship or marriage.

Finally, one other thing about this secret is that you may have heard some women say about their boyfriend or their husband, "I wasn't initially attracted to him, but once we started talking, I felt attracted to him. I really liked him. We started dating, we got into a relationship, we fell in love and we've been happy ever since."

In other words, in many cases (not in all cases, but in many cases), a guy does not have to look like a woman's usual type in order to attract her, hook up with her, get into a relationship with her and even marry her.

Now, some guys will say, "Yeah, it's money. The guy must be rich," but the majority of people aren't rich.

The majority of couples pay rent together, they save up to buy a house together, they pay bills together, they work and they're just normal everyday people.

Don't write it off as it's looks, or it's money.

Yes, money can attract women, looks can attract women, but you know what else can attract women?

When you interact with them and display personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women, such as confidence, charisma, emotional, masculinity, flirting, humor and so on.

That doesn't mean that a guy can pick up every woman in the world, but it does mean that a guy can access beautiful pretty women who go for normal everyday guys if he's a normal everyday guy.

If he's more than that, then great, but if he's a normal everyday guy like most guys who end up with a pretty woman, then he can make her feel attracted to him as he talks to her because although she may have a fantasy list of requirements for a man, she doesn't actually stick to it in real life.

Instead, like many women, she goes with how she feels.

So, if a normal, everyday guy makes her feel attracted to him in person, she opens up to potentially going on a date with him, having sex with him or having a relationship with him.

3. Most really like it when they feel the need to impress a guy to be accepted by him

[image: Most women prefer it when they feel the need to impress a guy and be accepted by him]

What usually happens with women and the dating process?

It's usually guys trying to hopefully impress the woman to get a chance with her.

The guy is on his best behavior.

He's being extra nice, extra polite.

He is offering her things.

He is trying really hard to hopefully be accepted by her.

Yet, what a small percentage of men know, is that most single women really like it when they feel the need to impress a guy to be accepted by him and that even continues into a relationship.

Now, don't get me wrong.

It's not about treating a woman like crap, treating her badly or taking her for granted in a relationship.

It's not about telling a woman that you don't care about her in the dating process, ignoring her saying, "I don't give a crap about you," and so on.

It's not about that.

Instead, just think about what happens with a woman, when a man feels the need to impress her and hopefully be accepted by her.

Is she treating him like crap, or is she just giving him the sense that he needs to impress her to be accepted by her?

Who made up that rule?

Who said that she was the one who could do that?

Well, the man allowed it to happen by him not taking on that role; not taking on the role of the one who is selecting and allowing.

He is taking on the role of the one who is hoping and trying.

Yet, most single women love it when a guy is a good guy and treats her well, but makes her feel like she needs to impress him to be accepted by him.

That usually results in a woman trying harder to impress the guy by being nicer, doing nice things for him, being cuter, being more feminine and so on.

[image: When she wins him over, she feels like the chosen one]

[image: When she wins him over, she feels like the chosen one]

Then, when the guy accepts her for her and allows her to be his girlfriend, she feels lucky, she feels special, she feels like the chosen one.

Just like a guy feels when he gets accepted by a girl that he's been trying to impress.

Yet, what happens is that when a guy puts himself in the position where he's trying to impress a girl to hopefully get a chance with her and then she reluctantly gives him a chance and he then tries harder and harder to impress her and maintain her interest, she loses respect and attraction for him and the relationship falls apart.

Whereas when it's the other way around, where the girl is trying hard to impress the guy, being a good girl, being more feminine, being more fun and nice and the guy is treating her well, then the relationship feels amazing for both of them.

4. Most love sex, but have to act like they don't, for various reasons

[image: Most love sex, but have to act like they don't, for various reasons]

One of the main reasons why, is that most guys don't feel as though they can trust a woman who is really into sex and is chasing it.

If a woman shows a lot of interest in sex and openly talks about it, a guy might think that she is slutty and untrustworthy.

On the other hand, if she holds out too long during the dating phase or seems uninterested in sex, a guy may stop pursuing her and find another woman.

[image: Most women don't want to seem too interested in sex, because men find women like that untrustworthy]

So, if she openly talks about sex, seems really into it and is chasing it, most guys will look at her as being a slut.

If she holds back and doesn't have sex, most guys will look at her as being a prude.

[image: She doesn't show a lot of interest in sex because she wants a guy to know that she can control her urges and is therefore, is more trustworthy than an openly sexual woman]

As a result, the sweet spot for a woman is to not seem like she's really into sex, not seem like she would love to have sex, but instead to show a guy that she can control herself.

If he has a relationship with her, he can rely on her to control herself, to not be one of those women who go around openly talking about sex, chasing it and acting horny all the time.

So, what happens for a lot of single guys who don't understand this particular secret well, is that they'll see that women don't react to them in the same way that they react to women.

A guy will look at a woman, immediately feel attracted to her and immediately say yes or no in his mind about whether or not he would have sex with her.

He will look at her when she's walking along the street, or wherever she may be.

He'll be feeling attracted and will want something to happen.

Yet, women walk through the world as though they don't even see guys.

They're just walking along.

She goes to a cafe.

She orders her coffee.

She sits down.

She's not sitting down and looking at a guy's butt as he walks past, like a guy will do when a woman walks past.

She's just sitting there, playing with her phone or doing whatever she's doing, keeping to herself and not looking around as though she's hoping to get some sex.

So, a small percentage of men know that.

They go through life not expecting women to react to them in the same way that they react to women. They understand why women have to behave in that way.

A woman can't show that she really likes sex, otherwise most guys would feel as though they couldn't trust her if they got into a relationship with her and that's how she behaved out in public.

5. Most act like they are happy to be single, even though many of them are secretly miserable about it

[image: Many single women tend to keep to themselves and seem uninterested in men, even though they are secretly desperate to find a boyfriend]

Once again, women do this to not seem low value, cheap and easy.

She doesn't want to go through her everyday life interacting with guys showing that she's really keen and trying to get herself a boyfriend.

If a girl is behaving like that, most guys will look at her as being low value, or they'll look at her as being weird because most girls don't behave like that, especially the girls that he really likes.

The attractive girls who are used to men making the mistake of trying hard to hopefully impress her to get a chance with her, don't behave as though they're hoping to get a boyfriend.

They don't go around looking at guys and talking to them and hoping that a guy will like them.

Instead, the majority of single women will behave as though they're totally fine without a guy and couldn't care less.

Yet, the reality is that when she goes home and she's alone in her bed, or if she catches up with a friend who is happy in a relationship, she feels left out.

She wants to have a boyfriend, but she's struggling to get one.

The thing is though, if a guy looked at her when she was waiting in a line at Starbucks, or if she was sitting alone in a cafe, or if she was at a bar with friends, she wouldn't necessarily look like a girl who is hoping and is desperate to get herself a boyfriend.

She will almost certainly just display body language that suggests she can't even see the men in the room.

She doesn't even care about the men when in fact, she's hoping to get herself a boyfriend.

She's hoping that a normal guy will come over and say hello to her, there'll be a spark between him and her and they can start dating and have a relationship.

So, what happens for a lot of single guys, is that they go through their life and they see women that they find attractive, but because the woman isn't displaying open interested body language right away before he has approached her, he will assume that she must have a boyfriend, or that she wouldn't want him to come over and say hello.

Yet, the reality is, as you saw from the study near the start of the video, a little more than half of the women said yes when a guy immediately asked them out, even though they didn't know anything about him.

In other environments where you can meet women, if you want to get the same or better result, then what you need to do is have a bit of an interaction with a woman first where you make her feel attracted to you by displaying personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women.

With most women, you only need to do that for one to two minutes.

Some women require longer, that's for sure, but with most women, all it requires is a one to two-minute conversation where you make her feel a spark for you and she will feel attracted to you.

She will open up to the interaction and she will say yes when you ask for her phone number.

By the way, if you're one of the guys who finds it difficult to walk up and talk to women, or if you don't know what to say to make women feel attracted to you and how to connect with them immediately and make them want to give you their phone number or kiss you, go out and a date with you and so on, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

When you read The Flow or listen to The Flow on Audio, you will learn my best ever conversation starters, ways to make women feel immediately attracted to you, ways to make women feel increasingly attracted to you as you talk to them, how to connect with women, how to make women want to contribute to the conversation and get to know you, how to initiate touch in a way that she wants and welcomes, how to get her phone number, how to initiate a first kiss, how to initiate sex on the first night or how to get her out on a date with you and initiate a kiss and sex on the first date or if you want to wait longer than that, second, third, fourth date; it's totally up to you.

All you have to do, is follow the simple steps of The Flow and you and a woman will flow smoothly from one step to the next.

It's the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend.

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that many times throughout your single life you will meet an attractive girl/a pretty woman who is interested in you.

Yet, if you're not able to pick up on the subtle signs that she's attracted, or if you don't have the confidence to move things forward from a conversation to a phone number, date and so on, then you will miss out on so many opportunities with pretty women, beautiful women who really were interested in you.

So, it's important to understand why women behave in the ways that they do, so you don't have to feel insecure around them.

Instead, you can feel confident knowing that they're behaving in a certain way because they have to.

You don't need to lose confidence because of that instead, you can feel more confident knowing that you're one of the small percentage of men who actually understands what's going on.

You can then start making moves.

You can ask a girl out, you can ask for her phone number, you can move things forward and before you know it you'll be having sex or a relationship with a woman of your choosing.

How to Get a Girlfriend if You Have No Friends to Go Out and Meet Women With

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Sometimes a guy will find himself in a situation where all of his friends have settled down (i.e. they've got a girlfriend or a wife), or he just doesn't have friends to go out and meet women with.

[image: How to get a girlfriend when you have no friends]

So, what is he going to do?

How can he get himself a girlfriend?

[image: How to meet girls when you have no friends]

That's what I'm going to teach you in this video.

The three main points of this video are:

1. Prepare yourself to create a sexual spark with the women that you're about to meet.
2. Go to places where you can make friends, meet women and get a girlfriend all at the same time, or;
3. Go to places where you can meet women and get a girlfriend without having to make new friends.

Additionally, I'm also going to give you some bonus tips somewhere in this video.

The first bonus tip is how I made a whole bunch of female friends and got some of them competing with each other to hook up with me, or be my girlfriend.

Some of these women are still my female friends to this day, even though I have settled down and am in a committed relationship.

The other bonus tip is the secret to overcoming your potential initial resistance to meeting new women, if you haven't done it for a while, or if you're just not used to meeting and talking to women that you don't know.

So, let's start with the first point in the video.

1. Prepare yourself to create a sexual spark with the women that you're about to meet

[image: Prepare yourself to create a sexual spark with the women you are about to meet]

Where a lot of guys get stuck when they don't have friends to go out and meet women with, is that they eventually get to the point where they're like, "Alright, I'm going to go out and try to meet women."

He might go to a shopping mall and hope that he's going to have the confidence just to talk to a woman, but he goes there and he doesn't really know what to say.

He doesn't really know how to make her feel attracted as soon as he starts talking to her, so he doesn't do it.

He walks around the shopping mall and he's in his normal mode of being which is to be inward. He's just keeping to himself, like pretty much everyone else at the shopping mall. He doesn't know how to break out of that and just talk to a woman that he finds attractive. Alternatively, he may talk to a pretty waitress and find her attractive and want to get something going between him and her, but he just has a friendly conversation with her. She comes over, takes his order, he's asking her if she's having a nice day or whatever and he orders his food, she gives it to him and he says thanks and she walks away. He didn't do anything to create a sexual spark inside of her. He didn't do anything to differentiate himself from all the other customers that she will have met that day or that week. He's just being a standard customer having a transactional interaction with her, when what he needs to do is to create a sexual spark with her by flirting with her, or by displaying personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women. So, imagine an example of a guy who goes to a salsa dancing class. He's going to be dancing with different women all night, so it's going to be physical contact, the women are going to be right there in his face and he's got an opportunity to attract them. Yet, he doesn't really know how to attract women when he interacts with them. So, when he's paired up with his female dancing partners, he ends up displaying traits that aren't attractive to women, such as being a little bit too tense and nervous when dancing with the woman, or instantly falling for her and wanting to have her as his girlfriend and as a result, being too intense by constantly making eye contact with her, holding it and waiting for her to look him in the eyes to hopefully show him that she likes him too. However, she doesn't want to seem too easy and hasn't even got to know him yet, so she avoids that kind of eye contact. On the other hand, a guy might be afraid to make any eye contact because he's nervous when it comes to looking women in the eyes, or he's worried about coming on too strong. Alternatively, a guy might be afraid to get close with her physically because he worries that she might think he's enjoying touching her and he's getting a kick out of it. So, he keeps his distance, even though other dancers are very close physically, they're touching each other and it's not a problem at all. Now, the thing is he could display traits that attract her, but he either doesn't know how to attract her, or he forgets the fact that women want to experience a guy's confidence. They want to experience a guy's masculine presence. That makes a woman feel attracted. The guy either doesn't know that, or he forgets that and he ends up displaying nervousness, fear, anxiety and so on which doesn't turn a woman on. So, he's paired up with his first female dance partner and he says (in a very nervous way), "Oh, I've never done this before. I'm actually quite nervous. What do I do? Okay, yep, oh, there we go yeah." That's a bit of an over-exaggeration, but hopefully, you get the point. Now, imagine he interacted with that woman in a different way.

He says, in a confident, easy-going way, “Hey, how are you doing? Well, this is the first time I’ve ever done this. I have no idea what I’m doing. I’ve been told I’ve got two left feet. How about you? Are you a good dancer? Oh, great, well, I’ll learn from you then. Come on, let’s do this.”

If a guy speaks to a girl in that way, she’s going to see him as a confident, charming guy and she’s going to be rooting for him.

She’s going to want him to do well.

He isn’t going in there acting like he knows everything, being Mr. Perfect and he isn’t going in there being Mr. Nervous.

Instead, he’s there to have some fun and she’s feeling good interacting with him, so she wants to see him do well.

On the other hand, imagine the nervous guy.

He’s interacting with different women throughout the night and he’s being awkward.

He’s apologizing for his mistakes all the time.

He’s being awkward about it.

He’s dancing with the girls and saying (in a nervous, awkward way) things like, “Oh, sorry, yeah, I still don’t know what I’m doing. Oh, I just stepped on your toe, sorry, about that.”

Again, a bit of an over-exaggeration, but to hopefully make you get the point.

Now, imagine the confident guy who’s being easygoing.

“Well, isn’t this fun? About 20 minutes ago, I had no idea what I was doing, but I’m getting the hang of it, this is cool. Come here, do a twirl.”

He’s there being confident, having some fun, showing some masculine direction and being a bit charming towards girls.

For example: If he’s dancing with a girl and wants to make her feel a bit charmed, he can say something like this (in a confident, easy-going, playful way), “Wow, you’re a really good dancer. You’ve got really good rhythm. I can’t say the same for myself though, I’m all over the place.”

She will then almost certainly say, “No, no you’re doing great,” and so forth.

He can then say something like this to her, “Oh, you’re too nice, you’re too nice” in a way where he is accepting the compliment and being a charming guy.

By the way, if you’ve seen some of my other videos, you’ll know that I often give examples of using playfully challenging humor to attract women (i.e. being a challenging guy).

Yet, in this case, I’m giving an example of being confident, charming, humble and even a bit gentlemanly (i.e. overall, being a charming type of guy).

The reason why, is that each situation that you meet women in, requires you to slightly adjust your approach to successfully create a spark, connect with the woman and have her wanting to take things too the next level with you, such as giving you her phone number, going out in a date with you, kissing you, having sex with you and starting a relationship with you.

In terms of a salsa dancing environment, for example, you can use playfully challenging humor, but it’s best to tone that down initially and focus on being more charming so the woman relaxes, opens up and feels confident when dancing with you.

This is where a lot of guys get stuck when it comes to attracting and picking up women.

There will occasionally be opportunities in front of him, but he won't know what to say or do, so he will either avoid interacting with the women, or he'll just have a friendly, neutral interaction and then go on about his day.

So, if you want to be able to get yourself a girlfriend as you go through your everyday life and meet random women, or if you want to meet women in social environments, then make sure that you know what approach to use in that environment to be successful so you can get the result right away.

2. Go to places where you can make friends, meet women and get a girlfriend all at the same time

[image: Go to places where you can make friends, meet women and get a girlfriend all at the same time]

For example: If you join a mixed sports team like indoor soccer, or volleyball that men and women play together.

Alternatively, you might want to go to an adult learning class once a week at night (e.g. bread making class).

There are so many different topics and categories of interests that you can learn from, where both men and women are going to be there and you can end up making friends together.

If you want to find what's available in your area just search your town or city name plus the words 'night course or adult learning (e.g. Los Angeles adult learning, London night courses, Montreal adult learning classes) and you will find what is available in your area.

Some examples of courses that may be available include:

- Bread baking
- Beer-making.
- Improv.
- Photography.
- Clay and sculpture making.
- Painting.
- Property investing.
- Massage classes.
- Salsa dancing.
- Pizza making.
- Yoga.

Alternatively, you might want to join in on a bus tour to tourist attractions in your state or neighboring state.

So, it may be a day trip to a winery, to waterfalls whatever it maybe whatever is available in your state or neighboring states.

That might sound like a bit of a weird one, but when you're on a bus with a bunch of people and you're all going to the same places together, you tend to start talking.

So, you can end up making friends with someone who's sitting next to you, or if you're getting off at certain stops and you're all talking and so forth, you can end up getting to know some people, making friends and potentially getting yourself a girlfriend.

Alternatively, you might want to attend some meetup groups in your area.

Now, the website for that is meetup.com and they're not a sponsor of this video.

I don't allow any sponsorship or anything like that on my videos.

It's just to help you.

It's one of the biggest sites in the world, you go there and it shows you what sort of meetup groups are available in your area.

One thing about meetup groups, is that pretty much everyone attends on their own, so you're not the odd one out going to a meetup group on your own.

Pretty much everyone attends meetup groups on their own and gets to know the people there.

BTW: One of the bonus tips I promised you is about female friends.

What I did (back when I made one new friend who was willing to go out with me and approach women), is that I gradually figured out how to attract and pick up women in person (at bars, clubs, shopping malls, cafes and so on).

So, I was kissing and having sex with new women all the time.

Yet, my friend and I would occasionally meet women who felt really attracted to us and really liked us, but we weren't sure if we wanted to date them.

That's when we started turning women like that into female friends, rather than dating them all.

So, we'd get their phone numbers on Friday and Saturday nights and on Tuesdays and Wednesdays, we'd say, "Alright, time to make some phone calls."

I'd start calling girls and my friend would start calling girls.

We'd create a spark with them on the phone, we'd connect a little bit more and we'd invite them out to come and party with us on Friday night.

If we had a reason for the party, such as it was my birthday or my friend's birthday, then that was pretty obvious, but we also went for the start of summer party, the end of winter party, the start of winter party and so on.

Whatever it may be, we would refer to it as a label, but if there was no label, we would just say, "Come out and party with us on Friday night. We're going to be at this bar, it's going to be a fun night. You guys should come along. Let's party, we'll see you there."

Now, not every girl came, but when you have loads of numbers from girls that you've been meeting and you're inviting them all out and some of them come, then you've got six, seven, eight girls arriving to hang out with you on a Friday or Saturday night.

What happens then, is that they see that other girls are interested in you.

It becomes like a competition.

They see that these girls are your female friends.

They like you.

They can sense that the girl feels attracted to you as well.

So, it becomes this competitive environment where the girls are trying to make you like them the most.

I remember on my 30th birthday, I'm 42 now, but I remember on my 30th birthday, back when I was still living the single life, I invited so many people and there was just women everywhere.

The place was packed and I was looking around just thinking, "Look at this. I came from nothing, having no women, no female friends, being scared to approach women and I've got all these women jam-packed at my party. I've got all these new friends."

It was a good time.

Of course, now, I've settled down and I'm with my perfect girl, but if you are single and you want to get yourself a girlfriend, then you can use that female friend technique where you get their numbers and you're not trying to set up dates with them.

Instead, you get them out to party with you.

Partying with you doesn't need to be anything amazing, other than just going to a cool bar or a cool lounge bar, a cool club, whatever it may be, hanging out and having a great time.

By the way, what happens as a result of you inviting them out and then feeling attracted to you, enjoying hanging around you and so on is that they start inviting you to things.

So, you get invited to parties at bars, to house parties.

You get invited out to lunch on Sunday and so forth.

These women are interested in hanging around you.

So, if you meet women and create a spark of sexual attraction inside of them and as a result, they like you, but you're not quite sure if you want to date them, then turn them into a female friend for now.

Invite them out if you're going out to a party, or if you'd been invited to a party and you can bring friends (i.e. you can invite girls) and before you know it, what you'll find is that you'll have a bunch of female friends who are attracted to you and are secretly competing to try to become your girlfriend.

At that point, it's very easy to hook up with them.

You just allow them to be with you.

It's very easy.

Okay, so now if you don't want to make new friends and you just want to get yourself a girlfriend, number 3...

3. Go to places where you can meet women and get a girlfriend without having to make new friends

[image: Go to places where you can meet women and get a girlfriend without having to make new friends]

This approach is essentially about making the most of the opportunities that you have throughout your everyday life, without having to go out and meet women in bars and clubs and so forth, but you still have to be ready to talk to women.

You have to be prepared to create a spark.

Some examples: A waitress at a cafe, diner or restaurant, receptionists, women at the gym, women at the bookstore, women on public transport.

Now, that (women on public transport) might seem like a bit of an awkward one and it is.

It's awkward to talk to people on public transport.

Pretty much everyone is in their head.

Everyone keeps to themselves.

There's often some weirdos on public transport and people don't really want to interact with anyone, but when you sit next to a girl and you start talking to her and she sees that you're a cool easy-going guy and you make her laugh a little bit, you and her enter a private world.

It's about you and her.

You're having a conversation, you get along and it stops feeling awkward.

So, for guys who are on planes, trains, or buses, you can talk to some women in those environments and get yourself a girlfriend.

It's not the number 1 place that you want to go around approaching women, but if you find yourself sitting next to a pretty girl, will you know what to say?

Will you know how to create a spark with her?

Will you have the confidence to do it?

Will you be prepared to make the most of the opportunity that you have?

Another place that you can meet women and get a girlfriend without having to go with friends is at a traditional or cultural events in your town or city.

Next one, at a shopping mall so women walking around shopping alone or with friends.

Another one at the shopping mall (women shopping), or women working in stores.

You can get a girlfriend in each of those situations without having to make new friends.

You just need to know what to say and do in each particular situation to attract her, connect with her and get her number.

By the way, if you're not aware, I have an eBook, The Flow, which is also available on audio (The Flow on Audio).

The Flow teaches you what to say and do to start conversations, make women feel instantly attracted to you, make women feel increasingly attracted to you the more they talk to you, make women want to contribute to the conversation and get to know you.

The Flow also gives you my best, tested, proven-to-work examples of how to initiate physical touch in a way that a woman wants and welcomes, how to get her phone number, how to initiate a kiss, how to get her on a date and how to initiate sex.

Additionally, if you want to learn extra examples for meeting women in all sorts of environments, then you may also be interested in The Flow Booster Pack.

The Flow Booster Pack includes 21 Great Ways To Get A Girlfriend, which is on audio and presented by myself, Ben and Stu who are the other coaches at The Modern Man.

Throughout the 7 hours of audio, we explain how we've gotten a girlfriend in 21 different situations such as a waitress at a cafe, diner, or restaurant, a receptionist, a woman at the gym, a woman at the bookstore, a woman on public transport, women at traditional or cultural events that are open to the public, a woman shopping at a shopping mall, a woman working at a shopping mall and so on.

21 Great Ways To Get A Girlfriend is a booster program.

It's an optional program that some guys get to boost the results that they're already getting from The Flow.

So, to summarize and make everything 100% clear about my programs, The Flow is my proven, simple, easy-to-use, step-by-step system for approaching, attracting and picking up women that you find attractive.

If you want to get additional examples of what to say and do in many different environments, then you may also be interested in The Flow Booster Pack.

Okay, so the other bonus tip is about getting over any resistance that you may have to meeting women, if you haven't done it for a while, or if you think that you may be nervous or lack confidence when you go out to meet women.

One of the best ways to explain it is that it's sort of like if you haven't exercised for a while.

If you haven't exercised for a while, you will feel a bit tired, a bit lethargic and you will probably feel like you can't be bothered going and doing some exercising, but if you go and do it, you feel recharged, revitalized.

You feel energized.

The same thing applies to going out there and meeting women.

Initially, you might feel like, "I can't be bothered talking to some girls. What if I go out there and I get bad reactions? What if I don't know what to say? What if this and that. I'll just stay at home and watch TV. I'll just play video games. I'll just play with my phone" and so forth.

Yet, when you are in front of a pretty woman that is smiling and talking to you, you feel energized.

You feel revitalized.

You wake up.

You're standing in front of a pretty woman who is looking at you smiling, interacting with you and you have a chance to pick her up.

That wakes you up.

When you know what to say and do to pick her up and you get the result, then you feel amazing.

You can then say goodbye to that lonely single life, or to feeling left out when you're in social situations where you see couples and they're together and you're the single guy.

You want to have a girlfriend, but you can't seem to find one, even though you do see some women every now and again throughout your everyday life that you find attractive, but are you talking to them?

The girl that you see at a cafe, the pretty woman working in a clothing store; are you willing to walk over and talk to any of those women?

If not, the next time you're interacting with a female barista or a woman working in a clothing store, are you going to be ready to make her feel a spark of attraction for you?

Are you going to be ready to do that?

If you prepare yourself to do it and then you do it, you will see that you're able to make women feel sparks of attraction for you and you can then follow through and get yourself a girlfriend.

So, what path are you going to go down to get yourself a girlfriend?

Are you going to get out there meet some new friends and get a girlfriend at the same time?

Or are you going to make the most of everyday situations where you see women that you find attractive and you're going to talk to those women, make them feel attracted to you, get some phone numbers and get yourself a girlfriend?

Commit to taking some action to getting this area of your life moving forward, to getting this area of your life sorted.

Write it down in a note on your phone, or record a voice recording of yourself on your phone saying what you are going to do.

Say what you're going to do below, then follow through on it.

Before you know it, you will have achieved it.

You will have gotten yourself a pretty girlfriend who loves you, feels attracted to you and wants to be with you.

5 Reasons Why Most Women You Like Already Have a Boyfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

There are so many guys out there who would love to get themselves a girlfriend, but they often find that the girls they really like are already taken.

[image: Why does every girl I like already have a boyfriend?]

Why does that happen and more importantly, how do you fix it so you can actually get yourself a girlfriend that you find attractive, you really like and you actually want to be with?

To help you understand that, I'll first explain the 5 most common reasons why a guy may feel as though all the good women are taken.

Then, I'll give you the solution and give you an example of something that you can say to a woman that you don't know, in a random situation to get something going between you and her.

So, let's begin with reason number one about why a guy may feel as though all the good women are taken, or all the girls he really likes already have a boyfriend.

1. He has been very unlucky up until this point

[image: Every girl I like has a boyfriend]

In this case, every woman that he has ever met, that he has really liked already had a boyfriend or a husband.

He has really bad luck when it comes to finding single attractive women.

Yet, he can change that.

I'll explain how and why as we go through this video.

2. Lately, he hasn't been meeting many new, single women that he finds attractive

[image: Lately, he hasn't been meeting many new, single women that he finds attractive]

Imagine this...

A guy wants to be able to get himself a girlfriend.

He works in an office and he goes to work on Monday to Friday.

On Friday nights, he sometimes goes for after-work drinks with coworkers and he usually just sticks within his group or talks to his coworkers.

He doesn't really venture out to talk to other women at the bar.

Then on the weekends, he may sometimes catch up with his friends who already have a girlfriend and he may not like any of the remaining single women in his social circle.

They may not be attractive to him.

He may like his friend's girlfriend, or he may like a girl at work and find her very attractive, but she's already engaged, got a boyfriend or is married.

So, as he goes through that cycle of his everyday life and week-to-week life, he doesn't meet many new, single women and get to know them enough to know that he really likes them.

The reason I say that is that, in many cases, when a guy feels as though all the good women are taken, he has gotten to know some women via his social circle or work who already have a boyfriend or husband.

He likes those women.

Those women even like him.

They get along.

He's able to talk to those women.

He feels comfortable around those women.

He likes those women.

He feels attracted to them.

Yet, with the women that he sees in his everyday life, or that he sees when he's out at a bar and he doesn't walk over and talk to, he doesn't actually know that he doesn't like them.

He may like a lot of those women that he finds attractive.

He may have a conversation with them and feel as though he really likes her.

Yet, how many new women is he actually meeting per month?

For many guys, it's going to be zero.

For some guys, it's going to be one or two women every month.

For some guys, though, they may have been trying to meet new women.

They may be meeting up to 10 new women a month and they're still unable to meet a single woman who they're attracted to and who feels attracted to them in return.

Why is that?

It will usually come down to reason number 3...

3. He has been meeting some attractive women who are single, but he doesn't really know how to attract them and pick them up

[image: He has been meeting single, attractive women, but doesn't really know how to attract them and pick them up]

As a result, single women that he likes may like him as a person or see him as a nice guy, but they won't really be interested in anything sexual, or in being his girlfriend.

So, if he talks to a woman like that and asks for her phone number, she might say something like, "Sorry, I have a boyfriend."

Many women will say something like that to hopefully let a guy down gently.

She doesn't want to say, "No, I am not interested in you. I wouldn't want to be with you. I'm not attracted to you," and so on.

Instead, she uses the excuse of, "Sorry, I have a boyfriend."

If that happens to a guy on a number of occasions, he may start to believe that all of the women he really likes already have a boyfriend.

In almost all cases, though, what he is missing is the ability to attract women as he talks to them. When you know how to attract women as you talk to them and those women are single, that's when you stop hearing, "Sorry, I have a boyfriend" as an excuse to end the interaction, or to let you down gently.

Suddenly, many of the single women you meet like you in a sexual and romantic way and you begin to enjoy your choice of women or you get yourself a girlfriend and settle down.

As mentioned, I'll give you an example of what to say to attract a woman as you talk to her later in the video.

For now, another common reason why a guy might feel as though all the women he likes already have a boyfriend is that...

4. He goes through his everyday life assuming that all pretty women must already have a boyfriend

[image: He goes through his everyday life assuming that all pretty women must already have a boyfriend]

"60% of unmarried relationships break up within 2 months and 70% end within 1 year."

Source: Social Science Data Collection. Stanford University, California

The reality is that most new relationships don't work.

They don't last, which results in men becoming single again and women becoming single again.

When you go into a cafe to order a coffee or some food, the barista may be single.

When you're walking through the park and you see a woman with her dog, she may be single.

When you're at a bar, most of the women there are going to be single.

Yet, in today's world, a lot of guys tend to think about dating apps and how that is interfering with their dating life and reducing their chances with women.

To put it into perspective for you, imagine a woman using a dating app in a big city, for example.

Tens of thousands of guys have swiped on her hoping to get a match.

Imagine now that she matches up with a hundred of those guys and they start texting her day and night.

Most guys who a woman will match up with on a dating app, will start texting her and texting her and texting her and it becomes way too much to manage.

So, what happens for a lot of women, is that they just use dating apps as a source of validation.

They see that all these guys are liking them.

They match up with some guys.

Some messages come through and she doesn't answer.

She doesn't get into text conversations with 50, 100 or 200 men at once.

She just doesn't do it.

In fact, according to a study of thousands of users of Tinder, 44.4% of people were using it to procrastinate (waste time) and hopefully boost their confidence.

I say ‘hopefully boost their confidence’ because in many cases, a dating app like Tinder doesn’t boost a guy’s confidence and instead kills his confidence.

He finds that he’s not getting any matches, or he’s only matching up with women that he’s not attracted to.

Additionally, in another study, only 29.2% of users said that they had met up with someone for a date via the app, whereas 70.8% hadn’t ever followed through and actually gone on a date with someone that they met via Tinder.

Of course, some women do use it for dates, but what you’ll find is that the majority of women who use it for dates aren’t very attractive and they’re swiping on guys that are better looking than them hoping that the good looking guy is going to accept her.

In some cases, the good looking guy will do that.

He’ll end up accepting a girl that he wasn’t initially very attracted to, but she grew on him and he thought, “Why not? I’ll just be with her.”

Yet, that same guy will go through his everyday life and see women that he is really attracted to: the girl working in a clothing store, the waitress, the girl behind the counter at a cafe, the receptionist, whatever it may be or at a bar.

He be thinking, “Wow, I like that girl,” but how many of them will he approach?

How many of them will he properly meet, where he has a conversation with them, attracts them and then picks them up?

That will usually be ZERO for most guys because most guys look at pretty women and assume that they must be taken.

She must have a boyfriend, or she must have hundreds of guys texting her on dating apps and she’s meeting up with them all the time.

Yet, in reality, although there are some pretty crazy women who go on dates with new guys every night of the week to get their dinner paid for, those women are the minority.

Most women aren’t engaging in ongoing text conversations with guys on Tinder and then following through and having loads of dates with all these different guys.

So, as you go through your everyday life, don’t just assume that every girl that you find attractive is taken.

Don’t go killing your confidences and your chances of being with her by assuming, “She is pretty, has to have a boyfriend. She’s beautiful, has to have a husband. All taken, all the good ones are taken.”

In reality, some of those women will be taken and some will be single.

Yet, almost all guys will look at her and think things like, “She must be taken” or, “She must have a long list of guys on a dating app who are trying to get a date with her. She must be going on dates with all those guys all the time” or, “She would have so many options that she wouldn’t give me the time of day.”

Yet, the reality is that when you talk to a woman in person and you make her feel attracted, it’s just you and her (not you, her and tens of thousands of guys on a dating app).

In that moment (in person), you and her are talking.

She is focused on you.

If you know how to make her feel attracted to you as you talk to her, she opens up to the interaction. It becomes about you and her.

It's a private connection between you and her.

It's a private world.

She's feeling attracted to you.

She's not thinking about all the hundreds of guys, or thousands of guys who have sent her messages on dating apps. "Hey, beautiful. You've got beautiful eyes. Can I take you out sometime?"

She's not thinking about that in that moment.

She's focused on you.

Now, of course, there are some women out there who have very high standards in men.

That's true, but those women are the minority.

The majority of women have what I call an open type, which means that they're open to being with different types of guys, as long as the guy knows how to make her feel attracted, create a bit of a connection and then get something going between him and her.

The fifth reason why a guy may feel as though all the good women are taken is that...

5. He only feels comfortable being himself around women who are taken

[image: He only feels comfortable being himself around women who are already taken]

So, if he's talking to his friend's girlfriend or wife, then he can feel comfortable because there's no pressure on him.

He's not trying to hit on her.

He's just hanging out, being himself and talking to her.

There's no intention there to pick her up, so he behaves like himself.

He's being himself around her.

He's being the cool, interesting guy that he is.

Yet, when he's around an attractive girl, an attractive woman that he really likes, then, oh, things suddenly change.

Suddenly he becomes more polite, more nice, more reserved, more hesitant than he is or wants to be.

The cool, interesting side of him is hidden.

It's suppressed.

He doesn't want to say the wrong thing and stuff things up.

He is worried that she might not like him.

He thinks that he needs to really try hard to impress her, so he puts on a bit of a character (i.e. he starts being nicer than he normally is, more polite and so on, more reserved).

As a result, single women that he finds attractive aren't finding him attractive because he's being too nice, or being too neutral, or he seems a bit awkward.

Yet, he does have a cool side to himself.

He has a confident side to himself as well.

He has an interesting side to himself, but it doesn't come out around girls that he feels very attracted to.

He suddenly feels a lot of pressure, like he needs to impress her and that causes his behavior and conversation style to change and become unattractive and unappealing to the woman.

So, what's the solution?

The solution is that you need to prepare yourself to get the result that you want.

In other words, you've got to get yourself ready to start a conversation with a woman that you find attractive, keep the conversation going, attract her, get her phone number, or kiss her, depending on where you meet her.

You've got to know what to say and do to make that happen so you can get the result.

For example: Would you know what to say if you saw this girl in a supermarket or a grocery store right now?

Would you know how to start a conversation with her, keep the conversation going, keep it interesting, make her feel attracted, connect with her and get her number?

Would you know how to do that?

How about this girl working in a clothing store?

Would you know how to attract her and get her number?

How about if you went to a bar and saw this girl, would you know what to say and do to attract her and pick her up?

Finally, this girl in the park with her dog.

Would you know what to say to start a conversation, make her feel attracted, keep the conversation going, keep it interesting and eventually get her number?

The thing is, most single guys who see a woman in the park with her dog and find her attractive, will assume that she must be taken, or that worry that other people at the park will think he's a sleaze, he's harassing women and so on.

Yet, here's the reality...

If you saw a normal guy walk over and talk to a woman in the park and they were getting along, having a conversation, having a laugh, what would you think?

People aren't going to come running from all directions towards a man and the woman who are talking, having a laugh and getting along and say, "Stop talking to each other. You two are getting along. You seem like you like each other. Stop talking to each other."

Instead, most people are just going to go on about their business and not even notice, but the people who do notice will think, "Oh, those two people like each other. They're having a nice conversation."

Or, if it's a single guy or a single woman, they may look on and think, "Why doesn't that happen to me? I walk my dog and no one comes over and talks to me."

It's not harassment or sleazy behavior to have a friendly conversation and create a spark with a woman.

[image: Approaching and flirting with a woman in a park with her dog]

So, if you saw a woman in the park with her dog and you found her attractive and she was sitting down with her dog, or she was walking slowly, or just hanging out in the park with her dog, you can walk over and say something like this to her.

“Hey, cute dog. It’s even cuter than its owner.”

Pause, smile and add, “Just kidding. It’s only a little bit cuter than it’s owner. Hey, I’m Dan, by the way. I was just walking past and I saw you with your dog and I thought, oh cool dog. I’ll come over and say hello. What’s your dog’s name? Maxine. How are you doing little lady? How about you? What’s your name? Jenny. Hello, nice to meet you. Can your dog do any tricks? What? You haven’t taught her any tricks? Come on. She’s got to be able to do backflips and things like that.”

You simply keep a conversation going with her.

[image: Approaching a girl at the park]

You make her laugh, you be confident, you connect with her and you flirt with her.

If both of you are off work that day or if it’s a weekend, you might walk together and get a coffee or get a juice.

If not, you just get her number.

You get her number, call her up, set up a date and then on the date, you’ll most likely kiss her and you might have sex.

If it doesn’t happen on the first date, it may happen on the second or third date and then you and her become a couple.

You’ll be walking along the street and a guy who feels as though all the good women are taken, looks on at you and thinks, “All the good women are taken. See, I like her. Why can’t I get a girl like that? Every girl that I know has already got a boyfriend or a husband. All the good women are taken.”

Yet, how many women is he properly meeting and does he know how to attract those women as he talks to them?

Does he know how to create a connection and then get her number?

Is he actually doing that, or is he meeting the same women over and over again through his friend group or at work?

Is he really venturing out?

If he does venture out and talk to new women, does he know how to attract them?

What’s important to understand is that all these other guys that you see with a girlfriend aren’t going to be better than you.

It’s not as if you’re not an interesting guy.

It’s not as if you can’t make a woman feel attracted as you talk to her, if you know how to do that.

These guys aren’t super amazing guys.

They’re just normal everyday guys in most cases and they’re able to get themselves a pretty girlfriend.

If you think that you can’t do that, then you need to think again.

You can do it.

By the way...

If you're serious about learning how to do this, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

It includes my best ever conversation starters, ways to make women feel instantly attracted to you as soon as you start talking to them, how to build up a woman's attraction as you talk to her, how to keep conversations going and keep them interesting, how to make a woman want to contribute to the conversation and want to get to know you, how to initiate touch in a way that she wants and welcomes, how to get her phone number or how to kiss her or have sex with her on the first night that you meet her.

Alternatively, you can get a phone number, set up a date, kiss her on the first date and have sex on the first, second or third date or whenever you want to do it.

All you have to do is follow the steps of The Flow and you and a woman will flow smoothly from one step to the next.

It's the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend.

So, Why Does Every Girl YOU Like Already Have a Boyfriend?

[image: All the good women are taken, or are they?]

After reading the points above in this article, what has been the case for you?

Has it been that you've just been very unlucky with meeting women (i.e. every woman that you've ever liked has already had a boyfriend)?

Has it been that you haven't been meeting many new women properly? You haven't really been expanding your options.

Has it been that you've been meeting new women, but you haven't been making them feel attracted? You've just been having friendly, neutral, or nice conversations with them.

Have you been assuming that all the pretty women you see are already taken, or assuming that there are no single women in your area?

Has it been that you only really feel comfortable around women that you're not trying to pick up, that are already taken and that's when you can be yourself? You haven't yet worked out how to be comfortable and confident around women that you find attractive.

Well, the solution for that, is to prepare yourself to get the result (i.e. get a girlfriend), by understanding how to attract women as you talk to them.

What happens, when you know how to attract a woman as you talk to her and you do that and you see that she's attracted, is that you then feel more confident.

You then know that if you talk to another woman, there's a high chance that you're going to be able to make her feel attracted.

If you talk to her and you make her feel attracted, your confidence increases even more.

You're like, "Okay. I've got this now."

Yet, if you just look at women that you find attractive and you don't talk to them, or if you talk to women that you find attractive and you just have friendly, neutral, or nice interactions with them and therefore don't create a spark inside of the woman, then you may end up going through your life thinking that all the good women are taken.

You may end up assuming that there's no quality women left for you, when in fact there are.

The reality is that you can make women feel attracted to as you talk to them.

It's not possible to attract and pick up every single woman in the world, but it is possible to attract and pick up many single women, including women that you see as being pretty and beautiful.

Other guys have done it.

Don't go through your life thinking that those guys are better than you and that you can't do it.

You need to start thinking differently about yourself.

You need to start giving yourself more credit.

You need to start believing in yourself.

You need to start understanding that it's not difficult.

You CAN make women feel attracted to you as you talk to them.

When you do that, you will then realize that you could have been enjoying your choice with women all this time.

Yet, at least you're doing it now; at least you're not going through more years or a decade or more of your life thinking that there are no pretty women for you.

At least you're not wasting more of your life believing that you can't get a girlfriend, you can't get laid and you can't fix it.

Other guys can do it, but you can't.

Come on, you CAN do it.

How to Get the Pretty Girl You're Dating to Chase You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Dating a pretty girl and trying to get into a relationship with her, versus dating a pretty girl and having her try to get you into a relationship, is a completely different experience.

Likewise, you can have a long-term relationship with a woman where you and her are kind of 50/50, or you can have a dynamic where you are trying to impress her all the time and hopefully get her to love you as much as you want to be loved, or you can have a relationship experience where she wants to impress you.

She wants to maintain your interest and she appreciates the fact that you love her and want to be with her.

She feels lucky that you have chosen her.

You can literally experience that all the way into a long-term and lifetime relationship with a woman.

For now though, let's start at the beginning...

How can you get a pretty girl that you're dating to chase you, really want to be with you and hope that she gets to be your girlfriend?

1. Let her feel like she is getting to be with you, rather than you are getting to be with her

[image: Make a girl chase by making her feel like she is getting to be with you, rather than you are getting to be with her]

In most cases, if a guy gets to the point where he has sex with a pretty woman that he finds really attractive, then he will immediately begin trying to secure an exclusive, boyfriend-girlfriend relationship with her.

So, she will be in the position where she gets to say, "Yes" or, "No" to an exclusive relationship and he needs to ensure that he impresses her enough to the point where she hopefully says, "Yes."

In other cases, if a guy is simply dating a pretty woman and they haven't had sex yet, he will usually be giving her the impression that he's hoping to be chosen by her.

He's hoping that she will let him be her boyfriend.

[image: How to get the girl you are dating to chase you]

For example: If a guy goes on a date with a pretty girl that seems to have gone well, he will often go home feeling excited about her becoming his girlfriend.

He will then start texting her sweet messages, asking if he can see her again and essentially, behaving like a guy who is falling madly in love with her and is hoping to become her boyfriend.

In many cases, the guy will text and text and text until she eventually friend zones him, even though he could have gotten her into a relationship if he used a different approach.

In his mind, he thought that he was using the right approach by showing her how excited he was and how much he was hoping to get into a relationship with her.

Now, there's nothing wrong with a guy doing that if he wants to.

A guy can do whatever he wants.

Yet, if he's dealing with a pretty woman, an attractive woman who is highly desired, then she is going to be used to the fact that most guys instantly fall in love with her and really want to have a relationship with her.

She's going to be used to that and it's not the type of experience she is really looking for, when it comes to a relationship.

What she is really looking for, is to feel like she would be lucky to be with the guy (i.e. that she needs to make sure that she impresses him, that she maintains his interest, so she can get him into a relationship).

When that type of dynamic is established, the woman feels more excited to be with the guy.

It's an excited type of love, rather than a reluctant type of love.

What a lot of guys make attractive women feel is a reluctant type of love.

[image: She is bored of feeling a reluctant type of love for guys and wants to experience an exciting type of love, where she feels very lucky to be with a guy. It's usually the guys who feel very lucky to be with her. She wants to feel like the lucky one for once.]

It's a reluctant type of relationship, where she is essentially giving the guy a chance.

He's getting to hang around her.

He's getting to have sex with her.

He's getting to be in a relationship with her and she is allowing that.

For her, it's like, "Alright, fine" and she will go along with it, but that isn't an exciting experience for an attractive woman.

It's so typical where the guy is hoping and trying really hard to be able to get her into a relationship with him.

Yet, what she really wants is to have that feeling where she is getting to be with the guy.

She's going to have to make sure that she impresses him and that she maintains his interest, otherwise, she is not going to get to have a relationship with him.

The thing is, a lot of guys are able to do that when it comes to women that they're not attracted to.

A woman that they're not attracted to is showing lots of interest and he eventually just gives her a chance. He thinks, "Alright, I'll have sex with her for a while" or, "I'll hang out with her for a while. Why not? I'll give her a chance."

She then feels that pressure where she needs to impress him, maintain his interest, build on his interest and make sure that she doesn't stuff things up.

Now, when it comes to an attractive woman, most guys aren't willing to do that to her.

They see it as being too risky.

"What if I stop showing a lot of interest in her and she then loses interest in me? What if I don't text her a lot and she stops texting me and then start seeing another guy? Then I've lost her. What if I suddenly stops trying to arrange dates and she then goes completely cold on me? What am I going to do then?"

Well, the way that it works, is that prior to getting to sex with an attractive woman, you should pursue her and make something happen between you and her.

Arrange a date, get to the date, attract her, kiss her, have sex with her on the first, second, or third date, whatever it is and get that to happen.

You've got to get to the point where you and her have had sex.

After that, you can then take the foot off the gas pedal/the accelerator.

You can let her text to you.

You can let her call you.

In most cases, if you've done a good job making her feel attracted and she enjoyed having sex with you, then she's going to want more, so she will then usually text you or call you.

Now, if she doesn't call you after three or four days, or doesn't text you after three or four days, it's totally fine to send her a text and say, "Hey beautiful, how are you doing?"

That is a totally different experience for a pretty girl, or a beautiful woman compared to what usually happens.

Usually, if she gets to the point where she has sex with a guy, the guy will almost always start saying that he really likes or loves her, or wants to have a relationship with her and then he blows her phone up with texts,

"Good morning." "Good night." "How is your day going?" Blah, blah, blah.

He's texting her all the time.

He wants to see her everyday and so on.

Now, the thing is, you can date a pretty woman, have sex with her and then immediately begin to push for a relationship and get that, in some cases.

You can do that, but it would be a totally different experience.

It will be her letting you have a relationship with her.

It will be her accepting that you're getting to be with her.

It's a completely different dynamic compared to this:

You make her feel very attracted when you're on a first date and on the second date.

She really likes hanging out with you.

You have sex.

She's totally into it.

She enjoys it with you and then after sex, you're not blowing her phone up with texts or in person.

You're not saying things like, "I love you. I want to have a relationship with you. You're the girl that I've been waiting for all this time" and so on.

You're chilled out about it all.

She is feeling attracted to you and she also feels like she wants to have a relationship with you.

The words "I love you" are on the tip of her tongue, but she doesn't want to say it.

She is hoping that when you and her part ways, you will text or call her so she can see you again.

Then, she checks her phone on the way home: No messages.

She wakes up in the morning: There's no good morning text.

She goes to work for the day:Â No text thenÂ either.

She gets home, she's watching Netflix, she's all alone, she's chilling out: No text from you.

What's going on?

Well, what's going on is that she's missing you.

She's going to be thinking about you.

You made her feel attracted on the date.

You connected with her.

You had sex.

She really enjoyed her time with you, but now, you're not chasing her and trying to get her to commit to a relationship with you.

So, then she starts wanting to have a relationship with you.

She starts feeling like she wants to get to have a relationship with you.

You're beginning to create that dynamic.

2. Let her be the one trying to get you to commit to a relationship and then eventually, allow her that privilege

As you continue to date her, have sex with her and hang out with her, she'll be waiting to hear that you want to be her boyfriend and you want an exclusive relationship, but when you don't say it, it will be on her mind.

She will get to the point where she will eventually say, "Well, where is this heading? What does that relationship mean? What are we?Â Just friends with benefits, or do you want something more?"

She might say that she really likes you and she wants to be your girlfriend.

She wants a committed relationship.

She doesn't want you seeing other girls.

She just wants to be with you.

To give her the relationship experience that pretty much every beautiful woman wishes she could have, then just take it easy at that point.

Don't immediately say, "Yes, alright, I'll commit to you."

Let her really want it.

Let her feel lucky to be getting you into a relationship.

So, at that point, you can say something like, "Well, I enjoy hanging out with you. You're pretty. You're cool. Let's just see how it goes."

Now, think about it.

In almost all cases, it's the pretty woman saying that to a guy.

The guy is totally smitten with her.

She's beautiful.

She's sweet.

She is friendly.

She is exactly what he wants in a pretty girl.

He's got the girl that he wants and he's trying to get her to commit to a relationship with him, like pretty much every other guy does when they meet a pretty girl, or a beautiful woman and they get a chance with her.

Yet, in this case, the tables have turned.

She is hinting at wanting a relationship or directly asking for it and the guy is (half playfully, but also half seriously) saying something like, "Well, let's just see how it goes. I enjoy hanging out with you. You're pretty, you're cool, but I haven't seen much of your cooking yet. Let's see how good of a cook you are."

[image: Woman cooking to impress a guy that she wants to commit to her]

In almost all cases, if you've been doing a great job of making her feel attracted to you and she's enjoying having sex with you, then she is going to want to step up to the plate there and cook something for you to impress you.

She is going to want to make sure that she is maintaining your interest and building up your interest to the point where she gets you into a relationship and eventually, you then say to her, "Alright, you and me are boyfriend and girlfriend" or, "Alright, we're exclusive, it's you and me."

She's excited to be with you.

She feels lucky to have gotten you into a relationship.

Now, with number 3 here, this is if you want to have a long-term relationship or marriage with her.

3. Maintain that dynamic while also showing your love and commitment to her

There's a line in a relationship.

There's a sweet spot, where things work really well and it makes for a happy relationship for life.

[image: Relationship sweet spot]

On one side of the line (the 'line' is the sweet spot in the middle of the image shown above), the guy is making the mistake of trying to always impress his woman.

He's trying to do everything for her.

He's trying to be the best man that he could possibly be to hopefully get her to truly love him, to love him in the way that he wants to be loved, to appreciate him in the way that he wants to be appreciated, to respect him and so on.

He's going to try and try and try and hopefully one day, she will give him that love, respect and appreciation.

That's a crappy type of relationship to be in for the guy.

It's not fun and really, it's not that much fun for the woman either because she isn't truly in love with the guy.

She doesn't truly feel attracted to him and she doesn't truly respect him.

Now, on the other side of the line (e.g. to the right of the sweet spot in the image above) is where the guy takes his woman for granted.

He just doesn't give a crap.

"If she wants to be with me, good for her. I don't have to do anything."

That approach can work for a while—when a woman is trying really hard to hopefully, one day get to the point where the guy loves her, respects her and appreciates her the way that she wants to be loved, respected and appreciated, but almost all women tire of that.

What usually happens is that the woman will eventually dump the guy and it's often at a point where he is feeling emotionally weak.

He's going through a difficult time in his life, becomes emotionally weak (i.e. he becomes needy of her, insecure about her devotion to him) and then, she dumps him and leaves him behind.

On either side of the line, a good relationship doesn't happen.

The guy who is sucking up to his woman all the time often gets cheated on, or he ends up getting really angry at her and cheating on her to make himself feel better.

It's not a good relationship dynamic, but the sweet spot, now, that's where it's at.

[image: Maintaining a relationship with a pretty girl]

It's a very particular type of relationship.

It's where the woman feels lucky to be with her man.

She wants to impress him.

[image: How to build a relationship with a pretty girl]

She wants to maintain his interest, but the guy also shows his love and commitment towards her.

He also respects her and appreciates her and she feels that, but she also feels as though she is lucky to be with him.

She also feels that he could lose interest if she doesn't continue to impress him.

He doesn't threaten her with that, but she gets the sense based on the type of man he is.

By the way...

If you enjoyed today's video and you're serious about mastering this area of your life, then I have two recommendations for you.

The first recommendation is for the single men watching this video, who want to easily attract women so they can get laid or get a girlfriend.

My best ever techniques for that are in my eBook, The Flow, which is also available on audio (The Flow on Audio).

The Flow is the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend.

It includes my best ever conversation starters, ways to keep conversations going and keep them interesting, how to make women instantly feel attracted to you as soon as you start talking to them, how to build up their attraction, how to make a woman want to contribute to the conversation and get something going between you and her, how to initiate physical touch in a way that she wants and welcomes, how to get her phone number, how to initiate a first kiss, how to initiate sex and so on.

The Flow is everything that you need to know, to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

The second recommendation is for men who are in a relationship with a woman, or men who want to prepare themselves to have the type of relationship experience I was talking about in this video.

The techniques in Make Her Love You For Life cause a woman to want to treat you well, to impress you, to maintain your interest, to build on your interest, to respect you and show you the appreciation that you deserve.

Of course, it's not all one-sided, though.

You will also learn how to make a woman feel loved and appreciated, so she only wants to be with you.

It's up to you how you want to approach your dating life and relationship life with women, but I recommend that you put yourself in the position where women that you want to date respect you, appreciate you and want to be with you and the woman that you decide to have a relationship with will respect you, appreciate you and only want to be with you.

That is a completely different life experience as a man, compared to trying to hopefully get a girl to like you enough to give you a chance, or trying to get your girlfriend or wife to hopefully show you the respect and appreciation that you deserve, if you put loads of effort into the relationship.

That's a completely different life experience.

You don't have to experience that.

You can create a dynamic with women from the start and throughout an entire relationship where they respect you, appreciate you and feel lucky to be with you.

To help you understand why, just think about what an attractive woman usually experiences.

It's usually the guy who feels lucky to be with her.

He's usually trying his hardest to hopefully not stuff things up, so he doesn't get rejected or doesn't get dumped.

Yet, you don't have to put yourself in that position and what's more, is that an attractive woman or a pretty girl doesn't want you to be in the position where you feel like you have to suck up to her and hopefully get a chance with her or in a relationship, do loads and loads of things for her to hopefully be respected and appreciated.

She doesn't want you to be in that position.

She actually wants to be in the position where she feels lucky to be with you, where she feels that natural desire to impress you, maintain your interest and build on your interest.

She wants to be in the position where she doesn't ever want to stuff things up with you, because she loves you so much and feels lucky to be with you.

Why Do Women Seem So Unapproachable?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Have a look at these women and decide whether or not you would feel as though the woman is approachable or unapproachable.

Would you approach her?

[image: Does she seem unapproachable to you?]

How about this woman, does she seem approachable?

[image: Does she seem unapproachable to you?]

How about this woman, does she seem approachable? Would you approach that woman, or does she seem a bit unapproachable?

[image: Would you approach her, or does she seem unapproachable?]

Over the years, many guys have contacted me and essentially said something along the lines of, “I really want to approach and talk to women that I find attractive, but they just don’t seem like they want a guy to come over and talk to them. They seem like they want to be left alone, like I would be interrupting them and they wouldn’t like that. They wouldn’t like it if I came over and said hello.”

So, even though the woman that he really likes is right there, he avoids her and remains alone.

In many cases, if he knew how to talk to her and make her feel attracted, she would like him.

He could then get her phone number and set up a date.

Before he knows it, he would be kissing her and having sex with her and enjoying a relationship with her.

So, the question is: Is it true that most single women are unapproachable, or is it just the guy imagining things?

What is the truth here? What is really going on?

Well, as you’ll discover from the following list, the answer isn’t black and white.

There are a lot of shades of gray when it comes to women.

However, the solution is very simple.

So, let’s go through the list.

1. Sometimes a woman is single and would love to be approached, but she seems like she doesn’t want to be approached because of her body language

[image: She is single and wants to be approached, but seems like she doesn't want to be approached because of her body language]

She seems a bit closed off like she’s in her own world and doesn’t want to be disturbed, but secretly, she is lonely and wants to have a boyfriend.

She doesn’t understand why it’s not happening for her.

She knows that other women haven’t had to approach men to get themselves a boyfriend, so she wonders why she is still single and alone.

Why doesn't a guy who likes her just come up and say hello?

2. Sometimes a woman doesn't want to be approached, but her body language seems the same as other women who do want to be approached

[image: Sometimes a woman does want to be approached, but her body language seems the same as other women who do want to be approached]

She also seems kind of closed off and in her own world, but in this case, she doesn't want to be approached.

3. Sometimes a woman is out with her girlfriends and acts like she just wants to have fun and doesn't want to be approached by men, when she is secretly hoping that a guy will come over and talk to her

[image: She secretly wants to meet a man, but acts like she just wants to have fun with her girlfriends]

If anyone would have asked her why she has gone out that night, she will say something like, "Oh, I just want to dance. I just want to have fun."

Yet, in reality, she is single and is secretly hoping to find herself a boyfriend.

4. Sometimes a woman would love to be approached, but is afraid of showing interest in being approached and then feeling like a reject when no guys talk to her

5. Sometimes a woman would love to be approached, but doesn't want to seem too easy or keen because she knows that many guys place less value on women like that

In almost all cases, a guy wants to get himself a girl who doesn't seem like she would go flirting with other guys if he wasn't around.

She is the sort of a woman who controls herself, who keeps to herself rather than going around flirting with loads of men in random situations.

6. Sometimes a woman would love to be approached, but displays closed body language to avoid being approached by weird guys, or old people who are walking around the streets and looking to have a conversation with any stranger who will show some interest

[image: She wants to be approached by men, but displays closed body language to avoid being approached by weirdos on the street]

So, her body language is closed and she keeps to herself rather than looking like she is openly inviting anyone to come and talk to her.

7. Sometimes a woman would love to be approached, but it doesn't like like that because she isn't reacting to men in the same way that they react to her

This reason, which is based on a scientific discovery, is that the sexual pursuit area of a human brain is 2.5 times larger in a man compared to a woman.

[image:]

This specific difference in the brain has a noticeable effect on how men and women pursue sex.

Men are physically wired to 'be on the look out' and to try find themselves a woman to have sex with, whereas women are physically wired to be more passive when it comes to dating or the pursuit of sex.

This is why almost all women simply wait to be approached by a man.

[image: She wants to be approached, but it doesn't seem that way because she doesn't react to men in the same way they react to her]

So, sometimes a woman would love to be approached, but it doesn't look like that because she isn't reacting to men in the same way that they react to her.

She is in her natural state of being passive, rather than going around approach men to find herself a boyfriend.

Of course, sometimes a woman will get so desperate that she will force herself to approach a man to see what might happen.

Yet, in my cases, it won't work out well for her.

For example: I get thousands of comments every month from all over the world and about every 3 to 4 months, a guy will comment saying that he got approached by a woman.

Some of the comments I've received have gone something along the lines of this...

A guy was at the gym.

A girl came over and approached him and was interested right away.

He didn't want to talk to her or continue the conversation because he felt it was too easy.

[image: She tried approaching, but got rejected]

He felt as though she was too keen.

There had to be something wrong there.

So, he rejected her.

He didn't keep the conversation going.

Another guy was approached by a woman, he didn't mention where, but a woman came over and talked to him and seemed interested.

She was pretty and the type of woman that he was looking for.

Yet, he felt he wasn't ready for a relationship at that point because he wanted to improve his career, or something like that.

So, he didn't keep the conversation going with her.

She had worked up the courage to come and talk to him and show interest and he had rejected her.

She may have walked away thinking that she wasn't pretty enough, or that she may have seemed desperate and therefore low value, but in reality, the guy said that she was pretty and he liked her, but he didn't feel like he was ready to have a girlfriend because of his career.

He needed to improve himself more first before he had a girlfriend.

Finally, another example: A guy commented saying that a woman approached him and he felt intimidated by the situation.

He felt like there was a lot of pressure on him to suddenly talk to her and keep the conversation going and he didn't know what to do with it.

Now, she probably felt a little bit rejected at that point.

She had worked up the courage to talk to a guy who ended up not seeming interested.

He didn't seem like he wanted to have a conversation with her.

The conversation dried up very quickly.

He seemed like she was making him feel awkward.

He seemed uncomfortable, so she ended up walking away.

On the flip side now, sometimes a guy will walk up to a woman and she will like him, but she'll feel intimidated by the situation.

She won't know what to say or she'll worry that if the guy got to know her, he wouldn't really like her and therefore, a relationship wouldn't work.

Her relationships in the past haven't worked.

She doesn't really feel like she can keep a guy in a relationship.

She wants to.

She sees her friends or family in happy relationships, but as for her, she continues to remain single.

Her relationships don't work out.

She wants to have a happy relationship.

She wants to get herself a boyfriend and have a relationship that works, but she hasn't been able to find that.

As a result, she may begin to worry that she is the problem.

So, what's a woman to do?

Likewise, what's a man to do?

Well, my channel is for men.

It's not for women and my advice here is for men.

If you want to get a girl, take a chance to advance your situation by talking to her, rather than waiting around and hoping that pretty women will come over and talk to you.

[image: Take a chance to advance your situation, by approaching and talking to women you find attractive]

It's always best to take control of the situation yourself by talking to a woman that you find attractive and knowing what you need to say and do to pick her up.

Personally speaking, I used to take guys out to approach and pick up women and I did that every weekend for about 4 years.

Guys would initially say that women seemed unapproachable and they didn't want to be interrupted, but when they actually approached, they found that almost all women were immediately open and friendly.

Additionally, I ran seminars for many years and guys have always been concerned with the same sort of things.

Women seeming unapproachable, like they don't want to be interrupted and so on.

[image: 80% of women are immediately friendly and open when you walk over and talk to them]

Yet, what I've always found from my personal experience and from teaching other men is that about 80% of women are immediately friendly and open when you walk over and talk to them.

About 10% of women are closed, but they then warm up if they see that you're a confident, easygoing guy, or a cool, easygoing guy, or a cool, easygoing guy.

The remaining 10% are very cold and many of them will remain that way for at least 5 to 10 minutes into the interaction.

Those type of women want to see that you're truly confident and you truly believe that you deserve to have a woman like her.

You're not just putting on an act of being confident.

You are truly confident in yourself, regardless of how women behave around you.

So, if you want to put the odds in your favor as a man, you have to build up the courage to talk to women in person.

From my experience teaching men, hearing from men all over the world who have used my techniques and from my own experience meeting women, you have an 8 out of 10 chance that a woman will react in an open and friendly way when you approach in person.

Compare that to dating apps where you are trying to compete with tens of thousands of other guys for her attention and it's pretty obvious that talking to women in person is where you have the advantage as a man.

Additionally, compare approaching a woman in person, making her feel attracted to you, getting her phone number, setting up a date and getting something going between you and her, versus a guy who waits and hopes that if he can just become successful enough in life, then one day, maybe 5, 10, or 20 years from now, women will eventually approach him and chase him.

They'll want to be with him because he's so successful and so on.

Yet, if a man does become very successful, then he's going to have another problem on his hands.

That is, he'll most likely worry that a woman will only like him for his money and success.

What then?

Well, he has just spent many years or decades working his butt off, in the hope that one day women will like him because of that.

Meanwhile, other guys have been getting girlfriends regardless of what stage of life they're at.

Other guys haven't needed to become successful in life to get a girl.

They just had to speak to her, make her feel some attraction and get things moving along between themselves and her.

So, the solution as a man is to put the odds in your favor by approaching and talking to women that you find attractive.

You have an approximate 80% chance that a woman will be friendly and open if you talk to her in person.

If you can deal with those odds, then you can have direct access to pretty women, without waiting around to hopefully be chosen out of tens of thousands of other guys on a dating app.

Just say hello to her in person.

That is where a man is in the position of power for many reasons, one of which is that almost all men are too afraid to approach, so there's hardly any competition.

If you have the confidence to approach and you know how to make a woman feel attracted to you as soon as you start talking to her, then you can attract and pick up many of the women that you meet.

Of course, it's not possible to pick up every pretty woman in the world, but you can attract and pick up many of the pretty women that you meet.

Best of all, these women actually want to be picked up, so they can get themselves a boyfriend.

Yet, they don't make it obvious, which is why they seem so unapproachable to the majority of men.

By the way, if you want to get this area of your life sorted now, rather than waiting around for women to hopefully come rushing after you and approaching you 10 or 20 years from now, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version The Flow on Audio.

When you read or listen to The Flow, you will unlock a type of confidence in yourself that will completely change your life with women from now on.

This confidence comes from knowing exactly what to say and do to start conversations with women, how to make them feel immediately attracted to you as soon as you start talking to them, how to keep conversations going and keep them interesting, how to make a woman want to contribute to the conversation and hopefully get something going between you and her, then how to initiate touch in a way that she wants and welcomes, how to initiate a first kiss, how to get her phone number, how to have sex on the first day or night that you meet her, or how to initiate a kiss and sex on the first, second, or third date; the choice is yours.

When you follow the simple steps of The Flow, you and a woman will smoothly flow from one step to the next.

It's the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend.

No One Cares About You Talking to Women, Just Like You Don't Care About Other Guys Talking to Women

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that many guys don't approach women because they're worried about what other people may think.

What will people think if he walks over and talks to a woman?

Well, I'll ask you.

What have you thought when you saw a cool, easy-going guy talk to a pretty woman and the guy and the girl were immediately getting along with each other?

They were talking and laughing together.

They seemed like they were connecting with each other and so on.

Did you think, "That guy is a loser! That guy is doing something wrong! Everyone! Everyone, look at him! The guy is talking to a pretty woman. They're getting along. We need to stop this!'?"

It goes without saying that people don't react in that way.

In almost all cases, people look on and they actually feel a bit jealous.

They actually feel a bit left out.

Many people look on and think, "Why isn't my life like that? I want a girl like her? What does that guy have that I don't?"

Or, if it's a single girl, "Why doesn't a guy come over and talk to me like that? Why am I single? Why am I not being approached? What's wrong with me?"

Of course, if you were to look at that woman, she wouldn't necessarily seem like a woman who wants to be approached.

She wouldn't necessarily be sitting there looking around the room and hoping that some guy makes eye contact with her and comes over and approaches her.

She's most likely going to be playing with her phone, or drinking her coffee, or eating her food and minding her own business.

She's going to be sitting there and if she's single and she does feel a bit depressed and left out, then she's going to be feeling that.

She's going to be thinking, "Why can't I get a boyfriend? What's wrong with me?" and so forth.

Yet, from a guy's perspective, he may look at her and think, "Wow. She's pretty, but she doesn't seem like she wants to be approached. If I go over her, I'm going to be interrupting her. That's not cool. I can't do that."

[image: Take a chance and talk to her]

So, a pretty girl that he really likes is right there, but he doesn't do anything about it.

She goes this way and he goes that way and he almost certainly never sees her again.

The reality is that if you're in a big city, you will rarely see the same girl again.

If you're in a small town, you may see her again, but by the time that you work up the courage to talk to her, she may already have a boyfriend.

So, if you see a girl that you find attractive, take a chance.

Walk up and say hello.

When Your Politeness is Mistaken For Nice Guy Behavior

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Many guys grow up being taught to have good manners, or at least to be polite and that's a good thing.

It makes for a civilized society.

Yet, what many guys don't get taught when they're young, or when they've grown up and are living their adult life, is that in order to attract women on purpose, you have to be able to switch into another mode of interacting, rather than just defaulting to having polite, superficial, well mannered conversations with women.

[image: You need to create a spark of attraction with her by flirting, rather than just being polite]

So, this is how it works...

A guy will see a woman that he instantly finds attractive, but if he doesn't create a spark of attraction inside of her based on how he talks to her and instead, just has a polite, well mannered interaction with her, then she will almost always not feel a spark of attraction for him.

Instead, she will just look at him as being a typical, nice guy even though he may not be a typical nice guy.

He might actually be a cool guy.

He might be quite tough.

He might be the sort of guy who would stand up for himself if he needed to.

He might be respected amongst friends or family, but when he interacts with a woman that he finds attractive, he defaults into just having a polite, well-mannered interaction.

As a result, most of the women that he meets just see him as being a nice guy.

They mistake him for that.

Then, there's another type of guy; a guy who makes a woman feel sexually attracted to him by creating a spark as he talks to her.

This particular guy also treats women well as he talks to them and shows some manners, or nice behavior at times.

Women refer to him as a charming guy.

Charming guys universally attractive to women, whereas nice guys are seen as just a friend, or a last resort option.

So, if you don't want women to mistake you as a nice guy and therefore overlook you as a sexual or romantic option, then you've got to be willing to switch into another mode of interacting rather than just defaulting to polite, well mannered conversations.

When you switch into this mode of interacting that I'm going to give you an example of now, women see you as a charming guy and immediately begin to feel sexually attracted to you.

[image: Missing out on an opportunity to flirt with a woman at Starbucks because he just defaults into polite interactions with women]

For example: A guy may go into a Starbucks, order himself a coffee and wait over in the waiting area to collect his coffee.

While he's waiting, he may see a pretty woman walk in.

Physically, she is his ideal type of woman.

She's the right type of age, she has the right type of look and so on.

She orders her coffee and then comes over to the waiting area.

While she's standing there playing with her phone, she accidentally bumps into him.

She then says something like, "Oh, sorry, I didn't see you there, sorry about that."

The guy, who isn't a soft, wimpy, nice guy and may actually be a cool guy, just defaults into having a polite, well-mannered interaction with her.

He has an opportunity to create a spark with her, but he just defaults into polite, well-mannered interactions.

For example: She bumps into him apologizes and then he says, "Oh, no, that's right. You're fine, never mind."

Nothing, but a friendly, polite, superficial and forgettable interaction.

On the other hand, if a charming guy is bumped into by a woman that he finds attractive and she then says something like, "Oh, sorry, I didn't see you there, sorry about that."

He will say something like this (in a playful way and with a smile), "So rude, bumping into people at Starbucks like that. Shocking, very bad manners."

Almost every woman on the planet will understand that the guy is joking and they'll have a bit of a laugh.

He can then say something like this, "No, I'm just kidding, you're alright. I'm Dan, what's your name?" and she then answers (e.g. "Jenny").

He can then continue the conversation with her, make her feel more attracted to him, connect with her a little bit and get her number.

He can then call her, set up a date and start having a relationship with her.

That can be the path he goes down with that particular woman, compared to just having a polite interaction with her when she bumped into him and saying, "Oh, no, that's right, never mind, you're fine," and then nothing.

It's just an interaction that ends.

So, what's important to understand is that there is a different mode of interacting with a woman if you want to make her feel attracted to you.

It's called flirting.

The dictionary describes flirting as follows,

Flirt (verb): To behave as though you're attracted to or trying to attract someone, but for amusement rather than with serious intentions. To court triflingly or to act amorously without serious intentions.

Another way to describe flirting, is that it's where you feel enough attraction for a particular woman that you're motivated and willing to have more than just a polite well-mannered interaction.

You're not talking to her as though she's just some random woman that you don't have any attraction for.

You feel attracted to her and as a result, you can be bothered creating a more fun, interesting interaction, rather than just having a polite, well mannered, forgettable interaction.

You're willing to use your intelligence to create a bit of a joke and you're willing to be present in the moment, rather than being distant.

You're willing to playfully tease her.

You're willing to put in a little bit more effort into the interaction, because you find her attractive and you're interested in her.

The reason why I explain it in that way, is that it's important to understand and remember that many women are insecure and don't always know when a man likes them.

So, if they bump into a guy at a cafe, or whatever it may be and the guy just gives her a polite response or reaction, she doesn't necessarily know that the guy is a cool guy, or that he wants to have sex with her, he'd love to have a relationship with her and that they'd have a fun relationship together and so on.

He's just reacting to her in a polite way, so many women will assume that he doesn't like them, he may have a girlfriend already, he isn't interested in talking to her or just wants to have a polite interaction and so on.

Yet, when a guy starts to flirt with her, in other words, he feels enough attraction for her that he feels motivated and he's willing to play with her a little bit in a conversation to see what might happen, then that's a completely different story altogether.

It helps a woman to stop feeling insecure.

She feels as though the guy is interested in her.

She starts to wake up to the interaction and flirt back with him.

So, what happens for a lot of guys is that they're aware of the fact that nice guys finish last, or that women don't find nice guys very attractive and so on.

The guy understands that and may say to himself, "Alright, I'm not going to be a nice guy. I'm not going to be one of those wimpy nice guys. When I talk to a woman, I'm not going to behave in a very polite way. I'm going to show her that I'm cool, that I don't care, that I'm all good and I'm not some needy nice guy."

Yet, guys like that end up interacting with women in a neutral way.

For example: If the woman bumped into him and said, "Oh, sorry about that, I didn't see you there," the guy, who is used to being neutral with women might say something like this, "Oh, no you're alright."

Then he just stands there, Mr. cool, Mr. Indifferent, I don't care. I'm not a needy, nice guy, I'm not trying to suck up to women.

Yet, by approaching his interactions with women in that way, he's not getting results.

He may feel better than a nice guy who's sucking up to women, but he's still not getting the results that he wants, which is having sex or relationship with attractive women.

He's not getting that.

So, an important thing to remember, is that if you want to be able to enjoy your choice of women, then you've got to avoid defaulting into just polite, or neutral conversations with women that you find attractive.

You got to be ready to be able to switch into flirting with her.

Let her see you're feeling enough attraction for her that you're willing to play with her and see what happens.

When you do that, you will see that women do wake up in interactions with you.

They light up, they feel attracted and they start to flirt back.

When that happens, women immediately begin to look at you in a sexual and romantic way.

You can then begin to enjoy your choice of women.

As you may have seen while going through your everyday life, other guys are able to do it.

They're able to turn on the charm and get the girl.

You can do it too.

It's simply a matter of you being able to switch into another mode of interacting with a woman and then knowing how to move things forward from there.

By the way, if you enjoyed this video and you're serious about getting this area of your life sorted, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

Amongst many other things, such as how to be confident when you're talking to women, how to make women feel instantly attracted to you, how to connect with women, how to take things to the next level, such as getting a phone number, kiss, sex or date, you will also learn my best ever examples of a particular type of humor that I use, which automatically creates a flirtatious vibe between you and a woman.

The examples make her laugh, make her feel attracted, make her flirt with you and cause her to open up to the interaction and want more.

All you have to do is follow the simple steps of The Flow and you get the girl.

The Flow is the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend.

You Don't Need to Become a BadÂ Boy, or Ditch Your Manners to Attract Women

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that if you do see yourself as a good guy, if you feel as though you are a good guy and you like being a good guy, then you don't have to change that.

You don't have to become a bad guy to attract women.

It's true that women can feel attracted to bad guys, bad boys, thugs and so on, but you don't actually have to go down that route if you don't want to.

You can be the good guy that you are, if that's who you are, but you have to be able to switch into another mode of interacting (i.e. flirting) when you're interacting with women, so they see you as a charming guy and have a sexual and romantic interest in you.

It doesn't require you to treat women badly, or stop having manners.

It also doesn't require you to become a bad guy.

You just have to be willing to flirt with women to create a spark and when you're willing to do that and you know how to do it, you will see that you're able to make many of the women that you meet feel attracted to you, including pretty and beautiful women.

You can literally enjoy your choice of women.

One of the reasons why, is that most guys out there don't understand what flirting is.

They simply don't know how to do it, or they're worried about having anything other than a polite, or neutral interaction with a woman.

Yet, the guys who get laid and get a girlfriend easily are the ones who switch into another mode of interacting when they meet a woman that they find attractive.

You can switch into that mode of interacting and when you do, you will see that women feel a spark with you.

They see you as a charming guy.

They have a sexual and romantic interest in you.

You can then enjoy your choice of women.

(Motivational Video For Men): Your Remaining Life With Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

I recently took some time away from city life to be by the ocean, to be by the beach with my woman and two others, who you will see later in the video.

While I was there watching the waves roll in, I had a realization about life that I want to share with you.

I was looking at the waves and thinking about time.

How time is always pushing forward; it doesn't wait for anyone.

[image: Decades of your life are like waves passing by at the beach]

You can look at the waves as being decades in your life; your teens, 20s 30s, 40s, 50s and beyond.

Essentially, with a wave, it exists and then it's gone.

With your time in life, once you have lived that particular decade, it's gone.

You can't go back and live it again.

Whatever you missed out on during that time, you missed out on.

The question is though, what are you going to do with the remaining waves of your life?

Is it going to be the same old story for you, missing out on what you really want to experience with women?

To put all this into perspective for you, I'll show you some comments now that guys left under a video of mine, where I talked about a mistake that guys make, which prevents them from getting a girlfriend.

That mistake is, thinking that they're not good enough...yet.

In the video, I explained that many guys do that (think that they're not good enough for women...yet) to themselves for years and even a decade or more in their life and they end up missing out on getting what they want with women.

Wave after wave of their life passes them by, with a mindset where they're thinking that they're not good enough for women yet.

Here's the first comment.

“When I was 20 years old, I told myself – don't worry, when 25 you'll get a beard, look more manly and handsome, a job and a car. Guess what, 26 now I am losing my hair, patchy beard and I am doing a PhD abroad. So no car, no job and I am getting fat. If I continue to live with this mindset of waiting for the better version of myself, I will never have a girlfriend believe me. Yes, I've never had one.”

Next comment.

“I'm 32, but I've been saying that first point since I was in my early teens. I always thought I needed a better job or better clothes or better anything before I deserved a girl and lo and behold, I have struggled to meet a girl up to this day. I wouldn't wish that kind of mentality on anyone. It's a toxic life-destroying mentality."

Very true.

Next comment.

"I can't believe I'm 37 years old and I still don't got a freaking woman. Not even a hello. Lol. That's bull crap, I'm bitter about that. Watching other guys get the babes while I sit and get nothing, just watch and feel torment inside my soul, but anyway, thanks, man."

Next comment.

"Like many of the guys comments here, your first mistake sums me up. I've been telling myself I am not ready because of this and that and it's been over 20 years now that I'm single and well into my 50s. I can't take it anymore."

"I'm 38, I will be 39 in December. I just didn't feel ready before, but every day I feel I'm getting there. I've had chances over the years, but didn't realize it at the time due to my inexperience until months, even years later."

"I have always stopped myself from approaching women thinking I am not ready, thinking I would approach her after I built a better body or have better clothes or something or the other."

With one of those comments, the guy was saying that he hasn't had any women, not even a single hello.

Waves of his life are passing by and he's waiting around hoping that someday, for some reason, women are going to start saying hello to him (i.e. maybe because he's a good man or something).

That's not how it works.

If you want a girl, you've got to take the chance to talk to her.

Sometimes, girls will talk to you.

Great.

That's called getting lucky.

Yet, if you haven't been getting lucky with the types of women that you really want, then you need to be able to talk to them.

[image: Take a chance to talk to women you like during this wave of your life, otherwise it will pass by, never to be seen again]

You have to take a chance to talk to them during this wave of your life, otherwise, the wave passes by.

Then, for some guys, they end up in their 40s and 50s and their hormones start to drop, their testosterone starts to drop and as a result, their interest in women starts to decrease and they end up leaving comments like this.

"Do you know what, I appreciate everyone's thoughts on here, but I'm almost 50 and I just don't care anymore. The novelty of women has worn off, at least for me. Good luck to those who still wish to persevere with the juvenile game. Of course, if I were to meet my ideal woman, whoever that bloody is, that would erase everything I've just said, What are the chances?”

So, what's really going on there?

Well, he has either experienced a drop in testosterone and as a result, he doesn't have the same type of sexual urges anymore (i.e. hHe doesn't wake up with a boner and have that urge to want to stick it in a woman and as a result, his thinking begins to change. He doesn't look at women the way that he used to and the novelty starts to wear off. He doesn't really care about women anymore because his hormones have changed).

Alternatively, he hasn't been able to make a relationship work.

He has experienced failed relationships (all throughout his life) and is tired of it.

As a result, the novelty of women has worn off for him.

Yet, he's saying that if he meets his perfect woman, then he'll change his thoughts about that, he'll be with her and be happy.

The question is though, will a man like that, or even a younger guy who is 21, for example, be ready and prepared and confident enough to walk over and talk to an attractive woman that he sees?

[image: Will he have the confidence to talk to an attractive woman that he sees, or will he let the opportunity slip through his fingers like he always has in previous waves of his life?]

So, many guys end up missing out on what they really want with women because they either fear failure, or success.

If a guy fears failure, he fears being rejected and fears not being able to keep a conversation going long enough to be able to pick her up.

He's worried about getting rejected and stuffing it up, so he doesn't do it.

Alternatively, if a guy fears success, he worries that if he gets himself an attractive girl, he won't be able to keep her.

He worries that he won't be able to handle it.

She'll be too much for him.

She'll be too good for him.

She'll end up dumping him and going for some other guy.

The thing is, if you want to be happy with yourself when it comes to your life with women, get over your fear of talking to the types of women that you find attractive.

Learn how to talk to them and make them feel attracted to you and you will see that you can attract, pick up and get into relationships with those type of women.

Then, choose your ideal type of woman; choose a woman who is perfect for you.

Don't accept anything less than what you really want in a woman.

When you find her, don't be afraid to commit to the relationship, to make it a relationship that lasts for life.

The thing is, I used to be personally against having children and getting married (for me, not for everyone else).

For me, I didn't want to have children, I didn't want to get married.

[image: Dan Bacon - before meeting my wife]

All I wanted to do during a certain wave of my life, during my 20s and 30s, was to enjoy my choice of women.

I wanted to enjoy the power that I discovered of being able to attract women as I talked to them.

So, I did that.

I enjoyed it and it was awesome.

Yet, eventually, I wanted something else and I opened up to having a serious relationship.

I met my wife when she was 20 and I was 35 and we've been together for over seven years now.

[image: Dan Bacon - wife]

[image: Dan Bacon with wife]

By the way...

I said that there would be two others later in the video and they are the two additions that have come into our life; our twin baby girls.

So, Dan is now a dad.

[image: Dan Bacon - wife and twin girls]

On that note, I want to say that I don't think having a family is for every man.

I don't think that every man has to get a woman pregnant, have children and have a family.

That's not the only way that you can expand your relationship with a woman.

However, for the men who find their ideal woman and they want to have a family and expand the love that they're experiencing together as a couple into a family, then I say go for it.

Don't be afraid to experience and expand your life as the decades go on.

If you don't go after what you really want with women when you're single and you end up missing out on the type of experiences with women that you wish you could have, then you'll almost certainly end up looking back on previous waves of your life with regret.

You'll think to yourself, why didn't I talk to the type of girls that I really wanted?

Why did I think that I wasn't good enough for women, when other guys who had the same type of looks as me and had the same type of level of success and progress in their life as me were enjoying beautiful women, enjoying pretty women?

Why did I think that I wasn't good enough?

Why did I do that to myself?

Likewise, if you have a relationship with a woman that you truly love and you're afraid to commit and she then ends up dumping you, then you're almost certainly going to end up regretting that.

So, don't be afraid to go after what you want in life and to let your life grow and expand.

Don't be afraid of failure or success.

You can do it.

You CAN experience the type of life that you really want to experience with women.

How to Be Confident With Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

For a lot of men, confidence remains a complete mystery to them for their entire life.

They never truly get to understand how to be confident around women that they find attractive and as a result, it negatively affects their interactions and relationships with women for their entire life.

So, if confidence has been a mystery for you up until this point, then it's not going to be anymore.

I'm going to explain what confidence is, how a man can be confident with women and a mistake that some guys make, which causes them to lose more and more confidence with women as they go through life.

What is Confidence?

What comes to mind for you when you hear the word confidence?

What is it?

Maybe not for you, but for other men, they will say things like, "You either have it or you don't" or, "it's this thing that you can't really explain. It's a sort of feeling, it's not something that you can put into words" and so on.

Yet, thankfully, those men are wrong.

The definition of confidence is crystal clear.

Now, the thing is though, there are many different definitions of confidence if you look them up in the dictionary, but you can boil it all down to one simple definition.

Belief in yourself and your abilities.

Now, the belief in yourself part of confidence is pretty easy to understand.

You have confidence because you believe in yourself.

Yet, how about the abilities?

What abilities do you need to have to be confident with women?

To be completely confident with an attractive woman from start to finish, you need to have the ability to:

1. Start conversations.
2. Keep conversations going and keep them interesting.
3. Attract her as you talk to her.
4. Move in for a kiss.
5. Get a phone number.
6. Set up a date.
7. Initiate sex.
8. Start a relationship.
9. Keep the relationship together.
10. Keep the sexual spark alive between you and her.

11. Remain in love for life.

For some guys, if they see a start to finish list like that, they may feel a bit overwhelmed and feel as though it's too difficult.

Yet another way to look at it is when you pass certain challenges in order to get to the next level in a video game.

If you are confident when playing video games, then you're usually just going to cruise through levels and enjoy yourself.

Yet, if someone wasn't very good at playing video games and they kept getting killed in the game, then they would probably see it as being too difficult for them.

In reality, the game isn't too difficult.

You simply need to know what you're doing and then do it.

Another example is if a man is putting a recipe together to create a tasty meal.

If he has never cooked it before and he looks at the ingredients, it might seem difficult.

There are a number of ingredients and a number of steps involved, but if he follows the steps and puts the ingredients together, the outcome will then be a tasty meal that he can enjoy.

It's not too difficult; it's just a matter of knowing what to do and then doing it.

So, following on with the recipe/cooking example and talking about confidence with women now...

How can a man build confidence with women?

What are the ingredients and what does he need to do, to get to the point where he can enjoy a tasty meal?

Well, the thing is, some men are aware of how to do certain things along the way with a woman.

For example: A man may have 8 out of 10 level confidence when it comes to starting conversations with women, but 3 out of 10 confidence when it comes to keeping conversations going and keeping them interesting.

So, in order for him to feel confident to talk to women, he's going to need to fix that particular area.

When he improves his ability to keep conversations going and keep them interesting when talking to women and he does that, then he'll go from a 3 out of 10 confidence, to maybe 8 out of 10, or maybe even 10 out of 10 because he will really get it.

Yet, the recipe isn't complete, simply being able to talk to women.

For example, some guys are fine with starting to talk to women and keeping conversations going.

Then, when it comes to making a move (r.g. moving in for a kiss or asking for a phone number), that's where they get stuck.

So, if a guy doesn't have the type of confidence that he wants with women, then he first needs to identify the areas where he is lacking in ability.

He then simply needs to improve those areas, interact with women, see that he can now do it and then he will have increased belief in his abilities.

Increased belief in his abilities equals increased confidence.

If you remember the definition of confidence, it's about believing in yourself and your abilities.

To believe in yourself and your abilities with women, you need to be able to handle the different ingredients involved in attracting, picking up and being in a relationship with a woman.

If a man is confident in all of those areas, then he will be truly confident with women.

If a man lacks confidence in his abilities in some of those areas, then he won't be truly confident with women.

So, now that we've talked about what confidence is and how to build it, here is a mistake that some guys make, which causes them to lose more and more confidence with women as they go through life.

The Missing Ingredient in Confidence

A lot of the men who don't ever truly achieve confidence, will look at other men who are confident around women, or confident in life and they'll assume that those men have a special quality that they can't have

Yet, the reality is that confidence is about belief in your abilities.

Truly confident men believe in their ability to effectively handle each situation that they find themselves in with an attractive woman.

As a result, their body language changes, their behavior changes, their vibe changes and the way that they talk changes.

They emanate a different energy than a guy who doubts his abilities because he either doesn't have the abilities, or he makes this mistake that I'm going to tell you now.

That is, he encounters certain situations with women, is unable to handle it, is unable to remain confident and then he goes away thinking that he can't be that confident with women, he can't be as confident with women as other guys are.

Maybe it's just his fate, maybe it's just who he is, he can't be that confident.

He will start to convince himself that he isn't capable of fixing the problem that he has been experiencing with women, whether that be with pickup or relationships.

Yet, what he doesn't realize (and this is the missing ingredient) is that he's just a few areas away, or a few insights away from being able to handle the situation and then believe in his ability to handle the situation and as a result, be confident in that particular situation.

I'll give you a couple of examples to help you understand how it works.

The first example is with picking up women and the second example is in a relationship or a marriage.

So, with the pickup example, a guy might feel fairly confident around an average looking girl.

He may believe in his ability to attract her and get something going.

Yet, if he talks to a very pretty girl or a very attractive woman, he doubts his ability to make her feel attracted enough to want to be with him.

Additionally, if he encounters a situation where she's not contributing much to the conversation initially, he may do what most guys do in that situation.

He may assume that he's being rejected or assume that she doesn't like him enough to want to talk to him.

He doesn't have the awareness that I'm going to give you now, which is that many attractive girls will do that (not contribute much to the conversation initially) for the first few minutes to test a guy's confidence.

Most attractive girls don't want to get with a guy who feels like he's not good enough for her and is hoping to get lucky.

He is hoping that she's going to be nice to him, she's going to contribute lots to the conversation, she's going to laugh at all of his jokes.

As a result, he is then going to feel confident enough to ask for her phone number and so on.

Most attractive girls want a guy who can remain confident, regardless of how she is behaving initially.

So, if a guy doesn't have that awareness and awareness of other things involved in keeping a conversation going and keeping it interesting when talking to an attractive woman, he may assume that it's not possible for him to attract pretty women because it never seems to go anywhere when he tries.

Yet, he is simply unaware of how to handle that type of recipe, the recipe of an attractive woman, a pretty girl.

He is unaware of what to do to get her to drop her guard, open up and show him her friendly, easy-going side that she doesn't show to other guys.

If he improved his ability of how to instantly make a pretty woman feel attracted to him and how to keep a conversation going, then he would see that he can now do that and as a result, he would become a lot more confident with pretty women.

Yet, if he doesn't gain that ability or doesn't find out that pretty women often don't contribute a lot to the conversation initially to test a guy's confidence, then he may walk away thinking that he's not good enough for an attractive woman.

Whereas, another guy will believe that he is good enough and he will know that he can pick her up because he knows what to do.

So, he will just go ahead and do it.

He will then have himself a pretty girlfriend or pretty wife.

Meanwhile, the guy who lacks confidence with women will look on at other guys and wonder, "Why can they get a pretty girlfriend when I can't? What is wrong with me?"

What he doesn't understand is that there's nothing wrong with him.

He can have a pretty girlfriend or pretty wife (like other guys have done. Guys who look like him, look similar to him or don't even look as good as him).

He simply needs to have the ability to handle certain situations with an attractive woman.

He needs to know how to put the recipe together, so to speak.

It's not difficult.

Other guys can do it and he can do it too.

He simply needs to improve the areas that he is lacking in ability.

He doesn't need to go through his life believing that he's not good enough for attractive women.

As a result, never feeling confident around attractive women.

He doesn't need to do that to himself.

Okay, so the next example of how men make this particular mistake is in a relationship.

In a relationship, if a woman throws new ingredients into the mix, such as not being as affectionate as she used to be to see if he becomes insecure, throwing tantrums to see if he gives her more power in the relationship, or not treating him as well as she used to to see if he puts up with it, a man needs to know how to handle that and keep his woman in line so she treats him well.

He needs to know how to ensure that she is loving and respectful towards him.

If a man doesn't know how to handle the different ingredients that a woman will throw into the mix when in a relationship, it can cause him to lose confidence in his ability to keep the relationship together.

Additionally, it can cause him to start to doubt whether she actually feels attracted to him, or whether she's actually in love with him or not.

That can cause some guys to go into their shell and just become numb in a relationship, where they put up with being treated like that

Alternatively, a guy may become insecure, jealous and controlling.

Alternatively, a guy might start to treat her badly in return for how she is treating him.

None of those approaches are a recipe for success.

Those approaches (i.e. going into his shell, becoming jealous and controlling, treating her badly to get revenge on her for how she has been making him feel) are a recipe for disaster.

What a guy needs in a situation like that, is more awareness of why a woman behaves in a certain way, so he doesn't have to take it personally and instead can use it to strengthen the love, respect and attraction that they feel for each other in the relationship.

For example: A lot of men aren't aware of the fact that one of the main roles of a woman in a man's life in a relationship is to make him stronger, emotionally.

Women do this because they want to feel safe and protected with a man who can handle himself in the world.

He's not a man who crumbles and becomes insecure if people are being nice to him and supportive all the time.

Instead, he is able to remain confident and believe in himself regardless of how people are behaving around him.

So, in terms of a woman pulling back some affection and throwing some tantrums to see if the guy is going to give her more power in the relationship to shut her up; that there is an instinctive behavior from women, where they try to make the man more emotionally strong.

They try to make him take on the dominant role in the relationship and not be dominated by her.

If he can get to the point where he doesn't allow himself to take her tantrums seriously, or lose confidence if she's pulling back some affection, then he's the sort of man who can remain confident and believe in himself regardless of how people are behaving around him.

As a result, when a woman can see that a man can handle that, her respect for him increases, her behavior towards him becomes more loving, caring, affectionate and so on.

She looks up to him and respects him as her strong, confident man that she can feel safe with in this world.

So, in terms of a relationship, a lot of guys end up losing confidence in their ability to make that girlfriend or wife feel attracted because of the way that she has been behaving.

She seems to have lost interest.

He can't seem to get her to treat him the way that she used to.

Yet, he's just missing bits of awareness and knowledge.

For example: He may not be aware of the fact that regardless of what has happened between him and her in the past, he always has the moment.

In the moment, when he's interacting with this woman, he can make her feel new sparks of respect, attraction and love for him.

Additionally, if she has been throwing tantrums, being disrespectful towards him, not being affectionate and so on, he can start using a different approach that will bring out better behavior in her.

A different approach that will get her to feel motivated to treat him better and start being more respectful, loving and affectionate in the relationship.

For example: Rather than wasting time and energy trying to be more romantic to hopefully make her happy and bring the spark back, a man can simply start having more balls in the relationship.

Having more balls results in a woman treating you better, wanting you more sexually and showing you the respect that you deserve.

There are many simple, easy and practically effortless things that a man can do to change the dynamic of the relationship and as a result, cause a woman to begin to treat him better and to feel attracted and in love with him again.

He doesn't have to waste time trying to be romantic, doing household chores, or putting up with being treated badly.

He can simply change the relationship dynamic and bring out the best in his woman, so she treats him the way that he wants to be treated.

The thing is, a lot of guys aren't aware of how much influence they can have over the dynamic of the relationship by changing their approach to how they react to their woman, or how they approach their woman.

So, the guy ends up thinking that she just doesn't love him the way that she is used to and she can't anymore.

She doesn't feel attracted to him the way that she used to and she can't feel that level of attraction for him anymore and so on.

He then loses confidence in how much his woman loves him, feels attracted to him and wants to be with him.

Additionally, he can also lose confidence in his ability to keep the relationship together, he doesn't have that feeling of security that his woman really wants to be with him.

That feeling a man gets when he knows that she doesn't want to be with any other guy.

To her, getting with another guy would be a total mistake, it would be her loss.

Unfortunately, so many men don't have the kind of confidence in their relationship with a woman. Instead, he has self-doubt.

Additionally, he doesn't believe in his ability to make her feel attracted to him, to feel in love with him and to treat him the way that he deserves to be treated.

Yet, in almost all cases, the guy is just a few areas away or a few insights away from understanding how to create a new relationship dynamic where his woman is respectful towards him, she feels attracted to him and she loves him the way that she did at the start, that spark comes back and it stays for life.

Now some guys don't think that keeping the spark alive for life is possible, because they ignore the reality out there that millions of couples are happy and remain in love for life.

It is possible.

Of course, it's also possible to be unhappy in a relationship for life, to be miserable and to have a woman who isn't treating you the way that you deserve to be treated.

So, whether you are single or in a relationship and you don't have the type of confidence in your abilities that you want to have, just understand that you CAN change that.

You can be totally confident in every area that is involved in successfully picking up a woman, or having a successful happy, loving relationship that lasts for life.

Want to Learn More?

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you're one of the guys who doesn't have the type of confidence you want when it comes to picking up women, so you can get laid or get a girlfriend, or if you've lost confidence in your relationship or marriage with a woman, then I have two recommendations for you.

In that program, you will learn the ultimate relationship dynamic that causes your woman to feel increasingly respectful, attracted and in love with you over time.

The techniques in Make Her Love You For Life ensure that you and a woman will remain happy together, feel sexually attracted to each other and be in love for life.

Confidence is Also a Choice

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that every man has a choice to make when it comes to his confidence and success with women.

Some men choose to believe that they can never be truly confident with women and as a result, it negatively affects their interactions and relationships with women their entire life (e.g. get friend zoned by girls they like, end up accepting women they're not truly attracted to because they doubt their ability to get the women they really want, relationships go stale, their woman never feels the kind of respect, attraction and love she would feel for a truly confident man).

The reality is that you can choose to believe that you CAN be truly confident with women from start to finish.

You CAN experience total success with women from start to finish.

You CAN believe in your ability to do that.

Additionally, if you are lacking in particular areas of ability, you CAN improve those areas and then you CAN have justified belief in your abilities.

You CAN successfully attract a woman that you want and go all the way to enjoying an amazing, loving, happy relationship for life.

It really is a choice and how you decide to shape your life with women from today onwards, is totally up to you.

So, while confidence is about belief in yourself, it's also a choice that you are responsible for making.

You can choose to believe that you can never be truly confident and as a result, you can avoid improving the areas that you struggle with when it comes to women.

Alternatively, you can choose to believe that you can be truly confident and as a result, you can improve on the remaining areas of skill and ability that you need to truly succeed with women.

Both options are available to you.

One option leads to a life of insecurity and unsatisfying experiences with women and the other leads to a life of confidence, self-esteem and amazing experiences with women.

The choice is yours.

Why Women Play Hard to Get When They Like You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

What would you do if you met your perfect girl, or at least a woman that you found very attractive?

You looked at her and physically, you felt very attracted to her.

As you started to interact with her, you also liked her personality.

You and her clicked.

You were getting along, but then she started playing hard to get.

What's your next move?

What are you going to do at that point?

Well, for some guys, they will say, "Stuff that. I'm not going to put up with that type of behavior. If a woman likes me, she needs to show it to me and that's it. Otherwise, I'm out of there."

Yet, what about if you actually want to get the girl and you don't want to have to just walk away?

How can you get to the point where you kiss her, have sex with her and start a relationship with her, without having to be needy and desperately chase her?

How can you make her feel more attracted to you, stop playing hard to get and want to be with you?

That's what I will explain for you in this video.

First though, you need to understand why a woman will play hard to get when she likes you.

Some of the reasons that I'm going to give you now will make you think that some women must be crazy, they're nutty.

Why are they behaving like that?

Other reasons will make you think, "Okay. I can understand why she will do that. It makes sense."

Then, when you have all that knowledge, you'll understand why the solution that I'll provide for you works on all types of women and gets rid of the games.

It stops her from playing hard to get and makes her want to be with you.

So, let's begin with the first common reason why a woman will play hard to get when she likes you.

She's feeling insecure around you and trying to make herself feel more confident by playing hard to get.

She does that so she can feel valuable by seeing that you're still interested, even though she isn't showing much interest.

Some women need to do that to feel confident around guys.

It's just the way that they approach it.

The next common reason; to see how interested in her you really are.

Are you honestly attracted to her and do you really want to be with her, or are you just looking at her as another girl that you want to sleep with for a while, or maybe have a couple of month relationship with, or even a couple of years with?

How serious are you about her?

Do you really like her?

Is she really the type of girl that you want?

For this reason, a woman will play hard to get when she likes you because she wants to see if you will lose interest if she suddenly stops showing interest in you.

Will you stick around?

Will you stick with the interaction?

Will you want to keep interacting with her and making something happen between you and her?

Another common reason is to find out what kind of guy you are apart from the approach that you're using with her.

For example: A guy will be interacting with a woman and he'll be using a nice guy approach, a bad boy approach or he'll just be coming across as a typical good guy.

Now, for the nice guy example, a woman may want to see how nice he really is.

Is he putting on an act of being nicer than he is?

Is he going to continue being nice if she stops showing interest, or if she starts to be a little bit difficult or feisty?

She wants to see his true colors.

How is he going to behave if she isn't showing him interest all the time?

Likewise with the bad boy example, a guy might be coming across as though he's this cool, tough, bad boy type, but is he going to be able to hold that persona?

Is that who he really is?

If she starts being a little bit difficult, if she starts putting him down during the conversation, is he going to be able to hold his frame, or is it just a front?

How much of a bad boy is he really?

The next example; to see what a relationship with you might be like.

Will you be chasing her?

Will she be chasing you, or will it be a more balanced relationship dynamic where you both really like each other and want to be together?

Next, she wants to see how you handle yourself as a man.

Women can feel turned on by men who can remain calm and confident under pressure.

So, she wants to see, are you the sort of guy who can only handle an easy girl, a girl who's being easy with you, who's being straightforward?

Can you handle a girl who is going to be a little bit feisty at times, who's going to be a little bit challenging at times while also being sweet, nice and supportive?

Can you handle her different moods, her different types of behavior, or do you need her to be straightforward with you all the time?

Another reason why a woman will play hard to get when she likes you is to hopefully make you feel more appreciative of being with her or getting with her.

Essentially, she wants you to really like her and really want to be with her.

She wants you to have a vested interest in getting with her and getting a relationship started and keeping the relationship going because you see her as a special girl.

She is different to other girls.

You really like her.

You're feeling a lot of attraction for her, you're feeling a lot of desire for her and you really want to get with her.

You and her have a connection, but she's playing hard to get and she hopes that it will make you appreciate getting with her so much more.

The next common reason a woman will do it, is to show you that she isn't an easy girl to hook up with.

She's not the sort of girl who can't control her emotions and will just hook up with a guy because she's feeling attracted to him.

Instead, she's one of the girls who can be trusted to control herself and be loyal.

Another common reason, is that she is awkward when it comes to expressing her feelings for a guy.

When interacting with a guy, she doesn't know what else to do other than play it cool and act as though she could take him or leave him.

She has been using that approach ever since she was young and although it hasn't resulted in her having a lasting relationship, she keeps doing it because it tends to make guys chase her and pursue her.

Another reason why a woman will play hard to get when she likes you is that she doesn't want a guy who gives up on something at the first sign of an obstacle. She wants a guy who knows what he wants and doesn't lose confidence if faced with an obstacle.

Another reason is she has just gotten out of a relationship where she had no power and was ignored and taken for granted in the relationship. She ended up chasing the guy's affection and losing a lot of self-esteem and now wants to put herself in a position of power to rebuild her self-esteem and remind herself that she is valuable and worthy of love and attention from a guy.

Next, she's not looking for a committed relationship right now and you seem to be wanting one so she's trying to let you know that she doesn't want anything serious.

Alternatively, she does want a committed relationship and really likes you, but is afraid of showing interest in that in case you think she is too keen. So, she ends up playing it cool.

Another reason why a woman will play hard to get when she likes you is that it's her version of flirting. She likes to create some tension between her and a guy that she likes so when they eventually kiss, it will feel amazing for the both of them.

Finally, she has had some bad experiences where a guy has lost interest in her if she showed interest too quickly, so she's trying to avoid that happening with you.

As you can see, there are many different reasons why it can happen.

You can meet a girl and she can really like you and you and her may click, but she then may begin to play hard to get.

So, what do you do if you're interacting with a girl that you like and suddenly she stops showing interest in you?

Suddenly she stops contributing as much to the conversation, or seems to be ignoring you a little bit and so on.

What do you do?

Well, what you do is what you always need to do whether you're meeting a woman for the first time, you're on a date with her, you're kissing her, you're having sex with her or you're in a relationship with her.

That is, you have Independent Confidence rather than Dependent Confidence.

So, what does that mean?

Independent confidence is where you feel confident regardless of how a woman behaves around you.

Dependent confidence is where you feel confident depending on how a woman behaves around you.

So, with dependent confidence, if a woman is showing you signs of interest, then you're going to feel confident around her, but if she starts to play hard to get and show signs that she's losing interest, then you're going to start losing confidence around her.

Independent confidence is the ultimate type of confidence.

It's a level of confidence where you no longer have to rely on a woman giving you signs that she finds you attractive in order to feel confident around her.

Of course, if you are currently at a level of confidence where you lose confidence if a woman is playing hard to get or giving you mixed signals, then you can start having more independent confidence from now on.

For example: Say that a guy met a girl and initially, they connected and she seemed like she was attracted to him, but is now playing hard to get and he then sees her again.

Should he lose confidence now by beginning to doubt himself and focusing on her mixed messages, or should he have independent confidence and say, "I'm in control of my confidence, I'm going to talk to her if I want to talk to her. I'm not going to be focusing on her mixed message behavior."

Having independent confidence, he will think something like, "I'm not going to be focusing on the fact that sometimes she seems like she isn't interested. We talked, she was interested in me. I'm going to talk to her again. I'm going to do what I can with what I've got right now. I'm going to work with what I've got. I'm going to take control of the situation," rather than having dependent confidence and thinking, "Well, I need her to show me a lot of interest, I need her to call me over, I need her to approach me, I need her to smile and wave and then I'll go over."

No.

You don't need her to smile first or approach you.

Why?

In most cases, most women aren't going to have the confidence to do that and in other cases, they're not going to want to do that (approach you) because they want to see that you're interested in them, that you have the balls to go over and talk to them, even though they're giving you mixed messages.

How interested in her are you really?

Additionally, are you aware of the possibility that she has just gotten out of a relationship with the guy who lost interest in her, or are you aware of the possibility that she could be insecure about showing too much interest because when she's done that with guys that she's liked, they have lost interest in her?

They felt like they conquered the situation.

The guy thought, “Yes, she likes me. I don’t need to pursue her now. She can come to me.”

Then she didn’t and they ended up going their separate ways.

Alternatively, she has interacted with guys who just wanted to make her feel attracted, see that she was attracted and then the guy didn’t do anything about it.

She is trying to get herself a boyfriend, or at least trying to get herself a lover who likes her and actually wants to be with her.

So, to make sure that you understand independent confidence and how to use it to get what you want with women, here are a couple of extra examples.

The first example is where a guy is texting a girl and she’s giving him mixed messages.

She’s playing a bit hard to get via text.

If he has independent confidence, then he’s going to think something along the lines of this. “I don’t need her to give me crystal clear signs that she likes me all the time. I’m a confident guy, so I’m going to call her and set up a date.”

The next example is when a man is on a date with a woman and she’s giving him mixed messages, or playing a bit hard to get.

With independent confidence, he’ll think something like this, “She’s on a date with me so she likes me. I’m not going to get put off by her giving me mixed messages or playing hard to get. I understand that some women do that to make themselves feel more confident on a date and so on. I don’t need to lose confidence because she’s not giving me 100% signals of interest all the time. I’m a confident man, she can see that and she likes that about me, even if she’s not fully showing it.”

So, if you meet a girl that you like and she’s giving you mixed signals or playing hard to get, you can obviously just walk away and not want anything to do with her anymore, but if you want to get the girl, then it’s important to understand that when a woman plays hard to get, it’s not always because she’s rejecting you.

Instead, in most cases, she’s just trying to find out whether or not you and her are a great emotional match, so you can have a relationship that actually works.

If you want to be able to handle a woman who is playing a bit hard to get, then you need to have independent confidence.

That is where you feel confident regardless of how a woman behaves around you.

That way, she can feel attracted to your confidence and see that you can handle yourself around a woman like her.

Other guys will feel as though they are being rejected when she plays hard to get, but you don’t.

You have independent confidence, so you don’t lose confidence when a woman gives you mixed signals or plays a little hard to get to test your confidence or interest level.

You remain confident because you’re not relying on her to make you feel confident.

Want to Learn More?

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you are one of the guys who hasn’t been getting the type of results that you want with women and you would like to learn the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow gives you your choice of women because when you use The Flow techniques, women feel instantly attracted to you, feel connected with you and want to take things to the next level with you (i.e. phone number, kiss, date, sex, relationship).

The Flow includes all of my best conversation starters, ways to make women feel instantly attracted to you, ways to make women feel increasingly attracted to you as they talk to you, how to make a woman want to contribute to the conversation, how to keep a conversation going and keep it interesting, how to initiate touch in a way that she wants and welcomes, how to initiate a first kiss, how to get a phone number, how to set up a date, how to make sure that she wants to come to the date, how to kiss her on the first date, how to initiate sex on the first date and so on.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to easily go from hello to sex, with a woman that you find attractive.

Your New Level of Confidence

One final point that I want to make for you in this video is that, from now on, whenever you interact with a woman, just notice whether or not you are basing your confidence in that moment on her behavior, or if you have independent confidence.

In other words, if you feel confident, regardless of how she is behaving.

The more independent your confidence is, the more attractive you are to women.

They can sense that you're not reliant on them to feel good about yourself, to feel confident, to feel worthy.

You believe in yourself.

You're one of the rare guys who doesn't need a woman to pat you on the back, be nice to you and make everything easy for you.

You remain confident regardless of how a woman behaves.

What you find when you can do that, is that women treat you better.

They want to be good to you, they want to show you their sweet feminine side so they can attract you.

They know that it makes guys feel attracted and they don't want to stuff up their chances with you.

Of course, some women are still going to play hard to get though and that's why you always need to have independent confidence.

Don't rely on a woman to be consistent with her behavior from moment to moment (i.e. she's got to be showing you interest all the time and be nice and sweet and supportive in order for you to feel confident. No. Don't do that to yourself).

When you can get rid of your reliance on a woman's behavior in order for you to feel confident, then you have independent confidence and you'll see that you're able to feel good, feel confident around women no matter what.

Additionally, what you'll find when you build more and more independent confidence, is that you're able to handle and attract women that other guys see as too difficult.

To you, they're easy, they're simple.

They're so easy to attract and pick up, but other guys doubt themselves around those types of women.

They can't handle it when a woman isn't being easy and straightforward all the time.

Yet, you see right through that behavior from women.

You know that you don't need to rely on a woman to be consistent in her behavior, in order for you to feel confident.

You have independent confidence and she really likes that about you.

10 Hidden Signs a Shy Girl Likes You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

A shy girl or a shy woman will often end up missing out on being with the guy that she really likes because the way that she shows interest can be confusing for some guys.

For example: At least 5 out of the 10 signs that I'm going to explain for you in this video, leave some guys feeling that the girl isn't interested in them, when she actually is.

It's important to understand these hidden signs that a shy girl likes you, so you can be aware of why she is behaving in a certain way around you and not take it as though it means she doesn't like you.

Instead, be able to see that she is trying to show you interest.

Let's begin with an easy positive sign of interest that still is a hidden sign of interest because she's not directly saying, "Hey, I like you, let's start dating."

The first hidden sign of interest is that...

1. She can't seem to stop herself from smiling when she interacts with you

The thing is, if you're interacting with a confident girl, rather than a shy girl and the confident girl wants to find herself a very confident boyfriend, she will usually control her smile.

She won't want to make it too easy for the guy because she wants to find herself a guy who can remain confident around her regardless of how she is behaving.

She doesn't want to help him along too much.

She wants to be a little bit difficult, seem a little bit indifferent and if the guy can remain confident, then she will drop her guard and show him her friendly, more easy-going and down to Earth side that she doesn't show to other guys.

On the other hand, if you're interacting with a shy girl, then she usually doesn't need her boyfriend to be ultra-confident.

Instead, in most cases, a shy girl just needs her boyfriend to be a bit more confident than her.

As a result, she doesn't need to control her smile and try to find herself an ultra-confident boyfriend.

Instead, she can freely smile and show interest.

When doing so, she hopes that the guy she's interacting with, will see that she is interested and have the confidence and courage to then make a move.

Of course, not every woman is the same, so you will meet confident women who smile a lot as you start talking to them and they will then test your confidence in a different way.

They will test your confidence by playfully teasing you as you talk to them, or pretending to lose interest as you begin talking to them and so on.

Now, in terms of playfully teasing you, when you talk to them, do you think that that's something that a shy girl will do if she's interested in you?

Well, sometimes she does and that's why it's one of those confusing signs of interest that can cause a guy to feel as though he's being rejected by the shy girl.

So, let's talk about the second hidden sign that a shy girl likes you.

2. She playfully teases you during a conversation

Just because a girl is shy and is a little bit more timid, or hesitant compared to a confident girl, it doesn't mean that she's going to be sweet, nice and friendly all the time when she's talking to a guy. Instead, she will still do what pretty much every woman does and that is to playfully challenge a guy as she's talking to him (most women see that as flirting and do it to create more of a spark, or to show interest in a guy).

She will try to engage the guy in some playful banter, so there's a bit more of a spark between him and her rather than them just having friendly, polite, reserved conversations all the time.

For example: A guy is talking to a shy girl and they're getting along and are having a friendly conversation.

Yet, she's worried that there isn't enough of a spark between him and her.

It seems kind of boring.

She likes him, but she's not feeling it.

So, she playfully teases him during the conversation to hopefully create a bit more of a playful spark between him and her and liven up the boring, neutral, polite and reserved conversation that they've been having.

She asks him, "So, what do you like to get up to on the weekends?"

He says, "Oh, nothing much. I just like to chill out."

She then says (in a half-serious, half-playful way), "Well, that sounds kind of boring. I thought you were cool."

At that point and at any other point with a woman, a man basically has two choices.

1. Be insecure, or;
2. Be confident.

An insecure choice will be to quickly try to tell her some cool things that he does on the weekends, because he's worried that she will lose interest in him.

Yet, if he panics and she senses that he isn't confident in who he is, then she will lose interest in him if she's looking for a boyfriend who is at least a bit more confident than her.

So, the other choice that a man always has with a woman, is to be confident.

For example: If a man is talking to a shy woman and she asks him what he likes to get up to on the weekends, he says that he just likes to chill out and she then playfully teases him by saying that it's boring, he can then (playfully) say something like this, "It sounds boring? Well, what do you like to get up to on the weekends?"

If, for example, she then says that she gets up to exciting things on the weekends or interesting things on the weekends, you can then say something like this, "Well, aren't you a little Miss Exciting? That sounds like fun. You should invite me along next time. I'll go."

It's in moments like those (crossroad moments), that a shy girl and a guy can start dating, having sex and enjoying a relationship, or the guy can become insecure and think that she now thinks that he's boring.

She used to think that he was cool.

She doesn't think that anymore.

He's stuffed up.

He's ruined his chances with her now.

No.

You have to be aware that sometimes, even a shy sweet girl will playfully tease you to spark things up between you and her, rather than just having polite, nice conversations all the time.

She doesn't want the interaction or date to end with you and her only feeling like friends due to the conversation being too nice, neutral or polite.

Instead, she wants to feel that boyfriend-girlfriend vibe with you, where you and her feel free to joke around with each other and sometimes even playfully tease each other about things.

Additionally, she will sometimes want to see if you believe in yourself, so she can feel safe and protected being with a boyfriend who is at least a bit more confident than her.

3. She laughs at your jokes and uses it as an excuse to touch you

If you're interacting with a shy girl who normally isn't very touchy-feely and is kind of hesitant and timid around people, but she then feels so much attraction and interest for you that she occasionally touches you on the leg, on the arm or the chest when you're cracking jokes, then you have to be able to see that as a sign that she's finding you attractive.

She likes you and she's trying to let you know via that sign.

The thing is though, some guys will be interacting with a shy girl and she'll be laughing at his jokes and touching him on the leg, on the arm or the chest and he'll just assume that she must be like that with other guys, or she's only doing that to be friendly.

The thing is, he could be right.

She could be like that with other guys and she could only be doing it to be friendly.

So, if you want to be certain, you've got to make sure that you look for other signs in combination.

For example: While we're talking about touching, an interesting sign to be aware of when you're talking to a girl and suspect that she likes you is when she uses her phone as an excuse to get close to you and touch you

A shy girl will often do that to hopefully let you see that she is cool with being that close to you.

If you notice that sign in combination with other signs, then you will know that she likes you and it's time to move things forward to kissing, sex and a relationship.

Okay, so now, let's look at the 4th hidden sign of interest from a shy girl...

4. She's lost for words around you

This can happen when she doesn't want to say something that may make you look at her as being uncool, or awkward.

So, she ends up overthinking what she's going to say and as a result, she runs out of things to say. In cases like that, she needs you to help her along in the conversation, but she won't always make that completely obvious to you.

Instead, you need to be able to look out for those signs.

For example: You're interacting with a shy girl and she doesn't leave the interaction, but she isn't saying much.

Now, that can be that she is lost for words during the conversation, or it can also be that she keeps going to the safety of her phone.

She doesn't know what to say, so she starts looking through her phone, clicking things and so forth, going to the safety of her phone, but she's still there with you.

She hasn't walked away.

She doesn't know what to say.

She is feeling shy and doesn't know what to do.

In many cases, a shy girl will stick around like that to hopefully keep the interaction going, so she doesn't have to walk away and miss out on talking to you further.

She hopes that you will be able to get her talking and get her to open up more so you and her can then connect, possibly get to a kiss or go on a date and see what happens from there.

In addition to delaying, stalling and trying to give you some extra time by hanging around and playing with her phone, a weird thing that a shy girl will sometimes do, is to pretend that she has a cough or needs to clear her throat.

That fake little cough, or clearing of the throat that some people do when they are feeling nervous and trying to fill up what they see as an awkward silence in a conversation.

Alternatively, she might pretend to have a sore shoulder or a sore back and will start stretching, so she doesn't have to leave the interaction right away.

Essentially, she doesn't know what to say, is feeling a bit shy, but doesn't want to leave the interaction just yet.

She is trying to stall, delay and give you some extra time to ask her something or say something to keep the conversation going.

So, if you're talking to a shy girl and she's not saying much during the conversation, don't assume it's because she doesn't like you.

In many cases, especially if you're seeing other signs of interest, it's because her shyness is causing her to be lost for words around you.

She needs you to help her along in the conversation until she gets to the point where she feels confident enough to express herself more freely and openly when talking to you.

5. You often catch her looking at you and she then nervously looks away, or acts as though she is busy doing something else

The thing is, sometimes a girl will be looking at a guy that she doesn't like and if he notices, she will then look away nervously because she doesn't want to make him think that she likes him.

Yet, if there is a shy girl that you suspect likes you and you often catch her looking at you and she then nervously looks away, or acts as though she is busy doing something else, then it's a hidden sign that she likes you.

The thing is, there are a lot of shy girls out there, but it doesn't always seem obvious that the girl is shy.

For example: According to the Association of Anxiety and Depression in America, women experience anxiety disorders such as social anxiety and shyness at twice the rate of men.

Double the rate.

It doesn't seem like it though, right?

It seems like men are more anxious.

Nope.

Twice as many women suffer from anxiety, compared to men.

Additionally, researchers at Pittsburgh University discovered that approximately 15% of shy women are visibly shy, whereas the remaining 85% are privately shy.

In other words, most shy women do a really good job of hiding their shyness.

They may just go into their shell.

They may be a bit quiet and not say much, but on the surface, they may seem like everything is cool.

Yet, underneath that, she is still feeling the pain, the isolation, the loneliness, the confusion and the annoyance of her shyness.

On the surface, it just won't seem like that though.

She'll seem like a normal girl.

Now, with those women who are visibly shy and even privately shy, if you catch them looking at you, they usually won't have the confidence to smile back at you, or maintain eye contact and wave or try to show you that they're interested.

Instead, the shy woman will be in her head.

She'll be worrying.

She'll be thinking, "Oh no, I'm coming across as too keen. He might think this/that" or, she'll just have that worrying feeling, that closed-up feeling; that cagey feeling that she feels because of her shyness.

She won't be able to just remain calm, maintain eye contact with you, smile and let you know that she likes you (even though she really, truly does and is hoping that something happens between you and her).

6. She seems very interested in you via social media or chat apps, but not in person

If a girl is shy and she's showing you interest via social media chat apps or text, but not in person, then she will hope that you can understand how difficult it is for her to show you that interest in person versus online.

In person, she is a shy girl.

She doesn't have the confidence of a confident girl.

She tends to go into her shell and doubt herself around a guy that she likes.

She tends to close up.

She finds it difficult to step outside of her comfort zone and start being more assertive to make things happen between her and a guy that she likes.

So, if you want to get yourself a shy girl who isn't coming over to you and saying, "I like you, let's start dating" and instead is showing you hidden signs of interest, then you need to be the more courageous one.

You need to be able to see the signs of interest and then have the courage and confidence to make a move.

If you don't, then what often happens is that all it takes to be replaced, is for another guy to come along, make her feel some attraction, notice the signs and then have the confidence to make a move.

Now, the reality is that you and her could have been a better match.

She could have liked you and loved you so much more.

Yet, if you don't make a move with the shy girl, she will usually not get to the point where she builds up the courage to come and ask you out.

Instead, she will remain shy.

She will remain in her shell and will hope that you have the courage to make a move.

7. She takes an interest in your life or hobbies and regularly asks you about it

Not knowing how else to show her interest in you, a shy girl will often try to get to know you and find out things about you so she can then show you that she is interested in who you are.

In many cases, a shy girl will be afraid to show direct interest in a sexual or romantic relationship with you.

She will try to hint at her interest by being very interested in you and your life.

So, if you are seeing other signs of interests from her in combination to this sign, then take it as one of those hidden signs that she likes you and is interested in being more than just a friend to you.

8. She tries hard to be chatty and fun around you

If she is quiet and reserved around others, but suddenly lights up when you start talking to her, it's usually a sign that she's trying to seem fun and interesting so you like her.

She doesn't want you to see her as a boring girl and then lose interest in her.

Of course, most guys don't care if the girl is a little bit boring.

If she's pretty and she's nice and friendly and the guy likes her, he's going to want to be with her.

Yet, many girls, especially shy girls, don't realize that and it's one of the reasons why women experience anxiety disorders at twice the rate of men.

Women tend to overthink things, but on the surface, it can seem like she is totally fine, she's got it all together, she's just this happy, fun, chatty girl.

She likes talking to you, but underneath that, she's worried that you're going to think she's boring and then lose interest in her.

9. She sometimes hides her face with her hands, clothes or hair when talking to you

Sometimes when a girl doesn't like a guy, she will hide her face behind her t-shirt, or behind her hand and she'll be thinking that the guy's weird and trying to show him that she doesn't like him.

Yet, if you're interacting with a shy girl and she's showing you signs of interest, she's smiling and she occasionally covers her face with her hands, clothes or hair, then it's important to understand why she will do that when she likes you.

The psychology behind that type of body language is that she is trying to conceal how she feels.

She's feeling attracted to you.

She's feeling excited around you and she's trying to hide her face to hopefully conceal how she feels.

She is shy and embarrassed about showing you that she likes you.

Another reason for it, which is a bit of an instinctive reaction, is to try to cover any blushing that she's experiencing on her cheeks.

Now, of course not all shy girls blush and some shy girls will be wearing makeup, so the blushing won't be really evident, but the instinctive reaction to cover her face will still be there.

She will be blushing, or she'll feel that heat in her body when she's worrying that you're going to see that she likes you and she might seem too keen and so forth.

So, she tries to cover her face to conceal how she feels.

10. She spends a lot of time with you or at least tries to spend a lot of time with you

This actually happened to me when I was first starting to get good with women.

I was out with a friend of mine and we met three girls who became our female friends.

They were inviting us to parties, we're inviting them to things and I was hooking up with other girls in the meantime.

Yet, there was a girl in the group that I liked who referred to me as "buddy" and "pal" when she was talking to me.

She talked to me as though her and I were only friends, but I could see through it.

I could see that she was feeling attracted to me.

One night, my friend and I went out with her and one of her girlfriends for some dinner and afterwards, we went back to my apartment and her and I ended up out on the balcony.

We were talking and there was a bit of flirting and laughing and after a couple of minutes, I squared up with her (i.e. faced her directly, so we were face-to-face as we were standing there together).

I looked at her up and down, put my arm around her lower back and just gently started to draw her to me.

She willingly came and within seconds, we were kissing.

That night, we ended up having sex and then started seeing each other for a while.

Now, the thing is, that wouldn't have happened if I didn't make a move.

If I wasn't aware that she was feeling attracted and didn't have the confidence to then make a move.

She was a privately shy girl.

She wasn't very visibly shy.

She seemed just kind of normal, happy-go-lucky type of girl.

Yet, I later found out that she had a huge crush on me from the start, but was afraid to get rejected and she was calling me buddy and pal to not seem keen and not seem desperate and things like that.

She was overthinking it.

I liked her.

I found her attractive.

I found her interesting.

She liked me, but she was playing all these games, buddy, pal and so forth and, "Hey, let's go to this party and let's just hang out as friends."

So, when you can see through that type of behavior from women and you can see that they like you, then you have the confidence to make a move.

You know that women like you and when you make a move and they like you, then you start kissing, have sex and start a relationship.

Best of all, the woman is keen and excited to be getting to kiss you, have sex with you and hopefully have a relationship with you.

Want to Learn More?

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you are one of the guys who finds it difficult to make women feel attracted to you as you talk to them, or if you tend to get stuck at certain points along the way, such as moving in for a kiss, getting a phone number or getting a girl to go out on a date with you and so on, then, I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is my proven-to-work, step-by-step process for immediately attracting a woman, connecting with her and then taking things to the next level such as a phone number, kiss and then sex or a phone number, date, kiss and then sex.

It's the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend.

You can use The Flow on new women that you meet and you can also use it on girls that you already know.

It's a simple step-by-step process that works.

Most Women Are Passive, So You Need to Be Active and Get Things Moving Along

One final point that I want to make few in this video, is that when it comes to dating, most women are passive.

They aren't assertive and they don't chase after a guy and say, "I like you, I want to be with you. Take me out on a date."

Some women do that, but most women are passive.

What they do, is they wait for a guy who has the courage and confidence to ask them out.

That's usually the reason why you'll see a guy with a pretty girl and wonder, "What is she doing with him?"

Well, he had the confidence to ask her out.

He had the confidence to make a move.

You may be cooler than him, you may be better than him in so many ways, but he made a move.

So, whether you're interacting with a confident girl or a shy girl, if she is showing you many signs of interest, then make a move.

Don't wait for her to say, "Hey, I like you. Take me out on a date, kiss me" and so forth.

If she's showing you that she likes you, then she's going to want you to have the confidence to make a move.

In many cases, if the woman is insecure, like most women out there, then she's going to want to see that you have enough interest in her to make a move, that you're not just talking to her.

You've got to understand that most women out there overthink things.

They worry that a guy will reject them, or that a guy is only partially interested in them and so forth.

So, if you're interacting with a woman, she's feeling attracted to you, she's showing that to you, then make a move.

Get something real happening between you and her, before another guy comes along and has the courage and confidence to make a move.

What to Say if She Asks Your Age (11 Examples)

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Sometimes a guy will be talking to a beautiful woman and the conversation will be going well, up until the point where she asks the question, "How old are you?"

At that point, a woman's interest in a guy is either going to increase or decrease based on how he answers the question because, in most cases, the woman is asking the question to see if the guy is going to become insecure about his age.

Is his age going to be an issue between him and her, or is it going to be yet another thing that she finds attractive and fascinating about him?

So, if you're talking to a woman and she asks you your age, you can of course just answer in a confident, self-assured manner and say your age, "22" or "42."

Yet, what are you going to say then if she says that you're too young for her or too old for her?

This is why, if you think that there's going to be an issue about the age or she's testing your confidence, or she is worried that you might be a bit too old for her or young for her, it's best to answer the question in a way that's going to increase her attraction and interest in you and make her see that the difference in age is not a big deal between you and her.

Between you and her, the age difference doesn't matter because you and her feel attracted to each other and there's a unique connection between you and her that she doesn't want to lose.

So, here are some examples that help take the seriousness out of the question, "How old are you?" and let a woman sense that between you and her the age difference doesn't have to be a big deal.

I'll start off with examples of what an older man can say to a younger woman when he is 42 and she's 27, for example.

Then, I'll give you examples of what a younger guy could say when he's talking to an older woman at a time when he is 22 and the woman is 26.

Let's begin with the older man talking to the younger woman.

They're getting along and she then asks him, "How old are you?"

He can then reply with something like this:

- "Way too old for you, sorry, we can't be together."
- "Older than you, but you like older guys so it's fine."
- "The perfect age for a man."
- "I stopped counting my age when I reached 60."

After letting her see that the age question doesn't have to be so serious between him and her, he can of course then tell her his age.

If he has been making her feel attracted and drawn to him, then she's going to want to not care about the age difference so she can get a chance to be with him.

Now here are some examples for a guy who is 22 and he's talking to a woman who is 26.

- "I'm old enough."

- "I'm 22 which is perfect for you because you're starting to have a thing for younger guys."
- "Why? Do you need someone old enough to buy you a beer? You forgot your ID, didn't you?"
- "My age? It's the same number as your IQ score, 22."
- "Somewhere between 0 and 100. You have three guesses."
- "Doesn't matter, you and me wouldn't work out anyway. It'd be a fun fling, but we'd break up after a couple of weeks or something. It wouldn't work out."
- "Way too young for you, but that's okay. You're into younger guys. Otherwise, you wouldn't be hitting on me."

Now compare those confident responses to her question to some insecure ones:

1. "I'm only 22."
2. "I'm 22, is that okay?"
3. "I'm 22, but most people say I look older."
4. "I'm 42, but I still look young. I work out, I keep myself in shape, I take care of myself."
5. "I'm 42, but most people say I look like I'm in my 30s."

With the 5 examples above, you are most likely able to sense the insecurity and if you can sense it, you can bet that a woman can sense it.

Women look out for these things.

Women don't want to get themselves into a relationship with the guy who is going to become insecure.

They don't want to get into that type of relationship where the guy is going to have an issue about his age, or he's going to have an issue about her beauty or attractiveness and he's going to feel like he's not good enough and so on.

So, the way that it works is that many women do want to stick within a certain age bracket and they don't want to go below that or above that, but there are also women who are open to dating younger guys or dating older guys.

What matters most to women who are open to dating younger guys or older guys is how she feels with YOU in particular.

With you specifically, does she feel like age doesn't really matter?

You and her feel so attracted to each other, she feels drawn to you, she likes being around you and you share a unique connection that she doesn't want to miss out on.

She really likes you and wants to be with you.

By the way...

If you know my story, you know that I speak from experience in that about 90% of the women that I hooked up with over the course of 10 years (when I was enjoying my choice of women) were younger than me.

For example: When I was 26, I was with women who were 20, 21.

When I was 30, I was also with women who were 20, 21, 22 and up.

I also hooked up with many women who were between 26 and 33.

Then, after 10 years of enjoying all of that, I met my perfect girl when she was 20 and I was 35.

We settled down and we've been together for nearly 7 years now.

So, when it comes to your age, in most cases, what really matters is how she feels about you in particular.

When she is interacting with you, does she feel like the difference in age is going to be an issue in a relationship or does she feel like it doesn't matter because she feels so attracted to you?

She feels so comfortable around you, she feels so drawn to you and there's a unique connection between you and her that she doesn't want to miss out on.

Want to Learn More?

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you are one of the guys who finds it difficult to attract women as you talk to them, or to flow smoothly from a conversation to a kiss and then sex or a conversation, a phone number exchange, calling her on the phone, setting up a date and getting her to arrive at the date and then kiss, have sex and start a relationship with you, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

Give Yourself the Chance

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is to not automatically count yourself out if there's an age difference between you and a woman that you're talking to.

Many women don't have an issue with dating guys who are a bit older than them and in some cases, dating guys who are a bit younger than them.

So, if you're interacting with a woman and you're 23 and she's 27, or you are 35 and she's 25, then don't automatically count yourself out because of the age difference.

She may not have an issue with it.

She may be one of the women who are totally fine with it.

So, interact with her, attract her and then move things forward to kissing and sex.

How to Not Be Awkward Around Girls You Like

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Have you ever found that when you're around girls that you're not attracted to, or you're not trying to pick up, that you can relax and be yourself?

You're at ease and you're not worrying about whether or not the girl likes you because you're not trying to get her to like you.

Yet, if you're around a girl that you really like and you want to attract her so you can hook up with her sexually, or have her as your girlfriend, then suddenly you start behaving like a nervous or awkward version of yourself.

You know that you could be a lot cooler, more confident and relaxed around her, but you can't seem to do it.

You feel tense and doubt that she would like you for you.

So, you might then start being nicer than you normally are, or more polite than you normally are or want to be, which ends up making you come across as awkward to her.

Something just doesn't feel right, so her guard goes up.

Why does this tend to happen the most around girls that you really like?

One of the main reasons why it happens is when a guy suppresses his emotions and expressions around the girl that he likes.

This means that a guy will suppress or hide how he feels about things and as a result, his body language, behavior and conversation will feel awkward to him and to the girl.

She will sense that he is hiding how he feels about things and trying to behave in a way that he hopes she will like.

Yet, it just won't feel right for either of them.

As a result, they will find it difficult to connect with each other or to have an interaction that flows naturally and leads to kissing, sex and a relationship.

So essentially if you want to stop being awkward around girls that you really like, then you have to let your real mood flow rather than hiding it, rather than suppressing your emotion.

What are some examples of suppressing emotions or hiding feelings when talking to a girl?

1. Feeling nervous and then trying to hide it by being quiet or unexpressive

If a guy is talking to a girl that he really likes and he is feeling nervous, he might go into a shell and not be as talkative or as expressive as he normally would be around friends for example.

As a result, the conversation won't flow smoothly and the interaction will start to feel a bit awkward and forced.

They won't be connecting as well as they could be.

An insecure girl might then wonder if the guy finds her attractive or not, or if he actually has a real interest in her.

She may assume that he doesn't feel enough attraction for her and as a result, he just can't really get into the conversation.

He doesn't feel motivated because there isn't enough of a spark between them.

Yet, for the most part, girls will notice that the guy is being awkward and they'll then put two and two together to realize that he's probably feeling nervous and unsure of himself and that's going to turn the girl off.

Most attractive girls don't want to be with a guy who is intimidated by them and is going to be really nervous when kissing them, having sex with them or meeting their friends and family and so on.

Most attractive girls want to be able to get themselves a confident guy.

So, what can a guy do instead of being quiet and starting to be unexpressive when he feels nervous around a girl that he likes?

Well, what you need to understand is that you're going to look more confident to her and you're going to be more attractive and appealing as a result, if you just go with the flow of the conversation while feeling a bit of nervousness on the inside, versus you trying to hide your nervousness around her by becoming quiet and unexpressive.

When you allow yourself to just go with the flow of the conversation when talking to a girl that you like, while feeling a bit nervous on the inside, you'll notice that girls feel more attracted to you.

They're more interested and conversations continue.

As a result, you'll start to believe in yourself and your ability to go with the flow of a conversation and as a result, that nervousness that you used to feel on the inside that then caused you to behave in awkward ways will start to wither away.

You'll start to be able to talk to girls in a confident manner.

You'll be able to express who you really are and you won't feel nervousness on the inside.

The next example of hiding how you feel or suppressing your emotions is...

2. Only saying what you think she wants to hear, rather than saying what you really want to say

For example: A guy is talking to a girl that he likes and she asks him the question, "So, have you seen any good movies lately?"

Now, he hasn't seen any good movies lately.

In fact, he has gone to some movies with a friend and he's been quite disappointed with the movies that he's seen.

He usually loves movies, but he hasn't seen any good ones lately.

Yet, when she asks him the question, "So, have you seen any good movies lately?" he doesn't want to give a negative response.

He just wants to appear as though he's happy and positive about everything.

He doesn't want to seem like a negative type of guy.

Yet, what he doesn't realize is that girls and people, in general, prefer people who are REAL.

It's not about being negative all the time or positive all the time, but it's about being real.

So, rather than being real and saying something like this, "No, I haven't seen any good ones lately. You know, I usually love movies, but lately they've been kind of boring. What movies have you seen?" he says something like this, "Um, yeah, yeah. I've seen a few movies. Yeah, they've been quite good."

Then the girl asks him which movie he saw.

He then tells her and she said that movie sucked.

He then says something like this, "Oh yeah, yeah. I mean it wasn't that good. It was alright."

She then feels turned off by the fact that he isn't being real with her and he is changing his opinion on the fly based on what she is saying.

He doesn't have the confidence to just tell her for real that he hasn't seen any good movies lately.

He thinks that he needs to put on an act for her and pretend to be this super positive guy all the time.

Everything's great in his life.

He goes and sees a movie, they're all great.

He goes here or there, that's great.

No, some places are great, some places suck, some places are okay.

Some movies are great, some movies suck, some are okay.

That's reality and you have to let your real mood flow if you want to avoid being awkward around girls that you like.

The same rule applies if a girl asks you whether or not you've seen any good movies lately and you have.

The thing is, sometimes a guy will have seen a great movie, but he won't want to answer with too much emotion or enthusiasm because he thinks that it may make him seem uncool, like he's so into a particular movie and maybe the girl will think that he doesn't have much going on in his life and that's why he's so enthusiastic about a movie, but that is overthinking it.

You just need to express some emotion and be real.

For example: If you had seen a great movie lately, you can say something like this, "Yeah, you know what, I have. Last week, I went to see a movie with a friend and it was one of those movies that is so intense and draws you in that when you leave the cinema afterwards, you walk out and you're like, 'Oh, I forgot that the world was like this.' You know? You get so drawn into that particular movie that it pretty much changes your perception during that time. It was pretty intense."

Another example is to say something like this: "Yeah, I saw a really good movie last week, one of the best I've seen in ages."

In both of those examples, the girl is almost certainly going to ask you what the movie was and you can then tell her.

It doesn't need to be an overly enthusiastic and serious conversation about the movie, but it can be if you want to.

What is your real mood about the movie?

What do you really feel about it?

Did you really like the movie?

Do you want to talk about a particular scene, or a particular plot twist or whatever?

Then talk about that.

Say what you really want to say, rather than just saying what you think she wants to hear.

The third example of hiding emotions or suppressing feelings when talking to a girl that you like is...

3. Not reacting to her with genuine emotion

For example: A guy is talking to a girl that he likes and she is in a bit of a silly mood.

She's saying silly things and behaving in silly ways, but he doesn't say anything about it.

He doesn't really react to it.

He stays pretty much unexpressive and he sort of acts like it's not happening.

He doesn't really know how to deal with it and he doesn't really want to deal with it because he is worried that if he says something about it or if he reacts to it, she might decide not to hang out with him.

Then he won't get to spend any time with her.

So, he just remains fairly unexpressive.

Yet, the girl knows that if she was around a confident guy who believed in himself and wasn't on his best behavior trying to impress her, then he would say something about it, or at least react to her silly behavior with his body language.

Additionally, he might even playfully say something like this to her (in a confident, but playful way), "Look at you. You can't sit still for a second. How many Red Bulls have you had, huh? Calm down for a second, girl."

Or something like this, "Well, someone's a little ball of energy today, aren't they? You're full of energy. I like it."

Essentially, what you have to understand is that when you're around a girl that you like, you don't have to be perfect.

You can be positive about things.

You can be neutral about things.

You can be negative about some things and so on.

Of course, you don't want to focus on the negative and be a downer around a girl that you like, but you have to feel free to be your real self around her.

If you try to hide how you really feel about something, then you're not going to be happy with yourself.

You're not going to feel good about yourself and she is going to sense that you're not being your real self around her.

She's not getting to know the real you and as a result, it's difficult to connect with you.

The thing is you're most likely a cool, interesting guy deep down, but you have to let that come to the surface and then let that flow from you.

Yes, you might make some mistakes when you start to be more real around girls that you like, but as you do it, you will find your real self and you'll be able to express your real self not only when you're interacting with girls that you really like, but with people in general.

What you'll find is that people like you so much more, they're so much more attracted to you and drawn to you because they can see and they can sense that they're interacting with the real version of you.

Want to Learn More?

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you are one of the guys who find it difficult to be confident around girls that you like, make them feel attracted, keep conversations going and take things to the next level such as kissing and sex, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

When you use The Flow techniques, your interactions with girls quickly flow from one step to the next.

The Flow is the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend.

Women Want the Real You

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that if a girl feels like she is responsible for you feeling nervous and tense around her, she will usually want to end the interaction rather than continuing to make you feel that way.

The thing is, you and her could have been a great match and a relationship between you and her could have been amazing, but if you cause yourself to feel awkward around her by suppressing your emotions and not letting your real mood flow, then it's going to be difficult for you and her to truly connect with each other.

It's also going to be difficult for her to feel enough attraction for you because most girls just don't want to be with a guy who is very nervous and unsure of himself around her.

When you feel free to express positive, neutral and negative emotions when interacting with a girl that you like, not only do you feel better because you're being your real self, but you also feel happy about the fact that she likes you for you.

She also feels great that she's connecting with the real you.

She can sense that you're being real with her.

You have the confidence to be your real self around her and who you really are is interesting and appealing to her.

How to Get Yourself a High Quality Woman

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

How can you find yourself a high quality woman who not only has the type of look that you want physically, but she also has the qualities, personality and values that you like in a woman?

How can you make sure that you don't end up settling for a woman who doesn't really have the type of look that you want, or doesn't really have the type of personality, the qualities, or the values that you like to see in a woman?

How can you make sure that you get yourself a high quality woman who is perfect for you?

Essentially, it comes down to three main things and when you do these three main things, you get yourself a high quality woman.

Let's begin with number 1...

1. Be very clear on what a high-quality woman means to you

For some guys, a high quality woman is going to mean that she is:

- Beautiful.
- Intelligent.
- Down to earth.
- Easy going.
- Has a good sense of humor.
- Traditional/non-traditional.

Now, the thing is, many guys DO have an idea of what a high quality woman means to them.

Yet, they tend to put that to the side if they get a chance with a woman who doesn't actually meet their criteria, or they tend to forget about that when they're meeting women and they get into the mode where they're trying to get a chance with girls that they talk to, they're trying to pick up, they're trying to get lucky.

As a result, they'll end up getting into relationships with women who really aren't their IDEAL type of woman, who they don't really see as being a high quality woman.

So it's essential that you become clear on what a high quality woman means to you and then, don't deviate from that.

Don't accept less than that.

Say to yourself that you won't accept anything less than what you see as a high quality woman.

For example: Some guys really like badass girls with attitude and see that as being high quality, whereas other guys like sweet, girl-next-door types.

Some guys like women who are skinny, slim or slender, whereas other guys like women who have thick bodies with some meat on them or tight bodies with plenty of booty.

Some guys like girls who put a lot of effort into their appearance, whereas other guys like girls who don't wear makeup and have a more natural look.

Some guys like classy women, other guys like indie women, others like sporty women, others like introverted women who like to keep to themselves and just spend time with their boyfriend.

Some guys prefer women who have upper-class manners and have come from a well-to-do family, whereas other guys prefer women who have a more relaxed attitude to manners and the guy also doesn't really care what kind of family or upbringing she has had.

He just wants her to be a beautiful, loving girlfriend or wife.

Some guys really like blondes, others like brunettes, some like redheads and others like women with black hair or dark features.

Some guys like women who are from the same race as them, some like to go interracial, some like women from mixed races and other guys just love all women.

Some guys prefer women who love to cook, clean and take care of their man as a great girlfriend or wife, whereas other guys aren't really concerned about that and are more interested in finding themselves a woman who is career-driven and is interested in achieving big things outside of the home.

The list goes on.

Essentially, you need to be very clear about what a high quality woman means to you, so you don't end up accepting a woman who doesn't meet your criteria.

2. Know how to attract her and connect with her when you meet her

The thing is, some guys can make women feel attracted to them, but they then struggle with creating the type of connection with a woman that causes her to want to get to know him more, to want to give her phone number to him, to want to go on a date with him, to want to kiss him, to want to have sex with him and start a relationship with him.

On the other hand, some guys don't know how to make women feel attracted to them as they talk to them and only talk to women in a friendly, neutral or nice way.

As a result, there's no spark between himself and the high quality women that he meets.

The thing is, if a guy wants to get a low quality woman, then he doesn't really need to do much.

He just needs to show a bit of interest in her and she's going to be happy that a guy is interested in her.

Yet, if a guy wants to get a high quality woman, then he needs to know how to create a spark of sexual attraction inside of her and how to create the type of connection that causes her to want to get to know him more and take things to the next level with him.

3. Give yourself the chance to meet a high quality woman

For some guys, they'll go through their everyday life and find women attractive in random places and situations, but they won't do anything about it.

For example: A guy will be walking through a shopping mall and he'll look into a store, see a girl that he finds attractive and just keep walking.

A guy will be sitting in a cafe or a restaurant and there'll be a waitress there who he finds pretty and he thinks, "Wow, I'd love to have her as a girlfriend," but he doesn't do anything about it.

He just sits there, has his coffee, or has his meal and then leaves.

The same thing applies with bars, nightclubs and parties.

Many guys will go to a bar or nightclub or party, but they won't approach women that they see as being high quality.

Instead, they'll either not approach women at all, or just approach women that they see as being average or low quality because they seem like easy targets.

Yet, by doing that, a guy will often end up getting with women that he's not really attracted to and that he doesn't really want to be with.

Now, the thing is not every high quality woman is single, but the reality is that not every relationship lasts.

"60% of unmarried relationships break up within 2 months and 70% end within 1 year."

Source: Social Science Data Collection. Stanford University, California

Many relationships end in a breakup, which results in many women becoming single again and trying to find themselves a boyfriend.

So, whether it's a case of you going through your everyday life and seeing women that you find attractive during the day, or it's you going out to bars or parties, you have to give yourself the chance to meet the high quality woman.

If you don't give yourself the chance, then you can't get her.

The reality is that 99.999999% of the high quality women that you find attractive don't even know that you exist.

How are you going to get that high quality woman if she doesn't even know that you exist?

The only way to let her see that you exist is to have an interaction with her.

You've got to be able to talk to her and create a spark, create a connection with her and take things to the next level.

The thing is, you could meet the type of high quality woman that you want the first time you try, but it might take you 5 tries.

It might take you 10 tries, but if you don't give yourself the chance to meet her, then she's almost certainly not going to know that you exist.

As a result, you might end up thinking that all the good women are taken, or that it's not possible for you to get a high quality woman because the only women who seem to be interested in you, are the ones that you don't see as being high quality.

Yet, the reality is that you're probably not giving yourself enough of a chance to meet high quality women in person.

The thing is, in most cases, guys that you see who've been able to get themselves a pretty girlfriend and settle down are simply the ones who gave themselves a chance with her.

The guy talked to her so he could then attract her, connect with her and start a relationship.

Want to Learn More?

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you're one of the guys who finds it difficult to attract women when you talk to them, or if you find it difficult to connect with women or take things to the next level, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

You will learn exactly what to say and do to attract women, connect with them and take things to the next level.

When you follow the steps of The Flow, you and a woman will flow effortlessly from one step to the next.

It's the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend.

Not All Pretty Women Are Confident

One final point that I want to make for you in this video is this...

Don't assume that a high quality woman is more confident than you.

Have a look at this comment from a guy on one of my videos recently...

[image: Comment from a man about a hot woman's nervousness while on a date with him]

He went on a date with a girl that he saw as being a solid 10 out of 10.

She was acting nervous and a bit weird on the date because of how attracted she felt to him.

He actually thought that she was out of his league, but he decided to just give it a try and continue moving the interaction forward and in the end, she became his girlfriend.

What's important to understand and remember as a man, is that many women are insecure and anxious, but usually put on a great act of seeming like they are fine.

Likewise, some women will act weird and nervous when interacting with a guy for the first time or on a date and a guy will often think that it means she doesn't like him, when in fact, she is just feeling nervous and unsure of herself around him.

This also applies to a high number of the women that you see as being high quality.

Don't assume that because you feel attracted to her that she must be ultra-confident and she must think that you would love to get a chance with her.

In many cases, women that you see as being pretty, beautiful and high quality are actually insecure.

They feel insecure about certain parts of their body, about certain facial features that they have, about their tits and so on.

For example: She might think that our tits are too big, too small, or she might not like the shape of them.

She might not like her nose, her hips, her butt, her thighs and so on.

The reality is that many women are insecure and in many cases, it is women that YOU look at as being high quality.

So don't count yourself out.

If you want a woman that you see as being high quality, then at least give yourself a chance.

Talk to her, make her feel attracted, connect with her and start a relationship.

This Mistake That DESTROYS Your Success With Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Women really like balls, both in the physical sense and the emotional sense.

Physically, women like to play with balls, suck balls and have balls banging against them as they cop it, doggy style.

Emotionally, women like to interact with a guy who has relaxed confidence and relaxed courage.

He has what I call Relaxed, Ballsy Confidence.

Unfortunately, a lot of guys have the capacity to have and display that type of confidence around women, but they're unable to due to a tiny little mistake that completely destroys their success with women.

This tiny mistake destroys a guy's success with women from pick up, to dating, to sex and being in a relationship.

The tiny mistake is where a guy will fear a woman's reaction to what he wants to say to her, or how he wants to behave around her.

When a guy fears a woman's reaction, his confidence is going to be stifled.

It's going to be suppressed.

He's not going to be able to express his true personality around her.

He's not going to be able to express his true masculinity around her and as a result, she's going to feel like she isn't interacting with the real version of him.

She's going to sense that he isn't comfortable around her and he isn't being completely real with her.

As a result, she can't really trust him.

She can't really let her guard down around him and feel attracted to who he is, because who he is is being hidden.

Yet, when a guy has Relaxed, Ballsy Confidence, a woman senses that she is interacting with the real version of him and what's more, is that she feels deeply, primally attracted to his masculinity and confidence.

Instinctively, she knows that if a guy has the confidence to be his real self around her, then he is going to be confident around other people and in life.

People are going to be able to respect him because he's not living in fear.

He's not fearing the reactions of other people.

Yet, at the same time, he's not being one of those loud, over-the-top, macho type of guys.

It's not about that.

It's about relaxed confidence, relaxed courage and having the balls to say and do what you want, while also being a good guy; being a good man.

So, I'm going to give you some examples here of how this tiny mistake destroys a man's success with women all the way from pick up to being in a relationship.

Let's start with the first one.

1. Pick up

A guy will talk to a woman that he finds attractive, wants to pick up and have sex or have a relationship with, but because he fears the woman's reactions to what he may say or do, he holds back.

He hesitates and as a result, his conversation doesn't flow.

He runs out of things to say and topics that he does bring up become boring very quickly because he is worried about saying the wrong thing.

So, he doesn't say much and just asks another question, or brings up another topic.

Yet, the interaction then starts to feel a bit awkward and forced and there's no spark between him and the woman, or the women that he's trying to pick up.

The interaction ends and he then goes home.

He's thinking later on about what he could have said or what he could have done and then he thinks, "Damn it. Why didn't I just say that? She said this, I could have said that. Why didn't I say it?"

The reason why he didn't say it is that he was fearing her reaction.

He was thinking, "If I say that, she might think that I'm not cool or she might think that I'm needy or she might think that I'm this or that."

The thing is he could be right about that.

He could've said something and it wouldn't have gone well as a result.

Yet, he would have learned from that experience.

He would have gained in his understanding of how to talk to women rather than just having superficial conversations all the time like, "What do you do for a living? How long you've been working there? Do you have any brothers and sisters? Where you're from? Where did you go to school and so forth."

He could've said the thing that he wanted to say, expanded a topic in a certain way, or made a joke at a certain point in time, but he was fearing the woman's reaction.

He thought, "She may not like it. She may not think that it's funny. She may think that I'm boring and so forth."

As a result, the interaction felt awkward and forced and it ended.

The next example is with dating...

2. Dating

Here's a comment from a woman on one of my videos recently.

She said, "As a woman, I think these videos are absolutely spot on. I met a guy recently and I was flirting with him the whole night, but he didn't seem to notice."

At the end of the date, I was waiting for him to ask for my number and he wasn't going to, so I said, "You're not even going to ask for my number?" and he went, "Oh, what? I get to have your number?" He put himself in the friend zone right there and he thought I was out of his league, when in reality he is handsome."

The thing is if a woman goes on a date with a guy, then, she is interested in him.

She is open to something potentially happening.

It's not a guarantee that she wants to kiss, have sex and start a relationship, but she is open to it.

She wouldn't go to the date otherwise.

Now, in this particular case, a woman went on a date with a guy and was flirting with him the whole night and he still was worried about her potential reaction to him taking things to the next level.

For example: Him saying something like this to her, "Alright, well look, let's finish up here and I'll walk into your car" or, something like this, "Hey, so, let's continue this. Let's go back to my place and hang out for a bit. We'll chill out."

In many cases, a woman will say yes to that because she wants the date to continue, or she wants to get to a kiss or sex, or she just wants to get to know the guy more.

So, she'll go along with it.

Yet, in some cases, a woman won't want to go to a guy's place on the first date and that's fine.

A guy hasn't ruined it by suggesting that they hang out.

He hasn't ruined the situation.

Additionally, some women will initially say no to hanging out or chilling out at your place or you going back to her place because they don't want to seem too keen, eager and interested.

They're playing it cool.

Alternatively, she just doesn't want to seem too easy, so she will initially say no, but if a guy then says something like this, (in a relaxed, easy-going, but assertive way) "Oh, come on, let's just go and hang out for a little bit. I'll show you my place. We can get to know each other a little bit more. We'll hang out for like half an hour or something. Come on" she can now say yes on the grounds of not being so boring, or being a little bit more adventurous and just going with the flow.

So, she has a reason now to say, "Alright, cool. Well, let's go and hang out."

On the other hand, if a woman says no, that she doesn't want to go back to the guy's place, it's totally fine.

He doesn't need to suggest that again and he hasn't stuffed up the situation.

He can simply suggest catching up another time and it's no problem.

He hasn't ruined the situation.

So, in this particular case, the guy missed out on being with a woman who really liked him and thought that he was handsome.

His looks didn't get the job done because he made that tiny mistake, that little tiny mistake that completely destroys a guy's success with women all the way from pick up, to dating, having sex and being in a relationship and that is fearing the woman's reaction.

The next example is with sex...

3. Sex

In this example, the man is having sex with a woman and he wants to bend her over and pound her from behind.

Yet, rather than just changing the position, turning her around, bending her over and giving it to her, he asks her if she wants to change positions.

He asks her if she wants to do doggy style.

Does she like that? Does she want to do doggy style?

He fears her reaction to his moves in the bedroom.

The thing is, most women aren't going to complain about that (a guy asking if she wants to change positions).

A woman usually won't complain and say that she doesn't like it when a guy is asking her what position she wants to do, or asking her to change positions because it ruins the natural flow of the sex.

It ruins the mood.

Most women won't say it, but they will feel the difference between a guy who is always asking her if she wants to change positions, or asking her what position she wants to do, versus a man who occasionally asks if she wants to do a particular position, but for the most part, he doesn't stop and start talking and discussing during sex.

He just does what he wants.

He turns her around, he bends her over, he gets on top of her, he starts giving it to her missionary style.

Essentially, he does whatever position he wants and as a result, they get lost in the enjoyment of the sex.

So, when it comes to sex and a woman has her legs spread and is receiving it, she wants to be able to see that the man she is having sex with doesn't fear her potential reactions to how he's going to move, how he looks at her, how he touches her and so on.

He has that Relaxed, Ballsy Confidence that allows them to get lost in the enjoyment of the sex.

The final example is with a relationship...

4. Relationship

If a man is in a long-term relationship or a marriage with a woman, then, over the years, he will have experienced her tantrums and even rejections at times.

She will have thrown a tantrum about something, or when he tried to make a move on her or he said something, she will have rejected him in some way.

For some men, that is like water off a duck's back.

It doesn't matter.

The man knows that women will be women; they get emotional and sometimes, they will reject and you don't need to take it personally.

For some men though, they take it very personally and as a result, it begins to change the dynamic of the relationship.

For example: Rather than having Relaxed, Ballsy Confidence around his girlfriend or wife, a guy will start to become neutral around her.

He'll start to be more like a friend.
He'll want to just get along with her.
He doesn't want to experience a potential tantrum.
He doesn't want to display too much confidence around her because she might reject him.
She might test his confidence by saying no at times, by not kissing him when he wants to kiss, by not saying yes to one of his requests, like, "Go make me a coffee".
She might say no to his reject.
She may reject him in a moment like that.
So, for some guys, the fear of their woman's potential reaction to what they may say or do, can cause them to hide their balls.
Their balls become hidden.
The guy becomes a neutral, hesitant, even in some cases, soft guy around her.
Now, he may see himself as being a masculine guy.
He may see himself as being tough, but around his woman, he has been tamed beyond tame.
He has become domesticated.
He has become neutralized and he doesn't have that Relaxed, Ballsy Confidence that he knows he can have and that he may have had in the past, or that he has around his friends.
Around his woman, he just doesn't have it.
As a result, the attraction between him and his woman isn't there.
It feels neutral.
They don't really feel that draw to each other because his balls are hidden.
He fears her reaction to how he may touch her, how he may talk to her, how he may behave around her and the actions that he may take.
So, he just plays it safe, becomes neutral and tries to get along with her.
Yet, even though relationships like that can last for years and even decades, they aren't as enjoyable for the man and the woman as a relationship where the man's balls are out.
He is living balls out around his woman.
He is still being a good man.
He is still treating her well, but he's able to interact with her with that Relaxed, Ballsy Confidence where he doesn't fear her potential reactions to what he's going to say or do.

Want to Learn More?

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.
If you'd like to learn more, I have two recommendations for you.
The first recommendation is for the men who are single and looking to get laid or get a girlfriend.
The second recommendation is for the men who are in a long term relationship or a marriage that doesn't feel the way it used to.

The love, respect and attraction just isn't there anymore.

The woman isn't respecting him the way that she used to.

She doesn't love him the way that she used to and she doesn't feel attracted to him the way that she used to.

The first recommendation (for the single guys) is The Flow and it's the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend.

It's everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

The second recommendation (for the men in a relationship or marriage with a woman) is Make Her Love You For Life.

With this program, you will learn how to create the type of relationship dynamic that causes your woman to feel increasingly respectful, attracted and in love with you over time.

You will also learn how to communicate in a relationship with a woman in a way that causes you and her to feel closer and closer over time, to avoid unnecessary arguments and to truly understand and appreciate each other.

Make Her Love You For Life makes a relationship easy, happy, enjoyable and fulfilling for the both of you.

You literally feel so much love for each other that you don't want anyone else.

You just want to be together for life.

Remember This Rhyme

One final point that I want to make for you in this video is that if you fear a woman's reaction, she won't feel attraction.

Women are attracted to balls.

Women are attracted to that Relaxed, Ballsy Confidence in a man.

When a woman senses that a man is panicking, he is worried, he is nervous, he is unsure, he is uncertain, it doesn't turn her on.

It doesn't make her feel attracted.

Yet, when a woman senses that a man is confident, courageous, at ease and isn't worried, she feels turned on.

As you interact with her, she can literally start to become wet about the idea of having sex with you, about kissing you, about being bent over by you.

So, let women sense your balls, play with your balls, suck your balls and have your balls banging against them when you give it to them doggy style.

Finally, always remember: If you fear a woman's reaction, she won't feel attraction.

How to Tell a Girl You Like Her (4 Examples!)

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In some cases, if a guy tells a girl that he likes her, it will go well.

She will suddenly relax and won't be as afraid of being rejected by him because he has let her know that he likes her.

So she can now start showing lots of interest in him and not have to worry so much about being rejected.

Cases like that are ideal scenarios.

All the guy has to do is say, "Hey, I like you" then the girl says, "I like you too" or she shows lots of interest and then they start kissing, or they go on a date and then they kiss, they have sex and they start a relationship.

Yet, in pretty much every other case if a guy says that he likes a girl in the wrong way or at the wrong time, she will play hard to get or even reject him.

So, what I'm going to do in this video is give you 4 examples of how to tell a girl that you like her in a way that causes her interest in you to increase and allows her to feel comfortable to show interest back in you.

The 4 examples will be the first time you meet her, on a first date, after you've known her for a while and if she prefers a guy who is a bit of a challenge.

The last one there is very important when it comes to certain attractive girls who don't necessarily like it when a guy admits his feelings for her prior to kissing her or having sex with her.

Many attractive girls like to enjoy the thrill of the chase.

They like to feel as though they need to do something to impress you before you actually want to have sex or relationship with them.

You're not immediately smitten and 100% interested in her just because of how she looks.

This often happens with attractive girls who, for most of their life, have been instantly liked by guys.

Guys immediately like her, immediately have feelings for her and in many cases, say that they like her and they want to have a relationship with her and so on.

Sometimes an attractive girl will go for that, but in many cases, she will want to find herself the type of relationship where she needs to impress the guy, she needs to make sure that she maintains his interest.

So, we'll get to that example later in the video.

For now, here's the first example of how to tell a girl that you like her when you first meet her.

1. How to tell a girl that you like her when you first meet her

So, say for example: You meet a girl at a party after work, at a bar or if you're still at university you meet her at university.

You and her talking, you're getting along, you're having a laugh together and a few minutes into the conversation, you say something like this to her, "You're cute, I like you" or, "I like you, you're cute.”

By giving her a bit of a smile, looking her up and down and saying that she’s cute and you like her, it lets her know that you’re not just looking at her as a friend.

Yet, you’re also not being too serious about it and saying that you want to be her boyfriend, you want to take her out on a date or asking her if she’s looking for a boyfriend or something like that.

You’re just letting her know that you’re interacting with her, you’re finding her attractive and are not seeing her as just a friend.

Where a lot of guys go wrong is that when they’re interacting with a girl that they like and they’re getting along and having a laugh, they will then say something that confuses the girl and makes her think that he only sees her as a friend.

For example: A guy will be talking to a girl that he likes, they’ll be getting along and having a laugh and he’ll then say something like this, “You know? You’re really interesting to talk to you, I feel like we can really connect.”

Yet, when a guy says to a girl that she’s interesting to talk to and he feels like he can connect with her she doesn’t necessarily know that means he likes her in a sexual and romantic way.

Many girls are insecure and tend to overthink things when they’re talking to a guy that they like.

If he just says something like she’s interesting to talk to and he feels like he can connect with her, she may then begin to have insecure thoughts.

She may begin to think, “Well, what does he mean? Does it mean that I’m interesting to talk to, but I’m not pretty? Does he actually find me attractive? He said that we connect, does that mean that he feels we connect well as friends?”

That can cause her to worry about being rejected if she shows interest in him.

As a result, she may then begin to play hard to get or try to show him that she doesn’t see him as anything other than a friend.

If a guy then starts getting those signals from a woman, he may then think that she doesn’t like him and he’s going to get rejected if he shows any interest. So, the interaction can then become pretty awkward.

That’s why if you’re talking to a girl that you like for the first time and you want to let her know that you like her, it’s best to let her know that you like her in a way that is sexual.

It’s not about being sleazy and over the top about it where you say to her, “Oh, look at you, look at those tits, I’d like to bang you.”

Of course with some girls that can work, but with the majority of girls you need to be a bit more subtle about it, while also letting her know that you see her in a sexual way (i.e. you find her sexually attractive).

You’re not just talking to her as a friend, saying that you having a nice conversation with her and you’re getting along and you feel like you and her can connect and she’s interesting to talk to.

Instead, you’re saying something like this, “You’re cute, I like you.” (Watch video at the top of this page for the example of how I say it).

Saying it like that is almost as though you’re giving her your nod of approval.

You’re the sort of guy who could easily attract other girls.

You're confident in yourself, you're a cool guy and you're saying to her that she's cute and you like her.

She has gotten the nod of approval from a cool confident guy, which is a lot different than if a guy would say something like this, "Hey, you know, I wanted to tell you, I think you're cute and I like you."

That's not coming from a cool confident guy, that's coming from a guy who doubts himself, is nervous and is worried about what he's about to say.

Whereas the guy who says something like this, "You're cute, I like you" is giving her his nod of approval and she's going to be much more excited and happy about finding out that a guy like that likes her.

The second example of how to tell a girl that you like is if you're on a first date with her.

2. How to tell a girl that you like is if you're on a first date with her

Imagine that you go on a first date with a girl that you really like.

When she arrives, you look at her and think, "Wow, she looks really pretty, she looks sexy, she looks beautiful."

You're looking at her and feeling very attracted to her in that moment.

Where a lot of guys go wrong is that they'll say, "Oh, you look nice today. Oh, that's a nice dress, where did you get the dress from? I like the color," or "Your hair looks nice."

Nice, nice, nice, whatever.

What's actually going to go on between a man and a woman whether they have a casual sex, boyfriend and girlfriend or even husband and wife relationship is that there's going to be sex involved.

It's either going to be a sexual relationship or a sexual, romantic, committed relationship.

It's not just going to be a nice non-sexual friendship. "Oh, that looks nice, where'd you get the dress from? That's a nice color, that suits you."

No, no, no.

She's coming on a date with you and if she's like most girls she's insecure about her appearance and she also wants to be with the guy who genuinely looks at her as being physically attractive.

He really likes her and if they get into a relationship he's not going to lose interest in her quickly.

He really does find her attractive.

So, if you go on a date with a girl that you like and she arrives looking sexy, you can let her know that you are finding her attractive by saying something like this.

"Wow, look at you. How am I going to be concentrating on the food and the conversation now when you're in a dress like that? I'm not going to be able to concentrate, you look amazing." (Say it with a smile, in a charming way. See video at the top of this page for example of how to say it).

Or something like this, "Wow, look at you, someone's looking sexy today."

Since most girls are insecure about their appearance and when they go to a date, have put in hours of effort to look good, hearing a flirtatious compliment from the guy that they like is such a relief.

It helps her to stop thinking that she needs to put on an act as though she doesn't like him and try to play hard to get to make him show interest in her.

He's already showing the type of interest that she wants him to have in her.

She's not there to start a friendship, she's there to start a sexual relationship whether that be casual sex, boyfriend and girlfriend or the type of relationship that eventually leads to a husband and wife relationship.

So, with any of those three relationship scenarios, she wants to know that the guy that she's going to have sex with really does find her attractive.

The next example of how to tell a girl that you like is after you've known her for a while.

3. How to tell a girl that you like is after you've known her for a while

Where a lot of guys go wrong in a situation like that is to suddenly admit that they've had feelings for her all along.

In cases like that a girl then usually finds it difficult to trust the guy.

She begins to question his behavior and wonders why he hasn't been truthful with her all along; why he's just been acting like a friend and wanting to spend lots of time with her when in fact, he had a sexual and romantic interest in her.

Alternatively, a guy will say that he has feelings for her by sending her a card, a letter, a long text message or a message on social media.

If a girl really likes a guy and is hoping that he has feelings for her, that can work, but if a girl just sees a guy as a friend or doesn't feel much attraction for him and he's totally in love with her, then she'll most likely tell him that they're better off just being friends.

Alternatively, a guy might say that he doesn't want to just be her friend anymore and wants to be her boyfriend.

Yet, if she isn't sure that she wants to have a serious relationship with him at that point, she will most likely reject him or tell him that they're better off being friends.

So, if you've known a girl for a while and you want to tell her that you like her, it's best to tell her in a more relaxed and easygoing way, rather than how some guys do it, where they drop a bomb on her all of a sudden.

They suddenly admit that they have strong feelings for her and they've loved her all along.

They've imagined being her boyfriend and haven't been able to stop thinking about her and ever since the first moment they met her.

They have had strong feelings for her, but they're being too afraid to show it and all that sort of stuff.

That is way too dramatic, serious and even weird for some girls.

So, an example of telling her that you like her in a relaxed, easygoing way that isn't going to make things awkward between you and her is when you've been talking, getting along and having a laugh together.

When you and her having a good laugh together, you can pause and say something like this to her, "You look cute when you laugh."

She'll most likely smile, feel flirty and assume that you're just being nice and sweet with her.

You can then pull the rug out from under her and make her laugh and feel more attracted to you by adding in this, "Actually you look cute when you laugh, but you have a bit of a dorky smile."

She will then almost certainly laugh and you can then say something like this, "Just kidding, your smile is cute too, but you're still a dork."

Since you're being confident, being a bit of a challenge, making her laugh and making her feel girly in comparison to your masculinity by saying something like that, then she is going to feel attracted to you.

As a result, she's going to be happy to hear that you like things about her because she's feeling attracted to you in that moment and you're telling her that she has a cute laugh or a cute smile and so on.

You're telling her, in a subtle way, that you find her attractive.

Then, with a girl like that you've known for a while, you need to get things moving along between you and her.

So, don't just stop at letting her know that you like something about her because she may feel insecure and worried that you just like her smile, or her laugh and you're not actually interested in getting anything going between you and her.

After all, you've known her for a while and you haven't asked her out, you haven't made any moves on her, so what else is she to think?

Some girls who are confident will assume that you like them, but many girls are insecure.

So, you need to make sure that when you make her feel attracted in a moment like that (and she's sensing that you do like her), you then get things moving along between you and her.

For example: If you and her are at a party, at a bar around other people that you know (e.g. coworkers), or at university around other people that you know, then you can say something like this to get things moving along between you and her, "Hey, by the way, we should catch up for a coffee, just you and me."

Then, arrange to catch up with her the next day or a couple of days later and get an actual catch up going where it's just you and her, so you can then initiate physical touch, kiss her and start an actual relationship.

Of course, if you and her are alone and you've made her feel attracted to you and let her know that you like something about her, then the next step is to start making some moves.

Initiate physical touch, initiate a kiss, have sex and start an actual relationship with her.

4. How to tell a girl that you like her if she prefers a guy who is a bit of a challenge

Say for example you're talking to an attractive girl who is confident and likes a guy who is a bit of a challenge.

She doesn't want a guy who is a pushover and immediately likes her, tries to impress her and hopes to get a chance with her.

Instead, she wants to be with the sort of guy who makes her feel the need to impress him.

She wants to feel like he keeps her on her toes around him just to impress him and make him like her, if she's going to be able to get a chance with him.

So, if you're talking to a girl like that and you ask her a question like, "So, who's your favorite pop singer at the moment?" or, "What music are you into at the moment?" and she then answers, you can playfully challenge her in that moment by saying something like this.

"You didn't just say that, did you? I liked you up until that point, you disappoint me girl." (Said playfully).

Or something like this, "What? Who likes that music, lame." (Said playfully).

You and her can then have a laugh together and of course, at some point you can tell her that you're only joking, her taste in music is fine and maybe you and her can get together one day and listen to her crappy taste in music.

So, that sort of approach works well with girls who like a guy who is more of a challenge compared to a guy who meets her and immediately starts to say, "Oh, you know, I really like you, you're different from other girls. You looking for a boyfriend? You want to go out sometime?" and so forth.

Many attractive girls want a guy who can make them feel like she needs to impress him, she needs to maintain his interest and that is exciting for her.

Whatever type of girl you're interacting with though, just make sure that you keep things moving along between you and her.

Don't just stop at making her feel attracted or letting her know that you like her.

You've got to at least get to a first kiss if you want to start an actual relationship with her.

Knowing When You Should and Shouldn't Say, "I Like You"

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that you don't always have to tell a girl that you like her in order to get to a kiss, a date, sex or relationship.

It really depends on the kind of girl that she is.

Sometimes a girl does need to hear that a guy likes her or finds her attractive, before she feels comfortable enough to show her interest in him and begin to touch him and so on.

So, if you get the sense that the girl that you like needs to hear that you like her or find her attractive, before she will really open up and show interest in you, then go ahead and tell her that you like her, but just make sure that you do it in a way that makes her feel attracted to you.

Alternatively, make sure that you make her feel attracted to you prior to saying, "You're cute. I like you" by being a bit of a challenge, making her laugh, flirting with her and so on.

Make sure that she's feeling attracted to you so when you do tell her that you like her, she feels happy about that.

She feels excited that you and her feel the same way and she then wants something to happen between you and her.

What to Do if a Girl Loses Interest

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Imagine this.

You meet a girl that you really like and initially, she seems interested and is even kind of pursuing you, but she then loses interest,

Or does she?

That's what you need to determine.

Whether or not she has actually lost interest in you, or if she has just changed her approach with you.

For example: Sometimes a woman will stop pursuing a guy that she is interested in because she doesn't want to seem too keen and eager, so she plays it cool and acts like she could take him or leave him.

The thing is, some men play that game with women, too.

They play it cool.

They act as though they could take her or leave her and sometimes that works, but in many cases it doesn't work because some women are insecure and doubt their attractiveness to a guy.

They don't want to show a lot of interest and pursue a guy only to then be rejected by him.

As I said, sometimes it can work to do that, but in many cases, it doesn't.

So, what I'm going to teach you later on in the video is the easy way to do it, to get rid of all the mind games and just get the result that you want.

Whether that be to have a relationship with her, or have casual sex with her, whatever result you're aiming to get, you'll get that by using the approach that I'll tell you in a minute.

For now, I'll explain a little bit more about why a woman will stop pursuing a guy that she is interested in.

She wants to see if he'll lose confidence and give up if she stops helping him by giving him such clear signals that she is interested.

Alternatively, even though she's been showing lots of interest in him, he hasn't made a move to kiss her yet.

As a result, she then begins to think that maybe there isn't enough of a spark between him and her for a kiss to happen. Maybe they'd be better off as friends.

Another example is that he just keeps texting back and forth with her and it's going nowhere. He hasn't called her up to say hi and get her to catch up with him in person.

As a result, she may begin to think that he's just playing her and keeping her warm while he sees other girls that he feels more attracted to.

So, rather than continuing to feel like she's just an option for him, she decides to stop showing interest or stop pursuing him.

Finally, another reason why a girl might stop showing interest or stop pursuing a guy even though she likes him, is that she wants to see if he will lose interest in her if she stops pursuing him.

Many girls do that as a way to hopefully find out how much a guy actually likes them.

Will he continue to try to get something going between him and her, or will he simply lose interest in her if she stops pursuing him?

Of course, another reason can be that she has genuinely lost interest in a guy and doesn't want to be with him anymore.

In that case, how do you get her to feel interested again?

Some guys think, "Well, I'll just lose interest back in her. If she has lost interest in me when we were getting along, then I'll give her a taste of her own medicine. I'll lose interest in her. I'll show her that I don't care."

That can cause a woman to begin pursuing a man, but in many cases it causes one of the following reactions instead.

She fears getting rejected if she shows interest in him and he has genuinely lost interest in her.

So, rather than risk getting rejected, she just gets on with her life without him.

Or, she goes out on a date with another guy to make him feel jealous, but she then likes the new guy and gets into a relationship with him instead.

Alternatively, she tries to get back at him for losing interest in her and seeming to reject her. She begins to talk to him again, but refers to him as her friend or her buddy to hopefully make him feel rejected.

So, how do you avoid all the mind games and just get the girl that you want?

How do you fix the problem and get the girl who has seemingly lost interest in you?

What you need to do is very simple.

Attraction followed by action.

In other words, first, you need to make sure that she is feeling attracted to you and then you need to take action to get things moving along between you and her.

For example: If a guy was a pushover with a woman where he was too nice to her and she didn't feel any need to impress him, then he can make her feel attracted by now being a bit of a challenge for her to acquire.

Another example is where a guy was just being neutral around a woman and talking to her in a friendly way as though there was no sexual attraction from his side.

To get rid of the neutral dynamic between him and her, he can start behaving in a more masculine way around her to make her feel girly in comparison to him.

That way it's not neutral.

She will see him as being the more dominant one and she'll feel feminine and turned on as a result.

So, how does the guy actually display those traits?

Well, I'll give you two examples now of how you can display both of those traits at once simply based on how you're talking to her.

A guy is talking to a girl that he likes and she asks him, "So how was your day?"

If a guy is just being neutral and he's being a bit of a pushover, he is not making her feel any need to impress him and he's just being that neutral friend, he may reply with something like, "Oh, it's good. How about you?"

Now, there's nothing wrong with a guy talking to a girl in that way.

It's totally fine to have a neutral conversation with a girl that you like.

However, if you want to make her feel attracted to you, what you need to do is display some of the personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women.

When you display these personality traits and behaviors, women literally begin to feel attracted to you, drawn to you and even turned on by you.

I'm not talking about a woman being turned on to the point where she drops to her knees and says, "Unbuckle your belt. Let's get this thing going," but I'm talking about her beginning to feel turned on by you, feeling excited around you, imagining having sex with you, liking what she's imagining and wanting to interact with you more as a result.

So, if a guy is talking to a girl that he likes and she asks him, "So, how was your day?" he can say something like this to be a bit more of a challenge and make her feel girly and feminine in comparison to his masculinity or his balls, his rawness, his manliness and so on.

"How was my day? Well, it was going great until you arrived...just kidding. I've been having a good day and now it's even better because you're here and you're going to buy me a coffee and a cake. Such a great girl. Always buying me things." (Watch the video on this page to hear the tonality I'm using).

By the way...

Of course, it doesn't matter if the girl takes care of the bill and buys the guy a coffee or a cake, or if they split the bill, or if the guy wants to get her a coffee and a cake.

That stuff doesn't matter.

What matters and makes her feel attracted is that he has the balls to be a bit challenging as he talks to her.

He also makes her feel girly and feminine in comparison to his masculine presence in the interaction and that turns her on.

Another example is where a guy is talking to a girl that he likes and she takes a selfie of herself and then asks his opinion, does the selfie look good, what does he think and so on.

A guy who is being a pushover or is always neutral around the girl that he likes might say something like, "Oh, it looks good. Very nice."

Now, there's nothing wrong with a guy saying something like that, but if a guy is in a situation where the girl that he likes is losing interest in him because he has been too neutral around her or has been a bit of a pushover, he can use things that she says or does to make her feel sparks of sexual attraction for him.

He can do that by displaying some of the personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women.

So, if a guy is talking to a girl that he likes and she takes a selfie of herself and then asks him, "Does it look good?" he can say something like this.

"Wow, that is the...worst selfie I've ever seen."

She will most likely know that he's joking and they'll have a laugh together, but if she does ask him, "No, what do you think? Do you really think that? Does it look bad?" and so forth, he can continue the joke a little bit more by saying something like this.

“No, just kidding. I think you look cute, but next time try to pout a little bit more. Do those selfie duck lips. I think that will really suit you. That will look cool.”

Once again, she is almost certainly going to know that he’s joking and they can have a laugh together about that.

She is going to feel attracted to the fact that he isn’t being as neutral as he usually is around her and he isn’t being as much of a pushover.

He’s being a bit of a challenge.

He’s making her feel a bit girly in comparison to his masculine presence in the interaction.

She doesn’t feel like the more dominant one anymore and as a result she feels attracted and turned on by him.

Another similar response that a guy can give to a girl he likes who is asking him a question, “So what do you think of this selfie? What do you think of this photo? Does this photo of me look good? What do you think?” and so on is to say something like this.

“Give me a look. Horrible. Absolutely horrible.” (Said in a joking way. Watch the video on this page to hear the tonality).

She is almost certainly then going to laugh.

Yet, she may also ask if he’s being serious and she may even begin to feel a bit insecure in that moment if she feels as though he is being serious.

Many women are insecure about their appearance and they thrive on getting compliments from men.

So, when a man has the balls to playfully say that one of her photos isn’t very attractive, a woman will pay attention to that and a guy can then put her insecure mind at ease by saying something like this. “Just kidding. I think you look cute.”

She is then going to appreciate his compliments so much more because the guy that she is feeling attracted to in that moment, in that interaction thinks that she is cute too.

Yet, he doesn’t just give her compliments like that easily.

She has to work for it.

She has to impress him.

She has to maintain his interest.

As a result, she is coming at him.

She wants to be with him.

It’s going to be about him allowing her to have a chance with him.

However, an important thing to point out here though is that if you want to get the girl you like, you shouldn’t stop at just making her feel attracted to you.

In almost all cases, you have to take some action to get things moving along between you and her.

Here’s why...

If a guy makes a woman feel girly in comparison to his masculinity and is being a bit of a challenge, she will feel attracted.

Yet, if he is too much of a challenge and doesn’t give her any indication that he likes her, she can become insecure.

If she becomes insecure, she may begin to play mind games and play hard to get.

So, you have to make sure that when she feels attracted, you then take action to keep things moving along between you and her.

For example: A guy who takes action when a girl is feeling attracted to him will then hug her, kiss her, invite her back to his place, have sex with her or make plans to hang out or catch up again.

Unfortunately, a lot of guys end up missing out on being with the girl that they really want to be with because they don't take action and instead they become passive.

Here are some examples of a guy being passive with a girl that he likes versus taking action.

Being passive: Guy likes a girl, she seems to have lost interest, so he waits for her to make a move.

Sometimes that can work if the girl really likes him and builds up her courage to ask him out or flirt with him and then move in for a first kiss.

Yet, if that isn't happening after weeks of waiting, a guy needs to take some action to get things moving along between him and her.

Taking action: Guy likes a girl. She seems to have lost interest.

He makes sure that she's feeling attracted to him again, then he asks for her phone number, invites her out for a coffee or a bite to eat and then they can get to a first kiss.

After that, they'll most likely begin seeing each other casually or they'll become boyfriend and girlfriend right away.

Another example of being passive versus taking action.

Being passive: Guy likes a girl. She seems to have lost interest. He ignores her in the hope that it will make her want him more.

She notices that he seems to have lost interest.

She doesn't want to show interest in him and then get rejected if he really has lost interest in her.

If those sort of mind games go on for long enough, a woman will usually just meet another guy and get into a relationship with him instead.

Taking action: Guy likes a girl. She seems to have lost interest.

He makes sure that she's feeling attracted to him again, then he invites her over to his place to hang out, invites her out to have something to eat or drink and then they can get to a kiss, sex and start an actual relationship.

Being passive: Guy likes a girl. She seems to have lost interest, so he just hopes that something will happen all by itself.

He hopes that somehow she'll begin to like him in a romantic and sexual way.

Somehow they'll go out on a date and somehow a kiss will happen.

Yet, when he takes that approach with her, she fears being rejected or assumes that he isn't interested in her anymore, so she ends up meeting a new guy instead.

Taking action: Guy likes a girl. She seems to have lost interest.

He makes sure that she's feeling attracted to him, then he gets her number and arranges for them to catch up for a coffee, a bite to eat or to hang out at his place.

In other words, rather than approaching his dating life in a passive way, he pursues the girls that he wants and gets the girls that he wants.

Where a lot of guys get stuck is that they think that pursuing a woman is needy.

It's not.

If a guy pursues a woman in a desperate way where he's hoping to get a chance with her and he's sucking up to her and he's trying really hard, then yes, that is needy.

Yet, what real men do is go after what they want in life and there's nothing wrong with that.

Women actually respect it.

They appreciate it.

They like it when a guy has so much interest in them that he is willing to pursue them.

He is willing to get something going between him and her.

He's not doing it in a desperate way though.

He's just going after what he wants.

He's getting something going between him and her.

Want to Learn More?

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you are one of the guys who get stuck at certain points along the way with girls that you like, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

For a guy who wants to get a girl that he already knows, he simply needs to use the attraction techniques from The Flow to make sure that she is definitely feeling attracted to him.

He can then take things to the next level with her by using the techniques from The Flow to initiate physical touch in a way that she wants and welcomes.

He can then use the flow techniques to get to a first kiss and sex.

For a guy who wants to attract and pick up new women, you simply need to go through the steps of The Flow.

When you follow The Flow, you and a woman immediately flow from one step to the next with each other.

It's the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend.

Most Guys Doubt Themselves. Be the Exception

One final point that I want to make for you in this video is that so many guys miss out on being with the girl that they really want because they overthink it.

"What if I get rejected? What if the conversation doesn't go too well? What if I ask her out for a coffee and she says, 'No'? What if I talk to her and I run out of things to say? What if it's a little bit awkward?"

Get rid of the what-ifs and just get the job done.

Do what you need to do to get the girl that you want.

Otherwise, you'll most likely end up accepting a girl that you don't want and that's no way to live as a man.

To live with that nagging feeling of regret that you could have gotten with the girl that you really wanted to be with, but you were overthinking it, "She could reject me. The conversation might not go very well. She might initially say no to going out for coffee."

The thing is, if you want to make sure that you're going to get the girl that you really like, then you need to make sure that you are aware of how to attract her as you talk to her and you actually do that and then you don't stop at that point.

You actually get things moving along between you and her (i.e. you take action).

When you approach your dating life in that way, you will see that it's very easy to date women.

It's very easy to enjoy your choice of women because most guys don't talk to the girls that they really like and if they do, most of them don't really know how to make her feel attracted, so nothing ever happens.

Additionally, if the girl is feeling attracted, many guys stop at that point.

They fear being rejected, so they don't ask her out.

They doubt themselves.

So, when you are a guy who cuts through all the games and just makes women feel attracted to you and then takes action, you will see that there's hardly any competition.

Women will go on a date with you and you can then kiss, have sex and start a relationship if you want to.

When it comes to your dating life with women, I recommend that you pursue rather than being passive.

Get the girl you want.

How Nerds Get a Girlfriend (SHOCKING)

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Some guys might feel a little bit shocked by what you're about to see and learn, until I begin to explain why it happens and how it happens.

How a nerd or a nerdy-looking guy gets himself a girlfriend.

The thing is, 89% of guys who watch my videos don't see themselves as being a nerd.

Yet, there is a powerful lesson to learn when you understand how nerds get themselves a girlfriend.

What is the nerd's SECRET to getting a girlfriend if he isn't confident around the type of girls that he likes?

How does he get himself a girlfriend?

Here are 4 ways that it happens.

1. Some women see themselves as a bit of a nerd, even though they may not look like it

The thing is a woman may be sweet, nice and fun to be around, but she may secretly enjoy just hanging out with her boyfriend and doing things that other people may see as being nerdy.

As a result of that, she feels like she can relate to him.

She feels like they understand each other.

Additionally, going to the more extreme end of the nerd spectrum, so the ultra nerds, some women like the fantasy version of reality that some guys seem to live in, where they dress up and fantasize about being a certain character, or living in a certain type of world.

The two of them will get up to little adventures together and they'll feel like they're saving the planet, or they'll feel like superheroes or like they're making a difference in the world.

To other people, they may seem strange, but to each other, they will feel cool.

They will feel like they are looking at a version of reality that other people don't see and it's fun for them and everyone else is missing out.

2. If a nerd lacks confidence around a girl that he likes, he will use another quality of his that will often allow him to get the job done

Some guys who other people will label as being nerdy, or who will label themselves as being nerdy will be confident about themselves.

They won't be an insecure, shy type of nerd.

They will be a confident nerd.

That type of nerd will have the confidence to talk to girls he likes, attract them and get something going between him and her.

Yet, what about the nerds who lack confidence around girls that they like?

How did they get a girlfriend?

The main quality that will help a nerd who lacks confidence to get himself a girlfriend is determination.

He will see a girl that he likes and he will feel determined to talk to her, he will feel determined to keep talking to her, he will feel determined to ask her out, to ask for her phone number, to get something going between him and her.

All the while, he won't be feeling confident about it.

He may feel anxious around the girl, he will worry about getting rejected, but because he likes her so much he will feel determined to continue talking to her and get something going between him and her.

3. Some women only feel comfortable in a relationship with a guy who seems like he doesn't have other options

This can be due to a woman getting her heart broken in previous relationships, thinking that she is not beautiful enough to hold a confident guy down in a relationship and so on.

She hopes that she will be able to have a stable relationship that lasts for life if she doesn't go for a player type of guy, or a very confident guy.

Now, of course, there is no guarantee for her that the relationship is going to last any longer than it would if she was with a confident guy, or with a player who settled down and decided to be with her, but that is her strategy.

She has decided that she's going to go for a guy who seems like he doesn't have other options and as a result, she hopes that he will see her as being valuable.

She hopes that he will appreciate the fact that he's got himself a good girlfriend and as a result, he'll want to treat her well, make the relationship work and stay with her for life.

4. Like most women, she is easy to get if a guy is able to get things moving along with her

Most guys who meet a girl that they like, stop after having a brief conversation with her, or get the woman feeling some attraction and then give up because they fear being rejected.

If a nerd has the confidence to get something going between him and a girl that he likes, or if he has the determination to push himself to talk to her, keep talking to her, ask for her number, ask her out and get something going between him and her, then it will be possible for him to get himself a girlfriend.

The thing is, not every girl out there will accept a nerdy-looking guy or a guy who is into nerdy things.

That is true.

Yet, many girls will.

Millions of nerds across the world are able to get themselves a girlfriend because many girls will accept a nerdy-looking guy, or a geeky-looking guy if he's able to get something going between him and the girl.

Regardless of the type of guy that you are, it's very important for you to understand that it is possible for you to get yourself a girlfriend, or even enjoy your choice of women for a while before you decide to settle down.

Many guys count themselves out with women because they think that they're not good enough...yet. Some guys assume that they have to build up a lot of muscle and then women will accept him, or move into a better apartment and then women will like them, or get promoted at work and then women will like them.

Meanwhile, guys who don't even go to the gym are able to get themselves a girlfriend, guys who don't live in a fancy apartment are able to get themselves a girlfriend and guys who haven't got promoted at work are able to get themselves a girlfriend.

They're just normal, everyday guys who had the confidence to talk to girls that they like, or had the determination to talk to a girl that they like and get something going between him and her.

Want to Learn More?

I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you're one of the guys who lacks the confidence to approach and talk to women that you find attractive, or you get stuck at certain points along the way because you don't have the determination to keep going, or if you just don't know what to say or do to get to the next level with a woman, then I recommend that you read my eBook The Flow or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

When you read The Flow or listen to The Flow on Audio, you will learn my best ever conversation starters, best ways to instantly make a woman feel attracted to you as soon as you start talking to her, how to keep a conversation going and keep it interesting, how to create an unforgettable connection between you and a woman, how to get her phone number, how to get her out on a date with you, how to initiate a first kiss and how to initiate sex.

When you know The Flow, you won't get stuck at a certain point with a woman that you like.

Instead, you will flow from one step to the next with her.

It's very easy to do.

How You Make Her Feel

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that when a man is talking to a woman in person, she's not necessarily remembering all of the male models that she's seen in magazines, or all of the photos of guys that she's seen on Tinder.

Instead, she is assessing how the guy makes her feel in that moment.

Is he making her feel attracted and turned on, even in the slightest?

Is she feeling drawn to him in some way?

Is there something about him that she likes?

If a woman is feeling some attraction and feeling drawn to a guy, she will usually go along with what the guy is creating with her (e.g. she will usually give her phone number or go on a date with him).

She will go along with it, rather than rejecting him based on all of her possible options (i.e. the possible options that she may have on an app like Tinder).

If she is interacting with the guy in person, she's feeling something and he has the confidence or the determination to get things moving along with her, she will usually go along with it.

The thing is, there are women out there who have very strict standards and will not go for a nerdy type of guy, but many women will go for a guy who others may see as being nerdy or who sees himself as being a nerd.

If you see yourself as being a cool guy, a player, a bad boy, a nice guy, a good guy, a normal guy, a nerd, this or that, what you need to understand is that you can get yourself a girlfriend.

Most women are easy to pick up if you have the confidence to approach them and talk to them, or at least the determination to push yourself to actually talk to them, keep a conversation going and then get something going between you and her.

4 Reasons Why Good Looking Guys Rarely Get the Girl They Want

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Some good looking men have absolutely no problem getting themselves a beautiful girlfriend or a wife.

Yet, the reality is that a very high percentage of men who are labeled as being good looking, or who have been told that they're handsome their entire life, have a secret that most people aren't aware of.

That is, he rarely gets the girl that he really wants.

Additionally, when he sees his ideal type of girl and she has a boyfriend or a husband, he will sometimes find that the guy isn't as good looking as he is.

He will wonder, why can't I get a girl like that?

That's the type of girl that I want and she's with a guy who looks like that.

Why haven't I been able to get a girl like that?

Additionally, his friends who may also be good looking, have been able to attract their ideal type of woman and they're enjoying a relationship with her.

Yet, he can't seem to attract his ideal type of girl and doesn't know why it's happening to him.

After all, throughout his entire life, people have been saying to him that he's handsome and he's good looking, but that hasn't resulted in him being able to attract the kinds of girls that he really wants.

So why does that happen and more importantly, what does it mean for you and your success with women if you rate yourself as being an average looking guy, a below-average looking guy, a good looking guy and so on?

How does it affect you and your success with women?

Let's begin with number 1.

The first reason why a good looking guy won't get the type of girl he really wants is that...

1. He gets a lot of attention from women, but is usually only pursued by women who aren't as attractive as the ones he really wants

So what happens for a lot of good looking men, is that they get a lot of interest and attention and are often even get pursued by women that they may rate as being 6 or 7 out of 10.

At times, the good looking guy will accept some of those women who pursue him and in the process of dating her, having sex with her, hanging out with her, he will sometimes end up falling for that girl.

Yet, in relationships like that, what often happens is that the guy knows that he is more attractive than the girl and in some cases, he ends up taking her for granted as a result.

For example: If he was with a woman that he found very attractive and he really appreciated her, valued her and wanted her in his life, then he would try not to take her for granted.

He would try to make sure that she feels appreciated and that the relationship works.

Yet, if he is with a woman that he doesn't find very attractive and he only got with her because she pursued him and she kind of grew on him, then he may find it difficult to genuinely make her feel like she is appreciated and wanted in his life and instead he may begin to take her presence in his life for granted.

Then, as a way to try to secure the good looking guy further into a relationship with her, the less attractive woman will often begin to threaten him with a breakup.

She'll start to say that he isn't treating her well and that she's sick of it and in some cases, the guy will end up going from one extreme to the other and it will get him dumped by the less attractive woman.

One extreme was where he was taking her for granted and wasn't treating her well.

Then, she complained and threatened to break up with him and he felt like he needed her in his life and didn't want to lose that, so he went to the other extreme and started being really nice and putting in loads of effort.

Yet, that caused her to lose respect and attraction for him because he became desperate in her eyes and wasn't the cool, confident guy that she fell in love with.

Then, when he's at his weakest point emotionally, she dumps him and he is devastated emotionally.

He is miserable, unhappy and he feels like he needs her back, but she wasn't even the type of girl that he really wanted in the first place.

She grew on him.

She wasn't the type of girl that he's really attracted to.

Yet, he got caught up in all of that and ended up falling for a woman that he didn't even really want to be with in the beginning.

Meanwhile, he may notice that his friends have been able to attract and settle down with beautiful women that they love and really want to be with, whereas the women that he really wants always seem out of reach for him.

He has the good looks, so it makes sense to him that he should be able to get women like that, but they always seem out of reach for him.

So he wonders, why is it happening to me?

Why can other guys who aren't even successful in life get themselves a pretty girl?

What do I need to adjust about my approach to pretty girls?

What am I doing wrong?

Why can't I get the girls that I really want?

In some cases, it's because of this second reason...

2. He is confused about why beautiful women look at him and seem to find him attractive, but don't seem interested when he starts talking to them

If a good looking guy meets a woman who isn't as attractive as him physically, she will often make it easy for him.

Not in all cases, but in many cases, the less attractive woman will make it easy for him to talk to her. She will try to keep the conversation going and she'll try to make it easy for him to get something going between him and her.

A good looking guy likes that.

It's nice and easy.

He just has to talk about anything and the girl is interested. She laughs at his jokes. She's interested no matter what. Easy.

Yet, when he meets a woman who is his ideal type physically, she will rarely behave in that way.

Instead, she will usually test his confidence and test his interest in her by being difficult during the first 1-5 minutes.

In almost all cases, it's not because she is a bitch and doesn't have a friendly, easy-going side to her. Instead, it's because pretty much every guy who sees her or meets her would love to be her boyfriend or at least have sex with her once.

So she has to initially be a bit difficult by not contributing much to a conversation, to screen out the guys who lack confidence and don't truly believe that they deserve to be with a girl of her quality.

She doesn't want to give a chance to a nervous guy who is hoping to get lucky.

Instead, she wants to find herself a truly confident boyfriend who knows that he is good enough for a woman like her and wants to have a relationship based on real love that will last for life.

This is why a beautiful woman may look at a good looking guy (and seem interested), but then seem as though she is uninterested when he starts talking to her.

Most good looking guys who experience that type of reaction from women that they're attracted to assume that it means the woman isn't attracted to them.

In some cases, that is true.

Yet, in almost all cases the woman is just trying to find out how confident the guy really is.

Can he remain confident during the first 1-5 minutes where she is testing his confidence, or is he the sort of guy who can only feel confident if a woman is making things easier for him?

How strong is his confidence?

Is it a superficial type of confidence that he feels because people give him compliments all the time and make things easy for him, or does he have that deep belief and knowing that he is good enough to the point where he doesn't flinch and become nervous if people aren't behaving in a really nice way around him, or if people aren't being supportive and making things easy for him?

Additionally, how interested in her is he?

Does he have a real interest in her or is he just interested in making her feel attracted and proving to himself that another girl likes him?

Is he just interested in maybe having sex and that's it? Maybe having a fling for a while?

Maybe having a 2-3 year relationship and then breaking up with her?

Or, is he looking at her and finding her incredibly attractive and thinking, "I want that woman," then making her his woman, getting into a committed relationship and building a future together?

The thing is, the majority of beautiful women out there are looking to find themselves a boyfriend.

You will sometimes meet beautiful women who just want to have sex and don't want any strings attached; it's just sex, don't fall in love with her, bang her and leave. That's what she wants.

Yet, the majority of women out there, whether they are beautiful, average looking, below-average looking and so on, want to find themselves a boyfriend, want to find themselves a man that they can get into a real relationship with, that they can build a future with, a relationship based on real love that is going to last and is going to feel amazing for the both of them.

So, whether you are a very good looking guy, a good looking guy, an average looking guy or a below-average looking guy, you've got to understand that when you start talking to a woman, she isn't always going to make it really easy for you initially.

In many cases, it's not because she isn't interested, instead she's just testing to see what type of guy you really are.

Can you handle that initial bit of pressure to let her see that you are a man that she can look up to and respect?

You are a man that can make her feel protected and safe.

You're not an emotionally weak man who needs people to be patting him on the back all the time, giving him compliments all the time, making everything easy for him in order to feel confident.

You have independent confidence; you are confident no matter what people say or do around you.

That makes women feel more attracted to a guy than his looks and it's often the reason why a good looking guy ends up getting to the point where he accepts women that he's not very attracted to.

He can't handle the heat, he can't handle the pressure.

He can't handle those initial 1-5 minutes and in some cases, 1-10 minutes where a woman is testing his confidence by being a bit short during the conversation, not giving him too much to work with and seeing how he handles it.

The thing is, once you are aware that women do that, you can then stop taking it personally.

You can stop thinking that you're getting rejected because a woman isn't jumping all over you during the first 1-5 minutes and instead, you can see it as an opportunity to make her feel deeply attracted to you by being one of the rare guys who can actually handle the pressure.

When you're able to remain confident and continue talking to the woman without thinking that you're being rejected, what you'll see is that beautiful women then show you their friendly, easy-going, down to earth side that they don't show to other guys.

In most cases, they then open up and make it easy for you to hook up with them because you are one of the rare guys who can handle the initial pressure.

You are able to remain confident around her no matter what because you believe that you are more than good enough for a girl like her.

The third reason why a good looking guy won't get the type of girl that he really wants is that...

3. He doesn't want to ruin the illusion that his friends have of him

A good looking guy's friends will pretty much always notice that he gets more attention from women than they do.

In some cases, he will get average looking women approaching him and in other cases, he'll even get hot girls approaching him.

To his friends, he is a stud, he's the man.

Girls want to be with him and his friends think, "If only I could look like him, then I would get all the girls."

Yet, the good looking guy has a secret.

That is, he's not getting the type of girls that he really wants and in many cases it's because he doesn't want to approach women that he finds attractive, get rejected and then ruin the illusion that his friends have of him (i.e. that he is the ultimate ladies man and can get any woman he wants).

In other cases though, a good looking guy isn't really worried about what his friends may think, but is instead worried about how it may affect him.

If he walks over and approaches a woman that he finds attractive and she rejects him, then it may ruin the illusion for him.

In his mind, he is a cool, handsome man that should be able to get any woman he wants and the girls that he really wants often look at him.

They look at him and they seem to be attracted to him, but they don't run over and approach him like the other girls do, or they don't make it easy for him when he starts talking to them.

In his mind, he should be able to get those ideal type of women that he wants, but it's not happening.

So, when he goes out with his friends, he will rarely, if ever, be the one who approaches a group of girls first.

He will usually be the one who comes over afterwards or gets introduced.

That's safety for him.

He doesn't have to get rejected.

He can just come in as the handsome guy and get attention from some women in the group and his friends will look at him and think that he's the stud, he's the man and so on.

Yet, although that can be fun for a good looking guy, as the years go on, it can start to be a bit of a drain where he ends up sleeping with women that he's not sincerely attracted to.

They're not the ideal type of women that he really wants.

Additionally, as time goes on, he may notice that some of his friends who aren't as good looking as him end up settling down with a pretty girl and he is then left thinking, "What's going on here? Why aren't I getting that? Why can't I get the type of girl that I really want?"

Finally, another reason why a good looking guy won't get the girl that he really wants is that...

3. He uses Tinder or online dating rather than approaching women that he finds attractive in real life

Due to the fact that an attractive woman will get contacted by hundreds of guys, she rarely answers messages.

Most attractive women just use Tinder or online dating to look at messages and use it as a self-esteem boost.

If an attractive woman does start replying to messages just to see what happens, she can have 10, 20, 30, 40, 50 guys messaging her at the same time.

As a result, a good looking guy can become 1 of 10, 20, 30 good looking guys trying to get her attention and hopefully keep a conversation going.

In some cases, a good looking guy will then begin to accept the women who are actually replying to him and seem interested.

Yet, she's usually not going to be the type of girl he really wants.

In most cases, a guy won't stick with that type of woman.

He might have sex with her a few times or even for a few months, but he will also keep other women on the side, or he will dump her as soon as he finds something better.

Yet, in some cases, he will actually settle for that type of woman.

He'll get to the point where he thinks, "Well, she's good enough. She isn't my ideal type of woman, but who cares? We get along, we have a good relationship, let's just settle down."

That's all very well and good initially, but what usually happens around the 2-3 year point of the relationship (and in some cases even earlier), is that the guy's eyes start to wander.

He starts looking at other women, finding them more attractive and thinking, "Why don't I have a girl like that? I want to be with that type of woman, but I've ended up with this type of woman, what am I doing?"

Regardless of that realization, he may end up staying with the woman he doesn't mind for many years, before the relationship eventually ends in a breakup or divorce.

Meanwhile, he will have spent many years of his life feeling disappointed with himself that he never did get the kind of girls that he really wanted, even though he had the looks.

In some cases, that can cause a man to fall into depression as he looks back on his life with regret.

In other cases, it can cause a man to become angry and bitter towards women and society.

Yet, in other cases, a man realizes that if other guys who aren't as good looking as him can get themselves a beautiful girlfriend or wife, then he can too.

For example: No doubt you've seen guys with pretty women and thought, "What is she doing with him? I'm better looking than him, why don't I have a girl like that?"

The thing is, it's very easy to make women feel attracted to you and guys like that are clear evidence of it.

It's not a difficult thing to do.

When you know how to make women feel attracted to you (as you talk to her in person) and you're willing to do that, then you can have access to all sorts of beautiful women.

The reality is that some pretty women don't contribute much to a conversation for the first 5-10 minutes and are a little bit more challenging to talk to.

However, the vast majority of beautiful women out there drop their guard and open up to you after only 1-2 minutes of conversation.

If you're able to remain confident and spark her attraction by displaying personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women, traits and behaviors such as charm, confidence, emotional masculinity and the ability to make her laugh as you talk to her, you will see that pretty woman open up to you and you can then connect with them and take things to the next level (e.g. phone number, kiss, date, sex, relationship).

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you are one of the guys who find it difficult to attract women as you talk to them, or if you don't have the confidence to walk up and talk to a woman that you find attractive, then I recommend that you read my eBook The Flow or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

It includes my best techniques for starting conversations, keeping conversations going and keeping them interesting, making women feel instantly attracted to you and increasingly attracted to you the more they talk to you, creating an unforgettable connection between you and a woman, getting a phone number, getting a kiss, having sex on the first night or getting a phone number, setting up a date and then having sex on the first, second or third date, whatever works for you.

The Flow is the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend.

It gives you your choice of women.

By the way...

If you don't know my story, I used to struggle to try to get myself a girlfriend or even get laid.

I went through many years of my life wondering why women weren't finding me attractive, even though I was working in a good office job, I wore nice clothes and I was a good person.

It just didn't make any sense to me, so I eventually got to the point where I decided that I was going to go out every weekend and approach women until I worked out how I could actually attract women.

Initially, I got rejected as per normal because I didn't know how to make women feel attracted to me as I talked to them.

Yet, when I figured out how to make women feel naturally attracted to me and turned on by me as I talked to them, the floodgates opened.

I was sleeping with new women every week, I had 3 to 4 girlfriends at once and I enjoyed that playboy lifestyle for over 10 years.

Then, I met my perfect girl when she was 20 and I was 35, we settled down and we've been together ever since.

We've been together for nearly 7 years now and our relationship just gets better and better over time.

Getting Attention vs. Getting Results

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that there's a big difference between getting attention from women and getting results with women.

A lot of guys waste many years of their life noticing that women LOOK at them.

Women check them out, but nothing happens.

The guy thinks, "Well, I will have to go to the gym more. I will have to get even better clothes. I'll have to get a better haircut" and he goes and does that and in some cases, he then gets more attention from women.

They look at him, they check him out, but nothing happens.

He's still on his own.

His friends, his family members (e.g. cousins or brothers) and his coworkers have got a girlfriend or wife.

They are enjoying themselves.

Yet, he doesn't have anything, or he can only get women who are throwing themselves at him, which in most cases aren't the type of women that he really wants.

The attractive girls that sometimes check him out, or the attractive girls that he sometimes notices, but doesn't have the confidence to approach, never enter his life.

They always remain out of reach for him because he gets stuck at the stage of attention.

He's getting attention from women, but he's not doing anything with it.

So, whether you are a good looking guy, an average looking guy or a below-average looking guy, what you have to understand is that as a man in most cases, if you want to get the type of girl that you really want, you need to talk to her and make her feel attracted to you.

When you make her feel attracted to you as you talk to her, you can then connect with her and take things to the next level (e.g. phone number, kiss, date, sex, relationship).

It's very easy to do.

3 Things NOT to Say to a Girl You Like

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The way that you talk to a girl directly shapes the type of relationship that you're going to have with her.

If you talk to her in one way, she'll play hard to get.

If you talk to her in another way, she won't be hard to get and she won't be easy to get. She'll be kind of neutral.

If you talk to her in another way, she'll be attracted and interested in you.

If you talk to her in another way, she'll be very attracted and interested in you and will even begin to pursue you.

She'll be trying to make something happen between you and her.

Unfortunately, for a lot of guys out there, they simply aren't aware of how to talk to a girl in a way that makes her really want to be with him to the point where she begins to pursue him and tries to get something going between them.

Instead, a lot of guys unknowingly say things that make girls play hard to get.

If the guy then tries harder to impress her and tries to get a chance with her, she'll play even harder to get and in most cases, he'll end up getting friend-zoned or rejected.

In this video, I'm going to give you 3 examples of things that you shouldn't say to a girl you like because those things cause her to play hard to get.

I'm also going to tell you what you should say instead to make her feel very attracted to you and really want to be with you, to the point where she feels like she should pursue you.

So the first thing that you shouldn't say to a girl that you like is...

1. "I need to tell you something. I really like you and I want to take our friendship to the next level."

Imagine this scenario...

A guy meets a girl and he really likes her.

Not only is she beautiful to him physically, but as he talks to her, he discovers that she's intelligent, down-to-earth and easygoing.

She's exactly the type of girl that he's been looking for.

He has met her at work, at university, or through mutual friends and has an opportunity to talk to her on a fairly regular basis, if not a daily basis.

Even though they only talk to each other as friends, he secretly has feelings for her and often daydreams about them being together.

He hopes that one day, she will develop feelings for him and then they will kiss and start a relationship.

Yet, as he talks to her over the course of weeks or months, nothing happens.

So he ends up saying to her, “There is something that I want to tell you. I really like you more than just a friend. I want to take our friendship to the next level.”

He’s hoping that she will then say that she has feelings for him too and then they can start kissing, have sex and get into a relationship.

Instead, she says something like, “I don’t want to ruin our friendship. Besides, I don’t think I see you in that way. We’re just friends” or, “That would be too weird. Let’s just remain friends” or, “Don’t be silly. We’re just friends” or, “I’m not sure. I think we’re better off as friends.”

Some of the reasons why a girl will play hard to get in a case like that, is that she doesn’t want to seem too easy.

Alternatively, she feels pressured to make a decision about having what seems to be a boyfriend/girlfriend relationship with him. He is putting her on the spot.

She may also play hard to get because he’s handing over the power to her and she is now playing with that power by acting uninterested or even rejecting him.

Yet in most cases, it’s because she wants things to happen naturally where they go on some sort of date, or they catch up and then they kiss.

If there’s a spark there, then they can begin a relationship.

They can have sex, they can start being boyfriend and girlfriend.

So saying to a girl that you like her and you want to take your friendship with her to the next level isn’t the best thing to say if you actually want to take things to the next level, because it will almost always result in the girl playing hard to get or, in a worst-case scenario, the girl rejecting you and then the friendship between you and her being awkward from then on.

Something that you can say instead that makes the woman feel very attracted to you and makes her want to get something going between you and her, is to make a play on those type of words (i.e. “There’s something I want to tell you”).

Those types of words that you hear in TV shows and movies usually play out in a very typical way.

- There’s something that I’ve been meaning to tell you.
- I’ve been wanting to tell you this for quite some time. I want to get this off my chest.
- There’s something I want to tell you.

Then, the male character goes and admits his feelings for the woman.

The woman knows that.

So, if you start off saying what you’re going to say by using those type of words, you can then say something completely unexpected and make her laugh, feel attracted to your confidence and feel excited about something happening between you and her.

Here’s an example...

“Hey, by the way, there’s something that I’ve been meaning to tell you. It’s been running through my mind a lot. When we hang out, I think about it and I can’t seem to get it off my mind. So, I’m just going to be honest and tell you.”

While she is listening to you say that, she will begin to worry that you’re going to be all soppy and romantic like a TV character and say, “I have feelings for you and want to take our friendship to the next level.”

Yet, you don’t.

You continue on and playfully say, “That is, we’ve been friends for what? Three months now? You haven’t even invited me over to your place to cook me dinner. What sort of friend are you?”

You and her are then going to have a laugh together.

In most cases, what you’ll find is that the girl then says something like that you need to cook her dinner. The man needs to do that these days. The world has changed, or whatever.

If that’s the case and you can invite her over to your apartment or house to cook some dinner, sure, get her to come over there.

She’s going to come over to your place.

You’re going to end up cooking up something together.

Then, you’re going to kiss and have sex and so on.

Yet, in most cases, what you’ll find is that the girl happily offers to do that (cook you dinner) and you then say, “Cool. I’ll bring some wine over,” and it turns into a date where you and her are hanging out having fun in the kitchen.

You end up kissing, having sex and getting a relationship started.

By the way...

If you’re worried about suggesting that she cooks something for you, which most girls love and they happily do, or she come over to your place and you cook something up for her or you cook something together, which girls also love, you can instead say that she hasn’t yet invited you out for ice cream.

So, you’re talking to her and hanging out as friends.

You can then tell her that there’s something that you’ve been meaning to tell her and you want to get it off your chest.

Then, have a bit of a smile on your face as you tell her that you’ve been hanging out for the last three weeks or so, or three months or whatever it is and she hasn’t even invited you out for ice cream.

What sort of friend is she? Tell her that she’s a horrible friend.

Playfully say that.

Playfully add in something like, “What sort of friend doesn’t even invite another friend out for ice cream? Let’s go out for an ice cream now,” or, “Let’s go out for an ice-cream tomorrow night,” or the next night, or Saturday night, or Sunday afternoon, whatever you think will be appropriate for you and her and the schedule that you and her are on.

If you go down that path, end up having some ice cream together and are laughing and hanging having a good time, you can then say something like this to her, “Okay. So now you’ve leveled up as a friend. You’ve gone up one level. The next level is to make me dinner. When are you going to cook for me?”

Essentially, you need to get things moving along towards you and her getting to a kiss, having sex and starting a relationship.

Of course, sometimes you’ll meet a girl at a bar or a party or somewhere and you’ll kiss her immediately, or you’ll have sex with her on the first night, or you’ll meet, you’ll get her number, you’ll call her, you’ll text her, you set up a date, you’ll catch up, you’ll kiss, you’ll have sex and things will begin.

Yet, if you meet a girl that you really like and things aren't moving along, even though you and her get along nicely as friends, then you need to use a different approach.

You need to make her feel like she wants something to happen between you and her, so she becomes open to being alone with you at her place or going out for ice cream with you or whatever it may be.

The next thing not to say to a girl that you like is...

2. “What do you think about people who date their friends?” or, “Would you ever date a friend?”

When a guy isn't confident about moving in for a first kiss, getting a woman to come home and have sex with him or just getting things moving along towards kissing and sex by having a date at her place or his place or whatever, then he will usually try to discuss his way into a relationship with a woman.

He'll start saying things like, “So what do you look for in a guy?” or, “Are you looking for a boyfriend?”

In this case, with the example of what not to say to a girl, a guy will say something like, “Would you ever date a friend?” or, “What do you think about people who date their friends?”

He's hoping she then says that she is cool with it and, “Hey, you and I could date. We get along well. So why don't we go on a date?”

Everything just happened so easily for him.

She gives him approval to start dating her and they begin dating.

Yayy!

Back to reality now.

What usually happens is that most girls aren't dumb.

There are some dummies out there who don't get it, but most girls get it right away that the guy is trying to suggest that maybe him and her could date and they could be an item.

Yet, he doesn't have the confidence to make that happen, so he's trying to discuss his way into maybe getting a chance with her.

So, what a girl will usually do at that point is play hard to get.

The guy will ask her a question like, “So would you ever date a friend?” and she will then say something like, “No, I don't think so. I think friends should just be friends.”

Alternatively, he might ask her, “So what do you think of people who date their friends?” and she may then say that she doesn't know, she doesn't care, or she might say that she thinks it's lame and that people should be more social and meet other people rather than try and date their friends because when you date friends, it ends up causing problems and ruins friendships and so on.

He doesn't get that scenario that he's been fantasizing in his mind about, where he asks her a question like that and she then says that she thinks it's a great idea and by the way, she has feelings for him and she has always been thinking about maybe they could be an item and, “Hey, let's go on a date. Let's kiss. Let's have sex. Let's start this thing!”

So, what a guy should say to a girl instead, is something that doesn't cause her to play hard to get like that and instead makes her feel like she wants something to happen between him and her.

Something that makes her feel like she is the one pursuing it.

A very easy way to do that with the example that I was talking about earlier about her cooking for you, or you cooking up something for her, or you and her going out for ice cream is to say what you're going to say, but then follow it up by saying something like this, "But only as friends though. Don't get any ideas. You're coming over to my place. We're going to cook something up, but don't try to make moves on me in the kitchen or anything like that. I'm not that easy."

Or something like this, "Don't get any funny ideas though. I'm coming over. You're going to cook me up some dinner. We're just having dinner as friends. No funny ideas. No funny stuff."

Or, if you're going out for some ice cream, "It's just ice cream though. Don't get any funny ideas. It's not a sweet date where you get to kiss me at the end of it. We're just going to have ice cream as friends."

In almost all cases, the girl will then laugh and try to quickly prove that she wasn't thinking like that and she was only thinking of catching up as friends.

You can then laugh and say, "Yeah, sure. No worries. I believe you."

Make a joke out of it.

Make her feel like you can see through her secret private thoughts and fantasies where she has been imagining kissing you and having sex with you.

She didn't know that you're aware of that, but you're talking to her in a way that makes her feel like you are aware of the fact that she is attracted to you and she wants something to happen between you.

That's exciting for a girl, especially if she's attractive because pretty much every guy that she meets does not have the balls nor the social skills to make her feel like that.

He doesn't know what to say.

Instead, he says things like, "There's something that I've been meaning to tell you. I like you more than just a friend. I want to take our friendship to the next level. What do you think??"

He tries to discuss his way into a relationship or he asks her, "So, what do you look for in a guy?" and then he tries to be like that guy.

The girl then knows exactly what he's up to and she then plays play hard to get, friend-zones him or rejects him.

The final thing not to say to a girl that you like is...

3. "Yeah, I agree," about everything that she says

There's nothing wrong with agreeing with a girl as you talk to her.

You and her can agree on many things together.

Yet, it's when a guy is too agreeable to the point where he is faking it.

He is trying to seem like he and the girl have so much in common that he ends up coming across in a way where he's trying too hard and the girl can sense that.

If a girl senses that a guy is agreeing with whatever she says, or seems interested in whatever she is talking about because he's hoping that it will make her like him, then she's going to play hard to get. She is going to clue on to what he's up to.

Most girls can sense when a guy is doing that because he has no idea how to make her feel attracted to him.

So, what you need to do is be willing to be real when you're talking to a girl, but also make sure that you say it in a way that is going to make her feel attracted.

You're not going to disagree with her in a way that causes disconnections between you and her and makes her feel unhappy and awkward as she's talking to you.

Instead, you want to make her feel like you and her still get along even though you disagree.

For example: The topic of the UFC, the Ultimate Fighting Championship comes up and she says something like, "I hate the UFC. It's too violent."

What most guys will say, even though they may like the UFC and may think that it's not too violent, is agree with her by saying something like, "Yeah there's so much blood. It's very violent, isn't it?"

The guy will talk to her in a way that he hopes will impress her.

Yet, if the girl has half a brain as she talks to him and sees that he's doing that with pretty much everything that she talks about, she will clue on to the fact that he's trying to impress her to get access inside of her panties by being a good little boy and agreeing with whatever she says.

So if, for example, you happen to like the UFC or love the UFC and a girl says that she hates the UFC and thinks it's too violent, you can then playfully say something like this to her, "Yeah? You're such a wimp."

Or something like this, "Oh, you sissy, it's too violent. I thought you were a strong independent woman. Turns out you're a wimp."

Now, of course, you're not personally attacking her in a serious way and seriously saying that she's a wimp and she's a sissy.

Instead, you're just playfully messing with her.

As a result, you and her still get along.

She laughs, she tries to playfully defend herself and say that she's not a sissy and then you can tell her to show you her muscles.

Then, you can have a squeeze and say, "No, I still think you're a sissy," and have a laugh with her about that.

Now, compare that with a guy who is talking to a girl that he likes and she's talking about something and he says, "Yeah, I agree. Yeah, yeah. I'm the same. Yeah, yeah. That's what I think. Yeah. I mean, yeah, it's very violent, isn't it? Maybe they should wear bigger gloves or something. Yeah."

That's a completely different interaction.

As I said at the start of the video, the way that you talk to a girl will shape the type of relationship that you have with her.

The way that you talk to her can make her play hard to get, be neutral, be attracted, or be very attracted to the point where she feels like she really wants something to happen between you and her.

Now, what makes a girl feel like she wants to have something happen between you and her as a result of you disagreeing with her?

Well, it makes her feel challenged in the moment.

She feels attracted to the fact that you're confident enough to talk to her like that.

You're not like other guys who are trying to suck up to her.

You also have the social intelligence to make her laugh and be able to create moments like that.

You're also not trying to discuss your way into a relationship with her.

Instead, you're making her feel exciting emotions, desirable emotions.

As a result, she naturally feels drawn to you.

She wants more of you.

She wants something to happen between you and her.

I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you are one of the guys who find it difficult to attract girls as you talk to them and make them want you in a sexual and romantic way, then I recommend that you read my eBook The Flow or listen to the audiobook version The Flow on Audio.

When you read The Flow or listen to The Flow on Audio, you will learn how to feel confident enough to start conversations with girls that you find attractive.

You will learn what to say, how to keep conversations going and keep them interesting, how to make girls feel instantly attracted to you and increasingly attracted to you as you talk to them.

How to create an unforgettable connection between you and a girl.

How to get a phone number.

How to get a kiss on the first day or night that you meet a girl.

How to get to sex on the first day or night that you meet a girl.

Alternatively, what to do to set up a date with her so you can then kiss her and have sex with her on the first date, second date or third date, whatever you prefer.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

The Secret to Getting High Quality Girls Easily

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that talking to girls and making them feel attracted to you and want to be with you is a very easy thing to do when you know what you're doing.

When you know how to talk to girls in a way that causes them to feel so attracted to you that they feel like they really want something to happen between you and them, you don't have to settle for whatever you can get.

You see a woman that you find attractive, you then make her feel attracted to you and make her really want something to happen between you and her.

You then allow her to have that chance with you.

She is the lucky girl that gets to be with you and you get yourself a girl that you really like.

That is the best ever way to approach it and it works.

3 Ways to Avoid Being Friendzoned By Girls You Like

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Imagine that you're in a social setting right now and you meet a pretty girl.

How are you going to get her to want you sexually and romantically, rather than just seeing you as a friend?

What are you going to say and do to avoid the friend zone and instead end up with her jumping up on top of you and bouncing away a few hours later or maybe on the first, second or third date?

What are you going to do to make that happen rather than her saying, "Sorry. I just see you as a friend"?

Well, I'm going to help you with that in this video.

Let's begin with tip number 1...

1. Flip the script

So many guys make this mistake when they meet a woman that they want to have sex or a relationship with.

The guy hands over the power to her.

It's up to her.

He's got to try to get her to like him.

He's got to hopefully make her see that he's good enough for her and then, he might be able to get a chance with her.

That is the worst way to go about things, especially with attractive women.

If you do that, you'll usually end up in the friend zone because she'll see you as another guy who was hoping to be accepted by her.

So, to avoid getting friendzoned or rejected, you should flip the script as early on in the conversation with a woman as you can.

In other words, rather than trying hard to be hopefully accepted by her and liked by her, you should make her feel the need to be accepted and liked by you.

One of the easiest ways to do that, is to playfully judge her as you talk to her.

What you will notice when I give you the example in a second, is that women do this to men and most men don't know how to handle it.

So, when you have the balls to flip the script and take on the role as the one who is doing the judging and you do it in a playful way, women love it.

They love it that they've finally met a guy who isn't on the back foot and trying his hardest to say all the right things to be accepted and liked by her.

Instead, you have the confidence and social intelligence to flip the script, by playfully judging her and as a result, suddenly making her feel the need to be accepted and liked by you.

So, for example: Imagine that you're talking to a pretty woman in a social event and you get to a point in the conversation where you ask her, “Do you have any brothers and sisters?”

She says, “Yes. I have an older brother and an older sister.”

What are you going to say there?

What most guys will do at that point is ask a neutral friendly type of question like, “Oh, so do you have a close family?” or a guy will simply change the conversation and he'll ask her another question and another question and he'll be trying to get to know her.

Those type of conversations can go on for hours and hours and lead to nowhere.

Yet, when you flip the script by occasionally judging a woman in a playful way, she feels sparks of attraction for you and she feels the need to be accepted and liked by you.

So, you asked her, “Do you have any brothers and sisters?” and she said, “Yes. I have an older brother and an older sister.”

At that point, to flip the script, you can then say something like this. “Ah, it all makes sense now.”

She then asks, “Why?” and you playfully say, “You seem to have that bratty little sister vibe about you. You were a little brat when you were young, weren't you?” or something like this, “The youngest? Right. The little bratty sister. That was you, wasn't it?” or something like this, “Ah, the bratty little sister. It all makes sense now.”

When you say that sort of thing to a woman, you will almost certainly get a laugh and at the very least, the woman will smile and feel attracted to the fact that you have the confidence to say that to her.

By the way, if it turns out that she was the eldest child, you can say something like this. “Ah, the boring older sister. Yeah. That makes sense now” or something like this. “Ah, the boring older sister. Always the goody two-shoes. Right?”

She will then almost certainly smile or have a bit of a laugh and explain herself.

If she was a bit of a goody two-shoes, she will say that and you can then playfully say that she is boring and that you are thinking that she might have been a boring older sister and now she has just confirmed it.

It's all out in the open now. Her embarrassing secret (of being the boring older sister) has been revealed.

Alternatively, if she's the middle child, you can say something like this. “Ah, the rebellious middle child. Was that you, or were you the straight laced goody two-shoes type of middle child? Which one are you?”

If she says that she was a rebellious child, “The rebel? What sort of trouble did you get up to?”

If she said that she was the goody two-shoes type, “Little Miss Goody Two-Shoes. Never takes any risks, never does anything fun, she's always straight laced doing the right thing. Come on. You need to lighten up a bit. Enjoy yourself, girl. Come on.”

So, you're taking something that could be a boring detail of a conversation and turning it into something that makes her feel like she's under the spotlight.

You're not talking to her in a way where you're hopefully trying to get her acceptance, or where you're trying to jump through all of her hoops and get a pass from her, or where you're hoping that she likes you because you're being really nice to her.

Instead, you're so confident and non-needy that you can say things like that to her and what you'll find when you do, is that women love it.

Most guys do not have the balls to say something like that to a woman.

They also don't have the awareness that saying something like that to a woman makes her feel attracted.

So, they don't do it.

Yet, the guys who are aware of this sort of thing do it and they make women feel attracted to them.

They don't end up in the friend zone.

They don't end up in a 1-hour or a 2-hour conversation about, "Oh, where did you grow up? What school did you go to? What did you study? Do you have any brothers and sisters? Oh, do you have a close family? Yeah. Family's important, isn't it?" Blah, blah, blah, blah, blah.

They get along for 1 or 2 hours and then the guy asks for her phone number and she says, "Sorry. I don't see you in that way," or, "Sorry. I'm not looking for a boyfriend," or, "Sorry. I only see you as a friend."

He's friendzoned because he's only talking to her in a friendly way and trying to get along with her, when what he actually needs to do is make her feel a spark of attraction for him.

By the way...

How does playfully judging a woman make her feel a spark of attraction for you?

Well, she feels attracted to your confidence because you have the balls to say something like that to her.

She feels attracted to your social intelligence because you are aware of the dynamic that exists between men and women.

The dynamic is that almost all men out there do not flip the script.

Instead, they interact with a woman and allow her to be the one who is judging.

The woman makes judging statements or asks judgemental type of questions and the guy feels like he needs to explain himself to her, he needs to say the correct answer, otherwise she's going to lose interest.

Yet, when a guy behaves like that, it doesn't attract the woman.

What attracts the woman is when a man has the balls to flip the script and judge her.

Not in a serious way, but in a playful way.

Doing it in a playful way makes it fun and having the confidence to actually do it and the social intelligence and awareness to do it makes it attractive to her.

She looks at you as one of the rare guys who isn't desperate, who isn't trying to be accepted by a woman, who isn't quickly trying to explain himself when a woman makes a judging type of statement or asks a judgemental type of question.

Instead, you have the confidence to playfully judge her, to put her under the spotlight.

For example: You ask her what she does for a living and she says that she works as an accountant.

You can then say something like this. "An accountant. Ah, that makes sense now. You did seem kind of nerdy...where's your calculator?"

So, what's important to understand, is that when you're interacting with a woman that you find attractive, it's either going to be you or her who is the one doing the judging, who is in the position of power, who is the selector.

You can put yourself in that position if you want to and if you do, women will find you attractive for it.

Yet, if you allow the woman to be in that position where she is judging you and making you feel like you need to explain yourself and impress her and get accepted by her, then you're almost certainly going to end up in the friend zone if you try to explain yourself and hopefully try to impress her and be accepted by her.

She's going to feel turned off by that.

Of course, unattractive women do like that because they like it when a guy is unsure of himself and doesn't know his own value, but attractive women want to be with a guy who feels like he is good enough for her, or ideally is more than good enough for her.

One of the ways to communicate that to her is to have the balls to playfully judge her as you're talking to her.

You're not afraid to say that sort of thing when you're interacting with her and you have the confidence to take on the position as the selector, as the one who is doing the judging.

For the majority of guys out there, if they witness an interaction between a man and a woman where the man said that she was the bratty little sister, the boring older sister or the rebellious middle child and she then felt attracted to him, the guy watching on would think, "What the heck? What is going on there?"

Well, what is going on is that women feel attracted when you display certain personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women.

In that example that I gave you, she's also going to feel a spark of attraction for the fact that you can make her laugh.

She's also going to feel a spark of attraction for you making her feel girly in comparison to your masculinity.

You have the masculinity to put her under the spotlight.

"Ah, the bratty little sister. That makes sense now."

Rather than just talking to her in a friendly neutral way.

"Oh, so you have an older brother and older sister. Oh, that's cool. Yeah. I've got an older brother, an older sister and a younger sister. Yeah. Oh, big family. Yeah."

Big difference.

One approach makes the woman feel sparks of attraction, the other makes her feel like the guy is just a friend.

The guy gets friendzoned.

So, with this tip here, remember to flip the script as early on in the conversation as you can so the woman feels those sparks of attraction and she wants to impress you, she wants to be accepted by you.

When you approach it in that way, you're not going to be in the friend zone. She's going to want something sexual and romantic to happen between you and her.

1. Don't act like the guy who is trying to save her from all the bad men out there

An example of this is when a guy meets a girl and she complains and says that she keeps meeting all the wrong guys.

She just wants a nice guy, but she keeps meeting all these horrible guys out there.

They're all jerks, they're all assholes.

So, the guy who gets himself friendzoned says something like this, "Yeah, but I'm not like that. If I had a girlfriend, I would treat her nicely. I was raised to treat women with the utmost respect. You should stop going for the type of guys that you've been going for. You deserve to be treated better. There are so many nice guys out there. I'm one of them. If I was your boyfriend, I would treat you with the respect that you deserve."

He then gets friendzoned because the woman sees that he is trying to establish a relationship with her based on an offer to treat her nicer than other guys have.

Yet, that's not how it works.

If it did, men would have to compete with each other over who could treat the woman nicer.

The way that it actually works is very simple and easy for the man.

To make a woman have a sexual and romantic interest, a man doesn't have to offer anything other than making her feel sparks of sexual attraction for him as he interacts with her.

You will have seen that all the time when a guy starts interacting with a woman and makes sparks fly between him and her right away, she is then interested in him in a sexual way and he can connect with her and then take things to the next level with her.

It's simple, easy and straightforward.

However, if a guy doesn't create a spark of attraction and is instead trying to communicate to her that he can save her from all the bad men out there, he might be able to get a chance with a woman if she's on the rebound after a breakup so she can feel better about herself.

Yet, once she realizes that the relationship has no spark, she'll break up with him.

If a woman has had some experience with that type of relationship, then she'll begin to friendzone guys who seem like they would be very similar.

She will know that the majority of guys who portray themselves as being nicer than other guys are usually doing that because they don't know what else to offer a woman.

After all, she is saying that she wants a nice guy, so the guy takes her literally.

She said that she just wants a nice guy, but keeps meeting horrible guys who are jerks and assholes.

So, he figures that she will like him if he can just show her how nice he is and how he would treat her so well in a relationship.

Yet, offering to be nicer than other guys isn't the way to get a woman to want to be with you sexually and romantically.

What works is when you create a spark of sexual attraction as you talk to her so she actually sees you in a sexual way and begins to have romantic feelings for you.

So, if a guy wants to avoid the friend zone, he needs to make sure that he doesn't try to act like he's going to be a woman's savior from all the bad men out there.

Instead, let the spark that you create make her really want to be with you.

If you're a good man who will treat her well and you are the type of man who will make her want to treat you well in return, then she is going to be happy that she has finally met a good man who she feels a real spark for and can build a real relationship with that will last for life.

3. Get to a kiss as soon as possible

A mistake that a guy will often make in this particular area, is that he'll make a woman feel attracted to him and then he'll connect with her for 30 minutes or for hours and he won't make any moves to kiss her.

Alternatively, a guy might use the approach where he tries to get to know a woman over weeks and months and nothing ever develops.

He doesn't make any moves and they don't end up kissing and having sex.

So, she doesn't really know where she stands with him.

She may come to the conclusion that he isn't confident enough to make a move, or she may be a bit insecure and not know that he does really want her in that way.

So, what she may do in that situation is start to play hard to get to see if she can get him chasing her; to see if she can get him worried that he's losing his chance with her.

Yet, if he then starts to panic and worry that he's losing his chance with her and starts trying really hard to make sure that she doesn't lose interest, then he comes across as desperate, he comes across as insecure and she does lose interest.

She ends up placing him in the friend zone.

So, what you need to understand about today's dating scene, is that the first kiss usually happens on the first night, first date, second date or at the latest, third date.

Most women are happy to kiss very early on to see how they feel with you.

Is there a real spark between you and her and is the spark strong enough to begin an actual relationship?

So, if you're talking to a woman, she's feeling attracted to you and she's feeling connected with you, then start to make a move.

Initiate the first kiss.

Make it happen.

Once you've kissed, then you're out of the friend zone and the next step is sex, which usually happens right away.

If it doesn't happen right away, the next date or the next.

No problem, but don't avoid the first kiss.

The first kiss is the first step to a sexual, romantic relationship and if a woman is feeling attracted to you and connected with you, then she's going to want the first kiss to happen.

So, go ahead and enjoy yourself.

Learn More?

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you are one of the guys who find it difficult to attract women so you can get laid or get yourself a quality girlfriend, or you find it difficult to smoothly transition from a conversation to touching and then kissing and sex, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

It includes exactly what to say to start conversations with women, make them feel attracted to you immediately, build on the attraction, keep the conversation going and keep it interesting, make the woman feel invested and want to contribute to the conversation with you, make her want the first kiss to happen, initiate touch with her in a way that she wants and welcomes.

How to get to the first kiss, get a number, set up a date and have sex on the date.

Alternatively, kiss and have sex on the first night that you meet her.

You can wait to the first, second or third date if you want to.

The choice is yours.

When you use The Flow, everything flows from one step to the next with women that you find attractive.

Most Guys Will Never Know This

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is to remind you to flip the script when you're talking to women that you find attractive and you want to have a sexual relationship with.

Remember: It's either going to be you or her who is going to take on the position as the one who is doing the judging.

As long as you do it in a playful way, women love it.

Most guys will never know that and as a result, their interactions with women will require a lot of work, sucking up, listening, getting to know the woman and then, maybe, she might give him a chance if he's lucky.

That's a horrible way to approach your dating life with women.

It's much more fun and effective for you to take on the role of the one who is doing the judging and have her feel attracted and enjoy the interaction with you, than it is to have her take on the role as the one who is judging and then you've got to try to jump through all of her hoops, impress her and hopefully get her to like you as a person.

So, don't put yourself in the position where you're hoping to be accepted by a woman.

Instead, make her feel sparks of attraction for you when you're interacting with her and make her feel like she needs to be accepted and liked by you.

3 Mistakes That Prevent You From Getting a Girlfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

For some guys, even though they're an average looking guy, or just an average everyday type of guy, they find it incredibly easy to get themselves a girlfriend.

Whereas other guys find the process or task of getting a girlfriend to be an almost impossible thing.

Many guys out there who want to have a girlfriend, will end up going months or years without a girlfriend and the guy won't really know why it's happening to him.

So, if you are single and you want to get yourself a girlfriend, but it's not happening, then it's almost certainly because of one of the following three mistakes that prevent you from getting a girlfriend.

1. Thinking that you're not good enough...yet

So many guys make this mistake and often do so for decades of their life.

A guy will be in school at university, working at his first casual or part time job, working in a full time job, but all the while, he'll be saying to himself, "I'll start to approach women or I'll start to try to attract my ideal type of women when I've achieved this or that."

Yet, he fails to realize that all around him, the whole time, guys who are at the same level as him had been hooking up with women, getting a girlfriend and for some of them, settling down with a pretty girl and marrying her.

When a guy falls into that pattern of thinking where he believes that he's not good enough yet, then what often happens is that when he achieves the thing that he was aiming to achieve to be good enough for the types of women that he wants, he then thinks, "Well, I've got to achieve this as well. I've moved into an apartment here, but I've got to get better furniture, or I've got a car now, but I need to save up and get a better car. Then I'll start interacting with the types of women that I find attractive. Until then I'm not good enough."

Meanwhile, guys who have that type of car, a worse type of car or don't even have a car, have a girlfriend and a pretty girlfriend at that.

The thing is, there are always going to be pretty women in your area who don't expect much of a guy and are ripe for the taking.

You can go and attract them and pick them up.

I'll give you an example of that when we discuss mistake number 2.

Mistake number 2 that is preventing you from getting a girlfriend is...

2. Expecting a spark to happen all by itself with your ideal type of woman

Now, the thing is that (a spark happening all by itself without you doing anything) does happen when you get lucky, but it may happen with 1 out of 100 ideal women that you properly meet.

In the last year, how many ideal women have you properly met where you had a real opportunity to attract her during a conversation?

For many guys, it'll be less than 10 women and for other guys, it'll be less than 5.

Most guys don't actually get a lot of opportunities to meet their ideal type of women and have a conversation with them.

So, you need to be ready to be able to create a spark rather than just relying on hoping to get lucky because that isn't going to happen very often.

I'd estimate 1 in a 100 times (with your ideal, pretty woman when you have an actual conversation with her), so you need to be ready to create a spark between you and her, rather than just hoping to get lucky in 20 or 30 years time.

Now, I said I'd give you an example of women who are single and ripe for the taking and ripe is a little bit of a pun because we're going to talk about getting a juice from a fruit juice store.

Imagine this...

You're walking through a shopping mall or some sort of shopping area and there's a fruit juice store. They make fresh fruit juice and you can go up and order all sorts of fruit juices.

There's a pretty girl behind the counter and she just so happens to be your ideal type of woman.

You're looking at her and thinking, "She's beautiful. I like her."

Now, what are you going to say and do to create a spark between you and her?

You're about to order some juice just like every other customer does.

How are you going to be able to create a spark with her?

What are you going to say and do?

Well, almost every single guy who finds her attractive (and would secretly like to be with her) won't do anything about it.

He'll just talk to her in a friendly, neutral way.

He'll order his juice, he'll pay the money, he'll wait over there to collect his juice and he'll head off.

Nothing will happen.

Yet, a guy who finds it incredibly easy to get himself a girlfriend will create a spark in a moment like that.

He will say and do something that creates the spark.

He won't wait and hope that it happens all by itself.

He'll make it happen.

So, for example...

You walk up to order a juice and she says, "Hi, how can I help you? What would you like?"

Rather than just ordering a juice and saying, "I'll get a Tropical Delight, thanks," and then saying small, medium or large, giving your money and standing over there to wait and collect the juice, say something unexpected that is going to wake her up out of her robotic customer service state of mind and into a flirtatious interaction with you, where you and her immediately start to get along as people, rather than as customer and customer service agent.

It's a man and a woman.

You're having a flirtatious interaction.

You're creating a spark.

So, when you walk up and she says, "Hi, can I help you? What would you like?" you can say something like this, "Hey, how are you doing? Hey look, I'm not quite sure which juice I should get. So what's your favorite one on the menu?"

She then tells you and you playfully say, "Well, that doesn't sound too good. What's your second favorite one?"

She then tells you and you then playfully say, "Well, that sounds even worse. I think I'll just get a water" and have a bit of a laugh with her.

Then say, "No, no, just kidding. The second one sounded good. Let's go with that."

As a result of talking to her in that way, you're going to make her laugh and she's going to feel a spark of attraction for your confidence.

Pretty much every guy who walks up to order a juice is only going to talk to her in a friendly, neutral type of way.

For example: A guy might talk to her like this, "Oh, hi. How are you doing? I'll get a Berry Sensation. Thanks. Medium. $6.50? There you go. Thank you. My name? Dan."

He's just going to be another forgettable customer for her on that day.

She's almost certainly NOT going to feel a spark for him.

If he liked her and secretly wanted to be with her, he didn't do anything about it (like 99.999% of male customers she meets).

By the way...

With the example I gave you earlier, you can also build on that and make the woman look forward to seeing you the next time.

So, say for example you've ordered her second favorite choice, have paid the money and are waiting over on the other side of the counter to collect your juice.

You can then say something like this (in a playful way) when she comes over to give you the juice, or when you have a chance to talk to her again before you head off, "Hey, by the way, if this one is good, I might come back and try your first favorite choice, but if it's no good, you're never ever going to see me again. This will be the last time I ever come back here and it'll be all your fault."

Of course, you're only joking with her and she's going to get that.

She's going to feel attracted to your confidence and you and her are going to share a private connection.

So when you come back to the store, maybe the next day or the day after and she sees you, you can then say something like this, "Oh, you again, the girl who recommends the worst juices in the whole store. No, just kidding. The juice the other day was really good. So, let's go with your second recommendation today. What is the best juice on the menu? What you got? Tropical Delight. Alright, let's give it a go. I'm counting on you though. This better be some damn good juice."

If there aren't any other customers around or if she's available to chat for 30 seconds to a minute, you can continue the conversation, build up her attraction, create a bit of a connection with her and then get her number.

So, with this example, something important to understand is that you're going to be talking to her anyway if you order a juice.

If you look at her, find her attractive and she's one of your ideal type of women, then why not create a spark with her because you're going to talk to her anyway?

Initially, for some guys, it will feel scary to do that or it might feel a bit awkward for them to talk to women in that way, but when guys see that it works and that most women are incredibly easy to pick up, then they're happy doing it.

They're happy talking to women, creating a spark, getting a number, getting a date, having sex and enjoying a relationship.

Now for some guys, they see it as being unfair that a man has to do something to create a spark with a woman because women don't really have to do anything.

If a woman is pretty, most guys are going to feel a spark for her.

They're going to feel that attraction and if she is friendly and nice, down to Earth and intelligent, many guys are going to want to have a relationship with her as well, so she doesn't really have to do anything.

Yet, what's important to understand as a man is that generally speaking, women don't react to men in the same way that men react to women.

That's why you'll see men looking at women and feeling instant attraction, continuing to look at the woman and wanting to have sex with her or wanting a relationship with her simply based on her existing and looking the way that she does.

Yet, for women, generally speaking, they're not wired to look at a man and follow him as he walks along and then feel the urge to walk up to him, talk to him and try to get his number to hopefully have sex with him or have a relationship with him.

Some women do do that, but it's a very small percentage.

It's a very small minority.

To attract and pick up the majority of women, you've got to be able to create a spark with her and if you do that, you are going to be in a very small percentage of guys who actually know how to do that.

Most guys just talk to women in a friendly way, in a neutral way and they hope that the spark happens for some reason.

They're hoping to get lucky.

Don't do that.

If you want your choice of your ideal type of women, you've got to be able to create a spark with them when you talk to them.

When you start doing it, you will realize how easy it is and how ridiculously easy most women are to attract and pickup.

It's ridiculous how easy it is.

The third mistake that is preventing you from getting a girlfriend is...

3. Not taking things to the next level with women who like you

A lot of guys make this mistake where women seem interested in him and they're open, but he doesn't do anything with it.

He can sometimes make women feel attracted to him and there is a bit of a spark, but he stops at that. He doesn't want to get rejected if he tries to make a move.

He doesn't want to ask for a phone number and hear, "No" or hear, "I've got a boyfriend" or, "Why you asking me for my phone number?"

He doesn't want to experience any of those potentially emotionally painful moments.

As a result, he is stuck in a sort of limbo where women seem interested in him at times, but nothing is happening.

He may look at his friends, co-workers, or cousins who are getting girlfriends and think, "Well, what are they doing that I'm not? What am I missing? What's so special about them? Why are they able to get a girlfriend? What is wrong with me?"

The thing is, when a guy is in a situation like that, there's nothing wrong with him.

He can easily get a girlfriend just like other guys can easily get a girlfriend, but he has to be willing to go to the next level with a woman, to connect with her and get her phone number or move in for a kiss or set up a date and follow through to sex and a relationship.

Once you understand how to create a spark with a woman and you know how to take things to the next level without rejection, it's so easy to get laid and get a girlfriend.

So, if you're one of the guys who find it difficult to attract women or you aren't quite sure how to smoothly transition from a conversation to kissing and then sex, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

It includes my best ever conversation starters, how to instantly attract a woman so she wants to contribute to the conversation, ways to keep the conversation going and keep it interesting, how to create an unforgettable connection so she can't stop thinking about you and wants to see you again.

How to get a phone number, how to get a kiss and sex on the first night that you meet her or if you want to take things slower, how to get to a kiss and sex on the first, second or third date.

With The Flow, you'll never get stuck at a certain point again with a woman that you find attractive.

You will know exactly how to attract her so she wants to be with you and really wants the first kiss to happen.

Once you have this skill, things smoothly flow from one step to the next with women that you find attractive.

It's very easy to do.

So, if you've been thinking that you're not good enough for women yet, or if you've been interacting with women and hoping that a spark happens all by itself or you've been interacting with women and some of them seem interested, but you're not doing anything about it, then now is the time to change that.

If you want to get yourself a girlfriend, just understand that it's an incredibly easy thing to do.

Don't look at it as an impossible task.

Just use attraction techniques when you're interacting with women so you can see that women feel attracted to you.

Then, connect with them and take it to the next level.

Most women are so damn easy to take things to the next level with.

Most women are hungry for love.

They're looking for a boyfriend.

They want to have some sex.

They want to have good times, but when you meet your ideal type of woman, you've got to be able to create a spark with her, if there is no spark there automatically.

You've got to know how to create that spark and then connect with her and take it to the next level.

If you can do that, then you can enjoy your choice of women.

It's very easy to do.

This is Why Girls You Really Like Reject You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Have you ever had the experience where you meet a pretty girl and she is interested in you and open initially, but as you start to talk to her, her interest level rapidly begins to decline?

It's something that you said.

It's the way that you reacted to something she said.

It's the way that you're approaching the interaction and so on.

She was initially open, she was initially interested, but then, she lost interest.

So, the question is, why does that tend to happen with the girls that you're the most attracted to, the ones that you really like, the ones that you really want to be with, the pretty girls that you think, "Wow, this girl is special. I like her. I really want to be with her"?

[image: The Halo Effect: Treating attractive women better than less attractive women]

Essentially, what happens is that for most guys, when they meet a pretty girl or an attractive woman, they are influenced by what is known as the halo effect.

The halo effect is essentially when a person looks at another person who is attractive, or very likable for some reason and they assume that that person is a good person and deserves a lot of respect and better treatment than other people.

[image: Feeling like you need to treat her better because she is pretty]

So, what happens for a pretty girl or an attractive woman, is that most guys who meet her automatically feel the need to treat her better than they treat other people and other women.

"She's special. She's different. She's a pretty girl. She's an attractive woman. She needs to be treated really well."

Yet, when a guy reacts like pretty much every other guy that she has met in her life who felt the need to treat her really well just because of how she looks, then she will assume that he isn't on the same level as her socially.

He doesn't feel like he is good enough as is and he feels as though he needs to treat her really well in order to be accepted by her, in order to be liked by her.

So, if you want to easily attract pretty women, you've got to be able to communicate with her in a way that makes her feel as though you and her are on the same level in terms of value or ideally, you are a much cooler, more valuable person than her.

Now, a lot of guys automatically think, "Yeah, to do that, you need to be rich."

Yet, the fact is that most guys aren't rich.

Most guys are just getting by.

However, they're still able to attract pretty girls and attractive women for sex and relationships.

So, you don't need to be rich and successful in order to convey equal value or higher value than a woman.

Rich and successful men are attractive to women, that is true, but if guys who weren't rich and successful couldn't make women feel attracted to them by conveying equal or higher value, then pretty much no guy out there would be able to get laid or get a girlfriend.

No guy in school.

No guy in university.

No guy just starting out in a job.

No guy working at a coffee shop, working as a tradesman and so on.

What you've got to understand is that you can actually attract pretty girls and attractive women as you talk to them.

It's about how you come across when you're talking to her.

It's not possible to attract and pick up every pretty girl and every attractive woman in the world.

There are some pretty girls out there and attractive women that will only accept a celebrity or a very rich and successful guy, that is true, but the majority of pretty women out there happily hook up with, get into relationships with and even marry normal, everyday guys who are just getting by in life.

So, if you want to easily attract pretty girls and attractive women, you need to be able to convey at least equal status with her or ideally higher status, higher value than her.

You can do that based on how you talk to her.

[image: She is pretty, so she has to be treated better]

For example: Imagine that you're talking to a pretty girl that you like, or an attractive woman.

You really like her and you're being influenced by the halo effect.

You're looking at her and thinking, "This girl is special. She's pretty. She's different. I've got to treat her better."

[image: Don't be stunned by the halo effect]

Come to your senses in that moment and realize that pretty much every other guy that she has met has felt that way.

He's felt the need to treat her better because she's higher value than him.

She's a pretty girl, so in order to be able to get her, he needs to suck up to her.

No, no, no, don't do that!

Convey at least equal value with her like you're on her level, you've got equal status to her, or better still, convey higher status than her (based on how you talk to her).

For example: You're talking to her and she starts talking about music and you then ask her what her favorite pop singer is.

She mentions some female singer that you may like or not like.

How can you make her feel attracted to you based on how you respond to that?

How can you convey equal status or better still, if you really want to attract her, make her sense that you are actually higher value than her?

You're a high-status guy. So, what are you going to say?

Well, most guys are just going to try to get along with her and be nice to her.

They want to show her that they're a good guy and that they've got something in common with her.

She says that she likes a certain female singer and the guy says, "Oh, that's really cool. Yeah, she's got great music. What's your favorite song?"

He's being influenced by the halo effect.

He feels like he needs to treat her better because she's attractive.

No, don't do that.

The kind of response that is going to make her see you as a high-value guy is where you have the balls to playfully reject her based on her choice of music, or playfully mess with her about it.

You're not afraid to playfully mess with her or playfully reject her about things like that.

You're not on your best behavior.

You're not worried that the attractive girl isn't going to like you.

You know that she likes you because you're a high value guy.

Of course, she likes you.

So, if you have that type of confidence, you're going to be able to say something like this, "Really, you like that singer? You dork. I thought you were cool up into that point. You disappoint me girl," or something like this, "Oh, right, I get it now. You're a cool girl, but you've got lame taste in music."

[image: Playfully tease her to show equal status]

Of course, you're only joking with her.

You're playfully rejecting her about that and you're playfully messing with her.

You don't need to actually be serious when you say to her that she's got lame choice in music.

It's not a serious thing.

Instead, you have so much confidence in yourself that a girl like her would like you that you're not trying to suck up to her.

You're not thinking, "I need to treat her better because she's pretty. She's special. She's different."

No.

You're a cool guy, you're a valuable guy, you're at least on her level, but in reality, you're actually higher value than her.

As a result, you have the confidence to be able to say things like that to her and not worry that she's going to lose interest in you.

[image: Convey equal or higher status when talking to pretty girls]

Best of all, she's not going to lose interest in you because of that, due to the fact that pretty girls and attractive women love it when a guy has the confidence to playfully mess with them.

It makes her feel like the guy is at least on her level or in many cases, that he is higher value than her.

You've got to think about her experience as she's been going through her life.

Ever since she became a woman and started getting the attention of men, men have been reacting to the halo effect.

They've been looking at her and thinking, "She's pretty. She's beautiful. She's nice. I need to treat her better than other women."

That is simply the halo effect in action.

It doesn't mean that the guy is needy or desperate though.

Instead, it simply means that he is being influenced by the halo effect and reacting to it like pretty much every other guy reacts to it when he meets her.

“She’s pretty, she’s special. This girl is amazing. I really like her. She’s different to other girls. I’ve got to treat her really well and hopefully she’ll like me because of that.”

By the way, according to science, an interesting thing about the halo effect is that it’s not just about physical appearance.

It essentially comes down to characteristics about a person that make you like them, or make you see them in a favorable light.

For example: According to the Encyclopedia of Educational Psychology, in the classroom, teachers are subject to the halo effect rating error when evaluating their students:

“A teacher who sees a well-behaved student might tend to assume this student is also bright, diligent and engaged before that teacher has objectively evaluated the student’s capacity in these areas. When these type of halo effects occur, they can affect students’ approval ratings in certain areas of functioning and can even affect student grades.”

Another example from Applied Social Psychology, in the work setting, the halo effect is most likely to show up in a supervisor’s appraisal of a subordinate’s job performance:

“The supervisor may give prominence to a single characteristic of the employee, such as enthusiasm and allow the entire evaluation to be colored by how he judges the employee on that one characteristic. Even though the employee may lack the requisite knowledge or ability to perform the job successfully, if the employee’s work shows enthusiasm, the supervisor may very well give him or her a higher performance rating than is justified by knowledge or ability.”

The same thing happens with pretty girls and attractive women.

For most guys out there, they are immediately influenced by the halo effect and they look at a pretty girl or an attractive woman and think, “She’s nice. She’s a good person. She’s not like other girls. She’s special. She deserves to be treated really well.”

Then the guy talks to her and he tries to show her that he’s a good guy, not realizing that pretty much every guy that she has met in her life has done the same freakin’ thing.

He’s been influenced by the halo effect and even talks to her in a nice way.

He tries to show her that he’s a good guy, so he can hopefully get a chance with her.

He gives her special treatment.

He makes her feel extra comfortable.

He’s extra generous.

He’s extra considerate towards her.

Yet, by doing that, he reminds her of pretty much every other guy who has tried to get a chance with her by being really nice to her and trying to get along with her in the hope that she will like him because of that.

The guys who stand out and make her feel attracted are the ones who don’t look at her as being a higher value than themselves simply because she’s pretty.

Instead, those guys believe in themselves as being a valuable man and they communicate that based on how they talk to her and interact with her.

Now, as I said, it's not possible for an average, everyday guy to attract every pretty girl and every attractive woman in the world.

Some pretty girls and some attractive women have very high standards, that is true, but the vast majority of attractive women out there will happily hook up with and get into a relationship with a normal, everyday guy and in many cases, with a guy who isn't even on the same level as her in terms of looks.

For a lot of attractive women, as long as the guy is able to attract her with his confidence and let her sense that he is on the same level as her in terms of value, then she'll be open and interested.

If he can convey that he has higher value than her based on how he talks to her and interacts with her, then it will be even easier for him.

So, from now on, when you meet a pretty woman, don't be stunned by the halo effect.

Don't look at her and think that she is better than you because you see her as being attractive or pretty.

Additionally, don't assume that you have to treat her nicer than other women due to the fact that she is pretty.

Instead, it's totally fine to treat her well and be a good man, but make sure that when you interact with her, you communicate in a way that makes her realize that you see yourself as being at least on the same level as her in terms of value, but ideally, you see yourself as being higher value than her.

Based on you having that type of confidence in yourself, she will then naturally feel attracted to you because women are naturally attracted to men who display high status behavior.

When you have that type of confidence, she'll at least feel as though she's met a guy who is on her level, but if you do it right, she will feel as though you're actually a bit cooler than her.

She knows that most women would find your level of confidence attractive and as a result, she then naturally feels as though she would be lucky to get a chance with you.

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you are one of the guys who find it difficult to attract women so you can get laid or get yourself a quality girlfriend, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

It includes my best conversation starters, attraction techniques, connection techniques and techniques for getting to the next level with a woman.

Getting to the next level includes initiating touch in a way that she wants and welcomes, getting her number, getting a first kiss, arranging a date and then having sex on the first date or second date.

The Flow also includes techniques for getting a kiss and sex on the first night that you meet a woman.

If you prefer to take things slower though, you can use the techniques to have sex on the first, second, or third date.

It's totally up to you.

The Flow is very easy to use.

Once you use it once, you will never ever get stuck at a certain point with a woman again.

You will always know what to say and do to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

Notice How You React to Attractive Women From Now on

[image: Don't let your attraction for her make you feel the need to treat her nicer than other girls or people in general]

One final point that I want to make for you in this video is this...

Be aware from now on when you're out and about in social situations, or you're out in a public situation of how you react when you see a pretty girl or an attractive woman.

Think about how you look at her in terms of other women and how you feel like you should treat her in comparison to other women.

What you'll realize is that you're also being influenced by the halo effect.

If you talk to her and you treat her better than you treat other women and you feel like she deserves more respect and better treatment, then you're going to be like pretty much every other guy that she's met in her life who is trying to get a chance with the high-value girl.

To attract her and make her want to be with you, you should at least convey equal value and equal status to be on her level.

Ideally, though, you should convey higher status or higher value than her based on how you talk to her and interact with her.

That is what works to attract the vast majority of pretty girls out there.

Try it and you'll see.

9 Body Language Signs She's Attracted to You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Most women who feel attracted to you when you interact with them, won't actually say something like, "Hey, I like you, do you want to start a relationship?"

Instead, the woman will show you via her body language that she's feeling attracted to you.

She'll hope that you notice it and then have the confidence to act on it and get something going between you and her.

So, understanding a woman's body language is absolutely essential to your success with women.

You will often meet women, they'll be feeling attracted to you and if you aren't able to pick up on the signals and then act on it, you will usually miss out on your opportunity to be with that woman.

She will either assume that you're not interested, or that you don't have the confidence to make a move even though she's giving you those signals.

So, the 9 body language attraction signals that I'm going to give you in this video are based on the scenario of you talking to a woman.

You're making her feel attracted and she starts giving you signals to show you that she's attracted and interested in something happening between you and her.

Let's begin with number 1. The first body language expression of attraction is where...

1. She combs her hair over her ear while smiling in a cute way

[image: She combs her hair over her ear while smiling in a cute way]

So, imagine the scenario.

You're talking to a woman that you like, you're being confident and you're making her laugh.

She then shows you that 'cute girl' type of body language where she smiles at you and combs her hair over her ear with her finger or her fingers.

Some women do that as a natural reaction to the attraction that they're feeling in the moment, but other women do it on purpose.

A woman will purposely do it to try to look cuter in your eyes.

She knows that if she looks cute and girly then a guy is going to find her more feminine and attractive.

What's important to understand is that there's a big difference between a woman combing her hair over her ear with a serious expression on her face, compared to a woman combing her hair over her ear with a cute smile, a cute look on her face in a moment where you're making her feel attracted.

What you'll find is that when you interact with women and you come across in a masculine way via how you're talking, how you're using your body and the vibe that you're giving off, you will see women express their attraction for you by doing cute things like that, or one of the other expressions that you'll see throughout this video.

So, let's look at number 2.

2. She puts her fingers to the side of her cheek or face, while looking at you in a cute way

[image: She puts her fingers to the side of her cheek or face, while looking at you in a cute way]

That's a pretty obvious one to look out for.

If you see a woman showing you that type of body language, don't doubt that she feels attracted to you.

She is feeling feminine and girly in comparison to your masculinity.

She's feeling the spark.

3. She smiles and bites her tongue at the same time

[image: She smiles and bites her tongue at the same time]

This is another example of her trying to look cute and it's showing her femininity, it's showing her sexual submissiveness and so on.

She's trying to show you that she feels feminine and girly in comparison to your masculine approach to the interaction.

The next one.

4. She smiles as she dips her chin submissively

[image: She smiles as she dips her chin submissively]

Sometimes a woman will smile and dip her chin like that because she is embarrassed about the attraction she is feeling for you.

She is instinctively trying to hide her attraction, so, her body follows her thoughts and she starts dipping her chin and trying to look away or trying to hide what is going on inside of her mind.

For example: If you're talking to a woman and she's feeling girly and feminine in comparison to your masculine approach, or your masculine vibe, then she's naturally going to feel less dominant in comparison to you.

As a result, submissive body language will begin to be displayed.

She will smile and dip her chin, or she will smile, dip her chin and while her chin is down, she'll look up at you with the cute girl type of look.

She's showing you how she's feeling via her body language.

5. She keeps looking at you when you're not looking

With this particular body language expression of attraction, it's best not to look for this one on its own.

It's best to look for this one in addition to other signals that you're seeing from her.

For example: If you're talking to a woman, she's not showing you any body language signs of attraction, you're talking amongst a group and you notice out of the corner of your eye that she keeps looking at you, it doesn't necessarily mean that she's attracted to you.

It could just mean that she's listening to what you're saying, focusing on the people in the group and trying to keep up with the conversation.

However, if you've been interacting with her and she's showing you one of the signals that you've seen so far, or one of the other ones that you'll see in the rest of this video, then it's a good sign that she is attracted to you.

If you look at the photos here, sometimes it will be very obvious when the woman is attracted and has a crush on the guy, whereas other times, it could just be her looking at the guy and following along with the conversation.

[image: She keeps looking at you when you're not looking]

In some cases, a woman will make it very obvious and in other cases, it will be subtle.

So, if a woman isn't being that obvious and you want to be more confident about her attraction for you before you make a move, you can also look for the following signal.

That is where...

6. She engages in unusually long eye contact and it's almost as though she is in love with you already, or she is falling in love with you

[image: She engages in unusually long eye contact with you]

So, if you're talking to a woman, making her feel attracted to you as you talk to her, she is giving you that unusually long eye contact and she's looking in your eyes as though she's falling in love with you, or as though she's already in love with you, then you've got to be confident about that.

For example: Some guys remain in the friend zone with a woman because they don't look at signals like that and other signals and know that the woman is trying to say, "Hey, I'm feeling attracted to you. I like you. Let's get something going between us."

Rather than taking things to the next level with her, the guy keeps talking and talking and hanging out and never makes a move.

She then begins to lose interest because she thinks, "Well, maybe there isn't a spark between us," or maybe he doesn't see her in that way, or maybe he's afraid of getting rejected and he's not confident enough to make a move.

The next body language sign that she is attracted is that...

7. She remains physically close with you when talking to you for long periods of time

[image: She remains physically close to you when talking to you for long periods of time]

The best way to understand this is to think about a woman interacting with the guy that she's not attracted to and doesn't want to show signs of interest to.

She's going to be very neutral, closed up and won't want to be very close to him for long periods of time.

So, if you're interacting with a woman and she's sitting right next to you and talking for a long time, then she's trying to show you that she likes you.

It doesn't always mean that if a woman sits right next to a guy that she wants to kiss him and have sex with him, but if you've been interacting with a woman and making her feel attracted and she comes and sits right next to you and you're talking for quite a while and she doesn't want to move away, then she's trying to show you that she's cool with you and being that physically close.

If she wasn't, she wouldn't sit right next to you.

Another thing to point out about this (and this is something that makes women very difficult to understand for some guys) is that sometimes a woman doesn't want to seem too keen or easy and as a result, she won't want to be too close to you physically.

She won't want to sit next to you, even though she's attracted to you.

That's the sort of thing that drives some guys nuts.

They think, "Well, why are women so difficult to understand? Why can't you just say to a woman, 'I like you' and then she says, 'I like you' and then you get on with having sex and a relationship?"

Well, one way to understand it is to think about what men do.

When a man likes a woman, does he always show her that he is sexually attracted to her and romantically interested in her, or does he sometimes just act like a friend?

Does he sometimes just talk to her in a neutral way, even though on the inside, he's thinking, "Wow, this girl is amazing. I want to be with her, I want to have sex with her, I want her to be my girlfriend" and so on?

It's not just women who are sometimes hard for men to understand.

Sometimes women have a difficult time understanding men too.

Sometimes a woman will like a man and she'll be showing him signs of interest and he won't even be aware of those signs of interest, or he won't have the confidence to make a move when she's showing them.

[image: Take things to the next level when she's showing you these signs of attraction]

So, if you want to reduce the chance of ever being rejected and you want your dating life to be easy, then make sure that you're able to notice these signals and be confident enough to then make a move and take things to the next level with the woman who is clearly attracted to you.

8. She smiles, bites her bottom lip and looks at you in a curious way

[image: She smiles, bites her bottom lip and looks at you in a curious way]

If you've been interacting with the woman, making her feel attracted to you as you talk to her and then you notice that she starts biting her bottom lip and looking at you with a curious look, what's going on in her mind is that she is imagining having sex with you.

She is imagining kissing you.

She is feeling attracted to you in that moment and all sorts of sexual thoughts are going through her mind.

9. She twirls her hair with her finger while looking at you in a cute way

[image: She twirls her hair with her finger, while looking at you in a cute way]

There are different reasons why a woman will do that when she's interacting with a man that she feels attracted to.

For example: Sometimes she's trying to look cute so you will feel more confident and manly around her.

Sometimes she's trying to draw attention to her hair because she feels confident that it's an attractive feature of hers.

[image: She twirls her hair with her finger while looking at you in a cute way]

Other times, she's feeling feminine in your presence and other times, it's actually her way of flirting.

The last one, being her way of flirting, is actually a very common reason why a woman will do it.

She'll start twirling her hair and looking at you in a cute way to show you that she's feeling attracted to you.

She's trying to say, "Hey, I'm feeling attracted," but she doesn't want to come out and say, "Hey, I'm feeling attracted, want to hook up, want to start a relationship? Let's do this."

Instead, she just wants to show you that she's feeling attracted and she hopes that you have the awareness to notice those type of attraction signals and then the confidence to act on that and get something going between you and her.

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you are one of the guys who find it difficult to attract women, so, you can get laid or find yourself a quality girlfriend, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend.

It includes exactly what you need to say and do to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

Women Open the Door. You Walk Through it

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that once you begin to notice these type of signals from women, you'll realize that a lot of women actually feel attracted to you and are opening the door for something to happen between you and them.

What you'll also notice is that most guys out there aren't aware of the body language signals that women express when they're attracted, or the guy doesn't have the confidence to believe that a woman will actually feel attracted to him.

For example: If he's talking to a woman and she's twirling her hair, he may just think, "Well, that's her personality. She likes to twirl her hair all the time."

Yet, if he's being confident, making her laugh and she's feeling attracted to him, that is usually going to be her way of trying to tell him that she's feeling girly in comparison to him, she's feeling attracted and she hopes that he then has the confidence to make a move and get something going between them.

The First 3 Things Women Notice About Men

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

The first 3 things that women notice about men, other than looks, are the reason why good-looking guys and guys who put a lot of effort into their appearance, are still unable to get themselves a girlfriend.

They may get noticed by women, but women just don't feel enough attraction for them to be interested in anything other than just looking and noticing that he has a nice shirt, or as a nice haircut and so on.

[image: Women will rarely approach a guy, even if he is dressed well]

These 3 things are also one of the main reasons why guys who are average looking, or would be rated as potentially being below average looking and maybe rated as being a guy who doesn't put much effort into his appearance, are still able to attract pretty women for sex and relationships.

So what's going on out there?

[image: How to make girls feel attracted to you right away]

What are women noticing about other men that is causing the woman to feel attracted and want to be with the man and more importantly, how can you do what those men are doing so you can easily attract women, get laid and get yourself a girlfriend?

Let's start with number 1.

The first thing that women notice about a man is...

1. How confident he is in the environment or situation

Without even having to think about it, a woman gets a sense of a guy's confidence level based on his body language and behavior.

For example: A guy who has relaxed confidence and is comfortable in the environment or situation, versus a guy who is insecure, unsure of himself, anxious and isn't comfortable in the environment or situation.

Now, that was a bit of an exaggerated version of a guy looking unsure of himself (watch video above for examples), but hopefully you get the point.

It's about the subtleties of your body language and behavior.

[image: I look good. Why doesn't she show me interest and then approach me?]

This is why, when a guy puts a lot of effort into his physical appearance, is wearing great clothes and has been working out at the gym, STILL finds that he can't get a girlfriend, even though he has done a great job of presenting himself well physically and looking good.

What really matters to a woman is how she feels instinctively in response to a guy's behavior, body language and approach to social interactions and interactions with her.

For example: Most guys watching this video will have a friend or know of a guy who doesn't put a lot of effort into his appearance, but women still find him attractive.

[image: Why are girls attracted to scruffy looking men?]

Girls say that he's cute, he's sexy, he's hot and so on.

Now, that doesn't mean that it's wrong for a guy to take care of his appearance, or to try to look good.

A guy can do that if he wants to.

Yet, what men need to realize is that for most women, what is more important to them is how confident you are in the situation or environment.

[image: What she really cares about is how confident you are around her and people in general]

That's what she's really looking at and noticing.

Another thing that women first notice about men is...

2. Whether he is looking up to other people, looking down on them or seeing himself as an equal

This is known as social status.

The way that you come across in a social situation, the way you move, the way you talk to people and the way you behave will make people look at you and make a snap judgment.

Are you equal status, lowest status, higher status?

Are you somewhere in between and so on?

Really nice guys who are trying to please everyone that they meet, insecure guys and guys who are lacking in confidence tend to display lower status, which then turns off women, even though that guy could have attracted them if he conveyed equal status or slightly higher status.

At the very least, you should always convey equal status with the people around you.

You should see them as an equal.

Yet, if you want to make women feel attracted to you when they notice you, then you should convey slightly higher status than the people around you.

That doesn't mean that you go around making people feel bad about themselves.

It also doesn't mean that you look down on other people.

Instead, it means that you walk through the world, you interact with people with a sense of belief in yourself.

You see yourself as being more than good enough.

You don't have to go around seeking the approval of people hoping that they will accept you, hoping that they will see you as being good enough.

Instead, you move through the world knowing that you are good enough and that comes across in your body language and behavior.

When women notice that, they feel attracted to you.

They look at you and think, "Hmm, there's something about that guy."

They find you attractive because women are instinctively looking for a guy who is confident and doesn't place himself below other people in social situations.

Another thing that women first notice about a man is...

3. How he reacts when he sees her

A lot of guys make the mistake of feeling like they've been busted if they get caught looking at a woman.

She looks his way and then he looks away thinking that, "Oh, no, I've been caught looking at her. That might look desperate. It might look needy. I might seem like a stalker or something like that. I've got to look away and act like I'm not interested."

[image: Remain confident when she looks at you and give her a smile]

Yet, if a woman is feeling attracted to you in the moment and she looks at you, it's a perfect opportunity for you to build on the attraction and create an enjoyable moment between you and her that can then lead to you and her talking, exchanging numbers, going on a date, hooking up and so on.

Essentially, when a woman looks at you, if you show no desire or interest, it can make her feel insecure or rejected.

Many women assume that if a guy looks at them with absolutely no desire, then it means that he isn't attracted to them.

On the other hand, if a guy shows too much desire, he may come across as a bit sleazy or a bit hungry for sex and that will make the woman close up.

The right amount of desire to show is casual, confident, calm interest in her.

When she looks his way, he is confident enough to look at her, give her a bit of a smile and then get on with what he was doing.

In moments like that, if you then look back at the woman and she's still interested, she's giving you a smile and you then walk over and say hello to her, she is going to feel a rush of attraction and excitement.

You and her just had a moment that happened naturally and you now have the confidence to come over and talk to her.

That's amazing and exciting for a woman to experience.

So, in addition to feeling excited, she's going to be feeling attracted to your confidence in that moment.

[image: Attract her with your confidence and then build on the attraction]

You can then build on that attraction by displaying other personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women (e.g. charisma, charm, ability to make her laugh, emotional masculinity).

Learn More?

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learn something from it.

If you're one of the guys who have been struggling to get laid or find yourself a quality girlfriend, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend.

When you read The Flow eBook or listen to The Flow on Audio, you will learn exactly what to say and do to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

Looks Get a Guy Noticed, But...

One final point that I want to make for you in this video is that of course it's true that women notice a guy's looks and his clothes when they first look at him.

That is true.

It's also true that there are women out there who will only accept a really good-looking guy who wears designer clothes.

That is true.

[image: Your body language, behavior and approach to the conversation matters the most]

Yet, what is also true is that the majority of women out there, place way more importance on how a guy's body language, behavior and approach to the conversation makes them feel.

As you may have noticed in your life, a guy might be wearing a great shirt and have a nice hairstyle, but a woman will feel attracted to an average looking guy who is just wearing a basic t-shirt and doesn't even have a great hairstyle because the other guy isn't conveying lower status when he interacts with her.

At the very least, the guy sees himself as an equal, but ideally the guy is going to see himself as being more than good enough for the woman.

That is going to come across in his body language, his behavior and how he's talking to her.

That is what will make her feel attracted.

So, I hope that helps you understand why other guys have been attracting the kinds of girls that you want and more importantly, what you can do to start attracting the type of girls that you want and enjoy your choice of women.

Will This Stop Working if Women Find Out About it?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Over the years, quite a number of guys have asked me a question that goes something like this.

“If women find out about this stuff will it stop working?”

What the guy is essentially asking is that if women find out that guys are using attraction techniques, will it stop working?

Will it start becoming less effective?

The answer to that is, “No” and the example I will give you to explain why is a woman’s cleavage.

[image: A woman getting her tits out works even if we know she is doing it to be attractive]

Even though women get their tits out on display like that as a way to attract men, it doesn’t stop it from working.

Even if we men know that they’re doing it to attract us, we just don’t care because in the moment, when you see those tits, you feel attracted.

[image: Both men and women use attraction techniques and we both enjoy it]

It’s an automatic reaction.

The same applies to a woman’s attraction for a man.

When you display certain personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women, she feels attracted to you in that moment.

It doesn’t matter if you are using techniques and you have learned about it.

All that matters to her in that moment is that she is feeling attracted to you.

She likes you and she wants something to happen between you and her.

The thing is women don’t have to use a lot of brainpower to attract men.

It’s pretty simple.

A woman has to look good, be nice and friendly and most guys are going to be willing to have sex with her and some guys will be interested in a relationship with her.

However for a man, it requires a certain type of intelligence.

He has to understand how to display the personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women.

If he is able to do that while he’s interacting with women, then they’re going to feel attracted to him.

It’s not about him revealing skin around his chest area or showing off his legs to attract the attention of women.

Instead he attracts the attention of women with his intelligence.

When a man is able to interact with a woman and display the type of personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women, then they feel attracted.

That’s how it works.

For example: Women from all over the world are attracted to guys who are confident, emotionally masculine, funny, unpredictable, charming, sexual, charismatic and socially intelligent.

Now of course, women can also feel attracted to men for reasons such as the man being rich, famous, very tall and good-looking and so on.

Yet, I'm not talking about that.

What I'm talking about here is how men can make women feel attracted to them by using attraction techniques, using what I call playfully arrogant humor, using flirting, being emotionally masculine as you're talking to a woman so she can feel feminine and girly in comparison to you.

Also being a challenge for her to acquire, so it becomes about her trying to pick you up or if you're in a relationship, her trying to get sex from you.

What's important to understand about this is that it's very easy to do.

When a guy has used attraction techniques a couple of times during interactions with women and seeing that it works, he then has that power.

He knows how to make women feel attracted to him as he talks to them and interacts with them.

He can use that ability when picking up women, when on dates and when in a relationship.

Also another question I get from guys is should I tell a woman that I'm learning this stuff?

Should I tell her that I've been learning attraction techniques and so on?

The answer to that is also no.

You may have noticed that women don't say, "Hey I've got my tits out to hopefully make you feel attracted to me."

Instead she gets her tits out on display makes you feel attracted to her and then gets on with having a relationship with you.

Okay, I hope you enjoyed the quick insight.

Relationship Survey Results: 58% of Men Want This From a Woman...

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

58% of men want to marry a woman and stay with her for life.

Are they wrong?

[image: Relationship survey results: 58% of men want to marry a woman and stay with her for life]

Additionally, in the poll that I've got running on the Community section of my YouTube channel, 18% of men want to have relationships with many women throughout life.

Are they wrong?

If not, how about the 9% of guys who want to stay with one woman for life without getting married?

Finally, the 15% of guys who still aren't sure about their relationship goal with women.

So, who is right and who is wrong?

Well, as it turns out, there are no right ways to live life.

Instead there are expected ways to live life.

Expectations on how to live life change from country to country, city to city and family to family.

In a small city, for example, there may be hundreds, if not thousands, of different ways that people believe life should be lived.

Additionally, in a family that has four, five, or six children, they may grow up to live their life in different ways to each other.

They may not all follow the same path.

The siblings in the family may look at each other and think that the other person is doing it wrong and they're doing it right.

For example: A woman may think that she's doing it right by settling down and getting married early, whereas her sister may think that she's doing it wrong and that she should enjoy her life and travel and do lots of things before she eventually settles down.

One of the brothers may think that it's best to get into a relationship with a woman, but never get married, whereas another brother may think that he doesn't want to have relationships and he just wants to enjoy himself for life.

Now, in terms of a man, what should he do in today's world?

The world is changing so much.

The dating scene has changed, new medicinal technologies are coming along that are extending human lifespan and may extend human lifespan even more.

The way that we work and live is going to change based on artificial intelligence becoming smarter and smarter and so on.

How is all of that going to affect relationships when people are living longer and they don't have to do the same type of work, or work in same type of way as they did before?

What I think is that there are going to be so many changes over the next 20 to 30 years, but at the end of the day, men and women are still going to want to have long relationships with each other.

So, in terms of men, who is right and who is wrong?

What should a man do in today's world?

Let's have a look at some of the comments from the poll in the Community section of this channel.

One guy says, "I know I'm capable of being with multiple women, but personally, it's better to have one for life. Besides, I prefer not to use condoms."

Another guy says, "Divorced one and a half years ago after 17 years of marriage, I'm 49, in great shape, small business owner, living in the San Francisco Bay Area, just going to enjoy spinning plates for a while."

In other words, he's going to enjoy his choice of women for a while.

Another guy says, "Getting married is a waste of time. Been there, done that."

Another guy says that he wants to have relationships with many women throughout life and his reason is, "Sadly, because, so far, 99% of women are completely psychotic. I have six sisters to back up my theory."

Another guy says, "Have relationships with several women then later, marry one woman for life."

Finally, another comment here from a man who wants to marry a woman and stay with her for life, "Interested in real-life experience, sharing family, friends, travel, the good times and the not so good."

With the last comment there, it may seem that that man is right.

The only way to get real-life experience is to get married, have a family, travel, have friends and so on.

Yet, that is correct based on what he wants and the way that he expects life to play out.

Another guy can get real-life experience in the way that he wants to live life by not getting married and not having a family.

He may want to travel a lot, he may want to have many relationships with women throughout life and never settle down, just live life based on what he wants to do, work on his projects or whatever he's doing and enjoy the company of women who will come in and out of his life as the years go on.

An important thing to point out here is that when a guy says that he never wants to get into a serious relationship with a woman or that he only wants to have temporary relationships throughout his life, then he may stick to that for life or he may change his mind at some point in time.

He hasn't stuffed up his life by changing what he wants to do later on.

You're allowed to go with what you want to do and then change your mind if you feel like changing your mind later on.

Personally, that's what happened to me.

I changed my mind about what I wanted and I used to be very anti-marriage and anti-children and now I'm married and my wife recently gave birth to our twin girls.

So, my relationship goal with women completely changed over time and I don't feel like I've done anything wrong by doing that.

I did what I wanted to do without worrying what others around me may expect of me and what they were doing in their lives.

For example: I have a friend who saw his other friends settling down and getting married and, even though he didn't want to do it, he went ahead and married the next girl that he got into a relationship with.

Then, about five years later, they got divorced.

He learned from that experience and realized that he shouldn't be living his life based on what everyone else around him is doing or expects of him.

He should go with what he wants and when the time is right, if he wants to change his mind and do something else, then he should go ahead and do that, but he shouldn't feel pressured into doing it because his friend is doing it, or his brother or sister has done it.

He should do it if he wants to do it and if it really is the best decision for him.

So, some guys watching this video will know my back story, but for those who don't, I'll just explain now what eventually led me to accept my girlfriend's marriage proposal and now, get to the point where we've had children and I'm a dad and I'm enjoying that side of life as well.

Essentially, what happened to me is that, like most guys, I didn't know how to attract women.

I didn't know that you could actually make women feel attracted to you based on your behavior, how you talk to them and so on.

I didn't know that.

As a result, I didn't have my choice of women.

One day, I went to a house party and there was a backyard lawn area where everyone was drinking and there was music playing and, after a few drinks, I somehow got myself on the "dance floor" and there was a girl there.

She was a bit tipsy and I was a bit tipsy.

We started dancing.

One thing led to another somehow and we started kissing.

Then, we got into a relationship and it was okay at the start, but I eventually became clingy, insecure, controlling, jealous and so on.

She really got sick of that and eventually, cheated on me and then dumped me and I was destroyed.

I had no idea how to attract women.

I had gotten her by pure luck and now I was on my own.

Back then, there was no one online helping guys out about how to be successful with women.

I was on my own.

I didn't have any advice, anyone to turn to and as a result, I couldn't get her back.

I was lost.

I lost a lot of confidence in myself, my insecurities deepened over time and I felt unworthy of attractive women.

When I talked to attractive women, they just didn't find me attractive.

The spark wasn't there because I didn't know how to make them feel a spark.

I just talked to them in a friendly, nice, neutral way and I hoped that they liked me for some reason.

Yet, I didn't understand that you actually have to be able to create a sexual spark with a woman.

Sometimes, you'll meet a woman where a sexual spark will happen without you having to do anything and that is called getting lucky.

Yet, if you want to have your choice with women, you need to know how to create a spark of sexual attraction inside of a woman, as soon as you start talking to her.

You need to know how to do that and you need to know how to build on that as you're talking to her. Back then, I didn't know that, but I knew that I had to do something about it.

So, I decided to go out every weekend and approach women until I worked out how to have my choice of women.

I went out approaching with a new friend of mine and I kept getting rejected.

I walked up to women that I found attractive, but they didn't find me attractive.

They weren't interested in me in that kind of way.

Some women were nice and friendly and I was able to have a conversation with them, but it didn't go anywhere because I didn't know how to make them feel sexually attracted as I talked to them.

Yet, because I was persistent and I knew that there was something that I was missing, I eventually figured it out.

I eventually figured out what to say and do to make women feel sexually attracted to me as soon as I started talking to them and increasingly attracted to me the more we talked.

As a result, I enjoyed my choice of women and I was able to have sex with women on the first night, have multiple women in my life at once and I enjoyed that life for over 10 years.

Then, I met my perfect girl when I was 35 and she was 20.

We settled down, we got into a relationship and we've been together ever since.

Now, when I met the woman who is now my wife, she quickly found out that I wasn't interested in marriage and I didn't want anything to do with having children.

She was okay about that and she accepted it.

She just wanted to be with me and she didn't put any pressure on me to get married or start a family, but our relationship just got better and better over time.

The love grew, the respect grew, the attraction grew and when she eventually started asking if we can get engaged, I was still apprehensive about that.

I was still like, "I don't want to go down that path. Why do we have to do that? What's the point?"

Yet, eventually, I started to open up to her because I started to look into the more positive side of the shocking divorce statistic.

When you see divorce statistics like 50%, for example, it means that 50% of marriages actually stay together.

Not all those marriages are happy, but within that 50%, there are so many couples who have a relationship where the love, respect and attraction grows over time.

Personally, I felt like I could do that.

I felt confident in my ability to do that.

So, I thought, "Why not?"

I went ahead with it and it's been one of the best decisions that I've ever made in my life.

So, essentially, for me, I got married at 37.

We eventually got to a position where we could get a house and stop renting when I was 39.

Now I'm 41 and I've become a dad.

Yet, I know that for some guys watching this video, they may have the thought of, "Well, what if it all goes awry? What if you have some problems with her? What if the marriage breaks down? What if you end up getting a divorce? What if you can't keep the relationship together?"

Well, the way that I think about the answer to that is it's sort of like saying, "Don't drive a car because you could get into an accident. There are so many accidents that happen and you could be one of the people who have an accident and die so don't drive."

Yet, if you don't drive, then you don't get to experience all the fun and freedom that can come with driving.

Of course, there are all sorts of negatives that can happen with driving, but there are all sorts of positives that can happen as well and you only get to experience that if you do it.

So, does that mean that every man should just get married to a woman and stay with her for life?

Absolutely not.

What every man should do is what he wants to do, with the understanding that what he wants to do may change over time.

He may be at a point in his life where he thinks that he just wants to have sex with lots of women.

I personally went through that for 10 years, but I eventually changed.

I eventually changed and wanted a relationship.

Then, I eventually changed and accepted a marriage and opened up to having children.

Now I've got twin daughters.

Have I done the right thing or have I made a mistake?

I've done the right thing based on what I want from women.

I wanted to enjoy my choice of women and I did that.

Then, I wanted to have a relationship and I did that and it got better and better and better.

Then, I opened up to the next levels of that relationship and now I'm getting to experience that.

So, here is one of the important lessons to take away from this video...

A man can be accomplished and happy without a family, or with one and a man can be sad and lonely with a family, or without one.

There are pros and cons to each choice you make, but I recommend focusing on the good things that you want in life and then moving in that direction knowing that it's possible and common for people to experience the good things that you want from that particular area of life.

For example: If a guy wants to have sex with lots of women and never settle down, he can focus on the fact that there are men out there who live their life that way and it's okay.

He's not wrong by doing that.

Some people may say that he's wrong, they may criticize him, they may expect him to do something else, but he's not doing anything wrong.

He's just living life in the way that he wants to live it.

Likewise, if a man wants to settle down with a woman and never marry her, he's not doing anything wrong.

If he wants to go down that path in life, he can do that.

Other people may say that he is wrong, they may criticize him, they may expect him to do something else, but he is allowed to live that life if he wants to.

He should also know that he may change his mind in future.

He may change and think that he doesn't want to remain settled down with that woman and wants to go back to being single, or he may change and think that he wants to marry her, commit to her, have a family, build a family life together and enjoy lifelong experiences together.

He's allowed to do that.

Likewise, if a man wants to marry a woman and stay with her for life, he may get criticized by some people.

Some people may think that he is wrong, but if he goes down that path and he really wants to enjoy that path and go through the levels of that path, such as having a family, raising the children, having lifelong experiences together and so on, then he's allowed to do that.

So, I hope this video helps you understand that you're not doing it wrong.

Instead, you're just doing it in the way that you want to do it.

You're allowed to live your life in the way that you want to live your life.

Just know though that you may change your mind next week, next year, five years from now or so on.

You may decide that you want something else and that's okay.

Learn More?

I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn more, I have two recommendations for you.

The first recommendation is for the single men watching this video and the second recommendation is for the men who are in a relationship or a marriage with a woman or men who want to get into a relationship with a woman and make it work.

The first recommendation is The Flow.

This is my eBook which is also available on audio.

It's the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend.

It's everything that you need to know to go from a hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

The second recommendation is Make Her Love You For Life.

This is my relationship program and it will teach you how to make a woman respect you, feel sexually attracted to you and be totally in love with you for life.

When you use the approach that I teach in Make Her Love You For Life, her respect, attraction and love increases over time.

It doesn't fade away.

Each to Their Own

One final point that I want to make for you in this video is that, from now on, you may notice people unnecessarily fighting with each other based on their view of how life should be lived.

You'll see people saying that this person is wrong because they want to live their life that way and that person is wrong because they want to live their life that way.

Yet, what I think is that people should just let other people live life the way that they want to live it.

There will always be a certain amount of people who agree and disagree with your goal with women.

You may want to live your life with women in this way and they may think that you should live it in that way.

Yet, there is no one way to live life.

Instead there are common expectations that people have, so you should just live the life that you want to live with women.

You know what you want.

So, go after it and enjoy it.

How to Get Some Sex if You're Single

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

How can you get some sex if you're single?

Some guys might be thinking, "Well, just go pay a hooker. Give her some money, have sex with her and leave. Done."

Yet, how about having sex with a woman who really does want to have sex with you and doesn't require you to pay her to have sex with her?

How about a woman who wants to have sex with you because she really likes you and really feels attracted to you?

Well, there are many ways to get some sex if you're single.

In this video, I'm going to explain 3 ways that you can get some sex.

1. Go to speed dating events prepared to make women feel sexually attracted to you

Before I give you some examples of what you can say to make women sexually attracted to you at a speed dating event, I just want to point out that the women you meet at a speed dating event usually won't be the most physically attractive women in your city or town.

In most cases, women who look like this won't be attending the speed dating event.

Instead in most cases, it will be women who are average looking or below average looking and sometimes you will get some pretty women there as well.

If you want to have sex with more attractive women, then make sure that you stick around for the other two tips that I'm going to give you in this video on how to get some sex if you're single.

In those two tips, I'm going to be talking about how to make a woman want you sexually when you have approached her randomly because you found her attractive.

For now, let's look at tip number 1. Go to speed dating events prepared to make women feel sexually attracted to you.

If you want to get some sex, I don't recommend going to speed dating events and then just trying your luck, or going to speed dating events and having a nice conversation with women, trying to get to know them and so on.

If you want to get some sex from speed dating events where all the women there are going to be single and either looking for a boyfriend or a lover, then focus on making the women feel sexually attracted to you as you talk to them.

Don't just sit down, have friendly conversations, ask her what she does for a living and try to get to know her in a neutral, friendly way.

Instead, in addition to having normal conversations, make sure that you add in things that will create a spark of sexual attraction between you and the woman.

Then, build on her feelings of sexual attraction and make her want you sexually.

So, with speed dating, you have to go from table to table and sit down and talk with each woman for about 5 to 10 minutes, depending on the organization, the way that they arrange things.

Rather than just going to every table, sitting down and introducing yourself in a typical way like every other guy is going to do, introduce yourself in a unique way that is going to make the woman laugh and feel attracted to your confidence.

For example: You've just finished up the first 5 or 10 minutes talking to the first woman and then you're going to go to the next table.

When everyone is changing tables, you walk over to sit at the with the next woman and then you (smile and) say something like this (in a joking manner), "Hey, oh, actually, I think I might just skip this table and go to the next one."

She's going to find that funny so you and her can have a laugh together and start the interaction off in a positive, easy-going way.

You're not going to sit down and put on an act like other guys are of being nicer than you normally are, more polite than you normally are, more restrained and reserved than you normally are.

Instead, you have the confidence to joke around with a woman that you haven't even met yet.

You have the confidence to joke around and have a laugh with her, rather than trying to be on your best behavior to hopefully impress her in that way.

Then, as you continue talking to her, build up her sexual attraction by making her feel attracted in other ways such as you being confident, being emotionally masculine, making her laugh, being charismatic and so on.

By the way...

For the guys who don't know how speed dating works, at the end the quick date, you and the woman then tick "Yes" or, "No" about whether you want to exchange contact details with each other.

If both you and her tick yes, then the organization, the company will give you her contact details, you can contact her, set up a date and then... have sex with her.

So, back to the speed dating.

When you finish up the date with a woman and you're going to go to the next table, if she can hear what you're going to say to the next woman, you can say something like this, "Oh, finally, I get to talk to you. I had to talk to that boring girl for five minutes, so boring. How are you? I'm Dan, what's your name?"

The girl that you just had a quick date with that was attracted to you and was laughing, is going to continue laughing and she's going to feel even more attracted to you in that moment.

She's going to know that you were joking because you and her were getting along really well and laughing, so don't worry about her being offended or anything like that.

Women get it.

They know when a man is joking, especially if they've just been flirting and laughing with him for 5-10 minutes.

So, just have the confidence to be a bit more relaxed with your humor.

Don't worry about being Mr. Polite because that doesn't work.

Mr. Polite gets forgotten and Mr. Confident, Funny, Good Guy gets remembered...and gets sex.

By the way...

If the next table that you're going to go to is too far away, or it's too loud in there and the previous woman won't hear you, you can say something like this instead.

"Oh, it's the girl in the black dress. I noticed you earlier. You were standing out from the crowd. I'm Dan, what's your name?"

It's important to be able to give women compliments like that at times and be a bit charming, because when around other women who have done themselves up, many women feel insecure about their attractiveness in comparison to the other women.

So, if you're able to say to a woman that you noticed her and she was standing out from the crowd and you are able to say that in a confident genuine way, then she's going to really appreciate that comment and like that about you.

She's going to be happy that you really do find her attractive and you're not just sitting down for a random date with a girl that you're not attracted to.

You've let her know that she has stood out from the crowd, but you're not going overboard with it.

You're not saying to her, "Oh, wow, I noticed you before! You were really standing out from the crowd! I've been looking forward to talking to you!" and going overboard with it.

You're not putting her on a pedestal like that, worshiping her and saying, "Wow, you know, you're so beautiful, you stand out from the crowd."

Instead, you're being confident, relaxed and charming about it, "Oh, it's the girl in the black dress, I noticed you earlier. You were standing out from the crowd. I'm Dan, what's your name?"

From there, build on her feelings of sexual attraction for you as you talk to her. so she is really hoping that you end up ticking "Yes" on the piece of paper or whatever you're using with the speed dating event to match you and her up.

Then, with all the phone numbers that you get from speed dating event, make some phone calls, set up dates and enjoy some sex.

2. Get to a first kiss with a woman who is attracted to you

Prior to kissing a woman, you haven't really secured anything yet.

You may have made a woman feel attracted to you, but sex isn't just going to happen based on her feeling attracted to you and enjoying a conversation with you.

You have to have the confidence to get to a first kiss because after the first kiss, the dynamic changes from being flirtatious and showing interest in each other to being physically intimate with each other.

After that, the next step is to have sex and that may happen on the first night you meet a woman, the first date, second date, third date or whatever.

How fast you get there is up to you and her, but if you want to get to sex, make sure that you're not avoiding the first kiss.

It's essential that you have the confidence to make a move and initiate a first kiss when a woman is attracted to you and showing you signals of interest.

This is where a lot of guys go wrong.

They go out to meet women and they talk to women, make them feel attracted and then don't do anything about it.

In many cases, the woman goes away feeling rejected and disappointed.

There was clearly a spark between her and the guy, but nothing happened.

He was talking to her, they were getting along, they were attracted to each other, they were flirting, it was an enjoyable interaction and she was showing him signs of interest, but he didn't do anything about it.

He ended up walking away and nothing happened.

So, if a woman is attracted to you and she is showing you signs of sexual interest, then have the confidence to make a move and initiate the first kiss.

After the first kiss, there will then be a sexual dynamic between you and her and it will either lead to you having sex on the first night, on the first date or second date or whatever.

You and her will be both be feeling sexually tuned based on the kiss and you'll want something to happen.

So, if you're talking to a woman who's attracted to you and she's showing you signs of sexual interest, then make sure that you have the confidence to initiate a first kiss so you and her can then take things to the next level after that.

3. Help a woman to bring out her sexual side around you

Say for example you are at a bar, a nightclub or a party and a song comes on and the woman says, "Oh, I love this song."

How can you bring out her sexual side so she starts to show you that side of herself and want to be more sexual with you?

When she says, "Oh, I love this song," you can say something like this, "Cool, I like this song as well. Let's dance. Come here, show me your moves."

If you had been making the woman laugh, relax, open up and show you her easy-going side prior to that, then she's going to be happy to have a dance with you in that moment.

If she hesitates, you can just say something like this, "Come here, don't be shy. Let's enjoy it, this is a great song."

Of course, with most women, you won't have to add that in.

She said that she loved the song, which is usually followed by the woman wanting to dance to that song.

You know what women are like, so capitalize on the moment and get her to dance with you.

Tell her to show you her moves, which in most cases is going to bring out a woman's sexual side.

She's going to want to show you that she can be sexy and she's going to want to enjoy herself and let her hair down in that moment, while dancing to a song that she really loves.

Now, once you start dancing with her, you don't need to pull off any amazing moves.

Most guys out there aren't great dancers.

You may be a great dancer; I'm not.

Yet, that never stopped me from having a ‘dance’ with a woman at a bar, party, nightclub or an even with a dance floor.

All you have to do is basically stand there and move with the woman, just have a bit of rhythm.

Before you know it (if you and her are body to body, enjoying each other’s company and she’s feeling attracted to you), then you and her are going to start kissing...and what happens after kissing?

It usually leads to sex that night.

So, go ahead and enjoy yourself!

She’ll love it.

Women Really Do Want Sex, But They Don't Always Make it Obvious

[image: How to get sex]

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that in many cases, it may seem like women aren't even interested in sex.

However, they really do want to get to kissing and sex just as much as men do.

The thing is though, in most cases, women have to approach the process of getting to sex differently than men.

For example: When a woman meets a man and is hoping to get herself a boyfriend, she wants to be able to show him that she's not that easy.

She's not a woman that goes around trying to get sex.

She's a woman who can control herself and if he would get into a relationship with her, he would be able to trust her because she's a woman who doesn't go around trying to get sex.

Some guys go through life never really understanding why women behave in the ways that they behave, but once you understand it, it's all very simple and easy.

Women do want to have sex, they want to get to a kiss, they want to have sex, they want to fall in love, they want to have a relationship, but they go about it in a different way to men.

So, as long as you understand how the process works, you simply have to walk up to women that you feel attracted to, make them feel attracted to you, connect with them and then take things to the next level.

When you approach it in that way, you'll find that getting sex when you're single is very easy because women want it too.

How to Impress a Girl You Like

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

How do you impress a girl that you like?

Well, there's an easy way to do it and a difficult way to do it.

The easy way that I'm going to teach you ends up with her trying to impress you, so you then allow her to have a chance with you, rather than you hoping and trying really hard to get a chance with her.

The difficult way to do it is the way that most guys out there do it, which ends up causing them to get rejected, or to be placed in the friend zone and another guy to come along and take the girl that he likes.

So, the difficult way to impress a girl that you like is to try really hard to hopefully try to get her to like you for you being such a good guy to her, for you being on your best behavior around her.

Many guys mistakenly think that trying really hard to impress a girl is the way to impress her.

[image: Feeling like all the pressure to impress is on him]

As a result, he might feel as though all the pressure is on him.

He has to make sure that he lives up to her expectations to hopefully get a chance with her.

Treat her nicer than he would treat other girls because he wants to show her how special she is to him and how good of a guy he is.

Try to improve his value in her eyes by talking about his past achievements or his future goals in life.

Show serious romantic interest in her, before she even feels that way about him.

He really likes her and wants her to see that.

Yet, he doesn't realize that because of her beauty, guys react that way to her all the time.

It's not exciting for her.

It's predictable, boring and it doesn't make her want to be with a guy.

Next, he might feel intimidated by her beauty and attractiveness and as a result, see himself as being less valuable than her.

Finally, he might come across as though he would be so lucky and so appreciative if she would just give him a chance to be with her.

Yet here's the thing...

If a girl is attractive, what she wants to get is a feeling where she would be lucky to get a chance with you.

She wants to be able to look at you as the prize.

When you have the ability to make an attractive girl feel that way about you, it is very impressive to her.

Pretty much every guy that she meets feels attracted to her and he's hoping to be able to impress her to get a chance with her.

[image: Making her feel like she needs to impress you to get a chance with you]

She rarely comes across a guy who she feels like she needs to impress him to be able to get a chance with him.

So, what's an example of how you can make her feel that way?

There are so many examples I can give you of things that you can say and do to make a girl feel that way about you.

One easy example is this: Don't take conversations with her so seriously.

Pretty much every guy who meets an attractive girl will suddenly change his behavior around her.

He'll be nicer than he normally is.

He'll treat her better than he treats unattractive girls.

He will give her special treatment.

He'll be on his best behavior.

She's bored of that.

Pretty much every guy behaves like that around her because they're trying to get something from her.

Guys hope that if they're on their best behavior around her, she's then going to think, "Alright, you've been a good boy, you get a chance to stick it in now."

Yet, that's not what she's looking for.

She's not looking for another opportunity out of the tens of thousands she's had in her life already, to just say, "Okay you, you get to stick it in."

What she's hoping to experience is a feeling that is very difficult for an attractive girl to find because most guys that she meets either behave in a really nice way around her, or they behave in a neutral way around her.

The guys who are being extra nice to her are sucking up to her to hopefully get her to see that they're a good guy and they deserve a chance with her.

Guys who are being neutral around her are too afraid to show any interest in her, or flirt with her to create a sexual spark between them.

They don't want to get rejected by her.

They just want to be able to talk to her and hang around with her.

Many of these guys hope that if they just keep talking to her for long enough and spend enough time with her, they may be able to grow on to her over time and get a chance with her.

Now, of course, sometimes that can work.

Sometimes the nice guy who's sucking up to her can get a chance with her and sometimes the neutral, friendly guy can grow on her over time.

Yet, in most cases, those guys get placed in the friend zone when another guy comes along, makes her feel sexually attracted and makes her feel like she wants to impress him and get a chance with him.

So, with the example of not taking conversations with her so seriously, imagine that you're hanging out with a girl that you really like.

She then asks you, "So how was your weekend?"

How are you going to respond to that?

What are you going to say to her?

The thing is, it's totally fine for you to respond in a neutral friendly way and just say something like, "Oh it was pretty good, how about yourself?" and have a conversation with her about that.

There's nothing wrong with talking to a girl in that way.

However, if you want to make her feel like she needs to impress you, that she would be lucky to get a chance with you and that you're not trying to get something from her, then don't take conversations with her so seriously all the time.

At times, playfully mess with her when she asks you something.

Let her see that you're not on your best behavior because you're trying to get something from her.

Let her see that you're not living in fear while next to her and thinking that you can't say or do anything other than being friendly and neutral.

Let her see that you have the confidence to playfully challenge her and playfully mess with her as you're talking to her because you're not trying to get anything from her.

You're not trying to suck up to her.

You know that you're good enough for her.

You know that if you and her were going to hook up, it would be you allowing her to get a chance with you.

You've got to have that mindset.

You've got to give yourself that credit.

You've got to give yourself that position, rather than giving it to her and hoping that she will give you a chance.

Attractive girls don't want to be in that position where you are hoping to get a chance with them for being really nice.

Attractive girls want to be in the position where they are hoping to get a chance with you because they feel the need to impress you and as result, they feel like they'd be lucky to be chosen by you.

So, if you're hanging out with an attractive girl that you like and she asks you, "So how was your weekend?" you can say something like this, "Wouldn't you like to know."

As a result of saying that to her, she then has to imagine what you got up to on the weekend.

Being a girl, she'll almost certainly assume that you were hanging out with another girl, or hooking up with another girl.

You didn't say that.

[image: Get her imagining what you were doing on the weekend]

She's imagining it.

You don't have to tell that you were hanging out with another girl, or hooking up with another girl or anything like that.

Instead, it's simply a case of you not taking the conversation with her so seriously and having the confidence to playfully mess with her for a few moments before telling her the real answer.

You may keep the joke going for 30 seconds, a minute or two minutes.

It might even go on all day if you want it to, but just have the confidence to playfully mess with her and not take everything that she says so seriously.

You don't have to answer all of her questions seriously.

You can have the confidence to playfully mess with her and let her see that you're not one of those guys who are on his best behavior hoping that if you're just nice enough, she might give you a chance with her.

So, if she asks you something like, "Come on, tell me...what did you get up to on the weekend?" you can add in something like this, "I'm not sure if I should tell you. It's probably best that I don't tell you."

She will then almost certainly assume that you're referring to you hanging out with another girl and you're not saying anything because you don't kiss and tell, or because you don't want to make her jealous.

If she presses you for an answer, you can keep the joke going for the whole day if you want to, or you can tell her right then if you want to.

For example: If you were to tell her what you did on the weekend for real (and it was just a normal thing that you did on the weekend), you can then follow up that by saying something like this, "Why? What did you think I did on the weekend? You've got a wild imagination, girl."

Essentially, from a simple question like, "So, how was your weekend?" you have created a situation where she's trying to get information from you, she's feeling excited, she's feeling intrigued and she's feeling attracted.

She's thinking about you potentially being with another girl, which actually makes her feel more attracted and so on.

Another example is where you're talking to an attractive girl and she asks you a question like, "So, what is your favorite movie?"

Now you can have a normal conversation with her about that if you want to.

There's nothing wrong with that and it's totally fine to have normal, everyday conversations with attractive girls.

However, if you want to create a spark of sexual attraction inside of her and impress her, based on you not being like other guys who are always on their best behavior around her, then have the confidence to playfully mess with her for asking you a question like that.

So, if she asks you "So, what is your favorite movie?" you can say something like this, "You ask the most boring questions. Where did you get that question from? It sounds like something that you would have found on top 10 tips for talking to your guy crush."

She will almost certainly laugh and deny that she got the question from an article online.

You can then say something like this, "Yeah, yeah, it's okay. I believe you, but hey look, it's cute that you're trying. Keep trying. You're doing okay. What other boring questions have you got? What is your favorite color? What's your favorite song? Jeez, girl, come on."

She's almost certainly going to laugh at that and she's almost certainly going to deny that she came prepared to the conversation with you with a list of questions that she wanted to ask you to keep the conversation going and keep it interesting.

It doesn't matter if she did prepare or she didn't.

What matters is that you have turned a simple question of, "So, what is your favorite movie?" into a situation where it's about her trying to impress you.

That is impressive to attractive girls.

Attractive girls rarely, if ever, meet a guy who can make them feel like they want to get a chance with him.

Pretty much every guy that an attractive girl meets, wants to get a chance with her and he's on his best behavior around her hoping to achieve that.

Yet, when you can make her feel like she wants to get a chance with you, that is impressive to her. You're not like all the other guys who are on their best behavior and hoping that she will give you a chance to be with her.

Instead, you are allowing her to experience a feeling that is very difficult to find for an attractive woman, a feeling that she can only get if she is hoping to get a chance with you.

She rarely gets that feeling around a guy because pretty much every guy who meets her wants to show her that he likes her.

Guys instantly fall in love with her, or they're really nice around her.

They're trying to suck up to her to get a chance with her.

Many guys are scared to put a foot wrong around her, so they just talk to her like a friend.

They don't want to do anything other than just having a friendly conversation with her, because they're afraid of stuffing things up.

Yet, when you are able to make her feel like she needs to impress you and that you're not completely sold on her, then she gets to experience that elusive, exciting feeling that attractive women rarely get to experience.

That is, where she is hoping to get a chance with you.

[image: Give her the feeling that is so hard to find]

Attractive women and attractive girls find that so impressive because it's so difficult for them to come across a guy who makes them feel like they want to get a chance with him.

Now with the example I gave you in this video of not taking conversations with her so seriously all the time, that's just ONE way of many ways that I can teach you to make her feel as though she would be lucky if she got a chance with you.

If you'd like to learn my best-ever techniques for making women feel attracted to you and want to be with you, I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

It's the easiest way to get laid or get a girlfriend because it puts you in the position of power and makes a woman want to get a chance with you.

The Flow includes all of my best conversation starters, how to keep conversations going and keep them interesting, how to make a woman feel instantly attracted to you as soon as you start talking to her and increasingly attracted to you the more you talk to her.

How to create an unforgettable connection between you and a woman, how to get her phone number, what to text her after you get her phone number, how to get to a kiss, how to set up a date, how to get to sex on the first date.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

Showing Interest in a Girl You Like

One final point that I want to make for you in this video is that there's nothing wrong with showing interest in a woman that you find attractive.

There's nothing wrong with that at all.

Just don't be that guy who's showing loads of romantic interest in a girl who isn't showing it back.

Don't be that guy who's trying really hard to hopefully win her over.

That approach rarely, if ever, works and if it does work, it ends up with you being in a relationship where you're always having to try hard to live up to her expectations, impress her and keep her happy.

That's a nightmare scenario for most guys.

What you want to do instead is be the good guy that you are, but make her feel like she's going to need to be a good woman to you as well.

You're not just going to accept anything.

She going to have to be on her best behavior and trying to impress you and maintain your interest.

The thing is, women actually want it that way.

When you see a woman who's happy, in love and excited to be in a relationship with a man, it's with a man who makes her feel that way.

She has to be a good girl for him.

She has to be on her best behavior.

Now, that doesn't mean that a guy should treat a woman badly.

Instead, a guy should treat a woman well, but he should make her feel like she is going to need to treat him well to maintain his interest.

When you approach it in that way, it's a much more balanced relationship and you get yourself a better woman.

You and her have a relationship that works, is happy, is passionate and in love and you get yourself a good woman from it.

You don't end up like one of those guys who has to put in loads and loads of effort to hopefully keep his woman happy.

Instead, she's happy because she's in a relationship with a guy who makes her feel like she needs to impress him as well.

She has to maintain your interest.

It's exciting for her to be with a good guy who also makes her feel like she needs to be a good girl for him.

How to Get a Girlfriend if You're Good Looking

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

So, how can you get a girlfriend if you're good looking?

Many guys will be surprised to find out how big of a problem this really is.

I won't read out the comments that you're seeing here now (watch video above to see comments), but I just want to show you that I get contacted by good looking guys all the time saying that they can't get laid or get a girlfriend.

So, how is that possible?

What is going on?

Why can't a good looking guy get a girlfriend?

More importantly, how can he get a girlfriend?

What does a good looking guy need to do to be able to get himself a girlfriend?

1. Remember to put a woman's insecure mind at ease, by adding in some genuine compliments as you talk to her

Many women out there are insecure about their physical appearance.

You might meet her and think that she's pretty, she's beautiful, she's perfect for you, but in her mind she may be looking at you as though you're too good looking for her.

She's not on the same level in terms of looks as you are and as a result, she may end up feeling insecure.

So, what you need to do is make sure that you add in some genuine compliments about her when you're talking to her, without worrying about ruining the power dynamic.

What every man out there needs to understand, whether he is very good looking, good looking, average looking, below average looking or even ugly, is that no woman can take away his power unless he decides so.

You are always the selector.

You are always the one allowing her to have a chance with you.

It's not the other way around.

It can be if you want to, if you think that you're not the selector, but you have to think and believe and know that you are the selector.

If you and her are going to hook up, it's going to be about you allowing her to get with you.

So, when you give her compliments, you don't ever have to worry about it ruining the power dynamic.

You can say that you think she's pretty, she's cool, she's interesting, she is fun, she's intelligent, she's stylish or whatever you want to say and it will never mean that you're in the one down position in terms of value, because you believe in yourself and see yourself as the selector.

You know that you are the more valuable one and it's going to be about you allowing her to have a chance with you.

Now, the thing is very good looking guys and good looking guys find it easy to believe that about themselves because they believe that they're good looking and they believe that women should feel lucky to get a chance with them.

Yet, the really cool thing is that average looking guys, below average looking guys and in some cases, even ugly guys can use that technique to their advantage to make a woman feel lucky to get a chance with them.

A guy who is average looking and below average looking can exude the type of confidence that says, "I am a cool guy. I know that I'm good enough for you. You know that you would be lucky to get a chance with me. You know that you are feeling attracted to me as we talk. You know that there are sparks between us. You know that you want to get into bed with me."

When a guy has that type of belief in himself, he naturally exudes the type of confidence that makes women feel attracted to him.

Women are attracted to that type of confidence.

Now, of course, I'm not talking about over-the-top arrogant type of confidence where a guy actually says, "You would be lucky to get with me. I'm so good. I'm the best. You want to get into bed with me."

I'm not talking about that.

I'm talking about a guy exuding that type of confidence based on the way that he thinks.

He knows that he's good enough.

He knows that he is the selector and he knows that if they're going to hook up, it's going to be about him allowing her to get a chance with him.

So, for the good looking guys watching this video, what you need to understand is that many women are insecure.

If a woman doesn't feel like she is on the same level in terms of looks as you are, then in most cases, she's going to need some compliments from you to feel like she's good enough.

You need to be able to say something like this to her:

- "Well, that's really interesting. So, you're smart and pretty. I like you already."
- "You know, there are a few women here tonight wearing a black dress just like you, but you really pull it off. It's working for you. I like it."

When you have the confidence to let a woman see that you are finding her attractive, as well as not feeling as though you're going to lose value, be in the one down position or appear look desperate (because you gave her a compliment), then you come across as a charming guy.

She feels comfortable and at ease when she's talking to you and she feels attracted to you at the same time.

2. Understand that many women avoid getting into a relationship with a good looking guy because they fear getting dumped and having their heart broken

This is especially true when a woman meets a good looking guy who isn't very confident about himself.

If she notices that he isn't really confident and as a result doesn't even know his own value, then she will worry that if she gets into a relationship with him and he then becomes confident, he will start to look at her as not being good enough for him.

He will start to look at other women and find them more attractive and want to be with them instead.

Many women also have a similar fear about confident, good looking guys.

Sometimes a woman will meet a confident, good looking guy and she will doubt her ability to maintain his attraction in the long run.

She will know that if she opens up to having sex with him, he'll have sex with her and they may start to date and have sex for a couple of months or even stay together for a couple of years, but she has no guarantee that she's going to be able to keep him in a relationship.

If she falls in love with him and really wants to be with him and then he loses interest and dumps her, then it's going to be her that is heartbroken and left behind.

So, what you need to do, in addition to adding in a genuine compliment every now and again, is to show her that you find her interesting, that you're attracted to who she is as a person.

Of course, don't go overboard to the point where you're basically saying, "Wow, you're so interesting. Oh, you're so amazing," or anything like that.

Just show genuine interest in who she is as a person.

If you genuinely like who she is, the things she says, how she behaves and so on, then show interest in that.

Let her see that the attraction that you have for her isn't just about her physical appearance.

You like who she is as a person.

Who she is as a person is drawing you towards her.

That then allows her to have some confidence about a relationship between you and her.

She can then start to imagine that you and her would be able to stay together because you are emotionally attracted to her.

You like who she is as a person and that type of attraction is much more long lasting than initial physical attraction.

3. Don't lose confidence if she plays a bit hard to get

There are so many different reasons why a woman will play hard to get.

It's a tactic that women use on all sorts of guys, not just good looking guys.

In terms of a good looking guy, what you need to understand is that if you're interacting with the woman that you find attractive and she's feeling attracted to you, in some cases, she will play hard to get because she's trying to gain some power in the dynamic between you and her.

She is hoping to make you see her as the prize, to see her as the selector.

She is hoping to change the dynamic, so, you're trying to get a chance with her.

Yet, here's the problem.

When a guy follows that lead and starts looking at her as being the prize, or the selector, she starts to feel turned off.

Most women don't want to be with a guy who is chasing and trying hard to get a chance with them.

Most women dream of being able to get themselves a guy who makes them feel like they would be lucky to get a chance with him.

Of course, you won't get women going around admitting that because they don't want to tip guys off and hint at guys that they want guys to be more challenging when they interact with them.

Most woman will go around saying, "I just want a guy who's nice, who listens, he's understanding, he's patient" and blah, blah, blah.

Yet, in reality, the men that women feel the most excited about and lust after are the men who make a woman feel attracted, but then don't give her relationship vibes or try hard to get a relationship with her.

Instead, the guy makes her feel attracted and makes her want to hopefully get a relationship with him.

He then allows her to have a chance with him.

He then allows her to have sex with him.

He is the selector, he is the prize.

So, when you're talking to a woman that you're attracted to and you want to have as your girlfriend, don't lose confidence in yourself if she suddenly starts playing hard to get.

Just understand that in most cases, she's doing that because she's trying to gain some power in the dynamic between you and her.

Instead of losing confidence, just relax, continue being the good guy that you are, continue building on her attraction as you talk to her and then take things to the next level.

4. Understand that in most cases, you still have to go through the same process as other guys if you want an attractive girlfriend

[image: You still usually have to go through the same pick up process as other guys]

In most cases, if you want an attractive girlfriend, you still have to be able to attract her in other ways as you're talking to her.

For example: Being confident, making her laugh, being charismatic, being emotionally masculine and so on.

The reason why, is that if a woman has dated or been in relationships with good looking guys before, then she will know that not every good looking guy is confident.

Some good looking guys end up becoming insecure, jealous, controlling and so on in the relationship. She ends up feeling suffocated by the relationship and wants to get out, so she dumps the guy even though he's good looking.

When a woman has been through that type of experience, she usually starts to realize that if a relationship is going to work, then she needs to find herself a truly confident boyfriend.

When she realizes that and starts to look for it, what she often finds is that it's very difficult to find a truly confident boyfriend.

In order to get herself a truly confident boyfriend, many women end up accepting a guy who isn't on the same level in terms of looks as they are.

Of course, if she could get herself a good looking guy who was truly confident, then she would most likely accept that, but many women simply cannot find a good looking guy who is truly confident and is the sort of guy who isn't going to become insecure, jealous, controlling and overprotective in a relationship.

It's very difficult for a woman to find that.

So, many women end up accepting a guy who isn't on the same level in terms of them as looks, just so they can have a relationship that is actually going to work and get better and better over time.

Now, that doesn't mean that a woman is going to be unhappy with a guy who isn't on the same level as her in terms of looks.

What usually happens is that when a woman starts feeling attracted to a guy as he talks to her, she starts to look at his physical appearance in a positive light.

For example: She may think, "I don't usually go for bald guys, but for some reason, I like this guy. His bald head is actually kind of cute. It's sexy. I've never been with a bald guy, but this bald guy is cute" or, "I've never been with a guy with a funny little nose like this, but for some reason I feel drawn to him. For some reason I really want to be with him."

Why she is feeling attracted to him for some reason is that he is making her feel attracted in other ways as he talks to her.

For example: He's being confident, he's being charismatic, he's being emotionally masculine which makes her feel girly in comparison to him.

He is being socially intelligent, he's being charming and so on.

Displaying personality traits and behaviors like that makes women feel sparks of sexual attraction for you as you talk to them.

If you're a good looking guy, what you have to understand is that in many cases, you still have to be able to display traits and behaviors that make women feel naturally attracted to you as you talk to them.

The reason why, as I said, is that some women have had experience getting into a relationship with the good looking guy who became insecure, jealous, controlling and so on.

So, with women like that, they want to be able to get themselves a boyfriend who is truly confident.

In many cases, it doesn't matter if the guy is on the same level in terms of looks as she is.

In many cases, a woman will happily accept a guy who isn't as good looking as her, as long as he is truly confident and he can make her feel attracted to him as he talks to her.

So, if you're a good looking guy, what you need to understand is that, in many cases, a woman is still going to be looking to see if you have the type of qualities that will make a relationship easy to maintain.

Essentially, she wants to know whether or not you and her are going to be able to have a real emotional connection and whether or not she's going to be able to fall in love with you and trust in you to maintain your confidence throughout the relationship.

It's very easy to display that type of confidence to women as you talk to them.

If you'd like to find out exactly how to do it, I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

You will learn my best ever conversation starters and ways to keep conversations going and keep them interesting.

You will also learn how to make women feel increasingly attracted to you as you talk to them and how to create an unforgettable emotional connection between you and a woman.

When you read the eBook or listen to the audiobook version, you will also learn how to initiate touch in a way that a woman wants and welcomes, how to get her phone number, how to get to a first kiss, how to get to sex on the first night or sex on the first date, what to text her after you get her phone number if you don't want to kiss her and have sex with her right away, how to get her to go out on a date with you, how to make her feel attracted to you on a date and so on.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

Her Emotional Attraction to You is What Makes Her Continue to Want You

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that some women out there do place a lot of importance on physical appearance, but many women out there, including many pretty and beautiful women, don't really care that much about a guy being on the same level in terms of looks as they are.

She's more interested in how you make her feel as you interact with her (i.e. the emotional connection you and her have).

Does she feel girly and feminine in comparison to your masculine approach?

Does she feel excited to be around you?

Does she feel like she needs to impress you and live up to your expectations, or do you just make her feel neutral around you because you're coming across more like a friend?

Are you too nice to her?

Do you make her feel like she has too much power in the interaction?

Do you suppress your masculinity around her to be nice and hopefully let her see that you're a really good person?

What's important to understand is that most women out there do want to find themselves a good guy who is going to treat them well, but at the same time, most women out there want to find themselves a guy who makes them feel like they need to impress him.

A woman wants to get that feeling where she feels lucky to be getting a chance with you.

You can literally make her feel that way as you talk to her.

How Do Ugly Guys Get Pretty Girlfriends?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Most guys don't consider themselves to be ugly.

In fact, according to a recent poll that I ran on the community section of my YouTube channel, only 3% of guys rate themselves as ugly.

Most guys rate themselves as either average looking or good looking, with a small percentage rating themselves as very good looking and below average looking.

So, you're most likely not one of the 3% percent of guys who rate themselves as being ugly.

[image: How do ugly guys get girls?]

Yet, one thing that you're almost certainly going to have in common with every other guy who watches this video, is that you have been walking along somewhere at some point in your life and you've seen a guy that you might rate as being ugly, below average looking or weird looking with a girl that is better looking than him.

She may be pretty, or she may just be better looking than him and you may have wondered, "What is she doing with him? How can a guy who others might label as being ugly get himself a pretty girlfriend? What is going on?"

1. Some pretty women avoid good looking guys because they fear getting dumped and being heartbroken

Sometimes a pretty woman just doesn't believe that she's going to be able to keep a good looking guy happy and attracted in a relationship, so she will open herself up to guys who aren't as good looking as her.

In some cases, when a guy looks at a pretty woman with a guy who isn't as good looking as her, he might look at that guy and think he is ugly or he might say he's below average looking.

He might say, "He looks like a bit of a wimp or a weirdo. Why is she with him? Why can't I get a girlfriend like her and he's able to get her? What is going on?"

Well, one of the reasons why that happens is that some pretty women just don't believe that they can keep a good looking guy happy and attracted in a relationship.

Another reason is that...

2. Many pretty women aren't very confident about their looks

Some women look very pretty naturally.

They don't have to wear makeup to make themselves look more feminine and appealing.

Yet, many women do have to put on makeup to make themselves look more attractive to guys.

These women know what they look like without their makeup on.

Yet, many guys forget that when they see a pretty woman.

They forget the fact that without her makeup, she is usually on the same level in terms of looks as he is, or he may actually be better looking than her.

So, this is one of the reasons why pretty women will often get into a relationship with a guy who is 'ugly.'

Guys will look at a woman who is wearing makeup and looking very pretty.

She may have done herself up and be showing a bit of cleavage, or she may just have that beautiful feminine energy about her and she may have long hair and she looks good.

Yet, the guy that she's with isn't dressed very well, he doesn't work out in the gym and for some guys, they may label him as being ugly or below average looking.

So, what's going on there?

Well, many pretty women aren't very confident about their physical appearance.

They may act as though they are and they may put on an act as though they don't even need a guy because they're so pretty and everyone would love to be with them, but secretly, many pretty women aren't very confident about their physical appearance.

Many pretty women know that they are faking their beauty.

So, whether you rate yourself as a very good looking guy, good looking, average, below average looking or ugly, just remember, the next time you see a woman that you perceive as being pretty, if she's wearing makeup, then she probably looks a little bit different without that makeup on.

She probably doesn't look as appealing and attractive without the mascara on, without the fake eyelashes, without the foundation covering up all of her spots, scars, lines and so on.

In other words, don't give women so much credit for their physical appearance and start thinking that you're not good enough because she looks pretty.

Now, that's said, there are awesome women out there who are pretty naturally.

They don't even have to wear makeup and they still look pretty.

You can still attract those women as well and in some cases, even an ugly guy can attract those women.

I know that sounds crazy and potentially unbelievable, but this is why...

3. If he's not her usual physical type, he might be able to make her feel attracted to him for other reasons

Some women who are naturally pretty and naturally beautiful have very high standards and won't accept anything less than a really good looking guy.

That is true.

However, many pretty women, including some of the natural beauties, will actually go for a guy that other guys may perceive as being ugly.

Why will that happen?

Well, many guys will think, "Oh, he must be rich. That's the only way to do it. An ugly guy can only get a pretty woman if he's got loads of money and he's able to buy her things and so on."

Yet, although money can be attractive to women and it's a way that an ugly guy can get himself a pretty girl, there are other ways to attract women while still being a normal, everyday guy.

The way that it works, is that when a woman feels attracted to a man for other reasons, such as him being confident, charismatic, making her laugh and being emotionally masculine, she starts to look at his physical appearance in a positive light.

She starts to think, "I don't normally go for bald guys, but this guy is really sexy. There's something about him. I wouldn't normally go for a guy who has a little nose like he does, but for some reason, I feel attracted to him. I feel drawn to him. I like him. I think he's sexy and I want to be with him."

Now, the thing is the woman will still know that the bald guy, or the guy with the funny looking nose isn't as good looking as a very good looking guy, but she won't care.

If she is in love with the guy and she's attracted to him and wants to be with him, she will love him for him.

She will start looking at his physical appearance in a positive light.

She will start looking at him and loving everything about him because she is in love with him, she's attracted to him and she wants to be with him.

As you may have heard me say before in another video, this is why you will often hear women talk about their boyfriend or husband and say, "When I initially saw him, I wasn't attracted. I wasn't interested because he wasn't my type, but once we started talking, there was a spark between us. We fell in love and the rest is history."

In some cases, the woman will then go on to say that she dated all the wrong guys in the past and finally met the guy who was right for her.

She wishes that she was able to meet him before because ever since they've been together, she's been happier than ever.

Him and her get along so well, they're attracted, they're in love and they go on to stay together for life.

4. Some pretty women aren't as serious about the visual as men are

For most men, the most important thing about a woman initially is how she looks, followed by her personality (i.e. if she's friendly, if she's nice and so on).

Yet, initially, what men feel attracted to about women is their physical appearance.

It's an instant attraction and in many cases, it's an intense attraction simply based on the way that the woman looks.

The man is seeing tits, he's seeing hips, he's seeing female features and his attraction instantly switches on.

Yet, for most women, they don't walk through life feeling instant intense attraction for certain male body parts.

They don't look at a guy's legs and say, "Wow, look at those legs. Imagine the hair on those legs" or, "I want to see those legs naked."

Most women's simply don't go around thinking like that.

Of course, there are exceptions and there are women out there who are completely fixated on the physical.

Yet, many pretty women really just don't care.

They're more interested in the emotional connection that they have with the guy.

Some pretty women are happy to be with a guy who is average looking, below average looking and in some cases, even ugly looking.

Now, of course, ugliness and attractiveness is somewhat subjective, so sometimes when a guy is rated as being ugly, other people won't look at him as being ugly.

They'll look at him as being below average looking or even average looking.

It really depends on the person who is making the judgment.

Some people are very judgmental and to them, anyone who doesn't look like a model is ugly or below average looking, so it really depends.

Yet, the question here is why would a pretty woman not care if a guy isn't very good looking or good looking?

Why wouldn't she want to get herself a good looking or very good looking guy?

Well, what happens is that if a pretty woman gets into a relationship with a good looking guy, it doesn't necessarily mean that she is going to fall in love with him and have an amazing emotional connection with him.

It doesn't necessarily mean that the relationship is going to last.

She might rate him as being good looking or very good looking, but she might never really love him and feel like she wants to be with him for life.

Yet, if she meets another guy who makes her feel more attracted and in love emotionally, she will like him more than she liked the good looking guy.

She will love him more than she loved the good looking guy.

She will want to have a relationship with him because when she's with him, she feels happy, she feels in love and the relationship can work.

Now, as I said at the start of the video, most guys don't rate themselves as being ugly.

Yet, the thing is, if an ugly guy can get himself a pretty girlfriend, what is stopping you?

That's what you really need to focus on.

What is stopping you from getting a pretty girlfriend?

What are you missing?

I've been helping new guys with this for about 14 years now and I always see the same thing.

When a guy isn't able to get himself a girlfriend or get laid by choice, he simply doesn't know how to make women feel attracted to him as he talks to them.

He talks to women and he's either being too neutral as he talks to women and as a result, there is no sexual spark between them or he's being too nice.

He's trying to suck up to the woman.

He's trying to show her how good of a guy he is and he hopes that he's going to be able to get laid, or get a girlfriend as a result of that.

Those approaches are so hit and miss.

If you want to have an approach that works pretty much every time, then you have to focus on making a woman feel sparks of sexual attraction for you as you talk to her.

When you have that ability, you literally unlock your choice with women.

You can make women feel attracted to you as soon as you start talking to them and you can make them feel increasingly attracted the more they talk to you.

For those of you who know my story, you know that I know this personally because I went through it myself.

I was single and alone for many years after getting dumped by a woman who I got lucky with.

I didn't know how to attract women and as a result, when I talked to pretty, beautiful women, they just weren't interested in me.

Even though I kind of looked like one of the 'Beavis and Butt-Head' characters back then, when I worked out how to attract women as I talked to them, everything changed.

Women felt attracted to me right away as I started talking to them and they felt increasingly attracted the more I talked to them.

As a result, I was able to kiss women on the first night, have sex on the first night, have sex on the first date and have many women in my life at once.

I did that for over 10 years.

Then, I met my perfect girl when she was 20 and I was 35.

We settled down, got into a relationship and have been together since then.

So, if ugly guys can get themselves a pretty girlfriend and someone like myself, who, by the way, I rated myself as being average looking in the poll, can get themselves a pretty girlfriend, then you can do it as well.

You can do it.

You can literally make women feel attracted to you as you talk to them.

When you do that, you unlock your choice with women.

You're able to make pretty women feel attracted to you.

So, if you'd like to learn exactly how to do that, I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

It includes everything that you need to say and do to make attracting and picking up women easy and effortless.

Ugly Isn't Always Ugly to Everyone

[image: He's not ugly to her. She sees him as cute and even handsome in his own way]

One final point that I want to make for you in this video is that when a guy is labeled as ugly by some other people, it doesn't mean that everyone else thinks that he is ugly.

This is another reason why 'ugly' guys can get themselves a pretty girlfriend.

When a pretty woman meets a guy who some people might label as being ugly, she won't always agree with that.

Sometimes she will say things like, "He's not that bad. He looks normal. What are you talking about?"

If he's able to make her feel attracted as he talks to her (e.g by being confident, making her laugh, flirting with her), she may even then start to like his physical appearance.

She might like how he looks a little bit quirky or nerdy.

She might like the fact that he wears glasses, is bald, or has a bit of a weird looking nose.

So, for all the guys out there who rate themselves as either being below average looking, average looking, good looking, or very good looking, if an ugly guy can get himself a pretty girlfriend, you can too.

Come on.

Don't go through your life thinking that you're not good enough for pretty women.

You are.

You can make pretty women feel attracted to you as you talk to them.

When you do that, you simply need to guide the women through the rest of the process to the point where you and her are kissing, having sex and starting a relationship.

It's very easy to do.

What to Do if a Woman Looks at You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

What should you do if a woman that you find attractive is looking at you and seems to be interested in talking to you?

Well, in this video I'm going to give you 7 different facial/body language expressions that you can display to her to show her that you notice she is looking at you and to create a bit of a spark of sexual attraction inside of her so she is even more interested in talking to you.

I'm also going to give you 3 conversation starters that you can use to start a conversation with her and get something going.

Now, before we get into all of those details, I want to explain what type of look I'm talking about.

I'm not talking about a woman just glancing at you and looking away.

I'm not talking about a woman looking at you twice, having a double take where she looks to you, looks away and then looks again.

I'm not talking about that.

I'm talking about a woman who looks at you at least three times and in some cases, it may seem that she is even staring at you a bit.

Now, of course I'm not talking about those crazy women that you sometimes see on the street or in public transport where they look at people and they just stare in a crazy way.

I'm not talking about those sort of women.

I'm talking about normal, attractive women who are single and looking at you because they find you attractive and in that moment, they're open to something happening between you and them.

Additionally, before we get into the body language expressions and the conversation starters, I just want to point out that, if a woman looks at a guy three times or is even kind of staring at him, it doesn't always mean that she is completely interested in talking to him and she wants something to happen.

There can be some exceptions.

For example: Here are some of the reasons why a woman might be looking at you or even be kind of staring at you.

- She finds you attractive and wants to make it clear so you then approach her and start a conversation.
- She is just flirting with you and doesn't care if you approach her or not. For example: She likes to get random guys interested in her as she goes about her day.
- You remind her of someone she knows.
- She's just randomly staring at you because she's deep in thought or thinking about life.
- You have something unusual about you that has caught her attention. For example: A tattoo, a T-shirt with an interesting slogan and so on.
- She likes your face, body appearance or fashion sense, so she's looking at you, but she's not necessarily hoping that you'll approach her and something happens between you and her. In cases like that, she might already be in a relationship and it's just looking at you because she finds you attractive in that moment.

- She wants to see if you have the confidence to maintain eye contact with her rather than looking away quickly like most guys do.
- She wants to get random guys interested in her and make her female friends jealous that she is getting a lot of attention from men.
- She feels compelled to stare at you, but doesn't really know why. She's just doing it.

In a lot of cases, if a woman looks at you at least three times and seems to be interested or she's somewhat staring at you, it usually means that she is interested in talking to you.

Yet, the reality is that there are going to be exceptions and the way that around that is to use body language expressions first, if you don't want to just walk over and approach a woman that may not be interested in you.

When you have the confidence to use one of the following facial/body language expressions, what will usually happen is that a woman will respond by smiling, looking at you even more and she may even have a little laugh to herself and show you that she is open to the interaction.

The first facial/body language expression is The Curious Look.

So remember, this is where a woman has looked at you at least three times or seems to be somewhat staring at you and showing interest.

You then give her a curious look.

The next facial/body language expression also includes the use of your hand.

It's The Friendly Wave.

You're essentially saying hello to her in a friendly way.

You're giving her that gesture to let her smile, laugh and potentially wave back or smile and laugh to show you that she's open to interacting with you.

The next facial/body language expression also uses your hand and includes a point.

It's the "Do I know you?" Point and Wave.

The next facial/body language expression is the "Call Me" Gesture.

Do this just for fun and to get a laugh out of her.

It's not a serious thing.

It's okay to be playful and joke around with women.

You can also add in a point if she reacts and starts to smile and laugh.

Once again, understand that you're only doing that to get a laugh.

Making her laugh creates a bit of a spark between you and her.

It makes her much more open to being approached by you, as long as you're only doing it in a playful manner.

You're not being serious about the gesture, you're just being playful.

The next facial/body language expression is The Enamored Look.

This is where you seem to be pleased to be looking at her.

You're essentially appreciating her beauty and you're showing her that you like how she looks.

Now remember, this is where a woman has been looking at you at least three times.

She seems to be staring at you and showing interest in you.

So, you're showing interest back in her.

Many women really like it when a man finds them that attractive and isn't being sleazy about it.

He's being subtle about it and showing her that he finds her very attractive, he's singling her out from the crowd, he's looking at her and he has a genuine attraction for her.

He's not just looking at every woman trying to get something.

He's looking at her and giving her an enamored look.

He's letting her see that he finds her attractive.

Another facial/body language expression is The Game On Expression.

This is where you see her looking at you and holding eye contact as a challenge and you do it in a playful way.

It's essentially you saying to her, "Alright, game on... let's see who looks away first," but you do it in a friendly way.

You smile and allow yourself and her to enjoy looking at each other for however long it lasts.

So, this is where you catch her looking at you and she is now holding eye contact.

Now, that might look a bit weird on camera, but when you and a woman having a moment and you're looking at each other and smiling, it's an enjoyable experience.

Additionally, when she notices that you have the confidence to maintain eye contact and the social intelligence to also add in a smile and be a bit charming, then she's going to feel attracted to in many ways at the same time.

She's going to be feeling attracted to your confidence, to your social intelligence to be able to create and handle a moment like that and your charm for being able to make her feel good while she's looking at you by adding in a smile.

Where a lot of guys go wrong is that when they make eye contact with a woman who has been looking at them, the guy will look away.

He'll think that he's doing something wrong by looking at her.

He'll feel like he's been busted.

He may also worry that if he shows too much interest by looking at her again, it might make him seem desperate.

Yet, she's looking at him repeatedly and she's giving him an opportunity to be able to create a spark between himself and her and then make something happen.

Additionally, where some other guys go wrong is that when they're making eye contact with a woman and trying to win the challenge of who's going to look away first, the guy is too serious about it and doesn't add in a smile.

He looks at her in a serious manner, which then makes the moment feel uncomfortable and weird for her.

If you want to create a spark of sexual attraction inside of her, then simply be a bit more charming about it by adding in a smile.

The final facial/body language expression that I want to show you is The Point and Smile.

This is where you point at a woman, smile and with your body language, you essentially communicate to her, "I caught you looking at me."

You can also add in a bit of a shake of the finger to make it a bit more playful and essentially say to her that she is doing something naughty, she's being naughty and so on.

Some women will react by smiling and essentially saying, "What? What did I do?" and they'll have a bit of a laugh about that.

Alternatively, a woman will just smile and she'll seem open to the interaction.

Then, you can walk over and use one of the following conversation starters that I'm about to provide.

"Hey, how are you?"

I've included that conversation starter because I want you to understand that you can still start the conversation in a normal easy-going manner.

It doesn't always have to be about what is going on between you and her with the body language expressions.

It can be and sometimes it is applicable to do that, but in other cases, if you just trust your gut instinct, sometimes it's better to just say, "Hey, how's it going?" or, "Hey, how are you?" and start the conversation.

Yet, as I said, sometimes it is applicable and it does help to talk about the fact that she was looking at you.

So, you can say something like this, "Hey, I noticed you staring at me a lot and I figured you'd probably be too shy to come over and say, hi. So, I thought I'd come over and say hi."

"Hey, I noticed that you were looking my way and thought you'd probably be a bit too shy to come over and say hi. So, I thought I'd come over and say, hi."

You can say anything along those lines and then introduce yourself by name and ask her name, then start to make her feel sparks of attraction for you by displaying personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women, such as you being confident, being charismatic, making her laugh and so on.

The next conversation starter is also about how she was looking at you.

"Okay, so you've got my attention with that funny look, you were giving me, so, I thought I'd have to come over and meet you, I'm Dan."

At that point she's most likely going to say something about the funny look and ask you, what sort of funny look was she giving you, or say that she wasn't giving you a funny look.

Then, you can continue the humor.

"Okay, it wasn't your funny look, it was your funny dress, ha, ha, just kidding. You look amazing in that dress. It was really you in this dress that got my attention. I had to come over and say hi."

At that point, that woman is going to feel attracted to your confidence, to your charm and the fact that you can make her laugh as you're talking to her.

There's going to be an instant spark between you and her.

From there, you can build on her sexual attraction for you, create an unforgettable connection with her and then get to a phone number, a kiss and have sex on the first night or get her phone number, send her a text, set up a date, kiss and have sex on the first date and then start a relationship.

As long as you go through the simple steps of The Flow and you use the techniques that I provide, everything will flow from one step to the next with a woman that you find attractive.

Most Women Will Be Friendly and Open if You Approach in an Easy-Going Manner

One final point that I want to make for you in this video is that most women out there react positively when a guy walks over in a confident, easy-going manner and starts a conversation.

When you know how to start conversations in that way and instantly begin to make women feel attracted to you and then increasingly attracted to you as they talk to you, women are so much easier to pick up.

They open up to the interaction, they want to contribute to the conversation, they want to get to know you and they want to take things to the next level.

Once you have that skill, you can then have your choice with women.

You don't have to accept whatever you can get and then get into a relationship with a woman that you're not even very attracted to.

Instead, you can select the ideal woman for you and have sex with her or if you want to, have a relationship with her as well.

So, the next time a woman that you find attractive is repeatedly looking at you, or seems to be kind of staring at you because she's interested in you, then do something about it.

Start an interaction with her and make something happen.

6 Reasons Why Some Beautiful Women Struggle to Get a Boyfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Many beautiful women have absolutely no problem finding themselves a boyfriend.

When a beautiful woman is in a relationship with a guy, she usually has a number of guys waiting in the background hoping that the relationship ends, so they can then get a chance with her.

So, some beautiful women have no problem finding themselves a boyfriend, but many beautiful women out there do struggle to find themselves a boyfriend.

How is that possible?

How can a beautiful woman not be able to get herself a boyfriend?

Here are 6 surprising reasons why...

1. It's easy for her to attract a man for sex, but not so easy to keep him in a relationship

If a woman is physically attractive, all she has to do is get on an app like Tinder, upload a selfie showing a bit of cleavage, or put some makeup on her face and make herself look pretty and she will get thousands of guys swiping right on her, hoping to be able to catch up with her, have sex with her and potentially have a relationship with her as well.

Yet, according to an American study of 3,852 people who use the app Tinder, only 4% of them are looking for a serious relationship via the app.

In other words, Tinder is mostly used for hookups and that tends to happen because of the superficial nature of the app.

A woman is selecting a guy based on his physical appearance, which isn't the best strategy for a woman to get herself a boyfriend.

If a woman selects a guy purely based on physical appearance, then she will most likely end up with a guy who isn't an emotional match for her.

Just because he's physically attractive to her, it doesn't mean that they are going to be an emotional match and that a relationship is going to work between them.

2. She either gets hit on by bad boys and players, or gets put on a pedestal by nice guys

Almost all women out there are looking for a confident good guy.

They're not actually looking for a bad guy.

Yet, what often happens is that the only guys who are ballsy enough to approach a beautiful woman and talk to her are the bad boys or players.

If she gets into a relationship with a bad boy or a player, sometimes it can work.

Sometimes she can tame the bad boy.

Sometimes she can stop the player from wanting to continue sleeping with other women.

Sometimes she can make the bad boy or the player fall in love with her and want to have a committed relationship.

Yet, in most cases she can't.

The player wants to keep playing and the bad boy doesn't really care about settling down and treating a woman right.

On the other end of the spectrum, she also gets pursued by really nice guys who idolize her and look up to her, or guys who put her on a pedestal and want to show her that they are willing to treat her like a princess in order to hopefully get a chance with her.

Sometimes a beautiful woman will decide to date a guy who is putting her on a pedestal and being really nice because she's sick of all the bad boys and the players.

Yet, that relationship isn't necessarily going to work either.

It can work if the guy is confident and he creates a relationship dynamic that causes her to want to impress him as well.

However, if the guy is insecure and wasn't able to get himself a girlfriend very easily, he will almost certainly start to become jealous, controlling and overprotective in the relationship.

He will see her as being more valuable than him and he will try to cling on to the woman who ended up giving him a chance because she was sick of bad boys and players.

As a result, the relationship doesn't work and she's back out there again trying to find herself a boyfriend.

3. Confident, good men rarely approach women that they find attractive

Most women out there want to find themselves a confident, good guy who will actually stick with them; a guy who is willing to have a relationship that lasts for life, a guy who's going to treat her well, but at the same time he's going to make her treat him well in return.

He's not going to be one of those super nice guys that does everything for her and hopes that she's going to stick with him based on that.

On the other end of the spectrum, he's not a jerk or an asshole who's going to treat her badly all the time and expect her to put up with it for life.

Instead, he's a confident, good guy who is going to treat her well, but at the same time, he is going to expect her to treat him well as well.

Yet, the problem for many beautiful women out there is that most good guys don't actually approach women.

They are either afraid to do it, they think that it's wrong, they think that they might be interrupting her or inconveniencing her and so on.

So, the good guy just looks at her, she looks at him, they might smile and he then walks away.

They part ways, never to see each other again.

4. Most good guys don't feel worthy of her

As you may have noticed, men and women react differently to each other's physical appearance.

A woman can walk through the world and men will look at her.

They will instantly feel attracted to her physical appearance and they will want something to happen between themselves and her simply based on her physical appearance.

What happens for a lot of guys out there, is that they confuse their instant physical attraction for women with her overall attractiveness and value in comparison to him.

A guy will look at a woman, instantly feel attracted to her and think, "Wow. She's really beautiful. She wouldn't like a guy like me. I'd have to be very rich or famous or I'd have to be really good looking and tall in order to get a woman like her."

Yet, what he doesn't understand is that unlike apps like Tinder where everything is based on physical appearance, in person, a man can attract a woman even though he's not her usual physical type.

This is why you'll often hear women say about their boyfriend or husband, "I wasn't initially attracted to him. He wasn't my type, but once we started talking, there was a spark between us, we fell in love and the rest is history."

Unfortunately, a lot of good guys out there don't realize that.

They don't realize that you don't actually have to be on the same level in terms of looks with a woman in order to attract her.

You can attract her in other ways as you talk to her.

For example: You can be confident, make her laugh, flirt with her and build on her attraction as you talk to her.

When you do that, she then starts looking at your physical appearance in a positive light.

She starts thinking, "There's something about this guy. I like him. He's cute. He's sexy. I don't normally go for guys like this, but there's something about him. I like him."

5. Most guys assume she already has a boyfriend

Depending on which study or survey results you look at, anywhere from 50% to 70% of relationships end within the first year.

That high percentage also includes relationships that don't even make it past one to two months.

In other words, anywhere from 50% to 70% of beautiful women come back onto the dating market as a single woman and they're out there looking for a boyfriend again.

Yet, what often happens is that when a man looks at a beautiful woman, he just assumes that she must have a boyfriend.

Over the years, a lot of guys have asked me, "How do I know if a woman has a boyfriend or not before I approach her? I don't want to approach any women who have a boyfriend."

Yet, you can't get that information if you don't actually walk over and say hello.

If you want to reduce the chances of approaching a beautiful woman who already has a boyfriend, then go to speed dating events where all the women are going to be single.

Next down the list would be bars and clubs, where most of the women there are going to be single.

There are going to be women there who have a boyfriend or husband and are just out socializing, meeting up with friends and so on, but many of the women there are going to be single.

Pretty much wherever you go to approach and meet women, there are going to be single women and there are going to be women who already have a boyfriend or husband.

So, if you want to get yourself a beautiful girlfriend, you can't be afraid of the reality that you live in where some of the women that you approach and talk to are going to be single and some are going to have a boyfriend.

You just have to accept that and approach and say hello.

Additionally, if you approach a woman who does have a boyfriend, they will rarely, if ever, react in a negative way.

Most women react in a positive way if you walk over in a confident, easygoing manner and just say, "Hey, how is it going? I thought to come over and say hi."

Most women react positively to that.

Yet, when guys go out there and try to use weird pickup lines or immediately say something sexual about the woman or whatever, then women are going to react in a negative way at times.

However, if you approach a woman in a confident, normal, easy-going manner, pretty much every woman that you talk to will respond in a positive way.

If you have the confidence to do that, then you will discover another surprising thing about beautiful women.

That is, there's hardly any competition from other guys.

Most guys just look.

They do not have the balls to walk over and talk to the beautiful woman.

So, when you are the guy who can be a normal, confident, good guy and make a woman feel attracted to you as you talk to her, you'll see how easy it is to get yourself a beautiful girlfriend, or hookup with beautiful women for sex and good times.

6. She seems unapproachable, but she isn't

Beautiful women are in a bit of a catch-22 situation.

Damned if you do, damned if you don't.

What I mean by that is if a beautiful woman makes herself seem very approachable, then she will tend to get approached by guys who aren't very confident and are only feeling confident because she's making it easy for them.

If she seems very unapproachable, then pretty much no guy will approach her.

So, what is she to do?

What many beautiful women do is that they accept that they have to seem a bit unapproachable, so they don't attract the wrong type of guys, but they secretly hope that a guy has the confidence to walk over, say hello and start a conversation, so she has an opportunity to meet a boyfriend or a potential lover.

The thing is, if a beautiful woman has had some experience with relationships, she will know that if she gets into a relationship with a guy who can only feel confident if she makes things easy for him, then he will almost certainly end up becoming jealous, controlling and overprotective in the relationship.

He will want to cling on to the woman that he got because she was making it easy for him.

So, what most beautiful women hope for is that they can meet a confident good guy who can remain confident no matter what she says or does to test his confidence during the interaction.

The thing is sometimes when you approach a beautiful woman, she will be friendly, open and easygoing instantly.

Yet, sometimes you will approach a beautiful woman who wants to make sure that she gets herself a truly confident boyfriend.

She just doesn't want to get into a relationship with a guy who's going to become insecure, jealous, clingy and controlling.

So, what you'll find is that when you approach beautiful women in a confident, easy-going manner, most of them will open up and be friendly right away, but some of them will want to test your confidence.

As long as you can understand what is going on, you don't have to become nervous about it.

You don't have to worry if she isn't jumping all over you during the first 30 seconds to a minute.

Just maintain your confidence with those type of women and what you'll see at some point during the conversation, whether that be after a minute, 5 minutes or 10 minutes, her guard will completely come down.

She will open up and show you her friendly, easygoing side that she doesn't show to other guys.

What happens with most beautiful women at that point, is that they feel excited that they've made a good guy who is truly confident; a good guy who remained confident and continued to talk to her in a confident, easy-going manner even though she wasn't making it very easy for him initially.

Additionally, as I said earlier, what you'll find when you are able to do that is that there's hardly any competition from other guys.

Most good guys who women actually want to be with don't approach women.

Most other guys are nice guys who are putting her on a pedestal, which she doesn't want either and the other guys are the bad boys and jerks who aren't really going to stick with her if they get into a relationship with her, or are going to end up ruining the relationship because they're not treating her well and she gets sick of it.

So, what you'll find is that when you have the confidence to walk over and talk to a beautiful woman and be normal, easy-going and make her feel attracted as you talk to her, you will see that many of the beautiful women you talk to feel attracted to you.

You can then select yourself a girlfriend that you want to settle down with, or you can continue to use your power of being able to attract women as you talk to them to enjoy your choice of women.

Learn More?

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn more about how to attract a woman as you talk to her and make her feel like you and her are a great emotional match, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

It includes my best conversation starters that are natural, normal and easy to use as well as techniques for keeping the conversation going and keeping it interesting.

It also includes my best attraction techniques for making a woman feel instantly attracted to you and increasingly attracted to you the more you talk to her.

The Flow includes my best techniques for getting a phone number, getting to a first kiss, having sex on the first night or alternatively, getting a phone number, texting her, then her getting on a phone call, setting up a date, kissing on the first date, having sex on the first date or you can wait till the second date or further if you want to and then start a relationship with her.

Fear of Beautiful Women

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that many beautiful women don't understand why men are so intimidated by them.

Yet, what happens for us men is that we feel instant attraction for a woman's physical appearance.

For many men out there, that physical attraction is enough for the man to want to pursue the woman and have sex with her or have a relationship with her.

As long as she's friendly and easy-going, the guy doesn't really care about anything else.

What does she study? What are her hobbies? What shoes does she wear? That stuff doesn't matter to the majority of men.

Most men feel an instant attraction to a woman's physical appearance and want something to happen based on that.

Yet, many men out there confuse that physical attraction with value and they start feeling unworthy of the beautiful woman because they notice that they are feeling so much attraction for her, but she's not feeling attraction in return.

It's not mutual.

So, the guy thinks that she is too good for him, but in most cases, she's not.

The reality is that you can actually make a beautiful woman feel attracted to you as you talk to her.

Yes, some beautiful women are picky and only want a rich, handsome man, but those women are the minority.

The vast majority of beautiful women out there are keen to find themselves a boyfriend who they feel an intense emotional attraction to.

You really can be that guy to so many beautiful women.

It's all about having the skill of being able to make a woman feel attracted to you as you talk to her. When you have that skill, you unlock the fun of having your choice with women. You can then have access to many different types of beautiful women and if you're ready, you can select the ideal woman for you, settle down and enjoy a relationship with her.

7 Reasons Why Women Flake on Dates

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

So, why do women flake on men?

In other words, why do women pull out of dates that they agreed to go to?

Is it because women are unreliable, they're impossible, dating is destroyed these days, you can't get a woman out on a date, it's all too difficult?

No.

The reality is that both men and women pull out of dates.

Additionally, men and women have been pulling out of dates ever since dating began.

It's not a new thing.

Yet, why does it happen?

Why does a woman agree to go on a date with you and then not arrive at that date?

She pulls out on the date at the last minute and you're then left thinking, "What is going on? Does this girl liked me or not?"

In this video, I'm going to explain 7 reasons why women flake on men or pull out of dates and more importantly, how you can avoid that happening to you so the next time you meet a really attractive woman that you wanna have sex with or have a relationship with, she is eager to attend the date.

She arrives at the date and you can then build on her attraction, get to a kiss, have sex and start a relationship if you want that as well.

The first common reason why a woman will flake on a date is that...

1. She just wants casual sex, but she can see that the guy wants a serious relationship with her

Many of the single women you meet will want a serious relationship.

That's what they're aiming for.

Yet, you will also meet single women who just want to have casual sex.

Sometimes that happens because a woman is busy with her studies or she's busy with her career.

Alternatively, she has just gotten out of a relationship with a guy who was very jealous, clingy, controlling and overprotective.

She now just wants to enjoy her freedom, have a bit of fun and doesn't want to get into anything serious at the moment.

Now, that doesn't mean that a guy can't get a woman like her into a serious relationship.

He can.

However, if he meets a woman like her, he needs to make sure that he's not giving her serious relationship vibes before they've had sex and she has started to fall in love with him.

The thing is, if you make a woman feel very attracted to you and connected with you when you meet her and go on a date and you then have sex and she really likes you and starts to feel sparks of love for you, she will naturally start to open up to the idea of having a relationship with you.

However, if she's the sort of woman who is very busy with her studies, or career, or she has just gotten out of an abusive or controlling relationship, she's not initially going to be looking to get into a serious relationship.

She will usually only open up to that if the guy has sex with her and starts making her fall in love with him.

If you have a lot of experience with women, you can tell the subtle differences and you can sense when a woman doesn't really want to have a relationship, but if you don't have that experience or you don't want to spend a lot of time building up that experience, just go by this simple rule.

If you're not sure whether or not a woman wants a relationship or not, just get to kissing and sex first.

After you've kissed a woman, things change and it starts to become more sexual.

After you've had sex with a woman, things start to become more intimate.

You and her open up to the potential of continuing to have sex with each other or start a relationship.

Another reason why a woman will flake on a guy is that...

2. She is playing hard-to-get because she fears that he might be too good for her

There are some confident women out there who know that they are attractive, but for the most part, most women aren't actually very confident about their physical appearance.

If a woman has had some experience with relationships and she's been able to initially attract men for sex, but hasn't been able to keep them in a relationship, she will start to doubt her value as a woman.

She'll start to doubt her attractiveness.

She'll start to think that guys don't really remain interested in her because she's not that attractive and appealing.

So, what a woman like that will often do is play hard to get initially.

She'll try to make the guy really like her and really want to be with her, so he ends up feeling lucky to be able to get a chance with her.

He ends up really appreciating getting her into a relationship.

It's a strategy for her to hopefully secure herself a guy that will actually stick with her.

Now, a lot of guys out there don't know that, so when they try to get a woman out on a date and she is playing a bit hard to get or flaking on a date, the guy will usually doubt himself and think that it's all over.

He's stuffed up, there's no way that he is going to be able to get this woman on a date, have sex with her, or have a relationship with her.

He may then begin to think things like, "Maybe I'm not good looking enough for her," or "Maybe she has realized that I'm not good enough for her overall and that's why she doesn't want to come to the date."

Reason number 3...

3. The guy set up a date via text

The thing is, you can set up dates via text.

However, the flake rate is so much higher.

When a woman has only received texts from a guy that she gave her number to, it's not as real as if he were to text her and then get her on a phone call, make her laugh, make her feel attracted to him again and make her remember that they get along and that they have a connection.

They're able to talk to each other and feel good and if she were to go on a date, she would most likely be able to talk to him, feel good and get along.

Yet, if a woman is just getting texts from a guy, sometimes she'll start to doubt that the date would be comfortable.

Additionally, sometimes she'll start to think, "Does this guy really like me? He's only texting me. Is he just going to keep texting me and texting me? Has He got other girls that he's interested in? Is he just keeping me on the side and keeping me warm because he doesn't have time to catch up with me for a date? Does he actually like me? Am I wasting my time texting back and forth with him? Should I be focusing on a new guy and trying to get myself an actual date, so I can get an actual boyfriend or actually have some sex?"

Some women don't mind if everything is done via text.

Yet, if you want to have the highest success rate and make sure that women want to attend the dates that you set up, then it's best to get the woman on a phone call to arrange the date.

It's fine to text back and forth with her initially after you get her phone number, but make sure that at some point, you get her on a phone call, make her laugh, make her feel attracted to you, make her remember that you and her really do have a great connection and make her realize that if she were to go on a date with you, she would almost certainly feel good.

Let her realize that things wouldn't be awkward between you and her because you and her can chat and get along easily on a phone call.

Reason number 4...

4. She wasn't really attracted to him and just gave out her phone number to end the interaction politely

If a woman isn't very attracted to a guy, she will usually say no if he asks for her phone number.

However, sometimes a woman doesn't like confrontation or she is shy, doesn't really have a lot of confidence in herself and doesn't want to have to deal with a guy asking her questions like, "Why? Why won't you give me your number? Come on, just give me your number" and so on.

So, with women like that, they will often give out their number just to end the interaction politely, even though they don't really have any intention of going on a date with that guy.

If you want to avoid that happening to you, then make sure that you approach your interactions with women in a way that makes the woman feel like she wants to impress you.

Don't approach interactions with women where you're trying to put on a show and live up to all of her expectations.

If you feel like all the pressure is on you when you're interacting with a woman and you're trying to live up to all of her expectations, then women who are looking for a boyfriend who is more of a challenge won't feel attracted to you.

Women like that are usually the pretty, beautiful women.

They want to find themselves a guy who doesn't look up to them and think, "Wow, you're so beautiful. I would do anything to be with you."

Most pretty, beautiful women want to be with a guy who feels like he's good enough for them, or even better, feels like he's more than good enough for them.

So, when you're interacting with a pretty, beautiful woman, don't feel like all the pressure is on you.

Sure, joke around with her and make her laugh, flirt with her and so on, but also make sure that you let her see that you're not completely impressed by everything that she is saying or doing.

If she says or does something that you don't like or that you're not impressed by, then have the confidence to playfully lose interest in her about that.

Show her that you're not sucking up to her.

Show her that you're not one of those guys who are on his best behavior all the time.

For example: She says or does something that you don't really like, or you're not impressed by and then you say something like this:

1. Really? I was impressed by you up until that point. You disappoint me, girl. I thought you were cool up until that point, but now that you've said you're like that, well, not so cool anymore. You used to be cool in my eyes, but now...uncool.
2. Really? Who likes that? Only weird girls like stuff like that. You're a weirdo. Here I was thinking that you were cool and then you go and say that you like that. Not cool, girl. Not cool.

Of course, when you say that, you're only being playful.

You're not being serious about saying that she's a weirdo or that she's not cool, you're just playfully pushing her away.

That there is an example of being more of a challenge for a woman.

You're not one of those guys who feels like he has to be on his best behavior around an attractive woman.

You're not one of those guys who feels like he has to say and do everything perfectly and can't say anything that she might not like, otherwise she's not going to like him.

No.

You believe in yourself.

You know that you're good enough and you're able to playfully push her away during your conversation at times.

Don't go overboard with it though.

Just add it in, at times.

Let her see that you are a bit of a challenge.

You're not like pretty much every other guy who meets her, immediately falls in love with her and is on his best behavior hoping to get a chance with her.

Number 5...

5. She is seeing someone else and doesn't have time to start dating a new guy

Depending on which study you look at, anywhere from 50% to 70% of relationships break up within the first year.

As a result, pretty, beautiful women are becoming single again and back on the market.

Yet, sometimes, you'll meet a pretty girl who is currently dating another guy.

She's not serious about him, but is casually seeing him.

If you meet her, make her feel attracted and get her number, she may be intending to catch up with you for a date and start dating you instead.

Yet, if her life starts to get busy, if she starts to get serious with the new guy or if she starts to doubt whether she wants to have two guys on the go or not, then she may flake on the date.

So, how can you avoid a woman like that flaking on a date with you?

Well, one of the ways to do it is to be a bit more of a challenge, so she is excited about meeting up with you and you are more attractive and appealing to her in comparison to the guy that she has been dating.

Another thing that you can do is just accept her flaking on the date in that moment and say, "Cool, maybe we'll catch up another time then."

Then, go ahead and start dating and having sex with other women and text her in about a month.

Send out a text like, "Hey, how you doing?" or bring up some private humor that you and her shared when you first met.

That may be a joke that you and her shared, it might be a funny name that you called her or she called you, or it might be something funny that happened when you and her met.

Bring something like that up so she can laugh and remember how she felt about you.

Then, if you get a text back, don't keep texting back and forth for days or weeks.

If you get a text back, send her a couple of texts back and forth and then get her on a phone call.

Make her laugh.

Make her remember the connection that you and her shared and then set up a date.

Another common reason why a woman will flake on a date is that...

6. The guy kept chasing her even though she wasn't showing any interest in him

A guy can run into this problem if he's texting a woman, if he's talking to her on the phone, or if he's talking to her in person.

Talking to a woman on the phone isn't the thing that makes her want to go out on a date with a guy.

Instead, when a guy talks to a woman on the phone or in person, he needs to make sure that he is making her feel sparks of sexual attraction for him rather than just talking to her in a friendly way and hoping that he will grow on her over time.

So, what often happens in cases like these, is that the guy is completely in love with the woman.

He goes to bed at night imagining himself and her being in a relationship together.

They kiss, they have sex, she says that she loves him and then they remain happy together forever.

Yet, from her side, she's not feeling sexually attracted to him.

She's just feeling friendly emotions towards him.

As a result, she's not falling in love with him romantically.

She's not having the same type of sexual urges that cause her to go to bed at night, imagining them being together.

Instead, she just sees him as a friend.

Yet, he sees her as the love of his life.

He wants to get her out on a date.

He's totally into her, but it's one-sided.

The feelings aren't mutual.

So, to avoid that happening to you, just make sure that you don't talk to a woman in a neutral, friendly way and hope that she wants you sexually and romantically.

If you want a woman to want you sexually and romantically, you have to say and do things during interactions that cause her to feel sparks of sexual attraction for you.

One of many techniques that I can teach you is being more of a challenge.

That's not the only way to do it, but it's one of many ways to do it.

There are so many ways that you can make a woman feel sexually attracted to you as you talk to her.

Finally, reason number 7...

2. She wants to see how you handle it

For example:

- Do you lose confidence in yourself?
- Do you start desperately chasing her?
- Do you see it as an opportunity to make her feel attracted by calling her up and playfully teasing her for flaking on you?
- Do you go cold and never speak to her again?
- Do you get angry at her?

Not all women will test a guy by flaking on him and seeing how he will handle it.

However, there are some women out there who have been in relationships with guys who are very controlling.

There are some women out there who have been in relationships with guys who are very insecure and can only feel confident if the woman is being really nice and accommodating and basically doing whatever he wants.

The moment she starts playing a bit hard to get or being a bit difficult, the guy loses confidence and becomes an insecure mess.

So, women like that will often test a guy's emotional reaction before actually going out on a date with him.

Additionally, some women want to test a guy's interest level because they're looking for a guy who honestly wants a committed relationship.

He really likes her and he is sincerely interested in her.

So, if she says that she can't make it to a date, he's going to say something like, "Cool, let's catch up another time then."

At that point, the woman will usually then arrange another time and date with a guy, but if he doesn't get that sense from her or if she doesn't say anything about it, he can just end the phone call and call her another time.

He can wait for a week and give her a call.

If she doesn't answer his phone call, he can send her a text and they can text back and forth for a little bit and then he can get her on a phone call, make her laugh, get the attraction going again and set up a date.

Now, of course, not every woman flakes on dates.

Most women go to the date that they agreed to go to because they're looking to have some sex, to get into a new relationship and potentially, find their future husband or at least a boyfriend that they're going to stay with for many years or for the rest of their life.

So, don't be discouraged about dating and start thinking that it's all too difficult.

Most women will arrive at a date with you.

If you make a woman feel a lot of attraction for you and you're not trying to hide behind texts, then pretty much every woman that you set up a date with will arrive at that date.

You can then go on to enjoy all the fun stuff that happens after that (i.e. all the kissing, all the sex, all the love, all the companionship and so on).

5 Reasons Why Picking Up Women is Like Playing a Video Game

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Picking up women is a lot like playing a video game.

In this video, I'm going to explain five reasons why picking up women is a lot like playing a video game and more importantly, how you can use that knowledge to your advantage to enjoy easier success with women from now on.

Let's begin with number 1.

The first reason why picking up women is like playing a video game is that...

1. You overcome obstacles to complete the mission or get what you want

When you're playing a video game, you'll see that there are things in your way, obstacles that are preventing you from getting what you want or completing the mission.

The same applies with picking up women.

When you're interacting with a woman and you want to pick her up, she will usually put obstacles in front of you and see if you can overcome them to complete the mission.

For example: You'll be talking to a woman and she will like you, but she will test your confidence by pretending to lose interest in the conversation.

She'll want to see whether you start panicking and losing confidence in yourself.

Will you start to doubt that you are good enough for her?

Will you start to become nervous or will you maintain your confidence and continue interacting with her, making her laugh and building on her attraction for you?

Once you pass an obstacle like that and you see that you can pass an obstacle like that and get to the next level with a woman, whether that be a phone number, kiss, sex, date, relationship and so on, then you start to realize that the game isn't difficult to play.

You just need to understand how to overcome the obstacles that women put up.

The thing is, sometimes a woman will put up an obstacle because she is insecure about her attractiveness to you.

Sometimes a woman feels like you might just want to have sex with her for a while and then dump her, or have sex with her for one night and then dump her, so she will pretend to lose interest in the conversation to see how interested you really are.

Are you going to continue talking to her now that she isn't showing a lot of interest in the conversation?

Do you have a real interest in her?

Pretending to lose interest in the conversation to test you is one of the obstacles that women sometimes put up.

Once you understand what the obstacles are and how to pass them, the game is easy to play and you can continue onto the next level.

2. Your powers and abilities increase as you play the game

Sometimes a guy will try his luck with the girl that he finds attractive.

He will ask her out or he will try to hit on her and it won't work.

He may then walk away and think, "Well, I'm not good enough for that type of woman. I can't get an attractive woman like her. I'm going to have to accept a less attractive woman."

Yet, in most cases, the reason why he didn't get that woman is that he didn't have the ability to make her feel attracted as he was talking to her.

Instead, he just talked to her in a friendly, neutral way and hope that she would like him as a person enough to want to be his girlfriend or go out on a date with him.

He didn't understand that he needs to create a spark of sexual attraction inside of the woman by displaying certain personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women such as being confident around her, making her laugh, flirting with her, being emotionally masculine, playfully teasing her during a conversation and so on.

So, if a guy has gotten rejected by a woman, what he needs to understand is that as a man, your powers and abilities increase as you play the game, so to speak.

As you interact with women and test out attraction techniques during a conversation and see that they work, your power and control over the situation begins to improve.

You realize that you can make women feel attracted to you as you talk to them and the more you do it, the better you get at it.

You're able to make women feel more and more attraction for you, which then allows you to access higher quality women.

3. Using special moves or techniques makes the game easier to play

The thing is, sometimes you'll meet a woman and you won't have to do anything and you'll be able to pick her up.

It'll just be so damn easy.

Yet, that's called getting lucky.

In pretty much every other case where you meet a woman that you find attractive, you need to know what you're doing so you can actually pull off the pickup.

In other words, so you can complete the mission and get what you want.

So, a special move or technique that you can use when you're interacting with an attractive woman who isn't making it easy for you is to make her feel attracted to you and then don't give her relationship vibes.

Don't start chasing and hoping that you're going to be able to get a chance with her.

Instead, playfully push her away.

For example: She says something that you don't like, or she says that she likes something that you don't like or she says that she doesn't like something that you like and so on.

You then playfully push her away as a result of her showing that to you.

You playfully say something like, "Really? I liked you up until that point. I thought you were cool" or, "Really? I thought you were cool up until that point. You disappoint me girl."

Having the confidence to playfully push a woman away like that during a conversation, when she is feeling attracted to you, makes her feel more and more drawn to you.

She feels excited about the fact that you have the confidence to playfully mess with her like that and make her feel a bit girly in comparison to your masculine approach to the interaction.

Additionally, you have the confidence to put a bit of pressure on her.

You're not like other guys who think that all the pressure is on them.

You're not like other guys who think that they've got to try to live up to all of her expectations.

They've got to be on their best behavior around her and then they'll be able to get a chance with her. No.

You are a guy who can easily make women feel attracted to you as you talk to them.

You can create sparks of attraction inside of a woman and make her want you.

You know that the woman you're interacting with is feeling attracted to you, so you don't have to suck up to her and try to pass all of her tests to hopefully get a chance with her.

Instead, you can use special moves or techniques to give yourself the power in the interaction.

You can be the selector.

It can be about you allowing her to have a chance with you, rather than you hoping to get a chance with her by passing all of her tests and living up to all of her expectations.

4. Once you know how to pass a level, it's usually pretty easy for you

Women aren't computer game characters, so they don't all behave in the same way.

Yet, many women behave in very similar ways.

There are patterns.

It's fairly predictable how a woman is going to react.

For example: If you're being confident when you're talking to her and you start flirting with her and making her laugh, she's usually going to open up and start flirting back with you.

She's usually going to like you and you can then start to use special moves to make her try to pick you up.

It's usually pretty predictable.

However, sometimes you meet a woman who is a little bit harder to get and you need to be able to use other techniques to complete the mission and then get what you want, whether that be sex or a relationship with her.

What you'll find though, is that just like playing a game when you've passed the level before and you go back and play it, you know what to do.

You know how to get through the level.

You know what moves to use and it's pretty easy for you.

The same thing applies with women.

In most cases, when you meet women, it's a very simple, easy thing to do.

You've passed those levels before.

You know what obstacles to overcome.

You know how to get to the next level with a woman.

You know how to get to a phone number, how to get to a kiss, how to get to a date, how to get to sex and so on.

Yet, when a guy doesn't know what you know, attracting and dating women will seem very difficult for him.

He will struggle to understand why a woman will suddenly lose interest even though she was interested in him.

All he did was start to show interest in a relationship and then she started to lose interest in him.

He usually won't understand what has happened and in most cases, he'll just assume that he's not good looking enough.

Yet, if you're one of the guys who have used my attraction techniques before, you will know that getting to the next level with a woman is very easy.

Once you know how to pass a certain level with a woman, it's pretty much the same thing every time.

You can walk up to her and make her feel attracted to you, get to a kiss or a phone number or you can have sex on the first night, first date or second date.

You simply go through the steps, get the result that you want and then you enjoy the great times ahead.

5. If all else fails, you can just get a hooker

I just thought I'd throw this one in for fun.

It's a reference to GTA (Grand Theft Auto).

In that game, as you would most likely know, you can get a hooker.

Just give her some money, do the deed and off you go.

Yet, in all seriousness though, I don't mind admitting that in the past when I didn't know how to attract women, I ended up going to a hooker or two.

The thing is, it was a pretty empty experience and I knew back then that I deserved better than that.

I saw other guys being able to have pretty girlfriends and there I was all on my own and I couldn't pick up attractive women.

I couldn't have my choice of women.

Women just didn't find me attractive.

If you know about my story, you will know that I then decided to figure this area of life out.

I wanted to figure out how to attract women, so I could then have my choice of women rather than ending up accepting a woman that I wasn't even attracted to.

So, I decided to go out and approach women every weekend until I figured it out.

Initially, I got rejected as usual because I didn't know how to make women feel attracted to me as I talked to them.

Yet, once I've figured that out, everything changed.

I was able to instantly make women feel attracted to me as I talked to them.

I was able to get to a kiss, have sex on the first night, set up dates and have many women in my life at once.

I enjoyed my choice of women for over 10 years.

Then, I met my perfect girl when I was 35 and she was 20.

We settled down, got into a relationship and have been together ever since.

Personally, I'm glad that I decided that day to figure out how to attract women or to play the game, so to speak.

What I've found is that in most cases, most women only require 1 to 2 minutes of conversation with you where you're making them feel attracted and then you unlock the next level.

They are open to connecting with you and going to the next level.

Sometimes you'll talk to a woman and she'll be totally into you within a few minutes.

Sometimes it'll take 10 minutes, sometimes it will take 15, but that doesn't matter.

What matters the most is that you get the result.

You're able to complete the mission and get what you want, whether that be to have sex with women or have a relationship with a woman of your choosing.

Learn More?

Okay, I hope you've enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn more about how to make the game of picking up women so much easier for you, then I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

You will learn how to start conversations, how to keep conversations going and keep them interesting, how to immediately make women feel attracted to you so they want to contribute to the conversation, how to create an unforgettable connection with a woman, how to get to a phone number or a date and sex, or how to get to a kiss and sex on the first night.

You can use The Flow to get laid or get a girlfriend.

The choice is yours.

All you have to do is follow the simple steps and it works.

All the Cool, Fun Stuff Happens After You Take Action

One final point that I want to make for you in this video ,is that just like playing a video game, all the really cool fun stuff happens as you continue through the game, as you unlock new levels.

The same thing applies with women.

If you just look on at women and you don't do anything about it, then you don't get to enjoy all the fun stuff.

You don't get to enjoy all the kissing, all the sex, all the love, the companionship and so on.

So, if you haven't been getting the results that you want with women, I recommend that you start looking at the process of picking up women as like playing a video game.

Instead of taking it so personally and thinking that you're a failure because you make a mistake, just understand that it's like playing a game.

If you make a mistake, you can go back and start again and you might do that with another woman, or you might do it with a woman that you've made a bad first impression on.

Some women don't want to give a guy another chance to play the level with her again, but in most cases, most women allow a guy to replay the level, especially if the woman had some initial interest in him.

If he has the confidence to not start doubting himself around her now because he made a mistake and instead, believe in himself and start making her feel the type of attraction that will make her feel motivated to want to be with him, then he is going to be able to get her.

He's going to be able to complete the mission and take things to the next level.

3 Rhymed Rules For Success With Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

They say that rhymes help people learn things better, so in this video I'm going to give you 3 rhymed rules for success with women.

Let's begin with number 1...

1. If you're not a girl's usual type, don't try to get her on the swipe

When I was coming up with these rhymes, I saw this one and I thought, "Man, I could probably have a bit of fun here and rap this out."

Even though I can't rap, I've never rapped and white boys can't rap and all that sort of stuff, I thought, "Why not put a track behind this rhyme and rap it out just for fun?"

If it helps you remember the more serious lesson that I'll give you after this bit of fun, then I've done my job.

I've got to help you succeed with women and that's it, so let's do this.

Bacon D is in the house.

If you're not a usual girl's type, don't try to get her on the swipe.

If you're not a girl usual type don't try to get her on the swipe, man.

Swipe that ass.

Swipe that ass.

Swipe that ass.

Swipe that ass.

Swipe that ass.

Swipe that ass.

Swipe that ass.

Swipe that ass.

Bacon B is in the house house, mother[bleep].

I probably looked like a bit of an idiot doing that right there, but hey, I don't care as long as it helps you remember what I'm about to share and that is about Tinder.

If a girl is pretty and she's on an app like Tinder, then pretty much every guy is trying to match up with her.

Pretty much every guy who sees her photo will swipe right on it and try to get a match with her.

This results in her having thousands of guys to choose from and as a result, she wants to choose a guy who is her usual type or is the type of guy that she couldn't even get if she was meeting him in person.

So, she is in the position of power because she has thousands of guys offering themselves to her and she can go through the app and just be like, “No, no, no, no, no, no, no, yep.”

She has all the power and as a result, she can choose who she wants.

Yet, if you want to have the power as a man and be able to attract and pick up women of your choosing, you need to be able to talk to the woman in person and make her feel attracted to you.

You and her having a conversation, she is feeling sparks of attraction and it’s not about you versus thousands of other guys on an app.

It’s about you and her in that moment.

Now on the topic of a woman’s usual type, what you have to understand is that a woman’s type can change based on who she sleeps with and gets into a relationship with.

For example: You may have heard some women say about their boyfriend or husband, “When I first saw him, I wasn’t attracted to him. He wasn’t my type, but when we started talking there was a spark between us. We fell in love and the rest is history.”

What she is saying there is that she wasn’t initially sexually attracted to how he looked.

He wasn’t her physical type.

He wasn’t the type of guy that she thought she would be interested in, but he spoke to her.

He made her feel attracted as he was talking to her and they got into her relationship and are now happy.

An interesting thing to point out, is that when a woman falls in love with a guy who wasn’t her usual type and wasn’t the type of guy that she thought she was looking for, she then sees him as her type.

If she is madly in love with him, he becomes her type.

She now really likes that type of guy because she is in love with him.

She may then say something like, “I dated the wrong guys in the past. I used to be attracted to this type of guy or that type of guy, then I met this man, we’re in love and he is the perfect man for me. I just wish I had met him earlier. This is the type of man I’ve always wanted.”

So, what you need to understand is that if you’re not a woman’s usual physical type, it doesn’t mean that you are absolutely excluded and you cannot attract and pick her up.

Don’t get me wrong though.

It’s not possible for a guy who isn’t good-looking to pick up any woman in the world, but what is possible is that you can literally make women feel attracted to you as you talk to them and as a result, they will actually start to look at your physical appearance in a positive light.

When a woman is feeling attracted to a guy, she can then start to think things like, “I don’t usually go for bald guys, but I like this guy. There’s something about him” and “I don’t usually go for guys who look like this, but there’s something about this guy. He’s sexy, he’s cute, I like him.”

Now, try to achieve that on something like Tinder, when a woman is just judging guys based on a photo.

She’s saying, “No, no, no, no, no” as she swipes away.

Then, she sees a guy that is her usual type or her ideal type and she swipes right on that.

She has all the power because there are thousands of guys lining up to get a chance with her, but if you talk to her in person it’s just you and her.

You can make her feel attracted to you as you talk to her and as a result, she will look at your physical appearance in a positive light.

She will start looking at you and thinking, “There’s something about this guy. I like him. He’s cute. He’s sexy.”

You can then build on her attraction for you, connect with her and get a phone number or kiss her on the first night, set up a date, have sex with her and so on.

You can attract women of your choosing, rather than hoping to be selected when being compared to thousands of other guys on an app.

2. If you fear her reaction, she won’t feel attraction

[Dan pretends to rap, just for fun] “If you fear her reaction...”

Just kidding, I’m not going to rap on this one, but hey, if you fear a woman’s reaction, she’s not going to feel attraction for you because women don’t feel attraction to fear in a man.

When a man is afraid around a woman and he is intimidated by her and worried about saying or doing things around her, then it’s an absolute turn-off.

Women want to be with a guy who doesn’t fear them.

So, whether you are picking up women or in a relationship, you have to understand that if you’re interacting with a woman and you fear what her reaction is going to be if you behave in a confident way or say something confident, or do something that is going to make her feel attracted or make her laugh, then she’s going to feel turned off by you because she’s not going to be attracted to your fear. She’s not going to be attracted to the fact that you are intimidated by her.

Now, you don’t need to go to the extreme and try to show women that you’re not intimidated by being really aggressive and being a bit of a jerk or whatever.

You don’t have to do that.

You just need to have relaxed confidence around a woman.

You need to be comfortable being a man and not being afraid to joke around with her.

If you’re in a relationship, it’s about not being afraid to make a move on your woman and make her feel attracted to you by being masculine in the moment.

Don’t hesitate and worry about what she might think if you say or do something.

Additionally, if you’re out there picking up women, don’t be afraid to just say something that your instinct is telling you to say.

Don’t be that guy who goes home after talking with a woman and then thinks, “Ah, why didn’t I just say that? I knew that I could have said something like that, but I didn’t say it.”

Just say it.

Have the balls to say whatever you want to say when you’re interacting with a woman, while still being a good guy.

As I said, it’s not about being an aggressive jerk or anything like that, but say what you want to say.

Be your real, honest self in that moment.

If you think about when you’re interacting with women that you’re not attracted to, you’ll most likely realize that you’re able to be your real cool self when you’re interacting with them because you’re not so worried about what they think.

Yet, when you're interacting with a woman that you really like and you really see as attractive and you really want to be with, suddenly you most likely start to change.

You start to censor what you're saying.

You start to be a bit more hesitant.

You start to worry about the consequences of saying or doing something.

You start worrying that she might not like you if you say or do this.

That's not the right way to go about it, especially with attractive women.

Unattractive women are okay with that because they like guys who aren't that confident, but attractive women want to be with a guy who feels like he's good enough for her, or ideally, feels like he's more than good enough for her.

One of the ways to show that to an attractive woman, is to say whatever you want to say while still being a good guy.

Do whatever you want to do while still being a good guy.

She will then be able to respect you as a result of that and she will feel sexually attracted to your confidence.

3. If you see a girl you like, you know the time is right

For the single guys watching this video who want to get laid or get a girlfriend, how often do you see women that you find attractive and you really want to go over and say hello but you just don't do it?

You worry that she might not want to talk to you.

You worry that you might not know what to say to keep the conversation going and keep it interesting.

You might worry that you're not good-looking enough for her or something like that.

The thing is in life, all the good stuff happens when you take action.

When you're sitting back on the sidelines and just watching on, looking at women, you're going out to parties and just looking at them, you end up going home and jerking off.

You end up going home and you're on your own, while everyone else is enjoying sex and relationships.

If you want to enjoy your life as a man, just know that it's okay to walk over and say hello to a woman.

There's nothing wrong with walking over and saying, "Hey, how's it going? Thought I'd come over and say hi."

Women don't kill you for that.

They don't stand there, put up their fists ready to fight and say, "Alright, let's go."

They don't slap you, they don't scream, they don't run away when a normal, confident, cool guy walks over and says, "Hey, how's it going? I thought I'd come over and say hi" and then continues the conversation.

When you approach it that way, a woman naturally feels attracted to the fact that you can be confident and normal when talking to her.

If you can approach women with relaxed confidence and immediately start to make her want to contribute to the conversation and ask you questions, then you're not going to have a thing to worry about.

You're going to be able to talk to women of your choosing, make them feel attracted to you as you talk to them and then go on to enjoy all the stuff that happens after that.

All the kissing, all the sex, all the love, all the companionship.

Now of course, sometimes you'll walk over to a woman and she'll already have a boyfriend.

Yet, not every pretty woman in the world already has a boyfriend.

If they did, then no new guys would be able to get themselves a pretty girlfriend.

All the women are just taken, there's nothing left, alright. That's it. No more women. No more guys can get a pretty girl. It's all over. Stop, just finish, everyone go home.

That's not the reality that you live in.

The reality that you live in is that some pretty women are in relationships and some are single.

Many of those pretty women have what I call an Open Type, which means that she's open to being with all different types of guys as long as the guy can make her feel attracted as he talks to her.

If a guy can talk to her, make her laugh and make her want to contribute to the conversation and find out more about him, then he is going to be able to attract women of his choosing.

Now of course, it's not possible for a guy to pick up every woman in the world, but what really is possible is that you could make pretty attractive women feel attracted to you as you talk to them.

You can literally make a woman feel sparks of attraction as you're talking to her and then build on that attraction and get to the next level with her.

So, to recap on the 3 rules that I've given you in this video...

If a woman is very pretty and you're not necessarily going to be her usual type, then don't try to get her on the swipe.

Get her by talking to her in person. Make her feel attracted to you in person.

Next, don't fear a woman's reaction to what you're going to say or do.

If you do that, she will see it in your body language, she'll sense it in how you're talking and it will make her feel turned off.

Women are not attracted to the fear of a man.

Finally, number 3.

If you see a girl you like, you know the time is right.

When you see a girl that you like, there's no better time than right then to walk up and say hello to her.

Walk up and open a potential opportunity for you and her to become a couple.

Who knows? You and her might get into a relationship, settle down and start a family.

Who knows? You and her might hook up that day or night and have amazing sex for a month or so and then go your separate ways.

Who knows? She may become one of the many women that you're sleeping with at once. You may have a number of women on the go.

Yet, if you just continue to let opportunities slip through your fingers with the types of women that you really want, then you may end up with a woman that isn't your ideal type.

You may end up accepting a woman that you're not that attracted to.

So, if you see a girl that you like, just tell yourself the time is right.

Walk over and say hello to her.

Make her feel attracted to you and then take things to the next level.

Essential Dating Advice For Men: 4 Things Every Man Should Know About Dating Women

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a man isn't aware of what I'm going to share with you in this video, attracting and dating women will feel frustrating and difficult for him.

He will interact with a woman who likes him, but she will then lose interest in him because he's not aware of what you're about to learn in this video.

So, to make attracting and dating women easier for you from now on, be aware of the following four things...

1. Know that women really do want sex, love and relationships too

In many cases, when a man meets a woman that he finds attractive, he will want to let her know about that right away by his body language, the way that he's talking to her and he may even tell her that he likes her.

Additionally, he might even ask her if she's looking for a boyfriend right now, or what she looks for in a man and so on.

On the other hand, in many cases, even if a woman likes a guy, she won't always make it obvious that she likes him in a sexual and romantic way.

Why is that?

Is it because women are crazy?

Is that what it is?

They're nuts?

No.

There are legitimate reasons for it.

Yes, there are some women out there who are nuts, but for the most part, most women have legitimate reasons for not showing really obvious interest in a guy even if they like him in a sexual and romantic way.

Why is that?

Why do they do it?

Well, some of the reasons why a woman will do it is that she doesn't want to seem too easy to a guy. She doesn't want to seem like she's an easy target that could easily be picked up by another guy. She wants to show a guy that she can control herself and that she isn't an easy girl to sleep with, or get into a relationship with.

Alternatively, another reason why women do it is to test a man's confidence.

A woman will want to see if a man can maintain his confidence around her even though she's not making it obvious that she likes him and wants to be with him.

Is he going to start doubting himself, or is he going to maintain his confidence and know that he's good enough for her?

Another reason why a woman won't show obvious interest in liking a guy romantically or sexually, is that she'll want to find out how interested in her he actually is.

Many guys like to get women to feel attracted to them and then they don't do anything about it.

Alternatively, some guys like to get a woman attracted to them, sleep with her and then be done with her.

So, if she has experienced guys making her feel attracted before and not doing anything about it, she will be a bit cautious about showing her feelings for the guy and her interest in the guy.

Additionally, if she doesn't want to just sleep with a guy and she's actually looking for a relationship, then she's going to keep her guard up around a guy who just wants to have sex with her and then be done with her.

Now, the thing is, sometimes you'll meet a woman and you will feel attracted to her, she will feel attracted to you and both you and her will make it really obvious that you like each other.

Then you'll start kissing.

You may go on a date, or have sex on the first night or sex on the first date, or the second date or whatever.

It will flow very smoothly for you.

However, sometimes you'll meet a woman that you find very attractive and she won't make it completely obvious that she likes you in a sexual and romantic way even though she does.

This confuses a lot of guys out there and sometimes a guy meets a woman who actually does like him and he could have gotten her into a relationship or at least had sex with her, but he gave up because she wasn't showing obvious, clear signals that she was into him.

He may have thought to himself that he's not good looking enough for her, or that she likes a different type of guy, but in reality, she was just testing his confidence, or she didn't want to seem too keen or she wanted to test how interested he really was.

So, if you're out there attracting and dating women, it's important to understand that they really do want to get to sex and have a relationship, fall in love and enjoy companionship.

Women love that stuff.

Women love sex.

Women love love.

Women love doing couple things.

Women love cuddling on the couch.

Women love getting bent over.

Women love it all.

Yet, when you're out there meeting women, they won't always make it 100% obvious to you that they are interested in you and that they want something to happen.

So, you need to have the ability to make women feel attracted to you as you talk to them and then have the confidence and know-how to make a move when the time is right.

When you do that, attracting and dating women is very easy.

You see for yourself that women do want to have sex, women do want to enjoy a relationship.

Women do want to be in love and so on.

2. Know that you don't have to take conversations with women so seriously

This is where a lot of guys mess up and they make attracting and dating women more difficult than it actually is.

A guy will start talking to a woman that he finds attractive and he'll have an interview style conversation with her.

"So, what's your name? Where are you from? What do you do for a living? How long you been working there? Oh, really. That's nice."

It's a formal exchange.

It's not a fun, easygoing, relaxed, real conversation.

If you're looking to attract and pick up a woman for sex or a relationship, she wants to be able to get to know the real you.

She doesn't want to get to know a formal version of you who is putting on an act of being nicer and more formal than you actually are.

How do you talk when you're talking to your friends and you're feeling relaxed, when you're really being yourself, compared to how do you talk when you're talking to a woman that you find attractive and that you're hoping to sleep with or get into a relationship with?

If you can say that you talk in the same way, then you're doing it right.

Yet, if you find that you suddenly change and you put on an act of being nicer and more formal and polite than you actually are, then you're making attracting and dating women more difficult than it actually is.

So, what you need to understand if you want to make attracting and dating women easier is that you should talk to women in the same type of way that you talk to your friends, but also make sure that you add in things that are going to make the woman feel sparks of attraction for you.

One of the things that you can add in to create a spark of attraction is to playfully mess with her when she says something to you, rather than taking the conversation seriously.

So, if you're talking to a woman and you ask her what she does for a living and she says that she works as an executive assistant, what can you say to that?

Most guys are going to take the conversation too seriously and as a result, they'll end up creating a bit of a distance between themselves and the woman.

They won't really be connecting as real people.

It'll be more of a formal exchange of information, more of an interview where you're talking to someone and you just keep things polite and reserved.

So, if a woman says that she works as an executive assistant, most guys will say, "Wow" and "What does that involve?" or "Where do you work? What exactly do you do as an executive assistant?" and so on.

They'll have a serious conversation with her about it.

Yet, if you want to make attracting and dating women easy for you, you have to add in some things that make the woman feels sparks of sexual attraction for you.

As I said, one of those things is to playfully mess with her when she says something to you, rather than taking the conversation so seriously all the time.

For example: You asked her what she does for a living and she says that she works as an executive assistant.

You can then playfully say something like, "Oh, an executive assistant? Right. So, not just a normal assistant then. What sort of perks do you get with that? Do you get access to like a VIP bathroom or something like that? You don't? What's with that? If I was an executive assistant, I would want a VIP bathroom. I wouldn't want to go to the bathroom with all the common folk...you know, all the normal assistants. I'm an executive assistant, give me a VIP bathroom, I'm special."

Alternatively, you can say something like this, "Fancy. I took you for a fancy girl. I knew there was something special about you."

Alternatively, you might say something like this, "Executive assistant, don't you have to be smart to be an executive assistant?"

Then she laughs and says that she is smart and you can say something like this, "Yeah, you're smart. Okay, well, what's 14 plus 83?"

If she then gets it right, you can have a laugh with her about that and say something like this, "Okay. So, you are smart then, I'll give you that. Well, what does being an executive assistant involve? What do you get up to?"

By talking to her in that way, you're showing her that you're not taking the conversation so seriously. You're not putting on an act of being nicer than you actually are.

You're not putting on an act of feeling as though you need to have a polite conversation with her and be reserved and get to know her.

No.

You're a cool, confident guy.

You are so confident that you can say whatever you want while continuing to be the good guy that you are.

You're still being the good guy that you are, but you're also saying and doing things that create a spark of attraction inside of the woman.

So, how does that create a spark of attraction?

Well, women all over the world are attracted to certain personality traits and behaviors that men display such as confidence, charisma, emotional masculinity, charm, the ability to make her laugh and so on.

These are traits that you can easily and effortlessly display as you're talking to a woman.

For example: If you playfully mess with a woman at times while you're talking to her, then you are displaying confidence, the ability to make her laugh, charm (because you're making her feel attracted and you're being a good guy as you're talking to her) and emotional masculinity (because you're not afraid to playfully mess with a woman).

You don't fear women and place women above you in terms of dominance.

You are a man who is comfortable to make a woman feel girly in comparison to your masculine approach to the interaction.

So, when you have the confidence to not always take every part of a conversation with a woman seriously, she can feel more relaxed around you.

She can see that you're being your real self and you're not putting on an act.

As a result, she doesn't need to keep her guard up around you.

She can be her real self around you.

As a result, what happens is that a woman brings down her guard and she shows you her more easy-going, down-to-earth, friendly side.

She shows you her more girly side.

When she's feeling like that and realizes that she's able to be herself around you, she feels attracted and drawn to you.

She feels like you and her have a real connection.

There's something between you and her.

It's not a forced, awkward, weird type of conversation where you're trying to get to know her in a formal way.

You and her are getting along right away because you are being your real self, you're being a good guy, you're being confident and you have the balls to playfully mess with her at times, rather than always being serious as you're talking to her.

3. Know that trying to avoid seeming awkward just ends up making you seem awkward

For example: Imagine that a guy is going on a date with a woman and she arrives and she's showing a bit of cleavage in her dress.

The guy worries and doesn't want to say anything about her cleavage because he thinks that it might be rude, it might be too forward.

As a result, he ends up saying something like, "Oh, you look nice," rather than smiling and looking at her and showing her that he finds her sexually attractive.

Then, when they sit down at a table and having the date, he is trying hard to not look at her cleavage or say anything about it.

He's trying to maintain eye contact at all times, or look around the room and make sure that she can see that he's not looking at her cleavage.

Yet, as a result, he ends up behaving in an awkward way.

He ends up seeming uncomfortable and the woman feels turned off by his lack of confidence around her.

Additionally, she knows that she's got her cleavage out on display.

She knows that guys find that attractive, but the fact that he's not even looking at her in a sexual way makes her start to doubt that there is a sexual spark between himself and her.

Her guard then starts to go up and she starts to feel like the date is awkward.

So, here are some alternative reactions that you can display to a woman when she has her cleavage out on display to make her feel attracted to you and make her feel happy about the fact that there is a sexual spark between you and her.

- Oh, wow, look at you. Jeez, that top is very distracting.
- What the...! Look at you. How am I going to be concentrating on a conversation now? You're going to have me distracted all night.

Now, by saying one of those things, you're not actually saying, "Hey, nice tits," or "Look at your cleavage. Get them out, let me see your tits. Like, this is great, I'm going to stare at your tits all night."

You're not directly talking about her tits, but you are hinting at it and you're letting her know that the way that she has presented herself is making you feel sexually attracted.

Now, the fact that you have the confidence to talk to her in that way and the social intelligence to pull off saying something about her in a moment like that, makes her feel just as attracted to you as you feel to her.

She's feeling attracted to your personality traits and behaviors.

She is also excited and happy that there is a sexual spark between you and her.

Now, compare that to a guy who hides the way that he feels and doesn't say anything because he doesn't want to be awkward, but it ends up being awkward.

- Oh, hey. Oh, you look nice today. How you doing?
- Oh, hi. Nice to see you. How was the drive over? Did you find the place alright?
- Oh, that's a nice dress. Where'd you get that from? Oh, really? Yeah, that's nice. Let's go inside.

He's acting and hiding.

The guy is acting nicer than he actually is and he is hiding his sexual attraction for the woman.

He's hiding his sexual attraction for a woman who is going on a date with him, with the purpose of having sex or getting into a sexual relationship.

He just wants to seem nice and friendly and polite.

It's just a polite interaction (i.e. we're just going to sit down and have something to eat and be polite with each other).

No.

It's the beginning of a sexual relationship.

Whether the couple has sex on the first date, second date, third date or fourth date, doesn't matter.

What is most important is that they feel a sexual spark with each other.

If you want to create a sexual spark with a woman, don't try to avoid seeming awkward and end up acting awkward because you're thinking too much or are worrying about how you're going to come across.

Instead, just be the good guy that you are, be confident and be real as you're talking to women.

If you do that, you'll see that women are so much more relaxed and easygoing around you.

They feel attracted and they want something to happen between you and them.

4. Know that even if a woman likes you, she will often miss out on sex or a relationship if you don't have the confidence to make a move

Now, remember what I was saying earlier with tip 1, where a woman won't always make it obvious that she likes you?

Well, this is the next level up from that.

You're interacting with a woman, she's showing you that she likes you, but you don't have the confidence to make a move.

You keep waiting and putting it off.

Eventually, she may start to lose interest because she may assume that you don't have the confidence to make a move, or she may start to think that maybe there isn't enough of a spark between you and her for something sexual and romantic to happen.

Maybe you and her are just better off as friends.

Now, the thing is, sometimes you meet a woman who likes you, shows interest and then starts to make moves on you.

She'll make it really easy for you.

Yet, that is called getting lucky.

It doesn't always happen, especially, with the types of women that you're most attracted to.

Most attractive women out there don't want to make moves on a guy and make it easy for him because they want to see that he has the confidence for a girl like her.

One of the reasons why attractive women do that is that they don't want to get into a relationship with a guy who doesn't actually feel like he is good enough for her.

If an attractive woman gets into a relationship with a guy who doesn't feel like he's good enough for her, he will almost always become controlling, jealous, needy and overprotective.

He will try to protect and control the woman that he got by luck.

So, even if an attractive woman likes you, in most cases, she would rather go without having sex and a relationship if you don't have the confidence to make a move.

She would rather go without it.

In many cases, she goes home and she's upset about that.

She really liked you and she wanted something to happen, but she just doesn't want to get herself in a situation where she is with a guy who doesn't feel like is good enough for her.

She wants to be with a guy who knows that he has more than good enough for her because in most cases, guys like that aren't going to become jealous, needy and controlling.

They know that they're more than good enough for the woman.

As a result, she then feels the need to impress him and be on her best behavior around him and not lose him.

It's not the other way around where the guy feels like she is better than him and he needs to hold on to what he's got.

An attractive woman wants to be with the guy who feels like he's good enough for her, or ideally feels like he's more than good enough for her.

So, how can you feel like you're good enough for an attractive woman or even better, you're more than good enough for her?

Well, that comes down to your ability to attract women as you talk to them.

If you don't know how to attract women, as you talk to them, then most of the attractive women that you meet won't feel attracted to you.

You'll be able to get lucky, but you won't be able to attract women by choice.

Yet, when you know how to make women feel attracted to you as you talk to them, what you'll see is that most of the women that you talk to feel sparks of attraction for you, including attractive pretty women.

What happens then, is you start to realize that you are good enough for attractive women.

Eventually, you realize that you're more than good enough and you don't feel needy for one particular woman.

You don't feel like you need to suck up to a woman and try to impress her to get a chance with her.

You know that as you're talking to her, she is feeling sparks of attraction for you, she really likes you and wants something to happen.

Then, when she's showing you obvious signs of interest, you move in for a kiss and maybe you get her phone number after that and go on a date or you have sex with her right away or sex on the first date, second date or whatever.

You confidently take things to the next level because you know that she is attracted to you and want something to happen.

Controversial Study Reveals an Undeniable Truth About Women! |

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

A study that was published in the Personality and Social Psychology Bulletin, concluded that women, including feminist women, are more attracted to men who are labeled as sexist.

So, to be clear here, the psychologists who ran the study placed sexism into different types of categories.

Obviously, hostile sexism wasn't something that women were attracted to, but what was surprising is that women, including feminist women, are attracted to what is known as benevolent sexism.

So, a curious woman named Pelin Gul, who has a PhD in social psychology, followed-up on the study and did it again.

She ended up doing a great job of it and found the same result, which is that women are more attracted to sexist men.

Gul said, "Previous studies have found that men's benevolent sexism has many detrimental consequences on women, such as undermining their competence, restricting their freedom, confining them to the kitchen. Yet, research had also shown that women prefer benevolent sexist men."

Across 5 studies with 782 female participants, the researchers found that women perceived a male romantic partner who held benevolent sexist attitudes as more willing to protect, provide and commit for them, which in turn made him more attractive.

Feminist women were as likely as non-feminists women to prefer benevolent sexist men over more egalitarian men.

In other words, when it comes to romantic relationships, women prefer men who look at women in a more traditional way.

For example: Women are softer, more gentle, more nurturing, weaker and in need of the protection of a man, compared to men who look at women in a more egalitarian way.

For example: Looking at women in an egalitarian way can mean that men and women should be 50/50 in terms of dominance in a relationship. Women don't need the protection of a man and women are essentially the same as men.

Pelin Gul also goes on to say, "We think that women are able to tell when a man's intent is to undermine her versus when he uses benevolent sexism for courtship."

I'm glad that Pelin Gul also said that because it shows that she is a smart woman who is willing to be honest about the issue.

She's willing to say that women can tell the difference between a man who wants to see her in the one down position in terms of dominance in a negative way and a man who sees a woman in the one down position in terms of dominance in a more traditional loving and romantic way.

So, the study that was published in the Journal of Personality and Social Psychology, as well as the study by Pelin Gul proves that women are more attracted to men who are considered to be 'sexist.'

In other words, women prefer men who look at women in a more traditional way, who look at women as being the more gentle, nurturing, soft, feminine gender of the human species.

As a result, benevolently sexist men look at women as needing the protection of a man.

These men don't look at women as being incompetent and incapable and unable to do anything for themselves, but they look at women as being the feminine version of the human species.

As it turns out, women, including feminist women, find that more attractive and appealing in a man.

This is important for a lot of guys to understand these days because there are many radical, angry, frothing at the mouth feminists out there who are loud and are saying that men and women are the same and that men shouldn't look at women in a traditional way anymore.

Yet, what you have to understand is that the radical, angry, frothing at the mouth feminists do not represent the majority of the female population.

Now, that doesn't mean that men and women need to go back to how things were in the 1940s or the 1950s.

The world has changed and for good reason.

It's a good thing that women are participating in the workforce and are contributing.

They are contributing in many positive beneficial ways and that's a good thing.

Yet, what needs to be understood is that there is a big difference between how a woman wants to be looked at and treated when it comes to attracting her and picking her up and being in a relationship with her, compared to her participating in the workforce and going about her everyday life in the world in general.

When a woman participates in the workforce, she wants to be able to be respected and treated as an equal just like men are.

She wants to have the same type of opportunities as men and that's fine.

Yet, when it comes to a woman feeling attracted to a guy sexually and romantically and getting into a relationship with him, studies show that she wants to be looked at in a more traditional way.

She wants to be looked at as being more gentle than the man, as being more soft and nurturing.

She wants to be looked at as being feminine.

This is where some guys mess up these days.

They listen to the radical, extremist feminists who are frothing at the mouth and who are angry and are triggered by what is going on in society.

They say things like women shouldn't be looked at in a traditional way anymore and that it's wrong and the world needs to change.

Yet, the majority of women out there actually prefer men who look at them in a traditional way, who actually look at them as being feminine.

As I said earlier, society doesn't need to go back to how was before.

There have been developments that have happened for a good reason.

What does need to happen is a common understanding and acceptance that most women prefer to be treated like traditional women and most men enjoy their traditional role of being the man.

Additionally, most women like to do things that are typically considered feminine and most men like to do things that are typically considered masculine.

There are exceptions where some men like to do things that are considered typically feminine and some women like to do things that are considered typically masculine.

However, for the most part, most women and most men usually behave in ways that are seen as typical for their natural gender.

According to science, that is due to nature and not because of modern society telling boys that they should like toy cars and telling girls that they should like dolls.

For example: A study on gender preferences, which has been repeated many times by different scientists and psychologists has found that male monkeys preferred toys that human see as being male toys.

In some other tests, females don't have a preference for either male or female toys, but when presented with toys that are like babies, they gravitate towards a traditional natural female role of being the one who nurtures the children.

Now, that doesn't mean that a guy can't nurturer a child or raise a child or that a woman can't play with a car toy (i.e. "She just can't play with those sort of things, we have to keep everything black and white!").

No.

Life is not black and white.

There are shades of gray as well.

Some girls like to play with boys' toys, some boys like to play with girls' toys.

There are exceptions in nature and that's fine.

Yet, for the most part, most women want to feel feminine and take on traditionally female roles.

Additionally, most women prefer men who look at them in a traditional way rather than looking at them in the way that radical, angry, frothing at the mouth feminists say that men should look at women.

Unfortunately, a lot of guys out there get confused by the conflicting messages that they hear from women.

The louder, angrier and seemingly more passionate messages that are coming from angry feminists seem to be more convincing because the women are really angry.

Yet, those women don't represent the majority of the female population.

When a guy listens to those angry feminists and starts changing himself to look up to these women, bow down to them, be softer and more docile around them, what happens is that the women he actually wants to attract no longer find him attractive.

They feel turned off by him because he is a wimp.

He is looking at women as being more powerful than him, as being in the one up position in terms of dominance and so on.

He's not looking at them as being gentle, soft nurturing and needing the protection of a man, even though it has been proven that women prefer men who look at them in a more traditional way.

So, for the men watching this video, if you like being a man and you like to look at women in a traditional way, just understand that the majority of women actually like that about you.

Be aware though that most women don't want to actually admit that when talking among others because they don't want to trigger feminists in the group who might then start saying, "Hey, you got to be stronger, girl. Don't look at yourself as a woman from the 1940s or '50s, the world has changed," even though she doesn't look at herself as a woman from the 1940s or '50s.

She sees herself as a confident, independent, modern woman who also likes to be looked at as being a woman.

She doesn't want to be looked at as being like a man.

She likes men who look at her like a woman.

Why?

When a man is able to maintain his masculinity while talking to a woman and look at her as being feminine in comparison to him, even though she's smart, independent, successful and so on, that makes her feel attracted.

It triggers her feelings of sexual attraction because feminine women are naturally attracted to the masculine.

If you interact with a feminine attractive woman and you suppress your masculinity to be softer and more docile around her because you have heard feminist women say that men shouldn't look at women in a traditional way, then that feminine, attractive woman isn't going to feel attracted to you.

She might see you as a friend.

She might see you as a nice guy, but who she's actually going to feel sexually attracted to and turned on by is a guy who isn't afraid to calmly and confidently express his masculinity as he talks to her and interacts with her.

He's going to be comfortable and at ease with the fact that he's a man.

He's going to understand that it's not wrong to be a man and it's not wrong to look at a woman and like the parts about her that a more gentle, soft, nurturing and needing the protection of a man.

To like that vulnerable side of her, that girly side of her where she wants to cuddle into your arms, or snuggle into you on the couch and look up to you as your cuddling her.

It's not wrong for men to love those things about women and it's not wrong for women to love those things about men.

Additionally, as repeated studies have found, most women prefer men who look at them and treat them in a more traditional way.

So, what's important to understand here is that, even if a woman is career-focused and has purpose in life and wants to follow through on that, if she's like the majority of women out there, she is still more attracted and prefers a man who looks at her in a more traditional way.

That doesn't mean that she wants men in the workforce to look down on her as being less powerful and dominant than men.

She wants to have equality in the workforce and be treated with equal respect and that is fine.

Yet, when it comes to attracting and picking up women and having a sexual romantic relationship with a woman, most women out there prefer men and are more attracted to men who look at them and treat them in a more traditional way.

Women Are More Sexist Than Men

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Dan: As it turns out, women are actually more sexist than men.

Last night my wife and I were watching a TV show called “America Inside Out with Katie Couric.”

Katie Couric does a great job of staying in the middle of issues, rather than going too the left or to the right politically.

It was an interesting TV show to watch.

One of the things that she discovered was even more interesting.

That is, women are actually more sexist than men.

Before I show you a clip of the TV show, one thing that I want to point out is that men are usually painted as the villains in society.

Sexism in the world is all the fault of men.

The reason why men look at women and think of women in traditional roles in society is because men are outdated.

It’s all the fault of men.

No, it’s not.

Watch this.

Katie: Clearly there is a problem.

What are the root causes and how do we fix it? I decided to come to Harvard University, where they’re really smart, to try to figure that out. Hi, how are you?

Mahzarin: Hello, nice to meet you.

Katie: Mahzarin Banaji is one of world’s leading experts on a term that seems to be everywhere lately: Implicit Bias, the deeply ingrained prejudices we don’t even realize we have.

I’m nervous, I hope I don’t screw this up.

Mahzarin: You will not. Look, 18 million people have taken this test. You’re going to put your fingers on the E key and one on the I key. That is pretty much where they’ll stay. You hit the left key for male, right for female. Go as fast as you can. Boom, boom, boom, boom.

Katie: Okay, here we go. [Narrated: You’re shown a series of words like children, manager, salary, garden and asked to quickly decide whether you associate them with men or women. So, basically I wondered, am I a closet sexist?]

Mahzarin: You were pretty good.

Katie: The results, not what she was expecting.

Mahzarin: No bias at all.

Katie: Yes. Really?

Mahzarin: Yes.

Katie: I’ve aced it. It could mean I am unbiased, or I gamed the test. Either way, I’m unusual.

Mahzarin: So, 80% of women who take this test show an association of female and home, male and career.

Katie: And what about the men who take this test?

Mahzarin: 75% of them also show it, but interestingly slightly less than women, which often surprises people.

Dan: The results of that study highlight one of the biggest problems facing men and women today. That is, women have a voice in the media and they're using that voice in a way that is not completely honest.

Most women, if you ask them, will say that they are not sexist and they think that a woman shouldn't be seen as someone who has to be in the home.

That pink shouldn't be associated with girls.

That flowers shouldn't be associated with girls.

That playing in the mud shouldn't be associated with boys.

Yet, when a woman is tested and she's just there on her own to make a quick decision on what she thinks is male and what she thinks is female, she will go with a traditional outlook (i.e. a so-called 'sexist' outlook).

That is not because women are the worst and men are the best or men are the worst and women are the best.

What's going on is that we live in reality with natural laws.

Men and women traditionally and generally behave in ways that are traditionally male or female.

Feminists out there don't like that though.

They want to say that men and women are the same and that it's all men's fault that women are experiencing sexism in society.

Yet, in reality women are slightly more sexist than men.

Of course, that doesn't mean that men have to be all about being manly and masculine and that there is no room for men who are feminine and in touch with their feminine side.

There is room in the world for those type of guys.

Good luck, go for it, play with flowers, wear pink, all the best to those guys.

Yet, the reality is that most men like being men, they want to be men and what's more, women actually like it that way.

They want men to be men.

Yet, that is not what you'll hear women say in the media or when asked in person.

They will say, "No, no, no, pink should be a boys color too. Men should do all the house work and all men should be just interested in flowers and fashion and TV drama shows where they can cry just like women are. Men should be more like women, yes. That's how to fix the world, men should be more like women. Men should cry, men should wear pink, men should like TV drama shows where they can cry like women. Yes, that's the solution to fix all the problems in the world."

Yet, the real solution is to not force things on people.

Instead, it's to allow nature to just play out naturally.

Most men want to be men and enjoy being men.

Most women want to be women and enjoy being women.

Then there are the exceptions; women who feel like they want to be men, men who feel like they want to be women and so on.

All the best to those people; they can do what they want.

Yet, they shouldn't try to force the rest of society to somehow change and become, not a man and not a woman, but something that is politically correct.

No.

The reality is that after millions of people have taken the Implicit Association Test, it has been found that women associate traditionally female things with females and traditionally male things with males.

They don't sit there when they're being tested and want to fight against that and say, "No, pink should be for men!"

They don't think that.

For the men watching this video, I hope that this helps you understand that men are not the problem in society.

Men are not the cause of sexism.

Men are not the villains.

The next time you hear a woman say that men are the cause of sexism and that men are sexist, just have a bit of a chuckle to yourself and calmly, confidently tell her that it has been proven by a female social scientist at Harvard University that women are actually more sexist than men.

Avoid These 3 Mistakes to Attract the Woman You Want

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Attracting women is a very easy thing to do.

Once you understand how to do it and you do it a few times, you will literally laugh at how easy it is.

It is ridiculous how easy it is to attract most women out there.

Yet, when you don't know how a woman's attraction works and you end up making one or more of the following mistakes that I'm going to talk about in this video, it becomes difficult.

Women play hard to get even though they're not hard to get.

So, if you want to be able to easily and naturally attract the types of women you really want, then try to avoid making these mistakes.

1. Placing her above you in terms of attractiveness and then feeling unworthy of her as a result

If you meet a beautiful woman and she is clearly better looking than you, there's nothing wrong with looking at her and seeing her as being better looking than you.

That's the reality.

However, if you place her above you in terms of attractiveness because you're basing it all on looks and then you feel unworthy of her, you're probably not going to get anywhere with her.

She's most likely going to sense that you don't feel good enough for her, that you're looking up to her and thinking that she is too good for you and that think you'd be really lucky to get a chance with her.

Yet, for most beautiful women, they don't want to have that feeling where they would be doing a guy a favor by being his girlfriend.

A beautiful woman wants to be able to find a guy who does feel like he's good enough for her and preferably, feels like he is more than good enough for her.

Yet, how can you feel that way if you don't see yourself as being good-looking?

How can you feel like you're good enough for a beautiful woman or more than good enough for her?

The way to do it is to not base everything on physical attraction and instead, base everything on emotional attraction.

If you try to base your attractiveness on your physical attractiveness, then you might be able to feel confident in the mirror and you might be able to feel confident after you've gotten back from the gym or when you're wearing some new clothes, but if you go out to meet women or you happen to bump into a woman that you meet her at a party or through friends or whatever and she's really attractive, then you're probably not going to feel as confident as you felt when you were looking at yourself in the mirror, when you got back from the gym or when you put on those new clothes and so on.

You're probably going to be looking at the beautiful woman as being more physically attractive than you and therefore, you're going to feel as though you're not good enough for her.

In other words, you're playing the looks game.

You're trying to be successful with women based on how you look, which is a failing strategy unless you are really good looking and you really know that.

The easiest way to succeed with women is to focus on emotional attraction.

The irony is that when you make a woman feel attracted to you emotionally as you talk to her, she then starts to look at your physical appearance in a positive light.

For example: If you're making a woman feel emotionally attracted to you as you talk to her because you're being confident, you're being charismatic, you're making her laugh and you're being emotionally masculine, which then makes her feel feminine and girly in comparison to you, then she's going to be looking at you through the lens of attraction.

She's going to be feeling attracted to you and at times, she's going to be feeling turned on by the way that she's feeling as you talk to her.

As a result, she's going to look at your physical appearance in a much more positive light.

She's going to be looking at your physical appearance through the lens of attraction and that's when a woman starts to think, "There's something about this guy. I like him. I don't normally go for guys like him, but he's really cute, he's sexy, I like him. I really want to be with him."

This is why you'll hear some beautiful women talk about their boyfriend or husband and say something like, "I wasn't initially attracted to him, but once we started talking, there was a spark between us, we fell in love and the rest is history."

What she's saying is that the guy made her feel attracted to him as he talked to her.

She became emotionally attracted to him.

She liked how she felt when she was talking to him.

She felt attracted.

She felt turned on.

She felt sparks of love beginning to form and they hooked up, got into a relationship and they're now happy together.

Now, don't get me wrong though.

There are some women out there who will only accept a guy who is really good looking, tall, has muscles and so on.

That is true.

However, what is also true is that the majority of women out there, including beautiful women, can feel attracted to you for reasons other than looks.

Now, some guys would say, "Yeah, I know another reason why women can feel attracted, it starts with M, it ends with Y, what is it? Money."

So many guys say that.

You've just got to have lots of money and then you get the girl.

Yet, while it's true that money can attract women, it's also true that guys working in casual jobs, part-time jobs and low to average paying full-time jobs can attract pretty, beautiful women, get laid, get themselves a girlfriend and get themselves a wife.

It's also true that the majority of couples out there are living month-to-month on their wages or salary.

They are paying rent together.

They are paying off a mortgage, they're saving up for many years to be able to go on a holiday or vacation, or are saving up for many years to get a deposit together so they can buy a house together and then start paying it off.

That applies for the majority of people out there.

Here's the thing...

What you may have noticed as you've walked through your everyday life, is that you will often see a really good looking couple walking along together.

The woman would be really beautiful and the guy will be good looking.

Yet, you will also see so many examples where the woman is beautiful, but the guy looks average looking, below average looking and some guys might even label some of the guys as being ugly.

Yet, the guy has got himself a beautiful girlfriend.

He's not rich, he's just working an ordinary job.

He's got a casual job, he's got a part-time job, he's got a normal full-time job where he's not in a high-flying position in his career or he's just getting by.

Yet, he's got a beautiful girlfriend.

Why?

The reason why, is that you can make women feel attracted to you as you talk to them.

So, when you meet a beautiful woman, don't place her above you in terms of attractiveness by basing attractiveness on physical appearance.

Yes, she may be better looking than you, that's fine, but you can make her feel just as much, if not more, attraction for you as you talk to her.

The way that works, is that you can instantly make a woman feel a spark of attraction for you as you begin interacting with her by displaying personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women, such as confidence, charisma, the ability to make her laugh, emotional masculinity and so on.

You can literally do that right away as you begin talking to her.

She can begin to feel sparks of attraction for you.

Then, as you continue talking to her, she can feel an increasing amount of attraction as the interaction goes on.

Now, the thing is there's nothing wrong with a guy trying to look good if he wants to look good.

There's nothing wrong with a guy getting a nice haircut, going to the gym, wearing good clothes and so on.

Additionally, those things can help to make a guy look more physically attractive.

That is true.

Yet, what is also true is that you can get laid and get a girlfriend without even focusing on those things, without even having to go to the gym for years and build up muscle.

If that wasn't true, then you wouldn't see guys who are skinny or overweight, average looking, below average looking and so on, with pretty women.

You just wouldn't see it.

You would only ever see really good looking guys who are tall and have muscles with pretty women. Sometimes you will see the really good looking couple together.

That is true, but if you want to understand the reality that you live in, you've got to accept the fact that you see guys who you consider to be average, below average looking and possibly even ugly at times with pretty beautiful women.

That is happening everywhere all over the world because it really is possible and easy to attract women as you talk to them.

You can literally make a woman feel emotionally attracted to you and then she falls in love with you. She wants to be with you.

So, don't place a beautiful woman above you in terms of attractiveness by basing everything on physical appearance.

Just know that you can make women feel emotionally attracted to you and when you do that, women look at you in a more positive light.

They look at you, they feel attracted to you and they say to themselves, "There's something about this guy, I like him" because you're making them feel attracted.

Okay, the next mistake to avoid...

2. Just talking to her in a friendly way, but hoping that she likes you in a sexual way

This is a big mistake that guys make where they place themselves in the friend zone by only talking to a woman in a friendly way.

Then, when they try to make a move on a woman, she says that she doesn't see the guy in that way and just wants to be friends.

A guy like that might then walk away and think that he's not good enough for a woman like her, or that women aren't even interested in sex.

Yet, women are interested in sex.

Women do want sex and they think about it many times per day.

In fact, according to a study that was done, the median average of times that a woman thinks about sex every day is 9.9.

To round that up, 10 times a day.

So, don't think that women aren't interested in sex.

Women do want to get to sex and they want to enjoy love and a relationship, but the way to get to that point with a woman isn't to just talk to her in a friendly way.

You have to have the courage to say and do things that are going to make her feel sexually attracted to you and feel sparks of attraction.

You have to have the courage to do that.

What's an example of how it works?

Well, imagine that you're talking to a woman that you find really attractive and she says something about her hair.

She says that she's having a bad hair day and she doesn't like her hair and asks you what you think. She might say, "What do you think, does my hair look bad today?"

You can then respond in a way that makes her feel a spark of attraction for you based on you being confident, making her laugh and making her feel girly in comparison to your masculinity.

So, if she asks you, "Does my hair look bad today? What do you think?"

You can then say something like this, "Horrible" and playfully shake your head.

You can also say something like this, "Yeah, well, I was going to say, but I wasn't sure if I should tell you...it looks absolutely horrible today."

In almost all cases, the woman will then laugh because she will know that you're joking.

In many cases, women will then continue on with the joke, with the flirting that you have started by acting as though they believe that what you're saying is true.

So, the woman will say, "Really, does my hair look bad?"

At that point, you can just laugh and not say anything and she will then ask you, "What? What's wrong with my hair? Tell me?" or she will laugh and say that you're joking.

Alternatively, you can say that you're just kidding and that her hair looks fine and then have a bit of a chuckle to yourself to make her doubt herself again and ask you and then you can have a laugh with her and so on.

You're not just having a friendly conversation with her where she says, "You know, does my hair look bad today? What do you think?" and you say, "No, no, it looks fine. Your hair is fine, it looks good every day" and being that neutral, friendly guy towards her.

Now, what you may have noticed in your life is that the guys who are comfortable to talk to women in that kind of way are the ones who easily get along with women, make them feel attracted, get to kissing, sex and relationships.

Yet, guys who just talk to women in a neutral way are the guys who end up in the friend zone.

The guy really likes a woman and has a crush on her.

He goes to bed thinking about her, imagining being her boyfriend and her saying that she loves him and so on, but when he talks to her, he just talks to her in a neutral, friendly way.

He's hoping that she's going to like him as a person and something is going to develop.

Yet, what you need to understand is that you can make something develop immediately.

You can make women feel a spark of attraction for you immediately and you then can build on that attraction as you talk to her.

Turn off number 3...

3. Asking her out or hinting at a relationship before you've have made her feel sexually attracted to you

For a lot of guys, they meet a woman that they find attractive and are instantly starstruck.

It's like, "Wow, she's really pretty. I want to be with her. I want to have sex with her and I want to have a relationship with her."

She doesn't really need to do anything other than just be nice and normal and the guy is like, "Cool, well let's do this. Can I take you out sometime? Do you have a boyfriend? Can I get your number?" and so on.

The guy starts hinting or directly asking for some sort of relationship commitment from her, even though he hasn't done anything to make her feel sexually attracted and turned on by him.

As I said at the start of this video, attracting women is very easy, but if you make these mistakes that I'm talking about in this video, it suddenly becomes difficult.

The woman starts playing hard to get, even though she's not hard to get and even though she's just like most women who only require to be able to feel more attraction for the guy as they talk to them.

If a guy is able to do that when he is interacting with women, he can enjoy his choice of women.

He can literally talk to women, make them feel a spark of attraction, build on the attraction and then get to a kiss, sex and into a relationship.

Yet, when a guy doesn't understand how a woman's attraction works, gets hijacked by his attraction for women and then starts immediately showing interest in a relationship, then it becomes very difficult for him.

He can't enjoy his choice of women.

He makes women play harder to get than they actually are.

Of course, don't get me wrong, there are some women out there who are hard to get.

That is true, but those women are the minority.

For most women, all it usually takes is 1 to 2 minutes of conversation where you make her feel attracted to you for her to be totally interested in you as a guy.

She becomes open to talking to you, open to connecting with you and open to getting to the next level with you, which means exchanging phone numbers or kissing, having sex and getting into a relationship.

So, if you want to enjoy easy success with women from now on, make sure that you don't place women above you in terms of attractiveness because you're basing everything on physical appearance.

Understand that it really is possible and easy to make many of the women you meet feel emotionally attracted to you.

When you do that, they start to look at your physical appearance in a more positive light.

This then allows you to access prettier, more beautiful women that you probably couldn't attract based on your looks alone.

Number 2...

If you want a woman to feel sexually attracted to you, then make sure that you're not just talking to her in a friendly, neutral way

There's nothing wrong with talking to a woman in a friendly way, but you also have to add in things that are going to make her feel sparks of sexual attraction for you.

Finally, with number 3...

Don't hint at wanting a relationship with her, directly ask her for a relationship or to start dating you if you haven't made her feel sexually attracted to you yet.

If you want things to flow easily for you, then you should make a woman feel sexually attracted to you and ideally, you should get to a kiss before you even talk about her being your girlfriend or you and her getting into a relationship.

If you hint at a relationship or ask a woman for a relationship before you have kissed her, or at least made her feel sexually attracted, then she will usually, if not always, play hard to get.

In some cases, a woman will even reject the guy even though she initially liked him because he came on too strong wanting a relationship before he had even made her feel sexually attracted to him.

She will worry that he might become very clingy and needy and it won't be an enjoyable relationship for her as a result.

So, if you want things to flow smoothly, make sure that you at least make a woman feel sexually attracted and turned on by you before you start hinting at a relationship and ideally get to a first kiss first.

Once you and a woman have kissed, then a relationship will naturally start after that.

Okay, I hope you've enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn more about how to attract women as you talk to them so you can enjoy your choice of women, I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

One final point that I want to make you in this video is about the looks game.

A lot of guys try to succeed with women based on their looks and as a result, a guy ends up going into social situations where he can meet women or accidentally meets women through friends and so on and places himself on a certain level in terms of attractiveness in comparison to the women that he meets.

When he meets women that are more attractive than him in terms of physical appearance, he automatically feels like he is not worthy.

He may assume that she would only accept a guy who is really tall, good-looking and so on and as a result, he won't even try.

Instead, he'll just focus on women that are on the same level in terms of looks as he is, or below him so he feels even more confident.

Yet, when you approach your dating life with women in that way, you end up accepting women that you're not really attracted to.

You end up accepting whatever you can get in terms of the looks game.

I recommend that you don't try to play the looks game with women.

Instead, you focus on making women feel attracted to you as you talk to them.

You can literally make a woman feel a spark of attraction for you and build on her attraction as you talk to her by displaying personality traits and behaviors that are naturally attractive to women, such as being confident, being charismatic, being emotionally masculine, making the woman laugh, flirting with her and so on.

You can literally do that as you're talking to a woman.

For example: What I said earlier in the video, where the girl is saying, "Does my hair look bad?" when she's having a bad hair day, you can just joke around with her, rather than having to get into a serious conversation with her and try to suck up to her and tell her that her hair looks nice to hopefully be seen as a good guy that she can rely on.

Maybe if you just keep trying hard like that and showing her how good you are and how reliable you are, you might eventually get a chance with her.

No.

You can shortcut the process.

You can make her feel a spark of sexual attraction for you in that moment.

You can respond and say something like, "Horrible, yeah, your hair is actually looking pretty bad today. It's a total mess."

Make her feel attracted to you based on your confidence, your ability to make her laugh, your ability to make her feel feminine in comparison to your masculine approach to the interaction and so on.

You are literally in control of how much attraction you're making her feel.

Once you understand that and start doing it while interacting with women, you will laugh at how easy it is to attract women and enjoy your choice of women.

Dating Coach: The 5 Kinds of Guys Who Might Need One

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Not every guy needs a dating coach because some guys are naturally good with women.

Yet, other guys struggle with knowing what to say when they meet an attractive woman, knowing how to keep a conversation going and keep it interesting, knowing how to feel confident around the woman and get to a kiss and sex and so on.

Some guys struggle with different parts of the attraction and dating process and that's where a dating coach comes in.

So, in this video, I'm going to reveal five types of guys who need a dating coach to show them the way, so that attracting women, getting to sex and getting into a relationship is easy for them from now on.

The first type of guy is...

1. The cool guy who lacks confidence around women

There are many cool guys out there who know that they're a cool guy.

When the guy is around his friends, coworkers, or family, he feels like he's a cool guy.

He knows it and he's confident about that.

Yet, when it comes to attractive women, he lacks confidence in himself.

All that confidence that he had in himself about being a cool guy goes right out the window when he starts talking to an attractive woman that he really likes.

Suddenly he starts doubting himself and thinking that he's not good enough for her.

He starts thinking that she's too pretty and she wouldn't like a guy like him.

In most cases, many of the attractive women that he has met throughout his life were actually interested in him and did think that he was a cool guy, but the woman then started to feel turned off by the fact that he was doubting himself around her.

The thing is, if a woman is unattractive and she comes across a cool guy who likes her, then she's going to be happy about that.

She's going to be happy about the fact that a cool guy doesn't even know his value and he's trying to get a chance with an unattractive woman.

She likes that sort of thing because she gets to get herself a cool guy.

Yet, an attractive woman usually doesn't want to accept a guy who doesn't feel good enough for her. She doesn't want to get into a relationship with a guy who looks at her as being way better than him because she worries that he's going to become clingy, needy, jealous and potentially controlling in the relationship.

So, what most attractive women try to find is a guy who at least feels as though he's good enough for her and preferably, feels as though he's more than good enough for her.

Now, that doesn't mean that he says that to her, acts arrogant or says negative things to her to show her that he's so damn good.

It just means that it comes across in his body language, in his vibe, in his conversation style, his behavior and actions.

She can see that he's not panicking.

She can see that he feels good enough for her and he feels comfortable, relaxed and confident around her.

Likewise, when a guy doesn't feel like he's good enough for an attractive woman, she'll usually be able to see that as well.

She'll see that he is trying really hard to hopefully get a chance with her, he is being hesitant around her, he's not really being his real self and he's putting on a bit of an act.

He's putting on an act of being a bit nicer than he normally is, a bit more polite, a bit more of this or that in order to hopefully impress her and get a chance with her.

So, there are a lot of cool guys out there who need a dating coach like myself to be able to tell you that, "Hey, you are good enough."

If you can talk to an attractive woman and let her see that you feel as though you're good enough for her, then she's going to feel attracted to you because of that.

She's going to see that you are one of the rare guys who feels good enough for her, who feels confident around her.

As a result, you are able to let your real, cool self come through.

You don't put on an act of being nicer than you really are.

You don't put on an act of being more polite than you really are.

You be your real self and you know that it's good enough.

You know that you're a cool guy and you know that when you're being your real self, it's good enough.

You don't need to put on an act for anyone.

2. The very intelligent guy who isn't used to flirting with women

When a guy is very intelligent, he usually wants to have conversations that are logical, sensible and often complex and really interesting.

A guy will want to discuss the meaning of life, or he'll want to get into really detailed, complicated topics about politics or computers or mathematics or science and so on.

Yet, when it comes to initially attracting a woman, those types of conversations usually aren't the thing that makes her wet.

If you want to make her feel sexually attracted and turned on by you, discussing algebra or quantum physics usually isn't going to do it.

What you need to be able to do is flirt with her.

Here are a couple of examples of how to flirt with a woman rather than just talking to her in a logical, neutral, serious or intellectual way.

If a woman says that she is studying medicine, a logical, neutral, serious or intellectual response could be something like, “How long have you been studying that?” or “What do you think of the state of the healthcare system today?” or “Healthcare is such a mess these days, the government really should do something about it” or “What field of medicine are you studying?”

On the other hand, a flirting response to a woman telling you that she is studying medicine is to say something like this, “Oh, so you’re not very intelligent then. I only like smart girls. Sorry.”

Alternatively you might say something like this, “Medicine? Oh, that’s easy. Anyone can get a master’s degree in that. Why didn’t you study something that would be more difficult? You should use your brain, girl. Medicine is too easy.”

Another example is where you meet a woman and she says that she works as a teacher.

A logical, neutral, serious or intellectual response could be, “Oh, what grade or what year do you teach?” or, “Where do you teach?” or, “The education system really needs to be overhauled in this country.”

Alternatively to flirt with her, you can say something like this, “You seem like you’d be a mean teacher” or, “You seem like you’d be a strict teacher” or you smile and say, “I’d hate to have you as a teacher.”

She then asks why and you playfully say, “Just kidding. You’d be good to look at, maybe a little distracting though, I don’t know.”

Adding in some flirting into your interactions with women makes it more fun for you and for her. It also makes her feel attracted because she can see that she would enjoy herself when in a sexual, romantic relationship with you.

Some intelligent guys don’t want to flirt with women because they see it as pointless banter.

Why should I have to flirt with a woman and have a fun, interesting, playful type of conversation with her when I don’t want to talk about that stuff?

I want to be able to talk about what I’m interested in.

I’m into quantum physics.

I’m into science.

I’m into philosophy and so on.

Let’s discuss that.

Well, the thing is many women are really into discussing those things, but it’s best to talk about those things after you’ve had sex with a woman, not before.

Some women are cool to discuss quantum physics and philosophy and all that sort of stuff as you first get to know them and before you even kiss them, but those women are going to be the ones who are already sexually attracted to you.

The woman is going to be really into you, or she’s going to be a woman who loves to talk about those things with anyone.

Yet, as you may have experienced, when you have met a woman who loves to talk about those things, if you just talk about those things and don’t actually flirt with her and make her feel sexually attracted and turned on, when it comes time to get her phone number or move in for a kiss, what does she say?

"I'm sorry. I think you've got the wrong idea. I think we'd be better off as friends."

Why is she saying that?

Well, the all important sexual spark isn't there.

You get along intellectually and emotionally, but she's not feeling turned on.

Instead, she's enjoying having an intellectual conversation with you and that's about it.

Now, some guys don't like that and when they try to talk to women in an intellectual way and have interesting conversations with them and then end up in the friend zone, a guy will often walk away thinking, "What's wrong with women? Do they just want to talk about stupid, useless things that I hear them talking about with guys that they're actually attracted to, all that playful banter crap? I don't want to talk about that."

Well, a guy like that needs a dating coach like myself to shine a bit of a light on reality and say, "Hey, there's a reason why women like flirting. There's a reason why men who flirt with women are then able to get to a kiss and have sex with a woman."

One of the reasons why flirting is so important, is that it gives a man and a woman an opportunity to interact with each other in a playful way and see what type of chemistry they have in a sexual, playful type of way.

Not just intellectual chemistry and being open minded and discussing very intelligent things.

How about the playful sexual chemistry?

What would a relationship with you feel like?

Would she be happy?

Would she laugh?

Would you and her have fun together, or would it be more of an intellectual type of relationship where you want to discuss serious things all the time?

The thing is, there's nothing wrong with having intellectual, serious, logical, philosophical conversations with women and you really can get into that in the relationship at times, but you also need to be able to offer a woman a bit more of a playful side to yourself because after all, she is a woman.

She doesn't want to be your male buddy where you sit around discussing serious things for 10 hours straight.

That's enjoyable for us men.

We love to talk in detail and get into very intellectual conversations about the meaning of life and so on.

Well, women enjoy that too, but in a relationship, a woman also wants to be able to feel like your girl.

She wants to be able to see that you can flirt with her and you can make her feel a little bit nervous and unsure of herself and excited at the same time, because you're able to put her on the spot with some flirting.

You're able to create a sexual playful vibe between you and her at times.

You're not just serious all the time.

Additionally, what you'll find is that after you've had sex with a woman and she's falling in love with you, then she'll be really interested in hearing about your intellectual ideas, your philosophical ideas and so on.

Yet, prior to then, she wants to be able to see what type of chemistry you and her have in a romantic sense, in a sexual sense.

Is there an enjoyable playful type of chemistry that you and her can vibe on in a relationship, or do you just want to have serious conversations with her all the time?

The third type of guy who can benefit from the help of a dating coach is...

3. The virgin or the guy who avoids sex because he lacks sexual confidence

Now, those are two different types of guys, but the mistake that those two guys make is the same.

The virgin and the guy who avoids sex because he lacks sexual confidence makes a big deal out of sex and thinks that it's a really difficult thing to do.

So, a dating coach like myself can help a guy like that by telling him this. "Listen up. When you slide your penis inside of her vagina, she is going to feel good. She is going to enjoy that sensation. When she sucks you off, she's going to enjoy it, as are you. You're going to enjoy it and she's going to enjoy it. When you lick her out, she's going to enjoy it. You're not going to stuff it up. When you bend her over and you're banging her from behind, she is going to enjoy it and you're going to enjoy it. So just interact with women, make them feel attracted to you. Get to a kiss, have sex and enjoy yourself."

The fourth type of guy who can benefit from a dating coach is...

4. The shy guy who can't work up the courage to talk to women

A shy guy like that needs to understand that pretty much every woman you approach will be friendly, open and will have a conversation with you.

You will sometimes encounter women who immediately close up and don't want to talk to you.

In some cases, that's because you're coming across as insecure and doubting yourself with your body language, vibe and tone of voice, but other times it's because the woman is a bitch.

Not your fault, but generally speaking, pretty much every woman you approach will open up and have a conversation with you, so you're not going to die.

Additionally, when you know how to make women feel attracted to as you talk to them by displaying personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women, then you're going to feel confident about approaching women.

For example: When you know how to make women feel attracted to your confidence, when you know how to use ballsy humor to make women feel attracted to you, when you know how to express your natural charisma, then you're going to be able to make women feel attracted to you.

Once you start doing that, you will see that women find you attractive.

What will happen then?

You won't have any need to be shy anymore.

You'll feel confident about yourself.

You'll see for yourself that women find you attractive and instead of being shy around women, you'll feel excited to talk to them because you will know that you can make them feel attracted to you.

What happens when they feel attracted to you?

Well, then you can get to a kiss, you can have sex and enjoy yourself.

Finally, another type of guy who can benefit from the help of a dating coach is...

5. The confident guy who can't seem to get anywhere with the types of women he really likes

Many guys go through life feeling confident in themselves and their abilities in general life.

Additionally, when they interact with women, they're fine.

They feel confident.

They can talk to women.

They're not afraid of women, but they don't get anywhere with the type of women that they find attractive.

Why?

It's pretty simple.

The guy isn't actively making the woman feel a spark of sexual attraction for him.

Instead, he usually will talk to a woman in a neutral way, so he'll talk to her as a friend and just have a normal friendly conversation with her.

The all important sexual spark will be missing though.

He could be talking to her for 20 minutes and another guy will come along and start talking to her for 30 seconds to a minute and the other guy can take her if he includes the all important sexual spark.

The other guy will make the woman feel a sexual spark for him by using some ballsy humor, flirting with her, being very confident in the way that he talks to her, playfully messing with her and so on.

Additionally, if the confident guy who got rejected was being too nice to the woman and was putting on a bit of an act of being nicer than he actually is, then the other guy can really benefit from that if he is being more real.

The woman will turn to him.

She'll feel interested in him because she will be able to see that that guy is more charismatic.

He's letting his real personality come through and therefore he's more charismatic, he's more interesting, he's more appealing.

She's interacting with the real version of him, but the other guy, she doesn't really know who she is interacting with.

He's putting on a bit of an act.

So, with a confident guy who doesn't really know how to make women feel sexually attracted to him and want him in that way, he can benefit from the advice of a dating coach like myself where I fill in the missing pieces of the puzzle for him.

For example: A confident guy will often get rejected by women because when he meets an attractive woman that he really likes, he'll immediately start to show interest in a relationship.

He'll come across as a guy who is hoping to be her boyfriend and she doesn't want that.

She wants a guy who's more of a challenge.

If he does that with an unattractive woman, then great, she is going to be all for it, but an attractive woman wants a guy who's more of a challenge.

She doesn't want to accept one of the thousand guys who are lining up hoping to get a chance to stick it in her.

She wants a guy that she feels lucky to get with; a guy that she has to try to impress a little bit.

She has to be on her best behavior around him in order to get a chance with him.

Additionally, with confident guys who struggle to make women feel attracted to them, it can also be because the guy is talking to the woman in too much of a neutral way.

He wants to have neutral conversations with women and be friendly, but the all important sexual spark is missing.

So, in cases like that, the guy needs to start adding in ballsy humor, being a bit more playful in the way that he talks with women, being a bit more challenging and letting his real natural charisma come through by being his real self at all times.

So, how about you?

Could you identify with any of the guys that I was talking about in this video?

Were you a mix of some of those?

Were you exactly one of them, or did you give yourself a different title?

For example: With number 4, a shy guy who can't work up the courage to approach and talk to women, could also be a confident guy who can't work up the courage to approach and talk to women.

Some guys are very confident in pretty much every other area of their life, but when it comes to walking up and talking to a woman that they find attractive, well, that's another story altogether.

They don't have that confidence and in that case, a guy can learn from a dating coach like myself to get that confidence so he can get on with having sex and relationships with women of his choosing.

Learn More?

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn more, I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

It includes my best examples of how to start conversations, how to keep conversations going, how to keep conversations interesting, how to make women feel attracted to you, how to use the type of humor that women find attractive, how to be confident around women, how to attract them with your confidence, how to get to a phone number, how to get to a kiss, how to get to a date, how to get to sex and so on.

It also includes examples of what to text a woman when you get her phone number, so she feels attracted to you and wants to go on a date with you.

Improving Your Skills With Women is a Good Thing

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that there's nothing to be embarrassed about when it comes to learning how to attract women and improve your success with women.

In society, we men are expected to just know this stuff and get on with being a man.

Yet, we're not taught this type of thing in school.

We're also not taught it on TV and if you ask women about it, you usually get politically correct answers and you get led astray.

They tell you to just be nice, give the girl compliments, wait and be patient.

Then, you see a guy who is a good guy, but he's not being really nice to women.

He's just being normal.

He's being confident and he's able to attract women and get to kissing and sex right away.

He doesn't have to be patient and be the girl's friend and give her lots of compliments.

He gets with her pretty much right away and he enjoys his choice of women.

That happens because some guys are naturally good with women and get that stuff done easily and just get on with enjoying their life and other guys learn how to do it.

They learn what to say to women to make them feel attracted.

They learn how to get to a phone number, a kiss, sex and date and they enjoy themselves or they get on with enjoying their choice of women.

So, if you're not getting the results that you want with women, don't be embarrassed to start learning.

3 Ways to Attract a Woman You Just Met

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

As you go through your everyday life, you will randomly meet women every now and again.

You'll have an opportunity to attract them and get to sex or relationship.

Yet, if you don't know how to attract women as you talk to them, then you won't be able to capitalize on those opportunities.

You'll end up meeting a woman, you will like her and something could happen between you and her, but because you don't know how to create a spark of attraction inside of her and build on that, then you lose your opportunity with her.

You and her end up going your separate ways and nothing ends up happening.

So, an essential skill to have as a man is to be able to attract women on purpose; to actively make a woman feel attracted to you as you talk to her and to be able to do that at will.

When you have that skill, you're no longer relying on getting lucky on women.

Instead, you know that when you talk to a woman, you're going to be able to make her feel attracted to you as you talk to her.

So, what are some ways that you can do that?

Let's begin with number 1...

1. Attract her with your confidence

An example of attracting her with your confidence is that you don't lose confidence in yourself when she pretends to lose interest in the conversation, or when she teases you to see if you're going to start doubting yourself around her.

So, when a woman pretends to lose interest in talking to a guy, what a guy will usually do is that he will try harder.

He will start to appear tense and unsure of himself.

He will try to seem cooler.

Then, the woman will lose interest because she can sense that he doesn't feel like he is good enough for her.

He doesn't feel confident around her.

On the other hand, a guy who is confident won't start doubting himself when a woman pretends to lose interest in the conversation.

He will have the knowledge that women pretend to lose interest in a conversation to test a guy's confidence.

He will know that he doesn't need to panic.

He will also know that she is going to feel attracted to him when she can see that he's not doubting himself.

When she can see that, no matter how difficult she behaves in the conversation to test his confidence, he doesn't start to doubt himself.

He knows that he's good enough.

He is relaxed and at ease.

He doesn't try hard to be cooler because he already is a cool guy.

He doesn't need to try hard to impress her because he is confident around her.

He knows that he is good enough for her.

Now, the thing is, many guys out there are able to maintain their confidence around a woman that they're not attracted to, or around a woman that they're not trying to hit on and sleep with, such as a woman who is already married, a co-worker, or the girlfriend of one of his friends.

In a case like that, he's not trying to pick the woman up and can feel confident in himself because he's not trying to get anything from her.

He's just hanging out, being himself and being confident.

Yet for many guys, when they talk to a woman that they find attractive and that they have a sexual or romantic interest in, that's when their confidence starts to fall apart.

The guy starts doubting himself.

He starts thinking that he's not good enough for the woman.

As a result, he starts to behave in awkward and nervous ways that ends up turning the woman off.

The thing is, some women will accept a guy who is nervous and insecure, but those women usually aren't the attractive women that a guy really wants to be with.

It's usually unattractive women or it's women who want to manipulate a nervous, insecure, self-doubting guy.

The woman just wants to keep him around for a while, make him fall in love with her and then she's going to break his heart by dumping him or cheating on him when she finds a guy who is more confident than him.

So, if you don't want to end up in a situation where you have to accept unattractive women, or you end up getting with a woman who doesn't really want to be with you anyway and who's just planning on breaking your heart by dumping you or cheating on you, then you need to make sure that you are confident around the types of women that you find attractive.

If you're talking to a woman that you find attractive, you want something to happen with her and you notice that she's losing interest in the conversation or she seems to be becoming a little bit distant; don't panic.

Don't start doubting yourself and think, "I'm losing her. What am I going to do?"

Just relax.

Know that you are good enough and know that if she can see that you're not doubting yourself or panicking because she's pulling back a little bit from the conversation, then she's going to feel attracted to your confidence.

She's going to look at you as one of the rare guys who can maintain his confidence around her, regardless of what she says or does.

By the way, what happens next is really interesting.

When a woman can see that you're not doubting yourself around her and you're able to maintain your confidence, she starts bringing out her easygoing, friendly, nice girl side.

She starts being much more interested and attentive and easygoing.

She becomes an easier pickup.

She stops playing hard to get because she sees that you are a guy who is confident enough for a woman like her.

Another way to attract a woman you just met is to attract her with your masculine vibe or conversation style...

2. Attract her with your masculine vibe or conversation style

Just like a woman's feminine vibe and energy attracts us to her, our masculine vibe and energy attracts women to us.

A mistake that some guys make is to suppress their masculinity and instead, try to be seen as a nice, sweet, friendly and cute type of guy.

A guy who hopes that if he behaves more like the woman that he's interacting with and he is able to get along with her on her level, then she's going to like him.

Yet, suppressing your masculinity around a woman simply makes her see you as just a friend, if anything at all.

Now, there's nothing wrong with being a good guy or being friendly, but she has to feel as though you enjoy being a man and aren't a confused guy who thinks that he needs to be like her in order to be liked by her.

If you can maintain your masculinity around her while also enjoying the interaction, she will feel attracted to you.

You don't have to go overboard and be the most manly guy in the world in order to make a woman feel attracted to your masculinity.

You just need to let her sense that you enjoy being a man and you don't suppress your masculinity out of confusion (i.e. because you think that you have to be like the woman in order to be liked by her), or out of fear (i.e. because you're worried about being judged for being manly).

Now, some guys make the mistake of going too far when trying to express masculinity and they end up acting aloof, or not saying much or anything when talking to a woman to try to prove that they're manly.

Yet, that doesn't work either.

To attract a woman with your masculinity, you need to strike a balance between enjoying the interaction with her and allowing her to sense that she is clearly different to you in terms of energy.

Let her sense that you don't suppress your masculinity out of fear of being judged, or out of confusion of trying to be more like her to be liked by her.

When you can embrace your masculinity and calmly express that in a relaxed manner as you talk to a woman, she will naturally feel attracted to you.

Another way to attract a woman that you just met is to attract her with your sense of humor.

3. Attract her with your sense of humor

Many guys are able to use their natural sense of humor around their family or close friends, but when a guy gets around an attractive woman that is single and he's hoping to sleep with or get into a relationship with, his natural sense of humor is often suppressed.

He wants to use nicer jokes.

He wants to use safer jokes.

He wants to be on his best behavior around her.

He doesn't want to say anything that might offend her or might cause her to feel a bit shocked.

He wants to come across as a nice guy and be liked by her as a person.

Yet, by using that approach, he ends up in the friend zone and if another guy comes along, who is a good guy, but doesn't use nice safe humor and instead has the balls to use some ballsy humor with her to make her feel a bit shocked or nervous around him, then she's going to feel attracted to that guy instead.

So, I'm going to give you some examples now of what to say to use that type of humor that attracts women, but before I do, I just want to talk about the fact that some guys wonder why this type of humor attracts women.

They think, "Why are women attracted to humor from a guy who seems to be messing with her? He's playfully teasing her, he is making fun of her in a way. He's not taking her so seriously. What's going on there?"

Well, one way to answer that question is to say, "Why are we men are attracted to a woman's tits? Why do we like titties?"

There are many psychological and breeding related reasons why we like a woman's titties, but the reality is most men just like tits and that's all they want to think about, "I like tits. I like to grab them. I like to suck them. I like to play with them. I like the shape of them" and so on.

Yet, if you think about it, you might realize that it's quite weird how attracted we feel to a couple of bags of flesh on a woman's chest.

We men feel so attracted to a woman's tits.

Of course, there are psychological reasons why we feel attracted to a woman's tits and you can get into the science of it and realize that it's our body recognizing that she is a fully developed woman that can potentially produce offspring, but that's another story.

Likewise, some guys might find it a bit weird that a woman would feel attracted to a guy who is playfully messing with her, is teasing her and making her feel a little bit nervous about herself and excited at the same time, but that's attraction for you.

Attraction can be a little bit weird to understand on the surface level, but if you dig deep into the psychology of it, it makes total sense.

So, what are some examples of things that you can say to use the type of humor that attracts women?

The first example is where you ask a woman where she's from. "So, where you're from?" [She says that's she's from Richmond, for example].

"You're from Richmond. You know what they say about girls from Richmond? Oh, you don't know?"

Hey, I'm not sure if I should tell you then."

At that point, a woman will be laughing and she'll be interested to know what they say about girls from where she comes from.

You can then just make up something on the spot.

For example: You might say something like, "Well, they say that girls from Richmond are more naughty than nice. I don't know about you, though, you seem nice the naughty."

Alternatively, you might say, "Well, they say that girls from Richmond have really good manners and when they're talking to a guy who has an empty drink, they go and buy him a drink."

Then you look at your empty drink and you have a laugh with her about that.

Another example is where you're talking to a woman, she's enjoying the conversation with you and is laughing and then say something like, "I like you."

You can then say something like this. "Thanks. I like me too."

Alternatively, you might playfully say something like this, "No...you don't like me. You like, like me, don't you?"

Talking to her in that way brings her back to her school yard memories of having a crush on a guy that she really liked.

If you can remember when you're back at school, someone might have asked you, "Do you like her, or do you like, like her?"

As you may remember, that's the sort of language that very young people use when they like another person in a romantic way.

Another example is where you're talking to a woman at a house party, or a wedding reception, or you're at a bar, or something like that, where she's having a few drinks.

She might be a bit tipsy and she might then stumble and touch you.

Some women do that because they want to show interest in you.

Some women show interest in guys in very weird ways and they try to flirt like that and just accidentally stumble and then touch you on the chest and say, "Oh, sorry," sort of thing to show that they are interested in you.

Pretty weird, but, you know, that's women for you.

They do some weird things at times.

So, if you're talking to a woman and she accidentally stumbles and then touches you, or she purposely accidentally stumbles and then touches you, you can then say playfully something like this. "Oh, so you're throwing yourself at me now. Jeez, settle down, girl."

Alternatively, you might playfully say something like this, "Whoa, okay. Someone can't handle their alcohol."

Essentially, you're playfully messing with her.

You're not one of those desperate guys who are on their best behavior.

If a woman stumbles and touches them, the guy's like, doesn't do anything about it and just thinks, "Well, I can't say anything about that. She might think it's rude. She might think that I'm assuming she likes me and blah, blah, blah."

The guy just wants to be nice.

He just wants to be really good to her and hope that she's going to like him as a person.

Yet, what you need to understand as a man is that you can CREATE feelings of attraction inside of a woman.

You can make a woman feel attracted to you based on how you talk to her, how you behave around her and how you get her to behave around you.

So, for example: If a woman accidentally stumbled and then touched you on your chest and you then said, "Oh, so you're throwing yourself at me now." and she then said, "No, no, no, I just accidentally stumbled."

You can then smile and playfully say something like this, "Yeah, yeah, I believe you. Okay. Smooth."

Now, it's important to point out that you're only joking with that sort of thing.

You're not being serious and saying that you are seriously accusing her of hitting on you because she stumbled and touched you.

You're not being serious about it.

You're just joking around.

You don't feel the need to be on your best behavior around her.

You're confident in yourself, you know that you're good enough for her and as a result, you don't need to suck up to her and try to win her over.

You know that you're good enough for her.

Okay, so a final example of this type of humor is where you're talking to a woman in a bar, or at a party, or some sort of social event and then you say something like this. "You know, you're the prettiest girl in this bar. Actually, second prettiest. Wait, wait, wait, wait, third prettiest. Nah, never mind. I like you for who you are."

At that point, she is most likely going to be laughing and you can then tell her that you're just kidding and you think she's very pretty.

Then, you can get on with the conversation.

She's going to be feeling attracted to the fact that you are a confident guy who can make her laugh and you're not on your best behavior around her, sucking up to her and hoping to get a chance with her.

You're not one of those type of guys.

You are a man who believes in himself.

You are so confident in yourself that you don't feel the need to be on your best behavior around an attractive woman.

You have the balls to playfully mess with her and joke around with her.

You have the balls to use that type of humor that makes her feel a bit nervous, makes her feel a bit unsure of yourself, but at the same time, she feels excited, she feels happy, she feels interested and she wants to keep talking to you.

A lot of guys don't want to make women feel that way when they're talking to them.

They just want to make a woman feel nice, neutral, emotions and hope that something happens and that's why so many guys don't get anywhere when they meet women and want to have sex with them or have a relationship with them.

There's just no sexual spark and it feels more like a friendly, neutral interaction.

What you need to understand is that as a man, you can CREATE a spark with a woman.

You can literally MAKE HER feel sparks of attraction for you as you talk to her.

You can then build on that attraction and get to a kiss and have sex with her on the first night or get her phone number, set up a date, have sex and get into a relationship.

Learn more?

Okay, I hope you've enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn more, I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow also includes examples of what to text a woman after you get her phone number, so she feels attracted to you and wants to go on a date with you.

Men all over the world have used my flow method to enjoy their choice of women and you can do it too.

Additionally, if you'd like to learn even more than what you learn in The Flow and you want to get even more examples of what to say, even more techniques for being confident, even more techniques for making women feel attracted to you and want to be with you, then you can get one of The Flow Booster Packs.

Women Want Love and Sex Too, But They Need to Feel a Spark First

One final point that I want to make for you in this video is that sometimes you'll meet a woman who is open to something happening between you and her and is hoping that there is going to be a spark between you and her, but when there isn't, she then goes home, is single and alone and wonders why she can't find herself a guy who she feels a spark with.

In most cases, it's because the guy she meets are either being too neutral with her or being too nice. They're just talking to her in a friendly way, or they're just being nice to her and hoping that something happens.

So, if you want to attract a woman that you've just met, make sure that you are ready to make her feel sparks of attraction as you talk to her.

Don't make the mistake of being Mr. Neutral who just wants to have friendly, formal, polite conversations with her and don't make the mistake of being Mr. Nice who wants to suck up to her and hope to get a chance with her because you're showing her how good of a guy you are.

Instead, be the good guy that you are while also displaying personality traits and behaviors that naturally attract women.

When you do that and you see that it works, you will then realize that you have been good enough for women all along.

You have met women that you could have hooked up with sexually or got into a relationship with, but you didn't create a spark and as a result, you and her went your separate ways.

Yet, now that you can attract women as you talk to them, you're able to make women feel a spark for you.

They feel sexually and romantically attracted to and they want something to happen.

Are You Good Enough For Pretty Women?

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

Are you good enough for pretty, attractive women?

When you look at photos like this, do you think that you're not good enough for these women, or do you say to yourself, "Yes, I am good enough. If I met a woman like this, I could easily talk to her and feel confident."

What do you think and feel when you see photos of pretty women?

Do you think that you're good enough for them, or do you think that you're not good enough?

I hope that when you see pretty women you believe that you are good enough for them.

Unfortunately, in today's world so many guys go through life thinking that they're not good enough for women...yet.

A guy will say to himself, "I need to build up my career and then women will like me. I need to build up my muscle and then women will like me. I need to move to a new apartment or house with better furniture, in a better location and then women are going to like me."

Yet, due to the way that he perceives women, he ends up developing insecurities about himself and he almost never feels good enough for women.

Even when he gets the muscle, he still feels like he's not good enough.

For example: A guy will build up some more muscle and then he'll go out with his friends to meet women, or he'll try to use online dating, or he'll try to meet women through whatever situation he can and he'll find that he's still getting the same kind of results with women (i.e. not getting laid, not getting a girlfriend or only being able to attract unattractive women).

He's built up the muscle.

He thought he was going to make women fawn all over him, but they're not.

Of course, some women may grab at his biceps at times when they're talking to him and say, "Well now, you've got big arms," but it doesn't go anywhere.

The women aren't saying to him, "Okay, you've got big biceps, therefore, we need to have sex right now."

It's just not happening for him.

So, what does he think?

He thinks that he's not good enough for women...yet.

He's got to make more money.

He's got to move to a better location.

He's got to get a better car and then women are going to like him.

Now, a guy like that might try to then make some of those improvements in his life, but if he's paying attention, what he'll notice is that other guys who don't even have those things are able to get laid and get a girlfriend.

The reason why, is that the guy who goes through life thinking that he's not good enough yet, gives women the impression that he is trying to live up to their standards, in order to hopefully get a chance with them.

A guy like that is hoping that when he says his occupation or says where he lives, when he talks about his location, that the women are going to say, “Wow, you live there?” or, “Wow, your work is that? Okay, cool I’m interested.”

He hopes that the woman is then going to be easy.

Yet, what he finds is that women that he finds attractive aren’t making it easy for him.

Of course, if he says it to an unattractive woman then she’s going to be happy about that.

She’s going to be happy about the fact that a high-quality guy sees himself as not being good enough for her and he’s hoping to impress her by telling her about his occupation, his location or trying to impress her by having some muscles or whatever.

She is looking at him thinking, “Cool, a guy that doesn’t know his value, I can get this guy.”

She then latches onto him.

Yet, an attractive woman doesn’t react in that way.

Even though the most attractive women won’t go around admitting it, what they really want is a guy who sees himself as being more than good enough for them.

A guy who knows that he is good enough for the attractive woman, but he’s also a good guy.

The way that it works is that some attractive women are extremely picky and will only accept a rich guy who is famous, or a rich guy who is really good looking, has the perfect body and lives an amazing lifestyle.

Yet, those women really are the minority.

They are not the 95% of attractive women, they are the 5%.

Some people refer to women like that as gold-diggers.

Those women exist.

Those women have an agenda, that is true.

Yet, for most attractive women out there, they are more than happy to invest their time and invest themselves in a guy that has potential.

He doesn’t already have to be successful.

If that wasn’t true, then no guy working as a bartender, a waiter, an office clerk or anything like that would be able to get laid or get a girlfriend.

So, the reality is that most attractive women are more than happy to invest their time and themselves in a guy who has potential.

Potential is a very important word here.

It doesn’t mean that you have to absolutely succeed and become a massive success because most people don’t become a massive success in life.

Most people live fairly ordinary lives and most attractive women are in a boyfriend-girlfriend relationship with the guy who is living a fairly ordinary life, or are married to a man who is living a fairly ordinary life.

In fact, many couples meet before the man ever becomes successful in life.

Many couples meet when they are still trying to figure out who they are, what they want in life, where they want to go and so on.

What you need to understand as a man is that it's a huge waste of time and energy to try to build yourself up with muscles, with career and with living in an amazing location to hopefully be good enough for a woman one day.

There's nothing wrong with going to the gym.

There's nothing wrong with building up your career.

There's nothing wrong with living in a nice location, but if you're doing those things to hopefully be good enough for women one day, then you're doing it wrong.

The reality is that you are already good enough for the majority of women out there.

Don't get me wrong though.

I'm not saying there aren't women out there who will only accept a rich guy, who is already successful.

Those women exist, but the majority of women will happily accept and fall in love with and stay with a man who has potential, a guy who may succeed one day.

That doesn't mean that the guy has to do all the work and she just has to come along for the ride.

It may be a case of them both working together to create a secure future for themselves together.

Alternatively, it might be a case of them both working towards being able to get a house together, being able to start a family together and when she does give birth to children, she's able to stay at home and look after the kids for maybe the first two years of their life and then she has to go back to work or whatever.

It's not about the man having to do everything, have everything and be everything and then he's going to be good enough for women.

Don't go down that path in life.

If you go down that path in life, you will inevitably attract women who are gold-diggers, who want to use you and take advantage of you.

Surely, you don't want those type of women.

Surely, you want a woman who loves you and is attracted to you and respects you for who you are right now and who you could potentially become in the future.

So, even though you're going to become an even better man in the future, don't let that hold you back from living your life, enjoying sex and relationships with women because you think that you're not good enough yet.

Don't think that you going to be good enough one day in the future.

Know that you are good enough now.

When you know that you are good enough now, you exude the type of confidence that women are naturally attracted to.

Women see that you are a guy who believes in himself and you are also a guy who has a vision for your future.

You know what you want in future.

You know that you're going to try to head in a particular direction in life and succeed at something.

You don't have to have already succeeded.

You just have to be a man who believes in himself and knows that he's good enough right now.

So, how can you show that to a woman when you talking to her?

Well, don't try to impress her with your credentials.

Don't try to say, "I work as this" and then hope that it impresses her.

Don't try to say, "Hey, I'm working on this project and I'm going to be really successful in the future" to hopefully impress her.

Don't say, "I live in this location" and then hope that it's going to impress her.

Just know that you are already good enough right now as you are without even saying anything to her.

If you can honestly feel that and believe it, then it's going to come through in your body language.

It's going to come through in your vibe.

It's going to come through in the way that you talk to her and she is going to respect you for it.

She is going to look at you as a high-value guy.

You're not like other guys who are hoping to suck up to her and live up to her standards in order to get a chance with her.

You already know that you are good enough for her.

Now, of course, if a guy does work in a great job, does live in a great location, does have muscles, does have a nice car or anything like that, then it's going to be something that is extra and appealing about him and so on.

Yet, what you need to understand is that the majority of guys out there do not work in a high-flying job, live in an expensive apartment or home, drive an expensive car and so on.

The majority of guys out there are just normal everyday guys going through life, but they're still able to get laid and get a girlfriend.

In many cases, you will see them with very attractive women and you wonder what is going on there.

In most cases, the guy doesn't have that mindset where he thinks, "I need to have all of these things in place in my life before I'll be good enough for a woman."

He knows that he's already good enough for women right now as he is and then he just gets on with enjoying sex and relationships with women.

Learn More?

Okay, I hope you've enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn my step-by-step method for approaching women, making them feel attracted to you, building on their attraction and getting to a phone number, kiss, date or sex, then go ahead and read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

When you read The Flow or listen to The Flow on Audio, you will learn exactly what to say and do, to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

The Flow includes my best examples of how to start conversations, how to keep conversations going, how to keep conversations interesting, how to make women feel intense attraction for you as you talk to them and then get to a kiss and sex that night or get her phone number, set up a date, go on a date with her, have sex with her and start a relationship.

When you use The Flow approach on women, everything flows from one step to the next, naturally and easily.

You don't get stuck with a woman playing games and playing hard to get, because she is attracted to you, she wants you and she wants something to happen between you and her.

Improve Yourself, But Always Know That You Are Already Good Enough For Most Women Out There

One final point that I want to make for you in this video is that there's nothing wrong with building up your career.

There's nothing wrong with being ambitious and trying to become a success in life.

There's nothing wrong with going to the gym and building up some muscle and there's also nothing wrong with getting a nice place, living in a nice area, driving a nice car and so on.

Additionally, it is true that those things can improve a guy's attractiveness to women, but when a guy improves those things in his life and he still thinks that he's not good enough for women yet, it doesn't improve his success with women.

He still gets the same result.

He still comes across as a guy who doesn't think that he's good enough for attractive women.

Attractive women don't want that.

An unattractive woman will want that because she thinks, "Cool, a guy who doesn't know his value, I'll latch onto him."

Yet, if you want to have sex with an attractive woman or have her as your girlfriend, you have to believe that you're good enough for her right now.

3 Practical Tips on How to Get a Girlfriend

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

So, how do you get a girlfriend?

How do you meet a beautiful, pretty woman, make her want to be your girlfriend and then get into a relationship with her?

In this video, I'm going to give you 3 practical tips on how to make that happen.

Let's begin with number 1...

1. Meet a woman and make her feel sexually attracted to you

Sometimes you'll meet a woman and she will like you immediately without you having to do anything.

That's called getting lucky.

Yet, what if you meet a woman and there isn't that instant spark between you and her?

What if she doesn't immediately like you and wants something to happen?

Well, that's where you make her feel attracted to you.

You make her feel a spark of sexual attraction for you and you build on it as you talk to her.

When a guy is struggling to get himself a girlfriend, this is usually the number 1 mistake that he is making.

He meets women, feel sexually attracted to them and doesn't say or do anything during the interaction to make the woman feel sexually attracted and turned on by him.

He's just being friendly and neutral and hoping that something happens.

He's hoping that he's going to get lucky.

Yet, when a guy uses that approach, he's usually single and alone for months or even many years at a time.

Just being friendly and neutral is not a reliable strategy to get a girlfriend.

What you may have noticed is that some guys, when they meet women, are able to start talking to them and sparks fly immediately between themselves and the woman.

You might have also noticed that the guy is able to do that with most of the women that he meets.

Most of the women that he talks to, he's able to create a spark with them.

He gets them laughing, giggling and showing interest in him.

They like him.

They see him as being attractive.

So, what's going on there?

Well, the guy isn't relying on hopefully getting lucky.

What he's doing is that he is talking to the women in a way that makes them feel sexually attracted.

That is something that you can do.

So, to help you understand how it works, I'll first give you an example of how I would talk to a woman if I was only being friendly and neutral and I wasn't intending on creating a spark between myself and the woman.

"Hey, how you doing? I'm Dan. What's your name? Jenny? Nice to meet you, Jenny. So what do you do? You work as a nurse. Alright, so you like to help people. How long you been doing that? That's cool."

Talking to a woman in that way does not make her feel sexually attracted and turned on.

Now, let's try a different approach to the conversation.

"Hey, how you doing? I'm Dan. What's your name? Jenny? Jenny in the black dress. You know...there are a few women here tonight wearing black dresses, but you really pull it off. It's working for you."

She then says, "Thanks" or laughs and is flattered.

"So Jenny, what do you do? You're a nurse, alright. So you like hurting people then?"

She then might be thinking, "Huh? I like hurting people. What do you mean?" and she might say something about that.

You can then smile, laugh and say, "You'd be a mean nurse, I can tell. I can see it now. 'Excuse me, Mister Patient. I'm going to insert the syringe right now. It might hurt a little bit.' That's you, isn't it? You'd be a mean nurse. No, I'm just kidding. You seem like you'd be a sweet, nice type of nurse, but would you be? What type of nurse are you?"

Here's another approach to the conversation that will spark some attraction.

"Hey, how you doing? I'm Dan. What's your name? Jenny? That name suits you. You look like a Jenny" and then have a laugh with her about that.

"So, Jenny, what do you do? You're a nurse? You don't look like a nurse."

She will then ask you what does she look like, what type of profession you think she does and you can say something playful.

"Well, I wasn't thinking nurse. I was thinking more like a mechanic or something like that."

Now, if she's a feminine woman, she's going to laugh at that.

She's going to know that she doesn't look like she's a motor mechanic who gets her hands greased up and isn't able to grow her nails long or anything like that.

She's going to know that you're joking.

You can then reach out to check her hands and say, "Alright, well, let me see your hands just to make sure. Yeah, right, okay, they're nice, soft hands...nice nails. You're definitely not a motor mechanic" and have a laugh with her about that.

By talking to her in that manner, it brings out her girly side.

It makes her show her fun, easygoing, playful side rather than you having a serious conversation with her about what she does for a living and what her name is. "Hi, what's your name? Jenny? Oh, Jenny. How you doing and what do you do? Oh, you're a nurse. Oh, that's nice and what hospital do you work at? Oh, really? How long you been working there for?"

There's no spark between you and the woman when you talk to her in a formal, neutral way like that. So, by talking to her in the way that I demonstrated earlier you're turning the interaction into something that's much more easygoing and fun.

You're also turning an otherwise boring, forgettable conversation about what her name is and what she does for a living into something that's going to create a connection between you and her, into something that's going to be much more fun for you and her to get involved in.

Now, one thing to point out is that you don't have to talk to a woman like that all the time.

You just need to be able to add that type of thing in to conversations.

When you do, what you'll notice is that many of the women you meet feel attracted to you and they show you their girly side.

They show you their more easygoing, playful side.

They show you interest.

They open up to the interaction and they feel attracted to you.

Yet, if you just talk to women in a friendly neutral type of way and try to have serious conversations all the time, then you're not going to be making most of the women that you meet feel a spark for you.

You might be able to get lucky every now and again when you meet a woman and you don't have to do anything and she likes you, but that is not a consistent reliable approach to get a girlfriend.

If you want to have your choice of women, you need to be able to make them feel attracted to you as you talk to them.

2. Don't ask her if she's looking for a boyfriend

A common mistake that guys make when trying to get themselves a girlfriend is that they meet a woman, feel sexually attracted to her and immediately begin to want to have her as a girlfriend (i.e. he is smitten, falls in love at first sight).

The guy then starts asking questions like, "So are you looking for a boyfriend right now?" or, "What do you look for in a boyfriend?" or, "What do you look for in a man?" and so on.

He's essentially saying to her, "I want to be your boyfriend. Can you tell me what you're looking for?" or, "If you're looking for a boyfriend, then I'm going to try to be your boyfriend."

Asking questions like that puts too much pressure on the situation and the woman.

It's also a little bit outdated.

Back in the 1800s and the early 1900s, when a woman would save herself for marriage, a man needed to ask her if she wanted to be with him.

In most cases, he then needed to ask her father for permission to marry her.

Obviously, the dating scene has changed.

The world has moved on from being virgins at marriage.

It still happens in some places around the world, but for the most part, the way that it works these days is that a man and a woman get to a first kiss, they then have sex and then they start to date for a while and then they get into a relationship.

Sometimes a man and a woman meet and they get into a relationship immediately.

It just happens immediately.

Yet, for the most part when you meet a woman, if you want her to be your girlfriend, then get to a first kiss, have sex with her, start dating and you'll naturally get into a relationship with her.

You don't need to ask her questions like, "So, are you looking for a boyfriend right now?" because a woman will almost always say "No" or say that she's not sure or say that she's just enjoying life and has no plans on settling down.

She doesn't want to come across as too easy.

She also doesn't want to be forced to make a final decision about whether or not she wants to get into a relationship with a guy right now.

She wants to start dating him and see how it goes.

So, when you're dating her and having sex with her, if the feelings between you and her are growing stronger and stronger, you will naturally get into a relationship.

Yet, for most women, prior to that, they don't want to commit to the idea of being your girlfriend.

If you were trying to get a woman to commit to being your girlfriend and are trying to live up to her expectations to hopefully achieve that, then she's going to play hard-to-get and she's probably not going to want to get into a committed relationship with you, which leads me to tip number 3...

3. Let her be the one who is trying to get you to commit

Sometimes you'll meet a woman and both you and her will commit to each other immediately.

It'll just flow perfectly, smoothly and you won't need to do anything.

Yet, as I said earlier, that's called getting lucky and it usually doesn't happen with the women that you're the most attracted to.

So, to take control of the situation, you need to know how to make her really want to be your girlfriend.

One of the ways to do that is to let her be the one who is trying to get you to commit.

This is where so many guys mess up with an attractive woman.

They meet an attractive woman, they start to fall in love with her right away and they really want to get to be her boyfriend.

They start to imagine a great future with her and are trying to live up to her expectations to hopefully be accepted as her boyfriend.

Yet, what that does is that it gives the woman too much power in the situation.

She starts playing harder to get than she actually is.

So, the way that you have to approach it is to make her feel sexually attracted to you, get to a kiss, get to sex and then make sure that you're not trying to push for a committed relationship.

If you don't push for a committed relationship, you're going to get it because she is going to want it.

As a result, it's going to be about you allowing her to be your girlfriend rather than you having to try really hard, impress her, live up to all of her increasing expectations and demands in order to hopefully be her boyfriend.

The thing is some guys find it really difficult to be the one who allows her to try to get him to commit.

Some guys find that difficult because they think, “Oh, that’s cruel. I don’t want to do that to her. I want to show her that I’m completely committed to her. I want to show her how special she is to me and how much I love her.”

Yes, that can work with some women, but with most attractive women that you meet, their dream is to be able to meet a guy who makes them feel like they need to live up to his expectations.

She has to be on her best behavior.

She has to impress him.

She has to turn on her charm and be a really good girl to him in order to be his girlfriend.

When you approach it in that way, she gets what she really wants and you get what you really want which is a great girlfriend.

You want a girlfriend who loves you, respects you, feels attracted to you and wants to be a good girl for you.

So, if you want to bring out that side of her, make sure that you make her feel a lot of attraction for you, get to a kiss, have sex with her and then don’t push for a relationship.

Let her be the one who is trying to get you to commit to her then it’s about you allowing her to be your girlfriend.

Learn More?

Okay, I hope you’ve enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you’d like to learn more, I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

The Flow includes all of my best examples of how to start conversations, how to keep conversations going, how to keep conversations interesting, how to make women feel sexually attracted to you and turned on by you as you interact with them, how to create an unforgettable connection between you and a woman, how to touch her for the first time in a way that she welcomes and feels turned on by, how to get her phone number, how to get a first kiss, how to get a date, how to get to sex on the first date.

Additionally, it also includes techniques on how to get to a first kiss and sex on the first night if you want to take that route instead.

When you read The Flow or listen to The Flow on Audio, you will know what to say and do at each step of the way with a woman so you don’t get stuck.

You are always able to flow from one step to the next, so you can get to kissing, sex and then into a relationship if you want that as well.

Make it Easy For Yourself

One final point that I want to make for you in this video is that getting a girlfriend really is easy when you approach it in the right way.

So many good guys get rejected by women because they approach the interaction in the wrong way.

They start talking to a woman and are just being friendly, nice and neutral.

The guy is hoping that something happens between himself and the woman.

In other words, he's hoping to get lucky.

Additionally, some guys start talking to a woman and they see her as being way more valuable than themselves so they are extra nice to her, they are more polite and they try to impress her and live up to her standards.

The woman can sense it and she knows that the guy is hoping to get a chance with her, so she starts thinking of herself as being better than him, even though she isn't.

He is making her feel that way based on his approach to the interaction.

The right way to approach getting a girlfriend is to see yourself as being good enough and then back that up, by making women feel attracted to you as you talk to them.

When you do that, you will see that many of the women you meet feel attracted to you.

They feel a spark.

You can then honestly, sincerely believe that you are good enough because when you interact with women, you make them feel attracted.

It's happening all the time.

When you approach it in that way, you can then enjoy your choice of women.

You can choose your girlfriend, rather than having to just accept whatever you can get.

You get to choose an attractive girlfriend and then based on the approach that you're using, she tries to get you to commit to her, so it's about you allowing her to be your girlfriend.

4 Ways to Know if the Girl You Are Dating is the One For You

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

So, how can you know if the girl that you're dating is the right one for you?

Sometimes you start dating a woman and you're having sex with her and it feels good at the start, but eventually, she shows you a side of herself that you don't really like.

Then you start to think, "Is she the right girl for me? Should I start dating other women at the same time? Should I dump her, or should I stick with it and see if it gets better?"

What should you do?

How do you know if the girl that you're dating is the right one for you, she's worth sticking with and if you settle down with her, you would be happy with her?

Well, based on more than a decade of my own personal experience enjoying my choice of women and now having settled down with my perfect girl, here are 4 ways to know if the girl that you're dating is the right one for you...

1. She treats you well, loves you, cares about you and is interested in your life

If you're going to get into a committed relationship with a woman, then you shouldn't accept anything less than that.

If she doesn't live up to those type of qualities, she doesn't deserve to be your girlfriend.

Of course, if you're just sleeping with a woman for something to do, for a bit of fun and you don't have any plans of sticking with her, then you don't really need to worry about those things.

As long as you're enjoying the sex and enjoying each other's company, everything is fine.

Yet, if you're going to have a committed relationship with a woman, then she should treat you well, she should love you, she should care about you and she should be interested in your life.

You shouldn't accept anything less than that.

The way that it works is that when you are a good guy and treat your woman well, but also expect her to treat you well, love you, care about you and to be interested in your life (or else you won't want to remain committed to her), then it brings out the best side of her.

She wants to be a good girl for you because you are being a good man for her and you also behave in a way that makes her look up to you and respect you.

You don't allow her to walk all over you, to treat you badly and to not care about you and take any interest in your life, just so you get to be with her.

You're not one of those type of guys.

When a guy is willing to accept a woman's bad behavior and he's always trying to hopefully get her to love him by doing more and more for her and being super interested in her life, it brings out her bad side.

She starts being moody, selfish, frustrated, annoyed, etc.

So, if you are dating a woman that you find attractive and that you want to be with and she also treats you well, loves you, cares about you and is interested in your life, then she's a keeper.

Another way to know if the girl that you're dating is the right one for you is that...

2. You don't secretly think about leaving her for another woman

No matter how hot your girlfriend or wife is, you will always look at other women and find them attractive.

Yet, when you are with the girl who is the right one for you, you will look at other women, find them attractive, but not want to be with them.

So, when a guy is in a relationship with a woman that he's not sincerely attracted to and he's only with because he can't get anything else, he is too afraid to leave her or needs someone to help pay the rent or something like that, then he will be looking at other women, finding them attractive and wishing that he could be with them instead.

Now, there is an exception to this.

Sometimes a man is in a relationship or a marriage with a woman who is the right woman for him, but they're no longer having sex anymore.

Sex is infrequent or it's not happening at all.

In cases like that, a man will start to look at other women, find them attractive, want to have sex with them and even want to leave to be with the other woman.

In cases like that, it doesn't necessarily mean that the woman he is with isn't the one for him.

If he wants to, rather than leaving her, he can instead fix the sexual attraction problem in the relationship and as a result, things will get back on track once again.

In order to do that, he needs to start to make some subtle changes in the way that he interacts with his woman, so he creates a dynamic in the relationship that naturally makes them both feel sexually attracted to each other.

If he doesn't make any changes and just wants to continue on doing what he's doing in the relationship, then he's most likely going to continue looking at other women, finding them attractive, wanting to have sex with them and wanting to get out of the relationship he is in to be with a new woman.

So, in terms of dating, if you've been dating a woman for 3 months and you're not looking at other women wishing that you could be with them, then she could be the one for you.

If you've been dating her for 6 months and you're still not looking at other women wishing that you could be with them, then she really could be the one for you.

If you've been with her for a few years and you're still not looking at other women wishing that you could be with them because you're so happy with her, then she's almost certainly the right girl for you.

So, you're safe to settle down with a girl like that.

Of course, you don't have to settle down if you don't want to.

Not every guy has to settle down and be with one woman and stick with her for life, but I can tell you from my personal experience enjoying my choice of women for over a decade that it was a lot of fun sleeping with loads of different women and having 4 or 5 women in my life at once, but it's just as fun and sometimes even more fun being completely settled down with my perfect girl.

So, if you've been dating a woman for a while and you're not secretly planning on replacing her if you can find another girl, then she's probably the right girl for you and if the relationship continues to get better and better over time, then you and her have a really good chance of sticking together for life.

The next way to know if the girl that you're dating is the right one for you is that...

3. She is your type physically and emotionally

If a woman isn't really your type physically or emotionally, then you will get bored of having sex with her and spending quality time with her.

As a result, the relationship will start to feel awkward and forced for the both of you.

Yet, when you are with a woman who is your type, physically and emotionally, you will naturally find her attractive, treat her well and want to progress to further levels in the relationship.

You will want to build a future together.

So, if you're dating a woman and you find yourself losing interest in treating her well or you stop finding her attractive, then it's almost certainly a sign that she's not the right girl for you.

Every man can make his own choice, but what I recommend is that you only settle down with a woman that you're honestly, sincerely attracted to.

If you're not honestly, sincerely attracted to her then you're not going to have a good time with her in the long run.

4. She loves you the way that you are, but you also feel inspired to become an even better man because of her

Every man has the opportunity to improve himself and become an even more effective man as he goes through his life.

He doesn't need a woman to be the inspiration for that.

However, a woman can be one of the things that really inspires you as a man to become even better and more effective as a man than you already are today.

What usually happens is that when a man finds the woman who is the right woman for him and that he is honestly sincerely attracted to, then she will bring out the best in him and he will bring out the best in her.

She will love him, respect him, feel attracted to him and want to be a good girl for him and he will love her, respect her, feel attracted to her and want to be a good man for her.

As a result, the relationship will work.

Both of them will be completely committed to the relationship.

They will be honestly, sincerely attracted to each other and they will go on to build a great future together.

So, if you're dating a woman and she loves you for who you are right now, but you also feel inspired to become an even better man because of her, then she's almost certainly the right girl for you.

She's bringing the best out of you and as long as you don't accept bad treatment of you and bad behavior towards you, then you're going to bring out the best in her.

She's going to feel inspired to be a good woman for you.

Learn More?

Okay, I hope you've enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn more, I have 2 recommendations for you.

The first recommendation is for the single guys who want to get laid and get a girlfriend and the second recommendation is for guys who are in a relationship with a woman or guys who want to get into a relationship with a woman and keep the relationship together for life.

The first recommendation is my eBook The Flow, which is also available on audio (The Flow on Audio).

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

When you read The Flow or listen to The Flow on Audio, you will learn my best examples of how to start conversations with women, how to keep conversations going, how to keep conversations interesting, how to make women feel sexually attracted to you as you talk to them, how to create an unforgettable connection between you and a woman, how to touch her for the first time in a way that she welcomes and feels attracted to, how to get her phone number, how to get a kiss, how to get to a date, how to get to sex and so on.

The second recommendation is my program, Make Her Love You For Life, which is available on video or audio.

When you watch or listen to the program, you will learn exactly how to make your woman respect you, feel sexually attracted to you and be totally in love with you for life.

Choose Your Woman Wisely

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is to point out the fact that this is your life and you get to decide how it plays out.

If you accept women that you're not honestly, sincerely attracted to, then you are not going to live the best life that you could live.

You're going to end up feeling unhappy with the woman that you have.

You're going to be looking at other women wishing that you had them and feeling down about yourself.

Yet, when it comes to a relationship, if you only accept a woman that you're honestly, sincerely attracted to, then the sex is going to be so much better, you are going to feel so much better about yourself and the love is going to be so much more real, powerful and fulfilling.

Every man can choose to do whatever he wants with his life, but when it comes to relationships with women, I recommend that you don't cheat yourself out of having a woman that you're honestly, sincerely attracted to.

Additionally, if you're going to commit to a woman, make sure that she treats you well, loves you, cares about you and is interested in your life.

Don't accept anything less than that.

Attracting and Dating a Woman Who is Out of Your League

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

In some cases, a woman is out of your league because it's a very difficult or near impossible pickup, like she's a Victoria's Secret model or something like that.

Yet, in pretty much every other case, it's an easy pickup if you just make a couple of changes.

So, in most cases, a woman is going to be out of your league when you see her as being too pretty for you, or too beautiful for you when she's actually not.

She is in your league, but you're looking at her as being too good for you.

In other cases, a woman is going to be out of your league when you're not yet at the level where you can handle interactions with her.

You'll be talking with her and she'll say something that catches you off guard and you won't really know what to say.

You're stuck, lost for words and you don't really know how to handle the situation.

Thankfully, in both of those cases, you can make a quick fix and successfully attract the woman.

So, in this video, I'm going to give you 3 tips on how to attract and date a woman who is out of your league, so she's no longer out of your league and instead she's in your bed, with her leg spread. Tip number 1...

1. Know that a woman's type changes based on who she dates, has sex with, or has a relationship with

If you ask a woman what her type of guy is, she will usually be able to answer that and tell you a whole list of qualities, but those qualities will change based on who she dates, has sex with and has a relationship with.

For example: You might have heard some women say about their boyfriend or husband, "I wasn't initially attracted to him, but once we talked there was a spark between us, we fell in love and the rest is history."

What the woman is saying there, is that the guy wasn't her type initially.

When she saw him, she didn't think, "Wow, that guy's handsome, I want to be with him," but when they talked to each other, the man was able to interact with her in such a way that created a spark between himself and her.

He was then able to build on the attraction that they felt for each other and they fell in love and have stayed together ever since.

The same applies for guys, by the way.

Many guys go through life saying, "I just like blondes" or, "I only like brunettes" or, "I only sleep with women from this particular race" or, "I only like tall women or short women."

Yet, if a guy has been sleeping with nothing but blondes and he then meets a woman with dark brown hair and really feels attracted to her and loves her, then his type is going to start to change.

He will begin to prefer that type of woman because that type of woman makes him feel more attraction.

So, it's important to understand that when you meet a woman who you perceive to be out of your league, or you think that she wouldn't date a guy like you, her type can change.

Just like your type can change in women if you sleep with different types of women, her type can change too.

If you interact with her and you make her feel attracted to you as you talk to her, then she's going to look at you as a guy that she is attracted to.

She's going to start thinking, "Wow, I really like this guy. I like the way that he looks. I'm not normally into guys like him, but this guy seems kind of cute. I like him."

She then opens herself up to what can happen next.

Whether that be you get her phone number and set up a date, or you get to a first kiss on the first day or night that you meet her, or you have sex on the first night, or you get to a date and have sex and start a relationship.

If you then get into a relationship with her and she falls in love with you, then you are going to be her new type.

She loves you and everything about you, even though she previously didn't think that she was interested in guys who looked like you do.

Now she is in love with you, having sex with you all week, going to the movies with you and planning a future with you.

She's your girl now.

2. Know that if you pass most of a woman's confidence tests, you're better than 99% of guys that she has met

Here's the thing...

If you want an unattractive woman for a girlfriend, then she's usually not going to put you through confidence tests.

She's not going to worry about whether or not you're confident enough for a girl like her because she just wants to get yourself a guy.

Yet, if you want attractive women for sex or relationships, then they are going to put you through confidence tests.

An attractive woman wants to know how confident you really are.

Do you honestly believe that you are good enough for her, or are you just hoping to get a chance with her and hoping that she will be gentle and nice and sweet with you and support you all of the way?

She needs to know how confident you really are.

So, what an attractive woman will do, is that she'll be a bit challenging at times.

She'll try to catch you off guard and see if she can make you lose confidence in yourself.

If you don't lose confidence in yourself, maintain your confidence and know that you are good enough for her, then you are going to be better than 99% of the guys that she has met in her life.

Pretty much every guy that an attractive woman meets will fail her confidence tests.

They're unable to handle the pressure, because they just don't think that they're good enough for her.

So, what's an example of how it works?

Well, imagine that a guy is interacting with an attractive woman and he says something like, "I really enjoy reading books. I like to read about history. There's so much you can learn about the past and then apply to today's life. Reading is one of my favorite things to do."

Then the attractive woman says something like, "Oh, so you're a nerd then, huh?"

For most guys, when an attractive woman says that to them, they will worry that they're losing their chance with her.

"Oh no. She thinks I'm a nerd. She is losing interest in me. I've just come across as a nerdy guy who reads books, therefore, I won't get access inside of her panties. I've screwed up. I've lost my chance with her. I'm going to have to try really hard to impress her now."

On the other hand, a guy who maintains his confidence and doesn't see her as being out of his league, will have the confidence to say something like, "Yeah, I'm a handsome nerd. I usually wear Coke bottle thick glasses, but today I'm wearing contacts," to make fun of what she's saying and let her see that he's not a nerdy guy.

Alternatively, he might say something like, "Yes, I'm a nerd. You like nerds, don't you? You're into nerds" and laugh at her in a playful way.

Essentially, he won't fail her confidence test.

He won't crumble under her fake pressure.

He will maintain his confidence and know that he is good enough for her.

He won't start worrying and thinking that he's losing her because she's referring to him as a nerd, or if she said that his shirt doesn't look cool or asked why he doesn't shave his beard because it's a bit too bushy or whatever.

He doesn't take that stuff seriously.

He knows that attractive women say things to men, to see if the man will lose confidence in himself.

So, the next time you're interacting with an attractive woman and she says something to see if she can catch you off guard, just relax.

Take your time to answer her.

Say something a bit playful.

Mess with her.

Don't take it so seriously and so on.

Let her see that you're not losing confidence in yourself just because she said something to you.

3. Know that most women are only acting as though they are out of your league

Many women do this as a trick to get men to treat them better and it works because most guys don't realize how hungry most women are for love, sex and a relationship.

Women act as though they don't need anything, but secretly, they feel horrible about the fact that they are single and lonely, while their girlfriends or siblings from their family are happy and in relationships.

So, here's how it works...

Sometimes when you meet a beautiful woman, she will think that she's out of your league (i.e. she's too good for you) until you pass her confidence tests and show her that you're not doubting yourself around her.

When you're able to show her that you do see yourself as being good enough for her (or better, more than good enough for her), then she starts to see you as a guy who is in her league.

You are the type of guy who can handle her and make her feel attracted and you're not secretly panicking on the inside, hoping to get a chance with a woman who is way out of your league.

You see her as being in your league, you feel good enough for her and you're confident as a result of that.

Yet, in other cases, a woman will see you as being in her league (i.e. you are good enough for her, or you might even be too good for her) and she will like you and will want to be with you, but she will put on an act as though she is better than you, more valuable than you and you would need to do a lot to impress her.

You've got to understand that many women use that as a trick to get men to treat them better.

It works for women because most guys out there look at a woman as being out of their league if they see her as being pretty.

They think, "Oh, I probably won't be able to get her. She wouldn't like a guy like me. I'm probably not her type. I don't have a chance. I won't even talk to her."

So, for most guys, when they talk to a woman that they see as being pretty or attractive, they're secretly thinking, "Wow, I'd be really lucky to get a chance with this girl. She's out of my league. I'm going to have to try hard to hopefully get her to like me."

Essentially, he's looking at her as being out of his league when she isn't.

She would hook up with him.

She would go on a date with him, she would get into a relationship with him, but she's putting on an act as though she is hard to get.

She's acting as though she's not really feeling much attraction.

So, how do you get around that?

How do you get the woman who is acting like she is out of your league, when she isn't?

What to do is very simple.

You've just got to make sure that you look at women as being in your league.

You've got to think of yourself as being good enough.

To back that up, you've got to make women feel attracted to you as you talk to them.

It's not enough to just say, "I'm good enough, all the women in the world would be so lucky to be with me" and then you go and meet a woman who is attractive and you're thrown off by it.

You're thinking, "I'm not good enough for her. She's too pretty for me."

That approach isn't going to work.

If you want to feel confident around attractive women, you've got to back it up by being able to make women feel attracted to you as you talk to her.

How can you do that?

With the example I gave earlier where the woman said, "So, you're a nerd then?" to a guy who reads a lot of books, what made her feel attracted about the response I gave you is that it was confident.

There was also some humor in there and the guy wasn't taking what she was saying seriously.

He didn't allow himself to be pushed around by her.

That is very attractive to an attractive woman.

Attractive women don't want a guy that they can walk all over and who's essentially going to be a wimp in the relationship.

That's very easy for an attractive woman to find and it's not satisfying.

What an attractive woman really wants is a guy who is more confident than her, who doesn't feel like she is out of his league and who feels worthy of her.

When an attractive woman can sense that you have that belief in yourself and you can also back it up, by making her feel attracted in other ways as you talk to her, she will be interested in you and see you as being in her league.

You then just move to a hug and kiss, or a phone number exchange and set up a date.

The next thing you know, you're having sex with an attractive woman who you would have previously thought was out of your league.

Yet, now she's no longer out of your league.

She's in your bed with her legs spread and moaning with pleasure and you slide into her.

So, give yourself a pat on the back.

You have leveled up as a man.

You can now attract women that other guys are afraid to even talk to.

Beautiful women are now in your league.

Enjoy!

Learn More?

Okay, I hope you've enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn more, I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

When you read The Flow or listen to The Flow on Audio, you will learn how to start conversations, how to keep conversations going, how to keep conversations interesting, how to make women feel sexually attracted to you as you talk to them, how to create an unforgettable connection between you and a woman, how to get to a phone number, how to get to a kiss, how to get to a date, how to get to sex and so on.

When you read The Flow or listen to the Flow on Audio, you will learn everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

A New Kind of Confidence

One final point that I want to make for you in this video is that when you honestly begin to believe in yourself and you know that you're good enough for attractive women, then you exude a different type of confidence.

You have a new kind of confidence that magnetically attracts women and automatically makes them see you as being in their league.

In many cases, attractive woman also assume that you might even be too good for them, which causes them to want to impress you and get your approval.

So, what ends up happening is that it becomes about you giving a chance to a woman to be with you, rather than you trying really hard to hopefully get a chance with a woman that you find attractive.

Instead, you are the selector.

You are the one who gives approval for women to have a chance with you.

A Subtle Attraction Technique That Works on Hot Women...

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you met an attractive woman right now, how would you react to her compared to how you would react to a woman that you're not attracted to?

What would be the subtle changes in your behavior as you started to interact with her?

For most guys, they can feel confident, relaxed and be themselves around a woman that they're not attracted to, but when they start to interact with a woman that they're attracted to, subtle changes begin to happen in their behavior, thinking, conversation style and so on.

What happens is that for an attractive woman, pretty much every guy that she meets will be extra nice to her, extra attentive, listen carefully to what she's saying, ask her questions and be interested in her answers, try to show her that he likes her as a person and hope that he can get her to like him as a person in return.

Yet, every once in a while, an attractive woman will come across a guy who doesn't feel the need to be extra nice to her just because she's an attractive woman.

That gets her attention.

She thinks to herself, "Why isn't he acting like all the other guys? Why isn't he trying to suck up to me? Why does he seem to be talking to me as though I'm a girl that he's not even attracted to? How can I get him to like me? How can I get him to behave like other guys behave around me? How can I make him feel attracted to me?"

What's happening between the man and the attractive woman is very subtle.

For most guys watching on, they won't really understand what is happening.

Why is she feeling so attracted to him?

Why does she want something to happen with him?

Why is she so interested in him?

What's going on, is that the guy is using a subtle attraction technique that essentially says, "I'm a good guy, but I don't feel the need to be extra nice to you just because you're an attractive woman."

Pretty much every single guy that she meets, does feel the need to be extra nice to her because the guy is hoping to get a chance with her.

He's feeling attracted to her.

He sees her as a valuable woman and wants to be able to get her, so he is nicer to her than he would be to a unattractive woman.

He listens more, he asks more questions and he shows interest in her.

She gets that all the time.

What stands out and gets her attention is when a guy is confident and is a good guy, but he doesn't actually need her.

He's not trying to get anything from her.

So, how does that work?

How can you convey to an attractive woman that you're a good guy, but you don't feel the need to be extra nice to her just because she is attractive?

The example is where you're talking to an attractive woman and she starts telling you about something that happened to her which she thinks is interesting.

You might have asked her a question like, "So where have you been up to lately?" or you might just be in the middle of a conversation and she's telling you something that has happened to her recently which she thinks is interesting.

Now, in this example, you also find what she is saying to be interesting, but rather than reacting in a typical way like pretty much every other guy that would meet her, you decide to playfully mess with her instead.

So, rather than being like a typical guy and saying, "Oh, well, that's really interesting. Oh, what else happened? Oh, tell me more," you playfully mess with her by saying something like this instead.

"Well, that's not interesting. That sounds kind of boring" and pausing to let her feel a little shocked and surprised. Then smile and say, "No, I'm just kidding, it's interesting. What happened next?"

Alternatively, you might say something like this, "No...that didn't happen to you. Come on, be honest, you didn't do that. You did? Geez, that's interesting. Go on, tell me more."

Alternatively, you might say, "Really, that's what happened? That's it? That's your story? Geez, you have a really boring life, don't you? Just kidding. No, that's interesting. What happened next?"

Now, there's nothing wrong with showing an interest in what an attractive woman is saying.

There's nothing wrong with telling her that she is interesting or laughing at something that she said or asking some questions.

Yet, you also have to have the balls to show her that you don't feel the need to be extra nice to her just because she's attractive.

If you can't show her that because you're worried she won't like you, then you're going to be like pretty much every other guy that she meets.

Making an Attractive Woman See You as Being an Attractive, Cool Guy That She Wants

One of the really cool things about being a man is that even if you're not a woman's usual physical type, you can make her feel attracted to you in subtle ways as you talk to her and she can end up feeling intense attraction for you.

She can end up feeling like she wants to get your approval.

She wants to be liked by you.

She wants to be kissed by you.

She can end up falling in love with you as you talk to her.

Then when you kiss her, have sex with her and start a relationship with her, she then looks at you as her type.

She has fallen in love with the way that you make her feel when she's around you and as a result, she starts to love the way that you look.

This is why you'll hear many women say, "I wasn't initially attracted to my boyfriend or husband, but once we started talking there was a spark between us. I feel in love with him and the rest is history.”

What she’s saying there is that he wasn’t her normal physical type and wasn’t the type of guy that she would go for, but she felt attracted to him as he talked to her and then the attraction between them built.

They fell in love and now they are happy in a relationship together.

The same applies with my personal example.

Since I am only 5’9” in terms of height, I don’t have male model looks and I don’t have big muscles, I’ve never had women walk up to me saying, “Hey, you’re handsome,” and trying to meet me as the result of my looks.

Yet, I didn’t let that defeat me.

Instead, I figured out how to make women feel attracted to me in subtle ways as I talked to them.

By making women feel attracted to me in subtle ways as I talked to them, I was able to enjoy my choice of women for over 10 years.

Then, I met my perfect girl when she was 20 and I was 35, we settled down and we’ve been together ever since.

So, if you’ve been going through your life thinking that it’s not possible for you to be able to get an attractive woman, think again.

You really can make attractive women feel attracted to you in subtle ways as you talk to them.

When you do that, you’ll see that women who would have normally rejected you in the past or not been interested in you are suddenly attracted to you.

It’s not possible to attract and pickup every woman in the world, but what you’ll notice when you start attracting women in subtle ways as you talk to them is that many of the beautiful women you meet will feel attracted to you.

You will be the guy that makes a woman think, “There’s something about this guy. I like him.”

Based on the way that you approach interactions with her, you will easily and subtly make her feel attracted to you.

She will feel a spark of attraction and then you can build on that attraction and get to a phone number, a kiss, sex or a date and get into a relationship with her if you want that as well.

As I said, it’s not possible to attract and pickup every woman in the world, but you really can make beautiful women feel attracted to you in subtle ways when you talk to them.

When you do that, you will begin to enjoy your choice of women because many of the women that you meet will feel attracted to you and will be interested in something happening between you and them.

Okay, I hope you’ve enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you’d like to learn more, I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audio book version, The Flow on Audio.

When you read The Flow or listen to The Flow on Audio, you will learn how to start conversations, how to keep conversations going, how to keep conversations interesting, how to make women feel attracted to you, how to create an unforgettable connection between you and a woman, how to get to a phone number, how to get to a kiss, how to get to a date, how to get to sex and so on.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

Getting Rid of the Need to Be Extra Nice to Attractive Women

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that many guys who first start to learn from me just want to get a girlfriend and that's okay.

Yet, what often happens is that when a guy learns how to attract women as he talks to them, he notices that many of the attractive women he meets feel attracted to him.

He then sleeps with two or three women in a month and his mindset begins to change.

When he meets an attractive woman, he no longer feels like he needs to be extra nice to her to hopefully get her to like him.

He knows that he can make her feel attracted in subtle ways.

He also knows that he doesn't have to get her if he doesn't want to.

He can talk to another attractive woman, make her feel attracted and get to a kiss, have sex and have a relationship with her if he wants to.

So, what happens is that he naturally starts to talk to women in a way that gives them the impression that he is a good guy, but he doesn't feel the need to be extra nice to them just because they're attractive.

As a result, he stands out in the eyes of attractive women.

He's not like other guys.

He's not hopefully trying to get a chance with her.

Instead, he's relaxed.

He knows that he's good enough for her and he makes her feel attracted to him as he talks to her.

So, if you find it hard to believe that you could make attractive women want you, then just understand that it's a process that you go through.

Some guys watching this video already feel like they're good enough for attractive women, whereas other guys will need to interact with some attractive women, make them feel attracted and see for themselves that they can make attractive women like them and want them sexually.

When you use some of my attraction techniques and see that they work, your confidence immediately starts to grow.

You know that you can now attract women at will, rather than hoping to get lucky.

As a result, you naturally start to exude the type of confidence that women are attracted to (i.e. the confidence of a guy who believes in himself and knows that he is good enough for attractive women).

You also naturally stop feeling like you need to be extra nice to a woman, or try harder to impress her if she's attractive.

You don't need to do that.

You know that you can relax and make her feel attracted to you in subtle ways as you talk to her.

How to Be a Nice Guy and Still Get the Girl

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

You can still be a nice guy and get laid or get a girlfriend.

You just need to add in one extra thing into your interactions with women.

The extra thing is sexual attraction and I'm going to explain how to do that as we go through this video, so let's begin with tip number 1.

1. Make her see you as a charming guy, rather than just a nice guy

The way that it works is that if a guy is just nice to a woman, then she's going to have friendly, nice feelings for him.

She's not going to be feeling sexually attracted and turned on by his niceness.

Yet, if he actively makes her feel sexually attracted and turned on as he talks to her and he is also nice to her, then she sees him as a charming guy that she has a sexual and romantic interest in.

Some women refer to guys like that as charming guys, whereas other women just say things like, "I don't know, there's something about him. I like him."

The something about him that she likes is that he's making her feel sexually attracted, based on how he's talking to her, behaving around her and getting her to behave around him.

So, the basic equation to remember is that when you make a girl feel sexually attracted to you, plus you are also nice to her at times, then she's going to see you as charming.

| Make her feel sexually attracted + Be nice to her = Charming

That's how it works.

On the other hand, if you're always just nice to a woman and are trying to show her that you respect her, you're a gentleman and just want to be nice to her, then she's not going to have sexually aroused feelings for you.

Of course, there are some exceptions to that fundamental rule.

Sometimes a guy is famous and he's a nice guy and women still feel attracted to him.

Sometimes a guy is really good-looking and he's a nice guy and women still feel attracted to him.

Yet, in pretty much every other case, if a guy is just being nice to a woman then she's only going to have friendly feelings towards him.

She's not going to be feeling like there's something about him that is making her feel attracted and turned on.

2. Make her feel sexually attracted to you, based on how you talk to her, behave around her and get her to behave around you

If you want to be a nice guy and still get laid or get a girlfriend, you have to be willing to say and do things that make a woman feel attracted.

If you're not willing to do that and are only willing to be nice, then most women aren't really going to feel a spark with you, even though they could feel a spark with you if you were willing to say and do some things that would make them feel that spark.

So, say for example you're eating lunch with a woman that you've got a crush on.

Maybe you work with her, you go to university with her or she's a female friend of yours and you want to make her feel attracted to you.

You're sitting down having lunch with her, you finish eating lunch and then she says to you, "Hey, can you put all this in the trash for me?" and expects you to just grab her rubbish, put it in the rubbish bin for her and be a typical nice guy who does whatever the woman says.

Now there's nothing wrong with a man putting some things in the rubbish or the trash for a woman. There's nothing wrong with that at all.

Yet, where the problem occurs is where a man is doing those things in the hope that it makes the woman like him in a romantic way.

He's hoping that a woman will see that he's a really nice guy, he is reliable, he will treat her well and he will respect her and she then will grant him access inside of her panties.

Yet, that's not how women work.

So, what can you say and do instead to continue being the good guy that you are, but also say and do something that makes her feel sexual attraction for you?

When she says, "Hey, can you put this in the trash for me?" you can joke around with her at that point.

You can playfully mess with her.

You can smile and playfully say something like, "Yeah, sure, I'll put that in the trash for you, but what are you going to do for me in return? Are you going to wash my car or cook me dinner or something like that?"

You can then have a playful conversation with her about her potentially cooking you dinner, or washing your car to repay you for your gentlemanly behavior.

You can have a playful conversation with her about it.

It doesn't have to be serious.

If a guy is in the friend zone with a woman who secretly likes him, then she will be happy about the fact that he is suggesting they do something together other than just eating lunch.

So, they might go out to dinner together, cook dinner together at home, she might cook for him and so on.

If she secretly has a crush on him, she might say, "Alright, I'll cook dinner for you. I can do that" or if she's a playful, feisty type of woman, she might say, "No, you have to cook dinner for me."

Then, the nice guy can say, “Alright. Well, look, how about this, we’ll cook dinner together.”

That way, he’s not being pushed around by her.

He’s still being a good guy, but he’s not getting walked all over by her.

Another example response to her saying, “Hey, can you put all that in the trash for me?” is to say, “Put all that in the trash for you, huh? How about I put you in the trash? How about that, huh?” and then pretend to throw her in the trash (i.e. pretend to pick her up like a basketball, but obviously don’t actually pick her up. Just pretend to pick her up as though she is a basketball and then air throw it in the direction of the bin).

If a guy is generally being a good guy around a woman and he also has the confidence to playfully mess with her like that, then she’s going to see him as being a good guy, but she’s going to be thinking, “Hmmm...there’s something about him. I like him. Why do I feel attracted to him?”

She’s going to have that feeling of wanting something sexual to happen between him and her because he is creating a spark between them, rather than just being a nice, neutral friend all the time.

Another example is where you don’t wait for her to tell you to put the rubbish into the bin.

Instead, when you’ve finished eating, you can stand up say something like, “Alright. Well, look, I’m going to go to the toilet, so can you put all this stuff in the bin and I’ll catch you outside?”, or tell her that you’ll meet her back at the table or something like that.

Essentially, for the most part, you are treating her well and being a good guy, but you also have the balls to tell her to do something for you.

Most women don’t go around admitting that they like that in a guy, but when you see a woman feeling happy and attracted around a guy, you will see that the guy has the balls to playfully mess with her and in some cases, if he wants to, he can tell her to do something for him.

“Hey, can you go get me a drink from the cafe over there?” or, “Hey, can you get the sugar from the table over there?” or whatever it may be.

Now, on the same note, there’s nothing wrong with a man going and doing that for a woman.

If she says to him, “Hey, can you go get the sugar off the table over there?” there’s nothing wrong with a man saying, “Sure,” and going and getting it.

However, the problem is when a guy does those things because he hopes that the woman will see him as being really nice and he’ll be the good guy that she can finally rely on.

He hears her talk about how bad other guys are and he hears her say that she wants a nice guy.

So, he wants to show her that he’s really nice and he’s willing to do anything to hopefully get a chance with her.

Yet, that’s not what makes a woman want to get into a sexual relationship with a guy.

The most important piece of the puzzle is sexual attraction and then, if you’re also a good guy, then that is seen as a very welcome bonus.

She will feel lucky to have finally met a guy who is a good guy, but also makes her feel sexually attracted and turned on based on how he talks to her, behaves around and gets her to behave around him.

3. Don't make her feel as though she is more valuable than you, or that you would be lucky to get a chance with her

Some nice guys make the mistake of thinking that a woman will be flattered and swept off her feet if a man shows her how special he thinks she is.

If he looks at her as being amazing and as though he would be so lucky to get a chance with such an amazing woman like her.

He will give her compliments, he will talk about how amazing she is, he will say how lucky a guy would be to be her boyfriend and so on.

Yet, what that does is that it gives a woman a false sense of superiority over the nice guy.

She ends up feeling as though she is better than him and more valuable than him, even though she isn't.

He makes her feel that way based on his approach to interactions with her.

He thinks that the way to get a woman to like him is to make her feel so special and to essentially suck up to her and hope to get a chance with her.

Yet, that is a disastrous path to go down with a woman.

Sometimes it can work, but the guy will usually end up in a relationship where the woman is in charge, she's dictating everything and he has to put in loads of work and suck up to her to hopefully get some sex, affection and attention from her.

If you don't want to end up in that type of predicament with a woman, then just make sure that you avoid making her feel as though she is more valuable than you.

The solution is to be a good guy and focus on making her feel sexually attracted to you.

Make her feel so sexually attracted to you and want you so much that she tries to get a chance with you.

She is hoping that something happens between you and her.

Then, it becomes about you allowing her to get a chance with you.

Learn More?

Okay, I hope you've enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn more about how to attract women so you can get laid or get a girlfriend, I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

Most Women Are Looking For a Good Man

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that there's nothing wrong with being a good man.

Most women are looking for a good man, but you just have to understand that niceness on its own isn't what makes a woman wet.

The way that it works is that if you focus on making her feel sexually attracted to you as you talk to her and you are nice to her, then she will appreciate the fact that you are a good guy.

She will really appreciate the fact that the guy that she is feeling sexually attracted to and has a romantic interest in, is also a good guy.

It's exciting for a woman to find a guy like that.

In most cases, when a woman meets a nice guy, she doesn't get to have that feeling because he's just being nice.

He might also be too nervous around her or too neutral and just be like a friend to her, when what really needs to happen is that there needs to be a sexual spark between the man and the woman.

It can't just be about being nice, being friendly and hoping that somehow, niceness and friendliness will make her wet.

If you want to make her feel sexually attracted, you have to be willing to say and do some things that make a woman feel that way.

By the way, if you're watching this video now and you've used some of my techniques to get laid or get a girlfriend, I'd love to hear from you in the comments below.

You end up attracting the woman and, in many cases, you can get laid or get a girlfriend.

So, if you have a success story to share, I would love to hear it below.

I look forward to reading it and personally congratulating you on your success.

15 Examples of What to Say When a Woman Asks You a Challenging Question

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a beautiful woman is feeling attracted to you, but isn't quite sure about you yet, she will usually ask you challenging questions.

She will stop being so straightforward and nice and easy-going and will put you on the spot.

Why?

She wants to test how confident you really are.

So, when you show her that you're not fazed by her challenging questions and you can remain confident while also being a good guy, she respects you and feels attracted to you.

As a result, she drops her guard around you.

She then shows you a side of herself that she doesn't normally show to other guys.

She becomes easy-going, down-to-earth, friendly and shows interest in you.

So, if you want to bring out the easy-going, down-to-earth, friendly side of a beautiful woman and get her to show interest in you, you need to have the confidence to answer her challenging questions in a playful way.

You need to have the confidence to mess with her, rather than thinking that you need to answer all of our questions immediately and in a straightforward logical manner.

Let's have a look at the first challenging question that a beautiful woman might ask you when she's feeling attracted to you, but is not quite sure about you yet.

“So how many women have you slept with?”

If a guy is worried about losing his chance with a beautiful woman, he will worry when she asks him a question like that.

He may think something like, “Well, if I tell her that I've slept with 20 women, maybe that's too much, maybe she's going to think I'm a player. If I tell her that I've only slept with two or three women, then she might think that women don't like me and I don't have much sexual experience, so she might lose interest as a result of that. What am I going to tell her??”

As a result of thinking in that way, his body language will change he will start to appear tense.

She will be looking at him and will see that he is panicking on the inside.

He's worried about answering the question.

He might um and ah a little bit before answering the question and if he answers the question in a way that shows that he is nervous or worried about her losing interest, then she will lose interest.

She will see that he doesn't feel like he's good enough for her, he's trying hard to impress her, say all the right things and answer her questions correctly, so he then passes the test and gets to have sex with her or a relationship with her.

Yet, a guy that's actually going to make a beautiful woman feel respect and attraction is the type of guy who doesn't always take her questions seriously.

He doesn't feel like he needs to quickly answer her question or answer it in a straightforward manner. So, if she asks him something like, "So how many women have you slept with?" He might answer her in one of the following ways, "How many women have I slept with? Sorry, I don't kiss and tell."

"How many women have I slept with? Zero. I'm a virgin, can't you tell? The furthest I've ever gotten with a woman is holding hands. We held hands for like 10 minutes. It was pretty full on."

"How many women have I slept with? No, no, I don't kiss and tell. Well, maybe I will tell you, but promise that you won't judge me, okay? If I tell you, no judging, alright? Well, look...I've slept with...146 women."

Now, at that point, her jaw is most likely going to drop and she's going to be laughing and saying, "What? You've slept with 146 women?"

Then you can tell her that you're only joking and that you've never slept with a woman and you're still a virgin.

In other words, you're not taking her question seriously.

You're not panicking and thinking, "I need to somehow tell her the right answer that lets me get into her panties. I need to say 20 women or 5 women or 10 women and tell her the number that is going to get her approval."

No.

You already approve of yourself.

You don't need to seek her approval.

You know that you're good enough for her, so you can answer however the heck you want.

Here's another example: "How many women have I slept with? Well, I actually work as a male gigolo, so maybe in the thousands? I don't know. I really can't remember," or you might want to refer to yourself as a male prostitute or something like that.

Essentially, you're not taking her question seriously.

You're not panicking.

You're not worrying about trying to get the answer.

Instead, you have the confidence to joke around with her, to mess with her and not think that you need to be on your best behavior around the beautiful woman.

You're not worrying and thinking that you've got to say everything right and then she's going to like you.

No.

What makes a beautiful woman really like a guy is when he doesn't feel like he needs to say and do everything right around her.

He has the confidence to say whatever the heck he wants, while still being a good guy.

The majority of women don't actually want a bad man.

They just want a good man who has the confidence to joke around with them. A good man who isn't intimidated or afraid of them.

Here's another example response to the question of, "So how many women have you slept with?"

"How many women have I slept with? You mean actually slept with, as in gone to sleep with?"

Because usually I just have sex and leave.”

At that point, most women are going to laugh.

They’re going to know that you’re joking, but if they’re not sure, they might ask you.

A woman might say something like, “Really? Are you for real?”

You can then continue on with the joke, or tell her that you’re just kidding.

So, if you were to continue on with the joke, you might say something like, “Yeah, well, what am I going to stay for? It’s just...we’ve had sex, it’s time to go.”

Alternatively, you might say something like, “No, I’m just kidding. I like to stay and be a romantic and hug and kiss and sleep in bed all day and all that sort of stuff, [yawns].”

Essentially, let her see that you’re not taking the question seriously.

You have the confidence to joke around with her and not think that you need to be on your best behavior around her because she’s beautiful.

You’re not a desperate guy who is trying to say all the right things to hopefully get a chance with her.

You know that you are good enough for her.

The next challenging question is:

| “Wow, you’re smooth. Do you pick up girls all the time?”

Alternatively, a woman might ask:

| “Do you say that to all the girls?”

One of the quickest ways to shut her question down is to pretend that you’re disappointed in her for asking you a question like that.

So, rather than thinking that you need to answer her question with a “Yes” or, “No” answer when she asks you, “Do you pick up girls all the time?” you have the confidence to challenge her in a playful way.

You’re still being a good guy, but you’re challenging her in a playful way, rather than taking her question so seriously.

You’re not just answering her question with a “No” or, “Yeah, I do?” and hoping that you get the right answer.

Instead, you have the confidence to challenge her.

So, if you’re talking to a beautiful woman and she asks you the question, “Do you pick up girls all the time?” you can smile and respond with something like this, “Well, that’s rude. You’re talking to a confident guy, you’re having a good conversation and then you go ahead and assume that he’s a player or something like that. I’m disappointed in you. I thought you were cooler than that.”

[Watch the video at the top of this page for a demonstration of how to say that. You’re only playfully disappointed in her. It’s not about getting offended and being seriously disappointed that she would ask you a question like that.]

Likewise, if she asks you the question, “Do you say that to all the girls?” you can say something like this, “No, not to all the girls, only to the special ones. You’re special, that’s why I said it to you” and then have a laugh with her about that.

Essentially, you're showing her that you're not being thrown off by her question.

Where a guy will go wrong when interacting with a beautiful woman, is that she'll ask him a question like that and he'll start to panic on the inside.

He'll think, "Dammit! I'm losing her! She thinks that I'm some sort of player or I'm using some sort of technique that I learned off the internet. I'm screwed. She's going to lose interest in me. What am I going to do?"

Then, as a result of thinking like that on the inside, it comes out on the outside.

She can see the changes in his body language.

She can sense the changes in his vibe.

She can pick up on the changes in his conversation style.

She knows that he's now worried that she's losing interest in him.

Here's the thing...

If you want a beautiful woman to respect you and feel attracted to you, you have to not be worried about her potentially losing interest in you.

It's not about being a bad guy and showing her that you don't care about her, you don't give a stuff about her, being rude or anything like that.

Instead, it's just about being a confident good guy who isn't worried about her potential reaction to something.

A fundamental principle to remember is that if you fear her reaction, she won't feel attraction.

When you fear a woman's reaction to what you're going to say, she can see that.

She can see that you're afraid of her and as a result, she can't feel respect and attraction for you.

Women don't want to feel like they are more dominant than you.

Women may go around acting as though they are the more dominant ones, but that is just an act.

What a woman really wants is a man who doesn't fear her, but it's also a good guy.

The next challenging question is:

| "Were you just checking that girl out?"

So, for example: A guy might be talking to a woman at a party, a bar, at university, at a work function or whatever.

She then asks him the question, "Were you just checking that girl out?" to see if he's going to lie to her, to see if he's going to say something like, "No, no, no, I was just looking around," or "What are you talking about?" and pretend that he is not a man who looks at women or looks at the world in general, just looks around and looks at things.

He's not allowed to do that.

He's got to be on his best behavior around the beautiful woman.

He's got to be totally focused on her and only her and he can't look at her cleavage, or anything like that.

He has to look at her eyes only and he can't say anything untoward.

He has to be on his best behavior at all times.

No, no, no.

Acting like a good, little boy isn't the way into a woman's panties (or heart, if you prefer to think of making her fall in love with you).

The way in is to be a good guy with balls, not a good, little boy who just wants to be sweet, innocent and nice all the time around her.

So, the way to answer a beautiful woman's challenging question of, "Were you just checking that girl out?" is to not take her so seriously.

For example: She asks you, "So, were you just checking that girl out?" and you smile and say to her, "Yes, were you just checking me out? Why have you got your eyes on me all the time, huh? Are you one of those clingy girls that always has to monitor a guy? Relax, girl, people can look around at the world around them."

She then feels a bit embarrassed for asking you a question like that and appearing to be one of those clingy girls.

Alternatively, she laughs.

She gets the joke and she has a good laugh with you about it.

The next challenging question is:

| "Would you stay with a girl if she put on weight in a relationship?"

Once again, a woman wants to see whether or not you're going to lie to her, whether you have the confidence to be honest, or the confidence to joke around with her and not take her question so seriously.

So, if she asks you the question of, "Would you stay with the girl if she put on weight in a relationship?" one way to answer it is to smile and playfully say, "No, of course not," and then have a laugh with her about that.

You can then say something like, "Well, look everyone puts on weight when they get into a relationship, you know, with all the dates where you have popcorn and ice cream and pizza and all that sort of stuff. It's pretty normal to put on a bit of extra weight in a relationship, but how about you? Would you stay with a guy if he put on weight in a relationship?"

If she says that she would stay with the guy if he put on weight in a relationship, you can say something like, "No, you wouldn't. I don't believe you. Come on, you look so shallow. You seem like the most shallowest girl I've ever met in my life. No, no, just kidding. I believe you. Well, that's good, but here's the thing though, would you actually have the capacity to make a guy put on weight in a relationship? Are you a good cook? Can you cook? That is the big question here."

As a result, you're steering the conversation to a more playful type of conversation and you're also putting her on the spot about whether or not she's a good cook.

You're making her feel as though she is being subtly judged at the moment.

Is she a good cook? Is she actually a wholesome all-around woman who can cook, who's great in bed, who looks good and so on?

Other example response to the question of, "So would you stay with a girl if she put on weight in a relationship?" is to say something like this, "Why do you ask? We're not even dating yet and you're already worried about me dumping you. Come on, relax."

She will almost certainly then say that she wasn't trying to say that and was just asking you if you'd dump a girl if she put on weight.

You can then say something like, "Yeah, yeah, okay, I believe you."

Be playful with her about it like that.

Let her see that you are confident, you're a good guy and you're not taking her questioning seriously.

You're not worried about the potential implications of you answering her question incorrectly.

If you say yes, you would leave a girl, she might lose interest.

If you say no, you wouldn't leave a girl, she might think that you're too nice.

Don't worry what she thinks.

Just focus on what's going to make her feel respect and sexual attraction for you as you interact with her.

If you also happen to be a good guy, then she's going to be excited about that because it's difficult for a beautiful woman to find a good guy who can be confident around her; a good guy who isn't afraid to challenge her in a playful way.

Finally, another way to answer the question of "Would you stay with a woman if she put on weight in a relationship?" is to say something like this, "Well, it depends on where she puts on weight. Is she going to be putting on weight in certain areas that are going to be useful or...?" and have a laugh with her about that.

Okay, I hope you've enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn more, I recommend that you read my eBook The Flow or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

When you read or listen to The Flow, you will learn exactly what to say and do to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

It's everything that you need to know to start conversations, keep conversations going, keep conversations interesting, get women to feel connected with you, get to a phone number, kiss, date, sex and into a relationship.

When you use The Flow, you're going to begin to enjoy your choice of women.

Some Women Don't Challenge You, Some Do

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is to point out the fact that every woman you meet is going to be different.

Sometimes you meet a woman who is instantly friendly, you get along with her and hook up with her very easily.

Yet, sometimes you'll meet a woman who's a bit challenging and in most cases, that type of woman is going to be the very attractive, beautiful woman that pretty much every guy wants to be with.

She has her guard up.

She's not being friendly and easygoing around every guy, because she doesn't want to give every guy the wrong impression.

She only wants to drop her guard for a guy who honestly, sincerely feels as though he is good enough for her.

If you want to show her that you honestly, sincerely feel as though you are good enough for her, then you need to have the confidence to not take her questions so seriously all the time.

There's nothing wrong with taking her questions seriously whenever you want to, but you also need to have the confidence to mess with her as well.

You need to let her see that you're not on your best behavior hoping to get a chance with the almighty woman who you put on a pedestal.

She is a beautiful woman, yes and you're feeling attracted to her, yes, but you are the man.

You are more than good enough for her.

Let her see that based on your behavior and she will feel respect and attraction for you.

4 Reasons Why Women Pretend to Not Want Sex

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When you go to a porn site, women are usually in the middle of having sex, or they're about to have sex and they're excited about it, or there's some backstory where she is the maid or whatever and then it quickly leads to the man and woman having sex or the woman having sex with multiple people.

Essentially, when you go to a porn site, you will see an endless supply of women who are interested in sex, are having sex, want sex, love sex and so on.

Yet, when a guy walks through everyday life, it may seem to him that women aren't interested in sex at all.

They don't seem to be showing any interest in getting to sex at all.

So, what's going on?

Well, according to Dr. Terri D. Fisher, a professor of psychology at the Ohio State University at Mansfield, on average, women think about sex 18.6 times per day, which is every 51 minutes if you factor in 8 hours of sleep per night.

Here's a quote from Dr. Fisher when referring to the amount of times that a man or a woman thought about sex during the day.

"The tally counts reported by the men ranged from 1 to 388. The variation for the women was less extreme, but still quite large, ranging from 1 to 140. Because there was so much variation, it makes most sense to talk about the median scores (50th percentile) because medians are less influenced by extreme scores. We found that the median number of sexual thoughts for men was 18.6 and for women, it was 9.9. In contrast, the average for men was 34.2 and for women, it was 18.6."

So, for the purposes of this video, I'll just talk about the median score.

In the case of women, that is 9.9 and for men, it's 18.6.

Also, for simplicity, I'll just round the number up to 10 rather than saying 9.9.

So, women think about sex approximately 10 times per day.

This means that approximately 10 times per day, she's thinking of giving a guy a blow job, she's thinking of getting bent over and having sex doggy style, she's thinking of having sex in the missionary position, or she's thinking about kissing a guy, him fingering her and him and her eventually having sex.

So, if the average woman thinks about sex at least 10 times per day, why does it seem as though most women aren't even interested in sex?

Why do women pretend to not be interested in sex?

The first reason why is...

1. So you would trust her when in a relationship

This something that many women worry about and do when they're single and it's also something that they do when in a relationship or marriage.

When a woman is single and she's trying to find herself a boyfriend, she usually won't want to give guys the impression that she would have sex at the click of a finger.

All the guy has to do is say, "Hey, you want it?" and she will say, "Yes."

She wants to make sure that guys look at her as relationship material.

As a result, she won't show a lot of interest in sex and will hope that a guy will look at her as being girlfriend material or wife material.

This is where the classic question of, "But, will you respect me in the morning?" comes from when a woman is trying to decide if she should sleep with a guy on the first night or date.

Many women worry that if they show too much interest in having sex and then sleep with a guy right away, he won't see her as relationship material.

He won't actually respect her in that way.

He will look at her as a girl that he's going to have sex with for a while, or maybe just have sex with once and then get back on with his life.

Yet, if her objective is to find herself a boyfriend, she will usually want to come across as the type of girl who isn't really interested in sex and will only have sex if she gets into a relationship with a guy.

This then helps to ensure that when she's in a relationship with a guy and it gets 3, 6, or 9 months into the relationship, that her boyfriend doesn't then become clingy, controlling, over-protective and jealous.

She hasn't really given him anything to worry about.

He can look at her and trust that she will be able to control herself.

He can trust that she's going to remain loyal to him and they can have a committed, lasting relationship.

So, when it comes to a relationship or a marriage, if a woman was the type of woman who wasn't actively chasing sex when she was single, then after the initial lust stage of the relationship has settled down, she will almost certainly revert back to her old behavior where she is not chasing sex.

It doesn't mean that she's no longer interested in sex and that she won't have sex, but it just means that she's reverting back to her default type of behavior now that the lust part of the relationship is settling down a bit.

A man can change the way that she approaches sex in the relationship and turn her into the type of woman who initiates sex, but he has to make sure that he uses a different approach with her.

If he wants her to use a different approach with him, he has to use a different approach with her.

For example: If his normal approach is to just get in bed and hope that she initiates sex, then it's not going to happen with a woman like that.

He's going to need to change his approach and start being more masculine around her and start being a bit more dominant and turn her on with that type of behavior.

He's also going to need to make sure that he's not being too timid or reserved during sex.

He needs to make sure that he lets out his masculine side, so she can then feel turned on in new and different ways.

She can start to bring out more of her feminine side, which will naturally make her be more affectionate and want to initiate sex more.

2. So you will appreciate having sex with her

If a woman gives it up too easily, most guys aren't really going to appreciate the sex.

They're most likely going to enjoy it (i.e. because it feels great when you stick it in, you're grabbing her titties and she's sucking you and all that sort of stuff).

That's fantastic, but if you're going to really appreciate it in the way that she wants you to appreciate it, it's going to be about you looking at her as special; you looking at her as a woman that you're falling in love with and that you want to be in a relationship with.

Of course, sometimes a woman doesn't want a relationship after sex.

Sometimes a woman is busy with her career, busy with her studies or just wants to enjoy single life before she eventually settles down.

In cases like that, she doesn't want the guy to see her as special.

She doesn't want the guy to fall in love with her and want a relationship with her.

Women like that just want you to want them sexually, to have a good time and for you to be okay about parting ways when the time is right.

By the way...

If you want to secure a woman like that into a relationship, you have to be the one who is completely fine about parting ways when the time is right.

You have to be the one who is not chasing a relationship.

Women like that will change and want to have a relationship with the type of guy who makes them feel attracted, makes them fall in love, but isn't trying to push for a relationship.

Yet, for most women, one of the reasons why they pretend not to be interested in sex, is so you look at them as being special.

Women like that want you to fall in love with them, so you appreciate having sex with them and then want a relationship.

3. So other people don't look at her as being slutty and therefore treat her with less respect

This one is pretty self-explanatory.

If she sleeps around, most people will start looking down on her.

So, she will try to maintain a self-image of being a 'respectable woman' by behaving as though she never has sex.

4. To see if you will remain confident and keep interacting with her and turning her on, until you and her get to the point where you kiss and have sex

Some women make it obvious that they want to have sex with you, some give subtle hints and some don't want to give you any hints at all.

In most cases, the reason why a woman won't want to give you any hints at all, is that she wants to make sure that she finds herself a boyfriend who has independent confidence.

In other words, she doesn't want to be with a guy who can only feel confident if she makes him feel confident by showing him lots of interest, being nice to him, being gentle, being emotionally considerate and so on.

In most cases, a woman like that will have relationship experience and she will know that if she gets into a relationship with a guy who is emotionally needy, then she is going to have a difficult time with him.

He's going to end up becoming jealous, clingy, potentially overprotective and maybe even angry and aggressively controlling.

On the other hand, if she gets into a relationship with a guy who has independent confidence and knows that he is good enough for her, regardless of what she says or does, then he's almost certainly not going to become that needy, clingy, controlling type of boyfriend.

He is going to know that he's good enough for her, so he's probably not going to need her to be constantly reassuring him of that.

As a result, she can relax into being his girl and he can be her man.

So, if you're a single man and you want to get to sex and potentially into a relationship with women of your choosing, you need to be able to make them feel sexually attracted and turned on by you as you talk to them.

You also need to have the confidence to make a move and know when the time is right to make a move.

Once you get to a first kiss with a woman, the relationship between you and her changes from just being friendly and flirty to being sexual.

When in a relationship or a marriage with a woman, you need to understand that even though she might not be showing obvious interest in having sex with you, she's still having sexual thoughts every day.

Don't expect her to suddenly change and start initiating sex for no reason.

If you want her to start initiating sex, you have to be willing to interact with her in new ways that make her feel sexually attracted and turned on and want to have sex with you.

Some women are very sexually aggressive and will chase sex all the time whether they're single or in a relationship, but the majority of women wait for a man to interact with them, turn them on and then have the confidence to make a move and get the sex to happen.

When in a relationship, if a man does that often enough, it will bring about a change inside of his woman.

She will start to want to initiate sex because she will enjoy the act of sex so much more.

She will love the fact that he is able to make her feel turned and make her want sex simply based on the way that he is interacting with her.

He is now able to naturally and easily make her feel attracted, turned on and wanting to have sex with him.

For example: If a man and a woman are in a relationship or a marriage and they've gotten into the routine of just giving each other a kiss on the cheek or a peck on the lips, a man can break from that routine.

He can start to create a different dynamic in the relationship.

He has to have the courage to do it and not lose confidence if she's not initially into it.

For example: Rather than just sticking to the routine of giving her a quick kiss on the cheek when they're parting ways to go to work in the morning, or a quick peck on the lips to say good night, a man can break from that routine.

He can pull his woman into him and give her a proper kiss on the lips.

He can then hold her in a warm, loving hug for about 5 or 10 seconds and then he can give her another kiss.

This time, he can make the kiss more passionate.

He can start off with just giving her another kiss on the lips, but then move to make it a tongue kiss.

Now, initially, his girlfriend or wife might start to squirm or might try to push him away and say, "What are you doing? What are you doing? No, let's not do that," but he needs to maintain his confidence.

He needs to allow her to feel attracted to his masculinity in that moment.

He needs to allow her to see that he isn't being thrown off by her challenge.

He's able to turn the kiss into a more passionate kiss, which then naturally leads to him and her having sex.

Alternatively, if they don't have sex in that particular moment, then at least when she's thinking about sex that day or the next day, she is going to be thinking about having sex with him.

She's going to be thinking about how she wanted that kiss to turn into something more.

As a result, she's going to be more likely to initiate sex or be open to sex when he next initiates it.

Learn More

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn more, I have two recommendations for you.

The first recommendation is for the single men watching this video who want to get some sex or a relationship with an attractive woman.

The second recommendation is for the men who are in a relationship with a woman, who is no longer affectionate or no longer in love with them.

So, the first recommendation is for the single men and that is to read my eBook, The Flow, or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

When you read The Flow or listen to The Flow on Audio, you will learn exactly what to say and do when you meet a woman to make her feel sexually attracted to you, feel connected with you and want to give you her phone number, want to kiss you, have sex with you and get into a relationship with you.

The second recommendation is my program, Make Her Love You For Life, which is available on video or audio.

Using the approach to relationships that I teach in this program, brings out a woman's affectionate, loving, caring, attentive side.

She wants to be a good woman for you.

She feels sexually attracted to you.

She respects you and she is completely in love with you.

It's Okay to Have Sexual Thoughts

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is to point out the fact that you're not a bad man for having sexual thoughts every day.

A woman has sexual thoughts every day.

Of course, on average, most men have double the amount of sexual thoughts that a woman has, but a woman still thinks about sex at least 10 times per day.

The amount of times that a woman thinks about sex will be different for every woman.

Some women will think about it 50 or 100 times a day, whereas other women might think about it 3 or 4 times a day.

So, what you need to understand is that women think about sex, they want sex and they enjoy sex.

You're not doing a bad thing by having sexual thoughts.

You're not doing a bad thing by making a woman feel attracted to you and feeling turned on as you talk to her and then having the confidence to move in for a first kiss.

You're essentially being a natural man and allowing her to be a natural woman and you're both expressing your sexual attraction for each other.

So, if you're a single guy and you want to get some sex or you want to get into a sexual relationship, what you need to understand is that even though most women go through life pretending as though they're not interested in sex, they actually are.

What you need to do is interact with a woman, make her feel attracted as you talk to her and then have the confidence to move in for a first kiss or get her phone number, go on a date with her and then get into a sexual relationship with her.

When in a relationship where there isn't much sex or any sex, if you are willing to suddenly change your approach with her, then you will see her behavior start to change.

She will really start to want to initiate sex with you because when she does have sex with you, you bring out a side of her that makes her want to have sex with you again and again.

3 First Date Tips That Make Her Want to See You Again

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When you go on a date, it should usually go well.

You and the woman should be able to get along and then get to a hug, a kiss, have some sex and start a relationship.

Alternatively, you might hug and kiss and then go on a second date and have sex then and start the actual relationship.

[image: Woman fantasizing about getting bent over at the end of the date]

Yet, sometimes the date doesn't go that way and a guy ends up screwing up a date with a woman who really did like him and was secretly hoping that she would get bent over at the end of the date and have sex with him.

So, in this video, I'm going to give you 3 first date tips to ensure that when you go on a first date with a woman, she wants more than just the first date.

You don't end up getting the old, "Hey, I think we should just be friends," or "Sorry, I'm not looking for a relationship right now," or anything like that.

Instead, you end up with you and her kissing, having sex and starting a relationship.

So, let's begin with tip number 1...

1. Believe in yourself

If the woman that you are going on a date with is attractive, she most likely has a lot of other guys who would love to take her out on a date or would love to have sex with her.

So, if she goes on a date with you, just know that she is choosing to be there.

She wants to go on a date with you and has probably been fantasizing about how the date could turn out.

It could end up with you and her hugging, kissing, having sex, falling in love and enjoying a relationship together.

It could end up with you and her having an amazing first kiss.

She's most likely gone through those sort of scenarios in her mind.

So, when a woman arrives to a first date with you, make sure that you're not doubting yourself.

Where so many guys go wrong is that a woman turns up for a first date and he's doubting himself.

He's thinking to himself, "I have to really be on my best behavior to try to get her to like me. I'm going to have to try to impress her and hopefully, she's going to like me enough to want to see me again."

Yet, by thinking like that, he ends up behaving in a nervous way.

He ends up coming across as awkward and unsure of himself. He ends up trying too hard to impress her and she starts to feel like, "Oh, maybe I am too good for this guy."

She's not too good for him; he's making her feel that way.

She can get the sense that he doesn't think that he's good enough for her and as a result, he's trying really hard to hopefully get her to like him.

So, what you need to do on a first date is to realize that she's there on a first date with you and that means that she likes you, or at least has some interest in you.

If she didn't, she wouldn't have come to the date.

Yet, one thing to be aware of is that many women are very good at acting as though they don't care.

A woman will often go on a date and act as though she doesn't really care if the date works out or not.

She's just catching up in a casual way and talking to the guy as a friend and she isn't invested in the date at all.

She acts as though she hasn't been secretly fantasizing about kissing him or having sex with him.

Instead, she's just hanging out, having a coffee or something to eat with a guy.

What you need to be aware of is that sometimes a woman will be behaving as though she isn't really invested in the date, but that's usually because the woman is insecure and doesn't want to come across as too keen or get you feeling like you're in the power position and then potentially, losing interest in her because she was too easy to seduce into a relationship.

So, as the man, you need to make sure that you have confidence in yourself and see her catching up with you for a date as a clear signal that she is interested in you.

As a result, you deserve to believe in yourself, you deserve to feel confident.

If you believe in yourself and are confident when you're on a date with her, then it's going to come across in your body language, your behavior and your conversation style.

She's naturally going to feel attracted to the fact that you are confident, even though she's putting you under a little bit of pressure.

Of course, sometimes you go on a date and everything will run smoothly.

The woman will show you loads of interest, you will show her interest, you'll end up kissing, having sex and getting into a relationship.

However, if you want to make sure that your first date is successful, you need to be prepared for the fact that not all women show lots of interest on the first date.

Sometimes a woman is insecure and doesn't want to come across as too keen and sometimes she's just a bit nervous and doesn't know how to handle herself on a first date.

So, it's up to you to make sure that you remain confident by believing in yourself.

Know that she's on a first date because she likes you and she is most likely been hoping that something will develop between you and her.

2. Get rid of any awkwardness on the date by having a relaxed, easy-going attitude

A mistake that some guys make is to go on a first date with a woman and be worried about potential, awkward moments that could completely ruin the date.

That's the wrong mindset to take into a date.

If you want to have an easygoing, successful first date with a woman, don't worry about things potentially being awkward between you and her.

For example: If you're walking up to the place that you agreed to meet at and go to for the date and it turns out that it's packed out and there's no room for you and her, where a guy will go wrong in a situation like that is to panic, worry and start to make the situation awkward when it doesn't need to be.

A guy will start saying, well, "Oh, this is awkward, what are we going to do now?" or "Dammit, you know, I wanted to come here and, you know, it's packed out. What are we going to do now? Where do you want to go?" and make a big deal out of it.

On the other hand, a guy that a woman can feel attracted to and she can respect and feel good with on the date is going to maintain control of his emotions, not see the situation as awkward and make a decision to go somewhere else.

For example: He walks up to the place that they were going to go and it's packed out.

He then might say (in an easy-going, relaxed, light-hearted manner) something like, "Oh, damn, this place is packed out. No worries, we'll go somewhere else. Let's take a walk along this street here, we'll find somewhere else to go."

Then, the woman can feel respect for his masculinity.

She can feel respect for the fact that he is maintaining his confidence, he's not crumbling under the pressure and he's not seeing a situation as awkward, when it isn't actually awkward.

Sure, he could have called ahead and booked a table to make sure that there was a place for them, but if he didn't book ahead or he couldn't book ahead, then he doesn't need to worry about that.

A guy doesn't need to be perfect and get everything right all the time.

If you make a mistake, just don't worry about it.

Get on with enjoying your time together and having a great date.

Another example is where a guy will go on a date with a woman that he doesn't really know.

For example: It's a blind date, he met her via online dating or he got her number at a bar or very quickly in a shopping mall or something like that and he doesn't really know her very well.

A guy who makes things awkward will start talking about the fact that it's awkward that they're going on a date.

He'll talk about the fact that it's a bit weird because they don't really know each other, whereas a guy who makes a woman feel attracted and at ease on the first date, will talk to her as though they already know each other and they're cool with each other; everything is fine.

So, rather than sitting down with her and saying something like, "Oh, well, this is awkward or, you know, we don't even know each other, we just met on Tinder," or "You know, I just got your number at a shopping mall and we hardly know each other, this is kind of weird."

Just make it more easy-going and talk to her as though you and her are cool with each other.

For example: You might say something like, "Hey, so how are you doing today? You're hungry or what? I'm hungry at the moment, so let's go get some food" and then walk with her as though you were and her are cool with each other.

You're going to eat something together and there is no awkwardness.

It's only awkward if you think it's awkward.

If you can relax and be easygoing, then she will follow your lead.

By the way, the same rule applies if a guy is going on a date with a woman that he knows very well, such as a coworker or a female friend that he has had a crush on for a while and is finally going on a date with.

Rather than talking about the fact that it's awkward that they're going on a date, he should just talk to her in an easygoing way, as though everything is cool between him and her.

There is no awkwardness, everything is fine.

She is there at the date, she wants to be on the date with him.

If she didn't want to be there she wouldn't have come along. She is secretly hoping that something happens as well.

3. At least get to a kiss

This is where a lot of guys stuff up.

They approach a woman, they make her feel attracted, they get her number, they text back and forth or get her on a phone call, arrange a date, go on a date, have a great date, but then, when it comes to the first kiss, the guy chickens out.

He thinks, well, "Maybe she doesn't want to kiss me," or "Maybe I'm going to come across as too forward," or, "Maybe we should get to know each other a little bit more."

He then doesn't move in for a first kiss.

The thing is, if a woman goes on a date with you and is feeling attracted to you, then she almost certainly wants the date to get to a first kiss.

If you don't kiss her, then she walks away thinking, well, "Am I attractive enough? Is there a spark between him and I? Would we just be better off as friends? Or did he avoid kissing me because he was nervous and afraid?"

If she suspects that the reason why he didn't kiss her was that he lacked confidence, then she'll naturally start to lose interest in him.

So, the next time you go on a first date with a woman, make sure that you believe in yourself.

Make sure that you remember she is on a first date with you because she likes you and she has almost certainly been fantasizing about what it would feel like to kiss you and have sex with you.

So, allow her to experience that and then if you want to, go ahead and start a relationship with her.

Learn More?

Okay, I hope you enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn more, I have 3 recommendations for you.

The recommendations are:

1. The Flow
2. The Ultimate Guide to Conversation
3. Make Her Love You For Life

Each of those programs are for different guys who are at a different stage of their success with women.

For example: The Flow is for guys who want to approach and attract women so they can get dates and have sex or get into a relationship.

The Flow includes everything that you need to know to start conversations with women, keep conversations going, get to a phone number, a kiss, or a date and then get to sex.

Alternatively, you can skip the dates and just get to kissing and sex on the first night or the first date that you meet a woman.

While The Flow includes examples of how to start conversations and keep conversations going, The Ultimate Guide to Conversation goes deep into conversation.

So, if you need a lot of help with conversation and are worried about running out of things to say when you're on a date with a woman, or when you're talking to a woman that you find attractive, then The Ultimate Guide to Conversation is for you.

Finally, Make Her Love You For Life.

This program will teach you how to make a woman respect you, feel sexually attracted to you and be totally in love with you when in a relationship.

It's about how to keep a relationship together and make the woman want to be with you and only you.

Focus on How You're Making Her Feel and Everything Will Flow Smoothly

One final point that I want to make few in this video is that, when you go on a first date with a woman, what really matters the most is how you make her feel.

It doesn't really matter where you go.

You can go to a cafe or restaurant, hang out at a park, go for a walk and get some ice cream, go get a bite to eat at some casual place, the beach or whatever you want to do.

Depending on the woman, you can also have the first date at your place or hers, where you cook dinner together.

You can then chill out on the couch and eventually start kissing and having sex on the first date.

It doesn't really matter so much where you go on the first date.

What matters the most is that you choose a date that you're going to be comfortable with and that you're going to enjoy, because when you are feeling comfortable and you're enjoying yourself, the woman is going to feel more attracted to you.

She's going to see that you're confident, relaxed and that you're doing something you want to do.

So, if you're not into going to fancy restaurants and things like that, then don't feel the need to do that just because you're going on a date with an attractive woman.

If the woman that you're going on a date with is attractive, then she's probably had a lot of guys try to impress her and win her over with gifts or paying for an expensive dinner or something like that.

Yet, if she's like most attractive women, she doesn't actually need that.

What she is really looking for is to feel attracted and turned on in your presence.

She wants to feel like you and her have a spark, there's something there between you and her.

She wants to feel the urge to kiss you and have sex with you and she wants to feel like she's beginning to fall in love with you.

You can make a woman feel that way at a cafe, you can make her feel that way if you're grabbing a burger, if you're going for a walk and getting some ice cream, if you're going and watching a movie or you're going to an expensive dinner.

It doesn't really matter where you go.

What really matters is your approach to the date and how it makes her feel.

Does she feel relaxed and easygoing around you?

Does she feel like she can be her real self?

Does she feel like there's a spark between you and her?

Does she feel the desire to kiss you?

That's what really matters.

How to Attract Women if You're Not Tall

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

If you ask women what sort of guy they like, they will usually say, “Tall.”

If I were to ask you what makes a guy tall, what height would he have to be, you will most likely say what?

Six-foot or more, right?

You'll most likely say that the guy has to be six-foot or taller.

Yet, the thing is, the majority of the adult male population is not six-foot or taller.

To use America for example: 14.5% of the adult males in America are six-foot or taller, leaving 85.5% of men being less than six-foot.

Now, let's have a look at the average height of men per country in a number of countries, so you can see that it's pretty much the same in most countries around the world.

- Brazil: 1.731 meters.
- United States: 1.763.
- Australia: 1.748.
- Norway: 1.824.
- Spain: 1.78.
- South Africa: 1.69.
- Ghana in Africa: 1.695.
- United Kingdom: 1.77.
- Iceland: 1.798.

Those numbers are for men who are 18 years of age or older, so it includes older men who are generally a little bit shorter than they were when they were younger men.

Yet, I think the most interesting statistic is the fact that in America, 14.5% of the male population are taller than six-foot.

If you look at the average heights of other countries, you'll see that it's pretty much the same as the U.S, so you can assume that the same applies to pretty much every other country out there.

In countries like Norway, where the men are taller there will be a higher percentage of men who are six-feet and above, but generally speaking around the world, most guys are not six-foot.

The majority of the male population is less than six-foot.

So, how can you attract women if you're not tall, if you're not six-foot or higher?

The way that it works is that when a woman is asked what sort of man she likes and she says, “Tall,” what she's really saying, in most cases is, “I want a man who makes me feel safe.”

A tall man triggers her instinctive need to feel safe around a guy so a guy can protect her.

Yet, a guy who is the same height as her can still trigger her instinctive need to feel safe.

Additionally, when you see a guy who is taller than a woman, it doesn't always mean that he is six-foot.

In some cases, the guy might be 5'10" and the woman will be 5'9" or 5'8" or 5'7".

When a woman says that she wants a tall guy, it doesn't always necessarily mean that the guy has to be six-foot or taller.

Yet, how about the shorter guys?

How about the guys who are actually shorter than the women that they want to attract?

Well, most women don't go around saying, "I want a shorter guy. I want a mini man. I want a little man that I can rest my arm on when I'm hanging out...I'll rest it on his head."

Women don't go around saying that.

Most women don't really have a short guy on the top of their list in terms of what they want from a guy.

Yet, a short guy can still get laid and get a girlfriend.

Initially, when a short guy starts talking to a woman who doesn't normally date guys who are shorter than her, she may be suspicious of him.

She might not be sure whether he could actually protect her and make her feel safe.

Yet, if he talks to her and she can see that he is confident, emotionally masculine and he's not a wimpy guy, then her instinctive need to feel safe is going to be triggered.

Not every woman is going to accept the short guy, of course, but he can still get laid and get a girlfriend.

He can still make women, including pretty, beautiful women feel attracted to him and want to be with him sexually and romantically.

So, if you're one of the guys who has been going through like saying to yourself, "I'm not successful with women because I'm not six-foot or taller," you need to start paying attention to what you're seeing around you.

Approximately 85.5% of the adult male population is not six-foot or taller, but they are still able to attract women, get laid, get a girlfriend, get married and enjoy life with women.

By the way, over the years, some guys have asked me how tall I am.

Well, I'm seven-foot so that's why I'm successful with women.

No, just kidding.

In reality, I'm 175.5cm, which is basically 5'9". (Dan Bacon – height – 5'9", 175.5cm).

So I'm not even a 5'10", 5'11" sort of guy.

It would be nice to be six-foot, but the reality is that if I was six-foot or taller like the man in the photo here, then I wouldn't have gone along the path that I did, which led to me discovering how to attract women as I talk to them.

Seeing what other guys were going through out there, I then had the motivation to get out there, start teaching this stuff and I haven't ever stopped since.

So, if I was a tall man like the man in the photo here, you probably wouldn't be watching this video.

Success with women most likely would have been handed to me on a silver platter as a result of being six-foot or taller.

Yet, personally speaking, over the years, I have met some tall guys through my social circle who are not successful with women.

They are tall, but they are nervous.

They are shy.

They're insecure.

They doubt themselves around attractive women.

I also have friends who are tall and they are confident.

They believe in themselves and they succeed with women very easily.

So, what's going on there?

Well, remember what I said before about a women's instinctive need to feel safe?

Even though a guy is tall, if he is nervous, insecure and doubts himself, then a woman is not going to feel safe around him if she is more confident in herself than he is.

If a woman feels like she is more emotionally strong and emotionally dominant than a tall guy and he's just a big teddy bear, then her instinctive need to feel safe is not going to be satisfied.

Instead, he's going to make her feel more like a mother figure to him and when a woman feels that around a guy, it doesn't make her have sexual feelings.

Some women will put up with that, but most women get frustrated by that type of relationship dynamic.

So, while being tall definitely can give a man an advantage in terms of making a woman feel like she would be safe and protected by him if he's a confident guy, being tall doesn't guarantee a guy's success with women.

The fact is that guys who are not six-foot or taller can still attract women and enjoy easy, natural success with women.

As I mentioned earlier, when you see guys who are taller than a woman, it doesn't always mean that the guy is six-foot or taller.

Sometimes, the guy is 5'10", 5'9", 5'8" and so on.

Generally speaking, women are usually shorter than men.

There are tall women out there of course, but generally speaking, women are usually shorter than men.

So, what you'll see is that a woman will be 5'8" and a guy will be 5'9" or 5'10". You will also see situations where the guy is shorter than the woman.

Yet, regardless of whether a guy is taller than six-foot or is taller than a woman and he's 5'9" or 5'10" or is the same height as her or he's shorter, the most important thing to most women out there is that their instinctive need to feel safe with a guy is satisfied.

In other words, he is a confident guy.

He's emotionally strong.

He's not a wimpy guy.

There are so many ways that you can make a woman feel attracted to you as you talk to her and one of those ways is to trigger her instinctive need to feel safe.

Making a woman feel what way doesn't mean that a guy has to be a thug or a bad boy or anything like that.

Instead, a woman just needs to feel that the guy is emotionally stronger than her.

He's more confident than her.

He is not looking to her for protection from the world around them.

She essentially gets the feeling that she can be the woman and he will be the man.

Learn More?

Okay, I hope you've enjoyed this video and learned something from it.

If you'd like to learn more about how to attract women so you can enjoy your choice of women, I recommend that you read my eBook, The Flow or listen to the audiobook version, The Flow on Audio.

When you read The Flow or listen to The Flow on Audio, you will learn exactly what to say and do when you're interacting with a woman to make her feel attracted to you and make her want you regardless of your height.

There are some women out there who will only ever accept a guy who's six-foot or taller, but the majority of women aren't that fussy when it comes to height.

They will go around saying that they want a tall guy, but what they're really saying is that they want a guy who makes them feel safe.

Most women out there are happy to be with a guy who is the same height as them, or maybe a little bit taller if he's 5'9" or 5'10" and many women out there will also accept a guy who is shorter than them.

So, when you read The Flow or listen to The Flow on Audio, you will learn my best examples of how to start conversations, how to keep conversations going, how to make women feel attracted to you, how to make women feel connected with you, how to get to a kiss, how to get her phone number, what to text her when you get her phone number, how to get her to go on a date with you, how to get to sex and so on.

The Flow is everything that you need to know to go from "Hello" to sex and into a relationship with a woman that you find attractive.

Attracting Women Online vs. In Person

One final point that I want to make for you in this video is that there is a big difference between online dating and attracting women in real life.

When a woman uses online dating, she has thousands of guys trying to get a chance with her.

As a result, her standards go way up.

She can start asking for things like tall, rich, handsome, drives a Ferrari, has a luxury yacht and so on.

She can essentially pick and choose between the top 1% of guys that are hoping to get a chance with her.

Yet, in real life, when you make a woman feel attracted to you as you talk to her, it becomes about you and her in that moment.

If she has an online dating profile with thousands of guys lining up to get a chance with her, she isn't necessarily going to be thinking about that when you and her are interacting.

She's going to be focused on the fact that she's feeling attracted and turned on by you in that moment.

So, while it's true that with online dating and with apps like Tinder, it's mostly about looks, height and money, in real life, it's an open playing field.

All types of guys have a chance to get laid and get a girlfriend.

If you want the power to be in your hands and you want to be able to attract women and enjoy a choice of women, I recommend that you do that in person.

Don't try to compete with guys over height, money and looks with online dating.

The best way to get laid and get a girlfriend is to attract women as you talk to them.

So, if you're not six-foot or taller, just know that you can attract women in person.

You CAN make a woman feel attracted to you as you talk to her and you are not doomed for life if you're not six-foot or taller.

You CAN attract pretty, beautiful women.

That is a fact.

Approximately 85.5% of the adult male population in your country is going to be less than six-foot.

So, don't doubt yourself.

If you see a woman that you find attractive, interact with her, make her feel attracted and take the interaction to the next level.

5 Signs She Wants You Sexually

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

When a woman wants you sexually, she will usually give you certain signs to show it.

Yet, every woman is different.

Not every woman will give the same signs at the same time.

So, before I get into the 5 signs that a woman wants you sexually, I have to tell you something very important first.

Even if a woman wants you sexually and is hoping to hook up with you and have sex, she will often go without sex altogether, rather than being the one who has to make the first move and make it all happen.

There are four main reasons why a woman will do that.

1. She doesn't want to seem too sexually aggressive; she wants to seem lady like.
2. She doesn't want to put herself out there and get rejected.
3. She wants to test your confidence to see how confident you really are. Are you confident enough to make a move even though she's not making obvious first moves?
4. She wants to test your interest level.

Regarding number 4, in many cases, you will be interacting with a woman, feeling sexually attracted to her and wanting something to happen, but she won't always know that. Not every woman that you meet is confident in herself and believes that every man wants to have sex with her.

Sometimes you'll be interacting with a woman and you will find her attractive, but she'll be thinking things like, "Is he just flirting with me for fun? Is he just trying to get me interested and then he's going to lose interest? Is he just being friendly? If I show sexual interest, is he going to reject me? Does he have other girls that are interested in him? Is he actually attracted to me in a sexual way?"

So, sometimes when you're interacting with a woman, she will be sexually interested in you, but it won't seem very obvious.

She will be holding back a bit because she wants to see what your interest level is like.

Are you going to continue interacting with her and trying to get the interaction to a kiss and sex, or are you going to give up if she seems like she's not openly interested in getting to a kiss and sex?

Okay, so now that that's clear, let's get into the 5 signs that she wants you sexually.

1. She fidgets in a girly way

[image: She fidgets in a girly way]

When a woman is interacting with a guy who is making her feel sexually attracted and turned on, she will unconsciously start to show signs of sexual interest.

One of those is to fidget in a girly way.

She'll start playing with her hair, or if she has a necklace, she'll start playing with her necklace.

She'll be doing girly things like that.

What you may have noticed is that guys don't play with their hair in a girly way (i.e. twirling it around their finger, continually stroking it up and down) and guys don't play with their necklace in a girly way either. (Watch the video for examples).

It's a girly way to fidget and what it shows is that she is feeling girly and feminine in comparison to your masculinity in that moment.

You're making her feel attracted and turned on and in most cases, without any conscious effort on her part, she starts to fidget like a girl. She starts to react like that.

It's sort of like when you see naked women and you unconsciously just start to bone up.

It just starts to happen.

It's an automatic reaction.

Likewise, when you're kissing a woman and making out with her, she automatically starts to get wet; she starts to get turned on.

The same with girly fidgeting.

If you're interacting with a woman and she is fidgeting in a girly way when she's interacting with you, it's almost always an unconscious signal from her that shows you that she is feeling sexually attracted and turned on by you.

For example: Another bit of unconscious girly fidgeting, when a woman is feeling turned on, is when she put her finger to her mouth, or put her finger on her tooth.

A woman will sometimes do that when she's thinking about doing something with her mouth in regards to you.

So, whether that be kissing you or putting something of yours inside her mouth.

2. She gets very close when talking to you

With this one, I'll give you a personal example of something that happened to me.

I was at a friend's party and there was a girl there that I was attracted to, but I didn't want anything to do with because she already had a boyfriend.

Her boyfriend was my friend's brother.

So, I just wanted to talk to her in a friendly way, but there was clearly a spark between her and I.

As we were talking, I was just trying to be friendly and keep things platonic and neutral, but she was clearly attracted and one of the ways that I could tell that was that she was getting very close to me as we talked.

I noticed she was doing that and I stepped back.

I didn't want to be standing too close to her, because that just wouldn't be cool with her boyfriend there and as I said, I didn't want to do anything with her, but, when I step back, she would step forward and that kept happening.

No matter how much I stepped back, she kept stepping forward.

There was constant eye contact from her, she was sometimes biting her bottom lip and at times, slowly running her fingers across her cleavage, to bring my attention towards her cleavage.

I didn't look; I didn't want to have that type of interaction with her.

By the way...

To get out of that interaction, I eventually said to her, "Hey, great chatting to you. I'm going to head over and talk to some friends over there for now, but you know, maybe talk to you later," got out of that interaction, went over and talked to some friends and about half an hour later, met some new girls that were actually single and ended up hooking up with one of them.

So, it was a good night.

Okay, so with the sign of a woman getting very close to you, it's important to look at that sign in combination with other signs of sexual interest.

A woman sitting next to you, talking to you and being very close doesn't always mean that she wants you sexually if she just shows that sign of interest.

If she's just talking to you in a friendly way or in a professional way and she's very close to you, it doesn't mean that she wants to take her panties down, spread her legs and get you to stick it in.

So, it's always best to look for multiple signals; look for a combination of signals that a woman is giving you.

On that note, sign number 3...

3. She touches you often and seems to enjoy it

If a woman is turned off by a guy, she will completely avoid touching him altogether.

If a woman sees a guy as a friend, she may touch him, but it will just be in a friendly way like a pat on the shoulder, a pat on the leg and there won't be any sexual undertones or sexual vibes that come along with it.

It will just be a friendly pat on the shoulder, or a friendly pat on the leg, or even a friendly hug, but it won't be sexual.

On the other hand, if a woman is sexually attracted and turned on by you, then in many cases, when she touches you, she will seem to enjoy it.

She will touch you and she'll give your arm a bit of a squeeze, or she'll touch your leg and give it a bit of a squeeze and she'll be smiling and she will seem to be excited about the fact that she's touching you.

If you're talking face to face, you tell a joke and she starts laughing, she may show her sexual interest by touching you on the chest.

She might give it a bit of a caress, or if you're sitting next to her, she might put her hand on your chest and give it a bit of a caress once again, but it's important to understand that sometimes a woman will do that when she just sees the guy as a friend.

To tell if she wants you sexually you just have to pay attention to how she behaves around other guys.

If she touches every guy on the chest and caresses every guy's chest, then it doesn't mean anything for you, or it means that she wants to bang everyone.

Yet, if she doesn't touch other guys on the chest, but does it to you, then it's her unconsciously and sometimes consciously trying to tell you that she is sexually interested in you.

4. She gives you an unusual amount of compliments

Some women don't want to show obvious signs of sexual interest because they want to seem lady-like.

Other women don't want to show obvious signs of sexual interest because they're shy and they're worried about getting rejected if they show you interest.

As a result, some women will end up giving you lots of compliments and trying to show you that they really like you, so you then have the confidence to make a move and kiss her and then get the interaction to sex and into a relationship.

So, if you're talking to a woman and she seems interested, she is laughing at your jokes and she's giving you an unusual amount of compliments, it almost certainly means that she's trying to show you that she likes you and she's interested in something happening between you and her.

As I said at the start of the video though, it's very important that you have the confidence to make a move because many women will go without having sex and even a relationship with a guy that they really like rather than making the first move.

So, look out for the signs and when you see the signs, make a move.

5. She uses sexual innuendos and then gives you a sexual look

Sometimes women use sexual innuendos just for fun.

Sometimes they use it to mess with a guy.

Yet, if you're interacting with a woman who seems interested in you and she is using sexual innuendos, you have to have the confidence in yourself to see that as her trying to show you that she's sexually interested in you.

What are some examples?

A common example is where you're talking to a woman and the subject of using hands for something comes up and she then says, "I'm good with my hands" and gives you a bit of a sexual look.

Another example is if you're talking about fruit and she says she likes bananas.

So, if a woman says that she likes bananas, you can reply to that by saying, "Yeah, I bet you do." (Watch video for example of how to say it the right way).

Let her know that you know exactly what she's talking about.

Alternatively, you could say, "Oh, you're a naughty one, aren't you?" to let her know that you know what she's talking about.

By the way...

Responding like that is best done when you're meeting women in a bar environment, at a party, or a relaxed environment where you're hanging out with friends.

If a woman is using sexual innuendos in the workplace, it's best to just smile knowingly and let her see that you understand what she's talking about.

It's best not to say anything about it in the work environment.

Keep those conversations for when you're in more relaxed, party-like environments where you're at a bar, at a party, at a fun social event and so on.

If a woman is sexually interested in you and you're able to pick up on her sexual innuendos and have the confidence to acknowledge it and build it into something even more than it is just for fun, then she's going to be excited that you're picking up on her signals.

You know that she wants to have sex with you.

So, at that point, you just need to have the confidence to move in for a kiss and then get the interaction to sex and go ahead and have a great time with each other.

When you read The Flow or listen to The Flow on Audio, you will learn exactly what you need to say and do to go from hello to sex with a woman that you meet.

The Flow includes my best examples of how to start conversations, how to keep conversations going, how to make women feel sexually attracted to you when you talk to them, how to get to a kiss, how to get to sex and into a relationship.

It also includes examples of what to text a woman when you get her phone number, how to get her to go on a date with you and so on.

It's everything that you need to know to go from hello to sex with a woman that you find attractive.

Women Want Sex, But Usually Avoid Making it Obvious

One final point that I want to make for you in this video, is that when you're interacting with very attractive women, they will often, but not always, avoid showing sexual interest in you right away.

One of the reasons why they do that and why they appear a bit cold and disinterested initially is that they don't want to give a chance to a guy who doesn't feel worthy of them.

If an attractive woman has had some experience with relationships before, she knows that if a guy doesn't feel worthy of her and gets a chance with her, he will almost certainly become clingy, needy, controlling and overprotective in a relationship.

He will then be very difficult for her to break up with.

So, with very attractive women, what they will often do is withhold showing you obvious signs of interest for the first minute or two.

It really depends on the woman though.

Some very attractive women show it openly and instantly, but some very attractive women who want to make sure that they get themselves a confident boyfriend will withhold showing any sexual interest in the first one to two minutes (and sometimes even a little longer).

So, if you're interacting with a very attractive woman who isn't making it obvious that she likes you sexually, you just need to look out for one thing; that she is still talking to you.

If an attractive woman isn't interested in you, she is going to stop talking to you.

She's going to turn away, leave the interaction or ask you to go away.

So, if you're interacting with an attractive woman and she keeps talking to you, you need to see that as a sign that she is interested in you.

You then need to build on her attraction so she starts to unconsciously show you signs of sexual interest.

Then, just have the confidence to get to a kiss and get to sex and enjoy yourself.

September 17, 2020 | by Dan Bacon | Link | Original Link

How can you avoid ever being needy when it comes to an attractive woman?

So, when you meet an attractive woman, or you start dating an attractive woman, how can you avoid yourself feeling desperate when it comes to her?

How can you avoid feeling like, “I need to get this girl to like me, I need to get her phone number, I have to be able to get to have sex with her or have a relationship with her?”

Additionally, how can you do the opposite of that and be the sort of guy who exudes the type of confidence that makes a woman want to get down on her knees and be a good girl?

To help you understand how to make that transformation and be the sort of guy who exudes that type of confidence that women magnetically find attractive, imagine this...

Imagine that you're walking through a desert during the day and naturally, it's very hot.
